Odessa bank declared insolvent, closed

ODESSA — Depositors of National Bank of Odessa, which was declared insolvent, closed, and placed under Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation receivership Friday night, will automatically become depositors in newly-created First State Bank of Odessa N.A. when it opens on Monday. The new bank is owned by Abilene holding company Independent Bankshares Inc.

At 6:26 p.m. CDT Friday the U.S. Office of the Comptroller of the Currency in Washington, D.C. declared National Bank of Odessa insolvent and appointed the FDIC as receiver.

An FDIC spokesman at NBO would not comment on the bank's closing, although the Abilene buyers are expected to be in the bank today. FDIC seals were placed on the automatic teller, locks were changed, and a police guard was on duty at NBO Friday night.

The National Bank of Odessa was chartered in 1959, and had deposits of approximately $77 million at the time of failure.

Liabilities of NBO in its latest statement of condition totaled $102.05 million, while assets were only $92.87 million. Thus, there was a difference of $9.45 million in negative equity capital at NBO (assets minus liabilities).

If the Odessa bank had liquidated itself, it would have owed depositors and other creditors more money than it could raise. It would have been more than $9 million short in paying off.

The bank was closed by Acting Comptroller of the Currency H. Joe Selby, who said, "Over the past six months, the bank suffered increasingly heavy losses on energy related loans. These losses finally exhausted the bank's capital funds and reserves, rendering it insolvent."

Allen Whitney, a public relations officer with the FDIC in Washington, called the insolvency a "book insolvency" as opposed to a "liquidity insolvency." He said the Odessa bank's liabilities merely outstripped its assets. "In point of fact, when the capital is gone in any institution or entity, it is insolvent. This bank's capital was eaten up by energy loan losses."

Hightower unveils programs to aid farmers, ranchers

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

ODESSA — "We got a world of hurt out here in West Texas," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower acknowledged Friday during a talk before the 18th annual convention of the Texas Association of Regional Councils.

Before briefing the audience on various programs his department is establishing, Hightower talked of the state's immediate problem — that of the farmers and ranchers hit by a natural disaster known as drought.

He called U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block's move earlier this week to lower interest rates on loans and to open eligibility to ranchers as a step forward. However, he's still seeking release of corn in the Panhandle to be used as feed.

But the fight to release that corn isn't over, he said. Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower, both Texas senators, have started legislation to get it released. And Congressman Ed Jones of Tennessee reportedly will hold hearings on why the administration isn't responding to the drought.

Hightower refuted a theory voiced by some area ranchers that legislators are using the drought as a political issue and the free feed would be of no use to ranchers who are selling off their herds. "They're liquidating their herds to a breeding stock and the feed would help that much."

Until President Reagan took office, each state had a disaster aid program but it was put under the federal government, according to Hightower in explaining why the state hasn't given any aid. However, if no additional federal aid is forthcoming and the drought persists, Hightower said the state may have to consider setting up its own program.

To color his point about the plight of the agricultural community, Hightower said 69 percent of farmers and ranchers who hold operating loans under the Farmers Home Administration are delinquent in their payments.

With agriculture ranking as this country's largest industry — providing 25 percent of all the jobs ranging from small farmer to supermarket checker — the state is trying to develop programs that will keep the business out of trouble, according to Hightower.

Marketing is the first target, he said. "Farmers grow it...too much of it. But our marketing system is not getting it to the consumer at the volume it should."

To ease this problem, an international marketing division is being formed in the Agriculture Department to seek world markets for Texas products. A market analyst has been hired to find the markets and make the sales.

Within the states is needed a farmers market system, he said. Hightower explained that major supermarkets buy their produce from out of state and sometimes from other countries. A way needs to be found to allow farmers to sell their products locally, thus keeping the money at home.

A similar program but with a different target is taking all of one area's produce and selling it in another part of the state where that product is in short supply.

"We need to help the farmers become processors, become marketers of their food," he said.

Hereford grows tons of onions, but to have them made into frozen onion rings they are bought by a Chicago firm, processed and then shipped back to Texas. Hightower is looking for a way to help the Hereford farmers set up a frozen onion ring processing plant.

Ideas such as the Hereford plant involve low capital cost, he contended, but local bankers aren't accustomed to handing out money for such projects. To get these moving, the agriculture commissioner suggested the Texas Legislature develop a funding program with the money being handed out by local banks.

Similarly, ranchers could benefit from opening their own slaughterhouse rather than shipping the cows north, he added.

Besides the usual farm and ranch products, Hightower is suggesting these people begin to diversify. One area is grape-growing and wine-making.

"Two to three acres of grapes is a whole bunch of grapes," he said.

The state has been in the wine-making business for several years and more than 100,000 bottles are expected next year. In a few years, Texas will rival California, he predicted.

"Bet you thought it was Chateau Bubba," he joked of the state's wine quality. "When I was in college we thought California wine was a joke. It was 99 cents a barrel and you disappeared for the weekend."

Of all these projected programs, Hightower stressed the state would assist only in setting them up; the local people will have to manage them.

Hance hopes Marines can leave Lebanon without 'bloodbath'

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Kent Hance didn't want to send the Marines into Lebanon. And now that U.S. troops are there, he's hoping they can be pulled out without leaving behind a bloodbath.

The U.S. congressman from Lubbock pointed out deficiencies in the federal budget process, national defense and the Federal Reserve during his Friday luncheon talk before the Texas Association of Regional Councils state meeting.

Lebanon has been the first test of U.S. military strength in several years, but it is a situation that should have been left to Israel to resolve, he noted.

"The Israelis were winning" before President Reagan sent in the Marines. "If we hadn't sent in the Marines the Israelis could have won it in three weeks. They were already pushing out the Syrians," said Hance, noting that Israel follows a policy of getting it over quickly.

"I hope we can get our troops out without a bloodbath," he continued. "Lebanon needs to get a coalition government."

Lebanon has been the battleground to pit U.S. technology against that of the Soviet Union, and the U.S. has won, he said. Syrians, using Soviet aircraft, lost 85 planes in one day while the Israelis, using American equipment, didn't lose any.

Hance supports a strong national defense, but without the price gouging by U.S. firms. The General Accounting Office, he said, has identified 14 firms that were charging prices several times what they should have been. These have been prohibited from bidding on government contracts.

He cited a nut-and-bolt that anyone would buy for 44 cents but the company had been billing the government $114.

"If you give the Pentagon a blank check, they'll spend you into oblivion," said Hance, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator. He is running for the seat that incumbent John Tower is vacating.

Trying to get the House and Senate to agree on a budget from year to year isn't working. Congress winds up every year passing a Continuing Resolution so federal agencies won't have to close their doors Oct. 1.

Shultz meets with Syrian minister

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Syria rejected American attempts Friday to get its approval for a U.N. force to monitor Lebanon's ceasefire, but a senior Reagan administration official said Washington will persist in pushing for such a force.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz met for an hour with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam. They parted without agreeing on the question of observers for the cease-fire, said the senior official, who briefed reporters on the meeting. The official insisted on anonymity.

Khaddam, in a U.N. address earlier this week, demanded that the multinational peacekeeping forces, get out of Lebanon. He accused the United States of taking the government's side in Lebanon's civil war, which pits the government and Christian forces against the Druse and other Moslem militias.

"They have been very difficult for us to get along with," the senior U.S. official said of the Syrians.

But he said almost all other countries involved with Lebanon favor letting forces assembled by the United Nations monitor the cease-fire between the Lebanese government and warring factions.

He refused to discuss other options for monitoring the cease-fire, which went into effect on Sunday. But he said he hoped the issue could be resolved over the weekend. U.S. officials fear that the deadlock over cease-fire observers could lead to a breakdown in the cease-fire itself.

Lebanon's Foreign Minister Elie Salem met with Shultz Friday and told reporters afterwards his government thinks a U.N. force would be best.

In an address to the U.N. General Assembly Friday night, Salem said: "We now look to the United Nations to help us establish the mechanism that can adequately supervise (the truce). We hope that this urgent and humane objective will have the enthusiastic support of all members of this organization."

Earlier, he said troops from the multinational peacekeeping forces could be detached to form an independent unit to supervise the cease-fire if U.N. observers didn't work out.

Salem warned that continued chaos in Lebanon could spread to other parts of the Middle East.

"To allow Lebanon to flounder in its present course is to aggravate the conflicts of the region and to export them beyond its frontiers into Syria, Iraq and the Gulf States."

Mattox blames his troubles on aggressiveness

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Jim Mattox attributes his problems with a large oil company and his indictment by a Travis County grand jury to his goal of being an aggressive state attorney general.

Elected to his post last November, the former Democratic U.S. congressman contended Friday afternoon his problems stem from an attempt by his office to get Mobil Oil to quit stealing from the taxpayers of Texas.

Mattox was guest speaker for an afternoon session during a state convention of Texas Association of Regional Councils with about 350 persons attending.

After giving his side of the case about the oil company during a news conference, Mattox blasted the Reagan administration in his talk before the group while pledging to continue his aggressiveness.

Jim Mattox

Mattox charged that Mobil Oil has been trespassing on state land since 1932 and now owes the state more than $500 million. Two other major companies, Texaco and Exxon, also were found in the same position. Exxon though, settled out of court by paying $4 million in cash, returning all property not in production to the state and raising the royalty being paid Texas.

Mobil has tried settling out of court, but Mattox won't go for less than $100 million. If he settled for less, "I'd be selling out the people of Texas, the schoolchildren of Texas. That money goes into the Permanent School Fund."

Instead of settling the matter, Mattox said various individuals connected with Mobil are saying he offered a commercial bribe. "They looked for 2½ months to find something to charge me with and that's all they came up with," he said. "I have no doubt I'll prevail. I will be attorney general for the rest of the term."

Mattox denied he was targeting petroleum companies in his agressiveness. However, he noted his office was investigating King Ranch. "It looks like the state of Texas has not been treated appropriately."

In attacking President Reagan's actions, Mattox said when the Republican campaigned for the office he criticized then-President Carter's $53 billion deficit, calling it "an utter, complete, total, disaster."

"I don't know how you would describe a $200 billion deficit. He (Reagan) probably will have the distinction of running up the highest deficit in his four years in office."

Because of this defict, said Mattox, the regional councils of government will be suffering from fewer federal allocations.

"I want you to understand the pressures you'll be under for the next decade because of these deficits. Other programs will be cut back substantially," said Mattox.

These regional councils demonstrate how the people can work together for one purpose, he said. And Mattox also asked for the people's help in the consumer protection area.

"We attempt to intervene in some of these cases with utility price gouging," he said. There was a siding company which was forced into a settlement after Mattox's office intervened. There was the savings and loan association in Lubbock which was forced to refund $500,000 in fees "they had improperly charged on home loans."

"We just passed a new anti-trust law that will stop bid-rigging on your construction programs," he added.

Mattox requested the government officials to call on his office for help or clarification. "But don't ask for my help if you really don't want me to go out and do something. And if you do something wrong, I'll go after you just as aggressively."

Hance hopes there won't be 'bloodbath'

Hance said a trend is developing for designing a two-year budget. By waiting until the last minute for the resolution to be passed, these agencies can't plan ahead.

The country's deficit has ballooned and Hance suggested if there is a tax bill in the future that it be tied to the entitlement programs. By the time Congress approves the defense budget and one for entitlement programs, very little is left over to cut to bring down the deficit.

The current formula for the budget needs to be revised and Hance said he's hoping it comes after the 1984 presidential election.

"If you're having cuts across the board you can justify it to constituents. But with most of these cuts you're only slowing down the increases," he said, suggesting entitlement programs be included in that across-the-board cut.

Social Security should be on sound footing after last year's revisions. The self-employment tax was set at 11.3 percent, which was down from the 16.1 percent that had been proposed.

"I don't like it either," he said of complaints. "But 16.1 percent was way too high.

"Had we not had a solution for Social Security, the system would have gone broke; we would have had no checks. This was the best that could be worked out under the circumstances."

Hance expressed his disdain for Paul Volcker, head of the Federal Reserve which sets the interest rate, and blamed him for the recession.

"His monetary policy has been way too tight. You used to bleed patients when they were sick. They would get over the pneumonia but died of the bleeding. The same thing has happened to the economy."

When John Kennedy was president 20 years ago, Hance said, the Democrat cut taxes and then leaned on the Fed to lower interest rates. The Fed responded and the economy expanded.

Reagan did the opposite, allowing the Fed to raise interest rates. That put the country into a further decline, Hance contended.

If interest rates were lowered significantly, the country's economy would begin to expand, theorized Hance. He is expecting that to happen during the election year.

Odessa bank declared insolvent, closed down

Since NBO was a national bank, it operated under the aegis of the Comptroller of the Currency. State banks, by contrast, are supervised by the FDIC and the Federal Reserve. The FDIC was named receiver because it insures NBO's deposits. "It's not very efficient, but that's how the system works," Whitney said.

Similar energy loan problems — not as severe — have plagued banks all over the Permian Basin. "When you're in a one-industry economy — and that industry is in a slump — it's hard to diversify your loan portfolio," Jim Williams, UTPB economics professor, said Friday evening.

Five bank leaders, chairmen and presidents, resigned in the Permian Basin this spring. One was chairman Kenneth Jumper at NBO. But its acting chairman Dubb Duff said in August that the bank was "healthy" and "certainly not" in any danger of failing.

The fact that deposits were immediately assumed by a buyer and the bank will reopen Monday saves the FDIC money it would have had to guarantee to depositors, and saves the former NBO's customers a lot of trouble.

"This deposit assumption was made possible with assist from the FDIC and avoids the necessity for a payoff of the 18,000 accounts in the failed bank," Whitney said.

"It also prevents possible financial loss to the owners of deposits that exceed the statutory insurance limit of $100,000," he added.

The First State Bank of Odessa will assume about $81.2 million in deposits and has agreed to pay the FDIC a purchase premium of $1.2 million for the bank, Whitney said. The FDIC is advancing $46.9 million in cash to the new bank and is retaining assets of the failed bank with a book value of about $62 million, Whitney added.

The FDIC may assume deposits of a failed bank whenever it determines that doing so would reduce its potential loss. The board of directors made such a finding because of the premium paid by the new owners, Whitney said.

The FDIC expects to recover a substantial portion of its outlay through liquidation of assets not transferred to the assuming bank. In that respect, the FDIC will have priority over shareholders of the closed bank, Whitney added.

The Odessa bank could have been closed down by authorities months earlier, said Williams, who is an authority on the Permian Basin economy.

"That bank (National Bank of Odessa) has actually been insolvent for nine months. The Comptroller of the Currency probably did not shut it down because of fear of causing an unjustified run on other banks in the area," Williams said.

"It's not entirely unexpected," Williams said of the NBO insolvency. "They have been $9 million to $10 million in the hole since March. In that sense it is no surprise. It's just a matter of them having very high loan losses in their energy portfolio."

Williams said it is important to note that NBO was the only bank in Odessa reporting negative equity capital for the latest quarter. "I don't think that the closing of NBO is any indication that that's going to happen to any of the other banks in the area. There is no other bank in that situation. Things are picking up in the Permian Basin oil industry, and that is the mainstay of area banks."

Texaco employees may be coming to Midland

By JIM PRESNELL
Business-Energy Writer

A rumor circulating in Midland recently said the operations of Texaco's Midland division would be substantially reduced because many employees are being relocated to Denver and New Orleans.

Actually, Texaco says, there will be more employees from other cities moving into Midland than Midland employees moving out. The net effect in Midland due to operations changes at Texaco will be positive — and the Midland producing division will gain new responsibilities, company officials say.

Operations manager R.D. Tomberlin confirmed Friday afternoon "there won't be a big increase in the number of people" as a result of the operations changes.

"But the net result is a few more people, and a bit more responsibility in that the Midland producing division now covers all of Texas."

The producing division here will be adding East Texas and South Texas to its present territory.

In Houston, Phil Blackburn, a Texaco public relations spokesman, said "This action is being taken to achieve greater efficiency in Texaco USA's producing activities, and to provide more effective management and technical support of Texaco USA's aggressive exploration program."

Texaco's corporate statement, released by Houston headquarters Friday said "Texaco USA's exploration divisions in Denver and New Orleans are being expanded to include the exploration activities formerly handled by its Tulsa, Midland, and Houston divisions.

"New Orleans will be responsible for the onshore and offshore Gulf Coast and Atlantic areas. Denver will be responsible for the remaining continental U.S. from the Rocky Mountains eastward (including Permian Basin exploration). The Los Angeles division will continue to be responsible for exploration and producing activities on the West Coast and in Alaska."

Thus, Texaco's exploration in the Permian Basin will be carried out from Denver, to alter management and add technical support. But Texaco USA will be adding more in Midland than they are taking away: "The Midland producing division will be expanded, to be responsible for producing activities formerly handled by the Midland division and the Houston division."

In other producing staff changes "Texaco USA's Denver producing division will be be expanded to include producing activities formerly handled by the Tulsa division. The New Orleans producing division will be responsible for producing activities formerly handled by the New Orleans and offshore divisions."

Law Enforcement Appreciation Dinner planned

The 6th Annual Law Enforcement Appreciation Dinner is to be held Oct. 27 at the Holiday Inn Country Villa, 4300 W. Wall Ave.

Sponsored by the Two Hundred Club of Midland, the event honors four local law enforcement officers for outstanding community service and for excellence in carrying out their duties, according to club board member John Omohundro.

Featured speaker will be James Drury, star of the TV series "The Virginian".

Three awards go to an officer below the rank of captain in the police department, sheriff's department and the Department of Public Safety.

The fourth award is given to a representative from the FBI, the district attorney's office, the county attorney's office or the constable's office.

Last year's recipients were police officer Joe Lopez, deputy sheriff Lloyd Brazell, DPS trooper David L. Jones and FBI agent Bob Billhimer.

Although Midland residents can apply for club membership at any time, Omohundro said a concentrated membership drive will be conducted from now until the Oct. 27 appreciation dinner.

Recent new members to the club include Stanley Beard, J.C. Barnes, Jack Blake, David Hancock, Bob Lyon, Robert Monaghan, Joe Roper and Bill Shiplet.

Midland businessman Clayton Williams Jr. founded the Law Enforcement Appreciation Dinner in 1978. A year later, he helped organize the Two Hundred Club to provide financial and community support for local law enforcement agencies.

The club also aids officers who are injured in the line of duty and provides equipment for use in police work.

In addition, the club provides money to the families of peace officers who have lost their lives in the line of duty.

The Two Hundred Club derives its name from the $200 charged for membership. Dues are paid annually, and all contributions — including membership fees — are used solely for the support of law enforcement officers and their families.

More information about the club and the awards dinner can be obtained by calling Bud Clover at 683-5384, or John Omohundro at 682-6324.

Jill Poage of 5422 Basswood, reported a gold chain, charm, bracelet and two pins worth a total of $1,275 were missing from her residence at 7:40 a.m. The jewelry apparently was taken sometime Monday or Tuesday evening.

Jimmy Robert of Basin Electric, 410 N. Weatherford, reported a burglary at the business at 7:30 a.m. Missing were an air compressor and a clock radio. Entry apparently was gained sometime between 6 p.m. Thursday and the time of the report by prying open the front door.

Wilhelmina Nicholson, of 1942 English Drive, reported a $600 car stereo had been taken from her automobile early Friday morning and Ron Wilson, of 417 E. Dormard, reported a cassette player and equalizer worth $550 were taken from his car sometime after 11 p.m. Thursday.

Two Odessans critical after wreck

Two Odessans were listed in critical condition at Midland Memorial Hospital following a head-on collision on U.S. Highway 80, about a mile west of Midland Friday night.

According to the Department of Public Safety, a vehicle driven by James D. Elliott, 49, was eastbound in the westbound lane at about 8:45 p.m. when it collided with a westbound vehicle driven by Verdie Mae Mickens, 63.

Elliott suffered head and neck injuries and possibly a punctured lung and Ms. Mickens was listed with head and neck injuries and facial lacerations, according to the DPS.

DPS troopers also were investigating another accident which occurred at the intersection of State Highway 158 and Farm-to-Market 1788. No details were available at press time.

District judge announces resignation

SAN ANTONIO — U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon of San Antonio has announced his plans to resign from the judgeship Jan. 1 to re-enter the private practice of law.

Shannon, who was appointed to the federal bench in 1980, said he wants to return to private practice with his former firm and to other activities in which he, as a judge, could not participate. The firm, now Martin & Drought, will be renamed Martin, Shannon & Drought when he joins.

Shannon was judge for the Texas' 131st State District Court in San Antonio from 1975 until June 1980 when he entered the federal judgeship.

Shannon plans to continue handling the docket assigned him until the end of the year but would not take cases in which the Martin & Drought law firm might have an interest.

The judge expressed his admiration, respect and appreciation for his colleagues on the bench and the staffs in San Antonio and elsewhere in the court system's Western District of Texas, which extends from the San Antonio-Austin-Waco area westward to El Paso.

Six active judges, including Lucius D. Bunton of the Midland-Odessa Division, and three judges who have taken senior status (retirement) are in the district.

In his announcement, Shannon made no mention of a successor.

Alleged rapist stabbed 46 times

BEAUMONT (AP) — A 21-year-old woman claimed she stabbed a state representative's father-in-law in self-defense after the 68-year-old man raped her and threatened to shoot her.

Brenda Marie Burney remained jailed Friday after being charged with murder in connection with the stabbing death of Samuel Buchanan. Justice of the Peace Wallace McCafland set bond at $100,000 on the murder charge.

Buchanan, the father-in-law of Rep. Al Price, was a self-employed painter and carpenter. He suffered 46 stab wounds in his chest, side and arms.

Two girls die in mobile home fire

LAMPASAS (AP) — The bodies of two children were found in the gutted remains of a bedroom following a mobile home blaze, authorities said.

Elena Gauna, 11, and Genie Gauna, 1, died despite efforts by family members to rescue them from the fire Thursday, said police spokesman Rene Martin.

The victim's mother, Carol Gauna, discovered the blaze when she was awakened about 5 a.m. by the crying of her 7-month-old son, Martin said. The fire apparently began in the living room, he said.

Dallas woman indicted for fraud

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Dallas woman allegedly used seven aliases and claimed 52 fictitious children in what prosecutors contend was a scheme that netted more than $117,000 in fraudulent food stamp claims.

A 10-count mail fraud indictment, returned this week by a federal grand jury here, charged that Delphine Woo used "false and fictitious" identification, including driver's licenses and baptismal records, to obtain food stamps, Medicaid benefits and Aid for Dependent Children payments.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Cheryl B. Wattley said the alleged fraud was detected in late June through a computer audit that revealed repetitive claims in the children's names and other irregularities.

Health-care task force named

AUSTIN (AP) — Helen Farabee of Wichita Falls on Friday was named chairman of a task force formed to look into health care for poor Texans.

Mrs. Farabee, wife of state Sen. Ray Farabee, was among about 75 people named to the panel by Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis.

Teen-ager kills parents in dispute over rabbits

GUY (AP) — A 14-year-old girl who argued with her father and stepmother about the care of rabbits she was raising as a 4-H project shot and killed the couple as they slept, a sheriff's officer said Friday.

Christie Martin, an eighth-grade student, admitted killing her parents, Middie "Buck" Martin, 39, and Connie Jean Martin, 26, said Fort Bend County Sheriff's Lt. Tiny Gaston.

After shooting the couple with a handgun, Christie fled in her parents' car. She was stopped early Monday morning in nearby West Columbia by officers who noticed she was driving with the car lights off, Gaston said.

The bodies were discovered when a Fort Bend County juvenile officer took the girl back to her home, located in this rural community 20 miles south of Houston.

Martin was found in the bed, and his wife was on the floor, Gaston said. Autopsies were pending, he said.

The teen-ager was ordered held in the county's juvenile detention center until a judge decides whether she should be committed to the Texas Youth Commission. If committed, she would be released on her 18th birthday.

Christie told authorities that she had problems with her parents recently. The tension between them peaked Sunday during an argument about the rabbits that were to be exhibited at the county fair this week, Gaston said without elaborating.

Mrs. Martin's sister, Carol Zelig, said the Martins moved to Guy after Chrstie went to live with her father. Christie had lived with her mother in Houston, she said.

The Martins thought a small community would provide a better environment for the teen-ager, Mrs. Zelig said.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Zelig said, Christie said she was bored living in Guy but "still seemed happy."

Nurse 'scared to death' about upcoming trial

KERRVILLE (AP) — A vocational nurse accused of injecting seven children with a paralyzing drug, causing one death, says the charges against her were "pre-fabricated" by headline-hunting prosecutors.

Nurse Genene Jones, 33, said she has been "scared to death" about her upcoming trial on charges she murdered a 15-month-old Kerrville girl.

Ms. Jones' murder trial is set for Oct. 17 in Georgetown. She will tried later on charges she seriously injured six other children in Kerrville with injections of a powerful muscle relaxant.

"I'm looking at a life sentence," Ms. Jones told the San Antonio Express-News in its Friday editions. "The least amount of time I'm looking at is 20 years. By then my kids will be grown and they'll never know me."

A judge in Georgetown, where the first trial has been moved on a change of venue, has refused Ms. Jones' attorneys' request for a delay.

Volcano keeps town rocking

POZZUOLI, Italy (AP) — A pulsating underground volcano has rocked this once-quiet fishing town on the Bay of Naples for the past 10 months, sometimes as often as 100 times a day, and forced thousands of people to leave their homes.

"The tremors have shaken the town to its foundations and instilled a sense of mass hysteria," said Riccardo Boccia, the prefect of Naples, who is coordinating government aid operations.

Officials say 15,000 residents — more than a fifth of the population — have moved in with friends and relatives or to nearby campsites since the tremors started. The jolts have cracked the foundations of houses and stores and forced the closing of schools and a prison.

Pozzuoli, best known for a few Roman ruins and as the birthplace of film star Sophia Loren, has become a center for disaster relief and scientific study.

Scientists say Pozzuoli is plagued by bradyseism, a rising or sinking of the earth's crust caused by masses of molten rock churning below the soil.

The phenomenon has been registered in this ancient city for more than 2,000 years. But last November it began to strike with a frequency not seen since 1538, when the bubbling underground lava erupted and formed a massive crater known as Monte Nuovo (New Mountain) that looms over the town today.

Scientists say there is no immediate danger of a volcanic eruption, and say that instruments measuring the pressure underneath the soil could predict an eruption weeks before it occurred. So far, no one has died and about a dozen people have been injured since the shakes resumed in November.

But that hasn't calmed the fears of townspeople, who run down the cobblestone streets to the waterfront each time they feel a tremor.

"We have been living in terror for months," said Giovanna de Lorenzo, a housewife who has been sleeping in a tent pitched in the town square since Sept. 4, when a tremor registering 3.5 on the Richter scale — a measure of ground motion on seismographs — burst the water pipes in her home.

"Hour after hour the tremors come, the ground rumbles and you run for cover. You never get used to it," she said.

In the town center, most stores are shut after noon because of the shortage of help. The cafes are half empty, filled only with the fishermen, artisans and factory workers who say they can't afford to leave their jobs.

Outside the elementary school, a woman gestured at a sign on the door saying classes have been transferred to prefabricated structures set up in non-seismic areas on the outskirts of town.

"Finally the schools have reopened, but there are no buses to take my children there," she complained.

At the waterfront, workers are building a ramp for ferries to link Pozzuoli to the nearby island of Ischia, a popular tourist spot. The boats haven't been able to dock because the earth has risen more than a yard since the tremors began rocking the town.

The windows of the local jail are boarded up, its 120 inmates transferred to nearby prisons. The local hospital operates with a skeleton staff and most residents go to Naples, eight miles away, for treatment.

Arturo Caccia Perugini, in charge of the government's Civil Protection Center, said most of the empty buildings were abandoned as a precaution and not because of imminent danger.

"The main damage is psychological," he said. "There is no way to assure these people that disaster can be predicted before it occurs."

The agency has placed 6,000 residents in army tents, trailers and bungalows set up at campsites on the outskirts of town, providing them with free hot meals and electricity.

But many say the measures are not enough.

"The water is ice cold and I have to walk a half hour into town to do my shopping because there are no buses and no stores here," said Antonietta d'Alterio, who lives in a tent with her husband and three children. "What will we do when winter comes?"

Boccia, the Naples prefect, said the only long-term solution is to rebuild Pozzuoli, transferring its inhabitants to new homes on the outskirts of the town.

New weapons being made for war

LONDON (AP) — Souped-up shotguns resembling the Thompson submachine gun and modern microchip grenades are among the weapons soldiers may carry into future battles, reports the 1983-84 issue of Jane's Infantry Weapons published here today.

The authoritative manual of weaponry also said a new, vastly more powerful type of 15mm machine gun, capable of knocking out light armored vehicles and armored helicopters, is being developed by Fabrique Nationale of Belgium.

Jane's editor Ian Hogg said the United States and South Africa are among the nations developing new models of the shotgun, with South Africa leading with a 12-gauge version that can fire 12 shells in four seconds and can be reloaded in 25 seconds.

"The past decade has seen a resurgence of interest in the shotgun as a security force weapon," Hogg writes in the introduction. "This is largely due to the need for a short-range, fast-response gun with a high hit probability."

The military use of the shotgun dates from World War I. It made a comeback during the Vietnam War when U.S. troops modified the weapon for anti-ambush operations in dense jungles.

Many military men, Hogg said in an interview, "regard the shotgun with contempt, in much the same manner as the submachine gun was dismissed as a gangster weapon in the 1930s."

Jane's said the U.S. Naval Weapons Center is developing one such shotgun, and four manufacturers have expressed interest. But it said by publication time, only Keckler and Koch Co. of West Germany had shown a prototype.

The new South African shotgun was developed by the Armsel company of Johannesburg for use against black insurgents in the bush and on crowded city streets. It is expected to go into production soon.

It is not listed in the new Jane's publication, but Jane's Defense Review magazine published a photograph of it this month. With its 12-shot drum magazine, it resembles the Thompson submachine gun.

Jane's said Western troops may soon carry microchip grenades which would explode when an electric charge stored on a computer chip is triggered by releasing the grenade's handle.

Policewomen wearing short uniforms

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Policewoman Liza Waring says she gets "a lot of wolf whistles," but officers who have been wearing shorts to work say the unconventional uniform is here to stay.

"They're very comfortable," says 25-year-old Officer Waring. "I haven't gotten one negative comment.... but I do get a lot of wolf whistles. They want my shorts shorter."

Sgt. Frank Schueler, one of the first officers of his rank to work in shorts, says he hopes never to go back to long pants during the summer. "A 49-year-old man wearing shorts in the police department. It takes a lot of guts," he said with a chuckle.

Lawmaker aqcuitted of extortion

CHICAGO (AP) — A state senator has been acquitted of federal charges that he tried to extort $12,000 from a wrecking company owner to fix a court case.

Jurors deliberated 2½ hours Thursday before clearing Sen. William Marovitz, a Chicago Democrat.

Marovitz, whose uncle is a federal judge, was accused of offering to fix a case involving a wrecking company owner sued by the city and others for $1 million in 1981 after demolition of a historic house. Prosecutors alleged that he said he could "rig a judge."

Abducted 6-year-old girl found

BARSTOW, Calif. (AP) — A 6-year-old girl abducted as she walked home from kindergarten was found alive, tied to a post at an abandoned desert mine, authorities said.

The girl, who has not been identified, was found about Thursday night, about 8½ hours after she failed to return home from her church school, said Police Chief Robert Sessions. He said authorities had no suspects and no witnesses.

Sgt. Ronald Mahoney of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department said "there was some indication" that the child was sexually molested.

Drugs found in Coast Guardsmen

MIAMI (AP) — Signs of cocaine or marijuana were found in the systems of 27 Coast Guard Air Station enlisted men, and they have been temporarily assigned to menial tasks, officials say.

Nearly 300 men were given urine tests and 28 showed indications of marijuana or cocaine use. One later was discovered to have taken a legal prescription drug.

The 27 could face courts-martial or other penalties.

Woman shot by ex-boyfriend

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A mother dropping off her children at a day care center was shot and critically wounded by a former boyfriend, who committed suicide 3½ hours later, officers say.

Kelly Smith, 24, was listed in critical but stable condition Friday at Rancho Encino Hospital following brain surgery.

Tom Triska, principal of the LeMay Street Children's Center, said Ms. Smith came to the offices Thursday morning with her children, saying she was being followed and asking the office secretary to call police. A man entered, told her not to touch the phone and shot her in the head, Triska said.

Officials deny charge administration fostering spread of nuclear weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of senators was told Friday that the Reagan administration is fostering the spread of nuclear weapons, but administration officials denied the charge.

"This administration is helping nations that do not now possess nuclear weapons to acquire the capacity to build them," Paul Leventhal, president of the Nuclear Control Institute, said.

Kenneth L. Adelman, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, however, said these nations "are not getting material from the United States that would allow them to acquire a weapons capability."

Richard T. Kennedy, ambasssador at large dealing with nuclear nonproliferation, supported Adelman's position at a joint hearing by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the Governmental Affairs subcommittee on energy.

Leventhal said the institute, a nonprofit educational organization dealing with the proliferation of nuclear weapons, believes the administration is pursuing "dangerous directions" by its own domestic nuclear program and its nuclear trade initiatives abroad.

"At the heart of the problem is the administration's acceptance of plutonium — a nuclear weapons material — as a legitimate civilian fuel," he said.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., Foreign Relations Committee chairman, credited the administration with "little noted, but very important achievements in the nonproliferation area."

But he added: "The world's nuclear problem countries are working as hard as ever at developing the ability to make nuclear weapons.

Defective plane parts delivered

SEATTLE (AP) — Two men who supplied defective parts that could have caused B-52 bombers to crash have been sentenced to prison and their company has been fined $10,000.

Lionel Rainman, 41, president of MHC, Ltd. of Redmond, Wash., and Dennis G. Bryden, 39, company quality control manager, were accused of defrauding the Defense Department and Air Force.

The government said the parts included terminal pins, which would have been used to bolt the wings on B-52s.

Porkers grace calendar's pages

FIRTH, Neb. (AP) — They don't play football and they look awful in bikinis, but the pigs in a new pig calendar could bring home some bacon for a photographer.

Unlike similar spreads of Nebraska preppies, "Pigs of Nebraska" calendar, created by photographer Eric Byorth, doesn't have people sitting poolside with water glistening on their bodies or standing beside a 10-speed bicycle.

No, these unperturbed little porkers are in their natural environment:

Miss September has her bottom planted firmly in some dirt. And the twins of August are rooting joyously in thick, gooey mud.

The April entry glances provocatively at the camera, muddy snout and all. Miss July is caught napping by a wire fence.

Language could not be mistaken Queen's English

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (AP) — The language spoken on Newfoundland island is called English and is easily understood by outlanders but it could never be mistaken for the Queen's English, or even American.

Visitors from the United States and mainland Canada may be perplexed by such samples of local speech as: "My face was frore, my collars was frore and everything was ballicattered."

But never fear, an explanation is now at hand.

The above citation is from the Dictionary of Newfoundland English, and is one of 23 references to written or oral sources used for the definition of ballicatter. The noun means the fringe of ice formed in winter by spray and waves on the shoreline, and the verb means to cover with a layer of ice.

Frore, as you may now have guessed, means frozen.

"The whole language is just like a currant cake — it's dense with metaphor and simile," says George M. Story, one of three English professors who spent more than 25 years working on the dictionary before it was published last year.

Much of what makes Newfoundland English special comes from the island's dependence on fishing, nearly as strong today as it was 400 years ago when the island was claimed by Sir Humphrey Gilbert as the first overseas colony of the British Empire.

Elsewhere the fishing vocabulary usually was limited to its occupational use by the fishermen, but "in Newfoundland this has become a kind of national lexicon," Story said.

Furthermore, more than 95 percent of today's Newfoundlanders are descended from people who came either from southwestern Ireland or the southwest counties of England.

"You get an unusual kind of intensification of the culture," Story said. "This is reinforced by three centuries of successive immigration, until it virtually stopped in the mid-19th century. Very few people have come into Newfoundland since then."

The island of Newfoundland in the North Atlantic off Labrador and Quebec is part of the province of Newfoundland. Labrador is the other part of the province.

Former preacher compassionate lawman

Richard Hagood

CASTROVILLE (AP) — Medina County Deputy Sheriff Richard Hagood, like any law enforcement officer, harbors little sympathy for criminals and says he doesn't hesitate to use the force necessary for an arrest.

But Hagood draws on his background as a former practicing preacher to fulfill a gentler role — using his Christian compassion to comfort the oft-forgotten victim.

Hagood has alternated the professions, finally leaving his pastor position at the Assembly of God in Mercedes several months ago to become a deputy sheriff in this rural community.

"As a law enforcement officer, you eventually get hardened and cynical when you come into contact with an innocent victim," he said. "But really, what you do with the victim is what decides if the job is really meaningful. Tenderness is often the key."

Hagood, 32, is a licensed minister, not ordained, and has headed congregations in Mercedes and Brownsville. He spent seven years as a traffic investigator for the Houston Police Department and later worked as a member of the Harlingen police force.

"I kept switching back and forth from law enforcement to preaching, thinking it had to be all or nothing," he said. "Now I believe they can blend and support each other. They can complement each other, and I'm learning to reconcile them."

Money wasn't a big factor — neither job pays that well, he said.

As a deputy in the Castroville area, about 25 miles west of San Antonio, Hagood spends most of his time working routine theft cases or driving around the county delivering court papers.

But, he said, he's thought about how he would react to a more dangerous situation.

"I've never had to fire my pistol — but I could," he said. "People say, 'You're a preacher. You couldn't go out and kill someone.' Well, yes I could. I wouldn't like it. But I could do it if I had to."

He also knows that word spreads fast about a newcomer in a quiet community such as Castroville — and that some troublemakers could get the wrong idea about the new deputy.

"They think as a minister I'm a nice guy," Hagood said, "but in an arrest, whatever force is needed, I'll use."

Hagood said he first felt the need to go beyond just recording impersonal facts for police reports after an elderly Houston man had a heart attack and died while driving to church. The man's family, he said, was distraught.

"I wanted to do more than just sit there and investigate an accident," Hagood recalled, "but I hadn't worked this all out yet. I felt I had to remain detached, insulated. I didn't do anything.

"Now I definitely would do something," he said. "I can't tell you I'd quote Scripture, but I would at least try to express my sympathy. I would do more than ask investigative questions."

Both professions have a "correctional-type effect" on people's lives, Hagood said, and members of each "live in glass houses as far as the public is concerned."

"That's really the goal, to balance the two," he said. "Both professions have an all-or-nothing attitude — especially that police officers have to be tough and macho. But that doesn't mean I have to feel that way, too.

Real-life western sheriff tough, sensitive, kind

AP Laserphoto

Lake Porter, shown in this undated file photo, could have been the prototype for every cinematic western hero.

KERRVILLE (AP) — In the haste of publishers and moviemakers to produce a bigger-than-life portrait of Old West lawmen, the American public wound up with a picture of men the size of the land, tough as rawhide and locked in brutal battle to overcome evil forces while clinging to rightness and fair play.

Films have sharpened historic focus on the western sheriff as the hard, silent shy-man who is loath to kill another, but must stick to the "code of the West."

The grandfather of Kerrville's Matt Gouger could well have been the prototype for every cinematic western hero.

Lake Porter was a fairly stoic man who towered well over six feet tall and had the strong, rangy good looks of any silver-screen sheriff.

He was renowned as being quick with his pistol and "unafraid of man or devil" and once arrested his own son for disturbing the peace.

But Matt Gouger tells about the other side of his grandfather, the sheriff.

Gouger's parents were divorced when he was a child, and the boy and his mother went to live with Lake Porter when Matt was 3 years old. Porter, who Gouger called "Dad," was 54.

Porter had a reputation for toughness, no doubt, Gouger said.

But at the same time, in the 20-odd years Gouger lived with Lake Porter, he learned that what made Porter a great and respected sheriff, first in Tilden and later Falfurrias, was his sensitivity and compassion for others.

"Dad would never wear an exposed gun in town," he said. "He was afraid it would upset or frighten women and children and he didn't want to do that.

"A good example of his compassion centered around the time a man was saying he was going to get Dad," Gouger said. "I went to the post office with him one morning. The man was there and started cursing and threatening Dad.

"Apparently, the other fellow made a threatening move I didn't see. Many people still wore guns in those days. Dad easily unbuttoned his coat and told him, 'Don't try it,'" he said.

The following day, Porter went to his antagonist's home and asked his wife to tell the man not to be too upset about the incident because Porter had no hard feelings. He knew the threats were whisky talk.

"I was always impressed at his calm," Gouger said. "He never showed fear."

But he showed generosity, kindness and intelligence to his family and others.

Gouger said Porter supported a family that included his own wife, children, grandson, mother and sister — along with the orphaned sons of a friend — all on sheriff's pay and some ranching income.

Porter's solicitousness for Mexicans in the towns where he was the law won the Hispanies' hearts, Gouger said.

"He wouldn't let them be taken advantage of and he treated with them respect," he said.

Lake Porter was necessarily involved in rough-and-tumble politics, but never was defeated when he ran for office.

In later years, the son of his old political arch-opponent was running for sheriff and charges of election rigging seemingly were supported by a vote for his old opponent's son on Porter's ballot.

In court, Porter not only testified he had voted as the ballot said, but claimed his former enemy's son was "one of the finest men the county had ever produced."

The old sheriff was a pragmatist, too.

When a shootout left a .45-caliber slug in his shoulder in an inoperable location, he accepted the offer of infamous Brush Country desperado King Fisher to teach him how to crossdraw, if Porter would give Fisher amnesty for the lessons.

Pragmatism brought Porter to hang up his guns at age 74.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Romance is worth the risk. Your emotions are at the boiling point. A social outing proves dazzling. Find ways to improve your physical fitness. You enjoy a special performance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Put any financial worries out of your mind and enjoy your family. What appears to be true love may not work out. Be realistic. Your sensitivity about a mistake makes you vulnerable.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You get great news if you make that phone call. A romance cools. Do not despair! Better days lie just ahead. Put in an appearance at a family reunion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stay close to home this weekend. Romance heats up late today. Be bold in declaring your independence. You need to level with a good friend. Meet family obligations on time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trust your instincts. Take family financial problems into your own hands. Your optimism is contagious. You accomplish more than you expect by meeting with a parent or child. End a family feud.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A puzzling relationship begins to make more sense. Weekend travel could involve a wedding or family reunion. Be flexible if there is a last-minute change in plans. Romance sizzles!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An unexpected event makes the pieces of a puzzle fall into place. You know what you want and ask for it. Your social life takes off. Suddenly you are in great demand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The object of your affections will take the initiative today. You may not be ready to make a commitment. Ask for more time. He or she will appreciate your honesty.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A long-awaited domestic development becomes reality. Speak from the heart. Family affairs continue to be your central interest. A social affair leads to a curious turn of events.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A piece of good news or lucky encounter boosts your spirits. Get out and circulate. A new acquaintance has some very interesting ideas. Go slow. Romance could fool you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): New friendships prove rewarding. A shopping expedition could turn up some real bargains. Do not spend too much on travel. Entertaining at home is especially fun if you invite a small group.

New NBC series, debut

NEW YORK (AP) — To many television viewers, home and abroad, the image of Texas ranch life is J.R. Ewing of "Dallas" taking off his pants. Rolling in the hay, whatever little there is, has supplanted rolling up your sleeves and doing an honest day's work on Southfork.

But now, riding high in the saddle to save the honor of Texas' cowboy roots, is "The Yellow Rose," NBC's enticing and photogenic contemporary western that debuts Sunday night before nestling into its regular Saturday night slot next week against ABC's pea-brained "Fantasy Island."

For selective TV watchers, it's Emmy award-winning NBC to the rescue again, with a horse opera that will appeal to non soap-opera addicts.

SET ON a cattle ranch in Texas, "The Yellow Rose" has real dirt, real grit and real honest-to-goodness characters who embody some of humanity's positive dimensions, rather than the more despicable instincts that are glorified on "Dallas."

An impressive, big-name cast graces this production, including actors who don't normally do small-screen stuff: Sam Elliott, Susan Anspach and Cybill Shepherd. NBC, fearing viewers wouldn't recognize these actors, insisted on David Soul ("Starsky & Hutch") as another regular.

The genetic link to most of these characters is the recently deceased Wade Champion, the family patriarch and developer of the 200,000-acre Yellow Rose. "The old man spread his seed around," says Elliott's character, Chance, a no-frills, direct cowboy with a "past" and no last name. He's hired on to help the struggling ranch stay solvent.

AS PLAYED with formidability and characteristic reserve by Elliott, Chance has dallied with Colleen Champion (Miss Shepherd), Wade's 29-year-old widow, and with Grace McKenzie (Miss Anspach), the cook and family confidante. Miss Anspach, a bright, animated actress, is delightful, whether she's flirting with an old flame or dousing an adolescent crush.

Soul plays Wade's son, Roy, who keeps a cool hand on the ranch proceedings, while Edward Albert portrays the fiery son, Quisto, a lawyer. The family has disagreements, but its strength comes from unity, another deviation from the "Dallas" theme.

FOR COMIC relief, Noah Beery (Jim Garner's dad in "The Rockford Files") plays a seasoned ranch hand whose fish stories can outlast any campfire. Jeb Hollister (Chuck Connors), who lost The Yellow Rose to Wade in a boozy bet, is in constant conflict with the Champions.

"The Yellow Rose" has an alluring visual texture, a quality ignored by most run-and-shoot TV productions. Filmed entirely outside Del Rio, Texas, the accented golds and browns richly convey the parched Texas flatlands, although future episodes will be shot in California.

The initial photographic sequences and the opening breakfast-of-Champions scene, reminiscent of the bustling activity during the "Hill Street Blues" roll call, are indications that "The Yellow Rose" aspires to be realistic, dignified TV.

IT'S a modern return-to-yesteryear that deserves a future.

The old-fashioned fistfight, dramatic but not deadly, is a favored technique of executive producer Stephen J. Cannell. He uses it often in "The Rousters," a new action-adventure series debuting Saturday, and in his other shows, "The A-Team" and "Hardcastle & McCormick."

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Government forces in Angola killed 89 guerrillas and captured large quantities of arms in a series of raids, the official Angolan news agency ANGOP said Friday.

It described the rebels as "armed bandits at the service of racist South Africa, "a term used by Angolan officials for the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola.

According to the agency, 53 guerrillas were killed in the main raid on a rebel base near Cubal in the western province of Benguela Sept. 23.

Influenza kills Indonesians

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Influenza has killed 162 people and stricken 746 others in Indonesia's easternmost province of Irian Jaya during the past three months, the newspaper Sinar Harapan reported Friday.

A medical team arrived in the area early this month, but could not reach several remote villages where about half of the deaths occured, the newspaper said. The death toll included 45 children, it said.

The epidemic first struck the area in July, but health officials in Jayapura, the provincial capital, did not receive reports on the deaths until August because of "bad communications," the newspaper said.

A bomb exploded at the Marseille Trade Fair, killing one person and injuring 27 others. A suspected Armenian terrorist group claimed responsibility for the attack.

Explosion at trade fair kills one woman

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — A bomb exploded near the American and Algerian stands at a trade fair in this southern French port city Friday, killing a French woman and wounding 27 people, three of them seriously, police said.

The blast caused a false ceiling on the American stand to collapse. Police said at least two officials of the U.S. Consulate were on the stand at the time, but neither was hurt.

Police would not disclose the identities of any of the other casualties, but officials said no Americans were believed among them.

Responsibility for the attack was claimed by a suspected Armenian terrorist organization, the Orly Group. But less than an hour later, the Charles Martel Group, an ultra-rightist French terrorist organization that wars on North African immigrants, called a local newspaper and said it was responsible.

Interior Minister Gaston Defferre, who is also mayor of Marseille, flew to the exposition center by helicopter from Paris and told reporters he doubted that the Orly Group was responsible.

The bomb, placed behind a curtain, went off in the late afternoon inside the Palais des Congres, a convention hall which houses the annual international trade fair.

Marseille has a population of about a million people, 80,000 of them of Armenian origin.

Wife of dissident files suit

MOSCOW (AP) — The wife of dissident Andrei Sakharov said Friday she has filed a slander suit against a Soviet journalist who wrote an article accusing her of forcing her husband into anti-Soviet activities.

Yelena Bonner told Western correspondents her complaint, filed in a Moscow court said the article by Nikolai N. Yakovlev in the weekly magazine Smena damaged her honor and dignity.

Mrs. Bonner, a physician, disputed sections of the article that said she took over her husband's apartment, took all his money, forged documents to get into a medical institute and beat her husband to convince him to become a dissident.

Sakharov, a key scientist in development of the Soviet hydrogen bomb, was banished to the closed city of Gorky in January 1980 after he wrote a commentary backing NATO's missile deployment plan.

Anthropologists announce they find footprints

PALL MALL, Tenn. (AP) — Footprints of prehistoric man as well-preserved as the day they were made 4,500 years ago have been found in a cave with the remains of several extinct animals, officials say.

At least five men, two women and a child were in the group and were apparently searching for mineral salts to use for medicines, anthropologists said in a report to the Tennessee Conservation Department.

They said they found 269 human footprints in eight miles they mapped out in the mammoth Blowing Cave near this Cumberland Plateau town.

The find was made several years ago but the anthropologists discouraged publicity for fear vandals might destroy the archeological data, the report said.

The cave's moist clay and constant 55-degree temperature are responsible for preserving the prints, according to the report by Dr. Patty Jo Watson of Washington University in St. Louis, Louise Robbins of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and Ronald Wilson of the University of Louisville in Kentucky.

The anthropologists also found "skeletal remains of several extinct, non-human mammalian species, as well as the unique record of a cave trip made 4,500 years ago by nine human explorers," the report said.

Radiocarbon dating at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C., determined that non-human vertebrae remains found in the cave are between 10,000 and 35,000 years old, it said.

Scattered bits of charcoal believed to be from torches used by the early explorers were dated at 2500 B.C., according to the report.

The anthropologists said some of the group wore moccasins and others were barefoot as they explored the cave, apparently using the same entrance and passages as the scientists.

Skeletal remains of at least two jaguars, which compare favorably with remains of other fossil jaguars found in Tennessee, also were found, the report said.

The remains of the larger jaguar, believed to be a male, have been given to the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh. It and a smaller female skeleton were found in 1976.

Jim Williams of Livingston, whose property includes about 80 percent of the cave, said the cave is cool year-round.

"People used to come up here just to sit in front of the cave in summer," he said. "I've seen times when the trees in front of the cave would be white with frost and everything else around there green and normal looking."

The cave is in Frentress County, about 70 miles northwest of Knoxville along the Tennessee-Kentucky line.

Cosby receives award from Lampoon

Comedian Bill Cosby reacts Thursday night after receiving the Harvard Lampoon's first Lifetime Achievement in Comedy Award called the "Elmer." He was presented the award on the front steps of the Lampoon's Cambridge, Mass., office by Lampoon President Conan O'Brien as a crowd of several hundred looked on.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Comedian Bill Cosby took time out from a court case to collect a lifetime achievement award from the Harvard Lampoon, the university humor magazine.

Cosby, who lives in Shelburne, accepted Thursday night the magazine's first Elmer award on the front steps of the Lampoon office near Harvard Square.

Earlier, the comedian gave a 13-year-old an autograph on a brace supporting the boy's broken collarbone.

Timmy McCarthy's father, who is Greenfield's police chief, told Cosby of the boy's bike accident while Cosby was in Greenfield for a hearing on a $153,00 civil suit, and Cosby offered to sign the brace.

Cosby is in court over a financial dispute with a company that installed a 130-foot-high antenna at Cosby's home.

NEW YORK (AP) — Nancy Reagan says she'll "keep nibbling cookies" until she replaces the weight that has dropped her dress size from a 6 to a 2, the smallest regular size for women's clothes.

Nancy Reagan

In an interview with syndicated society columnist "Suzy," writing in the New York Daily News, the first lady said she was in bed with a cold but contended that her weight loss was caused by worry.

"I know that people are saying that there is something really wrong with me, but there isn't," Mrs. Reagan said.

She said the weight loss began when President Reagan was shot in March 1981.

"Then my father, whom I loved dearly, died after being sick for six months," said Mrs. Reagan. In addition, she said, her mother has been sick in Arizona and "I can't see her as often as I want to."

"I think people believe that when one occupies this position, life is all roses and glamour and there are no worries. How I wish I were one of those people who never lets anything show on her face. Everything shows on mine," she said.

PIGEON FORGE, Tenn. (AP) — Sievier County, already filled with shops and tourist attractions, may someday have a 400-acre theme park featuring a Dolly Parton museum, says a relative of the entertainer.

Miss Parton's family has discussed the idea of "Dollywood" for more than a year, said her uncle and road manager, Don Warden. She and her husband, Carl Dean, bought a farm in the county last year.

The singer and actress wouldn't be the first country star to cash in on the tourist trade in Tennessee. Conway Twitty owns Twitty City in suburban Nashville, and Johnny Cash has a museum across the road. Loretta Lynn owns a chain of clothing stores and a dude ranch near Waverly.

Gary Hart

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sen. Gary Hart says he loved the book and plans to see the movie, but he doesn't think the film version of "The Right Stuff" will boost the campaign of rival presidential hopeful John Glenn.

"The Right Stuff" depicts the early days of the U.S. space program. Glenn, now a Democratic senator from Ohio, was the first American to orbit the Earth.

Some have wondered if the impending release of the film might give Glenn enough favorable new publicity to help propel him into the White House, but Hart doesn't think so.

"Celebrities have not done well in public positions based upon their celebrity status alone," the Colorado Democrat said Thursday. "Ronald Reagan was elected despite his acting. John doesn't need the free publicity. He's already well-known. All the candidates must prove themselves."

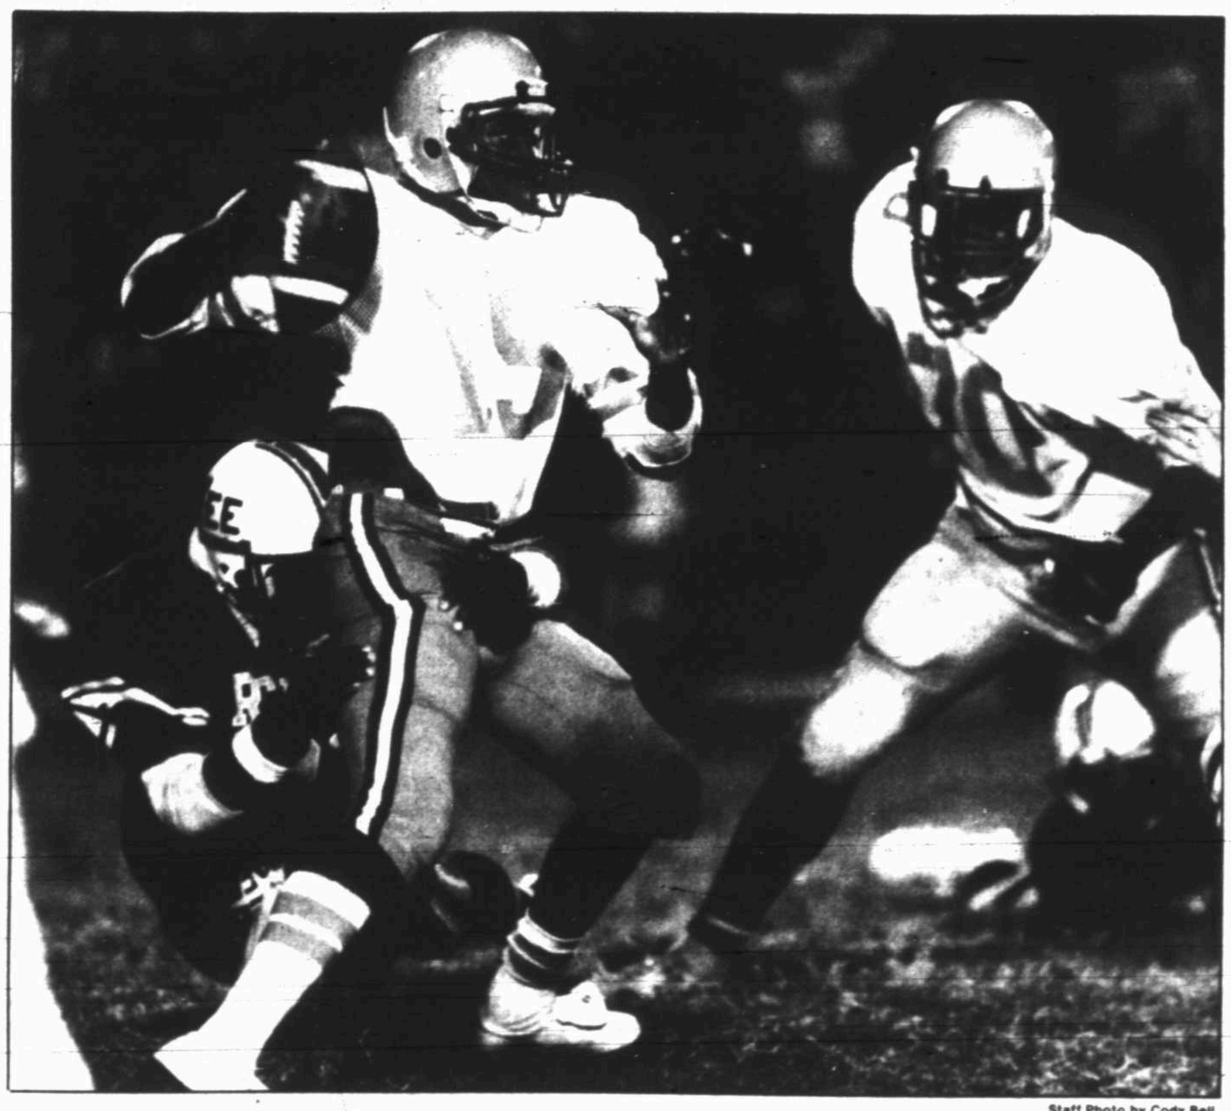
San Angelo spoils Lee's unbeaten season



Staff Photo by Cody Bell

San Angelo quarterback Greg Thomas is sacked by Midland Lee linebacker Michael Johnson during first half action at Memorial Stadium Friday night. San Angelo won the game 14-9 in the battle of state ranked powers.

Early scores deck Rebels

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

San Angelo and Midland Lee, two of the state's elite football teams, banged heads at Memorial Stadium Friday night, but for Midland Lee fans, players and coaches, the memory of this 14-9 loss will be cause for nightmares for years to come.

Loose balls flying through the air and into the ultimate hands of Orange-clad jersies will be the focus of those nightmares. Lee's Rebels coughed up three crucial fumbles and that proved to be the difference in a game where No. 5 met No. 7. Lee will probably lose ground in the state polls after this loss.

BUT MORE important, San Angelo gains momentum in a league stiffed with great football teams while Lee faces the task of regrouping. Both teams meet the district's top-ranked Odessa Permian in the next two weeks where the final story may be told.

"I think this will be a game that people will talk about for a long time," said San Angelo coach Jimmie Keeling. "We knew Lee was a good football team and they lived up to our expectations. Still, I thought our kids overcame some real adversity out there and you can't overlook that. The goal line stand help eat up some time and good things kept happening to us."

But this was a game in which you felt the Rebels could have and maybe should have won. This game proves that statistics don't win football games, but total points do.

Lee ran rings around the Bobcat defense with 310 yards rushing and another 36 passing for a total of 346 yards. San Angelo had 220 rushing and none passing. Lee led in first downs by a 21-12 margin, holding the Bobcats' potent scoring machine to a mere two second half first downs. Lee didn't even punt in the game while San Angelo was forced to punt three times, one of which was blocked.

But Lee never had to punt because they did a good job of handing over the football by the fumble route. Oh — those fumbles! That was the killer.

SAN ANGELO jumped to a 14-0 first quarter lead and then prayed their way to victory. Derrick Campbell, who hurt Lee with 102 yards on 11 carries, busted a 66-yard TD romp on the Rebs on the fourth play of the game and then Lee turned around and fumbled the ensuing kickoff to set up the Bobcats at the Lee 38.

Nine plays later, the Bobcats led 14-0 when quarterback Greg Thomas scored from five yards out.

When the Lee offense finally got the ball, they drove from their own 20 to the Bobcat five before a penalty made them settle on Craig Kamradt's 22-yard field goal.

San Angelo came back to the Lee eight before Ricky Jackson intercepted Thomas for the first of two times on the night. And Lee marched from its own four to the SA 15 before Jeff Motley tossed the first of two interceptions on the night. It could have easily been 21-14 at the half instead of 14-3.

Lee completely dominated San Angelo in the second half, but the Bobcats stopped Tyrone Thurman at the one-inch line on fourth down before Lee's Thomas Manley blocked a Bobcat punt to set the Rebels up at the SA four. Fullback Isaac Garnett, who led all rushers with 149 yards on 22 carries, got that one in to cut the margin to 14-9. Then the nightmare.

Lee marched to the Bobcat 34 before Garnett fumbled it away. Jackson got the ball back with his second interception, but Tyrone fumbled at the SA 22. San Angelo was again forced to punt, but Walter Jones and Motley misconnected at the SA 42 and there just wasn't any time left when Lee got the ball back.

WITH 33 seconds left in the game, Lee moved from its own 18 to the San Angelo 44 with eight seconds left. Motley then tossed his second interception on a long gamble at a miracle.

San Angelo ripped at the Lee defense early in the game and looked like they may run away and hide from the Rebels. With defensive end Nicky Tomlin suffering from a bad ankle and linebacker Reggie Ellis out of the game, Lee's left side seemed vunerable to the Bobcat threat.

But Lee seemed to work out its defensive problems at the half and literally shut down San Angelo's powerful backs. But the offense was hurt by a penalty, an interception and three fumbles. No matter how you look at it, those facts knocked Lee out of the ranks of the unbeaten, but not out of the race.

Dogs rally to win

MHS beats Big Spring, 38-33

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — The Midland High Bulldogs couldn't get their passing attack going so they went to Randall Collins, Willie Swindell and Jeff Pulley Friday night for a 38-33 victory here over the Big Spring Steers.

The Steers, leading 21-7 at the half, kept James Wellborn and his fleet-footed receivers pretty much at bay throughout the game, so he started handing the ball to his backs.

The results were highly effective and immediate. Taking the opening kickoff at the MHS 48, Collins started the scoring drive with a 15-yard run and, after a 20-yard gain by Swindell, finished it with a 10-yarder. Richard Fry made it 21-14 with 10:36 left in the third quarter.

Two plays following the kickoff, Big Spring quarterback Tommy Gartman fumbled the ball at the Bulldog 35-yard line, setting up the tying score. After runs of 12 and six yards by Swindell and a 10-yarder by Pulley, Wellborn faked a handoff up the middle to Pulley and rolled out for the final four yards of the drive. Fry tied the game at 21 with his point after.

WHILE MIDLAND High's passing attack was having trouble, Gartman proved to be effective with his, completing 13-of-22 passes for 204 yards and three touchdowns. His second TD pass of the game came with 5:50 remaining in the third quarter when he hit Dale Crenshaw on a 27-yard pass. Kicker Jay Gonzales missed a crucial extra point, giving the Steers a six-point lead, 27-21.

After a second Gartman fumble, this one on the Bulldog one-yard line, Swindell tied the game at 27 with his one-yard plunge on his second attempt. Fry's PAT gave Midland High he lead for good, 28-27 and extended it to 31-27 with a 27-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter.

Tight end Darrell Davis gave the Bulldogs a decisive advantage with 2:30 remaining in the game when he caught a one-yard pass from Wellborn. Fry kicked the PAT.

With 45 seconds left on the clock, Gartman hit tight end Robert Porras on a 12-yarder. The run to pull the game within field goal range was stopped. No matter, MHS covered the onside kick and Welborn fell on the ball three times to run out the clock.

COLLINS HAD his best night of the year with 19 carries for 135 yards and one touchdown, helping Midland High to 239 yards for the game. Pulley added 49 yards on nine carries and Swindell 48 on 11 for one TD.

Passing, Wellborn completed only 12-of-33 passes for 165 yards, his favorite receiver being Allan Foret, catching five for 68 yards for one TD. Big Spring's Eric Sherman had a strong running game going in the first half, but was shut down in the second. With a 54-yard run to his credit, the Bulldogs held him to 77 and the Steers to 124 in the game, minus six in the second half.

The Bulldogs evened their record at 1-1 in District 4-5A play with the victory and are at 3-2 overall. Big Spring fell to 0-2 in the district.

TED BATTLES

Big night on South Plains

...Aggies come to Lubbock

Along about midnight, if you are driving south, the string of red tail lights between Lubbock and Midland will be like something out of Kipling...a thin red line...unbroken and without end.

Around 7 p.m., if you are in Lubbock, the belch you hear will be Jones Stadium digesting the largest crowd of the 1983 season for a Texas Tech home game.

The Aggies, and Texas, always draw big on the South Plains.

For one thing, they are the biggest state universities and have the largest body of ex-students in the Permian Basin area. Combine this with the fact that Texas Tech, Midland's "home" team in the Southwest Conference, providing you don't have direct commitments to an SMU, TCU or Baylor, and the bumper crowds which swarm into Lubbock for Aggie and Longhorn appearances aren't surprising.

This year, Tech and A&M will offer an additional lure for those who sat home and watched tv last Saturday. Curiosity will bring them to see if Tech is as good as it looked in beating Baylor and/or if A&M is as bad as it appeared in losing to Oklahoma State. Of course, Oklahoma State may not be all that bad, either.

Then there is the publicity that has been given A&M's noble experiment, the Twelfth Man. The Mrs. is mystified. She can't understand how the other schools let A&M get away with it. "It just doesn't seem fair...but I suppose he can't be very good, they've already lost two games."

This also will be the first appearance of a $287,000 a year coach at Jones Stadium.

Jackie Sherrill must be squirming uncomfortably at this point, from self-inflicted pressure, if for no other reason. He certainly didn't visualize being 6-8 at this stage of his tenure and, you can bet, neither did those who pooled their assets to charm him away from Pitt, where he walked off and left an heir apparent to the national championship last year.

After last week, most who saw for themselves have to give Tech the edge tonight. still, the talent will be wearing the Maroon at kickoff. Over the last four years, A&M's recruiting efforts have been rated among the best in the land, fifth last year, and 12th, eighth and third best in the immediate years preceding.

Tech hasn't been that fortunate. Six of tonight's starters are walkons.

The SWC...

Texas Tech 23, Texas A&M 19—Raiders win, but not without the heart-skips this game usually provides.

Texas 35, Rice 6—Owls suffer letdown after last week's win.

Baylor 20, Houston 14—Bears looked bad against Tech, but surely they couldn't lose to a team that lost to Oregon, could they?

Texas expected to feast on Rice

By Associated Press

Rice — which got back on the winning track last week against Southwestern Louisiana — hasn't beaten Texas since a 1965 game in Austin, and the Owls are again overwhelmingly predicted to fall to the Longhorns today.

The unblemished, second-ranked Longhorns, picked to be runaway winners of the 1983 SWC chase, open their league season against Rice tonight while defending champion Southern Methodist takes a non-conference breather.

"We were proud for Rice breaking that losing streak and I just hope it doesn't get them too stirred up for us," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "Obviously, they are going to be excited, and they proved they can be tough by having an excellent opportunity to beat LSU."

No. 13 rated and unbeaten SMU also was a prohibitive — meaning oddsmakers won't even issue a line — favorite over Texas-Arlington.

Arkansas was a 7-point choice over Texas Christian in their 11:30 a.m. (CBS) matchup in Fort Worth; Texas Tech, on the rebound with a solid victory over Baylor, was a 1-point pick over the Texas Aggies in the Red Raiders' first home game of the year; and twice-beaten Houston was a 7-point selection over Baylor in the Astrodome.

SWC Football

Texas was an impressive winner over Auburn, then struggled to a penalty-marred 26-6 victory over North Texas in which the Mean Green led 6-2 at halftime. Rice is 1-3 this season.

No team will be more pumped up than the Red Raiders in their first appearance in Jones Stadium against the Aggies, who have been a disappointment with a 1-2 record.

"Our fans have been waiting for us to play here since the middle of August," Moore said. "We're anxious to get back here."

Moore was still recovering from a sideline shot he took late in the Baylor game at Waco.

Moore said he got hit "pretty good" on the sideline by Baylor tackle Pat Coryatt.

"It was unintentional, but I sure felt it Sunday," Moore said.

"Baylor was a big win for us but there aren't too many people around who are more talented than Texas A&M," said Moore.

Arkansas and TCU were on television last year and the Hogs won 35-0.

"TCU is talented," said Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz. "They have one of the best defensive teams in the league. It will be a tremendous challenge to bounce back (from a 13-10 loss to Mississippi) but we plan on bouncing back."

TCU Coach Jim Wacker is still looking for his first victory.

"I would have rather they had beaten Mississippi," Wacker said. "That will probably get their dander up."

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said the same thing about Houston's 15-14 loss to Oregon.

"I'd much rather Houston had beaten the Ducks by 40 points," Teaff said. "Like the Bears, they'll come back ready to play."

Cal takes aim at No. 3 Arizona

By Associated Press

California has come up with some unusual endings in the last two seasons — like the five-lateral, last-gasp touchdown that beat Stanford a year ago and the late safety to nip Texas A&M in the 1983 opener — but its flair for the dramatic may be severely tested Saturday.

The Golden Bears entertain third-ranked Arizona in what could be the Wildcats' toughest test until November.

"When I woke up Sunday morning, the first thing that popped into my head was Cal's lateral series on its kickoff return," says Arizona Coach Larry Smith. "I'm concerned any time we play a team which has had an open date the week before it plays us.

"We are beat up and sore and Cal is fresh and rested. But that is something we cannot control. We have to get our team ready to play. Cal is sitting there at 2-1. Its defense is very sound and very good. Gale Gilbert is a fine quarterback, one of the better ones in our league. Cal has always played Arizona tough. We have to play our best football game of the year against Cal."

While quarterback Tom Tunnicliffe and linebacker Ricky Hunley have gotten most of the headlines, Arizona's special teams have been something else. In four games, the Wildcats have blocked three punts and tackled a punter to force a fumble in the end zone. Meanwhile, the defense has intercepted seven passes — four by Hunley — and recovered nine enemy bobbles.

"Ricky Hunley is everything that I'd heard he is," says Cal Coach Joe Kapp. "There are a couple of pro teams who could use him right now."

With all of Arizona's impressive statistics, you'd think Kapp would be at least a little apprehensive. Instead, he's Kapprehensive.

"We're delighted to be in the position of playing the leading team in the conference," Kapp says. "It's our first Pac-10 game and we enjoy the challenge."

Meanwhile, Nebraska and Texas, ranked 1-2 for the second week in a row in The Associated Press poll, are lopsided favorites in home games against Syracuse and Rice, respectively, the latter a night game.

Elsewhere, fourth-ranked Iowa visits Illinois, No. 5 North Carolina is at Georgia Tech, sixth-rated Alabama hosts Memphis State, No. 7 West Virginia entertains Pitt, eighth-ranked Ohio State is at home against Minnesota, No. 9 Oklahoma visits Kansas State and 10th-ranked Auburn plays hosts to No. 17 Florida State.

In the Second Ten, 12th-ranked Florida is at No. 16 LSU for a night game, Texas-Arlington at No. 13 Southern Methodist under the lights, Indiana at No. 14 Michigan, No. 15 Miami, Fla., at Duke, Navy at No. 18 Washington, Virginia at No. 19 Maryland and Standford at No. 20 Arizona State at night.

With a No. 4 ranking, Iowa has its fans excited. But Coach Hayden Fry says the ratings "make for good coffee talk, but you can't take 'em too seriously. I don't see how you can accurately rate all the college teams across the country. Games are played on the field; that's where the outcome is decided."

Nevertheless, Illinois' Mike White insists that "Iowa is a very good team over-all, one worthy of its high ranking. They're very strong offensively, especially in the line. Their offensive line is as big as any in the NFL. That enables them to do almost anything they want to. (Quarterback Chuck) Long is good, too, very good.

Iowa also has a very fine defense. That's how Hayden Fry built the team, with a good defense, and this season is no different. Their team has earned national respct and, obviously, our respect, too."

With Penn State, Pitt, Notre Dame and Florida State having lost early-season games, West Virginia looms as the top independent in the eyes of the major bowl games. The Mountaineers have beaten Maryland and Boston College on the road in the last two weeks.

"In my opinion, West Virginia is one of the five best football teams in the country right now," says Pitt Coach Foge Fazio. "They have won two tough games on the road and Jeff Hostetler has developed into one of the best quarterbacks around."

Denny wins 19th game

(From Wire reports)

PHILADELPHIA — John Denny became the National League's first 19-game winner of the season, pitching Philadelphia to a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Denny worked six innings and allowed one run on four hits. He struck out five and walked none as he boosted his record to 19-6 and lowered his second best ERA to 2.37.

Willie Hernandez, Ron Reed and Al Holland relieved with Holland earning his 25th save, pitching one inning of scoreless ball. 1 The Phillies, who Wednesday clinched the NL East championship, took a 1-0 lead in the first on Sixto Lezcano's RBI single.

They made it 2-0 in the fifth as they loaded the bases off Pittsburgh loser Larry McWilliams, 15-8. McWilliams walked Kiko Garcia, gave up a single to Ivan DeJesus and hit Juan Samuel with a pitch. He then walked Gary Matthews on a 3-2 In a pre game ceremony, the Phillies presented pitcher Steve Carlton with a ring that had "300" in the center, and was surrounded with diamond chips. The ring was in recognition of Carlton recently becoming the 16th pitcher in major-league history to win 300 games.

The 38-year-old Carlton, who doesn't talk to the media, made an acceptance speech in which he said he "hoped to be wearing the Phillies uniform for years to come."

Reynolds' homer beats Reds

HOUSTON — Craig Reynolds hit his first home run of the season and Mike LaCoss scattered three hits over seven innings to lead the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds went ahead 2-1 in the second when Paul Householder singled, stole second, went to third on a grounder and scored on Alex Trevino's groundout. third baseman Denny Walling.

The Astros tied it at 2-2 in the fourth inning on Kevin Bass' sacrifice fly before Reynolds homered in the sixth for the winning run.

Hendrick powers Cardinals

ST. LOUIS — George Hendrick walloped three doubles and knocked in four runs to power the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Hendrick first broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth when he doubled and later scored on a passed ball by catcher Jody Davis with the bases loaded. Reggie Patterson, 1-2, followed by hitting Lonnie Smith with an 0-2 delivery to establish a 3-1 lead for St. Louis.

The Cubs rebounded to score in the fifth on Bill Buckner's triple and a grounder by Mel Hall off Neil Allen, 12-13, but the Cardinals put the game away with a four-run sixth.

Yaz ties Cobb base hit mark

BOSTON — Carl Yastrzemski, winding down a 23-year career, tied Ty Cobb's major-league record or 100-hit seasons with a run-scoring single in the first inning as the Boston Red Sox crushed the Cleveland Indians 10-0.

Yastrzemski put the Red Sox ahead 1-0 with his RBI single off Neal Heaton, 11-7, with two out in the first. It was the 44-year-old slugger's 100th hit of the season, tying Cobb's record of 22 years with 100 hits or more.

Wade Boggs, the American League batting leader, drove in three runs with three singles, raising his average to .362.

Buddy rings Angels' bell

ARLINGTON — Buddy Bell lashed a bases-loaded single with none out to lift the Texas Rangers over the California Angels 4-3.

Texas had loaded the bases against reliever Doug Corbett, 1-1, on singles by Billy Sample, George Wright and an intentional walk to Larry Parrish. Sample drove in three runs with three doubles, tying a club record.

Rookie Tom Henke, 1-0, got the win.

Blue Jays blank Twins

TORONTO — Dave Stieb pitched a three-hitter and Cliff Johnson cracked a three-run homer to lift the Toronto Blue Jays to an 8-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Stieb, 17-12, retired the first 13 batters before Dave Engle singled with one out in the fifth. Tom Brunansky followed with a double and Engle later singled in the seventh for the only other Minnesota hits as the right-hander pitched his fourth shutout of the season.

Brewers bat Tigers, 6-2

DETROIT — Cecil Cooper and Ted Simmons belted consecutive home runs in the first inning and Bob Gibson and Pete Ladd combined on a six-hitter to lead the Milwaukee Brewers past the Detroit Tigers 6-2.

Robin Yount started the Milwaukee first with a one-out single and scored ahead of Cooper's 29th home run — a tremendous blow off the facing of the auxiliary press box atop the roof in right field on a 3-2 pitch. Simmons jumped on the first pitch from Juan Berenguer, 9-5, and drilled a shot into the upper deck, just inside the right-field foul pole, for his 13th homer.

Chiefs ambush Tornado, 25-0

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

LAMESA— There is an old football adage that states that a given result isn't always indicative of the game - 'it was closer than the score indicated.'

At the conclusion of Lamesa's district opener against 2-AAAA unbeaten Lake View, the scoreboard read Tornadoes 0, Lake View 25.

It was much closer, and except for a few critical penalty calls and a muffed big play or two, the Tors could have opened district play with a major upset.

They may have been the only area team to avoid the upset bug. Fort Stockton and Andrews, the district favorites, succumbed to the upset bug on opening night.

As for the Tors, Lamesa has been down a bit in the past few years. But new head coach Clyde Noonkester has greatly improved the Golden Tornadoes. Against Lake View, Lamesa did everyhting but make the plays it had to make.

Give the Chiefs credit. They stuck to their game plan for the most part, taking the ball directly at the small and slow Tors.

On the evening, the Chiefs ran the ball 46 times, and at least 80 percent of the running attack came between the tackles. Leading the way, and virtually unchecked by lamesa, was Chief back John Rogers. Rogers scored three touchdowns for Lake View and contributed 130 yards rushing on 23 totes. In all, Lake View rushed for 197 yards, which makes Rogers' numbers all the more impressive.

Things didn't start out so well for Lamesa. Lake View took the opening kick off and marched 79 yards to score in seven plays. The biggest play was a surprise pass from Chief quarterback Scotty Frasier to end Thomas Campbell. The call came on a third and two situation near midfield and carried all the way to the Lamesa 16. Two plays later Rogers bolted behind right guard for an 11-yard jaunt into the end zone.

Frasier's point after was wide left, so Lake View led 6-0.

The Tors, meanwhile, continually came up one play short. Lamesa held on to the ball for only three plays in each of its first two possessions before getting in gear late in the first quarter.

Lamesa moved the ball from their ten to the 41. Quarterback Doug Bryant, who provided virtually all of the Lamesa offense, connected with Johnny Gonzales for a 48 yard strike.

But the first of many Tornado non-breaks occurred and typified the Lamesa frustration. The play was negated due to to an ineligible receiver penalty. So instead of a first down deep in Lake View territory, Lamesa was now faced with a third and long situation from their 32.

Lake View threatened again, but the Tors stopped a fourth down play at their five to squelch the Chief attack.

In all, Lamesa's defense played well in defeat. Unfortunately, the Tors lack in size, speed and depth, and the constant battering ram charges of Lake View took their toll.

The Chiefs' second score came late in the first half, with Rogers capping the 13 play, 58 yard drive with a one-yard score. At halftime, Lamesa trailed 12-0.

It could have been better. A punt that appeared to hit a Lake View returner before the scoring drive started was missed by the officials.

Padres beat Braves to give LA pennant

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Solo homers by Kevin McReynolds and Juan Bonilla in the second inning and the pitching of Eric Show and Gary Lucas led the San Diego Padres to a 3-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves Friday night, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers the National League West title.

Show, 15-12, survived a two-run homer by Dale Murphy, his 36th, in the first inning, then shut out the Braves the rest of the way to end their last hopes for a division title.

Atlanta's Phil Niekro, 11-10, gave up just five hits in the six innings he worked. But after the Padres scored a run in the bottom of the first to cut the lead to 2-1, McReynolds belted his fourth homer in the bottom of the second to tie the game. One out later, Bonilla poked his fourth homer over the left field wall for the Padres final victory margin.

Reagan succumbs to Alpine

BIG LAKE — Despite 150 yards passing by Bobby Gunnells and 237 yards rushing, the Reagan County Owls gave up 14 fourth quarter points to drop a 21-12 decision to Alpine here Friday night.

Alpine's Sammy Ramos scored on an 8-yard run in the first period for a 7-0 lead, one they never surrendered. Alpine led 7-6 at the end of the third period when the Owls' Timothy Thompson scored from 21-yards out.

The real blow, however, came when Alpine's Danny Rios returned a Gunnells interception into a 55-yard TD run in the fourth period for a 14-6 lead and enough for the margin. Both teams scored again after that.

Colbert notches 62 for slim lead

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Jim Colbert shot a career-low, 8-under-par 62, set a seasonal record for 36 holes and moved into a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $300,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

Colbert, 42, who scored the seventh victory of his career earlier this season in the Colonial National Invitation, put together a 2-round total of 128, 12 under par and the lowest 36-hole total on the PGA Tour this year.

"In 1966, my rookie year, I won my first check as a professional, $537.50 here. And that's still the biggest check I ever won. I called everybody I knew to tell them about it," he said.

"And then last year, I made an 8-footer on the 18th hole of the final round to go past $1 million in career winnings."

This time Colbert played the back nine in 29, including an eagle-3 on the 10th hole, to compile the lowest competitive 18 hole score of his 18-year career.

Wally Armstrong and George Cadle, a pair of non-winning journeymen, held the next two positions. Armstrong, who said he has made a decision to end his 10-year tour career this season, shot a 63 that placed him at 129. Cadle shot a 64 and was at 130.

Gary McCord and Mick Soli, each with a 64, were at 131. Lee Elder, with a 65, and Steve Hart, with a 66, were at 132.

Defending champion Jay Haas had a 64 and was tied at 133 with Mark Pfeil and Jack Renner. Pfeil had a 63 and Renner a 65.

And the spectacular scoring was not confined to the leaders. For example, there was Darrell Kestner, eight shots off the pace. His round of 67 included consecutive holes, the 11th and 12th, on which he scored eagle-2s.

Craig Stadler, the first-round leader, went from an opening-round 62 to 75 — including 35 putts — and dropped nine shots off the pace.

Gunslingers draw on mayor

SAN ANTONIO. (AP) — The attorney for this city's United States Football League franchise filed a slander suit Friday against San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros for calling team officials "a bunch of snakes."

Marynell Maloney already has filed a contempt of court motion against the mayor for failing to give a deposition requested by the San Antonio Gunslingers.

The mayor has said he never was served the appropriate papers, but called those connected with the team "a bunch of snakes" after receiving a copy of the contempt motion at a Monday press conference.

Ms. Maloney's suit, which seeks unspecified damages, said Cisneros called her a snake "with the knowledge and intent that such appellation would be published and widely dispersed to the general public."

"...The integrity, honesty and character of Marynell Maloney are indisputable without dispute, whereas, Cisneros is a politician," the suit said.

Cisneros was in Washington attending a meeting of the Bipartisan Commission on Central America and his office said he could not be reached for comment.

Unsers form rare brother act

...and now along come the Mears

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

No one has ever been able to figure out what it is that makes one member of a family a star and another just a sibling. It has vexed scholars for centuries. It's called the "Hemingway-had-a-brother" syndrome.

How come Joe DiMaggio was hitting safely in 56 consecutive games while his older brother, Vince, was setting a record for strikeouts per time at bat? Why was his batting average .325 while younger brother Dom's was .298, and why did his slugging average hit .673 one year while Dom was hard put to get out of the .300s?

Paul Dean was good but Dizzy is in the Hall of Fame. So is Henry Aaron, but Tommie Aaron is not. Henry hit 755 lifetime home runs, more even then Babe Ruth. Tommie Aaron hit 13 lifetime home runs. Dempsey's brother got killed in a street fight.

WHY ARE the same elements so mixed as to provide such disparity? It extends even to nonhumans. There are full and half brothers to Kentucky Derby winners running — and losing — at half-mile border tracks.

A precise measurement is not always possible. One sibling may opt for the prize ring, the other for the stock market.

But for some reason, the sport of auto racing runs through families. The urge to speed, the need to risk, seems to surface in the genes more than any other characteristic. Current Indianapolis 500 winner Tom Sneva has a brother in a race car. Jerry, his name is, in case you missed him. Mario Andretti not only had a brother on the track, Aldo was a twin brother. Mario won a lot. Aldo crashed a lot.

The only brother act in which the talent seemed evenly spread was the Unsers. But they were as dissimilar as apples and oranges. Bobby was wild, reckless, impatient, fearless. He drove races like a cop busting up a crap game. Al Unser was cautious, patient, calm and persistent. He drove races like a guy fishing off a bank. He knew time was on his side. The Unsers won three Indys apiece. But they had a brother, Jerry, who was incinerated on that track.

Today, the Mears brothers are a real case for Freud. Rick, the younger, is the notable one. He's won an Indy and finished second by a fender in the closest race ever run at the Speedway.

Roger, then, is "Rick Mears' brother," a condition which surprises a number of Gasoline Alley types, among them A.J. Foyt, who always considered Roger the more serious threat on a race track.

ROGER MEARS may be the best off-road racer in America. This is a refinement of the pursuit of speed in which you pilot a truck or a hunk of iron across rattlesnakes, tin cans, sand dunes, dry (you hope) creek beds and 120-degree burning sands for 1,000 miles for a purse which wouldn't make good lap money at Indianapolis. Roger Mears once drove to victory in the Baja 1000 with two broken arms.

But Indianapolis is playing the palace in this sport. Rick Mears came to the 500 in 1978 with flags flying and Roger Penske beckoning. He qualified a car at 200 miles per hour, one of the first four guys in history to do so, finished 104 laps and was co-Rookie of the Year. In 1979, he won. In '82, he got beat by 16100ths of a second. Rick Mears was the toast of Meridian Avenue.

Meanwhile, back in the pits, Roger Mears was trying to beg, borrow or steal a ride in something you didn't have to take a load of cabbage out of first. He finally got in a tub so wobbly you wondered what they did with the oarlocks and he barely qualified it as the slowest car in the race. Then, on the starting line, a rookie ran right over the back of him. Roger Mears finally made the start but never got to do it.

The next year, in a respectable machine, a Penske Cosworth, he qualified eighth and drove 43 laps before hitting the wall. At least he was graduating from "the wrong Mears" to merely "the other Mears."

FOR THE behaviorists' peace of mind, Roger can only offer an explanation that kid brother Rick was "in the right place at the right time."

"You're saying 'luck'?" an interviewer asked. "No," corrected big brother Roger, "because being in the right place at the right time is no good if you don't have the stuff."

Brother Rick clearly has the stuff. Brother Roger is not going to deny that because, if Rick doesn't have the stuff and Roger came out of the same bin, what does that say about the Mears' stock?

GTE substituting beach for book's Olympic symbol

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — General Telephone Co. will paste a beach scene onto 260,000 phone books to avoid having to pay the U.S. Olympics Committee for mistakenly placing an Olympics trademark on the covers, a GTE spokesman says.

The trademark of five interlocking rings was printed without authorization on those phone directories plus another 175,000 already distributed, said GTE spokesman Hal Compton.

The 260,000 directories, now stored in a warehouse, will be distributed after the beach scene photographs are pasted on their covers, he said.

Compton said that the books that have been distributed will not have to be changed.

No penalty was assessed for the unauthorized use of the trademark Olympic symbol after negotiations between lawyers for the USOC and GTE Directory Co., which was responsible for the mistake, Compton said. The agreement was reached Wednesday.

But Compton said the phone company may have to scrap plans for an Olympics cover devoid of the five interlocking rings because the revised cover, as well as the unauthorized one, includes an Olympics torch that apparently is a protected Olympics symbol.

"We'll have to reach some agreement (with the USOC) on the (revised) directory cover because of the Olympics torch," Compton said. "That has not been resolved yet."

SOURCE OF BEAUTY

When we look upon the grandeur of nature—when we gaze with awe at a masterpiece of art—when we are thrilled with the sounds of great music—then we often wonder about the source of all this beauty.

Undoubtedly, our energy and ability is God. It is He who is the real source of beauty in our culture. Human spirits, touched with divine inspiration have given the world treasures untold.

Consider Da Vinci's The Last Supper. Consider Handel's Messiah. Consider the marvelous literature of the Holy Bible. Truly some of the very finest of man's creations have come as the result of an awareness of God.

Indeed today our culture continues to be enriched by the expression of man's faith in the Eternal. Our churches bring us faith in God which is still a vital source of inspiration and beauty. Let the church enrich your life. Attend this Sunday and every Sunday.

Catholic policies clouded on communion, altar girls

RELIGION

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Questions have arisen about some features of Roman Catholic worship, including altar girls and Sunday communion both in bread and wine. The answers remain, for the time being, uncertain.

Even U. S. church authorities either aren't sure about the matters, or disagree.

That makes for some diversity in practice, a sometimes accepted feature of present-day Catholicism. But there could be joint action of U. S. bishops — or the Vatican — to standarize the patterns.

One of the issues is whether altar girls are to be permitted under a new code of canon law, along with altar boys, 9 to 14-year-olds serving as attendants to priests in celebrating the eucharist, or Holy Communion.

The other questionmark involves the practice of many Catholic parishes in distributing communion at Sunday Masses in the form both of bread and wine, although for centuries Catholic worshippers generally received only the consecrated bread.

U. S. bishops, after previously turning down such a change, voted in 1978 to allow it in any diocese where the bishop wished to implement it.

But recently, it became known that the Vatican Congregation for the Sacraments and Divine Worship in 1980 had indicated informally that the U. S. bishops had exceeded their authority in extending the practice.

The Vatican currently is investigating the matter, Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago said in a recent letter to priests. But U. S. bishops are reported trying quietly to dispell the Vatican's concern.

"Our bishops are contending that they acted within the law," the Rev. Ronald Krisman, associate director of the U. S. bishops' committee on the liturgy, told Catholic News Service.

He cites a 1970 instruction by the Vatican congregation on worship listing specific cases in which bishops could allow reception of communion in both kinds, with the instruction adding:

"Furthermore, the conference of bishops have the power to decide to what extent and under what considerations and conditions ordinaries (bishops) may allow communion under both kinds in other instances..."

Krisman says the Vatican's recent unofficial objection was in reponse to complaints from some conservative Catholics trying to portray American bishops as disobedient toward church law.

"That is not the case," he says.

Distribution of Sunday communion in both species has become customary in many Catholic dioceses, but the practice varies since bishops have had the option of allowing it in their dioceses are not doing so.

As for altar girls, uncertainty about them came up after a Chicago canon law expert, the Rev. John Huels, said the new code of canon law, to become effective Nov. 27, deletes an old ban on altar girls, thus allowing them.

But other canon law experts disagree.

Huels, who is writing a commentary on the new code for the Canon Law Society of America, says documents of the pontifical commission that produced the new code show a vote was taken to drop as "obsolete" the ban on altar girls in the old 1917 code.

That removes "any legal prohibition against this practice in the universal law of the church," Huels told Religious News Service, although noting that individual bishops still could ban the practice in their dioceses.

But other canon law experts, while agreeing the new code no longer forbids altar girls, maintain that other Vatican liturgical rules of 1980 will remain in effect, including a ban on altar girls.

"It retains all its force," supplementing the new code, says Auxiliary Bishop Anthony J. Bevilacqua of Brooklyn, head of the U. S. bishops' committee on canonical affairs.

Amarillo UMW district to host 10th meeting

AMARILLO — The United Methodist Women of the Amarillo district will host the 10th annual meeting of the UMW of the Northwest Texas Conference Friday and Oct. 8 at Polk Street United Methodist Church in Amarillo.

Designated as the Centennial Celebration for UMW of the conference, the 10th annual meeting will develop the theme, "An Unfinished Tapestry: The Continuing Journey of Women in Mission."

The Northwest Texas Conference UMW organization includes approximately 7,000 local women organized in 170 local units in the UM Churches across the conference. The geographic area covers the Panhandle and extends south to Midland, east to Abilene and north through Vernon to the Texas-Oklahoma border.

The Big Spring District, one of seven districts in the conference, includes the women organized in 18 local churches within the Big Spring area, which includes Midland. Midland has five UMW groups.

The organization of UMW is successor to a host of women's missionary societies whose origins are rooted in the mid-19th century.

Keynote speaker for the Centennial Celebration is Thelma Stevens, executive secretary of the Department of Christian Social Relations of the Women's Division of The Methodist Church from 1940-68 and author of the book, "Legacy for the Future." Her Friday 7:30 p.m. speech is on "Old Roots Sprout New Branches," and her Oct. 8 talk is on "Former Things Have Come to Pass and New Things I Now Declare."

The Rev. Jacinto Alderete, executive director of Wesley Community Center in Amarillo, is the speaker during the Friday dinner being held at the center. The dinner begins at 5:30 p.m. An ordained elder in the Rio Grande Conference of the UMC, Alderete has been director of the Wesley Community Center for 16 years.

Bishop and Mrs. Louis Schowengerdt, Albuquerque, N.M., are attending the celebration. Schowengerdt, episcopal leader for the Northwest Texas and New Mexico area, will conduct the memorial service Friday afternoon.

Musicians for the celebration are Karen Countiss, song leader, and Fredda Timmons, organist, both of Amarillo; and Mary Mills of Abilene, special music.

Lutheran Mission Church to choose name Sunday

A name will be chosen Sunday for the Lutheran Mission Church meeting at 5200 W. Illinois Ave. at the Presbyterian Day Care Center.

There will be a dinner at the Holiday Inn for all the members following the 10:30 a.m. worship with holy communion. After dinner, the group will adopt a constitution and articles of incorporation as well as elect church council members and officers. The group, which plans to establish a teaching church in Midland, will also apply for membership in the Southern District of the American Lutheran Church.

The pastors serving the congregation are pastors of Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord in Odessa.

The Rev. James R. Otterness, a native of South Dakota, graduated from South Dakota State College with a degree in engineering. He was a naval aviator in World War II. Otterness, who has been pastor in Odessa for over 23 years, teaches the Bible study "The Simple Secrets of the Kingdom" on KOSA—TV Sunday at 10 a.m.

The Rev. Brad Calley from Tyler is a graduate of The University of Texas at Austin. In his third year as associate pastor at Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord, Calley worked with Young Life for a number of years in South Texas.

The Rev. John V. Halvorson, a native of Minnesota, has served churches in Washington, Minnesota and South Dakota. He was, for over 20 years, a professor at Luther Seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

Otterness, Calley and Halvorson are graduates of Luther Seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

The Lutheran Mission Church has adult Bible study Wednesday night and Sunday morning.

Bishops' letter not intended to be politically partisan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for U.S. Catholic bishops says a pastoral letter rejecting nuclear warfare was not intended to be politically partisan even though it has won the endorsement of Democratic party leaders.

It was "written carefully so that it would stand as a measurement of every political position on the arms race but not be open to partisan usage," says Msgr. Daniel F. Hoye, general secretary of the National Conference of Catholic bishops.

However, he says the bishops intended for the letter to be given attention by both major political parties as has been the case.

Democratic national chairman Charles T. Manatt on Wednesday told a Georgetown University audience the letter generally reflected a "basic consensus of our party." Hoye says President Reagan and other administration figures have termed the letter a contribution to public debate on the issue.

But Hoye added that "the principles articulated and policy judgments made in the pastoral letter" - such as condemning any first use of nuclear weapons and a "strictly conditioned" acceptance of deterrence only so long as progress is being made to reduce arms — "go beyond the position taken by either of the major parties."

The Rev. Bryan Hehir, director of the U. S. Catholic Conference peace and justice commission, has said the letter will "keep the nuclear question before the American public as one of the central issues by which any candidate or party ought to be judged, and in that sense...will have an impact" on the 1984 presidential election."

LaHaye to discuss pressure

Dr. Tim LaHaye will be speaking Friday at 7 p.m. at Greentree Country Club.

LaHaye is an author, educator, minister and president of Family Life Seminars, a San Diego-based ministry.

LaHaye and his wife, Beverly, have authored over 20 books on marriage and family living, temperaments, secular humanism, Bible prophecy and inter-personal relationships, including, "How to Win Over Depression," "The Act of Marriage" and "The Battle for the Mind."

The two co-host a weekly television program, "LaHayes on Family Life," seen nationwide on 51 stations and three cable networks. The show is aired locally on TBN Religious Channel 4 Thursday at 7:30 a.m. and Friday at 7 p.m.

The topic of the Midland session is pressure. Based upon his most recent book, "How to Manage Pressure Before Pressure Manages You," LaHaye will examine the causes of stress. He will also discuss the mental, physical and spiritual means by which stress can be relieved.

Youth runs own train business

ROSSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Descending the steps into the Underground Railroad, you might mistake 12-year-old Pete Gossett for a customer of the model train shop — until he rings up your purchase.

Gossett is the nation's youngest authorized dealer for William Walthers Inc., a Milwaukee-based model railroad distributor, and perhaps the youngest hobby shop owner in the country.

It seemed like a logical step in the life of a dedicated train buff.

But Gossett cannot explain his love for railroads, real and model.

"I tell everybody I've never been able to figure that out," explains Gossett, who wears a striped engineer's cap.

Photographs of locomotives cover the walls of his train shop, and models of all shapes and sizes fill the display cases. A huge model railroad layout fills half the room.

Gossett's personal train collection includes more than 70 locomotives and 100 cars, from the tiny Z gauge to the most popular HO scale. He finances those personal purchases from his $6 weekly allowance and "a small savings account losing more money every day."

His interest in railroads dates back to the plastic train his parents bought him when he was a baby.

"We'd prop him on a pillow — that's how little he was," his father recalls. "You set (the train) on a plastic track and it went 'chinga changa, chinga changa, chinga changa.' "

Gossett progressed from toy trains to electric scale models and, finally, to his own business in downtown Rossville.

Goldwater wants limits on spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential candidate, called today for severe restrictions in spending for presidential and congressional election campaigns.

In testimony prepared for delivery to the Senate Rules and Administration Committee, Goldwater said Congress should not legislate specific limits on broadcasters, particularly the television networks, or compel broadcasters to provide free political time.

"I don't believe in over-regulating broadcasters and I think there may be too much regulation already, so I would recommend against singling out broadcasters for additional government controls that are not and should not be put on other forms of the media, such as the printed press," said Goldwater, an Arizona Republican.

"I believe that once you would start down the path of expanding government regulations on television broadcasting, you would open up a can of worms involving cable, satellite broadcasts, low-power stations and other new communications systems."

The committee has been assessing how well the campaign finance reforms have worked. The hearing concentrated on the role of mass communications media in contemporary campaigns.

Committee Chairman Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., said no one who has run for public office in recent years is unaware of time and energy it takes for a candidate to raise enough money to wage a successful campaign.

"There is a compelling need to diminish the role of money in political campaigns, while ensuring that candidates have access to the channels of political communications provided by new technologies," he said.

Mathias quoted the Television Bureau of Advertising as saying politics produced record-breaking revenues of $117 million for the television industry in 1982, some $27.6 million more than was spent in the 1980 presidential election year. He said the bureau predicts spending for political ads in 1984 will reach $180 million.

Goldwater said Congress should target reforms on campaign spending and not on broadcasters.

"Unlimited campaign spending eats at the heart of the democratic process," he said. "It feeds the growth of special interest groups created solely to channel money into political campaigns. It creates an impression that every candidate is bought and owned by the biggest givers.

Postmen checking on elderly

From Wire Reports

This fall, North Carolina postal carriers are starting a formal program of what most have been doing for years — checking up on the elderly, handicapped and homebound.

"We've always had carriers looking out for older people," said Allen Fast, the U.S. Postal Service's district manager for North Carolina and South Carolina. "I did 25 years ago when I was a carrier. But it was done informally, and not to that degree."

Under the new, nationwide Carrier Alert program, the mailboxes of elderly and homebound patrons will be checked for any accumulation of mail, which could signal a sudden illness or accident.

If carriers notice that mail has not been retrieved for two days, they notify their superiors, who then call a local sponsoring agency. In most North Carolina cities, that agency is being provided by the United Way and the American Red Cross.

Author chronicles Chinese revolution

LONDON (AP) — Liang Heng, a Red Guard at the age of 12, grew up idolizing Chairman Mao. The Great Helmsman's name was the first word he learned after mother, father and grandmother.

He made a pilgrimage to Peking to lift his "Little Red Book" before the huge picture of Mao in Tian An Men Square, pledging: "I will always be loyal to your revolutionary line."

But the excesses of China's Cultural Revolution in 1966-1976 broke up his family, forced him to live as a peasant and left him abandoned at 13 when his parents were charged with ideological impurity.

Now 29 and living in New York with an American wife, Liang is the first Red Guard to chronicle the chaos and violence that prevailed in the world's most populous nation for more than a decade.

His autobiography, "Son of the Revolution," describes how his father divorced his mother when she was wrongly condemned as a "rightist" at the start of the Cultural Revolution, and how his journalist father later suffered from the label "stinking intellectual."

Liang tells how he and his two sisters ate grass to survive; of watching Red Guards rape a female comrade; of brutal factional warfare and roughneck guards who burned his father's books; of the renowned concert pianist Liu Shi-Kun being forced to clean the toilets at the commandeered Peking Institute of Music.

In London for the publication of the British edition of his book, Liang said in an interview that he thinks China's current leader, the pragmatic Deng Xiaoping, is on the right path.

But he worries that his people remain prone to "blind obedience."

"The main characteristic of the Chinese people is to obey authority," he said.

Chinese pupils still receive a political indoctrination, not an education, and learn little about Mao's mistakes, he said.

"It was a tragedy, not only for the Chinese people, but for all human beings," said Liang. "I really worry about the future."

The book was written with the help of Liang's wife, Judith Shapiro, 29, who met and married the ex-revolutionary while teaching English in his native province of Hunan.

He was anxious to learn English and she to unravel the story of how a typical provincial family had weathered the 1960s upheaval.

Their romance upset local Communist Party members, and it was only after they appealed by letter to Deng Xiaoping — at a time when U.S.-Sino relations were warming up in 1980 — that their union was sanctioned.

They left for the United States in 1981 and spent a year working on the book. Liang is now a graduate student at Columbia University and his wife a part-time Chinese interpreter for the U.S. State Department.

"I told my story, and Judy wrote it down," he said.

"Both of us wept many times," she said, recalling the indignities and sorrows of Liang's shortened childhood.

Her husband added: "These were the shadows of my heart, and it's difficult for a Chinese to tell these stories."

The Red Guard who once donned straw sandals to join the re-enactment of the "Long March" of Mao's Red Army, hopes to become a U.S. citizen next July.

"All the things I've seen and all the people I've met in America are so different from what the party taught us," said Liang.

"Our newspapers were always criticizing the capitalist system, saying there was no human feeling and people only think about money. That's not true."

His eyes lighted up at the memory of arriving in the United States to a kaleidoscope of color, compared with drab Chinese uniformity.

"In China, in the summer they wear white and in the winter blue," he said.

"I disliked American food — except ice cream — at first, but I even like cheese now." To most Chinese, the smell of cheese is revolting.

Like other exiles from Communist lands, Liang felt Americans did not value their freedoms highly enough and were "too soft."

He points to two events that changed his life.

Unusually tall for a Chinese at 6-foot-1, he was recruited as a basketball player — playing center — and received many special privileges. Then in 1977, at the age of 23, he won admission to Hunan Teacher's College.

Chinese author Liang Heng, who wrote "Son of the Revolution," poses with his wife, Julie. He is the first member of the Red Guard to write about the chaos and violence that prevailed in China for almost a decade.

A tourist in Waikiki seems reluctant to accept advertising literature. A federal magistrate has upheld a city ban on person-to-person distribution of handbills in Waikiki, but the ban will not be enforced until there is a ruling on the appeal.

Waikiki City Council wants flyers banned

HONOLULU (AP) — On one corner stands a middle-aged lady wearing an artificial grass skirt with plastic lei and plastic hibiscus in her hair. Next to her stands a chap with an airplane-shaped visor topped with whirlies.

A girl in a moose costume dominates the scene down the block.

They and dozens of others — most of them college age — are handing out handbills in Waikiki, Honolulu's prime tourist area. They are the target of a city ordinance and the focus of a First Amendment case before the federal courts.

Pedestrians in a six-block area of Kalakaua Avenue, Waikiki's main street, can collect a handful of flyers promoting catamaran and "Hawaiian Love Boat" dinner cruises, a nearby pub, photo processing with an offer of free film, jewelry, real estate and tours to neighboring islands.

"I could paper my walls with them," said Ann Burns, a visitor from Butler, Pa., clutching a fistful of flyers.

Responding to complaints from visitors and residents, the Honolulu City Council last year banned the distribution of handbills on sidewalks of the Waikiki resort area.

U.S. Magistrate Joseph Gedan recently upheld the ordinance, saying it "meets the constitutional muster." However, he ordered the city not to enforce the ban until there is a ruling on a planned appeal.

Mark Davis, attorney for the Waikiki Small Business Association, said he will appeal to the U.S. District Court here.

Davis and Deputy Corporation Counsel Susan Sato, who represented the city, said it was the first time in the nation that a federal judicial official has upheld a flat prohibition on handbill distribution.

Davis argued during the trial that the ordinance violates a person's constitutional right to free speech, which is guaranteed by the First Amendment. He said small business owners would be forced out of Waikiki if the ban is enforced.

Ms. Sato countered that the ordinance is not an assault on free speech but merely an attempt to limit commercial speech in one part of the island.

Mayor Eileen Anderson testified that handbillers contribute to the "honky-tonk" atmosphere in Waikiki, and are frequently abusive to visitors and other strollers in the resort area.

"The hawking of handbills is not Hawaiian style, and in the long run will have a key impact on business," she said. "You can't walk down the sidewalk without being hassled by someone trying to force a piece of paper into your hands."

An earlier ordinance which banned peddling and handbills in Waikiki and seven other sections of the island was ruled unconstitional in 1979 — a lower court ruling that was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court in October 1982. The courts said the earlier ordinance violated guarantees of free speech and due process.

The new measure bans person-to-person handbilling and confines leaflets to 350 sidewalk racks — with space on the racks to be assigned by lottery.

The Hawaii Visitors Bureau says handbillers are a big source of visitor complaints. The Waikiki Improvement Association, a business group, campaigned for the ban.

But not all merchants support the ban.

"It's OK if they don't harass people and force their materials on them," said Vicky Tada, supervisor at a jewelry store. "If they stop people and vake them listen unwillingly, that's not right.

"But I don't think handbills should be banned because this is a free country," she said.

Henry Young, manager of an art gallery, called handbilling a "distraction," and said one visitor told him that the practice made Waikiki "look like Coney Island."

But he, too, doesn't support the ban.

"I'm for free enterprise," he said.

The handbillers say they try to avoid harassing people.

"It depends on how you approach them," said Susan Drake, who greets visitors with a cheery "Aloha!"

"It's usually the local people who are hostile. The tourists think it's exciting," said Ms. Drake, a University of Hawaii graduate who works for a one-stop ticket outlet.

Thom Wersen, a UH student who works for a tour boat firm, said people who don't want the handbills simply say "no."

But he agreed that the sidewalks get crowded with handbillers. "People don't want to get bombarded," he said.

Roy Smith, a visiting London cab driver, said the encounter with handbillers at first was frightening."You don't know who they are," he said. "A strange man walks up to you, and you're a bit wary."

But despite Ann Burns' collection of unwanted literature, she and her husband, Walter, said they weren't bothered.

"They're just trying to earn a living," said Burns, a steel worker. "If I were in a place where you depended on tourism for a living, I'd be doing the same thing."

Government charges lab with fraud

CHICAGO (AP) — The government relied on "propaganda" and exaggerated reports of conditions at one of the nation's largest animal-testing laboratories in trying to prove that company officials falsified test data, defense attorneys argued Friday.

James Robertson, a Washington attorney, challenged government charges that Industrial Bio-Test Laboratories in north suburban Northbrook repeatedly engaged in fraud.

The government said nothing about fraud in the first six to eight weeks of the trial, said Robertson, attorney for Paul L. Wright, former section head for rat toxicology at Bio-Test and one of three defendants in the case. Instead, Robertson said, the government presented detailed allegations of unsanitary conditions at the lab.

"It was propaganda," Robertson said, "evidence adduced to set your mind against the defendants in this case.

"These defendants are not on trial for cruelty to animals," the attorney said. "These defendants are not on trial for running a sloppy lab."

Robertson spoke in the second day of closing arguments in the 5½-month trial before U.S. District Judge John A. Nordberg.

The government charged in its summation Thursday that defendants fabricated and concealed data on critical animal tests of four drugs and chemicals during the 1970s.

Scott Lassar, assistant U.S. attorney, said that when the company ran into problems with research, its approach was "make up data. Conceal." He contended that in one test, two Bio-Test officials made up 30 pages of data.

The 30-year-old company, once one of the nation's largest independent toxic-testing facilities, now employs nine people.

Bio-Test's studies, which found the products safe, were commissioned by private companies and then submitted to federal agencies. All four products — an arthritis drug, a substance used in bath soaps, a pesticide agent, and a chemical used in herbicides — have been re-tested by other labs and remain on the market.

In his closing argument Robertson told the jury, "animal conditions were not only exaggerated by government witnesses, but you didn't get the whole story from the government in this case."

He said the government failed to mention several inspections conducted by federal agencies showing Bio-Test was in compliance.

He said Bio-Test officials were doing their job in testing drugs and chemicals, and that independent tests have verified their findings.

He cited subsequent tests done on trichlorocarbanilide, which is used in many deodorant soaps, that confirmed Bio-Tests findings.

And he said a re-test of Naprosyn, used in drugs for treating arthritis, showed the substance should be prescribed at a slightly higher dose than that recommended by Bio-Test.

"IBT's results, if anything, were a little bit on the conservative side," Robertson said.

"Not only are the products safe, but IBT's test conclusions came out of the right place and have been confirmed. Shouldn't the government have told you those things?"

In addition to Wright, the defendants are Moreno L. Keplinger, former toxicology manager, and James B. Plank, former assistant to the toxicology manager.

Keplinger's attorney, Thomas Decker, disputed the testimony of former employees of the laboratory and asked the jurors to believe his client, who told the court he knew of no falsified test data.

The three are charged with submitting false documents to the government, mail fraud and wire fraud.

Dr. Joseph C. Calandra, former president of the company, was granted a mistrial in July when it was learned he had to undergo heart bypass surgery.

This summer, the Environmental Protection Agency completed a seven-year review of Bio-Test and said there no longer is reason to fear a "hidden public health disaster," from the more than 200 pesticides approved for sale on the basis of faulty data from the company.

Mormons hold conference

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Mormon Church will convene its 153rd Semiannual General Conference today, with two of three members of its ruling body — including President Spencer W. Kimball — ailing and unable to address the faithful.

The frailty of Kimball, 88, and his first counselor, Marion G. Romney, 86, left open the question whether either would be able to attend the two-day conference beginning today in the Tabernacle on Temple Square.

"It's up to President Kimball. If he feels up to it, he will," Don LeFevre, spokesman for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, said Friday. He said neither would deliver a sermon.

Kimball and Romney, weakened by age and past medical problems, were unable to attend the church's conference in April, although both were strong enough to appear at the last two weekly meetings of church leaders in the Salt Lake Temple, LeFevre said.

The prolonged absence of Kimball and Romney from the day-to-day affairs of the 5.2 million-member church has forced Gordon B. Hinckley, Kimball's second counselor in the First Presidency, to assume the arduous role of that body's lone public spokesman.

Like Kimball in healthier days, Hinckley, 73, arrives at his office at 7 a.m. or before, routinely stays late and carries work home with him. He also travels often, recently dedicating Mormon temples in Atlanta, Samoa, Tonga and Chile and planning another this month in Tahiti.

Speaking Sept. 20 to students at church-owned Brigham Young University, Hinckley said he had "been under tremendous pressures."

Hinckley has said that administration of the church's vast spiritual and secular affairs has not suffered in the absence of Kimball and Romney. But some employees at church headquarters in Salt Lake City say privately there is an unusual backlog of business requiring the attention of the First Presidency.

LeFevre was unable to say whether a vacancy in the Quorum of the Twelve created by the death last January of Elder LeGrand Richards would be filled over the weekend. Vacancies in the Twelve normally are filled at the next conference, but Kimball, who alone can make the appointment, did not do so in time for the last conference in April.

Hinckley will share duties with Ezra Taft Benson in conducting the October conference. As president of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, Benson, 84, will become the church's next "prophet, seer and revelator" if he survives Kimball.

Mormon general conferences, held on the first weekends of April and October, draw thousands of church leaders from around the world. They hear officials address matters of doctrine.

Student admits he wrote racist notes he received

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP) — A black student at Middlebury College who claimed to have been harassed by racist notes and vandalism, which spread fear through the campus, has admitted writing the notes himself, school officials said Friday.

Erica Wonnacott, dean of students at Middlebury, the first American college to graduate a black student, said the college learned that "the victim was the perpetrator," and that the student had voluntarily withdrawn from the school.

Ms. Wonnacott did not release the student's name, but 19-year-old John Grace of Burlington, Mass., told The Associated Press earlier this week that he was the person who received the notes and did not know who had sent them.

Grace had claimed that he was at the college less than a week when he got the first note taped to his window, and that night he found the window had been broken. He said he was alarmed and stayed overnight with friends. At 5 a.m. the next day he went back to his room and found the second note saying, "Die nigger."

"We conducted a vast handwriting check and it was pretty clear it was his handwriting" on the notes, Ms. Wonnacott said. "He was confronted with it and he admitted he had done it." She said the student also admitted breaking his own window.

The school will not press charges, Ms. Wonnacott said.

She said the student "didn't know why" he had written the notes. "He's obviously a young man with a lot of problems."

The student sent a formal apology to college President Olin Robison and withdrew from the school on Friday.

John Grace, 19, of Burlington, Mass., had been at Middlebury College less than a week when he began receiving racist notes. The incident promptedcollege President Olin Robinson to call a meeting of the entire student body to address the matter.

Because of the incidents, the campus became so tense that an unrelated student prank and a bit of graffiti were recently misread as having racial overtones.

Students were frightened. Anxious parents telephoned the school. Administrators worried that the incidents would tarnish the image of the predominantly white, liberal arts institution known for high academic standards.

Three-quarters of the school population crowded into the school chapel in two sessions to hear students and administrators describe and denounce the incidents.

Middlebury College was the first American institution to admit a black student in 1821. It now has about 80 blacks among its 1,900 students.

"I think I'm mostly frustrated because I've come this far and reached this level of education and I still have to put up with this," said senior Dorothea Gay, a past president of the college's Black Student Union. "People are afraid to walk out at night."

Black Student Union President Sol Levy said, "It's a shame the efforts of this college over the years, though not enough, may be overshadowed or even forgotten in the aftermath of recent weeks."

Conference teaches health specialists to help families grieve

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A pioneering conference on bereavement showed doctors and nurses Friday how to help dying patients have a "good" death, and how to help their families avoid health problems by grieving properly.

"We have to make the last days of life as high quality as possible, and the death as peaceful as possible," said Dr. Michael Levy, chairman of the two-day national meeting sponsored by the Fox Chase Cancer Center.

"If you have a good death you are more likely to have a good grief," he said. "It is not enough to supply tender loving care, we must provide tender effective care."

Levy, director of the center's year-old Palliative Care Service and chief of its lung cancer section, said recent studies indicate that survivors, especially new widowers, "are at a much higher risk for health problems of their own during the first year of bereavement."

"Care for these people has a basis not only in human compassion but also in preventive medicine," he said, noting that beginning Nov. 1 Medicare will cover bereavement support services, such as the services of a psychiatrist or other counselor for the patient and family.

Levy said such services average about $8,000 in the last three to six months of a dying person's life.

Levy said the conference, which gave continuing education credits for psychiatrists, psychologists, family physicians and nurses, challenged health care professionals "to prove what they are doing is really worth it, that it is useful."

"When you talk about a good death and a good grief you have to be sure that it is the patient's and the family's definition of good, not the health care people," Levy said. "For some families tears help, and for others it doesn't."

One of the chief lecturers was Dr. Colin Murray Parkes of London, described by his colleagues as "the world's greatest bereavement expert." He told a reporter that bereavement is nothing to ignore.

"People today are frightened with grief," the British expert said. "In bygone times someone who was bereaved, they wept, they raged, and the whole family, the whole community gathered around them, and they shed their feelings, they tore their hair, and their clothes, in expressing their grief.

"Nowadays, people are so afraid of breaking down that they stifle grief. The truth is you are more likely to have a mental breakdown if you don't break down and grieve."

Parkes acknowledged there were people who cannot stop grieving.

"These people use grief as a sort of self-punishment and they must learn how to come out of their shells and start to live normally again," he said. "But when do you tell a survivor that it's time to stop grieving, to dry up the tears?"

Conference workshops took on topics such as care for survivors, serving bereaved children and bereaved parents, sudden death, grief counseling, and bereavement volunteers.

Dr. J. William Worden, assistant professor of psychology at Harvard Medical School, said he concentrated on helping health professionals identify bereavement and "to bring grief to a good conclusion."

"The quality of the apartment is much better than any others I've seen in Midland."

Mary and Perry Nelson talk about The Clusters:

"The extras included seem like a real bonus. We're former homeowners, so it takes a really nice apartment complex to satisfy us."

"I have a lot more kitchen appliances than I ever did in my own home. Dishwasher, trash compactor, garbage disposal, side-by-side refrigerator, built-in microwave, washer and dryer."

But that's not all. You also get French doors to patios/balconies, mini-blinds, ceiling fans and your choice of wall coverings.

Plus unmatched amenities such as luxurious clubhouse, two pools with Jacuzzis, lighted tennis courts, 4-station jogging trail, aerobics classes and exercise room.

Come and visit and you'll see why the Nelsons' say, "There have been many days we've come home and said, 'They've really done it again, they've gone first class.'"

How Safe are They When You're Gone?

You're gone. They're home alone. A problem? Who would be there to help? At a planned community like Buckingham Place secured estates this wouldn't be a problem.

A six foot six inch solid cedar and brick fence offers privacy and prohibits trespassing. The security gate and guardhouse limits unauthorized access to the estates, while ample lighting in the common areas provides safety and peace of mind.

An unsecured community is like an unlocked door...A mistake.
