

President talks to 42 callers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter fielded telephoned questions — and some gripes — on his own radio talk show Saturday, and said his long-distance conversations with 42 callers helped him "understand directly from the American people what they are concerned about."

The things they were concerned about ranged from Cuba to Idi Amin to taxes to an Indian land claim to a forbidden cancer treatment to a government job.

Carter responded to them all, and when he didn't have an answer, he promised to provide it later.

The two-hour CBS radio program produced no major disclosures, but Carter was out to make contact, not news. He gave it all a first-name, personal touch, saying thank you to Pete and goody to Mike. His callers' names appeared on a television screen in the Oval Office, where Carter and Walter Cronkite of CBS sat in orange armchairs, speaking into twin sets of goose-necked microphones.

A preliminary estimate derived from an early, limited sample of telephone offices in the continental United States indicated that approximately 9 million to 9.5 million attempts were made to reach the President, according to American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

It pointed out that did not mean that many people tried to call Carter because some callers tried more than once.

Cronkite served as moderator and followup questioner.

Carter, wearing a blue suit, sipped tea between answers — and told one caller about it, saying the only way to cut U.S. coffee prices is to reduce consumption.

While there were no major disclosures in what Carter had to say, there were refinements, and presidential statements on matters that previously had been addressed by lesser officials. Among them:

—Carter said he intends to move soon to seek the restoration of U.S. relations with Cuba. But Carter said there will have to be major changes in Cuban attitudes, and an end to intervention in Africa and interference in Latin America, before full diplomatic relations will be resumed.

"I do intend to see discussions initiated with Cuba quite early," he said.

—The President said U.S. negotiators will seek a treaty that would yield control of the Panama Canal to the Panamanian government about the year 2000, while guaranteeing U.S. and world shipping access to the waterway. "As far as sovereignty is concerned, I don't have any hangup about that," he said.

—Carter said the five-member U.S. mission he is sending to North Vietnam will get there March 16.

—He said he will come up with his tax reform program by Sept. 30, and that he will appear before a joint session of Congress April 20 to unveil his energy policies. Carter said the energy plan will not include anything like a 25-cent boost in gasoline taxes. He dismissed news reports that such a raise was under consideration.

—The President said he has no plans to revive the military draft. He also said he would like to explore a new system of military enlistment, "to combine it with a much more comprehensive public service opportunity." He indicated that would link military recruiting with recruitment for such programs as the Peace Corps and Vista, but he did not explain further.

Carter said he might give a repeat performance some time.

"I liked it," he said after the final call. "The questions that come in from people all over the country are the kind which you would never get in a press conference, that the news people would never raise, like the Ottawa Indian question."

That came from Mrs. John Ritchey of Georgetown, Ky., who wanted to know the status of claims for compensation for land taken from the Indian tribe. Carter didn't know, but said he would find out, and did, before the show was over. He said the bill has been passed.

"I think it is very good for me to understand directly from the American people what they are concerned about, in questions that have never been asked or been reported in the news media," he said. "So my inclination would be to do this again in the future."

He said he'd wait to see how Americans react to the first broadcast, "to see whether I've done a good job to make it worth their while."

There were some sharp questions and there were some complaints, particularly about Carter's pardon of Vietnam-era draft evaders.

But there were no abusive questions or comments, and the CBS censor didn't have to use the cutoff button that would have silenced any obscene or offensive caller.

Carter said he learned a lot and enjoyed the broadcast.

Otto Flaig of Milwaukee apparently didn't enjoy it. Save for the 900 area code, he has the same telephone number as the one set up for calls to the White House, 242-1611. "Since six o'clock this morning, he has been getting calls from people who want to talk to me," Carter said. The President asked people to be careful in dialing, to spare Flaig any more wrong numbers.

There were questions about Carter's family, one critical, others cordial.

Nick Kniska of Lanham, Md., wanted to know why Carter's son, Chip, and his family are living at the White House instead of earning their own way. Carter said the family pays all its own living expenses. "I want you and the American people to know that we're not mooching off the American taxpayer," he said.

Ronald Fouse of Centerville, Ga., exchanged pleasantries with Carter for a moment, then told him:

"Now that you've pardoned the draft evaders and you propose to pardon the junkies and deserters, do you propose to do anything for ... the veterans like myself?"

Carter responded: "I don't intend to pardon any more people from the Vietnam era." He said there will be no blanket pardon for deserters, but case-by-case handling, on an expedited basis.

Carter said his administration is offering help for veterans in training and job opportunities.

INSTANT FAME — Charles Stone, Dallas, Tex., letter carrier, talked to President Jimmy Carter Saturday afternoon by telephone from his Dallas apartment. He expressed desire to have something done about a tax break for single taxpayers. Charles said he spent 15 minutes dialing, 15-minutes of the phone ringing, and 15-minutes on hold. His number was taken in Washington, and the call returned to talk to the President. With Stone is his girlfriend, Vicki Hipkind of Dallas. While photo was being made, Stone was talking to local radio station.

Caller dies after talking with Carter

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A minister died of a heart attack Saturday shortly after talking to President Carter on the dial-a-President radio program.

"He talked to the President and passed away," his widow said.

The Rev. James Baker, 56, talked to Carter about 2:15 p.m., then suffered a heart attack. He was rushed to a hospital where he was pronounced dead at 4:30 p.m.

"He was very elated and delighted to have talked to the President and was looking forward to seeing it on TV," the minister's widow, Louise, said.

The Rev. Mr. Baker, like the President, was a Baptist. He lived in Ridgeland and was pastor of the Robertville Baptist Church in Robertville.

In Washington, White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, sent a telegram of condolence to the minister's family.

Mrs. Baker said her husband was an angina patient but had not previously suffered a heart attack. She said she attempted to revive him with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

In his telephone call, Baker congratulated Carter on what he said the President has done to "restore ethics and morality in government."

Mrs. Baker said her husband "kept up with the news and was very much concerned with world conditions."

Number of Webb pilots increases

The number of student pilots being trained at Webb Air Force Base showed an increase during January for the first time in many months.

According to a base strength summary prepared by Air Training Command, the number of students at Webb during January was 180, an increase of four above the December figure.

The student strength at Webb had been falling steadily from the highest level in the command in March 1976 to the lowest by October 1976.

The total military strength of the base remained almost constant during January, also against steady declines in previous months.

The total strength for the month was 2,344 military personnel, one less than in December.

Webb remained near the bottom of the Air Training Command list, however. The student pilots by base were:

Base	Student pilots
Laughlin	260
Reese	253
Vance	252
Columbus	227
Craig	180
Webb	180

The total military personnel figures were as follows:

Base	Strength
Columbus	2,840
Laughlin	2,771

Reese 2,686

Webb 2,344

Craig 2,070

(Vance AFB in Oklahoma is not ranked because of its civilian contractor status.)

On Jan. 23, Lt. Gen. John Roberts, ATC commander, announced that student pilot projections for Webb had been increased beginning in July 1977. The increase would take Webb back over the 200 pilot mark and would add almost 50 student pilots to the load that had been programmed for the Big Spring base, providing that it remains open at that time.

Mass transportation with Tommy Hart

This country will never restore sanity to its transportation system and de-escalate the use of fuel until it returns to the concept of mass removal of human beings from one area to another. That applies to the commuter communities as well as to the metropolises.

The cost of gasoline is drifting ever closer to the $1 a gallon plateau. It's impossible to find a place on the street to leave your runabout anywhere close to where you're going within the business district of any modern city. Operators of some parking lots in the megalopolises, notably New York, are now exacting as much as $15 a day from you to ransom your car.

Speedy electrical trans once served the cities well but some of the major automobile manufacturers and the oil firms resisted their concept all the way to the state legislature and the congress of the United States.

Not too long ago, economic historian Bradford C. Snell appeared before a subcommittee of the U.S. Senate to tell how one of the major automobile manufacturing concerns set out to wreck public transportation because the company made its profit from cars.

A bus can eliminate 35 private vehicles from the thoroughfares. A streetcar can do the work of 50 cars. An interurban train can account for the diminishing use of 1,000 family sedans or 150 trucks.

Members of the Congress tremble in the presence of some of the lobbyists hired by the automobile manufacturing firms. The automobile people suggest that any reduction of the number of cars maintained by the average family would ruin the economy of the country — after all, the ratio of people working in industries supported by the transportation industry is more than one in five — so they may be right, in a sense.

Still, something has to be done. The poison gas we're spewing into the air is going to get worse and the time has arrived when we have no choice but to conserve our remaining fuel we have as best we can.

Rescuers reach trapped miner

TOWER CITY, Pa. (AP) — Rescuers reached the tiny underground chamber Saturday night where a coal miner had been trapped for more than four days, a state official said.

Rescuers said it would take 1 1/2 hours to bring miner Ronald Adley out of the mine deep inside a 400-foot mountain where nine other men were trapped by flood waters at midday Tuesday.

So far, two bodies have been found. The fate of seven other miners is still unknown.

It was 8:45 p.m. Saturday when rescuers completed the 4-foot-wide escape hatch they had chiseled out of 50 solid feet of coal and quartz.

Adley had been entombed for 32 hours before searchers had any indication he was alive. As they drilled through the hard anthracite coal, they heard a tapping noise. A small hole was drilled through the coal, allowing Adley to communicate with his rescuers. Food, drink, chewing tobacco and blankets were later pushed through the hole to him.

John Shutack, regional director of the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Agency, had said throughout the ordeal that Adley's spirits were high.

Each day, the searchers had predicted they would soon free the miner, but the hard quartz and coal slowed them down.

Quartz is the hardest of all common minerals. Only rare minerals like topaz and diamond are harder. The quartz turned the drills' carbide tips to stubs. Each time contact was made with the shiny mineral the drills bounced off the black wall.

Hand-held jackhammers and hand picks, used to chip out coal between the drill holes, chewed into the wall at about six inches an hour.

"I don't know why Dad just can't use a karate chop and knock that coal out of there," said Adley's 8-year-old son, Ronald Jr.

"All I want to do is hold Ronald in my arms again," said the miner's wife, Anna Mae.

"If he gets out by Sunday, he'll be in church, you better believe it," said his brother, Robert.

Adley, 37, was trapped with nine other miners at midday Tuesday when impounded water crashed through a shaft ceiling where the men were working, collapsing support timbers and triggering rock slides.

He scampered up a 45-degree angle side shaft to safety. Two miners were killed, three injured and seven are missing.

"We know nothing definite about the other men," Shutack said at the news briefing.

Atop Kepler's Mountain, another work gang used a six-inch bit to drill a 435-foot vertical hole to the general area where the seven men were believed trapped.

Television cameras and sensitive sound detection equipment were to be lowered into the hole to look and listen for life.

Up top it was loose pebbles that were causing a problem, snagging the bit as it cut into the mountain.

"The driller is very concerned and he's trying to work out his problems now," said Jack Tisdale, a MESA district manager. "Today and tomorrow are going to be examination days for a lot of these young fellows. If we miss, we drill another hole."

Adley, father of two, was sealed a mile inside the mine, able to communicate with his rescuers and get food and clothes through a six-inch shaft bored to his 10-foot wide, 10-foot high cell.

One of the first things he asked for was chewing tobacco, said to be one of a miner's three best friends along with whisky and his light.

"Music to him is the drill he keeps hearing," Shutack said.

Action/reaction: Low bond?

Q: If Pete Salazar has been under indictment for burglary and has been arrested for assault four times since 1969 as reported in the Herald, why has he not ever had a trial, and why was his bond set as low as $2,000 by a Justice of the Peace?

A: According to Howard County Sheriff's records, Salazar's arrests until his most recent were misdemeanors, at least one of which was dismissed. The burglary indictment was handed down Oct. 12, 1976. J.P. Gus Ochotorena, who set the bond said, "The purpose of the bond is to insure that the defendant will appear at his trial. I had no reason to believe he would flee. In addition, I was approached by him before the charges were filed against him, and asked to file assault charges against the complainant. Also, at the time I set bond, I was not aware of his previous arrest record."

Offbeat: Streaker smacked

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Australian cricket captain Greg Chappell won't be prosecuted for hitting a male streaker with his bat before a cheering crowd of 20,000, say police.

The incident, during a match against New Zealand last Sunday, also was broadcast live on nationwide television.

Chappell, who was batting when the streaker appeared, grabbed the nude man by one arm and hit him across the buttocks.

The streaker, Leonard Bruce Macauley, was fined 25 New Zealand dollars for disorderly conduct. He, in turn, filed a complaint with police against Chappell for assault.

But police said there were insufficient grounds to justify prosecution against Chappell.

Gromyko reappears

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko met with U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon on Saturday, ending a six-week absence from the public scene that sparked reports Gromyko was ill.

The U.S. Embassy said the meeting was a courtesy call which Toon had been requesting with Gromyko since his arrival as ambassador at the beginning of the year.

An embassy spokesman did not disclose whether any subjects beyond a general discussion of U.S.-Soviet relations were involved.

The meeting came the day after an article in the government newspaper Izvestia said American Embassy personnel were involved in a spy ring with Soviet dissidents.

Looking tired, the 67-year-old Gromyko later appeared at the Bolshoi Theater.

Americans not concerned

ENTEBBE, Uganda (AP) — American Les Cottrell paused on the golf course near Lake Victoria Saturday and said: "I have never been anywhere else in the world where people have treated me with more respect or showed more concern for my safety."

Cottrell, 55, from Shadron, Neb., is one of a small group of Americans who work at Uganda's Entebbe Airport and live at the Lake Victoria Hotel. Ugandan officials say there are 100 Americans in the country but U.S. officials have put the number at 240.

Fears for their safety were raised late in February after President Idi Amin announced they must not leave the country until meeting him. But the crisis subsided after the meeting was postponed to a date still to be announced.

Human rights violated?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet government has protested to the State Department the treatment of a Russian newsman jailed for an hour after being arrested for allegedly failing to respond to a speeding ticket.

The Soviet Embassy demanded an official apology for the treatment of Vitali Gan, a correspondent in the Washington bureau of the Tass news agency who was arrested Feb. 25, a State Department spokeswoman said Saturday night.

She said Gan was issued a speeding ticket sometime in December in Harrisonburg, Va. He was arrested by state police at his apartment in the Washington suburb of Falls Church, Va.

"He was handcuffed, stripped and searched," the spokeswoman said. "He was taken to the Arlington County lockup. The Soviet embassy bailed him out after he was there one hour."

Search on for escapee

MCALISTER, Okla. (AP) — The search for an escaped convict who authorities said killed a guard at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary Saturday turned to Texas late Saturday night.

Sheriff Jack Driscoll of Grayson County, Tex. on the Oklahoma border, said his officers set up roadblocks in search of escapee Edward Hall, 30, of Tulsa.

Hall broke out of the prison shortly after noon, but officials gave no details of the escape.

The body of prison guard Albert J. Cox, 47, of Ulan, Okla., was found late Saturday afternoon under a pile of feed sacks in a chicken coop on the prison grounds. Richard Crisp, prison warden, said Hall died of multiple stab wounds.

Authorities said Hall drove from McAlester in a pickup truck 95 miles south to Mannsville, Okla., where he stole a car from a man who was fishing with his two sons.

Ritter said Hall grabbed his younger son and pulled a knife. Hall then reportedly demanded that Ritter drive him away, adding, "I've already killed one man escaping from McAlester. I don't want to kill another, much less a boy."

Ritter said Hall told him and his younger son to get into their car. The older boy was about 100 yards away fishing when they drove away. Ritter said he drove for several moments then told Hall that he didn't want to leave his other son behind without telling him that he was leaving.

As many as 3,000 die in quake

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Western diplomats estimated Saturday night that at least 2,000 and possibly 3,000 persons died in the Romanian capital as a result of an earthquake that struck Eastern Europe on Friday. Rescue workers continued to dig for bodies and survivors.

Official Romanian figures issued for the first time Saturday night said 298 bodies had been found.

Bucharest apparently was hardest hit in Romania, which suffered the brunt of the damage of the earthquake which struck about 9:30 p.m. local time Friday and registered 7.2 on the Richter scale, making it one of the strongest tremors ever recorded in Europe.

Diplomatic sources said the estimates came from U.S. medical students helping in hospitals. On the basis of the number of casualties they saw coming in and from conversations with doctors, the students said the death toll in the capital alone would go beyond 2,000 and probably beyond 3,000, diplomatic sources said. The U.S. diplomatic mission quoted Radio

Bucharest as reporting that 72 persons were known dead elsewhere in Romania and 1,700 people hospitalized in the capital city, of whom 1,200 were seriously injured. Radio Bucharest is operated by the Romanian government. The Yugoslav Embassy estimated the Bucharest toll might reach 1,000.

The U.S. Geological Survey said the quake originated about 65 miles below the surface of the earth, so deep that aftershocks or secondary earthquakes were unlikely. None of significance have been recorded.

To the south, in neighboring Bulgaria, early counts had 20 dead, 165 injured and 60 buildings destroyed. Most damage was in the Danube Valley towns of Svishtov and Ruse, according to the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug.

No Americans were reported among the Bulgarian casualties and U.S. diplomats in Bucharest said none was known to have been hurt or killed in Romania.

Taxis were pressed into service as ambulances in Bucharest and all available trucks put to work carrying debris. A spokesman at the Yugoslav Embassy said it was estimated the death toll might reach 1,000.

In Bulgaria, an early official report said 20 people had been killed, 165 injured and 60 buildings destroyed by the quake.

Police beat Man wanted for attempted rape

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a suspect in the Friday night attempted rape of a five-year-old Big Spring girl.

According to police reports, Officer George Quintero responded to a call from a Main St. address at 12:45 a.m. There, he was told that a man had been surprised in the bedroom of the girl. The man apparently fled, but not before he was identified by witnesses.

The investigation is being handled by Det. John Burson and John Wolf.

Two men were arrested in Big Spring Friday evening for carrying a prohibited weapon. One of the men, arrested in an alley by Det. John Burson, had received two six-year sentences for auto theft and burglary, which makes the misdemeanor offense a felony.

Don Kelly, who gave his address as the Ramada Inn, reported the loss of two sets of golf clubs valued at $1,250 from his truck Friday night. The thieves apparently pried open the back of the truck camper to get at the clubs.

Robert D. Dutchover was arrested at 4:07 p.m. Friday by Officers Raymond Hall and Tony Chavez. Dutchover was wanted on a warrant for burglary issued out of Martin County. He is being held in the Howard County jail under $10,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Bob West.

Jay Holcombe, 1708 Purdue, reported the loss of $500 in cash and a .22-caliber pistol from his home Thursday. The thief apparently broke into his home and absconded with the pistol and the money which were being kept in a drawer in a State National Bank bag.

Three juveniles were arrested at 9:05 p.m. Friday in the Gregg St. Safeway parking lot by Officers Jerry Pruitt and Michael Kelly. The youths were charged with possession of alcohol.

Gus Hopper reported the loss of a Monarch labeling gun from his car while parked at the Ramada Inn between 3 and 5 p.m. Friday. The gun was valued at $40.

Deola Miles reported the loss of a wallet at the Big Spring State Hospital. The value of the wallet and contents was set at $33.25.

Only one minor accident was reported Friday. At 4:55 p.m. in the Sonic Drive-in, cars driven by Daniel Jerome Langston, 608 Lancaster, and Johnny Ray Motes, 1103 Mesa, collided.

Carter wants to 'do it again'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a torrent they came, question after question, highball, lowball and curveball, but hardly one that was screwball.

President Carter put on his best blue suit, stepped across a tangle of cables on the Oval Office floor, settled into an armchair, and fielded the questions, one by one, as best he could.

When it was over two hours later, Carter said: "I liked it. The questions... are the kind you never get in a news conference. It was very good for me to understand from the American people what they're interested in."

"My inclination is to do it again," the President added. "The two hours passed very quickly and I learned a lot from it."

He did little during his talkshow to betray any nervousness. He toyed with a notebook, sipped tea from a cup with the presidential seal, poked his index finger into his cheek. Quietly, in even tones, he spoke into gooseneck microphones in front of his face.

He read the names of his callers from a TV screen on a small table at his left. Their comments and questions dealt with issues, his family, the burden of his job and what he could do to help his listeners.

The exchanges varied from significant to inconsequential, funny to sad, informative to boring.

One caller was interrupted by his wife, whom he called "the boss." Another told about her father terminally ill with cancer.

One man in Milwaukee, Wis., who didn't get on the air, complained that he had been getting calls for the President since 6 a.m. because callers were confusing his area code with Carter's. Otherwise their telephone numbers were the same.

He must have gotten a lot of questions, Carter mused. "His answers were probably better than mine."

The two hours of "Ask President Carter," the White House talk show carried by CBS radio, was no rock-talka-chatterpatter late-night talkfest. Mostly, the questions were reasonable. And Walter Cronkite, the moderator — well, he's like your uncle down the street.

Before he went on the air, Carter guessed that a quarter of his callers would have personal problems for him to solve. It appeared that the President had overestimated, although several callers asked about things that would benefit them personally such as tax rebates and help with

Medicare. "This is a learning process," Carter told reporters, who asked about the notebook in his hand. "I hope to get promoted."

How straight is straight? Your eye alone can never tell you! And the more you try to strain it, the less perspective you have! When you want to use a long board as a straightedge, here is how to judge it without measuring. Lay the board on a smooth flat surface and draw a line along the edge you want to use. Then flip the board so that the end and formerly nearest you is now at the other end. Line the straightedge up with the line you've drawn. If the line matches exactly, the whole length of the board, then you know the edge is straight!

Rape avenger found innocent

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "We're having to overcome a whole problem of violence against women which has become a part of the fabric of our society," Inez Garcia said after her acquittal.

With the innocent verdict returned Friday in Mrs. Garcia's second trial for murder, women's groups chalked up another victory in the struggle to change views toward sexual assault on women. Mrs. Garcia was arrested after killing a man she claimed helped rape her.

"I think there is a changing attitude about rape," said Del Martin, a member of the National Organization of Women and leader of the San Francisco Commission on Women. "The age-old advice of 'relax and enjoy it' is no longer viable. What's happening now is that women are finding strength in other women."

Feminists turned out in force, crowding into the tiny Monterey County courtroom where the Garcia trial was held. Their support seemed little diminished from its earlier intensity when Mrs. Garcia was first tried and convicted in 1974 of killing Miguel Jimenez, a 300-pound man she said stood guard while another man raped her.

Mrs. Garcia, separated from her husband, served 15 months in prison before the conviction was overturned on appeal in 1975 and she was released on bail.

The activism her case stirred recalled the nationwide defense movement for Joan Little acquitted last year in North Carolina of killing a male jailer she said attacked her while she was being held on armed robbery charges.

In the emotional moments that followed the verdict, Mrs. Garcia said she felt she had won an uphill battle.

"It's so hard to prove when a woman gets raped," she said. "I want to thank the jury for believing me."

Louis Castillo, the man Mrs. Garcia claimed raped her, was never charged. But rape was the backbone of her defense, despite claims by prosecutor Arthur Braudrick that the assault was a "red herring."

After the verdict, defense attorney Susan Jordan said, "I think the jury understands what a person in Inez's position goes through."

Jury foreman Herman

Champlin said the presence of two women on the panel helped educate male jurors on the rape question.

"I think they gave us an idea what a woman would feel like under similar circumstances," he said. "They gave us their impressions of how confused, angry and those kind of feelings they might have under certain circumstances."

"It's important that women see it as a model for action," said Patty Deslig of San Francisco Women Against Rape. "It is possible to fight back and it's your right to fight back."

The "Viva Inez" defense committee will live on, Mrs. Garcia said, to fight further battles for women's rights. "I promised a lot of women in prison I would do what I could for them," she said.

Coffee mess to worsen?

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — More bad news for coffee lovers who thought things couldn't get worse: Brazil says its 1976-1977 coffee harvest will be a fraction of the average yield in the days before coffee prices soared.

The reason, the Brazilian Coffee Institute (IBC) said Friday, is that the crop has still not recovered from the 1975 frost that destroyed 70 per cent of the country's coffee trees and drove up world coffee prices.

An IBC spokesman said it will take four years for trees planted after the frost to reach maturity, so the country's coffee production will not return to normal until the 1978-1979 harvest.

The spokesman said this year's harvest is estimated at 6 million sacks, down 400,000 from its own previous estimates and far below the pre-1975 annual average of 21 million sacks. Each sack contains 132 pounds.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated the crop would be more than 9 million sacks.

The IBC said it has 7.1 million sacks of coffee in stock and private producers have an additional 10.4 million sacks.

White bishop gets expelled

LONDON (AP) — Bishop Brian Herd, the last white Anglican bishop in Uganda, arrived here today after being expelled from the country by the government of President Idi Amin.

The Rev. Mr. Herd, who had spent 16 years in Uganda as a missionary, said the expulsion was so sudden that his wife had to stay behind to pack.

"It's a great shock to me," said the 45-year-old cleric, who arrived at Stansted Airport carrying only his attaché case. "There are a great number of people who love us in Uganda and who we love, and it's extremely difficult to leave them like this without saying goodbye."

The Rev. Mr. Herd, who was bishop of Karamoja, 200 miles northeast of Kampala, was placed on a London-bound Uganda Airlines flight by police Friday.

A Ugandan official gave no specific reason for the ouster but said it followed "complaints from a congregation."

The Rev. Mr. Herd said his residence permit was to have expired next month "and I was hoping for a renewal." On Thursday he was ordered to the Ugandan capital of Kampala.

"Friday morning I was given a letter signed by the vice president to say I was deported and I would go on the next plane out," he said. "My wife Norma saw me off and she is now packing at our home."

Weather

Light rain, snow push into WT

By the Associated Press

A blanket of clouds covered most of Texas Saturday as light rain mixed with snow moved into western portions of the state.

Light rain also fell in East and Southeast Texas.

The cloud cover kept temperatures at low but tolerable levels.

Late morning readings ranged from the upper 30s in Northwest Texas to the 40s across North Texas to the 50s and 60s in southern portions.

The National Weather Service said the light rain would end Sunday and skies will clear and temperatures would rise.

FORECAST

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is predicted today for northern New England, northern Michigan and from northern Mississippi, through Tennessee into the Ohio Valley, according to the National Weather Service. Rain is forecast for part of the Pacific Northwest and the Middle Atlantic States. Rain is expected for the southern Atlantic states.

Are they ganging up on us?

Between Washington and Austin, Big Spring is surely having a tough time.

It is almost as if the state and national governments are conspiring to force Big Spring into a hole.

FIRST, THE Pentagon rather in-credibly proposed to close Webb Air Force Base, the most cost-efficient base in the entire Air Training Command and the number one pilot training base the previous year and for many before that.

Now the state government is getting into the act with the proposal of a new law which would place a 5 per cent tax on Texas refineries.

This tax would cost Cosden Oil & Chemical Co.'s industrial complex here in Big Spring as much as $1 million a month, estimates President Ken W. Perry.

The bill was a surprise measure, but it already has picked up formidable support in Austin. Its chances of passing must be considered likely because of the general popularity with the public of taxing the oil industry.

The idea behind the bill is to give the small property owner relief from taxes by shifting the burden to the refineries.

While there is no doubt that the small property owner needs all the relief he can get, the refinery tax measure is not the way to provide it.

Such a tax would stop the growth which Texas has enjoyed from the refinery and related industry. Much of the Gulf Coast growth has come in this area, and it is also important to West Texans too.

New refineries would be built in states without the 5 per cent tax, and Texas could even lose its chance to develop the superport.

REFINERIES REMAINING in Texas will have to compete with others around the nation with a 5 per cent handicap. The harmful implications of this are indeed long reaching.

Why would the Texas Legislature consider such an idea? It would not think of putting a 5 per cent handicap on, say, the cattle industry by taxing Texas cows so they must sell for more than those in other states.

The tax would hurt small refineries the most, oil industry spokesmen say.

But it would hurt the refinery industry in general — sort of like killing the goose that is laying the golden eggs for Texas.

This law, if enacted, could not help but have a negative impact on Big Spring.

With friends like those we have in Washington and Austin, this community certainly needs no enemies.

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The "human rights" issue in the Soviet Union has the Kremlin terribly upset. The question is why? I posed this problem to my good friend Gregor, a minor functionary at the Soviet Embassy with high KGB connections.

"Gregor," I said, "why on earth are you people so excited about a few malcontents in your country? Surely you, as the first or second most powerful nation in the world, can stand a little criticism from a few dissidents who march to a different drummer."

"Is personal matter and none of your business!" Gregor said sourly.

"I'M NOT chiding you, Gregor, for your stand," I said. "I'm just curious why the full power of the state has come down with such force on a handful of men? Is the Communist system so fragile that it can't allow one or two people to complain about the political condition in your country?"

Gregor scowled. "Do you want detente or don't you want detente?"

"Of course, I want detente."

"Then stop asking me such stupid questions."

"Gregor, that's no way to talk to a friend who gave you an entire set of blueprints for the Edsel. I'm trying to understand what makes your leaders tick. Why do you keep arresting people for speaking out for a little more freedom?"

"There is no such thing as a little freedom," Gregor said. "There is either freedom or no freedom. America wants to destroy us with freedom."

"WE DO NOT," I protested. "We like you just the way you are. But frankly, you're very boring people. You keep saying the same thing over and over again. It's nice to hear a fresh voice from Moscow every once in a while, even if he doesn't have a following."

"How do you know he doesn't have a following?"

"I just assumed it," I said. "I can't believe, from what I read in the Soviet press, that these people are nothing more than maniacs who belong in mental institutions. Do they really have many supporters in your country?"

"We don't know and we're not going to find out," Gregor said.

"Gregor, you sound frightened. Do you really believe that a few writers and scientists would drive you into a free state?"

"Not a free state — a Capitalist state. We don't want any part of Capitalism."

"I don't blame you. It's a messy system. We have gas shortages, coffee at $3 a pound, and you can't even find a parking place when you want it. But surely Sakharov and Ginzburg, and a few others, don't have it in their power to make the Soviet Union a Capitalist country."

"MAYBE YES — maybe no. But that is for us to decide. Just because we buy your wheat does not give your President an excuse to write to one of our traitors."

"President Carter didn't mean any harm. He answers all his mail. It's a habit he picked up when he was selling peanuts."

Gregor hit his fist on the table. "Well, we won't stand for it. How would you like it if Brezhnev wrote to one of your dissidents, Ronald Reagan?"

"I wouldn't mind, but I don't think Reagan would like it. He might want to run for President in 1980 and a letter from Brezhnev would kill his chances."

"Why should Americans care what we do to our writers and scientists?" he shouted at me.

"That's a good question, Gregor. We shouldn't care but we do."

REMEMBERING...

By BILL BROOKS

BABY CHICKS

Just about every year in April or May we would get a new batch of chickens. The hatchery was in the back part of the feed store in town. We would usually buy at the hatchery but you could get chicks by mail order if you wanted to.

The hatchery was a fun place to go. It had chicks of all sizes and kinds and there were books on the poultry business along with salves, pills and powders for treatment of disease. They also sold supplies like feeders, brooders and coops. The hatchery man knew all there was to know about raising chickens, or at least it seemed that way, and his advice was free.

There was a place where you could watch the chicks being hatched. It was a big wooden case with glass doors and you could look in and watch the little chicks pop out of the shell right before your eyes. The hatchery man said the temperature inside the box was just about the same as under a mother hen, about a hundred degrees.

A hundred chicks (that's how many we usually bought) fit snugly into a pasteboard box that had little round holes in it for ventilation. The man would let us kids help carry the cheeping box to the car where it was carefully placed in the back seat. On the way home we would sit by the box and stick our fingers in the holes to see if they would peck and, sure enough, they usually would.

When we got them home they were placed in the brooder house under the brooder. It was so exciting to finally take the lid of the box and see all those cute fuzzy little yellow balls clammering around, cheeping in chorus, looking for food.

The brooder was a kind of a tent-looking thing made of metal. In the center was a coal oil burner that kept the chicks warm. It would be their home for the next eight to ten weeks and, as kids, it was our chore to keep it clean, see that there was plenty of water and food and report immediately if any of the chicks looked sick or showed signs of disease.

After several days the chicks would begin to get real feathers and they wouldn't be as cute but we knew that before long we'd be having good ole fried chicken instead of those old boiled hens we had to eat during the winter time.

Some answers on intrauterine devices

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A few questions on the intrauterine devices (IUDs):

—How long is one effective?

—How effective are they in birth control?

—Do they pose any risks?

—What should one do if pregnancy occurs? — Mrs. S.Z.

In most cases, the IUD is effective until removed.

The latest information I have is that the IUD is about 95 per cent effective in preventing pregnancy, ranking just below the Pill, which is about 98 per cent effective.

Problems occur at the rate of about one per 100 users.

One government publication advises that before a decision is made to use an IUD the patient should inform the doctor to any special problems such as heavy menstrual periods, uterus or congenital or rheumatic heart disease. An allergy to copper would, of course, rule out the copper IUD.

It is also wise for the woman to check regularly to be sure the IUD has not been expelled without her knowing about it.

One of the serious problems encountered with the IUD is in women who become pregnant while using it. If pregnancy is suspected, it is important to see the physician immediately.

Insertion is a relatively simple procedure, but is best done by someone skilled in the procedure. Bleeding between menstrual periods (spotting) and some pain can be expected in the first few weeks after insertion. Periods may be a bit heavier and longer. Neither is considered dangerous in and of itself. However, remembering what was said about pregnancy, any delay in a period should be investigated to rule that out.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor tells me I have hiatal hernia, but he hasn't advised me as to what to do about it. I would be willing to go along with surgery or anything necessary, but this not knowing is killing me. How serious is it? What should I do next, see a surgeon? — Mrs. R.U.

Sorry you are left in the dark. You shouldn't be. Regular readers will probably know that the hernia you speak of is in the gullet near where it joins the stomach. A lot of my mail is on hiatal hernia, a fair indication of just how common the problem is. The diagnosis ought to be confirmed by X ray, if that hasn't been done.

I can understand why your doctor may not be excited about it. It's usually one of those "you can live with it" things, as trite as that phrase may sound.

The chances are you won't require surgery, which is the treatment of last resort. Hiatal hernia is one of those mechanical problems you can make easier with proper instruction — raising the head of your bed a bit at night, losing excess weight, if necessary, and avoiding spicy and other irritating foods. My booklet on this subject should help you. If you'd like a copy, send 35 cents for it to me along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Lately I have been getting my eyelashes stuck in my eyes. I used to be able to get them out, but no longer can. I am a senior citizen. It is very uncomfortable, and everytime it happens I must run to the doctor for fear of them getting imbedded.

How can I get relief from this? H.W.R.

Hasn't your doctor suggested any specific cause of this?

Senior citizens are prone to this and other eyelid disorders, such as trichiasis, where the lashes come out easily. That is caused by an inflammation of the lid margins. With some folks, the lid margins turn inward, resulting in the irritation of the eyeballs by the lashes. Loss of fatty and supporting tissue causes this. Both these conditions can respond to treatment.

The follicles of the eyelashes are like those of any body hair. They are dependent on good nutrition. Are you sure you are getting sufficient protein and vitamins?

I think you should seek help from another doctor.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Thosteson's new booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed and stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Why does blood seem to be so important in the forgiveness of sins? — I.T.

DEAR I.T.: Perhaps you are thinking of a passage like I John 1:7: "and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." Yes, the blood of Christ is very important in the Bible, for Christ "washed us from our sins in his own blood" (Revelation 1:5).

The Bible writers knew that blood was absolutely essential for life. A person or an animal might get along without a leg or an eye, but no animal or man can live without blood. That is why the Old Testament said, "For the life of the flesh is in the blood" (Leviticus 17:11).

The Bible also teaches that atonement for sin only comes through the shedding of blood. "In fact, the law requires that nearly everything be cleansed with blood, and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness" (Hebrews 9:22, New International Version).

When we speak of the blood of Christ, therefore, we are saying that He died for us. Blood sacrifice underlined the seriousness of sin. Only the shedding of blood could atone for sin. The death of Christ also underlined the principle of substitution. In the Old Testament a sacrificed animal was seen as a substitute — the innocent animal took the place of the guilty person. In the same way, Christ died in our place. He was innocent, but He freely shed His blood for us. We deserved to die for our sins, but He died in our place. What a wonderful thought!

Because of Christ's death for us, we can know His life — now and eternally. "Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things . . . But with the precious blood of Christ" (1 Peter 1:18-19).

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

Recent releases in the Big Spring Herald and, in particular, the headline story by Tommy Hart in the March 2 issue, certainly seem to have given the proposed so-called Refinery Tax a biased or, at least, an unclear and partial presentation.

A rather casual survey of data in the recent issues of trade journals covering the petroleum industry can give a much more informative perspective than the general statements of purported facts and conclusions as stated.

If one accepts the proposition that additional taxes are needed, as advocated by the framers of the present tax legislation, then it becomes the legislators' problem to select a source for tax, and means for its collection.

Without in any manner arguing the need for the tax or relief from tax burdens which may be unfair to some segment of taxpayers, it then becomes an exercise in collecting the tax and from whom. Consider then what is very well established that bears on this subject matter.

Firstly, corporations do not stand the financial burden of taxpayers. They simply function as a collection agency. In the present matter being considered, refineries already are tax collection agencies for both state and federal taxes. So there exists the necessary procedures and personnel for tax collection within the refinery organization. Certainly, just increasing the amount of tax they collect should not increase the costs to the refinery. Therefore, the quantity of tax collected is not a cost to the corporation. All tax and other costs are passed through to the ultimate consumer in one manner or other, in higher prices. This burden has to be borne by the ultimate consumer regardless of the source of the tax, or its means of collection.

Secondly, an examination of statistics, which, incidentally, appear regularly in the Oil & Gas Journal, does not appear to lead to a conclusion that any area in Texas should suffer unduly. Taking information from the February 14, 1977 issue of the Oil & Gas Journal (Statistics section), we can form an idea of the situation in Texas when compared to the whole United States.

In the matter of crude oil production, we see this quantitative comparison:

Date	2-14-77	2-6-76
Texas	3,099,000 B-D	3,273,000 B-D
Total USA	8,015,000 B-D	8,246,000 B-D

Texas production as a pct. of total USA

Inland Texas	2,477	2,476	2,477	2,476
Texas Gulf Coast	478,000 B-D	478,000 B-D	478,000 B-D	478,000 B-D
Total for USA	14,221,000 B-D	14,221,000 B-D	14,221,000 B-D	14,221,000 B-D

Total crude refined in Texas is 3,884,000 B-D, and from the above data it is seen that the production of oil in Texas expressed as a per cent of the refining capability is 79.79 per cent. This strongly suggests no expansion of refining in Texas since the crude supply does not exist here, and supply is lessening.

In the matter of effect of price increases to consumers; the 5 per cent tax on refinery input should not increase the price of refined products by more than 1.5 cents per gallon, since, presumably, with the levying of the proposed tax, there will be a lowering of ad valorem taxes which the refiner pays. But at this period of time when the tax law is not completely defined, a figure of 2 cents per gallon increase in price may be used for comparative purposes.

For a judgment of what should be the case with all products, a comparison of gasoline prices in fifty-two cities, in 35 states; as listed in the Feb. 14, 1977 issue of the Oil & Gas Journal (Statistics section, Gasoline prices — Approximate prices for major-brand regular) should give a comparison of Texas costs and other states.

	Price	Pump price
	ex tax	ex tax
Week's ave., all cities	49.07 c gal.	53.55 gal.
1977 to date	48.40	52.86
Ave. of Texas cities	44.39	53.39
Ave. for cities outside Texas	49.80	61.66
These figures show a price before tax, advantage for Texas consumers as listed below for the periods, and also for pump price.
Advantage over national ave.	4.68c gal.	7.16c gal.
Advantage over area outside Texas	5.41c gal.	8.27c gal.

Certainly, a conclusion that, if the money raised by the taxes is necessary for the operation of the business of the State of Texas, the proposed tax levied on refinery inputs would disadvantage business within Texas to a level low enough so Texans would continue to obtain petroleum products, in a quantity needed, without net importing of products from outside the State, at prices cheaper than those of areas outside Texas in an amount of over 3 to over 6 cents per gallon.

UP WITH PEOPLE — This song and dance event which has been presented all over the world comes to Big Spring Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets are available at the Big Spring Herald, Chamber of Commerce and First Federal Savings and Loan.

'Up With People' performs Tuesday

"Up With People" which will perform at the high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday was formulated out of an evolving need to meet the challenges and new consciousness of youth on an international level. Locally, the show is sponsored by the Big Spring Herald as a community service. Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for students in advance sales and may still be obtained at the Big Spring Herald, Chamber of Commerce office and First Federal Savings and Loan.

In 1965, J. Blanton Bell and Donald Birdsall met with eight college student body presidents to discuss ways and means to cross a new frontier in creating an educational framework which would not only replace an age of cynicism and mistrust with hope, but would provide youth everywhere with a competent, futuristic plan through which they could be educated by life as well as for life.

It is 11 years later, and the concerned youth of today, like those of the mid-sixties, are searching for solutions to what is an increasingly complex and uncertain world.

The days of conventional book learning are long past and this young generation, which has been exposed to the pressures of a technological world society and mass media long before they are adults, is no longer satisfied with out-dated methods of acquiring knowledge. They have developed a global awareness unprecedented at their age, a generation or two ago.

Since its inception, Up With People has expanded to meet the demands of contemporary education processes. Through the medium of original musical productions, 3,500 young men and women have participated in Up With People which has appeared in 38 countries on six continents as an independent, non-profit, educational program with the aim of establishing through its outreach in the United States and abroad an innovative format specifically created to stimulate communications and interaction between people of varied cultures, nationalities and points of view.

"Thousands upon thousands are living in mosques, woods and even public squares with hardly anything to shield them against the cold winter that grips the nation," Sadr said. He warned that unless combatants voluntarily laid down arms he would back any measure taken by Sarkis to subdue warriors in the south by force.

Sarkis sent his proposal for a joint Arab-U.N. force to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Egypt and Syria to win their endorsement before seeking a U.N. Security Council resolution.

Sarkis also is seeking advance approval for the plan from the United States. He met Saturday with U.S. Ambassador Richard Parker for the second time in

10-day truce called in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Right-wing Christians and Palestinian guerrillas reportedly began a 10-day truce in Lebanon's last civil war zone Saturday as President Elias Sarkis sought a joint Arab-United Nations peace force for the area.

Government sources said the leftist guerrilla high command and the Christian militia leadership reported to Sarkis before sundown that the cease-fire in southern Lebanon was holding fairly well.

Sarkis had demanded the truce on the eve of his departure for a summit conference of Arab and African countries in Cairo.

One source said the president felt the pause was necessary to set the stage for putting together a peace force from the United Nations and the Arab League to stabilize the south permanently.

Lebanon's 19-month civil war was brought to an end in most of the country last November by a 30,000-man Syrian-dominated Arab peace force. But roughly 100 square miles of territory abutting Israel remained beyond the reach of the peacekeepers because Israel warned it would not tolerate the presence of Arab forces there.

Sarkis reportedly wants an Arab League peacekeeping army to move into southern areas to disengage and disarm the rival forces while 400 U.N. observers police the border line to prevent friction with Israel.

Imam Mousa al Sadr, spiritual leader of the Moslem Shiite sect, backed Sarkis' demand for a halt in hostilities as well as his quest for a joint U.N.-Arab peace force.

Shiites, numbering nearly a million, form the largest single sect of Lebanon's 2.8 million population. They backed the guerrillas and their leftist allies during the civil war.

Sadr said the continued southern fighting raised to 120,000 the total of Shiite refugees fleeing to Beirut and other major cities.

three days. An official announcement said Sarkis formed on political and military developments in "kept the ambassador in south Lebanon."

THE BIG ONE FOR DRY COUNTRY

IT'S DEPENDABLE

Dependable yields of consistently high quality fiber even in drought years. That's what made LX 571 a long time favorite with farmers here about. And it's nice to know that you don't have to give up something else for drought resistance. Farmers appreciate the good gin turn-out of fairly long staple fiber which makes the premium range under normal conditions.

At maturity you'll like the looks of LX 571's storm resistant bolls and at harvest you'll appreciate how well it strips one-time-over.

LX 571 along with other Lankart varieties accounts for over 60% of the cotton planted in the Altus Classing Office territory and have for a number of years... strong testimony from people who know how to grow cotton in this area. If you think this might be a dry year

CHECK THESE LX 571 CHARACTERISTICS:

- Good dryland cotton
- Good root system for drought resistance
- Top yields
- Good gin turn-out
- Medium early maturity
- Storm resistant bolls
- Excellent stripper variety
- Well-adapted to one-time-over harvesting
- Staple length in the 1" and longer range
- Micronaire in the premium range (under normal growing conditions)

CHECK THESE RESULTS:

Information from cotton variety comparisons made in 1976 in various locations in Texas and Oklahoma:

• Childress, Texas

On dryland without fertilization LX 571 (Lankart) made 687 pounds of lint per acre. The cotton which was machine harvested had a micronaire of 4.7, staple length of 30 and a gin turnout of 28.8 percent.

• Haskell, Texas

In a dryland cotton variety test, LX 571 produced 665 pounds of lint to top the test and beat the second variety in the test by 12 pounds per acre. The fiber graded 50, had a staple length of 32, micronaire of 5.4 and a gin turnout of 29.5 percent.

• Well, Texas

LX 571 also topped this test of eight varieties on non-irrigated land without fertilizer. It produced 644 pounds of lint with a staple length of 34. Micronaire was 4.7, solidly in the premium range.

• Delhi, Oklahoma

Under extreme drought conditions and without irrigation, LX 571 made a lint yield of 250 pounds per acre. The cotton graded 40, had a staple length of 30/32, a micronaire of 5.2. The gin turnout was 29.9 percent.

• Cooperton, Oklahoma

In this test on the Kenneth Boyd farm, Lankart LX 571 produced 346 pounds per acre of very good cotton. It graded 50 with a staple length of 33/32, micronaire of 5.0 and had a gin turnout of 28.6 percent.

If you raise dryland cotton in this area where drought is a threat, go with LX 571 this year. You can get Lankart LX 571 from your ginner.

New attempts to silence soviet dissidents feared

MOSCOW (AP) — The U.S. Embassy dismissed a Soviet allegation of spying as "a classical piece of disinformation" Saturday, but dissidents said they feared it signaled a further attempt to silence them.

In a major article Friday the government newspaper Izvestia said some members of the embassy staff were involved in a spy ring with Soviet dissidents who passed them secret military and scientific information.

An embassy spokesman said the article was "interlarded with slander and innuendo and as such we find it unworthy of any further comment at this time."

But the dissidents, especially Jews on whom the attack focused, expressed concern. A statement signed by seven of them said they feared new anti-Semitic repressions, and one of the Jews, Vladimir Slepak, added, "We think there will be arrests."

Anatoly Shcharansky denied charges that he passed defense industry information to foreigners and said he believed a "special harassment campaign" was under way, involving searches and psychological pressure.

Shcharansky, a Jew who has been refused permission to emigrate, said he is followed by a group of plainclothes security men wherever he goes.

On the day the Izvestia article appeared, searches were conducted at the homes of five Jews — Alexander Lerner, Ida Nudel, Dina Belen, Mikhail Kremen and Boris Chernobylsky, Slepak said.

Dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov, physicist and Nobel Peace Prize winner, noted that the Izvestia accusations came on the eve of the 24th anniversary of Josef Stalin's death. He said the article was "disgusting and provocative" and recalled the dictator's methods.

Forgiving, healing helps

Mandy was telling Helen how she and Jason and she had visited her father and mother during the long weekend. "I still can't believe it," exclaimed Mandy. "We talked. For the first time in my life I felt that mother and I were communicating. Why! I even told her of some of my gripes. The long time ones! Funny! — she listened. Then she said that she was trying to understand. I can't believe it! I actually began to like her!"

"Sure makes me feel better!" interjected Jason. "I'm glad," Helen responded with a grateful smile. "Mandy, Jason, what do you think happened this weekend?"

"I don't know," Mandy responded. Then she looked impish again. "The Bastille fell and I didn't attack it. I didn't even push. I — I yielded. Helen, help us understand what happened."

"How do you feel, Mandy, now toward your mother?"

"Well! Warm, giving," Mandy responded.

"Let's change it, Mandy. How about 'forgiving'?" Helen persisted. She bent forward with the intensity that Mandy and Jason had grown used to, during their long weeks with her. "Do you understand? A miracle is taking place. Mandy, you are doing what every child has to do to be fulfilled. You are forgiving your parents. I really believe that no parent ever tries to harm his child. But parents — all parents — have their limitations. Confined by their limitations, they hurt us. We become puzzled, angry, may even lash out at them. Then a day — maybe even a moment — comes when — somehow — we gain an understanding. Then we begin to forgive."

"And forgiveness starts a process, a right?" Jason interrupted. "Yes, Jason," Helen responded, "a long, beautiful process. Reconciliation. And reconciliation means healing. We have fifty per cent responsibility for any relationship we are in with another person. Jason, how about those odds? We can use that fifty-per cent. That's what happened last week, Mandy. You used your fifty per cent to begin forgiving your mother.

"How does that affect us, Helen?" Mandy queried. "I mean Jason and me?"

"The process has started," Helen quietly explained. "We have the sense of forgiveness, reconciliation. The beginning of healing. Jason's going to feel differently toward his father when you visit his parents at Easter. Beginning to understand what you do about where each is coming from, you're going to start forgiving each other."

Jason's knees moved noticeably and, uncharacteristically, he took the initiative. "Now I know at last. Forgiveness. Reconciliation. Healing. Our marriage is getting better. Helen, I love you!"

CARGO SCHOONER TAKING SHAPE — Ned Ackerman stands in front of the 97-foot schooner he's building in Thomaston, Maine. The two-masted vessel will have a 23-foot-beam and will be used as a cargo carrier in Atlantic waters. Ackerman hopes to have the schooner completed late this year.

Beware fish house punch

By JULES LOH

THOMASTON, Maine — Fish house punch is like the rocky coast of Maine: enticing. But, beware.

One evening in the warm glow of fish house punch, Ned Ackerman had an idea. Why not build a big boat, a coasting schooner, a cargo vessel out of the last century? Why not build it of wood, as in the old days, go into business and revive the age of sail?

That is just what Ned Ackerman determined to do.

His schooner is taking shape at a fine old Maine boatyard, itself an anachronism, and the shape it is taking is awesome. Heavy wooden ribs resemble the upturned carcass of a great sea creature.

"If I didn't think I could make a living with it I wouldn't have dared start," Ackerman said. "But I didn't go out and make an economic survey. The boat is its own reason for being."

"Still, its capacity will be just under 100 tons. I can carry what five semi-trailer trucks can carry."

"There is white pine to be hauled from New England to the Carolinas, yellow pine and cypress to be shipped back, oyster shells to be hauled from the Chesapeake, granite to go wherever anyone wants to build a breakwater. The possibilities grow."

Who knows, in these days of semiprecious fuel Ned Ackerman might be onto something. "I think if I make even a halfway go at it," he said, "there's going to be a stampede right behind me."

The boat will be 97 feet long, 23 feet four inches across the beam. Its two masts will rise 90 feet from the deck. Its sails, honest canvas, will be fore-and-aft, as a schooner's should, "but if the Caribbean hardwood trade looks good," said the skipper, "I have some square sails in mind, to run with the tradewinds."

This mighty schooner's name will be the "John F. Leavitt."

John Leavitt, before his death, was Ned Ackerman's inspiration, friend, consultant, and partner in fish house punch.

Ned Ackerman is a studious 34-year-old romantic with master's degrees in Old English, Middle English and Anglo-Norman French, hardly the sort whose ambition would be to haul cargo on the Atlantic coast in a wooden sailing boat.

Seven years ago his ambition was to get a doctorate. He was hard at it, nose buried in musty tomes, when he came upon a book by John F. Leavitt: "Wake of the Coasting Schooners."

Leavitt, curator of the seaport museum of Mystic, Conn., made the point that a cargo schooner could turn a profit today if it weren't plagued by repairs.

"I read the book through three times without coming up for air," Ackerman said. "I was taken by a sketch of a schooner, on page 140, and thought I might build a scale model of it just for something to do with my hands while I was immersed in all that academic work. I wrote to John, he wrote back. We met and became friends."

Ackerman decided to build a model of a pilot schooner, then, perhaps when he retired, build the real thing. He was teaching school. School teaching was dull. What the hell, why not build the real thing now?

The result was a lovely 47-foot wooden boat, "Fiddler's Green," named for that final heavenly reward of vagabonds.

It was built at Leroy Wallace's boatyard here on the St. George River. Such an appealing boatyard it is. An old frame building, listing a few degrees to starboard, is warmed by a wood stove, perfumed by oakum and sawn pine, and hallowed by the aura of craftsmanship.

Wallace is a master boat builder. As an apprentice he helped build the last of the tall ships and at 77 he still shows up daily for work. His terracotta hands and ancient tools shape curves surely, fit joints precisely, not a millimeter off, skills he has passed to his son and his son's sons, who work at his side, perpetuating a noble art.

"I wanted to help too," Ackerman said. "At first they let me sweep up shavings. Gradually, as I learned, they let me do more."

Ned Ackerman forsook his doctorate and sailed his schooner.

It was three years ago, in the spring, that he and Leavitt and a few other old salts were discussing, over fish house punch, Leavitt's thesis: that a coasting schooner could pay off.

"By the time we finished dipping into the punch bowl," Ackerman said, "The 'John F. Leavitt' was born, or at least conceived."

He sold "Fiddler's Green," with an ache in his heart, and has since parted with other cherished valuables to finance his dream. He calculates the "Leavitt" will cost about $300,000. If all goes well, it could be launched by autumn.

And after this, Ned Ackerman, what next?

"A three-master," he said without pause, "about 115 feet over the rails..."

Astronomers turn 'scopes on earth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomers who normally look billions of miles into space have turned their radio telescope back to earth and discovered a simple new way to monitor atmospheric chemicals and pollutants. To find out what chemicals are floating in the distant recesses of our galaxy, scientists tune in to the natural radio signals generated by certain molecules.

Astronomers at Harvard College Observatory and the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., found that the same principle also works closer to home.

The National Science Foundation said Saturday that the radio telescope at Haystack Observatory in Westford, Mass., so far has detected and measured water vapor, ozone and carbon monoxide in the upper levels of the atmosphere.

The foundation said the importance of the development is that it opens the way for relatively inexpensive, ground-based monitoring of atmospheric areas far above the level of conventional weather balloons.

The first tests probed the mesosphere, an area 30 to 50 miles high normally accessible only to expensive devices such as rockets or special balloons.

Harrison E. Radford, an astronomer on the project, said in an interview that the key to the technique is the supersensitive microwave receivers recently developed, making detection possible where previous efforts had failed.

"We used the radiotelescope because it had a good microwave receiver on it, but actually you don't need the rest of the telescope at all," Radford continued. "A good receiver with a rudimentary antenna probably could do about as well."

Radford said molecules like water vapor send out natural radio waves at distinct frequencies. Measuring frequency variations also can tell scientists the approximate altitude of molecular concentrations.

"If you know the frequency of the molecule, you can tune your receiver to pick up the molecule broadcast," Radford said.

The National Science Foundation financed the project primarily to see if it could monitor ozone, a form of oxygen in the high atmosphere that shields the earth from high-energy solar radiation.

Ozone concentrations constantly change and vary widely around the earth. It therefore is difficult to tell if pollutants are damaging the protective layer, as some scientists believe.

Radford said there now is good evidence that sensitive microwave receivers can do this difficult monitoring job with less effort and cost than conventional means.

Suspects nabbed after paintings disappeared

DUNCANVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Three men have been arrested in connection with the disappearance of paintings their Mexican owner claims were worth about $1.5 million. The paintings disappeared two weeks ago from the residence of Ben D. McLemore, who had received them from Juan Abusaid of Torreon, Mex., and had them on display at his home while waiting to send them to an art gallery in New York.

The paintings, which the owner claims included works by Picasso, El Greco, Henri Matisse and Dario De Regoyos, were not insured.

A police investigator, Lt. Bob Moore, said the authenticity of the paintings has not been established definitely.

"It is not like looking at an old car," the investigator said noting that several art critics who looked at four paintings left behind by the thieves did not agree on whether the paintings were authentic.

"We think we have the case solved, but we have not recovered the paintings," he added. "We are still checking a few leads. Hopefully, the paintings are still in the state."

Abusaid sent photographs of the missing paintings and notarized statements about their authenticity to Duncanville police.

McLemore declined to discuss the theft.

He told police that four men entered his home on Feb. 15, bound and gagged his 12-year-old daughter and made off with the paintings.

County fire trucks planned for discussion

Fire trucks in general and a fire station at Luther will be among the items discussed when the Howard County Commissioners meet in formal session at 9 a.m., Monday in the courthouse.

Approval of the employment of a Howard County deputy sheriff will also be asked and the court will consider off-duty time for the county jailer and his wife.

At 10 a.m., the court will start a conference with Leon Anderson, manager of the Howard County Airport.

The court session resumes at 1:30 p.m.

Brief agenda

STANTON — A brief agenda awaits city councilmen when they meet in the council chamber at City Hall here at 7:30 p.m., Monday.

Only item of business will be a discussion of the closing part of right-of-way in the 100 block of Beckham Avenue.

Vehicle registrations fall behind

Have you picked up your 1977 motor vehicle registration sticker yet? If not, be prepared to push the panic button.

That's exactly what members of the Tax Assessor-Collectors Association of Texas are about to do.

R.W. Townsley, director of the Motor Vehicle Division of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Austin, said Saturday that county tax officials "literally were ready to crawl the walls" when the organization's board of directors met in Corpus Christi recently.

"Very few motorists have registered their vehicles — just like last year," Townsley said. "Tax offices are staffed to handle the anticipated rush to get stickers early, and they've simply got nothing to do."

Despite the easily handled stickers, which were initiated in 1976, and computer-prepared registration applications — which eliminate most of the delay formerly involved in typing registrations — motorists simply aren't remembering last year's frustrating "last minute lines."

"Tax collectors are waiting for the 'big crunch,'" Townsley said. "Motorists will have no one but themselves to blame if they wait until the deadline April 1 to get their registrations. Every county in the state is running way behind schedule."

Many motorists could have registered by mail, but mail registrations ended Feb. 28.

Meantime, those motorists who don't want to take time off from work to wait in line for as much as several hours had better take a few minutes to register their vehicles today.

It would be rough to be one of some 10 million motorists trying to register their vehicles in the last few days of the month.

Bergland reviewing milk support payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland isn't saying right now whether he will accept or reject the advice of the government's inflation fighting agency and reduce federal milk price supports for dairy farmers.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability said Friday that maintaining the milk support price at 80 percent of parity where it was set last fall will cost the government $5 million in surplus purchases and consumers $328 million extra at stores, about two cents a gallon.

The government price floor under milk currently is $8.26 per 100 pounds where it was set last Oct. 1, up from $8.13 per 100 pounds. It is subject to another quarterly change on April 1.

Tom Sand, an aide to Bergland, said that the milk price support situation is being reviewed and that Bergland still has the rest of the month to decide.

"He is required by law to set the price at a level that insures an adequate supply of milk without encouraging excess production, and that is what he's going by," Sand said.

Under law, the milk price support must be set at a level representing 75 to 90 percent of parity, a formula linked to farm costs and designed theoretically to give producers the same buying power they had in 1910-1914.

Because current costs have risen, the current support of $8.26 is expected to be only about 77 percent of parity on April 1. That means it will have to be raised if Bergland decides to maintain the 80 percent level.

The council suggested actually lowering it to 75 percent of parity, about $8.07 per 100 pounds, to help minimize consumer costs and the inflationary impact of the support program.

In a report Friday the Agriculture Department's Outlook and Situation Board said that wholesale prices of milk, butter and other dairy products probably will be "fairly stable" in the first half of 1977. However, the report cautioned that "any major adjustment probably would be in response to a change in support prices."

Questions answered

AUSTIN — Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced that a representative from his Odessa Field Office will be in Big Spring Wednesday, March 16, to answer questions from taxpayers and provide assistance in filing tax returns.

Bullock said Enforcement officer Tom McCright and David Samuelson will be at the Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector's Office from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

"I hope local merchants will take this opportunity to get any questions they have about the sales or franchise taxes answered," said Bullock. "A little straight information can save us both headaches."

The Odessa Field Office, headed by Sherman Carrell, serves Andrews, Martin, Howard, Loving, Winkler, Ector, Midland, Glasscock, Reeves, Ward, Crane, Upton, Pecos, Jeff Davis, Terrell, Presidio, and Brewster Counties.

Coffee escalates grocery bill

AUSTIN — Grocery prices on the 20 food items in the Texas Department of Agriculture's statewide Market Basket Survey increased 19 cents in February, up $1.24 from six months ago, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White announced today.

The average food total of the 12 major cities for February was $19.46. San Antonio is still holding the position as the city with the lowest food prices in the TDA survey, with McAllen having the highest total.

White urged consumers to shop around for good quality at the lowest cost. "They especially should be looking for Texas-produced commodities. I don't like to be provincial, but one hand does still wash the other."

No significant increases were reported except for coffee, up 16 cents from January," White said. The average price per pound in Texas was $3.08 in February.

MAGHERA, Northern Ireland (AP) — Brian Faulkner, former premier of Northern Ireland, was buried Saturday near the rolling Ulster farmland over which he loved to hunt foxes.

Dr. Samuel Johnson, the noted lexicographer and author of 18th Century England, once wrote:

"To be of no church is dangerous. Religion, of which the rewards are distant and which is animated only by faith and hope, will glide by degrees out of the mind unless it is invigorated and re-impressed by external ordinances, by stated calls of worship and the salutary influence of example."

I daresay the newspaper industry as a whole has harbored more than its share of offbeat characters. Present company excepted, your family chronicle has had its quota.

There was, for instance, the desk man who seemed rational enough until he broke out the schnapps after hours, which was every afternoon. He would then take on a new identity. Invariably he would adopt the name of an eminent pulp story writer of the day. So fortified, he would summon other members of the staff to his hotel room (which happened to be in the old Crawford Hotel) and dazzle them with fabulous offers which, he insisted, originated with publications of national repute. He was merely on the scene, he confessed, to assay the talents of the person he was interviewing.

He practiced that deception long after he split the local scene. As it turned out, he conned a national trade magazine into running his picture. The publication identified him as the man of letters whose name he occasionally borrowed. He ultimately exited from this vale of tears and I've often wondered under which sobriquet the Gates of Heaven accepted him.

Then there was the Wyoming-frontier type whose beat was in agriculture but who at heart was Wyatt Earp walking down the street to the OK Corral.

An intense little individual who maintained a native suspicion of high rollers, especially if they posed as do-gooders, this worthy kept a loaded revolver in his desk which, for show or as an equalizer, he occasionally oiled in the presence of the other news types. Once, he got word that a perennial troublemaker had somehow skipped jail here. He reasoned the least he could do was lend the local centurians a hand. Ultimately, he strolled through the lobby of the Settles Hotel, carrying a shotgun at the ready, unnerving the lobby regulars who thought the Martians had landed.

There was also a unique character who had difficulty finding even the letters "w-e-r-t-y" on the old Underwood. He received a trout, mainly because he agreed to work for next to nothing. Turned out he was on the lam and the things he tried in his brief stay here were enough to send the bunco squad straight to the aspirin bottle.

On one occasion, he laboriously typed an entire page of Time Magazine and offered it to his superiors as fresh material.

The editor, of course, instantly recognized the plagiarism for what it was. Undaunted, the artful dodger said it was merely a ploy to see if management was on its toes. He finally zigged when he should have zagged and some district attorney insisted that he start dressing in numbers again for a while.

One of the editorial types, bless his soul, was rational until he started sampling the purple grape. After that, proper decorum went out the window. He would sometimes shake his clothing, take his cherished firesticks to his rooftop and there try to shoot out every street light in the neighborhood. Occasionally, to vary his act, he might drill a front door, apparently pretending it was a moving buffalo. He had very redeeming qualities but he also had a family hangup which won't be detailed here, other than that his shrink said his problems emanated from the fact that he harbored consuming resentment toward his mother. Where ever he is, I hope he has made peace with himself. He is too nice a guy to go down the drain.

One of our more able operatives was a deaf mute. One day his landlady called to complain he was behaving in a most unusual manner. It seems the man had dialed someone to the blower and was using a combination of grunts and sign language to get his message across.

I'm sure other industries have types, shall we say, who aren't wired right. If they proliferate as they do in the news-gathering game, then I'm afraid we all have a problem. Or has it become chic, in these parlous times, to play with a short deck?

In his compelling novel, The Web and the Rock, visited upon literary circles in the 1930s, Thomas Wolfe wrote:

"The young men of this land are not, as they are often called, a 'lost' race — they are a race that never yet has been discovered. And the whole secret, power and juice. Seasonal rises in poultry product prices are usual during the winter months.

knowledge of their own discovery is locked within them — they know it, feel it, have the whole thing in them — and they cannot utter it."

It has always been thus.

The names of the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Al Stephens (he recently died) are Stephen, Stephen, Stephen. Each begins with the letters K and L.

Shortly before the first was born, the Stephens chanced to read a news item wherein a young girl named Karla Lynn had been killed. The Stephens liked the names and so christened their first born.

Spike Dykes, the former Big Spring and Coahoma football coach who more recently has been on the University of Texas staff, was seriously injured for the head coaching job at West Texas State in Canyon. He'll likely surface again as a high school coach.

Bobby Murcer was so intent on signing with the New York Yankees years ago he agreed to a $10,000 bonus, half of what the Los Angeles Dodgers offered. What he didn't know was that Ralph Houk and Tom Greenwade of the Yankees were told they could go as high as $50,000 for him, in fact, could keep what was left if he agreed to anything less. When Murcer was piped aboard, Houk and Greenwade each bought a boat with the $20,000 residual he received.

Abigail van Buren (Dear Abby) acknowledged Big Spring JC Steve Poitvint's invitation to attend the April 1-3 Big Spring Rattlesnake Roundup but said she is already booked on those dates.

Abby also wrote that Poitvint's views that such roundups were humanitarian ventures were paralled with her's.

Are your child's eyes crying for help?

We don't need to tell you how important your child's eyes are. But maybe you don't know just how hard they work. Your child's eyes will bring her over 80% of all she learns in life. They will control about 80% of all her actions. And they will use up to 25% of all her energy every day.

That's the big order your child's eyes have been given. And sometimes they need a little help. That's why TSO recommends regular professional eye examinations.

Nine Iranian pilots get wings

Nine pilots from Iran received their wings Tuesday evening at graduation ceremonies for Security Assistance Program Training (SAPT) Class 77-04.

Air Cadet Gholamhossein B. Hosseinpour garnered the Air Training Command Commander's Trophy and the Outstanding Graduate award. He had to return to his homeland early, so his award was accepted by Maj. Mehdi Arbabi, military liaison officer.

Others receiving awards were Air Cadets Mohammad Reza Khaleghi, Academic; and Ebrahim Poudan, Flying Training.

Guest speaker at the ceremony was Col. H.W. Miller, commander of the 14th Flying Training Wing, Columbus AFB, Miss., who was the former deputy commander for operations here.

Class 77-04 entered training at Webb in June 1976 under the Foreign Military Sales Program. The class leader has been 2nd Lt. Hoftollah Sharifnia. Other graduates were: Air Cadets, Morteza Ahmari

Tidwell returns from exercise

Navy Operation Specialist Seaman Apprentice Charles C. Tidwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tidwell of Route 1, Box 196, Big Spring, recently returned from a short deployment off the coasts of Florida and North Carolina.

He is serving as a crewmember aboard the amphibious command ship USS Mount Whitney, homeported in Norfolk, Va. The Mount Whitney is the flagship of the Commander of Amphibious Group Two.

The two-week exercise was part of the Navy's Shipboard Electro-magnetic Compatibility Improvement Program (SEMCIIP). Navy ships undergo SEMCIIP to eliminate internal electromagnetic interference that results from simultaneous operations of shipboard radar, television and communications equipment.

He and his fellow crewmembers visited Mayport, Fla., for a weekend port call during this testing period. He joined the Navy in October 1975.

Price assigned to Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany — Captain Randall W. Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.W. Price of 35 Rio Grande, Brownsville, has deployed with his Little Rock AFB, Ark., unit for temporary duty at Rhein-Main AB, Germany.

Captain Price is a co-pilot with the 314th Tactical Airlift Wing, a component of the Military Airlift Command.

Personnel of the 314th, operating C-130 Hercules transports, are providing airlift for U.S. armed forces, resupplying U.S. embassies, and supporting NATO exercises in the European theater.

The captain, a 1966 graduate of Brownsville High School, received a B.A. degree in 1971 from Texas Agricultural and Industrial University and was commissioned in 1972 through Officer Training School, Lackland AFB.

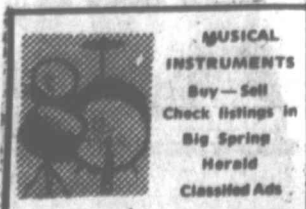

His wife, Tanya, is the daughter of Alfred Tidwell of Big Spring.

Snyder man in Germany

LANDSTUHL, Germany — U.S. Air Force Lieutenant Colonel Don Downing, whose father is Delbert Downing of 2305 30th St., Snyder, has arrived for duty at Ramstein AB, Germany.

Colonel Downing, a protestant chaplain with a unit of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe, previously served at Whiteman AFB, Mo.

The colonel is a 1949 graduate of Midland High School. He earned his B.A. degree in 1953 at Texas Christian University, Ft. Worth. In 1956 he earned his B.D. degree at Brite Divinity School, Ft. Worth. His wife, Louise, is the daughter of Mrs. H.E. Ellis of 3128 Stanley St., Ft. Worth.

For the second consecutive year the 78th Flying Training Wing at Webb AFB received an Achievement Citation for ground accident prevention from Headquarters Air Training Command (ATC).

Owens ends recruit course

Navy Seaman Recruit Roger D. Owens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Owens of P.O. Box 795, Stanton, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupation fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid. He joined the Navy in November 1976.

The wing exceeded its Programmed Reduction Objective (PRO) by 29 per cent during calendar year 1976. The base recorded a reduction in all ground accidents for the year as compared to the accumulated average rate

Show may be best yet

Bring on the "dancing bear" — its talent show time at Webb AFB.

At least 10 acts will try to qualify for the Air Training Command contest later this month by scoring enough points to win at Webb Tuesday night. One of the contest officials said that this year's show should be the best yet. "We will have a variety of acts and should have at least a full hour of entertainment," she said.

The 8 p.m. show features Sgt. Beatrice Shingleton, Amn. Diana Wedderspoon, Sgt. Douglas Stanislaus, Sgt. Joseph Ostrenga and A1C Robert Gordas as vocalists. A1C Stanley Clark will perform his magic act and Sgt. Gussie Foreman and AB Lee Williams will do a "Soul Train" modern dance number. Master of ceremonies for the night will be MSgt. Peter Holden.

There is still room for more acts. However, deadline for entering the contest is 1 p.m. today.

A local band will be at the Recreation Center at 1 p.m. to back up acts during Sunday's rehearsals. The band will also play during the Tuesday show.

The talent show will be free to the public.

from the three previous years.

ATC Commander Lt. Gen. John W. Roberts said, "I extend my personal congratulations to you and all members of your organization for this excellent record."

"During these times of budget and manpower limitations," the general continued, "accident prevention has never contributed more directly to mission accomplishment. The people of the 78 Flying Training Wing are to be commended for their accident prevention efforts in 1976."

Those planning to attend the annual awards banquet Monday were told to contact MSgt. Curtis Cross, 263-6755; or Eddie Elmador, 263-2110.

Next meeting of the NCOA is scheduled March 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the NCO Club ballroom. NCOs wishing to find out what the association can do for them or what they can do for it are invited to attend a meeting.

Industrial heritage exhibit in Odessa

DEARBORN, Mich. — After two-and-a-half years of successful showings in 78 metropolitan areas, the popular traveling exhibit "Industrial Heritage U.S.A." will again be bringing interesting insights to people from Alabama to Washington state. Developed by Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum in cooperation with 21 outstanding industrial organizations, the exhibit will visit 32 more cities in 21 states during 1977.

The exhibit will be set up in Winwood Mall, Odessa, March 8 through March 12.

"Industrial Heritage U.S.A." illustrates the dramatic changes in American life that have resulted from the ingenious inventions in industry, commerce and agriculture in the 200 years since our nation's birth. Literally hundreds of artifacts have been selected from the collections of the Village and Museum for the exhibits which trace America's industrial progress by contrasting the products of the past with those of today. Individual showcases center on the evolution of such diverse areas as floor covering, feminine fashions, soft drinks, photography, farm equipment, soap and air transportation.

The exhibit, an official American Revolution Bicentennial Administration program, opened to the public for the first time at Henry Ford Museum on July 4, 1974. Since then, the unique display has brought acclaim to the Village and Museum from congressmen, state governors and legislators, city officials and educators at every level.

The exhibit's popularity has prompted this extension of its nationwide tour, originally intended to close at the end of 1976. The displays will be set up for five days in each location.

returning to Henry Ford Museum in November and December of 1977.

"Industrial Heritage U.S.A." is a logical extension of the educational purpose of the Village and Museum and broadens that function by reaching beyond the physical boundaries of the Museum complex itself.

Cabinet gets letter

ATLANTA (AP) — Members of President Carter's Cabinet got handwritten letters from Carter urging them to continue to recruit minorities and women for government positions. U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young says.

The notes to Cabinet members said, among other things, "How are you doing in minority recruitment and employment? I made a promise to the American people."

STATE CERTIFIED

THE EARLY BIRD

This relatively early Lockett variety is getting more and more recognition as a fine, early cotton for this area.

Its early maturity (slightly earlier than Paymaster 18) along with being a highly determinate variety, allows it to set bolls early, then "cut-out," resulting in the production of more mature bolls with higher lint quality. It is well adapted to narrow-row as well as conventional planting because it matures early and the close-fruited plant holds the low bolls off the ground. Lockett 4789-A normally produces a good yield of quality fiber with staple length of an inch or more. It is recommended for both dry and irrigated land. However, under irrigation it should be grown only on wilt-free soils.

To be sure you're planting the real thing, buy only certified seed from a Pioneer Seed Dealer. Reserve your supply of Lockett 4789-A planting seed now.

Stock market shakes off snow

NEW YORK (AP) — With a sluggish shiver, the stock market "shook the snow from its shoes" and put the bad winter behind it this week.

"My impression is that we have seen the worst in the market for a while," observed Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co.

The widely recognized Dow Jones industrial index — an average of 30 Blue Chip stocks — turned in its best weekly gain of the year, up 20.03 points from the previous week's 6.81-point setback, and closed at 953.46.

"The market had to digest a lot of adverse economic statistics, most impacted by the weather, and it has absorbed the news well," Zinder said.

During the week, the government reported the index of leading economic indicators, designed to gauge future economic trends, was down 1.2 per cent during January, supposedly foreshadowing a bad month ahead.

And unemployment for February was 7.5 per cent, up from 7.3 per cent the previous month.

There also was a report that January factory orders slipped by 2.1 per cent and shipments declined 1.3 per cent.

Despite it all, stock prices bounced several times and wound up higher.

A rally got started late Monday, carried through Tuesday, fizzled somewhat Wednesday and then picked up again at the end of the week.

"You are still in the midst of a technical rally, unaccompanied by substantial volume," cautioned Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp.

"But the cold snap is over and the near-term outlook is improving."

On Monday, the market managed a small gain, but it was in the slowest trading in three months.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones average hit its high for the year, up 8.31 points. The Dow lost ground in only one session, Wednesday, when the rally lost its steam.

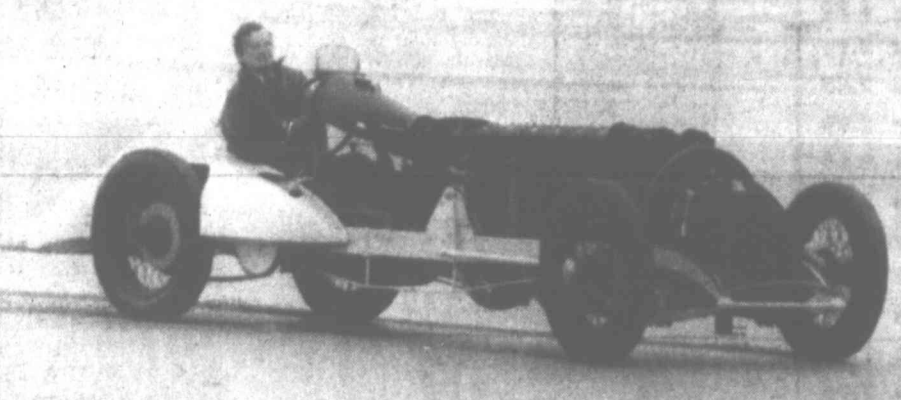

"A rally that fails usually goes lower than a previous decline," one analyst noted.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 1.72 to 101.20, and the NYSE's composite index of all listed common stocks gained .89 at 54.98.

Big Board volume averaged 18.04 million shares a day, too light, analysts felt, to support a sustained rally.

Yet brokers said there was a firm undertone, an indication the market was headed up for a while.

Grace shows Patterson new chairman of First Federal board

NEW YORK — W.R. Grace & Co., the international chemical company, has announced final audited 1976 results. The company announced preliminary results Jan. 20. During the year 1976 Grace had important gains in three major lines of business — specialty chemicals, natural resources and consumer products — which were largely offset, however, by a cyclical decline in agricultural chemicals.

Sales and operating revenues for 1976 amounted to $3,615,153,000, a slight increase from $3,589,870,000 in 1975. The 1975 figure, however, included sales of $253,000,000 from divested consumer businesses. Reporting the second highest earnings year in Grace's 122-year history, the company recorded net income in 1976 of $131,882,000 against $169,898,000, as restated, in 1975. Earnings per common and common equivalent share were $3.55 in 1976 compared with $5.15 in 1975.

The 1975 earnings figures were favorably affected by net gains on both the divestment of businesses and the translation of foreign currency according to Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 8 (FAS No. 8). Excluding these distortions, net income in 1976 was $133,100,000 against $137,100,000, in 1975, lower by $4,000,000 or 2.9 per cent.

Water demand fell 5 per cent

Cool weather in February reduced water demands and deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District fell by five per cent. This was one of the sharpest monthly declines in several years.

Total deliveries in February were 1,500,194,600 gallons, off 79,000,000 gallons from February last year, which had one more day than February 1977. Total for the first two months of this year was 2,586,990,322 gallons, down 1.96 per cent.

The municipal deliveries for February amounted to 735,811,000 gallons, down 7.75 per cent from last year, and the cities took only slightly less in January, or 764,383,600 gallons, from the 781,456,000 gallons in January 1976.

Oil and industrial users also showed less demand in February in taking 486,674,686 gallons, down 1.43 per cent from a year ago. For the first two months, the mining total was 1,086,695,722 gallons, or up 2.57 per cent over the initial two months of 1976.

Steers remain unbeaten

Knock off Ranger 6-2

By DANNY REAGAN

"These kids are starting to believe in themselves," said head baseball coach Tom Collins Saturday after his charges had just won their third game in as many outings.

Because of the cold weather, the Steers and the visiting Ranger Junior College JV team only played the first half of the double header Saturday. The locals won 6-2. The day before, the baseball Bovies only needed 4½ innings to stop the Ft. Stockton Panthers 16-4.

In the Ranger game, the second inning was all the Steers needed to assure their third win of the young season. In that stretch, Mike Harris, Clarence Palmer and Steve Evans were walked to load the bases.

Then Kyle Pfeiffer walked up to the plate to punch out one of his two hits of the day. That base hit scored Harris, and then Ranger hurled Howard walked Arthur Olague and Frankie Rubio to force in Palmer and Evans. Ricky Myers then slammed a double to right field to score Pfeiffer and Olague. That five-run bonanza, coupled with a score in the first inning was the game right there.

Collins' crew was never in serious trouble throughout the rest of the game, and only once, in the fifth inning, did the local nine slack up their intensity.

In that frame, an error on the Steer catcher, followed by two walks, and a failure of a pick-off play at second base resulted in one score. That run was quickly followed by another Ranger score on a wild pitch. But then the locals shored up their defenses and were never in trouble again.

"It was a pretty routine win," said Collins, "we turned in a good offensive job and hit well."

Collins complimented Frankie Rubio, the winning pitcher, on his fine job. The "Rube" had nine strike-outs before being relieved in the fifth inning by Charlie Vernon, who only gave up one hit and whiffed three batters for the save. Myers was also singled out for his fine offensive display.

Kyle Pfeiffer and Arthur Olague had two hits each, added to another hit for Myers to make up the six hit showing.

Collins also wanted to praise the large following of fans who braved the cold weather for Saturday's game. "Those people were super. They stayed with us throughout the entire game," Collins also thanked the "Home Run Hons" a corps of high school girls who form a rooting section for all home games.

Mike Harris was the winning pitcher in Friday's rout of Ft. Stockton. He pitched four innings, and only gave up two hits.

Ricky Myers started the fireworks for the Steers in that game with a three-run double in the first inning. But then Clarence Palmer provided the impetus for the Steers to break away in the third inning.

In that frame, the locals had fallen behind 4-3, the bases were loaded and there was only one out. Palmer caught a fly ball in centerfield and then cannon-balled it to home plate for the double play and got his team out of tight situation.

The Steers came back in the next inning and scored 13 runs. "Palmer really picked us up," said Collins, "and we like to emphasize the big play. The attitude of these kids is really developing."

The Steers had a total of seven hits in that game, and the contest was finally called after 4½ because of the 10-run rule.

"If no injuries pop up, and we can keep our present attitude," said Collins, "we should be ready by district."

This was the last home varsity game before District 5-4A action begins March 22. However, the Junior Varsity has a date with Midland Lee Tuesday in Steer Park.

PANTHER SCORE — Big Spring Steer pitcher Mike Harris, back to camera, arrives at home plate just a fraction of a second too late to prevent a Ft. Stockton score during Friday afternoon's 16-4 victory by the locals.

Harris was the winning pitcher in that game. Saturday, the Steers decided the Ranger Junior College JV's 6-2 to remain undefeated in the 1977 season.

Sands Mustangs nipped in Region semi-finals

LEVELLAND — The Sands Mustangs, winners of the District 9-B basketball title this year with a final season record of 35-4, were beat out in the semi-final round of the Region I-B basketball tournament here Saturday morning.

The Mustangs were decisively by Hedley 59-55, after beating Silverton 54-52 in the opening round to advance. Hedley, currently 34-4, met Jayton Saturday night for the right to travel to Austin for the State tourney.

Jayton, losers to Sands twice this year, nudged out Anton in the semi-final game 59-57 in a marathon triple-overtime contest.

Gary Webb led the Ponies with 17 points, and teammate Martin Nichols' 14 markers were the only other double figures for Sands in the defeat.

Sands had pulled to within three points on a couple of occasions in the last two minutes of play, but could never get closer. The loss snapped a 23-game winning streak for the Ackerly crew.

Daingerfield 3A champs

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gary Lewis and Sedrick Younger flipped in 22 points each and raked 24 rebounds to lead Daingerfield, the top-ranked team in class 3A, to a 72-68 victory over No. 2 Borger in the state schoolboy basketball finals Saturday.

Daingerfield won its first state basketball championship by refusing to crack under Borger's 56.4 shooting percentage.

Lewis, a 6-6 senior, hit a swisher from the left side, giving the North East Texans a 25-24 lead which they never lost although Borger slashed the margin to 55-52 at the end of three quarters.

KEEPING WARM — Beverly Wheeler, member of the Runnels girls track team, bundles up against the biting cold that accompanied Saturday's Optimist Relays in Memorial Stadium. Despite the below normal temperatures the meet was hailed as a success by the local Optimists, as almost 1,200 boys and girls from the West Texas area participated in the event. HOUSTON (AP) — Arkansas' seventh-ranked Razorbacks charged into the NCAA playoffs Saturday night behind the brilliant second-half shooting of Ron Brewer to capture the second annual Southwest Conference postseason basketball tournament with a 80-74 victory over the inspired Houston Cougars.

Brewer scored 29 points, including 19 in the second half as the Razorbacks overcame a 38-37 deficit at intermission.

Midland falls in Region V

ABILENE — The Midland College Chaparrals, coached by Delnor Poss, fell to the Western Texas Westerners here Saturday night 87-79 in the explosive finals of the Region V basketball tournament.

The much shorter Chaps out-rebounded the heightier Westerners, but Poss' crew could not overcome the 30-foot jump shots of All-American Lawrence Butler (40 total points), and the deadly free-throw shooting of 6-8 Daryl Smith (26 points).

Midland pulled to within four points late in the game, after trailing by 15 early in the last period, mainly on the outside shooting of top scorer Tommy Parks (18 points).

Western Texas now advances to the National Junior College tournament in Hutchinson, Kansas next week to do battle with the winner of Texas' region 14.

The game was won at the charity stripe, as the Westerners canned 25 of 33 from the line, while Midland could

The Chicano Golf Association is holding its first tournament of the season today, and because of cold weather, the action will begin at 1 p.m., instead of 10:30 a.m. at the Muny golf course.

All entries must be in by 12:30 p.m., and a CB radio will be given away to the golfer closest to the pin on the number 10 hole.

Steer cinderfems finish 5th place

LEVELLAND — The Big Spring High girls track team finished fifth in a field of 10 teams Saturday in a snow-swept track meet here that was highlighted by some good showings by the locals despite the white that covered the field.

In varsity action, Michelle Cox took third place in the discus with a throw of 92'2". Cathey Birdwell and Keran Schexnayder placed fifth and sixth in the shot put with throws of 33'11½" and 33'6½", respectively.

Lisa Missman took third in the high jump with a leap of 4'11", while teammate Becky Ragan finished sixth in the long jump with 14'7½". Ragan also finished fifth in the triple jump with a combined leap of 32'5".

Doris Mitchell finished fifth in the 100-yard dash with a time of 12.6, while Tere Deel took fourth in the 440 with a 65.9 time. Ragan finished second in the hurdles with a time of champion with a 16-0 record, will represent the conference at the Midwest pre-regional tournament at Norman, Okla., next Saturday with a 26-1 overall record.

The Razorbacks hit their first eight shots from the field and shot an incredible 68 per cent early in the game but the Cougars, now 26-7 for the season, refused to fold before the sellout throng of 15,282 in the Summit.

Houston overcame a 13-point deficit to grab the halftime edge.

The classy Brewer took over in the torrid second half that saw the lead change hands 10 times.

Brewer made Arkansas' first bucket of the second half after almost five minutes had elapsed. He then unreeled two more baskets and the Razorbacks stormed to a 71-60 lead and then went into their controlled offense.

Houston scored baskets off three steals, but field goals by Brewer at 24 and 44 put the Cougars away.

Sidney Moncreif scored 22 points and Marvin Delph netted 18 for the Razorbacks.

The tenacious Arkansas man-for-man defense took its toll on Houston's scoring machine, Otis Birdsong.

Birdsong, who has been averaging 30 points per game, hit only 21.

Charles Thompson was the top threat for Houston, which finished second in the regular-season SWC race, with 23 points.

Brewer was named the Most Valuable Player of the tournament.

Arkansas scored 11 unanswered points to jump to a 19-6 lead early in the game. The Razorbacks connected on 11 of their first 12 field goal attempts, but Houston clawed back into the game with a full court press that forced Arkansas into 10 turnovers.

However, Houston Coach Guy Lewis' strategy of trying to double team the man with the ball backfired in the second half. The acrobatic Brewer wormed his way free for jumpers and slam dunks as the Cougars got caught overplaying the man with the ball.

Arkansas also shined at the free throw line, where it had trouble in its last game of the year against Texas A&M.

Moncreif was particularly deadly from the charity stripe in the second half, connecting on seven of eight attempts.

Arkansas connected on 22 of 29 free throw attempts for the game.

Few surprises crop up in college playoff pic

By the Associated Press

Holy Cross, St. John's and Hofstra gained berths in the NCAA playoffs while Notre Dame and Marquette enhanced their chances for post-season play with significant victories Saturday.

Holy Cross earned an at-large berth in the Eastern Regionals with a 68-67 upset of Providence in the ECAC's New England Division playoffs at Hartford, Conn.

St. John's notched another of the NCAA's at-large berths in the East with an 83-73 decision over Seton Hall in the Metropolitan Division playoffs in New York.

Hofstra won an Eastern NCAA berth by whipping La Salle 92-81 in the finals of the East Coast Conference playoffs. The Flying Dutchmen joined five other league champions already in possession of NCAA berths—Michigan of the Big 10, VMI of the Southern Conference, UCLA of the Pac-8, San Francisco of the West Coast Athletic Conference and Kansas State of the Big 10.

Notre Dame, one of the nation's top independents, improved its chances for an at-large berth by stunning top-ranked and previously undefeated San Francisco 93-82 and breaking college basketball's longest winning streak at 29.

Marquette, meanwhile, took a 72-60 decision over Creighton, an independent power in the Midwest, and expected to get an invitation from the NCAA selection committee, which will announce teams for the at-large berths Sunday.

Meanwhile, Tennessee defeated Kentucky 81-79 Saturday and moved into a tie for the Southeastern Conference title with the Wildcats. Each has a game remaining Monday night and if the teams both win and finish the regular season in a tie, as expected, Tennessee will represent the SEC in the NCAA Midwest Regionals. Kentucky presumably would be given an at-large berth in that event.

Michigan, which clinched an NCAA berth earlier in the week, earned its first outright Big 10 championship by beating Purdue 84-79. The Minnesota Gophers, on probation this season because of NCAA violations, finished their season as the Big 10 runnerup with a 105-82 victory over Northwestern.

Utah defeated Brigham Young 67-54 and kept its hopes alive in the Western Athletic Conference.

John Gold breezes!

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — Gliding with the grace of a thoroughbred, Texas freshman Johnny Jones breezed to an uncontested victory in his college quarter mile debut Saturday night at the 45th annual Border Olympics.

A crowd of about 4,000 sat in cool, breezy weather, cheering the Montreal Olympian who coasted through the tape 10 yards ahead of second-place Geary Harris of Baylor.

Texas A&M held a commanding lead in the university division team race with 44 points after six events.

The Aggie discus men, paced by Tim Scott's winning toss, provided A&M with 16 points in that event alone, finishing first, fourth and fifth.

Baylor hurdler David Duncan was the first university division record setter Saturday night, speeding over the cinder track at Shirley field with a 13.8 clocking in the 120 hurdles. A&M's Shifton Baker finished second and was also timed in 13.8.

Leroy going, Tami is ALL-Region

Hawk assistant Leroy McClendon is packing his bags today, and will be on the road to Tulsa in the next couple of days to take on the duties of the head assistant coaching job at that major university.

When regular season starts, Leroy will be the top assistant or "bench" assistant for the highly-touted basketball school, but probably within the week, he'll be on the highways doing a little road recruiting. He's already spent hours in contact recruiting.

McClendon, 45, has been coaching for just about half of his entire life. He graduated from Concord High School in Mt. Enterprise, Tex. in 1948, and joined the Air Force in 1951.

In 1961, the 6-1, 210-pound airman took his first player-coaching job at McQuire AFB in New Jersey. He coached for five years there, spent a year in Vietnam where he also found a team to coach, and where, in his own words, his major responsibility was to "spend 12 months in Vietnam without getting killed."

He finished his head coaching career in the Air Force by leading the Webb AFB team in 1971-73. After leaving the Air Force he enrolled at HC, where he became close friends with Head Coach Harold Wilder, taking athletic courses under Wilder and coming to practices everyday. Wilder then offered Leroy the assistant coaching job and the roundball enthusiast took it.

McClendon received his AA from Howard College in 1974, and just gained his BA in P.E. from UTPB this year.

"I really owe two people for my success with basketball," said Leroy. "First of all, I want to thank Harold Wilder because he gave me the opportunity to coach while I was getting my degree. Otherwise, the other colleges wouldn't know I was around."

"Secondly, I guess I owe most of any success I've realized to my high school coach, Mr. D. Tamplin, whose philosophy I've tried to follow. He always said 'Winning comes through sacrifice, dedication, hard work and desire.'"

Leroy has recruited one All-American while at HC and helped coach another one. He beat out at least 30 other colleges in convincing Marvin Johnson to come to Big Spring, and he was also here during Taylor Williams' stint at HC.

In his 25 years of coaching, Leroy has a 75 per cent winning record, with 330 victories and 100 defeats.

TAMI AND THE CONFERENCE
Tami Edwards, the 5-10 freshman that has been a Wonder Woman for the Hawk Queens this season, was named to the first team All-Conference team in the WJAC women's bracket.

She led HC in scoring with 543 points for a 19.4 average, and has consistently been a top rebounder in the loop wars. She was the only player from HC to make the team, which was mainly dominated by the big bruisers from South Plains and Western Texas. Congratulations Tami!

Yanks to invade Cuba?

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees are awaiting Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's approval to play exhibition games in Cuba next month on an indirect invitation from Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

"We're ready and willing, but no club can go over there without the commissioner's approval," Yankee President Gabe Paul said Friday at the team's training camp here.

"He (Kuhn) has other ideas. He wants an all-star team to go, not individual clubs. Until he changes his mind we can't get clearance."

Finley says Kuhn exceeded authority

CHICAGO (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley, awaiting a ruling in his $3.5 million suit against baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, says in court papers that Kuhn exceeded his authority and broke with past practice in voiding the sale of three Oakland stars.

He claims Kuhn's action last June 18 "was capricious, discriminatory, directly contrary to historical precedent, baseball tradition and prior rulings and actions of the Commissioner of Baseball."

The statements are in Finley's proposed "Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law" filed with Judge Frank J. McGarr of U.S. District Court. Copies of Finley's findings and post-trial brief were obtained Friday night.

McGarr heard testimony on Finley's suit against Kuhn. The A's owner sued after Kuhn disapproved the sales June 15 of Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and Rolfe want to visit the island April 1-3.

Asked if the Yankees specifically requested Kuhn's permission, Paul said: "Let's put it this way—he has approached us."

In New York, Kuhn said: "Our interest in Cuba continues, but that's as far as we can go. I will not and cannot make any further statements at this time."

Castro's first offer to the Yankees was extended before Christmas through David LeFevre, a New York-based lawyer with contacts in Cuba. LeFevre said he has been in frequent contact about the matter with Cuban officials and Kuhn's office.

The Yankees already are scheduled to play exhibition games April 1-3 against the Baltimore Orioles, the University of North Carolina and the Detroit Tigers. Paul said any conflict could be ironed out if permission is granted for the trip to Cuba.

In other spring training camps: —The Philadelphia Phillies signed third baseman Mike Schmidt, the major league home run leader, to a six-year contract for around $10 million.

Irish knock off Dons

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Don Williams scored 25 points and ignited a second-half attack Saturday to spark Notre Dame to a 93-82 college basketball victory over top-ranked San Francisco, shattering the Dons' hopes for an undefeated season.

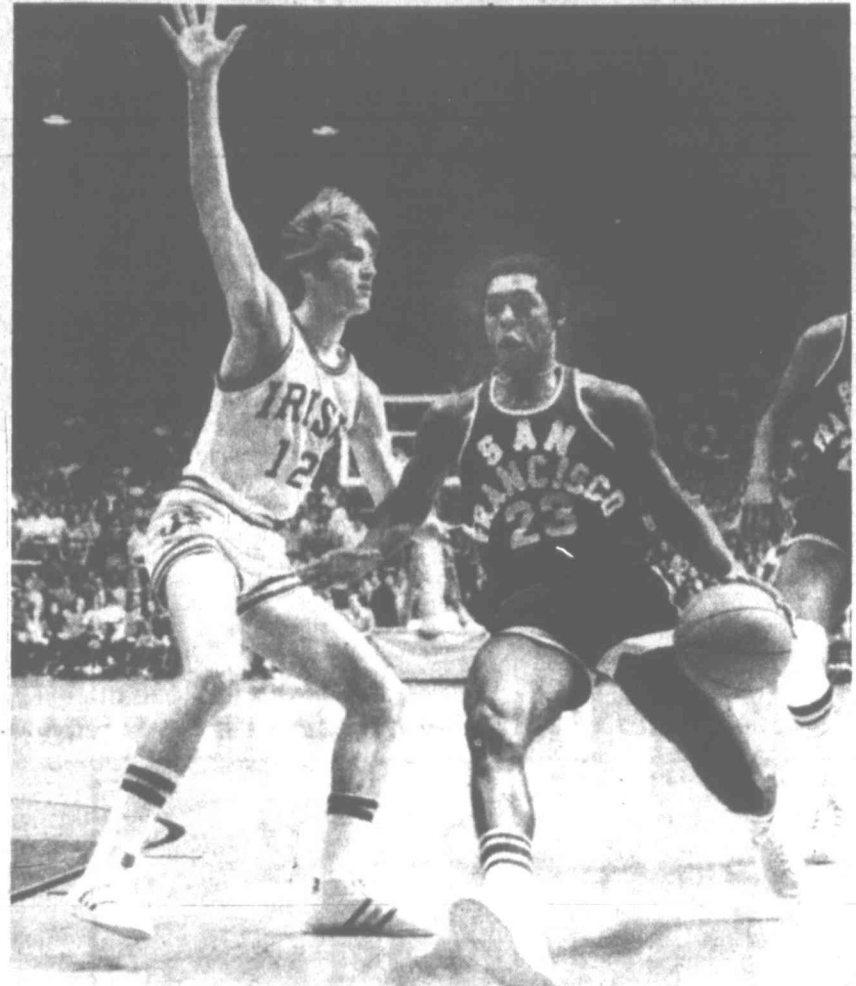

The Fighting Irish, performing before a vocal home crowd, led 44-42 at halftime and erupted to a 79-66 advantage on Rich Branning's two free throws with about four minutes to go.

Unranked Notre Dame enhanced its chances for a berth in the NCAA Basketball Tournament as it raised its record to 20-6 with one game left. San Francisco, which had been the only major unbeaten team, finished the regular season at 29-1.

The Dons took a 52-48 lead as Marion Redmond made four lay-ups early in the second half. Then Notre Dame launched the charge that led to the victory.

Toby Knight scored the next three Irish buckets to tie the game at 54-54 and Bruce Flowers connected from close in as the Irish went on top for good at 59-58.

Williams then pumped in 17 of the next 28 Irish points to shoot Notre Dame out to a commanding 87-74 lead.

NFL pact nears

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — With the courtroom hurdles apparently cleared, the collective bargaining agreement between the National Football League owners and the Players Association now awaits only ratification by the rank-and-file members of the union.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, said the union will send copies of the agreement to its members Monday, with ratification expected by March 17.

U.S. District Judge Earl R. Larson gave preliminary approval to the collective bargaining agreement Friday. "We're extremely pleased with the court's decision," said Garvey.

And Minneapolis attorney Ed Glennon, who served as cocounsel with Garvey during the NFLPA's three-year legal battle against NFL owners, added: "This should benefit the players association very much and make them a viable group. The players will be able to negotiate with dignity and strength in the future. It is a mutual thing and both sides gave."

Casey Wilder, the 6-4 shooting ace for the Big Spring Steer basketball squad this year, was named to the list of 5-4A All-District elite. Wilder sported the best scoring average in the league this year, with a 19.62 clip. The closest player to him was Billy Ray Ennis from Lee with a 18.78 average.

Wilder was a unanimous pick and probably ran Stan Strifler of Permian a close race for most valuable player.

The three-year letterman senior picked apart defenses with his pin-point outside shooting, and kept the locals close in the majority of their games this year.

Big Spring and San Angelo fans will no doubt remember him best for his antics in both Steer-Bobcat games this year. In the first meeting of the year, in Big Spring, Casey burned the cords for 32 points to lead his team to a 72-70 victory.

In the second meeting of the two teams, Casey scored 19 points, and in the last shot of his Steer career, with two seconds remaining in the game, he hit a 35-foot jump shot to push the locals past the hosts 57-55.

Casey's spot on the all-district roster marks the first time since 1973 that a male player from Big Spring has made all-district in any sport. That was the year John Thomas Smith made the football list.

It also marks the first time in six years that a Steer roundballer has been named All-district.

Elroy "Mr. Invisible"

Green, a 5-10 senior, and Kenneth Perry, a 6-4 senior, were named to the 11-member honorable mention team. "Mr. Invisible" gave the opposition fits this year with his fast hands and ball-handling wizardry. He was by far the most popular player with the fans.

Ken Perry was the big man underneath the basket for the Steers this year and was leading the team in rebounds when a leg injury sent him to the sidelines for the much of the latter part of the season.

The All-district team was named by the league coaches in a secret ballot, and no coach could vote for his own players.

Marc Case from district champ Abilene Cooper garnered Coach of the Year honors, and Danny Wright from Odessa High won the Sophomore of the year title. Strifler, again, was named the district MVP.

Koch pitches to Citrus lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Gary Koch capped off a seven-under-par 65 with a dramatic, 20-yard pitch that found the cup for a birdie on the final hole and gave him the third-round lead Saturday in the $200,000 Florida Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

The 24-year-old Koch ripped a joyful shout from the throats of the sun-baked gallery with his near-miraculous pitch over a yawning bunker, and raised both arms aloft in a victory salute before posting his 204 total, 12 under par for 54 holes on the hot, humid and heavily-wooded Rio Pinar Country Club course.

"A lucky-great shot," said Koch, a University of Florida product, who got in trouble on the hole after one of his fans yelled "Go Gators," as he stood over his approach shot to the green.

"It unnerved me," he said, and grinned. "But I'll take the hole as it is. I'll take my three and run."

Koch, who won the Tallahassee Open as a rookie last season, owned a two-stroke lead over Bill Rogers and veteran Ken Still, tied at 206. Still had a four-under-par 68 in the muggy heat and Rogers had a 69.

Second-round leader Bob Zender slipped to a 71 and was tied at 207, three strokes back, with Australian Graham Marsh and rookie Mike Reid, each of whom shot a third round 68.

South African Dale Hayes and Joe Inman were another stroke back at 208. Inman bogeyed the final hole for a 71 and Hayes had a 68.

Konny's Korner

Konny Service

Some time back, I wrote about the girls "A" basketball team in Robert Lee and their possibilities for state. Although these girls had a very successful year, they didn't quite make it to state. They did, however, make it to the regional tournament.

The girls ended their season in the semi-finals of Region. They played Cooper at Denton and were defeated by a score of 95-86. Although the girls lost this game, they left behind them a perfect district record of 12-0.

They also can remember their bi-district win over Goldwaite in which the score was in their favor 50-31. Although they were disappointed at region, they left the regional tournament knowing that they were among the eight top 10 Class A teams in the state of Texas. That was a big honor in itself.

During the season, the girls averaged 72 points per game. With their team effort, they captured three championship trophies in tournaments at Bronte, Robert Lee and Forsan.

Even though the girls were stopped short of state this year, there is always hope the next year they can reach their goal.

This is very likely, because all of the starters on this year's team will be returning for the 1977-78 season. Maybe then I can report from the state finals.

Mass participation makes Cuban baseball different

HAVANA (AP) — Despite 17 years of political estrangement, Cuba and the United States still have at least one thing in common: baseball is the national sport.

But that's where the similarity ends. The structure of Cuban baseball is as different from that of the United States as the country's political system.

For one thing, there are no professional teams in the Communist country. For another, admission to all sports events is free, limited only by capacity. Also, virtually any local team — from a school, village, factory or military unit — can aspire to become national champion.

That's because the entire baseball structure is set up as a pyramid, based on mass participation.

At the bottom of the pyramid are 6,000 local teams which take part in elimination rounds in the country's 169 municipalities.

Municipal championship winners move up to the next level, and the best players of the eliminated teams get a second chance as part of a municipal all-star team which also moves up to regional competition.

Raul Ruiz, who is an adviser to the president of the National Sports and Recreation Institute, says the two-team "promotion" system ensures that good players are not eliminated from competition.

Regional eliminations traditionally have led to a final round-robin with two teams from each of Cuba's six provinces — the provincial champion and an all-star team drawn from the ranks of the losers.

The national championship traditionally has been followed by yet another tournament — the 6-month, 54-game, 7-team all-star championship. This tourney features two all-star teams from Havana, which accounts for more than one-fifth of the nation's population, and one each from the remaining five provinces.

In future years, however, the pattern may be changed because of a national reorganization which has divided the country into 14 instead of six provinces.

Athletes taking part in national competition are given time off from their jobs or studies, but only after their teams have advanced to a stage which requires extensive travel and concentrated training.

"There are those who free athletes of all responsibilities," says Ruiz. "We don't do it, and we insist on a balance between the demands of athletics and one's study or work."

Because of the emphasis on athletics as only a part of one's life, Ruiz said he does not expect Cuba to provide athletes for the American major leagues even if Cuban-United States relations are normalized.

"Today's athletes are a young generation," he said in an interview, "brought up since the revolution, and I don't think they will ever flirt with the idea of professionalism."

Similar sentiments were expressed by Augusto Fonseca, a senior baseball coach at a junior high school specializing in sports.

"Even if we resume normal relations with the Americans," he said, "I don't think we'll ever again export players. Athletes aren't merchandise."

In years past, many Cubans came to the United States and made major league rosters. Among the better-known Cubans are Dolf Luque, Minnie Minoos, Tony Oliva, Mike Cuellar and Luis Tiant.

Fonseca was interviewed on a windswept beach at the exclusive Havana Yacht Club while he supervised the daily 3-hour practice of the 25 boys, ages 11 to 13, in his charge.

"We pick our candidates from throughout Havana Province," he said. "We look over about 2,000 boys each year, narrow them down to 250, and then pick the best 25."

The chosen 25 spend their mornings in regular junior high school studies, but devote their afternoons to intensive practice sessions.

The workouts include a kind of slalom-run around the palm trees at the yacht club, which Fonseca says prepares them to weave around opponents while base running.

The school is one of half a dozen similar institutions scattered throughout Cuba which train athletes in 22 sports. The cream of their graduates move up to Havana's Superior School for Athletic Improvement for the last three years of their high school training.

The schools are part of the structure being established in Cuba to train and nurture a new generation of athletes.

To be eligible for competition the boys must have passing grades in all academic subjects. Fonseca says his school's role is to educate its pupils "first as a person, then as a student, as a man, and as a revolutionary."

CBS wants piece of NCAA action

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, with all that money left over from its ill-fated pursuit of the Moscow Olympics, is thinking about new investments. And NCAA football looms large in its plans.

ABC has carried the NCAA regular-season football package exclusively since 1966, and they'll carry it again in 1977. But NCAA officials are already working on a television plan for the 1978-79 seasons and both CBS and NBC have shown interest.

"We know right now CBS would like a piece of the action and we have a hunch NBC would too," says Seaver Peters, athletic director at Dartmouth and chairman of the NCAA Television Committee. "Right now we're talking with everyone, getting ideas, weighing the merits of various suggestions."

"Eventually we'll outline a plan and make a recommendation."

CBS met with the NCAA last week in Kansas City and NBC will be getting its oar in at a meeting in Atlanta later this month. The Hughes Television Network, which is being represented by former Michigan All-American Tom Harmon, has also shown interest.

NBC is considered less of a factor because the network is already committed to baseball Saturday afternoons in September and part of October. But CBS is serious. The network may not be able to acquire the full package but they are very interested in part of it.

"CBS would like to see a split," says Peters. "They think the plan has merit. Maybe we would outline a plan where one network televises a minimum of four games at 'x' hour and the other does a national game at 'y' hour. But that's just theoretical."

The NCAA television plan will be submitted to a mail vote of the entire NCAA membership in early September. After that, the hard bargaining with the networks gets underway. There is some question as to how much negotiating the NCAA can do with the other networks before talking with ABC. ABC's contract calls for a 30-day exclusive negotiating period in which the two parties would try to work out a deal. If the NCAA is unhappy with ABC's offer, it would then turn elsewhere.

But, it was learned, CBS has already made a suggestion as to what the NCAA might realize from a split-network situation.

The NCAA gets $18 million per year from ABC under their current deal. CBS has suggested that a two-network situation, with games on both networks, might be worth $26-$28 million annually. That would depend, of course, on how many games the NCAA allows the two networks to televise.

The big problem, as far as the NCAA is concerned, is balancing the increased revenue for the bigger schools from a two-network situation against the potential problem of decreased attendance at games involving the smaller schools.

"That is essentially what our TV plan attempts to compromise," says Tom Hansen, assistant executive director. "It is a compromise and like all compromises, it is imperfect. The football ratings were up last season and that puts the NCAA in a strong bargaining position. Should the NCAA decide to go for a two-network split and should ABC decide half a loaf is better than none, the big question is: who gets which games? You can bet there will be some heavy negotiating on that subject."

Stay tuned.

YOUNG IDEAS

By DICK YOUNG

NEWS ITEM: STEVE GARVEY SIGNS FOR 6 YEARS
This one will prove it. It will come close as possible to answering the great American question: Can an athlete who signs a long-term contract be expected to break his butt for his team?

Of all the thousands of ballplayers I have known, I think maybe 10 or 12 could have been counted on to put out 100 per cent, whether their contract was for a year or five. Stan Musial was one. Pete Reiser was one. Jackie Robinson, Joe DiMaggio, Ed Stanky, Gil Hodges, Felix Millan. A few others.

Steve Garvey is like them, and he is more. He is the All-American boy. He plays hurt. He plays hard. He puts out, regardless of the score, regardless of the Dodgers' position in the standings, regardless of his salary.

Til now, he has been rewarded in his ensuing year for performance rendered. That has been professional baseball's policy in the reserve clause era. Now, with long-term contracts required for a team to tie up a player, a man is being paid for future performance, on anticipation, not on what he did the year before.

It is feared that few players have the character to live with that. Few men in any field have. Security breeds contentment. Contentment breeds torpor. A man with a five-year contract will lazy it through the first three or four seasons. He is assured of his money. Why get hurt? Why pull a leg muscle digging for first base? Why break a leg sliding into second? Why bust your head challenging a wall for a fly ball?

"A hungry, ballplayer is a hustling ballplayer." That was Branch Rickey's self-serving philosophy. Branch was inclined to overdo it in the hunger department. Now we have lived to see the other extreme, the fat-cat athlete. Now, even the batboy is signed to a three-year contract, lest he become a free agent.

Steve Garvey is the ultimate test. A lot of people will be watching him. If he lets down, there is no hope for the future of baseball.

NEWS ITEM: UNION FUNDS SAVE NHL TEAM
The Cleveland Barons were going under when who comes up with the necessary $600,000 to finish the season but the Hockey Players' Association treasury.

This is only fair, inasmuch as it has been the inflated bonuses and salaries that put the financial crunch on the Cleveland hockey team, and has placed so many others, in all sports, on the verge. (Charley Finley says half the clubs in baseball struggled to break even last season.)

The Cleveland players learned, the hard way, that there is a limit to asking. The Golden Goose can take only so much squeezing before it gurgles, and expires. The Barons players had missed a paycheck or two, and were about to declare themselves free agents.

It is no fun working for Zilch, but the free-agent status can be an illusion. It's just as well that most of them were saved from having to make the decision. A week earlier, three of the Barons were declared free agents by the front office, and I didn't hear any of them being snapped up by other clubs.

Connors nets Nasty

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Jimmy Connors, aggressive and determined, successfully defended his Heavyweight Championship of Tennis title Saturday by downing a weary Ilie Nastase 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-3.

Connors, who has won all four matches in the "Heavyweight" series, collected $250,000 for his efforts.

Connors, apparently not bothered by a knee injury suffered in Toronto two weeks ago, got stronger as the match progressed under sunny skies with temperatures in the 80s and wind gusts at times up to 20 to 30 miles per hour.

By winning, Connors managed some revenge against a player who had beaten him four of the last five times they had met. Nastase holds a 15-6 edge over Connors lifetime.

Connors first won the "Heavyweight" title against Rod Laver of Australia. He successfully defended it against Australian John Newcombe and Spain's Manuel Orantes.

More than 3,000 fans watched the match played at the Cerromar Beach Hotel, about 25 miles west of San Juan. The contest was also seen live in the United States on CBS TV.

SLACKS - 16⁵⁰ - 21⁵⁰

HE THINKS BIG — Would you buy a used bus from this man? His name is Frank Millet and he is the used bus salesman for Continental Trailways which has 200 Silver Eagles available for sale at their used bus lot in Dallas. What's the price? "Well," says Millet, "I can give you a real nice one for about $22,500."

Not fighting for rights

Broadcasters concern only monetary?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former Federal Communications Commissioner Nicholas Johnson said Saturday that the people who control broadcasting are not really interested in fighting for First Amendment Rights.

"Their concern stops at the teller's window," Johnson told a conference sponsored by the University of Texas school of communications.

Johnson was presented the Dewitt Carter Reddick Award for outstanding achievement in communication.

Johnson said broadcasters have refused to fight First Amendment violations because they are "too busy fighting for commercial broadcasters' profitable speech to worry about the public's right to know."

MARGIE HILL

Margie Hill gets promotion

Mrs. Margie Hill was promoted to the position of assistant secretary by the board of directors of First Federal Savings and Loan, following the annual shareholder meeting on Feb. 15.

Mrs. Hill is responsible for new accounts at First Federal and as a primary savings counselor, she handles conventional savings accounts. She also handles specialized accounts, including keogh and individual retirement plans and direct deposits of Social Security checks.

The secretary is a member of the Institute of Financial Education, a member of the Nuts and Bolts singing group and the Chancel Choir at First United Methodist Church. A graduate of Coahoma High School, she attended Howard College. She and her husband, Robert Hill, have one son, Alan, 22.

Other bank officers were re-elected including Charles E. Bell, president; W.A. Moore Jr., senior vice-president; M.L. Patterson, secretary-treasurer; David R. Morrison, C.P.A., vice president and comptroller and Lu Norris, assistant vice-president.

"In a public trust, profit does not mean ever-escalating profit. Managing for profit does not mean maximizing profit during every minute of the broadcast day."

"A fair return on investment does not justify a television industry average 82 per cent return per annum on depreciated capital investment," he said.

"Shareholders' share of sales need not be three times that of the oil industry, in one of the oil industry's greatest years — as the broadcasters earned last year."

"The law is designed to fight these natural inclinations of big business, to force broadcasters to face their responsibilities to serve the public, and to protect the First Amendment rights of the listeners and viewers — all the citizens of the United States, not just those of the broadcasters."

Johnson said.

He also accused broadcasters of fighting alternatives to the present system of broadcasting that would, he said, eliminate the need for the controversial "fairness doctrine."

Johnson said the alternatives included: limit operators to one three-year license without renewal, limit stations' power so more could operate, limit stations one-to-a-license, provide for multiple licensees of the same frequency, dividing the days to accommodate more broadcasters; require stations to set aside a portion of prime time for non-discriminatory public access to the station, common-carrier leasing of channels on 20 to 60 channel cable television systems, and require stations to sell commercials to anyone willing to buy time for opposing views.

"All of these alternatives would deal with the basic purpose of the fairness doctrine: to guarantee every American a fair shot at personal expression and to guarantee a mass media fully reflecting the nation's diversity," Johnson said.

Rape list to be passed out by group of Dallas women

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas men who have been indicted on rape or other sex offense charges in the past 16 years will no longer live in quiet anonymity after next week.

A group of Dallas County women calling itself the Kitty Genovese Project plans to publish and distribute Tuesday the names of 1,562 men indicted in Dallas County between 1960 and 1976 on sex-related offenses, including but not confined to rape.

"By publicizing the names and confronting rapists publicly and privately whenever possible, we hope to make it more difficult for rapists to operate within a system of anonymity. This is not a list of rapists. It is a list of men indicted after determination there was sufficient evidence to warrant a trial," said a spokeswoman for the group. She didn't want her name used.

Kitty Genovese was a young New York City woman fatally stabbed in 1964 while more than 30 witnesses stood by without coming to her aid.

The spokeswoman said the group plans to distribute 25,000 copies of the names list in bars, laundromats, college bulletin boards, grocery stores, filling stations and the like.

The list will include the indicted man's name, nature of the alleged offense, and disposition of the case.

"Due to errors within the judicial system, a small percentage of the men listed may be innocent of the charges brought against them. If you find a man that you know on the list, have the file pulled by case number in the County Records Building to read for yourself. We advise extreme caution in dealing with all multiple offenders. Because of their prejudices and hatred against women, rapists often repeat their crimes," the publication says in part.

The spokeswoman said the list should contain the names of "thousands more Dallas men...by the most conservative estimates, 75 percent of rapes are never reported because of judicial and social pressures placed on the victims."

Dallas police recently arrested and charged with rape a Dallas advertising executive they had dubbed "the friendly rapist" in connection with more than 50 rapes over the past year. Victims told police their assailant was courteous and polite, thus the appellation.

A district attorney's spokesman said he saw nothing illegal with publication of the list of names since indictments are public record.

Texas Instruments plans Odessa-Midland plant

MIDLAND — Texas Instruments revealed Friday in Dallas that it planned to start a new manufacturing operation in the Midland-Odessa area in May.

The company has leased the 66,500-square foot Windecker Building at the Midland Air Terminal to house its first operations.

The firm has also purchased a 200-acre tract of land midway between Midland and Odessa as the site for future construction of a TI plant.

TI Executive Vice President A. Ray McCord said specific products to be manufactured here have not been determined.

Some people close to the TI move to the area believe the eventual employment would be as many as 2,000 persons.

Most of the firm's consumer products operations now located in Dallas will be moved to Lubbock during the next five months.

Texas Instruments is the world's largest producer of handheld calculators. TI is also engaged in the manufacture of digital watches.

Program is outlined

The Howard County Sheriff's Posse held its regular monthly meeting last Tuesday in the Texas Electric Reddy Room. Past president, Ed Cherry, presided.

Nina Escudero and Christine Hospied, advance publicity party for the "Up With People" musical stage production to be presented here March 7, told posse members about their show and invited the posse to participate in a welcoming parade for the 70-member cast who will be arriving in town next Monday afternoon.

Burford Hull, District IV president of the American Association of Sheriff's Poses and Riding Clubs, was a guest speaker. He talked about district and national programs and invited all members to join in the activities.

Repps Guitar led a discussion on steer roping and barrel racing events. The posse members voted to host a Steer Roping and Barrel Racing Event the first and third Sunday afternoon of each month.

Ruth Nanny read the club by-laws which were discussed and will be brought up to date.

A memorial fund for the late J.O. Whitefield has been set up by Mr. and Mrs. T. Willard Neel. This fund is to be used for the youth program and special activities.

Blue laws drawing local support

An organized effort to repeal Texas' controversial "blue laws," which, in effect, keeps some business firms from operating seven days a week, has surfaced. Critics of the law say its inconsistencies defeat its purpose, since some goods can be sold on Sundays while others cannot.

Too, the law is respected in some communities and ignored in others. More or less strict observance of the regulation has been observed here but some merchants penalized point out that Big Spring's Sunday shoppers can buy just about anything they want merely by driving to Midland or Odessa, where a more relaxed attitude toward the blue law is evident.

Several Big Spring merchants spoke out against repeal of the law when approached for an opinion by reporters of the Big Spring Herald.

One was Sam Schultz, manager of Penny's, who summed up his opinion by saying:

"If the Lord wanted to work six days and rest the seventh, I'm with him." Schultz said, to him, it was morally and ethically wrong to work on Sundays and it was bad to put all the extra work on employees who do not like the idea of working the extra day.

Schultz also observed that, with the energy situation in the shape it is in now it would just be "plain stupid" to open up stores Sundays.

"I believe in upholding the law; the way it should be and the way it has been," Schultz concluded.

Richard Adkins, manager of Big Spring Hardware Co., is lined up solidly against any move to relax the restrictions demanded by the legislation.

"As long as the state has 'blue laws,' my employees will not have to work on Sundays. The day traditionally is set aside as a family day and one of rest."

"With 'blue laws,' Gibson's, Montgomery Ward, TG&Y, and the other chain stores would be required by their central management to stay open (Sundays) and, in order to maintain my competitive position in the business community I, too, would have to remain open.

"I wonder how much more energy would be used if we

G O P honors Sheppard

A resolution has been adopted by the Associated Republicans of Texas honoring the late William J. (Bill) Sheppard of Big Spring. Sheppard died Dec. 26, 1976.

The action was taken last Sunday at a statewide meeting of the organization.

Associated Republicans of Texas was organized in May of 1975 to support GOP candidates for the Legislature and county offices. The resolution identified Sheppard "as one of our most dedicated members."

all stayed open Sundays. I wonder how many more public employees would have to be hired to take care of potential problems in the police, fire and utilities departments.

"It is a shame our neighboring cities do not choose to support the laws of the state. I believe that county attorneys in those communities are negligent in their duties."

"Seven-day retailing does not create any new business. It simply spreads six days of business over seven days. Additional business done by stores seven days a week comes at the expense of those stores which are closed. Because stores are being kept open more hours, the cost of keeping them open is passed on to the customers."

A.J. Prager, manager of Prager's Men's and Boy's Wear, said while he preferred that his store be

Major changes are instituted

ARLINGTON — The Air Force has instituted major changes in its Prior Service Enlistment Program, according to Air Force Recruiting Detachment 404, headquartered in Arlington, Texas.

Provided they are otherwise qualified, former enlisted servicemen and women may now be out of the service up to five years and qualify to enlist in the Air Force. Previously, applicants were disqualified if they had been out of the military services more than three years.

closed Sundays, that there be less regulation of business by the state government.

"It's up to each merchant to decide for himself whether to stay open Sundays," Prager stated. "My store will never open Sundays, no matter what."

Adolph Swartz, manager and owner of Swartz's Ladies Ready-to-Wear, agreed with Prager and said it should be any merchant's prerogative to stay open Sundays.

"We live in a democracy," said Swartz. "If the other merchants wish to stay open all day and all night, seven days a week, it should be their decision to make."

"Personally, I will operate this store just I have for the last 45 years. I don't care whether Gibson's or Ward's decide to stay open."

Warrant out for actress

BALTIMORE (AP) — Actress Carol Channing has been ordered to appear in a city court to testify about the December theft of her $30,000 eggshell-white mink coat.

City Court Judge James A. Perrott, who issued a bench warrant for the actress' arrest, said Friday that Miss Channing "is a great lady and great performer but she is not above the law."

An attorney for the city said that despite the judge's order he would not call on Los Angeles police to seek out the actress.

The mink allegedly was taken from Miss Channing's hotel suite while she was in Baltimore to appear in "The Bed Before Breakfast," a farce that was bound for Broadway but folded on the road.

Two men have been charged with burglary in the case.

Charles Lowe, Miss Channing's husband, said in Los Angeles Friday that there was "no way Miss Channing could stop working" to appear for the trial. "We couldn't break a contract," he added.

IT DOESN'T LOOK like much now, but people are beginning to put some effort into turning this building into the Northside Day Care Center. Here, members of the Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary inspect the site as they make plans for a benefit fashion show by Swartz. From left, they are Mrs. Olan Key, Mrs. William Riley, Mrs. Clyde E. Thomas, Mrs. John Hogan and Mrs. J.H. Affleck.

THE BUILDING BLOCKS may symbolize the hopes of these members of the Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary as they encourage the public to attend their benefit style show March 10 at Big Spring

FASHIONS — for a fund

By JO BRIGHT
The Northside Day Care Center is still almost in the "dream" stage — although many caring people have worked for well over a year, hoping that it would soon become an actuality.

The first organizers for the project were people who had been involved with the Westside Day Care Center and saw a need for another center on the north side of the city. At this time, the active workers include Bertram Warner, B.C. Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Dominguez, Armando Molina, Doug Cheney and Donna Goolsby.

So far, they have raised approximately $3,300 in donations and from fund-raising projects, but the donated building is still uninhabitable. Money and materials are needed to continue with the remodeling of the run-down structure. Paint, linoleum, carpeting, etc., all are needed desperately, as well as materials for operations and money for operating costs.

The Northside Day Care Center is planned as a non-profit center aimed at providing day care on a sliding-fee basis for low-income, working parents. The old building, moved to 700 NE 7th, is in the process of being repaired by the trades class at Big Spring High School when they have time to work on it but, summer will be here soon, and classes will be dismissed for the vacation months.

The Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary is one group which has seen a need and is attempting to help the project get going. The women are sponsoring a fashion show by Swartz March 10 at Big Spring Country Club with all proceeds donated to the Northside Day Care Center. Shoes will be provided by Barnes-Pelletier.

Mrs. Wallace C. Hunter, auxiliary president, said Mrs. Henry Butler will serve as chairman, with five auxiliary members serving as models. They are Mrs. Jack Affleck, Mrs. Robert Griffin, Mrs. Ray Owen, Mrs. John Fish and Mrs. Robert Stenberg. Guest models will be Mrs. Tommy McCann, Mrs. Jerry Iden, Mrs. David Klatt, Mrs. G.C. Broughton Jr. and Mrs. Gary Turner.

The show will be narrated by Mrs. James Cowan, with music by Mrs. Harold Rains. Chairman for the table decorations is Mrs. John Hogan, and also on display will be a collection of early medical instruments arranged by Mrs. Clyde Thomas.

The Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary's purpose has always been to assist the Texas Medical Association's program for the advancement of medicine and public health. Locally, auxiliary members have demonstrated that not just the doctor, but the doctor's wife, is willing to serve the community.

The auxiliary has set a good example for any community with its involvement in Big Spring. Its members, as individuals, have served on the city council, and been active board members for the YMCA, Community Concerts, St. Mary's School, Westside Center, Potton House, Family Services and Northside Day Care Center. In health-related fields, the members serve on boards of the Cancer Society, Heart Association, Easter Seals, March of Dimes and Arthritis Foundation.

In other areas, the auxiliary has supported nursing scholarships at Howard College, assisted in forming the city's Alliance of Clubs and provides two "Friend of Youth" scholarships at the YMCA.

Persons who would like to have a part in helping the center become a reality may contact any of the people listed above — and its certain your offer will be accepted.

green. The coolness of cotton is favored by Mrs. McCann who shows a dress with matching jacket in pin striped cotton and polyester. For the sporting life, Mrs. Stenberg models a black and white stripe cotton and polyester three-piece pantsuit; the jacket is lined with black and white print.

AN AUXILIARY MEMBER, Mrs. J.H. Affleck, models a Swartz fashion that spans the seasons — a Navy blue ultra suede jumper brightened with a polka dot polyester blouse.

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, SUNDAY, MARCH 6, 1977

Leprechauns, shamrocks set stage for OWC show

"Erin go braugh," spelled out in big, block letters on stage curtains, set the theme for a St. Patrick's Day luncheon held by the Officers Wives Club Thursday at Webb Air Force Base. Spiraled crepe paper, in green and white, was draped above the dining tables and, from the ceiling hung honeycomb balloons, their small baskets holding cardboard leprechauns. Additional leprechauns were placed between potted geraniums which accented the tables. The flowers were later given as door prizes.

Held in conjunction with the luncheon was the club's annual arts and crafts show, with judges being hard pressed to choose winners from among the many entries displayed in the Whipkey Room.

Resource Management, along with Maintenance wives, shared hostess duties for the luncheon with Maxine Brown and Mary Hanson presenting the winners with their awards.

Categories and the first, second and third place winners were: Macrame-weaving, Jo Ann Brown, Carol Gilg and Kathy Copelin; Easel Art, Sharon Winter, Sharon Winter and Christy Perrow; Tole Painting, Carol Gilg, Karen Wallace and tied for third, Karen Wallace and Sharon Frye; Ceramics-pottery, Mary Hanson, Jo Ann Brown and Beth Klatt; Crochet-knitting, Lynn Gilbert, Debbie Davenport and Carroll Risk; Embroidery, JoAnn Brown, Carroll Ambrose and Sharon Winter; Crewel, Colleen Eastman, Meagan Legas and Molly Tenney and Kathi Sauri tied for third; Needlepoint, Margaret Tarleton, Linda Fowler, no third; Miscellaneous, Patti Christianson, Jo Ann Brown and Darlene Leatherwood.

Guests and members viewed the exhibit during a social hour preceding the luncheon. The invocation was by Cindy Lewis, and Leila Meacham, OWC president, extended the welcome and presided during the business session.

Guests included: Carol Hunter, Jo Bright, Kay Wise, Kathie Barber, Mary Ann Taylor, Becky Richardson, Pam Thompson, Fran Roberts, Jeanie Lindsey and a Mrs. Onken, Mrs. Mullen and Mrs. Kohl.

Introduced as judges for

OWC NOMINEES

Mrs. Brown, chairman of the nominating committee, announced a slate of candidates for OWC office and explained rules for voting in the April election. As each candidate was introduced, she was presented a corsage. The nominees are:

President, Joyce Box; Debbie Alsop; first vice-president, Rosemary Bortel; Sharon Frye; second vice-president, Sharon Campagna; Donna Ritter; third vice-president, Carol Cox; Diana Gelatka; recording secretary, Linda Fontes; Rayma Hawkins, Tina Mourer, Molly Tenney; corresponding secretary, Patti Collings; Darlene Leatherwood, Kathi Sauri; assistant treasurer, Meta Gress, Anita Price; and treasurer, Joanne Brown, Marilyn Moore.

Ciana High, who has served the OWC as Thrift Shop chairman, will be leaving in May and was presented a gift of appreciation from the club.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

In routine announcements, Mrs. Meacham reminded the group of the OWC-sponsored art auction March 26 which raises funds for club charities. Also, she announced that a Swartz style show, March 10, is being sponsored by the Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary to benefit the Northside Day Care Center. Volunteers wishing to help at the Veterans Administration Hospital were asked to contact Mrs. Kay Bosdale at the hospital or call Ginger James, OWC welfare chairman.

10 Commandments For Husbands

DEAR READERS: Last week I published my Ten Commandments for Wives. And now...

1. Thou shalt put thy wife before thy mother, thy father, thy daughter, and thy son, for she is thy lifelong companion.
2. Abuse not thy body either with excessive food, tobacco or drink, that thy days may be many and healthful in the presence of thy loved ones.
3. Permit neither thy business, nor thy hobby, to make of thee a stranger to thy children, for the precious gift a man giveth his family is his time.
4. Forget not the virtue of cleanliness.
5. Make not thy wife a beggar, but share willingly with her thy worldly goods.
6. Forget not to say, "I love you." For even though thy love be constant, thy wife doth yearn to hear the words.
7. Remember that the approval of thy wife is worth more than the admiring glances of a hundred strangers. Cleave unto her and forsake all others.
8. Keep thy home in good repair, for out of it cometh the joy of thy old age.
9. Forgive with grace, for who among us does not need to be forgiven?
10. Honor the Lord thy God all the days of thy life, and thy children will rise up and call thee blessed.

DEAR ABBY: I see where a lot of people have protested the advertising of various "unmentionable" products on TV, but as far as I'm concerned, there are worse things on television to complain about.

I refer to the content of some of the daytime programs. Some of the game shows I used to enjoy have gotten so dirty I have stopped watching them.

Also, whatever happened to that commandment about taking the name of the Lord in vain? I've heard "God," "Lord" and even "Jesus Christ" used that way, and I find it very offensive. (The "hells" and "damns" I've gotten accustomed to long ago, although I still feel it sets a bad example for our young people.)

Now, to whom shall we direct our complaints on the above?

OFFENDED IN CONN.

DEAR OFFENDED: Write your local TV station, and ask them to forward your complaint to the head of the network.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Teacher survey conducted here

One hundred and sixty-three teachers in the Big Spring school district took part in a local Texas State Teacher's Association survey.

The survey was conducted in order to research questions such as what age bracket are most teachers in, how many years teaching experience do most teachers have, what percentage have master's degrees, and are most teachers involved in community activities.

The findings of the survey indicate that 27 per cent of the teachers were aged 40-50, 26 per cent were age fifty and over, 22 per cent fell into the 30-40 age range, and 23 per cent were younger than 30.

Finding also indicated that 26 per cent (about 1 and 1/4) of the teachers have been teaching five years or less, 22 per cent have been teaching 5-10 years, 22 per cent have been teaching 10-20 years, and 30 per cent have been in the field of education for 20 or more years.

Of those taking the survey in Big Spring, 21 per cent are graduates of Big Spring High School.

Thirty-four per cent of those taking the survey have master's degrees, and 43 per cent have earned these advanced degrees within the last five years. Twenty-three per cent of the surveyed teachers are currently enrolled in college courses.

In relation to questions concerning family life, it was found that 65 per cent of the participants have school age children and 65 per cent have spouses employed in the community. Those involved in community activities numbered 88 per cent.

Texas Education Week is slated for the week of March 6.

MRS. STEVEN RAY BRACKEEN

Miss Skalicky weds Steven Ray Brackeen

Miss Lisa Camille Skalicky and Steven Ray Brackeen exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon in a garden setting at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Travis E. Brackeen, 604 Highland Drive.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miloslav (Mike) Skalicky, 2700 Apache, and Mrs. Manuel Gutierrez of Big Spring.

The Rev. O.D. Robertson performed the ceremony before an arch entwined with greenery, pink carnations and topped with white doves. Baskets of white mums and pink carnations flanked the arch, and the scene was illuminated by tapers in branched candelabra.

The bride, carrying a nosegay of pink sweetheart roses, carnations and gypsophila, was attired in a Victorian gown of ivory cotton and lace featuring a high neckline encircled with lace above a sheer inset yoke of lace accented with tiny pearl buttons. Below the yoke, a wide, circular ruffle trimmed with lace emphasized the moulded bodice, and a narrow lace waistband terminated in a wide sash. The long, lace sleeves were shirred to lace cuffs with ruffles falling over the hands. The bell-shaped skirt was trimmed with a double flounce fashioned with a wide inset of net and lace. Her hair was adorned with a cluster of pink sweetheart roses.

ATTENDANTS
The maid of honor was Miss Celeste Moore Grenier, step-sister of the bride. She wore a floor-length gown of heavy ivory lace over deep pink. Her nosegay of pink carnations and sweetheart roses matched the flowers which adorned her hair.

The bridegroom's brother, Richard E. Brackeen, served as best man, and Clifton Rudolf Skalicky was the usher. Candles were lighted by Travis Edwin Brackeen.

Prior to leaving on a brief trip, the newlyweds were honored at reception in the Brackeen home. The refreshment table was covered with a green linen cloth overlaid with lace, and the centerpiece featured pink carnations and gypsophila. Twin branched candelabra accented the table decor, and other appointments were of crystal and silver.

Miss Debbie Carnell and Miss Kelly Scott served, and Mrs. Richard Brackeen presided at the guest registry.

GUESTS
Mr. and Mrs. Brackeen, both graduates of Big Spring High School, will reside in San Angelo where he will be employed by Boss-Linam Electric Co. and she plans to continue her education.

Among the wedding guests were Mrs. Beatrice Liner, grandmother of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Nobles, Snyder, and Mrs. Eva Mae Brackeen, Hermligh, grandparents of the bridegroom.

Create illusion with color in decorating

By JANET SARGENT, City, Ed. Agent

Wise use of color can help solve decorating problems of small size rooms and limited furnishing.

Color cannot, of course, increase the actual size of a room, but it can create an illusion of spaciousness. Also, the wise use of color can enhance the least expensive furnishing.

Color has three dimensions—value (its lightness or darkness), intensity (brightness or dullness) and hue give warmth with yellow and reds or coolness with blues.

By studying the dimensions of color, especially in relation to decorating problems, home decorators may find many simple, inexpensive decorating answers — with a can of paint.

SMALL ROOM
A small room looks larger if painted a cool color, such as light blue. A feeling of spaciousness occurs when colors used within the room in furniture, draperies and accessories are of close or similar value — preferably light. Light values create the impression of distance. Close values have a quieting effect while strong contrasts appear busy.

Furnishings contrasting in value, intensity and hue tend to divide a room and make it look smaller. So, a small room needs little contrast in color.

A difference in value is more contrasting than a difference in hue. For example, a color scheme using orange and blue of the same value is less obvious than the use of one hue but in different values. When increasing the number of hues in a room, it's important to make them close in value.

While cool colors recede and make a room appear larger, they do have a formal feeling. Today's homes are more casual and most people prefer warm colors. If small rooms are to be decorated in earth tones, these warm colors may be used if they are close in value and dull in intensity. When these warm colors are dull in intensity, such as warm tans, any hue looks good against them. These unifying hues (warm colors) make the most useful colors for backgrounds. Generally, duller intensities are best for large areas, such as walls, while bright intensities are best for accents (accessories).

CONTRAST
Special furnishing or objects may be enhanced when placed against a background of a different value. But to make a piece of furniture, such as a sofa, as inconspicuous as possible, place it against a background which is of its own value. Dark values are often used for floors because they create an impression of stability.

Warm and cool may be used advantageously in regard to the orientation of the house. Rooms located on the west side of the home will feel cooler if painted a cool color. Those located on the north will convey a feeling of warmth when painted a warm color. It is interesting to note that while green is considered a neutral color, it is considered cool.

Mrs. Beverly Madry, owner and manager of The Final Touch, an accessory shop, discussed the use of color in the home at Tuesday's meeting of Alpha Beta Omicron Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Susan King, and Mrs. Genie Carroll presided.

The group discussed plans for a "Rainbow Road" brunch for rubees at 10 a.m., March 5 in the home of Mrs. Charisa Myers, 2708 Cindy.

It was announced that chapter members will travel as a group to the Mansion Dinner Theater in Odessa March 26. They will meet at Mrs. Carroll's home at 5 p.m. A report was heard from the service committee on visits to local rest homes.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., March 15 in the home of Mrs. Mary Brooks, 1104 Barnes.

Microwave cooking instruction offered

The Continuing Education Department at Howard College and Texas Electric Service Company are jointly sponsoring courses in Basic and Advanced Techniques of Microwave Cooking.

The continuing surge of microwave oven sales is indicative of increasing public interest in this new method of cooking with microwave energy.

Howard College is making these courses available as an educational opportunity on a non-credit basis, and TESCO is interested in educating consumers about the energy saving values of microwave cooking. Although microwave ovens are not complete substitutes for conventional range cooking, as much as 90 per cent of the cooking a family would do can be done in a microwave oven; with the benefit of a considerable savings in energy.

Mrs. Sandra Killough, TESCO home economist, will conduct the workshop method courses in the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

Plans call for two separate courses: Microwave Cooking I: the basics of microwave cooking; and microwave cooking II: an advanced course. Each course will be presented two separate times with the same information given in each session.

Times and details of the course arrangements are as follows:
Microwave Cooking I: The Basics: How do microwaves cook food? Is it safe? How much energy does it save? Cooking utensils and hints. A full meal will be prepared. Consumer buying tips, care and cleaning of the oven will also be covered. The dates of the two separate classes of this are March 15 from 6 to 9 p.m., and March 16 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. The location will be

Ceremony performed in Webb AFB chapel

Garden club hears story of Ginkgo

The wedding of Miss Georgine J. Hofer and Senior Airman Ronald W. Barnes was solemnized Friday afternoon in the Webb Air Force Base Chapel with Larry D. Headley officiating. The altar was illuminated by arched candelabra and flanked by tall baskets of white carnations interspersed with green ferns.

Nuptial music was by Miss Sherry Huckabee.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Hofer of Huron, S.D., and the bridegroom is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert C. Barnes, Clinton, Miss.

FORMAL ATTIRE

The bride, carrying a bouquet of white roses and gypsophila tied with white satin streamers, was attired in a wedding gown of white tulle de sole with sheer overlay. The moulded bodice, with natural waistline banded in lace, featured three-quarter-length sleeves extended by flared, pleated lace. The chapel-length train over the flared skirt was topped with a wide bow with panels of lace forming an inverted V. Her elbow-length veil of illusion was held by a headpiece of lace sprinkled with pearls.

Miss Laurice Hofer, Huron, S.D. served her sister as maid of honor, and the bridesmatron was Mrs. Vicar Knott. They were attired in pale blue formal gowns styled with V-neckline, brief belled sleeves and midriff sash which tied in a bow at the back. Each carried a nosegay of blue and white carnations tied with matching ribbons.

MRS. RONALD W. BARNES

RECEPTION

The reception which followed the ceremony was held in the Non-Commissioned Officers Club at Webb AFB. The refreshment table, covered with a white linen cloth, featured a crystal punch service and other appointments of crystal and silver. The bride's bouquet served as the centerpiece.

Barnes, a graduate of Judson High School, Clinton, Miss., is a ground radio equipment repairman at Webb AFB. His bride, a 1977 graduate of Huron High School, Huron, S.D., is employed by the Big Spring Herald.

The couple will reside at 407 Johnson.

"Ginkgo biloba, the maidenhair tree, is the oldest of all species of trees. The tree was thriving a hundred and a quarter million years ago, and is a link between the present and past," said Mrs. A.C. Moore in a talk Wednesday to the Planters Garden Club.

Mrs. Moore said that the Ginkgo is a tree of botanical interest, and also has great horticultural value. The original home of the tree is in China, but it is now widely cultivated all over the world.

In the Orient, the wood is used in making small storage cabinets or abacus beads and other small articles. The Japanese sometimes use the leaves for fertilizer, especially in rice fields under water.

The group met in the home of Mrs. J. L. Trantham.

Mrs. Cass Hill, president, conducted a business session during which the club agreed to contribute to the American Land Trust, a cooperative land conservation program.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Casey, 2315 Mishler, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kimberly Dee, to Michael Glen Paul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Paul, Sand Springs. The couple will be married May 21 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Rhoton, Silver Heels. The Rev. Bob Webb, a Baptist minister, will officiate.

Garden club studies birds

"Texas has more species of birds, with 540, than any other state, and Howard County has 250 of these species," Mrs. Hubert Stipp told members of the Green Thumb Garden Club Tuesday.

Following her program, Mrs. Stipp showed a film on migration.

Hostess for the meeting was Mrs. Adolph Swartz, with cohostesses being Mrs. Billie Finer and Mrs. Andy Swartz.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. John Hogan at 10 a.m., April 5.

ABWA will recruit during garden party

In celebration of the coming of spring, the Scenic Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold a Bloomin' Garden party March 13 at 2602 Apache, according to Mrs. Lou Thompson, chapter president.

The garden party promises to be a festive, colorful event — a welcome harbinger of spring. The party will highlight the ABWA spring enrollment event.

The ABWA enrollment events are held semi-annually to introduce ABWA and the local chapter to business women in this area. Throughout this period similar events will be held across the country by more than 1,400 other ABWA chapters.

"The goal of ABWA is to help women in business advance through education, increased competence, and through upgrading of professional skills and business attitudes," Mrs. Thompson said.

The association, founded in Kansas City, Miss., in 1949, now has more than 88,000 members. Last year, ABWA chapters throughout the United States and Puerto Rico awarded nearly a million dollars in scholarships to women students. Scenic Chapter is presently sponsoring two women for the spring semester.

Membership is by invitation only. For further information, interested business women may contact Mrs. Hazel Mixon at 7-2511, Ext. 2533.

Wall hangings demonstrated

Using basic macrame knots, Mrs. L.Z. Rhodes and Mrs. Dale Soles gave a demonstration on macrame wall hangings at the Elbow Home Demonstration club meeting Thursday in the home of Mrs. Jack McKinnon.

The women advised reading directions before starting projects. Variations can be made by altering some instructions. In any craft, check for things to use that are available at home, to lower costs. Concentrate on crafts that can be used as gifts.

Mrs. McKinnon gave the devotional from "Flowers that Never Fade." Mrs. Doreen Dolan won the door prize.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Deannie Riffe March 17.

MRS. WALTER K. MORRIS

Couple united in marriage

Miss Lavonda Jean Sandlin and Walter Keith Morris were married in a ceremony conducted in the Crestview Baptist Church, Lamesa, Feb. 25 with the Rev. Buster Grigg officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Truman Sandlin, Star Route 4, Lamesa, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Morris, Welch.

Vows were recited before an arch adorned with white roses and smilax. Cathedral tapers were accented with blue lace carnations and baby's breath. Smilax was used at vantage points throughout the church.

Mrs. Wanda Chapman, organist, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Harry Black, vocalists.

The bride was attired in a formal gown of white sheer nylon over bridal satin. The high collar was accented with lace and seed pearls and the long, sheer sleeves had cuffs trimmed with lace and seed pearls. The high waistline was banded with lace and formed a point at the center of the bodice. Two tiers of ruffles accented the hemline of the dress. Her floor-length veil was trimmed in matching lace.

The bride carried a colonial nosegay featuring statice, white daisies, blue lace carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Anna Vick, Lamesa, maid of honor, wore a full-length dress of light blue trimmed in white, and carried a long-stemmed blue lace carnation tied with blue satin streamers.

Randy Lehrmann, Snyder, was best man. Ushers were Terry Morris and Arlen Morris, both of Lamesa.

A reception followed the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. The tiered wedding cake centered the serving table.

Following a wedding trip to Lubbock, the couple will reside in Snyder. The bride is a graduate of Lamesa High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Dawson High School and will graduate in May from West Texas State University.

Girl Scouts 'touring' centers in Europe

It was just an imaginary tour, but to members of Junior Girl Scout troops, 36 and 80, it seemed almost real. The trip was to "our chalet," one of the world centers for Girl Scouts and Girl Guides, located in the Swiss Alps. The occasion was the celebration of the 65th birthday of the Girl Scouts.

"Prayers" tip ERA?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A women's prayer chain claims its efforts persuaded the Lord to tip the balance against the Equal Rights Amendment, which the North Carolina Senate defeated 26-24.

They say their prayers worked better than did personal telephone calls on behalf of the ERA from President Carter and First Lady Rosalynn Carter to wavering state senators.

"Our prayer chain did it," said Norma Swanson of Raleigh after the vote Tuesday. "We had women praying all night and all day, women from all walks of life. We asked God that if this thing was not in his plan that he would see that it was defeated."

Mrs. Swanson, of suburban Cary, said no formal organization backed the chain, just herself and a friend and a lot of telephoning.

She called about 50 friends, each of whom called other friends in other cities. She estimated several hundred all over the state were finally involved.

A schedule was set up starting at midnight Monday, the eve of Senate action on the ERA, and running through Tuesday.

Women signed up to pray in one-hour time slots, and extra volunteers promised to pray off and on throughout the day.

"Not one woman said she wouldn't be willing to set her alarm and get out of bed and get down on her knees," Mrs. Swanson said.

Many women, she said, were still praying when the Senate voted down the amendment.

The defeat was a severe blow to ERA proponents who had hoped the Tar Heel state would become the 36th of 38 states needed to ratify the amendment by March 21, 1979. The ERA would prohibit sex discrimination.

Karen DeCraw, president of the National Organization for Women, said the North Carolina defeat was "an absolute crisis."

They had tulips, castanets, big paper flowers and cathedral window cookies to take home and had enjoyed an amateur production of Pinocchio with paper bag puppets.

"Add the new songs and games they learned, some general information about the countries, and the new friends they made and it all amounted to a delightful event," said Mrs. Tom Stephenson.

Troop 36, under the leadership of Senior Troop 360 and Mrs. Stephenson, hosted the party as part of their requirements toward earning the Sign of the Arrow and Sign of the Star. Leaders of Troop 80 are Mrs. Tom Corwin, Mrs. Gary High and Miss Tammy Plewgh.

Troop 36 started its "tour" of the world scout centers last fall when they visited "Our Cabana" in Mexico. Several members of the Senior Troop, as well as Mrs. Stephenson, had actually been to "Our Cabana" and had first-hand experiences to share.

The purpose of the "trip" around the world has been to learn about the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts. The scouts are also working on the World Friendship Badges.

Leadership of the junior troop has been the special project of the senior scouts this year. They have been working on their program aide and leader-in-training requirements. Senior meetings have been spent studying leadership theories and techniques while the junior meetings provide the opportunities to test their skills.

Senior scouts enrolled in the program are Lavelle Bradford, Jerri Davey, Pat Ferguson, Diana Garcia and Pat Hamilton.

Howard College dreams

with Marj Carpenter

Last year, Howard College selected a theme song of "Dreams Are Coming True at Howard College" and the present administration is doing all that it can to see that they do.

The Career Day held last Tuesday for the first time at the college was a big success. Students from the smaller high schools all around the area poured on to the campus and enjoyed looking over the departments, and enjoyed even more visiting with each other.

These were kids that have competed violently with each other over a four-year period in football, basketball, track, UIL, band and everything else. But deep down, they all kind of like each other after all.

The letter jackets from the various high schools were worn with pride and some of the sleeves were heavy with patches for their accomplishments.

The girls are pretty and happy looking and the boys are just looking. But it was a typical high school senior-in-America occasion.

The students around the West Texas area are sharp and they asked lots of questions about the various departments and their displays. And the faculty was out full force to answer the questions.

The administrators who accompanied the kids also got a chance to share ideas. Counselors and principals shared woes and accomplishments.

Carter's apology accepted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Gov. James Rhodes says he has accepted President Carter's apology for an incident in which the governor was barred from the White House earlier this week.

Rhodes showed up for a dinner Tuesday night following the National Governor's Conference. With him were his grandchildren, Jamie, 9, and Melissa, 12. A White House staffer blocked Rhodes from entering, reportedly because of the unexpected presence of the children.

President Carter later called Rhodes to express his regret over the mixup, an aide to the governor said.

Nowadays, in the largest of the four-year schools, students end up with student aides for teachers in the early years instead of qualified educators. And the students in the smaller community colleges end up a lot of times with better qualified instruction.

This may have been the first, but certainly won't be the last, of the special senior days at Howard College.

The kids came and visited the exhibits, toured the campus, ate their lunch, listened to the music, watched a play, played pool or foosball, visited each other, danced a little and went home.

All of them won't return to the Howard College campus but some of them will. And all of them will have a better version of what goes on there and what there is to offer.

As I go out ridin' fence, I meet an awfully large number of quality young people. And it's always exhilarating to be around them — when I'm out ridin' fence.

Europe's malaise hits film world

ROME (AP) — Western Europe's economic malaise, has spread to its once flourishing and highly acclaimed movie industry, causing a decline in production, attendance and, by critical assessment, the quality of films.

In some cases it has also intensified the migration of producers, directors and stars to Hollywood.

An Associated Press sampling shows the crisis of the continent's motion picture industry is particularly acute in Italy, France and Germany, while in Britain the industry is counting on recovery based on devaluation of the pound.

Reasons for the slump range from the coming of age of Western European television and increasing films on the tube to spiraling ticket and production costs. A renewed onslaught of highly publicized U.S. films also figures in the crisis.

"I always said," remarks Italian producer Carlo Ponti, "that when American film makers discovered America, we would be ruined. The truth is that they have discovered America (as a subject) and they have lots to say.

"As for us, our films no longer cost any less than in America and not all please the American audience. We have reached the point that an Italian producer cannot worry too much about quality, but must make 'commercial' films because of the cost factor."

Carmine Cianfarani, head of the Italian Picture Association, calls the Italian situation "grave because it's not only economic but also one of ideas. We have lost our fantasy: that's the drama."

Italy's Hollywood-on-the-Tiber pumped $144 million into 230 films last year — 60 productions fewer than planned and mostly cheap, fast originals and imitations geared for home consumption. For 1977, it has not announced projects for major productions.

By mid-1976, according to the latest figures available, French production reached 89 and for the full year is expected to fall far short of the 182 films of 1975.

French Secretary of State Francoise Giroud, once a scriptwriter, says the industry needs urgent help from the government, which taxes the business over 300 million dollars a year and pays none back.

Production in Germany declined from 113 in 1970 to 73 in 1975. Bavaria, the nation's leading film studio, is now humming with action — but only with shows destined for television. The government's film subsidy office, which is trying to make West German films exportable, spends about $2.4 million a year underwriting film projects.

In Britain, once called Hollywood-East as it turned out 90 films in 1973, production stood at 70 in 1975, the lowest. But the drop in the value of the pound — from $2.03 to $1.70 in 1976 — brought fresh action to British studios. In addition, a government subsidy of 2.4 million pounds for Britain's National Film Finance Corp. provided backing for new British films, less ambitious than in years past.

Movie attendance slipped in Britain from 143 million to 124 million in 1976, in Italy from 500 million to 450 million last year and in Germany from 160 million in 1970 to 128 million in 1975.

CIRCUS 'RINGER' — Host Gene Kelly is garbed as a ringmaster for a sequence in the all-new "Highlights of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus" special, to be colorcast Tuesday, March 15 (7-8 p.m. Big Spring Time, on the NBC Television Network).

Comedy is scheduled

The U.S. premiere of "Shield Head" by Jonas Arnason, a delightful, witty comedy set during World War II, will open in Midland March 18. It is a very funny play with a unique quality which stems partly from the Icelandic people and particularly from the wit and skill of playwright Arnason.

The action takes place at British Army Headquarters in Reykjavik and at Skaldhamar (Shield Head), one of the remotest corners of Iceland, in early summer of 1941. In Midland Community Theatre's cast are Jim Salmers, Coila Morrow, Charles Dixon, Jesse Grimes, Rhonda Hicks and Randy Hicks. Art Cole is the designer and director.

Icelanders discovered North America 500 years before Columbus came along, and Oscar Wilde once said that the Icelanders, having been clever enough to find North America, were wise enough to lose it again.

"Shield Head" had its World Premiere at the Reykjavik Theatre Society on September 11, 1975, where it is still running. In 1976 the first and second public performances outside Iceland were given in Dundalk and Dublin, Ireland and it became an instant hit with the Irish.

Youthful musicians compete

Winners of the 15th annual National Young Artist Competition will be performing guest artists for the fifth pair of subscription concerts of the Midland-Odessa Symphony. The four gifted young musicians, a vocalist and three instrumentalists, vied for the guest artist appearances and some $5,000 in cash awards with over 70 young musicians in competition, which took place in Odessa Jan. 21 and 22.

Artistic standards regarding musicianship, technical proficiency, stage presence, and selection of repertoire were the considerations by which the winners were judged by five prominent adjudicators. The competition is considered one of the most prestigious of its kind in the United States.

The concerts, which will afford the opportunity to display the exceptional talent of the four young musicians, will take place Monday, March 14 at Bonham Auditorium in Odessa and Tuesday, March 15 at Lee High Auditorium in Midland.

Tickets for the event will be available at the door and performance time is 8:00 p.m. both evenings.

Violinist Margaret Batjer, formerly of San Angelo and now a high school senior at Philadelphia's Curtis Institute of Music, will play Concerto in A Minor (Finale) by Dvorak.

Pianist Peter Orth of Reading, Pa., who has completed keyboard studies at the Juilliard School in New York City, will perform Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 3 (Finale).

Cellist Kevin Dvorak of Dallas, a junior student at Baylor University, Waco, will play Variations on a Rococo Theme by Tchaikovsky.

Ken Slaughter assumes role of Georgy Porgy

An original script and original music intertwined with 60 Mother Goose rhymes will be the theatrical effort for the Casa Manana Playhouse's March production, which began Saturday at 2 p.m. at the theatre in Fort Worth.

Director Zac Ward combined the writing talent of Peter Fritz, the musical ability of Kenneth Slaughter, and his own dancing knowledge to put together a spirited and entertaining production with appeal for all ages.

"Georgy Porgy's Mother Goose" will be presented 12 times, seven of which will be school morning performances at 10 a.m. March 9, 10, 11, 15, 16, 17, and 18. Two family Friday night productions will be March 11 and 18.

The role of Georgy Porgy is played by the versatile young man, Kenneth Slaughter who composed the original music for the script. This is his first season as the Musical Director of the Playhouse. He was a member of the summer musicals ensemble where he was featured in roles such as Saint Peter in "Jesus Christ Superstar." He has been a multi-talented addition to the resident company and has played in the winter productions as the Prince in "Cinderella," as the Gatekeeper in "Littlest Angel," and as Hendrick in "Rip Van Winkle."

Members of the resident company will be in the cast including the director Zac Ward as Simple Simon; Sharon Garrison as Little weekend operations, beginning March 12.

A major expansion in Children's World, "The Magical World of Marvel

Miss Muffet, Kathey Ward as Little Bo Peep, Linda Lee as Mistress Mary; Deborah Fuller as Queen of Hearts; Alan Klem as Old King Cole, and Annie O. Cleveland as The Old Woman. Michael Kaftan will play Little Boy Blue.

Ward, who has been with the Casa Playhouse for four years in a teaching and directing position, first danced in "West Side Story" when he was a student at TCU. He has been with Casa Manana for eleven years in various capacities and various roles.

M. Barrett Cleveland is the scenic and lighting designer and Virginia Vogel designed the costumes. Annie O. Cleveland is the stage manager and Judy Clayton is the assistant to the director.

McFey," to open late spring, offers the younger generation a "do your own thing" playground that includes a variety of recreational activities plus six rides designed for "little people only."

A new 1000-seat domed Aqua Theater will house the all-new dolphin show, "Aqua Frolics '77" another addition to Astroworld's extensive line-up of show spectaculars.

From foot-stomping musical variety to twentieth century film entertainment, Astroworld will premiere six shows. Western Junction's Crystal Palace and the Coney Island Showcase Theater will feature Six Flags Inc. musical productions performed by talented high school and college students.

"Rock around the clock" best describes the new Disco in Country Fair with lively dance shows by day and disco dancing by night. Next door, guests can savor the spicy cuisine of Papa Russo's Italian Restaurant in a quaint, old world setting.

Local library renovates adds to vertical file

By REBECCA TAYLOR
Reference Librarian
Howard County Library

The Howard County Library has announced a substantial addition to and renovation of the Vertical File. The Vertical File is a collection of pamphlets, booklets, newspaper and magazine articles, pictures, drawings and maps, sorted and filed by subject. A card file with cross-references is used to help you find items on a wide variety of topics. Some of the information is too new to be covered in books, some items are unique and will not be found anywhere else, most of the data are simply easier to find than going through the indexes of several books on related topics.

Recently, we have added a large number of government pamphlets and publications on a variety of topics. Several booklets are on houses, buying and construction. Other items range from birth control to choosing a nursing home, from drug abuse to facts and projects about Mars.

A long-standing Vertical File collection of Careers Research Monographs has had ten new titles added the past week. These booklets describe various occupations and professions; training required, salary range, job security, and outlook for the future. These can be found under VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE in the Vertical File. The new titles and their serial are listed below.

19 Careers in Communications — Journalism jobs with Newspapers, Magazines, Radio, TV.

67 Air Conditioning Business — Careers (Engineers, Technologist, Technician jobs, including your own Service Business)

94 Career as a Buyer — Purchasing Manager: Jobs in Manufacturing, Business, Government

95 The Credit Business — Jobs in Stores, Business, Banks Finance companies.

110 Career as a Criminal Lawyer

148 Medical Research — A Science Career for You

205 Dental Laboratory Technologist-technician — Lab Owner and Careers

231 Teaching for You — Trade, Technical, Vocational

255 Retail Store Opportunity — Household Appliance Store: Jobs and Ownership

In addition to these materials, college catalogs from all over the U.S. are available.

Many students who are interested in summer jobs will find help in the Summer Employment Directory. If you are interested, you should apply for these jobs early. They are located all over the U.S. including in many famous vacation spots.

WINTER WARMTH — A recent day's end found a flock of sea gulls descending to the warmth of Lake Erie waters by the Ohio Edison Power Co. plant at Lorain, Ohio, where they have had good fishing and a heated home despite this winter's record cold.

West Texas population growth better than most

According to Dr. R.L. Skrabanek of Texas A&M University, West Texas, as measured by national standards, has had a very favorable population growth during the first half of the 1970's. West Texas has increased its numbers by 6.4 per cent while the nation's population grew by only 4.8 per cent. This is a reversal of the situation which existed between 1960 and 1970 when West Texans were having to leave West Texas to find jobs.

The latest population estimates for individual counties in West Texas published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, the 132-county area served by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, added 206,000 people during the 63-month period between April 1, 1970 and July 1, 1975. This is a reversal of the situation which existed between 1960 and 1970 when the rate of population growth in the U.S. was almost twice that of the West Texas region.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census estimated that there were 3,425,000 persons living in the 132-county WTCC area on July 1, 1975 as contrasted with 3,219,000 on April 1, 1970.

The increase in population in West Texas was emphasized in an article written by Dr. R.L. Skrabanek of Texas A&M University which appeared in the January-February issue of This is West Texas published by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Skrabanek is a sociologist at Texas A&M University where he divides his time between research in the Texas Real Estate Research Center and teaching in the Department of Sociology.

In his article, Dr. Skrabanek points out that West Texans have become accustomed to seeing a fairly steady growth in their population. Considering the many advantages of this part of the state, increased numbers of people should not be surprising; indeed, it should be expected.

However, it may come as a surprise to some that even in the face of a declining number of births, West Texas population growth has picked up considerable momentum in the 1970's. In fact, the 132-county West Texas Chamber of Commerce has added almost as many people within the first five years of the 1970's alone as it did during the entire 1960-70 census decade.

This compares very favorably with a total increase of 230,000 persons for the previous 120-month period from April 1, 1960 to

April 1, 1970. As measured by national standards, the WTCC area has had a very favorable population growth during the first half of the 1970's, having increased its numbers by 6.4 per cent while the nation's population grew by only 4.8 per cent.

In his research, Dr. Skrabanek found that the growth in numbers in the WTCC region appears likely to be about twice as great between 1970 and 1980 as it was in the previous 10-year period, this raises the question of where all of his population increase is coming from.

"There are only three basic demographic factors that determine population size and, therefore, declines or increases in numbers of persons living in any specific area. These are the number born, the number of deaths, and the number who move in or out of an area. Major changes have taken place in the relative contributions of each of these three factors in the population growth patterns taking place in the WTCC region in the last 15-year period.

'Hot' summer, fewer twisters

By the Associated Press

Frostbitten Easterners may thaw out of the worst winter in history only to be baked by an abnormally hot summer, according to the "climatological guess" of a National Weather Service meteorologist.

But hot weather would mean more sunshine — and fewer severe storms, including tornadoes, said Marvin Miller, head meteorologist at the Cleveland forecast office of the weather service.

He says his speculation is based on the belief that temperatures for a given calendar year tend to average out. So in order to compensate for the winter, the summer has to be warmer.

So far this year, temperatures in the East have averaged 15 or more degrees below normal. "When you start adding this up ... if we're starting off so far behind as we have, at some point later in the year, this very great deficit has to be made up," he said.

"I feel quite strongly that the climatological end of this will be made up to a large extent during the summer and fall, which would then indicate we will have a warmer than normal summer and warmer than normal fall."

Miller said his opinion is based on climatological study and is by no means a firm prediction.

And the connection Miller makes to a lighter tornado season is not shared by Fred Ostby, deputy director of the weather service storm forecast center in Kansas City.

"Records on extreme cold waves and the relationship to the severe weather season do not pinpoint much of a relationship between the two," he said.

But he added, "We've never really had anything to compare with this past winter ... there's really nothing on record that's comparable with that."

The weather service recorded 832 tornadoes nationally last year — the eighth largest number since it began keeping such records in 1916.

April, May and June are the traditional tornado months in the Midwest and Great Plains. In the South, however, the season is tapering off after only a few serious storms last month.
