A ROYAL HOST

"U sosieda chata byla, U sosieda jonka byla. A u mene ne chatinka Nema sechtastwee, nema jonka."

The song the young Cossack was singing in Russian had the enchanting melody of a folksong and then suddenly and to our surprise he sang in English the same lines:—

"Sallie, Sallie, Sallie. My neighbor has a home, I haven't even a little house, Not even luck not even a wife."

The first verse ended. Evidently Barry had told the young Cossack my name.

"Get up, Sallie," he whispered, "it's a pretty little custom of theirs and when the son's finished you're supposed to acknowledge the compliment by touching his glass."

The song ended as I rose to my feet, at the same time touching his glass with mine. Then we drained the slender goblets of the delicious wine. The officer was introduced all around. After he was seated Barry and Curtiss made several attempts to start a conversation about the Bolshevie situation in his former country, but he was audroitly evasive each time.

"Permit me to order a little repast," he begged. Something typical of the old days. For tonight at least allow me to be the host."

The men in our party exchanged glances of admiration for this man, who, though pressed for funds, was instinctively a gentleman whose happiness it was to treat us as if we were his guests. Don't worry whispered Barry in a hushed voice, intercepting a look of anxiety on my face. "We'll fix it at last. It would be embarrassing to refuse. They're sticklers for hospitality and he hasn't got used to the fact yet that he's running this place to eke out a livelihood."

I played up to the game.

"How lovely to have you order for us!" I cried, "every time I meet an American friend over here they rave about the marvelous food they've had in some Russian place, and so far I haven't had any real queer dishes at all."

He smiled.

"She's quite young, n'est-ce pas?" he asked Andre Moliere, "and like the Vesnianka."

We overheard.

"What does that mean, Barry? Tell me, for goodness sake."

"Here's where my scant knowledge of Russian stands me in good stead," he replied. "As it happens, Captain Tchertkov has just paid you a very pretty compliment. He has likened you to the Spring."

Glancing quickly up I met the Cossack's eyes.

"May I have the pleasure of the 'dance'?" he asked.

I wanted to dance with him because he executed even the most difficult steps with more than ordinary grace, but his foreign manner of bestowing his attention upon me was so awkward that I was beginning to feel a bit uncomfortable.

"I have this with my husband," I replied. Then nodded to Curtiss, who was quick to respond.

"What's the matter?" he asked, as we threaded our way through the crowded space. "Don't you like our new playmate?"

"Indeed I do, Curtiss; I think he's most interesting, but he fairly takes my breath away."

"He is rather a fast worker. But it's just their way of being polite. He doesn't mean to offend."

"My! but you're a peach!" I exclaimed, pressing his hand; "not every husband would be so broad-minded and fine."

The music stopped and we returned to our little table against the wall. The waiter arrived and spread out a dainty feast. The food was strange, and a delicate aroma of spicy sauce permeated the air.

"Tell us all the names, please, as we go along," I begged.

The Cossack smiled, now perfectly at ease and apparently deriving a great deal of pleasure from introducing us to the famous Russian fare.

"The first course is Myaso-Strogonoff."

"And it's wonderful, too," commented Lemoine.

"Oh, it has mushrooms and—"

"I hesitated.

"Tiny bits of beef," put in Lemoine.

"And though I don't taste it, I know it has sour cream, because there was never a Russian dish served without it," supplied Barrington Pierce.

Tchertkov smiled again and nodded his head.

"Yes, this is the piece de resistance of any meal, but it is not perfect without some tchai."

"Some what?"

"You would call it tea," he explained in slow painstaking English; "but you will not recognize it as the same."

Then we learned that the Russians always drink their tea hot and in glasses instead of cups—into which, the Cossack explained, they drop a few spoonful of "Varenya," or mixed jams of various sorts.

"I've never tasted anything as delicious," I declared; "it's just like punch. When I go home I'm going to serve it this way all the time."

Tchertkov was pleased.

"If Madame finds that pleasant to the taste she will be en-paradisised with the next course of which we are about to partake."

The courses were served in small portions which made the entire meal appetizing and because, too, the wine was almost morning, we relished the tempting food.

"Now pyroschki," he announced, passing what I presumed to be cakes.

"Flap-jacks and chees," avowed Curtiss, after the first bite.

"Something with cheese—yes and something with sweets between and sometimes with caviar," agreed our host.

"And what is this last, the desert?" I inquired, "it's much better than our ice cream, though they're not unlike."

"It's sugared frost or Sacharni-Moroz," he said. "When I was a boy, I remember the man coming around shouting 'Sacharni-Moroz!' I would rush to the window and there they would stand with Sacharni-Moroz under their hats—which as you know are very tall."

We laughed gayly.

"It's sugared-frost," I repeated. "Sacharni-Moroz. It has a musical lilt almost like a frog-song."

"Yes," agreed Lemoine. "Imagine just plain ice cream being called by anything as poetic as that."

The repast finished, we settled down comfortably for a talk.

"Won't you tell us something about yourself?" I asked. "And your friends. I assure you its not from curiosity I ask, but from sincere and friendly interest."

His face, which had been wreathed in smiles, now grew sad.

"There is not much one can say," he said; "only that we are fortunate to have got out and not waited until the last. We are young and can start up the hill again, but the old ones—uggr," his eyes narrowed with sudden hate, "they are the ones who have suffered and lost."

"Have you many friends here?" Andre Moliere asked.

"Yes, but with them all it is the same. Besides our entertainers I know one who is very brave. Princess Ouroussoff, who has been reared to believe that Life was all sunshine and song. Her palace was confiscated—also her beautiful jewels and her furs. Now she takes in paying guests at a small house in Boulevard Berthier. At times she even cooks. Her daughter, a beautiful young girl, works all day as a milliner in a crowded shop for a mere pittance—less than she gave to her maid at home."

I looked at Lemoine, who touched her handkerchief to her eyes; my own were moist. Instantly we felt untold sympathy for those of our own sex, realizing what a struggle it would be to relinquish all the little luxuries that are woven close in woman's heart.

"But let us speak of better things," suggested our host. "I make my apology; I did not mean to mention it at all," he said, perceiving the pity we felt, but which was silently expressed. The room was small, so I moved my small chapeau.

"Oh, your hair, Madame, it is short!" he exclaimed, with a shocked surprise in his voice.

"Yes, I waited and clung to my hair-pins until the last," I replied. "In fact, until I was unable to buy a hat. The milliners would give me a patronizing look and say, 'Well, of course if you just won't bob, you can't expect to find a hat that will go on over all that'"

OFFICIAL METHOD FOR DUSTING COTTON FLEA.

The recommendations adopted by the cotton flea conference based on the new Texas agricultural experiment station bulletin:

"Dusting with sublimed flowers of sulphur at the rate of twelve to fifteen pounds per acre in each of three or four applications at intervals of ten to twelve days in the early stages of the insect."

"If later applications are necessary the interval should be reduced to eight days."

"Where sublimed sulphur can not be had, fair results may be obtained commercial flour of sulphur, although the dosage should be increased."

"The instructions contained in Bulletin No. 339, published by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, based upon studies made of the flea in Texas by H. J. Reibhard, assistant entomologist of the station, were tried upon Texas farmers, also."

"The recent bulletin issued by B. R. Coad of the United States Bureau of Entomology, stationed at Delta Laboratory, at Tallulah, La., recommend:

"Superfine sulphur (ground so fine that at least 95 percent will pass through a 200-mesh sieve). Flowers of sulphur is almost as effective as superfine, where the latter is not available, says Mr. Coad."

Mr. Coad's method is:

"Ten pounds of superfine sulphur or flowers of sulphur per acre under conditions similar to those used in dusting calcium arsenate (calm air, preferably early morning or evening). Follow the first application at an interval of four or five days, as it is important to make the first two applications in heavily infested fields."

"Four or five days after the second dusting, the field should be carefully examined and further applications made at five-day intervals whenever there is an abundance of fleas or blasted squares."

"Rains within twenty-four hours after sulphur has been applied will make it necessary to apply sulphur again."

hair. I really didn't have so much, but they seemed to think that any below your ears is positively antique. Why, don't the girls in Russia wear their hair short?"

"Most certainly not, Madame." He was almost dramatic in his response. "Shall I tell you why?"

"Yes; do," I cried.

TERRORIZING MOTORISTS

On Sunday on the O. S. T. ten miles below Comfort, a negro, named Jack Hardy, who was intoxicated, frightened a number of people in cars. He charged the cars with his horse telling the occupants that he was "the law," and wished to search the cars for liquor. Among those azeited were Mr. and Mrs. H. Zeiler of Boerne. Hardy forced his horse onto the hood of their car, imprints of the horse's hoofs being left on it. Help was summoned and Hardy was apprehended and placed behind the bars of the county jail.—Comfort News.

A deplorable theft occurred at the celebration here this week. Two brand new Ford cars were deliberately driven away just at dusk Tuesday evening. One of them was a coupe owned by E. S. Fairchild of this place and the other a new roadster owned by Ab. Smith, at Llano. No report of their recovery has reached us at this time.—Harper Herald.

Another feature that we hope will make The Eagle a more popular home paper is the editorial column from the versatile pen of Will H. Myers, former head of the School of Journalism of the University of Texas. Mr. Myers is familiar with every phase of the development of this State, and his writings on State topics are not unlike those of Arthur Brisbane on National topics. We are glad to present these articles, and to assure our readers that we are sparing no efforts to give them the very best home paper that our ability and patronage permits.

IS THE CHURCH IN DANGER?

If you tell 500 men that the church is in danger, they are no more concerned than if you had said it was going to rain. If you tell them the State is in danger, you see them rushing to arms in its defense.

The State cannot produce morality and spirituality—but it cannot exist without them. It lives on the morality engendered and fostered by religion.

Men are always efficient of the church. They forget that it is the only organization pledged to morality and spirituality. They forget that its foundation is sound as the Rock of Ages.

The church thrives on numbers. It works through its active supporters. It needs more than financial support. It must have the active personal cooperation of all good citizens if it is to overcome the dangers in modern social conditions.

Non-church groups, though they be personally above reproach, work a part of their duty to the State and to their fellow men. Problems of morality and spirituality can be solved only through religious influence. The church alone is organized to disseminate moral influence and the solution of these problems is vital to the State.

The church needs you. The church needs the people. You need the church and the State. Drive yourself a good church, drive your neighbors one. The good church you have in this country is a shame to our country.

There are several phases of church in Junction. Surely you are interested in one of these and promote the well-being of yourself, the church and the State. Try it next Sunday!

ENJOY GETTING AT CAMP ALLISON.

More than 3,000 people from over a wide area in West Texas, as far south as Del Rio and north to San Angelo, enjoyed the two days' picnic which closed Wednesday night at Camp Allison, or Cedar Hill. It was the biennial get-together on the banks of the Llano, with candidates for office defraying the expense. The celebration was one of the most complete and orderly ever conducted at Camp Allison, which is 25 miles east of Sanora on the Old Spanish Trail.

Although candidates for district, county and precinct offices of many political subdivisions were present, only one political speech was made. This was by Erwin Montague of Del Rio, former district attorney of the first district, who set forth the merits of Dan Moody's case. Eric Larriere was served at noon and night, both Tuesday and Wednesday; there were western sports each afternoon and a dance on a platform each evening to music by the "Black Diamonds" of San Antonio.

Most of those attending the celebration brought their camping outfits for a several days' stay. Towns represented included Junction, Menard, Sanora, Rocksprings, Kerroville, Mason, Eldorado, Del Rio, and San Angelo.

LOOT!
BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

I. "Set a Thief to Take a Thief"

"SET a thief to take a thief"—that ancient axiom may or may not have been penned in the year 1626, but as events in the life of one Capt. William Kidd, turned out that's what it finally amounted to. For Captain Kidd, the most famous freebooter in all history, started out as an avowed enemy of pirates. His becoming a pirate himself was an afterthought, and probably as much a surprise to him as it was to certain influential friends of his who were expecting him to put rich profits in their pockets.

For when Captain Kidd sailed from Plymouth for New York in the spring of 1696 in the little galley "Adventure," he bore the commission of his majesty, King William III, to go forth and take four notorious sea robbers, Captains Too, Ireland, Wake and Maze, "who daily commit many and great piracies, robberies and depredations upon the seas of America and in other parts and also all such pirates, freebooters and sea rovers, being our own subjects, or of any other nations associated with them, which you shall meet upon the coast or seas of America or in any other seas."

The commission had been obtained for him by Earl Bellmont, the newly appointed governor of New York, a Colonel Livingston of that colony, and several English noblemen who had formed a company to finance the enterprise. In addition to capturing pirates and keeping whatever property could be obtained from these outlaws of the sea, Captain Kidd was also empowered to prey upon the shipping of France, England's traditional enemy. Such prizes, however, must be brought to the nearest British port and there disposed of by the proper authorities.

Kidd sailed 80 seamen in England and 80 more in New York. He had little difficulty in securing just the men for such an expedition. To some of them the lure of rich legalized looting was ample inducement. Each man was to share equally in the spoils, after 25 per cent of their winnings had been deducted for the company. To others, whose past would not bear close inspection, a voyage just at this moment was a blessing, and going aboard the Adventure was a matter of keeping two jumps ahead of the law, whereas remaining on shore meant the usual one jump ahead.

So with his double-barreled commission and his crew of these choice characters, Captain Kidd cast off the lines of the Adventure from a wharf in the Hudson river and headed south. Madagascar on the east coast of Africa was his goal. No pirate-hunting "upon the seas of America" for him. His commission also said "other seas and ports" and Madagascar, which came within that category, was the haven of the ocean highwaymen who preyed upon the East Indian trade.

MADE-OVER PEOPLE

(By Wesley Peacock, Ph. B.)
Jack Earl of El Paso, at the age of 20 towers 8 feet, 6 inches tall. At twelve he was 6 feet, 10 inches. Apparently he is normal in mind.

A booklet has just come from a so-called research laboratory manufacturing glandular extracts for the rejuvenation of men and women in their old age or in premature impotency. It is an appeal to a vital state of mind and body, and is interesting to all people of advanced age, for every one seeks the fountain of perennial youth, even as the Spaniard sought it in the new world.

How is the average reader to know the merits or demerits of concoctions offered to the public and allowed the freedom of the mail and the press, though both of these agencies are devoted to the suppression of fraud and the protection of the people?

The circular reads: "You have the same desires as all men. You want to be strong and brimful of youthful fire. You feel that fate has been unkind to you in depriving you of these things." Then follows a long list of symptoms that characterize any person of mature years, which by the power of suggestion brings a trial order for the "elixir of life."

This particular remedy may or may not be of therapeutic value. It would be difficult to prove fraud in the advertisement by mail because the proprietors would produce testimonials claiming miraculous cures—some real, some imaginary. Any "medicine" will cure some people. Fraud is based on fact, else it wouldn't be fraud. If there were no physicians there would be no quacks. Your best friend and advisor in health is the man who studies and ought to know, namely, your family physician, who will advise you to take or not to take glandular extracts, which, if taken at all, must be taken under medical direction.

Some of the glands of external secretion are tear glands and salivary glands. Some of the glands of internal secretion are the liver, the pancreas, and the thyroid. Psychologists study the effects of the glands of internal secretion upon the mind; the body, and the emotions; about a dozen all together, yet they determine the size, height, and shape of the body, and regulate the bodily functions to such an extent as to make or spoil the health, emotions, personality and happiness of the individual.

The young El Paso giant is the victim of the pituitary body no larger than a pea, situated at the base of the brain midway between the ears, which in his case ran wild in his youth and forgo to tell him when to stop growing. If the same gland had gone to sleep, or had been diseased, he might have become a midget, like Chemah, whose height was only 28 inches.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By E. R. Waite)
Professor R. L. Jones, Superintendent of the schools of Memphis, Tennessee, and formerly State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Tennessee, made the following statement relative to the status of the youth of today, compared to the youth of the preceding generation:

"Changes wrought by inventions that have changed the economic conditions of the people and modified their social life cannot help but have its influence on the young. The youth of former days lived on the farm and had plenty of work to do. Today the majority of them live in the city with little to do outside of attending school. Work and early responsibilities had a steady influence on the youth of the preceding generation.

"However, the youth of today is as sound at heart, possesses more wisdom, is better advanced in book learning, though less skilled in manual work, than the preceding generation.

"If there is any falling down in our social organization, it is due to the breaking down of the home and not to the school, for the discipline in the schools of the country today is better than at any period in the history of the past. The chief conduct problems that the schools meet with grow out of the broken home, where father and mother either live together in constant disagreement or they have separated and left the children robbed of the paternal training and care, which every child is due.

The children of the present generation, in my opinion, taken as a whole, are the most promising bunch of youngsters that have ever lived on earth."

LONDON RED CREEK NEWS

Last Saturday was a big day for London. Everybody came to town to vote, even those from the forks of the creek, who rarely ever come to town, were there to help make the nominations. Quite a crowd remained in town Saturday night to get the results of the county officers over the telephone, and State officers over the radio. The election passed quietly and orderly here; all used good judgment in voting and most all are pleased over the nominations that have been made in the first primary.

We've had several nice little rains of late here and crops are still green. Water melons are fine this year, and we're living "just right" now.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Amaon are making a business trip to San Antonio this week. Mrs. Vera King will have charge of the store while they are away.

Miss Alma Hamilton of the Little Saline country and John Cain of Yates were united in marriage recently.

London's base ball team was out for practice last Saturday afternoon.

A number of young people from the Red Creek and Yates countries motored to Seven Hundred Springs Sunday to spend a pleasant day at one of Kibbly County's natural places of beauty.

Mrs. Flossie McDonald of San Antonio is at London for a visit with her mother, Mrs. P. L. Cummins.

Present the latest reports over radio Saturday night, it seems as if "Daddy the Bear" was "in the ball" as well as "Daddy" Morgan, and his other opponents, and in spite of the fact that his governmental ability may not be up to the highest standard of efficiency, (as some say it isn't).

We would like to see Kibbly County have its annual fair this year, because we believe that even though the fair is rather a miniature affair, that it is worth while in that it stimulates a deeper interest in the development of better livestock and farm products of our section. We see it this way and would be glad to get to the "fair bit" beyond anything if a success.

(For sale for last week.)

A fine rain fell throughout the London and Red Creek sections on Tuesday, July 27. The amount of rain which fell varied in different parts, ranging from one-half inch to two inches. It was of great benefit to crops.

Mr. Guthrie Williams, candidate for County Treasurer, was in London Saturday in the interest of his campaign. He also extended his trip through the Red Creek country.

Messrs. A. G. Farmer, Roy Slaggs and J. A. Browning, were down from Junction last Saturday to talk with the London voters.

On next Saturday, July 24th, there will be held the first primary election. We might designate this as a cutting or thinning day, since a large number of candidates will be eliminated on that day. With each elimination there will also be removed a suspense which will be a relief to the poor defeated candidate.

E. L. McKinney, London merchant, has been engaged of late in hauling water melons from the Streeter country to San Angelo.

Mrs. Jessie Sammons of Red Creek was a Junction visitor last Monday.

Several tourists from Eastman County are camping on the Llano near the John Adams ferry fishing and resting.

Mr. Lee, a traveling salesman, passed through this country Friday, taking orders for a book known as "The Christian Helper."

CARD OF THANKS

Words for expressing feelings when we come to thank our friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness and assistance, and words spoken during the long illness and after the death of our dear husband and father.

For these many kind acts and expressions of sympathy, we extend our sincere heartfelt gratitude, and assure you that in this hour of grief, we appreciated your loving kindness and shall always hold dear in our memories the things you did and said.

Mrs. E. S. Hoggett and Children

A. W. Loeffler and Floyd Jackson went to Houston the first of the week and will probably return today with some Fred Cary. Mrs. Loeffler accompanied them as far as San Antonio and will go on to Seguin to visit relatives and will be accompanied home by her mother, Mrs. Dockery, who has been visiting in Seguin.

Miss Tyler Wilkinson spent the week-end with Mrs. E. Allen

UN-OFFICIAL COUNT OF SATURDAY'S ELECTION

The following tabulation of last Saturday's election in this county has been carefully compared and checked with official reports from election officers and it is thought that the results are accurate in every detail, but it will be recalled that the canvass of the results will not be made until next Saturday, and until that time there are no "Official Returns," and The Eagle assumes no responsibility for the absolute accuracy of the tabulation below, further than care and diligence in getting the returns from reports.

In cases where there was no competition for office, the name of the candidate is not shown. In another column will be found the vote given the leading candidates for State officers. The entire list of candidates and the tabulated vote of each is omitted as uninteresting detail matter.

ADVERTISING, SECRET MERCHANTS' SUCCESS.

A small town merchant who has this past year done a cash business of $1,200,000.00 in a town of 906 people, will be the principle speaker at the United Merchants of Texas convention at San Antonio on July 26th, 27th and 28th, according to C. C. Wolfe, secretary of the United Merchants of Texas.

Mr. Otho Mooney of the B. & O. Cash Store of Temple, Oklahoma, who did this enormous business in a small town, attributes most of his success to his advertising in his hometown newspaper.

"No one would care to read the same news on the front page of each issue of a newspaper," Mr. Mooney declares, "and they as well do not want to see the same store advertisement in each issue. A store advertisement should be changed with each issue of the paper and due regard should be given to news of the store as well as to the bargains offered for that particular issue."

Mr. Otho Mooney's store does more business in a small town than any other merchant in the United States, and the conditions of his trade territory are not the best. Temple is a town of 906 population, located in a county of only 16,479 people. Cotton County is just what its name implies—a county where over one-half of the annual wealth comes from the production of cotton. In a one-crop country, it is usually considered necessary by merchants to sell merchandise on full terms. Mr. Mooney has applied to his business the best merchandising methods by constant study of practices of successful merchants all over the country. He has always sold for cash. Beginning in 1906 with an annual business the first year of $31,000.00, he has expanded his business to its present volume of over $1,000,000.

Mr. Mooney does not consider that he has done anything extraordinary in having built up such an enormous business. He says that any merchant who will base his practices in business on methods which have been proven successful by other merchants, can increase his business from year to year. Mr. Mooney's sales people meet regularly to discuss all matters of interest to them and the store, and to receive instructions on new items of merchandise which may have been added, and resale instructions.

COPPERAS.

Revival meeting begins Sunday, August 1st. The preaching will be done by the pastor, and the music will be in the hands of the local church people.

Let us join together and work, plan and pray for real spiritual life of the church, and the salvation of the lost.

We earnestly covet the prayers, sympathy and co-operation of the whole community, and all the Christian people.

Let's all come with happy hearts Sunday, and have a glorious day.

Services each day at 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m.

J. Virgil Davis, Pastor.

ANOTHER WOLF SCALP.

Oscar Greenwood had the good fortune of trapping a two-year-old female wolf last week and brought the scalp in to collect the bounty paid by the county. Mr. Greenwood, as well as his neighbors and all stockmen in general, was proud of this catch, for one female wolf killed now will doubtless mean a dozen or less within the next two or three years.

L. S. HOGGETT DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Louis S. Hoggett, a resident of Kimble County since 1902, and of Junction since 1912, died at his home in Junction early Sunday morning and was buried at the local cemetery that afternoon at 5 o'clock. Rev. J. Virgil Davis, pastor of the Methodist Church, conducting the services at the grave.

Deceased was born in Dewitt County, August 10, 1856. For many years he resided in Gonzales County, from which county he moved to Kimble, with his family in 1902, and settled on what is now known as the Ward ranch. After ranching in the Noxville country for about ten years, the family moved to Junction.

On November 7, 1888, he married Miss Terressa Griffin in Gonzales County. To them were born nine children, eight of whom survive. They are: Messrs. Mansfield of Sonora, Marlin of Rockspings, Jack of Noxville, and Pierce and Roy of Junction; Mrs. Tom Davis of Sonora, and Misses Edna and Ruth Lee of Junction. One sister, who lives in Gonzales County, survives him.

All the children were here for the funeral and had been almost constant attendance at his bedside for weeks, as it has been known for weeks that he would not recover and that death might come at any moment. For more than five months he has suffered intensely, while everything possible was done for him.

A large crowd gathered at the cemetery Sunday afternoon to the people of this county to which he was held as a citizen of the community, and the funeral offering was large and a beautiful tribute to his memory.

NEAR-BY ELECTIONS.

From the San Antonio Daily paper reports, it appears that Harry M. Wurzbach, present incumbent, defeated Fred E. Knetsch, former Kimble County attorney, and a member of the local firm of Stevenson, Baker & Knetsch, by a majority of about 5 to 1, for Republican nominee for Congress in the 14th District.

Mr. Wurzbach is the only Republican member of Congress from Texas and will be opposed in the November election by a Democratic candidate in that District.

Thos. L. Blanton defeated his opponent, Judge Smith of Barnett County, by a heavy majority for Democratic nominee for Congress in the 15th District. John L. Garner of Uvalde defeated his opponent, Sid Hardin, by a heavy majority, for Congress in the 17th District. Congressman Hudspeth of this District was unopposed.

In Menard County, there is to be a run-off between Cecil Walton and P. G. Baird. In Concho County, Will Warren defeated Bob Miller; Mr. Warren is a brother of Leonard Warren of this place, while Mr. Miller has become rather widely known as the "largest" sheriff in Texas, and a few years ago attracted considerable attention in his trial for the killing of Tom Bengo, a Concho County ranchman.

In Sutton County, B. W. Hutchinson was re-elected by a large majority. No primary for county officers was held in Kerr and Edwards Counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Packett, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Shirley and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Lowrey, all of Sonora, were here Sunday to attend the funeral of L. L. Hoggett. A number of people from the Noxville community were also here.

ELECTRICITY IS A VERSATILE HIRED HAND.

In addressing the recent Nebraska electric convention which was the subject of rural electrification was under discussion, Commissioner H. C. Taylor urged that the economies of electricity on the farm must be given first thought. Among his remarks he said: "Rural electrification, like all other business will 'shake down' ultimately to the basis of sound economic practice. Stated simply, that means that it will not be successful or satisfactory until it pays a reasonable profit to both the farmer and the utility. Part of the profit to the farmer may be reflected in the added comfort and convenience which he will derive from the use of electricity, but he will never realize a permanent satisfaction until he can utilize it economically as a substitute for other power on the farm.

"In the pioneering stage and as a part of a program for the development of the fullest possible use of electricity, the utility may be justified in making concessions as to initial cost, but the purpose of such a policy should be frankly disclosed and continually emphasized so that no misunderstanding develops. The experiments now under way in several states constitute a very practical and sensible approach to the problem. Electricity would make a versatile 'hired hand.' Let us hope that the alluring prospects involved in its adaptation to farm life may be fully realized."

MORE ELECTION RETURNS.

In the Justice Precinct No. 1, the vote was Wright 311; Holcomb 251. The two leading candidates for each of the State offices received the following votes in this county: Attorney General—Bradfield, 236; Chief Justice, 232. Treasurer—Christian, 159; Hatcher, 198. State Superintendent of Public Instruction—Mairs, 357; Bennett, 316. Land Commissioner—Robison, 640; Terrell, 443. Railroad Commissioner—Terrell, 482; Baugman, 411. Court of Criminal Appeals—Lawkins, 487; Pearson, 631. Commissioner of Agriculture—George B. Terrell had his opponent about 9 to 1.

17 Commissioner's Precinct numbers three and four, there were no contests. R. W. Fisher was re-elected for Precinct No. 3, and H. W. Bierschwale succeeds R. R. King in Precinct No. 4. As shown by the tabulations elsewhere, the present commissioners of Precincts No. 1 and No. 2, were re-elected and the court will be composed as heretofore, with the exception of Mr. Bierschwale. In Precinct No. 2, Mr. Ragsdale received a majority of ten over both his opponents.

Rev. Zimmerman failed to get a single vote in this county, while the two lady candidates for Governor received three votes each.

Allen R. Phelps and Miss Mildred Lefste were happily married in Junction last Saturday afternoon. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Sebring Phelps who purchased the Jones ranch and moved to the Segovia community shortly after the first of the year. The bride is a daughter of Frank Lefste, also a resident of that community. Both have many friends around Segovia who will join in congratulating them and who will be glad to know that they are to make their home there.

L. Beasley shipped a double-deck of mutton sheep to Fort Worth last week that averaged 90 pounds and sold for $8.25.

MEETING OF JUNCTION HOTEL STOCKHOLDERS.

The stockholders of the Junction Hotel Company met last Monday and elected a board of directors as follows: Robert Peal, George W. Fry, J. A. Heyman, Walter G. Loeffler and Emil A. Loeffler. After this meeting the directors elected their officers as follows: J. A. Heyman, President; Robert Peal, Vice-President; George W. Fry, 2nd Vice-President; and Emil A. Loeffler, Secretary-Treasurer.

Messrs. Loeffler, Heyman and Sellers, (Mr. Sellers representing Mr. Fry), were in San Antonio Friday where bids for the new hotel were opened. Some changes are yet to be made, but it is thought that the bids will be let within the next few days and construction work started within thirty days on the hotel in a reduced size from the original plans.

SPECIAL SESSION: "MA" TO RESIGN NOVEMBER 1.

Austin, July 26.—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson Monday issued her proclamation calling a special session of the Legislature for September 13. Announced her withdrawal from the race for governor, whether or not Moody has a majority, and under further announcement that she will resign her office no later than November 1.

This announcement came after a day of uncertainty, conferences and much speculation as to what the governor would do in response to her loss of the "sager to Moody to resign if she did not lead in last Saturday's primary election. Her answer came unexpectedly after a long conference had been held with former United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Dallas. It is known that Bailey advised that the best course for the governor was to resign and to withdraw from the gubernatorial race.

Governor Ferguson does not fix a definite date for her resignation as governor, but says it will not be later than November 1st. Should she resign on that date it would have 79 days left. Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller to serve as governor, and also continue her office for 90 more days. Moody is to be inaugurated as governor on the third Tuesday in January, 1927.

In announcing a special session of the Legislature the governor issued a signed statement addressed to the people of Texas giving her reasons and setting out the special session. It contains two subjects and the usual clause reserving the right to submit additional matters. The first topic tendered is that of bond validation and the second the investigation of any State Department. The last is done, she said, in order to show that she was not afraid to call a session for investigation, as had been charged during the campaign.

Rance McDonald and his sisters, Misses Luetta and Ruby of Elm Springs, Arkansas, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Jones this week. They had been visiting in Kerrville and went from here to Eldorado to visit other relatives. Their father, Sam McDonald, formerly lived in this county, as the Jones and McDonald families are close friends.

Frank Cowser, who was here for the past month assisting S. O. Durst as deputy game warden, has been returned to the Valley by the department, and is now stationed at Brownsville.

MENARD BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT IN AUGUST.

The following is published at the request of Rev. Arnsperger of the Menard Baptist Church, on account of its general interest, and the fact that it is one of the most important religious gatherings in West Texas, and in our neighbor city. In writing the Eagle, Rev. Arnsperger extends his personal invitation to attend the high esteem in attend the encampment.—Editor's Note.

Beginning August 6th and continuing for ten days, of delightful fellowship.

We are proud to present to the people of this section, one of the best, tabernacles, and camping arrangements in Texas which serves adequately every way. We extend to all people of all faiths a very cordial invitation to come and camp during the entire ten days.

Our aim is Inspirational, Educational and Evangelistic accomplishments. We have secured for this year's Encampment an efficient faculty for the B.Y.P.U., Sunday School, and W.M.U. work. Dr. M. E. Davis will teach studies in Galatians. Mr. T. E. Ames will have charge of hand sports in the afternoon. This feature will be an interesting one. All the afternoon will be given over to recreation. There will be plenty of room for all, and for every kind of recreation. We have between forty and fifty acres which stretches for half a mile along the banks of the San Saba River.

Dr. L. R. Scarborough, of Ft. Worth Baptist Seminary is to be with us again this year and will lead us in the Evangelistic efforts. Mr. E. L. Carnett of the Gospel Music Department of the Ft. Worth Seminary will be associated with Dr. Scarborough and will lead in song services. These men need no introduction to the people of Texas. Their works have proven them. We have a number of prominent laymen who will give addresses. Besides our beloved Secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, Dr. F. S. Griner will also be with us. Some of the speakers who will be here are: Dr. T. E. Godbold; Dr. J. M. Carroll; Dr. T. C. Gardner; Dr. J. C. Hardy; and W. A. Harrell. A number of representatives will from our colleges and universities will be here. The following colleges and universities will likely be represented: Simmons University, Baylor University; Carroll College; San Marcos Baptist Academy; Baylor College, Belton; Howard Payne College.

The people of Menard, all faiths and no faiths, join in extending an invitation to the people of all Texas to come and be with us during the ten days Encampment. A safe will be on the grounds, as well as other refreshments. If you have a tent, cot, stove, etc., load them in and come. If you desire either of all these, please notify A. L. Joplin, Menard, Texas, at least five days ahead of time, and they will be secured for you.

Bring your musical instruments, and come with heart reparation and join with us in making this 1926 year's Encampment one to be remembered by all who attend.

For further information write J. W. Arnsperger, President Encampment, Menard, Texas.

No entrance fee—no charges for camping.

Henry Schild and wife passed through Junction this week after visiting relatives in North Texas, and expect to make their home at Medina Lake in the future.
