Vance To Mideast

LAJES AIR BASE, Azores (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was bound for the Middle East today to try to head off a complete breakdown in peace initiatives between Israel and Egypt.

Unless Vance succeeds in getting negotiations going again, his five-day mission could lead to new steps by President Carter to mediate the dispute.

The secretary of state stopped for three hours at the U.S. air base here so his plane could be refueled and so he would not arrive in Israel before the end of the Jewish sabbath. He did not talk to reporters during the flight across the Atlantic.

PLO Office Attacked

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) - Gunmen stormed the Palestine Liberation Organization office here today and killed three Palestinians and a Pakistani policeman.

It was the latest in a series of almost daily attacks in a week-long, worldwide war of terror between pro-Iraqi radicals and the PLO.

Frank Fontaine Dies

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) - Frank Fontaine, noted for his "Crazy Guggenheim" role on the old Jackie Gleason television show, collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack Friday night at the Spokane Opera House.

Authorities said Fontaine, 58, died just offstage after an appearance at the international convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

MISS AJRA CONTESTANTS - Tanya Boydstun (left) and Jamie Hataway (center) are Scurry County's nominees in the Miss AJRA contest. Mandy Tubb, (right) the current Miss AJRA, wishes them luck. Every year AJRA members nominate and elect a Miss AJRA. This year's winner will be named during Friday night's performance of the National Finals that kick off Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Coliseum and continue each evening through Saturday. Other Miss AJRA contestants are Sabrina Pike, Albuquerque, N.M.; Carola Cox, Meridian; Pam Powers, Sonora and Sharla Howard, Lamesa. (SDN Staff Photo)

BORDEN COUNTY'S AJRA CONTESTANTS - These youths are among those in Borden County who competed on the American Junior Rodeo Assocation circuit this season. On the bottom row (l to r) are Mayme McLaury, Cody Newton, Becky Miller, Brice Key and Gayla Newton. On the top row are Troy Rinehart, Keil Williams, Talley Griffin, Kelly Williams and Tracy McLaury. All but Kelly and Tracy have qualified for the national finals and they were still in the running Friday with one more rodeo to go in Odessa this weekend. (SDN Staff Photo)

The SDN Column

The Rev. Johathan K. Jensen, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, says he was interested in a recent item in this column about the tourists who observed the King of Norway without body guards and were told that all of the citizens were his security force.

Rev. Jensen, who does not hesitate to tell you that he is proud of his Danish "Viking" heritage, thought we might be interested in tracing this observation to its "roots," and we were. It seems that the Scandinavian people (Denmark, Norway, Sweden) take pride in their devotion to traditions such as this.

"The original incident, as I am familiar with it," says Rev. Hensen, "involves the Danish King Christian X. He was a heroic symbol during the Naxi occupation when he continued to take his customary daily horseback ride through Copenhagen's streets, unescorted. It was the occupying Germans who expressed astonishment that he was unguarded and the reply was "we are all his bodyguards."

Rev. Jensen says another story of Christian X, which was part of the dialogue in the motion picture 'Exodus,' was that on the day that Danish Jews were ordered by the occupying Nazis to wear armbands to identify themselves as Jews, the king appeared wearing an armband with the Star of David.

"Thus, he identified with even a minority group of his subjects, and, as a member of the Danish Lutheran State Church, marked himself as a son of Israel," Rev. Jensen said.

"The Danes are staunch allies of the U.S. and NATO and the largest 4th of July celebration outside the U.S. is held each year in Denmark, I believe near Ringe. I am proud of my Danish Viking heritage and the country of seven million where Jensen is perhaps the most common surname."

Rev. Jensen said he was looking forward to meeting a Danish exchange student who is coming to Rotan this month.

This nation has never expressed much interest in monarchies, and of course they are mere symbols in the European nations who still have them. But, during World War II, the world had an opportunity to see some evidence that these symbols had a unifying effect on their people in a time of crisis. Even bitter adversaries in the British Parliament usually held the crown in mutual respect. That factor, plus Sir Winston Churchill's persuasive oratory seemed to put a little extra backbone in the British people.

Carter Pledges...

US To Maintain Strong Military

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)- President Carter today commissioned a $262-million nuclear-powered cruiser, the USS Mississippi, in deference to that state's powerful Sen. John C. Stennis. Carter pledged, "We have not - and we will not - become a second-rate power."

In his prepared remarks, the president praised Stennis, saying it was "fitting that this new guided missile cruiser be named for the home state of a man who has done so much to keep our nation safe and strong."

Although the administration has cut the Navy's proposed shipbuilding plan in half, Carter sought to reassure his audience that the Navy will remain strong.

"I have pledged as president - and as a Navy man - that the United States will maintain military - and naval - forces second to none," he said.

The president noted that he served on the last USS Mississippi, a World War II battleship converted into an experimental gunnery and radar ship, when he was stationed in Norfolk as a young naval officer.

Stennis, the powerful Democrat who heads the Senate Armed Services Committee, invited Carter to commission the ship, the Navy's eighth nuclear-powered cruiser.

Stennis' committee is instrumental in deciding the fate of the administration's defense programs.

The 11,000-ton cruiser, with a crew of more than 500, will join the Atlantic fleet surface force, according to James Johnston, a spokesman for the Norfolk Naval Air Station.

Carter was then heading to Wilson, N.C., in the heart of tobacco country, to try to soothe tobacco farmers angered by the administration's anti-smoking campaign and to help a Democrat challenging conservative Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

City Budget Due Hearing Monday

The Snyder City Council is scheduled to put the finishing touches on a budget for the city's fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 at its regular meeting Monday night.

The first action item on the agenda is a public hearing on the new budget to be presented by City Manager George Patterson.

The proposed budget totals $2,858,650, which is up some $121,184, or four percent, above the 1977-78 budget.

Most of the increase stems from anticipated higher cost of electrical power and for water purchases from the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Water District.

The city's electric bill is expected to increase by $40,000 and its CRMWD bill is due to increase by $66,000 for a total increase of $106,000 for these two items.

The new budget proposes a tax rate of $1.85 per $100 valuation, the same as for the past decade. Valuations are expected to increase from $28.5 million to $30 million, and the budget is based on the same 40 per cent assessment ratio as the past several years.

The budget hearing will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Following the budget presentation, the council will continue with its regular business session which has several items on its agenda. One is a request by Ainbinder Associates to change zoning on 59.181 acres north of 37th Street and east of College Avenue to a commercial zone. Land in the tract now touches several zoning districts. The property has been designated as the site of a shopping mall.

Also included on the agenda is consideration of a request to approve a replat of Snyder Oaks Addition as requested by Robert T. Helton. The property involved is due to be the site for eight duplex dwellings. Both the Ainbinder and Helton requests have been approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

AJRA Set For Finals

Rodeo season opens again here Tuesday when hundreds of young cowboys and cowgirls begin competition in the American Junior Rodeo Association's National Finals.

The five-day show will end Saturday night when world champions will be crowned and a big list of prizes will be awarded.

All performances will be in the Scurry County Coliseum. There will be competition in bareback bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, team roping, bull riding, goat tying, pole bending and barrel racing.

The competitors will be youngsters affiliated with the American Junior Rodeo Association who have qualified for the national finals while competing on the AJRA circuit during the past season.

The AJRA is 25 years old and now has a membership of some 850 youngsters. Around 400 of them are qualified to compete in the AJRA finals this year.

The list of qualifiers indicates substantial growth for the AJRA in recent years. This is the third year for Snyder to host the national finals, and the first show here in 1976 had less than 300 qualified to compete.

Among feature events are the National Finals Queen's Contest and the Miss AJRA contest.

There are five candidates for the National Finals Queen. They are Christi

Ask Us

Q - With a so called energy crisis going on, why do the lights burn in the day time at the junior high?

A - Bill Sealy, director of transportation and maintenance for Snyder Schools, says that, unlike the lights at the high school which are controlled by an electric eye, the lights at the junior high must be turned off and on manually. They were left burning this summer to discourage vandalism at night. Sealy said it would cost more in money and energy to send a man to the Junior High each morning and evening to turn off and on the lights than it would save. However, he said, a maintenance crew is now working at the school and the lights are turned off each morning and back on again each evening at 5 p.m.

WTC Seeks Housing For Fall Students

There is a waiting list for on-campus student housing at Western Texas College for the fall term and college officials are seeking possible places for students to live in town.

All dormitory space has been reserved on the campus, but applications are still being taken and put on a waiting list. WTC officials hope to be able to compile a list of available rooms and-or apartments.

A coupon on Page 6A of this issue of the Snyder Daily News has a coupon which people with available housing are asked to fill out and send to the WTC housing office. They need to know the type, size and location of rooms and-or apartments, whether they are furnished or unfurnished, number of tenants they will accommodate, any restrictions, etc. More information may be obtained by calling the college house office.

Snyderite Boosts Art Of Horseshoe Pitching

By JOHN LONG

George Stewart fears horseshoe pitching is becoming a lost art, and he wants to resurrect it. "Nobody takes the time to master the sport. There's no interest in it like there used to be," he moaned over a hot cup of tea.

When not pitching horseshoes, Stewart is the manager of the local C-E Natco office. He has lived in Snyder since 1954, but he has been pitching horseshoes much longer than that.

Stewart has been pitching horseshoes for about 40 of his 54 years. H was first exposed to it as a high school student in Kansas. Back then even school playgrounds were equipped with a horseshoe pitching range.

It is not, however, a kid's game, Stewart cautioned. "It's not a kid's game until you get pretty good sized. The horseshoes are heavy," he explained.

Stewart prefers 2½-pound horseshoes, although 3½-pounders are available. The advantage of the 2½-pounder, he said, is "it's lighter and I can control it better. Also, you don't get as tired."

Control is the name of the game. The object is to score a ringer at 40 feet, if you are a man, or at 30 feet if you are a woman.

Control is what guides the horseshoe to the stake, and there is a variety of pitches to choose from.

Stewart said his favorite is the flat pitch in which Hearing Monday...

Wet Abilene To Shut Impact

IMPACT (AP)-James Rhodes said he voted "dry" in the recent liquor election in Abilene because he fears the effect that alcohol has on his fellow man. Another reason could have been to preserve his job.

He is the assistant manager of the Impact Liquor Store in this tiny oasis completely surrounded by Abilene, which has been bone-dry since 1902.

His job is in jeopardy because if the "wets," who claim a narrow 122-vote victory in the election, win their battle in the courts, business here could plunge.

If Abilene were "wet" its residents would have little reason for continuing to travel in droves along dusty roads past the junkyards and ramshackle houses to the two liquor stores in this 47-acre enclave on the northern fringe of town, where prices are 13 to 45 percent higher than in more competitive markets in other Texas cities.

"There's no doubt about it. Impact would just shut down" if the wets win, concedes Buck Wood, an Austin attorney. Wood represents the pro-dry forces in a continuing legal fight that has seesawed since the election and at present lies in favor of the dries.

But a hearing in Austin Monday could change all that and settle the issue. The hearing is on a suit filed by Wood that so far has prevented state officials from issuing any liquor licenses in Abilene.

EX-QUARTERBACK JOE NAMATH did not attend pro football training camp this summer for the first time since he joined the New York Jets in 1965. But he did put in an appearance at his Joe Namath Football Camp for youngsters in Hamden, Calif. After giving pointers to the aspiring gridiron stars, Namath began work on his new television sitcom. "It's a long day," he says of his 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. shooting schedule, "It's like training camp with two-a-day workouts."

Horseshoe

the horseshoe turns one-and-three-quarter times from leaving the hand to arriving at the stake.

Another is the flat pitch in which the horseshoe turns one-and-one-quarter times. There are also the flip-flop, the half-turn, and the throw-and-hope methods.

"It's a skill sport," Stewart said "It takes a lot of skill to become a horseshoe pitcher, I'll guarantee you."

It can also be a fun game. "If you get good enough you can play where only the ringers count," he pointed out. The game point is 21, and the sport can be played in either singles or doubles competition.

It is competition Stewart is seeking. He said he is trying to find other people in Snyder interested in the keeping the art and sport of horseshoe pitching alive.

"Very few people ever completely master it," he said. "I haven't mastered it by any means."

Albany Braces For Runoff

ALBANY (AP) - Waterlogged residents of West Texas, already beseiged by up to 30 inches of rain in the last two days, braced for more flooding Sat. as the runoff sent streams gushing from their banks.

Water poured over earthen dams and spillways, and creeks that barely trickled a few days ago grew two miles wide across the rolling West Texas prairies.

The killer storm - actually the remnants of Tropical Storm Amelia - has claimed at least 20 lives while carving a 200-mile-long swath of destruction from central to northwestern Texas.

No rain was falling early Sat. and skies were forecast to remain partly cloudy.

The Texas Department of Public Safety said 20 bodies had been recovered across the state, including 16 in Central Texas and four in Albany, a farming town of 2,500 residents in West Texas.

The storm inundated Albany with nearly 15 inches of rain late Thursday night and early Friday and sent a "tremendous wall of water" down Hubbard Creek that flows through the middle of town.

Although the water had receded by late Friday, five persons were still listed as missing in Albany. Lawrence Winkler, the county agriculture extension agent who was serving as a press spokesman, said there was almost no hope they would be alive.

"Please stay away from the Brazos River," begged the National Weather Service in a flood warning late Friday that predicted a very rapid rise in the river caused by rains of up to 30 inches in its drainage area.

The Clear Fork of the Brazos, north of Albany, was two running two miles wide Friday night, the NWS said. Normally, the fork is a dry creek bed. The NWS called it "record flood level."

Residents of Albany suffered through a night of terror, some of them clinging to trees, roof-tops and oil rigs. Rescue helicopters plucked 26 survivors from such roosts Friday morning. Forty-two people were evacuated from a nursing home.

Sen. Tower To Visit Albany

AUSTIN (AP) - Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said Friday he plans to visit flood-stricken Albany Saturday, weather permitting.

"Even though I have been kept informed of developments in the flood-stricken areas as they have occurred," Tower said, "I would like to see part of the afflicted area myself."

Tower said he would use his campaign plane for an aerial view of the West Texas town.

State Traffic Deaths Up 10%

AUSTIN (AP) - Traffic deaths are up 10 percent over this time last year, the Texas Department of Public Safety said Friday.

The state has recorded 2,086 persons killed this year in 1,806 accidents, compared to 1,900 deaths at this time last year in 1,656 accidents.

The accident rate has increased by 9 percent.

Conferees To Meet Sunday

AUSTIN, (AP) - House-Senate negotiations that could make or break Gov. Dolph Briscoe's special legislative session on tax relief were a friendly affair Friday but should stiffen on Sunday.

The negotiators on a package of constitutional amendments HJR1 easing property taxes planned no meeting today but agreed to get together Sunday at 3 p.m. to resume talks.

"I think we are at the point where, come Sunday, we ought to be able to come up with some sort of final action so we can have something for both houses on Monday," said Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of House conferees.

Each chamber has said it wants to give farmers and ranchers a break by taxing their land on its income-producing potential, not its possible selling price.

And each has said it wants to exempt part of the value of homes from school taxes.

But there the agreement ends. Exemption amounts differ. The House insists on reimbursing school districts $450 million for revenue that would be lost because of exemptions.

Senators are strong against reimbursement, saying the regular legislative session in January can take care of that if voters approve the constitutional amendment in January.

Stolen Car Is Recovered

Police early Saturday morning recovered a 1966 Chrysler that was reported stolen at Big Spring.

The car was found outside a residence on North Ave. T, and was located during a routine traffic check about 12:30 a.m., reports indicate.

Two men, aged 17 and 19, respectively, were arrested at the residence and booked at the city police station on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

The men were being readied for transfer to Howard County late Saturday morning.

Birth Dates Minute Off

SCOTTS BLUFF, Neb. (AP) - Kenneth and Marcia Lowe say they aren't used to precision in their lives.

But their son Brian's birth at 6:58 a.m. Thursday was one minute short of being precisely two years from the birth of daughter Erin.

She was born at 6:57 a.m. Aug. 3, 1976 in West Nebraska General Hospital.

"While we were in the delivery room about 6:40, Ken looked at his watch and said, 'In 20 minutes we'll be right on the dot.' I just wanted to get it over with," said Mrs. Lowe.

Dr. Ted Dais, a mathematics instructor at Nebraska Western College in Scottsbluff, said odds of such a coincidence are "so small, in fact, that the figure probably would be out of the average layman's grasp."

Water Use Records Set By Odessa And Snyder

Odessa not only established a new July record for water consumption, the 881,612,000 gallons delivered to it by the Colorado River Municipal Water District established a record for any single month. This is 114,000,000 more than the previous record established in August 1977. It was 177,000,000 gallons over July last year.

Snyder also reported its peak July with 138,395,000 gallons, or three million more than in July 1974.

Big Spring used 337,864,000 gallons, which was up from last year but far under its all-time record month and peak July in 1974 when 419,490,000 gallons were delivered.

Stanton received 14,627,000, which was only 263,000 gallons under July a year ago. Midland, which is holding more or less to a prescribed level from the district, receiving 421,969,000, which was slightly under the 463,917,000 for the same month a year ago. Robert Lee took 24,322,900, while in July last year it drew 28,337,300 gallons.

Total deliveries of the district stood at 2,157,615,614 gallons, down 11,000,000 gallons or .52 of one per cent from July of 1977. Deliveries to the oil companies and industries amounted to 338,825,714, or down 177,367,000 gallons from the same month a year ago because surface deliveries have been stopped for domestic purposes. Surface deliveries to oil companies dropped 260 million gallons for the month, and part of the deficit was made up in increased production of brackish water. For the year deliveries to oil companies have amounted to 2,557,375,802 gallons, down 1,367,329,000.

Municipal deliveries for seven months have been 8,651,445,700 gallons, up 738,539,000 or 9.33 per cent. Total deliveries for the period have been 11,208,321,502, down 229,289,000 gallons or 5.31 per cent.

Fisher 4-H Youths Win Many Awards

ROTAN - Fisher County 4-H'ers have fared well this summer in their respective areas of endeaver.

At the District 3 meet in Vernon recently, the record books of several Fisher County youths were good enough to beat out those of contestants from 20 other counties and will now advance to state competition.

Those with winning books are, Patricia Posey, achievement; Julie Posey, food and nutrition, Linda Hoodenpyle entomology; Jan Wright, recreation; Leslie Carey, gardening; Shannon Strickland, range management; Gary Harkey, agriculture; Brad Stuart, sheep; Britt Stuart, beef; Lois Cauble, clothing and LaRhea Smith, food preservative.

At the State 4-H Horse Show in San Antonio, last week, Tisa Lovett, placed 8th in the barrel race. Only .61 seconds difference was recorded in the top 15 places in that event.

Lake Cabin Burglarized

A cabin burglary at Lake J.B. Thomas is under investigation by the Scurry County Sheriff's Office.

The complainant in the case is J.D. Blankenship who told deputies that several lamps, a table, chairs, a refrigerator, a bed and box springs, and a variety of cooking utensils were taken.

Deputies estimated the loss at approximately $600. The break-in is believed to have occurred within the past 10 days.

Entry, it was reported, was gained through a window.

Excise taxes were imposed in England as early as 1643.

Snyder High Band Rehearsals Slated

Summer band practice for all members of the Snyder High School Black and Gold Band will begin Monday, Don Eiring, director has announced.

The schedule will be as follows:

8 a.m., flutes and drums.

9 a.m., saxophones and French horns.

10 a.m., clarinets (grade 10-12) and all cornets.

11 a.m., 9th grade clarinets and all low brass.

1 p.m., stage band (all interested in stage band should attend).

This schedule will continue through Aug. 18, except on weekends.

Freshman marching rehearsals will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 8, and on Thursday, Aug. 10, at the high school band hall.

Eiring said full band rehearsals will be announced during the coming week.

Bride On First Name Basis Only

SPOKANE (AP) - It was more than a case of prenuptial jitters and a temporary loss of memory, says Spokane County's marriage license clerk.

A man picking up his marriage license Friday actually didn't know his future bride's last name.

"I said, 'Well, what's the girl's last name?' He said he didn't know. I couldn't believe it," said clerk Magdalene Winslow.

"He said he has always just known her by her first name," Mrs. Winslow said.

She found the license by the man's last name.

President Calvin Coolidge signed the Income Tax Act in 1924.

GREAT PLAINS HEREFORD SHOW

The Great Plains Hereford Show here Aug. 2 and 3 was a big success according to most participants and observers. Approximately 90 head of registered Hereford heifers were exhibited by Junior Hereford Association members.

Officials of the Hereford Association were very complimentary of the facilities available here, but the most important ingredient was the cooperation and friendliness of the people of Scurry County. This, I'm sure, had much to do with the decision to return to Snyder for their 1980 show. This group must alternate each year between Texas and Oklahoma for their show.

This is a fine group of young men and women with which to work.

COTTON INSECTS

At the time of this writing moisture is still very critical in Scurry County. Most cotton insects are at a very low population. Only 10 fields of the 160 being checked weekly have a boll weevil infestation.

This does not mean that we can relax on our boll weevil diapause control program. In fact, this gives us an opportunity to deal a severe blow to the boll weevil if we can maintain the pressure on this pest.

Destroying food for the weevil by plowing up fields of cotton that will not pay to harvest, followed by a good spray program on the remaining acreage could put us in excellent condition for the coming year.

Plans for this fall's 1978 diapause control program will be forthcoming shortly.

PECAN INSECTS AND DISEASES

In addition to aphids on pecans, the insects to be watched for now are the pecan weevils and the hickory chuck worm.

The pecan weevil appears in late August or early September. Feeding of weevils causes nuts in the watery stage to drop. Usually the weevil chews a hole in the shell and deposits her eggs in little pockets in the nuts. When these eggs hatch into larvae the kernel is consumed by these larvae. If pecan weevils become a problem guthion, malathion or sevin will control.

The hickory tunnels in the shuck around the pecan. This causes the shucks to stick to the pecan causing harvesting problems since the shuck will not open naturally. An application of guthion or malathion in mid-August will aid in reducing population. Fall and winter cleanup and destruction of shucks will decrease damage the following year.

WHITE GRUBS OR GRUBWORMS

The first two weeks in August is the ideal time to control white grubs in the lawn. At this stage the white grub larvae are most susceptible to insecticides. For white grub control use diazinon either granules or liquid at rates on the container.

Animals Kept For Blood Donors

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Ten years ago, an undistinguished puppy of German shepherd and other undetermined heritage was brought into the office of Dr. Raymond Pable.

The owner did not want the pup and asked the veterinarian to put it to sleep. The veterinarian asked whether it would be all right if, instead of killing the dog, he kept it alive and used it to help keep other dogs alive.

And that's what happened. The once-unwanted dog became a blood donor to other dogs at Pable's clinic. The clinic also has a cat named Joey who is a blood donor.

Just as a human being, a dog or cat can be in urgent need of a blood transfusion, but there are no animal blood banks. So it is practical to keep donors as permanent residents of animal hospitals, the veterinarian said.

The animals, Shep and Joey, are not often needed for this purpose, so they are really part-time blood donors and full-time pets, he said.

Religious Loot

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)-While he was helping a stalled motorist, Brookes Davis, Grace Lutheran Church's music director, had his briefcase stolen. He had left it next to his car in the church's parking lot.

The police said they hoped whoever had stolen it would make constructive use of its contents - numerous religious documents, religious sheet music, a prayer book and a Bible.

Galway Kinnell and Howard Norman have won the Harold Morton Landon Award, given by the Academy of American Poets for the translation of poetry. Kinnell was honored for "The Poems of Francois Villon," and Norman for "The Wishing Bone Cycle: Narrative Poems of the Swampy Cree Indians."

Western Texas Inks Seven With Westerner Golf Team

Seven freshmen have signed golf scholarships and letters of intent with Western Texas College for the 1978-79 season, Coach Bob O'Day has announced.

Coming from area high schools will be Phil Kuss of Sweetwater, Ken Lawrence of Albany, Scott Barrett of Pampa, Brent Jacobs of Amarillo, Bruce Northcutt of Lubbock and Mike Mahan of Midland. Robert Harrison of Lindsay, Okla. will be the only out of state recruit this fall.

Returning letterman are Britt Lindsey of Abilene and Mike Waller of Fort Stockton, co-captains, Billy Sitton of Midland, Greg Reynolds of Lubbock, Don Cofer of Memphis and Lee Baird of Abilene.

According to O'Day, the new golfers should bring some outstanding talent.

The new golfers bring some outstanding records to WTC. Kuss lettered three years in golf at Sweetwater and received a State Meet Participation Award from the 1978 3-AAA competition. He was named to the 3-3A all district team and was regional medalist.

Lawrence was a member of the Albany High School team which won district this year and finished third in regional. As an individual player, he was regional winner and runner-up in district and state. He won the Aldeo High School Invitational as individual.

Barrett was runner-up medalist in District 3-4A in both his junior and senior years at Pampa. He was named to the High School All American list in 1977. He won the Texas Tall Tower Tournament in Amarillo and placed 19th in the statewide Tournament of Champions in San Antonio. He has played in numerous Junior PGA tournaments, wining eight and placing second in six.

Jacobs, who played for Amarillo Tascosa, was named Most Valuable Player there in his sophomore and junior years. The Tascosa team was District 4-4A champion for 1978. Jacobs qualified for and played in the 51st annual Texas State Junior Golf Championship meet in Denton in 1977, and won second in the Amarillo City High School Boy's Golf Tournament that year.

Harrison lettered in golf three years and lettered in baseball one year, basketball two years and football four years. He was named to the Principal's Honor Roll for three years and is listed in Who's Who Among American high school students. He was Arbuckle Conference Medalist for 1978 and was second medalist for 1977.

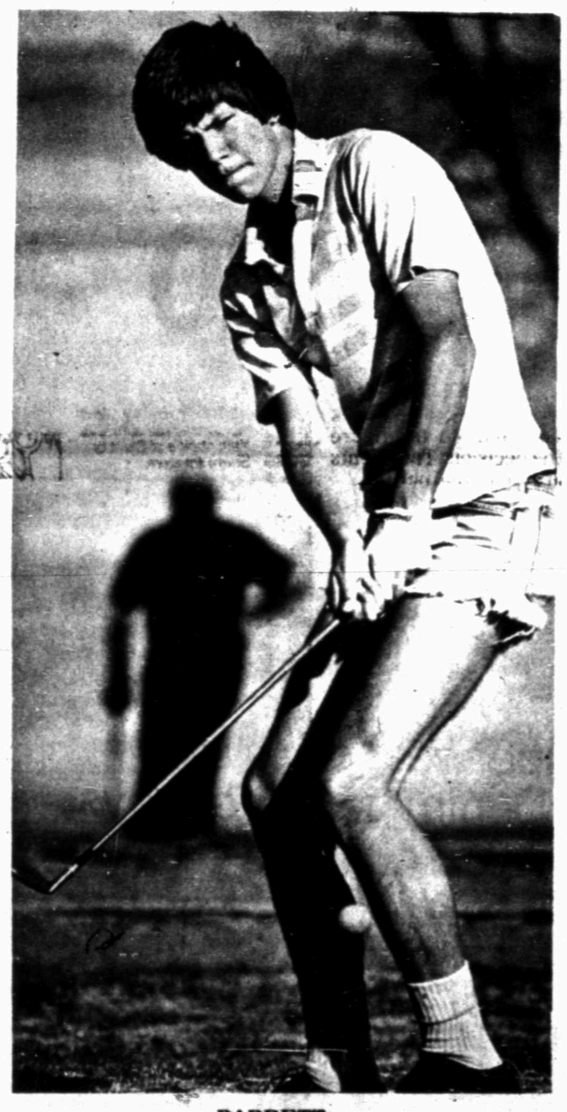
Northcutt was Monterey High School Golfer of the Year for 1978 and was golf team captain. He was named to the all district and all region teams for 1978 and tied for sixth place in the state golf tournament this year.

Northcutt was Lubbock City Junior Champion in 1977 and won first place in the West Texas Junior Golf Tournament in Lorenzo and in the Lubbock Hillcrest WTJA match.

He was a member of the National Honor Society at MHS for three years and was named 1978 Student of the Year in Mathematics of Consumer Economics.

Mahan finished his senior year with an average of 76.45 in district competition. He was a medalist at the San Marcos Invitational last January with his team winning that tournament. He was fourth medalist at the Del Rio Invitational in February and fifth medalist at the Midland Invitational in March. Mahan qualified for the Junior Tour Tournament of Champions in 1976 and played in the World Junior Golf Tournament in San Diego in 1977. He won the Ranchland Hill Country Club Junior Championship in 1977.

The Westerners will open the new season Sept. 13-15 with the New Mexico Junior College Invitational tournament.



BARRETT

College Pond To Be Open

The pond on the Western Texas College golf curse will be opened to the public for fishing on a trial basis starting Aug. 9.

The decision to open the lake was made because of the numerous requests made to the college. Markers will be posted showing the designated fishing area, located on the west side of the dam, and persons wishing to fish are to pay the required fee in the golf pro shop. Fees will be $3 per person on weekdays and $4 per person on weekends and holidays.

Fishing will be allowed only when the pro shop is open. Summer hours are 12:30-9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday and 7 a.m.-9 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. The director of the pro shop, Bob O'Day, is responsible for fishing activities.

Regulations which apply to the golf course will also apply to fishermen. They are, briefly, as follows:

1. All fishermen are to register and pay fees in the pro shop. (Golf course members must also pay fishing fees).
2. No alcoholic beverages permitted.
3. No pets allowed.
4. Children below junior high age must be accompanied by an adult.
5. Litter must be placed in containers provided.
6. Cleaning fish on the dam will not be permitted.
7. Fishing will be allowed only on the west side of the dam in the designated area. (This area was selected because of the safety factor and the smaller possibilities of fishermen being struck by golf balls.)

WGA Pairings For Tuesday

The Ladies Golf Association will continue its annual City Championship Tournament play Aug. 8.

Edith McKanna, sponsor, will present the awards following play and luncheon. Final matches will be played that day.

A Never-Say-Die tournament will also be played on the 8th. These pairings are as follows:

18-Hole Players

Mr. Jerry Carroll, Mrs. Richard Stoker, Mrs. Wayne Williams and Mrs. Don Head.

Mrs. Tommy Mills, Mrs. James Rosser, Mrs. Durmond Hopper and Mrs. Bill Seale.

Mrs. M.L. Duke, Mrs. John Pickering, Mrs. Lanier Campbell and Mrs. Robert Schooler.

Mrs. Bill Keys, Mrs. Waylen Holden and Mrs. Don Brock.

9-Hole Players

Mrs. Randy Mosley, Mrs. Fred Moseley, Mrs. Tom Chorn and Mrs. Frank Osborne.

Mrs. Paul N. Grag, Mrs. Marshall Erwin, Mrs. Clyde Lewis and Mrs. Art West.

Mrs. John Reid, Mrs. W.A. Vestal and Mrs. W.N. Dodson.

Those paired for Tuesday will be playing for Low Net and Low Gross.

WTC Golf Try Outs To Be Held

Western Texas College golf coach Bob O'Day plans to carry 16 players on this year's varsity and still has three spots open.

Try-outs for the places are scheduled Aug. 21-23 at the WTC course. The try-outs will be only for playing on the team, and no scholarships are available. Students interested in trying out may contact O'Day at the Pro Shop or call 573-9291.

UT Coaches To Receive Incentive

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Longhorn coaches in all men's sports will get 8 percent salary bonuses if their teams appear in post-season games under a policy adopted Friday by the University of Texas Board of Regents.

The regents extended a 1962 policy that only applied to football coaches leading teams to bowl games.

It was not clear Friday whether the policy would be made retroactive to include Abe Lemons, whose basketball team captured the National Invitational Tournament championship in New York this year.

The bonus is aimed at rewarding coaches who "have assumed more than normal mental, physical and time loads and who have achieved an outstanding team performance," the policy states.

Bass Club Sets August Activities

The Snyder Bass Club has announced August activities which are expected to make this the biggest month ever for the club.

This comes close on the heels of a tournament, considered one of the best in the club's history.

The tournament results: 1. A.C. Floyd, 11 lb. 5 oz; 2. H.W. Cargile, 10-13; 3. Maxey Ware, 10-1; 4. Don Parsons, 9-7; 5. Larry Neves, 7-6; 6. Van Rigby, 5-12; 7. Dale Byrd, 4-6; 8. Tommy Hood, 3-15; 9. Troy Scott, 3-10; 10. Jerry Brooks, 3-8.

The biggest single bass was 6-4, caught by Don Parsons.

Other activities upcoming are the drawings for two "Fish Chairs" held Aug. 10.

The Bass Club has taken a leading role in developing a 4-H Fishing Club designed to teach youngsters 19 years old and under all techniques of fishing, including water safety, equipment needs, conservation, ecology, baits, lures, etc. Any youngster 19 and under will be welcome to attend these workshops. The first date has not been determined, but interested persons are invited to contact County Extension Agent Billy Roach for further information.

The August tournament has been scheduled as a 24-hour event. It will begin 3 p.m. Aug. 26 and end 3 p.m. Aug. 27. The tourney will be held at Lake Champion, in conjuction with the club's annual barbecue at 7 p.m. Aug. 27. All Bass Club members, their families and friends, will be welcome. Tickets are $3.75 for adults and $2.25 for children.

Next meeting of the club is set Aug. 10. Anyone interested in joining the Bass Club is welcome.

In 1933, Tex Carleton pitched 16 scoreless innings for the Cardinals against the New York Giants and did not figure in the decision. The Giants won, 1-0, in the 18th.

Oil Bowl Set Aug. 12

WICHITA FALLS (AP) - Texas and Oklahoma schoolboys are due to report here Sunday to begin preparations for the 41st annual Oil Bowl football game to be played Aug. 12.

All district quarterback Mike Brannan of Brazoswood will call signals for the Texas squad and Randy Page of Oklahoma City Southeast will quarterback Oklahoma.

The Oil Bowl is played annually at Wichita Falls Memorial Stadium, and attracts top high school players from Texas and Oklahoma.

Texas holds a 25-6-1 advantage since the Oil Bowl adopted the Texas-Oklahoma format in 1946.

Included on the Texas roster are Ron Reeves of Lubbock Monterey, Brownwood's Eddie Gill, Willie Wright of El Paso Burgess, David Bandy of Austin Anderson, Texas City's Mark Weber, Adrian Price of Galveston Ball, Paul Kerestine of Denton and San Antonio Churchill's Tom Randol.

Oklahoma squad includes Rob Shaff and Kelly Phelps of Putnam City, Steve Holmes of Yukon, Shawnee's Ken Muncy, Tulsa Washington's Charles David, Bruce Scott of Oklahoma City Western Heights, Derwin Cantley of Broken Bow, Ada's Brian Butler and Sam Shelby of McAlester.

Early Oil Bowl arrivals include Charles Lewis, a running back from Burkburnett, Texas; Houston Worthing wide receiver Robert Mitchell; offensive lineman Jack Tynes of Dallas Highland Park, Henry Williams, a running back from Lawton, Okla., Eisenhower; and Prague, Oklahoma, linebacker John Parker.

Both teams will begin two a day workouts Aug. 7.

Charlie Johnson of Childress is the head coach for Texas.

Willie Mays had six stolen bases in All-Star competition.

Carter Pushing Tax Overhauls

WASHINGTON (AP)- President Carter is beginning a major push to overhaul the tax-cut bill that the House will take up next week, with the administration seeking to aim the relief more toward lower-and middle-income taxpayers.

Carter and liberal congressional Democrats agreed Friday on a proposal to amend the legislation-approved by the House Ways and Means Committee last week - to reduce the benefits richer taxpayers would get from the proposed tax cut.

The proposal, by Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., and Joseph Fisher, D-Va., is a final effort in the House by the administration to get a measure more to the liking of Carter, who so far has failed to convince the Congress to out taxes his way.

For example, the committee bill would give a tax cut of $62 to a four-member family making $10,000 and having typical deductions. The administration-backed compromise by Corman and Fisher would cut taxes for that family by $260.

This amendment would boost the total income tax cut to $18.1 billion from the committee-approved $16.2 billion.

The major difference between the bills involves the current so-called general tax credit of $32 per person or 2 percent of the first $9,000 of taxable income. Credits are amounts that are subtracted from taxes owed.

The committee bill would abolish the credit but would increase the existing $750 per person tax exemptions to $1,000. Exemptions are amounts subtracted from income subject to taxes.

Corman-Fisher would keep the $750 exemption and raise the credit to $100 per person, generally meaning a larger tax benefit for those in the low-and middle-income levels.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, praising the Corman-Fisher provision Friday, said it faces a difficult struggle in the House next week. He predicted, nonetheless, that it has a 50-5 chance of succeeding.

The major controversy between Congress and Carter involves what to do with capital gains taxes, which are paid on the sales of long-held assets such as real estate ad stocks.

REHEARSAL FOR NEW ORLEANS EVENT - Shown in rehearsal of a scene from "Romeo and Juliet" at Snyder High School are, from left, Paula Wolfe, Jerry Martin and Laurie Bethel. The SHS Drama Dept. will present the play for the National Convention of the American Theatre Association in New Orleans on Aug. 14, and a local performance is set for Thursday night prior to departure for New Orleans. Tickets for the performance here are priced at $2 each for adults and $1 for children under 12.

ROMEO AND JULIET - Marca Parham and Kim Massingill portray the star-cross lovers in the SHS production of "Romeo and Juliet" which the local group will present Aug. 14 in New Orleans. A local performance is set for Thursday night in the SHS Auditorium.

The first transcontinental telephone call was made in 1914.

Perform Here Thursday...

SHS Drama Cast Set For New Orleans Trip

Snyder High School Drama Department will provide local citizens with a look at its newly mounted version of "Romeo and Juliet" Thursday night at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The show which has been invited for presentation at the National Convention of the American Theatre Association in New Orleans, has been in rehearsal for over two weeks now as the group prepares for its appearance in Louisana.

The local cast will be part of the "Special Events" series at the convention which includes a Professional, Semi-Professional, Community, University and High School Theatre Group. SHS was the only high school in the nation invited to appear before the prestigious group.

"We're pretty excited," said Jerry Worsham, SHS drama director. "Just being invited to such an event is a great honor..and from the way the students are working on this show, I am sure that a lot of theatre people across the country are going to know about and be curious about the schools in Snyder Texas from now on. We already have a considerable statewide reputation; now we have opportunity to expand to some national recognition."

A panel of theatre experts will critique the play in New Orleans and the Snyder students will have opportunity then to respond to the critics.

Worsham has received calls from across the country asking for information about the show..even before they've seen it.

"Some of the things we take for granted here, like doing our own costumes, working for high quality voices, developing exciting fight scenes and dramatic lighting are unheard of in many high schools across the country," Worsham said.

Among those who will be in the audiences in New Orleans, will be David Rockefeller of New York who headed the Rockefeller Panel on a study of fine arts in the schools of America. Also, Christopher Sergel of New York, president of Dramatic Publishing Company in Chicago and New York, who has expressed earlier interest in Snyder High School productions, especially "Ondine" (1972) and "Romeo and Juliet" when they appeared at the State UIL Meet in Austin. Lynn Murray, State Drama Director for UIL, and Kim Wheeltley, Fine Arts Coordinator for Texas Education Agency, will also be there to support the local cast in New Orleans.

The show is Worsham's 50-minute arrangement of the "most famous love story of all time." It won almost every award possible when it was entered in Texas UIL competition a year ago. The fight scenes, the costumes, the voices, the movement, the acting, the direction were all highly complimented. It was after this recognition that the show was invited to the National Theatre Convention and local arrangements for making the trip were begun. Several cast members are now graduated but have gladly made the necessary re-arrangements in their schedules to come back and do the show.

The presentation is scheduled for Aug. 14, at the New Orleans Hilton Hotel. Showtime in New Orleans will be 3:30 p.m. The cast will be guests of the convention for four days in New Orleans and will have access to an extensive display of theatre, lectures, demonstrations and examples. The convention is so intense and of such high quality, that graudate credit is offered for several of the program series. The SHS production will be a part of one such credit series.

Tickets for the local presentation will be on sale at the door of the auditorium prior to Thursday evening's performance. Tickets will be $2 for adults and $1 for those under 12 years of age. Curtain time will be 8 p.m.

Despite Scandal...

Thorpe May Not Resign

Bt MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - Jeremy Thorpe, the former Liberal Party leader charged with conspiring to murder a male model who says they were lovers, went doggedly on with weekend constituency chores today after hinting he will not resign from Parliament.

As Britain's biggest political scandal in 15 years raged around him, the 49-year-old politician was opening a flower show at Bishop's Nympton, a village in his rural parliamentary constituency of North Devon in southwest England.

At a reception organized by his party's constituency association at the small North Devon town of Lynton on Friday night, Thorpe hinted he will not resign from the House of Commons.

He told reporters: "I have a full range of duties scheduled, both public and private, and will be continuing with these." He said he would probably make a statement "clarifying" his position, but not this weekend, and added: "The fact that I am continuing my range of duties as a member of Parliament is indicative."

Some five hours before, Thorpe and three others were charged with conspiring to murder 37-year-old male model Norman Scott.

Newspapers splashed an allegation by Scott 2½ years ago that "I am being hounded by people just because of my sexual relationship with Jeremy Thorpe." Thorpe repeatedly has denied the allegation of homosexuality. But increasingly scandalous headlines and the embarrassment of the Liberal Party over the affair forced him to resign as Liberal Party head in 1976.

The party, last in power in 1910, polled 18.3 percent of all votes in the last British general election in October 1974. But because of Britain's winner-take-all electoral system it has only 13 seats in the 635-seat House of Commons.

Three Die In One Car Accident

By The Associated Press

Three persons were killed Friday as their car ran off a county road in the mountains near Salida, Colo., and overturned 4½ times, the State Patrol reported.

The dead were identified as Arthur Stejskal, 60 and Charlotte Stejskal, 59, both of South Holland, Ill., and Noel Cowan, 45, of Texarkana, Ark.

Teresa Stejskal, 17, suffered minor cuts and bruises in the accident, officers said.

Chicken Ranch Landlady Now Broadway Star

NEW YORK (AP) - "I can't dance, honey," apologized Edna Milton to the choreographer of "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," a musical based on Miss Edna's career as madam, or as she puts it, 'landlady,' of the Chicken Ranch, the most famous bordello in the Lone Star State.

"If there's no embarrassment to you, it certainly won't embarrass me," she told Tommy Tune, the guiding hand behind the musical that played for two months to sold-out houses on the Lower East Side before moving to Broadway's 46th Street Theater in late June.

Miss Edna was only being honest in explaining that her professional experience, at least on stage, was nil. A direct no-nonsense approach is her style whether she's discussing her age - she's 50 - or her four marriages, which she sums up in her soft Texas twang: "I've tried marriage pretty good and I've lived with a few different ones in between."

She thought the producer's offer to play the small non-speaking role of her predecessor at the ranch, Jessie Williams, was more than generous, and the idea of appearing on the New York stage didn't frighten her.

"Microphones or cameras or the people out watching you - they're just like the rest of your family and neighbors and friends," she says. "So that's the way I feel towards them. New York's a much larger city, that's true. But they've got to be at least friends of the theather or they wouldn't be here."

Her transformation to Broadway actress began in February when Larry King, whose magazine article on the closing of the bordello was the basis for the musical, visited LaGrange, Texas, former site of the ranch. He toured the area with Edna and Stephanie Phillips, producer of the musical.

It was then Edna was asked to play a character based on Miss Jessie, who in the early part of the century built the Chicken Ranch into a near-mythic establishment that to some rivals the Alamo in Texas folklore.

Edna arrived in New York on Feb. 23, began rehearsals the next day and opened off-Broadway less than two months later. What she found herself in was a romanticized version of the closing of the ranch in 1973, embellished with what she called "theater license."

Her first impressions of the ranch some 21 years ago were a lot less theatrical. It was located out in the country, off a highway. "I saw this ol' white frame house sittin' up there," Edna says. "Then I said to myself, 'Is that it, really? It looks like just a regular old peaceful farm house.'

"When I got in there - the landlady was in the hospital at the time - she had a couple of other women that were takin' care of the place for her, they had those little cotton dresses, that are starched stiff, on, lower hell-type health shoes with ankle socks and little tight permanents."

Whatever her first impressions of the place, Edna definitely made an imprint on Miss Jessie, who was in failing health and looking for a buyer. Less than half a year before Miss Jessie died in April 1962, Edna bought it.

"Miss Jessie thought I was hard-headed enough and not easily led," Edna said. "And I had learned that I could operate it quite efficiently."

Not only efficiently but with a set of guidelines for her girls, who usually numbered about nine.

NEW ADDITIONS - Sharon Sutton holds the new sign which invites visitors into the Gift Shop in the lobby of the Scurry County Museum. The display space of the shop has recently been enlarged and some new items are being shown.

Museum Gift Shop Installs New Cases

New color coordinated display cases have been installed in the gift shop of the Scurry County Museum and new items have been added, Sharon Sutton, museum director, said.

Of special interest to the youngsters are rock and mineral sets, titled "A Bit of the U.S.A." The pieces in each set are mounted and labeled, and there is a descriptive booklet with additional information. For those who would like to add to the pre-packaged sets there are loose rocks which may be purchased separately.

A collection of art and history books from the Amon Carter Museum of Western Art in Fort Worth will appeal to readers of varying ages. Western art fans will enjoy books devoted to the works of Frederic Remington and Charles M. Russell. Each book gives a short synopsis of the artist's life and includes 12 35mm slides of the artist's works in a plastic page-sized holder.

The museum gift shop also offers a variety of other items, ranging from pottery to postcards. Members of the Museum Association are entitled to a 10 per cent discount on all purchases made in the shop. New members are welcomed by the Association at any time and membership dues may be paid in the museum office.

Visitors to the museum between now and August 25 will see the traveling exhibit of the Texas Water Society. The exhibit is made up of 26 paintings which were winners in the Watercolor Society's 29th annual exhibition. It will go the Masur Museum of Art in Monroe, La., when it leaves the local museum and will end its circuit in Lubbock with a showing from Dec. 1-25.

The Scurry County Museum, located on the campus of Western Texas College, is open from 1-5 p.m. on Sundays and each weekday.

Status Of Major Legislation

By The Associated Press

Here's the status of major legislation at the end of the third week of the 2nd Called Session of the 65th Legislature:

HB1, inheritance tax exemptions and utility sales tax repeal, passed House and Senate in different versions, conference committee report adopted, sent to governor.

HB37, reimbursement of school districts, passed House.

HJR1, taxation of agricultural products, property tax exemptions and taxing limits, approved by House, amended by Senate, in conference committee.

HJH41, homestead exemptions for World War I veterans and widows, passed House.

SB4, valuation of open-space land, passed Senate.

SB9, revision of property tax, failed in Senate.

SB10, Social Security payments of state employes, passed Senate and House, sent to governor.

SB13, transfer of Gatesville State School of the Department of Corrections, passed Senate and House, sent to governor.

SJR2, valuation of open-space land, passed Senate.

SR124, interim Senate study of community-based correctional facilities, adopted by Senate.

SCR11, interim study of financial losses to public school districts because of tax exemptions, passed Senate.

Three members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, were the first players selected in the year they were drafted. The top picks so honored were Bill Dudley, Charley Trippi and Chuck Bednarik.

Your Birthday

Aug. 6, 1978

If you operate in rational channels, the coming year could be good for you financially. It is not a good period for you to become involved in speculative ventures.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In spite of your own good judgment and past experience you could do something foolish that would wallop your wallet today. Take all money matters seriously. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Timidity will be a drag on you today where self-interests are concerned. Grab the ball and run with authority if you expect to profit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Fight an inclination today to be a prophet of doom and gloom. Pessimism without knowing all the facts is strictly counterproductive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Treat your friends generously today, but don't be outlandishly lavish. It won't impress them nearly as much as it could depress your rainy-day funds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Poorly defined goals or obscure objectives greatly diminish your potential today. In order to succeed, know exactly what you're seeking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have spent enough time visualizing what you'll do in a particular situation. Today you must get your head out of the clouds and be a person of action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Alliances may be a great deal of fun for you today, but they will probably be more social than business-oriented. The commercial swim can wait.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A difficult decision confronting you today may bruise another's feelings. Regardless, do what you know to be just, not what is deemed appropriate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Mundane chores will bug you today. You'll have a tough time getting at them. It's just as well, since you won't set any records for accomplishment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't accept business proposals at face value today even if a respected friend makes the pitch. Some of the problems may not be apparent even to him.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Domestic differences may erupt into something more serious today if not resolved quickly. Be ready to swallow your pride, kiss and forget.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may sense you're a bit more sharp in financial maneuvering than you actually are today. Be a good silent partner. Let others do the selling.

Your Birthday

August 7, 1978

Your hopes and dreams have an excellent chance of becoming reality this coming year. There will be a little luck involved, helping you to meet and talk to the right people.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone in a position to grant you a favor might become aware of the fact today. As soon as this person is cognizant of it he'll respond. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The way you cope with a major issue will be fortunate for you today. Enthusiasm and bold action might be two ingredients you'll use.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Others hold you in higher esteem than you may realize. Today they might push you right to the front to take the leader's role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A situation quite large in scope has a better chance of succeeding than you expected. Lady Luck may have a hand in making this possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An optimistic outlook regarding commercial activities today gives additional clout to your hand. Your confidence is justified.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Agreements you enter into today look especially promising. It appears as if both parties are working from the same idealistic premise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be motivated to be of service today. Though you have no self-serving reasons, your good deed repays you in prestige and dollars.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A bold ally will be willing to help you in a social situation today. You can depend on the assistance when you need it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Concern you show for others yields an extra dividend today. Those you help will repay your kindness in much larger terms.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Information comes your way today to aid you in obtaining an important goal. You'll now be able to roll up your sleeves and go after it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Cast a little bread upon the waters. Those with whom you share your blessings respond so as to bring you material success, as well as popularity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may be the recipient of some good news today. It could even give the whole family cause to celebrate this evening.

Sentences Are Levied

Three men were sentenced Friday in 132nd District Court on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Pleading guilty to the charges were David Guerra, Walter Daniel Chaney, and John Earl Brock.

Guerra, arrested May 28, was sentenced to serve one year in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Chaney, arrested May 16, was sentenced to serve four months in the Scurry County Jail, and fined $500.

Arrested May 17, Brock was sentenced to serve two months in the county jail.

Satellite To Produce Extra TV Fare Here

A 4½-meter dish will be the target an earth-orbiting satellite aims at when it discharges a barrage of electronic signals at Snyder. The result can be seen on the television screens of Snyderites as the latest movies and sports.

The process, now being worked out by Snyder Community Antenna Television in conjunction with the Federal Communications Commission, will probably be ready this fall, said Mel Gilbert, vice president of SCAT.

"The earth satellite receiver could be in place within the next 30 to 60 days," he said. It will be located where the broadcast tower presently is.

The dish will receive the signals which will then be piped into the homes of Snyderites willing to pay approximately $9.50 extra per month, in addition to the regular SCAT charges, Gilbert said.

The signals will be converted to television images by a special converter-decoder that must be installed on each set. The service, as it is now set up, will be seen on Channel 3.

Featured will be two stations, one in Atlanta, Ga., and the other in Houston. One will deal principally in movies and shows, while the other will handle sports events, Gilbert explained.

Extra electronic service is needed for both the station and the subscribers' homes, he continued.

"It's on order, but we don't have any firm delivery date," he said.

The application, Gilbert said, was submitted for approval several months ago. He said he has received in official information that it has been approved, but he has not received formal notification of it.

The sports channel, which will provide coverage of many events not included on commercial television, will come out of Houston and the movies will come from Atlanta.

County To Bury Family

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Immanuel David, who spent more than $30,000 on food and posh hotel rooms for his family in the past 14 months, will be buried with his wife and six of their children at county expense, relatives said.

David, who claimed to have revelations and to be able to destroy the world, committed suicide this week. After learning of his death Wednesday, Rachel David helped the couple's seven children plunge from the 11th floor balcony of their $90-a-day, three-room suite before she jumped over the side to her death Thursday morning.

Only a 13-year-old daughter, Elizbeth, survived. Friday night she was reported in critical condition at LDS Hospital.

David's brother, Dean Longo, a Vero Beach, Fla., police sergeant, arrived Friday to handle funeral arrangements. He said he could not afford to pay for the family's funeral. He said the county had already been contacted for help. The family will be buried in Utah.

Senate Limits New Office To $135 Million

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Senate is proceeding with its new office building after reluctantly agreeing to limit the cost to $135 million, a price tag that still would make it the most expensive federal building in history.

Critics said that without a limit on spending, the cost of present plans for the Philip A. Hart Senate Office Building- which boasts such luxurious features as 16-foot office ceilings, wood paneling, a gymnasium, indoor tennis court, roof-top restaurant and marble-lined atrium - could have gone far beyond $200 million.

They denounced the project in floor debate Friday as a "senatorial palace," "an extreme boondoggle," a "marble mausoleum" and "a stupid, useless building."

"How do we get involved in the concept that absolutely anything goes around here?" asked Sen. John C. Danforth, D-Mo.

"I can't imagine a more galling symbol of congressional arrogance," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who earlier had given the building his Golden Fleece of the Month award for wasteful spending.

"This building is a farce and it ought to be stopped," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Much the same criticism of needless extravagance was voiced about the last congressional office building completed on Capitol Hill, the Rayburn House Office Building, which cost an estimated $101 million. The all-time record for a federal building on Pennsylvania Avenue, which cost more than $126 million.

Defenders of the new Senate office building said that with more than $16 million already spent, the steel framework already etched against the sky and with overcrowding getting worse in the Senate's two other office buildings, it would be "folly" to stop work now.

Several senators mentioned that before his death in 1976, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., was told that the Senate's third building would be named in his honor.

"This is perhaps the most inept, inappropriate monument to Sen. Hart that could possibly be contemplated," said Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., who noted that Hart was regarded by his colleagues as a modest, unassuming man.

Chafee recalled that the original cost estimate for the building in 1974 was $48 million, and cited the features that have helped drive costs higher -and higher.

"I must say this Mussolini-style building is an outrage," Chafee said. "At a time when we are asking the rest of the nation to curb inflation we should exercise some restraints ourselves."

In its first vote on the issue, the Senate killed Chafee's amendment to stop all work. The vote was 45 to 29.

Then senators voted 65 to 13 to accept an amendment by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., to set the $135 million spending limit.

Magnuson noted that the figure could always be changed.

New Record

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) - Visitors to this Canadian city may have been a bit startled to encounter 142 bathtubs, propelled by outboard motors, racing across the Strait of Georgia.

It was the 12th annual world championship bathtub competition, won by Gary Deathbridge of Melbourne, Australia, Sunday in record time, clipping two minutes and 35 seconds off the old mark.

41 Handicapped Persons Drown In Bus Crash

EASTMAN, Quebec (AP)-Forty-one handicapped persons screaming for help drowned in a darkened lake after the brakes on their bus failed and it shot from the roadway onto the surface of the water, floated for about five minutes then sank at a depth of more than 60 feet, one of the seven survivors of Canada's worst bus disaster says.

The victims, members of the Society of Infirmed and Handicapped of the Asbestes Region, ranged in age from 14 to 86. Two were in wheel chairs, but the rest were capable of walking. Some were mentally handicapped, while the others had a variety of physical ailments.

They were returning to their homes in the nearby mining town of Asbestes after seeing a play in Eastman, 50 miles southeast of Montreal, when the bus crashed into the lake about midnight Friday.

"The bus started to speed, and the driver told me to tell everyone to get set because he was going to do a 90-degree turn. But at the speed we were going, he couldn't turn and drove right into the water," Alain Pouliot, who along with five other aides to the group and the driver survived the plunge.

The bus shot about 50 feet onto the surface of Lac d'Argent - Silver Lake - but didn't sink immediately, Pouliot said, trying to compose himself.

He said he managed to get the bus door open, and the first thing he saw was a boat anchored offshore.

"I swam for the boat. There was nobody on shore so I yelled for help," he said, adding that people came running from nearby summer cottages and tried unsuccessfully to help him free the boat from its mooring.

"Everybody in the bus was yelling. 'Help: Help:'" Pouljot said. Moments later, the bus sank with the 41 handicapped trapped inside.

Eric Whitehead, president of scuba diving club helping in dragging operations, said: "The bus floated on the water for about five minutes, and the wind blew it around.

"Now we can't find it. We'll have to wait till there's better visibility.

"There's nothing we can do now. With a 10,000 candle spotlight you can't see more than four inches or a foot.

"It's from 50 to 60 feet deep as soon as you get away from the shore."

The worst previous Canadian bus accident occurred at Morrisburg, Ontario on July 31, 1953, when an express bus heading for Montreal from Toronto plunged into a ditch, killing 20 and injuring 19.

Just two months ago, schoolboys and a teacher drowned in a lake on the Quebec-Ontario border when their canoes capsized in a storm during a wilderness outing.

BLANCHE'S BLABS

By BLANCHE CHISUM
Scurry County Extension Agent

Before buying a home, weigh the advantages of a new versus an older home.

A new house will appreciate more in value than an older one, it will not need repairs or improvements as soon, and it will likely be more functional.

On the other hand, the initial cost is usually higher and the grounds may need landscaping.

When buying a new home, you may choose from a builder's inventory or have one custom built. Custom built homes cost more, but the buyers can select the features they want.

An older house will generally provide more space for the dollar and supply "character" which is often lacking in new houses.

Before buying an old home, carefully inspect the structure and mechanical systems.

However, structurally sound older homes may be located in deteriorating neighborhoods, so take this into consideration.

Whether buying a new or older house, avoid one that does not blend in with others in the neighborhood.

If the house is larger or more expensive than others, it will probably sell in the range with the others--this is not beneficial to the buyer's interests.

Uniqueness, though interesting for a while, often reduces resale value.

Inquire about warranty programs which are available in many areas of Texas for both new and older homes.

HOPEFUL HELPFUL HINTS IN HOUSING

Window sills 30 to 32 inches high are desirable for elderly--bending to open windows is reduced, falls against glass are minimized and they serve as an easy escape in case of fire.

Eliminate thresholds in the home to reduce the possibility of falls by elderly and to make it easier for wheelchair users to move about.

Apply weatherstripping to the bottom of exterior doors--not on the floor.

To save home-cooling energy, use a kitchen vent fan to send heated air outside. Don't let the fan run needlessly.

When group entertaining this winter, lower the thermostat a degree or two before guests arrive.

Otherwise, since bodies generate heat, the house may overheat.

MRS. CHARLES STEVEN KUSS

Hernandez, Kuss Married In Houston Catholic Church

St. John Vanney Catholic Church in Houston was the setting Saturday for the ceremony in which Miss Peggy Anne Hernandez and Charles Steven Kuss were united in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Hernandez Sr., of Houston, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Kuss Jr., of Hermleigh. Monsignor William L. Tinney officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight silk peau'de soie with re-embroidered Alecon lace. The gown featured a bodice fashioned with a jeweled lace bertha collar, long tapered illusion sleeves and a cathedral length train. The bride selected the Juliet cap her mother wore using lace from her paternal great-grandmother's and grandmother's wedding dress. The cap of lace was edged in orange blossoms and embroidered in pearls. The veil of silk illusion was also adorned with lace palets. She carried a flowing cascade of miniature orchids, fragrant blossoms of stephenotis and preserved baby's breath.

Mrs. Shannon Strickland, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Betty Hernandez, sister of the bride, Miss Marion Hernandez, also sister of the bride, and Carol Escuiex. They wore an off-the-shoulder peasant blouse of pale blue organdy with an off white floral print. The skirt of the same print had a wide gathered flounce. The bridesmaids wore natural picture hats. They carried natural baskets of white pixie carnations, sweetheart roses and blue silk blossoms. The flower girl, Jacque Kuss, niece of the bridegroom wore a similar dress of pink and off white floral organdy. She also carried a natural basket of miniature carnations, sweetheart roses and pink silk blossoms. She wore a wreath of daisies in her hair.

Mr. Danny Kuss, brother of the groom served as best man. Groomsmen were Leonard Kuss, brother of the groom, Danny Peterson, Dale Peterson, and Steve Wagner. The ushers were Paul Hernandez Jr., brother of the bride, and Jay Hernandez, cousin of the bride.

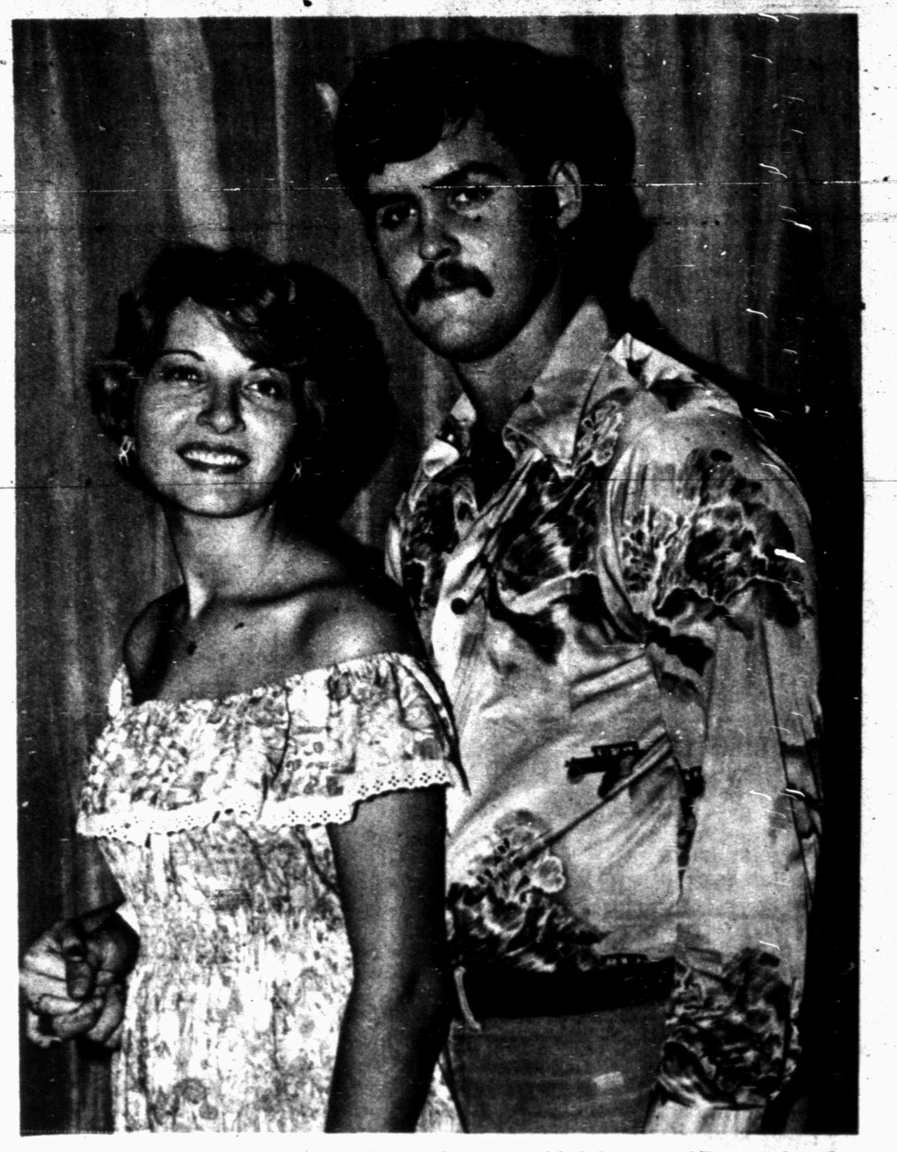
Members of the houseparty were Connie Hollas, Marsha Wagner, Connie Gaddis, and Pat Jernigan.

After a trip to Acapulco the couple will reside in Midland.

The bride is a graduate of Conroe High School and attended Sam Houston State University.

The groom graduated from Hermleigh in 1973, Western Texas Junior College and Texas A&M. He is employed by the Texaco Oil Company in Midland.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Ant And The Grasshopper, hosted by the groom's parents.



ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED - Mr. and Mrs. David H. Hoover of Rt. 1, Colorado City announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Julie Anna, to James Wilson Smylie, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Smylie of 3001 39th St. Miss Hoover is a 1977 graduate of Colorado High School and attended Western Texas College. She will be working in Lubbock this fall. The future bridegroom is a 1976 graduate of Snyder High School and attended Texas &AM. He will be a junior at Texas Tech this fall. The marriage is set for September 2 at 2 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents.

PINK AND BLUE SHOWER - The parlor of the First Baptist Church was the site of a baby shower held July 31 honoring Mrs. David Williamson. Hostesses were Teresa Cullar, Phyllis Glasscock, Mary Beckham, Margaret Grant, Frances Wiman, June Browning, Laverne Thompson and Jane Lawler. Pictured above are Mrs. Lillie Lewis, grandmother of the honoree; Mrs. Joyce Glover, her mother; the honoree; and Mrs. Celeste Williamson, her mother-in-law.

Hughes, Woellert Wed

Wedding vows were exchanged July 22 at 2 p.m. at the Ira Baptist Church by Kristi Anne Hughes and Timothy Dale Woellert. Rev. James Mosley of Ackerly officiated the single ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Hughes of Colorado City and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woellert of Snyder.

Given in marriage by her brother, James Hughes of Rogers, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory satin with long Chantilly lace sleeves accented with a lace cameo neckline. The bridal veil was of matching Chantilly lace. The bride's attire was made by her mother. The bride carried a cascade of white and yellow daisies and baby's breath with white satin streamers on top of her sister's white Bible.

In keeping with tradition, for something old she carried a handkerchief belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. G.C. Young of Rogers. Her dress was new. She wore a blue garter with a small heart pillow containing pennies minted in the couple's year of birth.

Mrs. Sharon Stroud of Holland, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of green chiffon. Miss Jonni Hughes of Ira, sister of the bride, and Miss Linda Cooley of Ira were bridesmaids. They wore identical dresses of pink. They carried long stemmed pink carnations with pink, yellow and green satin streamers. The flower girl, Samantha Stroud of Holland, neice of the bride, wore a yellow double knit formal gown. She carried a basket trimmed in white satin streamers containing daisy petals.

Terry Woellert of Dallas, brother of the groom, served as best man. Rudy England of Snyder and Wendell Wilbourne of Ira were groomsmen. Larry Kubena and Bradley Woosley served as ushers.

The altar was decorated with pink and white roses with two seven-branch candelabra holding a total of 14 burning white tapers.

Providing wedding music was Brenda Cooley of Ira who sang "Annie's Song" and "You Light Up My Life" while playing the guitar and also accompanied by Vicki Border at the Piano.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Ira Community Center. The bride's table was covered with a yellow cloth accented with white daisies. A two tiered white wedding cake was decorated with pink and yellow roses topped with a miniature bride and groom. Cake was served by Mrs. Dorman Arrott of Columbus, Ohio, sister of the groom, and punch was served by Melissa Kellner. Dee Dee Dunn registered guests.

The rehearsal dinner was held at The Shack hosted by the groom's parents.

The couple will reside in Snyder after a short trip to Carlsbad, N.M.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Ira High School. The bridegroom is a 1978 graduate of Snyder High School and presently employed by Furr's Supermarket.

Most pairs in the Cavendish invitational stopped at a spade or heart game and invariably made five odd. Two pairs reached six spades. There is a way to bring that contract home but neither of the declarers found it. They really shouldn't have. Normal plays all fail.

One South arrived at six hearts and as he explained later, it was a lay down. Actually, it was extremely good play.

He ruffed the club and promptly led a spade. West's king fell to dummy's ace and South played two rounds of trumps. Then he led a spade to dummy's 10. East could do no better than to take his jack and lead a second club. South ruffed; played out the last two trumps while chucking dummy's queen and five of spades. Then he cashed his last two spades and the unfortunate West found himself between a rock and a hard place.

He had to discard before dummy and was forced to come down to two diamonds in order to hold a good club. The last club was then thrown from dummy and the last tricks were the three diamond winners.

Garden Ceremony Unites Couple In Sweetwater

Gelene Williams and Jay Ross Waddell exchanged wedding vows in the yard of the groom's parents home at Lake Sweetwater Saturday, July 29, at 8 p.m. Dr. F.M. Churchill, professor at Abilene Christian University performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Williams of Albany, former residents of Snyder. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Waddell of Sweetwater.

Vows were exchanged in the back yard which was decorated with hanging baskets and potted plants. Two white doves in a white bird cage added to the outdoor setting. Sharon Brooks sang "One and Only," "Evergreen" and "My Cup Runneth Over" accompanied by Elaine Gann at the piano.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long dress of polyester sophisticate satin with a triple overlay of polyester chiffon. It was designed with a high stand-up collar and full butterfly sleeves. Her dress was made by her mother. Her headpiece was scalloped and accented with tiny seed pearls with a chiffon veil.

The bride carried a bouquet of white orchids, tropicana roses, and baby's breath. In her bouquet, was a small white ornamental dove that was used to decorate her mother's wedding cake.

For something old, the bride wore a gold ring which belonged to her great – grandmother. Something new was a gift from the groom. For something borrowed, she wore a strand of pearls belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Ed Williams. Her blue garter was handmade by her aunt, Mrs. Al Young of Stamford. In her shoe she had pennies minted in the years of the couple's birthdates.

Kathy Moore, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Connie Carlile of Stephenville, Misses Vickie and Kelli Waddell, both sisters of the groom. They wore floor-length peach sundresses with matching shawls and each carried a bouquet of orange, gold, white and peach flowers accented with baby's breath.

Best man to the groom was his brother, Jim Bob Waddell. Groomsmen were Ronnie Williams of Sweetwater, Bobby Price of Big Spring, Larry May of Abilene. Ushers were Rod Wetsel of Sweetwater, Craig Johnson of Vail, Colorado, Ken Allen of Waco, and Jack Sanders of Houston.

MRS. JAY ROSS WADDELL

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held on the patio of the groom's parents home. Members of the houseparty included Miss Tobin Carroll of Houston, Mrs. Al Young of Stamford, Mrs. Dub Preston of Abilene, Mrs. Martin Gohlke of Abilene, Miss Brenda Jernigan of Rising Star and Mrs. Rory of Houston.

When the couple departed on a Caribbean wedding cruise, the bride was wearing a white skirt and blouse trimmed in blue print with a corsage taken from her bridal bouquet.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents Friday night at the Sweetwater Country Club.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Snyder High School and a 1977 graduate of Abilene Christian University and presently teaches second grade in Sweetwater.

The groom is a 1971 graduate of Sweetwater High School and a 1975 graduate of the University of Texas and is employed by Modern Pontiac-Olds in Sweetwater.

The couple will make their home at Lake Sweetwater.

Seeks Career

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Despite the handicap of deafness, Richard Norton, 19, has been successful at a hobby he hopes to make a career - photography.

"Because I am unable to hear any speech even with a hearing aid, verbal communication is very difficult for me. I use my photography to communicate and to express myself," says Norton, who has won more than 40 photography awards.

Athletes Need Proper Nutrition

COLLEGE STATION - Well-balanced diets - not fad foods - insure athletes of the proper nutrition they need, says Mary K. Sweeten, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Athletes may find food fads attractive because of the pressure on them for physical fitness.

Because of this pressure, they often accept any formula which promises quick results. They believe in any food or vitamin supplements they feel will improve their performance, she points out.

However, no dietary special foods or vitamin pills give the athlete competitive skill.

Well-balanced foods are the best source of nutrients for the athlete.

Vitamin pills are unnecessary for a healthy individual and add neither extra energy or pep, Mrs. Sweeten says.

Selections from the basic four food groups are the best insurance of a well-balanced diet.

Eat four or more servings each of the fruit-vegetable and bread-cereal groups, two or more servings of the milk group and two and one-half to three ounce servings of meat group foods every day, she recommends.

Formal Ceremony Weds Couple

Tanya Sue Sterling became the bride of Terry LaRoy Shafer in a double ring ceremony performed by Mike Ezzell, Church of Christ minister, at 2 p.m. July 30 in the Ira United Methodist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Sterling and Mr. and Mrs. LaRoy Shafer, all of Vincent.

Vows were exchanged before an altar flanked with white [illegible] and lemon leaves in brass urns sitting upon brass columns. Traditional wedding music was provided by Mrs. Ralph Walker of Big Spring, pianist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an A-line princess gown of white knit polyester organdy over bridal satin. Chantilly lace was ruffled around the scoop neckline. The cap sleeves were also made of lace as was the border of the extended train. Lace roses were appliqued at intervals on the skirt and at the waist.

She wore a band of small silk flowers in her hair. For something old, she wore a necklace loaned to her by her grandmother, Mrs. J.E. Sorrells and was worn by her great-grandmother at her wedding. Her bracelet was loaned to her by the groom's mother, Mrs. Alma Shafer.

She carried a nosegay of blue and white flowers with tiny white ribbons.

Maid of honor Tami Shafer, of Coahoma the bridegroom's sister, wore a blue batiste featuring a ruffle around the shoulders and lower skirt accented with royal blue velvet ribbons. She carried a light blue carnation with baby's breath tied with royal blue ribbons.

Tony Shafer served his brother as best man. Usher was Brett Sterling.

Following the ceremony a reception was held honoring the couple at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. The bride's table was decorated with white carnations and greenery surrounding a silver candelabrum. The table covered with an ecru cutwork cloth which held a three tiered cake was decorated with pastel flowers. Serving were the bride's sisters, Pattie Barnes and June Sterling. Serving at the groom's table were Mrs. Rhonda Harding and Mrs. Leslie Williams. Mrs. Carolyn Tucker presided at the registry table.

After a wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico, the couple will reside at Vincent where the bridegroom is engaged in farming.

Both bride and groom attended Coahoma High School graduating in 1976 and 1973, respectively. They attended Texas Tech and the bride also attended Western Texas College.

Ready For Narnia

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) - When the Children's Television Workshop produces its adaptation of C.S. Lewis' classic fantasy, "The Chronicles of Narnia," for the CBS-TV network next year, one young viewer here will have a special interest in the show.

After her sixth-grade teacher told the class about the upcoming production of the series' first book, "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe," 12-year-old Kathy Cummings decided to be prepared for it. She read the complete Narnia novel, then created a 10-foot scroll depicting Lewis' imaginary world.

The scroll was presented on Kathy's behalf to CTW president Joan Ganz Cooney at the recent annual convention of the National Education Association, which named Ms. Cooney winner of the "Friend of Education" award, the first woman and first member of the communications field to be so honored.

carter's opportunity

Top news story out of Washington as last week neared a close was one which has been brewing for some time. Reference, of course is to the break between the Carter Administration and two prominent supporters, Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts and George Meany, president of AFL-CIO.

It happened when the Administration's health program was ready for public announcement. The Massachusetts liberal was shown the courtesy of a pre-announcement look at the President's plan. Kennedy didn't wait for the public announcement. He denounced the proposal as a breach of faith and left the very definite impression that if the situation isn't changed in the meantime he will reconsider his previously announced intention of supporting Carter for second term.

Meany wasn't at the White House preview of the health service program. Kennedy's evaluation was good enough for him. He not only seconded the Kennedy declaration of war on the Carter Administration but added a promise to throw organzed labor's support to Kennedy's opposition to a Carter renomination in 1980.

These developments should have surprised no informed observer of the national political scene. Meany's unhappiness with the Carter Administration began early. It surfaced when the President rejected the AFL-CIO demand for an immediate increase of the minimum wage to $3 per hour, and became irrevocable when Congress refused to repeal Section 14-B of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Meany attributed that result to failure of Carter to throw the full weight of his office into the fight. Kennedy's disillusionment has been developing more slowly.

President Carter has more than a sufficient number of worries to keep him awake at night. His influence on Capitol Hill is about as low as it could be. The senior Senator from Massachusetts, as spokesman for liberal causes, can add to these difficulties.

It could be disastrous for a harassed President. The nation could suffer immeasurably. That is one point of view. Another is that it presents Carter with an opportunity to show the stuff he's made of. If he accepts the Kennedy-Meany challenge, and begins the fight for fiscal integrity he has been talking about, he will have a lot of backing. In the present state of public opinion he might win if he gives no quarter and asks for none.

equality moves fast

The going may be slow on the Equal Rights Amendment and in some other areas, but women are making rapid strides toward equality with men in one category.

More women are smoking more and the consequences are showing up in health statistics, according to the latest annual report on smoking and health from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano, an ex-smoker who has turned a congressionally mandated duty into something of a personal crusade, notes that the trend among women smokers is toward taking up the habit at an earlier age and becoming heavier smokers. Since 1950, the lung cancer death rate in the 45-64 age group has doubled for men while it has quadrupled among women. Similar increases were cited for heart disease and problems during pregnancy, including miscarriages.

The report also noted statistical differences among forms of smoking, pipes being rated least hazardous. It's doubtful, however, that that bit of information will have much appeal in terms of minimizing risk.

Women may have come a long way, but not many of them are prepared to go that far yet.

"The buck stops here!"

good, bad news

For Sun Belt cities, some good news and some bad news.

The good news is that industrial conventions are moving out of major Eastern cities and heading our way.

The bad news is that what happened to Chicago and New York and Detroit--where such splendid convention facilities as McCormick Place and the Coliseum and Cobo Hall have become labor union clip joints--that can happen to you, too, in St. Louis and Houston and Atlanta and Las Vegas and Phoenix and Dallas.

A specific case:

A California businessman exhibiting his product at a trade show at McCormick Place in Chicago arrived early, noticed one of five crates had been damaged in transit, began to remove the top of the box with a screwdriver.

A union foreman arrived and rudely ordered him to get over to the registration desk and sign up for a union carpenter.

The elderly carpenter assigned lacked the strength to remove the screws, the California exhibitor helped him. The union carpenter charged him $17.50 an hour--but explained that he, the carpenter, would be expected to "kick back most of that."

After the carpenter came a procession of three union riggers to open the crates, a forklift operator to lift the crates (the heaviest weighed 50 pounds), then representatives from the millwright union to connect the four hoses which the California businessman could easily have connected.

And a union electrician would be required to plug the thing into a wall socket.

Decorations for the exhibit--some bunting--would have to be tacked in place by members of the upholsterer's union.

His sign would have to be hung by somebody from the decorator's union.

And along the way the California businessman was reminded that if he tried to do any of these things himself he'd get in trouble and his exhibit would not long survive.

It didn't anyway.

When the show was over, all these hands showed up again--the sequence of payoffs was repeated--and valuable portions of the exhibit were stolen.

The cumulative cost is often thousands of dollars.

Periodically the city and state investigate.

They discover that high-priced union help plus tipping plus thievery--involving the tentacles of organized crime--are still in control of McCormick Place Convention Facilities.

Investigators agree that truckers steal, maintenance crews steal, security guards steal, tradesmen steal.

At best, the parasitic workmen are surly. At worst, thievery and thuggery leave any exhibitor in fear for the security of his merchandise and often for her personal safety.

But so established is the system that nobody prosecutes anybody and more and more trade shows and conventions avoid the captive cities.

The obvious moral for other cities is: At the first instance of bribery or thievery, prosecute vigorously.

my turn

by roy mcqueen, publisher

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A good test for conversation: if you wouldn't write it and sign your name to it, don't say it."

Readers tell us that the front page "Ask Us" column is one of the most popular features of the Snyder Daily News.

We started the column a couple of months ago and it was patterned after a "hotline" started by the metropolitan dailies several years ago.

Many smaller papers in our circulation size have tried the feature only to find that interest wasn't great enough to keep it going. We had some newspaper friends warn that it simply would fizzle out.

Not so in Snyder. In fact we have a desk drawer full of questions needing to be answered. The backlog indicates an interest not only in the newspaper column but also in the many areas of community life.

We've been asked several questions about "Ask Us" and we decided it was time to lay it out.

A fellow in the coffee shop said he thought it must be like Dear Abby and that we made them up since people really didn't write in.

The truth is that we receive one and sometimes two or three questions per day in the mail. Staff members are also handed quesitons at various places. Staffers have been handed or asked inquiries at coffee shops, the post office, in stores and at church.

We've also been asked how we get the answer. No, we don't have all the answers. We simply feel that we know where to go to obtain the correct one.

The nature of the questions have caused many of them to be answered by the city manager, school superintendent, college president, police chief and chamber officials.

Many times the questions are merely gripes, but we believe it's good for citizens to get an issue off their chest. Sometimes an answer reveals that the inquirer was simply misinformed.

Good, factual information is healthy for a community. We try to keep the answers both factual and brief. So far, the cooperation from those asked to help answer the questions has been terrific. One official said many questions are those generally asked and the column is a good way to answer a large number of people.

Keep 'em coming and we'll keep searching for the answer.

it's possible

Has the whistle gone out of your life? You say you don't feel like dancing or skipping anymore? If we pressed to the root of the problem, I guarantee we'd find tension as the cause.

Love, laughter, affection, humor and enthusiasm are the warm emotions. Tension causes these emotions to be frozen over like when the warm lakes in Iowa suffer a deep freeze in the winter. When peace, the kind God gives, comes to the control center of your mind, it thaws out the positive emotions like spring sunshine turns winter ice into warm water.

Open yourself to God and His possibilities for you. Optimism and cheerfulness, happy expectations, hopeful moods will begin to dominate your daily outlook! You'll find yourself anticipating a happy knock at the door, a welcome telephone call, and good news in the mailbox! You'll become possessed by a "pleasant-surprises-are-coming" complex!

Practice poise through possibility thinking! The greatest lesson I ever learned was when I was fresh out of Theological Seminary. I graduated one week, took my license tests seven days later, and a week after that I was married and headed off to my first church in a Chicago suburb.

I had no idea what I was getting into. Here was a tiny congregation of about 40 members, split down the middle with suspicion and distrust. Both factions tried to use me for their purposes. To an inexperienced young man this was a most difficult problem.

On top of that the church had money problems. And they wouldn't let me talk about money. I found out that the most sensitive nerve in the human body is the one that leads to the pocketbook!

Someone said, "Money talks, but it also stops a lot of talk."

At night I tossed in bed, worrying about the church. Night after night I had trouble sleeping. I dreaded the oncoming night for fear of sleeplessness. Next, I imagined I would suffer from a breakdown if I didn't get more sleep.

Guess what? Just at that crucial moment a prominent magazine came out with this headline on the cover: "Why Ministers Are Cracking Up." That night I experienced panic — sudden sweating — the time of hysteria. "This is it Schuller," I said to myself. "You're going off your rocker. You're going to flip now. You are about to have a nervous breakdown."

I prayed desperately. Into my mind God sent this Bible verse. "All things work together for good to those who love God."

The next thought was also a positive thought: "Perhaps God is trying to teach me something through this experience. If God wants to give me advanced training in understanding human problems by leading me into a first-hand experience with a breakdown — well, in that case a crack-up will be a build-up! So don't fight it or fear it; if it comes, enjoy it," the inner voice said.

From that moment on I imagined only great positive possibilities in all potentially trying experiences — and poise replaced panic. I have since identified this feeling of inner peace as the very power and presence of God within me. "The kingdom of God is within you!"

Reverend Schuller, pastor of the Garden Grove, Calif., Community Church, can be seen weekly on his nationally syndicated TV program, "Hour of Power."

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The nation's airlines are promoting an audacious scheme calling for the imposition of a special federal tax whose only purpose whould be to collect almost $3.2 billion for the purchase of new passenger planes.

The government's role would be limited to levying the tax on airline customers, then turning over the money to the airlines to finance the replacement of hundreds of aging aircraft with a new fleet of commercial jets.

The unprecedented use of federal taxing authority to provide funds earmarked exclusively for one industry's equipment modernization program is authorized in a little-publicized bill now pending in Congress.

Numerous legislators have criticized the plan, but among its most zealous proponents is Rep. Glenn M. Anderson, D-Calif., chairman of the aviation subcommittee of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee.

Anderson recently allowed the Air Transport Association, the industry's trade association, to take over a congressional hearing room for an entire day to present one-sided briefings on the issue to other House members and their staffs.

Consigned to the corridor outside the hearing room were representatives of Ralph Nader's Congress Watch, who distributed literature describing the proposal as "a subterfuge to underwrite a new jet fleet at taxpayers expense."

The bill, the "Noisy Aircraft Revenue and Credit Act of 1978," justifies the unique taxation scheme on the grounds that the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has imposed a 1985 deadline for jet engine noise reduction.

The industry argues that since the FAA is requiring quieter aircraft, the government should pay at least part of the bill by establishing a special 2 percent tax on all passenger tickets, then distributing the proceeds to the airlines.

(The federal tax on airline tickets now is 8 percent. The bill technically would reduce the rate to 6 percent, then immediately add back the new 2 percent levy.)

The noise abatement requirements are hardly a surprise to the airlines, since the basic legislation was approved by Congress 10 years ago. The most recent FAA regulatuions, issued in 1976, gave the airlines more than eight years to bring their planes into compliance.

The airlines originally told the FAA they could meet the new standards by retrofitting planes with sound-absorbing material at a cost of $950 million. But now they claim that compliance also involves the purchase of new planes, at a cost of $6 billion to $8 billion.

What the industry really wants is federal money to replace the first generation of the four-engine, long-range commercial jets — the approximately 450 Boeing 707s and McDonnell-Douglas DC-8s now in service.

More than half of those aircraft will be 18 years old, the age of commercial retirement, by 1985. According to one estimate, more than $2.5 billion of the federal subsidy (three-fourths of the taxes collected) will be used to buy replacements.

The airlines already are the beneficiaries of generous federal tax relief through investment tax credits and accelerated depreciation benefits. In addition, the industry is enjoying a business boom of unprecedented proportions.

"Traffic has zoomed beyond all projections," says Business Week magazine, citing "fat profits" and "spectacular second-quarter profit performance" of several airlines.

TWA's earnings were up 71 percent and United's earning more than quadrupled in the spring quarter; June was the busiest month in the history of commercial aviation; and profits amassed by all airlines are expected to easily top the $1 billion mark by the end of the year.

United, Eastern and Pan American have placed orders in recent months for almost $2.9 billion worth of new planes - proving that the airlines are quite capable of financing their own aircraft purchases without a special federal subsidy.

first cb funeral

It was the first CB funeral ever held. More than 100 CBers, many of them members of the Signal Seekers of Polk County, Fla., were present to bury their chaplain, Gordon Van Noske.

It was a touching occasion as the pallbearers wearing their red, white, and blue uniforms buried "Flash Gordon" in reverence. He, too, as he had requested his family, wore the prescribed attire of his club.

Marlin Fagan, president of the Signal Seekers, presided at a private club prayer for Van Noske the following Sunday and dedicated the mini-jamboree, which the club had been planning for months, to his memory. CBers from throughout Polk County came to participate in the event and to honor their fellow CBer's passing.

"We organized the club in mid-December, 1977," explained Fagan, whose handle is "Yellow Jacket." "Our first meeting was in January, 1978. We've got 54 members. It was started by seven CBers who were tired of the abuses that we found on citizens band radio. People who harrass CBers talking, who yak on top of conversations and who dead key are doing CB an injustice. We decided to do something about it."

At their first meeting they agreed that their efforts would be directed toward this objective. They set initiation fees at $10 per member (which included the wives) and monthly fees at $2. With their initial organization there was enough money to buy three signal tracers for finding the offenders. Working together, the club has nailed five so far. Two of these have been reported to the FCC for refusing to cooperate reasonably.

Signal Seekers like "The Wild Man" (Leonard Wilts), "Crusader" (Reese Griffin), "Elevator Man" (William Davis) and "Alligator" (Louie Mitchell) all wanted some structure for what they term a "decent CB family that could enjoy each other in good fellowship." Their meetings are primarily about projects they can undertake. Their uniforms indicate their pride in their organization.

In a county of Florida with about 200,000 population there are more than 30 CB clubs. Their total membership is estimated at 8,000 active CBers. At a mini-jamboree in Lakeland, the county seat, between over 4,000 CBers came to enjoy the bingo games, various family competitions and strive for the prizes. A joint effort of all the Polk County clubs is in the planning stage to see if their combined efforts at raising money for Jerry Lewis' annual muscular dystrophy can do better than a Tampa television station.

"Right now the biggest problem on CB is the non-stop talkers," Fagan said. "Recently, as an example, a woman was heading south on Interstate 75 and there had been a death in her family. She was from Ohio, so a member of her family called a friend in Winter Haven to see if she could be headed off before she got to Miami. He put it on Channel 12 (our channel) and I picked the message up. I wanted to relay it to Tampa or Orlando, but I couldn't get a break because of this. That's wrong."

There are many things wrong with citizens band radio. But clubs like the Signal Seekers are dedicated to making it a better and a more valuable resource.

US Relations With Bolivia Under Review

WASHINGTON (AP) - The State Department says that U.S. relations with Bolivia are under review following the country's abortive attempt to return to democratic rule. Department spokesman Hedding Carter said relations with Bolivia haven't been suspended but the administration is seeking "clarification" of the new regime's intentions.

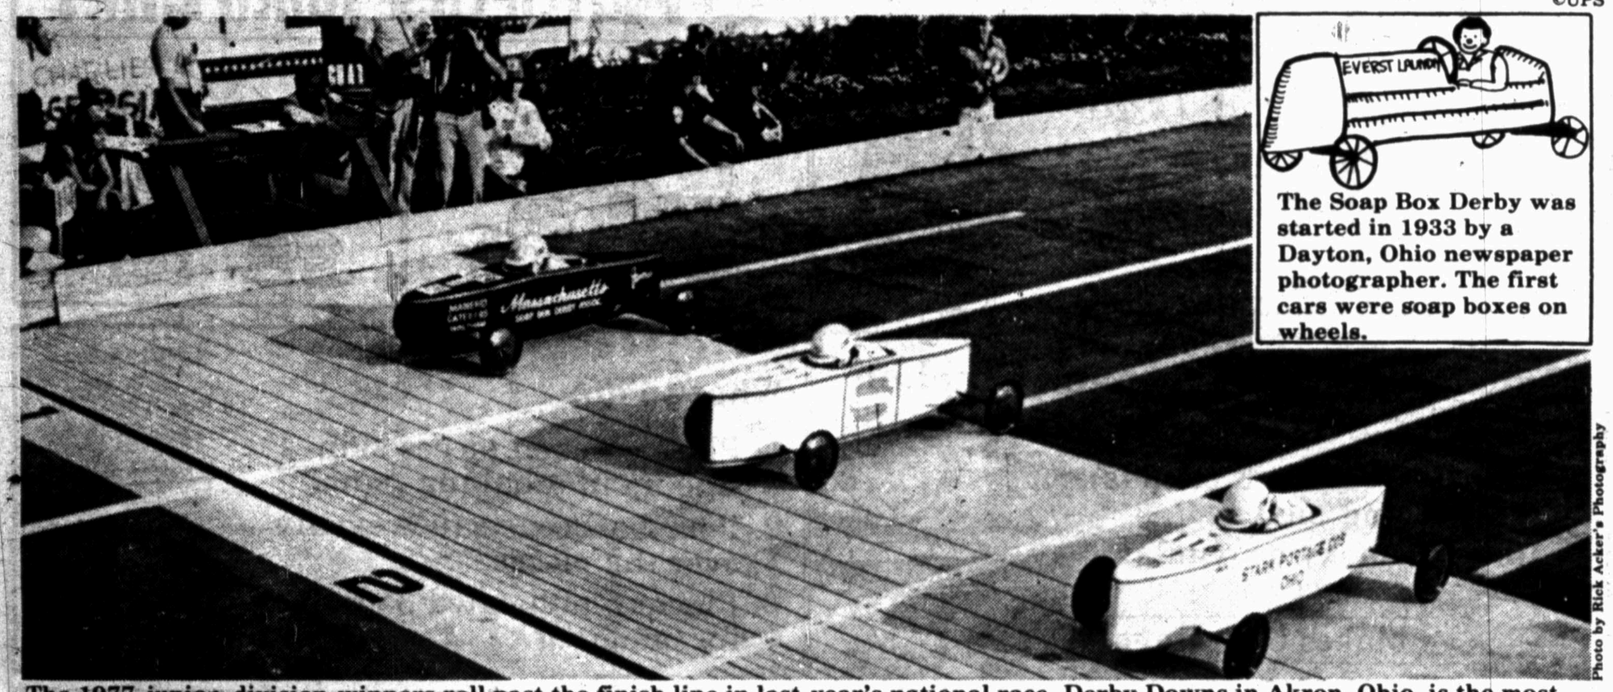
All-American Soap Box Derby Time Rolls Around August 12 ©UPS



The Soap Box Derby was started in 1933 by a Dayton, Ohio newspaper photographer. The first cars were soap boxes on wheels.

The 1977 junior division winners roll past the finish line in last year's national race. Derby Downs in Akron, Ohio, is the most modern racing track of its kind. Fifty-one cities now have special Soap Box Derby tracks like the one in Akron for their local races. Some cities with no hills build ramps for the cars to roll down.

Next week! Can you hardly wait? The Mini Page goes to a Shaun Cassidy concert!

On August 12, about 200 kids ages 10 to 15, from all over the country, will compete in the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio.

Derby Day begins with a parade.

Later, the first heat (race) rolls down the track. The cars have no motors.

Each heat is made up of one car in each of the three lanes.

The winner of each heat advances to the next round and so on, until a single winner is crowned in each age division.

The average time for each heat is 30 seconds. There is a three-minute break between each heat.

It takes about four hours for both the junior and senior division races to be run.

This will be the first year that a senior car kit can be used. The kit is called "Lightning in a Box." Before this time, seniors built their cars from scratch. Now they have a choice.

The Senior winner will get a $3,000 college scholarship. The Junior winner gets a set of tools. ©UPS

For the Soap Box Derby . . .

Kids Build Race Cars at School

A fifth grader gets pointers from his teacher about how to assemble the brakes. In the junior division, kids can get help ... but they must do half the work themselves.

BALTIMORE — How would you like to build a car at school?

Some kids in Baltimore schools did just that.

Last spring, they built race cars for the Soap Box Derby.

By building cars, they learned a lot about math and following directions.

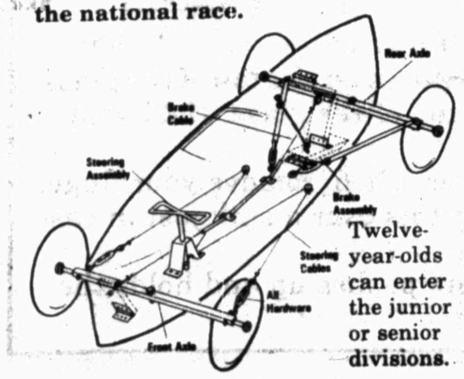
They learned how to use tools and machines.

They found out something about hard work and competition.

These young students might not grow up to be auto mechanics, but they could turn out to be Soap Box Derby winners.

The national All-American Soap Box Derby will be held August 12, in Akron, Ohio.

Two girls at work on their cars. The local Baltimore race was held in June. The winners will be going to the national race.



Twelve-year-olds can enter the junior or senior divisions.

An outline drawing of a junior racer. Kids from 10 to 12 must use Soap Box Derby kits put out by the people who run the big race. Older kids from 12 to 15 can use kits if they wish or they can build their own.

Aspirin and bruising

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in your column that people who bruise easily shouldn't take aspirin. Is this so? And if true, what should they take? Is there anything that would help this condition?

DEAR READER — People who bruise easily should see a doctor and have a study of their blood clotting mechanism to see what the basic problem really is. It's true that if there is a defect in normal clotting or if there is a tendency to bleeding which may cause bruising, then aspirin may increase the problem.

If one is taking aspirin for pain relief you can use one of the other non-aspirin medications such as Tylenol which normally doesn't have any effect on the blood clotting mechanism. Tylenol and similar medications do increase the action of the anticlotting medicines that many heart patients and stroke patients take.

Before one decides what can be done for bruising it's important to know what is causing it and that's why you have to go to the doctor. Because aspirin does increase the tendency to bleeding and decreases blood clotting it's important for people who have any bleeding tendency or are those taking anticlotting medicines to know this.

Many medicines people can buy on their own contain aspirin. I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-8, Aspirin and Related Medicines which contains a list of the common medicines that also contain aspirin. Others who want this issue about aspirin can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When I was a boy my mother would have me wear a string around my neck containing a small bag of asafetida to protect me against the lesser diseases such as colds, flu and so forth. Is there any validity to such a practice or is it just plain superstition? I must say I didn't catch anything but the mumps while wearing it nor have I been pestered with many illnesses since.

DEAR READER — The fact that human beings may be turned off by foul smelling odors doesn't mean that bacteria or viruses will be similarly affected.

There is no evidence that asafetida prevents or cures any illness whatsoever. The only way that I can see that it would help prevent a cold is by keeping people away from you. Colds, flu and similar disorders are contagious diseases spread by people. Other than that I'm afraid the asafetida bag was more useful in relieving your mother's concern, and to fulfill her need to do something.

Doctors also have the urge sometimes to do something for their patients when there is clearly little if anything that can be done. As a consequence doctors often prescribe antibiotics for various virus diseases when in fact such antibiotics have no influence at all upon the illness. This is not good medical practice but it does happen, and again because the doctor really wants to do something and is a human being. The end result, however, is of no more benefit than the old-fashioned asafetida bag. But both he and the patient often feel better because both think something is being done.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have to restrict my intake of sweets, fatty foods, salt and all fried foods as I am both a diabetic and a hypertensive.

I am presently on a 1500 calorie a day diet prescribed by my doctor. I have to eat foods already prepared but I can rarely find canned meats or prepared meats that are low in fat and salt. Do you have any suggestion?

DEAR READER — Most prepared foods decrease the potassium content and increase the sodium content. This is just the opposite of what you need.

When you say you are on a salt restricted diet what you really mean is you are on a sodium salt restricted diet. The process of canning or even the process of freezing usually tends to decrease the potassium content and increase the sodium content. That's why I think people with your kind of problems who need to restrict their salt would be better off to prepare their own foods from fresh fruits and vegetables.

For a food that provides a considerable amount of protein and is still low in sodium you can use mature bean seeds.

To give you an idea of what food processing does to the sodium content of most of our foods I'm sending you The Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

You should talk this over with your doctor and review what kind of diet you really should be on. Fresh fruits and vegetables should be acceptable including mature bean seeds. To improve their flavor they can be prepared with a variety of spices. Of course if you eat raw fruits such as raw apples they won't require anything to be added.

There are good studies that show that eating a raw apple will not raise your blood sugar and should be all right for diabetics. In fact diabetics eating raw fruits and avoiding starches may decrease their insulin requirements if they currently require insulin for balance. This, of course, has to be adjusted under the doctor's supervision.

You should be able to broil fish if you like fish and again use seasonings other than those containing sodium salt. There are a number of low-fat fish that should be suitable for this purpose. It is true that all foods in the meat group contain some salt and whether you'd need to limit the total amount of those you consume or not depends entirely on how much your doctor wishes to restrict your sodium salt intake.

You can also avoid the fried food problem by eating things which are boiled or steamed. You might find a pressure cooker with many of its recipes would be very useful for a person with your problem.

A baked breast of chicken, with the skin removed, is an excellent source of protein and it is low in fat, low in calories and three-and-a-half ounces (raw weight of meat only not including bone or skin) contains less that 60 mg of sodium. You would be hard pressed to find any processed meat that meets these desirable characteristics for your diet. Why don't you discuss this with your doctor? I'm not at all sure why he wants you to use prepared meats. Perhaps you have misunderstood him.

Flip Wilson Seeks Cabbie

DENVER (AP) - In 1955, a Denver cab driver schemed to get a then-struggling Flip Wilson a night-club job. Now, the comedian wants to locate and thank him.

Wilson, appearing here this week, said he only remembers that the cabbie was about 30 and had a pregnant wife.

The comedian said the cabbie and his four brothers successively called a Colorado Springs night spot and said they heard a rumor that Flip Wilson was performing..

Then the cabbie, posing as the comedian's manager, walked into the club with Wilson by his side.

"He tells the girl there taking tickets, 'Inform the owner that Flip Wilson and his manager are here ...'"

They waited a while and then the cabbie approached the owner and asked her is she would mind if Wilson "did a couple of minutes for his fans."

She didn't mind, and afterwards hired him for a two-week engagement.

Art 'Healers' Coping With Most Any Disaster

EDITOR'S NOTE - Extremists bomb Versailles Palace, old world masterpieces are slashed, mold attacks Da Vinci's The Last Supper, but all is not always lost. Seemingly hopeless damage can often be repaired by art restoration experts - Renaisance blends of artist, historian, chemist, carpenter, surgeon and often specialist in the breeding habits of worms.

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) - In a musty Old World studio, among a clutter of beakers, palettes and gilt picture frames, the pieces of a tragic jigsaw puzzle lie scattered on a worktable.

Some of the pieces are large, jagged-edge slabs. Many are minute slivers. Others are missing altogether.

Until Brittany separatists bombed a wing of Versailles, the puzzle was Jean Baptiste Debret's 19th century masterpiece, "The First Awarding of Legion of Honor Crosses at Invalides." A dozen other works must also be put together.

But Pierre-Antonine Paulet, the 84-year-old director of restoration at Versailles, declares with assurance: "All will be restored."

His confidence is well-founded. The world's great museums have been restoring art treasures for centuries, and, recently, European specialists say they have made major advances in the battle against the ravages of man, nature and time.

"Any damage to a work of art is tragic, of course," one French expert puts it. "But today our techniques are sophisticated enough to cope with almost any disaster."

Art restoring is expensive, exacting work. Paulet estimates he will need two years and a million dollars to repair the bomb damage.

Experts are extremely cautious about discussing their work, largely for fear of furthering the recent spate of attacks against priceless objects. They also fear arousing professional jealousies.

At Paris's Louvre Museum, a journalist can wait weeks for permission to see the studio where 26 specialists work with space-age chemicals and six-foot-high microscopes to restore up to 900 paintings a year.

The Louvre's restorers, considered among the best in the world, rarely have to worry about slashes because attacks against art have been extremely rare in France.

But in any case, says one Louvre expert, "Most simple slashes - and many molds - are usually pretty easy to fix. Every case is different, of course, but in most slash cases all the canvas remains, it's just cut. We can put on a new back, restore the structure and reseal the paint."

The Louvre's Renaissance men and women spend most of their time transferring centuries-old paintings to modern canvases, removing layers of yellowed varnish or dense white clouds of mold, or meticulously retouching or repainting chipped paintings.

"You're never quite sure what you're going to find when you start restoring a painting," says Gilberte Emile-Male, head of the service of painting restoration for national museums. "The result is often what appears to be an entirely different painting."

Many of the most spectacular discoveries come from undoing the damage of earlier restorers, who often repainted masterpieces to make them conform to the social mores of the day.

"Once I was removing yellow varnish from a painting with a stiff-looking woman with a high-necked dress and got the impression something was not quite right," one restorer says.

"I did a little investigation and found that a Victorian restorer had repainted the woman. Beneath his work I found a sensuous, smiling woman with a dress that barely covered her bosom."

At the Louvre, as at many museums, a panel of historians, scientists and conservation experts make a careful study before any piece is restored. Works are X-rayed and photographed with ultraviolet and infrared light. Spectroscopic analyses are made of the paint, all historical data and market values are examined and a careful course is charted for the restorer.

The Louvre works on the theory that anything done should be able to be undone. Consequently, all work is done not with permanent oil-based paints but with washable water-based materials.

The Louvre helps spread its expertise by providing consultation services to museums around the world. Louvre researchers have also developed a mobile laboratory so restorers can work anywhere in France, thus avoiding the expense and risk of transporting restoration projects to Paris.

Modern art and all its eccentricities, however, have posed a whole new set of problems to restorers.

"Since the Impressionists, painters have not respected the colors," says Miss Male. "So restoration is often difficult. Today, of course, there are no more rules left at all."

To cope with these new problems and the increasing interest in restoration, France is opening its first national school of restoration in September. Until now aspiring French restorers had to be schooled abroad or trained as apprentices.

One things the school's don't often teach is the breeding habits of worms, which often burrow into the wood of Italian primitive paintings and do extensive damage.

"Worms can drive you nuts," one restorer says. "But it's all part of the challenge. In restoration every project is an adventure."

THE BLOOM OF YOUTH had begun to fade from the cheeks of the classic beauties adorning the Prague National Theater's curtain. So, a team of restorers set about to give the ladies a face lift. The curtain — like the rest of the National Theater — dates from 1882.

Sword Trade Ad For Real

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) - Dick Dodge, a 43-year-old former telephone installer, took out the following advertisement in a local newspaper recently; "Honda, '77 Accord, 5 spd. 12,000 mi., $4,950, or trade for fine samurai swords."

"It's no joke," Dodge said.

"I'm a Japanese sword broker. I want to get rid of an extra car, so I figured I'd combine that with work. There is a large retired military population in San Diego. Many people brought these things back as souvenirs."

The swords, he says, range in value from $100 to $10,000, depending on age and condition.

Dodge and his Japanese wife, Kayoko, live half the year here and half in Japan, where they trade their wares at auctions.

"I take the swords back to Japan and sell them myself for double the price," Dodge said.

Cancer survivors

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

According to the American Cancer Society, 2 million Americans have been successfully treated for cancer and will live out their normal life spans unaffected by the disease.

Fortunate as these survivors are, they are not without problems. For example, they are discriminated against in employment and insurance, overprotected by their friends and relatives, and isolated from others who have lived through the fear and uncertainty associated with the disease.

If you have recovered from cancer, you will probably recognize many of the feelings expressed by one survivor who called a hotline for help. Here is an excerpt from that call. (Personal information in all hotline excerpts has been changed to protect the caller's confidentiality.)

HOT LINE

TOM: My battle with cancer is finally over. I feel grateful, but I still can't relax. I can't stop worrying. Maybe I am just selfish and want all the attention I got when I was sick to continue. Now, that is ridiculous.

COUNSELOR: What do you mean your battle with cancer is over?

TOM: Well, I've made it through five years without any symptoms and the American Cancer Society considers that as good as cured. I should be celebrating. Instead, I am worrying about when it will come back.

COUNSELOR: What does your doctor say?

TOM: He gave me a clean bill of health last week. He says I am a lucky guy. I know that's true, but it just makes me feel guilty because I am not happy.

COUNSELOR: How long have you been living with cancer?

TOM: Altogether? Let's see, it has been almost 10 years. That's a long time, isn't it?

COUNSELOR: It certainly is. I am not surprised that you can't just snap your fingers and forget about the whole thing. And the five year figure — that's rather arbitrary, isn't it?

TOM: I'm so glad you said that. I have been wondering how confident I should really be when cancer has reappeared in people I know after nine or 10 years.

COUNSELOR: I guess you are pretty safe statistically after five years. But, as you say, that doesn't mean any guarantee.

TOM: And if my luck holds out, I will just relax and it will strike me again.

COUNSELOR: You mean the cancer?

TOM: Yes. So I tell myself I shouldn't let my guard down. I know it sounds superstitious, but I feel as though I can ward off cancer by always being anxious about its return.

COUNSELOR: I guess you feel you can protect yourself that way. Having those pessimistic thoughts could actually shield you against hearing the shocking news again as you did the first time.

TOM: That was terrible. I told myself I would always be prepared for the worst after that.

COUNSELOR: On the other hand, you have to get on with your life.

TOM: Cancer has been my life for so long. I have almost forgotten about everything else. I have been so frightened of dying that thinking about living now seems almost anticlimactic.

COUNSELOR: You must have been very sick.

TOM: Believe me, no one thought I would live more than a year. And it was nine years ago that it was so bad. I feel lucky, but I also feel a little guilty about living when so many people die from cancer. Maybe I have an extra responsibility to do something great with my life because I made it. That frightens me when I think about the future. I must sound crazy.

COUNSELOR: No. I can understand how you might feel that way. But don't put extra pressure on yourself. Why not merely pick up the pieces where you left off?

TOM: Is doesn't sound so difficult when you put it that way.

Reassured that he didn't have to feel guilty about his feelings, Tom began to talk about what he was going to do with the rest of his life.

Guard Snakes Are Effective

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - Burglars broke into a bar here and tampered with a coin-operated machine, but they left before finishing the job.

"The only thing we can think of is the burglars must have seen them," owner Joe Lahiff said. "They must have scared them off."

"They" are three boa constrictors. They were on the floor of the manager's office, which was as far as the thieves got.

Lahiff said he normally kept his dog at the bar to ward off intruders, but that morning, the dog was with him and the snakes were just filling in.

The snakes belong to his wife, Mary, and have been household pets for about a year, Lahiff said.

Campaign Debt Most Unusual

ST. LOUIS (AP) - If Roy "Judge" Bean wins election to Congress, he'll have one of the most unusual campaign debts ever incurred during the heat of political battle.

The 68-year-old Democrat rented a 14-foot, 100-pound python and draped it around his neck to draw attention to his primary campaign for the 10th District congressional seat. The election is Tuesday.

Bean told the snake Thursday: "You're going to help me go to Congress. And when I come back, I'm going to buy you all the rabbits you want."

In 1977, Austria completed 45,400 new apartments, a two percent increase over the previous year.

Snails Are Gold Mine

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) - A 30-year-old French entrepreneur has found a golf mine in California's common garden snails.

Francois Picart, who ran a family inn on the outskirts of Paris, now pays people to pick common garden snails, which he turns into one of the world's greatest delicacies - escargots.

"California is a snail paradise and I can produce better escargots here than they do in France," said Picart, who converted a butcher shop in Santa Rosa into an escargots factory.

Picart pays 25 cents a pound for deliveries and also trucks in snails from artichoke farms in Pescadero, where they are picked by farmworkers.

The snails are kept in pens, where they feast on fresh cabbage, wheat bran and corn meal.

When they reach the right size, they are fed a water-only diet for 24 hours. Then they are cooked for three to five minutes, removed from their shells, washed again and cooked in herbs and butter.

And with a final American touch, Picart freezes the escargots and places a label on the package: "These escargots were born in California from French ancestors."

Lower 48 States Crude Output Still Declining

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP)-Crude oil production in the Lower 48 states is in its eight consecutive year of decline.

Imports are declining as Alaskan production booms but crude output in such major producing states as Texas and Louisiana continues to fall despite a 20-year high in drilling operations.

Domestic production, including Alaska, reached an all-time high of 9,637,000 barrels a day in 1970 and it dropped to a low of 8,119,000 a day in 1976 prior to the start of operations in Alaska's prolific Prudhoe Bay region.

Excluding all Alaskan output, however, means Lower 48 production dropped from its record high of 9,418,000 barrels a day in 1970 to 7,979,000 in 1976 and to about 7,750,000 in 1977 and the trend is continuing into the second half of 1978.

Mid-year reports from the American Petroleum Institute place total domestic crude production at about 8,918,000 barrels a day. Excluding Alaskan output of about 1,308,000 barrels a day, however, drops the Lower 48 daily average to about 7,610,000 barrels.

That means Lower 48 output has declined nearly 20 percent since peaking in 1970.

Sharp declines in both Louisiana and Texas are largely responsible.

Crude output in Texas peaked in 1970 at 3,424,000 barrels a day but its mid-1978 average was only about 3,069,000.

Louisiana's production reached its all-time high of 2,562,000 in 1971 but the current rate is only about 1,486,000 barrels a day.

Another year of decline in Louisiana could result in Alaska moving into the runnerup spot behind Texas as the top crude producing states.

Alaskan output hit a high of 229,000 barrels daily in 1970 and then dropped to a low of about 170,000 in 1976. Since the start of Prudhoe Bay output in mid-1977, Alaska's overall output has zoomed to the 1,308,000 barrels a day level.

California, with 1,028,000 barrel average in 1969, now is operating at a level of about 930,000 barrels a day with its output from the Elk Hills Petroleum reserve.

Oklahoma reached its peak at 632,000 in 1967 and its, mid-1978 level was about 420,000 barrels a day.

Wyoming now is producing at a rate of 384,000 barrels a day compared with its high of 439,000 in 1970.

Since reaching its peak of 354,000 in 1969, New Mexico has dropped to 230,000 barrels a day.

Kansas output in 1965 was 287,000 barrels a day but it is now averaging about 158,000.

Several states have boosted their production since the 1970 all time high for domestic output but their gains have made little headway in offsetting losses by the major producing states.

Florida had only 8,000 barrels a day in production in 1970 but now is producing at a rate of about 131,000 barrels daily.

Michigan has moved from 32,000 to 91,000 while Alabama has moved from 20,000 to 54,000.

Colorado was producing about 68,000 barrels a day in 1970 and now is recording about 101,000. Utah has boosted its output from about 64,000 to about 87,000.

Nevada was listed as having had no crude oil production eight years ago but now is recording about 2,500 barrels a day.

On an annual basis, total domestic production peaked at 3.319 billion barrels in 1970 but dropped to 2.859 billion in 1977.

Excluding all Alaskan production, the Lower 48 output was 3.236 billion barrels in 1970. Last year's total was only 2,690 billion barrels.

Stepout To Northwest Scurry Producer Set

Maralo, Inc., operating from Midland, announced plans to re-enter an old Luther, Southeast (Siluro-Devonian) well in Howard County and test it as a wildcat above 9,870 feet.

The project is No. 2 Puckett, 660 feet from south and 990 feet from east lines of section 27, block 32, T-2-N, T&P survey and 10 miles north of Big Spring. It is one location north and south of Siluro-Devonian production.

Empire Drilling Co. announced plans to drill a ⅝-mile north stepout to the only Ellenburger well in the Shannon Ranch pool of Scurry County, 12 miles northwest of Snyder.

It is No. 2-346 Shannon Estate, 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 346, block 97, H&TC survey. Contract depth is 8,250 feet.

A wildcat site has been announced by Marshall R. Young Oil Co. of Fort Worth in Kent County, 17 miles northwest of Clairemont.

Scheduled for an 8,100-foot bottom, it is No. 2-18 Swenson, 760 feet from north and 2,020 feet from west lines of section 18, block 2, H&GN survey. Ground elevation is 2,260 feet.

There is no production in the immediate vicinity of the site, however there are several dry holes in the area.

Way & Mills of Midland No. 1 Johnson & Clayton is to be drilled as a 9,600-foot wildcat in Borden County, seven miles southwest of Gail.

Location is 2,173 feet from south and east lines of section 3, block 32, T-4-N, T&P survey. It is surrounded by dry holes and is two and one-quarter miles east of the Luck Pot (Canyon Reef) field.

Ground elevation is 2,458 feet.

Trey Exploration of San Angelo No. 1 Eunice Homan and others is a new well in the Moore (San Andres) field area of Howard County.

Three-quarters mile northeast of other production, it was completed for a daily pumping potential of 10 barrels of 28-gravity oil and 25 barrels of water, through perforations from 3,157 to 3,187 feet after 5,500 gallons of acid and 9,000 gallons of fracture solution.

Location is 990 feet from south and west lines of section 12, block 34, T-1-S, T&P Survey.

DRY HOLES:

HOWARD COUNTY--WES-TEX Drilling Co. No. 1 Roy M. Phillips, wildcat, 1,700 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 20, block 33, T-2-N, T&P survey, five miles east of Knott, td 10,407 feet.

SCURRY COUNTY -- Western Reserves Oil Co. No. 1 Eiland, Southwest (Pennsylvanian Reef) field 1,650 feet from north and 2,075 feet from west lines of section 149, block 97, H&TC survey td 9,666 feet.

Harpist Is Embarassed By Prince

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) - It all was so royally embarrassing.

England's Prince Andrew flustered a young female harpist with his admiring gaze and this led Queen Elizabeth II to give the 18-year-old prince a motherly scolding.

It all started when 17-year-old harpist Gianetta Baril broke a sixth octave string on one of the last notes of Handel's Passacaglia during the banquet performance at Government House Wednesday.

The Edmonton musician said later she was disconcerted by the admiring stare of Andrew, who sat at a nearby table facing her.

Afterward, the prince consoled the blushing harpist, saying, "Mum's blaming it on me."

Miss Baril said Prince Andrew seemed to have been discussing her with Archbishop Joseph McNeil, who sat at the same table. When the string broke, the prince looked over to the queen's table and his mother looked back at him disapprovingly, as though it were his fault.

"Afterwards they both came up and spoke to me," said Miss Baril. "I was embarrassed - I have never been redder in my life."

Prince Edward Island joined the Dominion of Canada in 1873 and became the smallest province.

80-Year-Olds Have It Made!

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine is giving her father an 80th birthday party. Her invitation read: "No gifts, please. But do bring an appropriate poem or piece of philosophy to place in a scrapbook to commemorate the occasion."

About four or five years ago, you had a letter in your column from a man who was glad to be 80 because it served as an excuse for everything. I thought it was so good that I cut it out, and now I can't find it. That letter would be ideal for my friend's scrapbook. Please, Abby, try to locate it and run it again. Thank you.

PHOENIX READER

DEAR READER: A sharp-eyed secretary located it. And here it is—with pleasure:

DEAR ABBY:

We oldsters sure do get away with a lot just because we've managed to keep breathing longer than most folks. I have just celebrated my 80th birthday and I've got it made.

If you forget someone's name or an appointment or what you said yesterday, just explain that you are 80, and you will be forgiven. If you spill soup on your tie, or forget to shave half your face, or take another man's hat by mistake, or promise to mail a letter and carry it around in your pocket for two weeks, just say, "I'm 80, you know," and nobody will say a thing.

You have a perfect alibi for everything when you're 80. If you act silly, you're in your "second childhood."

Being 80 is much better than being 70. At 70 people are mad at you for everything, but if you make it to 80, you can talk back, argue, disagree and insist on having your own way because everybody thinks you are getting a little soft in the head.

They say that life begins at 40. Not true. If you ask me, life begins at 80!

GOT IT MADE AT 80

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a husband who spends two nights a week in a life-painting class scrutinizing the anatomy of a young, voluptuous, female model, when he knows that his wife is strongly opposed to it?

My husband insists that he is a serious artist, but even in the name of art, a nude woman assuming various seductive positions under soft lights with background music can be a turn-on for most men—even artists.

This is causing a lot of dissension in our home, and I need your opinion on this thorny problem. We are practically newlyweds, having been married only two years.

JUST PLAIN JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: A serious art student is not likely to be turned on by a model; but if your husband is, and he goes directly home after art class, you will be the beneficiary of the fallout, so why complain?

DEAR ABBY: You told some woman whose husband had lost all interest in sex to take him to a doctor.

Well, my husband lost all interest in sex years ago, and he IS a doctor?

Who should I take him to?

HILLSBOROUGH WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Some other doctor. A physician who tries to treat himself has a fool for a patient.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Argentine Exports Up

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - Shipments of manufactured goods from Argentina have been steadily increasing, reports the Ministry of Economy.

Some 49 percent of the nation's total exports for 1977 were manufactured products, about evenly divided between industrial and agricultural items.

Desert Plant May Save Whale From Extinction

LUBBOCK - A desert plant may save the magnificent sperm whale from extinction and Texas Tech University is holding a conference to find out how.

An endangered species, the sperm whale has been the only source of a unique liquid wax for decades, and in 1975 more than 20,000 s.p.e.r. whales were killed to produce the wax. Jojoba, a slate green, twiggy stunted shrub that grows under desert conditions, also produces the same wax. Jojoba's liquid wax can be produced more economically and in larger quantities than the whalers can supply.

The potential uses of jojoba and other desert plants will be discussed during the International Arid Lands Conference on Plant Resources at Texas Tech University, Oct. 8-15, 1978.

"Desert plants," conference organizer Dr. J.R. Goodin said, "can be put to several uses if the appropriate technology is developed. Guayule can be used for producing rubber, atriplex is a protein source for forage, and aloe vera is a traditional antiseptic," Guayule, atriplex and aloe vera are all desert plants.

Goodin and Dr. David K. Northington, both of Texas Tech's Department of Biological Sciences, are organizing the conference. The university's International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies (ICASALS) is one of the co-sponsors, along with the Committee on Desert and Arid Zone Research (CODAZR) of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Consortium of Arid Lands Institutions (CALI), and the International Shrub Coordinating Committee.

The international conference will determine the current status of, and recommend approaches for, improving the use of plant resources of arid and semi-arid regions. Food, fiber, forage, industrial, medicinal and energy uses of arid land plants will be discussed during the week-long meeting.

Arid lands scientists from at least 20 countries are expected to present papers at the conference, while several others have indicated interest in attending.

"The seven-day event is the first international conference of its kind," according to Northington.

Dr. Daniel I. Axelrod, University of California at Davis; Dr. Harold E. Dregne, ICASALS director; Dr. Otto T. Solbrig, Harvard University; Dr. B.L. Turner, The University of Texas at Austin; Dr. A.M. Powell, Sul Ross State University; Dr. Edward Ayensu, Smithsonian Institution; Dr. George P. Hanson, Los Angeles County Arboretum; Dr. D.M. Yermanos, University of California at Riverside; Ed. S. Lipinsky, Battelle Columbus Laboratories, Ohio; and Dr. Henri Le Houerou, International Livestock Center for Africa, Bakamo, Mali, are among some of the leading scientists expected at the conference to present plenary papers.

The International Shrub Coordinating Committee, National Academy of Science Advisory Committee on Technology Innovation, Committee on Arid Lands of the AAAS, and CODZAR will hold their annual meetings during the conference.

For more information on the conference write Dr. J.R. Goodin, Department of Biological Sciences, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas 79409.

Thieves Could Be Snake Bit

CHICAGO (AP) - The shock that Greg Ellis experienced when his car was stolen may be nothing like the surprise awaiting the thieves.

His pet boa constrictor was in the back seat.

Ellis, 24, lost both possessions Wednesday night. So far, there's been no work or screams from the culprits.
