"Colder" Weather Is Forecast for Parts of Texas Tonight

POWERS AND COOLER GIVEN FOR E. TEXAS

STLAND, Aug. 24 — A new word in the Texas weather forecast today is "colder," varying from showers to heavy downpours, reported in scattered communities over the state.

The word was "colder" and was in connection with the forecast for Texas.

Under in north portion tonight", weatherman J. L. Cline.

Word was not without significance for Amarillo where a minimum temperature of 58 degrees was forecast this morning.

Cline stuck to the more conservative word "cooler" in the east forecast, which predicted showers in the north portion of Texas.

It was reported last night in western panhandle, the south and west central and north central Texas.

NRA DECISION IN TWO WEEKS SAYS JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 24 — The whole question of NRA reorganization will be settled two weeks from Monday at Hyde Park, N. Y., Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, said today after nearly an hour's conference with President Roosevelt.

Johnson, in a jovial mood, left the White House insisting that he was not resigning and that the only thing that brought him back was a "slight misunderstanding as to timing."

"The president decided that I should go off on a two weeks vacation and we will settle the matter in two weeks at Hyde Park," Johnson insisted that "this thing is not serious at all."

The Blue Eagle chieftain was referring to reports of sharp conflict with Donald R. Richberg and Sec'y of Labor Frances Perkins over reorganization policies.

Richberg and Sec'y Perkins both believe that Johnson's plan for an administrative board on which he would sit, at least temporarily, is fraught with danger of interpretation as continuing a one-man dictatorship over the government's policy toward business.

Former Pastor Will Preach Here Sunday

The Rev. and Mrs. O. O. Odum, their daughter, Mary Margaret, and son, Olin, of Midlothian, are weekend guests of friends in Cisco where the Rev. Odum was for two years pastor of the First Methodist church. Miss Mary Margaret went on from Cisco to Winters to spend time with a school chum.

Mr. Odum will appear again in the pulpit which he filled until last fall when he preaches at the morning worship service Sunday, the Rev. Frank L. Turner, pastor, announced. The former Cisco pastor is now serving First church at Midlothian.

In excellent health and spirits, he and his family are on a brief vacation, the latter part of which they plan to spend at San Antonio at the celebration of the centennial of Methodism in Texas. They arrived here at 2 p. m. yesterday and plan to return to Midlothian Sunday.

Curious Denied Sight of Labatt

FATHER SEEKS AGENTS' HELP TO FIND GIRL

FORT WORTH, Aug. 24 — James Butler, operator of a Palo Pinto tourist camp, today asked department of justice agents to aid in finding his 14-year-old daughter whom he believed was kidnapped.

Butler said he believed the daughter, Hazel, was abducted for revenge for his prosecution of a holdup gang. The girl failed to return after going for a walk Monday night, the father said.

Butler appealed to U. S. District Atty Clyde Eastus who ordered department of justice agents to investigate the girl's disappearance.

Agents sought to connect her disappearance with the looting July 6 of the "Millionaire Tourist Camp" located near the county line east of Mineral Wells. Four men and a woman took $25 and a slot machine. Butler aided in the capture a few hours later. He said three persons later threatened violence if he appeared against the suspects. One of the accused men has received a 12-year sentence in the robbery, officers said, and the other suspects are under bond awaiting trial.

RETURNS MAY BE COMPLETE BY 10:30 P. M.

With only 22 names on the ticket, tomorrow's second democratic primary election should be conducted with dispatch as compared with the tedious process of counting returns from the first primary of July 28. County Democratic Chairman Earl Conner, Jr., said today. A "clearing house" to which all precincts will telephone or bring their returns for quick tabulation will be established in the chairman's offices at Eastland, he said, and information may be obtained there by calling Telephone No. 3 at Eastland. No collect calls for information will be accepted, however.

Conner estimated that complete county returns would be known by 10 or 10:30 Saturday night. Precinct chairmen, under the law, are required to telephone returns to the county chairman 30 minutes after the polls close and each two hours thereafter until the count is complete.

West Cisco voters will cast their ballots at a box to be located in the Mancill building. W. J. Armstrong, precinct chairman and election judge, announced the following staff to handle the vote:

R. W. Mancill, L. H. McCrea, Fred Grist, Charles Hartman, L. A. Harrison, Ida Mae Collins, Louise Trammell, Virge Heyser, Jim Flourney, Will St. John, Charles Trammell and John Elliott.

The east Cisco precinct vote will be taken at a box to be located in the Home Furniture company. J. E. Caffrey, precinct chairman and election judge, named the following as assistants:

John Dill, W. H. McNeely, W. C. McDaniel, Mrs. Reggie Henderson, W. W. Wallace, Howard Dill, Doyle Gilmore and Price Rainbolt.

RAM District Session Called Here Sept. 6

A district meeting of R. A. M. chapters, embracing eight towns in this area, will be held in Cisco September 6 at the call of J. Lee Zurek, grand high priest in Texas. It was announced today by Haywood Cabness, high priest of Cisco chapter No. 190.

Grand Visitor McCampbell, of Breckenridge, will also be present. Cabness said. The meeting will begin at 7:30 at the Masonic hall and between 200 and 300 are expected to attend from the following chapters: Albert, Breckenridge, Cisco, Cross Plains, Eastland, Ranger and Rising Star.

SUSPECT IN NY ROBBERY FOUND TO BE PHILLIPS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 24 — A suspect held for investigation in the Home Furniture company, J. E. Caffrey, precinct chairman and election judge, named the following as assistants:

John Dill, W. H. McNeely, W. C. McDaniel, Mrs. Reggie Henderson, W. W. Wallace, Howard Dill, Doyle Gilmore and Price Rainbolt.

Representatives Told To Work for Bonds

EASTLAND, Aug. 24 — Representatives from this senatorial district and the 106th and 107th representative districts were instructed by a resolution passed at a meeting of citizens of Eastland county in Eastland Wednesday to work for the issuance by the legislature of the $9-500,000 remaining Texas relief bonds at the coming called session of the legislature, which convenes Monday.

The Eastland meeting, called by H. E. Driscoll, Eastland county relief administrator, was for the purpose of ascertaining as nearly as possible what Eastland county's relief needs would be for the next few months, or until February. Delegations, headed by the mayors, were present from the various towns of the county. Senator W. B. Collier and Representatives O. F. Chastain and Cecil A. Lotief, were also present. Judge Earl Conner, chairman of the county board attended along with H. E. Driscoll, who presided over the meeting.

DRIVE STARTED ON REMNANT OF DILLINGER GANG

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 24 — A tremendous drive to stamp out the last remnant of the John Dillinger gang was launched here today at the scene of the slaying of Homer Van Meter.

Elated by the success of an ambush in which Van Meter, dead, by Dillinger machine-gunner, was killed last night, federal agents and city police hoped to capture two more henchmen of the bold Indiana outlaw.

Their quarry was George (Baby Face) Nelson, the gunman who killed a federal agent in escaping from the Lubbock jail, who was captured in New Mexico, was identified as the gunman who robbed the First State bank of Covington, 15 miles north of here, one 28.

Freeland said three bank employees identified Nelson as the robbery from photographs.

July Activity on Lumber Declines

AUSTIN, Aug. 24 — Activity in the lumber industry of the south during July showed a further recession, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research.

Reports from the Southern Pine association to the bureau showed that average weekly production per unit was 190,813 board feet, a decline of 6 per cent from June and 26 per cent from July last year. Average weekly shipments per unit of 181,967 board feet were 15 per cent below those of June and 32 per cent under those of July a year ago while unfilled orders were 7 and 16 per cent respectively.

Miss Faye Clark To Enroll at CIA

(Special To Cisco News)

DENTON, Aug. 24 — Miss Faye Clark, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Clark of Cisco, has been placed on the list of those paying assurance fees at Texas State college for Women (CIA) since August 13. This fee indicates her intention of entering the college for the fall session of 1934-35.

Present record in the registrar's office indicate a 40 per cent increase in enrollment at the college for the fall session over that of last year.

Telephone Company Employee Injured

O. N. Crouch, wire chief for the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, was in Graham sanitarium today for treatment for injuries sustained when he fell from a pole on which he was at work near Moran yesterday afternoon. His injuries were not regarded as serious. He lives at Breckenridge.

Rallies and Last Minute Appeals for Votes Mark Political Campaigns Closing

Political campaigns were drawing to a close today in final bursts of enthusiasm and appeals to voters.

Last night a large crowd attended a rally for Tom S. Hunter on the city hall lawn where a number of prominent speakers from out of town as well as local supporters of the candidate for governor addressed the voters. The Lobo band played and a feature was the appearance of Margaret Ann McDonald, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer McDonald, and James Flournoy, Jr., small son of Mr. and Mrs. James Flournoy, in appeals for the voters' support of their candidate.

Seats were provided for the audience on the lawn. Judge Eugene Lankford, local Hunter leader, was in charge.

Tonight the Allred supporters will have their inning when Lloyd Armstrong, of Fort Worth, and others will speak at a rally at the same place at 8:30 o'clock. At the same time an Allred rally will be held at Eastland.

Stay-at-homes may have their political dish served by the radio, with Frank Sparks, Eastland attorney, speaking over KPFL from 7 to 7:30 this evening in behalf of the candidacy of Lon Smith for reelection to the railroad commission. Frank Jenkins, also an Eastland attorney, will occupy the time of the station between 7:30 and 8 in an appeal for support of Hunter.

The troupe of county candidates who have been going from community to community will end its itinerary at Ranger this evening.

JAPAN REFERS SOVIET NOTES TO MANCHUKUO

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 24 — Japan has advised Soviet Russia to take up with the Japanese of the state of Manchukuo any protest it may wish to make regarding incidents in the Chinese Eastern railway zone, the Exchange Telegraph's Tokyo correspondent cabled today.

The advice was in reply to the sharp protest sent from Moscow against a series of Russian employees of the railway, the correspondent said.

SOVIETS HOLD JAPAN RESPONSIBLE

MOSCOW, Russia, Aug. 24 — Soviet Russia holds Japan responsible for a month-long series of incidents in the Chinese Eastern railway zone of Manchukuo, it was revealed today with publication of a sharp protest note sent to Tokyo.

Mattress Plant for Needy at Eastland

AUSTIN, Aug. 24 — The Texas Relief commission today planned a mattress-making industry to remove some of the surplus cotton and cotton products from the market, provide employment to hundreds of women and improve the nightly rest of Texas' needy persons.

Mattresses will be made in 28 plants beginning the latter part of next week. The project was designed after a survey indicated thousands of destitute persons had no beds at all, were sleeping on bare floors of their homes, if they had homes.

The average mattress-making plant will employ from 15 to 25 persons. One factory will be located at Cleburne and another at Eastland.

Two Murder Cases Awaiting Grand Jury

EASTLAND, Aug. 24 — Investigation of the death of L. F. Threet, Cisco rancher, in which three persons are charged with murder in connection with the case, and the fatal stabbing of Clarence D. Herring, which occurred in Eastland recently, will in all likelihood be made by the 88th district court grand which will convene Sept. 3.

Elmer Van Cleave, L. F. Doggett and Mary Lou Howell have been charged by the state with murder and robbery in connection with the case. The trio is being held in the Eastland county jail and none have made efforts to obtain release by bond.

Buddie Motley, who is charged by complaint with the murder of Clarence D. Herring, who died in Eastland following infliction of stab wounds, made bond last week in the sum of $5,500.

Nat'l Press Service Plan Is Charged

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 24 — Sen. Thomas D. Schall, Rep.-Minn., believes the administration plans to set up a national press service to replace the United Press, Associated Press and Hearst news services.

"The present plan," Schall said here, "is to make a small charge for the service, but consideration is being given a suggestion that loyal administration papers be furnished the news service free."

"This plan is essential for the passage of the press censorship bill of the National City Bank of Rome outside the city limits today and escaped with $9,000 payroll of a company."

Bill Drawn to Issue Rest of Relief Bonds

AUSTIN, Aug. 24 — A bill to issue the remaining $9,500,000 worth of state relief bonds, the maximum amount available, has been drafted by Asst. Atty-Gen. Pat Dougherty to facilitate action by the legislature in its session to open Monday.

Dougherty has drawn the bill at the request of Rep. Bob Long, Wichita Falls, and of Dallas representatives. He has returned from Dallas where the draft was outlined at a conference.

Texas Girls Refuel Plane Successfully

CHICAGO, Aug. 24 — Two girls from Texas, after completing successfully the first refueling at 5 a. m. today, dived back and forth over Curtiss-Reynolds airport in their "Lone Star" plane, seeking a new women's flight endurance record.

The two girls, Jean Le Rene, Dallas, and Mary Owens, Fort Worth, took off at 7:13 p. m., CST yesterday. After a large breakfast at 7:30 a. m., the girls reported: "Everything fine; motor functioning perfectly; oil temperature normal."

Textile Workers Reject Mediation

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 24 — The United Textile Workers today rejected the offer of federal mediation in its threatened general strike. The mediation offer was made by Robt. W. Bruere, chairman of the cotton textile institute.

New Orleans Probe May Await Primary

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24 — Possibility that the legislative investigation of the New Orleans city government will be postponed until after the Sept. 11 primary was seen today when Allen J. Ellender, speaker of the house, announced he had recommended this move.

Ellender, a loyal Long supporter, announced the house membership on the investigating committee would be composed of three attorneys and two farmers. The four senatorial members have not been chosen officially.

It was reliably reported that the investigation will be postponed until Sen. Huey P. Long can assuage the feelings of a number of legislative followers who clamored for places on the examining board.

WEATHER

West Texas — Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday. Colder in north portion tonight.

East Texas — Partly cloudy to cloudy, local thundershowers in north portion, colder in northwest and north central portions tonight, Saturday partly cloudy.

Golden Dividends Promised Texans

Walter B. Moore of Dallas in a very graphic story advances the prophecy that Texas' earliest shipping area for fall and winter vegetables expects to receive at least $5,000,000 more for its truck crops this season than last because of shortage of fresh and canned vegetables in other states; that the drought which ruined crops in competing areas may increase Texas' truck crop value from the 1933 total of $10,000,000 to as much as the record 1930 figure of $20,854,000. Soaking rains throughout the lower Rio Grande valley, winter garden and other South Texas trucking growing districts followed the July coastal storms and broke a drought many months old. Planting of vegetables will start in the lower Rio Grande valley in early September and will move northward to the winter garden and upper districts. A record citrus crop, estimated at 8000 to 10,000 carloads, against 4000 in 1933, also promises to bring a large return to the three lower Rio Grande counties. Home canning, which totaled 100,000,000 containers in 1933 on 500,000 Texas farms, according to the Agricultural and Mechanical college estimates, will also consume a large portion of commercial vegetables and home garden production the coming fall.

All in all, Texas remains a great white spot on the map of the American world. More than 1,000,000 head of cattle have been taken from the Texas herds by the government buyers which will place many millions of dollars in the pockets of Texas livestock growers in the fall months of the year. Millions of dollars will be paid to the sheep and goat raisers of the commonwealth. A crop of 3,000,000 bales of cotton will be picked and ginned and sold. Two United States senators, Sheppard and Connally, have appealed to Secy. Wallace to peg the price to 15 cents a pound as well as make substantial loans to the producers of the fleecy staple. The political roundup will end Saturday, Aug. 25 and then peace (not lasting peace but for a brief period) will come in that field of endeavor known as practical politics where the people do the voting and the taxpaying and their servants do the spending in the commonwealth which according to late census reports has increased in population more than 30,000 since the 1930 count.

Growth of the cities has been remarkable in the so-called depression period. There will be a Centennial celebration in 1936. All civilizations under seven flags should organize in their respective communities and make the century of history and progress one that will appeal to millions of tourists from afar.

The Passing of Henry Rainey

Speaking of the passing of Henry T. Rainey of Illinois the Dallas News editorially says: "His death is possibly the most severe blow that the Roosevelt regime has sustained, not excepting that of the attorney-general designate, Sen. Thomas J. Walsh."

Henry T. Rainey was 74. He had been in congressional service 32 years. He had been renominated by a triumphant majority for another term of two years. He had been one of the prominent congressional leaders when Woodrow Wilson was in power. He became the successor of John Nance Garner as speaker, with Franklin D. Roosevelt holding the reins of government. He was from the great West, and voiced the political sentiment of a majority of the Westerners. It is true he is dead. It is true his passing may have caused deep regret everywhere and deprived the administration of the support of a powerful leader of his party in a key position. But great leaders have been coming in and passing out since mankind first peopled this world of ours. Sincere sorrow followed in the wake of their passing, but new leaders stepped into their shoes, or rather their vacant places, and the human atoms which constituted the marching order jogged along as man has ever jogged from the Stone Age. There will be a successor to Henry T. Rainey. There will be a successor to John Nance Garner when he dies. There will be a successor to Franklin Delano Roosevelt when he closes his eyes in eternal sleep. All things are perishable but life goes on and evolution is ever the order of the day and is one of the eternal laws which cannot be suspended, repealed or set aside by the voice of a dictator, a divine-right-to-rule monarch or the ballot verdict of a free people.

Farley No Bad Shakes As Phrase Maker

Postmaster-Gen. Farley is swinging around the Southwestern circle. Everywhere he is telling the multitudes "they shall have no cause to regret faith in President Roosevelt." He handed a packet of vitrol to the critics of the administration at Wichita in the state of Kansas, when he said, "Who are these solemn faced gentlemen who warn us against the path of progress? They need no introduction, for they were notorious enough as the directing brains of the period of suicide and soup." As a maker of phrases, political and otherwise, Sunny Jim is a big ace among the master minds of the New Deal spellbinders.

ROLLING UP A BIG VOTE IN GERMANY

Wright Morrow Follows Flag of Allred

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
 Wright C. Morrow of Houston was one of the state leaders for Sen. Clint Small in the July race for the gubernatorial prize. Sen. Small polled more than 100,000 votes. He was shut out by the verdict of democrats returned in the primary. Sen. Small declared for Col. Tom Hunter for governor.

Wright Morrow has refused to follow the lead of the West Texas senator. He surveyed the field and its offerings. He is one of the leaders of the Young Democrats of Texas. He had served as first assistant attorney-general. He is ambitious to be governor of his native state. His father is the distinguished presiding judge of the court of criminal appeals who was renominated without opposition for a term of six years and led all candidates on the democratic ticket, opposed and unopposed, in the July primary. His reasons are interesting for his temporary break away from his friend, the west Texas senator. They follow:

"I have no disposition to enter into a discussion purely of personalities. I think we have already suffered too much from that cause and I do not think this has been confined to any one side of the personal controversy that has raged in Texas for 20 years. I believed it would be refreshing and of distinct benefit to the politics of the state if merit rather than demerit engaged our attention. In this race I cannot concur with Sen. Small in his choice. As between the candidacy of Hunter and Allred, it is my opinion that the position of Allred more nearly approaches my own views and that the welfare of all the people would be best served by his election."

It is a matter of record that Wright C. Morrow two years ago was drafted by Young Democrats of Texas to make the race for governor but declined to run. Those who are close to the man and know him best predict that he will be a candidate for the democratic nomination two or four years hence. He is a native of Hill county. As a very young man he practiced law in the west. He became a resident of Austin. He served ably and efficiently as first assistant attorney-general. He retired from that post, selected Houston as his home, and base of operations and became very influential, not only in the practice of law, but as a leader of the Young Democrats who are very much in evidence in the political activities of the Lone Star commonwealth.

TWO DICTATORS CROWNED BY SUBJECTS
 Adolf Hitler has been crowned absolute dictator of the German world by his subjects. More than 38,000,000 acclaimed him a divine-right-to-rule autocrat where the Hohenzollerns flourished in bygone days.

Over in the kingdom of commonwealth of Louisiana Huey P. Long was crowned as absolute dictator and a divine right ruler for the time being, at least, by the lawmakers for an erstwhile proud commonwealth of the American sisterhood. All things appear to be possible in several American commonwealths. Dictator Huey is going to displace by impeachment or otherwise high court judges who had the broken impudence to decide issues along constitutional lines where lawmakers has set aside the venerable document as well as the bill of rights of the constitution. As for the press, it is to be muzzled by inquisitorial tax laws enacted by the legislature. The swimming instructor, Swamp dictator who was born in a little cottage in the Red Hills of Louisiana and has risen to the Alpine heights of a dictator clothed with more power than an ancient Caesar.

Why yell defiance at the California reds while the purple kingfishers are paving the way for the coronation of a ruler who holds that personal political might makes right?

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Tomorrow I shall step out, the Lord willing, and cast my little vote for Jimmy Allred in spite of Judge Lankford, Bill Reagan and over half of Eastland county. I recognize that, so far as the county is concerned, we are decidedly in the minority. But being in minorities is a habit I am always guilty of, so it makes little matter how minus I happen to be Saturday on the question of political popularity in this neck of the woods.

I am going to vote for Lon Smith because I can't regard Mr. Pundt as either able or sincere. Some of the published reports concerning operations of his in at least one community in our own county is enough to turn me to Smith, even if no other considerations were involved, because Smith has served the office he seeks and no charges, beyond the usual stock accusations, have come out against him. Furthermore, the fact that, with all the unusually goosy political mud so available in this county about his opponent, Smith as refrained from resorting to such tactics but has confined himself to a plane of decency and dignity, prompts me to regard him as a gentleman and a man who respects the high character of the trust which his office conveys.

All of these disgruntled politicians have ganged up on Jimmy. There's Small, who is an excellent example of a small calibre bullet trying to fit a big gun. There's Witt who's the biggest promise I've ever seen in Texas politics. There's McDonald, who's the crown prince of the Ferguson dynasty, and so on. Hughes is the only one of the defeated candidates who didn't try to deliver a vote. He left the field to the winners without prejudice.

When all the rest of the pack ganges up on one fellow, it's a pretty safe bet the attacked is dangerous to their interests. And, speaking of a politician's interests—

I am going to vote for Woodul for lieutenant governor; Woodward for attorney-general; Sharp for associate justice of the supreme court; the direct primary for the legislature from the 19th and Davison from the 109th; Mrs. Cooper for county treasurer and T. C. Williams for county superintendent.

Reading ever and anon an editorial attack upon the direct primary, always from quarters which supported a defeated candidate, I am wondering what political machinery the critics would suggest as expressing the perfect will of the people. The criticism is made that the direct primary is a system of minority control, and I admit that the logic is correct and the criticism probably well taken from the standpoint of the democratic ideal of the voters choosing the most worthy of their number to take charge of the public business.

But, on the other hand, any political system that depends upon the voluntary offerings of citizens for public service almost invariably resolves itself into a domination by minorities. The only pure democratic method would be for the body politic to go looking for the man, rather than that the man go looking for the job. As long as we have primaries of any character we shall have to be content with second and third choices, even if the best and most popular man in the race may win, for even he may be exceeded in ability and popularity by another person who declined to offer himself.

Willie K. Hopkins, state senator from Gonzales, wrote but failed to submit to the legislature two years ago a bill designed to combine the present direct primary and the old convention system of nomination in such a manner that the evils of both were promised to be eliminated and the best features retained. The direct primary would be continued for the nomination of precinct, county and district offices, but state-wide officers would be nominated at a second primary after a state convention made up of delegates elected from the counties in the first primary had submitted two names for each nomination. That would get rid of these biennial schools of small fry chasing after a big office and tend to minimize with less expense and more dignity, persons of large caliber for these places of responsibility. In the counties where candidates are personally known, the system of nomination by direct primary has worked rather well. By selecting delegates through the caucus method the danger of "bossism" would be minimized, while the domination of candidates by the sources of revenue required for their campaign expenses would also be reduced.

When it is realized that the convention system gave the state such men as Hogz, Campbell, etc., there is considerable argument for its merits.

It is told for the pure truth that a week after the government had shipped a large consignment of drought-distressed cattle east the following frantic telegram was received at the point of shipment:

"For god's sake, send us a train load of cowboys."

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 SYLVIA RIVERS enters the younger set of Larchmont, fashionable suburb of New York, and makes BOOTS RAEBURN, whose family has little money.

One night on the Yacht Club Boots is put in an embarrassing situation by HAROLD WHITMORE, one of Sylvia's guests, who had been drinking. Sylvia maliciously contrives to force Boots' resignation from the swimming instructor. Boots withdraws from the room. She goes about with RUSSELL, the swimming instructor. RUSSELL falls in love with her and announces he is going away. He begs Boots to elope with him and she asks for time to think it over.

Mrs. Raeburn returns from a visit and Boots dreams having her mother hear about her resignation from the club.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 CHAPTER XIV
 OF course it was madness, Boots told herself as she slipped out of the half-wet bathing suit and nervously began to dress. Why, it was just a game they were playing. Girls and boys talked as she and Russ had all the time and it meant precisely nothing. Johnny had been shouting to Geraldine that very day on the raft. "Be mine, darling. Be mine!" I can't live without you! And everyone had simply screamed with laughter. It had been the most priceless comedy line.

Yes, she and Russ Lund were just playing at being in love. It didn't mean a thing. It was exciting, like being in a drama. The Amateur Group of the Juniors might give.

She laced her white sandals and ran a comb through her unruly curls. The memory of Russ's grave, unsmiling face as he had said, "Tomorrow," stayed with her. Non-sense. It was all nonsense and she was a fool ever to have let him say such things to her! Tonight mother would come home; everything would go back into its proper place, like the pieces of a signa puzzle. Russ would take the cattle boat or the fruit boat for Chile. She would have one letter from him—maybe two. This time next year she might not even remember his name.

"That's how serious it is," she said half-aloud to convince herself. All through the evening, as she served jellied omelets and broiled chops and salad to her father, as she washed dishes and brushed up the kitchen floor with a worn broom the thought stayed with her. It was not serious—she would not let it be. Tomorrow she would employ just the right blend of gravity and humor in her farewell to the beach-club guard. He would see, he would understand that she was a woman of the world for all her 15 years. She flushed at the memory of her scarlet cheeks and starry eyes. "Why, he must think me a fool!" she told herself indignantly. "He probably says that to some girl every place he goes and expects me to know that."

In the flurry of her mother's arrival she almost forgot Russ. Her dear, familiar thin face and spare, unfashionable figure. The unpacked boxes of the shabby bags—somehow the evening flew by.

"And how did she take care of you, Daddy?"
 MR. RAEBURN, older, bald, a good 10 years older than his wife, muttered that Barbara was fair enough but he was glad to have Mother home again.

Mrs. Raeburn beamed. "That's nice, ducky. You've been having a good time."

Inwardly Boots writhed at her mother's trust in her. Not, as she reminded herself, that she had done anything to be ashamed of. On the contrary, her journeyings with Russ had been of the most decorous nature. A ride in the sweet smelling lanes... a chocolate soda at the Sweet Shop... but would people believe that? A girl didn't usually spend so much time with one man unless the current of their affairs ran more deeply and swiftly than that of a platonic friendship. But it had been platonic. Boots told herself steadily. After that first impulsive kiss weeks ago Russ had not laid a finger upon her. The memory of that kiss stayed with her...

"What did you say, darling?" Her mother, straightening a stooped back lifting out a pile of underthings, layered in tissue paper, looked at her fondly.

"Nothing!" But the sound that had escaped her was almost a groan. Her carefully built up fabric of common sense crumpled and shattered at the thought of Russ's kiss... If he answered him coolly and distantly tomorrow he would go away to Chile. She would never see him again...

"Here, let me hang that up," she said at random, taking a brown crepe frock from her mother's fingers. She fairly flew at the rest of the unpacking and her father, who had been telling herself that the child was strange and silent and evidently had something on her mind, banished the idea and reflected that Barbara was growing up to be a great help.

Aunt Nedda wanted Boots to come and visit her in the autumn, Mrs. Raeburn said, with quiet satisfaction.

"You'd like that, wouldn't you?"

INWARDLY Boots shivered. The thought of Aunt Nedda's cold, dour brown-toned house near the Boston Common made her shiver. And where would Russ be in autumn? Making love to some beautiful Spanish senorita in an embroidered shawl? She could see herself, going to the library to change books for Aunt Nedda, going to symphony concerts, with pale, drab, decorous people all about them.

No—no—never that! "I think I'll have a job by fall," she said vaguely.

"A job, darling!" Her mother smiled indulgently. "What could you do?"
 "Well, Mary Ollivant is helping out in a dress shop in New Martin and she loves it. And some of the other girls—Helen and Louise and Sue—are going to take a business course."

Nature and Human Nature

Telling the World

Revolutions in Russia, Germany, Spain, and perhaps in Italy, as popular movements in these lands, are underlain with tendencies toward democracy. A social sentiment in the politics of the world has been noticeable for some time. The result may be progressive. But the process of reaching an end has been painful. The efforts of the people have been like fertile fields for exploitation by shrewd demagogues. Dictators seem to be the fad. Sometimes they may be needed as a first step from tyranny as in Russia.

The danger is a stagnancy at stage. Such leaders seem to be in "telling the world" what to do and in seeing their will done by others. They ride the waves of a social sentiment to self aggrandizement. Napoleon's motto was glory of France but his interest was who are seeking freedom need follow leaders less blindly and take every step with eyes open. American people do well to be wiser and wonder while signing petitions to accept unannounced ideas for the future in order to get some advantage offered by the government for the distressed people.

Civilization as a whole, and country included, needs courageous statesmen who will "tell the world" the truth and not put their ears to the ground nor to discover sounds of distress and unrest might be turned to personal advantage but to find the place which they may cast their own of leadership for the good of greatest number.—W. P. BRUCE, Lancaster, Mo.

CAMPOBELLO RECALLS FD AS EXPERT SAILOR

By RUBY A. BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent
CAMPOBELLO ISLAND, NEW BRUNSWICK, Canada, Aug. 24. — They call him Franklin up here when they are talking about the boy they've known since he was two, as leader of the summer sailing, tramping, and swimming expeditions of their childhood and youth.
They call him the president when they talk of what he does today.
They do both perfectly naturally, as if each is the word that comes unconsciously to their lips when they discuss different periods of his life. Many of them did not see him from the time he left here in 1921, unable to lift his head from the litter on which he was taken away, until the time he returned last summer, president of the United States, 12 years later.

lin" to the islanders, and "Eleanor," or "Eleanor Roosevelt," to the summer people who knew her from her girlhood and young married life.
This island, 10 miles at its longest, not three miles at its widest, cut by two deep harbors and dented by many coves, with no road encircling it, many shore points inaccessible except to the hardy tramping, has two distinct groups of inhabitants—the islanders, mostly fishermen, and the "rusticators," or summer residents. The summer group is concentrated along the west shore, facing Eastport, Me.
Prominent Rusticators
The rusticators are not numerous but their summer homes are large and beautiful, most of them more elaborate, but not larger than the two great red shingled cottages belonging to the president and his mother. Among the rusticators are Dexter P. Cooper, engineer on a world-wide scale; George W. Norris, governor of the Philadelphia federal reserve board; Stanley Parker, Boston architect and Leonard H. Dyer, inventor, who first put the automobile's engine in the front of the machine.
It has been quiet this summer. Only three things have caused excitement.
The unoccupied home of the richest of the "rusticators," Sir Martin Arthur-She of England, has been broken into twice.
About 10 o'clock one night blood-freezing cries of "Help" were heard from the Priar's Roads, opposite the president's cottage. The island had mostly retired, but gradually people got up and about, and rescuers brought back the man who ferries the American mail across. His shaft had broken and he was drifting out to sea in the rushing ebb-tide.
Other Excitement
The other excitement has to do with that tide. Cooper has been seeking public works aid in harnessing the 20 to 30-foot tides here in a great power project. Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes turned down his application for a $47,000,000 loan. But recently President Roosevelt wrote to Gov. Louis Brann of Maine asking him to appoint a commission to determine whether or not there would be a market for the power, and indicated that if the commission found that industries to use the power not needed for existing requirements could be brought to this area, in desperate condition because of the decline of the herring fisheries, the government might look favorably on the "Quoddy project" if the power rights could remain vested in the people. This is the major topic of conversation here.
One of the tidal dams would cross from Estes head, at Eastport, to Treat island, directly in line of view from the enormous windows looking westward in the president's cottage.
The president's cottage has a huge living room, many bedrooms, two small studies, a workshop across one

A Family Affair

The voters of this State should be informed that H. S. Lattimore, candidate for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court against Judge John H. Sharp of Ellis County, is not Judge O. S. Lattimore who is now and has been for the past 16 years a judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals. O. S. Lattimore is the father; H. S. Lattimore is the son.

If H. S. Lattimore, son of Judge O. S. Lattimore, is elected to the Supreme Court, we will have the spectacle of the father, O. S. Lattimore, serving as a Judge of the Supreme Court in criminal cases and his son, H. S. Lattimore, serving as a Judge of the Supreme Court in civil cases. Two judges may decide any case in either of these courts. Such a situation would give one family, father and son, 50 per cent of the potential judicial power to decide all civil and criminal cases in this state.

Do the voters of this State want to place within the power of one family, father and son, one-half of the final judicial power to be exercised by the courts of last resort in all civil and criminal cases?

I call attention to the fact that Judge O. S. Lattimore has served sixteen years on the Court of Criminal Appeals and during that time has drawn in salary from the State of Texas more than $100,000. His son, who is the present candidate for the Supreme Court, has already drawn in official salary from the state of Texas over $50,000. These two members of the Lattimore family, father and son, have drawn more than $150,000 of tax money in salaries from the State of Texas.

It is conceivable that one family might produce two geniuses of such superlative ability that the State might have need of their services even to the extent of their monopolizing the judiciary. No such condition exists or else the overwhelming majority of the attorneys of this State would not be supporting the candidacy of Judge Sharp.

Judge John H. Sharp of Ellis County is holding his first public office. His candidacy has the endorsement of the overwhelming majority of the attorneys of the State who are thoroughly familiar with the judicial records of both candidates. For the past five years he has served as one of the Judges upon the Supreme Court Commission of Appeals. He has rendered splendid and efficient service in that position and richly deserves to be promoted to the Supreme Court.

The voters of this State should say by their ballots that they do not propose to make our courts of last resort a family affair. Vote for Judge John H. Sharp of Ellis County for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

LOOK OUT FOR THESE SYMPTOMS OF CONSTIPATION

Get Relief with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sallow complexions, and sleeplessness are often warning signs of common constipation. Unless checked, constipation may impair health.

Today, you can usually get rid of common constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regularity. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than taking patent medicines.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. Chronic cases, with every meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE

FOR the housewife who feeds her family on a budget, there is no cheaper source of vitamins and minerals than apples.

Apples are one of the best raw foods and can be served as a breakfast fruit without even paring, provided they've been well washed. They are particularly good for the teeth, counteracting the effect of today's soft diet that dentists complain so much about.

Many grand desserts have apples as their basis and most salads, fruits, vegetables or meats are more appetizing with this useful fruit added.

Baked or steamed apples are among the first solid foods a baby eats and these same apples are relished by the elders for breakfast with sugar and cream.

Need Special Qualities

Varieties of apples are legion and the way the fruit is to be used determines the variety wanted. For the convenience of marketing, they usually are divided into two classes—cooking apples and eating apples.

Apples for pie or sauce should be tart, well-flavored and of fine texture. This insures quick cooking and good flavor. Those wanted for baking should be perfectly formed, firm and of good size. If they are too delicately grained, they will fall apart while baking and be unattractive for serving.

Eating apples should be well-flavored and juicy. Astrakhan apples, which are one of the very best varieties of early apples for cooking and jelly making, are a bit tart for eating. The old-fashioned transparent varieties are good both for cooking and eating.

Buy in Quantity

It is economical to buy apples in quantity rather than in pound lots. They are not a perishable fruit and can be used in so many ways that there is little danger of becoming tired of them.

When you make apple sauce, remember to add sugar to the fruit after it is cooked. In this way, less sugar is required to sweeten the sauce and the flavor is more delicate. If you have not brained spots before cooking, the sauce should be rubbed through a colander and this bruised flesh becomes hard and tough after cooking. Also be sure that every particle of core is cut out, especially if children are to eat the sauce.

Beaumont Canning Output Is Doubled

BEAUMONT, Aug. 24—The Beaumont relief canning plant, output has been increased to more than double its usual production in compliance with orders from the state relief commissioner.

The increase in production was merely getting back to the output abandoned several weeks ago, J. M. Williamson, county relief administrator, said.

The daily production now is 10,000 cans, whereas it formerly was 5,000.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

—Mrs. Densmore Shute has gained four inches in height in four years, and attributes it to stretching to see over other people in galleries following her famous professional golfing husband.

—Detroit is Connie Mack's choice to win the American League pennant. . . . The venerable Philadelphia pilot says his former protegee, Mickey Cochrane, has all the qualifications to take his place with baseball's great managers.

—Equipose was appraised at $125,000. . . . While Earl Combs wasn't the player he has been, the New York Americans will miss him at the plate, as well as in the field, where he has covered considerable of Babe Ruth's territory for several seasons. . . . Perhaps the Bam was speaking for himself, John, when, pacing outside of Combs' room in the St. Louis hospital, he remarked, "This is the end of the Yankees." . . . Combs' smashup gave Sammy Byrd a chance to break in as a regular for the first time in a half dozen years.

—Bill Tilden picked England to retain the Davis Cup, but also forecast the defeat of Sidney B. Wood and his mates by the Australians.

—The Reds discovered that any opposing player's glove would do the superstitious Hughie Critz, who always picks up the rival second baseman's before starting an inning. When Critz couldn't find Mark Koenig's mitt, which purposely had been taken to the dugout, he went over and picked up Jim Bottomley's. . . . While the Dean brothers may have won eight games from the Giants this season, without a reverse, they are just a pair of over-loving cousins to Critz, who has made 11 hits in his last 17 attempts against Dizzy and Daffy.

—America's Wightman Cup team nearly lost the famous trophy when members failed to declare it upon their return from England. . . . Chicago fans are now demanding in letters to the newspapers that Lou Comiskey sell the White Sox. . . . The attendance dropped to 300 the other afternoon.

—After several competitors created something of a stir by appearing in shorts, the garb now accepted for tennis was banned in one of the larger women's golf association's tournaments at Fort Chester, N. Y.

—Patsy Haley, who twice fought Terry McGovern, got his first black eye in trying to pry a pair of pachyderms apart while refereeing a wrestling exhibition in New York the other night.

—Frank Herbert David Wilde is coming to this country as a protégé of Fred Perry to make an assault on the U. S. singles championship in September. . . . Perry declares that the youngster is one of the brightest prospects he has seen, and that if he fails to make the grade in tennis he'll make the folks sit up and take notice in golf. . . . The name is enough to make one take notice.

—The British have spent $55,000,000 trying to regain the America's Cup since the trim little yacht of that name captured it off the Isle of Wight in 1851.

—Patsy Peroni is the first opponent in all these years that Johnny Risko failed to repel in a return match.

Retail Jewelers to Meet at Abilene

Retail jewelers in towns in the counties of Taylor, Howard, Mitchell, Nolan, Coleman, Brown, Fisher, Jones, Shackelford, Haskell, Throckmorton, Callahan, Eastland and Comanche will meet at the Hotel Wooten, Abilene, Sunday, August 26, at 3 p. m. for final drafting of a district code trade committee for mutual protection as provided for under the NRTA, it was announced by Jerome L. Gunn, secretary-treasurer, Abilene.

This meeting will supplement the one held in Abilene, July 29, 'n which Rex A. Smith of Abilene was named chairman and Gunn, secretary-treasurer. . . . A large meeting is planned and is hoped by the committee that every independent retail jeweler and watchmaker will be present.

SELSS ON FOOT

ANTRIM, N. H., Aug. 24—Jameson, 70, real estate man, walks 100 miles to sell a farm, does all his business on foot as it gives him a better idea of the farm property. Recently he walked 100 miles away.

CLAIBORNE ELDRIDGE ASKS YOUR SUPPORT

I thank you from the depth of my heart for the 478 lead you gave me in the July primary. I have done my best to see that you personally but time would not permit me to see each and every one of you. So I'm using this method of telling you how much I would appreciate your vote and influence August 25th.

I came to Eastland County in 1903. I lived 19 years at Gorman and 11 years at Carbon. My education was obtained in the rural schools and Hanks Normal College. I began teaching in 1910. I have been teaching continuously since then with the exception of the time I served my country in the war.

As the larger portion of my life has been spent in the rural schools, I am sure I know rural schools and their needs. It is evident that there are certain needs peculiar to the rural school and that the curriculum should be built around those needs. The same curriculum is not exactly suited to both City and Rural Schools. This does not mean that there could not exist a spirit of fellowship and cooperation between them so that transferring from one to the other the pupil would fit into the environment with little hindrance to his progress.

We all agree that larger school units are more efficient. I believe rural schools should be allowed the same freedom of action enjoyed by the larger schools. I believe these centers should be maintained, whenever possible, in the rural school where the large majority of their boys and girls expect to be. Their education should be adapted to their needs, and their community spirit should be built up and kept intact in order to have a happy and prosperous people. In doing this you are helping to improve business conditions in general.

My qualifications are not limited, as some would have you believe. It would be unfair to say that I am better qualified than my opponent. I assure you that I am as well qualified both in experience and college work. That experience is both rural and in the larger schools. I have taught in Gorman and Eastland schools.

The office of County Superintendent is primarily a rural job and should be filled by one who is in sympathy with and has vision for a great system of rural schools. If I am elected your Superintendent it shall be my aim to carry out these policies to the best of my ability. At the same time I want to give assurance that my office will at all times be at the service of the larger schools in helping in whatever way possible to solve the many problems.

It seems from the July returns the rural people want me as I carried the rural boxes by a substantial majority over me of my opponents.

I have never before asked for any public office. So let me be a rural school man just once, and I assure you that no one will appreciate it more than I.

Sincerely yours,
CLAIBORNE ELDRIDGE
