EPA to set rules on wastewater at drilling sites

Scrutiny over how water is used at natural gas wells prompts agency's action

By Jennifer A. Dlouhy
Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON —The Environmental Protection Agency on Thursday announced plans to write new rules on how energy companies dispose of wastewater from natural gas drilling sites — including fluids that may contain radioactive material.

The rule-making process, which could span three years, would represent the first broad national guidelines for disposal of that wastewater, with likely limits on when municipal treatment facilities can accept the fluids.

In announcing the decision, EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson took pains to emphasize that "natural gas has a central role to play in our energy economy."

"That is why we are taking steps — in coordination with our federal partners and informed by the input of industry experts, states and public health organizations — to make sure the needs of our energy future are met safely and responsibly," Jackson said in a statement. "We can protect the health of American families and communities at the same time we ensure access to all of the important resources that make up our energy economy."

The move came as lawmakers and federal agencies step up their scrutiny of how water is used and managed at natural gas wells. A Senate Energy and Natural Resources subcommittee was studying the issue Thursday, and an Energy Department advisory panel will issue next month its final recommendations for reducing the environmental footprint of natural gas production next month.

The EPA's planned regulation would apply to natural gas extraction from underground shale formations and coal bed.

Energy producers are unlocking natural gas from dense shale formations nationwide by combining horizontal drilling with a technique known as hydraulic fracturing, which involves blasting mixtures of water, sand and chemicals deep underground to break up the rock.

Conservationists have raised concerns about how the resulting "flowback" and produced water is disposed. In some areas of the country, including Pennsylvania, energy companies are able to reuse most of that water at other natural gas wells. However, in other regions with different geological features, it is tougher to recycle the fluid.

Extension agent says good time to shut off sprinklers

■ Officials: Water violations, usage up this week.

By Kathleen Thurber
Staff Writer

If you haven't turned off your sprinklers yet, County Extension Agent Zan Matthies says you should.

With lower temperatures settling in at night, Matthies said residents can save water this month by shutting down their irrigation systems.

It's something some people haven't done yet as water usage in the city of Midland surpassed the Colorado River Municipal Water District's 22 million gallon limit Wednesday by nearly 1 million gallons. The breach was only the second this month after Midlanders surpassed the limit on all but a handful of days in August and on nearly half of the days in September, according to data from the city.

"Really, none of us should be watering anymore," Matthies said, speaking during a presentation on water conservation at the Petroleum Museum on Thursday.

Matthies offered tips on efficient sprinkler heads and said said it's important to audit sprinkler systems to ensure they make the best use of water. Residents can continue watering during the fall if they want to keep their grass looking slightly green for a few more weeks.

However, he suggests people focus on keeping trees alive through drip irrigation or other methods because grass will die off once winter settles in.

Building Official Steve Thorpe, who is responsible for code enforcement for the city, said while overall water usage levels

Hispanic chamber honors area small business owners

By Sara Higgins
Staff Writer

More than 100 small business owners gathered at the Hilton Midland Plaza on Thursday for the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce's 26th annual meeting and business awards banquet.

This year also marked the 10th year of the organization's Incubator Small Business Program, which counsels and works with entrepreneurs as they launch their small businesses. Thirteen business owners have graduated from the program, said Rachel Stone, the chamber's CEO and president, and another 10 are working their way toward graduation.

Noticeably absent from Thursday's activities was Jeffery Crain, the organizational management professor at Midland College who died this summer. Crain was an active member of the chamber and served on the economic development committee and incubator oversight committee. Those who worked with him through the incubator program said he was a "tough guy" who encouraged entrepreneurs to follow their dreams.

"He helped us so much with that program," Stone said. "He just never stopped believing in them. In all honesty, I do not believe our program would be as successful if it weren't for him."

The award for businessman of the year was given to George Lara, owner of Lara's Automotive. Lara's business has provided auto repair services in the Midland area for the past 41 years. He is former president of the Midland Independent School District's board and has served more than six years on the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce board.

Leppert attacks opponents in TV ad

By April Castro
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Former Dallas Mayor Tom Leppert took a swipe at his opponent's job-creating credentials in a new television ad that started airing statewide Thursday in the Texas race for the U.S. Senate.

Introducing himself to Texans outside of Dallas, the Republican touts his experience in the private sector, telling voters that lawyers and career politicians can't be trusted to go to Washington and create jobs.

Leppert faces Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, former Texas solicitor general Ted Cruz and Texas Railroad Commission chairwoman Elizabeth Ames Jones in the Republican primary race to replace retiring U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

"Would you trust a lawyer to build you a house? How about a career politician? Do you think another Barack Obama speech will make companies start hiring?" Leppert said, walking by what appears to be an abandoned warehouse. "Of course not. We need people in Washington who know how to create jobs. I'm not a lawyer or a career politician. I'm a conservative businessman and the only proven job creator in the race."

Still more than six months until the March primary, the race to replace Hutchison is living up to expectations that it will be a high-dollar, lively affair.

"David (Dewhurst) is the most successful job-creator in this race," shot back Matt Hirsch, spokesman for the Dewhurst campaign.

Leppert was elected mayor of Dallas in 2007 and served until his resignation in February. Before that, he worked as a businessman in construction, financial services and real estate.

Dewhurst, the presumed frontrunner, has battled criticism that he's not conservative enough. The former CIA agent and cattle rancher was a successful Houston businessman in the energy industry years before he made his first run for public office in 1998. The self-made millionaire has already given his campaign a $2 million personal contribution.

In total, the top candidates raised more than $7 million in the most recent reporting period, with Dewhurst in the lead. Both Dewhurst and Leppert reported more than $4 million in the bank.

While Cruz trails Dewhurst and Leppert, he still made an impressive financial showing with $2.4 million in the bank. The son of a poor Cuban immigrant, he's seen as a rising Republican star and has established a grassroots network of supporters across the state.

Texas bar investigating wrongful murder conviction

By Will Weissert
Associated Press

AUSTIN — The State Bar of Texas said Thursday it is investigating allegations that a former prosecutor who is now a district judge suppressed evidence in a 1987 murder trial that wrongfully sent a man to prison for nearly 25 years.

Michael Morton was exonerated and freed this month in the beating death of his wife Christine based on new DNA testing. His attorneys say he might never have been convicted if the district attorney in the case, Ken Anderson, had not hidden information from the defense at trial.

Anderson — now a sitting district judge in Williamson County, north of Austin — has declined to comment publicly, saying he can't speak to an ongoing legal matter.

The state bar licenses attorneys in Texas and can discipline them, though most attorneys say investigations of judges are rare.

"We are gathering and reviewing information," Maureen Ray, of the bar's office of chief disciplinary counsel, said Thursday. She said she couldn't give any indication of how long that might take, or what the next step in the process would be.

Morton has declined to be interviewed by the media since his release Oct. 4 because last week's ruling by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals formally overturning his murder conviction has yet to formally take effect.

But his Houston-based attorney, John Raley, said, "the fact that the state bar has taken the unusual step of initiating its own investigation further reinforces the seriousness of the allegations of prosecutorial misconduct in Mr. Morton's case."

Morton's attorneys have subpoenaed Anderson to speak about his actions in the 1987 trail, but Anderson's attorneys have filed a motion to quash that.

Christine Morton was beaten to death in her bed on Aug. 13, 1986. Her husband said she was fine when he left her and the couple's 3-year-old son and went to work early that morning and that an intruder must have been responsible. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence.

A bloody bandana found near the scene was eventually tested using DNA techniques that were not available in 1987. It revealed the blood of another man who police have not identified but who remains at large.

That man's DNA was also recently linked to a hair found at the scene of a hauntingly similar slaying — that of Debra Masters Baker who was beaten to death in bed in January 1988. She lived about 15 miles from the Mortons.

Morton's attorneys say prosecutors never turned over to the defense at trial key evidence, including a police report where his son described seeing a "monster" — a man who was not his father — beat his mother to death with a wooden object. They say police also failed to follow up on evidence that one of Christine Morton's credit cards was used after her slaying, consistent with Michael Morton's claims the intruder took her purse.

None of that was introduced at trial because prosecutors failed to call the police officer leading the investigation as a witness. Morton's attorneys say prosecutors later disobeyed an order from the trial judge to turn over relevant police records so he could review them outside the presence of the jury.

The re-investigation of Christine Morton's slaying is now in the hands of a special prosecutor appointed by the Texas attorney general's office. Austin police have also reopened the Baker slaying case.

Winter forecast says cold north, dry south, heavy snow

By Randolph E. Schmid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Winter looks to be cold and wet across the northern tier of states, and the drought will worsen in the South, where conditions are expected to be warmer and drier than usual, government forecasters said Thursday.

Like last winter, the Pacific Ocean cooling known as La Nina is affecting the weather, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Mike Halpert, deputy director of the agency's Climate Prediction Center, said snowfall probably will top the usual amounts from the Northwest to the Great Lakes and the Ohio and Tennessee river valleys.

Dry conditions could extend from Southern California east across drought-stricken Texas and Oklahoma and along the Gulf Coast into Florida and possibly north to Virginia.

Winter weather in other areas and the Northeast could go either way, the researchers said.

While the forecast is not guaranteed, it could be more bad news for drought-stricken regions.

Already 91 percent of Texas, 87 percent of Oklahoma and 63 percent of New Mexico are in extreme or exceptional drought, said David Brown, director of Southern Regional Climate Services for NOAA. The unusually dry conditions also extend into Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Arkansas and Louisiana, he noted.

Continued dry conditions will affect farming, livestock and other pursuits.

It would take 10 inches to 15 inches of rain in some areas to make an appreciable difference," Brown said. "The likelihood of seeing that kind of relief is pretty low."

At the same time the forecast for December, January and February looks to be cool along with West Coast and across the northern states to the Great Lakes. Wetter than normal conditions cover that area and extend a bit farther east and south, possibly as far as western New York and south to Kentucky.

Some of the details by region:

■ Pacific Northwest: Colder and wetter than average; increased mountain snow in the Pacific Northwest and western Montana. There could be spring flooding in the Missouri River Basin.

■ California: Colder than average with odds favoring wetter than average conditions in northern California and drier in southern California.

■ Northern Plains: Colder and wetter than average; spring flooding could be a concern.

■ Southern Plains and Gulf Coast states: Warmer and drier than average; will probably worsen drought conditions.

■ Florida and south Atlantic Coast: Drier than average, with an equal chance for temperatures above, near or below normal; worse than normal wildfire conditions.

■ Ohio and Tennessee Valleys: Wetter than average with equal chances for temperatures above, near or below average; potential for increased storminess and flooding.

■ Northeast and Mid-Atlantic: Equal chances for temperatures and precipitation above, near or below normal. Winter weather in these areas is often driven by a pressure change called the Arctic Oscillation, which is difficult to forecast. If enough cold air and moisture are in place, areas north of the Ohio Valley and into the Northeast could see above-average snow.

■ Great Lakes: A tilt toward colder and wetter than average.

■ Hawaii: Above-average temperatures are favored in the western islands. Statewide, the current drought is expected to continue through the winter, though recovery is more likely over the windward slopes of the Big Island and Maui.

■ Alaska: colder than average over the southern half of the state and the Panhandle with below average precipitation in the interior eastern part of the state.

Congressman urges hearings on college sports

By Frederic Frommer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The top Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee is urging the panel to hold hearings on antitrust and other issues in college sports, including the recent series of conference realignments.

"It has become increasingly clear to me that the combination of issues and challenges facing intercollegiate sports have reached a tipping point calling for congressional attention," Michigan Rep. John Conyers wrote to the committee chairman, Texas Republican Lamar Smith, in a letter released Thursday. The committee said in a statement that it is reviewing Conyers' request.

Several major colleges have recently announced plans to switch conferences, including Syracuse and Pittsburgh from the Big East to the ACC, and Texas A&M from the Big 12 to the Southeastern Conference. The Big East now wants to expand to 12 football teams. Critics have voiced concerns that the shuffling could lead to a handful of 16-team "superconferences" that could break away from the NCAA or dictate looser rules to stay competitive.

The moves have raised new questions about the role of money in college sports.

Conyers said in his letter that he was concerned about the impact that conference realignment would have on lower-profile sports teams and smaller and independent universities — especially historically black colleges and universities.

The NCAA did not immediately return email and telephone messages Thursday, but President Mark Emmert recently told the Associated Press he was concerned about the perception that money is driving the decisions, saying, "this is not the NFL, the NBA; it's not a business." He urged school presidents to consider factors besides revenue when choosing conference affiliation.

Conyers also wants to look into due process for athletes, the NCAA's use of athletes' images in video games without compensation, limitations of athletic scholarships, and the costs to players from injuries sustained during games among other issues.

He said he understood that some committee members might have reservations about delving into these issues.

"I would note, however, that modern-day college athletics is a massive business, with widespread economic impact on athletes, their families, broadcasters, and fans as well as universities and colleges all over the country," Conyers wrote.

Today in history

Today is Friday, Oct. 21, the 294th day of 2011. There are 71 days left in the year.

Today's highlight:

On Oct. 21, 1879, Thomas Edison perfected a workable electric light at his laboratory in Menlo Park, N.J.

On this date:

In 1917, members of the 1st Division of the U.S. Army training in Luneville, France, became the first Americans to see action on the front lines of World War I.

In 1944, during World War II, U.S. troops captured the German city of Aachen.

Five years ago: Al-Jazeera television aired an interview with State Department official Alberto Fernandez, who offered an unusual assessment of the Iraq war, saying in Arabic that the United States had shown "arrogance" and "stupidity" in Iraq. (Fernandez issued an apology the next day.)

Today's birthdays: Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is 62. Actress-author Carrie Fisher is 55.

Miss Texas talks to area kids about goals

By Kathleen Thurber
Staff Writer

When Miss Texas was in seventh grade, she ate lunch by herself.

A home-schooled transfer student, Kendall Morris said she remembers feeling different from everyone else and burying her head in a book during lunch so her peers would think she was eating alone because she was busy, not because she didn't have any friends.

She had glasses, braces, "frizzy hair," a passion for getting good grades and a hobby of twirling — something none of the other girls seemed to care about.

"That made me different from everybody else," she said.

Now, traveling the state as she prepares for the Miss America pageant in January, Morris said it was because of the kindness of one friend and her own resolve to strive for her dreams that she was able to succeed.

"My dreams kept me going," she said, speaking Thursday to students at Carver Center.

Morris, who was in town to visit the Midland County Public Library, reads to Carver students "Kendall Can," a children's book she wrote about her own goals of becoming a twirler.

Setting down the book and her microphone during the afternoon presentation, Morris tossed three batons high into the air and twirled them in succession as the kids "oohed" and "ahhed" at her demonstration.

"Just imagine what I could do if I was in costume on the football field," she said, joking that her skills may have been hindered by her sparkling crown, 4-inch heels and purple dress.

Learning to master her hobby was not easy as she sometimes dropped the batons, had accidents and, as happened in middle school, was thought to be uncool. But, she said she never gave up. She was able to become a twirler at Texas Christian University, as she had hoped to when she was younger.

"This is what it looks like when you work really hard and practice your goal and give it your all," she said.

Her aim now is to compete for Miss America and then to return to TCU, where she'll finish her degree so she can become a broadcast journalist, she said.

Telling the students she hoped they would one day see her on TV, Morris asked them what they would like to be when they grow up and then encouraged them not to let anything get in the way of striving for that goal.

Eight-year-olds Malone Roark and Abigail Cheek said they liked getting to see Miss Texas and learned from her to never give up.

"I want to be a professional comedian," Abigail said.

From Carver, Morris visited Henderson Elementary and then participated Thursday evening in a teen game night at the library.

The 20-year-old said her mother was a librarian and always stressed to her the importance of reading, which is why she likes to make her book and libraries a part of her program.

Student photographers capture Friday night lights

Editor's note: This is the ninth story in a season-long series chronicling the different groups that contribute to the atmosphere of Friday night football.

By Meredith Moriak
Staff Writer

Dodging balls, capturing the perfect play and staying out of the coach's way are a few of the things photographers juggle while on the sidelines each week.

Though it was nerve-wracking at first, Midland High School senior Abbey Grimes said she's found her rhythm during her second year and knows what she needs to do during each game.

"Last year was just a learning year," Grimes said. "I didn't really know what I was doing. But this year, things are working out well."

Making sure the photos are in focus and have the ball in them is her No. 1 job, but she also tries to get crowd reaction shots.

The electric atmosphere and sense of involvement make football games one of Grimes' favorite events to photograph.

"It's fun to be down on the field. It's an intense, live experience," Grimes said.

Shooting football games was harder than Lee High School junior Eric Knighton expected. He doesn't consider himself a sports guy and said not understanding the game has kept him from knowing what to expect next.

"You have to be fast because the game moves at such a fast pace and you just may miss things," said Knighton, who enjoys shooting the crowd and people more than the game.

Lee photographer Breonda Hinojos said she's missed a few perfect plays because she was changing memory cards or lenses. Whenever that happens, Hinojos said she gets frustrated and feels stupid for missing a notable play.

While students may shoot more than 500 photos during a game, only about half of them are good, Grimes said.

She uploads game photos to Facebook so the football players can look through them, she said.

"It's pretty cool to see all the players change their profile photos to pictures you've taken of them during a game," Grimes said.

Grimes said she's had a few close encounters on the sideline. Sometimes, she realizes a running back is headed straight for her, but she tries to snap the perfect frame before jumping back with her monopod.

"I probably stand there too long before I move, but it's worked so far," Grimes said.

Though their teachers gave them some pointers about shutter speed and when to use a flash, the students said they've mostly learned through trial and error.

Hinojos said her photos have gotten better over time because she's learned how to use the camera.

Confidence on the sidelines is something the photographers said has come with time. As a senior, experienced photographer and yearbook editor, Grimes said she finally feels like she belongs there.

"I'm just doing my job, and I try not to get in their way or do anything they wouldn't like," Knighton said.

CHAMBER

From 1A

Dr. Sally Reyes, who became the first doctor of audiology in the Midland and Odessa areas in 2000, was named the organization's businesswoman of the year. She began doing business in Midland at All About Hearing in July 2007 and opened a new location in Odessa in September 2009.

"Four and a half years ago, when I took this leap of faith ... (the chamber) gave me the confidence I needed to do this," Reyes said. "I'm very honored to be among the women who have received this award."

Other award recipients included State Farm for corporation of the year, ICA Radio for media partner of the year and Severo Enriquez as volunteer of the year.

"This past year, Severo has diligently volunteered for every event that the chamber has participated in, and he always does it with a smile," said the chamber's chairwoman, Diana Cano.

Cano gave the Chairman's Award to Renee Rivera, who serves as vice chairwoman of finance for the board.

"This is an area that many entrepreneurs feel intimidated by, but with Renee's down-to-earth attitude, she calms their nerves," Cano said.

Keynote speaker Calvin Davis said his objective was to inspire and encourage the small business owners in attendance. Davis has been U.S. Small Business Administration's district director of the West Texas District Office in Lubbock since February.

Though the SBA is known for lending, Davis pointed out that the organization has many other special outreach efforts and initiatives to help small businesses, such as disaster assistance for businesses affected by the current drought. He said the SBA is the largest venture capital organization in the world, and pointed out that it made investments toward companies like Intel, Microsoft, Apple and Home Depot.

Only 20 percent of the SBA district office's lending is focused in the Midland and Odessa areas, Davis said. He suspected it could be because of the flourishing oil industry and encouraged small businesses in West Texas to tap into government contracts of which they currently aren't taking advantage.

"In order to be successful in a business or any other endeavor, you have to have a plan, and you have to execute the plan," he said. "But first, you have to believe in the plan."

EPA

wastewater from shale gas drilling cannot be directly discharged into waterways, so the excess often is sent to treatment plants, which may not be equipped to treat the fluid.

The risk is that contaminants — including naturally occurring radium and other toxic substances pulled out of the ground — may never be removed before water is discharged into rivers that supply drinking water.

Cynthia Dougherty, director of the EPA's Office of Ground Water and Drinking Water, said the contaminants also can damage treatment plants, threatening the release of raw sewage into local waterways.

"There really isn't good treatment available for some of the things that are in the wastewater" from natural gas drilling, Dougherty told the Senate energy panel.

Pennsylvania regulators asked the EPA to issue the guidance, Dougherty said. She added that state officials wanted "that technology-based standard ... so the sewage treatment plants that are receiving the wastewater would know it has been pretreated (and) so they don't end up putting wastewater out from that treatment plant that would cause problems."

Industry officials had a muted response. The American Petroleum Institute pointed to voluntary industry standards and programs to better deal with the produced water from natural gas drilling.

Industry leaders said there is no one-size-fits-all approach to managing water at natural gas sites because of the wide variations in geology.

WATER

From 1A

have been good for October, the number of residents complying with restrictions is dropping off. He said officers in recent weeks have noticed more Midlanders watering on the wrong day and creating nuisance water.

"We've had a little blip of both watering on the wrong days, as well as nuisance water," he said.

Thorpe said the issue has cropped up mainly in north Midland and that officers still are watching watering habits and have been writing citations.

Midland has been restricted to 22 million gallons of water per day from the CRMWD since July 1.

If a significant amount of rain does not fall over the reservoirs from which the CRMWD sells supplies, Executive Director John Grant has said he will recommend the board hold cities to their winter water usage next year.

Midland typically uses an average of 13.5 million gallons of water each day between December and February, officials have said.

Thursday, the CRMWD reported E.V. Spence Reservoir was down to 0.46 percent full, Lake J.B. Thomas was 1.75 percent full and O.H. Ivie Reservoir at 20.35 percent full.

Construction is under way to bring up to 45 million gallons per day to the CRMWD from a well field in Winkler County. Grant said the project is on schedule and should be complete by December 2012 — the same time it's projected all three reservoirs could run dry if there aren't additional inflows.

Knowing that, Matthies told the crowd that his lecture on water conservation could be useless next year because irrigation might not be allowed at all.

"This whole presentation could be a moot point in two months," he said.

If limited watering is permitted, Matthies told residents to look at irrigation in terms of how many inches of soil moisture are accumulated rather than how many minutes a sprinkler has run.

For example, he said it's often more effective to run three eight- to 12-minute watering cycles in one night rather than one 30- to 45-minute cycle. By spreading the watering out, the moisture has a chance to soak in and get to the roots rather than running off onto the sidewalk.

Creating a scenario where even that kind of irrigation is permitted, though, may require some rain.

"The outlook to some extent is a little bleak," he said. "Until we get some rain that hits in the right spots, it's bleak."

Baby unresponsive at UTPB family housing, dies at hospital

From staff reports

ODESSA — A baby, found unresponsive at a University of Texas of the Permian Basin on-campus apartment Thursday morning, died at a local hospital, authorities confirmed.

UTPB police said it received an emergency call at the campus police department at about 10 a.m. regarding the 10-month-old boy.

The boy's parent is a student at the school, officials said.

The first officer to respond, Megan Lopez, performed CPR before emergency responders arrived, school authorities said.

The boy was taken by ambulance to Medical Center Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

A medical investigation is ongoing.

The student and child lived in the Falcon's Nest housing, officials said.

Odessa police spokeswoman Cpl. Sherrie Carruth said OPD officers responded to the scene but that UTPB police were lead investigators on the case.

FBI official calls for alternate Internet

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — The computer networks that control power plants and financial systems will never be secure enough and a new, highly secure alternative Internet should be considered for development, a top FBI official said Thursday.

Shawn Henry, the FBI's executive assistant director, said critical systems are under increasing threat from terror groups looking to buy or lease the computer skills and malware needed to launch a cyber attack.

In an Associated Press interview Thursday, Henry said jihadist militants looking to harm the U.S. can tap organized crime groups who are willing to sell their services and abilities to attack computer systems. He would not say which terror group or whether any insurgent networks have actually been able to acquire the high-tech capabilities.

Gadhafi is gone, but challenges ahead

By Bradley Klapper
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Libya's victorious revolutionaries now face a new threat: themselves.

The secular and the religious, the politicians and the militants all basked Thursday in the demise of a dictator after fighters killed Moammar Gadhafi and eradicated once and for all his four decades of repression in Libya. But while congratulations poured in from across the world, the Obama administration and others tempered the celebrations with a dose of caution, conscious that Libya's formerly ragtag band of rebels must now avoid falling prey to extremists among themselves, or the type of political infighting that has hijacked the hopes of previous revolutions.

Gadhafi's death clears a cloud over Libya's shaky interim government while focusing new scrutiny on the former rebels and exiles now in charge and on possible candidates to lead a permanent government. Despite a public embrace of Libya's transitional leadership, the U.S. remains leery of some of the motives of those who have promised a quick move to elections and democracy.

And, while no official said it, the fear of an Islamist surge in power hangs over Libya's unsure future.

"This is a momentous day in the history of Libya," President Barack Obama declared from the White House Rose Garden. "The dark shadow of tyranny has been lifted, and with this enormous promise the Libyan people now have a great responsibility: to build an inclusive and tolerant and democratic Libya that stands as the ultimate rebuke to Gadhafi's dictatorship. We look forward to the announcement of the country's liberation, the quick formation of an interim government and a stable transition to Libya's first free and fair elections."

The 69-year-old Gadhafi was killed by revolutionary fighters overwhelming his hometown of Sirte, the last bastion of his supporters' resistance. Along with the reported capture of Gadhafi's son and heir apparent Seif al-Islam, and the killing of Gadhafi's son and security chief, Mutassim, Thursday's developments appeared to signal a decisive end to eight months of civil war in the North African country.

The National Transitional Council's largely secular leadership has promised to respect human rights and the rule of law, and usher in an inclusive era of government, but it is held together by a shaky coalition of individuals with competing interests and ambitions. There is a massive power vacuum and uncertainty about what or who will fill it.

Armed groups across the country have emerged as laws unto themselves. Interim leader Mahmoud Jibril has indicated he'll step aside once Libya's liberation is complete, creating possibly another vacuum. And in a country awash in weaponry, where Gadhafi's once vast arsenal of conventional arms and rocket-propelled missiles have been looted, the threat of widespread instability is high.

Obama said the U.S. was "under no illusions."

"Libya will travel a long and winding road to full democracy," he said. "There will be difficult days ahead. But the United States, together with the international community, is committed to the Libyan people. You have won your revolution, and now we will be a partner as you forge a future that provides dignity, freedom and opportunity."

Libya's patchwork of competing tribal and regional loyalties makes it a challenging place to govern under any circumstances, and 42 years of idiosyncratic rule under Gadhafi compounds the difficulty. He drained the country of institutions, eliminated any threat to his authority and defined nearly all aspects of life through his political vision that centered on a green book, powerless "people's committees" and his unpredictable antics.

The U.S. has directed its diplomacy through a narrow group of Libya's ex-government officials, lawyers and economists with questionable influence on the streets. Washington has delivered only a fraction of the billions in Gadhafi assets it has seized, and it has hedged support for some NTC allies who are promising a quick move to elections and democracy but have spotty résumés.

"Nobody is in charge," said Anthony Cordesman, a security analyst at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington. "You have a council that is barely able to work together, and you have militias with no chain of command. In the course of the next week or so, they are going to have to figure out how to govern."

GADHAFI BRIEFS
FROM WIRE REPORTS

LIBYA
With warped vision, Gadhafi maddened Libya, West

TRIPOLI — During nearly 42 years in power in Libya, Moammar Gadhafi was one of the world's most eccentric dictators, so mercurial that he was both condemned and courted by the West, while he brutally warped his country with his idiosyncratic vision of autocratic rule until he was finally toppled by his own people.

The modern Arab world's longest-ruling figure, Libya's "Brother Leader" displayed striking contrasts. He was a sponsor of terrorism whose regime was blamed for blowing up two passenger jets, who then helped the U.S. in the war on terror. He was an Arab nationalist who mocked Arab rulers. In the crowning paradox, he preached a "revolutionary" utopia of people power but ran a one-man dictatorship that fueled the revolution against him.

His death on Thursday at age 69 — confirmed by Prime Minister Mahmoud Jibril — came as Libyan fighters defeated Gadhafi's last holdouts in his hometown of Sirte, the last major site of resistance in the country.

WASHINGTON
Death another victory for Obama doctrine

The death of Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi expands the growing string of security victories on President Barack Obama's watch and reinforces his own style of dealing with enemies without immersing the United States in war. Even skeptics offered congratulations.

For Obama, the outcome allowed him to stand victorious in the Rose Garden on Thursday, taking note also of the death this year of prominent al-Qaida leaders at the hands of the United States.

Perry shows signs of life in Las Vegas

■ Governor lands a punch on Romney but still shows lack of thought on national issues.

CHARLES KRAUTHAMMER
Washington Post Writers Group

On Tuesday night, seismologists at the Las Vegas Oceanographic Institute reported the first recorded movement of a hair on Mitt Romney's head. Although it was only one follicle, displaced a mere 1.2 centimeters, the tremors were felt from Iowa to New Hampshire. Simultaneously, these same scientists detected signs of life in Rick Perry, last seen comatose at the recent Dartmouth debate.

Such were the highlights of Tuesday's seven-person Republican brawl at the Venetian. To be sure, there were other developments. Herman Cain stumbled, Newt Gingrich grinned, Rick Santorum landed a clean shot at Romneycare and Michele Bachmann made a spirited bid for a comeback.

But the main event was the scripted Rick Perry attack on Romney, reprising the old charge of Romney hiring illegal immigrants. Perry's face-to-face accusation of rank hypocrisy had the intended effect. From the ensuing melee emerged a singularity: a ruffled Romney, face flushed, voice raised.

It lasted just a millisecond but it left its mark. The reassuring and unflappable command that had carried Romney through — indeed, above — previous debates was punctured. True, his unflappability is, to some, less reassurance than a sign of inauthenticity. But if you are going to show real passion, petulance is not the way to do it.

Worse, Romney turned to the referee — moderator Anderson Cooper — with a plaintive "Anderson?" seeking intervention. An uncharacteristically weak moment. What does he do when Vladimir Putin sticks a finger in his chest and starts yelling at a Vienna summit? Call for Anderson?

On substance, Romney remained as solid as ever, showing by far the most mastery of policy, with the possible exception of Gingrich — but without the lecturing tone and world-weary condescension.

Romney's command was best seen in his takedown of Cain's 9-9-9 plan. Cain refused to concede the burden to consumers of a national sales tax added on to existing state sales taxes. Doggedly sticking to his point long after it had been undermined, he kept raining down metaphors about apples and oranges. His national sales tax is a solution to a federal problem (a monstrous tax code), he insisted, and therefore irrelevant to any discussion of state sales taxes, which would exist regardless.

It took Romney one sentence to expose the sophistry. He simply pointed out that a real-world consumer with a basketful of apples and oranges would be paying the sum of the two sales taxes at checkout. Q.E.D.

Cain remained, as always, charming, engaging, confident and good-willed, the only person on stage other than Bachmann who didn't have a sour or a nasty moment. But his tax plan collapsed under fire in about 10 minutes, the coup de grace being delivered by Gingrich, who, when asked why the Cain plan is a hard sell, replied, "You just watched it." It was the deadliest line of the night.

However, the principal drama was provided by Perry. His aggressive performance brought him back into the game, especially because he now has a few weeks before the next debate to deploy his major assets: a talent for retail politics and a ton of money.

But the price of re-entry was high. His awakening wasn't very pretty. He showed he can draw blood, but it was a nasty schoolyard punch-up. In primary races, personal attacks often have the effect of diminishing both candidates. This happened in 2004 in Iowa when Democratic front-runners Dick Gephardt and Howard Dean knocked each other silly, allowing John Kerry and John Edwards to sneak past them.

Nonetheless, because of his considerable resources, Perry, by merely stirring himself, is back. But he hasn't solved his problem. It's not just that, as he readily admits, he's not very good at debating, although that in itself is a huge liability. It wasn't before 1960. It is now. And based on Perry's first five performances, Barack Obama would eat him alive in a one-on-one.

But apart from the importance of debating itself, Perry's often clueless responses betray an even deeper problem: He simply hasn't thought through the issues on a national scale. He is still Texas. And Texas simply isn't enough. That was most glaringly evident during the Dartmouth debate when, in response to questions about China and then about health care, Perry sought immediate refuge by talking instead about his energy plan. Interesting, but unrelated.

The Vegas fight mildly unsettled the Republican race. But its central dynamic remains. It awaits the coalescence of anti-Romney sentiment around one challenger. Until and unless that happens, it's Romney's race to lose.

OUR VIEW

Midlanders would be wise to call for debris removal

Laurels

■ For MISD. The decision to close Bonham Elementary to additional enrollment was the right one. No doubt. We still scratch our heads at the enrollment increase that was nearly impossible to see coming.

■ For David Rosen, Dally Willis and Pat and David Weaver. This is one of the more conservative areas of the state, but that doesn't mean Democrats don't deserve a voice. These four have worked hard to represent Democrats in Midland County, and for that, they deserve our thanks. Congrats on receiving your "Heroes" awards.

■ For Lael Cordes-Pitts. The Uptown Midland Business and Professional Women made an excellent selection in naming the Casa de Amigos executive director as its 2011 Woman of Achievement. We applaud her commitment to this community that includes 26 years at Casa de Amigos.

■ For calls to clear debris. We salute Midland Fire Department on the need for people to remove debris and excess brush from around their homes and on property throughout Midland County. We couldn't agree more. We will add that it is up to government entities — whether it is the city or county — to deal with those people who won't take care of their property. We also ask the city, county and state to be proactive in clearing those lands in and around their roads where brush and debris could fuel fires. We unfortunately are aware of how much damage a cigarette tossed out a car window can do.

Arrow

For listing the dunes sagebrush lizard on the federal endangered species list. This is a no-brainer, especially with the science that has been shown up to this point.

Those interested in the topic can go to the WhiteHouse.gov website and sign a petition that would "put an end to over-regulation and rein in those agencies bent on destroying the ability of the American people to subsist."

According to reports, if the petition gets 5,000 signatures by Oct. 28, it will go into a queue for the Obama administration to review and respond. Forcing the White House to look at the possible listing makes sense.

Wait and see

For Ryder Warren. With a bond election apparently on the horizon, he told the Permian Basin Restaurant Association this past week he wants to develop a plan that may "blow up everything and change the way we educate kids." No doubt a historic building plan deserves nothing less. We hope the superintendent is successful in developing a plan that is right for educating students in Midland. This isn't just about sending kids to college; it's about producing graduates ready to contribute in any number of ways.

Still, his comments appear to be a step in the right direction. When approaching the taxpayers of Midland for millions of dollars, coming up with a costlier version of the status quo is not acceptable and likely will be shot down at the ballot box.

Fixing the conspiracy against the common man

■ Occupy movement and the president want to blame the wealthy for our current crisis. What's next, regulating what pro football players and movie stars earn?

WILLIAM MURCHISON
Creators Syndicate

"The protest against corporate greed born last month on New York's Wall Street spread across the world Saturday," according to The Los Angeles Times. But hold on! The Times is engaged in a question-begging exercise — one with tendencies that deserve to be, but certainly won't be, shut down promptly. Such is the nuttiness of our era.

"Greed" has brought us to this crummy pass. That's what we are to infer from these protesters, but they don't have proof. Greed is the motive principle of capitalism: More moola for me, the capitalist, less for you, the "99 percenters." The protesters want greed to stop now. But how? That's the sticking point: Nobody knows the means of legislating an end to the currently most conspicuous of the seven deadly sins.

A word about greed and capitalism seems called for. The occupiers of Wall Street and other financial centers seem hung up on the idea that business is a conspiracy against the common man. A widening of the gap between the very richest and, shall we say, the less rich — a gap evident all over the world — becomes evidence, in the occupiers' eyes, of the rottenness and corruption of the system.

The heart of the argument is too few people have too much money. The too few include Wall Street "fat cats," as our silver-tongued president calls them, baseball players, football players, singers, golfers, actors, actresses and so on. As a reminder that Wall Street tycoons have company in the ranks of the rich, consider that Charlie Sheen "earned" $40 million between May 2010 and May 2011; that Johnny Depp's haul from four "Pirates of the Caribbean" movies is estimated at $280 million; that the NFL's five highest paid quarterbacks (starting with Peyton Manning) average $20 million a year. They couldn't get by on less? Sheen couldn't make it on, oh, $100,000 bucks?

The president likely has inspired some of this resentment through his cadences about taxing people who don't need all the money they have (even though the richest 1 percent of Americans already pay 28.1 percent of federal taxes). The idea is that these people wouldn't have all this money if money weren't all they thought about sunup to sundown — gimme, gimme, gimme, greed, greed, greed. It's all their fault we're in bad shape. Take it away from 'em! Break 'em to the ranks! Show 'em what it's like to leave the electric bill unopened for fear of seeing a heart-attack-inducing figure!

Such are the implications of playing the greed card — long-suffering us against bad, evil them.

Isn't there a familiar ring to this song? Of course, it's the tune humanity sings without prompting in times of stress. The tumbrels roll toward the guillotine, and Madame Defarge's needles click incessantly.

Greed — like pride, envy and anger — is a theological offense, curable only by repentance and amendment of life. It is the story that rarely gets told. We, meaning humanity, blame systems from feudalism to capitalism that reward work, talent and sometimes just plain ol' luck. No system has done more to spread success and opportunity than has free market capitalism. Instinctively, we know that, but then we get in a snit when something in the system goes awry. Because we're unhappy, we want revenge on our supposed betrayers and traducers. Always a quantity of politicians is available to encourage that embarrassing sentiment.

Outsized rewards such as bank chieftains and NFL quarterbacks take home from the office are the price of a system that, with relatively little government direction, sets those rewards. What's the "right" reward with which to accommodate Peyton Manning? Possibly the Obama administration could set up a Bureau of Compensation to decide.

While we wait expectantly for that healing event, we might give thanks for the opportunity with which a free economy has endowed the hard working, the creative and the visionary. Yes, the fundamentally greedy, too, I'm afraid. In a land of true and lasting liberty, you make room for all.

Analysis: Libyan leader's death a cautionary tale

By Hamza Hendawi
Associated Press

CAIRO — Images of Moammar Gadhafi's bloodied body flashed on TV screens across the world may send shivers down the spines of Syria's Bashar Assad and Yemen's Ali Abdullah Saleh, two leaders clinging to power in the face of long-running Arab Spring uprisings.

For the millions of Arabs yearning for freedom, democracy and new leadership, the death of one of the region's most brutal dictators likely will inspire and invigorate the movement for change.

Gadhafi's death sent ripples across the Arab world and set the Internet's social networks abuzz with comments, mostly celebrating the demise of a leader whose bizarre and eccentric behavior over the years defined the woes of an Arab world mostly ruled by autocratic or despotic leaders.

"There is an emotional connection between the revolutionaries in the region. Hope is contagious," said Egyptian activist Mona Seif. "Our revolution is one. The fall of another tyrant is a victory for all of us," she said in a post on her Twitter account.

Gadhafi was shot dead Thursday in the final battle for his hometown of Sirte on Libya's Mediterranean coast. He had been in hiding for the two months since the capital of Tripoli fell to rebels who rose up against his 42-year rule in February.

The 69-year-old Gadhafi — the first leader to be killed in the Arab Spring wave of popular uprisings — had vowed to fight to the end. In his world of nationalism and desert valor, it was a fate better than the perceived humiliation of exile or incarceration endured by Tunisia's Zine El Abidine Ben Ali and Egypt's Hosni Mubarak.

But while the death of Gadhafi and the triumph of the uprising in his North African nation has instantly given heart to pro-reform activists dreaming of change, the Arab world will watch closely what happens next in Libya — and to whether the region's "Assads" and "Salehs" will see in his fate an incentive to cling to power and crack down even harder on any sign of unrest.

As word spread of Gadhafi's death, jubilant Libyans poured into Tripoli's central Martyr's Square, chanting "Syria! Syria!" — urging the Syrian opposition on to victory.

"Winning the war in Libya is the easy part. Building democracy will be the tough part," said Ronald Bruce of St. John's College in Santa Fe, N.M. "It is going to be chaotic, but the Libyans will be up to the task."

Ominously, regional and ethnic differences have already surfaced in Libya. Another source of tension is the conflicting views of the country's Islamists and liberals about what post-Gadhafi Libya should look like.

On Thursday, Libyans set aside their worries and differences to celebrate, firing in the air and singing in the streets.

Lockerbie relatives celebrate his death

Associated Press

CHERRY HILL, N.J. — For decades, Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi was seen as an international villain, but for Susan Cohen he was a personal enemy, one she read up on daily for more than 20 years.

Her 20-year-old daughter was one of the 270 people — many of them New York and New Jersey residents — killed when Pam Am Flight 103 was blown out of the sky by a terrorist bomb over the Scottish town of Lockerbie on Dec. 21, 1988, allegedly at Gadhafi's behest.

"This was sort of like Dracula: Is Dracula really dead?" said Cohen, of Cape May Court House, N.J. "It's great now that we know. I didn't want him to go to a trial. When you have a tyrant, a monster like him, we're all better off with him dead. Now there can be no illusion of him ever returning to power."

She said she intended to celebrate his death with an expensive bottle of champagne.

Like the relatives of many of those killed on Flight 103, Cohen was an ordinary citizen who became an activist on Libya, terrorism, international law and diplomacy after the attack.

Some, like Cohen, even attended the trial in the Netherlands of Abdel Baset Ali al-Megrahi, who was convicted as the mastermind of the attack. They were outraged in 2009 when he was released to Libya from British captivity in 2009 on humanitarian grounds as he was supposedly close to death — and have remained angry that he's still alive two years later.

To some of them, his return implied that Britain was siding more with Gadhafi than with the victims of the bombing. In London on Thursday, British Prime Minister

Associated Press

Lisa Gibson, who's brother Ken Gibson was killed on the bombing of PanAM flight 103 over Lockerbie, talks about the death of Moammar Gadhafi as she addresses a conference on "Conflict Resolution" on Thursday.

David Cameron pledged assistance to Libya's leaders as they work to form a new government.

"Today is a day to remember all of Gadhafi's victims," he said. "We should also remember the many, many people who died at the hands of this brutal dictator and his regime."

Ali Aujali, the Libyan National Transitional Council's ambassador to the U.S., told CNN that he didn't think transitional leaders would want al-Megrahi returned to Scotland. "I saw the last photo of him. He is a very sick man," Aujali said.

Many families of the attack victims had longed for the dictator's downfall — or death, which at times seemed imminent during the uprising in Libya but took until Thursday to happen.

"I never thought I would see the day this man, this coward, would no longer be part of the world population," said Bert Ammerman, of River Vale, N.J., whose brother Tom died in the bombing. "I can say today with a great deal of satisfaction that my brother and the other 269 people that were massacred on Dec. 21, 1988, did not die in vain."

But the dictator's death does not close the book on the bombing for Kara Weipz, whose 20-year-old brother, Syracuse University student Richard Monetti, was one of its victims.

"Ultimately, the one thing I hope is he had evidence on him," said Weipz, who lives in Mount Laurel, N.J. "All the families really want to know the truth of how this happened. That has been our motto since 1988, and it remains our motto in 2011."

Episcopal diocesan convention to be held at Hilton this weekend

By Audrie Palmer
Staff Writer

Midland will have the honor of hosting the 53rd annual Northwest Texas Diocesan Convention this weekend.

St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church will host the event today and Saturday at the Hilton Midland Plaza in downtown Midland.

This is the first time in the past 10 years the church has hosted the event, which serves and encompasses 80 surrounding counties including the Panhandle area down to San Angelo and Abilene, said the Rev. Jim Liggett, the church's rector.

Liggett said the diocese holds the convention each year with all the clergy and elected delegates of each congregation to hold elections for various positions. The convention is also a time for the coming year's budget to be approved for the diocese and for any resolutions to be handled.

"We also spend time together in fellowship and fun," Liggett said.

About 200 clergy and delegates are expected to attend along with a number of visitors and observers.

The speaker for the event will be Bishop Scott Mayer, Liggett said.

The convention will begin at 8:30 a.m. today and continue throughout the day. At 6 p.m., a social hour and dinner dance will be held at the Petroleum Museum at 1500 W. Interstate 20. Tickets for the event are $35 each and will be available at registration Friday morning.

The convention will continue at 8:30 a.m. Saturday and finish with 11 a.m. Holy Eucharist at St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 4000 W. Loop 250 North, Liggett said.

Visitors and observers are welcome to observe and listen at the event, Liggett added.

"The church in this diocese does a number of things corporately as a body and the layman and clergy are very involved in deciding what we will do and how we fund it," he said.

The convention gives those involved a chance to cooperate on topics like Christian education, selection and training of clergy, missions strategy and their participation in the national Episcopal church, Liggett said.

For more information about the convention, contact the church at 694-8856.

Ministry reaches out to teen moms

By Sara Higgins
Staff Writer

Amber Johnson was a senior in high school, set to graduate in May 2008. Her future looked bright with endless possibilities. She had decided to attend Texas Women's University in Denton.

Intense pelvic pain was what first led Johnson to think something was wrong, and she frankly admits she thought she'd be diagnosed with a sexually transmitted disease when she visited the doctor. When he dropped his head, she knew the situation was serious but wasn't expecting the answer she was given. She was two and a half weeks pregnant.

She heard the words, but they didn't register. How could she, a 17-year-old, be a mother? The only thing on her mind was her 18th birthday party only two weeks away.

At seven weeks, the high schooler visited The Life Center, where she received a sonogram. She saw a spot on the screen that she was told one day would be her child.

Johnson tried to hide her baby bump at first by wearing

Fallapalooza: God Bless Midland event feeds and entertains crowds

TIM WALKER
First United Methodist Chruch senior pastor

It was a beautiful morning when I arrived at the Scharbauer Sports Complex last Saturday for Fallapalooza, our church's event to bless the community with food, fun and music.

This was one of our events for God Bless Midland, our yearlong initiative to bless the community. We have prayed through the entire community during prayer walks in the spring and fall, handed out thousands of bottles of water at the Midland mall, provided a free night at the RockHounds game and hosted a community-wide remembrance service on the 10th anniversary of Sept. 11 featuring country music artist Lee Greenwood. Currently our team of volunteers is working on a Habitat for Humanity home that should be finished in time for the family to move in before the holidays.

Fallapalooza was so much fun! I assumed the role of water-boy and paper-towel dispenser. Our "napkins" were paper towels. I noticed a lot of folks picking up their food who had their hands full with plates for kids and didn't have a free hand to tear off a paper towel, so I went all over the grounds offering paper towels. As I dispensed the paper towels, here is what I saw:

- More than 1,000 hotdog and hamburger meals, served from five mobile barbeque pits staffed by teams of volunteers.
- Three tables of food with all the trimmings for hotdogs and hamburgers, followed by a barrel of cold bottled water. Guests had multiple choices when it came to cookies and chips, and second helpings were the norm.
- Four jump houses were busy the entire time, with lines of children waiting their turn and then turning loose all their energy.
- Games for prizes were offered to the smaller children. They moved from station to station collecting candy and prizes.

baggy pants and shirts to school. When word got out, she "lost everyone," she said. She transferred to Coleman High School, and was placed with other young, expecting mothers. "Popular to pregnant" is how she describes the transition.

"All you see is that your dreams are gone," she remembered. "I wasn't talking college anymore; I was talking about changing diapers."

At Coleman, she finished school two months earlier than her expected graduation date. Her son, Keimoriyean, was born in June. She still had dreams to go to college, but those plans would have to stay on hold until her son was potty trained and able to feed himself, so he wasn't as much of a burden on her parents when she'd leave.

Today, she attends night classes at Kaplan College, where she's studying to be a medical assistant. Her father takes care of Keimoriyean while she's at classes, but she lives by herself and has her own car. It's a different life than she sees in many of her pregnant peers who continued having children at a young age.

"I didn't want to live off the government my whole life," she said.

Johnson credits much of her stability today to a ministry for teen mothers at First Baptist Church. Formerly called Teen MOPS, M.A.R.Y. Ministries is a non-denominational, non-judgmental environment for teen mothers ages 13 through 19. The group's name stands for "Mothering As Responsible Youth," and is a play off the name of the Biblical teen mother who gave birth to the Son of God. Teen MOPS was an international program that provided support for mothers from their child's conception through kindergarten, which First Baptist used for five years. This year, M.A.R.Y. Ministries was formed so the group's leaders could write their own, personalized curriculum. The teen moms meet every first and third Tuesday of each month from 6-8:30 p.m. in the church's fellowship hall, and are provided with child care and a meal, as well as time for education, creative activities and discussion. Around 20 volunteers and mentors have made the commitment to donate their time to the girls this year, said coordinator Kathy Firkins. The meetings are broken up into two semesters, September through December and January through May, for a total of about 15 meetings per year.

Firkins draws on her own experiences as a teen mother to relate to the girls who come to the ministry for support. She remembers readjusting her own goals in life when she became pregnant as a senior in high school. Her daughter's birth led her to put her dream of finishing college on hold until the age of 30; she moved into her first house with her husband seven years later. She and her "baby daddy" have been married for 20 years.

"I'm here to tell them there's hope in that situation," she said.

Two of the volunteers in the ministry, Traci Pequeno and Shannon Merritt, are teachers at Lee High School and understand the reality of these girls' situations. At Midland Independent School District campuses, 67 teenage girls currently are pregnant, said the district's Health Services Supervisor Tracey Dees. At the current rate, that number easily could match a total upwards of 172 as it did last year, she said.

"There's only so much we can do for them in the classroom," said Merritt.

Though the ministry has plenty of volunteers, only six young mothers attended the meeting Tuesday. In the past, the group's numbers have been as high as 20 to 30. One problem is the increasing number of expecting mothers who are not of legal age to drive or don't own a car, so the ministry is offering free rides to teen moms who call ahead of the meetings.

The most common problems among the young women are food security, medical care and education, Firkins said. Fortunately, she added, there's been a high success rate among the girls in the ministry in receiving their high school diplomas or GEDs. Many of the girls' problems are relational, as well, as teen pregnancies can cause strain in their families of origin or within other relationships. Oftentimes the lack of local shelters for youth under the age of 18 means these young mothers find themselves moving from one friend's house to another's if they get kicked out of their own home.

"We strive to make them better moms, better people, and to be self-sufficient," Firkins said.

In addition to a meal and child care, the young mothers in the ministry are allowed to visit three times a year the church's "Baby Boutique," which contains clothes, wipes, strollers and other necessities donated by the church. Each child receives one winter coat, and a bundle of diapers at each meeting. Mothers receive a Bible and other gifts to encourage them throughout their journey. To receive all the benefits, though, the young women must follow a set of expectations that focus on attendance, promptness, participation and working toward a better life for them and their children. The mothers also must agree to not have subsequent pregnancies while taking part in the program.

Though Johnson was nervous the first time she visited the ministry, she said she found open arms and education that helped soothe her worries as a young mother-to-be. Her mentor accompanied her to the doctor's office and was there for her baby's first vaccinations. She hopes to provide the same support for the girls who are coming through the program this year through her role as a junior mentor.

"If people knew about this program, not to take advantage of it but to learn from it, it would help them out a lot," she said. "I'm still learning."

Speaking to the girls during an orientation Tuesday, Firkins mentioned the group's theme verse is Colossians 3:14, which says, "And over all these virtues put on love, which binds them all together in perfect unity."

"You may not have the fancy house, you may never have the fancy car, you may not eat steak every night," she said, "but if there's love in your household and between you and your child, that's all that matters."

Firkins asked one simple question to the young mothers Tuesday during discussion: "What's hard?" The answers were varied, as were the mothers; some had yet to name the baby growing inside of them; others worried about teething, potty training and obtaining child support.

As the group bowed their heads at the close of the night, their prayer to God was simple: "Lord, give each of us strength to make it through tomorrow ... and the day after that."

From 1B

Most of them had passed through the face-painting zone and were beaming with their newly painted faces. Butterflies were popular, as were pumpkins.

■ Four bands entertained from the live stage, filling the environment with energetic sounds. We were delighted bands Crystal River, CPR (Country, Pop, Rock), Brother Z and our First United Methodist praise band shared their talents with us!

■ Twelve SUVs were parked and waiting for the children to trunk or treat. Costumed hosts handed out handful after handful of treats.

■ More than 100 volunteers were on hand to serve those who attended. There were a lot of happy faces and a few sun-burned ones.

I took a break from napkin duty to ride the train around the parking lot, only to discover after I got off it was only offered to small children. Oh well, as long as I was riding, I was a kid at heart.

First Church is honored to have a part in sharing the blessings God has given us, and in turn we pray, God bless Midland!

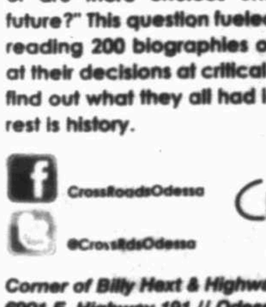
SUNDAY, OCTOBER 23RD
9:30am & 11:00am
CrossRoads Fellowship



Guest Speaker
Andy Andrews

Author of the New York Time's best-selling THE TRAVELER'S GIFT, THE NOTICER, and THE BUTTERFLY EFFECT, Andy Andrews has impacted millions with his creative writing and speaking.

On October 23rd, CrossRoads Fellowship will feature Andy Andrews as a special guest speaker to round off the ONE MONTH TO LIVE 30-Day Challenge. Many authors and communicators speak from their personal experience. Andy Andrews is shaped by his life path, and in many ways, lived out his own 30-Day Challenge at a very young age.

At age 19, Andy lost both parents. Homeless and without direction, he asked, "Is life just a lottery ticket, or are there choices one can make to direct his future?" This question fueled a search for answers. After reading 200 biographies of great people and looking at their decisions at critical junctures, Andy resolved to find out what they all had in common. He did, and the rest is history.

What It Means to Know God

Nothing will so humble and expand the mind as the knowledge of God. To say one can and must know God does not mean that anyone knows everything about Him absolutely and exhaustively. After all, to perfectly understand God we would have to be God! Yet God can still be known. As a rough parallel, we may know our spouses and families without always knowing everything about them perfectly and completely. Sometimes those we know the best still surprise us! So we are to seek to know God on the basis of the revelation He has given us through the creation, Scripture and His Son Jesus Christ. "And this is eternal life, they know you the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent" (John 17:3).

GOP Immigration debate intensifies

By Steve Peoples
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Neither Rick Perry nor Mitt Romney can claim conservative purity on illegal immigration — and now both must deal with it.

Illegal immigration has emerged as a defining issue with remarkable staying power in a GOP presidential race that was expected to be primarily focused on the nation's struggling economy.

The heated clashes over illegal immigration between the two Republican presidential rivals in this week's debate, coupled with renewed calls for a fence along the U.S.-Mexico border by their opponents, made clear the issue isn't going away. It's a major fault line between Perry and Romney as they court a Republican primary electorate that generally takes a hardline view against people who are in the country illegally.

At every turn, Perry has been forced to defend his signing of a law that allowed some illegal immigrants to get in-state college tuition. And now Romney is having to answer for the fact that some groundskeepers who had worked on his lawn were in the country illegally.

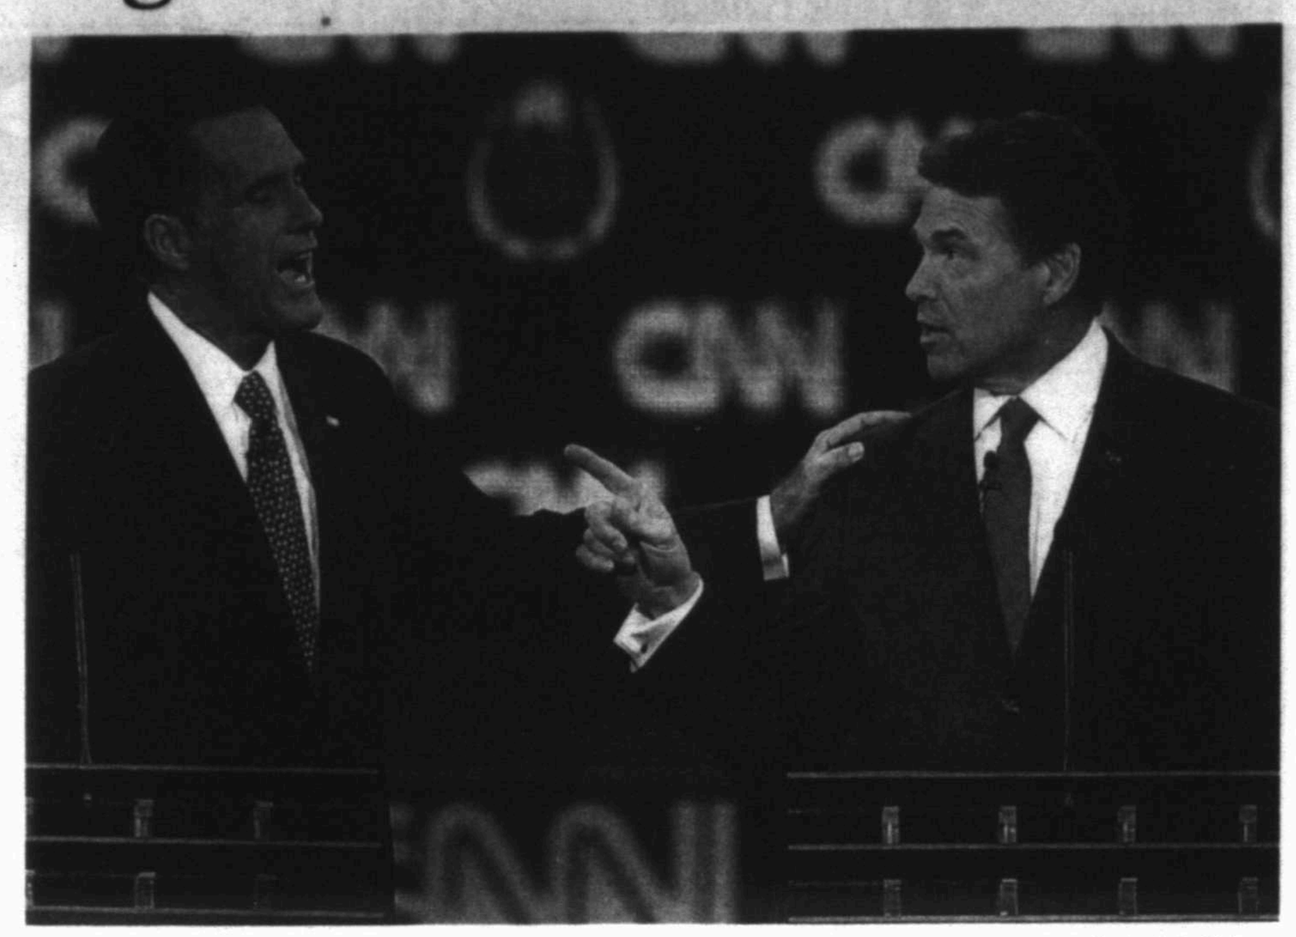
"Mitt, you lose all of your standing from my perspective because you hired illegals in your home, and you knew about it for a year," Perry told the former Massachusetts governor at Tuesday's debate in Las Vegas. "And the idea that you stand here before us and talk about that you're strong on immigration is, on its face, the height of hypocrisy."

Romney countered, "Rick, I don't think that I've ever hired an illegal in my life" and challenged his rival to show him the facts.

It was a preview of what Republicans can expect to hear in the coming weeks as the Jan. 3 leadoff Iowa caucuses inch closer, with Romney and Perry emerging as the two candidates with the best chances of winning the nomination. They're arguably the only Republicans with the money and organization necessary to go the distance.

Even so and in hopes of gaining traction, their rivals are playing to the part of the GOP electorate that values a secure border with Mexico above all else when it comes to immigration policy.

In recent days, Minnesota Rep. Michele Bachmann of Minnesota has pledged to build two fences back to back along the 2,000-mile border. And businessman Herman Cain called for an electrified fence that could kill people trying to cross illegally.



Associated Press

Former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney, left, and Gov. Rick Perry speak during a Republican presidential debate Tuesday in Las Vegas. Neither candidate can claim conservative purity on illegal immigration — and now both must deal with it.

For months now, immigration concerns have followed presidential contenders to town hall meetings from Nevada to Iowa to New Hampshire. And in some ways, immigration has shaped the increasingly bitter Republican nomination fight more than any other issue, particularly in a crowded field where the conservative candidates have more in common than not. And while conservative voters may be driving immigration chatter on the campaign trail, the candidates are stoking voter passions when given the opportunity.

"I'm not surprised that immigration is playing as big a role as it is," said Kevin Smith, a likely New Hampshire Republican gubernatorial candidate who has watched the candidates face repeated questions about the topic on the campaign trail. "This issue plays very well with Republican primary voters."

And it's clear they're listening.

Perry's sudden drop in the polls was largely attributed to weak debate performances involving his support for the Texas law. He suggested that Republicans who oppose the policy were heartless. And Romney fueled the tuition criticism every chance he got.

But Perry tried to neutralize the attacks this week. The outspoken Texan raised new questions at the debate about Romney's use of a landscaping company that employed illegal immigrants at his suburban Boston home several years ago.

For a moment, it looked as though Perry and Romney may come to blows as they debated the issue, with Romney at one point putting his hand on Perry's shoulder as the conversation began to heat up.

"The American people want the truth," Perry demanded. "They want to hear you say that you knew you had illegals working at your ..."

Romney cut in: "Would you please wait? Are you just going to keep talking, or are you going to let me finish with my — what I have to say?"

For Romney, it was a frustrating return to an issue that played out in his 2008 presidential campaign.

At that time, and again Tuesday night, he said he had little control over whether a landscaping company he legally hired had illegal immigrants on the payroll. But the exchange provided one of the few moments in this presidential campaign in which the usually poised Romney showed flashes of anger.

That anger was apparent in campaign rhetoric from both sides the day after the debate.

"Gov. Perry is desperate to deflect from his liberal immigration record," Romney spokesman Ryan Williams said, calling Perry's launching of "a personal and untruthful attack" on Romney "unpresidential."

But don't expect Perry to back down from an issue that may have fueled his strongest debate performance.

Perry spokesman Ray Sullivan said, "Mr. Romney has been demagoguing and distorting these immigration and border control issues for months now." Sullivan argued that Romney was "exposed as someone who had illegal immigrants working in his lawn and cleaning his tennis court."

Sullivan would not say whether Perry might exploit the issue in television advertising, but he hinted that Romney has only seen the beginning of the new criticism.

There is danger is pushing too hard on immigration.

Polling suggests the issue may help the candidates score political points with Republican primary voters but could alienate the ballooning Hispanic population or hurt the candidates among independents in a general election matchup against President Barack Obama.

Obama campaign manager Jim Messina seized on the issue Wednesday.

"Romney's been taking hard-right positions on the campaign trail on immigration. He didn't object to having undocumented workers working for him because it's illegal; he objected because he thought it would hurt his political career," Messina said.

Trial starts for janitor accused of killing priest

By Samantha Henry
Associated Press

MORRISTOWN, N.J. — The trial of a church janitor accused of murdering a New Jersey priest began Thursday with prosecutors arguing that the man stabbed his employer and methodically covered his tracks out of fear he was about to be fired and the defense countering it was a crime of passion in which the janitor snapped under the pressure of unspecified threats from the priest.

Jose Feliciano is charged with fatally stabbing the Rev. Edward Hinds on Oct. 22, 2009. The 61-year-old Hinds was found dead on the kitchen floor of the rectory of St. Patrick Roman Catholic Church in Chatham after he failed to appear for morning Mass on Oct. 23. Authorities said he had been stabbed 32 times.

The 60-year-old Feliciano, who had worked at the church for 18 years, previously told police he killed the priest because Hinds threatened to fire him if he ended their homosexual relationship.

Neither the prosecution nor the defense mentioned that explicitly during opening arguments. Instead, defense attorney Neill Hamilton alluded to "the high price" that Hinds had forced Feliciano to pay in exchange for keeping quiet about the discovery of a two-decade-old arrest warrant Feliciano had from Philadelphia for indecent assault on a minor.

Hamilton questioned why, if Hinds had discovered information about Feliciano that would have required his automatic termination, he did not act sooner, but instead waited until a compliance audit of the church by the diocese was just a week away.

Instead, Hamilton argued, Hinds wielded the information to force Feliciano into doing things he said "provoked Mr. Feliciano to the point that would make a reasonable person fly into a homicidal rage."

Morris County Prosecutor Robert Bianchi sought to portray Feliciano as a cunning liar who methodically planned the crime and its cover-up to the point he stole the priest's cell-phone and ripped a rectory telephone handset out of the wall after the dying priest tried to call 911 for help. Feliciano left the dead man in the rectory, went home, ate dinner and calmly returned to work the next day to make what Bianchi called "an unbelievably theatrical performance" grieving over the dead priest's body.

Hinds had been about to fire Feliciano — and even marked Friday, Oct. 23 in his calendar as "Jose — last day," after the janitor had refused to submit to a fingerprinting and background check required of all church employees under the "Protecting God's Children" program put in place following the international church sex abuse scandal, Bianchi said.

Police also found evidence on Hinds' computer that he had accessed paid investigative sites, trying to do his own criminal background search on Feliciano, Bianchi said.

A series of 911 calls from the day of the stabbing were played for jurors Thursday in State Superior Court in Morristown. In the first call, Hinds can be heard trying to respond to a dispatcher questioning his location before the line goes dead. The 911 operator calls back and it goes to voicemail. A third call was answered by a man prosecutors said was Feliciano, who tells the dispatcher there is no emergency.

"That's a man who is deceiving, covering up his crime, a liar, a fabricator, that doesn't care a whit that he's murdering another human being," Bianchi said.

Half of Hinds' broken cellphone was discovered by police in a park trash can near Feliciano's Easton, Pa. home, Bianchi said. The damage to the phone had caused it to start dialing random numbers off Hinds' saved contacts list, which police found were beaming off a cell tower in Easton. Police also found the rectory phone and the knife during their search, Bianchi said, as well as blood stains on clothing found in Feliciano's house that matched Hinds' D

Feliciano, a married father of two with close-cropped grey hair, a beard and glasses, kept his head lowered during most of the proceedings, as if taking not

A few parishioners were in attendance, and said the case had been devastating for the St. Patrick's community, where both Hinds and Feliciano were well-liked, respected church members.

Feliciano could face life in prison if convicted of murder. Defense attorneys are arguing for the lesser charge of passion provocation manslaughter.

Nebraska nuns sue contractor after mold outbreak

By Grant Schulte
Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. — A Christian sisterhood that spent $15 million to renovate their Nebraska monastery says the contractor they hired overcharged them and performed shoddy ventilation work that spawned a mold outbreak.

Missionary Benedictine Sisters Inc. in Norfolk filed a lawsuit in federal court in Lincoln this week against the Appleton, Wis.-based Hoffman, LLC.

According to the lawsuit, Hoffman agreed in their 2007 contract to complete the design, engineering and construction work by May 2010. The sisters moved out to make way for the renovations, but when they came back in 2009, they noticed problems with the ventilation. The system failed to dehumidify the air, which spawned "significant amounts" of mold throughout the monastery.

Consultants who examined the work also concluded that the heating, ventilation and cooling system installed was designed for much larger and differently shaped buildings, the sisters contend. In summer 2009, residents noticed other problems: defective flooring, insulation, bathroom vents, water heaters and other faulty work.

Hoffman "assumed a legal duty to perform such work in a professional manner, pursuant to the professional standards in the industry," the lawsuit states. "Defendant's failure to perform the work in a professional manner and in compliance with the professional standards of the industry constitutes professional negligence."

The renovations were intended to turn the monastery into a retreat center with classes, programs and workshops for people of different faiths.

The renovation money came from a $27.5 million payment the sisters received after they divested from Faith Regional Health Services in 2008. Another $10 million went to charity, and the remaining money went into the Missionary Benedictine Sisters retirement fund.

Missionary faces sex abuse charges in Belize

Associated Press

SOMERSET, Ky. — A Christian missionary from Kentucky has been jailed in Central America on charges he sexually abused three teenagers.

Bryan Sears, 35, is facing sex abuse charges in Belize. Sears is formerly a member of Victory Christian Fellowship.

The group released a statement that said Sears was charged on Oct. 8 in Sarteneja, Belize. The statement said the charges "concern sexual improprieties with minors." The group said Sears has been a missionary for seven years.

Victory Christian Fellowship senior pastor Mark Harrell said in a statement to the Commonwealth Journal in Somerset that the ministry was surprised at the allegations and they are grieving for the victims.

RELIGIONBRIEFS

FROM WIRE REPORTS

Muslim teen told she can't wear religious headscarf in JROTC parade

BRENTWOOD, Tenn. — A national Muslim civil rights group has filed a complaint with the Williamson County Schools after a freshman was told she could not march in the homecoming parade with her Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps class while wearing a religious headscarf.

Demin Zawity, 14, said she felt like crying when her commanding officers told her she couldn't wear the head covering with her uniform.

"They were making something that is not such a huge deal into something so dramatic," she said. "The next day was the parade, and I couldn't march."

Carol Birdsong, a school spokeswoman, said the district follows military regulations for the U.S. Army program.

Zawity's mother, Perishan Hussein, said she contacted the Council on American-Islamic Relations about her daughter's treatment.

"There are some Muslims who say she shouldn't be involved in this, and there will be Americans who say she needs to assimilate," Hussein said. "She's an American. I'm an American. She has a right to stand up for her rights."

Zawity has since quit the JROTC and returned to regular physical education classes, but she said she wants to make it easier for Muslim girls to participate in the future.

A New Jersey teen dropped out of the Naval Junior ROTC in 2003 over the same issue. Her school ultimately offered to exempt her from the uniform rules.

Congregation to leave Presbyterian Church USA over gay clergy ordination

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — A Sacramento church has voted to split from the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) over the national denomination's decision to ordain openly gay clergy.

After months of discussion, members of Fremont Presbyterian Church voted 427 to 164 last Sunday to join the more conservative Evangelical Presbyterian Church.

"Let me make it clear that Fremont didn't leave the PCUSA, they left us," said the Rev. Donald Baird, senior pastor.

Fremont, with weekly attendance of about 1,400, is the seventh Sacramento-area church to leave the mainline Presbyterian Church over doctrinal issues in the past few years.

About 800 Fremont congregants attended the meeting about the pros and cons of what is technically known as seeking "dismissal" from the mainline Presbyterian fold. Supporters of the separation argued that their denomination had drifted away from biblical teachings with its decision to allow gay ministers.

Scott Anderson became the denomination's first openly gay minister when he was reordained last week in Wisconsin. He served as a Presbyterian minister in Sacramento for seven years before he came out to his congregation and resigned in 1990.

"This is a day of rejoicing. It frees us from the controversy that has split the church," said Clair Parsh, a member for 50 years who favored leaving the denomination.

Cindy Harris, who is preparing to become a minister herself, resisted the change and wiped away tears after the vote.

"I think God can and will call whoever he wants to call, regardless of sex or orientation," she said, wiping away tears after the vote.

Diocese selling rectory, lot at parish whose sale Vatican blocked

BETHLEHEM, Pa. — A local diocese plans to sell the rectory and parking lot at a Roman Catholic parish even though the Vatican stopped the diocese from selling the church building itself.

Members of the congregation at St. Joseph's Church in Bethlehem said the planned sale would derail any chance of reopening the parish.

The Diocese of Allentown tried to sell the church but parishioners appealed to the Vatican, which blocked the sale. However, that decision didn't apply to the parking lot or rectory.

A spokesman for the diocese said the new consolidated parish has no need for the rectory or parking lot because the buildings aren't being used.

South African church leaders accuse ruling party of interfering in religious affairs

JOHANNESBURG — More than 20 churches representing tens of millions of South Africans have accused the governing African National Council of trying to co-opt and manipulate religious leaders.

Roman Catholic Cardinal Wildrid Napier told The Associated Press there is "direct interference by a political party in the affairs of the church." He referred to the head of the ANC's religious affairs desk sending subordinates to "infiltrate" a meeting Tuesday of the National Church Leaders' Consultation.

The church leaders warned Mathole Motshekga to "back off from church!" in a joint statement.

Motshekga could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Tensions have been brewing for two years over church leaders' criticisms of failures in education and health.

Two indicted in Arapahoe church arson

CHEYENNE, Wyo. — Two men have been indicted on federal arson charges in connection with the September fire that heavily damaged the Arapahoe Baptist Church on the Wind River Indian Reservation.

United States Attorney for Wyoming Christopher A. Crofts announced the indictment Tuesday against Norman Ybarra and Lamar Duran. Both defendants are members of the Northern Arapaho Tribe and live on the reservation.

The indictment also charges Ybarra and Duran with burglary, alleging they took items from the church. They also face an assault charge, alleging they attacked another person.

Crofts said the men are set to stand trial in December before U.S. District Judge Clarence A. Brimmer of Cheyenne. Crofts emphasized that the defendants are presumed innocent.

PARANORMAL ACTIVITY 3
Rated R
80 minutes

The most startling shot in "Paranormal Activity 3" is something even the film's determined unbelievers would concede to be damnably effective.

Suburban San Diego three-story home, 1988, in the middle of the VHS tape era. A homemade surveillance camera attached to an oscillating floor fan scans left, then right, and we see a mother (Lauren Bittner) of two girls (Chloe Csengery and Jessica Tyler Brown) walk out of the kitchen.

She is alone. The kitchen seems to be its usual self: each appliance and bowl and fork and spoon in its place.

A few seconds later she re-enters the same kitchen just as the video camera pivots to reveal that everything has disappeared. And then.

Modest, low-fi horror continues to find a friend in the cheapo but very shrewd "Paranormal Activity" franchise, which consists now of three films designed for single-use, one time consumption. But you know what? They work. Like its predecessors, the new "found footage" lark builds tension and dread slowly and sticks it to you just when you need something to happen.

Like the whining dolts in "The Blair Witch Project," the key character with the camera, a wedding videographer played by Christopher Nicholas Smith, finds reasons to film all his own worst experiences with the supernatural and the paranormal and the oogly-boogly. It's a ridiculous conceit getting slightly more ridiculous by the film. But I have been entertainingly spooked by the results each time. And since these films played a significant role in killing off (for now) their aesthetic opposite, the vicious-spirited and dreary "Saw" franchise, it's hard not to feel warmly toward the little ghost stories that could.

In this prequel, we get to know "Toby," the unseen demonic frenemy of pre-teen daughter Kristi (Brown). The cross-cutting between three surveillance camera set-ups in "Paranormal Activity 3" — one near the kitchen, one in the girls' bedroom upstairs, one in the adults' bedroom — is more aggressive than the rhythms in the first two. The directors Henry Joost and Ariel Schulman made the recent mystery-documentary "Catfish," and their weaselly fake-naturalism proves a fine fit for this project.

At Wednesday's screening, there was no reminder or interest in getting the audience members to turn off the cellphones. Tweeting about the movie during the movie was, in fact, encouraged. Paramount's social-media marketing strategy for the "Paranormals" has been a work of genius. The films are not works of genius. They are, however, wily reminders of the virtues of restraint when you're out for a scare.

"JOHNNY ENGLISH REBORN" — You probably weren't clamoring for a sequel to the 2003 British spy parody "Johnny English," which was far more successful overseas than it was in the United States. Still, here it is, again starring Rowan Atkinson. As the secret agent of the title, Johnny thinks he's as suave and resourceful as James Bond. Mostly, though, he bumbles his way from one situation to the next with the help of all the obligatory weapons and gadgets. Johnny is back at the agency, MI7, after a few years away with a bit of a stigma attached to him. Seems he massively messed up an assignment in Mozambique, and his new boss, Pegasus (Gillian Anderson), lets him know she won't tolerate those kinds of mistakes from him again. For his next job, Johnny must find out who is behind a plot to assassinate the Chinese premier. And even though he's been training in the remote mountains of Tibet all this time (in an admittedly amusing montage), Johnny still isn't quite up for the challenge. Director Oliver Parker's film relies on a lot of the same tired, repetitive spy spoofs as the "Austin Powers" movies, much of the same false confidence in the face of absurd danger. That any of this works, ever, is a testament to Atkinson's skills as a comedian. You can sense him slumming and straining but he's so gifted physically, he makes some pretty idiotic material more enjoyable than it should be. Rosamund Pike and Dominic West co-star. PG for mild action violence, rude humor, some language and brief sensuality. 101 minutes. One and a half stars out of four.

Rangers score 2 in the ninth to even series with Cardinals

Texas' Elvis Andrus slides into second base, beating the tag by St. Louis' Rafael Furcal on Thursday during the ninth inning of Game 2 of the World Series in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS — Josh Hamilton and the Texas hitters looked lost. They chased pitches that bounced, broke their bats and seemed totally overmatched.

Until the ninth inning, that is.

Down to their last three outs, and in danger of dropping into a serious World Series deficit, the Rangers rallied against St. Louis' vaunted bullpen.

Series tied 1-1

Hamilton and Michael Young lifted sacrifice flies in the ninth and Texas startled the Cardinals 2-1 on Thursday night to even the Series at 1-all.

"It wasn't a Series-saving rally, but it was huge," said Ian Kinsler, whose single and steal set up the comeback.

In a city excited by a Rally Squirrel, it was Groundhog Day — almost.

For the second straight night, Cardinals pinch-hitter Allen Craig greeted reliever Alexi Ogando with a go-ahead single. This time, Craig did it the seventh. In Game 1, his hit in the sixth sent the Cards to a 3-2 win.

Said Cardinals manager Tony La Russa: "It was almost a great story for us, turned out to be a greater one for them."

Now, after a travel day, Texas will host Game 3 on Saturday night. Matt Harrison is set to start for the Rangers against Kyle Lohse.

"It would have been hard," Hamilton said of possibly facing being 0-2. "We would have been comfortable going back to our place, having three games. They're just like we are, never say die, til the last out is made. It makes it fun."

Texas has not lost two straight games since Aug. 23-25. They sure waited a while to save themselves on this night that began as duel between starters Colby Lewis and the Cardinals' Jaime Garcia.

Kinsler opened the ninth with a bloop single against closer Jason Motte. Next up was Elvis Andrus, whose tremendous play at shortstop kept the game scoreless much earlier. Kinsler, though, wasn't about to wait — he stole second, sliding in just ahead of Yadier Molina's excellent throw.

Andrus followed with a single to center, sending Kinsler to third. And when the relay throw got away for a moment, Andrus scampered to second.

La Russa, who's been making all the right moves this October, brought in lefty Arthur Rhodes to face Hamilton. But the slumping slugger, Lee's Travis Williams makes his way through a big hole produced by the offensive line against the Amarillo High defense during a Sept. 16 game at Grande Communications Stadium.

Lee offensive line the catalyst for the Rebels' big offensive numbers

By Jordan Mason
Sports Writer

Lee's offensive line has received nothing but praise from quarterback Talor Nunez and running back Travis Williams this season.

That'd be nice if Nunez and Williams were coaches.

But players aren't quite as demanding as offensive line coach Damon Rodgers.

Rodgers isn't afraid to admit that he gets after his unit, but it's only because of the expectations he has for it.

"The goal is for all of them to be perfect on every play," Rodgers said. "When we get that done, we'll be happy.

"Until then, we've still got a lot of work to do."

That demand for perfection has been a theme for the Lee offensive line this season — that and punishing opposing defenses.

Thanks to a unit that never played a down of varsity football before this season, Lee is averaging 259.9 rushing yards per game, good for second in the district, heading into a 3-5A showdown with Odessa Permian at 7:30 p.m. today at Grande Communications Stadium.

And while players and coaches have been impressed with the unit at times, Rodgers and the offensive line are still pushing to improve in any way they can.

"There are several times where they are pushing my expectations higher and higher," Rodgers said. "Of course, there's times where they're not meeting expectations.

"We can be tremendously better. We're never happy, and they're never really happy either."

In fact, no one may be harder on the unit than the players themselves.

Even after getting great push and rushing for 219 yards against Abilene High, players were still looking for ways to improve that might've changed the final on the scoreboard — a 49-34 loss for the Rebels.

"The offense did well, but I know I could've done better on some of my blocks," senior Hunter Harvey said. "It just felt like some of the blame should've went on us."

Yet players such as Harvey are the reason Lee has been able to have success this year as a power-running team.

Harvey and fellow seniors Xavier Torres and Richard Rodriguez, along with juniors Henry Williamson, Chris Lara, Blake Long and Jesse Garza have all contributed on the offensive line this season, giving Lee a nice boost in depth and size, as Williamson, Lara and Garza all weigh in at 280-plus pounds.

And that doesn't even include 5-11, 318 pound Nathan Horrell, who began the season on the offensive line before moving to defensive tackle, and senior Matthew Brem, a tight end who happily spends most of his time as Lee's sixth lineman.

"I love it," Brem said. "I get to block everybody just the same as they do."

Brem's willingness to work seems to characterize the group.

"They're a hard, hard working bunch of kids," head coach James Morton said. "Not a lazy step in them, they work all the time and really want to do well."

That's probably for the best because Lee relies heavily on its guys up front.

LBs keeping Greenwood together during tough season

By Oscar LeRoy

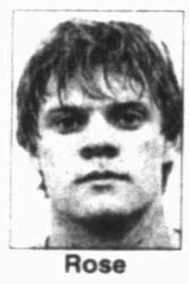
It says a lot when three of Greenwood's four regular linebackers are also senior team captains.

That means that the players on this unit not only get a lot of respect from their teammates, but the Ranger coaches also look at them for leadership during a football game.

Tonight their guidance and leadership will be counted on a lot to help the Rangers (4-3, 0-1 in District 4-3A) in a key district game at Monahans (6-2, 1-1) and the Loboes' vaunted Wing-T offense.

Greenwood coach Shad Hanna considers senior weakside linebacker Jacob Armitage, senior strongside linebacker Hunter Rose and senior Tony Navarez and sophomore Brandon Brown, who both split time at middle linebacker, as the leaders of the defense.



Rose

Brown

"They've got to do a good job of leading and keeping their heads up," Hanna said. "If something bad happens, they've got to rally everybody and get everybody's heads up. They also work hard and are very coachable group of kids."

Just by looking at the defensive statistics it's also easy to see that the linebackers are some of the most productive players. Armitage leads the team with 59 tackles. Navarez is third on the team with 49 tackles. Rose is fifth with 46 tackles, while Brown had added 19 tackles and Hanna said he is one of the team's most vicious hitters.

Rose said their closeness helps them be as productive as they are.

"We've all grown up playing with each other, we all support each other and we all work well together," he said. "Also, three of the four linebackers are team captains, we're all strong linebackers and very close."

Added Brown, "We've done great because we communicate well. It's like a brotherhood."

The Ranger linebackers will be counted on to help contain a Monahans rushing attack that is averaging 278.1 yards per game. And there's no question that the

Bulldogs trying to avoid 0-3 district start

By Jonathan Hull

Unexpectedly starting the District 3-5A season 0-2 is bad enough for Midland High. Dropping to 0-3? That's unacceptable.

But that's the serious threat the Bulldogs will be attempting to avoid today when they face what many consider to be the elite team of the district in Abilene High at 7:30 p.m. at Shotwell Stadium.

Midland High was a team that came into the season with aspirations of a second straight 3-5A title, but now finds itself in danger of being on the outside looking in on the postseason picture. With three games to play, the Bulldogs need to win out for the rest of the season if they want to completely ensure being in the playoffs. That's quite a tall order considering they face crosstown rival Lee and then head back to Abilene to play Cooper after this week's matchup against Abilene High.

But while they're facing an uphill battle, Bulldogs coach Craig Yenzer says they're taking it one step at a time.

"In my experience there's two things we have to do," Yenzer said. "No. 1, we have to take this one game at a time. We're in must-win situations. I'm not going to worry about next week or two weeks down the line. We have to put our best foot forward this week, regain some of our confidence and that only happens on the field.

"No. 2, I can't control what Abilene Cooper is going to do. We can't control what Lee is going to do. We have to pull everything back in and take care of our business. We're going to do what we can do and let the chips fall as they may."

Trinity sweeps its way into state semifinal

From staff reports

ARLINGTON — Trinity earned a trip to the TCAF state semifinals in impressive fashion Thursday, sweeping Christian Life Prep 25-8, 25-15, 25-8.

"I thought it went really well, I thought our girls were ready," Trinity coach Ann Stroup said. "It was a slow-paced game, slower than we're used to, but we served well, passed well."

Trinity had 17 aces in the match, allowing it to run away with the win.

Olivia Fryt had a team-high six aces while Sarah Heck had five along with a team-high 17 assists.

Maddie Farrish led the team in kills with seven and Ashley Stroup chipped in five kills and three aces.

Notes: For the second time during the district season, the Lady Bulldogs will have to rebound from a loss and this time it was a five-game loss to their crosstown rivals. Midland High lost a tight first game against the Lady Rebels on Tuesday, but could never seem to gain much momentum during the match. "You can't afford to have several girls off their game," Midland High coach Terri McColloch said. "Lee played very well, and I thought they passed the ball very well to get their offense going. I just think that we didn't play and they took advantage of it." Midland High has punched its playoff ticket but still needs wins in its final two games to keep its district championship hopes alive. Midland High won in four games against Abilene High at home on Sept. 20, and now it will take on the Lady Eagles, who are desparately trying to stay in the playoff chase. The Lady Eagles lost a five-game match to San Angelo Central on Tuesday and now they are tied for fifth spot, one spot behind fourth-place Lee. Prior to Tuesday's loss, Abilene High had won two straight matches.

Last meeting/series: Monahans defeated Greenwood 54-6 last year and has won the last two meetings to even the overall series 6-6.

Players to watch: Greenwood, QB Kam Williams (6-3, 190,Jr.), RB/LB Tony Navarez (5-11, 180, Sr.), RB/LB Hunter Rose (5-10, 175, Sr.), WR/LB Jacob Armitage (6-4, 195, Sr.); Monahans, RB Pedro Cano (5-8, 170, Sr.), RB/DB Byron Scharf (6-0, 190, Sr.), TE/LB Blake Heflin (6-0, 180, Sr.), QB Zack Navarro (5-10, 175, Jr.)

Key injuries: None reported for either team

Weather forecast: Highs in the low 90s with lows in the low 50s

Of note

■ Greenwood is coming off a bye week and coach Shad Hanna said it was a great thing for his team to heal up some bumps and bruises and get refreshed for the stretch run.

The Rangers also remain healthy, which is a big difference from last year when they were constantly dealing with injuries in a 4-6 season.

■ Like Monahans, the Rangers are coming off a blowout loss to Seminole as the Indians outgained them 516-295.

Williams led the Rangers with 156 yards rushing and two touchdowns on 16 carries, but was just 11-of-24 passing for 55 yards and one interception.

■ Monahans didn't fare much better against Seminole as the Loboes were outgained 489-286 and were held to only 79 passing yards.

The only touchdown Monahans had in the game came at the end of the third quarter when the game was very much in hand.

"We took a lump last week," Monahans coach Mickey Owens said. "We tell the kids that you can't hang on to a loss the same way you can't hang on to a win. But the kids are resilient and ready to go to work. Our playoffs just start a little earlier with one loss in district. We got beat by a real good football team. We did cause some of that with mistakes and penalties, but there was no question that Seminole was the best team on the field that night. (Tonight) we get to see what kind of character we have as a football team."

■ Hanna said that along with the Loboes' running game, their size and defensive front concern him.

"My biggest concern is that they're Monahans," Hanna said. "Overall we have to play a great game in order to win."

■ Hanna is a 1990 graduate of Monahans and his dad, Larry, was the Loboes coach for several years, so this will be a homecoming for him. This will also be the first time Hanna will be the opposing coach at Estes Memorial Stadium.

"That's the first time I've coached there since I left in 2002," said Hanna, a former Loboes assistant coach. "It's an exciting feeling. I have a lot of respect for Coach Owens and he was there when I was in high school and I've coached with a lot of those assistants. It's an honor to be in that game and a great opportunity for my football team. There are a lot of emotions for me."

Hanna added that both his parents and his wife's family still live in Monahans and expected them to be dressed in Ranger blue.

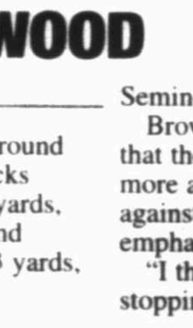
GREENWOOD

From 1C

offense revolves around senior running backs Pedro Cano (961 yards, 10 touchdowns) and Byron Scharf (723 yards, 8 TDs).

"That's been our most consistent part of our offense," said Monahans coach Mickey Owens about his team's running game. "(Cano and Scharf) have been big this year. They've had some bumps and bruises along the way but that's part of being a running back. They've been our workhorses all year."



Navarez

Armitage

Armitage said Monahans is a good team but the Rangers feel good about their game plan.

"The key is definitely stopping their run because they're very run heavy," Armitage said. "We need to execute on defense and execute on offense as well. I feel good about our run defense. We felt we did a good job against Seminole. This year they've been run heavy and we stopped them for the most part, so we're pretty confident with our run defense. I also feel like our secondary has improved a lot since Seminole."

Brown also believes that the Rangers are more adept at going against a team that emphasizes the run.

"I think we're better at stopping the running game because we're fast, we swarm to the football and we gang tackle," he said. "We're going to hit 'em."

The Rangers are also well aware that this is a big game as far as having a shot at a postseason. With both teams coming off blowout losses to Seminole, it's going to be important for both teams to have a bounce-back game tonight.

"After the Seminole game, you definitely don't want to start district with a loss.

Armitage said. "To help things get rolling and start winning our hopes are to win out and go into the playoffs with some momentum."

Added Brown, "It's a big game. It sets the tone for the rest of the season and us getting into the playoffs. I think we're ready, we know what we have to do. "

Hennum's hat trick leads Jackalopes past New Mexico

From staff reports

ODESSA — Odessa's Chad Hennum recorded a hat trick, including scoring two goals in the second period, to help the Jackalopes to a convincing 6-1 victory against New Mexico on Thursday at the Ector County Coliseum.

The Jacks (5-5-2) used a five-goal scoring barrage in the second period to break open the game. Hennum scored the game's first two goals early in the second period as his first goal came off assists from Jalen Kogman and Willie Faust, and his second goal came with helpers from Alex Ostrowski and Matthew Williams.

Faust, Sheldon Taylor and Darren Lapic completed the big second period for Odessa. Hennum then scored his third goal less than a minute into the third period off assists from Krogman and Docken.

Odessa goaltender Connor Hellebuyck stopped 31 of 32 shots.

Odessa will take today off and finish this week's homestand with a game against South Division leader Amarillo (8-1-2) at 7:05 p.m. Saturday at the Ector County Coliseum.

Crane native Brents named coach of Roughnecks

From staff reports

Brian Brents is returning to the West Texas Roughnecks as head coach, which the team announced Thursday.

Brents helped the Roughnecks to an undefeated regular season in 2005 as the offensive coordinator.

The Crane native's last head coaching job was with the El Paso Generals of the Indoor Football League in 2009.

Brents was successful with El Paso, coaching the Generals to a 12-2 regular season record and a Lone Star Division Championship. Brents was named Indoor Football League Coach of the Year that season, as his team made it to the conference championship game.

Brents played receiver at Abilene Christian University before completing his degree at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

He currently coaches at Bowie Junior High School in Odessa.

MC'S CHARLES GETS SCHOLARSHIP

Midland College's first-year assistant volleyball coach Jennifer Charles was recently selected to receive a 2011 AVCA Minority Coaches Scholarship.

Charles is one of 12 recipients for the scholarship award from the American Volleyball Coaches Association.The 12 recipients will have the opportunity to participate in the ninth professional coaching workshop for minority women to be held in conjunction with the 2011 AVCA Annual Convention in San Antonio Dec. 15-17.

Eligible attendees must be minority women who aspire to become a head or assistant volleyball coach at an NCAA member institution. The grant will cover airfare and hotel expenses for first-time workshop attendees up to $800. Additionally grant money will be used to cover the costs of convention registration for each of the 12 award recipients.

MC'S CVORIC HONORED BY NJCAA

The NJCAA recently selected Midland College freshman outside hitter Dragana Cvoric as its Division I Volleyball Player for the week of Oct. 10-16.

Cvoric, a 6-foot product from Guca, Serbia, recorded double-doubles in kills and digs in Western Junior College Athletic Conference matches against Western Texas College (Oct. 12) and Frank Phillips College (Oct.15) both wins for Midland College. Cvoric recorded 15 kills and 22 digs versus Western Texas College, and 17 kills and 20 digs against Frank Phillips College.

ST. EDWARD'S TOO MUCH FOR UTPB VOLLEYBALLERS

AUSTIN — League-leading St. Edward's snapped The University of Texas of the Permian Basin's three-match winning streak with a 3-1 (25-13, 25-19, 22-25, 25-16) victory over the Falcons. The Hilltoppers used the one-two punch of Whitney Rhoden and Courtney Trevino, who combined for 31 of St. Edward's 50 kills in the win.

The Hilltoppers, who improved to 10-0 in Heartland Conference play, didn't have another player with more than seven kills in the contest, but had four players with 10-or-more digs defensively.

Heather Sanchez led the way offensively for the Falcons with 12 kills, while Rodell had nine. UTPB fell to 14-13 overall and 5-5 in Heartland Conference play. It will remain on the road this weekend when the Falcons take on Dallas Baptist on Saturday at noon in Dallas.

Each individual's tax situation is unique. Therefore, please consult your tax professional to confirm vehicle depreciation deduction and tax benefits. For more details, visit irs.gov or to calculate your bonus depreciation, visit depreciationbonus.org

[1] The program pertains to vehicles placed in service in the United States during 2011, with no written binding contract for acquisition in effect before 2011. Vehicles must be used for business at least 50% of the time. Depreciation limits reduce by every amount of personal use less than 100%. [2] Each individual's tax situation is unique. Therefore please consult your tax professional to confirm vehicle depreciation and tax benefits. Consult your own tax advisor prior to placing any order. [3] IRC Section 179(b)(1)(B) requires that the limitation under IRC Section 179(b)(1), or vehicles primarily "used" on the CPI automobile component for vehicles of the preceding year. IN REVENUE Procedure 2010-18, the IRS calculated the Section 280F depreciation limit to $3,060 for passenger automobiles placed in service during 2010, which are not subject to the Section 179(b) election to deduct the bonus depreciation and 280F depreciation limit. The applicable first-year depreciation limits have been temporarily increased by $8,000. These amounts are subject to CPI adjustment for 2011.

Additional limitation based on purchase[4]: For the 2011 tax year, the aggregate deduction of $500,000 under Internal Revenue Code Section 179 is most beneficial to small businesses that place in service no more than $2,000,000 of "Section 179 Property" during the year. For every dollar spent on Section 179 property in excess of $2,000,000, the $500,000 tax deduction decreases by a dollar. Certain vehicles have additional limitations and restrictions apply. Passenger trucks that cost less than 14,000 pounds behind the driver's seat will have a limit of $25,000. Vans that seat less than 9 people behind the driver's seat and Cargo Vans will have a $000,000 aggregate limit under Section 179 on the amount of first year deduction. Consult your tax professional for more details.

FROM STAFF REPORTS

ABILENE COOPER AT ODESSA HIGH

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Ratliff Stadium

On the air: KHKX 99.1 FM

Records: Cooper 5-2, 2-0 in District 3-5A; Odessa High 2-5, 1-1

Last game: Cooper 55, Odessa Permian 35; Odessa High 31, Midland High 24

Last meeting/series: Cooper 45, Odessa High 8 (2010); Cooper leads all-time series 30-15-2

Players to watch: Cooper, QB Clayton Nicholas (6-3, 205, Sr.), DE Garrison Railsback (6-2, 225, Sr.), S Josh Bowman (6-1, 180, Sr.), OL Darrell Brown (6-5, 255, Sr.) RB Matt Watson (5-9, 170, Sr.), Odessa High, QB Johnny Campos (5-6, 145, Sr.), RB Ivan Subia (5-8, 197, Sr.), C Ben Cline (5-10, 257, Sr), OG Hugo Sanchez (5-10, 233, Sr), DB Austin Tavarez (Jr.)

Injury report: None reported

Notes & Quotes: Odessa High pulled the biggest upset of the District 3-5A season with last week's victory against Midland High. The Bronchos aren't focusing on the win, though. They only want to show they're capable of making winning a weekly occurrence. It's going to help us, but like I told the kids it's one game we still have three to go," Odessa High coach Ron King said. "People are going to say it was a fluke and that's the challenge ... to prove that it wasn't a fluke and that we're capable of playing that brand of football." ... King is impressed with Cooper's offense, but its the running game that has his attention. Everyone knows what kind of player senior QB Clayton Nicholas is capable of being, but to see Cooper rush for 190 yards, including 127 from senior RB Matt Watson, is alarming to King. "They were able to get the running game going which isn't good news for the rest of the district," King said. "Defensively, we have to be able to get in position to make the play. Offensively, we have to be able to move the ball (to keep their offense off the field)." ... With Odessa High coming off its best rushing performance of the season, Abilene Cooper coach Todd Moebes said the Cougars are obviously going to be challenged with stopping the dual threat of QB Johnny Campos and RB Ivan Subia in the backfield. "They put a lot of pressure on you defensively," Moebes said. "Campos and Subia both make plays and they execute well." ... This is the 48th all-time meeting between Cooper and Odessa High with the Cougars holding twice as many victories in the series. Cooper has won the last two meetings, including a dominant 45-8 win last season.

Next: Abilene Cooper vs. Abilene High, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28, Shotwell Stadium; Odessa High vs. Odessa Permian, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28, Ratliff Stadium.

ABILENE WYLIE AT BIG SPRING

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Memorial Stadium, Big Spring

On the air: KBST (95.7 FM), Big Spring

Records: Big Spring 0-8, 0-2 in District 5-3A; Abilene Wylie 4-3, 1-0

Last game: Sweetwater 28, Big Spring 6; Abilene Wylie 20, Sweetwater 15 (Oct. 7)

Players to watch: Big Spring, QB Garrett Stuteville (6-1, 185, Sr.), OG/DT Chris Nunez (6-3, 260, Jr.), TE/LB Mario Pappajohn (5-10, 180, Jr.); Abilene Wylie, QB Matt McLeod (6-2, 190, Sr.), WR/DB Richard Bloomer (6-5, 190, Sr.), TB/DB Garrett Martin (5-9, 165, Jr.)

Notes & Quotes: Big Spring needs to win out in order to have a shot at the postseason. ... The Steers are coming off another loss in which they played a close first half before seeing the opponent pull away in the second half. Sweetwater only led 7-0 at the half and the Steers were only outgained 281-262 for the game. Devin Roberson started the game at QB before giving way to Stuteville, who finished with 119 yards passing and a touchdown to Toby Rodgers. Rodgers finished with five receptions for 110 yards. ... Wylie is coming off a bye, but defeated Sweetwater two weeks ago as the Bulldogs came back from a 9-7 halftime deficit. ... Wylie has shown the ability to mix it up on offense as McLeod has passed for 1,184 yards, 10 touchdowns and only three interceptions. Martin is Wylie's leading rusher with 537 yards and three TDs. ... Big Spring coach Phillip Ritchey said Wylie not only has talent but is bigger and deeper than his team. "They're going to make us look real small," Ritchey said. Ritchey added that it's going to be important his team lines up correctly on both sides of the ball.

Junior RB/S Michael Vanderbilt may not play tonight after suffering a left elbow injury last week. Abilene Wylie defeated Big Spring 40-29 last year.

Next: Big Spring at Snyder, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 4; Snyder at Abilene Wylie, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28

SEMINOLE AT ANDREWS

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Mustang Bowl, Andrews

On the air: KACT (105.5 FM, 1360 AM), Andrews

Records: Andrews 5-2, 1-0 in District 4-3A; Seminole 7-1, 2-0

Last game: Andrews 23, Fort Stockton 16; Seminole 41, Monahans 7

Players to watch: Andrews, QB Shane Doigener (6-3, 165, Soph.), RB/DB Joey Prieto (5-8, 150, Jr.), K/P Jake Higgs (6-0, 165, Sr.), Seminole, QB Jacob Burtch (6-1, 182, Jr.), WR/DB Jarod Adams (5-9, 169, Sr.), WR Caleb Koedyker (6-0, 165, Sr.) RB/LB Juan Espino (5-9, 178, Sr.)

Notes & Quotes: To add to the rivalry, both teams come in with unbeaten records in District 4-3A. ... Andrews had to come from behind in its game against Fort Stockton as the Panthers had a 16-7 halftime lead. But after a challenge from head coach Jeff Cordell in the locker room, the Mustangs rallied for 16 points in the final quarter and forced a key fumble when the Panthers were driving for a possible go-ahead score late in the game. Doigener was big again for the Mustangs as he scored all three touchdowns and had 102 yards rushing and 206 yards passing. ... The Indians had one of their best overall games of the season against district power Monahans. The Indians' offense not only had 489 yards but the defense held the Loboes to 286 total yards and picked off two passes. Burtch threw for 315 yards and two touchdowns and also had 92 yards rushing and two more TDs on just seven carries. ... Cordell said it's hard to find a weakness in Seminole. "They're solid in all facets of the game and then you talk about Adams, Koedyker and the Burtch kid, they have so many weapons," Cordell said. "Then you can talk about their defense. Monahans was rocking and rolling and the Seminole defense almost pitches a shutout." Cordell said it's going to be important his team take care of the ball and finish drives on offense. He added the Mustangs also have to avoid giving up the big play. Andrews defeated Seminole 28-21 last year.

Next: Andrews at Greenwood, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28. Fort Stockton at Seminole, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28

POST AT STANTON

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Buffalo Stadium, Stanton

Records: Stanton 2-5, 0-3 in District 2-2A, Division II; Post 1-7, 1-3

Last game: Hawley 33, Stanton 14; Idalou 46, Post 0

Players to watch: Stanton, WR/DB Andres Chavez (5-6, 145, Jr.), TE/DE Ethan Mauldin (6-3, 160, Sr.), RB/LB Tim Anderson (5-10, 150, Soph.); Post, RB Vance Blair (5-7, 150, Jr.), TE/LB Jacob Perez (6-2, 200, Sr.), RB DJ Brown (5-6, 140, Soph.)

Notes & Quotes: With Stanton falling into a 0-3 hole in district play, the Buffaloes now must win out in order to have a shot at making the playoffs. ... A bad first half by the Buffaloes was their demise against Hawley, which scored all of its points during that time. Stanton tried to rally with 14 points in the third quarter but the deficit proved to be too much to overcome. Stanton coach John Peterson said he was surprised with the way his team failed to show up in the first half as the Buffs had some good practices and a good pregame. The Buffaloes turned the ball over five times in the game, but four of those came on interceptions when the they were attempting to come back. ... Post was also never in its game against Idalou as the Wildcats jumped out to a 21-0 lead in the first quarter and held the Antelopes to 138 total yards.

Peterson said it's going to be important for his team to have a sense of urgency and a much better start tonight. Peterson added that Post's record doesn't indicate how good of a team it really is. Stanton defeated Post 17-6 last year.

ANSON AT COAHOMA

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Bulldog Stadium, Coahoma

On the air: KBST (1490 AM), Big Spring

Records: Coahoma 5-3, 4-0 in District 2-2A, Division II; Anson 0-7, 0-3

Last game: Coahoma 23, Forsan 22; Forsan 28, Anson 20 (Oct. 7)

Players to watch: Coahoma, QB Tanner Ruiz (5-9, 165, Jr.), FB/LB Justin Coker (5-8, 160, Sr.), RB/DB Aaron Acevedo (5-7, 150, Jr.), Anson, QB/DB Christian Garcia (5-10, 165, Sr.), RB/LB Kasey Norman (6-0, 175, Sr.), RB/DB Tyler Jimenez (5-9, 165, Jr.)

Notes & Quotes: Coahoma looks to remain unbeaten in district play tonight. ... The Bulldogs are coming off a nail-biting victory against rival Forsan as they came back from a 13-8 halftime deficit. The offense was led by Ruiz, who was 4-of-7 passing for 136 yards and two touchdowns to Acevedo, who finished with three catches for 114 yards. Coahoma's defense also made some big stops, especially late in the game to preserve the win. ... With the victory, the Bulldogs guaranteed themselves a spot in the playoffs.

Anson has struggled this season but Coahoma coach Trey Gardner said the Tigers are capable of hanging with teams as shown in their loss to Forsan two weeks ago. Against Forsan, Garcia had 215 yards rushing to go with 114 yards passing. "They're the best 0-7 team in the state," Gardner said. "By no means are we looking past those guys. Their quarterback is a lot like our quarterback in the sense that if you give him a little room to run, he'll run right down that alley." ... Health-wise, Gardner said Acevedo is still nursing his left elbow injury, while Ruiz suffered a cramp last week but should be good for this week. ... Coahoma defeated Anson 41-7 last year.

MIDLAND CHRISTIAN AT ARLINGTON PANTEGO CHRISTIAN

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Pantego Christian Stadium, Arlington

On the web: www.midland-school.org

Records: Midland Christian 5-2, 2-0 in TAPPS D-II, District 1; Arlington Pantego 4-3, 1-1

Last game: Midland Christian 62, Grapevine Faith 7; Fort Worth Christian 35, Arlington Pantego 20

Players to watch: Midland Christian, RB/DB Christian Whigham (5-10, 170, Jr.), RB/LB Tanner Dobbs (5-7, 170, Sr.), OL/DL Payton Ray (6-2, 219, Sr.); Arlington Pantego, RB-DB Jonathan Venable (5-9, 185, Sr.), QB-LB Ryan Reese (6-0, 180, Jr.).

Notes & Quotes: The Mustangs have had a big start to the TAPPS Division II, District 1 season by shutting out Fort Worth Christian, and then following with a blowout against Grapevine Faith Christian. Midland Christian allowed seven points in the two games and have recently been playing stifling defense. MCS gave up 161 total yards to the Lions last week, and it marked the second straight week the Mustangs have held an opponent to less than 200 total yards. ... The Mustangs can move one step closer to the playoffs with a victory tonight as four teams will qualify for the postseason out of the district. ... Pantego Christian held a 14-7 lead at halftime against Fort Worth Christian, but the Cardinals outscored the Panthers 28-6 in the second half to clinch the victory. ... Pantego's Venable has rushed for 876 yards this season with 11 touchdowns. ... Mustangs running back Christian Whigham has not been playing defense the last two weeks as he's been nursing a hip bruise on one of his legs. That hasn't seemed to slow him down on offense, though, as Whigham recorded his seventh straight 100-yard game last week and has eclipsed the 1,000-yard barrier this season with 1,136 yards and scored a team-high 18 rushing touchdowns.

GRADY AT NO. 8 SANDS

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Mustang Field, Ackerly

Records: Grady 2-5, 0-1 in Six-Man D-I, District 5; Sands 7-1, 2-0

Last game: O'Donnell 72, Grady 36 on Oct. 7; Sands 82, O'Donnell 46

Players to watch: Grady, RB/S E.J. Rodriguez (5-7, 170, Fr.), FB/NG Zeke Clay (5-2, 195, Sr.), RB/LB Zach Seiffert (5-6, 145, Jr.); Sands, DE Michael Gomez (6-0, 195, Sr.), RB Hayden Ware (5-10, 180, Sr.), QB Albert Ybarra (5-8, 150, Sr.)

Notes & Quotes: The Wildcats face a must-win situation tonight if they want to stay in the race for one of the two playoff spots in District 7. Grady began district two weeks ago and suffered a loss to O'Donnell, and now they will play a Sands team that has won its two district games handily. "They are definitely a good team, and one of the better ones in the west," Grady coach Brad Cox said. ... Sands opened district play with a 50-33 victory against Klondike on Oct. 7 and then followed with last week's victory against O'Donnell. Sands' lone loss this season came in a non-district contest against Water Valley on Sept. 23.

GARDEN CITY AT FORT DAVIS

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Bart Coan Field, Fort Davis

Records: Garden City 4-3, 0-0 in Six-Man D-I, District 7; Fort Davis 5-1, 0-0

Last game: Borden County 60, Garden City 44 on Oct. 7; Throckmorton 104, Fort Davis 82 on Oct. 7

Players to watch: Garden City, QB/S Blayne Batla (6-0, 165, Sr.), RB/LB Reggie Halfmann (6-0, 180, Sr.); Fort Davis, RB/LB Francisco Perez (5-9, 160, Sr.), RB/S Steve Enriquez (5-7, 145, Sr.)

Notes & Quotes: This is the biggest game of the two in District 7 this week and the loser of this game will have some work to do the rest of the season. ... Garden City had last week off after falling to No. 4 Borden County in a non-district game on Oct. 7. That loss broke a four-game winning streak for the Bearkats, who opened the season with an 0-2 mark. ... Fort Davis has been rolling up the points this season, even in its one loss. The Indians have averaged 80.6 points a game this season, which includes eclipsing the 80-point barrier three times and the 100-point mark once in their wild victory against Trinity. ... The Indians have non-district victories against Robert Lee, Fort Hancock, Highland, Trinity and El Paso Immanuel. ... Garden City beat Fort Davis 66-39 in 2010.

SIERRA BLANCA AT NO. 6 RANKIN

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Red Devil Stadium, Rankin

Records: Rankin 5-2, 0-0 in Six-Man D-I, District 7; Sierra Blanca 2-5, 0-0

Last game: Water Valley 38, Rankin 32 on Oct. 7; El Paso Faith 70, Sierra Blanca 28

Players to watch: Rankin, E Ty Self (6-3, 185, Sr.), QB Dalton Michum (5-10, 175, Jr.), RB Ryan Thomas (5-9, 190, Jr.); Sierra Blanca, QB/LB Lance Rose (Sr.), WB/DB Stetan Ross (Sr.)

Notes & Quotes: The Red Devils had a bye last week and coach Shannon Williams said it was a chance for his squad to get "their legs back under them." Rankin heads into today's district opener against the Vaqueros having lost two straight games to Ira and Water Valley — both of which are ranked in sixmanfootball.com's top 10 in Division I. "Coming from those two losses we feel like it was the best thing for the kids to get them settled back down and let them know it's not the end of the world," Williams said. ... Prior to those two losses, the Red Devils have won five straight games. ... Sierra Blanca has played a non-district schedule that has been filled with private schools as they have played El Paso Faith twice, Trinity, El Paso Immanuel and also a home school team from El Paso. The Vaqueros two victories have come against El Paso Faith and the home school team. ... The Red Devils will be without Lane Stone for the rest of the season as he was diagnosed with a cracked vertebrae in his neck. Stone suffered the injury two weeks ago and will be in a neck brace for five weeks.

ANTON AT TRINITY

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Coombes Field

Records: Trinity 5-3; Anton 4-3

Last game: Trinity 64, El Paso Immanuel 16; Paducah 64, Anton 58

Players to watch: Trinity, QB/DB Thomas Schorr (5-11, 155, Sr.), RB/DB Alex Young (5-10, 170, Sr.), OL/DL Jackson Wingham (6-0, 160, Sr.); Anton, RB-LB Carlos Rubio (5-9, Sr.), WR-DB Zack Sherrod (5-6, Sr.)

Notes & Quotes: The Chargers finish the regular season taking on Six-Man independent Anton. Trinity picked up a key victory last week as it beat district rival El Paso Immanuel on the road to clinch at least one home playoff game in the Texas Christian Athletic Fellowship Division I playoffs. Trinity had 341 total yards with 302 coming on the ground in two quarters. Alex Young rushed for 245 yards and scored five touchdowns. Young also had a kickoff return for a touchdown. ... Jauz said that Anton is a solid team that has the ability to run the ball well and can throw, too. Because the Bulldogs are an independent, they have been playing an "outlaw" schedule this season. Anton has victories against Amarillo Holy Cross, Lefors, Lorenzo and the Petersburg JV. ... Trinity will have next week off and then will likely host its TCAF Division I first round playoff game on the weekend of Nov. 5-6 at Coombes Stadium.

LEE NOTEBOOK

ODESSA PERMIAN AT LEE

When/where: 7:30 p.m. today, Grande Communications Stadium

On the air: KCRS 550 AM; KMCM 96.9 FM, Odessa

Live updates: www.mywesttexas.com/football

Records: Permian 4-3, 1-1 in District 3-5A; Lee 5-2, 0-2 in District 3-5A

Last game: Abilene Cooper 55, Permian 35; Abilene High 49, Lee 34.

Last meeting/series: Lee 20, Permian 13 on Oct. 22, 2010; Permian leads all-time series 34-21-1.

Key injuries: Lee, LB Talmage Cockerell (ankle - probable), RB Jason McAfee (ankle - probable), DL Michael Morales (knee — out); Permian, HI Nestor Castellon (ankle — out)

Weather forecast: Clear skies with nightfall by game time. Temperatures in the high-70s at game time are expected fall to low-70s by the end of the game with no chance of rain.

SCOUTING THE PANTHERS

Coach: Gary Gaines (62-20-1 at Permian)

Players to watch: QB Kacey Ryan (6-2, 181, Sr.), QB Jack Wilkins (5-9, 183, Jr.), RB Jorrion Wilson (5-11, 175, Jr.), WR Van Powell (5-11, 160, Sr.), LB Tanner Vestal (6-1, 193, Jr.), DB Clay Adams (6-0, 170, Jr.)

What to expect on offense: Permian is multiple in its formations but operates primarily out of the spread. Whatever formation Permian lines up in, they do it fast, often operating without a huddle. Ryan has generally started under center with Wilkins eventually seeing action as well. Wilkins has the most rushing touchdowns but the two have similar skill sets as evidenced by the fact that both have seven passing touchdowns and two interceptions. Gaines believes in the ability of both and has no formula for when one enters the game. Whoever is in the game has a big-play receiver in Powell to throw to and the leading rusher in 3-5A, Wilson, behind him. Wilson has rushed for 100 yards in all but one game this season and in many ways is the key to the Permian offense. Gaines preaches balance on offense and the junior standout Wilson is a big part of that. Permian will miss do-everything H-back Castellon, likely lost for the season against Abilene Cooper, who was tied for third on the team in receptions.

What to expect on defense: The Panthers use multiple formations defensively and have vacillated between a 3-4 and 4-3 alignment this season. The athleticism of players such as DE Haesten Wood and LBs Vestal and Jordan Leake gives Permian a formidable front seven that Lee coach James Morton said will be a key matchup in the game. Adams has six receptions on the season as a receiver and is a turnover-machine on defense that Lee will need to account for in the passing game. How well the Panthers defend will be important as Permian has generally won this season when its defense plays well.

Of note

■ As if dealing with Wilson, the leading rusher in the district, and Powell, tied for second-most touchdown receptions, wasn't hard enough, Lee will have to account for Permian's fast-paced no-huddle offense in this one. Morton was confident in his team's ability to handle the speed of Permian's hurry-up offense but admitted it has required extra attention in preparing for Permian. "That'll definitely be part of the game plan for us defensively," Morton said, "is having our checks ready early and getting them relayed to the team."

■ Replacing the production of Castellon will be a tall task for Permian — one that Gaines said one player simply may not be able to do. "We kind of tag teamed that duty and will again," Gaines said. "But we may not be able to utilize that position as much as we have in the past."

■ Both coaches harped on the importance of turnovers in the game. "That's got to be a big part of the game," Morton said. The Panthers and Rebels have two of the best defenders in 3-5A in terms of turnovers with Permian's Adams hauling in a district-leading four interceptions and Lee's Darian Long just one pick behind him.

■ Gaines praised the Rebel running game, and Lee, averaging the second-most rushing yards in 3-5A, will certainly look to get going against a Panther run-defense that has given up an average of 251.9 rushing yards per game.

■ Gaines has harped on the play of his special teams all season and said Permian will need to step up in that phase against Lee. "They're very good in their special teams — that jumps out at you," Gaines said. Long put Lee on the board in this game last year with a 80-yard punt return, which Gaines noted in an interview Wednesday. That and two onside recoveries for Lee against Abilene High caught his eye.

■ Last year's Lee win against Permian was its first against the Panthers in four tries. Lee had won 11 of the last 12 against Permian before the Panthers won four in a row.

Next: Lee at Midland High, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28, Grande Communications Stadium; Odessa High at Permian, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28, Ratliff Stadium, Odessa.

REBELS

From 1C

as it does passing attempts this season and is up front with the offensive line on its responsibility.

"In offseason, they drilled us everyday about being the baddest guys on the field," Harvey said.

"They put it on us — it's all on the O-line," Garza said.

But as Morton noted, the responsibility is one the unit has embraced since day one.

"Everybody's got a job," Brem said matter of factly.

While Morton loves the unit's willingness to work, it's the resilience of the unit that's caught the Rodgers' eye.

"They believe in themselves, they work hard," Rodgers said. "So, it kind of keeps that attitude that we're going to come out here, we're going to bust our butt win, lose or draw."

That attitude will be a necessity going forward as Lee (5-2, 0-2) fights for its playoff life in its final three games.

But for a unit that is used to being held to a high standard, the final stretch of the season will be nothing new.

"It's just everyday," Garza said. "It's an everyday grind."

Short-handed Kansas again favored in Big 12

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bill Self's Big 12 colleagues must believe him to be a genius.

Kansas lost six key players from last year's squad and three of their most highly recruited freshmen have been declared ineligible. Only eight scholarship players are dressing to practice in historic Allen Fieldhouse.

Still, the league's preseason coaches poll picked the Jayhawks and Texas A&M as co-favorites to win the league this season.

"I used to think coaches knew more about basketball than the media, but now I'm not so sure," Self quipped Thursday at Big 12 media day. "We lost six key players off a pretty good team and recruited fairly well. But we didn't get a chance to coach all the guys we recruited due to some NCAA academic situations. So we're a very thin team."

Kansas, the seven-time defending Big 12 champion, returns two key members from last year's 35-3 team, point guard Tyshawn Taylor and junior big man Thomas Robinson, who mostly came off the bench for the now departed Morris twins. All together, they have only a shocking 10 players.

"We're a thin team that's pretty talented," said Self. "But certainly, we will have less margin for error because we don't have the depth that we had in years past."

Texas A&M returns several key members of the squad that earned a school-record sixth straight NCAA tournament bid, including senior David Loubeau and junior Khris Middleton. They'll be coached by first-year man Billy Kennedy, who came over from Murray State but was represented at media day by assistant coach Glynn Cyprien.

The school announced several days ago that Kennedy was taking leave to deal with a medical condition. In a release, Kennedy said he would return soon, and Cyprien echoed that sentiment.

"There's not a time frame, but I will tell you soon, real, real soon," Cyprien said.

With the league reduced to 10 teams with the departure of Colorado and Nebraska, basketball will play a round-robin format with everyone playing everyone else home-and-home for the first time.

MIDLAND HIGH AT ABILENE HIGH

When/where: 7:30 p.m., Shotwell Stadium, Abilene

On the air: KNFM 92.3 FM

Live updates: www.mywesttexas.com/football

Records: Midland High 5-2, 0-2 in District 3-5A; Abilene High, 4-3, 2-0.

Last game: Odessa High 31, Midland High 24; Abilene High 49, Lee 35.

Last meeting/series: Abilene High 28, Midland High 18 (2010); Abilene High leads all-time series 46-21.

Key injuries: Midland High, CB Kodie Ochoa (concussion — out), LB Carson Carter (shoulder — out), SS Hunter Drozd (ankle — probable), FS Brent Stewart (shoulder — probable); Abilene High, OL Lorenzo Martinez (out).

Weather forecast: Clear skies with a game-time temperature of 75 degrees that will dip into the upper 60s as the night progresses. No chance of precipitation.

SCOUTING THE EAGLES

Coach: Steve Warren (142-48 at Abilene High — 160-70 overall)

Players to watch: QB Evin Abbe (6-1, 190, Jr.), RB Paxton Grayer (5-10, 185, Sr.), RB Marcell Porter (5-6, 150, Jr.), LB Shaq Sims (5-8, 180, Sr.), WR Keevan Lucas (5-9, 165, Jr.), DL Tyler Cagle (5-10, 190, Sr.), DL Jake McMillon (6-3, 225, Soph.), LB Tyler Lacke (5-10, 170, Jr.).

What to expect on offense: Multiple. Abilene High lines up in a variety of formations, but the offense centers around senior RB Paxton Grayer. Grayer has been outstanding for the Eagles this season and had his best game of the year against Lee last week with four total TDs and 257 total yards (115 rushing, 142 receiving).

Grayer is a dual-threat out of the backfield, and reminds Midland High coach Craig Yenzer of Tyler Middleton — the record-setting RB for the Bulldogs last season. Grayer and Middleton even wear the same number to further the comparisons.

But even with the success of Grayer, Abilene High has run a very balanced offense with junior quarterback Evin Abbe complementing Grayer well.

"He runs the offense well and has shown with the short or long passing game that he can get the ball to the right people," Yenzer said. "They have a talented receiving corps once again. They have several weapons. It's the same Abilene High team that's able to spread you horizontally and test you vertically."

What to expect on defense: 3-4. Abilene High utilizes three down-linemen and four linebackers for its base set. In years past, the Eagles didn't use many blitzing packages, but Yenzer says that's changed this year. And while the Eagles don't have great size, they've certainly got plenty of speed.

"They're not the biggest unit defensively, but they're doing a lot of stuff with their linebackers," Yenzer surmised. "You're not going to spend a lot of time beating them on the perimeter with your wide receiver screens and horizontal stuff. They run to the ball really well."

Of note

■ This is the 68th all-time meeting between the two schools. Midland High hasn't defeated Abilene High since 2000, though, meaning Yenzer is yet to claim a victory against Abilene High coach Steve Warren in seven tries.

"It's a thorn in my side," Yenzer said laughing. "There's no time like the present."

And while that fact isn't lost on Yenzer, it's not a motivating factor for him or the Bulldogs this week.

"If I knew (why I haven't beaten Warren before), we'd have already fixed it," Yenzer said. "If we're caught up in my record against him or the fact that we're 0-2 or the fact they're good again and have played better competition, I might as well call Warren and tell him we're just going to start getting ready for Lee. We're going into the game with every belief that we can win."

■ Abilene High's pride in its tradition is probably what Yenzer most admires about his Friday night opponent. Yenzer credits Warren for re-establishing a top notch program that produces strong teams year after year.

"They're a team that plays with a tremendous amount of confidence," Yenzer said. "They have a tradition and their players play up to that tradition on a weekly basis. It's something that is a high priority."

■ Midland High presents a familiar challenge for the Eagles. By no means does Abilene High come close to matching up with the Bulldogs in terms of size, but that's an issue it faces nearly every week.

"We don't match up at all as far as size goes," Warren admitted. "They are much bigger than we are. We're used to that, though. We have to play with good leverage and try to be quicker than they are."

■ While senior RB Paxton Grayer gets a lot of the attention in the Abilene High backfield, junior backup Marcell Porter has proven to be a more than capable back this season. At times, the Eagles use a formation that features both Grayer and Porter in the backfield at the same time.

While Porter had a very limited contribution in the Eagles' victory against Lee last week with just 34 total yards, the junior back has 615 rushing yards on the season and is averaging nearly 10 yards per carry. Couple that with Grayer's 815 rushing yards this season with a 7.3 yards per carry average and the Eagles have the most formidable backfield in the district.

"It starts up front with the offensive line giving them somewhere to go," Warren said. "Both backs are good backs. They can get out in space and really make things happen."

■ Junior Carson Carter was making his first varsity start at outside linebacker for Midland High last week, but went down on the second play of the game with a shoulder injury. Carter will not play this week and it's unknown how much longer he'll be out.

Junior cornerback Kodie Ochoa suffered a concussion against Odessa High and is also out for the Abilene High game.

The Bulldogs' secondary has been the most beat up unit for the team this season, but there is some good news coming for the group with starting safeties Brent Stewart and Hunter Drozd both returning to action this week.

■ Abilene High has had its own share of injuries, but the only player out for certain is OL Lorenzo Martinez, who has missed the last three games. Warren said there are some other players who have sat out practice this week, but have a fair chance of playing.

Next: Midland High vs. Lee 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28, Grande Communication Stadium; Abilene High vs. Abilene Cooper, Friday, Oct. 28, Shotwell Stadium, Abilene.

MIDLAND HIGH NOTEBOOK

BULLDOGS

From 1C

High has opened district play with an 0-2 record under Yenzer. It's happened three times before with different outcomes on the season. In 2003 and 2007, the Bulldogs started district play with two losses and finished the season with a losing record and no playoff appearance.

But Yenzer is more focused on the 2002 season — his first year as the head man of the Bulldogs program. That year the Bulldogs opened district play with a double overtime loss to Abilene Cooper followed by a two-touchdown loss to Abilene High.

Midland High rallied to win its final three games of the season, including a 49-0 victory against Lee in the regular season finale. The victory was Midland High's first in 13 years against Lee and also sent the Bulldogs to the playoffs for the first time in 51 years.

From there, the Bulldogs made their first ever appearance in a state title game, only to fall short of a Class 5A championship, 33-32, to Converse Judson. Regardless, it's an example Yenzer is pushing.

"We've been in the situation before," Yenzer said. "In 2002, we started out district 0-2. In that particular year we hadn't beaten Lee in 13 years and had to beat them in the last game to go to the playoffs. What's the difference?"

Some might say the difference is having Abilene High as the first opponent for three straight must-win situations. And despite the Bulldogs' current district record, the Eagles aren't taking them lightly.

"That's a good football team," Abilene High coach Steve Warren said. "There were a lot of people who thought they were the favorite to win the district. We know we're going to get their best shot. They can't afford to go to 0-3. That makes them a very dangerous opponent."

The Bulldogs aren't ready to roll over, either. They're looking at Abilene High as an opponent that can be beaten.

"We feel like we can win the game," Yenzer said. "I'm not going to go into any game thinking, 'This is over. Let's see if we can just win two of the last three and get lucky.' We're playing to win on Friday night. We're playing to win the next three Friday nights.

"It will definitely take our best effort. But we would know that even if we were 2-0."

Missouri curators take no action on realignment, will meet again

By Mike DeArmond
McClatchy Newspapers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Those who wanted a decision sooner rather than later on Missouri staying in the Big 12 or applying for admission to the Southeastern Conference were disappointed Thursday.

The subject was surely discussed in the afternoon at a closed executive session of the University of Missouri Board of Curators. Missouri athletic director Mike Alden was included in that session.

But Alden and the curators took a back-door exit out of their meeting room at the UMKC Student Union. At that point, a spokesman told reporters that no action had been taken and there was no comment to be made.

Curators chairman Warren Erdman told the Kansas City Star earlier Thursday that he would not talk about a timeline for such a decision "until the appropriate time." He said Wednesday evening he would "have nothing to say on that until Friday. If there is anything to say then."

Missouri chancellor Brady Deaton on Thursday referenced Erdman's mention of today as the earliest time for possible comment on conference alignment.

"That would be consistent," Deaton said.

The curators resume meeting at 9 a.m. at UMKC, with another closed executive session scheduled for 10 a.m.

Sources who have consistently indicated to the Star that Missouri was moving forward with strong interest in becoming the 14th member of the SEC remain steadfast in that point of view. The New York Times, citing a source familiar with the situation, reported earlier this week that Missouri's move to the SEC was "inevitable and imminent."

The Birmingham News, citing multiple sources, has reported Alabama would not oppose adding Missouri to the SEC as long as the Tigers were put in the East Division, keeping Auburn in the SEC West with Alabama.

Alabama apparently does not want to allow Auburn to gain a bigger recruiting presence in Florida and Georgia. Also, adding Missouri to the East Division would allow Alabama to continue playing archrival Tennessee every year.

It's assumed that Missouri would not object to either divisional placement. If Mizzou were added to the East and Texas A&M — set to leave the Big 12 and join the SEC next season — landed in the West, the traditional SEC powers would be evenly split.

Alabama, Auburn and LSU would be in the West; Florida, Georgia and Tennessee in the East.

No school outside that group has won an SEC football title since the league went to a championship-game format.

As for the Big 12, Missouri officials want changes involving Texas' Longhorn Network, a long-term grant of media rights, bowl slotting rules and a return to 12 teams with divisional play.

Texas recently promised not to show any high school games or highlights on the Longhorn Network, but in return agreed to only a six-year grant of first- and second-tier television rights. It's a six-year grant of rights enough of a deterrent to keep Texas or Oklahoma from relying on their deep financial resources to make a jump to another conference. If Texas or Oklahoma were to leave, an option both schools acknowledge they have explored, the Big 12 would be severely crippled.

The Big 12 has not made an announcement regarding Missouri's concerns over bowl slotting procedures. Nor has there been any guarantee of the Big 12 restoring its membership to 12 schools with divisional play in football and a return to a football championship game.

The storm that hit the central Great Lakes area with high winds, pounding waves and drenching rainfall will continue to lift northeastward across Canada to day. Chilly winds will continue across the Northeast but will be less forceful compared with recent days. A zone of moisture left over from the old storm will produce clouds and spotty showers from the central Appalachians to northern Maine and the eastern Great Lakes. It seems now the recent push of chilly air off the Gulf and Atlantic coasts has ended the threat of organized tropical systems.

Rules change between daughter, dad as girl grows up

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: My preteen daughter, "Avery," has started developing a more mature figure. She recently told me privately that one night while I was in class, her father smacked her on the bottom and started playing with the back pockets on her jeans. It made her very uncomfortable. When Avery asked him to stop, he told her that she's his "baby girl" and he could smack her "cute little butt" if he wants to.

I think my husband truly believed it was OK and didn't mean (at least consciously) to touch her inappropriately. But if it bothered Avery, it can't continue.

I'm afraid I'll overreact if I try to discuss this with him. I was sexually abused by a relative when I was a young teenager. This relative also said that because he was related to me, he could touch me in whatever way he wanted. To further complicate matters, my husband refuses me in bed.

If there's trouble brewing, I want to stop it now, but I don't want to come off as a freaked-out, paranoid former victim seeing abuse where it may be total innocence. Any suggestions? — UNEASY IN INDIANA

DEAR UNEASY: Yes. Listen to your gut. Tell your daughter you're glad she told you what happened, and you want her to come to you anytime ANYONE makes her feel uncomfortable. No one has the right to touch her if she doesn't want to be. And because what her father did made her uncomfortable, her "cute little butt" is off limits.

If your husband gives you an argument, insist on professional counseling for the two of you. He may be slow to realize that his little girl is growing up and the rules have changed. A licensed counselor will not come off as a "freaked-out, paranoid former victim" and can help him to understand that his behavior should not be repeated. And while you're at it, raise the issue of your sex life so you will have a clearer understanding of why it is the way it is.

DEAR ABBY: Because ADHD (Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder) affects so many people, my letter may interest many of your readers. An estimated 4.4 million children between the ages of 4 and 17 have this diagnosis. Half of them receive some form of medication for it.

This disorder is also present in adults. According to an April 2006 study funded by the National Institute of Mental Health, an estimated 4.4 percent of adults 18 to 44 experience some symptoms from it.

Thanks to ongoing research and improved treatment, adults with ADHD can live more successful lives. The largest study on childhood ADHD also shows effective treatments are available.

CHADD (Children and Adults with Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder), the largest family-based organization advocating for people with the disorder, provides information, advocacy and support. Our website (CHADD.org) and publications contain science-based information. It includes available parent and teacher training programs as well as support groups in 200 locations.

Thank you for printing this and the advice and wisdom you have shared so consistently over the years. — MARIE S. PAXSON, PAST PRESIDENT, CHADD ORGANIZATION

DEAR MARIE: I'm pleased to spread the word that effective treatment for ADHD — which can be inherited — is becoming more accessible to families affected by it. Treatment for this disorder includes parent training, behavioral intervention, educational adaptations, parent-child education on ADHD and medication. If a child you know has been diagnosed with this disorder, CHADD can be a helpful resource.

With 5-5 in majors, start with one spade and rebid hearts...

"As East, play diamond king when dummy has low cards. Don't even think of playing the ten. If the king holds, return the ten, the higher of two remaining cards. When you later get in with club king, assuming you have no diamonds, shift to a low spade, to get partner to cash two remaining diamonds. As West, after winning queen of diamonds at trick two, if you shift to a low spade and partner wins, returning a spade, you defeat contract.

"As South, club finesse is headed into East (who has denied diamond queen with play of the king, so hold up in diamonds to deplete East of diamonds in case he has king of clubs.

"After the holdup play and losing club finesse, rise with king of spades when East shifts to a low spade. You can't make contract if West has ace of spades, so play East for it! JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic, 4-positive, 3-average, 2-so-so, 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Oct. 21, 2011:

This year, if you detach, you will see how many choices you have — be it your mood or life decisions. If you're feeling confused, know that you are not ready to commit just yet. When you're ready to act, you move with clarity and incisiveness. Others know that you mean business. If you are single, a friendship could develop into much more, if you so choose. If you're attached, because of a newfound openness, the two of you enjoy your life together. Count on LEO.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ You could be somewhat disoriented this morning, but by the p.m. you are direct and say what you feel. Be more serious-minded. You'll get results. Your strong personality is a given. Let others express themselves, too. Tonight: With a loved one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★ You could be happiest close to home. Your ability to make the best out of difficult circumstances allows greater give-and-take. Still, you might want to take an active stand. Pace yourself. Tonight: The slower the better.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ Return calls, but don't forget to follow through on your to-do list. Open up conversations, knowing what could happen if you and others make assumptions. Work with real facts, even if you might be uncomfortable. Tonight: Out and about.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ Be careful with a tendency to be possessive and touchy. Clearly you have a very different style from many, even in the workplace. Emote a little less, keeping your anger at bay. You will find the appropriate avenue to express your feelings in the next 24 hours. Tonight: Do something special for a loved one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ Your spunk is admirable, leaving many people behind. Is that what you really want to do? Competition is fun, but if you always come in first place, could that be affecting your ability to relate successfully with a key associate or loved one? Tonight: Make it special, as only you can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★ You might wonder which way to go with a problematic situation. At the present, the best you can do is understand where your strong reactions are coming from. Detach and then approach a situation from a more centered point of view. Tonight: Take a break from the here and now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ A meeting gets an important project off on the right foot. You could be surprised by all the enthusiasm that surrounds you. You might not be sure which way to go. Allow greater give-and-take. You could feel that finally you have the support and team you need. Tonight: TGIF.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ A must appearance could color your plans and affect your mood. You could be putting 100 percent into what you are concerned about but still fall flat. Sometimes, when there is too much focus and an implicit demand, there can be a backfire. Relax a little. Take a break. Tonight: A must appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ You will want to do something very different from in the past. Detach — you will see a situation in a different light. However, you might become so easygoing that you might not have any desire to deal with the situation at all. Tonight: Feed your mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ A key associate makes all the difference in what happens. You see a matter very differently. Try to avoid an argument at all costs. Your perspective evolves the more you talk. Tonight: Dinner for two.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ You might want to defer and honor what is happening with a key person in your life. Today it isn't about you. Recognize what is going on behind the scenes. Your willingness to go with the flow will be long remembered. Tonight: Put your feet up.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★ Continue handling the little items that someone is allowing to drop by the wayside. Think through an issue with care. Honor what is happening within. When you feel that the timing is with you, move forward and start a conversation. Tonight: Out with some pals.

Revolutionary fighters celebrate the capture of Sirte, Libya, on Thursday. Moammar Gadhafi was killed Thursday when revolutionary forces overwhelmed his hometown, Sirte. Gadhafi's death could mean that Libyan oil production will increase in the coming months.

Gadhafi's death helps clear way for Libyan oil exports

Associated Press

NEW YORK — It will still be several months before Libya can export as much oil as it did before it descended into civil war earlier this year. But the killing of Moammar Gadhafi reduces the chance that violence will get in the way as Libya cranks up production again.

And as Libyan crude returns, it could lower the price of oil on the international markets and gasoline at American pumps.

The type of crude produced by Libya, known as light, sweet crude, is rare. It is especially valuable because it is easier for refineries to convert into diesel and gasoline. Many refineries can't switch easily to processing other varieties of crude.

Before the civil war, Libya produced only 2 percent of the world's oil. But even small interruptions in oil production can have a big effect on the price because the balance between supply and demand is delicate.

When fears arise that supplies might fall short, traders get nervous and prices can go up fast.

The price of oil jumped 35 percent between Feb. 15, when protests started in Benghazi, and April 29, when oil hit almost $114 per barrel, the highest since 2008. Gasoline prices in the U.S. rose from $3.12 before the fighting to a three-year high of $3.98 on May 5.

High prices, plus the prospect that Libyan crude would disappear from the market for a long time, led a group of oil-importing nations to announce the release of 60 million barrels of oil from emergency stocks. That included 30 million from the United States.

The price of oil came down because traders figured Libyan oil would return after Gadhafi was ultimately overthrown — but also because of concerns that a worldwide economic slowdown would reduce demand for oil.

By Wednesday, oil had returned to its price before Libya's uprising began. It fell 81 cents Thursday to $85.30 a barrel in New York trading. The average price of a gallon of gas in the U.S. was unchanged at $3.47.

The oil market's reaction to Gadhafi's death was muted because efforts to revive the Libyan oil industry have been under way for months under the Libyan transitional government.

"It was a foregone conclusion that Gadhafi was finished," said Daniel Yergin, chairman of IHS CERA, an energy research firm, and author of a Pulitzer Prize-winning history of the oil industry.

Before the war, Libya, which sits on the biggest oil reserves in Africa, produced about 1.6 million barrels of oil per day. Production collapsed during the war. Libya now produces about 390,000 barrels a day, a Libyan official said earlier this month.

Analysts predict the country can produce 600,000 barrels per day by the end of the year and 1.6 million by the second half of next year. By then, oil, depending on where it is traded, could fall $10 to $25 per barrel, said Michael Lynch, president of Strategic Energy & Economic Research.

But getting back to regular oil production could prove difficult for Libya. Its government is still in its infancy. It has no parliament, no constitution and few remaining national institutions.

Infighting could spark a second uprising similar to the insurgency in Iraq, Barclays Capital analyst Helima Croft says.

"Certainly, having Gadhafi no longer on the scene takes away one source of instability. We just think the bigger problem might be the 'game of thrones' between various factions within the rebel ranks," Croft said.

Stocks mixed

New signs of division among European leaders over how to handle the region's debt crisis led to confusion on financial markets Thursday.

Stock indexes rose, fell, rose back again and then ended the day more or less where they started. As they have been doing for weeks now, traders remain focused on the latest hope for a resolution to Europe's debt crisis: this time, a weekend summit of European leaders.

The Dow Jones industrial average moved between gains and losses all day before ending up 37.16 points, or 0.3 percent, to close at 11,541.78. The Dow had been down as many as 113 points shortly after noon. The Dow is 0.3 percent below where it started the year, and is headed for its first down week after three weeks of gains.

Trading was choppy as talks across the Atlantic appeared to falter because of differences between Germany and France over how to protect European banks from the consequences of a default by the Greek government. Later in the day, stocks rose slightly on news that a second summit meeting would take place next week after it became clear that France and Germany would not be able to bridge their difference in time for the meeting Sunday.

A messy default by Greece could lead to deep losses for European banks that hold Greek debt.

Dollar see-saws

The dollar swung sharply against other currencies Thursday. It was lifted by encouraging news about the U.S. economy and an apparent breakdown in talks aimed at solving the Greek debt crisis. It fell later after signals that the talks were back on track.

The dollar rose early on signs of strength at U.S. factories. Manufacturing grew in the Philadelphia region for the first time in three months, the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia said. The bank's index of regional manufacturing jumped to 8.7 from minus-17.5 in September. It was the best reading in six months and signaled that factories are recovering from a slow summer.

A separate gauge of future economic activity crept upward, signaling modest growth in coming months. The Conference Board's index of leading economic indicators rose 0.2 percent, easing fears of another recession.

RANGERS

slowed throughout the postseason by a groin injury, hit a solid fly ball that scored Kinsler and moved Andrus to third.

La Russa went to his bullpen again, bringing in Lance Lynn to face Young. The steady Texas veteran did his job, lofting a fly ball that sent Andrus scampering home.

Then it was Rangers manager Ron Washington's turn. He signaled for closer Neftali Feliz, who worked around a leadoff walk to earn the save. Mike Adams got the win.

The Cardinals broke through against Lewis in the seventh when David Freese singled with one out and took third on Nick Punto's two-out single. La Russa pulled Garcia and put up Craig, who was injured for most of the season.

Washington then went to Ogando. After a first-pitch foul, Craig lined a 96 mph heater over Kinsler at second base for the go-ahead run.

Up through the ninth, the Texas hitters were flailing.

Hamilton, the reigning AL MVP seemed to be wearing down with every swing in his first three at-bats.

Hamilton shattered his bat the first time up and slowly jogged to first base. Later, he weakly waved and appeared overmatched as he struck out on three pitches. That left him with an 0-for-16 Series slump dating to last October.

Hamilton's teammates were equally feeble. Maybe it was because none of the Texas starters had ever faced Garcia, maybe it was carryover from the stress that began in last year's World Series wipeout against San Francisco.

The acrobatic Andrus made a sensational play in the fifth to keep the game scoreless.

After a two-out single by Punto and a walk to the light-hitting Garcia, Rafael Furcal slapped a hard grounder up the middle. Andrus dived to his left to stop it on the edge of the outfield grass, got to his knees and flipped the ball with his glove about 25 feet to second baseman Kinsler, who barely beat Garcia to the bag for a forceout.

Texas batters, meanwhile, couldn't catch up with Garcia.

Their hardest hit early in the game came in the fourth — rather, it was the hardest a Texas player got hit.

Kinsler was at third base when Adrian Beltre sent a solid, one-hopper down the line. The foul ball nailed a ducking Kinsler in the right shoulder, and he grinned while playfully rubbing it off. No smiling, though, when Beltre took a poor cut at a low pitch and struck out to strand runners at the corners.

Garcia and Lewis dominated at the outset, and no one got a hit until Furcal doubled with two outs in the St. Louis third. Before that, the closest anyone came was Jon Jay, whose bunt danced along the third base line chalk before trickling foul.

Perhaps both sides could have used some hitting tips from Stan Musial. A month shy of his 91st birthday, Stan the Man was sitting in a Busch suite. The Cardinals Hall of Famer was shown on the video board and drew a big cheer.

Lamar looking into possible NCAA violation

Associated Press

BEAUMONT — Lamar is looking into whether new basketball coach Pat Knight violated an NCAA rule by allowing two recruits to speak with his father, former Indiana coach Bob Knight.

The Indianapolis Star reported that Indiana high school players Donnell Mattox and Jason Smith, who both verbally committed to Lamar, talked with Bob Knight by phone during a recent campus visit. Pat Knight, who played for his father at Indiana in the early 1990s, was hired by Lamar in April after he was fired by Texas Tech.

The Star reported that Pat Knight called his father, then handed the phone to the recruits.

Lamar interim athletics director and compliance officer Jason Henderson said Thursday the school has been investigating since the newspaper contacted the athletics department.

"We're going over everything, and doing all our research, to make sure we get everything correct," Henderson said in a phone interview. "We're moving forward as fast as we can."

NBA players, owners end talks after 5 hours

Associated Press

NEW YORK — NBA owners and players ended negotiations after about five hours Thursday, and no further discussions were scheduled.

"Ultimately we were unable to bridge the gap that separates the two parties," NBA Deputy Commissioner Adam Silver said. "We understand the ramifications of where we are. We're saddened on behalf of the game."

The two sides remained divided over two main issues — the division of revenues and the structure of the salary cap system.

Red Ribbon Week

Red Ribbon Week is the oldest and largest drug prevention campaign in the country. Although the start and end dates can vary slightly depending on the organization and source, Red Ribbon Week generally takes place the last full week in October, with the weekends before and following the last full week included as appropriate celebration dates. This year Red Ribbon Week will be celebrated October 22-30, 2011.

Red Ribbon Week serves as a vehicle for communities and individuals to take a stand for the hopes and dreams of our children through a commitment to drug prevention and education and a personal commitment to live drug free lives with the ultimate goal being the creation of drug free America.

And, perhaps more importantly, Red Ribbon Week commemorates the ultimate sacrifice made by DEA Special Agent Enrique "Kiki" Camarena, who died at the hands of drug traffikers in Mexico while fighting the battle against illegal drugs to keep our country and children safe.
