Radio Messages from World Touring Dirigible State Rapid Progress Is Being Made To Los Angeles

Passengers and Crew Are Nearing Last Goal In Globe-Girdling Attempt; Averages 67 Miles

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—Radio messages from the world touring Graf Zeppelin indicated that giant airship late today was more than half way across the Pacific on her brave flight from Kasumigaura, Japan, to Los Angeles, a distance of 5,470 miles.

If the rate of progress which the Zeppelin averaged since leaving Japan at 12:13 a. m. C. M. T., Friday was maintained she was expected to be seen over San Francisco early Monday. Adverse winds made it possible Seattle would not be visited and that San Francisco, directly on the great circle route of shipping, would be the first mainland point of western circle route of shipping, would be the first mainland point of western America to sight the craft.

Breasting the winds over the vast waste of the Pacific Ocean, ploughing through the fog and the night, drenched with rain, the Graf bore its 19 passengers and crew of 41 safely on toward their goal.

Only occasionally did the dirigible's veteran commander, Dr. Hugo Eckener, give a position, for the ship maintained an average rate of 67 miles an hour since leaving Japan. At 1 p. m. C. S. T., the Zeppelin's position was given as 44 degrees, 20 minutes north latitude, and 174 degrees, 20 minutes west longitude. It was 2,488 miles on her way to Los Angeles, with 2,982 miles to go.

Couldn't Make Money In Jail

DALLAS, Aug. 24. (AP)—A negro held on a gasoline theft charge pleaded guilty today because he was "losing money" by remaining in jail.

"How?" the judge asked.

"When I'm outside I can make lots of money shootin' craps. Only the other night I made $80."

The gambling man was fined and told that he could "lay it out in jail."

The People May Talk But You Can't Fool An 'Ole Hos' Fly

CAMBRIDGE, Wis. Aug. 24. (AP)—The horse fly bit the horses; the team ran away; two children narrowly escaped; the farm wife was hurt and the dog bit a man twice. Aside from that, it will be a long time before folks stop talking about what the horsefly did yesterday.

The fly was at ease and so were Ed Heath's horses when Ed drove into Oscar Lea's farmyard, but it wasn't long before the fly got restless, and the horses too.

"Flies," said one of the Lea boys; and he went to stop the team. But the horses had started to run as he grabbed the bridle of one. He let go after being dragged over a considerable part of the yard.

One of the younger Lea children was playing directly in the path of the animals. Lea made a dash and picked the child up. The horses made a dash too, toward another child. Mrs. Lea sprinted to the spot in time to save the child but was herself badly trampled.

The team started doing a Ben Hur around the house with that, and Heath started after them. But he tripped on the chain holding an excited dog. The dog did his part nobly by biting Heath twice.

That was about all that could have happened, and the horses stopped.

Three Cross Country Derbies Underway To Start Event

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 24. (AP)—Aviation, the new young giant of industry, opened its 1929 national air races and aeronautical exposition here today with an assemblage of aircraft, pilots, engineers and equipment, the largest in its history.

Three cross country derbies were approaching, one for women from Santa Monica, Calif., another for men from Portland, Oregon, and a third from Miami. At Dayton, army and navy fliers were resting for their series of stunts at the opening of the races tomorrow.

National air race spectators will get to see how motorless aircraft perform. Gliders, with pilots sitting out on precarious seats in the open and also in enclosures will be hitched to planes and automobiles to start a series of attempts to approach the record of Robert Kronfield of Germany who soared to an altitude of 6,800 feet and coasted in the air 62 miles.

Aviators will attempt to jump with parachutes to a designated mark and a team of crack stunt fliers from Troy, Ohio, will put their ships through a galaxy of stunts.

Lighter-than-air craft also will have their day, with four semi-rigid dirigibles from the Goodyear-Zeppelin company and the Detroit Aircraft Corporation's new metal-clad dirigible soaring overhead.

R. J. Murray To Lead Local Delegation Tomorrow In Connection With Other South Plains Cities

Cars Are Needed

Panhandle-South Plains Fair Will Be Advertised Along Route From Here Through Elida, Portales

WITH 15 cars signed up, the highway and trade trip committee, under leadership of R. J. Murray, was making final plans last night for assembling 35 automobiles to carry a larger delegation of local citizens over the proposed Lubbock -Elida- Portales highway Monday, when South Plains and New Mexico cities will unite in a motorcade which will terminate with a celebration at Portales.

The local delegation will gather at the city hall tomorrow at 6 o'clock for the start.

More Cars Needed

"We need 15 or 20 more automobiles," was the plea last night of Mr. Murray. "The motorcade is significant in that it will be of double importance to Lubbock. Aside from boosting the highway, the local delegation will advertise the Panhandle South Plains Fair, to be held here September 30 to October 5, inclusive."

"We will expect no less than 35 automobiles in the caravan," he continued. "Several cars will be needed to transport the Lubbock High School band of 35 members."

To Stage Programs

Programs will be staged by the local boosters and trade trippers throughout the route, and they will swing around by Muleshoe and Panhandle cities on the return trip. Novelties and souvenirs advertising the fair will be given at each stap.

Arriving at Portales at 1 o'clock (12 o'clock mountain time), the motorcade members will be entertained with a barbecue at noon, and a speaking program will be held during the afternoon.

Accident Victim Turns For Worse

Alvin P. Risinger Shows Symptoms Of Meningitis Following Accident Here Last Sunday Night

The condition of Alvin P. Risinger, 20-year-old Texas Tech student, last night became alarming with the announcement from attaches at the West Texas hospital that every indication pointed to the fact that meningitis probably would develop.

Reports stated that a serious rigidity had developed in his neck, that his temperature has started to climb and that he was extremely restless. Should meningitis set in physicians are of the opinion that the youth will live only a short while.

Risinger was injured last Sunday night when he was thrown headlong against a curb on 19th street as his motorcycle struck Joe Lowrimore, pedestrain. Lowrimore sustained a broken leg in three places. Risinger's skull was crushed by the impact.

May Haizlip Delayed By Broken Gas Connection

(By Associated Press)

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Aug. 24.—The fifteen contestants who made a one-stop flight from Wichita today in the National Women's Air derby, Santa Monica to Cleveland, landed at Parks Airport near here this afternoon, one after being forced down and two others with minor mishaps.

May Haizlip of Kansas City failed to arrive with the group which landed one hour and 28 minutes after 2:20 p. m., but she repaired a broken gasoline line at Washington, Mo., and with the aid of a farm hand who was unable to crank the propeller, she continued her flight.

Blanch Noyes First

Blanche Noyes of Cleveland, the first to arrive here, smashed the landing gear of her plane as she alighted. Neva Paris' plane nosed into an adjacent roadway, stopping with tail up. Neither aviatrix was injured. Their planes will be repaired in time for the takeoff for Terre Haute, Ind., at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Official computation of elapsed flying time to here showed Mrs. Louise M. Thaden retained the lead. The contestants ranked as follows:

Mrs. Louise McPhetrdige Thaden, Pittsburgh, 16:27:57.

Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach.

Lives Of Father And Son Claimed By Swift Current

Pair Whirled To Death In Attempt To Rescue Woman From Treacherous Whirlpool

(By Associated Press)

GALVESTON Aug. 24—A treacherous current that runs between Galveston Island and the Brazoria county mainland thirty miles west of here this afternoon took the lives of Herman Girsch, 52, manager of the Farmers Supply company of Giddings and his son Walter, 23, manager of a large chain store there. Miss Ella Birkman, 21, Walter Girsch's sister-in-law, narrowly escaped.

Miss Birkman had started out into the pass where the father and son were fishing and stepped into a deep hole. The men saw her difficulty and started toward her but she recovered in time to catch the body of the elder Girsch, who was overpowered by a whirlpool and carried under. Then the whirlpool caught the younger man as he hurried to the rescue, also carrying him under.

Guards Summoned

Coast guardsmen summoned from the station half a mile away by other members of the party of nine, who were here on a weekend camping trip, rescued Miss Birkman. She was struggling to hold Girsch's body in the current, unable to reach shore. The body of the younger man has not yet been found.

Coast guardsmen tried to revive the elder Girsch. They said they believed he died of heart failure as there was no water in his lungs.

Thirty Shots From Twelve-Gauge Shotgun Lodge In Fourteen-Year-Old Lad; Pneumonia Is Feared

W. A. WOLFE, 74-year-old farmer living 1 1-2 miles southwest of Lubbock on the Slaton highway, Saturday morning was released on $1,000 bond following an investigation Friday night and Saturday of the shooting of Oscar Cothren, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Cothren, 1118 7th street, Friday night.

Wolfe, after the investigation, was charged with assault with intent to kill. He was bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

Taken To Sanitarium

The injured youth was rushed to the Lubbock Sanitarium Friday night suffering of approximately 30 wounds in the left side of his body. One of the shot, from a 12-gauge gun, lodged in the large blood vessel in his neck while several others punctured his lungs. His condition late last night was said to be somewhat improved and that every hope is being held for his recovery. The greatest danger, according to physicians, would result from pneumonia or internal hemorrhage.

Officers were searching yesterday for three other boys said to have been with Cothren at the time of the shooting. The boy, while lying on the operating table, stated there was only one other boy with him and that he did not know his name, having met him a short time before in the park. According to a state-

New Reparations Plan To Be Made

Representatives Of Four Nations To Try Again to Satisfy Demand of Great Britain On Division

(By Associated Press)

THE HAGUE, Aug. 24.—Representatives of France, Italy, Belgium and Japan worked tonight on the draft of a new offer on division of reparations payments which it was hoped would be satisfactory to the British.

The offer being drafted would increase the British share of German annuities between 36,000,000 marks (about $8,575,200) and 38,000,000 marks (about $9,051,000.) Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden demanded 84,000,000 marks or about $2,382,000 more than the offer now in making.

If the British chancellor is satisfied with the estimated yield of this offer, as he has not been with previous estimates by the other creditors, and has no objection to the sources from which the sum is made up, it was thought that he would accept compromise on that basis.

By shaking up the almost expiring conference today Snowden so stirred its blood as to give it new life. The chancellor in a letter to Premier Henri Jaspar of Belgium said he had had enough verbal proposals and that the time was come to put on paper whatever the other creditors had to offer, and to do it at once.

Senator Tyson Is Claimed By Death

Senate To Adjourn Monday As Mark Of Respect For Tennessee Solon and War General; Funeral Planned

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The death today of Senator Lawrence D. Tyson of Tennessee, at a sanitarium near Philadelphia, brought expressions of sorrow from his colleagues at the capitol.

Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, spent the day in consultation by telephone with the family of the late senator and arranged for funeral services to be held in Knoxville Wednesday.

Anxious to pay tribute to Tennessee's senator and world war general Vice-President Curtis and Senator Watson of Indiana, the majority leaders, arranged for a senatorial committee to accompany the body to the services. On motion of Senator McKellar the senate will adjourn Monday as a mark of respect.

Biblical City Of Peace Changed To Armed Camp As Jews And Arabs Clash; Martial Law Is Declared

(By Associated Press)

JERUSALEM, Aug. 24.—A state of emergency was proclaimed to exist over all Palestine tonight with clashes between Arabs and Jews spreading from the point of origin in Jerusalem and with a death list of more than 50 already recorded. British warships and troops were enroute to supplement police forces.

The calm restored in Jerusalem this morning after two days rioting in the streets was temporary. At 6 o'clock tonight the disorders were in full blast again.

Death Toll Thirty

Jewish sources estimated the number of Jewish dead at 30, with 35 others bravely wounded and estimates of the Arab losses much earlier had been 17 killed with others likely to die. The injured numbered more than 200.

The fighting had spread from the "old city" to the Jewish suburbs of Yemin Moshe, Gdud Saul, Gdud Havoda and Sephardim. Fears were expressed for the safety of Patach Tikwah, the oldest Jewish colony in Palestine and noted for its rich orange groves.

Jewish leaders appealed to their race to cooperate with the British administration in restoring order. They charged the Arab attack bore evidence of organized warfare and that the Arabs were well armed, especially with daggers. It was also claimed that communist propaganda appeared urging Arabs to fight the Jews and expel the English from the country.

The Biblical city of peace tonight was an armed camp under martial law. Part of the population was panic-stricken. Airplanes, troops and warships were being rushed to Palestine.

A delegation representing American Jews living in Jerusalem requested Paul Knabenshue, United States consul, to ask that an American warship be sent to Palestine.

At Malda, a 31,000 ton battleship, the Barham, the aircraft carrier Courageous and the crusier Susses were reported under orders to sail for Jaffa, the Port of Jerusalem. British troops were being rushed by airplanes.

Refunds Ready On Car Registrations

Refunds to all persons buying automobile licenses between May 23 and June 16 now are ready to be made, according to an announcement Saturday from the office of County Tax Collector A. J. Clark.

A state law was passed by the recent legislature allowing licenses to be deducted by months instead of by the old law requiring quarter deductions. This law went into effect May 23 but was not made known to the Lubbock office until June 17. All persons purchasing licenses between these dates may get a refund at the court house.

License receipts must be presented or the number, according to Mr. Clark, and all are requested to look for the dates before presenting themselves for a refund.

Kiwanians Lay Plans To Storm Convention At Tulsa

Clubmen Of Texas And Oklahoma To Be Invited Here

Extensive Plans Being Set By Local Club; Help To Be Given By South Plains Organizations

WILL the 1930 Texas-Oklahoma district convention of Kiwanis International come to Lubbock?

Extensive plans are being made by the local Kiwanis club to land next year's meeting of this organization and support of the proposal is being solicited from all clubs in the Panhandle, South Plains and western section of Texas.

A committee has been appointed in Lubbock headed by B. Sherrod to canvass the entire territory, asking for aid in the fight that will be carried to the convention this year at Tulsa. When the gathering is formally opened on September 1, to continue through the 3rd, it is expected that a large group of Lubbock citizens will be on hand to carry the fight to the floor and present Lubbock's invitation to this great organization to visit this city and the South Plains next year.

Support Needed

"We will need all the support we can get," stated Mr. Sherrod. "We realize that several cities in Texas and Oklahoma will be after the 1930 get-together, but our plans call for such a forceful presentation of claims, and we expect such support from adjoining towns and cities, that when a choice is made Lubbock will be approved unanimously."

Special feaures to be presented on a program at the Tulsa meeting will be arranged. Hunter Richardson is chairman of the committee in charge of this part of the program and is working at this time to get together an entertaining group, one that will make attendants at Tulsa "sit up and take notice." No definite numbers have been announced as yet but it is understood that a full program will be scheduled in a few days.

Other Clubs Help.

When Kiwanians of Lubbock leave for the Tulsa convention they hope to go in such numbers that a special train will be chartered. Memberr of the Lubbock Rotary and Lions clubs also will be included in the group of boosters making the trip as will representatives from the Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development. Aside from the Lubbock delegation aboard a proposed special train other delegations from Plainview, Amarillo, Sudan, Big Spring and cities pledging their support to the Lubbock cause will be aboard. Letters have been received from several clubs of other towns in Texas all of them heartily endorsing the move staged by this city and pledging their vote.

The strongest competition is expected from Fort Worth which city, it is understood, is planning to send a large delegation to present the invitation of the Panther City. Abilene and San Angelo also have announced their intentions of making bids for the convention. Kiwanians were the guests of Dallas two years ago and this fact it is believed, will prove a serious barrier to Fort Worth's chances.

Delegates Chosen

At Thursday's luncheon official delegates were elected by the club. President A. H. Leidigh and L. C. Ellis will represent the body with George P. Kuykendall and Dr. V. V. Clark, alternates. These men backed by a strong contingent from this city and surrounding friendly cities, will bear the brunt of Lubbock's attack in an effort to swing the tide of votes of several thousand delegates in this direction and pave the way for the selection of Lubbock as the 1930 convention city of the International organization.

The Belgium government has organized flying clubs and pays half the cost of members' planes.

Belgium, herself a great fruit producer, imported fruit valued at $3,800,000 last year.

Illuminated Air Field Is Planned

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BIG SPRING, Aug. 24—Big Spring can soon boast of being the only town of its size in Texas to have an illuminated landing field. Installation began this week on flood, border and beacon lights for the field, the revolving beacon light being put on a 56 foot tower, together with an illuminated wind cone. The two steel hangers, machine shop and five room administration building are completed.

Telephone service has been installed and telegraph service will be installed within the near future. The 300 foot runways are being dragged and oiled and the field will be in first class condition for the dedication program and air celebration to be held on September 11-12. One of the most unique parades ever staged at an air celebration is being planned by the parade committee according to Homer McNew, chairman. The parade will illustrate the evolution of transportation from primitive days to the present time, being terminated with an airplane with folded wings. Following the parade to add color will be decorated floats, and automobiles entered by the business interests of the city.

Tri-State Fair To Be Gala Occasion

The Tri-State Fair, to be held in Amarillo September 23 to 29, will be one of the leading events of its kind in the entire Southwest this year, said R. C. Wright, of Lubbock, one of the directors of the fair.

"Entertainment features are headlined by Hagenbeck-Wallace wild animal circus and the J. T. Wortham shows," said Mr. Wright. "Fair officials are offering $15,000 in cash premiums in the various divisions of exhibition. Of this amount $5,000 is for the Hereford show alone, $2,500 for the Swine department and $2,500 for the Jersey and Holstein departments. This year the Hereford show is sponsored by the American Hereford Breeders Association and will draw entries from breeders all over the country.

"Seventeen counties have already made reservations to show during the big fair."

STOP! AND LOOK

Some Of The Fine Points Of Interior Decorating

Too many homes are finished in a stereotyped manner that entirely disregards the recognized standards of beauty and comfort. Just a little pains with the nooks and corners, just a little care in harmonizing house furnishings with paintings, wall paper, and draperies, will entirely transform your home. Lines of simple designs in clear colors added to dull furniture, or natural stained or painted finish may refresh an entire home.

Wee Willie's Woe Is Blamed To Face That "Set Him Off"

By EDWARD STANLEY
Associated Press Feature Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Ever so often gangland hatches a hoodlum who is "different"—and he pays for it. His head pops up above the level of his mob and the gendarmes have a merry time trying to poke it off.

Such a lad was Wee Willie Doody, who rose from an obscure beer hustler in "the valley" to spread-eagle on the front pages. He now is settling up his accounts with the law.

Was Tough Baby

"Baby Face," they call him. Not because his countenance is cherubic, or because he is a "tough baby," but because of a doll-like, infantile vacuity which is Willie's face and his misfortune. Most gangsters show something in their faces—Doody's is a dead pan.

Brash Willie, only 27, ran wild for a while, then "lammed." But not before he broadcast his hate of the police, that he would never be taken alive. He has several escapes that were near captures and in one dangerously wounded a postal inspector. A price went on his head.

Expected Battle

So when Willie came back from Detroit and the police got a tip on his hide-away, they quite naturally expected a bloody afternoon. It turned out to be a field day for the photographers instead.

Twenty detectives, armed with riot guns and pistols, quietly surrounded the apartment house, perched on roofs, stood at alley entrances, accompanied by the inevitable photographers.

Lieut. Walter Storm crept cautiously up the back stairway to the third floor, others behind. He rapped. A pretty brunet answered. He brushed by and into the kitchen where Doody, not fully dressed, was eating breakfast. Two guns within easy reach. Wee Willie, the individualist, did the unexpected. He fell into the lieutenant's arms, while a movie man cranked away!

Thus was the desperate Doody laid low—known as the most vicious and dangerous gunman since "Terrible Tommy O'Connor and Marty Durkin.

"I knew you wouldn't shoot," he told Storm.

Down to detective headquarters they hustled him, taking the owner of the apartment, Lillian Kahler, pretty divorcee, along for questioning. She protested she didn't know he was Willie but they took her along for luck.

At headquarters it was discovered, with illustrations, that most of the photographers had got lost in the shuffle, so a part of the capture was re-enacted for them.

Doody readily admitted shooting the postal inspector who sought him for a mail robbery, but said he thought he was a hold-up man. The police asked some other questions.

What about Charles Levy, police chief of Berwyn, slain? What about Police Sergeant Falk, clubbed and shot in the back.

Really, said Willie, he didn't know.

Glad to talk about Jackson, but no more. He gave them the Baby Face on the others.

Going Places With Swan

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 24.—The planes and the plains are getting along together in a big way.

Out here where the west begins to look more and more like the east, they have developed, almost overnight, into the flyingest section of America.

And it seems only fitting and proper that a people who have played so spectacular a part in the conquest of the soil should now pioneer in the air.

If, as it happens, the airways of this southwest country are crisscrossed with airlanes and if, in the scattered cities hereabouts, there happens to be a greater number of passengers using planes than in any other part of the nation, it is not accidental.

To begin with, as everyone knows, the distances out here are vast. Going from city to city in Texas and Oklahoma is not a matter of commuting—or at least it wasn't. A hop from Amarillo to Tulsa to Oklahoma City to Dallas, Fort Worth or Houston is quite a bit of a jump by trains. And, so they tell me, the train service has been nothing to cause dancing in the street. Doubtless the railroads did the best they could under the circumstances.

And, again, this had become a very rich country—and in a hurry. Hazard, chance and pioneering have been partners in a long and old game in this part of the world. It certainly was no novelty in Tulsa, Oklahoma City and way points to see a young man with $10 in his pocket on a certain Thursday and a million in the bank a few weeks later. Oil did this.

Since many of these oil and range people wanted to get about in a hurry, the airlines arrived at a most advantageous moment. Men had money in their jeans and would pay for speed. And they would take a chance that an airplane would get them there.

Thus today it is possible to make a flying start from most any point in the neighborhood and be in Wichita for breakfast, in Kansas City for lunch and in Chicago for a 4-o'clock-in-the-afternoon business conference or attending a Chicago theater on the same evening.

It's a far, far cry back to the covered wagons on the prairie.

Paul Braniff, who started with a dollar down on a plane of a defunct air outfit, was prepared with facts and figures to show me that his particular network of lines—now attached to the Universal Aircraft system—has a nation's record for passenger carrying, which happens to be true, however incredible it may seem.

Braniff, who is a tall, blond product of this town, literally started with a few hundred dollars, making a down payment on a plane he ran in a "taxi" service with Tulsa. Today he operates a tri-motored diner service plane on this same run and has a whole fleet of assorted passenger carriers which he was buying on time when along came Universal and put $250,000 in his pockets and the purses of his stockholders.

It's a romantic, fantastic and thrilling story you can read in the sky-writing of these "open spaces."

The words "remote" and "faraway" can no longer refer to the plains country of Texas and Oklahoma—for how can any place be remote wherein one can hop a flying ship before breakfast, take lunch at the Kansas City hangar and connect with the New York train-to-plane boat or the St. Louis noon flier?

And this I have done!

GILBERT SWAN.

Helen Wills Once Again Wins Title

BY TED VOSBURGH
Associated Press Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 24.—In the hardest final round battle she has had since the English star, Kitty McKane, forced her to an extra set in 1929, Helen Wills won the National Women's Tennis championship for the sixth time before a gallery of 6,000 at the West Side stadium this afternoon.

Once again the stubborn challenge came from the hard driving racquet of an English player and it was only after 40 minutes of hotly fought and thrilling tennis that the Queen of the courts overcame the gallant Mrs. Phoebe Watson, of England's Wightman cup team, 6-4, 6-2.

Strike Ended By Football Squad

EL PASO, Aug. 24. (AP)—A "strike" staged by the El Paso high school football squad ended here today when the players agreed to resume practice and school authorities indicated that the question of naming a head coach would be deferred until later.

The trouble arose when it was announced that Oscar Eckhardt would act as head coach to succeed Ed. Olle, resigned. The players, who were in training camp at Cloudcroft, returned to El Paso and announced that they would not practice unless Clyde Wafer, assistant coach, was made head coach. At the conference today, at which the difficulties were ironed out, Wafer ordered the players to report for practice Monday and they agreed.

Lynn B. Davis, principal, said the question of whether Eckhardt or Wafer would be head coach would be decided shortly before school opened.

Who Will Keep Bobby From Winning Again Is Only Question Of Approaching National Amateur Meet

Atlanta Barrister Stands Out As Greatest

By WERNER LAUFER
NEA Service Sports Writer

It isn't so much a question of who will win the National amateur golf championship, beginning at Pebble Beach, Del Monte, Calif., Sept. 2, as it is who will keep Bobby Jones, the celebrated Atlanta barrister, from winning it.

In one of the greatest fields ever to compete in this annual contest, Bobby Jones, four-time winner of the event and National open champion of 1929, stands out like Al Capone at a Christian Endeavor picnic.

Jones, today, dominates golf as Jack Dempsey used to dominate the fight game. Or like Babe Ruth did, and still does, in baseball. His spot is at the very pinnacle—a higher place than has ever been attained by any human in the history of the ancient Scotch sport.

Harry Vardon was a master golfer—a stylist supreme. Jones, on the strength of his marvelous record, crowds Vardon out of the picture. He is the greatest golfer of all time without an argument.

But there is no man so great in his line that he is an absolute sure thing in any one competition. Hence there is hope in the breasts of the horde of amateurs who are heading for the California tournament.

The British amateur champion is Cyril Tolley. He and four compatriots, Eustace Storey, T. A. Bourne, Lord Charles Hope and Major Guy Colin Campbell, are making an unofficial raid for the American crown.

C. Ross Somerville is Canadian amateur champion and an exceptional golfer. He has always been among the leaders when he failed to annex titular honors in tournaments in Canada and the United States.

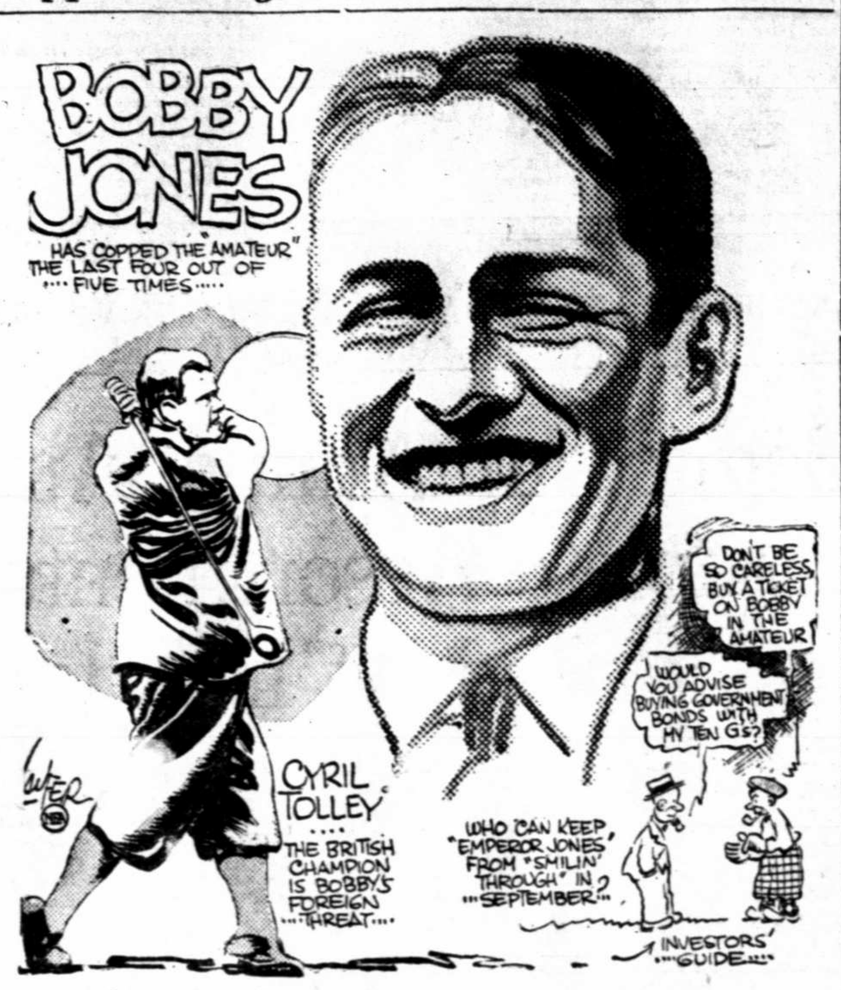

Jess Sweetser, amateur champion of 1922, and George Von Elm, winner of the 1928 amateur tournament, will be in there trying for an upset of the great Bobby.

Chick Evans was National open and amateur champion in 1916. In 1920 he repeated in the amateur. He was eliminated by Jesse Guilford in the finals of 1921. Evans has not won a major championship in recent years. But he has always been a threat, as he promises to be this year.

Don Carrick won the Canadian amateur championship in 1925 and again in 1927. He did not defend his title last year because he was a member of the Canadian Olympic boxing team.

George Voight is one of the younger set. In the short time he has been competing in the important competitions he has established an enviable record. He was 1928 Metropolitan champion and three times winner of the north and south amateur title. He was eliminated in the semi-finals of last year's amateur tournament by William Perkins of Great Britain, whom Bobby Jones defeated in the finals.

These are just a few of the scores of truly great golfers included in the list of 162 starters. Jones is paired in the qualifying rounds with Jack Neville of the Monterey Peninsula Country club, who recently won the California amateur championship for the fifth time.

Tactless Texans Seeking Revenge Today On Locals

Amarillo Nine to Meet Hubbers At Merrill Park This Afternoon In Return Engagement

Reinforced by the return of Gilbert Jackson and Del Morgan from their wanderings throughout the state, the Lubbock Hubbers take on the Amarillo Tactless Texans at Merrill Park his afternoon for the fourth game of the season between the two rivals. Today's contest will begin at 3:30 o'clock.

Handed three straight defeats by the Lubbock nine, the Texans are coming today for what is likely to be their last game of the season. Bent on gaining revenge for the treament received at the hands of the locals, the Texans are bringing their full strength to battle Manager Wilson's cohorts.

Jackson Is Back

After a spell in the West Texas League, Jackson will be back today in center field for the Hubbers to team with Brothers and Wilson. Del Morgan, Lubbock High school coach, who has been at the football training camp with the Westerner candidates, is expected to arrive in time to take his position at first base.

BREW FED BABY

CINCINNATI, Aug. 24.—Either the O'Brien two-year-old off-spring had a full grown stomach, or it liked home brew mighy well. Mrs. Aline O'Brien objects to her husband feeding it to the child so she sued for divorce. The court found the husband, Patrick, guilty, and Mrs. O'Brien got the release.

SETTLING THE POINT IN GOLF

THE LOST BALL

There is only one procedure to be followed where the ball becomes lost. The player must go back to the spot where the preceding stroke was played and play another ball, counting the previous stroke and adding one more as penalty. In other words if the ball was lost on the tee shot the player would be shooting three.

In ordinary, friendly matches, however, this is rarely done, though it is required in tournament play. The usual procedure is to drop a ball as nearly as possible to where the other was lost, and play from there, counting a stroke for the lost ball.

Cleveland won seven of the first eleven games played against the Yankees this year.

Plainview Golf Team Here Today

Hale County Golfers Meet Local Country Club Members In Return Match; Local Stars Missing

With their guns primed to gain revenge for the recent defeat handed them by the Lubbock golf team, Walter Sykes and a horde of Plainview golfers invade the Lubbock Country club here today for an 18-hole engagement with the local bunker sharks.

Although the Lubbock aggregation took eight out of twelve matches from their Hale county rivals in the previous combat, the visitors hold the edge in today's encounter in which several of Lubbock's leading golfers will be missing.

The Lubbock team today will be forced to go without the services of Bob Peck, recently crowned city open champion, Grady Higginbotham, runner-up in the city tournament and E. T. Daniels, runner-up to the medalist in qualifying play. Clinton Bussey, West Texas champion, is still confined to the sickroom.

Facing the task of meeting the invading team minus the services of these stars, Captain Ross McWhorter rallied all available forces yesterday in preparation for the inter-city meet.

The Lubbock team will be picked from the following: Oscar Lykes, Bud Roberds, Hal Arnett, Jack May, V. O. Jennings, John Edmisson, Leonard Pearson, Herb Quinn, Ross McWhorter, J. O. Smith, J. W. Byrne, pro.; L. H. McLarty and S. A. Wells.

Football Outlook For Rice Gloomy

HOUSTON, Aug. 24 (AP)—As the date for opening of football practice approaches, Rice Institute fans are wondering how the school's new coach, Jack Meagher, can develop an eleven capable of defeating any of the Owls' five conference opponents. The outlook is gloomy.

"Wait until next year," is the refrain most frequently heard among Owl supporters. A fine lot of talent is scheduled to enter the freshmen class in September, and things should pick up in 1930. As for this season, Owl fans scarcely expect more than a repetition of last autumn, when the Birds failed to win a conference game.

Meagher, late of St. Edward's refuses to appear downcast, however. He is making no rash predictions, but hopes to weld a team that will be in there battling all the way.

Eight lettermen are expected to form a nucleus for this year's eleven They are Captain Bush Jones of Dallas, Bill Morgan, Denison, and Travis Allen, Houston, linemen; George McCarble, Houston, Dub Harder, Waco, and Frank Power, Edna, ends; and Ross Kennedy, Sabinal and Joe Stoppel, Cleveland, Ohio, backs. "Spud" Braden, quarterback, who was elected co-captain, will not return.

Forty-eight aspirants have been ordered to report for practice September 10.

Training Camp To Open At Tech Sept. 10

Tables littered with scholastic records, letters scatered about at random, and formations scribbled out with a stub pencil reminds the casual visior to Texas Tech athletic headquarters tha another football season is near at hand.

The first active step was taken yesterday when invitations were sent out to 40 gridders to start the season here on Sept. 10 with the opening of the Matador training camp.

In the absence of Head Coach Grady Higginbotham, Vic. Payne, line coach and chief assistant to the newly elected varsity mentor sent notices to the grid candidates who are to carry the burden for the Matador eleven on its fifth campaign.

Familiar Figure Of Foxx Remains Atop Junior Loop

Lew Fonseca Passes Al Simmons For Runner-up Position In American League Batting

CHICAGO, Aug. 24. (AP)—The familiar figure of Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia's first baseman, remains in the van of the American League batting procession, a position Connie Mack's all-round star had owned except for a two day interruption, since the first week in June. Figures released today, which include Wednesday's games, give Foxx an average of .382, one point shy of last week's mark.

Since Heinie Manush of St. Louis topped Foxx in July, the Athletic slugger has connected consistently, while candidates for the runner-up position have changed frequently. Lew Fonseca, Cleveland first baseman, finished the week in second place, 13 points behind Foxx, having passed Al Simmons. The latter dropped to third through a loss of nine points during the week.

Other Leaders High

Regulars following Foxx and Fonseca are: Simmons, Philadelphia, .365; Manush, St. Louis and Combs, New York, .362; Lazzeri, New York, .356; Ruth, New York and Fothergill, Detroit, .354; Heilmann, Detroit, .348; Dickey, New York, .343.

Babe Ruth retained his recently acquired lead in the home run column, driving out two circuit smashes during the week to bring his total to 33. Foxx also got two and was second with 30. Al Simmons batted in but two runs but held on to the leadership with 120, nine more than Ruth's collection.

Bing Miller of the Athletics hit a triple and broke a tie with Fonseca. Miller's total was 13, with Fonseca one behind. The three-way tie in batting out doubles between Manush, Harry Heilmann and Roy Johnson of Detroit, was wrecked by Manush who added two to bring his collection to 39. Heilmann had 38 and Johnson 37.

The Yankees, with four men in the first ten, stuck in first place in team batting, with an average of .304, while the athletics lost a point and dropped to a tie for second with Detroit at .302.

Macks Hold Lead

The order in the team fielding race was unchanged. Philadelphia continued to handle the ball at a .976 clip, New York second with .974. Cleveland, which has led the league in double plays all season, remained in front with 128, but Boston was only one behind, and Washington had 126.

Bob Grove, the Athletics' number one southpaw, was beaten in his only start, but had a record of 18 victories and three defeats. George Earnshaw, of the Athletics won one and lost one, for a mark of 19 triumphs and six defeats. Old Tom Zachary had nine straight to his credit.

Other leaders: Team home runs, New York 111; runs scored, Philadelphia 749; fewest opponents runs, Philadelphia, 486; hits, Manush, St. Louis, 175; runs, Gehringer, Detroit, 107; stolen bases, Gehringer, Detroit, 20; strike-outs, Grove, Philadelphia 140.

Westerners Wind Up First Week Of Training At Camp

Lubbock High School Grid Hopefuls Facing Six More Days Of Strenuous Work Amid Wilds Of Garza County

Forty-Seven Candidates Training At Base Of Caprock For Impending Football Campaign; Team Loses Services Of Fleet Halfback, Squires

BY ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

BOY SCOUT ENCAMPMENT GROUNDS, Garza County, Aug. 24.—Nestled amid mesquite bushes at the base of the caprock and set apart from all traces of the outside world, the training site for the 1929 Lubbock High school Westerners is affording the cohorts of Coaches Henry Frnka and Del Morgan all the desirable conditions necessary for the conditioning of a high school eleven on the verge of a stiff gridiron campaign.

With the three words—Work, Eat and Sleep—as the keynote of the camp, forty-seven candidates for the next Westerner eleven closed their first week's training Saturday with all muscle soreness gone and the results of six days under a scorching August sun evidenced by suntans that would bring envy from a veteran coast guard.

Start Off Easy

Starting off Tuesday with light exercises and grass drills, the high school mentors have added to the work each day until the Friday and Saturday practice sessions found the candidates rounding into shape with dummy scrimmage taking a large part of the time.

Forenoons spent in traversing the rocky cliffs and canyons adjacent to the caprock have served to develop leg muscles while a two-hour session on the field in the afternoons has brought a climax to each day's activities.

Assisted by the 1928 Westerner leader, Raymond "Whacker" Barton Coaches Frnka and Morgan have put in the first week at camp in underlying football fundamentals—running, passing, charging, blocking and the various intricacies peculiar to the positions on the club.

Work In Groups

Guards, tackles and ends work in separate squads supervised by Coach Frnka while off at a distance the backfield candidates take instructions from Coach Morgan, evading imaginary tacklers and making their way through holes in a line that isn't there.

Nearby trees, furnishing scarcely enough shade under which one man can stand, is at intervals the scene of small gatherings of gridders who happen to be out of action at that particular instant.

Following the strenuous workout on the football field, the candidates make a mad run for the showers, located beneath a cliff on the edge of the Canyon where water once flowed. Water for the baths, drinking and cooking purposes is pumped from a dammed-up creek into a large resevoir from whence it flows to the camp.

Then Comes The Eats

Next comes the high point of the day from the standpoint of many—Beans. Headed by the chief cook, Elmer Moore, the K. P. corps serves the waiting line of hungry gradsters as they file by with their regulation army mess kits. From the standpoint of an outsider looking on, enough "grub" is consumed in one meal to feed an entire regiment in Uncle Sam's army. With big Greer Frizzell setting the pace, the tired candidates satisfy their ravenuous appetites with two and three heaping platefuls of energy-producing rations.

With their appetites satisfied, the gridders retire to the grove up the hill where welcome army cots await them. A day's work under the supervision of Frnka and Morgan doesn't leave any too much surplus energy and darkness finds many seeking repose beneath the blankets. A dozen or more, who have left sweet young things behind in Lubbock, get out the pencil and tablet and scroll off endless phrases of meaningless nothings, while those who have soured on the "wimmen" cast slurring remarks from safe distances.

A Few Nightmares

Soon the army of hopefuls are sound asleep, enjoying a night of well-earned rest. On several occasions long past midnight, the coaches were awakened by a chorus of serious-minded candidates, who are reviewing the day's activities in their sleep. Snap signals and the constant cry of battle break the stillness of the night at intervals.

Beginning tomorrow the squad will be given plays and each day's work will be increased. Instead of the morning hike and afternoon workout, there will be two workouts per day from here on out. This final six-day's practice is destined to show the Westerner mentors something of what to expect of the green squad.

Squires Is Out

A telling blow was delivered to the team's hopes when it was learned that "Bugger Red" Squires would be out for the season. The physician's diagnosis shows the fleet halfback to be suffering with heart trouble that will make strenuous exercise impossible. Displaying worlds of ability last season on the Lubbock squad and coming through in flying colors on Coach Lowrey's track team, Squires was headed for a great season as a member of the Westerner backfield. Backfield Coach Del Morgan has not yet found a ball toter to fill the shoes of the big red head.

Indications are that the Westerner's offense will be built around the veterans of last season who are back. No newcomers have showed enough ability thus far to replace such backs as Moody Smith, Ovie Teal, Mina Watkins and W. D. Lawson.

Line Questionable

Coach Frnka is facing a tough problem in building up a forward wall for the coming season. A pair of ends and one tackle are all that show any promise to date. Big Bob Rich and Yancy Price have been working on the wing positions during the first but may find the competition a little tougher when Will Ed Watson and R. E. Hardberger report to camp. Shifted from guard to end because of his speed, Price is destined to prove one of the most valuable cogs in the team's offense.

In the line, Greer Frizzell promises to be one of the mainstays. Trained down as hard as nails, Frizzell has set a pace that the remainder of line candidates have found hard to hold. Joe Leaverton and Fred Kerr are waging a merry battle for the privot position and indications are Coach Frnka will have an able man to fill the shoes of Horace Buckingham.

Guard Posts Open

At the present time the guard positions loom as the most uncertain A flock of likely-looking youngsters are working out daily for the heavy duty posts.

Across a few miles from the Westerner camp, an enemy stronghold looms on the horizon, furnishing a constant reminder to the Lubbock cadidates that their opponents are likewise getting ready for the impending season. Training at Two Draw Lake, Crosbyton high school gridders are preparing for their tussle with the Westerners on September 28th.

Six days remain before the Gold and Black warriors will start their trek back to the home field, where training will eb resumed. This week's work will find action a'plenty in camp and in the end will give the coaching staff a more thorough slant on the outlook for the season.

Two In Deadlock For Batting Lead In Texas League

Jimmy Moore Climbs Into Tie With Red Bennett For Swat Honors; Average .375

DALLAS, Aug. 24. (AP)—A slump by Fred Bennett, Wichita Falls slugger, during the past week enabled Dallas' two Moore's, Jimmy and Randolph, to occupy the spotlight in the Texas League batting scramble.

Jimmy climbed into a tie with Bennett for the swat lead with an average of .375 through Thursday's games. His fellow pasture patrolman, Randolph, banged out his 204th hit of the season and went into third place with a .362 average. Eddie Moore, Fort Worth, with 190 safe hits, is Randy's closest rival in total knocks.

Other Leaders

Other leading batters were: Lapan, Wichita Falls, .359; Blackerby, Waco, .358; Langford, Shreveport, .353; Rosenthal, Dallas, .346; Bonowitz, Fort Worth, .338; Hanson, Beaumont, 335; Starr, Shreveport, .335.

The three-cornered battle for home run honors remained at a standstill, with Sanguinet, Waco, Bennett, Wichita Falls, and Easterling, Beaumont, each credited with 25 round-trippers.

Eddie Moore still was far ahead of the field in triples with 25. He is just short of the league record of 26 set by Ike Boone in 1924. Bennett had rapped 11.

Cox Smacks Doubles

Larry Cox regained his lead in doubles by running his total to 44. Randy Moore had 43 and Si Rosenthal 42. Whelan of Shreveport had scored the most runs, 120, closely pursued by Eddie Moore, with 119. Bennett had 113 tallies.

Pepper Martin, Houston speedster, ran his stolen base total to 39, compared to 30 for Stewart, Shreveport, his closest rival. Martin promises to pilfer 50 sacks this year.

Due principally to the clouting of Randy and Jimmy Moore, Dallas went into the lead in club batting, also in total hits and doubles. Shreveport led in runs and stolen bases.

Payne Out In Front

George Payne's 23rd victory, scored over Houston Thursday, put the Spudder ace far ahead in games won, but Collard, Shreveport and Rhem, Houston, both undefeated, top the pitching percentages. Andy Messenger, Wichita, had struck out 121 batsmen, and Owens, Shreveport, had toiled 278 innings.

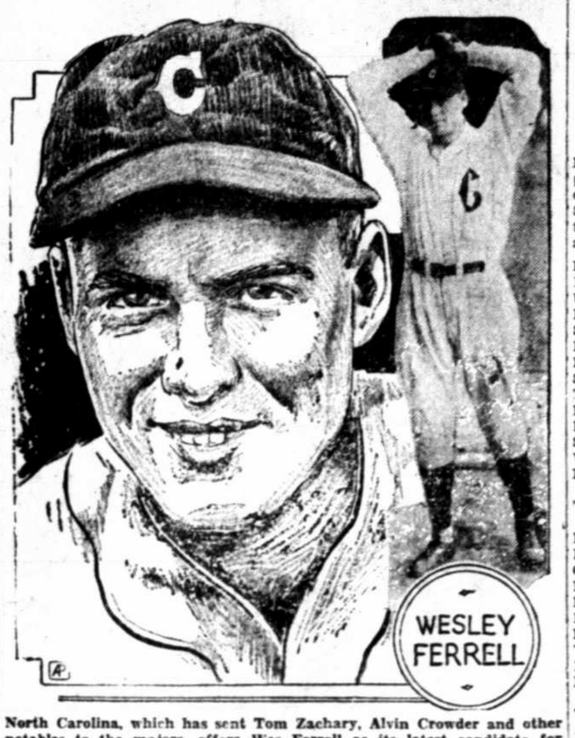

QUEER WEDDING

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—One of the oddest marriages ever made in this city of mixed races was the recent one of Eloah Dawn, full-blooded American Indian, and Jeremiah Sullivan, brawny son of Erin. Miss Dawn is 30 and a writer. Sullivan is 39 and is a salesman. The bride is from Montana and Sullivan from Massachusetts.

The first time Milburn Shoffner, Cleveland rookie, faced Babe Ruth, he fanned him.

Bisons Cut Lead Of Wichita Spudders To Half Game

Wes Ferrell Is Great Prospect; Defeats A's Three Games In Row

North Carolina, which has sent Tom Zachary, Alvin Crowder and other notables to the majors, offers Wes Ferrell as its latest candidate for major honors in baseball. He is 21 and had won 13 games up to August 21.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24. — (AP) — Take it from a 21-year-old pitching flash, these big leaguers are hard to fool but it can be done.

Wes Ferrell, Cleveland's "kid" hurler is the boy with the confidence and the stuff to outguess the big shots in the majors.

He has whipped the hard hitting Athletics three times in a row. The last time Wes beat the Mackmen the score was 3 to 1 and the scrappy young right hander had to hold the slugging trio of Cochrane, Simmons and Foxx to one hit to win. Furthermore, he had to outpitch the veteran, Rube Walberg. And that wasn't the smallest part of the task.

Ferrell, who was a Three-Eye leaguer in 1928, is one of those rare prospects who has about everything a manager could ask. He is strong on everything a big time pitcher needs, except possibly age and experience but that has proved no great handicap.

Wes is six feet, two inches tall and weighs 190 pounds. He has a curve that breaks where it should and the speed to make his delivery remarkably deceptive for a first-year man.

Ferrell comes from a baseball family. Brother Dick catches for the Browns, and Brother George plays outfield for Memphis in the Southern association.

The Ferrells live at Guilford, N. C. Wes attended Guilford Military school. Cleveland spotted him at the military school and sent him to Terre Haute for his training. They called him home this spring.

Wes had won 13 games on August 21 and appeared good for four or five more for the season, which makes him about the best of the first year pitchers.

The Nut Cracker

By Joe Williams

Chuck Wiggins, Indiana cauliflower, was arrested the other day for hitting a couple of policemen. Indiana still cherishes some old-fashioned ideals.

WIGGINS PROBABLY WILL NOT BE PUNISHED, HOWEVER. HE RECENTLY FOUGHT GEORGE GODFREY AND THE CHANCES ARE HE WAS NOT ACCOUNTABLE.

Another of our favorite athletes, Grover Cleveland Alexander, was sent home by the Cardinal management the other day because he reported in bad condition. These youngsters must be taught.

Alex didn't look so well after returning from a fishing trip. Evidently Bill McKechnie doesn't want his men to be saying it with a reel.

Babe Ruth, the cripple, has regained his place at the top of the home run guild. This suggests that another cripple next year will be Col. Ruppert's pocketbook.

Victorio Campolo, the new heavyweight sensation, is six feet six inches tall and weighs 220. The cauliflower industry is catching on to that idea of mass production.

Scores Ace With Billiard Shot

DANVERS, Mass., Aug. 24. (AP)—Billiards and golf were all mixed up when George Thorpe, professional at the Homestead country club, made a hole-in-one.

A golfer might say that Thorpe's hole-in-one was the result of a spoon shot. A billiards player would insist that it was a one-cushion carom. And both would be right.

It happened at the 193-yard third. Thorpe belted a spoon shot earnestly in the direction of the green. But the wind promptly caught the ball and whirled it against a shelter at the fourth tee, 25 yards away. The ball caromed off the shelter at right angles, right back to the green and rolled right into the cup.

Wichita Tourney To Open Sept. 2

WICHITA FALLS, Aug. 24.—The second annual invitation golf tournament of the Wichita Falls Golf and Country Club, starting Labor Day, September 2, and continuing through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of that week, promises to be one of the most interesting competitions on Texas' links calendar.

A feature of this years' tournament that should appeal to the general run of golfers is the fact that no specified number of flights has been named and that every entrant will qualify for match play in some flight. There will be just as many flights as the entry list will care for, with valuable prizes going to winners and runnersup in each of the groups.

The first day's program calls for the playing of the 18-hole qualifying round, a long driving contest in the afternoon and a stag dinner at the club house in the evening. Tuesday will be a heavy day, with first and second round matches scheduled, as well as first round play in all consolation flights. Wednesday third round and semi-finals matches will be completed, leaving only the finals, the championship to be over 36 holes of play, for Thursday, the final day. The tournament dance is slated for Thursday, the final day. The tournament dance is slated for Tuesday night and other entertainment features will assure the visitors few spare moments during the four-day meeting.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

Headlining today's sport activities in Lubbock will be the clash between the Hubbers and their rivals of the north Panhandle, the Amarillo Tactless Texans at Merrill Park, starting at 3:30.

Another invading team from the "north countree," will appear here today at the Lubbock Country Club. Walter Sykes and his ambitious golfers from the Lenaware Municipal course in Plainview will return the visit made by local golfers to Plainview recently. Today's meeting between the two teams promises to be on the order of a grudge affair. The local took 8 out of 12 matches in their previous contest.

At Abernathy this afternoon, a pair of South Plains teams will be battling for first money in the three-day tournament staged in that town. The Lubbock Advertisers, Petersburg, Anton and Abernathy are the teams entered. Large crowds were on hand for the double headers on Friday and Saturday. The Lubbock club is led by Dutch Luenberger and Roy Karr.

Wellington and Cordell meet in the third game of the Texas-Oklahoma League play-off today on the latter's diamond. The Texas team came to life Friday and staved off defeat by handing the Oklahomans a 11 to 0 beating after Cordell had taken the first two games on successive days. French held the Oklahoma sluggers in check while his mates pounded out a decisive triumph over the Cordell chunkers.

A feature of the Wellington victory Friday was a double steal in which Red Gaither, former Lubbock third sacker, stole home. Gaither is holding down the hot corner for Wellington during the play-off series and from all reports is playing a classy brand of baseball.

The two teams play today and Monday in Cordell and if a sixth game is necessary will meet in Wellington Tuesday.

Fred McJunkin, president of the Dallas Steers, was fined $100 the other day by baseball's high commissioner, K. M Landis, for failure to answer a letter promptly. It seems that Kenesaw Mountain wrote McJunkin early last week with orders that the letter be answered within 24 hours. The busy Dallas executive allowed the matter to slip his mind for a couple of days and the fine was placed on his head. This incident is what we would choose to call "ruling with an iron hand." But take it or leave it and believe it or not, McJunkin will hereafter give prompt attention to his correspondence with the baseball czar from here on out.

Admirers of Rogers Hornsby, the slugging Chicago second baseman, are getting world's of satisfaction from press comments coming from major league cities in which the Rajah is extolled for his brilliant services with the McCarthy aggregation. All sports scribes are singing the praises of the man who has been swapped off by three clubs is as many years. Those who predicted Hornsby would ruin the morale of the Cubs now admit his fiery temperment and all-around ability has made a championship club out of Joe McCarthy's club. In addition to hitting the agate at a terrific pace and leading the National League in scoring, the Rajah has been playing flawless baseball in the field and has proven one of the main cogs in the Bruins' wonderful defense.

The Chicago manager will allow no one to accuse Hornsby of hurting the Cubs' chances. On the other hand, McCarthy is convinced that Rogers has furnished just the punch necessary to put the Cubs on the road to pennantville. He lives, talks and sleeps baseball and no major leaguer puts out any more than Hornsby.

WONDERFUL getaway, thrilling speed, perfect balance and comfort, low riding position, full-floating seat, and big balloon tires — that's the latest "45" Twin, the ideal solo motorcycle! So economical, too — running cost is barely 2¢ per mile.

Come and see its new features. Super-strength frame, drop forged fork, 4" full balloon tires on drop-center rims, automatic increase of generator output, and many others.

Come in today.

Five States To Be Represented In 9th Annual Lipton Cup Yacht Races Starting In Houston On August 31

Mobile Yacht Club Is The Defending Champion In Coming Classic; First Time In Houston

HOUSTON, Aug. 24. (AP)—Seven clubs and five states will be represented in the ninth annual Lipton Cup yacht races on the waters of the Houston Yacht club, Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 2.

Heading the list of entrants in the water classic is the Mobile yacht club, defending champion. The four Alabama skippers will vie with a like number of sailors from yacht clubs of Sarasota, St. Petersburg and Pensacola, Fla., and Biloxi, Miss., the Southern Yacht Club of New Orleans and the Houston Yacht club.

Officials are planning to make the ninth annual races here the best in their history. Eight sailboats are being put in tiptop shape. Seven boats will be used regularly and the other will be available in case of emergency.

This will be the first time the regatta ever has been held in Houston. Being familiar with both the boats and the course the Houston skippers will have a slight advantage in the five mile races.

Since each team is composed of only the four ranking sailors of the club and there will be five races one man will sail twice in competition.

Henry Ekstrom, golf captain at Dartmouth, is the new state amateur champion of New Hampshire.

Herman Is Still Ahead In National

Brooklyn Slugger Continues To Set Dizzy Pace With War Club; Hornsby Leads In Scoring

NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (AP)—Babe Herman, the Brooklyn super-slugger, continued to set a dizzy pace at the head of the National League batting table, this week with .409, according to figures issued today including games of last Wednesday. Frank O'Doul, the Philadelphia puncher, has made important gains upon Herman, and this week rests only 11 points out of the lead at .398.

Other leading regulars are: Terry, New York, .385; Hornsby, Chicago, .362; Traynor, Pittsburgh and Hendrick, Brooklyn, .358; Klein, Philadelphia, .357; L. Waner, Pittsburg, .353; Frisch, St. Louis, .348; and Stenhenson, Chicago, .346.

Hornsby Scores Most

Hornsby leads in runs scored with 112, and Ott of New York in runs batted in with 117. O'Doul has the greatest total of hits, 186, and Frederick of Brooklyn, the largest crop of doubles, 41. L. Waner sets the pace with 15 triples, and Klein with 33 home runs. Kiki Cuyler of Chicago is out in front with 31 stolen bases.

Burleigh Grimes slipped back to the top of the pitching table when Guy Bush lost a 4 to 1 decision to the Giants at the Polo grounds. That defeat left Bush a record of 17 victories and three losses for a percentage of .850, while Grimes retained his record of 16 games won and only two lost, for .889. The pirate star has worked only once since his injury, and that once was in a game already lost.

Philadelphia leads in team batting with .307 and has two rivals in the .300 class—Pittsburgh and Chicago which rest just even with the 300-mark New York is only three points away.

The Cubs lead in team fielding with .975, one point more than the Giants can show. Cincinnati is only one point behind New York.

Ten Fords Sold Here In One Day

George E. Benson, local Ford dealer, hung up what is believed to be a record for the year on Friday of last week when ten Model A Fords were delivered in one day, bringing the total for the month up to 57.

This was not a record for the local Ford house, it was pointed out, but the largest number of the new models that have been sold in one day. Fifteen new cars were sold in one day on one occasion before the present model made its appearance.

Used cars sold this month, approaching the number of new machines, brings the total number of deliveries up near the one hundred mark.

Busy Lubbock halts to welcome the Rev. Mordecai Fowler Ham, Crusader for Christianity. Lubbock is more than willing to pause to listen to the teachings of this modern disciple, who, for nearly two score years, has traveled almost the length and breadth of our land in the interest of his master, Jesus Christ.

We, the undersigned merchants and business people of Lubbock, urge that every man and woman in this city seize the opportunity of hearing the great messages from Rev. Ham, who, for a few short weeks, is the guest of the Ministerial alliance. We believe Rev. Great Britain Makes Strong Bid For Schneider Race Victory

By NEA Service.

CALSHOT, Eng., Aug. 23.—With France completely out of the race, and the American entry almost as much a mystery as ever, Great Britain and Italy believe that the Schneider Cup races off Cowes, England, early next month, will be a two-sided contest.

But watever Lieutenant Al Williams, U. S. navy flyer, and his Mercury plane are able to do, it is almost certain that all known records for seaplane speed will be broken. This has been the regular story of the races since they were instituted.

Jacques Schneider, French sportsman and aviation pioneer, presented the trophy to the Aero club of France in 1912. Under the conditions of the gift, the trophy is held by the most prominent flying club of the country winning it, until it is lifted by another nation. Each race must be held in the country winning the previous contest. Thus, the race is in England this year because the last one, in 1927, was won by a Britisher.

How Fast They'll Fly.

Calculations based on known designs of racing ships show that the maximum straightway speed of the English entries will be about 360 miles of the course, in which there are 14 acute and 14 obtuse angles. the average speed of the winner probably will be somewhat less than 0 miles an hour.

The United States has a single entry this year, and Lieutenant Williams is bringing it to Cowes without having given it a flying speed test. The Italians are making a formidable bid, sending 10 planes with crews and mechanics for each. The British have three machines made by the Gloster company and three by the Super-marine company. Of these, four have been chosen for actual competition.

The type built by the Gloster company is known this year as the Gloster-Napier 6 Seaplane. It has a small section body of duralumin. Symmetrical wing section and duralumin floats. Seams are flush with the "skin," so that not even a rivet head can protrude into the airstream. The fuselage is of the smallest possible dimensions and the cock-pit only just takes a normal-sized pilot. The floats are of duralumin.

Engine Power Is Secret.

The machines are powered with the latest Napier engines, and the only machines to finish the course at the Lido in 1927 were fitted with Napiers. The engine in 1925 developed 700 horsepower. The one for this year exceeds this in power, but the figures have been kept a secret. It is rumored that it will develop more than 930 horsepower.

The general shape of the engine is that fitted in the winner of the Schneider Cup in 1927, and also that in which Lieutenant Greig secured the world's highest official seaplane speed — 319 1-2 miles per hour. Radiators for cooling the motor have been set into the wings.

The type built by the Supermarine company is the one known this year as the Supermarine Rolls Royce S 6. It is a low wing monoplane twin float type enitrely built of metal. It is a development of the S-5 type which won the cup in 1927. The fuel is carried in the floats, the tanks being constructed as a section of these floats. The wings are made of two thicknesses of duralumin. The machine is fitted with a Rolls Royce engine known as Type R. It has 12 water-cooled cylinders placed in two banks of six each.

Here's the first picture of Great Britain's favorite in the Schneider Cup races. The Supermarine S-6 is taking the water for its first trial flight at Calshot aerodrome. Note the tiny wings and the rather large pontoons, built close together so that they form a supporting surface even in the air. The plane is built entirely of metal, is powered by a twelve-cylinder motor which already has driven the craft more than 300 miles an hour in tests.

Numbers Lucky
Oil Men Want 13 And 36

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 24. —(AP)—To oil men there is nothing ominous about the number 13. They think it is lucky. So is 36.

In the oil fraternity there is a superstition that land sections bearing either of those numbers are likely to contain oil.

Walter Hart, secretary of Oklahoma's school land commission, says records show higher bids for leases on sections numbered 13 or 36.

Mordecai Ham Wages Battle On Sin Backed By Traditional Background Of Six Generations Of Preachers

Evangelist Here Has Spread Gospel In Many Cities

By BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE traditions of six generations of preachers from a background before which Mordecai Fowler Ham marches in waging his campaign for Christianity—a campaign which had its beginning away back in 1901 after a traveling salesman had made his final trip into Chicago headquarters and had written his last order on the company's books.

It was then that Mr. Ham heeded a call to travel for God and for almost twenty-nine years he has been conducting evangelistic campaigns, his Bible his sample case; his customers the people of the world.

Threats Don't Worry Him

The Reverand Ham is unconcerned about the many threats that have been made against his life. Such persecutions are inconsequential, he believes, for "they cannot hurt me as long as I am a Christian. It is only my body that they can touch and I suffer then as other Christians have suffered in furthering a great cause," he explains.

In Reverand Ham one meets a man who has developed his God-given trinity—his mind, his body and his spirit.

Is Handsome Man

He has a fine head poised on broad shoulders, graying hair and close-corpped moustache streaked with silver. He is handsome with that masculine comliness which has to it none of the weaker traits of the dandy.

He is an engaging conversationist, a calm and unhurried man whose speech never lapses into the "preaching" vein or the "publicity talk" so often heard in interviews for newspapers—an approachable fellow and a cheerful talked to whom one may comfortably listen as he discourses.

He Makes Predictions

This evangelist's study of the Bible has been so deep that he has been able to interpret many of the scriptural prophecies. He predicted the beginning of the World War at a revival in Mineral Wells, Texas, preceding that conflict, he predicted the invasion of Jerusalem and many other historical events of the last few years.

"They are all written in the Bible, not only in Revelations but throughout the book," he explained, sounding as matter of fact as one would concerning happenings recorded in the evening newspaper.

The end of the world—a change in the order of things—may not be far distant, Reverend Ham believes.

Has Decided Views

"The scriptures say that certain signs will foretell the second coming of Christ and the end of the world. Some of these signs have come to pass," he said, "and I would not be surprised to see Christ come to earth during my life time.

"It is then that He will begin his reign of a thousand years at the end of which, according to the Bible, there will be the destruction by fire.

"We may look forward to some very great events between now and 1933, happenings which have been foretold in the scriptures," this man states.

Reverend Ham believes that the world is now preparing for another great conflict, the greatest war of the ages and one which has religion as an inciting cause.

Reverand Ham reads his Bible, interprets it and loves it, believing that it is the one entirely authentic work in the world—a volume which is reliable from a scientific standpoint as well as from every other.

"When one has traveled with this book as long as I have and studied it as I have, he cannot help but have faith in its contents," he asserted.

Reverend Ham is the seventh preacher in a family of these men. His father, his grandfather, his great-grandfather, men of six generations were preachers. His ancestry goes back to the Roger Williams of Colonial history fame. He is a grandson of Mordecai Fowler, a preacher of some same two generations ago.

It is not unusual for Reverend Ham to have converts who assert that their parents were saved in revivals conducted by his forbears.

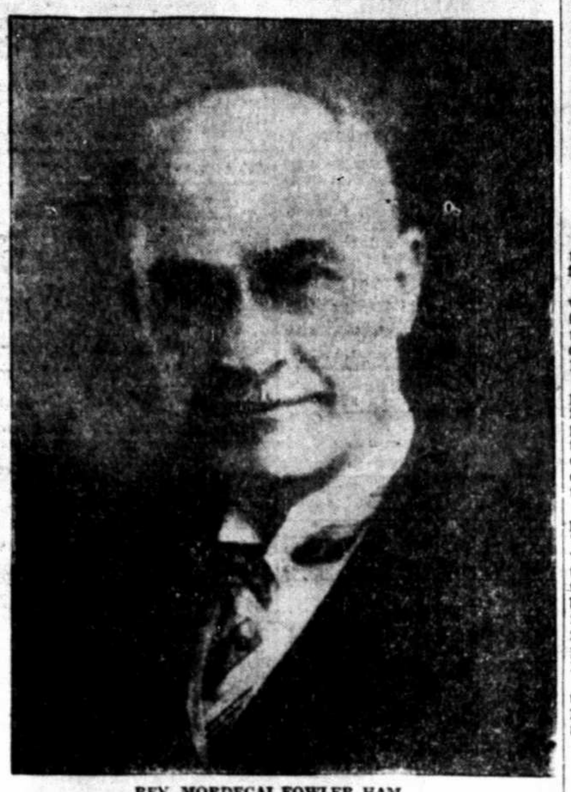

Reverand Ham has conducted approximately 250 revivals of from four to six weeks since he has been an evangelist and he believes that there have been more than 285,000 converts in these meetings, more than 700 of whom are preachers. He came to Lubbock from Jackson, Tenn., and there were seven ministers in that city who had been converted in meetings which he had conducted.

The only pastorate he has ever held was one at the First Baptist church in Oklahoma City during the last two years. He resigned there this year to continue as an evangelist, the work which he likes better than any other. He is a Kentuckian and his family has lived there except during the two years in Oklahoma. He is planning to move back to Kentucky this fall.

"I conducted fifty funerals during the first two months of this year in Oklahoma City—many of these people were not members of my church and I was called in because I am more of an interdenominationalist than anything else—so I decided to leave my pastorate and return to the evangelistic field.

"I was tired of burying lost souls. I wanted to go back to saving them," he stated.

The Ham evangelistic party finances revivals which they conduct, asking no town to guarantee money before they will go there. "We are paid through offerings," Reverend Ham explained, "for God's work will be supported."

declared Dr. Horn. Well chosen words of advice were advanced while every encouragement was offered the youth of this modern age.

Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of Texas Technological college and a friend and adviser of youth, made a short address in which he followed the lead of Dr. Ham. Dr. Horn's words were intended more for encouragement.

Despite the fact that Saturday night tends to decrease the attendance, the large tabernacle was comfortably full.

Revivalist Talks To Farmers On Saturday

Approximately 2,000 people gathered on the east side of the courthouse square here Saturday afternoon, to hear the Rev. M. F. Ham, tell, "What Is The Cause of Hard Times on The Farm."

"All drouths, famines, pestilence, earthquakes, afflictions," Mr. Ham declared, "are caused by sin. There is not an economic trouble that does not have a spiritual trouble back of it."

He Blames Sin

"All our troubles—hard times on the farm, our present drouth, all—are caused by sin. Every drouth-stricken community in the United States experiences drouth because of the sin of that community.

"If farmers will get back right with God, nothing can hurt them."

The evangelist told of a number of instances when, he claimed, prayers for rain, during his meeting, brought the end of drouths. He contended that every farmer should give a tithe and stated that if they did, their troubles would be greatly eliminated.

Urges Tithe System

Many rewards for tithing were related by Rev. Mr. Ham, among them being the instance when seven Georgia farmers planted four acres of cotton as their tithe. When the boll weevils visited the section, "not a weevil was to be found on a single boll of these farmer's cotton", he said.

He also said that originally climatic conditions, rainy seasons, etc., on the earth, were orderly on every spot of it, but that sin came into the world, changing the earth's movement from 360 revolutions a year to 365, Bringing trials and tribulations, cold climates and afflictions, drouths and famine.

Big Crowd On Hand Saturday Morning

A large audience heard Mr. Ham Saturday morning on "The First Conflict Between Modernists and Fundamentalists" a stirring message based upon the experience of Peter before the Sanhedrin following his miraculous deliverance from prison.

"The apostles didn't have influence enough to keep out of jail," Mr. Ham pointed out, "but they had power enough to turn the world upside down. It is not influence which our modern church stands in need of today, it is power."

ment yesterday by Wolfe to officers, there were four boys in the group. Following the shooting, the other boys made their escape leaving their automobile in the road. Officers rushed to the place but when they arrived the car could not be found.

Bothered By Prowlers

Wolfe declared that he has been bothered for sometime by prowlers in his watermelon patch and that they have been destroying and carrying off the crop. He made his bed down in the field Friday night prepared to scare off any pilferers. With the arrival of the youths the shooting followed.

A report from the West Texas hospital last night stated that Doris Cain, 14-year-old daughter of E. M. Cain, of the Carlisle community, was resting well and that her general condition was very favorable. She suffered gunshot wounds last Wednesday night when J. B. Moore, farmer, fired upon her and several companions while they were alleged to have been passing through his orchard. Moore was released Thursday on $1,000 bond following the filing of charges of assault with intent to kill.

INCOMES PROBED

Claim Bexar Officials Get Less Than $20,000

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 24 (AP)—No officer of Bexar county ever has received an income of any amount approaching $20,000, R. Neil Campbell, tax collector, Saturday informed a state senatorial investigation committee looking into the operation of the fee system.

Campbell told the committee that higher incomes from Bexar county officers are impossible as only seven per cent of the taxes payable are delinquent. This, Senator Pink Parrish later said, was the lowest tax delinquency in Texas. This committee found the delinquency in other counties to be as follows: Tarrant county, 25 per cent; Dallas county, 15 per cent; Harris county, 10 per cent.

nouncement received here yesterday from Brownfield.

Several Lubbock citizens, together with farmers from this section plan to attend the all day affair. The results of last year and this year's deep breaking will be shown on Mr. Berry's farm.

Plans also include some actual plowing demonstrations with 28 inch discs and 20 inch moldboard plows. Different sizes and makes of tractors will be used making this one of the largest tractor plowing demonstrations ever to be held on the South Plains.

Deep breaking is being advocated primarily to stop sand from blowing. This feature alone is said to be worth investigating. Other phases to be shown are increased production and fewer weeds. Nothing will be for sale at the meeting. The day is one planned for farmers to see for themselves what might be expected from breaking at a depth of 18 inches.

Other farms to be inspected are those of W. H. Wharton, Seagraves Mr. Griffith, Wellman, and Arthur Sawyer, Brownfield.

Cat Brings Home Baby Skunks

By NEA Service

Cleveland, Aug. 24.—B. A. Gage and his wife were sitting on their porch one evening recently talking over the day's events. Mrs. Gage happened to look down the driveway. With an astonished expression she exclaimed to her husband, "Well, would you look at what Tabby brought home?"

Gage looked. The proud cat with tail arched and strutting, was leading five little miniatures with tails arched, up the driveway. As they got closer, however, Gage observed that the cats in the rear of the parade had white streaks down their backs.

"Skunks," whispered Gage, and they both beat a hasty retreat into the house.

Cotton Fluctuates; Bulls Are Active

Week-End Evening Up Is Feature Of Cotton Saturday

Final Prices Show Slight Net Gains For Day When December Contracts Sell High After Trading Low

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24. (AP)—Trading in cotton today was restricted mainly to evening up for over the week-end. Final prices showed moderate net gains for the day. December contracts after trading down to 18.60, rallied to 18.78 and closed at 18.75 compared with 18.68, yesterday's closing figure. The general market closed steady at net advances of 5 to 8 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 3 points in response to favorable Liverpool cables. Early trading took active positions three points above yesterday's close but before the offerings were absorbed October sold at 18.33 and January 18.64, or 11 to 13 points below the opening and 8 to 10 points down from yesterday's close.

October Rallies

October rallied to 18.51 and January 18.83, or 18 to 19 points above the lows. The close was a few points under the best with October at 18.46 and January 18.82.

Irregular Movement In Cotton Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Conflicting opinions as to the Southwestern weather outlook were reflected by further evening-up of commitments and irregular fluctuations in cotton today. After selling off to 18.65 early, December rallied to 18.86 and closed at 18.78 compared with 18.75 at the close of Friday. The final tone of the market was barely steady at net advances of 3 to 10 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 4 points, and eased off.

Offerings Absorbed

Early offerings were absorbed on the decline to 18.34 for October and 18.93 for March, or about 6 to 10 points below yesterday's closing quotations, and the markets firmed up.

The spurt which carried October up to 18.55 and March to 19.14 or about 20 points above the low level of the morning, but this advancement realized with last prices showing reactions of several points from the best.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week on Friday was estimated at 41,000 bales against 35,000 last year. Liverpool cables reported fair trade calling with an improved spot demand.

CONTEST IS LIKELY

Party-Old Issue Of Tariff Looms As Trouble

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24. (AP)—Increasing signs of a spirited contest in the senate over the party old issue of tariff were apparent at the capital today as democrats revealed plans to broaden the attack against the bill as revised by republican members of the finance committee.

The minority disclosed it intended to direct its drive against not only many proposed higher levies but also against a score of existing rates which it regards as unduly high and in need of revision downward.

Amendments will be prepared on virtually every industrial item. Details of these and other phases of the democratic program will be worked out next week by the eight democrats on the finance committee.

CRASH PROVES FATAL

DENTON, Aug. 24. (AP)—E. A. Felder, Fort Worth, was killed instantly, and Miss Ruth Felder, his daughter, was injured in an automobile wreck on the Fort Worth-Denton highway today. Their car was reported to have left the road when Miss Felder applied the breaks.

TAKE AWAY GUNS

SALTILLO, Coahuila, Mexico, Aug. 24. (AP)—The military authorities here have ordered that pistols and other weapons be taken away from all civilians temporarily as a safeguard against trouble in Sunday's state elections.

A sudden shock, such as a loud clap of thunder, will kill hundreds of oysters.

Change Little

Vet Teacher Says Times Are Same

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 24. (AP)—When the school bell rang its last call to Miss Mattie Moore this summer it ended 42 years of teaching, 31 years in the same school, same room and same grade.

She laid aside the blackboard pointer to retire from teaching and from 1-B grade with a record of never having missed a day on account of illness and never being late to a class.

"Children of today are about the same as 30 years ago, in temperament, obedience and conduct," she says. "They get more out of their first half year's work because of improved methods, but in natural talent rate about the same as always. If there is any noticeable change it is that they are slightly more nervous than they used to be. It may be the faster pace of living now."

Western Cattle Increase Movement For Feature On Livestock Circuit

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 24. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Livestock trade around the 11 market circuit this week was featured by an increased movement of western cattle. Killers were quick to take advantage of a liberal supply of grass cattle to reduce prices to the lowest levels of the season. Current values on killing classes were unevenly 25 to 1.00 lower than a week ago, with western showing the most loss. Highly finished native fed steers in Chicago realized 17.00 the week's top. receipts were 230,200 as compared with 189,449 last week and 232,802 a year ago.

Hogs Are Lower

Hogs were lower the fore part of the week but lighter receipts on last days resulted in most of the loss being recovered. Chicago had a late top of 12.00. Total offerings 377,900, a decrease of 11,000 from last week but 35,000 heavier than a year ago.

Fat lamb trade was marked by moderate fluctuations steady to 25c lower than a week ago. The movement of ewes was more liberal and declines of 25c to 1.00 were enforced. The supply was 315,100 against 304,346 last week and 331,573 a year ago.

Wheat Values Get Heavy Setback In Saturday Market

Hopes For Sustained Outlet For Big Stock Of United States Wheat Are Dashed To Cause Drop

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, Aug. 24. (AP)—Dashing of hopes that a sustained outlet for the big stock of United States wheat was at hand gave wheat values a decided setback today Instead of witnessing a fresh outburst of European buying of domestic wheat today wheat traders here had to face news that ocean freight rates for southern hemisphere wheat had been cut. Simultaneously, export demand for wheat from North America came to a complete halt, with the movement of spring wheat away from the farms increasing both north and south of the Canadian line.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 1-4c to 2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 5-8c to 1 5-8c up, oats 3-8c to 5-8c off, and provisions unchanged to 17c down.

Receipts Increase

Primary receipts of domestic wheat this week were more than 2,000,000 bushels larger than at the corresponding time last year.

There were estimates current that world's wheat stocks in second hand had increased 18,890,000 during July compared with 16,987,000 bushel decrease for that month last year. Corn made a spirited advance today to $1.00 a bushel for Chicago December delivery.

The weekly weather forecast pointed to a general shower period ahead. Oats were influenced largely by the action of wheat.

CHARGES AVERTED

Dallas Officials Apologize In Open Court

DALLAS, Aug. 24. (AP)—Threatened contempt proceedings against five Dallas city officials growing out of efforts to enforce automobile parking ordinances by the impounding of cars parked in violation of city statutes were averted today by an apology made in open court.

The officials, Mayor J. Waddy Tate, Police Commissioner W. C. Graves, Police Chief Claude Trammell, Assistant Police Chief A. H. Dellinger and Policeman J. E. Philpot, were ordered to appear in court today to show why they should not be held in contempt of court for obstructing civil process after Philpot, in charge of the impounding place, had refused to release T. K. Irwin's automobile dragged to the pound when found parked in violation of a city ordinance, when served with a writ of sequestration.

PILOT MEETS DEATH

Tailspin Proves Fatal For Demshock Saturday

EUGENE, Ore., Aug. 24. (AP)—J. J. Demshock, naval chief aviation pilot stationed at San Diego, Calif., was killed here today when his Boering plane went into a tail spin at 300 feet and crashed on the Eugene airport.

Demshock, with six other naval fliers in individual planes, took off for San Diego, making a perfect run down the field. His plane gained altitude swiftly, but Lieut. T. G. Richards, commander of the flight, said Demshock pulled his plane too sharply and a heavy load of gasoline threw it into a tail spin.

SIX BLOCKS RAZED

Loss Of $350,000 Sustained In Spokane Fire

SPOKANE, WASH., Aug. 24. (AP)—Six square blocks of blackened ruins stood today as mute evidence of fire that destroyed the lumber and fuel storage yards of the McGoldrick Lumber company; a sanitarium, an apartment building and fourteen frame houses with a total loss of $350,000.

The fire started at 6 p. m., yesterday. It put out early today after firemen had battled most of the night against intense heat and a stiff wind. Starting from an undetermined caused the blaze spread rapidly through the lumber yards to nearby property.

Priority for all vehicles coming from the right has proved a failure in France and cars on main highways now have the right of way.

LUBBOCK REAL ESTATE
Is just as fine an investment as it was ten years ago, and you know how fine that was. Those two unencumbered lots we have to trade for unencumbered land at $20,000 carry a great opportunity. Ten years from now they will be worth $50,000 and you will hear somebody say, Yes sir, I remember when those lots sold for $20,000. How often we hear expressions like that.
Those two lots in Highland for $650 are also wonderful little bargains. They are worth not less than $900.

Blissful Wedding Turns To Torture

Five years of blissful wedded life followed by five other years of almost torture was described in a petition filed Friday for divorce in the 99th district by a Lubbock woman.

The couple finally separated the early part of this year after having lived together since 1919. The woman declared that the five years prior to their separation her husband started drinking continuously and that when he did he started a course of treatment toward her that was unbearable.

She alleges that he was cruel to her and abused her, that often even when he was sober he would curse her and when drinking would strike and beat her. For the past two or three years she has had to support herself and often him also, according to her statement.

Naval Parity Of Equality Likely

Agreement Between United States And Great Britain Expected In Informed Circles In Washington

BY C. P. WILLIAMSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Naval equality, or parity, between the United States and Great Britain is expected in informed quarters here to be attained between 1934 and 1940.

The two nations have agreed upon applications of the principle of parity to the two navies and one of the most important questions discussed between Ambassadors Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald is that of determining in what year naval equality can best be attained

Would Have Superiority

By 1940, under the present naval building programs of the two countries, the British Empire would have a cruiser superiority of some 80,000 tons. Prime Minister MacDonald, however, has suspended work on the 10,000 ton cruisers Surrey and Northumberland and if these are not completed the disparity would be reduced by 20,000 tons.

No decision has been reached on the year in which parity could best be attained. Experts of both countries have their own ideas on this subject. Some contend that the year 1936 when some 65,000 tons of small British cruisers laid down between 1910 and 1916 would be completely obsolete, would be a logical time to work toward the securing of parity. If these cruisers were not replaced the tonnage basis by 1936 would be approximately equal.

Beauty Contests Are Too Frequent

GALVESTON, Aug. 24. (AP)—Asserting that the Galveston international pageant of pulchritude antedated Atlantic City's bathing beauty contest by two years, Willett L. Roe, manager of the local event, today wrote a letter to Mayor Anthony Ruffu of the New Jersey resort city protesting against the proposed revival of the show there as an "international spectacle."

Roe pointed out that the Galveston pageant had been international in its scope since 1926 and that "it is obvious that there can be but one world's contest staged each year where the world's most beautiful woman can legitimately be selected"

Roman Welcome Is Given Legion Head

ROME, Aug. 24. (AP)—Rome today gave a Roman welcome to the visiting party of members of the American Legion headed by National Commander Paul McNutt. Their day was loaded with visits and receptions, of which the climax was an audience with Premier Mussolini, who is considered chief of the Italian former service men and was himself wounded in the world war.

The legion representatives saluted the Italian war dead and the soldier kings of Italy this morning by laying wreaths at the Pantheon and the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Copley Tells Of Perils Of Jungle

Lubbock Realtor Recounts Experiences After Natives Leave Him In Dangerous Sumatran Wilds To Die

Editor's Note—Recalling vividly his experiences while hunting wild game in the jungles, in this, the third of a series of articles, E. W. Copley, of Lubbock, intensifies interest by leading the reader from the Sumatra wilds to equally interesting episodes on the Island of Borneo, Dutch India.

The series are written as told to Sutton Christian, member of the Avalanche-Journal staff.

I HAVE LEARNED that man can live without the refined dainties of the culinary art and in primeval manner eat ravenously of the offerings of nature.

Fourteen days alone in the jungles gave me an insight to what Adam and Eve experienced in the Garden of Eden without cream, sugar, coffee and dishes for vending palatable foods. I lived as an animal, eating fruits and destroying game life for sustenance.

Was Unexpected

At Pontianoc, port of landing on the Island of Borneo, I rested from a recent hunting expedition in the jungles of Sumartra. At the outstart of this jaunt there was no obvious impression that my party of 26 natives feared the planned hunt into the wilds of the island, for they had been faithful to me in Sumatra. Consequently, I had given little thought at this particular time to possible desertion.

After establishing camp the first evening in the Borneo jungles, following a trip up the lagoon, the chatter and surreptitious actions of the coolies and native members of my party forebode something sinister. I decided to use every precautionary measure for the night.

Stretching a large hammock ten feet above the ground, I stored all guns and ammunition and slept alongside the supplies.

Natives Sleep In Trees

The native hunters of my party, as usual, chattered far into the night. They were perched in forks of bamboo trees and were otherwise reclining for sleep.

Shortly past midnight I awoke. Everything was so still and silent that I feared the natives had left me. When daylight came I found myself alone in the wilds.

The natives had stolen all food rations and few other articles, but ammunition supplies, which were stored in the main hammock, were untouched.

Borneo Is Dangerous

The deserters feared jungles of Borneo. They thought I would proceed here in the same manner as I did while hunting in Sumatra. Inhabited in few places by head hunters, or cannibals, Borneo is truly a dangerous zone for hunters.

With death seemingly lurking in the shadows of the wilds, I prepared to find a way back to civilization. One of the hammocks was used as a sack, in which I put what few guns and ammunition supplies I could carry. The rest I stored in a tree, hoping to return with a party later and recover.

I walked down to the lagoon where the lighters and sampans had been moored. They were gone.

Stays Near River

My solitude in the jungles was no situation to cause one to appreciate nature. Every minute I feared cannibals or human devouring animals. For sustenance I ate wild fruit, killed game and built fires to roast meats. I followed the lagoon down to the Sarawak river (given the same name as the river in Sumatra). I stayed as near the banks of the river as possible. After the two weeks wandering through the wilds I came to a sea dyak village, enclosed by bamboo fence 16-feet high, inhabited chiefly by Malays. It was late in the afternoon.

I took in my arms a little boy who was playing outside the fence. Immediately his mother rushed out, snatched the boy from my arms and rushed into her house, slamming the door. There was no welcome for me, so I stretched my hammock outside the village for the night.

Shoots Holes In Coins

Next day the boy wandered out to my camp. I entertained him by shooting holes in gliders, Dutch coins, which I would give to the boy, who in turn would rush into the house and give the disfigured coins to his parents, who used them as nose and ear ornaments.

Upon the fifth day I had made friends with the entire village through presentation of gifts and had made clear to them that I meant no harm. The natives still harboured a little suspicion. They would not allow me to enter their huts, building a swinging hut for me within the village walls.

By making figures on the ground and going through many awkward gestures I explained to them that I was hunting for ourangoutangs and that I had been deserted. They agreed to help me in my mission, but made clear to me that they would not kill a female ourangoutang.

Young Ones Captured

Surrounding a mother ourangoutang and three babies, we separated the female by diverting her attention, while members of the party captured the young.

In most cases the mother and babies are accompanied by the male, which acts as a human being. He leads the way, motioning for the mother and babies to stand back while he fights. Upon one occasion I was hunting with two natives. I shot a female ourangoutang much to the displeasure of the natives. The mother ourangoutang cried like a human and started stuffing leaves in the wound. The male rushed up, licked the wound, and started dressing it with leaves, crying as though he had lost his companion. It was touchingly sad, and I didn't have the heart to shoot again. I abandoned the scene.

Six Are Captured

During eight days I was successful in capturing six young ourangoutangs which I took back to Singapore.

Developing jungle fever, and later smallpox, I remained in bed 28 days, nursed by a native woman, whose faithfulness saved by life. Boiling bay leaves, she would rub my body with the liquid preparation and would give me various wild berry tonics. Delirious and waning in strength, I experienced the worst sickness of my life during those four weeks.

Upon recovery, I was told that the Copal Moras, Dutch trade boat, which made the island every fortnight, was due to arrive soon. I returned on the boat to Singapore, reported facts of the experience in the jungles to the Dutch government and a futile search for the deserters was started.

Goes Back Again

Shortly afterwards, I organized another corps and went back to Borneo for another hunt, and with the hope that I would retrieve my hidden guns and ammunition.

Our chief sport in the evenings was hunting and catching crocodiles in the Sarawak river. A bamboo rope, to the end of which was tied a five-foot chain, on which was placed one-quarter of a deer or 12 pheasants, was used in catching the crocodile.

A great feast would follow capture of the crocodile. A green bamboo tree would be forced down its stomach and it would be placed on forks, under which would be built a fire. It would be baked, while the natives danced, until it swelled and fell apart. Then the feast would begin.

Dangerous experiences in fighting vampire bats, or flying foxes, will be related by Mr. Copley in the fourth installment of his series, to appear in next Sunday's issue of the Avalanche-Journal.

Spur Youth Makes Record With Bred Cow In Six Years

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SPUR, Aug. 24.—L. D. Foreman, a students of vocational agriculture in the Spur High School, last year carried a project that has attracted much attention, especially with respects to the origin and the work leading up to the past year.

In 1923 young Foreman bought a registered bred heifer from the J. Riley Green herd of Wolfe City, Texas, for $100. Six years have passed since then and a record has been kept of the milk production from this animal. The average daily production over the six year period has been 30 pounds, which makes a grand total of 54,400 pounds. Allowing 40c per gallon for this amount of milk would show a return from this one animal, besides the off springs, for this period amounting to $2,720. Five daughters and grand daughters are kept on the farm. Offsprings other than these have been sold for a total of $250, making a grand total of $2,970 in cash on a $100 investment in six years time.

Young Foreman used this mother of his herd in a milk production project carried in the class of vocational agriculture under Joe C. Williams, Instructor in the Spur High School and after the project was closed young Foreman sold the animal to his father for $300.00. With the returns from this $100 investment of six years standing young Foreman expects to finish A. & M. College.

This is the story of Oxford Noble's Oonawink and her service over a six year period.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

MUNDAY, Aug. 24.—The Knox county club boys who went to the A. and M. short course at College Station made a record that justifies the interest being taken in their work. Fifty-one teams entered the dairy judging contest and the Knox county teams competed and bested all but nine of them.

Twenty-nine teams were entered in the poultry judging contest where the Knox county teams placed fifth.

Gilbert Myers of Munday was awarded second place in the individual dairy judging with 153 entries. He placed seventh in poultry judging.

Financial Report Made For Summer Camp Fire Outing

Reports Made At Close Of Post Camp For Girls Of Lubbock And Floydada By Council Head

The close of another annual encampment here for Camp Fire girls and a final check-up which revealed a successful conference from every viewpoint have strengthened the faith of local leaders of girls activities in the efficacy of these summer good times for adolescent girls, according to an announcement made by J. W. Gamel, president of the city Camp Fire council.

The conference was conducted this year at Two Draw lake near Post. It lasted for a week and closed Wednesday with the return of the girls and adult leaders to Lubbock. Miss Cecelia Peterson, who directed the camp again this year, left Friday after having concluded financial and other details of the encampment. Miss Peterson is a national executive in Camp Fire and her headquarters are in Phoenix, Ariz.

Cost is $532.96

The total cost of the encampment this year was $532.96, according to a statement made by Mr. Gamel, and total receipts for the outing were $317.25. The Camp Fire organization had enough money to meet the deficiency and now has approximately $200 with which to continue the work through the fall.

There was an attendance of 56 girls and 12 adult workers at the encampment this summer and the camp was considered more successful than any during the past, Mr. Gamel said. No accidents or misfortunes were suffered by those attending.

"We had an excellent cook and a good nurse at the camp this year and the entire staff of instructors was efficient," he added.

Report is Itemized

An itemized financial report has been made by Mr. Gamel and it includes expenditures as follows:

Supplies (food), $278.01; equipment, bought), $10.40; rental equipment, $23.55; honor equipment, $17; trucking, $32; labor, $4; cook, $18; camp director, $150.

Camp fees amounted to $297 and resales at the camp netted $20.20.

Through the courtesy of the Post Chamber of Commerce, the camp site was available to the Lubbock people without charge this year, Mr. Gamel announced.

Ten Floydada girls were in the party with the Lubbock group and they were accompanied by an adult guardian from that city.

Note of Fantasy Seen In Evening Gowns Of Fashion

By ROSETTE
NEA Service Writer

PARIS, Aug. 24.—There has never been, in the annals of fashion, such a season as this. All preconceived ideas ruling previous collections have been abandoned by the creators and every one seems to have been animated by the same guiding spirit.

The points that stand out most markedly from any of the important showings are these:

There is no longer a mass production fashion.

The abbreviated skirt is a thing of the past. It now assumes almost as ridiculous an air as the crinoline.

The straight, chemise dress, without a definitely studied line, is also a thing of the past.

A New Grace Achieved

In the place of these features which women for so long demanded, the couturiers have achieved creations which appear as sheer miracles of grace, possessed of all the lure of femininity. Women will once more be shrouded in an air of mystery and look dainty and delicate.

The whole development of fashions sets a high mark in creative evolution. Whether these styles will prove evanescent is another matter. It would seem, though, that styles such as these should be enduring and hard to dislodge from feminine affections.

The successful dress this season will not as before be the dress seen on five hundred other women, but will be the personal success of the wearer. The new styles will enable women to manifest their personality. The diversity of adaptations to this new idea is infinite but there is this very determined basic fact running through all collections.

Fantasy for Evening

Owing to the exigencies of modern life, it is only in the clothes that a woman wears in the evening that new ideas and fantasy can be allowed to reign. The hankering she always has had for sumptuous materials and flowing lines ar now actualities. Seldom has one seen such masterpieces of real elegance and style.

But this year, "sports" clothes are really intended for sports and in place of the "dressy" sports ensemble there are now "street" ensembles in an endless variety of styles.

The triumph of the season belongs to the afternoon dress. It has now assumed its proper and rightful place and henceforth nobody will dream of appearing at tea in anything else.

The return to longer skirts and a higher if not normal waistline had long been heralded. Both are now an accomplished fact. This change

Little Sister Program Is Planned For College

Tech Woman's Forum To Assist With Orientation

WITH the opening of the fifth year of Texas Technological college already in the offing members of the Woman's Forum, a campus organization, have organized their program concerning the Little Sister movement which is practiced so successfully in many universities and colleges.

A coupon signifying willingness to become a big sister was printed in the "home-sick" edition of the school paper recently and names of former students are obtained in this way. All busses and trains are to be met beginning with Orientation week as far as it is possible all students will be given a little sister. Miss Marjorie Ann Ainsworth is chairman of this part of the planned program.

New Girls To Be "Dated"

The new girls will be "dated" with the freshman girls for the annual reception given by President and Mrs. Paul W. Horn in the rotunda and lobby of the Administration building during the first week of school.

Last year was the inauguration of the Little Sister movement at Tech and the Forum received a letter of commendation from the president on its satisfying results.

The purpose of the Forum as stated in its constitution is "to promote on the campus all worthy undertakings; organizations, movements, etc., of the student body; to create so far as is possible among the student body an unselfish interest in the welfare of the college and its students; to furnish a means to a better understanding of human nature by holding as many general social meetings as is found practicable, thereby helping every student to broaden his scope of friendships, to try to give every woman student a part in some extra-curricula activity in which her interests may be broadened and her service fruitful."

Reception Planned

The accomplishments of the Forum are planned for each term and this fall the annual reception will be given at the President's home. Miss Marjorie Ann Ainsworth is chairman for this event with Misses Mary Fritzell and Nell Goodloe assisting.

The college frolic is being planned for the fall term with Miss Kate Pressley as chairman and Miss Sarah Michie assisting.

Different members of the Forum will entertain also.

During the winter term lectures in connection with the Foreign Relations conference are to be given. Miss Sylva Wilson is chairman of this feature. Some social event will be given although the nature of it has not been decided upon, according to officials.

The annual garden party will be given during the spring term.

Definite accomplishments of the organization last year included the annual reception given at Dr. and Mrs. Horn's home on the cmpus for all women students of the campus. Wives of the members of the college board of directors were invited to be in the house party.

The Forum, assisted with freshman week at the beginning of school throughout the little sister movement and served punch at the close of the orientation lectures.

Large Party Given

During the winter term a bridge and forty-two party was given at Cheri-Casa with hundreds of girls in attendance.

A series of lectures given by faculty members who have toured or studied abroad was sponsored by the Forum during the spring term. These were given on Sunday afternoons and were free. Ten lectures were given.

The annual garden party was also a feature of the term at which occasion the new members, whose names had been kept secret until this time, was introduced.

Another purpose, begun last year, and planned to be carried towards some sort of completion this year, was the sponsoring, and cooperating with other organizations on the campus, a movement for the purpose of the organization of an Association of Women Students.

Special privileges for junior and senior out-of-town students were also gained through the Forum.

Mrs. Williams President

Miss Sylva Wilson was president of the Forum last year, Miss Margaret Turner was secretary while Mrs. J. H. Stiles was business manager. Other members were Misses Mary Hope Westbrook Iva Burleson, Ruth Lefforge, Anna Belle Collins, Margaret Williams, Kate Pressley, Sarah Michie, Faye Rutledge, Mrs. Eugene Wilson and Mrs. Joe Robert.

Recently elected officers are as follows: President, Miss Margaret Williams; business manager, Miss Kate Pressley; secretary, Miss Nell Goodloe; chairman of special privileges, Miss Helen Coon.

Newly elected members are Misses Pauline Patterson, Mary Frizell, Orene McClellan, Marjorie Ann Ainsworth and Helen Coon.

The purpose that has been in the minds of the members since the organization of the Forum is one which may not be realized for another three years and that is to become affiliated with The Mortar Board, a national organization, which has a purpose similar to the stated aim of the Forum.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Allene Sumner

"Why I Am Going Back to Work" is the confession of an "old-fashioned wife" in a current magazine. She calmy admits that she is going back to work because they own an automobile, and because this automobile makes it impossible to save.

She bluntly says that she is so old-fashioned she would infinitely prefer to stay at home and not work, but that she is taking her job as teacher solely because she, they, must have that $170 a month.

Her husband, she says, insists that a car, and a very good car, is a business necessity. She can't see that it is, but, anyway, they've gotten used to it, so she supposes they'll always have it.

WHAT FIGURES TELL

The women's department of the U. S. Bureau of Labor has always frothed at the mouth at the idea that any but a handful of women, so insignificant a number not to be worth bother, works for pleasure.

The bureau cites graphs proving that in "hard times" there are working women; that in "good times" there are not.

In other words, for every woman who works for "self expression" and for jasmine bath salts and orchid lingerie, there are literally thousands working for their hamburg and winter underwear for the kids.

This car phase of it is no new wrinkle, either.

Wives seem to want houses. Homes of their own. Husbands seem to want cars. Many a wife has gazed ruefully at a new car in driveway, reflected that she was living in a rented house, and said, "There stands my house."

THIS AUTO AGE

All of us are used to riding thru the country seeing cars worth twice and three times as much as the houses before which they stand.

One wonders what the basic difference is between male and female psychology which makes men and women so choose. Is it that men like the showier thing? After all, in this age, on wheels, very few people see your house, anyway, but everyone knows your car. Is there more of the four-flusher about men? Must he impress his fellows, no matter what the price?

To be sure, it is easy to understand why a house means so much more to a woman than a car, so much more to her, too, than to husband. Womans' job has always revolved about her home, it is so much more than a place to which she goes at night. It's her office, the nucleus of all her activities. And an "own home" is so much more to her than a rented one.

The lady of the pen isn't the first woman to go to work in order to help bring up a car in the way to which it is accustomed.

MOTOR MAMAS, TOO!

Sometimes, justice prompts us to say, it is mama who keeps husband's nose to the grindstone in order that the car may shine in all its nickel and purple, but I believe that in nine times out of ten when mama would prefer her home and not working and a few other things, even if she rode in no car, or a less pretentious one, it is papa who assumes that come what may and come what might, the car will stand in all its resplendent glory at any price.

Used cars just don't sell, dealers say. Few want to ride in a second-hand one. It has to be smart and the best.

"So I am going to work for $170 a month," writes "Old-Fashioned Wife," "because we have our car to bring up."

Program Outlined On Woman's Relation To Home And State By A A U W

Mrs. William Dingus, President Of University Women's Society Plans For Meetings During Coming Year

First Meeting Of Branch Is To Be Held On Oct. 5; Mrs. W. H. Bledsoe Talks On Legal Status

CHOOSING as a topic for the year, "The College Woman's Relation to the Problems of the Home and State," a program is being arranged by the Lubbock chapter of the American Association of University Women which is intended to be interesting and instructive to members of that organization.

Mrs. William Dingus is president of the society for the coming club year and she has been collaborating with Miss Bessie League, chairman of the program committee, and Miss League's committee members in arranging the year's program.

Meet In October

While Mrs. Dingus is now naming her committees and outlining the work of the chapter for the year, the first meeting will not be held until October 5 and committees will not be completed until the membership is listed next month. Mrs. Dingus expects to call a meeting of the society cabinet early in September and she plans to have chairmen of all standing committees appointed by September 1.

Membership in the A. A. U. W. is drawn from degree graduates of about 160 universities and colleges and associate membership is offered to women who have done two years of academic work in these institutions or to women holding degrees from a list of approved institutions.

Mrs. R. S. Williams is chairman of the local A. A. U. W. membership committee and has a list of institutions recognized by the American Association of University women. Since this society was organized in Lubbock several years ago, local membership has been granted to women from a number of the leading educational institutions in the United States.

Graduates of the University of Texas, Baylor University, Southern Methodist University and the College of Industrial Arts, in Texas, are eligible to national membership in the A. A. U. W.

Those who hold bachelor degrees from the State teachers colleges, Baylor college at Belton, the College of Incarnate Word, Our Lady of the Lake, Texas Christian University and Trinity University are granted associate membership.

Mrs. Bledsoe Speaker

Mrs. W. H. Bledsoe, who has studied and practiced law in Texas, is to be the speaker at the first meeting this fall, and the topic for the day will be "The Legal Status of Women," Mrs. Dingus announced this week.

Mrs. Bledsoe, who is a graduate of the University of Texas in law, is to discuss such questions as whether or not a woman is able to collect alimony in Texas, the legal ability of a woman to sue a woman in the state and related subjects. The program will continue during the year with such topics as "The Economic Status of Women," "Woman in Practical Politics," "International Relations that Interest Women," "Music and Its Relation to the Home," "Garden Planning and Landscaping," "Does Rural Education in Texas Concern the College Woman?"

A meeting is to be held early in the fall which will be open to all college women of the town, whether or not they are members of the A. A. U. W., and the annual feature program, an entertainment for senior girls in the local high school, is to be given in the spring.

Are Officials

In addition to Mrs. Dingus, the officers for the coming year include the following: First vice president, Mrs. R. S. Williams; second vice president, Miss Guasie League; secretary, Mrs. H. J. Bower; treasurer, Miss Katherine Harper; parliamentarian, Mrs. George Dupree.

The American Association of University Women has for its chief purpose the higher education of women and through an accredited list of colleges and universities, the association works for the establishment and maintenance of high standards in institutions admitting women, requiring not only academic excellence, but recognition of women on the faculty and in the administration, as well as adequate provisions for the health, housing, physical training and social life of students, Mrs. Dingus explained.

To Raise Fund

One important task of the national organization now is the raising of a million dollar fellowship fund to be used by American women who wish to do advanced work in any worthy field, according to the president here. This fund will be one of the greatest endowments for research in the world as it will not only "serve the cause of women's scholarships, but will serve also, better than any other single method, the cause of international understanding."

It is the aim of the officials of the Lubbock branch that the work here shall adhere closely to the large and definite purposes of the national organization, and not dissipate the energies of the membership in duplicating work already well done by other local and state organizations, Mrs. Dingus said, adding,

"It is believed that there is a definite task in the program of women's work which the membership of the A. A. U. W. is particularly fitted to perform. The organization deserves, therefore, not only the moral and financial support, but the active participation of every university and college woman in Lubbock in order to carry on the large tasks to which it is pledged."

Miss Grace Hunter of Colorado City is returning to her home today after attending summer school at Tech college.

Separate Coats For Fall Are Made Regal By Trimming Of Fur

BY HENRI BENDEL
For NEA Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Separate coats for fall take on elegance and become regal in their sumptuous fur trim, their fine fabrics and the beauty of their lines.

While it looks as if it were to be an autumn of three-quarter coat suits, one always needs separate coats to top frocks for daytime, matinee and tea wear. The smart wardrobe, as a matter of fact, includes the separate coat almost as a corner stone in its foundation.

The black coat, trimmed with beige fur, is one that will become many women and will prove useful because of its chic and its ability to lend itself to either black gowns or tan frocks. Green and purple are two street colors that will demand coats. The wine reds promise extreme popularity this autumn and, with so many frocks, hats, shoes and other accessories featuring this wine colored separate coats will have somewhat of a vogue.

Afternoon oats Feminine.

Afternoon coats are extremely feminine this fall. There is a strict departure from the raglan sleeved, tailored sports coat and the "dressmaker" softness of the svelter afternoon outer coverings.

Linings are important, too, this year, mainly as in indication of the more detailed workmanship put into apparel. Light linings are the favorites, with some of them corded, striped and beautifully finished by handwork.

Evening coats perhaps reflect the greatest change. Here we see greater length, with some of them sweeping the floor in the grand manner of the evening gowns they top. There is elaborate yoke treatment, panels inserted from the hips, some princess lines and a greater detail to the backs than the fronts in the autumn evening coats. Most of them feature fur, with the fur collar and elaborate sleeves of self-fabric a favorite treatment.

The all-black coat seems an indispensible article of apparel to chic young woman as well as her older sisters. A black duveytyne coat with a flared front line has unusual black Persian lamb trimming.

The cushion collar fastens with a big, soft blow of black flat crepe with the ends hanging like a scarf. The sleeves have puffs of the fur covering them from the elbows to the cuffs. The cuffs itself is of the duveytyne.

An Appropriate Turban

With this coat, a small black turban from Marie Guy seems extremely fortunate. It flares from the face in the new show-in-the-fore-head vogue and has a tiny feather bug crawling over the edge of the flared back brim.

For the woman who wears burgundy colors well, I suggest one of the new broadcloth coats that features a cape collar trim of black caracul. For several years now smooth, fine furs have been treated much the same as pliable fabris. This coat uses fur as if it were sheer broadcloth, both for the sumptuous cape collar and wide front panel and for the flaring cuffs that point above the elbow.

A black hat tops this, too, with a full crushed crown and flaring brim, with a little cocade of burgundy, yellow and black for its trimming.

Yellow for Evening

Since yellow is such a popular color, many women, will demand it in evening apparel. An orange panne velvet coat, trimmed with a luxurious fox collar, should exceed their expectations.

This coat illustrates the elaborateness from the straight lines of last season. This coat has a panel back, inserted at yoke depth, starting in a smart bow and fashioning long, pointed trains that sweep the floor in the rear. The sleeves are shirred on both the outside and the inside of the arm from cuff to elbow length giving an old Elizabethan cuffs that is charmingly graceful. The collar of fox stands high and is shallow in the front.

NOT USING AIR

LE BOURGET, France (AP)—A survey of this aviation center shows that French business men are not taking to the air mail. Only one-seventh of the traffic here is of French origin. Some observers think that the double postage charged for domestic air mail has much to do with it.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The skin is a living organism, changing constantly. Old cells die and new ones take their place, and these new cells can be coaxed into glowing loveliness if you will but give them the proper care.

There are three fundamental principles underlying all skin care, and if you will observe these three principles you can preserve the youth and enhance the beauty of your skin at no great expense of time, effort or money.

The first fundamental is to thoroughly cleanse and lubricate the skin daily. If your skin is normal or slightly oily, you may safely wash it every day, but—if you do wash it with soap and warm water, or even with a washing preparation that has been scientifically prepared to cleanse without drying out the natural oil—you should still use a good cream at least once a day to lubricate the skin, to keep it soft and supple. And remember, a well lubricated skin never cracks into lines and wrinkles! If you have one of those thin, delicate and dry skins, then be a bit sparing with soap and water! Wash your face—yes—but not more than two or three times a week. And depend upon your cleansing cream for daily cleansing and lubricating.

The second basic principle of skin care is to clear and animate the skin. Keep the circulation flowing briskly so that the blood supply can nourish the skin tissue, and, at the same time, carry off impurities that would otherwise cause the skin to look muddy. A sluggish circulation can never make a beautiful skin!

And the third fundamental to a lovely skin is daily toning and bracing. The tissues must be toned, the muscles bra[illegible] if you would keep the firm, finely chiseled contour of youth. Gentle patting will help—with the back of the hand beneath the chin—very gently for the young woman, a really brisk patting if you are developing a double chin—then a light-fingered patting upward and outward on the cheeks, following the expression lines, to exercise those muscles and make them strong enough to withstand the constant pull downward—the pull of gravity, habit and age is down, you know—and the muscles of our faces feel that gravity pull just as an apple tossed into the air is pulled downward! So pat gently—to firm and strengthen the muscles—and upward and outward ALWAYS!

For clearing and animating the skin and for toning and bracing it, you will need especially prepared creams and lotions, scientifically compounded to actively benefit the skin—not merely to smooth and soften it. When, for instance, you use the right cream to clear and animate your skin, you can actually feel a tingle the minute you smooth the cream on.

Originality Is Being Shown In Lido Beach Outfits

Original styles for beach wear are set by internationally famous women summering on the Lido. (Left to right), Daring Rosita Forbes, explorer and writer, wears Scottish plaid taffeta made into smart shorts and a sleeveless cardigan, worn over a one-piece fine knitted white jersey upper. The Baroness de Meyer, famous as one of the world's "best-dressed," sponsors the loose gob trousers in her chic white satin beach pajamas. The little gilet fastens with pearl buttons. Our own famous Peggy Joyce, as always, looks sweetly ladylike in a novel princess pajama suit that buttons up the back. It is fashioned of hand-striped silk, orange and pale gold against soft beige, colors that are charming with Peggy's fair hair. The jacket is deep gold and very pale yellow.

R. C. Burns Casts More Light On Last Indian Raid Staged In Plains Section

To Editor of Avalanche-Journal:

I read with interest and pleasure an article in recent Avalance concerning 'Early Inhabitants of Plains Section Are Still Unknown." Reference to the last Indian raid, which occurred in 1883, was incorrect in some particulars, and I am sure that you will be glad to have corrections made.

The raid was made by a small band of Comanches passing through the country from New Mexico to Fort Sill in May or June, 1883. They came through the Llano ranch (now Post properties) and during the night stole twenty horses all branded. (Curry Comb). The ranch outfit was camped on Yellow House creek the night of the theft, and I was there at the time. In the early morning the horse wrangler reported some horses missing. B. Galbraith was manager of the ranch, and ordered the wrangler to make a careful search, which he did while the remaining men made the drive for the roundup, and returned to camp about middle of the afternoon. The wrangler said that twenty missing horses could not be found where the remuda had been rounded up. When he made such report, old Sam Gholson spoke up and said: 'Boys that looks like Indians." Then the wrangler took us to the place where the remuda had been rounded up, and we soon found a trail leading northeast. This was late in the afternoon after the horses had been missed in the morning. Five or six men started on the trail. Among those who followed the trail were Sam Gholson, Ben Galbraith, Pink Hays, and I. The names of two or three I do not remember. Several men were sent to neighboring ranches to give the alarm.

The trail led in the direction of Dockum's store. We followed it until dark, and then camped. At daylight we took up the trail again, which led three or four miles west of the store. When opposite the store, we left the trail and went to the store to fill up, and get coffee or anything else, as we had missed our supper. Mr. Dockum told us that the Indians had captured and whipped his son, Charley, and then turned him loose, but that the other boy with Charley had outrun the Indians.

We concluded that it was useless to follow the trail further as the Indians had several hours the start They had stolen only these twenty horses in the Comanche camp. The agent at the Fort Sill told Mr. Galbraith that it would be best to pay the chief of the Comanches about ten dollars per head for the horses, which he did. The agent said that if Mr. Galbraith did not pay a ransom that more than likely the Indians would steal the horses again before he could get out of the Indian Territory. Galbraith was furnished by the Indian chief with an escort to Red River and across into Texas.

Soon after this Indian raid I was elected manager of the Llano Cattle company, succeeding Mr. Galbraith. I selected two top horses, Butch and Buncom. They were two of those stolen by the Indians.

Your story mentions a horse named Tallow Eye, as being one of those stolen in the raid. This was a noted horse on the Square and Compass ranch (now the Jno. D. Slaughter ranch). He has been referred to by several writers, who, I am sure never saw the horse. When I took charge of the Square and Compass ranch, Joe Sherman had Tallow Eye as his mount. Joe was quitting the ranch, and told me the names of several good horses that I should have in my mount of eight horses. He named Tallow Eye as the best all round horse on the ranch. There were 140 head in all. He cautioned me that Tallow Eye would "buck" once in a while. I rode him from July, 1884, until January, 1887, when I had a severe spell of sickness, and thereafter was not able to ride cutting, or rough gaited horses. In cutting cattle out of the herd, Tallow Eye would lunge at the animal and bite it on the tail or hips, if it did not move fast enough. Then it moved out quickly frm the herd and was in the cut before it realized where it was going. George Boles rode Tallow Eye from January, 1887, to November, 1888.

When George Boles and I moved to Lubbock county, Jim (J. S.) Weatherford, who is now tax assessor in Lynn county fell heir to Tallow Eye and rode him several years.

I was riding Tallow Eye when I killed a big buffalo cow at Cedar Lake in March, 1885. I gave Tallow Eye due credit for killing the last buffalo killed on the South Plains. As Tallow Eye was fast, he ran up within fifteen feet of the big animal. When I got alongside the buffalo, running at full speed, I pointed my rifle at its shoulders. The bullet took effect and the buffalo began to slow down. I then put a bullet in the heart of the animal. I had five men with me besides the cook and horse wrangler. Nick Beal had three men with me, but I do not remember their names. Among the men with me were W. S. Boles, a brother of George, and Sam H. Holloway, who is the father of Mrs. Tom Garrard, of Lubbock. We made this trip to Cedar Lake after cattle that had drifted there during the winter. We found that the cattle had been driven back to the brakes by another outfit. The next morning I mounted Tallow Eye with a big chunk of buffalo loin for the ranch. It was about fifty miles to the Square and Compass ranch, and I wanted Mrs. Burns to eat some buffalo meat that I had killed. I left the boys with the wagon to go back to the head of the Tobacco creek, where they would strike the Big Spring and Lubbock road.

Lubbock Public Schools Ready For Fall Term Opening

Influx Of Pupils Expected; System To Be Congested

Junior High School Will Be Operated On Double Session Plan For While; Total Expected Large

With a greater influx of pupils than ever before known in the local public schools system probably totaling 6000 by the end of the year; a larger teaching force; and a better organization M. H. Duncan, superintendent of schools, prophecies that the opening session is one which will make history.

Because of the crowded conditions in junior high school there is to be a double session this year with two groups of pupils and teachers; the first group coming at 8 o'clock and remaining until 12:20 o'clock, and the second group coming at 12:40 o'clock and remaining until 5 o'clock. This will make five periods of 52 minutes each with no time for extra study period unless the student takes only four courses. Because of this arrangement it will be necessary for home study in the afternoon and at night, Mr. Duncan said.

Only Temporary

It is believed that this arrangement will work out all right and it is only temporary as the new high school will take care of the congestion after this year.

School will begin on September 4, with all new pupils in the grade schools receiving classifications on Monday and Tuesday; while new pupils in the junior high and those desiring a change in classification are to report beginning tomorrow.

New Departments Added

Several new departments have been added to the curricula. Mrs. Joe Smith has been named health supervisor, while Miss Nell Parmley, who was formerly principal of the George M. Hunt school, will be dean of girls at the high school.

The debating teams will be in charge of Mrs. Ada L. Wolfe, while Mrs. J. O. Morgan will have charge of the pep squad and teach English in the high school. The pep squad is to be organized soon after the opening of school and present plans are that 100 will belong. Uniforms will be worn and the group will be present at all of the games to cheer for the Westerners.

Teachers Added

Among the other teachers who have been added to the faculty are Mrs. Rose Mae Burford, formerly a teacher in the junior high school who will teach English in the high school; Miss Louise Knight, an M. A. graduate of Columbia this year, who will also teach English; Enoch Dawson, who has been teaching at West Texas State Teachers college will teach mechanical drawing; Mrs. W. M. Bralley will teach history in junior high school; Mrs. Ernest Lee, formerly librarian, who will succeed Dan Powers as supervisor of the boys' study hall, and Mr. Powers is to teach mathematics and assist Mrs. Morgan with the pep squad; and Ottis Koen, Tech graduate, who will succeed George Brown as teacher of general science.

Work Starts On Band

Work has already begun towards making the band a success. H. A. Anderson, who has been assistant director of the Simmons Cowboy band, is the new band leader.

Other new features include the publication of a student's code of conduct, which was the work of a committee of students for six months last year under the supervision of C. C. Cox. Each pupil will be given one of these pamphlets when school begins.

Miss Dorothy Lomax has new ideas for school publications, and dramatic clubs will be under the supervision of Mrs. W. P. Clements, while Miss Grace Padley will be leader of Girls Reserves.

City Plan Problem Facing Lubbock Is Slowly But Surely Nearing Solution

CITY PLANNING, one of the outstanding problems that is facing the city of Lubbock today, is one that has been a source of concern to the City Commission, the Board of City Development and the local Chamber of Commerce. These organizations have been working for months, gathering information and data, consulting experts and making a comprehensive survey of Lubbock in an effort to determine just what is needed in this city in the way of a complete program of city planning and zoning.

City planning is one of the most complex and puzzling problems that has fronted local organizations in several years and a great amount of work and time is required for study. Very few citizens, it has been found, know just what such a program would mean to Lubbock.

Coordination Essential

The proper coordination of all phases of civic development, provide adequate facilities for living, working and recreation is the principle of city planning.

To serve the community best, a comprehensive city plan must coordinate all physical improvements, even at the possible expense of subordinating individual desires. City plannning applies the financial principles of business corporations to civic development. It means the budgeting of future improvements to secure an orderly and uniform growth for the entire community and prevent over-expansion of one phase of development at the expense of others.

Zoning Important.

Coupled directly with city planning is the problem of zoning. Zoning is recognition through law and ordinance that not all parts of a city are alike and that the health, safety and general welfare of a community demand differentiation among them. The functions of the main divisions of a city, residence, commerce and industry, are so dissimilar in their requirements and use that different treatments are necessary. A pavement suitable to a residential section often is unsuited for an industrial section. The best location for industry often is the worst location for residences. Commercial sections generally require high water pressure and high voltage electric power, while residential sections require only low pressure. Zoning, therefore, so assists the growth of a city that each section is used in its most advantageous way.

In addition to the use regulations, zoning also controls the height and size of buildings and so diminishes overcrowding, hazard to health, and depreciation of value by improper and unsafe living and working conditions. So apparent have been the advantages derived from proper zoning that the movement has grown from a single city in 1914 to 562 municipalities in November, 1928.

Outlines Submitted Here.

Several outlines for the adoption of a city plan in Lubbock have been submitted, all of them considered and one ferreted from the group that would seem to apply here to best advantage. This outline, while given in very brief form, shows just what the city of Lubbock is lacking and gives the stages that must be gone through with in order to remedy the matter.

I.

A. Preparation of new city charter provisions.

II.

A. General considerations:

Analysis of factors of growth and character of Lubbock from historical viewpoint, and projected into the future. The scope of the city plan: economic reasons for a plan. Study of new areas for development within city and consideration of relation of city to adjoining territory.

B. Streets:

The framework of thoroughfares or major streets, traffic needs.

Proposals for widening and extension to make an effective system.

Street widths.

Minor streets.

C. Transit:

Survey of present routes and services of street cars and busses.

Future extension or revision of existing routes.

D. Transportation:

Railroad main lines through the city.

Passenger and freight stations.

Freight yards and industrial trackage.

Grade crossing elimination.

Air transportation.

E. Industrial survey.

Trade territory.

Marketing facilities.

Sources of raw material.

Types in industry.

Industrial sites.

F. Recreation:

The various types of public recreation which should be provided.

Areas now served by existing facilities.

Possible park reservations outside the city.

Boulevards and parkways with special reference to creek parkways on either side of city.

G. Public buildings and appearance of city (Civic Art):

Grouping of public buildings.

Street lights, name signs, and other street fixtures.

Poles and wires, and projecting commercial signs.

Street trees.

H. Zoning:

Tentative zoning ordinance for use, height and areas.

Final zoning ordinance and map.

I. Control of platting outside city limits.

Guide for platting; securing major thoroughfares in new developments.

J. Execution of plan:

Suggested methods of financing improvements.

Maps, Plans, Needed.

A list of maps and plans that should be prepared would be the following: Population distribution map, graphs showing population growth and building statistics, present wide streets, present paved streets, areas served by water and sewer, major street plan, diagram of major street plan extension into five mile zone beyond city, details and cross sections for streets of various widths and uses, details of certain specific improvements in major routes, map of existing railroad property, comprehensive park systems; existing parks, proposed parks and playgrounds, and parkways, public building grouping, if feasible, location of present and proposed public grade schools, zoning map with ordinance for regulation of use, height and area of buildings, structures and land for trade, industry, residence and other uses and a comprehensive city plan map.

Making a city plan is one thing; carrying it into effect is another. Making a city plan may take one year or two years; carrying it into effect may take a century. But recognizing that the future will introduce unforseen factors, city planners seldom claim a vision that exceeds a quarter of a century.

Need 25 Year Plan.

Planning for twenty-five years, however, meets the principal purposes; that the plan shall take account of more than the needs of the moment, that it shall weigh one consideration against another and strike a balance, that it shall provide for probable growth, that it shall guide and regulate that growth.

A city can no longer consider itself an entity, divorced from the surrounding communities, but rather must consider its entire region as one economic unit. Thoroughfares, transportations, zoning, parks, drainage and water supply, are among the important items to which attention must be given.

Bridge Played At Events On Friday

Mesdames J. B. Crisler, R. C. Smith and L. E. Miller Entertain Friday With Bridge Parties

Morning and afternoon bridge parties were given Friday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Crisler, 2112 14th street, with Mrs. Crisler, Mrs. R. C. Smith and Mrs. L. E. Miller as hostesses.

Seven tables were in play on each occasion.

Mrs. F. Y. Robnett scored high in the morning games, Miss Lulu Mae Cravens was second high and the cut favor was awarded to Mrs. Herbert Lowery.

The high score favor in the afternoon games was awarded to Mrs. W. W. Rix. Mrs. M. L. Price received low score favor and cut favor went to Mrs. W. F. Schenck.

A luncheon course was served after the morning games and a palatable refreshment course was offered in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Scarbrough and sons, Irvin and Milton Gerald, 1612 16th street, have returned from Bangs where they attended the 80th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Scarborough's father, L. Strohm.

Individuality

in the silhouette finds its greatest antagonist in the woman of more generous proportion who up to now has refused to countenance it, clamoring wildly for the continuance of the straight line that concealed any indication of hips.

The Youthful Mode

What most women feared too, was that the extra length of skirt would look less youthful! To look eighteen, from the back, has been the privilege of many women but this could not be expected to go on forever.

Longer skirts by no means indicate swishing, ankle length affairs and the natural waistline has not brought with it the old fashioned corset. Everything is possible, however, so far as fashions are concerned and we may be brought to both these things so gradually that when they are an accomplished fact we shall have forgotten how forcibly we protested against them.

The princess line is undoubtedly the theme of the season on which each couturier has worked out his own particular ideas. This takes the form of a more or less long sheath-like bodice extending well over the hips and terminated by a skirt in the form of a flounce, plain or pleated. A uniform, all-round length is another thing that strikes one in the new styles. The timid reappearance of a modified train is another. Jean Patou showed several evening dresses with a decided train and nothing more graceful or feminine could have been wished for.

Tweds Win Favor

So far as new materials are concerned tweeds of every description occupy the leading place. The disappearance of the long coat has led to a number of new "combinations" and some of the smartest morning or street ensembles have a coat of varying length worn over a dress of jersey or some other soft wool material.

Satins and printed velvets are the favored medium for afternoon dresses whilst for evening there is a galaxy of fabrics to suit the most versatile taste. Plain velvets will probably dominate as a material for a winter evening dress. Dyers seem to have surpassed themselves this season and seldom have there been such a choice of beautiful, deep colorings.

Green, Brown for Street

Green and Brown are the dominating street colors and these are to be seen in every shade imaginable. Deep greens, violets and even browns are used for evening wear, too, but as usual black is given a very important place. French blue is another revival, while some important houses, such Lelong, use a great many "off shades" exclusively reservely to them.

Fur fashions show a decided change, too. The practical coat for day time wear is now the hip length variety—a fashion not seen in many years in Paris. Fur lined coats are preferred to the long fur model. Even last winter this was considered infinitely more chic by the Parisienne than a long coat of "secondary" fur. Fur trimming is used extensively, especially on afternoon and evening coats, as well as on accompanying afternoon and evening downs. Ermie is playing a stellar role ad really nothing is smarter than a black ensemble, either for the daytime or evening, trimmed with ermine.

Miss Elizabeth Armstrong of Lorenzo was a Lubbock visitor yesterday.

Roy McCullough left yesterday for Denver, Colo., where he will confer about a possible position for the fall. He has been secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Tech college for the past two years coming here from Detroit, Mich. Mrs. McCullough and their three daughters, Jane Anne and Mary have been in Fort Collins, Colo., for the past several days and Mr. McCullough will join them there shortly.

Hal Lary left yesterday for Highstown, New Jersey, where he will be one of four delegates sent from the southwest region to a meeting of the National Council of students division of the Y. M. C. A., which convenes the first week in September in that city. Lary, who was president of the Y. M. C. A. at Tech college last year, was elected a delegate to the national conference at a ten days meeting he attended at Hollister, Mo., in June. The southwest region is comprised of the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Arkansas.

Mrs. G. A. Gunn and little daughter, Emma Sue left yesterday morning for a week or ten days visit in Dallas, Athens and other east Texas points.

A Lesson From the Bees

NOBODY can watch a beehive without marveling at the wonderful cooperation of these "singing masons building roofs of gold."

Cooperation has made Lubbock and territory what it is today. The Citizens National Bank is glad to join in every practical movement toward making our community a better place in which our boys and girls can grow to manhood and womanhood.

Author Of "The Little French Girl" Presents Story Of Conflict Between Two Women In Novel "Dark Hester"

THE CLASH between the generation in its prime and the generation just coming of age, as seen in the conflict between two women, each the finest and most courageous of her kind—this is the subject of Anne Douglas Sedgwick's moving novel.

Starting off coolly, tranquilly, in the atmosphere of the English countryside, it develops to an emotional and intellectual drama of thrilling interest and passionate intesity. The reader finds himself in sympathy with both women, so alike in their uncompromising honesty, their hatred of meanness of trickery, so unlike in their whole outlook upon life.

In "Dark Hester" Miss Sedgwick has shown with marvelous delicacy the purification of love and suffering. She has created a whole exquisite world from which the reader emerges enrich and exalted.

"Dark Hester," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick. (Houghton Mifflin company, $2.50.)

Book News Notes For This Week

THE best fiction of the week, in our opinion, can be found in Nancy Hoyt's "Bright Interval" (Knopf); Maristan Chapman's "Homeplace" (Viking); Alfred Noyes' "The Sun Cure"; Fulton Oursler's "The World's Delight"; Bayard Schindel's "Thee Golden Pilgrimage" and Irvin Cobb's "Red Likker."

Miss Hoyt, who is the little sister of the late Elinor Wylie, has scampered about Europe quite a bit and has concocted another novel about the mixing of European and American manners, modes and mores.

Disguises People

Incidentally she has used a number of the people she met abroad and at home, thinly disguising them with trick names. It isn't difficult to recognize, for instance, her own sister, Constance Hoyt; Tallulah Bankhead, the American actress who captured London and never came back; Isadora Duncan, Rosa Lewis and a number of others.

But it's Miss Hoyt's contrast of the girls and women of London and Paris and America which forms an essay running through the fiction. Lydia has been a continental to the last sip of champagne.

Code Is Strange

Meeting and marrying the American, Bill, she comes to these shores and would be quite content to settle down and possess Bill and be possessed. Instead of which she is thought anti-social. He wants to gad around with all the "important people." She can't understand the strange code.

The women she had known in London had vital interests, brains and background. Instead she finds a spoiled assortment of women with cold, cruel, painted mouths who pouted and shouted if they had to stay home—and most of whom seemed terribly bored and tired. So she goes back, but in the end is back with her William.

Cobb's "Red Likker" concerns itself not so much with drink as with drinking. Such prohibition significance as may be said to attach to this tale of good old southern bourbon and its history may be found in the grand manner of drinking against the vulgar manner of getting drunk. There was, it seems, a time when men drank like gentlemen and women sipped like ladies when they drank at all. Cobb has found a romantic and interesting talee in those dear, dead days.

Ousler has a fine and distinguished biography in "The World's Delight," for it concerns itself with with that fabulous circus lady Adah Isaacs Menken, who had even the poet Swinburne writing rhapsodiees about her. It's a very colorful and excellent bit of work.

In "Homeplace," Mrs. Chapman again seems to be a ballad writer turned novelist. It is her prose that converts you first to this writer, and the quality of geneuineness she gives her mountain people by using the strange words of their vocabulary.

W. G. Rogers, the author of Life Goes On, a novel of American life that is written in an entirely new manner, was born in Chicopee Falls, Mass., has lived most of his life in Springfield, Mass., and is now teaching in a preparatory school in Pittsburgh. His story might have happened in any of these towns, or on your street, in your town. Everybody knows people like the Faulkners, whose story it is. Their whole existence is epitomized in this account of things which happened in a single evening, told in a narrative which moves with the speed of a motion picture film. Mr. Rogers, when he visited his publisher, Horace Liveright, just before sailing abroad for the summer, said about his method that he felt that it fitted this particular book, but he did not expect to use it again. A second book, on which he is now at work, will be written in an entirely different style.

R. O. Prowse, author of "The Prophet's Wife," a religious novel just issued by Houghton Mifflin company, comes of an old west country family and was born in Suffolk in the sixties. He was educated at Cheltenham College and at Balliol and began writing when he was still at Oxford. He has written several novels and a play which was well received in England. He confesses to being an inveterate "first nighter" and says that the roses that he grows in his city garden are the envy of London.

Most Successful Summer Session Of Tech's History Is Ended Here; High Officials of Institution Satisfied

Graduation exercises held at Texas Technological college, at 10 o'clock Friday morning under the main cloister of the administration building, terminated the most successful summer session in the history of the institution, according to authorities of the college.

"The fact that a grand total of 1928 students enrolled in the summer session of the college this year and that each succeeding summer session in the history of the college has been approximately three and one-half times larger in enrollment has shown that Texas Technological college summer school is filling a real demand on the Plains," said Dr. Paul W. Horn, president. "Tech has satisfactorily demonstrated the genuine need for a college summer school on the Plains by the great number of students coming here from all over the country and the high quality of work done," he said. "We are highly gratified by the excellent results of the 1929 summer school."

Gordon Agrees

"From the standpoint of enrollment and also from the quality of the student body, the fourth summer session of the college has been the most successful in its history," said Dean James M. Gordon. "Graduate work has been most successful this summer and represented in the student body has been many high school principals, superintendents and teachers who are doing work towards master's degrees."

The increase in enrollment in summer school from year to year has been better than 300 students. The first year the enrollment was 336, the second it was 677, the third year 965 and this year 1,298 students attended, making a total of students for the 12 months. Tech offers a splendid opportunity for people engaged in public school work to study toward bachelor master's degrees and there has been a great number of these people from schools all over the state, as well as from the schools of the South Plains. Many regular students also attend the summer session to do extra work to enable them to obtain their degrees sooner than the traditional four years and many who have failed work in the long sessions find this the best time to do make-up work.

Climate Helps, Too

Other things that have added to the drawing power of Tech' ssummer school is the excellent climate and the many recreational advantages of Lubbock including swimming pools and other outing places in the vicinity. The management of the Palace and Lindsey theaters has especially been helpful by admitting students at reduced rates.

Old Settlers To Gather Thursday

Man And Women Who Resided In Early Days Will Meet At Fairgrounds For Annual Frolic

The annual gathering of early settlers of Lubbock county is to be held in the machinery shed at the Panhandle-South Plains fair grounds next Thursday afternoon and final arrangements for the reunion are underway this week.

No formal program will be announced. Those who attend are to spend the afternoon together and a basket dinner will be spread at 6 o'clock. It is thought that about two hundred people will attend.

People who resided in Lubbock county in 1900 or prior to that time, whether or not they are now residents of the county, are to attend his gathering, with their families. The reunion is to start at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

This Old Settlers association was formed several years ago and a reunion is held each summer.

PLAN HIGHWAY

Galveston-Houston Route Proposed By Sterling

GALVESTON, Aug. 24 (AP).—A super-highway between Galveston and Houston was advocated in an address before the Kiwanis club here by R. S. Sterling, chairman of the state highway commission, who said that the present highway, No. 6, already is bearing excessive traffic and will not long be sufficient to care for the cars going that route.

The proposed new concrete road, of twenty feet width and so constructed that its width could be doubled or tripled, would run from Houston to the airport, and from there on a direct line through Friendswood to Galveston.

Slave-trading still folurishes in the countries bordering on the Red Sea, some 2,000 slaves from East Africa being sold every year in the various Arabian markets.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

He will not always chide: neither will he keep his anger forever.

He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities.—Psalm ciii, 9, 10.

A WISE DECISION

JUDGE Grover Sellers, of Greenville, in Hunt county, made a very wise decision when he declined to lift a court injunction against the sale of 2,300 acres of Rains county school land, located in Hockley county. The land was to have been sold for $14 per acre.

Most of us out this way have very little, if any, interest in Rains county and its school land. But we do have an interest in Hockley county, our neighbor on the west, and we do know that the widespread report that Hockley county land is worth no more than $14 per acre would be more or less detrimental to this entire section.

It is doubtful if there is a better agricultural county in the state of Texas than our very same neighbor Hockley county, certainly there is no county under the Lone Star that has a larger percentage of tillable surface. Purchasing 3,300 acres of public lands in Hockley county for $14 per acre is ridiculous and Judge Sellers must be fully cognizant of the fact.

WASTED FOOD

A survey was recently made in Middle Western states to determine the value of food wasted in homes of the United States in a year. Some of the statistics arrived at are that of 28,750,000 homes in the United States only 55 per cent have refrigerators and only 20 per cent use ice twelve months of the year.

From the foregoing figures it was calculated that the average loss through spoiled food is 10 cents per day per family. That is about $36 a year. If half the homes have no food spoilage because of proper refrigeration the annual loss for the other half is increased to $72 a year.

Yet, when everything is taken into consideration, this is not such a bad record. In proportion to food consumed, it is a tribute to the ability of the American housewife that so little is wasted. If it is possible to cut the loss it should be done, of course; but if the average home wastes no more than 10 cents' worth of food a day there is no reason for complaint.

There is waste in every industry and business, and the home is a going concern of no small proportions. No doubt there are industrial efficiency experts who would like to know the secret of the housewife's success in avoiding waste.

Perhaps, after all, it would be unwise to eliminate all domestic waste. Otherwise, in her insatiable desire to utilize left-overs, the housewife might lose a fairly satisfactory husband.

SAN FRANCISCO OBJECTS

A movement has been started in California, which the Daughters of California Pioneers Club is leading, to put an end to the too-common custom of referring to San Francisco as "Frisco." Most of us object to being "called out of our name." But an investigation would undoubtedly disclose the fact that the people of California, probably those of San Francisco itself, have been the worst offenders.

One seldom hears of "Frisco" in the East. Probably there will be more of it now that it has been found that the name is offensive to sensitive ears. Just as the small boy persists in doing things that he is forbidden to do, so grown-ups appear to find pleasure in the same contrariness.

It has been explained that San Francisco was named for a saint, and that "it is unbecoming to give a nickname to a saint." That may be true, but until the residents of the city and state cease to abbreviate the name, it will be as useless to attempt to educate the people of this country into ceasing corrupting the name as it is to try to induce residents of New Orleans and New York to stop calling their cities "N'Orleans" and "N'York."

YOUR CITY AND YOU

Lubbock boosts you. Why not do as well by the city as it does by you? No citizen is so powerful, none so humble, but what the city is an aid to him in some way or other.

The food that he eats, the clothes he wears, the recreation and amusement that he enjoys, all originate in the city, because the money with which they are procured is made there.

When a fellow boosts his own city he does not stop there. He is performing an act that improves his own condition, for every good word and every good deed has its elevating influence.

A few people are always home town boosters. They accomplish much in the way of community betterment, and this improves the condition of not only themselves, but also of those who do no boosting at all.

If every citizen would constitute himself a home town booster the result collectively would be many times as great, and opportunities for self improvement would be more numerous.

Think it over in your odd moments. Then get into the boost wagon and hit the pace.

AMERICAN SHIPPING

For the 10 years prior to the Great war, the average American cargo carried on the high seas in American ships was slightly more than 10 per cent of the total American cargoes. The decade ended June 30, 1929, shows a much larger proportion of a much larger foreign trade carried in American bottoms. The percentage has increased to 36.

The comparison appears in an analysis by the bureau of research of the United States shipping board. Last fiscal year American ships carried one-third in value and 40 per cent in volume of American foreign trade. Total value of the cargoes is put at $8,000,000,000.

The large importance of participation by the United States in transoceanic shipping, on a scale commensurate with the nation's size and commercial importance, is emphasized.

A new record was set recently one one of those child's-size tables in a tea room. It seems an absent-minded diner ate three salads under the impression that they were his.

This is a hard, unchivalrous age, and it is seen where a young man in a Kansas City personal column writes to one he calls Baby, "I love you. But not much."

UNCLE SAM'S TREATMENT OF INDIANS DEPLORED BY SENATOR FROM MONTANA

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The Indians have no appreciation of all that has been done for them!

"Probably not," agrees Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

"If they had, I am pretty sure they would stage one grand farewell massacre of as many whites as possible before their final extermination."

With other members of the senate committee on Indian affairs, the Montana solon recently returned from an inspection of the American aborigines' northwestern reservations.

"A rapidly dying race!—at its present rate," is his verdict.

The senator already has broadcast an unofficial report of his observations. There is no use in repeating it. However, he does supplement it with a few words of pungent comment which are interesting.

"True the Indian office has undergone a thorough overhauling, as an initial step in Secretary of the Interior Wilbur's administration," continued the Montana lawmaker, "and we are entitled to hope for better conditions under the new regime than during the last 30 or 40 years of its predecessors' mismanagement.

"But will the improvement last indefinitely?—as it must, to save the Indians from extinction.

"Twenty-five per cent of them tuberculosis victims! Trachoma epidemic! Social disease rampant! A still behind every sage bush. These tendencies are not to be reversed in a hurry. A generation of reconstruction is essential."

"Their miraculous good luck in striking oil," surmised the senator, "may prove the salvation of the Oklahoma Indians—their good luck not only in striking oil, but their still better luck in not striking it until so late in our national development that it no longer was as easy as it would have been, a few years earlier, for their white neighbors to take it all away from them.

"At first the northern tribesmen looked more fortunate than the Oklahoma redskins.

"The latter had been shouldered aside into an area which supposedly was practically worthless—until oil was discovered underneath it. Their northern brethren with their grazing lands, their tribal herds and their hunting grounds, were prosperous enough four decades ago. Since then—steadily, remorselessly—the steam roller of civilization has gone over them."

"A sudden transformation from poverty to riches," said the Montana legislator, "may be demoralizing, but at any rate it was a change which the Oklahoma Indians were able to realize—and permit at least the rising generation to adapt itself to.

"In the north, as time progressed, the white settlers gradually acquired the red men's rights without the necessity for conspicuous violence.

"Treaties were quietly nullified. Indian lands were leased to white cattlemen and sheepmen at a few cents an acre—not enough to pay taxes, if anyone had troubled to collect them. Little by little the tribes were dispossessed—and actually made to pay, out of their tribal funds, for the formalities of dispossession.

"Today they find themselves still the ingrained nomad herdsmen and hunters of the pre-civil war period—with their herds all gone their game all gone, no land left to them on which any farmer but a scientific agronomist can raise a living—in the midst of an intensive, modern, industrial civilization."

"To reclaim these people," pointed out the senator, "is something of a problem.

"To what type of experts have we committed the problem?

"The senate committee questioned a good many of them on its tour of investigation.

"What would you suggest?" we asked one superintendent.

"No more investigations," was the answer.

"Are you?" we queried another.

"Something," came the reply, "to make the Indians appreciate what we have done for them."

"If they did appreciate it and failed to take the warpath the 'noble red man' already is an extinct species. The old Indian who died fighting was the lucky one."

PROMISCUOUS KISSING MAY TRANSMIT DISEASE, CONTENDS DOCTOR PETERS

Infection

H.—Cancer sometimes does arise from an old scar, and from moles, but usually only when these are in a position where they can be irritated frequently. While cancer does arise in young people, it does so infrequently.

If your scar bothers you, I would consult another physician. But don't keep feeling it all the time, for such a procedure will irritate it all the more, and if there should happen to be a cancer this would distribute its cells. Keeping the hands off, also applies to newly discovered lumps.

"Will you kindly tell me what risk a person runs by associating with a woman who has a venereal disease, which has eaten the bone of her nose and part of the jaw bone? She had treatment more than three years ago but none since. She claims a doctor told her she is cured, but she took the treatments for only six months. Is there any chance of a complete cure?

"She is very careless in her habits. What chance has her little girl, born while her mother was undergoing treatment? She is now four years old, is very delicate and has running ears. What is the danger of child's playing with other children and the dis- touching other children? We, of the family, to keep away from her, but none of us really ows what risk of contagion there is, if any. Please our minds at rest. MRS. C."

The woman is not cured; the lesions in her nose d jaw show that she is in the third stage of the ease. Furthermore, the active germs of syphillis present in the lesions and can be transmitted rough sneezing, kissing, etc., and even though the hes and silverware, etc., used by the patient, if the one who came in contact with the germs should happen to have a small cut or abrasion in the skin, even so small that it could not be seen with the naked eye.

The child may have congenital syphilis, because her mother had it and was not cured at the time she was carrying her. The running ear is no sign of this, however, and the discharge from that might be infective only as a simple pus germ.

The woman should certainly go back to her doctor and he certainly will not say that she is cured. She should have kept in touch with him and furthermore, he should have kept in touch with her, for she is a menace, a decided menace. It is your duty to tell her this. Save the article and let her read it, if necessary.

If there are sores on the mouth—and there may be, in all stages: first, second and third—they are highly infectious. Tice tells of a reported case where a young woman kissed her lover, not knowing he was syphilitic; she later kissed a number of her schoolmates with the result that six of them became infected. This should be a warning to promiscuous kissers.

Dishes and other utensils used by a syphilitic patient should be boiled for five minutes each time after using. The common drinking cup must be avoided.

Passenger services across the continent are now regularly and firmly established. At least, we assume so. Their time tables are full of asterisks and becoming almost incomprehensible.

A Pretty Lively Corpe, Eh, Wot!

Today's Poem

A SONG

Ye happy swains, whose hearts are free
From Love's imperial chain,
Take warning, and be taught by me,
To avoid the enchanting pain;
Fatal the wolves to trembling flocks,
Fierce winds to blossoms prove,
To careless seamen, hidden rocks,
To human quiet, love.

Fly the fair sex, if bliss you prize;
The snake's beneath the flower:
Who ever gazed on beauteous eyes,
That tasted quiet more?
How faithless is the lovers' joy!
How constant is their care
The kind with falsehood to destroy,
The cruel, with despair.

Lee Highway Group To Restore Fort

AUSTIN, Aug. 24 (AP).—Formation of the Robert E. Lee highway association here has resulted in a proposal to restore the old wood and stone Fort Crogan at Burnet in which General Lee was cared for while leading troops into the Southwest before the war. The famed Southerner then was a lieutenant.

J. H. Faubion of Leander, president of the Williamson County Old Settler's association, is searching memoirs of pioneer Central Texas settlers in the hope of obtaining other information about Lee's presence in Texas when he commanded troops which protected settlers from Indians.

As a result of the investigation, a giant live oak tree at Jolleyville has been identified as a favorite camping place of General Lee in his early military career.

TO DAMAGE FARM CROP

Flood Waters Expected To Cut Cotton Yield

AUSTIN, Aug. 24 (AP)—Brazos river flood waters and insect pests will cut deep into the cotton yield on state prison farm this year, likely reducing the output of 6,000 bales, R. E. Scott, chairman of the citizens prison relocation committee, believes.

Last year the system produced 8,000 bales, yet sustained a loss in farming operations of approximately $300,000.

Rose leaves were used extensively for medicines and ointments centuries ago, while rose water and rose wine were used as drinks.

The SHINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 by NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MOLLY BURNHAM, successful playwright, turns her attention to tragic love. JACK WELLS, a sweetheart of college days, has declined flatly to marry her, saying that he could not possibly be Mister Molly Burnham. Other men are willing enough to make love, but Molly is weary of their protestations. She wants only Jack.

In a despondent frame of mind, she compiles the tragic love stories of history, and works also on an anthology of mournful love verse.

RED FLYNN comes to call, and interrupts her work with startling news. Jack Wells is being sent abroad to study architecture by an old widow, who has matrimonial designs upon him. Molly cries when she hears the news, and Red tries to comfort her. He has her in his arms, when Bob Newton enters the room unannounced. Bob is the father of the child Molly is bringing up, and has his own key to the apartment.

He is intoxicated and makes insulting remarks. Red threatens to throw him out, and Bob reaches unsteadily for a heavy lamp, defying Red to touch him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

"Look out, Red!"

Molly flung herself on Bob.

"You coward you! You . . . you! . . ."

Furiously she struck him on the chest with her clenched fists. "You get out of my house this minute, you big coward!"

Bob staggered backward as she pushed him toward the door. He dropped his stick and his hat, and tried clumsily to recover them. But Molly had stooped, as he blundered about, and threw them contemptuously, ahead of him, into the hall.

"Take your old stuff, and get out of my house. And don't you ever come back here, as long as you live!"

Bob began to blubber.

"I want my baby," he sobbed. "I want my baby."

"Stop your nonsense!" retorted Molly sharply. "Or I'll call a policeman."

She slammed the door on him angrily.

"You should have let me take just one swing at him, dear," grumbled Red.

"Oh, I don't know," she protested. "Don't you think I did pretty well myself? Look!"

She pointed a shaking finger. "See that lamp, Red. He tried to throw it at you. My goodness, he'd have killed you. It weighs a ton."

"Well, well, little life saver."

He patted her shoulder affectionately. "We'll put you on the lists for a Carnegie medal, Sweetness. . . . Say, what do you think? Had I better go throw the boy friend in a taxi?"

"Oh, leave him alone," she commanded. "If he steps in front of one, it'll serve him right. If he's going to drink all the time, Red, I could petition for sole custody of Rita, couldn't I? If I could prove him an unfit parent, and show that the child's mother left her in my care—honestly I believe I could get her for my own!"

Molly's eyes sparkled excitedly. "Do you think there's a chance?" she demanded. "Oh, Red, it would make me so happy!"

"But, listen, old thing," he protested. "Rita's his kid. You can't take a man's child away from him like that."

"But he isn't a fit parent!" she cried.

Red drew his eyebrows together severely.

"Now Molly," he admonished, "that's no way o talk. There's too darn much of that sort of thing in America. What business has any judge to take a child from its father, and turn it over to somebody else? No more business than the censors had meddling with your play. You thought they had a nerve, didn' you, telling people that your show wasn't fit for them to see? It was none of their business, the sort of shows folks went to. Everybody minds everybody else's business in this blooming country. But you're going to mind your own—see, Sweetness? You haven't any more right to take Rita away from Bob, than you have to rob John D. Rockefellow of his most cherished possession."

"But Bob drinks so!" she cried.

"Does that give you any license to steal from him?"

"But the courts have a right to determine whether or not a parent is fit to have the custody of his child. I could prove Bob unfit."

"You go messing around in that sort of thing," he threatened angrily, "and I'm through with you, Molly. For heaven's sake, be consistent. You despise people who sit in judgment on the morals of others. Now, because it could serve your own interests, you'd run to a judge, and tell tales on Bob. You'd ask that Bob be punished for getting drunk, and you rewarded for telling on him. And you'd put Rita up for the prize, I'm ashamed of you Molly!"

"But if I could get Rita that way," she moaned. "You don't know how much I want her, Red."

"You mind your own business," he counseled. "If Bob was abusing his child, or neglecting her, then it would be another story. Do you know what you'd be doing if you went after Rita through the courts? You'd be putting yourself on a par with that girl you told me about who was going to sue Bob for breach of promise. You thought she was a rotter, didn't you? For the love of Pete, don't be a black mailer!"

"Here," she said, "plug in the percolator. Let's eat, and stop fighting."

"I wasn't fighting," he objected. "I was only telling you things. Women are funny. As a sex, Molly, you've no principle at all."

"I know," she agreed "We're ruthless. We'll do anything to attain our ends. I know you think I'm utterly without character, so I might as well admit that I propose to keep Rita by fair means or foul. I'm a bad woman, Red. And the che-lid means more to me than honor. Do you know what I'd do? I'd frame Bob, if I knew how."

Red laughed.

"Look out," he cautioned, "that he doesn't frame you. As for you, young woman, you be a square shooter. Give the egg a break."

It was late when Red said goodnight. Molly slipped her arms about his neck, and drew his ear to her lips.

"Do me a favor?" she coaxed. "If you hear anything more about Jack, will you let me know, Red?"

After Red had gone, Molly buried her pride resolutely, and began a letter to Jack. He wouldn't marry her. But that did not mean he didn't love her. The more she thought about it, the surer she became that it was a terrible misunderstanding. He said he couldn't be Mister Molly Burham. Didn't that simply prove it was all a matter of his idotic pride?

There was a woman in Snodgrass whose husband was a contractor. One year he was laid up with rheumatism, and she took over his work. People liked her, and were glad to do business with her. In six months she made more money than her husband cleared in a year. Her husband got well, and took things over again. Immediately business began to fall off. The wife was an energetic person, and anxious to carry on. But her husband retorted that he was going to wear the pants in his house, and that settled it . . . Well, Jack was exactly like that stupid old contractor. Men were all alike. Foolish masculine vanity!

Molly smiled to herself. Her darling wanted to wear the pants. That was what it really amounted to. Of course he wouldn't talk like that, Jack was never crude. But that was it, just the same. Sex pride.

"You're so proud, Sweetheart," she whispered. "Now I shall be humble, to prove how deeply I love you."

Molly had a little pink typewriter, in a little pink box. A tiny, noiseless thing, that matched the colors in her bedroom. When she worked at night, she used it, because the smallest noise sometimes woke Rita. She slipped on a negligee of rosy chiffon, and lighted the pink-shaded lamps, smiling as she completed the picture. Molly loved doing things like a girl in a book. Now the room was softly pink. Everything harmonized with her mood.

She would write Jack a letter that should breathe of her love and devotion. A gay, friendly letter that would bring him happiness, and assuage his silly fears. Sweet and womanly, to prove that she was not the kind of girl who wanted to wear pants! To show that he need never be afraid of being Mister Molly Burnham!

She laughed aloud, like a little girl planning delicious mischief. She would win her darling, with all the wiles she knew, burying her foolish pride. For what had pride to do with love?

She slipped a sheet of paper in her typewriter, and began, swiftly, to type. The words, in her mad haste, fell over one another.

". . . in the old days," she wrote, "I was full of pride in myself. But now you are all that I care about in the world" . . . She paused a moment, thinking of Rita. But no! Jack counted more than Rita. Bob might take Rita away. Then what would she do? She must have someone then to turn to. Someone to fill the dreadful loneliness.

"You are necessary to me," she went on, and still the words came tumbling, flying off the keys like magic . . . I need you for my life. . .

"Once, my darling, you held me in your arms as though you could never let me go. You were sweet to me, and tender. You were afraid I was cold. Afraid I was tired. Afraid I worked too hard. Afraid I would stop loving you. Afraid I was worried about something. You were always afraid, darling . . . But now it is I who is afraid. Lonesome, and frightened, and afraid. And you are leaving me."

Then she threw discretion to the winds.

"I have heard that you are going to Italy. Would you go away, my darling, without telling me goodby? Would you leave me, wretched and longing? But, my darling, I am selfish. I want you to be happy. If you are happy, nothing else matters. And you will love Italy, my Jack . ."

Page after page Molly typed in a sort of frenzy. There was so much to be said. So much about Italy that she must tell him. And then she must tell again of her love—her lovely, steadfast love.

"If I knew you had forgotten," she wrote, "I would try to forget. But forgetfulness could not be the end of your love. Not of yours—nor of mine. That is true, Jack, is it not? Tell me, my darling, it is true."

Exhausted, she dropped her head on her typewriter. It was beginning to grow light. She put out the lights, and raised her curtains. There was only one star left. The little, reluctant morning star. The world was gray and cold. But soon the sun—the great day-star—would touch the east, and make it glow with fire.

She leaned from the window, and looked down the street. There was a gray cat ambling along. Not another living thing in sight. Molly was glad she was going to see the dawn. Lots of respectable people probably never had seen it. And it was loveller even than a sunset.

There was a poem Jack particu-

Old Texas History To Be Preserved

AUSTIN, Aug. 24 (AP).—Photostatic copies of all historical material in Mexico relating to early days in Texas will be made and placed in Garcia library at the University of Texas under direction of Carlos E. Castaneda, Latin-American librarian, who recently returned from a month's tour of northern Mexico.

Castaneda's trip was through three states—Tamaulipas, Nuevo Leon and Coahuila. At one city, Monclava, the librarian visited decendants of the Ramon family, one of the first explorers of Texas, and found an unpublished history and several valuable maps and charts.

In Brownsville he collected data on the history of the lower Rio Grande Valley and from there he went to Monterey and made a preliminary survey of documentary material in state and city archives.

larly liked in the book of Oscar Wilde's they used to read together. It was very beautiful, and was largely about the sunrise. Molly remembered these exquisite lines, and said them softly to herself.

"Then down the long and silent street,
The dawn, on silver-sandaled feet,
Creeps like a frightened girl.'"

She leaned over the sill, and looked down the quiet street. And it pleased her fancy to see a slight figure, swathed in gray like a nun, stealing swiftly from the arms of night. A frightened girl, with silver sandals on her slim white feet.

She glanced at herself in the long mirror of her bathroom door.

"And I look," she reflected, "like the wrath of God—which is also what I get for writing love letters."

Molly was tired, but she was also sleepless, and she felt like working. She decided to make coffee, and commune with her tragic lovers' until Rita woke. It was a long while since she and Rita had breakfasted together.

She put the coffee on to boil, and curled up on her cubist sofa with "The Lives of Antony and Cleopatra." She had reached the part where Cleopatra, determined to fascinate Antony, plans her first dinner party. Two thousand years ago—and the girls went at things exactly as they do today!

By the time the coffee boiled, Cleopatra, to impress Antony, was dropping her pearl earrings in a goblet of wine. And Antony, manlike, was begging her not to be foolish.

Molly squeezed an orange, and brought her coffee to the drawing room. It was nearly eight then, and Mary, apologeic for over-sleeping, was in the kitchen. Rita would be awake any minute. The phone was ringing.

"I don't want to speak to anyone but Mr. Flynn, Mary," she instructed.

"Yes, Miss Burnham."

In a moment Mary stood at the drawing room door.

"It was Mr. Flynn, Miss Burnham. He said I was not to call you, but to tell you that Mr. Wells sailed on the Leviathan at midnight with Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton. I think those were the names. Would that be right, Miss Burnham?"

Molly smiled palely.

"Quite right, thank you, Mary. And Mary—will you take the letter on the table in the hall, please, and bring it here to me, with some matches?"

Lubbock Carpenter's Wife Health Restored By Orgatone—Suffered Fifteen Years

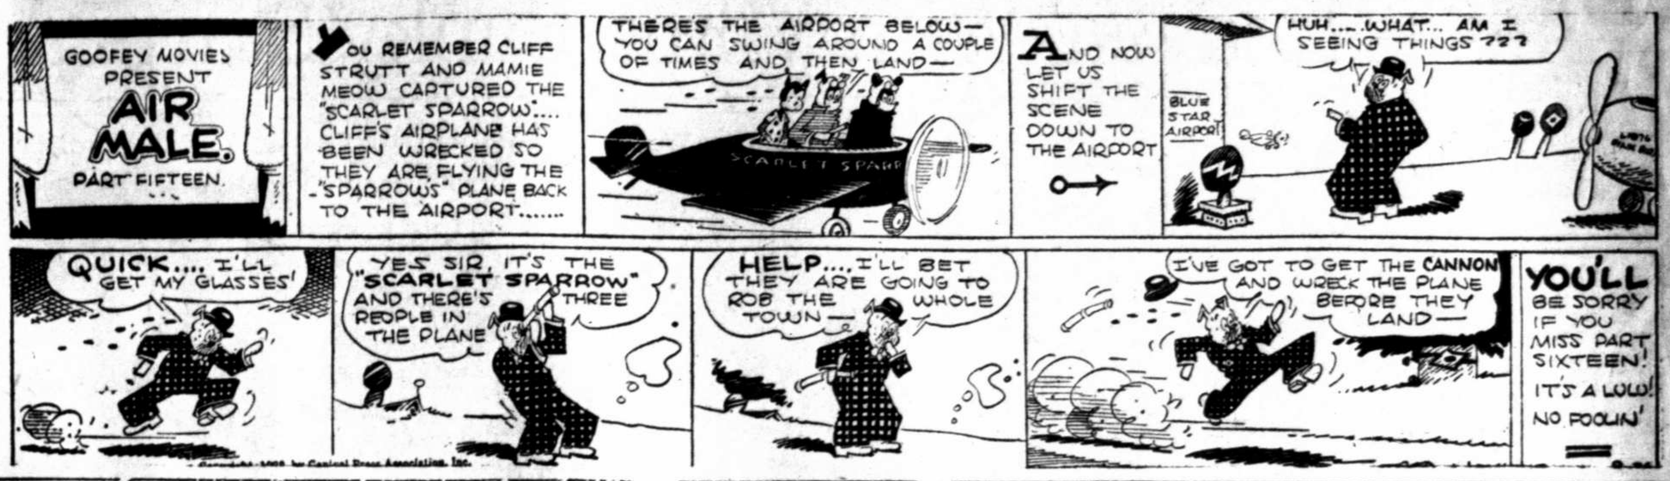

"About all that is left of my wife's suffering is the memory of it," said Mr. J. R. Jeter, of 614 Ave. F. Lubbock, Texas. Mr. Jeter has been a well known carpenter and citizen of Lubbock for a number of years.

"If my wife only could have had Orgatone about fifteen years ago," he continued, "it would have saved her a world of suffering. She had a severe case of stomach and liver trouble and was bothered with rheumatism, which kept her in constant misery most all the time, and in spite of all she could do, her troubles kept getting worse. Her appetite left her and she would suffer terribly from indigestion and gas on her stomach after each meal. Her head aches a great deal of the time, and she would feel tired, worn out and no account most of the time. She had severe pains caused from an inactive liver and I would not be surprised but what she had some gall bladder trouble. She also had a chronic case of constipation.

"We saw Orgatone advertised so highly thought that it might aid her and she has now taken just two bottles and says she feels like a different person. She is getting wonderful results and is improving every day. Her stomach is in good shape and she eats anything she wants without the slightest trouble afterward. Gas does not form as it did and she isn't bothered with constipation. Her liver seems to be in perfect condition for she doesn't complain of the pains as she used to and her rheumatism doesn't bother her as it did and in fact, she is better in every way. I am glad to give this statement for my wife, for Orgatone has proven such a wonderful medicine we want to recommend it to our friends and we shall always keep a bottle of Orgatone in our house."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowen's Drug Store who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

'This Is Heaven' With Vilma Banky Starts At Lindsey Today

Foreign Star, Will Play Part Of American

Vilma Banky, start of "This Is Heaven," which Samuel Goldwyn brings to the Lindsey theatre today was delighted with the opportunity this picture gives her to play the part of a modern girl in America instead of the series of foreign period parts to which her public have become accustomed in her pictures. In "This Is Heaven" Miss Banky's role is that of a Hungarian immigrant girl who finds love and happiness while working as a waitress in a New York restaurant.

"I am an American girl now," she says, quite proud of her new citizenship papers, "and I am tired of being a Spanish princess and a French duchess and an English lady. If I am an American girl, I want to play American girl parts. I want to wear the kind of clothes I do in real life and behave the way I do then.

"When I did 'The Awakening,'" she says, "I was glad that I could be even a little peasant girl in Alsace, because that was nearer what I wanted than anything else I had ever done. But this is so much better. I am very happy that I can prove to everybody that I really am American."

Consequently, no one was ever happier than Miss Banky in New York last fall when, in preparation for the filming of "This is Heaven" she went about from department store to department store buying ten dollar dresses to fit the part of the little waitress she was playing.

"The Awakening" Lyric's Feature

Vilma Banky Will Be Seen Today In Picture

"The Awakening," Samuel Goldwyn's latest production, which comes to the Lyric Theatre today, presents Vilma Banky as a star in her own right for the first time in a role which gives her new and greater opportunities for highly strung emotional acting as Marie Ducrot, the belle of the simple little Alsatian village of Pre d'Or. Heretofore, Miss Banky has been a feature player appearing in the main with Ronald Colman in such pictures as "Two Lovers," "The Night of Love," and "The Magic Flame."

The picture is a notable example of straightforward plot, unmarred by side developments, laid in only two settings but achieving contrast through the depiction, side by side, of peaceful peasant life just before the World War and the horrors of the first few days of the conflict. The story of this United Artists picture was written by Frances Marion, one of the very first flight of screen writers, and, in addition to Miss Banky as star, offers Louis Wolheim, the famous character actor, and Walter Byron. Rex, King of Wild Horses, Coming

Rex, King of Wild Horses, the greatest steed in motion pictures, will be seen in one of the most thrilling and exciting productions of this season when his newest starring picture for Universal, "The Harvest of Hate," with Jack Perrin and his famous horse, Starlight, open at the Lyric theatre Tuesday. Because of his fierce temperament, combined with an almost human intelligence Rex has proved to be the screen's greatest animal player.

Perrin as the leading supporting player, appears in one of his best roles. The Western hero is known for his thrilling exploits, and he again demonstrates his ability to ride horses at break-neck speed, fight, and shoot in a way that makes observers hold their breath.

'El Bandido' Comes To Rex Wednesday

The thrilling historical drama "EL BANDIDO" based on the life and incidents of Mexico's Phantom Bandit and Rebel Leader, Pancho Villa, to be shown at the Rex Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, gives William Russell a part true to his own heart as chief of the Texas Rangers.

The picture is now in its scope and atmosphere with thrills of wild riding, raids, war and mortal combat, directed by Henry King, one of America's foremost directors. It is generally thought that cowboys, Indians, gambling dens and wild life constituted western pictures with the usual streak of love that held them together. William Russell holds more than this in this picture—he has strong romance, charm and the true spirit of the life of the Texas Rangers.

Monte Blue Will Be Seen Here At Lindsey Friday

From Headquarters Best Tropic Picture

Monte Blue, popular Warner Bros. star is said to give one of the outstanding characterizations of his career in the new Vitaphone production, "From Headquarters," coming to the Lindsey Theatre on Friday, in which he appears as a dissolute soldier of fortune who has lived for many years in the tropics, fighting on whichever side would pay the most money for his services.

Clad in a nondescript uniform and sporting several days' growth of beard on his face, the immaculate Monte is a perfect picture of a man who has lived too long an aimless life in the tropics. Eventually he comes in contact with the United States Marines who have entered the country, and goes through a series of terrible experiences which would try the courage of any man.

Appearing in support of Blue in this dramatic story are Ethlyne Clair, Guinn Williams, Gladys Brockwell, Joseph Girard, Lionel Belmore, Henry B. Wathall, Eddie Gribbon, Pat Hartigan, Otto Lederer, William Irving, Pat Somerset and John Kelly. The production was directed by Howard Bretherton, and the original story by Samuel Hartridge was prepared for the screen by Harvey Gates.

Homely Hero Is Getting The Girl In Movie Now

By DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

For years the actor with the irregular features has had to be an irregular fellow on the screen. He has had to content himself with villain roles while the handsome hero copped all the sympathy from audiences while winning the heroine's love. He seldom has been anything but the cruelest of men who foreclosed mortgages, beat children and kidnapped beautiful girls.

But times have changed—and perhaps we should thank the talkies for this change too.

Movie audiences are beginning to accept the fact that a collar-ad face may be only a mask for a bad character, while a broken nose, big ears and a twisted mouth may be com-

"Dark Streets" Is Talkie Offering At Palace Today

Jack Mulhall Will Be Seen In 1st Dual Role

The first dual role in the history of talking pictures is played by Jack Mulhall in "Dark Streets," the new First National-Vitaphone production which comes to the Palace theater today.

Dual roles have had an interesting place in the world's literature and drama. Many artists have toyed with the idea and many actors with different personalities under a duplicate appearance, or as the same person with two vastly divergent natures.

In "Dark Streets" Mulhall plays the parts of two brothers, enough alike to be mistaken frequently for each other, but widely different mentally and morally. Out of this resemblance and this difference comes the story, which is highly thrilling.

Probably the first such story in the literature of the world is the Biblical tale of Jacob and Esau, enough alike to fool a blind father, although different in nature and even appearance. Twin brothers, famous for all time because of a mess of pottage and a mistaken father's blessing, played the first great dual role drama of history.

Perhaps the most famous of all such stories is "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," Robert Louis Stevenson's contribution to the dual personality literature of the world. In this case two natures in one individual struggled for the possession of a soul, the more powerful, evil side eventually triumphing physically but the better half coming off victorious mentally and morally.

Oscar Wilde, interest in these subjects from close association with such authors as Huysmans, who went deeply into the mental oddities of his characters and frequently gave them several different personalities under various influences, wrote his fascinating and terrible "Portrait of Dorian Grey." In this story the two personalities are established as a young man and his portrait. The latter absorbs the facial changes which reflect mental and moral degradation—the man keeping the face of his better self while indulging in foul crimes.

Billie Dove Will Appear In Talkie At Local Theatre

"Careers Coming In Wednesday To Lindsey

When patrons of the Lindsey Theatre attend the local showing Wednesday and Thursday of "Careers," a new Billie Dove all-talking picture, produced by First National Vitaphone, they will view a beautiful scene representing a garden party in Indo-China. They will see many extras in this scene and they might chance to see a gentleman in uniform standing in a group. They will notice that he has nothing important to do—merely atmosphere.

This gentleman, however, was at one time a very important person in the life and history of Russia. He is the former Russian general, Alexander Ikonikoff, whom the Czar had personally decorated with the White Cross of St. George, the highest honor in all the Russias.

The movies played a dramatic part in Ikonikoff's life. Not long ago a picture in which he had appeared was shown in Sogia, Bulgaria. There a sister, whom he thought dead, saw it. Hollywood police were notified and Ikonikoff was found. Hurried cables and leters resulted in the sister being brought to America.

"Careers" was directed by John Francis Dillon and the cast supporting Miss Dove includes Antonio Moreno, Noah Beery, Thelma Todd, Robert Frazer, Robert Schable, Carmel Myers, Holmes Herbert, Sojin and others. All of whom talk as does the beautiful star.

Homely Hero

bined to offer real attraction to the deminine heart. Consequently the Barrymores, Gilberts and Colemans no longer have a corner on the hero roles. Some of the less handsome boys are getting Romeo parts.

Victor McLaglen, for example, started his film career as a villain. His early life in the prize ring and on the western front made him anything but good-looking. But nevertheless he now is winning the girl in the last reel of nearly every picture in which he plays. In his latest production, "The Cock-Eyed World," in which he is a rough-and-ready marine, he holds his own against handsome Edmund Lowe in love affairs involving Lily Damita, Lelia Karnelly and Jean Barry.

Will Rogers, noted comedian and humorist, might be able to win a roping contest, but he couldn't even get in the back row of a beauty contest. But in his current film, "They Had to See Paris," he has Irene Rich as his leading lady and he also appears in a number of vamping scenes with Fifi Dorsay, beautiful young French actress.

Louis Wolheim, than whom there is no homelier—unless it might be Bull Montana—never used to get even a smile from the girls. His face might be all right for a college professor, but it wouldn't do for a movie hero, acording to producers. But now even Louis is having his "big moments." In "Frozen Justice," a dramatic story of the far north, he plays a decidedly sympathetic role and has a number of scenes in which lovely Lenore Ulric lingers in his arms.

Impetus To Poultry Development Is Given By Trip

Success Of Weeks' Colony At Wichita Falls Promising

M. Johnson's White Leghorn Ranches Are Visited; S. Plains Section Is Considered Ideal For Poultry

Renewed impetus has been given to the development of Lubbock county's poultry industry, following the trip made by a number of poultrymen to several West Texas points recently, where they inspected some of the state's most outstanding poultry establishments.

Plans have already been started towards holding a poultry show in Lubbock this winter, either in December or January, the date to be selected so as not to compete with the Slaton show, and other South Plains exhibits. The Lubbock County Poultry Association will sponsor this show and it is anticipated that this first event will be the forerunner of the biggest thing of its kind in West Texas.

Colony Has Met Success

Success of the Charles Weeks Poultry Colony, at Wichita Falls, which was started in February of this year, and of M. Johnson's Poultry Ranch at Wichita Falls, as well as his similar institution at Bowie, which places were among those visited by the Lubbock county delegation, has encouraged projects of the same nature for this section.

Since February, the Weeks colony has witnessed the sale of 97 one-acre tracts and the construction of 22 buildings. The central plant of this colony comprises 7 1-2 acres on which are located the offices and a mammoth swimming pool, also used as a reservoir for an irrigation system. Water from this pool is supplied each acre of the colony at the rate of $1.00 a month for all they can use.

The colony, as laid out, contains 500 one-acre tracts and 2,500 acres which are split up in tracts of from five to 40 acres. These are to be used for both poultry and dairying establishments, all organized on the same idea as the intensive cultivation of one-acre units.

Model Acre Told About

The Weeks Model Acre boasts of a modern bungalow, two poultry houses size 24x72 feet, in each of which 600 hens are kept, a garden spot and a space 100x250 feet on which feedstuff for the chickens are raised and fruit trees nurtufred. There are 75 different varieties of fruit trees growing, grape vines cling and every inch of ground utilized for the cultivation of some useful plant.

Poultry houses on this model acre are divided into three sections, each 24x24 feet. The striking thing about them is the complete cleanliness abounding. Sanitation is the evident aim and achievement. Chickens roost upon porches protected from insects by small containers of chemicals which surround the supports of these perches, making it impossible for insects to reach them. Droppings are used as fertilizer and dropping boards so located that no chicken can come in contact with them.

Hens Are Kept In Houses

Sand-covered floors, kept spic and span by daily cleaning, furnish the only space used by these chickens for exercise. Feed is furnished them here, greenstuff being ground and scattered on floors, other feed placed in hampers. Trapnests are provided and accurate record kept on each hen of the flock.

None of the Weeks one-acre poultry colonies have ever reported less than $2.00 per hen net profit a year, the total hens averaging 1,200 on each such colony.

With the central water supply idea, Lubbock county poultrymen believe that this colony plan can be as well carried out on the South Plains as it can be at Wichita Falls. With our supply of water and more home-grown feed available, this section should prove more profitable for intensive poultry raising than any other section of Texas.

M. Johnson's ranch at Wichita Falls covers 80 acres. His original ranch, at Bowie, contains 350 acres. Both have at present, almost identical capacities—between 20,000 and 25,000 hens each. The Wichita Falls ranch, just two years old, is much better arranged. Two different sizes of shed-type chicken houses are used. One is 20x40 feet, for 300 hens and the other is 9x12 feet, for 25 hens.

Capacity Nearly 300,000

A modern brick building, two stories in height, about 50x100 feet in size, furnishes the Wichita Falls plant with offices, shipping rooms, incubator space and apartments for employees. Combined incubator capacity of the Bowie and Wichita Falls ranches is 280,000 eggs. When present pullets get to laying, the Wichita Falls ranch will have a daily egg production of 20 to 25 cases. The Bowie ranch is to become the brooding place, principally.

As a means of securing the best prices for eggs, Johnson has recently installed a cold storage plant at Wichita Falls, with total capacity of six carloads. It is his opinion that more money is to be made in the poultry business by selling eggs than from any other phase of it. Egg records are the best records for hens to have, he states, and raising poultry to produce eggs is the easiest most profitable and best means of attaining success.

More than 1,000,000 baby chicks were produced by the Johnson ranches this year. These have been shipped to every state in the United States, to Mexico and Canada. White Leghorns, of his own strain, are raised exclusively, and one can readily see why his ranch is conceded to be the largest White Leghorn poultry farm in the world.

The world's largest library is the Bibliotheque Nationale, in Paris. It contains over 1,000,000,000 volumes.

Dad's Wheat Breaks Record

For the past five years the wheat fields of Fred Laptad, farmer of Lawrence, Kas., have been adjudged 100 pepr cent pur by official state inspectors. This is a record for the state and thought to be a national record. Laptad raises his wheat for seed purposes, sending the seed to farmers all over the United States and many foreign countris. His daughter, Lois, graduate of the University of Kansas, is shown here holding some of the 100 per cent pure wheat.

Purpose Of The New $20,000,000 Federal Farm Board Corporation Is Explained By Texas Tech Professor

Responsibility Is Put Upon Farm Cooperatives By Government, Bower Contends, To Strengthen All

By. H. J. BOWER
Texas Technological College

The purpose of the new $20,000,000 corporation, organized through efforts of the Federal Farm Board recently, is to reflect the profits of the carry-over grain back to the growers. This new agriculture marketing act permits cooperatives, by uniting on a buying and selling program, to take the place of the speculators who have claimed to have functioned in this capacity in the past.

This new function, sanctioned by the U. S. government, puts a responsibility upon the cooperatives that will mean failure or service.

This corporation plan is the creation of Alexander Legge, followed by the good work of William Settle, chairman of the committee on organization, who says, "this may not be what the farmer has been dreaming of for years, but it is at least a vision which must begin with money in the bank and something more than a gesture of financial and commercial responsibility."

Is Only the Beginning

The plan is just a beginning in carrying out the plan of the farm bill. It is followed by the idea of the farm board, that the farmer must first help himself before the government can undertake to help him. The plan of this method for self-help is through cooperative organizations.

It has been repeatedly claimed that "speculators are essential in making a market for surplus farm products." That the recent advance in wheat was made in the face of the largest carry-over on record, during a tremendous movement of new wheat market, a rapid accumulation of wheat in the elevators and in large piles on the ground, brings convincing evidence to a certain class of people that speculative buying for future delivery was a benefit to producers of winter wheat.

Thus the argument for the present methods of marketing, with an organized trade in futures, is that the news of the drought damage to the spring wheat belt of the United States and Canada, added a profit to the growers of winter wheat that otherwise would not have been available until after the crop had left the farmer's hands.

Old Arguments Challenged

It has been claimed that over a period of 56 years the world-wide market influence on the average arrive at a price nearly normal early in the crop year. From this it has been argued that organized future buying has stabilized the market. The only deviation being caused by exceptional cases of too late, or unfavorable, seeding and winter drilling coincident with unfavorable crop conditions in the southern hemisphere.

In the future, the new $20,000,000 corporation assumes the directing of this carry-over, and it is the opinion of Robert Sterling, secretary of the Kansas City Board of Trade, that there will not be any interference of this corporation with the normal process of the milling industry. He furthermore states that "more than 40 per cent of the grain grown in the country already is marketed through local cooperatives. Some of them are successful and some are failures. In a general way they have fitted in with the commercial trade to the satisfaction of both. Their coming into a larger organization with presumably better commercial management and, more particularly with a measure of government supervision of their operations and financing, is likely to improve them in many ways; to make them more reliable and to render them, if any considerable part of their aims is to be realized, more worthy as competitors."

It is definitely understood that this corporation's plans for the cooperatives, in their function of the carry-over that has claimed to be the service of the speculators in the past to do this service without any undue speculation that robs the uninformed investor and the public. The word Public also includes the grain trade and the milling industry.

Affects Millers And Trade

Both the grain trade and the milling industry have had an increasing tendency toward constantly increased inventory with a larger employment of capital and credit. This has been done by millers by storing their requirements of milling wheat many months in advance as a safeguard against costly premiums. These larger inventories are considered a measure of cost reduction and economy, under the present system of doing business.

With this new plan the cooperatives will be considered the market stabilizer and an assurance to the miller of orderly marketing.

The most fortunate part of the plan is that this responsibility will develop the worthy cooperatives. The members of the executive committee will be forced to spend time in investigation and study for the betterment of the management of each respective cooperative.

The lack of conscious responsibility will not only return the speculators' profits of the carry-over grain back to the grower, or give the miller a more orderly system in his business, but it will force the management of each cooperative to render a better and a more efficient service.

Lubbock County's 4-H Club Dairy Judging Team Woring Hard For Acquiring Laurels At St. Louis

Drilling and training, every possible minute they can be brought together, in order to get in readiness to represent the 4-H clubs of the state of Texas at the National Dairy Exposition, in St. Louis, October 12 to 19, Lubbock county's 4-H club dairy judging team spent several hours Saturday with County Agent D. F. Eaton in studying various problems confronting them.

The team is composed of James Potts, Jack Stalcup, and Fred Elliott, with E. C. Pounds as alternate. All of them are under 20 years of age and each determined to do their utmost to bring back highest honors from the St. Louis event, as they did from the Texas A. & M. college short course a few weeks ago.

Team Will Attend Fairs

In addition to regular training during the weeks ahead of these young men, here at home, Eaton announces that he is planning to take them to the Amarillo Tri-State Fair, September 23 to 29, where they will practice judging various dairy herds on exhibit there. The team will also obtain similar practice on herds exhibited at the Panhandle South Plains Fair in Lubbock, September 30 to October 5, inclusive.

"At St. Louis, the team will judge four different breeds, the Ayrshires, Guernseys, Jerseys and Holsteins, with two classes of each to study," Eaton states. "We have always had these four breeds on exhibit at Amarillo, but this year I understand that Ayrshires have been left out of premium awards offered. At the Lubbock fair we will have Guernseys added this year to Jerseys and Holsteins."

Summary Gives Uneven Picture Of Crops Over U. S.

Most Cultivated Crops Have Made Fair Growth But Many Areas Report Much Lack Of Rain

The general picture of crop conditions now at mid season is a rather uneven picture. Most of the cultivated crops have made fair growth during the past month, but both corn and potatoes are late in many sections and show wide variation in condition. Haying and cultivation have been held up by local rains through the Central States, whereas wheat has suffered severely from dry weather in the West, as have local areas in the east.

The total acreage of crops harvested this season will apparently be about the same as last season. The composite condition of all crops last month was indicated as about 4 per cent below the recent 10-year average.

Drouth Affected Wheat

Wheat harvest is now going forward in the North. The most spectacular development of the past month has been the change in the wheat situation. The drought in our Plains States and in Canada so reduced the crop prospect for wheat that in one month the Chicago prices advanced nearly 30 cents a bushel. Prices have declined somewhat, however, during the past week or two.

Hard winter wheat, which is normally our chief export class, was estimated last month at nearly 40,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. The spring wheat crop was also estimated at nearly 40,000,000 bushels below last year and the reports indicate further damage to the crop since the July estimate. For those growers who can make a crop, the prospect is much more cheering than it was a month ago.

Haying is well along, with a substantially larger crop than last year. The clover and alfalfa meadows, particularly in the Central and Eastern States, are again back in shape after the extensive winter-killing of last year. While ample hay is assured, however, dairymen and other feeders are beginning to expect higher-priced feed grains this fall.

Fruit Prospects Are Low.

The prospects for fruit are not good. Virginia and Idaho have a promising crop of apples, but elsewhere the apple crop is below average. Peaches, pears, citrous fruits, and grapes all will be decidedly smaller crops than last year.

The outlook reports compiled during the past month on hogs and poultry reflect somewhat opposite prospects for those two lines of production. The hog situation is regarded as favorable to producers, with the probability of a somewhat decreased market supply during the next 12 months. In the case of poultry, the July 1 estimate indicated about 10 per cent more young chickens on farms than last year. This is presumed to mean more poultry coming to market this fall and increased egg production by next spring.

Poultry Show For Lubbock Proposed

Looking toward holding a winter poultry show in Lubbock, the Lubbock County Poultry Association, of which R. L. Powell is president, will hold a meeting within the next few days, according to County Agent D. F. Eaton.

Other officers of the association are: Mrs. Ed Schroeder, vice president; Mrs. J. C. Standford, educational division head; Mrs. F. F. Revier, marketing; W. M. Ross, protection; L. C. Ellis, shows and exhibits, and R. E. Swain, hatcheries.

The association will more than likely be very active in assisting with the poultry department of the Panhandle South Plains Fair, September 30 to October 5, inclusive.

Fall Grazing Crop Sowing Time Here

Much thought should now be given by farmers to the sowing of fall grazing crops, according to County Agent D. F. Eaton.

"Wheat, rye or winter barley," says Eaton, "should be planted at once, if sufficient moisture is in the field selected, or just as soon as it rains."

Eaton considers the matter of fall grazing crops of considerable importance this year, because of the evident shortage of feed crops on the plains.

MORE SPACE TO BE HAD

Commercial exhibitors at the state fair of Texas, anticipating a "Billion Dollar Crop" in Texas, and better business conditions arising therefrom are seeking greater space at the 43rd annual state exposition, Oct. 12 to 27.

Work will soon be started on the hangar of the Southwest Air Exposition which will be one of the features of the 1929 state fair of Texas, Oct. 12 to 27. The hangar will be 500 feet long, and 110 feet wide. The exposition will show every known make of airplane, as well as have exhibits of airplane accessories.

Millions of Dollars Worth of Cotton Seed Good For Planting Lost At Gins

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 24.—Millions of dollars worth of good cotton seed for planting purposes are lost annually to Texas farmers by becoming mixed with poor quality seed at gins. The simplest way out of the difficulty, and the most profitable, is for every farmer in a community to plant one variety of good, pure seed, where this is not done, the only course remaining is to hold back the cotton from which planting seed is to be saved, and gin it late enough in the season to enable the ginner to take time to clean out the gin rolls.

These facts are pointed out by E. A. Miller, agronomist in the Extension Service, who explains that the problems of mixed seed came about when the South shifted from the old private plantation gin to the public gin. Experiments show that a farmer may gin as high as 25 per cent of seed from the bale preceding his at the gin, and that some mixtures also occur in the second and third bales, and may even continue to some extent to the fourth bale, if the seed be allowed to go through the seed conveyor.

No Wonder It Runs Out.

"It's no wonder that cotton seed run out so fast," declares Mr. Miller. "If the bale that was ginned before yours happened to be of a poor variety, or if it was grown from mixed seed, you will get a bad mixture that will usually reduce your next year's yield and give a mixed staple that is very objectionable to the spinner. The ginner should not be held responsible for these losses because it takes time to clean out the gin rolls and many customers would be lost in the rush of the season if this were attempted. But if farmers will wait until the slack part of the season to gin their cotton from which seed is to be saved, part of the inferior seed losses may be avoided.

"On account of the danger of becoming mixed in the seed conveyor, it is best to run the seed on the floor and then sack it or shovel it directly into the wagon box. Another method is to take several bales to the gin at one time, not saving seed for planting purposes until the first, and preferably the second bale, has passed."

WTCC Staff Member Opens One Man Drive To Wipe Out $18,000 In Cash Deficits Off Organization's Books

B. M. Whiteker Contributes First $200 And Starts Out To Get Rest; Ninety Units Are Requested

The West Texas chamber of commerce is about $18,000 "in the red."

Believe it or not, one man, an attache of the regional organization, has started out on a single-handed effort to wipe out the dificit between now and October 24, which is the opening day of the eleventh general convention of the WTCC, at El Paso.

He is B. M. Whitaker, agricultural and exhibits manager. The campaign is his own, he originated it and will carry it through without assistance, and he believes in his plan so strongly that he made the first contribution, $200 from his own funds.

Abilene Meeting

Resignation of Homer D. Wade as general manager of the West Texas chamber was formally submitted to the executive board meeting at Abilene June 20. The financial report for the preceding eleven months, submitted at that session, showed that the organization needed about $18,000 to pay its outstanding accounts and go into the fall in good financial condition. It was explained that $14,000 was overdue from town memberships, but the directors realized that all of that could not be raised.

Soon after the selection of A. M. (Andy) Bourland of Vernon, president, as acting manager, Whiteker came forward with his proposal to liquidate the debt. After securing from the president-manager full authority to proceed in any manner deemed advisable, he laid his proposal before the advisory committee of the organization which had been appointed to assist Bourland in temporarily handling the affairs. That committee gave enthusiastic endorsement to his program.

90 Units at $200 Each

Whiteker's plan calls for the raising of 90 units of $200 each, totaling $18,000, or lesser amounts if necessary, pledges to be taken from the membership of the West Texas chamber's vice-presidents, directorate, banks and other large institutions in the territory, and wealthy individuals not on the board but having the WTCC's interest at heart. The fund is to be applied only on the debt incurred prior to last June 5, date of Wade's resignation, with all checks or cash received to be held on deposit and not cashed until $12,000 is in hand. If that sum is not secured, all contributions are to be returned.

But the goal will be reached, Whitaker confidently predicts. Starting his campaign in Abilene only nine days ago, he already has raised nearly $2,000, with Abilene thus far pledging the largest amount. The larger cities in the territory, including El Paso, Wichita Falls, Amarillo, San Angelo and Lubbock, have not been accounted for; while Fort Worth, with more than 1,000 memberships in the West Texas chamber is to be reserved for "last call."

Williams First Giver

Pat Williams, Mineral Wells, was the first contributor, his pledge for $100 being offered at the Abilene meeting of June 20, before Whiteker started his drive. Whiteker himself is the first man to take a $200 unit. Also, he expects to put the campaign over at the lowest overhead cost in the history of the organization.

It looks like a long and hard pull for one man, but Whiteker is confident. He said, "The unselfish spirit and loyal determination of the citizens of West Texas has been little short of marvelous. Their sense of patriotism to their own is acute, and they are showing it by getting in behind their regional chamber of commerce. This is a West Texas problem to be solved by West Texas people who are determined that a deficit will not be allowed to cripple the work and usefulness of the finest regional body in America. I believe we will go to El Paso not owing a thin dime, from that time on giving the organization a free hand to carry on the greatest constructive program in its history."

Whiteker is the dean of the W. T. C. C. staff. He has been agricultural and exhibits manager for nine years. His achievement in the competitive exhibits field is a story by itself the high point being the winning of the gold medal for West Texas at the Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial exposition, over California, Florida, and many other states.

MOSCOW (AP)—The fur farm established last autumn near Moscow has met with especial success in that for the first time sables have bred in captivity. Ten young were born among the 54 sables on the farm. Minks, ermines, racoons and foxes were also produced.

CRITICIZE ACTION

STRASMOURG, France (AP)—The French cabinet this year refused to give the usual subsidies to national and municipal theaters here because the mayor and city council are all autonomists and some of them are also communists. Frenchmen criticized the action as detrimental to the effort to teach Alsatians the use of the French language.

ON AUTO ROW

RAIN IS PREDICTED

A prominent executive of an auto row in Lubbock, who has been a resident here for the past 28 years and claims to know his weather, predicts a rain for this section, beginning tonight. If this prophesy comes true, he will not only make himself famous as a prophet but will bring joy to the hearts of about 15 more automobile dealers in this city, not to mention those in nearby towns. This individual, whose name we withhold for various reasons, particularly in fear that he will be wrong, sells a product by Walter Chrysler, distributed under another name. His business in Lubbock is located at the corner of 13th and Avenue J. Now we know you'll never guess who it is. P. S.: His last name is Royalty and the initials are W. W.

J. V. SPIKES BACK

J. V. Spikes, sales manager of the Kuykendall Chevrolet company, returned last Monday from Palacios where he has been in camp with the National guard. The guardsmen have been in camp since August 1.

TWO SALES ANNOUNCED

S. D. Hunter, of the West Texas Motor company, announced yesterday the sale of two new cars during the past week. Tom Russell, prominent Dickens county rancher, purchased a Hupmobile sedan and D. G. Stewart, of Dallas, a Hupmobile cabriolet.

Several power tests have been conducted by the local Hupmobile dealers during the past week. The new Hupmobile Six was made to climb the canyon hill east of the city on the Idalou highway, at the rate of 4 miles per hour. Other tests were equally as impressive.

GETS USED CARS

A most unusual situation arose within a Lubbock automobile house last week when it became necessary for C. E. Gough, of the Gough Motor company, to send his used car manager to Amarillo to take on an additional supply of used cars in order that the demand here for these products might be met. Carrying a large stock of used machines the local Studebaker agent was so completely sold out at his used car lot that the above procedure was necessary.

DE SOTOS ARE SOLD

Two new De Sotos were delivered last week by the Cap Rock Motor company here. A sedan went to M. Watkins, of Plainview and a coupe to Mrs. Annie I. Waller, of this city. The local De Soto house has on display another one of the popular yellow roadsters that have gone over so big in Lubbock automobile circles.

USED CARS SELL

As a general rule, the greatest problem facing the automobile dealers is that of disposing of used cars. Trade-ins are shunned for this reason and consequently new car sales are lost. Quite contrary to the usual condition, Gough's used car salesmen have gone wild during the month of August. Twenty-five used cars and 6 new machines were sold up to the night of the 21st.

JOINS GOUGH FORCE

Cecil Smith, formerly with the Bradshaw Motor company in Dallas, has joined the sales force of the Gough Motor company, where he will continue to sell Studebakers.

Four new Studebakers have been delivered by the local dealer within the last week. Three went to buyers outside of Lubbock. Two went to Lovington, N. M., and one to a citizen of Brownfield. Pat Ellis, of Lovington, purchased an Erskine Cabriolet, and Miss Doll Turland of the same city a Commander Cabriolet. A Commander 8 Club Sedan went to C. T. Fields of Brownfield while E. L. Hanson of Lubbock likewise was delivered a Commander 8 sedan.

FORDS SELL WELL

Fifty-one new Model A Fords have been delivered in Lubbock up to date during the month of August, Harry Morris announced Thursday.

KENT ON VACATION

Frank B. Kent, president of the Kent Buick company, spent last week visiting points of interest in New Mexico on a brief vacation. He is expected to return here Monday to resume his duties as head of the local Buick agency.

New Lower Priced Hup Given Praise

Light Car, Selling Under $1,000, Is Powered By Same Engine As Previous High Priced Century

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 24.—Hupmobile's introduction a week ago of a new six cylinder automobile in the $1000 price field powered by the same engine as was the previous higher priced Century models, has brought unstinted praise from hundreds of thousands of persons who have seen the new car.

Commercial Coupe, $995; Sedan, $1060; Convertible Coupe, $1075; and Phaeton, $1100.

Has Unusual Qualities

Particularly favorable are the comments on the striking beauty and unusual quality of the new car.

"That's a marvelous car for the money," and similar remarks are heard on every side. And in this connection Hupmobile points out that the new model "S", in utilizing the same proven engine with added refinements, actually presents "25 per cent greater value at greatly reduced prices." The original list price of the Century Six was $1395 as compared with the list price of $1060 for the new model "S" Sedan.

An outstanding quality feature of the new car is its greatly increased interior room which is even greater than its predecessor. In the tonneau more than ample seat width and leg room is provided.

HOW'S SHE HITTIN'

By ISRAEL KLEIN

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

We have better engines today, but they need proportionately more care than those of previous years. The reason is obvious. The finer a mechanism becomes, the more it is apt to get out of order. Care alone and constant care, good driving and regular attention to lubrication and other important details will keep that motor operating at its highest efficiency.

* * *

The high compression motor of today retains its high compression so long as it is kept tightened up. The valves must seat properly, the pistons must fit snugly, the gasoline mixture must be perfect, the timing must be just right. Let any of these details be ignored and the entire engine will slump in its work.

A high compression engine then becomes a low compression motor one hardly comparable even with that formerly built.

The stresses and strains produced by the high compression of the modern motors are such that they cause havoc to the various moving parts inside unless proper oiling is maintained constantly and unless the motor is kept tight.

Due to the heavier pounding of the engine there is more liability of some leak forming and resulting in reduced compression and power. A much heavier blow is struck by the burning gasoline in the smaller combustion chamber of the present motor, and the strain on the piston pins, the connecting rods and their bearings is tremendous. The wear against the cylinder walls is greater and the push on the crankshaft bearings is heavier.

Forced feed lubrication through the crankshaft and connecting rods, and crankcase ventilation of modern motors have been designed so that effective lubrication is maintained. But the primary object depends on the motorist himself. That is the task of seeing that there is always enough oil in the crankcase and that it is still in good lubricating condition.

The oil cleaner that comes with practically every automobile today is one of the most important parts of a properly operating power plant. If that isn't cleaned out every 10,000 miles or thereabouts, there is danger of some of the dirt that it ordinarily would keep from the oil clogging up the system. And the clogged spot is hard to find.

In order to maintain the original compression and power of a modern motor, the motorist should see that the valves are ground to fit their seats about every 10,000 miles or so. Carbon in the combustion chambers should be cleaned out. The spark plugs may need renewal at the same time.

The heavy pounding of the motor may loosen the cylinder head. This should be tightened down evenly from the center outward and it should be kept tight at all times.

The timing must be right or sparking will come at the wrong intervals in the combustion chambers and detonation and loss of power will result. A slight drop of oil in the distributor every 500 miles or so will keep that part operating effectively. But it should be checked up as to proper timing by an ignition expert every once in a while.

Of greatest importance is the type of lubricant used in high compression motors. These motors are much hotter than those we had in previous years and will therefore make short shrift of poor oil.

What makes lubrication worse is the unburned gasoline that finds its way into the crankcase due to improper timing or perhaps an improper mixture through the carburetor. In summer this mixture should be as clean as possible, especially when long journeys are made.

Builder Of Gasless Car Sees Demand For Latest Improvements In Vehicle

Improved Power And Beauty Needed In Electric Unit

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

DETROIT, Aug. 24.—Of the 36 electric automobiles that have seen the light during the progress of the automotive industry in America, only one survives. And that one, according to its maker, stands prepared to lead a survival of interest in electrics.

The lone survivor is the Detroit Electric, manufactured in Detroit and now built under the guidance of A. O. Dunk, pioneer automobile man, purchaser until two years ago of bankrupt auto concerns and all their belongings and close friend of all the big men in the industry from Henry Ford down.

The revival of interest in electrics, Dunk asserts, is the result of three developments:

1. Perfection of an improved, lighter and more powerful battery for the power plant.
2. Rise of the idea of a third car in the family for use of the elder members.
3. Redesigning of the bodies to conform with the gasoline powered models.

Monk Invents New Battery

"The new battery," says Dunk, "was developed by a Jesuit monk in Spain and perfected by Edmundo Almeida, a Spanish engineer. It is being commercialized by a French engineering concern. This battery has a displacement half that of the present battery, and will therefore reduce the weight of the present electric from nearly two tons to less than the weight of the average gasoline automobile.

"The new battery will charge itself in one-half to three-quarters of an hour, while those still in use have to undergo recharging of from six to seven hours. Besides, one charge of the new battery will take a car from 350 to 650 miles, depending on the speed of the car, while the present battery takes an electric from 75 to 110 miles on a single charge.

"This effect of this will be that much longer journeys will be made in electrics, with recharging of batteries being done while the owners have lunch."

Twenty Miles Daily Average

That doesn't say that the present electric is unfit for extended use before it has to be recharged. The average car, Dunk reminds us, is run less than 20 miles a day, and that goes for gasoline vehicles as well. So at that rate, even the present electric can be run for five days without recharging.

Dunk sees an increased demand for electrics in the United States with the rise of the three-car family. It is the only automobile an elderly person can handle with safety. It is practically noiseless, smooth and comfortable in operation and requires a minimum of attention on the part of the driver.

"Electrics never wear out," Dunk repeats. We're servicing electrics dating as far back as 1908. The battery is guaranteed for three years but we have some that have lasted seven to eight years. The tires last four to five years, and the motor is made so that it requires little or no attention.

"When I bought the Detroit Electric Car company two years ago, I changed the design of the old type electric from the high box-like shape to the one that conforms more with the present gasoline design. The old type electric still is desired by some people, however, so we have only lowered it and made it more comfortable inside."

"Swamped" With Orders

Dunk dropped every salesman when he took over the company, yet he says he is selling more automobiles than he did two years ago. In fact, he says he is swamped with orders that are too many for him to handle at present. He is putting up a new factory, however, and when that is completed his production will increase with the demand.

"There is a big demand today for electrics," he says, "not only in the United States, but in China, Japan, India and other countries where the price of fuel is high and recent water power developments have made electricity quite cheap. It is easier and cheaper to recharge a storage battery in those countries than it is to obtain gasoline or petrol.

"In this country we find such noted characters as Mrs. Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, Mrs. S. S. Kresge, John D. Rockefeller, jr., Henry B. Joy, Harry B. Jewett, F. C. Denkman, the Davenport lumberking, and others riding in electrics. It's a great vehicle for shopping and city driving.

"And its cost of operation is extremely low.

"Taking a representative survey of 2,500 electrics in the United States, the average cost of maintaining an electric for an entire month is only $5.67, and that includes electricity, battery care and repair of parts. Without repairs, the cost is $5.33 a month, which shows that the car hardly wears down.

"Tire renewals per year is a fraction under eight dollars. The car is so easy on tires."

The price of the present electric runs from $2,800 to $4,250, but the batteries make this cost so high and when the new type batteries are produced in large enough number, Dunk believes the price of the car will be greatly reduced.

The Detroit Electric, sole survivor of a field of 36, is now made so that it can be operated on vary speeds from five to 25 miles an hour and can be accelerated for short distances to pass other vehicles to 35 or 40 miles an hour.

Although some electric auto drivers still prefer the old "show-case" type car, the latest models have been much reduced in height, as photo above shows. But the very latest in electrics is the one shown in the other picture, with the snappy lines of the gasoline vehicle.

Hardest, Softest Metals In Viking

Cadium And Chromium Are Two Extremes In Elements; Offer Improvement For New Models

Two elements, one among the hardest and the other ranking with the softest, are used in plating some of the exterior parts of the new Viking, the latest V-type, eight cylinder automobile announced recently by manufacturers of the Oldsmobile Six. The elements are chromium and cadmium.

Cadmium is an extremely soft rust-proof element discovered by Stromeyer in 1817. Comparatively recently it was "re-discovered" by automotive engineers as an exceptionally good plating medium for those exterior parts of an automobile which came in contact with tools, such as bolts, nuts, and screws.

Element Will Bend

Due to the softness of cadium it will bend and give, rather than chip or break, when struck by a metallic substance. Therefore cadmium plating wears even on parts where screw drivers or wrenches are used. Its rust-proof qualities make it an ideal plating substance for these exterior parts on an automobile. Regardless of exposure, to all kinds of weather it retains its dull white color.

Chromium is a direct opposite to cadmium, being the third hardest element known, ranking just below pure carbon and boron. It has a brilliant blue-white color similar to a diamond. Its rust-proof and non-corrosive quality is its only point of similarity to cadmium.

Championship Performance Of Dictator Under Extreme Conditions "Sells" Owner After Trip

Praise for the championship performance of a Studebaker Dictotor under extreme conditions has just been received from an owner in far-off Persia, according to C. E. Gough, Studebaker-Erskine dealer here.

The trip, described by Arthur Upham Pope, American business man, in a letter to the Studebaker Corporation of America, started in Egypt, traversed the Syrian and Mesopotamian deserts and ended in Teheran, Persia, a distance of over 3,000 miles. The journey, undertaken as a business trip, was made in a Dictator Six. The report by Mr. Pope was penned following the party's safe arrival in Teheran.

Drives Like New

"After the most furious going, under conditions which have no precedent in the United States, the car looks and drives like new," Mr. Pope declared. "It has gone through snow and sand; in rough valleys below sea level and over still rougher mountains nearly 10,000 feet above. It has traveled over good roads, poor roads, desert trails and parts of wilderness without even tracks.

"From Jerusalem, Palestine to Teheran, Persia, with detours of several hundred miles, in six days without change of drivers, would be a tax on any car, but our gallant Studebaker pulled through without trouble, even though cruelly overloaded and at all times pressed at a cruel pace."

Since 1920, 285 million dollars have been spent on new roads in Great Britain.

YOU WANT MORE THAN TRANSPORTATION

If transportation in a limited sense were all that an automobile could provide, any car would do, and the cheapest would be the best. ¶ The difference between the minimum in transportation and the maximum in motoring is exactly what sets the Chrysler-built De Soto Six completely apart from others in its field. It explains why De Soto Six has broken all sales records for a first-year car. ¶ The De Soto Six was not designed merely to carry people in passable comfort from one place to another. The qualities that afford De Soto true distinction are all supplementary to its mobility. ¶ De Soto Six is capable of such distinctive and versatile performance that nothing less than a demonstration can do it justice. We shall be glad to arrange this demonstration to suit your convenience.

Good Brakes Are More Important Than High Speed

B. H. Anibal, Oakland Engineer, Explains Why His Company Pioneered And Improved 4-Wheel Brake

"The vital question in the operation of an automobile today is not how fast will it go, but how fast will it stop," declares B. H. Anibal, vice-president in charge of engineering for the Oakland Motor Car company.

"Each year Oakland has built larger reserves of power and speed into the Oakland and Pontiac Sixes," he continued, "but we always have given equal or even greater attention to the important matter of brake control.

Visit American Cities.

"This effort has continued ever since the autumn of 1923 when the company attracted wide national interest by sending on tour to all parts of the United States a half dozen Oaklands equipped with four wheel brakes. These cars, called the 'True Blue Travelrs,' visited practically every American city of importance. Demonstrations were given on streets which first had been sprinkled to create uncertain traction. At that time four wheel brakes were a curiosity and the visit of the 'True Blue' Oaklands enabled many persons to obtain their first view of the new development.

"The next year several manufacturers adopted four-wheel brakes while some others widely advertised their conviction that four wheel brakes were unnecessary. However as is always the case, the final decision rested with those who buy and drive automobiles. Their verdict favored the greater margin of safety provided by four wheel brakes. Eventually four wheel brakes became standard equipment upon every American automobile.

Marquette Makes Unusual Journey

Adding another brilliant chapter to the nation-wide story of performance being written by the Marquette, "Outdoor" Frankland, noted California road scout, has driven a Marquette sedan from Los Angeles into Death Valley and on to the summit of Pike's Peak without a motor stop. Even a cloudburst in New Mexico that brought the storm waters up over the floor of the car could not stop the Marquette in its unusual test at a time when the heat on the desert was at its height. Frankland was accompanied by Harry Miller, Los Angeles newspaperman, as the observer on the trip which took the car to 312 feet below sea level and then ended at an altitude of 14,109 feet. Here are the two extremes which can be reached by a motor car in the United States. Despite temperatures which ranged as high as 106 as registered on the thermometer inside the sedan and the wide variance in altitude, the Marquette motor did not miss once and ended the 1678 mile test with a 21 mile pull up Pike's Peak "hitting along as pretty," according to Frankland and Miller, "as when the start was made from Los Angels."

Barren Bad Lands Of South Dakota Called "Nature's Art Gallery;" Arid Area Holds Awesome But Highly Colorful Scene For Nation's Tourists

MICHELL, S. D., Aug. 24.—A former hiding place for outlaws, a spot in the United States where nature got all her colors mixed and her construction figures jumbled, the South Dakota Bad Lands is a scene worthy of consideration by any motorist planning a tour.

Over the historic Custer Battlefield highway, otherwise known as U. S. highway 16, the road to the Bad Lands runs west from Sioux Falls, modern city of South Dakota. The road all along the way into Mitchell, Chamberlain, Kennebec, Stamford and Kadoka is good. But at Kadoka, state highway 40 presents a shorter route into the Bad Lands district, and following this the tourist finally runs into Cedar Pass, the eastern gateway into the Bad Lands.

Here at Cedar Pass a comfortable and modern camp and hotel is provided for motorists to stop before they start on a tour through "Nature's Art Gallery." It is made a headquarters for some who take short trips into the new Teton National park.

Made National Park

Teton National park is just another name for the Bad Lands. Through the efforts of U. S. Senator Norbeck of South Dakota, congress provided for the creation of this reservation, the territory taking in the area between Kadoka and Interior to the south and Wall and Quinn on the north.

The major area set apart for park purposes is 100 square miles in extent, comprising what is known as the Great Wall and the Pinnacles.

The topography of the Bad Lands is awesome. Looking down from the cedar topped Sheep mountain, one sees a vast expanse of projecting points and pinnacles. The Great Wall, from 300 to 400 feet high stretches for miles east and west, presenting a broken skyline pierced by the projecting pinnacles.

Weird, Awesome Silence

Here a deep silence prevails, interrupted only by the moan of an occasional wind rushing through the crannies and crevices of the pinnacles. There is almost a total absence of growing and living things. Added to the weirdness of the place is the fact that fossils of grass eating mammals, larger than the prehistoric mastadon, were found here.

On the rising wall to the west are the Black hills, portraying life in all its abundance and richness. In the east the scenery is the opposite. All the colors of the rainbow are mixed here in a spot where nature must have finished her work and had only color to finish the job. Here the "Bad Lands" are at their best.

It was through this area that the famous Indian chief, Sitting Bull, led his gallant warriors in his last battle. Some 30 miles southwest of Cedar Pass he met the U. S. soldiers under General Miles, and the last Indian battle was fought—the Battle of Wounded Knee.

A view of the majestic pinnacles through Norbeck Pass in the South Dakota Bad Lands. Arid, awesome, but highly colorful.

Showrooms Throughout The Entire Nation Crowded As Public Seeks Sight Of New Improved Line

Record crowds in showrooms throughout the nation and an unprecedented volume of orders marked the enthusiastic reception last week of the three new Chrysler lines—the "77," and "70" and the "66"—according to officials of the Chrysler Sales Corporation at Detroit.

Rumors of startling advancements in engineering and radical changes in design, that preceded the actual announcement of the new lines, were responsible for overflow throngs in many of the large cities and towns, it was revealed by thousands of congratulatory telegrams from distributors and dealers to J. W. Frazer, general sales manager for the Chrysler Sales Corporation. In many centers, showroom facilities were inadequate to accommodate the thousands who went to see Walter P. Chrysler's latest offerings to the motoring public.

Interest Shown

Interest was centered largely on mechanical advancement introduced for the first time in the new Chryslers, which, the officials of the corporation declare have revolutionized all previous ideas of performance in a motor car. The Multi-Range Gear Shift, an entirely new principle in transmission, greatly increases the power range and the new system of carburetion embodied in the Down Draft Fuelization system, are standard equipment on the "77" and the "70" models. These proved to be the features on which public attention was centered, the dealers reported.

Letters to the number of 160,000 were sent by air out of England last year, while the total weight of that country's airmails was about 5 tons. In America, the airmails average 230 tons every month.

Whip Of Steering Wheel Now Solved

Wheel Tendency To Jump Out Of Driver's Hands While Driving Rapidly Eliminated By Buick

Steering wheel whip, or the tendency of the wheel to wrench itself out of the hands of the driver when traveling rapidly over rough roads, has been solved in the 1930 Buick. For years the problem of eliminating this dangerous and exasperating whip in the wheel has stubbornly resisted the efforts of automotive engineers. It is solved on the new Buick by the addition of a simple device attached to the front shackle of the front spring on the steering gear side.

The new Buick improvement absolutely eliminates steering wheel whip and gives an ease of driving control that requires no physical effort.

The road shock eliminator is as simple in construction as it is effective in operation. In designing the new car, the Buick engineers instead of pinning the front end of the front spring immovably to the frame, shackled it so that the spring may play back and forth at this point as well as at the rear, but the play of the front shackle is modulated by mounting two stiff coil springs at either side of the bottom of the shackle.

Ordinarily these stiff springs hold the front shackle stationary, the main play being in the rear shackle, but if the surface of the road is unusually rough the front shackle will yield, the stiff spring in this special shackle taking up the shock of the impact and preventing it from reaching the steering wheel.

New System Of Grading To Be Used In High School

Superintendent M. H. Duncan Gives Official Explanation Of Plan For Placing Students; Is Point Method

Students Of Better Class May Graduate In Shorter Period Than Others; Is Fully Outlined

A NEW SYSTEM of grading students will be instituted in Lubbock high school this year, Superintendent M. H. Duncan announced yesterday. According to Mr. Duncan, the system will permit the better students to graduate in less time than those whose diligence is lacking and in the case of the better students a diploma may be secured in less than four years time.

Mr. Duncan's statement follows, explaining the system in detail:

"In the system of accrediting high school pupils outlined below that will be used in the Lubbock high school during the coming year, we have sought to make it possible to reward each one for the kind of work he does. If the pupil prefers to work on a low level, he will have to do more of it to graduate. If he is willing to work on a high level, he will not have to do so much. In other words, the pupil must choose between the quantity and quality of his work. He may offer more in quality and not have to offer so much in quantity, or he may offer a lower quality and have to offer more in quantity. We are trying to do all we can to induce everyone to do his best and to reward everyone according to the effort he is willing to put forth and the ability he manifests in his work.

Believe In System

"We believe the method here suggested solves the problem of differentiated credit in high school and that it will be highly satisfactory to every pupil who has the right attitude in school and to every patron who wants his children to get the best from their school studies. The patron may know in every piece of work his children do just the level on which they are working. He may know from every report card, every grade on every theme, every mark on every piece of written work just the level on which the pupil is working and what he will make at the end of the year if he continues on the same level. He will know that, if the pupil earns an 8, he will have to spend five years in the high school; if he make a 9, he will have to spend four and one-half years; if he makes a 10, he may get through in four years; if he makes a 11 or a 12, he may get through in less than four years. He will know that 165 grade points are required for graduation and that the pupil may work on a low level and take a longer time to graduate or he may work on a high level and graduate in less time.

"In order to graduate from Lubbock high school, the pupil must complete 165 grade points. A study carried throughout the school year of 36 weeks with 5 recitations per week with work in quantity and quality on a good average level will count for ten grade points. However, the grade-point value of a study will depend upon the quantity and quality of the work and will range from 8 to 12. Work on a level in quantity and quality not to merit 8 grade points will not be recognized and the highest possible grade points any pupil can earn in a study carried throughout the year is 12.

Divided In Units

"Ordinarily each subject offered in the high school will be divided into a number of units of learning and at the heart of each unit there will be a problem to form the basis of the teacher's challenge to the pupil. The number of such units will depend upon the subject and the attitude and abilities of the children in the particular group. In some cases, it will be advisable to have short units and more of them; in others there will be units that require more time and fewer of them; ordinarily, however, the units will increase and difficulty as the pupil advances from grade to grade and gains new abilities and skills.

"Each teacher must outline the subject he is teaching and divide it into units involving problems that will be real to him and by which he may be able to make a real challenge to the members of his class. This means that a particular teacher working with a particular group of pupils in a given subject, must arrange his own units or problems with the aid of his group. The nature of the unit will depend upon the teacher, the class and the subject. The units cannot be arranged ahead of time by another and submitted already prepared to the teacher. The units must be felt as the teacher's own problems if he is to use them as a basis for challenging his pupils.

Two Kinds of Grading.

"The pupil will be graded on both the quantity and the quality of his work. He may make use of few materials or sources and do the maximum amount. He may use few references and show little knowledge of sources or he may use many and show a wide knowledge of them. The quantity of the pupil's work is determined by the extent of the reference materials, or sources of information used in working out the unit, and by how well the materials involved in the unit are covered.

"By the quality we mean, of course, the kind of work the pupil does, whether poor, fair, good, excellent, or superior. It is determined by the skill manifested by the pupil—skill in the use of sources, reference in making outlines, in doing neat and accurate work, and in stating his thoughts clearly, accurately, and forcefully when speaking and writing. It is the skill manifested in the use of the tools and in the technique of learning.

Teacher Sole Judge.

"The grade of the pupil will not be a mechanical average of the quantity and quality of his work, but in determining the grade, the teacher will take both quantity and quality into consideration. In the final analysis, the teacher must be the sole judge of the value of the pupil's work. Here we are merely attempting to give a common basis for the grading of pupils so that all teachers may be able to grade on the same basis. We are seeking to reward the pupil who is willing to put forth extra effort and to stimulate those who are inclined to be indifferent. Education is a reaching forth. It is a result of effort, and, if the pupil puts forth no effort, he is not being educated, it makes no difference what the product of his work may be.

Plan Is Defined.

"Ordinarily, however, the teacher will not be allowed to give a larger number of grade points at the close of the semester than the number of pupils who complete the work of the semester multiplied by 5. As a rule, the pupils in a class who work on a high enough level to merit recognition will arrange themselves into groups about as follows: about 5 per cent of them will earn 8 grade points; 15 per cent will earn 9 grade points; 60 per cent will earn 10 grade points; 15 per cent will earn 11 grade points; and 5 per cent will earn 12 grade points. Not more than 5 per cent of the members of any group should fall below the level of recognition, and it is hoped that the use of the grade point system will so stimulate the pupils that the percentage of those who are on the higher levels will be increased. If the system does not have such results, it will be valueless. We have sought here to give the normal situation with the average teacher. It is hoped, however, that each teacher will seek to make a situation above the normal and try to be more than an average teacher. When a teacher feels that he has a group of pupils willing to work on a higher level than is indicated above and capable of doing so, he will communicate with the principal who will investigate the situation and with the teacher seek to determine the exact status of the group. We want every group to work at its maximum level, but we do not want it to be possible for the liberal grading teacher to grade members of his group higher than they deserve.

To Strike Average.

"The final grade point value of half-year subjects will be an average of the grade points for the two quarters. The grade point value of subjects running for a full year will be an average of the grade points for the four quarters. In making averages, no fractions will be considered. The nearest whole number will be the pupil's grade. However, if the work of the pupil shows improvement during the year, he will be given the benefit of the fraction if it is as much as one half.

"Below we seek to state as clearly and accurately as we can the quantity and quality of work necessary for the several grade point values:

"Eight Grade Points: The pupil on this level does poor wrok, but work that is above the threshhold of recognition. He makes use of a narrow range of materials and sources and works decidedly on the factual or concrete level. He does the minimum amount of study and shows a mediocre ability in the use of materials, in taking notes, in making outlines, and in the use of English. He manifests little ability in the use of the tools and in the technique of learning, but taking into consideration the quantity and quality of his work and his attitude, he deserves some recognition. The pupil who works on this level may do so because of a lack of ability or because of indifference, and the teacher should show greater consideration to the pupil who tries and fails than to the one who has the ability but will not put himself into his school tasks.

Effort Is Essential.

"What the pupil does without effort has little educational value. The aim is to get the pupil to work with his mind in high gear, and the teacher should give little consideration to the pupil who works with his mind in low. In arriving at the value of the pupil's efforts, the teacher will consider the process rather than the finished product. The attitude of the pupil and the progress he is making in the use of the tools and in the technique of learning will count for most.

"Nine Grade Points: In order to earn 9 grade points, the pupil will work on a little higher level than the one who earns 8 grade points. He will do more than the minimum amount of study and investigation required in the unit, he will examine a larger number of sources and reference materials, do a greater amount of reading, and will show a greater skill in getting the thought from the printed page, in note taking, in outline making, and is able to express his thoughts a little better when speaking and writing. He is still on a factual level or on the level of the concrete, but he is considerable above the threshhold of recognition. He is what we call a fair student.

"Ten Grade Points: This is the pupil who completes in a highly satisfactory manner the quality of work required in the unit and does his work on a good average level. He has gained considerable ability in the uses of references, sources, and supplementary materials, in getting the thought from the printed page, in taking notes, in making outlines, and can express himself when speaking and writing with reasonable accuracy, clearness, and force. He is the good average student.

Eleven Points Good.

"Eleven Grade Points: This pupil completes in a highly satisfactory manner all the work required in the unit. He covers more than the average amount of supplementary materials and examines with more than usual care a larger number of sources and reference materials than does the good average student. He manifests a higher degree of skill in the use of the tools and in the technique of learning, shows more independence in what he does, and is, in every respect, on a higher level than the good average student. He deals with materials above the factual level or the level of the concrete and can do creative thinking in the sphere and on the level which he has attained. He is not satisfied to be a mere reproducer of the thoughts of others, but he shows originality in whatever he does. He is what we call the excellent student.

"Twelve Grade Points: This is the superior student who ranks with the upper 5 per cent of those who do acceptable work in a good average group. He completes all the work of the unit in a highly satisfactory manner and investigates a wider range of sources and reference materials than does the student in the group below. He has acquired a greater skill in the use of the tools and in the technique of learning. He shows a high degree of ability in the use of references and sources, in note taking, in outline making, and in stating his thoughts when writing and speaking. He shows a high degree of originality in his thinking, and is more than a reproducer of the thoughts of others. He is able to read what others have said and form his own conclusions. He is the superior student.

Community Chest Plan Considered For Lubbock Has Been Found Very Popular

WILL the community chest become an integral part of the charity activities of Lubbock?

This question now is being considered and studied by a committee from the Board of City Development. The proposal was introduced into this city several weeks ago when the board was asked to consider such a civic organization here.

Data and information have been gathered from cities using the plan and at this time the committee is highly in favor of its adoption in Lubbock. There are various advantages outlined and also in connection some few disadvantages have been propelled.

Idea Is Not New.

The idea of the community chest first had its origin in Denver in the fall of 1887, when four progressive and socially-minded clergymen, a Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi and two Protestant ministers started the movement which has spread throughout this country and into the larger cities of Canada. There were 23 agencies in the first chest, the budget was slightly over $20,000 and it is a notable fact that, of this amount, only $61 remained uncollected at the end of the year.

Although each chest organization is a 'law unto itself" and answerable only to its local officials, an international chest group has been formed for the exchange of ideas and plans of service. It is called the American Association for Community Organization with headquarters in New York City.

No Longer An Experiment

The community chest is no longer an experiment. It has taken its place as one of the permanent civic institutions and has long since justified its existence in scores of leading cities. According to reports received in Lubbook, few indeed are the communities which have tried the federated plan of financing and programming their social services, charitable and welfare agencies and then returned to the individual hit-and-miss plan in effect some 15 or 20 years ago. And in each such instance, there have been local conditions which dictated the change.

The professional direction of chest campaigns needs little argument in its justification for those who really know about it. It is an admitted fact that skilled and sympathetic professional direction helps develop new leadership, inspires the team workers and instructs the general public in the chest gospel, while it also relieves local leaders of a mass of important mechanical detail.

It offers the community the opportunity to oppose a united front against the destructive forces that are always at work to disorganize and demoralize every human community. It has the community's social needs under constant surveillance, and will be able to bring public attention and reinforcement to hear at any point where defense is needed.

People Are Interested

The experience of other cities using the plan has proven that more interest and support is aroused among contributors. With the whole people knowing, realizing, understanding, and appreciating the work the social service organizations are doing in their behalf, the number of contributors is always increased. Not only is public response more generous, but the cost of gathering the funds is considerably lessened, not only in actual money but in the wear and tear on givers as well as solicitors. It saves the time of busy men and women.

It has been pointed out that in one campaign each year, an organization large enough and strong enough to insure success can be enrolled, enlisting many citizens who would not help in individual campaigns. A greater and more widespread interest is created in philanthropic and caritable work, for it is human to feel a keener interest in any movement for which each has worked or to which money has been given.

Is Co-Operative Affair

The chest plan is the only known method whereby all of the agencies of the city can cooperate, in such a way becoming members of a single, strong organization—teammates instead of competitors. Participating agencies, being organized for special work in their respective fields with workers trained especially in this function, cannot afford the time and effort imposed upon them by separate campaigns which they are ordinarily not equipped to conduct.

Patch-work social service is done away with, substituted for duplicated and overlapping work, a broad and definite program of coordinated efficiency. Business methods of participating agencies are systematized and uniformity of reports and financial statements are encouraged.

Support Is Concentrated

To those who are more fortunate than their neighbors, an opportunity is offered of forgetting self interests and uniting to bring a true service to the community in the efficient dispensation of charity and the intelligent conduct of social service institutions, whose aim is to make charity eventually unnecessary. A whole year's support of agencies is concentrated under one central fiscal organization and one campaign each year is substituted for many.

Lubbock business men and women each year have been forced to give and give and such a condition often makes for dissatisfaction and a feeling that they are being "bled." The community chest promotes a better feeling on the part of the giving public who are approached but once during the entire year. The barriers of distrust are broken down, which each individual may feel toward every agency, by a widespread campaign of information and education about each. A complete understanding of the needs and activities of every agency is given the public.

Advantages Listed

The advantages of joint social financing, when properly organized and conducted under the right conditions and with the right methods, might well be summarized as follows:

Saves time, money, effort and annoyance. The community chest means one campaign, one pledge, one week devoted to fund raising. Puts a stop to endless tag days and drives by charitable organizations, spreads the burden, insures justice, protects the public, provides year around efficiency, prevents overlapping and overlooking, promotes community education, stimulates community planning and builds community spirit. It puts the "unity" in "community."

The committee from the Lubbock Board of City Development have been studying all of these facts gathered from the experiences of other cities and the report given at their last meeting was highly favorable to the plan.

Benefits Are Weighed

"Before we make any kind of recommendation, however, we wish to look a bit further into the matter and be positively certain we are right," stated George P. Kuykendall, chairman of the committee. "At this time it seems to be the best plan to be adopted and we feel that it will better organize charity work in Lubbock together with saving a duplication in the saving of funds. We wish to proceed carefully and avoid any step that might prove a mistake later."

Other organizations of the city will be asked to join the consideration for, if adopted, the plan will mean the gathering together of every charitable institution into one great functioning body for the city's good.

Lubbock's community chest committee is composed of G. P. Kuykendall, J. J. Clements, president of the Rotary club; Dean A. H. Leidigh, president of Kiwanis club; C. F. Drexel, president of Lions club, and Charles Whitacre, commander of the local American Legion post.
