"Leave your dog in the doghouse" reads a sign in a Paris opera house theater. Ladies and gentlemen can howl their approval or disapproval of the sign without leaving the theater.

The act of speaking only two words in a party-four different instances.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST — Bites of grape fruit, cereal, cream, soft cooked eggs, fried green tomatoes with cream sauce, toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Cream of lettuce soup, cauliflower au gratin, broiling potatoes, grape juice, coffee.

DINNER — Baked mutton, boiled potatoes in parsley butter, creamed sliced turnips, hearts of lettuce with French dressing, Washington cream pie, milk, coffee.

Many people think that mutton is not so strongly flavored if it's boiled rather than roasted. Be sure all the skin is removed before cooking either mutton or lamb in any fashion. Some butchers always do this before the meat leaves the shop, but the cook must make sure there is no trace of skin left on the meat.

Fried Green Tomatoes Wash green tomatoes and cut a slice from the stem end. Cut tomatoes in slices about 3/8 inch thick. Sprinkle each slice with salt and pile one on top of the other. Cover with a weight and let stand half an hour. Drain, dip in the cracker crumbs, egg slightly beaten and roll in crumbs. Sauté in butter, browning first on one side and then on the other. Strain on a two-tablespoon flour into butter left in frying pan. Blend thoroughly and slowly add one or two cups of milk, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and serve with tomatoes.

Velvet Finds New Winter Usage

Here are two luxuriously simple new velvets which lend themselves admirably to the new styles. Left is a rich red velvet evening gown with an apron skirt with ruffled ruffles, reminiscent of the 30's. The skirt is short, with a high collar, and is made of a beautiful new black velvet with shaded chenille dots in beige.

BY JEAN PATOU For NEA Service. PAGES, Oct. 12.—Although velvet has always been the most favored fabric for winter wear, it is this year enjoying a greater vogue than ever before. The various uses to which velvet is now adapted explains its popularity.

In treating with velvet it is interesting to note that despite the remarkable progress achieved in this material, no new form or texture has been achieved. Any complete collection of fabrics will cover the entire field of velvet.

I have tried to establish my preference for solid colored velvets dyed by a new process. By working with the manufacturer I have obtained velvets with upstanding pile which has given women new colorings difficult to imitate and new to fashion.

Cost Was Prohibitive. A few years ago this velvet was laid aside because of its excessive cost, but it now being used again for trimmings of ordinary winter suits. It is a fabric made entirely by hand and cannot be used freely because of the limited production.

There was a strong feeling a few years ago against artificial velvets but the manufacturer has so improved in his art that a good customer need no longer hesitate to use it. As a matter of fact, I believe the day is near when artificial silk velvets will replace the natural velvet. One of the great advantages of artificial velvet is that with this fabric we can obtain a more extensive variety of design and coloring.

Thinner Than Genuine. Another advantage is that it can be made sufficiently thin to be pleated, which is something that could never be achieved with the genuine velvet. This field of pleated velvet offers the customer many possibilities in decoration.

On Tuesday night she will speak to a rally at Plainview and on Wednesday night will speak at Lamesa.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton Copyright by NEA Service, Inc.

Children worry a good bit over the troubles of their parents. They worry more than grown-ups imagine and usually out of all proportion to the cause, because so often they cannot understand what it is all about.

A certain father had a habit of mentioning the mortgage upon all occasions. "If you don't care about losing the house, I do," he would shout at his wife. He was going to see it that they weren't "set out on the street."

"The little boy lived in mortal terror of that mortgage. He didn't know what it was, but once he had caught some words, something it seemed was going to be "set out." How was he to know that it was only a business term and referred to interest.

Usually the unpleasant subject of the mortgage and "losing the house" was brought up at meal-time, and he would be seated with a wooden loss of appetite.

His parents never dreamed of his distress or his fantastic idea of the terrible wild animal—what else could a mortgage be?—or of the way he had of picturing their house as like houses "set out in the movies." How else, indeed, could one "lose" a house?

As for them being "set out" on the street, he took it, of course, literally. Would they be allowed to sit peacefully on the sidewalk or would they be placed perilously between rattling automobiles and street cars to do their "sitting out"?

This little boy grew to a man before he could quite shake off the terror of that vision. He mentioned it in a speech at a parent-teacher meeting, and the other parents, aware of the seriousness of discussing their affairs before children.

"One can never tell what monstrous pictures a child's imagination may conjure up," he declared. "The most innocent things often spell terror."

Repeated episodes of the mortgage menace and its ilk, occurring so often at the dinner table, had, he added, affected his health.

NEWPORT, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Albert J. Clark, 21, gave his life for love. He postponed an emergency operation for appendicitis a few hours until he could marry Miss Bertha Dempert. Twelve hours after the marriage Clark died.

Flowers For Fall

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Almee Henry Morecraft of New York is doing. She has sued Mrs. Marjorie Parker Taylor demanding from her a birth certificate which would prove that she was Mrs. Taylor's illegitimate child.

Money, of course is the motive for if she can prove her point Mrs. Morecraft will share in a rich estate. Is it unusual or not for one to prefer money to a blot on the family escutcheon? Perhaps the majority would choose money first, surprising as it seems at first glance.

WRONG BABY. "The wrong baby was given out in a Detroit hospital to a father who came to take his child home, and a sensational case known as 'the Greatrex baby case,' is now on in that city."

Mr. Greatrex is the father who found his child gone when he called for it a few days after his own baby had been given to another father a few days preceding. The hospital story is a case of mistaken identity in fathers, not in the babies. In other words they admit that the Greatrex baby was given out to a man who cannot be found and who is believed to be in Europe.

Whether that man, even when found, will give up the child or not is the real point. He has had time to become attached to it. Even legal proof will make it difficult to surrender a known child for an unknown one.

Jones Declares Cotton Has Ample Time To Mature

Last of October Will See Crop Near Maturity and Ready for Gathering; Crop Is Fair.

All Lubbock county cotton will be matured by the last of October if the present weather prevails until that time, and a killing frost does not come upon us suddenly.

Don L. Jones, superintendent of the state experimental station here, announced yesterday. Ordinarily no killing frost is experienced in this section before November 1, that being the average date, figuring over a number of years, for frost to appear.

Cotton Opening Rapidly. Cotton is opening rapidly throughout the entire county, Jones declared, and farmers are busy in need of pickers. Mr. Jones says, "Boll worms are practically doing no damage to cotton at this time, because of the maturity of the crop making their work inactive. Early cotton this year is smaller than usual, while the late cotton is larger than usual. Mr. Jones says, "The dry weather of recent days, with the slight winds which the section has experienced, is helping the crop mature rapidly."

One marriage license was issued yesterday by the county clerk's office, it being to Harvey Austin and Miss Joan Margaret Bullock.

Hagenback-Wallace Circus Satisfies Fun Lovers of City; Off Again

Big Crowds Witness Showing of "Wonder Show" in Performances Here Yesterday; Clyde Beatty, Animal Trainer Is Feature; Acts Are Spectacular.

By AL HILL (Avalanche-Journal Staff). It may not be the biggest show in the world, nor the best, but Hagenback-Wallace can rightfully claim all rights to being the biggest and the best of the entire show world.

Opening Is Spectacular. "The Gelsa," its spectacular Japanese opening, with as flashy and impressive an array of ornaments as ever circled the arena under the big top, also possessed a musical score of band and singing on a par with any big-time show to tour the United States.

Crowds Galore; That Funny Ford. Shetland ponies, clever and faithful, lions, tigers, bears, all in one cage at one time; horse-back riding; 18 girls in swinging ladder performances overhead at one time; iron-jaw lading of the big top whirling and turning; trained seals playing games on specially-constructed horse which they actually blew.

Acrobats Please. Miss Jessie Ward, star gymnast, in the class with the famous Lillian Lott; the Riding Horse; a troop of heroback riders, one of the oldest riding acts in the business; 20 ladies riding prancing steppers—horses trained to cack-walk, two-step, black bottom and what-not, supposedly to the tune the band was playing. (Here's a secret: The animals in the circus don't dance to the tunes of the band—the band leader directs the musicians to play to the steps of the animals.)

Arabs Are Clever. These amusing, pyramiding Arabs, a troop of fast-moving men with the world's champion long-distance tumbler, who circled the track in one long continuous tumble. They were great.

Does Favor Immigration. "Let me say, most emphatically," the governor went on, "neither do I and neither does the democratic platform."

Interested in Protection. Here the democratic candidate paused and declared that he as much as anybody else was interested in protecting the American home.

way between the coasts to the Azores and Bermuda. At that time it was estimated that the entire journey would take her about 106 hours. If necessary the Graf Zeppelin should be able to stay in the air 128 hours.

Weather Is Good. That the Graf Zeppelin can reach Lakehurst before Monday noon is generally doubted in aeronautical circles in Germany. While weather is reported good over the stretch between the Azores and Bermuda it is likely that adverse winds will impede her progress near the American coast.

Mailbag Is Found. A mailbag for the German consul was dropped and was found in the garden of a casino. At Madeira, the airtliner turned slightly toward the north and at 10:30 a. m. Eastern Standard time, she was sighted by the steamship Euclid going in a west-northwest direction.

Passengers Air Sick. LMLH has drifted through the air of the twenty passengers aboard the ship, the only message being one picked up in the Azores saying that they were exceedingly air sick.

BURGESS. (By radio to the Associated Press)—Oct. 12 At 2 a. m. Today we sent a congratulatory radio message to the Graf Zeppelin, which acknowledged its receipt. The Zeppelin said she was swamped with congratulatory messages. Radio communication continued and at 3 p. m. Greenwich time (10 a. m. Eastern Standard) the dirigible reported her position as between the Madeira and Azores Islands.

In 1920 he was against it. In 1918 against prohibition. In 1908 the bonedeady in America. Thought Cards Would Win. "I have nothing but the greatest admiration for a man who changes his mind; although a New Yorker, I thought the Cardinals would win the World Series. If the series were to be played over, I might change my mind and do some certain things differently, but when it comes to the chief executive to the president of the United States, I don't want him changing his mind so often it makes me dizzy trying to follow him."

At the first mention of Governor Smith's name, the crowd cheered until Mayor Walker asked them not to take up any more of his time with applause, for he wished to complete his message before his radio station hook-up went off the air. He declared that Governor Smith had run for governor of New York as many times as Mr. Hoover had voted in the United States.

Hilliard, Crosbyton fullback, was the outstanding ground gainer of the tilt. Percer scored the touchdown for Crosbyton. The feature of the Crosbyton attack was their well-timed interference, which paved the way for their fast backfield. For the Tahoka eleven, Minor, halfback, short, full and quarterback, end, were the most consistent performers.

Invaders Set For Skirmishes With Conference Teams

The Vanderbilt Commodores and Centenary Gentlemen Are Confident On Eve of Big Games.

DALLAS, Oct. 12. (AP)—Two football armies of the Old South, were camped on Texas soil tonight, awaiting tomorrow's skirmish with two leading representatives of the Southwest Conference.

The Vanderbilt Commodores, led by the brilliant Jimmy Armistead, reached Dallas late today, fit and confident on the eve of their annual debate with the Texas University Longhorns. A 13 to 6 licking plastered against them by an inspired Longhorn eleven last year was uppermost in their minds.

At College Station the Centenary College Gentlemen, who flashed meteoric scores in Southwestern football fields last season, were camped within the picket lines of the Texas Aggies, last year's Conference champions. Their tussle is expected to be one of the classics of the season.

While attention of most fans was centered on the White and black inter-racial affairs, the Baylor Bears and Arkansas Razorbacks, both doped as second division clubs in the Conference race, prepared to meet on neutral soil at Texarkana in the opening fray of the Conference campaign. The Golden Bears were favored.

The Southern Methodist University Mustangs, still stiff and sore from last week's excursion to West Point, faced an encounter with the Simmons University Cowboys at Wichita Falls. While they have been troublesome to all opponents so far, the Cowboys hardly were expected to push the Ponies. Coach Morrison announced, however, that he would start his first string.

Texas Christian University, with two top-lipped victories to its credit, was camped on the eve of its clash with the Navy and Notre Dame will battle on Soldier Field tomorrow in one of the outstanding gridiron struggles of the year.

Eastern Elevens Take On Powerful Opposition Today

Many Traditions At Stake As Leading Teams Battle For Honors On Far Flung Battle Line.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (AP)—The football season in the east now reaches its stage where leading college teams get down to business of taking on powerful rivals in traditional battles.

Outstanding games of this sort on tomorrow's far-flung program are those in which Pittsburgh entertains West Virginia at Pittsburgh, and New York University stacks up against Fordham at the Polo Grounds, New York.

With teams as strong as any in their history, Pitt and N. Y. U. were victorious by one-sided margins in these games last year, the scores being 40 to 0 and 32 to 0, respectively, but the record of both series has indicated that when rivals such as these get together almost anything may happen.

Matadors Pin Hopes On Line That Showed Powerful Defense Against Longhorns; Injuries Costly.

Some of the experts' predictions on the world series (made before the series) were decidedly partisan. One of the lads went so far as to say that if the Yankees offense could find a hole in the Cards' defense Huggins would win another bunting.

On Broadway Now There Are

A couple of plays about what used to be locusts called pugilism, a play about golf and a play about baseball. We're just wondering when chess is going to be glorified.

As a situation, we offer the mortgage on the homestead coming due while your chess player here is right at the very climax of a championship game, with several months yet to play.

Or there might be a play about three-cushion billiards. The producer never would have to worry in a play like that about the actors forgetting their cues.

Lardner's new play is about a left-handed pitcher. Those who know left-handed pitchers will wonder how the property man ever managed to round up enough grub to fill up the hero.

Tyson Crew Wins Over Dallas Team

(AP)—Appearing as powerful as in previous years, Tech's high school eleven has been able to stand before them, the champion Waco High Tigers defeated the Sunset (Dallas) high school eleven, 26 to 6, before 7,000 fans here today. Standard Test Is Made In Schools

(Special To The Avalanche) ROPEVILLE, Oct. 12.—Mrs. J. Bennett, principal of Ropeville high school, is planning to give a series of standard achievement tests to all high school and grammar school students in the next month or so in order to determine whether or not pupils of this school are doing work that is standard, it is believed by the teachers that this is the best possible exception of English work with the best city systems. Reports from students who have transferred from this school to such schools as Los Angeles High, Oklahoma High, Dallas High, Lubbock High and others confirm this view.

Twins Charge Twins

CINCINNATI, Oct. 12.—Florence and Loretta Dias, 20-year-old twins, were indicted here on charges preferred by another set of twins, Florence and Mary McNutt, living at the same address as the other two girls, told police that clothing missed from their quarters was found in the room occupied by the Dias twins.

Flopping Fish Story

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 12.—A local barber named Louis Billiter says this fish story is true. He maintains there is nothing fishy about his finding a goldfish flopping on the pavement in Washington Park, 200 yards from the fountain pond. "How it got into the street is a mystery to me," he says, "unless it flopped out of the pond and then kept flopping in an effort to get back again, but flopped the wrong way. Be that as it may, but Billiter goes on to say that he replaced the 'poor fish' in the pond and watched it 'swim right off.'"

Here's a Rich One

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12.—Whoever heard of a rich copper? Well, they have one in this town and he is retired, because of ill health. It's Kelly Newland, who amassed a fortune by dabbling in coal and stocks when off duty. He invests his profits in gasoline stations and then sold them at handsome profits.

Gets His Wish Disabled Vet Is To Die At Home

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Frank Gilbert, 35 year old disabled war veteran today probably took the last and most enjoyable train ride of his life. He was being borne home to his mother and child in Chicago in the care of his American Legion comrades. They had found him dying in a hospital here from a lung infection and undertook to satisfy his one wish that he might die at home. When the special train bearing the Board of Trade Post members pulled out of New Orleans Gilbert was aboard so buoyed by the prospects of returning home, the doctors believe he will survive the trip.

Walsh Asks For Test On Hickman

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Jerome K. Walsh, attorney for William Edward Hickman, under sentence of death for the murder of Marion Parker, in Los Angeles, today he planned to request Governor Young of California to appoint a commission to examine Hickman as to his sanity. "I don't know what the Governor will think of it," Walsh said, "but I believe it is the thing to do. Certainly the boy should not be put to death if he is insane."

London, Oct. 12.—You'll need the multiplication table to figure this out.

A barrister was met by a friend the other day in the street with a number of law books. Pointing to the books, his friend said "Why, I thought you carried all that stuff in your head!" "I do," quickly replied the lawyer, with a wink; "these are for the judges."—Weekly Scotsman.

History Of Presidential Elections

for the nomination, and Justice McLean, who had been on the Supreme Court bench since 1829, also was talked of. Horace Greeley wrote of him: "We do not consider him quite S. O. G."—the "S. O. G." standing for a political slang expression of the day "Sound on the Goose." Charles A. Dana wrote to a friend: "You ought to rejoice at the prospect of such a candidate rather than shed tears by the quart when he is done for." In the end John C. Fremont was nominated. His political principles were little better known than were those of Zachary Taylor when the Whigs nominated him in 1848. A bolting faction of the Know Nothing Party had nominated Fremont some time before and the Republicans sought to add that strength to their own. Lincoln was a candidate before the convention for vice-president and received 110 votes on one ballot, but W. L. Dayton of New Jersey was nominated over him. Lincoln favored the nomination of Justice McLean and urged E. B. Washburn and other friends to do all they could in behalf of the eminent jurist.

The Know Nothings, of whom Horace Greeley wrote that they had as a party, about as many of the elements of permanence as an anti-potato-rot party, held their national convention on Washington's birthday, their national council having three days before drawn up the party platform. A split was precipitated by Fremont's friends over the right of the council to take away from the convention the framing of the platform. The regulars nominated ex-President Fillmore and Samuel J. Donelson. The Whigs adopted and ratified the nomination. The last convention they ever held. Thus they, organized into a political party by anti-Masonry, expired as an adjunct of anti-Californians.

The Democrats met in Cincinnati, holding there the first national convention which ever met west of the Alleghenies. Although President Pierce was a candidate for re-nomination, it was early seen that the party course was to be determined from the fact that the nominee would have to carry some northern states to win and Pierce was unpopular in the north. So Buchanan got the nomination with John C.

Breckenridge as his running mate. Slavery Issue Colors Campaign "Free Soil, Free Kansas, Free Speech, and Fremont" was the battle-cry of the Republicans, while "Buck and Breck" was as much as the Democratic campaign poets could find for a slogan. The Republicans could find no term more gentle than "border ruffian" to apply to a Democrat. The Democrats retorted with "Black Republican" and honors were easy.

Pennsylvania witnessed a fusion of the Know Nothings and the Republicans—in Pennsylvania known as the People's party. Both parties nominated the same electors and it was understood that if Pennsylvania's vote should prove determinative of the result, and fusion won, Fremont was to have it. Otherwise, the electors were to be divided as the voters had voted between Fillmore and Fremont. But fusion had no chance to work out the deal, for that 1025 votes by which Buchanan won, determined the result and possibly changed the entire course of American history.

Fillmore had no idea of winning in the popular election, but he did hope so to divide the vote between the Democrats and the Republicans that the election would be thrown into the House. The closeness of the vote in Pennsylvania shows how nearly he guessed it. The electoral vote was, Buchanan 174, Fremont, 114, Fillmore, 8.

After Buchanan was elected he tried to get the country to forget about the slavery issue. In his inaugural address he referred to a forthcoming decision of the Supreme Court, and Seward alleged that there was collusion between Chief Justice Taney and Buchanan. This so angered Taney that he declared afterward that if Seward had been elected President in 1850 he would have refused to administer the oath to him. And yet Lincoln repeatedly made the same charge without driving Taney to such a refusal. All fair authorities acquit Buchanan and Taney of any collusion.

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR OCT. 14, 1928.

General Topic: Spiritual Gifts. Scripture Lesson: 1 Cor. 12:4-13:1-8, 13.

1 Cor. 12:4. Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same spirit.

5. And there are diversities of ministrations, and the same Lord.

8. And there are diversities of workings, but the same God, who worketh all things in all.

7. But to each one is given the manifestation of the spirit to profit withal.

31. But desire earnestly the greater gifts. And moreover a most excellent way show I unto you.

1 Cor. 13:1. If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am become sounding brass, or a clanging cymbal.

2. And if I have the gift of prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge; and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing.

2. And if I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and if I give my body to be burned, but have not love, it profiteth me nothing.

4. Love suffereth long, and is kind; love envieth not; love boasteth not itself; is not puffed up;

5. Doth not behave itself unbecomingly, seeketh not its own, is not provoked, taketh not account of evil;

6. Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth with the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

8. Love never faileth; but whether there be prophecies, they shall be done away; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall be done away.

13. But now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love.

Time: Paul wrote his first letter to the Corinthians probably near the close of his nearly three years at Ephesus, A. D. 53-56.

Place: The letter was written at Ephesus, the chief city of Asia Minor.

Golden Text: Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love.—1 Cor. 13:13.

Introduction. Gifts in early Christian phraseology are Christian endowments ("extraordinary powers"). We use the word in the same sense, when we say, for example, He has a gift for languages, or for music—especially for Christian service. In Christianity nothing is ever given to us except for use! These New Testament "gifts" are imparted by the Holy Spirit, and belong, it would seem, though not strictly, to exceptional Christians.

Faith, hope, and love are not regarded as gifts in this narrower, technical sense; they are rather among the general gifts every Christian should possess. We usually speak of them as graces, or personified, the Graces. Yet by contrast, at the end of chapter 12, Paul pushes them to the front, beyond all other particular and general endowments.

Various Gifts Mentioned. vs. 8-10.

Crannell explains the various gifts mentioned as follows: Wisdom is insight into religious truth; knowledge, grasp of religious fact; faith, power of trust to move God; healings, miracles, miraculous power; prophecy, divinely given speech, or uttering revelations, sometimes, but not always, prophetic; discerning of spirits, recognizing spiritual quality, whether of God, the speaker himself, or the devil; kinds of tongues, special understanding of such speech; apostles, teachers, helps, governments, special forms of leadership.

Diversities of Gifts. v. 4.

In the church life of today the Spirit likewise apportions certain ministries to certain individuals: "To one is given through the spirit" to preach; to another, as a trustee, to look after the church property; to another, as treasurer, to care for the finances; to another, to teach a Sunday school class; to another, as president of a woman's guild, to direct the women of the church in certain special lines of service; to another, to manage the affairs at home and abroad of the denominational missionary societies; to another, to make Christian reading matter; and so on. But all these activities are important, and necessary, that the church may successfully function and the kingdom come in the world.

A Hymn of Love. 1 Cor. 13.

The Magna Charter of the ideal church, this thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians has been called "It's rhetorical beauty has won for it universal admiration from men of all faiths and views. It is one of the priceless gems of the world's literature. Paul was evidently deeply stirred when he composed it thoroughly under the influence of the Spirit. That important church at Corinth, which he had begotten in great travail, must not be wrecked by hateful dissension. So deeply moved is he that his language is rhetorical, rather than logical. In John 17—and not improperly do we term the passage a hymn of love. As it has sung itself down the Christian centuries it has everywhere made lives sweeter, and love deeper. To every Christian it is, next to the Lord's prayer, the Ten Commandments and the Twenty-third Psalm, the most familiar portion of the Scripture."

Love the Greatest Gift. v. 13.

And if I have the gift of prophecy, Power to foretell the future, power to speak forth mighty religious truth—the greatest intellectual power vouchsafed to men, that of an Isaiah or a Philip Brooks. "And know all mysteries and all knowledge." This is not a gift separate from that of prophecy, but is the basis and source of it in its two aspects,—vision of the unseen future, insight into the fundamental nature of God and man.

Cow Calling Tilt Contest Features District Fair

FRANKLIN, Oct. 12. (AP)—A "cow-calling" contest is the latest for district fairs. Thursday, October 18, a cow calling contest will be held at the Robertson county fair in Franklin. Cow calling harks back to the days when there were no fences and the cows ran in the woods or on the open prairies. The winner will be awarded a trophy cow-bell with collar and will be eligible to enter the national contest to be held over the radio from Chicago, which is being planned for this fall.

Slaton Observes Fire Prevention

(Special To The Avalanche)

SLATON, Oct. 12.—Observance of Fire Prevention Week in Slaton, October 7 to 13, includes fire drills for school children in the four buildings here. Drills were given Tuesday which, school and fire department officials said, proved that the four buildings can be cleared of children within less than one minute's time, if fire should break out simultaneously in all the structures. This would be accomplished without injuries, too. The children have been thoroughly instructed in clearing the building in an orderly, rapid way.

MODERN journalism must keep step with scientific progress. The history of newspaper development in America is closely linked with the history of man's inventive genius.

First use of the carrier pigeon as a means of news distribution was regarded as a bit of real enterprise. But when Morse invented the telegraph, journalism entered a new phase—the era of speed in news transmission. Today news events are flashed almost instantaneously to the farthest corners of the earth—and we think nothing of it.

What is even more marvelous today is the speed with which news pictures can be transmitted, and the unquestioned promise that even greater wonders in picture distribution are in store in the near future. It is a journalistic commonplace today to send important newspictures by telephone and radio, thus cutting hours, days, even weeks, off the time required by older methods.

This paper, for its important pictures of news events, relies on NEA Service, the world's largest newpicture and feature agency, an organization which uses the full complement of modern equipment in the transmission of its important pictures.

That means this paper is first with the pictures of big news events. As an instance of NEA enterprise, did you know that the night Herbert Hoover was nominated in Kansas City NEA pictures of the demonstration which greeted his name were on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts before that evening's session adjourned? And when Pacific flyers landed at Honolulu, NEA pictures of their arrival were printed in San Francisco only a few hours later the same day? That is speed, and it is characteristic of NEA Service newpicture distribution.

WHIRLWIND

BY ELEANOR EAREY

THIS HAS HAPPENED—SYBIL THORNE learns that her sister-in-law, VALERIE, is planning to leave her husband and elope with a man who has promised to get her in the movies. Sybil has never cared for Valerie but she worships her own brother, TAD, and, for his sake, decides to investigate Val's romance. She goes to New Haven, where Valerie is visiting friends, accompanied by JACK and MABEL MOORE, newlyweds, and Sybil's dearest friends.

Valerie's hostess tells them they will find her at a notorious road house on the Post Road. They go there directly, and arrive in time to interrupt an interesting conversation. Valerie's escort is telling her how once he loved a girl named Sybil. Valerie, who has never seen her husband since she left him in a drunken stupor in their hotel in Havana.

Now, as she approaches the table at which her sister-in-law is sitting, the man with her turns white as death.

"Where did you come from?" he exclaims.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

Sybil's hand caught her heart, hugging it through the fur of her coat and the folds of her crimson blouse. It pounded so mercifully.

Across the table she leaned toward him. And between them lay the poor little ghost of a romance. A sandy small good born of passion and consumed in its flame. The specter of a withered love, ugly now and sordid.

"You," she gasped, and the exclamation faded on a laugh. A queer, mirthless laugh.

Valerie crumpled a napkin, and flung it down before her.

"Well," she demanded truculently, and stared at them curiously.

"What's the matter with you two?" she asked.

Sybil stepped into the breach beside her sister-in-law. Her knees trembled dangerously.

"No scene, now," she told herself sternly. "No hysterics."

When she spoke again her voice was even.

"Don't get excited," she admonished smoothly. "We'll have this out right here and now. Val, do you know this man?"

He had slumped back into the booth. Now he passed one hand slowly across his forehead, and with the other fumbled for a handkerchief. Drops of moisture glistened like tear drops on his face, and a little mustache of damp matted as upon his trembling upper lip.

"Why, of course I do," Valerie boasted defiantly.

"Did you know that he is my husband?"

"My God . . . No! Sybil, you're crazy. Tell her she's crazy. Darl, I don't believe it. It isn't true. It's the Darl Darl . . ."

Practically she besought him. And then turned on Sybil, eagerly to hear her with small, impotent fists.

"Now, Val," Sybil captured her hands. "Don't be a fool. Keep quiet. You're attracting attention. I'm going to get at the bottom of this thing. And then, you can do as you please—and be damned."

This afternoon I learned that you were planning to elope. I didn't know the man's name. Only that you meant to leave Tad for someone who had promised to get you into the movies."

Sybil's mouth curled scornfully.

"Is this the man, Val? Why, you poor little fool, he's the only place he could get you. He's a married man. He's your husband. He's your brother-in-law. He's the worst thing God ever made. He's—He's—Oh, you rat, you! You miserable, rotten cad."

Placably Sybil turned on him. Quietly then, and thoroughly, she lashed him with her tongue. Castigating him with words that rang with exquisite cruelty. And though it all he said like a man drunk with dumbness, who, being condemned, could find no voice to answer his accuser.

"Darl! Darl!" Premeditated Valerie besought him. "Oh, Darl, why don't you say something. Darl, don't let her talk like this."

Drunk, Valerie, for days and nights on end. Idiotically, disgustingly drunk. . . . Worthless. . . . Irresponsible. . . . Without morals, or decency."

"Oh, Darl, why don't you say something?"

"Because there's nothing he can say, Val. And you—you poor little fool. Oh, God help Tad. Why did he marry you?"

Then Valerie was crying, softly, into a foolish little handkerchief.

"Come on, Valerie, let's get out of here. Jack Moore and Mabel are waiting for us."

"Sybil! Richard Eustis put out his hand. Entreatingly. Agonizing. Furiously she struck it away.

"Go to hell!" she told him.

"Oh, hell! And her voice with hatred was coarse and rough.

She snatched at Valerie.

"You do what I tell you. Ask him now to take you away with him tonight. Or come with me now and tell him you will never see him again as long as you live."

"Darl! Darl!"

She gazed at her indignantly. Appalled before Sybil's rage. And because her god did not answer her. Valerie turned from him. She gathered her wrap about her, and eloped with Sybil from the dining room.

She watched them go. And when Jack saw her drop her head upon his hands, and heard her sobs, he was glad.

They drove home in silence—a dreadful silence, broken only by Valerie's sobs, and the soft each fat cheek a dimple showed.

"Angel," cried Sybil, and clutched him to her heart.

There never was a baby like Teddy. Such a darling, naughty creature, with innocent long lashes, and eyes as blue as painted china.

There was something of his father about him. His forehead and his chin. And nobody but Richard Sybil told himself, could caress as beguilingly as his son.

Money was a queer thing. The good and the bad of 10,000 alien Easties poured through her boy.

What dark trails had Richard and his wife, and what dark trails had the child's mother, and what dark trails had the child's father? Yet in his delight of her charms a miracle came to pass. The creation of a child in his own image and likeness. Oh, magic of the thing called love. And, wonderful to contemplate, Richard, co-creator of the miracle, knew it not. In all its beauty and loveliness it belonged to Sybil and to her child, forever and forever. Life of her life, heart of her heart—the child called Teddy.

Fearfully she entered the office of Snell, Peterson and Millhall, and asked for Mr. Peterson, a gentleman who handled divorces with rare silence and discretion. Attentively and interestedly he heard her story.

French Request Writer to Leave

Harold Horan, New York Newspaperman, Said To Have Violated Profession's Ethics in Paris.

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Harold Horan, correspondent of the New York American, who was requested to leave France by the French authorities, because of his connection with the publication of a French diplomatic memorandum on the Anglo-French naval accord, was expelled from membership in the Anglo-American Press Association today by a committee which investigated the case.

The association, previously had requested the French authorities to postpone Horan's expulsion until the matter could be threshed out. The reasons given by the committee for expelling him from the press association was that he was "on various counts guilty of unprofessional conduct."

Horan left Paris by automobile last night for Belgium. Brussels dispatches said that he had arrived there today and called at the American embassy.

Smaller Items Themselves But Big Factors In The Final Well Dressed Appearance

Women today are giving more thought to the smaller items of accessories than ever before, for in reality they have become the really important factors that either make or mar appearance. Fire Prevention Week Is Featured By Much Accomplishment for City Fire Rating; 519 Inspections Made

Not a Single Alarm Turned In During Week; Schools Are Visited and Literature Distributed.

With fire prevention week coming to a close today, the week is now being looked upon by the city fire department and officials of the department as having been one of much accomplishment. One feature of the week is the fact that up to last night not a single fire alarm had been turned in to the department.

In all, there had been 519 inspections made. Schools Are Visited. Friday was spent by the marshal in visiting all the city schools and putting the students through fire drills. The record of the drills was made by the K. Carter School, which succeeded in vacating the building in the short time of 50 seconds, with its more than 600 pupils. The High school made the drill in a minute and a half, with about 1,700 pupils; the Central Ward, with about 500 students, in a minute and a half. The slowest school was the Hunt, doing the drill in a minute and three quarters, but the speed here was slackened here because the pupils had to climb down a ladder. The Dupree school was somewhat faster.

There were between four and five thousand pieces of fire prevention literature distributed over the city during the week. Mr. Simpson stated, and the worst thing found in all the town were several vacant lots with tall weeds and high grass. These do not yet constitute a fire hazard, he said, but when these become dead and dry they will be hazardous, especially in the places where they are on lots immediately adjoining business or residential buildings. All in all, the town is in fine shape and the co-operation found among the citizens was very gratifying.

Sterling Tells Of Bond Issue Scheme

Highway Chairman Explains State-wide Road Plan To County Judges In Dallas Meeting.

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Oct. 12.—Texas will be more than 30 years in constructing an adequate highway system if the present "pay-as-you-go" policy is followed. R. S. Sterling, Houston, chairman of the state highway commission, told the convention of county judges and commissioners here today. Sterling detailed his plan for a $300,000,000 bond issue for construction of Texas highways, and explained that under this plan counties would be relieved of all construction costs on state highways, releasing all their funds for interest roads within their own boundaries. His proposed bond, he said, would be retired within 30 years with the proceeds of a gasoline tax that would be less than three cents per gallon.

It is calculated that 100 years ago 170,000 newspapers were sold weekly in Great Britain. Today the figure has risen to approximately 76,000,000.

TOO BAD FOR HUBBY

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—It was just too bad for Harry M. Baker. He was aboard a liner, with his wife, bound for a vacation trip to Ireland. Then a deputy sheriff placed him under arrest by direction of Mrs. Viola Baker, his first wife, for non-payment of alimony and counsel fees. As a result the second Mrs. Baker went on to Ireland while Harry languished in jail.
