Students are springing at the opportunities afforded by a week off from school. Whether that means they have a break or not is disputable.

Students at both Lee and Midland High schools have varied plans for the upcoming week of spring break, including everything from reading a book to visiting Paris, from playing baseball to working.

"I'll sleep. Normally I get eight hours a night — this week I'll get too much," Shanelle Sanderson said.

"I think it's good to give us a little break," Adrian Rubalcava said. "I'll probably catch up on sleep and maybe read a little bit."

Cellular phone details heard, but not seen, by MISD board

■ Three board members say no documentation was presented from probe of MHS Principal Neil Richmond.

By Jeff Stevens
Staff Writer

Three weeks have passed since the Midland Independent School District discovered that Midland High School Principal Neil Richmond made several personal phone calls on his district-issued cellular phone. And despite claims by Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. that the district was in the process of investigating the allegations, no hard evidence of that investigation is available.

Baressi said the district launched an investigation into Richmond's cell phone use Feb. 18, in light of the knowledge that details of Richmond's phone usage would be reported in the Reporter-Telegram on Feb. 19.

'In response to your request for a copy of MISD's investigation results regarding Midland High School Principal Neil Richmond and his use of his cell phone, I wish to inform you that the report was oral and there is no written document.'

— Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. in a written response to a Freedom of Information request from the Midland Reporter-Telegram

The board met this past Tuesday regarding Richmond's employment and evaluation and prior to the meeting, Baressi said that board members would hear the results of the investigation.

Hear, however, is all they did.

Three school board members — George Lara, Pat Hodges and Glen Bufler — said no documentation of an investigation was presented. No copies of Richmond's cell phone statements were presented. No written conclusions about who Richmond may have called were presented. In fact, no written documentation of any kind was presented in relation to the Richmond matter.

"There were no copies of cell phone bills, no documentation of the alleged phone calls, no summary of the investigation, just an oral report," said Lara. "I expected some form of information. I expected to have more than I received."

Tuesday, the Reporter-Telegram requested a copy of any investigation results regarding Richmond's cell phone use. Under the Texas Open Meetings Act, any documentation of the investigation would be public record.

Baressi answered the Reporter-Telegram's request Thursday:

"In response to your request for a copy of MISD's investigation results regarding Midland High School Principal Neil Richmond and his use of his cell phone, I wish to inform you that the report was oral and there is no written document."

In other words, it would appear that the district reviewed cell phone bills, averaging more than 400 minutes and 100 calls a month, called each number to verify whether the call was personal or business in nature, determined the number of

Midlander finds courage, candor in straight-shooter John McCain

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The poignant similarities between John McCain and Midland geologist William R. "Bill" Stanton may have much to do with Stanton's fervor for McCain's now-faded hopes for the United States presidency.

Both are straight-talkers. They are candid and passionate. Though a decade apart in age, McCain and Stanton are decorated Vietnam War veterans honored for their bravery and courage in battle. They are Purple Heart recipients, proponents for reforms in government, and both have suffered political disappointments.

Stanton's are directly related to McCain's.

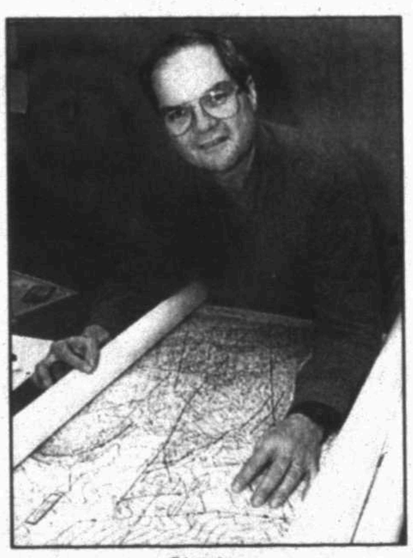

McCain, 63, this week suspended his presidential campaign after Texas Gov. George W. Bush vastly outscored him in winning presidential delegates at the nationwide election polls for the GOP nomination for president.

Stanton, 52, headed up McCain's West Texas presidential campaign.

"I was energized by Mr. McCain," Stanton said. "I am not energized by Mr. Bush."

Early-voting count tops 10,000

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The 12 days of early voting in Tuesday's political primary elections attracted 10,365 Midland voters, or about 15 percent of the 68,945-person Midland County electorate, Pat Eastup, administrator of the Midland County Elections Administration Office, said Friday at close of early voting.

"It's been good," Mrs. Eastup said of the turnout. "It's the best we have had since 1988," when former Midlander George H.W. Bush, then the vice president, won the Republican Party's nomination for president and then captured the general election that November to take on the presidency in 1989.

This year, his son, 53-year-old Texas Gov. George W. Bush, is seeking and winning the GOP nomination for president.

For the overall primary-elections vote, Mrs. Eastup is predicting up to 25,000 Midland voters or far more ballot-casters than in recent primary elections.

Since 1988 until this year, the highest overall early-vote count for Midland was 8,872 in 1972, which included 8,141 Republican votes and 731 votes by Democrats. That was the year President Bush ran for re-election.

For 2000, the early-vote count reflected 9,524 Republican votes and 851 Democratic votes at three locations.

Approximately 68,945 Midlanders age 18 and older are registered to vote in the

Familiar faces join KOSA-TV news team

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Pamela Hamm, formerly an anchor at KMID-TV is set to join KOSA-TV's news team in coming weeks, announced Andy Lee, vice president and general manager of the station.

She will be joined by Odessa native Tatum Hubbard, former Miss Texas and current Arlington resident.

"It's a blessing," said Ms. Hamm, who will join KOSA as a reporter, reporting from Midland, and anchoring KOSA's 5 p.m. newscast. "I thought I was going to have to leave town."

She said she is thrilled to have the opportunity to remain in Midland, with her family, and to remain in television news. She said she is also pleased to be back out on the street as a general assignments reporter.

"I'm looking forward to it. It's going to be different, and I won't be sitting in an office all day."

Ms. Hubbard said she is ecstatic to be coming back to Odessa, where she was raised.

She will anchor the station's new morning program and its noon newscast and serve as a reporter.

"I'll be learning the business from the bottom up, every facet of the operation," she said.

Her family is also happy she's returning to Odessa, "and I'm getting married soon, so this is a great way to start off a new life."

Jerry Penick, news director at KOSA, said, "We're very excited to have these caliber of people to help us. We're in a state of growth with the station right now, and we're excited to put these personalities in the air."

He said the station, in the process of being sold to ICA Broadcasting, part of Odessan John Bushman's ICA Properties, plans to expand its news programming and include additional community service. Station officials expect to hear from the Federal Communications Commission about the sale this month, he said.

KOSA's newscasts trail leader KWES-TV and KMID-TV.

Ms. Hamm left KMID in mid-January, and station manager Bob Young said the station is still searching for a new anchor.

News director Jerry Vazquez "is in the middle of a very intensive search in which we're looking all over the country. We've had discussions with several individuals," he said.

The station has hired two new reporters, Tom Lopez, from Grand Junction, Colo. and Alex Trevino, from San Antonio.

Midland pilot has second emergency landing at MAF

By Rick McLaughlin
Staff Writer

A Midland pilot was uninjured Friday night after making an emergency landing following a potentially dangerous tire blowout during take off from Midland International Airport.

Jim Nyerges, owner-operator of Quinnex, a small air cargo service operating out of the Midland airport, declared an emergency just after the tire on the right main landing gear of his twin-engine Beechcraft Queen Air blew out about 5:10 p.m., according to Marv Esterly, airport director.

The pilot was departing from Runway 34L, declared the emergency and landed on Runway 28. During touchdown, the right main landing gear collapsed and the aircraft skidded to a stop on the edge of the runway with damage to the right wing and right engine, Esterly noted.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram
A fire truck is parked near a Beechcraft Queen Air that had to make an emergency landing Friday at Midland International Airport. The pilot, Jim Nyerges of Midland, was not injured in the mishap.

The safest landing, Esterly said, would have been a belly landing, but Nyerges was unable to make retract the gear and was forced to land on one wheel. Esterly said Nyerges has flown from the airport since 1984.

No one was injured and no commercial aviation operations were interrupted by the accident.

The Flight Standards District Office of Lubbock will investigate the accident Monday, said Esterly.

Nyerges and the same airplane were involved in an emergency landing at the airport Nov. 15 after a wheels-up belly landing at the Midland airport.

Friday's accident occurred only a week after the plane was returned to Nyerges from the repair shop for damage sustained when the same right landing gear apparently struck a deer while taking off from the airport in Alpine.

Mozambique floods displace old land mines

CMOAMBA, Mozambique (AP) — With his mine detector humming, Sebastian Mauricio drops to his knees and sifts through the soggy soil inch by inch for 10 minutes before deciding it's a false lead — nothing more than natural metals in riverbank sand. He advances another yard.

Even in the best of times, finding the estimated 2 million mines left over from Mozambique's 16-year civil war is painstaking work. Now, the job has been made even more complicated — and dangerous — by the surging flood waters that almost certainly uprooted thousands of mines and washed them downstream.

"Everything has changed," said Donald Steinberg, President Clinton's special representative for global demining.

"How far did the mines move?" said Jackie D'Almeida, a mine-clearing expert in Mozambique. "We have no way of knowing."

D'Almeida leads a 500-man team that has been steadily removing and deactivating mines since shortly after the war ended in 1992. Their years of toil have uncovered 13,000 mines — and about 10 million pieces of harmless metal — in this southeast African nation nearly twice the size of California.

The work has also made 2,500 miles of roads safe for Mozambicans to go to their fields.

But in the last three weeks, heavy rains have pounded the land and rivers overflowed their banks. Aid workers expect a death toll in the thousands. Up to a million Mozambicans lost their homes, crops or other property. The rains that temporarily halted relief efforts let up Friday, permitting helicopters and airplanes to deliver aid to hundreds of thousands of flood victims.

More than 1,000 minefields had been identified across Mozambique. D'Almeida said the floods submerged perhaps 100 of them, but his team has not been able to reach remote areas where mines are reported to have shifted.

It is clear, however, that much of the team's efforts to map the fields now may be essentially worthless.

Gone now are the sticks that once marked the minefields, along with the red-and-white signposts emblazoned with a skull and crossbones. More importantly, the demining teams have no idea where the old mines will be once the waters subside.

"This is going to be a nightmare for us," D'Almeida said.

On Friday, several mine clearers and two U.S.-trained German shepherd dogs were trying to establish an explosive-free corridor to reach downed power pylons along the Nkomati River, northwest of the capital Maputo.

The river's muddy waters have receded, but lurking in the mud and shallow ponds may be land mines washed from upstream. Workers have refused to erect new pylons until the ground is swept for mines.

"Normally, mines are put in a place that makes rational military sense, and when you find the field, you can fence it off," said Jacob Kaarsbo, who helps run the mine clearing project for the U.N. Development Program.

Not so in Mozambique — during the civil war, the government army and rebel fighters sowed land mines indiscriminately and left no records or maps of their location.

As a result, minefields claim the limbs and lives of the most innocent: women and children working and playing. Shortly after the war, there were an average of 40 mine accidents a month, and about 15 were fatal.

More than 7,000 Mozambicans have been fitted with prostheses after land mines claimed their limbs.

Indonesia to crack down on fire-setters

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — With hundreds of blazes on the Indonesian island of Sumatra casting haze across much of Southeast Asia, the government on Friday said it would crack down on farmers and loggers using fire to clear land.

The government said it will confiscate the licenses of any plantation owner or logger caught using fire as a cheap — but illegal — method of clearing land for planting.

"Anyone involved in the burning should be punished," Indonesian Foreign Minister Alwi Shihab said. "We will do whatever we can... to overcome the problem."

In 1997, fires across the Indonesian archipelago produced a huge cloud of smog that paralyzed the region for months, harming tourism and threatening the health of millions of people in much of Southeast Asia.

During the rule of former President Suharto, the fires were allowed to rage unchecked because many of the owners of logging companies and palm oil plantations had close ties with officials in his administration.

But the blazes severely undermined international confidence in Suharto, who was ousted in 1998 amid public protests.

It was unclear how effective President Abdurrahman Wahid's new Cabinet, Indonesia's first freely elected government in 44 years, would be in combatting the fires.

Though clouds of smoke have blanketed much of Southeast Asia over the past few days, Shihab said the pollution has not damaged relations with neighboring countries.

On Friday in Singapore, the Pollution Standards Index ranged from 26 to 45, a level considered healthy. That figure was down from 76 three days earlier. A reading of 50 or below is considered good, while higher than 50 is moderate and above 100 is considered unhealthy.

Still, Singaporean meteorologists said the threat was far from over, as the seasonal monsoon winds are expected to change direction in the next few weeks — blowing the smoke directly across the tiny island city-state.

Indonesia's Riau province, where many of the fires were burning, is close to Singapore. The city-state's environment minister, Lee Yock Suan, said this year's haze could be as bad as that of 1997.

PROBE: District unsure of total legal expenses

minutes and calls placed for personal use and tabulated the amount of money (17.5 cents a minute for all personal calls) Richmond owed the district and did this all without writing anything down.

Ms. Hodges also said she is concerned that no documentation was presented.

"If God provided written documentation, I think we can expect the same from Dr. Baressi and MISD," she said.

Bufler, a supervisor with the city of Midland Parks Department added that in his capacity, he would document any investigations into an employee's performance or behavior. He also said that documentation would assist the board in any decisions it might have to make.

"To get to the bottom of the truth, I think it would be well to have documentation," Bufler said.

According to Baressi, the report of the investigation was made by John Aldredge, of Walsh and Anderson law firm in Austin, who personally reviewed Richmond's files. The board voted Tuesday night to hire the firm, which adds another wrinkle in the investigation.

If the board hired the firm Tuesday night, how could Aldredge have conducted an investigation? And, if he conducted an investigation prior to the board's hiring of the firm, who authorized it?

"I posed that very same question to Dr. Baressi," said Lara.

Aldredge actually came to Midland and reviewed the files on Feb. 24. He was in town because the board was supposed to meet in a special session to discuss Richmond's employment.

That meeting was canceled, but Aldredge's services weren't.

When Baressi was asked under what authority the firm was being employed at that time, Baressi said, "He's here to advise me."

Baressi now says the firm is being retained for $500 to $560 a year and will be charged $110 an hour for the first 10 hours and $135 an hour for each hour over 10 hours. According to Art Martin, executive director of business services, the total amount owed to the firm is not known because the district hasn't received an invoice. However, when asked how much the firm was charging, he said he didn't know the answer.

Martin confirmed that Richmond has reimbursed the district for cell phone calls but would not say how much Richmond has reimbursed to the district and did not remember when the reimbursement was offered.

The Reporter-Telegram has requested documentation of any kind substantiating whether Richmond has, in fact, made reimbursement. Martin said the district does not intend to comply with the request prior to the 10 days allowed by the Texas Open Meetings Act. Additionally, Attorney General John Cornyn has made it clear that the 10 days specified in the law is to allow governmental bodies the opportunity to investigate whether certain documents are open to the public. Likewise, the attorney general has made it clear that governmental bodies can not use the law as a stonewalling tactic.

The next regular school board is set for March 28. An agenda for that meeting has not be set, therefore it remains to be seen if the Richmond matter will be addressed.

The most recent meeting with the Austin firm resulted in no public action and some board members still feel there are many unanswered questions.

"The meeting (March 7) was extremely brief and there wasn't even time to question the lawyer," said Ms. Hodges.

Aldredge was scheduled to catch a flight at 7:30 p.m. that evening and had to leave before board members were done discussing the issue. That fact has raised some questions as to whether the brevity of the executive session and lack of information was intentional.

"I would question if the board president knew this man had to catch a plane, why spend 30 minutes talking about band uniforms. Why didn't we move him (the attorney) to the top of the meeting?" asked Ms. Hodges.

She added, "In my opinion, this investigation is not over because there will be requests by board members to have written documentation."

Several calls were made to Aldredge. His office confirmed that he was in the office, but Aldredge never returned any calls. Board President Becky Oekerman also did not return calls.

BREAK: Haley Hightower plans trip to Paris with grandmother read "The Lord of the Flies," so he will not be forgetting about school altogether.

(From 1A)

"By this time kids are tired of the spring semester. Having that break let's you get rested up," Haley Hightower said.

That does not mean that will happen.

"I'm going to Paris to sightsee with my grandmother," she said. Leaving this morning, she will not return until next Saturday, giving her barely enough time to get over jet lag, much less catch up on sleep.

"We don't have time to go do anything," Matt Goldsmith, Lee baseball player said, relating to Haley's situation. He and Justin Caines have three games and several practices scattered throughout the week.

"My dream would be going to Mexico," Caines said, envious of his parents.

"I would go to Hawaii, like one of my teachers," Goldsmith countered. Goldsmith might be able to escape to Lake Spence for a day or two.

Julio Aguilar will be making the short trek to the other side of the border.

"I'm going to Mexico for a couple days with friends," Julio Aguilar, who is supportive of the week-long vacation from school.

"It gives you time to catchup and get off a lot of pressure. Sometimes you might even get bored enough to read a book," he laughed.

One of the benefits of the break is allowing for family vacations.

"I'm going to Arizona for my cousin's wedding," Beth Schwab said. Her trip should include some sightseeing and spelunking as well. "We're going to this cave and that should be fun."

David Lucas is one of many who will exit Midland to go skiing.

"Our church, First Methodist, is going to Silver Creek, Friday through Wednesday," David Lucas said.

The week is not fun and games for everyone though.

"I might go to Utah," Natalie Snow said. "If I don't, I'm going to work for the Census."

"I work at Mervyn's. I'll probably have more hours than usual," Gloria Galindo said. "It's something to keep me occupied and out of trouble."

She would rather have the week added onto the summer.

"Then you have more time to do things like go out of state," she said.

Companion Erica Martinez disagreed.

"I always look forward to spring break," she said. "I think I'll probably work a little more at Western Sizzlin. I need the money to get a car."

"I've got four children off of school. We'll probably plan a trip to Fort Davis for next weekend," substitute teacher Theresa Mesquita said. "It gives everybody a chance to catch up on things — like sleep so you don't have to wake up to an alarm clock!"

While many boasted of their elaborate plans, Brad Johnson has a confession.

"I'm staying here, and I have no idea what I'm going to do," he said.

McCAIN: Stanton is a decorated Vietnam veteran

(From 1A)

Democratic and Republican presidential candidates in the Nov. 7 general election.

"So, I'm disappointed," Stanton said of McCain's disheartened decision to "suspend" his campaign. "But I think he did the right thing. Had he maintained a candidacy and had fought a losing but difficult battle, I think in effect he would have elected Mr. Gore to the presidency.

"In terms of trying to unite the Republican Party, he (McCain) has probably done the right thing."

Vice President Al Gore, 51, is now the apparent Democratic Party-presidential nominee after outdistancing rival Bill Bradley in the primary elections.

"We now have two candidates (Gore and Bush) who may do just fine (in the presidency)," Stanton surmised. "But we now have Harvard versus Yale again. It looks like we are going back to the same old thing."

McCain, U.S. senator from Arizona, had campaigned for national reforms, including those on campaign-finance legislation, getting big business out of government and paying off the national debt, and ensuring Social Security's financial health for the senior citizenry.

Bush, 53, has been touting his "compassionate conservatism" and lately has held himself as a staunch reformer, a "reformer with results," and a tough campaigner.

The feisty and hawkish McCain, a Navy fighter pilot and a career naval officer, was a prisoner of war (POW) in Vietnam from 1967 to 1973, won the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, the Legion of Merit, and the Purple Heart. He retired from the Navy as a captain.

Bush served at home as a fighter pilot in the Texas Air National Guard.

Stanton, a decorated soldier, served in Vietnam with the U.S. Army's engineers, was a draftee who became a staff sergeant, and won the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart. In Vietnam in 1968 and 1969, he was a terrain intelligence-analyst. "My job was to locate areas where the M-48 tanks wouldn't get sunk in the muck" and to "tell the armored troops where they could and could not move to."

Stanton recalled that he "came back (to California in 1969) from Vietnam decorated, and ... people threw things at me — rotten fruit, rocks, whatever they had. I think we were good soldiers in a bad war."

Stanton described himself as "just a combat veteran whom nobody caught up with" to make him a prisoner of war (POW).

Like McCain, "I was wounded overseas, and I was decorated."

Stanton, who returned Stateside four years before McCain's release from the POW camp where he was tortured.

"Maybe not the magnitude of his, but I was under a stressful situation in Vietnam, and I came home in one piece. It took we awhile to kind of get my act back together," Stanton said. "In a way, I kind of feel like I know a little bit about what he went through" as a POW.

"Why he (McCain) really appeals to me, the most important aspect, is probably not related to his being a veteran, although it could be," Stanton said. "I just think he's a real straight-shooter. He just tells it like it is. And he is very believable."

Perhaps similar to McCain, Stanton said that his "disenchantment with the bulk of the Republican Party is its adherence to the religious right — the conservative Christian movement.

"When I read the Constitution of the United States, it (the religious-right movement) is counter to what makes us who we are. I'm a fiscal conservative," Stanton said, "but I'm religious moderate."

Stanton said that he is still ready "to cast my vote for Mr. McCain unless he comes on the air and asks us to do otherwise."

And what about an independent bid for the presidency?

"I almost wish he would start a third party ... a centrist party, a party that is in the middle," said Stanton, who noted that McCain is young enough to be viable as a Republican candidate in the 2004 presidential campaign.

"Democrats are so pro-environmental I can't deal with them, and the Republicans have gotten so attached to the religious-conservative group that I can't stay with them," Stanton said. "So, I need somebody in the middle."

In addressing campaign issues, McCain was "looking for ways to do the business of government without being controlled by business — how to do the business of governing without being controlled by big business.

"Mr. Bush is owned by big business," Stanton charged. "He's got the big money guys behind him. And he's no different than the other good Republicans (who are) driven by the big-money interest."

Earlier in the week before McCain had suspended his campaign, Stanton, in a letter to West Texas McCain supporters, said that he was "honored and overwhelmed by the daunting task of mounting a short-term, meaningful campaign right here in Mr. Bush's backyard."

The campaign was " 'counterinsurgency' against the Bush Coronation," Stanton noted.

"McCain is a man of true courage, a man who has faced the worst of all possible situations and has prospered," Stanton said. "McCain is a man who deserves to be president of the United States."

McCain "certainly has been tested through and through," Stanton said of McCain's military service and trials as a POW. "That's part of why I supported him" for the presidency.

"Because of his father (a U.S. Navy admiral), he had a chance to come home early" from the war. "He choose to stay with the rest of the POWs," Stanton recalled. "He had an option to come home early, and he chose not to.

"That tells you a lot about what a man will do when he has really got in a tough spot," Stanton said. "That tells me that a U.S. president in a tight spot, a man like McCain, is more than likely to make the right decisions."

Odessa man jailed on pornography charges

By Rick McLaughlin
Staff Writer

An 37-year-old unemployed Odessa man is being held without bond in Midland County Detention Center charged with interstate transportation of child pornography.

Curtis Eugene Sharp was arrested Wednesday at his residence at 412 W. 46th St. in Odessa, according to court documents. He is scheduled for an initial appearance and detention hearing Wednesday at 9 a.m. before U.S. Magistrate Judge L. Stuart Platt.

A federal grand jury will consider the charges against him on Wednesday, said Assistant U.S. District Attorney Glenn Jackson. The charges include distribution of child pornography over the Internet as well as receiving videos depicting child pornography though the U.S. Postal Service.

A search of Sharp's residence resulted in the confiscation of substantial quantities of computer equipment and apparent pornographic images of children in sexual situations on computer files, CDs and videos, documents show.

Authorities said Sharp met a Pennsylvania Attorney General's Office agent online through his America Online account under the screen name CESharp414. On Feb. 25, the agent sent Sharp an e-mail thanking him for the pictures he sent over the Internet and asking Sharp if he was interested in the preteen videos, according to court documents.

A series of exchanges followed, according to court documents, and on March 3, the agent in Pennsylvania, received a Zip disk from Sharp with photos of minors engaged in explicit sexual activity.

VOTING: Polls will be from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Republican Party and Democratic Party primary elections to nominate candidates for the Nov. 7 general election at the national, state, regional, county, and precinct levels.

In the 1996 presidential primary elections, 60,120 Midlanders were registered to vote, Mrs. Eastup noted. Of those voters, 31 percent or 18,825 cast ballots. Twenty-eight percent of the voters were Republicans, and 3 percent were Democrats, according to Mrs. Eastup's records. Early voters accounted for 40 percent of all votes cast in that election, with the remainder cast on Election Day.

Aside from Midland races that include contested candidates for sheriff, commissioners, county attorney and constables, the elections include national candidates seeking the Republican Party and Democratic Party nominees for the nation's president.

Tuesday's primary-elections voting will be from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Democratic Party and Republican Party polling places in Midland and Midland County.

The wrong date was given for the Permian Basin Girl Scout Council's "Women of Distinction" banquet, which will be held March 18 at the Petroleum Club. The banquet will honor 12 women from Midland, Odessa and Marathon. Guest speaker will be Heloise, known for her "Hints From Heloise" column.

Friday's article about the Midlanders' trip to Wirral, England said nine artists were going on the trip. That was incorrect.

There are 56 Midlanders in the arts group going to England, including nine of the artists whose works will be shown at the Blackthorn Galleries in Wirral.

British Airways chief calls it quits after four long troubled years

LONDON (AP) — British Airways began searching for a new chief executive Friday, when Robert Ayling announced his surprise resignation after four troubled years as head of Britain's largest airline.

Ayling said in a statement to the London Stock Exchange that the demands of the job had "taken their toll," and that it was "time for a new chief executive to take up the challenge."

British Airways chairman Lord Colin Marshall will take over as chief executive while the airline searches for a successor. Ayling, 54, worked 15 years at British Airways.

The airline has faced intense competition in recent years, particularly on its trans-Atlantic routes to the United States.

Under Ayling, the airline has tried to increase its appeal to business customers, introducing first-class sleeper beds and increasing the number of premium seats on its flights.

At the same time, competition from low-cost airlines has threatened British Airways on many of its shorter European routes. BA responded by starting its own low-cost carrier, Go.

Ayling introduced cost-cutting measures that have so far saved the company $1.6 billion. But in November, the airline reported a 38 percent drop in profit for the previous six month period.

Jennie Campbell, an industry analyst at London brokerage Greig Middleton, said Ayling's resignation 'was a surprise, though he had long been under pressure to step down.

"Everything he's done probably needed to be done," she said, "but it has been a potentially dangerous strategy of concentrating on premium passengers, which may alienate a lot of people who want to fly."

British Airways also started to fly more planes on its longer, more profitable routes, and is re-equipping its fleet with smaller aircraft that have fewer economy-class seats.

For BA to succeed with its new strategy, it will probably need to cut thousands of jobs, said Alastair Gunn, a transport analyst at Credit Lyonnais Securities Europe. Whoever succeeds Ayling, therefore, will need "a Ph.D. in diplomacy," he said.

Ayling, a lawyer, alienated much of BA's 60,000-strong work force with his tough response to a cabin crew strike in 1997.

"He was seen to be very arrogant and not the greatest of communicators, even though, with hindsight, the strategies he put into place very few people now disagree with," Gunn said.

Among BA's setbacks during Ayling's leadership was the public relations gaffe of dropping the traditional blue, white and red colors of the Union Jack from the tailfins of many of its jets. Ayling believed some customers perceived the old colors as too stuffy and Anglocentric, and he had the planes repainted in 1997 with ethnic designs from around the world.

Many observers derided the new paint jobs as airborne graffiti. Former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher described them as "awful."

Ayling later decided to revert to the old color scheme.

BA shares jumped 5 percent on the London Stock Exchange on word of Ayling's resignation.

Millions crowd into mosque to pray before hajj

MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Despite calls for patience and courteousness, pilgrims pushed and shoved their way Friday around the Grand Mosque, where more than 1.5 million Muslims gathered to pray.

On this last Muslim Sabbath before the peak of the hajj, the annual pilgrimage to holy sites in Saudi Arabia, the prayer leader urged pilgrims to be "kind, gentle, patient and tolerant to other pilgrims while they are performing the rituals."

"There is discomfort for all when performing the rituals in such a limited space with such huge crowds, and people should be understanding and lenient," said Sheik Mohammad bin Abdullah al-Sabeel.

But once his sermon and the prayers concluded, pilgrims pushed their way out of the mosque, sending many elderly men and women to the ground.

The situation was made worse as tens of thousands of pilgrims waiting outside the mosque tried to enter.

"We try to help them, but they don't listen to us. They don't help us to help them," said Shahran, a Saudi policemen who refused to be identified further.

Cries of "help" and "I can't breath" were heard from pilgrims caught in the middle and struggling to regain their footing.

Many pilgrims were also seen rushing to help those who had fallen. There were no serious injuries, though many people suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Such commotion is normal during hajj, which Muslims are required to perform at least once in a lifetime if they can afford it. This year's pilgrimage climaxes on Wednesday.

Titanic builders lose Queen Mary 2 bid, fear economic hardships to come

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The shipyard that built the Titanic is fighting for its life because it didn't get enough help from the British government in bidding to build a new superliner, the company's chief executive said Friday.

Cunard Line, owned by Carnival Corp. of Miami, announced Thursday that it had chosen a French shipyard, Alstom Chantiers de L'Atlantique in Saint-Nazaire, to build the new Queen Mary 2.

The Harland and Wolff shipyard in Belfast had also been bidding to build the 1,130-foot liner, which is to be launched in 2003. The winning bid was valued at about $700 million.

Harland and Wolff's order book is empty, and nearly all of the 1,800 workers face unemployment unless new contracts are secured by the middle of the year when two oil drilling ships are completed, chief executive Brynajulv Mugaas said.

"The overall package put forward by the U.K. government came as too little too late and failed to address to any extent the key elements which we had advised were required by the potential customer," Mugaas said.

Prime Minister Tony Blair said the government had done all it could to assist the Belfast shipyard's bid. "Obviously we are disappointed at the decision, though it's a decision by a commercial company," Blair said in Glasgow, Scotland.

Disappointment spread quickly through the workforce.

"It's an absolutely devastating blow to me and my family and all the workers and all their families," said senior shop stewards' committee chairman Bobby Moore, who has worked for the company for 28 years.

"At one time the shipyard was the thing that held this community together," said Geordie Murray, a welder at the shipyard for three decades. "Now the community has all but disappeared."

Founded in 1861, Harland and Wolff produced 1,700 ships including nearly 300 naval and merchant vessels during World War II.

Harland and Wolff's two giant cranes, Samson and Goliath, are landmarks in east Belfast, but employment at the shipyard has dwindled from a peak of 35,000 half a century ago.

The most famous product of the yard was Titanic, launched in 1912. It sank on its maiden voyage after striking an iceberg, and more than 1,500 people died. Its sister ship Olympic, completed in 1911 and one of the vessels which heard Titanic's SOS, continued in service until 1935.

The company hasn't made a cruise ship since 1961, when it built Canberra for the Pacific and Orient line.

Steven Kingon, economic committee chairman at Belfast's Chamber of Commerce, feared the shipyard could be yet another casualty in the battle between traditional and new industries.

"It's been one of the more famous traditional industries, it's world famous and going for such a long time," Kingon said. "It comes as a body blow symbolically as much as in direct economic impact," he said.

Former British Prime Minister John Major won't run again for parliament

LONDON (AP) — Former Tory Prime Minister John Major, who led Britain's government from 1990 to 1997, said Friday that he has decided not to run for parliament in the next general election.

In a letter to the Huntingdon Conservative Association, Major, 56, said he had made his decision after "a great deal of soul-searching and sadness."

"I would rather go while I am being urged to stay, rather than stay beyond the time when I should go," he said.

Major succeeded Margaret Thatcher as prime minister and led Britain's conservatives to victory in the 1992 general election. But following allegations of Tory sleaze and financial corruption, he also led the party to its disastrous defeat in May 1997.

"I have served in parliament for over 20 years and politics has been an important part of my life for far longer, but it is not all my life and it is time to enjoy the many other aspects that have been subordinated over so many years," Major said. "My family has sacrificed much for politics and it is now time for politics to make way."

Major reportedly has told friends he has not decided what to do professionally after he leaves government.

Tory leader William Hague said the party was saddened to hear of Major's decision.

"As prime minister for seven years, he will be remembered for the golden economic legacy from which we are still benefiting ... and for his tireless efforts and determination to bring peace to Northern Ireland which laid the foundations for the Good Friday Agreement," Hague said.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT AND HOUSING PROGRAM

The City of Midland encourages all interested persons to participate in development of the Consolidated Plan for the City's Community Development and Housing Programs. The Consolidated Plan is a collaborative process whereby the various housing, homeless, public facility, infrastructure, public service, economic development and other needs are prioritized to provide the City with a unified vision for community development actions.

Public meetings at the following dates, locations and times will be held to solicit citizen input from the surrounding neighborhoods.

March 23, 2000 - Midland Community Center, Activity Room 2, 2300 Butternut Lane

March 30,2000 - South Elementary Multi-Purpose Room, 201 W Dakota

Both meetings will begin at 7:00 pm.

These meetings will also provide the opportunity to review past usage of City of Midland Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds.

A total of $1,314,000 in CDBG funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development will be allocated to the City for the 2000 CDBG program. A minimum 70% of these funds must be allocated to projects which benefit low and moderate income persons. Examples of activities eligible for CDBG funding are: housing rehabilitation, sidewalk and street improvements, park improvements, code enforcement, lot clearance, economic development, and public services.

For further information, call the City's Community Development Office at 685-7402 or 685-7408.

Mom grateful that abductor released daughter safely

By Vickie Chachere
Associated Press

TRENTON, Fla. — The mother of a 10-year-old girl who was snatched from her driveway and held for three days thanked the child's captor Friday for releasing her alive.

Investigators continued to hunt for the kidnapper and released no details of what happened to Jessica Rodriguez during her captivity.

Jessica had been abducted by a man Monday after getting off her school bus outside her rural home in Trenton. On Thursday, she walked into a Wal-Mart 25 miles away from home, asking for help. Investigators said they believe the child was dropped off by her captor.

"I want to tell the man who had Jessica, 'Thank you very much for dropping her off safely,'" said her mother, Jennifer Graham, mixing laughter and tears. "And she's doing great. She's playing. She's so happy. She's wonderful."

Investigators are focusing their search for the kidnapper in the area around where the Jessica lives, based on information from the girl. They would not divulge the information and declined to comment about whether she had been assaulted.

Jessica told investigators that she had never seen her abductor before, authorities said.

"She was able to give us a lot of details and is a very strong and encouraging young witness," Sheriff David Turner said. "According to her, he was a stranger. She did not know him by name. Or could not believe that she had ever seen him previously."

The suspect was described as a balding man in his 30s, with a thin face, and a tattoo of a heart with a broken arrow on his left forearm. Police believe he is still driving the green Jeep Cherokee Jessica's sisters described seeing on the day of the abduction.

In the days after the girl vanished, her mother and aunts made public pleas for her return as her uncles scoured the woods for the girl.

"I want to thank everybody, I want to thank the media for putting it all out there and bringing my daughter back home to me because everybody has been a very big help," Graham told reporters.

It's time to bring law enforcement home.

I'm Mike Hall, candidate for Midland County Sheriff in the Republican primary, and I'm asking for your vote.

I believe it's time to bring law enforcement back to Midland County and put the hard-working people of Midland County first.

We don't need to be chasing crooks or staging "stings" across Texas. You're already paying state and federal taxes for this. That's what the Texas Department of Public Safety, Drug Enforcement Administration, and F.B.I. are for.

I pledge that your County taxes will go to Midland County crime prevention and protection. I'll cooperate fully with state and federal law enforcement agencies.

As your Sheriff, I'll stay at home and focus or running your Sheriff's office. And I'll work with the County officials, putting you, the taxpayer, first.

I'm committed to making Midland County a better, safer place to live.

It's time for a change.

Mike Hall has 24 years in law enforcement ...
- ★ U.S. Army, three years, served in Korea
- ★ Sam Houston State University, Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice
- ★ Midland Police Department
- ★ Texas Dept. of Corrections, Huntsville
- ★ Midland County Sheriff's Office, 13 years

Mike Hall for Sheriff ... putting Midland County first.

ELECT MIKE HALL
FOR MIDLAND COUNTY SHERIFF

Sliding hill spills over houses in San Francisco suburb, forces evacuation

By Anne M. Peterson

ABOVE: Mark Astells helps carry a box from his brother's home that has been "red-tagged" in Millbrae, Calif., Friday. The home next door, right, belonging to the Delgado family, has started tipping forward from the weight of the mud slipping into the back of their home.

LEFT: A home on Pinehurst Court jokingly displays a "For Sale - As Is" sign after it was red-tagged in Millbrae, Calif. The slow-motion disaster buckled one foundation, punched a tree through the garage wall of another home and sent a wall of mud into the bedroom of a third house.

MILLBRAE, Calif. — The Delgado family home leaned at a 45-degree angle Friday, its foundation ripped away by a slow-motion disaster — a football field-size mudslide that also endangers seven other houses.

"We've gone through all of the emotions: denial, sadness, grief," Maria Delgado, 45, said Friday as she stood across the street, unable to get any closer to her disintegrating half-million-dollar house. "But now we're just angry. We want to know what happens now."

The Delgados and four other families evacuated Tuesday as the rain-weakened hillside slid toward their homes in this suburb south of San Francisco.

The slide buckled one foundation, punched a tree through the garage wall of another home and sent a wall of mud into the bedroom of a third.

Firefighters used poles and guns to break windows, to prevent the glass from exploding outward.

Residents of three houses at the top of the unstable hill were told to stay out of their backyards and warned they might have to leave at a moment's notice. Heavy rains have caused several landslides recently in the San Francisco Bay area.

Millbrae has appealed to state and federal officials for aid for the families, since homeowner's insurance policies sometimes don't cover natural disasters.

The city also declared a state of emergency and has authorized spending about $100,000 on temporary repairs on the hill.

AP

San Francisco had its rainiest February in history, and several storms over the last two weeks sent the hillside falling about 50 feet.

Two days of dry weather slowed the slide to a crawl Friday, and although there was a slight chance of rain Friday night, fair skies were forecast for the weekend.

"If we get a couple of dry days maybe that will solidify it," said Tom Coletti, Millbrae's superintendent of public works. "We don't know what nature's going to do here. It's unpredictable."

Francis Gadayan was helping his father-in-law move Friday under sunny skies. "The house is still intact," Gadayan said. "We're just getting everything out just in case."

In Daly City, six miles south of San Francisco, a crumbling bluff overlooking the Pacific Ocean was threatening to destroy 18 homes. Many of the residents there have already left, their gas supply cut off because of the danger.

Across the San Francisco Bay in Oakland, one hillside house stood yellow-tagged because of the danger of a landslide.

Beaver College considering name change to stop jokes

By Jonathan Poet
Associated Press

GLENSIDE, Pa. — Settle down, class. That will be enough giggling. Let's all behave like mature young men and women while we discuss why Beaver College is considering changing its name.

"The word 'beaver' too often elicits ridicule in the form of derogatory remarks pertaining to the rodent, the TV show 'Leave It to Beaver' and the vulgar reference to the female anatomy," Beaver President Bette E. Landman wrote recently in a letter to 20,000 alumni, students, staff and benefactors.

And at a time when more and more high school students are researching colleges on the Web, some Internet filters that screen out sexually explicit material are blocking access to the Beaver College Web site. The filters have even blocked delivery of e-mail originating from the school, Landman wrote.

"It has become a very big problem," said Beaver spokesman Bill Avington. "These filtering services, many of them have 'beaver' as a word that is inappropriate. Especially when you consider the age group we are targeting, it becomes tougher to get our message out. Some students use this as their sole tool to choose colleges."

The college's own market research shows that the school appeals to 30 percent fewer prospective students solely because of the name.

"There are alumni reports that our name presents an obstacle when seeking employment and that some have chosen not to display their diplomas to avoid unkind remarks from colleagues," said the president of the 2,800-student school in suburban Philadelphia.

Beaver College has appeared on David Letterman's Top 10 list. Conan O'Brien and Howard Stern have made jokes about it. And when "Saturday Night Live" writers invented an annoying film critic for a recent sketch, they made him a representative of Beaver College campus radio.

"My own daughter made a crack when I told her where I was going to work," said Judy Wiley, a professor of psychology. "She said, 'Mom, do you know what people use that word for?'"

Heather Linsley, a senior, said: "When we've gone away to different conferences, we would swap items with other students and our sweatshirts and T-shirts would be the hot item.

"Usually it's the guys who want them," she added.

House ties $1 rise in minimum wage to $122 billion tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — To soften the impact on employers of a $1 increase in the minimum wage, Republicans pushed a $122 billion tax cut through the House Thursday despite a vow by President Clinton to veto it and grumbling from conservatives about the whole package.

Votes on alternative minimum wage proposals were planned later in the evening.

GOP leaders made the tax measure part of the wage package to deny Democrats a stand-alone wage bill, which has strong support from Northeastern Republican moderates who want to defuse it as a campaign issue in the November elections.

"The question is whether we take a thoughtful approach and a balanced approach, or whether we have an ill-conceived bill foisted upon us," said Rep. Rick Lazio, R-N.Y., a main sponsor of the GOP bill.

The House voted 257-169 to pass the tax bill, two-thirds of which consists of cuts in estate taxes. It will be combined with legislation that would increase the $5.15-an-hour minimum wage by $1 over two years or a version that would increase the wage by $1 over three years.

Even if the bill meets Clinton's wish for a two-year wage boost, the president repeated Thursday he would veto the measure if it included large tax cuts.

Clinton contends the tax relief disproportionately benefits the wealthy and would consume a chunk of the projected budget surplus that could be used to shore up Social Security and Medicare.

"Once again, the Republican leadership has derailed what should be a simple vote on the minimum wage with a maximum of political maneuvering," Clinton said. "Congress should send me a bill I can sign, not one I have to veto."

Republicans, however, contended the tax package would offset the costs to business of raising the minimum wage, which many in the GOP view as a job-killer and hindrance to new investment or expansion.

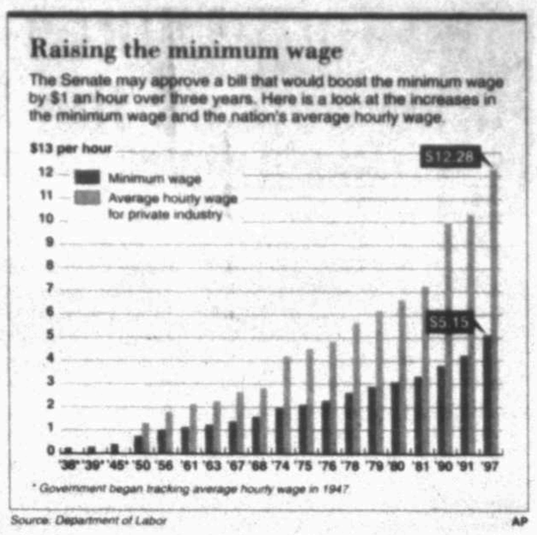

"Our point is simply, let's find some tax relief to cushion the blow," said Rep. Rob Portman, R-Ohio.

Much of the debate centered on the estate tax cuts. Costing $78.6 billion over 10 years, they were portrayed by Democrats as a giveaway primarily for people with incomes over $319,000 a year.

Democrats were prevented from offering their own, smaller tax package for small business.

"We're not fighting any tax relief. We're fighting for the right kind of tax relief," said Rep. Sander Levin, D-Mich.

GOP sponsors said current estate taxes actually prevent small businesses and family farms from being passed down to heirs and require costly tax planning simply to ease the impact

Study: New cream slows hair growth

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An experimental cream significantly slowed the growth of facial hair on 70 percent of women in the final round of tests before the drug is presented for federal approval.

The cream, called Vaniqa (pronounced VAN-ih-kah), is intended to offer millions of women an alternative to plucking, tweezing, waxing or shaving.

It was developed by Gillette Co., the world's biggest manufacturer of razors, and pharmaceutical maker Bristol-Myers Squibb Co.

The cream now awaits Food and Drug Administration approval, which may come as early as summer. If approved, it could hit the market by fall. It would be available by prescription.

In a six-month study of 596 women with excessive facial hair, a significant difference was seen as early as four weeks, and areas where the cream was applied became clear or almost clear of new growth, said Dr. Marty Sawaya, a dermatologist who presented the findings at a meeting this week of the American Academy of Dermatology. Side effects included stinging, burning, tingling and acne.

The study was paid for by the manufacturers.

Vaniqa is applied to the face like a moisturizer twice a day. It works by blocking a key enzyme that makes hair grow and must be used regularly or else hair growth will resume. No price has been set for the cream.

Makers cautioned that, while easier to use, Vaniqa is not necessarily more effective than laser removal or electrolysis.

FDA issues warning for smoked fish

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration issued a nationwide consumer warning Friday urging Americans not to eat any cold-smoked fish sold by a New York company because it may be contaminated with bacteria that can cause life-threatening infections.

The warning marks the fourth FDA action since November regarding Royal Baltic Ltd. of Brooklyn, N.Y., which has recalled thousands of pounds of seafood potentially contaminated with the food-poisoning bacterium listeria.

Listeria can cause fever, severe headaches, stiffness, nausea and diarrhea. Healthy people recover quickly, but listeria can cause serious, sometimes fatal, infections in children, the elderly and people with weak immune systems — and is especially dangerous for pregnant women. It can cause miscarriages and stillbirths even if the mother experiences no symptoms.

Separately, the FDA wrote Royal Baltic ordering it to cease manufacturing all cold-smoked seafood, said Joe Baca, an FDA food safety director. Royal Baltic, which has operated under a federal consent decree since 1994, has until Tuesday to respond.

The FDA is investigating one illness possibly linked to the products, but says it has repeatedly discovered listeria-contaminated batches of cold-smoked Royal Baltic products.

The FDA said consumers who have purchased any Royal Baltic cold-smoked fish should return it to the place of purchase for a refund. Ted Turner turns back time across the West

By Barry Massey
Associated Press

VERMEJO PARK RANCH, N.M. — Ted Turner, the CNN mogul who has speeded up our sense of time and sent us hurtling into the future, has embarked in just the opposite direction across the American West.

Since 1987, he has bought a staggering 1.7 million acres in Montana, New Mexico, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas — becoming the largest private landowner in the United States, according to Worth magazine — and is using his fortune to turn back the hands of time.

He is restoring the buffalo and other native animals and plants and tearing away the barbed wire, bringing back the wide-open vistas that existed before the West was won.

Turner wants to preserve what this country looked like "before white man was so bloody common across the landscape, before so many shopping malls and so many roads and so many subdivisions," says Mike Phillips, executive director of the Turner Endangered Species Fund.

In New Mexico, the billionaire owns almost 1.1 million acres — 1.5 percent of the nation's fifth-largest state. That includes the 580,000-acre Vermejo Park Ranch, bought from Pennzoil Co. in 1996 for a reported $80 million.

It is perhaps the crown jewel of Turner's Western holdings because of its size — nearly three times the area of New York City — and its diversity. The ranch consists of high prairie, lush valleys, pine and aspen forests, and peaks of nearly 13,000 feet.

The ranch also serves as a model of Turner's vision of the West.

Nearly 600 miles of barbed wire once cut across Vermejo, and 7,000 head of cattle grazed there. Today, half of the interior fencing is gone, and so are the cattle. Buffalo again roam the grasslands, sharing the 50-mile-wide property with elk, deer, antelope, eagles, cougars and bear.

Turner considers buffalo more environmentally friendly than cattle, which were introduced to the region by early settlers. Unlike cattle, buffalo don't strip the vegetation and cause erosion. With cattle gone at Vermejo, the grass is knee-high, and willows and cottonwoods stand along streambanks that once were trampled almost bare.

Turner also has restored fire as a tool for managing the grasslands and forests. Carpets of grass have replaced brush and small trees, returning the landscape to the more natural state that existed before man began fighting wildfires.

At Vermejo, he is also working to restore the endangered black-footed ferret and increase the number of prairie dogs and Rio Grande cutthroat trout.

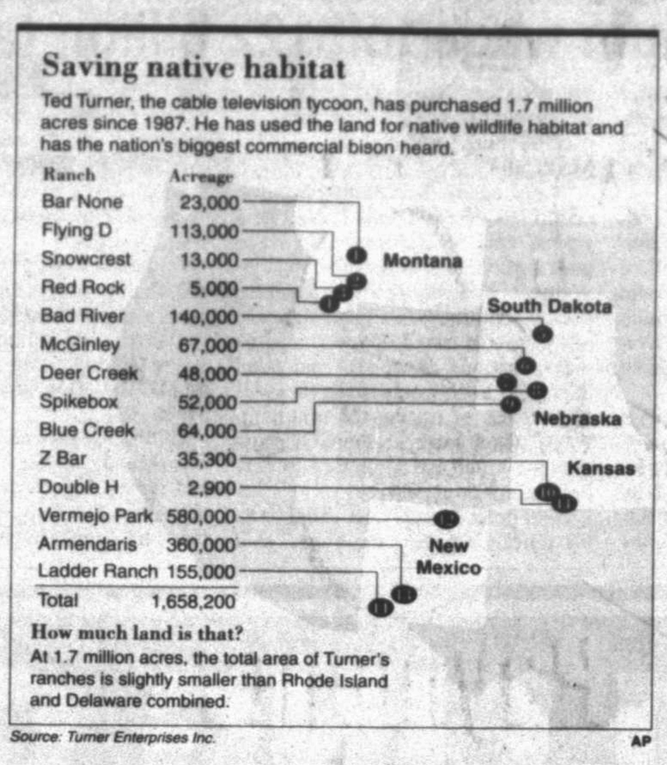

Similar projects are under way on other Turner holdings: restoring West Slope cutthroat trout at the Flying D ranch in Montana; reintroducing the blowout penstemon, an endangered plant, in Nebraska; restoring the red-cockaded woodpecker at the Turner plantation in northern Florida; returning desert bighorn sheep to the Fra Cristobal Mountains at the Armendaris Ranch in New Mexico; and raising endangered Mexican wolves on the Ladder Ranch in New Mexico.

"Mr. Turner recognizes that he is one of the few people with the assets and interest in finding large blocs of relatively pristine pieces of private property with the goal of protecting, enhancing and restoring those back to their ecological integrity," says David Vackar, general manager of Vermejo.

At the same time, Turner isn't averse to making a profit from his properties.

Vermejo is open to the paying public for luxury hunting and fishing — up to $12,000 for a guide and a weeklong chance to stalk trophy elk.

And Turner's buffalo offer a potential way to make money from health-conscious consumers wanting a leaner alternative to beef. Turner has the biggest commercial herd in the United States, with about 20,000 scattered among his ranches.

Campaign 2000: The thrill is gone from presidential race

By Calvin Woodward
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Ho hum. From watching "evil" being shot out of the sky, it's back to swatting flies.

With John "Luke Skywalker" McCain grounded, the sizzle seems gone from the presidential race. The spectacle of Republicans and Democrats eating their own is over. The record-busting voter turnouts are history.

"Nobody cares," said election judge Clayton Hurst in Salt Lake City. He watched GOP primary voters trickle in at a pace of one every 20 minutes Friday as people in three Western states filed in light numbers to polling booths or caucuses. Hurst brought a book to kill time.

Melia Hadley, 29, an independent from Salt Lake City, looked over the ballot and decided not to vote. "I was thrilled with McCain," she said. "He lit the fire in my belly about politics again."

Republican Gov. George W. Bush and Democratic Vice President Al Gore haven't been lighting many fires like that.

How quickly it all changed: from "Star Wars" imagery and movie theater-type lineups to "My Dinner with Andre," — two guys talking, and please pass the wine.

McCain's insurgent Republican candidacy brought hordes of previously apathetic citizens out to do what so many had never done before — vote for a Republican, or vote at all. He mobilized the people who liked him and those who wanted to stop him in his tracks.

Fascinating, lifelong Democrat Tom Gregg of Kansas City, Mo., concluded on Super Tuesday. "The whole thing between Bush and McCain is fascinating."

Now, the whole thing between two leaden candidates is somniferous.

At one downtown Salt Lake City precinct, eight voters showed up in six hours.

Still, officials tending the two-party primaries Friday in Utah and Colorado, as well as GOP caucuses and a straw poll in Wyoming, put on a brave face.

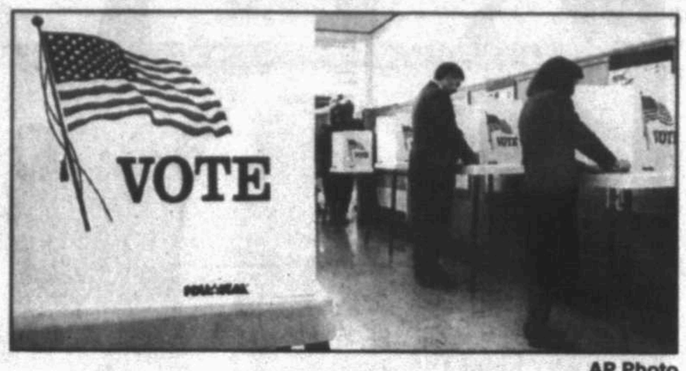

"It'll be worth as much as it was last time," offered Brian Lovett, chairman of Laramie County Republicans in Wyoming. "Alan Keyes hasn't dropped out yet."

In Utah, election judge Dixie Sloan said turnout was "very poor" — perhaps 10 percent of normal in the early going.

"The voice of the West will be heard," Utah Gov. Mike Leavitt, a backer of Texas Gov. George W. Bush, said optimistically as he cast his ballot, leaving it unclear who's listening.

In Colorado, officials hoped they could exceed the 10 percent turnout registered in 1996, but knew it would be a struggle.

Although Bill Bradley stirred up some excitement of his own in taking on fellow Democrat Al Gore, an analysis of voter participation credits McCain with getting Americans out to vote in large numbers.

AP Photo
Utah Gov. Michael Leavitt and his wife, Jacalyn, have their choice of booths as they cast their Western Primary vote for president Friday in Salt Lake City.

Gans' study found Republican turnout hit record highs in 13 of 18 states that voted through Super Tuesday while Democratic turnout was the second lowest in 40 years.

Some Catholics consume meat on St. Patrick's Day

BOSTON (AP) — Some Irish Catholics may have a beef with the church on St. Patrick's Day.

This year, the March 17 holiday falls on a Friday in Lent, the period when Roman Catholics are encouraged to abstain from eating meat as an act of penance and a reminder of the sacrifices of Jesus Christ.

Many Catholic bishops, including Boston's and New York's, are giving dispensation to parishioners who want to partake of the traditional Irish-American meal of corned beef and cabbage.

But some bishops are refusing to let their congregations off the hook. In Fall River, Mass., for example, Bishop Sean O'Malley has not issued a dispensation. As a result, Catholics with a hankering for corned beef on March 17 may be heading for nearby Boston.

An easing of the rules is not uncommon, particularly in dioceses where the Irish have a prominent role, said David Early, a spokesman for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

But even without a dispensation, there is an out for Irish Catholics who don't want to ignore the rules but feel a craving for corned beef: They can travel to another diocese where the meal is deemed OK.

"The application of a dispensation applies to the geographical region you happen to be in, not to you as a person," Early said.

Jerry Burke, owner of Doyle's Cafe, an Irish pub in Boston's Jamaica Plain neighborhood, expects to sell thousands of pounds of corned beef and cabbage next Friday.

"Corned beef and cabbage is a mainstay of our menu," Burke said. "And people are going to do it anyway."

New York's Cardinal John O'Connor — whom O'Malley is rumored to be a candidate to succeed — has granted the dispensation. But Bishop James T. McHugh of the nearby Diocese of Rockville Centre, N.Y., and Bishop Thomas Dailey of Brooklyn, N.Y., will not.

Police: Firefighter claims involvement in fatal shootings

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A firefighter confessed to killing his new wife, setting her home on fire and ambushing two firefighters and a sheriff's deputy called to the scene, authorities said Friday.

Fredrick Williams, 41, was charged with murder, attempted murder and arson in Wednesday's spree. He was under guard at a hospital, where he was in stable condition Friday from gunshot wounds.

"We have a statement of admission from Fredrick Williams that he committed these acts of his own hand," Police Director Walter Crews said at a news conference.

Crews wouldn't comment on the motive but detailed the sequence of the spree.

He said it began when Williams' wife of three weeks, Stacey Williams, arrived home from her letter carrier job and was killed in the kitchen with a 12-gauge shotgun. Williams then set fire to a back bedroom, Crews said.

About 10 minutes later, Deputy Rupert Peete, who was on his way to a theft call, was flagged down by a passer-by reporting a fire and an armed man. Williams allegedly came out of the house and fired a shot through Peete's windshield, hitting the deputy in the head.

A minute later, the first fire truck arrived. The firemen apparently could not see Peete's wrecked squad car and did not know he had been shot.

Marino will announce retirement

By Steven Wine
AP Sports Writer

DAVIE, Fla. — Dan Marino decided 420 touchdown passes are enough.

The most prolific passer in NFL history will announce his retirement Monday, ending a 17-year career with the Miami Dolphins, a source close to Marino said Friday, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Marino, 38, badly wanted to go out like John Elway and retire as a Super Bowl champion. But after parting ways with the Dolphins, Marino reluctantly rejected an offer to play this year for the Minnesota Vikings.

Minnesota coach Dennis Green, in Tampa for a meeting of the NFL competition committee, said Marino called him Friday.

"He informed me that he plans to announce his retirement, and I wished him the best of luck," Green said. "I still think he has the ability to play, but he made the decision based on what he thought was right, and I respect him for that."

Friends said Marino turned the deal down because of his bad knees, his loyalty to the Dolphins and his unwillingness to be separated from his wife and five children for an extended time.

The Dolphins confirmed a news conference for Marino is scheduled Monday. They declined further comment.

Marino, who hasn't spoken publicly in nearly three weeks, played golf Friday in a private charity event held by Greg Norman in Hobe Sound, Fla. Word of his decision to retire spread Thursday night while Marino was attending a Bruce Springsteen concert with his possible successor, Dolphins quarterback Damon Huard.

"To think that No. 13 won't be in that uniform, it's a sad day," said Miami sportscaster Joe Rose, who caught Marino's first touchdown pass in 1983. "I'm guilty like everybody else of thinking, 'One

The sign held by a fan at the Miami Dolphins' last game of the 1999 season, a playoff loss to Jacksonville, was apparently appropriate. Miami quarterback Dan Marino (13) is expected to announce his retirement on Monday.

MHS long jumper, Rebel throwers take top spots in field events as West Texas Relays get started

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — Seeing a bunch of Rebel heavyweights dominate at a place called Ratliff shouldn't be surprising. Frankly, they got quite used to it.

But Friday was not about football but track, so when Midland Lee's Steve Subia and Justin Painter finished 1-2 in the Class 5A division of the boys shot put, it left Lee's coaches thrilled and left a couple Rebel big boys in a position they know all too well – on top.

The two Rebels along with Midland High long jumper Tara Burns highlighted the Tall City effort at the first day of the West Texas Relays. Burns, a sophomore, moved her winning streak to three in the long jump, an event that she ranks with the best in the state.

"She will just keep getting better," MHS girls track coach Susan Nix said. "She is a self-motivator."

Friday, Burns jumped 17 feet, 9 1/4 inches, which was shorter than her best this season (18-4 3/4) but more than three inches better than Jackie Ike of El Paso Hanks. It also kept her undefeated this season in her best event.

"It is real important for me to be undefeated," said Burns, who will be one of the favorites today in the triple jump and 400 meters. "It feels weird. I am one of the youngest jumpers (she is 15). I thought there would be people older than me who could jump farther."

For Subia and Painter, age is not much of a problem — both are seniors — and neither is size. Subia is 6-4 and a lean 326 — he has shed some 15 pounds since football. Painter is 6-2, 264. The size came in handy.

Subia distanced himself from the field early and recorded a best mark of 56-8 to win the event by almost four feet. Subia has not lost this season.

High winds hit baseball tournament

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

Mother Nature put a premature end to the second day of the West Texas March Classic at Christensen Stadium Friday night.

In a semifinal game which would determine who would participate in tonight's championship game at 7 p.m., defending tournament champion Seminole and Colorado City were literally blown away, as high winds and dust led officials to suspend the game in the top of the third inning. It will be continued today at 9 a.m.

In the consolation bracket, host Greenwood beat Kermit in what looked like a District 4-3A football score, 27-9. That victory puts the Rangers in today's consolation bracket championship game against Monahans, another 4-3A school, at 2 p.m. at Christensen.

Greenwood's victory couldn't have been a more stark contrast to its debacle the day before against Colorado City, when it suffered a 12-1 five-inning run rule thumping. This time it was the Rangers who were doing the damage, as they twice exploded for 12 run innings in rolling to a run rule win.

"After you coach for awhile you get to see some of these games," said Greenwood coach Tony Pallanez of the highs and lows of run rule baseball. "You learn not to get too excited. This was a real positive game for us because we needed this."

The Rangers (3-6-1) seemed to take out all of their frustration from the previous day in the first inning against helpless Kermit. The first eight Greenwood hitters reached base against Kermit starter Adrian Gonzalez, who didn't retire a single batter.

Jackalopes earn impressive win vs. New Mexico

By Stewart Doreen

ODESSA — The Western Professional Hockey League playoffs might not be scheduled to start for a few weeks, but for the Odessa Jackalopes, the time to find that playoff form has come.

Don McKee's club needs wins and needs wins now to make the playoffs later this month, and Friday night against the WPHL western division leaders, the Jackalopes showed that playoff form with a 3-2 win over the New Mexico Scorpions before 2,712 at the Jack Shack.

If the playoffs started today, the Jacks would be in, but barely. Going into Friday night's game, the Jacks were tied with Arkansas for the last two wild-card spots. Both teams lead Fort Worth. Friday night, Odessa and Arkansas both won, while Fort

Blue-collar approach by Brooks, Whitaker sends Chaps to Hutch

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

Midland College sophomore guards Alvin Brooks and Armon Whitaker typify what this year's Chaparral basketball team is all about. They both work hard, want to do whatever it takes to help the team win, and don't care who gets the accolades.

Brooks and Whitaker are the blue-collar players for the No. 13 Chaparrals, who start NJCAA National Tournament play at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday against Champlain College in Hutchinson, Kan.

"I'm really excited. I never really experienced anything like this," said Brooks about the national tournament. "I enjoyed this season a lot. We went through some hard times last year and I think this year I came closer together with these guys."

Whitaker said, "It seems like everything's been going our way. It's taken a lot pressure off us by winning all these games and winning the regional championship. We're just all excited that it's finally happening for us."

Brooks and Whitaker are two of the five returning sophomores on this team, who set their minds on improving last year's 17-14 record and first-round regional playoff exit to the hands of Weatherford.

Both players, even though they may not always get the headlines, have been a critical part of this year's team. They have done so by taking their game to a whole new level.

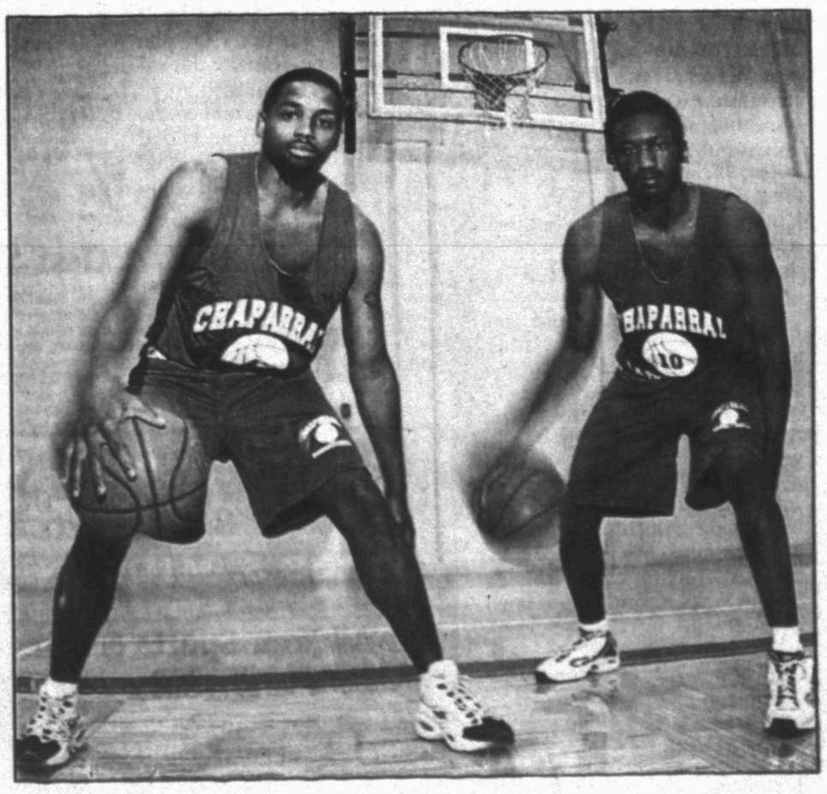

"When we lost last year, that took a lot out of us," Whitaker said. "When we played Weatherford (a 57-51 win the Region V semifinals) again this year, it was almost like a revenge game. By struggling last year, it helped us to gel and play better this year."

Brooks is a player who's been lighting it up from 3-point land this year. His 67 3-pointers made on 41.7 percent shooting is second on the team to Eugene Costello.

In the Region V championship game against Hill College, Brooks nailed five of 10 shots to help the team establish a single-game record for 3-pointers made with 13 and secure an 84-74 win. Brooks said he made it a goal before the season started to improve on his shooting.

"I knew I had to help the team this year as far as shooting the ball, handling the ball and helping to take pressure off

Where: Lee Soccer Field.
Records: Lee is 6-4 in District 4-5A and 12-5 overall; OHS is 2-8 and 4-14.
Last time: The Lady Rebels whipped OHS, 5-0, on Feb. 15 in Odessa.
4-5A Significance: This game will be significant if OHS upsets Lee. While that's unlikely, Tuesday's games showed it's not impossible, as all three district games were upsets. With two games left in the regular season, Lee (6-4) is in a battle with San Angelo Central (7-3) and Abilene High (5-5), while Odessa Permian (9-1) needs one more win to clinch the district title.
Notes: Lee is coming off a 3-1 upset loss at Abilene Cooper on Tuesday. OHS was off Tuesday, missing a chance to get in on the upsets.
Next: Lee closes the regular season at San Angelo Central, starting at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Midland High vs. Odessa Permian

When: 2 p.m.
Where: Ratliff Soccer Complex, Odessa.
Records: MHS is 4-7 in District 4-5A and 10-10 overall; Permian is 9-1 and 17-3.
Last time: Permian escaped with a 2-1 win on Feb. 15 in Midland.
4-5A Significance: By falling 2-1 to San Angelo Central on Tuesday, Permian missed its chance at a rare 12-0 run through the district, but the Lady Panthers can still clinch the district title with one more win. That won't be easy against Midland High, which is out of the playoff race but owns two straight wins against playoff contenders, including Tuesday's 2-0 win over Abilene High.
Next: The Lady Bulldogs are finished, as MHS has the open spot in the 4-5A schedule on Tuesday.

Boys

Midland High vs. Odessa Permian

When: 2 p.m.
Where: New Midland High Soccer Field.
Records: MHS is 7-4 in District 4-5A and 14-5 overall; Permian is 8-2 and 16-4.
Last time: Permian edged MHS, 3-2, on Feb. 15 in Odessa.
4-5A Significance: Permian needs one more win to clinch a playoff spot, while Midland High may need to win to keep its playoff hopes up. MHS completes the regular season with this game, because MHS has the open spot in the 4-5A schedule on Tuesday. Midland Lee could very well win its last two games (at Odessa High today and vs. San Angelo Central on Tuesday), and would pass right by MHS in the standings if MHS loses today. If MHS wins, Lee would need two wins to tie MHS for third place, possibly setting up a cross-town district playoff.

Midland Lee vs. Odessa High

When: 2 p.m.
Where: Ratliff Soccer Complex, Odessa.
Records: Lee is 6-4 in District 4-5A and 9-6-1 overall; OHS is 1-9 and 6-12.
Last time: The Rebels destroyed OHS, 8-0, on Feb. 15 in Midland.
4-5A Significance: There is none of OHS, but there is plenty for Lee (see the 4-5A Significance for the MHS-Permian boys' game).
Next: Lee finishes the regular season by hosting San Angelo Central at 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

LOCAL SOFTBALL TODAY

Midland High vs. San Angelo Central

Where: at San Angelo...
When: Game time is 2 p.m...
Records: Midland High is 10-5 for the season and 2-1 in District 4-5A play while San Angelo Central is 10-4 overall and 0-2 in league play...
4-5A Significance: Midland High can take over sole possession of second place in the 4-5A race with a victory. Abilene High (2-0) is at Odessa High. Should AHS fall to the Lady Bronchos, OHS and MHS would share first place. Central needs a win to stay in the playoff hunt....
Notes: The Lady Bulldogs have won two consecutive 4-5A games since losing their opener, 1-0, to Midland Lee behind pitcher Collin Lange. Lee, however, has since lost to Abilene High and is idle today from district play while playing in the Cowtown tournament in Fort Worth, so the Lady Rebels could actually lose ground by being absent from the 4-5A wars... Shortstop Kristi Heard has eight RBIs in the last two games... MHS had 19 hits in a 21-3 victory over Abilene Cooper on Tuesday and the 21 runs is a school record in district play... Kim Combs, Tiffany Robinson, Crystal Martinez and Amanda Martin each drove in two runs against Cooper... Seven of the nine Lady Bulldog batters had more than one hit against Cooper. Only senior Kristin Harris failed to get a hit...
Next: MHS will travel to Abilene High at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in another District 4-5A outing... This game could possibly be for the district lead, depending on how games turn out today...

JACKS: Odessa wins

(From 1B)

Worth lost, meaning there is now a five point difference.

So, the victory over the Scorpions, who don't lose often as evidenced by their 45-15-3 record, was absolutely huge.

Don McKee, however, says the work is not over. Going into Friday, McKee thought his team needed to win seven games to make the playoffs.

"We got one of the seven," McKee said. "We got New Mexico three times in the last 10 games, so it will be tough."

Tonight, the Jacks play Corpus Christi, a team just three points ahead of them in the wild-card race. Sunday, the Jacks finish a three-games-in-three-days series when they travel to New Mexico.

Again, it can not be overstated how big of a win Friday night's was for Odessa, 28-26-7 and 23-12-6 under McKee. The Jacks had not defeated the Scorpions this season, posting an 0-5-2 record.

The Jacks were also playing their first game without Paul Vincent. Thursday, Vincent was called up to Kansas City of the International Hockey League.

Those two factors did not stop the Jacks from succeeding on the power play. Odessa scored two power-play goals in the first quarter, one by Derek Laxdal and the other by Mark Smith.

It also did not stop the Jacks withstanding a little Scorpion pressure. Up 2-1 in the third period, Laxdal again came up huge for the Jacks, scoring his second goal of the night. The goal, assisted by John Bossio, gave Odessa a 3-1 with less than six minutes to play.

New Mexico scored its second goal almost three minutes later, but the Jacks got the win.

"This was a confidence builder," McKee said. "One of our most proficient guys was not in the lineup.

"Still our power play was good (Odessa was 2 of 8), and our penalty killing was tough (New Mexico was 1 of 7)."

Somebody Send Flowers: New Mexico coach Tony Martino didn't make the trip to Odessa. It was reported that Martino was suffering stomach pains.

Jack Slaps: Michael Tornquist tied Billy Pye for the Jacks' franchise record for most wins by a goaltender in a season (20)... The Jacks are 13-4 in their last 17 games at home... Laxdal, Bossio and Smith were the three stars of the game... Bossio owns the franchise mark for scoring in a season... Of the last nine games on the Jacks' schedule, five games involve teams who would make the playoffs if the season ended today... If the season ended today, the Jacks would play Lubbock in the first round of the postseason...

Bulldog batters rout Plainview

Staff Report

LUBBOCK — Even with conditions working against it, the beat went on for the Midland High baseball team Friday.

Continuing to live up to their No. 5 state ranking, the Bulldogs again wielded the heavy offensive artillery against another overmatched foe, scoring their second run rule victory of the Cal Segrist Tournament by routing Plainview 19-6 to conclude pool play.

Midland High (13-1) has won 13 in a row since losing its season opener, mainly by mauling opponents at the plate. But the Bulldogs had to contend with wind blowing in against Plainview and still had 12 hits in five innings.

The Bulldogs fell behind 2-0 after the first inning, but did all their damage in two innings, scoring nine runs in the second and 10 in the fourth.

"What was impressive is that it seems we have trouble when the wind is blowing in, and people expect that of us because they think all we do is hit home runs," said MHS coach Barry Russell, whose team has knocked 20 out of the yard this season, but had none against Plainview. "We made some adjustments and hit the ball on the ground and got a few errors and we also hit some line drives."

Jason South and Jayson Nix each had two hits and drove in four runs for MHS. Cotey-Joe Cswaykus had two hits, drove in two runs and scored three, Jeff Brock had two hits, drove in two and scored twice and Matt Bose drove in two runs.

Bose pitched three innings to pick up the win.

Midland High won its pool and will play Lubbock Coronado in a semifinal game today at 10 a.m.

Klein Forest rips Duncanville by 30

By Jim Vertuno

AUSTIN — It was the marquee matchup more suitable for the Marquis de Sade than Texas basketball fans. And for Duncanville, it was downright painful.

Jason Klotz scored 17 points and got the better of his future University of Texas teammate Brian Boddicker as Klein Forest routed defending state champion Duncanville 59-29 Friday night in the Class 5A semifinals.

Klein Forest (32-4) advances to Saturday's final against Sugar Land Willowridge (35-1), a 69-55 semifinal winner over San Antonio Taft. Duncanville finished at 32-6.

The Klein Forest-Duncanville game was billed as one of the state tournament's premiere matchups with Klotz, a 6-foot-10 center, banging under the basket with Boddicker, Duncanville's 6-9 All-American power forward and most valuable player of the 1999 state championship game.

And it fizzled right from the start.

Duncanville missed dozens of open looks on its way to an abysmal 11-of-59 (19 percent) shooting night. It was by far the Panthers' fewest points scored this season. Their previous low was 42 in a victory early in the season over Santa Rita, Ariz.

Duncanville was horrid from the start, missing 26 of its first 31 shots. Boddicker converted his first layup attempt over Klotz but missed his next seven shots as several close looks bounced around the rim.

His teammates weren't any better. Trailing 19-11 after the first quarter, Duncanville missed its next 13 shots before Chris Brown broke the drought with a baseline jumper for Duncanville's only two points of the second quarter.

Klotz, meanwhile, was most efficient. Guarded by Boddicker on almost every possession, Klotz hit four of his first five attempts, including a 16-footer when he stepped out just beyond the foul line.

Elter Evans hit a 3-pointer and Klotz' putback made it 28-13 Forest Klein at the half.

Klotz scored five more in the fourth and extended the lead to 33-13 with a short jumper over Boddicker, who became more frustrated as the game played on. Boddicker, who scored 52 points in leading Duncanville to the state title last year, clapped his hands in disgust when he picked up his fourth foul late in the third quarter.

Klotz was 8-of-11 from the floor. Boddicker was 2-of-11 for 10 points, most of them coming on 6-of-8 foul shooting.

"I could see he was frustrated," Klotz said. "He's awesome. It was fun picking up bragging rights."

With Boddicker on the bench, Klotz threw down a a two-handed dunk for a 41-23 lead before Tyrone Moye's 3-pointer gave Klein Forest a 21-point cushion going in the fourth and all but ended the game.

"I hate to have my career end like that," Boddicker said. "They shut us down from what I was after."

U. Frank Williams Jr./Reporter-Telegram

Midland Lee's Steve Subia grimaces as he prepares to put the shot Friday at the West Texas Relays at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa. Subia won the event with a throw of 56 feet, 8 inches, beating teammate Justin Painter, who took second place.

RELAYS: Subia wins by four feet

(From 1B)

"Even though I improved (his personal best) by eight inches, that is a long way," Subia said. "A 12-pound ball is pretty heavy."

Subia had it easy compared to Painter, who had a little work to do on his final throw to get his silver.

"It was a big deal to get second," Painter said. "I had to move up two inches to get into second place. I had to do what I had to do."

That was to compete, and he did that, heaving the shot 52-9 to beat Shane Massick of Amarillo High by 2 1/2 inches. Painter bettered his previous best set last week by 18 inches.

"Justin threw it 52-9 and got him on the last throw. That is what I wanted to see," Ratliff said. "I hope they (Subia and Painter) continue it. That is the only way we will be able to survive."

What makes the shot putters' accomplishments more remarkable is that the runners and jumpers, not the throwers, have paved the way for past Lee track teams. That is not the case so far this year. This is the third straight meet that the two have finished 1-2.

Also on Friday, junior Jacob Gasch (6-0, 280) claimed fifth in the shot. All totaled, Subia has won all three times. Today, Painter goes after a title in the discus.

Either way, they are looking for more gold and hoping to bring more attention to the weight events.

"In football, no one notices the lineman, but we just do our job," Subia said. "It is the same here. Out here no one notices us. Look how far we are from the stadium. We just do our job. Eventually, someone will notice."

"They will recognize us," Painter added.

Other first day medals: Midland High's Jaime Mauldin tied for second in the girls high jump... Bulldog Randy Gardner added a third in the 5A high jump, with a jump of 6-4... A pair of Lee tracksters, T.J. Glover and Audra Hocutt, took third in their respective long jump events. Glover, a favorite to take today's triple jump, went 21-4 1/2. Hocutt, a sophomore, went 16-10 1/2.

Greenwood Gets Two Medals: Greenwood brought in a pair of medals in the field events as Barry Compton took second in the 3A shot put and Nathan Himbury placed third in the discus. Wylie's Brett Unger won both events.

Williams Doubles: Permian's Roy Williams added to his list of athletic accomplishments with two West Texas Relays gold medals. Williams, competing in his first high jump competition since the ninth grade, leaped 6-8. He did this without a mark to help him keep track of his steps.

"I act like it is a basketball goal and run and jump," Williams said.

He later won the long jump event with a best jump of 22-5 1/2.

Meet Notes: The second and final day of the Relays gets started at 10:30 a.m. with the 5A triple jump. Other field events will follow throughout the day. The running events get underway at 11:45 a.m. with the 3200 meters. The 400 relay will begin at 1 p.m. All events will be finals...

Standings: Leading the teams standings after the first day are a couple Odessa teams. The Permian boys lead Lee 29-26 in the Division 5A boys race. In the girls race, Odessa High has a quarter of a point lead over Midland High (20 to 19 3/4). El Paso Hanks is third with 18. Ruidoso (N.M.) leads the Division 4A boys, and the Wylie boys have a commanding lead in Division 3A.

McGwire hits first homer of spring

Associated Press

Mark McGwire, playing his ninth game of the spring, finally hit his first home run.

McGwire, who has hit 135 the last two seasons, connected in the sixth inning Friday off Ugueth Urbina as the St. Louis Cardinals lost to a Montreal Expos' split squad 5-3 in Jupiter, Fla.

His towering drive to left was his first homer in 14 spring at-bats.

"The ball was up in the air and the wind blew it out," McGwire said. "That's the only way you can explain it."

McGwire also had an RBI double off the center-field wall in the third off Hideki Irabu. He's 5-for-14 with four RBIs, but has rarely gotten the ball in the air. Not that he's worried about that, either.

"I know when I have to be ready; I've done this too long," he said. "These are questions you should ask a rookie."

In Tampa, Fla., George Steinbrenner finally saw his New York Yankees win.

Roger Clemens allowed one run in four innings, and Paul O'Neill and Tino Martinez hit first-inning homers as the Yankees beat the Philadelphia Phillies 6-2 in a spilt-squad game.

"Hopefully it's starting to come together," Yankees manager Joe Torre said.

Steinbrenner had watched all seven Yankees' losses this spring, and had missed the their only other win, Wednesday over Boston in Fort Myers.

O'Neill hit a solo homer and Martinez added a two-run shot off Randy Wolf as New York took a 3-0 lead.

In Kissimmee, Fla., Bobby Bonilla connected against his former team, a two-run triple off Grant Roberts in the ninth inning of the Atlanta Braves' 7-2 loss to a Mets' split squad.

New York released Bonilla during the offseason after a controversial 1999 season in which he confronted manager Bobby Valentine, then reportedly played cards in the clubhouse as the Mets played the final innings of Game 6 of the NL championship series at Atlanta.

Astros 7, Dodgers 4

At Kissimmee, Fla., Gary Sheffield hit a first-inning home run off his uncle, Dwight Gooden. Matt Mieske hit a three-run double off Terry Adams in a five-run seventh as the Astros improved to 7-1, the best spring training record in the majors. The Dodgers have the worst mark at 1-9.

Mets (ss) 7, Expos (ss) 2

At Port St. Lucie, Fla., Bobby J. Jones gave up one hit in four innings, four days after he lasted just nine batters against the Expos, allowing seven earned runs and six hits.

Phillies (ss) 12, Pirates 8

At Bradenton, Fla., Scott Rolen and Pat Burrell each homered, had three hits and drove in three runs.

Tigers 12 Royals 9

At Lakeland, Fla., Damion Easley hit a three-run homer and finished with four RBIs. Easley and Juan Encarnacion both homered in a six-run second, helping the Tigers open an 8-1 lead. Kansas City made five errors.

Rangers 9, Blue Jays 5

At Port Charlotte, Fla., former Blue Jay Tom Evans hit a grand slam in a five-run second inning. Toronto starter Nerio Rodriguez was tagged for five runs and four hits in two innings.

Orioles 2, Marlins 1

At Viera, Fla., Cal Ripken went 1-for-4 in his return to Baltimore's lineup after missing a game. Ripken, who sustained the injury in batting practice Thursday, singled in his first at-bat, hit two long flyouts and made a diving stop of a Mark Smith grounder in the eighth.

Twins 5, Red Sox 2

At Fort Myers, Marcus Jensen and David Ortiz hit consecutive home runs in the fourth. Boston manager Jimy Williams was ejected after arguing Jensen's drive was foul.

Yankees (ss) 5, Reds 4

At Sarasota, Fla., Dmitri Young dropped Felix Jose's eighth-inning fly ball, allowing Bernie Williams to score from second with the go-ahead run. Ken Griffey Jr. went 0-for-3 with a strikeout.

Giants 12, Brewers 8

At Scottsdale, Ariz., Jay Canizaro homered twice and drove in four runs. Marvin Benard and Ramon Martinez also homered for the Giants.

Diamondbacks 7, White Sox 6

At Tucson, Ariz., Hanley Frias drove in two runs with a two-out double down the left-field line in the ninth.

Padres (ss) 4, Angels (ss) 3

At Peoria, Ariz., John Roskos hit a tiebreaking two-run double in the seventh inning and then scored on Ryan Radmanovich's double.

Angels (ss) 9, Padres (ss) 5

At Tempe, Ariz., Troy Percival made his first appearance since shoulder surgery Oct. 21, starting and throwing just eight pitches while working a perfect inning.

Rockies 8, Mariners 0

At Tucson, Ariz., Pedro Astacio shrugged off his legal troubles and threw four scoreless innings. Astacio, facing deportation to the Dominican Republic because of a guilty plea in January in a domestic-violence case, was allowed to change his plea to not guilty on Wednesday, and he is scheduled to stand trial in July.

Athletics 13, Cubs 5

At Mesa, Ariz., Terrence Long homered and drove in five runs and Ariel Prieto won in his first start in nearly two years for Oakland.

CHAPS: Brooks displays shooting range the point guard," said Brooks, the 6-foot-2 guard from Houston.

"I probably could've shot the a ball better (at the Region V tournament). I missed some free throws that I should've made. We'll see how it goes in Hutchinson."

Brooks, though, doesn't want to be considered just as a "3-point shooter."

"Everyone says (shooting 3-pointers) is my specialty," Brooks said. "I shoot a lot of medium-range shots that also get the job done."

Part of the sophomore's improvement has come from having his father, Alvin Brooks II, closer to Midland. Brooks II just completed his first year as an assistant coach for the Texas Tech men's basketball team.

"He's helped me out a lot," said the younger Brooks about his father's influence. "Earlier in the year I had my head down because I wasn't really playing like the way I wanted too. I've talked to him every day. He's like the counselor that I need off the court. He helps me with more than just basketball, he helps me with life.

"Having him closer helps out a lot because he came to a lot of my games this year and I got a chance to talk to him after the games about the things I needed to work on."

Whitaker is the Chaps' ultimate "blue collar worker." The 5-11 guard from New Orleans is the ball handler, the floor leader and the assist guy.

"I'm not the scorer or the fantasy player," said Whitaker, the team's co-leader in assists along with Quannas White at 3.1 per game. "I'm just a player who gets the job done and lets everybody else score. If I get the team going and let Gene (Costello), Al (Brooks) and Teohn (Conner) do their thing, we'll be good."

Both Brooks and Whitaker feel confident about their chances in the tournament.

"I can't picture us losing," Brooks said. "We have a great chance if we go up there and play like we're capable of playing."

"I love our chances," Whitaker added. "With us practicing hard and doing what (head coach Junsie Cotten) tells us, I feel we're going to be a team that could win this thing."

Cowboys take on Underwood project

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys, no strangers to dealing with players fighting off-field demons, may have taken on their biggest challenge yet: Dimitrius Underwood.

In signing a two-year contract Friday, Underwood joined his third team in less than a year, continuing an NFL odyssey that has included a missing-persons episode, a suicide attempt and an attempted escape from a mental care center.

"After looking at everything, Dallas just looked like the right place for Dimitrius. It was a really good opportunity," said Robert Huebner, Underwood's agent.

The Cowboys seem to be an unlikely match considering owner Jerry Jones' stated desire to avoid players with troubled reputations. That was why he didn't draft Randy Moss two years ago.

But Jones is hopeful the team's player programs department can help Underwood revive his career. His hope is grounded in the case of Alonzo Spellman, who had a solid 1999 season in Dallas after mental problems knocked him out of the NFL for more than a year.

"We have the opportunity to give this young man a chance, and all of our research points to the conclusion that he is deserving of that chance," Jones said in a statement.

"From a big-picture perspective, we have made a long-term commitment — in terms of resources and personnel — to put the organization in a position to explore a situation such as this. We have a support system in place that is showing positive results. Of course, every situation is different, and there are always unique challenges involved."

Terms were not released, but it was likely for the minimum. That's what Spellman got and now he has the chance to cash in on his successful rehabilitation through free agency.

Spellman was older and more established as a player when his career was jeopardized. Underwood turns 22 in a few weeks and hasn't played football since 1997, his junior year at Michigan State.

Huebner was asked if the Cowboys' signing of Spellman was a factor.

"It is common knowledge that he succeeded there. That part is something we took into consideration," Huebner said.

The agent said he spoke to other teams on Underwood's behalf, but focused on the Cowboys.

Asked if Underwood can be ready by opening day, Huebner said, "That is our intent.

"Dimitrius is coming to Dallas with the expectation to fulfill an opportunity to play there."

The 6-foot-6, 280-pound defensive end was hurt his senior year, but showed enough potential for Minnesota to draft him 29th overall last summer.

He left camp a day after signing a five-year, $5.03 million contract and was missing for several days. His departure sacrificed a $1.75 million signing bonus.

The Vikings put him on waivers because he said he wasn't interested in football; instead, he was torn between a desire to pursue the ministry and the need to support his children.

But when the Miami Dolphins claimed him on waivers, he decided to give it another go, only to hurt his shoulder in his first exhibition game.

Three weeks later, Underwood was found bleeding from the neck on a street in Lansing, Mich. Police said he used two steak knives to cut his throat at the home of his girlfriend and their young twins. He then spent two months in protective care.

In December, Underwood committed himself to a mental health center, then jumped a fence hours later and fled, police said. The Dolphins released him the next week.

Spellman went through several bizarre incidents, too, that were attributed to bipolar disorder. Doctors have said Underwood suffers manic depression.

Former Cowboys running back Calvin Hill, who oversees the players program department, said counselors work with players before they enter the organization, indicating Underwood already has met with them.

"We will utilize the support systems that we already have in place, and then make whatever adjustments are necessary to meet the specific needs of Dimitrius," said Hill, father of NBA star Grant Hill. "We have every expectation that Dimitrius will become a productive member of the Cowboys family."

Underwood's potential makes him such a desirable risk.

As a junior, he was honorable mention all-Big 10 after making eight sacks and 57 tackles. He had five sacks and 37 tackles as a sophomore.

He missed the 1998 season with a sprained right ankle, then opted to enter the draft rather than return to school.

"If Dimitrius is able to work hard and make the most of this opportunity — both on and off the field — then we have a win-win situation for all the parties involved," coach Dave Campo said.

MARINO: Quarterback turns down Vikes' offer

(From 1B)

more year, one more year.' You don't want the magic to stop."

Receiver Lamar Thomas said the Dolphins will miss Marino.

"We all look up to him," Thomas said. "I'm kind of shocked. I was hoping he'd play another year. It sent chills up my spine playing with him, he's such a competitor."

Marino's place in history will be the subject of endless debates. Some of his records could last for decades, including NFL career marks for touchdowns, yardage (61,361) and completions (4,967).

Yet Marino never won a Super Bowl. So where does he rank among quarterbacks?

"He should be No. 1, because he's got all the passing records," said Don Shula, his coach for 13 years. "Sure he would have loved to have gone out with a Super Bowl ring similar to Elway. That didn't happen. But you still look at a 17-year career, and he's done things no other quarterbacks have done."

Marino's relationship with the Dolphins soured in his final season. He was the target of unprecedented criticism from coach Jimmy Johnson, and they feuded as the team faded.

Marino played poorly in a 62-7 playoff loss at Jacksonville, the most lopsided defeat in franchise history. Johnson retired the next day, and new coach Dave Wannstedt repeatedly ducked questions about whether he wanted Marino back.

Marino voided his contract in February and became a free agent. When the Dolphins signed free agent quarterback Jay Fiedler to a three-year, $3.8 million deal, it was apparent Marino had played his last game in Miami.

Friends say Marino simmered about the way he was treated at the end, but he declined to complain in public.

"I've been a Dolphin for 17 years, and I'll be a Dolphin for the rest of my life," he said in February. "That will never change."

Marino was the last active member of the quarterback class of 1983, which also included Elway, Jim Kelly, Ken O'Brien, Todd Blackledge and Tony Eason. All were drafted before Shula took Marino with the 27th pick in the first round.

In 1984, his second season, the brash young quarterback threw for 5,084 yards and 48 touchdowns, league records that still stand. But that season ended in disappointment as Miami lost to San Francisco 38-16 in the Super Bowl.

In a TV commercial taped later, Marino took a soda from 49ers quarterback Joe Montana.

"Next time, I buy," Marino said. He spent the next 15 years trying unsuccessfully to return to the title game.

Injuries took a toll in recent seasons. He underwent six knee operations, and after a neck injury forced him to miss five games in 1999, his play declined sharply.

He finished the season with 12 touchdown passes and 17 interceptions, by far the worst ratio of his career, and his quarterback rating ranked 30th in the league.

But the final season likely did little to damage his legacy. Former NFL coach Mike Ditka once said: "Dan Marino will go down as the greatest player in the history of the game."

SWEETWATER — The Midland Lee boys golf team was in second place Friday after the first round of the Sweetwater Golf Classic at the Sweetwater Country Club while Lee's Omar Sanchez was tied for the individual lead.

Lee totaled a 296 after one round, five strokes behind leader Sweetwater. Sanchez shot a 70 to tie him with Sweetwater's Bryan Howard for the first round lead.

Midland High had three individuals entered, led by Blake Braun with a 79. Midland Christian was 13th in the team standings with a 376.

singled on consecutive pitches to get things rolling for the Rangers, who had a 12-0 lead before Will Womack even took the mound.

Greenwood was every bit as rough on reliever Derek Hill, shelling him for 16 runs in only three innings. Every batter in the Greenwood lineup, except in the No. 9 spot, collected at least one hit.

"Hopefully it built some confidence for the kids," said Pallanez. "With as many as I had suited out I wanted as many as possible to get in the game. It was a good experience."

Robertson led the hit parade by going 4-for-4 with six RBIs, including a double and a triple. Justin Outlaw and Smith each drove in five runs while Brandon Smith and Catalano had three hits apiece. All told, the Rangers collected 21 hits.

The big challenge will be for the Rangers to sustain such momentum today when they face Monahans. Greenwood has already faced the Lobos in the Monahans Tournament last weekend, and lost 4-3.

"It's become a good rivalry that anybody can win at any time," said Pallanez.

Will Womack was the winning pitcher for Greenwood, going three innings for the victory. Hill and Iver Ramirez each had two hits for Kermit while Ramirez drove in two runs.

Seminole was leading Colorado City 1-0 when the winds came in, forcing both teams to take cover in their dugouts. When the game resumes today, the winner will take on Abilene Wylie in the championship game.

Wylie, who won the tournament in the previous two years before Seminole, beat Pecos 4-2 to reach the finals. Earlier in the championship bracket, Seminole routed Merkel 14-4.

Also in the winners' bracket, Pecos beat Merkel 12-2, and will play the loser of the Seminole-Colorado City game for third place.

In the consolation bracket, Kermit beat Fort Stockton 11-10 and Monahans crushed Alpine 15-0.

SMU women defeat Tulsa in WAC meet

Associated Press

FRESNO, Calif. — Deidra Rucker scored 19 points, leading the Southern Methodist Lady Mustangs to a 58-46 victory Friday over Tulsa in the Western Athletic Conference tournament.

SMU (21-7) led 29-21 at the half, and the closest that the Golden Hurricane got after that was when an 11-2 run pulled them within 46-40 with 8:33 to play.

Lila Osceola scored 14 points to lead Tulsa (14-15).

SMU built a 44-29 lead after 7:34 of the second half, but Kasie Pittman made two field goals and a free throw, and Osceola had two steals and two layups to rally Tulsa. But Katie Remke hit a jumper and Anika Calvert made a 3-pointer to pull SMU away again.

Longhorns have no trouble with Buffs

Associated Press

■ Big 12 Men's Tourney

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Chris Mihm and Texas made the Colorado Buffaloes realize how weak they are.

Mihm, the 7-foot center for the 13th-ranked Longhorns, had 19 points, 15 rebounds and five blocked shots as the Longhorns forced the Buffaloes out of their offense, holding them to 18 percent shooting for a 78-35 victory in the quarterfinals of the Big 12 tournament Friday night.

"I think our guys are going to spend some time in the weight room this summer," Colorado coach Ricardo Patton said. "When you see a guy like Mihm — big, and strong and athletic — our guys can't match up. That's what our guys have to become."

Colorado suffered the worst loss in the Big 12 tournament's four-year history, surpassing Nebraska's 91-59 defeat to Kansas in 1998. It was also the fewest points scored by a losing team in tournament history. Oklahoma State fell 53-37 to Kansas last year.

Colorado had 12 field goals, tying the school record for the fewest in a game. The Buffs (18-13) were 12-of-66 from the field, missed all 11 of their 3-point attempts, started the game 0-for-10 and at one point were 1-for-15 in the first half.

"They're good defenders," Colorado guard Jaquay Walls said. "Every time I got the ball, I had a hand in my face and an elbow in my back."

Mihm, getting his 18th double-double of the season, helped the Longhorns force the Buffs out of their offense as Texas (23-7) advanced to play No. 15 Oklahoma, which beat Missouri 84-80 in overtime.

"I try and control the paint and really effect people when they drive to the basket," Mihm said. "We keep the players out of the lane and on the perimeter. It takes them away from their game plan."

Texas had six other blocked shots besides the five by Mihm.

The Longhorns started slowly, leading only 10-7 midway through the first half, but Gabe Muoneke got the offense started with his fluid inside moves and finished with 15 points.

Walls had 13 points for the Buffaloes.

Colorado, which frequently failed to hit the rim in the first half, got its first basket with 13 minutes to play in the half when Jamahl Mosley finally hit a jumper.

But then Texas, which has limited opponents to 38.9 percent shooting from the field this season, began to pull away behind Muoneke to win for the sixth time in seven games and for the 12th time in the last 14.

Texas finished the first half with a 16-4 run that included a dunk by Mihm on a breakaway. Mihm then squared up at the top of the key to hit a 3-pointer to make it 30-13 with 2:45 to play before halftime.

Lawrence Williams' 3-pointer seconds before the buzzer gave Texas a 39-15 lead at the half.

Colorado's first shot of the second half hit the side of the backboard, the Buffs missed their second shot and Walls missed a dunk on the third shot. The fourth shot was an air ball on a turnaround jumper by Mosley.

No. 7 Iowa State 76, Baylor 64

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Having the Big 12's best team and best player isn't earning much recognition for Iowa State coach Larry Eustachy.

"The guy stopped me coming in (to the interview room) and asked me for a pass," Eustachy deadpanned Friday after Marcus Fizer led the seventh-ranked Cyclones past Baylor 76-64 in the Big 12 tournament.

"I just walked on in. We're making progress. But we're not there yet."

Everybody knows Fizer when they see him. The unanimous choice for Big 12 player of the year scored a career-high and tournament-record 38 points as the regular-season Big 12 champs (27-4) cruised into Saturday's semifinals against the winner of the Kansas-Oklahoma State game.

The muscular 6-foot-8 power forward was often double- and triple-teamed by the outmanned Bears (14-15), but still hit his career-high and went over 30 points for the fifth time in six games.

Forcing the ball inside time after time for layups, he frequently drew fouls for three-point opportunities and was 12-for-13 from the foul line. The Big 12's two-time scoring leader was 2-for-2 from 3-point range, including a long jumper with three seconds left.

Stevie Johnson had a tournament-record 16 rebounds for the Cyclones.

"I give all the credit to our guard play," Fizer said. "I'm just doing the things that the coaching staff has told me to do and our guards are setting up good shots."

The ninth-seeded Bears stayed close and closed the gap to 58-49 with a 6-0 run capped by DeMarcus Minor's basket midway through the second half.

House of prayer

Two church buildings link three parishes

The Rev. Jon Stasney, left, is pastor of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dale Stinson is pastor of St. Paul's Anglican Church. The churches will be sharing a building while a new St. Nicholas is being built on Loop 250 near the intersection with Midland Drive.

Had it not been for the presence of late-model cars and the mechanized earth-moving equipment in the background, the scene could have been from ancient days, with a circle of humans joined hand to hand in a circle, facing inward, on the bare ground buffeted by flying dirt borne on 30 mile per hour winds.

Their prayers, too, although extemporaneous and shouted over the roars of wind and machinery, were the ancient expressions of love and hope and promise that humans have been saying for thousands of years.

"Bless this windswept ground, O Lord," shouted one voice. "Lead us to use this land to do your will," came a prayer from across the way. And "Lord, we know that this structure we raise is temporary, but that the work we do in your name is eternal."

St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, which is building a new church on Loop 250, has sold its plant to St. Paul's Anglican Church. St. Paul's has sold its building to the Priory of St. Michael the Archangel. During construction, St. Nicholas and St. Paul's will be sharing quarters.

It was the coldest day of February, and a handful of the parishioners of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church had gathered to dedicate the site of their new worship facility on Loop 250 just east of the cluster of retail stores at the corner of Midland Drive.

The dedication is just one more step in the ongoing reshuffling of locations that has kept three church parishes in various degrees of unsettlement for the better part of a year, and has linked them to one another despite differing viewpoints of worship that may seem minor from the outside yet strike at the heart of their customs and beliefs.

St. Nicholas is an Episcopal communion, joined to Episcopal parishes throughout the United States through a network of dioceses and sharing a book of common prayer that was last updated in 1978.

St. Nick's started in 1956 as a mission — a spin-off of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, which sent some 40 of its members to start a parish on what was then the northern edge of Midland, a few blocks east of the intersection of Andrews Highway and Midkiff Road.

Lucille Puckett, one of the original Holy Trinity parishioners who started the mission on Princeton Avenue, said they bought a U.S. Army Air Force barracks building and moved it in from Terminal.

"We planned and worked all summer, and finally we had our first service Aug. 5, 1956," Ms. Puckett recalled. "The night before we opened, we all worked until late, and about 11 that night, Bit Robbins remembered that we didn't have a coffee pot. So she sent her husband down to Walgreens on Andrews Highway to buy a coffee urn, so we could have coffee after church the next day.

"We had this small parish house, with a tiny kitchen, and when the men met for dinner every month, the women would cook in their own houses, then run over to the church with the hot food just as the men were gathering."

The first year, St. Nick's listed 194 communicants, who parked in empty lots adjacent to the cotton fields stretching southward from Golf Course Road along Midkiff.

But their numbers grew steadily, as did Midland's development. The cotton fields gave way to housing development, and they soon found themselves in the middle of an upscale residential area, where people planted trees and lawns, and as problems with dust and field rats diminished, so did parking space. By the 1980s, St. Nick's was hemmed in, a lovely, charming place to worship but with no room for physical growth.

But God never closes one door without opening another, and over the years the church had come into possession of a stretch of land along what in 1990 became Loop 250.

In 1998, at the lowest point of Midland's latest oil bust, the vestry began a capital campaign to build a church house by the side of the road, where the building committee felt that the church would offer more accessibility. This accessibility would be in keeping with the church's mission to offer Christ's message of love to the world

Monastery director to give lesson on Buddist teachings

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

The director of a Buddhist monastery in Woodstock, N.Y., is to present a course in Midland on Buddhist teachings and Buddhist dharma in Western culture.

The Venerable Bardor Tuklu Rinpoche, head of the Kharma Kagyu Lineage, is to teach 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday at the Unitarian Universalist Church. He is sponsored by a Tibetan Buddhist study group that meets weekly in Midland.

The session is open to the public. There is a $5 fee to help defray Rinpoche's travel expenses.

Study leader Dennis Stratton said the Tuesday meetings are open to everyone.

"The basis of the study is to investigate the Buddhist view, which has some basic ideas that can be looked at in terms of a person's experience," he said, adding that the study deals with what it is to be human.

"Buddhism asks a person to be reflective and contemplative, and to study, and it balances that out with an element of meditation."

Stratton said the Buddhist approach is to investigate overlying societal, gender and ethnic roles in history and to come to an understanding of who people think they are. He said the study allows students to work at stripping away ego-related self-images.

"There is a term for that — non-conceptual wisdom — where we stop thinking and start knowing. It starts with a place that is sometimes uncomfortable to Westerners, and I think that has a lot to do with ego.

Stratton said that being a Westerner, he understands the problem.

"I really enjoy the comfort of this life," he said. "We're a highly material society and we've been very successful. We start from that. We're a very powerful and very knowledgeable people, and we (Westerners) are also a very troubled people. The Buddhist view is that there are some basic truths about being human, and we're going to examine them.

"One thing that attracted me to Buddhism is that it doesn't represent itself as owning the truth. I've read Buddhist teachers who say the best thing people can do is to go deep into the religious tradition they are comfortable with, get grounded in that, and live a virtuous life. This is what gives hope and satisfaction, no matter what religion you espouse.

"Buddhism is a very different approach to understanding the reality we experience, but the living of a life of wisdom and compassion, and the giving of self is not different. It's what any moral person would do, and it's its own reward.

"Buddhism would recommend that if we want to help the world, the first thing we need to do is work on ourselves — work on our emotional patterns, our behaviors, our view of the world, and in changing ourselves, we can change the world."

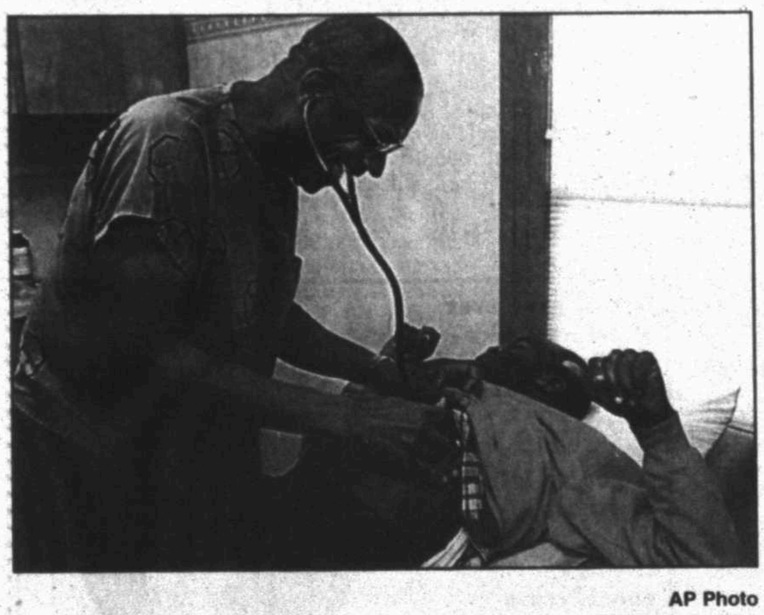

Stratton said he began the study group in Midland in response to a meeting that he had with Rinpoche.

"I attend a Kagyu center infrequently in Dallas, and I went to a teaching in which he was the main speaker," said Stratton. "He speaks really good English, but in teaching, he speaks in Tibetan and works with a translator.

"He'll say something, and the translator will answer him, and they'll talk back and forth, then the translator will say it in English. And it happened that his translator was a person I took refuge vows with — which is how one becomes a Buddhist. One of the things you can do when you go to those things is to

Black churches need to assume role in AIDS prevention, doctor says

AP Photo

Dr. Robert Scott, director of the AIDS ministry at Allen Temple Baptist Church, laughs with an AIDS patient as he examines him in his Oakland, Calif., office late last year. Dealing with AIDS comes up more and more in black churches around the country, as 49 percent of AIDS deaths were blacks, who comprise only 13 percent of the population.

By Jordan Lite
Associated Press Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Back when many people thought AIDS was a gay white man's disease, three black men came to Dr. Robert Scott and told him that they could not bear to confide in their pastors about their infections.

"Each one told me, 'Whatever you do, don't tell my pastor,'" Scott recalled.

"I said, 'Something is wrong. Do I have to be both doctor and minister too?'"

So Scott rounded up their pastors, who ministered at some of the East Bay's largest black Baptist churches. "What have you said or not said that makes people fearful of talking to you?" he asked them.

It's a question being asked more and more at black churches, as the latest statistics show blacks are not benefiting as much as other groups from a slowing of the AIDS death rate.

Thanks to new drug treatments, AIDS deaths nationwide dropped 65 percent between 1995 and 1998, but only 55 percent for blacks. While blacks represent just 13 percent of the U.S. population, they comprise 49 percent of AIDS deaths — 8,316 people last year, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Since most blacks have some connection to a church, it's vital that black churches take an active role in HIV prevention, said Pernessa Seele, founder of The Balm in Gilead, a New York nonprofit that teaches ministers how to do AIDS education.

"In our community, the church, the pulpit, is the loudest voice that we have," Seele said. "Historically, if you want to organize around anything, you go to the church. With AIDS devastating our community we must use that vehicle which we know."

It wasn't always this way. Homosexuality, sex outside of marriage and intravenous drug use are sins churchgoers learn to hate. In many cases, they learned to hate the sinners as well.

"It was always reinforced that being gay was a bad thing, it was a sin. If it was talked about, it was in a negative sense," said Derek Lassiter, 34, a gay black man who is HIV-positive.

He has been welcomed at Glide Memorial Methodist Church in San Francisco, where gays, drug abusers and the homeless are equally embraced, and where advocates hand out condoms and HIV testing is available. But he says this is an anomaly.

"In the black community, everyone has had a church experience; it never leaves you," he said. "But then you start remembering how you were not accepted."

Most churches do not offer the extensive AIDS programs of Glide or Allen Temple Baptist Church in Oakland, where the 5,500-member congregation holds monthly meetings to recruit volunteers to act as buddies to people with AIDS.

This month, Allen Temple opened 25 low-cost housing units in Oakland for disabled patients. The church also runs an AIDS case management center, and reaches out to other black churches that may not be talking about AIDS at all.

"As a Christian physician it was clear to me ... the church is a diverse reflection of our whole society," said Scott, who heads the AIDS ministry at Allen Temple and has 400 HIV-positive patients among his 2,000 clients in Oakland.

"Some people who got this disease are drug users. Some were prostitutes. Some got it because they are gay," he said. "As a church we're having to confront a whole population of people who are marginalized. We certainly don't want to push aside and marginalize people of our own race."

The crosses, pain Christians must bear are what Lent is all about

Williams

When we took a trip to the Holy Land in June, I figured out why we celebrate Jesus' 40 days in the desert during the early spring instead of summer: He would have burned to a crisp after 40 minutes in the hottest glare I'd ever withered under. The Judean Desert makes the Permian Basin feel like the Garden of Eden.

The Episcopal tradition treats the 40 days of Lent as a time of self-denial and reflection. Many of us either give up something dear to us or take on a spiritual discipline. One year I gave up chocolate during this pre-Easter season and a friend of mine joked: "That was dumb. Next year give up stringy old celery and you won't be in a miserable chocolate withdrawal for 40 days."

That's the point, of course. Every time I crave a piece of chocolate, it's a tiny reminder of the sacrifice Jesus made for me.

Another friend hired a moving company to pack up all her living room furniture and drive around town for four hours while she held her daughter's wedding reception in her home. Lent is like that. We intentionally send our worldly pleasures, contentment, and happiness packing for 40 days — but instead of giving a party in the empty space, we sit in the darkness while demons tempt us with what we are afraid to face the other 46 weeks of the year: Why do I not feel worthy? Is God really in control? If God really loves me, then why am I out of work/ alienated from my children/ trapped in a miserable marriage/ failing in my career/ so alone and unloved? If I were a better Christian, would I be in this mess? God must not love me as much as He loves other people.

Lent is not exactly what our gratification-seeking, me-oriented, pleasure-loving culture promotes. In a radical counter-cultural statement, the church enters into this desert every year.

On purpose.

Why do we do this? Why do we intentionally open ourselves to the temptations Jesus suffered in the desert? Why do we ask for more of the denial and pain that the world seems so willing to give us anyway?

I am secretly on the look-out for ways to escape pain. Unfortunately, Lent leads to Good Friday and the cross, and if we are walking in Jesus' footsteps, we can't avoid pain. Crosses are what Lent is about. Not parties. Not self-gratification.

In the empty room of Lent, we become aware that we are not, after all, alone. If we stick it out, this Other Presence turns out to be more fulfilling than chocolate or whatever we're desperate for to quell the hunger of self-esteem. Lent is learning to hear the still small voice among the clamor of the world's temptations, as well as the more subtle temptations of self-sufficiency. If we have faced our demons, if we have crawled up on to our particular cross, the one God has prepared for our neediness to die on, then the resurrection at the end of Lent doesn't look like just any party.

It looks like salvation.

TWO: New St. Nicholas is being built on loop

(From 1C)

at large.

The Rev. Jon Stasney said that some parishioners — who cherished the idea of a traditional church environment in a quiet residential area away from traffic — objected to the new location on aesthetic grounds. But the plan was to offer it up as a place where everybody would feel comfortable coming, regardless of their backgrounds.

"We wanted them to be as comfortable coming to church as they are coming to Wal-Mart," Stasney said. "We'll have so much greater visibility and plenty of parking, and we're even looking at the possibility of putting in a bookstore and a coffee shop where people can drop in and spend time even when there are no church services."

The capital campaign went off without a hitch — miraculously, some said, in light of the severe downturn in Midland's economy. But there was a glitch in the program. They had to find a buyer for a lovingly used, much laughed-, sung-, preached- and prayed-in building.

An examination of the title uncovered a stipulation common to church properties in the 1950s — that if the plant were ever vacated, it would be sold only to a "protestant Episcopal church."

Then came another miracle, in the form of nearby St. Paul's Anglican Church, which is housed in a small and elegant frame building on Golf Course Road, and falling under the general provisions spelled out in St. Nick's title.

The updating of the prayer book is the core reason for the existence of St. Paul's Anglican Church, which began when Episcopalians, angered over changes in language and rubrics and the inclusion of women as clergy, split off to form the Anglican Catholic Church. Some Anglican churches were established before 1980. St. Paul's erected their Golf Course Road plant in 1991.

But as time went by, the parish, led by the Rev. Dale Stinson, felt the need to expand. They wanted to establish a Traditional Christian Academy and day care for the benefit of working parents. St. Nick's was the answer to their prayers. It has a wealth of classroom space, a parish hall and instead of a traditional liturgical space, St. Nicholas has a nave and a chapel.

Again there was a small glitch. St. Paul's needed to sell its Golf Course Road property.

Then came another parish that needed a church house.

The Priory of St. Michael the Archangel was begun as a traditional branch of the Catholic Church, started in answer to the sweeping changes of Vatican II. Catholics struggling with the change from Latin as the language of the Mass, tried for a time to acclimate themselves to the vernacular, then realized that it wasn't their Catholicism any more. They allied themselves with others of like persuasion in other towns and returned to their pre-Vatican II traditions. They arranged for priests to celebrate the Mass in Latin, met in their houses, created home schools for their children and kept the faith as they knew it, while continuing to recognize papal authority.

Michael and Gail Banschbach were among Midland Catholics who went traditional.

Banschbach said he heard of St. Paul's need for a buyer of the Golf Course Road building from Dale Stinson, whose children share home school classes with the Banschbach children.

"We had been wanting a church, but didn't really want to build, and then Dale mentioned that St. Paul's had bought St. Nick's. The timing was perfect for us," he said.

Perfect for St. Michael's, but perhaps not for St. Nick's or St. Paul's congregations, since the completion of the first stage of St. Nicholas' facility on the loop was almost a year away.

The logical solution was for St. Nick's to move over and let St. Paul's move in. They divided the administrative office space to accommodate two priests and two sets of files, set up two reception areas and arranged a common waiting area.

Sunday services were arranged so that St. Nicholas would hold Eucharists at 8 a.m. and 9:25 a.m. with Sunday school at 10:40 a.m., while St. Paul's has a 9 a.m. service in the chapel and 11 a.m. Mass in the nave of the church.

There have been housekeeping details to work out. The Anglicans observe a traditional liturgical calendar, going into pre-Lent with its purple frontals, while the Episcopalians are still observing the Sundays after Epiphany with green frontals. The altar has been moved 3 feet closer to the wall so Stinson can celebrate the Eucharist facing the altar and Stasney can celebrate standing behind the altar facing his congregation.

Caroline Holmes, member of St. Nicholas Altar Guild, said both St. Nick's and St. Paul's altar guilds have learned to make every move count.

"We've learned to be really fast, and to keep out of each other's way, and it's worked out just fine," she said. "It's lucky that we're all friends."

Stasney and Stinson both said that when St. Nicholas parish moves out, there will be a period of grieving. In the case of St. Nick's parishioners, Stasney said, they will be leaving a well-loved home.

"There have been so many people who were baptized and confirmed here, married here, had members of the family buried from here, and all that gets in the walls. It's like when a family leaves a home, and all its associated memories. We're all experiencing that already."

Stinson said for St. Paul's, the grief is not only for the home they so recently left behind, but in anticipation of the St. Nick's people leaving.

"We're going to miss them. We'll be together long enough that we'll really be accustomed to each other, and it won't be easy when they leave."

Octogenarian pastor got her calling at age 12

By Melanie Burney
Associated Press Writer

WILLINGBORO, N.J. — Louisa Groce has spent her entire life in the church.

She began teaching Sunday school when she was just 12 years old, sang in the choir and even considered becoming a nun. Over the years, she has served on the church council and even run her own parish as a lay minister.

Now, at age 81, Ms. Groce is embarking on a new spiritual mission. She has answered a call to become the first octogenarian and oldest person ever ordained by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

"It says to me that God had a plan all along," Ms. Groce said. "I wasn't aware of the plan, but God had it. I'm a living witness to the power of God if you will let him lead you."

Her journey into the history books of the 5.2 million-member Lutheran denomination began as a child in west Philadelphia, where she attended a predominantly black Missouri Synod Lutheran church.

As a young woman, she wanted to become a nun, but was prohibited because she did not attend a parochial school. Back then, she believed it would be difficult for her to become a pastor in the conservative Missouri Synod as a black and a woman.

Six decades later, Ms. Groce refuses to view her age as another obstacle to church service. Concerned about being stereotyped, she never disclosed it until recently.

"The minute you begin to think you're going downhill you do," Ms. Groce said during a recent interview at her home. "I don't have any limitations right now. For what I want to do now I'm just starting."

Ms. Groce graduated from the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Philadelphia in May and took her final step toward ordination on July 11. That day she delivered a call sermon to a northern New Jersey congregation that immediately elected her as its pastor.

Once accepted by the congregation, Ms. Groce began a ministry at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Jersey City at an age when most pastors have long since retired. Philip Krey, dean of the seminary, mentioned Ms. Groce's unique calling in a Lenten sermon, noting that "she is older than Abraham (was) when he left for the promised land."

"It's very unusual for anyone of retirement age to have become ordained in our church," said Mark Staples, a spokesman for the Lutheran seminary.

Ms. Groce expects parishioners to have concerns about her health and how many years she will be able to serve. Asked how long she will pastor, she replied unhesitatingly, "As long as God gives me life."

A petite woman, Ms. Groce is full of energy and maintains an active lifestyle. She exercises regularly and does not smoke, drink alcohol or take medication — not even an aspirin.

"I'm not feeling old," she says.

Ms. Groce is accustomed to tackling challenges. A single mother, she taught school in Philadelphia for 30 years and raised five daughters, working a second job at night to send them all to college. She instructed juvenile delinquents and special education teachers in Antioch College's Philadelphia program for 10 years.

When she retired, Ms. Groce devoted her energies to the church. She was active in the Camden Lutheran parish as a lay associate and then became a lay minister at Emmanuel Lutheran Church in south Philadelphia.

She eventually enrolled in the Philadelphia seminary — not to become a pastor — but simply to learn more about the Bible. She was stunned when Bishop Roy Riley of the New Jersey Synod invited her in 1996 to consider ordination.

"I called him and I said, 'Do you know how old I am?'" recalled Ms. Groce.

She underwent a stringent review by a candidacy committee before being certified for the seminary. She was placed on an alternative study track because of her credentials and extensive background in the church.

BUDDHIST: Study group began meeting at end of 1999

ask for an interview, so I asked for an interview with the translator.

"So we talked, and he asked how far it was to Midland. I said it was about four hours' drive away, and he said, 'Too far. I think we need to talk to Rinpoche.' So we went upstairs and the translator said, 'I think Dennis needs to start a study group in Midland.' Rinpoche said, 'How far is Midland?' I told him, and he said, 'Too far.'

"So I got permission to set up a 'kharma kagyu,' which started shortly before Christmas.

"It wasn't something I had anticipated, since it was very comfortable going to Dallas, but the study group has been very interesting and helpful to me."

Stratton said that according to Jennifer James, a cultural anthropologist from Seattle who has spoken in Midland, Buddhism seems to be growing, especially on the West Coast, because people are seeking some type of balance in the midst of technological growth.

"I don't really feel that is happening here, but people are investigating it," he said. "They feel free to look into meditation and into other basic ideas and see what kind of sense they make.

"I've read, and I agree, that Buddhism creates a very sane style of life. There's a basic compassion toward all humans, because, underneath it all, there's not a lot of difference."

DOCTOR: AIDS funding allows for expansion of church-based initiatives

(From 1C)

Money is starting to embrace the community, too.

Since the Congressional Black Caucus successfully lobbied President Clinton to authorize $156 million to fight AIDS among blacks and Hispanics in 1998, the AIDS National Interfaith Network, a clearinghouse for religious organizations conducting HIV education and support, has seen many more inquiries from church leaders.

The funds allowed the CDC to expand its church-based initiative, inflating an annual budget of $100,000 to $2 million. In October, the CDC also allotted $39 million to prevent AIDS in minority communities — up 50 percent over last year.

"Clearly as the epidemic continues to spread — and particularly in communities of color — I think religious leaders in faith communities realize the role they can play and they want to play that role increasingly," said Dr. Helene Gayle, who directs the CDC's center for prevention of HIV, sexually transmitted diseases and tuberculosis.

That would help clients of AIDS case manager Kenneth Hall, who set up the outreach group Ark of Refuge at Allen Temple four years ago. "Seventy-five percent are real leery about committing themselves spiritually anywhere if they haven't outed themselves to the pastor or the congregation about their diagnosis," Hall said.

Tim Staples was raised in the Baptist faith and later became an Assembly of God Youth Pastor. Tim recalls how he once used his biblical knowledge to attack the Catholic Church, causing many Catholics to question their beliefs, until he ran into a Catholic who really knew, and was willing to share, his faith. That encounter sparked a two year search for truth. He became a Catholic in 1988.

Tim approaches the subject of Catholicism a bit differently than most. Just knowing what Catholics believe is not enough. His goal is to show why we believe. Tim's strength is apologetics-the science that deals mainly with clearing up common misconceptions by explaining and defending the faith.

Fallen photographers' legacy lives in photo exhibit

By Tini Tran
Associated Press

HANOI, Vietnam — A collection of photographs from the Vietnam War went on exhibit Friday, giving Vietnamese the opportunity to see more than 300 images taken by photographers who lost their lives in that conflict a quarter-century ago.

The opportunity to see the photos, already exhibited in the United States, Japan and Britain, is thanks to the efforts of a U.S. Marine Corps veteran from Kentucky and one of the war's top photographers.

The exhibition pays tribute to all 135 photojournalists — including those from the North Vietnamese side — who died or went missing during the wars in Vietnam and neighboring countries.

Titled "Requiem: The Vietnam Collection," the photographs originally came from a book compiled by photojournalists Horst Faas and Tim Page, who both covered the war.

Page, 55, was a photographer for United Press International in the 1960s and also freelanced for Time and Life magazines. Faas, 67, a two-time Pulitzer Prize winner, served as Saigon photo editor for The Associated Press from 1963-1972.

What originally began as a memorial by Page to two friends — photographers Dana Stone and Sean Flynn, who died in Cambodia — became a much bigger project to collect the works of all the photojournalists who died in the line of fire.

Faas, now a senior editor for the AP based in London, said that when Page first proposed the idea, "I thought this was something important, because this was a way that could bring us all together."

Their book, "Requiem: By the Photographers Who Died in Vietnam and Indochina," was published in 1997 and won several awards. It chronicles the work of men and women of 11 different nationalities, 72 of them North Vietnamese photographers.

The photos, virtually all in black-and-white, include searing images that photographer Larry Burrows captured for Life magazine, bringing the brutality of war into American homes.

When Richard Lennon, 59, a Marine captain during the war, saw the project displayed in Washington, D.C., he was moved enough to ask Faas to bring the exhibit to his home state of Kentucky. A native of Louisville, Ky., he now lives in Seattle.

Faas promised to give a set of Requiem prints if Lennon could convince Kentucky to raise money to hold the exhibition there and then donate it to Vietnam, where it will remain permanently. The exhibition was displayed in Frankfort, Ky.

"Tim and I always felt that these pictures were taken in Vietnam by photographers who were in love with Vietnam, liked being here. In a way, these photos are now coming home," said Faas.

The exhibit, sponsored by the Vietnam News Agency and the Requiem Project Steering Committee, runs in Hanoi until March 20. It then moves to Ho Chi Minh City in conjunction with 25th anniversary celebrations of the end of the war.

Associated Press photojournalist Horst Faas, left, offers his book "Requiem" to the widow of Vietnamese combat photographer Luong Nghia Dung Friday, during the opening day of "Requiem: The Vietnam Collection" in Hanoi. The exhibition, a gift from the state of Kentucky to Vietnam, pays tribute to the 135 photojournalists who were killed or went missing during the wars in Vietnam and Indochina, including North Vietnamese. The photo exhibit will beon display in Hanoi through March 20 before it moves to Ho Chi Minh City next month.

Sri Lanka's Cabinet escapes attack; bomber, 18 others die

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — A bomber blew himself up, killing 18 other people and wounding 46 on a busy street in Sri Lanka's capital Thursday, but apparently missed his target — a motorcade of Cabinet ministers.

Police said the attack was planned: in addition to the bomb that went off, jackets laden with explosives and two rocket-propelled grenades were found in the area. Military officials blamed Tamil separatists for the blast.

The wounded and the dead, mostly people who had been headed home from work, were taken to the National Hospital in Colombo, many with abdominal injuries. Two dozen cars were damaged.

"There were lots of vehicles at that time, and then there was a big explosion and then I heard gunfire after the blast," said D.A. Ratnayake, a traffic policeman who was wounded in the explosion.

Ratnayake was part of a large security detail, including anti-terrorist commandos, assigned to guard the Cabinet ministers as they traveled home from Parliament. Five of the 19 people killed in the blast were police officers.

Gunfire could be heard from the cordoned-off Borella area, the commercial hub of Colombo, up to an hour after the explosion. At least 200 soldiers took up positions on the streets and helicopters circled the area, looking for possible accomplices in the bombing.

"I saw five armed men running," said K. Vasantha, a 27-year-old resident of the area. "They were all armed. They threatened everyone and kept on running," he said.

The men ran in the direction of the road leading to Parliament, apparently discarding explosive-laden jackets as they escaped.

The blast came as Parliament discussed extending emergency rule in northern Sri Lanka, a measure that gives broad powers to the army and police fighting Tamil rebels there.

"The defense minister was in parliament. This was a known fact," said Science and Technology Minister Batty Weerakoon. "I am not surprised if he was the target."

The defense minister, Anuruddha Ratwatte, heads military operations against the rebel movement, known as the Tamil Tigers. He narrowly escaped two previous assassination attempts.

Based on remains found at the scene, police believe the suicide bomber was either in a car or leaving it, with the intention of stationing himself in the front of the ministers' motorcade.

The bomb apparently went off prematurely, said authorities, speaking on condition of anonymity. It was unclear if the bomber was carrying the device or if it was in his car.

There was no claim of responsibility for the bombing.

The Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam are the principal suspects in most explosions in Sri Lanka.

The guerrilla group has been fighting for 17 years for a separate homeland for the country's 3.3 million Tamils, a minority of Sri Lanka's 18.6-million, mainly Sinhalese population. The conflict has claimed 61,000 lives.

Meanwhile, analysts and rebels expressed confidence that an Oslo-backed peace initiative to end the war will continue despite the fall of Norway's coalition government Friday.

Norway has been trying to facilitate peace talks. The Sri Lankan government held unsuccessful negotiations with the rebels in 1995.

The government is pushing a new constitution that would provide wide autonomy to the eight provinces in the island nation off the coast of India.

Soldiers arrive at the site of the bomb blast in Colombo, Sri Lanka, Friday. A bomb exploded in the commercial center of the Sri Lankan capital during evening rush hour; killing 15 people and injuring at least 46, authorities said. Police believe a suicide bomber set off the explosion prematurely and had intended to target a motorcade of government ministers and political leaders.

China's foreign minister: U.S. inflaming tensions over Taiwan

BEIJING (AP) — Warning that U.S.-Chinese relations faced a critical juncture over Taiwan, China's foreign minister demanded Friday that Washington end the military support for the island that he said has emboldened pro-independence Taiwanese.

Tang Jiaxuan called on Washington to "immediately stop its sale of weaponry to Taiwan" and kill legislation moving through Congress that would strengthen cooperation between the U.S. and Taiwanese militaries.

His demands came eight days before Taiwan holds a presidential election that has heightened tensions between the world's superpower and East Asia's rising power. Tang said Chinese-U.S. relations and those between the mainland and island were at a "critical juncture."

"I would advise the Americans to recognize that what the U.S. says and does on the question of Taiwan will have a direct bearing on the future direction of the relationship," Tang said at a news conference. "It also will directly bear on peace and stability in the Taiwan Strait and in the Asia-Pacific region."

China is warily watching the outcome of the March 18 poll, looking for signs the island is ready to talk unification. Although no dummy missiles or war games have been launched as in Taiwan's last presidential election four years ago, Beijing has raised new threats to attack the island.

Chinese President Jiang Zemin, in stories carried on the front-pages of national newspapers Friday, urged the 2.5 million-member People's Liberation Army to increase its combat readiness. Meeting members of the military last week, Jiang reiterated China's newest threat: to attack if the island indefinitely puts off negotiating unification.

Foreign Minister Tang offered inducements and warnings. He said Beijing would consider resuming talks with the victor, but indirectly warned Taiwanese voters away from candidate Chen Shui-bian of the pro-independence Democratic Progressive Party.

"If the new leader of Taiwan has no inclination for Taiwan independence and is genuinely willing to restart talks and negotiate with us on the basis of the one-China principle, then we are willing to consider that," Tang said. "If things turn out to be the opposite, then I'm afraid the result will be quite contrary."

In Taipei, a senior government adviser on China policy, Lin Chong-pin, urged China to "say more nice words and do more nice things to help improve the atmosphere." U.S. Defense Secretary William Cohen, touring Asia, made a similar request — but to both sides.

"Both sides should lower the rhetoric and lower the tension and then try to work this out in a peaceful fashion rather than one of intimidation and confrontation," Cohen said en route to Hong Kong.

Tang took aim at the United States' role in the 51-year Taiwan-China split, part of an unfinished Chinese civil war which the foreign minister said was China's to resolve. He said without U.S. military support, the split would have been ended long ago.

The United States "has inflated the arrogance of the separatist forces on Taiwan. Therefore the United States bears unshakable responsibility for the tension in the Taiwan Strait," Tang said.

Washington acknowledges China's claim to Taiwan, but by law must help the island maintain its defense. The Pentagon on Tuesday approved the sale to Taiwan of guided missiles and equipment to assist the island's air surveillance radar.

To underscore China's anger, its ambassador in Washington lodged a protest Thursday over U.S. arms sales to Taiwan, Tang said.

Gunmen kill former premier's lawyer in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Just days after receiving death threats, a key lawyer for Pakistan's deposed prime minister was slain by gunmen who burst into his office Friday.

Police said attorney Iqbal Raad and two other men died. The attack came three days before closing arguments in the hijacking trial of former Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif.

"I have given up hope," said Sharif's wife, Khulsoom. "If such a prominent lawyer involved in a high-profile case like this can be killed, why will anyone want to take our case?

"He received telephone calls and letters threatening him. He was very worried," she told reporters. "They told him to quit the case."

In Washington, White House spokesman Joe Lockhart said President Clinton has no plans to cancel his scheduled visit to Pakistan this month.

"Obviously we condemn this kind of horrific act of violence, and call upon them to investigate fully this assassination," Lockhart said. "We believe the former prime minister deserves a free, open and transparent trial so that he and the rest of the world can see that justice is being done."

Witnesses said one man with a Kalashnikov rifle and two men with pistols entered the lawyer's second-floor office and opened fire. A fourth gunman was seen standing guard outside the office building.

Police said they have no suspects in custody. The other two victims were Shehzad Kathri, also a lawyer, and Ghulam Abass, Raad's helper.

"We are looking into the possibility of terrorism," said Senior Superintendent of Police Akther Hasan Gorchani. "We are also looking at whether there is any element of personal enmity involved in the murder."

Pakistan's military ruler, Gen. Pervez Musharraf, called the attack an "act of terrorism."

Sharif was ousted in a coup in October after he tried to dismiss Musharraf as army chief. At the time, Musharraf was returning to the country on a plane with 200 people aboard. The plane landed after the army seized control.

Sharif and several aides were charged with hijacking, terrorism, attempted murder and kidnapping for endangering the lives of those aboard the plane. All the charges carry the death penalty or life in prison.

Raad, a former advocate general in Sharif's government, had complained that Sharif was being treated like a condemned prisoner. At one point, Raad said Sharif was being held in a dingy, mosquito-infested cell "so small that he has to fold his cot to offer prayers."

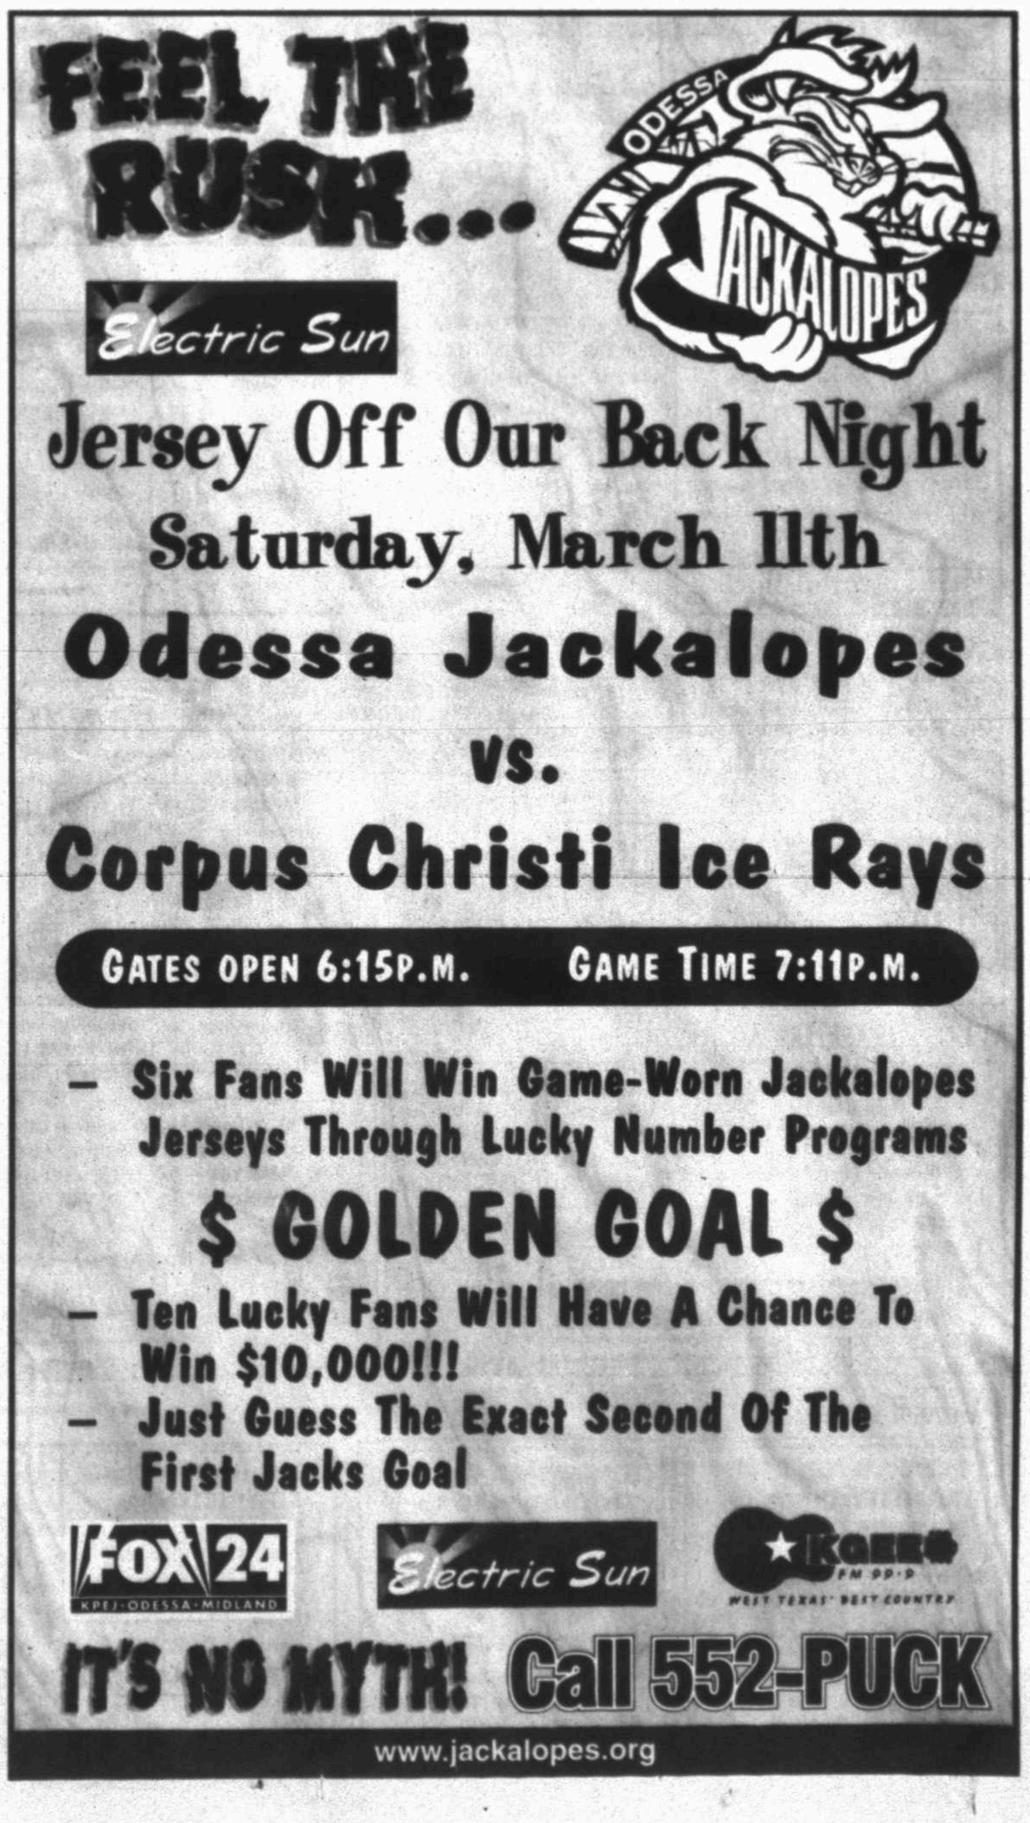

The trial is before a judge, who is expected to decide as early as one week after the end of closing arguments.

Raad and others have complained of a heavy presence of intelligence agents in the courtroom.

"The incident would indicate that the lawyers representing Nawaz Sharif are not safe," said Khawaja Sultan, another of Sharif's lawyers. "He was in the forefront of Nawaz Sharif's defense team."

"I am really shocked, horrified and scared," said Aftab Farukh, another attorney. "The intelligence agencies monitored the activities of all the defense lawyers."

The Sindh High Court Bar Association said it would not attend court Saturday to protest the attack. "It is a barbaric act," said Abul Inam, the association's president.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, March 11, 2000:

You'll be walking a tight line this year if you are dependent upon others' reactions. You might often find yourself embroiled in misunderstandings. Qualify your words and try to communicate as clearly as possible. Your imagination takes you in new directions. Be more empathetic with others; put yourself in their shoes. If you are single, you might choose to be hush-hush about a special relationship that enters your life in late spring or early summer. If attached, your relationship benefits from going away together for weekends. You reconnect. GEMINI reads you cold.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Confusion marks your plans and decisions. You might feel overwhelmed or that you are doing too much. Cut back or scratch some plans. By leaving an opening, you can take someone up on a wild suggestion. Tonight: Hanging out is fun to do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★ You could find yourself slipping into quicksand. Be smart; clear out while you can. Finances might be particularly wobbly right now. A parent or older relative comes up with an unusual suggestion. Weigh the pros and cons. Tonight: Treating another well doesn't necessarily mean spending money.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Your personality melts others' resistance. You might find that another thinks you are less amusing than you think you are. This too will pass. Share plans you have been wanting to make. Before you know it, they will become a reality. Tonight: Kick up your heels.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★ Pull back and make smart choices. Do needed research; ask important questions. If you aren't satisfied with what you are hearing, refuse to make a decision. A trusted friend gives you a new perspective. Relax and don't push. Tonight: Vanish while you can.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Bring friends together, but don't be surprised if another balks at your ideas. Let it go; don't worry. Let others make plans, and go along if you want. Confusion surrounds funds and a get-together. Maintain your sense of humor. Tonight: Where your friends are.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ You might not be sure what you need to do. A boss or parent could make a request you feel is important to follow through on. Listen to your sixth sense. You feel good helping another and pitching in. Good results come because of your nurturing. Tonight: In the limelight!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Hop in your car and meet a friend halfway. You'll enjoy visiting and catching up on news. You might be worried or feeling insecure. Just let that go. A romantic tie could be nebulous, but that is part of the excitement. Tonight: Talk about what you want.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Talk to a loved one. Don't get discouraged if not everyone agrees with you. Understanding another proves to be challenging, but it is worthwhile. You'll feel like you have reached nirvana once you agree and see eye to eye. Tonight: One of those cozy nights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Allow yourself to back off if others seem simply difficult or grumpy. Make it OK to see a situation differently. Open up and talk about your feelings, but wait until you think your timing is right on. Go out with a friend and browse through a favorite store or spot. Tonight: Be easygoing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Pace yourself. If you decide you don't want to do something, say so. Another could be disappointed, but in the long run honesty will work for you. Allow a greater flow of feelings in a key relationship. Follow a money hunch as long as it isn't too risky! Tonight: Just don't cook.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Make enjoying life with a child or loved one your highest priority. Listen, even if you don't agree. Be willing to understand his position. Your imagination delights others. Share what you think is a wild idea. Tonight: Let the good times roll.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★ Consider hiding out if you don't like other people's moods. Listen to what another shares; you don't have to go along with him. You might just enjoy a lazy day at home, curled up with good movies or a book. Others will recharge soon enough. Tonight: Home is your castle.

Goldberg honored at film festival

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Whoopi Goldberg watched a clip of her Oscar-nominated performance in "The Color Purple" and shook her head.

"I will never be that good again. Everything was brand new," she said Thursday when she was honored at the Santa Barbara International Film Festival.

Goldberg laughed so hard she cried while watching a montage of clips from her films, including "Soapdish," "Clara's Heart" and "The Color Purple."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — It's still nearly eight months away, but the wedding of Miss America Heather French and Lt. Gov. Steve Henry has prompted some complaints from parishioners of a Catholic cathedral.

The bride and groom, both Protestant, will be married in the Cathedral of the Assumption after the parish relaxed a rule requiring at least one in a couple marrying there to be Catholic, the Rev. Bill Fichteman said.

At least 15 people have called the parish to complain, he said, and others have protested to Archbishop Thomas C. Kelly.

Henry said neither he nor his fiancee have received negative feedback.

"We've literally not had one phone call, not one person to express any negative feelings," he said. "In fact, just the opposite."

French picked the church in part because it housed the state's first homeless shelter. She has chosen to crusade on behalf of homeless and disabled veterans during her reign.

WASHINGTON — Billy Joel went to Congress to crusade for Long Island's lobstermen.

The singer pressed lawmakers Thursday for more federal aid to battle a mysterious ailment killing off lobsters and threatening the industry on Long Island Sound.

Joel, a native of Long Island, said at a news conference that the disappearance of lobstermen would change the area's fabric.

"People should come to Long Island not just because it sells postcards and T-shirts but because it sells lobsters," he said.

Joel recently sold his home in the Hamptons, on eastern Long Island, to Jerry Seinfeld for $40 million and is moving to Long Island's North Shore overlooking the Sound.

President Clinton has called for $10 million in aid for Long Island lobstermen, but lawmakers from Connecticut and New York are pushing for $30 million.

DENVER — The publisher of John and Patsy Ramsey's book about the slaying of their daughter has placed copies under armed guard, pending its release.

"There were people calling posing as our employees, saying they had to have a copy shipped to them right away," said Rolf Zettersten of Thomas Nelson, a Nashville, Tenn., publisher of Christian books.

"The printer wanted to get rid of it. They said they couldn't guarantee its security," he said.

Copies of "The Death of Innocence" are under guard in a trailer in Nashville.

The publisher had a scare when it received an empty envelope that was supposed to contain a Boulder fact-checker's copy of the book. Ramsey lawyer Bryan Morgan was convinced tabloids intercepted it, Zettersten said, but "Federal Express finally found it laying on the floor at their processing center in Denver."

NEW YORK — Screen legend Katharine Hepburn, who turns 93 on May 12, told a New York newspaper that she is feeling fine, despite occasional rumors that she is bed-ridden and ailing.

"Tell everyone I am doing fine!" Hepburn told the New York Post in a rare interview published Friday.

"I am OK," said the actress, a four-time Oscar-winner who lives quietly in the Hepburn family mansion in the town of Fenwick, Conn., overlooking Long Island Sound.

Dressed in a purple jumpsuit and sitting by a roaring fire in her living room, Hepburn said she is still a big eater, and enjoys homemade meals prepared by her cook.

Hepburn, a native of Hartford, Conn., gave up her New York City apartment in 1996 and returned to Connecticut. Her generally reclusive lifestyle has fueled speculation at times that she is seriously ill.

2001 FORD F-150 SUPERCREW PICKUP TRUCK

Opening New Doors

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

The folks at the blue oval continue their dominance of the light truck market with the introduction of the all-new SuperCrew pickup. Unlike recent offerings to the marketplace during the last several model years, the SuperCrew is a six-passenger half-ton truck with four full size doors. Versatility and innovation are added to a world class lineup by offering customers a choice that cannot be matched anywhere in the full-size truck segment today.

In addition to the full doors, the truck's versatility is expanded with standard power adjustable brake and accelerator pedals. Climbing into the SuperCrew is made easy for short drivers with the $250 optional black platform cab steps. Although the SuperCrew uses the same 139-inch wheelbase as the SuperCab model, it offers extra interior space, improving rear passenger comfort.

The five and a half foot cargo box also received attention from Ford engineers. The ($225) optional stainless steel Pickup Bed Extender allows owners to use a total of seven feet of cargo carrying capacity with the tailgate lowered. With the tailgate up, the extender doubles as a carry bin to keep small items from rolling around the cargo bed.

Built exclusively at the automaker's Kansas City, Mo., assembly plant, the 2001 Ford F-150 SuperCrew is available in two- or four-wheel drive and XLT or Lariat models. Powerplant choices include the standard Triton 4.6L V-8. The brawny 5.4L V-8 engine is available for $800. The smooth and solid 4R70W four-speed automatic transmission is the only gearbox available for both engines.

On the road, the SuperCrew equipped with the optional 5.4L V-8 is willing and responsive throughout the power curve. From rest up to highway speeds, the full-size Ford is controlled and predictable – easy to handle. The ($340) optional beefy Goodyear Wrangler AT/S LT265/70R17 tires, standard on the top-of-the-line Lariat models, keep the truck firmly attached to the pavement.

Inside the cabin, straightforward displays and controls greet the driver. Outward visibility is very good. There is firm, comfortable seating throughout the cabin. A large center console yields a large storage bin which can hold the optional six disc CD-changer. Armrests for both driver and passenger increase the comfort level. Four cupholders and the standard power driver's seat in the Lariat models make the interior very hospitable for long distances.

Rear seating is where this truck shines. The full doors make entry and exit from the rear seat a piece of cake. Three adults can ride in the rear seat in relative comfort. Rear seat occupants are further spoiled with the $1,295 optional rear seat audio/video entertainment system which features a fold-down flat screen from the overhear console. For those who desire additional cargo space, the rear seat is a 60/40 split configuration designed to fold flat to provide a place inside the cab to secure cargo.

By the numbers

Engine performance numbers are: 4.6L V-8 – 220 hp at 4,500 rpm and 290 lb/ft of torque at 3,250 rpm; 5.4L V-8 – 260 hp at 4,500 rpm and 350 lb/ft of torque at 2,500 rpm. EPA fuel economy ranges from 15 city/20 highway for the 4.6 V-8 to 15 city/19 highway for the gasoline version of the 5.4L V-8 using regular unleaded gasoline.

Underhood fluids are easily accessible but not consistently marked. Properly equipped, the Ford F-150 SuperCrew full-size pickup truck has a maximum payload of 1,900 pounds and can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 8,000 pounds.

Standard safety equipment includes: dual front airbags four-wheel disc brakes with antilock. XLT four-wheel drive models add fog lamps. Lariat models add remote keyless entry. The optional safety equipment list includes limited slip axle ($285).

The base Manufacturers Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the Ford F-150 SuperCrew pickup starts at $26,090 for the two-wheel drive XLT to $31,125 for the Lariat four-wheel drive model. Destination charge adds $665. Although Ford has been building the SuperCrew for several months, inventories will be tight for awhile. There are no rebates.

2000 CHEVROLET VENTURE WARNER BROS. EDITION MINIVAN

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

What's up Doc? What do General Motors and Bugs Bunny have in common? The new Chevrolet Venture Warner Bros. Edition minivan. Based on the long wheelbase model of the current minivan, it is designed to help make family road trips fun and safe. Billed as the "ultimate family road trip machine," this minivan is equipped with an overhead flip-down LCD video monitor – with Warner Bros. logo – and console-mounted stereo video cassette player with remote control so kids (and other rear-seat passengers) can watch their favorite Warner Bros. videos or play video games.

In addition to the on-board hardware, consumers who purchase this model get "VentureTainment." This is an ongoing relationship that gives them special access to free Warner Bros. videos and compact discs as well as items not available to the general public. Discounts at Warner Bros. Studio stores, early access to Six Flags theme parks, and sneak previews of Warner Bros. movies are just some of the current benefits available with other amenities currently being developed.

Built exclusively at General Motors' Doraville, Ga., a manufacturing complex, the Chevrolet Venture shares its underpinnings with the Oldsmobile Silhouette and Pontiac Montana minivans. Available in regular or extended wheelbase body styles, the front-drive Chevrolet Venture minivan is offered in Value, Base, Plus and LS trim levels for regular wheelbase models. Long wheelbase model choices include Plus, LS, LT and Warner Bros. Edition.

Dual sliding side doors are standard for all models, with a power sliding passenger side door a $450 to $500 option depending on equipment. Power rear vent windows are included as part of the package.

All Ventures are powered by a 3400 Series V-6 engine mated to the 4T65E four-speed automatic transmission. For the person looking for a minivan that accelerates and handles like a sports sedan, this Chevrolet fits the ticket.

On the road, this powertrain is very responsive with handling and control characteristics that make the demands of daily commuting a breeze. The $300 optional General XP200 GT self sealing P215/70R15 tires work with the suspension bits to maintain balance and control.

Inside the cabin, displays and controls are excellent. A low step in height makes this minivan easily accessible. A good view of the road greets the driver as well as a very comfortable driver's seat. Chevrolet has gone to great lengths to make the seating configuration in the Venture very versatile for hauling most any combination of people and/or cargo. There are up to 200 different seating configurations when the Venture is equipped with the available modular bucket seats. Depending on the seating package, the Chevrolet offers up to 17 cup holders.
