Police investigate stabbing death

By Rick Lopez
Staff Writer

Police are investigating the fatal stabbing of a Midland man whose body was found outside an abandoned house early Friday.

Officers identified the victim as 29-year-old Warrick Dewayne Clater. He appeared to have suffered a stab wound to the left side of his chest, said police spokeswoman Tina Jauz. His body was sent to Southwest Institute for Forensic Science in Dallas for an autopsy, she said.

Clater's family members said he grew up here and was expecting to have a child with his wife, Julia Clater.

Ms. Jauz said a motorist spotted Clater's body lying face-up at the intersection of Illinois Avenue and Carver Street. The driver went home and asked his wife to call police.

Officers were uncertain if the stabbing occurred Thursday night or Friday morning, and they had not located an eyewitness.

Detectives have few clues about the man's death, but they found evidence at the scene that might help illustrate the incident. At the east side of Carver Cultural Center, detectives found tire tracks that led from one side of Adams Street to the other. Officers found bloodstains and a knee impression on the ground where the tire tracks end.

"We think that's where the actual stabbing happened," Ms. Jauz said.

County to seek grant to install water, sewage lines

By Brian Rogers
Staff Writer

COUNTY COMMISSIONER LOUISA Valencia has been conducting a door-to-door survey in south Midland to determine if the area south of Midland and west of Rankin Highway is eligible for a colonia grant to install water and sewage lines.

The term colonia is loosely defined as an impoverished area within 150 miles of the Texas-Mexico border. Colonia grants are administered to lay down the most basic infrastructure to improve an area, like water lines and sewage systems.

Ms. Valencia personally has spoken to residents of at least 60 homes to determine that the people in the area surveyed qualify to receive the grant.

Previously, the residents traditionally depended on individual wells for their water supply. These wells have begun to run dry and sometimes have oil mixed in with the water.

Senaida Gomez, a 40-year resident of the area surveyed for possible water service, said she doesn't want city water piped to her residence. "We don't need water lines or sewage lines. As residents we have already paid for our water and sewage. We need the roads paved and we need street lights."

Ms. Gomez said she calls Commissioner Valencia every six months and she regularly calls the Sheriff's Department regarding traffic violations and the lack of police presence. Ms. Gomez also said she wants to begin a petition to have her woes addressed.

Ms. Gomez said she buys bottled water to drink although she has two wells on her prop-

Mayor forms 'Sky Is the Limit' committee

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland Mayor Bobby Burns has formed a new committee, "The Sky Is the Limit," inspired by Gov, George W. Bush's use of the old Midland slogan at the 2000 Republican National Convention.

"What I want to do is make sure during the campaign that, if there is exposure, that we make sure Midland is presented in an accurate way," Burns said on Friday. "And, at the same time, if George W. is elected president, Midland will then be known as home of the president."

Bush, 54, lived in Midland in his early school days in the 1950s and then in the 1970s, when he married Midland native Laura Welch, and into the 1980s.

In accepting the Republican Party nomination on Aug. 4 in Philadelphia, Bush recalled "The Sky Is the Limit" was Midland's motto in his childhood.

"And we believe it," Bush said. "There was a restless energy, a basic conviction that, with hard work, anybody could succeed, and everybody deserves a chance."

Serving with Burns on the committee, which is to meet at 11:30 a.m.. Wednesday in City Hall, are Midlanders Joe and Jan O'Neill, longtime friends of the Bushes; Robert Rendall, lawyer and former city councilman; Meta Minton, Reporter-Telegram

Housing sales, sale prices up slightly over last year

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

The busy summer selling season is coming to a close, the time when buyers and sellers try to close the deal in time for the new school year, but Midland's real estate market remains stable.

For July, the Permian Basin Board of Realtors member agents sold 145 homes, down from 163 in June and down from 175 sold in July last year.

"Last July, many of the Conoco move-outs and closings occurred," inflating the number, explained Bill Scott of Real Estate One Midland and president of the Board of Realtors.

For the year, he said, housing sales are up 8 percent, with a total 928 homes sold through July, compared with 857 sold in the same period last year. Sales prices are also up, 3.5 percent for the year, to an average $100,063 this year compared with an average $96,912 last year.

According to the city of Midland, 14 new home permits were issued in July, up from six last July. Year-to-date, the city has issued 126, up from 79 for the first seven months of 1999.

School year brings annual boost in business to downtown delis

By Matt Josefy
Staff Writer

Sophomores may not be too keen on the idea of walking to lunch, but a number of delis and restaurants are ready and waiting to accommodate the students, especially downtown, when school starts.

"Business probably picks up 10 to 15 percent," Paula Antrim, owner of the Sandwich Shop, said. "Basically we get the sophomores, because they can't drive. Once they get their cars, then they think they have to go further."

Midland High School may not be located near the major developments on Loop 250, offering a variety of fast food chains, but for sophomores without cars, that is not exactly the most viable option anyway.

Instead, until they get their licenses, or gain friends with vehicles, they are limited to on-campus dining options, the youth centers at the respective high schools, or to setting out on foot. But as much as they complain, Midland High School students, at least, have a number of alternatives within a few blocks.

"Our prices are pretty fair," said Elias Aguilar, owner of of La Posada Spanish Inn. The restaurant is literally a mom and pop place, with daughter Elva Dominguez working as well.

"Daily, we get one to five tables of students," Ms. Dominguez said. "They come in, they eat and they leave."

"Business picks up quite a bit," said Mark Taylor, whose business Splash Detailing is along the route students take to the Sandwich Shop, where he works part time.

Arafat's diplomatic offensive becoming a disappointment

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat's diplomatic offensive — he has visited 15 countries in 18 days — is shaping up as a disappointment.

Arab leaders have been cold to the idea of a special Arab summit — the ultimate brotherly embrace Arafat so badly sought after the United States blamed him for the failure of last month's Israel-Palestinian summit talks.

The Palestinian leader has also been unable to win international backing for a unilateral proclamation of Palestinian statehood in the event a peace treaty is not concluded by its Sept. 13 deadline.

Palestinian officials say U.S. pressure is to blame.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Edward Walker has been briefing Arab leaders on the U.S. positions and urging them not to do anything to lessen chances for a resumption of negotiations.

Arafat adviser Nabil Amr said many countries empathize with Arafat but are unwilling to defy Washington. "No one can ignore that many countries have strong relations with the United States and they don't want these relations to be affected," he said.

During Arafat's tour, including stops in Egypt and Saudi Arabia, he was told by many heads of state that he "should wait and give a chance for peace to move forward," Amr said.

Hinting at the Palestinians' disappointment, peace negotiator Ahmed Qureia told reporters this week that while the Arab world in principle backed Arafat's refusal to compromise over Jerusalem, "we, the Palestinians, want more from the Arab nations, and we hope they will contribute more."

Arafat's top priority remains a peace agreement with Israel, his aides say. However, he lacks leverage — something an Arab summit and international backing for a unilateral statehood declaration, to be used as a warning, might have given him.

If he softens his demands on Jerusalem and agrees to less than full sovereignty over the traditionally Arab eastern sector of the city, he can expect to be ostracized by many Arab and Islamic nations. East Jerusalem is home to important Islamic shrines.

If Arafat sticks to his position, he may be held responsible for a failure of the peace talks. At Camp David, President Clinton gave Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak credit for going beyond what Israeli governments had offered in the past and proposing limited Palestinian sovereignty in parts of east Jerusalem. Participants say Clinton angrily left the room when the Palestinians, insisting their views on Jerusalem were known, did not present an offer of their own.

In his tour of the Arab world, Arafat has been encouraged to stand tough on Jerusalem. Even at the risk of straining ties with Washington, Egypt has scoffed at U.S. and Israeli requests that it use its influence to soften the Palestinians' position.

However, beyond words, there has been little else.

With no efforts being made to convene an Arab summit, the most Arafat can hope for is a discussion on Jerusalem during the regular biannual meeting of the Arab League's foreign ministers in Cairo on Sept. 3 and 4.

Even Arafat's fallback plan — an emergency gathering of the member states of the Organization of the Islamic Conference — is not working out.

On Thursday, Israel's chief peace negotiator, Shlomo Ben-Ami, began a European tour, closely following the itinerary of Arafat envoy Nabil Shaath.

The Palestinian envoy scoffed at Israeli comments that Arafat's travels are a waste of time. "If this is a waste of time, why are they following us from place to place?" Shaath said.

Lech Walesa cleared of collaborating with secret police

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity founder Lech Walesa, who fought Polish communist rule for two decades before vanquishing it in 1989, was cleared Friday of collaborating with communist-era secret police and will again be allowed to run for president.

Walesa was forced to defend his reputation in the special screening court, which dismissed suggestions in old police files that he spied on fellow dissidents. The decision freed the 56-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner to run this fall for the presidency he lost in 1995.

"I fought with them, and I finally defeated them," the former shipyard electrician said after the court agreed that the files, written by agents whose job it was to discredit dissidents, were not credible.

In one of history's bitter ironies, Walesa was scrutinized under a new law that requires candidates to declare whether they ever cooperated with the communist secret services. There is no penalty for admitting collaboration, but anyone found by the court to have lied is banned from public office for 10 years.

President Aleksander Kwasniewski, an ex-communist who defeated Walesa in 1995 and is heavily favored to win again Oct. 8, was cleared by the screening court Thursday of similar allegations.

The spectacle of a popular president and a national hero having to defend themselves against such charges in open court appalled many Poles. It also has rekindled debate over Poland's belated and awkward struggle to come to terms with its communist past.

Critics say the screening law is flawed because it requires potentially embarrassing hearings even on flimsy evidence. But the Solidarity-led government — and Walesa himself — argued the law is appropriate and must be followed.

At least two members of parliament have been ousted for lying in screening statements since the law took effect in 1998.

Walesa leaned back and smiled in relief, his cheeks flush with emotion, as the verdict was read in the crowded, wood-paneled courtroom. But he said later he was "not fully pleased" because it would not persuade his political opponents that he was never a police informant.

"I am a little sick at heart because I had trusted in the screening. Now I see it has no point because the whole operation did not convince anyone," he said.

Walesa staunchly denied suggestions in photocopies dredged from police files that he had worked as an agent under the code-name Bolek.

Presiding Judge Pawel Rysinksi said he and his two colleagues on the court panel agreed that there "is no proof whatsoever to confirm (the allegations) or to question Lech Walesa's screening statement."

Prosecutor Krzysztof Kauba asked that the trial be stopped after newly disclosed documents Friday indicated secret police conspired to discredit Walesa in the 1980s when Solidarity was fighting to topple the communist regime.

A May 1985 Interior Ministry report detailed the use of professional forgers to fabricate documents to make it appear that Walesa was a paid agent. It said forged papers even were sent to Nobel committee members in 1982 in a bid to prevent Walesa from winning the peace prize. He won it anyway in 1983.

Walesa was agitated when he showed up Friday morning for his third and final hearing. He called the hearings a "laughable" political vendetta against him by former communist enemies.

In a closed morning session, the court heard from two former secret police officers and two former intelligence chiefs: Piotr Naimski, a political opponent of Walesa who held the job in 1992; and Gromoslaw Czempinski, a Walesa backer who held the post from 1993-96.

They refused to reveal their testimony afterward, but Naimski repeated to reporters his belief that agent Bolek was Walesa.

Czempinski countered that he did not believe Walesa could have been Bolek, and said he found it deplorable that the "symbol of Solidarity" had to undergo such treatment.

Rescue helicopter crashes, kills three

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A helicopter trying to rescue two stranded climbers crashed into Sweden's highest mountain and burst into flames Friday, killing all three crew members, police said.

Rescuers found the three bodies at the crash site at an altitude of 6,000 feet on the steep northeastern side of Kebnekaise, which rises 6,966 feet in Sweden's arctic about 700 miles northwest of the capital Stockholm.

The climbers, ages 50 and 80, were rescued a few hours after the crash by a Norwegian helicopter and taken to a research station at the base of the mountain.

Real or fake, cleric's art offer raises questions in Italy

Authorities suspect the pieces are not genuine — and even if they are, attempts to sell them would run up against laws safeguarding Italy's artistic patrimony.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — An Italian monsignor was under investigation Friday by prosecutors who suspect the former Vatican bureaucrat of trying to palm off fake masterpieces with Holy See certificates of authenticity.

Monsignor Michele Basso insists the works — ranging from a piece attributed to Michelango to 6th century B.C. Grecian gold — are the genuine articles, bequeathed to him by clerical colleagues.

"He got them from various monsignors who died old, alone, with no relatives," said Basso's lawyer, Lorenzo Contrada. "So they left what they had to their friends, people they had spent their lives with in the Vatican."

"He got them in good faith, like a gift from a friend," the lawyer said.

Basso is the former administrator of the Vatican archives and then of the Vatican pension fund, leaving that post in 1994-95, according to Contrada.

The Holy See's press office described his current duties at St. Peter's as "strictly liturgical," such as celebrating Masses.

Basso still calls Vatican City his home, sharing what Rome's Il Messaggero daily described as a two-level penthouse flanking the dome of St. Peter's with his — if genuine — priceless art collection.

Il Messaggero broke the news of the investigation Friday, saying Rome prosecutors started asking questions July 27 upon learning the cleric was looking for buyers for his works.

The most potentially valuable works include Etruscan relics, the ancient Greek gold pieces, a depiction of St. John attributed to Michelangelo and a work by 16th-century, Flemish-born Giambologna.

Prosecutors have moved to seize the works — as well as a cache of blank certificates of authenticity on Vatican paper with seals of the Holy See that allegedly were to be used in their sale, Il Messaggero said.

Rome's art superintendent's office examined photos of the works and expressed doubts about their authenticity.

Authorities suspect the pieces are not genuine — and even if they are, attempts to sell them would run up against laws safeguarding Italy's artistic patrimony.

Officials at the Rome prosecutors' office failed to return repeated calls for comment Friday.

Contrada confirmed that a Vatican judge and Italian police have questioned his client.

The Vatican declined to go into the merits of the case, with the press office saying only, "The Holy See respects the Italian legal system."

Contrada said none of the works has yet been sold. The lawyer said his client believes the works to be genuine and has given investigators names and dates surrounding their acquisition.

Basso only belatedly realized the worth of the gifts his friends had left him, Contrada said. His aim now is to sell the works to raise money for a hospital in Albania, Contrada said.

It's far from the first time Vatican clerics have come under scrutiny from prosecutors.

In 1999, the Vatican distanced itself from two priests who allegedly provided a cloak of respectability for rogue U.S. financier Martin Frankel, who is accused of bilking millions of dollars from U.S. insurance companies.

The Vatican bank, formally called the Institute for Religious Works, was badly tainted by a banking scandal in the 1980s due to the collapse of the Banco Ambrosiano.

Clerics have been suspected of illegal trafficking in works of art in at least two other cases since World War II — one involving a part-time representative of the Holy See at the United Nations and the other a monsignor.

In 1997, a Polish worker in the Holy See's protocol department fled a Rome arrest warrant for alleged participation in a stolen carring into Poland.

Forgotten prisoner returns home to Hungary from Russia

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — A Hungarian prisoner deposited in a Russian psychiatric hospital after World War II and forgotten for five decades returned Friday to Hungary — a homeland he hasn't seen since the 1940s.

Andras Tamas, 75, flew to Budapest from Moscow aboard a Hungarian airliner and was rushed in a wheelchair past hundreds of reporters and onlookers to a van that took him to the National Psychiatric and Neurological Institute. He is expected to stay there for at least two months.

Several elderly people who suspect they may be his relatives were at the Budapest airport but were unable to speak to Tamas. One elderly woman rushed forward to give him flowers but was jostled aside.

Until Friday, Tamas had not set foot outside the hospital in the Russian town of Kotelnich since Soviet secret police brought him there as a young man in 1947. For years, no one knew who he was, and hospital staff mistook his Hungarian mutterings for gibberish.

An encounter with a Hungarian-speaking Russian unlocked the mystery. A Hungarian psychiatrist visited him in the hospital and came away convinced that Tamas was an ethnic Hungarian.

Hungarian authorities said they had still not uncovered enough about Tamas' background but decided to issue him a Hungarian passport and bring him home for humanitarian reasons.

A privately chartered double-decker bus rolled out of the hospital yard in Russia early Friday, embarking on a nearly daylong journey to carry Tamas and accompanying medical staff to Moscow. Doctors thought a bus trip to Moscow would be less stressful than a flight.

Seated by a window on the bus, Tamas stared nervously ahead, occasionally glancing around anxiously. He grew teary-eyed at times, and doctors said he felt ill.

Wearing a light blue button-down shirt, a sweater vest and a small hat, Tamas was guided into a wheelchair and pushed through the maze of passengers at Moscow's airport. He looked dazed.

No record of Tamas' birth or any living relative has been found, and his memories date to the ravaged Hungary of the war years.

"I don't know where I will live, because everything has been bombed," he said recently in his hospital room.

Other than his name, Soviet-era records said nothing about his background. Unable to speak Russian, Tamas could not communicate with hospital staff. Later, somebody thought Tamas was Romanian, and that was written in his records.

For Tamas, time stopped in 1947.

"He has lived here for a long time, but all his impressions, all his knowledge have remained at the level of 1940s," the chief doctor of the Kotelnich hospital, Yuri Petukhov, said last week.

A diplomat at the Hungarian Embassy in Moscow, Ferenc Puskas, said 20 Hungarian families have already offered to adopt him.

Correction

In Thursday's edition, a story about the superintendent of the Midland Independent School District receiving a raise said trustee James Fuller abstained from voting on the raise. Fuller voted against the raise.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

DEATH: Family upset with investigation methods

(From 1A)

Mrs. Clater said she last saw her husband at around 8 p.m.

"He left with some friends. I don't know where he was going," she said.

Mrs. Clater, 18, couldn't explain much more. Friends and family took turns consoling the shock-stricken widow as she watched officers collect evidence.

Don Clater, the victim's father, also stayed at the scene while officers conducted their probe.

"He was a good boy," he said of his son. "I loved him to death. He was happy. I'll miss him, but there's nothing I can do about it. He's gone now. I don't really know how it happened, but it was probably God's will."

The Clater family expressed disappointment with the way police handled the investigation. Don Clater said he was at the scene no later than 8:15 a.m., and noticed officers immediately started searching west on Illinois Avenue toward some neighboring taverns.

"About 10 to 15 (officers) started heading towards the flats. You've got four sides to a block, so why didn't they divide and look in all directions?" Don Clater said. "I hate to say this, but I bet they feel like it's just another black man who's dead."

Some evidence at the scene — two areas with blood splatters and the knee impression — was found by relatives who searched the opposite direction, he said.

Don Clater also claims police didn't secure the crime scene before crowds and reporters arrived. Officers cordoned off the abandoned house for a few minutes, but the site was soon exposed again.

"If this would have happened anywhere else, they would have shut down the streets," he said. "But when it's a black person, it's a different thing. They did a sad job with this investigation. My sister found the bloodstains, not them. This is what I'm upset about.

"I hope they find out what happened, because I will bug them until it happens."

Ms. Jauz said officers believe the investigation was handled appropriately. Police first searched east of Illinois because witnesses told officers that the victim was seen in that area the night before his death.

"We had reason to believe that the victim was in that direction earlier that evening ... and decided that field should be searched first," she said. Officers "blocked off what they thought was necessary at the time."

According to arrest records, local authorities have arrested Warrick Clater four times since 1999. His charges include two misdemeanor traffic violations, a misdemeanor charge for marijuana possession and a felony charge for cocaine possession.

Records also indicate in 1988, he pleaded guilty to aggravated robbery in exchange for a 10-year prison sentence. The incident occurred Nov. 11, 1988. He confessed to approaching a woman and her young daughter at the Loop 250 bowling alley and taking a purse at gunpoint. As he left, he fired one shot into the air, court records indicate.

The next day, he tried holding up two women at a north Midland apartment complex, but backed out and told them it was joke.

Records indicate he served his time at a prison in Snyder.

Friday's incident is the third slaying reported in Midland this year.

GRANT: Many in county have to buy drinking water

(From 1A)

erty.

"One of my wells has oil in the water so it's not drinkable, and that water will kill plants if I use it to water my garden or flowers," she said.

Timothy Meadows lives in and also does yard work in the area surveyed. He agreed with Ms. Gomez that a lot of people are having problems with their wells.

Although Meadows has drinkable water at his home, he considers himself an exception.

Jose Levario, who has lived in the area surveyed for six months said he wants the county to put in water lines. He said he has very low water pressure and also has to buy drinking water.

Jose Gaytan owns property in the proposed area, but has yet to move there. He said he plans on moving to the area, and water lines and sewage would be an incentive to move.

Luis Leal, who has owned Leal's Cabinets and Glass Tinting on West County Road 115 since 1982, said the water there is drinkable, but that water lines and sewage lines are a good idea. He credits Commissioner Valencia with good upkeep of the dirt roads in the area.

Leal's brother, Paul Leal, also works at Leal's Cabinet shop. He said he lives in the area and has to buy drinking water.

Midland County received a $60,000 planning grant to survey the moderately populated area immediately south of the city limits and extending west from Rankin Highway to Loop 250. The survey was completed by Parkhill, Smith and Cooper.

The county is now preparing to submit the construction grant, which would bring $500,000 to Midland for construction of water lines and sewage in the area surveyed.

The survey grant was received through a colonia grant that is a funding mechanism for the Texas Community Development Program (TCDP), administered by the Texas Department of Housing and Community Development Association (TDHCDA), and ultimately funded with federal dollars through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

If received, the construction grant also will be a colonia grant.

The residents in the county would be charged one and half times the usual water rate because of their location.

DELIS: Some eateries see as much as 40 percent increase in business

(From 1A)

"When school starts, we have an upsurge in business, probably a 30 to 40 percent increase for those few months. A lot of students eat downtown," agreed Teresa Kent, owner of Steve's Midtowner Deli. "They don't have vehicles yet."

Ms. Kent has noticed that by January, some of the spike tails off, but she still has some regular student customers. Many of her business customers realize that students will be present and plan their lunch schedules accordingly, to avoid longer lines.

When looking for more of a sit-down meal, Murray's Deli is sometimes a popular choice, though the downtown location does not see as many students as might be expected.

"Students might be 10 percent of our business. Most of the kids look for more of a fast-food type place, because they usually have more time constraints," owner Serge Eberhard said. "But we can tell the days that school gets out early."

Thomas Ochs, owner of Sidekicks, which is located in the Arco Building, is proud to find himself witness to family gatherings.

"A lot of their parents worked in the building and they would meet for lunch," Ochs said. "Students would come in by themselves, maybe two or three times a week. Sometimes just a couple and sometimes groups of 10 to 15."

So many kids crowding into small downtown establishments might seem like a recipe for disaster, but that has not been the case.

"They are pretty well-behaved," Ochs said. "They are not really messy and I haven't thrown anybody out or anything like that. They like it here, because we've got a pretty good-sized eating area."

"The better portion of kids are great. We have zero problems. At one point, we had to tell some of them what we expected and those that could deal with it stayed. Those that couldn't left," Ms. Kent said. "They don't make public spectacles of themselves. They just sit there and have a good time with their friends."

The fare?

"Most get chili cheese fries or grilled cheese," Ms. Antrim said.

At Midtowner, the favorites are croissants or burritos, while Murrays and Sidekicks see teens frequently devouring their specialty hamburgers.

Part of the joy of working with students is the memories.

"We get a lot of the foreign exchange students. It's neat to watch, because they're not used to American food. One student would order three hot dogs every day and it took months before he got enough of them and tried something else," Ms. Antrim said.

"We enjoy having them. If we know it's their birthday, we give them a cookie and we have some that come back and say hi even after they graduate," Ms. Kent said.

"Basically, they are turning into great future customers. Usually they are kids whose parents come here. We go from having their little birthday parties to their graduation parties. Then, they come back with their own little kids," Eberhard said.

Of course, none of this would be happening at all, if some people had their way. That's because they don't think students should leave the campus at all during the school day. They want "closed campuses."

But, according to superintendent of schools Joseph Baressi, Jr., closed campus is not an option being pursued at this point in time.

"I don't think at this point we could close the campuses if we wanted to," he said, noting that Lee High School students without vehicles do not have a downtown option, but may sometimes walk toward establishments on Midland Drive.

POLICE REPORTS

Grand jury reset

Three recent death investigations have been rescheduled for an Aug. 23 grand jury, Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre said Friday.

The cases originally scheduled for Wednesday's grand jury include the death of Greenwood High School senior Talina Aguirre, the death of 3-year-old Micheal Chilcoat and the death of former KWES-TV reporter Jennifer Gutierrez.

Baby death

The Howard County District Attorney's Office and Scenic Mountain Medical Center have entered negotiations that might help law enforcement solve the death of a baby girl.

On Wednesday, the Howard County sheriff's office subpoenaed hospital records that could identify the birth mother of a baby found dead in a suitcase in a rural farmhouse on Aug. 2.

The subpoena sought the records of women who "exhibited evidence of childbirth or evidence of vaginal trauma." Scenic Mountain officials announced Thursday that they would not turn over the records.

But on Friday, the hospital's attorney in Houston and law enforcement seemed a step closer to reaching an agreement, District Attorney Hardy Wilkerson said. The two entities were trying to decide what information can be released without sacrificing the patients' privacy.

"We're trying to be careful and not go in there and grab all the records we can," he said. "We're talking to them about how and what to expect and what kind of records we're looking at."

A grand jury will convene Aug. 16 to evaluate the records and decide what should be done with them, he said.

Sheriff Bill Jennings said his office is still pursuing leads in the case. He said the records — if obtained — will narrow down a list of possible suspects to eight or nine women. The records will determine which women are still pregnant and which have delivered a baby.

The hospital's attorney, Gayle Friend, could not be reached for comment.

Death investigation

The Odessa Metro Homicide Unit announced Friday they received a final autopsy report for the death of Sandra Palmer Ramirez.

On July 20, one of Ms. Ramirez's family members found her body inside the trunk of a Cadillac she used to drive. Police suspect she had been dead for a week. The car never moved from her house in the 700 block of Wilson Street.

Sgt. Larry Bartlett said in a news release that Ms. Ramirez died of hyperthermia, but an investigation didn't reveal any foul play.

Ector County Medical Examiner Dave Spear ruled her manner of death as undetermined.

OBITUARIES

Wanda Keller

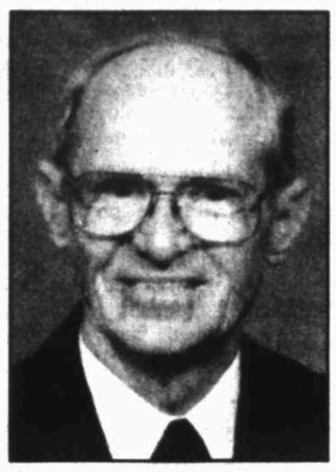

Wanda H. Keller was born May 28, 1927 in Granite City, Illinois to Oscar and Nona (Kell) Hawkins. Mrs. Keller was reared and educated in Salem, Illinois and was a graduate of William Woods College in Fulton, Missouri and the University of Missouri in Columbia, Missouri. On March 17, 1952, she married Donald T. Keller in Salem, Illinois. She was a member of the Arkansas Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution and the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. Mrs. Keller was a longtime resident of Midland and a member of Memorial Christian Church. She had recently returned to Midland after living in Hot Springs Village, Arkansas for the past 10 years.

Mrs. Keller died in Midland on August 10, 2000.

Memorial services have been scheduled for Saturday, August 12, 2000, at 3:00 p.m. at Memorial Christian Church with the Rev. Clark Ford, retired from the Memorial Christian Church, officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Wanda was preceded in death by her husband, Donald. She is survived by her daughters, Susan K. Yarborough and her husband, James L., of Midland, Texas, and Nancy K. Miller and her husband, Joseph, of Baton Rouge, Louisiana; her son, William (Bill) Keller of Midland, Texas; and her grandchildren, Sarah, Rebekah, and Brian Miller.

In lieu of flowers, please make donations to Hospice of Midland, American Cancer Society, or the charity of one's choice.

David Williams

David E. Williams, 72, our beloved father, grandfather, brother, friend and Brother in Christ, passed away August 10, 2000, at his home in Midland after a hard fought battle with heart disease.

He was born on the Magnolia Lease, Electra, Wilbarger County, Texas on July 24, 1928. He was a graduate of Electra High School and attended Hardin College (now Midwestern University). He served in the U.S. Navy in Hawaii at the end of WWII. David worked for Texaco, Inc. for over 25 years and for C.L. Tyra for over 10 years. He was a member of St. Mark's United Methodist Church in Midland since 1970, holding various offices in the church. He loved working with the church youth and going on Law Witness Missions. He loved doing for others and enjoyed cooking and sharing his "treats" with others.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Yvonne (Smith) Williams (died December 11, 1976), who he called his one and only sweetheart. He was also preceded in death by his mother, Georgia "Memmy" Williams; his father, T.J. "Buster" Williams; his older sister, Wilma; and his older brother, DeCourse.

He is survived by his sons: Ken Williams of Houston, Texas, Tab Williams and his wife, Nancy, of Lubbock, Texas, and Van Williams and his wife, Tiffany, of The Woodlands, Texas; his four grandchildren: Stefanie, Zachary, Madeline and Abigail; his brother, Sonny Williams of Hot Springs, Arkansas; his sister, Mary Ann Brownlee and husband, Verg, of Brooks, Georgia; his sister-in-law, Joyce Gunes and husband, Calvin, of Dallas, Texas; many cousins, nieces and nephews; his beloved dog, Bo; his special friends, Robin and John Berry, Diane and Martin Bucy, and a host of other friends who loved him dearly.

Viewing and farewells will be at Ellis Funeral Home in Midland on Friday, August 11, from 5:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Services will be held on Saturday, August 12, 2000, at 10:00 a.m. at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, Midland, Texas.

In lieu of flowers, please make donations to either St. Mark's United Methodist Church or the Hospice of Midland in David's memory.

DEATHS

Maxine Wynne

Maxine Wynne, 69, died Friday, Aug. 11, in Odessa.

Funeral services will be 2 p.m. Monday, Aug. 14, at the Fort Stockton Funeral Home, (915) 336-3721, with the Revs. Harold Durham and Dean Gressett officiating. Burial will be at the East Hill Cemetery.

She was born Aug. 26, 1930 in Big Spring.

She moved to Fort Stockton in 1949, and in Aug. 1999 to Midland. She had worked as a receptionist, and as a classified clerk at the newspaper. She was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include her husband, Harold Wynne of Midland; a daughter, Karen E. Foster of Rosharon; two sons, Clifford Wynne of Fort Stockton and Jimmy Wynne of Midland; two sisters, Bobby Reed of Sheffield and Nelda J. Ledford of Fort Stockton; two brothers, J.C. Coffman of Fort Stockton and W.A. Coffman of Rock Springs; and three grandsons.

Johnnie Slater

SEATTLE, Wash.—Johnnie Slater, 79, died Tuesday, Aug. 8. in Seattle.

Memorial services will be 1 p.m. Monday, Aug. 14, at the Ballard Elks, 6411 Seaview Ave. NW in Seattle.

He was a longtime supporter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Survivors include his wife, Billie Slater of Seattle; twin sons, Larry Slater of Seattle and Lanny Slater of Midland; one grandson, and one granddaughter.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the MDA-Midland Office, 3001 N. Big Spring, Suite 103, Midland, TX 79705.

Fernando Daly Jr.

DALLAS—Fernando Daly Jr., 72, died Thursday, Aug. 10, in Dallas.

Memorial services will be held in Dallas under the direction of Oak Cliff Funeral Home, (214) 943-6000.

He was born March 8, 1928 in Presidio.

He began farming in 1952 in Presidio, moved to Midland in 1965 where he was an independent machinist until retiring in 1999, when he moved to Dallas.

He was preceded in death by a sister, Imelda Parker.

Survivors include his wife, Lily Daly of Dallas; three daughters, Dianne Anderson of Midland, and Sandra Wiggins and Loretta Whitaker, both of Dallas; two sons, Patrick Daly, M.D. of Dallas and Richard Daly of Redding, Calif.; three sisters, Stella McKeel, Grace Runyon and Jane Hueman; nine grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

HOUSING: Numbers indicate stable market steady, with interest rates trending downward somewhat in the last 30 days. Rates range between 7.75 and 8 percent, she said.

Customers, she said, are a combination — "A little bit of relocation, some first-time buyers and move-ups."

Comparing July with last July, she said, "I would see business is about the same."

Listings are also up to 909 in July from 842 last year.

"They're higher than we'd like," admitted Scott, "but it's still in the range of being a stable market. If listings continue to go up, it will be a cause for concern, especially if they go over 1,000. I've been watching the last two or three weeks and listings have fluctuated just under and just over 900, so I think they may have topped off."

Some of the sellers are leaving town, he said, and a number are moving up to larger houses.

The 90 homes under contract is a good number for August, he said, adding he has talked with the title companies, who tell him the number of upcoming contracts is still reasonable.

"I'm optimistic the next three months will tell the tale for the year," he said.

Strange species of bullfrog has ecoscientists in a quandary

MONTREAL (NYT) — Giant American bullfrogs are marauding through the mud ponds of British Columbia, while a scheme that critics claim amounts to "ethnic cleansing of fish" may soon eradicate countless trout from a Rocky Mountain lake that is one of Canada's most famous landmarks.

It's adding up to a rough summer for aquatic species in Canada.

Although not directly connected, the devastation wrought by aggressive "alien" bullfrogs and the controversial plan to restore the bull-trout to its original habitats in Alberta — after first annihilating the "introduced" breeds that have taken over — represent two sides of a dilemma that is plaguing even relatively pristine Canada: What to do when outside species upset nature's balance?

For now, little is being done to combat the surge of bullfrogs in British Columbia. But at Banff National Park in Alberta, scientists are preparing to take an ambitious, activist approach, seeking to turn back the ecological clock by large scale slaughter of fish brought there by humans — perhaps using massive electroshocks or poison — to allow the return of the bull-trout.

But first the frogs.

There are few things more Canadian than agonizing over the prospect of being swallowed by the big neighbor to the south. But a researcher at the University of Victoria has gathered evidence that the threat is only too literal for indigenous Canadian frog species inhabiting the ponds and small lakes of British Columbia.

American bullfrogs, brought to the region over the years as stock for frogleg farms or as living ornaments for garden ponds, have lately started wreaking havoc on native species. They are devouring smaller Canadian tree frogs and red-legged frogs at alarming rates, says frog researcher Purnima Govindarajulu, who has charted the invasion in a study that started in 1997.

"The bullfrog is a handsome frog, but such a predator," Govindarajulu said of the bug-eyed, banjo-voiced critter that has become amphibian enemy No. 1 on Vancouver Island. "When their population expands, it expands very quickly — about five kilometers a year in the Victoria area."

Local frogs, having no experience of the big bullying American, become easy prey for the invader, which has taken over scores of lakes and ponds in southwestern regions of the province.

Govindarajulu said the first American bullfrogs were brought to the region in the 1930s by aspiring frogleg farmers or pond owners seeking an exotic addition to the cattails and lily pads. Over the past few years, for reasons not yet understood, the newcomers have started gorging on their fellow frogs at a rate that could wipe out the two most common local species.

"We're not sure if there's been a new introduction of bullfrogs, or if something else changed," said Govindarajulu — who, in keeping with an activist trend among some ecoscientists, is monitoring the bullfrog populations in three of the lakes in her six-lake study, while systematically killing off the bullfrogs in the others to see what happens.

> 'We're not sure if there's been a new introduction of bullfrogs, or if something else changed.'
> — Purnima Govindarajulu, who has charted the invasion since 1997

"We're looking at how effectively we can control them," Govindarajulu told the Canadian Press news agency. "Or if we can control them."

High in the Rocky Mountains, meanwhile, a plan to save one species of fish by destroying others is winning praise from environmentalists but drawing flak from anglers, animal lovers, and taxpapyer groups.

With its turqoise waters ringed by spectacular snowcapped peaks, Moraine Lake in Banff National Park is one of Canada's great natural treasures.

"But the kind of fish living beneath that beautiful, clear water are not representative of the original ecosystem," said Charles Zinkan, director of mountain national parks for Parks Canada.

Ideas of how to manage national parks in both Canada and the United States have changed drastically in recent years. Until a decade or so ago, there was nothing unusual about Banff's practice of stocking lakes with outside species more pleasing to anglers. As a result, native bull-trout populations have been all but destroyed by brook trout and rainbow-cutthroat trout hybrids. Not a single bull-trout presently survives in Moraine Lake.

But under a new mandate, Parks Canada is seeking to restore Banff and other national parks to their original state as much as possible. For Moraine Lake, that means bringing home the bull-trout. But park officials believe the more vulnerable species will survive only if competing trout are "removed from the natural equation," as Zinkan delicately put it.

That's where the poisons, electrical jolts, and giant drag nets come in. Those are some of the methods being weighed by Parks Canada to eradicate the introduced species. But a plan to blast the brook and rainbow trout to oblivion with dynamite was recently withdrawn after a huge public outcry.

Many scientists applaud the concept of bringing back the bull-trout. "It would be nice to keep a few lakes in their natural state for long-term reference," said David Schindler, a University of Alberta ecologist and one of Canada's foremost wildlife experts.

But some critics call the government scheme preposterous, even cruel.

Real Fishing magazine blasted the plan as "trout genocide," animal rights groups maintain it will cause suffering for the targeted trout, while the Canadian Taxpayers Federation called it an appalling waste of public money.

"It's tax dollars for the ethnic cleansing of fish," fumed federation director Walter Robinson.

Nontheless, the eradication program may begin this fall. Once all the other trout are killed, there will be a wait of four years — basically, to ensure they stay killed — before the bull-trout are reintroduced from the handful of mountain lakes in which they still survive.

"You are removing trout and putting in trout," said Craig Ritchie, editor of Real Fishing. "You end up with the same thing — trout in a lake."

But the government believes the project serves an ecologically noble end.

"Our goal is to restore an indigenous population, to bring a lake back more closely to what it was," Zinkan said. "There seems some public misunderstanding of that concept."

ATTENTION: Home Owners...
"Don't Buy A New Air Conditioner...
Until You See My $500 No-Frustration Guarantee"
David Rydell
Wizard of Comfort
Dear Friend,
The worst thing that can happen (other than paying too much) when you replace your air conditioners, is to have the new one break down... or fail to cool properly... on a hot day.
Now, most air conditioning companies offer a parts and labor warranty for at least a year, but that doesn't keep you from the frustration and aggravation of being without air conditioning. Some times it's days until they fix it... even if they fix it for nothing.
So, there you are with a new air conditioners... and no cooling!
Enough is Enough
Anyway, I decided that enough is enough and I would put my money where my mouth is. ComfortZone 500 installs air conditioners better than anybody in Midland. So, I decided to have a guarantee better than anyone else.
It's simply this. I invented my own $500 No-Frustration Guarantee that you get in addition to all the normal parts and labor warranties.
Here's how it works. Purchase your new central air conditioners from ComfortZone 500 Air Conditioning (you can choose from several major brands). Then, if it breaks down just once... for any reason, or if there is any problem as a result of our installation and you are without cooling... I will not only fix if FREE... I will also pay you $500 for your inconvenience, frustration and aggravation. And this guarantee is for a FULL TWO YEARS!
This proves that when you do business with ComfortZone 500, you can't lose. And because of my guarantee, I can't afford to cut corners on installation or sell you a lemon.
So, doesn't it just make good sense to get a no-obligation, FREE survey and estimate before you purchase from anyone else? Call now...
Yours For No Lemons,

Members of Buena Vista Social Club Manuel Guajiro Mirabal, left, and Ruben Gonzalez, center, take a break during a practice session Thursday in Havana. Rehearsing for their first public concert in Cuba on Friday, Gonzalez and the rest of the mostly elderly members of the Buena Vista Social Club said they were delighted to be back home to finally share their music with their compatriots.

Cuban musicians give first public concert at home

HAVANA (AP) — As his gnarled hands pounded the keys of the Russian-made concert piano in the Karl Marx theater, octogenarian Ruben Gonzalez flashed a wide smile.

Rehearsing for their first public concert in Cuba on Friday night, Gonzalez and the rest of the mostly elderly members of the Buena Vista Social Club said they were delighted to be back home to share their music with their compatriots after playing to sold-out concerts in the United States and Europe.

"In your own land, one always feels better," said Gonzalez, a smallish man with white cropped hair and a bright orange guayabera shirt who gave his age as "83, or 84."

"I like going over there, but I like it more here," Gonzalez added during the Thursday evening rehearsal.

Although they have gained fame around the globe in recent years for their music and the documentary "Buena Vista Social Club," most of the musicians are virtually unknown in Cuba, where their music has not been publicized and marketed.

The 90-something-year-old Cuban musician Francisco Repilado, who plays under the name "Compay Segundo," is among the few participants on the Buena Vista recordings well known here. But Repilado has his own band and performs in Cuba occasionally.

The Buena Vista group is made up of once nearly-forgotten musicians who were discovered by American guitarist and producer Ry Cooder in the late 1990s.

Their forte is the "son" — traditional Afro-Cuban orchestra music heavy in brass and percussion. They also play the more romantic, Spanish-influenced bolero and the danzon — dance music with an urgent telegraph-like beat.

The Buena Vista Social Club performed on the island twice last year to small invitation-only audiences, group members say, but has never held a concert for the general Cuban public. Tickets went on sale earlier this week, at 50 cents for Cubans and $10 for foreigners.

The group's first album, "Buena Vista Social Club," was an instant international sensation when it was released in 1997. They later released "Buena Vista Social Club Presents Ibrahim Ferrer," "Introducing...Ruben Gonzalez," and the new "Buena Vista Social Club Presents Omara Portuondo," all on the World Circuit/Nonesuch label.

The albums have repeatedly appeared on Billboard's Top 10 lists for world and Latin music. The latest, featuring female singer Portuondo, appears this week on Billboard's Top 10 list for Latin albums.

The group's fame increased with its appearance in the concert film of the same name. The movie by German filmmaker Wim Wenders was nominated for an Oscar this year in the documentary category.

Last month, "Buena Vista Social Club" remained on the list of top video sales in the United States.

The group will continue its touring on Monday, when it leaves for its first visit to Japan, said singer Ibrahim Ferrer, 73, one of the group's top names, along with Gonzalez and Portuondo. Later this year, the group will travel to South America for the first time, he said.

"But I'm really happy now to be able to play in my own country," Ferrer said.

French court orders experts to study Yahoo! case

PARIS (AP) — A court on Friday called for a team of experts to examine ways of blocking French Internet users from U.S. giant Yahoo!'s auction site in a legal battle over who should be held responsible for online racism.

Two Paris-based human rights groups filed suit in April against Yahoo! for hosting auctions of Nazi objects including Nazi medallions, swastika-emblazoned battle flags and other Third Reich paraphernalia.

In France is it illegal to sell or exhibit anything that incites racism. The U.S. Constitution's protection of free speech allows the expression of racist or extremist ideas. Yahoo is based in Santa Clara, Calif.

Judge Jean-Jacques Gomez ruled in May that Yahoo! — owner of the world's most visited Web pages — had offended France's "collective memory," and ordered the company to pay fines to the two human rights groups that sued — the International League Against Racism and Anti-Semitism and the Union of Jewish Students of France.

Gomez also ordered Yahoo! to find a way to block French users from the U.S.-based pages in question. On Friday, he put off any decisions on that matter and called for a team of three experts — one French, one American, and one European — to study ways to identify Web users by origin and filter French users from the site.

The experts will present their findings to the court on Nov. 6.

Christophe Pecnard, a lawyer for Yahoo!, said he thought the judge's action seemed "reasonable."

Gomez also decided on Friday not to order that Yahoo! be fined additionally for every day the disputed sites remained accessible from France.

Yahoo has pulled Third Reich paraphernalia from its French site — fr.Yahoo.com — in keeping with national laws. In a further step, the company recently added warnings, in French, to some pages of its U.S.-based site containing sensitive material, alerting French users they risk breaking French law by viewing them.

Yahoo's lawyers say it would be impossible to go further, arguing that it is not technically feasible to keep French users off disputed Web sites.

Cheney says Gore not responsible for Clinton failings

HOLLAND, Mich. (AP) — Dick Cheney said Friday Al Gore shouldn't be held accountable for President Clinton's personal failings, but Americans should reject him because his administration would be just like Clinton's.

Cheney, the GOP vice presidential nominee, said Clinton is "still trying to deal with" the fallout from his affair with a White House intern and subsequent impeachment, and it shouldn't rub off on Gore.

"Responsible for Clinton's personal mistakes? No, I don't think so," Cheney said in an interview with The Associated Press as he wrapped up his first solo campaign trip as George W. Bush's running mate.

Democratic presidential rival Gore is trying to "avoid the negative aspects" of the Clinton White House, Cheney said, suggesting Americans don't want another four years of similar policies. "A Gore administration would be a continuation of the last eight years," under Clinton, he said.

Cheney's comments didn't square with the harsher view of Bush, who said Friday that Clinton's ethical misconduct "embarrassed the nation" and Gore should do more to repudiate it. "Americans want to be assured that the next administration will bring honor and dignity to the White House," Bush told reporters while campaigning on the West Coast.

As to Clinton's suggestion voters should not hold Gore responsible for his mistakes, the Texas governor said: "Are they going to hold Al Gore responsible for missed opportunities? I mean, either you're part of an administration or you're not part of an administration is how I view it."

On Thursday, Clinton's told a gathering of ministers that he had made a "terrible mistake" in having an affair with Monica Lewinsky. And he said of Gore: "Surely no fair-minded person would blame him for any mistake that I made."

Cheney said Gore's choice of running mate Sen. Joe Lieberman, an Orthodox Jew, doesn't help the vice president escape the shadow of Clinton scandals. The Connecticut senator was among the first Democrat in the Senate to openly criticize Clinton for immoral behavior.

Gore's pick doesn't change the fact that "for eight years he was Clinton's vice president," said Cheney.

Cheney spoke over a cup of coffee before a campaign stop at a Meijers Superstore in Holland, Mich., a giant Midwest retailer that sells everything from groceries to couches under one roof.

> 'Responsible for Clinton's personal mistakes? No, I don't think so.'
> — Dick Cheney, GOP vice presidential nominee

Cheney was touring the Holland store, which hires people coming off welfare. Later, he was visiting a state employment center in Moline, Ill.

The stops were the last of a three-day trip aimed at beefing up support for Bush in states where millions of independent voters who swing between Democrats and Republicans could decide the November election. Cheney made stops in Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Missouri and Illinois.

Just a week ago Cheney and Bush toured some of the same states, part of a strategy to have the former defense secretary shadow Bush to get the maximum exposure. Vice presidential candidates usually travel the country raising money for the party and campaigning on behalf of congressmen.

Cheney said his first obligation is to the national ticket, but added that he plans to campaign for House and Senate Republicans in the fall. He has already talked about campaigning with two, who he declined to name.

On a whistle-stop train tour with Bush last week and during his solo trip, Cheney often spoke of his experience in Washington.

Yet he accused Gore and Lieberman — who both served in Congress — of being Washington insiders, ill-equipped to run the country because they have no private sector experience.

"The other ticket basically comes out of Washington," said Cheney. "For Al Gore virtually his entire life and for Joe Lieberman certainly a good part of it."

Cheney spent the past five years as chief executive officer of oil-services giant Halliburton Co., which operates in 130 countries and has some 100,000 employees world wide. Bush, governor of Texas for the past 5 1/2 years, was in the oil business in Texas and was part-owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team.

Before joining Halliburton, Cheney was secretary of defense in the Bush administration, a 10-year House member representing Wyoming, chief of staff to President Ford and worked in the Nixon administration.

Cheney will officially resign from Halliburton on Aug. 16. He has resigned from the board of directors at EDS Corp., a computer services company that does a lot of work for the government and has taken a leave of absence from his board positions at Proctor & Gamble and Union Pacific Corp., although doesn't plan to resign yet.

Gore tries to distance himself from scandal; hindered by Clinton, Bush

■ News analysis

LOS ANGELES — George W. Bush wants to make moral values a campaign issue. Well, guess what? So does Al Gore.

Republicans tried in their presidential convention to resurrect voter disgust with the 1999 impeachment saga. They used buzz words — integrity, honor, decency — to stir memories of President Clinton's affair with Monica Lewinsky.

Against this backdrop, Gore has launched a values campaign to distance himself from the sex scandal. But his task has been complicated by two men he can't control: Bush and Clinton.

In the week before the Democratic National Convention, Gore has:

—Named as his running mate Connecticut Sen. Joe Lieberman, the most vocal Democratic critic of Clinton's personal behavior. Advisers portrayed it as a major step away from the president and his scandal.

—Moved forcefully against a Hispanic congresswoman from California who planned a convention-week fund-raiser at the Playboy mansion. Gore feared the event would further alienate swing voters, particularly women, who are siding with Bush because of his pledge to promote family values, allies said.

—Talked constantly of improving the lives of hardworking families and his own family values. Gore and his wife Tipper haven't missed a chance to talk about their marriage.

Knowing he is the focus of Gore's pre-convention values blitz, Clinton told ministers Thursday that he made a "terrible mistake" with Lewinsky. Of Gore, Clinton said: "Surely, no fair-minded person would blame him for any mistake that I made."

Advisers for both men say they didn't know in advance that the president would make a direct plea for the vice president's absolution. Gore said he appreciated the president's words.

Yet even Democrats suspect that the vice president was not helped by Clinton's latest mea culpa. It may simply remind voters why they might want a change at the White House.

"The best thing that could happen for Gore is if Clinton had just said nothing. Why talk about this three days before the convention?" said Charles M. Oberly III, a former attorney general in Delaware and a Democratic activist.

"I don't know whether it is a good thing, bad thing or neutral thing," said Gore's communications director, Mark Fabiani. "I do know we're determined to stay focused on a positive message and there will be events that occur throughout the campaign — some of which are good, some of which are bad and others that are neutral. We have no control over them and we can't be diverted by them."

Privately, Gore advisers said they were long since resigned to a political paradox: Clinton is a drag on the Democratic ticket, and yet may be the only person who can help scrub the taint of scandal from Gore. One senior Gore ally compared Clinton to an elephant in the room you can't ignore, can't control and can't ask to leave.

Matters are made worse, a number of Democrats say, by Clinton's busy convention schedule. He will be front-and-center all weekend and again Monday night, when he and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton deliver prime-time speeches.

Six out of 10 voters disapprove of Clinton as a person — the same ratio who approve of his job performance. Thus, Gore is linking himself to Clinton's public record and Bush is trying to saddle Gore with the president's personal flaws.

Saying Clinton's conduct "embarrassed the nation," Bush told reporters Friday that Gore should do more to repudiate it.

"If Al Gore has differences with the president, he ought to say loud and clear what they are," the Texas governor said.

Until Friday, Bush had tread lightly on the Lewinsky matter, promising only to "restore decency and integrity to the Oval Office."

His running mate Dick Cheney warned, "Al Gore will try to separate himself from his leader's shadow. But somehow, we will never see one without thinking of the other."

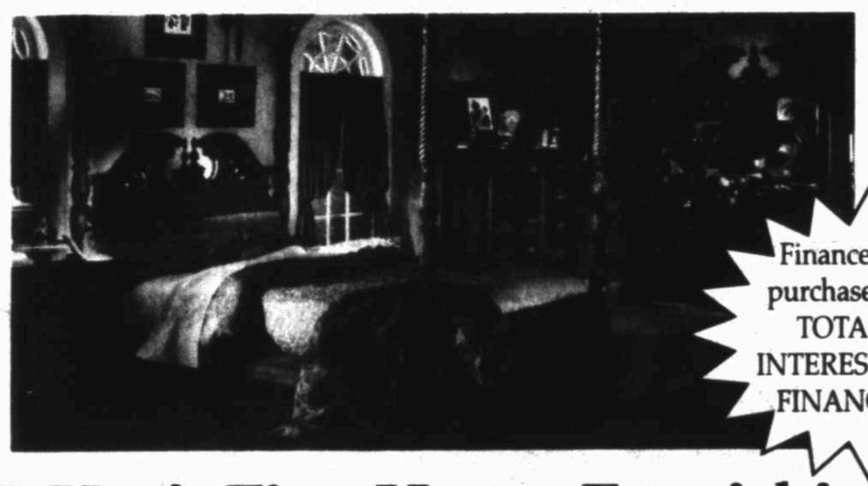

Michigan pollster Steve Mitchell said the line has resonance in his battleground state.

"Impeachment is one of those issues they don't talk about, even to us pollsters, but every parent who had to explain to their young children about oral sex because they heard it on the news have a real problem with Clinton and therefore with Gore because he was a part of it, if only by supporting him," Mitchell said.

Moral values is important for most voters, finishing a close second to education in most polls.

Art Torres, chairman of the California Democratic Party, said moral values wouldn't be such a big issue without the Lewinsky scandal. And if Clinton hadn't had the affair, Democrats might not be so sensitive to a fund-raiser at the Playboy mansion.

NTSB releases evidence reports in EgyptAir crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chilling details of a pilot's struggle to save doomed EgyptAir Flight 990 were released Friday in voluminous investigative documents that did little to settle a lingering dispute over what caused the plane to crash, killing 217 people.

"Pull. Pull with me. Pull with me. Pull with me," cried Capt. Mahmoud El-Habashy, the pilot, as he fought to pull out of a dive during the plane's last moments before it plunged into the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Nantucket last Oct. 31.

James Hall, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, stressed in making the records public that the cause remains under investigation. But he also noted that no public hearing will be held by the board because its investigators "believe there are no unresolved safety issues that require such a forum."

Hall has testified before Congress that the movements of the plane were "consistent with a deliberate action on the part of one of the crew members."

That's a suggestion that Egyptian authorities stoutly deny. They did so again Friday, continuing to call for further study of radar data and the plane's elevator, the device that controls up and down movement of the craft's nose.

"Additional work remains to be done, particularly in the assessing the design of the Boeing 767 elevator control system and gaining additional radar information, before the cause of this tragic accident can be finally determined," said Mohsen El Missiry, the head of the Egyptian group assisting in the investigation.

Much speculation as to the cause of the disaster has focused on the co-pilot believed to be at the controls at the time, Gameel El-Batouty. News leaks early in the investigation indicated that when left alone in the cockpit he made some sort of statement, followed by a prayer, before the plane went into a dive.

The board doesn't make public the actual tape recordings from cockpits, and El-Batouty's comment after el-Habashy left the cockpit is not resolved by the transcript released Friday. That transcript noted a dispute among the investigators over what was said:

"The five Arabic speaking members of the group concur that they do not recognize this as an Arabic word, words, or phrase. The entire group agrees that three syllables are heard and the accent is on the second syllable. Four Arabic speaking group members believe that they heard words similar to 'control it.' One English speaking member believes he heard a word similar to 'hydraulic.' The five other members believe that the word(s) were unintelligible."

What was made clear by the transcripts was el-Habashy surprise to find his plane in a dive as he returned from a trip to the lavatory, and his battle to right the craft.

"What's happening?" asked el-Habasny. "What's happening Gameel? What's happening?"

"I rely on God," replies a second voice, believed to be that of El-Batouty, then flying the plane. The co-pilot repeated the phrase several times.

"What is this, did you shut the engines?" asks el-Habasny, who then struggles to pull his plane out of the dive. The transcript did not show an immediate response from El-Batouty. About a minute and a half later, the captain exhorted: "Pull with me." And the transcript ends there.

The Flight Data Recorder shows that the plane's autopilot was switched off and, just seconds before el-Habashy asked about the engines, first the right, then the left engine lever was switched from "run" to "cutoff."

The release of the factual reports of the various teams of investigators is a routine step in the lengthy process the NTSB uses to investigate plane crashes. The reports contain no analysis. That will be done as the investigators compare reports and seek comments from the airline, aircraft manufacturer and other interested groups as it moves toward a final report and conclusion.

Hall acknowledged there are continuing areas of friction between the U.S. and Egyptian authorities. "Where they have disagreements, they have been allowed to submit them in writing," he said.

In addition to seeking further investigation of possible mechanical problems, El Missiry said the Egyptians were displeased with speculation regarding the cause of the accident and with news leaks about the reports. "This is painful for the family," El Missiry said.

Hall said he has asked the FBI to investigate the source of the leaks.

The new reports compile the findings of investigators in such areas as human performance, aircraft structure, power plants, maintenance, air traffic control and so forth. It is possible that, ultimately, the United States and Egypt will cite evidence to support their separate theories as the investigation continues.

The docket also contained FBI reports indicating that El-Batouty had been investigated by a New York hotel's security staff for a number of incidents that allegedly included exposing himself. The allegations were contained in FBI investigative reports into the backgrounds of the plane's crew members.

Hall said the documents were included in the docket because the agency's investigators felt they have "potential" relevance to the investigation. He declined to elaborate, however, saying it remains to be determined whether the alleged incident is relevant.

In Cairo, El-Batouty's family angrily denounced the published allegations.

"They are running out of things to say, so they are ruining the guy's reputation," Walid El-Batouty, the co-pilot's nephew, told The Associated Press. "They are trying to raise anything to divert people from the real reason (for the crash)."

Ibrahim Hooper, communications director of the Council on American Islamic Relations, commented that using a phrase like "I put my trust in God," is not unusual.

El-Batouty "repeats, 'I put my trust in God' many times and this is not something that you would do if you've made the decision to do some criminal act. This is something you would do if you are trying to prevent something from happening or if you realized that you're going to die and you're going to put your trust in God because there is no way out of it and you think you're going to die," Hooper said.

Nihad Awad, executive director of the group, likened the phrase to "In God We Trust."

Rejecting the theory that the plane was deliberately crashed, families of the crew members have filed suit against the plane's manufacturer, Boeing.

Tax-exempt group headed by Lieberman raised $4 million from corporations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax-exempt Democratic group led by Joseph Lieberman for the last five years has raised millions from corporations, including some criticized by his ticket mate, Al Gore.

The Democratic Leadership Council raised about $4 million last year, the lion's share from companies and executives who gave anywhere from $10,000 to a half-million dollars to support the group's pro-business, centrist agenda.

The donors — bestowed titles like DLC trustee, benefactor, patron and sponsor — include communications giants AT&T and Bell Atlantic; drug makers Merck and Pfizer; and John Moores, the owner of the San Diego Padres baseball team, according to donor lists DLC provided to The Associated Press.

High-tech companies also chipped in, including Microsoft Corp., IBM, Intel Corp. and Motorola.

"It's pretty broad," said Chuck Alston, executive director of the DLC. "I hope there is not a major sector of the American economy that is not on there."

The DLC, which helped launch Bill Clinton to national fame as a centrist Democrat, has attracted significant business support and moderate Democrats with pro-business records. It, like Connecticut Sen. Lieberman, has supported free trade measures, welfare reforms and other policies to expand the economy that some Democrats oppose.

It also has attracted financial support from many companies that traditionally have thrown their support behind the Republican Party — like oil giants Texaco and Koch Oil and tobacco giants Philip Morris, U.S. Tobacco and R.J. Reynolds.

Vice President Gore has accused Republicans of "being addicted" to tobacco money while opposing increased Clinton administration regulation of the industry, and the Democratic National Committee declines contributions from tobacco companies.

More recently, Gore and fellow Democrats have assailed the GOP ticket's ties to the oil industry, suggesting in attack ads that the two Republicans have turned a deaf ear to environmental harm and gasoline price increases.

The DLC makes no apologies for accepting money from both industries.

"We spend the money on policies regardless of where we get it," Alston said. "Our policies are driving toward economic growth, free trade and welfare reform.

"People support us because of a broad policy direction and not because of a specific policy concern," he said.

As a tax-exempt group, the DLC has no legal obligation to disclose its donors to the public but it made its lists available at the request of AP. The lists don't give specific dollar amounts, and only identify the givers in broad categories from trustees, the most generous, to more basic sponsors.

At least eight oil companies and eight drug companies are among the benefactors.

Other contributors include soft drink giants Pepsi-Cola Co. and Coca Cola Co., casino company Circus Circus and millionaire Jon S. Corzine, who is running for a Senate seat in New Jersey.

Defense contractors Northrop-Grumman and TRW are on the list as well as prominent Democratic donor Bernard Schwartz, head of aerospace giant Loral Corp.

Unions, a traditional Democratic stronghold, are conspicuously absent. Only the United Food and Commercial Workers donated to the group.

The donor list also includes several companies that are among the most generous backers of Lieberman's political career, like Connecticut insurer Aetna, New York-based financial giant Citigroup and defense contractor United Technologies.

Some supported DLC because of its pro-business agenda before Lieberman rose to chairman of the group in 1995, and others have joined more recently.

The Hartford Group, one of the nation's largest insurers and a longtime Connecticut supporter of Lieberman, said it had received "overtures" from DLC for years and decided this March to finally contribute $20,000.

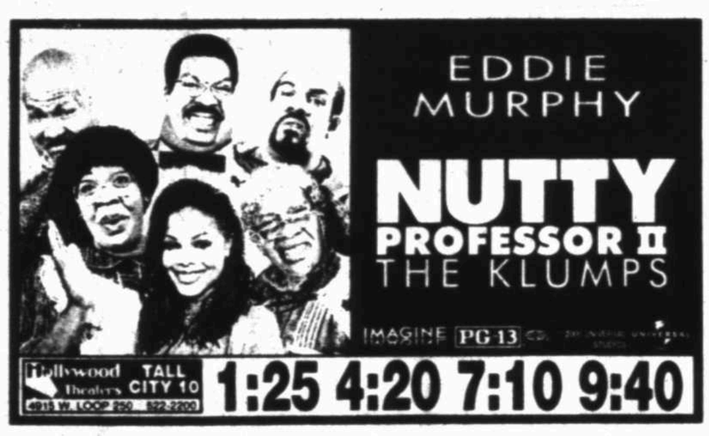

"I think the fact that he (Lieberman) was chairman was a factor why we joined, but it wasn't the only one," said Joel Freedman, senior vice president for governmental affairs at The Hartford. "For internal reasons it made sense to do it this year."

Freedman said other factors for joining included the DLC's growing success and profile and "the openness it has to American business."

Alston said Lieberman made some initial fund-raising calls shortly after taking over as chairman, but has not been personally involved in soliciting donations in three or four years.

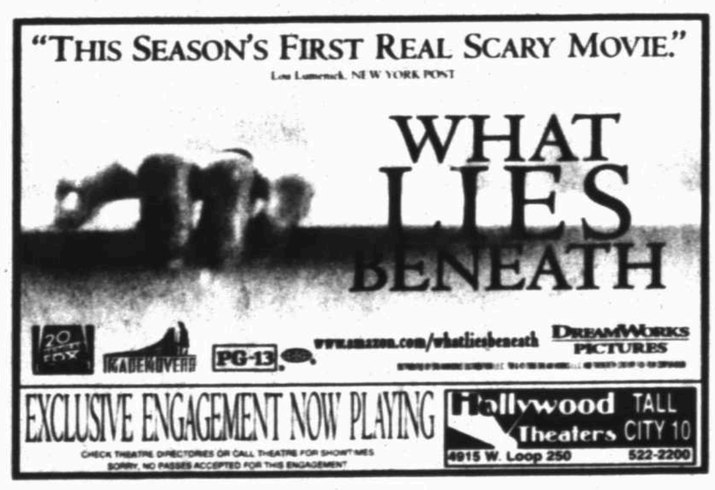

But he acknowledged the group's fund-raising and development staff has pursued longtime Lieberman supporters and Connecticut companies since the Connecticut senator took over.

Seasonal home owners seek voting rights in adopted communities

LAKE LEELANAU, Mich. (AP) — While most Michigan property owners got a tax cut five years ago, Frank Andress ended up paying more.

It's the kind of thing that sends outraged citizens to the polls, vowing to throw the bums out. But as a Cincinnati resident who summers in Michigan's Leelanau County, Andress couldn't do that: Michigan allows people to vote only where their primary residence is located.

"It's taxation without representation. That goes all the way back to the Boston Tea Party," said Andress, 74, a retired bank and chemical company executive.

He is among second-home owners around the nation protesting what they consider unfair treatment in their seasonal communities. Many are demanding the right to vote on issues that directly affect them, such as property tax increases, and for local officeholders.

"If we don't have the vote they take advantage of us," said Lowell Harwood, a part-time resident of wealthy Southampton Village, N.Y., where he owns a beachfront estate.

Others say extending voting rights to seasonal residents would violate the time-honored principle of one person, one vote.

"It would really end up giving greater voting rights to the people who are well off enough to afford vacation homes," said Brenda Wright, an attorney with the National Voting Rights Institute in Boston.

Some say it's just a matter of time before policymakers will have to deal with the question. As the nation prospers and baby boomers approach retirement, vacation homes are hot. The National Association of Realtors says 377,000 were sold last year, up 9.3 percent from 1997.

A number of states do allow nonresident property owners to vote on some local matters, although organizations that track state and local governments could not provide a comprehensive list.

Colorado, Connecticut and Tennessee let local governments make the decision. In Arizona, Indiana, New Mexico and Wyoming, property owners have limited voting rights as members of fire, water or conservation districts.

When the ski resort community of Mountain Village, Colo., incorporated in 1995, it allowed all landowners — including those living elsewhere — to vote in local elections. Full-time residents sued in federal court, but lost.

In Michigan, state Sen. David Jaye, a Republican from suburban Detroit, has proposed amending the state Constitution to let owners vote on matters affecting their property, regardless of where they live. No action has been taken on his proposal.

"Nobody claims the right to vote two or three times for president or senator," said Daniel Mayers, a Washington, D.C., attorney who has a second home in Barnard, Vt. "But in some of these towns you have a majority of property taxes being paid by nonresidents, and these people have absolutely no say in how their tax money is being spent."

Andress' retreat on Lake Leelanau is nestled among towering hemlocks and maples in Michigan's northwestern Lower Peninsula.

The region is a vacation and retirement haven, cherished for its woods, cherry orchards and dunes overlooking nearby Lake Michigan. Its many lakes and rivers are lined with second homes ranging from hunting cabins to seven-figure waterfront mansions.

"We love it here — it's so beautiful and quiet," Andress said.

His tranquility was disturbed in 1995, following a Michigan ballot initiative that lowered property tax rates but allowed school districts to slap a hefty surtax on second dwellings.

Instead of a tax cut, Andress got an increase. He now pays about $8,500 a year and figures it would be closer to $5,500 were he a full-time resident.

"We're paying these horrendous taxes and making no use of the services," he said.

Andress and other critics sued, but lost. The group is considering an appeal to the Supreme Court.

James Hines, research director for the University of Michigan's Office of Tax Policy Research, points out that wealthy people who feel abused in their vacation communities can always leave, which would hurt the local economy. For just that reason, most local officials don't get carried away with soaking the rich, he contends.

"I understand why people are sore about it, but there is no general legal right to vote where you pay taxes," Hines said. "People come to Michigan on vacation and pay the sales tax, and we never dream of giving them voting rights."

Alcoholism activist sentenced in drunken-driving accident

ELLENSBURG, Wash. (AP) — The woman who founded a national organization based on the premise that problem drinkers can learn to limit their alcohol use was sentenced Friday to 4 1/2 years in prison for killing two people while driving drunk.

Audrey Kishline, 43, apologized to the family of Richard Davis and his 12-year-old daughter, LaShell, saying she will feel guilty about their deaths for the rest of her life.

Kishline pleaded guilty in June to two counts of vehicular homicide. A third charge of hit-and-run driving was dismissed as part of a plea agreement.

Police said Kishline was driving the wrong way down Interstate 90 on March 25 when she smashed head-on into Davis' car near Cle Elum, 71 miles east of Seattle. Her blood alcohol level was more than three times the legal limit, police said.

Since the accident, Kishline, who started Moderation Management in 1993, has disavowed the movement and removed herself as spokeswoman. She also had undergone treatment for alcoholism.

Kishline said pride and fear of publicity had kept her from seeking help earlier.

Before Kishline's decision to join Alcoholics Anonymous in January, she was a vocal spokeswoman for Moderation Management, which calls itself an alternative to AA, allowing problem drinkers to cut down on drinking rather than quit.

Members of the 50 volunteer-run groups go through a nine-step program, which allows nine drinks per week for women and 14 for men. The group, which considers drinking learned and not a disease, discourages those with serious drinking problems from joining and does not allow drinking and driving.

8-year-old girl vanishes on way home from school

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — An 8-year-old girl vanished on her way home from school, stirring memories of the disappearance eight months ago of another girl who lived less than two miles away.

Police said there is no evidence linking the disappearance of Midsi Sanchez on Thursday with that of Xiana Fairchild, then 7.

Midsi was last seen by classmates at 3 p.m. Thursday, standing next to a stop sign a few blocks from the home she shares with her parents and four siblings in this city of about 112,000 outside San Francisco.

"We've been searching around the neighborhood and around the school. The police are all over the place," said her father, Juan Carlos Sanchez.

Listen up: Oldest recorded campaign speeches raise modern questions

NEW YORK (AP) — The voices come floating out of the past, scratchy and stern, a reminder of what politics once meant to this country.

Teddy Roosevelt declaring a third party in 1912. William Jennings Bryan railing for campaign finance reform in 1908. Woodrow Wilson's speech "To The Farmers."

In a modern era of less — falling turnout at the ballot box, networks cutting back on convention coverage — these warbly recordings open a window into a time when elections vividly caught the nation's attention.

Think about it. These early recordings were for sale. People paid between 35 cents and 50 cents (about $8 today) to hear their political candidates speak, with each recording lasting two to three minutes.

"That was an audience that valued campaign discourse more, and was willing to pay to hear it," said Kathleen Hall Jamieson, dean of the Annenberg School for Communication. Try to sell a campaign speech on CD nowadays. "I can't imagine that I'd get any takers."

The recordings, lovingly tracked down and cleaned up by Ward Marston, a jazz musician who runs a small opera label, gather 46 speeches on two CDs:

Democrat Bryan and Republican William H. Taft's 1908 campaign (Taft won), and Taft, Democrat Woodrow Wilson and Bull Moose candidate Roosevelt in 1912 (Wilson won).

They are the oldest recordings of political campaign addresses, made with one of the first of the new century's sweeping new technologies. No records exist to show how well they sold.

"It's better than reading a history book," Marston said. "It gives you a vivid sense of what oratory and speechmaking was all about in those days. It's the only clue we have."

It offers other clues, too, into how political discourse has been influenced by technology. A decade or so after these recordings were made, politicians who once thrived at speaking to thousands had to adjust to campaigning over the radio. And then, after World War II, to the newfangled television.

"It's a different kind of rhetoric, a different kind of elocution," Marston said. "Political rhetoric, people just took a deep breath and just went at it. And people's attention spans were longer then. We're so used to getting immediately gratified."

This year's election brings the latest flowerings of the Internet age. Who knows all it may bring?

Jamieson suggests the possibility of direct interaction with candidates, where voters ask questions over the World Wide Web and get immediate answers. "We might put spontaneity back into politics," she said. "Right now we reward calculation, not spontaneity."

But don't look forward yet, look behind, at how the political landscape changed. The advertisements for these recordings — some on 78 rpm records, others on cylinder — urge buyers to invite friends to their home and "Hold your own political party." Another read: "It's as good as having the candidates there."

Without television, the vast majority never saw candidates, or only at crowded rallies or now-legendary whistlestop train trips (nostalgically recreated for instant TV and Internet transmission by Bill Clinton and George W. Bush). And with thousands there, who could hear without microphones and speakers?

Though the new technologies brought politics directly to voters' homes, somehow they also brought a loss in eloquence like that heard from Wilson, said Norman Corwin, a 90-year-old veteran radio and TV director and producer. In 1944, he produced a national radio broadcast of Franklin Delano Roosevelt for the Democratic National Committee.

Now, "There's so little that's different and colorful and forthright in politics that interests the voter," Corwin said. In 1908, 65 percent of eligible voters went to the polls. In 1996, it was just below 50 percent.

In other ways, these nearly century-old campaigns show how little has changed, at least in subject matter. Hear the similarities on debates over foreign trade, minimum wage (now the question is whether to raise it) and campaign finance reform —, the issue that drove Sen. John McCain's insurgent Republican primary campaign.

For Marston — blind from birth, whose passions are opera and spoken word — the recordings should simply give those interested a chance to listen back. And consider what's changed.

"It's not going to sell like a rap album. I'm not looking for that," he said. "I just want it to be spread around. It's fascinating."

Swordfish boycott by environmental groups called off

BOSTON (AP) — That'll be one order of swordfish, hold the guilt.

Satisfied by new limits on Atlantic swordfishing, two environmental groups have ended a two-year campaign against overfishing and released 700 chefs nationwide from their pledge to pull the popular fish from their menus.

But the price of eating with a cleansed conscience may be high.

The new fishing regulations, and other proposed limits, affect a huge portion of the Atlantic swordfishing grounds. And that likely will drive up the cost of the already pricey fish, according to the industry.

Last week, the National Marine Fisheries Service announced plans to close more than 100,000 square miles of the Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic Ocean to so-called pelagic longline fishing. A similar ban, to protect sea turtles, could be instituted Sept. 30 in the Grand Banks off New England and Canada, the source of 25 percent of the Atlantic swordfish catch.

Swordfishing was also banned by a federal judge from a million-square-mile area of the Pacific last year, pending an investigation into its effects on turtles.

Sean Bergen, a purchaser and seller at Globe Fish Co., one of the wholesale seafood dealers that line the waterfront of south Boston, said he expects the new restrictions to force the price of the fish up by 50 percent. And it could make fresh swordfish — which can retail for more than $10 a pound — harder to find year-round, he said.

But Vikki Spruill, executive director of SeaWeb, which sponsored the "Give Swordfish a Break" campaign with the National Resources Defense Council, said the end result is best for the fish and fish-eaters. The groups are writing to chefs to notify them the campaign has ended.

Non-California squads hold their own against Golden State teams

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

For a team to win a national softball tournament, there are two basic rules — stay away from the losers' bracket and stay away from the California teams.

Most of the time that means picking your poison, because if one doesn't get you, the other will. For the really unlucky teams, a double dose national tournament reality awaits them.

So going into Friday's play at the ASA 14-under B West National Fast Pitch Tournament, it couldn't have helped seeing that nine of the 16 teams left in the winners' bracket were from California.

On the other hand, after all was said and done, it didn't hurt. In a mild shocker, the non-California teams went toe-to-toe with the teams from the Golden State and survived, taking four of the eight spots in the winners' bracket quarterfinals.

"It is no secret, they are ahead of us. So, when you can knock one of them off or compete with them, there is a certain amount of satisfaction," said Tim Davis, coach of the West Des Moines Wildcats. Davis' club pulled off the first win over a California team Friday, defeating Cypress 6-2. "They (the Wildcats) are not afraid to play with anyone."

Davis' team, which won its region and has a 42-10 record this season, is in select company. The Surge of Sherwood, Ore. defeated the Stoppers of Danville, Calif., 12-2; the Batcats of Topeka, Kan. knocked off the San Carlos Force, 9-1; and the Rocky Mountain Thunder from Denver blasted Lompoc, 10-1.

The Wildcats' win over Cypress was their second over a California team this weekend. The Thunder (60-7) also owned a previous

MIDLAND'S "BEST EVER" SERIES

Another Level

Nordt's skills put her above volleyball stars

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

Volleyball in Midland has history. District championships and a 1969 state title by Midland Lee are proof of that.

Midland's Best Ever

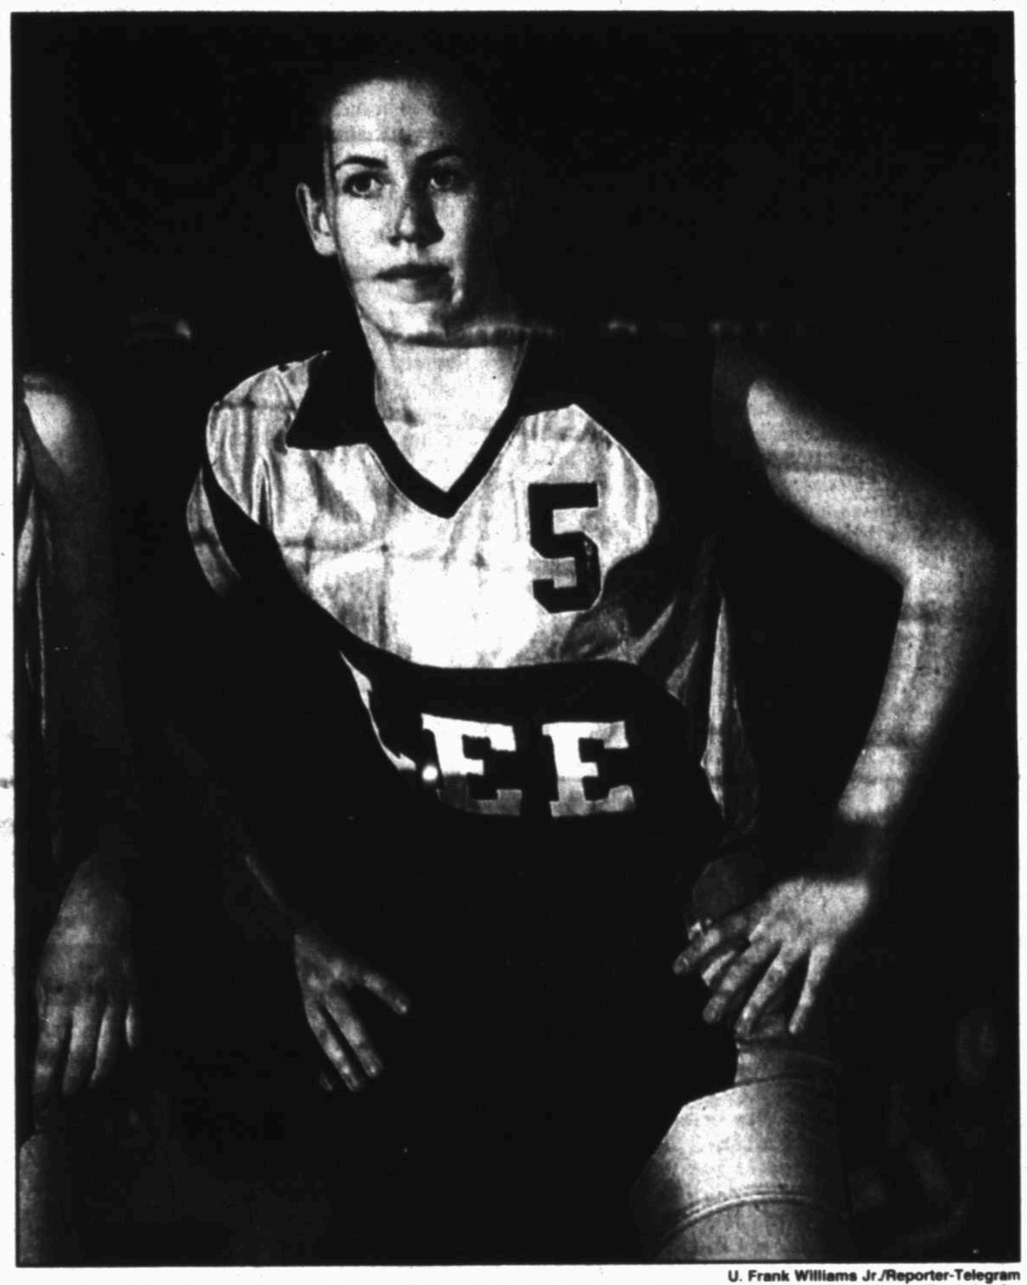

This is the first in a series of stories featuring the "Best Ever" athletes that Midland has produced in each sport.
On Sunday: Golf.

Still, as volleyball moves into a new century, the history is in the past. Volleyball is a different game than it was in 1960, 1970, 1980 and even 1990. It is constantly changing, and it wasn't until a slender sophomore took the court for Midland Lee in 1997 that Midlanders saw really how far behind their volleyball was and how far it was going to go.

Marlo Nordt will be remembered for a lot of things during her three-year career. She was unquestionably the best setter in the district when she played. She is the best setter Midland has ever produced. She was an all-state player and selected to play in the Girls Coaches Association's All-Star Game. She led Lee to two straight District 4-5A titles to close out the 1900s. She was the first player from Midland to receive a Division I volleyball scholarship right out of high school.

But more than anything, Nordt is Midland's "Best Ever," because more so than any other athlete who played it, she took volleyball to a lev-

Midland's best ever? Try Cumings

Who is Midland's best all-around athlete? I'll throw a name out — Amy Cumings.

Got one who's better? Well, take your choice and ask how good was that person's third-best sport. All Cumings did in her third-best sport — track — was qualify for regionals in eight different events.

Doreen

I can say I have seen some of the best athletes Midland has ever produced, but because of Cumings, who attended Midland High in the mid-to-late 1980s, I can say I missed the one I probably would like to have seen the most.

Cumings was a district MVP in basketball and an all-SWC performer in volleyball at Texas A&M. Certainly, those are impressive honors, although when it comes to two-sport performers, not the best. It is Cumings' third sport which separates her from anyone else.

In track, again her third sport, Cumings was a three-year letter winner, who qualified for regionals all three years. Not bad.

Cumings, though, found a way to qualify for the region a total of 10 times. Again not bad, but it gets better.

She qualified for regionals in EIGHT different events.

Here's the list — the 400-meter relay, the 800 relay, 1,600 relay, 400 meters, 1,600 meters, 3,200 meters and high jump and long jump.

What is more unusual — a district champion two-miler who goes on to run on leg on the sprint relay or a distance runner who finds her knack for a field event or two?

Can you imagine the track workouts with this girl? Hey Amy, run from Memorial Stadium to Midland College and back, crank out a few 200s and 400s, and then head over to the high jump pit.

And don't forget to rake the long jump pit when you are done.

OK, slight exaggeration, but you get the point.

As good of an all-around athlete as Cumings was, she will not be one of the "Best Ever" in any sport. That tells how good those picks are.

The "Best Ever" selections took a while. Actually, they took a lot longer than we could have ever expected, but it is finally time to reveal the top performers in each of Midland's high school sports.

For the next nine days, the Reporter-Telegram will release those choices.

It starts today with volleyball and Marlo Nordt. Many will remember Nordt as Lee's all-everything setter this past season. She is also the only athlete featured in the next nine days who is a 2000 graduate.

All totaled, the 1990s definitely ruled as seven of the 17 selections came from that decade. The 1970s had six, and the 1950s, 1960s and 1980s also had one each.

We will not reveal any of the other "Best Ever" selections right now. The schedule goes like this: today (volleyball), Sunday (golf), Monday (tennis), Tuesday (cross country), Wednesday (swimming), Thursday (soccer), Friday (track), next Saturday (baseball and softball) and next Sunday (basketball).

There is one sport missing. That is football. A special "Best Ever"

Jackson goes to Toronto; Utah inks Manning

Associated Press

Mark Jackson and Danny Manning are changing teams, and Shawn Kemp and Brian Grant could be close behind.

Jackson left the Eastern champion Indiana Pacers on Friday, signing a four-year contract with the Toronto Raptors worth a reported $14 million.

Jackson helped the Pacers reach the NBA Finals for the first time last season. He said the Raptors did the best job of showing him he was wanted, which he called the key factor in his decision.

"In life, those are things that make a difference to me, not money," he said. "I was waiting for a team to step up to the plate, and they did just that."

■ NBA Moves

Pacers president Donnie Walsh said Thursday he had wanted to re-sign Jackson, but acknowledged the team couldn't match a contract from a team with plenty of salary cap room.

"He got an unbelievable offer from Toronto, and I understand why he had to take it," Walsh told The Indianapolis Star.

Manning, accepting half the money offered by some teams, signed a $1.2 million, one-year contract with the Utah Jazz. He has an option of extending the deal for a second year.

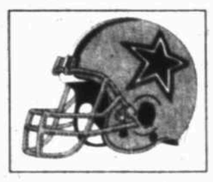

"He probably passed up an opportunity to make considerably more money in other places," said Mark Bartlestein, Manning's agent. "But he just felt to have a chance to play for Jerry Sloan and the Jazz organization and with Karl Malone and John Stockton was something too good to pass up."

Bartlestein said Portland, Miami, New York and Dallas also were after the 12-year veteran.

Irvin won't be charged with crime

By Kellie B. Gormly
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — Former Dallas Cowboys star Michael Irvin won't be charged with marijuana possession following his arrest at an apartment where police said they found drugs.

FBI spokeswoman Lori Bailey would not elaborate on the reasons for the decision because the investigation, which involves other people, is ongoing. Bailey left open the possibility that Irvin could face other charges stemming from the probe.

Irvin was arrested Wednesday in a north Dallas apartment, where authorities said they found less than 2 ounces of marijuana along with ecstasy pills.

A drug task force had a warrant for the apartment's tenant, who was not there. Irvin and the tenant's sister were at the apartment.

Irvin, who retired last month and was hired for Fox Sports Net's Sunday pregame show, insisted he was in the wrong place at the wrong time and the drugs were not his.

"Mr. Irvin is very excited about going forward with his broadcasting career," his lawyer Howard Shapiro said. "We're very pleased that this ordeal is over."

Federal agents arrested Rhonda Adaham, the original person they were seeking, on Thursday in a Dallas suburb. She was indicted on federal drug trafficking charges in 1999 and had violated conditions of her pretrial release, Bailey said.

Adaham was part of a group accused of selling the heroin that killed Mark Tuinei of the Dallas Cowboys last year, authorities told The Dallas Morning News in Friday's editions.

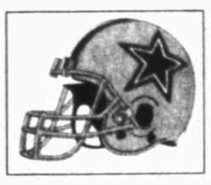

In 1996, Irvin pleaded no contest to felony cocaine possession in exchange for four years of deferred probation, a $10,000 fine and dismissal of misdemeanor marijuana possession charges.

The NFL suspended Irvin for five games. He finished his deferred probation on the charge just before he announced his retirement.

Good break follows bad one for rook

WICHITA FALLS — Kelvin Garmon came to his first NFL training camp hoping to shake off the rust from an injury-forced year away from football. Days later, he found himself the Dallas Cowboys' starting left guard.

Although circumstances, not performance, pushed Garmon from third string to first, the rookie made the most of his opportunity. Coach Dave Campo this week called Garmon the most pleasant surprise of camp.

"I like what he's doing," Campo said. "He's holding his own, which is probably the best thing I could say for him because he's had some tough duty in there with the defensive tackles he's had to play against."

Garmon played guard and tackle on both sides while at Baylor. He expected to be a third-round pick in the 1999 draft until shattering two bones in his right leg late in his senior season.

Titanium rods were inserted to help the bones heal properly. The downside was the recovery would knock him out of the next season.

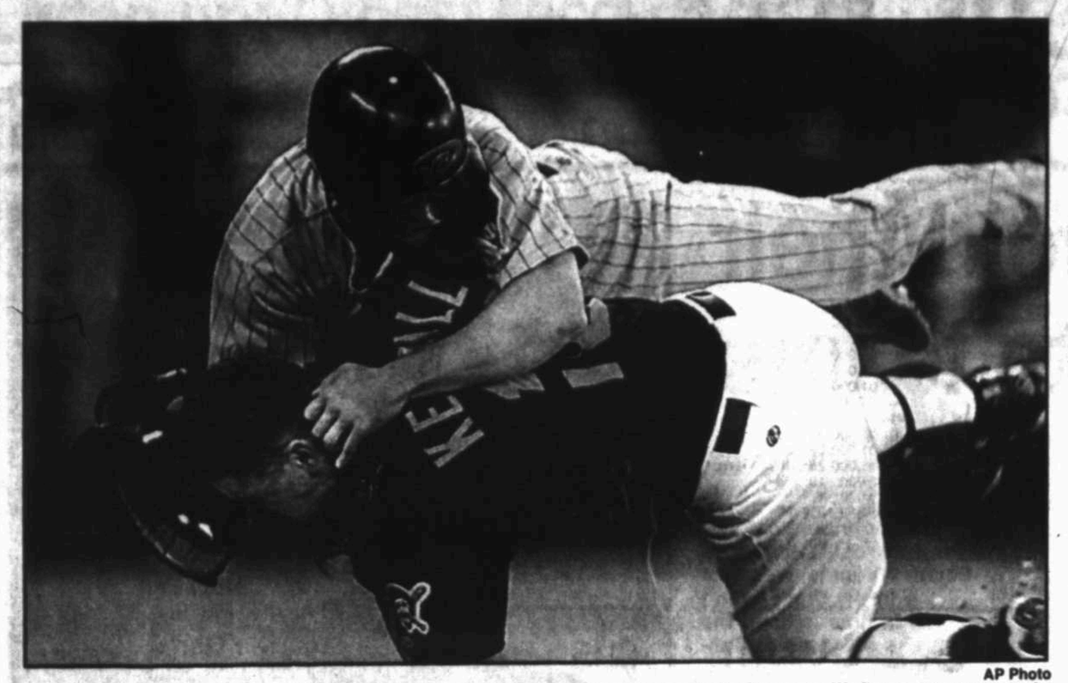

The Cowboys gambled on him with a seventh-round pick, the 243rd of 253 in the entire draft, then let him spend all last year recovering.

He went through typical rookie rites such as carrying equipment for veterans, bringing them things they wanted and being seen but not heard at meetings. He wasn't allowed to play in games or even practice.

"Last year was like a redshirt season," Garmon said. "I got to learn everything and see everything without actually being out there."

Garmon finally was cleared to take the field in the last minicamp this summer. He didn't do much, just enough to see if he was ready for training camp.

'Hounds win fifth straight

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — Things went so well for the Midland RockHounds in the eighth inning Friday night that they didn't even need any help from their hottest hitter.

Justin Bowles had his 18-game hitting streak come to an end and was the only 'Hounds hitter without a base hit, but the other eight batters in the Midland lineup made up for it. The 'Hounds erupted for 10 runs on 10 hits in the top of the eighth inning to decisively break a tie and cruise to a 12-2 win over the beleaguered San Antonio Missions.

It was a landmark win for the 'Hounds, as the only bad news of the night was that Bowles' season high hitting streak came to an end. It was the fifth straight in in San Antonio for Midland, as the 'Hounds pushed their record above .500 (25-24) for the first time since the first week of the Texas League schedule.

The 'Hounds struck first in the fourth inning when Cody McKay drove in Dionys Cesar on a sacrifice fly. But the Missions went up 2-1 when Glenn Davis drove in a run on a double in fourth inning and Mike Figga hit solo home run off Denny Wagner (4-8) in the sixth.

But Wagner was solid other than that, going seven innings and striking out seven for the victory.

The momentum immediately swung in the seventh. Brian Luderer hit his first home run as a RockHound off Victor Alvarez to tie it, and Alvarez was eventually pulled for Matt Montgomery, one of the league's top relievers.

But not on this night. Montgomery was responsible for giving up eight of the 10 runs the 'Hounds would hang up in the eighth.

Mike Lockwood had what turned out to be the game-winning hit, singling up the middle to drive home Jay Pecci and give the 'Hounds the lead. Hitting just got more contagious from there, as McKay, Oscar Salazar and Luderer each drove in runs on singles, and Jacques Landry was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to make it 7-2.

Pecci, who led off the inning, singled home another run, before a two-run single by Cesar and run scoring singles by Lockwood and McKay again ended the barrage. Ironically, the only extra base hit in the inning, a double by Jason Hart, failed to bring home a run.

Even though he went hitless, Bowles still contributed in the eighth, walking and scoring a run. He raised his batting average more than 50 points to .258 during his hitting streak.

Berkman drives Astros to win

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Lance Berkman turned his night and the game around after he turned around in the batter's box.

The switch-hitting Berkman had four RBIs, including a three-run double in a five-run ninth inning, as the Houston Astros beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-2 Friday night.

"That's what they pay us to do," said Berkman, who had doubles in the eighth and ninth innings while batting left-handed after going 0-for-2 right-handed off starter Bruce Chen. "Chen was tough. We just had to hang around and hang around."

Houston scored once in the eighth and five times in the ninth to win the matchup between the teams with the two worst records in the majors.

Marc Valdes (3-4) pitched two shutout innings. He struck out one, walked one and didn't allow a hit. Octavio Dotel pitched a scoreless ninth.

"Valdes has been a real important part of our bullpen," Houston manager Larry Dierker said. "He hasn't been unhittable or tremendously consistent, but he's been good more often than not."

Jeff Bagwell was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to give Houston a 3-2 lead with no outs in the ninth.

Daryle Ward led off the inning with a single off Vicente Padilla, and was removed for pinch-runner Glen Barker. After Julio Lugo beat out an infield single, Tim Bogar reached safely on an error by Padilla to load the bases.

"You preach to every pitcher to just get an out," Phillies manager Terry Francona said about Padilla's error on Bogar's sacrifice bunt. "He just tried to do something before he had the ball."

Wayne Gomes entered the game and got two outs before allowing Berkman's bases-clearing double.

Padilla (2-3) allowed four runs, all unearned. He gave up a game-tying double to Berkman in the eighth after Chen left the game with a runner on first.

Chen allowed two runs and six hits in 7 1-3 innings. He walked four and struck out two. The 23-year-old left-hander is 2-1 with a 3.74 ERA since coming to the Phillies from Atlanta in a trade for Andy Ashby on July 12.

"I had a good fastball and all three pitches were working," Chen said. "I want to help the team win. It was hard seeing the game turn into a tie."

Tomas Perez gave Philadelphia a 2-1 lead with an RBI groundout in the sixth. Pat Burrell led off the inning with a walk, moved to third on a double by Kevin Jordan and scored on Perez's grounder to second.

Scott Elarton allowed two runs and seven hits in six innings. He struck out a season-high nine and walked three.

Elarton, who had won eight of his previous nine starts, has allowed three earned runs or less in 10 straight starts and is 8-1 in that span.

"I felt terrible out of the wind-up," Elarton said. "Thank goodness, I felt good out of the stretch."

The Phillies were 0-for-12 with runners in scoring position, and left nine runners on base.

Jordan, subbing for the injured Scott Rolen, gave the Phillies a 1-0 lead in the fourth with his third homer — a liner just inside the left-field foul pole.

Houston tied it in the sixth on Alou's 18th homer — a bolt to left-center.

Before Alou's homer, Bagwell, who led off the inning with a double, was thrown out at third on a one-hop strike by Doug Glanville while trying to advance on a fly out to center.

The Phillies stranded five runners in the first three innings, and left the bases loaded in the third. Mike Lieberthal struck out and Travis Lee bounced out to end that inning.

Everett's bombs hurt Texas

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — If the Boston Red Sox are to remain in contention for postseason play, they'll need more of what they got from Carl Everett on Friday night.

Everett homered twice and matched a season high with five RBIs, leading Red Sox over the Texas Rangers 7-3.

"He came through with the big offense," Red Sox manager Jimy Williams said. "The important thing was his home runs were with runners on base."

Boston had scored only seven runs in its previous four games, but Everett gave the Red Sox a lift with a two-run homer in the fourth and a three-run drive in the fifth, both off rookie Ryan Glynn (3-2).

Everett, who had his 11th multihomer game, including two this season, refused to speak with reporters after the game.

He has 29 homers this season, but just seven homers in his previous 42 games.

"We need him, but we need everybody to come up big for us down the stretch," Boston's Nomar Garciaparra said.

On a night with a gametime temperature of 98, Glynn briefly lost consciousness in the dugout during the fifth inning was taken to a hospital.

The rookie right-hander was down for about five minutes, then regained consciousness as he was wheeled from the dugout strapped to a gurney and taken to an ambulance. The game was halted for 10 minutes.

Glynn, who threw 95 pitches, allowed seven runs and eight hits in 4 2-3 innings.

"When (pitching coach Dick) Bosman approached the mound to talk to him, he said he was fine," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said. "We always joke around at my house, how high the pollen and fungus is, and that could have been the cause tonight."

Boston has won two straight after losing four in a row.

Texas' Gabe Kapler stretched his hitting streak to 24 games with an eighth-inning single under the glove of Garciaparra, matching the club record set by Mickey Rivers in 1980. Kapler, who went 1-for-5, also matched Arizona's Tony Womack for the longest streak in the majors this season.

"I think Nomar gets that ball seven out of 10 times," Kapler said. "It was a good pitch to hit. I'm not feeling any pressure now. There's excitement, not pressure."

Rolando Arrojo (1-1) won for the first time in eight starts since June 26, when he was with the Colorado Rockies. Arrojo allowed two runs and four hits in seven innings. He had lost his last four decisions for the Rockies and his first for the Red Sox.

"I worked more with concentration and focusing on the strike zone than I did the last two times out," said Arrojo through teammate Rich Garces, who served as interpreter. "After we scored seven runs, I went right at the first batter in each inning."

Bill Haselman's homer put Texas ahead in the second, but Boston took a 3-1 lead in the fourth on Everett's homer and Brian Daubach's run-scoring, double-play grounder.

Boston made it 7-1 in the fifth on Trot Nixon's RBI single and Everett's second homer.

Royce Clayton tripled in the bottom half and scored on Luis Alicea's groundout. Ricky Ledee hit an RBI single in the eighth.

Notes: The Rangers returned home from a 2-5 road trip. ... Texas is seven games under .500 for the first time since April 29. ... Everett's career-high is six RBIs.

SOFTBALL: Atascadero wins game

(From 1B)

win over a California team.

"We know California is the softball state. It is kind of intimidating," said the Thunder's Erin O'Hearn, who went 3-for-3 with two runs scored. "So far, we have won two, so it is not as bad as we thought."

Can you say confidence builder? That is what they are hoping. In the case of the Oregon Surge, their lack of experience helped them out greatly.

This is the team's first trip to a national tournament. The Surge players haven't heard repeatedly how they are not supposed to beat the California teams.

It showed as Elizabeth Gilgan was 4-for-4 with two triples and four runs scored while Steffanie Caster was 3-for-4 with a triple to pace the 63-12 Surge.

"Part of it is mental," Surge coach Lance Gilgan said. "We tried to tell them they are a B team just like everyone else, and if they play like they can, they can play with anybody."

The Batcats got consecutive doubles from Rachel Patton, Allyson Henry and Brianna Brown in a five-run third to blow open their game with Cypress.

Still, there is still work to do to claim total victory and a rare non-California championship. Four of the eight teams in the winners' bracket are from California, and those teams will be ready to protect their rightful place in the pecking order.

"These girls play for state pride," said Atascadero coach Pete Emmel. His team defeated High Voltage Impact of Crowley, 9-6.

Also on Friday, Phantom of Pleasanton, Calif., shut down the Texas City Stealers, 5-1; Los Alamitos shut out Cascade (Ore.) 8-0; and Vista defeated its California sisters from Mission Hills, 7-2.

While California teams hold an advantage over the rest of the states due to sheer numbers, there are differences from the Class A travel teams which have come to Midland in previous years. One thing is that these teams are, for the most part, comprised of all-stars from recreational leagues in their respective communities.

Atascadero, a small community of around 20,000 on the Central California Coast located between Los Angeles and San Francisco, got a 3-for-5 performance from Lindsay Emmel and a go-ahead RBI triple from Kristen Rasmussen.

"This team comes from a small town," Emmel said. "We needed every girl we could get."

Still the California teams play year round and can still flex their muscle when they need to. Los Alamitos, the Southern California state champion, rode the arm of pitcher Jennifer Winford, who threw a 1-hitter.

"In Southern California, it is the city you represent," Los Alamitos coach Kevin Mickelson said. "You can cross a street (in Los Alamitos) and be in Cypress (which is also competing in the tournament)."

WEST TEXAS STARS STAY ALIVE: Life goes on for the West Texas Stars, who are surviving in the always tough losers' bracket. The Stars started with an 11-2 win over West Valley (San Jose, Calif.) Slammers 2.

The Stars, the only area team still alive in the tournament, made it 2-for-2 Friday with a 10-5 over the Ice Breakers from Eagle River, Alaska. Against the Ice Breakers, the Stars got a 3-for-4 performance from Annie Cox. Also, Amy Gillette was 2-for-4 with two doubles and two runs scored; Dani Adams was 2-for-3 with a run scored and Colleen Kimbro was 2-for-4. Lacey Phillips picked up the win.

NOTES: Making the trip to Midland wasn't cheap for most teams playing in the national tournament. Some teams had to raise $12,000-15,000 to make it possible to play here this week... It also wasn't easy; the Wildcats of Iowa rode a bus for 16 hours... The winners' bracket action continues with the quarterfinals at 10 a.m., the semifinals at 4 p.m. and the winners' bracket final at 8 p.m... There will also be numerous rounds of losers' bracket action...

Round of 69 puts Sorenstam in lead

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

AYLMER, Quebec — Annika Sorenstam shot her second straight 3-under-par 69 on Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Canada's Lorie Kane after the second round of the du Maurier Classic.

Two strokes behind Sorenstam were Laura Philo, tour rookie Diana D'Alessio and Juli Inkster, who shot a 68 to again move into contention in an LPGA major championship. One stroke behind that group was Meg Mallon, also a fixture on major leaderboards.

Sorenstam made four birdies, only one bogey, hit 16 greens in regulation and in general stayed out of trouble on the 6,403-yard Royal Ottawa Golf Club course. The Swedish star is seeking her sixth LPGA title of 2000 and trying to end a drought in major championships following consecutive U.S. Open victories in 1995 and 1996.

Sorenstam complained of nerves in the earlier rounds of major championships since 1996, but has looked in command of her game and her confidence in the first two rounds of the du Maurier.

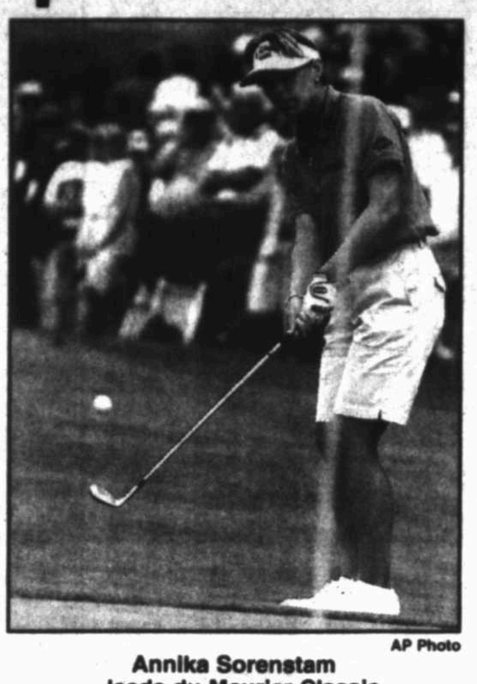

"I never was in trouble, which is fun," she said. "And it kind of makes you comfortable out there."

Kane is Canada's sentimental favorite at the du Maurier, which is losing its sponsorship by the Imperial Tobacco company after this year due to cigarette advertising limitations in Canada. Its status as an LPGA major is almost certainly lost, and so far no entity has stepped forward to take over as sponsor of the only Canadian stop on tour.

Kane's fans cheered her every swing, and hundreds were already on hand to follow her as she started her early morning tee time. Playing the back nine first on a cloudy, windless day, Kane made birdies at Nos. 13, 16, 18 and 1 and even more fans flocked to her group.

Kane made her only mistake at No. 3 by missing the green on the par 4 when she hit an iron approach shot fat, but she birdied No. 5 by holing out a 25-foot bunker shot and No. 6 with a 6-foot putt. She finished with a 67, the best round of the day.

"I don't think I've ever felt this confident and calm," the Prince Edward Island native said. "I know what I want to do and I'm doing it."

Annika Sorenstam ...leads du Maurier Classic

D'Alessio, the 25-year-old rookie who made only her fifth cut Friday in 13 lifetime tour events, had a 73 Friday in which she seemed to constantly be in trouble. She led Sorenstam and four others by two strokes after her opening-round 67.

Woody — not Woods — stays in lead

GRAND BLANC, Mich. — Woody Austin only wanted to keep heading in the right direction. It might be time for him to think about winning the Buick Open.

Austin put on another impressive display with his irons on Friday, making five of his six birdies from inside 5 feet in a round of 5-under 67 that gave him a two-stroke lead over Rocco Mediate going into the weekend.

"It was just important for me to play aggressive like I did yesterday, not be happy with where I was and just keep trying to move forward," said Austin, who was at 14-under 130.

Mediate birdied the first four holes on the back nine in his round of 64 that put him at 132, while Hal Sutton had his second straight 67 and was another two strokes behind.

The enormous gallery that came to Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club to get a look at Tiger Woods might have to get to the course earlier than it planned Saturday.

In his first tournament since winning the British Open at St. Andrews to complete the Grand Slam, Woods was hovering around the cut line until reaching the 584-yard seventh hole in two with a driver off the fairway to set up a birdie.

He was 10 strokes behind at 140 after his second straight 70, his largest 36-hole deficit since he trailed the leader by 11 strokes at Bay Hill in 1999. Woods went on to finish 58th that week. Still, on a course with ample birdie opportunities, he wouldn't count himself out.

Last year in the Buick Invitational at Torrey Pines, he was nine back going into the weekend, closed with rounds of 62-65 and won by two strokes.

"I've done it before," Woods said. "Now, I need to do it again."

That's what Austin is thinking. The former bank teller and drug store clerk was a rookie on the PGA Tour in 1995 when he won the Buick Open in a playoff. That was his first victory, and his last one.

Jenkins, Thompson lead in Canada

WINNIPEG, Manitoba — Tom Jenkins shot his second straight 4-under-par 68 on Friday for a share of the second-round lead with Leonard Thompson in the AT&T Canada Senior Open.

Jenkins birdied the par-5 18th hole to match Thompson at 8-under 136 on the St. Charles Country Club course. Thompson followed his opening 67 with a 69.

"I would call my score a minor miracle," Jenkins said. "I got everything I could possible get out of that golf course. I could not have scored one shot lower out there."

Thundershowers and heavy wind early in the day caused a delay of more than two hours.

"It was a different golf course than the one we played on Thursday," Thompson said. "I didn't know what to expect when I hit the ball and when it landed on the greens. It was just a long, hard day."

South Africa's Hugh Baiocchi was a stroke back after a 71.

"Anything around 70 was a great score out there," Baiocchi said. "The wind was extremely tricky. Just in our threesome alone, we were over the back of the greens several times, and well short just as often. It made for some very difficult play."

Davis breaks U.S. freestyle record

Associated Press

■ Olympic News

INDIANAPOLIS — Josh Davis broke a 12-year-old American record and B.J. Bedford finally broke through Friday night. But Lenny Krayzelburg couldn't send a message to the Australians by breaking his own world mark in the backstroke.

Krayzelburg was considered the best hope to set the first world record of the U.S. Olympic trials, coming within 0.07 seconds during the semifinals of the 100-meter backstroke.

The 24-year-old native of the Ukraine broke out his high-tech "jammer" bodysuit — stretching from waist to knees — and donned a tight-fitting cap in the final, intent on breaking the time of 53.60 set last August. Earlier Friday, he said it was important to show the Australians that "we're ready to go."

The powerful Aussies, led by Ian Thorpe, set three records at their own trials in May.

With a sellout crowd at the Indiana University Natatorium roaring him on, Krayzelburg went out too fast and faded at the end to finish in 53.84. Still, he'll be heading to the Olympics for the first time, beating Neil Walker by more than a second on Day 3 of the trials.

"I was a little disappointed, but I can't complain," said Krayzelburg, who came to the United States in 1989 and gained citizenship in 1995. "I made the Olympics. It got a big monkey off my back."

Krayzelburg looked in the stands toward his father, Oleg, who held up his hands as if to say, "What happened?"

"He's probably disappointed that I didn't get the record," Krayzelburg said. "But we'll save that for Sydney."

Davis was on world-record pace halfway through the men's 200-meter freestyle, then held on to finish in 1:47.26. That eclipsed Matt Biondi's mark of 1:47.72 in the 1988 Seoul Olympics but was still nearly two seconds off the world record, held by Thorpe.

Davis, 27, of Austin, Texas, won three gold medals in the 1996 Atlanta Games — the most of any male athlete.

"There's nothing like wearing the red, white and blue," he said. "The USA is the best country in the world. It's only right that we have the best athletes at the Olympics."

Bedford failed to even make the Olympic team at her last three trials, but she finally ended her 12-year wait in the women's 100 backstroke. The 27-year-old native of Etna, N.H., stretched for the wall and immediately looked toward the scoreboard, pumping her fist in exultation when the time of 1:01.85 was flashed.

"I am overwhelmed," she said, after jumping up and down on the pool deck. "I never thought this dream of mine would come true, but it has."

Stroman Watch

Monica Stroman, a 1996 graduate of Midland Lee who is competing at the U.S. Olympic Trials in Indianapolis, did not make the finals of her second event, the 200-meter individual medley.

Her time of the 2:21.63 was the 34th best time in Friday's preliminary heats.

She will compete in the 200-meter breaststroke on Sunday.

The 27-year-old swimmer began to cry.

"I probably won't be able to describe this for three or four years," Bedford said. "I'm overwhelmed, I'm ecstatic, I'm effervescent, I'm in excruciating pain."

Four years ago, Bedford just missed the team by finishing third in the 100 backstroke in the 1996 trials. She was bartending during the Atlanta Games, pouring drinks while customers watched the swimming on television.

"I was like, 'Get that crap off the TV,'" she said earlier in the week, laughing.

Courtney Shealy of Columbia, S.C., made her first Olympic team, hanging on for second at 1:02.05 to beat out high school teacher Lea Maurer, the American record holder in the event. Maurer hung over the lane line, covering her eyes in anguish when she realized she had missed the Olympic team by 0.2 seconds.

"I swam a good race plan and it just wasn't good enough," said Maurer, 29, who won two medals in the 1992 Games. "For some reason, it was harder than it should have been."

McDyess will join team

DENVER — The U.S. Olympic basketball team needed a shot-blocker, and they got one Friday in Antonio McDyess.

The sleek forward was chosen Friday to replace injured Tim Duncan.

Rod Thorn, chairman of the USA Basketball Men's Senior National Team Committee, said McDyess brings to the team versatility and enthusiasm.

Jags win on fumble recovery

Associated Press

■ NFL Preseason

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Fourth-string tight end Brandon Christenson recovered a fumble in the end zone with seven seconds remaining to give the Jacksonville Jaguars a 16-13 exhibition victory over the New York Giants on Friday night.

Trying to force a pass into the end zone during a desperation drive, Jonathan Quinn threw an interception to Giants cornerback Fred Lewis, who was standing just inside the end zone.

Teammate Jack Golden tried to tackle him in the end zone, hopping that would down the ball for a touchback, but Golden's hit popped the ball loose and Christenson recovered.

Redskins 30, Patriots 20

LANDOVER, Md. — Stephen Davis made a solid return in his first game since knee surgery, and Skip Hicks ran for 98 yards and a touchdown as Washington beat New England.

Davis nursed an ankle injury during the offseason after leading the NFC in rushing, then reported to camp late because of a holdout. He rushed for 24 yards on six carries.

Bruce Smith had an impressive debut for Washington, sacking Drew Bledsoe on the former Buffalo star's first play and making the tackle on an up-the-middle run on his second play.

Falcons 31, Bengals 16

ATLANTA — Atlanta star Jamal Anderson played for the first time in almost a year, catching three passes for 15 yards in the Falcons' victory over Cincinnati.

The running back rushed for 0 yards on five carries in his first game since injuring his right knee Sept. 20 against Dallas.

Hall inductees feel humbled

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Ross Browner said it gave him chills. Willie Lanier said it gave him great joy. Herschel Walker said he was embarrassed.

"I'm being inducted as one out of the University of Georgia when really there were many," Walker said.

He was one of 22 players and coaches enshrined Friday into the College Football Hall of Fame. Among the others were Alabama's John Hannah, Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt, Iowa's Chuck Long, UCLA's Billy Kilmer, Texas A&I's Johnny Bailey, Muskingum's Bill Cooper, Franklin's Brad Crawford and Grambling State's Paul "Tank" Younger.

Walker's desire to share the honor was repeated by all seven of the enshrinees who spoke to the crowd of 750 at the Century Center.

Arkansas receiver Chuck Dicus said the enshrinees proved football is more than a sport. "I really think it's true value is in the opportunities it presents, allowing a young boy to have a dream, to have an opportunity to get an education and have an opportunity to improve his life," Dicus said.

Fans flocked to Walker at a reception before the enshrinement, as he signed dozens of miniature Georgia Bulldogs and Dallas Cowboys helmets, posters, and pennants, posed for pictures and told stories, smiling throughout.

"It's just nice to see all these people all dressed up and they're not coming here to bury me," said Walker, who still looks young enough to play.

Lanier grew up in Richmond, Va., at a time when scholarships to major football schools were limited. Lanier did not receive any offers from Division I powers, so he went to Division II Morgan State in Baltimore. He's not bitter or disappointed.

"Disappointed about what? What more could I have done? I'm in the Pro Football Hall of Fame and the College Football Hall of Fame. A big school couldn't have done any more for me," he said.

Nemechek tries to play mindgames with Gordon with threat of Fellows

Associated Press

■ NASCAR Briefs

But road-racing ace Ron Fellows, believed to be the biggest threat to Gordon's try for a Winston Cup-record seventh victory on a road course, would prefer a code of silence on the part of his boss.

"Ron Fellows is the man, and I think Jeff knows it," Nemechek said as the rain fell Friday at Watkins Glen International.

Earlier, Gordon, who has won three years in a row on this 2.45-mile track, told of being needled by fellow racer Nemechek, who fields Fellows' car on the 11-turn layout.

"I was talking to Joe Nemechek last night, and he said they think they've got something for us this year, more horsepower," said Gordon, whose record of six straight road-course wins could end Sunday in the Global Crossing. "He's also got Ron Fellows, and he's definitely a threat."

Nemechek, who also will drive in the race — one of only two road-course events on the schedule — had plenty of time to spread his message as the rain fell long enough to postpone qualifying until Saturday. He's enjoying the needling process, but Fellows isn't.

"I wish he wouldn't do that," said Fellows, who hopes to become the first non-regular in 27 years to win a Winston Cup race. "I don't think Jeff Gordon needs to be motivated."

So much is being made of Fellows' challenge to Gordon — tied with Rusty Wallace for career road-course victories — because the Canadian has won four times in other NASCAR divisions on the serpentine course in the Finger Lakes region. He also proved the best stock car racers are not out of his reach by finishing second last year, when Gordon took his fifth straight road race.

Fellows looked out of his garage as rain became heavier and said there was one thing that worried him more than Gordon.

"We've got to get in the race," said Fellows, who because his car runs only once each year lacks the provisional points to get in the 43-car field unless his has one of the 36 fastest qualifying speeds. "The longer this carries on, the worse it gets for us.

"If the weather cooperates tomorrow, we'll got our one shot."

The forecast for the area where weather often is a factor is for sunny skies with temperatures in the mid-70s. That also was the forecast for Friday, and it did clear long enough in the late afternoon to conduct a short practice.

If qualifying is rained out Saturday, the field would be set by the series standings and other considerations under which Fellows would not make it.

McMurray takes pose

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Rookie Jamie McMurray spoiled Jack Sprague's bid to win poles in six straight seasons, topping qualifying Friday for Saturday's Federated Auto Parts 250.

McMurray, making his third start in the TKO Motorsports Dodge, broke the NASCAR Craftsman Truck record at Nashville Speedway USA with a lap of 111.177 mph on the 0.596-mile track.

McMurray, who also set a track record last month at Michigan Speedway in his debut with the unsponsored team, broke the mark of 111.079 set last year by Tim Steele.

Sprague qualified second at 110.941 in a Chevrolet.

DALLAS: Garmon gets chance

(From 1B)

He was. Sort of.

"My first day was wild," he said. "I was just hopping around, just so happy to be out here playing again. Then, after the second day, with the heat and everything kicking in, I was like, 'Hey, this is football again.' I had to calm myself down and start learning technique and different things."

Coaches expected to bring Garmon along slowly. The plan changed quickly.

Right tackle Erik Williams didn't show up for camp, forcing right guard Solomon Page to move to tackle. Top backups Jorge Diaz and Tony Hutson began battling for the right guard job.

When left guard Larry Allen broke his hand a few days later, the Diaz-Hutson race was still tight. Because they were fighting for a possible opening-day role, coaches opted to plug Garmon into Allen's spot for a few weeks.

"He's got all the statistics — good size, good strength and he understands the game," offensive line coach Hudson Houck said. "He just needs experience right now. We're excited about him. He's not intimidated, so that's really a good sign."

The 6-foot-2, 329-pound Garmon bursts into a smile when he hears about the praise from his coaches.

"It makes me feel great to know that they're noticing my effort," he said. "In the back of my mind, I always felt I could play in the NFL. I always thought I was athletic enough, talented enough. Now that I'm here competing with Pro Bowlers and different guys, it feels good."

Allen returned to practice this week, bumping Garmon to the second team. He'll still see plenty of playing time Sunday against Oakland. Campo said Garmon will get a chance to become a backup at both guard spots.

Garmon isn't complaining.

He's relieved to be playing football again and excited to be part of the team he followed while growing up in Haltom City, a Fort Worth suburb. He's even wearing No. 61, the jersey last worn by his favorite player, Nate Newton.

"I don't have the charisma he does," Garmon said, smiling. "I'm just trying to do what I can do. Hopefully I can get the nastiness and competitiveness he had."

Notes: With Emmitt Smith hobbled, Chris Warren again will start at running back Sunday. He won't play long, though. Campo said Michael Wiley, Michael Black and Troy Hambrick will get extended action to fight for the third RB slot. "They're going to get a yeoman's load the next three ball games," Campo said. "Up until this point, they've been playing against other teams' backup players. Hopefully we'll get them some work to where they can really show what they can do behind our starting offensive line and against some really talented people on the other side." ... A swollen calf muscle will keep safety Izell Reese out of Sunday's game. He's yet to play this preseason. Campo said the third safety job is a bit of a concern. "Guys are battling, but no one has stepped up," he said, referring to Chris Akins and Jason Kaiser. ... Mark Stepnoski was ill again Friday and didn't practice for a second straight day.

De Ferran ties Mid-Ohio track record

LEXINGTON, Ohio (AP) — The most surprising thing about Friday's qualifying for the Miller Lite 200 might be that the track record was merely tied.

CART drivers at the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course are trying to break the record for the 11th straight year. Gil de Ferran, driving a Reynard-Honda for Team Penske, was clocked at 124.394 mph for the day's fastest lap, but that only duplicated the performance of Dario Franchitti in last year's first day of qualifying.

Franchitti's speed held up the following day because rain prevented any serious qualifying attempts from taking place. That's not likely to be the case this year. The weather for Saturday and for Sunday's race is expected to be sunny, with highs in the 80s.

"It's important not to get too excited," de Ferran said. "This is only Friday and if we want to maintain the pole, we'll have to improve our time quite a bit."

NORDT: She led her team to two titles

(From 1B)

el never played before in Midland. She took it into the next century.

"Twenty years ago, every ball was (set) high and outside. Now you can come from anywhere," Lee volleyball coach Connie Alexander said. "When you have a setter like Marlo, the level of play increases. Because it is so quick, the ball can be on the floor before the team has the ability to adjust."

When it comes to selecting a "Best Ever," Nordt may have an unfair advantage. A setter is the most pivotal player on the court, because no matter how good a hitter is, she still has to get a good set. That is one reason Nordt gets the nod over Amy Cumings, a talented player and arguably Midland's top all-around athlete. Cumings went on to play college volleyball at Texas A&M.

But the selection goes beyond the position Marlo played.

"My expectation level in the kids has changed because of Marlo," Alexander said. "We may not get to do things in quite the same manner as we did with Marlo, but it gives the other kids something to strive for. They see what can be done. The standard has been set."

Marlo was the best of a talented group of players who learned and perfected their game at the club level. The Excalibur club team, which consisted mostly of Lee players, traveled to some of the nation's best tournaments and played against the best teams, and that prepared the players to play at a higher level.

"We felt like we could take the level of varsity up a couple notches," Nordt said. "We wanted to make the varsity a better team, and we wanted to go out and win district. We didn't just want to participate. We wanted to make an impact."

During Nordt's junior year, Lee rolled through 4-5A with an undefeated district record. The next year, Cooper challenged, but Lee still won the title, beating the Lady Cougars in a district playoff. Both seasons, the Lady Rebels advanced to the region quarterfinals.

"We had a lot of experience together, which was helpful in pressure situations," Nordt said.

And it started with Nordt.

"She tends to read what the other team is doing," Alexander said. "She is so intelligent and can read the court so well offensively. She can create so many different opportunities."

For Marlo, changing the face of volleyball in Midland was just a matter of keeping up with the ever-changing game.

"That (the changes in the game) is one of the reasons we would go to Tech and watch them play," Nordt said. "I have volleyball magazines and stay informed. One way to be a better player is to stay informed with what is going on at a higher level."

Nordt will play at a higher lever this fall. He has signed to play at Stephen F. Austin University, not that Nordt is the only one from her club team. Five others, maybe six, will play college volleyball next year, which says volumes about the kind of talent Alexander will have to replace this year.

But you get the feeling that the hardest of them all will be Nordt, Midland's "Best Ever."

Midland's Best Ever Volleyball

Marlo Nordt

Nordt

School: Midland Lee.
Graduated: 2000.
Her impact: As Midland Lee's all-state setter, she helped to take the Lady Rebel volleyball team to another level on the court. Lee won two straight district titles.
Most Memorable Moment: "The time we went 12-0 my junior year," Nordt said. "Even though we knew we won district, there is something to be said about the perfect record."
Personal: Nordt, the daughter of David and Margie Nordt, goes by the nickname "Sharkey."... She is also an all-district swimmer... Hobbies include reading, although she doesn't "have enough time to do that."... Also likes photography... Plans to major in computer science at Stephen F. Austin. Will minor in general business.

Others we remember...

Amy Cumings, Midland High, 1987: Nordt may the be the first to get a Division I scholarship out of high school, but she will have to perform at a high level to match Cummings, who was an all-district player at MHS. Cummings walked on at Texas A&M and went on to earn All-SWC honors for the Lady Aggies...

Janice Stanford and Terry Barnes, Lee, 1969: En route to a state championship, the duo led Lee to state tournament wins over Clear Creek and San Antonio Harlingdale, the two-time state champions. In the process, they earned all-district and all-state honors.

Essie Lane and Lynn Bosworth, MHS, 1972: They were all-state performers for the Lady Bulldog team which finished second in state and ended Arlington High's state tournament run...

Sara Moore, MHS, 1975: Moore was the MVP of the Lady Bulldog team, which recorded a 31-1 record but lost to Amarillo High in the region finals.

Heidi Lange, MHS, 1999: A middle blocker and solid all-around player, Lange captured the District MVP award and all-state honors for the Lady Bulldogs. At 5-foot-8, Lange blocked as well as anyone around. She was also a talented basketball player and is currently playing basketball at Midland College.

DOREEN: Football will be saved for November

Midland football team will come out Nov. 5, the Sunday preceding the Midland High-Midland Lee game.

For now, the other sports take center stage. Enjoy.

Robinson, Harris fight to a draw

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Vivian Harris settled for a draw with Ivan Robinson after he was penalized for repeatedly letting his mouthpiece fall out in the junior welterweight fight.

Harris, penalized one point in the eighth round, won on all three judges' cards but still only managed a 94-94 tie under New Jersey's 10-point majority system.

Under it, the fighter who wins on two of the three judges' scorecards automatically wins the round. The third score is thrown out. At the end of the fight, only the judges whose scores counted in each round are used to compute the final score.

The system was instituted in 1999 in the wake of the controversial draw between heavyweights Lennox Lewis and Evander Holyfield. Had the old "10-point must" scoring system been in place, Harris would have won a unanimous decision.

Judge Debra Barnes scored it 95-94, Al Devito had it 95-93 and Luis Rivera scored it 96-93 — all for Harris. The AP had Harris winning 96-93.

Harris, 22, of New York, came into the fight with only one loss in 17 outings as a pro. A native of Guyana, he posted seven first-round knockouts after turning pro in November 1997.

He was quicker and more efficient with his punches, but he got knocked down in the third round with a hard right to the head.

His mouthpiece was knocked out once in the seventh and twice in the eighth, prompting referee Steve Smoger to deduct a point. He almost lost more than that: On the last mouthpiece drop, Harris dropped his hands for a second and Robinson took the opportunity, whacking him in the head with a right before Harris regained his composure.

The crowd at Tropicana Casino Resort booed when the decision was announced.

"First thing we're doing is appealing the decision," said Harris trainer Lou Duva. "If this is the way they're going to score fights, we're in trouble. Boxing's in trouble."

Harris (16-1-1) thought he was robbed.

"I couldn't believe it. No way I lost that fight. I worked hard. They shouldn't do that to me," Harris said.

Said Robinson: "This is boxing."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING TO DISCUSS BUDGET AND PROPOSED TAX RATE

The Midland Independent School District will hold a public meeting at 7:15 pm on August 22, 2000 in the board room of the Administration Building located at 615 W Missouri St. Midland,Texas. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the school district's budget that will determine the tax rate that will be adopted. Public participation in the discussion is invited.

The tax rate that is ultimately adopted at this meeting or at a separate meeting at a later date may not exceed the proposed rate shown below unless the district publishes a revised notice containing the same information and comparisons set out below and holds another public meeting to discuss the revised notice.

COMPARISON OF PROPOSED RATES WITH LAST YEAR'S RATES

	MAINT & OPER	INT & SINKING	TOTAL	LOCAL REV PER STUDENT	STATE REV PER STUDENT
LAST YEAR'S RATE	$1.4590	$0.1100	$1.5690	$3,064	$2,311
RATE TO MAINTAIN SAME LEVEL OF MAINTENANCE & OPERATIONS REVENUE & PAY DEBT SERVICE	$1.4080	$0.1250	$1.5330	$3,096	$2,512
PROPOSED RATE	$1.5000	$0.1390	$1.6390	$3,259	$2,619

* The Interest & Sinking Fund tax revenue is used to pay for bonded indebtedness on construction, equipment or both.

The bonds and the tax rate necessary to pay those bonds were approved by the voters of this district.

COMPARISON OF PROPOSED LEVY WITH LAST YEAR'S LEVY ON AVERAGE RESIDENCE

	LAST YEAR	THIS YEAR
Average Market Value of Residences	$ 66,900	$ 67,960
Average Taxable Value of Residences	$ 54,737	$ 55,865
Last Year's Rate Versus Proposed Rate per $100 value	$ 1.5687	$ 1.6390
Taxes Due On Average Residence	$ 858.66	$ 915.63
Increase in Taxes	$ 56.97

Under state law, the dollar amount of school taxes imposed on the residence homestead of a person 65 years of age or older, or of the surviving spouse of such a person, if the surviving spouse was 55 years of age or older when the person died, may not be increased above the amount paid in the first year after the person turned 65, regardless of changes in the tax rate or property value.

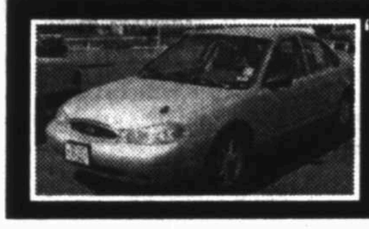

Notice of Rollback Rate: The highest tax rate the district can adopt before requiring voter approval at an election is $1.6996/ $100. This election will be automatically held if the district adopts a rate in excess of the roll back rate of 1.6996/ $100

FUND BALANCES

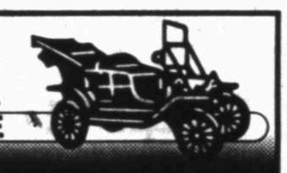

The following estimated balances will remain at the end of the current fiscal year and not encumbered with or by a corresponding debt obligation, less estimated funds necessary for operating the district before receipt of the first state aid payment:

The Dalai Lama has been excluded from the first two days of the upcoming Millennium World Peace Summit at the United Nations. Organizers said the Tibetan religious leader was not invited to the first two days of the summit so as not to offend China. They said he will talk the last day of the four-day gathering of 1,000 spiritual leaders, but at a New York hotel instead of the U.N.

■ Organizers hope that four-day conference can lead to formation of council to advise U.N.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Though the Dalai Lama's exclusion from the upcoming Millennium World Peace Summit at the United Nations brought unwelcome headlines, organizers hope the gathering of 1,000 religious leaders will highlight a new global effort for peace.

"The summit has to be a call to action," said Bawa Jain, secretary-general of the summit and veteran interfaith organizer. "Unless religious leaders commit themselves to action in their communities, religion is not going to have any meaning."

Organizers of the four-day gathering, which begins Aug. 28, say it should result in a permanent council of religious leaders to advise the United Nations on preventing and resolving conflicts.

Still, even as the agenda is being finalized, political-religious strains threaten the peace of the peace summit.

Two weeks ago, word got out that conference organizers had not invited the Dalai Lama to the first two days of the conference at the United Nations, for fear of offending China.

China would be outraged, a U.N. official advised organizers, if they invited to the United Nations the Tibetan spiritual leader who fled his homeland in 1959 after an abortive uprising against China's occupation.

Instead, organizers invited the Dalai Lama to the last two days of the conference and to give the concluding speech — all scheduled at a New York hotel, away from the United Nations. He declined.

Among those who have said they will attend are Cardinal Francis Arinze, president of the Vatican's Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue; Cambodian Buddhist leader Samdech Preah Maha Ghosananda; the Grand Mufti of Bosnia, Mustafa Ceric; Israel's Chief Rabbi Meir Lau; the Rev. Jesse Jackson; and numerous indigenous leaders including Chief Oren Lyons, faithkeeper of the Onondaga Nation in upstate New York,

Many confirmed participants say that given the number of conflicts with strong religious influences — from Sierra Leone to the Balkans — they won't miss a chance to form alliances at the summit.

Much has been written about the religious roots of violence, but until recently little attention has been paid to religious resources for peace, notes Marc Gopin, author of "Between Eden and Armageddon: The Future of World Religions, Violence and Peacemaking."

These resources include conflict resolution strategies that take into account factions' deeply held theological views, Gopin said.

"An understanding of religious tradition can generate solutions that speak to billions of people," such

Northwest Baptist leads effort to collect shoes for kids in China and Russia

As autonomous entities, Baptist churches are free to differ in their beliefs and methodology, and they frequently do, said the Rev. James and Mary Aldridge, but when it comes to missions, they can be counted on to come together.

The Aldridges are seeing the results of that coming together with every pair of shoes, every package of socks and every package of personal care products added to the pile in their hallway at Northwestern Baptist Church.

All during August, Baptists and others are asked to buy shoes, socks or shoelaces, personal-care products or over-the-counter medicine and take the items to participating churches where they will be sent to orphans in Russia, China and Romania. The mission is a project of Buckner Orphan Care International, the venerable Baptist ministry that started in 1870 in Dallas as Buckner Orphans Home.

The Aldridges, who are serving as volunteer coordinators of the project in Midland this year, said Northwestern Baptist first participated in the program last year, and was the only church in Midland to do so. This year, three other Baptist churches have signed up so far, and they hope there will be more before the deadline.

"First Baptist, Crestview Baptist, Greenwood Baptist, Bellview Baptist and Cuthbert Avenue Baptist are already collecting at this point, and we hope there will be others," said Aldridge.

The project began in 1995 when a Dallas radio station began an appeal for shoes for a reported half a million children left orphaned in Russia. Between 1995 and 1998, the station — in tandem with the benevolent organization Children's Hope Chest — had collected and delivered more than 5,000 pairs of shoes.

Buckner adopted the project in 1999. The Aldridges, who are adoptive and foster parents, said that when they heard of the project they asked their congregation if this was a ministry the church would like to take on.

"When we put it before our people, they said, 'Let's do it,'" said Aldridge.

"I think we contributed about 115 pairs of shoes and 170 pairs of socks.

"People looked for bargains, and bought extras when they were shopping for their own kids' school shoes. We didn't ask people outside our church to participate, but some of our members told others about what they were doing and those people contributed."

This year, the Aldridges held an information meeting in mid-July and invited all the area Baptist churches to come.

"We explained how the program worked and let them decide how they would participate," Aldridge said.

They also told the story of the orphans and explained the situation.

"The winters in Russia are extremely harsh and in Russian orphanages, children are divided according to age. When infants are put into state care, they go to one orphanage until about the age of 4, then they are moved to another orphanage, where they stay until they're 12 or 13," Aldridge said. "Then they go to another orphanage that keeps them until age 15 or 16.

"After that, they're turned into the streets, where they live in sewers, in elevator shafts, or wherever they can.

"A high percentage of the boys turn to crime to support themselves and many of the girls end up in prostitution. We can't help all the needy children in Russia, but we can help some. We can't control what happens to these children, but we can do something. We can send them shoes and socks to help them through the winters and we can send a message that we care. If we can make a difference in the life of one, we've helped."

Aldridge said last year, Buckner collected more than 20,000 pairs of shoes statewide, and volunteers flew to St. Petersburg where they personally delivered them.

"This year, Buckner has expanded the program outside the St. Petersburg area, and they'll also go to Vladimer, and to Romania and to China."

He said shoes destined for the orphanages must be new, suitable for cold weather (no san-

Children learn about Jesus even if they don't appear to be listening

Williams

Several years ago, our son had the sleepover of a lifetime. The evening's unauthorized activities included face-painting in the bathroom (solid black for camouflage, semi-permanent); a mud fight; a food orgy; an attempted escape to the high school football game; and the complete trashing of the front yard, the back yard, Jerry's room, and the TV room.

After the entire household had gotten no sleep at all, the event culminated Saturday morning when Jerry fell off the ladder trying to retrieve a frisbee from the roof. Five hours, many prayers, and 27 stitches later, we banned future sleepovers for an extended period of time.

Unfortunately, the excitement didn't stop there. Baggy-eyed, I packed Monday full of chores I didn't accomplish during the weekend. At 10 a.m., the school nurse called. Thinking Jerry was still tired from the weekend, I picked him up and in desperation tried to sneak in one measly errand on the way home. As we hit Loop 250 and Midland Drive, it became apparent that my son was not malingering. I quickly ditched the tapes and held the tape carrier as an emesis basin, praying that cars wouldn't rear-end us while we worked our way to the side of the road.

Oh, Lord, "Please Let Me Hold the Barf Bag Straight" struck me as a good title for a book about prayers for everyday life at the minister's house.

I wish I could say our breakfast table resembles a prayer meeting, bedtime a Bible study, and playtime a revival. Au contraire. Breakfast resembles "Animal House" as we peel the banana off the wall, bedtime is a garage sale with the entire contents of the closet on the floor and playtime a boxing match.

Then there's that moment of redemption, just when you think you're ready for the Parent Reject Class: None of the Bible stories have sunk in, and the only person who's paid attention to the admonition, "Please share" is you and you already know that lesson. At church one Wednesday night, the boys were throwing a cast-iron metal bar up into the tree, pulling on the attached yellow rope to get it down. Jerry pulled and pulled and succeeded in cracking his head when the bar — to his surprise— tumbled right out of the tree.

"Honey, what did you learn?" I asked him after we'd cleaned up all the blood and ascertained that he didn't need stitches (again).

"Never defy gravity," he said soberly. Then he thought for a minute and continued, "Mom," he said. "You know, God was really looking out for me. I could have died, or broken my skull."

He'd been listening after all!

The truth about clergy families is that they are just like other families. After all the daily fracas and frayed nerves, I sneak into my children's bedrooms, caress their beautiful sleeping faces, and thank the Lord for these precious, active treasures. Every night I pray that I don't ruin them with excess zeal, and that they will grow in the knowledge and love of Jesus — in spite of our best efforts.

Participants watch Billy Graham on a giant TV screen at "Amsterdam 2000," a world conference of evangelical Protestants in Amsterdam, Netherlands. Graham, the absent patron of the meeting, delivered the closing address via video from Rochester, Minn, where he was recovering from surgery.

Conference defines evangelical Protestantism's message, not future

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — By most accounts, evangelical Protestantism is one of the great, growing religious movements internationally, as it is in the United States.

There was ample evidence of that at "Amsterdam 2000," Billy Graham's grand assemblage of 10,700 evangelical activists from 209 nations and territories that convened here through last Sunday.

Underscoring the significance of the event, the Rev. David Barrett, editor of the forthcoming World Christian Encyclopedia, estimates the movement now numbers some 210 million.

The conference sharply defined the message, methods and mission of the evangelicals — but it failed to clarify key aspects of their future.

One important unknown is who the top future leaders will be.

It was the last world meeting that will be led by Graham, who at 81 was recovering from surgery and unable to attend. Graham is preparing to turn his organization over to his son, Franklin.

Franklin, 48, says operations will continue unchanged. But he acknowledges he's no second Billy, and his conference address was devoid of any broad or stirring evangelical vision.

Evangelicalism "became a distinct global reality in the second half of the 20th century," said the "Amsterdam Declaration," a 10-page statement based on conference speeches and strategy discussions. And the gathering was a nostalgic final bow on the world stage for those who jump-started evangelicalism after World War II.

One workshop leader, a Baptist from Ghana, complained that the average age of main conference speakers was 65. "Who is taking over, and why are they not given the opportunity to do things?" he wondered.

The Rev. John Akers, the program chairman and a top aide to Graham for 23 years, said Graham wanted seasoned speakers to pass "the wisdom of one generation on to the next."

Graham's U.S. staff picked all the participants and speakers, and thus determined who got exposure from evangelicalism's deepening talent pool in the non-Western nations.

Akers, a former church history professor, thinks evangelicalism may be moving away from an era of famous leaders. But he said, "If there is a new Billy Graham in the next generation, he is likely to come from one of the other continents."

Board votes against posting 'God' motto

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — The board overseeing Colorado's largest school district voted against posting the motto "In God We Trust" in schools except in an educational context.

The unanimous vote Thursday by the Jefferson County School Board, whose district includes Columbine High School, came a month after the state education board voted to encourage such postings.

"We don't want our schools engulfed in controversy," board President Jon DeStefano said.

The Colorado board voted in July to encourage postings of the motto, which has been on U.S. currency since the 19th century, as a way to celebrate national heritage.

LEADERS: Meeting is response to call from Annan

as bringing forward-thinking religious leaders into the highest levels of the Mideast peace talks, he said.

Earlier interreligious conferences, such as last year's Parliament of World Religions in Cape Town, South Africa, focused more on interfaith dialogue. Summit organizers say this meeting will attempt to look at conflict resolution strategies in key regions and propose initiatives on peace, poverty and the environment while forging a partnership with the United Nations.

The United Nations is not an official sponsor of the summit, which has received funding from Ted Turner's U.N. Foundation, Better World Fund and others. A coalition of interfaith leaders organized the program.

Still, organizers say the meeting was a response to a call from U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan, who will give the opening address, and the first two days of the summit will be held in the U.N. General Assembly chamber.

Even loose ties with the world body, Jain said, have been advantageous, helping to attract religious leaders who see it as a neutral setting.

But the U.N. connection also placed the summit into the midst of international political tensions. It was on learning of the Dalai Lama's exclusion that fellow Nobel peace laureate Desmond Tutu fired off a protest letter to Annan.

"I gather this happened through caving in to pressure from the government of China," Tutu wrote. "If this is so, then it totally undermines the integrity of the United Nations and the credibility of the summit."

Some observers question how much progress religious leaders can make during a four-day summit, and just how forthcoming they'll be.

Courageous leaders with large followings "can do great things for peace by making it clear religion cannot be used to legitimate violence," said R. Scott Appleby, director of the Joan B. Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies at the University of Notre Dame.

On the other hand, he said, top leaders may be defensive of their constituencies and refuse to admit their own communities' mistakes.

It's common, he said, for leaders to "talk about how their traditions are for peace (and) denounce those who do violence" in the name of religion, but it's rare for them to acknowledge how their own traditions incite violence.

David Little, Harvard Divinity School professor of religion, ethnicity and international conflict and a member of the summit scholars group, said he hopes religious leaders will discuss subjects they often avoid, such as the treatment of minorities who have become the leading victims of human rights abuses and the use of force to restrain violence.

Most important, he wants to see leaders make tough political choices about who might serve on an advisory committee to the United Nations.

While skeptics predict four days of self-congratulatory speeches, Jain said he believes the urgency of the problem will inspire more substantive responses.

"The world's great religious leaders will together exert moral authority in zones of conflict to seek nonviolent solutions," said.

Given the level of violence worldwide, he said, "we have no choice."

dals) and packed in a certain way. Once the shoes are collected, volunteers at the churches will pack the shoes, socks and other items according to specifications. Southwest Airlines will transport the packages to Love Field from points around Texas and other states free of charge.

Aldridge said donors don't have to be members of participating churches. The Texas Rangers have designated Aug. 26 as Shoes for Orphan Souls Night at Ranger Stadium, with 50 percent of ticket sales going to the project.

"There are more than 200 organizations other than churches involved in this drive, and I think it's in the process of becoming a nationwide program.

"Any individual or organization can help, either by buying shoes, or by giving money. If anyone wants more information, they may call my wife or me, and we'll be glad to help."

They're also sending over-the-counter medicines this year, and shampoo and other personal hygiene items.

"At our church, we've encouraged people to give a pair of shoes in memory of family members or loved ones, or in honor of people who are still living.

"Mary and I have a number of nieces and nephews and great-nieces and -nephews, and we're buying shoes in their honor, and including their pictures inside one of the shoes with a note.

"When the shoes are delivered, the child receiving the shoes can see the picture, and an interpreter can tell him or her what the note says."

Aldridge said a large part of the appeal lies in the program's simplicity.

"This is a simple, direct way to help kids. You actually send a pair of shoes that you know will be put on a child's feet."

Selah Ministries puts addicts, ex-convicts on path to recovery

By Jeanne Russell
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — The ex-convict had been working since February, rebuilding a neglected old house and himself.

He had learned that a mixture of faith, his wife's gentle words and a newfound patience and perseverance could drown out the constant hum of bad memories.

"I couldn't take the pain," Gerald Gay said, recounting the death of his mother, whom he described as his best friend. "I moved here, running."

He was a crack cocaine addict for six or seven years; exactly how many, he can't remember.

"I looked at my wife's eyes. I looked at my stepdaughter's. The misery I put them through I asked myself, 'Why?'" Gay said, taking a break from laying concrete steps for the house at 304 Avondale on the South Side.

The bracing staccato of a jackhammer, the smell of wet concrete, the rhythmic banging of nails make this construction site seem like any other.

But a sign reads: "Construction and Renovations by Selah Ministries."

Among the things the two men pouring concrete give thanks for in a group prayer that starts each workday is a support network that allows them to count each morning as one more away from drugs and prison.

They labor as part of a pilot collaboration between a Baptist ministry aimed at ex-cons and ex-addicts and an affordable housing group run by Catholics.

The pairing of Selah Ministries and Merced Housing, a nonprofit homebuilder, brings together: a transitional home for people leaving prison or drugs, regular Christian 12-step recovery meetings, and job training and mentoring.

It will result in the creation of much-needed affordable houses in San Antonio's center city. Or at least that's the plan.

In Texas, 40 percent of the people released from prison in 1994 were back behind bars within three years. That's consistent with national numbers that have led the public to question whether criminals can be rehabilitated.

But Pastor William Kelly, founder of Selah Ministries and a recovering addict and ex-convict himself, believes they can. What is needed, he said, is a comprehensive faith-based approach.

"We know that prisons are not reforming," Kelly said.

"God gave me a vision," he added. "What God had shown me was that I was supposed to help recovering addicts and ex-cons."

He chose the word "selah" from the Bible, a word that communicates the need to stop, take a moment and reflect on what you've learned.

The men restoring the small frame house on Avondale say many drug addicts are simply businessmen whose talents need to be redirected away from the street.

"Believe it or not, most drug addicts are very intelligent. We're turning that toward something responsible. All this pouring concrete and shoveling, it is all worth it," Gay said. "Me, as an addict, personally, I feel like everyone deserves a chance."

Kelly, a man whose faith drives him to convert even people he meets casually, said he was called by God in 1993 to quit a well-paying car sales job to start the ministry. Since then, he has launched several small businesses, the construction company and a janitorial service all of which employ ex-addicts and hosted a fund-raising concert by rap artist M.C. Hammer.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 12, 2000:

You're energized this year. Zoom in and make dreams reality. Others cheer you on. You have a strong fan club. Talking about goals and wishes opens the door to desires. Expand your circle of friends. Network. You'll gain through others. Count on your determination and charisma. You will also work long and hard to make your desires a reality. If you are single, you will love socializing more than ever, but you'll meet someone special with whom you might want a strong, long-term relationship. If you are attached, your relationship grows. You are more than willing to indulge your loved one. CAPRICORN serves as the voice of reason.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ Willingly revise plans. Another's new idea proves to be too good to resist. Go with the moment. You might go overboard and indulge in a major way. Listen to your sixth sense with a loved one. Your words carry more weight than you realize. Tonight: Let down your hair.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Reach out for another and take a risk. Someone's way of looking at problems rings a bell. You can deal with these ideas. Family plays a big role in decisions. Cough up that little extra money to make another happy. The good times roll when you decide to be less uptight. Tonight: Try a new restaurant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ You get good news. Others join you and get into the moment. Your sense of fun revolves around one significant other. Tension eases when you allow others to just be. Accept silliness. Let go of judgments. Make an extra effort to communicate with a dear friend. Tonight: Dinner for two!

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Others come to you. Refuse to be cornered. Know exactly what you want. You'll land on your feet if you listen to your strong intuition. Money plays a big role in your decisions. Don't be a tightwad right now. Another appreciates a gift or thought. Tonight: Say yes to a party invitation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Pace yourself. You need to keep communicating, especially about a child or loved one. Aim for what you want and take charge. You have high energy and can devour any task that comes your way. Friends invite you to join them. They love your extra energy. Tonight: Flip the hamburgers at a barbecue.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ Tame your imagination. Know more of what you want from another. Put yourself on the line and ask for what you want. You read between the lines with family and others. You need to zoom in and pitch in where another might feel unsteady. Tonight: Play the night away.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You don't have to go far to make what you want happen. Your cheerful side emerges when dealing with loved ones and family. Friends seek you out for advice, and perhaps also to join them in a fun excursion. Let go of self-discipline, at least for the day! Tonight: Whoop it up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Conversations take on an animated quality. Those you respect and/or put on a pedestal seek you out. A partner puts himself on the line to make a situation work. Don't stand on ceremony. Know your expectations and ask for exactly what you want. Tonight: Togetherness makes the night.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Your attitude attracts others. Listen to another's schemes, but feel free to say no. Others present you with many opportunities. You might not know which way to go. Try to incorporate many people and happenings into your plans. Tonight: Indulge another.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Your instincts with another help you get past an immediate liability. Carefully revise your thinking about a dear loved one. Be more understanding. Sometimes this person might create a lot of grief, but he means well. Laugh and enjoy the high energy. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Reach out to another. You might understand much more than you are letting on. Your sense of humor comes out with a child or loved one. Be more playful. Give someone the freedom to be a little wilder than normal. Zoom in where it counts. Tonight: Vanish with a favorite person.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Recognize another's limits as well as your own. Pushing could make for frayed nerves. Honor a change of plans. Be flexible with a parent or older relative. Bring friends and loved ones together. Let others relax and have fun in your back yard. Tonight: The party could go till the wee hours.

Myers reaches deal with movie studios

LOS ANGELES — Mike Myers is as happy as a little girl. The actor has reached a deal with two movie studios that dissolves three lawsuits so he can move ahead with a movie based on his "Saturday Night Live" character Dieter.

Though details of the agreement were not disclosed, Myers said in a statement Thursday he will write his comedy as a "co-production" for Universal Studios and DreamWorks SKG, with Imagine Entertainment producing.

"I'm glad to put all of this behind me and I'm looking forward to doing a movie that we can all be proud of," said Myers, who created the character of Dieter (pronounced DEET-er), the slick-haired German host of a techno-pop dance show called "Sprockets."

Myers had backed away from the movie, saying the script needed work, and Universal Pictures sued in June for $3.8 million plus lost profits. Then, in July, Imagine Entertainment sued for more than $30 million alleging Myers reneged on an agreement to write, produce and star in the film.

Days later, the "Austin Powers" star countersued Universal Pictures. Myers sought $20 million for invasion of privacy and intentional infliction of emotional distress, claiming that a process server for the studio chased him "in a threatening manner down dark, winding and unlit streets."

The movie had been slated to begin shooting this month with Will Ferrell and David Hasselhoff and a June 2001 release.

LOS ANGELES — Lourdes is getting a brother: Madonna confirms it'll be a boy when she delivers her second child next month.

Her publicist, Liz Rosenberg, said Friday the pregnant Material Girl has confirmed that she will be having a boy.

Madonna, 41, is eight months pregnant by British director boyfriend Guy Ritchie. The baby is due sometime in September.

Reiner, who was co-host of "Your Show of Shows," wrote, directed and co-starred in "The Dick Van Dyke Show" and directed the movie hits "The Jerk" and "All of Me," is being honored at an Aug. 18 tribute at the Friars Club in Beverly Hills.

"Carl has had an extensive and impressive history in the entertainment industry and he deserves a very special night of his own. That's just what we plan to give him — traditional Friars Club style," club president Irwin M. Schaeffer said.

Talk show host Larry King, the Friars Club Abbott, will serve as master of ceremonies and will be joined by Hal Linden, Dick Van Dyke, Larry Gelbart, Hal Kanter, Sid Caesar and Fyvish Finkel in the tributes.

LOS ANGELES — Actor Robert Downey Jr., released from prison last week, didn't have to wait long to find work.

He will be joining the Fox series "Ally McBeal" in a recurring role, playing a mysterious stranger who seems able to connect with the complicated Ally, played by Calista Flockhart.

"We're thrilled. We've admired his work for years and know he'll make an enormous contribution to 'Ally McBeal,'" series creator David E. Kelley said Thursday.

"David's a genius, Calista's awesome, and once again I have a choice of shirt colors," Downey said, apparently joking about his recent prison garb. He will make his debut in the series' season premiere on Oct. 23.

LOS ANGELES — Billy Crystal and John Goodman will be mouthpieces for "Monsters Inc.," the next computer-animated film from the folks who made the "Toy Story" movies and "A Bug's Life."

Crystal and Goodman will provide voices for a pair of creatures who dwell in the world of monsters, producers said Thursday. The movie will focus on a girl from the real world who stumbles into the monsters' realm.

"Monsters Inc.," a comedy due in theaters in November 2001, is the fourth feature-film collaboration between Walt Disney and Pixar Animation, a pioneer in computer-generated cartoons.

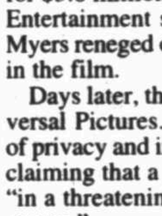

Goodman's character will be a large, blue-furred creature with horns who is a top fright-monger at the Monsters Inc. scare factory. Crystal provides the voice of Goodman's friend and roommate, a scrappy, one-eyed scare assistant.

The voice cast also includes James Coburn, Jennifer Tilly and Steve Buscemi. The movie will be created at Pixar's headquarters near Oakland.

Proponents, opponents debate DNA in criminal justice system

AUSTIN (AP) — Careful collection and storage by the government of DNA evidence could help convict criminals and free the falsely accused, proponents of such a system said Friday.

But opponents, including the American Civil Liberties Union, warned that DNA databases could be misused or abused and lead to medical and other types of discrimination.

"Sorry to rain on your parade," said William Harrell of the ACLU of Texas. Just as Social Security numbers have evolved into being multipurpose identification numbers for Americans, DNA evidence, if collected and stored on a widespread basis in a database, could be used in ways not now envisioned, Harrell said.

Discrimination based on biological information detected from DNA samples could occur and constitutional rights could be violated, he said.

Harrell was among the speakers at the daylong conference "The Future of DNA in Texas" sponsored by the Austin Police Department and the Travis County District Attorney's Office.

DNA collection and storage are subjects increasingly discussed throughout the country as the biological evidence is used more often in the criminal justice system. The issue is expected to be debated in next year's Texas Legislature.

Some conference speakers were upbeat about collection of DNA.

"It's singular in its ability to deliver the truth," said Clay Strange, an assistant district attorney for Travis County. "In many ways, DNA really is the premiere forensic science of all time."

Raven Kazen, director of the victim services division for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, said arrests and convictions have been made in previously unsolved crimes because of DNA evidence.

Kazen acknowledged the cost of creating a statewide DNA database could be high.

"It's not a project — it's a space launch," she said. "We need to take it one step at a time. We need to take it incrementally."

Criminal defense attorneys view DNA as a way to free innocent people, but they also want regulation and limits if the government is going to regularly collect and store samples, said Keith Hampton of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association.

Labs that analyze DNA samples in criminal cases should be independent and be tested so that attorneys know the rate of human error, he said.

There also should be limits on who can access DNA samples and how long the government can keep them, he said.

Hampton also said there is a need for more access to post-conviction DNA testing. He mentioned the case of Roy Criner, 35, who was sentenced to 99 years in prison for the rape of 16-year-old Deanna Ogg, whose nude, bludgeoned body was found in 1986.

Initially, Criner was charged with murder, but that count was dropped for lack of evidence. Recently discovered DNA evidence suggests Criner did not commit the rape.

Prosecutors and law officers have asked that Criner be pardoned. He was not freed by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals but is awaiting a pardon decision by the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

"Mr. Criner was exonerated by DNA. He is still in prison. That's wrong," Hampton said.

Gov. George W. Bush must approve any pardon recommended by the parole board. Since 1997, Bush has pardoned three men convicted of rape or sexual assault after DNA evidence came back in their favor.

Rescue teams expand search, continue to look for two missing Navy crewmen

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Rescue and recovery teams widened their search Friday for two men still missing from a Navy helicopter that crashed in the Gulf of Mexico.

Four airmen — two dead and two injured — were pulled from the water after the Thursday crash. Shredded insulation and smashed metal washed up on the sands Friday as helicopters and cutters continued to search.

"Until we have confirmation that these two guys aren't out there, we're going to keep looking," said Cmdr. David McBride, a Coast Guard spokesman. Air temperature was about 90 degrees Friday and the water temperature was about 80 degrees. Crew members could survive up to four days in the gulf, McBride said.

The MH-53E helicopter, also known as a Sea Dragon, was hovering about 17 miles off shore on a minesweeping training mission Thursday morning when it reported a mechanical malfunction. The Sea Dragon plummeted into 50-foot waters. Floating wreckage was spotted 15 minutes after the distress call.

A 72-square-foot mass at the bottom of the gulf is likely the helicopter, said Navy Cmdr. Barry Coceano. Divers were exploring the silty depths.

The survivors, floating in a life raft, were rescued from the water about 30 minutes after the helicopter went down.

Petty officers Jeremy J. Yaklin, 19, of Lapeer, Mich. and Shawn R. Palyo, 20, of Stratford, Conn., were listed in stable condition at Christus Spohn Memorial Hospital in Corpus Christi, said Lt. j.g. Chuck Bell with Naval Air Station Corpus Christi. Yaklin suffered a broken pelvis and Palyo had cuts to his face and upper body.

The Navy identified the two dead crew members as the pilot, Lt. Shawn O. Jacobs, 30, of Jefferson City, Mo., and petty officer Jeffrey S. Paschal, 40, of Phoenix.

'These are my pilots, my friends. This is a very difficult situation to deal with.'

— Cmdr. Bob Riehl, Commanding officer of the HM-15 mine countermeasures squadron

The missing crew members were identified as co-pilot Lt. Edward R. Fassnacht, 31, of Akron, Ohio, and petty officer David E. Rutherford, 27, of Masontown, Pa.

The Navy is beginning to put together an investigation team.

None of the squadron's helicopters has been grounded, although no flights are scheduled until Monday, said Cmdr. Bob Riehl, commanding officer of the HM-15 mine countermeasures squadron based at NAS Corpus Christi.

"These are my pilots, my friends," Riehl said. "This is a very difficult situation to deal with."

Officials have closed about five miles of beaches as they continue to recover debris from the shoreline.

Salvage crews in thick gloves and coveralls hauled splintered insulation away from the waterline. A thick smell of diesel gas hung in the air — the fuel tank shattered upon impact, spreading a slick of oil into the gulf waters, a Coast Guard spokesman said. Fiberglass and seaweed mixed in the waves.

In the pre-dawn darkness, a pair of lungs washed up on the wet sands. Navy salvagers stored the organs in a cooler.

"Definite human organ," said a somber Navy man, who did not give his name.

Six members of the HM-15 squadron were killed in the Persian Gulf in Sept. 14, 1991, when their Sea Dragon helicopter crashed minutes after taking off from an amphibious assault ship 40 miles north of Bahrain.

The MH-53E is manufactured by Sikorsky Aircraft Corp. in Stratford, Conn.

In May 1996, a similar model, the CH-53E Super Stallion crashed, killing four Sikorsky employees in Stratford. The Navy temporarily halted flights of all "E" models, including the Super Stallion and the Sea Dragon. A faulty bearing was blamed for the 1996 crash.

Besides mine-countermeasures, the MH-53E can be used to tow vessels, transport cargo and transport equipment. The helicopter can carry 55 passengers or a 16-ton payload.

"It's a very successful mine counter-measures helicopter," said company spokesman Bill Tuttle. He estimated the Navy has a fleet of more than 40 MH-53Es.

Information on the HM-15 squadron's Web site said it was established in 1987 and originally based in Alameda, Calif. The unit provided airlift support for disaster relief efforts after the 1989 Loma Prieta earthquake and served in Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm in 1991-1992. It was reassigned in 1996 to Corpus Christi.

Slain Texas highway trooper laid to rest

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — Described as a gentle giant and a hero, slain Texas state highway trooper Randy Vetter was buried Friday, four days after he died of wounds from a traffic stop shootout.

A procession of more than 100 law enforcement vehicles, some from as far away as Montana, led Vetter's family to the St. Paul Lutheran Church for the funeral service.

Mourners filled the church to capacity and spilled out onto nearby streets. An audio feed from the service was broadcast outside and could be heard up to a mile away as townspeople in this community of about 30,000 lined roads near the church to listen.

About 500 people were outside the church, unable to get in.

"It's difficult to fathom why this had to occur," said Paul Waggener, a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper who worked with Vetter when both were stationed in New Braunfels.

"This is just a terrible reminder that there is no such thing as a routine traffic stop," Waggener said. "Randy Vetter was a quiet, intelligent, and highly honorable trooper and family man. I still can't believe he's gone. Vetter was a hero in every sense of the word."

A six-year DPS veteran, the 28-year-old Vetter was shot on Aug. 3 after he pulled over 72-year-old Melvin Edison Hale for not wearing a seat belt.

Police say Hale approached Vetter's car with a rifle and shot him once in the head. Vetter died at a hospital in Austin on Monday, four days after the shooting.

Hale has been charged with capital murder and prosecutors have said they will consider seeking the death penalty. Vetter, the 75th Texas DPS officer to die in the line of duty, is survived by his wife, Cynthia, and 8-month-old son Robert.

After the funeral, the family motorcade was led to Comal Cemetery, where Vetter was laid to rest alongside his mother, Shirley, who died in 1997.

There was a 21-gun salute. A lone trumpeter played taps and "Amazing Grace."

After Austin DPS Capt. Charles Smith called out Vetter's badge number and deemed it expired, Vetter's wife was presented the folded U.S. and Texas flags that had draped the casket.

The Rev. Dr. Charles DeHaven, who led the funeral service, said the town had watched Vetter grow from an infant into a man. The officer's death is the "saddest thing I've ever witnessed in 31 years as a pastor," he said.

"He was baptized in this church shortly after he was born," DeHaven said. "He was confirmed here during ninth grade and was married here in 1995. Just one month ago we baptized his son Robert, and it was such an exciting day for him. Their lives were so joyous one minute and filled with tragedy the next."

Will Kreig, who recently retired after serving as principal at the high school where Vetter's wife used to teach, said the officer often volunteered his time there.

"He would come to all of the dances and student council activities dressed in full uniform," Kreig said.

"With Randy Vetter here, we never had any trouble. He was just a big gentle giant who seemed to love everybody. He did everything out of the goodness of his heart."

Col. Thomas A. Davis. Jr., director of the DPS, issued a statement of thanks for the "overwhelming show of support in this time of sadness."

"The best wishes of so many has been a ray of light in a trying time for the DPS and Vetter families," Davis said. "On this day, we join with the rest of the state in saluting the memory and public service of trooper Randy Vetter. He will forever hold a place of honor in our hearts."

GENERAL INFORMATION:

To ensure the integrity of our newspaper, for the benefit of our readers and advertisers, the Midland Reporter-Telegram reserves the right the revise, reclassify, edit or refuse any advertising. We also reserve the right to convert all advertising into digital and/or audiotext formats within our other products and services.

Please check your ad the first day it appears, and, if you find a mistake, please call our office at 682-6222 so we can correct the error immediately. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. If an error does occur, you can choose to rerun your ad once for free, or we'll gladly refund the cost of the portion of the ad affected by the error. If an ad is inadvertently omitted, we will assume liability up to the cost of the ad itself – consequently, we will publish your ad in our next available edition or refund the price you have paid.

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classifications require payment in advance. Credit applications are required for business accounts.

We welcome your suggestions or comments. Please call: Brandi Alexander, Telephone Sales Supervisor, 687-8813.

HOUSEHOLD ITEMS:

❸ Sell It In 10 - Advertise anything on wheels for 10 days. In the unlikely event that it doesn't sell, we'll run it for 10 more days FREE! If it still doesn't sell, we'll run it 10 more days FREE if you drop the price 10%. 4 LINES 10 DAYS FREE $20.50

You'll get 4 lines to describe your vehicle (that's about 18 words, including the price). If you would like more information in your ad, each additional line is only $5.

All of our specials are for private, non-commercial individuals only and some specials require pre-payment, some do not. One item per ad please. Call 682-6222 for complete details.

PLACING AN AD:

Call 682-6222, Monday through Friday, from 8a.m. – 6p.m.

A friendly Advertising Consultant will help you word and schedule your ad for best results.

HOW TO WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT WORKS!

❶ Promote Your Merchandise - The more descriptive you are the more likely your merchandise will appeal to someone.

❷ Check The Market Value - The most common mistake that occurs is over or under pricing your goods.

❸ Always Include The Price - People are more likely to respond when they know the price range.

❹ Keyword Your Ad - Begin each ad with the name of the item, such as "Stove" or "Guitar" rather than "Kenmore" or "Gibson", "Ford 1997" instead of "1997 Ford", or by its key reference point, such as location or area in real estate ads.

Raising the bar:
2000 Honda Odyssey

By Ken Chester, Jr.

Honda's initial foray into the minivan market was in 1995 with the introduction of the first generation Odyssey. Changing consumer demands for increasingly car-like minivans coupled with the automaker's evolution beyond a maker of small cars, paved the way for the company's first entry into the segment. The introduction of the all-new Odyssey last year raised the bar in the minivan category, sending sales up by three-fold in its first year over the previous model.

While car buff magazines sang its praises, customers ranked Odyssey number one in Strategic Vision's Total Quality Index, a survey of satisfaction with vehicle quality and the ownership experience.

Built exclusively by Honda at its Alliston, Ontario, Canada assembly plant, the minivan is available in LX and EX trim levels. An all-new 3.5L SOHC 24-valve VTEC V-6 engine is joined to a four-speed automatic with lockup torque converter and Grade Logic Control System standard. A five-speed manual transmission is not available.

The new V-6 powerplant meets California's stringent Low Emission Vehicle (LEV) standards for light trucks. For the 2000 model year, the Japanese automaker is making available the first factory installed satellite-linked navigation system in the minivan segment as an option in the top of the line EX model.

On the road, the Odyssey is light on its feet, handling easy and accelerating fast. A smooth, seamless shifting transmission and powerful engine are a perfect match. The unique four-wheel independent suspension featuring a strut-type front suspension and double wishbone rear suspension are complemented by low-rate front and rear springs and 16-inch wheels and tires contribute to the Odyssey's smooth ride. The suspension geometry has been designed for optimum stability and control when braking and cornering.

Inside the cabin, a lower floor height from ground results in an inch and a half more headroom while providing easier entry and exit. Honda's new entry is equipped with double sliding doors standard for both models. The automaker has upped the ante by making dual power sliding doors standard on the upscale EX model.

Excellent displays and controls greet the driver, with a good view of the road. Numerous cubby holes and storage bins are located all over the cabin, while seating is comfortable throughout. The second row of seats are separate chairs that can be easily converted to a two seat bench. The third seat bench is Honda's Magic Seat, which is designed to fold and disappear into an opening producing a flat cargo floor without removing the rear seat from the minivan.

By the numbers

Engine performance statistics are as follow: 210 hp at 5,200 rpm and 229 lb/ft of torque at 4,300 rpm. EPA fuel economy is 18 city/25 highway using regular unleaded gasoline. Properly equipped, the Honda Odyssey can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 3,500 pounds. Underhood fluids are easy to reach but not consistently marked.

Standard safety/security equipment includes dual front airbags, four-wheel disc brakes with anti-lock and Electronic Brake Distribution and Immobilizer theft deterrent system. EX adds traction control, remote entry system, and HomeLink remote system.

The base Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the Honda Odyssey minivan starts at $23,400 for the LX and $26,000 for the EX. EX models equipped with the factory navigational system start at $28,000. Destination charges add $440. Demand is still high for this minivan although supplies are improving slowly.

Jobeth Nichols wins 2000 Isuzu VehiCross

Jerry Hollums, new car sales manager of Performance Honda-Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep-Isuzu presents the keys to Jobeth Nichols who won a 2000 Isuzu Vehicross. Also shown are Ms. Nichols daughters Sherri and Jamie.

Jobeth Nichols of Wingate, Texas which is just south of Sweetwater was the winner of a 2000 Suzuki Vehicross, $15,000 of floor covering from Carpet One and a trip for two to Argentina. Ms. Nichols won the prizes by calling in during the Discovery Channel Eco-Challenge program. Her name was drawn from numerous call-ins. She reports that this is the first time she has won anything. The 2000 Suzuki Vehicross was waiting for her at Performance Honda-Chrysler-Plymouth-Jeep-Isuzu in Midland.

Do-It-Yourself Ideas

Water Pump

Anyone who's ever lived on a farm will recognize this old-fashioned water pump. Our do-it-yourself version is designed for use as a fountain (incorporating a submersible recirculating pump).

Easy to build, the project is made mostly from plywood and all of the curved cuts are traced from full-size patterns. The completed water pump measures about 44 inches tall by 14 inches square.

Water Pump plan (No. 880) . . . $8.95
Lawn Ornaments Package (No. C112)
Three other projects . . . $19.95
Catalog (pictures hundreds of projects) . . . $3.95
