SOLONS KNOT OVER MOVE TO CITE LOBBYIST

Two-Hour Wrangle Follows Effort To Penalize Bribe Witness

NO ACTION IS TAKEN

W. W. Chamberlin Ready To Be Investigated, He Tells Solons

AUSTIN, Feb. 10. (AP)—Fruitlessly wrangling for two hours, the house committee on state affairs tonight adjourned without action on a pending motion to cite for contempt W. W. Chamberlin, Houston optometrist, whose testimony resulted in the expulsion of Representatives F. A. Dale of Bonham and H. H. Moore of Cooper, on charges of bribe taking.

Chamberlin was not called before the committee, although he was at the capitol waiting to appear if called, he said.

The optometrist testified before a house investigation committee last week that he agreed to pay $1000 to get an unfavorable house committee report on Moore's bill to tax stationary optometrists and that both Dale and Moore were "in" on the purported deal.

Rangers Were Tipped

Rangers testified to being "tipped" by Chamberlin and seeing him give Dale the money near a local hotel alley.

The committee meeting tonight was to consider a resolution offered by Representative C. T. Sheats of Franklin immediately after the Dale-Moore expulsions to investigate Chamberlin's activities as a lobbyist for the Texas optometry association which Chamberlin admitted asking for $100 daily for lobbying expenses.

Representative A. S. Reagan of Beaumont offered a resolution tonight to arraign Chamberlin for contempt, executive session was declared but the ensuing conclave produced no action except a contested motion to adjourn. The committee now is subject to call of the chairman for further consideration of the case.

Scores Chamberlin

DeBerry of Bogata, in an impassioned speech, raked Chamberlin "and the organization he represents," declaring he would favor a resolution to "investigate every man who contributed a dollar to the slush fund" which he charged had been raised.

Clifford Stone, Chamberlin's attorney, said, "Mr. Chamberlin would be glad to be investigated. He has no wish to conceal anything."

Jury In Faust Trial Locked Up For Night After Six Hours Deliberation

Special to The Record News.

MONTAGUE, Feb. 10.—After deliberating for six hours on a verdict in the case of W. C. Faust, on trial in Montague for the slaying of W. T. Reese, the jury retired for the night at 9 p. m., Thursday and will resume consideration of Faust's fate Friday morning.

The case went to the jury at 3 p. m., Thursday after Renne Allred, county attorney, had made the final argument for the state. The opening state argument was made by True Strong of Nocona.

Faust is accused of attacking Reese Dec. 5 in the Nocona oil field. The state contended in evidence offered during the trial and in jury arguments that Faust inflicted wounds on Reese which resulted fatally.

The defense attorneys contended that Reese, who was employed in a pumping plant, came to his death from falling through the spokes of a large flywheel while he was under the influence of liquor.

The state gave as the cause of the slaying the fact that a woman had transferred her affections from Faust to Reese and that the defendant had made threats on the life of Reese.

To support their contentions the state attorneys introduced as a witness the "woman in the case." She testified that at one time she was engaged to be married to Faust but broke the engagement and that a short time later she became engaged to marry Reese.

Wichita Falls Wades In Slush As Mercury Resumes Upward Trend

Although compelled to wade in slush Thursday, Wichita Falls citizens had a more optimistic look on life than on Wednesday because sunshine supplanted the rain, snow and sleet of the day before.

Further optimism came forth when the citizens noted with pleasure that the mercury had changed its downward course on Wednesday to an upward trend Thursday.

Early Thursday morning about the time that the milkman was starting out to do business, the thermometer registered 22 degrees; at 5 p. m. Thursday the mercury reached its highest point, 36, according to the report of the Wichita Falls Electric company bureau.

The bureau reported for Thursday precipitation of .09; a northeast breeze; average wind velocity, six miles, maximum, 10 miles and a barometer register of 29.52.

The weather forecast from the United States weather bureau was fair and warmer for Friday.

Although North Texas and Oklahoma had one of the most severe storms of the year starting Tuesday morning and ending Wednesday night nevertheless the discontinuances of telephone and telegraph service were only a very few and railroad traffic was not stopped to any considerable extent.

POLICE SEEK TRACE OF RICH RAILROAD MAN

Howard P. Hunter Disappears After Leaving Hotel in Los Angeles

RESIDES AT DALLAS

Search Started at Instance Of Fiancee in North Texas City

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10. (AP) Police in cities on highways between here and Dallas, Texas, were telegraphed today by the Los Angeles authorities to aid in a search for Howard P. Hunter, wealthy retired railroad man of Dallas, who mysteriously disappeared a week ago, carrying $28,800 in currency and $3500 in travelers checks.

The search was begun when the Los Angeles officers received a letter from Hunter's fiance, Ruth Cary, of 2505 Maple street, Dallas, relating that Hunter had written her a few days before his disappearance that he was leaving for Texas with three men in an automobile and carrying the money concealed on his person. In the same letter, she said, Hunter sent her $10,000 to invest in stocks.

February 2, the day before he disappeared, she said she received a letter saying the three men became angry because he had decided not to accompany them. The letter contained details of how he intended to conceal the currency in his clothes and the envelope appeared to have been opened and re-sealed.

On the same day she received another letter, not in the handwriting of her fiance, telling her he had changed his mind and again had decided to accompany the three men overland. Previous to writing to the police here, she appealed to the postoffice authorities in Dallas.

Through friends in Los Angeles police learned that Hunter registered at a hotel here and checked out February 3. Two of the men whom Hunter first declared his intentions of accompanying to Dallas were known as Frank Jones and Bill Stevegs. The name of the third man is unknown. Hunter's home is in Dallas, 5114 Tremont street, Miss Cary said.

TO EXTEND DISPUTE

Oklahoma Claims Line Set Would Mean Vast Losses To State

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. (AP) Oklahoma asked the supreme court today to review its recent decision in Oklahoma's dispute with Texas over the boundary line along the eastern side of the Panhandle running north from the Red river.

Attorney General Dabney of Oklahoma in urging the court to reopen the controversy declared the decision of the court which directed that the true 100th meridian should be surveyed on the ground and marked as the boundary, threatened to involve vast interests.

"If a resurvey of the 100th meridian should place the line east of where it now runs it will result," the petition said, "in the transition of citizenship of many citizens of Oklahoma to Texas, the loss to Oklahoma of thousands of acres of land, including several thousand acres set apart for her state university, the upsetting of titles and the vacating of judgments and decrees heretofore issued by courts of Oklahoma."

Colorado Warden, Bitter Foe of Klan, Yields Prison Keys After 18 Years

By Universal Service.

CANON CITY, Colo., Feb. 10.—Thomas Tynan for 18 years warden of Colorado state penitentiary, today handed over the keys to his successor, Boone Best, and ended a remarkable career in prison reforming that has resulted in the only sweet smelling prison in the world, and one where the cells look like rooms in private homes, shaded lights and all.

Tynan, the first man to work out the honor system successfully, had 700 of his 900 prisoners on the honor list at one time. The ku klux klan has fought him persistently for several years.

The honor men working on the 5500 miles of fine roads Tynan's prisoners have made in this state, go fishing in summer occasionally. They have athletics. He bought a canning factory for $40,000. A fruit ranch for $20,000, and last summer the prisoners canned $37,000 cans of cherries the first year, paid $50,000 of the cost and saved money for maintenance.

"I'd be for prohibition if it did what we thought it would do," said Tynan. "But it doesn't. One condemned bootlegger said five of the members of the jury that sent him over were his best customers. Prohibition breeds liars and hypocrites."

Tynan attributes his finish at the prison and the animosity of the klan to his trouble over opposing a secret pardon for Charles Essick, one of his murder prisoners, who finally married the wealthy society girl, Miss Converse of New York. Her mother and Thomas Mott Osborne wanted him to agree to a secret pardon and he refused. Later Miss Converse married him but the pardon was published. She later was divorced.

He says Osborne, Mrs. Converse, who has a castle at Sweetwater Lake, and a farm at Littleton, Col., and Governor Sweet never forgave him, because he declared Essick unworthy and wouldn't agree to hide the pardon.

JAIL PRISONER GOES TO PEN

Negro Held Here On Minor Charge Is Convict

Frank Johnson, negro, leader in the attempted jail delivery here on the night of February 5, who is serving a 50-day jail sentence for theft, will soon be transferred to the state penitentiary to finish a 50-year sentence for murder, according to Deputy Sheriff Cliff Kelrsey.

Immediately after the attempted jail break Kelrsey began an investigation which resulted Thursday in learning that the negro had escaped from the Huntsville prison on Oct. 24, 1926, having served since Jan. 5, 1918 when he was given the 50-year term in Polk county. He pleaded guilty here recently of stealing an overcoat.

"The negro's extraordinary desire to gain his freedom and his general actions since he has been in the county jail caused me to check up on him," Kelrsey stated. "I wrote to state prison authorities in Oklahoma, Kansas and other states as well as Texas officials and Thursday I received a letter from the Huntsville prison officials giving me Johnson's record."

King Snake Battles Diamond-Backed Rattler to Death On Lonely Texas Isle

By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 10.—Lightning is slow compared to the speed with which a king snake descends upon his quary, according to Capt. J. C. Anderson of Fort Sam Houston, who with friends from Victoria today, witnessed a battle in which a Matagorda Island king snake repelled an invasion by a rattler.

Captain Anderson returned to the army post with his account of the fight, as all the world had begun to doubt that king and rattle snakes ever engaged in combat. Numerous attempted public exhibitions of the battle have failed.

"Besides being lightning fast," Captain Anderson said, "the king snake uses a systematic method to overcome the rattler. It seemed to me that the rattler was made dizzy by the continued circling of the king snake, and every time the poisonous reptile struck, the king snake was just a fraction of an inch out of the way.

"Out of a hundred strikes, the rattler landed but three times." Both snakes were seven feet long.

The king snake wrapped most of his length about the rattler's neck and "hugged" him to death, witneses said.

A thin wisp of dust attracted Captain Anderson and a party of Victorians to the battleground on Sandy Matagorda Island. Neither of the contestants was bothered by the audience. The audience, it might be said, kept a safe distance.

Body Found Floating in River Near School For Women

None of the students of the school have been reported missing, but the police have reports on several other missing persons and started to check them.

The body was unclad except for a shred of underclothing.

CHILDRESS TO AID BOY'S CLUB

Lions Club Hears Progress Made in Work

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Feb. 10.—Houston Crump, boys' work director for Childress, was the principal speaker at the regular Tuesday noon luncheon of the Childress Lions club. He dealt with the nature and purpose of boys' work and delivered the talk in his characteristically forceful and direct manner. He explained the progress that is being made in Childress and brought home to the listeners the great need for the steady continuance of the work of character-building, with which his work is concerned.

The major purpose of the work was said to be "creating, maintaining and extending high ideals of Christian manhood among the youth of the city." The promotion of clean athletics and health among all boys, is a corollary to the main theorem. Many of the boys would be denied directed athletics were it not for the boys' work director, who sees to it that all boys have an equal chance for recreation.

Work Is Stressed

Mr. Crump laid particular stress upon the work being done among the employed boys, as opposed to school students, citing for example the American Railroad Employes Boys club and what it is doing. It has a team in the City Basketball league.

The complete list of committees for the year was read by President W. M. Murrell, they being as follows: Louis G. Raney, J. E. Baker and Bazil Noble, noonday; Ray Green, Paul Rogers and Jack Jefferies, telephone; Dave Cameron and Fred Story, publicity; Lear Jones, Floyd Pigott and Carl Hudson, finance; Ebb Chesnut, C. C. ORIENT WILL EXTEND LINE

Mexico Extension of West Texas Road Begins

Special to The Record News.

PRESIDIO, Feb. 10.—Actual construction of the Kansas City-Mexico and Orient railway from Chihuahua City, Mexico, to the Rio Grande river here is now in progress. Contract has just been let to the firm of Terrazas and Marquis of Chihuahua City for the last gap of the railroad in Mexico for 78 kilometers from Las Noriaz, Mexico, to the banks of the Rio Grande. The survey has been completed from Alpine to Presidio and letting of the contract is expected as soon as definite decision is reached as to the route to be traversed to this point.

The Orient now has a line operating from Wichita, Kan., direct to Alpine, Texas, and has another link running north from Chihuahua City in Mexico. Construction of the road from Alpine to Presidio and from Presidio to Las Norias will complete the gap and will afford a through connection with Mexico City. The two gaps will be completed to a total of approximately 150 miles of new road. An international bridge will be constructed across the river by the Orient from Presidio to Ojinaga.

This project was contemplated by the Orient when the road was first built. However, war and other conditions forced postponement of the actual construction until the present time. Flourishing conditions of the Orient, due to the oil activity in West Texas and to valuable oil concessions recently made to the road by the Mexican government have made construction of the road possible.

This railroad is expected to bring great development to this section of Texas. The road will connect at San Angelo and Sweetwater with railroads into Fort Worth, Dallas and other Texas centers. Announcement of letting the contract has brought great activity to Presidio and other points along the route.

Childress Farmer Makes Prize Record In Profitable Sales From Dairy Herd

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Feb. 10.—W. I. Compton, a farmer of two miles north of Childress, is demonstrating the profits that can be made from a dairy herd. He has maintained his herd at an average production throughout the year, but kept records on the month of December only, which is a fair average, he says, of the entire year's work.

Mr. Compton's gross receipts for the month were $272.40 and his feed costs were exactly $100, divided as follows: 4000 pounds of maize at a cost of $30; 4000 pounds of bran at a cost of $56; half a ton of meal at a cost of $14 and approximately $25 worth of home-grown roughage.

Figuring this on profit scale, it shows that the profits from 12 cows, for one month, amounted to $172.40, not counting the dairy products consumed in the home and milk can form the largest item in the household food expense, if properly managed.

Where is the cotton farmer in the south, who sticks to the single crop method, that can show at the end of the year a profit that averages $170 per month?

This Childress farmer is convinced that there is money to be made out of the dairy industry on the farm and he is proving this fact every day in the year.

TEXAS LEADS SUDAN GRASS

Muleshoe Section Tops World As Production Center

MULESHOE, Feb. 10.—A town cannot be judged by its name, and though Muleshoe has been given a name of plebian sound, its title has not withheld it from winning the outstanding record of being the world's center of the sudan grass industry.

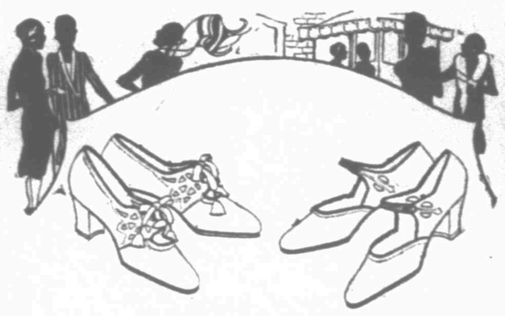

In 1926, 90 per cent of the 14,000,000 pounds of sudan grass handled in the world were produced and marketed from Texas, and half of the 90 per cent came from Muleshoe territory. Muleshoe produce is handled through Plainview distributing points, and statements of the vastness of the sudan grass industry in this section came from L. J. Halbert, Plainview grain dealer and elevator proprietor, who handled half of the world's supply of sudan grass in 1926.

Sudan grass is regarded as the best meadow crop in the world for dairy cows, and is the surest crop of West Texas. Due to this fact, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has encouraged production of sudan throughout its territory as a part of its widely-recognized diversification program.

Fluffy Lace Trim

Central Press

By MME. LISBETH

A charmingly fluffy effect is achieved by the use of rows and rows of narrow lace on this two-piece negligee.

The jacket is made of delicate shell pink chiffon. The wide armholes, the neck and the bottom are trimmed with the said rows of lace and the pockets are entirely of lace.

The skirt—which has a scalloped hem—is also decorated with the lace. The designer made the skirt of chiffon a deeper shade of pink than the jacket. A narrow ribbon sash is tied at the left side. Patricia Avery posed.

STYLE WHIMSIES

One of the secrets of being well dressed—says an expert—is to find the one particular shade that suits you best and then wear it continuously. You may wear other colors, of course, but combine them with this most becoming shade of all.

No matter how drab a woman may be, there is some color that suggests her personality, says a woman who has made a study of the art of dressing. When she discovers it she should make a fad of wearing that one shade.

In selecting colors for your clothes remember that those nearest the face are the ones that must be the most becoming.

An older woman should never wear black unless she wears some softer, lighter color near her face.

The fortunate southern resorters are wearing bright crocheted silk coats for both indoor and outdoor wear. They are appropriate for sports, beach and boudoir wear.

Woman's Day Of Work and Play

Women Less Honest?

The old question as to whether women are less honest than men is brought up again with the publication of the 1926 report of the U. S. customs bureau. For the report shows that of the $500,000 collected in fines, seizures and forfeitures during the past year, at least 75 per cent was paid by women.

When commercial smuggling is excepted, the women constitute from 90 to 95 per cent of the offenders. The commercial smuggling makes up only 25 per cent of the total and the remainder is personal smuggling, confined largely to the wealthy and socially prominent.

Philip Elting, collector of the port in New York, says that often the duty on the article smuggled is a trivial amount, but that women derive pleasure from the fact of having "put it over." The articles which are smuggled in most frequently by women are pearl necklaces, fur coats, large stocks of French perfumery, diamonds, expensive rugs, watches and shawls. Women have been known to smuggle in cartons of cigarets as well.

Strangely, most of the smuggling is done by women who can well afford to pay the duty, but of course it's the wealthy who do most of the traveling, and it can't be said that only the poor are honest. It is interesting to note that a great deal of this sort of smuggling is done when the woman is traveling alone. Husbands are apt to disapprove of this sort of dishonesty.

New Coiffures

Some of the newest of the coiffures have the high dressed forelock which is waved to stand a little above the rest of the hair, then either falling forward on the forehead or back over the straight hair. The waves are set fairly close together and in one arrangement the ends of the forelock are curled up into a tight little sausage roll effect.

The reason which is given for the intricacies of curling which are creeping into the hair fashions, is the return of feminine fashion. The coquettishness of curls is a manifestation of this which is shown in the flowing gowns, the ornate jewelry and the decorative flowers of the present mode.

Dr. W. J. Johnson of the First Methodist church has returned from Dallas where he went to attend a meeting of the bishops and presiding elders of the Wichita Falls district.

Perhaps you have "It," and don't know it. Clara Bow has "It," and fascinatingly portrays it in her latest photoplay, "It," starting at the Majestic Saturday. Elinor Glyn wrote the story and titled it, and it is claimed that a more appropriate title was never before selected. "It" is a certain something possessed by all who are free from self-consciousness. Are any members of the male sex ever free from all self-consciousness? If so, they possess "It," in which case they are masterful lovers according to Elinor Glyn. However, on the screen "It" is transcribed from the feminine angle, for Clara Bow is the star who portrays this indescribable but fascinating quality. Aside from the abstract, "It" is a story well-told and well acted.

The few travelers who have been over the Apache trail and through the Tonto Pueblos of the ancient Cliff Dwellers, in the wild horse country of Arizona, will have an opportunity to give their friends a graphic view of this ruggedly picturesque country in "Tony Runs Wild" at the Garden theater Friday.

This photoplay, starring Mix and his famous horse, "Tony," was filmed along the Apache trail, the oldest road in America, a highway worn smooth and polished by the moccasined feet of millions of Indians, during centuries and centuries of use. The Tonto ruins are rated by archaeologists as the oldest habitations of man in this continent and date back to a race that had vanished even before the traditions of the Indians began. The exteriors and interiors of the ancient Cliff Dwellings are shown with striking photoplay action which rivals any of the thrillers so far produced by Mix.

Feed Your Husband Well and He'll Eat Out of Your Hand in Docility

You Can Keep Your Husband Eating Out of Your Hand if You Feed Him Well, if You Don't Expect Him to Be a Tin God and if You Run Your Marriage as a Partnership—But You'll Be Happiest Just Loving Him Enough.

Feed the Brute.

The best remedy ever devised for keeping a husband from running around at nights is to fill him so full of a good dinner that all he will want to do is to crawl to a big easy chair by his own fireside and sit down in slippered ease and digest it.

Make home the most comfortable spot on earth to a man and you won't need to worry about whether you are losing your boyish figure or not. Your husband will always see you glorified, surrounded by the savory incense that arises from your pots and pans.

No successful marriage was ever pulled off in a house where a tired, hungry man came home to a meal of burnt meat and raw vegetables and soggy pie; but, on the contrary, the tie that binds many a man to the wife he has outgrown is her cooking.

When nature made our stomachs twice as big as our hearts it made food more important to us than sentiment, and the wife who doesn't recognize this is lacking in gumption. So if you want to keep your husband eating out of your hand keep it filled with his favorite dish.

Don't Expect Too Much of a Mere Man.

The trouble with most wives is that they think they have married a demigod. They have built up out of their imaginations a creature who is a composite of a movie sheik, a cash register, a matinee hero and Job. And when they find out that he is just a plain, ordinary, everyday sort of a human being, cut out of the same bolt of cloth as their father and brothers, they are terribly disillusioned and disappointed.

About 90 per cent of the marriages that go on the rocks could be salvaged if wives had sense enough to make the best of the husbands they had, instead of bemoaning themselves because they are not united to Fairy Princes.

If wives would only reflect that a husband who is a dumb lovemaker is often a mighty good provider; that a husband's irritability and apparent grouchiness is generally sheer nerves, and that the reason he doesn't want to take wife out nights is because he is so exhausted in mind and body that he is ready to drop with fatigue, how much happier they would be.

Develop a Funny-Bone.

There are 10,000,000 things in married life over which a woman must either laugh or cry, and it's a lot better to laugh. The wife who can make a joke instead of a tragedy out of her husband's little personal peculiarities has solved the riddle of how to be happy though married.

Of course it's silly for a great, big, strong husky man to get as cross as a spoiled baby when he is hungry. Of course it's disillusioning for him to swear a blue streak when his collar button rolls under the bureau and to be upset because somebody moved his brushes from the righthand to the lefthand drawer of his chiffonier. Of course it's weak for him to let that little cow-eyed flapper wheedle him into giving her the vanity case she was working him for. It's irritating that he has to have money coaxed out of him, and it humiliates you to death when he does various and sundry things that you are sure the noble and heroic creature that you thought you were marrying would never have done.

But you can break your heart over these things and drive your husband away from you by nagging him about them, or you can laugh at them and rivet him to you with hoops of steel by joking him about them. Believe me, there is no other virtue that a wife can possess that equals a sense of humor, and none for which a husband is so grateful.

Be a Good Sport.

Take marriage as it comes: the good with the bad, the bitter with the sweet. Give as much as you take. Pull your weight in the boat. Don't expect your husband to bear all the burdens and let you go scot free.

Don't renege on your marriage vows. When you have sworn to take a man for better or worse, do it. Make him a comfortable home. Bear patiently with his faults. Live within his income. Don't nag. Don't fret. Don't whine. Don't complain because you haven't as much money to spend as some rich woman has.

Do Teamwork.

Marriage is literally a partnership, and you can ruin the firm or bolster it up, as you will. When a poor young couple get married their future depends as much upon the wife as it does upon the husband. If she is thrifty and ambitious and willing to do without the things she wants that he may put the money in his business and push on to success, it's an almost certainty that they will be well-to-do by the time they are middle-aged and that he will be spoken of as one of the substantial citizens in the community in which they live.

But if the young wife is extravagant, if she is society-mad and bent on running with people better off than she is she will keep her husband in debt all of his life. He will never have any chance to rise in the world, and when they are old they will be down-and-outers. For, no man, unless he is an absolute financial genius, can make any headway against a wasteful wife.

Love Him.

In this is comprised all the lore of the prophets.

If you love your husband enough you will seek his happiness instead of your own, and you will find your happiness in making him happy.

Complete Your Palm Beach Sports Frock With a Small, Matching Felt Hat.

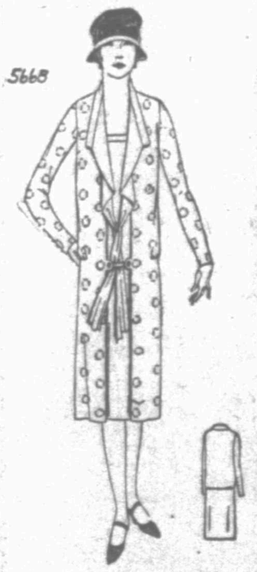

Sketched today are two hats designed for wear with the new Palm Beach sports frocks. The significant feature of each is a round, rather close-fitting crown. Both also reveal a narrow brim turned down all the way around.

In the upper sketch is a delightful model designed to accompany a pink angora jersey sports dress. It is pale pink felt trimmed with a band of pink and gold ribbon. This is practically the only ornament, as the crown is plain save for a horizontal crease across the center back. The narrow turned-down brim is finished with two rows of stitching in self tone.

The other model has an equally simple trimming but a more elaborate crown. This section is decorated with vertical pleats in radiating lines. And because of the popularity of the yellow shades, this hat is canary yellow felt trimmed with a band of bright green grosgrain ribbon. Directly in the center front is a green and yellow composition ornament.

The hat in the upper sketch is pale pink felt banded in pink and gold ribbon. Green ribbon trims the yellow felt shape below.

MODISH MITZI — Signs of Spring — By JAY V. JAY

This is the first tulip of spring blooming in a steam heated room! Mitzi is surrounding herself with hyacinths, tulips and is going shopping for the first robin in an effort to make her spring clothes seasonable. The sweater frock for instance, has blue stripes the color of the hyacinth.

"One of the smartest necklines I've seen," mentally notes Mitzi as she looks at her slip over sweater with its square neck. A white crepe de chine skirt is worn with it. It's one of the new sports costumes she'll wear when it's warm enough.

The Goofer looked at the spring flowers in the background and mostly, oh yes, mostly at Mitzi in her white cashmere sweater with the orange and yellow stripes and couldn't restrain himself from saying: "It's just like spring, Mitzi." Dad thinks the Goofer ought to take an intelligence test, he's just arrived a ad is going to take off two mufflers and kick his goloshes into the closet. Spring—well, spring is not for six weeks yet. But one thing he can't deny, his daughter is clever. Given the clothes, she can always create the atmosphere!

Tomorrow—Jackets.

CLOTHES AND THE WORK.

When Ellen launders her fine underclothes
She gets herself up in a white lawn rig,
Looks like a lily and acts like a rose.
Now when I work, I get right in and dig.

Somebody gave me for a Christmas gift
Some flimsy dust-cloths colored pink and red.
Well, I made bags of them and made short shift
To use old flannel shirts to dust, instead.

My New York cousin wears an apron-frock.
(She looks real pretty in it, I'll confess).
And when she scrubs, she wears a yellow smock.
Now when I clean, I wear my oldest dress.

No dressed-up housewife, is my private guess,
Will wield a thorough sweeper, mop or broom.
It takes a woman in a gingham dress
To dust the chair-legs in the dining room!

HIS WINTER TRAVEL

"Mid-winter Slush."

This is the season of the laprobe lover, when you either go to warmer climes or sit on your hands. The "birds" have flown south and some of them are still doing high flying!

This is the time of year when people used to have taffy pulls and quilting parties, and the only crime was "hooking" rugs. Now the taffy is pulled every day in the year. Seeing Nellie home is no longer a pleasure, it's a feat!

In the spring a young man's fancy turns all by itself, but you have to work on it in the winter-time. Many a wide-awake young man goes to sleep when brought into a warm house out of the cold.

The long winter evenings are a lot longer now that no one goes to bed until morning. Many a man gets cold feet on the way to see his girl.

The travel bureaus are getting out little booklets which show the palm trees, but not the itching palms! It's a case of not only doing your bit, but your two bits!

It's hard to get a vacation in the summer, in the cold weather all you need is a cough. The travel booklets dwell on the joys of lying on the sand—with a breach of promise suit for every lie—and the price of the trip is in such small letters that it only looks half the size.

You have your pick of a hundred places and they do the rest of the picking. Where you choose to go depends on whether you look better in snow shoes or a bathing suit. Winter sports are not all the ice is cracked up to be.

A lot of people go on cruises; they spend the winter making faces at the water without having to drink it. It's hard to go round and round the world without getting dizzy.

Three days out and you change to summer clothes of a fur coat but what you save on the price of a fur coat you lose it in your laundry bills. And after going all over the boat you deal a new hand and get on to the captain's bridge! Many a man who gets on with a sinking heart manages to keep afloat very well.

If you can't afford to take a trip it's great to get a bunch of travel talks and talks back to them. Save your strength to fight off the mosquitoes on your summer vacation.

They call them resorts because they'll resort to anything. Each person puts his best foot forward even though the shoe isn't paid for. Many a man has gone broke on a winter cruise, and remember when you jump overboard it isn't your name that's on the life preserver.

Call a taxi and do your cruising at home—it's something to be captain of the wrecking crew!

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB Says—

WOMAN'S IGNORANCE OF BUSINESS

Yesterday I was in a bank in which the fair sex are the chief depositors.

A number of women were at the window where I was waiting, and from the questions asked in the 10 minutes that I as there it was a woeful lack of knowledge of the commonest elements of business among women.

I ask the clerk if the questions put to him at the time were the daily questions asked.

He smiled a sickly smile and said: "You ought to stand at this window for a week and you would realize the utter disregard and interest women have in acquiring simple and most necessary rudiments of business methods.

"I know women who have been coming here for years who ask the same questions every time they come.

"They seem to regard such knowledge as they would a railroad time table, to be ascertained every time they have recourse to it.

"They lose sight of the fact that if every woman would know how to make out checks, keep her own bank balances, accounts, deposit slips, etc., she would very soon absorb a business sense that would stand her in good stead in every other kind of business transaction.

"For example, I know a woman who asks, every time she has a check cashed, whether she must sign it on the back. It is astonishing to me that many more women are not duped than the records show. If you were to see the haphazard manner in which women issue checks and then come to the bank surprised to find that they have overdrawn because they have kept no memorandum, in any shape, as to their expenditures and deposits!

"And this is not only the case with women of common education but also with graduates of schools. It seems to me there should be some way to me there should be be taught the every-day business transactions in banking and keeping accounts. Such lessons should be made just as important as reading and writing."

The points were well considered by the clerk. After some inquiry I found that there are few schools where the simpliest forms of bookkeeping and business elements are made compulsory. They are usually selective courses.

Therein lies the reason for the ignorance of hundreds of girl graduates complained of by employers every day. They are allowed to choose between these common business courses and those of languages and other similar studies.

Many of them quit school unable to make out a simple check and do not even know the debit from the credit side of the ledger, nor even how a receipt or bill should be written.

It is certainly a question for the elders. No matter if a girl is not preparing for commercial work she should know common business transactions that prepare her for life itself.

Without this, women are prone to get into all kinds of pitfalls in making common contracts and signing various kinds of papers.

The Business Shylock is still at large and waiting for his pound of flesh. He is very suave and has a sympathetic manner which he knows will appeal to Eve's sex and which he uses.

Before she knows it, the woman who has refused to bother her pretty head with "dry business things" finds herself in many a sorrowful predicament as a result of her unwillingness to learn.

I also regret to say that I have known women actually to pride themselves on the fact that they "don't know the first thing about business." And it is usually such women who later blame somebody else for their ignorance after they have been all too trustful.

Instead of a source of pride it should be one of censure.

Besides, women who forever show back of common business interest retard the progress of their sisters.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

When you have sour cream in the ice box try it in combination with veal cutlets. It is delicious and offers a change.

• • •

CUTLETS WITH CREAM

Cut two pounds of veal in pieces two inches square and brown quickly in hot fat. Turn into a casserole and cover while hot. Make a smooth paste of two tablespoons of flour, half a teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of pepper and paprika mixed with a little stock. Stir in one cup of thick sour cream and stir until slightly thick. Add one tablespoon of onion juice and one-third cup of chopped mushrooms. Pour over the meat in the casserole, cover and bake in a slow oven for one hour.

A good, hot dessert for winter is:

MAPLE FIG ROLL

Make a plain, baking powder biscuit crust, roll to half an inch thickness and press into buttered baking dish. Cover with a thick layer of chopped figs and pour over them a cup of maple syrup with enough crust to reach across the top, like an apple dumpling. Pull the crust together across the top, pinch edges. Place in a steamer for two hours.

LLOYD GEORGE

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE was war minister of Great Britain. He predicted that another great World war may grow out of what he calls the Chinese question. Well, the same group of world diplomats are handing the big thing. If the blow-up comes who is going to do the fighting?

President Coolidge has pledged this republic that the wealth of the nation will be drafted as well as the men of the nation should our people become involved in another World war.

Why not China for the Chinese if the Chinese respect the treaty rights of American Nationals. There are 500,000,000 Chinese. If they were thoroughly organized, the could place an army of 60,000,000 fighting men in the field.

It is said that Asia was the parent or cradle of the human race. Civilization began in Asia. Asia has been in a trance for many centuries. When asia comes out of the trance with the Tarta-Slav as his guide, Asia may make it interesting for the other nations of the earth.

ANOTHER SCIENTIFIC VERDICT

"THE DEADLIEST enemies of man at the present time are not diseases, war and famine, but the industrial conditions of the city." This is the conclusion of Dr. Warren S. Thompson of the Scripps foundation for research. Urban population is growing at a tremendous rate of increase. Boys and girls desert the farm for city and town. There is a reason for it.

"The laborer is worthy of his hire." Country boys and girls go to the centers of population where every week has a pay day. It is not son in the country. Some years there are no pay days. Another thing, farming today is largely done by machinery. In the not remote past it was the work of the hand.

There must be a readjustment, and the cobination of cotton and corn states may force the thinkers of America to evolve a plan or program for the coming industrial revolution in the United States. Machinery is going to make the world go around and man must control the machine or the machine will control the man.

HOW IT HAPPENED

TWO MEN are responsible for the College of Industrial arts. Victor M. Grubbs and William M. Pearson were members of a Texas legislature a quarter of a century ago.

It was the idea of Grubbs. It had the backing of Pearson. They put it over. Grubbs is in California; Pearson is an associate justice of the supreme court of Texas.

There is a board of six regents—three men and three women. History makes note of the fact that one of the women regents has held her position for 14 years. Another passed away after having served as regent for many years.

When the college was founded an attempt was made to make it a small annex to the A. & M. college at Bryan.

Messrs. Grubbs and Pearson and their friends prevented it. This is the history in a nut shell of the College of Industrial Arts.

WHERE THE DAISES GROW

UNLESS the signs are misleading the Texas State bank guaranty law is going where the daisies grow, and then disappear. All the bonded and guarantee fund provisions of the law have been repealed by a vote on final passage of 113 to 9, after it had passed the senate by almost a unanimous vote.

Now it has gone to the governor.

In the days of William Jennings Bryan it came, it saw, it conquered, it flourished for a time and now it is on its way to the boneyard of discarded things. Its erstwhile champions offered but little opposition and should the governor sign it, the undertaker will pass it on "unwept and unsung," according to a Texas banker who did what he could about its final dissolution.

Not a tear for the departed or a flower for its bier.

CAUSE OF THE WORLD WAR

"THE SINSTER fact was that it was a premature movement of troops in 1914 that brought negotiations to an end and projected the great war," declared Yloyd George in a recent address. "We must see that the same thing does not happen again." He was speaking for the people of Great Britain. He was not speaking for the people of the United States, the people of Russia, the people of Surkey or the people of Mexico. "We" and the others mentioned, are not members of the League of Nations.

The HOLLYWOOD GIRL

"Love Bound," "Her Man," "Honey Lou," Etc.

READ THIS FIRST:

BOBBIE RANSOM, a little blond school teacher, is movie struck, and wildly eager to go to Hollywood to break into pictures. Neither her widowed father nor her AUNT GERTRUDE will lend her the money she needs. Neither will young ANDY JERROLD, who's in love with her and wants her to stay at home and marry him.

Finally she borrows $500 from the widow who is to marry her father, and goes to Hollywood. At MRS. MANGAN'S boarding house she meets STELLA DELROY, an extra girl. Through her she gets a few days' work at the Magnifica Studios in a ROY SCHULTZ picture. She becomes great friends with Roy's wife, LOTTIE. GUS MacCLOUD, the assistant director, falls in love with her and she with him.

But when she learns that he's married, and that his wife is divorcing him she says she'll see him no more. But her longing for him proves too much for her, and she remains friends with him but refuses to let him make love to her until he's free. Then his wife does get the divorce, and Bobbie is surprised that Gus, who seems to be violently in love with her, doesn't ask her to marry him. One day he tells her he doesn't believe in marriage for film folks.

Bobbie learns that he is running around with MONICA MONT, a movie actress who once lived at Mrs. Mangan's, and who "borrowed" most of Bobbie's clothes and even some of her jewelry when she left. Lottie Schultz is jealous of Monica, too, because Roy spends so much of his time there at wild parties. One night, during a New Year's eve party at MacCloud's house, Stella Delroy drinks poison and leaves behind her a letter telling of her unhappy love affair with Gus MacCloud. But neither that nor her jealousy of Monica, cures Bobbie of her infatuation for MacCloud. He lends her money on a diamond brooch, willed to her by Aunt Gertrude, who dies suddenly, and on a diamond bracelet that was Andy's Xmas present to her. He persuades her to stay on in Hollywood when she grows discouraged, and when he finally gets a picture to make at Magnifica, offers her a part in it. He takes her to the deserted studio on a Sunday afternoon to show her the Dutch costume she's to wear and she puts it on behind a screen in his office, and steps out from behind it to ask him how she looks as Gretchen, in the film "Hilda From Holland."

"If You Don't Trust Me, You Certainly Don't Care For Me"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVII

Gus did not look up for a minute or so.

He merely nodded and went on reading a letter that lay before him on the desk. Bobbie could see that he frowned as his eyes traveled down the pale gray page, with a silver monogram at the top. She wondered whose monogram it was.

Slowly and absent-mindedly he drew out his gold cigarette case from his pocket and laid it on the desk. Then from another pocket he drew a gold match case, and lit a cigarette. He went on reading.

"Well!" he said finally, his eyes still on the letter, "I'll be—jiggered!" His frown had turned into a black scowl.

"What's the matter?" Bobbie came closer to him, and leaned against his desk, her full blue satin skirts billowing around her and the long yellow braids swinging from side to side as she moved.

"Gosh, you look like a billion!" Gus' eyes suddenly smiled, clearing the scowl away from his face.

He repeated it slowly. "Gosh, you look like a billion in that rig."

He got up, slowly, too, and came around the corner of the desk, and put his hands on her shoulders. She could feel their warm smooth heavy pressure through the white muslin bodice of the Dutch dress.

Then suddenly he lifted them from her and shoved his swivel chair toward her across the floor. "Sit down, Bobs, I want to talk to you," he said, and swung one leg over the corner of the desk, and faced her.

"Look here," he began, "it's a dead certainly that they'll let me put you into this picture. And it's a good part. I think I can work it so Magnifica will give you a contract by the time we've finished the picture."

Bobbie's toes, inside the wooden shoes she was wearing, curled up tightly. Her hands clinched themselves, so that her nails bit her palms, in her tense nervousness. A hard ball came into her throat, but she wanted to shriek with happiness that fairly hurt. A contract! A steady salary! A chance, at last, after all these months of waiting—waiting—waiting. It seemed too wonderful to be true.

Her voice came at last, small and suffocated.

"Oh, Gusty!" she said, "how can I say thanks? You're doing so much for me—"

"Well, I am," he cut in quickly. "We may as well be sensible about it, and admit the truth, Bobbie. You know, yourself, that you haven't been able to get anywhere by yourself in the six months you've been here."

That, of course, was the truth no matter how much it hurt, and Bobbie nodded.

"You know, just as well as I do, that this town's full of girls as pretty, or even prettier, than yourself," Gus' smooth voice ran on. "Looks and brains don't count much when a girl's trying to break into pictures, these days. Some time she gets in by a stroke of pure luck—but oftener it's because some man is back of her, pushing her as I'm going to push you."

He reached out for one of her small limp hands, and held it tight as he went on:

"I can do a lot for you—I can make you if you'll let me. I'm in a position to, now. And if you'll just put yourself into my hands—"

"I will!" Bobbie interrupted him eagerly. "I'll do everything you tell me to do. I'll obey you like a trained seal. Watch me!"

Little did she suspect, as she said it, where that innocent little remark was going to lead her that afternoon.

Gus laughed. "All right, we'll begin today," he said. "Go and jump into your other clothes, and I'll show you just where to start, and how."

Bobbie wondered what he meant, as she took off the blond wig, the white muslin bodice, the blue skirts and the wooden shoes of Dutch Gretchen. In five minutes she was back in the little white sports dress and the tiny felt hat that had been steamed and pressed dozens of times in Mrs. Mangan's kitchen so that it always looked fresh and new and oh, so smart.

"Here I am, Gusty, all ready to play follow-my-leader!" she called lightly to MacCloud, as she stepped out from behind the dusty green screen.

He was reading the letter on pale gray paper for the second time. But when she came up to him, he stuffed it into his trousers pocket, and got up.

Down the bare wooden stairs they went, arm in arm, locked closer on every step. Then out into the court yard filled with blinding sunlight, and into the dark green roadster. Through the iron gates and out into Sunset boulevard, crowded with automobiles. As Gus said, everybody in the world seems to drive a car on Sunday!

At first Bobbie thought he was heading for Beverly Hills and his own white house. But he turned off suddenly into a quiet little side-street, lined with white houses and shaded with pepper trees.

At the very end of it was a tiny private park with a thread-like brook running through it, and facing it was a small white house.

It was the kind of house that fairy-tale picture books are full of—a darling little house with diamond-paned windows, a green shingle room. It nestled in a green garden behind three gnarled old trees, and the walk that led up to it was flag-stone all embedded in pale-green moss.

"What a duck of a little house!" Bobbie cried as Gus stopped his car in front of it. Then a terrible thought struck her—perhaps some friends of his lived in it, and perhaps they were going calling on them!

"Oh, Gus, I don't want to go in!" she said, as he got out and opened the door on her side of the car. "Look at me. This terrible old hat! And this dress! It's too short, and I've been crying! I can't go visiting!"

"Nobody wants you to, goose," Gus laughed at her. "Come on, and get out. I want to show you this house."

Without stopping to wonder why he wanted to show it to her, Bobbie got out of the car and followed him up the flagged walk. Together they went around the little fairy-tale house, peeping in at all the windows. The rooms were as quaint as the house itself. They were filled with lovely old-fashioned furniture, bright rag rugs, old pewter ware, and flowered chints curtains.

"It belongs to an artist and his wife who have gone to New York for the winter," Gus told her as they looked in at the little kitchen with its rows of shining pewter and copper pots, its glistening china, its ruffled shelves.

Behind the house there was a neat little yard that sloped down to a wall that overhung the tiny brook.

"I never saw anything so pretty as this in my life!" Bobbie declared as she and Gus leaned over the stone wall, side by side. "If I had a house of my own, I'd want it to be just like this."

Of course, she didn't want a house of her own. Nothing was further from her desires. What she did want, just then, was a career—the thing that Gus had just promised to give her, if she would put herself into his hands. A career in pictures. What could be more wonderful? Who could ask for anything better? All at once, as she stood there above the whispering little brook, Bobbie felt dreadfully sorry for all the women in the world who couldn't have a career in moving pictures. For all the women who had to spend their days in little houses, in little back yards, in little apartments. For women who had to do all the dull homely tasks—the dish-washing, the bread-baking, the bed-making, the marketing and the mending. Terrible jobs, those!

"I thought you might like this house. It's for rent," the voice of Gus cut in upon her thoughts.

"?" Bobbie turned wide, gold-flecked eyes upon him. Surprise was written plainly in them."?"

"Yes. You. You can afford to rent a decent place now," Gus answered her, although the question of her salary had never been brought up. "You'll want to live in a quiet place—a place where you can have your friends, instead of that tacky boarding house."

"But I haven't any friends here," she said, "and I don't want to see a lot of people the next few weeks. I want to work hard for you all day, and sleep twelve hours every night so that I'll look fresh and peppy in front of the camera. I'm going to be a credit to you, Gus. You'll be surprised!" she laughed.

"I'd die of the blue creevies, I'd be so afraid here alone at night, anyway," she added, "with the nearest neighbor on the other side of the park, and that little brook talking to itself—ugh!"

"You could have a housekeeper," he said carelessly, "and I could come, sometimes, and have supper with you. I don't like the idea of your coming up to my house any more. Lottie Schultz does a lot of rubber-necking lately, and there's bound to be nasty talk if you keep on coming."

He turned around, hands in pockets, and took another long look at the friendly little house with its green roof cocked on top of it like a cap.

"You know, I get doggoned lonesome some times, Bobbie." His hand closed over hers on the sun-warmed stone of the little wall. "I get lonesome for you. It seems to me that we see each other so little. You have to be home at midnight, always, or Mrs. Mangan will throw a fit—and Lottie Schultz will throw one if we stay up at my house after ten o'clock. I seem always to be saying goodby to you just when I'm beginning to enjoy myself."

Well, that was true enough, Bobbie thought. Evenings when they were together seemed all too short. It was always time to separate just when they were having the nicest time—settling down to a good talk—driving along under the magic moon of southern California.

And yet wasn't it a queer thing for a man to do? To ask a girl to rent a little out-of-the-way house hidden behind the trees of a park, so that he could come to see her?

In the world where Bobbie has been brought up, when a man wanted to see a great deal of a girl, he asked her to marry him! It was he—not she!—who paid the rent of the little house, and the two of them lived in it and kept house.

What was Gus driving at, anyway?

"I don't believe I want to take this house, Gus," she said, deep in thought. "I don't think it would be the thing to do—and the neighbors would think it queer for a girl to live here all alone with just a housekeeper."

She remembered how Aunt Gertrude had scolded her father for going to see the Widow Parkins so often. It didn't look right for a man to run in and out of the house of a lone woman so often, Aunt Gertrude had said. And Bobbie knew that that was just how most people did look at things like that!

She shook her head in its smart shabby little hat.

"You don't trust me," Gus said suddenly, his sullen eyes on her troubled ones. "You promise to do what I tell you to do—and then you tell me to go to the dickens when I advise you to take this house!"

"Well, I don't think I ought to take it," Bobbie answered stubbornly. "I don't think it's right for a girl to live all by herself, especially if she has a man friend or two. And what's more, it isn't right, and I'm not going to do it!"

Gus watched her in silence for another minute while she stared back at him.

"And if you don't trust me, you certainly don't care for me," he said as if he were finishing a thought.

"Yes, and you certainly don't care for me, either!" Bobbie flamed out at him. She was furiously angry, all of a sudden. "If you did, you'd ask me to marry you instead of framing up some way to see me without anybody finding it out!—Well, I won't be a sneak if you are! And you can take your darned old part in your darned old movie, and give it to Monica Mont or anybody else. Because I wouldn't have it as a gift—now!"

She started away from him, kicking the gravel walks of the little garden as she went. He did not move or try to stop her.

At the side of the house, in a little bed of sweet peas, lay a crumpled ball of gray paper. It caught her eye as she passed, and she stooped to pick it up.

It was the letter she had seen Gus reading in the studio an hour before.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Monica goes up another step on the ladder of fame—and Bobbie steps down but not out, in the next chapter of this story.

BO BROADWAY ..... By Joseph Van Raalte

NEW YORK, (EFS.)—Having backed into the aristocracy by way of Fifth avenue, "Mrs. Childs" in her new Buttercake Bureaus, seeks to escape the thraldom of the Front Window Griddle.

She has outgrown the pancake in the Capital of Commonplace, and to prove it, she endows her new-found Pie Palaces with ornate brass fronts, reinforced by a background of Woolworth lace and wax fruit.

She celebrates her advent on Fifth avenue by combining beaux arts with the bizarre.

* * *

It's an exterior reformation.

In her Fifth avenue Prune Parlors, as in her Bowery Bean Bungalows, she still adheres to the mirth-provoking custom of charging "extra" for the three slices of Scotch-verdict bread, and insists upon putting the milk in your cup of Battle Creek Java.

The only way to retain that ancient and honorable prerocative is by the exercise of great firmness.

Also, "Mrs. Childs" has carried into the sacrosanct environs of St. Thomas' church, her ubiguitous paraffin-treated tissue-paper napkin.

That, of course, is a grave mistake. Paper napkins may be all right on Fourteenth street, in the vicinity of Tammany Hall; but on Fifth avenue a paper napkin has as much chance of prevailing as a widow in Wall Street.

Tissue paper was never intended for use in wiping the human chin.

When a vagrant portion of food obessed by wanderlust, strays the beaten path and seeks seclusion among the shady coverts of the waistcoat, by way of the lower maxillary, any attempt to coax it back by means of a small, rectangular section of tissue paper is sure to prove ineffectual.

Other than a slice of boarding house cucumber, there is nothing on earth that wilts, wobbles and lays down, half-way through a meal like a paper napkin.

It has absolutely no character. No tenacity. Singleness of purpose is a virtue beyond its ken.

* * *

Another thing. "Mrs. Childs" should jack up prices and run her Fifth avenue Ham Huts with the dignity that brass fronts suggest.

I went into one of the Doughnut Dens up near the Cathedral the other afternoon, for breakfast.

I had two fried eggs, three slices of bread and a cup of More-Or-Less-Mocha, for which I was assessed the ridiculous sum of 75 cents.

* * *

You can't run a Fifth avenue Fish Ball Conservatory on those prices.

If "Mrs. Childs" thinks she's going to undersell the Goody Shops, the Goofy Shops and the rest of the Fifth avenue combination candy and grub parlors, she is making a fatal mistake.

Why not charge a nominal price for eggs—say 50 or 75 cents apiece? None of us minds paying a fair price for what we eat.

In that way she could pay off the mortgage on the brass fronts, fill the Haviland china dishes in the front windows with tropical fruits, supply honest-to-goodness napkins, raise the salary of the Rear Admirals who walk up and down in their white duck suits, and she'd find, at the end of the week, she'd have a few pennies left over to buy a peanut brittle and take in a movie.

ELECTRA SOCIETY

Christian Church Ladies.

The ladies of the Christian church met Monday afternoon at three o'clock at the church with Mrs. Grace Jennings the president in charge, and the lesson was taken from Matthew, the twenty-fifth chapter. Plans were made to raise money for the Missionary society and plans were also made for the fellowship banquet to be held the later part of this month for the members of the church. The meeting dismissed with prayer and there were eleven present.

Misses Francis Honored.

Misses Mildred and Ruth Francis were honored most delightfully at a six o'clock dinner Saturday afternoon at the home of their sister, Mrs. J. C. Mozley of Wichita Falls. The dinner, a three-course affair was served with decorations of cut flowers and after dinner a very delightful evening was spent. Other guests were Misses Lucy Cawlfield of Electra, Miss Dorothy Mozley of Wichita Falls, Mildred and Ruth Francis, Virginia Mozley, Messrs. Wash Taylor, Carl Thomas and Tom Gooch of Elliott, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mozley.

Rally at Baptist Church.

A Conquest rally which is sweeping the Baptist churches of the country was observed Sunday evening by the B. Y. P. U.'s of the city, when the following program was given: Little Misses Mildred Lamb, Grace Freeman, and Montrell Brister, gave points on "The Conquest." Dorothy Freeman and Roy Smith gave a most delightful duet and Mrs. Jodie D. Smith played the accompaniment. Mrs. C. O. Roberts, who is sponsor of the intermediate department took charge, with "What Is the Conquest Campaign," by Miss Mary Ruth Tubb; "The Plan of the Conquest," by Edward Forbes; "What Is the Chief Investment of the Texas Baptists" by Virginia Smith; "What Is the Value of These Investments," by Gordon Roberts; "Schools and Their Presidents," by Nettie Mae Melton; "New Hospitals," by Edward Francis. Lawrence Sanderlin of the senior department made a general talk on the campaign after which Lowell Ponder of Wichita Falls, who is the county B. Y. P. U. associational president, from the Lamar Avenue church made the principal talk on the program. The meeting was closed with a song.

Pythian Sisters Banquet

The Pythian Sisters of this city entertained with a banquet and open-house meeting at the Knights of Pythias hall Tuesday evening, when a very fine program was given. Francis Awtrey made the preliminary talks and acted as master of ceremonies, while Rev. L. D. Grafton made the welcoming address. Misses Margaret and Doris Owens sang two selections with ukelele accompaniment, with an encore, while Miss Eloise Gafford gave two reading selections. Steve Ray entertained with a vocal number. Little Miss Preston Ashley read "Home," from Edgar A. Guest, and "Sister's Best Fellow," dedicated to Mr. Francis Awtrey. Pete Davis gave a solo on a "cigar box instrument," after which Mrs. J. M. Fant read the "Inventor's Wife."

Supper was then served by Mrs. J. T. Ligon, assisted by Misses Lillie Mae George and baby Helen Jennings, Messrs. Huffman and Latham.

T. E. Shaw made the principal talk of the evening, with Messrs. Cecil Cooper, W. T. Rhodes, Fred Music. Cecil Grant and others making short talks, announcing about the anniversary service of the Knights of Pythias on February 20. Several of the ladies made addresses, thanking the guests for coming.

After more music by a three-piece orchestra composed by Buster Follaw, Steve Ray and Pete Davis, the meeting dismissed.

Dillard-Bitner Wedding

Miss Marie Bitner of Altus, Okla., became the bride of Fred Dillard, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Dillard, of East Wabash street, recently, with Rev. Lonnie Whitworth of the Assembly of God church, performing the ceremony at the parsonage with Mrs. C. M. Dillard, sister-in-law of the groom, and the immediate family of the minister as attendants. The young couple will make their home in Electra.

The marriage was the culmination of a long standing romance, they having been engaged since mere children.

Pastors Association Meets

The Pastors and Ministers association of the city met Monday morning in the study at the First Methodist church, with Rev. E. M. Francis, president, in charge, and Rev. Lonnie Whitworth, secretary, reading the minutes of the last session. The reports from the various churches were given, with the ministers reporting everything in good order. The Baptists are working on the Conquest campaign to raise $1,000,000 by March 15, 1927. Rev. Anderson reported about the teachers training class recently finished by members of the Methodist church. Rev. George Keever reported much illness in the Beaver Creek community. They will meet again in two weeks.

NO. 19 ENOUGH

Champion Mother Says She's Through

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 10. (AP) Mrs. Leander C. Gentle, who three days ago presented her husband his 29th child and who has borne 19 of the 29, expressed an opinion from the maternity ward of a hospital here that 19 was enough.

"I think 19 is enough," Mrs. Gentle said. "I love every one of them but I don't feel at present that I desire any more."

The Man Nobody Knows

INSTALLMENT VI.

The Elements of Success.
3. Patience.

Having gathered together his organization, there remained for Jesus the tremendous task of training it. And herein lay the third great element in his success—his vast unending patience. The church has attached to each of the disciples the title of Saint and thereby done most to destroy the conviction of their reality. They were very far from sainthood when he picked them up. For three years he had them with him day and night, his whole energy and resources poured out in an effort to create an understanding in them. Yet through it all they never fully understood. We have seen, at the beginning of this chapter, an example of their petulance. The narratives are full of similar discouragements.

In spite of all he could do or say, they were persuaded that he planned to overthrow the Roman power and set himself up as ruler in Jerusalem. Hence they never tired of wrangling as to how the offices should be divided. Two of them, James and John, got their mother to come to him and ask that her sons might sit, one on his right hand and one on his left. When the other ten heard of it they were angry with James and John; but Jesus never lost his patience. He believed that the way to get faith out of men is to show that you have faith in them, and from that great principle of executive management he never wavered.

Of all the disciples Simon was most noisy and aggressive. It was he who was always volunteering advice, forever proclaiming the staunchness of his own courage and faith. One day Jesus said to him, "Before the cock crows tomorrow you will deny me thrice." Simon was indignant. Though they killed him, he cried, he would never deny! Jesus merely smiled—and that night it happened. . . . A lesser leader would have dropped Simon. "You have had your chance," he would have said, "I am sorry but I must have men around me on whom I can depend." Jesus had the rare understanding that the same man will usually not make the same mistake twice. To this frail, very human, very likable ex-fisherman he spoke no word of rebuke. Instead he played a stroke of master-strategy. "Your name is Simon," he said. "Hereafter you shall be called Peter." (A rock.) It was daring, but he knew his man. The shame of the denial had tempered the iron of that nature like fire; from that time on there was no faltering in Peter, even at the death.

The Bible presents an interesting collection of contrasts in this matter of executive ability. Samson had almost all the attributes of leadership. He was physically powerful and handsome; he had the great courage to which men always respond. No man was ever given a finer opportunity to free his countrymen from the oppressors and build up a great place of power for himself. Yet Samson failed miserably. He could do wonders single-handed, but he could not organize. Moses started out under the same handicap. He tried to be everything and do everything; and was almost on the verge of failure. It was his father-in-law, Jethro, who saved him from calamity. Said that shrewd old man: "The thing that thou doest is not good. Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou and this people that is with three, for this thing is too heavy for thee, for thou are not able to perform it thyself alone."

John the Baptist, had the same lack. He could denounce, but he could not construct. He drew crowds who were willing to repent at his command, but he had no program for them afte rtheir repentance. They waited for him to organize them for some sort of effective service, and he was no organizer. So his followers drifted away and his movement gradually collapsed. The same thing might have happened to the work of Jesus. He started with much less reputation than John and a much smaller group of followers. He had only twelve, and they were untrained simple men, with elementary weakness and passions. Yet because of the fire of his perconviction, because of his marvelous instinct for discovering their latent powers, and because of his unwavering faith and patience, he molded them into an organization which carried on victoriously. Within a very few years after his death, it was reported in a faroff corner of the Roman Empire that "these who have turned the world upside down have come hither also." A few decades later the proud Emperor himself bowed his head to the teachings of this Nazareth carpenter, transmitted through common men.

Whoso loveth instruction loveth knowledge; but he that hateth reproof is brutish.

A good man obtaineth favour of the Lord; but a man of wicked devices will be condemned.

A man shall not be established by wickedness; but the root of the righteous shall not be moved.

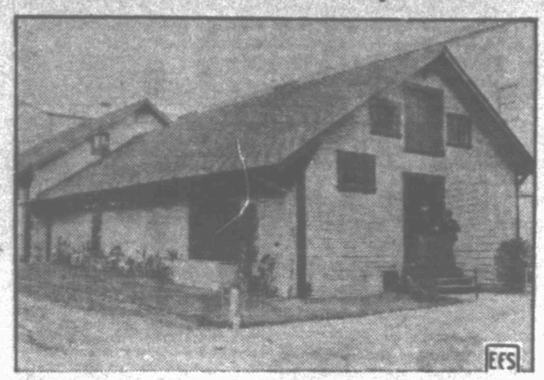

A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband; but she that maketh ashamed is a rottenness in his bones.—Proverbs 12:1-4.

The old hustle and ginger boy! That's Frank Tobin, the Coast leaguer who makes his debut in Spud spangles this spring. Take that from none other than Miz Fred Fussell, the more potent portion of the noted lefthander's matrimonial contract.

Avers Miz Freddy, "Frank Tobin's a wonderful catcher. He has lots of pep and everybody will like him. Be quite popular. He caught Fred out at Portland, you know, and Fred thinks the world of him."

If the reputed portsider is satisfied, Tobin needs no further recommendation. He will do.

Stock of the Continental male basketball team is very much on the incline. It has been called to my attention the Conocos have come through with two straight victories in recent days. They defeated the Panhandle team and the Kilowatt girls.

* * *

To Pug Guy, we have it on first-hand information, goes the credit for lacing administered the powerful Panhandle. Pug sank seven field goals and "fed" the ball to another player who sank seven more. Where the rest of the Continental team was during that period, Pug did not say.

* * *

They all like to see a champion go down. The entire Commercial league turned against the speeding Panhandlers during that game and lent the old moral support to the sub-cellar division Conocos. Judging by the returns, give the Conocos a well-drilled rooting section each night and they'll whip the world.

* * *

THAT MATCH

Another item brought to attention: Had the tin-ears been wrestling for the money that was in the house the other night, Charley Grip and Swede Jensen would have stayed on the mat no longer than 10 minutes. For the skeptics: The gathering that attended the melee that wintry eve was the smallest yet to show at the wrassle performances. And as the breaks of the game go, it was the greatest battle ever waged on a Wichita Falls canvas. Oh, yus, yus, the boys had it all fixed up beforehand. Sure, Swede says to Grip, "You slam me cold and cop the first fall quick, then I'll come back and work a long time after which you give up and let me have the fall. And don't forget, yuh gotta sock me in me left glim and close it up tight. And bite me four or five times so nobody will know we're just kidding them."

* * *

And then Charley explained to Swede, "You crack muh ankle so I hardly can walk, hit me all over the head and kick me in the mush. Then put on a couple of crab holds and nearly break my back, only don't break it. We gotta make this thing look right. After going a long time, if everybody ain't gone home by that time, I'll kick you in the jaw and then stomp on your chin and take the last fall. We gotta make this thing look good."

* * *

After which the noble athletes stepped out and did it all for three hours and 10 minutes just as planned, added a few butts in the slats and bloodied each other up quite artistically. There wasn't any money in it so they must have been doing it just for fun. Grip was able to hobble around fairly well Thursday, two days later, and Jensen was beginning to see fairly well out of a blackened optic. And yet some wise guy upped and asked me yesterday if I didn't think the affair was "fixed." No, he didn't see the match. Which reminds me of the time a New York millionaire won a neat little wager trying to sell 20 five-dollar gold pieces for a nickel each on Brooklyn bridge. During six hours of ballyhoo and hand-to hand display of the coins, he sold two. Do you get the point?

WHITE EARNS EDGE ON HULL

Martin Kayos Atkins, Pug Beats Burroughs

By BLONDY CROSS

Well, now if you just would have a decision, why Tommy White earned a shade. But after all, the ultra-scientific 10-round affair Thursday night at the Palace theater, which by the way marked return of the biff game locally, between Thomas White, the midget Texas City infighter and Clyde Hull, St. Paul's speeding welterweight, was very little more nor less than a first-class even-Stephen draw.

There was no material damage done. Both are good pitchers and exceptionally clever defensive fighters. The initial three cantos amounted to exactly zero minus as far as points scored is concerned, neither gaining an advantage.

Tom Steps Out

But the sturdy White stepped out in the fourth, fifth and sixth with a slam-bang attack that netted him a possible edge. Hull reversed matters in the seventh and ripped over with a long-range drive that gave him a shade. White kept his left in Hull's face throughout the eighth and scored with an occasional hook and right cross. Hull cut loose in the ninth with a whirlwind two-fisted attack that momentarily had Tommy backing up, but the athletes finished the round just about all square. Hull, still boring in at a terrific pace, had the better of the final frame. There was more action chocked into the last two rounds than the other eight put together.

As remarked, neither tabulated any serious damage, but White outboxed Clyde through the early frames, making the St. Paul millier miss flagrantly and scoring with a rat-a-tat run of short hooks and jabs that were given a clean working basis by an barrage of left leads.

Atkins Starts Well

Buster Martin, the Wichita Falls heavy, took the short end of two rounds and then rushed Jack Atkins with a flurry of rights and lefts to score a knockout at the start of the third round of a scheduled 10-rounder. Atkins clearly outboxed the local favorite during the first and second but was caught in his own corner in the third with a vicious two-fisted attack, a right tagging him in the midriff followed by a left and right hook to the jaw. Jack flopped like a log, his head crashing the floor heavily. Referee Swede Jensen carried him from the ring.

Pug Humphries, Lawton welter who has been making Wichita Falls his headquarters, whammed Battling Burroughs of El Paso throughout a six-rounder. Both boys pitched to the limit all the route. Humphries scored effectively, landing with everything the law of boxing allows him to swing, but found Bat too tough to put away. The El Pasoan, who they say gave away several pounds, doggedly came back for more and stubbornly refused to give ground. It was the best bout on the card.

Voss Scores Knockout

Lee Voss, Wichita Falls 110-pounder, came down and told the promoter that he was willing to fight a prelim if allowed to see the main event. He tackled Frank Alford of Louisville and scored a technical knockout in two rounds with a slashing attack. Alford swallowed a tooth. His second chunked in the towel following a series of knockdowns.

A couple of Senegambians waged a noble four-round curtain raiser. The card on the whole was a lively affair.

REAL GOLF DUEL!

Linksmen Fight With Drivers and Balls At 50 Paces

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 10. (AP) The story of a duel at 50 yards with golf clubs and balls came out of Howey-in-the-Hills, near here, Thursday.

E. W. Willson of St. Louis and T. V. McQuain of Syracuse, N. Y., disagreed as to the number of strokes each took in negotiating the Dubsdread course. They had words, then an argument and finally a fight. It was agreed that each was to have one driver, one iron and two dozen balls. At 50 paces tees were carefully prepared. At the drop of a hat firing started. Several shots were high and wide and then one duellst knocked his antagonist down with a line shot to the shin. He couldn't keep his eye on the ball, however, and before he could get the range his opponent was up at him with an iron. He evened honors in three shots by sending a fast one to the other's ribs.

Passers-by, attracted by what at first appeared to be a spirited practice session, became alarmed. A constable was called. He arrived just as the iron shots began to whistle.

"Fore," shouted the constable. The duellsts paused, one with a limping stance and the other bowed as if for a putt. The officer approached the couple, pistol at the ready, and seized their weapons.

An amicable settlement was affected.

Razorbacks Cop Conference Title

Frog Victory Over Steers Gives Hogs Crown

FORT WORTH, Feb. 10. (AP) Arkansas' Porkers were automatically given the southwestern conference basketball championship tonight when the T. C. U. Horned Frogs defeated Texas university, the only team which had a chance to head off the Hogs, 32-27. The victory was won in an extra period of play.

Carrie Nation was high point man with 11 points, while Cantelmi, T. C. U. captain, and Acker, Frog guard, were next with nine each, Holly Brock of Texas was next with eight points.

Texas missed 10 of its 17 attempts at free throws while T. C. U. capitized 12 of their 19. The game while marred by 27 personal fouls, was not rough, merely hard fought. Doc Stewart sent in a stream of subs to play a perpetually fast game, but the combinations he sent in never worked well enough to long maintain their shooting streaks.

T. C. U. led at the half 15-10, but in the opening part of the next period, Texas rallied and overcame the lead only to lose it under a Frog spurt. With the score at 24-23, in favor of Texas as the culmination of a second big rally by Stewart's men, a foul was called on Patrick, sub Texas center, and Harry Taylor, threw the toss to tie the count. In the session T. C. U. walked away with an 8-7 margin.

Captain Baker and John Konecny will have the guard positions.

Spug Myers Trims Champion Callahan

By Universal Service.

RINGSIDE, COLISEUM, CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Spug Myers, Idaho welterweight, won the judge's decision over Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion of the world, here tonight.

Myers and Callahan fought furiously from the outset to the finish. Callahan was out in the front in the early rounds but beginning with the seventh round Myers kept coming and his spectacular rally in the tenth in which he pounded the champion all around the ring and undoubtedly won him the decision. There was plenty of heavy punching but neither took a count.

Mills and Mabry Tie Up For High Point Honors

The Wichita Falls Coyotes defeated the Petrolit Pirates on the Junior college court Thursday night by the score of 24 to 11. Petrolia has won the independant school championship of Clay county and is the favorite to represent Clay county in the coming district meet.

Buster Mills and Mabry tied for first place honors in the scoring with seven each, while Clarence Powell and Walter Pinney ran a close second with six points each. Maurice Allred staged a great defensive game for the Coyotes and was hard to beat.

The Coyotes took off for a lead early in the game and the first quarter ended with them topping the Clay county boys by a 7 to 2 margin. The second quarter was rather tame and the count had been raised only to 11 to 4 in favor of the Coyotes.

In the last half the two teams kept up the same pace until late in the final quarter when the Coyotes stretched away from them. The score at the end of the third quarter was 16 to 7.

Many short shots were missed by both teams, many times the ball going into the basket and then coming back out again, or rolling about the rim to fall off.

Captain Coyal Francis of the Coyotes was on the sidelines at the game for the first time since the Tiger game. Francis has been out of the game with the mumps. He will be in the district meet, however.

Giants Cop Best End of Big Swap

Roush Outhits Kelly, Whams Past .300 Since 1917

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The Giants have engineered their second big deal this season, that transaction Wednesday whereby Ed Roush, one of the greatest outfielders in the major leagues, became a member of the Giants in a trade that sent George Kelly, the elongated first baseman, to the Cincinnati Reds.

Negotiations between the Giants and Reds were begun a few days ago. August Herrmann made the first overtures to Charley Stoneham, president of the Giants.

Stoneham immediately communicated with McGraw who is still vacationing in Cuba. The Giants' president told McGraw that the Reds were willing to let Roush go, but wanted Kelly in return.

McGraw weighed the circumstances and as Kelly had failed to come to terms after he had been given an increase, McGraw decided to dispose of him.

The Giants' manager wired his o. k. and Stoneham and Herrmann, who remained here to await McGraw's reply, closed the transaction.

This will be second time that Roush has worn a Giants' uniform. Ed, who came into prominence as a member of the Newark club of the Federal league, was sold to the New York club under the peace pact for a reported price of $7200.

McGraw did not retain Roush long, however, and shipped him to Cincinnati along with the late Christy Mathewson and bill McKechnie for Buck Herzog and Wade Killifer.

Mathewson became manager of the Reds.

With the Reds, Roush great glory as a hitter. Not once since the 1917 season has he hit under .300. The best mark he has made was .352 in 1921.

Last season Roush outhit Kelly by 20 points, in 144 games he connected for 152 hits for a total of .323, while Kelly batted .303 in 146 games. Kelly made 13 home runs last season, while Roush made 7.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 10. (AP) Eddie Roush, outfielder, traded by the Cincinnati Reds to the New York Giants for George Kelly, crack first baseman, Thursday said he did not know whether he would go to New York.

"I have yet to hear from New York," he said.

Roush's contracts with the Reds, which extended over the past three years at $19,000 a year, expired last fall. It is understood he demanded a renewal of this contract for the same period of time.

Babe Says Pay Me Else I'll Quit Your Old Nine

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10. (AP)—Babe Ruth, "sitting pretty" financially and physically, let it be known here Thursday that his statement that he would retire from baseball if the New York Yankees do not meet his salary terms, was a serious outline of his plans and no idle threat.

His program, if the Yankees do not come to the scratch, briefly is this:

To throw away his bat and go into business with Arthur A. McGovern of New York in a nationwide string of gymnasiums, combining with this activity correspondence courses on how to keep in good physical condition and how to play baseball.

Brownlee of Austin Purchases Escoba

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 9. (AP) Escoba, son of the great Broomstick, out of Christmas Star and therefore a half-brother to Mars has been sold by John S. Barbee and associates to Houghton Brownlee of Austin. The sale was made by Treacy and Waller of the Kentucky Sales company.

Escoba's most notable performance was in the Kentucky derby at three years of age when he ran second. He won the blue grass stakes and ran a mile at Douglas park in 1:36 4-5, a new track record.

Escoba's first crop of foals reached the races as two-year-olds in 1922 and he annually has had out successful performers.

YANKS AREN'T WORRIED ANY

Moguls Don't Take Mr. Ruth Very Seriously

By BILL SLOCUM
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—George Herman Ruth, leading manufacturer of major league home runs, is a holdout, according to the public prints, but officially he is a member of the Yankees.

In other words officials of the New York club insist that they have heard nothing from the illustrious Babe as to higher salary, have seen nothing of a contract that Ruth is supposed to have sent back without signature, and therefore they have no quarrel with Ruth.

It is admitted that a contract was sent to Ruth just before Feb. 1, thereby conforming with baseball law. As to the amount named in the document, that is something for Ruth to announce, if he cares to, but something which club officials never divulge.

Too Busy to Discuss It

Colonel Ruppert was engaged in conference on other matters most of today and was not available for discussion on Ruth's reported demand of $100,000 for 1927 under threat of retiring from baseball if he does not get that amount. Ruth was quoted as declaring out on the west coast:

"If I am not worth $100,000 to the Yankees I am not worth a cent. I have put some money away and am ready to quit playing ball if I do not get what I ask."

Barrow met newspaper men today with the remark that he would discuss anything they desired to talk about except Ruth's contract. Efforts to get some definite statement on the club's plans regarding the celebrated holdout met with a refusal to talk. When asked if a statement might be expected some time tomorrow Barrow broke his silence long enough to remark:

"Perhaps."

Expected Babe to Pop Off

Ruth's threat to retire from baseball if he does not get $100,000 is not taken seriously in baseball circles.

The bambino plans to remain in California until Feb. 24 and then he probably will come to New York to settle his case with the club. Nobody will be sent out there to talk terms with him. He is scheduled to report at St. Petersburg on March 6 and may go direct to camp. The Yankees have never followed the policy of keeping holdouts out of camp if they desired to go there for conferences.

Although no official word has reached headquarters the news of Ruth's holdout caused no surprise. Club officials really expected that Babe was going in for heavy financial reward from that afternoon when he popped three home runs out of Sportsman's park during the 1926 world series.

Holliday Teams Off To County Tourney

HOLLIDAY, Feb. 10.—The Holliday Eagles will go to Archer City Friday afternoon for the county basketball and volleyball tournament. The basketball team plays Megargel at 2 o'clock and the winner will play Archer City for the county championship Friday night at 8 o'clock. In the volleyball schedule Holliday drew a bye and will play the winner of the Megargel-Archer City game which will follow the basketball preliminaries in the afternoon.

SPORTSMEN SUE BIFFERS

Fandom Wants $3 Refund On Fight Between Phil and Busbey

NEW YORK, Feb. 10. (AP)—An organization known as the Sport Followers of Fair Play league is suing everyone connected with the Rosenberg-Graham fight for $3, the Herald Tribune says Thursday.

The league charges that the bout was advertised as a bantamweight championship contest at Madison Square garden last Friday night when in reality no title was at stake. A rule of the New York Boxing commission limits the cost of fight tickets to $7 except in the case of championship contests, when $10 tickets are sold.

DISTRICT TITLE PLAY TODAY

HUNTSVILLE, Feb. 10, (AP)—The basketball championship of district 15 of the University of Texas Interscholastic league, composed of Walker, Grimes, Houston, Montgomery, Madison, San Jacinto, Polk and Liberty counties will be decided here Friday and Saturday when the champion teams of each county gather here to fight for the right to represent this district at A. and M. college, March 5 and 6, when the state meet is held.

RUNYON SAYS

Artists Get The Dough—More Than the Athletes—Dempsey's Sport Draws—McCormack's Guarantee—Tenor Tops Them All—

By DAMON RUNYON

From Mr. Sime Silverman's interesting publication, Variety, I snatch some figures that have nothing to do with sport but which are very interesting to sport for the purpose of comparisons.

The following list shows the guarantees paid concert artists for one night stands in cities of around 200,000. Guarantees may be somewhat higher in larger cities, Variety explains.

John McCormick	$5000
Fritz Kriesler	4750
Amelita Galli-Curci	4350
Paderewski	4250
Mischa Elman	4000
Feodor Challapin	4000
Will Rogers	3500
Mary Garden	3500
Kubelik	3500
Roland Hayes (colored)	3200
Mme. Alda	3000
Serge Rachmaninoff	3000
Mme. Schumann-Heink	3000
Benjamin Gigli	3000
Martinelli	3000
Alfred Spalding	2500
John Charles Thomas	2500
Florence Macbeth	2500
Geraldine Farrar	2000
Paul Robeson (colored)	1250

Now then the best drawing card, as an individual, that any form of sport has produced in many years, was undoubtedly Mr. Jack Dempsey.

As a fighter he twice got guarantees of $475,000. This stands as a record for guarantees in the world of sport, and of course the figures have never been approached in any form of artistic endeavor for a single performance.

Outside of actual fighting, Mr. Jack Dempsey did not class with John McCormick, or even Fritz Kriesler in the matter of guarantees for single performances. I believe he once got a guarantee of something like $9000 per week for theatrical appearances, but he carried a large supporting cast with him.

I know of one instance of a guarantee of $7500 to Mr. Dempsey for a single performance, but that was an exception. He was paid this by Dick Donald, the Los Angeles promoter, to appear as an extra attraction at a fight between Young Stribling of Macon, Ga., and Eddie Huffman, the sailor, in Los Angeles, the same pair, by the way, who met Monday night in Madison Square Garden.

Mr. Dempsey boxed three soft-boiled opponents on that appearance, but they were paid by the management. He got his $7500 clear. But as a steady guarantee snatcher, Mr. Dempsey nor no other figure in sport, could ever compare with John McCormack. The Irish tenor can probably get $5000 appearance every night in the week if he wished to work that often.

The ubiquitious George Herman Ruth, called Babe, is one of the biggest drawing cards ever known to sport, but in his baseball capacity Babe must also have considerable support. As an individual playing baseball or doing anything else, Babe could not hope to rival the big guarantee grabbers of the artistic world.

Certainly not for single performances. From time to time they have wrapped nodescript baseball teams around Babe and gone barnstorming through the jungles, and I suppose guarantees of at least $3000 were by no means uncommon. But Babe did not get all of that.

When you figure that John M'Cormack working two consecutive weeks, 6 days per week, can takes $60,000 for his end on a guarantee and that Babe is asking a salary of only $15,000 more than that for an entire baseball season of effort, you can see the difference. Or even go down in the artistic list as far as Mme. Elda and her $3000 per concert and Babe is still far behind.

Outside of baseball, Babe is esteemed something of a draw for theatrical purposes. He may get, say, $2500 per week in vaudeville, but that is for several performances a day. On his average year, Babe has probably done better than $100,000 for some years past, at that. This should be his biggest money getting year.

There are several other individuals in sport who are considered good draws. Gertrude Ederle, for one. However, as a guarantee getter, Gertrude probably does not rate per week with any of the artists named above her performance.

Some of our other boxers, especially the champions, can get $5000 guaranteed for single performances in towns of 200,000 but they do not get many of them. I doubt that any boxer now before the public, and I do not except Mr. Gene Tunney, the champion, is making as much money on the year's run as Mischa Elman, the violinist, or even Will Rogers.

And, I might add they shouldn't.

THREE SQUADS LOOM IN MEET

County Basketball Tourney Opens Today

The Wichita county basketball meet opens Friday morning at Burkburnett and will be watched with much interest by the fans of the four leading towns in the tourney. Burkburnett, Electra, Iowa Park and Clara are the four high school teams which will battle for the right to represent Wichita county in the district tournament to be held the following week at a place yet to be decided.

There has been much discussion as to the favorite in the race for the senior county honors. Three of the four teams are disputed as to the best chance to win out in the finals, while none seems to be counting on the Burkburnett five.

Hawks Threaten

Iowa Park, last year's champions, will wade into the meet with their laurals at stake and are confident they can repeat. The Hawks have about the same team this year with the exception of Paul Enloe.

Preston Beck, of the Landon-Hill team, has done some very extensive work as a referee about the county, and he said recently the Iowa Park Hawks had just come out of the shell in the past few days, and at the present time stack up as real contenders.

The Electra Tigers have been sent through the paces hard by Coach Jim Reese and they have drilled down to a fine point for the tournament and are to be counted upon to furnish plenty of thought for the other contenders. Preston and Kent are the two men the Tigers will count on in this meet. Carnahan is out with an old injury to a knee.

Clara Strong

The Clara Greyhounds again come to the front with a contending team. Coach Belcher has drilled his men with an idea of getting his defense in this fight. He believes that Curly Walkup and J. O. Sehon can put out enough offense to win. The team has lost but two games this year and one of these losses came before basketball season had gotten off to a good start, in fact, it was one of their first practice games. Then they dropped a close game to the Wichita Falls Coyotes on the Wichita Falls court by the score of 14 to 13.

A victory over the Union Valley team from Cotton county, Oklahoma, was among the Greyhounds chief performances of the year. This team has been the county champions there for four years, and last year they lost only one game and the Clara defeat was their second this year.

Burkburnett is playing almost a green team this year and has had a very poor season. The men have been very weak on the offense and only fair with the defense. Still there are many fans who feel the Bulldogs will jump right into the tournament and pull a surprise.

Two Clubs Crippled

From late reports there will be but two teams that are losing men on the eve of the tournament. Electra will be forced to battle without the services of Carnahan, their first-string center while Iowa Park is doubtful of the chances of Virgil Wigley getting into the game.

Wigley recently had his foot badly burned by a gasoline fire and is on crutches. He was the second team center and a very important cog of the reserve strength of the Hawks.

Eslinger, Altus coach and former star with the Oklahoma Aggies, will be the official referee of the tournament. When Eslinger was signed to referee, there was some doubt as to his taking the task as the Oklahoma teachers meeting was to be held this week and it it was feared that he might attend this, but Superintendent Hogg of the Burkburnett high school, announced that he had heard from Eslinger later and he stated that he would be on hand for the games.

Uncle Rob Will Be Very Happy

BROOKLYN, Feb. 10—Every big league manager finds himself with some problem over which to labor in the coming weeks.

John McGraw, for instance, is revising his catching staff and must find one or two capable men to handle his hurlers.

Miller Huggins' problem is his pitching staff.

Manager Jack McCallister of the Indians faces the problem of filling Tris Speaker's shoes in centerfield.

The White Sox must plug the gap left by Eddie Collins' departure from the Chicago infield.

But Manager Wilbert Robinson isn't worrying about his gardens or the situation about the plate. He's worrying about his Butler's pantry.

A year ago this time Robbie was wearing one of those permanent wave smiles—guaranteed to withstand water, hard soap, wind and everything else with the exception of a busted pennant hope.

It had cost Robbie plenty to get that smile—seven ball players, in fact. He gladly turned over that number to Minneapolis to obtain the services of Johnny Butler, star infielder of that team. He figured that Butler would "make" his infield.

But when time came to report Johnny limped into camp at Clearwater, Fla., a few days late and scarcely able to move around. An attack of flu had left him with a weak stomach. When he should have about tuned up for the season he was enroute to Johns Hopkins hospital at Baltimore for treatment.

With Butler out of his lineup Robbie hit more hard luck. Rabbit Maranville failed to hold a steady pace. A half dozen fits of juggling failed to give Robbie a good infield. Butler finally reported—before he should have—and it was not until the closing weeks of the campaign that he showed his expected class.

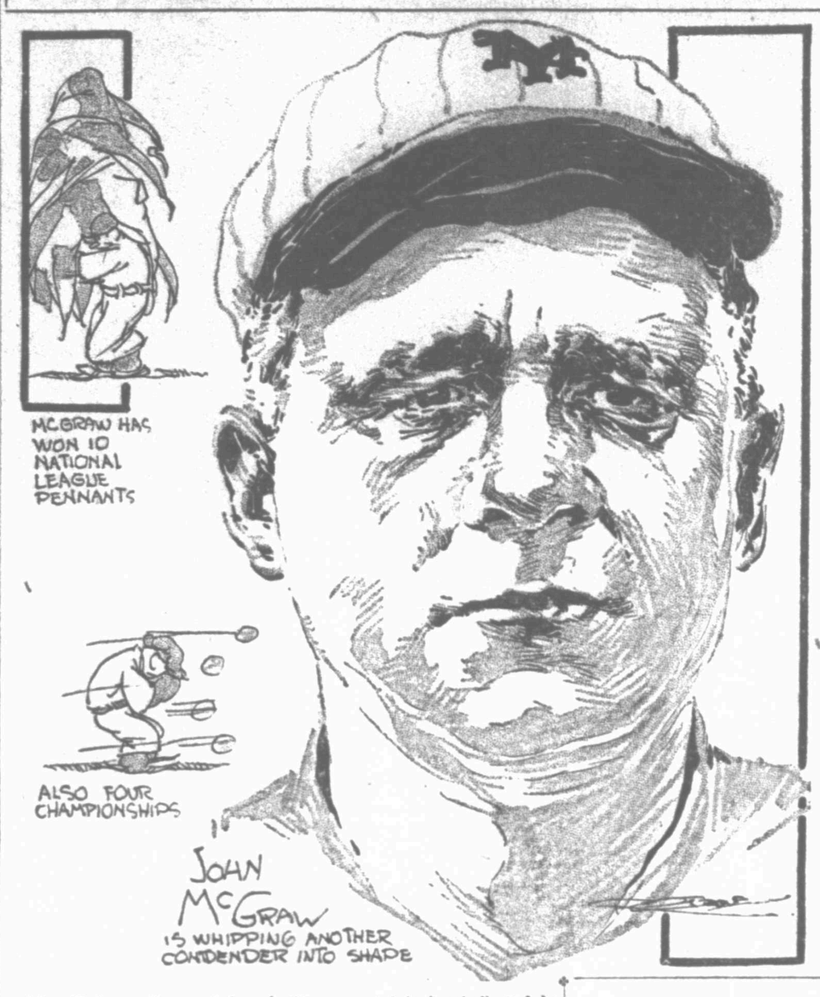

Now, however, Butler says he is rarin' to go. He says he is fit as a bass fiddle.

Uncle Robbie hopes so. For once more he is building his infield around that tummy, so to speak. And it will depend upon Butler's pantry just how high his hopes are carried.

J. L. Elliott has returned from a business trip to points in South Texas.

McGraw Sees Eleventh Pennant

Two-Year Layoff Has Made Great Giant Machine

John McGraw, the most feared man in baseball, is well on his way to another pennant in the National league.

Having taken over Hornsby he made one of the smartest moves of the winter season. His infield runs into the startling figures of $600,000, a cost that will well repay him. Hornsby, Kelly, Lindstrom and Jackson are all .300 hitters and average close to .950 in fielding averages.

It is not like the master to sit aside and watch the Yankees grab all the glory of the diamond in his home town. John was due to be radical, due to offset Babe Ruth and Huggins' great machine. John's move was nothing more than expected in baseball, and he stepped and grabbed the hard-hitting Ed Roush.

McGraw's past history was not to be lessened. He holds the record for winning major league baseball championships, and is the only man on the big time circuit to pilot a team to four successive flags.

Since 1904 McGraw has led the Giants to 10 National league pennants. Naturally he has figured in more world's series than any other manager.

His teams won in 1904, 1905, 1911, 1913, 1917, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924.

And he holds the whipping hand for the National league season of 1927.

SPORT a la CARTE

BY ROY GROVE

Delmar, Del., Jan. 11, 1927.
Mr. Roy Grove:

I notice in Tuesday's issue of the Every Evening, in your editorial of the heavyweight boxers, in your first paragraph, the following remark:

"In ranking the leading heavyweights of the game today writer NECESSARILY puts Tunney at the top of the list for some reason or other. I suppose it is because he is the world's champion by title."

It would appear that you happen to be one of the thousands that lost your jack on the dethroned champ. No doubt you happened to be at the ringside on the fatal evening of Mr. Dempsey's career and I would like to know on what grounds you have to be forced to acclaim the world's champion, instead of just voluntarily placing them there, exactly where he belongs with all due credit. The above remark of of yours would also indicate that you are under the impression (as several others (that he was bought off, or some other sore-head excuse and I wouldn't have the nerve to publish it, where several thousand could see your opinion, on paper. I myself happened to be in the stadium that evening, and (not only because I am a Tunney fan) as I saw the decision, it could not have been rendered in any other manner, that was to the best man and HIS NAME IS TUNNEY, and so why not be a good sport, and get on the right side. AN EVERY EVENING READER.

J. E. Lowell.

* * *

About 10 years ago this writer did considerable boxing, a style much on the order of Gene Tunney's, interesting in any match where points were to be had, and a decision.

Johnny Kilbane and Benny Leonard were two fighters I liked best. I liked the way they went about their business and in the meantime could hit hard.

That boxing-fighting method is a combination of ring craft and a thorough student of the game is the champion.

Gene Tunney's style could be likened to the fighting methods of either Kilban or Leonard in their upright jabbing and crossing. An ideal system for the lighter weights but the heavier men must be hit harder, consequently sluggers. These make for slow bouts if the cautiousness is over worked.

* * *

The jabbing-crossing method is the beautiful game, but there are few at the ringside who understand the game. Boxing is too scientific in this sense for the fan. The most interesting boxing matches this writer has had occasion to see where ones mostly razzed by the fans.

We never bet a cent on the Dempsey-Tunney fight and we picked Jack Dempsey to win with no discretion. My argument is that Tunney will never be a crowd pleaser because he is too fine a fighter to give the fans the necessary thrills that go with killers of the heavyweight class.

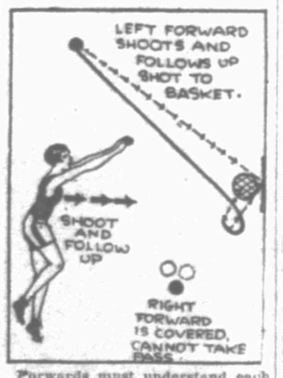

* * *

Men in the game like the murderous K. O., but prefer 10 rounds of science and coupling science with the K. O. is the ideal fight. But the fighting fan cannot get warmed up to the inside of the match as the battlers are weaving and jabbing, trying to outgeneral each other for a fatal smack on the button.

Gene Tunney is ranked as first among the heavyweights, but that ranking is not popular with the public at present. Gene must put a sleep powder behind his punch in his next fight to be an ideal champion.

Women's Athletics

By Mary Isabel Caldwell

Forwards must understand each other. Otherwise there will be a grand mixup every time the ball is shot to the cage. They should arrange which one is to follow up a shot and when. On a long shot, which means that the other forward is guarded, the shooter must follow her own shot. If she is covered, but manages to take the "step back" and shoot, the other forward must come up for the recovery. It will never do for both forwards to try to follow up the same shot, for they may collide and lose it. Get a system, and play it.

AGGIES BUSY IN BALL PARK

College Station Pill Flingers Begin Training

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 10. (AP)—Kyle Field, where such college baseball stars as Trim Rigney, Bib Falk, Pete Donohue, Ted Lyons, Eddie Dyer, Pat Olson and Heinie Odom have played some of their best games, now resembles a major league training camp. Coach Claude Rothgeb has a squad of 35 practicing every afternoon when the weather permits. The aggies finished second in the conference race last season and it is hoped that an early start will prove beneficial when they get down to the final drive with the Mustangs, Horned Frogs, Owls and Longhorns.

Coach Rothgeb has devoted most of his attention thus far in an effort develop a capable hurling corps. H. A. Hillin of Mount Calm is really the only veteran flinger on the squad, though J. D. Wyman of Cleburne and A. C. Bryant of Mexia have had considerable experience. "If three of the 10 pitchers who are trying out come through for us, we will be well satisfied," said the Aggies coach. Other hurlers who are trying for berths are G. W. Brown of Gainesville, Hiram Brofles, of Fort Worth, E. Gorman of Gilmer, D. R. (Lefty) Hillin of Mount Calm R. H. Jones of Galveston, J. R. Meador of Dallas and E. O. Mount of Chrystal City.

Although H. W. Schueneman of Sequin is expected to be the Aggies' first strong backstop, C. A. Harris of Fort Worth, L. H. Durst of Crockett, and T. B. Ewing of Springfield are showing promise as catchers.

The infield probably will be selected from J. V. Sikes of Leonard, and H. W. Childers of Houston, first baseman; C. M. Flory of Smithville, and J. F. Blount of San Augustine, second base; L. C. Bell of Bellville and George Wilmoth of Diboll, third base; and D. Bernhard of Dallas and Capt. Hollis Tucker of Houston, shortstops.

Outfield candidates include G. A. Kalleen of Houston, T. N. Winn of Pearsall, R. M. Bradford of Fort Worth, A. C. Bray of Dallas and E. Broesche of Burton.

MAJOR COMPANIES ASSEMBLE HUGE BLOCKS IN KNOX COUNTY

DOZEN TESTS TO BE DRILLED

Deep Rock Co. Starts Activity In Virgin County

By TOM TRULY
Oil Editor, The Record News

If there is oil in Knox county it will probably be brought to the earth's surface before 1928. For reasons known best to themselves practically every major company operating in this district has made a rush for Knox county acreage within the past few weeks with the result that well over half of the county is now under lease while representatives are in the field making the job complete. Many of the contracts carry drilling obligations, it is said.

There are now three tests drilling and another location made to drill. The Deep Rock Oil company is below 1000 feet in its No. 1 Jones, located in section 111, block "C" of the H. & T. C. survey and about five miles northeast of Benjamin where the Deep Rock has established offices. In section 224, block 44, H. & T. C., the Deep Rock has spudded in its No. 1 G. H. Beavers which is just three miles northwest of Benjamin. Location has been made to drill on the W. R. Moore land in section 219, northwest of Benjamin.

In Mammoth Block

These tests are all near the center of a mammoth block of 30,000 acres and should either of them "hit" it will place the Deep Rock company in an enviable position.

H. H. Kirk of Cisco has recently taken over the test drilled to a depth of 2800 feet by the Brazos Bend Oil company in section 90, abstract 1571, R. L. Johnson farm, and will drill to 3500 feet. Several blocks are reported to have been formed in the vicinity of this test since its rejuvenation.

The Texas company has blocked up approximately 10,000 acres southeast of Knox City and extending south into Haskell county. The Texas company has another block adjoining Munday on the southeast which contains around 8000 acres.

The Humble Oil and Refining company has a huge block covering the southeast corner of Knox, the southwest of Baylor and the northeast of Haskell. Farther north and just west of Benjamin the Humble has assembled approximately 5000 acres and this company holds another block in the extreme northern part of the county.

Two Obligations

Cranfill and others are said to have two drilling obligations attached to the leases on about 12,000 acres in the south central part of the county.

The Wilcox Oil and Gas company holds 8000 acres on the western edge of the county while the California company has smaller blocks in both the western and eastern parts.

Others reported now engaged in assembling blocks include Clint Wood of Wichita Falls, Fain-McGaha Oil company of Wichita Falls, the Marland Oil company of Wichita Falls and the Sun Oil company.

There will likely be a dozen tests drilling within a few months and most of them will be in the south half of the county.

Cotton--Latest Market Quotations--Cattle

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.(AP)—Realizing attracted by yesterday's advance was considered chiefly responsible for reactions in the cotton market today. The disposition to take profits on recent purchases probably was promoted by the uncertainty of pending farm relief legislation, and there may have been some selling for local and southern accounts. On the whole, however, offerings were not heavy, and after selling off to 13.96 for May contracts, or 21 points net lower, the market rallied several points in late trading. May closed at 14.08, the general market closing steady, at net declines of 7 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 to 4 points in response to rather easier Liverpool cables. There was some southern selling here, presumably in the way of hedging, and the market became rather unsettled in early trading. Washington advices emphasizing a possibility that if the farm relief bill was passed by congress it would be vetoed by the president, appeared to attract a good deal of attention and probably led to reselling by recent buyers. A disposition to even up commitments also was promoted by the approach of the two-day adjournment. There was considerable liquidation on the decline which extended to 13.76 for March and 14.37 for October or about 16 to 21 points below yesterday's closing quotations.

The volume of selling tapered off at these figures, however, and there were partial recoveries later on reports of continued steadiness in the southern spot markets. Unsettled weather in the southwest, suggesting further delays in harvesting late cotton, or early plowing operations, also had a tendency to check selling after the early liquidation had subsided. Some early sellers were credited with covering late in the afternoon. Last prices showed recoveries of 7 to 10 points from the lowest.

Private cables said trade calling had absorbed hedging in Liverpool but that there had been London and Continental liquidation.

Exports today 24,873, making 6,977,361 so far this season. Port receipts 28,957. U. S. port stocks 2,903,805 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10.(AP)—Cotton prices mired today under the weight of disbelief in the passage of the farm relief bill, poor Liverpool cables and belief by traders that a reaction was due. The gong found them struggling steadily toward higher ground, however, 9 to 10 points below yesterday's close.

The bog was encountered at the opening when the pressure of Liverpool cables was reflected in first trades, showing losses of 5 to 7 points under the previous close. Other bearish packages were added to the load during the morning until shortly before noon March had traded down to 13.82, May to 13.97 and July to 14.13, 17 to 19 points under the previous close.

Covering tended to lighten the load in the afternoon and the market struggled through the slippery going to register recoveries of eight to 10 points above the lows. Liverpool spot sales reached 10,000 bales and Manchester news was encouraging but despite this the Liverpool market was five penny points lower than due. The day's exports totalled 24,837 bales.

OVERSOLD PIT HELPS WHEAT

Rush of Short Covering Boosts Price

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—An oversold pit condition was uncovered in wheat late today. After averaging slightly firmer much of the day prices bulged rapidly as shorts attempted to cover. Commission houses had absorbed the early offerings and gradually took the slack out of the pit. News developments were without change, the recovery being more or less natural. Other grains displayed a firmer undertone, particularly corn.

May wheat opened at $1.40½@⅝c, sagged to $1.40, rallied to $1.41¼ and closed at $1.41⅛@¾. July opened at $1.35⅛@¼, rallied to $1.35 and closed at $1.34⅞@¾. No doubt the abrupt slump of the last few days wiped out much of the long contest in wheat, and thus weakened the short position. Eastern houses sold considerable wheat around bottom levels.

The seaboard confirmed export sales of 200,000 bushels of wheat and some rye. New York claimed export business of corn out of Chicago, but it was not confirmed here. Liverpool closed ⅛ pence lower.

Locally wheat finished ⅜ to ¾c higher, corn ½ to ⅝c higher, oats ⅜ to ⅝c advanced and rye ¼ to ½c up.

Corn ruled quite strong. A house with produce connections was reported a freer buyer of this grain. Later on active locals took hold and forced prices through the "offers" as sellers of same were forced to protect themselves. Commission house selling increased on the bulge.

Oats manifested a healthier tone and advanced under commission house buying. The primary run of this grain was smaller and the commercial demand picked up.

Rye advanced with wheat. There was some export business.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.(AP)—Scarcity of offerings resulted in price upturns Tuesday wheat. Reluctance to sell was accompanied by talk about falling off in primary receipts and by gossip that farm reserves southwest are as low at present as they generally are around April 1. Wheat closed unsettled ⅛ to 1 cent net higher, corn and oats both showed ⅛ to ⅝ cents advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Crop futures were in better general demand than of late, influenced by a rise in the cash corn trading basis. Oats followed corn.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 10.(AP)—While wheat prices at the close Thursday on the cash grain market were only about a cent above Wednesday's close the market was much more active on a better milling demand and dealers reflected this in their bids. Exporters were offering around $1.47¾ for No. 1 hard delivered to Gulf ports.

Wheat: No. 1 dark hard milling, $1.50@1.51; No. 1 ordinary hard milling, $1.49@1.50; No. 1 red, milling $1.49@1.51; No. 1, 75 per cent red, milling $1.48@1.50.

Corn: No. 2 yellow, 95@97c; No. 2 white, 85@87c; No. 2 mixed 80@82c.

Oats: No. 2 red, 45@46c; No. 3 red, 44@45c; snapped corn, 65@70c, No. 2 barley, 77@80c; No. 3 milo $1.12@1.15, No. 3 kaffir, $1.10@1.13, maize heads $17.50@19.00, kaffir heads $14.50@16.50.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.(AP)—Speculation in the stock market quieted down considerably today with the industrials superseding the rails as the leaders of the upward movement. A spectacular 11-point jump in Baldwin Locomotive, which touched a record high for all time at 180 and then fell back to 177, in anticipation of an excellent earnings report was the outstanding individual feature. Total sales, which ran close to 3,000,000 shares yesterday were down to less than 2,000,000 today.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent despite the calling of about $15,000,000 in loans. The New York federal reserve rediscount rate was unchanged at 4 per cent, as generally expected in view of the fact that no change had taken place earlier in the day in the Bank of England rate. Dividends were resumed on American International corporation common after a lapse of seven years and a 10 per cent stock dividend was declared on U. S. Realty common.

U. S. Steel common fell back nearly a point on the unexpectedly large decrease of over 100,000 tons in January unfilled orders. Other steels held fairly steady, Crucible crossing 85 to the highest price since 1922. General Motors crossed ⅝ lower at 153½ after selling two points above that figure, the directors increasing the annual dividend from $7 to $8 after the close of the market.

Only 400 shares of Wheeling and Lake Erie common changed hands, the stock opening 10 points lower at 80 and then advancing to 85. The premium for loaning the stock dropped to ⅛ of one per cent, as against 7 per cent earlier in the week. The preferred was much more active, fluctuating between 83 and 88 and closing at 86, off one point net.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were firm with demand sterling ruling slightly higher around $4.84¾ and French francs around 3.93 cents.

BALDWIN GOES UP 11 POINTS

Equipment Stocks Popular In Day's Trading

BY BROADAN WALL.
Universal Service Financial Expert.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Buying of the Equipments featured the stock market today. Heavy absorption of Baldwin sent that stock up 11 points and American Locomotive showed a rise of approximately five points. Speculation in the Equipments replaced that in the rails and a number of the latter issues, particularly the cheap stocks, were lower. The public ran away with the low priced rails the last ten days and the inevitable calamity followed when stocks in this category broke wide open. The drastic shake-out, it is held, was needed to improve the top heavy technical position.

Money loaned at 4 per cent. Sterling developed strength. Wheat was up; cotton down.

Chicago interests were the principal buyers of Baldwin. The company, it is estimated, last year earned approximately $30 a share, which is considered good in view of the recent reports that 1926 was a poor year for the Equipment companies.

American Locomotive rose in sympathy with Baldwin. Both companies should experience a good year in 1927 when the railroads start ordering equipment on a heavy scale. Baldwin's land in Philadelphia, it is said, is alone worth more than the amount that the company is carrying for its entire property in the balance sheet.

Accumulation is going on in steel common. Steel, it is predicted, will sell at a new high record price before the present move terminates. Unfilled orders on the corporation's books dropped 140,792 tons in January. Forward orders on January 31 aggregated 3,800,170 tons as against 3,960,969 tons of December 31, and 4,502,759 tons in January last year.

Western Maryland was lower, although this stock is said to have more merit than many others which have been favored recently. Baltimore and Ohio has taken a big block of the stock out of the market. One other railroad, it is believed, is anxious to get a block of this stock. The alien property custodian is planning to sell a block of 65,000 shares at a price not under the market. Wheeling and Lake Erie dropped to 80 and closed at 85, off five points net. The premium was reduced to one-quarter of one per cent but the stock was difficult to borrow nevertheless. Atchison was in demand among the high priced rails.

Rubbers were active with special buying in U. S. Rubber. The tire business this year is expected to show good profits. The stabilized condition of the rubber industry is understood to be proving a boon to the small companies. There was buying of Norwalk tire which sent the price to a new high for 1927.

Westinghouse Air Brake rose sharply. There has been talk recently of a 25 per cent stock dividend. International Harvester was in demand. A report was current that control of one of the large equipment manufacturers would pass to Harvester. Realty responded to the stock dividend. Certain-Teed hit a new top for the year. Certain-Teed Products earned better than $6 last year in the face of a trade war that affected 40 per cent of its profits. Under normal conditions the earnings would have been about $10 a share. This trade war, it is understood, is being adjusted so that for 1927 the full earning power of the corporation will be shown. The $4 dividend as a result is believed to be safe.

A move is understood to be under way in Coty Perfume. This company's earnings are increasing and interests recently connected with Coca Cola and some of the rails are behind the stock in the present movement.

Consolidated Cigar is being groomed for a new advance. Profit taking has been in evidence the last few days but this stock has been absorbed. National Distillers was higher. The government, it is said, plans to buy a large amount of the company's whiskey for medicinal purposes.

General Motors closed lower. Directors met today and placed the stock on a straight $8 annual basis. Sales in January showed an increase over the same month last year. Hudson Motors was active at practically unchanged prices. Officials of this company are optimistic over 1927 business. A large block of the stock has been taken out of the market.

Coca Cola advanced three points. There is a large short interest in the stock and its sponsors are planning a squeeze against the shorts. January sales were considerably ahead of the corresponding month last year.

Oils were quiet. Buying, however, continues in such issues as Standard of New Jersey and Creole syndicate. An important announcement concerning the latter is expected in a few days.

Eureka Vacuum sold around 65 and its sponsors predict a price of 85 on this move which is expected to start tomorrow. The company did the biggest business in its history last year. It increased its sales organization materially last year. The increase in prices which went into effect last November and the satisfactory preliminary report for January of this year, makes 1927 prospects for the company's business the best in its history.

Vegetables

TEXAS VEGETABLES.

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 10.(Texas Market News Service.)—While shipments from the lower Rio Grande valley continues rather freely, particularly the movement of cabbage and mixed vegetables, elsewhere in the state there has been some slackening in tonnage due partly to market and partly to weather conditions which make loading difficult. Yesterday's Texas shipments of fruits and vegetables consisted of two cars of lettuce, 26 (incomplete) of spinach, three (incomplete) of cabbage, three of sweet potatoes and two (incomplete) of mixed vegetables. The pick-up for the previous day consisted of 56 cars of cabbage, 67 cars of mixed vegetables and six cars of spinach.

There was some improvement in the market tone for spinach at shipping points yesterday. A few cash sales at 40-45 cents per bushel basket were listed and usual terms business was accomplished mostly on the latter basis. Cabbage is steady at $10-12 per ton. Beets and carrots dull at 75 cents bushel.

MISSIONARY TO SPEAK HERE

Pastors to Hear of Chinese Problem at Meeting

In the interest of a campaign being conducted by the Methodist Episcopal church, south, to raise $1,000,000, Dr. John C. Hawk, missionary to China, will address all of the Methodist ministers in Wichita Falls Monday at luncheon in the Y. W. C. A.

The luncheon will be in charge of W. J. Johnson, presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district.

Dr. Hawk will address the congregation of the Methodist church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning and will take as his subject, "The Political Situation in China."

For a number of years Dr. Hawk has been a missionary in China, according to Dr. Johnson, and has taken an active part in the establishment of schools and churches in that country.

Dr. Hawk has been working in the interest of the campaign for the past few weeks and has been to several of the large cities in the south.

Good Bill On At Majestic

Novel Acts Presented On Weekly Program

The vaudeville bill at the Majestic this week opened with a trio of clever dancers who have some rather unusual athletic stunts along with some very graceful dancing. They ended their act with individual interpretations of the "black bottom." (Can't you hear the Charleston turning over in it's well-earned grave)

Adams and Rash call themselves the "Two-man quartette" but they seemed the whole geography instead. Their amusing impersonations make up for what they lack in vocal ability.

The next was a Gwafus good act. Marjorie looks as if she had recently left the cradle but she evidently stopped somewhere to perfect herself in the art of winning applause. Ed was right there—stomach and all. No wonder he has to look for his stomach when he bounces like a Gwafus rubber ball.

The act that followed, the Briants in "The Dream of a Moving Man," may have been a "dream" to the moving man but it probably seemed more like a "nightmare" to the dummy. Their stunt is quite out of the ordinary.

Jack and Sarah are the same as ever but with the additions of a company and a—Jack said it is a mustache— two weeks and four days old. The company says nothing for himself—but anyone who can play a xylophone and do the "black-bottom" at the same time doesn't need to say words. And again Jack danced on the table and his skates didn't slip. However despair not it may happen the very next time.

The whole Gwafus bill this time was unusually good and it showed to a Gwafus big house.

Sherman's 'Tramp-Tramp' Had Nothing On Maricle's Men

Wichita Falls Mail Carriers Walk 74,400 Miles During Each Year

Tramp-tramp-tramp—

General Sherman's army marching through Georgia had nothing on Postmaster O. P. Maricle's postal delivery carriers going through Wichita Falls.

Both crews of men walked plenty of miles and made holes in soles where leather used to be.

Maricle's "army" consists of 24 carriers, each one walks on an average of 10 miles a day or 3100 miles a year—a distance as far as from Wichita Falls to New York and half way back again. The 24 carriers total walk is 74,400 miles a year, a distance of approximately two and one-half times around the globe.

History tells us that the men of Serman's army carried very little weight, as their guns were light and their stomachs empty but Maricle's crew carry 2160 pounds, or over one ton each day. Each man carries approximately 90 pounds. In one year's time the 24 carriers will "tote" 325 tons of mail, or enough to fill a freight train of 13 cars.

Each carrier delivers on an average of 1000 pieces of mail every day, approximately 310,000 every year making a total for the 24 carriers of 7,440,000 pieces of mail each year which citizens of Wichita Falls receive from the hands of the men who have made General Sherman's army look like a "flock of pikers" when it comes to walking.

Nine Capital Cases Set For Trial At March Term of Criminal Court

Seven cases of murder, two for statutory offenses, and 10 felony cases were set for trial during the March term of court in a conference between Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court and members of the district attorney's department Thursday.

In announcing the settings, District Attorney Ben Allred said that it was a part of a campaign to clear the docket of charges of such offenses in which the death penalty might be given, before the next session of the grand jury in order that new indictments could be handled immediately afterwards.

The settings for all of the capital cases except one are tentative, however. Trial of Cain Bowie on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting of Julias McLendon in a negro cafe last fall, has been set for Wednesday, March 2.

Folsom Trial Set

The trial of Frank Folsom, held on two statutory charges, has been set for Wednesday, March 9. Folsom was convicted on a charge of a similar nature in 1925 and was sentenced to 25 years imprisonment in the penitentiary. Later the decision was reversed and Folsom was acquitted.

Other tentative dates include the trials of W. E. McBride, Wednesday, March 16, charged with murder in connection with the stabbing on last September 3 of E. N. Childers on the streets of Burkburnett; Jack Abel, Friday, March 16, charged with murder in connection with the beating to death of Jessie Harris on August 22; Hattie Hunter, Wednesday, March 23, charged with the stabbing of Hallie Bolden in a negro restaurant on the night of November 25; Jim Allen, Monday, March 28, accused of shooting Lawyer Bratton on September 23; J. E. Edgar, Thursday, March 31, charged with murder following the death of W. A. Culver at K. M. A. on December 11, and G. W. (Shorty) Dukes, charged with murder in connection with the death of Grady Morgan, a truck driver, last fall.

In the latter case, Morgan was found, unconscious, by the side of his truck on the Holliday-Park-Lake road, about two miles south of Wichita Falls. He died several days later in the General hospital without regaining consciousness. Dukes was arrested a few weeks later.

The following felony cases were set for the week of Monday, February 28:

Lee O'Briant and Miles Wigley, burglary.

R. D. Dukes, assault, with intent to murder.

Mrs. T. D. Toy, arson.

Mrs. C. H. Prince, arson.

W. M. Blakesley, arson.

Lester Etter, alias J. H. Hines, forgery.

H. L. Reynolds, burglary.

Will Jones, false swearing.

Will Jones, theft of property over the value of $50.

J. A. Finley, possession of whisky for the purpose of sale.

It is probable that more than 1000 veniremen will be summoned for the session of court, according to Judge Martin.

E. F. Fruechte and Sam Spence, assistants to District Attorney Ben Allred, are preparing the cases for the state.

A Ford touring car, driven by Hoyt Calcote, 1209 Underwood, was turned over squarely on the tracks and Calcote desired that it be left that way until officers investigated. The car tracks at that intersection are temporarily on top of the pavement while excavating is being done on 17th street and Calcote stated his car skidded into the rails and turned over when he attempted to stop. The car was badly damaged, but neither Calcote nor a companion was hurt. City Officers Dick Morgan and Jimmy Gonzalez investigated.

Roof Repairing

If you have a leaky roof call the Wright-Bains Roofing and Manufacturing Company. We repair any roof that can be repaired.

We do not put on new roof, just repair, as we mix all our asbestos compound to suit the job or the roof. We also have a shingle water proofing that will prolong the life of shingles one-half and keep them from curling up. It is a composition of oil and mineral and not as expensive as one might think. We guarantee all the work we will contract.

For further information call Ed F. Wright.
