Voluntary watering program gets OK from city

Snyder city council members have approved a voluntary lawn watering program.

Carolyn House, director of customer services for the city, requested approval of the program during Thursday's council meeting.

Under the program, citizens who live in even numbered houses on a street are asked to water their lawns, plants and gardens only on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Those living in odd-numbered houses are asked to water only on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

City engineer Beverly Coots said the plan would serve a two-fold purpose.

"Simply by making people aware of the volunteer watering program, it often cuts down on water useage," said Coots. She added that it would also ease the strain on the city's water treatment plant during peak watering times.

Mayor David Holt said prudent use of water should be observed "even if Lake Thomas were full."

House also reminded the council of several brochures that are available at the city's water office to aid in water conservation.

Gasoline prices drop again

Per-gallon cost ranges from $1.07 to $1.21 in town

Another price drop has sent the per-gallon cost of gasoline down as much as three cents here.

One Stop's $1.07 was the lowest price in town at 11 this morning. Others stations were offering gasoline from $1.09 up to $1.21.

Among those at $1.09 were McD's, Citgo, L&L and Conoco on College Avenue and the Skinny's locations on 37th Street and Coliseum Drive.

Gasoline was $1.10 at the Phillips 66 on West 25th Street and $1.11 at the Fina station on College Avenue, just south of 37th Street.

Gasoline could be purchased at $1.12 at Allsup's, the Phillips 66 on North College and Fina on 25th Street.

Tiger Mart Exxon, which had 99-cent gasoline during its grand opening on July 27, posted a price of $1.13 this morning.

The gas "war" began on Aug. 1, when several stations dropped prices to $1.12, although One Stop had been selling at that price for almost a month previously.

The next day, prices at some locations dropped to $1.11, led by Citgo, or Century Fuels.

City approves rate hikes

Snyder City Council made quick work of a seven-item agenda Thursday as it approved on first reading ordinances setting new water, sewer and landfill rates as well as the tax rate for the coming year.

Beginning in October, citizens will pay eight percent more in water and sewer rates.

Snyder citizens will pay a basic fee of $9.13 per month for 2,000 gallons of water as opposed to the current charge of $8.45. Each additional 1,000 gallons will cost $2.54. This year the cost was $2.35.

The basic sewer rate will increase from $7.60 to $8.21 for residential customers with a charge of $2.21 for each additional 1,000 gallons. Most sewer rates are based on the customer's water useage during the months of December, January and February.

The increases are necessary to pay for construction of the new water treatment plant, said city officials.

The minimum gate fee at the city's landfill will increase from $9.04 to $9.95, and the cost for commercial customers, including private waste haulers, will go up from $18.10 per ton to $19.91 per ton.

Rates, contingent upon approval on second reading, will go into effect in September, with first billing in October.

Sanitation rates won't see an increase. The basic cost for the use of a dumpster at a residence will remain at $14.50 per month.

An ordinance approving the tax rate for the coming year was also approved by the council. The rate will be $.4021, up slightly from this year's rate of $.3977. The rate was increased to the effective tax rate, the rate necessary to raise the same amount of funds that were generated by taxes last year.

Two other ordinances were approved by the council, including one relating to the industrial park.

Development Corporation of Snyder executive director Doug Hutchinson told the council that the ordinance was basically a correction of lot numbers from a previously passed ordinance.

"It will not change any zoning," said Hutchinson. "Now, the right lots will be zoned the right way."

The council also approved on first reading an ordinance making appropriations for the past fiscal year.

A bid on a sewer cleaning machine in the amount of $29,883 from Shamrock Pipe Tools was approved. Two other bids were received, both lower, but city engineer Beverly Coots said they did not meet bid specifications.

A bid in the amount of $37,650 was approved for the purchase of new wheels for a compactor at the city's landfill. This bid was $367 lower than the only other bid submitted.

Mayor David Holt presided Thursday. Present were council members Vernest Tippens, Dayton Robertson, Jerry Webb and Ron Shaw. I.E. Martin was absent.

Outage leaves 920 without power Thursday

A fault in a TU Electric transmission line left more than 900 Midwest Electric customers without power for about an hour and a half Thursday night.

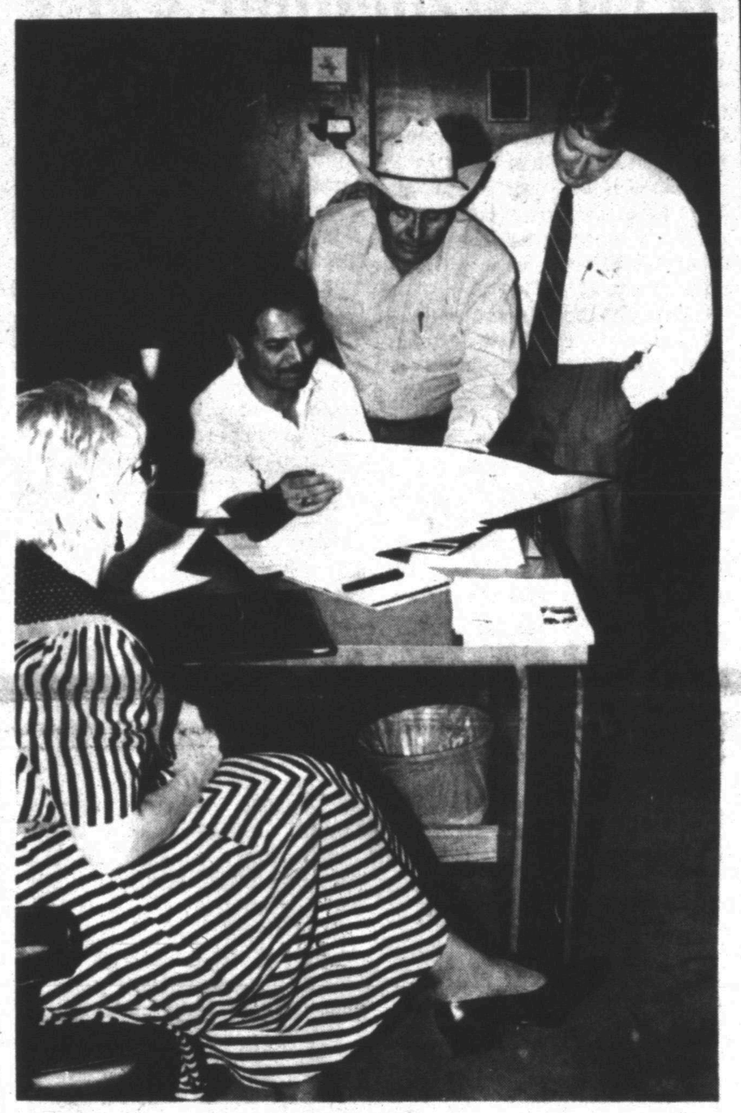

The problem occurred at the Plainview Substation near the Price Daniel Unit, said Dalvin Alexander, Midwest Electric district supervisor. The substation is fed by TU Electric. Power was also out at the prison unit.

Power went off at 9:58 p.m. TU employees had it back on at 11:22. Power was also out from 2:09 a.m. until 2:29.

In addition to the prison unit, the outage impacted about 920 other Midwest Customers.

The Cogdell and Texaco Cogdell Substations were also out for one hour and 57 minutes, which effected 41 TU Electric customers.

TU officials said a transmission line came loose and fell across the distribution line, creating a pole fire which caused the outage.

Grant approval anticipated

Hermleigh residents will have another few days to wait to find out whether the community has been awarded a $249,900 grant for improvements to its water supply.

Refugio Negrete, regional coordinator with the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, said Thursday that the grant application had been recommended for funding and is now awaiting review in Austin.

Scurry County's grant scored in the top seven applications submitted to the regional review board in Abilene and was recommended for approval.

"While it is not certain, the board in Austin is not likely to turn down the grant application," said Negrete.

County Commissioner Jerry Gannaway said this is the sixth time the application had been submitted.

Gannaway said the grant will be used to drill a new water well and construct a 30,000 gallon ground storage tank to serve Hermleigh.

"We'll construct new mainlines, as well as install new fire hydrants," said Gannaway.

Basically, said the commissioner, "we'll just work on the system until the money runs out."

Gannaway said he hopes there will be funds left over to repair the

Marijuana turns minor offense into a major one

An attempt to smuggle four marijuana cigarettes into the Scurry County Jail has resulted in felony charges being filed against a 21-year-old Snyder man.

Ruben Munoz of 106 Ave. R had been arrested at 10:20 a.m. Thursday at Municipal Court to lay out fines for speeding and no liability insurance. While being booked into jail on the traffic tickets, it was discovered that he had four marijuana cigarettes hidden in his socks.

He was arrested again and charged with a third degree felony for possession of a controlled substance in a correctional facility.

Fund-raisers probed after 'pizza night'

HOUSTON (AP) — Whereas a cynical citizen may look at the 135,000 people locked inside Texas prisons and see inmates, some prison employees see a bona fide fund-raising opportunity.

For several years now, Texas prison inmates and their families have become captive consumers for state workers attempting to raise funds for their own training or for pet charities, officials said Thursday.

"Saturday and Sunday we have family visitation," explained Gary Johnson, director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division. "So what a lot of units have done is to have hamburgers, or pizza or barbecue sandwiches ... and then they would sell those items to the visitor for cash."

Prison visitors are not permitted to bring their own food to the units and are left with only the options offered by vending machines.

So a few years ago, enterprising prison employees decided to set up food stands on prison grounds — on their own time and while out of uniform — to capitalize on this lack of available meals.

TDCJ officials said Thursday that there's no central accounting for the funds generated and no guarantee that the money doesn't end up in the employees' pockets rather than going toward a particular charity or cause.

"That's a problem," Johnson said.

Another way employees raise money is through a photo service. For $3, visitors can have a Polaroid photograph taken of them with the inmate they came to see.

These two practices came to light Thursday as Texas Department of Criminal Justice officials put a speedy halt to a planned Aug. 23 "pizza night" for Estelle Unit inmates in Huntsville. In a memo signed by the prison warden, inmates were offered $15 pizzas — to be paid for through their commissary accounts.

The money raised was to foot the bill for an employee Christmas party this year, Johnson said.

While the "pizzagate" incident is a first, officials say, it's not uncommon for prison employees to raise cash, ostensibly for causes such as employee training or charities, by targeting inmates and their families.

Johnson and other TDCJ officials insist that most of the state's 72 prisons keep a close eye on their own fund-raising activities.

"Some have super accountability and some are deficient," said Glen Castlebury, a TDCJ spokesman.

No one in the agency could offer a figure on how much has been raised or say where the money went.

Castlebury said there was strict accounting — on a prison-by-prison basis — but he could not immediately locate a total on the amount raised through picture-taking.

Not all the money is earmarked for charity. Some employees use the visiting-day fund-raisers to pay for personal-enrichment training based on the teachings of human potential guru Stephen Covey.

The author of the best-selling "The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People" counts both President Clinton and House Speaker Newt Gingrich among his fans.

Training programs based on Covey's theories are offered to some TDCJ managers. But the rank-and-file must pay their own way and thus the fund-raisers, Johnson said.

"Everybody has got to separate out the pizza deal, which was totally inappropriate and cannot be condoned," TDCJ executive director Wayne Scott said in a prepared statement released Thursday.

"When you go to the visitation fund-raising, I don't doubt, in fact I know, that there must be better accountability. But at the same time, you have to admire those officers who go on their own time to raise money to take self-improvement courses."

Coincidentally, Johnson said, he called last week for a review of fund-raising at prison units. A newly formed committee met for the first time in Huntsville Thursday to discuss the matter.

"We would like to be able to do some fund-raisers for some good causes, but we want to do it right," Johnson said.

Initial discoveries in Joost case said confirmed by DPS

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Public Safety will affirm the findings of its initial investigation into the deaths six years ago of a Texas Racing Commission official, his wife and two children, according to published reports.

The Dallas Morning News and the Austin American-Statesman reported today that a DPS review of the 1990 incident came to the same conclusion as before: that David Joost killed his wife and children before killing himself.

On March 5, 1990, the bodies of Joost, 41; his wife Susan, 35; daughter Lauren, 5; and son Eric, 10, were found inside their home in a suburban subdivision outside Buda, 15 miles southwest of Austin.

A .38-caliber revolver was found lying in a hallway near Joost's body.

The findings are expected to be made public after they are shared with family members in the next week to 10 days.

Family members have criticized the murder-suicide ruling, saying they believe Joost, an accountant, might have been murdered because of some wrongdoing he uncovered at the Racing Commission, which governs pari-mutuel racing in Texas.

A preliminary report has been completed and presented to DPS director James Wilson, DPS spokesman Mike Cox said Thursday.

"But it's not a final draft," he said, noting Wilson had some additional questions. "It's just sort of an editing process."

Capt. Marshall Caskey, a DPS investigator who was in charge of the review, would not discuss details, but he said he expects it will explain many of the questions and controversy that have dogged the case since it began.

"A lot of things that went unexplained are explainable," he said Thursday.

"The only thing that the family has requested — that I have requested — from day one is to have an agency with proper authority investigate this completely — from A to Z," said David Rains, a former criminal investigator for the Louisiana state police who investigated the case for the Joost family.

Rains and family members contended that the Rangers believed from the start that it was a murder-suicide and did not conduct an extensive investigation.

Neighbors and other potential witnesses were never questioned, they said, and the lack of identifiable fingerprints on the handgun found near Joost's body only added to the mystery.

No blood was found on the revolver, even though the medical examiner said it was pressed so hard against Ms. Joost's back that it left an imprint around the wound.

Shortly before his death, Joost had expressed concerns for his safety and had contacted a burglar-alarm company about installing a system at his home. The Rangers could never firmly establish a motive for Joost's suicide.

In a recent interview, Susan Joost's mother, Evelyn Besetzny, told the Austin newspaper she doubted the truth would ever be known.

"It's been too long," she said. "It's too late."

Estrogen may cut Alzheimer's risk for women

LONDON (AP) — Women who take estrogen long after menopause appear to be at least one-third less likely than others to develop Alzheimer's disease, the most common form of dementia, according to a study published today.

"This is one more piece of evidence that this disease is not going to be an undefeatable enemy, that we will slow it down," said Dr. Steven DeKosky, a vice-chairman of America's Alzheimer's Association and director of Alzheimer's research at the University of Pittsburgh.

Some 4 million Americans suffer from Alzheimer's disease, which has no known cause or cure. It afflicts mainly the elderly, robbing them of their memories and ability to care for themselves, and eventually kills them.

The Columbia University study, described in this week's edition of The Lancet, a British medical journal, was the first to involve roughly equal numbers of elderly white, black and Hispanic women.

Hormone replacement therapy has been most commonly used by white women who are better-educated and more affluent, factors believed to put them at less risk for Alzheimer's than poorer minority women anyway. But the effects of taking estrogen proved to be the same in each ethnic group.

"That was when we knew we had something," Dr. Richard Mayeux, the main author of the report, said in a telephone interview from his office at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center.

"What is exciting is that we now have the most convincing evidence to date that estrogen may have this effect, and it warrants clinical trials."

Estrogen replacement carries risks as well as benefits. It has been shown to prevent heart disease and bone deterioration, and it may guard against colon cancer — and now Alzheimer's. But some evidence indicates it may cause a 50 percent increase in breast cancer.

The new estrogen results come a day after an encouraging report from Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, which said post-menopausal women may ward off heart disease as effectively with a commonly prescribed combination of estrogen and progestin as with straight estrogen.

Because estrogen used alone was known to carry an increased risk of uterine cancer, doctors commonly prescribed the hormone combination. They knew it eliminated the cancer risk but were uncertain whether it offered heart benefits. The Boston study, based on 16 years' research with 59,337 nurses, showed that estrogen-progestin pills protected the heart as well as estrogen alone.

The five-year Columbia study monitored 1,124 women with an average age of 74 in the Upper Manhattan neighborhoods of New York City. It found that those who had used estrogen for a decade or more were 30 percent to 40 percent less likely to develop the mind-destroying Alzheimer's disease.

Other scientists hailed the Columbia findings as an important step in growing evidence that the female hormone, production of which drops sharply after menopause, is a key weapon against Alzheimer's.

Scientists say they were originally alerted to the possible link between hormone and disease by the fact that men, who are 10 percent to 15 percent less likely to develop Alzheimer's than women, convert testosterone into estrogen into later life.

ARLINGTON (AP) — The first day of classes at Arlington Lamar High School didn't go too well for Guy Randolph, a sophomore. He says he doesn't want to go back.

More than 20 upperclassmen took him and at least five other students to a wooded area in the country after school on Wednesday.

There, they were forced to strip, and some were spray-painted and some were beaten with paddles.

The youths said they were told to take off any clothes they didn't want ruined. Some stripped to T-shirts and underwear before being splashed with a foul-smelling concoction consisting of urine, feces, beer, syrup and eggs.

Police arrived while the initiation ceremony was still going on. They said some of the upperclassmen eluded them by running through the woods.

Arlington school trustees discussed the incident at a school board meeting Thursday night.

"I have no earthly idea why anyone would do what's been done to these students," superintendent Lynn Hale said.

"We're going to take swift and appropriate action. It's the most deplorable situation I've ever been involved with," she said, adding that punishment will be harsh.

"It's going to be the most severe and appropriate action within the legal means," she said.

Letters from the principal will be hand-delivered to the parents of the students accused in the ritual, and each student could be expelled, Ms. Hale said.

Arlington police spokesman Dee Anderson said criminal charges may be filed.

"This was not guys engaging in horseplay and rough play around the locker room. This was serious hazing, very degrading and potentially dangerous as far as health matters go," Anderson said. "So we're taking it seriously and treating it as a crime."

Randolph told The Arlington Morning News he didn't realize what was happening when he and two friends accepted a ride from an upperclassmen.

He said he's considering transferring elsewhere.

"I don't really want to go back," he said. "It's not safe."

An unidentified student told Dallas television station WFAA that officials were overreacting to the situation.

"It's not like anybody got killed or anything. It's just they humiliated them so that people would know who was in charge at school," the blond, bespectacled upperclassman said.

Cloud-seeding proposal considered

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio City Council is looking to the heavens as the drought continues.

Council members received information Thursday on latest advances in cloud seeding techniques. A plane drops salt crystals into a potential raincloud, increasing the chances of raindrops forming.

There are no guarantees, but officials say it's produced some results in West Texas, where costs have been passed on to residents through their water bills.

The program would cost several million dollars.

Food unsafe in some Prague restaurants

PRAGUE, Czech Republic (AP) — The picturesque Czech capital is famed among tourists as one of Central Europe's most stunning destinations. But health officials warn dining out in Prague could be a less than lovely experience.

Restaurants and bars sprang up soon after the fall of Communism in 1989, as locals rushed to satisfy the appetites of hungry tourists.

Reports of salmonella poisoning shot up from 891 registered cases in 1989 to 3,400 last year. Figures for 1996 are expected to be even higher, Prague's public health chief, Vladimir Polanecky, said Thursday.

More than half the food tested from Prague's delicatessens and pastry shops fails to pass health standards, he said. The same holds true for some 20 percent of restaurant meals.

"The restaurant and food business has become too liberal, and the legislation is full of gaps," Polanecky said. "Anyone can run a restaurant these days, and there are too few inspectors."

Polanecky believes the actual number of food poisoning cases is even higher than government records indicate, since the public health office only learns about the worst cases.

It may take up to 36 hours before a diner begins to feel the effects of salmonella poisoning, he said.

"Most of the tourists come and spend less than three days here. Many may get sick after they leave town," he said

Tourism in the long-isolated city has blossomed into an annual $2 billion industry. The number of tourists has tripled, from 29.6 million in 1989 to 98 million last year, according to government figures based on hotel occupancy. Growth has come so fast that Prague city hall says it cannot say exactly how many restaurants and bars have opened since 1989. The number surely is in the thousands.

Czech sales inspectors, who supervise the quality of goods and services, including food stores, restaurants, bars and cafes, agreed something must be done.

"The situation is really alarming," Czech Sales Inspection spokeswoman Miloslava Fleglova said.

Recently, she said, the agency found 85 percent of a sampling of products from Prague pastry shops contained excess bacteria, although no salmonella was detected.

Inspectors also found 72 of 93 restaurants checked in the historic city to be deficient — mostly because of poor hygiene such as improperly stored food, dirty kitchens and cockroach infestation.

Reaction among restaurant and bar managers is mixed, with some arguing the concern is exaggerated.

"The situation is not so alarming," bar manager Daniela Sibalova said. "Some places are disgusting, that's true, but if people eat there, that's their problem."

Ivan Komorous, manager of the Profit restaurant just off central Wenceslas Square, said health inspections "are in the interest of all of us in business."

"There are some barbarians running restaurants these days, they just want to make easy money. They jeopardize all of us," he said.

Restaurant manager Jaroslav Pisa said inspectors and health officials "make trouble over really minor things."

"The situation outside Prague is much worse," he said. "And the foreigners don't care anyway."

New York, New Jersey tangle over ownership of Ellis Island

WASHINGTON (AP) — A court-appointed arbiter must decide if New Jersey's claim to most of Ellis Island is an unjust land grab or overdue recognition that the landmark does not belong solely in New York.

Paul Verkuil, a special master appointed by the Supreme Court, heard the two states feud over more than 160 years of history Thursday in a unique trial at the Supreme Court.

The closing arguments marked the end of the first trial ever in the high court's building.

Lawyers for the two states made their cases in an elegant, paneled conference room that featured a large fireplace, portraits of former justices and two large chandeliers.

Verkuil, a former Columbia University law professor, did not set a deadline to issue his recommendation to the Supreme Court. The court has the power to decide boundary disputes between states.

New Jersey attorneys contend that an 1834 bistate agreement proves its claim to all but the original 2.7 acres of the historic immigrant entry point.

The federal government owns the island, which was the landing point for millions of immigrants between 1892 and 1954. The immigration center is now a museum.

Some nominal tax revenues are at stake, but pride over the restored landmark largely drives the dispute.

New Jersey Assistant Attorney General Joseph Yannotti said the 1834 compact set the states' boundary in the middle of the Hudson River and the New York Bay, with each state getting the underwater area on its side.

Yannotti argued that New Jersey's Hudson County should be the home of about 24 acres of landfill added to the island in stages after 1834, because that area falls on the New Jersey side.

"New York knows now as it has known since at least 1834 that its sovereignty ends at the middle of the river," Yannotti said.

He also rejected New York's efforts during more than 20 days of testimony to establish continuous sovereignty.

New York traces its claim to before the Revolutionary War and contends that New Jersey's interest arose strongly in the last decade when it realized the island could be a tourist attraction.

"It's a pattern of opportunism," said Assistant New York Attorney General Judith Kramer. "Every time there's money to be made, they jump on the bandwagon."

New York attorneys offered documentation that island residents paid taxes to New York, recorded births and deaths in New York, and registered to vote as New Yorkers.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Katima Khan hadn't forgotten her fellow admirers halfway around the world as she walked past Elvis Presley's grave with other pilgrims on the 19th anniversary of his death.

"We have a fan club at home and we will take pictures back for the others to see," said Khan, who came from Hong Kong.

She and five other members of the Hong Kong club were among several thousand Elvis pilgrims taking part in an annual procession past Presley's grave Thursday night.

The march crowns a weeklong tribute to the king of rock 'n' roll. He died of heart disease on Aug. 16, 1977 — 19 years ago today — at Graceland, his Memphis residence.

The mourners holding candles fired from Graceland's eternal flame, marched up a winding, quarter mile driveway to Presley's grave in a small garden beside the estate's swimming pool.

It's a pity that bridge isn't a spectator sport for non-players, the way tennis is. Even for club players, tournament bridge between experts can be mystifying, the bidding often being codified and incomprehensible.

In today's deal, you and I would probably bid 1♥-2♥-4♥-Pass and miss the reasonable slam. Of course, if we didn't win 12 tricks, we would feel relieved, but we would still like to get to six hearts.

In this auction, South wasn't willing to give up on a slam, so he continued with a natural two spades. After North showed his club suit, South cue-bid the club ace. And when North could cue-bid the diamond ace, South jumped to the slam. As the two-heart response had limited his hand, North was happy to cooperate with all tries by South.

After winning the diamond lead with dummy's ace, South was faced with two losers. Seeing that he needed to find either hearts 2-2 or clubs 3-3, declarer lobbed a club to his ace, passed a club to dummy's king and ruffed a club with his heart queen. He repeated the process, volleying a heart to dummy's nine and ruffing a club with the heart king. Now came a heart to dummy's jack and a diamond discard on the club eight. Finally, South's spade king lost to West's ace. His low spade was ruffed in the dummy.

Your Birthday

Saturday, Aug. 17, 1996

Your ambitions will be larger in scope in the year ahead than they were last year. However, you will handle the bigger tasks more skillfully than you handled the smaller ones.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make sure that you can back up the statements you make today with facts. If listeners do not know what you're talking about, what you say will have no effect. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive to repay your old debts first before assuming new financial obligations. A lack of planning could put you in an uncomfortable position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Companions will have a dominating influence on your outlook today. Spend time with people who are positive and hopeful and avoid negative or petty people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're sensitive to the needs of others and you try to help when you can. However, today you might not be as compassionate as usual.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You must be selective in regard to social involvements today. Getting mixed up with the wrong people and the wrong activities could be unpleasant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your image could be more fragile than you realize today, so guard your behavior in public. Do not do anything that could leave a bad impression.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not let surrogates make decisions for you today in regard to important matters that will affect your career. No one else should speak for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You must be on your guard today. Otherwise, you might get drawn into a complicated development and you will be left with the problem of sorting it all out.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you feel compelled to take risks today, gamble on yourself and your abilities and not on someone or something about which you know little.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Responsibilities you have already postponed several times should be attended to today. Keep in mind that things will only get worse the longer you wait.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your chart indicates that you could have problems keeping your priorities in order today. In fact, you might spend too much time on trivial matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A delicate career development should not be conducted hastily today. If you cannot give it the time it deserves, postpone the matter until a later date.

Fernando will star in Mexico series

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — The New York Mets will really know they're the visiting team tonight.

Technically, the San Diego Padres are too, playing 1,000 miles from home. But when Fernando Valenzuela gazes heavenward and delivers his first pitch, 26,000 fans will roar their approval as major league baseball makes its historical, regular-season debut in Mexico.

"Ninety percent of the people, this is what they are talking about," said Elva Gonzalez as she hung around outside the ticket office at Estadio Monterrey on Thursday.

La Primera Serie — the first series — will belong to Valenzuela, at least for tonight.

Some people still refer to Valenzuela as "El Toro" — the bull — a nickname he earned in his phenomenal career with the Los Angeles Dodgers. Everyone considers him a national hero.

"It's great to see him back, finally, here," said Javier Corchado Alvarez. "It's a great tribute."

Corchado bought three tickets to tonight's game at 30 pesos apiece — a little more than $4. That's a big deal, considering the minimum wage in this industrial metropolis is 27 pesos a day.

"How wouldn't you want to see him?" Corchado said. "That's why we came, to see him."

As big a spectacle as this is, the Padres want to keep in perspective that they're in a pennant race.

DEMONSTRATION — About 70 people attended a preventative sports medicine seminar and clinic Thursday night at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. The seminar and clinic was presented by Dr. Kathleen Weaver, orthopedic surgeon. Following the seminar, people were able to try different exercises that were set up. Matt Cross, center, a fitness therapist with Cogdell Memorial Hospital demonstrates some exercises to strengthen the shoulders while Dr. Weaver's nurse, Teresa Ragland, far right, shows the ball on the wall exercise which is for the neck. Simpson seeking to turn off cameras in civil trial

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — O.J. Simpson moved Thursday to keep cameras out of his civil trial, asking for the case to be tried in the courtroom, "not on the 5 o'clock news."

Nearly a year after Simpson's acquittal on murder charges was televised around the world, his lawyer filed a motion objecting to the news media's request for video and audio coverage of the wrongful death trial scheduled for Sept. 17.

"The judiciary and this community already experienced first hand the saturation of information disseminated outside of the courtroom during the criminal trial created by media coverage," attorney Robert Baker wrote.

Baker objected not only to video cameras but also to audio coverage and still photography, saying that since the jurors probably will not be sequestered, such coverage could prejudice Simpson's rights to a fair trial.

Student kills 3 SDSU faculty members

SAN DIEGO (AP) — After nine years at San Diego State University, engineering student Frederick Martin Davidson submitted his master's thesis and was called upon to defend it before a faculty committee.

Just after the meeting began, Davidson opened fire on his faculty adviser and two other professors, shooting more than 20 rounds and even stopping once to reload, police and witnesses said.

All three men were killed in the shooting Thursday afternoon in a third-floor laboratory-classroom in a mechanical engineering building on the sprawling campus. Three students, the only other people in the room, were not injured.

Davidson, 36, put down the gun and surrendered to campus police when they arrived after hearing the gunshots, authorities said. He was booked for investigation of murder and was being held at the San Diego County Jail.

The shooting happened on the next-to-last day of summer classes at the hilltop campus 10 miles from the downtown convention center where Bob Dole accepted the Republican Party's presidential nomination.

A motive in the shooting was not immediately clear. Davidson had already co-authored several journal articles with Chen Liang, his faculty adviser, and appeared to have a promising future. McDonnell Douglas was funding the men's research.

"He did sometimes think Dr. Liang was using him as slave labor, not giving him as much credit as he deserved," said Davidson's landlord, Howard Brashers, a retired English professor.

Davidson was a loner and a "neatnik" who kept his space tidy, said Brashers, who watched police haul a computer and two brown shopping bags from Davidson's room Thursday night.

Besides Liang, a 32-year-old assistant professor of mechanical engineering, the dead were identified as: D. Preston Lowrey III, 44, associate professor of mechanical engineering; and Constantinos Lyrintzis, 36, associate professor of aerospace engineering and engineering mechanics.

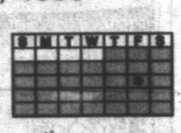

Davidson, a tall and balding Army veteran, wrote his thesis on shape memory alloy, a metal that can be twisted and will hold its shape until heated, Brashers said.

Students who milled around the concrete, four-story building after the shooting said the stress of presenting a master's thesis — usually the final hurdle before receiving a degree — can often be overwhelming.

"I can imagine the disappointment and anger if I were told I needed to go back and do some more work on something I may have worked several years on," said John Lovegren, a graduate student in electrical engineering.

Tuition at state schools increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — If it seems like college tuition is going through the roof — even at public schools — it is.

Tuition at four-year, public schools increased nearly three times as fast as household income and more than three times the inflation rate over 14 years, according to a General Accounting Office report released Thursday.

Tuition jumped 234 percent from the 1980-81 through the 1994-95 school years, compared with a 82 percent increase in median household income and a 74 percent increase in the Consumer Price Index, the report said.

The report blamed the increase on rising expenditures by schools and an increasing reliance on tuition, as state support has declined.

State support for colleges dropped 14 percent, the report said. As a result, tuition accounted for 23 percent of schools' revenue in 1994-95, up from 16 percent in 1980-81.

At the same time, school spending increased by 121 percent, primarily due to faculty salaries, which rose 97 percent, and other instructional costs.

"Some of the cost growth, according to existing research, was the result of schools' competition with one another and with industry for high-quality scholars and researchers," the report said.

Plus, average salaries have increased as faculties have grown older, with more people reaching the higher-paying level of full professor.

Overeater Conquers Compulsion By Taking One Step at a Time

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1996 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I first heard in an Overeaters Anonymous meeting that compulsive overeating is a "disease," I said, "Yeah, really!" not believing a word of it. But after years of fad diets and 50 pounds of yo-yo weight losses and gains, it didn't take a rocket scientist to conclude that I am different from my noncompulsive (and usually thinner) friends. Unlike average people who get hungry, eat a meal and are then satisfied, I remain hungry most of the time.

My problem isn't lack of willpower. What I lack is a reflex, a signal that says, "Full! Enough!" I didn't choose to have this condition. Who in her right mind would choose to be hungry all the time?

Words cannot describe my relief when I understood that I had a physical problem. I wasted years feeling guilty and ashamed because of my compulsive eating. For me, the solution has three parts because what began 40 years ago as a physical condition has created emotional and spiritual baggage that I carry with me today.

Almost everyone has heard of the Twelve Steps of the "Anonymous" programs, including: Admit your problem; believe you can be helped; ask for help; clean up your act; make amends; connect to a power greater than yourself; and help others. These steps form a decent life plan for me. They are helping me turn my life around and reconnect with myself, my spouse, my work and my body.

It does not matter that I did not choose to be this way. I am this way. And what I do about it is entirely up to me. After one month, following a generous plan of eating and working my program with plenty of support from other OA members, I'm one clothing size smaller. Better yet, I'm not taking pills or herbs, using a fad diet, or doing anything bizarre that might cause short-term weight loss. I'm doing nothing that I can't continue for the rest of my life!

I am profoundly grateful that I found OA, and I'm indebted to the countless OA members who have given me the benefit of their strength and experience.

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your eloquent letter is sure to inspire others who suffer from compulsive eating and are unaware that help is available. Overeaters Anonymous has more than 10,000 groups in 50 countries. Local chapters can be found in the telephone directory.

There are no dues or fees, and no membership lists are kept. There are no requirements for membership except the desire to stop eating compulsively. You will be welcomed with open arms by women and men who are fighting the same battle as you. There is no shaming, no weighing and no embarrassment, only a fellowship of compassionate people with a common problem.

There are chapters in almost every city, but if you have difficulty finding one near you, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Overeaters Anonymous World Service Office, P.O. Box 44020, Rio Rancho, N.M. 87174-4020.

DEAR READERS: The art of conversation lies in listening. Any fool can talk; it takes a superior person to listen. Bottom line: Talk less and listen more.

DEAR READERS: If you would like your letter published, please include your name, area code and telephone number.

THE SPITEFUL KING!

KING NAHASH OF THE AMMONITES, SHORTLY AFTER SAUL HAD BEEN MADE KING OVER ISRAEL, CAME UP AND BESIEGED THE TOWN OF JABESH-GILEAD. THE MEN OF JABESH, WANTING NO WAR, OFFERED TO SURRENDER THE TOWN TO NAHASH AND SERVE THIS AMMONITE KING! (I SAM.11:1) OBVIOUSLY, NAHASH WAS A SPITEFUL MAN, FOR HE WOULD NOT ACCEPT THIS PROPOSAL UNLESS EVERY MAN IN TOWN CONSENTED TO LOSE HIS RIGHT EYE! PROBABLY KING NAHASH WANTED TO INSULT THE ISRAELITES, IN THIS MANNER, BECAUSE IN THE DAYS OF MOSES THE AMMONITES WERE FORBIDDEN BY LAW TO EVER ENTER INTO THE CONGREGATION OF THE LORD! THE ELDERS OF JABESH RECEIVED A WEEK'S RESPITE IN WHICH TO SEEK HELP. WHEN THE MESSENGERS OF THE TOWN REACHED GIBEAH, WHERE KING SAUL LIVED, THE PEOPLE WERE HORRIFIED AT THE NEWS! KING SAUL WAS SO ANGERED THAT HE KILLED A YOKE OF OXEN AND SENT PIECES OF THE SLAIN ANIMALS THROUGHOUT ISRAEL WITH THE MESSAGE THAT ANY MAN WHO DID NOT JOIN HIM TO FIGHT KING NAHASH WOULD LOSE HIS OWN OXEN IN THE SAME WAY! (I SAM.11:7) NATURALLY THE RESPONSE WAS TREMENDOUS--THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND MEN ANSWERED THE CALL! SO, SPITEFUL KING NAHASH DIDN'T HAVE HIS WAY WITH THE MEN OF JABESH-GILEAD, FOR KING SAUL AND THE ARMY OF ISRAELITES ROUNDLY DEFEATED THE AMMONITES!

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

Dole begins 81-day scramble for votes

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bob Dole charges from the Republican convention into an 81-day scramble for votes, scorching President Clinton's administration as a corps of elitists "who never grew up, never did anything real." Dole's first stops: four states carried by Clinton four years ago.

Stand-ins in the form of three prominent Republican governors today were tearing across the nation's most populous state, California, in hopes of putting a dent in Clinton's 20-point lead in the polls here.

As they set out on the one-day, eight-city barnstorming tour, California Gov. Pete Wilson belittled Clinton's more than 20 visits to the state since he became president as "tarmac stops and photo ops." Such visits, he said, "are no match for the power of Bob Dole's ideas." With Wilson on the trip are Michigan Gov. John Engler and South Carolina Gov. David Beasley.

Presidential adviser George Stephanopoulos sought to deflect Dole's "never grew up" accusation today saying, "We're determined not to make age an issue in this campaign."

"The real victors in this convention were Pat Robertson and Pat Buchanan," Stephanopoulos said this morning on NBC's "Today." The two conservative leaders "controlled the platform, they control Republican policy, no matter what you heard from the podium," he added.

Dole's tax-cut proposals also drew a prompt rebuke from Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"It's a remarkable turnaround. In 35 years, if you were a Democrat and tried to spend money without paying for it, you had to face Bob Dole; and if you were a Republican and tried to cut taxes without paying for it, you had to face Bob Dole. ... He would have been the first person to criticize the very plan he's now the champion of," Dodd said on ABC's Good Morning America."

After a send-off rally, the march across the electoral map begins in the traditionally Republican Rocky Mountain West with a rally for Dole and running mate Jack Kemp in Denver. Then, on to Springfield, Ill., and Kemp's hometown of Buffalo, N.Y., on Saturday, and Pittsburgh, Pa., on Sunday.

Kevorkian witnesses 35th assisted suicide

DETROIT (AP) — A 42-year-old woman who was said to be suffering from a painful nerve disease committed suicide with the help of Dr. Jack Kevorkian, the 35th death he has acknowledged attending since 1990.

Judith Curren, a registered nurse and mother of two from Pembroke, Mass., died Thursday. Her suicide was the seventh Kevorkian has assisted since his most recent acquittal on assisted suicide charges in May.

Kevorkian, along with his associate Dr. Georges Reding and the woman's husband, psychiatrist Franklin Curren, were present at her death, said Kevorkian's lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger. He did not say how or where she died.

Kevorkian and Reding took the body to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital at 11:07 p.m., said Dr. Mitchell Garfield, an emergency room physician.

"Some of our personnel helped remove her from a car and put her in a wheelchair," Garfield said.

The woman was pronounced dead and no effort was made to revive her, he said.

Fieger said Curren was suffering from a painful nerve disease, but it wasn't immediately clear what that ailment was.

The Oakland Press, quoting unidentified hospital officials, said Kevorkian indicated Curren was suffering from chronic fatigue syndrome and immune deficiency syndrome.

GOP Convention gets Texans' mixed reviews

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Texas Republicans are excited about Jack Kemp and pleased with the strongly conservative GOP platform. Some aren't as thrilled about a string of convention speakers who didn't represent their anti-abortion views.

While Texas delegates to the Republican National Convention said they're heading home from their party's national convention ready to work to elect Bob Dole, some are unhappy about the GOP face that convention organizers showed the nation.

"What we're hearing from the podium is not anything like what is written in the party platform," anti-abortion activist Bill Price of Dallas, alternate delegate to the convention, said Thursday.

"We've got a seat at the table now, and there's a lot of people that don't like that," said Price, who heads Texans United for Life. "They like us working out picking cotton all day, but they don't want us to come up to the big house."

Delegate Larry White of Houston had a similar view.

"I think we are making a mistake by failing to articulate our pro-life position," he said. "I wish the message were complete. I wish we'd stop apologizing and being intimidated and say what we believe."

Others dismissed such complaints.
