Odd Bits Salvaged
By The Editor

We of Texas have come up for another first! Even though we're not in the biggest state, now, perhaps we can lay claim to being the most unusual.

Last Saturday, voters of Texas elected their first Republican to the U. S. Senate. Most of the political big-wigs didn't believe it could happen—but it did!

Sen. Thruston B. Morton, retiring Republican national chairman, was quoted in an Associated Press article as saying the victory in Texas "not only signals a new era in Texas politics but a rebirth of republicanism in the solid South." It seems to have given the G. O. P. a new lease on life and something to look forward to in 1963.

And Harry Truman revealed that he still has his fiery tongue. In a noon-day newscast last Monday we heard him quoted as saying he saw no difference between the two men. "Blakley ran like a Republican, and he got what he deserved," they quoted Harry.

Knox County stayed in the Democratic column by a pretty good majority. Sunday's papers gave our county's votes at 608 for Blakley and 234 for Tower.

An interesting sidelight on the election is this: Blakley carried Tower's home county, and John whipped Bill in his own home county. If they were depending on the home folks to put them over they missed their guess.

Tower took a few days off to rest and recuperate at Possum Kingdom Lake after his victory was in sight. We can understand that. We didn't campaign like he did, but we took off for our "shack on the lake" pretty soon after voting in the election!

This June is a memorable month for one Munday couple and their children. It marks the close of the formal education for the four Smith children, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Smith. Most of us know them as "Pop" or "Smitty" and Grace, whose last two children complete their college education this month.

Their oldest Gwynne Lee, received her bachelor of arts degree from Baylor University, where she majored in education and journalism, several years ago. She's married to Tom Parker, who is vice president of the First-Taylor National Bank in Taylor, Texas, where they have lived for several years.

Lyndol, the oldest boy, graduated from Baylor University with B. S. and M. S. degrees, with honor, then from Baylor Dental School. After two years of service with Uncle Sam, Lyndol now has a successful dental practice in Amarillo.

Wayne graduated from McMurry College in Abilene with honors, and will graduate from Southwestern Medical School in Dallas on Thursday, June 8. He will begin his internship in Little Rock, Ark., after graduation. He is married to Julie Massey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel W. Massey of Munday.

Waymon's graduation comes up on Saturday, June 3, when he receives his bachelor of science degree in pharmacy from the University of Texas. He will be married to Brenda Gass of Munday on June 18, and then he plans to be working beside "Pop" in the Rexall Drug Store here in Munday.

It seems only yesterday to us when the Smith children used to ride their horse down the alley by our home, or would pick up the grass mowings from our lawn to feed the pony. Now they've all completed four to six years in college and are taking their places in a fast-moving world.

As we extend congratulations to the children for their accomplishments, we think congratulations are also in order for "Pop" and Grace, who have given all their offspring a formal college education.

As one of the children put it: "Somehow I think our degrees should grace their home."

Mr. Phineas Campbell of Austin is spending this week with Mrs. J. C. Borden.

Wheatley Bill Is Ruled Legal

Will Wilson, attorney general, held last Friday at Austin that the bill by Rep. J. C. Wheatley to require a dissolution election on the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority is constitutional.

Wheatley said the ruling came too late to consider doing anything about the bill, which remained in the House Conservation and Reclamation Committee awaiting the attorney general's ruling.

The opinion also answered a question raised in a letter from an "interested party" who suggested that the bill was an unconstitutional local law. Since the Authority was created by local law, Wilson held that an amendment to the law would be valid, too.

The ruling was requested by the House committee several weeks ago, after a hotly contested hearing featuring speakers from Haskell, Munday, Goree and Rule, the four cities which make up the Authority.

Davis Lake Is Open To Public

Jack Idol, manager of the League-Davis Estate, announces that the Davis Lake is now open to the public, for persons desiring to fish and boat, having opened on Thursday, June 1.

This large lake, constructed some two years ago, has 500 surface acres and 4,500 acre feet. It has been well stocked with fish and should prove an exceptional fishing spot.

Mr. Idol said the hours will be from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., and admission prices will be $11 for season passes ($10 plus tax) and daily passes $1.10 per car.

Although there are two entrances to the lake on the Knox City and Benjamin highway, Idol said admission will be granted on one road only—that is the first cattle guard north of the Brazos River bridge, between Benjamin and Knox City, on Highway 283 about four miles south of Benjamin.

Although the lake should prove to be an ideal recreational spot, it was constructed primarily for irrigation on the League-Davis Estate land.

Knox County Vegetables

The Knox County vegetable farmers are now in the process of harvesting onions and will start harvest of their potatoes in the next two weeks. Vegetable farmers have been very quality minded and have run extensive tests to determine the best varieties and planting dates as well as the best fertilizer to apply to the soil to produce a superior quality product.

Sweet corn has proven to be a quality producing vegetable for the Knox county farmers and yields sufficient for them to plant. This year there are several farmers planting sweet corn and early reports on the progress of this crop are favorable at the present time.

AND THEN HE SCREAMED

Most people pay their federal income taxes via the withholding system. The employer keeps back a certain percentage of the paycheck and turns it over to the government.

Many workers don't have any accurate idea of just how much is deducted, so some concerns have adopted novel ways of driving the lesson home.

One, for instance, set up two adjoining pay windows. At the first each employee was given his full check, without deductions. But he had to go at once to the second window and shell out his tax for that pay period.

Another used a different means of achieving the same purpose. An employee whose pay was $100 a week was given the full amount, without any deductions, for three weeks. But at the end of the fourth week the pay envelope held a paltry $23.60. When he screamed in protest the tax story was explained to him. His four-week bill was $76.40, and the company had taken it all in one big bite, instead of four smaller ones.

A publication of the Florida Power and Light Company, after telling of these two devices to make employees more tax conscious, observes: "Employees who suddenly have been jolted by the size of the tax bite, usually develop a less complacent viewpoint. They see the connection between high federal spending and the lump of tax money chopped from their paychecks."

The country needs more of that kind of jolting of the taxpayers.

WHAT IS "TEMPORARY"?

Webster defines the word "temporary" as meaning, "Lasting for a time only; existing or continuing for a limited time; not permanent; ephemeral; transitory."

But that definition, official as it is, does not seem to apply to the "temporary" increases in the federal tax on gasoline.

The latest of these supposedly "temporary" boosts became law about a year ago. It was for one cent a gallon, bringing the total federal tax to four cents. The cent increase was due to expire June 30.

Maybe it will—and maybe it won't. It is proposed to extend it again—no doubt on another "temporary" basis. Then, to add insult to injury, it is also proposed that an addition half-cent a gallon tax be tacked on. This, too, would be "temporary."

Well, if these efforts succeed, Webster should start defining "temporary," as it applies to gasoline taxation, as being a synonym for "permanent." The irony is that state and federal taxes combined on gasoline—which is an absolutely essential commodity—now average almost 50 percent of the price of the fuel before tax. Out and out luxuries don't carry a tax anywhere near as heavy as that. The motorist is being made the goat—and it's high time he started bleating at the top of his lungs.

Chips From The Carpenter's Workbench

By JAMES HALLMARK

Four baptisms that concern man are mentioned in God's word. In about 64 A.D. the apostle Paul informed the Ephesians that there is "one baptism" (Eph. 4:4-5). Today only one of these four baptisms remains valid.

Three of these baptisms are mentioned in Matt. 3:11. "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance; but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear; he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire." This is the statement of the forerunner of Christ, John the Baptist. John's baptism is no longer valid today (Acts 19:3-5). Only two instances of the baptism of the Holy Spirit are recorded in God's word: the apostles on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2); and the household of Cornelius (Acts 10). It is likely that Paul received the baptism of the Holy Spirit, but it is not recorded. The two instances that are recorded serve to fulfill the prophecy of Joel. "And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon ALL FLESH . . ." (Acts 2:17). "All flesh" here refers to the Jews and Gentiles. The Holy Spirit baptism was always a promise . . . never a command. God is the administrator . . . not man.

In giving his great commission, Jesus makes it clear which baptism is to last throughout this age. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, of and the Holy Ghost." (Matt. 28:19). This is the "one baptism" which Paul mentioned. Man is to be the administrator. This "one baptism" is to be immersion in water (Acts 8:36-39) "for the remission of sins" (Acts 2:38). The baptism of fire is yet future (Rev. 21:8).

Dollars And Sense

By Mrs. S. C. Kinsey, Knox County H. D. Agent

Does the shoe fit? These questions might help you in buying shoes.

Does shape of shoe conform to shape of your toes with the great toe lying straight and the toe cap not touching toes?

In shoes with closed toes, is the shoe one-half to three-fourths inch longer than the end of the toes?

Is the shoe flexible at the base of the toes?

Does the widest part of the ball joint correspond to the widest part of the shoe?

Does the arch of the shoe conform to the arch of the foot without exerting pressure against it?

Is fit from ball of foot to heel smooth and firm without pressure or gaping? Shoe upper should not cut into fleshy part of the foot.

Does heel section provide firm and comfortable support to the foot? Heels should not pinch, slip or allow the foot to slide forward or from side to side.

Do you have both feet measured each time you buy? Judge correct length and width while standing with entire weight on both feet. Try on both shoes. Walk around.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Admits Watching Television All Day May Be Sorta Boring, But So Is Plowing

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek discusses the television situation this week, without any noticeable effect.

Dear editor:

I was reading a newspaper last night while my wife was watching television, you can say this for television, it's easier to read while it's going on than while your wife is. I mean, whatever faults television has, it sure cuts down on the conversation; at any rate, what I was reading was an article by the new chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, the outfit that's supposed to supervise the airways.

According to Chairman Minow, television has got to get better if it's to stay on the air.

He said if you want to find out how bad television is, "sit down in front of your set when your station comes on in the morning and stay there until it signs off that night." He said, "you'd see a procession of junk, violence, silliness, and commercials, with only a few things you'll enjoy, and most of all, he added, 'boredom.'"

Now I'm no authority on television, but I'm not sure watching the thing fourteen hours in a stretch and complaining because you came out bored, is any real test. I have a notion if Chairman Minow will get on my tractor, glue himself to the seat, bend his head over, and watch the rows fourteen hours a day while he goes up one and down another, he'll get off extremely bored, not to mention other things.

As for violence on television, I'll admit it's bad, but saying it'll have to be eliminated if TV is to stay on the air is like saying crime stories will have to be eliminated from newspapers if they're to stay in business. It's like saying violence will have to be eliminated from history books if they're to be read. It's like saying Shakespeare would have been an enduring success if he had cut out all them suicides and stabbings and swordplay.

Understand, I'm not in favor of violence. For one thing, it takes more energy than I'm interested in spending, but on television, when an outlaw gets shot, even the kids know it's only acting, the bullets are fakes and the same characters will get shot again next week, but when the Federal Communications Commission will run into trouble is when it tries to convince the kids only fake bullets are used in war. Television can continue its violence and stay on the air, but can man continue his and stay on the earth? I could give you the answer, but excuse me, Wagon Train is coming on, just as soon as the newscast about the violence in the Congo goes off.

Yours faithfully,

J. A.

Quail Cover Food Helps Hold Birds

Cover and food for blue quail in North Texas is being provided on the farm of Joe B. Nicewarner of Morton, who has planned a real wildlife project on his land.

His work is described in an article in the current issue of TEXAS GAME AND FISH magazine. Edward E. Thomas, a U. S. Department of Agriculture worker, tells of the improvements made on Nicewarner's farm located in predominately clean-tilled, irrigated farm land.

Nicewarner enjoys hunting quail himself and has attempted to provide cover and food as nearly like a virgin area as possible.

He hauls in truckloads of tree limbs. They were paced criss-cross on a stick of posts to provide brush covers. They give protection from both snow and predators.

Livestock is excluded from the area. Weed seed are planted to provide for ample food. Old tires are split to provide water catchers.

He recommends other landowners take similar steps to provide both cover and feed for birds.

New Variety of Castorbean Released

A new improved castorbean adapted for production in irrigated areas such as the High Plains of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and New Mexico has been released cooperatively by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The new variety is named Hale and is a dwarf-intermediate which yields well and has potential as a male parent in hybrid combinations because its hybrid offspring also yield well. Hale is resistant to bacterial leaf spot and Alternaria leaf spot.

A limited amount of Hale seed is available to seed producers for planting this year but seed for farmers will not be available until 1962.

Hale has a better root system than many other castorbean varieties. However, if it is grown under conditions of too much nitrogen and excessive soil moisture, its stems tend to be weak. Weak stems, coupled with heavy fruit set and high winds before harvest, can cause lodging.

Hale matures about one week later than Baker-296, the leading commercial variety on the High Plains, and about one week earlier than Dawn, a 1957 release. Hale produced as much as 2,325 pounds of beans per acre in 1960 on-the-farm trials on the High Plains of Texas. In experimental plots in the same area, Hale averaged 2,479 pounds per acre, compared with 2,057 pounds per acre for Baker-296 and 2,189 for Dawn.

Plants are well adapted to mechanical harvesting because the first fruiting spike is well above ground level and fruiting branches are erect. Seed capsules of Hale are non-shattering and are easily removed from the dry plants after frost by mechanical harvesters.

Seed weight, size, and quality are acceptable for planting and for crushing. Seed hulling and cleaning are easy, and nearly all foreign material separates from the seed. Oil content averages 51 percent, one or two percent more than in available dwarf-intermediate varieties.

Hale has performed well in irrigation tests in the Southern Great Plains region of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and New Mexico. It has some drought tolerance but is not generally recommended for dryland planting because satisfactory yields cannot be obtained consistently. And because of possible mold damage to the seed capsules, it is not recommended for areas of high rainfall.

WATCH YOUR STEP

This is snake season. Be careful when you get into the woods or along creek and river banks. This is the warning of Capt. E. M. Sprott, director of law enforcement of the Game and Fish Commission. The poisonous snakes of Texas are the rattler, moccasin, copperhead and coral.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lain, Sharon and Danny, visited Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lain in Abilene last Sunday.
