Rackets Group Picks 4 For Questioning

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Rackets Committee picked out two businessmen and two union officials today for questioning about reports they attended a Mafia crime syndicate meeting in upstate New York last fall.

According to the committee the four were among the 60 hoodlums, gamblers and other shady characters flushed by police from the country home of Joseph Mario Barbara near Alapachin, N.Y., Nov. 14.

Martin F. Pera, a federal narcotics agent, told the committee Monday he was convinced the Alapachin underworld convention was tied in with the Mafia, an international crime ring which grew out of the ancient Sicilian "Black Hand" society.

Pera said the Mafia, known mainly as a drug-running group, is making a "concerted effort" to extend its influence into the labor-management field.

One of the Alapachin "delegates" scheduled for questioning today was Joseph Profaci of Brooklyn, N.Y., an olive oil importer described by committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy as a "very important" witness.

Pera said Profaci, identified as "an old-time well established gangster" with a police record in Italy and the United States, attended the first known Mafia meeting in this country in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1928.

Open Letter To Alaskans

By United Press International
An Open Letter to Alaskans
Howdy folks:

Read something in today's paper that said you people want to have more land to meander on than us folks down here. Well now, us Texans don't mind that at all. Fact is, pardners (and that's what we must call you since you're almost as good as us now) we welcome you to the Union, but let's get things straight.

First of all, we're right proud to have Alaska as a new suburb of the Texas Panhandle.

You know, some people across our nation seem to think the only thing between the Panhandle and Alaska is a barbed-wire fence. But it's just a no-count fence that we're a going to have to take down so's you all can step across the line and shake with us Texans.

Now the second thing we want to settle concerns politics. Under the U.S. Constitution, you folks will get two senators and as many representatives as your population merits. Now, you understand that we're not givin' you any warnings or such, but we want you to know that if you folks get too bossy why we'll send a whole posse of politicians up to Washington to set things right.

You see, under the treaty which let the Union affiliate with the Republic of Texas, our state has the right to divide itself into five states with equal representation anytime we feel like. The way ah figures it, that would give us 10 senators and a passle of representatives.

But, welcome just the same, and make sure you don't bring that cold air across the fence to the Panhandle.

Daniel Opens Campaign For Re-Election

By United Press International

Gov. Price Daniel formally opened his campaign for re-election Monday night with a pledge to fight forced integration by every legal means.

Daniel predicted victory in the first primary, but one of his opponents, W. Lee O'Daniel, said in a radio speech that Daniel was "wrecking" the insurance industry and sought to link him with a "vicious depression brought on by the money-changers."

Daniel, at an open-air rally in Austin, blasted federal aid to education and said he would continue his "fight for the principles, progress, and good government to which Texans of today are entitled."

Auto Body Plant Shut Down Again

By JIM KLOCKENKEMPER
UPI Automotive Editor

DETROIT (UPI)—A five-day-old dispute again shut down the Plymouth body and assembly plants here, idling 2,700 first shift workers.

Some 1,500 workers at the Mack Avenue body plant were sent home at the beginning of the shift at 6:30 a.m. when workers in the trim department refused to perform a job they said had been speeded up.

At 6:48 a.m. 1,200 workers at the Plymouth assembly plant on Lunch Road were sent home because of a lack of bodies.

Chrysler Corp. sent home 5,400 workers on two shifts at the Plymouth body and assembly plants Monday. Another 5,600 workers were sent home Friday.

Chrysler said 64,000 man hours have been lost by the refusal of the trim department employees to perform work assignments.

But United Auto Workers Local 212 charged the job in question has been speeded up, with a crew of 18 workers cut to nine. Hubert Emerick, aide to Local 212 President Earle Bruce, said four straight crews have failed to per-

Four More Kidnaped

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press International

HAVANA (UPI)—Cuban rebels kidnaped four, and perhaps seven more Americans today, sending a wave of apprehension through the nearly 100 American families in eastern Cuba.

The new kidnappings, brought to 48 or 51 the number of Americans and Canadians seized in bold nighttime raids by rebel Fidel Castro's men in eastern Oriente Province.

Castro's rebels already were known to be holding 42 Americans and three Canadians. Hope for the prisoners' immediate release were dim.

A band of eight rebels swooped down on the United Fruit Co. sugar and agriculture school at Guaro about midnight.

They seized A. F. Smith of New Hampshire, the agriculture superintendent; J. P. Stevens of Oklahoma, the assistant superintendent; and two district superintendents, A. F. Sparks of Indiana and J. G. Ford of South Carolina.

An official at the installation said the rebels also cut telephone poles in the area.

The other three kidnappings could not be confirmed immediately.

The three Americans whose kidnappings had not yet been confirmed were identified in reports from Santiago as executives of the Ermita sugar mill which is about 25 miles northwest of the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo.

American negotiators appeared to be making no progress toward winning quick freedom for the prisoners despite U.S. government guarantees, which were demanded by the rebels, that Naval Base facilities would be denied the Cuban air force.

BULLETIN

Edward Harold Slaver, 35-year-old Berger truck driver, was killed instantly this morning four and one-half miles south of Canadian on state highway 60.

Pampa Highway patrolmen, who investigated the accident, said Slaver was going north when his car hit a guard rail, veered back across the highway and plunged into a gulley killing him instantly. His body was taken to Stickley Funeral Home in Canadian.

Negotiations began today between Studebaker-Packard and the UAW in South Bend, Ind. The S-P contract with the UAW expires at 12:01 a.m. Sept. 1.

The UAW and American Motors Corp. have agreed to extend their contract indefinitely with 10 days' notice by either party. The union and S-P could do the same. But the Big Three firms have refused to grant extensions to allow the UAW to improve its bargaining position.

This Cop Not Playing Favorites

ticket giver Jack Muller has gone the full circle from the state's chief executive right back to himself.

The Chicago detective, who delights in tickling high officials, hung two tickets on Gov. Stratton's limousine Monday night.

Then he gave himself a ticket for making a wrong turn.

Muller was off duty when he spotted the governor's car parked in a no parking zone in front of a Loop hotel.

"I knew what it was as soon as I saw it," he said. "As soon as I could find a legitimate parking place for my car I returned to hang the tickets."

Muller then left the scene and in doing so made a wrong turn.

A passerby yelled at Muller: "You give everyone else a ticket but yourself."

Muller, who plays no favorites, promptly stopped his car, noticed the no turn sign and gave himself a $10 ticket.

Hawaii Statehood Backers Seek Immediate Action

HONOLULU (UPI)—Supporters of statehood for Hawaii set out today to get immediate action in Congress for the Hawaii bill in hopes they could ride in on the upsurge created by Alaska's acceptance.

Nucleus of the renewed campaign for Hawaii was a letter sent off today to editors of hundreds of mainland newspapers of more than 3,000 circulation, asking for a rejuvenated editorial support for Hawaii.

Lorin P. Thurston, statehood commission chairman, called a meeting of his group for Thursday to decide in detail how best to take advantage of Alaska's triumph.

Whether the "go slow" advice of several congressional leaders would affect the campaign will be settled at the meeting.

Bill Is Triumph For Ike Administration

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Alaska emerged onto the threshold of statehood today to a sunburst of predictions it will open a vast new frontier for expansion of America's population and wealth.

Delirious statehood supporters, their 42-year fight nearly over, could hardly believe it when the Senate passed the statehood bill Monday night by an overwhelming 64-20 vote.

Unprecedented celebrations broke out in Alaska where a river was dyed gold, bonfires roared skyward and a beauty queen astride a fire ladder pinned a 49th star on a 40-by-60 foot American flag.

Administration sources said President Eisenhower is certain to sign the bill, a major triumph for one of the top items on his legislative agenda. The House previously passed the bill and the Senate vote sent it to the White House.

To Vote In Fall
The territory still must approve statehood in a referendum this fall. But this was labelled a "sure thing" by statehood backers. A proclamation by the President after the referendum will formally complete the statehood process, probably in December.

Proposals are already pouring in for designs for the new flag which will have 49 stars. A commission appointed either by the President or Congress probably will be set up to choose the design. The new flag would go into official use July 4, 1959.

Alaska's prospective statehood was seen as vastly enhancing Hawaii's chances of entering the Union as the 50th state, although probably not before next year at the earliest.

Rep. Leo W. O'Brien (D-N.Y.), a leading backer of the Alaskan bill, told United Press International he was certain the House Interior Committee of which he is a member will approve a Hawaiian statehood bill a week from Wednesday.

Rigged In Size
Alaska, more than twice the size of Texas, would be by far the nation's biggest state—in fact its 588,400 square miles equal one-fifth the size of the continental United States. In population, however, it would be the smallest state. Its 215,000 persons fall well below Nevada, now lowest with 256,000.

It would also plunk a state right on Russia's doorstep. Alaska's little Diomed Island is only 24 miles from Big Diomed owned by Russia, from whom the United States bought Alaska for $2,000,000 90 years ago.

Lebanese Rebel Thrust Stymied

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Government forces beat back a rebel thrust toward Beirut's International Airport today. There were rebel-inspired reports that new compromise efforts were under way to end the seven-week-old revolt.

Pro-Western government forces firing mortars, rifles and automatic weapons and spearheaded by armored cars regained four miles of territory lost Monday to rebel Druse tribesmen of chieftain Kamal Jumblatt.

They retook the village of Ain Nakh in house-to-house fighting. The fight regained for the government strategic heights overlooking the Beirut airport and for the moment stymied rebel attempts to take Chamlane, just outside the Beirut city limits.

The government Monday sent rocket-firing jet planes to beat back the first rebel thrust toward Chamlane.

United Press International Correspondent Larry Collins watched today's fighting from a yellow stone blockhouse and reported a force of 500 pro-government paratroopers and gendarmes slugging it out with the rebel tribesmen.

Beirut itself was generally quiet. Only one bomb exploded during the night. There were no casualties when the explosion came at a road intersection shortly after the nighttime curfew.

In skirmishes Monday the Lebanese army cut the rebel supply route to Tripoli in an effort to starve the insurgents out of the big port city.

A report from former Premier Saad Salam, who some time acts as rebel spokesman, said the insurgents had cut the road between Beirut and Damascus at a point 12 miles from Beirut. Military sources here denied the report.

On the political front Jumblatt told UPI Correspondent Willbur L. Landrey in his Chouf Mountain stronghold that new compromise efforts are underway to try to end the seven-week revolt.

Jumblatt would give no details, but informed sources in Beirut said the plan involved setting up a neutral provisional government without President Camille Chamoun to prepare for new parliamentary elections in six or eight months when passions have cooled.

Jumblatt also said the rebels would accept foreign "volunteers" from Russia and Red China if the West intervenes. He added, "We hope the Soviet Union will send us arms in order to teach you the West in the future not to intervene."

Commission OK's Bid; To Take More

Pampa's City Commissioners, in their meeting today, accepted the low bid of $1,650.15, submitted by the Purley Motor Co. of Pampa, for a new one-half ton pickup for the Water and Sewer Department.

July 22, at 10 a.m., was set by the commissioners today as the date they will open bids for repair work on the Cuyler Street bridge, located by the City Park. Two large dips, one just north of the bridge and one south, make the bridge somewhat of a hazard to cars and the commissioners are seeking to correct the situation.

The commission also voted to take $15,000 out of the water and sewer fund and transfer it to the general fund.

Ordinance 501, which will allow a tunnel to be built in the alley behind the First National Bank building, was passed on the second reading by the commissioners today. The bank is seeking to build new drive-in facilities across the alley from its present location.

Texas Woman Fed Arsenic To Husband

TYLER, Tex. (UPI)—Wealthy, red-haired Mrs. Evie Denney, 65, was held today on charges of feeding her second husband small doses of arsenic for four years.

Authorities said she may have used the same method to kill her first husband and maid.

Her husband Charles C. Denney, was hospitalized in Longview last month. Deputy Sheriff Bobby Dodd said Denney's heart has enlarged to twice its normal size from the arsenic doses and any excitement would kill him.

Texas Ranger Jim Ray, meanwhile, was en route to Austin with parts of the bodies of wealthy oilman home, use, Mrs. Denney's first husband, who died in 1946, and her maid, Roberta Choice, who died in 1953. Dodd said Luse's body was in a steel vault and the liver and kidneys were removed Monday. But the Negro maid's body, he said, "wasn't in such good shape" and he didn't think "they got what they wanted."

The remains were to be examined today by the Department of Public Safety for traces of arsenic poisoning.

Dodd said the woman was accused of feeding Denney small doses of arsenic over a period of four years. The doses, Dodd said, would not be enough to kill immediately but would cause the heart to swell enormously and "the first excitement they had, why, out they went."

Dodd said traces of poison could not be detected without an autopsy.

Mrs. Denney was jailed Monday minus her dental plates and wearing a flowered dress. She has flaming dyed red hair.

She said she did not know how Denney got poisoned and claimed she once had more arsenic in her body than Luse did.

The woman said she met Denney when she and Luse were operating a tavern in Kilgore. She said he would come in with friends and "stay drunk all the time."

He said while officers were searching for her, she went to the cemetery where a crew was digging up the body of her husband and told them "that if they found anything, she didn't do it."

Sheriff Ross Turner said Denney told him he married Mrs. Denney in 1953, but they separated last June. He said she had threatened his life several times.

Mrs. Denney accused her husband of shooting at her on occasion.

When she was jailed, she had more than $200 in cash, five diamond rings, a check on a New York bank for $50, a $10.50 check on some stockholdings and a wristwatch she said was worth $1,250.

Officers started working on the case a month ago when Denney's stepfather and mother became suspicious and asked Sheriff Turner to check into it.

Denney who came out of the hospital last week to initiate divorce proceedings against his wife, is almost completely bald, a possible symptom of arsenic poisoning, authorities said.

They refused to say why Mrs. Denney, who is a medium-sized woman with hair dyed bright red, would want to kill her maid.

"We'll have to wait for the report from Austin," he said.

Chief Deputy Ab Elliott offered her a lie detector test but she refused to take one.

Bond Set On Driving Charge

A bond of $1,500 was set in Justice of the Peace D. R. Henry's office this morning for Morice Roberts, 338 Murphy, on a charge of second offense driving while intoxicated.

Roberts was charged with the same offense here in 1947.

CoC Group Sets Meet Tomorrow

A subcommittee of the Merchants Activities Committee, Pampa Chamber of Commerce, will hold an important meeting tomorrow.

This is the subcommittee, on Christmas decorations. The group will meet with officials of the Southwestern Public Service Company and City of Pampa to see what can be done about hanging overhead decorations prior to Christmas.

The meeting will take place in the Chamber of Commerce offices at 10 a.m. tomorrow. Chamber Manager E. O. Wedgworth said today that when the committee has solved the problem of installation it will be in a position to purchase the ornaments. The new street lights, according to Wedgworth, pose a problem which was not present before.

City Manager John Koonis; Monroe Moore, city engineer; Gordon Lyons, general manager of the Southwestern Public Service Company; and W. T. Seits, service engineer, will have a part in the planning.

Hunt is scheduled to complete work on his master's degree in mid-July. He will graduate in absentia from the NTSC School of Music in August. Back in Pampa, Hunt expects to take his A Cappella Choir into rehearsal, readying it for the Dallas State Fair.

Graduate work has been a feature of Hunt's summers for the past two years. With the Summer Opera Workshop, he has sung the lead tenor roles in "The Impresario" by Mozart, Puccini's "La Boheme" and the opera "Down in the Valley."

Receiving his bachelor of music degree in June, 1954, from Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth, Hunt taught choral music in the Killen Public School System before coming to Pampa in 1956.

Combine 1 tbsp. finely chopped onion (or finely cut chives), 1 tsp. white vinegar, 1 tsp. bottled horseradish, 1 tsp. salt, dash of pepper and paprika, 1/2 cup finely chopped celery and 1/4 cup thin slices of small radishes. Fold into cheese-gelatin mixture. Pour into 1-qt. mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens. 6 servings. Serve with Sealtest Skim Milk.

2. MELON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Arrange salad greens on plate. Mount cottage cheese in center of greens. Arrange 6 melon balls, alternating colors, around edge of cheese mound. Top cheese with a melon ball. Cut strawberry in thin strips. Extend a strip from each melon ball on edge to melon ball on top of cheese. 1 serving. Serve with a tall glass of frosty-cold Sealtest Chocolate Milk.

Theory Of Evolution Century Old

(Editors Note: One hundred years ago today the theory of evolution first burst on the scientific world. This year scientists of both East and West will mark the centennial as a great milestone in the advance of human knowledge. In the following dispatch Darwin's grandson, himself a famous theoretical physicist, discusses the theory and warns that overpopulation may drive the world back to the "ruthless processes of natural selection.")

By SIR CHARLES DARWIN
Written for UPI

CAMBRIDGE, Eng. (UPI) — It was on the night of July 1, 1858, that the theory of evolution by natural selection was first made known. This theory, now dominates all biological thinking and its centenary is to be honored by an international congress of zoologists which will be held in London this year in mid-July.

The theory was contained in two short papers given to the Linnean Society by my grandfather Charles Darwin, and Alfred Russell Wallace who had independently arrived at the same conclusions.

There were two central points in the new theory. One was that the whole animal and vegetable kingdoms had evolved gradually by modification from their ancestors. This theory was not new. It had been put forward by several previous thinkers, but the weakness of their theories had been that they could give no reasonable explanation why and how the changes had come about, and in 1858 most leading biologists believed in the fixity of species of animals and plants.

The other main point of the new theory was that it provided a mechanism to explain the changes. This was natural selection, the intense competition of all living things in the struggle for life which was continually wiping out the less efficient members of any kind of animal and leaving the kind for those better equipped to survive.

It was this part of the theory that could explain how such complicated mechanisms as the human eye, or such elaborate instincts as those of the bees in a hive, could have been gradually developed.

Conclusions Are Independent
The two authors had come to their conclusions quite independently of one another. Darwin had started his theory more than 20 years before, while serving as a naturalist on the survey ship H.M.S. Beagle, and for those 20 years he had been patiently and quietly working it out. This required him to consider almost everything known to natural history.

It was not enough to look at the favorable things, but it was even more necessary to consider the unfavorable ones, because if anybody could cite one single case which could not possibly have come about by an accumulation of small variations, it would have killed the whole theory. In those 20 years he patiently gathered a great deal of knowledge. It seems likely that for some time more he would have gone on doing so before writing it all up, when he received a quite unexpected letter. This was from Wallace who had been working at the natural history of Malaya and Borneo, who wrote to him asking him to communicate a paper for publication which was to all intents exactly the same theory as the one he had been working on himself.

This situation was met by their publishing their papers together with an introduction by Charles Lyell, the leading geologist of the time, explaining what had happened.

After this each of them was to be free to publish for himself and Darwin at once got to work to write up what he called an abstract of a much greater work he was planning. Though he only called it an abstract, it was in fact that famous book "The Origin of the Species." It came out in November 1859, and it at once attracted world-wide interest to the subject.

It has been said by some people that such a great change in the world's thinking could not really have come about so suddenly and that the theory must have been in the air waiting to be accepted. It is easy to feel this when a new theory has become established, but I recently heard of a fact that rather points the other way.

Summarizes Yearly Events
At the end of every year the president of the Linnean Society used to make an address summarizing what had happened to the society during the past year, and at the end of 1858 the president recorded that they had had a normal successful year unmarked by any outstanding events at all!

This was the start of the theory, but after "The Origin of the Species" appeared things became very different. Soon afterwards the whole subject became an acute subject of controversy with most part from laymen and from attacks on the theory for the most part from laymen and from the churches, while most scientists soon grew into accepting it.

As time went on, with the increased number of people now considering the subject, new points or difficulty began to emerge. Nobody really doubted the fact of inheritance but nobody knew what its laws were, and all suggestions about them seemed to be inadequate. But about the start of this century the matter was revolutionized by what may be described as the discovery of a discovery. Forty years earlier Mendel had discovered a beautifully simple law governing biological inheritance, but though he did publish it, the discovery was for long overlooked. After that, when it had been rediscovered, it took a good many years to get it systematized, but it explained the basic fact that was needed, the fact that each new variation of character would not, so to speak, be immediately smothered out by mixing it back with the characters of the unvaried members of the race.

It took many years to clear up even the outline of these matters, and still longer, with the help of mathematics, to be sure they were adequate to explain the detailed characteristics of the evolution of life. But now nobody seriously doubts the validity of the whole theory, and the adequacy of Mendel's law to explain at any rate nearly everything about inheritance.

Question Is Natural
It is natural to ask then what are the prospects for the future? Nobody can ever give a clear answer to this sort of question. From the nature of things it concerns matters we do not yet know, in the meanwhile there is plenty of important work going on, and it is likely to go on for a long time. Among other matters it concerns such things as inheritance among elementary forms of life like bacteria, and also difficult questions connected with the qualities of the complicated chemical substances in animals and plants, and the inheritance of these substances.

Finally there is the question of how the theory directly affects the human race now. Some countries have attained such a high degree of prosperity that to all intents they have managed to get rid of the struggle for life. The less efficient among their populations are no longer prevented from multiplying in numbers by processes like those that would be acting in wild nature.

Natural selection has been eliminated for the time being. Man has immediately responded to this easing of his conditions by increasing in numbers, and those increases hold a most formidable threat for the not very distant future.

Thus quite conservative estimates say there will be twice as many people on the world in 50 years as there are now, and nobody has any idea what is to stop the increases from going on even after that.

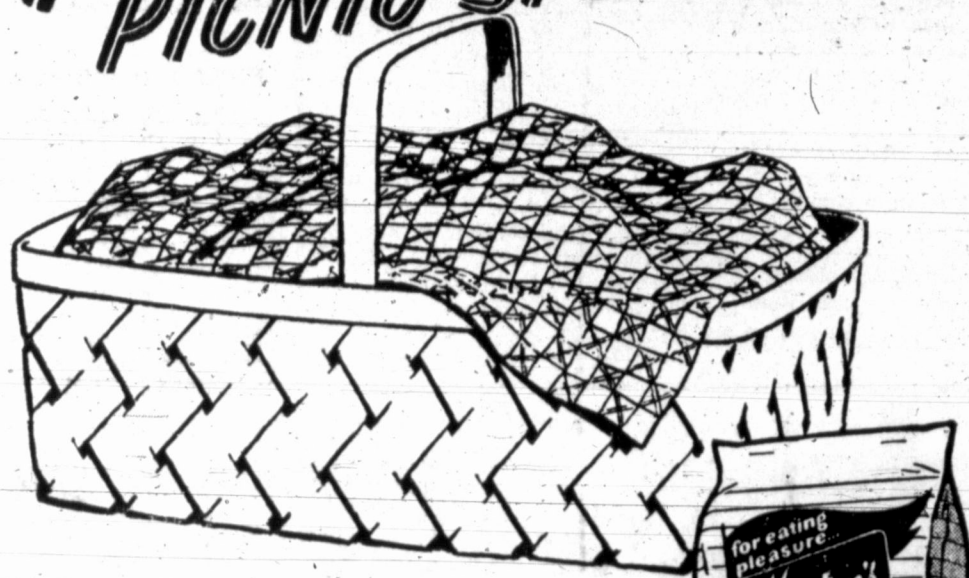

This is by far the most important political problem of the near future? Nobody knows any satisfactory answer, but if one is not found soon, our over-populated world is almost certain to relapse into hard conditions of life like those that used to prevail only a few centuries ago, when it was those that used to prevail only the ruthless processes of natural selection that controlled the numbers of mankind.

DEAR ABBY...

Miss Smith Feted At Bride's Coffee

Prior to her marriage on Saturday evening in the First Methodist Church to Blair E. Wilkins, Miss Rochelle Rhea Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irl M. Smith, 1008 Somerville, was honored guest at a Coffee given by Mrs. James McCune and her daughter, Mrs. W. K. Mackey in Mrs. McCune's home, 811 N. Frost. Mrs. Judy Bore, of Los Alamos, N.M., one of the bridesmaids, presided, at the guest registrar.

A corsage of white split carnations was presented to the honoree. Mrs. Smith was presented with a pink split carnation corsage.

An arrangement of yellow pom-poms in a milk glass bowl on a brown linen cloth formed the focal point for the serving of miniature coffee rolls, date loaf, spiced melon balls, Bing cherries and white grapes.

Miss Carol Rankin presided at the coffee service.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Judy Bore, Mrs. Paul Wilkins and Miss Claudia Wilkins, both of San Antonio.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
After lunch Ken's mother opened a new jar of lollipops and offered him his choice. He picked a red one. Then, as his mother recapped the jar, he changed his mind and demanded another choice.

His mother did not say, "No." You chose the red lollipop and must learn to take the consequences of your decisions.

Instead she reopened the jar handed it to her 5-year-old and said, "Choose again, Ken. You don't have to keep a lollipop you don't want."

It took less than a minute for Ken to make a final and satisfied decision on the original red lollipop.

He trusted his decision the second time because he'd lost fear of restriction by its consequences. With the freedom to change his mind, he was able to make it. Permitted to alter his decision, he was released from fear of making the wrong one—and could move on his real, original wish for the cherry-flavored candy.

If we want children who can learn to trust their own decisions, it is unwise to require them to stick to the decisions too soon.

To be able to make decisions without anxiety, we must trust our power to stand up to the results of bad ones instead of suffering helplessly under them. It takes a much time to accumulate this self-trust.

If we make premature demands that Ken accept the disappointments involved in decisions he wishes he hadn't made, he may learn to avoid disappointments by resisting any decision at all.

Some parents think that giving younger children freedom to change their minds makes them capricious and unreliable.

Women's Age And Beauty Secrets Are Her Own Business from Age 2 To 72

NEA Beauty Editor

If a teen-ager is worried about her appearance, chances are very good that it's one of two things: too much poundage or poor skin. Both plague many girls and make them feel less than lovely.

This feeling, in turn, can do damage. It can make itself shown to other people so that they really stay away. The answer lies in doing something if either of these problems is yours.

Overweight can be safely banished in one way only: by going on a diet. There's no other way to get rid of those ugly pounds.

So you might as well develop character and a sense of self-disciplining while you're in your teens. It's easiest then to get into the firm and dependable habits that stand by you for a lifetime.

As for the poor skin, clear it up by keeping it absolutely clean and eliminating sweets, starches and fats from your diet. Drink plenty of water each day and eat lots of leafy green vegetables.

If you wear high heels all day long, switch to perfectly flat slippers when you reach home at night. This gives your leg muscles a chance to stretch and adjust.

But it does something else. It helps to strengthen weak arches and thus may be of aid in eliminating those unpleasant cramps in the feet that many women have at night when they're trying to sleep. Changing heel heights often is a good idea, anyway. If you wear high heels one day, try to wear a medium or low heel the next.

And always make sure that your shoes are fresh. Never wear the same shoes two days in a row. Give both your feet and the shoes a rest. The shoes will last far longer and you'll feel better as a result.

A woman's age is her own affair. That won't keep people who should know better from asking her how old she is.

But the fact that they ask her doesn't mean that she's under any obligation to tell them the truth. She may answer anything she pleases, from "2 to 72."

In this day of really wonderful cosmetics, massage machines, hair tints and pretty clothes, a woman is able to keep her age her own secret far longer. She has every right to make use of these new aids as they're places at her disposal.

And if her onlookers are puzzled because the years go by and she doesn't seem to change, that's not her worry.

Greenland supplies almost all of the world's cryolite, used in making glass, aluminum and enamelware.

Book Reviewed At WSCS Luncheon

LEFORS — "Try Giving Yourself Away" was the title of the book reviewed by Mrs. Wesley Daniel for the Women's Society of Christian Service in the Methodist Church following a luncheon held on Tuesday, in fellowship hall.

Special guests for the luncheon were Rev. and Mrs. Jonah Parker and five boys and girls from the Methodist colored church in Pampa. One of the boys, Freddie Morgan, reported on a leadership training school he attended in Amarillo, which is sponsored by WSCS. A duet and two solos were presented by the girls accompanied by Freddie at the piano.

Rev. Wesley Daniel of the Lefors Church was also guest.

The serving table for the salad luncheon was centered with a scene depicting the "Highway of Life," made by Mrs. Jess Stubbfield using various scriptures on highway signs leading to the Bible, flanked on either side by candles representing the light.

Following the luncheon, before the book review, the group sang "Rock of My Soul" and "Whole World" led by Mmes. A. W. Shoffit and Bill Teel.

Members present were Mmes. A. W. Shoffit, Bill Teel, Jay Buswell, C. C. Millins, Wesley Daniel, Bernard Johnson, Bill McRae, W. C. Breining, Helen Lette, Earl Atkinson, L. R. Spence, Jerry Tickle, Dan Johnson, Raymond Barnes, Phil Glick, and Jess Stubbfield.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a letter in your column stating the pros and cons of "hipping" waitresses. You seemed to think waitresses should be tipped generously because their pay was inadequate. This should be the problem of the management, not the public. Furthermore, I happen to know that many waitresses choose that kind of work. NOT because they need the money, but because they want to meet the public, and believe me, I am putting it delicately.

ONE WHO KNOWS
Dear One: Women who simply want to "meet the public" can either walk the streets or hang out in saloons, but a woman who is willing to stand in her feet eight hours a day, carrying heavy trays and smile at hungry (and oftentimes rude) people is entitled to as big a tip as the diner can afford.

DEAR ABBY: Now that summer is here I am faced with the same old problem. I am quite thin and I don't look bad in clothes but when I wear a bathing suit I look like a skeleton. My doctor has given me iron, vitamins and tonics but I can't put on an ounce. Everywhere you see diets for girls who are too fat (they don't know how lucky they are) but nowhere is there any help for us girls who are too thin. I am 28, love to swim, but am ready to give up.

TOO THIN
Dear Too: Stick with your doctor in the hope that he'll come up with something effective. In the meantime, go to your friendly neighborhood beachwear dealer. Find yourself a suit that features built-in self-confidence and covers everything.

DEAR ABBY: How stupid can a guy be? Just picked up your column and found out a serviceman can get his high school diploma while he is serving time in the U.S. ARMED FORCES. I am one of those characters who quit school in my Junior Year and have regretted it ever since. Believe me, I am talking to the C. O. on this Post and am going to make up for lost time. Thanks, Pal.

C. P. G.: USAF
Dear C. P. G.: The Armed Forces realize that a man needs an education in order to advance. It's yours for the asking. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: In 1953 I married a widow with a living husband. I realized that I had made a mistake but am not the kind to back out of a bargain so I tried to make the best of it. I am 74 years old and don't expect to live forever anyway. This woman is 56 and has children all over the United States and she visits them all. She has lived with me a total of 55 days since our marriage. I am opposed to divorce but do you think it is too late to get an annulment?

MARRIED AND LONESOME
Dear Married: Your "wife" has not given you the companionship you married for. See your lawyer about legal separations and annulments — you've earned your eligibility.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that makes me so scared I could die. I've never kissed a boy before on my front porch because the porch light is always on and everyone can see us. I know I will have to kiss this boy on my next date and I want to, but it scares me to think that everyone will be watching us. Should I tell him if he plans on kissing me goodnight to kiss me in the car?
SCARED
Dear Scared: Invite him to step inside the door to say goodnight.

National Parks Set For Invasion By 63 Million

By JERRY BENNETT
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If you want to spend your summer vacation gazing at scenery in a national park, you had better wait until one is established on the moon.

Chances are that the greatest natural wonders you'll be able to see on earth this summer are people—millions of people.

The U.S. National Parks and Forests are getting ready for the biggest invasion of rubbernecking, camera-toting tourists in their history.

Park Service officials of the U.S. Interior Department expect that at least 63,500,000 men, women and children will feed the bears, light camp fires and get cricks in their necks watching geysers before the year has ended.

Agriculture Department experts who run the national forests, won't be surprised if more than 66 million tourists converge on the wooded territory under their jurisdiction.

Now Many Wear FALSE TEETH With Little Worry

Eat, talk, laugh or sneeze without fear of insecure false teeth dropping, slipping or wobbling. FASTEETH holds plates firmer and more comfortably. This pleasant powder has no gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Doesn't cause nausea. It's alkaline (non-acid). Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Both agencies find this anticipated tourist boom both startling and disturbing. So many people are suddenly getting the urge to return to nature that government expansion programs can't move fast enough to take care of them.

Two years ago, the Interior Department started a building program designed to get the parks ready for an estimated 80 million tourists in 1966. Now, however, officials believe that park attendance will reach that figure by 1964.

That's why campers will probably find the clatter of hammers and saws as natural to outdoors living as the roar of a waterfall or the whisper of a mountain breeze. The parks' present and future recreation needs will cause construction crews to stay on the job throughout the summer months, officials explain.

The situation faces by the national forests is even more serious. The approximately 66 million attendance record they expect this year is slightly higher than that originally estimated for 1962.

Actually, though, the booming crowds will be the only drawback to a pleasant back-to-nature vacation. The expansion programs have put the parks and forests in better condition than ever before. Since it started a year ago, Operation Outdoors has equipped the forests with 200 new camp and picnic grounds and expanded 700 others. The five-year program

OUTDOOR LIVING

There'll be many an American family living it up out of doors this summer, with fishing and camping trips slated for the vacation weeks and over the week ends too. This family is enjoying the handy facilities of beautiful Yosemite National Park in California.

calls for doubling existing camp and picnicking facilities to about 83,500 family units. By the end of June some 1,500 projects will be either completed or under construction in the Parks' Operation 66. These include new roads, parkways, camp grounds, amphitheaters and parking areas. This year's Yellowstone Park tourists can enjoy a new cabin development capable of housing 1,650 guests. It's scheduled for completion by July 1 along with a new cafeteria, general store and service station.

The Grand Canyon has 96 new cabin units capable of holding 400 guests. And on June 30 Yosemite National Park will open a new 270 guest development complete with restaurant, service center and souvenir shop.

Park officials warn, however, that these improvements have made no change in the disposition of the bears.

A Look Ahead At Future Headlines

News Outlook
By United Press International
United Press International correspondents around the world look ahead at the news that will make headlines.

Atomic Conference
The on-again-off-again nuclear test talks at Geneva appear to be on again with the Soviets at the conference table. The West scored a victory forcing the Russians to go to Geneva, but it doesn't hold out much hope for real progress at the meeting. Western diplomats do not believe the Russians are ready to negotiate a serious agreement on suspension of nuclear tests. They say the Soviets decided to show up for the conference because a boycott would make them look bad. Expectations are that instead they will try to sabotage the talks when they get underway tomorrow.

Gomulka
Western experts believe Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev really turned the heat on to get Polish Communist Party Leader Wladyslaw Gomulka to open up against Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito and executed Hungarian freedom Premier Imre Nagy Saturday. His speech apparently was a compromise by Gomulka to hang on to his own position and the softened brand of Communism he has brought to Poland. Russia still has thousands of troops in Poland, but a question remains as to whether the Polish people will accept Gomulka's new bow to apparent pressure from the Kremlin. The situation could lead to trouble.

New trouble may be brewing in the revolutionary atmosphere of Algeria. Reports reaching Paris indicate the rightist rebels who provoked the May 18th explosion that eventually helped bring Gen.

Charles de Gaulle to power again are unhappy. This time, however, they feel bitterness toward De Gaulle for filling his cabinet and associating with members of the former government they helped bring down. Some observers predict a showdown in the next two weeks that may decide the fate of France and De Gaulle.

Cyprus
Top-level talks on Cyprus, both publicly and behind the scenes, are a certainty. Britain has shown little inclination to keep the controversial island an "internal problem" for the colonial office. Greece and Turkey both rejected the British compromise plan for a partnership arrangement on the island, but the negotiations were neither harsh nor bitter. The inside word is both apparently are ready to take the British plan as a starting point for further negotiations.

Rules For Living Past The Fourth

CHICAGO — In the last five years 2,451 persons were killed in accidents over Fourth of July holidays, according to the National Safety Council.

Traffic claimed 1,978 of the victims. Drowning another 853. Fireworks killed only seven — a far cry from the toll in 1903 when Fourth of July fireworks took 446 lives.

"The striking reduction in fireworks deaths proves accidents can be prevented once the nation understands and wants to do something about the problem," said Ned H. Dearborn, president of the Council. "Spectacular reductions in the traffic toll could also be made if the people were equally aroused."

6:00-Evening News
6:15-Jim's Junction

51st Year THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS TUESDAY, JULY 1, 1958 7

In an analysis of holiday traffic fatalities, for example, the Council found that about half the drivers had been drinking. And speed was a factor in more than 7 out of 10 accidents. These are factors that can be controlled by individual drivers.

Social drinkers are a greater menace than commonly believed, the analysis showed. Even two cocktails are dangerous, the Council said, if you drive within three hours after drinking them. The average person needs at least three hours to eliminate the alcohol in two cocktails.

With 45 million vehicles and drivers jamming the nation's highways during the three-day Fourth of July weekend, normal accident risks will be multiplied many times, the Council said.

To help offset the extra traffic

1. Don't drive after drinking — even two cocktails.
2. Cut your usual cruising speed 10 miles an hour, especially at night.
3. Double check before passing or changing lanes.
4. Don't follow the car ahead too closely.
5. Don't compete in traffic. Let the other driver go first.

Four US Netters Left In Tourney

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—MacKay, sole U. S. survivor in men's singles, and three women bid for semi-finals in the Wimbledon championships today but only favorite among them, defending women's queen Althea Gibson, Miss Gibson, top-seeded in defense of her title, faced a dangerous rival in fifth-seeded Shirley Bloomer, ace of Britain's victorious Wightman Cup team, but was a solid choice to win.

MacKay, seeded No. 8 in men's play, found himself an underdog against third-seeded Mervyn Rose, the Australian southpaw. In women's singles, unseeded Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif., was up against sixth-seeded Susi Kormoczi of Hungary, and 40-year-old Margaret Osborne Du Pont of Wilmington, Del., who won the 1947 championship here but no longer plays on the regular tennis circuit, faced British Wightman Cupper Angela Mortimer.

MacKay was left as the only U. S. player in men's singles when 44-year-old Gandnar Mulloy of Denver, Colo., and 34-year-old Patty Bugde of Los Angeles were beaten in fourth round matches Monday. Patty, the 1950 champion, was ahead after three sets but then became weary and lost to seventh-seeded Sven Davidson of Sweden, 6-4, 2-6, 4-6, 9-7, 6-4. Mulloy never was in contention against Rose, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1. Mrs. Du Pont won her fourth-round match in women's singles Monday 6-3, 6-2, over Fay Muller of Australia.

Out Of The Past

Whatever Happened To... Doris Hart

Doris Hart, a tall Floridian, ran up an impressive string of tennis victories the world over, though when she was a youngster there was a time when her doctors wondered if she'd ever walk properly again—let alone run. But as a result of a childhood leg injury, Doris turned to tennis to strengthen her legs and a great career began. She won one Wimbledon singles crown, won twice at Forest Hills in the U.S. championships and added numerous other important titles in doubles and mixed doubles. Doris never could cover the court as well as other girls but she developed solid ground strokes to cover her deficiency. After winning at Forest Hills for the second time in 1955, she turned professional.

Whatever happened to Doris Hart? She now is a top teaching pro, currently attached to the Bathing and Tennis Club of Sea Bright, N. J., in the summer and the Flamingo Hotel at Miami Beach, Fla., in the winter.

FOR THE MARBLES—Mike Edens, 7, learned a few things about marbles when the Los Angeles Dodgers visited Cincinnati recently. Mike didn't know that the infielder got the nickname, Pee Wee because he was a marbles champion in his youth, nor did he know that his real name was Harlod Henry Reese. But the diamond veteran and the kid had one thing in common—marbles.

Does 'Ghost' Follow Joey's?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fight where they may, the ghost of "robbery" seems destined to haunt any bouts between Joey Giambra and Joey Giardello.

Giambra, who was on the brink of fistic oblivion, rallied Monday night to win a 10-round split decision over his favored opponent and take the "rubber" match between them.

But the outcome was greeted with boos from the 4,631 who came to see the non-televized bout at the Cow Palace. And reporters who were polled came out for Giardello, 7-1, while the United Press International and Associated Press called it a draw.

Judge Jack Silver voted for Giambra, 97-95, and referee Jack Downey 96-94 for the winner while Judge Eddie James scored it for Giardello, 99-94.

The stage-struck Giambra weighed 156½ to Giardello's 161. It was Philadelphia, Joey's first loss in 17 bouts. His last defeat had been at the hands of Charlie Cotton in 1956. Giambra and Giardello took turns outpointing each other in a pair of bouts in 1952 at Brooklyn and Buffalo. The cry of robbery followed each one. It was raised again with vigor Monday night. "I don't know how Giambra could have won," Giardello steamed afterward. "I figure I won a few early rounds by two points. He won a couple by one point near the end."

Giardello had gone into the bout a 12-5 favorite and ranked number two among the middleweight contenders.

He Hopes To Blotch 'Em

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—A rising young artist will be in town next week for two diverse exhibitions on canvas.

Come Tuesday, Harwood Crawford, a commercial artist who does brilliantly plumaged birds in oils for a exhibit company, will put on an exhibit of his work.

Come Friday, this same Harwood Crawford—known to aficionados of the many art as Mickey Crawford—will climb through the ropes at Madison Square Garden in an attempt to daub the features of one Gaspar Ortega.

Harwood—or "Mickey"—as you'd better call him unless you can run like Bobby Morrow hopes that both exhibitions are a success. The first would merely provide aesthetic satisfaction, even though the viewers will be members of the cauliflower set.

Aiming For Championship

The second show is the big one, however, because Mickey has ideas of becoming the first world boxing champion produced by the city of Saginaw, Mich., since Kid Lavigne ruled the lightweight ranks in the gay '30's.

Crawford, a 24-year-old boxer, has come fast in recent months to reach fifth ranking among the welterweights. Son of George Crawford, a former flyweight, his career jelled rapidly after long periods of exasperation. This explains why, at 24, he has had only 24 bouts in a business where they start young and fade early.

He was tempted at one stage to give up the ring and concentrate on his job with a commercial art firm in Detroit. Then came the night when Art Greenwald, the head man of the firm, went to the

Welters Show Most Changes

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—The welterweight division, where Virgil Akins won the vacant title by defeating Vince Martinez, showed the most change in the National Boxing Assn. ratings of the top ten contenders for the month of June.

Isaac Logart moved up from third to first place among the welterweights, while Martinez, after his June 6 loss to Akins in St. Louis, remained in second place.

All other rated fighters in the division moved up one notch, except Billy Lynch, who remained 10th, while Art Aragon slipped in to ninth place. Akins was named boxer of the month for his win.

The heavyweight ranks also showed some changes, as Harold Carter worked himself into fifth place as a result of his win over Willi Besmanoff after a 17-month layoff due to Army service.

Alex Miteff, Nino Valdez, Cleveland Williams and Mike DeJohn dropped in the heavyweight list due to Carter's entry, and Pat McMurtury lost his top ten rating.

Hearts and heard that a good young battler named Mickey Crawford also was a commercial artist.

Investigation disclosed that Mickey Crawford, the fighter, was the same Harwood Crawford who worked in Greenwald's own firm.

Greenwald, the artist, subsequently became Greenwald the manager.

Crawford, the artist, became Mickey the fighter.

It has been a happy combination. Mickey has won four in a row this year to run his record to 22 wins in 24 bouts against two losses. His victims include such as Paddy De Marco, Wallace (Bud) Smith, Chico Vejar and Gil Turner.

Ortega, his next opponent, has a stiff edge in experience. The Tom Rose Oldsmobile stopped Miller Hood Pharmacy, 174, Monday night behind the effective hurling of Jerry Roberts.

The Tom Rose team had nicked GK Trucking Inc. in a close Saturday match, 5-4, thanks to a grand slam homer off the bat of Max Taylor and the steady pitching of Gary Johnson.

Mexican Indian, who ranks fourth among the welters, has won 48 of 88 bouts against 11 losses and one draw. He has split in two bouts this year.

"It'll be a big week," says Crawford. "Imagine, two exhibitions in one week."

Boots Home Six Winners

STANTON, Del. (UP)—Eldon Nelson, 31-year-old part-time Angus cattle breeder who once quit riding race horses to spend more time on the farm, put on one of racing's greatest performances at Delaware Park Monday when he booted home six straight winners.

The feat was by far the most impressive of the year and ranked among the best ever in all the years of racing in this country.

Nelson, who first learned to ride at a dirt track in Ponca City, Okla., only a few miles from his birthplace at Glenrose, began his streak in the third race. He had seven mounts for the day and his only miss was in the second race.

Inflation Won't Happen? It Is!

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Government last midnight racked up its 25th treasury deficit in 29 years, which means the purchasing power of the dollar in your pocket may shrink some more. The process is known as creeping inflation.

Twenty-nine years ago Monday the people of the United States were about to learn that their federal government had been frugally administered through another year. The people were neither impressed nor much interested in those upcoming statistics of the fiscal year 1929.

Low taxes, treasury surpluses and substantial reductions of the national debt were what the voters long had demanded and received from their public servants. The thought that the government could and would thereafter over the years spend itself toward economic trouble in a scarcely interrupted series of treasury deficits—this thought would have been incredible in 1929.

The 25 deficit years of the past would have been as unthinkable back there in the '20s as is incredible now the thought that enough more of the same may be in the works to do serious harm to the American way of life.

Maybe it can't happen here. But it might! More precisely, it is beginning to happen now. Creeping! there will not, however, be much public interest in the splatter of 1958 fiscal year-end figures from the treasury. Fiscal 1958 ended at midnight Monday. The citizens will be playing a cruel practical joke on themselves, however, if they continue to refuse to be interested in what takes place as this fiscal year ends and in the fiscal years to come.

There has been, of course, another round of inflationary deficit spending, the treasury going about 3 billion dollars in the red. The national debt has swollen about 260 billion dollars in 29 years. Perhaps another little 3 billion won't do us any harm. A deficit of 8 to 10 billion dollars is likely in the fiscal year which begins Tuesday. That will be fiscal '59.

The government has had to borrow despite collection of taxes in the multi-billions of dollars. For the total sum of those taxes there is no numerical comparison in this world, only in the astronomical statistics of outer space.

This is dull stuff. Not so dull is the explosive fact that such deficit spending could—and may—rattle U.S. economy unless it is checked. Health of the U.S. economy is judged considerably in terms of the dollar which, as of now, is worth about 50 cents compared to 1939 purchasing power.

The U.S. government is a going concern right enough, but going where? On the record of the past 29 years it is going toward trouble if it continues to live beyond its income. The citizen's trouble will be with his pocket money and his cash in the bank.

Consider a citizen who put a dollar in the bank back there in 1939 and withdrew it today. This citizen lives, for example, in Washington, D.C., and needs the dollar for trolley fare. The 1939 buck he banked would buy then 10 rides to and from work. It would buy him only five rides today. The same goes for baby shoes, rent or whatever. Perhaps the citizen now is earning twice his 1939 salary. Lucky guy!

Maybe it can't happen here. It has been happening, however, for nearly 30 years. Inflation is a slow though deadly poison.

WAVING SPREE

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — A startled district judge got quick reaction Monday when he told Neal Eubanks and Robert Adams he could pass sentence immediately if they waived rights to a 10-day waiting period on pleas of guilty to charges of tampering with pay telephones. The puzzled Eubanks and Adams looked to defense attorney George Cochran for advice. "Waive," said Cochran. Both held up their right hands and began waving at Judge Willis McGregor. He gave each a two-year probation sentence when he regained his composure.

Ed Sullivan's Sunday TV Bit Was A 'Wonderful Show'

Television In Review
By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — I can't think of any recent show, which so clearly defined the nature of the television beast as the TV debut Sunday night of the Moiseyev Dance Company.

Ed Sullivan devoted his full CBS-TV hour to the Russian troupe and I must say at the start it was an hour shot through with wonderful exuberance. It was a little like having a whirlwind in the living room. It was an hour full of swirl and whoop and good humor and stylish corn—I mean that in the best sense. I don't see how anyone could possibly fault the company.

But—ah, there he goes with his but again — it also was a terribly frustrating show. And before I go on, I would like to say the frustration had nothing to do with the dancers who performed magnificently. And it had nothing to do with Sullivan, who should be busting with pride today for his service in showcasing the troupe for the millions who never would have had a chance to see them.

TV Not Suited

What it has to do with is the nature of the TV medium: Television is simply not suited to the dance. Dancing exists in space—the spatial relationships between dancer and dancer and between the dancer and the space around him. Without that feeling of space, you get a flat imitation of what's going on. It's a little like trying to judge the magnificence of a Gothic cathedral from a series of tiny snapshots.

Television is a medium of containment. It compresses. It squeezes. The Moiseyev dancers burst outward. They exploded. As a result the camera was hard put to even keep them on its canvas.

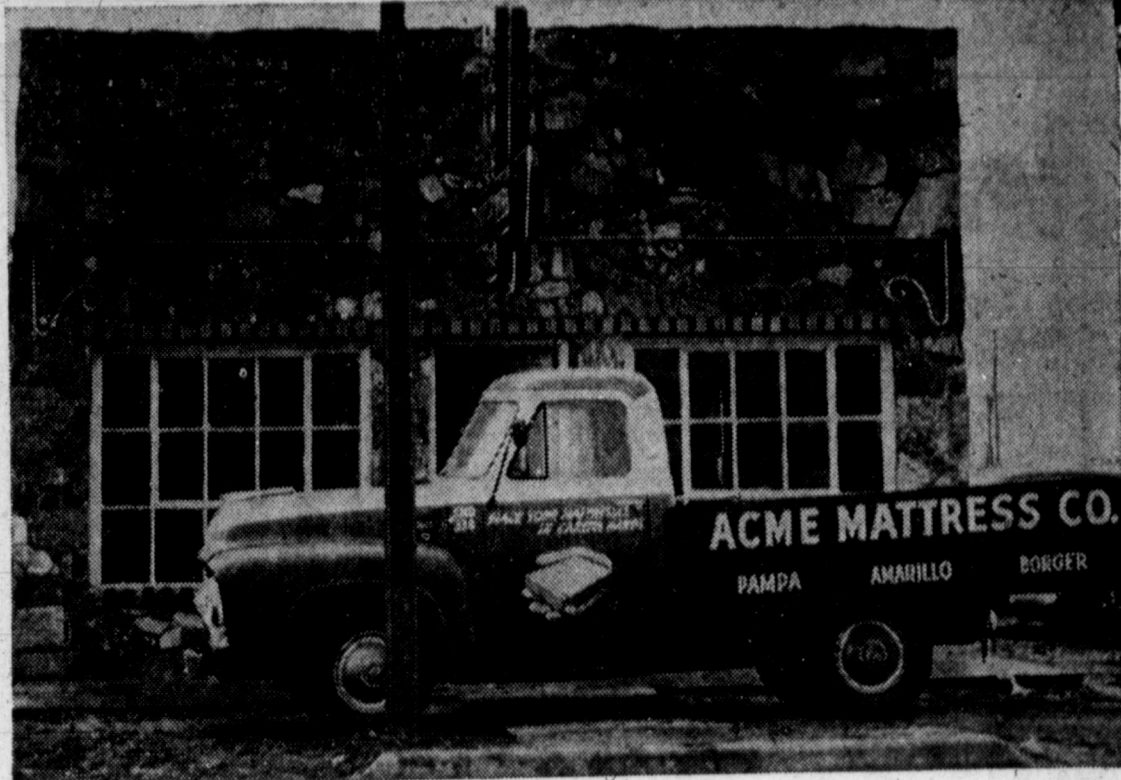

It was not the fault of the cameras. When a camera tried a long shot, the dancing was not too well defined. When it tried medium shots of individual dancers, the rest of the troupe was lost. When it tried closeups of feet, torsos were snipped out. When it tried overhead shots, feet were blotted.

I don't think this means that TV merely means that unless a dance show is specifically designed to meet TV's limitations, it will have to settle for partially satisfactory results.

Contribution To TV

My minor carping aside, Sunday night's Sullivan show was an enormous contribution to television. It demonstrated that dance companies can be — well, I hate to use the word, but — fun. The Moiseyev girls looked jolly and, unlike so many female dancers, amply proportioned. And the men, unlike most male dancers, looked like men.

Grasshopper Scare

Recently a scourge of grasshoppers swept into the Texas Panhandle and surrounding states, devastating the tender young shoots and leaving devastation in their wake.

There is no question as to the seriousness of the plight of the unlucky farmers who suddenly found themselves in the path of this marauding horde. Something had to be done, and quickly.

A few of the more independent and stalwart of the planters took action. They purchased insecticide, built fire trenches, and otherwise met the infestation as men, battling to preserve what was theirs.

This was not true of the majority. Like so many helpless and dependent children they set up a great wall for help from the government. County and city bureaucrats called on Texas' Governor Price Daniel. Daniel called upon the president of the United States. The problem of the grasshoppers was supposed to become a matter of national concern from the rocky coast of Maine to the high and spume-swept cliffs of far-off California.

Over three million acres were declared a "disaster area." But some way, the federal government didn't seem to get steamed up over the plague beyond that point. Of course, state money was quickly allocated to fight the locusts.

We can only congratulate and thank the federal management for not taking up the plea of Texas' governor. And in order to understand why we say this, permit us to shift the scene for a moment.

Here is a widow who lives, let us say, in North Carolina. She has three children she is trying to put through school. One of the children has just had a bout with measles and the doctor's bills are unpaid. She is a month behind in her rent. Her meager income, a small annuity left by her departed husband, is not enough to manage all her costs. Fortunately, she does own a few shares of stock, as so many independent Americans do. This stock does provide her with a few extra dollars of income twice a year.

However, to compound the widow's problems, yesterday her kitchen caught fire and by the time the government firemen finished the demolition job, she was facing a $1000 repair job. Insurance will pay about $600 on it and she must find the other $400 or do her cooking out of doors.

You ask, "What has the widow got to do with the grasshopper plague?" The answer is of course that morally she has nothing to do with it. But because the farmers ran to the bureaucrats and the bureaucrats ran to the governor, and the governor ran to the president, this widow might have been compelled to help pay for that grasshopper infestation.

Taxes on the income she receives from her few shares of stock might have gone up next year so that the farmers in Texas could have some bug juice sluiced out upon their fields.

We, of course, are sorry for the farmers. But we are also sorry for the widow. And if you multiply this widow by thousands, we will see the true picture that faces all of us whenever government is called upon to render help in a disaster.

The trouble is that all of us face our own private disasters every day. Mostly we are ready and willing to help others whose condition may be worse than ours. But the only person who can judge whether a grasshopper plagued farmer is in sorrier straits than we are, is each one of us individually.

The government cannot possibly have this information nor can it act on it. The government, then, is not the proper agency to assist anyone. It can only render such assistance at the point of a gun leveled at everyone without distinction.

This illustration should enlighten us as to the absolute necessity for individual initiative, even in the face of disaster. The business of "togetherness" causes all of us to sink in the face of any disaster.

Would it not be better and for more moral for each of us to handle our own problems, asking for assistance on a voluntary basis if we need it, rather than to harness the guns of government so that regardless of the problems everyone else has, they too can be compelled to share in ours?

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

The Police Power

Today I reproduce the last portion of Leonard Reitz's article on a limited government, or "The Police Power," as appearing in "The Freeman" magazine:

Immoral Use of Power

"Police-ism—police power—run riot, the uneconomic and the immoral use of striking power—is man attempting to usurp the role of the Creator on the grand scale. Police-ism—government out-of-bounds—known popularly as state interventionism, communism, socialism, nazism, fascism, Fabianism, the Welfare State, the planned economy, the new deal, the fair deal, and so on, features the private gain on some at the expense of others. Its advocates are in all walks of life, ranging from seekers after office or after welfare or after prosperity to clergymen who have lost their faith in brotherly love. It is, in my view, the most glaring sin of our age and it accounts, more than anything else, for the social disintegration now so easily observable in every 'civilized' country. Further, these uneconomic and immoral uses of striking powers within nations account for the insane employment of striking powers between nations—war!"

"Let's assume that we agree on what is the proper use of striking power: only for defense against destructive force; never for interference with productive or creative actions, individually or collectively, with the fist or with the police force. Would this agreement on principles resolve all of our social problems? Of course not. Our judgments vary greatly. It would be difficult in many instances to agree on whether certain actions were destructive or creative. Yet, having an ideal, general principle as a common point of reference would help to direct our energies and our thoughts toward the ideal. We would more likely demand the same moral rectitude of our collective actions as we insist is proper for our individual actions. We can hardly expect to behave better collectively than individually. Yet, there isn't much excuse for behaving worse."

"Double standard of morality? Imagine American farmers personally robbing everyone from the Widow Doakes to Mr. Grotzke, justifying the robberies on the grounds of being punished for raising less food than they could. It is unthinkable. Yet, there is hardly a respectable segment of the population that is not urging the police force—the collective striking power—to do this same unthinkable thing for them. Thus, by failing to apprehend a principle, we descend deeper and deeper into police-ism, the final stage of which is dictatorship. 'Dictatorship,' according to Lenin, 'is scientifically considered, means neither more nor less than unlimited power resting directly on the police, not limited by anything, not restrained by any laws, nor by any constitutional limitations of any kind.'"

Certainty of Retribution
"Most of us realize, deep down in our hearts, that error brings its own retribution. Nor does ignorance absolve us in any measure. One who is unaware of gravitation and jumps off a precipice, we descend deeper and deeper into police-ism, the final stage of which is dictatorship. 'Dictatorship,' according to Lenin, 'is scientifically considered, means neither more nor less than unlimited power resting directly on the police, not limited by anything, not restrained by any laws, nor by any constitutional limitations of any kind.'"

"We believe it to be immoral to advance our own private gain by thieving from others. We would expect penalties in some form—social, like being put in jail or personal, like a loss of self-respect. Now, legalizing the process in no way alters its morality nor the certainty of retribution. Yet, after years of legalized plunder, few of us discern any penalties for our political waywardness. The popular chant, 'We have never had it so good,' seems only to say, 'At last, we know how to do wrong and to get away with it.'"

"It is naive, however, to assume that retribution for wrong appears only in forms that are obvious. If Copwer was right in saying that 'God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform,' it is equally valid to assume that he moves in a mysterious way his penalties to inflict. It is absurd to acknowledge the former without any expectation of the latter."

"Excessive governmental activities may for years give outward appearance of making us healthy, wealthy, and wise. However, those actions which have really been wrong must be building up quite an account on the retributive side of our economic, moral, and social ledger. The fact that most of us haven't taken the pains to look for this page in the ledger doesn't mean that it isn't quietly—almost secretly—recording the data for later reference, for balancing the accounts. As I look at this page, I see material retribution taking the form of a thinner and thinner circulation medium—a progressive economic anemia!"

"The only cure for this dread disease is to withdraw governmental interference from the productive and creative activities of people. The first step is for responsible citizens to identify activities of this sort which government has arrogated to itself and to explain attractively and persuasively why they should be returned to private enterprise. This will require the best—nothing less—that each of us has to give."

Shouting From The Housetops

Robert Allen Reports:

Dulles Taking Good Barter Proposition To Paris

WASHINGTON—Secretary Dulles is taking a potent barter proposition to Paris for his momentous talks with Premier De Gaulle.

In exchange for allowing the U.S. to establish four to six intermediate range missile bases in France, it will be offered much desired nuclear secrets and other assistance.

This proposal does NOT include nuclear weapons and how to produce them.

Instead, Dulles will proffer the following four-point "package":

Full details on the construction and operation of an atomic-powered submarine.

Nuclear advances in medicine and related fields.

Latest development in atomic reactors.

Extensive exchange of nuclear scientists and technicians between the U.S. and France.

While these offers are far-reaching and unprecedented, their acceptance by De Gaulle is conjectural.

Reason is his determination to make France the fourth nuclear weapons power.

Powerfully supporting De Gaulle in this adamant stand is the decisive fact that France is far on the road to joining the U.S., Britain and Russia in possessing a nuclear arsenal.

Ambassador Amory Houghton has cabled Secretary Dulles that France will definitely conduct its first atomic tests this year.

As previously reported in this column, the Central Intelligence Agency has informed the National Security Council that these French explosions may take place in August or September in the Sahara Desert.

In Houghton's report, De Gaulle is described as contending, that with France bent on becoming a nuclear power, it is beholden on the U.S. and Britain to assist her in achieving that goal for two reasons: France is their traditional ally and all; their aid would save France "hundreds of millions of dollars."

OVER A BARREL—The tall French Premier is in a strategic position to drive a hard bargain. The U.S. is extremely anxious to get ICBM-bases in France. There is equally grave concern as to De Gaulle's views regarding NATO, and on the very important but little known 1950 tri-partite agreement, under which the U.S., Britain and France are committed to respond to the plea of any Middle Eastern country that is attacked.

Confronted with the sinister situation in strife-torn Leganaw Washington and London are particularly sensitive about De Gaulle's attitude on the tri-partite pact.

All this puts him in a strong position to seek concessions from the U.S.

There is no doubt De Gaulle will demand them. The big question is how much he will ask; how big his price will be.

It is certain to include assisting France to become the fourth nuclear weapons power. Ambassador Houghton has also advised Secretary Dulles that De Gaulle harbors another grandiose proposal.

This is to create a new NATO-type alliance in the Mediterranean, consisting of the pro-Western nations bordering on it. Under De Gaulle's plan, France would have the major role in this military-economic organization.

Representative Carl Albert (D., N.C.), chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, fully confirms the Houghton-CIA reports about France's progress in nuclear weapons.

Members of his Committee visited France last October and learned of this first-hand. Also they were told by nuclear authorities there that, "Money is not one of our problems," and scientists and technicians are being trained ed "around the clock."

"It has been our understanding for some time," Durham told this column, "that France will conduct its first atomic tests in the next six months. French progress in this field is generally underestimated over here. They are much further advanced than is realized."

"Our Committee members who went there last year were immensely impressed by the magnitude of French activities and their pride in nuclear development. The French are now producing their own plutonium, and are expanding their atomic power program. They have excellent scientists and technicians, and are doing their utmost to train more of them."

NOTE: The U.S. and France already have one atomic agreement. Signed in November 1956, this pact calls for exchanging non-secret research and power information.

FLASHES—Barring congressional adoption of a "cease and desist" resolution—which is very unlikely—that stormy controversy, rebuilding of the Capitol's historic East Front is going through. There has been no announcement about it, but Capitol Architect George Stewart already has awarded several million dollars in construction contracts. When asked by Representative W. F. Norrell (D., Ark.), "Even if we wanted to, it's pretty late to turn back," Stewart replied, "Yes. We've already obligated $2,200,000 to start this work."

As soon as Congress adjourns in August, Madame Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Nationalist Generalissimo, is returning to Washington for an "unofficial" visit.

However, Nationalist Ambassador Tong is strenuously endeavoring to arrange a meeting for her with President Eisenhower. A number of social functions are being scheduled for her.

Most of the readers of this column can remember when such a rate of spending increase would have been called "vaulting up." To realize how much a billion dollars is, just ponder the fact that a billion words set in ordinary newspaper would fill 250,000 pages of newspaper!

Maybe a few simple old-fashioned Fourth of July skyrockets in the budget can be borne with; but to fashion the whole budget into a Sputnik and send it as far aloft as now appears likely even at the hand of the Republicans seems to be completely inexcusable. And yet, unless we voters insist that this madness be stopped, this Republican "Inching up, billion by billion" is, by no means, the worst that might happen.

G.O.P. National Chairman Meade ALCORNE has pointed out that if all the current spending proposals of Senate Democrats and former President Truman were adopted, our budget would soar a staggering 77 billion dollars in additional spending!

Let us remember that everything that goes up has to come down some time. What kind of a fiery trail do you think will result when that kind of a budgetary Sputnik re-enters the atmosphere?

Jimmy Petrillo Found A Rich, Soft Racket

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Jimmy Petrillo is more responsible than any other individual for the disappearance of the bands that are commemorated with longing in Meredith Willson's beautiful musical play, "The Music Man." The American Federation of Musicians made it impossible for bands of the type recalled by Robert Frost, the con-man of the piece, to earn their way. Though the unionists insist that they have protected the musicians' jobs, this boils down to the fact that they have protected a few jobs by wiping out nobody knows how many other jobs. Few Americans of the generation that fought the Second War, few of the millions who have come to maturity since 1945, ever have heard band music, and it seems likely that they never will.

I have known Petrillo for more than 20 years and I have had him made as a faker from the day he invited me to his little office on Washington Street, Chicago, and tried to impress me with some phony by-play about a pistol. You may gauge his courage by the fact that he offers the little finger of his right hand instead of the whole hand to shake. During the meeting of the executive council of the AFL-CIO in Chicago last year when Jimmy hailed an old acquaintance, and offered that little finger, he got an abusive hiding from a fellow his own age who asked him, "What are you afraid of? Do you want to live forever?"

Petrillo has let it be known that he does this because he is afraid of germs on other men's hands. However, he drinks brandy and beer in saloons out of glasses that may not be sterile and, in general, runs the same chances of infection that others take. He disappeared from Chicago for a few days about 15 years ago and claimed that he had been abducted. Petrillo told me the local had paid ransom of $50,000. The local may have handed someone $50,000, but I never found plausible evidence that Jimmy was taken or ransomed, either it has been my private theory that Jimmy adopted that one-finger trick after he had seen a few trusting individuals jerked off balance during a handshake and belted with a left to the chin.

I have seen him take it without blinking when other men said, "Put that dam thing back in your pocket if you can't shake hands like a man."

Jimmy traveled with police bodyguards paid by the people of Chicago for years during Ed Kelly's reign in the City Hall. He also rigged a Hitlerian deal with Kelly's machine whereby his "boys" got wages for blowing pretty wind through horns in the public parks as a "cultural" favor of the administration. But a amateur bands are not allowed to play in public unless someone pays into Jimmy's treasury the equivalent of full wages for an arbitrary number of musicians who were supposed to get this money individually. But this has never been the way of it. All over the country this "standby" system stales money into the local and national treasuries, but until the heat came on in the Senate last year, much accountability was carried on in invisible ink. About 90 per cent of the members are actually barbers, schoolteachers and clerks who fiddle and tootle on dance dates, haphazard, for extra money. They are not bad, but not real professionals, and most of them hustle their own dates and would much prefer to do their own business and keep their pay for themselves.

Even the bands of the Armed Forces are not allowed to play public dates unless the musicians' local gets standby money for its own kitty. High school authorities and kid musicians have run into this verboten and found it hard to believe that this could be in their own country. But it is and it brings us back to the nostalgic sweetness of the age that Willson recalls in "The Music Man" when every city of size had handshells in amusement parks and beer gardens. Famous bands played long summer seasons, always in uniform—Conway's, Fryer's, Soixas's, Creators'—treading on one another's heels. There were always dummies hired off the street for a dollar spotted among the regulars and sawing away on noiseless fiddles or pumping silent trombones. And, too, some of the actual players were locals, selected to fit the uniforms, while the skeleton or permanent staff careered it, year after year.

When Warren Harding ran for President his friends recalled that he had played in a silver cornet band, and a few years ago Roy Howard sheepishly pulled from a desk drawer an old photo of a lot of skinny little shads, him a self among them, in gaping uniforms with piping on them, holding horns skimbly. Will Hays was in this too.

For years Petrillo kept away from the AF of L conventions because he had stumbled into a soft, rich racket and was afraid someone would dump him in a canal, according to the Chicago custom. One day in Chicago while he went down the hall to see a man about a dog, his grateful boys voted him a $50,000 house on the sand dunes outside Chicago. His gratitude choked him, but he went wild when Arthur Madden of Internal Revenue, the man who got Al Capone, assessed him on the price as income in a high bracket. Petrillo finally settled for $18,000, but his ever-loving, grateful subjects made that up to him by a special love-gift while he stepped down the same hall to see another man about another dog.

Russians, Nasser In 'Cooling Period'

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Relations between Soviet Russian leaders and President Gamal
Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic seem to be entering a cooling-off period.

Nasser sailed Saturday for a visit to President Tito of Yugoslavia.

Russia has made Nasser its chief instrument in its campaign of penetration into the Middle East.

Russia's relations with Tito, at the same time, are near the breaking point.

Dispatches from Cairo say that Nasser hopes to make his visit to Tito without antagonizing Russia.

How that can happen, it is difficult to see. It is more likely that the Russians will regard Nasser's visit as a diplomatic slapdash which it seems to be.

A brief Belgrade dispatch June 13 quoted an official spokesman as saying that Nasser would make the visit.

At that time, the Russian and Chinese Communist regimes were bitterly attacking Tito as a renegade, and the announcement caused some surprise.

Russian-Yugoslav relations became even worse when it was announced on June 17 that Hungarian revolt leaders Imre Nagy and Pal Maleter had been executed.
Nagy had been arrested after the Russians induced him to leave the Yugoslav Embassy in Budapest.

promising him safe conduct. Later Tito had been promised that Nagy would not be tried. The Russian treachery naturally outraged him.
Because of the increased bitterness between Tito and the Kremlin, it seemed possible that Nasser's visit might be called off.
But it was officially disclosed in Cairo on June 23 that Nasser would go through with his plan.
Cairo dispatches say that Nasser will try to draw Tito toward the "neutralist" bloc. This, Cairo argues, would be preferable from the Soviet viewpoint than a move by Tito toward closer relations with the allies.

Any such hope seems over-optimistic. Since Tito broke with the late Josef Stalin in 1948, he has shown a determination to follow his own course and not to tie himself to any bloc.

If any "selling" is done as the result of Nasser's visit, Tito is likely to do it.

NEW YORK — Lebanese Foreign Minister Charles Malik, on the disorders in his country: "There is confusion in the minds of most people that this is only a rebellion and therefore the government is dealing only with the rebels. The government is dealing with pressure from outside from powerful agencies directed against us."

Construction contracts in May rose to a new monthly record of $3,402,575,000 and brought awards for the first five months to $12,983,524,000 or only 5 per cent below the similar 1957 period.
F. W. Dodge Corp. reported.
Higher housing contracts and a sharp rise in publicly financed projects were chiefly responsible for the May rise.

Steel industry volume this year will be 5.6 per cent below last year's record $140 billion, a Steel magazine survey showed. The magazine noted that although the industry will feel the effects of the recession the rest of this year, recovery is in sight. Meanwhile on July 1 the industry starts absorbing one of its costliest postwar wage boosts. Major companies still are debating whether economic conditions justify price increases to offset the higher costs.

Purchasing agents report trade conditions have continued to improve in June although at a slower pace than May. Most agents expect no big break in the current lull before the end of 1958 or early 1959.

New car sales in the second 10 days of June averaged 14,650 units daily or 6.5 per cent ahead of the rate in the first 10 days, but 27 per cent behind the year-earlier pace. Further inroads were made on new car stocks which on June 20 stood a little over 700,000 units.
