U.N. Urges Freeing Of Hostages; Iran Threatens To Kill Captives

Soviets Attack U.S. 'Crude Pressure'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, in its strongest comment on the U.S.-Iranian crisis to date, accused the United States today of using "crude military and political pressure" against Iran.

Radio Moscow, quoting a commentary in Wednesday editions of the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, also said the standoff between the United States and Iran "threatens to become one of the most serious international incidents since World War II."

The commentary said Iranian violations of international diplomatic norms by seizing the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and holding 50 American hostages could not be used as a pretext for military "blackmail of another sovereign state."

The radio said seizure of the embassy fails to conform to international conventions of diplomatic immunity, but the incident should be viewed in the "context" of U.S.-Iranian relations going back 26 years.

In 1953, deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was returned to power in a U.S.-backed coup which toppled the Iranian government of Mohammad Mossadegh.

The radio said the United States violated international law then by supporting the return to power of the shah, who now is recuperating in Texas after cancer and gall bladder treatment in New York.

Citing U.S. Navy activities in the waters around Iran, Pravda said it is clear that "certain quarters (in the United States) are more and more inclined to use force."

Pravda called for the United States, as a member of the United Nations, to use restraint and strictly adhere to the U.N. charter, which denounces the use of force in international relations.

The Pravda commentary by A. Petrov, whose signature normally denotes top Kremlin thinking, broke a string of restrained Soviet comments on the Iranian crisis.

The Soviets have not formally appealed to the Iranians on behalf of the United States, although Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has come out in public against such violations of international law.

Spy Trial Due, Official Reports

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The month-old U.S. Embassy crisis took a sudden grim turn Tuesday as Iran's foreign minister declared the American hostages would be put on trial and their Moslem militant captors were reported to have threatened to shoot them if they did not "cooperate."

At an emergency U.N. Security Council session in New York, the 15 members unanimously passed a resolution urging Iran to release the 50 hostages immediately and appealing to both Iran and the United States "to exercise the utmost restraint" in the critical situation.

Pentagon officials reported a six-ship Navy force led by the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk has reached the Arabian Sea area, joining another U.S. carrier force. This put the ships, carrying more than 135 planes, within reach of the entrance of the Persian Gulf.

Trial Called International Law Violation

President Carter has warned Iran of "extremely grave" consequences if the hostages are harmed, and U.S. officials say a trial of the diplomats would be an even more grievous violation of international law than the hostage seizure itself.

The report of threats to shoot hostages came from a White House official in Washington.

The official, who asked not to be named, said the hostages "have been threatened with execution if they fail to cooperate with their captors." He said it could be assumed "I don't mean cooperation just ... in routine matters."

The warning of an upcoming trial of the hostages as "spies" came from Iran's acting foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh.

Trial "For Sure"

Iranian television said he told a French interviewer that the American captives would be tried "for sure."

Whether the hostages will be punished according to the verdict — they could be sentenced to death — would depend on Iran's leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who could overrule the sentence "if the United States extradites the shah," Ghotbzadeh reportedly said.

The Iranian account of the interview with the French newspaper Le Figaro differed slightly from the version published by Le Figaro. In that, Ghotbzadeh says such halfway measures as an international investigation of ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime would not settle the crisis.

Trial Confirmed

"Thus the hostages will be tried?" he was asked.

"Yes."

It was evident from the minister's remarks as reported by Iranian television, which closely follows the official line, that Ghotbzadeh meant the hostages would be tried in any event.

Previously, Iran threatened to try the hostages on espionage charges only if Carter stuck to his refusal to send back the shah.

It appeared Tuesday from Ghotbzadeh's remarks that the ruling Revolutionary Council was stepping up pressure by offering only a Khomeini "pardon," rather than no trial at all, if the United States hands over the exiled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to face charges of mass murder and corruption in Iran.

Student Trial Denied

Le Figaro also quoted Ghotbzadeh as saying the hostages would be tried by the militants holding the embassy. This was not reported by the television here, and a student spokesman at the embassy immediately denied it, saying only an "Islamic revolutionary court" would have jurisdiction.

Asked when a trial might take place, Ghotbzadeh said, "I don't know," Le Figaro reported.

For the first time Ghotbzadeh accused the three top U.S. diplomats in Iran — being held at the Foreign Ministry — of "having committed crimes."

"Thus once they leave the ministry compound, they will fall into the hands of justice and I will then be the first to demand they be arrested and tried," Figaro quoted him as saying. Last week he said the three were "free to leave" Iran, but he later reversed himself when the embassy militants repudiated his remarks.

The three diplomats confined to the ministry are U.S. Charge d'Affaires Bruce Laingen, Michael Howland and Victor Tomseth.

Despite Ghotbzadeh's tough words, there was an unexpected new sign of dis-

San Antonio Rejects Protesters

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — City officials, fearing anti-shah demonstrations would become violent clashes between Iranian students and Ku Klux Klansmen, Tuesday night refused to allow protest marches Friday against the deposed monarch's transfer here.

"Our greatest concern has been for the well-being of the hostages in Iran," said City Manager Tom Huebner, who also added that the parade "would likely cause injury to persons and property."

The Iranian student group at San Antonio College can appeal Huebner's decision to the 11-member City Council, but almost all the council members said Tuesday they are solidly against any protests.

Huebner said the decision was reached after contact with local, state, military and federal officials — including the president's national security council.

Louis Linden, attorney for the Iranian students, contends it is illegal for the city to deny the parade permit. He said there is a "good possibility" he would challenge the decision today in federal court.

The students asked Monday for permission to stage peaceful demonstrations downtown and outside heavily guarded Lackland Air Force Base, where the Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi has been recuperating in seclusion since early Sunday.

Ku Klux Klan officials filed a request Tuesday to stage counter-demonstrations, but only if the Iranian march was allowed.

Iranian student Mohsen Towliat, 22, an representative of the Iranian student group at SAC, said "We will not demonstrate as an organization without permission, that is why we hired an attorney. But if the students by themselves want to demonstrate they will do anything they want."

Huebner said that any illegal demonstrators will be warned first and then arrested if they continue. "Any demonstrator arrested who is a non-citizen will be

Goodfellows' Yule Visit List Grows

CHIEF Goodfellow's Christmas list is growing by leaps and bounds as coupons from The Avalanche-Journal continue to pour in.

He finds a lot of folks have been sick this year and need a little boost with Christmas expenses.

"Dear Goodfellow, I'm 8 yrs. old and I'm very sick. I have to go to the hospital once a month; so you see my mother won't have any money to buy us any Xmas this year. So would you please bring us some toys. Thank you."

The story is sad, but with Chief Goodfellow and his band of anonymous helpers there is a bright Christmas in store for youngsters like this one.

Toys, fruit and candy will be going to about 10,000 Lubbock children this year, a record number needing a record $20,000 to make it possible.

To make sure no child is missed on Christmas, Chief Goodfellow has a coupon in today's paper, Page 5, Sec. B, to be filled out with names of children up to 14 who need his help.

It should be mailed to: Chief Goodfellow, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Texas 79408.

Goodfellows wishing to help Chief Goodfellow with his task may send contributions to the same address. Letters with donations are streaming in, too, proving that Lubbock folks don't want any child to be sad in the season to be jolly.

Mrs. Connally Pegs Reagan Only Threat

By TRAVIS BROWN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PRESIDENTIAL hopefuls, including John Connally, are campaigning at full steam, despite vows made by most candidates not to comment on President Carter's handling of the Iranian crisis, says Connally's wife, Nellie.

Mrs. Connally was in Lubbock Tuesday to raise funds for her husband's bid for the presidency.

While here, she refused to say anything about the holding of 50 American hostages by terrorists in the American embassy in Iran.

"None of us want to say anything that might jeopardize the safety of the hostages," she said.

Mrs. Connally said she believes the race for the Republican presidential nomination is between her husband and former California governor Ronald Reagan.

She discounted the candidacy of Texan George Bush. Bush, former CIA director and ambassador to China, made a surprisingly strong showing recently in a straw vote among Republicans in Florida.

(Mrs. Connally Meets The Media, Page 14, Sec. A)

"Bush ran third there, and I think he will remain third," Mrs. Connally said.

Mrs. Connally said she and her husband have encountered no mistrust by any of the public toward Connally because of his indictment and acquittal on bribery charges while he was Secretary of the Treasury under Richard Nixon. She said the only persons who bring up the issue are members of the media.

Accompanying Mrs. Connally to Lubbock on the fund-raising jaunt was former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes. Barnes is working for Conally's campaign, said Jane Ann Stinett, vice chairman of the local Connally for President organization.

Mrs. Conally admitted that she is opposed to her husband running for president.

"I wanted him to stay home with me," she said. "I didn't want to see him age the way I've seen so many men in public office do."

Mrs. Connally said a president "must be a caring, dedicated person who wants to leave for his children and their children all the good things we have inherited."

MINER TRAPPED, KILLED

SEABROOK, N.H. (UPI) — A miner at the Seabrook nuclear power plant was crushed to death Tuesday, trapped between a steel grider and a mining car at a cooling tunnel. He was identified as Kenneth Richardson II, 26.

Bonds Voted For Frenship School Plan

WOLFFORTH (Special) — Voters in the Frenship school district Tuesday approved the sale of $3 million in bonds to finance construction of 28 classrooms.

The vote on the bond issue was 327 for and 221 against. Election officials termed the turnout "fairly heavy."

The bond election is the first phase of a master plan for a new high school, including band and athletic facilities.

The plan calls for the purchase of 54 acres as the site for the classrooms, a cafeteria, library and service areas.

The 28 classrooms will be occupied initially by fourth, fifth and sixth grade students to alleviate crowded elementary classrooms.

When the remaining two phases are completed, the 28 classrooms will become part of the high school complex, and existing high school classrooms will be used for elementary classes.

To pay the bond debt, taxes in the Frenship school district will have to be increased about one-third, school officials estimate. Such an increase would cost the owner of a $35,000 home about $100 per year.

The Frenship school district has experienced rapid growth in enrollment, primarily because the district includes portions of fast-growing western extremities of Lubbock.

To handle the rapid student increase, the district has had to utilize the gymnasium, second-hand barracks and even hallways as classrooms.

The district is the second-largest in Lubbock County with 2,534 students.

CABINET RESIGNS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The entire cabinet of Nicaragua's revolutionary government resigned Tuesday to allow the nation's five-member ruling junta to "act freely," officials said. The junta has ruled Nicaragua since it took power July 19, ending nine months of bloody civil war just two days after President Anastasio fled the country.

Saudis Protest Pro-Iran Move

KUWAIT (AP) — Saudi Arabia's oil minister walked out of a meeting of Arab oil ministers Tuesday to protest attempts by Syria and Libya to introduce a resolution of support for Iran in its dispute with the United States, conference sources said. The Kuwait government said he did not walk out.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani left the hall soon after a meeting of nine members of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries opened here, the conference sources said. He reportedly returned to his country.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said Yamani objected to the attempt to introduce the resolution, saying "OAPEC is an economic and not a political organization."

He reportedly was supported in his stand by six other Arab oil-producing states, not as eager as Syria and Libya to pressure the United States for its support of Israel. The wording of the reported resolution was not available.

Kuwaiti Oil Minister Sheik Ali Khalifah Al-Sabah issued a statement denying that Yamani had walked out, adding there were no differences in principle on the agenda of the meeting, and that Yamani had told the conference he had many commitments that might necessitate his speedy return to Riyadh.

The OAPEC conference, which originally had been planned as a two-day meeting, started and ended Tuesday.

OAPEC is not a price-fixing organization, and is concerned mainly with joint Arab ventures in the oil industry. But Arab ministers had been expected to use the Kuwait meeting to coordinate their positions for the price-setting conference of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, opening in Caracas, Venezuela, on Dec. 17.

Qatar's oil minister, Sheik Abdu Aziz Bin Khalifah Al-Thani, said his country would oppose "any suggestions for a drastic increase in oil prices next year." However, Qatar would abide by any decisions adopted in Caracas, he said.

Libya's oil minister, Izzedin Mabrouk, indicated Libya was hoping for a substantial increase, saying oil was already selling at $45 a barrel on the spot market and there was a need to restore balance to the market and "absorb the difference between the official OPEC price ceiling ($23.50) and the spot market."

Last month Libya tried to introduce a pro-Iranian resolution at an Arab League conference in Tunis, Tunisia, but the attempt was rejected. On Sunday, a mob in Tripoli, Libya, stormed the U.S. Embassy and burned it, shouting slogans supporting Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and the holding of hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Iran, which is Persian — not Arab — has asked fellow OPEC members to limit 1980 oil production to help it in its "anti-

Warm Weather To Linger For Two More Days

The surprisingly warm weather Lubbock and the South Plains has been enjoying is expected to remain in the area at least two more days.

Lubbock reached a high of 68 degrees Tuesday afternoon, a mark that should be equalled this afternoon as the mercury is expected to climb to around 70 degrees.

The high Thursday is expected to be 65 degrees, only a slight drop from the warm readings early this week.

The cloudless skies will allow nighttime lows to plummet into the lower 30s and upper 20s, but partly cloudy skies should develop later in the week, keeping the lows around the freezing mark.

The only hitch in the weather across Texas today will be a slight patch of showers dotting the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Texas' warm sunshine is a departure from normal December weather, which currently is keeping temperatures hovering in the teens and 20s only a few hundred miles to the north of the state.

Also on the agenda are reports on the South Plains Association of Governments and on plans for a membership drive.

YULETIDE DIVORCE

CHICAGO (AP) — The holiday season is a traditional time for family get-togethers. And this year, some reunions are even taking place in divorce court. On Monday, a Chicago couple decided to get back together, and appeared in court to ask Judge Bernard Wolfe to vacate their divorce decrees. The couple, Mildred Rosenbloom and her ex-husband, Mark were married in September 1978, divorced in April and their divorce decree was signed last month.

Fowl Cholera Feared Near Gulf Coast

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — There is no practical method to inoculate the rare whooping cranes on the Texas coast from an outbreak of bird cholera now present, says the manager of the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge.

Frank Johnson said the often fatal disease is threatening the refuge's 75 whooping cranes because it has been found in other birds there. He said the whooping cranes' shy nature has kept them from catching anything thus far.

"It is highly contagious, but there's hardly any feasible way to catch and inoculate them," Johnson said. "At zoos they can, but not at a wildlife refuge."

Johnson said foot patrols have been increased near the whooping crane's nesting grounds in the marshes.

The disease "is not known to occur in whooping cranes, but there is no reason to believe they are not susceptible to it," he said.

Until Monday, the disease appeared confined to 5,000 snow geese at the refuge. One of 60 snow goose deaths has been traced to the disease, also called fowl cholera. And one sand hill crane found Monday is suspected of being a victim of the disease.

Dr. Christopher Brand of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife laboratory in Madison, Wis., came to the coastal refuge Friday to perform autopsies on the birds.

Regents To Review Finalists

Evaluation of finalists in the running for president of Texas Tech University will be the topic behind closed doors Sunday when Tech regents meet in executive session at a special called meeting of the board.

An official Tech news release announcing the meeting stated, "The only agenda item is an executive session and there will be no announcements following the session, according to Robert L. Pfluger, board chairman."

But regent Clint Formby, chairman of the presidential search committee, admitted, "The total purpose of the meeting is to talk about the presidential search."

Formby would not say how many finalists are under study, other than the general statement of less than 10, but his remarks did indicate that the search is near an end.

A new president "will not necessarily be named by Christmas," he said, because crowded airlines during the holiday season have delayed the interviewing process.

"The crush of holiday travel might delay it until after Christmas," he said.

$100 Offered For Tip On Poisoning

The Lubbock Humane Society posted a $100 reward Tuesday for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the rash of dog poisonings plaguing the rural neighborhood east of Lubbock.

In the past two weeks, some 15 dogs have been poisoned with paraquat, a liquid herbicide generally used to defoliate crops. Several local veterinarians and representatives of the humane society feel the poisonings have been deliberate.

Last week, E.F. Harvey, who lost two dogs to the poison, posted a reward of $100 for information on the alleged crimes.

Paraquat has been used across the rural area east of Lubbock this fall, but Rick Smith, a local representative of the Chevron Co. which makes the herbicide, said the poisonings occurred more than a month after most cotton farmers quit using it this fall.

The Lubbock Humane Society also is offering funds for treatment of animals who may have ingested paraquat. For more information, call 792-4436.

HSCH Data Processing Contract Gains Commissioners' Approval

County commissioners Tuesday approved Health Sciences Center Hospital's new data processing contract, hoping the conversion will be a money-saver for the financially shaky hospital.

Wayne Smith, finance committee chairman for the county hospital district, made the contract presentation, saying the hospital board had been trying to reach agreement on some kind of system for several months. Shared Medical Services wanted the contract badly enough to offer a very low price, he said.

The conversion from the present data processing provider — Hospital Management Service — means a savings of several thousand dollars a month. The two-year contract calls for $9,200 a month during the first year and $14,000 a month during the second year.

The current contract demands a fee of $17,000 a month. Hospital Management Service is going out of business as a provider of hospital data processing services and has been blamed for many of the problems in billing experienced by hospital patients.

The new data processing service has made several conversions already for former clients of Hospital Management Service, which makes the firm something of an expert on what is needed at Health Sciences, Smith said. The actual conversion is scheduled for Jan. 26, though the contract becomes effective immediately.

Medical Society Awards Doctor, Names President

The Hippocratic Award, a symbol of outstanding achievement, was awarded Sunday to William H. Gordon Sr., M.D., at the annual meeting of the Lubbock-Crosby-Garza County Medical Society.

A recipient of the award must have been a member of the medical society at least 20 years and is selected secretly each year by doctors who have been members of the society for five years or more.

Dr. Louis Nannini, pathologist, was named as incoming president for the group. He succeeds Dr. Lloyd Garland.

Rhode Island City Cancels Performance By 'The Who'

By The Associated Press

Officials in most cities on "The Who's" U.S. tour said Tuesday the British rock group would be allowed to perform despite the tragedy in Cincinnati. But the mayor of Providence, R.I., said he was canceling the group's concert, and Boston officials were debating the issue.

Eleven people were trampled to death in Cincinnati Monday night when thousands of fans surged into Riverfront Coliseum as the gates opened for a concert by the group.

The four band members, meanwhile, reportedly shaken by the deaths, traveled to Buffalo, N.Y., on Tuesday for the third stop in a tour that began in Pittsburgh on Dec. 2 and was to take them to 11 cities, ending on Dec. 17.

Providence Mayor Vincent A. Cianci Jr. said he would ask the Civic Center Authority to cancel a Dec. 7 appearance by the group. He said if the authority refused, he would invoke emergency powers to cancel the performance.

Cianci said he consulted with the public safety commissioner and they decided the city could not cope with the concert.

In Boston, Richard J. Sinnett of the Licensing Commission said a hearing would be held Wednesday on the rock group's application for a rock concert license Dec. 16. But promoters in the city said they expected the sold-out, reserved-seat concert to be held as scheduled.

The group's manager, Bill Curbishley, said the band would continue the tour despite the incident. But Keith Altham, European press agent for "The Who" said in London that the matter was still touch and go."

Some of the seats for Cincinnati concert were not reserved, and many of the fans had rushed into the stadium to get a good seat after waiting several hours outside.

Buffalo's 15,000-seat Memorial Auditorium was sold out for Tuesday night's concert. All tickets, which cost $8.50 and $10, were reserved.

Tickets to a concert Dec. 15 at New Haven Coliseum in New Haven, Conn., also will be reserved. "We're in total control of the situation," said coliseum director Antonio Tavares. "We've demonstrated that in the past."

Other cities on the tour are Cleveland, Pontiac, Mich., Chicago, Philadelphia, and Landover, Md.

CPA Wins Election By Luck Of Draw

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Thanks to the luck of the draw and his wife's vote, Thomas A. Reed is the new auditor for nearby Bethel Park.

No one was on the ballot for the job in the November election, so Reed, a certified public accountant, wrote in his name. His wife voted for him.

Four write-in candidates, including Reed, were tied with two votes apiece. So the Allegheny County Election Bureau drew lots Friday to pick the winner.

More Doubts About SALT II

A FEDERAL APPEALS court has ruled in effect that President Carter and his successors won't be bound by the SALT II treaty even if the Senate ratifies it.

Overturning a lower court decision, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia held that the President acted legally in cancelling a mutual defense pact with Nationalist China without consulting Congress.

If the Senate's advice and consent is not needed to break a treaty, critics ask, why is it needed to ratify one? Why not just let the President conduct foreign policy at his own whim and be done with it?

CARTER ANNOUNCED earlier that he would scrap the generation-old treaty with Taiwan as a means of getting Red China to do business with us.

The Communist power insists that there is only "one China," the reality of the government and people on Taiwan notwithstanding, and said that if we wanted to send an ambassador to Peking we could blamed well agree with it on that point.

Carter, whose strong suit—if he has one—never has been in the area of foreign affairs, said that by gum the sales of Coca-Cola on the Chinese mainland was more important than the country's honor in sticking, by its friends and commitments.

Sen. Barry Goldwater and others objected, taking to court their contention that the Senate has a constitutional say-so in the breaking as well as the making of treaties.

A federal district judge agreed, saying that a two-thirds vote of the Senate or a majority vote by both houses of Congress is necessary to set aside the nation's solemn word.

The appellate court disagreed, unanimously holding that the Senate "took no action to reserve a role for itself" in ending the treaty when it ratified it in 1954.

WHILE GOLDWATER appeals that decision to the Supreme Court, the case is certain to have a bearing on the already controversial Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty now awaiting ratification.

Since everybody already knows that the Soviet Union's signature on a piece of paper is worthless, it hardly makes sense to ratify it if an American President also can disregard it at will.

Under the appellate court's ruling, of course, a savings clause giving the Senate an explicit role in termination of a treaty would suffice—but there's no guarantee that a future court would pay any attention to such a clause.

A treaty that's going to end up in the waste basket anyway might as well be thrown there now. And, in the case of SALT II, that's the best place for it.

DIZZIER AND DIZZIER

JAY HARRIS:

The Shah And U.S.

THE AYATOLLAH Khomeini may be crazy, as more than one person has noted of late.

But, if he is—and his actions suggest it—he and the radical Iranian hierarchy also may be crazy like foxes...

The longer they hold the American hostages and hammer over and over at the fact that the U.S. is "harboring and protecting the criminal" Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, the closer they come to their goals.

One such goal already has been realized, that being to sidetrack for the time being growing opposition inside Iran to Khomeini's crumbling regime, and instead get a near unanimous vote to make the bearded monster dictator of Iran for life.

The other is to shift the spotlight from the fact 50 American citizens are being held prisoners to the charge the U.S. is a partner in crime with the Shah.

IT'S TIME TO set the record straight on several counts.

This is especially so in view of the fact that Sen. Ted Kennedy, among others, and a few naive media people have zeroed in on the Shah as the enemy rather than the thugs thumbing their noses at the civilized world in Tehran.

Just to keep things straight, it should not be forgotten that before the "student" terrorists took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Khomeini was in deep trouble.

Iran's Revolutionary Council was under fire, thousands were without jobs, the government of Prime Minister Barghazin had collapsed and the economy was in a shambles.

The bearded "religious" ruler and his henchmen needed a scapegoat. The Shah was a handy one. But the United States was an even better one. Not only was the U.S. a political and economic enemy, but a religious one, as well.

THAT LAST point is one which many in the U.S. and Western world do not yet understand.

Much of the Islamic upheaval, not only in Iran but elsewhere, is as much anti-Christian as political or economic. One has to go no further than the tragedy that is Lebanon for proof.

In Iran, Khomeini and his mullahs are using hatred for the West, plus the Shah's presence in the U.S., to shift the issue from their own shortcomings. And if the Shah alone were the crux of the matter, then of course the answer, though dishonorable, would be simple. We could just pack up the Shah and send him to Tehran, and obtain the hostages in return. But, it's not that simple.

The bedrock issue, as The Wall Street Journal has noted, "is our right to live by our own values in our own country. We are a nation of due process. We do not arbitrarily seize people, or for that matter property. We do not deliver people to the mercies of revolutionary courts with no rules of evidence and procedure as we know them. These are the minimum values that unite us, values nearly all Americans hold too dear to surrender even when lives are at stake."

AND ONE CAN take the whole scenario a few steps further.

We made a mistake by not admitting the Shah to the U.S. as soon as his regime crumbled. That was our right. To suggest even in those days that we should not for fear of reprisals by the Ayatollah or because a bunch of ragtag student "guests" in this country didn't like it was even then submitting to threat and blackmail.

In that respect, The WSJ makes a point which should be engraved as part of the record:

"Before the Shah's regime began to collapse from the stresses of economic and social dislocations, its methods for dealing with dissent were neither much harsher nor much gentler than those of most other Middle Eastern governments. Clearly, there was more room for dissent in his (the Shah's) Iran than in the Ayatollah's..."

BUT, THERE is still one more key point...

That is the U.S. has a right to look after its own national interests. Again, The WSJ put it this way:

"The United States needs friends. And more often than most allies, the Shah was willing to help, for example in fueling U.S. warships in the midst of the Arab oil embargo.

"If his reward for this is infamy, even in the U.S., how many future rulers will take risks for the U.S. side?

"We can be sure that the fate of the Shah is carefully watched by Prince Fahd, controlling the oil taps (in Saudi Arabia), King Hussein sitting next to the West Bank and King Hassan holding one side of the straits of Gibraltar. To the extent the Shah is ill-treated in the U.S., it is one more incentive for them to cut the best deal they can with the anti-Americans."

ALL OF WHICH brings us back to the basic issue.

That is that this nation down through its history has a record of peace, of helping others, of acting for the most part in an honorable way.

This is not to say we haven't made mistakes. But, they have been honest ones for which we paid without force or blackmail.

Throughout it all, we have remained faithful to the basic tenets of Freedom, the right of people to determine their own fate—something Iran is no closer to doing under the Ayatollah than in the past.

It makes no sense whatsoever to blame the Shah for all of Iran's past mistakes any more than it does to blame each President for those made in the United States. And on the foreign level, how can we as a people now turn on the Shah, or seal his death with a gang of fanatical tyrants while at the same time crawling in bed with the madmen who rule Moscow or the bloody regime that is Red China?

Our past, our present and our future destiny demand we defend our right to determine our fate and those who seek sanctuary within our borders. No one can do that for us...

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

TAKES FOUR years for a newborn baby's foot to double its length. Takes eight years for a 6-month-old baby's foot to double its length. Takes 17 years for a 1-year-old baby's foot to double its length. Got all that?

Q. Don't more women than men tend to have blue eyes?

A. No, young lady, eye color is equally distributed in that matter of gender. About 40 percent grownups, whether male or female, have brown eyes. Maybe 33 percent have blue. And the rest have hazel, gray, green or black.

AN EDITORIAL:

It's Not All In The Family

ALL THE action in family-style living these days is in the nonfamily, the Census Bureau's designation for a trend which has been under way for a number of years.

Whether it's called cohabitation, temporary functional lodging or, you know, living in, the upsurge has precipitated considerable change in traditional life-styles.

The Census Bureau classifies a nonfamily as a household consisting of unrelated persons. According to a current report, the nonfamily is a form of cohabitation growing at a much swifter rate than regular households.

Nonfamilies have burgeoned by 66 percent since 1970 to 19.8 million this year. The growth in family households for the same period has been only 12 percent although traditional families retain a quantitative lead at 57.5 million.

THE BUREAU does not speculate as to the reasons for the increasing popularity of nonfamilies, but inflation could be one.

Contrary to the popular impression, it is not yet winning the race with family finances but it is certainly closing in rapidly.

After adjustment for the effects of inflation, according to the same report, the median income of American families has increased only an average of 0.8 percent annually during this decade through last year, compared with 3 percent yearly during the 1960s.

The 1978 gain is considerably better than the average—an adjusted 2.4 percent—but that is offset by the previous year in which income increase was totally wiped out by rising consumer prices.

THE WEST fared best regionally with a 4 percent adjusted gain. The North Central states managed 3 percent while the Northeast and South marked time.

In ethnic terms, black families appeared to gain the most with an adjusted 6 percent compared with 2 percent for whites.

In actual dollars, the blacks remain far behind. The 1978 median family income was $10,880 for blacks, $18,370 for whites.

Worst off, the bureau found, were families headed by women—15 percent of the total—and by persons under 35 (30 percent of the total). Both are growing categories which trail other major household categories in earning power.

Based on these ostensibly objective findings, the blame for an unwanted shift in the traditional American family foundation may be rooted in economic necessity as much as in the widely rebuked moral turpitude of today's free-to-be-me generation.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Doves Snared In Hook Of Their Own Making

WASHINGTON—As the immensity of the Cambodian suffering impresses itself on world opinion, so-called "doves" who helped produce the tragedy are wriggling frantically to get off the hook.

Having told us there would be no bloodbath if we undercut the anti-Communist governments of Indochina, the doves are hard put to explain why there has been a bloodbath, after all.

Their alibi is that American bombing and other efforts to salvage the anti-Communist interest in Cambodia somehow created the Khmer Rouge Communist movement in that country.

BRITISH AUTHOR William Shawcross, the principal sponsor of this thesis, argues that our bombing and invasion of Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 violated the "neutrality" of the country and enmeshed it hopelessly in the war, dispersed North Vietnamese forces throughout the nation, and brought the Khmer Rouge Communists into being where there was no indigenous Communist movement to speak of.

This argument blandly ignores the fact that Cambodia's neutrality had been shredded beyond all recognition by the Communists before America's (very limited) response in 1969 and '70.

The Cambodian government of neutralist Prince Sihanouk contended in 1969 that as many as 40,000 North Vietnamese were in the country. The current Communist regime retroactively puts the estimate in the hundreds of thousands.

IN ADDITION, the Communists were using the Cambodian port of Sihanoukville to move in thousands of tons of supplies, which were then transported across the country to be used in Vietnam.

As a result of the "incursion" into Cambodia in May 1970, American forces captured an enormous store of Communist ordnance—more than 25,000 weapons, 143,000 rockets and mortars, 199,000 anti-aircraft rounds, and 15 million rounds of ammunition.

Northeast Cambodia, meantime, was the final leg of the "Ho Chi Minh trail" through which the Communist forces from the North were infiltrated into South Vietnam.

In short, Cambodia was the scene of constant military action by the Communists—a storehouse and staging ground for their onslaught against South Vietnam.

COMMUNIST FORCES were spread across the country in early 1969, before any substantive response from the United States occurred. Prince Sihanouk repeatedly protested the massive Communist presence in his country but was powerless to do anything about it.

It was to this situation that the U.S. and S. Vietnam, responded—as they had every right to do.

In international law, if one belligerent uses the territory of a neutral to prosecute warfare against another, and the neutral is unable to prevent such use, the party being attacked is entitled to respond accordingly.

The Shawcross approach is to downplay or ignore all this. In his text, the number of North Vietnamese forces in Cambodia, their disposition, and what they were doing are shadowy topics.

HE KEEPS his focus as much as possible on the actions of the United States, suggesting that whatever it was the Communists were up to was somehow responsive to our actions, rather than the other way around.

As for the Khmer Rouge, it is fairly clear that the decisive elements in bringing them to power were (a) the backing of the North Vietnamese, and (b) the bungling of Sihanouk, who got himself ousted by his subordinates, then threw in his lot with the Communist rebels.

That gave them a prestige and respectability they could not otherwise have mustered. American complicity in the disaster was not the halting attempt of the Nixon administration to prevent it—but the successful effort of the "doves" in Congress and the media to cut off all assistance to the anti-Communists.

GEORGE WILL:

State Of The Arts

WASHINGTON—Some corporations have names that convey no information about what the corporations do.

But visitors to the National Gallery here, and to museums in eight other cities at various times in the next two years, will have reason to give thanks that United Technologies Corporation makes whatever it makes (actually, air conditioners and helicopters and other stuff) well enough to make profits.

Some of these profits are underwriting the tour of 57 Old Master paintings from the finest private collection, that of Baron Thyssen-Bornemisza. This tour provides a splendid occasion for saying a sympathetic word about the relationship between business and the arts.

It is hard to say, precisely, what a corporation is, but no great corporation is the purely "profit-maximizing" entity of abstract theory.

Those who run corporations were raised in a cultural climate that frequently taught, sometimes subtly and sometimes not, that people who run corporations are, by and large, bores or boors or soulless technocrats.

Capitalists do not write the histories or teach the sociology of capitalist societies.

Business support for the arts may be, in part, a product of socially induced guilt, or status anxieties, a product of the desire to be seen to be useful in a sphere of life—culture—that is commonly contrasted with commerce, to the disparagement of the latter.

Which is to say only that business people, contrary to much current thinking, are human.

HENRY JAMES said that American businessmen considered culture the concern of "women, foreigners and other impractical persons." Then, as now, most people fell short of Jamesian standards of sensitivity.

But there were Fricks, Mellons, Guggenheims and other giants of industry who became giants of patronage. And now more than ever, there are business leaders like John T. Connor, chairman of Allied Chemical Corporation, who says:

"The ultimate justification for the enormous intellectual and physical effort devoted to increasing the nation's wealth is to make possible the enhancement of life. We need the arts to keep our society both affluent and humane, to keep in balance the competitive drive and the sense of community.

"We rely on the arts to preserve and celebrate the human scale within the world of the quantitative. Without the arts, our society would lose its morale, its source of invention and diversity, its sense of community and its potential for growth."

FEW AMONG the cultured despisers of corporate America could so felicitously express that truth. Some foolish people will fault Connor for stressing that the arts are—if you will pardon the expression—useful.

They will complain that it is somehow crass to suggest a utilitarian aspect of the arts.

But there is no worse philistinism than the motto behind the slogan "art for art's sake," a motto that was bound to promote what it has in fact produced, the trivialization of art.

Since the Business Committee for the Arts was founded in 1967, corporate support for the arts have increased 1,100 percent, to $250 million in 1978.

Perhaps the most conspicuous patron is Mobil Oil, which, in addition to being an oil corporation, is the thinking person's National Endowment for the Arts (and Humanities).

IT UNDERWRITES (among many things) Masterpiece Theater, a substantial portion of all the television worth watching.

A lot of aggressive nonsense is spoken about the allegedly sinister aspects of such activities.

Corporations can't win for losing: If they are not patrons, they are accused of meanness; if they are patrons, they are accused of trying to manipulate the public.

Leave aside the fact that the audience for, say, Masterpiece Theater, is unlikely to be seduced into affection for Mobil. A more pertinent point is this:

Whether or not a patron or a pianist does what he does from "pure" motives (whatever that might mean; is a pianist's desire for applause "impure"?) is irrelevant to the worth and enjoyment of the music.

ITALIAN MERCHANTS and clerics financed some wonderful art for no motive grander than self-glorification.

And if today's artists were subjected to the sort of onerous patronage that some Renaissance patrons practiced ("the Medici have made me and broken me," said Leonardo), or the sort that may have shortened Mozart's life, they would feel more affection for the corporate patrons of today.

In any case, they should remember the wise fellow who said that artists making fun of businessmen reminded him of a regiment in which the band makes fun of the cook.

ANDREW TULLY:

Iran Out Of Credit

WASHINGTON—An American intelligence honcho, expert in the complexities of the Moslem world, was inclined to scoff at suggestions that an anti-Khomeini campaign was heating up in Iran.

He was addressing himself to an editorial in the Tehran newspaper, Kayhan, which criticized the Ayatollah's religious revolution for "premeditation to cover up for its executive flaws."

The editorial went on to accuse members of the ruling Revolutionary Council for "electioneering and demagoguery," and accused the Council of reneging on its promise to purge the administration.

"IT'S A GOOD sign," he said. "It's comforting to know that there are dissenters in influential places. But Khomeini is still viewed by the Iranian masses as the keeper of Moslem purity, and you don't rebel against God—in Iran or any other Moslem country."

However, this source and most other intelligence people find hope and happiness in Khomeini's announcement that his regime will repudiate all its foreign debts.

If Iran goes through with its threat, the burden will fall on its own people.

Iran's economy already is in bad shape. If the regime stands fast on debt repudiation, it would face nothing but trouble trying to import needed commodities such as food, on credit.

THERE ALSO is the question of how much oil Iran could sell to other countries hit by debt repudiation. If the situation continues, oil drilling companies would get out of Iran, and Khomeini & Co. would have the devil of a time getting replacement parts for the machinery in its oil fields.

Meanwhile, Americans could ponder with profit an analysis of the U.S. boycott of Iranian oil by Milton Copulos and James Phillips, analysts at the Heritage Foundation.

The U.S. response to the seizure of the American Embassy in Tehran, say the analysts, "not only strengthens our present bargaining position, but helps discourage future oil blackmail."

MOREOVER, THEY say, the U.S. can still get Iranian oil if it so chooses.

That's because the Iranians have detoured a substantial amount of oil to the so-called spot market, where purchases are virtually impossible to trace.

"Oil sold on the spot market may change hands dozens of times prior to its ultimate resting place," Copulos and Phillips write. "All that would happen in that case would be a simple reshuffling of customers."

More significantly, what also could happen is that the Iranian masses would start getting hungry for something resembling a square meal.

In that situation, they might conclude that Khomeini misunderstood God's directive and find themselves a Moslem prophet who will come out in favor of eating.

Wistful Harmonica Strains To Highlight Ranch Center's Yule

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The lonesome sound of the harmonica drifting through the dusk, by a campfire or in a bunkhouse, was part of the cowboy scene.

Sometimes the "French harp" turned raunchy, roaring out with gay dance tunes and lively airs. But, mostly, it sent a wistful sound into the twilight, heralding the end of the long cowboy day.

It will be part of the cowboy past waiting for visitors to the Candlelight Christmas tour of the Ranching Heritage Center where cowboy life is preserved in a 12-acre outdoor museum.

Other views of ranch times will greet visitors Wednesday and Thursday along a path lined with luminarias on a twilight chosen for the time of the full moon. Tours begin at 6 p.m., end at 8:30 p.m. with admission $2 per family.

Museum volunteers and staff members will be going about their Christmas tasks as their counterparts might have done long ago.

It will be Christmas past along the route ranching took from infancy on the Texas Coastal Plain in the 1830s to maturity on the Texas High Plains at the turn of the century.

A barn dance, with all the enthusiasm of a pioneer ranch party that lasted all Christmas week, will be in full swing, moving to the bow of a longtime museum volunteer, fiddler Cecil Caldwell.

By the chuckwagon, cowboys will be around the campfire with the harmonica — and maybe a guitar, for the wagon is near the bunkhouse — in the part it played for the cowboys from Christmases long ago on the prairie.

Wendell Bell took up the harmonica for the same reason the oldtime cowboy did. It's portable, can go in a pocket and come out anytime to play anywhere.

At home in Gatesville, he played the piano. Going off to college he had to have something musical. He transfered his leaning toward the classical to the pocket harp.

With a deep interest in folk music, he turned to the cowboy tunes with ease.

It will be the cowboy sound the research associate in civil engineering history at Texas Tech will be sending into the dusk from his spot by the campfire as just a faceless cowboy in firelight, a part of the past coming to life at a ranch museum.

SETTING THE SCENE — Wendell Bell finds his spot by the chuckwagon for the Candlelight Christmas tour of the Ranching Heritage Center at 6-8:30 p.m. today and Thursday. The chuckwagon is pulled up next to Las Escarbadas, once a division headquarters for the vast XIT Ranch. In the event of bad weather, the tour will be cancelled. (Staff Photo)

Businesses Face Tough Times, Says Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small businesses face "tough sledding" in coming months, and many may be forced to default on loans or go bankrupt, the head of the Small Business Administration said Tuesday.

"Small firms face more difficulty than usual in getting long-term financing and continuing difficulty in obtaining even short-term funds," said A. Vernon Weaver.

"Small entrepreneurs have to pay higher interest rates than large companies. Small businesses are squeezed by cash flow problems," he continued. "They face possible dropoffs in sales and may be forced to reduce their work forces."

Weaver announced a series of steps by his agency that he said would speed up the processing of SBA loans and encourage banks to help small businesses.

However, he stopped short of asking banks to offer small businesses lower interest rates than they provide larger corporate clients.

Banks' best customers are charged the prime lending rate, currently between 15.25 percent and 15.50 percent. Smaller businesses — because they are greater credit risks — often must pay 2 percent to 3 percent higher interest.

"We're not encouraging banks to go to a two-tier system," Weaver said. "We're not going to be big brother."

Weaver said he hopes the administrative changes will encourage more private banks to make loans, guaranteed by the SBA, to small businesses.

"We're telling the banks that we've cleaned up our act. We've eliminated the paperwork, making it easier and cheaper for banks to process these loans," Weaver said.

The SBA has authority in fiscal 1980 to guarantee up to $3.5 billion in private loans to small business. The agency can guarantee up to 90 percent of an individual loan.

However, Weaver acknowledged that small businesses currently are hard-pressed to borrow because of record-high interest rates.

"It's a dubious proposition," he said.

"I won't be surprised to see default and bankruptcy rates among small businesses rise in coming months," he said.

Currently, however, the SBA reports no increase in loan defaults or bankruptcies.

The economy, after a surprisingly strong spurt in the third quarter, is expected to slow down significantly in the fourth quarter, many economists predict.

"I would advise small businesses to be very prudent, to take every measure they can to get their cash flow in good shape, to be tough with accounts receivable and keep inventories manageable," Weaver said.

The SBA is limited in the administrative steps it can take to help small businesses, said Weaver. But the agency is considering several proposals to Congress that would increase its loan guarantee authority as well as the ceiling and duration of individual loans, he said.

Court Hears Education Case

TYLER (AP) — The director of bilingual education for the Dallas Independent School District told a court hearing Tuesday that the state has failed to provide adequate education to Mexican-American children.

Angel Gonzales testified for the federal goverment, which is trying to get the state of Texas to provide bilingual education in grades kindergarten through 12. Texas now requires instruction in Spanish for kindergarten through third grade if there are 20 or more students in a particular grade who speak a language other than English. Bilingual classes in fourth and fifth grades are not mandatory.

The American GI Forum and the League United for Latin American Citizens have joined the federal government in the suit being heard before U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

"The Texas Education Agency needs to commit itself to providing education for all students as stated it its goals," Gonzales said. He said the state board of education, TEA and its commissioners have failed to provide equal education for non-English-speaking students.

U. S. Dismisses Soviet Troops Withdrawal As Propaganda Ploy

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Withdrawal of some Soviet troops and tanks from East Germany was expected to begin Wednesday, largely dismissed by the United States as a propaganda ploy one week before a key NATO decision on deployment of new nuclear-tipped missiles in Western Europe.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said in Washington the "well publicized" withdrawal would be a positive step but the imbalance between forces of the Soviet bloc and NATO alliance "will continue to be substantial."

East Germany's Foreign Ministry invited Western reporters "to an event in conjunction with the speech" by Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in East Berlin last October, in which he announced plans to withdraw 20,000 troops and 1,000 tanks from East Germany over the next 12 months as a gesture of goodwill.

There was no official word on where the withdrawal ceremony was to take place, or which of the estimated 20 Soviet divisions stationed in East Germany would be involved. Reporters were to assemble before dawn in East Berlin and be driven to the undisclosed location.

But in Washington, U.S. officials said they understood the units were to come from the 6th Tank Guards Division garrisoned in Wittenberg, 45 miles southwest of Berlin.

West German television said the withdrawal would begin around mid-morning during a ceremony in Wittenberg, which has been decorated with East German and Soviet flags for the occasion.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko flew to East Berlin on Tuesday for a conference of foreign ministers of the Soviet-dominated Warsaw Pact. It was not clear whether he and his colleagues would take part in the ceremonies.

The state-controlled news media throughout the Soviet bloc have proclaimed Brezhnev's troop reduction as a major peace overture, but U.S. officials say it is not, since it would still leave the Soviets with an overwhelming superiority in ground forces in Central Europe.

Western intelligence estimates the Soviets have some 530,000 troops stationed in East Germany, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and Poland. The United States has about 200,000 troops based in West Germany.

Western diplomats have said the modest pullout by the Soviets is unlikely to affect the outcome of the Dec. 12 NATO meeting in Brussels at which the Western alliance will decide whether to deploy 572 U.S.-built medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe. All are capable of hitting Soviet targets.

Although the plan is expected to be approved, it faces stiff opposition in Denmark, the Netherlands and other countries which fear it will endanger detente.

The Kremlin has launched a massive propaganda campaign against deployment of the missiles, claiming their positioning would upset the balance of power in Europe, and Brezhnev, in his Berlin speech, warned Western European nations they must face the consequences if the missiles are accepted.

But NATO officials claim the missiles are needed to offset growing Soviet strength in the medium-range field.

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's Social Democratic Party is meeting in West Berlin this week.

Your Personal Biorhythms

STEP 1. YEAR OF BIRTH
STEP 2. A-B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3. DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS

BIORHYTHMS FOR DEC. 5, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 9, 19, 31, 42, 54, 65 ..... Physically off day
Highs: 9-18, 32-41, 55-64 ..... A burst of energy today
Lows: 1-7, 20-30, 43-53, 66-75 ..... Likely to be tired

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 4, 18, 32, 46, 60, 74 ..... Safety first, ease up
Highs: 1-3, 19-31, 47-59, 75-85 ..... Prime time emotionally
Lows: 5-17, 33-45, 61-73 ..... Quick emotional trigger

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 1, 18, 34, 51, 67, 84 ..... Mind your mind
Highs: 19-33, 52-66, 85-95 ..... Your mind is sharp today
Lows: 2-17, 35-50, 68-83 ..... Difficult to study

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Performers Forgiven For Marijuana Use

SEOUL (AP) — The government has lifted a ban on performances by entertainers who have been caught smoking marijuana, and that means 123 persons can return to the stage or airwaves, the Entertainers Association said Tuesday.

The Ministry of Culture and Information ordered lifting of the ban imposed in 1975 by the government of assassinated President Park Chung-hee.

Automakers Cite Theft Curbs Limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the Big Three auto manufacturers admitted Tuesday there is little that Detroit can do to build cars less vulnerable to theft without making life more miserable for motorists.

"We do not feel that attempting to increase vehicle security by additional anti-theft hardware would have a significant effect on professional vehicle theft rates, but would add cost, reduce serviceability and cause inconvenience to all legitimate vehicle owners," Chrysler Corp. official George Cook told a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee.

Representatives of General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. made similar remarks in testimony marking the fifth and last day of hearings into the nationwide surge in car theft.

Witnesses have told members of the committee that many stolen cars are taken to "chop shops," where they are divided into parts that are then sold to legitimate body shops for use in repairing damaged vehicles.

FBI Director William H. Webster told the subcommittee that federal agents are increasing their enforcement efforts because of the increase in the theft rate and the growing involvement of organized crime.

"We currently have 632 theft rings and 'chop shop' operations under investigation, more than at any time in our history," he said.

Webster said that since 1967, when anti-theft devices were first placed on automobiles, the rate of car theft has increased at an average of 41 percent per year.

"At this rate, this year's losses traceable to vehicle thefts will exceed $4 billion," he said.

The auto executives claimed success in stopping youths out for a "joyride" and small-time car thieves, but said professional thieves are able to defeat the car security systems they have devised.

"The professional car thief, with an intense profit motive and little threat of incarceration, will eventually learn how to cope with anti-theft measures," said David Martin, director of automotive safety engineering at GM.

"Unlike bank vault locks, automotive locks are not and cannot be extremely complex since they must be mass produced, must provide reliable operation through many thousands of cycles, must be convenient to use by vehicle operators and must be easily serviced by a variety of organizations," Martin said.

G.R. Williams, testifying for Ford, said new anti-theft devices "are effective for only a limited period of time — until the professional thief develops tools and techniques to defeat them."

The FBI director endorsed a bill by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., that would require identification numbers on body parts favored by chop shop operators. If the bill becomes law, the choppers could no longer deal in parts that presently have no serial numbers and cannot be traced, Webster said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. A broker has recommended that my wife and I each invest in a single premium deferred annuity. The interest on the annuity would be 9 1 4 percent for the first year and guaranteed to be never less than 4 percent.

He also stated that the annuities would be safer than U.S. Treasury notes, "because the annuities are insured by both the government AND the insurance company."

Would you consider this the safest tax-exempt investment, with the maximum interest we can realize?

A. No. That annuity is not "tax exempt." It is "tax deferred." This means that you wouldn't get out of paying taxes on the interest your money earns. You would simply postpone paying those taxes until some time in the future.

And you can get higher interest from safer investments — such as U.S. Treasury notes, bonds and bills. By no stretch of the imagination is an insurance company annuity "safer" than U.S. Treasury securities.

More important, if that broker told you what you say he did, don't ever go near him again. If he phones, hang up.

Annuities are not "insured by the government — federal, state or local. The annuity would be backed by the insurance company which issued it.

Insurance companies are regulated by the states in which they operate. The chances of you losing money put into an annuity are almost non-existent.

But, if that broker gave you the kind of song and dance you quote, he exceeded the bounds of salesmanship. He lied to you. Many brokers are pushing annuities these days, because they can collect higher commissions on the sale of annuities than on stocks, bonds and other traditional investments.

Q. I cut out a coupon from a magazine advertisement and sent it in, requesting a free booklet about investment planning. I never received the booklet but I did get a telephone call from a gentleman with the marketing corporation which ran the ad. He wants to set up an appointment regarding investments.

Can you tell me anything about this marketing corporation and its investment record?

A. The outfit you named in your letter is a big organization which handles mutual funds, insurance and a battery of related items. Its record as an investment adviser is among the worst.

You should have become suspicious when, instead of receiving the "free" booklet you wrote away for, you got that phone call. This is a less-than-ethical dodge to get a hot-shot salesman's foot in your door.

My advice is to tell that saleman to mail you the booklet and that, after you read it, you will call him — if you want an appointment. Any outfit that refuses to make mail delivery of a "free" item simply isn't playing fair.

Q. You seem to devote a lot of space to 26-week U.S. Treasury bills but hardly ever mention 13-week T bills. Aren't 13-week bills purchased the same way as 26-week bills?

A. Sure they are. The U.S. Treasury auctions off both 13-week and 26-week bills every Monday — Friday, if Monday is a holiday.

Both types of T-bills can be purchased by submitting tenders to your nearest Federal Reserve Bank or branch. There are 12 Federal Reserve Banks and 26 branches around the country.

If you don't want to submit the tender yourself, you can have your local bank do it, for a fee — usually about $25.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

DOCTOR FACES SENTENCE

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A psychiatrist faces a maximum five-year prison sentence for attempted sexual assault, and seven years on drug charges, stemming from his treatment of a male patient. Dr. Larry L. Kompus, 42, of Bloomfield Township, pleaded no contest Monday in Oakland County Circuit Court to charges of attempted third-degree criminal sexual conduct and delivery of a controlled substance. He was charged with initiating sexual relations with Rodger Ennes, his patient since 1975. Police said Kompus wrote Ennes prescriptions for drugs.

County Demos' Supplemental Pay To Chicago Mayor Daley Bared

CHICAGO (AP) — The late Mayor Richard J. Daley supplemented his income with a second salary of $25,000 a year as chairman and treasurer of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee, it was revealed Tuesday.

Cook County Board President George Dunne, who was Daley's successor as county Democratic chairman, confirmed that the second salary was paid but said he didn't know how it was paid or how many years Daley received it.

Although the second salary never was publicly disclosed, Dunne said, "There were people aware of the compensation, but I don't know if it was common knowledge."

Arrest Follows Tip By Unknown Caller

A tip from an anonymous caller to Lubbock police lead to the arrest early Tuesday of an 18-year-old Abernathy man and a 23-year-old man from Fresno, Calif., for suspicion of possession of cocaine, LSD, methamphetamine and felony possession of marijuana and unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Reports indicate the unidentified caller told police the two men were eating at a 24-hour restaurant in the 600 block of Avenue Q. The caller said that when the men left the restaurant they would travel north to the Amarillo Highway and that drugs could be found in their car.

Police observed the pair leaving the restaurant and followed them to the intersection of North Avenue Q and U.S. 87 before stopping them.

Upon searching the car, officers reportedly found a .22-caliber revolver and 25 rounds of ammunition. Inside a brown vinyl tape case, investigating officers found several plastic bags containing what was belived to be various narcotics. A small plastic tube containing 30 small perforated squares of fibrous paper also was found inside the vehicle.

Each of the suspects was placed in a separate police car. While one officer continued searching the the car, however, another policeman saw one of the men stuffing a small glass vial between the seats of the patrol car.

Reports indicate the suspect was removed from the car and when the officer examined the car's seat, he found several keys and two small glass vials containing a white powdery substance.

Narcotic identification tests conducted on the substances found in the suspects' vehicle indicated two of the plastic bags contained methamphetamine, commonly known as "speed"; two bags contained cocaine; the 30 small paper-like squares contained LSD, and four bags contained more than four ounces of marijuana, police said.

The two men were taken to Lubbock County jail.

A Chicago woman, who along with her husband is accused of offering a "hit man" $150,000 to travel to Lubbock and kill her son-in-law, was in the custody of Illinois State Police Monday afternoon.

But, Ann Riffner Mraovic, 69, plans to fight extradition to Lubbock to face a charge of capital (murder) solicitation, according to Criminal District Attorney John Montford.

Montford said he received a call from Illinois law officers saying they had arrested Mrs. Mraovic at her Chicago home about 2:30 p.m. Monday. Montford said he was told Mrs. Mraovic has hired an attorney and plans to fight efforts to have her brought to Lubbock County for arraignment and trial.

Monday morning, Mrs. Mraovic's 41-year-old husband, Vaso V., was arraigned on a capital solicitation charge before Justice of the Peace Charles Smith. Mraovic remains in Lubbock County Jail on the $250,000 bond set by Smith.

The third member of the local "murder for hire" triangle, alleged "hit man" Mohammod Y. Owaynat, also appeared in Smith's court Monday for the setting of a $25,000 material witness bond.

However, the 35-year-old Owaynat, a Jordanian living in Chicago, was released on his own recognizance. Sources told The Avalanche-Journal that Owaynatt, a self-employed businessman, cooperated with Lubbock authorities in their investigation of the alleged murder scheme, a capital felony carrying a life imprisonment or death sentence upon conviction.

Officials from the district attorney's office and members of the Texas Rangers arrested Mraovic shortly before 9 a.m. Saturday after he allegedly paid Owaynat $3,500 to purchase a gun and silencer to kill Lubbockite Arthur Boldt.

Federal investigators have been advised of the case because residents of two separate states are involved, a spokesman for the district attorney's office said. But Monday afternoon, Bernie Brown, resident agent in charge of the Lubbock FBI office, said no federal charges are expected to be filed against the Mraovics.

"Since state charges have been filed," Brown said, "that's where we'll leave the matter."

The will of Boldt's late wife apparently was the motive behind the alleged murder solicitation plan, investigators say.

PROJECT FAILS

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — City officials here worked like eager beavers this fall to clear a clogged drainage ditch. But some real beavers sabotaged the efforts, forcing the city to scuttle the project. After Mayor Casey Laman took office, the city of North Little Rock declared war on a band of beavers. The drainage project had been to clear out the beaver dams.

Extensive Fire Claims Lives Of Six Horses

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Six quarter horses perished Tuesday in a fire that leveled two stables in far north Lubbock and caused thousands of dollars in damage.

By the time the raging blaze was contained about 4 a.m., the only thing left was the ashes of two barns at Red Raider Arena off FM 2641 and the charred remains of six horses and two dogs, which were trapped in one of the barns.

Arena owner John Robertson, who lives with his wife, Zella, next to the stables, said this morning the structure loss alone would reach at least $60,000, and could go much higher.

Robertson said each horse lost in the blaze was valued at between several hundred and several thousand dollars, depending on its breed and whether it was registered. He added that one of the dead horses was worth between $2,500 and $3,000.

Lubbock fire marshal's office investigator Jimmy Vaughn said it appeared one of the horses rubbed against a light switch in the north barn, causing an electrical short. High winds carried the blaze to the other barn, located just a few feet away, according to Robertson.

The Lubbock Fire Department received the fire alarm at 3:13 a.m. But by the time firemen arrived at the scene, one of the eight-stall stables had collapsed and the other was completely enveloped in flames, a fire department spokesman said.

The dead animals were trapped in the structure, which was destroyed before firemen arrived.

One of the renters at the arena, Ricky Hafley, discovered the blaze and woke the Robertsons. The owner said when he walked out of his trailer, the blaze had engulfed several of the stalls at the end of the north barn.

The Robertsons, while inspecting the damage early this morning, expressed dissatisfaction over the length of time they said it took firemen to arrive on the scene.

They said it was 30 to 40 minutes after they had called for help before firemen arrived.

Robertson said only two stalls were ablaze when they called the city. "And when they finally got here, that barn was nearly on the ground and that one there was completely on fire," he said, pointing to the two sections of debris.

The Robertsons said the firemen apparently got lost in their attempts to find their Route 3, Box 308, location. "even though we told them exactly how to get out here." The couple added that the sirens they heard indicated the firefighting units apparently circled their location before arriving at the scene.

"If they had got here when they should have, we could have saved that barn there," Robertson said, pointing to the south barn.

He indicated he could have saved some of his property if a fire plug had been located nearby. "I tried to get a fire plug out here two years ago. They (the city) wouldn't let me do it. There's not a fire plug within two miles of here."

Henry Hunt said he lost two dogs in the blaze, one of them a cross between an English pointer and a beagle. "He was an experimental dog. And then I had a mutt," he said.

Murder Suspects Moved Here

Lubbock County authorities Tuesday transferred three men charged with the murder of Raymond Padilla from the Potter County jail in Amarillo to the Lubbock county jail.

Murder charges were filed against Frank G. Vellesca, 52, and his two sons, Marcus, 23, and Adam, 19, all of Amarillo.

Potter County Justice of the Peace L.B. Bartlett Monday set bond for each of the men at $5,000. Lubbock Justice of the Peace Charles Smith had recommended a $100,000 bond for each of the men. However, Bartlett said Monday that he had not received a bond recommendation from Lubbock authorities.

Amarillo police arrested the three suspects Saturday.

Padilla, 22, of 3116 Cornell St., was found about 7:45 a.m. Nov. 21 lying unconscious near a trash dumpster in the 2700-block of Texas Avenue.

An apparent assault victim, Padilla underwent surgery at Health Sciences Center Hospital for head injuries, but died in the hospital at 1:30 a.m. Nov. 23.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ruled Padilla's death a homicide, the city's 29th for 1979.

15-Year-Old In Custody In Murder Connection

A 15-year-old boy was taken into custody in Lubbock Monday in connection with the September robbery-murder of an 18-year-old man in Fort Worth.

The youth was apprehended about 6:30 p.m. at his uncle's East Cornell Street residence, according to Lubbock police.

He is one of five suspects in the murder of Mark Cavanaugh, an airman stationed at Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth, who was found beaten to death Sept. 16.

Fort Worth Police Det. Capt. G.S. Geeslin said today one man remained at large, and that he was the "ringleader of the whole thing."

Late November Votes Of Area Members Of Congress Recorded

ROLL CALL REPORT SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Nov. 26 through Nov. 28.

HOUSE

CURBING THE FTC By a vote of 321 for and 63 against, the House passed a bill to curtail the authority of the Federal Trade Commission. The bill (HR 2313) was sent to the Senate. It contains a "legislative veto" provision which, if it becomes law, will enable either house of Congress to prevent by majority vote any FTC action against an entire industry. The FTC was created in 1914 to combat unfair and deceptive business practices.

Rep. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga., a supporter, said: "We are seeing an end to government by bureaucratic fiat. The outrage of the American public against unacceptable government has been heard and heeded."

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., an opponent, said the bill would begin "the plucking of ...the only agency that we can call a consumer agency in the entire U.S. government."

Members voting "yea" favored the bill limiting FTC powers.

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, Bill Archer, R-7, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-19, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22, Abraham Kazen, D-23, Manuel Lujan, R-1 (N.M.) and Harold Runnels, D-2 (N.M.), voted "yea."

Reps. Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Mickey Leland, D-18, and Henry Gonzalez, D-20, voted "nay."

CONGRESSIONAL VETO The House adopted, 278 for and 121 against, an amendment permitting Congress by concurrent resolution to veto any regulation issued by the Environmental Protection Agency under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act. Such regulations usually concern unsafe pesticides and often are criticized by agribusiness and other sectors of the farming community.

Concurrent resolutions do not require a president's signature to take effect. The amendment was attached to HR 3546, passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Calif., a supporter, said that in the EPA "we are dealing with one of the regulatory agencies that epitomizes regulation and bureaucratic interference...."

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., an opponent, said that "precisely what the (amendment) is attempting to do (is) to avoid the presentation provision of the Constitution" which, he said, mandates that any action requiring the concurrence of both houses goes to the president for his possible veto.

Members voting "yea" wanted Congress to be able to cancel certain EPA regulations.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Gramm, Archer, Pickle, Leath, Wright, Hightower, Wyatt, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Paul, Kazen, Frost and Lujan voted "yea."

Eckhardt, Brooks, de la Garza, Leland and Gonzalez voted "nay."

Runnels did not vote.

GOP BUDGET By a vote of 187 for and 207 against, the House rejected a Republican motion to cut $7.9 billion out of the 1980 federal budget of $547.6 billion.

The proposal, offered during consideration of a budget resolution (S Con Res 53) later given final approval, would have cut all areas of federal spending except defense and veterans programs.

Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, the sponsor, said: "The American people can no longer afford $30 billion budget deficits, 13 per cent inflation, and rising unemployment."

Rep. Robert Gianimo, D-Conn., an opponent, said it was too late in the laborious budget process to propose sweeping cuts. "This great grandstand play of the Republican motion would have the American people think that one can save money by voting for it. Nonsense, nonsense, nonsense."

Members voting "nay" opposed the budget-cut proposal.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Gramm, Archer, Pickle, Leath, Wyatt, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Paul and Lujan voted "yea."

Roberts, Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Wright, Hightower, de la Garza, Conzalez, Kazen and Frost voted "nay."

Leland and Runnels did not vote.

SENATE

WINDFALL EXEMPTION The Senate voted 53 for and 41 against to exempt most oil pumped by companies involved only in the production aspect of the oil industry from the proposed "windfall" tax on increased oil profits.

The amendment was offered to HR 3919, which was headed for approval and conference with the House. The first 1,000 barrels per day produced by each so-called "independent" would be exempt from the new tax on additional profits resulting from the abolition of price controls.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., sponsor of the amendment, said independent producers need a tax break to finance exploration. "It is not a question of doing anyone a favor," he said.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., an opponent, said the amendment would satisfy only "the understandable desire of these active businessmen to increase their already considerable profits."

Senators voting "yea" favored exempting most production by independent producers from the windfall-profits tax.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D, John Tower, R, Pete Domenici, R (N.M.), and Harrison Schmitt, R (N.M.), voted "yea."

RAILROAD MONEY By a vote of 54 for and 41 against, the Senate tabled and thus killed an amendment to apply $10 billion of the windfall-profits tax to the revitalization of the nation's passenger and freight railroad systems. The amendment was proposed to the oil taxation bill (HR 3919; see previous vote). The $10 billion was to have come from the $128 billion the windfall-profits tax on oil revenues is expected to raise between 1980 and 1990. Already, in an energy-conservation move, the Senate has agreed that up to $15 billion of the tax will go to mass-transit programs.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., a supporter of killing the amendment, said: "It may very well be that the best way to rehabilitate the railroads would be with a loan guarantee program rather than" by earmarking appropriations as proposed in this amendment.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., an opponent of tabling, said: "We have developed major air and water thoroughfares. We put men on the moon. We have demonstrated a technical capability that is the envy of the world. But...it is a conservative statement to say that we have got a third-rate rail system."

Senators voting "nay" favored earmarking part of the windfall-profits tax yield for rail development.

Bentsen, Tower, Domenici and Schmitt voted "yea."

STATE FOUND IN CONTEMPT

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The state of Rhode Island has been found in contempt of a federal judge's prison-reform order that had set Sept. 1 as the completion date for an addition to its medium-security prison. Chief U.S. District Court Judge Raymond J. Pettine said Monday the state would be fined $1,000-a-day if the project were not finished by Dec. 22.

FORMER MAYOR CHARGED

NEW YORK (AP) — John D. Steele, former mayor of Hallendale, Fla., who just finished a jail term for smuggling marijuana, has been charged with alleged distribution of $250,000 worth of the depressant drug methaqualone. Police said Steele, 55, was arrested last Thursday in Manhattan after he and another man allegedly tried to sell 25,000 methaqualone tablets to a federal undercover agent. Marketed under the trade name Quaalude, the pills have a street value of about $10 each.

Threat Of Shooting Seen On Hostages

unity on the Iranian side, and it involved him.

Khomeini's ruling Revolutionary Council announced plans to strip Ghotbzadeh of his powerful post as head of the state radio and television service, replacing him with a "council" of which he would be a member.

Ghotbzadeh has followed a hard line in the U.S.-Iran crisis but has left the door open to negotiation, and the broadcast job has been a powerful propaganda forum for him. His predecessor as foreign affairs chief, Abolhassan Bani Sadr, was dropped by Khomeini after his conciliatory attitude apparently angered some Revolutionary Council members. Both Ghotbzadeh and Bani Sadr are members of the Council.

The government Tuesday continued to report a massive "yes" vote in Sunday and Monday's referendum on a new constitution that gives virtually absolute power to the 79-year-old Khomeini for life.

By Tuesday night officials reported that votes from 5.3 million of the estimated 20 million eligible voters were counted and 99.5 percent were in favor. Final results are not expected for at least a week.

Officials continued to claim a big "yes" vote by the ethnic minorities in autonomy-seeking Kurdistan, Azerbaijan and Baluchistan regions, where some leaders had called for a boycott of the voting. But there were reports of referendum-related violence in Tabriz, capital of Azerbaijan.

According to official returns for Tabriz, some 390,000 people voted in the city of 600,000 and all but 2,000 said "yes." Figures released for Kurdistan and Baluchistan also indicated an enthusiastic response.

But Interior Minister Hajoteleslam Hashemi Rafsanjani conceded in a newspaper interview there was opposition among minority groups.

At the United Nations, U.S. Ambassador Donald F. McHenry, addressing the council after the vote, said, "We hope that this call of the Security Council will be heeded and carried out by the government of Iran in a matter of hours." He was asked at a news conference later if his mention of hours meant he was setting a deadline, and replied, "I've never seen anything accomplished by impatience."

Iran, which refused to send an ambassador to the emergency council sessions, announced last week it would ignore any U.N. action on the hostage issue. Iran's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, and the militants who have held the hostages since Nov. 4, have said they will be tried as spies if the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is not returned to Iran from the United States.

The Security Council resolution, adoped at the fourth consecutive day of urgent meetings, calls on Iran to free the hostages "to provide them protection and allow them to leave the country."

It also asked Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to "lend his good offices for the immediate implementation of this resolution and to take all appropriate measures to this end."

There is no mention of sanctions or use of force in the resolution, which expressed deep concern "at the dangerous level of tension" between Iran and America "which could have grave consequences for international peace and security."

While Iran, as a U.N. member, is technically obliged to obey the council's resolution, such resolutions are frequently disregarded.

Asked after the meeting what effect he thought the resolution would have, Waldheim said, "I think it was very important that the international community express its views on the subject."

The resolution's reference to the responsibility of states to refrain from "the threat or use of force" was taken from the U.N. charter. The United States reportedly resisted stronger phrasing in order to keep in force the right of self-defense, also contained in the charter and referred to recently by President Carter in connection with the Iranian situation.

Don't Eliminate Remedies

McHenry was asked about that part of the resolution and replied, "In a difficult situation you do not in advance eliminate any of the remedies which are available to you."

He said that once the hostages are released, the United States would be "fully prepared to cooperate" with the resolution's call for America and Iran "to take urgent steps to resolve peacefully the remaining issues between them."

Tuesday's session lasted only 20 minutes, with the members hearing speakers from Portugal and Greece before voting. During the four days, speakers representing 34 nations including the Soviet Union and China endorsed U.S. demands tha the hostges be released immediately.

Waldheim told the council, "If the spirit and intentions of this council guide the parties concerned, I am confident that with patience and determination we can resolve the crisis and remove the threat to peace."

Call For Restraint

He stressed the resolution's call for restraint and said he would explore "intensively and with moderation" the means he would use in carrying out its mandate.

McHenry, speaking at a news conference after the council adjourned, declined to say what measures the secretary general might take.

"I think that you will see in the next day or so an evolution of his approach, but I never want to be presumptuous," he said.

Iran declined to send a representative to the urgent council's urgent sessions despite their delay for six days to permit a high-ranking official to come from Tehran. Former acting Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr had been expected to head a delegation from Iran, but was replaced by Sadegh Ghotbzadeh shortly before he would have made the trip.

In refusing to send a representative, Ghotbzadeh claimed the council was under the control of the United States.

The resolution's mandate to Waldheim is broad, authorizing "all appropriate measures."

This would empower him to negotiate with Iranian authorities, to travel to Iran or send a representative there or adopt other strategies to resolve the crisis.

Waldheim was told to "report urgently" to the council "on developments regarding his efforts."

The resolution reaffirms "the solemn obligation of all states" to the Vienna Conventions of 1961 and 1962 "to respect the inviolability of diplomatic personnel and the premises of their missions."

The five permanent council members are the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China. The nonpermanent members now serving are Bangladesh, Kuwait, Czechoslovakia, Bolivia, Jamaica, Nigeria, Norway, Portugal, Gabon and Zambia.

CANDIDATES AGAIN — President Carter and Vice President Walter F. Mondale smile after the president's announcement in the East Room of the White House Tuesday that he is a candidate for re-election. (AP Laserphoto)

Carter Opens Fight For Second Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, formally launching his fight for another term in the White House, said Tuesday night the crisis with Iran that has delayed his campaign plans "may not be resolved easily or quickly."

In a five-minute paid political broadcast on CBS television, Carter said the fate of 50 American hostages in Tehran could hang in the balance so long that "our patience and sense of unity may waver as frustration builds up among us."

The president did not elaborate. But after speaking of hostages in "agony and danger," he declared:

"I have a personal responsibility to get them out of that danger as fast as possible."

The broadcast followed a muted declaration of candidacy that Carter made Tuesday afternoon in the East Room of the White House.

"Somber Time"

Saying then that his stewardship of the nation's affairs has resulted in scars, which he carries "with pride," Carter spoke of "a somber time" when hostages are held by "a mob and a government that have become one and the same."

In his evening broadcast, Carter referred to his postponement of campaign plans and said, "While the crisis continues, I must be present to define and to lead our response to an ever-changing situation of the greatest sensitivity and importance."

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the television appearance was keyed to 2,800 Carter fund-raisers, many held in private homes around the country. Had there not been this connection, he said, the broadcast would have been canceled.

Subdued Money Appeal

In his remarks, which were filmed on Sunday, Carter made a rather subdued appeal for money, saying:

"While there are certain clear advantages to campaigning as president, they are symbolic and historic rather than financial. The president, like all other candidates, needs campaign contributions."

First Lady Rosalynn Carter, pinchhitting for her husband at a fundraising gala in Washington, soke at lengthabout the crisis in Iran and said the country should be proud of the way Carter is handling it.

"The actions of the leaders in Iran are totally outside the bounds of international law, and for the whole world to see," Mrs. Carter said. "But also for the world to see is this nation and our president acting with calmness, with courage, and with measured action."

Mrs. Carter said the president was "very sorry" he couldn't attend the dinner, which was expected to raise more than $800,000, and that he would like to do nothing better than discuss the political issues of the campaign.

"But, for now, such discussions fall to others," she said. "There is another more immediate concern for us all."

Earlier, Powell had rebuffed suggestions that Carter was milking the Iranian crisis for votes.

The press secretary said the president felt he had to raise the Iran issue in his five-minute message on CBS, but that he did not do it "in a partisan way."

"I don't see how the president could deal with much of anything without speaking about what's on everyone's minds," Powell said.

Delay Preferred

At the brief East Room ceremony earlier Tuesday, Carter said he "would have preferred to postpone this announcement until another time." But he said election laws in some states forced him to act now.

"Therefore," Carter said, "I declare that I am a candidate for re-election as president of the United States of America."

Carter also asked fellow Democrats to renominate Walter F. Mondale, "the most effective vice president in American history."

The president, who spoke for less than eight minutes in the East Room, appeared before relatives, staff aides and a delegation from campaign headquarters. Mondale was with him. The low-key event contrasted sharply with Carter's original plans.

Before events in Iran intervened, the president had intended to invite prominent supporters from across the nation to the White House and to spend the evening at a fund-raising gala at a Washington hotel. Then he was going to embark on four days of campaigning in six states from Maine to Texas.

Although the fund-raiser was on Carter's announced schedule for the day, Powell said the president would not attend because he "simply felt his presence there would not be appropriate under the circumstances."

San Antonio Refuses Anti-Shah Marches

reported to Immigration and Naturalization Service," he added.

The city weighed constitutional rights of the students before making the decision and is prepared to deal with any challenge in the federal courts, the city manager added.

The refusal of the two permit requests was not a blanket action, Huebner said, adding, "With anything relating to the Iranian situation, it would be wise to have no demonstrations."

The shah — the focus of the controversy — was recuperating Tuesday in comfortable, heavily-guarded VIP quarters "deep inside" the 6,828-acre base southwest of San Antonio. He is shielded during his indefinite stay by tight government secrecy and layers of Air Force and FBI security.

Militant Iranian students holding 50 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are demanding the return of the shah to Iran for trial. The United States government refuses and is attempting to find the shah a permanent place of residence.

There are nearly 300 Iranian students in San Antonio, almost all enrolled at San Antonio College. There were small, peaceful anti-shah demonstrations at the college last summer, but the students said in their permit application Monday that about 400 protesters were expected Friday.

Mayor Lila Cockrell and city officials, unexpectedly thrust into the middle of the Iranian crisis when the shah was brought here without warning, fear violence if the students are allowed to protest.

"There is a clear and present danger in San Antonio," said City Councilman Bernardo Eureste. "When I found out the shah was in town, I knew we were headed for difficulties."

"I'm against issuing anybody a parade permit. I don't care if it is Iranians or the klan," said council member Helen Dutmer. "I'm very much afraid for the safety of the hostages in Iran and I'm afraid for the safety of our own citizens."

Louis Linden, attorney for the Iranian students, says he also fears violence, and has advised the students to use passive resistance if confronted by counter-demonstrators. Linden says the city can't legally deny the permit and said earlier he planned to file suit if that happens.

Others also seek to demonstrate. A member of the Socialist Workers Party said Tuesday that an anti-shah, "peaceful picket line" is planned Thursday at City Hall. Ben Saenz, 30, a machinist and Vietnam veteran stalked into the city manager's office Tuesday and demanded a counter-demonstration permit. "I represent the American people," said Saenz. "I'll face them alone with swinging fists if I have to."

imperialist struggle" against the United States.

But the Saudis have pledged to keep up oil production to help the United States, now that Iranian oil is unavailable to U.S. firms, and the Saudi government appears sensitive to events across the Persian Gulf in Iran.

That sensitivity evidentally has been heightened by reports of "sporadic violence" in the kingdom's oil-rich eastern provinces during last week's Shiite religious festival.

Some deaths occurred when Saudi security forces quelled demonstrations that began to get out of hand, according to diplomatic reports.

Diplomats said some demonstrations north of the Saudi oil center of Dhahran were in support of Khomeini, leader of the world's Shiite sect, a minority in the Arab world where the Sunni sect is predominant.

Early Tuesday, the Saudis announced the end to the 14-day siege of the Grand Mosque at Mecca, taken over Nov. 20 by heavily armed religious fanatics.

Saudi Interior Minister Prince Nayef Bin Abdul Aziz said security forces had flushed the last of the initial 200 to 500 fanatics out of tunnels below the mosque.

Death Penalty Plan Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee approved a new federal death penalty law Tuesday after passing a sweeping revision of federal criminal laws.

Officials of the American Civil Liberties Union immediately branded the action part of a "political deal" by Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Edward Kennedy. A Kennedy aide denied the charge.

The death penalty measure, approved by the committee on a 7-4 vote, would authorize the death sentence for first degree murder, treason, espionage and aircraft hijacking in which human life is taken.

While various states have passed death penalty laws to meet Supreme Court guidelines, the federal government has not.

David Landau, a Washington representative of the ACLU, said the committee action was a complete surprise to death penalty opponents.

"It was just a political deal that was cut by Senator Kennedy to get the criminal code bill out of committee," Landau said.

Ken Feinberg, a Kennedy aide, denied that there was any agreement to vote on the death penalty Tuesday in return for approval of the code. Kennedy voted against the death penalty measure.

The criminal code revision, which Kennedy has listed as one of his top priorities, was approved by the committee on a 13-1 vote.

In last-minute action before approving the bill, the committee voted to double the penalties for sale of marijuana, raising the maximum sentence to 10 years. The panel agreed to hold further hearings on the penalties for private possession. Kennedy cast the lone vote against this motion.

Two-Front Threat Hits Begin

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin's shaky coalition was threatened on two fronts Tuesday as West Bank settlers debated a government evacuation order and an Orthodox religious party demanded tighter abortion laws.

The settlers, after round-the-clock discussion, submitted their response to a government demand they unconditionally evacuate Elon Moreh, which was declared illegal by the Israeli Supreme Court. They refused to release their answer until a written version was in Begin's hands.

Israeli army radio quoted Elon Moreh leader Benny Katzover as saying "the spirit of the decision is to voluntarily evacuate" the settlement without conditions. However, Israel Radio said the settlers would not move without compromise from Begin.

On the second front, the Orthodox Agudat Israel party threatened to pull its four members of parliament out of Begin's coalition unless the government imposes tighter restrictions on abortions. A walkout would leave Begin with 61 votes in the 120-member Knesset.

Begin's government has given settlers until the end of the year to move to another hilltop six miles from Elon Moreh, sponsored by the nationalist organization Gush Emunim.

The settlers refused to say whether they would leave unconditionally or would move only if the government changes the classification of the West Bank from occupied territories.

Although the area was seized from Jordan in the 1967 war, Gush Emunim argues it should be ruled part of Israel because it was part of the British Palestine mandate until 1948 and was within the boundaries of Biblical Israel. It also wants a law broadening conditions for Israeli settlers to seize Arab-owned land. Current law allows seizures only for security reasons.

Sources close to Begin said the prime minister could not retain control over the government if he ordered the army to evict the settlers by force. The cabinet approved the settlement site and seized land from Arabs for Elon Moreh, but the Supreme Court later ruled the expropriations violated international law on occupied lands.

Iran Bans Oil Payment In Dollars, Eyes Hike

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Iran stepped up its economic warfare with the United States Tuesday by officially forbidding foreign companies from paying for oil with dollars and announcing it will raise oil prices in 10 days.

The latest Iranian currency move effectively isolated Iran, once a major American trading partner and political ally, from the dollar. Local banks already have been freezing non-oil transactions undertaken in dollars.

Finance Minister Abol Hassan Bani-Sadr, who was also foreign minister until recently, last month announced Iran would no longer accept dollars for oil purchases. Tuesday's announcement by the central bank officially implemented the policy.

In a separate move, Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinfar Tuesday said Iran will announce new prices for its oil — meaning an unspecified increase — in 10 days, following consultations with other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries but before the cartel's regular meeting Dec. 17.

Moinfar said that fellow producers would almost certainly refuse to increase their own production to cover Iranian cutbacks and several nations were likely to reduce output in another blow to world demand.

At a special meeting of Arab members of OPEC in Kuwait, diplomatic sources said Saudi Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani walked out of a meeting Tuesday in opposition to a Syrian-Libyan call for a resolution supporting the Iranian militants holding 50 Aerican hostages for 31 days.

Yamani, as well as other Arab oil producers at the talks, opposed the proposal on grounds that "OPEC is an economic and not a political organization," the sources said.

But Kuwaiti Oil Minister Sheik Ali Khalifa Al Sabah said Yamani had not walked out but had "told the conference beforehand he may leave for home because he had committments there to follow up."

On Monday, Yamani said OPEC was considering replacing the dollar with a basket of currencies as the currency for selling the cartel's oil, which could further weaken America's battered currency.

"The subject of (switching to) a basket of currencies may be one of the subjects to be adopted for OPEC's long range strategic plan, or OPEC may adopt it before the plan is completed or it may continue with the dollar."

Chrysler Three-Year Wage Freeze Rejected By UAW Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grass-roots leaders of United Auto Workers members who work for Chrysler Corp. rejected on Tuesday a Senate bill calling for a three-year wage freeze in return for government aid to the faltering company.

"They simply believed it was too great a price to pay," Douglas Fraser, union president, told reporters afer a closed meeting with members of the union's Chrysler Council, made up leaders from union locals at Chrysler plants.

Fraser said delegates at the meeting unanimously rejected the notion of a three-year freeze." He said the possibility of a shorter freeze was not discussed, but said the union would consider other concessions to Chrysler.

The difference revolves around suggestions by some members of Congress that Chrysler Corp.'s employees forego pay raises for three years in exchange for Capitol Hill backing for federal loan guarantees to the company.

An estimated 250 to 300 members of the United Auto Workers Chrysler Council met in a Senate hearing room and then fanned out to lobby their congressmen and senators in favor of Chrysler aid with no wage freeze. They planned a demonstration at the Capitol Wednesday.

A Treasury Department spokesman, who declined to be identified, called the wage freeze approved by the Senate Banking Committee, "unnecessarily severe" and said the Carter administration would oppose it.

More than a dozen of the union members went immediately to the office of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, who opposes any aid to Chrysler.

They crowded into a small reception room where Proxmire's administrative assistant, Howard Shuman, told them the senator was not there but would meet with Wisconsin UAW members later.

Shuman was jeered by the workers when he told them that despite the wage freeze, they would benefit from a provision of the bill setting aside Chrysler stock for them.

The bill, approved last Thursday by the Banking Committee, provides for $1.25 billion in federally loans guarantees for Chrysler, to be matched by $2.75 billion of outside assistance, including the wage freeze.

The freeze would require ratification by union members, who recently approved a three-year contract containing substantial wage hikes but making $203 million worth of concessions to Chrysler.

"They would not ratify an agreement that contains a wage freeze of three years," Fraser said.

The union chief said he met with administration officials at the White House Wednesday night and believed the administration would shortly announce that it regarded the Senate bill as "absolutely unworkable."

The Treasury spokesman said, "In our judgement the Senate bill goes too far, is too inflexible and the wage freeze unnecessarily severe. That being so, we intend to try to improve the bill."

The administration has proposed $1.5 billion in loan guarantees to be matched with $1.5 billion in non-federal assistance, not including a wage freeze. The House Banking Committee has approved this version.

The issue is not expected to reach the floor of either house until next week at the earliest.

Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, acting Senate Republican leader, said the bill could face a filibuster in the Senate from opponents of Chrysler aid.

A well-informed House source, who declined to be identified, said there was strong sentiment to modify the House bill along lines of the Senate measure.

But Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., chief Senate sponsor of the administration bill, said he would seek a compromise between it and the Senate version.

Riegle, who was invited to address the UAW delegates, said he would propose a modification of the wage freeze and a reduction of the amount of outside assistance required.

Referring to the committee measure worked out by Sens. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., and Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., Riegle said, "There is very serious doubt in my mind whether this formula can be made to work, or in fact was designed to work. It can be a plan for killing Chrysler."

Tsongas, who has said that the plan is a good-faith effort to assist the failing firm, was also visited by the UAW members.

May Helen Thompson, his press secretary, said 20 or 30 of them had a "heated discussion" about the wage freeze with Mitchell Tyson, an aide to Tsongas.

Chrysler, the nation's No. 3 automaker, has said it expects to lose about $1 billion this year.

Price Of Bail May Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission says the price of bail in Texas may be lower as a result of its agreement with two bail bondsmen's associations.

The commission announced Wednesday that the Texas Association of Professional Sureties, of Odessa, and the Association of Professional Sureties of Houston had accepted the agreement which prohibits price fixing.

A complaint prepared as part of the agreement alleged that the groups established uniform percentages for bail fees and members were then pressured to abide by the percentages.

A minimum percentage was included in the code of ethics, the complaint said.

A bail bondsman receives a fee for posting bond for a defendant in a criminal trial. The fee normally is a percentage of the bond.

NOTICE TO TELEPHONE CUSTOMERS

We are planning changes that will increase some rates to six countries and introduce a lower international dial rate to ten countries.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company (AT&T) has filed a new schedule of overseas rates with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) which accomplishes the introduction of international dialing to 10 additional countries. This brings the total of internationally dialable countries to 74. The scheduled changes include rate decreases for 10 countries and selective rate increases to 6 of those countries for calls billed on the United States mainland, to bring the overseas rate structure more closely into line with the domestic structure. In addition, it will now be possible to dial Aruba, which already has rates at the International Dial rate level. These changes are scheduled to become effective on February 17, 1980.

Increases in day and Sunday three-minute rates for five countries.

American Samoa and Bolivia The Sunday three-minute Operator Station and Person rates will be increased from $6.50 and $9.00 to $8.00 and $12.00.

Indonesia The Sunday Person rate will be eliminated, and the day three-minute Person rate will be increased from $12.00 to $13.50.

Liberia The Sunday three-minute Operator Station rate will be increased from $6.75 to $9.00. The three-minute Person rate will be increased from $12.00 to $13.50 for the day rate period and from $9.00 to $13.50 for the Sunday rate period.

Paraguay The Sunday three-minute Person rate will be increased from $9.00 to $12.00.

Increases and decreases in the three-minute and additional minute rates to one country.

Panama The day three-minute Operator Station rates applicable to Rate Zones 1 and 2 will be increased from $4.80 and $5.40 to $4.00 and $5.00. The day three-minute Operator Station rate for Rate Zone 3 remains unchanged. The rates for the evening rate period and night, Saturday and Sunday rate periods will be increased as follows: for Rate Zone 1—from $3.60 and $2.70 to $4.00; for Rate Zone 2—from $4.05 and $3.00 to $4.00; and for Rate Zone 3—from $4.50 and $3.30 to $6.00. The additional minute rate for night, Saturday and Sunday Operator Station calls for Rate Zone 2 will be increased from $.85 to $1.00 and from $.95 to $1.20 for Rate Zone 3.

Collect Calls

Operator Station collect calls to the French Antilles and Guyana will be eliminated. Person collect calls will continue. These changes are in conformity with the prevailing overseas practice. All collect calls to Bolivia will be eliminated because Bolivia has suspended collect calls to the United States.

International Dial rate

With the introduction of International Dial rates on February 17, 1980, customers can save approximately 10 to 44 percent as compared to the current lowest three-minute day call. The following table compares the lowest existing rates and the new International Dial rates.

	Operator Station		International Dial
	Initial Period	Additional Minute	Initial Period	Additional Minute
American Samoa	$8.00	$2.35	$6.00	$2.00
Bolivia	8.00	2.35	6.75	2.25
French Antilles
Rate Zone 1	5.00	1.50	3.60	1.20
Rate Zone 2	6.00	1.80	4.35	1.45
Rate Zone 3	8.00	2.35	5.85	1.95
Guyana
Rate Zone 1	6.00	1.80	5.40	1.80
Rate Zone 2	8.00	2.35	6.75	2.25
Liberia	9.00	2.60	6.75	2.25
New Caledonia	9.00	2.60	7.35	2.45
Panama
Rate Zone 1	4.80	1.40	3.00	1.00
Rate Zone 2	5.40	1.55	3.75	1.25
Rate Zone 3	6.00	1.75	4.50	1.50
Romania	9.00	2.60	6.75	2.25
	Person
Indonesia	12.00	3.40	7.35	2.45
Paraguay	13.50	3.40	6.75	2.25

It is important to note that customers calling from areas not presently equipped for International Dial will benefit from the lower dial rates even though the call would have to be completed by the operator. However, if the customer requests special operator assistance or special billing, the Operator Station rate would apply.

HEARTLINE: I have a friend who was overpaid by Social Security. It seems that she has been overpaid each month for nearly two years and now their computer has discovered the overpayment which is, according to Social Security, the result of another computer error. Is this common? Are many people actually overpaid? — K.P.

Does the sun rise in the east? Is water wet? Yes, overpayments to Social Security recipients are common — expensively common.

According to statistics turned up by Heartline, some 967,000 retirement, survivor's and disability insurance benefits recipients were overpaid by more than $536 million in 1977.

The Social Security Administration identified 3.2 million incidents of overpayments to SSI beneficiaries totaling nearly $1.5 billion. Of this, $443 million was waived; $295.8 million has been collected and $148 million is now being collected. Recovery efforts were suspended on $147.7 million, and $5.9 million is being adjusted.

Most recipients of retirement, survivor's and disability insurance benefits were overpaid because they had earned more than the maximum permitted by law. As long as these beneficiaries continue to be eligible for benefits, the SSA can recover a sizable portion of the overpayment through adjustments of future benefit checks.

The FDA began a program in July 1979 limiting the amount of calories in foods being shipped across state lines to 40 per serving. All labels must show the number of calories, the amounts of protein, carbohydrates and fat in each serving, as well as U.S. recommended daily allowances for vitamins and minerals.

I have not seen a policy such as this and just wondered if any exist. — D.Z.

Yes. There are a few that will pay 20 percent of the doctor's actual charges. Heartline has been investigating the Medicare sueplement insurance industry for years. Senate Votes To Increase Oil Industry Windfall Profits Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to increase the "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry by $22.5 billion.

The vote on the amendment, sponsored by Sens. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and John Chafee, R-R.I., and supported by the Carter administration, was 58-35.

By a 68-26 margin, senators also accepted an amendment by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., to phase out the tax in the late 1990s, rather than in the late 1980s as the Finance Committee had recommended.

By changing the phaseout formula, Moynihan's provision would add $3 billion to $5 billion to the tax in the 1980s. Conceivably, it could cost the oil industry still another $60 billion or more in the 1990s.

The two amendments would increase the tax in the Senate bill to as much as $157 billion over the next decade. That still is far short of the $277 billion level passed by the House and preferred by President Carter.

But Moynihan, a proponent of the higher tax, told colleagues the Bradley-Chafee amendment was only the first step toward toughening the tax.

"With this vote, the Senate commences to enact a windfall profits tax that the president has asked for ... and that the world expects," Moynihan said.

The amendment would increase the tax on about 60 percent of U.S. oil production — that from fields on which pumping began between 1973 and 1978. The tax on that oil would go from the 60 percent favored by the Senate Finance Committee to 75 percent.

Most of the $22.5 billion would be taken from the giant oil companies, and the biggest effect would be felt in Alaska.

The Bradley-Chafee amendment would more than restore the $10 billion in revenue that was lost last week when the Senate voted to exempt from the bill the first 1,000 barrels of oil pumped each day by an independent producer. That exemption would not benefit major oil companies.

A new element in the debate over the "windfall" tax was introduced Tuesday by several Republicans. They offered an amendment that would force individual and business tax cuts totaling $186 billion in 1981 through 1984 by limiting the federal government's share of the national wealth.

"We want to make sure that whatever level of windfall tax we bring in, we will return part of it to the people," Sen. William Roth, R-Del., told reporters.

An amendment sponsored by Roth and Sens. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and John Danforth, R-Mo., would cut the federal share of the Gross National Product from its present 20.6 percent to 20.5 percent in 1981, 20 percent in 1982, and 19.5 percent in 1983 and 1984.

Video Surveillance Called For To Prevent Jail Suicides

BOSTON (AP) — A prisoner hanged himself in a police station holding cell Tuesday — the fourth suicide within two weeks and the sixth this year — and investigators called for use of electronic surveillance to help prevent any more such incidents.

The most recent victim was William F. Hines, 35, who was found hanging by his shoe laces. He had been arrested for drunkeness. All four recent victims have hanged themselves from pieces of clothing tied to bars in their cell doors.

Investigators recommended a series of precautions to Police Commissioner Joseph Jordan that included covering the bars in the upper cell doors with steel screening, stepping up half-hour cell checks to every 20 minutes and calling in medical teams when prisoners showed signs of depression.

After arrest, prisoners are confined in holding cells at district police stations for part of a day or night.

Theft Seminar Reveals Tips On Curtailing Shoplifting

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Merchants who follow the good sales practices of courtesy and attentiveness have the best chance to curtail shoplifting during the busy holiday season, a group of retailers were told Tuesday at a theft seminar.

And if merchants adhere to the lawful practice of apprehending a suspected shoplifter after that person leaves the store, the more likely the case could be prosecuted, said a representative from the Criminal District Attorneys Office.

"The best way to show intent in the prosecution of a theft case is to let the suspected shoplifter get the merchandise out of the store before trying to apprehend them. And we have to show intent to prove that person was stealing," Travis Ware said.

Ware, detective Earl Rankin of the Lubbock Police Department and defense attorney George Thompson were on hand Tuesday to discuss shoplifting and possible deterrents and merchant's liabilities at the seminar being sponsored by the Small Business Adminstration, South Plains Mall Association of Retailers and the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Also making a brief appearance at the seminar was Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford, who told the group that the policy of his office was to prosecute all shoplifting cases, whether it involved the theft of a "tractor or a nail file."

A short film introducing the group to the most common methods used by shoplifters and some of the best deterrents availble to merchandisers preceded the discussion by experts in law enforcement.

Appearing in the film was actor Mike Connors, better known for his television detective series "Mannix," who told the audience that the "one sure give away of all shoplifters are their eyes.

"They're (shoplifters) watching people instead of merchandise, waiting for the best possible moment to lift the merchandise," the actor said.

He told the retailers that the best deterrents to shoplifting were the way merchandise is displayed, using mirrors to watch all areas of the store, closed-circuit television cameras, and wafer tags that sound an alarm when the merchandise is taken out of the store.

The actor also said that dressing rooms are the most common areas where shoplifters practice their trade by putting on a number of garments so they won't be detected.

He said the best deterrent to this method of shoplifting was to limit the number of garments allowed in dressing rooms and make sure those garments are returned to a sales clerk after they're tried on.

Det. Earl Rankin pointed out to the retailers that each shoplifter had his own way of stealing and that the biggest problem of shoplifting during the holiday season was that employees are too busy to keep their eyes on all shoppers.

He warned the retailers to keep their eyes on persons wearing large coats when the weather is warm, those with loose-fitting clothing and those carrying large sacks when they enter the store.

He particularly warned them of keeping a close eye on persons with receipts, because they may be using those receipts to steal merchandise.

Rankin related a recent case where a man went into a local grocery store, bought a pack of cigarettes and used the receipt to attempt to take a large console television set by telling a sales person he had a receipt for the item. Rankin said you could stop this practice just by looking at the sales slip.

Ware pointed out that to prosecute the case fully, the district attorneys office needs the testimony of both the employee who witnessed the theft and the owner or designated department manager where the merchandise is sold.

He also said a shoplifting case can still be prosecuted if the suspect tries to make restitution when he is apprehended. He advised retailers not to accept restitution and to take a written statement if possible.

Defense attorney George Thompson, who praised Montford's tough policy on shoplifting, warned that force should not be used by any store employee when apprehending a suspected shoplifter because the store could be legally liable if it is a wrongful arrest. He said the suspected shoplifter could sue the store for false arrest and be awarded civil as well as punitive damages.

He said the best way to approach a suspected shoplifter is to wait until he leaves the store, then ask him to return to the store to straighten things out without trying to physically apprehend him.

In answer to one woman's question, Thompson said you'd be taking a big chance of liability if the store allowed employees to use mace when apprehending a suspected shoplifter.

Iranians Living In Lubbock To Face Hearings In Dallas On Deportation

An Iranian family living in Lubbock has been scheduled for deportation hearings in Dallas next month for alleged violation of their visas.

Seyed Abbas Azima, 34, and his wife Fatemeh, 29, are scheduled to appear before an administrative judge of the Immigration and Naturalization Service Jan. 22 in Dallas.

Azima, who graduated from Texas Tech in July with a degree in mechanical engineering, is charged with accepting employment upon completion of his studies rather than returning to Iran, local Border Patrol agent Billy Rowe said this morning.

Azima is employed by a Lubbock construction firm. The couple has a son, 7, and a daughter, 9.

Azima and his wife must appear before the judge, but the children are exempt from the actual hearing process. His wife and children are classified as dependents and are therefore subject to any move to deport him.

Rowe said Azima came in to the Border Patrol office Tuesday on his own. Azima reportedly told Rowe that he intended to return to Texas Tech for further study.

However, Rowe indicated that Azima probably just didn't want to return to Iran.

"I think I have good factual allegations against him," Rowe said. "But that's subject to a judge, just like any court."

Lubbock Duo Indicted In Mail Fraud

Arrest warrants have been issued for two former Lubbock men charged in a nine-count mail fraud indictment handed down by an Amarillo federal grand jury.

Jerry Bob Owens, 31, and Michael Ray Townley, 34, are charged in the indictment with selling non-existent bottled water dispensers through the mail to residents of Dallas, San Antonio and Midland.

The indictment alleges the men, who formed a corporation under the name Chrystal Springs Water Inc., received $13,160 in payments for the dispensers between April 1, 1976, and Oct. 30, 1976. The corporation listed Lubbock addresses at 2124 50th St., Suite 3, and Court Place Building, 1001 Main St., Suite 526, according to the indictment.

The corporation was formed to contract for the sale of the water dispensers and to allow clients to invest in the suspects' purified water dispensing business, the indictment says.

Potential clients were promised the dispensers would be installed free of charge on location within 90 days of the purchase date, with a guarantee of full refund if the machines had not been delivered within 180 days, the indictment says.

Clients were guaranteed an income of $300 per month from the dispensers after they had been installed, according to the indictment. The men allegedly failed to deliver the dispensers and failed to make refunds requested by customers.

The indictment also alleges the men placed advertisements in "various newspapers" and that Owens used several aliases in his business dealings.

Owens and Townley also allegedly received checks for $3,160 and $2,500 from two Dallas men and a check for $5,000 from a San Antonio resident.

An assistant U.S. attorney said the pair had not been arrested Tuesday afternoon.

The indictment was handed down by a 19-member federal grand jury, which met in Amarillo last week.

Key Street Stop Signs Emphasized

There have been few problems at most of the 18 intersections where traffic lights were replaced with stop signs a month ago, but a spate of collisions at 16th Street and Avenue J has spurred city officials into action.

Since the traffic lights were turned off Nov. 2 at the recommendation of a traffic engineering consultant, there have been seven collisions at 16th and J, the most recent Monday.

City Planning Director Jim Bertram said the most wrecks at any of the other intersections were two at 23rd Street and Texas Avenue, with the most recent two weeks ago.

As a result of the accidents, city workers Tuesday began installing red stop buttons in a line at the intersection, larger stop signs to the side of the intersection and stop signs on mast-arms over the intersection.

"I don't know why they're not seeing the stop signs," Bertram said.

Bertram said the city will continue to monitor accidents at each of the 18 intersections to determine whether corrective action should be taken at other sites.

Chartered Life Underwriters Slate Seminar On Thursday

The Lubbock Chapter of Chartered Life Underwriters has scheduled a seminar at 3 p.m. Thursday at the Ramada Inn, 5845 South Ave. Q.

Cody H. Phillips, J.D., vice president of American Founders Life Insurance Co., will be moderator of the program. The program will deal with estate planning payment extensions.

Phillips is a member of the Travis County Bar Association, Texas Bar Association, Austin Association of Life Underwriters, National Association of Life Underwriters, and LUPAC (Century Club), Central Texas Estate Planning Council.

He is a graduate of Baylor University and the University of Arizona College of Law. Phillips has taught trust and estate planning for the American Institute of Banking, in addition to seminars and courses in pensions, estate planning, investments and taxation for various groups.

Garage Apartments Phase-Out Delayed

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Participants at a public hearing last week convinced a Planning and Zoning Commission subcommittee to abandon for now a suggested phase-out of garage apartments, but some action on the apartments is still forthcoming.

Meeting Tuesday, three of the five subcommittee members agreed the apartments have a net detrimental effect on neighborhoods zoned for single family residences and duplexes.

With that agreement, the subcommittee decided some system of enforcement should begin against those apartments not in apartment zones. That enforcement should begin with the most detrimental apartments and progress toward the least detrimental, the three decided.

The subcommittee also agreed all garage apartments should be registered with the city and the present zoning ordinance provision which permits servants quarters under certain conditions should be modified.

City Planning Director Jim Bertram said his staff would begin working on a method of classifying the apartments on their detrimental effect, but enforcement efforts in that direction would be limited until a registration program is implemented.

"Somehow we've got to find a way of classifying the existing units as to their degree of detriment and filter the obvious ones to the top," he said.

"To have a defendable enforcement position, we need to start with the ones that have the worse effect."

Qualities which might determine the detriment of an apartment could include housing code violations, the condition of the unit and the number of occupants.

By starting enforcement with those units considered most detrimental, Bertram said apartment owners would have a positive incentive to maintain their property.

Because of limited manpower, he said the city might never get around to taking action against those units which are not detrimental.

However, the proposed amortization of apartments would give owners a negative incentive to improve the apartments, Bertram said.

The enforcement of the zoning ordinance against the most detrimental apartments should be combined with continued efforts to halt any future conversions of accessory buildings to apartments, he said.

Such a plan has the potential for receiving popular support from those affected, Bertram said.

There will be at least two additional public hearings on any recommendation the subcommittee makes to the full planning commission, he said. The City Council will make the final decision on how the apartment issue should be handled.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm really sorry you found that old song of mine crude and offensive. Actually, "Cold Ethyl" is just a harmless number about necrophilia.

The point I want to make is that the kids are not bothered by this — their parents are. The kids see the song and gruesome antics, like with the guillotine, for exactly what it is — satire, done with a sense of humor to a rock 'n roll beat.

Kids know I am harmless. It's their parents that make me out to be some kind of a monster. I would like to see you print this in your column, Ann. — Sincerely, Alice Cooper

Dear Alice Cooper: Thank you for writing.

For those who don't know what necrophilia is, it's sexual intercourse with someone who is dead. You can call it funny if you want to, Alice. I call it sick.

I like satire as much as the next person, but chopping off heads and spurting blood all over the place is not my idea of entertainment. I caught your guillotine number in Chicago several years ago and almost lost my supper. (Guess I'm an uncool cat.)

You have in your group some exceptionally talented performers and you're no slouch yourself, Alice . . . I just wish you'd clean up your act.

Here's another letter on the same subject. I received thousands — mostly for your side and against mine.

Ann Landers: I refuse to call you "dear" because you have criticized the lyrics to rock 'n roll songs.

I am 17 years of age and have grown up with rock 'n roll. It isn't one bit dirty. It's the way people of this generation think and talk. Anyone who sees something filthy in rock 'n roll lyrics must have a polluted mind.

Some rock 'n roll songs have a beautiful philosophy. They tell about being good to animals and neighbors and friends and even parents and brothers and sisters.

If you want to go after the real filth that people are hooked on, take a look at the soap operas. That's YOUR generation, not ours. I bet you'll never print this. — A Former Fan

Dear Former: You lose. Read on.

Dear Ann Landers: I was delighted to see a letter in a recent column complaining about the filthy lyrics in rock music. But why stop there? Have you listened to the lyrics of today's country music?

Since reading that letter I have listened to our local country station for an hour or so. Have you paid any attention to the lyrics of "Good Things," "I Can't Wait," "Put Your Clothes On Girl," "I Talk in My Sleep," "Behind Closed Doors"? Add to that, "Gotta Have Some Hot Stuff."

Our problem is not our young people, it's the adults. And topping the problem are the songwriters and promoters of this trash. The man was no fool who said, "I'd rather write America's songs than make her laws." He knew where the real power of influence was. — Yes, I've Heard Those Lyrics

Dear Yes: Thanks for your comments. I shall remain silent. It took weeks to respond to the angry complaints from rock 'n roll fans. I am in no shape to take on the lovers of country music.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

A lot of parents go through the phase where their children go to college and two weeks later want to have their parents tested for irregular flow of oxygen to the brain. Adults don't know anything.

Oh, I can take the humiliation of kids asking, "Do you understand what I mean by the term 'bottom line'?"

I can handle the condescending way they spell in front of me. I can even endure their impatience when they ask me something and when I don't hear it they shout, "Never mind!"

What I can't stand is their sanctimonious superiority. They all go through it. We no sooner got one child raised who didn't know how we managed to feed ourselves without a working knowledge of statistics than we had to live through an economics expert.

God has now chosen to send us a son who is majoring in "cinema."

Forget the home movies. We stopped showing those two years ago when we asked him to splice together some of our shots of South America. We own the shortest home movie ever recorded in the Guinness Book of Records. As he said, "There was only ten feet of film that had any quality to it whatsoever. I cannot believe you left home without a tripod."

What really gets to me is that I can't enjoy a movie anymore without his Ronacizing it.

Son: "Seen any movies lately?"

Mom: "'The Seduction of Joe Tynan' and I loved it."

Son: "Just missed making a statement."

Mom: "...up to a point. Of course the one I really liked was 'Apocalypse Now' which was breathtakingly..."

Son: Coppola had a concept but it didn't work.

Mom: "...dull. You're absolutely right. Of course 'Luna' was a shakeup for me, really gross..."

Son: "Beautiful film. Sensitive and real."

Mom: "...ed a million according to the critics and worth every penny of it."

Son: "What about 'Life of Brian'?"

Mom: "I haven't seen it, but the Clawsons saw it and walked out of the theatre..."

Son: "Most brilliant piece of satire to come across the screen since Chaplin."

Mom: "...laughing. My gosh, they couldn't stop."

Son: "I'd be interested in comparing your notes on '10.' Or did you relate at all to the metaphor?"

With luck, maybe I'll outgrow him.

Famous Clown Discusses Life

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK (NEA) — It was "pack-up" night at the circus and as Peggy Williams left the building, she saw one of the bear trainer's bruins — in bow-tie and shorts — leaning against the door. "He said, 'Wally left me,' and I said, 'Listen, you want a ride to the next town?' So he hopped in my car. I said, 'You have to wear the seatbelt,' and he said, 'Okay.'"

At Ringling Bros.' next stop, she said, "'Boy, is Wally going to be surprised when he realizes he forgot you,' and the bear said, 'Do you think he forgot or he meant to leave me?' I said, 'Are you kidding? Come on,' and I took him by the paw and knocked on Wally's door — and then I woke up."

She leans back in her chair in a make-shift office upstairs at Madison Square Garden and laughs.

Ordinarily, Miss Williams would be at a typewriter now, between shows, maybe turning her bear dream into a children's short story for a correspondent school writing course she's taking.

"I like short stories because the gags (scenes and stunts) I do in the show end in four minutes. And I give life to inanimate objects in my stories which is what I do in clowning: a prop has life in clowning."

She's in jeans and a shirt and the white-face clown make-up — red nose and mouth, blue tear drops, no eyebrows — she wears 12-16 hours a day, six days a week in 13 shows, performed in a total of 95 American cities every two years.

The makeup is her trademark, she says ("Clowns only change costumes"), devised nine years ago when she was a student at the Barnum & Bailey Clown College in Venice, Fla. "I wanted to study pantomime with Marcel Marceau, but I didn't have the money and the Clown College was advertising that it was accepting females then."

She was 20, a speech pathology graduate from the University of Madison, Wis., her home.

For five years now, she's been teaching at the Clown College what she learned in that eight week course, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. (lunch and dinner included), six days a week: how to take a pratfall, tumble, stilt walk and ride elephants, how to move comedically — alone, in duets, trios, etc. — "We study old movies," how to create costumes, your own particular clown face, how to work with explosives. "With all the gun powder we use, we could burn down a building."

And how to live in a tightly disciplined society of 300 performers and crew, where several languages are spoken, where "everything revolves around the circus' schedule," and there's no privacy because "you're two feet from your neighbor on the train we travel in and your dressing room wall is a curtain."

For those, like her, who weren't born into it, it can be rough. "A lot of us are single kids and we get homesick. We're always on the phone long distance. And God knows we're working animals, not pets, and I miss my cat and dog at home."

And sometimes just being a person. That sent her into semi-seclusion once for a couple of months. "It's hard to meet people outside the circus. We finish working at 11 p.m. and spend our morning doing what other people do at night and on weekends, but we do get to parties. And I'd been to so many where people said, 'what do you do?' and when I said, 'clown,' it was 20 questions time." They wouldn't get past her white-face, and let her talk about what she'd been missing out on in the regular world where her father is a lawyer and her mother, a teacher. "You know," she says, "men have asked me to marry them just because I'm a clown."

But she learned to cope. "I either say I zip up people's costumes or I take control of the conversation, spend two minutes on the circus and go on to something else."

Actually, she had to overcome her own case of image-delight years ago. "I admit I was extremely impressed with images at first. But after you overcome the emotional shock of being in this business, you get down to the level where the guard at the door is just as important as the animal trainer. He's a person, too."

You grow up because you have to. If your romance with a co-worker falls apart, "You learn you have to see him every day." And everyone else.

But it's just that discipline and intimacy, plus the joy of performing, the bits of Polish, Bulgarian and German she's learned from colleagues, the recipes and insights into other ways of life, that make up for any deprivations. And the dangers.

"You always have to be alert," she says. "There's danger every time you work with animals because they're not computers. And if the timing is off in a gag, you can get hurt." Her nose was flattened by a golf club a few years ago during a show because of bad timing. "But I finished the gag and went to the hospital and the nurse grabbed me and said, 'Where have you been? The kids have been waiting all day,' she recalls, laughing.

And there is time for her and other singles to camp and go deep sea fishing, to play racketball and try different restaurants — "I like anything without curry." And though she wants a family and an immobile home some day, not yet. She's too content in this small sphere revolving on its own around the world.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK — Peggy Williams, a well-known circus clown, wears a fabulous gown here during one of her acts. Wearing the makeup that is her trademark, costumes changes are frequent in her business, but the face stays the same.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We serve a lot of cheese when we have friends over. I usually cut it with a knife which takes forever when you're cutting six or seven different types of cheese. But...

A few months ago I ran across a unique utensil in my kitchen odds-and-ends drawer, a butter cutter. It's the type you place over the butter so it cuts it into small parts. Well this gadget works great with cheese too.

All you have to do is cut the cheese the size of a butter stick, place the cutter over it, push down and, when you cut through to the bottom of the cheese, just press it out with your fingers.

You have nice pats of cheese, just the right size for crackers.

I've used this cutter on room-temperature cheese and also on cheese fresh from the refrigerator. I've had no problems. — Mrs. Sandra Donohue.

Folks this is a wing-a-ding idea. It really saves time when you're doing a hustle-bustle trying to get everything ready before those first guests arrive. And, as Sandra said, the slices turn out perfect every time. — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

To get the last bit out of the can when emptying paint, roofing material or the like, use the same kind of rubber spatula women use to mix a cake.

Works much better than a paint brush or putty knife. — Woodrow Newkirk

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Recently my car was skidding on the ice. Unable to move it or push it, and short of calling a tow truck, I decided that using an abrasive was the only solution.

I always keep several sheets of sandpaper in the car. It is even better for this purpose than sand because when a tire skids around it melts the ice which mushes together with the sand rendering it useless.

The sandpaper is just the right size and works beautifully to get you out of a skiddy situation — with no adverse effects to the tire.

I hope other drivers will try this tip. — Anna Marie

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Putting on liquid makeup can be messy and drippy when using a fingertip on the bottle top or pouring a small amount in the palm of your hand.

When I used the last of a small bottle of roll-on deodordant, I had an idea.

Prying off the roll-on top, I washed the bottle and top thoroughly, poured in liquid make-up and put the roll-on top back on.

A small "roll" on each cheek supplies just the right makeup coverage. No mess — no spills — no waste! — Martha Stogentin

DEAR HELOISE:

On Saturday mornings when the kids sit and watch cartoons on TV, I prepare a "surprise tray." It's a cupcake pan which I fill with a variety of nutritious snacks such as fruit, cheese, peanut butter, raisins, etc.

The kids love it and I know they are getting something good to eat instead of a bowl of sugary pre-sweetened cereal. — Gail Hunter

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Thanks for sending me a copy of your book. I love it! Now send me a typewriter that doesn't stick and fingers that can type! I told my husband that I thought you might have liked some of the hints I sent you. He said you probably thought I needed as many of your hints as you could send!

Whatever, thanks! — Tina Ramsey

I didn't think your typing was that bad, Tina. You should see mine!

Tell hubby I had no ulterior motive... just sheer appreciation to you for being you!

• • •

Are you an expert? Is there something you do — cook, sew, wash, iron — extra well? Bet you've got some super shortcut and easy-does-it suggestions. Don't hoard them. Send them to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017, and let her share 'em in this column.

TRAVEL TIP

When traveling, carry a brief medical history, advises Carla Shearer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. In case of accident, that information can be invaluable to the medical professionals treating you, she explains.

School Program Holds Meeting

SHELLEY FILLIP

About thirty-five groups participating in the Expanded Nutrition Program will meet Friday from 4-6 p.m. in the Mae Simmons Community Center for a "Show-and Tell Day," program director, Shelley Fillip, has announced.

The groups will represent classes which meet in all parts of the city to learn about foods and nutrition under the guidance of specially trained volunteer leaders. The Expanded Nutrition Program is an arm of the Texas A&M University Extension Service.

Parents are invited to Friday's program which will include games and refreshments.

Shelley Fillip has been serving as the director of ENP for two months. Formerly she was assistant manager of Texas Tech University food services. She is a Tech graduate.

Serving as program assistants in the ENP are Carolyn Gilbert, Maria Valdez, Jean Burton and Annie Taylor.

Correct Spice Usage Adds Variety To Foods

COLLEGE STATION — Spice is the variety of life — if you know how to use it in foods, says Dr. Rose Tindall, a foods and nutrition specialist.

First, it helps to know just a bit about spices and herbs, she says.

Most true spices come from the hot, steamy tropics. Herbs and the aromatic seeds on the other hand, thrive in temperate climates of the Mediterranean, Northern Europe and, more recently, California.

Spice history starts with Biblical days, and we can trace it through the Orient to Europe and then to the United States, now the prime figure in world spice buying centered in New York.

Flavors of spices and herbs depend on the volatile components they contain. So protect them from heat, strong light and moisture. Resealed packages are good for several months, but if you rub a bit of spice or herb between your palms and there is no aroma, then discard it.

If you aren't familiar with spices, then start with a standard recipe direction — or, to experiment, use ¼ teaspoon to each four servings. Since dried herbs are stronger and more aromatic than fresh ones, use only ½ teaspoon of dried herb leaf for every teaspoons of fresh minced herb — or vice versa.

To unlock the flavor of dried herbs or spices, always add them to the liquid in your recipe. Crush leaf herbs between your palms — or with a mortar and pestle — to release the flavor before adding them to the recipe. For foods that cook a long time, such as stews, add the seasonings during the last hour to avoid losing aroma or extracting bitter flavor components.

Also remember that herbs or spices generally aren't supposed to be the major flavor in a dish, so use them only in quantities that will blend with natural flavor of the food.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What can you tell me about sprue? — F.M.W.

Sprue is a food absorption problem. One form involves the inability of the small intestine to absorb wheat or wheat-containing products. More specifically, it is inability to digest gluten, a component of wheat. This disturbs the small intestine, leading to general digestive problems.

Among the unpleasantnesses is weight loss and odorous stool, which tends to float. Another name for the problem is "gluten-induced enteropathy." Enteropathy is the medical term referring to any disease of the intestines.

This sprue is treated by avoiding all gluten foods. Because of the presence of gluten in rye, oats and barley, the diet may be quite restrictive. People with this have to be close label readers.

There are two other kinds of sprue. One is called "celiac disease." That's a childhood digestive problem, which tends to improve with years.

"Tropical" sprue is a similar problem, so-called because of its prevalence in tropical areas. The symptoms are similar to other forms of sprue, but the cause is not clear. An infection may be part of it. We're not sure. This kind of sprue requires different treatment.

It is not difficult to find out if a person has the gluten problem or another kind of sprue. If symptoms subside with a gluten-free diet, then the diagnosis can be made.

Because of its interference with general digestion, any sprue problem may lead to malnutrition. Vitamin supplements are needed until it is brought under control.

Even my medical dictionary does not help in determining the derivation of the word "sprue" (pronounced "sproo").

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: With regard to estrogen creams. I read that they can give a person a feeling of fullness of the breasts. I was using one for vaginal problems. The doctor said the membranes there were too thin. What do you think about vinegar or witch hazel douches for that? — M.G.

It is true that hormones (most medicines, in fact) can be absorbed by the skin. The hormones may in some women produce the symptom you mention. However, under your doctor's supervision, they should not be harmful. You tell me you are 70, so the vaginal membrane problem is expected. The creams might help. Vinegar or witch hazel douches will not. If you are using them, stop. They can make matters worse for you.

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: What are the effects of taking unprescribed water pills while spending a great deal of time in the sun? — Mrs. T.

You're committing a medical no-no. To begin with, it's never wise to take unprescribed medication. Fluid pills, for those who do not know, are to help the body get rid of excess fluids, and you may not have this problem. Secondly, the heat under the sun already is helping rid your body of some fluid and the pills are adding to that effect. You can be losing vital minerals along with the fluid.

So you should (1) find out if you really need such pills and (2) learn some of the do's and don'ts to live by while taking them. Where are you getting your pills?

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it true that ultrasound can actually damage your tissue? What I am thinking of is ultrasound used as therapy for arthritis. — B.A.R.

It could if enough of it were applied. However, it takes about 50 times more ultrasound intensity to damage tissue than to produce pain. Thus the amount generated to make a person uncomfortable is far below the level capable of tissue destruction. This is a built-in safety factor.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C.M. — I wouldn't want to hazard even a guess about what is wrong with your friend. But the fact that she loses muscle control so easily, as when laughing, does prompt me to urge that she be examined. A neurologist would be the doctor to see.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. For a copy of the booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis," which discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

BRIDGE WINNERS

HUB CITY

Hub City Duplicate Bridge Club met Wednesday in the Bridge Center. Winning first were Bonta Thompson and Mrs. Ken Durbin; second, Floy Morrrison and Bob Cope and third, Mrs. Dudley Walker and Brian Klaus.

More Homes Being Bought By Women

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Two federal laws passed in 1975 are giving new meaning to the old cliche, "Woman's place is in the home."

In the four years since the Equal Credit Opportunity and Fair Housing acts were passed, thousands of women have taken advantage of them to buy their own homes and condominiums, says Donald Hovde, president of the Chicago-based National Association of Realtors.

Women bought 8 percent of all single family homes sold last year, Hovde said in an interview.

He estimated one-third of all condominium sales the same year were to single women, either by themselves or in joint ownership with another woman. The Madison, Wis., realtor said the term "single women" includes divorcees and widows as well as the unmarried.

Forty-five percent of all home sales these days are to two-income families, Hovde said. The wives' earnings are vital, he added, because of rising prices.

I remember as a young salesman 10 years ago a wife's income wouldn't even be considered by thrift institutions and banks on a joint application for a mortgage.

Now a mortgage lender cannot ask a woman any financial information regarding her spouse or former spouse.

He can only deal with the gross income you currently have in absolute dollars, how long you have worked at your job, what debts you have outstanding and the number and age of your dependents.

"A lender used to have to give an affidavit that she was not going to bear children," Hovde added.

That is now illegal.

So is asking a woman loan applicant if she is taking birth control pills, and if her income includes child support, alimony or separate maintenance payments.

This opens up new possibilities for the woman who would like to own her home.

Each woman must decide for herself, of course, whether or not she wants the responsibilities, whether she can afford it and whether now is the time to buy.

Prices are high, supplies tight and money expensive. Historically, home ownership has been one of the best hedges against inflation and prices have increased steadily. But some observers question whether the boom can continue.

Hovde thinks now is a good time.

"Once a woman is plugged into the system, if real estate values go up, hers will, too," he said. "Her monthly payment stays the same but the value of the property increases, which increases her equity, which increases her investment. She should then be able to sell and buy elsewhere if she wishes."

If you have decided homeownership is for you, how do you determine what you can afford?

The first step is serious budgeting, deciding just how much money you have available for housing, after other musts. It is a very personal decision — some women may be willing to pare clothing, entertainment and travel budgets to afford more for shelter; others might find it too restrictive.

Libraries are good sources of information. They have a wealth of material in books and magazines.

Hovde suggested asking mortgage experts at banks and savings and loan associations.

And you might check with your lawyer or accountant.

"The best place to go," Hovde said, "is to a lender to see what the lender is willing to do. It's a kind of negotiated process in which you find out your priorities."

S. Garton Churchill has compiled an enormous book called "The Churchill Natural Bidding Style at Contract Bridge." He has analyzed hundreds of hands where others went wrong and then shows how Churchill would have avoided their pitfalls.

We don't like the Churchill methods, but when Church gets away from plugging his system and into common sense his stuff is well worth reading.

One point he stresses is that on many occasions a good player will bid a three-card or even a two-card suit in order to invite a notrump bid by his partner.

Today's hand was bid by Ivar Stakgold and Lenny Harmon some 20 years ago and will serve as a model for anyone using any methods.

They were using standard bidding and after Ivar opened one heart, Lenny made the normal two-diamond response. Ivar rebid two hearts and then came the key bid. Lenny bid two spades!

This gave Ivar no problem. He bid two notrump. Lenny raised to three and since the defense started with three rounds of clubs, Ivar made five notrump.

The game was duplicate and somehow or other almost everyone else got into some high and unsuccessful diamond contract.

LULAC President Blasts 'Alien Hysteria'

RUBEN BONILLA

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Mexican aliens "have never been a disruptive force in our society" and if any group should be deported it should be Iranians, not Mexican aliens, a national spokesman for Hispanics said here Tuesday.

Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, made the remarks at a news conference prior to a speech at Texas Tech on immigration and the impact of Mexican-Americans at the polls in the next presidential election.

When asked if he agreed with Sen. Ted Kennedy's remarks earlier this week that it was unfair for the U.S. to allow the former shah of Iran to remain in the country while Mexican aliens faced immigration problems, Bonilla hedged a direct answer.

"I support President Carter fully," he said, even though, "I may have personal differences with him on domestic issues." Bonilla added that he would not make any further remarks on the subject "at this delicate time of the Iranian crisis."

Bonilla declined to throw his support behind any particular presidential candidate, but did vow that the Mexican-American population could make the difference at the ballot box.

He noted that Carter has made "some recent Hispanic appointments," although he added that some people believe it is "too little, too late." He added that those appointments do not provide "industrial development relief," which he said would aid the bulk of Hispanics, rather than a few select appointees.

The LULAC spokesman noted that Kennedy "has a progressive record" but noted that "few Hispanics are visible in his campaign."

On the Republican slate, Bonilla said all except George Bush have "ignored the Hispanic community."

Bonilla named single-member districts, implementation of the Voting Rights Act and funding of bilingual education as improvements Hispanics gained in the 1970s, but predicted increased gains in the 1980s through the ballot box.

The Raza Unida party candidates gave Mexican-Americans more political awareness, Bonilla said, and also "sensitized the Democratic party" to the Hispanic voting strength. He charged that the Republican party remains closed, but he predicted that will change.

He estimated that the 1980 census will show 50 percent of the Texas population to be blacks and Mexican-Americans and said the two groups will work together for political strength.

"People like (Gov. Bill) Clements will find it more difficult to get elected if they ignore the Hispanic community," he said. Bonilla said the Texas governor "excludes Mexican-Americans" from appointments and "tolerates racist remarks by his employees," citing an Austin official who derided bilingual education.

He charged that what immigration officials call the "illegal alien problem" is not a problem but a figment of the imagination.

"Studies show the aliens are an asset to the American economy," he said, adding that American employers have told him aliens are not taking jobs away from American citizens but that they are providing the labor "for the jobs no one (else) wants."

Bonilla said deportation is not the answer because the aliens quickly return to the U.S.

"They are as hungry as Cambodians and as forlorn as the Mennonites," he said, adding that because the U.S. aids those two groups, the U.S. "needs to be more compassionate" to Mexican aliens.

"It's hypocritical to raid businesses of American citizens and deport Mexican aliens," he said, adding that it often results in harrassment of Mexican-American citizens who he said "look like a wetback" to immigration officials.

"Mexican aliens are the scapegoat for U.S. economic woes," Bonilla said and called the American attitude "alien hysteria."

Partying Officers May Regret Slurs

MUNICH (AP) — A Munich prosecutor charged two Bundeswehr officers of the armed forces with failure to report anti-Semitic remarks made by subordinates almost three years ago, a court spokesman said Tuesday.

The charge stems from a party at a military academy near Munich on February 16, 1977, the spokesman said.

According to the spokesman, about 20 persons, after heavy drinking at a party, became noisy, poking fun at slogans of the outlawed Nazi Party, and then set fire to streamers.

As the paper burned, one of partygoers allegedly said "let's throw one more Jew in the fire," the spokesman said.

The prosecutor launched and later abandoned an investigation because he was unable to establish who made the remark, but he charged the two senior officers at the party because they failed to report the incident.

JURY SELECTION DELAYED

CHICAGO (AP) — Jury selection has been delayed two months in an antitrust suit against American Telephone & Telegraph Corp. because a newspaper report has made choosing an impartial panel impossible, a federal judge says. Judge John F. Grady of U.S. District Court decided a remark in a Chicago Sun-Times article in Monday's editions — characterizing AT&T's approach to the case as "grandiose" — was prejudicial to the rights of AT&T. The term was from Grady's own 10-page pre-trial order, but he criticized the newspaper for printing it.

Officials Blame One-Hour Delay For Violence At Rock Concert

CINCINNATI (AP) — City officials said Tuesday promoters of The Who concert delayed up to one hour in opening doors to Riverfront Coliseum despite a police warning of a "potential danger" posed by thousands of waiting fans.

City Councilman Jerry Springer said the alleged delay was "definitely a problem" Monday night when 11 people were killed and 22 were injured by a stampede of 8,000 fans. Eight persons remained hospitalized on Tuesday.

City Safety Director Richard Castellini said police recognized the potential danger at 6:30 p.m., which he said was about the time doors for such an event would normally open.

"Police asked the promoter to open up but he said the group was late and that he couldn't open," Castellini said. "He was told there were not enough ticket takers to open more than just the north bank of doors."

Springer said two banks of doors — or 16 in all — were opened on the west side of the coliseum for general admission between 7:15 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. The crush occurred as waiting fans heard the band warming up and stormed the building, breaking down one door that was locked.

The surging fans trampled and suffocated others in the rush for seats. Doctors said victims suffered "foot-print" injuries, but the exact cause of death will not be known until autopsies are completed.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime could be difficult because most contacts are likely to be emotionally overwrought, but the evening is excellent for a whole new attitude in which most everyone is more agreeable.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your duties and then plan how to execute them more efficiently. Plan some kind of entertaining at home in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to avoid making errors in writings early in the day. Find a new way to solve a puzzling problem. Relax at home tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You must practice more thrift now if you want to have more security in the future. Don't let an outsider take advantage of you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of important business matters early in the day and then take care of personal affairs in the evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to take off business affairs which you've had little time for lately. Follow your hunches which are accurate at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Relegate social events to the evening for best results, since business affairs claim your attention during the day. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be active during the day but don't jeopardize your reputation in any way. Find a better way of pleasing the one you love.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't make drastic changes now just because you are restless due to atmospheric conditions. Strive for happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make a plan of importance but don't get started on it until later in the day. Take needed health treatments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It is not wise to force associates into doing what you think is best during day. Be more diplomatic for best results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you listen carefully to what others say so that there will be no misunderstanding at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show more compassion for the troubles of others and try to help them as much as you can. Put creative ideas to work.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who easily understands the thoughts of others and would do fine in whatever is connected with human equations. Teach good manners and give religious training early in life. There's a leader in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Capital Murder Charges To Be Dropped In Hobbs

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — Capital murder charges will be dropped against one man arrested in Hobbs, N.M., in the beating death of an air traffic controller from Potosi, Texas, police said Tuesday.

Abilene Police Lt. Jack Dieken said charges against Mark Wicker, 21, of Lovington, N.M., or Plains, Texas, will be dropped because "there is no evidence to associate him with the crime."

He said capital murder charges will stand against two Abilene men, William Battee Jr., also known as Willie Green, 18, and Clifton Charles Russell, 18. Their bond has been set at $100,000 each.

They are charged in the slaying of 41-year-old Hubert Otha Tobey, whose body was found early Monday in a remote part of Abilene. Police believe robbery was the motive.

Dieken said Wicker apparently was hitchhiking outside Hobbs when he was picked up by the others, and had not been in Abilene at the time of Tobey's death.

The trio was arrested after police received complaints about three intoxicated men in a 1974 Lincoln Continental with Texas plates. A check of the car showed it was registered to Tobey.

Dieken said that Battee and Russell "deny any knowledge of the car," and they have made "no statements."

The pair has not indicated if they will waive extradition, he added. Dieken and an Abilene police sergeant said they will return to Abilene and send Taylor County sheriff's cars to bring back the suspects.

New Mother Returning To Jail

ORLANDO, Fla. (Ap) — A woman who won a three-month reprieve from jail last September to breast-feed her baby has been ordered back behind bars — without the child she bore as a prisoner.

Circuit Judge Frank N. Kaney, ruling that "the original sentence was fair," refused to wipe out the 5½ months left on Barbara Allin's 51-week sentence for stealing clothes from an airport gift shop.

Miss Allin still has a civil suit pending against the sheriff, and her lawyer is pressing for a ruling before Friday, when she is scheduled to return to jail.

Miss Allin was eight months pregnant when she was sentenced in July and gave birth in a hospital in August while serving her sentence at the Orange County jail.

She sued Sheriff Melvin Colman to be permitted to keep the baby, Tracy Angel, with her. One judge ruled against it. But Kaney, the sentencing judge, gave her a 90-day reprieve so the child could have her mother's love and care.

On Monday, refusing a petition to forego the rest of the sentence, Kaney said, "I told you all in September that we were going to be going through just this kind of thing."

Earlier, a foster care worker and a county social counselor testified that Miss Allin, 25, was taking excellent care of her child, going to church and had prospects for a job. "It's not fair," Miss Allin said after the ruling. "I've been clean since I got out. I've done everything I could possibly do. I couldn't try any harder."

Miss Allin acknowledged that she had previously served three months for petty theft and that "I do have some felonies on my record." But she said previous offenses were drug-related and "I have matured and I can now live without drugs."

She said she didn't know what she would do about Tracy Angel's care if she had to return to jail.

Drama Head At BBC-TV Praises 'Cerebral' Novel Adaptation

NEW YORK (AP) — A new dramatization of John LeCarre's "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy" begins a seven-week run on British television not too long from now, and the cerebral thriller may be on the air in this country as early as next season.

Adapting the complex novel for television was no easy task, one American television might never have undertaken.

"The book, it's all up here," said Shaun Sutton, head of television drama for the British Broadcasting Corp., tapping his forehead. "And so is the television play. It's an awful lot of people sitting across from one another, trying to pierce each other's thoughts.

"LeCarre saw it and said he'd never been more pleased with the dramatization of a book of his," said Sutton, mentioning the theatrical motion picture drawn from "The Spy Who Came in From the Cold" as an example.

The British-made miniseries demonstrates nicely one difference between American and English television, as well as a distinction between audiences in the two countries.

"British audiences may traditionally have a little more patience with television," said Sutton, an amiable man with a theatrical background who's been with BBC-TV since 1952.

"They're conditioned to slower types of drama," he said. "It's historical, you know. After all, people in Britain have been going to the theater for 400 years.

"They're not quite as hooked on action as American viewers are," Sutton said, "though that certainly doesn't mean they don't adapt, quite willingly, to 'Starsky and Hutch' and 'The Rockford Files,' both of which are very popular in Britain."

The suggestion has been made before that British television grew from the theatrical tradition, while TV in America has its roots in the movies. Sutton agreed.

"All of our actors, all of our directors, all of our writers, all of our technical people, in fact, all of our administrators, came from the theater," said Sutton, referring to the BBC. "We are truly dramatically oriented."

Alec Guinness stars as Le Carre's spy-hero, George Smiley, in "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy," a fact which does little harm to the the notion that British TV is founded in the theater.

Sutton himself grew up in the theater, and began his professional career in 1938 as stage manager for two London-area theaters. He spent World War II in the Navy, returning to the theater in the mid-'40s as a director.

He joined BBC-TV and soon was director of children's drama, writing most of his productions. Later, he directed several popular long-running series, and in 1967, became head of serial drama. Several television classics have been produced during Sutton's tenure, including "The Forsyte Saga," "Vanity Fair" and "The First Churchills."

"The Forsyte Saga" was popular on public television in this country, and there is activity afoot to bring "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy" to America, perhaps for broadcast by an independent network.

The BBC's dramatic lineup for this fall includes, in addition to "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy," two new plays, "Suez — 1956" and "Churchill and The Generals," a new dramatization of George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," and adaptations of two best-selling novels, "Penmarric" by Susan Howatch and "The Camerons" by Robert Crichton.

"When I was a boy," said Sutton, "I was very fond of foreign, particularly French, films. I only saw the best, but I came away with the feeling that all French films were marvelous.

"Of course, Americans only see the best of British television. I do believe, however, a lot of the work we do is superb, and I think a lot of that comes from not having to get huge audiences, as the networks here do.

"The people who produce for us," he said, "are given a good deal of independence."

TV Time Offered To People, Firms Scorned By Nets

ATLANTA (AP) — Ted Turner, owner of independent television station WTBS, has offered to sell commercial time to corporations, political candidates and others who are denied access to the networks.

Turner criticized major networks for refusing requests from large corporations to buy commercial time for presenting views on controversial issues.

He gave as an example Mobil Oil Corp., whose recent request to buy a half hour of network time to rebut what Mobil called a misleading CBS News report on oil company profits was turned down. Mobil later purchased a full-page advertisement in newspapers across the country.

The networks also have refused to sell a half-hour for a political announcement by the Carter-Mondale campaign committee. The Federal Communications Commission has ordered the request granted, but the networks are appealing.

County Official's Radio Sorties Draw Utahans' Criticism

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Each day at noon a top official of Utah's largest county walks a block from the courthouse, ships behind a radio console and begins whatting with listeners about flying saucers and secret cliques he believes control the free world.

He's County Commissioner Bob Salter, a former nightclub piano player-turned-radio personality whose call-in shows are seldom bland. Recently, they've sparked new controversy and aroused the ire of other public officials.

Salter, 65, has been a "communicaster" on Salt Lake's KSXX for the past decade, and his ideas are not always popular. He believes groups like the Council on Foreign Relations interlock with similar organizations to control western economies and free-world politics.

Not all of his interests are political, however. He once led a group of listeners to a supposed rendezvous with a flying saucer. It never materialized.

Salter admits his on-air patter is partly show business.

"I'm on the air to sell something. And before you can sell something, you've got to make a noise so people hear you," he says candidly.

Before he was elected in 1978 to a two-year term, Salter incurred the wrath of local doctors and the city-county health director by endorsing products such as a filter that was supposed to take cancer-causing agents out of tap water.

The heavy-set, balding Salter has become an expert at goading listeners into calling him to either agree or argue with his views. But some of his harshest critics say they never listen to the show. They're fellow public officials who feel Salter should have quit radio after he was elected.

County Attorney Ted Cannon says it is illegal for Salter to use his office to help sell products over the air. Although the commissioner begins and ends his show with the words, "This is Bob Salter speaking for himself," the line between his role as a private radio commentator and a public official sometimes seems blurred.

"Burglaries are epidemic in the county. I see the crime reports every day ... and I want you to go down to Glen's Keys," Salter says, leading into a commercial for dead-bolt locks and safes. "Tell 'em Salter sent you."

While plugging a coin store selling bags of gold and silver coins, the commissioner praised the merchant by saying, "He's the kind of man you can trust, and I think you should."

Salter is paid $33,168 a year as a commissioner, but gave up the salary he was paid by the radio station. Jim Dabakais, KSXX program director, says that was Salter's decision, "to avoid any conflict of interest."

Recently, a juvenile court judge alleged that Salter had broken the law by urging his listeners to attend a closed hearing, and asked the county attorney to investigate the incident. Salter contends he was just telling people when the hearing would be held.

Although Salter says he told his listeners not to disrupt the court, the judge found it necessary to call for 11 deputies to preserve order.

The judge's dispute with Salter left him unruffled and happy about the publicity. "I don't know why all this couldn't have happened a year from now when I'm running for re-election," he says.

Opera Has Thin Edge

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera has broken even for the third straight year, Frank E. Taplin, president, and Anthony A. Bliss, executive director, announced Tuesday.

Expenses for 1978-79 of $39.6 million were met through operating revenues and contributions, they said.

Operating revenues totaled $26.4 million, resulting in an operating loss of $13.2 million. Contributions amounted to $13.3 million, providing a surplus of $138,000.

Taplin called it barely breaking even and said that more contributions will be needed next year. He said, "We are still operating on a very thin margin. A surplus of $138,000 on a budget of more than $39 million is just over one-third of 1 per cent — precariously little breathing space.

"With a budget for 1979-80 of almost $43 million, we will have to raise nearly $15 million in contributions — a staggering sum in view of the current state of the economy and inflation."

Firm To Auction Off Variety Of Toys

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It's that time again. After stuffing yourself with turkey and pumpkin pie, thoughts turn to St. Nick and what to get the kids for Christmas.

How about a 100-piece toy circus — for $10,000?

The Humpty Dumpty toy circus was one of many antique toys dating back to the Victorian era that was be auctioned off in Los Angeles recently by Sotheby Parke Bernet. Most were manufactured in the United States or Europe and were worth a total of more than $125,000.

A similar auction, by the same firm, is being held in New York City through Thursday, offering some 1,100 items up to and including a mechanical clock expected to go for perhaps $13,000 — a small wooden building from which a tiny mouse emerges to push a penny across the roof when a lever is pushed.

The circus, which was manufactured by the Schoenhu Co. in the United States around 1920, was copyrighted in 1903 and stayed at the top of the toy market for 30 years. It has 15 human figures, including clowns, acrobats, a ringmaster and elephant trainer and 41 animal figures — elephants, horses, a buffalo, rhino, ostrich, gorilla, gazelle, seal, bulldog, hyena and alligator.

It also has 32 pieces of circus equipment, including chairs, barrels, rings, hoops and cages. Its estimated auction bid is between $10,000 and $12,000.

The figures have solid wooden heads with hollow bodies and elaborate steel interior springs which enable the dolls to hold any pose indefinitely.

Sheila Bradley, cataloger for Sotheby Parke Bernet, said the prices of the toys are high because of changes in production.

"Because of mass production in the last 30 years, toys have been made of plastic and synthetic materials, which are inexpensive to produce and can be made in large quantities," she said. "But from the middle of the 19th century up to World War II fine natural materials like porcelain, leather and wood were used with finished hand touches such as painted faces on dolls."

Miss Bradley said members of doll collecting clubs and toy lovers will be bidding for a 1-foot, 3-inch, googly-eyed doll with a bisque socket head. The little one has large brown movable eyes, a shy smile and long blonde curls. She has been estimated to bring in between $7,000 and $8,000.

Vegetable Growers Gaining Upper Hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report issued Tuesday by the Agriculture Department said Florida vegetable growers are gradually gaining an upper hand against Mexico for the lucrative U.S. winter market for tomatoes and other produce.

"Mexico's costs of production have been rising faster than Florida's since 1974, thus strengthening Florida's competitive position," the report said.

Florida growers have complained bitterly for years that imports of Mexican vegetables have hurt their industry and have asked federal action to curb the foreign shipments.

Their case, however, was dealt a setback on Oct. 30 when the Treasury Department ruled that Mexico is not selling winter vegetables here at illegally low prices.

If Treasury had decided the Mexican tomatoes were being dumped on the U.S. market, it could have imposed heavy duties on the imports.

The Agriculture Department report limited its discussion to the costs of winter vegetable production and the competitive situation in Florida and Mexico.

"Mexican growers can produce fresh tomatoes, green peppers, cucumbers and eggplants more cheaply than Florida growers," it said. "But export fees to the United States cause Mexico's total costs to exceed Florida's for all four vegetables."

For example, the report said the total cost of growing, harvesting, packing and selling Mexican tomatoes in the 1978-79 winter season was $4.39 per 30-pound package, compared to $5.74 in Dade County, Fla., and $5.59 in southwest Florida.

"However, tomatoes from Mexico had an additional $1.36 in costs for delivery to and crossing the U.S. border, giving a total cost of $5.75 per package delivered to Nogales, Ariz. — slightly higher than the total Florida cost," the report said.

The pattern for other vegetables "looks much the same" as for tomatoes, it said.

Florida growers say that from November through April nearly half of the U.S. requirements for winter vegetables comes from Mexico.

The USDA report said "Mexico has made major advances in increasing its share of the U.S. winter vegetable market since 1967" but that since the 1973-74 season Florida has strengthened its competitive position.

"Agricultural wages, a major cost item in vegetable production for both Florida and Mexico, have risen faster in Mexico than in Florida," it said. "It also appears likely that continuing inflation will affect Mexican growers more than Florida growers in the years ahead, since inflation rates tend to be higher in Mexico than in Florida."

The report, published by USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service, was written by G.A. Zepp, an agency economist at Gainesville, Fla., and R. L. Simmons, professor of economics and business at North Carolina State University, Raleigh.

Bergland To Head Meeting Thursday In Wichita Falls

By PAT TEAGUE

WICHITA FALLS (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland will head an all-day public meeting Thursday on the structure of American agriculture, the sixth of 10 such scheduled meetings.

About 20 people from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana are expected to present their views to Bergland during the meeting.

On March 12, Bergland called for a "national dialogue" on the economic and social issues affecting the structure of the nation's agriculture industry and its rural communities.

Since then, public meetings similar to the one scheduled here have been held in Montpelier, Vt.; Fayetteville, N.C.; Huntsville, Ala.; Sioux City, Iowa, and Sedalia, Mo.

Bergland, who previously stated that the forces shaping American agriculture must be re-examined, will seek input that may affect the formulation of a new agriculture structure.

The USDA already has compiled what it calls "issue papers" to provide basic information on the major factors affecting the agriculture industry.

Houston Port Firefighters Protest Pay Increase As Too Small

HOUSTON (AP) — Irked by an 8 percent pay hike, Port Houston firefighters staged a sickout Tuesday.

The Coast Guard prepared to man two fireboats in case of an emergency and Houston placed four fire stations near the port under alert and standby orders.

Only the captains of the two fireboats reported for duty.

Texas statutes prohibit strikes against such agencies as the Port Authority, a public agency.

"It's something we must have eaten out there," said Dale Hawley, vice president of International Association of Fire Fighters Local 1316.

"I guess you'd call it a sickout," he said, adding he expects the 32 union members to be sick until they get a 12 percent raise.

The union had sought 12 percent but the Port Commission Monday voted only 8 percent for the firemen and 270 other contract employees, including the port's security force.

CAREERS

By JOYCE LAIN KENNEDY

The restless children of rebels and wanderers, American workers are reluctant to overstay their welcome in a job field.

In 1973, about 9 percent of the work force changed occupations; in 1977, the figure rose to 11.5 percent; in the '80s the occupational mobility trend is likely to pick up even more steam.

A College Board study says about one-third of the population is in career transition — thinking about or taking active steps toward switching. Only one-half of workers, another study reveals, would by choice continue in the same line of work.

Among reasons cited for the up tempo of occupational motion is the recent influx of women and youth into the job market. Money is another motivation for workers earning about $5,000 to $15,000 a year.

Cultural forces are behind other moves — the social environment of the '60s and '70s spawned an emphasis on individuality and self-expression.

But not all transitions are elective. Some companies drop middle-aged employees who have been passed over for promotion, leaving them with the unenviable choice of long-term joblessness or a new occupation. Numerous other workers find themselves with stale skills, forced to scramble to avoid technological obsolescence.

All this is coalescing into a new educational trend — lifelong learning, or cradle-to-grave schooling. As many as one of every four adults is estimated to be involved in some kind of organized learning activity, and by the year 2000, when adults over 30 will make up the majority of the population, even more adults will seek continuing education.

Colleges and universities are highly visible in readying workers for professional and managerial jobs, estimated to be between 20 and 25 percent of the total job market.

But the vast majority of openings during the '80s will require only relatively short-term training, hence a boom in government training progrms, vocational education, apprenticeship and two-year community college technician programs.

Despite the rush to job-related education, liberal arts study is not a dead issue for either plumbers or philosophers. Nor is it newly flourishing, despite recent drumbeating by student-hungry educators.

Still, there's logic in the view that the liberal arts route — which many forget includes math and science — can supply the catholicity of knowledge workers will need as they change careers and seek retraining.

While no one can say with certainty who will be in demand in 1990, one thing does seem certain: a single educational experience will not be enough as workers vie for coveted jobs in the decade ahead.

WOMEN ACQUITTED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass (AP) — Three women who worked at a massage parlor have been acquitted of prostitution by a judge who said they were charged unfairly. Admitted hookers worked at Le Club in East Cambridge, but District Court Judge Arthur Sherman said, "Just being in the presence of a horny degenerate isn't a crime. The (three) ladies are not guilty and they best get out of town."

WOULD YOU LIKE TO EARN $300 A WEEK PART-TIME?

Making money can be sweet and easy. You can work either full or part time and earn from $300 to $700 a week in your business. The secret to this sweet success is dispensing five out of the top six best selling candies in America.

SNICKERS • THREE MUSKETEERS
MILKY WAY • STARBURST
BUBBLE YUM • M&M's

No investment is required. We furnish direct outlets for candy, the finest dispensing equipment, high traffic locations, and capital for expansion.
Research confirms that the average location services 154 customers a week. You'll start with ten locations. To be a successful applicant you must be of sound character and be able to start business immediately. Applicants must also be permanent residents with adequate working capital. Not affiliated with M&M Mars or Life Savers, Inc.

In Lubbock, call Mr. E. Swarn, 806-747-4346

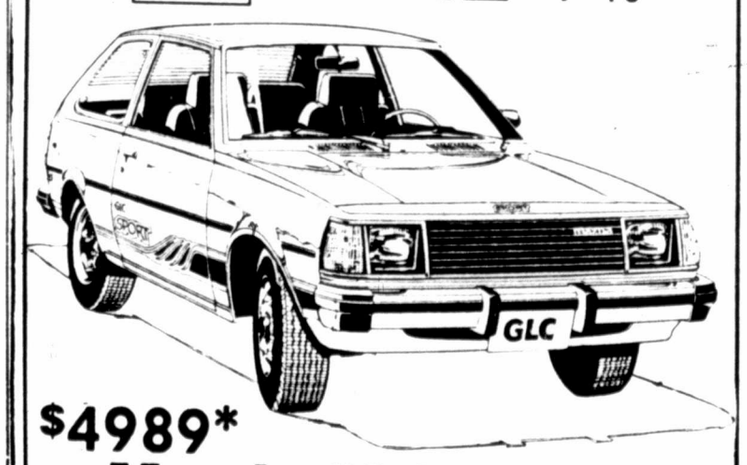
The sporty way to big gas mileage.

30 ESTIMATED mpg 42 EST.* hwy mpg



$4989*
Mazda GLC Sport.

Just one look shows you: • Styled disc wheels • Steel-belted radials • Sporty stripes • 5-speed overdrive • Tachometer • Electric remote hatch release. See how sporty a thrifty GLC can be!

*Remember, compare the EPA estimate to the estimated mpg of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions, and the length. Your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway mileage.
Price includes dealer prep and freight charges. Taxes, license fees, optional equipment extra.

AT LAST, OUR RABBITS ARE MULTIPLYING LIKE RABBITS.

It seems that all the world loves our Rabbits—so much so, that we at Montgomery Motors weren't able to keep up with demand—till now!

We've boosted our Rabbit production, and new 1980 Rabbits are arriving daily.

Test drive a 1980 Rabbit, and you will be owning one a lot sooner than you think.

'Isolate Iran,' Connally Says

Kennedy's Shah Remarks Denounced

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican presidential candidate John Connally said Tuesday the United States should seek to isolate the nation of Iran diplomatically, economically and politically if Americans being held hostage are tried in what he called a "kangaroo court."

Connally also said the United States should inflict retribution if any of the hostages are harmed and called statements about the shah by Sen. Edward Kennedy unfortunate.

"I have exercised restraint in speaking out on the Iranian situation, but it has now reached the point of such gavity that we should publicly say to Iran and to the world that the hands of the president are not tied and that he has the support of the American people for whatever action he deems necessary," Connally said.

Connally criticized Kennedy for his statement, which charged the shah ran a violent regime in Iran and stole billions of dollars from his country.

"It is noteworthy that members of the Khomeini government were seen gleefully clapping on television when they heard Sen. Kennedy's statements," Connally said. "It clearly gave them great joy because it gave them hope of some divisions of the U.S. government.

"They interpreted Sen. Kennedy's remarks in this vein."

Asked what he meant by inflicting retribution, Connally said "by whatever scale of retribution is justified depending on the circumstances."

Connally said he had no criticism of President Carter's handling of the crisis. "This is just my statement on the crisis and in no way is a criticism of the president."

Connally's statement, read at a news conference following a speech to the American Hotel and Motel Association, marked his strongest stand to date on the Iranian crisis.

"The mere suggestion that our diplomatic people would be subjected to the emotional decisions of such a kangaroo court violates every precept of international law, diplomatic immunity and basic human justice," Connally said.

"If indeed the (Iranian) foreign minister is correctly quoted and pursues this course, the United States will have no choice but to attempt by every means available to marshal support of the nations of the world to completely isolate the nation of Iran diplomatically, economically and politically."

Connally, a former governor of Texas, said he was not uncomfortable that the shah is at Lackland Air Force base in San Antonio.

Shah's Stay Marks Return

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The shah of Iran's stay at an Air Force base here marks a return to the city where he was made an honorary Texan nearly 25 years, one wife and a kingdom ago.

The deposed monarch made a quick inspection tour of Randolph Air Force Base on Jan. 13, 1955, according to newspaper files. Brig. Gen. John W. Persons, then the commanding officer at the base, gave Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi a document declaring him an honorary citizen.

Allan Shivers, then governor of Texas, signed the document.

The shah was accompanied by Empress Soroya — his second wife — and they were extended the lavish welcome and tight security due foreign royalty, the newspaper reports said.

The visitors left the day after they arrived. Accounts of the quick tour said the shah was impressed with Air Force equipment at the base.

The deposed shah returned to Texas Sunday as he was quietly whisked onto Lackland Air Force Base to continue his recovery from gallbladder surgery in New York. The security is as tight as it was during his Randolph visit — base spokesmen in 1955 said Randolph would "not be opened to the public while the Iranian royal couple are there because of necessary security requirement."

Harvard - Educated Head Of Major Industrial Group Looks To Recovery

TEHRAN (AP) — Iran's economy, crippled by the flight of the wealthy during the revolution, is gradually recovering despite continuing labor unrest the Harvard-trained head of the largest nationalized industry said Tuesday.

"The Iranian economy is running on an averge of 65 percent of former capacity and it is increasingly gaining confidence," said Abdullah Zandieh, chairman of the board of the Beshahr industrial group.

Production slipped to as low as 35 percent of capacity last spring, Zandieh said in an interview in his modest office in downtown Tehran.

He said he didn't know what the national unemployment rate was, and no official figures were available, but estimates run from 10 to 45 percent.

Zandieh said there were three main problems confronting Iran's non-oil producing industry — inexperienced management, "extremely inexperienced labor — not in terms of manufacturing, but in terms of teamwork and political understanding" — and credit.

Most of the major industries before the revolution were owned by people closely linked with the shah, and they ran the key operations themselves so there was a lack of trained managers when the owners fled, Zandieh said.

A steel mill, three textile plants and a food-processing factory have been shut down by labor problems, usually over workers' demands to take over the management of the already nationalized companies. He blamed that on Communist agitation.

"Just four weeks ago the workers in one of our plants — a rubber company — discharged the management that we had put in. I had to go down there myself and I gave a half-hour speech.

"They demonstrated an amazing responsiveness to their responsibility. Not only did they take the management back, but they are still working very well with them."

Zandieh said the usual pattern is that a young Communist engineer or technician in a plant "tells the workers that they are the true owners of nationalized businesses."

Zandieh, 50 years old with prematurely gray, wavy hair and heavy black eyebrows, said he tells the workers that the public owns the businesses and they they are the public's agents.

"I tell them that low quality and high prices is cheating from the meager income of the poor, and they are among that group so it is their wives who are going out and buying that detergennt," he said.

Finances of the major companies were left in such a mess that the new managers still lack a true picture of the industries, Zandieh said. They have been hampered in straightening out the financial affairs because most of the auditing firms were associated with the old regime.

When the audits have been completed, the industries will be able to ask for credit, which they plan to seek exclusively from Iranian institutions, he said. With Iran having renounced at least some debts, international credit would probably be impossible to obtain in any case.

Zandieh received most of his education in Iran but went to the Harvard Business School in 1974-75 and speaks flawless English. He worked for the Southwest Regional Development Organization, an organization in Khuzistan province that he said is modeled on the Tennessee Valley Authority, before becoming managing director of the first agro-industrial company in Iran.

He taught management for four years at an Iranian institute and was managing director of a television manufacturing company during the revolution. His office is remarkably spartan — a 12-by-12-foot room with smudge marks on the wall from furniture of the previous occupant. The windows look out on a rubble filled backyard, with someone's clothes hanging on a line and a chicken walking around.

Zandieh said the greatest problem facing Iran after the revolution was that the the previous owners had run up far too much debt before they fled.

The new managers were under "so much debt pressure that they found it hardly possible to pay for routine operations," he said.

"Either we had to let the factories go down the drain, which would have produced shortages of consumer goods and caused runaway inflation, or take them over and run them."

Iranian Students Termed Scapegoats

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge was told Tuesday the government illegally singled out Iranian students for deportation following the capture of U.S. diplomatic personnel in Iran Nov. 4.

The government is making Iranian students in this country "the scapegoats for the terrible problem in Tehran, Iran," said David Carliner, an attorney for the students.

The students are fighting a presidential order that directs deportation proceedings to begin against Iranian students who are in this country illegally. The Immigration and Naturalization Service has asked all the Iranian students in this country to report for interviews by Dec. 13 so it can determine whether their student visas are valid.

The students' lawyers told U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green that only Congress had the authority to take such action. They contended the government is violating the students' constitutional rights and that deportation proceedings are being instituted for the most minor types of infractions.

After hearing the students' arguments and the Justice Department's defense of the president's order, the judge said she would rule "within the next few days."

Carliner, who specializes in immigration cases, said the government "will never deport a student who is five days late in applying for an extension of his stay in the United States. They will never deport students who go to work for a week because their check didn't come from home. They usually get at least one free ride."

But he said Iranian students — and only Iranian students — "are not going to be given the time of day unless they apply for asylum." He said it is discriminatory to single out Iranian students in this manner.

Justice Department attorney Brook Hedge said President Carter's order to conduct the visa checks against Iranian students merely gives "top priority" to enforcement of immigration laws against "this particular group for foreign policy reasons."

She said the order was "tailored to the international crisis" and added that the president felt the visa reviews would lessen the chance of violence against Iranian students. The administration fears such violence could cause the militant students holding U.S. hostages in Iran to harm their captives.

"It is reasonable to conclude that Americans would be less likely to take the law into their own hands" if they were assured that "those Iranians who are here are here lawfully," Miss Hedge said.

Miss Hedge called Carter's order "a reflection of the president's exercise of the conduct of foreign affairs." The students' lawyers contested that point.

"The power to define the terms and conditions of entry and admission and stay in the United States is committed by the Constitution to the Congress," said Eric M. Lieberman, an attorney for the Iranians.

Countering the argument that harm may come to Iranian students here and subsequently to the hostages, Lieberman said:

"Because there is a hostile audience against a demonstration, the government is not permitted to stop the demonstration. It has to control the hostile audience."

Another attorney for the students, Shelley Davis, said the immigration review has a "chilling" effect on Iranian students who seek to hold demonstrations under their First Amendment rights.

"They now fear that any lawful participation in First Amendment activity would lead to their deportation," she said.

NORVAL POLLARD

NBA's Game Lacks Key Elements

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED to sit through an entire National Basketball Association game, either in front of the television or in person? Yeah, so have I. And to be quite honest, I'd really rather hear a three-hour dissertation on the Canterbury Tales from Charo or have someone pull out my fingernails with a pair of pliers.

When you think of professional sports, you envision a level of competition that is head and shoulders above the high school and collegiate brands of that particular sport. I think that is obvious when you compare professional football with collegiate and prep football. It also holds true for baseball, hockey and the assorted other sports that are played on the pro level.

But I wonder if professional basketball is a better brand of basketball than, say, collegiate basketball or even schoolboy basketball these days. Does it take the best all-around players to play in the NBA? I'm of the opinion that it doesn't.

Professional basketball, which among other things pays its players an average of $140,000 a year, has become a very one-sided contest. All of the elements of the game are not included in the professional version. The name of game in the NBA is shoot — shoot and score, to be precise. Get that little round ball in the hoop everytime down the court and there is no way you can lose. Offense is where it's at.

AND I WILL BE THE FIRST to admit that America's sporting public loves offense in any game. When it comes to football, the fans love to see touchdowns and as many of the six-pointers as can possibly be squeezed into 60 minutes. There is nothing better to watch than a 10-9 baseball slugfest. A few home runs and some frozen ropes off the wall really spice up the game.

Offense is the key in boxing, too. Fight fans love the aggressor, but that doesn't always means he'll win. But nine times out of 10, it makes for an interesting fight -- even though it may last just a few rounds.

But what's so interesting about the Los Angeles Lakers beating the Indiana Pacers 111 to 103.? It happens every night for six months in the NBA. The game has lost its element of surprise. We all know that George Gervin will average 30 points a game, that Moses Malone will pull down 15 rebounds each night and that Kevin Loughery will lead the league's coaches in technical fouls. Sure, I saw the movie Patton four times, but after that it became a little old and with that in mind, the NBA is fast becoming ancient. And that is the reason behind the NBA's lagging attendance and the lack of interest in the professional game.

Professional basketball players, in most instances, don't have to possess an overabundance of defensive skills. Those five men on the court are out there to score points. If they can't score, they can't play.

NBA TEAMS ARE PERMITTED to run one defense, man-to-man. There are no zones, very few presses and little room on rosters for the defensive specialist. Bobby Jones, one of the premier defensive forwards in the game, plays for the Philadelphia 76ers. He is seldom heard from because the 76ers are loaded with so many street players — Julius Erving, Darryl Dawkins, and Maurice Cheeks just to mention a few. Every coach must plan his strategy around man-to-man coverage. Because of that, the NBA has become an organized street game of five-on-five.

Because of the 24-second clock, which insures the ball will be put up at least 1,000 times a game, coaches cannot use delay tactics or protect a lead or play the game as it was designed. No one ever said that you had to score over 100 points a game to win. If you have good defensive players, maybe 40 points will win for you.

AS FAR AS I'M CONCERNED, college basketball is a much more exciting and interesting game because all elements of the battle are taken into account. Defense is stressed as well as offense. A good ballhandler, someone who doesn't turn it over 10 or 12 times a contest, is just as valuable in the college ranks as the 6-foot-10 forward who can slam it from the lights and score 28 points every time he's on the floor.

And probably the two biggest factors that still make the college game more handsome to the spectator are the emotional factors that are very much alive with college players (emotions are left in the locker room in the NBA) and the role the coach has in the outcome of a college contest. (The role of the coach in the pro ranks has become one of baby-sitter and front-office stooge. A coach earning $50,000 a season doesn't tell his $500,000-a-year center to shape up or ship out. If anyone leaves, it will most likely be the coach.)

I HAVE ALWAYS CONTENDED that most college basketball games are won by the moves coaches make during the course of the game. Every little move plays a role in the final outcome, be it a timeout, a technical foul, a substitution or whatever. To a great degree, those subtle elements are missing from the professional game and it has turned many fans off.

The NBA has tried to change basketball to fill its need for the viewing dollar. What it has done is change the game to the extent that it no longer is total basketball.

For screaming slam dunks, three shots to make two free throws and a chance to see all those high-priced cagers, visit Boston, Denver, Seattle, Atlanta or any other NBA town. For a total basketball contest and a good time, visit your nearest high school or college gymnasium. You're likely to get your money's worth closer to home.

Attendence Up At SWC Tilts

HOUSTON (AP) — The attendance at Saturday's Texas-Texas A&M and Rice-Houston games allowed the Southwest Conference to set total and average attendance records for the second consecutive year, SWC officials announced.

In 52 home games this season, the nine conference schools drew 2,311,983 fans, breaking the record of 2,086,244 set last year. Attendance averaged 44,461.

HEW Attacks Sex Bias

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government formally announced new guidelines for ending sex bias in college athletics, including a provision that sports' scholarship money be distributed in proportion to the number of male and female athletes enrolled.

The guidelines announced Tuesday mean that unless schools find new sources of income, they may have to shift funds from expensive, all-male football programs to provide per capita scholarship aid to women athletes.

For example, if 40 percent of a school's athletes are women, female athletes must receive 40 percent of the money a college allots for scholarships.

The guidelines, which supersede a tentative policy statement issued a year ago, immmediately were attacked by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. But the association's spokesman, Bill Kramer, said no decision had been made on what action to take.

The government also will evaluate such specific factors as the provision of equipment, coaching assignments and the provision of locker rooms and other facilities to determine if an institution is discriminating against women athletes.

"It is important to note that HEW is not requiring that benefits — such as locker facilities or coaching staffs — be identical," Patricia Roberts Harris, secretary of health, education and welfare, told reporters in announcing the guidelines.

"We will, however, compare programs to determine whether policies and practices provide equivalent opportunities throughout men's and women's sports programs."

Mrs. Harris said the guidelines would "give colleges and universities maximum flexibility in developing and maintaining their athletic programs while establishing clear standards for insuring that their programs are free from sex discrimination."

The NCAA's Kramer disagreed.

"We think they ought to be doing an assessment of the total athletic program and the scholarship program instead of applying an arbitrary financial standard," he said.

The scholarship provision is the one the NCAA most strongly opposes, Kramer said. He described it as a "financial quota."

"We're opposed to it," he said. "Exactly what we'll do, I don't know."

Holly Knox, director of the Project for Equal Education Rights, said, "These guidelines represent a step forward — no more, no less. An equal share for women is still a distant goal."

But she said at least the agency has now signalled an intention to enforce the law. "A lot of colleges have been sitting back waiting for HEW to do something. The message is clear. They've got to move now."

HEW figures show that 70 percent of all college athletes are men. They receive

Tech ADs Warm To Ruling

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Both Dick Tamburo and Jeannine McHaney would like to reserve comment on the recent goverment ruling concerning Title IX until after they've had a chance to study the guidelines inside-and-out.

"It surprised me when I saw the story in the paper," commented Tamburo, the director of men's athletics at Texas Tech. "I'd been told they wouldn't be out until March or April. So I hate to comment on them until I've had a chance to look over the interpretations."

McHaney, the director of women's athletics at Tech, agreed: "It's hard to say thing until after I've sat down with the guidelines and looked them over."

But still McHaney's first impression "is good. I feel we've made some gains in the guidelines this time."

The government ordered all colleges and universities receiving federal aid to immediately make athletic scholarship funds available to women and men in proportion to their participation in the school's sports programs.

But aside from scholarships, the new policy says schools will not have to spend proportional amounts of money on women athletes as on men.

The rules pertain to both public and private institutions and those which do not comply with the scholarship rule could lose federal financial assistance.

"I think we can live with that," said McHaney.

This time, Tamburo agreed: "Just on those comments alone, it seems more feasible for a university to be able to finance the programs than if the per capita clause did not exist."

In spelling out the long-awaited policy regarding Title IX of the 1972 Education Amendments that bar sex discrimination in schools, HEW Secretary Patricia Harris announced the government will conduct a nationwide evaulation of programs at schools receiving federal assistance to determine compliance with the law.

Harris said the guidelines mean, for example, that if 70 percent of a school's athletes are male they are entitled to 70 percent of the scholarship dollars their school makes available. But 30 percent would go to females.

That new policy will forced many schools to make more female scholarship money available. It means sports such as men's football, which traditionally uses up the bulk of athletic scholarships, may have to trim back their shares to athletes to accommodate the new shares for women.

"I hopes that doesn't mean they'll take away from the men's programs," said McHaney. "I think they're just getting by, too. I think that would be a very unsound thing to do. I think they'll just have to find the money from somewhere else."

As for athletic benefits and opportunites other than scholarships, the new policy said items such as equipment and supplies, games, travel expenses, locker rooms and medical training need not be identical, but must be "equal or equal in effect."

"HEW does not require identical benefits, opportunites, or treatement," the policy statement said, "but the effect of any differences must be negligible."

It has been seven years since Title IX was passed by Congress.

Tech's Hadnot Named To Second Team

White, Trojans Pace AP All-Americans

By The Associated Press

Charles White of Southern California, who led the nation in rushing and all-purpose rushing en route to becoming the second leading ground-gainer in college football history, was named to the The Associated Press All-America team for the second year in a row Tuesday along with six other repeaters from 1978.

Joining White, the 1979 Heisman Trophy winner, on The AP All-America team for the second year in a row are Oklahoma running back Billy Sims, the 1978 Heisman winner and 1979 runner-up, and North Carolina State center Jim Ritcher, winner of the 1979 Outland Trophy as the nation's best interior lineman.

The other repeaters from 1978 are defensive end Hugh Green of Pittsburgh and defensive backs Kenny Easley of UCLA and Johnnie Johnson of Texas. In addition, Oklahoma linebacker George Cumby, a first-team selection in 1977 but an also-ran last year, made the first team again.

Green and Easley are juniors and have a shot at becoming three-time first-team All-America selections next year.

Joining White and Sims in the offensive backfield are Marc Wilson, Brigham Young's record-setting quarterback, and George Rogers of South Carolina, the nation's No.2 rusher.

Texas Tech senior fullback James Hadnot, who was earlier in the day selected a second-team UPI All-America selection, was named to The AP second-team backfield along with quarterback Paul McDonald of Southern Cal and running backs James Brooks of Auburn and Vagas Ferguson of Notre Dame.

Hadnot, who rushed for 1,371 yards this season to lead the Southwest Conference, was a third-team All-America choice in 1978.

Junior Miller of Nebraska is the tight end while Ken Margerum of Stanford is the wide receiver. The interior line consists of Ritcher, tackles Jim Bunch of Alabama and Greg Kolenda of Arkansas and guards Brad Budde of Southern Cal and Ken Fritz of Ohio State.

The rest of the defensive unit consists of end Jacob Green of Texas A&M, tackles Steve McMichael of Texas and Jim Stuckey of Clemson, middle guard Ron Simmons of Florida State, linebackers Ron Simpkins of Michigan and Mike Singletary of Baylor and deep back Mark Haynes of Colorado.

Miller and Kolenda were third-teamers a year ago.

Besides Hugh Green and Easley, other juniors are Margerum, Rogers, Simmons and Singletary. The others all are seniors.

The AP All-America team will be featured on the Bob Hope Merry All-Star Christmas Special on NBC-TV Thursday, Dec.13, from 8-9 p.m., CST.

White, who missed one entire game and half of another with a shoulder injury, carried 293 times for 1,803 yards — his per-game average of 180.3 was a Pacific-10 Conference record — and scored 18 touchdowns.

Rogers was the runner-up with 1,548 yards on 286 carries for a 140.7 per-game average while Sims finished fourth with 1,506 yards on 224 rushes and led the nation in scoring with 22 touchdowns.

Wilson, one of a handful of college... to pass for 7,000 career yards, comp... 250 of 427 attempts this season for 3... yards and 29 touchdowns. He lost ... yards rushing but still was the national total offense leader with 3,580 yards.

Margerum caught 41 passes — he missed one game — for 733 yards and 10 touchdowns while Miller, an outstanding blocker, caught 21 passes for a whopping 409 yards and seven touchdowns in Nebraska's ground-oriented attack.

Buckeyes Assume No.1 Position

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Earle Bruce is delighted that Ohio State is where it is today — ranked No.1 by The Associated Press and headed for the Rose Bowl — but says cautiously that he'll wait for that showdown with Southern California before celebrating.

"It's great," Bruce, Woody Hayes' first-year successor, said before departing for a New York dinner honoring Columbus sportsman John Galbreath Tuesday night.

"But you know we still have a big game in the Rose against USC. I don't put stock in it until the final poll."

Doug Donley, the Buckeyes' crack junior receiver, said the latest vote should provide extra incentive in the Rose Bowl against the third-ranked Trojans. "It's going to lift the team up. It's a great feeling. I'm pretty excited. Everybody wasn't expecting much out of us, but the new coaches pulled us together," he said.

The final poll deciding the national championship will be taken after the bowl games on New Year's Day.

Ohio State was unranked in the preseason poll and did not reach the Top Ten until after its fourth victory. The 48-year-old Bruce seemed almost dismayed by the vote that lifted the Buckeyes from third to first even though No.2 Alabama, top ranked a week ago, defeated Auburn 25-18 Saturday.

"I don't understand it," he admitted.

The news failed to ruffle Alabama coach Bear Bryant, but Crimson Tide faithful showed their wrath by telephoning AP bureaus in Alabama and the AP sports desk in New York, where the poll is tabulated.

In Selma, Ala., Bryant said, "No, I'm not upset. It's not going to change our game plan for the Sugar Bowl."

Hollis Behel, a retired die setter from Florence, Ala., said, "Alabama has the longest winning streak in the country and the best defensive record in the country. I don't know what the voters' reasoning was. I just don't agree with them."

A nationwide panel of 67 sports writers and broadcasters accorded Ohio State 1,267 points, Alabama 1,265½ and Southern Cal 1,257. Ironically, both the Tide and Trojans had more first-place votes, 29 and 19, than the Buckeyes' 16. Ohio State and Alabama each are 11-0 while Southern Cal is 10-0-1.

It was the second-place ballots that proved the difference. Ohio State's Big Ten champions were mentioned by 33 voters for second place. But eight voters left Alabama out of the top three. Only three ballots listed Ohio State lower than No.3.

Alabama will play sixth-ranked Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl. Fourth-ranked Florida State and No.5 Oklahoma will meet in the Orange Bowl while No.7 Nebraska tangles with No.8 Houston in the Cotton Bowl.

Brigham Young held onto ninth place while Pittsburgh's 29-14 victory over Penn State lifted the Panthers into 10th. Pitt's first appearance of this season in the Top Ten.

Government Sets New Guidelines For Parity

The guidelines are an interpretation requested by colleges and universities of Title IX of the 197 Civil Rights Act, which bars sex discrimination in federally assisted programs. Federal money generally does not go to college athletic programs. But the government takes the view that any institution receiving its money cannot discriminate in any of its programs.

The NCAA has filed a suit challenging this view and Title IX. The case is before the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

Enforcement of Title IX has never been vigorous. The government did not propose regulations for the statute until July, 1975. It then gave colleges and universities three years to comply with them.

But the schools asked for further explanations.

HEW, under then-Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., issued a tentative policy interpretation last December calling for per capita spending on males and females in each aspect of athletics. Then, HEW consulted with interested parties and accepted 700 public comments before shifting to the new guidelines.

The debate over the guidelines has made adversaries of feminists seeking better treatment for women athletes and many school officials who prefer to maintain the existing system for financing their programs.

Opponents of the policy have two ways of trying to scuttle it. They could try to persuade Congress to enact a change in the legislation or they could sue and seek to have the guidelines overturned in court.

HEW is not submitting the guidelines to Congress for review, taking the position that they are not new regulations but simply clarifications. But if the House or Senate sees it differently, there could be a congressional fight.

Thiel Excels In Land Of Giants

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Standing five foot, seven inches tall and weighing all of 150 pounds, New Deal's Billy Thiel is a Lilliputian on Brobdingnag, a midget among the Lions' "Monsters of the Midway."

His teammates are one of the biggest Class A football teams this side of Gulliver's Travels. The New Deal offensive line averages 205 pounds, the offensive backfield 185 and the defensive line 215.

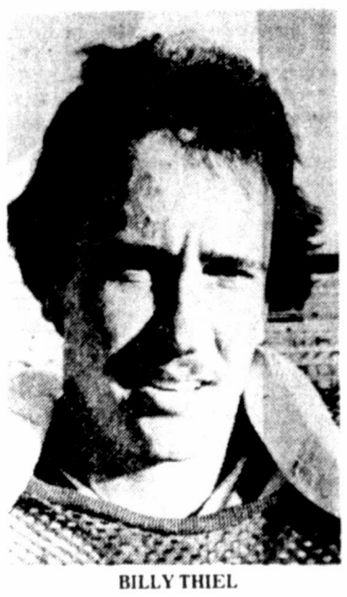
Yet he makes his presence known. On offense he is the fourth running back in a machine that averages over 300 yards a game, and on defense he is a starting cornerback on a unit that allows an average of only 111 yards a game.

More specifically, his defensive backfield has allowed only 300 yards passing all season and picked off 18 aerials.

His larger teammates showed their respect for him before the start of the season by making him one of the team's five co-captains.

He takes that responsibility very seriously, no mere coin-caller he.

"When the boys have a problem, you talk to them. We have to kind of keep them in line sometimes and we have to help get them up for games," he said of his duties.



BILLY THIEL

"This year the boys have been real easy to keep in line. They've been real easy to captain. Our team has come a lot closer together than I ever thought they would.

"Anytime something happens, we're all together. We're one big team, not just a bunch of individuals. That's out on the field, too. We're one big team, not just a bunch of individuals trying to outdo each other."

That spirit has paid off as New Deal, after losing 37-14 to Class AA power Idalou in the first game, rolled through the rest of its schedule and has won both playoff games easily.

"I'm kind of surprised at the team," Thiel said. "We have really scored a lot of points this year. We've whipped everybody real good. Everybody's played real tough."

Of the playoff fever that has captured this small town just north of Lubbock on Highway 87, the small back said, "As we keep going higher and higher, the games get more exciting and we play tougher teams.

"This year means a lot to me because I've got four other brothers who've been on one Lion team or another and, besides, this is my last year.

"It would make it a real nice last year for the whole team if we could win in the quarterfinal and keep going 'till we win the state championship."

First, the Lions must get past 10-0 Seagraves, a sizeable chore.

"I'm impressed real well with them," Thiel said. "They're a real balanced team. They're good sized and a really good ball club.

"For us to beat Seagraves, we cannot make any mistakes, we must come out aggressive, we must hit off the line of scrimmage and get our blocks, and we cannot have any turnovers," he said, obviously recalling from memory a list he had heard before.

Classen Ignored Advice To Visit Doctor

NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight fighter Willie Classen ignored a doctor's order to seek hospital treatment for double vision two months before his death from boxing injuries, his manager said Tuesday.

Marco Minuto said Classen was in a hurry to get home from the Oct. 9 bout with Tony Simpson in London and ignored a British doctor's order to go to the hospital.

Classen never again complained of the double vision, Minuto told the State Senate Committee on Investigations, Taxation and Government Operations.

Minuto, 30, was the first witness before the committee, which is investigating the death of Classen and the state's system of licensing boxers, managers and ring officials.

Classen, 28, a native of Puerto Rico, died last Wednesday night from injuries suffered in his match against Wilford Scypion at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum on Nov. 23.

Portions of a video tape of the bout were played for the committee as Minuto explained the action.

Some boxing observers said the 10-round fight should have been stopped in the ninth round when Classen was rocked by three sharp rights to the head.

However, referee Lew Eskin allowed it to continue. Classen was dropped by a flurry of punches 12 seconds into the final round.

"He punched back," Minuto explained. "That's where he fooled me. He fought back. He threw a right uppercut."

Minuto said he thought Classen looked dazed in his corner following the ninth round, but two doctors said he could continue.

Following the three blows in the ninth round, fight commentator John Condon told the television audience that Classen looked "hurt plenty."

"He's a sitting duck right now," Condon added. "One good punch would do it."

Huskies Glad Of Bowl Trip

SEATTLE (AP) — The University of Washington will be losing money when it travels to El Paso for the Sun Bowl, but athletic department officials say the trip is a long-term investment.

The estimated cost of sending the football team, band and support personnel is between $240,000 and $250,000, said Mike Lude, Husky athletic director.

Lude said on Tuesday the expenses will not be covered by Washington's share of the Sun Bowl purse, which "won't be less than $205,000 and might be as much as $225,000."

The deficit was assured when it was decided to send the band to the game, even though the Sun Bowl does not require schools to bring their bands.

Lude said a fund-raising project has been launched to help cover the expense of sending the band.

The largest single expense is $105,000 for chartering two airplanes and $35,000 to cover room and board for the Husky contingent.

Despite the lack of profit, Lude said "going to the Sun Bowl is an important investment."

Mariners' Horton Wins DH Award

TORONTO (AP) — Free agent Willie Horton was named Tuesday the American League's outstanding designated hitter for the 1979 season.

Playing with the Seattle Mariners, Horton collected 180 hits in 646 at-bats to lead the AL's designated hitters in both categories. He batted .279, batted in 106 runs and scored 77 runs.

HOLE-IN-ONE

R.M. Privitte fired a hole-in-one on the 16th hole at Pine Hills golf course Tuesday, using a a seven-iron on the 160-yard, par-3. Looking on were Ron Freeman, Chuck Castleberry and Burl Countryman.

Cager Comes Home To Face Tech

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Billy Don Hardaway is coming home.

Hardaway, who was an all-state center at Dunbar High School two years ago, will lead the Mean Green of North Texas State into the Municipal Coliseum tonight to meet Texas Tech.

The contest, Tech's third home game in five days, is set for a 7:30 p.m. tip-off. The Raiders are 2-0 on the year, NTSU is 1-1. And for Hardaway, who was Mr. Everything at Dunbar, the Tech game is a big one.

"It's a very emotional game for me," he said Tuesday, "because when I left Lubbock, a lot of people said I should've went to Tech.

"Tech did try to recruit me," added Hardaway, "but they didn't go all out. I did get a phone call from Coach (Gerald) Myers and he asked me to spend a weekend at the school."

But, says Hardaway, he already knew plenty about Texas Tech. He was ready to try something new.

"At the time, I did a lot of hanging out at Tech," he said. "I think it's a really nice school but I'd been at home all my life.

"I wanted to get away and see how I could cope."

Apparently Hardaway is coping pretty well for the Mean Green. Last year as a freshman he started 11 games and played in all 27 for North Texas. He averaged 5.7 points an outing and another 5.3 rebounds. Hardaway's biggest scoring output came against Oral Roberts when he pumped in 16 points.

This year, Hardaway's earned a starting forward berth for the Eagles. NTSU dropped its season opener 83-77 against Saint Marys and came back to take a narrow 66-65 win over Southwestern State Monday night.

Against Southwestern, Hardaway had a big night, pulling down 12 rebounds and blocking three shots. The 6-7 sophomore also connected on six of 11 from the floor for 12 points.

But Coach Bill Blakely has not been overwhelmed with the play of the Eagles in their first two games. In fact, he's downright discouraged.

"I don't mind saying I've been very disappointed," said Blakely, "especially with our veteran players. We just haven't had the right chemistry on the floor. We haven't had the right combination."

And so, Blakely is planning to shake things up a bit on the Mean Green roster.

"Right now I only know three people that will start for sure," he said. "We'll just have to wait and see on the rest."

Sure starters will be Hardaway and 6-2 guard Chris Reynard — a sophomore transfer student. Reynard has led the team in scoring in the Eagles' first two games with a 12 point average. Hardaway has averaged eight an outing.

The other starter will be 6-9 Al Williams, who's been scoring 10.5 per game. Oddly enough, Williams does most of the ballhandling work for the Eagles but he can also play forward.

Four other players should see plenty of playing time for the visitors. That's sophomore Mike Guon and freshmen Kenneth Lyons, Tony Macalik and Pat Hicks.

"Right now my freshmen have been playing better than my veterans," said Blakely, "and usually it's the other way around."

Blakely also reported that Kenneth "Tree" Robinson is doubtful for the Tech game. Robinson is the Eagles' top returning scorer after he averaged 13.1 last year.

"Right now I don't know what Robinson's status will be," Blakely said. "He got hurt last night (Monday) and he's hobbling around right now. He's got a pretty bad thigh bruise."

But the biggest problem for the Eagles in their first two games has been free throw shooting — or rather a lack of it. In two games, the Mean Green has connected on only 21 of 46 free throw attempts.

"Right now, we couldn't throw one in the ocean," says Blakely.

North Texas is trying to rebound off of last year's 11-16 mark after having three very successful years prior to that. In Blakely's first year, '75-76, the Mean Green posted a 22-4 mark. The next year they were 21-6 and in '77-78 they were 22-6.

Blakely says there is a direct correlation between last year's losing record and the number of Southwest Conference foes his Eagles will face this year. Besides Tech, North Texas will meet TCU, Texas A&M and Texas this year.

"In my first three years here we just couldn't get any Southwest Conference schools to play us," he said. "We had a bad season and people don't mind playing us now."

But Blakely has plenty of respect for the Red Raiders.

"Tech's an exceptionally fine ballclub," said the NT coach. "They play well together and they're well-disciplined — I've got the utmost respect for Texas Tech."

And so does Billy Don Hardaway.

"I'll be up for the game," said Hardaway. "I'm really excited about coming home. I've played against them (Tech players) in the summer so I know their personnel pretty well."

The Raiders will go with their same lineup of Ralph Brewster, Jeff Taylor, David Little, Kent Williams and either Ben Hill or Leslie Nichols.

Hill didn't play against South Dakota State because of a sprained ankle Monday but be was able to practice again on Tuesday.

"North Texas is a big team," said Myers. "I know they'll be ready to play. They'd like to do well in this game."

Blakely could only agree on that point.

"It's a real good game for us," he said. "It's good for us to get the exposure of playing a SWC school.

"It's tough when you're an independent because you never know where you stand," he added. "But a game like this gives us more incentive."

RED RAIDER NOTES: Steve Smith's 14-point outburst against South Dakota State Monday night was his biggest total since coming to Tech. In fact, it was more points than the Hobbs, N.M., freshman was able to tally all last season when he finished with 13 points.

Thad Sanders' 17-point effort Monday was the first time the senior from Port Arthur had been in double figures since his sophomore year.

Smith's Floor Play Paces Chaps' Victory

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Marshall Smith needs a rest now and then.

The Lubbock Christian College guard has asthma and, says coach Larry Hays, "We have to give him two or three minutes of rest each half.

"If he gets that much rest, he can make it."

Well, Smith got that periodic rest, but while on the court, the sophomore from Albuquerque kept his teammates pointed in the right direction. Tuesday night, that was good enough for an 84-71 win over Oklahoma Science & Arts.

The victory came just 24 hours after the Chaparrals had dropped a verdict to East Central Oklahoma, and what a difference a day makes.

"We stayed in our zone and they didn't attack it," remarked Hays after Tuesday night's victory. "And with us in the zone and them not attacking it, we were able to keep our guys inside out of foul trouble.

"And we had a chance to rest Smith."

Smith scored but a dozen points — three teammates topped that total — but he controlled the flow of the offense and handed out a dozen assists, thus figuring directly in 36 of the Chaparrals' points.

Guard Bruce Carver ripped in 20 points, center Kevin Wharton had 16, and forward Keith Gardner netted 14, as the Chaparrals improved their record to 4-7.

The loss dropped USAO to 7-3, and the other two losses came to Cameron, Okla., the No. 1 NAIA team in the nation.

And the visiting Drovers started as if they were going to win No. 8. Reggie Forbes led the visitors to a lead and although the Chaparrals were able to stay close, they couldn't climb up on top for until the final four minutes of the first half.

But, Gardner hit a layup off a fast break with 3:54 left in the half to tie at 25, and Smith fed Wharton underneath for a bucket. He was fouled, hit the free shot, and Carver got loose underneath to make it 30-25 Chaps.

But, the final 35 seconds of the first half could have made the difference.

Leading 34-32, Gardner scored both halves of a one-and-one with 33 seconds left in the half.

Pressing on defense, the Chaps got the ball back and Smith got a tip-in on a fast break with 15 seconds.

At midcourt, LCC stole the ball, and Smith fed Carver for a driving layup with only a second left on the clock for a 40-32 halftime advantage.

Starting the second half, the Chaparrals scored on a free shot by Bill McGee, and Smith scored from the lane for a 43-32 cushion.

Trailing 47-36, the visitors reeled off 8 unanswered points, the last on a follow by Daniel Stokley.

But the Chaps went on a streak of their own, hitting 7 points, for a 56-44 buffer.

The Chaparrals shot 55.6 percent from the field, to a 41.4 effort by the Drovers.

The Chaparrals, with a day off today, will return to the home court Thursday to host Howard Payne.

'Spiker's Knee' Makes Pearson Questionable

DALLAS (AP) — Red-hot Dallas Cowboys receiver Drew Pearson is listed as "questionable" for Saturday's key National Football Conference Eastern Division clash with Philadelphia, courtesy of a knee problem that resulted from post-touchdown antics.

Cowboy coach Tom Landry said Pearson reported the problem at practice. In Sunday's victory against the New York Giants, Pearson gathered in a touchdown pass, then leaped into the air and flung the ball into the stands. Upon landing, Pearson fell and hurt the knee.

"His knee is pretty bad," Landry said. "You never know, when they start running, whether fluid will develop. Right now, he's questionable."

Besides an automatic $100 fine for hurling the ball into the stands, Pearson had to answer some embarrassing questions about the incident.

Landry fielded the same sort of question Tuesday: What about Pearson's end zone display? "What can I say?" Landry asked. "He's already said it. He doesn't want to spike the ball any more."

Pearson already has notched 1,006 yards and lately has been the Cowboys sparkplug. In Dallas' 28-7 victory over the Giants Sunday, Pearson caught three touchdown passes.

Landry said Butch Johnson would start in Pearson's place if the latter can't play.

Dallas trails Philadelphia by a game going into Saturday's matchup.

The Eagles have clinched at least a wild-card playoff berth, but the Cowboys can still win the division by beating the Eagles and Washington.

Philadelphia coach Dick Vermeil said his Eagles won't be taking anything for granted, although they beat Dallas 31-21 a month ago.

"The pressure's on everyone," Vermeil said. "I think Dallas feels the heat ... and we feel the heat."

Vermeil and the Cowboys agree that the Eagles' classy running back, Wilbert Montgomery, is a key to the outcome. "Wilbert is as good as the best in the league," Vermeil said.

Dallas assistant Ermal Allen said the resurgent Cowboys must do three things to beat Philadelphia: stop Montgomery, stop receiver Harold Carmichael, and pressure quarterback Ron Jaworski.

Landry's club has a tradition of playing well when cornered, and he seems to delight in the situation.

"You always look forward to these games," he said. "It's there for you to take. It should be a great challenge. Everybody needs to meet the task."

Because the Cowboys have been in the big game consistently over the years, it was suggested that the born-again Eagles might suffer some stage fright.

"There's very little chance of that," Landry said. "They do everything well."

Tie-Breaking System Concerns Pardee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League's system for breaking ties to get into the playoffs could produce bad blood, cheap shots and injuries, says Washington Coach Jack Pardee.

Pardee's main concern is the use of net points in all games as a one of the steps to break ties, a factor that could be used to decide a wild-card berth in the National Football Conference this season.

He said the net points factor puts a coach in a "no-win" situation, where he might be forced to risk injuries to key personnel in a bid to run up the score.

"Say you've got a game safely in hand and you have to leave John Riggins in to run up the score and he gets hurt," Pardee said. "It just doesn't make sense.

"Once you're approaching the end of a game and you've got a 17-or 20-point lead, you should be running down the clock. I don't believe in getting more."

Pardee came under mild criticism Sunday when he declined to go for another score in the final minute of the Redskins' 38-21 victory over the Green Bay Packers, although net points could decide the playoff spot if Washington and Chicago each finish 10-6.

Earlier this season, Washington went for a field goal in a similar situation in their 34-20 victory over Dallas, raising the question of the Redskins' "rubbing it in."

"You get caught in a no-win situation," Pardee said. "If you get three more points, you're accused of running up the score. If you don't and it comes back to haunt you, you're accused of being dumb.

"What this system does is encourage blow-outs. When you've got a 40-0 lead you're supposed to pour it on St. Louis or the 49ers. There's nothing competitive about it."

The Washington coach said the rolling-up of scores leads to frustration on the part of the losing team which could produce cheap shots.

"When we got the field goal in the final seconds against Dallas, one of their guys rammed into our kicker (Mark Moseley) and holder (Joe Theismann). That comes from frustration and I can understand that.

"What it does, though, is open the door to cheap shots. What do you lose when they sock you with a 15-yard penalty when you're already far behind?"

Pardee said he understands the problems of breaking ties and suggested that if points are to be a factor, they should be used only in divisional games.

"It should be used for head-to-head situations and not for all games," he said.

Under the NFL format, revised a couple of years ago, points in head-to-head competition no longer are a factor. Instead, the provision has been broadened to cover more games.

If two clubs tie within a division, best won-lost percentage in common games becomes a factor before getting to net points. However, the "common games" factor is not taken into consideration as the wild-card tie-breaker if teams come from different divisions, thus putting a heavier emphasis on net points.

Vikings' Legendary Jim Marshall Announces Football Retirement

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Legendary Jim Marshall, the Minnesota Vikings' seemingly inexhaustible defensive end, announced his retirement from professional football Tuesday.

"Today marks a new milestone in the career of Jim Marshall," said the 41-year-old, 20-year veteran of the National Football League at a press conference. "There comes a time when common sense comes before pride. I'm still capable of playing but I think it's time."

Marshall's incredible career began in Canada. He played one year there in 1959, made a pit stop in Cleveland for another season and then found a permanent home in Minnesota, where he joined the expansion Vikings in 1961.

In his 19 seasons in Minnesota, Marshall started every game for the Vikings — regular-season or post-season — and he holds the NFL record for consecutive regular-season games started at 280.

Marshall, who also owns the league mark for opponent's fumbles recovered, will start the Vikings' final two games of the season. He admitted that in 20 years he never really worried about missing a game on Sunday afternoon.

"My mind is so programmed each Sunday that I never felt I couldn't start," said Marshall, who has overcome encephalitis, gunshot wounds and pneumonia.

"For the record, I'm 41 years old. I was born Dec. 30, 1937," Marshall told the crowd when someone suggested that he was really 45 or 46. "I've got my birth certificate and passport in my pocket and all of you are welcome to look at it."

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant said the true value of a player like Marshall would not be known immediately.

"I don't think any of us here really appreciate Jim Marshall today," said Grant, who took over the Vikings in 1967. "As time and years go by, we'll appreciate him more than ever.

"It's kind of a sad time in my career, but a very proud time too," Grant added. "In this business, one of the things you look for as a coach is leadership. When I got here the Vikings had it in Jim Marshall.

"You try to establish a program, but you have to have people who will buy it. I know Jim was skeptical at first, but we leaned hard on him and we've been leaning on him all these years.

"He's never questioned anything that we've done. He's always given 1,000 percent."

Marshall was asked to compare Grant and Woody Hayes, whom Marshall played under at Ohio State in the late 1950s.

"Woody had his way and Bud has his," Marshall smiled. "I think there's things to be learned from both of them."

Raider Fems Win Fifth

SAN MARCUS (Special) — Texas Tech, led by Nodia Vaughn's 22 points, ran up its fifth straight win Tuesday night by defeating Southwest Texas State University 93-45. The Raiders will now travel to Austin tonight to meet the seventh-ranked University of Texas Longhorns.

Tech fell behind 8-0 at the start of the game but quickly rebounded and grabbed a 42-21 lead. The win ran Tech's record to 7-2 for the year. SWTS is 4-5. Trisha King led SWTS with 13 points.

AREA BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Dunbar Gets Better With Age, Downs Ponies

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Like fine wine, the Dunbar Panthers just keep getting better with age.

Through the first couple weeks of the season they were a cheap, sour hip-pocket half-pint of port, shooting under 30 percent and impressing no one.

But with Tuesday night's 77-64 victory over crosstown rival Coronado, the Panthers moved up a class to a robust young burgundy, bubbling and tasty but still inconsistent.

What provided the step up from paper bag to checked table cloths?

"Effort," said DHS coach Joe McWilliams, summing it up nicely. "We got a great deal of intensity, something we've lacked in our previous games.

"The improvement in our shooting was do to concentration," he continued. "Heretofore we had relied on our big guys to take the ball inside. Tonight our younger kids started looking at the basket."

They not only looked at it, they shot the bottom out of it. Tuesday night the Panthers hit 55 percent of their shots from the floor and an amazing 77 percent in the second half. And nine different players scored for the purple and white.

Leading that charge was Stanley Whitfield, one of the few seniors on the team. Whitfield, who stands about 6-4 when not jumping (which isn't often), grabbed 10 of Dunbar's 33 rebounds and scored 28 points, 20 in the second and third periods when Dunbar needed them the most.

Quick, penetrating guard Scott Williams tallied 28 points to match Whitfield for scoring honors and lead the Mustangs. He was followed by Dwayne Neff's 14 points.

The key period in the game was the second quarter. The Panthers entered it trailing 18-14 and exited it leading 35-31.

Trailing 20-14 after Cody Love hit the first points of the period, DHS threw in back-to-back buckets by Whitfield and then a steal and layup by Daryl Harris to tie the game at 6:03.

The teams swapped baskets and Coronado even pulled ahead by as much as 29-26 (on a pair of free throws by Kirk Johnson) before the Panthers really caught fire.

AMARILLO (Special) — Kirk Cole scored 14 points and Raul Romero added 13 points as Lubbock High ran its season record to 5-2 Tuesday night with a 52-49 win over Caprock.

Also scoring in double figures for LHS was Oscar Lopez with 10 points.

For Caprock, Paul Platt led the scoring with 19 points after hitting nine shots from the floor.

"The game wasn't as close as the score indicated," said LHS head coach Craig Wells. "We led by 17 (points) at one time."

Lubbock jumped out to a 33-20 first-half but was outscored 29-19 over the final two periods.

Lawsuits Could Damage China's Olympic Hopes

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Two lawsuits have set into motion legal machinery that could seriously damage plans by the International Olympic Committee to get mainland China into the Olympic Games for the first time since the Communist takeover in 1949.

IOC lawyers, while predicting that a protracted legal battle will eventually favor the world body, do not rule out that the two suits could promote a Swiss court injunction temporarily setting aside the IOC formula for China's re-entry, thus allowing Taiwan to keep its current Olympic status.

The Swiss lawyer repreeenting Taiwan in the fight to retain its flag, name and anthem in future Olympic Games said Tuesday he expects a court hearing on the case before next year's Winter Games in Lake Placid, N.Y.

In a telephone interview, Alain Wurzburger said one suit against the recent ruling by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) has already been filed with a Lausanne court and that a second was on its way.

Wurzburger said both suits would most likely be heard together, "hopefully before Lake Placid."

Clarifying conflicting reports of legal action by Taiwan, Wurzburger said the first suit was made against the original IOC ruling by its executive board in Nagoya, Japan, in October. The second claim will be against last week's overwhelming approval of the decision by the IOC's indvidual members. He said both suits have been made by the IOC member in Taiwan, Henry Hsu.

Taiwan's Olympic committee has until Jan. 1 to drop its old name, use instead the term "Chinese Taipei Olympic Committee," and then prepare a new flag and anthem, to be approved by the IOC.

All this has been ordered by the Lausanne-based world Olympics body to accomodate the Republic of China (mainland China), which has re-joined the Olympic movement after an absence of 30 years.

Wurzburger said both suits presented by Hsu were over an alleged breach of rules by the IOC. Since the ruling, the Olympic committee in Taiwan has screamed defiance, claiming the new plan contravenes Rule 64 and Rule 65 of the Olympic charter.

These rules spell out quite clearly that every team in the Games must march behind its national flag in the opening parade, and that its national anthem must be played at medal ceremonies.

Wurzburger said the object of both suits would be the same — "to permit the Taiwan Olympic Committee to retain its current status."

He added that during the course of the action, the court would have the power to instruct the IOC to revert to the old system, thus temporarily allowing Taiwan to keep its its former symbols.

Wurzburger said the second of the Taiwanese suits would probably be filed within the next few days and that the whole legal action could take "an extremely long time" before a verdict is reached.

Menwhile, Francois Carrard, counsel for the IOC, told The Associated Press it would be impossible for the court to actually reach a decision "not only by Lake Placid, but also before (the Summer Games in) Moscow."

Carrard said he had been given until Jan. 8 to present the IOC's case. This would then be followed by a further exchange of correspondance between the two sets of lawyers, he said, after which the case would be opened by a preliminary hearing.

REACTIONS OF WOUNDED BIG GAME

BIG GAME, BY ITS REACTIONS, MAY SHOW SIGNS OF BEING SHOT EVEN IF IT DOESN'T LEAVE A BLOOD TRAIL. IT MAY JUMP OR RUN ERRATICALLY. IT WILL USUALLY HEAD FOR THE NEAREST HEAVY COVER. VITALLY HIT, IT USUALLY HEADS DOWNHILL, AND A GOOD TRAIL OF BLOOD OFTEN DEVELOPS QUICKLY. UPHILL DEPARTURE USUALLY MEANS A LESS VITAL SHOT, PERHAPS WITH LITTLE BLOOD TRAIL AND A LENGTHY JOB OF TRAILING, BUT DON'T GIVE UP.
GAME MAY NOT REACT, SO FOLLOW ITS TRAIL A BIT TO BE SURE!

Graham Heads Wrestling Card

Superstar Billy Graham will make his second Lubbock appearance at the Fair Park Coliseum tonight when he goes against huge (450 pounds) Haystack Calhoun in the main event at the Fair Park Coliseum.

As an added attraction for the Graham aPpearance, children will be admitted free. Last week Graham defeated J.J. Dillon in his first Lubbock appearance. He is a former holder of the World Wrestling Association heavyweight title.

In a battle for the Western States Tag Team championship Gary Young and Gino Caruso will defend their title against Killer Tim Brooks and Gypsy Joe.

In another tag team bout Ricky Romero and Riki Dozan will tangle with the Super Destroyer and J.J. Dillon. The nights other match features Larry Lane against Karl Krupp.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A LETTER SAYING COTTON GINNERS temporarily will not be cited under provisions of the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act has been received by the National Cotton Council from the U. S. Department of Labor.

The council and others earlier had objected to Labor Department interpretations of the law, contending that farmers, ginners and certain other employers are exempt.

Herbert J. Cohen, assistant administrator of the Labor Department's wage and hour division, said in the letter that certain sections of the law are under review.

"Based on this review," he said, "it has been decided to restudy the department's position and to issue a clear opinion on these sections of the act."

He added: "Until such time as the department issues the opinion, enforcement activity under the act will be suspended in the cotton gin industry."

Cohen's letter also said advice and assistance from ginners will be sought by the department during the course of the study. He indicated the Labor Department plans to meet with ginners "to facilitate achieving maximum voluntary compliance with the act."

AFTER NUMEROUS GINNERS WERE CITED for failing to register, the council and others urged the Senate to intervene and 52 senators signed a letter to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall expressing their concern over enforcement activities against exempt employers.

Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock is co-sponsor of a bill introduced by Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., in the House to provide relief through amendments to the act. Hearings on the bill (HR 4151) are not expected until after the first of the year.

The Cotton Council said it will continue to monitor developments and will work with Labor Department officials to seek permanent relief for ginners and other agricultural employers.

When a new interpretation is issued, all existing cases where citations and or civic money penalties have been issued will be reviewed, says Tony Price, executive vice president of the Texas Cotton Ginners Association.

Earlier, Secretary Marshall responded to the letter signed by the 52 senators.

He said the agency intends to adopt an interpretation that would exempt those employees of gins who do not spend more than 20 percent of their time in farm labor contracting activities and perform those activities solely for their employers.

MORE DETAILS OF THE 1980 COTTON program, which most likely will call for no set-aside, are expected to be announced around Dec. 14 by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Two main options now under review call for no set-aside or a 10 percent set-aside, officials said Tuesday. But they said the USDA probably will decide to have no set-aside, partly because U. S. cotton stocks in 1980 may be lower than expected in response to strong export demand.

Also, they said, the next USDA crop report, scheduled for release next Tuesday, may show a slight drop in U. S. cotton production from 14.5 million bales (480 pounds) estimated in November.

The USDA's November estimates for planted and harvested acreages may turn out to be high, some officials indicated.

They said preliminary calculations put the 1980 target price around 60 cents a pound, based on cost of production estimates, compared with 57.7 this year. The target price could be nhanged later, based on final 1979 yields and final cost of production numbers, the officials added.

If a 10 percent set-aside is adopted for 1980, then the target price may be adjusted slightly above 60 cents.

COTTON FUTURES FELL SHARPLY late in the session Tuesday on hectic selling to close near the lows, off 125 to 138 points in nearbys.

Earlier buying support dried up, floor brokers said, when trade and commission house selling pressured March, which dropped 138 points to close at 70.29 cents. Liquidating December dropped 125 points to finish at 67.60, May declined 135 points to settle at 71.55, and July fell 130 points to close at 72.45.

Speculators and day traders bailed out of long positions when industry participants sold a market viewed as overbought, brokers said. Estimated volume was 14,050 lots.

Futures opened mostly lower and declined before rallying to new contract highs and then collapsing to close below the lows of the session on Monday, when open interest in an up market rose 1,091 contracts to a total of 40,775.

Ten delivery notices were issued in December following the issuance of 45 on Monday.

Trading on Telcot totaled 25,778 bales, which brought an average price of 55.28 cents and an average over the loan of 984 points. The base was up 50 points most of the day but weakend toward the end after the break at New York and finished off 25 points.

It appeared the volume would top 30,000 bales for the day until the market declined.

Sharp Decline In Farm Net Income Seen In '80

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers not only can expect a sharp decline in net income next year but could see farm real estate prices go up only by about one-third of what they did in 1979, according to government analysts.

At the same time, they say, production expenses, interest rates and total debts will continue to bite deeply into farmers' operations and lifestyles.

In fact, by the time 1981 arrives, farmers equities in U.S. agriculture — what they would have left if they sold out and paid all their bills — probably will gain only slightly.

This is the view of various analysts at the Agriculture Department's recent outlook conference. The figures, however, are still only projections but have some solid reasons for being published.

No catastrophic decline in commodity prices is in sight, the experts said, but here is the way one of them put it:

"Crop and livestock prices are expected to at least maintain 1979 record levels through 1980, and cash receipts likely will rise to new record highs.

"However, the outook is for sustantially increased prduction expenses which will more than offset income gains, reducing net farm income."

Net farm income — measured in current dollars with no adjustment for inflation — is expected to be about $32 billion this year. In 1980, according to USDA, farmers might see a 20 percent decline to around $25 billion or so.

George Hoffman of the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service said forecasting farm income for 1980 at this time is subject to many statistical hazards.

Commodity prices could shift because of many reasons, including bad weather in the United States or in other parts of the world, the general economy and U.S. trade policies.

Thus, Hoffman said, "Net farm income is extremely sensitive to small changes in average prices. For example, at current levels a 1 percent increase in prices received by farmers translates directly to a $1.3 billion increase in cash receipts and net income."

The prospect of reduced net income also will have a slowdown effect on soaring farm real estate prices, according to the analysts.

Farmland values will continue to go up, however, Michael Boehlje of Iowa State University told the conference.

"Although recent events in the money markets are expected to result in higher rates of interest on farm mortgages, mortgage funds and longterm financing through installment contracts appear to be readily available, and the higher interest rates are not expected to have a significant depressing effect on the farm real estate market," Boehlje said.

According to USDA, farm real estate values may rise only 5 percent in 1980, compared to a 16 percent gain estimated in 1979.

Department experts say this is the lowest forecast for land value increases next year and that real estate could rise by as much as 10 percent.

Livestock Futures Prices In Sharp Slump

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 60 to 150 points lower with December through February at the limit decline Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Aggressive liquidation in the nearby spread to later months as deliveries continued heavy. Lower gold also activated some of the selling after hectic buying Monday.

Prices were forced to the lowest levels in more than one month despite further strength in beef at noon. However, traders fear more aggressive featuring of pork if beef escalates.

Deliveries total 562 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged to up one half at 104 to 104½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were up $1 to off 50 cents with the best top $69 per hundredweight. Slaughter was 118,000 head. About 16,400 head are expected today at te major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 65 to 127 lower led by March after April and August fell the 150 limit. Volume was 2,563 lots. September briefly gained 15.

Some of the selling spilled over from live cattle futures and also stemmed from lower turn to gold after hectic buying Monday.

Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 7,200 head.

Hog futures closed 20 to 120 lower with July under most pressure. Sales totaled 6,437 contracts. Prices ended at the lowest in more than two weeks and were steady to lower from the opening bell.

Weakness in other meat pits brought selling as did belief that Monday's buying on soaring gold was overdone. The heavy pace of slaughter and weakness in cash hams and bellies easily offset mostly higher cash hogs.

Wholesale hams were off 2 at 78 asked to 83 cents a pound asked, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were up $1.25 to off 50 cents with the best top $41.50 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Kill was 368,000 head. The major terminals are expecting about 31,500 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 130 to 160 lower paced by July which was off 170 for a time. Sales totaled 7,826 lots. Prices slumped to the lowest in one month and were down from the start except for a brief gain of 10.

The sharp increase in local storings to push holdings above the year ago level touched off some of the selling as did weakness in other meat pits and gold. Heavy kill and further markdowns in cash bellies also brought pressure.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 1½ at 31 to 41 cents, f.o.b. river.

Farm Bureau Leader Warns Of Inflation's Peril

MCALLEN, Texas (AP) — The president of the Texas Farm Bureau says inflation's worst effect is the "moral decay" of Americans.

"The devastating inflation that swept Germany in the early 1920s contributed to the despair that led to the rise of Hitler. It could happen here," Carrol Chaloupka said at the group's 46th annual meeting.

Chaloupka said the "hidden tax" of inflation is hitting agricultural producers and those on fixed incomes hardest.

"Agricultural producers must pay higher and higher prices for things they buy, but cannot automatically pass along those increases," he said.

"What we must have is a Constitutional amendment to balance the budget with a limitation on spending, rather than increasing taxes, except in the case of war.

"It means we must not look to Washington every time we get into trouble. We must stop electing officials who promise easy solutions that come from the public till."

Chaloupka also questioned the need for Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland's series of hearings to examine the structure of agriculture, one of which is scheduled for this week in Wichita Falls.

"We reject the idea that farming is everybody's business," he said. "We will resist any attempt to make us into a public utility."

Chaloupka said that unless the government's energy policy is changed, energy shortages are likely to get worse. He added that unlike other industries, agriculture cannot convert from petroleum and natural gas to coal.

Attacks on oil companies, he said, do more harm than good because those companies can do the most to solve the nation's energy problems.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market Tuesday was active. Supplies of cotton for sale were moderate and demand was very good.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations declined 50 points.

The base price of grade 41, staple 34, mike 3.5-4.9 was 62.10, up 150 points from one week ago. Grade 41, staple 32, mike 3.0-3.2 was quoted at 52.45.

Growers sold mixed lots around 1,175 to 1,375 points over 1979 loan rates for 3.5-4.9 mikes.

Gins paid growers $100-$120 per ton for cotton seed.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.9, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Price trend: lower on Tuesday.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and soybean futures fell slightly Tuesday while corn futures closed fractionally higher on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Trading was generally light and uneventful. Speculative selling and significant deliveries of cash wheat against the maturing December wheat futures contract weighed on wheat futures. An absence of major commercial buying or big new export sales meant there was little support for prices.

Some weakening of cash grain prices occurred as farmers sold corn and soybeans in the wake of the harvest.

Moderate weakness in silver futures discouraged any further buying on concern about Iran or the dollar.

Stock Market On Rebound

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rebounded from the decline of the past two sessions Tuesday with a rally paced by oil and defense issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 12.12 in the past two trading days, recovered 5.29 to 824.91.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange stepped up to 33.51 million shares from 29.03 million Monday.

Oil and defense issues remained the market leaders, continuing the role they assumed more than a week ago as traders kept an eye on the increasing tensions between Iran and the United States.

Among defense stocks Tuesday, Litton Industries was up 1⅜ at 40 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York; McDonnell Douglas rose 1½ to 32⅛, and Northrop added 1⅜ to 45.

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.
