Grass Crops Are Now Very Important

Grass as a crop to be harvested by grazing animals is becoming a must in our ecenomy, states Millburn Cook, Work Unit Conservationist, of Rotan, who represents the Soil Conservation Service and assists the Upper Clear Fork Soil Conservation District. According to Cook, as livestock numbers increase the grassland phase of agriculture becomes more and more important. The objective of cattlemen is to obtain maximum forage consistant with the perpetuation of the vegetation. In order to obtain this objective a cattleman must know how grazing influnces the functions of the plant and just how much they may be disturbed without permanent injury.

During this season of the year heavy demand is made upon food reserves as seed have been formed and are being grazed. Immdiately following the forming of seed, at which time the plants are in an active growth cycle, there is a period during which the plants stores reserves food. Approximately 75 percent of these reserves will be used in the spring to produce the first 10 percent of growth.

Very heavy grazing would be necessary to consume all the seed produced by healthy plants. However, the influence of grazing upon seed production is twofold. Other than the thought of seed stalks being consumed by grazing animals is the physiological disturbance of the plant which will prohibit seed formation. Probably the physiological effect, or metabolism disturbance to the plant is the most important consideration, desipte the general opinion to the contrary. Actually, the production of seed probably is a minor benefit, derived when resting a pasture, whereas food reserve is a major benefit.

The life span of grass plants varies from a week in annuals to 50 or more years in perennials. It is, therefore obvious that a rest period during seed formation is not necessarily needed each year unless vigor of existing plants is low or additional seedling plants are needed for higher forage production.

It is also evident that ungrazed plants are not as healthy or vigorous as properly grazed plants. A properly grazed plant is like a pruned plant, and every nurseryman knows the value of pruning. Upon grazing, the plant will branch and become more bushy, and the forage will be less rank and fibrous.

A good livestock farmer must be an excellent grass farmer. He is working with environmental, biotic, chemical and animal relationships. He must receive an economical return.

With the forgegoing in mind, Cook points out how important it is for livestock operators to become familiar with with the grazing plants present on their units or ranch operation and to plan their grazing management programs to fit the situation always keeping in mind that a reserve is needed for droughts or other uncontrolled items. It is therefore wise to not graze the plants to heavily during the winter. An old saying states "It is not how much grass you go into the winter with, but how much grass you go into the summer with that keeps a grassland manager in business."

Student Survey of The Senior Class

The seniors graduating this year might remember that less than half of the beginning class is graduating this year.

In 1954, the future seniors started the long trek from the first grade through the twelfth with 90 members. In the second year of their progress, they held fast to the 90 mark. They then started to decline in number from 90 students to 83 in the next year, and from 83 students to 77 in their last of Primary. 13 members were lost in Primary. Of course, new members of the class took a few of the others places but the class population still declined.

The class started into Jr. Hi. with 68 students. They finished the eighth with 64 students.

59 of the class became Freshmen the next year. In going from Freshmen to Sophomores, the class lost 11 members, making a total number of 48 students. They lost 11 members also in the final laps of their High School years. There were 37 seniors starting this year. This means that there was a decline of 53 class members from the 1st grade through the senior year. Only 19 of the members came all the way throught the twelve grades of the Rotan School System. This is about half of the class. Now it remains to be seen as to how many will receive their diplomas.

Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Coupe

(discover the difference)

Find out what 350 hp feels like

in America's favorite intermediate size car

Next time you're feeling low, come on in and plunk yourself down in the bucket seat of a Chevelle Malibu Super Sport. Flick the ignition—bring that special-order 350-hp power plant to life. Then go find a road and try not to smile.

We think it's the greatest pep pill since weekends—and that goes for the other Chevelle V8's too. The 195-hp. And the 250- and 300-hp jobs we can order for you.

And of course if power doesn't sell you right off, maybe Chevelle's short turning radius and overall handling ease will. Or its Full Coil suspension ride. Or its all-vinyl, carpeted interior. Or maybe it's just plain old Chevelle value.

Buick Special V-6 goes easy on gas.

Its low price goes hard on your resistance.

We put 6 big reasons to buy a Buick Special under the hood. And another small one on the price tag. The six are a set of the liveliest, thriftiest cylinders that ever zipped you merrily on your way. They're all arranged in neat, smooth V-fashion. They add up to 225 cubic inches and 155 horsepower, and make other arrangements of 6 cylinders seem primitive. That's not all. Special sports Buick comfort, Buick style and traditional Buick quality. The price tag? We saved the best for last.

$2343.00 Manufacturer's suggested retail price for Special V-6 2-dr. coupe. Price includes Federal Excise Tax and suggested dealer delivery and handling charge (transportation charges, accessories, other optional equipment, state and local taxes additional).

Wouldn't you really rather go first class?

Statement of Faith of the Assembiles of God

We believe the Bible to be the inspired and only infallible and authoritative Word of God. We believe that there is one God eternally existent in three persons: God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost. We believe in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, in His Miracles, in His ascension to the right hand of the Father, and His personal future return to this earth in power and glory to rule a thousand years. We believe in the blessed Hope, which is the Rapture of the Church at Christ's coming. We believe that the only means of being cleansed from sin is through repentance and faith in the precious blood of Christ. We believe that regeneration by the Holy Spirit is absolutely essential for personal salvation. We believe that the redemptive work of Christ on the cross provides healing of the human body in answer to believing prayer. We believe that the baptism of the Holy Spirit, according to Acts 2:4, is given to believers who ask for it. We believe in the sanctifying power of the Holy Spirit by whose indwelling the Christian is enabled to live a holy life. We believe in the resurrection of both the saved and the lost, the one to everlasting life and the other to everlasting damnation.

Common Market Is Discussed By DKG

"Nations of the Common Market" was the subject discussed by Mr. Charles Griggs, Sweetwater attorney, when Gamma Tau Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met January 11, at 7 o'clock in the Coffee Room of the First National Bank in Sweetwater.

Mr. Griggs was introduced by Mrs. H. D. Melton following the invocation by Mrs. James B. Day, Rotan. He discussed the Common Market as "an outgrowth of one of the most unselfish movements ever undertaken by mankind, the Marshall Plan." Formed in Rome in 1957, it was originally an association of six nations, Belgium, Italy, Luxemburg, France, West Germany and the Netherlands, who were banded together because of adjoining borders and mutual interests, for furthering trade among themselves. Since that time, Greece and Turkey have become associate nations, and other nations have applied for membership, but thus far have not been accepted.

With an extensive knowledge of European economics and history, Mr. Griggs was able to explain his subject thoroughly, most of his information having been obtained from personal observation during travel and work in Europe.

Chapter President, Mrs. Joe D. Benson of Sweetwater, presided during the business meeting which followed. The treasurer's report was given by Faye Rhea, Roscoe. Committee chairmen reported various activities. Mrs. Wendell Morrow, Professional Affairs Chairman, displayed a poster of professional "Resolutions." Mrs. Day presented the Personal growth report for Miss Josie Baird, Chairman. She showed a "Magazines for Foreign Countries" display, and read a letter from Gamma Tau's foreign library assignment, Quezon Provincial Library, Lucerna City, Quezon, Phillippine Islands. "Personal Growth Pointers," a periodical letter from this committee to each member was distributed.

Miss Melton reminded Gamma Taus that there would be a graded quiz on the Constitution and By-Laws next year.

At the close of business members joined in a sing-song and social hour.

Hostesses for the meeting were: Mmes. W. W. Olsen, Dewayne Wilson, Inez Lawrence, C. L. Monk and Vera Ely.

Members attending from Rotan were: Mmes. Day, Morrow, Whit Clark, Charles McCall, K. C. McCasland, Weldon Callan, J. R. Strayhorn, C. J. Dalton, Marshall Hill, Robert Phillips and Miss Delila Baird.

Other members present were: Mmes. Benson, Melton, Bruce McCain, T. E. Knapp, Virgil Wolfe, and Faye Rhea, Janette Marbut, Helen Etheredge and Lura Lee Davis.

Education Planned For Adult Illiterates

After the presentation of the report of the study of Illiteracy, the State Board of Education adopted a plan for a statewide program for adult illiterates.

The purpose and objective of the program are, eliminating adult illiteracy among the 731,000 educationally deficient adults in the state, providing basic education essential to the vocational retraining of adults for immediate employment, encouraging citizenship training among the 200,000 registered aliens in the state, providing education in home and family life through basic instruction and homemaking, sanitation, and health, and eliminating some of the causes of illiteracy by expanding the program for children of migrants as well to provide for children of all educationally deficient adults.

The responsibility for the program will be shared by the state and local communities. The state would be responsible for the operation of the program and for developing high standards of instruction. The program would be developed and supervised be a vocational division headed by a full time director. The director would be responsible to the Assistant commissioners for Vocational Training. The local community would be responsible for the administration and operation of the local program. The school would work closely with the county to find those eligible for literacy classes. After testing, the students would be assigned to grade levels 1-3, 4-6, or 7-8. The local school would be reimbursed 100 per cent for the cost of instruction in literacy and basic education.

The program would be designed to develope for the non-reader basic reading skill and to improve the reading ability of the functional illiterate. Tests would be developed to measure reading levels at different stages of instruction. Writing skills would be developed to enable the adult to write a simple letter and other writing required at home, on the job, or elsewhere. Skill in arithmetic and the use of figures would be developed ao enable individual to count money, write checks, read directions and charts, and to make and follow a family budget. A special cirriculum would be developed closely related to the vocational needs of individuals. Opportunities would be provided for adults to use their improved abilities by reading American History, current events, and material on health, safety, and other topics related to citizenship development. The annual cost of the program for training 10,000 adult illiterates would be approximately $320,000.

Army Career for High School Grads

Many male high school students think that if they get disgusted with school days they can always join the army or one of the other branches of the service and make a profitable living. More important, to themselves, they think that they can show everyone just how hard, tough, etc., they think they are.

Unfortunately today's army has no place for these misfits, as many of them will admit later. The army of today requires effectual and correct grammar, rigid adherence to military procedure, and intelligent and mature men who are ready to fight in a modern war. They don't want trouble-making high school dropouts. Army life is like civilian life in the fact that a high school education is highly advantageous to the ordinary enlisted man. So to those planning to join eventually, it is wise to wait and enjoy the extra benefits of extra educations.
