Pot Is Kept Boiling On Food Outlook

By J. W. DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 21—Administration officials tried today to put a damper on complaints of food shortage, but meat packers and Republican senators kept the fire roaring.

The administration's argument: Things may be a little tough, but nobody is going hungry in America.

The opposition's cry: Controls are so badly handled that packers lost money and civilians' food choices are getting slimmer and slimmer.

Jones Statement

Said War Food Administrator Marvin Jones in a statement:

"Our armed forces will continue to be well fed. We will continue to help our fighting Allies. Our own people will continue to have plenty of good wholesome food, and we will continue to contribute our share to the relief of starving people, even if it means a new hitch in our belts."

Price Administrator Chester Bowles, undergoing a rugged session with Republicans on the Senate Banking committee, took much the same stand.

"We remain the best fed nation of the world," Bowles said. "Certainly civilian meat will be shorter than at any time during the war but that arises from the extraordinary needs of the war effort."

Packers Losing Money

Senators Taft (R-Ohio), Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) and Reed (R-Kans) all said they knew of packers who were losing thousands of dollars a month while OPA studied what to do about meat price ceilings.

Taft told Bowles that "I think you are directly violating the law."

The American Meat institute declared in a statement that packers have to pay $14.75 per hundred pounds for live hogs but that their own sales ceilings are based on the supposition the price they pay is only $14.

Bowles had stated that "OPA will not be stampeded into giving price increases" and that "the shortage would not be relieved in any degree by higher returns to the packers."

Institute's Version

The meat institute, in reply, expressed regret "that our industry's effort to obtain the 'fair and equitable margin' promised to it by the law should be construed by anyone as an attack on price control."

"It is true," the institute continued, "that 1944 was a generally profitable year for the industry" but "numerous packers have

Tanks Race For Honor Of 'First'

By THOBURN WIANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH AMERICAN ARMOR AT LUDWIGSHAFEN, Germany, March 21—Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's newest and still unidentifiable tank division slammed into this Rhine city today after probably the wildest scramble in the history of armored warfare.

It was like hitting a fresh egg with a hammer, with the resultant mess.

Four armored divisions with single-track minds—to get to the Rhine and chew up as many German forces as possible—ran all over one another's toes in a hectic race, but no one got sore.

Others Swarm Roads

Besides this new armored outfit, the Tenth, Eleventh and Fourth Armored divisions swarmed over all roads to the Rhine in the comparatively small area from Ludwigshafen to north of Worms.

The scene seemed to be one of utter confusion. No one apparently knew what the other fellow was doing or where he was doing it. Yet when the time came, all the pieces in this massed armored movement fell exactly into place.

It was almost unbelievable that so many people and tanks could do so much in so short a time.

It is not far from the truth to say that the new tank division rushed into Ludwigshafen to get out of the way of the enormous concentrations of tanks and infantry pushing from behind.

Germans Lose Spirit

There is no will to fight left in the Germans west of the Rhine. They are badly beaten and know it. Some still are putting up a token resistance, but they are de-

Yanks Take Iloilo, Major Island Resistance Crushed

YANKS TAKE PANAY CAPITAL—American forces invading Panay in the central Philippines, have captured the capital city of Iloilo and with guerrilla aid have crushed most Jap resistance on the strategic island. Areas shown in black are American-held.

Japs Tighten On Homefront, Fear Invasion Is Near

By RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor

CAPTURE of Japanese-ravaged Iloilo city on Panay island in the central Philippines was reported by Gen. Douglas MacArthur late Wednesday.

Simultaneously the general disclosed that, with guerrilla aid, all organized Japanese resistance on Panay had ceased and that the Nipponese suffered "extraordinarily" heavy losses along their collapsed Shimbu line in the mountains east of Manila, on Luzon island.

Japan Tightens Grip

Meanwhile the leaders of Japan, fearing invasion of the homeland, moved in the Imperial Diet to gain for the Army powers that would place the entire citizenry and its property under the thumb of the military.

General MacArthur said the Japanese duplicating their depredations at Manila, destroyed 70 per cent of Iloilo city, Northeast of Iloilo doughboys and guerrillas seized four towns and neared an airfield.

The Yanks on Luzon started a new drive against Baguio where Japanese headquarters are said to be located. These doughboys made juncture with the guerrilla conquerors of San Fernando, La Union province, and headed for Baguio up a good mountain road.

Jap Convoy Smashed

The Yanks maintained the pace of their advance on southwest Mindanao.

American planes destroyed two midgets submarines at Davao, southwestern Mindanao. Others practically wiped out a Japanese convoy of six ships in the China sea off Amoy.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique late Wednesday told of two Army aerial strikes against Chichi Jima, in the Bonins north of Iwo Jima, some of the planes flew from Iwo. Navy planes made rocket and strafing attacks in the Kuriles. Yap and Wake islands also were blasted.

Radio Tokyo pictured Japanese airmen as pursuing the American carrier task force "fleeing southward" after its smashing attack on the Nippon fleet in the inland sea. Tokyo made the unconfirmed claim that eight Yank warships were sunk and two damaged during the two days the task force operated close to Japanese shores.

Preliminary reports from the U. S. Pacific fleet said the task force airmen crippled between 15 and 17 Japanese warships, destroyed 475 planes and damaged

Night Spots Vote Midnight Closing

NEW YORK, March 21. (AP) — Thirty-five members of the Allied food and entertainment industries of greater New York voted tonight to ignore Mayor La Guardia's "hour of tolerance" and to revert to the midnight curfew closing, effective immediately.

The association, which includes such night clubs as the Versailles, Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe, Cafe Zanzibar, Leon and Eddie's, and 21 clubs, announced its action shortly after the Army and Navy had directed servicemen to abide by the 12 o'clock closing.

Mayor Breaks Over

Mayor La Guardia last Sunday told the operators of New York city's entertainment they could keep open despite War Mobilization Director Byrnes' request for a nation-wide midnight surfew.

The Club and Restaurant association in tonight's announcement praised the mayor for "sound leadership in his endeavor to make the curfew law conform to conditions in a large metropolis.

"However, it looks to us as though somebody in Washington is trying to make a political issue of this, and we are not willing to take a position that might embarrass the mayor, who has been trying to help our situation.

"Nor are we inclined to serve civilians when service is denied to men in uniform."

Arthur Garfield, counsel for the association, said in announcing the action that the group was "asking Washington for one of the first rights of American citizens—the right to a hearing."

"We think," he said in a statement, "we can prove to the government that the 12 o'clock curfew in the city of New York is a mistake."

"There can be no magic in the hour of twelve," he continued, adding that in fixing that hour the government had "discriminated against a few large cities that provide entertainment to civilians and soldiers."

Other Spots May Join

"In some of the other cities, the local authorities wink their eyes at violations," the statement said. "La Guardia isn't that kind."

There were indications other night spots also would revert to the midnight closing. Even before the association's action, the Stork Club and Cafe Society Uptown and Cafe Society Downtown had announced they would discontinue their 1 a. m. closing.

La Guardia was not immediately available for comment on the association's decision. Earlier he had stood firm in his disregard of the 12 o'clock curfew in face of disapproval by the Army and Navy.

Mead Committee To Probe Alcan Highway

WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP) —Chairman Mead (D-NY) announced today that the war investigating committee has started an investigation of the Alcan highway.

Its immediate purpose, Mead declared in a statement, is to determine what future plans the War department has with respect to this Alaskan roadway, which was built originally as a military project.

Senator Magnuson (D-Wash) told the committee recently he understood the War department was planning to abandon the project, but there was no confirmation from the department.

Navy Communication Proposal Hit By FCC

WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP) A Navy proposal for postwar unification of American international communications facilities was attacked by the Federal Communications commission today as unworkable. The FCC termed the plan a "limited marriage between government and private business."

Chairman Paul A. Porter told a Senate interstate commerce committee that international facilities must be unified, but added:

1. The FCC prefers to postpone a final opinion on whether the unified system "should be government or privately-owned and operated."

2. That he believes a final recommendation also should be deferred on whether, if the system is to be privately owned, the government should participate in its management and activities.

You Can Really Cut Up And Stomp

Those Cans, Lady, Kick 'Em In, Then Kick In With 'Em

By RANDALL ABERNETHY
Avalanche Staff Writer

MAKE with the cans, ladies. You aren't kicking in with enough cans.

Those that you are kicking in are not mashed flat enough. A little more shoe, please.

Some of the cans that are being contributed to the war effort shouldn't happen to a dog—let alone Hirohito, et al.

Clem Boverie and Jim Kuykendall, chairman and co-chairman respectively of the Lions club can campaign, have sounded an urgent appeal for more cans. They need them now—right now—to complete a carload.

All the ladies have to do is peel the label off the can, remove the top and bottom and tromp it flat; take it to your favorite grocery and toss it in a barrel for that purpose. A bottling company truck will come around and pick the cans up.

The cans are sent to a plant where the tin is removed and subsequently put into war tools.

"The nation is said to be critically short of this vital element," declared Boverie. "Collection of tin will be a continuous drive until the Japes are slammed back in their rice paddies."

Flattening a can, once the ends are taken out, is not difficult for any woman weighing more than 97 pounds. Just step on it and bring your weight to bear several times; it is not necessary to jump up and down on it, unless you have something to jump up and down about. It can be done on your own kitchen floor with only slight risk of damage to the linoleum.

Weighty husbands with big feet are excellent for this.

Fury Of Air Blows Mounts To New Peak

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Thursday, March 22 RAF Mosquitos blockbusted Berlin last night for the 30th consecutive night after more than 7,000 Allied planes in the war's greatest coordinated effort spread about 12,000 tons of explosives over the Reich yesterday.

As the Allied aerial offensive mounted in fury, the German radio reported the Nazi high command expected Allied airborne landings "at any hour now" in the Ruhr east of the Rhine.

The awesome armada attacking the Reich yesterday included nearly 3,000 heavy bombers. Huge fleets of Britain-based American heavies and their fighter escort concentrated on 11 air fields in northwestern Germany.

Mainly Near Muenster

These were mainly in the Muenster area, opposite Field Marshal Montgomery's Rhine front. Medium and light bombers stationed at forward bases on the continent spread havoc among fleeing German columns and concentrations all along the Western front.

The Ruhr is Germany's last big war arsenal.

Modified Lancasters carrying 11-ton volcano bombs and escorted by fighters attacked an oil refinery at Bremen. The big bombers, numbering more than 800, flew through heavy flak.

Mixed in with the day's overwhelming attack of the Reich, bold Mosquitos of the tactical air forces, in a daring low-level attack, destroyed virtually every building at Gestapo headquarters in Copenhagen, Danish capital, during the morning.

Nine Airdromes Ripped

Some 1,300 Flying Fortresses and Liberators escorted by 600 fighters ripped nine airdromes during the morning.

At least 40 enemy planes were destroyed in the bombing and strafing attacks.

Late in the afternoon 100 Liberators attacked two other air fields in the Muenster area in the hope of wiping out enemy planes "homing in" after being unable to land on the fields hit earlier.

In coordinated operations against the jets, Liberators of the 15th Air force flying up from Italy bombed the Neuburg air field, a jet-propelled aircraft base 50 miles north of Munich.

Flying Fortresses of the 15th struck natural oil refineries at Kagran and Vosendorf in the Vienna area where gasoline and lu-

Texas U. Fund Appeal Gains As Others Are Pushed Aside

AUSTIN, March 21 (AP)—Definitely on its way to House and Senate floor action today was a constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to permit the regents of the University of Texas and directors of Texas A. and M. college to use revenue from the permanent school fund for the purpose of repairing and erecting campus improvements.

A committee on constitutional amendments in the Senate approved the legislation permitting the utilization of approximately $1,200,000 annually for school improvements but at the same time side tracked into sub-committee a House-approved amendment, which would have allowed other institutions of higher learning to use five cents of the confederate pension fund for campus improvements.

The House committee on constitutional amendment last night approved a proposal which would have authorized the allocation of $1,750,000 annually to the seven state teachers colleges, Texas College for Women at Denton and College of Arts and Industry at Kingsville.

The Senate committee today, however, decided to send a similar measure to a sub-committee composed of George Moffett of Chillicothe, W. C. Graves of Dallas and L. J. Sulak of La Grange. The only difference between the approved House version and the sidetracked Senate measure is that the latter would provide funds for John Tarleton of Stephenville, North Texas Agricultural college of Arlington and the Texas School of Mines at El Paso.

Under the provisions of the Texas university and A. and M. legislation the university would be permitted to spend approximately $800,000 and A. and M. $400,000 annually for campus improvements.

The committee set April 4 for a public hearing on a House and Senate amendment freezing old age assistance ceilings in the constitution at $20 monthly.

Ludwigshafen Falls As Yanks Run Wild

THIRD, SEVENTH NEAR JUNCTION ON RHINE—Fashioning a new and larger trap for completely disorganized Nazi armies west of the Rhine, the American Third Army had dashed on through Ludwigshaven as Seventh Army units advanced north along the Rhine to within 19 miles of a junction. Arrows show general areas of main drives, while the First Army expanded the East-Rhine bridgehead, and Nazis were trying to get set for an expected Rhine crossing by long-dormant forces in the north.

Nazi Losses May Hit 100,000 As Confusion Spreads

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Thursday, March 22 — American tanks crashed through the great German chemical center of Ludwigshafen on the Rhine today as the U. S. Third and Seventh armies continued to grind disorganized German forces west of the river in the maw of disaster that may cost the enemy as many as 100,000 men in killed, wounded and captured.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's racing Third Army armored forces plunged straight through Ludwigshafen and reached the Rhine inside that city of 150,000 population. They sent another column slashing southward to the highway junction of Neustadt, where it was within 19 miles of another junction with the Seventh Army —a new giant potential trap around the Nazis.

First Expands Hold

At the same time doughboys of Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army east of the Rhine, reinforced by armor for the first time since the original crossing two weeks ago, enlarged the Remagen bridgehead northward as much as three miles and fanned out along a seven mile stretch of the Seig river which flows into the Rhine north of Bonn.

Patton's Third Army, still running wild, made advances of as much as ten miles during the day, cleared 20 towns and entered four. Thousands of prisoners were taken.

Ludwigshafen, fourth big German city entered or taken by the Third Army in two days, was pierced by an armored division which headquarters has not identified. Another column of the same division also reached the Rhine a mile north of the city after an eastward thrust of 7½ miles.

Nazis Blow Bridge

Fleeing German troops blew up the imposing bridge which connected Ludwigshafen with its twin city of Mannheim on the east side of the river.

Other Third Army tanks stampeded the Germans between the Rhine-bank cities of Worms and Mainz, overrunning town after town. However, Mainz itself still was largely in enemy hands.

Neustadt, important highway center 15 miles southwest of Ludwigshafen and 13 miles west of the Rhine at Speyer, was entered by the Tenth Armored division, which yesterday had smashed through Kaiserslautern.

This drive within 19 miles of the Seventh Army threatened to crush thousands of German troops

Reds Forge Mighty Arc Around Danzig

By ROMNEY WHEELER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Thursday, March 22 Russian troops forged a powerful 25-mile siege arc south and west of Danzig yesterday, pushed a new spearhead within six miles southwest of the former free city and drove within two miles of cutting the vital Danzig-Gydnia coastal road, Moscow announced last night.

Other Soviet formations, attacking on a 15-mile front in East Prussia, tightened their vise on the Germans pocketed southwest of Koenigsberg and gained positions for an assault from three sides on Heiligenbeil, the enemy's last bastion there.

Other Forces Massed

Even while these Russian assaults to eliminate the Germans' Baltic pockets were raging, other Soviet commanders to the west massed powerful formations along the Oder all the way from besieged and flaming Stettin upriver to captured Kuestrin.

The Germans said that Russian shock troops already had begun new attacks west of the Oder within 32 miles of gutted Berlin. This was not confirmed in the Moscow communique.

Stettin was being pounded by a torrent of Russian shells hurled from siege lines less than three miles from that Pomeranian capital and port which protects Berlin on the north. One German commentator said that the First White Russian Army was massing antiaircraft batteries and fog-making machines and was working around the clock to throw more bridges across the Oder in the 18-mile-wide Frankfurt-Kuestrin sector directly east of Berlin.

Split Communications

Second White Russian Army formations driving into the enemy's Danzig-Gdynia pocket all but split the communications of the German garrisons in the two ports with the capture of Gross Katz, two miles from the highway. From high ground in the area of this village the Germans said the Russians were able to direct fire at both cities and the road.

Far to the south, another Soviet Army attacking within 58 miles of Austria threatened the big Danube river stronghold of Komarom (Komarno) in northwestern Hungary, half-way between Budapest and the Bratislava gap to Vienna, Berlin said. One Soviet wing also crashed into Szekesfehervar, big road junction and former Hungarian capital 32 miles southwest of Budapest, the enemy said.

6,000 Germans Killed

A Bulgarian communique announcing that liquidation of a small German bridgehead on the north bank of the Drava river near Siklos, 120 miles south of Budapest, said 6,000 Germans were killed. The Germans had announced on Tuesday the evacua-

Iwo-Based Mustangs To Escort Superforts

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, March 20 (Delayed) (AP)—Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale hinted today that Iwo-based Mustang fighters will soon escort Superforts on raids on the Japanese mainland.

Hale, acting commander of Army Air forces in the Pacific ocean areas and deputy commander of the 20th Air force, in a message of Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz identified Army planes operating from the newly won Volcano island as long range P-51s and P-61 Black Widow night fighters.

Hale said the availability of Iwo as an intermediate base between the Marianas islands and Japan saved the lives of 450 B-29 crewmen in 44 Superforts which landed there for various reasons. The 21st Bomber command has announced a total of 51 Superforts have made emergency stops at Iwo.

From Indian Custom Of Long Ago—

Mullican's Wind Direction Prophecy Slated At Sunrise

IN DAYS of old when the Red Man roamed the prairies of the South Plains, he practiced weather forecasting just like the pale face who followed in his wake.

But he didn't have radio and a bunch of instruments to guide his predictions, so he had to rely on Mother Nature, or the Great Spirit.

He got up at sunrise every March 22, a week after income-tax paying time, picked up a handful of earth and threw it into the air to tell from which direction the wind was blowing.

If the wind was blowing out of the east or northwest, he knew that the tribe would have an average year; wind from the west, southwest or south was an omen that a dry year was ahead and the tribe would have to roam far in search of food.

But if the wind was from the southeast, he just had the old squaw to load up all their things and then went over to live with her relatives in Oklahoma, because this meant there wouldn't be any crop at all.

This really is an old Indian crop forecasting legend passed down to the white man and observed for more than two decades by the late J. I. Wilborn of Post. The late W. O. Stevens, former Post and Lubbock banker, became interested in Mr. Wilborn's prediction each year and the Indian legend was fairly indicative of what was in store for this section.

Former District Judge Clark M. Mullican also became interested in the legend and since Mr. Wil-

STOCKHOLM, March 21 (AP)— A train from Bydgoszcz, bearing local Nazi party leaders, recently arrived at a Berlin railway station while thousands of the capital's residents stood outside.

The smartly uniformed leaders, who were the first to leave Bydgoszcz, in northwestern Poland, as the Red Army approached, carried all their luggage and were met by a fleet of motor cars. Their situation contrasted sharply with the misery of other refugees.

The Berliners spoke their minds. The crowd grew so threatening the party leaders became nervous and ordered the guards to fire — into the air.

They Pay With Lives

The affair became so widely known that the leaders had to pay with their lives. They had broken the one condition under which Hitler allows his Nazi comrades liberties at the expense of the population. They had been found out.

These Berlin people were no rabble. Their attitude represented the true feelings of the German nation and they had to calmed.

Therefore Hitler ordered the execution of the Bydgoszcz party leaders as deserters. Party officials in Berlin, asked about the incident,

Andrews Man, Back From German Hospital Camp, Recounts Woes

Repatriated after a year in German hospital prison camps, Cpl. James Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Roberts of Andrews, is home to spend a 30-day furlough.

Cpl. Roberts, who wears the Purple Heart ribbon beside his battle ribbon and the Combat Infantryman's medal above it, returned home on the Gripsholm in an exchange of prisoners. Arriving in New York February 21, he was first sent to Halloran General hospital, Staten island and from there to McClosky General hospital, Temple, to receive his furlough papers.

Pretty Rugged At Times

"The prison going wasn't so bad, generally," he said, "but it could get pretty rugged sometimes. The worst thing about it was that there wasn't anything to do, since I was a hospita case and not able to work. The YMCA provided sports equipment and the Red Cross supplied us with the latest books. Sometimes the Germans showed us movies, but they were in German and we didn't know what they were about. Even so, they took up some of the time."

"All able-bodied prisoners, as well as civilian internees from Russia, Yugoslavia, and other places, were put to harvesting potatoes on the big German farms. What the Germans do with potatoes! They use them to make soup and to make bread and then cook some more for their main course —The region where I was most of the time is their best potato harvesting region."

Cpl. Roberts was a journalism student at Texas Tech in 1941 and the Fall semester of 1942. "I bought a typewriter from a German who was head of my hospital ward for 35 packs of cigarets—cigarets are a medium of exchange, and you can get anything you want if you have the cigarets to buy it with—and had 300 pages written on a book. I had kept it hidden, but one day when I wasn't around, the guards found it and I never got it back."

Food Situation Bad

In regard to the food situation, one of the first things that occurs to a civilian, Cpl. Roberts said that if the Red Cross hadn't sent them food parcels every week, there wouldn't have been any food. "We were sent enough for one meal a day, which also included cigarets. With a cigaret or two you could buy extra food from the guards. If it hadn't been for the Red Cross, I wouldn't have lived to tell the tale, and neither would the 8,000 other prisoners who are still in the camp."

Cpl. Roberts was taken prisoner at Anzio after 70 straight days of fighting. He went into action in Africa in 1943 as an infantry replacement after training at Fort McClellan, Ala. When repatriated he was in Camp 2-B near Hammerstein, 60 miles from Danzig, Germany.

OPA Office Here To Aid In Readjustment Or Returning Vets

Important steps are being taken by the Office of Price administration to assist veterans in adjusting to civilian economic life, W. A. Robertson, veterans relations adviser of the district OPA, announced Wednesday.

Changes in ration regulations which will permit veterans of the present war to open small businesses making use of rationed foods — businesses which under rationing have been closed to newcomers — will become effective Monday.

"This is only one of several moves OPA is making to help veterans get started," Robertson stated as he announced that two types of businesses are thrown open to veterans by the new ration order. One type is establishments which use rationed foods as raw materials. The other type is establishments which use rationed foods in the serving of "refreshments."

Some Aid Already Provided

Existing regulations, Robertson pointed out, already permit the opening of certain types of new establishments dealing in food, such as retail and wholesale establishments distributing rationed foods, restaurants and other institutional users of rationed foods in the service of meals, and certain establishments producing rationed foods.

The amounts of rationed food that a veteran may obtain are limited so that in general, the businesses operated will be comparable to typical "small" businesses now operating, Robertson said.

Other OPA regulations are being reviewed, it was announced, to determine whether additional changes of aid to veterans can be made within the allotments of scarce commodities for civilian use. It was emphasized that scarce supplies of rationed foods will not permit the opening of large businesses under the new regulation. It was also pointed out that price regulations applying to other businesses of the same type will apply to businesses operated by veterans, and that they should obtain information about ceiling prices before making financial commitments in connection with new businesses.

Mayor Is Impatient Over Wedding Delay

PRATT, Kan., March 21 (U.P.)—You'd think that a former mayor of America"s most famous honeymoon spot would face a wedding delay without too much worrying.

But a bridegroom is a bridegroom, regardless of his background, Frank Adams, director of the USO at Pratt said today.

"This bridegroom is a sergeant stationed at the Army air field here," Adams said. "He haunted the USO clubrooms here hour after hour while awaiting the arrival of his bride by bus from Witchita.

"You'd have thought he was going to have a nervous breakdown before she finally showed up.

"And you know, he was mayor of Niagara Falls before he entered the Army."

Senate Passes House Bill Hiking Old Age Assistance Funds Sharply

AUSTIN, March 21. (AP) — With but one amendment the Senate today finally approved a House bill increasing monthly old age assistance appropriations $300,000 a month next August.

The amendment, limiting administration expenses of the public welfare department to three per cent of its appropriations, sends the bill back to the House for concurrence or rejection.

The Senate vote on final passage was 24 to 3. The bill increases the state's monthly allocation (to be matched by federal funds) for old age assistance to $2,200,000. It was designed to pay the full authorized grant for each recipient, based on a showing of need, and to assist in meeting cost-of-living increases on necessities.

Amendment Killed

Killed by a vote of 15 to 10 was an amendment limiting the appropriation increase to $165,000 monthly.

Sen. R. C. Lanning of Jacksboro urged adoption of the amendment, declaring:

"Unless the Senate comes down to earth we are not going to have enough money in the treasury to pay for the various appropriation increases and I do not know whether you wish to vote some sort of a tax bill or not."

While the Senate considered the House old age assistance measure the House finally passed and sent to the governor a Senate bill placing El Paso, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Waco, Wichita Falls and Corpus Christi within a state statute governing minimum wages and maximum hours of work for firemen and policemen.

Cities Of 25,000 Or Over

The bill, an amendment to present law, applies to cities of 25,000 or more population which if the governor signs the bill, may not require firemen and policemen to work more than 12 hours a day, 72 hours a week or 144 hours in two weeks except in emergencies when they will receive pay and a half for overtime based on a minimum wage of $150 a month.

The House also:

Ordered a night session for consideration of local and supposedly non-controversial bills.

Adopted a resolution, which needs Senate approval to make it effective, authorizing appointment of a 15-member commission to study the adequacy of hospital facilities on a statewide basis.

Adopted a free conference committee report which already had been accepted by the Senate selling for $10,000 to the city of Austin 144 acres of Colorado river bed property in the city limits for development as a city park.

Finally passed, with one amendment, a Senate bill permitting the highway and public safety department to microphotograph their records.

Eden Comments On Security Meeting

GLASGOW, March 21 (AP) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the Scottish conservative party conference tonight that the San Francisco world security conference would be a new experiment in international practice which "may well prove to be the world's last chance."

The foreign secretary, who will head Britain's delegation to the Golden Gate meeting, hinted at some form of link-up among European powers in which Britain would play a hand. Declaring that Britain always had opposed domination of Europe by any one power, he added:

"We are determined that Europe shall only be united by the free will of its separate states. When that happy day comes, we shall, we hope, be in partnership with it."

Eden indicated that the whole British empire might seek to speak with a single voice at the world conference. The purpose of the dominions' meeting in London early next month, he said, was so all would be "made fully aware of each other's point of view before we join the other united nations at San Francisco."

"STINKY—A little skunk has become a sort of national hero and has been made into a lapel pin of black fur with a real ermine tail. In his paws he grasps a gay red posy and when he rolls his large soulful eye, who can resist him?

It started when a girl presented him as a mascot to the pilot of a Liberator bomber as yet unchristened. One glimpse of the furry friend and they unanimously adopted "Stinky" as the name of their ship. An artist who had been associated with Walt Disney before the war painted the little animal's portrait on the Liberator and now each member of the crew wears a pin when the ship takes off on a mission. We are told they are doing nicely somewhere over Europe.

The fad for wearing the little skunk has spread over the country and "Stinky" has been on the radio and even the motion picture industry has taken cognizance of his popularity in a newsreel. He can be bought in Lubbock.

Nice going for a skunk, don't you think?

BEAUTIFUL ARMS

EACH season has a fashion symbol for which it is remembered, it seems. Last spring, the half hats were the highest fashion note—to give you an example of what we mean. This spring, we would venture to say, will be remembered with pleasure by some and distress by others, for the bare arms they are having to show the world!

We haven't decided whether the dolman or butterfly sleeve is supposed to help save material or is supposed to flatter the wearer. Those with lovely arms and elbows are pleased and proud for the opportunity. It is for those whose arms fall 'way short of perfection and whose elbows are rough and not ready for the bare-armed fashions that exercise and beauty treatments are recommended.

Here's an arm-beauty reducing exercise you might be interested in: Lie on your back on the floor. Bend your elbows, placing fingertips on shoulders. Raise your elbows off the floor, "spank" fatty tissues of your upper arm on the floor repeatedly.

AMERICAN FAMILY

THE AVERAGE size of the natural American family, that is families in which husband and wife are living together with or without children, is 3.86 persons, according to statisticians of a life insurance company basing its findings upon the census of 1940.

In families where the husband is under 35 years of age, the average size is 3.46 persons. During the next 20 years of life, family responsibilities reach their peak, with the average family consisting of 4.28 persons. When the husband is 55 or older, the average is reduced to 3.48 persons, largely as the result of grown children leaving home.

THE Office of War Information says there will be enough sugar to preserve as much fruit as was actually "put up" in our homes last year. The same amount of sugar (700,000 tons) has been set aside this year for home canning as was set aside last year.

But last year 300,000 tons more sugar than the total amount allotted for home canning was bought by housewives. A large part of this sugar was bought with stamp 40, the home canning sugar, and much of it was used for ordinary household puposes.

Of course, OPA made it possible for housewives to buy more sugar for home canning last year than was set aside for that purpose. It was made easy for housewives to get their canning sugar. Last year the local War Price and Rationing Boards issued sugar coupons to all persons who certified they would use the sugar for home canning and a stamp in War Ration Book 4 was validated for home canning sugar.

But last year's method evidently made it too easy to get sugar, since so much more than was intended or needed for canning was bought, OPA said.

Because there were those persons who cheated, who got canning sugar and used it for other purposes, the year's total sugar supply is smaller than it was in 1944. If any over-issuance of canning sugar were allowed, it would have to come out of the amount allowed for other home uses.

FPC Hears Application To Expand Facilities To Move Natural Gas

WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP)—Application of the Tennessee Gas and Transmission company to expand facilities for moving natural gas from Texas fields to the Appalachian area came before the Federal Power commission today for full hearing.

Attorneys for the Texas Railroad commission, labor unions and other interests, crowded FPC hearing rooms, indicating consideration of a company proposal to construct 95 miles of 16-inch line from the San Salvador field to connect the company's main line in Nueces county, Texas, might take several days. Permission also is sought to operate four additional compressor stations under lease from the defense plant corporation.

McGrath Gives Views

Thomas McGrath, representing the United Mine Workers and a number of railway brotherhoods, indicated that he would not oppose the application, if it is for emergency purposes only. He said, however, he would object if it is shown that a permanent "uneconomical" increase in the use of gas in the east is planned.

Davis Heath, attorney for the Texas Railroad commission, said only that he was present to "develop facts."

Opposition to construction of additional natural gas pipelines recently has been expressed by Chairman Olin Culberson of the Texas commission.

Robert E. May, company attorney, said the new facilities were requested by the DPC to meet emergency needs next winter. They would permit an increase of the company's main line gas load from 203,000,000 cubic feet a day to 263,000,000 cubic feet, he stated.

Financing Divided

The company would construct the pipeline, while the compressors would be financed by the FPC.

This brought a protest from McGrath, who said he did not understand why the company should not be required to pay for the compressors.

"I think the defense plant corporation should be here telling us why our money has to be spent for this purpose," he said.

Total cost of the installations has been estimated at $2,553,800 for the pipeline and a dehydration plant, and $5,120,000 for the compressors, which would be on the main line in Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Iwo Jima Happy---For An Hour---Over Surrender Report

By S/SGT. FRANK DEVINE
(Marine Correspondent, Formerly Of The New York Daily News)

IWO JIMA, March 18. (Delayed)—For an hour tonight, Iwo Jima was the happiest spot on the earth.

The war in Europe was over; Germany had surrendered!

Machine guns, anti-aircraft guns, carbines, rifles and even pistols — the only celebratory equipment handy — roared the local jubilation.

Then came the dismal truth. It went like this:

Plays Announcer

A walkie-talkie Army radio operator, bored in a solitary foxhole, decided to play radio announcer with a buddy a couple of holes away.

Close by, inside a truck, another operator was typing military messages from San Francisco.

Somehow, the frequencies became tangled and from the official operator's official set came a voice with the electrifying message:

"Germany has surrendered unconditionally."

The operator got the news to his headquarters and in 10 minutes all the island and the ships off shore had the word.

The foxhole radio announcer, hearing all the shooting and the shouting, became worried and went to his commanding officer with a statement that deserves to be added to the archives of understatement. Said he:

"Sir, I think I've done something wrong."

Dairyman And Sons Recover Savings

SAN ANTONIO, March 21. (U.P.)—A Van Ormy dairyman and his four soldier sons had most of their $10,000 cash savings back today and a lifelong friend of the family and two confederates were in police custody.

The dairyman, Justo Saldana, had served as family treasurer for the sons who had accumulated $10,600 in bills ranging from $5 to $100, T/Sgt. Richard Saldana, one of the sons, told officers.

Last week the father secreted the money, in $1,000 packages, in a cardboard box with the trusted friend looking on. Next day when the elder Saldana went to take the box to the bank, it was gone.

Bexar county sheriff's deputies trailed the suspect to Gonzales, then to Lytle and back to Gonzales, where they arrested him and his alleged accomplices, all in their early 20's.

The officers recovered $6,500 in cash, a $750 automobile the trio had bought in Gonzales, two suits costing $50 and $200 in cash they had given to a relative at Boerne.

Board Of Control Is Given Use Of Camp

AUSTIN, March 21. (AP)—Weaver Baker, chairman of the board of control, testified before the Senate finance committee yesterday that a working agreement had been reached with the state parks board relative to use of an abandoned CCC camp near the Longhorn caverns as a transition center for eleemosynary patients.

The committee has tagged for future consideration a Senate bill by A. M. Aiken of Paris which purported to accomplish the purposes Baker said had already been achieved.

Under the agreement, said Baker, the control board has the use of the camp which involves a small section of the Longhorn caverns and Inks Lake state parks, for the duration of the war and not more than six months thereafter.

Only white non-violent patients are to be housed: Adult convalescents in the winter and children in the summer. Fences are to be constructed and timber cleared by the control board in accordance with park requirements.

WASHINGTON, March 21. (AP)—The American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., were authorized today to supplement facilities between Chicago and Houston, Tex., at an estimated cost of $962,400.

Five New Directors Elected By Rotary

Election of five new members to serve on the 10-member board of directors of Lubbock Rotary club was held at the club luncheon Wednesday in Hilton hotel.

The new directors elected were J. Ben Cole, Ely Fonville, S. L. Forrest, J. H. Murdough and Alex McDonald. Holdover directors are Clarence Bestwick, C. H. (Brownie) Hamilton, Floyd Honey, Arch L. King and Dr. H. I. Robinson.

Dr. C. E. Hereford, pastor of Lubbock First Baptist church, was guest speaker. He gave his views on what should be done in making the peace. He said that instead of people talking so much about the war, they should talk about peace.

"We are not proving our true greatness in winning the battles of this war," he said. "The true test of our greatness will rest in whether we are able to win the peace."

Dr. Hereford was introduced by W. T. Strange who, with H. B. Teal, had charge of the program. Guests included W. A. Cox of Seminole, John Rasor of Crowell, H. M. Bainer of Amarillo and Percy Ralls of Ralls. Cecil Cale, vice president, presided in the absence of President C. A. Bestwick.

Players On War Jobs Are Freed

WASHINGTON, March 21. (AP) — Baseball got another break today in a decision by the War Manpower commission that players may return to the game from off-season employment, such as war plant jobs.

The WMC said, in effect, that baseball is the principal business of these men, in most instances, and that they have the right to work at it.

Under this ruling, most players, coaches and managers may leave off-season jobs and go back to the diamond without asking for a certificate of availability or referral card under WMC's job program.

Chairman Paul V. McNutt of WMC said he took the action after satisfying himself that there is a widespread demand, particularly on the part of soldiers in this country and overseas, for the game's continuance.

"There is considerable evidence that it adds to the morale on the homefront in wartime and that, therefore, there is real justification for this action," McNutt said.

In explanation, the WMC said that players who were in the game last year and have contractural relationships with any club, including an option for the current season, now may be "recalled to their principal employment," which is baseball, without going through the U. S. Employment Service.

This apparently removed any danger of such players being referred to their draft boards as job jumpers.

The WMC pointed out, however, that its ruling does not relieve a player's legal draft obligation, adding that he leaves off season employment at his own discretion and responsibility in this regard.

Some baseball sources felt that WMC's decision may cause selective service to have a more lenient attitude toward professional athletics, who have been inducted in large numbers since War Mobilization Director Byrnes cracked down on them months ago.

WMC also brought out that a precedent for its decision on baseball was established by its policy in regard to school teachers. They also may leave off-season employment to return to classrooms without being subject to the referral program.

Texas Vet Has Good Chance At Brooklyn

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y., March 21 (AP)—Professional athletes in the Army or Navy may find the answer to some of their own "comeback" problems in the struggle for a Brooklyn Dodgers job of Elmer "Red" Durrett, a discharged Marine veteran who spent "too many months" on Guadalcanal.

Recurring attacks of malaria and the after-effects of shell shock still shadow Durrett's baseball career, but the 25-year-old vet from Dallas, Texas, has an even money shot of landing the regular left field berth.

If Augie Galan is moved into the infield to replace Howie Schultz at first base, Durrett stands an equal chance with Goody Rosen, Morris Aderholt and French Bordagaray for the one undecided garden spot. Luis Olmo in center and Dixie Walker in right are regarded as fixtures.

The strain of the 1944 International League campaign, his first since return from service, cost Durrett 90 points of his batting average at Montreal and 10 pounds of weight in a mid-summer slump. The carrot-topped Texan never did regain his .350 pace, but came out of it and pulled back to .292 at the season end, driving in 86 runs and making 141 hits count for 240 total bases.

"I must have walked from Dallas to Brooklyn and back 3 or 4 times when I was helping carry the mail down home last winter," grins Durrett. "But I gained six or eight pounds and am ready to start hitting that ball again.

"Sure the two-year layoff hurt me. It took me quite a while to find the old groove of my swing and it's liable to be tougher for some other older fellows. You just have to keep trying."

Phillips Cagers Down Cliftons

DENVER, March 21 (AP) — All favorites, including Phillips 66, defenders of the crown came through this afternoon in four third-round games of the National AAU basketball championship scramble in City auditorium.

Phillips, of Bartlesville, Okla., bested the Los Angeles Cliftons 54-43 after the Californians had given the titleholders a mild third quarter scare.

Fort Lewis, Wash., led by the redoubtable Gale Bishop, derailed Peoria, Ill., Caterpillars, 80-56, but its chances for the championship took a blow when one of the warrior squad was barred from the tourney.

J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to AAU President W. N. Greim, said Pfc. Glen Suesens, was inelligible because he had once played with a professional Sheboygan, Wis., team. Bingham said that Fort Lewis' triumph over Hoxie, Kans., last night and Peoria today probably would be allowed to stand. Suesens played in both games.

Bingham made the announcement while the Warriors were playing Peoria. When three other members of the soldiers' squad went out on personals, their nine-man roster was depleted, and they finished the game with only four men.

Camp Robinson, Ark., surprised winner over the San Diego, Calif., Dons last night, came through today with a 62-60 win over Fort Collins, Colo., Poudre Valley.

A field goal in the final 10 seconds by Lt. Sid Cohen, gave the Army officer quintet its margin.

Wichita Cessna opened the afternoon program with a crushing 60-37 victory over Fort Wayne, Ind., Moose Lodge.

Cooper Signs As Big Pumps Clear Diamond

CAIRO, Ill., March 21. (AP) — Morton Cooper, ace righthander of the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching staff, signed a 1945 contract today and will join the squad in workouts tomorrow. Word also reached camp that utility outfielder Augie Bergamo is enroute here.

Two auxiliary fire department pumps and a drainage ditch were employed today to remove about four feet of water from the training outfield so the squad can buckle down to batting and fielding practice.

Joe Louis Sued For Divorce By Marva

CHICAGO, March 21 (AP) — A suit for divorce by Mrs. Marva Trotter Barrow, 27, against Sgt. Joe Louis Barrow, 30, world's heavyweight boxing champion now in the Army, was on file in superior court today.

The suit, the second filed in four years by Mrs. Louis against the negro fistic king, charged Louis with desertion. She asked custody of their daughter, Jacqueline, 2. Her attorney said a property settlement had been made.

Norton Silent On UCLA Rumor

COLLEGE STATION, March 21 (AP)—Homer Norton, athletic director and head football coach of Texas A. and M. college, said today he was "perfectly satisfied with his present job and declined comment on a report from Los Angeles that he was negotiating with the University of California at Los Angeles for the head coachship there.

Los Angeles sources said Norton wanted $2,000 more a year than the reported $12,500 paid Edwin C. (Babe) Horrell, who resigned the coaching job at UCLA recently.

"I picked A. and M. 11 years ago and have been happy here," Norton said. "Everyone has been nice to me and I'd hate to leave Texas and the Southwest. I like them and I like A. and M. I have a contract for five years."

Norton wouldn't say he had been approached regarding the UCLA job but when asked the question "should you be offered $15,000 a year to coach somewhere else what would you do?" he answered: "Now that would be something else."

Bill Ackerman, UCLA graduate manager, had little to say about the matter of obtaining a coach to replace Horrell but he did say he had talked to Clark Shaughnessy, University of Pittsburgh mentor, but that Shaughnessy was satisfied with his present job. Shaughnessy was in Los Angeles today but he said he was there to attend the wedding of his daughter.

The board of athletic council of UCLA will meet March 28 to consider Ackerman's recommendation for a new coach.

Norton came to A. and M. from Centenary where he had enjoyed great success as coach. At A. and M. he won conference championships in 1939 and 1941 and gained a tie for the title in 1940. In 1943 he took a squad of youngsters and surprised the conference by finishing second and getting a bid to the Orange Bowl.

Byron Nelson Takes Crown In Second Playoff Of Tie

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 21 (AP)—Byron Nelson won the Charlotte Open golf tournament today by defeating Sam Snead four strokes in a second 18-hole playoff—a grim match played before an almost silent gallery of some 1,800 persons.

Nelson shot a three-under par 69 to clinch his fifth tournament of the winter tour. Snead, with a conceded putt on 18, carded a 73 in a futile effort to record his fourth consecutive tournament victory and his seventh of the tour.

Each finished the regulation distance of 72 holes in 272 Monday and each had carded a 69 in the first playoff yesterday. First place in the $10,000 was worth $2,000 in war bonds, second $1,500.

Today's tension was more between the players and the gallery than between the two players. Snead, hurt because of criticism among spectators of their failure to go on to a sudden death finish in extra holes yesterday, was openly resentful and badly off his game.

He had two big sixes and two three-putt greens in the worst round he had played in weeks, one of them on No. 17 where he missed a four-foot putt.

On the last hole, already three shots ahead, Nelson, the great finisher, rammed home a 30-footer for a deuce to settle the issue beyond all dispute. The long putt dead into the back of the cup elicited the first real yell from the gallery.

Snead trimmed the margin to one on 14 with a birdie, but Nelson got it back by pitching to within inches of the pin on 15. They halved 16 in birdie threes and then Snead took his second six on 17 and Nelson finished it off with his long putt for a two on the home hole, his fifth straight round under 70.

Sprint Relay Team Loses Third Member

Who will run the 440 yard relay for the Lubbock Westerners Saturday afternoon at Amarillo?

As the day of the District 1-AA meet in Amarillo draws near, Coach Marlin R. "Shorty" Hayhurst is asking this question of the track hopefuls at Chapman field as three of the "regulars" in this speedy quartette have "bit the dust" since last Saturday.

The latest casualty of the relay team is Charley Funk, who was spiked in a workout Wednesday afternoon, and will be unable to make the trip to Amarillo. He will be back before the area and regional meet, however.

The mile relay team also felt the effects of the accident Wednesday, and Rhea Bradley, a member of the mile relay team, was also knocked out of the Amarillo meet when he injured an ankle in the collision with Funk.

George Brewer, another member of the team, and also one of the more promising dash men, has been ill all week, and under the care of a doctor, and it is very doubtful now if Brewer will make the trip to Amarillo.

Jack McClelland, a third member of the relay team, broke an arch in his foot last Saturday at the Fat Stock show relays at Fort Worth, and will be out for some time.

N. W. Elston, a letterman, is the only member of the regular relay team left in shape for the Amarillo meet.

Rice Cagers Scatter Into Service Ranks

HOUSTON, March 21 (AP)—Five members of Rice Institute's Southwest Conference championship basketball squad have departed for assignments in the armed forces.

They are:

Bob Fooley and Grover Noonan, starters, and reserves Paul Vahldiek, Tom Roach and Bill Chandler.

Vahldiek left today; the others previously had departed.

Senators Pleased By Rookie Mound Star

WASHINGTON, March 21. (AP)—The Washington Senators were all smiles today over the condition of Marino Pieretti, righthand pitcher from the Coast League.

Pieretti, only 23 years old, won 26 games and lost 13 for Portland last season. He is chunky and looks as if he could stand a lot of work. Club officials admit they need a workhorse, and indicated that Pieretti will be it.

The Senators worked inside for the first time due to wet grounds.

Browns Nose Toledo In Opening Battle

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., March 21 (AP)—The American League champion St. Louis Browns reaped two runs off three singles and a double while Pitchers Sig Jakucki and Rookie Al Lamacchia shut out Toledo of the American Association on one hit in their first exhibition game of the season today.

The Toledo hit was a soft fly behind third base.

Shortstop Vernon Stephens hit the only extra baser, a double which scored one of the runs. The game was six innings.

Rookie Shines Out At Keltner's Post

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 21. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians, hit hard by the loss of Ken Keltner to the Navy, took solace today from the defensive ability of 21-year-old Al Cihocki, Coast Guard veteran, who is scheduled to succeed Keltner at third base.

Formerly with Wilkes Barre, Cihocki still must prove his worth at the plate against major league pitching.

Central Ward, Dupre Split Doubleheader

The Dupre Dogies and the Central Ward Spurs divided honors in the Lubbock grade school volleyball conference games Wednesday afternoon, with the Dupre boys winning over Central Ward, 41-32, while the Central Ward girls evened up the count with an easy 75-20 win over Dupre.

They're Real Citizens!

They'll Run Postwar U. S. Well!

HERE are some interesting statistics on postwar aspirations gleaned from an Army poll of 598 veterans of the 41st Infantry Division—a division which has been in the Pacific for three years, with 20 months of combat duty from New Guinea to the Philippines:

One hundred eighty want to go back to their civilian jobs, 87 former students plan to return to their studies; 61 want to win college degrees under the "GI Bill of Rights"; 34 intend to make the Army a career; 45 are going back to the farm; 12 former non-farmers want to till the soil; 36 former farm boys look forward to city work; 50 will take technical training for new jobs, and 93 are undecided.

And here is the final and most significant line in the dispatch from the Philippines reporting the results of the poll:

"None thought the world owes him a living as a civilian."

These 41st Division veterans are real soldiers. There can be no doubt about that. And there can be no doubt about this, either: They are real citizens. Postwar America will be safe in such hands as theirs.

Let's Have All The Dope!

AN occasional reader of the Congressional Record ventures the opinion that Congress is making a mistake in leaving out the little side comments that enlivened the pages of its official journal in the past. After a legislator has delivered a stirring piece of oratory it is nice to know that his fellow congressmen rewarded him with "applause."

How is a reader to know the temper of the House if the record is to make no distinction between remarks greeted with a stony silence, or with loud and prolonged cheering?

If Congress really had an eye to making the accounts of its proceedings interesting, it would accompany them with a running commentary like the radio broadcasts of football games. There would never be a dull moment in a Record which told when members wriggled in their seats, when they dozed, when they fled to the cloakroom to escape a particularly boring speech; when they booed, or when they cheered.

It is obvious that this might make life uncomfortable for some members. It might also produce some prima donnas in the ranks. But a blow-by-blow account would have the advantage of keeping the legislators on their toes and it would also vastly increase the number of readers of the Congressional Record.

Iwo Jima's Sand---And Ours

FOR many a moon beside future family firesides experiences of soldiers with volcanic ash on Iwo Jima will be recounted. The fighting Americans who went up against that powder underfoot will never forget it.

It stopped tanks. Jeeps could not journey through it in places. Even the bulldozers had difficulty bucking it. It got into the mechanism of the carbines and the Marine who happened to have a toothbrush along counted himself lucky as he kept the firing bolt clean with it. It got into the eyes of the men, into their noses and on their teeth.

Much of the ammunition had to be forwarded from the shore by the men on foot, and with any sort of a weight on his shoulders it was impossible for a man walking to keep an upright posture in the slippery stuff.

A youthful naval ensign, ashore after his small ship had been sunk by shore fire, left this description:

"You couldn't move on the beach because of the ash. Even tanks were stuck and not a jeep could make it. I have never seen sand, if you can call it that, like that before and I hope I never see anything like it again."

Come to think of it, by golly, maybe the volcanic ash of Iwo Jima may be wusser, even, than West Texas sand—even when the latter comes flying through the air.

If so, our South Plains boys who return from Iwo will look upon future sandstorms as mere zephyrs wafting talcum powder!

We'd much prefer that a person grab both our lapels and hang on than to try to hold our attention by ending declarative sentences with the same rising voice inflection that is properly used only in interrogative sentences.

Statistics: "The average farmer lives 7.8 miles from the nearest physician." "The average farmer has a life span of 4.3 years above the general average." What do you make of this, doctor?

The One Minute Sermon

I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all man;

For kings, and all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty.

For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour;

Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth.—Timothy 2:1-4.

Believe It Or Not --- By Robert Ripley

A Song To Remember

By Willard Wiener

(Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.)

THE STORY: At the age of 10, Frederic Chopin's dexterity at the pianoforte had already made him a person of note in the little Polish village of Zelazowa Wola. But music wasn't Frederic's only interest. He and his young friends would hold secret meetings, determined to fight when they grew up for the freedom of Poland, which was then ruled by the Russian Czar. Professor Elsner, his teacher, was sympathetic to his ideas, dreamed of the day when the Paris musical world would acknowledge Frederic's genius.

MANHOOD

The years left few scars on the ancient village of Zelazowa Wola. The houses were a little more weather beaten but hardly to a noticeable degree. Pigs wallowed in the filth and goats made their homes in the dirt floor rooms of the poor. Peasants still toiled in the fields and the fruits of the earth belonged as always to the lord of the manor and to the members of his household. There were dry days and wet ones. And in the rainy season the deeply rutted road to Warsaw was virtually impassable. It was the same from year to year. The summers were hot, the winters cold. The silence of the countryside, broken by the song of birds, spelled peace, but only to a stranger's ear. Soldiers of the Czar, with whips and sabers, had only recently put down an uprising of the downtrodden, and any Pole with an ear to the ground might still hear the sickening cries of the wounded and the womenfolk whose men had either been taken prisoner or struck down.

The village survived. But faces that yesterday were young, were old today. You had only to look on the face of Mamma Chopin to see that. A dozen years had left their indelible mark on her features in the lines about her mouth, in the creases that already began to lie in the folds of her neck, in her hands that were no longer smooth. In Nicolas Chopin there was also a marked change. He walked now with a stoop and stood erect only when his mind was on it, and then only with an effort. His hair was still thick, though beginning to gray. Yet his sideburns were as trim as ever.

And Emilja had now been dead for five years. She had been Frederic's favorite sister.

The child, she was fourteen, had been taken with a violent cough and had been confined to her bed for four weeks. She had begun to spit blood. Mamma was in a panic. The girl was attended by one Malcz who ordered an immediate blood-letting, and that was done, not once but twice.

But it did not help any. Nothing that was done did any good.

After a while the coughing was over and the young girl was quiet. Her body was still, a smile on her cheeks. But Emilja was not there; she was gone, no longer of this earth.

Then at night in the dark Frederic sat for hours at the piano. They could not tear him away. They let him be. He improvised, he labored over the keys until he had finally the deep rhythmic tones for which he had been gropping—heavy, slow, steady, rhythmic tones—a march funereal that would forever echo down the years to keep alive the memory of the loved dead.

At the age of 22 there was a look "more spiritual than dreamy" in the blue eyes of Frederic Chopin. His nose, "slightly aquiline," was not so prominent as it seemed to have been in his boyhood. He was neither tall nor short. His legs, however, seemed not to have developed fully, and his hair was not so black as the jet of his youth.

The year was 1832 and in his home village he was a man of distinction and among a limited circle in Warsaw something of a celebrity as a composer.

"Frederic, are you in love?" Mamma Chopin one day asked him. "I do believe you are."

"You have sharp eyes," he said. Then he took Mamma in his arms and hugged her tight.

"The girl!" Mamma Chopin demanded, putting her son at arm's length. "Who is she? Some little Warsaw girl who has set her cap for you?"

"Now, Mamma, don't be hard on her. She's a wonderful girl—the most wonderful in all the world, Mamma—"

"Frederic, give me a straight answer. Don't go around the question. It is only to be expected that some day—"

"—I will never marry her."

"Your Papa and I will decide that," Mamma said.

"—But my darling, you can't decide."

"There is nothing your Papa and I can't do, once we have put our minds to it."

"Don't put your minds to this, Mamma. The lady who has my heart already has a husband—"

"Frederic!"

"—True."

"Terrible!"

"No."

"Frederic, when I tell you it is terrible, it is terrible. What else could it be? You will promise me instantly to forget her, that you will not give her another thought — not another thought. Promise. Let me hear it—now—instantly—"

"How can I promise that, Mamma?"

"You must. It's not to be thought of — that our only son should give his heart— No, Frederic, I—I can't even say it—"

"You look in my eyes, Mamma. What do you see?"

"—Please, Frederic, I am in no mood for that."

"Mamma, I want you to look."

"—Well, I am looking."

"Yes. But not close enough, Mamma."

He took her into his arms again. He caught her tight about the waist.

"Frederic, what are you doing?"

"— Only this, Mamma — I am kissing the only woman I will ever love — only you, Mamma — only you. And I am wondering what the lady's husband will say. Do you think he will object terribly?"

Cotton Congress Is Planned At Dallas

DALLAS, March 21. (U.P.)—Synthetic rivals of cotton and the possibility of competition from foreign fibers will be discussed here July 11 and 12 at the annual Cotton Research congress.

The 1945 congress will draw representatives of the cotton industry from all parts of the nation, and will be held in accordance with government regulations.

Maj. Burris C. Jackson of Hillsboro, and Washington, D. C., general chairman, said a request will be made to the committee on war conventions on the grounds that cotton is vital to the war effort.

Traveler Reunited With Dental Plate

DALLAS, March 21. (U.P.) — A woman air traveler and her peripatetic lower plate were happily reunited today and she was on her way to wherever she was going.

And American Airlines officials were right proud that they had effected the reconciliation.

The woman got off an American Airlines flagship here but left her teeth on the plane which whisked right off for Los Angeles. She refused to budge from Dallas until the teeth were returned.

Airline employes found the plate and returned it by next plane.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

YOU have seen those beautiful Spanish mantillas, haven't you, those gorgeous headpiece shawls worn by Spanish senoritas and also used for covers on pianos?

Maybe you bought one of them on a trip to the West Indies or South America, or maybe a friend brought one home for you from a cruise.

Well, I have just read of a shipment of several thousand of these "genuine" mantillas being sent to Colombia right from New York's garment district and I hear that the same firm has been doing a thriving business in Spanish shawls for many years.

Several years ago, on one of my trips to California, the train stopped at Albuquerque, N. M., and at the station a horde of Indians was selling all sorts of stuff made by the Indians of that region. There were Navajo blankets and necklaces and pottery and what not.

BRANDEIS

I bought a rather ugly-looking vase and paid $5.00 for it. The Navajo woman—she must have been all of 65 and was grimy enough to prove it—gave me her personal guarantee that she herself made the vase out of New Mexican adobe clay and she explained all of the Indian hieroglyphics to me. Whoever owned the vase would have good luck and health and live many, many years in great happiness. Wasn't that worth $5.

So when I got out to Hollywood, I presented the piece of Indian art to Gladys Medbury, wife of the noted writer, at whose house I was to be a guest.

As I explained the meaning of the thing to her, I happened to turn it over, and there, on the bottom, was stamped: "Made in Trenton, N. J., USA" and the name of the firm.

* * *

WHEN we moved into our new house last fall, I was all in favor of throwing out a lot of junk that we had assembled over a period of years on our trips over many countries.

My wife refused to let me discard a single thing.

"What?" she said. "All those priceless mementoes and you want to throw them away? Haven't you any sentiment at all?"

So there they are, a voodoo drum from Haiti; a bird made of soap by an Italian child; a wooden Madonna from Nuremberg; a brass knocker, "guaranteed" to have come from a castle near Winchester, England; a 500-year-old Samovar from Moscow; a sea shell from Bermuda; the horn of a Brazilian cow, supposed to be drinking cup—and many more.

There they are, scattered all over the house and stuck away in the attic. After my experience in Albuquerque I turned them all over to see whether they, too, weren't products of New Jersey or some other state of our prolific union.

No, none of them were thus marked; and yet I have my doubts.

But, after all, what does it really matter?

Aren't they all mementoes of life — or rather of having lived? And isn't life itself partly real and partly a sham?

Don't throw your relics away. They are milestones on the long road which started with eagerness and anticipation.

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

HOUSE leaders still shiver at the recent vote which recorded the more representative chamber in favor of a work-or-fight law, with drastic penalties for the working population under certain circumstances. In the eyes of trained politicians and parliamentarians, it was the most significant test of Congressional opinion in an already historic fourth term. It also casts some shadows along FDR's postwar path.

It was the nearest thing to a vote of confidence or no-confidence that can be had under the American parliamentary system. The top leaders on opposite sides of the aisle recognized it as such. Without going into all the technicalities, here was the question before the 400 legislators present:

The Republican leadership made a last-stand effort to block final approval of the May bill, the punitive and forceful provisions of which had the full endorsement of the White House and the Army-Navy command. The Martin-Halleck faction begged their colleagues to send to the House-Senate conference a voluntary measure similar to the one that had been passed in the Senate.

TUCKER

The Democratic spokesmen, including Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts wound up with the argument that their program was necessary to back the men in uniform. The GOP-ers asserted that labor had done a grand job without compulsion, and forecast "enslavement" of the workers under the pending measure.

But here is the factor which attaches sensational interest and importance to the Congressional decision supporting the President:

The May bill was originally approved by the House on February 1, or less than two weeks after President Roosevelt's fourth inauguration. Thus the GOP-ers contended that the March 13 ballot would reflect House sentiment as affected by happenings since the earlier date.

It is important to remember the interim events. In that period our fighters gained their great victories in the Philippines, on Iwo Jima and along the Rhine. The Big Three met in Yalta to set a formula for "quarantining an aggressor" and to partition Poland. The call was issued for the San Francisco United Nations conference.

At home new demands were imposed. A curfew was ordered. Fresh food shortages developed. John L. Lewis asked for his annual strike vote. Senate investigators discovered evidences of "loafing" in war plants. James F. Byrnes himself, by his belated organization of inter-agency committees, conceded that Washington was not satisfied with its domestic achievements.

All these matters were under review when the Republicans forced the Democratic leaders, as they admit privately, to resort to desperate tactics. An anti-administration reverse would have been hailed here and abroad as a stunning rebuke to the White House. Foreign statesmen have wondered why the United States has not inaugurated industrial conscription.

SCARCE: A close study of the 211-177 vote reveals that President Roosevelt was saved from defeat by his political enemies and deserted by his friends. He owes his revived prestige to the Wadsworth, Wigglesworths and Tabers. And if he suffered at all because of the closeness of the outcome, he can blame his CIO allies.

The so-called Tories, who detest his domestic reforms, stood by him even in the face of propaganda from bridge and golf companions in the National Association of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. But when the Hillman-Murray CIO and PAC gave the command to ballot against the May bill, even Mrs. Melvyn Douglas of California, who helped to nominate the President in Chicago, let him down in a big way. So did Jerry Voorhis from the same state.

Other Democrats who supported the House version of the mild and innocuous Senate bill included some who owe first allegiance to the La Follettes of Wisconsin, and to the irate Polish population of Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The outlook discourages Speaker Sam Rayburn and Majority Leader McCormack. In future trials, when they will not have the support of two-score GOP-ers, they cannot afford the loss of a similar number of voters on the left. It also convinces political bosses that they cannot depend on their newfound friends in a ballot-box pinch.

The White House and the Congressional leadership emerge from the scare with one consolation, however. Early in the session they were enabled to spot the individuals who place the CIO ahead of the Administration and the Democratic party.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

JUST because most of the battle news is bright, don't wear out anything needlessly on the assumption that production will start swiftly once Hitler is vanquished.

No matter what the wise ones tell you at the barber shop or bridge party, civilian goods in most cities will be scarcer for months after V-E day than they are now. New shortages will occur soon in lipstick containers, auto parts, buttons, radio tubes, combs, stoves, screwdrivers, incandescent lights, children's shoes, household appliances—even soap. Fifth Avenue shops are put to it to supply the demand for panties.

LEMAN

New York industrialists look for the war to end by late spring and military contracts to be cut back 10 to 35 per cent. Yet, this week, on a recheck of civilian prospects, they reiterated even more definitely the prediction printed in this space a fortnight ago; Despite dwindling war orders, the worst pinch for the public is ahead.

We have been holding our economic breath for months, repairing almost nothing. Things are now falling to pieces and cannot be replaced. Even if partial reconversion could start tomorrow, it would be late summer before machinery could be set up and production really flow again.

LAUNDRY: Auto owners already have difficulty in finding spare parts and the mechanics to install them. The Joint Chiefs of Staff now report a fresh "critical emergency" in engine parts; trucks are stopped behind the Rhine front for want of them. In many cases new vehicles are rushed to the river zone because replacement motors are not obtainable.

In the commercial field this means fewer cargo carriers. The famine will be really felt when railroads are called upon to transport a record number of troops and previously unheard of quantities of equipment from Atlantic to Pacific ports. Civilian freight—transferred to trains because trucks are dilapidated—will be thrust aside and deliveries of all sorts of retail goods will be delayed.

Steel requirements for maintenance and restoration will be slashed 23 per cent. Consequently, there will be a smaller output of necessary renewals for streetcars, busses, elevators, electric motors, farm machinery, hot-water heaters annd all kinds of household mechanisms.

With these held up for repair, production dependent on them will be curtailed. More women factory workers will be absentees because it takes longer to do the family laundry by hand than with a washing machine.

Our headaches will mount from an accumulation of deficiencies—one bottleneck causing delays in a dozen different places.

"The coroner's jury found that the deceased killed himself because he was suffering from hay fever."—Press report. If the jury had been composed of hay fever sufferers, the verdict would have read, "justifiable suicide."

"A linguist says there are only two types of Southern accent." Perhaps there are only two types in the South, but Hollywood has dreamed up 43 types, ranging from drawling to drooling.

Stokes Makes Flight In "Family Plane"

He Prefers Nightmares In Bed!

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

DEAUVILLE, France. — This is a purely personal matter. It has nothing to do with the war. It has nothing to do with the business I'm on, except as a means of transport from Paris to here to get part of the story I'm writing.

The means of transport was a "Cub" plane. You've heard of the Cub—it's the model of the family-size plane for the postwar period, that is, if you don't have too big a family.

STOKES

At Paris, the Army's Public Realtions office arranged for me to fly over here in a Cub. I got to the airport at 9 a.m. The weather over Deauville was reported to be "impossible." The 10 o'clock report was the same. So was the 11. I went back to the hotel.

Then I got a hurried call from the airport. The weather over Deauville had suddenly cleared and if I rushed out I could get off. I rushed.

Just A Box Kite!

The pilot walked ahead of me on the field to something about the size of a butterfly. This was it. It looked like a fancy kite. I looked around for the string. Perhaps he was supposed to fly it from the ground and I was supposed to get in.

I crawled up over a strut of the wing and got in. I am longlegged. I pulled my legs in, and curled them up as best I could. He told me to strap on my belt, which I did. Then he went out in front and began to wind up the propellor, sort of like winding up a grandfather's clock, or a coffee grinder. The motor started noisily like a Model T engine.

THE pilot crawled into the front seat, pulled up the isinglass window—such a delicate thing it was—and there we were, sitting in this showcase of isinglass. You could almost have put the whole thing turned end up into a telephone booth.

The only confident thing about the whole business was my freckle-faced pilot. He craned his neck to look down the runway. A big plane was warming up down the line. It looked awfully big, even from where we were. Then he ventured out with the boxkite. On the runway we wandered along for a while, then he gave her the gun and we were off.

I watched the land disappear with misgivings. I had flown across the ocean in a C54 and had flown about France in a C47, but those were big planes with room enough in them to breathe and to move around.

Like A Dream

When we got up about a thousand feet I looked down. It was like sitting on a greased pole a thousand feet up. It reminded me of one of those dreams you have of being on a very high place, all by yourself. You wake up from those, but I couldn't do anything about this.

I quit looking out the windows—and it was all windows—and started to look down between my feet, trying to think of something, anything. But all I could think of was: "How did you ever get mixed up in anything like this?"

I blamed myself. I blamed thousands of other people. I cussed everybody I could think of. My hands got clammy. I was going to be up there an hour and a half. How could I stand it? Finally I summoned my courage and looked up. The pilot was looking at a roadmap! Then we would peer out each side. There were houses here and there, and occasionally a village.

Once he pointed up. A great string of bombers was coming. I got ready to duck, but they passed overhead. He kept looking at his map. Finally we were over a fairly large town He motioned to me, showed me the map. He had gone out of the way. He laughed. I guess it was funny.

Prefers Nightmares In Bed

A few minutes later the engine began to sputter and we started down fast, swooping. Out of gas, I thought. We kept coming down, twisting this way and that, like a swallow. All I could see was a pasture.

Then I saw other planes. Must be some sort of airfield. Before I knew it we had bumped the ground. This was our destination. I scrambled out. What an experience!

The Cub may be the family plane of the future, but not for my family! As for me—Despite all the good friends I have in the aviation business—I'll take things that run on wheels or tracks, as my wife puts it. I'd rather have my nightmares in bed.

Woman Says Husband Kept Her Borefooted

CHICAGO, March 21. (AP)—Mrs. Elaine Straulin, 23, told Superior Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday that her husband's plan to keep her at home was to keep her barefooted.

"He keeps me barefooted for two or three months at a time," Mrs. Straulin testified in her suit for separate maintenance on the ground of cruelty. "I can't buy my own shoes because he holds the ration books, and when I go to the store I have to wear my husband's shoes—if it's cold."

Judge Sabath awarded Mrs. Straulin temporary support of $65 a month for her son, Thomas, jr., 1 year old. They were married Sept. 5, 1942, and separated last Jan. 24 when, Mrs. Straulin said, she succeeded in buying a pair of shoes for herself.

PRICES DIP SHARPLY

NEW YORK, March 21 (AP)—The March cycle of severe declines in the stock market was extended today by a new selling wave which brought losses of 1 to 3 points in the leaders but the final hour saw a general recovery from the lows.

Dealings totaled 1,340,000 shares — the largest volume since March 9—compared with 920,000 yesterday.

Down a point or more at the finish were Goodyear, Goodrich, Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, DuPont, Phillips Petroleum, Skelly Oil, Standard Oil (NJ) and Union Pacific. Steels, motors and the majority of rails had fractional losses.

Nickel Plate issues and Pere Marquette preferred each moved up several points on dividend hopes generated by yesterday's dividend action on Pere Marquette prior preferred, the first in several years. Eastern Airlines climbed 1¾.

Losing ground in the curb were Cities Service, Pantepec Oil, Humble Oil and Aluminum of America. Transactions were 380,000 shares against 310,000 yesterday.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 10 cents a bale higher to 40 cents lower today as short covering and trade buying met a scarcity of offerings.

Values slumped as much as 60 cents a bale during the morning, influenced by war developments and reactions in other markets.

Some of the buying in the near months was associated with covering against Belgian purchases of cotton. Spot cotton markets were quiet.

House Investigation

A proposed House investigation of the entire food situation won rules committee approval for consideration.

The committee endorsed a resolution by Rep. Clinton Anderson (D-N. Mex.) to create a special seven-member investigating group.

The recent 12 per cent cut in civilian meat supplies is singled out in the resolution for particular attention as well as "the presence of black markets in all kinds of meat and diversion of meat from normal, legitimate commercial trade channels."

against the saw-toothed line of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's American and French forces now fighting fiercely inside the Siegfried defenses between Lauterburg and Pirmasens.

Trying For Escape Path

In that area, where the only semblance of organized German resistance west of the Rhine was being displayed, Nazi regular troops were desperately trying to hold open an escape corridor to the river.

Prisoners were pouring in by the thousands and, with the exception of a 30-mile stretch where the Germans were clinging to Siegfried line defenses against the Seventh Army, the enemy was in complete rout. The third Army alone had seized 3,275 German towns and cities since it started its present offensive March 13.

As this phase of the Allies' great Western front offensive raced toward its conclusion the Germans declared that American, British and Canadian forces north of Cologne were about to open a new all-out attack across the Rhine "at any hour." An Associated Press dispatch said the Nazis were moving great numbers of troops into the area.

Airfields Smashed

American heavy bombers knocked out 11 German airfields east of the Rhine opposite Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Allied armies. A German broadcast said the German high command expected the Allies to attempt to land parachute troops in the area and had "made necessary preparations."

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army troops pushed out more than three miles at the northern end of their Remagen-Erpel bridgehead east of the Rhine and seized more than seven miles of the southern bank of the Sieg river, extending from the Rhine to the town of Niederpleis, five and a half miles east of Bonn.

The U. S. Seventh Army's 36th Infantry division ran into the stiffest resistance being put up by any Nazis west of the Rhine as it approached Durrenbach, north of Wissembourg, but succeeded in making limited advances. Elements of the 36th joined the 14th Armored division in clearing Steinfeld, at the edge of the Siegfried defense belt two miles north of the Palatinate border.

French and Algerians

Units of the French Fifth Armored and Third Algerian Infantry divisions fought fiercely through the Bienwald forest against bitter opposition and were reported approaching the center of the vast forest.

The 103rd division, led by Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe of Bastogne fame, knocked out 20 more steel and concrete pillboxes in a Hardt forest. Many of them were manned by crack German regulars, who were offering serious resistance. Numerous Nazi prisoners asked the privilege of surrendering personally to McAuliffe.

At Mainz the Third Army was 265 miles from Berlin and 93 miles inside Germany. Mainz is the birthplace of Gutenberg, inventor of printing.

Both Ludwigshafen and Mannheim, on opposite banks of the Rhine, were reported largely in ruins from sustained and heavy Allied bombing. They have been favored air targets because of their great chemical works, machine shops and sprawling rail yards.

Aerial Assaults

bricating oils for German divisions on the southeastern front are produced.

Other Allied planes based in Italy battered the Brenner Pass rail-line, attacking railyards at Brennero in the pass.

Border Plant Pounded

One hundred Fortresses and Liberators escorted by 100 Mustangs attacked the Vomag war plant near Plauen on the Czechoslovakian border where tanks, engines and other military equipment have been produced. Jet planes swirled through the bomber formation and two were knocked down. Seven others were destroyed enroute to the target.

Mitchell and Boston medium bombers attacked the Bocholt and Borken railyards while more than 300 Marauders, Invaders and Havocs battered roads and rail lines in the Muenster area.

Ninth Air force fighterbombers ranged to the north attacking trains on the mainlines into the Ruhr-Duesseldorf-Dortmund areas as well as keeping up attacks on the roads on which the Germans are fleeing from the Palatinate wedge.

During the day another force of RAF Lancasters with 11-ton bombs attacked the Weser river bridge at Bremen.

tion of the bridgehead.

Girding for the great all-out Soviet offensive toward Berlin and Dresden, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukraine Army was reported ready to vault the Neisse river in an assault toward Cottbus, big communications center 47 miles from the Reich capital, and toward Sprenberg, 13 miles to the south.

Fresh Russian gains were reported by the enemy in the shell-torn little pocket still held by the Germans southwest of Koenigsberg in East Prussia, and between imperilled Danzig and Gdynia, key German naval base on the Baltic to the west. The Germans said the Russians had gained a dominating height at Zoppot, effectively splitting the Danzig-Gdynia pocket and permitting Soviet gunners to rake coastal communications on the 10-mile long highway between the two cities.

The German radio said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, apparently seeking to widen his bridgeheads across the Oder, was striking in battalion strength southwest of Kienitz, on the river's west bank 10 miles northwest of captured Kuestrin and 32 miles east of Berlin. "Fierce German resistance hindered the formation of new (Russian) bridgeheads over the lower Oder," a Nazi broadcast said.

Both Berlin and Moscow reports said Zhukov was massing forces along the central and lower Oder before Berlin and Stettin for momentous drives westward.

Argentina Expected To Catch Bandwagon

BUENOS AIRES, March 21 (AP)—An Argentine declaration of war against Japan was considered a strong possibility in informed quarters today as the government debated on the foreign policy needed to help end the country's diplomatic isolation.

It was assumed that such a step would serve to qualify Argentina as a member of the United Nations. A declaration of war against Japan probably would be more popular in Argentina than a declaration of war on Germany, with the European battles progressing as they are.

Some observers expressed the belief that some action against Japan will be announced by the government before the end of the week.

Italians Fight Nazis In Northern Italy

ROME, March 21 (AP) — Bitter fighting in western Liguria between 500 Germans and Italian patriots was reported today in a 15th army group communique.

Increased activity by patriots in German-held northern Italy was said to have forced the enemy to divert strong forces of front line troops to combat the partisans and to protect supply and communication areas.

The communique declared the partisans in western Liguria were "using all available arms and were effectively resisting the challenge of the enemy."

Clashes between patriots and fascist troops in Varese province in the vicinity of Crosio Della Velle also were reported. The commander of the fascist forces was reported killed.

Action on the Allied battle front again was limited to patrol clashes. Eighth Army patrols improved their positions in the Mezzano area northwest of Ravenna.

Nazis Losing Grip

were directed to say it was "merely shooting practice."

Germany has become a vast refugee camp and the refugee problem is one reason for the cleavage which has developed between the Nazi party, the Army and the ordinary civilian.

Example Of Cleavage

I saw at first hand an example of this cleavage when I traveled on a refugee train from Sorau, at the Silesian front, to Berlin.

Our train was scheduled to start at 10:30 a. m., and the people of Sorau tried to storm aboard but they were fended off by armed party men and policemen who formed a cordon around the station. Three hours later Russian tanks reached Sorau's outskirts and only then was the evacuation permitted to begin.

The next and last train steamed out at 3:30 p. m., during street fighting. This time the population was allowed to board it freely because the party bosses and police had vanished. The train was three-quarters full of soldiers who were "evacuating" on their own.

Heated Arguments

The soldiers and the women in the crowd argued heatedly. The women shouted "deserters." The soldiers said that they had no more ammunition.

I never have heard such bitter criticism of the party as when our group of refugees joined others from different sectors after we had changed trains.

"Naturally," said one, "the party men loaded their property into moving vans and drove off. We were forbidden to pack at all and at the last moment had to escape across the fields as best we could."

The refugees also were bitter against the German soldiers who, they all said, plundered German towns.

Troops Plunder Towns

One woman said, "a soldier's job is to recapture lost towns, not to plunder them."

A peasant said German soldiers thought he was too slow in leaving his own home and literally threw him out in order to be the first to loot it.

Most of the refugees were agreed that if the defeated German armies were swept into a state of disintegration then no one would be safe in his own home. Most German soldiers, after six years of Army life, have no home to which to return.

Effects Of Utter Rout Of Nazis Unsolved As More Blows Impend

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Full significance of the utter rout and virtual annihilation of two German armies in the Rhine-Moselle-Saar box can be measured only when the next test comes on the Rhine itself.

SIMPSON

Front line reports reflect the expectation that it will come at any moment, probably in the north. Field Marshal Montgomery's ABC Army group of American, British and Canadian troops has been poised there for days on the west bank awaiting General Eisenhower's signal to cross over into the heart of industrial Germany.

Reinforcements Pounded

Allied air scouts have sighted and attacked Nazi reinforcements moving up in the north. German anticipation of fresh power blows by well rested troops to shatter the Rhine defensive moat anywhere north of Cologne to the Arnhem corner on the Neder Rhine must have been redoubled by the pattern of sustained recent bombing. No road or rail hub on the many routes leading to the Ruhr from the east has been overlooked. The foe also has Eisenhower's own broadcast word for it that that once potent source of Nazi war power is due to be eliminated.

Estimates of Nazi losses in the drive of the Third and Seventh armies doubled overnight. They may pass the 100,000 mark as remaining isolated pockets are mopped up and the air-harried fragments racing for the shiveling secape gap between Karlsruhe and Ludwigshafen are herded against a presumably bridgeless river.

Utterly Ripped Apart

German armies have suffered greater losses in men in this war but they have never been so ripped and shredded and utterly disorganized as in the Rhine-Moselle-Saar box. German staff work seems to have been broken down completely as it did not in the retreat from the Volga and the Vistula or the flight from France or southern Italy.

That is a factor in the situation that cannot yet be evaluated. If it reflects as it seems to do a morale as well as a military collapse in German ranks in the west there is no telling where it will stop.

Incentive For Better Beef Said Destroyed

SAN ANTONIO, March 21. (AP) —Joe G. Montague, attorney for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' association, believes one billion more pounds of beef should have been produced during the past year.

Speaking at a meeting of association directors here yesterday, Montague said while 2,000,000 more head of cattle were slaughtered last year than in 1943, the 1944 kill produced a half-billion pounds less than in 1943.

Montague said ceilings, based on the March, 1942, market price, compared with what he estimated as almost doubled prices of feed and 343 per cent higher labor costs. The resulting differential, he added, was so small as to destroy any incentive of cattlemen to produce better beef.

Swift & Co. Wins In Court Decision

AUSTIN, March 21. (AP)—Swift & Company, an Illinois corporation, was winner today in a third court of civil appeals decision which upheld a trial court judgment denying the state's ouster suit filed on grounds the company engaged in the cottonseed oil mill and gin business without a Texas permit.

The state had alleged Swift & Company owned all of the stock in Consumers Oil company, a Texas corporation, and so controlled and dominated it that the result was that Swift & Company was in the cotton seed oil mill and gin business without a permit.

The appellate court agreed with the trial court that:

Ownership of all stock in consumers by Swift was not unlawful.

Evidence did not show that Swift & Company through the stock ownership dominated or controlled consumers oil company so that Swift itself was engaged in the cotton oil business without a permit.

The separate corporate identity of Consumers Oil company was not ignored by Swift and Company.

3 New Rose Dawn Plants
If You'll Send 25 Cents for Postage and Handling

To advertise our unique method of selling direct from nursery to you through the mail, we'll send you three well-rooted Rose Dawn perennial flower plants, ready to set out in your yard. These are the new flowers you have been hearing about through radio stations and the garden magazines of the country. They grow two to three feet high and bear loads of silver pink flowers from April to August. Fine for cutting or for yard decoration. Ideal planting time now.

We want you to have three of these plants to transplant in your yard, so you can see what strong, healthy flowers we raise. Formerly priced in our catalog at 30 cents per plant. Now you may have three selected two-year-old specimens for the cost of postage and handling, 25 cents.

Offer good during brief shipping period only. Send your request, enclosing 25 cents, to:
