CREAGER WIRES NEFF ELECTION LAWS ARE WRONG

POINTS OUT "FLAWS"

Associated Press Dispatch

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, April 14 Justice to the republican voters of Texas makes "revision of the election laws imperative" according to R. B. Creager, chairman of the republican state executive committee. In a telegram to Governor Pat M. Neff today, the chairman called attention to the "inconsistencies of the present law," and requested the executive to submit an amendment, remedying them, to the special session of the state legislature which will convene Monday.

Points Out Discrepancy.

Under the constructions placed upon the present law by the attorney general and secretary of state of Texas, Mr. Creager said it is necessary to nominate by primary election any candidate for the United States senate by any party casting in the preceding election more than 10,000 and less than 100,000 votes. This prevents nomination of senatorial candidates by the convention method, although candidates for all other offices may be so nominated, the chairman said.

Refers to Litigation.

"You will recall that last year the republican party in this state nominated a candidate for the United States senate at a delegated state convention in the same manner and under the same construction of the present law that had been followed in the last two preceding general elections," the telegram continued. "Although the name of the republican candidates had at these two preceding elections been certified by the secretary of state and printed upon the official ballot, its candidate last year, nominated in identically the same manner, under the construction above referred to, was denied a place upon the official ballot."

Mr. Creager then refers to the "litigation and hard feelings and unpleasant notoriety for our state which attended last year's senatorial election in Texas," and declares all parties should be permitted to nominate all candidates by either the convention or primary system.

Standard Oil Hit By Public Report

Associated Press Dispatch

SHREVEPORT, La., April 14—An opinion charging the Standard Oil company of Louisiana with driving the independent operator out of business in Louisiana and controlling the producing, transportig and marketing phases of the oil business, was issued by Huey P. Long, chairman of the Louisiana public commission, Saturday, Commissioners Shelby Taylor of Baton Rouge and Francis Williams of New Orleans concurring.

The opinion was re-ordered as "a statement of facts" in the commission's case, No. 179, in which divorcement of pipe line and producing interests of any one company operating in the state, and construction of pipe lines as common carriers within the state, is involved.

2,000 Acres Land Offered To Get Tech At Plainview

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, April 14.—Offer of 2,000 acres of land adjoining Plainview is made in the brief of that town for location of the Texas Technological college, filed with the locating board today. Plainview is only the third place to file brief. Towns seeking the college have until next Friday, April 20, to file briefs.

Vernon and Wilson are the other towns that have presented formal applications, Chairman S. B. Copwell of the locating board stated today that it will be necessary to postpone the inspection of the various towns planned for the first week in May, until after adjournment of the special legislative session. Representatives of Lampasas conferred with Secretary W. R. Nabours today, but did not file brief.

Man Goes Insane In Effort to Break Long Dancing Record

Greeted by a brass band and a delegation of prominent Wichitans, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McGregor returned home last night from a world tour that started December 7, 1922. They arrived on the Katy at 10:30 and after a noisy celebration at the station were escorted to their home with pomp and ceremony.

W. D. Cline headed the half hundred or more business men of the city who turned out as a welcoming committee. The plans had already been arranged, and as Mr. McGregor and his wife stepped from the train they were greeted with a blare of "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here."

The pair was nearly overwhelmed by the throng that pressed around extending greetings and "how dee do's." Finally, however, they were rescued and Mr. McGregor was hoisted to the trailer of an ice truck. The band piled into the truck proper and followed by a score or more of cars the parade started.

Bullington Back Tuesday.

It wound through the business section and finally ended up in front of the McGregor home in the 1300 block Tenth street. The band played "Home Sweet Home," the crowd declined an invitation to "come in," and it was all over.

Orville Bullington and his wife, who made practically all of the tour with Mr. and Mrs. McGregor, are expected home Tuesday. The party left here together and covered all of Europe and the Orient. They separated in London two weeks ago.

Java Most Beautiful.

"By far the most beautiful and pleasant spot we touched," said Mr. McGregor, at his return from the trip in which he and his party visited all the principal ports of the world, "was Java. In spite of the fact that Java is the most populated place on the face of the globe the people are contented, and in a way prosperous. The laborers receive only a small sum for their work, amounting to about 18 cents in American money, but can live on half the amount, so only work about half the time. The tropical climate makes cultivation practically unnecessary for the raising of crops, as plants grow naturally, and the

PEACE NEAR IN IRELAND, BELIEF

Associated Press Dispatch

DUBLIN, April 14.—The capture today of Austin Stack, chief colleague of Ramon de Valera, while important in itself, is overshadowed by the discovery on his person of a document indicating that the complete surrender of the irregulars is at hand.

The document, made public tonight by the Free State army headquarters, reads:

"Realizing the gravity of the situation of the army of the republic, owing to the great odds now facing them and the losses lately sustained, and being of the opinion that further military efforts are futile and would cause only injury to our country without obtaining any advantage; and being convinced that the defensive war waged by the army for the last nine or 10 months has made it impossible for the Irish people ever to accept less than their full national rights, and fearing that it would cause too much delay to await the summoning and holding of a full meeting of the army council or executive, we, the undersigned members of the army council, and of the executive, and other army officers, hereby call upon and authorize the president of the republic to order an immediate cessation of hostilities.

MEN DISAPPEAR IN KLAN CASE

Number of Defendants Now Residents of Rio Valley

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW ORLEANS, April 14.—A number of the principal figures in the Morehouse "hooded mob" cases who were said to have been named by the state in bills of information, have left the states and are now scattered in the East and Southwest.

Whether they can be extradited to Louisiana after warrants have been issued on the bills of information, was a much discussed question here tonight.

A number of the defendants are living in the Rio Grande valley. Their friends in Morehouse, however, assert they have no intentions of crossing the border into Mexico, but will return to Louisiana for trial.

The Times-Picayune states 14 charges are contained in the bills against J. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse ku klux klan, nine against T. J. Burnett, former deputy sheriff, now under bond on a first degree murder charge; six against "Newt" Gray, former church deacon; five against Dr. J. B. M. McKoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge; and one or more against the remaining defendants.

The charges range from conspiracy to commit murder, in connection with the slaying of Daniel and Richard, to disturbing the peace. Many are charged with abduction.

Denby Raked Over Coals By McCarl

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, April 14.—J. R. McCarl, who two years ago, unostentatiously took up the duties of the newly created office of comptroller general of the United States, today laid down the law to Secretary Denby in support of his claim that even cabinet officers must bow before the authority of his office in fiscal affairs.

At the same time, Secretary Denby prepared to take to the attorney general for an opinion the question of how far the authority of the comptroller general legally extends into the working of the navy department. Many navy officers and enlisted men have complained, navy department officers said, that Mr. McCarl, had in effect, over-ruled formal naval orders.

Former Mayor Begs "No Publicity" After Arrest on Prohi Charge

Associated Press Dispatch

MUSKOGEE, Okla., April 14.—Harry Burton, former mayor of Kansas City, Kan.; his brother and Maj. J. C. Scutt of Waggoner, Okla., were arrested last night in Waggoner on a charge of violating the prohibition laws, it became known today.

The arrests were made by H. P. Warfield, federal prohibition enforcement officer, and Deputy Sheriff H. L. Watts, who charged that two gallons of liuor was found in the car in which the men were riding.

Burton and party are said to be in Oklahoma engaged in promoting a coal mine near Waggoner.

Preliminary hearing will be held here.

The former mayor pleaded that no publicity be given to the arrest, declaring it would ruin him politically and that his enemies among the ku klux klan would seize upon the incident to attack him, it was reported.

Both of the Burtons were realeased from custody at the end of the hearing. Scutt was placed under $5,000 bond for appearance at the next term of federal district court.

Associated Press Dispatch

BALTIMORE, Md., April 14.—The world's non-stop dancing record of 52 hours and 16 minutes, made in Cleveland, Ohio, last week, was broken this morning by eight couples and six individual dancers at the Garden roof. At 1 a. m., when the contest was halted after a conference with police officials, the dancers had been in continuous motion for 53 hours, besting the Cleveland record by 44 minutes.

Suddenly, becoming half-crazed from the strain and exhaustion attendant upon the non-stop dancing contest here, Adam Conrad had to be overpowered and taken from the Garden theater ballroom this afternoon.

Shouts at Orchestra.

Conrad started toward the orchestra, shouting "Stop, stop."

He struggled fiercely with attendants who intercepted him and was removed, fighting and screaming, to an adjoining room and placed under the care of physicians. The other dancers only stopped momentarily, and then continued their grind.

ALL READY FOR SPECIAL SESSION MONDAY MORN

House Takes Up Revenue Measures Without Wasting Time

SPEED IS WATCHWORD

Oil Tax and Quo Warrant Bills Coming Up For Early Action

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, April 14.—Everything was in readiness tonight for convening of the second special session of the Thirty-eighth legislature Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Advance guards of the legislature had arrived here today and a majority of the members are expected to be present for the opening session.

The house will probably begin consideration immediately of revenue measures, while the senate will have before it upon convening the most important appropriation bills which have been prepared by the senate finance committee during the week. House members declared tonight they expect the lower branch to rush revenue measures through in order that they may be given to the senate as early as possible.

Quick Action Expected.

Little time will be lost in organization since the chief officers from the regular session will hold over and employes are expected to be reappointed in a majority of cases.

Several of Governor Neff's law enforcement measures also will be presented Monday, it is understood. Chief among the bills supported by the chief executive is the quo warranto bill which attracted atten-

ROADS DENIED BOOST IN OKLAHOMA RATE

Associated Press Dispatch

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 14.—The state corporation commission today denied an application of railroads operating in Oklahoma for a general increase of 36 per cent in freight rates. The railroads asked restoration of the rates in effect prior to 1920, when the commission ordered them cut this amount. An increase of 15 per cent on rates within the state on oil well supplies was allowed, however, as was a readjustment of rates on scrap iron, junk, iron and steel pipes.

Forty Acres Sell For Thousand An Acre In Oklahoma

SAYRE, Okla., April 14.—The Martin Kiskadden well placed 170 barrels in a tank Saturday inside of two and a half hours. The first swab brought out 60 barrels and made two heads, a second each head spouting oil over the top of the crown block and drenched a crowd of 40 persons, including the photographer.

Forty acres located half a mile from the well tonight sould for a thousand dollars an acre by Wichita Falls lease-owners. A large amount of close-in acreage between two wells is owned by Wichita Falls men.

Action of the well today put new pep in lease sales. A number of more wells are to start. Many oil experts declared that over two million dollars has been spent by 18 Standard Oil group companies for protection acreage. Locations for two oil well supply houses were bought Saturday and five more companies are after sites. The Kiekndden well is not expected to be completed for several days, yet citizens of Carter have subscribed $28,000 for a toll bridge leading to the field.

Engine of Airship Torn Apart But Fliers Land Safe

Associated Press Dispatch

TEMPLE, Texas, April 14.—Leslie Mauldin, Waco aviator, and D. D. McClean of Belton narrowly escaped death at Bruceville, 20 miles north of here, early today when the engine of the airplane in which they were riding was torn in two by an unusual accident—half of it falling to the ground and carrying the front end of the ship with it.

While flying at an altitude of 3,000 feet the engine broke a center connecting rod and so great was the momentum of the crankshaft, it was said, the motor was rent apart, the front end of the engine base being severed from the ship. The wings of the plane were not damaged and Pilot Mauldin was able to bring his ship down in a wheat field near Bruceville without a jar. Neither pilot nor passenger was injured

STUDENTS OUSTED FOR BEING DRUNK

International News Dispatch

NORMAN, Okla., April 14—Five students of the University of Oklahoma here were suspended indefinitely today by college authorities for being drunk at a dance last week. University officials announced some time ago that the severest penalty would be inflicted upon those found guilty of drunkenness, and are taking radical steps to eliminate students afflicted with the liquor habit. This makes a total of nine students suspended on the same charge since January, 1920.

SUGAR PROBE GROWING WIDER

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, April 14.—The government's investigation of the high prices of sugar, which had been centered upon the transactions of the New York coffee and sugar exchange during February, was widened today to include all transactions in sugar in the period between Jan. 1 and April 1, 1923.

For the past two weeks, it was learned today on good authority, agents of the department of justice have been examining the February transactions of several of the largest brokers and dealers in sugar, paying particular attention to the names and addresses of large sugar contracts.

Inquiry Broadened

The inquiry has been carried on quietly and was known only to the firms concerned and their customers, whose permission was asked in most cases before their names were disclosed to the government agents. The greatest secrecy has been observed by the government and no clue to the nature or scope of the investigation had been obtained until today.

Today the inquiry was broadened to include all transactions in sugar in the first quarter of 1923.

Reports Declare Ford To Be After St. Paul System

Associated Press Dispatch

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 14.—Reports were current in railroad and financial circles here today that control of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad is sought by Henry Ford to facilitate distribution of his products throughout the northwest and middle west, according to the St. Paul Dispatch.

Such a purchase would be epochal in the transportation history of the United States and would involve hundreds of millions of dollars, as the value of the road's properties is estimated at more than $500,000,000, the Dispatch said.

REPORT ADOPTED

Associated Press Dispatch

OMAHA, Neb., April 14.—The educational executives of the Episcopal church, at their fourth annual conference in session here today, adopted what was described by one of the delegates as "reassertion of the basic doctrine of the church in terms of reason and sanity," which ascribes the widespread feeling that restricts the mind and prevents real freedom," to "confusion of thought." Canon C. S. Lewis of Newark, N. J., presented the committee report, which contained the adopted resolution.

COLLEGE INSPECTED

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, Texas, April 14.—Members of the senate and house appropriation committees left Austin tonight for Stephenville, where tomorrow they will inspect John Tarleton college. The inspection tour is being made on invitation of Stephenville citizens. The legislators will return to Austin in time for the opening of the special session Monday.

MERCHANT MARINE TO BE MAINTAINED

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Notice was served on all concerned after a two-hour conference at the white house today that the American merchant marine is to be maintained as a going concern, either under private supervision or under a straight out policy of government ownership and government operation.

The statement was made at the white house that President Harding and members of the shipping board who met with him to consider the shipping situation, were unanimous in the establishment and maintenance of the American merchant marine.

Governor Telephones Offer and Local Man Accepts By Wire Saturday Night.

Bernard Martin, prominent local lawyer, was offered the post of district attorney for the Thirtieth judicial district Saturday, and in a wire last night to Governor Neff stated that he would accept. His appointment fills the place left vacant two weeks ago when District Attorney Walter F. Schenck was appointed judge of the newly created Ninety-second district court, in Young and Stephens counties.

Offer By Phone.

The offer was extended by Governor Neff Saturday afternoon in a long distance telephone message to Mr. Martin, who was in Olney at the time. He had gone there to inspect some oil properties, and was called in from the field by the chief executive's message. Mr. Martin informed the governor that he would wire his answer last night, and after considering the matter decided to accept.

The acceptance was made with considerable reluctance by Mr. Martin, who was largely influenced by his desire to render a service to the public. Handling of the office entails considerable personal sacrifice, although its duties are of paramount importance in the legal world. It is known that Mr. Martin was not an applicant for the position, but he was supported by the local bar, and was urgently requested by the governor to assume the place.

No Surprise.

Rumors have prevailed here for a week or 10 days to the effect that Mr. Martin was being considered, and his appointment came as no distinct surprise. It was, however, accepted with acclaim by court attaches, who recognize that a capable and efficient attorney has been named to the place.

Mr. Martin has been a resident of Wichita Falls for the past 10 years, and has been connected with the legal firm of Martin, O'Neal & Allred. Prior to coming to this city, he was for four years county attorney of Parker county.

During his practice here he has built up a large practice, and is recognized as one of the most able criminal lawyers in North Texas.

It is probable that the new district attorney will appoint an assistant some time this week, this position having been vacant since the resignation of Sam Holliday over a month ago.

Oklahoma University Menaced By Slash

International News Dispatch

NORMAN, Okla., April 14.—Possibility of the closing of the University of Oklahoma here was seen today by university officials on account of Governor Walton's slashing appropriations for maintenance and salaries for the university.

MEXICO SENDS FORCE TO GET CHIEF OF BAND

HELD FOR RANSOM

Mining Engineer Taken By Borderland Bad Man

Associated Press Dispatch

MEXICO CITY, April 14.—The military commanders at Zacatecas and Durango have been ordered to despatch flying columns of troops in pursuit of the bandit leader Juan Gallado, who is alleged to be responsible for the kidnaping of Oliver W. Krull, a mining engineer, from the Trinidad mine in Durango near the Zacatecas border, according to a statement made by the foreign office today.

Krull is described as a Britisher, but the British legation here has no knowledge of a British subject of that name.

A dispatch from El Paso, Texas, April 12, said that Mexican bandits forced Krull to accompany them after they had looted the mine house of provisions and that ransom of an unknown sum had been demanded for his release. A searching party was reported to have been organized to search for the kidnaped man and another party was dispatched to San Diego to take Krull's family to a place of safety.

KRULL'S PARENTS LIVE IN EL PASO

SAN ANTONIO, April 14.—The parents of Oliver W. Krull, American mining engineer who was kidnaped and is being held for ransom near Torreon, Mexico, live in San Antonio.

Word was received by the parents of the missing man, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Krull, that their son was taken captive on the night of April 6. Mr. Krull, who is an employee of La Cruz mining interests, and has been in Mexico for many years, was captured just before leaving his home for the company's office, where he intended to make several reports.

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, April 14.—Revenue which will be available to the state during the next two years under present laws will take care of all appropriations if budgets as recommended by the board of control are not increased, Representative J. E. Quaid, of El Paso, chairman of the house appropriations committee, declared in a statement tonight. Chairman Quaid said appropriations under the state board's budget and those already made will total $37,266,750, while revenue from present sources will total $36,260,000.

Unless certain customary appropriations for schools are made and funds are appropriated for new institutions, no additional revenue will be necessary the statement said Quaid said his statement was issued "to advise those who are interested as to what is to the true situation" regarding the state's financial condition.

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, April 14.—Although one record in the case of Roy Mitchell, Waco negro sentenced to death in connection with a series of McLennan county murders was received by the court of criminal appeals today, filing of the appeal was delayed until Monday by the failure of remaining records to arrive. County Attorney C. E. Farmer, of Waco, was here today to urge that the case be advanced.

15-Year-Old Boy Placed in Jail After He Stabs Lifelong Friend

Special Dispatch to Record News

HENRIETTA, April 14.—Examining trial for 15-year-old Ernest Kyle, who killed his schoolmate, Albert Caple at Thornberry Wednesday of last week by stabbing him with a knife following a quarrel and resulting in the latter's death in a Wichita hospital the next day, will be held here before Justice Clay Coleman next Monday morning.

The death of the Caple boy has resulted in the prostration of his schoolmate, Ernest Kyle, who is to have his enamining trial. The father of the boy who did the stabbing brought his son to Henrietta Thursday and turned him over to Sheriff George Cunningham, who placed the boy in jail to await his examination. The elder Kyle remained at the bedside of young Cable until the latter died and then accompanied the body to Henrietta.

The unfortunate affair has cast a gloom all over the Cache neighborhood, where the families of the boys live.

BUILDING HERE SLUMPS OFF

Total Reaches $12,878 By Eliminating Junior College

By eliminating the permit issued for the construction of the new $600,000 junior college, building permits for the past week took a decided slump over previous periods. If the college item is included, the total will, of course, exceed that of any single week of many months.

Actual construction work on the building has been under way for some time, however, so this permit cannot be included in the list of those issued for new projects for the week.

Other permits given out by the city clerk for the week total $12,878, against $80,000 last week.

The complete list is as follows:

J. W. Coombs, residence, 1713 Polk street; $3,000.

M. A. Guillon, residence, Highland Heights; $4,000.

R. E. Miller, addition to residence, 2015 Kemp; $800.

H. E. Crain, garage, 1313 Sixteenth street; $125.

J. W. Bell, residence, 206 Humphries; $1,500.

R. W. Okey, addition to residence, 2115 Polk; $1,500.

M. K. Shamlin, residence, 307 Burnett; $175.

H. F. Cobb, addition to residence, 1005 Bluff; $1,100.

H. F. Cobb, garage, 1107 Burnett; $300.

First Methodist To Put 100 Teachers In Training School

The First Methodist Episcopal church, South, Tenth and Lamar, is making a strong effort to put 100 of her Sunday school teachers and officers and other workers into the standard training school for Sunday school workers, which will be held each night next week, beginning Monday night, at Floral Heights Methodist church. A group of expert Sunday school instructors will be brought here for the faculty. Two lesson periods will be held each night. Rev. O. W. Moerner, the field secretary in this work, will speak at First church in the interest of this work Sunday night at 7:45. Rev. S. M. Black, the presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district, will preach at 11 a. m. The music at both hours promises to be of first quality.

The Woman's Missionary society will meet in social session Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with the following hostesses: No. 1, Mrs. M. D. Rowe, 1612 Buchanan; No. 2, Mrs. Flora Perham, 1610 Tenth; No. 3, Mrs. Paul Von Allmen, 1715 Huff; No. 4, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, 1111 Alma; No. 5, Mrs. F. P. Wareh, 2205 Tenth; No. 6, Mrs. Ben G. O'Neal, 2011 Eleventh.

Wilbarger County Is High Scorer

VERNON, April 14.—At the interscholastic meet of district No. 3 held in this city today, Wilbarger county was high winner with 124 points, with Hardeman coming second with 83 points. Knox won 23 points, Childress 21, and Hall 11 points. Vernon was big winner in the class A towns with 75 points and Quanah took second with 46.

Chillicothe took first place in the Class B events with 37 points. Harold won second place with 33, Kirkland third with 25 and Knox fourth with 17.

Bill Clynch, of Harrold, broke the state record in the Class B 440 yard dash when he galloped over the course in 53 flat. This record was formerly 55 2-5 seconds and was held by Thomas of the Love school.

In nearly all the events the Class B teams made better time than the Class A.

A large crowd attended the meet from the several counties and officials in charge said it was the most successful in the history of the district.

Dr. Powers Returns From Angelo Revival

Dr. O. L. Powers has returned to the city from San Angelo where he has been engaged in an evangelistic campaign for the past two weeks.

"The revival resulted in many conversions and additions to the First Baptist church of San Angelo, altho weather condition seemed adverse," says Dr. Powers. "I am always anxious to return to my own church and pulpit, for there is none better, and I expect to greet a large congregation on Sunday morning. It will be a big day for our church. Sunday night, Dr. W. H. Knight, Fort Worth, will preach. He comes with an inspirational message of vital importance to every man and woman in our membership, and I am sure the people will want to hear him."

The opening session of the Sunday school training school will be Sunday afternoon, 3 o'clock, when Miss A. L. Williams of Birmingham, Ala., will be the principal speaker. Members of all Baptist churches of the city and county are cordially invited to enroll in the various classes which are to be taught by one of the strongest faculties obtainable for this kind of work.

EQUITY CASES IN FEDERAL COURT

With a full docket of equity cases to be tried, the United States district court will go into session again Monday morning.

The court has been adjourned since Friday afternoon, at which time all criminal cases set for trial, had been disposed of. Judge William H. Atwell and other attaches of the court left immediately for their homes in Dallas but are expected to return tonight.

The entire week will be devoted to the trial of equity cases and the following week will see the resumption of more criminal cases. Mail fraud violations will be taken up first, with liquor violations to come later.

What Do Wichitans Do, And How Do They Look, On Trade Trips? Here's Your Answer

Nash, Record News Man With Camera, Gives You An Eyeful Of Oklahoma Cities Visited Last Week

The manner in which the Wichita Falls trade trippers were greeted in the Oklahoma and Texas towns visited last week and the substantial cities on the route today is pictured by Arthur Nash, Wichita Falls' outdoor photographer who acted as The Record News staff snapshot artist.

In the pictures here presented, Wichitans will get some idea of the soundness of these Oklahoma towns. Here the trade trippers found paved streets, modern brick structures, automobiles in abundance, modern lighting systems, fine schools, beautiful churches and in one town a department store that would do credit to larger places.

But there's still something the pictures do not tell. That is the "spirit" that prevailed throughout Oklahoma towns visited concerning Wichita Falls. The 120 commerce angels and glad-handers were everywhere greeted with a smile and at some points with a cheer as well. Led by a band that seemed to have a pretty good idea what its duties were, the business men never failed to make an impression. And then in addition to the band music, George Platt, song leader and J. C. Mytinger, chairman of the trip, saw to it that there were stirring vocal numbers and short bits of oratory that served as a get-acquainted feeler for the Wichita delegation.

Spanish Club Presents Play

One of the best plays of the year was presented by members of the Spanish club of the high school in chapel, Thursday morning before the entire student body.

The three-act comedy, "Zaraqueta" was given in English with Spanish settings and costumes. The plot was that of a young Spanish student, Carlos, who was trying to secure money to pay his debts to a deaf money lender of Madrid, Zaroquets. To aid in deceiving his aunt and uncle and thus secure money supposedly for an operation, he enlists the aid of his sweetheart, Maruja and many awkward and humorous complications followed. Finally however, matters are adjusted and Carlos and his sweetheart, Maruja leave for Madrid on their honeymoon.

The leading parts were excellently carried by Donald Hallman and Miss Thelma Cain. They were ably supported by Misses Margaret Akin, Ninan Yeager and Ursule Johnson and Messrs. Herman Stayton, Harold Ward, James Zetzsche, Gilmore Newton and Louie Barrett.

An admission fee was charged and $40 was realized which will be used for the benefit of Coyote, the high school annual.

DR. BOZZEL'S TOPIC

Dr. W. W. Rozell, pastor of the South Side Baptist church, announces he will speak on "The Simplicity and Beauty of Christian Life" at the morning service. The subject for the night's sermon will be "The Triumphant Christ."

Local Boys Honored

Wichita Falls has a charter membership in the Interscholastic Press association, the first organization of its kind ever formed in the state.

James Calvert and Elton Felder, local high school boys, have just returned from Baylor college at Belton, where the association held its first annual meeting, and report that this city is included in the list of Texas high schools that are made charter members. The association is modeled after the form of the Texas Press association, and its objective is to promote better journalism in the schools of the state.

The two boys represented the high school publications here.

LASLETTE'S SUBJECT

Dr. F. C. Laslette of the Central Presbyterian church, announces the subject for his morning sermon which begins at 11 o'clock will be "The Great Shibboleths of Life."

Miss Katherine Cook will sing at this service.

The subject for the evening sermon will be "The One and Only Panacea for a Torn, Rent World." Special music will be rendered at this service.

PROSECUTOR TO BE APPOINTED

This Will Feature Meeting Of City Council

Appointment of a city prosecutor for the municipal court will probably be the main item of business to come before the city council at its meeting Monday. The usual mass of routine will come up but nothing of especial importance is now on tap.

The session promises to be in marked contrast to that of last week, which lasted until nearly midnight and at which the new police and health commissioners were sworn in.

A special session of the council is on tap for Wednesday evening at which time property owners along proposed paving routes will be given a hearing. The court house square project, the Lucile street stretch and the Avenue F blocks will be represented.

TROLLEY CARS TO SCOTLAND

First Car Crosses River Early Saturday Afternoon

Scotland addition now has street car service, the first car into that section of the city crossing the river early Saturday afternoon. Fifteen minute service will be maintained regularly from this on.

The first car brought to fulfillment the longstanding plea of Scotland residents who have long felt the need of some means of transportaiton into the city. Action looking toward a spanning of the river was started several years ago, but the very nature of work has required a long period of time.

The route now taken by the North side cars is from the loop district of the city, starting at Sixth and Indiana, running west to Austin street and thence north to the new river bridge. Crossing here, the line continues on west to its present terminus, which is about 100 yards west of the river. Eventually this will be extended further through the addition.

There has been some consideration of the proposal to extend the line on through Iowa Park and Electra, giving the county an interurban system, and this will be done in case the irrigation districts develop as it is hoped. Traction company officials have stated that such an extension will be made as soon as conditions justify.

EX-AGGIES TO SEE ROUND-UP

C. E. Birk Invites All In West Texas To Iowa Park

Special Dispatch to Record News

IOWA PARK, April 14.—Ex R. & M. college students of Wichita Falls and vicinity, in fact of practically all West Texas will combine their annual get-to-gether meeting and celebration with that of Tom L. Burnett who is staging the Triangle Ranch Rodeo and Pageant of Progress on the Burnett ranch, April 19-22, according to Clyde Crane, chairman of the Wichita Falls ex-students committee on arrangements and C. E. Birk of the First National Bank of this city, chairman of the local committee.

These celebrations in the past have usually fallen on the 21 of April so that day has been picked by the committee for one of the biggest celebrations yet held by ex-A. & M. students, at the afternoon performance of the rodeo a special section will be reserved over which will float the A. & M. colors and class mates and former yell leaders will vie with each other in spurring on to greater effort the many cowboy and cowgirl bronc riders, ropers, trick-riders and bulldoggers in their work in the arena and will be quick to pick up the rallying cry of this or that ranch contingent.

The whole 27,000 acres will be turned over to the ex-students and will be by far the largest campus many of them have ever romped upon. Tom L. Burnett the producer of the rodeo and pageant is sparing no expense in making the occasion one that will be long remembered by the former students, and according has arranged a special menu in which choice barbecued yearling beef will be the principal piece de resistance, and this spread will take place near the ranch house in a special and exclusive portion of the grounds which has been allotted for the Aggies.

The spread will take place about 6 o'clock in the afternoon after the close of the afternoon's performance of the rodeo, and after the repast there will be a special program of speaking and other entertainment, after which by special Radio arrangements the Aggies will tune in on the WTAW, the college broadcasting station and will listen in on the program broadcasted from the college especially for this occasion.

After the radio program a special trip will be made through the Indian reservation which is being erected on the ranch, the final lap of the Aggies Triangle Pilgrimage will take them to the big dance hall where those who wish may trip the light fantastic with the kings and queens of the rodeo profession as well as the many society folk from the city, who have joined in the big gala event.

The committee has made it plain that all ex A. & M. students will be more than welcome and have sent out the S. O. S. for a big del- their wives or sweethearts and make merry with their former class mates, gation whom are invited to bring

Quo Warranto Bill War Backed By Henrietta Chamber of Commerce

Special Dispatch to Record News

HENRIETTA, April 14.—The directorate of the Henrietta chamber of commerce unanimously indorsed Judge Rueben Loftin, representative of this district, when he stated before this body Friday noon that the governor's quo warranto bill would be disastrous in many instances if passed.

"The quo warranto bill is designed solely to add to the power of the executive department of the government and at the same instance it takes away from the constitutional rights granted to the legislative and judicial departments. Such a bill would give the political enemies of every county officer in Texas an opportunity to be kicked out of office unjustly," the representative stated. Judge Loftin said he would do all within his power at the call session of the legislature to defeat the bill.

Plan To Double C. of C. Budget at Henrietta

Special Dispatch to Record News

HENRIETTA, April 14.—At a call meeting of the directors of the Henrietta chamber of commerce held this week plans for doubling the monthly budget of the organization were gone into and a committee appointed to put the matter over.

It was decided a drive would be unnecessary as the city is solidly behind the commercial organization and many have voluntarily doubled their subscriptions. The chamber of commerce now has a budget of $400 a month and it is believed little trouble will be had in raising it to twice that amount.

IS THERE MONEY IN OIL?

Doctor Frederick A. Cook is a man of many parts and many achievements. he was the first Arctic explorer to nail the American flag to the North Pole; he was the first daring explorer to make the ascent of Mount McKinley; he was one of the first wildcatters to break into the mid-continent oil pools and now with 25 others he is accused by the federal authorities of misrepresenting his oil properties and possibilities to foreign investors.

The noted Arctic explorer and mountain climber is at the head of the Petroleum Producing association. He was caught in a dragnet thrown in the city of Fort Worth. Rev. Alexander Campbell Parker is the general manager of the Great State Petroleum company. He was caught in a dragnet thrown in the city of New York and was indicted with seven others for using the mails to defraud stock investors of one million dollars. Cook furnished $25,000 bond and was released; Parker furnished $25,000 bond and was released.

SCOTT FERRIS

Scott Ferris is referred to by the New York Times as one of the outstanding figures in the development of the Montana-Wyoming oil resources. This in announcing the [illegible]ation of the Western States Oil and [illegible] company, organized under the laws of the state of Delaware. Charles N. Haskell is chairman of the board of the new organization.

This company owns 150,000 acres of oil-bearing lands in the Northwest and plans to build to 330 miles of railroad from Miles City, Montana, to Casper, Wyoming, and 23 new towns are to be constructed along this 330 miles of track.

Charles N. Haskell was the first governor of the state of Oklahoma when statehood came. He was one of the pioneer telephone builders in Texas and the old Indian territory. He abandoned politics for the oil game and gathered in millions.

Scott Ferris is a product of the Southwest. He was a member of congress from Oklahoma for 10 years and defeated Thomas P. Gore for a senatorial nomination in 1920.

What happened is ancient history. There came a republican landslide in November 1920 and Oklahoma landed in the republican column of states. Scott Ferris went down in defeat, J. W. Harreld republican, won the senatorship. Ferris deserted politics. He became associated with Haskell. They brought in wells in Oklahoma and the mid-continent territory of Texas. They invaded the Mexia fields. They jumped into Wyoming and Montana and now the erstwhile leaders of the Oklahoma democracy are devoting all their time to the pursuit of the yellow sands. Haskell has never surrendered his Oklahoma citizenship. Scott Ferris hopes to go to the senate some day.

THERE'S NO LAND LIKE THIS

More than 60,000 British and Irish born passengers were admitted into the United States from July 13 to March 31, last, leaving a balance of 19,000 for admission prior to June 30 of this year, in accordance with the United States three per cent restriction act.

This number is already absorbed by bookings for April and May. British subjects are immigrating to America at a rate almost never equaled and more of them are proceeding to the United States than to all the British colonies combined. They prefer the Stars and Stripes to the Union Jack. There is no land like this.

ILLUSTRATED BY HUBERT MATHIEU

On her famous quest of the Arctic fleet, to the wilds of Hudson's Bay?
For it was a foreign Prince's whim to collect this tiny cuss;
And a golden quid was no more to him than a copper to coves like us.
So we sailed away and our hearts were gay as we gazed on the gorgeous scene;
And we laughed with glee as we caught the flea of the wolf and the wolverine;
Yea, our hearts were light as the parasite of the ermine rat we slew
And the great musk ox, and the silver fox, and the moose and the caribou.

And we laughed with zest as the insect pest of the marmot crowned our sea,
And the wary mink and the wily "link," and the walrus and the seal.
And with eyes aglow on the scornful snow we danced a rigadoon,
But the time was nigh to homeward hie, when, imagine our despair!
For the best of the lot we hadn't got—the flea of the polar bear.
Oh, his face was long and his breath was strong, as the Skipper he says to me,
"I wants you to linger 'ere, my lad, by the shores of the Hartic Sea,
I wants you to 'unt the polar bear the perishin' winter through,
And if flea ye find of its breed and kind, there's a 'undred quid for you."
But I shook my head: "No, Cap," I said; "it's yourself I'd like to please
But I tells ye flat I wouldn't do that if ye went on yer bended knees."
Then the Captain spat in the seething brine, and he says: "Good luck to you,
If it can't be did for a 'undred quid, supposin' we call it two?"
So that was why they said good-by, and they sailed and left me there—
Alone, alone in the Arctic Zone to hunt for the polar bear.

Oh, the days were slow and packed with woe, till I thought they would never end;
And I used to sit when the fire was lit, with my pipe for my only friend.
And I tried to sing some rollicky thing, but my song broke off in a prayer,
And I'd drowse and dream by the driftwood gleam; I'd dream of a polar bear;
I'd dream of a cloudlike polar bear that blotted the stars on high,
With ravenous jaws and flenzing claws, and the flames of hell in his eye.

And beasts I'd find of every kind, but never the one I sought.
Never a track in the white ice-pack that humped and heaved and flawed,
Till I came to think: "Why, strike me pink! if the creature ain't a fraud."
And then one night in the waning light, as I hurried home to sup,
I hears a roar by the cabin door, and a great white hulk heaves up.
So my rifle flashed, and a bullet crashed; dead, dead as a stone fell he,
And I gave a cheer, for there in his ear—Gosh ding me!—a tiny flea.

At last, at last! Oh, I clutched it fast, and I gazed on it with pride;
And I thrust it into a biscuit-tin, and I shut it safe inside;
With a lid of glass for the light to pass, and space to leap and play;

Oh, it kept alive; yes, seemed to thrive, as I watched it night and day.
And I used to sit and sing to it, and I shielded it from harm,
And many a hearty feed it had on the heft of my hairy arm.
For you'll never know in that land of snow how lonesome a man can feel;
So I made a fuss of the little cuss, and I christened it "Lucille."
But the longest winter has its end, and the ice went out to sea,
And I saw one day a ship in the bay, and there was the Nancy Lee.
So a boat was lowered and I went aboard, and they opened wide their eyes—
Yes, they gave a cheer when the truth was clear, and they saw my precious prize.
And then it was all like a giddy dream; but to cut my story short,
We sailed away on the fifth of May to the foreign Prince's court;
To a palmy land and a palace grand, and the little Prince was there,
And they showed me into a shiny room, just him and her and me,
And the Prince he was pleased and friendly-like, and he calls for drinks for three.
And I shows them my battered biscuit-tin, and I makes my modest spiel,
And they laughed, they did, when I opened the lid, and out there popped Lucille.

Oh, the Prince was glad, I could soon see that, and the Princess she was too;
And Lucille waltzed round on the tablecloth as she often used to do,
And the Prince pulled out a purse of gold, and he put it in my hand;
And he says: "It was worth all that, I'm told, to stay in that nasty land."
And then he turned with a sudden cry, and he clutched at his royal beard;
And the Princess screamed, and well she might—for Lucille had disappeared.

"She must be here," said his Noble Nibbs, so we hunted all around;
Oh, we searched that place, but never a trace of the little beast we found.
So I shook my head, and I glumly said: "Gol darn the saucy cuss!
It's mighty queer, but she isn't here; so . . . she must be on one of us.

You'll pardon me if I make so free, but—there's just one thing to do:
If you'll kindly go for a half a mo' I'll search me garments through."
Then all alone on the shiny throne I stripped from head to heel;
In vain, in vain; it was very plain that I hadn't got Lucille.
So I garbed again, and I told the Prince, and he scratched his august head;
"I suppose if she hasn't selected you, it must be me," he said.
So he retired; but he soon came back, and his features showed distress:
"Oh, it isn't you and it isn't me." . . . Then we looked at the Princess.
So she retired; and we heard a scream, and she opened wide the door;
"It's here," she cries, "our precious prize. Oh, I found it right away. . . ."
Then I ran to her with a shout of joy, but I choked with a wild dismay.
I clutched the back of the golden throne, and the room began to reel . . .
What she held to me was, ah yes! a flea, but . . . it wasn't my Lucille.

Revision of Leading Schedules In Tariff Bill New G .O. P. Problem

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS.
Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Revision of the leading schedules in the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, with the probability of bringing about an attack on the entire bill in the next session of congress, is a problem which will confront President Harding immediately upon his return to Washington. The issue will be presented by the tariff commission, which is torn with dissension over the subject, and which by a majority of 3 to 2 ordered an examination of the schedules on March 2 last.

Connected with the president's decision will be the question whether the tariff commission is an independent, non-political body, or whether its activities are to be governed through the influence of the administration which may be in power at the time questions arise.

Notwithstanding the fact that the tariff commission voted to take up examination of leading schedules in the tariff, outside influence has prevented action and final decision awaits the verdict of the executive.

The schedules which it is proposed to reopen for examination include wool, steel and iron and cutlery, these being the most excessive rates in the bill.

The tariff commission members are reported at daggers' points on the subject, with Commissioners Culbertson, Lewis and Costigan standing for revision, and Commissioners Marvin and Burgess against.

The order issued for the investigation, which has since been withheld for some mysterious reason, was made without any request for a hearing, and upon the judgment of the commissioners favoring opening up the subject, who hold that the interest of a scientific tariff demands action.

The position taken by the commissioners who plan to reopen the question of the offending schedules is that they are out of line with the rest of the tariff imposed, and that failure to revise them now will result in complete revision of the entire bill at the next session of congress.

It is contended also that if the tariff is to be the scientifically formulated document its sponsors assert, revision of the schedules mentioned must be prompt.

High tariff advocates who were frankly fearful of the provision which proposed to place a certain degree of responsibility with the tariff commission, and authority with the president to order revisions in accordance with the commission's findings, are horrified at the prospect of touching any of the schedules.

Any attempt to touch the wool schedule is certain to bring on a storm of protest from the powerful wool lobbyists, while the high tariff on lemons, which also was slated for investigation and which was the work of Senator Johnson of California, is regarded as sacred in the Western State.

All of these schedules were bitterly fought during the tariff debate, the tariff on cutlery being described as the most excessive in the entire list.

Steel and iron products is another schedule regarded as among the "untouchables," and any effort to lower the rate is expected to bring a whirlwind of protest about the white house.

President Harding already has suggested a reopening of the tariff fight by ordering an investigation of the schedule on sugar and on some minor articles. This decision established a precedent in which the high tariff advocates saw a threat of possible danger.

The Western liberal bloc which opposed the tariff is grinding itself for an onslaught upon the bill, and administration advisers fear any effort to revise the schedules at this time will reopen the entire subject and make the tariff a major campaign issue.

Mention of Harding's Name Does Not Show Any Pent-Up Enthusiasm

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The injection of President Harding into the coming presidential campaign, through the recent announcement of his candidacy for re-election, by Attorney General Daugherty, does not seem to have aroused that enthusiasm which the mention of a popular candidate usually starts. But it is becoming more apparent each day that Mr. Harding will be nominated again, perhaps unanimously, certainly without serious opposition.

Of the two elements of republicans who are according their support to Mr. Harding, neither, it is believed, is of the opinion that he can be elected. One is the faction which holds him responsible for the popular dissatisfaction, and thinks, as he got the party "in bad" with the people he must take the punishment and take the licking which they feel will be given to any candidate on the republican ticket next year.

The other element realizes that Mr. Harding can not be elected again next year, but desires to have him for the candidate rather than give up control of the party organization, which would necessarily follow a change of candidates. And they want to lessen the degree of humiliation by giving to Mr. Harding the endorsement of the party, even if defeat should follow at the polls. For it wouldn't be nearly so bad to be endorsed by his party and then beaten, as to be turned down by his party and not even be permitted to go before the people for approval.

But even among the latter class there are a few wise politicians, mostly personal friends of the president, who will admit the president's chances for re-election are almost hopeless, but who nevertheless want to keep him in a position to run again, in the hope that the democrats may destroy their own opportunity to recapture the presidency, through some foolish move as they ever the democrats are liable to make at any moment.

Many of the president's close advisers are devotees of the track and know that a 100-to-1 horse occasionally wins. And they are hoping his next track may be one of the times when a "long shot" will be first in the running. When a "long shot" wins a race, it is because the favorite has failed to do what was expected of him. And if President Harding, as the nominee of his party, should win in the next election, it will be because the democrats have not properly utilized their advantage in the contest.

Democratic failure to offer a candidate and a platform to the liking of the people is what the never-say-die friends of President Harding are counting upon to give him his only chance of re-election. Not only are they counting upon democratic blunders, but it is reliably reported they are actually scattering nice, ripe banana peelings in judiciously selected spots in an attempt to see that teh democrats step on them.

How Are the Mighty Fallen?

WHY SHOULD WAGE EARNERS HOLD THE BAG?

Lawmakers give their approval to a tax measure and specify in that measure that the revenue derived shall be placed to the credit of special funds. This is a modern invention of the legislative mind. All the money raised for the support of the state government should be placed in the general revenue fund and then transfered to the different departments whenever funds are needed. Now the state has been placed on a deficiency basis and unless something is done the 4,000 employees of the state will be compelled to hawk their salary warrants to the best bidder on and after May 1. Now just why should the large transfers of money have been made where all the money was not needed for months to come, and the employes of the state left unprotected and forced to accept sweeping reductions in their monthly stipend?

They must do this if the treasury remains empty. Bankers are not in the business for their health. They do not cash warrants at face value and then hold the same without profit or compensation for months and months until redemption time comes. Brokers, who are buyers of paper or state warrants, are not philantropists. If they give money or cash warrants or buy paper, they expect to realize a profit on the transaction. These are the facts:

Balance of the available school fund for April was $8,488,653.82. Balance to the credit of the highway fund was $1,031,501.34. The highway fund will run about $2,500,000 for the next six to eight months. The department has not yet registered 20 per cent of the 535,000 motor vehicles and has not collected all the registration fees yet from the counties. In addition to this, the department has out $500,000 to be repaid by the federal government.

General revenue went on deficiency March 30 when the $5,500,000 required by law and the $3,000,000 emergency appropriation were transferred to the school fund and other transfers made including portions of the $600,000 prison appropriation. The general revenue was on deficiency from last November to March 1. It will not remain on deficiency until next March 1 unless new taxes of the regular and special sessions this year restore it to cash basis.

Departments and institutions pay rolls total about $500,000 per month. There are approximately 4,000 people employed in state departments and institutions. Now why should some departments of governments be given fat money chests and other departments be given starved or empty money chests? Why should the wage earners or employes of the state be the sufferers?

If all the collections were placed to the credit of the general revenue fund, would it not be possible to prevent the state going on deficiency? There is a highway fund of unused millions which will not be needed or exhausted before the coming winter. There are other funds. If all had been placed in the general revenue, wouldn't it be possible for the state to get by and thus avoid the necessity of holders of warrants hawking the same about the streets for almost a year to come? Is it sensible or sane statesmanship to permit one department to wax fat on revenue and another to wax lean or be placed in a starved condition?

A remedy should be found for this condition of affairs at the earliest possible moment and the governor and the attorney general should devise a plan if possible that will give relief to those who are directly concerned and in their work they should have the co-operation of the lawmakers who are to assemble in special session April 16. All institutions of the state are interested in a quick solution of the problem; all employes of state institutions are interested. Again as this paper conceives it there is no reason why large sums of state money should remain idle as special funds while the state itself is on deficiency and its employes are told that they must expect or submit to the payment of a discount of six to eight per cent in order to get their salary checks cashed.

It is said that there is a special fund of more than $200,000 to the credit of one of the minor departments that will never be touched for months to come. Why not all the money or most of the money taken from the tax payers to the credit of the general revenue fund and pay-as-you-go way of transacting business? Why all the revenue eggs in one basket and all the other baskets empty?

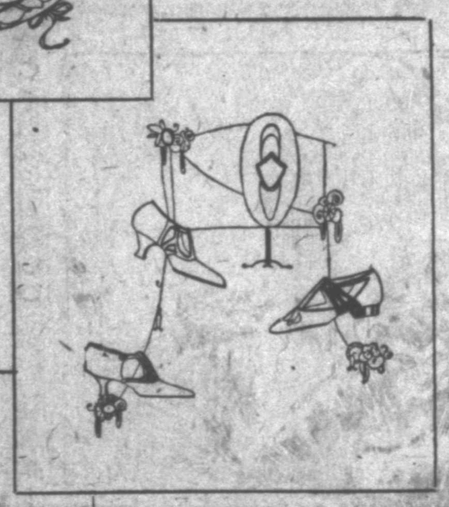

Why millions for one department to meet the expenditures of the year and other departments famishing for funds? Why not all on a deficiency basis or provision made for all until the taxes roll in again next winter or the special taxes assessed by the legislature may flow into the treasury and thus enable the state to place itself on a cash basis?

Neighboring Oklahoma Towns Launch Irrigation Drive

ALTUS WILL BE FIRST MEETING

Plans Will Be Laid To Conserve Water To Curtail Losses

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 14.—As the initial step in the development of a gigantic water conservation project and irrigation system for the great plains region, which includes Western Oklahoma four general meetings have been called for representative cities of that district next week.

The meetings will be held at Altus Monday, Clinton Tuesday, Woodward Wednesday, and Guymon Thursday. They will be held under the auspices of each of their commercial organizations and will include representatives from all communities of their respective districts.

Plan Conservation.

At each meeting the subject of frequently recurring drouths and their possible modification by a general system of water conservation will be discussed. While definite organizations may not be formed, the meetings have been called to arouse interest in the movement with the anticipation that the movement with the anticipation that the movement will be organized at later meetings.

John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture and Joseph B. Thoburn, secretary of the Oklahoma Historical society, will make the rounds of the meetings and deliver addresses. Both men, former residents of the plains, contend that that region is not less worthy of development by irrigation and water storage than the mountain and intermountain regions west of it.

Huge Drouth Loss.

Careful computation, based on the crop yield statistics of the United States department of agriculture, reveals that Oklahoma's loss from drouth on the four major grain crops, corn, wheat, oats and the grain sorghums, and lint cotton, during the ten-year period beginning 1909 and ending 1918, was greater by $250,000,000 than the total assessed valuation of all the property in the state at the close of that period and that the drouth losses on other crops and in the neighboring states of Kansas and Texas were correspondingly heavy.

RAIL MERGER IS OPPOSED

Henrietta Protests Denver And Santa Fe Combination

Special Dispatch to Record News

HENRIETTA, April 14—The proposed merger of the Fort Worth & Denver railroad with the Santa Fe line which will be discussed at a hearing to be held in Fort Worth April 23, next is not favored by the Henrietta chamber of commerce and a committee was appointed Friday night to draw up appropriate resolutions to be presented at that time.

According to H. M. Muse, local attorney who presented the matter, the merger of the Fort Worth and Denver line with the Santa Fe will give a monoply to the latter. The attorney said the present system with the two roads in competition at all times gives West Texas and the Panhandle section better passenger and freight service and rates than could be expected should the lines merge.

Judge J. S. Dickey, president of the chamber of commerce, in an address on the matter said, "we should uphold Commissioner Splawn in his effort to combat the interstate commerce commission in this matter which if effected will hurt every town on the Fort Worth & Denver.

Atwell To Speak At Kiwanis Lunch

Judge W. H. Atwell of the United States district court, now in session here, is to be the principal speaker of the day at the Kiwanis club luncheon at the Kemp, Monday noon. No subject has been assigned, but his address is being looked forward to eagerly by the Kiwanians.

The attendance prize is to be furnished by Judge J. W. Atkin, and the silent boosts will be given by Earl Jameson.

In connection with its program for Monday, the Kiwanis club announces that the coming week is to be observed as a 'courtesy' period, in which the value of being courteous in business and social life is to be stressed.

Seymour Society News

SEYMOUR, April 14.—The Methodist Missionary society met Monday at the church in its regular Bible study, with Mrs. W. R. Sikes, assistant teacher, conducting the services. A large number of ladies attended, and an interesting and helpful afternoon was spent.

To Give Program.

The Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church will render a program Sunday evening at the church.

Seymour Boys Win.

The sixth grade boys have organized a baseball team worthy of mention. The Cash Creek team came over and played them Tuesday afternoon. The game resulted in a score of 6 to 1, favoring Seymour.

Seymour Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Zeigler, pioneer citizens of Seymour, who are moving from California to Wichita Falls, were in this city last week visiting their many friends.

Dick Finn, who is now located in Wichita Falls, spent last week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Finn.

Miss Mary Del Smith of Wichita Falls spent last week-end in the home of her sister, Mrs. C. E. Rupe.

QUANAH FORMS ROTARY CLUB

Harry Koch Elected First President of Organization

Special Dispatch to Record News

QUANAH, Texas, April 14.—Fifteen business and professional men met in the chamber of commerce for the purpose of orgaizing a Rotary in Quanah. To assist them, President Fred Haskett of the Childress Rotarians; Secretary Debesport of the Childress chamber of commerce; Mayor Mitchell and Ernest Davis had come down.

After explaining the purpose of the order, how it does not seek to supplant, but supplement, the work done by the local chamber of commerce, the organization was perfected and Harry Koch was elected its first president.

The Quanah Rotary will start in as a business men's luncheon club. They will meet promptly each Thursday noon. An attractive program is arranged after the eats have been disposed of, and business of civic or charitable nature is to be attended to. Only three new members per month can be admitted.

The purpose of Rotarians is to make better men, neighbors and citizens of themselves. To help their town, their county and state in every way they can think of, and make themselves useful.

Federal Prisoners Taken To Kansas

Eight federal prisoners, all sentenced to terms of varying length in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, were taken from the county jail Saturday morning by U. S. Marshal Campbell and his deputy, John Saye. From here they were taken to Fort Worth, where other groups from various federal courts now in session in Texas are being assembled.

The entire crowd will be taken on to the Kansas prison some time this week.

Of the eight men sent away from here, the majority are under sentence of a year and a day. Those in the party were:

Next meeting will be on Thursday night, April 19, in the Odd Fellows hall.

Gurdners Entertain.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gurdner was the center of a happy gathering of young people Thursday evening from 7 to 10 oclock, in special honor of the daughter of the home, Miss Almeda Gurdner, who celebrated her fifteenth birthday anniversary.

Informal games, chatter and music filled the entertaining hours, amid a pretty decoration of green and white.

B. B. Club Meets.

Among the younger social circles, none are more interesting than the boys and girls of the B. B. club, which meets each week in the home of the members, the mothers of the young people serving as sponsors and co-workers for their many social activities.

The last meeting, Wednesday evening, was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ford, on the Humble lease. James A. Ford, their son, was special host.

The entertaining hours were from 8 to 10 o'clock, and at the close of the evening the kind mother-hostess, assisted by Mrs. R. C. Sabatoni, served a splendid refreshment course.

The members present were Misses J. W. Musgroves, Mildred Black, Hazel Goodlett and Maybelle; Jas. A. Ford, Floyd Johnson, Charles Cross and B. Jarrett.

Burkburnett Personals.

The Misses Floyd returned Monday, after being called to their home in a distant city for several days, by the serious illness of their mother.

Among the recent changes in the public school faculty, Mrs. Floyd Hooper resigned her position on account of illness, and has joined her husband in Dallas.

Miss Mae McGraw was called to her home permanently by the recent death of her mother, and was succeded by Mrs. Blake Grennell on the faculty force.

Mrs. Glen Kincaid is also one of the recently elected teachers to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Miss Cramer.

At a meeting of the city council Tuesday night, the recent aldermanic elections were canvassed and approved, with the following results: P. B. Browning, Will Dickson, A. R. Thomas and W. S. Duvall.

Eastern Star Notes.

The Burkburnett Order of Eastern Star will be the guest of Wichita Falls chapter No. 237 in that city on Tuesday evening, April 17. It is requested tha tall members of the local chapter having cars, or desiring to go, to meet at 6:30 p. m. on that date at the Rexall drug store, and go over to Wichita Falls in a body.

About 30 members of the Wichita Falls O. E. S., chapter No. 237, visited the Burkburnett chapter Order of the Eastern Star on their regular meeting Tuesday evening, April 10, when six new members were initiated—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Waddell, Mrs. Laura Townsend, Mrs. Mabel Johnson, Mrs. Cordie Culwell, and Mrs. Vinnie Attaway. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Waurika Society and Personals

WAURIKA, Okla., April 14.—The Sorosis club met last Friday at the beautiful home of Mrs. Earl Morris in East Waurika, for the annual 1-o'clock luncheon of the club.

The guests enjoying the charming hospitality of the Morris home were Messrs. and Mesdames E. B. Ellis, Fred Pittman, Robert Dunn, Emmet Clark, Donald Stuart, Miles Murphy, M. F. Walsh, P. F. Dawson, Jack Jasper, and Mesdames D. M. Bridges, J. N. Johnston and C. D. Snider, and Mr. Bradley of Atchison, Kan., as the honor guests.

Mrs. Morris was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Mrs. Lang King.

Celebrates Birthday.

Willa Maud Simms was 7 years old Saturday, and the occasion was properly celebrated with a birthday party.

Twenty little guests came to bring best wishes for future happiness and to enjoy the hospitality of the Simms home.

All kinds of childish games were played and enjoyed, and at 5:30 the little guests were summoned to the dining room, where a lovely lunch was served.

Party for Sweet 16.

Saturday night Miss Louise Holden was 16 years old, and a very enjoyable party was given by her mother, Mrs. Conners, and her sister, Miss Julia Conners.

The evening was spent in games and music, and a collation of ice cream and angel food cake was served in the evening.

For Older Folk.

"Not only are birthday celebrations due flappers and 'sub-sub-debs,' but also some older folk enjoy them," opined Mrs. Fred Pittman and son, Walter Clifford, when they successfully planned a lovely 1-o'clock birthday dinner for Mr. Pittman, Sunday.

A lovely three-course dinner was very much enjoyed, the courses being interspersed with the opening of the birthday gifts. Last of all, a great, big birthday cake with 21 lighted candles was brought in, and each guest made a good wish for the future as they blew out one candle.

Those enjoying Mrs. Pittman's and Walter Clifford's charming hospitality Sunday were Messrs. and Mesdames J. S. Mize, Jack Jasper, P. F. awson, Mrs. Josephine Carter, Messrs. Tyler Carter and William awson.

Kureans Meet.

Monday the Kureans met at the pleasant country home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Capps and Mrs. Ed T. Capps.

A most enjoyable lesson on the "Beginnings of the Early Church" was had under the leadership of Miss Julia Conners.

There was a devotional and business meeting before the program began, under the leadership of the Korean president, Mrs. Josephine Carter.

Miss Conners opened the lesson with a talk on "Church History," which was very intedesting, as were also the following papers:

"The Period of Beginnings"—Mrs. N. A. Burnsides.

"The Falling Away"—Mrs. Fred Pittman.

The meeting next Monday will be at the home of Mrs. Fred Pittman, and will be the annual luncheon of the Kureans.

Friday night, at the home of Mrs. Will Aydelotte, a number of the immediate neighbors and friends met in honor of Mrs. M. J. McDowell, who left Saturday for her new home in Burkburnett. The evening was spent very informally, and at the close some lovely pieces of china were given Mrs. McDowell by the neighbors on the street where she lived, and also a sugar and creamer from the Kureans, to which Mrs. McDowell belonged.

Class Picnics.

Tuesday afternoon, immediately after school, the little girls belonging to Miss Julia Conner's Sunday school class hied themselves to the Boy Scout hut, where they spent a very happy two hours.

Ample provisions had been made for school-girl appetites, and after a short time spent in games, Miss Conners, assisted by the children, spread the lunch, which was eaten and enjoyed in true picnic style.

Miss Davidson Entertains.

Monday night the Lafolletts met with Miss Gladys Davidson. As summer draws nearer, the need for sewing grows more pressing, so each minute was made to count in the amount of work accomplished. It is whispered that some of the more practical ones mended stockings while enjoying the gossip of the evening.

Refreshments of fruit and stuffed dates were served throughout the evening.

Honoring Mrs. Martin.

Honoring Mrs. J. B. Martin, who has been spending the winter with her son, C. A. Martin and Mrs. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Dawson gave a dinner Monday night.

A lovely three-course dinner was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Landon, Mrs. J. B. Martin, the honor guest, and the three Martin boys, Joseph, Billie and C. A. Jr.

At Dyer Home.

Friday night Mrs. J. M. Dyer, Mrs. Ruby Dunkin and Miss Ruth Peters were hostesses to a lovely party given at the hospitable Dyer home in East Waurika, when they had as their guests the entire teaching faculty of the Waurika schools.

There was a game of parlor baseball, a geographical contest, and Miss Helen Huffman played a number of musical selections, giving the usual pleasure.

The guests other than the teachers were Messrs. Otto Huffman, hammer and E. Ostsen.

GROSS OIL TAX IS ATTACKED

Loftin To Do All In His Power To Defeat Bill

Special Dispatch to Record News

HENRIETTA, April 14.—Declaring that the bill for providing a gross production tax on oil would work great harm to Clay and Montague counties and would retard oil developments in this section, the directorate of the Henrietta chamber of commerce at its regular week day luncheon Friday noon, asked Representative Rube Loftin of this district to oppose the measure when it comes up for a vote at the call session of the legislature.

Representative Loftin, who was present at the meeting, pledged the directors he would do all in his power to help defeat the measure. The directorate will endeavor to influence the representatives in Montague, Wichita, Archer and surrounding counties to aid in attempting to defeat passage of the act. Should the bill become a law independent operations in this section greatly impeded tors will be handicaped and the operatieal oil men stated.

No Complaint Against Wheeler But They Can't Be Won Without Hits—Game Is Comparatively Quiet—Flaherty Against Veteran Charlie Hall in Fourth Game Today

By "DINK" ADDINGTON

Tom Sheehan, leading pitcher of the American association last year, unwound some of the stuff that leading pitchers are made of before the Spudders yesterday afternoon and eased them down with two widely scattered blows and the Saints won the third game of the season, 4 to 1. Long Tom was nicked for one hit in the first and one in the eighth, which is reason enough why the Spudders didn't win.

The Saint hurler, who twirled part of the first game here, was bearing down forcefully yesterday and sent in a lively fast ball and a good breaking curve. Rip Wheeler, who played the opposite role, got his twister to working nicely as the game progressed but the Saints simply touched him sufficiently to chase over four runs and there isn't any call for alibis.

Not So Scrappy

Belligerent warfare, so much in evidence the preceding day, was almost absent during yesterday's encounter. A young disturbance broke out in the fifth, but Umps O'Hearne promptly squelched it and after he had ejected Berghammer and Hall from the scene of play, there was no more bailing. Like all of the Saint games, it was close enough all the way through to hold its full share of interest.

Two nice double plays in the first two innings clipped the Saints off when they threatened to score. The locals threatened after two were gone in the first but didn't get it over. Tanner walked and took second on Elliott's clean single to left. Elliott was forced at second by Whiteman.

Salm's men then went out in order until the fifth when Kitchens landed on the paths through an error. Another error put Bescher on in the sixth and he was forced at second by Berger, who took the middle base when Morris threw wide to first, attempting to complete a double killing. Both the runners were stranded and it was not until the eighth that the domestics got anything but goose eggs on the score board.

Berger Doubles

Bescher took second on Boone's wild throw of his grounder, after two had been tied up in the sack. Berger got the second and last hit off Sheehan when he drove a long double into right which sent Bescher across the great divide.

The Saints did their first scoring in the third when Senor Gonzales led off with his first of two doubles. He was sacrificed to third by Sheehan and counted on Christensen's smash between Tanner and Berger for a blow. One more was forthcoming in the third. Berghammer laced a single by Berger and with the hit and run on, it was worked to perfection when Dressen pumped a single behind the runner into right field, sending his man to third. Berghammer scored as White was tossing Gonzales out at first.

Quiet reigned on the Saint battle front from then until the eighth when the Mike Kelly troupe nailed the verdict down tight with a pair of scores. Haas was hit by a pitched ball and the same style of hit and run went through again. Boone slicing one past Elliott into right. Boone stole second and failed to draw a throw with Haas on third and both the runners scored when Morris rapped a hard one past Al White for a hit.

Unusual Incident

An odd play came up in the seventh when Rightfielder Floyd of the Saints drove a long wallop out to the right pasture. Whiteman turned and executed a one-hand circus stab about the time he smeared into the fence. The ball was juggled and from the press coop, appeared to have hit the fence along with Whiteman. The catch was allowed as Umpire O'Hearne ruled that Whiteman had momentarily held the ball for the out.

Manager Salm said last night that he would probably start Big Pat Flaherty against the Saints this afternoon and if he did not stay the route, would resort to Lefty Feigert.

Charlie Hall, veteran of many campaigns, is the favorite for the Saints. Hall has been in the game for 21 years and broke into world-series fame with the Boston Red Sox. For the past three seasons he has won 20 games a year for his club, which is worth the money in any old league.

Pikers Split Even With Ames In Double Header

ST. LOUIS, April 14.—Washington university divided a doubleheader with Ames here today in the first game of the Missouri Valley conference race, Ames winning the first game, 4 to 3, and losing the second game, 4 to 2. Today's doubleheader was necessitated by the postponement of the first game yesterday.

1923 SPORTS PROMISE TO HIT ON ALL SIX

Top: Opening dash at Bowie, Md., track presages big year for followers of bangtails; Walter Hagen, American golfer, promises to repeat feat of capturing British open title; Suzanne Lenglen, French tennish flash, going better than ever. Below: Babe Ruth aims at 60 homers this season; Jimmy Murphy, auto racer, prepares for new conquests, and at New Haven, Conn., Yale oarsmen are working out.

Sport fans, hang on to your hats. Judging from the way this fill of year has started out, it's going to be the humdingenest year in history.

So far, the tennis world has issued warning in the person of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, wonder player of the French nation. Her decisive victory over Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory not only settles a long standing international question, but in itself stood out as one of the most brilliant sport achievements of modern record.

Babe Ruth, still called Behemoth of Swat, though his actions last season dimmed the glory that was his, has sounded warning that his home run records will be in peril this year by settling down seriously to his work. He is in better form now than he was at any stage of the 1922 campaign. And he has found his eye.

Walter Hagen ambled over to England last summer and captured the British open championship. This past winter he has indicated by his brilliant playing in the Southern tournaments that he will retain his 1922 honors and capture more unless some keener opposition develops.

Jimmy Murphy, daredevil auto racer, ran rings around the other speed demons in half a dozen big meets last season, and is tuning up his racer for the conquest of more worlds, so to speak.

The bangtails enjoyed a big winter season on the southern and Mexican tracks, and are now being groomed, so to speak, for the spring meetings further North.

And the outdoor season of the college athletics is well under way. Eastern college rowing crews are working out on the still, icy waters of the rivers.

Yep, it's going to be some year. Hang on to your hats.

TALKING IT OVER

With "Dink"

So Jack Dempsey has been bitten by the retirement bug? To go into the coal business. From what we know of both games, there's plenty to be made in each. But dangle a fat fight purse down the shaft of one of Jack's coal mines and watch him come snapping out like a rat after a garbage pail. Retirement, me neck!

* * *

One of the Spudder pitchers was talking about control the other day. Speaking of a certain game, he said he walked no batters, but still he lacked control. How true those words, and yet how odd they sound to those of us who patronize ball games. Failed to walk a man, and still lacked control! Control, in this young pitcher's mind, didn't mean how many men he walked or failed to walk. It meant cutting the corners and sending the ball exactly where he wanted it. Many a pitcher could go through a game without walking a man if his manager would let him stay in long enough to get his very ears bumped off by the bats of the enemy. If you've got to throw them right down the middle of the slot to keep from walking men, you're in a bad way. It's getting the inner and outer edges and the desired heicht that means control as it should be figured.

* * *

We are troubled with a fit of nervous itching every time we see a left-hand thrower playing in the left field. We'd just as soon see a southpaw on third base, and you know just how odd it would look. We always have imaginary fears that every batter is going to scorch a sizzler down the foul line and out into left field. And then, we have mental pictures of the crooked arm out there guarding the pasture, tying himself up in a knot like one of those big before-the-war pretzels. Especially so when there's men on the sacks and a throw is needed. We can see the field spinning around like one of those odd little Japanese mice, trying to get himself in position to make a quick and accurate peg. Ye gods! it sends a chill up the old spine. Funny how we won't feel the same way with a right-hander in right field. We don't know why we don't, but we don't. But we will say that we feel more secure looking at Bob Bescher in the left garden than we have in many and many a fair summer.

* * *

Fred Kingery's offer of a silver loving cup for the winner of a handicap tournament to be conducted among the municipal golf members is another big step toward helping this excellent civic proposition along. Mr. Kingery has gone through the establishment of a similar course in Kansas City, and he knows what it takes. He realizes that something like the trophy he is offering is just what is needed to open things up. All the proposition needs is a good start, and the golfers will be flocking to it. Those who don't know golf will begin to learn, and one man sold on the idea will soon bring in another. There are lots of other things in store. There'll have to be a tournament for the fair sex, of course, and other matches will spring up as the course grows in popularity. Kingery has started it, and the golfing public will see that it's well finished.

* * *

Vic Keene, star twirler of the Spudders last year, said a pleasant mouthful while he was here during the visit of the Cubs. "If I can't stick in the big show, I want to come back to Wichita Falls," was the way Vic put it. And the chorus rings out, "Aye, aye." The local pitching staff is looking well enough but Vic would make it almost a certainty. He feels that another year in class A would make him just right. Nobody wants to see Keene come back if he can make good up yonder—but it don't hurt to hope a little.

Texas President Offers Cup For Best Attendance

The president's cup, a handsome silver trophy to be given to the Texas league city which has the largest attendance on the opening day of the season, is all ready and awaiting to be engraved with the name of the winner.

All cities will have an equal chance at the trophy. It is now in Dallas at the Texas league offices and will be presented as soon as the figures have been compiled immediately after each club has had its opening day at home.

The cup is mounted upon a black ebony base and is decorated with a handsome scroll. Engraved on the front is the following inscription: "Texas Baseball League. Largest opening Day Attendance, 1923. Won by——. Presented by J. Doak Roberts, president."

Ed Roush Signs Up But Must Pay Fine

Associated Press Dispatch

CINCINNATI, April 14. — Ed Roush, star outfielder and batsman of the Cincinnati Nationals, today signed a contract to play with the Reds. It was said that Roush signed on the club's terms. The contract is for one year at $15,000.

Roush will pay the fine of $50 a day, for not reporting at the training camp.

The fine is retroactive from the tenth of March and runs until the opening of the National league season, April 17.

Roush will lose $1,900 for not signing up before March 10, the date the Reds departed for the spring tarining camp at Orlando, Fla., according to President Herrmann of the Cincinnati Nationals.

Rain Prevents City League Opening At Frederick; Play Soon

FREDERICK, Okla., April 14.—Rain prevented the opening of the City league series here Thursday and the first games of this schedule will be played Tuesday. The four teams in the league representing the American legion, the Lions club, the Knights of Pythias, and Odd Fellows lodge, have all been supplied with new uniforms and the players and the townspeople are anticipating a hot series of semi-weekly games.

To whet the appetites of the fans the Frederick Boosters will Sunday play the Tipton team at Fairgrounds park. The Boosters defeated the Tipton aggregation last Sunday but since that time the neighboring village is said to have strengthened its aggregation of tossers and it is expected that a game worthy of the name will be staged Sunday.

JOE BERGER.

Spudder shortstop reaching up after a high one. Joe is a veteran in the game and well versed in its inside stuff. He'll probably be the last man on the squad to round into true form, but when he does he's capable of displaying a thing or two. Just have a little patience and Joe will be in there with the rest of them.

Baseball Returns Will Be Shown At Palace Theatre

While the Spudders are on the road this season, local fans will again have the opportunity of seeing the next best thing to the games, themselves—an electric scoreboard which will be operated at the Palace theatre, starting with the opening game at Shreveport Wednesday afternoon.

Each and every play will be shown upon the board by means of electrical apparatus and the doings of the Spudders may be closely followed. A special wire connects the theatre with the ball park and the plays will be sent here without delay, each one being flashed immediately as it happens.

The returns will be under the management of H. S. Ford.

NO. METHODISTS TO BATTLE FOR FLAG

Team Has Several New Men And Looks Good In Twilight League

Although the North Methodists have been forced to dig up practically a new team this year they are going after the Record News pennant.

They have not lost a practice game so far this spring, and are ready to step when the season opens Tuesday.

The Methodists will spring a surprise on the other teams in the league as they have several men who have never played in Wichita Falls.

Among the new men are: Ambler, diminutive short stop; Hatton a pitcher and outfielder who will be heard from; Collie Ray and Windy, infielders, and Heck, an outfielder. Also McNeely, a first baseman of unusual promise and Quillan a catcher, who will stand second to none in the league this year. These men are all showing well with the stick, especially Ambler, who will hardly be satisfied with less than a double.

With Carl Hale as manager of the club will be in there with blood in its eye.

THE BUSHER AND THE VET

"Why do I always kick the ball?
On a sure and easy bet;
Why do I look like a circus clown,"
Said the busher to the vet.

"Before I signed a contract,
There was nothing I couldn't get;
But now I always boot the ball,"
Said the busher to the vet.

"At home on the village diamond,"
I can hear them yelling yet;
As I dug the apple out of the dirt,"
Said the busher to the vet.

"But since I came to the majors,
My life is full of regret;
They hiss and jibe me all the time,"
Said the busher to the vet.

A smile lit up the old vet's face,
As he chewed on his black cigar;
"You're just like hundreds of others, kid,"
Said the vet to the bush league star.

"The game's like climbing a ladder,
No matter who you are;
One step leads to another,"
Said the vet to the bush league star.

"You can't jump from top to bottom,
The distance is way too far;
Just take it easy, step by step,"
Said the vet to the bush league star.

"So go back to the bushes, kiddo,
Where the players are on your par;
And some of these days you'll be back up here,"
Said the vet to the bush league star.

"Don't think because you're a winner,
Down where the bushes are;
You can slide right into the majors,"
Said the vet to the bush league star.

So he hopped the train to the bushes,
His eye was dimmed with a tear;
But the vet only smiled and said, "My job
Is safe for another year."

ST. PAUL PITCHER DRAWS FINE FOR DISTURBING PEACE

Charlie Hall, veteran pitcher of the St. Paul Saints, was fined $10.80 on a charge of disturbance of the peace after he had been ordered from the ball park by Umpire O'Hearne during the course of the Saint-Spudder game yesterday afternoon.

Hall was late in getting started out of the park after he had gotten the orders from the ump and had some words with the arbiter before he left. He was taken into custody by Sheriff Pat Murphy and fined by Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs.

Texas League Clubs Toe Mark For Opening

INJURIES HAVE NOT SHATTERED CONFIDENCE OF DALLAS STEERS

By WILLIAM B. RUGGLES
Sport Editor Dallas News

DALLAS, Texas, April 14. — In spite of reverses that would break the heart of any baseball manager, the loss of three players, two with broken legs and one with a strained tendon, the trio out for from one to six weeks, the Dallas club faces the near start of the Texas league season with every confidence that it is pinching a starting team in the field capable of holding its own with its North Texas competition. Of course, neither Ike Sablocky nor Walter Morris are sleeping on their chances of getting help. But with the opening almost on them and no assistance as yet, they are of the belief that their reserve strength will put over for them the needed victories.

Giving the newly christened Steers the once-over, it is probable that the club could be improved by the addition of a first class hitting outfielder to replace the crippled Lovelace, and a second sacker. But in the outfield, Ned Seely, who outhit Loxelace in the T. and O. last year, and a capable fielder within the limits of his speed, can play the center garden. And it may be that with Billy Hamilton, Bobby Stow and Mike Massey battling for a pair of infield jobs, now that Mathes is temporarily out of it, the infie dlproblem might be settled without any additions.

Pitching Uncertain

Pitching is as uncertain for the Steers as for anyone else. Skipper Morris believes that he has the men with the goods, but spring pitching is the poorest factor to dope out on a ball club. Time counts with the flingers. The veteran righthanders, Conley and Mitchell are counted on for from 15 to 20 games. The erratic lefthanders, Love and Swartz, will make or break the staff. If they come though as brilliantly as is hoped, they will be big helps. Another veteran who may astonish Texas fans is Ed Appleton, wulging the straight-and-narrow without a wobble, and flashing much of the olr wizardry that once labeled him one of the best young pitchers in the Texas league.

Davenport was counted on until his broken leg put him out. In addition, there are two youngsters that you have to count in. Ed Bryan, after two years of intensive Class D farming, looks ready to deliver. Red Roberts is a spring sensation.

Adams Helps

Morris calculates the value of his pitchers to be improved by the presence of Jack Adams as premier backstop. And at this time, it loks as if Cy Iingle will have the call as help hind-snatcher over Buck Curtice. But competition certainly makes the catching staff look good.

Bill Wano has convinced them all at first. He is fielding a great game, the best Dallas has had since Dutch Schliebner. And the Indian can hunt and cross 'em with straight hits. Segrist on third looks better than ever, and his hitting should be a big help. Hamilton seems like the best bet for short, with Massey at present. Although there was a possibility that Mathes would place this bag, had he not been hurt. Stow is holding the sidelines at present, but he may displace one of the others.

Morris likes hitters. If he has them of gets them, his battery chances are as good as those of anybody in the loop. Anyway, you can count on this. If Dallas has no ball club at present, they will go out and get one.

KLUGMAN SOLD TO DES MOINES CLUB

Clever Infielder Transferred To Boosters—Pearson Goes Home

Joe Klugman, infielder purchased by the Spudders from the Atlanta club of the Southern league, has been sold to the Des Moines Boosters of the Western loop, according to an announcement made last night by Manager Walter Salm. The sale price was not announced.

Klugman had a good record last year and looked the part of a good player all the while he was here but Al White was continuing in his old time form and as Klugman plays at second base there was no place to set him on the local roster. He should have no trouble in making good with Johnny Corriden's club in the Western league.

Departure of Klugman leaves an opening for conjectures as to the Spudders' utility man. Denver Grigsby seems to be a performer who could work all around or it may be that the duties will fall upon the shoulders of Babe Ruth.

Salm also announced that Pitcher John Pearson who was recently obtained from the Pirates, was going to his home to rest and endeavor to get rid of a sore arm which has been handicapping him for a week.

'MUNY' GOLFERS WILL PLAY TODAY

Nine Holes Will Be Ready For the Rush of Meadow Billiard Artists

Nine holes of the municipal golf course will be open to play today and many of the "muny" players are expected to take advantage of the situation. The formal opening is to be held later but the course as originally planned is set for the invasion of the devotees of the game.

Many are expected to work on their handicap cards for the Nafziger cup today. Cards may be left at the club house and will be used in figuring the handicap for the individual players who are to compete in the tournament for the handsome trophy which has been offered.

The club house is expected to be entirely vacated by the Country club by today and while it will not be fully arranged for the season, the lockers will probably be available for use of the "muny" members who wish to take them.

HILL BANKS ON HURLERS TO SEE BUFFS THROUGH SEASON

(Special to Record News)

HOUSTON, Texas, April 14.—Hunter Hill, veteran player, manager and umpire, who will direct the efforts of the Houston Buffaloes in the Texas league pennant chase this year, promises the fans a club that will be in the running this season all the way to the wire. Behind the bat, Hunter will have Dave Griffith, last year manager of the Galveston club; and Ernie Vick, former Michigan University football and baseball star, and last year with Syracuse in the International league. Both these men are experienced backstoppers and dangerous hitters. In the spring exhibition games, the heavy swatting of Vick, who has been playing first, has been especially pleasing to the Buff fans.

Pride In Staff.

Hills' breast heaves with pride as he points to his pitching staff, for it is there that he believes his strength is. With the veteran Bill Bailey and Kircher, from the Syracuse club, as his southpaws, and Marvin Goodwin, Jack Knight and Ad Pierotti as right-handers, the Buffs have a seasoned staff that has proven its high caliber in the Texas league. Hill also has two youngsters in Harle and Berly, who have showed up well this spring.

The addition of Ray Schmandt, last year's first string firstbaseman with the Brooklyn Dodgers, will give the Buff infield a fine target to shoot at, as well as adding a big punch to the offense. Jack Stansbury, former Beaumont Exporter, has been playing second in the early games and getting away with it in great style. Ed Handley and Unts, third base recruits, are fighting for the regular berth, with Handley having the inside track. This youngster takes a mean cut at the ball at the plate, and his superior hitting will probably win him the job. In Joe Feori, Hunter is presenting what seems to be the smoothest fielding shortstop seen here in some time. If Joe can hit Texas league pitching, he will be a star.

Sperber Coming To.

In Sperber and Bechtol, the Buffs have two fairly good gardeners. Sperber, who reported in poor condition, is improving every game, and might make a valuable man. Bud Ammons, Houston lad, who has been playing the other outfield position, while he is a whale of a hitter, is probably too slow to make the grade. The Houston fans are figuring on a new infielder and a couple of outfielders from Branch Rickey's Cardinals to give the Buffs the necessary reserve strength. Rickey has promised this aid.

PROSPEROUS SUMMER LOOMS UP FOR FIGHTERS

By ROBERT EDGREN

The summer of 1923 is going to see the greatest boom in boxing in all the history of the sport. Championship matches are already scheduled in nearly all classes, and when the open air season is over we are likely to see a few new world champions.

One of the most likely winners of titles is Eugene Criqui of France, the great bantam and featherweight who is now invading America in expectation of meeting Johnny Kilbane in a match for the feather crown.

Criqui did a lot of fighting before the war, and was known as a very fast, clever boxer who occasionally slipped over an unexpected knockout.

Has "Synthetic" Jaw.

He fought all through the war in the French army, was wounded several times, and decorated for feats of valor at the front. Patched up by the army surgeon, Criqui has an artificially built-up jaw, part of the jawbone having been shot away in battle. Gene went right back to the ring as soon as he could when the war was over.

Criqui has a peculiar style of his own, speed, craft and a clean knockout punch. As he has been fighting often and is in his best form this year, he should have a very fair chance to beat Kilbane, who has held the title with very few matches in recent years.

Prospect Lures Wilde.

Another first class little fellow from overseas who may add something to his reputation and will pad his bank account considerably in America this year is Jimmy Wilde of England, world's flyweight champion, who is matched with Villa and may fight Genaro, too.

Wilde is a wonderful boxer and has been a great champion in his class. He is a ring veteran. He was world's champion long before the war. The flyweight class originated in England—or the name did—and Wilde was the greatest little fellow ever seen in England, where the little men seem to have all the class.

During the war, Wilde tried a score of times to enlist, but was not accepted for the army service because he weighed only 98 pounds. When he did get in he was made instructor in boxing and bayonet fighting. He fought several Americans in army bouts, being an easy winner each time. He beat Joe Lynch twice, and Pal Moore once.

After the war, Wilde visited America and ran up against Jack Sharkey in his first 10-round bout. Sharkey was the first to give him a rough evening, but at that time Sharkey was a little whirlwind and likely to beat anyone of his weight.

Leonard Planning.

Benny Leonard will start another active season after a long rest—and it may be his last as a lightweight. The toughest rival Benny will have on his trail is Tendler, but he will probably take an easier opponent at first and leave the Philadelphian for a big money bout late in the season.

Leonard has taken on weight several times, but seems able to get into shape for any real fight. There's no indication yet that he's through, but he has held the title a long time.

The most interesting situation, of course, is among the heavyweights. Firpo is being boosted and eased along to be matched with Dempsey before many months, and will not be stacked against anyone who might tip him over and spoil a big gate.

Floyd Johnson's Chance.

Floyd Johnson, who is to box Willard at the Yankee ball park May 12, probably before the biggest fight crowd on record, is much more dangerous than Firpo, but isn't attractin gas much attention.

He'll crowd Firpo out of the limelight if he topples big Jess for a 10 count. That won't worry the promoters. It'll just make another good match—Firpo and Johnson—and the winner for Dempsey for the biggest gate of all.

As for the chance that Dempsey won't be champion when next Christmas rolls around—that's hardly worth comment.

Today Dempsey is an experienced champion, and one of the most perfect fighting machines ever seen in his class. Firpo is a novice and at 20 is almost too old to learn. Johnson has the stuff, but needs another year of experience. Willard and Wills are both past their prime, and dangerous only because of their advantage in bulk.

PAT NEWNAM PLANS TO SPRING SURPRISE WITH HIS SANDCRABS

Galveston Manager Is Well Pleased With His Club's Looks, Despite Adverse Talk

(Special to Record News)

GALVESTON, Texas, April 14.—Despite certain raucous squawks from North Texas to the effect that the Galveston Sandcrabs will be battling with the Buffs and Exports for the lowly cellar position at the close of the 1923 season, Manager Pat Newnam has gone ahead with the work of rounding his prent entry into condition, and the hint has been dropped around that Skipper Pat is not at all displeased with the manner in which the Crabs have been disporting themselves in the exhibition games. Visiting managers who have brought their teams to Gulfview for pre-season games, such as the Kansas City Blues and the Columbus Senators, have voiced it about that the Sandcrabs should have at least a look-in on a first division berth in a class A circuit. The Galveston club, finishing in third place at the close of last season, is at least as strong in hitting and fielding as at that time, and it is thought the hurling staff will measure up well again this year.

Trained a Month.

The Sandcrabs have put in over a month in South Texas, at Cuero and Kenedy, in the latter place having the advantage of hot sulphur baths, and the Newnams have come around rapidly into good condition, and in the exhibition games to date not a flinger has turned in a poor exhibition on the mound. In "Dummy" Collins, a recruit pitcher, the club has one of the most promising men of the year. In a game here with the slugging Kansas City Blues recently he held the opposition to three hits, two of the scratch variety, in the six innings he worked, and has been going great guns all during the training season.

Another valuable acquisition to the Sanderab staff of hurlers is Sarke Glaiser, who performed with the Buffs last season for a pitching average of .635 an dallowing an average of only 3.06 runs per game. Other Crab moundsmen who have been rounding into form are the veterans, Dewey Lyle and Hal Deviney, and Joe Kiefer, who won 17 and lost 12 games with Charleston in the Sally league last season. Lefty Graham and Bill Clarkson, the latter with the Columbia team of the Sally league last year, are also showing a good variety of stuff in the pre-season games. The Crab pitching staff looks almost, if not quite, as good as that of 1922.

Working as receivers, Skipper Newnam has Lew Wendell, formerly of the Charlotte (N. C.) team, and the veteran Frank Witry. On the initial sack, Hack Eibel has returned to perform in his usual reliable manner. Last year Hack poled out a total of 27 circuit clouts, pushing Clarence Craft for the lead in that manner of swatting, and is in trim for another good season with the bludgeon this year. Tom Connally at the keystone bag, George Distel at short, and Don M. Brown will probably round out the Galveston infield, with possibly a change at the hot corner before the curtain is raised on the league opening.

Club of Hitters.

The Sandcrabs will be a hitting club all down the line. With Cowboy Tom Connolly doing the heavy work in clean-up position. Connolly batted for an average of .344 last year and looks good for at least that high in 1923. Joe Munson, right fielder, is another likely Crob with the willow, pounding the sphere for an average of .310 last season. Bittle, sun gardener on Pat Newnam's entry, is one of the craftiest lead-off men in the circuit, and has rounded into good form in the South Texas training camp. The Galveston center garden will have as its shepherd J. Don Brown, veteran pastimer of the Texas league.

"PAT" NEWNAM.

Manager Newnam has a goodly supply of reserves to draw on, and a number of them may develop into first-string material before the time for cutting down the squad arrives on May 20. Taken from all angles, the Crabs will size up well with the teams classed as middling fair to good, and the close of the season may find them crowding close on the leaders. At any rate, Galveston fans are rallying to Gulfview in large numbers, a rooters' association having been formed, and all indications are for a prosperous year for the national pastime in the Island City.

EXPORTERS SHOW OPTIMISTIC FRONT

Have Not Had One Good Week of Weather During Long Training Season

By "SPIKE" COOPER
Sport Editor Beaumont Enterprise.

BEAUMONT, Texas, April 14.—Skipper "Stump" Edington and his crew, which will man the craft during the 1923 voyage, are enthusiastic, despite their handicaps.

Six weeks ago Manager Edington began assembling his 1923 Exporters. The majority of them have been in camp for five weeks, all of them at least two. But within that reasonably ample training period they have not been accorded one week of genuine training conditions. Inopportune rain, unheralded cold snaps and a disastrous fire have reduced the practice period far below a minimum par.

Fans Enthused.

But despite these setbacks, Edington and Tarleton have aggregated a galaxy of performers who, through their meager attempts at conditioning, have enthused even the ordinary dormant fans, not to mention exuberance called out frequently from the faithful few.

When Edington was entrusted with the compass for the coming voyage, which promises many squalls in North Texas seas, he found but six of the 122 contingent available. Rader having decided to cast his lot with the "silver sheet world" in his native health, Hollywood. Jacobus, DeMaggia, Strong, Morris, Caldera and Scott, four hurlers, one infielder and an outfielder, were his prospects.

Tarleton Helps Out.

The new Beaumont ownership, sponsored by the young men's business league, sought an able assistant, one schooled in the game and versed in its requisites, and secured Bob Tarleton, veteran of Texas league business management, to assist in fitting their craft for a successful trip in search of long-sought riches.

With his mere handful of hopefuls as a starter, Tarleton started in earnest to provide the necessary equipment. Sales and trades soon brought numerous, though not excessive, hirelings to the Exporter payroll, and Edington found himself possessed of the requisites for a real contender. Neither of the bosses have boasted of their prospects, nor have their mainstays, the sport writers, but on the eve of the initial encounter none of them express any regrets.

Infield Strong.

The infield—with Strong at first, Stupp at second, Huber at third, and Turgeon at short—looks good enough. It possesses all the requisites—primarily, experienced youth—a quartet of dangerous hitters and dependable defense. Jimmie Dunn, the St. Louis semipro, signed at the instance of Pat Monahan, is daring the four to slip while he fills the utility role.

The out field, with DeMaggio, Edington and Kirkham, a trio of pitcher-killers, who hit for an aggregate of .320 last season in this league, speaks for itself and needs no introduction to Texas league fans.

The new-comers will receive the slants of a comparatively unknown hurling corps. George Lothes, a veteran of three years in the Three-Eye league, obtained from Johnnie Nee at Evansville, seems to have the edge here over Jack Bamler, who came from Des Moines, where he was rated as among the three leaders of that league.

Hurlers Worry Stump.

But choosing his hurlers is Edington's chief worry. None of them have been able to demonstrate anything like their real ability, and the Exporter pilot will be forced to carry at least eight until the time-limit expires. A number of veterans are bidding for their jobs, and three recruits have shown enough form that they cannot be denied.

Jacobus, Caldera, Morris and Scott have all demonstrated skill on the mound. Townsend, a brave product, probably looks the best of the lot, and likely has no place in class A baseball. The Eberhart brothers, Karl and Dan—the former having worn the uniforms of Wichita Falls, Pittsburgh and Birmingham, in the order named, while Dan is a newcomer in professional baseball, but looks ready for his debut—are also on hand. Howser, another recruit, a combination spitball pitcher and first baseman, is also giving them all a desperate battle and may oust some veteran.

Both on paper and on the field, the 1923 Exporters are proving up to the standard hoped for by the midget city of the Texas league.

SHREVEPORT GASSERS PLAN TO KEEP AWAY FROM DARK CELLAR

Ira Thomas Has Moulded A Club Which Presents Bright Prospects

By JOE R. CARTER
Sport Editor, Shreveport Times.

SHREVEPORT, La., April 14.—As holders of the cellar championship for 1922, the Shreveport Gassers go into the 1923 Texas league race with bright prospects. They are not pointing out at the title, so closely coveted by Jakes Atz and his crew of Panthers, but to the first division, and they considered that a pretty big jump for a team that has been practically made over from stem to stern since last fall.

Outside of the pitching staff, practically only three old faces will be seen in the lineup when the flag race begins. In the catching department, Joe Burns alone remains. Jack Yana, who piloted the club in the last half of the 1922 pennant race and acted as first string catcher, has been turned over to the Little Rock club of the Southern league. The infield, with Riley, from the Pacific coast, at first; Standaert from Milwaukee, American association, at second; Joe Sargent of Portland, at short, and Hall from the Columbus Senators, is entirely new. In the outfield is the old reliable "Pop" Stonewall Jackson, the veteran of the Texas circuit; Spencer Harris, a newcomer, sent South by Connie Mack; and either Roy Storey or Johnny Baggan, who were with the team last season. Of the pitchers, only Dennis Burns, Slim Slappery and Red Bird remain. The last two are southpaws and one will probably make way for a right-hander. The new hurlers are "Indian" Youngblood, Gus Ketcham (both in the T. and L. league in 1922, and bought by major league clubs last fall), Bald Jack Rose of Milwaukee, Tiny Reed from Baltimore, Smead Jolley (recruit from the Cotton States league), and Russell Ellison from the Pacific coast.

Banks On Pitchers.

Like the majority of the Texas league pitchers, Ira Thomas bases his hope on the ability of his pitching staff to hold out. Not one of the men on Thomas' staff has a real big season's record to fall back on excepting Red Bird. This flinger showed a splendid performance two seasons ago, and was sent to Washington. He was returned last year and filtered. Slappey is wild, and Burns was a loser with a tail-end club in 1922. The ability of the others under fire is unknown, but Jack Rose, Reed and Ketcham have shown well in spring games. Youngblood and Jolley are big fellows, and need plenty of work. Both went well in the early training games, but in the last two starts were hit hard.

Thomas has had considerable difficulty in patching up his infield, and at one time had four shortstops working out for that position. He finally decided to shift Joe Sargent to that station and to work "Red" Hall at third. Riley, at first, looks good, and Standaert, at second, is a youngster but a good hitter. Sargent's experience in the field will help Standaert, while Hall should prove to be one of the best fielding third basemen in the circuit. The outfield will be well handled.

Sun Company, Five Miles North Of Swastika, Expect Well

sat Thursday the well had a strong showing of gas and some oil.

Standardizing.

A quantity of oil was swabbed from the hole Friday after the crew shut down to standardize and storage has been erected preparatory to bringing in what the oil fraternity believes to be an exceptionally good producer.

The Swastika is 15 miles from the nearest production and is being drilled by Oregon and British Columbia parties. Scouts from practically all the larger companies and oil men from the North Texas fields were present Thursday and after the well made the first showing a mad scramble was made for leases rivalling the boom days of Electra and Burk. The hotels are crowded to capacity and overflowing and the streets are literally swarming with operators from all parts of the state who are anxious to secure leases near the latest sensational wildcat.

Locations Made.

A number of locations have been made and several drilling contracts have been signed since the first showing was found in the Swastika and indications point to north Young and Archer counties getting an unusual play.

The owners claim that the well is making oil at the rate of 400 barrels per day in its present condition, it having risen in the hole at the rate of 200 feet and better per hour after being swabbed each time.

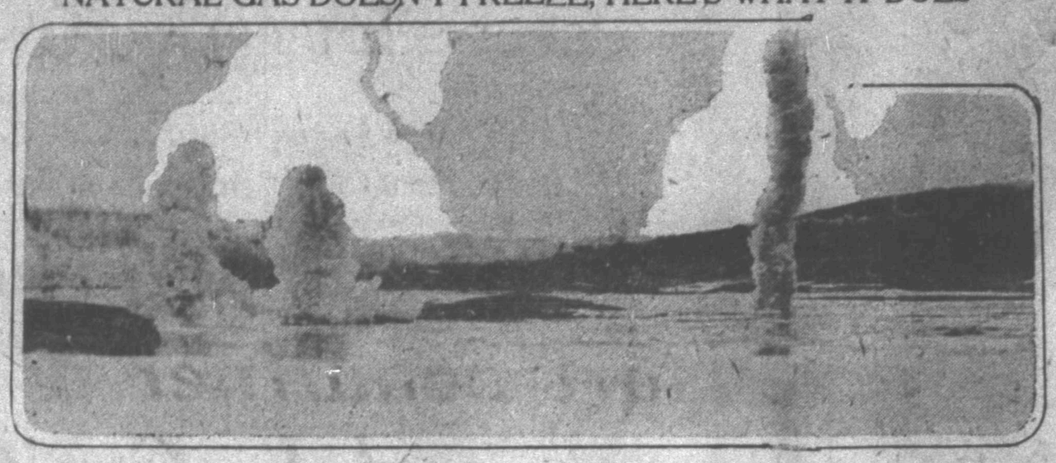

J. T. Richardson, owner of the land on which this well is located, sold a 30-acre offset lease this morning for $30,000, and R. D. Magee sold 60 acres which he purchased Thursday at $135 per acre for $50,-000.

The Sun company, on the Farmer lease, five miles north of this test, are on the sand and expected to drill in Sunday or Monday. Should they get a producer it will mean the complete development of this entire section within the next few months.

BAILEY DRILLING

E. B. Bailey and associates began drilling yesterday on their Parish No. 1 well, which is 3,000 feet south of the big Peterson well brought in some time ago.

NATURAL GAS DOESN'T FREEZE, HERE'S WHAT IT DOES

No, natural gas doesn't freeze, but it formed these icicles some 20 feet high on Powder river in Wyoming as it bubbled up from the bottom of the river carrying water with it.

Producer Expected From Magnolia Well

The Magnolia Petroleum company's W. T. Waggoner well No. 2, a mile and a half south of Electra, in the South Electra pool, Waggoner tract, stands on top of sand at 1,447 feet, and looks good. The well has all the appearances of a producer, and is expected to come in within a few days.

ARCHER WELL ON PUMP

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company's No. 5-E, W. T. Waggoner tract in Archer county, at 1,707 1-2 feet, was put on the pump yesterday for 14 hours, making 10 barrels. The well will be cleaned and is expected to make even better on test to be made Monday.

Casing is being set on No. C-7, on sand at 1,613 feet, looking good.

TEXHOMA PRODUCTION

The average daily production of the Texhoma Oil and Refining company's wells for the past month greatly increases over the report last month. The average production, daily, is as follows:

Electra	3,775
Burkburnett (including Hirschi)	813
Archer county (Freeman-Hampton)	2,551
Shackelford county	261
Total	7,400

Electra and Hirschi Vie With Each Other For Completions During Week

ELECTRA, April 14.—Electra and the Hirschi vied with each other the past week for the best completion. The Texhoma Oil and Refining company, keeping up its remarkable record of past weeks, produced the sensation of the week in the South Electra field. That company's No. 16 on the Waggoner, which came in late Sunday of the week before with a flow of 450 barrels, increased until it is now swabbing and flowing by heads at the rate of 900 barrels a day. It goes on record as being the best producer brought in since the new year opened.

The Texhoma company is drilling seven wells on its Waggoner lease in the South field. Its No. 14-A is on the sand at 1,802 feet and is swabbing 250 barrels. Locations have been made for other tests to be drilled at once.

On the Ancell ranch, the Magnolia deep test is drilling at 4,270 feet. The same company has completed its No. 1-B Waggoner for 50 barrels for the 900-foot sand. Nos. 2 and 3-B Waggoner are drilling at 400 to 500 feet, respectively. On lease A, No. 21 is on top of the sand at 1,350 feet.

Lewis Gets Well on Gibson

The Panhandle company is drilling its No. 11 on the Burnett at 1,400 feet. The test of W. M. Moore on the Burnett tested out a sand at 1,812 feet, but found salt water. The drill will be sent deeper. C. M. Taylor on the No. 1 Yarbrough is cleaning out the casings with 1,000 feet of oil in the hole from sand at 1,613 to 1,520 feet.

On the Gibson survey, the Lewis Oil corporation is a few feet in the sand at 1,784 feet. There is 700 feet of fluid in the hole. Ladd & Hannon on lease B Waggoner have spudded in their No. 6, and are drilling at 800 feet.

J. J. Perkins is testing out a sand in section 5 on the Burnett. It is 1,919 feet deep. The camp Oil and Gas company is bailing the sand at 1,919 feet in their No. 6 on the Douglas with a good showing of oil.

Two Big Wells on Hirschi

The Stanley-Fain test on the Ditmar tract is temporarily shut down at a depth of 2,100 feet. The Texas company's wildcat on the Fluesche north of town is drilling around 1,760 feet. Brewer, Troxel, and others, are drilling at 1,300 feet in their deep test on the Cody land, five miles Northwest.

Threatened water shortage continues to be the most serious menace to developments. Unless rain comes within a week many tests will shut down. So far wells on leases traversed by water lines in the producing area have been able to keep drilling.

The Hirschi is credited with two big completions. These are the Barclay-Meadows-Sun No. 6 and the Gulf No. 3-Dale.

The Sun well came in Friday, flowing at the rate of 60 barrels an hour for the first 24 hours from the top of the sand at 1,886 feet, Sun No. 7 to the north is on top of the 1,884-foot pay.

Gulf Gets 700-Barrel Well

The Gulf Production company completed its No. 3-Dale late Friday and the test was flowing and swabbing 700 barrels from the sand at 1,880 feet. This well is one location south of No. 2 which is now making 225 barrels from the same pay.

To the Northwest of the Bradley lease, the Texhoma tested out a sand in its No. 4 at 1,904, but failed to make a producer. Drilling is being continued around 2,000 feet. The same company's No. 5 is drilling along toward the pay at 1,800 feet, and No. 6 is drilling around 1,450 feet. A derrick is up on No. 7 Hirschi.

Bob Waggoner's No. 3 to the west of the Bradley tract on the Foster-Allen in block 833 is bailing the sand at 1,818 feet. A location has been made for No. 4. The Bradley Oil company is preparing to drill in their No. 12 on the Hirschi at 1,884 feet. Casing has been set in No. 13 at 1,700 feet.

Judge Moore is on the sand at 1,818 feet in his No. 3 Allen-Foster. East of the Waggoner, the Burk-Cameron is having casing trouble in its No. 6. No. 7 is drilling around 1,000 feet.

Grandfield Well To Be Spudded Thursday

GRANDFIELD, April 14.—Due to the high winds and sandstorms the Oklahoma-Texas Refining company of this city, which is preparing to make a test in the riverbed near the Silver Moon, the crew has been delayed about three days, but the derrick is now up and the new rotary drilling outfit is being set up preparatory to spudding in about Thursday of next week.

Mr. McKee stated that it requires more time to assemble a new rig than an old one, as bolt holes have to be drilled and everything fitted.

Claud Hogan, a driller of this city, who is now in the Electra field will be the driller for one crew, the other one not being named yet.

SUNSHINE LOCATES

Sunshine State Oil and Refining company has made location for a wildcat to be drilled three miles south of the Peterson well, in Archer county. The well, No. 1, on the M. C. B. L. tract, Wilson, is interesting from several angles and may prove a new field, or possibly show a connection between production in the county now.

TEXHOMA PLUGS A-4

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company has plugged No. A-4 Cowan, on section 834, Hirschi, in Wichita county.

CLARA PLUGS NO. 4

The Clara Oil company has plugged No. 4 G. C. and S. F. railroad lands, section 4, Merton, in Wichita county.

LOOKS LIKE PRODUCER

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company's W. P. Ferguson 4 on D lease, is a likely looking oil sand at 1,763 feet and is equiping to pump. The well looks good for a producer. Nos. 9 and 10 are being rushed to completion, at 1,572 feet and 1,533 feet respectively.

TEXHOMA HAS WELLS ON SAND

Coming Week Should Bring Developments In Several Pools

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company, with many wells on sand and ready for completion, ought to be in the light during the next week, for several wells that have been watched with unusual interest are due to be brought in within the next few days. Texhoma has the largest drilling campaign on at present that has been outlined by any company in local fields in some months, and is making hole in many wells at a high speed, with prospects of some good production.

W. P. Ferguson well No. 8-D, in Archer county, is in oil sand at 1,763 feet and is equipping to pump in the next few hours. The well looks good and should prove a producer in good pay.

Trouble has been encountered in Ferguson E-3, which is in oil sand, but drilling up iron or part of a broken packer previously left in the hole, with cable tools. It is at 1,700 feet.

Ferguson No. 5-E, at 1,707 1-2 feet, was put on the pump in hard sand rock, for 14 hours, made 10 barrels. The well looks very good and should increase its production with completion.

T. S. M. Goss, No. 41 is in hard sand at 1,283 feet, and is fishing for a drill.

Ferguson D-9 is in hard sand at 1,572 feet. D-10 is in lime at 1,533 feet.

Ferguson E-6 is drilling in shale at 429 feet; E-7 in broken sand at 870, and E-8 rigging up rotary.

Kemp and Kampner No. 2, on section 2, is in lime at 1,335 feet, and drilling. No. 1, on block 73, is drilling in shale at 1741 feet.

S. G. Helm, No. 1, is in a likely looking sand at 1294 feet; No. 2 in shale at 1235 feet.

Zane Cetti No. 2 has derrick material on location and will spud in next week.

Parkey No. 2-B has derrick on location.

W. T. Waggoner A-18 is fishing for tools on sand; A-19 has derrick up and will spud in. No. 20-A is location 300 feet south of east corner of the lease.

Waggoner C-7 is in oil sand at 1613 feet, and is setting casing at 1600 feet.

Waggoner E-6 is waiting on oil sand for cement to standardize. E-8 is fishing for bit at 1585. E-9 at 1830 feet is in gumbo; No. 10-E is setting six and five-eighths casing at 1780 feet, on oil sand, the well being down 1800 feet.

Waggoner F-1 is in shale at 1600 feet.

Hirschi No. 6 is reaming to drill deeper, at 1905 feet in broken sand. No. 7 is location. Nos. 4 and 5 are being plugged.

4 GRISWOLD WELLS RUSHED

One To Be Brought In Today According To Reports

Four wells of the Griswold Oil company are being rushed to completion, with No. 23, Burnett and Lloyd, B lease, rat-holing for sand. The well looks good and will be brought in Sunday.

No. 2-A, Waggoner is drilling in with Star rig at 1,917 feet, and has the appearance of a good well when completed. No. 15-E is drilling at 1,600 feet and No. 40, Burnett and Lloyd, A, is drilling at 2,050 feet.

Magnolia Rushes Drilling But Only One Completion Is Made

Only one completion for the week is listed for the Magnolia Petroleum company, although extensive drilling is being rushed in both the Electra and Burkburnett fields. The one completion was the No. 5, Bahan Fee well, which was completed at 1328 feet, being drilled three feet into the sand, making only two barrels daily. However, others are being rushed to completion, and interesting developments are looked for.

Shafer-Roller No. 2 is drilling at 1,000 feet in the Electra district; Hortom Walker No. 19 at 1,060 feet, and W. A. Martin No. 18 at 1,081 feet. Fowler Oil company No. 17 is plugging. Cook No. 1 is drilling at 1,020 feet.

In the Burkburnett district, Ancel No. 1 is drilling at 2,485 feet, and H. & T. C. No. 60 at 1,385 feet. H. & T. C. 61 is rigging up north of 60. Rio Bravo wells, with the exception of 3, are all drilling fast. No. 3 is rigging up, and will spud in next week. No. 19 is at 1,900 feet; No. 21 at 1,840 feet; No. 22 has spudded in, following the erection of rig Friday. No. 23 is drilling at 675 feet. Frances-Summers No. 43 is drilling at 1,070 feet, and Rogers No. 10 is building rig and will spud in soon. W. T. Waggoner No. 2 is on top of sand at 1,447 feet, and looks good for a producer. Waggoner No. 3 is at 1,115 feet, with Honake No. 64 at 835 feet.

Activities At Olney Increase Following Swastika Development

Drilling near Olney has been drawing interest, and will continue to do so, in spite of the fact that the new Swastika well, nine miles northwest, has caused a rush there. Reports from the Olney district show some interesting developments.

Drilling in the Peters Oils, Incorporated, well—which is at 600 feet—will progress rapidly during the next week, with water and fuel at last connected with the well in quantities to allow full speed. The well has been closed during the past week because of the shortage, but will again drill full speed. A small showing of oil was met with Thursday, and the well has the outlook of a good producer. At 580 feet, some little gas was encountered.

Rig up and machinery being placed on Pitts Neal, five miles north of Olney. This is to be a rotary test to 2,000 feet, by Swastika people.

R. B. Magee, oil scout and drilling contractor, whoowns a lot of leases around Swastika test, says that if that test makes a well, his associates will have several rigs up and drilling in the next few days.

The Sun company is setting on sand on Farmer lease, five miles northwest of Swastika test. They drilled one well near this west about a year ago, and it came in for 25 to 30 barrels, but in some way they lost it.

C. W. Whitehead of Graham, independent operator and formerly of the firm of Hinson & Whitehead, has closed a drilling contract on 500 acres immediately north of Olney, on the Archer-Young counties line. Drilling is to begin in 60 days, and is to be 2,500-foot test with cable tools.

Hunt & Seigler will spud in on Hayter farm, 10 miles west of town, Monday. All material is on ground, and being placed for drilling.

STEPHENS GETS NEW SHALLOW

Second Tops Pay In 1,100-Foot Sand On Angle Farm

DUNCAN, Okla., April 14.—The second well in the southeastern Stephens county shallow field to reach the 1,100-foot sand is the Westheimer-Daube No. 8, on the Angle farm, in the southwest of the southeast of the southwest of the northwest quarter of section 34, 1s-5w, which topped the pay at 1,102 feet and penetrated it to 1,117 feet. There is about 400 feet of oil in the hole, and operators are now preparing to put the well on the pump. Production is estimated conservatively at 25 barrels. Gravity of the crude tests 34 degrees, the highest grade yet found in the shallow field. A dry sand was drilled through in the well at 1,08[illegible]-95 feet, hadd sand at 1,095-1,110 feet, and the best pay at 1,102-17 feet. Location of the well is on the west edge of the field.

This location is an offset to the Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 7, on the Zieglar farm, in the northwest of the northeast of the northwest of the southwest quarter of section 34, 1c-5w, which was the discovery well of the 1,100-foot horizon. The Magnolia well found broken sand at 1,115-28 feet, and oil sand at 1,128-36 feet, and is still pumping 25 barrels.

Gamble et al. are rebuilding the rig on their location in the center of the west line of section 25-1s-5w, which burned to the ground last week when a gas sand was struck at 460 feet. Location is on the east edge of the field.

Mudge Oil company's No. 8, on the Woods farm, in section 26, 1c-3w, is being plugged as dry after encountering salt water at 1,100 feet.

Jack O'Haver No. 1, on the George Sanner farm, in the center of the northeast of the southwest quarter of section 18, 1c-5w, Stephens county, three miles northwest of the shallow production, is drilling at 600 feet.

J. C. Cook Oil and Gas company is drilling its No. 1 on the Myra McPhail farm, in the center of the southeast of the southeast of the southeast quarter of section 35 1c-7w, five miles northeast of Comanche production.

Mid-Kansas Oil company No. 1, on the Perry Wilson farm, in the northwest of the northwest of the northeast quarter of section 20 2c-7w, is in sand at 1,431 feet, with initial production of 100 barrels. Gravity of the oil tests 33. This is an offset to the Magnolia-Wilson No. 1 producer in the southwest of the southwest of the southeast quarter of section 17 2-s-7w, which came in some time ago in the same sand, extended production one-half of a mile to the east.

Magnolia Petroleum company's deep test on the Carter farm, in the southwest of the southwest of southeast quarter of section 17 2c-7w, deepest drilling well in Stephens county, is in blue shale at 3,6[illegible] feet, after passing through 200 feet of broken water sand. The six-inch casing was set in this test at around 3,100 feet, and the operators are now preparing to set their 3-16-inch pipe.

Mid-Kansas Oil company's No. 12 on the Bristow farm, in the southeast of the southeast of the southeast quarter of section 18 2c-7w, is drilling at 800 feet.

Lone Star Gas company's No. 2, on the Andres farm, in the southeast of the southwest of the southwest quarter of section 5 2c-6w, is drilling at 2,500 feet.

Three miles north of the 2c-6w production, the Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 1, on the Pruitt farm, in the southeast of the southeast of the northeast quarter of section 2 2c-6w, is drilling at 1,000 feet, carrying the 12¼-inch casing.

Magnolia company's No. 1, on the Peck-Randol farm, in the northeast of the northeast of the northeast quarter of section 23 2c-6w, five-eighths of a mile north of production, is drilling at 2,550 feet in blue shale.

The Core—No More

Mrs. Rayburn Gribble, who underwent a serious operation at the General hospital last week, was removed to her home, 1619 Elizabeth street, Saturday. She is reported to be improving rapidly.

Judge H. R. Weldon of the Thirtieth judicial district, who has been holding court in Graham for the past month, was in the city Saturday.

Capt. C. S. Nusbaum, community service specialist with the Western Community Service association of Colorado Springs, is in the city for a short time.

Louis Dard's jazz band entertained over WKAF last night. The orchestra played from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock, giving popular numbers.

Messenger Struck By Automobile

Roy Craig, messenger for Wilford Harison drug store, was struck by an automobile yesterday afternoon while riding his motorcycle near Ninth and Van Buren. He was immediately rushed to the General hospital and an examination showed he was suffering from a severe gash in one of his legs, besides minor bruises. He will be confined to the hospital for only two or three days.

The name of the driver of the car is unknown to the boy.

TOBACCO STOLEN

Tobacco and other merchandise valued at about $75 was stolen some time Friday night from the general store of Ben Schlencin at Oklaunion, according to reports reaching here. The front door of the place was broken open by the robbers, and the tobacco cases looted.

Dr. Maria Otto, a native of Wurzburg, recently appointed in the Munich courts as the first lawyer of her sex to practice in Germany.

When He Gets In It Seems to Be in the Wrong Place By Reid

GULF-HOCKADAY STIRS GRAHAM

Rigs Springing Up Over-Night In Young County

GRAHAM, April 14.—Graham at last has a real oil field right at her door. The Gulf-Hockaday No. 1, four miles southeast of town has caused the biggest flurry in oil circles that has happened here in the past year.

Rigs are springing up overnight in every direction from the big gusher and there seems to be a race to see who spuds in first.

The Gulf No. 2, Gulf No. 3 and the Ralco No. 1 are rigs, while the Mid-Kansas, Sun Co., General Petroleum Co., the Foster Co., and a number of others whom we are unable to get exact data on, have made locations in the vicinity of the No. Hockaday.

Flow Increases.

The Gulf-Hockaday hit the pay on March 31, when it commenced producing at the rate of 1,000 barrels per day, this was steadily increased until the first ten days pipe line runs shows actual runs of 13,450 barrels which sold for $32,280. This did not include waste oil in earthen storage or that in the battery of tanks which was hastily erected.

The Prairie Co.'s two inch line proved inadequate to handle the oil and the Gulf Co., found it necessary to rush a four-inch line from Oil City.

Mr. Hockaday has closed several deals which calls for drilling at once, and there has been a good demand for close in leases.

Other Wells.

While the excitement and interest has centered around the Hockaday territory two other fields of great importance to Graham and Young county have been opened up within the last few days. These are the Shamrock Co.'s No. 1 A Bower in the southeast corner of Young, and the A. G. Carter interests No. 1 Rubenkoenig located ten miles northeast of Graham.

The Shamrock No. 1 A Bower is an extension of the Herron pool east and found the pay in the 1910-foot sand and is good for 200 barrels natural. Several new locations have been made in this part of the field and some large acreage deals have bee nclosed which involve a large sum of real cash.

The Carter-Rubenkoenig No. 1 was a rank wildcat test, and after tubing was set the well commenced to flow by heads and is good for 150 barrels of 42 gravity oil. This is the beginning of development activity field in this part of Young, as it has long been looked upon as a promising oil territory.

The Kellog Drilling Co., has closed a deal for a test just north of the Rubenkoenig No. 1 which is to start soon.

The Carter No. 1 Sanders is down 1,500 feet, and the No. 1 Farmer is drilling. Both of these tests are in the Rubenkoenig neighborhood.

A new location is reported on the J. D. Smith survey just over the Young county line in Palo Pinto. This test is just across the Brazos north of McGuire and Hinson's carter No. 3 in Carter Bend which is drilling at 1,000 feet.

M. R. Hemphill, G. D. Hinson and others are busy in the district just west of Herron City where several wells are to be put down in proven territory.

Burton and Burton are preparing to drill two wells on the Costello land south of the Big Sinclair well on the Moran tract. This well averaged 735 barrels for the first 30 days from the 2,500-foot sand.

It is rumored that a test is to be drilled on the J. H. Carter land and the T. K. Criswell farm north of Herron City.

Work is moving along nicely in the South Bend Oil City, Bunger and Herron City fields, and while no great excitement prevails new wells are being brought in which add to the total production and means many dollars for Young county.

Burk, Electra and Hirschi Pools Not Being Neglected After Rush Is Started in Megargle Field

The sensational developments in Archer county during the past few weeks, culminating in the big showing of the Swastika No. 1, a wildcat that has found a new field three miles west of Megargle, has caused attention of oil operators to turn to the southern fields, although the Burkburnett, Electra and Hirschi pools are also getting a share of the drilling rush that is being forced here. In Archer county new developments are being discovered daily and a boom that has brought thousands of operators to the county during the past week is experienced.

The Swastika wildcat, nine miles from Olney, and three from Megargle, has made a strong showing more than 15 miles from the nearest production, causing a near panic among drillers and operators who are rushing to the scene of the latest and most sensational development in Texas pools. Prices unthought of are being paid for leases in the territory adjacent to the well, and excitement is still at high pitch after the first production that gives promise of making the well a daily producer of more than 250 barrels daily.

The bringing in of the Cetti No. 1, extending the Freeman-Hampton pool to the west more than a mile, closely followed by Texhoma's Ferguson No. 1-G and others, gave added territory for drilling three weeks ago, and since that time the speedy drilling in the edges of the pools has caused great advances and enlargements of proven fields.

The tendency is to drill in unproven territory, since wildcats drilled throughout Archer county are showing oil, and many are started even in the southern part of the county where it has been thought the possibilities were small for completions of producers. The many producers brought in at wildcat locations have caused a rush of test drilling, and the next thirty days will show the real extent of the pools throughout the territory, with tests being drilled in every part of the county. And with if all production still remains at the same high point in the proven fields, the wildcats being additional production.

Day Nursery For Negro Children Will Be Started

A day nursery for negro children of the city is to be started here in the near future, it was learned Saturday. Plans have been under way for some time for the establishment of such an institution, but announcement was just made yesterday that the nursery will be a reality.

The movement is being fostered by the City S Federation of Negro Women's Mission societies, which at a recent meeting voted to put on a city-wide campaign and financial drive. This is to end April 20.

The eight negro churches of the city have been asked to raise funds totaing $14,000. The St. John Baptist church, Anderson Chapel A. M. E., Pleasant Baptist church and Titus Chapel Methodist church have each been asked to provide $250.

Mt. Calvary Methodist church, St. Matthew's Baptist church, Apostolic church and Church of God have been requested to raise $100 each.

This movement has been endorsed by the ministerial alliance of the city, and has its unqualified support.

Williams and Clark On Trial Thursday

Ben Williams and E. B. Clark, indicted by the grand jury of the Eighty-ninth district court on charges of theft in connection with the loss of $1,229 belonging to Wichita Falls & Northwestern railroad employes, last March, will go to trial Thursday of this week. Their cases were set down Saturday by Judge P. A. Martin of the Eighty-ninth district court.

The men reported to officers that they had been robbed of the money, which was being taken from a bank to the shops, but after a long grilling they confessed that they had hidden the cash themselves. The entire amount was subsequently recovered.

CONSTRUCTION OF QUARTER MILLION HOME FOR WICHITA ELKS LODGE SOON TO BEGIN

Handsome New Structure To Be Located at Ninth And Lamar

100 X 150 FEET

Structure To Be Modern In Every Respect, Officials Say

A lodge and club room building that will, when complete, be one of the most modern and exclusive of any in the state is soon to be erected by the local lodge of the Elks at the corner of Ninth and Lamar. Plans for the new structure are all complete and show that it will be the last word in beauty, stability and serviceability. The approximate cost will be a quarter of a million, including furnishings.

The building site at Ninth and Lamar is 100 by 150 feet and the new Elks home will be 75 by 115. It will be of two story height, not including the basement, and will be of brick construction throughout. It will have a stone base and belt courses, the main portion or shaft being of selected face brick and the cornices and columns of terra cotta or stone.

On the first floor will be included the main entrance lobby, the secretary's private offices, check room, main lounging room, dining room, kitchens, domino parlor, writing and reading rooms, a barber shop and lavatories.

From the central lobby a wide stairway will circle up to the second floor on which the main lodge room will be the chief feature. This will also include, however, spacious ladies' parlors and card rooms, with a second lounging room for men. From the main central corridor the stairway will continue on up to the roof which is to be finished as a roof garden.

In the basement will be pool and billiard rooms large enough to accommodate six tables. Bowling alleys will also be included here. A big gymnasium with visitors' gallery, the main locker room, shower baths and dressing room, boiler room and toilets will be at the basement level.

The building committee of the Elks is composed of A. L. Huey, chairman, C. B. Noble, Nat Henderson, J. B. Marlow, R. F. Johnson, Harry Bray and G. C. Jensen.

The lodge has already voted to incorporate under the laws of Texas and an active campaign is to be started at once for placing the stock. Following is a list of the Elks now membership:

—NOTICE—

This is to advise the good people of Wichita Falls, and the public in general, that I have sold my business known as Sut's Smoke Shop, to P. B. Cox and W. H. Conn, and I take this means of thanking the public and my friends and patrons for the business and support that you have given me, and I earnestly bespeak for my successors the continuation of your business and support in the business at the old stand. Mr. Conn will be in charge of the business, and is a very genial and affable gentleman, and will gladly take care of your wants.

With best wishes to all my friends, and to my successors, I am,

Yours sincerely,

C. T. SUTTON

Accompanied by music, souvenirs, refreshments and all the frills appropriate to the occasion, the Wichita Falls Electric company will open its new offices in the Prothro building tomorrow. The place will be thrown open in the morning but the formal festivities do not begin until 2 o'clock, continuing until 9 in the evening.

With the completion of its new home near Ninth and Scott, the electric company has seen the fulfillment of a dream starting some 10 years ago. At that time the present corporation assumed control of the electric system here and practically from the first looked forward to the time when it should be housed in a building adequate for its needs. The remarkable expansion of Wichita Falls from that date and the tremendous demands thus made upon the power lines have presented a problem that the company has wrestled with constantly.

Old Quarters Burned Out.

The original quarters in the middle of the 800 block of Indiana avenue, burned out last summer, and the temporary rooms in the old American National bank building have never satisfied the space requirements.

In the new rooms, however, the company has all that it needs, with room for growth for years to come.

The building is really remarkably well adapted for the purpose to which it is to be put. Large, roomy, well lighted and conveniently arranged, it is the last word in modern, specialized architecture.

Plenty of Room.

The first floor is devoted to show and sales rooms, with just enough office equipment to provide for the needs of those whose business can be attended to under the heading of routine. Attractive electrical apparatus handled are installed advantageously.

To the rear of the general sales rooms is the garage, housed under the same room as the other departments, with provisions made for extra storage facilities should occasion require.

On the second floor are the general offices for the clerks and the private office of P. A. Rogers, manager of the company. The main storage rooms, transmission and dispatching quarters and the meter department are also included in the second story. In this latter part the thousand and one articles needed for stock are retained in such shape that they may be picked upon a moments notice. The dispatchers rooms, in which is housed the switch board by which constant communication is kept with Iowa Park Electra, Burkburnett, Henrietta, and Bowie—all supplied with power and light by the local concern—is immediately adjacent to the stock rooms. Direct telephone connections are supplied to all the above towns and the northwest oil fields.

The meter department flanks the dispatchers quarters.

All Local Products.

One noteworthy feature of the entire plant is the fact that it is built and furnished throughout by local business firms. Show cases and furniture was constructed here, the building itself was put up by local contractors, all finishing work was done by Wichita Falls men and every item that could possibly be supplied by home industry obtained from Wichita Falls institutions.

The growth of the electric company furnishes another important chapter in this city's industrial history. The present corporation, as previously stated, was formed in 1913. Prior to that the electric system was owned and controlled by J. A. Kemp and Frank Kell. In that year, however, the new organization took effect, with Frank Kell as president, P. A. Rogers, vice-president and manager, C. W. Reid, vice-president and J. C. Thompson of Dallas as secretary and treasurer.

System Expands.

Under the active direction of Mr. Rogers the system has expanded from its small beginning to its present size. The first quarters were in the old Indiana avenue stand which was burned out May 26, 1922. From there the company moved to the bank building and has remained until the present date.

The power plant has remained where it was originally placed, in the eastern end of the city. It had its inception in a 1,000 horsepower plant, which gave place in 1919 to the present 15,000 horsepower, well equipped structure. At first supplying only this city with its electrical needs, it later extended its lines to Iowa Park and Electra, then to Burkburnett and the northwest field and finally to Henrietta and Bowie.

It has thus grown—this made possible by the growth of the city but also by the industry of its executives. Many of the department heads have been active in the company's administration for years and are now sharing in the fruits of its achievements. Those executives are, in addition to Mr. Rogers, A. E. Kelly, office manager, Leon Horn, chief clerk, J. W. Thorne, meter superintendent, J. A. Lyle, transmission superintendent and W. F. Ivers, commercial manager.

A cordial invitation is extended the public to come out Monday and inspect the new plant. Refreshments and souvenirs are to be passed out and dancing is to be allowed on the floor of the spacious garage. It's to be a gala occasion, celebrating a noteworthy accomplishment by one of the city's most important utilities.

CLAY SCHOOLS SEEK FUNDS

Special Dispatch to Record News

HENRIETTA, April 14.—An indication that Clay county is awakening to the necessity of providing more funds for the upkeep of schools is shown by the fact that 15 school districts have filed applications with the county commissioners' court asking for special elections to increase school taxes.

The Kempner and Neville rural school districts have already held special school tax elections and both carried by large majorities.

Oil Bill Coming Early

Representative Nelson stated today he intends to introduce Monday the remainder of his severence tax measures. Representative Coffey will present again his gross production tax bill at five per cent while the Patman intangible assets bills and Dinkle income tax measures are expected to be among those offered early.

Representative John T. Smith of Austin will offer a bill which will attempt to prevent large discounts of state warrants because of the deficiency in the general revenue fund. The special session will face the task of raising revenue to prevent what the governor has estimated will be a $6,000,000 deficiency in the next two years. Representative Smith's bill will provide that when the state is on a deficiency, interest bearing warrants shall be issued and the state shall bear the interest.

State Superintendent Marrs declared today he will ask the legislature to provide means for raising $5,000,000 additional revenue for the schools of the state. A resolution proposing that the minimum scholastic apportionment be $15 a year also will be introduced.

Sam Beatty Flashes S. O. S. For New Co-operative Spirit Among Veterans

In an open letter to members of Pat Carrigan post, American Legion Post Adjutant Sam Beatty has urged on all ex-service men here the necessity of increased activity for the benefit of the legion. Renewed interest in the affairs of the local post is sought by Mr. Beatty and other officers of the organization.

Election of officers for the coming year will be held by Legionnaires here next Thursday night, and plans for increased membership will also be started at this time, it is indicated. It is the hope of those active in legion work that the Pat Carrigan post may be built up to occupy the place in the community that it deserves and it is their intention that this shall be done.

The adjutant's letter has pointed out some of the whys and wherefores of the American Legion and has roundly assailed the condemnation of those who are finding fault with what a few are trying to do. A number of ex-service men in this city are not legion members, it is stated, and efforts are to be made to round these men into line.

LOCAL HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

Announcement was made Saturday that the Alpine hotel, 717½ Eighth street, had been sold by Edwin L. Bristow, the proprietor, to D. D. Neal of Plainview. The new owner will take charge of the place and continue its operation immediately.

Mr. Neal has been a well known resident of Plainview for several years and has been active in the civic affairs of the town. He was vice-president of the chamber of commerce last year and has been active in the affairs of the West Texas chamber of commerce, serving as chairman of the entertainment committee at the annual convention last year.

Cut Wide Swath in Passing Near Wichita, Police Warn Bootleggers

Chief of Police Hodgins and Commissioner Young paid their respects to the bootlegging and gambling element Saturday when they issued a formal ultimatum to the effect that these gentry, and any other class of law violators, would do well to steer clear of this city.

It has been rumored, according to Chief Hodgins, that the present administration, being unfamiliar with the crooked element here, might not be able to suppress vice completely for a time. This idea, Chief Hodgins declares, is as far wrong as the poles are apart.

"We want it understood that this class, or any other class, of law violators had better get it into their heads that this administration intends to enforce the law and that the bootlegging and gambling element will find themselves in trouble if they try to come here."

That was the gist of the chief's remarks.

It was also announced by the chief and Commissioner Young that notice was being served on those who have been in the habit of parking their cars in the alleys of the business district. A city ordinance prohibits such practice, it is pointed out, and hereafter the alleys must be kept clear.

people content themselves with scattering the seeds over the ground and reaping the harvests. Fruits grow in abundance, the trees making a veritable paradise. Without a doubt the country is the most beautiful we visited."

The party, leaving Wichita Falls on December 7, left the United States through New York, touching in order named, Hawaiian Islands, Japan, China, Keelung, Formosa Islands, Phillipine Islands, Burma, Java, Calcutta, Ceylon, India, Palestine, Egypt, Italy, France and England, returning to New York.

After stooping at Hilo, according to Mr. McGregor, the party went to Yokahoma, where they were received with a reception by the resident Europeans. While there they visited the big volcano, climbing the sides of the mountain for a sight of the night beauties. "Words cannot express the gorgeousness and beauty of the volcano at night," said Mr. McGregor, "looking down into the heated crater one sees one of the most beautiful sights to be found in the world."

In Japan the visitors were made welcome again by residents at Tokio. Mr. McGregor states that one cannot visualize the conditions in this city of two and a half million people without an actual visit to the country.

"Everything done in Japan is done by hand labor," he said, "even the use of animals is at a minimum. No horses are used, man power serving the purpose of transportation, and power in the place of machines or animals. The contrast with the United States is so great that it is hard for one to believe his own eyes in Japan. However, financial conditions are good, speaking generally, and very little poverty is found in the flowery kingdom. The people work for very little wages, but are able to live comfortably and are seemingly well content and satisfied."

Different in China

"In China things are different. The country is vastly overpopulated and as a result the people are poor and poorly fed. The wages are so small that the laborers are practically starved. Poverty is felt throughout the country."

Mr. McGregor found an interesting spot in India, because of governmental conditions, and religion and domestic customs of the country.

"India is undoubtedly the lowest class of civilization in the world," said the globetrotter. He described burial rites of the classes as being of a type that would meet with the disapproval and horror of most civilized people, cremation without ceremony being the most popular rite.

Crisis in India

"The governmental affairs in India are at a crisis. The feeing against England is high, and strict laws keep down revolutions. The first thing done by authorities upon the arrival of visitors, is to search for firearms or weapons. Possession of such is a crime. Kilo is under martial law and the remainder of the country is practically the same. The Indian natives are opposed to any thing British and would revolt at a chance."

"Palestine is a beautiful place, but is badly hurt by the Turks. The famous mountain of Olives has been shorn of the olive trees that made it known the world over, the Turks using the trees for fuel, and is now a barren mountain side."

"The valley of the Nile is one of the most beautiful places on the face of the earth," said Mr. McGregor.

The party stayed a week in France, visiting the battle scenes. The battle ground where the Thirty-sixth division of Texas men won fame, at St. Eteine, was visited. Practically all the ground is reconstructed, but the historic village still stands with the ruins and relics of war still unrepaired.

Back to Prosperity

Mr. McGregor, commenting on financial conditions in France, stated that the country is fast returning to prosperity. A sign of this is the ready manner in which the sale of 6 and 7 per cent bonds, issued by the government, was bought by citizens, according to Mr. McGregor.

"And Paris is still the gayest city on earth," said the traveler. "I wish we could have been there longer."

"England does not show the effects of the war as does France, and one could hardly know that the country had been in trouble."

A storm just out of Yokahoma was an exciting incident of the trip, but according to the voyagers, the ship sailed evenly through the 80-mile gale without mishap.

Throughout the trip the party did not meet a person whom they were acquainted with. "But we made many friends," said McGregor. "One man, an American missionary from Georgia, was especially pleasant, and gave us a detailed account of conditions in Sing Toy and China, where he has been stationed for 14 years. We were in China when the country's government was turned into the hands of the Chinese and saw the Chinese again take control of their country."

The remaining couple of the party, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Bullington, will return home Tuesday. The party separated in London. The last to arrive are now in New York and will return Tuesday night.

THREE HIGH STEPPERS CONTINUE AT HOUSTON

Associated Press Dispatch

HOUSTON, Texas, April 14.—Three high steppers, two girls and a man, tonight remained on the floor of the McMillan dance hall at 8:30 o'clock, sole survivors of 24 who set out Thursday night in an effort to break the world's dance endurance record. At that hour they had danced 47 hours.

Two attempts were made to stop the spectacle late this afternoon. In the first instance it was found the warrants were faulty. The proprietor of the hall made bond of $200 for each contestant when later warrants arrived, the cancers signing as they kept strutting to the music.

The three who survive are Magdalene Williams, 20, picked by Rodolph Valentino here recently as the best dancer in the city; Goldie Hughes, 19, and L. Kessler, 28, all breathlessly declaring they are going beyond the 55-hour mark.

MAN AND WOMAN OPPOSING EACH OTHER

Associated Press Dispatch

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 14.—A man and a woman were dancing against each other and against time in a roped enclosure on the tile floor of a clubroom here tonight to settle the question whether a man or a woman has the greater endurance on a dance floor, in an effort to break the present marathon record of 52 hours and 16 minutes' continuous dancing, set by Miss Helen Mayer of Cleveland on Thursday night.

Russell Brady of Cleveland, out to beat all records for long distance and continuous dancing, started at 8 a. m. today, declaring he would continue 60 hours, after he had challenged the world and Cleveland feminine steppers in particular.

His challenge was accepted at 3 p. m., when Miss Madaline Gottschick of Cleveland started dancing, with the announcement that she would continue for 72 hours or know why.

NEW YORK SEEKS TO STOP CONTESTS

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, April 14.—New York city today began considering measures to check endurance dancing contests—a fad which started in Great Britain and spread to the United States.

Joseph M. Lonergan, sanitary inspector of the board of health, called upon Associate Corporation Counsel Leonard to raise the question of the legality of dancing contests. He asserted that the penal law prohibited endurance contests, continued more than 12 hours during every 24, and contended that the law made it a misdemeanor for the proprietor of any place to permit unlawful contests.

Greek Societies To Clash On Track

AUSTIN, Texas, April 11.—A modern version of Knighthood will be tried out in the University of Texas intramural track meet when relay teams of four men each representing the sororities and picked by sorority girls, will race for supremacy. Each team will wear the colors of the girls' club represented. As the runners reach the tape, win or lose, they will be followed by fair partisans. The tournament will be held April 23.

A New Power in American Fiction

Will Begin Wednesday in the Record News

A story of the love and marriage of Anthony Patch and the vivid beauty, Gloria, in which is revealed the life of that wealthy section of American society which throngs the restaurants, cabarets, theatres and hotels of our great cities—people without the influence of the home and lacking the sense of responsibility.

Read the amazing story of this young couple and their experiences in that flo[illegible]ing society of modern life with which you are familiar.

WICHITA SCORES FIRST PLACE IN LITERARY AND ELECTRA IN TRACK; STATE RECORD BROKEN

Lawton Thomas Sets Precedent When He Does 100-Yard Dash in 9 3-5 Seconds; Local Students Conceded First in Class A Events.

Although Wichita Falls did not win the track section of the district meet which was held at Iowa Park Friday and Saturday, she has the distinction of winning the entire meet as the representatives of this city, with but a few exceptions, took first places in literary work.

Electra scored 53 points in track to Wichita Falls' 33, but the contest was not as one-sided as the score would indicate as the local boys fought every inch of ground and would not acknowledge defeat until the last event.

Adding first places in girls' doubles in tennis and boys' singles and, with strong prospects of adding the boys' doubles, as the finals in this event will not be played off until Monday, first place in girls' debate, first in senior boys' and girls' declamation, Wichita Falls was easily conceded the winner in class A events.

State Record Broken

The outstanding feature in yesterday's contest was the breaking of a state record in the 100-yard dash, when Lawton Thomas of Electra made the distance in 9 3-5 seconds.

Thomas also took first place in the 220 and 440-yard dashes.

Leo Baldwin, of this city, was high man of the contest with 22 points to his credit, taking first places in the 120-yard high hurdles, 220 low hurdles, pole vault, high jump and taking third place in the 100-yard dash. By winning this distinction Baldwin will be granted a scholarship to Decatur Baptist college, valued at approximately $100.

Although Thomas and Baldwin broke some records in different phases of the meet, to Steve West, of this city, belongs the credit of putting forth one of the gamest races in the history of the district's meet. In the mile relay, West was the last runner and he started his course with the last little Guy Thomas of Electra leading him by a quarter of the lap and realizing it was next to an impossibility to win, West put forth all he had and was only a few yards behind the Electra man at the finish. Although his course was not timed it was believed by many present that he would have put up a nice record in the 440 yards that he ran if he had been checked. He had previously won second place in the shot put, entitling him to a trip to Austin.

Neal of this city took fourth place in the mile; Tyson fourth in the 440 and Walker fourth in the 120-yards high hurdles.

Marjorie Bright and Jewell Williams, respecenting Wichita Falls in the girls' doubles in tennis, brought the district championship in girls' tennis doubles to Wichita Falls for the first time in the history of the school. They won this distinction by defeating Jacksboro.

Class A Scores

In the class A events the score of the respective towns were as follows: Electra 53; Wichita Falls 33; Henrietta 18; Nocona 11; Burkburnett 10; Bowie 5; Graham 6 and Seymour 4.

In the class B events Iowa Park won an easy victory by scoring 55½ points to Megargle's 19. In Davis, Van Horn, Wigley, Hill and Smith, Iowa Park has strong chances of taking a state championship, as all of these men are apt to put forth a grand fight with any man in the state in their division.

The other leading teams in this class were Bomarton with 15; Bellevue 13 and Bryson 12.

The pupils that will go from this city to the state meet at Austin are Baldwin, West, Bland, Powers, Louise Scott, Marjorie Bright, Jewell Williams, Stella Winters and Marjorie Woolsey. Clifton Haynes' name will probably be added to this list Monday, as he plays the finals in tennis against Iowa Park and is picked as nearly a certain winner.

CROP FAILURE BULLS WHEAT

Deliveries Reach New High Price For Season

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, April 14.—Indications of crop failure involving millions of acres in Kansas and Nebraska had a decided bullish effect today on the wheat market, and so likewise did heavy snowfalls and freezing weather in the Northwest, causing delay to spring seeding. All deliveries of wheat reached a new high price record for the season. The market closed unsettled at 3-8c to 3-4c net advance, with May $1.20 1-2 to $1.26 5-8, and July $1.23 3-4 to $1.23 7-8. Corn finished 3-8c to 3-4c up, oats up 1-4c, and provisions down 10c to 15c.

Corn and oats reflected the strength of wheat.

LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

Associated Press Dispatch

FORT WORTH, April 14.—Raymund for cattle was not at all brond Saturday and only a part of the run of 400 head found an outlet. South Texas consignments made up practically the entire supply. The market was hardly quotable.

Hogs sold on an unchanged basis, receipts amounting to about 210 head. Nothing choice was here, the best clearing at 8.20 and most of the supply clearing at 8.00 to 8.20.

Nothing was received in the sheep division.

Beef steers and yearlings show a decline of about 25 cents for the week, fat cows are 25 cents higher, and on common calves there has been a downward revision of 25 to 50 cents, but on other classes of fat cattle the market shows a fully steady trend.

Hogs figured in a decline early in the week, but regained the loss and closed 10 cents higher with a top of 8.25. Pigs are steady and in good request.

Sheep are 25 to 50 cents higher, but lamb prices are only steady.

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 14.—Lower prices ruled in cotton today from the opening to the close, with the lowest prices on the close. May fell to 27.80, and October to 24.62. The list on the close was 42 to 72 points down, compared with the final prices yesterday.

Selling had its foundation in the better weather over two-thirds of the cotton region, and prospects that it would improve over the eastern third. On top of this was the forecast of fair weather for nearly all sections of the belt.

Selling was due to hopes that the belt was entering a period of weather which would allow planting to go ahead rapidly.

Week-end reviews of trade in general were considered less favorable than expected, and quiet continued both in the spot market and in cotton goods market, according to reports received here by brokerage houses. What was generally called a bullish census bureau report on American mills for March fell flat because consumption expectations had been allowed to run too high.

LITTLE GIRL SHOT SATURDAY

Mamie Warren In Critical Condition At Local Hospital

Mamie Warren, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Warren, route 3, is at the General hospital in a critical condition as a result of being shot in the left eye Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The accident occurred while the little girl, in company with some playmates were playing in the attic of the home on route 3, when one of the boys in the group accidentally shot the girl with a target rifle. She was immediately rushed to the General hospital, where an examination was made.

At a late hour last night reports from the hospital said the condition of the child was serious, and there were grave doubts concerning her recovery.

COFFEE MARKET

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, April 14.—The market for coffee futures was easier today owing to scattering liquidation apparently inspired by the easier showing of the Brazilian cables. The close was 21 to 24 points net lower. Sales were estimated at about 29,000 bags. Closing quotations: May 9.10; July 8.70; September 8.20; December 8.00; March 8.10. Spot coffee quiet; Rio 7s 11¼ to 11½; Santos 4s 14½ to 15 cents.

THE RELIABLE SPECIALIST

For Scientific treatment of Chronic, Nervous and Special Diseases of both sexes, Catarrh of all mucous membrane, Stomach, Liver, Kidney Complaints

If you are sick of experimenting, sick of failures, sick of being sick, come to me. I invite sick people who contemplate taking treatment to come. Special attention given in the combination of curative powers, with the scientific adminstraton of selected Specfic medicines. I endeavor to do everything to promote the welfare of my patients.

A Doctor's Appeal to Parents

If the mothers and fathers of our children would see the awful wrecks of men and women I see almost daily and could hear the story most of them tell, namely: "Our parents never warned us," they would no longer hesitate to teach the children SEX HYGIENE. The relation of the sexes is God-given. It is a sacred duty and I warn you parents of the present generation—do not conceal the sex truth from your children if you have any regard for their future health and happiness. It should be a part of their religion. Our children should be taught to know themselves. If this talk results in just one boy or girl asking the truth of the parents, I shall feel as if my appeal is not in vain and that the world is slightly better because of my passing through.

If You Need a Specialist— Why Not the Best?

Are you a nervous wreck? Are you worn out and broken down? Are you suffering from vicious blood and skin diseases, that destroy bone tissue, and disfigure for life? Backaches, and kidneys give you all-gone feeling? Whether these conditions were caused by early excesses or contracted by inoculation, it does not matter, for they will all respond to my treatment. Consult Dr. Schultz, the reliable specialist, who is well equipped by long experience, that enables him to offer his services on a basis that no other can; his charges are lower for cures than the average physician generally charges for failures.

Those who have wasted time and money, and failed to get rid of their ailments, are especially invited to consult FREE. I am giving the benefit of over 35 years honorable experience; some of my cures are truly wonderful, yet I do not make the old younger, nor the blind see; I simply apply the knowledge my years of honorable experience have given me, and I do this honestly and intelligently.

SHERIFF'S SALE
STATE OF TEXTS,
COUNTY OF WICHITA.

Notice is hereby given in accordance with Article 6394-J, Chapter 3, Title 113 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Texas, that there is pending in the County Court of Wichita County at Law, Wichita county, Texas, cause No. 5555, J. R. Hale, plaintiff, vs. W. E. Callahan Construction company, the Adelity and Deposit company of Maryland, Wichita County Water Improvement District No. 1, and Ed Cecil, defendants, wherein the plaintiff seeks judgment for three hundred twenty-three and 95-100 ($323.95) dollars for labor performed by the plaintiff in the construction of a plant and irrigation system of Wichita County Water Improvement District No. 1, against Ed Cecil, the employer of said plaintiff; W. E. Callahan Construction company, the employer of said Ed Cecil; Wichita Water Improvement District No. 1, employer of the W. E. Callahan Construction company; and Fidelity and Deposit company of Maryland on its bond, executed by it for the said defendant, Ed Cecil, guaranteeing to the W. E. Callahan Construction company that the said Cecil would carry out his said contract and pay all labor bills incurred by him in the discharge thereof.

That said suit will be tried at the April term, A. D. 1923, of said court, which begins on the 2nd day of April, A. D. 1923.

Given under my official hand and seal this 26th day of March, A. D. 1923.

You are hereby commanded to summon G. P. Calhoun by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the Thirtieth district court of Wichita county, to be holden at the court house thereof in Wichita Falls, on the 3rd Monday in June, A. D., 1923, the same being the 18th day of June, A. D., 1923. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 11th day of October, A. D., 1920, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 9218-A wherein, Lemuel H. Doty, is plaintiff and G. P. Calhoun and Smith Auto Sales company, a co-partnership, composed of H. L. and W. and R. R. Smith as defendants and said petition alleging that July 14th, 1920, plaintiff was the owner of a seven passenger Chalmers car, 1918 Model, and the defendants were the owners of a certain seven passenger Cadillac car, Model 55, engine No. 55A623, registered under No. 494621, serial No. 418380; and that on said date the plaintiff exchanged his said car for the Cadillac car, and paying the difference in cash to the amount of $1,350, the price of the Cadillac car being fixed at $2,400, and the price of the Chalmers car being $1,050. That on said date the defendants, Smith Auto Sales company, transferred to G. P. Calhoun the said Cadillac car, and the said G. P. Calhoun transferred to plaintiff said Cadillac car, and on the same date the plaintiff transferred to G. P. Calhoun his said Chalmers car and paid to the said Calhoun the sum of $1,350 in cash. The said defendant, Calhoun, made, executed and delivered to the plaintiff a certain bill of sale together with a guarantee wherein he guaranteed the Cadillac car to be in first class condition and free from any defects of any kind, character or description. Plaintiff alleges that he made inquiry of the Smith Auto Sales company, through members of its firm as to the true condition of the Cadillac car and was informed by them that it was in good condition, no defects and easily worth $2,400 that plaintiff relied upon the statements of defendants, but did not know, at the time, that the Cadillac car traded to him as aforesaid, about which the inquiry was made, was then the property of the Smith Auto Sales company. That said representations made by said defendants were false and were known by the defendants to be at the time they were made, and when defendants accepted the car from plaintiff and the $1,350, and delivered to plaintiff the Cadillac car, that said Cadillac car was at the time worth less than $1,000, was in bad condition, unfit for use, and generally out of repair, and the defendants well knew of the fact last mentioned when they obtained from the plaintiff the Chalmers car and the $1,350 in cash.

Wherefore plaintiff sues said defendants, jointly and severally, for the sum of $1,500, and that said contract be set aside and annulled and the defendants be ordered to deliver to plaintiff the said seven passenger Chalmers car and pay to him the sum of $1,350, with interest at the rate of 6% per annum from July 14, 1920 to date, for costs of suit and for such other, further general and special relief in law and in equity as to the court shall seem mete and just.

Herein fail not, but have before said court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return theeon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court, at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 29th day of March, A. D., 1923.

A. F. KERR, Clerk
District Court, Wichita County, Texas.

GREAT ARRAY OF CIRCUS TALENT BOOKED HERE
Shriners Will Bring Stars For Performances April 23-28

CONLAT & CONLAT
Novelty Steel Jaw Act

Everybody Is Talking About Show and Interest Picks Up In Vote Contest

By FRANK S. REID
Publicity Chairman.

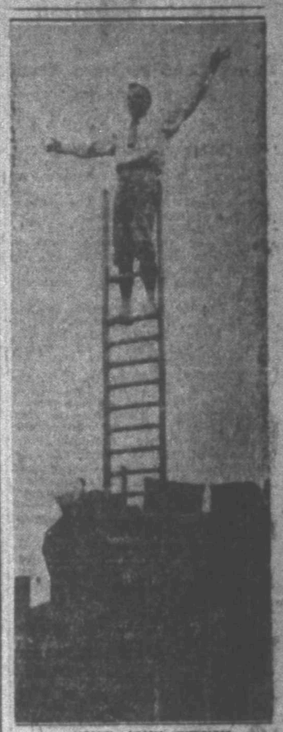

You'll say it is the greatest array of circus talent ever gathered together, when Maskat temple puts on its circus. Here's Conlat and Conlat who do a novelty steel jaw act. They are a team direct from France and have chosen to perform before Shrine circuses because they like the atmosphere better than traveling with one of the regular circuses that go through the country. They were secured at great expense by Bob Morton.

And O'Dvie and O'Dvie, who defy the law of equilibrium. The photograph accompanying shows one member of the team doing a stunt with an unsupported ladder.

You just can't beat the stunts that are coming to Maskat's circus. It is the best talent obtainable.

The contest for selling the largest number of tickets is getting keener and keener as the time goes by. Hazel Bristow leads with Jessie Mae Lawler and Mrs. T. J. Fitzsimmons tied for second place.

Everybody is talking circus now, and anxious to see the final touches and the circus going in full sway. It's going to be one of the greatest fun loving affairs that Wichita Falls has ever had. Make April 23 to 28 a smile week and have the time of your life with the Shriners and their friends.

O'DVIE AND O'DVIE
They Defy Equilibrium.

RADFORD BUYS GROCERY FIRM

Carroll, Brough, Robinson, And Gates Sell For $400,000

The J. M. Redford Grocery company of Abilene, became the owner of the Carrol-Brough, Robinson and Gates Wholesale Grocery company of Wichita Falls and Quanah, yesterday, following the completion of a sale. The sale is said to be the largest ever made in Wichita Falls, the consideration being $400,000.

E. G. Bates, secretary of the Redford company will take charge of the business affairs of the company here Monday morning, April 16, and will be temporary manager. Mr. Fred M. Gates, who has been manager of the company here since 1910 when it was first organized, will remain here, he states, and devote his time to private interests.

New Woman's Club Is Organized Here

A new women's club was organized in the county Friday when the County Line Women's Home Demonstration club was formally launched. Nine members are included on the list at present.

Mrs. Tom Haynes was named as president, Mrs. Bessie Langford, vice-president and Miss Cora Jordan, secretary. A membership committee compbsed of Mesdames Langford, Frazier and Chester was also appointed.

The club will meet once every two weeks with talks and demonstrations on domestic problems. The work is being carried on under the direction of Miss Georgia Lansford, county home demonstration agent.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. M'PHERSON
Consulting Engineer
Kahn Bldg., 8th and Indiana

Of what use will an experiment farm be to this country?

This question was asked by a man who was commenting on the efforts to be made by Representatives Gipson and Avis in securing an appropriation from the legislature for an experiment farm to be located here, in connection with the irrigation project.

Let us look into this matter of whether or not an experiment farm will be of any use here.

First, what are some of the functions of an experiment farm? An experiment farm is just what the name indicates. It is a farm where experiments are carried on in testing how the various kinds of plants should be grown to obtain the best results, what particular varieties of plants should be grown to make the most money in this climate, how water should be used and applied to get the best results, and many other items. Its fundamental purpose is to make all the mistakes that the hundreds of farmers would make, but without cost to the farmers, now or in the future.

What are some of the problems that the experimental farm will have to solve? We do not know all of them, but here are a few questions that need to be answered: What varieties of cotton should be grown here under irrigation to make the most money for the farmer? How and when should cotton be irrigated to get the best results? Why does cotton die out in spots? What soils are best adapted to growing cotton under irrigation?

Why does alfalfa die out in some soils and not in others. What other leguminous crops could be grown here under irrigation?

Why won't cherry trees grow here and why is it that apples do not grow in this valley?

What varieties had best be planted for shade and windbreaks? Why won't poplars and cottonwoods grow on some of our upland soils?

Why do sweet and Irish potatoes have the root rot when planted in some parts of the valley?

The above are only a few of the questions that an experimental farm will be asked to answer. Many of these questions are almost vital in their importance, and the work of solving them cannot commence too soon.

The whole subject of growing crops by irrigation in this climate and on our soils is comparatively unknown. The experiment farm will give us lots of information.

Every problem as it is solved means the saving to our farmers, now and in the future, untold thousands of dollars.

We wish Mr. Gipson and Mr. Avis all success in their efforts. If they succeed, they will have rendered a most valuable service to this community.

FAMILIES FLEE SUNDAY BLAZE

Two Houses and Another Is Damaged In Ninth Street

Two families were driven into the streets at 1:30 o'clock this (Sunday) morning when fire destroyed their residences.

The home of Charles K. Matthews 1010½ Ninth street, and the home of Mrs. Annie M. Grove, 1014 Ninth street, adjoining the Trenton company car barns were totally destroyed.

The home of Arthur Lowe, 1012 Ninth street, was also damaged, but the loss here is not heavy.

It is estimated that the damage will exceed $5,000.

The cause of the fire was unknown.

No. 3 Truck Will Be Repaired Monday

Work is to start Monday on repairing the No. 3 fire station truck that was damaged late last week when it went over an embankment on Bluff street and turned bottom side up. Dick Campbell, one of the firemen on the machine, was badly hurt in the wreck, but is now reported to be improving.

The damage sustained by the machine was confined to the accessories and equipment. The motor nor chassis were damaged, and should emergency demand it could be put in service at once. Work of straightening bent braces and replacing the broken equipment will take but a short time, when all the material is assembled.

In the meantime the hook and ladder truck at the Central station is out of commission with a badly scored cylinder. New blocks have been ordered, but it will be 10 days before this piece of equipment is back in use.

Habeas Corpus Sought

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, April 14.—Arguments and formal presentation of the habeas corpus application for the release of Sam Lowe, Malone bank cashier, will be made to the court of criminal appeals next Wednesday. After conferences with criminal court judges, attorneys from Waco, who today offered the application, were instructed to present the matter next Wednesday in open court.

Crouch Preaches On Crucifixion

Following an inspiring song service and special piano solo number by Alvin W. Roper, at the First Christian church last night, Evangelist Crouch spoke on the subject "Would We Crucify Jesus Today?"

His text from the account of the trial was "We Will Not Have This Man Rule Over Us?"

Introducing the sermon Mr. Crouch spoke of the combination of influences that lead to the decision of both an individual and a crowd or mob, and then related the several causes that lay back of the crucifixion of the Christ with a close and forceful comparison of these to the life of today.

These causes were religious bigotry the combination of groups and politician's powers for commercial gain, the corruption of justice, coveteousness, false social standards. They said "He Must Die." The fact is that He must die lest they repent—and they did not repent. Does the spirit that killed Jesus then exist in the world today? Evangelist Crouch declares that it does, and that people crucify the Christ afresh every day by the existence of this spirit in their hearts.

Sunday morning Mr. Crouch will speak on "The Curse of Meroz." Sunday evening the subject will be "God's Masterpiece." There will be special music at all the services.

SHERIFF ROUNDS UP TEN GAMBLERS

Ten gamblers and a pair of vags were rounded up by the sheriff's department Friday night in a raid that closed shortly before daylight Saturday morning. The officers covered the entire northern part of the county and also "shook down" several small business houses in this city.

The poker game was found in an Iowa Park hotel and the ten participants spent the balance of the night in the local jail. The vags were found in this city.

Called Too Old To Teach At 50, Continues at 77

Mrs. Sarah L. Wardner.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., April 10.—Twenty-seven years ago school head of a little town in New York decided Mrs. Sarah L. Wardner, then 50 years of age, was too old to teach school. They retired her.

Today at 77 she is the most active woman in the city of Plainfield, devotes four evenings a week to Americanization work, teaches eighth grade during the day and every summer is superintendent of the summer school.

Wesley Class Meets

The Susanna Wesley class of the Floral Heights Methodist church met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Taylor, 1609 Taylor street, with Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. M. J. Michaelias as joint hostesses. The devotional was led by Mrs. Charles Hill, following which the ladies spent a quiet afternon with their needlework.

Those present were Mesdames T. C. Thornberry, J. M. Franklin, J. M. Bland, Charles Hill, M. J. Michaelias, John Balenger, Myrtle Taylor, O. M. Reeves and John Taylor.

LAKE TO OPEN APRIL 28TH

New Manager Promises Clean Entertainment Program

The dance pavilion, swimming pool and concessions will open at Lake Wichita April 28 according to an announcement last night by E. C. Cogburn, who has taken charge as manager of the lake this year.

"I am going to run Wichita Falls' summer attraction just like they want it run this year," Mr Cogburn, who operated the resort four years ago, said last night.

"Suggestions will be appreciated from everybody and I certainly hope that the people will make their wants known. I am asking for co-operation from the people and in return I promise to give Wichita Falls just as clean a place as possible."

Shrubbery is being set out and the entire woodwork is being repainted.

Mr. Cogburn says especial attention is being paid to fun for the children this year. A play dell of their own is being prepared just for their especial benefit.

Legion To Mark Graves of Heroes

In order that the names, rank and the branch of service of Wichita Falls boys who died in action may be inscribed on the stones to be erected over the graves by the government, it is requested that friends or relatives of ex-service men buried here communicate at once with American Legion officials. It is proposed by the legion to erect tombstones over the graves of every ex-service man buried in a local cemetery, and the above data is wanted so that it may be properly inscribed on the stones.

Dr. L. I. Lucey has been named to assemble the information, and it is requested that this be sent to him at his office in the basement of the courthouse. All the data must be received not later than Thursday of this week.

It will be sent to Washington, and the stones marked and sent here in time for the decoration day ceremonies.

Approval of Irrigation Contract Will Be Voted on Saturday, May 19

Ratification of the contract drawn up between irrigation districts one and two will be voted on Saturday May 19, it was decided Saturday by the directors of the two districts. District one officials held their meeting at Iowa Park Saturday morning and the district two session was held here later in the day.

The contract, essential items of which were published exclusively in The Record News of Sunday, April 1, covers the manner in which district two is to be provided with water from the canals and storage reservoirs constructed by district one. Several changes have been made in the contract since its publication, the only material alteration being that clause providing for the number of acres that could be included in district two.

It was first stipulated that only 50,000 acres of land could be included in the district until it was proven that sufficient water was available for irrigating this territory. The figure was later changed to 100,000 acres, it is understood.

Several other minor changes were also made by the two districts but none of these affect the document materially.

The May 19 election will be to merely ratify the contract and settle a few other items incident to its execution. This will be voted on by the tax payers of both districts one and two.

Later, probably the week following the first election, a second will be held in which district two will vote on the issuance of $1,750,000 worth of bonds, proceeds from the sale of which will go as payment to district one for its water rights. This election has not yet been called but it is thought that it will be set for May 26.

Little or no opposition to the new contract is expected from the voters of the two districts, it has been intimated by irrigation officials here, the election being one of mere formality to satisfy the provisions of the law.

ELKS TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE THURSDAY

An open house with a special social session will be held Thursday, April 19, at the local Elks club rooms, Judge William H. Atwell of Dallas is to be the feature of the evening.

Several other addresses will be made and all Elks are urged to be present.

TOUSSAINT ON TRIAL MONDAY

Another Chapter To Be Added To Colorful Life

Another chapter will be started Monday in the colorful career of Henry L. Toussaint when he goes to trial a second time for the murder of his father, O. H. Toussaint, in February, 1921. Toussaint was convicted once and sentenced to hang, but the court of criminal appeals reversed the decision of the trial court and ordered a new trial.

The case came up for trial a second time last month, but was continued when it was found that material witnesses for the defense were not in town. It is not known whether these witnesses are now in the city or not, but it is believed that the case will get under way.

A special venire of 250 men was summoned some time ago, from which to select a jury.

The case will be tried in the Eighty-ninth district court before Judge P. A. Martin, it having been transferred from the Thirtieth district court, where it was originally tried. County Attorney E. L. Fulton, Assistant County Attorney Wayne Somerville and Special Prosecutor John Davenport will handle the case for the state. No district attorney or an assistant is now in office.

Toussaint is being defended by the firm of Weldon, McDonald & Cummings.

Land Measurement In Texas To Be Discussed At Technical Meeting

A paper that will go into considerable detail on land measurement systems of Texas and that will also give a mass of historical data regarding Texas is to be presented at the Technical club luncheon next Tuesday by John A. Donald, former city engineer. Mr. Donald has done considerable research work on the matter and has prepared an exceptionally interesting address.

His topic will be "Land Surveys in Texas."

A musical program to consist of a musical reading "The Legend of the Twilight Bell," to be given by Miss Elizabeth Langford and a solo "Danse Negre," by Miss Katherine Weeks, will be provided.

The meeting will be held in the Wichita club rooms.

RADIO OFFERS SHRINE BAND

Society Busy Spending Days On Golf Course and Playing Bridge

Beautiful Informal Bridge Parties Are Features of Calendar

With the advent of warmer days and the spring season, Society is amusing itself with bridge and enjoying open air sports. The golf links at the Country club have claimed a share of the enthusiasts of the game the past week, while others continue to be entertained with their usual games of bridge and "500."

Never before have the card club meetings been more attractive, each and every one claiming besides their quota of members, at least one or more table's of guests, and never before have the settings for the games been more elaborate in floral decorations.

Concluding the week filled with delightful informal affairs was the meeting Friday afternoon of the Fidelity Bridge club at the home of Mrs. W. C. Witcher who also entertained a bevy of guests, and at the same hour the meeting of the Friday Bridge club at the home of Mrs. Harry Myers, at her lovely ranch home, while on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. J. H. McCain was hostess to a group of friends, who spent several hours in the fascinating games and earlier in the week, Mrs. George Woodruff, entertained members of the Tuesday Bridge club.

LOVELY DECORATIONS

Beautiful decorations of cut flowers and potted plants were used in the decorations for Mrs. Witcher's party where six tables were arranged for the games. Mrs. Robert Hamilton won the high score club favor, and was presented with a basket of cut flowers, Mrs. C. H. Hugely won high among the guests and was remembered with a sandwich tray while Mrs. L. B. Collins won the cut prize, a combination score and table markers.

During the afternoon, two talented nieces of Mrs. Witchers, Miss Frances Ann Saunders and Miss Cornelia O'Neill, the latter from Houston, entertained the guests with a reading and piano number and also assisted the hostess in serving a dainty refreshment course to: Mesdames R. R. Clark, J. J. Mooney, D. H. Whitehill, A. W. West, Hugh Weaver, C. C. Randle, L. W. Fritz, C. C. Eckman, R. H. Patterson, Robert Hamilton, F. A. Ray, Wm. A. Maloney, W. E. Fitzgerald, Frank Keim, C. H. Rugeley, George Dobie, Julian Bobo, Paul Von Allman, A. M. Lewis, G. H. Hampshire, Glover, B. F. Leggett, L. B. Collins and Dee.

FRIDAY BRIDGE CLUB

Members and substitutes of the Friday Bridge club entertained by Mrs. Harry Myers Friday afternoon included: Misses Sadie Adickes, Sibyl Kell, Nancy Jane Harlin, Vera Hale, Adele Marcus, Louise Montgomery, Gay Gwynn, Dorothy Nolen and Mesdames W. U. McCutcheon, Ray Puckett, S. M. Gose, Jr., Leslie Stringer, Horace Robbins, Fay Woodruff, London H. Cullum, O. B. Kiel, S. H. Myers, Leonard French and Richard Davis.

In the games, Mrs. Cullum won the high score favor, a rose and gold French powder box while Mrs. Horace Robbins was consoled for low with four hand-embroidered score pads.

Mrs. Myers was assisted in serving by Mrs. S. H. Myers and Mrs. Richard Davis, and the menu consisted of a dainty chicken combination salad, cottage cheese balls, potato chips, pickles saratoga chips, wafers and ice tea, and ice cream moulded in basket shape filled with fresh strawberries topped with whipped cream and white cake squares.

MISS HERNDON HOSTESS TO "500" CLUB.

Miss Lelia Herndon, 1203 Burnett, was hostess to the "500" club Friday afternoon, when Mrs. E. N. Ashe won the high score favor.

After playing several games, a dainty refreshment plate, consisting of sandwiches, apricot whip, angel food cake and coffee, was served to Mesdames Ashe, J. M. Bradshaw, W. R. Diggs, J. H. Fowler, H. C. Hammond, G. W. Loughridge, L. D. Townsen, Willie Roberts and D. Dellis.

MRS. BYRNES HOSTESS TO LINGER LONG CLUB

Mrs. C. R. Byrnes was hostess to the Linger Long Bridge club at her home, 2015 Lucille street, Wednesday afternoon, when two tables were arranged for the games. Mrs. A. C. Southerland won the high score favor, and Mrs. E. W. Clifford was consoled for low.

Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon to Mesdames A. V. Hull, E. B. Clifford, W. L. Wineblood, W. W. Shuler, W. C. Southerland, James Ferguson, Charles Steelsmith and R. H. Ramsey.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Clifford 1705 Elizabeth street.

Youth and Love and Happiness

By ALTA HEACOCK
Waurika, Oklahoma

One day last week did a little girl friend of yours come dancing in to show you a new twinkling stone that she was wearing on her third finger?

And you kissed her and told her how glad you were for her and listened to all the things she had to tell you.

And then didn't she go gaily away leaving a strange dullness like the flight of a gaily hued butterfly leaves in its wakes, in your sunny kitchen?

And there was a tender smile on your face, half wistful, half disillusioned, as the minutes slipped away and you were having dreams in the duy, seeing the scenes of yesterday, which had been put way for safe keeping in memory's casket, strongly tied with cords of happy laughter.

You saw a dying day, with a western sky that had faded to pale gold, lavender and ashes of roses. The stars, with a wistful haunting eyes, were finding their places in the heavens.

The old apple orchard was full of pink and white blooms, odorous, and aglow with color. The sleepy bees that had busily hummed all day were calling a last goodnight, to the lovely petals that they had kissed and flirted with all through the day.

The birds were drowsily getting ready for sleep, quietly discussing family life and the rearing of their children, with an occasional love note and then—you had plighted troth and you knew that the most wonderful thing in the world was being young and loving.

And while you were still dreaming didn't man dear come in and didn't you realize anew the wonder of togetherness and the glory of the home you had been making all these years, the home that was a haven, a safe place, a beautiful place, a place of happiness and comfort?

And you left off your dreaming to exchange with him, over the head of a little "Tag-along," that all comprehending gaze which is the heritage of a husband and wife who have known bliss and blessings and have also weathered the gales for a good many years.

And didn't you have the comforting feeling that your love was true and would last till the stars grew cold, and that the skies were just as blue as those of yester-year?

I know you did. Women are just like that.

MRS. DALTON HOSTESS TO PROGRESSIVE CLASS

Mrs. W. L. Dalton, 1504 Austin, was hostess to the Progressive class of the First Methodist church, corner Seventh and Lamar, Friday evening when five tables were arranged for "42." Mrs. O. L. AUXILIARY TO OBSERVE VISITING DAY.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Baptist church will observe "visiting day" Monday, when the members are expected to visit all the sick and strangers of the church.

Social Gossip Reviewed By Peggy Piedmont In Her Charactertstic Way

Everything this week, especially in the church world, centers around the opening of the Wichita Falls District Sunday School Workers' convention which opens at the Floral Heights Methodist church and to which representatives will be present from every Methodist church in the district. Enrollment will begin today and classes will open Monday evening and continue until after Saturday evening.

Sunday school superintendents will be here from 50 churches and some of the most noted Sunday school workers in the denomination will have charge of the classes.

The work is divided into five courses; one for each night in the week, the courses to be interspersed by lectures. This school is supported by the two local Methodist churches, the Floral Heights and the First Church, South, and representatives attending will have their expenses paid by their churches.

MRS. DALTON HOSTESS TO PEN WOMEN'S CLUB

Prayers, original, poetry, editorial, newspaper stories, sport stories, stories on domestic economy, descriptive prose and blank verse, written by the members, were read at the meeting of the Pen Women's club held at the library Thursday afternoon. The session provifig one of the most entertaining and interesting of the season.

Mrs. Marie Engle Johnson contributed the paper of the afternoon, and a particularly beautiful poem written by Mrs. Dora Wade and was read by Mrs. W. A. Gee.

During a brief business session, committee reports were given and the outline prepared for next year's work was read and discussed.

Mrs. McGee and Mrs. F. V. McMordie were chosen delegates to the First District Federation meeting at Bowie, April 26, 27 and 28, and it was decided to hold the next meeting of the club at the usual place on the second Thursday in May instead of the next regular meeting day, with the program in charge of Mrs. Weldon and Mrs. Homer Talbot, this program to conclude the study work of the year.

Those present were: Mesdames Claude Williamson, W. H. Sanford, Wayne Somerville, H. F. Weldon, Homer Talbot, G. H. Abbott, F. V. McMordie, W. A. McGee, Eugene Sherrod, G. M. Holt M. E. Johnson and Miss Lucile Sherrod.

DISTRICT DEPUTY GIVEN SHOWER

Honoring their district deputy, Mrs. Hardesty-McNeely, the Barclay camp of the Royal Neighbors of Henrietta entertained Thursday evening at their hall and regular meeting. A linen shower for the honoree presented by the mascot of the camp, a little girl dressed in the colors of the order, was a feature of the meeting. The honoree was also presented with a lovely bouquet of waxed brides roses. The occasion of the affair was the recent marriage of the honor.

Among the teachers will be Rev. O. W. Moerner of Dallas; R. W. Goodlow, of the Southwestern university, Dallas; Mrs. S. W. Ray of Fort Worth; T. L. Salter of Memphis, Tenn., and E. C. Huckabee of this city.

The courses in Sunday school work is entirely free to those interested, according to Dr. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights church, so I expect that many local Sunday school teachers will take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about the work they are engaged in.

I don't mean to say, Kitty, that we are not interested in all the dances and card parties, theaters, concerts and other affairs, because we are. We are also thinking a great deal right at this time about the U. D. C. reunion, which was an event of last week, held in New Orleans, to which we sent three attractive girls—Vivian Bailey, Lucy Huggins and Winifred Pickens. Word received from the girls reveal that they have spent a wonderful week, attending many social affairs. Among them were three balls, given on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at the Aethenaeum; a luncheon at the Southern Yacht club, given by the women of New Orleans who were participating in the convention, in honor of the visiting sponsors, maids and matrons of honor; a joint reception Friday afternoon from 2 to 6, given by the Daughters of 1776 and Daughters of 1812, at their home on Peter street; a reception by the Colonial Dames, from 4 to 6, given by members of the Quartet club, who kept open house at their clubrooms, and a joint reception in Jackson square the same afternoon, when the hostesses were those of the three preceding receptions, who met in the square with their guests about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This meeting place was of particular significance, as it was here that General Jackson assembled his troops after the well-known battle of New Orleans. Other entertainments included a reception at the Old Soldiers' home by the United Daughters of the Confederacy on Wednesday; a reception at the Country club Thursday afternoon by the Frances T. Nicholls chapter U. D. C.; a reception at the American Legion home at Conti and Royal streets Thursday by the Legion auxiliary of the U. D. C. chapters.

A pretty feature also, according to our representatives, was the parade Friday morning at 11 o'clock in which prominent society girls acted as equestrian escorts to the commanding general—Gen. Julian S. Carr, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans.

Now, if you don't think this was going some for "the boys" and their fair maids and chaperones, just tell me what kind of a pace you'd set them if they'd venture to hold a reunion in old Manhattan.

Having about talked myself out o the reunion, I will now turn my attention to the brides—a most interesting subject, too—I can hear you say. You remember my writing you about Joe Kell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kell, marrying in Dallas a few weeks ago? Well, he and his wife—who was formerly Miss Corrine Sharpe, at one time a member of the Wichita Falls staff of teachers—have returned home from their wedding trip in California, and Saturday Mrs. Everett Jones, one of Wichita Falls' most charming hostesses, complimented Mrs. Kell and Mrs. Joseph Hockins III with a pretty luncheon at the Kemp hotel. A bevy of the younger matrons were invited to meet the latest bride, Mrs. Kell, and also a recent bride, Mrs. Huckins, and the affair proved one of the most delightful of the entire week.

Speaking of brides reminds me, I don't know whether or not all of the prospective grooms have yet spoken for their bridal bouquets, but if they have, or if they haven't, they may be interested to hear that "Dawn of the Morning, is the new thing in wedding bouquets. For the beautiful floral cluster, cream colored pansies have been selected for the central motif. Sweetheart roses, soft ribbon bows in showers and a bit of green are mixed with the pansies in such a way as to produce a color that the Chinese so fittingly call "Dawn of the Morning." Can you think of anything lovelier?

In my next letter I will tell you more about this—what the maids should carry, and the flower girls.

Our little theater organizations are again busy planning and rehearsing for performances to be given the latter part of this month and the first part of next. The Community Theater Players will present Booth Tarkington's "Penrod" in May under the direction of Miss Adele Marcus, who says that she has not yet definitely decided on the cast, but will know soon who will star in this performance. The Players club will present two one-act plays, Alice Gerstenberg's "Hearts" and Cecil DeMille's "Poor Old Jim." In the first production parts have been as-

D. A. R. Parties Crowd Week In Capital Society

By MARGARET EPPLER

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The flag is once more floating over the White House, signifying that the president and Mrs. Harding are again in residence after their first real holiday since the inauguration. Both the president and Mrs. Harding enjoyed ever moment of their trip and the president went to his heaped-up desk Monday morning greatly invigorated and refreshed in spirit. Washington will be the gayer for their return.

With a string of popular Easter balls behind one, D. A. R. entertainments crowded this week's social calendar as they will next week when the thirty-second continental congress will be held in beautiful Memorial Continental hall. This annual event never fails to interest Washingtonians, and the fact that it is election year intensifies the attraction. More than 2,000 delegates are expected, and a number of the candidates are well known here. The chief social event of the week will be the reception by the president, general and national officers to the delegate body in Memorial Continental hall.

One of the most exciting elections in all the long history of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, is expected to take place here on the morning of April 16.

Three women are in the triennial race for the office of president general of the society. They are Mrs. Wallace W. Bunger of Washington, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook of Cooksburg, Pa., and Mrs. William Cumming Story of New York city. The candidates have all expressed satisfaction with the progress of their campaign, and maintain an outward show of utter confidence. Their platforms have been printed, and are in the hands of the delegates, whose decision will make one of them one of the powers of American womanhood—chief of 135,000 members of the society.

It has been six years now since there has been a real fight for the office of president general. The last big contest, was in 1917, when Mrs. George Thatcher Gurnsey of Kansas won out on the first ballot over Mrs. James amHilton Lewis of Illinois and Mrs. Miller Horton of New York.

The coming election will be unique in that it will be the first time that a candidate has sought a third term in the office of president general. This candidate is Mrs. William Cumming Story, who stepped out of the office in 1917, after having served two terms.

Seven vice presidents general are to be elected by this congress; three honorary vice presidents general are to be elected for life and 10 administrative offices must be filled. For these 10 offices there are 30 candidates, 10 each on the tickets of the three candidates for president general.

The only Texas candidate for an office is Mrs. I. B. McFarland of Ausliton, who is on Mrs. Hanger's ticket for the office of reporter general to the Smithsonian institution.

More than 2,000 delegates and alternates are expected to attend the congress. The candidates will be nominated Wednesday. The election will take place the following day.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hudspeth, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Claude Hudspeth of Texas, was among the guests entertained at luncheon Thursday at Rauschers by Miss Betty Brynes, daughter of Mrs. Stanton F. Peele, in compliment to Miss Rosalyn Sentree.

Miss Lillie Beal Frost of San Antonio, a student at Ogonts school, Philadelphia, and who spent the Easter vacation here visiting her grandparents, Colonel and Mrs. Fielder M. M. Beall, has returned to Philadelphia.

Miss Edwin Griffith of Terrell, Texas, has returned to Fairman seminar, where she is a student, after a visit to Dr. and Mrs. John Thornton Ashton in Rosemont, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sims of Texas were the guests of honor Tuesday evening at a supper party given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Bingham.

Miss Catherine Carpenter of Charlotte, N. C., and Miss M. Blark of Texas are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. M .B. Stickley.

Mrs. Donald A. Robinson, wife of Maj. Donald A. Robinson, United States army, executive to the chief co-ordinator, bureau of the budget, with their three children, are visiting Mrs. Robinson's parents, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. BenJamin A. Poore, at Fort Sam ouston. Mrs. Robinson was matron of honor at the wedding of her sister, Adelaide Poore, and Capt. Charles Lawrence Bolte, aid to Maj. Gen. John L. ines, deputy chief of staff of the army, which took place at Fort Sam ouston, April 3.

Senator Morris M. Sheppard arrived the first of the week from his home in Texas. He will remain in Washington but a short while, and will then join Mrs. Sheppard and their children in Terarkana, where they will spend the summer.

Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover has joined Mrs. Glovet in their apartment at Wardman Park hotel after 10 days' absence, when he was attending the postal state conventions in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Kentucky.

J. H. Berwise, Jr., of Fort Worth Texas, arrived in Washington Monday for a visit of several days.

Texas visitors to Washington during the week included: Mr. and Mrs. Leon Blum, Dallas; C. H. Jenkins, Houston; W. D. Hunter, Houston; Jack O. Schley, Dallas.

CIRCLE ONE TO HOLD SOCIAL MEETING

Circle No. 1 of the First Baptist Woman's Auxiliary will hold a social session Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Mathis, 900 Austin. Every member is urged to be present.

LARGE HATS, NOT SMALL SHAPES, WILL BE VOGUE FOR MIDSUMMER

By ELOISE.

The large brim hat will soon be pushing the small shape aside. When the sun's rays become hotter milady will want the protection as well as the flattery of the broadbrimmed hat. In the summer the large hat most emphatically adds charm to the soft frock and whether the frock be plain or colored, or printed in the daring patterns so popular just now, the broad hat looks well with it.

Here are four styles in large hats, seen in an advance showing of midsummer millinery. They are proof not only that the large hat is to be popular, but that it will be trimmed with flowers, feathers or ribbon. At the lower left is a smart style made of gray silk and trimmed with pheasant feathers. It is a made hat with the brim slightly turned at one side and long and drooping on the other.

Two lovely flower trimmed hats are shown at the upper left and lower right. Haircloth in a tan shade makes the lower model. It is trimmed with roses in many shades of pink and two lovely blooms snuggle on the under side of the wide brim. The large picture hat above is of white georgette and straw and is trimmed with a spray of flowers at one side.

The large black hat at the upper right is a round derby crowned cloche of milan straw. It has a large black velvet bow at the back, its only trimming. This hat may be worn with the dark dress or with the filmiest of summer frocks.

First Methodist South Sunday School Class Enjoys Pretty Party

An affair of the week enjoyed by members of the D. O. D. class of the First Methodist church, south, was a delightful party at the home of Mrs. L. W. Perham, 1610 Tenth street Friday evening when the members and their husbands were present. This class which was organized two and one-half years ago with three members present, has enjoyed remarkable growth and now includes on its rolls the names of 50 women between the ages of 35 and 50 years. Mrs. E. C. Huckabee is the teacher, and Mrs. Walker, the president.

Besides the class lessons and meetings, social service work is done by its members who are all active in all lines of the church work.

An informal program was a feature of the meeting Friday evening which included music furnished by the Misses Beulah and Julia Ross and Dick Carpenter, with Miss Jessie Mae Lawler at the piano; two vocal numbers by Mrs. E. C. Huckabee, accompanied by Miss Mary Smith, and a vocal number by Miss Margaret Kaye, with Mrs. J. W. Akin, Jr., at the piano.

After the program, games furnished the diversion and refreshments were served to: Messrs. and Mesdames W. P. Crews, C. W. Gilliland, Walker, Carter, Bartell, Moffett, Mack Thomas, J. D. Bright, J. Pat Pope, E. C. Huckabee, T. A. Baggett, E. P. Haney, Sanders, Parker, Yeager, Sullivan, Edward Lard, C. M. Miller, J. W. Akin, Jr., Wilson, Mitchell, Jack Price, McGibbony J. W. Akin, Scott, and Mesdames FauntLeroy, Sloan, Jaco, Sparker, Harris, E. T. Barker and Misses Julia and Beulah Ross, Mary Smith, Jessie Mae Lawler and Frances Brooks.

signed to Mesdames A. J. McNees, E. S. Jefferies, E. T. Barker and E. H. Moore, and in the second to Mrs. Julian Montgomery, Mrs. H. O. Newton and Hilburn Nutt. So you can see we have much to look forward to in the way of entertainment, and we have certainly been blessed this whole season along this line, for we have the very best in high class entertainment.

But I fear I will grow sentimental if I dwell too long on the theater, so, going the other extreme, I want to tell you since modesty no longer demands the powder puff and lipstick be confined to the dressing table, novelty makers have thrived on inventing new cases to hold these weapons of "good looks," and one of the latest powder puff holders for the street use is made in the shape of a closed parasol. It is about six inches long from the handle to tip. Black lace covers the tiny frame, and a bow of ribbon caught at the handle is attached to a loop for milady's wrist.

The influence of the Egyptian discoveries has caused a cyclonic vogue of Egyptian fashions, from the tiniest pin to gowns and wraps, and old Tutankh-Amen may not be responsible, but it's interesting to note that several of the new Egyptian dresses have ribbon sashes which tie on the left hip.

There! I knew I couldn't close without some reference to clothes—but how can I help it, Kitty? For 'tis spring, and if all the trees and bushes and wayside shrubs put on new clothes, why shouldn't a gay female like—

PEGGY PIEDMONT.

"Europe awaits the return of her Prodigal Son, America." But when he returns it will be up to the prodigal to provite the fatted calf.—Boston Transcript.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength

This preparation for the treatment of freckles is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee. —Adv.

GUILD TO MEET MONDAY AFTERNOON

The Guild of the Good Shepherd will meet at the parish house Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Members are urged to be present.

FINE ARTS CLUB TO PRESENT ARTIST

The Fine Arts club of the high school, which is an auxiliary of the Musician's club, will present Axel Skovgaard, the noted Danish violinists, at the Palace theatre Thursday, April 26.

A Beautiful Complexion of Satin-Like Texture

The incomparable beauty of thousands of women—that smooth, satin-like skin texture so much admired—is the result of Nadinola Cream, which has proved itself for a quarter of a century, the standard bleaching and beautifying cream.

Scientists long ago discovered and combined in Nadinola Cream, elements which bleach the skin and remove tan, freckles, pimples and other discolorations. Of its own peculiar virtues, it rids the skin of impurities and leaves it smooth and beautiful.

The 50c. package will remove mild cases, the $1.00 size more stubborn cases.

Attractive Party Is Enjoyed By Members of Mrs. T. T. T. Reese Class

Friday afternoon, a delightful social affair was enjoyed by members of Mrs. T. T. T. Reese's Sunday school class of the First Christian church, when Mrs. J. W. Bolton and Mrs. D. A. Wilcoxsen's divisions were hostesses at the church parlor.

Each member and guest brought with them fruit for the Day nursery, which, when collected, filled a large clothes hamper, afterward, donated to small tots.

An informal program included two readings by Mrs. E. S. Jefferies; a violin solo by Mrs. J. H. Crouch, accompanied by Mrs. Lambreth Hancock, and a vocal number by Mrs. Ray Wilhite, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Barron.

The table was arranged banquet style, decorated in fragrant peach and plum blossoms where brick ice cream and cake was served. Plate favors were violets.

Those present included: Mesdames J. H. Terrell, G. D. Rigsby, J. E. Strong, T. J. Williams, Allen Terrell, C. D. Tromer, R. H. Stocks, Arch Tucker, Curtis Graham, Mary Lou Baker, D. A. Wilcoxsen, S. SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS ENTERTAINS

A delightfully planned party, given at the Y. W. C. A. rooms Friday evening, was the result of a contest for new members between Mrs. Clyde Foster's class of girls and H. E. Taylor's class of boys, of the First M. E. Church, South, Sunday schol. The boys were the winners and the girls graciously responded with the party.

The Y. W. C. A. rooms were prettily decorated in the class colors, purple and gold. A series of new and interesting games were enjoyed.

At one end of the room a miniature stage was arranged from which a short program was rendered. Little Misses Marjorie Foster and Dorthea Harrell gave a number of songs and encored with two short readings. Miss Josephine Fisk gave a number of songs, accompanying herself on the guitar. Miss Thelma Cain gave two readings, which were greatly enjoyed.

Following this a mock wedding was performed. Before the ceremony Misses Mable Gwinn and Margaret Akin sang a duet, "A Lovely Old Maid," and to the strains of "The Fight Is On," the flower girls entered, followed by the blushing bride and groom, Miss Beulah Gardner and Don Cameron. Mrs. Foster dressed as the minister, read the mock ceremony.

Delightful refreshments of brick cream, angel food cake and candies, in purple and gold motifs were served to Misses Vera Cain, Margret Akin, Habel Gwinn, Reba Calhoun, Beulah Gardner, Mary Louise Cox, Maxine Pope, Evelyn Barker, Bernice Taylor, Vina Keith, Roberta P'Pool, Countess Taylor, Majorie Foster, Dorthea Harrell, Virginia Walters, Viola Huffman, Josephine Fisk, Judith Sherrod, Thelma, Cain and Messrs. Herman Staton, Barton Pery, Ralph Walker, Duncan Clark, Truman Harris, Jerry Vinson, Edgar Smith, Horace Towning, Maurice Peoples, John Tyson and Lou Cameron.

Mrs. V. W. Cain and Mrs. O. F. Farrell assisted Mrs. Foster in making the evening a most enjoyable one for the young people.

This Advice Is For You If Suffering From Rheumatism

DALLAS, Texas.—"I suffered with kidney trouble and a rheumatic condition for a long time. My doctor told me I could never be cured, but I began to take Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets; took six bottles and now I am happy to say I am well, and can get about as well as anyone. I also took Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for constipation and am always glad to recommend them to anyone suffering from similar trouble."—Mrs. M. J. S. Kile, 729 So. Willomet St., Oak Cliff.

Step into any drug store and ask for a package of "Anuric," which is many times more potent than lithia. A short trial will convince you. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package, or write for free advice.—Adv.

GOING TO CHURCH TODAY?

Here's What The Pastors Are Offering

TO PREACH SERIES.

"Yielding to the urgent request of a number of my brethren, fellow members of the Walnut Street Baptist church, I will preach a series of five sermons, beginning Monday night, April 16, and running through and including the following Friday night. All believers in an old-fashioned gospel and old-time spiritual power are urged to attend and join with ours their prayers for an abundant outpouring of spiritual blessings —a real revival in a small way. There will be special music at every service, and all, both old and young, rich and poor, saint and sinner, will find a hearty welcome and we trust be helped by these services."—E. J. Yeakley, pastor.

AT GOOD SHEPHERD.

Eron T. Datson, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Episcopal) announces the subject for his sermon this morning, which begins at 11 o'clock, will be "Radicalism and Conservatism." For the offertory, the choir will sing "The Lord is Exalted," by West.

The subject for the evening sermon will be the sermon lecture on "The Evolution of Man." Mrs. Robert Lyle will sing at this hour.

"We cordially invite you to attend a service that you will never forget."

"STEWARDSHIP."

Dr. N. F. Grafton of the First Presbyterian church, announces the subject for the morning sermon will be "Stewardship." The special musical program includes an anthem, "Sun of My Soul," by the choir, and a solo, "Come Unto Me," by Mrs. Holtson.

The sermon for the evening service will be the closing one of the series which the pastor has been preaching on "The Other Life," the subject being "Relations In the Other Life."

At this hour the Shrine mixed quartet will sing "Rejoice, the Lord Is King," and Mrs. Parker will sing "In My Father's House Are Many Mansions."

CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Announcements from the First Church of Christ, Tenth and Austin streets, say that J. B. Nelson, famous evangelist of Dallas, will preach at both services today. Bible school will begin at 9:45 a. m., and preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m.

EVANGELICAL CHURCH.

As the Sabbath approaches, we are sure that the minds of each one that is a true Christian is turned toward the house of the Lord, and that they will long to follow the example of our blessed Savior which he left to us while here on this earth, and will find their way to the services of some one of the many churches of the city. We are told in Luke 4:16 that it was the custom of Christ to go to church on the Sabbath day. Everyone who lives in this community should be interested in a church of some name and denomination, and should try to be in the worship on the Sabbath day, that they may help to make the community in which they live better. If you are not going elsewhere we gladly welcome you in any and all of our services; you need the influences of some good church during this day that you may be prepared for the duties of the week. Try it once.

Sunday school at 9:45, followed by the morning sermon at 11 o'clock. This is the beginning of our revival services, and we want to insist that you come out to help us in this fight against the powers of darkness. This invitation is to everyone who is interested in the salvation of the souls of the lost, and if you are a real, true Christian, you are interested in the salvation of anyone. We want it distinctly understood that this meeting is not for the especial purpose of making evangelicals of anyone, but that, as Paul says, we might come to Christ.

The revival will continue through to the 20th of this month, and we will just announce services for the evening hour at the present, and will let you know if there is any change as the meeting continues. Again, we say, come.

Very cordially yours,
W. D. COOK,
Pastor Yale Ave Evangelical Church.

Scottish Train Is New Fad From Across the Sea

By ELOISE

Hoot, Mon!

Will you look at this novel way of using a bit of Scotish plaid? The pretty Justine Johnstone of stage fame recently returned from Europe wearing a Scotish train in this fashion over her traveling suit. It certainly made a bit of brilliant decoration and was not entirely useless, as it could be wrapped about one when on the breezy side of the deck.

A little turban trimmed with the same plaid was a captivating steamer bonnet. Otherwise her traveling suit was a reflection of the latest spring modes. The skirt was of gray and the jacket of light gray caracul made in the popular bloused effect and tied on the side. Beaver collar and cuffs trim the coatee and pompoms of beaver finish the sash ends. Gray silk hose were worn with patent leather strap slippers.

A beautiful complexion is born in your blood. It also dies there, if you let it. Blood that is rich in Blood-Cells is pure. It shows its purity through the skin.

When one pimple comes out on your face, you can be almost certain that there are more to follow. It also means that impurities are accumulating in your blood to make your complexion worse instead of better. Face creams will not solve the trouble. There is always one quick and sure way to make your complexion free from all eruptions, pimples, blackheads and muddiness by building up the skin-purifying "machinery" which is in your blood. That is by building up your red-blood-cells. S. S. S. is admitted to be the leader among skin beautifiers. Rich blood, rosy face. Poor blood, "muddy" face. There are thousands of women who wonder why their complexions do not improve in spite of all the face treatments they use. They should not continue to wonder. Increase your blood-cells,—that is the only answer. Use S. S. S.—that is the other answer. S. S. S. contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. It is also a remarkable builder of firm flesh, which is also important to beauty. It will fill out your hollow cheeks, put the "ruby" of health in your cheeks, and the sparkle in your eyes. It is all done by building blood-cells. S. S. S. does it.

Since 1826 S. S. S. has been beautifying complexions, and giving women physical charm,—all through one great secret, the blood-cell. S. S. S. is known and accepted as one of the greatest of all body-cleansers and blood-builders. Try it if you have pimples, blackheads, boils, eczema and skin eruptions. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical.

Miss Ethel Rose, 422 E. Water St., Painted Post, N. Y., writes: "I followed your advice in regard to S. S. S., and am pleased to state that I have been greatly benefited by it. All that has been said in favor of S. S. S. I have found to be true as applied to my case, as it has certainly purified my system and my complexion is now clear. As you know, my trouble was pimples on the face, neck and chest."

ROBERTS SCORES HIT IN 'GRUMPY'

Olympic Picture Shows Star in Excellent Role

Patrons of both the stage and screen all know Theodore Roberts because of his long and successful career in both fields, but never has he shown to such advantage as in "Grumpy." William C. DeMille has taken this successful stage play and made of it a really delightful picture that amuses, thrills, and at all times pleases.

Excellent as is Mr. DeMille's direction, it is Theodore Roberts to whom the lion's share of the credit for this exceptionally entertaining production is due. Roberts does not act the role of "Grumpy"—he lives it—and gives the impression of getting a rare delight himself out of the performance. He makes the role of the grouchy, grumpy, but inwardly kind-hearted old criminal lawyer intensely human. Never once does he overact, and for subtle, repressed acting, it is just about as fine as it is possible to conceive.

Nor is Mr. Roberts' superb acting the only merit to the attraction, although that alone would seem enough to insure its success. There is a vital story of the theft of a diamond which Grumpy solves through the medium of two gardenias. Though you are let into the secret immediately, it is a delight and absorbing study in following the way in which he solves the mystery, employing his own unique methods. You become so intensely interested that at times you want to put the old man wise and help him out.

All of this wound around a pretty little romance in which you feel unusual sympathy for the girl who is apparently going to give her love to the wrong man. Characteristic of William DeMille, the story is told in an exceedingly direct and straightforward manner, with no unnecessary scenes or characters, the dramatic interest and suspense being skilfully worked up and held.

The remainder of the cast gives fine support to Theodore Roberts. May McAvoy is attractive and winsome as the girl, Conrad Nagel as the unfortunate lover who loses the diamond has not much to do, but gives a good account of himself. Second only in importance to Roberts' work as an example of excellent acting is Casson Ferguson as the society thief. He carries himself with a sureness and nonchalance that is exceptionally well done and really looks the part.

The picture comes as the feature attraction at the Olympic the first three days of this week. The usual supply of comedies, new reels and topic films will also be presented.

Gorgeous Gowns Worn By Stars In Great Photoplay

There are thrills and thrills for motion picture patrons, but perhaps the most interesting of these will be the thrills that come in rapid succession in Allan Dwan's production for Paramount, "The Glimpses of the Moon," with Bebe Daniels, Nita Naldi, Rubye de Remer, David Powell, Maurice Coctello and Charles Gerrard in the principal roles.

And these thrills will not be provided by hair-breadth escapes from alligators or dare-devil leaps over cliffs, but by sheer beauty of the gowns worn by the three feminine players who have the leading parts in the picture. A list of the gowns worn by Miss Naldi, for instance, reads like the wardrobe list for an entire production.

Bebe Daniels, in the role of Susan Branch, wears a marvelous collection of gowns, wraps, negligees, suits, hats, street wraps and furs that are guaranteed to "knock the eye out" of all who see them. There is Rubye de Remer, who has the role of the frivolous Ellie Vanderlyn in Mrs. Wharton's novel, and her wardrobe for this picture includes some 20 changes.

Besides these principals there are minor feminine parts that call for luxurious costumes, and Director Dwan has seen to it that all of the women who appear in his production are smartly and appropriately gowned.

Of course, with all this gorgeous finery there is correspondingly beautiful jewelry. As an instance, Bebe Daniels' wedding gown is trimmed and edged with real pearls valued at $10,000. A necklace worn by Rubye de Remer in this wedding scene cost $08,000.

"The Glimpses of the Moon" will be the feature at the Olympic theater next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. David Powell is leading man.

EMPRESS SHOWS 'DRUMS OF FATE'

Mary Miles Minter Has Appealing Role In New Film

Charles Maigne, Paramount director, has proved himself a disciple of William DeMilles' policy of "making pictures without destroying literature," in his direction of "Drums of Fate," a new Paramount picture with Mary Miles Minter, which comes to the Empress Monday and Tuesday.

Very few alterations of the original novel, "Sacrifice," by Stephen French Whitman, which is one of the most recent contributions to American fiction, had to be made. This was due to the fact that the story had excellent screen possibilities—in fact, its situations were all capable of picturization and its characters strong, picturesque and highly interesting.

So suitable was this particular story for screen adaptation, that the author's original manuscript was purchased by the producers, before the book went to the press, early in 1922.

The distinctive features of this story are an unusual love interest, hinging on the romance of the man and the girl, each of whom has fallen in love with the other's photograph two years before their meeting.

200 Delegates Will Go To Frederick Meet

Special Dispatch to Record News

'Sin Flood' Even Pleases Director

Frank Lloyd, well-known motion picture director, has made many splendid pictures, and directed a number of famous actors, but he says he has never worked with a stronger cast than that in "The Sin Flood," his latest Goldwyn picture, which will be shown at the Gem, theatre, Tuesday.

Says this famous director:

"Every motion picture director has a dream cast—that is, has picked out in his mind a certain group of actors he would like to see in the same picture. I have realized one of my dream casts in 'The Sin Flood.' This cast, for balance, finish, artistry and characterizations it has never been my pleasure to see excelled. With a strong story like Henning Berger's plus the cast that plays it, motion picture making is sheer joy."

Real Whale Hunt Staged For Film

The hunting and harpooning of what is claimed to be the largest humpbacked whale ever caught in waters off the Pacific coast is shown in "All the Brothers Were Valiant," the Metro screen version of Ben Ames Williams' powerful sea story, which will be presented at the Empress for four days, opening Wednesday, April 25.

Irvin Willat directed the picture. The whale was landed by the crew of the Port Saunders, northwest of Trinidad, which is the leading whale station of the Pacific coast. It weighed 57 tons.

Director Willat and his assistant, Bud Erickson, Cameraman Bob Kurrle, Harry Temple and several members of the cast made the trip to Trinidad. Here they spent more than a week filming important episodes of the story.

Big Forest Fire Features Strand Picture, "Hearts Aflame," Monday

"Hearts Aflame," announced as one of the biggest spectacular photoplays of recent years, is to be presented at the Strand theatre on Monday where it will begin a run of three days. It is Reginald Barker's latest production, released by Metro, and it adds considerably to the fame of this director of big pictures.

One thing in particular has attracted widespread attention in connection with this picture, and that is a vivid and exciting forest fire, which is said to surpass anything of the kind ever before presented in motion pictures. In order to reproduce it for screen purposes a tract of timber was ignited and 20 cameras photographed it from many angles. It is through this raging blaze that Anna Q. Nilsson runs a locomotive; and in staging this realistic episode the celebrated screen actress was painfully burned. Her injuries kept her confined in ahospital for several weeks.

The forest fire is one of seven big scenes in the picture. There is, in addition, the blowing up of a dam, done to release thousands of logs which lay stranded and imprisoned. Another big scene is the dynamiting of a hillside, necessary to prevent the spread of the forest fire.

In the cast are Frank Keenan, who returns to the screen after a period of retirement; Anna Q. Nilsson, the brave miss of the Michigan woods; Craig Ward, as the son of a wealthy father, who leaves his home to redeem himself. Others are Richard Headrick, Russell Simpson, Richard Tucker, Stanton Heck, Martha Mattox, Ralph Cloninger, Lee Shumway and Irene Hunt.

"Hearts Aflame" was produced for Louis B. Mayer. It was adapted by J. G. Hawks and L. G. Rigby from Harold Titus' novel, "Timber." The photography is the work of Percy Hilburn. Walter Mayo was assistant director.

LARRY SEMON STRAND COMIC

He Plays "Pied Piper" Role In "The Barnyard"

One of the big laughs in "The Barnyard," a Larry Semon comedy which will be shown at the Strand theatre Monday, occurs when Larry starts to play af late. On this occasion the music was so entrancing that a person just couldn't keep still. Even the empty shoes of the chore boy did a weird dance.

Larry is an accomplished musician and can play about any instrument made. On this occasion he played a jazz selection and when complimented on his talent by Kathlyn Meyers, his leading woman, Larry replied:

"Jazz is not music! It is a cacophony of unamalgamatedw sounds, the apotheosis of tonal blatancy, and a pandemonium ensemble of boiler factory riot. It is a delirium tremens picnic with old St. Vitus wielding a pitchfork for a baton. History will mention it as a nerve distemper accompanied by marked hysterical manifestations which assumed epidemic form in the early part of the twentieth century, but which finally gave way to a new birth of world-wide appreciation of the type of music which Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Wagner and other masters of the old schol left as a priceless heritage to mankind."

"I never thought it was quite as bad as all that," said Miss Meyers, "but last night when the tenant in the apartment above me started to play jazz at 3 o'clock in the morning I felt like expressing myself in much worse language."

Tom Mix Opens Thursday at Strand

Admirers of Tom Mix and lovers of the western drama will have a treat in store for them Thursday when Tom Mix opens a three-day engagement at the Strand in his newest and, what is said to be, his greatest picture, "Romance Land."

"Romance Land" is a real he story, having for its theme the tale of a Texas ranger. Tom is at his best in the picture and is given plenty of opportunity to display his splendid horsemanship, and with the aid of Tony, his famous equine companion, does some new and startling stunts. Of course there is a love theme in the story, and in this particular case it is one that is said to be unusually pretty. "Romance Land" is a typical Tom Mix picture and the critics say his very best.

BE CAREFUL, LITTLE COWGIRL

"Cowboys, perhaps, have more nerve than any other class of athletes," according to Ray H. McKinley, manager of the Triangle Ranch Rodeo and Pageant of Progress, which will be staged on Tom L. Burnett's ranch, April 19, 20, 21 and 22. "I can recall many incidents since I have been connected with the rodeo game to bear out this statement. For instance, there is probably no one who saw the daring plunge into the midst and around the heels of a bunch of broncos made by Slim Caskey in the bulldogging at the round-up in Wichita Falls two years ago that ever expected to see the big bulldogger enter another contest, the flying heels of many of them barely missing Slim's head as he caught and twisted his steed to earth in a mudhole near the corral, where the broncs had been tied. To those who knew the situation surrounding Slim and knew that one of the animals that seemed to be trying his best to get at the big bulldogger with his heels was the noted man-killer 'Deerfoot,' with already three victims to his credit, the fact that Caskey did escape uninjured was more of a miracle."

Many will recall in the same roundup that Buddy Timmons had a leg broken in the steer riding, and that the closing event of the roundup was the steer riding in which Tommy Douglas had an arm broken, but these boys are back in the game. They are always impatient for a limb to heal or bones to knit so that they can get back to their favorite sport, and they are the hardest people in the world to keep in a hospital or sick room.

The girls, too, are as daring as the boys. For instance, at the roundup here last May, an overzealous bronc, in trying to throw Bea Kirnan from the saddle, overstepped himself and fell, pinning the rider underneath; twice more the animal fell with the nervy little rider, and each time she would mount to the saddle again after being liberated and the horse once more on its feet, until the animal was finally ridden out. Miss Kirnan was very badly bruised when the ride was completed.

Another instance in the Wichita Falls roundup last year which showed that the rider had plenty of nerve, was the ride made by Rose Smith, after her bucking mount had fallen broadside with her and had broken her ankle by pinning her underneath. With a broken ankle, she still insisted on finishing the ride, and made an excellent one, and few who saw the great display of nerve realized the pain that the broken member was causing the rider.

According to McKinley, there will be more riders entered at the coming rodeo than have ever entered a contest in this section before.

'Mighty Lak' A Rose' At Empress

Only a hair's breadth divides tragedy from comedy, and it is at the moment when our eyes are filled with tears that we are ready to laugh at the slightest provocation. Likewise the greatest laughter comes when we have just been on the bring of impending tragedy, and it is the director who realizes this and carries his audience to emotional heights—then lets it smile—is the producer whose pictures live long in the memory. Edwin Carewe has accomplished this in his First National production, "Mighty Lak' a Rose," which opens a four-day run at the Empress Wednesday.

The story has as its theme the redeeming virtues of music and its power to sway the lives of people, but back of this is still a deeper thought. Simply, the tale tells of Rose Duncan, a beautiful young blind girl, whom fate throws in the hands of "Bull" Morgan, leader of a gang of thieves. He proposes to use her as a foil in his crooked dealings. Jimmie Harrison, a young member of "Bull's" clique, falls in love with Rose, and through her gentle nature and her music begins to realize the futility of the life he is leading and hopes to regain his place in the world of honest folk.

Bull's other companions, "Hard Boiled" Molly Malone and "Slippery Eddie" Foster, do not so soon come under the spell of her influence, and it is in a fight between Jimmy and the hard-fisted boss of the gang that Rose is injured.

This brings to all of them an awakening and a resolve to go straight.

Exposure to the sun's rays increases the rate of life processes going on in the body and causes fatigue just as voluntary exercise does.

WATER MEN TO MEET IN CITY

Southwestern Association Coming For Convention In June

Some of the "biggest men in the South" are to be in Wichita Falls June 18, 19, 20 and 21 when the Southwestern Waterworks association holds it annual convention here, according to officials in charge of local arrangements. Public announcement has not been made of all those planning to attend the sessions, but mayors and other city officials from 10 states have been invited and a large percentage will probably take advantage of the opportunity to visit this part of the state.

The exact size and scope of the convention has not been fully realized in Wichita Falls, but it is pointed out that over 400 delegates are certain to be on hand for the four-day session. It is also stated that when the convention was obtained at Hot Springs, Ark., last fall, it was found that Wichita Falls is the smallest city ever to be awarded the annual meeting.

Local delegates at the Hot Springs session were forced to do some extensive arguing before their quest was successful. The matter of banquet halls, hotel accommodations and entertainment features were gone into thoroughly by the convention committees and it was promised that ample provision would be made here for all those who came for the meetings.

A banquet is to be tendered by the chamber of commerce on one evening and a second will be provided the guests by the Manufacturers' association. The second day, the entire crowd will be taken to the irrigation dam for an inspection tour and a big barbecue will be given there.

The Southwestern Waterworks association is composed of water department executives from 10 states, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi. Its purpose is to develop greater efficiency in water works systems and to promote the general welfare of those operating the water systems of cities in the Southwest.

Gas Being Exhausted

The United States Bureau of Mines in a recent bulletin gives results of study of the natural gas fields that should prove of interest to all who enjoy this remarkable fuel. This bulletin says:

"This decline and exhaustion of gas fields indicates that new gas is not formed to replace that withdrawn, and suggests that if natural gas is now being generated by nature, it certainly is being generated very slowly, and the quantity is negligible when compared with the amount being used.

Inevitable Result

"The inference to be drawn from the behavior of known gas fields is that, from a practical standpoint, the natural gas now being used has been generated during past ages; a limited amount remains in the earth and when this supply has been removed from the fields no more will be forthcoming.

"The quantity of natural gas available to any community is determined by the resources of fields lying within a reasonable distance from that community, as the expense of transmitting gas for greater distances is prohibitive."

Only thru the organization of big systems can communities be sure of a gas supply. While for a short time a local supply may prove adequate, it is inevitable that this source must be exhausted, then the gas must be drawn from widely separated points if the comfort of the public is to be maintained.

Only those who are engaged in this business realize the high costs and the hazards necessary to maintain a supply of natural gas. No other branch of public utility service is handicapped so much by the uncertainty of its supply and the unknown cost of obtaining it.

TIRES REQUIRE LESS PRESSURE

Dayton Starts Unique System Of Building New Tires

A radical improvement in the construction of tires is indicated by the announcement of the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing company of Dayton, Ohio, that Dayton Thorobred cords are built to deliver their maximum service when inflated with pressure 15 to 20 pounds lower than has heretofore been recommended. This means that a 29x3½ tire can now be inflated to between 30 and 35 pounds instead of the customary 50 pounds.

The importance of this announcement is recognized when consideration is given to the advantages that under-inflation brings to the motorist.

Advantages Named.

John A. MacMillan, president of the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing company, in commenting on this subject, points to five very definite advantages of under-inflation. He says:

"First, and of greatest importance, is the additional comfort that can be secured by the shock absorbing qualities of reduced air pressure. In selection of an automobile, the customer gives great thought to comfort.

"Of second importance is the fact that tires inflated to a high pressure are obviously injurious to the car, and instead of providing a soft cushion to relieve the chassis and body from the direct shock of road obstructions, a highly inflated tire actually accentuates each bump or vibration so that reduced air pressure means fewer repairs and longer life to the automobile.

Other Advantages.

"Two other obvious advantages lie in the facts that the reduced air pressure prevents skidding and that a tire that is under-inflated yields to the obstructions in the road and therefore punctures less readily than one that is highly inflated."

"For this same reason under-inflation protects the tread of a tire fro mchips and cuts, and causes it to deliver thousands of additional miles of service.

"In building a tire for under-inflation, it was necessary to overcome the three major weaknesses which ordinary tires develop when the pressure is reduced. These are rim cut, tread separation, and the bulging of the carcass, sometimes called sand blisters."

Business Good at Huff Motor Co.

With a record breaking month for March and indications of another for April, the Arthur Huff Motor Co., are looking forward to a big year for local Oakland sales.

And Henry Still Grinds Out His Flivvers; 100,000 a Month Is Record

"April will eclipse by far all past records for new Ford sales in Wichita Falls," said Clyde Red of the Langford Motor Supply company, Saturday. "We are making the largest number of deliveries since the opening of our agencies, not excluding the boom days when Fords were at a premium. April sales this month so far have gone beyond March, and if present deliveries keep up we will eclipse any past month of our business.

"People of all walks of life are quick to recognize the dollar-for-dollar value of the Ford, and are buying them for every use," Mr. Red said.

On April 1 the Ford company completed one full year in which Fords have been going into use at a rate of more than 100,000 a month, bringing the total well over 1,500,000 for the 12 months' period. Since the price reduction of $50 last October, which brought Ford cars and trucks to the lowest level in the history of the company, and with sales running above the 100,000 mark for the five consecutive months since, the saving to Ford buyers in that time through reduction has added more than $25,000,000 to their purchasing power for other necessities. Nearly 6,000,000 Ford cars and trucks are in use in the United States at the present time.

What is Your "Mileage Basis?" Oakland Tells

Reports from all sections of the country to the Oakland Motor Car company indicate an "oversold" condition. There has been a large increase in sales over the same period last year.

Officials of the company attribute this large increase in sales to the fact that the "mileage basis" plan is in line with the thoughts of motorists in wanting to know just how many trouble-free miles they may expect of a car before purchasing it, and to the fact that records on hand have shown that the figures in the "mileage basis" plan are conservative.

The "mileage basis" plan consists of definite assurance of mileage covering from two to five years—and even the life of the car—on all the vital mechanism.

There are seven items in the "mileage basis" plan, covering the motor bearings, valves, connecting rod bearings, cylinders, pistons, piston rings, tires, transmissions, axles, frames, steering gear and body.

"These mileage assurances run from 15,000 to 40,000 miles," states C. J. Nephler, general sales manager, "which means years of service.

"There is no more reason why a man should not know and budget his personal transportation expense any more than his household or business expense.

Increase Expected In Auto Prices, Dealer Here Says

"Every individual who contemplates the purchase of a new car should buy now," is the timely advice given out by J. P. Moulder of the Wilhelm-Moulder Co., local Cleveland Six distributors. "Fundamental business conditions and the rising raw material market point to higher automobile prices.

"Practically every manufacturer of motor cars is facing the same situation. Automobile prices cannot stay down if material prices continue to advance by leaps and bounds as they have been during the last few months.

"A brief resume of recent happenings in the raw material market will serve to substantiate the claim that prices of materials are on the upward trend. Cotton is practically double in price. Hides have advanced 3½ cents per pound in the last year. Tin has jumped from 29 cents to 42 cents per pound. Copper is 25 per cent higher. Lead is about double its last year price. Basic pig iron is quoted around $28 from $18, while Bessemer steel billets have risen from $28 to $40. Aluminum shows a rise of 28%.

BUY FORDS ON WEEKLY PLAN

Small Purchase System Outlined For Buyers Of Cars

"The Ford Weekly Purchase Plan is going to be a boon to many families and permit them to buy a car much quicker than they ever dreamed," W. S. Langford of the Langford Motor Supply Co., local Ford dealer said today in discussing the new plan which is creating such widespread comment and which is being enthusiastically received everywhere.

"In my experience as a Ford dealer, and I believe it is true with every other dealer and salesman as well, I have not many people who expressed their desire to own a Ford, and who frankly told me that somehow they never could get together enough money to make the initial payment on one.

"The result was, of course, that they went on wanting a car and hoping that some day something would turn up whereby they could get a car.

"Now that 'something' has turned up: The Ford Weekly Purchase Plan simplifies it all and makes it easier tocome into ownership of a car.

"It is constructive automobile buying in the simpliest and easiest form and presents to countless families all over the country the long wished for opportunity of enjoying motor car benefits and pleasures.

"Richt here in our own city it will be more than welcome. Take the family where, say, the father is not the only wage earner, but where perhaps a son or a daughter or two are at work. The family never has enjoyed a car, yet every member times without number has expressed a desire to own one.

"Under the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan there is no reason at all why such a family should not soon own a Ford car. If each member contributes just a little of his or her earnings each week it will hardly seem any time at all before the whole family will be enjoying a car.

"What is true of the family is true also of the individual who wants a car.

"And one of the most appealing features of the plan is that it is adaptable to the means of practically everyone. The weekly payments, which are deposited to the credit of the customer in the bank and draw interest at the regular savings rate, may be fixed to suit the desires of each purchaser. What could be easier than that!"

300 CRIPPLED CHILDREN RIDE IN REO SPEED WAGON

Many are the unusual problems which confront municipalities and other various departments but one of the most knotty and perplexing has been solved by the Department of Motor Transportation of the city of Detroit.

The matter of transporting 320 crippled children to and from their special schools each day was the task put up to the city of Detroit with the result that 12 Reo speed wagons equipped with bus bodies were purchased after a careful study and survey of the various motor vehicles which were adaptable for use in this capacity.

In the selection of the transportation units it was necessary to take two vital factors into consideration. First, the children, naturally delicate, would have to ride protected from the jars and jolts of ordinary bus travel. Second, the power plant in any bus to be used in the transportation of these little cripplies would have to be absolutely dependable as a stalled motor on a cold night or unnecessary delays in making the trip might cause serious consequences to the young passengers.

March Big Month For Willard Co.

March proved the biggest month in point of production that the Willard Storage Batter company of Cleveland has ever had, according to an announcement just made by R. C. Norberg, vice president and general manager of the company.

"We had hardly expected to attain the value of production now reached until later in the year," said Mr. Norberg, "but the growing popularity of radio and the increase of closed car sales permitting motoring in any kind of weather has increased our sales to an enormous extent and production must necessarily keep pace with the increased sales."

MARMON SHOWS NEW SPEEDSTER

Car For Four Designed For Those Who Motor As Hobby

Spring and a new Marmon four-passenger speedester arrived simultaneously at the plant of the Nordyke & Marmon company, of Indianapolis. It was no coincidence, however, for Marmon distributors has known for a long time that the factory had been engaged in producing a four-passenger car of the speedster type which would especially appeal to those who make motoring a hobby.

This car, which will be available in most cities in May, embodies all of the characteristic Marmon features but in its design greater stress than ever has been laid upon flowing, horizontal lines. According to its makers, those who have closely observed the development of Marmon body styles will detect in it many pleasing refinements of design.

It is priced at $3,435, f. o. b. Indianapolis.

Cleveland Sales Running In High

Cleveland Six sales have always been very good, year after year, but never as big as they are going to be this year, if present sales can be used as a criterion," says Sid Black, vice president of the Cleveland Automobile company.

"The new models of the Cleveland Six have met with keen buying interest in all sections. Since the first of January, orders have been coming into the factory in such volume that the production department has been obliged to increase its working forces. No sooner is a production schedule decided upon than a new one has to be worked out to keep paces with the number of orders being received."

Safety Last Tells You to Step On Gas When You Meet String of Cars Ahead of You and Have Some Behind

By SAFETY LAST.

If life is growing monotonous and your feet are itching to go on a long trip, and you're not real particular just where you go, take my advice and try a few of these recipes, which have the full endorsement of the Undertakers union and the "Don't Care" society, as well as the Society for the Prevention of Careful driving.

Wichita Falls automobile dealers, service station managers and members of the traffic squad tell me that many local motorists are using these recipes with good results. I'm glad to see so many joining our ranks. My only regret is that we haven't room in Joyriders Paradise to take care of the influx of motorists who will be applying for admission, if they follow our advice:

1. Every time you stop at a filling station to buy gasoline, be sure to remove the cap on the gasoline tank and light a cigarette at the same time. The fumes from the gas tank, igniting with the cigarette, will assure you a prolonged journey, in many cases. Wichita Falls owners have lost their cars through this experiment, as any service station manager or member of the fire department will tell you.

Never Stop for Trains.

2. When you see a train coming, be sure to step on the gas and beat it across the track. It will save you time, and is one sure way of having your friends send you flowers. You won't be able to smell them, but they'll be there. Running on a straight track, there will be no chance for the engineer to dart around you, and having brakes that work slow in such cases, he is certain to hit you if you keep trying it.

3. The next time it rains and the streets around the corner of Eighth and Scott, or Indiana, or any other street, are wet and suippery, try coming around the corner on two wheels at a fair rate of speed. Slippery roads are especially good, too, for this experiment. I've seen it work both ways, and it always manages to bust a wheel or do some damage.

Another Popular Game.

4. When you're traveling out the Burkburnett, Electra, Lake, Henrietta, or any of the other good roads around Wichita Falls, and there is a big string of cars ahead of you and another string coming from the opposite direction, see how near you can come to the head of the column. The best way to do this is to dart in and around the various cars ahead of you, step on the gas and see how near you can come to the fender on the car coming from the opposite direction. This is quite a popular game around Wichita Falls, and several of my friends have managed to have their widows cash in on good insurance policies because of this harmless game.

5. Street cars, too, are nice toys to play around with. It always gets the motorman's goat to dart in front of his car just as he is about to turn a corner. Sometimes, out of spite, he will nick a little paint off your fender or give you a ride on the cowcatcher, but most times he'll stop for you. Of course, if he does not see you, you're in luck and he's sure to hit you, maybe throwing your car and dumping you on the soft part of your head.

6. Another sure way of forgetting our troubles is to park your car at the speed of 20 miles or more right in front of someone's nice, new car and seeing how much of a dent you can make in his fender, or how much of the bright, shiny, new paint you can scrape off. This is an especially good recipe for trucks and delivery wagons, and is a popular game with them around the city.

7. When you see a car coming up a right-of-way street and you are darting in from a side street, never slow up for him, if you can beat him around the corner. If he hits you hard enough, he'll turn your car around a few times, bust a couple of wheeds for you and maybe give you a one-way trip over the Pullman route. This is a lot of fun.

The Traffic Markers.

8. Those little knobs you see in the middle of the streets were put there as a resting place for flies. Just disregard these little iron balls —they don't mean anything, and the city thought they might look pretty out there in the street. Go on the left side of them; it will save you about three feet and give your passengers in the back seat a thrill when they see how near that truck, coming from the other direction, came to running into you.

9. Every time you stop to let a passenger out, stop right suddenly. Never stick your hand out the side of the car, or the folks back of you will think you're going to stop and slow up, thus robbing them of a real surprise and you of a good chance to get hit.

10. When you park in the downtown district and the parking spaces around the curb are taken up, just stop in the middle of the street; it's all right as long as someone is in the car, and the other cars coming and going can dart around you.

11. Here's an old recipe that never seems to fail, at least not often: When you hear a car coming up from the rear at a high rate of speed and he "honks" for you to get out of his way, always get over in the middle of the road and show him that your little old buzz wagon is no slouch, either, when it comes to hitting the high spots. Keep looking back to see that he isn't getting the best of you, and if there is a nice, sharp curve ahead of you and you don't see it—well, try it and see for yourself. This is one of the best ways we know of to get your name in black type.

There are many other ways to get a steady lifetime job shoveling coal or playing a harp, but these are among the best. I may have missed a few, and if you know of any of them, I'd be glad to hear from you. Mail all inquiries to "Safety Last," care of Record News. We'll publish them next Sunday.

Production Gains At Olds Plant

Production at the Olds motor works, Lansing, Michigan, during February showed a 149 per cent gain over the same month of last year, according to G. H. Peasley, general sales manager of the Olds Motor Co.

Sales for the first half of March exceeded those of the same period for February by 89 per cent. Present indications are that March, 1923, sales will exceed those of March, 1922, by well over 200 per cent.

January production figures showed a gain of 203 per cent over January of 1922.

Mr. Peasley also said that the shipment figures for February showed a net gain of 17 per cent over January and he believes that the figures will continue to advance during the early months of the present year.

Recent reports show that business conditions generally are getting better and automobile sales, especially in the South, will be much greater this year than ever before.

Olds Adopts New Repair Cost System

The Olds Motor Works is the latest company to establish a flat service system, whereby Oldsmobile owners in all parts of the country may know just what any specified repair work will cost. The system, which has just gone into effect, makes it possible for any owner to drive into an authorized service station and be told within a few minutes just what the charge will be. Owners will also be insured of a uniform rate throughout the country.

The factory service department asserts that the figures given the dealers' service departments throughout the country were so arranged that the owner would be given a maximum price for a repair job and if a saving in time or material was effected in the shops the owner would pay for this only, thus he would receive a bill for less than the estimate quoted him. It is the contention of the Olds factory officials that too many service stations have geen in the habit of estimating a repair job and then charging the owner more than their estimate, but with the flat-rate system this is impossible.

JONES RETURNS TO PLANT HERE

Salesman Back With Local Overland Agency

E. L. Jones, well-known local automobile salesman, has returned to Wichita Falls, and is again in charge of the White Truck interests of the Overland Motors company.

Mr. Jones states he has been in several cities and in various adjoining states since leaving here, but none of them looked quite so good to him as the "City That Faith Built." He states he is looking forward to a big season for truck sales and is willing to take several new Whites in operation in the adjoining fields.

The Overland Motors company carries about $5,000 worth of truck parts in stock, and are in position to service trucks at all times without sending to the factory for parts and waiting.

DEMANDS FOR MARMON GROWS

Market For High Priced Cars Declared To Be Strong

Information received from Marmon production followed by distributors this week by Walter C. Marmon, president of the Nordyke & Marmon company, substantiates in the high quality field a tendency which has been increasingly apparent since the automobile shows that 1923 would eclipse all sales and production records in the motor car business, with the possible exception of 1920.

"In analyzing our results for the first quarter," says Mr. Marmon, "we find that our shipments have averaged more than 57 per cent in excess of last year's business and 143 per cent over 1921.

"We are entering the second quarter with orders which show promise of doubling the business done during the months of April, May and June a year ago.

"While the market for a car in the Marmon price class is ordinarily associated principally with the larger cities, a large part of the present gain is coming from rural districts and smaller communities, which is one of the most interesting signs from the standpoint of general business recovery."

STAR OWNERS HAVE OUTING

216 Go Out and Score Perfect Day In California

Ever since the Star car was first introduced in Southern California its popularity has steadily increased until today it is accepted without question as the preferred means of economical yet enjoyable transportation, by a rapidly increasing legion of motor car enthusiasts.

Recently as a result of the unanimity of opinion so far as motor car choice was concerned, 216 Star car owners with their friends started out 1,084 strong, on one of the most unusual trips ever attempted in California.

As guests of Walter M. Brown of Los Angeles, these 216 Star car owners with their passengers left the city one Sunday morning a few weeks ago for an outing and barbecue at Bran'ts Mountain Crags. Not a single mishap occurred to mar the perfect score of the day. For 28 miles the 216 Star Cars stretched out like a gigantic dragon three miles long winding through crowded city street, wide valley boulevards and narrow mountain roads, up grades and down. Wherever the cars went, the natives stopped in their tracks to gaze upon the almost endless procession.

Though it looked like rain early this Sunday morning, the Star owners began to gather at Washington and Figueron streets long before the appointed hour. When the time for starting arrived, both sides of Figueron street for four blocks were packed with Star cars backed into the curb with banners and badges suggestive of a gala day, much in evidence.

After the motion picture cameras had clicked the record of the unusual scene, the caravan started west on Washington street and thence through the Wilshire district and Hollywood to Cahuenga Pass, where the 216 cars each rushed over the grade with obvious ease. When the cars rolled down into San Fernando Mission the first stop was made and here again, motion pictures were made of the gathering of cars and people.

Just one hour and a quarter had been used in traveling the 28 miles which is very good time for a parade of so many cars to make.

At the Crags, the 1,082 guests were treated to a delicious barbecue and after that the officials measured the gasoline consumption of the cars that had entered in the economy test for the cup which was to be given away together with ten other prizes, each one of which was a useful accessory for a Star car. The grand award, the Walter M. Brown Cup, for the highest mileage and most perfect score among all the Star car owners, was won by William Henry Smith, who averaged 35.33 miles per gallon.

The grand average of all cars in the contest was 21.98 miles per gallon of gasoline, which is a remarkably high average, considering the great number of cars in the run and the inexperience of many of the drivers. No effort was made to obtain incredible results. It was desired that a mileage such as the average owner could get would be established and 22 miles on a gallon of gasoline is a very creditable one.

Boyer Back From Battery Meeting

C. H. Boyer of the Wichita Falls Battery Co., returned Wednesday from Dallas where he attended a convention of Williard Storage Battery dealers, held at the Jefferson hotel Tuesday. Mr. Boyer states a most interesting and entertaining meeting was enjoyed by about 200 Willard dealers from the Southwestern district, which is comprised of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and part of New Mexico. A. S. Gardner, sales manager; S. F. Rolf, assistant to the general manager; S. W. Baldwin, Williard advertising manager, and F. E. Baldwin of the radio sales department, were among the speakers for the meeting.

The Dallas meeting is one of a series held in the various 82 districts of the Williard company throughout the country. Mr. Boyer states that all officials of the company and various delegates present, expressed themselves as optimistic regarding present and future Willard sales.

500,000 BOOTLEGGERS MUST PAY TAXES

International News Dispatch

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The government today decided to launch a campaign to force illicit whisky dealers to disgorge millions of dollars alleged to be due the government in taxes in liquor sales. Internal revenue collectors, co-operating with prohibition authorities have been ordered to dig into the records gathered in raids and seizures for evidence to compel payment of the hidden revenues.

Revenue experts estimated today there are probably 50,000 wealthy bootleggers in the United States, liable for tax payments and penalties provided by law for defaulting.

CHESTER CONCESSION OFFICIALLY DEDICATED

Associated Press Dispatch

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13.—"Our mothers, sisters and wives have toiled in the past, carrying shells on their heads against the national foe. In the future, thanks to the proposed railways, they will not be sacrificed."

Thus spoke Rcurf Bey, premier, addressing the great national assembly at Angora, which aproved the Chester concession. It was considered one of the strongest arguments used in favor of ratification of the project.

The plan of the Chester syndicate proposes to embrace the famous copper mines at Erghana and also is expected to tap the supposed oil fields between Bitlis and Mosul.

DEMOS FACE THREE ISSUES

Republicans To Wage Attack On Ku Klux Stand

By B. N. T. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 14—Three big obstacles to democratic success in the next congress which meets in December are seen by republican leaders in the ku klux klan, prohibition and the league of nations, and plans of the president's advisers are said to contemplate the keeping of these three subjects constantly before the democrats, so they will all be live issues when the nominating convention is held. It may require a little more of strategy and little less of direct action than republican leaders are accustomed to employ, but the only hope of republican success seems to lie in destroying such harmony as may exist among the democrats, so they will go into the campaign divided, as they were three years ago.

The ku klux issue will be raised immediately on the assembling of congress, the first Monday in December, when Earle B. Mayfield will offer to take the oats of office as a senator from Texas. Credentials, showing him to have been duly elected, have been filed with the senate, but protest against his seating has already been filed, and a vigorous fight against permitting him to take his seat will be waged. The ku klux organization is represented as having conducted his campaign and supported him in the election, while expenditures far in excess of the legal limit are said to have been made in his behalf.

The fight against the seating of Mayfield will be virtually a fight on the klan, and it, rather than Mayfield, will be on trial in the senate. No better stage could have been selected than the senate for bringing the ku klux into politics, and republican leaders seem to be of the opinion the ywll have little difficulty in successfully using it to embarrass the democratic party.

Whether the democrats can so handle the situation as to avoid estranging either the Southern states, where the ku klux is strong, or northern states whose democrats are largely Jews and Catholics, may be questioned. In any event, the republicans propose to put the ku klux question straight up to the democrats in the senate, by undertaking to eject Mayfield from that body because of his ku klux affiliation. And they will make it as embarrassing for the democrats as they can in doing so.

Holding the democrats of a state like New York, who elected a Catholic governor by nearly 400,000 plurality; or a city like Chicago, where they elected a Catholic mayor by more than 100,000 plurality; and at the same time keeping its footing in a state like Texas, which elected the choice of the ku klux klan as senator in a contest where the klan was the principal issue, is going to be considerable of an undertaking, and the republicans propose to see that the subject is kept actively before the people right up to the assembling of the next convention.

And the prohibition issue is also to be kept to the front in the democratic deliberations, if the republican leaders do not fall down in their plans. Subtle but effective agitation is to be kept up in the most effective quarters by Republicans desirous of embarrassing the democrats, and an effort will be made by them to have the question of modification or enforcement of the present laws made an issue among democrats which will result in putting every possible candidate upon the prohibition rack, with a view to dividing his support, whichever side of the question he may take.

While it has not been even intimated that the president's recommendation that the United States assume membership in the international court was for the purpose, still it has had the effect of keeping up the league of nations discussion among democrats. In this way the president's recommendation has been aided in the general plan of keeping before the democrats subjects on which they are not united.

It is not necessary for the republicans to keep the foreign policy before the democrats, for they are doing that themselves. Despite the seven million majority for Harding three years ago, many democrats insist the fight must be made over again next year, with the same issues. Others are just as bitterly opposed to it now as they were then.

Strangely enough, it is in the South, where the democratic strength has always been most dependable, that the ku klux, prohibition and the league of nations are most strongly supported. President Harding's ambition has been to drive the wedge into the "solid South" and leave it undependable for the democrats. The president and his closest advisers have been getting first-hand information in the South for a month or more, and now the word comes that the three subjects enumerated above are to be forced upon the democrats at every opportunity, with the intention of splitting the party as widely on every one of them as widely on every one of Whether the shortcomings of the republican administration and the utter failure of the republican congress which recently adjourned, can be successfully hidden from the American people by a "smoke screen" of appeal to passion and prejudice is what the personal advisers of the president propose to try out. If it works, Harding may be elected again; if it fails, the whole outfit, houseboats, golf links, old guard and all, will accompany Mr Harding to a defeat not unlike which President Taft met at the end of his four years in the white house, according to the unexpressed but well-known belief of those who are making a last stand behind the bitterness of ku klux and prohibition questions.

GOMPERS ACCUSED OF PERSONAL GAIN IN N. Y. ATTACK

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, April 13.—Officials of the American Fund for Public Service tonight issued a statement asserting that the attack made upon it by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was clearly the result of his disappointment at not receiving money for an enterprise in which he is interested.

The reply issued by Norman M. Thomas and Roger N. Baldwin, president and secretary of the fund, referred to the allegations of Mr. Gompers that the fund, administering the $800,000 inheritance turned over to it by Charles Garland of Boston, was being utilized by "Reds."

All Members of Police Force Didn't Go—Jack Is Still There

The report that all members of the police department have been ousted is false. When new officers lined up at the city hall to take the oath of office, one representative of the old regime was still present. "Jack" refused to obey the general order issued by the new commissioner, and when City Clerk McBroom read the oath he was in the front line, seemingly listening intently to every word.

Jack is a dog. No one knows what kind of a dog Jack is, except that he is a dog. A little more than five years ago, Jack wandered into the city hall one stormy night, taking his place near the warm stove as though he had always slept there. Since that time he has lived in the police station, the men of three departments feeding and caring for him.

For five years Jack has remained at the station, occupying a place of distinction, choosing as his friends the members of the department. He has seen three changes take place in the office, and has never tendered his resignation, for although commissioners come and go, Jack, like the proverbial brook, goes on forever. He acts the part of an officeer in both the police and fire departments, accompanying the engines on every trip. It is not known that he has ever missed a single drive of the big wagons in the five years since he has been at the station.

And he recognizes the fact that his is a unique distinction. He has no canine friends, scorning, other dogs haughtily, and will not respond to advances of any others than members of the police and fire departments. He is overlooking the new members, getting acquainted.

WOMEN'S SCREAMS RUN THUGS AWAY

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—Four armed bandits today shot and seriously wounded John C. Engable, 46, general manager of the Fred A. Havens company, contracting firm here in an attempt to rob him of $2,500 payroll he was carrying.

Screams of two women who witnessed the shooting frightened the thugs, who fled in a motor car, without obtaining the money.

YOUTH KILLED IN GANG WARFARE

International News Dispatch

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—Gang feuds which have been raging in St. Louis for some time and recently revived, claimed another victim early today when William J. Tabor, 19 years old, was shot and killed and his body evidently thrown out of an automobile a few miles west of the city on a county road.

Police identified Tabor as a member of the "Cuckoo" gang and declared his record showed he had been arrested 34 times.

Married Life of Helen and Warren

By MABEL HERBERT URNER
Creator of "Helen and Warren" Characters

Helen Paints the Kitchen Table Wit h Warren's Imported Shaving-Brush

"Dear, it's pouring!" Helen gazed down on the rain-drenched street. "I'm sure no one's coming this afternoon. Do you know what I'd like to do?"

"I'd love to paint the kitchen table! He left me a little paint—I ought to use it before it thickens."

"Nice job for Sunday," reaching for the ash tray.

"I don't care a hoot what you do—long as you don't bother me."

But as she started out he called her back with an irascible:

"Hold on, put up this shade! Jove, it's getting dark. That other one, too—highen! And get me that box of cigars and some matches."

Warren's wants attended to, she hurried out to the kitchen. Slipping on a bungalow apron, she started on the alluring task of painting the kitchen table.

The oil having settled on top, Helen stirred it with the ice pick. Her only brush, a 10-cent one stiffened with gilt paint, she tried to soften under the hot-water spigot.

Spreading newspapers to protect the linoleum under the table, she started on a front leg. But with the small, stiff brush she could not achieve the smooth coating that the painter had applied with such ease and dexterity.

The brush refused to hold the oint—it pattered wastefully down on the paper.

Discouraged, she ran in to appeal to Warren.

"Dear, how can I soften this brush? I've tried hot water."

"Turpentine!" succinctly.

We haven't any. The painter had a can here, but he took it away. Oh, if I only had another brush!"

"Try a whisk broom or a toothbrush—but stop pestering me."

A toothbrush! Helen caught at his ironic suggestion.

In the bathroom she examined an old toothbrush kept in the medicine chest to clean her rings. No, the bristles were too short and scant.

What could she use? There must be something that would do!

Closing the medicine chest, she saw Warren's shaving brush. Joyously she snatched it up. The very thing! The long hairs were soft and thick.

Would she dare use it? If washed out before the paint dried, would he ever know? And now while his arm was bandaged he was going to the barbers. It would be several weeks before he could shave himself.

If necessary, she could buy a new brush. Vague as to shaving-brush values, she fancied one could be bought for 50 cents. And this was an old one. Like toothbrushes, should they be frequently renewed?

The shaving brush, except for its short handle, proved ideal. The soft thick bristles held the paint and applied it in seven strokes. One leg of the table soon gleamed a ravishing cream against the griminess of the otherthree.

"Isn't that a work of art?" to Pussy Purr-Mew, who was viewing this unusual Sunday diversion with profound interest.

Several lumpy protrudences on the back of the leg proved to be wads of chewing gum! Helen loathed chewing gum. With a screwdriver from the tool box she scraped off these obnoxious mementos of Anna.

Deciding to paint the drawer inside as well as out, she emptied the discouraging assortment of kitchen cutlery. Tarnished spoons, bent forks, knives, a sharpening steel, food chopper, pancake turned and a rusty can opener.

The soiled, discolored paper that lined the drawer further testified to Anna's sloven inefficiency.

As she worked, Helen planned a stricter surveillance over the new girl, coming Tuesday. Starting with everything fresh and clean, she must keep it so.

The ringy drawer, dusted out and stood up endwise on the floor, was soon transformed by a shining coat of cream paint.

She had finished the front of the table and had started on the back legs, when Warren swung through from the diningroom.

"How're you making out?"

"Oh, this old apron! Doesn't it look a lot better? And don't you think I'm getting it on even?" holding the brush so he could not see it.

"Pussy Purr-Mew bossing the job? Go ahead, let's see you work."

"Oh, I never can do anything if you watch me—it always makes me nervous. Go on back, dear; I'll be through in a little while."

Grumblingly, Warren strode out. With flagrant inconsistency he always wanted her in the library when he was there—though he would read a whole afternoon seemingly oblivious of her.

The table finished, Helen scanned the kitchen for something else to paint. She might as well use up the rest of the can while she was at it.

Hastily, she touched up the worn spots. But the box, a grayish-white her cream paint was too conspicuous. She decided to paint it all over—even the tarnished gilt lettered "Bread."

That finished, she painted the tin soap dish over the sink and the wooden towel roller on the pantry door.

The stepladder chair she regarded dubiously. A dark oak, worn and scarred, it would need two coats. No, she would not have enough for that.

That worn spot on the linoleum before the sink! Why could not that be painted?

That linoleum was checked blue and white, but the plain cream paint proved much less noticeable than a dark, threadbare spot.

The painting possibilities of the kitchen finally exhausted, she was about to start through the apartment in search of something else to "touch up," when she stopped with shrill dismay.

"Oh, you've been up on that table!"

Brushing over the tiny footprints on the freshly painted table reminded her to touch up the diningroom window sill, also marred before it was dry by Pussy Purr-Mew's mischievous paws.

In the bathroom she painted the hooks on the back of the door that the painter had left untouched. The hook on which hung Warren's shaving strop also received attention.

In the bedroom she touched up the electric wire that ran along the moulding to the bedside lamp.

"How much longer are you going to mess around?"

"I'm almost through—but a little paint helps such a lot. Dear, take this stray hair out of my eyes," brushing at a stray lock with the back of her paint-smeared work glove.

With clumsy fingers he tried to fasten the elusive strand.

"No, it won't stay when I stoop over—pin it back."

"What's that you've got there?" explosively. "Not a shaving brush?"

In her absorption, Helen had forgotten to conceal the brush. Now she turned away with a flurried:

"Oh, its just an old one. That other brush was so stiff I couldn't—"

"An old one? Let me see it! Give it here!"

"No, no, the handle's all paint! You'll get it all over yourself. I'm through now," making hastily for the door. "I'll wash up and be right in."

"Hold on there! Let me see that brush!"

Whirling her around, he snatched it from her. With held breath, she stood helplessly by as he glared at the nickel-tipped, paint-smeared handle.

"You brainless, pin-headed dumbbell! D'you know what you've done? Of all the bone-headed stunts! Took my English shaving brush to—"

"Get me another? Like hell you will! Think I'd use the kind you'd buy? I bought that brush in London—real camel's hair. Know what I paid for it?"

"Why—why, they cant be more than 50 cents?"

"They can't, eh? Well, I paid 30 shillings—that's over $7—for that one. And you couldn't get it here at any price!"

"Fat chance of washing the paint out of that!" savagely. "Why the devil don't you use your own things when you start to do it on the cheap? Why always make me the goat? Hereafter I'll keep my stuff under lock and key!"

"Dear, I only did it to save!" tearfully contrite. "The painter would've charged extra for painting the table—and I thought I could—"

"Save?" he snorted. "Call that saving, do you? Your economies are too damned expensive! You ripped up my twenty-dollar silk hat to make a handbag—and now you paint the kitchen table with a seven-dollar shaving-brush!"

Blowouts On Auto Row

About 12 dealers were present at the last weekly luncheon held at the Kemp Tuesday noon. It was just a get-together meeting and no business of particular interest was discussed. Manager Frank Quiesser stated that he hoped a good attendance would be present for the next meeting as the nominating committees would report on the nomination of officers at that meting. The election is scheduled for the first part of May.

E. G. Strong, sales manager of the Buick Motor company, Flint, Mich., has crawled out of a dilemma that has been causing him many sleepless nights via the line of least resistance.

"So many requisitions for the millionth Buick car have come from branches, distributors and dealers that it will, for the present, remain unassigned," said Mr. Strong. "Of course they all want this car. Not primarily for sentimental reasons but for an intensely practical one—its advertising value. So we feel we cannot let anyone have it without being accused of descrimination."

The available market for automobile tires outside the United States for 1923, is approximately 6,000,000 casings. Considering the rate at which American tires were being exported the first 10 months of 1922, it seems reasonable to suppose that the 1923 export figures will be about 1,350,000 or 23 per cent of the total available.

Lloyd Weaver company is another firm to report a record-breaking month for April. Claude Hall, manager for Lloyd Weaver company, says that April will eclipse any month this year for new car deliveries. Among the sales reported for the past week or 10 days are G. S. Hayes of the MacMahon Oil company, a Hudson speedster; W. R. Hoffman, Electra, Essex Cabriolet; Joseph Brown, Burkburnett; Essex coach; K. M. A. Fuel Oil company, an Essex coach and an Essex touring. Incidently, Mr. Hall reports, this is the fifth Essex to be purchased by this company. Besides new car sales, a number of used cars were delivered, Mr. Hall states.

Gene Sarazen, the gold champion, is one of the latest celebrities to join the ranks of Buick owners. In the window of the Dexin Motor company is a large photo reproduction showing the champion with Jock Hutchinson, winner of many international golf championships; Ann Perdue and Clara Horton, movie star who recently scored a big hit in "Fighting Blod." According to the announcement, Gene is a Buick enthusiast, and from the smile on his face, it's easy to believe.

Ed Dyer, sales manager for Randy-Strong Auto Supply company, and J. E. Sharpe of that company, were members of the trade trip, calling on their various customers along the line. Mr. Sharpe has recently been appointed sales representative in that section, prior to that being connected with the local office.

W. E. Biber, representative for the Cleveland Motor company, was a week end business visitor at the Wilhelm-Moulder Automobile company.

R. E. Ebnee of the Overland Motors company, made a business trip to Dallas Monday, returning Tuesday night by automobile.

L. M. Cregor, manager for McFall Bros., and M. P. Hyde, district representative for Dodge Brothers, made an extensive trip over the trade territory, returning the latter part of the week.

W. (Bill) Robinson of the Pevmenter Motor company, was a business visitor in Electra Thursday.

Gaines Motor Sales company have recently installed a new Franklin piston grinding machine. The new machine is operated by two electric motors and es equipped for grinding valves, pins and pistons.

RUSS JEWELS TRACED TO LOS ANGELES

International News Dispatch

LOS ANGELES, April 13.—A secret investigation being conducted by United States treasury department agents headed by William Williams, today was expected to clear up rumors that a portion of the czar's crown jewels, stolen at the time of the Russian ruler's assassination have been disposed of in Los Angeles and at the time determine whether a tiara being held by customs authorities is a part of that collection.

The tiara was purchased in a New York antique shop by a local oil man for a nominal price.

ANNOUNCEMENT

of Interest to

Millions of Families

"I Will Build a Car for the Multitudes"

Said Henry Ford in 1903—Read how the fulfillment of that prophecy is now made possible through the

Ford Weekly Purchase Plan

For many years it has been Henry Ford's personal ambition to make the Ford the universal family car—to put it within the reach of the millions of people who have never been privileged to enjoy the benefits of motor car ownership.

During the past fifteen years over 7,500,000 Ford cars have been placed in the hands of retail customers—more than a million and a half of them within the past twelve months—and yet there are still millions of families who are hopefully looking forward to the day when they can own a Ford.

And now the way is open.

Under the terms of this plan you can select your Ford Car, set aside a small amount each week and you will be surprised how soon you will own it. In the meantime your money will be safely deposited to your credit in one of the local banks where it will draw interest. Think it over. Five dollars will start an account. The whole family can participate in it—father, mother, brothers and sisters each doing a little.

Why not start today? Stop in and talk it over with your local Ford dealer. He will be glad to fully explain the details of the plan and help you get started toward the ownership of a Ford Car.

PRISONERS HERE ASKING FAVORS

Those Held on Federal Charges Demand Better Treatment

"Say, mister, you know I'm a federal prisoner and I don't want to monkey with these other birds in jail here."

Thus did one man address himself to Sheriff Pat Murphy recently and expressed an existing sentiment in the county jail to the effect that a federal prisoner stands higher in the social scale than those who are merely guests of the county.

Sheriff Murphy and his deputies are somewhat amused and not a little puzzled at the attitude taken by the men imprisoned on federal charges. Where and why the idea ever originated that a man who violates the laws of the United States government is in any way superior to one violating the laws of the state is something they are unable to answer. Such a sentiment actually exists here, however, the sheriff declares.

Food Complaint.

The brief but illuminating passage quoted above really was addressed to the sheriff by a man who had just been convicted of a federal charge and sentenced to a term in the county jail. And this is only one of several such instances that have come to the attention of officials lately.

The chief complaint made by these on the federal side of the jail is in the matter of food, it is reported. The government prisoner in some cases, resents the fact that he must subsist on the same fare as that provided state prisoners and more than one howl has gone up over this item. The sheriff is allowed 50 cents per day for feeding federal prisoners, the same amount being allowed by the state, and no distinction is made between the two when meal time comes around. The same is true of jail privileges.

Poor Place For Favors.

When asked as to the nature of his replies to the complaints, the sheriff declared that he usually told the men they were in a bad place to be asking any favors at all, federal prisoners or not. Reasonable requests from the men in jail are given prompt attention by the jailer, but some of the outlandish demands are noted only long enough to be passed on for the edification of other members of the official family.

Of course not all federal prisoners are imbued with this spirit, Sheriff Murphy reports. He stated that one young man who had seen military service complimented him on the prison fare and declared it to be the best he had ever had.

"While I was in the army I've hiked 75 miles a day many a day with a heavy kit on my back on far less and poorer grub than you give me here," the ex-buck was quoted as having said. Another federal man told the sheriff he had been in jails "from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the gulf" but that he had never been given the care and treatment that he was receiving in the Wichita county lockup.

THE YANKS ARE COMING

Texas Farmer To Have New Worry In Airplane Stop

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Si, the Texas farmer, already so busy listening in on the radio that he hasn't time to do the plowing, will have a further distraction, it has become known.

Aeroplanes are going to start descending on Texas farms before long, and Si will always be listening for the whirr of the aeroplane motor.

Aeroplane photography as an aid and check in estimating cotton acreage is to be tried this year by the United States department of agriculture. Photographs of cotton and other crops will be made over selected areas from war department aeroplanes lent to the department of agriculture for poison dusting operations.

The novel plan of estimating acreages and forecasting crops by aeroplane photography this year is purely an experiment, and will not supersede the time-tried methods regularly used by the crop-estimating forces, the department announces. However, the new arrangement is seen to offer interesting possibilities.

Large areas of land can be photographed in relatively short time, and the entire cotton belt pictured in about 2,000 flying hours, it is said.

Army Plans Drive

Special Dispatch to Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., April 14.—The Salvation army's annual drive for funds in Tillman county, by which they hope to obtain $750, will begin April 19 and close April 21, with a tag day, according to plans made at a meeting of the advisory council of the army held Thursday. Last year around $400 was raised in this county. The army representative, aided by the local workers, plan to carry their solicitation into other towns of the county beside Frederick.

Suit Necessary To Comply With Law

Special Dispatch to Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., April 14.—In a friendly suit, the Tillman County bank of Grandfield was given judgment, for itself and as trustees, for $44,769.57 against the Grandfield board of education. BETTER SERVICE FOR TEXAS VETS

Hines Announces New Policy to Speed Up Help

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS.
Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Better service to the former service men of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas is the aim of Frank T. Hines of the veterans' bureau, it was announced today.

That is the reason why Hines has summoned to Washington for the conference on April 23, Sherman A. Kile, manager for the region embracing the three states. Thirteen other managers will be here at the same time. Director Hines expects to talk to the 14 regional managers together. He also expects to meet them separately and talk over with them intimate matters connected with the administration of their particular offices.

"I expect to take up matters of policy along broad lines," said Director Frank T. Hines, "and to clear up matters on which there is a question either in the minds of the district managers or of the division heads here in central office. Later on I hope to hold a conference of district managers and their chief assistants at some central point of the United States."

The director announced that he had approved recommendation for a new procedure in the handling of all cases coming before the medical board of review and the central board of appeals. In the future these cases will be immediately vised and reviewed by the medical officers and classified into the following groups:

(a) Those requiring emergency attention.

(b) Routine cases in which there is no necessity for immediate action.

(c) Cases where no urgency is necessary, such as cases where claimant is already receiving relief and is asking for a reconsideration.

"I have directed that these cases be given consecutive numbers and acted on in the order in which they come, except in cases in class 'a' will have preference," said the director. "I have also directed that the cases now pending shall be called up as rapidly as possible, and that I be kept informed of the number acted upon. No cases shall be given special consideration unless it comes under group 'A.' The effect will be to expedite the more urgent cases and to speed up the work generally."

"ONCE IN A BLUE MOON"

By HAROLD MacGRATH

THE instinct to hunt for treasure begins just outside the cradle and ends just inside the grave; it is stronger than love or honor; it makes a hero of a coward, and a poltroon of a brave man—sometimes. But the moral of this tale deals not with any of these things, except indirectly; it concerns only this indisputable fact: that tomorrow is never the day you think it is going to be.

To set the ball rolling, without more ado or preamble: The Ponte Vecchio in Florence is, as everyone knows, devoted to jewelers' shops. They hang on both sides of the bridge, in blue and white and pink stucco, mere bandboxes. You can buy a silver bangle for a franc or a pearl necklace for a hundred thousand.

Last spring one shop particularly interested me, H. Sttepassi's, where I was attracted by the loveliest emerald I have ever seen. It was attached to a collar of white and rose enamel, diamond-shaped, with small brilliants interlocking. The pendant was the emerald, about half an inch deep, round like a five-franc piece or an American silver dollar, and was polished—not cut.

Below the emerald was a pink pearl the size of a large hazel nut, one side of which was flat, as if some mischievous mermaid had thumbed it during some yawning period of the oyster. Linked to this was another polished emerald, pear-shaped, about as large as the end of your thumb.

I know nothing about the pearl or the smaller emerald; their adventures, so far as I am concerned, are closed books. It is about the large emerald my tale is woven.

For five mornings I stood with my nose all but flattened against the pane, envying and admiring.

On the fifth morning I happened to catch, reflected in the window glass, two serious faces, each slightly shadowed by the cocked hat of the Carabinieri. I understood instantly. From a peaceful author, ambling about Italy in search of color, I had, all in a moment, become a suspicious character. To stand before so rich a display of precious stones for five consecutive mornings, quite obvious to the surroundings, would have excited suspicion in the mind of any constable.

I had to take those two chaps to the American consulate and have myself properly identified.

We all had a good laugh over it. But I shall always remember these two carabinier; for they had not deterred me to the consulate I should never have met the young man who told me the history of the Settepassi emerald.

Even now, in my dreams sometimes, I can see that pleasant young man as he pulled off his chamois gloves and exhibited his two hands, frightfully mottled with such scars as only fire shall make.

The tale properly began in the spring of 1902, began as all tragic episodes begin, with a triviality; in this instance, the bare knuckles of a butler on the door of his young master's bedroom, knocked gently, then quite loudly. There was no response.

As the issue at stake was vital, as his orders had been peremptory, he opened the door and entered. The lights were still on. The young man in bed had forgotten to turn them off. The butler shook his head sadly, pressed the button to extinguish the lights, and raised the window shades. The occupant of the bed turned over, but that was all.

"Mr. Arthur?"

No sound came from the bed, and the servant reached down and shook the sleeper. The sleeper presently opened a pair of swollen eyes and blinked. It took him a minute or two to realize where he was. Then he sat up wrathfully.

"I don't know, sir. My orders were to wake you up and say that it was vital to you to breakfast, dress, and be at the office at precisely 10:30."

"Yes, sir. And I should be very careful, sir, to be there on the minute. He was not in the best of tempers when he went down town."

"All right. Bring me a grapefruit and a cup of coffee. Well, what do you think of that?" addressing space, since Worden already was on his way to execute the order for breakfast.

Mr. Arthur Cathew, at the end of a quarter of an hour, had gotten as far as his four-in-hand. He completed the task and stood before the long mirror, contemplating himself.

"You must have had a pippin last night. You'll look nice in papa's office at 10:30. What the devil can he want? Did I get arrested? Let's see. I first made a call, perfectly sober. I proposed, and she told me that she wouldn't marry me if I was the last man on earth. Well, I don't blame her. This reforming fools is a tough job, and I suppose I'm as big a fool as ever walked up and down Broadway.

"Next, I went over to the club, lost four hundred at poker and got pie-eyed. No, I couldn't have been arrested.

"That you, Worden? Come in. That grapefruit will taste good. I don't know about the coffee," with a grimace.

"I say, Worden, do you think the governor is going to put me on the carpet?"

"Umhm. Say anything about me?"

"How is mother?"

"Not so well as yesterday," gravely.

Arthur pushed aside his empty cup and scowled at his cigarette-stained fingers. How many times had he promised that patient, loving mother of his to brace up and be a man? Beyond counting.

"You will see Mrs. Cathew before you go?"

"Yes; I'll run into her room now."

He kissed his mother, and she clung to him, rather wildly, he thought.

"My poor boy," she murmured.

"I'm afraid I'm no good, mother. I can't keep my word. Every time I promise, I honestly mean it."

"More than usual?"

"Far more than usual."

"It's the first of the month, and I suppose some of my bills have turned up. Bye-bye! I'll be home for dinner tonight."

Alone, the mother twisted her thin, white hands together, and the tears rolled unchecked down her cheeks. Never a harsh word to anyone, always kind and loveable; he was only weak.

Henry Cathew was an honest millionaire; so you would not recognize him if I describe him to you. He was a builder, not a wrecker. His gray hair was closely clipped, his smooth face was slightly florid, and his years had merely drawn a crow's foot at his eyes. He ate and drank and smoked and worked in moderation. Above his desk on the wall hung a framed card, in bold type:

"Moderation,
Always Moderation."

At this particular moment (10:30 to the second) you would have found him at his desk, biting the end of his pen. Abruptly he rose and turned the face of the sign to the wall, and sat down again. His blue eyes were as hard and cold as steel rails.

Arthur viewed these ominous signs imperturbably. The turning of the card to the wall appealed to his ready sense of humor; but he repressed the smile. He was in for a drubbing; how serious remained to be learned.

He was big of bone like his father, but the flesh was pasty and flabby. He was dressed, however, with scrupulous care. The face, for all its evidences of dissipation, was pleasing. A physiognomist at second glance would have said: "Give him a real interest in life, and see what happens."

"I did; and I wish to congratulate you upon your promptness," ironically.

"You are not a liar. And I have given you more rope on that account than you'd believe if I told you. I have your record here for the past five years, every since they dropped you from Yale. You haven't done anything but spend money."

"I had nothing else to do. You never offered me a decent job in the office."

"What you call decent was something like general manager at $20,000 the year. But I have offered to put you on the road to it. However, that issue is closed. We'll not discuss it."

"I've done wrong, and I admit it. I've let you have your run, paid your bills, always hoping you'd see the right road and brace up. You have had and spent in five years $112,000. Here it is, down in black and white.

"And God knows how much you have had from your mother. Your loose living has done as much as anything to keep her an invalid; and but for her entreaties you would have gone out into the streets long ago."

Arthur stared at his shoes. Where was this thing going to end? It began to look serious.

"And who gets this money? Bootleggers and gamblers—they get it. Well, there isn't another turn to the rope, my son. This is the wind-up.

"Beginning this day, you will be allowed exactly $200 a month. You have averaged about $25,000 a year; lets' see what you can do on $2,400. There's an alternative."

"I'll take a chance on the $200," said Arthur. "Not with an eye to the future; just to see if I've got stuff enough in me to make good on it. When does this $200 begin?"

"Thanks. Two pretty good jolts Well, no doubt, I deserve them."

"What was the other jolt?" asked the father, secretly proud of the equanimity of the boy.

"I went over to Nell's last night. She said she wouldn't, not if I was the last man on earth. Right and left hooks to the face, and then a swing flush on the jaw. I was counted out."

"But not quite enough to stand up and make a man of yourself."

"I don't know," staring at the check, but not seeing it. "Have I got to clear out of the house?"

"Oh, no," said Mr. Cathew. "It simply means that you will have $200 instead of $2,000; that you'll have to drive your own car and pay for the gasoline.

"On the word of your father, I'll never boost the $200 till you can lay before me $10,000 in hard-earned money, every one of which means struggle, privation, self-denial, obstacles overcome."

Cathew senior, turned to his desk and began sorting his letters. Kill or cure, he was thinking; kill or cure. But in his soul he longed to take the boy in his arms and give him a million. There was a man somewhere down under that unhealthy skin; never a whimper, never a whine. Kill or cure, kill or cure.

Potash & Purlmutter Discuss Great Men—Emergency, Temporary and Otherwise

"There's no use nobody learning nothing nowadays, Mawruss," Abe Potash declared to his partner, Morris Perlmutter. "There is so many of these here substitute professions which requires only a six months' course of training and a little nerve, y'understand, and anyhow 10 states in the Union has got laws which permits such a gradgawate to make the same cures as a man who has been to college four years, medical school four years, a hospital two years, and Vienna for as long as his money held out at the current rates of exchange."

"Well, it's only a short time ago where in every newspaner you read how the shortage in doctors was so acute that people was getting well from the flu without any medical attention whatsoever," Morris said.

"I was only mentioning the medical profession as a bad example, Mawruss," Abe retorted. "There is any number of professions where the educated expert is being crowded out by people who never learned nothing about the profession they make a living at, except the publicity end of it.

"Take, for instance, ambassadors, and it used to be that if a man wanted to bring his boy Jake up to be an ambassador, y'understand, it was a matter right from the start of paying to have him taught at least six languages, so that when he got through he could pass for a native of practically every country on earth except the United States of America.

"But nowadays, if anybody is laying to become an ambassador, he should ought to go right away into the magazine or newspaper business, Mawruss, on account of ambassadors has gone from them businesses during the past couple of years to England, Italy and Spain, and if they was all three to syndicate all the languages they know, Mawruss, it wouldn't extend much beyond publishing business English with possibly just enough French to say to a waiter: 'Psst!'"

Eager to Supply Demand for Great Men.

"But what is Mr. Harding to do?" Morris asked. "Former times a president selected his ambassadors from the great men of the country, but nowadays the shortage in doctors ain't a marker to the absolute famine of great men in this country, Abe. In fact, Abe, it's so long since a really first class native-born great man has showed up in Washington that Mr. Harding has been obliged to, so-to-speak, designate certain politicians to be temporary great men.

"Take some of these ambassadors, for instance, and Mr. Harding has appointed them to be great men during good behavior, and in the case of at least one of them, Abe, the ink on his appointment remained wet longer than his behavior remained good.

"Then there is other men in the country which didn't wait for an appointment. They seen the big shortage in great men in the same way that shipping clerks and lunch men appreciated the shortage in doctors, and now in addition to ex-shipping clerks and ex-lunch men who are calling themselves doctors, we've got a lot of manufacturers and business men who are taking off their coats and getting busy as emergency-great-men."

"Whatever money and energy can do to bring it about, Abe," Morris continued, "is being done, so that all the promotion work of making certain manufacturers American great men will have been finished long before the next republican and democratic presidential conventions."

"But I thought, Mawruss, that when a man was really and truly a great man, y'understand, it wasn't necessary for him to employ a $25,000 a year publicity man to spread the news. Somehow or another, it leaked out that Daniel Webster, Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson were great men from the things that they did and said which were really and truly great," Abe declared.

Lincoln, Webster, et al. Inefficient.

"Sure, I know, Morris agreed, "but to a hustling manufacturer who has built up a big factory and sales organization in only a few years, Abe, there was a whole lot of lost motion in the way Jefferson, Lincoln and Webster got to be great men.

"Those great gentlemen got their greatness practically single-handed, Abe. When they made speeches, Abe, they used their own grammar and it was good. If stories appeared about them in the newspapers, they was true stories and actually hapnened in the presence of thousands of people, but nowadays if a story appears about one of these here 1923-model great men, it actually happens in the presence of the great mans' press agent and one portable typewriter, and the way it is brought to the attention of the newspapers is not from some one who saw it happen. It comes through the mail already printed with the proper headline over it.

"In fact, Abe, the only difference between the newspaper publicity of a 1923 great actor and that of a 1923 great man is that sometimes the actor's publicity it true."

"Well, you can't exactly blame these here up-to-date emergency great men for making use of the organizations they've already got for sales and factory promotion," Abe said. "It takes off its hands all the petty details of getting to be a great man, and leaves him free to become a great man in a large way. After all, Mawruss, getting to be a great man quick is a big job. Correspondence schools which are willing to guarantee results in every profession from architecture to zinc mining don't exactly advertise:

"'Learn to Be a Great Man
In 20 Lessons.'

It took Abraham Lincoln 30 years to become a great man without any sales and factory organization back of him, but there is rich parties who are just starting out in Februars, 1923, to be great men in time for the presidential elections of November, 1924, and they ain't got not a minute to spare."

If They Can't Sell Selves, They Can Sell Cars.

"Also, Mawruss, you've got to hand it to these big manufacturers who aim to be great men by anyhow 1924," Abe went on to say. "They may not be now great men, but they are great business men, and they realize probably, as well as anybory else, that there's a big risk in promoting oneself as a great man. Accidents is liable to happen in the history of the United States between now and the next presidential election, which will produce really and truly great men which at the present time ain't even thought of by emergency great men as being even would-be competitors, y'understand.

"The consequence is, Mawruss, that if Mr. Overland or Mr. Rambler has got ambitions to be great men and are working their sales and factory forces for that purpose, they've got an adjustable publicity started which can be switched from their personal promotion as great men to their sales promotion. Then if they can't sell themselves to the country as great men, they can anyhow sell their cars as great automobiles, and their time and money won't be wasted."

"Well, it's my impression of the whole business, Abe, that these here sales campaigns now being conducted by big manufacturers to unload themselves on the country as great men, are going to be a whole lot more profitable for the salaried organizers than for the would-be great men themselves," Morris said.

"They can't lose out whether they put over their employer as a great man or not, Abe, but if they should happen to put over a couple of big manufacturers as presidents, y'understand, then this here slogan of learning to be a great man in 20 lessons ain't so foolish as it sounds! If Got Soll Huten, a big automobile manufacturer, should be elected president of the United States, Abe, I look to see the parties responsible for his successful publicity form themselves into a corporation and use full-page newspaper advertising, y'understand, with a border of tall-tope portraits including Napoleon, Julius Caesar, W. L. Douglas, Alexander the Great, Douglas Fairbanks and Charley Chaplin. Such an advertisement will have for a slogan:

We can make your lives sublime.'

"It will also say:

"'Do you want your name to go down in history? Send self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.'

"And maybe you don't think there will be plenty of easy givers-up who will do it, too."

"But you don't actually believe that even big manufacturers can promote themselves into being great men, either temporary or permanent, do you?" Abe inquired.

"Say!" Morris concluded. "True greatness is like a good digestion, Abe. If you get too conscious of it, y'understand, that's a sure sign that you ain't got it."

Shoe Trees Feature Lardner's Garden

By RING LARDNER

To the editor:

On acct. of this being the vernal season of spring in most sections of the country, when people is fixing up there yd. and etc. I have been requested to come acrost with a few idears in regards to landscape gardening as we was through a seige of same last yr. and everybody that passes past the house makes the remark in loud tones what a beautiful yd.

On a ordinary week day it is no accident occurence to have the same people pass our home twice and 3 times per day a specially if they are driving a truck belonging to some laundry or the Flushing scavenger company or something.

So it looks like the best idear would be to simply describe our yd. and give other folks permission to imitate it to what ever extent they see fit though I would best warn my readers that they would better go kind of slow unless they are cleaning up a income of $30.00 per wk. at the most.

Well in the 1st. place running along the front of the yd. they's a white rail fence consisting of about 30 sections of 3 rails each except 2 sections where the top rail ain't there no more as anything that makes a yd. tiresome is to have the fence all look alike.

Right behind the fence is a large floral tribute consisting of my name and the wife's maiden name planted in toadstools. This was put there for use as well as beauty as the whole family was sick in tired of having moderate price motors stop out in front and ask if the Swopes lived here.

The yd. from the fence up to the house, is a serious of terraces but to break the monotony of same they's a row of trees on each terrace and a street sign on one of each, like for inst, Maple Avenue, Hickory Lane, Oak St. and etc.

In realty the trees on every terrace up to the top is all the same namely quirk trees but the different street names gives casual visitors a delusion of grandeur besides keeping them from running past there block.

As a further guard vs. this last named menace the top terrace is planted with hall trees where you can't help from seing that it is time to hang up your hat and on the front porch itself theys a lay out of shoe trees as we would just as leaf have patrons remove there shoes before entering the home so as to not wake up the children and Japs.

We would just as leaf have patrons remove there shoes before entering the home so as to not wake up the children and Japs

So much for the front yd. The piece of resistance in the back yd. is a formal Italian garden in the middle of which is a barber shop and shoe shine stand presided over by careful reproductions of early renaissance barbers and bootblacks of the Napies epoch.

Surrounding this is a formal cluster of spaghetti and garlic plants, while drooping over the roof of the shop are branches of vermicelli trees, a tree greatly similar to our weeping willies.

In the immediate rear of the barber shop is a outdoor swimming pool of the most modern variety with running hot and cold water, a soap cage and a towel rack.

To increase the illusion we have equipped this pool with a stopper which can be pulled out when the client is through with there bath.

To lend a certain privacy to this pool as well as add a citrus touch to the gen. effect, the tub is in the midst of a grove of mock orange trees which is simply nothing more or less than common bandana trees hung with croquet balls painted yellow. Hardly a guest ever sees this little touch without expressing there amazement that such large oranges can be growed on Long Island.

Still further yet behind the shop and near the extreme back boundary of the lot is a artificial ice skating rink which is the final touch to the glories of the premises and has afforded us with more than a fair share of amusement.

I do not need to tell the reader that this rink ain't made of real ice as even persons of our means would find it impossible to keep up such a luxury the yr. around on acct. of it being ½ a mile by 20 ft. wide.

What the surface is covered with is plate glass and where the amusement comes in is to see the unsuspecting guest jump on to it on there skates only to break the glass and crash through into the stagnant pool below.

On some occasions it has been quite a struggle to get them out again and once or twice the struggle was only made ½ heartedly you might say.

I must not close this description of the estate without forgetting to mention a wd. about the bird houses of which we have put up a plethora.

As all bird fancers knows, birds is very particular in the matter of choosing there home and a certain bird will only pick out a certain kind of a bird house. So we have specialized in quail houses, sparrow houses and pigeon coops.

At about this time of yr. the houses begins to fill up with the unsuspecting rasorial visitors and the minute they's a sufficient quanity to make it worth while we slam the doors shut and have enough birds to provide many a good tasty meal for week end guests.

Where the amusement comes in is to see the unsuspecting guest jump on to it on there skates only to break the glass.

In a early issue I will write a article in regards to dwellings themselfs with perhaps a extra article on interior decorating a subject on which I have made a name which don't bear repeating.

Fable of What the Best People Are Not Doing

By George Ade

He had a nifty Rug spread under him. His Finger Nails were shiny. One would have said, after a quick size-up of his well-groomed Executive that here was a Gazook for whom Luck was shreaking very wherly.

It is true th at he received a peachy Check every Month. He earned it by sitting in a Swivel chair and answering the 'Phone. When he felt unusually keen and ready to grapple with Details, he would dictate crisp Letters beginnin gthus: "Yours received, and in reply would say—"

The pale-faced Subs in the outer Room trembled at sight of him and the Elevators waited for him. The Chief should have been Content with his Lot; but was he? Not so that you could notice it. He was bleeding inwardly.

In the first place, his name was Elmer Flooney, which is not an easy thing to live down. Also, he had a Past. He had come to his present Exalted Station from a Tank Town via the Shorthand College.

Mr. Flooney could, at a Moment's Notice, take an ordinary Lead Pencil and make a List of at least 40 Blood Relatives who were Suspenders in the Summer Time and inhaled from the Saucer.

Elmer had an aching Desire to be a Regular Fellow.

No one had tipped it off to him that a steel-blue Gentleman of the Beacon Hill Type has to be evolved by a laborious Borbank Process through several Generations.

He believed that any Onion could, by Concentration and Perseverance, make itself an Apricot.

The prize he sought was the privilege of sitting down on terms of Equality with the Supreme Suckers of Society.

In order to qualify, he had his Eyes wide open, his Fingers crossed, and his Muscles set, and was trying to refrain from doing anything that was not being done by our Best People.

He had a moderate hunger for Wealth, but the solemn and consecrated resolve which governed every Move related to membership in a Club.

It was not a large Club, and it was housed in a made-over Mansion of the larkest Mansard Period, but Mr. Floozey wanted to be seen lolling in a leather Chair by the Window.

Most of the Lollers exhibited at the Windows represented the Old Families. Their remote Ancestors had tramped Muskrats on the site of the present City Hall. Also, these reverent Forefathers had traded with the Indians, after getting them Stewed.

Mr. Floozey's father had kept a Hardware Store with Agricultural Implements as a Side Line, so Mr. Floozey knew that he would have to step a Bit to Overtake a bunch of Patricians tracing their Pedigrees right back to the time when four City Blocks could be secured for a Jawnkin of Medford Rum.

The Start of the Re-Modeling Process.

The one chance for the poor Goof of the Floozey Species was to keep on doing the Correct Thing and comport himself after the manner of a Chevalier and wait for Merit to be Discovered. So the General Manager was straining himself to do only the Things that were being done.

Back in the Boarding-House days he had entered manfully on his Life Work of eliminating the Heredity Instincts.

First, he conquered the Perfumery Habit, and then, by an Effort, he gave up the silk Handkerchief with the vivid Border.

While he was still a Menial, he tried to pass himself off in the Street Cars as a Harvard Man home on a Vacation.

In those days he longed to wear Socks with zigzag Patterns peeping saucily from under the reefed Trousers, but he took notice that the Lads who lived in the Big Houses of the Frigid Zone went in for Somber Effects.

In the effort to acquire the quiet and unobtrusive Elegance which would distinguish him from the ordinary Charleys of the Quick-Lunch Route, he was compelled to shed his Jewelry.

He had signalized the arrival on Easy Street by purchasing a swell Rig of Several Carats and a Watch Charm which looked like the working model for a Memorial Window.

But one day he took Dinner at a Place frequented by the Elite. After the Head Waiter had secreted him behind a Palm, he compared himself with the Thoroughbreds placed along the Windows.

All of them wore an air of being slightly Bored, but not one of them was bedecked with expensive Gems.

He became a mere Copy-Cat, but he chose for his Models the acknowledged Head-liners of the ice-bound Elect.

By constant practice he learned to speak softly to a Waiter without incidentally giving the Waiter any License to regard himself as a Human Being. So he was allowed to come out from behind the Palms and sit among the Socially Prominent, who were still 8,000 Miles distant, to all intents and purposes.

He did not seem to be getting any closer to them as regards letting them know that he was in the Room. But he was getting farther away from the Waiter all the time; so, naturally, he felt heartened.

Although he had been brought up as a Shouting Methodist, he attended Services at a Church frequented by successful Bridge Players. The Rector looked like a Leading Man with an English Dramatic Company and had a Marmalade Accent.

Elmer thought he was forging ahead somewhat when he became a Regular at this Temple of Deportment. He carried a closely wrapped Umbrella to help convince the Hity-Titys that he was Some Cuss, but the only Parishioner who came near him was an elderly Nicodemus with a Contribution Basket.

Mr. Floozey was very keen on Kelly Pool, but he gave it up when he learned that it was not being Done.

His early Training in a Center of Sociability prompted him to discuss the Weather with total Strangers and likewise get a little Choice Scandal now and then from the Bell-Boys, but he learned that anyone wishing to be approximately Knickerbocker should treat a member of the Serving Class as if he were Linoleum.

In other words better be Lonesome than Common.

Can you see Mr. Floozey at a Symphony Concert? His Musical Ear had been trained by listening to the Silver Cornet Band of Squantamville. Regular Music sounded to him as if the Boys had started to play something and then disagreed. To show how carefully he had planned his Campaign, he had the extreme foxiness to refrain from giving liberally to gild-tdge Charities.

It seems that the Outsider who crowds into the Charmed Circle and makes a Grand-Stand Play with the Bank Roll is thanked effusively and listed as a vulgar Pretender.

In order to get the right Dope on Dress, Decorum and the Regular Order of Business in Drawing Rooms he read all the Books.

He wanted to get Tips on the Line of Talk he would be expected to pull after his arrival in the Promised Land.

Orlando was sprawled among the Magnificos.

In the Novels dealing with High Life, he would follow Sir Geoffrey and the Lady Barbara into the Formal Garden and try to get them when they were devoting a long Chapter to a discussion of certain elusive Moods of the Soul.

It is doubtful if any student of Current Fiction ever read more Chapters and muffed more Points than Mr. E. Floozey.

The Ignoble Past Worries Him.

For 20 years he had worked overtime at being Refined. He had shunned unimportant People, trained his rude Vocal Cords to a faint imitation of the Massachusetts Dialect, frequented such Places of Amusement as bore the O. K. of the Drama League, and rubbed his Escutcheon with a Chamois Skin every blessed Morning.

What could he show for all these years of Purification by Fire?

Well, he had been admitted to a League for Civic Betterment and he had a nodding acquaintance with at least eight Touch-Me-Nots whose undergarments were supposed to be Royal Purple.

He had rehearsed until he was Letter-Perfect, but the date for his Debut among the Dinner-Givers still glimmered in the uncertain Future.

He knew too many People with Good Memories.

That's the Curse of having Hoi Poloj Antecedents and a Record involving Coffee and Sinkers.

Someone said, somewhere, once, in a gush of Originality, that the World is Small. To an eager Aspirant for Vanity Fair who went barefooted every Summer until he was 14, the dear old Bromide goes Double.

The threads of Memory connecting Elmer Floozey with his humble Origin and impossigle Kin-Folk were about the size of Log Chains.

What was the good of acquiring Courtly Graces and looking like a Lifetime toppling about him and settling into Ruin.

He made terrified injuiries and learned that Orlando had been taken up by the Best People because he was Breezy and never had learned to be awe-stricken.

The Great Men would go home and tell the Women Folks what Orlando had said at a Luncheon given to the President of the Trunk Line, and the Women would insist on having Orlando brought up to the House sometime, because they knew he must be Killing.

Then Orlando would call them up on the 'Phone and string them scandalous because he was an unprotected Bachelor with a spotless Reputation. So it was generally known that any Queen of the Tiarra Tribe who snared Orlando wor one of her Dinners was certainly playing in Great Luck.

In the meantime, Mr. Floozey, so blamed Genteel that it hurt, moved sadly along the Side Lines.

The whole Situation was very baffling to him. It seemed that Polite Society not only lacked the Sense of Justice but operated without particular Method.

Mr. Floozey had schooled himself until he was as cold and glossy as a Dress Shirt.

He was just as particular as could be about his Vocabulary, giving the Preference to Words that were worth from Eighty Sents to One Dollar each.

For lo, these many Snows he had done nothing but Pep himself for a sweeping Entrance into the Sanctum Sanctorium of th eSelect Minority, and he could not understand why he was kept waiting.

There came a day when he lifted a furtive glance toward the Windows of the Club which meant to him the Ulttimate in all things worth having.

Orlando was sprawled among the Magnificos, acting like a Charter Member.

A generous Impulse came upon Mr. Floozey. He decided that one should never pass up old and tried Friends.

That is how it came about that Orlando appeared before the Board of Governors and worked his Drag.

He asked them to admit a certain Applicant, who would be attaining the Acme of Bliss if he could sit quietly in a corner of the library and read The London Times.

He said that Mr. Floozey was so Correct that he was Colorless, and therefore would be in Harmony with any Background.

Inasmuch as Orlando was the Life of the Card Room, the Governors strained a Point and admitted the Unknown.

As you pass the Windows, you may identify Mr. Floozey as the one with the Rapt Expression, sitting over by Himself.

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

By J. P. Alley

Mr. Dooley On the Necessity of Modesty Among the Rich

By FINLEY PETER DUNNE

"I WONDHER," said Mr. Hennessy, "if thim Hadleys that gave th' swell ball is anny kin iv th' aldherman?"

"I doubt it," said Mr. Dooley. "I knowed all his folks. They're Monaghan people, an' I niver heerd iv thim marryin' into th' Hadleys, who come f'm away beyant near th' Joynt's Causeway. What med ye think iv thim?"

"I was readin' about th' Prowtestant minister that give thim such a turnin' over th 'other night," said Hennessy. "It looks to me as though th' man was wr-ong an' th' Hadley was right. Faith, th' more th' poor can get out iv th' rich, th' better f'r thim. I seen it put just r-right in th' paper th' other day. If these people didn't let go iv their coin here, they'll take it away with thim to Paris or some place, an' spind it instid iv puttin' it in circulation amongst th' florists an' hdressmakers an' bootleggers they'll have to hire. I believe in encouragin' th' rich to walk away from their change 'Tis gr-eat f'r business."

Mr. Dooley mused over this proposition some time before he said:

"Years ago whin I was a little bit iv a kid, hardly high enough to look into th' pot iv stirabout on tth' peat fire, they was a rich landlord in our part iv Ireland; an' he owned near half th' countryside His name was Dorsey—William Edmund Fitzgerald Dorsey, justice iv th' peace, mimber iv Parlymint.

A Good Landlord—With Good Crops

"I'll niver tell ye how much land that man had in his own r-right. Ye cud walk f'r a day without lavin' it—bog an' out-field an' pasthure an' game nresarves. He was smothered with money, an' he lived in a house as big as a hotel.

"Manny's th' time I've seen him ride by our place, an' me father'd raise his head from th' kish iv turf an' touch his hat to th' gr-reat man. An wanst or twice in th' month th' dogs'd come yelpin' acrost our little place, with lads follerin' afther in r-red coats; f'r this Dorsey was a gr-reat huntsman, had scran to his evil face.

"He had th' r-reputation iv bein' a good landlord so long as th' crops come regular. He was vilent, it's thrue, an' 'd as lave as not cut a farmer acrost th' face with his whip f'r crossin' th' thrail iv th' fox; but he was liberal with his money, an' Hinnissy, that's a thrait that covers a multitude iv sins.

"—th' dogs'd come yelpin' acrost our little place. . . . f'r this Dorsey was a gr-reat huntsman—"

"He give freely to th' church, an' was as gin-rous to th' priest as to th' parson. He had th' gintry f'r miles around to his house f'r balls an' dinners an' huntin' meetin's, an' half th' little shopkeepers in th' neighborin' town lived on th money he spent fr th' things he didn't bring fr'm Dublin or London.

"I mind wanst a great rour wint up whin he stayed th' whole season in England with his fam'ly. It near broke th' townsfolk an' they were wild with delight whin he come back an' opened up th' big house.

Flood and Famine Come.

"But wan year there come a flood iv rain, an' th' next year another flood, an' th' third year there wasn't a lumper turned up that wasn't blue black to th' hear-rt. We was better off than most, an' we suffered our share, Gawd knows, but thim that was scrapin' f'r th' sod f'r a bare livin' fr'm day to day perished like th' cattle in the field.

"Thin come the writs, an' th' evictions. Th' bailiffs hdeove out in squads, seizin' cattle an' turnin' people into th' r-road.

"Nawthin' wud soften th' heart iv Dorsey. I seen th priest an' th' Piscopal ministher drivin' over to plead with him wan night; an' th' good man stopped at our house, comin' back, and spent th' night with us. I heerd him tell me father what Dorsey said.

"'Haven't I been lib'ral with me people?' he says. 'Haven't I give freely to ye'er churches? Haven't I put up soup-houses an' distributed blankets whin th' weather was cold? Haven't I kept th' shop-keepers iv th' town beyant fr'm starvin' be thradin' with thim an' staytin' in this cur-rsed counthry, whin, if Id done what me wife wanted, I'd been r-runin' around Europe, enjyin' life? I'm a risidint landlord. ain't like Kilduff, that laves his estate in th' hands iv an agint. I'm proud iv me station. I was bor-rn, an' here I'll die; but I'll have me r-rights. These here people owes their rent, an' I'll get th rent or th' farms if I have to cal on ivry rig'mint f'rm Bombay to Cape Clear, an' turn ivry oat-field into a pasture f'r me cattle. I stand on th' law. I'm a just man an' I ask no more thin what belongs to me.'

"Ivry night they was a party on th' hill, an' th' people come f'r miles around; an' th' tinants trudgin' over th' muddy roads with th' peelers behind thim cud see th' light poorin' out fr'm th' big house an' hear Devine's band playin to th' dancers. Th' shopkeepers lived in clover, an' thanked th' lord f'r a good landlord an' wan that lived at home.

Th' Music and the Dancing.

"But one avnin' a black man be th' name iv Shaughenssy, that had thramped acrost th' hills fr'm Galway just in time to rent f'r th' potato rot, wint and hid himself in a hedge among th' road with a shotgun loaded with hardware under his coat.

"Dorsey'd heerd talk iv the people bein' aggrieved at him givin' big partles while his bailiffs were hustlin' men and women off their holdin's; but he was a high-handed man an' foolish in his pride, an' he'd have it no other way but that he'd go about without protection. This night he rode alongside th' carredge ix some iv his friends goin' to th' other side iv town an' come back alone in th' moonlight.

"Th' Irish ar-re poor marksmen Hinnissy, except whin they fire in platoons; but that big man loomin' up in th' moonlight on a black horse cud no more be missed thin th' r-rock iv Cashel.

"He niver knowed what hit him; an' Pether th' packer come down th' followin' month, an' a jury iv shopkeepers hanged Shaughnessy so fast it med even th' judge smile.

"Well," said Mr. Hennessy, "I suppose he deserved it; but if I'd been on th' jury, I'd've starved to death befure I'd give th' verdict."

"Thrue," said Mr. Dooley. "but Dorsey was a fool. He mightve evicted twinty thousan' tinants, an' lived to joke about it over his bottle. 'Twas th' music iv th' band an' th' dancin' on th' hill an' th' lights th' Galway man seen whin he wint up th' muddy road with his baby in his arrums that done th' business f'r Dorsey."

CHAMPION SARAZEN TELLS HOW TO PLAY GOLF

Advocates Putting Style That Places Weight on Left Foot

Sarazen's Putting Grip.

Gene Sarazen "getting set" to make put.

U. S. Open Titleholder Shows Stance That Keeps Body From Swaying.

By GENE SARAZEN
World's Champion Golfer.

Now we come to the putter. Putting has won and lost more tournaments than any other shot or stroke in golf. The man who is putting, provided the rest of his game is sound, is generally the winner.

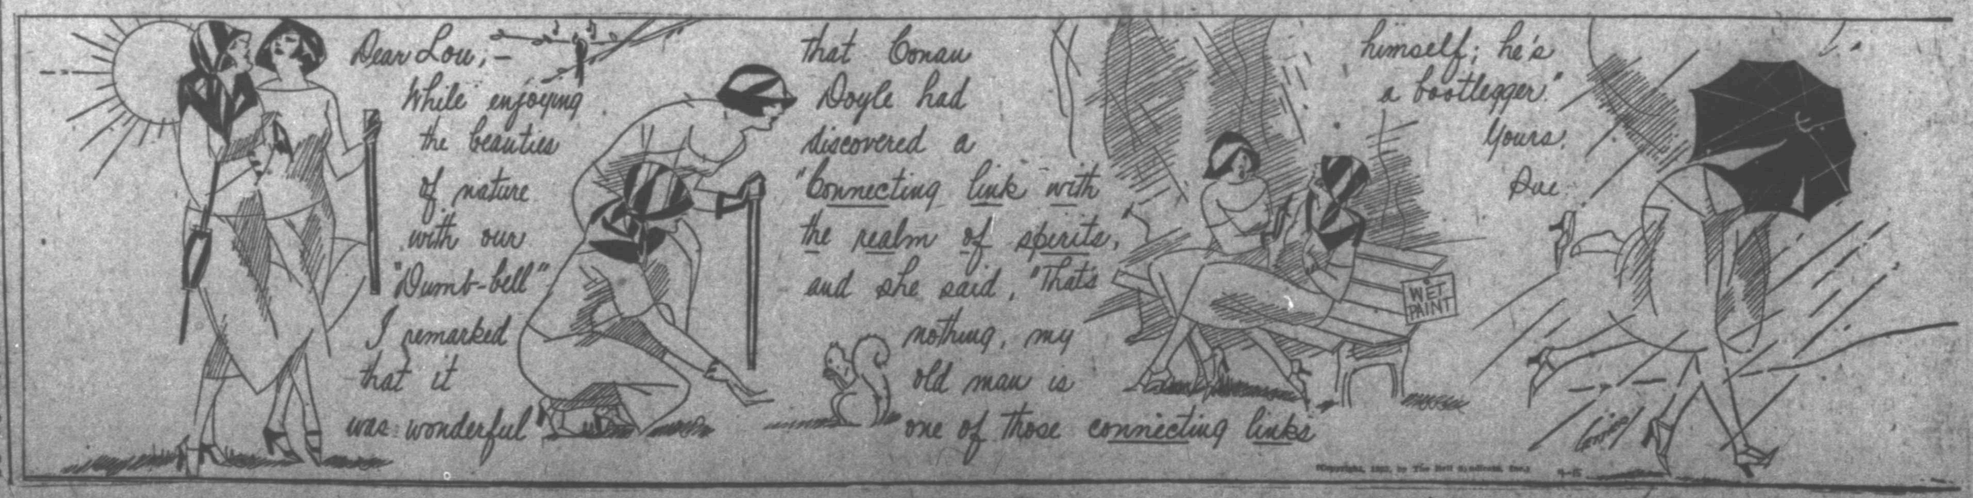

There are several different styles of putting. For myself, I prefer the style which demands that the weight be placed on the left foot, in order to keep the body from swaying. You will note in the picture that I putt almost exclusively off the left foot, with the ball about opposite the left heel. At least three-fourths of the weight is on the left foot.

I would like the reader to take not of the grip I use for putting. Both thumbs are straight down the shaft, with a little finger of the right hand overlapping the forefinger of the left hand.

The hands are held closely to the body, and I am standing right over the ball. The line from toe to toe is slightly diagonal, the right foot being forward about three inches.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

Going to School by Radio

A GREAT public school with a seating capacity of millions, as limitless, in fact, as the vast outdoors, will soon mark another milestone in the development of radio. An education for every one who wants it, the poor and even the convict. A school in every home, factory, mill and public hall. Such are the achievements which Prof. Michael Pupin, of Columbia University, sees directly ahead. In fact, an important step toward this accomplishment already has been taken by the University of Washington, Seattle, Wash., where lectures in history have been successfully broadcasted by radio.

"Months ago, when the full significance of radio dawned on a surprised world," says Prof. Pupin in Popular Science Monthly, "there formed in my mind a vague idea of what radio might some day mean to a university. Today, with radio broadcasting far advanced, that dream has become an almost certain future accomplishment."

This is the way Prof. Pupin pictures the radio school: "First, a great university like Columbia, equipped with a powerful broadcasting station for distributing to a knowledge-hungry people some of the vast store of authoritative information and knowledge accumulated by its great professors and teachers. Surrounding the university, within a radius of 100 miles, are scores of halls and public meeting places, each equipped with a radio receiving set and a powerful loudspeaker capable of amplifying voices without distortion.

"At the university broadcasting station an internationally famous professor, in his classroom, is delivering a lecture on some fascinating new chapter of, say, natural science. Simultaneously, in a hundred distant meeting places, crowds not unlike those at our theatres or public concerts are gathered before the loudspeakers, listening. Each person in the halls has paid 10 cents for the privilege, first of hearing the lecture by radio, then of submitting answers in a written examination covering the rudiments of the subject on which the broadcasted lecture is delivered.

"In each of the 100 halls 1000 persons—100,000 persons in all—are receiving an education without even leaving the limits of their own neighborhoods!

"Such a picture represents, to my mind, what radio may mean soon as a broadcaster of useful knowledge and as a disseminator of vital information.

"Go a step further. Enter a factory or mill of the future. It is lunchtime and, having finished their noonday meal, workers are lounging about on benches in an assembly room or one of the larger rooms of the factory. Some have pencils in their hands and are busily taking notes, while from the horn of a radio loudspeaker the voice of a university professor is carrying to them the higher education that has been denied them.

"Another picture: Sing Sing prison, with its bare interior lighted up by huge arc lamps. In the cells around the courtyard, convicts seated on their bunks are listening intently to the radio report from some far-off university coming to their ears through the medium of a loudspeaker.

"Just one more picture and you will have grasped the significance of the plan for a radio extension university. Here is a home in which an ingenious youth has installed a home-made radio outfit with a loudspeaker. The entire family is listening as the lecture comes in, while the youth takes notes so that later he may pass a written examination on questions mailed to him from the university.

"As I have said, these are real possibilities, not dreams, as soon as the loudspeaker is perfected, and I think that day is near."

Why Hail Is Hard and Snow Is Soft

HAVE you ever wondered why it should hail instead of snow? If you could examine a snowflake and a hailstone side by side, you would find a clue to the answer. In the case of the snowflake the water has turned into a number of tiny crystals, while the hailstone is nothing more than a ball of ice. The snow has been formed from water vapor, the hailstone is just frozen rain.

Meteorologists explain that in the upper air there is a huge quantity of water vapor floating about in the form of a colorless gas, and so long as the air does not become colder the water will stay as a vapor.

Air at a certain temperature can hold a certain amount of water in it in the form of water vapor. If the air becomes warmer it can hold more vapor, and if it becomes colder it cannot hold so much.

So, if the air, holding all the vapor it can, suddenly becomes colder, some of the water vapor in it has to be squeezed out in the form of drops of water. These fall to earth as rain.

If, when these drops of water have been squeezed out, there is a sudden rush of wind upwards, the raindrops will be blown up with it into the higher regions where it is colder and the drops are frozen and form hailstones, which directly the upward wind stops, fall to the ground.

Snowflakes form in a different way. If the air charged with water vapor falls to a temperature below zero, the water vapor will be squeezed out, not as water, but as ice, because the air is below freezing-point. Ice that forms straight from vapor becomes tiny water crystals. These crystals as they fall stick together and form snowflakes.

How SAP Circulates Through PLANTS

HOW sap rises from the root-hairs of a plant to the tip of the leaves is not, as yet, fully understood, but it is known, as Dr. E. Bade explains in the Scientific American, that the sap or water rises in the xylem.

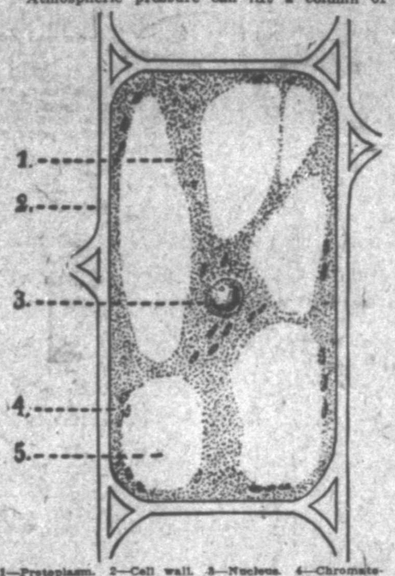

In a tree the quantity of water taken up is quite considerable, about 50 liters being required by a large species, and in the gigantic trees, it must be raised for more than 450 feet. The so-called root pressure is able to lift a column of water quite a distance into the air, but in the problem of the rise of sap it only plays a secondary part, for the greatest possible available pressure is far from sufficient to lift the water to the top of the highest trees. Then, too, this root pressure cannot be proved present throughout the year.

Atmospheric pressure can lift a column of water only to a height of 34 feet. Capillarity itself is too restricted in action to have much of an effect, and osmotic pressure is far too slow to be responsible; for it has been proven that sap rises more than 100 feet an hour. Even the suction of the leaves fails to explain this phenomenon for, by experiments made with a plant whose roots have been cut off, its leaves removed and its stem covered with an impervious varnish which prevents respiration, the plant was still able to absorb water when the cut end was placed in a vessel, and the water rose at the rate of 60 feet an hour.

The rise of sap can therefore only be explained by the action of the cells. Here is where the most recent observations of Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, an Indian naturalist, come in. He examined in order to find the seat of the power in the individual cells, all layers of cells from the bark to the central cylinder and pith, while they were still in their fullest activity.

For this purpose he used a special magnetic instrument (crescograph), which enlarged all changes within the cell from 10 to 100 million times. In this way all detailed movements of the cell were observed. With the aid of an electrical instrument the investigator penetrated deeper and deeper into the centre of the plant, and, by the deflection of a galvanometer which recorded the tiniest movements of the cell, he found that they expanded regularly, took up sap and then contracted and passed the sap along.

The cells within the plant pulsate regularly, expand and contract, millions of tiny "hearts" pump and lift the water, take it from below and, on contraction, press it upward from one cell to the other. The rate of pulsation is approximately 14 seconds, but under the most favorable conditions this is much more rapid, while under unfavorable conditions the pulsations slow down until they stop entirely.

How CHEMISTRY Aids the COOK

THE cook who works on a commercial scale, as well as the maid-of-all-work or the housewife who does her own cooking, are again the beneficiaries of chemical research. This time, the boon comes in the form of a method of saving money, time and energy, in the making of jams and jellies. H. A. Noyes, at a recent meeting of the Michigan Agricultural College Section of the American Chemical Society, discussed the advantages of using a substance named "pectin," in jelly-making. Pectin is that material in fruit juices which makes the jelly "jell" or solidify. It can be recovered commercially from lemon or orange peels and from other sources.

"The manufacture of fruit jams and jellies is very often a 'hit-and-miss' proposition both in the home and in the commercial establishment," said Mr. Noyes. "Quality is necessary if jams and fruit jellies are to be consumed as freely as they should be. It is jams and jellies with the flavors and 'bouquet' of the fruits that they are made from that are desired. Heat destroys the natural flavor of many products before the proper consistency is reached by the usual methods of preparation. To offset this deleterious effect of heat it has been customary for concerns, whose reputation rests on quality products, to use small kettles and make up small batches to cut down the time of cooking.

"Too much sugar is usually used in the open kettle method of cooking; this gives too high a concentration of sugar for a good jelly before the proper concentration of pectin for a good jelly is reached.

"Boiling in an open kettle at atmospheric pressure destroys the pectin as far as its jell producing power is concerned, destroys natural fruit flavors and produces undesirable flavors. A series of open cookings made to test out this point (using a pectin preparation extracted and concentrated with minimum heat) showed, in many cases, a loss of one-half the pectin. Proper methods would give almost double the quantity of jelly from the same amount of pectin.

"Vacuum cooking increased the quality of the product, made larger quantities of jelly and jam from the same amount of raw materials and the product kept well in storage.

"Jellies were produced with as low as .25 per cent. pectin (calculated to finished jelly) and with as high as 1.4 per cent. pectin in the vacuum and the one-minute cook processes.

"Jellies were produced having as low as 38 per cent. sugar and as high as 72 per cent. sugar in the vacuum and the one-minute cook processes.

"Jellies were made having as low as .60 per cent. acid, as tartaric (calculated to basis of finished jelly) and with as high as 3.0 as by vacuum and the one-minute cook processes."

GOLDBEATING One of FIRST TRADES

IN the British Museum there reposes the mummy case of An-Antef, a king who ruled at Thebes about 2600 B. C., which because of its rich gilt of gold leaf that was put on probably 4500 years ago, gives evidence that gold beating is one of the most ancient of industries.

The method of producing gold leaf is almost the same today as it was 45 centuries ago, for science and engineering have failed in many experiments to evolve machinery that can do the beating as well as it is done by hand. Steam hammers are utilized only in the initial stages; afterward the leaf receives two beatings by hand.

Pure fine gold (24 carat) arrives in small pieces like so much scrap. To it, as it is melted to form bars, is added copper and silver as alloys. "Best English" gold leaf is thus diluted one part in 24, and assays at 23 carat.

The bar is passed between highly burnished steel rollers with ever-increasing pressure, and frequent annealing, until a ribbon 1¼ inches wide and two yards to the ounce is obtained. Squares of this ribbon are placed between the leaves of a "cutch"—200 leaves of fine vellum, four inches square—and the cutch is beaten until the squares of ribbon have spread to the edges of the vellum sheets.

They are then quartered and placed between the skins of a "shoder"—800 rather coarse, strong skins 4½ inches square. The shoder is beaten for two hours with a 12-pound steel hammer until the gold leaves spread to the size of 4½ inches square.

Once more they are quartered—this time with a sharpened reed, for they are already very much thinner than the very thinnest "silver" paper that ever wrapped a chocolate.

For the final beating they are placed between very thin sheets, 5¼ inches square, of gold beaters' skin (manufactured from the intestines of the ox).

One thousand skins constitute a "mould," and they are so thin that the mould is only one inch thick and weighs but a few ounces.

You see the beaters standing over marble blocks with their great hammers poised half-arm. The body moves from the hip with each blow. The eight-pound hammer requires no lifting, for it bounds off the parchment-bound mould.

Prettiest of all stages in the adventure of gold leaf is its transference from the gold beaters' skin to the roughed pages of the little books in which it is sold.

Skilled women and girls draw each leaf from the mould on to a calf-skin cushion with boxwood tweezers, and trim it to standard size with sharpened reeds set in a delicate frame called a "waggon."

Twenty-five of these trimmed leaves equal five grains of gold (there are 480 grains of gold to the ounce).

Imagine the thinness; it cannot be measured, but it has been computed, according to a writer in London Tit-Bits, to represent one-quarter of the millionth part of an inch.

The women literally blow the leaves out upon the roughed pages with delicate puffs from their lips, and the leaf obeys like the surface of water in a gentle breeze.

How OLD TONES Are IMPARTED to NEW VIOLINS

IT is the ambition of every violinist to become the proud possessor of a Stradivari or Amati violin. While that is not possible, science has done the next best thing by perfecting a process whereby there can be imparted to new violins something of the timbre that is the distinguishing characteristic of the most famous instruments turned out by the master makers of old.

Some time ago Prof. J. F. Koch, a physicist and a gifted musician, began a series of experiments to solve the secret of the tone of the famous old violins. His efforts resulted in the perfection of a process to give old tones to new violins, which is explained in the London Graphic.

The wood of which the old instruments are composed was subjected to analyses, and analyses of the preparation with which they were lacquered also were made. The lacquer contains a mixture of colophiny, flax-seed oil and turpentine, but the mixture has not always been the same, and it is possible that some elements have volatilized.

In addition to other woods, woods from the countries in which the old violins were made were tried. All kinds of lacquer mixtures were used. In spite of this, however, the new violins did not attain the beautiful timbre of the old, though certainly progress was made. Nor was any greater success achieved when the bridges were changed, and other structural alterations were made.

Prof. Koch concluded that the timbre was chiefly due to the material, and that the dimensions of the instrument had not much to do with it. Examined with a microscope, the wood of the old violins was shown to have a strikingly homogeneous structure, which could be caused only by a certain way of treating it before it was lacquered. This homogeneity Prof. Koch found to be the key to the characteristic quality of the timbre.

The question now was how to secure this homogeneity. Nowadays pine and maple wood are exclusively used for the construction of the sounding boards of violins, and these woods are very disproportionate with regard to weight, stability and elasticity. As a bell must be homogeneous and contain no pores if it is to have a good sound, so the material of violins must be homogeneous. In the course of his experiments, Prof. Koch found over and over again that the pores of the violins were filled with a transparent substance. The wood had got a hornlike structure. Some ten years ago the Professor adopted the system of making the wood homogeneous by allowing a fluid which he had prepared to sink into it. This proved to be the proper course.

The homogeneous violins are constructed in the following way: First of all, skilled makers construct the violins. Then the instrument, still in the unfinished condition, is tested to find out its timbre. On the result of this test, the procedure of making the instrument homogeneous is based. A violin that sounds softly is treated in a different way from one whose tone is hard. When homogeneity has been secured, the violin is dried in the sun.

Why Inner Tubes of Automobile Tires Do Not Make Safe Life Preservers

THE passage of an ordinance to forbid the use of motor car inner tubes for use as beach life buoys by the city of Hermosa Beach, Cal., calls poignant attention to the fact that such "life preservers" are in reality dangerous decoys.

The California beach city maintains a corps of fifteen life guards who have entered so many complaints against the use of motor tubes in the surf that the ordinance forbidding their use is the result. Several drownings, and near drownings, have been attributed to their use. Salt water decomposes the rubber, it is said, and at the critical moment the bather finds that he is at sea upon his own resources—in many instances even unable to swim. In certain instances bathers have ventured far from shore buoyed by such improvised floats, only to have the tubes collapse, leaving them to drown, or be saved by the life guards.

Another danger to such use of the tubes is pointed out by a writer in the Scientific American. Many bathers go into the surf resting on the inflated rubbers in such a manner that they are easily dislodged by heavy waves. The great buoyancy of the tubes is said to be responsible for this. When this occurs the bather is usually violently ducked. The tube has also been known to burst when the bather grasps it, tearing away the rubber which has been rendered fragile by the action of salt water.

The use of motor tubes at all the western beaches has become quite general this season, and the Hermosa warning is a timely one.

BATS to BANISH INSECT PESTS

HAVE you added a bat to your list of pets? Just as some persons keep a cat to rid the house of mice, so will they add a bat to their list of pets to banish pestiferous insects, if the experiments now being conducted by certain scientists turn out successfully. Already bats have been used in San Antonio, Tex., and some localities in Florida to wage a successful war against malaria-bearing mosquitoes.

Bats Are Now Being Used Successfully in Exterminating the Mosquito Pest.

It may soon be possible to see a pet bat making its home in a dwelling, darting here and there, and killing all invading insects. To prove that this is entirely feasible, experimenters introduced two bats into their own homes after being bothered by mosquitoes. The result was that the bats disposed of all of the insects in a single night.

Two difficulties have arisen, however. In the first place, they have not yet found an adequate way to keep the bats alive in captivity. They feed only while on the wing, and unless supplied with large numbers of insects, do not get enough food when kept in a laboratory. Secondly, since the bat is little more than a winged mouse, women feel somewhat timid about having such a policeman around the house.

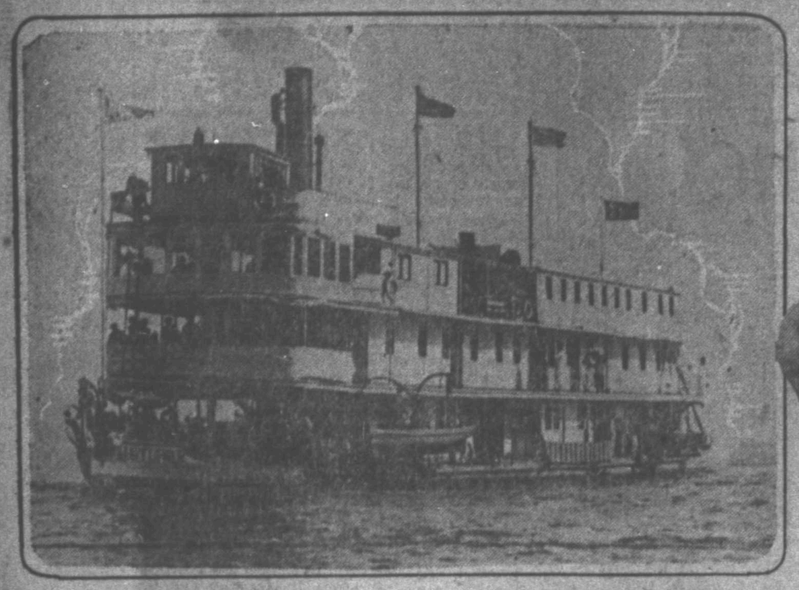

The real importance of the research, in the opinion of a writer in Popular Science Monthly, lies in the discoveries of the value of bats as destroyers of insects that damage crops on farms and as annihilators of mosquitoes. Scientists are confident their studies will enable them to devise a way to keep bats in captivity so that they may be domesticated to farm uses.

The bat is a nocturnal animal, hiding in dark caves in the daytime. Some varieties migrate with the seasons, while others hibernate, hanging suspended from roofs of caves by their hooked claws, sleeping for periods as long as 10 weeks. They never build nests.

As soon as young are born—never more than two to a pair—they attach themselves to the breast of the mother bat, remaining with her until they have gained strength enough to fly.

Why Society's Sculptress Must Alternate Between the Grand and the Petite

Is It Because She (Like All of Us) Has a Dual Personality?---How the Case of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney Is Paralleled by Others in Art and Psychological Annals.

THE world knows the story of the Dual Personality. Generally it has to do with the man or woman who travels a certain road, living and loving and working, just as do others. Yet with a strange reservation in the soul of that man or woman, withal, like the wing of a house sealed from the rest.

Only the soul of the person holds the key to the different wings of this House of Personality, and it seems to pass from one to another, at times assuming one character at other times another. Artists provide the most graphic illustrations of this change, which brings us to the strange case of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, society sculptress, whose widely contrasting types of work are now astonishing art experts and psychologists.

Mrs. Whitney is a beautiful woman, tall, slender, with graceful, sweeping lines and thoughtful, dark eyes. Born in a world which granted her wealth, social position, leisure, she deliberately elected to fill her life with hard work and at least a great deal of the solitude necessary for accomplishment.

She worked long and faithfully before her work attracted attention, but with recognition it was noticed how dissimilar her sculptures were. Some, massive, heroic, seemed carved by hand and directed by brain of a rugged masculine character; others, small, graceful and poetic, seemed essentially feminine in their exquisite quality.

Whence comes this contrast and why—this sharp differentiation between the masculine and feminine sides of Mrs. Whitney's character? She does not know, and it never has occurred to her that it might be an expression of dual personality.

She explains:

"I always keep two or three things going at the same time—a Dancing Faun, for example, and a Dying Gladiator; a huge memorial piece and a Bacchante. I go through all sorts of phases changing back and forth from one type of work to another."

It is this statement which makes Mrs. Whitney's case so interesting to psychologists. For it shows her two personalities, one dominating for a while, only to give way to the other.

These psychologists point to other similar cases among artists, and of many cases in medical history. They tell us, furthermore, that each one of us has this dual personality—to some extent—and some of us have multiple personalities. But with few people is the difference so pronounced as to be noticed unless it is searched for.

The psychologists point to Stevenson, Flaubert and Maeterlinck in literature as possessors of the dual personality. To Caruso, the opera singer, to Leonardo da Vinci, the painter.

The artist whose work represents different spheres of activity is a normal figure, for the dual personality is held together and organized. When the personality becomes "split," or "disintegrated," then we see the same sort of thing made a problem for medical men.

Such a case was that of Christine L. Beauchamp investigated by Dr. Morton Prince of Boston, perhaps America's leading investigator into the phenomena of the dual or multiple personality. Concerning it Dr. Prince says:

"Cases of this kind are commonly known as 'double' or 'multiple' personality, according to the number of persons represented. The synthesis of the original consciousness, known as the personal ego, is broken up. . . . The conscious states that still persist, synthesized among themselves, form a new personality. . . . This second personality may alternate with the original personality from time to time. . . .

"The personalities of Miss Beauchamp come and go in kaleidoscopic succession. And so Miss Beauchamp, if I may use the name to designate several distinct people, at one moment does something to which a short time before she most strongly objected. . . . This inconsistent way of living would furnish a multitude of plots for the dramatist or sensational novelist."

A case of dual personality did form the basis of a famous fiction, as we know, in "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde." And, curiously enough, it was written by one of literature's foremost examples of the dual personality. For Stevenson's work shows two personalities, although, contrary to the plan pursued in his story, there was nothing sinister in either and each co-ordinated with the other. But while one side of Stevenson's nature longed for romance and wrote stories to satisfy that longing, another side, which shows in his essays, was preoccupied chiefly with the moral aspects of life.

Flaubert, celebrated French novelist, is perhaps the best example of the dual personality that literature gives us. He was both realist and romanticist—realist in "Madame Bovary," which plumbs the depths of a provincial woman's soul, and romanticist in such works as "Salammbo," where he seeks romance in distant times and climes. Flaubert's critics and admirers have long wondered how he could produce such contrasting types of work.

Art critics still smile over the remarkable caricatures the eminent Caruso penciled between moments of song, and Maeterlinck, the poet, is also a scientist in his delvings into the lives of bees. In painting there is the astounding case of Leonardo da Vinci, who turned from creating masterpieces in oil to mathematics and attempts to invent flying machines.

One of her most spectacular achievements is the "Washington Heights and Iron Wood Memorial Statue," which was erected in New York on Memorial Day, 1922, at the intersection of Broadway and One Hundred and Sixty-eighth street. It is made of the figures of three soldiers, two of whom stand upon either side of a wounded comrade, their arms about his shoulders, assisting him to rise. In sharp contrast with this piece, in the gallery where the casts of Mrs. Whitney's work are on exhibition, is a little figure of Pan, with his pointed ears, one hand overflowing with grapes and the other clutching his pipes. A satyric face this small figure shows, and a look of joyous freedom.

Then there is Mrs. Whitney's "Fourth Division" memorial monument, which will be erected in bronze at Arlington cemetery; the figure of a youthful soldier, standing at rest, eyes looking into the distance. And beside it is the small flying figure of a dryad, pagan, and rollicking as if in all the world there were no such things as war and soldiers.

The much-discussed statue of Buffalo Bill, sitting his horse with gun held high above his head, was done by the sculptress for the town of Cody, Wyoming. And another figure is the small one of Mrs. Whitney's daughter, Barbara, when she was a tot of the age to wear her hair down her back and little play-room dresses.

Every Turk Must Marry —One Wife

The Amazing Reversal That Has Taken Place Since Kemal Pasha's Government Revised the Marriage Laws, and Advised Women to Insist on Monogamy

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, Turkish Nationalist Leader.

(C) Kadel & Herbert.

Mme. Zia Bey, Formerly Miss Helen Cullen, a New Orleans Beauty, Who Says Turks Make Excellent Husbands.

PIERRE LOTI'S Turkey of disenchantment is no more. Dark eyes peering wistfully through lattice bars. Dim white figures walking in walled gardens of an evening. Exquisite faces veiled from the gaze of the world like shameful things. Slender, girlish figures trembling at the approach of a lord and master, affable, indifferent or cruel, as his mood happened.

Gone are these things with the haremlik, and in their place stands the New Woman of Turkey. She is infinitely less romantic than the veil-wound odalisk of history and tradition, but vastly more satisfactory to the age of progress.

She goes upon the street unattended. She receives men friends—alone sometimes—and gives them coffee. She has no thought of covering her face, and her veil has become a small, negligible square of fabric which she twists round her head, when she dresses informally, in place of a hat. She wears Paris styles. AND—

Strange and interesting reasons are given for the all but unbelievable change in the life of the Star and Crescent country. Some say it is only the after-effect of the war which brought cosmopolitanism into many closed-fast places. Others declare it to be the result of Paris styles, taken up by the women of Turkey within the past two or three years. The psychological effect of the Rue de la Paix on Stamboul, it is pointed out, is a radical one, running largely to independence of the feminine mind.

Other students of Turkish history aver that the whole revolution rests upon the personality of Halide Hanum, scholar, poetess, politician and the country's Jeanne d'Arc. This remarkable personage is said to have led Turkish womanhood out of the bondage of tradition as Moses led his people out of Egypt.

Still others maintain that Kemal Pasha, who is called the "George Washington of Turkey," severed the bonds of Turkish women when he urged every Turkish woman not to marry without securing a written contract that she would be the only wife.

But none of these causes is responsible for the marvelous, far-flung effect, according to a figure of the World War just arrived in America. He is Ralph de Nogales, native of Venezuela, who fights for the love of fighting, and who, as such a soldier of fortune, attained the rank of superior staff officer in the Turkish army.

De Nogales explains that while the conditions just mentioned all may have much to do with changing status of women in the Near East, the actual reason for the change is the high cost of living.

Gen. Ralph de Nogales, Recently Staff Officer in the Turkish Army, Who Says the H. C. of L. Has Doomed the Harem.

The old H. C. of L. spectre has hit Turkey, he explains, harder than ever it dared to attack the United States. And as a consequence Turkish gentlemen who formerly were allowed to have four lawful wives, providing they gave each a private house and adequate support, are finding that one wife is all and sometimes more than they can afford.

Still marriage is in no way going out of style. For even from an economic standpoint one wife is preferable to none at all, since all able-bodied male Turks who attain the age of 25 and remain unmarried must give to the government a quarter of their income—to be distributed by the government to the poor.

De Nogales says that Kemal Pasha is responsible for the change, in that the new laws applying to domesticity in Turkey are his own. He is the one who has banished the harem and, outstanding figure as he is, has set the example for his countrymen by marrying the daughter of a rich Smyrna notable with the understanding that she is to reign alone in his heart and home. All this at the age of 43!

Kemal Pasha's bride is Latife Hanoum, and she is reported to have brought him a dowry of 1,000,000 Turkish lire, or nearly $700,000. The rite which united them was in Turkish style, they took their places before the mufti and Kemal declared, quite simply, "I have decided to marry Letife Hanoum. Will you please accomplish the necessary ceremonies?"

The mufti then addressed the woman: "Do you accept as husband Gazi Mustapha Kemal Pasha in return for a gift from him of ten drams of silver and on condition of a nuptial indemnity as agreed upon by you in event of separation?" Their replies concluded the ceremony.

"The work before the nation," he said, "can be perfected only if Turkish women join equally with men in educating themselves and in taking active part in the nation's affairs. The Moslem faith orders women to educate themselves in the same degree as men and it does not indicate that women are to be kept in seclusion. No progress is possible to a nation where the forcible seclusion of women destroys family life.

"The present seclusion of the sex in Turkey is due to Persian influence. In olden times Turkish women went to war side by side with their husbands. At the very dawn of Islamism there were women savants, women of letters, women orators and women who opened schools, lectured and took a great part in the public life."

The Turk as a 20th Century husband receives the endorsement of Mme. Zia Bey, wife of a former attache of the Turkish Embassy in this country. Madame, who was Miss Helen Cullen, a New Orleans beauty, married in defiance of tradition and now declares that no American wife could be happier than she. In her husband's country she has found no haremlik, no veil, no polygamy, she asserts—only astonishing affection and gentleness.

As for Kemal Pasha's 19-year-old bride, she shows her modern notions by her attire and her interest in public affairs. Her favorite costume is a riding outfit, breeches and all, with a flaming kerchief wound round her head. And she is planning to open a school for thirty orphan children on the hillside where the Pasha lives.

But however much current conditions may have had to do with creating a new status for Turkish women, and however definitely the responsibility for those conditions may rest with Kemal Pasha, it is certain that the first to show the women of Turkey the way out of their bondage was Halide Hanum, the "First Woman" of Turkey and destined to become one of the most spectacular figures in the history of womanhood.

Halide emerged from the bloody shadows of the Greco-Turkish war like the soul of the Nationalist movement. First she was a novelist who played a big role in modern Turkish literature. But her most distinguished and interesting characteristic ever has been her ardent patriotism. She is like a burning volcano, throwing flames of patriotism round her, stirring and stimulating revolt and enthusiasm in her readers and hearers.

She was the first Turkish woman to receive a college degree. She went to the American College in Constantinople, although there was great opposition at the time. Her father, a high government official, traded his position for her right to attend. He agreed that he never would ask for or expect favors or promotion if she should be allowed to study.

Eventually she married a tutor who helped her, but divorced him because she found he had another wife. Her two sons at present are in Harvard.

After a long, colorful political career, Halide began such active work toward organizing a political Nationalist Party that a mass meeting was held in Constantinople for the purpose of hearing her views and attended by 100,000 persons.

The result was that the Allies put the woman under surveillance. Hundreds of her co-workers were arrested and put in jail. When Constantinople was occupied by the British an order was issued for her arrest and removal to Malta, but she escaped and fled to Angora, where she led the Nationalist movement just beginning there.

When the Greek armies began an offensive on a large scale against the Nationalist forces, she petitioned general headquarters, and was admitted to the army as a soldier. She took an active part in the Greco-Turkish battle on the Sakaria front in 1921, running along the battle-front and constantly encouraging the soldiers. And finally, when the Turkish army began to give way to the enemy because of lack of ammunition and exhaustion, on a night after fighting had gone on furiously all day, Halide Hanum mounted a horse, pushed it to the battle lines and so exhorted the soldiers that they were moved to fresh vigor and managed to rout the Greek army. After this exploit Halide was called the "Woman on Horseback."
