White House shooting puzzles officers

Chester Plummer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authorities are puzzled about what motivated a man who was fatally shot by a White House guard on the mansion's lawn after scaling a fence, brandishing a three-foot pipe and ignoring the guard's command to halt.

Washington police said the intruder, Chester M. Plummer, raised the three-foot pipe "in a threatening manner" and ignored repeated orders to halt from the Executive Protective Service guard Sunday night.

The guard, Pvt. Charles A. Garland, fired a single shot that hit Plummer in the upper left chest and felled him about 60 feet from the 8-foot-fence along Pennsylvania Avenue he had just scaled.

The police said Plummer, a 30-year-old Washington cab driver, reportedly had a criminal record, but was not involved in any previous intrusions on the White House grounds.

A police sergeant said Plummer's motive was unknown. After talking with Plummer's parents, the sergeant said, "He never indicated to them he had any qualms with the President." Plummer, a bachelor, was estranged from his parents, he added.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner, asked whether the incident would cause any security changes at the White House, replied, "We constantly review our security procedures and find no problems with the outer perimeter at this time."

The White House recently installed crash-proof gates costing $550,000. A man crashed into the old gates in a car on Christmas Day 1974, and in February 1973 an AWOL soldier landed a helicopter on the White House lawn amid a hail of bullets from guards. Last November an unarmed intruder came within a few feet of Susan Ford, the President's daughter, on the first of his three illicit entries onto the grounds.

But no previous incident resulted in death or serious injury.

A dispatcher at the Red Top Cab Co. in Arlington, Va., where Plummer worked, said, "He was really a nice guy. He was quiet."

Plummer was shot several hundred feet from the White House, where President Ford and his family were in their second floor quarters. It was not known whether Ford heard the shot, but White House spokesmen say he was informed of the incident.

An ambulance squad tried to revive Plummer with heart massage on the White House lawn. He stopped breathing en route to George Washington Hospital, where efforts to revive him continued. He was pronounced dead at 11:05 p.m., about 90 minutes after the shooting.

A Secret Service official said, "The individual was observed earlier ... by EPS officers, but did not make any overt attempt at that time to arouse suspicion as to a possible penetration."

Plummer set off an alarm and was "immediately detected" by Garland and another officer when he scaled the fence, and Garland approached him alone, the official said.

Garland, 25, will be placed on administrative leave pending a routine grand jury investigation, the police said. He became an officer last January in the EPS, the uniformed branch of the Secret Service.

Mutscher again holds public job

BRENHAM, Tex. (AP) — Former Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher, freed earlier in the day from the rest of his probation for bribery conspiracy, was sworn in today as county judge for Washington County.

The ceremonies restoring Mutscher to a place in government came shortly after court action in Abilene freed the onetime political star from the remaining 3½ years of a five-year probated sentence.

District Court Judge J. Neal Daniel, who presided at Mutscher's 1972 trial, signed the order releasing Mutscher from probation.

Probation officer Bill McCay called Mutscher a "model probationer."

Mutscher was indicted by a Travis County grand jury at Austin on charges he conspired to accept bribes at the height of the Sharpstown bank scandals that uprooted state government.

Travis County Dist. Atty. Robert Smith said he was aware of Mutscher's application for early release of 3½ years from probation but, in keeping

Bus kidnaping hunt expanded

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — Investigators say as many as five persons may have been responsible for kidnaping a busload of Chowchilla school children and imprisoning them for 18 hours in a buried truck.

One man is in jail, two more are being sought and authorities said Sunday that two more persons may be named in the nationwide manhunt.

"There has been some talk of a fourth and a fifth person being involved," a law enforcement source told The Associated Press. "But we haven't gotten far enough into the investigation to be sure."

On Sunday, newspapers quoted investigators as saying a middle-aged man may have masterminded the July 15 kidnaping.

The bus carrying 26 children and their driver was stopped at gunpoint as they headed home. They were imprisoned in a moving van buried in a rock quarry 95 miles away in Livermore but escaped unharmed.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates said it seemed "logical" to assume that at least four people were involved.

Federal and local arrest warrants have been filed for Frederick N. Woods IV and James L. Schoenfeld, both 24. Woods' father owns the quarry where the van was buried.

Schoenfeld's 22-year-old brother, Richard, surrendered Friday and was being held in the Alameda County Jail.

The federal arrest warrants described James Schoenfeld and Woods as armed and dangerous. The FBI entered the case on the assumption the two men have fled the state. The FBI said unconfirmed sightings of them were reported Sunday in Tennessee, Oklahoma and Illinois.

Meanwhile, an investigator told the San Francisco Examiner that "We're definitely pursuing the possibility that there are other suspects in this case. These others might be the brains behind the whole thing."

And the Oakland Tribune quoted a source close to the investigation as saying there is "a possibility that an older male was involved in the kidnaping, and there are some good leads to back it up."

According to the victims, including 55-year-old bus driver Ed Ray, two of the captors were men in their 40s and 50s. Authorities have refused to explain the obvious discrepancies between those descriptions and the youthfulness of Woods and the Schoenfelds.

Schoenfeld will be transferred Thursday to Madera County for arraignment. Authorities say he will face 43 counts: 27 of kidnaping for ransom and 16 of robbery. Clothing and other personal items were taken from the victims.

Viking's soil-sampling arm is pictured on Mars after scientists corrected temporary troubles.

Viking's 'claw' repaired

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — With Viking 1 back to almost perfect health scientists are preparing for this week's search for life on Mars — man's first scientific analysis of another planet's surface.

On Sunday, scientists unjammed the lander's sampling arm, in which a pin from a protective covering had become stuck for several days.

Now, with the arm unjammed, the experiment will take place according to schedule on Wednesday, the lander's eighth day on Mars, Viking Project Manager James Martin said Sunday.

The telescoping device is to reach out and scoop up 50 cubic centimeters of Martian soil — enough to fill a shot glass. The analysis of that soil is the key to Viking's search for life as well as its attempts to find out about the planet's evolution.

Unjamming the pin represented a major step toward a successful mission, but it did not remedy everything that has gone wrong with Viking 1. A seismometer to measure and locate marsquakes, the equivalent of earthquakes, was still out of operation after several attempts to repair it from earth.

"There's been no new word on the seismometer," Martin said, "and I frankly don't hold out much hope for success."

Scientists unjammed the pin by recreating the problem on an identical lander here and developing a command to free the pin.

There were several anxious hours between the issuing of the command and Viking's response. The craft finally sent back pictures showing the arm in the correct position, and then close-up shots of a small section of the red, rocky Martian surface.

There, the scientists spotted the pin and knew the arm was again in working order.

"We're heading right on forward," Martin said. "Everybody's very happy and excited."

On Sunday, after deciding to have the sampling done in a relatively smooth area less cluttered with sharp Martian rocks than the spot originally set for examination, scientists sent the command for the arm to conduct its soil collecting work on Wednesday. Whether it responds to the order will be known late that day.

Martin said he was "very excited" about Viking's chances for coming up with some proof of Martian life, chances he said were "greatly enhanced" by the craft's discovery of nitrogen in the atmosphere there in samples last week.

Nitrogen is one of the requirements for the existence of life as earthlings know it.

Increased city budget calls for no tax hike

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The proposed budget for the City of Midland for Oct. 1, 1976, through Sept. 30, 1977, totals $15,876,387, with increased expenditures in all areas. No tax increase will be necessary, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said. Angelo presented the budget proposal this morning at a press conference. He noted that a public hearing will be conducted on the budget at the Sept. 14 session of the Midland City Council.

Expenditures in the general fund total $10,484,081, an increase of $1,435,740 over that from last year's budget. Angelo said the main portion of the increase is due to wage and salary increases as proposed by James O. Yarger and Associates in a wage and salary survey for the city.

Angelo said an appropriation of $467,107 from the general fund unappropriated surplus will be needed to balance the general fund presented in the budget. He stressed the city's financial condition is "sound" and no tax increases are projected.

Expenditures in the water fund total $4,470,572, an increase of $271,816 over that from last year's budget. Angelo cited increases in the purchase of water from the Colorado River Municipal Water District as the principal area of increase in the water fund. He said no rate increases are planned unless the city experiences a "huge increase" in water use or unless the CRMWD increases its rates. He said $400,972 must be removed from the special reserve to balance the water fund budget, as has been the case for the past several years.

Expenditures for the airport fund total $921,734, an increase of $19,824 over that from last year's budget. Angelo said the main item of increase was for personal services. He said that, due to increased activity at the Air Park and at Midland Regional Air Terminal, the city is anticipating the income to be up enough to offer a slight surplus.

Total expenditures are $15,876,387, an increase of $1,727,380 over that from last year.

Angelo noted the general fund also

Shot kills Midlander

A 29-year-old Midland man was shot and killed early Sunday outside the El Rancho Grande Club, 409 E. Scharbauer Drive.

Jose Teodoro Anguiano, 706 N. Lee St., was shot about 2 a.m. and died en route to Midland Memorial Hospital, police said. He was pronounced dead there by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

Police found Anguiano in the parking lot at the lounge. It is believed he was involved in an argument with another man.

A police spokesman said Anguiano was shot three times with a .22 caliber weapon, believed to be a rifle. He died of a chest wound. Police are seeking a suspect.

Another chili bash on Conchos

SAN ANGELO—Midland area readers will forgive my going outside our basic readership territory for this column, I hope, cause so many of us are chili nuts and 110 miles may be a long way to go to deliver a newspaper but it's just a hop, skip, and a Chihuahua two-step for a cook-off.

And San Angelo will be the home, during the weekend of Aug. 13-15, of the newest (and perhaps most diverse) cook-off, in Oestexas.

In fact, a team from Midland scored high in this spring's "Hemi-Demi-Semi-Centennial" cook-off, and a group of students from Midland College finished just out of the grease in last fall's "Sons of the Penatekas" cook-off for the benefit of the POW-MIA organization—two of the other three major cooks-off along the Conchos. (The fourth, sanctioned for Terlingua entry, as is the Penatekas affair, is the Air Force World Championship stir at Angelo's Goodfellow Air Force Base.)

Newest cook-off is called the "Sons of the Kickapoo," it's for the benefit of the Boys Club, and it will include the chili meet Saturday, Aug. 14, dances Friday and Saturday nights, goat-pill flipping and horned toad racing and the like all day Saturday, and—in a nod to our Chicano traditions—a menudo cry-off Sunday afternoon.

And Frank Tolbert of The Dallas Morning News, chili czar of the known world, has ruled the "Sons of the Kickapoo" champ may compete with the big boys (and girls) at Terlingua in November.

Site for the three-day event is the historic scene of the Ben Ficklin flood a century ago that wiped out the first county seat of Tom Green County and up-graded San Angelo from a former camptown over the river from old Fort Concho. It's just south of the Concho River Bridge and across the river from the Ole Coach Motor Inn on the South Bryant freeway (Highway 87) that is a straight shot south and east of Midland through Sterling City, and the site, now owned by the South Side Lions, features picnicking areas beneath spreading pecans, a swimming and boating lagoon, indoor and outdoor dance floors, and a ballpark Lions say may be used for the cooking pits.

They're trying to raise $3,100 for the Boys Club in various projects, and I predict they'll raise the whole amount on the chili-menudo-baile bash.

I'll be emceeing various aspects of the "Kickapoo" event, and Midland-Odessa area chefs de' chili may contact me to enter or may contact Sam Lewis or Judge Allen Gilbert in San Angelo.

Bill Faudree dies at 51

Bill B. Faudree, 51, internationally known Midland rancher, banker, businessman and owner of vast real estate properties here and elsewhere, died Sunday afternoon at his ranch near Cimarron, N.M. He also was active in civic and church affairs here.

The family residence is at 2001 Winfield Ave.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Newnie W. Ellis Chapel here.

Faudree was born Aug. 2, 1924, at Kansas City, Kan., where he was graduated from Southwest High School in 1941. He later attended Wentworth Military Academy and the University of Missouri. He served as a combat infantryman in the European Theater during World War II, and had been a resident of Midland the last 25 years.

Faudree had livestock and ranching operations in the United States and Australia, with principal interest in cow-calf operation. In addition to the Faudree ranches west of Midland, Faudree also owned and operated the "UU Bar" Ranch at Cimarron. He and several Midland associates also operated the Cape York Cattle Co. at Cairns, Qld., Australia.

His active interest in preserving and developing these ranch holdings required many miles of travel each year.

Faudree was a director of The Midland National Bank and had other investments and agricultural or real estate-related companies in West Texas.

Annexation, ambulances head 32-item City Council agenda

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Midland City Council will consider two annexation ordinances on first reading when it convenes in regular session at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The annexations involve a 100-acre tract of land on the northwest corner of the intersection of U.S. 80 and Holiday Hill Road (for a proposed regional shopping center) and a portion of land north of Air Park belonging to Magnatex Corp. (seeking volun tary annexation).

Council's 32-item agenda for Tuesday includes 16 planning and zoning items, 11 of which are on first reading. The group will discuss several items regarding emergency medical ambulance service, including consideration of a 30-day extension of the city-county temporary ambulance agreement, guidelines for ambulance operations and appointments to a joint city-county ambulance study group.

Council will discuss a request by Wayne Merriman of the Yellow and Checkered Cab Co. for taxicab rate increases. The request would see rates go from 75 cents for the first one-fourth mile to 75 cents for the first one-fifth mile. Each one-fourth mile thereafter would remain at a 10-cent rate.

During its Tuesday session, council also will consider:

— At 1:35 p.m., a request by G. D. Dixon for a specific use permit for on-premise consumption of alcoholic beverages at 700 W. Missouri Ave.;

— At 1:45 p.m., a zoning study for a zone change from multiple family to mobile homes in the 800-1300 blocks of W. Dakota Ave., one block west of Goode Street east to Connell Street, and the 1000-1300 blocks on Marlin Street and 300 feet south;

— At 2 p.m., a zoning study for a zone change from office, commercial and single-family residential districts to all commercial on S. Cotton Flat Road on Carter Street south 2,640 feet;

— At 3 p.m., a request by Texas Diversified Properties Inc. for a zone change from single-family to multiple family on 6.138 acres in the 3000 block of Midland Drive;

— Restrictive covenants on property on Midkiff Drive;

— A preliminary plat of the Ortloff Addition Subdivision in the 4300 block of Andrews Highway;

— Building code regulations pertaining to the use of non-structural veneer brick;

— A new parking ordinance for Midland Regional Air Terminal;

— Dedication of part of Bates Street and paving for that portion;

— A request by First National Bank for abandonment of an alley in the 400 block of N. Loraine St.;

— An executive session to discuss possible land purchases, personnel matters and pending or prospective litigation;

— On second reading, a request by Greg Pulliam for a zone change from multiple family to parking on .27 acres in the 2600 block of Michigan Avenue;

— On second reading, a request by Midland Independent School District for a zone change from multiple family to commercial at 600 W. Ohio Ave.;

— On second reading, a request by George House for a zone change from office to commercial at 1400 S. Cotton Flat Road;

— On second reading, a request by Paul Hyde for a zone change from single-family to duplex in the 4400 block of Thomason Drive;

— On second reading, a request by Midland Savings Association for a zone change from single-family to planned district east of Midkiff Road and north of Moss Avenue;

— On second reading, abandonment of Cessna Drive between blocks 7 and 8 of Ratcliff Acres and replacement with a 20-foot paved alley;

— On second reading, an ordinance prohibiting parking on N. Big Spring Street from Michigan Avenue to Wadley Avenue;

— On second reading, an ordinance vacating and abandoning portions of the east-west alley in block 10 of the Highland Park Townhouses and authorizing their conveyances to the abutting property owners;

— On second reading, an ordinance adding six units of paving to the assessment paving program;

— A variance from the maximum allowable floor space for Air Park hangar additions;

— Section 3 of the affirmative action plan for the Community Development program;

— Payment of the statement from the Midland Chamber of Commerce;

— Awarding a contract for the purchase of water meters for the municipal warehouse stock; and,

— A request by the Lee High School Bandoliers Club for use of the showmobile and to sponsor a carnival on property west of Gibson's Discount Center.

Memorial societies growing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Hearings under way in Washington on proposed federal regulations for the funeral industry have focused new attention on a subject many people would rather forget: death.

Ignorance in this area is expensive, however. And more and more people are turning to memorial societies offering advance information and planning that can cut funeral costs by hundreds of dollars.

Memorial societies are nonprofit organizations seeking simplicity and economy in funerals. The groups arrange with local undertakers to provide simple funerals for members at specified costs. They also offer information on different types of services available and on alternatives to burial, including cremation and donation of the body to medical research.

"The whole emphasis is on preplanning," said the Rev. Harry E. Smith, president of the Greater New Haven (Conn.) Memorial Society Inc.

The society's aim is to prevent a family having to make a decision while burdened with grief. "Often it (the funeral) becomes an expense that devastates the relatives for years," the Rev. Mr. Smith said.

The New Haven group is one of more than 100 organizations affiliated with the Continental Association of Funeral and Memorial Societies, Inc. The association has chapters in almost all the 50 states with an estimated membership of half a million people.

The National Funeral Directors Association, representing about 14,000 of the nation's 22,000 funeral directors, estimates that the average funeral in 1974, the latest year for which statistics are available, cost $1,207. That does not count expenses for the cemetery or crematorium, flowers or a grave marker. It said the average funeral director earned $18,700 in 1974.

Rebecca Cohen, executive secretary of the Continental Association of Funeral and Memorial Societis, said savings to members vary, but generally average about $500.

Alternatives to the traditional earth burial also can cut costs, Miss Cohen said. Bequeathing the body to science is the least expensive,but consumers should check with local medical authorities to determine needs. Cremation is another inexpensive option, Miss Cohen said, with charges generally ranging from $150 to $300.

The Federal Trade Commission accused the funeral industry last year of engaging in a series of deceptive practices and has proposed regulations to govern the business.

The FTC started a three-week series of hearings on the proposed rules in Washington last week after similar sessions in New York, Chicago, Seattle, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

The proposals by the FTC staff would, among other things:

—Require funeral homes to provide consumers with more information about specific costs such as those for caskets and burial vaults.

—Require funeral homes to give prices over the telephone.

—Ensure compliance with state laws prohibiting embalming without survivors' permission.

—Prohibit practices which tend to cut competition, such as restrictions on price advertising.

The industry has been battling the proposals, arguing that the FTC unfairly singled out funeral directors for regulation. Several funeral home operators said that unethical practices cited by the FTC — such as bait-and-switch tactics — are the exception rather than the rule.

Blast injures four critically

WADSWORTH, Zex. (AP) — Four persons were burned critically Sunday when an explosion ripped through a rice drying plant in this South Texas town.

Police and fire officials from nearby Matagorda were investigating the cause of the blast. It followed a fire that broke out at the top of a dryer at the Otis Rice Dryer Co. about 2:20 p.m., according to Sgt. L.E. Hendricks.

3 area Eagles taking part in celebration

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Three Eagle Scouts from the Baffalo Trails Council of Midland are in Washington, D.C., taking part in the Eagle Scout Bicentennial Celebration, which continues through Aug. 25.

The scouts are Chris Drake, 17, of Midland, son of Mrs. Carolyn Drake; Duane Donaway, 16, of Odessa and John W. Stickels, 18, of Pecos. Drake is a member of Midland Lutheran Church Troop 333.

Eagle Scouts were sllected on the basis of extra-cirricular activities, school record, community participation, including religious life, speaking ablity and knowledge of the United States.

This Bicentennial celebration is a unique cultural and educational experience designed to support the efforts of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission during the summer of 1976. A total of approximately 760 Eagle Scouts in leaders are participating in the celebration in 14-day long periods.

Activities include demonstrations in the Scouting/USA Center located on the Mall near the Festival of American Folklife and the Lincoln Memorial, and serviee with the National Capital Parks as hosts and information aides at monuments and historical sites.

Mutscher again holds public office

with long standing office policy, he neither recommended nor objected to Mutscher's early release.

State law provides a probationer may be released after serving at least one-third of his probation.

Mutscher was convicted of conspiring to accept bribes in the form of "loans" of $130,350 and $179,258 from Houston banker-developer Frank Sharp in return for passage of favorable banking legislation in 1969.

Former Miss America Donna Axum, Mutscher's wife at the time, stood by her embattled husband throughout a sensational trial here. She later divorced the bespectacled former speaker.

McCay said Mutscher has repaid much of his indebtedness and continues to make regular payments.

McCay said he called Washington County (Brenham) authorities as soon as Judge Daniel signed the release, paving the way, he said, for Mutscher's appointment as county judge.

Increased city budget calls for no tax hike

includes the addition of 18 city employes — one in administration, one in purchasing, one in finance, one in traffic engineering, two in parks, one health nurse, one planner, one in personnel and nine in the police department. He said the addition to the police department reflects a change in the department's operations, allowing civilian non-sworn officers to relieve six police officers to patrol and investigative duties. The additional 18 city employes will have a total salary of $138,000, according to the proposed budget.

The mayor said council had voted a reduction of $ 27,127 in the zoo budget fot the upcoming year. He said council would like to receive input from the public on the future of a zoo operation in Midland — either the city shoul8 dismantle the zoo or put the funds back into it, he added.

When questioned about the budget in relation to the proposed bond issues for the airport, downtown park and city parks improvements, Angelo said the budget reflects no increase to allow for the bond proposals. He said the airport expansion project and the downtown park would have no effect on the tax situation, as both would be fundable with revenues. He said parks improvements, if substantial, would require an increase in the tax rate, though none is shown in the 1976-77 budget.

Angelo said the city is projecting increases in just about every area of revenues to the city, and that council "is not being careless with this fortunate situation." He also said council soon will propose an adjustment of commercial rates for trash collection to provide more increased in revenue.

Heat brews turbulence

Summer heat cooked a rash of thunderstorms, some loaded with destructive winds, and at least one tornado late Sunday across a broad reach of Texas.

The rains in the Permian Basin seem to be gone at least for a while, giving a chance for things to dry out a little. The chance for rain tonight and Tuesday is a slight 20 per cent, the National Weather Service said.

Otherwise, skies will be partly cloudy with no important temperature changes.

Midland, Odessa, Andrews, Lamesa and Crane all reported clear skies, calm winds and warm temperatures this moning.

Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake and Garden City also reported clear skies, warm temperatures and calm winds.

Mississippi's GOP delegates vote to continue uncommitted

By The Associated Press

Mississippi's 30 Republican delegate-votes could have put President Ford within a political inch of the GOP nomination, but the delegation voted to stay uncommitted until the convention. So the Republican presidential contenders keep scrambling for delegates while the Democratic ticket starts writing its policy proposals.

The Mississippi delegates, the only full state delegation still unaligned either with Ford or challenger Ronald Reagan, also reaffirmed on Sunday an agreement to vote as a bloc.

But the gave no clear sign which candidate will win their votes. Both camps lobbied fiercely and both claimed strong support.

Ford has 1,096 delegates and Reagan 1,024, according to a survey by The Associated Press. The winner needs 1,130 and there are 138 delegates still uncommitted. Both candidates claim enough votes now to win the nomination.

Reagan announced Sunday that he would make "a major campaign statement" today. There were no details but one aide said it would be "a positive statement" for the campaign.

As the Mississippi delegates met, Jimmy Carter and running mate Walter F. Mondale prepared for a week-long session in Plains, Ga. with Democratic economic and foreign policy advisers.

Reagan spent Sunday taping television interviews and Ford was on the golf course as their aides lobbied for support in Mississippi.

The White House announced that Ford would meet with the Maryland delegation at a White House reception today and had invited Pennsylvania's 103 delegates for a similar session on Thursday.

All 43 Maryland delegates are committed to Ford and most of the Pennsylvania delegates support the President, but White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford isn't taking any chances.

In other weekend developments:

—Carter told Time magazine in an interview published Sunday that his major problem remained recognition. "My major vulnerability is that people still don't know who I am or what I stand for on specific issues."

—Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., saying voters wouldn't be fooled by Carter's "messianic smile," predicted Ford will win both his party's nomination and the general election next November. Tower also praised former Texas Gov. John Connally as an excellent choice for the No. 2 spot on the GOP ticket.

—Independent candidate Eugene McCarthy said he could see no difference between Carter and Ford. He said he hasn't selected a running mate.

Kenya, Uganda move nearer war

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Replying to a new veiled threat of war from Ugandan President Idi Amin, Foreign Minister Munyua Waiyaki says Kenya will defend itself if attacked.

"But we have no interest in fighting Uganda," Waiyaki added.

Amin said Sunday that Uganda may be forced "to resort to desperate action" to break an economic blockade he said Kenya is waging against his country. He reported that because of this alleged blockade, Uganda had only enough gasoline to operate emergency vehicles for five days.

Uganda normally gets its petroleum products from the Kenyan refinery at Mombasa. The Kenyans say they have stopped shipments to their landlocked neighbor because Amin owes $54 million for previous deliveries, and other supplies are not going through because the Kenyan truckdrivers are afraid of Amin's army.

The Kenyan foreign minister said no more Mombasa gas and oil will be delivered to Uganda until Amin pays what he owes, and all future deliveries must be paid for in cash.

"We are under no obligation to subsidize the Uganda economy," said Waiyaki, adding that Amin could get his oil and gas from "wealthier countries." Presumably he meant Libya, with which Amin has close ties.

Amin claims Uganda has paid for everything it has received.

Radio Uganda said Amin had sent messages to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and Secretary-General Eteki Mboumoua of the Organization of African Unity asking them to send fact-finding missions to look into his charges.

A U.N. spokesman in New York said that as far as he knew, no such request had been received.

Relations between Amin and the Kenyans have been strained for several months because of a claim by the Ugandan leader to Kenyan territory.

Grand jury calls more Hoffa inquiry witnesses

DETROIT (AP) — Three more witnesses are scheduled to appear Wednesday before the grand jury that for nearly a year has been studying the disappearance of former Teamsters Union boss James R. Hoffa.

Hoffa disappeared last July 30, and the court appearance of the three, all affiliated with Union City, N.J., Teamsters Local 560, comes just two days before the anniversary.

Karen Schnable, a Local 560 secretary, and business agents Paul Ciampi and Armand Castellito are being granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for their testimony.

Government prosecutors have said the day he disappeared. Provenzano has denied he had an appointment with Hoffa that day. He says he was playing cards in Local 560's gameroom.

Briguglio is one of three men federal prosecutors say an informant named as Hoffa's abductors and presumed killers. Briguglio's alibi is the same as Provenzano's.

Investigators from the FBI and U.S. Justice Department Organized Crime Strike Force say they have an overall picture of the case. But U.S. Atty. Philip Van Dam said, "There are no indictments around the corner ... We have not reached a stone wall; it's an active investigation.

First day on the job and already he's got a bonus.

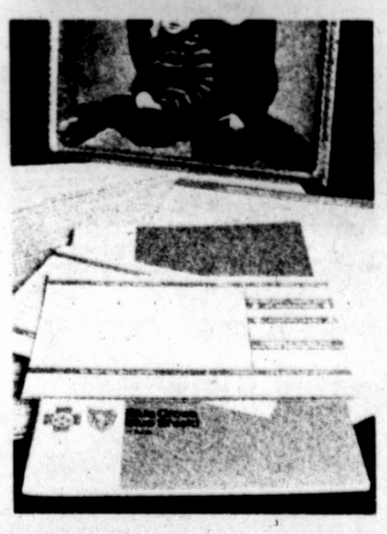
The company interviewed 18 people for the job and he got it.

Along with an office of his own.

And the opportunity to apply for Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage, no less.

His company could get other group health insurance at lower rates. But it knows that Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage returns more of its premiums in claim payments to policyholders than most other major insurance companies. And it doesn't set maximum dollar limits on most hospital services, including the intensive care unit.

It's only his first day on the job, but it's the beginning of a great future. And one way his company shows its confidence in him is by providing a chance to apply for Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage.



Does your company think enough of you to provide the best?

Still no free lunch

Texas Insuror magazine, in a recent issue, cites an excellent example of what can happen when a government tries to run a business.

This true story is unfolding in the State of Maryland.

The business in this instance is an automobile-insurance company established by Maryland in 1972. Less than four years later, the firm is on the verge of financial collapse, with debt piling upon debt.

The magazine reports that all Maryland motorists are being called upon for more money to offset the staggering loses.

Private insurance firms are being asked to keep the state's books and levy fees on their own customers for the benefit of the state-operated insurer.

"The original idea was that the state should provide low-cost auto coverage for high-risk drivers who could not get insurance easily from private firms," the magazine article said. "The state legislature in 1972 set up the Maryland Auto Insurance Fund, the only such firm established and operated by a state.

"The idea, as it turned out, was not as simple as it sounded.

"The Maryland Fund offered lower rates than most private firms, especially to persons 25 years old and younger. This group generally has a higher accident rate than older drivers.

"The gamble was that premiums collected by the state, plus a small levy on the sale of license plates, would provide the cash to meet accident claims."

But it was a gamble that failed. It is reported that officials of the Fund now concede that their "customers" not only had a higher frequency of accidents than other Maryland motorists, but higher even than the state had expected.

According to the article, the Fund, in the last three years, had had deficits of at least $30 million by its own admission. Some private insurers say that actual losses may be far in excess of that figure.

The Fund also has been losing customers to private firms, especially those persons with good driving records. One insurance firm reports it has picked up more than 12,000 former Fund customers in the last year alone. Other firms contend that they can now offer the high-risk drivers as good or better rates and handle claims faster and more efficiently than the state-owned company.

The Fund since has asked the legislature to change its rules to make it more competitive with private insurers, while replenishing its rapidly depleting bank account. It also would like to tap a special reserve that Maryland maintains to pay damages caused by uninsured drivers. It also desires the right to go after low-risk, lucrative insurance business. The private firms are opposing any such plan, and justly so.

It is just like the man said, "There ain't no such thing as a free lunch."

Intelligence briefing

Central Intelligence Director George Bush has been ordered by President Ford to give Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter an intelligence briefing.

Thus, the former Midland resident is scheduled to be in Plains, Ga., Wednesday for the briefing.

Ron Nessen, presidential spokesman, said Bush also would provide the same information to Sen. Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, "if he wants it."

It was explained that such briefings now have become tradition, and it is well, indeed, that they have.

The briefings, however, usually are provided through the secretary of State, but Carter indicated that he would prefer getting his briefings through the CIA rather than through Secretary of State Henry Kissinger whose policies Carter has criticized.

The purpose of the briefing, Nessen explained, is to begin to fill in Jimmy Carter on areas of national security and intelligence and foreign policy.

It was said that the President wanted Carter to get "a factual intelligence briefing."

AT THE STARTING LINE

ASIA MEMO:

No more 'consumer society' in Vietnam

By EDWARD NEILAN
Copley News Service

The new unified Vietnam has announced a course of intensive economic development.

In foreign affairs, the Hanoi government has relaxed its earlier insistence that it would not recognize any nation which had U.S. military forces on its territory. By ignoring that earlier statement, Hanoi has gone ahead and exchanged ambassadors with Thailand and the Philippines, both of which still have a U.S. military presence.

Vietnam's plans for the future were spelled out by Le Duan, first secretary of the Vietnam Workers (Communist) Party in a recent 12,000-word address to the National Assembly.

The southern half of Vietnam has a solid base for development and, given half a chance, could easily outstrip the North in economic growth. The U.S.-built infrastructure of roads, ports, and other facilities has no equal in Southeast Asia. The pool of American-trained technicians and managers is also impressive.

Le Duan made only passing reference to this positive legacy. But he emphasized the negative aspects of the American presence. He referred to the high-living tendencies of the Saigonese. The habits of the citizens of that city are still perplexing the new rulers.

In all fairness, Saigon learned many of its expensive tastes — from escargot to Beaujolais — from the French long before the first Huey helicopter whirred into the country.

Adjusting the difference in standards of living between the austere and war-battered North and the more affluent South will be a first order of business, the Vietnamese official said.

"Those people in the South who, as a result of the U.S. imperialists, maintained a living standard much too high for the country's economy and their own working capacity, should understand that this prosperity was a sham."

Le Duan added: "They should know that the frantic needs and vulgar tastes of that 'consumer society' are the complete opposite of a truly happy and civilized life."

Some other points of interest from Le Duan's speech:

— The leadership of what was once North Vietnam has remained virtually unchanged for more than 20 years. Only the death of Ho Chi Minh has affected the topmost ranks. The same names — Le Duan, Truong Chinh, Pham Van Dong, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap — have held the power reins since the 1950s.

— Although bowing gratefully to Peking and Moscow for wartime assistance, Hanoi clearly states that it intends to be independent and steer a middle course in the Sino-Soviet dispute. In realistic terms, a tilt toward Moscow's technological warehouse has been noted by the Vietnamese leadership. Hanoi's brand of Communist ideology is less doctrinaire than Peking's.

— The country's name has been changed officially from Democratic Republic of Vietnam to the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. That reflects the end of what Marxists call the democratic revolution and the beginning of the Socialist struggle.

— It is no longer denied that northern troops were used to invade South Vietnam. All the leadership is from the North. The members of the so-called National Liberation Front of the South have been given token jobs. Nguyen Huu Tho, leader of the NLF, is listed as a second vice president.

Le Duan made no mention of seeking improved ties with the United States. Hanoi, which seems a curious source to talk about adhering to the Paris agreements, wants the United States to fulfill terms of that accord dealing with war reparations.

Another point of interest for the future is oil exploration. Several U.S. oil firms are said to be talking with the Vietnamese already. Such discussions could serve as a prod to resumed government-to-government talks.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter's views on law, order

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter will advocate a new form of law and order, with more emphasis on prosecuting crooked business executives and corrupt government officials.

The Democratic presidential candidate has asked a task force to prepare a position paper incorporating his views on criminal justice. It is now in draft form, labeled "Not for Dissemination," with a final version weeks away.

Eight years ago, Richard Nixon made law and order the main theme of his campaign. He subsequently put John Mitchell and Richard Kleindienst in charge of law and order at the Justice Dept. Both have now been convicted of violating the laws they had sworn to uphold.

From the first, they were more enthusiastic about enforcing the laws against malefaction than malfeasance. They were quick, for example, to prosecute overzealous protesters who, in the name of peace, violated the peace.

But the Nixon prosecutors were slower to enforce the laws against white collar crimes. They ignored the laws against perjury, for example, when their own people found it expedient to fib.

This left the impression that there was a different justice for the rich and the poor, for the powerful and the weak. Carter will offer to put criminal justice back in balance by prosecuting businessmen and bureaucrats, congressmen and judges who violate the laws.

He would divert millions of dollars to cracking down on crimes "which cause great harm and property loss but which are pursued inadequately." The confidential draft adds pointedly: "These crimes would include business crimes and government corruption."

The draft, prepared by Washington attorney Arnold Sagalyn, accuses both the Johnson and Nixon administrations of wasting much of the money the federal government spent to fight crime.

"Anyone who promises to banish crime with a few federal dollars dooms such a program to failure," the paper declares. "The goal is misleading, naive and unrealistic."

A staggering $4.4 billion has been spent by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) to help local police forces. We have shown in a series of columns how most of this money has gone for such wasteful items as Dick Tracy weapons that don't work and luxury limousines for deputy sheriffs.

Carter would divert at least half of the LEAA funds to coping with crime in "our most dense living areas and ... other areas where violent crimes and burglary present the most danger to citizens."

Some anticrime funds should go into welfare, jobs, schooling, mental health and other programs that can prevent crime, the study urges. It adds: "Both the revenue-sharing funds and the federally controlled funds should be devoted primarily to underfunded portions of criminal justice, for example, prosecution, defense and court systems."

The study cautions, "The finest research products of recent years tell us much more about what does not work than what does work." To study the crime problem, the Carter task force recommends establishing novel semi-public, semi-private "corporations for crime and criminal research."

Footnote: Similar task forces are studying everything from agriculture to zoology for the Democratic candidate. Aides say they will be used in his campaign and, as they become more refined, as guidelines in his Administration if he should be elected President.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: President Ford must take Ronald Reagan more seriously and treat him with more dignity if the White House wants Reagan's support in the future. Sources close to Reagan say he is bitter because the President "has treated him like a second-class citizen, like a second cousin." Reagan feels Ford has talked down to him in the campaign, regarding him with scorn and contempt. Nevertheless, Reagan could actively support Ford if the President wins the GOP nomination, provided Ford changes his tone and his tune.

— Jimmy Carter isn't the only candidate to inject that old-time religion into the presidential campaign. At President Ford's campaign headquarters in Washington hangs a photo of the President, with the caption: "There is a higher power, by whatever means we honor him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy."

— Rep. Shirley Chisolm, D.-N.Y., was extolling the Democratic convention the other day on an elevator crowded with her colleagues. "There was such an atmosphere of love there," she enthused. "Everybody loved one another. It was wonderful." Came a voice from the rear: "Yeah, Shirley. All that love may have been wonderful in New York, but a lot of people have been getting in trouble for it here."

PINNACLE OF SUCCESS

Jimmy Carter strategy; Cash in on strong points

By JAMES CARY
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — From the pinnacle of success where he is now poised, Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter can gaze down at a United States seemingly and strangely broken apart into regions and blocs of states.

Each bears a label and number, symbolizing the area and the electoral vote total it will carry in the November presidential election against the Republican nominee — either incumbent President Jerry Ford or former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The segments of this imagined, fragmented America carry such titles and electoral vote tallies as South and border states — 178; industrial Northeast — 111; Midwest — 101.

But whether imagined or not, it is with just such divisions of territory that Jimmy Carter now will have to deal in fashioning his hoped for and, for now, expected victory in the November election.

Obviously he has a strategy for accomplishing precisely that. It is a strategy that has emerged slowly from his exhausting but victorious march through the presidential primaries, an over-all plan rooted in his Southern inheritance and the traditional power bases of the Democratic Party.

As now envisioned it goes like this: capitalize on Carter's basic appeal to the 11 Southern states, and work the same themes — compounded of the issues, Carter's fundamentalist religious fervor, his anti-Washington sentiments, popularity with black voters and old populist proclivities — to capture the border states, too.

Add to this the traditional Democratic strength in the industrial Northeast, bolstered by the appeal to liberals of vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale, and these states too should come into the Democratic fold.

Next penetrate the Midwest, where basic Republican strength resides, and with the help of Carter's rural background, the activist government philosophy of the Democratic platform and whatever help such Democratic power brokers as Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley can provide, win four to six more states and their electoral ballots.

After that, concede nothing in the still more difficult Far West, where perhaps only Washington and Hawaii seem now in the Democratic camp. Then go after the nation's biggest electoral vote state, California, with unrelenting vigor.

Obviously, if all these parts fit together as Carter's planners hope, he quickly will compile the required 270 electoral votes needed to win.

And the basis for that victory will be a sweep of the South and border states, much the same in the industrial North, then bring in big chunks of the Midwest to push the victory toward landslide proportions.

But long before political strategists began spinning such visions, Scottish poet Robert Burns laid down his prophetic lines about "the best laid schemes o' mice and men." They do often go awry.

Therefore, despite Carter's obvious and recognized strength as of now in the South, the border states, the industrial Northeast and parts of the Midwest, his victory, if it is to be realized, is just as apt to stem from what happens in the 10 largest electoral vote states — and they are scattered across the nation. Only one is in the South.

The Big 10 and their electoral votes are California (45), New York (41), Pennsylvania (27), Illinois (26), Texas (26), Ohio (25), Michigan (21), New Jersey (17), Florida (17), and Massachusetts (14).

Traditionally it has been held that a presidential candidate has to carry at least six or seven of the 10 if he is to win an election — and that might not be too easy for Carter.

Many things could happen. If Reagan is the Republican nominee he will be extremely difficult to beat in California. If Mr. Ford is selected, he, too, would present difficulties in his home state of Michigan.

Likewise, should former Texas Gov. John Connally become the Republican vice presidential choice — and that is an increasing possibility if Mr. Ford heads the ticket — he would have a good chance of keeping Texas in the Republican column.

Ohio, too, is a traditionally Republican state that would be very difficult for any Democratic candidate to carry at any time. Illinois has a history of being a pivotal, swing state that can go either way. And finally, Florida is no more certain to go Democratic than Texas.

That leaves as of now only New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Massachusetts as fairly certain Democratic enclaves this time.

There are other possibilities, too, that could knock Carter's plans askew.

Some recent surveys indicate that the independent candidacy of former Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy could drain away up to 10 per cent of the liberal vote in some states, and that could be the difference between Carter's winning or losing a critical Northeast state.

Then there is the improving economy which could work in President Ford's favor, and the critical question of what will happen to Carter's popularity when he is forced to become more specific on the issues during the general election campaign than he ever was during the primaries.

The Country Parson
by Frank Clark

"God isn't likely to give you a good harvest if you haven't planted the seed."

Mark Russell says

Those were great pictures of Mars sent back from Viking I. However, authorities are a bit puzzled over the sign that says "Albuquerque — 11 Miles." They are also analyzing the Golden Arches.

President Ford is very interested in the possibility of life on Mars. He will leave no path untrod in his search for delegates.

The photographs indicated the possibility of an ancient, ruined city — adjacent to an ultramodern suburb.

Mars is called the Red Planet, hence no acknowledgment from Ronald Reagan.

'World Encyclopedia of Comics' details history, impact, appeal

By MARTIN LEVINE
Newsday

The comics stand in the line of mass entertainments that have fed our century's fantasies and exercised its emotions. Comics, the phonograph, movies, radio and television ... If the list seems to lack parallelism, it's because we've forgotten that The Yellow Kid, The Katzenjammer Kids and all the subsequent urchins, aviators and bubbleheaded flappers spring directly from a technological advance.

The breakthrough was a newspaper press capable of printing color. In 1897 William Randolph Hearst offered New Yorkers a Sunday comics supplement — "eight pages of polychromatic effulgence that makes the rainbow look like a lead pipe." A few years later, demand and competition had grown so much that one paper filled two of its pages with a single-panel color cartoon.

A bright dawn; big beginnings. And the first four decades of this century were the golden age of the comic strip. Today, as Maurice Horn says in the "Short History" that begins his unique and indispensable encyclopedia, things are less rosy in the land of the comics' birth. The classic cartoonists have been dying, and with them their strips, often after pathetic efforts at continuation by assistants, widows and sons. The public seems less willing to follow drawn adventures day-to-day when they can get infinitely juicier and more realistic ones in TV series and soap operas.

Meanwhile, newspapers have their own pressures and predilections. The cost of newsprint has caused them to push for smaller strips and pages; what literally was a Sunday page at the beginning of the century may now, even for popular comics, be as little as a sixth of a page.

Though the polls still show that well over half of the adult readers of a Sunday newspaper look at the comic section, publishers no longer see any competitive advantage in stressing their strips.

Shrinkage has especially hurt the adventure series, which depend heavily on atmospheric background and realistic detail. Even the creators of humor strips have howled. And all this happens while "a substantial portion of the readership" ((according to one newspaper survey I've seen) rarely gets beyond the comics, the ads, the TV listings and the advice to the lovelorn. But funnies fit badly into the fourth estate's modern serious image. Besides, why expect rationality from a medium that is itself threatened with extinction?

The outlook is hardly brighter for the comic book (another American contribution to world culture — Procter & Gamble gave the first one away as a promotional gimmick in 1933). Decline began in the wake of Dr. Frederic Wertham's 1954 blast at horror (and other) comics, "Seduction of the Innocent." A Senate subcommittee held hearings and the industry rushed to adopt a voluntary code. (There is an interesting twist of fate that one entry mentions: Jack Davis, whose depiction of a baseball game played with pieces of a corpse particularly shocked the solons, may have become "the best-known and most-often seen artist of the 1970s." His caricatures regularly grace ads for TV shows and the covers of national magazines.)

The comic-book code "resulted in the total emasculation of the medium" for the rest of the '50s, Horn writes. Since then, despite the appearance of Marvel's neurotic superheroes and a brief Batman revival, the books have "come down from the high peak of their popularity." The funky "underground comics" of the late '60s attracted attention and then vanished like smoke from a marijuana cigarette.

Once wonders, therefore, about the comics' future. Along of all our mass entertainments, will they fail to find a niche alongside their successors? Will they be done in by progress and historical accident? Having given passably innocent pleasure to millions, are the now (gulp) doomed?

My guess is no. The "Encyclopedia" cites the encouraging health of the field in most places outside America. Given comics' concentration on elementary gags and suspense, one imagines that translations could be highly effective. In fact, some strips already popular in the United States are imports (though they mostly avoid the language problem). Andy Capp, of course, is English. The wordless Ferd'nand came out of Denmark.

The other ray of hope is the growing illiteracy of the American people. Everyone familiar with high school students today and those of a decade ago has noticed that the earlier group did a lot more reading. Buz if television has lured teen-agers away from the printed word, it hasn't made them any less intelligent or imaginative. They may even be more sophisticated visually. An audience is being prepared for comics.

The strips may have to desert their newspapers; the magazines may have to die, hidden away among "Modern Romances" and "True Detective." But what we could get instead are European-style periodicals, monthlies that are clean in presentation and catholic in content. Equally, European comic "albums," bound in plastic and selling relatively cheaply, seem a good bet to catch on. If it doesn't happen immediately, it will in the next decade.

By JAMES BROWN
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Situation comedy is where you find it. Perhaps in a hospital commissary, deserted for the most part with the exception of two young women occupying a table in the corner. Suddenly a familiar face walks through the door. They recognize it immediately.

"Hey, how's Bernice?" one of the women asks, as the man surveys the limited steam table cuisine. "Hey! How's Bernice?!!!" she asks again, those decibels rising.

Abe Vigoda looked up, finally, and smiled. "She's fine, just fine," he said, walking away. Bernice, you see, is the unseen wife of that delightful malcontent, Det. Sgt. Fish on the ABC comedy series, Barney Miller.

As Fish, Abe Vigoda has fashioned himself a trademark — the hit character of a hit series. Fish is a middle-age cop who has seen it all and isn't much impressed ... stoic, melancholy Fish, with graveyard eyes and a thoroughly sour outlook on just about everything, his job, his marriage, the human race. He's just tired. And also, by the way, very funny.

"Fish really loves his work, even though he complains about it every day," Vigoda says of his character. Vigoda, it seems, has molded a complete man.

"Fish is a veteran policeman who has seen, with the passage of time, many changes in our society," Vigoda explains. "He's of the old school. He loves the younger officers, but truly feels there's no substitute for experience.

"And Fish is strongly attracted to beautiful women,'continued. "Of course, he would never do anything about it. 'He's capable, but he's so tired, there are so many problems with his back. He loves his wife, Bernice, but, well, things can get dull."

Vigoda shrugged, and then smiled again. He is a friendly, intense man who often seems preoccupied with hidden thoughts.

He's been acting for 25 years, mostly in his native New York — on and off Broadway and in early television roles on Studio One and Suspense. In recent years prior to his success on Barney Miller, Vigoda has portrayed a series of Mafia villains in films and on television — notably, his performance as Tessio in "The Godfather."

Currently Vigoda has just completed work a television movie, "Giving Birth," in which he plays a middle-age widower who befriends an unmarried pregnant girl, played by Vikki Lawrence, and agrees to become her labor coach for the Lamaze natural childbirth courses.

It is Vigoda's instinct to immerse himself in research prior to any role. He combed Mafia hangouts during filming of "The Godfather." ("I was a little apprehensive about that," he says. "I always had the feeling that someone was watching.") For Barney Miller, Vigoda spent quite a bit of time in police stations.

For this new film, he talked to doctors, read books and made notes on virtually every aspect of the Lamaze technique. It seemed to fascinate him.

"It comes to the point of where you feel you're actually there for the birth of a child," Vigoda said. "I tried to visualize each step, each thing I would actually have had to do in a real situation. I think it filled me out as a character in the movie."

The film has also been somewhat of an elixir to Vigoda's recent acting diet of villains and his role on Berney Miller.

"It's a wonderful thing to have this sort of change," Vigoda said. "This is something different for me, and I think it has helped me to be more creative and productive in my work as an actor."

But next fall, he will be back as Det. Sgt. Fish for the third season of Barney Miller. There is also the possibility of Vigoda taking one of those inevitable spinoffs into a series of his own — possibly as a mid-season replacement.

"I had no idea the character would ever have this kind of impact," he said. "In the initial approach for Barney Miller, we were all equals, an ensemble group of actors. As far as I'm concerned, it's still that way.

"But people just seem to relate to Fish. I get letters from people of all ages who see thinthemselves."

Det. Sgt. Fish would have given a cold stare to such sentiment. Abe Vigoda is absolutely delighted by all of the attention.

Television 'sitcoms': main entre on fall menu

JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Miniseries based on hit novels may be the rage in TV now. But consider the situation comedy. The 1974 season began with 15 of them. Next fall, 26 are scheduled.

And the networks now even have vice presidents specializing in laughter's future, all working to develop new comedy ideas for TV.

Andy Siegel of CBS is one of them. He estimates he gets 75 comedy ideas offered him each week for consideration. All that considering about comedy can make a guy pretty grim, can't it?

"Well, no," he grinned. "There is pressure, but it's a tremendous amount of fun. I'm lucky ... this is an area where the whole idea is to find a special kind of lunacy that'll appeal to a lot of people."

CBS, the network most emphasizing situation comedy in recent years, had eight sitcoms on the air in the fall of 1974. It had 12 on last fall and when September comes it'll be airing 14 of the rascals.

The sitcom growth indicates a wide appeal, of course.

But television's sanitized "family viewing" hour, pushed by CBS and adopted by all three networks last fall to counter gripes about violence or plots involving sex on TV early at night, raises a question.

Does Siegel look for two kinds of situation comedy—one strictly for "family viewing" time, the other with bolder, more adult themes for after the family hour, when kids theoretically are abed?

"No," said the 34-year-old executive. "I screen comedies on the basis of what I think has the best chance to get on the schedule."

The family viewing hour starts at 8 p.m. on the East and West coasts, an hour earlier in other areas.

Because of said hour, Siegel said, many would-be laugh merchants with a situation comedy idea tend "to come in and say, 'This a post-nine o'clock show.'

"A lot of people do that, say, 'We're doing a mature comedy.' I think that writers and producers sometimes have the wrong idea. They think you do bubblegum before nine and chewing tobacco after nine.

"Not so. I think the criteria is: Is it a good comedy, are there good characters, will they make people laugh?"

Still, when last season and the family hour began, only four of CBS's 12 situation comedies aired after the family hour finale.

This fall, eight of 14 CBS sitcoms will be doing that.

Trio earns honors

AUSTIN — Three Midlanders have been named to spring semester honor rolls in the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences at The University of Texas at Austin.

They are Barbara Ann Goolsby, daughter of Mrs. George B. Goolsby, 1008 Tarletom Ave., summa cum laude honor roll; John Peter Thurmond II, ampla cum laude honor roll, and Warren Austin Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. Brown Jr. of 4521 Leddy Drive, cum laude honor roll.

Other area students honored include Andrew Mitchell Kretzer of Odessa on the cum laude list, Pandora Nix of Lamesa on the ampla cum laude honor roll and Joseph Michael Carroll of Andrews, magna cum laude honor roll.

Lady Bird ends visit

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson left Israel today, saying she was "astonished" at the country's agricultural achievement.

"Being closely connected with ranching and farming, I couldn't believe what you have done with the desert," President Lyndon B. Johnson's widow told reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport.

The former first lady spent six days in Israel. Her schedule included a meeting with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Genetic test reports confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special tests to detect genetic damage were run by the State Department on employes returning from Moscow during the 1960s because of concern over possible effects of microwave radiation being beamed at the U.S. Embassy there, according to doctors familiar with the study.

However, the purpose of the tests was kept secret from the employes, the medical sources said. American foreign service officers and other embassy personnel reportedly were told only that they were being checked for a kind of abnormal bacteria, the sources said.

The existence of the genetic testing program, conducted during about an 18-month period in 1967-68, was confirmed by Dr. Cecil B. Jacobson, who oversaw the analysis of the State Department test samples by a laboratory at George Washington University.

"Things were never really conclusive," Jacobson said about results of the tests.

However, a former colleague of Jacobson's, Dr. Thomas H. Gresinger, said he was told by Jacobson at the time of the testing program that the tests showed "funny results — lots of chromosome breaks."

Chromosomes are microscopic rodlike bodies within the nucleus of each cell, containing the basic genetic material DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid). When cells divide to reproduce, chromosomes go through certain regular patterns in replicating themselves. Abnormal chromosome breaks can lead to serious problems including birth defects in children.

Gresinger said he became aware of the tests while he was on the faculty of the George Washington medical school and also doing gynecology work on a consulting basis for the State Department's medical division.

"Because I was at both places I realized they were running genetic studies on all the people from Moscow," he said.

Until last February, knowledge of the microwave problem was restricted to a handful of top officials.

Meanwhile, Sen. Bob Dole has disclosed that the radiation issue prompted President Ford to send a personal appeal to Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev urging that the Soviets curtail their microwave bombardment of the embassy.

Dole, a Republican from Kansas, said he was told of the President's letter to Brezhnev during a closed-door briefing by Helmut Sonnenfeldt, one of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's closest associates.

Following the Ford letter and U.S. diplomatic efforts to protest over the radiation, as well as an embassy staff meeting that led to widespread publicity, the Soviets reduced the microwave power levels. However, they have refused to completely cease the bombardment.

A White House spokesman, John Carlson, confirmed that on the embassy problem "there has been communication — correspondence — between the President and Brezhnev." He declined to give any further details.

A State Department spokesman said he could make no specific comment on the genetic tests.

Soviets fail third timer In anti-satellite effort

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians have suffered their third straight failure this year in testing a satellite-destroyed system, U.S. intelligence source report.

The latest failure occurred July 21 when a Russian Hunter satellite failed to stay in orbit, the sources say.

According to U.S. specialists, the Hunter satellite was sent up to try to destroy Russia's Cosmos 839 satellite which had been lofted into orbit 12 days earlier.

American analysts say they do not know what is causing Russia's apparent technical problems.

The Russian effort to develop an operational anti-satellite system dates back about 10 years and has proceeded in fits and starts.

There were only five successful launchings out of more than 20 attempts before testing halted in 1971. Soviet flight tests resumed in February and all three attempts since then have been flops, U.S. intelligence sources say.

The Russian satellite destroyer is said to be a vehicle about 20 feet long, weighing about 2½ tons at launch.

Equipped with five main rocket engines for making orbital adjustments and maneuvering, the interceptor is believed capable of closing in on its target at the rate of 1,300 feet per second. Experts say it can come within 100 feet or less of the target satellite before exploding on radio command from the ground. Intercepts have been made at altitudes between 120 and 550 nautical miles, U.S. sources say.

There are obvious military advantages to being able to knock down or blind an opponent's intelligence-gathering satellite. Spy satellites using cameras, infra-red sensors and various other monitoring devices are particularly important to the United States as a means of keeping track of missile tests, deployments and other military developments inside Russia.

Of special concern are U.S. satellites on guard against possible Russian missile attack.

Dr. Malcolm Currie, the Pentaon's research chief, said last winter that "we are very concerned about satellite vulnerability." He said U.S. scientists are working on ways of assuring the survival of American satellites.

The United States has not tried to develop its own satellite-killing weapons systems since the 1960s.

Tower predicts Ford will win nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., says he thinks President Ford will win the Republican presidential nomination and, if that happens, Ronald Reagan would not accept the second spot on the ticket.

Tower, appearing Sunday said on CBS' "Face the Nation," also was asked to evaluate former Texas Gov. John Connally as a vice presidential choice. Tower said: "I think he would be an excellent one."

Tower was asked if Connally would be hurt by the trial in which he was acquitted of charges of accepting money to influence a milk price decision.

"I think the fact that it was a bum rap and the government didn't have a case will probably enhance his popularity," Tower said.

Tower said he feels Ford will have about 1,150 committed delegates when the Republican convention begins in Kansas City Aug. 16. It takes 1,130 delegates to win the nomination.

Campaign workers for Reagan have said Reagan has 1,140 delegates. The latest Associated Press count gives Ford 1,096 and Reagan 1,024, with 138 uncommitted.

Tower said he thinks Reagan is qualified to be president, but "I don't think he's as qualified as President Ford is." And Tower said he accepts Reagan at his word that he wouldn't accept second spot on the ticket.

"I think that the ticket would probably be better enhanced by someone other than Gov. Reagan," he said.

Tower also got in some licks at the opposition, charging that the Democrat-controlled Congress has been responsible for big government and big spending. He said Ford's vetoes of appropriations bills have been like trying to stop a runaway horse. The senator charged that the Congress currently is made up of lot of newcomers who emasculated the leadership and then didn't move in to fill the void.

He charged that Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter is "devoid of conviction," has a "messianic complex," "smiles with his mouth but not with his heart" and "is bent on gathering power to himself."

FBI seizes 60,000 Bootleg recordings

DALLAS (AP) — Federal agents seized about 60,000 eight-track tapes in weekend raids on the bootleg recording business across Texas, the FBI reported.

Ted L. Gunderson, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation office in Dallas, said, "We didn't make any arrests in this deal. We just more or less gathered evidence to be turned over to the U.S. attorney's office."

He said the biggest hauls were made Saturday in Houston, where 30,000 tapes were seized, and Dallas, where about 15,000 tapes were picked up.

Raids also were made in San Antonio, San Angelo, Wichita Falls, Fort Worth, Tyler, Grand Prairie, Brownwood, Austin, Corpus Christi, Christoval, Amarillo, Laredo, Whitewright, Galveston and Texas City.

Gunderson said the raids were part of a nationwide crackdown on bootleg recording. He said the bootleg tapes are made from legitimate record albums and sold as authentic originals at truck stops, convenience stores and flea markets at "discount prices."

He said the tapes, usually of poor quality, cost about 50 cents to make and sell for as much as $8.

The penalty for violating copyright laws is a year in prison and a maximum fine of $1,000.

"How can I control my air conditioning costs this summer?"
UNDERSTANDING YOUR ELECTRIC BILL

Here's a checklist ☑ of things you can do to keep your cooling costs down when the temperature is up.

☐ Have your air conditioning unit checked to be sure it's operating at top efficiency. ☐ Try a thermostat setting in the upper seventies. ☐ Keep filters clean. Check them every month. ☐ Keep air vents clear so air can flow freely. ☐ Close fireplace dampers. ☐ Keep direct sunlight out with awnings, draperies, blinds or shades. ☐ Keep doors and windows closed. Try to limit traffic in and out. ☐ Vent clothes dryers to the outside. ☐ Use kitchen and bathroom exhaust fan only to remove excess heat and moisture. ☐ Schedule cooking, washing and ironing for the cooler times of day to avoid adding excess heat to your home. ☐ Raise your thermostat at least five degrees if you're going to be away for several hours. ☐ Turn off air conditioning unit when on vacation unless there are items that might be damaged from heat. ☐ Attics should be well ventilated to prevent excess heat buildup. ☐ Make sure your insulation is at least up to the latest FHA standards. ☐ Weatherstrip or caulk around all doors and windows. ☐ Keep shrubbery trimmed back from outside units to allow good air flow. ☐ Consider cooking outdoors more this summer. ☐ Consider storm doors and windows. Think of them as insulation. ☐ Remember that a window unit is designed to cool only one room. Turn it off if that room is not being used. ☐ If buying new air conditioning, get the unit with the highest energy efficiency ratio (EER) — at least seven or better. ☐ For a free copy of our newest booklet on how to save electricity, give us a call. Or request one on the comment portion of your bill.

Students design boys' room

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. We are converting our garage into a dormitory room for our young sons, 7, 9 and 10. It is a room about 19x15-feet and will need three beds, chests and a play area for roughhousing. Where would you start planning a room such as this? — R.W.B.

A. You might take inspiration from a group of Woodbury College (Los Angeles) interior design students who worked with Sears, Roebuck in creating a room for small boys. One wall was painted in a woodsy scene as a wall mural with trees and mountains and a meadow.

In one corner the students built a tree-house room which has cut-out walls and is filled with bean-bags for high-up lounging. A sturdy wooden ladder leads to the tree house. Other walls of the room are covered in a bright stripe of red, blue, green, gold and white. Bright green shag carpeting warms the floor and quiets the room. Around the room is a white picket fence against the meadow scene wall and the brilliant stripes. Twin beds were covered in tailored spreads of a red, gold, green, blue and white giant plaid with pillows and bolsters to convert the beds into daytime couches.

Easy-care directors chairs with white frames and red canvas seats and backs combined with antiqued white dressers, desks and desk chairs — all created from unfinished furniture.

Small square vinyl covered trunks served as low tables for checkers and games and doubled for toy storage.

Microwave ovens having big impact

By STEVE WIEGAND
Copley News Service

Microwave ovens may have the biggest impact on American eating habits since the fast-food franchise, according to industry spokesmen.

Cooking in them is quicker, more nutritious, cleaner, safer, more economical and more efficient than conventional ovens, manufacturers and salesmen say, and sales figures indicate many people agree with that evaluation.

Microwave sales were up 28 per cent last year over 1974, according to industry figures, and 1974 sales were 64 per cent higher than those of 1973.

Those figures contrast with a drop of about 30 per cent in sales of conventional gas and electric ranges.

One company, Litton Microwave Cooking Products, boasted 75 per cent sales increase for 1975 and predicts that by 1980, half of the ovens sold nationally will be microwave units.

Microwave ovens have been around for about 20 years, although it's only been in the last five years that they've caught the public's attention.

This year's models range from $200 "heater-uppers," which defrost and cook a TV dinner in 10 minutes, to $1,200 combination microwave-conventional range units which will cook an entire Christmas dinner in an hour.

They come in sizes from one-cubic-foot models that weigh about 70 pounds to full-size units up to six feet high.

Less-expensive models offer a quick way to prepare frozen foods and small convenience items, but usually can't cook large items or foods that require more than 15 minutes cooking time.

More-expensive units clean themselves, offer two-hour timers, can be used for conventional or microwave cooking and do just about everything short of setting the table.

Whatever the features, all microwave ovens operate on the same principle, based on a unit called a magnetron.

The magnetron generates micro-radio waves, which are attracted by the moisture molecules in the food, pass through them, bounce off the metal walls of the oven and reenter the food. This movement causes molecular friction, which heats the food.

The fact that the waves act only on the food explains why plates and dishes don't heat up while food's cooking.

Why use microwave ovens?

For one thing, they're economical. A Cornell University study two years ago found that a family of four doing 80 per cent of their cooking with a microwave unit used about $5 per year in energy on the unit.

"I feel they pay for themselves within a year in terms of energy saved," said Barbara Durbin, an industry spokesman.

DEAR ABBY

Check the sides of adoption table

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Many parents are disturbed because in some states it is now possible for adult adopted children to "unseal" their records and find out who their biological parents are.

This is an answer to my prayers because somewhere in the world is a 21-year-old girl I gave up for adoption because I was an unwed mother who wanted my child to have a better life than I could give her at the time.

I hope my daughter wants to know her "real" mother. I want her to know that I have no desire to replace the woman who raised her. I just want my daughter to accept me as her "other mother." I wonder if she realizes that I could have done what many other girls in my position have done—had an abortion. Instead I chose to risk my own life in childbirth in order to give her life.

Perhaps my daughter would like to meet me just to say, "Thank you."—HER OTHER MOTHER

DEAR OTHER: Please read on for a letter from a mother who has been on both sides of the adoption table.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 17 I had a baby girl out of wedlock. I gave her up for adoption because her father couldn't marry me. (He was married.)

I became a registered nurse and subsequently married a very fine physician. We seemed unable to have children, so we adopted a baby girl. Within a year I gave birth to a baby girl. Two more children followed.

I have never forgotten the baby I gave away, but I hope with all my heart she does not seek me out. The woman who adopted her and raised her from infancy is the only mother she's ever known and is her "real" mother in every sense of the word.

I know, because I am also the mother of an adopted child whom I love every bit as much as my biological children. If my adopted daughter were to seek out her biological mother, deep down I would be crushed.

If my biological daughter were to suddenly locate me, I can see nothing but problems for her, my family and the parents who adopted her.

I realize that all adopted children are curious about their biological parents, but in satisfying their curiosity, they are bound to open up a lot of wounds and create many problems.

I think one set of parents is enough for any child. What do you think, Abby?—BOTH SIDES

DEAR BOTH: I agree.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "INFORMATION, PLEASE" IN RENO: It is not necessary to sign your name or include an address to have your letter appear in my column. And yes, all letters are held in the strictest of confidence.

Women rally to new call

Copley News Service

A browse through picture books on the history of the labor movements reveals both wonderful and horrible pictures of women and their part in the early labor revolution. In one, women delegates to the Knights of Labor Convention in 1886 are gathered for a formal photograph. They wore long-sleeved, high-necked dresses, demurely trimmed in lace. At the center is an infant, elegantly gowned in ribbons and ruffles...the baby attended with her mother. All people, even housewives, were encouraged to participate.

It was a vivid start...but there came a war, a depression, and soon women were less active, and eventually were considered on the fringes of organized labor.

Now one out of four male workers belongs to unions, while only one out of seven women is unionized. Though female membership runs about 20 per cent, union board members tend to be men. Even in the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, officers are mostly white males, though members are primarily Puerto Rican and black women.

There now seems to be a renaissance of women in the union movement. Office workers in San Francisco are highly organized; teachers and stewardesses and telephone operators are taking more of an active part in the management of their own unions. Young women seek skilled trade apprenticeships, and child-care workers talk of organizing.

Olga Madar, who had been the first woman vice president of the United Auto Workers, talked about her organization, which spearheads the move to give women a greater voice in unions. In an article in the June, 1976, Equal Rights Monitor, she says, "The Coalition of Labor Union Women (CLUW) was founded because we learned that there are a great number of women who are active in the unions but who are isolated, either on a geographical basis or in relationship to their unions." Madar said, "We felt that these women had a desire to get together and to unify their efforts..."

"I Never Thought I'd See the Day I Could Walk Into A Size 7, But I Can Thanks to Pat Walker!"
... Says Helen Jourde

All through junior high and senior high school I had to wear homemade clothes because it was hard to find ready-made clothes that would fit me. I would look at the slim girls in their cute current fashions and wish I could look like they did. But how could I lose when I didn't like to exercise or diet?

Helen Jourde before coming to Pat Walkers

By the time I was in my first year of college I weighed 140 pounds. Relatively few of the girls at college were overweight, and seeing all those slim, fashionable girls made me determined to lose weight! But I was dismayed because I knew I could not do it on my own; I had tried and failed before.

When I saw Pat Walker's ad in the newspaper I decided that this was my chance to finally shed this excess baggage that I was needlessly carrying around.

I was surprised and delighted when I lost weight after just one week at Pat Walker's Figure Salon. Now that I'm down I am very happy indeed. I never thought I'd see the day when I could walk into a size 7, but I can! And I couldn't have done it without Pat Walker.

(Signed) Helen Jourde

After losing 23¼ lbs. and 28¼ inches, Helen Jourde now wears a size 7

Bad bidders often get good practice

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

One advantage of bad bidding is that you get practice at playing atrocious contracts. A good bidder, lacking this practice, may falter when he is unexpectedly caught in a trap.

West opened the king of hearts and continued with a heart to the ace. East cashed the top clubs, led a heart of West to ruff and ruffed the club return. It was a good start.

East returened his other trump, and South ducked, allowing West to win. West won with the king of spades, a feeble falsecard, and retuned a diamond.

South had visions of taking the rest of the tricks if West had the king of diamonds and East had the queen of spades. South therfore took the diamond finesse, losing to the king. He still had to lose a trump trick to West's queen, and the full penaly was therfore 800 points.

SHOULD SETTLE

An experienced overbidder would settle for 500 points It was impossible for any sane West to double one spade with less in trumps than K-Q-x-x. South must therfore refuse the diamond finesse.

South saves a trick by taking the ace of diamonds and discarding the jack of diamonds on one of dummy's clubs. West ruffs, but this costs him his trump trick; and the penalty is thus held down to 500 points.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer bids one heart, and you are next, holding: SAJ1062 H1085 KJ8 CQJ9. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. There is little advantage in bidding with less than your share of the high cards (10 points) unless you have such a strong suit that a penalty double is out of the question. If you made the queen of clubs the queen of spades, the hand would count to no more, but the bid of one spade would be quite reasonable.

Veterinary school hard to enter

EDITOR'S NOTE — Some of the brightest students in college want to go on to post-graduate training to become veterinarians. But they find themselves shut out by a stringent set of requirements that calls not only for top grades, but top motivation, experience and personality. AP writer Rob Wood visited the Texas A&M campus for this report on unusual aspects of veterinarian education.

By ROB WOOD

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — He had worked hard, studied late and long, finished in the top 10 per cent of his class. It wasn't good enough. He was turned down for veterinary school.

Another youth had talked of being a vet since the age of eight when he successfully treated a scratch on his little puppy's leg.

After his freshman year in college and a 2.5 grade average, he is considering another profession, convinced his scholastic record will block his admission to what has become one of the most select schools in the nation's universities.

More than 600 students applied for admission to the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine last year. Only 138 were accepted.

At the University of Georgia there were 463 applicants. Eighty-six were admitted. Statistically that means 49 requests for each opening.

At Oklahoma State University, 202 asked for admission and 60 were accepted.

Dr. George Shelton, dean of the Texas A&M vet school, said in a recent interview, "It has become as difficult now to get into a college of veterinary medicine as into medical school. The interest among students is almost unbelievable. We can't meet the demand."

William Brock, dean of the Oklahoma State veterinary school, echoed the same theme, saying, "Across the country, it has been getting harder and harder to get into veterinary schools for the last eight to 10 years. There is an increasing number of applicants and we cannot accept as large a proportion of qualified applicants as we once did."

Grades are important, Shelton said, "but are not the final answer for admission. We interviewed the top 276 students on the grade scale, and some with perfect 4.0 averages were rejected; others with marks as high as 3.5 were turned down."

He said personality, a proven desire to work with animals, and some past contact with animals are all pieces that fit together to complete the jigsaw puzzle of what makes a good vet.

"And make no mistake," he said, "there are no bonus points given, no extra consideration, because a student's father may be a veterinarian or the governor of the state."

Shelton said some past experience with animals is a plus "because we look for youths who have worked in a veterinary hospital, know something about animals, have had contact with animals either on that farm in East Texas or the ranch in West Texas."

Kay Wiley, formerly of New Orleans and now calling Bryan her home, had to apply twice for acceptance despite graduating as salutatorian from her high school class and with a Phi Beta Kappa key from the University of Texas.

"An early exposure to cats and dogs, a love for animals and knowing the vet in our neighborhood planted the seeds for this career. I wouldn't want to do anything else. I wasn't too hopeful on being accepted, but I finally made it," she said.

Now in her third year Ms. Wiley recently was named by the faculty as the outstanding student in her class.

By next fall 30 per cent of the A&M class will be women. Ms. Wiley said, "We are aware that some people here resent women students, but there are so many women in my class now, I think they are beginning to accept us."

She said the program is a grind with classes and labs from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. When tests roll around they are set for 7 a.m. so regular classes can begin at 8 a.m.

Several other vet school students all said their past contact with animals, either as youths growing up in the rural area or in contact with pets in urban sections, prompted them to seek admission.

None mentioned the financial gains as reasons for entering veterinary school. Dean Shelton said, "If you think you are going to get rich in this profession, forget it."

Dr. Charles Dobbins, associate dean of the University of Georgia College of Veterinary Medicine, said a heavy emphasis is placed on academic records but "we also consider how long a student has had an interest in veterinary medicine. We would prefer someone who could show that this is not something they've decided to do last week. And we want persons who are interested in food animal medicine, and not just small animal practice."

Why a sudden surge of interest in veterinary medicine?

Dr. Fred Williams, a practicing vet in Dallas, said, "There has been a boom in pet population, in dogs, cats and recreational animals such as horses. One out of every 10 homes in Dallas has a horse.

"Veterinarians are getting more publicity, are better known. We now have degrees with specialities. You can do anything on animals you can do on a person and there is no malpractice insurance on animals," Williams said. "And many youths want to be doctors but don't want to fool with humans."

Shelton told The Associated Press, "One thing has been the sudden upsurge on the part of women. This year about a third of our class will be women. I guess another thing has been the attitude of young people in the past 10 years. After the Vietnam thing, a lot of youngsters associated veterinary medicine as a field where they could be of service.

"Another factor is that it has become a limited field and difficult to get in and that means more and more want to make it. The youngsters have become interested in medicine, veterinary medicine, in law, and other such professions," Shelton said.

Dr. W. F. McCulloch, professor of veterinary public health at Texas A&M, had this answer:

"Veterinary medicine is so diverse now that there are many fields to pursue. You can practice in wildlife, in fish diseases, in environmental health, and once, years ago, you wouldn't consider taking a dog or a cat for an annual checkup and now it is standard procedure. Our profession has become so diversified that it is unique and exciting for students. For example, there are 35 million birds kept as pets in this nation and that is a practice in itself."

Veterinary medicine school officials admit the surge in applicants caught them by surprise and it may be several years before faculties and facilities are large enough to accept even 50 per cent of those who request admission.

Occupational health nurses' roles varied

NEW YORK (AP) — The President of the United States announces a trip out of the country. Result, Ruby Gordon, staff nurse, CBS Broadcast Center, New York, can expect the network staff assigned to the official party to appear in her department for necessary immunizations.

Job performance of an employe of a Flint, Mich., automotive plant starts to deteriorate because of drinking. Result: he seeks help from the alcoholism program headed by Mary Abernathy, medical supervisor.

A piece of equipment falls and strikes a workman erecting an Egyptian column in New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art. Result: the workman consults Donna Goerg Hansen, charge nurse to both museum employes and museum visitors.

These incidents, according to Dorothy M. Saller, executive director of the American Association of Industrial Nurses (AAIN), are a small measure of the way occupational health nursing has expanded in scope since its early days when it focused primarily on emergency care for industrial workers.

"No other profession in the health care field has expanded more dramatically than occupational health nursing," Miss Saller maintains. Currently, the more than 9,000 association members — all registered nurses — are employed in locations as diverse as banks and military bases, oil fields and government installations, construction sites and retail stores, hospitals and entertainment centers, as well as the traditional plant and office, she points out.

In their day-to-day guardianship of employe health and safety, occupational health nurses are dealing more and more with newer areas such as behavior attitudes, environment, rehabilitation, human relations, weight control, nutrition, vision and sexual mores.

Hypertension and smoking are among other contemporary concerns. For example, at Anaheim Convention Center and Stadium (home of the California Angels), Jessie W. Bonkosky, chief nurse, and her staff emphasize the importance of employes' having a blood check and not smoking.

Because hearing impairment has been found widespread, association members like Doris Jean Porter, staff nurse for Miami-based airline employes, consider audiometric testing an important part of their work.

For Mary Anne Ciavatta, staff nurse at Walt Disney World, Lake Buena Vista, Fla., helping employes stay in condition means services as specialized as toxicity testing for gardeners and periodic exams for skin divers. Many services are also provided in the main treatment area for guests — to prevent a minor illness or accident from marring a vacation.

Leningrad very unlike Moscow

By THOMAS KENT

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — "For a person from the West, this is probably one of the most isolated postings in the world," a diplomat said recently of Leningrad, the elegant city that Peter the Great built two centuries ago in hopes of linking Russia closer to the Western world.

There are fewer than 250 Westerners, all of them students or diplomats, now living among the 4.5 million people of the Soviet Union's second largest city. Most have arrived since 1973, when the Soviet Union decided to let several Western nations, including the United States, join the infant diplomatic community here on the Gulf of Finland.

The Westerners' special grocery orders get mixed up and there's rarely a new face in the community. The closest Western doctors are about 100 miles northwest in Finland or 400 miles to the southeast in Moscow.

But despite the isolation and the natural problems of a community where everybody knows everybody, the Western colony in Leningrad is flourishing. Some enthusiasts claim, in fact, that Leningrad and not Moscow is the best place really to learn about Russian life.

"It's easier to get to know Russians here than in Moscow," declared one Western diplomat.

"You'll meet intellectuals, for instance, at an official meeting or cultural exhibit and then you'll exchange cards and in a few weeks they call you and invite you over," he added. "This would be rare in Moscow."

Combined with the more outgoing nature of Leningrad residents, several diplomats said, is more free time for Westerners to meet people. While a diplomat in Moscow may have seven official receptions to attend a week, his Leningrad counterpart may have only a few official obligations per month.

Western students in Leningrad have never had trouble making local contacts because they usually live in dormitories with Russian students

For additional friends, all they need to do is walk down Nevsky Prospekt, Leningrad's main street. While Muscovites have grown indifferent to the large number of foreigners wandering their city, a Russian-speaking Westerner strolling through Leningrad in a luxurious coat or faded jeans quickly attracts Russians. He is bombarded with questions about the West.

The Soviet authorities, at least in some ways, seem to be facilitating the contacts. While diplomats in Moscow are assigned places in special foreign compounds guarded by police, envoys here can live in ordinary Russian apartment buildings.

Leningrad now has consulates of the United States, France, West Germany, Sweden, Finland, Iran, Japan and five nations of the Communist bloc in Europe.

The East and West bloc diplomatic communities, including dependents, total about 150 people. Most foreign students are here for less than a year, including about 65 Americans on semester programs in Leningrad and 150 American university student who come to Leningrad State University on summer vacations.

The small diplomatic community in Leningrad means apartment space, theater tickets and other services are immediately available from Soviet government bodies. In Moscow, there is a long waiting list for diplomatic apartments and authortities are hard pressed to come up with other services demanded by the several thousand-member foreign community.

On the other hand, Westerners in Leningrad have no equivalent of the bright diplomatic grocery store for foreigners in Moscow. The Leningrad missions have to telephone a food delivery service that has been known to see little difference between cheap soup meat and a requested filet steak.

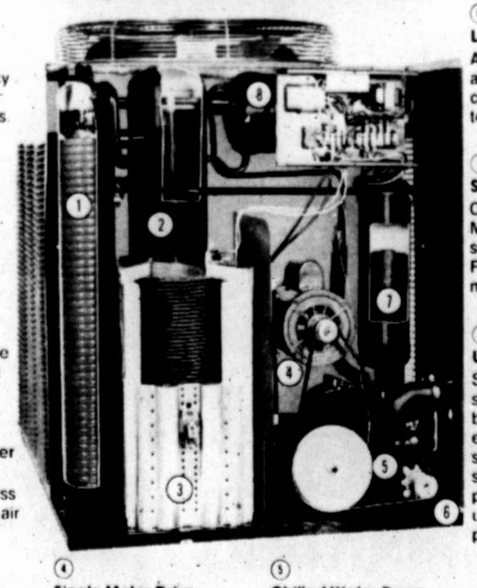
Quality Gas Air Conditioning is your best bargain.

Look into Arkla-Servel.



1 Solution Cooled Absorber
Adds to the efficiency of the unit at higher outside temperatures.

2 Chrome Plated Generator
The heart of the unit. The entire cooling process starts here. Eliminates the complexity and maintenance hassle of compressor-type systems. And chrome is one of the hardest metals known.

3 Stainless Steel Burner
Arkla/Servel units contain more stainless steel than any other air conditioner made.

4 Single Motor Drive
One motor operates both pumps, thus reducing electricity consumption. One reason Arkla/Servel's use one-fifth the electricity needed by compressor-type units.

5 Chilled Water Pump
Made of durable, heavy-duty molded plastic. Can't rust. Corrosion and freeze resistant.

6 Uni-Body Construction
Sealed refrigeration system is welded, not bolted, to steel base, eliminating unnecessary vibration. Exclusive weather resistant paint protects sealed unit and other vital parts.

7 Solution Pump
Contains the ONLY 3 MOVING PARTS of the sealed cooling system. Fewer moving parts mean less to wear out.

8 Leveling Chamber
Allows unit to operate at high level of efficiency with varying outside temperatures.

Northwest Pipeline one of favorites in race for contract in Alaska

By DARYL LEMBKE
The Los Angeles Times

SALT LAKE CITY — A relatively small pipeline company, which didn't even exist 30 months ago, has made a belated but promising entry into the contest to build one of the world's biggest energy projects, a line to transport natural gas from Alaska to the "lower 48."

In spite of its late start, it now appears that Northwest Pipeline Corp., headquartered here, has a fighting chance to edge out two much bigger and richer competitors.

Environmentalists tend to favor the proposed Northwest Pipeline route, which would follow the old Alcan (Alaska-Canadian) Highway for a considerable distance. The highway was built during World War II for military purposes.

The application to build on this route was officially submitted to the Federal Power Commission by Northwest only last July 9, nearly two years after the other two applications.

One of the three will be chosen to carry a supply of much needed gas from Alaska's Prudhoe Bay to markets several thousand miles away in California and the Midwest.

Sitting in his Salt Lake City office five blocks from the bustle of tourists swarming through the Mormon Church's Temple Square, John G. McMillian formerly of Midland, Tex., Northwest Pipeline chairman and chief executive officer, conceded in an interview that his company is starting out as an underdog.

The competitors to Northwest, which has a net worth of $372.6 million, are El Paso Natural Gas Co., net worth $2.4 billion, and the Arctic Gas Group, which has the resources of 16 member utility companies behind it.

Arctic Gas has already spent more than $125 million on surveys, promotional expenses, preliminary hearings and application fees in trying to win approval for its proposed pipeline route. El Paso has spent $15 million for similar purposes.

Though Northwest had been mulling the Alcan route for some time, it got serious about it only a few months ago. McMillian said the company expects to spend $6 to $8 million on its application.

"We are gambling a lot of money for a company our size," he conceded.

Just getting admitted to the contest with Arctic Gas and El Paso is not quite yet an accomplished fact. But it is regarded as a foregone conclusion that the Federal Power Commission will expand its hearings to include Northwest. The hearings have been in progress on the Arctic Gas and El Paso routes since May, 1975.

Picking the route probably depends more on a Canadian decision than on action by the FPC. Canada's National Energy Board is conducting hearings simultaneously with the FPC on the pipeline routes which cross portions of Canada. It will have to decide how soon Canada needs natural gas from its own Mackenzie Delta, adjacent to Alaska's Prudhoe Bay. One of the most important questions in the route competition is whether a single pipeline needs to be built now which would collect gas from the northern rim of both the United States and Canada. The alternative is just to build a line down from Alaska now, leaving the option to build a separate Canadian line later.

Though Northwest Pipeline's support from environmentalists is not taken lightly, the firm's two competitors also have their talking points. All three contenders claim their route is the cheapest to build. (Taking into account inflation, the eventual cost of any of the three is estimated at around $10 billion.)

The cost is high, but the Alaskan gas is much needed in the United States. Just the known proven fields at Prudhoe Bay would amount to 5 per cent of current U.S. consumption.

El Paso Natural Gas is pushing a 2,700-mile, all-U.S. route which would follow the trans-Alaska Oil pipeline corridor. The natural gas would be converted to liquid in southern Alaska and then transported to California by ship. This route's major advantage is that it is entirely free from control by a foreign country — namely, Canada.

The third route, proposed by a consortium of 16 U.S. and Canadian companies banded together as Arctic Gas Group, would slice diagonally across Canada and the United States. Starting at Prudhoe Bay, it would head 400 miles east, pick up gas from Canada's Mackenzie Delta, and then turn south. From a fork at Caroline Junction in southern Alberta, the gas would go southwest to California, southeast to a Dwight, Ill., terminal south of Chicago and east to Toronto.

Arctic Gas' proposed pipeline would be 3,421 miles long from Prudhoe to Dwight, longer than the Northwest route if the latter is confined to merely transporting Alaska-gas. The Arctic Gas project also would have a greater capacity than the other two proposals and has the great advantage of using a single line to collect gas from both the U.S. and Canadian fields in the Arctic.

Each of the three contenders not only claims that it can do the job cheaper, but also that it will complete the project sooner.

Quick completion is important to the United States, which is already short of natural gas, but there is no urgency in Canada. Predictions of a few years ago that Canada's eastern provinces would need gas from the Arctic by 1979 have not come true. Demand has been less than expected and supply as improved because of new discoveries last winter in British Columbia and Alberta.

Environmentalists strongly oppose the Arctic Gas project because it will cross the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in northeast Alaska. Canada's Eskimoes and Indians also insist that their land claims in the oil-rich north must be settled before the Arctic Gas project can proceed. This many cause added delay.

While Northwest Pipeline's project would carry only Alaskan gas and would use Canada only as a conduit to reach the "lower 48," it has two Canadian partners. They are Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. in Vancouver and Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. in Calgary.

One of this project's environmental advantages is that it would break very little new ground in the sensitive tundra region. It would follow the corridor of the trans-Alaska oil piepline (as would El Paso's land-based portion of its route) from Prudhoe to south of Fairbanks, then go along an abandoned military pipeline adjacent to the Alcan Highway to Ft. Nelson, B.C. From that point, Northwest would employ the existing pipelines of its Canadian partners to reach the lower 48 at Sumas, Wash. and Kingsgate, B.C.

Scientists study alternatives to petroleum energy in Israel

By DAVID LANCASTER

TEL AVIV (AP) — Scientists are trying to increase Israel's energy supply with sunshine, wave machines, windmills and scum from the Dead Sea.

Engineers concede that it might take decades to learn how to harness even a fraction of the sun's power. Meanwhile, the sun is already being put to use on rooftops throughout the country.

More than 150,000 households in Israel — compared to a few hundred American homes — use sun heating to produce cheap hot water.

Israelis have been using the technique for more than 20 years. More and more families are installing glass "reflector plates" and tanks on their roofs.

"Once you've paid for the heater, which costs about $400, the hot water is almost free on a sunny day," says one housewife. "On a rainy day we can always switch to the electricity."

A Tel Aviv company, Miromit, which calls itself the world's most experienced maker of sun-powered equipment, says it is exporting thousands of solar collector plates to the United States, Greece, Turkey and even sun-starved Britain, where on a cloudy day, infrared rays can provide some heating energy.

Israeli scientists complain that the government has no full program to promote energy research or solar experiments.

Israel produces electricity from conventional power stations that burn oil, all of it imported from Iran since the country has no oil of its own. Present plans call for Israel to "go nuclear" in the 1980s, with atomic power stations.

Professors at the Israel Institute of Technology (Technion) are convinced that some of the nuclear investment money could be saved by solar energy. Even with present technology, they say, the sun can be used for more than heating bath water.

Prof. Baruch Givroni builds "radiation traps" that turn an entire roof into a heat collector. He says that a low-rise building designed around the radiation trap can do without a furnae even in cold climates.

Givroni's heat trap is a triangular shed of glass, aluminum foil and black foam that catches the sun's rays. The accumulated hot air is pushed by a fan into a gravel storage bed and circulated through the building.

On summer nights, he says, it collects condensation and stores cold air, to cool the building by day without air conditioning.

The Givroni heater hasn't been used so far in Israel except for experiments.

Anthony Peranio, head of the hydrotechnical section at Technion, wants to harness wind and waves as well as the sun.

He plans a generator more than a mile long — a flap suspended in the Mediterranean Sea — to collect the power from the incoming waves and transmit it ashore.

"This could be combined with a battery of windmills — there is a helluva lot of wind energy — and a solar 'farm' of collector plates on shore," says Peranio. He also advocates methane burners that run on manure, claiming that "70 pounds of manure provides enough energy for 20 families to cook for a week."

At Israel's Weizmann Institute, scientists are working on a different energy project — algae (scum) that grow in brackish ponds along the Dead Sea could "someday provide a cheap source of glycerol, a combustible alcohol capable of heating homes and powering engines," says an Institute spokesman.

"With all the fuss over the current energy crisis, wishful thinkers have probably been hoping that science would produce petroleum out of thin air," said the spokesman.

"This is still a fantasy," but the Dead Sea algae "may be a first halting step in this direction."

Earnings announced

Coquina Oil Corp. announced second quarter revenues of $3,611,993, an increase of 33 per cent from the $2,716,781 for the same 1975 period.

After tax, earnings amounted to $875,384 or 45 cents per share, compared with $1,123,845 or 58 cents per share for the 1975 period, the Midland-based company said.

The provision for deferred income taxes amounted to $375,250 in 1976 compared to $59,100 in 1975.

Six-month revenues were $6,744,598 for 1976 compared to $4,710,762 for 1975 and net after tax earnings were $1,520,092 or 78 cents per share for 1976 compared to $1,644,055 or 85 cents per share for 1975. The deferred tax provision for 1976 was $651,550 or 33 cents per share compared to $86,500 or 4 cents per share for 1975.

Extenders potential

Extension to fields in Reeves and Midland counties have been completed.

Ladd Petroleum Corp., Denver, Colo., has finaled No. 1 Ladd-R. L. Burns-Regan Trust as a fourth producer and 1¼-mile northeast extension to the Rojo Caballos, West (Ellenburger) field of Reeves County.

The absolute open flow potential calculation was for 10.136 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, producing through perforations at 21,060-21,544 feet. The pay section had been acidized with 66,000 gallons and fractured with 40,000 gallons.

Drilled to 21,650 feet, it has a 5-inch liner hung from 16,895 feet to total depth. The plugged-back depth is 21,606 feet.

Location is 1,870 feet from north and west lines of section 16, block 49, T-8, T&P survey, 25 miles southeast of Pecos.

Davis Oil Co. of Tulsa, Okla., has completed No. 2 Scharbauer as a location north extension and seventh well in the Hallanan (Strawn) field of Midland County, 13 miles southwest of Midland.

It flowed on 24-hour potential test, 46.9 barrels of 47.2-gravity oil and 11.7 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 5,034-1.

The flow was through a ¾-inch choke and perforations at 10,702-10,723 feet, after acidizing with 1,000 gallons and treating the pay with 48,000 gallons and 48,000 pounds of fracture.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 36, block 41, T-1-S, T&P survey.

Pair of Texas firms reveal merger plans

HOUSTON — United Gas Pipe Line Co. of Houston and Cotton Petroleum Corp. of Tulsa have announced that their respective boards of directors have agreed in principle to a merger of Cotton and United.

J. Hugh Roff Jr., chairman of United, and Doyle W. Cotton Jr., chairman of Cotton, said the agreement is subject to the approval by directors of both companies of a definitive agreement and provides for the issuance of .75 share of United common stock for each outstanding share of common stock of Cotton.

The spokesmen stated that it is anticipated that the current management of Cotton would continue in thier present capacities following the merger.

The agreement in principle contemplates that Cotton, who is a major stockholder of Cotton, would be elected a director of United at the time of the merger.

Baker retires

EUNICE, N. M. — George T. Baker of Eunice recently retired from Samedan Oil Corp. after 33 years of employment in Samedan's West Texas-New Mexico field operations.

Baker was employed as area foreman Dec. 8, 1942, at Lee's Corner in the Howard-Glasscock field of Glasscock County.

He was transferred to the Chalk Area of the field in 1956 as a pumper and in 1959 was moved to Eunice.

Operations realigned

TULSA, Okla. — To effectively meet expanded responsibilities for worldwide crude oil and refined products supply and transportation, Cities Service Co. has announced a realignment of operations in the Refined Products Division.

R. Frank Thornburg has been named manager-Supply and Transportation Europe/Africa and will transfer from Tulsa to establish an office in London. He was manager-Crude Oil Supply.

John C. Miller, who was assistant manager-Crude Oil Supply, has been named to fill the post vacated by Thornburg. He will remain at Tulsa.

Lario sets explorer

Lario Oil & Gas Co., operating from Odessa, filed application to drill an 11,900-foot exploratory test in West Yoakum County, ⅞ mile southwest of the M. G. F. (Devonian) oil field. It is No. 1 Seiber.

Drillsite is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 415, block D, John H. Gibson survey, seven miles west of Plains.

The discovery of the field, Major, Giebel & Forster No. 1 Johnson was completed in 1969, to flow 480 barrels of oil daily, from open hole at 11,420-11,443 feet.

Decrease reported

NEW YORK — Texasgulf Inc. has announced sales and earnings for the second quarter and first six months of 1976.

Net income for the second quarter was $20,562,000 or 67 cents per share, compared With $26,186,000 or 85 cents per share in the second quarter of 1975.

Sales in the second quarter of 1976 amounted to $134,573,000 compared with $108,822,000 in the second quarter a year ago.

Net income for the first six months amounted to $36,519,000 or $1.19 per share, compared to $56,595,000 or $1.85 per share in the first six months of 1975.

Sales in the first six months of 1976 totaled $245,122,000 compared with $1-##+$217,859,000 for the same period a year ago.

Acquisition announced

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — Apco Oil Corp. and Kerr-McGee Corp. have announced that Kerr-McGee has completed acquisition of the capital stock of Apco's British subsidiary.

Acquisition of Apco Oil Limited's capital stock makes Kerr-McGee beneficial owmer of an undivided 25 per cent interest in nine blocks in the North Sea's United Kingdom sector.

Sanders to retire

BIG SPRING — Chesley Sanders, Jones & Laughlin Supply Division's store manager in Big Spring, will retire Sunday.

Sanders was employed in 1942 at Mt. Pleasant, Mich., and served J&L at Laurel and Brookhaven, Miss., and Hobbs, N. M., prior to his assignment here in 1965.

Ken Pruitt, a salesman at Big Spring, will succeed Sanders as store manager. Pruitt joined J&L in 1963 in Big Spring and was promoted to salesman in 1975.

Rick McBride is being transferred from Andrews to succeed Pruitt. He has been with the company since 1974 when he went to work at Odessa. He was moved to Andrews in 1975.

Prime rate cut pushes market up

By CHET CURRIER

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly today on the news of a prime rate reduction by a large Chicago bank.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.03 at 991.94, and gainers held a small lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

As the market opened, the First National Bank of Chicago said it was lowering its prime, or basic charge on large loans, from 7¼ to 7 per cent, effective Tuesday. Investors seemed uncertain, however, whether other banks would follow suit immediately.

Gulf States Utilities, the most active Big Board issue, was unchanged at 13 in trading that included a 200,000-share block at that price.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stock was unchanged at 55.63.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .13 at 104.52.

Volume on the Big Board set a slow pace, totalling 6.06 shares over the first two hours against 7.14 million in the comparable period Friday.

Texas Instruments climbed a point to 121. The company said its second quarter earnings were double comparable yearago figures, and projected a strong second half.

Note holder buys Salinas bank stock

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Controlling stock in the Union State Bank of Carrizo Springs was sold at auction here today for $450,000 to the only bidder.

First National Bank of San Antonio, which was selling of the stock, also purchased it back. Terry Erwin, First National vice president, made the bid.

The stock originally was owned by Eagle Pass businessman Enrique Salinas, who offered it to First National earlier this year as collateral on a $645,000 loan.

First National claimed that Salinas defaulted on the outstanding $520,000 portion of the loan after it was called for payment. After a court hearing last week, the First National Bank won approva to auction the stock collateral.

Thus, Salinas, who a month ago owned both banks in the farming and oil community of Carrizo Springs southwest of San Antonio, todqy was out of the banking business in that town.

Salinas did not attend the auction.

There were indications after the auction that the directors of Union State Bank intended to try to buy the more than 22,000 shares of stock from First National.

The stock represents about 60 per cent ownership.

E. Glynn Fluitt, president of Union State, said residents of Carrizo Springs feel the bank should be locally owned and controlled. He said there was "a possibility" that directors would get the stock.

Another potential buyer of the stock, Artesia Wells rancher Phil Koehne, said he backed off on making a bid because of uncertainties about the stock.

Koehne said he received indications that if anyone besides a local group got control of the bank, major depositors would withdraw their funds from Union State.

Senate facing heavy schedule

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — With taxes, crime control, clean air and postal finances on the agenda, senators face a heavy schedule this week in an effort to finish business and head out for some political campaigning.

The major items scheduled for action in the House include a mine safety bill and a measure to require government agencies to open their meetings to the public.

The Senate worked two days last week on a bill extending the life of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for another five years. The leadership had hoped to finish the measure on Friday but failed.

The bill authorizes the LEAA to spend $5.3 billion over the next five years to help communities fight crime.

During debate, the agency came under sharp criticism for failure to stem rising crime rates despite the expenditure of $4 billion since it was created in 1969.

Next on the Senate agenda are amendments to the Clean Air Act. The most controversial would give automakers two more years to meet stricter auto emission standards. The new deadline would be Jan. 1, 1979.

The postal bill would create a commission to study problems in the postal service. The commission, with six members appointed by Congress and four by the President, would report by Feb. 15.

Until the commission completes its work, the postal service would be prohibited from reducing services or raising rates. But the bill would increase the federal subsidy by $1 billion. The government already finances $1.5 billion of the cost of running the U.S. mail.

The Senate also is expected to continue debate this week on amendments to a major tax bill that would extend anti-recession tax cuts. Last week, the Senate approved amendments that virtually do away with tax breaks for sick pay and occasional business use of homes.

The mine safety bill scheduled for action in the House on Tuesday would transfer responsibility for mine safety from the Interior Department to the Department of Labor under a new assistant secretary of labor for mine safety and health.

The bill also would require that underground mines be inspected four times a year and surface mines twice a year.

The public meetings bill would require that sessions of multimember federal agencies be opened to the public. It would apply to about 50 agencies, including the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Communications Commission and the Federal Power Commission.

Christians demand Moslems surrender

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Former President Camille Chamoun said today that his Christian militia will not observe a cease-fire until the last two Moslem positions in East Beirut surrender.

Chamoun, who heads the National Liberal party and is interior minister in the defunct Lebanese government, said he would accept nothing less than the unconditional surrender of all Palestinian and leftist Lebanese Moslem fighters in the Nabaa slum quarter and the Tal Zaatar refugee camp.

Chamoun's Tigers militia and the Phalangist party's militia have been besiegng Tal Zaatar for more than a month and began attacking Nabaa last week. The slum quarter and the camp are a threat to communications between the Christian sector of Beirut and the Christian enclave to the northeast between Beirut and Tripoli.

Firing from Chamoun's Tigers torpedoed the 53rd ceasefire of the 15-month-old Lebanese civil war Sunday. The truce was arranged by Arab League mediator Hassan Sabri Kholi.

The Tigers wounded seven men in a Sudanese unit of the Arab League peace force who tried to establish a position on the Christian side of the chief crossing between the Moslem and Christian sectors of Beirut. The Sudanese pulled back to the Moslem side.

The battles for Nabaa and Tal Zaatar raged all night, and there was firing also along the no man's land between the two halves of Beirut. Securtiy sources and hospitals reported more than 130 killed and 170 wounded during the night. More than 33,000 persons are estimated to have died in the war.

The Palestinians said the continuing attacks on Tal Zaatar prevented the rescue of an estimated 500 persons who were trapped in a bunker when a shell hit the roof Saturday.

The Palestinian command claimed that two more Syrian armored brigades crossed the border to reinforce the 13,000 Syrian troops and 450 tanks already in the country to support the Christians.

The United States was making plans for its second seaborne evacuation of Americans from Lebanon on Tuesday. The helicopter carrier Iwo Jima and five other ships were expected to move into place off the coast to send one or more unarmed landing ships ashore.

A total of 154 Americans and 281 persons of other nationalities registered with the U.S. Embassy last week for the evacuation. It was thought the number might increase because of the failure of the cease-fire Sunday.

Plans for a road convoy to take the evacuees to Damascus, Syria, were canceled because the embassy decided the trip would not be safe. The same thing happened in June, when the U.S. Navy removed 110 Americans and 157 other persons from the seafront on June 20.

Man injured in truck, motorcycle collision

Mark Crosby, 24, Box 4292, was injured this morning when the motorcycle he was driving and a cement truckdriven by Leonard Searcy, Jr., 1107 E. Oak Ave., collided.

The accident occurred at about 8 at the intersection of Garfield Street and Front Street, police said. Crosby was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, where it was reported he had a broken leg and undetermined other injuries.

Police said Searcy was going north on Garfield, and Crosby, headed west on Front, was turning south onto Garfield.

PEDESTRIAN HURT

Jesus Sandate, Jr., 30, of 304 N. Ft. Worth St., was reported in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital Monday with head cuts following an accident Sunday night.

Sandate was struck by a car driven by Linda D. Carrasco, 1412 S. Alleghaney, Odessa, as he was walking across N. Lamesa Road, in the 900 block, at about 10:35 p.m., police said.

TWO BURGLARIES

A burglary at the K. R. Hughes' home, 1601 N. H St., netted thieves $2,500 worth of camera equipment and sterling silver, police report.

The burglary occurred sometime between May 28 and July 24, police said, while the Hughes were away on vacation. Entrance was gained through a back door, which is believed to have been kicked open.

A 12 gauge Winchester shotgun, a CB radio, a stereo, a television, clothes and other items worth $2,040 were taken from the residence of Jim Hughes, 21 Wadley Apt. 164, sometime between 7:15 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday, police report.

Entry was gained through a front window whose lock was unfastened with a coat hanger, police said.

FIRES

A mattress fire at the residence at 713 S. Calhoun St. Sunday night resulted in heavy damage to the mattress, the fire department said. Probable cause of the fire was a water heater adjacent to the mattress.

A fire was reported in a city dumpster at 3900 Gaston Drive Sunday. A grass fire was reported Sunday in the 1200 block of Garden Lane.

Playgrounds to end program

The grand finale in playground activities for Midland's youngsters will get under way this week, with "something for everyone" promised Thursday morning.

Special activities will be going on all week at the playgrounds where the city Parks and recreation Department has supervised play.

Free ice cream, candy, special awards, hidden prizes, a talant show and free pool passes will be available from 9-11:30 a.m. Thursday at Dennis the Menace Park.

All Midland youngsters are invited to the activities.

Bandits strike it rich

ROME (AP) — Hurling tear gas, three bandits raided the accounting office of the Labor Ministry in downtown Rome and made off with half a million dollars today. There was no policeman around to stop them.

The bandits wielding submachine guns struck in the morning of payday minutes after treasury officials with an escort had delivered a briefcase with 464 million lire—$556,800.

Great Lakes rebounding from abuse

By MARGOT HORNBLOWER
The Washington Post

MILWAUKEE — The Great Lakes, North America's largest freshwater reservoir and the cradle of America's industrial revolution, are slowly recovering from decades of environmental abuse.

However, while industries and cities have spent billions of dollars cleaning up the chemical and sewage wastes they pour into the lakes, enormous problems remain. Fish are poisoned by mercury, pesticides, PCB's and other dangerous chemicals. Drinking water in Lake Superior contains asbestos, a possible cancer-causing agent. Some beaches are closed because of sewage bacteria.

"In five years, we've come a long way toward cleaning up the Great Lakes," said Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Russell E. Train after a four-day trip around the lakes.

"Tremendous resources are being brought to bear, and there are real success stories. But it is a very mixed picture. You can't cure the ills of 100 years overnight."

Ten years ago, newspaper headlines across the country decried the "death" of Lake Erie, and the lake became a national symbol of environmental destruction, sparking the fledgling ecology movement.

THE LAKE, a 12,000-year-old inland sea, suffered from a premature aging process called "eutrophication" which threatened toturn it into a swamp.

Cities around the lake, such as Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo, were pouring untreated sewage and phosphorous into its waters. Phosphorous, a pervasive nutrient contained in food, household detergents and fertilizers, stimulates underwater plant growth — which in turn depletes oxygen necessary for fish to survive.

Today, the dead, oxygen-depleted area which once covered 60 per cent of the lake bottom has begun to recede. However, Lake Ontorio also is suffering from euthrophication, and has not improved since 1967.

In the last five years, the United States has undertaken one of the largest public works projects in its history to build sewage treatment plant around the nation. Of the $18 billion allocated, about $5 billion is to be spent in the Great Lakes region by September 1977.

Today, about 60 per cent of the sewage produced by Americans living along the lakes receives adequate treatment. On the Canadian side, 97 per cent of the population is served by modern treatment plants.

THE LAG, produced in part by federal grant red tape, by local contractor bidding squabbles and the cities' financial problems, has produced some tension between Canada and the Untied States. The two countries signed a treaty in 1972 pledging a joint cleanup by 1975.

Under the 1972 amendments to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, EPA has authority to grant money for sewer plants and to require industry to restrict discharges.

In 1972, it was thought that new sewage plants could clean up the phosophorous that was killing the lakes — although environmentalists said a total ban on phosophates in detergents was needed.

Last week, TrAln said the treatment approach has failed. "Even as we get our sewage treatment plants on line, we're finding they don't give us adequate phosphate reduction," he said.

"I don't see any answer to the problem short of a severe limitation on phosphate detergents in the Great Lakes area." He said EPA will encourage states around the lakes to enact restrictions — so far, only Indiana, New York and Minnesota have strict phosphate laws.

Although adequate sewage treatment facilities in Great Lakes cities will not be ready until 1981 at the earliest, industry is well on its way to complying with clean water regulations by next year.

AS A TRIBUTE to industries' efforts, Train donned a hard hat to tour Monsanto Co.'s phosphates plant in Trenton, Mich., and Republic Steel's giant Cleveland mill.

Monsanto's products appear in such familiar items as Coca-Cola, Kent cigarettes, Colgate toothpaste and Tide detergent. In the late 1960s the plant, the largest phosphate operation in the world, was dumping 5,000 pounds of phosphate wastes a day into the Detroit River. Today, after $750,000 worth of in-plant treatment facilities, the discharge is 30 pounds a day.

Republic's largest steel mill until recently discharged oil, iron, zin, phenol, ammonia and cyanide in 70 million gallons of water a day. A few years ago, the Cuyahoga River, which empties into Lake Erie, became so dirty from steel and chemical companies' discharges that it caught fire.

Today, Republic has spent $55 million for water treatment facilities and tests show its discharges are cleaner than the river water it takes in.

While most of the 400 industrial discharges along the Great Lakes have agreed, often reluctantly, to comply with the water pollution control laws, 17 plants, including four owned by U.S. Steel, are fighting EPA in court.

Republic Steel and Armco, owners of Reserve Mining in Silver Bay, Minn., are locked in combat with the federal government over the company's pollution of Lake Superior. Reserve has discharged 67,000 tons of taconite tailings daily for 21 years, contaminating the drinking water of Duluth with asbestos fibers, a possible carcinogen (cancer-causing agent).

Asbestos is one of a number of substances that have only recently been a focus of environmental action. "We're discovering new problems that we didn't have in mind when we started to clean up the lakes in 1972," Train said.

"The only solution we have to PCBs andother chemicals is legislation to stop them before they leave the laboratory. But until Congress passes toxic substances legislation, we have no effective handle on them."

PCBs (polychlorinated biphanyls) are a pervasive, man-made chemical found in transformers, paints, paper, plastics, refrigerators, television sets and other goods. They are known to cause birth defects and illness in humans, and are found in fish in all five of the Great Lakes.

ALTHOUGH MONSANTO, the sole manufacturer of PCBs, has voluntarily restricted their production, PCB levels do not appear to be declining in the Great Lakes. Salmon, trout, eels, perch and other fish have been found to contain dangerous quantities, leading to warnings from state health departments and a severe crippling of the lakes' commercial fishing industry.

At a meeting last week of the International Joint Commission, which oversees U.S.-Canadian water quality, scientists revealed the presence of mirex, a suspected cancer-causing chemical, in fish and herring gull eggs in Lake Ontario.

Mercury, the pesticide dieldrin and heavy metals such as lead, zinc and nickle are also found in lake fish in hazardous concentrations.

"Lately, it's been the toxic material of the month," said EPA regional administrator Gerald Hansler. "Its discouraging to see billions of dollars spent on cleaning up sewage and to find a new chemical which you don't know how to treat."

RECENT RESEARCH has revealed that restricting industrial and munitipal discharges is not enough: a substantial amount of water pollution is caused by airborne substances of undetermined origin. In the case of Lake Superior, it comes from as far away as St. Louis.

Phosphorous fertilizers blow off the land where farmers have spread them. PCBs are incinerated or evaporate into the atmosphere. Lead floats from automobile exhaust pipes into the lake waters.

Phosphorous from agricultural runoff is more of a problem than originally recognized, and one that cannot be as easily treated with technology as sewage disposal. EPA is undertaking educational programs with the Agriculture Department to train farmers not to overfertilize, plant too near rivers or fertilize in the fall before the snow melts and carries chemicals into the rivers.

About half of the phosphorous loading — and consequent oxygen depletion — of Lake Erie comes from agricultural, rather than urban or industrial sources. The Maumee River basin near Toledo is especially polluted from agriculture. Urban runoff — from phosphorous spread on homeowners lawns — also damages the lakes.

ALL THE SEWAGEproblems will not be sovled even when the $5 billion worth of plants are built. Most cities have combined storm sewers, so that every time it rains, water washes down the streets into the sewer system and overloads the treatment plant. The overloaded plants then discharge raw sewage into the lakes and rivers.

EPA estimates it would cost an additional $6 billion to correct combined sewer overflow problems in the Great Lakes area.

Another tough problem is where to dispose of the accumulating tons of sludge, the foul-smelling residue left over from industrial and city treatment plants. Burning sludge causes air pollution, and burying it uses up valuable land and risks seepage into ground water and rivers.

On his tour, Train visited two Great Lakes facilities to publicize innovative sewage programs Milwaukee's Jones Island plant, which serves 1.1 million people, turns sludge into a coffee-colored, odorless lawn fertilizer called milorganite, bags it and sells it on the open market.

In Muskegon, Mich., the county sewage treatment system uses the wastes of 125,000 people, a large paper mill and several chemical plants to irrigate a 10,500-acre farm. Sandy soil retains phosphorous and nitrogen to feed the planted corn, and burfies the wastewater, which drains into a tile system and into Lake Michigan. The corn is being tested for potentially dangerous chemicals.

M-Cubs rally for three in eighth to nip Mets

BY TED BATTLES

Midland's Cubs rallied for three eighth-inning runs to nip Jackson's Mets at the wire, 7-6, in the final Texas League meeting between the teams this season Sunday, but victory dangled on a couple of whispery threads of chance during the winning rally.

After falling behind 5-0 in the first, Midland made the long haul back, but before second baseman Tony Franklin delivered the decisive bases loaded single, the Mets were on the verge of being out of the inning. Bob Hrapmann bowled over a first baseman in the first tide-turning play and then catcher Manny Lantigua failed to hold a tip third strike on Franklin.

ON THE next pitch, Franklin drilled a bouncer down the line and this time Shad Rolle, who had gobbled up everything else hit his way in the series, couldn't get it. Two runs scored and when leftfielder Terry Senn muffed the ball, the winning run scored.

Scott Thompson had opened the eighth with a single, but was forced at second by Earle Chew. Steve Verban walked and then Hrapmann bounced a ball over first baseman Luis Rosado. Second baseman Jim Kidder made the play on the grass behind the bag and threw to Rosado, covering with his back to the plate to take the throw. Hrapmann and the ball arrived at the same time and Rosado and the ball scattered in different directions.

It was a big play, because Jose Ortiz popped up for the second out before Franklin got to the plate.

After starter Wayne Doland was

Tony Franklin

shelled for five runs in the first, left-thander Bernie Beckman took over with two out and went on to notch his sixth win with a gilt-edged effort after a shakey start.

"MY ARM felt better than it has the last two times," said Doland, still 9-5, "but I had nothing."

After walking three batters in the first,following Wayne's disasterous start, and giving up four hits in the next three innings, Beckman didn't allow another hit until we're two out in the ninth.

Jackson, which took the season's series, 6-4, struck quickly as Lee Mazilli doubled, Jim Kidder tripled and Rosado singled. After a force out and a fly, Rolle tripled and that brought in the Canadian Southpaw.

The only other run Beckman "yielded" came in the seventh when Wayne Bauers walked with two out. Bernie picked him off first, So Bauers dashed for second, Scott Thompson's throw was wild and Bauers got up and ran to third, and scored when shortstop Mike Sember bobbled Ned Yost's grounder.

A WALK to Ortiz, Franklin''s single and Sember's sacrifice fly got one run back in the first. Two more in the third chased starter Tom Litle as Mike Umfleet and Sember delivered run scoring singles.

Midland picked up another in the sixth when Steve Verban tripled off Larry Prewitt and scored on an error.

Then trailing 6-4 going into the eighth, Midland snapped its three-game losing streak.

CUBS BRIEFS — Midland has an off night tonight before Arkansas comes in for five games, starting at 7:30 p.m. ...Apparently Ortiz was the target of the night for Mets' pitchers, he was hit twice, the second time really stung.

Black Saturday becomes Sunny Sunday

MONTREAL (AP) — The East Germans are leading, the Americans are on the rebound and the Russians are busily denying rumors one of their premier athletes is among the missing at the XXI Olympic Games.

American forces, down but not out after one of its worst days in Olympic history, turned Dark Saturday into Sunny Sunday with a gritty comeback that was sparked by one of the most dramatic moments of the Games—Shirley Babashoff's last-gasp winning anchor leg in the women's final swimming event, the 400-meter freestyle relay.

That victory, the continued dominance of the men swimmers, and a couple of gold medal performances by track and field men—including Edwin Moses' world record run in the 400 hurdles—served as the highlights of the American revival that came just in the nick of time.

EAST GERMANY, however, won five of the eight men's rowing finals, got a medal in every race and swept past the troubled Russians into the gold medal lead with 26. They also have 17 silver and 10 bronze, a total of 53. Russia leads in total medals with a 24-24-22 gold-silver-bronze count. The United States, which won only 10 of the 104 medals distributed Friday and Saturday, collected 18 of 66 Sunday and has a 21-21-16 count.

And there was more trouble for the Russians, who will host the 1980 Games in Moscow. They've twice been accused of attempting to influence judges and had one of their modern pentathlon athletes kicked out for cheating. This time the problem involved unconfirmed reports that Valeriy Borzov, winner of both the 100 and 200 meter dashes in 1972, either has defected or been kidnapped.

THE RUSSIANS denied it. Mikhail Efimov, the Russian Olympic press attache, said Borzov was in the Village "and everything is okay with him."

A spokesman for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said they investigated and were assured the Russian sprinter "is in good hands."

The reports were fueled by Borzov's absence from the 200 trials and the sudden cancellation of a speaking engagement by his coach. The Soviet press attache said Borzov was withdrawn from the race because he had aggravated an old injury and added that he will compete in the 400-meter relay later this week.

The men's basketball team, apparently headed for another showdown with the Russians, plays Canada in a semifinal game. Russia plays Yugoslavia in the other. The winners meet for the gold medal which the Russians won in a controversial final in Munich in 1972. The American women could gain a silver against Czechoslovakia.

Also on the schedule are finals in fencing, cycling, judo and the men's platform diving.

Swimming ended last night. And it ended on a high note for the deeply frustrated American women who were facing their first gold medal shutout since 1952. It was averted by an almost superhuman performance by 19-year-old Shirley Babashoff, of Fountain Valley, Calif., and three of her teammates.

It was a last-gasp thing. Going into the last event, the Americans hadn't won. Miss Babashoff had collected three silver medals, including one in

Galveston wins Fast Pitch play

By BOB DILLON

Islandettes wear state crown.

Galveston's Islandettes pushed across five runs in the top of the seventh inning Sunday afternoon to down Foster's of Stephenville, 6-1, in the finals of the Women's State Fast Pitch Softball Tournament at Hogan Park.

The Gulf Coast power went through the three-day tourney undefeated in five games, but had to scramble in order to hold off the Stephenville nine.

On their way to the coveted state championship, Galveston polished off the Pecos Blue Eagles, Midland Chargers, L&L Ice of Nederland, and Stephenville twice.

Midland's Chargers, fourth place finishers in the meet, gave the Islandettes the hardest and closest game, losing to the champions by a 1-0 count.

L&L Ice finished third in the tourney which featured 18 of the top women's teams in the Lone Star State.

Both Galveston and Stephenville have qualified for the Regional Women's Fast Pitch Tourney to be held in Austin, Aug. 20-22.

Stephenville's Ebb Pack and Carol Culligan, were hooked up in a great pitcher's duel en the Gulf Coast outfit broke open the game with its five-run outburst.

Sharon Labardini's two-run double and a triple by Tina Sims, highlighted the uprising off Pack.

Galveston took a 1-0 lead in the top of the third inning with that run being unearned. with one out, Jo Ann Broz singled, went to second on a passed ball and scored on an error.

Not to be outdone, Stephenville came right back to tie the score in the bottom of the same inning, but that was all that Foster's was going to score the rest of the way.

Diane Dillon, centerfielder, was safe on a fielder's choice and stole second. She scored on June Perkins' single, to tie the game.

A pair of snappy double plays by the Islandette infield, kept Stephenville

Hi-Junior tournament to begin

Five teams open play tonight in the District Texas Teen-Age Hi-Junior Baseball Tournament at Simon Field.

Joining Midland will be Odessa, Crane, San Angelo and Monahans in the double elimination tourney which runs through Thursday night.

In the opening game today, Crane takes on San Angelo in the 3:30 p.m. contest followed by the Midland-Monahans tilt at 6 p.m.

Then in the 8:30 p.m. battle, Odessa takes on the winner of the Crane-San Angelo game, to round out action the first night.

Two games will be played each night through Thursday with games starting at 6 and 8:30 p.m. each day.

San Angelo and Odessa rate as the tourney favorites.

Odessa American Legion team sports a 13-1 record and are on an eight-game winning streak coming into the tourney.

Victor Barrientes and Tommy Sager are the top two pitchers for the Odessa American Legion team.

Midland is represented by the Tri-Service Drillers in the tourney with Todd Clements amd Jimmy Zachry the top hurlers. In the recent 13-0 win over the American League All-Stars, Clements tossed a no-hitter while Zachry and John Marks slammed triples for the Drillers.

City Slow Pitch play to resume at Hogan

Following a two-week delay, the City Men's Slow Pitch Softball Tournament swings back into action tonight at Hogan Park.

Heavy rains along with the Men's State Qualifying Tourney and the just-completed Women's State Fast Pitch Tourney, has kept the teams from finishing out the battle to see who wears the city crown this year.

Eight teams remain undefeated after two rounds of play. They include: Western Company, Well Fluids, this year's tourney favorite, Rivas Cabinset Cabinets, HNG Oil, G.Q. Suns, Goodrich Service Center, Foursquare Gospel and Buckeye Inc.

In game today, G.Q. & Suns take on Goodrick on diamond No. 1 at 9:20 p.m. while on No. 2, Western tries Well Fluids; Foursquare and Buckeye tangle on No. 3 and on No. 4, Rivas tries HNG.

Still in the tourney which is a double elimination affair are Our Lady of Guadalupe who faces the Midland A's at y p.m. on No. 1; Assembly in Christ vs. the Red Chiefs on No. 4; TV Service takes on Bethel Baptist on No. 3 and Johnson Tire meets Schumann Engineering on No. 2

Then in 8:10 p.m. contests, Don's Poultry battles the winner of the Red Chief, Assembly in Christ game on No. 4; Terrett Sptic Tanks faces the

Brewers go 10 to nip Shreveport Caps, 4-3

By The Associated Press

It took 10 innings for San Antonio to subdue Texas League East leader Shreveport 4-3 Sunday night.

Shreveport nevertheless retained a 2½-game margin over runnerup Jackson, which bowed to Midland 7-6. Amarillo dowed Arkansas 6-3 in the evening's other game. Rain washed out an El Paso at Lafayette date.

Jerry Reed singled, took second on a wild pitch and scored San Antonio's winning run off reliever Randy Hopkins, 6-5, on a fielder's choice in the 10th frame. Brian Nakamoto belted a three-run homer for the winners in the first inning. Four Shreveport runners were thrown out trying to steal second.

Amarillo exploded for four runs in the sixth inning after trailing 3-2. The winners collected four straight sigles, a walk and another single in the outburst. Starter Mike Lentz reinjured a knee after facing only two Arkansas batters and right-hander Jay Franklin, 2-3, took over to claim the decision.

Schmidt borrows bat to break slump with No. 26

By The Associated Press

The Mike Schmidt model is a popular bat in Philadelphia—popular, that is, with everyone but Mike Schmidt.

The Philadelphia third baseman prefers the Johnny Oates model.

Schmidt, gripped by a mild slump, tried Oates' lighter, shorter bat and wound up hitting a home run Sunday to help the Phillies beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 13-7.

Schmidt also had two singles and drove in four runs, a performance that lifted his spirits and boosted the Phillies' lead in the National League East over the Pirates to 13 games.

"The Pirates must have wondered what I was doing in the big leagues, the way I've been hitting of late," said Schmidt, whose homer was his 26th this season but only his fourth in July. "I'm telling you, the Pirates' pitchers were so hard on me it was a shame. They weren't even bothering to throw me breaking balls. Just fire it past him, they seem to be thinking.

Philadelphia starter Jim Kaat and reliever Ron Reed combined to lose a 7-3 lead in the eighth. But in the bottom of the inning Schmidt singled home the lead run, and after two singles and a walk, Brown ripped one over the left field fence with the bases loaded off Pirate reliever Dave Giusti.

Dodgers 1, Padres 0

Lee Lacy's double in the seventh inning drove in Bill Russell from second base and led Los Angeles over San Diego behind Doug Rau's six-hitter.

Lacy's one-out line drive was almost caught by left fielder Johnny Grubb, who had the ball in his glove momentarily before it popped out and allowed Russell to score.

Astros 1, Giants 0

Greg Gross' sacrifice fly in the 10th inning scored Wilbur Howard as Houston blanked San Francisco behind rookie Mike McLaughlin's six-hitter.

Houston had loaded the bases in the 10th off losing pitcher Ed Halicki, 9-13, on a single by Ed Herrmann, an intentional walk to Rob Andrews and a walk to pinch-hitter Ken Boswell. Gross followed with his sacrifice fly.

"You just have to go out there and throw the ball," said McLaughlin after picking up his first major league victory. "If I go down to the minor leagues I can always come back up. It's good to get the experience in now."

Cardinals 4, Cubs 3

Don Kessinger contributed two key singles and second baseman Manny Trillo's two errors permitted St. Louis to score four unearned runs. Winning pitcher Lynn McGlothen, 9-9, restricted the Cubs to a double by loser Rich Reuschel, 9-8, until Chicago scored three runs in the eighth inning on five hits.

Expos 2, Mets 1

Andre Thornton singled home Ellis Valentine from third base with one out in the ninth to give Montreal its victory. With the bases loaded, the Mets were playing a drawn-in outfield and Thornton lashed the ball over the head of center fielder Pepe Mangual for the winning run.

Reds 7, Braves 6

George Foster tied the score with a leadoff home run in the eighth and Doug Flynn drove in the winning run later in the inning with a sacrifice foul pop, leading Cincinnati over Atlanta. The victory went to Gary Nolan and was the 100th of his career. Nolan, 9-5, went seven innings, giving up 10 hits. Bruce Dal Canton, 3-3, absorbed the loss.

Taunts haunt Royals' Otis

By The Associated Press

Earlier in the season, Amos "No Interviews" Otis was trying to prove that silence is golden.

Now, the Oakland A's are trying to prove it to him.

Kansas City's Otis sounded off after the Royals beat the A's with a big rally Saturday. The A's, who can read, came out roaring with a seven-run first inning Sunday and went on to a 9-2 romp.

"Those statements contributed very much to our victory," said Manager Chuck Tanner. "We didn't have to have any team meeting. The team was sky-high and showed it."

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels beat the Texas Rangers 7-3 on Lee Stanton's 11th-inning grand slam for their third victory in a row under new manager Norm Sherry while the Boston Red Sox suffered their fifth consecutive setback and sixth in seven games under new manager Don Zimmer, bowing to the New York Yankees 6-5 on Chris Chambliss' dramatic three-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth.

Saturday, Otis said that "ever since Reggie Jackson left, the A's have very time he opens his mouth he says the A's have won the pennant. Doesn't he know he is nine games behind?"

That was Saturday. Now the lead is eight games, down from 10½ a week ago.

"Those statements will come back to haunt him," Tanner replied. "They haunted him today. He played a single into a triple and grounded out with the bases loaded. Otis is a quitter, not a leader. Maybe when the going gets tough he'll quit like he does every year."

Oakland's big inning against Doug Bird and Andy Hassler included RBI singles by Gene Tenace and Claudell Washington, Ken McMullen's two-run triple—Otis missed a shoestring catch—and a two-run homer by Phil Garner. Tenace homered in the third.

Angels 7, Rangers 3

Stanton's grand slam off Steve Foucault with two out in the 11th was his first home run of the season. It followed a leadoff single by Terry Humphrey and two-out intentional walks to Jerry Remy and Bobby Bonds after Humphrey moved around to third on a sacrifice and an infield out.

Yankees 6, Red Sox 5

Chambliss slammed reliever Tom House's only pitch into the bleachers to cap a comeback that began after Boston led 5-0 in the fifth inning. Elrod Hendricks opened the ninth with a pinch single off Tom Murphy and Mickey Rivers doubled. After Murphy retired Roy White and Thurman Munson with no advance, Zimmer signaled for left-hander House, only to have the strategy backfire on House's first and only pitch.

Brewers 3, Orioles 1

Bill Travers allowed three hits, one a solo homer by Paul Blair, as Milaukee completed a four-game weekend sweep of the Orioles. The Brewers scored twice in the second inning on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Dave Pagan following three consecutive walks and Tim Johnson's two-out single off Rudy May.

Tigers 9-5, Indians 1-4

Pedro Garcia's two-run triple turned out to be the game-winning hit as Detroit piled up a five-run lead and held on to win the nightcap behind a 17-hit attack. In the opener, John Wockenfuss drove in two runs with a homer and single, Aurelio Rodriguez added a two-run single and Garcia slammed a two-run homer.

Twins 13-4, White Sox 8-7

Pinch hitter Lamar Johnson's three-run homer in the seventh inning brought Chicago from behind in the nightcap and snapped the Twins' longest winning streak of the season at five games. Rod Carew's basesloaded pinch triple featured a five-run Minnesota rally in the sixth inning of the opener that offset five RBI by Chicago's Jorge Orta.

The Twins pulled off a triple play in the first inning of the opener when catcher Glenn Borgmann grabbed Bill Stein's bunt in the air and threw to shortstop Luis Gomez, who stepped on second to double Orta and tagged Jim Spencer coming down from first for the third out.

Galveston captures tournament

from scoring on two other occasions.

Sims led off the seventh with a triple up the power a alley in right and scored on an error by Pam Raughton to make it 2-1. Culligan bunted safely for a base hit and Mimi McLemore, playing for the injured Sam McCormick, was safe on a fielder's choice. Gail Mazzantini singled and Labardini followed with a two-run double, making it 4-1. Two more runs scored on errors as the Islandettes were nailing down the big first place trophy with the rally.

Beverly Posey led things off for in the bottom of the seventh with a single and promptly stole second, but after a walk with one out to Pack, pinch-hitter Brenda Jackson, hit into a double play to end the game.

Galveston placed four players on the all-tourney team. They included Theresa Seigle, Mazzantini, Sims and Peggy Haardt. Sims was also named Most Valuable Player of the tourney.

Other all-tourney players included Dana Potts of Nederland; Posey, Bredna Wooldridge, Debbie Weems and Pack of Stephenville; Barbara Estep of Nederland along with Norma Stegall and Patty Cavnor of the Midland Chargers.

Snuff Ridge of Cleveland won the Sportsmanship Trophy while individual trophies were given to the members of the winning more Galveston team.

Stephenville eliminated the Midland Chargers, 7-4, Sunday morning while Galveston knocked out Nederland's L&L Ice Blues, 5-4, in an exciting contest, to move into the finals against Stepnenville.

Midland trailed 7-1, going into the bottom of the seventh and scored three runs, but the rally fell short. Karen Templeton of Midland, had the only extra-base hit of the game — a double.

The Chargers beat Odessa VFW, 12-6, in a late game Saturday and also blanked the Texas Brewers from Conroe, 2-0.

New putter, contacts give Susie Keystone

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A new putter and new contact lenses gave defending champion Susie Berning the edge and a par 72 to win the $50,000 Lady Keystone Open.

It was her first title since the Lady Keystone last year, and her first Ladies Professional Golf Association victory since the U.S. Open in 1973. 4

Mrs. Berning, from Crystal Bay, Nev., topped the field Sunday by three shots as she posted a 54-hole total of one-underpar 215 at the 6,222-yard Sportsman Club course.

Pat Bradley, of Westford, Mass., and Sandra Haynie of Dallas, Tex., tied for second at 218. Miss Bradley birdied the final two greens for a 72 while Miss Haynie, the first day leader, shot a final round of 73.

"The new contact lenses made a tremendous difference," said Mrs. Berning who has had vision problems for some time. A Harrisburg optometrist fitted her late Saturday night. "They gave me good depth perception and everything was much clearer."

After losing two shots to par with a 37 on the front nine, Mrs. Berning birdied the 12th and 18th holes for a two-under 35 on the closing side.

"The 12th hole was the one that motivated me," she said. "I punched a four iron out of the rough and ran down about a twelve-foot putt for the birdie."

In putting together rounds of 72-71-72—her three best of the year—she three-putted only one green and didn't have a double bogey for the tournament. Mrs. Berning said her chipping and putting was the big difference.

In Saturday's second round, Mrs. Berning used her new putter just 29 times to pull ahead of the first round leaders.

Colts win Lubbock tourney

LUBBOCK — The Midland Colts downed the Lubbock Zs, 10-7, Sunday night in the finals of the Western Regional NBC Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament at Lowrey Field.

The Colts, with an 18-1 season record, went undefeated in five tourney games and now advance into the State Semi-Pro Tournament beginning Thursday in Corpus Christi.

Midland faces Houston's Carl Young team in the opening round of the state meet.

Righthander Randy Blanscett went all the way on the mound for the Colts in scattering six hits. Both teams made six errors in the title game.

Midland broke open a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the fifth with a six-run outburst. Two errors opened the gates for the Colts with Lupe Perez, Blanscett and Mike Hurt, getting base hits to knock in runs.

Blanscett had a single and double to pace the 10-hit attack.

Gary Holub was the losing pitcher for Lubbock.

No Tarzan stuff for John Naber

MONTREAL (AP) — Someone suggested to John Naber that he follow an Olympic swimming star of anot'er era, Johnny Weismuller, into the movies as Tarzan.

"Noooooooo!" boomed the 6- foot-6 American giant Sunday in a deep voice, beating on his chest as if to emulate the movie hero.

Naber, winner of four gold medals in the 1976 Olympics, insisted, "I'm going to finish college, not because I owe the University of Southern California, but because that I'd like to do. I will not cash in on the Olympics.

"I've thought of acting. It's very glamorous. I'd like to do it as a one-shot deal. I'd like to do a commercial. But I don't want to close the door on other things.

"I WANT to go into public relations. Image work. Run up a flag and see who salutes. Maybe a corporation. No, not with my dad. That would be taking a job on a silver platter."

Naber, whose father, Phil, owns a consulting firm in Menlo Park, Calif., realizes he will pay a price for winning golds in the backstrokes and the relays.

"My privacy has all been shattered in six days. It's gone. I hate it," he said.

"I will try to lead a normal being's life," Naber said with a little smile. "But all my friends will be over to see the medals. The press will be after me. So will autograph hounds.

"Last night I went out to eat with my parents. I hadn't been seated for five minutes and over came an autograph seeker," he said.

Still, Naber has schooled himself to avoid the pitfalls that consumed Mark Spitz, winner of a record seven golds in the 1972 Olympics.

"I hope I don't alienate anybody. I'm not Spitz. He earned a bad press, but he did not deserve it. He stuck his foot in his mouth. He wasn't prepared for the press," said Naber.

THIS YEAR'S Olympiad hero is.

"I work on the school newspaper. I know the hot news," he said.

Naber was told Spitz, here as an American television commentator, was accompanied by two bodyguards.

Naber laughed. "For security, they spent $28,000 here on me, on every athlete in the village."

Is he afraid of terrorists? "No one would hold me for ransom. No one would pay it."

Naber used his college major, psychology, to overcome the immense pressure in his bid for five Olympic medals. He won a silver in the 200-meter freestyle.

"I survived the pressure," he explained, "because the only pressure I had was from myself. I tuned off all that talk of five gold medals.

"If I'm up for a race, I don't get scared. There's nothing to be afraid of. I compete against the clock, nothing else. God loves me, win, lose or draw."

Naber suggests, too, that the unity of the 27 American men swimmers was a big assist.

Sports in brief

OLYMPICS

MONTREAL — Edwin Moses, winning the 400-meter hurdles in 47.64 seconds, and Mac Wilkins, winning the discus with a throw of 221 feet, got the United States' first track and field gold medals of the 1976 Olympics.

FOOTBALL

CANTON, Ohio — Jim Taylor, the great Green Bay Packer running back of the 1960s, Ray Flaherty, head coach of the Washington Redskins during the 1930s and early 1940s, and the late Len Ford, an outstanding offensive star in the All-America Football Conference, were inducted into pro football's Hall of Fame.

GOLF

WINDSOR, Ont. — U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate fired a final round 63 for a 13-under-267 and a four-stroke victory over Jack Nicklaus in the $200,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Defending champion Susie Berning held on to her crown in the $50,000 Lady Keystone Open with a closing 72 for a 54-hole total of 215 and a three-stroke margin of victory.

OSAKA, Japan — Hisako Higuchi, who led from the second round, carded a final round one-over-par 75 and won the 1976 Japan Ladies Professional Golfers Association championship by three strokes.

SHIZUOKA, Japan — Japan's Norio Suzuki captured the Shizuoka Open Golf Tournament, coming from behind with a five-under-par 67 to win by one stroke.

TENNIS

WASHINGTON — Top-ranked Jimmy Connors and No. 5 seed Raul Ramirez scored straight-set victories to breeze into the singles final of the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships.

HARNESS RACING

MONTICELLO, N.Y. — Oil Burner, $3.60, passed Atashy in the stretch and won the $300,000 Monticello Raceway-Off Track Betting Classic, the richest event in harness racing history.

HORSE RACING

NEW YORK — El Pitirre, $7.20, closed with a rush to take Aqueduct Race Track's $44,250 Tom Fool Handicap by a half-length over Nalee's Knight.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Fleet Dragoon, $7.60, scored a mild upset in the $160,750 Hollywood Juvenile Championship at Hollywood Park, beating Grey Moon Runner by 2¼ lengths.

U.S. steps up gold production

the exhausting 800 meters just an hour earlier. They were facing the broad-shouldered East German women, winners of all but one event.

AND THE American girls won it by the touch of Miss Babashoff's fingertips over the East Germans in world record time of 3 minutes, 44.82 seconds.

But it was the outspoken Miss Babashoff who provided the heroics. Only an hour after the 800 meters she came back to swim the anchor leg and just hold off East Germany's Claudia Hempel.

"I'm glad," Miss Babashoff sniffed with a glance toward the husky, powerful East Germans, "I'm glad I don't have to walk around my neighborhood looking like a guy."

Petra Thumer of East Germany had to swim a world record 8:39.63 to beat Miss Babashoff in the 800. Shirley was timed in 8:37.59 and Wendy Weinberg, Baltimore, was third in 8:42.

The American men, even more dominant than the East German women, reeled off two more in a string of victories that became almost routine.

Jim Montgomery, Madison, Wis., took the 100 freestyle in 49.99 and became the first man to crack 50 seconds. Jack Babashoff, Shirley's brother, was second in 50.81. Rod Strachan, Santa Ana, Calif., won the 400 individual medley in 4:23.68, another world record. Tim McKee, Newton Square, Pa., was second in 4:24.62.

In all, the American men won 12 of the 13 swimming events, set world records in 11 of them and accumulated 12 gold, 10 silver and 5 bronze medals in the strongest performance in the history of the Games.

They were kept from a sweep only by the victory of Scotland's David Wilkie over John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., Saturday night in 200 breaststroke.

Hencken's loss came just as the American team seemed on the verge of collapse with the East Germans and Russians taking advantage of one of America's worst days ever to run up a big lead in medals.

But track and field victories by the lanky, 6-foot-2 Moses and massive Mac Wilkins in the discus Sunday, turned it around for the U.S..

The 6-foot-4, 250-pound Wilkins, from Eugene, Ore., won the discus with a heave of 221- 5, well off his own record but good enough to win. Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany was second and John Powell, San Jose, Calif., third at 215-7.

Moses, who has been running the 400-meter hurdles for only a year, scored easily in world record time of 47.64 with delighted Mike Shine of Penn State second.

Alberto Jauntoreno of Cuba won the 800 meters with another world record, 1:43.50 and Rick Wohlhuter of Chicago was a disappointing third.

Annegret Richter of West Germany won the other track final, the women's 100, with a time of 11.08. Americans were shut out of medals in that one.

Tad Coffin, from Stratford, Vt., and Mike Plumb, Cheasapeake City, Md., finished one-two in the individual standings in the three-day equestrian and the Americans won the team title easily. Princess Anne of Great Britain finished 24th.

BATTLE SCENE

Angels tried to unload big salary

By TED BATTLES

A couple of weeks ago the California Angels contacted another major league club, whose manager was rumored in trouble, and made inquiries as to whether it would be interested in Angels' Manager Dick Williams.

The Angels already had decided that Williams would be dumped and former Texas League Manager Norm Sherry elevated to Anaheim from Salt Lake City.

However, the Angels didn't want to be stuck with paying off Williams' hefty contract, which still has a year and a half to run. It took until Friday before the Angels exhausted all possibilities and decided, stuck with Williams' contract or not, a change would have to be made for the sake of harmony in the clubhouse.

THE BEHIND the scenes manipulations in the Angels case makes us wonder if what we suspected about the Texas Rangers and Billy Martin might not be true.

In Billy's case, after being released by Detroit, the Tigers still were obligated to pay off his contract. As a result, when Texas hired Billy, Detroit was paying part of the tab.

When Detroit's obligation was nearing its end and Martin was having troubles getting the Rangers going last summer, the well-traveled Martin became expendable.

The suspicion is given further support by the reluctance of the Rangers to carry Ferguson Jenkins' big salary once he fell from the ranks of 20-game winners...

For Sherry, joining the Angels is like old home week. He managed most of his players at El Paso and later at Salt Lake City. There are a bunch of them, Jerry Remy, Dave Collins, Ron Jackson, Frank Tanana, Don Kirkwood, Sid Mongem, Bruce Bochte and Dave Chalk, all of whom played for him at El Paso.

UNLESS RON Farkas, batting .345 for El Paso, goes on a blistering batting streak in the final month, former Diablo Fred Frazier has already clinched the Texas League batting title.

When called up to Salt Lake City recently, Frazier was batting .369. He needed just five appearances to qualify for the batting title and even with those appearances will have a .363 average, which will be difficult to overtake...

Doug Clarke, 17, LaJolla, Calif., defeated Dr. Ed Updegraff, 54, Tucson, Ariz., in the finals of the recent Trans-Miss Golf Tournament. The tournament will be played in Midland next year.

Updegraff, incidentally, had eliminated Midland's Steve Whiteside in a first round match...

For the fan who asked: The Dallas Cowboys' home schedule this fall will be Philadelphia, Sept. 12; Baltimore, Sept. 26; Chicago, Oct. 24; New York, Nov. 7; Buffalo, Nov. 15 (monday night); St. Louis, Nov. 25 (Thursday) and Washington, Dec. 12.

Pate tries on Nicklaus' cloak

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Is Jerry Pate the next Jack Nicklaus?

There are many who would argue there may never be another golfer as good as Nicklaus — who has won 75 tournaments in his fabled career.

But the way Pate has blossomed as a rookie on the Professional Golfers' Association tour this year, one can't help but speculate.

Pate, the 22-year-old Floridian who won the U.S. Open last month, added the third national championship to his collection Sunday by running away with the $200,000 Canadian Open.

HE FIRED an Essex Golf and Country Club course record of seven-under-par 63 in his final round for a 13-under 267 total, beating Nicklaus by four strokes. The $40,000 top prize brought Pate's winnings to a rookie-record $128,482. He joined the tour last fall.

It was the fourth time Nicklaus was runner-up in the Canadian Open, the only national championship he hasn't won. Last year he lost to Tom Weiskopf in a sudden-death playoff.

Like Pate, Nicklaus won the U.S. Open as a rookie, in 1962. He is a two-time U.S. Amateur champion, a title Pate grabbed in 1974.

Connors Ramirez triumph

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexico's Raul Ramirez concedes that Jimmy Connors is one of the best players in the world but insists Connors is not as good as he used to be.

Ramirez gets a chance to test his theory tonight when he meets Connors in the finals of the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships.

Ramirez, the No. 5 seed, gained the final round with an easy 6-2, 6-2 victory over Brian Fairlie of New Zealand Sunday, while top-ranked Connors breezed to a 6-2, 6-1 triumph over Ray Moore of South Africa. Each match lasted only a little over one hour.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Plenty of familiar faces at coaching school

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

HOUSTON—After a long, hot summer with nary a football funble, the first day of the annual Texas High School Coaches Association meeting was a quick trip back to stark reality.

Grid coaches are all the same. They will never change. Despite it all, they are meeting here for the 44th time just as if they were going to learn something new.

Just one step into this hotel lobby Sunday produced at least three recognizable faces. First was Rankin's head master Dwayne Turner waiting to get a room, and just one step ahead with key already in hand was former Midland High coach John Reddell, who now toils for Trinity Eules. The third was San Antonio MacArthur boss Robert James, who just three years ago led Lamesa to the Class AAA semifinals.

After a sweaty summer and a short vacation to watch the sloppy Texas Rangers play, they were a welcomed sight in a lobby where madness reigned. But things are still the same with coaches.

Not one of them would predict a championship this fall. But then again, coaches own that trait in seamy saneness. They don't like to carry a monkey on their back.

Writers often have had to sift through mountains of pessimism in order to find the truth, that is if there is any truth to be found. In the case of these three coaches, however, their tales of woe may have some basis.

At least, their peers didn't pick any of the three to win crowns in 1976. The coaches released their preseasonfpoll Sunday to the press.

Reddell's Trinity squad was rated fourth in District 6-4A while James' crew was rated third in 32-4A. Turner drew a second place nod in 6-A while Iraan was picked to repeat as the kingpins.

"I don't really know what to expect," Reddell said. "We will just have to line up and see what happens. We got a lot of things done this spring, but this is still anew ball game with me," added the former Bulldog mentor.

With that, Reddell disappeared into a cool room while I was left standing in line.

"Iraan and Marfa should win our district," Turner said after blerting out a quick "We will always be tough."

McCamey, which will be in Rankin's district this year was not mentioned in the top four, so the Badgers will have their work cut out for them.

I saved District 5-4A to this point since nothing is new. The coaches, along with everyone else, say Permian will reign. San Angelo, Cooper and Midland High follow in order while Midland Lee's Rebels were ignored. That's alright though, since Lee Coach Jim Acree probably doesn't want the spotlight until the end of the season anyway. Midland High's new leader, Jerry Hopkins, is probably picked higher than he would like. After all, Reddell was picked seventh in his last season at Midland High.

In other area circles, Reagan County is picked to finish behind Wall in the 9-A maiden voyge while Stanton is picked behind Plains and Seagraves in 5-A.

Lamesa is tagged with a fourth place finish in 3-AAA behind Snyder, Lubbock Estacado and Lake View while the biggest surprise came in 2-AAA where Andrews is expected to battle Pecos for the crown.

Crane, the defending 7-AA champion, didn't get any respect for 1976 as the coaches went with newcomer Kermit and Sonora as the favorite favorites.

Actually, none of the coaches I talked with Sunday came up with any big quotes. The quote of the day had to come from Don Oliver, Sports Information Director at Baylor.

Don calmly said "I was glad to see Arkansas win the conference last year. Everybody was getting bored seeing Baylor and Texas dominate the Cotton Bowl."

And to think that this madness continues through Friday.
