Quake jars Alpine

ALPINE — A small earthquake that struck just before noon Sunday was an aftershock to a stronger tremor that shook the area seven months ago, a government geophysicist said. The tremor, which had a magnitude of 3.6, hit about 11:45 a.m. No injuries or damage were reported, said Alpine Police Sgt. Harold Frahm. The epicenter was 20 miles east-southeast of Alpine, which was rocked by a 5.6-magnitude quake on April 4, the strongest tremor to hit Texas in more than 60 years. Sunday's quake was another of many aftershocks since, said Stewart Koyanagi, a geophysicist for the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

A gnawing fear

HALF MOON BAY, Calif. — "The water does not belong to human beings," says the man who keeps count on how many Americans are attacked by sharks each year. No, the water belongs to the sharks — and more and more sharks are staking their claims to the deep by taking a bite out of divers, surfers and others who invade their surf. "Jaws" notwithstanding, fatalities are rare. But the attacks still puzzle marine biologists, who are trying to determine why sharks strike — and why they don't./5A

Neither side blinks as shutdown looms

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Chances of averting a partial shutdown of government Tuesday faded on Sunday, while prospects for avoiding a default on government bonds in the near future brightened considerably.

To keep the full government open after midnight today, President Clinton and Republicans who control Congress would have to agree on a bill to extend the government's power of discretionary spending temporarily. Otherwise, about one-third of federal spending would grind to a stop and 800,000 civilians who report

But Clinton didn't accept suggestions from House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., on TV interview shows that he call them and negotiate personally over details of such a bill.

He didn't like their conditions:

Exclude congressional Democrats from the negotiations and agree in advance to balance the budget in seven years using congressional economic assumptions rather than the administration's.

The Republicans then turned down an invitation to meet today in the White House with Clinton. The Republicans didn't like his conditions: Let congressional Democrats sit in, and strip an increase in Medicare premiums from their bill before discussing what other changes would be required.

Reports: Israeli security admits failure to heed warning of plot

N.Y. Times News Service

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israel's domestic security agency was warned five months ago that a man fitting a detailed description of Yitzhak Rabin's assassin was plotting to kill the prime minister.

The reported disclosure on Sunday by Shin Bet, an organization comparable to the FBI and U.S. Secret Service, appeared to be another example of a weakness in Israel's vaunted security network responsible for protecting its leaders.

The official seven-day mourning period for Rabin ended Sunday as the largest gathering in Israel's history assembled Sunday night for a final, emotional farewell.

A somber crowd estimated at more than 250,000 people, many carrying candles and shedding tears, flocked to the downtown square where Rabin was shot and killed at a peace rally eight days earlier. The plaza was renamed for the prime minister while his widow, Leah Rabin, urged the "silent majority" who support peace "to be silent no more."

Gap in Alamo diary stirs authenticity flap

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Researchers have found a previously unknown chapter of a controversial account of the Battle of the Alamo.

The account is contained in the memoirs of Jose Enrique de la Pena, a Mexican army officer who participated in the charge up the mission's north wall during the famous 1836 battle.

The newly discovered account, found in the archives of the University of Texas at San Antonio, appears to be dramatic record of the Mexican brigade's retreat after the Alamo battle.

According to the one-week account, soldiers were dying of starvation.

Many doctors would deny care to babies with HIV, survey finds

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of doctors say they would recommend withholding expensive medical care from babies born to HIV-infected mothers even when they didn't know if the baby actually had the AIDS virus.

Most babies born to HIV-infected mothers do not develop the virus.

The findings, reported in Sunday's American Journal of Public Health, are "shocking," said Arthur Ammann of the Pediatric AIDS Foundation.

New York researchers studied 951 neonatologists nationwide to determine how they would treat newborns who had such expensive-to-treat conditions as kidney or heart disease in addition to being born to HIV-infected mothers.

Some 700 neonatologists said they would recommend withholding certain aggressive treatments, such as cardiac surgery or kidney dialysis, from babies who definitely have HIV. And 400 of the doctors said knowing the mother was infected would alter their treatment decisions even if the baby's own HIV tests weren't complete.

The doctors were surveyed in 1991, and there is no way to know whether their opinions have changed, acknowledged the study's author, Betty Wolfer Levin of the City Uni-

Serbs sign over last Croatian land to government

ERDUT, Croatia (AP) — Rebel Serbs agreed Sunday to submit the last of their holdings in Croatia to government authority, resolving a dispute that threatened to derail U.S.-led talks in Ohio on peace for the Balkans.

"This is a historic signing," U.S. Ambassador Peter Galbraith said. "For the first time in this conflict an issue has been solved by a signature and not by a bullet."

The agreement, signed in this Serb-held town in eastern Croatia and witnessed by Galbraith and chief U.N. envoy Thorvald Stoltenberg, also averted the imminent threat of more fighting.

Croatian troops in May and August recaptured most Serb-held territory taken in a 1991 war, sending about 180,000 Croatian Serbs fleeing to Bosnia and Serbia.

Croatia threatened to attack the remaining bit of Serb-held territory, known as eastern Slavonia, if rebels refused to accept the plan for its reintegration.

Such an attack on the territory, which borders Serbia, could have drawn in the Serb-led Yugoslav army, leading to renewed war and a collapse of Bosnian peace talks at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

The agreement to reintegrate eastern Slavonia under Croatian sovereignty was a major step toward peace, President Clinton said.

"I congratulate the parties for the wisdom they have shown in entering into this agreement and avoiding renewed conflict," Clinton said.

ment's lead negotiator signed for Croatia.

The Croatian government and rebel Serb leaders had agreed Oct. 3 on basic principles for the return of the territory, but remained at odds over how that would be done.

Serbs wanted a three-year transition period and U.N. monitoring. Croatia insisted on no more than one year and wanted a NATO presence, similar to that which would enforce peace in Bosnia.

The agreement calls for a one-year transitional period that can be extended to two if requested by either side. It asks the U.N. Security Council to create an interim administration for the area and deploy troops to maintain peace, but does not specify the composition of those forces.

The 14-point agreement was finalized in Dayton during talks between Croatian President Franjo Tudjman and Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, negotiating on behalf of rebel Serbs in Croatia and Bosnia, sources said.

Hrvje Sarinic, who signed for the Croats, said the agreement paved the way for "full normalization of relations between Croatia and Serbia." The two have never restored ties broken in the 1991 war.

"Today's agreement was the best we have been offered so far," said chief Serb negotiator Milan Milanovic. "Our conditions were to prevent war and to prevent people from fleeing the area. We asked for U.N. administration and we got it."

The accord also promises human rights will be respected and provides for the return of tens of thousands of Croats who fled eastern Slavonia during the 1991 war.

The agreement also gives anyone who moved to the area from other parts of Croatia the right to remain — a reference to ethnic Serbs who fled Croatian army offensives last spring and summer and resettled in eastern Slavonia.

It also guarantees the right of return for property confiscated or abandoned by force and the right of compensation for property which cannot be returned.

Agricultural free trade to be big point of contention at summit

GOGELDRIE FARM, Australia (AP) — Reg Hinton grows rice on the wide-open plains of Australia's Outback. Yasuhide Ishibashi's small family farm lies just 50 miles from the urban sprawl of Tokyo.

They are at opposite reaches of the Pacific — and an ocean apart on how farming fits into a bold plan to create the world's largest free-trade group early in the next century.

At the annual Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation summit beginning Thursday in Osaka, Japan, the 18 member nations are supposed to come up with solid commitments for achieving open markets. But agricultural trade will be a main point of contention.

Big growers like the United States, Australia and Canada are pressing to be allowed to sell more farm products in the lucrative Asian market.

Farmers in Japan, South Korea and Taiwan, meanwhile, fear further erosion of the government protectionism that is as much a way of their life as tending their small, muddy fields.

Farmers like Ishibashi already feel betrayed by the Japanese government's 1993 agreement to end market rules that effectively banned foreign rice.

"Free trade is definitely a disadvantage for Japanese farmers," he said in an interview. "It's a threat."

Ishibashi's 50 acres, which he farms with three others, yields a rice so high in quality that he was allowed to present some last year to the royal family.

His operation is heavily subsidized — the amount varies from one year to the next — but he says it is still tough to make a living.

While the price of rice drops, the price of equipment is rising," he said.

Japanese rice sells for about five times the world-market price, but even with cheaper foreign rice now available, many picky Japanese customers remain loyal to homegrown products.

Farmers like Hinton are trying to change that. Australia has painstakingly cultivated varieties of rice developed specifically to appeal to Japanese consumers, although Japan still sharply restricts market access.

Like many Australians, Hinton thinks farmers everywhere simply have to get in there and compete on open markets.

"If we are going to reform trade, then agriculture has to be part of that," he said, feet planted in mud, with brushflies buzzing around. "It's common sense and good economics."

Tens of thousands of Australian farmers and ranchers operate without government aid or subsidies. Except for quarantine regulations, there is no protection from imported farm products — and Hinton likes it that way.

"The last thing we want to do is get the government involved," Hinton said over the screech of cockatoos in the shady scrub. "It would mess up the industry."

Documents mark 3rd time confidential papers obtained during Whitewater probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early in the Whitewater affair, a White House lawyer obtained confidential documents from a key facet of the investigation, hastily returning them after the Justice Department launched a probe to determine how presidential aides used the material.

For five or six days in mid-November 1993, then-Associate White House Counsel Neil Eggleston had a report that detailed a series of defaulted federally backed loans by David Hale, a Little Rock judge who was emerging as a central figure in Whitewater.

The report by the Small Business Administration triggered a criminal investigation of Hale, who was indicted just two months before the White House obtained the information from the SBA, according to documents reviewed by The Associated Press.

At the time, Hale was alleging publicly that he had been pressured in 1986 by Clinton, then the Arkansas governor, to make an improper SBA-guaranteed loan of $300,000 to the Clintons' Whitewater partners.

The loan, which was never repaid, is at the heart of Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr's criminal investigation. Hale has since pleaded guilty to federal charges, and is Starr's most important cooperating witness.

Three people familiar with the matter, including a White House source, said Sunday that Eggleston obtained the documents after being told by his boss, counsel Bernard Nussbaum, to look into the fact that the SBA was about to turn over material on Hale's company to Congress. All three sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

Eggleston's actions mark the third known time the White House has obtained confidential information from an ongoing investigation of Whitewater.

Last year, senators broadly criticized the White House for obtaining confidential information in 1993 from a savings and loan criminal investigation of the Clintons' Whitewater business partners.

And just last week, the Senate Whitewater Committee criticized the White House for obtaining sensitive depositions from a Treasury Department ethics probe into Whitewater.

Eggleston is scheduled to testify Tuesday before the Senate Whitewater Committee about getting the documents from the SBA and what he did while he had them. Also scheduled to testify are deputy White House counsel Bruce Lindsey and former associate White House counsel William Kennedy.

When he returned the report to the SBA on Nov. 21, 1993, Eggleston said he had copied an attachment to the report detailing Hale's various loans, but insisted he had "shredded" the copy.

"Mr. Eggleston also said that he did not want to do anything inappropriate," according to a memo written by a Justice Department lawyer. "He had sought the documents because he wanted to track what was going on between the SBA and the Hill and did not want to be surprised by leaks from the Hill."

According to internal FBI and Justice Department documents reviewed by the AP, the SBA's top attorneys gave the confidential material to the White House on Nov. 16 or 17, 1993 without telling anyone at the law enforcement agencies.

At the time, the FBI and the first Whitewater prosecutor, Justice Department attorney Donald Mackay, were looking into Hale's accusation about being pressured by Clinton.

The SBA compiled a report containing the information on Hale's loans for House Small Business Committee Chairman, John LaFalce. Eggleston "requested a copy of the full report" that had been "delivered to Mr. LaFalce," states an FBI summary of how the White House obtained and returned the Hale documents.

"This is a classic case of no harm, no foul play," White House spokesman Mark Fabiani said Sunday. "The Department of Justice investigation of the SBA matter was pursued vigorously and successfully, and the documents, which had already been turned over to Congress, were returned as soon as the Justice Department objections were made known."

Atlantis closes in on Russian space station Mir

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Atlantis and its crew dashed after the Russian space station Mir on Sunday, drawing closer and closer for a tricky — and risky — docking.

When Atlantis catches up to Mir on Wednesday, it will be the first time a shuttle is used in station assembly, providing NASA with much-needed experience for building an international space station.

Canadian astronaut Chris Hadfield's children, ages 9, 10 and 12, were excited for their dad, making his first space trip. They had their own big plans, though. They were going to Disney World.

"He gets his trip, we get ours," explained Hadfield's wife, Helene.

She described her husband as "happy, happy, happy."

"He sent me a note that was supposed to be given to me after we couldn't see him anymore, and in there it said you just know if you watch that little dot (rising shuttle) that what you see is the sun off my teeth because I'm smiling so big," she said.

Atlantis and the five astronauts began their voyage at 7:30 a.m., punching through low clouds on their way to orbit.

Until the last few minutes of the countdown, it seemed as though the clouds over the launch pad and bad weather at the shuttle emergency landing strips overseas would delay liftoff for the second day in a row. But NASA decided the clouds posed no obstruction, and the sky cleared just in time at two touch-down sites in Spain.

Mir was soaring over the Indian Ocean when Atlantis blasted off. By midday, the two Russians and one German on Mir still had not been informed of the shuttle launch — at least officially — because the station has long periods out of communication range with Russia's Mission Control. They sought confirmation via ham radio.

The first major step of the 245-mile-high rendezvous comes Tuesday, when Hadfield uses the shuttle robot arm to move the docking port into position for the next day's linkup with Mir.

This Russian-made port — essentially a 15-foot tunnel with latches on either end — will be left behind on Mir to make the following five shuttle dockings safer and easier to accomplish.

The AccuWeather® forecast for noon today.

Look for a sunny, mild, mid-70s day

Staff Report

Today's forecast is mostly sunny with a high in the low to mid-70s, and winds northeast to east 5-15 mph. Service southeast late in the day, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

STATE

Sunshine and southerly breezes helped Texas recover Sunday from a freezing night to record highs in the Panhandle-Plains. The mercury rebounded into the 60s to 80s with readings at 3 p.m. ranging from 63 degrees in Beaumont and 64 in Longview to 86 in Childress and Lubbock.

NATION

Temperatures dipped to record lows Sunday from Indiana into Florida after a cold front rushed across the eastern states, accompanied by a line of storms that had wind gusting to 81 mph. South Bend, Ind., chilled to a record low for Nov. 12 of 15 degrees, two degrees off the previous record set in 1986.

Biologists study reasons behind shark strikes

By Richard Cole
Associated Press

HALF MOON BAY, Calif. — Out of the dark water below, a gaping circle lined with triangular two-inch teeth rises with blinding speed and clamps onto the unwary diver's leg.

And, just as suddenly, the terrifying incident is over: The shark lets go and swims away, leaving its victim to struggle to shore.

As surfing, sailboarding and diving multiply the number of humans splashing in the water along the U.S. coast, such attacks are increasing — this year, particularly on the East Coast.

"The water does not belong to human beings," says George Burgess of the University of Florida, who keeps the national shark attack count. "When you're entering the ocean, you're entering the wilderness. It's not jumping in your pool in the back yard."

But the attacks still puzzle marine biologists, who are trying to determine why sharks strike — and why they don't.

In 1995, according to Burgess' numbers, virtually all of the attacks have occurred on the East Coast. Florida has had the most, with 28 incidents as of early October, compared to 22 for all of 1994. Three- or four-foot black-tipped sharks are suspected in most of those attacks.

The Carolinas have recorded eight shark strikes, with Georgia and Texas each reporting one so far.

The West Coast lists three shark encounters, all in California and all believed to be great whites, the species made famous by the "Jaws" movies. In Hawaii, where tiger sharks are the usual culprits, a swimmer was killed last year, but the state has had only one attack in 1995.

No fatalities have been recorded in the United States this year. In fact, says Bob Lea of the California Department of Fish and Game Department, fewer than 10 confirmed shark attack deaths have been logged since the 1950s, when reliable statistics began to be kept.

"Jaws" aside, fatalities are rare — most are "hit and run" encounters, with the shark almost as eager to get away as its human prey.

"The sharks get an immediate understanding that they have bitten off more than they can chew — literally," Burgess says.

Marco Flagg, an experienced diver attacked at Point Lobos in Northern California in June, can attest to that. He sports the scars of a three-inch gash in his arm and a V-shaped puncture on his leg — 30 inches apart, and from the same bite.

"I looked to my left and below and saw the massive, wide open, near-circular, teeth-lined mouth coming right at me," Flagg says.

His air tank and an underwater computer absorbed most of the blow; after one chomp, the shark disappeared.

Marine biologists aren't sure why sharks attack in the first place, much less why they let go.

One of the nation's leading experts, Samuel Gruber of the University of Miami, estimates attacks are up about 20 percent this year. He thinks the increase in East Coast incidents can be blamed on the unrelenting series of tropical storms and hurricanes. That makes better wind and surf conditions and puts more people in the water near the offshore sandbars where fish — and sharks — collect.

"There's also more turbulence in the water," he says. "So your white hand or foot can look like a fish."

In all three California attacks, the victims were on or near equipment such as boats, sailboards or water scooters. Some scientists believe the sea hunters mistake the oval shapes for their favorite food — seals and sea lions.

But not everyone agrees.

"We've seen them attack a 12-foot sailboard," Lea says. "That isn't going to resemble a marine mammal. We think that case was territorial." Sharks also have repeatedly bitten at small boats unlikely to be confused with a sea lion.

Peter Klimley, a shark researcher at Bodega Marine Laboratory north of San Francisco, thinks sharks simply have a bite-first, ask-questions-later attitude.

Territoriality, mistaken identity or a bite-everything feeding strategy may explain why the sharks clamp down in the first place. But why don't they finish off their human meals once they've attacked?

Gruber says sharks may just prefer the odor and taste of seafood. Klimley, however, has come up with an intriguing theory: People might not be fat enough.

This Nov. 6, 1985, file photo shows shark researcher Peter Klimley with his Zodiac inflatable boat after it was bitten by a shark at one of the Farallon Islands, about 40 miles west of San Francisco in the Pacific.

Alexander perseveres with 1996 campaign despite poll numbers

Editor's note: This is part of an occasional series providing an update on the presidential candidates.

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Lamar Alexander relishes audiences like this — an auditorium full of students plying him with questions about tax reform, Bosnia, military spending and education.

Even a question about abortion — where the GOP candidate's position satisfies neither side — is tolerable. At least no one is asking about his paltry poll standings, or his fund-raising slump or why his name still draws blank looks after nearly two years on the hustings.

If there's one thing that grates on Alexander, it's people who look at early surveys and conclude his presidential campaign is doomed.

"I'm doing what you do to win a presidential race and I'm doing it the way it's always been done," he says.

For months, the plaid-shirted optimist has been doggedly stumping senior centers and Rotary clubs, offering himself as the best alternative to GOP front-runner Bob Dole.

As he walks across New Hampshire in his gimmicky lumberjack shirt, Alexander's name identification and favorability ratings have increased, his aides say.

"He's doing a good job of walking anyway," an elderly woman offered when he visited the Upper Valley Senior Center in Lebanon.

But after spending nearly $8 million on early organization and advertising, Alexander has tapped out his fund-raising base and is still fighting to get his message out.

Among GOP primary voters nationally, Alexander runs about fifth, according to polls. He says the national surveys are meaningless because of his low name recognition across the country.

His is a three-state strategy — New Hampshire, Iowa and Florida, where strong performances could give him the credibility to become a contender in later primaries.

Long-time woman chief earns respect in small North Texas town of Muenster

By Jean Pagel

Associated Press Writer

MUENSTER — Helen Tompkins, a 59-year-old grandmother with big sunglasses and a low-key wave, sets out on Saturday patrol.

She rolls down Main Street and back alleys with an eye trained for broken windows, doors ajar, strange vehicles.

Familiarity with this North Texas town — where people live, what they drive, how they're related — comes easy after 14 years as Muenster police chief.

"Most of the kids know the first time I stop them I'll give them a break," Tompkins said. "I tell them this one's on me. The next one's on you."

Tompkins heads a three-person police force in a town of about 1,200 people. The Bowie housewife had experience as a telephone operator and a seamstress when she applied in 1980 for her first job in law enforcement.

She was hired as an officer and 11 months later became chief.

"Only in a small town would you get this chance," she said.

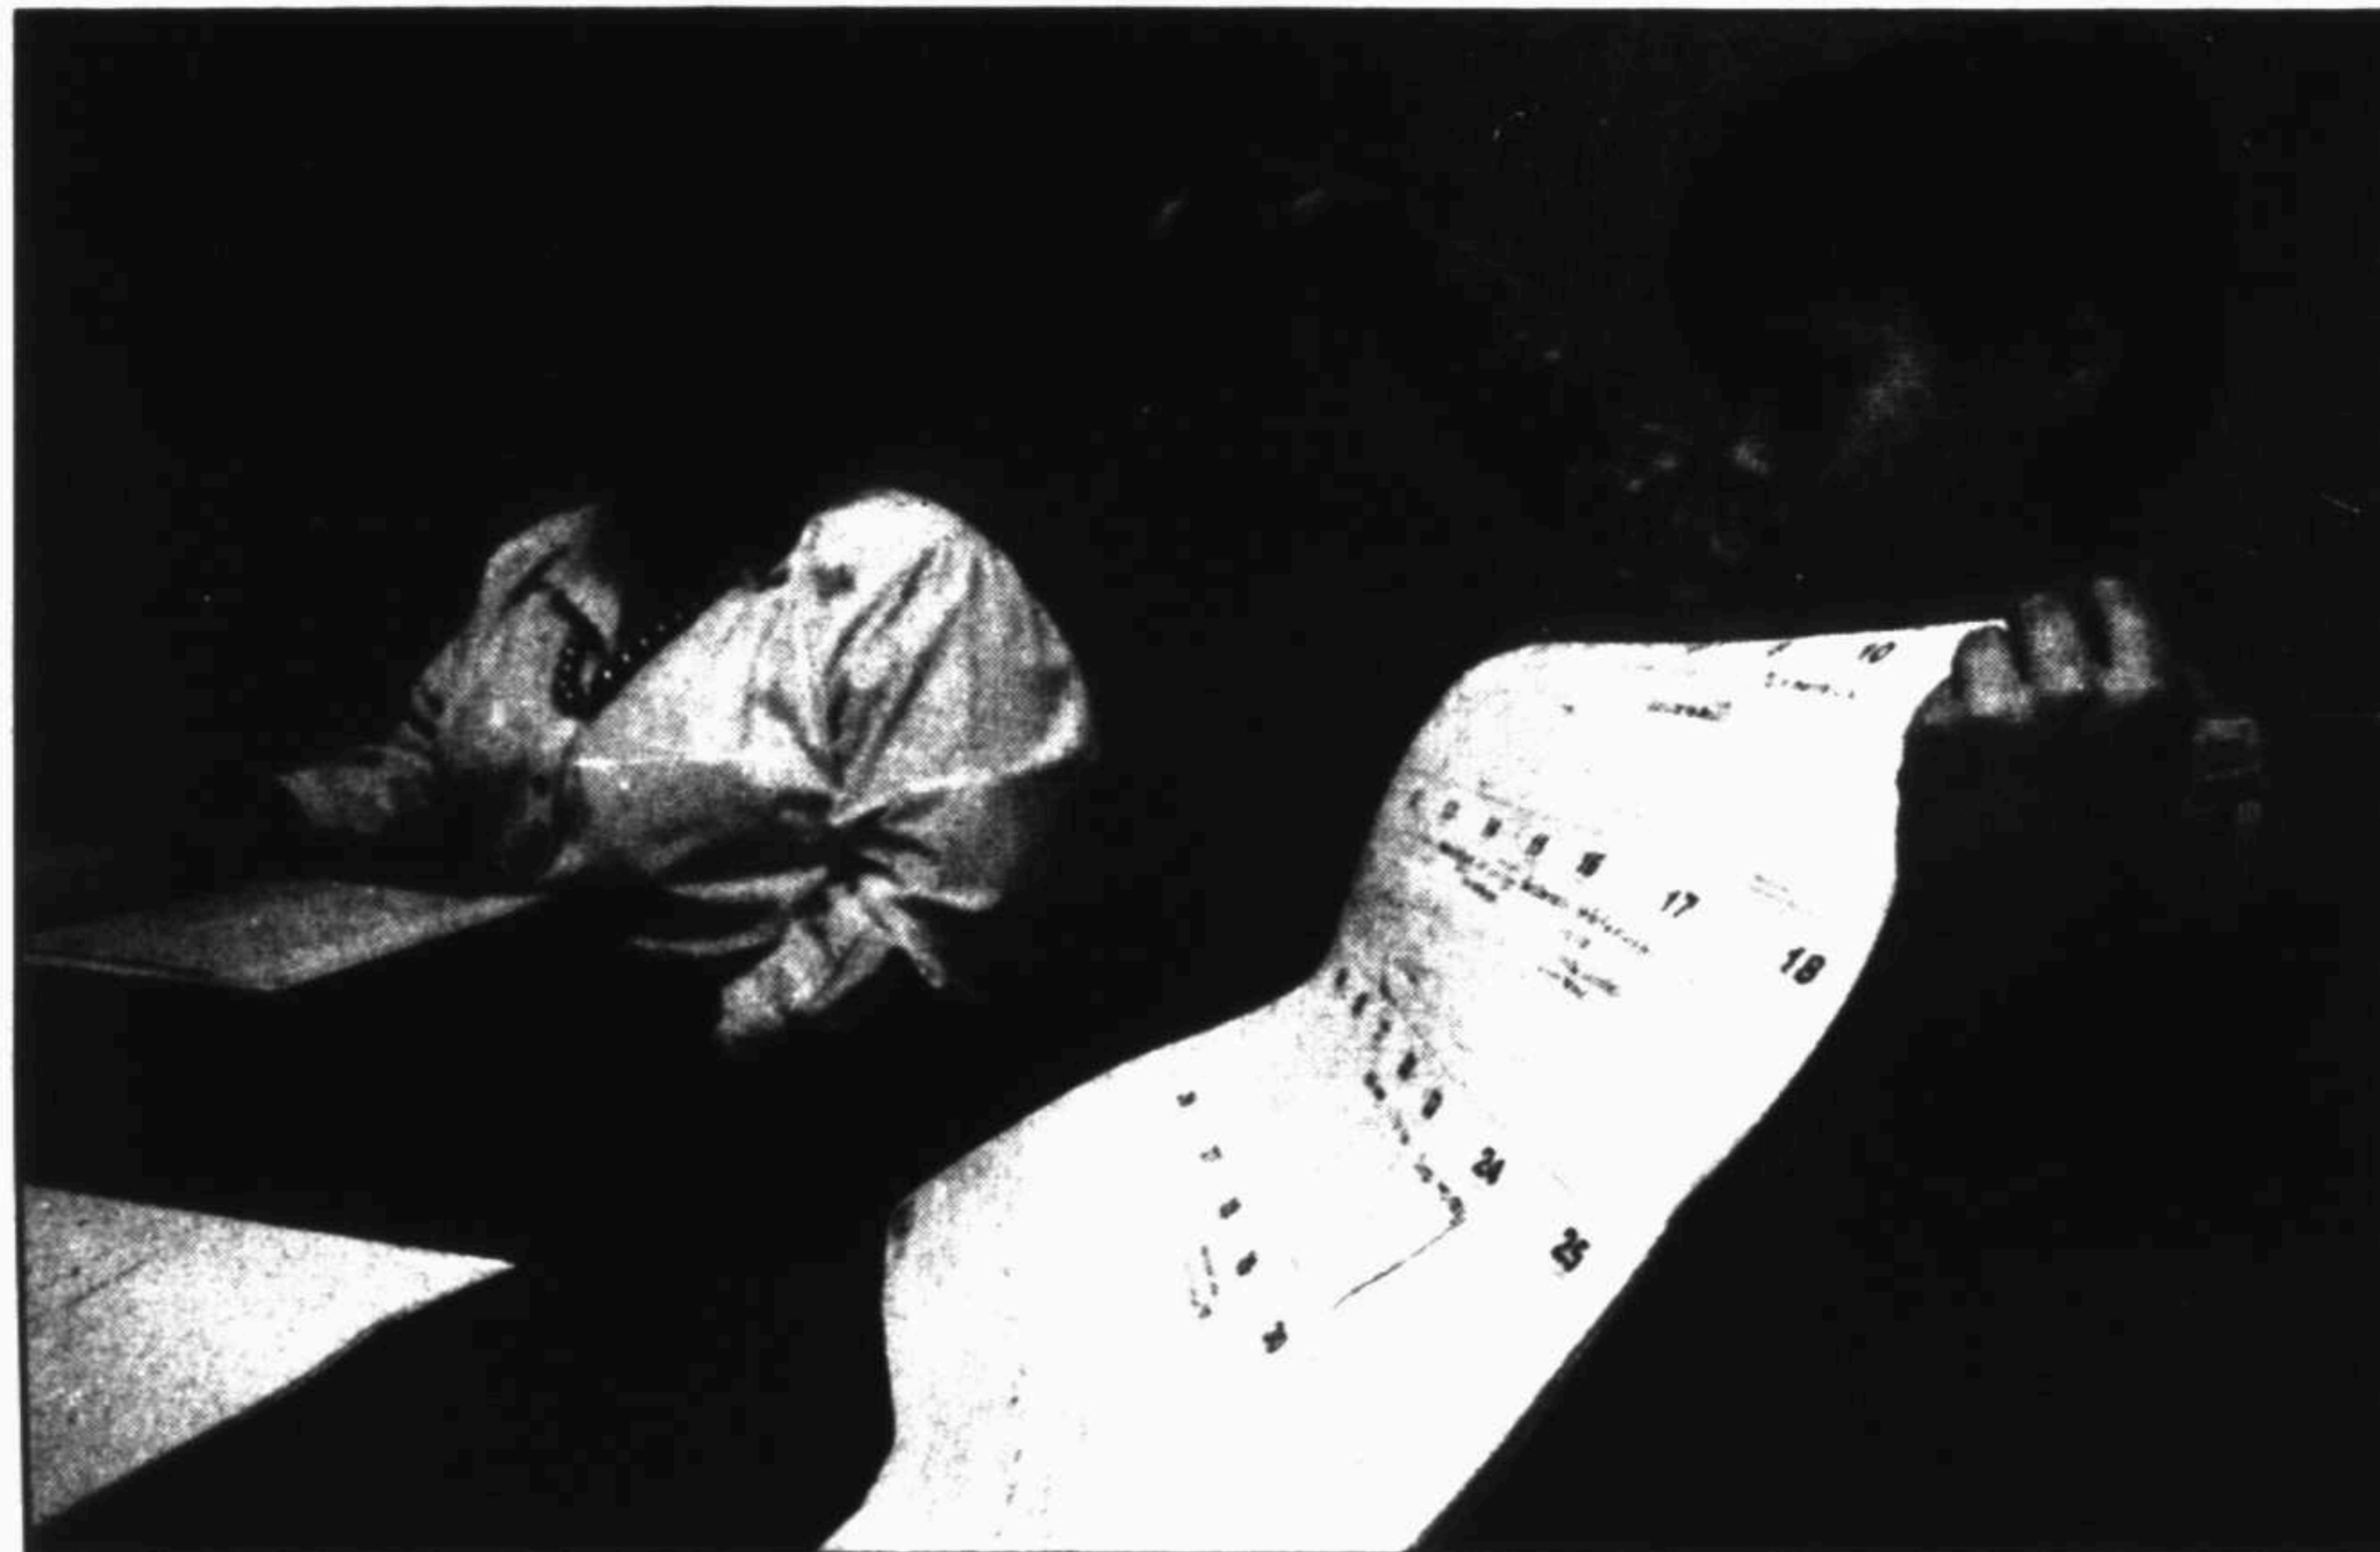

There are four women among about 770 police chiefs in Texas, according to June statistics from the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Observers say Tompkins has won respect through good rapport, fairness and leniency toward teen-agers. They also note that no-nonsense tactics play well for women in law enforcement.

"We have to prove ourselves, that we can do a job," said Cooke County sheriff's deputy June Kuykendall, who said Tompkins enjoys the respect of her male peers. "A man doesn't have to prove himself."

"The fact that she's female certainly hasn't been a liability because she's got that big flashlight in her back pocket if she needs anything," said Muenster Mayor Henry Weinzapfel.

Her jail is seldom used. And her biggest crime problems? Combative drunks, litterbugs and vandals on school grounds.

Jane Long Elementary School fifth-grader Mathew Martin, selected to be principal for the day, holds a large calendar during an early morning planning session with the real principal and assistant principal, Diane Locklar, the real principal's secretary looks on. Martin was reminding the group about an upcoming event.

'It's Mr. Martin today'

By Myra Lee Salcedo

Staff Writer

The principal wore tennis shoes. He immediately made it known that he wouldn't tolerate cussing or mischief. He also allowed that his favorite show is "Duck Tales" and that lunch hours ought to be longer for teachers and students.

"Hey, Matthew!" one student called out from a classroom.

"It's Mr. Martin today," said fifth-grader Matthew Martin who "took over" for Jane Long Elementary School Principal Adelita Carrasco for one day. Martin wrote the winning essay that won him the chief administrator spot for one school day.

"I think I will give you a day off and let me take over," Martin wrote in his persuasive essay, which also noted, "I am very strict about cussing."

The essay also said, "It's hard being a principal finding out that kids get hurt and you have to see what's going on and look at the yucky stuff."

Matthew's writing skills and attitude convinced Ms. Carrasco that Matthew was the student most suited to "replace" her.

"We had the essay competition to encourage writing skills," Ms. Carrasco said. "Matthew gave good reasons why he should be principal and supported those reasons, which were the writing skills we were looking for."

After reading the morning announcements,

Matthew took part in the school administration's weekly calendar planning session. "He asked questions about some of the events that were scheduled," said Long school secretary Diane Locklar. "You could see he was really proud to be doing this," she said.

During Matthew's short reign, Ms. Carrasco followed behind him while he checked on classrooms. He politely knocked on a classroom door before opening it. "That's good that you knocked before you opened it," Ms. Carrasco said.

Some students — upon seeing their peer as principal — giggled and hailed him, before their teacher calmed them down. "I saw a bunch of mischief and horsing around in there," Matthew said. "This is harder than I thought it was going to be."

Farther down the hall, Matthew pronounced one classroom's behavior as "excellent."

After Matthew mentioned that lunch hours ought to be longer for teachers and students, and noting that his parents would be visiting him for lunch, Ms. Carrasco said, "principals don't always get to eat lunch."

That somewhat soured Matthew on the job, but he said it was fun for one day.

When asked if he thought any of his friends would land in the principal's office for misbehavior while he was in charge, Matthew said, "No way. They don't want to have to mess with me."

Pupsicles a delicacy at eatery for tail wagggers

By Holly Becka

Associated Press

LAKE DALLAS — With its charming country-store atmosphere and butcher-style counters brimming with smoked gourmet specialties, the Merrick Delicatessen attracts all types of drooling customers.

Make that customers of the tail-wagging variety. Manager Jorja Merrick thinks it's just great.

Yes, this delicatessen is specifically for pets.

The 7-week-old deli is quickly carving a niche for itself in the North Texas area by offering one-of-a-kind, high-brow goodies for dogs. Some cat treats are available, but mainly the deli offers all things yummy for a dog's tummy. Of course, furry four-legged companions are always welcome.

"People come in and say this should be in the Galleria," Ms. Merrick said. "But we love this location. It's just wonderful here."

Deli decorations include dog wallpaper, framed photos of puppies and a wreath with star-and boot-shaped rawhide chewies. A "pet relief station," otherwise known as a fire hydrant, is in a grassy area outside the shop's door. And inside, where the deli features a range of smoked and refrigerated fare, it's Fido's wildest fantasy come true.

Among the refrigerated delicacies: "pupsicles" made of lamb, turkey or beef; sausages; meatballs; and meat patties. There's also every type of bone and chewie imaginable, including turkey feet and "mootubes" (esophagus and trachea).

Thank You Note

I just wanted to comment on the GREAT job that was done with the mowing of the area around the railroad tracks. This area really gets to be an eye sore when it is not mowed, and the person(s) who saw that this got mowed deserves a big thanks. Also, I'm sure that picking up the trash around the area that people throw out is not a fun job and it is too bad people litter this way.

Thanks again for helping to beautify Midland.

Bedsheet theft should be a household felony

You're fast asleep and in that mystical dreamy state. It's a nice enough dream about winning the lottery, and quite frankly you're enjoying your best night of sleep in weeks.

All of a sudden, you realize your toes are freezing. The next moment, you realize not only are your toes freezing, but your legs are freezing, too. Then, it occurs to you that the entire upper portion of your body is cold, along with your toes and your legs.

Then you realize that winning the lottery was only a dream and that when you wake in the morning, you'll be the same poor slob you were the day before.

Then you realize that not only are you still poor, but you're still cold, too. And it suddenly dawns on you why: Your wife has stolen all your covers.

Somewhere in some handbook that wives adhere to (and memorize early in life), it must be written that women of the opposite sex own some sort of patent on bed covers. Oh, they claim they never steal them, but they do. Every night from late October until sometime in mid-March you sleep with a common crook.

"I froze to death last night thanks to you," you begin your conversation over coffee the next morning.

She doesn't look up from her Dear Abby, or whatever it is women read in the newspaper every morning.

"I said I was freezing last night thanks to you!" you say again, still upset about being cold and not winning the lottery.

"What's a three letter word for 'contusion?'" she asks, ignoring your rantings entirely.

All wives have an intrinsic knack for bedsheet thievery. Well, I can't actually say first hand that ALL wives are prone to this bit of thuggery, but I can tell you I know of at least a couple. OK, OK, I know of only one for sure.

What's more, wives have an inbred ability to actually argue with you and defend themselves WHILE STILL ASLEEP against charges they've shanghaied your sheets.

Here's the typical scenario:

You wake up suddenly and realize three blankets are covering warm little ol' her. For you, you're lucky if you remembered to leave your bathrobe at the end of the bed so you can use it to cover up your freezing toes.

"Gimme some covers," you whine, politely of course.

She mumbles something incomprehensible.

"I'm cold, ... you stole the covers," you say.

"Not no way, not no how," she'll insist in her finest Snagglepuss voice, all the while still in a deep sleep.

"Well then how do you explain the fact that they're all lying on top of you?" you'll ask, trying to build your case and win your argument. Suddenly, you realize it's two in the morning and you're playing lawyer in bed. (Maybe I need to rephrase that. ... NAH!).

"Just gimme 'em, I'm cold," you demand.

"Fine, just take 'em!" she snaps back, giving you what's rightfully yours in the first place.

Fifteen minutes pass, your body temperature rises back to 98.6, and you've now re-entered the dream state. You are currently spending your lottery winnings on a Caribbean island.

Out of the blue, you suddenly hear her yell, "Gimme those covers back." Suddenly there's a big wind, a whooshing sound and a cold draft. You figure it's either a hurricane or your little Caribbean key or your thug-for-a-wife is hijacking the covers again.

At this point, there's only one thing to do to ensure you'll get your needed rest during what's left of the night: Just go sleep on the couch.

And don't forget to yank the covers off the bed as you tear out of the bedroom and, if you have a waterbed, crank the thermostat all the way down just for grins.

Lousy blowgun work in restaurant-bar competition earns prestigious 'Low Blow' award

Recently I was in a restaurant-bar called Taurus, which is in Coconut Grove, which is one of the more bizarre sections of Miami, which is definitely saying something, and I noticed that there were a lot of people there carrying blowguns.

One of the guiding principles in my life has always been: "Never hang around with people who have access to both mixed drinks and dart-shooting weapons." But these people seemed friendly, so I got to talking to them. It turned out that they were a blowgun league.

This was the idea of Leonard King, a professional artist and a Taurus regular (although, to be honest, the word "regular" does not really apply to anybody who frequents this establishment). King is also the man who came up with the idea of Clown Racing. The way that happened was, he was shopping in a discount store called MacFrugal's, and he found a battery-powered toy clown.

"The clown moved around erratically," said King. "It was a bumper-car type of clown. It was holding a balloon that lit up."

So he purchased 10 of them. He brought them to Taurus and staged Clown Racing, wherein the clowns were let loose on a table, and people bet on which one would be the first to get through a hoop. This was a big hit, and it gave King, who is always thinking, an idea.

"I was going to get 1,000 clowns and set up a hoop in the Miami Arena and race them for charity," he said. "But when I went back to MacFrugal's, they were out of clowns."

Some time later, King decided to purchase a blowgun, and for an excellent reason.

"I always wanted a blowgun," he said.

So he went to the Gun and Knife Show at the city of Miami Convention Center, which — this being Miami — hosts a Gun and Knife Show roughly every three weeks. There, King purchased (Why not?) 35 blowguns.

"I knew I could sell them," he said. And — this being Miami — he was right. Virtually all of the Taurus regulars wanted one. A typical example is Dan Ricker, a businessman, who said: "This was right after Hurricane Andrew. All my neighbors were armed, and all I had was a machete. So I upgraded to a blowgun."

Ricker, King and an eclectic, co-educational group of a dozen or so other blowgunners, mostly over 40, have been competing at Taurus every other Monday night for several years now. They set the targets up against a wall out front; this means they're blowing darts only a few feet away from the sidewalk. But they observe the rules of safe blowgunning (Rule No. 1: Do NOT inhale) and claim they've never hit anybody.

They use a variety of custom targets, including, one time, a pair of those foam heads that are used to style wigs.

"We had areas of the heads marked off," explained veteran blowgunner Corinne Smith. "You got 10 points for hitting the eye, and so on. At first people did really badly, because they were freaked out about shooting at body parts. But then everybody got comfortable with it."

The competition is generally low-key. Both weeks I was there, bands were playing in the bar; competitors, between turns, would wander inside and dance, sometimes still holding their blowguns. They also yell encouragement to other competitors. At one point, I swear, somebody yelled: "C'mon, Grimsley! Put a Robin Hood on that bull!" This was blowgun lingo: A "Robin Hood" is when you shoot a dart into the back of another dart; a "bull" is a bull's-eye; and "Grimsley" is a person named "Grimsley."

On my second visit to the blowgun league, I borrowed a gun and entered the competition. The blowguns are lightweight tubes maybe 40 inches long; the darts are basically long needles with plastic cones on the back end. When you blow a quick puff of air into the tube, the dart goes zipping out the other end very fast — PHHHHTTTTT — and flies straight and true directly into something other than the target. At least that's what my darts did. I have zero natural ability at this sport. I am the Elmer Fudd of blowgunning. There was no telling where my darts were going.

GOODYEAR BLIMP PILOT: Did you feel that?

GOODYEAR BLIMP CO-PILOT: Feel what?

GOODYEAR BLIMP: sssssssssssss

As it became clear how truly bad I was, I began to receive coaching from a guy there named Nick, who took blowgunning — there's always somebody like this — seriously. He'd stand off to the side, puffing on a cigarette, watching me spray darts randomly into the night; then he'd come up, put his arm on my shoulder, and give me advice.

"You're jerking!" he'd say, exhaling smoke directly into my ear. "You've got to relax! Don't worry about what the other people are saying."

"What are the other people saying?" I asked.

"Don't worry about it," he said. Nick's advice didn't work. It was just like when I was in Little League, and I'd be batting, and my coach, Mr. Parker, would yell: "Keep your eye on the ball!" I'd want to yell back: "No! I'm busy squinting!" But instead I'd just keep my mouth shut and strike out as quickly as possible.

Similarly, I shot my blowgun darts as fast as I could and retired to the bar. This turned out to be an OK strategy, because I wound up with the evening's worst score, which meant I won the "Low Blow" award, which meant I got $5, which is the most I've ever won in any kind of athletic competition. In fact, I plan to compete again, and next time I'll be using my own blowgun. Although, in the interest of public safety, I'm going to skip the darts.

Local Heating And Air Conditioning Dealer In Search Of Oldest Heating System... Will Replace it FREE!!!
 PERMIAN BASIN - Claire's Air conditioning and Refrigeration, "Your Comfort Professionals" is searching for the oldest operating A/C & Heating system in the Permian Basin. In celebration of their 8th Anniversary as a Carrier heating and cooling dealer, will award some lucky homeowner a new Carrier heating system. Tim Claire of Claire's, Inc., says, "Area residents are the reason we have grown and prospered over the last 9 years. Therefore, we would like to take this opportunity to make our customers a part of our celebration."
 Claire's is asking all Permian Basin residents to call 561-9440 if their unit has some age on it. Claire's states that they will come out and examine the system to see if it could be a candidate for the area's oldest unit. At the end of November Claire's will determine which system which qualifies is in fact the oldest. The owner of the oldest system will receive their new, high efficiency Claire's heating system absolutely FREE!
 Claire's says that even if your existing unit is not the oldest, you can still be a winner. The inspection of your system will tell you a lot about the status of it. Claire's will be able to make constructive recommendations that will benefit you, save you money in both energy costs and unexpected maintenance. Upgrading to a new Carrier high efficiency system will substantially lower your energy bills and you may also qualify for rebates as high as $500.00. This can be arranged at no money down, with no payment and no interest until May 1996.
 Claire's can't make this offer for a long period of time, so call today and receive your FREE, NO OBLIGATION Operational Cost Analysis of your present system. Call 561-9440 today!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Promising business opportunities arise thanks to your well-known diplomacy.

Nothing escapes your notice. CANCER (June 21-July 22): Although a delay may concern you, loyal supporters see hopeful signs.

extra consideration will reduce any tension due to the transfer. Romance again flourishes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An excellent work performance cannot be ignored. Showcase your talents to best advantage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Annoyance could overtake you if others, including your loved ones, impose on your good nature.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An aura of good luck surrounds your real estate dealings. Keep abreast of new trends in your field.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Focus on personal interests and priorities. A project in the planning stage could become a reality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Resist an urge to splurge on something you cannot afford.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Back up your intentions with an educational program. Cultivating powerful acquaintances will help you obtain new financial backing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Brooding over problems will only make them worse. Heed your intuition. The loose ends of your private life begin to come together.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Former classmates share interesting news. A child needs special help with a school project.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You cannot afford to be emotional now. Let your shrewd instincts help you separate money-making ventures from losing propositions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A move to a different location works to your advantage. Welcome a change of environment and new friends.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠10 ♥AQ10 ♦AKJ54 ♣AQ86

The bidding has proceeded: SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST 10 Pass 10 Pass

What do you bid now?

A - An already powerful hand has become even better because of your fit with partner. The only way to start describing this hand is to jump shift to three clubs.

Q. 2 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q873 ♥87 ♦KQ5 ♣9852

The bidding has proceeded: NORTH EAST SOUTH WEST 1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A - North's help-suit game try asks you to value your heart holding for game purposes. While not ideal, the heart shortness in conjunction with your four trumps to an honor is just good enough to accept. Bid four spades.

Q. 3 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Void ♥A72 ♦AK1097 ♣AQ1093

The bidding has proceeded: SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST 1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A - You have a very good hand, and there is a strong tendency to jump shift to three clubs. However, your void in partner's suit should raise a red flag. We prefer a more cautious two clubs for the moment. If partner shows any sign of life, you can bid strongly on the next round.

Q. 4 - As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A4 ♥A985 ♦AQ102 ♣Q104

Partner opens the bidding with three hearts. What do you respond?

A - Partner should have seven tricks at this vulnerability and it is easy to construct hands where you would be laydown for slam.

However, be content with a slightly conservative four hearts. Make one of our queens a king, and we would be a lot more aggressive.

Q. 5 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K6 ♥KQ10964 ♦AJ94 ♣6

The bidding has proceeded: SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST 1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A - There is no need to do anything other than complete the description of your hand. Bid three hearts to show 6-4 in the red suits and sound values, leaving the maximum room for further exploration without bypassing three no trump.

Q. 6 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

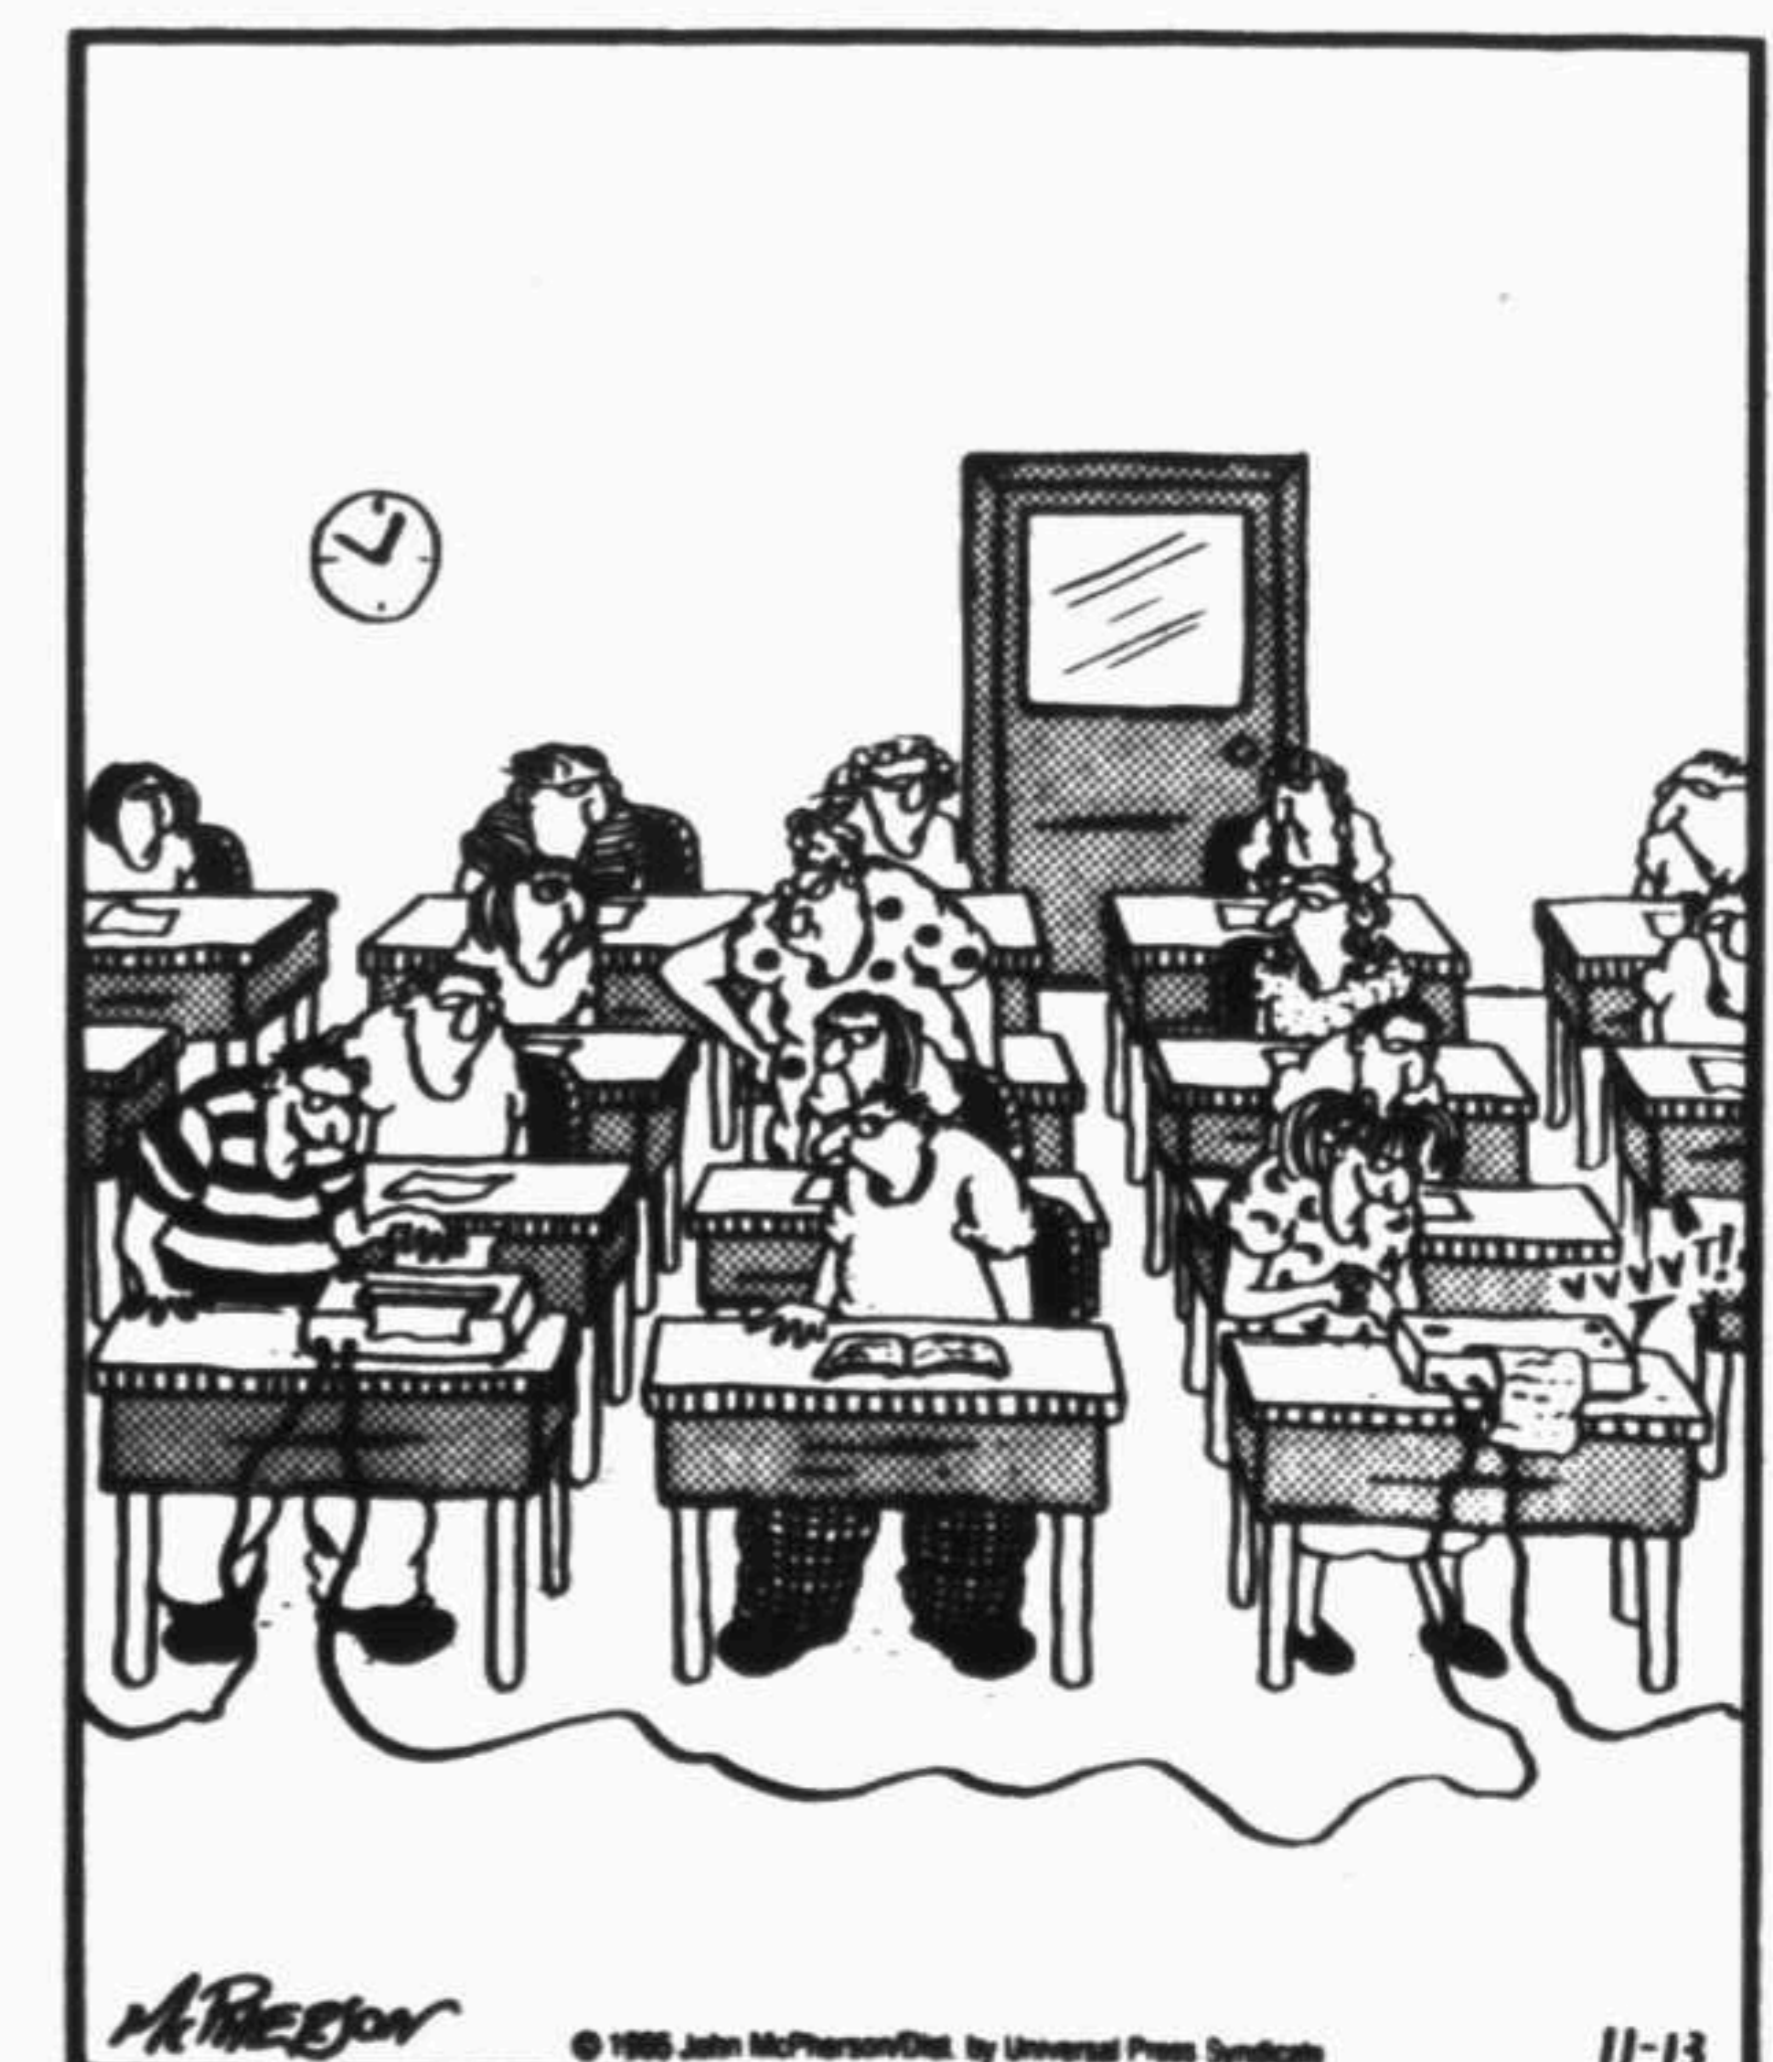

♠Void ♥KJ1976 ♦AK942 ♣K84

The bidding has proceeded: SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A - Only two bids come into consideration - to rebid your diamonds or raise partner's clubs. Since partner doesn't guarantee five clubs, the more sensible action is to describe your red-suit holding further by bidding three diamonds.

Seattle's Rice wins 'funniest mayor' contest by joking of rain-soaked city

LOS ANGELES — Seattle Mayor Norman Rice won a televised "Funniest Mayor" contest by joking about his rain-soaked city, comparing it to a moisturizing pad.

Mayor Norman Rice

In a videotaped routine on HBO's "Comic Relief VII" show Saturday night, Rice also manipulated his voice to gurgle as though he were speaking underwater. Rice poked fun at his city's environmentalist image too. After New York Yankees fans threw garbage onto the field during a playoff game against the Seattle Mariners, Rice said, Seattle fans sorted through the waste for recycling.

The victory, determined by an applause meter that measured audience approval, earned $7,500 for Seattle's Health Care for the Homeless program.

Second place brought $1,500 for homeless assistance to Newark Mayor Sharpe James. Baltimore's Mayor Kurt L. Schmoke came in third and took home $1,000.

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. — Just what does the heir to the British throne do all day? Prince Charles spends some of those regal hours painting.

Prince Charles

The Ronald Reagan Presidential Library will display 40 watercolors by Charles at a Nov. 18-Jan. 7 exhibit requested by former first lady Nancy Reagan.

Library spokeswoman Lynda Schuler says the prince has been sketching and painting landscapes for more than 20 years. "They're traditional watercolors, very light brush work," she said.

Proceeds from sales of a book and prints of the prince's paintings go to the Prince's Charities Trust, which aids inner-city youth and environmental causes in Britain.

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Paul Newman says a letter from a fan of his spaghetti sauce helped keep his celebrity in perspective. Writing to rave about Newman's Own sauce, the fan noted that his girlfriend claimed Newman had done some acting. "If your acting is as good as your spaghetti sauce, you must be great," the letter said. "Do you have any movies on VCR?"

Newman, who described the letter at a luncheon for the Michigan Council of Foundations, said he framed and hung it.

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Scott O'Grady expected a Veterans Day salute to the military. He also got a surprise personal salute from a few of his favorite Marines.

The downed fighter pilot who became a hero by displaying his survival skills in the Bosnian woods took the field at half-time of the Florida-South Carolina football game Saturday.

Suddenly, eight of his Marine rescuers walked out for a public reunion orchestrated by school and Marine Corps officials.

O'Grady survived six days after his F-16 was shot down by a Serb surface-to-air missile in June.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Christopher Reeve, who became famous working in tights, is getting a pair of black spandex exercise pants with built-in electrodes.

The "Superman" star, paralyzed since falling off a horse in May, will try to wear a special muscle stimulator suit to help his rehabilitation. "He's 6-foot-4 and I've never dealt with anybody that tall. He's not fitting into any of our regular sizes," said Philip Muccio, who is making the garment.

Reeve

Muccio, chief of prosthetics at the Central Ohio Orthotic & Prosthetic Center, said the suit and related equipment will help preserve muscle tone in Reeve's legs so his limbs can function if his spinal injury is repaired.

Connectors built into the suit attach to a muscle stimulator that sends pulses through the electrodes to make the muscles contract and relax. When the suit is used with a special bicycle, Reeve can exercise under his own power, his legs moving in response to commands from the bicycle's computer.

AMA guidelines can reveal abuse

Every 45 seconds in America a woman is sexually assaulted — for a total of 700,000 victims a year. These women desperately need someone to confide in and many would like to talk to their personal physicians. But doctors are often too clumsy or insensitive to counsel victims of violence. New guidelines just issued by the American Medical Association should help improve their skills.

Sexual assault is a silent violent epidemic that is traumatizing the women and children of our nation, says AMA president Lonnie Brinson. Some 95 percent of the victims are women, most of them under age 18. The assault is most often a lover, friend, acquaintance or relative.

Women are silent about sexual assaults because, too often, they are made to feel more like criminals than victims. Fewer than half of all sexual assaults are reported and many victims fail to seek help promptly.

While doctors are in a good position to identify and treat victims, they do not routinely talk to patients about violence in their lives and patients do not routinely turn to them.

The AMA's new guidelines remind doctors to be alert for physical signs of abuse and for evidence of psychological trauma, as when a woman or child panics or withdraws from the doctor's touch during a routine exam.

The guidelines, which are being distributed to health-care professionals, are part of a broader AMA effort to address the physical and mental scars of abuse. The more doctors are made aware of violence and its consequences, the more effectively they can treat or prevent it.

Forest rangers battle county supremacy

CARSON CITY, Nev. — There was a time when the chief concern of forest rangers like Guy Pence was putting out forest fires.

But these days the danger to rangers is coming from a firestorm of anti-federal government sentiment that is more dangerous and harder to extinguish. In the last eight months Pence — a career bureaucrat at the U.S. Forest Service — has been the target of two bombings here.

On March 30 a bomb was left outside the office Pence shares with about 40 other employees. It exploded at 7:30 P.M. when the office was empty. Nobody was hurt but it caused $9,000 in damages.

Four months later, on Aug. 4, Pence's wife and two daughters were home alone when suddenly there was an explosion that was heard a quarter mile away. A bomb had been placed under the new family van. It shattered windows on the house and blew sheet rock off the wall. Miraculously, nobody was injured.

"I don't like to think about it, but I do think about it," Pence told our associate Dale Van Atta. "Someone came to my home with the will to kill, with a disregard for life."

Law enforcement, state and congressional officials believe the blasts are tied to the "county supremacy" movement — a present-day version of the 1970s "Sagebrush Rebellions" — which seeks to wrest huge chunks of Western land from the federal government and place them in state and county hands. Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., has called the bombings "the ugly underbelly of the county supremacy movement in Nevada."

Eighty-seven percent of Nevada's land is owned by the federal government. Ranchers pay cheap grazing fees to the feds, and are agitated about Clinton administration plans to raise those fees to a fair-market rate. As the result of a seven-year drought, the feds also imposed severe restrictions on land use out of ecological concerns for water conservation.

Eight years ago, Pence was assigned to the Anderson

Toiyabe National Forest in Nye County, which became the heart of the county supremacy movement in late 1993. The rebellion's leader is a county commissioner, Richard Carver, who successfully pushed for passage of a county ordinance claiming state ownership and local management of public lands there. The federal government launched a legal challenge to the ordinance last March — right before the first Pence bombing.

Carver illegally bulldozed a Forest Service road on July 4, 1994, with dozens of gun-toting supporters cheering him on. But Carver has denied any connection to the violence against Pence, and no local officials have accused him of involvement or knowledge of who perpetrated the Pence bombings.

But others charge his inflammatory rhetoric helps incite such action. "If you really look at what took place in Israel, that's what happened (in Nevada)," Sen. Reid told us. "Mrs. Rabin has expressed anger at the inflammatory things the Likuds did — the effigy of Rabin wearing Nazi garb. Those are the mean-spirited kinds of things that are taking place in America. All these inflammatory things lead to what happened to Guy Pence."

Carver told us Reid is the one who is agitating. "I'm here trying to calm things down," he said. "We've been pushed into a corner by the federal bureaucrats, and we've said enough is enough. We're just a county government that got tired of it. There hasn't been any bloodshed — we will not tolerate anybody getting hurt."

Carver speculated that the bombings were really a publicity stunt by the federal government, and he hinted that he was piecing together evidence to prove it. "It was horrible if it was done by the outside," Carver said. "But it's doubly horrible if it was done by the Forest Service itself."

America should learn from Canada's woes

Quebec's nationalistic fervor and the pains it causes all Canadians offer two valuable lessons for America.

First, political boundaries do not necessarily make a nation. That's why so many idealistic nation-building schemes, from the British Empire to international communism, eventually fragment along cultural lines. This is an important point to recall as America brokers peace deals in regions as diverse as the Middle East, Africa and Eastern Europe.

Second, America's obsession with multiculturalism may lead to the sort of division Canada is experiencing. Differing cultures have always enriched American life. But promoting individual subcultures can lead to strife if it's done at the expense of common American culture.

We wish Canadians the best in the election aftermath and hope they can heal their wounds. Americans should learn from that country's troubles. Abandoning multicultural policies that divide is the only way to start.

CHARLEY REESE

Soldier will serve America, not United Nations

Michael New, a young American soldier from Conroe, Texas, is being thrown out of the Army for refusing to wear United Nations uniforms and serve under foreign command.

That is an outrage.

New, a medic, is scheduled to be sent to Macedonia as U.N. peacekeeper under command of a Finnish general. It is important to understand what this young man is willing to do and what he is refusing to do. Already, his own congressman, Rep. Jack Fields, has tried to confuse the issue.

Michael New is willing to go to Macedonia and to serve there as an American soldier. He is not willing to wear a U.N. uniform and serve under the command of a foreign officer. His position, which is absolutely correct, is that he took an oath to protect and defend the United States Constitution. He owes no loyalty to the United Nations.

His court-martial ought to cause a national uproar, but the only national figure I have seen raise the issue as of this date is Pat Buchanan. Forty or so conservative congressmen have written President Clinton asking what constitutional authority he has to order American soldiers to don a foreign uniform and serve under foreign officers.

The lame excuse is that a soldier must obey his orders. In fact, however, soldiers must obey only lawful orders, just as the commander in chief must obey the Constitution. The president's courtesy title is Mr. President, not Your Majesty or Your Royal Highness. Clinton and several others have had a difficult time remembering that.

It's too bad — and too obvious — that more members of Congress don't have the courage of this young man. It's too bad the presidential candidates, with one noted exception, are ducking this issue.

Why should any American soldier be compelled to serve under the command of a foreigner?

They should not. Americans should serve only under the command of Americans. If the president wishes to send troops to Macedonia, as stupid an idea as that is, then he should send them to Macedonia as American soldiers in American uniforms under command of American officers, presumably to accomplish an American mission for the benefit of Americans. There is nothing altruistic or globalistic about the Constitution. It is for Americans only.

What young Michael New is pointing out, by the sacrifice of his military career, which has been honorable, is how utterly contemptuous President Bill Clinton, the foreign policy establishment, most congressmen and a lot of people in the press are of the American Constitution.

In better days, when we had a better educated group of Americans, such blatant contempt for the Constitution would be the end of a public career. Now many Americans seem to think the duty of a citizen is to do what he is told. Nothing is more revealing of ignorance of American history and tradition than this dreary, pathetic heel-clicker attitude.

Young Michael New is being loyal to the Constitution at a time when most of the institutions are not. Thus, he is being punished, not because he's wrong, but precisely because he is right.

It is Clinton, not New, who should face charges, for Clinton could fulfill any treaty obligation to the United Nations by dispatching American soldiers in American uniforms under American command. Instead, he is turning over control of American soldiers to a foreign organization. That, he clearly has no Constitutional authority to do.

We, the people, ought to rise in defense of Michael New and bombard the White House and Congress with protests.

We should not allow this young man, a good and faithful American soldier, to be crucified on the cross of internationalism by people whose intent is to rob Americans of the very independence and liberty for which their ancestors fought and died.

Democrats get big boost from GOP conservatives

It seems like only yesterday that the Democratic Party had one foot in the grave and was being given its last rites.

Those bright young Republican clones of Newt had seized Congress and launched their yuppy-yuppie revolution.

Sure, the Democrats still had the White House. But Newt's lads were almost laughing in the face of President Clinton, who couldn't seem to get anything right. And when he happened to, he'd change his mind the next day and get it all wrong.

So the question wasn't whether Clinton could be re-elected. That thought was laughable.

The only question was who the Republicans would choose to evict Clinton and finally and mercifully put an end to the suffering of the Democratic Party.

The pundits saw it that way. Newt's lads did, too. So did all of those weary Democrats in Congress who decided the end of political life was near, and they didn't want to run again.

We were about to enter the greatest era in Republican history. By the new century, liberal Democrats would be as rare as conservative war veterans.

Except that we forgot that Republicans have as great a talent for goofing up as the Democrats.

And boy, oh boy, did they do it.

A few days ago, they had a potential candidate who would have peeled Clinton as easily as a tangerine.

Yes, I'm talking about Colin Powell. Distinguished military man, but not a chest-thumping bully. Mature, yet still youthful. Articulate, but not a bull-shooter. An intellectual, but not dogmatic or superior. Quiet but not weak. Confident but not arrogant. Of humble origins, but without sullen resentments.

Just about as perfect a candidate as either party could imagine. And to boot, he is of African-American ancestry although he doesn't make a big deal out of it.

You would think that every sensible Republican in the country would have said: "We haven't had anyone like him since Ike. Patriot, hero, statesman, charmer. He will not only get our votes, but he will bring us the young, since they are not saddled with our racial bigotry; he will bring us the growing middle-class black vote; he will bring us rootless liberals and independents. And he has no soiled political baggage. Poor Clinton — all he'll get is the afternoon-rate motel vote."

Yes, the Republicans could have grabbed it all. Instead, they chose to assure us the survival of the two-party system.

Just when it appeared that Powell would declare his candidacy, the right wing of the Republican Party rose up in all of its nastiness.

It appeared that Powell didn't pass all of its knee-jerk, right-wing litmus tests on gun control, abortion and affirmative action. His views reflected those of the majority of Americans.

But after more than 30 years in the Army, he was viewed by Republican right-wingers as some kind of dangerous liberal.

They started whispering about his military record. One wax-faced, non-elected spokesman for the rigid right went on TV to question Powell's military record. He said Powell was merely a "militarist" — a uniformed desk-bound bureaucrat — instead of a true battlefield warrior.

That from someone who — like most of the right wing's leaders — wanted one campus deferment after another during the Vietnam War. They are probably the toughest-talking draft dodgers in our history.

They also managed to leak into print and broadcast the fact that Powell's wife takes medication to control depression. That gives her something in common with about 50 million other adult Americans.

It's assumed that her depression is caused by an imbalance in body chemistry. Or maybe it has to do with her husband becoming a Republican and having to associate with klutzes.

They should have been kissing his shoes. Instead, one after another, the spokesmen for the rigid right made it clear that while they wouldn't mind Powell becoming a Republican and helping them win elections, he wasn't their idea of a presidential candidate.

So he took the hint and got out and they were happy.

But they got up the next day and looked around, and those who aren't too stupid or dogmatic saw what they had done.

They left themselves with as motley a collection of candidates as either party has had.

Sen. Robert Dole is now the front-runner. I admire him, but he's over 70, comes off as a grouch, and his time has passed. Sen. Phil Gramm sounds like Lyndon Johnson's dimwitted kid brother. The others? You can't name them and this time next year you still won't.

Now they're even talking about Newt as their candidate. They apparently hope the average American voter is as indiscriminate in his choice of heroes as Congress babblers are.

By chasing off Powell, the Republican rigid right did something the Democrats couldn't do — they clinched a second term for Bill Clinton.

Those people are even more dangerous than they realize.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today in History
 Today is Monday, Nov. 13, the 317th day of 1995. There are 48 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
 On Nov. 13, 1789, Benjamin Franklin wrote a letter to a friend in which he said, "In this world nothing can be said to be certain, except death and taxes."

On this date:
 In 1775, during the American Revolution, U.S. forces captured Montreal.

In 1839, abolitionists gathered in Warsaw, N.Y., for a convention, during which they nominated James G. Birney for president.

In 1909, 250 miners were killed in a fire and explosion at the St. Paul Mine at Cherry, Ill.

In 1927, the Holland Tunnel opened to the public, providing access between New York City and New Jersey beneath the Hudson River.

In 1937, NBC formed the first full-sized symphony orchestra exclusively for radio broadcasting.

In 1940, the Walt Disney animated movie "Fantasia" had its world premiere in New York.

In 1942, the minimum draft age was lowered from 21 to 18.

In 1956, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down laws calling for racial segregation on public buses.

In 1969, in a speech in Des Moines, Iowa, Vice President

Spiro T. Agnew accused network television news departments of bias and distortion, and urged viewers to lodge complaints.

In 1974, Karen Silkwood, a technician and union activist at the Kerr-McGee Cimarron plutonium plant near Crescent, Okla., was killed in a car crash.

In 1982, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial was dedicated in Washington following three days of ceremonies and marches.

Ten years ago: About 23,000 residents of Armero, Colombia, died when a gigantic mudslide, triggered by the Nevado del Ruiz volcano, buried the city.

Five years ago: Secretary of State James A. Baker III told reporters in Hamilton, Bermuda, the Persian Gulf crisis threatened world recession and the loss of American jobs. Members of Congress demanded a larger role in U.S. Gulf policy following President Bush's decision to send more U.S. troops to the region.

One year ago: A heavily armed gunman traded fire with San Francisco police, hitting two police officers, a paramedic and another person before being killed. President Clinton, visiting the Philippines, sought to assure world leaders that his party's severe losses in midterm elections wouldn't undercut his foreign policy. Sweden voted to join the European Union.

David Robinson

ANDREWS — Services for David Robinson, 61, have been set for 2 p.m. Wednesday at Calvary Baptist Church in Andrews. The Rev. Walter Hunter and the Rev. Mike Henson will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Julius Brooks and the Rev. H. Lewis. Burial will follow at Andrews Cemetery under the direction of McNett Funeral Home.

Robinson died Friday in a Lubbock hospital following a lengthy illness.

He was born March 12, 1934, in Carthridge. He married the former Ola Mae Beasley Feb. 8, 1957, in Carthridge. The couple moved from Carthridge to Andrews in 1959. Robinson was a Baptist affiliated with New Jerusalem Baptist Church in Denver City. He was a volunteer sheriff's deputy, a Mustang band booster and former member of the National Guard. He retired from the City of Andrews.

His wife preceded him in death on Sept. 13, 1992.

Survivors include his two sons, Orson Robinson of Odessa, David Robinson Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va.; his two daughters, Donna Robinson of Dallas and Debora Robinson of Andrews; his five brothers, Willie Robinson of Las Vegas, Nev., Nora Robinson and Elroy Robinson, both of San Bernardino, Calif., Howard Robinson of Andrews, and Ben Lloyd McCoy of Shreveport, La.; his six sisters, Alice Mae Wallace, Carrie Bell Nichols, and Nettie Lou Adams, all of San Bernardino, Mattie Oliver of Andrews, Cathrine Smith of Carthridge, and Pearl Mae Riley of Compton, Calif.; 11 grandchildren, and one great grandchild.

Pallbearers are Rufus Williams, Billy Jo Williams, Lucious Hubert Jr., Andrew Maxie, Jose Correa and Willie Jones.

Austin Thomas

Services for Austin Scott Thomas, 2, have been set for 10 a.m. Tuesday in Ellis Funeral Home Chapel. K.C. Blacketter of Bethel United Methodist Church will officiate. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Austin died Saturday at his residence.

He was born to Amoret Guinn and Jared Scott Thomas on Oct. 16, 1993, in Midland.

Survivors include his parents; his brother, Sheridan Ridge Thomas of Midland; his grandmothers, Becki Bates of Midland, and Eloise Guinn of El Paso; his grandfather, Jes Thomas of Austin; step-grandfather, Leland Rowe of El Paso; his great-grandmothers, June Houston of Stanton, and Sammie R. Fourmy and May Guinn, both of El Paso; his great-grandparents, O.H. and Helen Thomas, and Mr. and Mrs. A.T. Luces of Glen Rose; and numerous aunts, uncles and cousins.

Pallbearers are Scott Thomas and Jayde Arnold.

Honorary pallbearers are the staff of Infant Stimulation of Midland, the staff of the Cerebral Palsy Center, volunteers for Austin's patterning, staff of Texas Tech Medical Center in Lubbock, Texas Tech Medical Center-ICU in Odessa, the Bethel family of Midland and the Midland Pediatric Association.

The family requests memorials be directed to the Cerebral Palsy Center of Midland or to Infant Stimulation of Midland.

Austin

Lawton, Okla., where he was educated. He joined the U.S. Air Force as a member of the B-17 Bomber Squad with the 8th Air Force. He was shot down over Germany. He received the Purple Heart, Flying Boot medals, and several other commendations for his service. He married the former Lois Kolker on Nov. 14, 1944, in Yuma, Ariz. The couple moved to Midland in 1946 where Glennan worked as superintendent for J.W. Construction. Glennan later began his own business. He was retired at the time of his death. He was a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church, Disabled Veterans and was a lifetime member of the National Rifle Association.

Survivors include his wife of Midland; his two brothers, John "Lefty" Glennan Sr. of Midland; and Joe B. Glennan of LaPorte; his sister, Anna Marie Wilson of Lone Grove, Okla., and several nieces and nephews.

The family requests memorials be directed to Hospice of Midland, P.O. Box 2621, Midland 79702.

Virginia Claypoole

Services for Virginia "Ginger" D. Claypoole have been set for 2 p.m. Tuesday at First Christian Church. The Rev. Tommy Potter will officiate. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Ms. Claypoole died Saturday.

She was born Dec. 2, 1927, in Fort Stockton. She graduated from Fort Stockton High School. She married Louis Vandergriff in 1950 in Odessa. The couple moved to Midland in 1962. Her husband preceded her in death in 1966. Ms. Claypoole later married William R. Claypoole of Odessa in 1972. She recently retired from J.W. Mulloy and Associates of Midland. She was a member of First Christian Church and the North Dallas Women's Club. She was active in various volunteer organizations, including hospital auxiliaries in Odessa and Dallas.

Survivors include her son, Gary Vandergriff of Midland; her two daughters, Sue Vandergriff Akers of Lima, Peru, and Linda Vandergriff of Dallas; her brother, John Billings of Wharton; her three sisters, Naomi Hodges of Temple, Nell Peters of Atlanta; and Christine Judd of Biloxi, Miss.; and five grandchildren.

DEAR ABBY

Store personnel don't have to read rights to shoplifters

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Upset Mother," whose daughter was arrested for shoplifting. Since her daughter was not read her rights, she asked if they should fight the arrest in court. Before she wastes her money on a lawyer and court costs, let me answer a few of her questions.

The person who originally detained the girl probably was an employee of the store, not a police officer. Because security personnel (often called "loss prevention" or "asset protection" employees) are private citizens, they are not required to read suspects their rights. After security personnel have processed the paperwork required by the employer, the police would then be called. It is the police who in most cases issue a citation and give the offender a court date. Miranda rights are read to a suspect when he or she is going to be taken to a police station or a juvenile detention center to be processed.

I have been a loss prevention officer for more than five years. I am a guard and I do not wear a uniform, but I watch cameras and walk the floor looking for shoplifters.

It was nice to see a parent concerned about her daughter's rights, but in this case, the daughter should take whatever punishment the court deems appropriate.

Please do not use my name since I work undercover; just sign me... LOSS PREVENTION OFFICER

DEAR OFFICER: Thank you for explaining why the young shoplifter may not have been read her rights. Read on for a letter from a reader who criticizes the girl's mother for failing to teach her daughter the virtues of honesty.

DEAR ABBY: I was amazed by your reply to "Upset Mother," who seemed to be more concerned with her daughter's rights than the fact that this "normally good" girl committed a blatant theft and was caught in the act.

You advised the mother to consult a lawyer to determine if her little girl's rights were violated. Surely you jest. The rights of society were violated by a girl whose obviously indulgent parent views the crime as a prank that could be corrected with an apology, a long lecture and a month's grounding.

"Upset Mother" should be hauled into court for failing to instill basic values in her daughter. If the girl had been properly taught when she was a preteen, the theft may not have occurred in the first place. — HOPE BRYSON, LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "Santa Monica Reader," whose mind went blank when he was about to introduce an acquaintance (this has happened to all of us):

Here's a lighthearted trick my late husband, Gene, often used: Speaking directly to the person whose name he could not remember, with a straight face he'd say, "I remember your name, but can't think of your face" — at which time the forgotten one would blurt out his name, then laugh. It worked every time, and no one felt insulted or embarrassed. — BETTY PUGSLEY, FORT MYERS, FLA.

Texans ousted

BALTIMORE — Carlos Huerta kicked a playoff-record seven field goals, and the Baltimore Stallions advanced to the CFL title game for the second straight year by beating the San Antonio Texans 21-11 Sunday.

Baltimore, which lost the Grey Cup game as an expansion team last season, gets another chance next week to become the first American team to win the CFL championship. The Stallions (17-3) will face the Calgary Stampeders, a 37-4 winner over the Edmonton Eskimos in the North Division final.

Davis to play

FORT WORTH — Suspended Texas Christian tailback Andre Davis will start Saturday against Southwest Conference-leading Texas, Horned Frogs coach Pat Sullivan said.

Davis completed a four-game NCAA suspension Saturday for alleged dealings with a Houston sports agent. In the meantime, his team has gone 2-2, including a 27-6 loss at Texas Tech this weekend that dropped the Frogs to 6-3 and 3-2.

TCU, also without injured receivers Chris Brasfield and Jason Tucker, only gained 125 total yards against the Red Raiders.

"(Davis is) in pretty good shape, probably in better shape now than he was before the suspension," Sullivan told the Fort Worth Star Telegram for Monday's editions.

Davis has been allowed to practice during his suspension from the games.

A San Francisco treatment

Elvis Grbac leads the 49ers to a 38-20 domination of Dallas, handing the Cowboys its worst loss since the 1993 opener.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Shades of last January. The defending Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers blitzed the Dallas Cowboys before the first quarter was over.

The 49ers, who were supposed to be on the downside because of injuries and free-agent losses, whipped the Cowboys 38-20 on Sunday on their home field in a game reminiscent of the NFC championship meeting between the teams.

"This kind of game symbolizes the kind of team we are," linebacker Ken Norton said. "We're still the world champions. Dallas got caught up reading its press clippings and listening to the experts." The 49ers (6-4), who had lost the last two games, even moved into a tie with St. Louis and Atlanta atop the NFC West. Dallas dropped to 8-2.

"They are the world champions and they played like it," Dallas defensive end Charles Haley said. "We stunk up the place. We must be intimidated by guys in red shirts and gold helmets."

This was supposed to be a revenge game against the 49ers, who didn't have Steve Young for a fifth straight week because of a shoulder injury.

It was a rout, just as many predicted.

IRVING — So much for Jerry vs. Deion.

The Jerry Rice-Deion Sanders matchup turned out to be no match at all on Sunday. In fact, Rice vs. the entire Dallas defense was no match in San Francisco's 38-20 victory over the Cowboys.

The 49ers threw to Rice only once when Sanders was covering him, and it was a poorly thrown incomplection.

But when the 49ers outsmarted the Cowboys and got Rice lined up against linebackers, it was no contest. Rice had five catches for 161 yards — 81 coming on a down-the-middle touchdown on the second play of the game.

"Hey, hats off to Jerry," Sanders said. "He showed today why he is probably the best receiver ever to play the game."

Rice gave the 49ers a 7-0 lead just 1:01 into the game with his touchdown.

The play was set up by John Taylor lined up outside, drawing Sanders to cover him. Rice shifted into the slot and Dallas never adjusted.

"They were running around to get checked and we just snapped the ball and BOOM!" 49ers quarterback Elvis Grbac said.

Rebels facing familiar foe in Amarillo

By Terry Williamson
Sports Writer

Midland Lee will enter the state Class 5A football playoffs for the 14th time at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Memorial Stadium when the Rebels host Amarillo High in a bi-district match.

Lee has been playoff bound in 12 of the past 13 seasons, including this year, and a bi-district meeting with Amarillo High isn't unusual.

The Rebels and Sandies will be facing each other for the seventh time Friday in the playoffs, making AHS Lee's premier playoff opponent. Lee has faced no other team in the playoffs more than the Sandies.

And, for the most part, that has been good news for the Rebels, who own a 4-1-1 playoff record against Amarillo High, advancing five times in six outings. The only setback for Lee against AHS came in 1986 when the Rebels fell to the Sandies 14-0. The one switch this year is that the two teams have never met in the playoffs at Memorial Stadium.

The two teams tied at 21-21 last season, but Lee advanced to the area round by virtue of a 4-3 advantage on penetrations. The Rebels went on to the state quarterfinals last year in what was a fit-to-bed-tied season. Lee also tied Arlington Lamar 29-29 in the region round, advancing 5-4 on penetrations.

Lee has been as far as the state quarterfinals four times, but has passed that mark only once. Lee went to the state finals in 1983, losing to Converse Judson 25-21.

Lee's quarterfinal berth a year ago was the most unlikely of all. Lee ended the season with a 7-4-2 overall record after entering the playoffs with a 6-3 mark.

This year Lee has posted an 8-0-1 regular season campaign, marking only the second time that Lee has entered the playoffs without a loss. In 1987, Lee entered the region playoffs at 11-0, but lost to Arlington High, 27-7, in Fort Worth.

Amarillo High last got by the bi-district round in 1992 when the Sandies defeated Abilene Cooper, 20-17, in Lubbock and then went on to defeat Odessa Permian.

1995 NEW YORK CITY MARATHON

Silva, Loroupe get sweet repeat

Despite cooler temperatures than last year, both defending champions came through again to win second straight New York City Marathon.

By Bert Rosenthal
AP Track Writer

NEW YORK — Braving a record-low temperature and fierce winds, German Silva of Mexico won the New York City Marathon on Sunday, becoming the first repeat champion in 10 years.

Kenya's Tegla Loroupe also won the women's division for the second consecutive year.

Silva had dedicated the race to his late father, and Loroupe had been running in memory of her sister, who died Oct. 30. The two runners shared a warm embrace at the end of the race.

Unlike last year, when Silva made a wrong turn with about a quarter-mile remaining before getting turned around and beating countryman Benjamin Parades by two seconds in the closest finish in the race's 26-year history, he was straight on course this time.

His time was 2 hours, 11 minutes — 21 seconds quicker than last year.

Paul Evans of Britain finished second in 2:11:05, with William Koeh of Kenya third at 2:11:19.

"I am very happy for my second victory," Silva said. "I love this marathon."

He also paid tribute to his father, Agapito, who died in July at age 70.

The last runner to win the marathon twice in a row was Orlando Pizzolato of Italy in 1984 and 1985.

Loroupe, whose sister, Albina, died after severe stomach hemorrhaging and left four children ranging in age from 10 to 1, was grieving the past two weeks but she pushed aside her heartbreak to win the race handily, becoming the first women's repeat champion since Norway's Grete Waitz, a nine-time winner overall, won her fifth in a row in 1986.

Above, Mexico's German Silva begins to pull away from Britain's Paul Evans (22) to win the men's division. Right, Silva and women's champion Tegla Loroupe of Kenya don their winner's wreaths.

Earnhardt wins race, Gordon points title

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

HAMPTON, Ga. — Even as Jeff Gordon was wrapping up his first Winston Cup championship, seven-time champion Dale Earnhardt was sending him a message Sunday.

Earnhardt overwhelmed the field to win the season-ending NAPA 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

The 44-year-old Earnhardt needed a miracle to keep the 24-year-old Gordon from winning the title in Sunday's 328-lap event on the 1.522-mile oval, but The Intimidator showed that the changing of the guard is not nearly complete.

Earnhardt led six times for 268 laps including the final 59, to earn his record-tying seventh victory at Atlanta, fifth of the year and the 68th of his Winston Cup career. Retired Cale Yarborough, now a car owner, also has seven Atlanta wins.

"It's pretty neat to be in the company of people like Cale Yarborough, but we'll just keep on doing it for a while," said Earnhardt, who won the championship in 1993 and 1994. "We've got several years left."

Earnhardt was trying to break to become the first driver to win eight Winston Cup titles. He and the retired Richard Petty have seven apiece.

Gordon came into the event leading runner-up Earnhardt by 147 points and the final margin was only 34 points.

Lady Dawgs open season at Stanton

Staff Report

The Midland High girls varsity basketball game will try for its fourth straight district championship in 1995, and the journey starts tonight.

The Lady Dawgs open their 1995-96 regular season with a non-district game against Stanton tonight and coach Jim Raughton's team will play its first game in three years without Amy Alcalá.

The sophomore game begins at 4:30 p.m. followed by the junior varsity and then the varsity game.

The all-district performer graduated but Midland High has a number of quality players returning which will try and improve on last year's 27-4 overall record and 11-1 in District 4-5A.

After Stanton, the Lad 'Dawgs take part in the Tall City Tournament Friday and Saturday. Their first district game is Dec. 12 at Abilene High. The first district home game is Dec. 15 against San Angelo Central.

The Lee High Lady Rebels also begin play this week, taking on Big Spring Tuesday night at the Lee High Gym at 8 p.m. The sophomore team plays at 5 followed by the junior varsity.

Texas leaps into Top 10

The Associated Press

The Texas Longhorns, relegated to No. 2 status in the Southwest Conference the past few years, jumped back into the Associated Press Top 10 this week.

No. 2 Ohio State widened its lead over No. 3 Florida in Sunday's poll, while Nebraska remained No. 1 for the third straight week.

While the first-place totals were unchanged from last week, the gap between Ohio State and Florida increased from six to 18 points. The Buckeyes increased their lead over the Gators from five to 23 points in the USA Today-CNN coaches' poll, which has the same top three as the AP media rankings.

Texas A&M remained at No. 18 after beating Rice last Thursday. Texas Tech and Baylor also received votes.

Rams open dome with 28-17 win

The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — A new stadium brought out the old St. Louis Rams.

The Rams forced six turnovers and scored their first defensive touchdown since their 4-0 start, and Isaac Bruce had his sixth consecutive 100-yard receiving game as the Rams opened the $280 million Trans World Dome with a 28-17 victory over the Carolina Panthers on Sunday.

The Rams (6-4) ended the Panthers' four-game winning streak as they ended their own three-game losing streak. Kerry Collins threw two touchdown passes for Carolina (4-6), which has already set a record for a first-year expansion team, but also was picked off four times and lost two fumbles — one that was returned for a score.

St. Louis took advantage of seven turnovers to beat the Panthers 31-10 in the third game of the season. The Rams scored on the first three turnovers in the rematch, including a 26-yard fumble recovery by Torin Dorn in the fourth quarter that made it 28-10.

Bruce caught nine passes for 110 yards to set a team record with his sixth consecutive 100-yard game. In that span, he's caught 53 passes for 895 yards.

Bruce also caught his ninth touchdown pass of the year, a 12-yarder from Chris Miller in the second quarter. Miller completed 19 of 32 passes for 216 yards.

A sellout crowd of 64,934 showed up for the dome opener. The Rams played their first four home games at Busch Stadium while the dome was being completed.

Packers 35, Bears 28

Favre tied a team record with a career-best five touchdown passes as Green Bay won a shootout with Chicago to move into a tie for the NFC Central lead with the Bears.

Favre, his severely sprained ankle heavily wrapped, extended his NFL-leading streak to 55 consecutive starts, completing 25 of 33 passes for 336 yards and no interceptions.

He hit halfback Edgar Bennett for scores of 17 and 16 yards on screen passes, the second coming with 9:17 left to break a 28-28 tie.

Favre also had TDs of 29 and 44 yards to Robert Brooks and a 1-yard toss to fullback Dorsey Levens. Brooks caught six passes for 138 yards.

Reggie White also made a remarkable comeback from injury. He stretched a right knee ligament last week at Minnesota and on Sunday didn't start for just the second time in his 11-year NFL career.

But he came in on the second series and played most of the game, sharing a sack, tipping a pass and inspiring a defense that held Erik Kramer out of the end zone in a desperation drive that stalled at the Packers' 14 as time expired.

Lions 27, Buccaneers 24

PONTIAC, Mich. — Clutch catches by Brett Perriman and two interceptions by Willie Clay helped beleaguered Detroit coach Wayne Fontes buy a little time.

Detroit's defense, ranked 28th in the NFL, was just good enough as the Lions hung on for a 27-24 victory over Tampa Bay, handing the Buccaneers their third straight loss.

An 18-yard field goal by Jason Hanson, his second of the day, gave the Lions a 20-17 lead at the 1:48 mark of the fourth quarter. That kick came seven plays after Mike Johnson recovered a fumble by Trent Dillier at the 34-yard line of Tampa Bay (5-5).

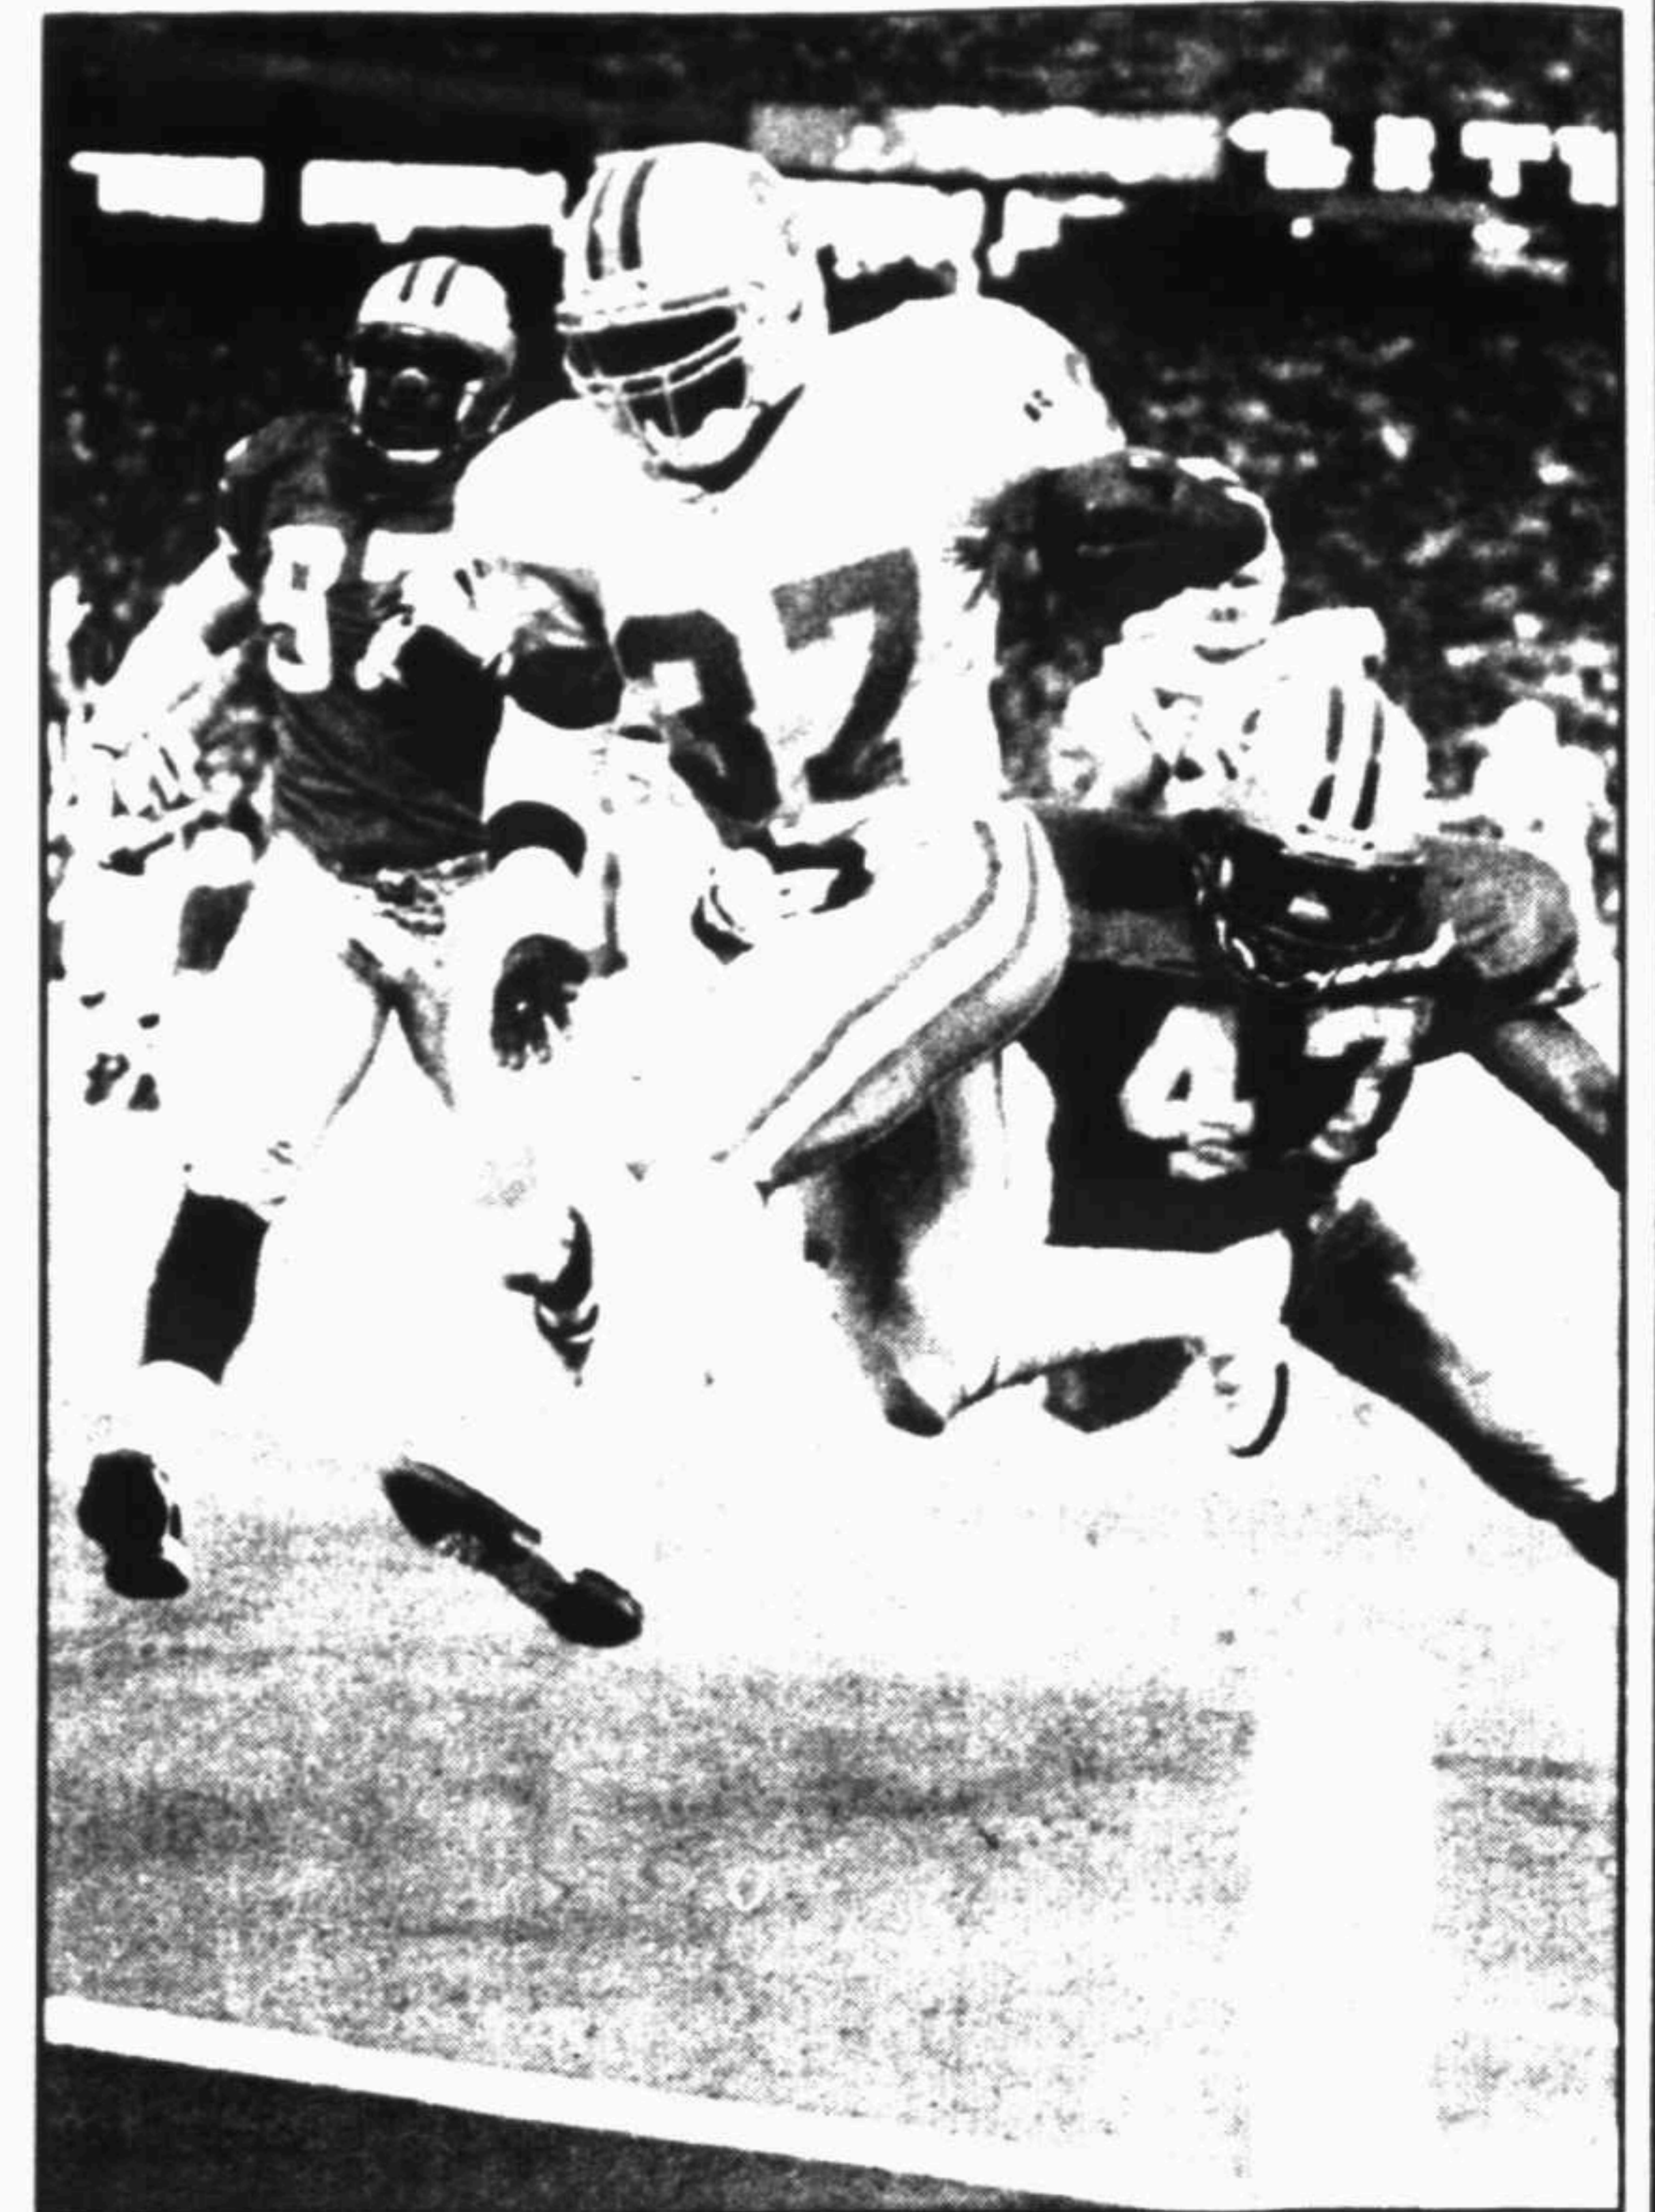

Vikings 30, Cardinals 24, OT

TEMPE, Ariz. — Warren Moon threw a 50-yard touchdown pass, his fourth of the day, to Qadry Ismail with 12:44 left in overtime Sunday to lift the Minnesota Vikings to a 30-24 victory over the Arizona Cardinals.

Minnesota (5-5) won its second straight game following a three-game losing streak. The Vikings are 2-2 in overtime games this year.

Moon completed 24 of 43 passes for 342 yards. He had touchdown passes of 32 yards to Jake Reed, and 5 and 2 yards to Cris Carter.

Minnesota took a 24-16 lead with 12:17 left in regulation. But the Cardinals tied it with Dave Krieg throwing a 2-yard TD pass to Wendall Gaines and a 2-point conversion pass to Rob Moore.

Tampa Bay running back Jerry Ellison (37) outraces Detroit's Ryan McNeil (47) and Tracy Scroggins into the end zone for a touchdown.

Patriots take Dolphins, spoil party

The Associated Press

MIAMI — Two deflected passes bounced New England's way, and the Patriots spoiled Dan Marino's record-setting day.

Marino's last chance to tie the game ended early in the fourth quarter when he caught his own pass — his first career reception — for a 6-yard loss on fourth down after the throw was deflected by Vincent Brown.

Two late New England scores, one following a Marino interception, clinched the Patriots' first victory at Joe Robbie Stadium since 1988.

New England improved to 4-6. Miami, which began the day tied with Buffalo for the lead in the AFC East, fell to 6-4.

Patriots rookie Curtis Martin rushed for 142 yards and two touchdowns against the second-ranked run defense in the NFL.

Marino completed 27 of 37 passes and threw for two scores, but he was intercepted twice and lost a fumble on a sack to set up Coates' 8-yard score. Bernie Kosar replaced Marino for the final three minutes of the game.

Drew Bledsoe threw two touchdown passes, increasing his total this season to five. A 47-yard pass to Vincent Brisby — Bledsoe's longest of the year — gave New England a 17-10 lead in the third quarter.

Marino sets career yardage mark

MIAMI — Dan Marino broke Fran Tarkenton's NFL career record for passing yardage Sunday by completing a 9-yard pass to Irving Fryar in the first quarter of the Miami Dolphins' game against New England.

The completion, a 4:20 into the game, gave Marino 47,009 yards in seasons. Tarkenton threw for 47,003 yards in 18 years.

Marino surpassed Tarkenton's career record for completions earlier this season, and he began Sunday's game needing just five touchdown passes to top Tarkenton's record of 342 in that category.

AFC Roundup

Seahawks 45, Jaguars 30

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Joey Galloway played less than three quarters. That was still too long for Jacksonville.

The Seattle rookie caught two touchdown passes and brilliantly improvised on an 86-yard run for another score Sunday. That launched the Seahawks (4-6) to a 45-30 victory over the expansion Jaguars in Seattle's highest-scoring game in more than 10 years.

Galloway left after cramping up on a punt return with about two minutes left in the third quarter. By then, though, he already had caught five passes for 114 yards, including touchdowns of 38 and 23 yards from Rick Mirer.

But the play that left his mark on this game occurred early in the second quarter when the first-round draft pick from Ohio State turned in the longest play in Seattle history.

The first half was a wild affair, with Jacksonville matching every Seattle touchdown with one of their own to make it 21-21 just past the midway point of the second quarter. Vaughn Dunbar scored on a couple of short runs and Brunell connected with Ernest Givins for a 15-yard touchdown pass.

Jacksonville went ahead for the first time on the first of three field goals by Mike Hollis late in the second quarter and got the ball back after Harry Colon's 41-yard interception return. Hollis came on again to kick a 50-yard field goal on the final play of the first half.

Chiefs 22, Chargers 7

SAN DIEGO — Kansas City has the NFL's best record and maybe visions of a Super Bowl, too. Steve Bono and Marcus Allen scored on short runs as Kansas City beat bitter AFC West rival San Diego to improve to 9-1, the same start the Chiefs had in 1969 en route to winning the Super Bowl.

It was Kansas City's sixth straight win, one short of the club record set in '69. Kansas City was tied with Dallas for the NFL's best record, but the Cowboys lost to San Francisco 38-20.

While the Chiefs are clicking, the defending AFC champion Chargers (4-6) are crumbling. Without leading rusher Natrone Means, out with a strained groin, the Chargers lost for the fifth time in six games. San Diego is tied with Seattle for last place in the AFC West.

Allen scored the clinching touchdown on a 1-yard run with 6:16 to play in the third quarter, giving Kansas City a 19-7 lead. Bono's conversion pass to Lake Dawson failed.

Earlier in the drive, Dawson caught what appeared to be a 38-yard touchdown pass from Danan Hughes, but it was called back because of an illegal double pass.

The Chiefs simply went back to their play-actions and rollouts, with Bono hitting Allen for consecutive completions of 19 and 18 yards. Two plays later, Allen scored the 102nd rushing TD of his 14-year career.

Bengals outlast Oilers

By Michael Graczyk
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — Jeff Blake threw a pair of touchdown passes to Carl Pickens and Cincinnati's defense hardly played Sunday like the NFL's worst as the Bengals downed the Houston Oilers 32-25.

The Bengals defense had been giving up more than 403 yards per game coming into Houston, putting them 30th and last in the league. But they came up with four sacks for 31 yards in losses, an interception and forced five fumbles, recovering three of them. The Bengals (4-6), who gave Houston 287 yards, also blocked a punt that led to a safety.

Blake, meanwhile, gave Pickens the Cincinnati TD pass receiving record with a 30-yard scoring toss in the third quarter. That gave Pickens 12 for the year, breaking the mark he set a year ago.

Pickens extended the record with his second touchdown, a 15-yard strike from Blake with 5:12 gone in the fourth quarter to make it 23-13. It was set up by a punt fumbled by Houston's Mel Gray. The scoring passes also extended Blake's team record of TD passes to 17 consecutive games. Blake had entered the game leading the AFC with 18 TD passes. In addition, he picked up 105 yards rushing on six carries.

Pickens finished with 108 yards on seven receptions. He also recovered two onside kicks in the fourth quarter as the Oilers (4-6) tried to mount a late comeback.

The Oilers lost for the first time in three games and for the first time against the Bengals in Houston in 11 years.

They also lost starting quarterback Chris Chandler, who went down with a leg injury while being sacked and fumbling in the third quarter.

The Bengals set the tone early as Jeff Hill took the opening kickoff 46 yards and picked up another 15 on a face mask penalty to begin the game for Cincinnati at the Houston 26.

On second down, Blake went back to throw and ran away from the Oilers rush for 17 yards to the Houston 9. Two plays later, Eric Bienenmy scooted around the left

Raiders take Giants, move to 8-2

The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.Y. — In Giants weather, Jeff Hostetler left his former teammates blowing in the wind.

With winds gusting to 35 mph, the Oakland quarterback guided the Raiders on a game-winning drive in the fourth quarter. Harvey Williams' 6-yard run with 6:52 remaining gave the Raiders a 17-13 victory.

The win was secured when Chester McGlockton deflected Dave Brown's fourth-down pass from the Oakland 28 in the final minutes.

The Giants (3-7) took a 13-10 lead on Brown's 11-yard draw in the third quarter. But Oakland (8-2), operating against the wind, used the running of Williams and Napoleon Kaufman to get to New York's 6-yard line.

Then, with the wind, Hostetler's pass into the corner of the end zone on the first play of the fourth quarter was intercepted by Phillippi Sparks.

The Raiders came right back after forcing a punt, going 71 yards to Williams' winning run. Two plays earlier, Hostetler's third-down scramble came up a yard short of a first down, but Sparks was whistled for a personal foul.

The conditions kept things close all day. The Raiders used up more than six minutes on their first drive, with the wind, and Jeff Jaeger made a 30-yard field goal. Then the Giants kept the ball into the second period with runs and short passes before being forced to punt.

Interconference

Ignoring the blustery wind, Hostetler stepped back and unleashed a long pass down the middle that appeared too long. But Ismail, using his Olympic-quality speed as the wind held up the ball, caught up to it for a 40-yard score.

Bills 23, Falcons 17

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Buffalo gave coach Marv Levy his team back the way he left it — with sole possession of the lead in the AFC East.

Jim Kelly completed 22 of 36 passes for 272 yards and two touchdowns to Bill Brooks as the Bills beat the Atlanta Falcons 23-17 on Sunday. Steve Christie kicked three field goals for Buffalo.

It marked Levy's first game in since he underwent prostate-cancer surgery four weeks ago and, combined with New England's win over Miami, gave the Bills (7-3) the division lead.

Rookie running back Darick Holmes, backing up Thurman Thomas, gained 100 yards on 23 carries. Thomas gained 66 yards on 17 carries in his first game since returning from a hamstring injury. Brooks caught seven passes for 101 yards and two scores.

Jeff George completed 17 of 34 passes for 279 yards, but he was unable to get the Falcons a touchdown in the fourth quarter. Atlanta (6-4) drove to the Buffalo 20-yard line before George was intercepted by Kurt Scholz with 52 seconds remaining.

Saints 17, Colts 14

NEW ORLEANS — New Orleans, beginning to look like they may be a decent team, rolled to another win — with a little help from Indianapolis Jim Harbaugh.

Harbaugh ruined what would have been a first-and-goal from the Saints' 1 by throwing the ball past the line of scrimmage, and Cary Blanchard's try for a game-tying 41-yard field goal was wide left with 13 seconds left Sunday, leaving New Orleans with a 17-14 victory over Indianapolis.

The Saints (4-6) won for the fourth time in five games following an 0-5 start. But they nearly wasted their lead on the Colts' final drive.

Eagles 31, Broncos 13

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia delivered a knockout punch to John Elway and Denver couldn't get off the ground.

Rodney Peete ran for a touchdown and threw another, and Ricky Waters had two short touchdown runs as the Eagles beat the Broncos 31-13 Sunday night after Elway missed most of the game's final three quarters with a concussion.

Elway was caught between Mike Mamula and William Fuller as he threw the ball early in the second quarter, with Mamula hitting Elway helmet to helmet.

The Broncos had said Elway would return, but he remained on the bench the rest of the game, replaced by Hugh Millen. Elway finished 2-for-3 for 54 yards, including a 46-yard touchdown pass to Anthony Miller.

DALLAS: 49ers put game away early

(From 1C)

Only it was the Cowboys who were outplayed and outcoached.

"I'm not a cussing man but we got our butts kicked," cornerback Deion Sanders said. "My hats are off to Jerry Rice. He's the best receiver to ever play the game."

Backup Elvis Grbac and Rice devastated Dallas on the game's first possession.

San Francisco stunned the Cowboys early, much as it did in the NFC championship game. In that game, the 49ers built a 21-0 lead in the first 6:25, went on to win 38-28 and then defeat San Diego in the Super Bowl.

"It was like the same game," said Sanders. "But I was on the opposite team then."

Rice, the NFL's career leader in receiving, slipped open behind linebacker Darrin Smith for a slant pass over the middle from Grbac and ran 81 yards for a touchdown on the second play of the game. Rice confused the Cowboys by lining up in the slot and nobody caught him until safety Darren Woodson tackled him at the goal.

"Part of the game plan was to get me one on one with the linebacker and they bit on it," Rice said. "I knew it was time for me to do what I do. I have a lot of respect for Deion."

Rice had been involved in a pregame exchange of words with the Cowboys' $35 million cornerback, who was lost in coverage at times by the clever San Francisco offensive sets. Rice had complained that Sanders took credit for the Super Bowl win. Sanders said Rice was "ignorant."

"We moved Jerry around a lot so we could get him away from Deion," Grbac said. "They were running around and looked confused."

Dallas coach Barry Switzer said "they were picking on our linebackers. Our linebackers got caught inside. There was nothing Deion could do.

"It looked like the same game as last year at the beginning."

The 49ers struck again 13 seconds later when Michael Irvin fumbled the ball away to Merton Hanks, who scooped it up and ran 38 yards for a touchdown.

"They were a better team, period," Irvin said. "They doubled and tripled me and I had a hard time getting open. We wanted the game but they beat our butts."

Linebacker Rickey Jackson intercepted a pass from Troy Aikman, the NFL's top-rated passer, at the Dallas 27 and the 49ers cashed the mistake into a 26-yard field goal by Jeff Wilkins, a free agent who was picked up during the week. It gave San Francisco a 17-0 lead with only 4:58 expired.

Aikman was injured on a first quarter sack by Dana Stubblefield. Aikman fell heavily on his left knee. Doctors decided it was a bad bruise and ordered him not to return. Wade Wilson subbed and threw two interceptions before he left with an injury late in the fourth period.

Aikman, who will have an MRI exam on Monday, was 4-of-6 for 29 yards and Wilson was 15-of-26 for 134. Aikman left without comment after he showered.

Grbac, who completed 20 of 30 for 305 yards, took the 49ers 82 yards in 13 plays for a 24-0 lead. Grbac hit Rice on passes of 20 and 28 yards before Derek Loville scored on a 1-yard run.

Dallas linebacker Robert Jones said they could see Rice coming but couldn't do anything about it.

"Jerry was running through the middle and we couldn't make the play because there was no pressure on the quarterback," Jones said. "You can't cover him all day."

San Francisco answered a 1-yard touchdown run by Dallas' Emmitt Smith with a 92-yard drive. The key was a 26-yard pass from Grbac to Rice, who had five catches in the game for 161 yards. Grbac found Loville wide open over the middle for 19 yards and a touchdown for a 31-7 halftime edge. A surly crowd booed the Cowboys off the field.

"It's OK to brag and boast and say what a great team you are but you've got to back it up," Smith said.

The Cowboys were giving up only 293.6 yards per game and the 49ers had 294 in the first half.

linebacker, was no match for Rice coming off the line and wasn't even in sight when Rice caught the ball. Cornerback Larry Brown tried catching up but never even came close. Safety Darren Woodson got to Rice in time to trip him into the end zone.

"Part of the game plan was to put me one-on-one with a linebacker," Rice said. "And they bit on it."

That plan was drawn up by San Francisco offensive coordinator Marc Trestman, who recognized that the middle of Dallas' defense was the best place to attack. Of Grbac's 305 yards, about 250 came from there.

The reason? Sanders remained outside.

It took a 155-yard first half by Rice for the Cowboys to give in and finally decide that the player considered the best cover-man in the NFL today would shadow the player considered the best receiver in NFL history.

That buildup alone was enough to help hype this game. It became an even juicier storyline a few weeks ago when Sanders became a Cowboy and Rice screamed that the 49ers didn't need him anyway.

Estate seminar

Don M. Hellinghausen, local registered representative with Dominion Capital Corp., broker-dealer, will host a seminar on Estate Planning and Asset Protection, Thursday from 7-8:30 p.m., at the Holiday Inn, 4300 W. Wall. Presentations will be made by tax attorney Ray Jordan, of Dallas, and certified financial planner Gary Cook, also of Dallas. Living trusts, family limited partnerships and offshore trusts will be discussed. For reservations, call 683-5181.

Franchising Seminar

"Franchising Your Business" will be held Nov. 29 at the Sheraton Fiesta in San Antonio from 8 to 11 a.m. Sponsored by Francorp, a national management consulting firm specializing in franchising, topics will include franchise criteria, marketing methods, legal requirements, earnings potential, growth potential and development costs. Fee is $145 and registration is available by calling 800-877-1103.

Keep it in the family

Many family owned firms tussle with the question of who should inherit the business. But few families have been tussling as long as Italy's Berettas, majority owners of the famed gunmaker that bears their name. Company President Ugo Gussalli Beretta, interviewed in Sky, the Delta Air Lines in-flight magazine, says the firm has been in his family for 14 consecutive generations. Beretta says he never thought of doing anything else for a living. He expects to some day hand the company over to the next generation of Berettas.

Jump through hoops

Basketball is soaring in popularity, according to statistics compiled by American Sports Data Inc. In 1994, 47.3 percent of Americans age 6 or older played basketball, compared with 35.7 percent in 1987. Hoops led all other team sports, easily outdistancing hard-surface volleyball, played by 32.5 percent last year, and softball, played by 31 percent. Basketball is picking up even more fans overseas — 184 countries received National Basketball Association TV broadcasts in 1994-95, compared with 85 just three years earlier, in 1991-92.

Headhunting

U.S. corporations have been on a high-level hiring binge, looking for presidents, chief operating officers and executive vice presidents, reports the Association of Executive Search Consultants. The trade group, which represents what are popularly known as head hunters, said a new generation of chief executive officers has been building new management teams, leading to a three-fold increase in requests for presidents, COOs and EVPs. Many of the chief executives have been drawn from company ranks, leaving them with vacancies and the need to recruit help.

Tellep to step down at Lockheed after orchestrating merger

By John Hendren
Associated Press Writer

BETHESDA, Md. — For Daniel Tellep, heading the world's largest defense contractor has been like sitting behind the wheel of one of those gleaming red convertibles men sometimes award themselves in their autumn years.

"It's the one you've worked and saved for, and now it's yours," says Tellep, 63, chairman and chief executive of Lockheed Martin Corp.

He picked up the keys on March 16, when Lockheed Corp. and Martin Marietta Corp. merged to form a $23 billion-a-year company. But after enjoying a seven-month spin, Tellep says it's time to let someone else behind the wheel.

On Dec. 31, Lockheed Martin president Norman

GETTING PERSONAL

Augustine assumes the CEO title he held less than a year ago when the sign in front of the Bethesda headquarters said "Martin Marietta." Tellep will remain as chairman.

The transition comes at a critical time, when Lockheed Martin and other defense contractors seek to wean themselves from the Pentagon's shrinking budget for major defense projects. Lockheed Martin still draws $7 of every $10 in sales from the federal government.

Augustine plans to continue a gradual expansion of the company's commercial businesses, sending up satellites to manage cellular phone systems and using computers to track deadbeat parents and collect parking fines.

Tellep plans to move back to Saratoga, Calif., enjoy season tickets at the San Francisco Opera that have gone nearly unused since he became Lockheed CEO in 1989, refine his watercolor painting and spend more time in his sailplane, leaving as his swan song the smooth execution of one of the country's biggest mergers.

"It's not my personal achievement, but the biggest thing I've been involved in and contributed to has been this merger," Tellep says.

The motive for merging was compelling: A bigger company was more likely to survive in a shrinking defense market and would be less vulnerable to any single program cut.

"The logic was, acquisitions were too expensive and ... to do nothing was not a viable long-term strategy," Tellep says.

Mapping out the future

Geographical software helps give small businesses a competitive edge

By Vivian Marino
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Like most entrepreneurs, Bill Wood is always eager to drum up new business, open branches, and, of course, boost revenue.

But not everyone faces Wood's obstacles: He runs an employment agency in a city with one of the nation's lowest jobless rates. Worse, there are dozens of competitors hunting for a shrinking number of heads.

Still, Nashville-based Wood Personnel Services managed to fill about 25 percent more jobs this year and soon plans to open another office in town.

Wood says he owes it all to his personal computer, or rather an evolving breed of mapping software technology known as Geographic Information Systems, or GIS, that allows him to wage some technological warfare against the competition.

"Temporary workers are our product. We were able to identify through the software where the temporary workers who would use our service lived in Nashville," Wood said.

Mapping Software Samples

A few software products that incorporate the mapping technology known as Geographic Information Systems, or GIS:

- ArcView, BusinessMap (Environmental Systems Research Institute, 1-800-447-9778 or 909-793-2853)
- Argus Professional, Argus Census Map (Munro Garrett Intl., 1-800-818-4118 or 403-237-9350)
- Atlas GIS (Strategic Mapping, 1-800-472-6277)
- First Street (Wessex, 1-800-892-6906 or 708-501-3662)
- MapInfo, MapMarker (MapInfo, 1-800-327-8627 or 518-285-6000)
- Mapitude (Caliper, 617-527-4700)
- Lotus 1-2-3 Version 5.0 (Lotus, 1-800-345-1043)

The monthly publication GIS World also publishes an annual directory of more than 450 companies that sell a variety of data services, including software and hardware products. The directory sells for $149.95 (plus 10 percent for shipping and handling), and can be ordered by calling 1-800-GIS-WORLD, or writing 155 East Boardwalk Drive, Suite 250, Fort Collins, Colo. 80525.

there, we were able to set up recruiting sites. We knew what community newspapers to place ads in.

"We had to do something. Unemployment rates were plummeting so much; they were as low as 1.9 percent here this year."

Although still a best-kept secret, GIS software is steadily making its way from the highest echelons of government and business, where it has been used for more than a decade, to the back offices of mom and pop organizations like Wood's 24-person agency. The technology actually was developed about 25 years ago to record environmental changes over large geographic areas and time.

What makes GIS so appealing to businesses is that it allows them to take a multitude of data that are geographically distributed — from proprietary sales information to Census Bureau statistics — and view it all on a colorful, layered map that's far more appealing than an ordinary work sheet of numbers.

Fund investor's challenge: Making all the pieces fit

By Chet Currier
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Many investors who own shares of good mutual funds don't necessarily own good mutual fund portfolios.

They may relish the challenge of ferreting out top-performing stock funds, bond funds that excel at balancing risk and return, and money market funds that consistently rack up safe, high yields.

But the individual pieces they collect, in the haphazard way that is typical of people with busy lives, may not fit together well at all.

Even if the assembled portfolio of funds jibes with some standard formula or published model portfolio, it may still be ill-suited to your individual situation in life and the goals you want to reach.

That, in summary, is the basis on which more and more advisers — financial planners, brokers, whatever name they go by — are selling their services these days. Many activist investors make the job a do-it-yourself project, rather than paying for somebody else's advice. But the message is still there: Fund investments will most likely work best if they are part of some cohesive plan.

"Customer portfolios reflect the confusion," says William Shiebler, president of Putnam Management Co. in Boston, adviser to the nation's seventh-largest fund family.

"The typical portfolio contains five or six funds from different companies, bought in different places on advice from different people, some of it good and some of it bad," Shiebler said at a recent conference sponsored by Morningstar Inc., the Chicago fund tracking firm.

"They may be good funds for retirement, but not for putting a kid through college in eight years. There is no coherent strategy."

The picture can be mud-

OF MUTUAL INTEREST

dled further by the sheer variety of modern investing formats. Do your direct fund investments dovetail with those you have in an individual retirement account or an employer-sponsored 401(k) retirement savings plan, where your range of choices is likely to be different or restricted?

These issues are prompting changes in the way funds are organized, packaged and sold. Many people in the fund industry believe the need for integration of fund investments represents one of their biggest opportunities for further growth.

Here come the holidays: Beware of over-spending

From Staff Reports

People who have not formulated a sensible plan for their holiday spending are the most likely to have serious debt problems, according to counselors with Consumer Credit Counseling Service, of Midland. Now is the time to begin executing their strategies.

Counselors suggest the following tips for consumers to avoid financial problems during the holidays:

- ✓ Review your budget and make sure it is still reasonable. Can you afford the amount agreed upon earlier or have unexpected expenses called for readjustments? Re-adjust and then stick to your budget. If you haven't established a budget, start now.
- ✓ Prioritize how much you will spend on gifts for each person. Explore cost-saving alternatives such as making gifts, giving homemade baked goods or even donating a small amount to charity in someone's name. Suggest new family traditions that help with expenses, such as drawing names or setting spending limits, or both.
- ✓ Start shopping now. Shop sales and take advantage of layaway plans. Don't get caught up in last-minute emotional buying. As the holidays get closer, people tend to pay more than they budgeted because they didn't take the time to shop for bargains, or think of clever, less expensive gift alternatives.
- ✓ Finalize travel plans and budget accordingly. Book airline and hotel reservations in advance in order to take advantage of early bird specials. Remember, though, that a fee may be charged if you decide to cancel or change those reservations.

Internet home to a growing number of investment scams

By Neil Roland
N.Y. Times News Service

Washington, Oct. 31 (Bloomberg) — The investment offer of a "whopping 20 percent rate of return" from low-risk bonds was no different from countless other get-rich-quick schemes.

Daniel Odulo's offer failed to disclose that he had no ongoing business, just an idea for an eel farm with which he had no experience, investigators said.

What set the Odulo plan apart was that it appeared on the Internet, the fast-growing, loosely controlled computer network, and was detected by federal regulators.

"We're probably catching just one out of 40 to 50 perpetrators on the Internet," said Ben Lewis, a North Carolina securities investigator who heads an Internet panel of state regulators. A growing number of investment scams are being run on the Internet and other on-line media as con men discover that they can reach an audience of millions with little cost or risk of detection, investigators say.

Federal and state regulators trying to solve the budding problem say that the massive flow of new electronic postings each day make cyberspace scams particularly hard to discover.

"Use of the Internet has the potential to develop into a major vehicle for fraud," said William McClucas, the Securities and Exchange Commission's enforcement chief.

Odulo settled the SEC charges in August, agreeing to commit no future fraud violation while neither admitting nor denying guilt. His offering was caught and halted before anyone invested, the SEC said.

While the medium may be sophisticated, the come-ons are as tawdry as ever and the victims as unsuspecting, regulators say. Among other offerings now under inquiry after being pulled from the Internet by state regulators:

- "Anti-aging pill is here now!... Two profit centers with 8 percent affinity bonus paid twice a month."
- "Investors needed to invest $500 to $3,000 in real estate venture (foreclosures) in Chicagoland Area. Return on investment is 300%."

■ "If you could make $10,000 in the next 30 days, would you take 20 minutes to learn how it is done?"

No one knows the scale of the actual fraud because there's no systematic way to monitor it, said Lewis, whose panel was appointed by the North American Securities Administrators Association. Regulators rely on random searches of the electronic media, he said. Computer experts note that the on-line media offer inherent advantages to would-be swindlers that are likely to frustrate law-enforcement officials.

"Someone can do a hundred different versions of a scam simultaneously in a single day," said Eric Brewer, a computer sciences professor at the University of California at Berkeley.

"It's going to be very difficult for investigators to discover that there are really a hundred frauds, and prosecutors are going to be reluctant to take on just one or two cases."

New York Knicks guard Derek Harper tries to block a pass from Utah's John Stockton Sunday during their game at Madison Square Garden.

Robinson hits for 18 as Spurs beat Cavs

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — David Robinson blocked seven shots and scored 18 points Sunday night, including two clinching free throws with 1.4 seconds left, as the San Antonio Spurs beat the winless Cleveland Cavaliers 84-81.

Robinson also grabbed 12 rebounds for the Spurs, who have won four straight since losing their season opener against Dallas, Cleveland, at 0-6, is off to its worst start since losing its first nine games in 1984.

Dan Majerle missed a long 3-point attempt for Cleveland at the buzzer.

Knicks 120, Jazz 110
NEW YORK — John Starks hit six 3-pointers on the way to scoring 26 points and Charles Oakley added 20 points and 10 rebounds to lead New York to a win over Utah.

The Knicks shot 61 percent in the first half in jumping to a 61-43 lead. New York led by as many as 24 points midway through the third quarter, then withstood a Utah rally late in the fourth quarter to win its third consecutive game.

Starks hit five 3-pointers in the first half and another midway through the third period. He had seven 3-pointers in New York's first five games.

Patrick Ewing had 17 points and nine rebounds for the Knicks. Clippers 108, Nuggets 103
LOS ANGELES — Brian Williams scored 19 points and Loy Vaught had 18 points and 12 rebounds as Los Angeles beat Denver, the winless Clippers' sixth straight loss.

Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf had 20 points and Dikembe Mutombo had 17 points and 18 rebounds for the Nuggets, who lost despite holding the Clippers to one field goal the last seven minutes.

Suns 112, Warriors 109
PHOENIX — Charles Barkley had 31 points and 19 rebounds but the Suns needed 3-pointers from Michael Finley, Wesley Person and Tony Smith in a 68-second span down the stretch to beat Golden State.

Person finished with 20 points and Finley added 18 for the Suns, who trailed by 17 points midway through the third and lost coach Paul Westphal to an ejection.
