Drive-by shooting

ODESSA — Three drive-by shootings occurred in a span of a little more than an hour early Friday morning, according to police reports. No one was injured as a result of the shootings, and Odessa police say they do not know yet if the incidents are related.

The first shooting occurred at 3:48 a.m. at La Promesa Apartments, 4590 N. Texas. Linda Muñoz Garcia, 38, reported a spray of bullets breaking through her kitchen window, hitting walls and cabinets. At 4:30 a.m., 19-year-old Summer Delace Pulis reported two bullets striking the window of an apartment at 3948 Englewood Dr. and lodging in the sheetrock of the ceiling. Later, at 5 a.m., 49-year-old Maria Serrano reported three shots fired from a shotgun in a car driving by the front of her residence at 901 Prairie St. Bullets struck a front window, a steel door and wood siding.

Police said that though three drive-bys in one night are unusual, there is no indication from reports at this time that the incidents are related.

Tanker rig explodes; one killed

■ The section of Loop 250 between Thomason Drive and Interstate 20 is expected to remain closed until late today.

By Rick López
Staff Writer

An Odessa trucker burned to death Friday when a fuel tank he was driving exploded at the Loop 250 overpass above Texas Highway 80.

State Troopers identified the victim as Stanley R. McCutcheon, 37, who was operating a tractor-trailer hitched to a fuel tank carrying 8,900 gallons of unleaded gas.

Officials said McCutcheon was trapped in the cab of the truck as it burned for more than an hour.

Woody Jackson, a trooper with the license and weight department, said McCutcheon had just filled the tank at the Shell Oil refinery in Odessa and was driving it to H-E-B grocery store in Midland.

The tank, Jackson said, was owned by the victim's employer: an Oklahoma Tank Lines substation in Odessa. It took hours for troopers to find out where the truck was from because its decals and license plates were burned beyond recognition.

Though traffic officers haven't completed their investigation, troopers suspect that the accident, which occurred around 2 p.m., was caused by a "faulty evasive driving maneuver."

Accident investigators theorized that, for some reason, a fuel tank scraped up against a concrete barrier left of the Loop 250 northbound lane, Trooper John Barton said.

The driver, trying to stay within his lane, jerked the steering wheel too forcefully, causing the vehicle to jackknife and flip on it's passenger side for an undetermined reason.

A woman who was driving behind the truck told troopers that she saw sparks fly when the metal tank struck the barrier. It scraped against the barrier for about 50 feet and spewed gasoline before bursting into flames, Barton said. The force of the blast cut the tank in half.

The explosion resonated like a sonic boom, said one witness who worked at a nearby warehouse. Motorists on the overpass said it jolted their vehicles.

Barton, who was dispatched to the accident on his way back from Ackerly, said he could see massive plumes of smoke from Howard County, which is about 45 miles east of Midland.

Eyewitness Mike St. John said he had just taken the north exit off the overpass when the tank exploded.

"I saw that truck flip into the air and then heard 'kaboom!' Then I saw the fire and smoke," St. John said. "You couldn't make out what (kind of vehicle) it was until the firemen got here and put it out."

For a while, St. John thought the burning vehicle could have been the welding truck that he had

Report says driver was intoxicated

■ Brett Smola was driving a Tahoe that ran into a Toyota Camry on Feb. 23, killing three, including Smola.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Brett Ronald Smola, the 32-year-old Midland motorist who was killed in a Feb. 23 Midland traffic accident in which a father and son also died, was legally intoxicated at time of his death, Midland County Justice of the Peace Michael Wallace said on Friday.

"He was almost double the limit" at 0.19 blood-alcohol level, Wallace said.

In Texas, "You are presumed to be intoxicated" at a 0.10 blood-alcohol level, noted Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre.

Had Smola survived the crash, he could have been charged with two counts of intoxication manslaughter, a felony, which, upon conviction, could result in a prison sentence, Schorre said.

Midland police reported that Smola's 1996 Chevrolet Tahoe truck, which had been involved in a minor hit-and-run accident on Andrews Highway just before the 8 p.m. accident, fled the scene at a high speed, turned onto McDonald Avenue and then onto Princeton Avenue.

There, Smola's west-bound truck ran a stop sign and crashed headlong into the broadside of a southbound 1997 Toyota Camry driven by Don "Buddy" Jobe, 32, of Midland.

Killed in the collision were Smola, Jobe, and Jobe's 13-year-old son, Zackary. Jobe's 9-year-old son, Shane, suffered severe head injuries and is hospitalized in Midland's Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

The accident left two wives widowed and three children fatherless.

"I feel sorry for both families," Wallace said. "You have two hurting families."

At time of the accident, Jobe, who was a volunteer basketball coach, was driving his sons between a church-league basketball game at Golf Course Road Church of Christ and at Alamo Junior High School.

Jobe, who was an engineering technician for Texaco Inc., a deacon, Sunday-school teacher, and praise-worship leader at Calvary Assembly of God Church in Midland, is survived by his wife, Janet, 38, a daughter, Sommer, 16, and son, Shane.

Smola, who at time of the accident reportedly was en route to his home in southwest Midland from his job as seafoods manager of the Midland H-E-B Food Store, is survived by his wife, Patricia, and two daughters, Brittni, 9, and, and Baije, 4.

"This incident, this situation, has not only hurt the two families but the community is also hurt," Wallace said.

Officials seek to secure $70 million for highway

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Local agencies are freeing up millions in planning dollars as momentum builds for a proposed expanded highway linking Midland/Odessa with U.S. 87 in Lamesa.

State Sen. Teel Bivins and representatives from cities stretching from Amarillo to Odessa are behind a push to secure $70 million in highway funds from the state.

If granted, those funds will provide a four-lane, divided highway from Midland to U.S. Highway 87 at Lamesa and an outer loop highway reaching from Texas 349, 4 1/2 miles north of Midland to Farm to Market Road 1788 near the Midland International Airport.

The metro area transportation committee of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission has pledged $6 million in transportation funds toward the construction of the Midland to airport bypass.

That is a significant portion of the money needed for the bypass construction, said past Motran chairman Charles Perry. "Another five or six million and it's well on the way," he said.

Headed by Midland Mayor Bobby Burns, this committee voted to bank the $6 million in discretionary highway funds expected over the next four years, said officials with Motran Alliance, Inc.

Those are from federal highway dollars disbursed to Texas' regional planning commission by the Texas Department of Transporta' on.

In a separate action, the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) officials in Austin have approved a request for study funds by Jose "Joe" Morales, regional engineer for the local TxDOT office.

Morales will be spending $250,000 per year over the next three years beginning on Sept. 1 for engineering studies along this route.

This $750,000 will be contracted out to private engineering firms for advance planning of this major construction project, which has yet to be approved at the state level.

In addition to city and county officials in West Texas and the Panhandle, state and U.S. senators and congressmen have been urging the state legislature to fund the project, said Perry of Motran Alliance, Inc.

'Rally at the Roundhouse' expected to draw 2,500

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

More than 2,500 people are expected to attend a rally of concerned citizens in Santa Fe, N.M. today to draw attention to the plight of the oil industry.

Concerned Citizens for an Energy Policy say that predatory pricing has devastated the oil industry in New Mexico, resulting in staggering unemployment and a decline in revenues in affected areas. The event, dubbed Rally at the Roundhouse, will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the rotunda of the capitol building.

The group held a rally last Saturday in Hobbs, N.M., which drew almost 2,000 people from New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma, making it the largest oil rally to date addressing the current economic situation in the American oilfields. Some 112 oilfield vehicles, including rigs and transport trucks, were also on display at the rally.

Dwayne Taylor of Lucky Services, Inc. in Hobbs, chairman of the CCEP, has said he expects a crowd of more than 2,500 people at the Santa Fe rally. A caravan of at least a half a dozen buses will carry participants from Southeastern New Mexico to the state capital, while others from as far away as Colorado and Utah are also expected to attend.

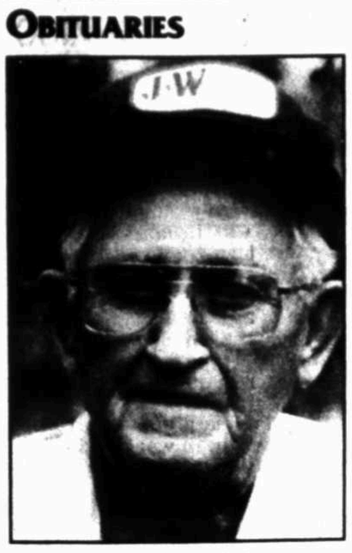

Members of the CCEP will be addressing a joint session of the legislature and meeting with Gov. Gary Johnson in an effort to spell out exactly what the current economics are. They will present incentives to help preserve the oil and gas industry in New Mexico until federal legislation can be put in place to assist the entire industry nationwide. New Mexico is the nation's sixth largest oil producer of crude oil.

CCEP is a grass-roots organization established to draw attention to the rapid demise of the oil and gas industry, and to urge the formation of legislation to aid in its rebirth.

The United States currently imports 57 percent of its oil from foreign sources. It is this growing dependence, warns the CCEP, that has cost thousands of jobs and breached national security.

OBITUARIES

Barnes Cauble

Barnes Raleigh Cauble died Wednesday, March 3rd, 1999 in Baylor Medical Center, Dallas, Texas following a short illness.

He was the eldest son of the marriage of members of two generations of West Texas ranch families.

Born March 20, 1913 south of Midland on "3 WELLS", the ranch his parents, Rockdale "Fred" and May Tullous Cauble homesteaded, in 1900.

He was born in the age of huge West Texas ranches where cattle was king and the horse was the only means of transportation. In 1922, he saw the large ranches cut up into smaller ranches and farms. His father, Fred, and cowboy friends roped the first T&P Railroad train engine when it arrived in Midland around the turn of the century. This was a great day — Midland being halfway between Fort Worth and El Paso — and the West was now open to move goods to market, east and west. His father had one of the first cars in Midland and things seemed to be progressing rapidly, but they had seen nothing yet. When black gold was discovered in the Permian Basin in the 1930's, the oil was of such fine quality it became the benchmark for grading oil throughout America. Midland was now known worldwide. It was on the backs of families like Barnes and his ancestors that Midland grew and prospered. They went to work everyday, worked hard, played by the rules, took care of each other and did not think of themselves as uncommon.

Barney, as he was affectionately known by all who knew him, was a lifetime resident of Midland, except for the year and a half he spent in Fort Worth learning the butcher trade. In October, 1938 his father died suddenly and as was customary sixty years ago, with his young bride from Arkansas, Maxine Ezell Cauble, Barney moved back to the family farm to assist his sister and younger brother in caring for their ailing mother, who passed away July 4, 1939.

For the next forty plus years, Barnes operated his own wholesale/retail meat business, "BARNEY'S MARKET", known throughout the area for handling only the finest quality of meat. When he retired, it marked the end of a unique era in Midland's history; you could walk in his market, pick out the carcass with the marbling you wanted, decide what thickness your steaks should be and watch as they were expertly cut and trimmed.

Barney was also a lover of the outdoors and hunted and fished over much of the Southwest and parts of South America. He was a great admirer of fine guns and was one of the finest marksmen in America, having won the Veterans division at the Grand American Trapshoot in 1982, along with many other trophies through the years. This love and respect of guns began as a small child in observing his pioneer grandfather, Raleigh Tullous on the old "Quien Sabe" Ranch shoot his pearl handled pistols that he wore daily.

Barney volunteered for the Army in WWII, and when the Army recognized his expertise in the meat business, he was made N.C.O. and put in charge of procuring and distribution of meat to Army bases throughout the southwest. He was always the best at what he did. Not much for change, Barnes kept the same mail box number his parents had taken in 1900.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Maxine, in 1985. Survivors include two sons, Fred Cauble and wife, Jennifer, of Fort Worth, Texas and Kenny Cauble and wife, Lisa, of Lincoln, Nebraska; one daughter, Kathy Ferron of Midland, Texas; nine grandchildren; three step-grandchildren; one great-grandchild; one sister, Viola Wickizer of Aledo, Texas; one brother, Richard C. Cauble of Midland, Texas; two nieces; and three nephews.

Funeral services have been scheduled for 3:00 p.m Sunday at Memorial Christian Church with Reverend Bob Porterfield officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is handling the arrangements.

Robert Walker

Robert C. "Bob" Walker went to be with his Lord and Savior on March 3, 1999 at Midland Memorial Rehab. Hospital due to complications of Marfan Syndrome. Visitation with the family will be from 7-9 p.m. Friday at Ellis Funeral Home. Funeral Services are set for Saturday, March 6, at 11:30 a.m. at Midland Lutheran Church. Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He was born to Fred Albert Walker and Chloe Norsworthy Walker, December 15th, 1927 in Denton, Texas. He was preceded in death by his parents; a brother, Harry Norsworthy Walker of Arlington, Texas; two sisters, Elizabeth Caroline Walker of Denton, Texas and Anna Fred Corbin of Stephenville, Texas. Bob was baptized in the Baptist Church as a youth and confirmed in the Lutheran Church in December 1952. Bob and Marie are members of Midland Lutheran. He graduated from Bowie High School in 1945 and married Annie Marie Hoeldtke on May 26, 1945 at Bowie, Texas, by Pastor Danielson of the St. Peter's Lutheran Church of Bowie. He went to work for the Continental Oil Company in 1945, having thirteen different assignments and moving to Midland, Texas in April, 1960. He retired in May 1985 after 40 years of service. Since Bob was diagnosed with Marfan Syndrome in 1988, he suffered an aorta dissection in 1988 and was air lifted to the Methodist Hospital in Lubbock, Texas where Dr. Bricker's team of surgeons working into the early morning were able to repair it. His aorta dissected again January 2, 1995 and he was again air lifted to Lubbock for another early morning operation. Only this time the break was in his back, close to his spinal cord, leaving him partially paralyzed in his legs and one side of his vocal cords.

He is survived by his wife, Marie, of 53 years; two sons, Robert C. Walker, Jr. and wife, Sandy and David F. Walker and wife, Wanda; a daughter, Elizabeth Anne Cihonski and husband, Rick; five grandchildren, Raquelle Trimble and husband, Jerry, Robert and wife, Vanessa, David, Matthew and Jon Walker; and 2 great-grandchildren, Brian Walker and Chance Trimble. He is also survived by his sister-in-law, Francis Walker and family, and the many in-laws from the Hoeldtke family. He will also be missed by his many friends and his a special rabbit, "Shadow". Pallbearers will be Richard Brandt, Martin Meissner, Keith Copper, Carroll Reeves, Jack Brown and Mike Barbian. Honorary pallbearers are Dr. R. P. Sarva, Dr. James Barnett, Dr. Ronald Novak and The Young at Heart Group of Midland Lutheran Church.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be directed to Midland Lutheran, 2705 W. Michigan or the National Marfan Foundation, 382 Main St., Port Washington, NY 11050.

Vastly new scene awaits Clinton in Central America

By John Rice
Associated Press

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Supporters of El Salvador's government party still rouse themselves at rallies with their Cold War-era anthem:

"El Salvador is the tomb where the Reds will wind up. ... Fatherland, Yes! Communism, No!"

Their leftist rivals, who fought a guerrilla war against the government until 1992, still have their red flags, socialist chants and Che Guevara T-shirts.

But a funny thing happened after the Berlin Wall collapsed.

Which party now proposes a wider opening to American banks and claims to want greater power for local government? It's the Che Guevara T-shirt crowd — the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front — which the United States devoted vast efforts to fighting just a decade ago.

What's happening now in El Salvador is just one part of the vastly different political scene President Clinton will find when he arrives in Central America on Monday.

"It is our role to develop, modernize capitalism," said Facundo Guardado, the former guerrilla commandante who is now the Front's candidate in Sunday's presidential election.

Guerrilla wars in all four countries Clinton will visit — El Salvador, Nicaragua, Honduras and Guatemala — have ended. The left, once kept from power by fraud and murder, now finds its path to power blocked by the ballot box.

Despite hideous poverty, needless infant mortality, shabby education, awful roads, crime and corruption throughout the region under right-wing governments, the left remains distrusted by many. It has been unable to win a national election in Central America since the peace accords, despite backing away from openly socialist policies.

With the collapse of the Soviet Union's model and aid, "there's been a forced acceptance" of free-market economics by leftists seeking a chance at power, said George Vickers, director of the Washington Office on Latin America, a group that monitors political and human rights issues.

The left in countries such as El Salvador has had to make compromises to appeal for votes, so some see it as "selling out" its core supporters, Vickers said. "It is caught in something of a squeeze."

Meanwhile, "the mechanisms of governments in power maintaining themselves are at least as strong in Central American societies as they were in Chicago in the old days. ... Doling out favors, construction works projects, all that kind of stuff," Vickers said.

In Nicaragua, where the leftist Sandinistas held power for a decade, they remain a major political force. But they have lost two consecutive presidential elections.

In Guatemala, the former National Revolutionary Unity guerrillas are just now starting to create parties ahead of national elections late this year. Leftists have done poorly in previous local elections.

In Honduras, which saw only a small guerrilla conflict in the 1980s, political power is dominated by two centrist parties, somewhat like the Republicans and Democrats in the United States.

In El Salvador, the rightist Republican Nationalist Alliance is heavily favored to win its second five-year presidential term since the peace treaty.

The ruling Alliance candidate, former congress speaker Francisco Flores, has cautiously dodged debates and largely avoided specific policy statements. Instead, he has bought long blocks of television and radio time and filled it with supporters' praise of his character.

In recent polls, he led Guardado by about 20 percentage points — although votes for minor parties mean he may not reach the 50 percent needed to avoid a runoff in late March or early April.

Leftist parties in Nicaragua and El Salvador have divided into hard-line and moderate factions — Guardado's party is an example of the latter.

He speaks of making El Salvador's capitalist system more efficient and less corrupt — as well as of devoting more resources to farmers and giving less preference to banks linked to Alliance politicians.

He admits that the Alliance has mellowed since the mid-1980s, when U.S. officials linked party founder Roberto D'Aubuisson to the right-wing death squad that assassinated a Roman Catholic archbishop.

"If the right moves toward positions of the center or center-left, perhaps it will do things similar to me, and that does not frighten me at all," Guardado told foreign reporters this week.

But he admitted that the adjustment to peaceful politics had not been easy.

"In general, the political struggle is much more difficult, much more complicated" than war, he said. "War is simple. You kill or are killed."

Politician shot to death in Mexico

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — The campaign manager of a leftist opposition party was killed in a drive-by shooting outside his home in the Pacific coast state of Guerrero, authorities said Friday.

Tensions have risen in Guerrero — where leftist rebel groups are active — after the ruling party narrowly won the state governorship in elections which the opposition Democratic Revolution Party claim were marred by fraud and vote-buying.

The killing was "the first political assassination" stemming from the Democratic Revolution's protests against the February election results, said Felix Salgado, the party's gubernatorial candidate.

Gunmen with automatic rifles drove past the home of Aurelio Penaloza, 38, and shot him repeatedly Thursday night, police said. The assailants were riding a red pick-up truck with Mexico City license plates.

Penaloza, who served as deputy attorney general in 1996, later joined the Democratic Revolution as a state legislator and also managed Salgado's campaign.

During state elections last month, the Democratic Revolution candidate lost by a razor-thin margin in what party officials called "the most corrupt" election in the history of Guerrero.

British balloon team has close encounter with Boeing 747

LONDON (AP) — A pair of British balloonists trying to circumnavigate the Earth had a surprise visit Friday when they crossed the path of a Boeing 747.

Andy Elson and Colin Prescot were flying 25,000 feet over the South China Sea on Friday when the captain of a passing airliner radioed a request to approach the balloon, the team's London spokesmen said.

The balloonists agreed, and when they looked out their observation dome they saw hundreds of passengers peering out of windows and snapping pictures.

"It was an amazing sight for us, particularly seeing so many friendly faces smiling at us after only having each other to stare at during the past 16 days," Elson was quoted as saying.

Neither the pilots nor ground control could identify the airline.

By Friday, the two were over the Taiwan Straits southeast of the China coast, heading for northern Japan and a jet stream they hope will catapult them across the Pacific to British Columbia.

With a second balloon team moving steadily along behind them, the British pair hope to pick up speed on the crossing to North America and in about two weeks' time to become the first balloonists to fly nonstop around the world.

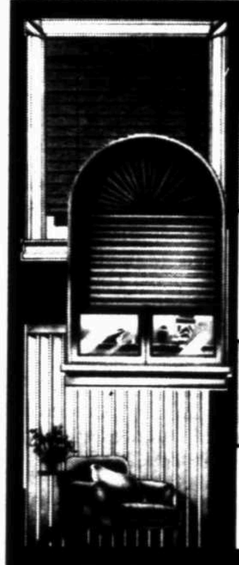

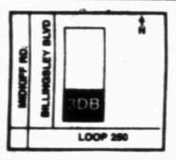

Their Cable and Wireless balloon, which launched from Spain on Feb. 17, has broken balloon endurance records for time aloft.

Prescot and Elson have been painstakingly negotiating the winds of North Africa, the Indian subcontinent and south Asia to avoid being drawn into China, which has denied them permission to fly through its air space.

HIGHWAY: Perry optimistic about the future of the effort

From 1A

Midland and Odessa have made on this project," Burns said.

Motran has been pushing this project as a way to expand transportation infrastructure throughout the Permian Basin.

"We are indeed grateful for these developments," Motran chairman Bob Barnes said of the funding and legislative support.

"Motran, with strong support and help from the two communities, has worked long and hard to achieve this start. As we have said in the past, highway projects are always long-term, but if we had not started when we did in 1993, we would not have reached this success today," Barnes said.

Perry described the local push for this project as "bullish" and was optimistic about the future of the effort.

When TxDOT officials in Austin have a funding surplus after funding major state projects, those with plans and studies completed are far more likely to get the green light, Perry said.

"That $750,000 (in local TxDOT planning money) is probably the most important step," Perry said, praising the work Morales has put into this project.

Another Motran long-range goal is the expansion of the La Entrada al Pacifico trade corridor between West Texas and Mexico, with hopes of establishing a four-lane, divided corridor between the Pacific coast port of Topolobampo and Midland/Odessa.

Gov. Patricio Martinez of Chihuahua City, Mexico recently informed Motran officials that the government of the state of Chihuahua has completed engineering studies for a 12-mile bypass of the Tigua mountains just south of the city of Ojinaga on the Texas border.

The existing road through the mountains deters truck traffic as the steep grades wear on brakes, tires and drivetrain components, La Entrada supporters have said.

When this bypass highway is completed, there will be a good road for truck traffic from the industrial center of Chihuahua City all the way into West Texas, Motran officials said.

REPORT: Jobe's blood tested free of alcohol

(From 1A)

dent of public relations for the San Antonio-based H-E-B Food Stores, said that Smola "was off work at time of the accident. That much I know. He wasn't working for us at time of the accident."

The involvement of alcohol in the fatality "just underscores the tragedy," De La Garza said. "The nature of this is just unfortunate."

Wallace said that the toxicology report, which was prepared by Universal Toxicology Laboratories in Midland, indicated no drugs other than alcohol in Smola's blood. Jobe's tested blood was free of drugs and alcohol, Wallace said.

The Rev. Randall McDonald, who is the Jobe family pastor at Calvary Assembly of God Church, last week said that "they (the Smola family members) are going through tragedy (too)," McDonald said.

"Midland needs to surround these people (the Jobe and Smola families) with the love of Christ," McDonald said. "This is the time that this town, this city, must come together and just love them. It is just necessary that the whole town just love them. I know a lot of people are hurting."

Of Mrs. Smola, the minister's wife, René McDonald, said on Friday, "Bless her. That (Smola's blood-alcohol level) is going to make it harder for his (Smola's) wife."

According to Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), of the 3,510 traffic fatalities in 1997 in Texas, 1,748 or 49.8 percent were alcohol-related deaths. Nationwide that year, of the 41,967 highway deaths, 16,189, or 38.6 percent, were alcohol-related deaths.

EXPLOSION: Repairs to overpass estimated at $250,000

(From 1A)

seen his co-worker, Mark Hanz, operating right before the accident. Seconds before the explosion, the two men had waved at each other as St. John passed Hanz on the overpass.

St. John saw the flames only after he had driven past the overpass slope, so he couldn't tell if Hanz was still behind him. As he made a U-turn back to the scene, St. John finally saw Hanz's vehicle come out from the black clouds.

"If the explosion would have happened two seconds later, it would have been him," St. John said. "I'm glad he's OK."

Hanz said he didn't really notice the wreck until the tank burst.

"It felt scary, really strong," Hanz said. "Then there were other smaller explosions after the big one."

Witness Jim Brigwell, who was idled at a stop light facing the overpass, said the flames must have shot at least 200 feet into the air.

St. John and the other witnesses stopped their vehicles and ran toward the truck, but once they saw the raging fire, they knew it was too late.

"By the time you got there and saw the flames, you knew there was nothing you could do for anyone," St. John said.

At the height of the fire, 16 firefighters were squirting foam from three fire trucks, Fire Captain Mark Fields said. Not only were they weary about the truck's deadly contents, but the burning gasoline that dripped 500 yards south from the crash site. Gasoline had also spilled off the overpass and onto a pasture leading to a cluster of warehouses just yards away.

"They did a great job," Fields said of the rescue team. "They got here quickly, contained it and put it out with the foam. We were lucky that we knew it was gasoline. It made our job much easier."

He said this was the worst tank explosion he'd seen since 1984, when another gas tank exploded on East Interstate 20.

Gas tanks, in general, are made of heavy-duty material that must meet federal guidelines, but when they sustain such serious damage, "it's just impossible for something like this not to happen," Jackson said.

Glen Larum, a spokesperson for the Texas Department of Transportation office in Midland, said the stretch of Loop 250 between Thomason Drive and Interstate 20 will remain closed until late today.

A crew of 15 TxDOT workers were scheduled to begin tearing up 350 yards of street scorched by the fire as soon as a Haz-Mat team finished vacuuming the remaining fuel from the ruptured tank.

TxDOT will also replace a steel guardrail shredded by the truck and concrete barriers charred by the flame, Larum said.

Though the crew could probably put on a new layer of blacktop today, the barriers and guardrails will have to be substituted with temporary concrete dividers and traffic barrels until new supplies arrive, Larum said.

His crew estimated that the repairs could cost about $250,000.

Officials with the Oklahoma Tank Lines office in Odessa declined to comment on McCutcheon's death. Troopers said it could be days or weeks before they complete their accident report.

One man injured in hit-and-run rollover

By Daniel Arp
Staff Writer

A passenger in a truck that rolled over three times or more was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital with a laceration to the back of his head after an apparent hit-and-run near the intersection of Front St. and Main St. late Friday evening.

Police said the injuries to the victim did not appear life-threatening.

The accident occurred at approximately 8:30 p.m. Both trucks were traveling eastbound on Front on the inside lane. Witnesses who said they were passengers in the truck that later fled claimed the two trucks had been racing.

The Ford F-150 that eventually rolled over was traveling in front of a silver GMC pickup, which tried to pass the truck on the right by cutting in front of a smaller car, police said.

The driver of the silver pickup did not have room and struck the rear passenger end of the F-150 sending it into a spin, police said. The GMC then hit the F-150 again while it was sideways, causing it to roll over three to three-and-a-half times, police said. The truck eventually came to rest upside down in the field on the south end of Front St. The driver was not injured. The passenger suffered head injuries but was conscious when police arrived on the scene.

The blue Mustang was not hit by either truck, police said.

The silver truck fled the scene and was later recovered near the intersection of Illinois and Baird, though the driver had abandoned the vehicle. Police had yet to find the 18- to 20-year-old man driving the truck Friday night.

Police did not know yet whether any of the parties involved had been drinking.

The passengers in the silver truck said the driver may have had a drink. They did not disclose his name or address, police said.

Police had not determined whether any of the parties involved had been wearing their seat belts or if the passenger had been ejected. He was lying on the curb about 100 feet from the accident scene when they arrived, police said.

Police Reports

Student arrested

A neighborhood situation escalated into a verbal confrontation in the hallways of Midland High School Friday morning. As a result, one student has been arrested, charged with assault of a uniformed officer and booked into Culver Youth Center while seven others received three-day suspensions and were released to their parents.

Barney Welch, executive director of public information for Midland Independent School District, explained that the eight students were having a verbal confrontation inside the high school when they were approached by an MISD police officer and told to go to class.

When two of the students persisted in their confrontation, he said, the officer began taking them to the principal's office. The student who was arrested resisted, the officer persisted in taking them to the office and the student began striking at the officer. Welch said the officer was not injured.

Airport evacuation

The Midland International Airport terminal was briefly evacuated Friday afternoon when someone accidentally set off the alarm system.

Airport officials said the incident lasted several minutes and then people were allowed back into the building.

Midland IRS office to host 'Problem Solving Day' for local taxpayers

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Permian Basin taxpayers with tax problems will have a chance to meet face-to-face with Internal Revenue Service decision makers today from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as the IRS hosts its second "Problem Solving Day."

Also in attendance will be Mark Zuverink, IRS taxpayer advocate out of the agency's North Texas region office in Dallas.

The problem solving days were implemented after hearings before the Senate Finance Committee about IRS abuses and the IRS Commissioner promised to make the agency more user-friendly.

During the first "Problem Solving Day" at the IRS Midland office in the Dinero Plaza office building at 1004 N. Big Spring, 37 taxpayers worked with IRS officials.

Phil Beasley, a spokesman for the IRS out of its Dallas office, said that the biggest benefit of the event is face-to-face contact between taxpayers and agency officials.

He and Zuverink agreed that during the first round of "Problem Solving Days" last year, some very tough, long-standing cases were resolved.

They cited one of a Dallas woman held partially responsible for taxes owed by her ex-husband, a business owner. The woman had been paying the agency $200 a month for at least 10 years and the IRS had also kept her refunds. Zuverink held that though the woman had signed a checking account signature card and was listed as secretary of the business, she had never written any checks or participated in operation of the business. She was awarded a $26,000 check by the IRS and Zuverink said she cried when she received it, saying "Problem Solving Day works!"

Zuverink said that changes made after the Senate hearings resulted in not only creation of "Problem Solving Days" but an expansion of his duties. He is also more independent, no longer reporting to the district director but directly to the national tax advocate.

Though his office has been expanded, "there's a lot I can't do. I can overturn some decisions that are procedural, not legal," Zuverink said. "For example, if an agent says 'You owe us $10,000 so we're going to take your car,' I can say 'Wait a minute, isn't there some other arrangement?' I can make sure property seizures are a last resort."

He can also negotiate decisions with the district director and, if he still doesn't agree with a decision, issue an order that, again, is not related to legal actions, he said.

Taxpayer rights have also been expanded, with taxpayers who owe money able to offer a compromise or propose a payment schedule that can be negotiated with IRS agents. Now, he said, an installment plan, especially if the taxpayer owes $15,000 or less, is virtually guaranteed. And taxpayers who owe a large sum they may never be able to pay can propose a lump sum settlement that the IRS will consider as long it benefits both the agency and the taxpayer, he said.

He said that taxpayers who feel they have been treated unfairly, rudely or inappropriately by an IRS agent can contact the local office manager immediately or contact his office, where the complaint will be assigned a caseworker, at any time.

A 16-year veteran of the IRS, Zuverink insists that the agency is changing, in several ways.

As required by Congress, he said, the agency is serious about proving it is becoming friendlier toward the taxpayer. Some new regulations, such as the "Innocent Spouse" regulations that can protect a spouse from problems his or her spouse or ex-spouse is having with the IRS in some cases, are beneficial, he said.

Others, while well-intended, are unnecessarily alarming taxpayers, he said. For example, he said, Congressional requirements that the IRS notify taxpayers that the agency can talk to their bank, employers or neighbors during an investigation or notifying a taxpayer who thought he had reached an installment agreement with the IRS that he owes money and the IRS wants it paid.

The agency is also changing the way it operates, with taxpayers now having 24-hour access to employees through a toll-free number and access to over 5,000 IRS forms, booklets and other products through the agency's Internet home page. Beasley said the agency is looking at other changes, including possibly opening smaller, storefront offices.

The two added that increased use of electronic filing of returns is improving their accuracy and speeding up refunds to taxpayers in addition to reducing the labor required by the agency.

The agency's main focus, Zuverink said, is to show that "we're serious about assessing and collecting the proper taxes. That's the role we have to play and we have to ensure that everyone pays their taxes and collects it fairly. Over $1.8 trillion was collected last year, and if you have a 1 percent shift in compliance, that's a tremendous shortfall in revenues. But we can't let the public feel they can put whatever they want on a return and they won't be audited. There is nothing the public resents more than someone who's not paying his fair share."

Beasley added the taxes collected by the agency fund the government and "you see that money in the roads we drive on, in our schools, our hospitals, our airports, in the weather forecast we listen to. It comes back and benefits everyone's standard of living."

Stalin's grandson rallies neo-Stalinists

MOSCOW (AP) — From certain angles, Yevgeny Dzhugashvili bears a chilling resemblance to the late Soviet dictator Josef Stalin. His mustache is thinner and his eyes less penetrating, but it's easy to understand why he was once chosen to play Stalin on film.

Nor is it any coincidence: Dzhugashvili is Stalin's grandson.

A retired Soviet army colonel who spent most of his life in history's shadows, Dzhugashvili has now set forth on a quixotic — and, most people would say, disturbing — quest: to revive his grandfather's legacy.

To that end, he has helped create a Stalin Bloc of political extremist groups, and has been speaking at angry rallies of nationalists and communists, many brandishing portraits of his grandfather.

"I've always been proud of Stalin," Dzhugashvili, 63, said in an interview this week in Moscow. "And when they started to insult him and launched a slander campaign, if I'd had a gun I would have killed those people."

On Friday, Dzhugashvili joined about 300 other neo-Stalinists in Stalin's hometown of Gori, Georgia, to mark the 46th anniversary of the dictator's death, on March 5, 1953.

"The right cause of Stalin will prevail!" declared rally leader Panteleimon Georgadze, chairman of the Unified Communist Party of Georgia. The group placed Soviet flags, pinned with black ribbons, near Stalin's old home.

Such rallies are held annually in Georgia. Similar groups hold frequent demonstrations in Russia, where a small fringe movement of neo-Stalinists has tried to gain leverage from Russia's economic crisis and reclaim the Kremlin.

Few people knowledgeable about Russian politics believe a new Stalin is to be found in this ragtag collection of extreme nationalists, anti-Semites and radical communists.

Bodies of victims flown out from Uganda

By Dianna Cahn
Associated Press

KAMPALA, Uganda — The bodies of eight foreign tourists slain by Hutu rebels were sent home Friday as FBI and other investigators sought to discover how the rebels obtained such detained information on the adventure travelers.

Coffins bearing the bodies were transported Friday from the capital, Kampala, to Entebbe airport, where a private flag-folding ceremony was held in memory of two Americans who died in the attack.

Rob Haubner, 48, and Susan Miller, 42, both Oregon-based executives at the computer chip giant Intel, were among eight foreigners hacked and bludgeoned to death by rebels in southwestern Uganda's Bwindi National Park.

Four rangers were also killed in the rebel raids and six other tourists who had hope to view rare mountain gorillas on their vacation managed to escape.

The flags were given to the slain Americans' friends, Susan Studd and Bob McLaurin, also Intel employees, who survived the rebel attack and who departed on the same flight for Britain, said U.S. Embassy Public Affairs Officer Virgil Bodeen.

Bodeen said they would bring the flags to the victims' families.

The Ugandan government, meanwhile, said it would make every effort to ensure the safety of future tourists.

The Ugandan army has intensified a joint manhunt with Rwandan forces to capture or kill the Hutu rebels who attacked three tourist campsites on Monday, killing the two Americans as well as four Britons and two New Zealanders.

"I can assure you we are doing everything possible so that this point of tourism is safe for everyone," said Ugandan Foreign Minister Eriya Kategaya. Still, the rebels — Rwandans who are based in eastern Congo — may be difficult to stop because of Congo's uncooperative government, Kategaya said.

Notes left by the assailants said they were targeting Britons and Americans because their governments supported the government in Rwanda.

Kategaya met with the ambassadors from the United States and Britain on Friday to express his country's condolences.

An FBI team had arrived earlier in the week and detectives from Scotland yard arrived late Thursday to participate in the investigation. Kategaya said he hoped the investigation might shed light on how the rebels had obtained such precise information about the campsites.

"Maybe there are some collaborators within our population, because the attacks seemed to have been very precise and clear with prior information on the positions of the people and even the look of the place," Kategaya said.

He said he was unaware of the detention of a suspect, which had been reported in a government-owned newspaper Thursday.

The Rwandan rebels were among Hutu fighters who fled Rwanda in 1994 after killing more than 500,000 minority Tutsis and politically moderate Hutus in a government-orchestrated genocide.

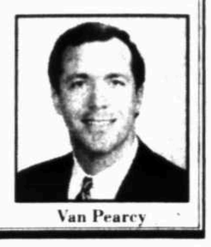

Since then, they have been operating from bases in Congo, launching cross-border attacks in Rwanda and more recently inside Congo and in Uganda.

Nancy Powell, the U.S. ambassador to Uganda, said a note that the rebels gave to an American survivor of the attack criticized the U.S. and British governments for supporting Rwanda.

She said it was signed with the acronym ALIR, or the Rwanda Liberation Army, which put a bounty on the heads of Americans in Rwanda in 1996. The group has claimed responsibility for several rebel attacks in northwestern Rwanda in 1996 and 1997.

Law allowing rape victims to sue attackers found unconstitutional

By Jean McNair
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — For the first time, a federal appeals court on Friday declared unconstitutional a 1994 federal law that allows rape victims to sue their attackers for violating their civil rights.

Ruling 7-4 in the case of a Virginia Tech student who sued two football players, the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals called the Violence Against Women Act a "sweeping intrusion" into matters traditionally handled by the states.

The court said Congress stretched too far its interpretation of its right to regulate interstate commerce when it passed the law.

A lower court judge had previously thrown out the Virginia Tech student's lawsuit. The student, Christy Brzonkala, was the first person to sue under the Violence Against Women Act.

The appeals court ruling is binding only in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Eileen Wagner, one of Ms. Brzonkala's lawyers, said she expects the case to go to the Supreme Court.

"They can either give it a thumbs-up — in which case people will use this law, which they are reluctant to do now — or a thumbs-down, which would encourage Congress to go back to the drawing board and rewrite the thing," Ms. Wagner said.

Ms. Brzonkala, who has allowed her name to be disclosed, said she was raped in a dormitory. She did not report the alleged incident for several months and no charges were filed against the two players, Antonio Morrison and James Crawford.

Their lawyers did not return calls for comment.

Ms. Brzonkala's lawyers defended the Violence Against Women Act by arguing that gender-motivated violence affects commerce by imposing medical and legal costs on victims, inhibiting travel by those who fear violence and lessening productivity.

The appeals court rejected that line of reasoning.

"Such a statute, we are constrained to conclude, simply cannot be reconciled with the principles of limited federal government upon which this nation is founded," Circuit Judge J. Michael Luttig said.

The appeals court said Congress could not enact the law under the Constitution's 14th Amendment, either. The 14th Amendment bars states from denying people equal protection under the law.

In a dissent, Circuit Judge Diana G. Motz wrote that Congress had clear authority to enact the law.

Getting down to specifics on possible Social Security changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — After more than a year of pledges on Social Security, Republican leaders and President Clinton have put competing plans on the table, starting in earnest the debate over the retirement program's future.

But their common ground is limited: Both sides want to use today's big budget surpluses to prepare Social Security for the flood of aging baby boomers expected to leave the system short of cash a decade from now.

The differences are over how much of the surplus to commit right away — and how to use it. And the incentives to compromise may be few.

Clinton's plan, essentially preserving Social Security's original benefit structure by promising money from the general Treasury in the future, has proved popular in public opinion polls.

White House officials say they're willing to pursue a bipartisan compromise. "Our goal is unequivocally to pass legislation," said economic adviser Gene Sperling.

But Democratic allies such as labor unions, seeing an issue that might help their party win back control of Congress, are urging Clinton not to give up too much to the conservatives who insist something must be done to curb the program's rising costs.

"There still continues to be this very big chance that nothing gets done," said AFL-CIO chief of staff Gerry Shea.

Adding to the potential for a political standoff, Republicans this week announced a plan to counter Democrats' accusations that they're eyeing money — for tax cuts — that rightfully belongs to Social Security.

The Republicans would limit the possible uses of the portion of the budget surplus that comes from Social Security taxes. The money would have to be used to overhaul the program, or, if lawmakers couldn't agree on changes, it would automatically be used to help pay down the national debt.

Clinton's own rescue plan also calls for using the surpluses that Social Security's trust fund is expected to run in the near term, while baby boomers are still working.

But Republicans say Clinton's plan doesn't live up to his own rhetoric.

"He's running around saying he's the one saving Social Security," said Senate Budget Committee chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M. But it's the GOP plan, he said, that would "lock away every penny ... for our nation's elderly."

The issue arises because the government's budget surplus in 2000 will come solely from Social Security taxes. Clinton would spend some of the expected $133 billion — about $50 billion — on other programs including defense, education, Medicare and new government-subsidized retirement accounts.

Administration officials say that spending would be made up to Social Security in later years, after income taxes start producing a surplus, too.

They also complain the GOP has not yet spelled out specific steps to improve Social Security's long-term finances, and have no explicit plan for Medicare, the also-overburdened health program for the elderly.

"What's missing is a complete picture of how surpluses and even debt reduction will be used to actually benefit both Social Security and Medicare," Sperling said.

Republicans have their own politically potent complaints about Clinton's plan.

The president wants to use $3 trillion in surpluses over the next 15 years to pay down the national debt, push economic growth and thus increase future tax revenues. He would earmark the money for Social Security and Medicare by placing IOUs from the general Treasury in the programs' trust funds.

The government would invest the rest, about $700 billion, in the stock market for Social Security.

But Republicans, backed by business groups, argue such government investment would expose the financial markets to harmful political influences.

And because Clinton's plan would do nothing to cut Social Security's costs, Republicans say its claims on future budgets could crowd out money for other priorities.

"It doesn't make the tough decisions you're going to have to make," said Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa.

For their part, Republican leaders hope they can win support from moderate Democrats to divert some Social Security taxes into personal accounts that Americans could invest in the stock market on their own.

If individuals could grow such nest eggs, then Social Security checks could be reduced. During the transition, surpluses would likely be needed to pay benefits promised to current and near retirees unable to profit from the accounts.

However, most Democrats are confident they would come out ahead in a political standoff over private accounts by arguing they would be risky.

Once Republicans put more details on the table, Clinton's plan "will begin to look better and better," said Rep. Bob Matsui, D-Calif.

Court-ordered bagpipes are the punishment in Fort Lupton, Colo.

FORT LUPTON, Colo. (AP) — They don't take requests at this after-hours club and there's definitely no karaoke. The DJ is a police officer, and he's ready to bounce anyone who dances or talks.

Employing something like the aversion therapy in the movie "A Clockwork Orange," Municipal Judge Paul Sacco requires people convicted of violating the city's noise ordinance to listen to music they don't like.

The noise scofflaws — most of whom got in trouble for playing their stereos too loud — gather once a month, on a weekend night, to listen to court-selected songs. The offenders are mostly young, so there is a heavy dose of lounge music, including Wayne Newton and Dean Martin, plus some Navajo flute music, bagpipes and John Denver songs.

During the most recent session, the group of seven heard one of the judge's own jazz compositions, "I'm Sleeping in My Car."

Seventeen-year-old David Mascarenas was apparently scared straight.

"I'm not going to jam no more," he said. "I took my stereo out already. I don't want to be hassled no more."

Court coordinator Patrice Redearth, who suggested the one-hour music treatment, said she got her first playlist by asking her 17-year-old "what the kids would hate."

The worst selection was the "Barney" theme song, said Ryan Bowles, 21, adding, "If you laugh they cite you for contempt."

The DJ policeman, Joe Morales, said there's something annoying for everyone, and it works. He recalled having problems "with one kid three or four times. He came here once and he hasn't been back."

A requiem might have been the most appropriate choice for the most recent session, Feb. 26. It certainly looked like a funeral. One teen wore a shirt that read, "I hate this town."

"If they fall asleep their eyes will be pried open," said clerk Patrice Redearth, in a joking reference to "A Clockwork Orange," in which a gang member involved in a rape is forced to watching sickening videos, his eyes pinned open, while listening to Beethoven, his favorite composer.

Suspect in gay killing described as skinhead wannabe

By Jay Reeves
Associated Press

SYLACAUGA, Ala. — Steve Mullins talked tough, shaved his head, wore boots and racist T-shirts and was said to get his kicks taunting blacks. His new buddy, construction worker Charles Butler Jr., was quieter.

Mullins

Gaither

Together, police say, they beat a gay man to death and burned his body on a pile of kerosene-soaked tires in a killing that has once again turned a national spotlight on violence against homosexuals.

Mullins, 25, and Butler, 21, are charged with murdering 30-year-old textile worker Billy Jack Gaither on Feb. 19. According to investigators, the men said they did it because Gaither had made sexual advances on them.

President Clinton offered his prayers to Gaither's friends and family and compared the slaying to the dragging death of a black man in Texas and the fatal beating of Matthew Shepard, the gay Wyoming college student who was lashed to a fence.

AP Photo

The Tavern, a nightclub Billy Jack Gaither visited the night of his slaying, is shown in Sylacauga, Ala. Police said Thursday that two men who claimed to be angry over a sexual advance by Gaither plotted his murder, beat the 39-year-old man to death with an ax handle and then burned his body on a pyre of old tires. Steven Eric Mullins, 25, and Charles Monroe Butler Jr., 21, were arrested Monday in the slaying of Gaither, 39, on Feb. 19.

"In times like this, the American people pull together and speak with one voice, because the acts of hatred that led to the deaths of such innocent men are also acts of defiance against the values our society holds most dear," Clinton said in a statement.

In Sylacauga, about 40 miles southeast of Birmingham, Larry Hammond, who owns The Tavern, a country-music bar frequented by Mullins and Gaither, said Mullins once taunted blacks at a restaurant. Wearing a Ku Klux Klan T-shirt, he pressed his back against the window so the diners could see the racist insignia, Hammond said.

Mullins also once caused a scene in the bar by using racial epithets when blacks entered, Hammond said.

Mullins was known as a skinhead wannabe who acted tough but backed down quickly if challenged, the tavern owner said. "He tried to walk around like a bully, but he wasn't," Hammond said Friday. "He was mostly talk."

Mullins and Butler, a high school dropout, began hanging around together about a month ago, said Terry Butler, Butler's stepmother. They had known each other for several years because Mullins lived with Butler's half-brother, she said.

Mrs. Butler said she never heard her stepson express hatred of gays.

"It wasn't a big issue here, but it might have been when he was out with his friends," she said.

Butler blamed the actual killing on Mullins, his relatives said.

"He told his daddy he didn't know the other guy was going to do that," said a Butler uncle, Freddie Limbaugh.

"He ain't ever been into a lot of trouble. He's just a typical boy," said Butler's grandmother, Wilene White. "It's just hard for me to believe he did it."

Sheriff's Deputy Al Bradley would not comment on which man took the leading role.

Mullins' relatives could not be located. Neither man had an attorney yet.

A memorial service may be held for Gaither next week in Alabama. Details had not yet been worked out.

"There are a lot of people still out there who believe gay and lesbian people are a threat," said Bruce Steele, editor of The Advocate, a gay magazine. "Until that is educated away, these sorts of things will continue to happen."

'Mob mouthpiece' enters mayor's race in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS (AP) — For more than three decades, Oscar Goodman has been the devil's advocate, representing such mob figures as Meyer Lansky, Tony "The Ant" Spilotro and Frank "Lefty" Rosenthal.

Now he wants to be mayor of Las Vegas.

The 59-year-old Goodman said Friday he will join the crowded race to become mayor of America's fastest-growing city. Mayor Jan Jones is stepping down after eight years in office.

In a news conference in his office near the city's Glitter Gulch, Goodman addressed the image issue.

"I've represented people as vigorously as I know how, protecting their constitutional rights," Goodman said, clutching a yellowed copy of the Constitution. "I've represented judges and mayors. If anybody has a problem with that, they shouldn't be allowed to vote."

The election is May 4. If a candidate gets more than 50 percent of the vote, he wins the race outright. If not, the top two vote-getters face off on June 8.

Goodman said he wants his representation of organized crime figures to be an issue.

"All I've ever done is to make sure that constitutional guarantees have been applied to my clients," he said.

"I've appeared in courtrooms all over the United States, and on the Senate floor, and have lent nothing but dignity to my clients. I will bring that same dignity to the city of Las Vegas."

One of Nevada's top political consultants, Billy Vassiliadis, said Goodman's candidacy should not be underestimated.

"He's an interesting guy," Vassiliadis told the Las Vegas Review-Journal. "I think he can capture some people's imagination. Remember, Jesse 'The Body-Mind' Ventura is governor of Minnesota."

Goodman's client list over the years includes Spilotro, the reputed Las Vegas overseer for the Chicago mob who was executed with his brother and buried in an Indiana corn field in 1986; Rosenthal, a former book operator with alleged mob ties who left Las Vegas after his car was bombed; and Mike Tyson, who was stripped of his boxing license by the Nevada Athletic Commission for biting Evander Holyfield's ears in the ring.

Four men wrongly convicted of murder settle for $36 million

CHICAGO (AP) — Four black men imprisoned for a double murder for two decades until some journalism students proved their innocence won an unprecedented $36 million settlement from the county Friday.

Attorneys called it the biggest settlement ever reached in a civil rights lawsuit stemming from police misconduct in the United States.

The four men had sued Cook County, claiming the sheriff's officers who investigated the 1978 case were racists who hid evidence that would have helped the defense while ignoring leads pointing to the real killers.

Two of the wrongly convicted men went to death row; the other two got life sentences.

All were freed from prison in 1996 and pardoned after Northwestern University journalism professor David Protess and three students proved a prosecution witness had lied. Three other men were later convicted of the killings and sentenced to life in prison.

"No amount of money can be satisfactory for what has been done to us," said one of the men wrongly sent to death row, Dennis Williams, 42.

"If someone asked me 18 years ago, 'Can I buy your life for $100 million or can I borrow your life for $100 million for 18 years?' I would have said hell, no."

The four men said they plan to donate some of the money to efforts to help free other inmates who have been wrongly convicted. They declined to say what their other plans were.

Williams, Kenny Adams, Verneal Jimerson and Willie Raines were in their 20s when they were convicted of the gang rape and murder of Carol Schmal and Lawrence Lionberg. The two were abducted from a gas station. Their bodies were found in the Chicago suburb of Ford Heights.

"It's something that never leaves you," said Adams, 41, who was serving a life sentence. "You think about it every day. You can never feel comfortable again."

Williams works with Protess investigating cases. Adams is employed at United Parcel Service and Jimerson does detail work on cars. Raines, who lives in Wisconsin, did not attend a news conference with the three others. As of a year ago, he was a maintenance man at a nursing home.

"This is the county recognizing the extent of the gross misconduct and the extent of the incredible injuries these people suffered," said Larry Marshall, a Northwestern law professor who represents Adams.

Cook County State's Attorney Richard Devine, who was not in office when the case was prosecuted, said the men had asked for $77 million.

"While the plaintiffs annot recver the years they spent incarcerated, this settlement compensates them fairly," Devine said.

In all, 11 men have been released from death row in Illinois since capital punishment was restored — as many as have been executed.

The man most recently freed from death row was freed last month — also after Protess and some of his students obtained a confession from another man.

Schools get estimates of new grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Clinton seeks backing for a second year of money for his 100,000 new teachers program, the administration gave the nation's schools Friday an estimate of how much they will get this year.

In July, the federal government will send the states a total of $1.2 billion for their school districts. Congress approved the money last year to hire about 30,000 new teachers in the early grades.

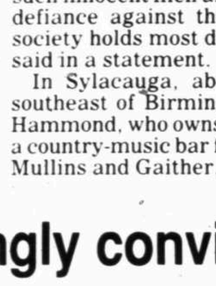

Clinton's goal is to help school districts nationwide hire and train 100,000 new teachers over seven years to cut pupil-teacher ratios in the first through third grades. The national average now is 22 students per teacher, and he wants that reduced to 18 or fewer.

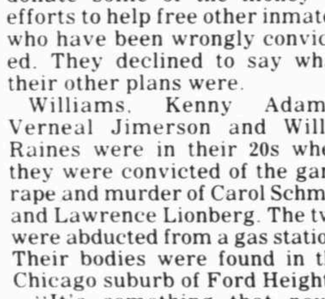

Democrats will try to add a second year of financing to the education bills currently moving through Congress.

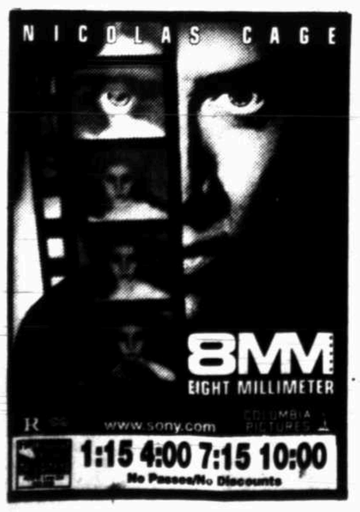

The district-level estimates issued Friday — based on formulas that include school enrollments — range from $61 million for the New York City schools to less than $12,000 each for Delaware's Sussex County schools and Polytech School District.

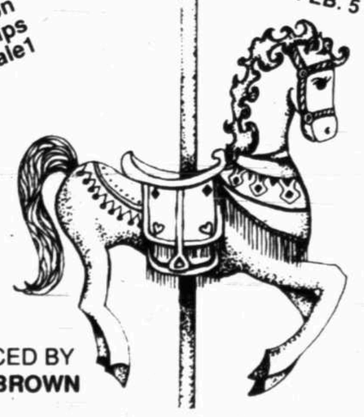

The latter figure wouldn't be enough to pay for even one new teacher.

But schools can use the money for training to help aides and others become fully certified to teach.

Richard Kiley, Broadway's 'Man of La Mancha,' dies

By Michael Kuchwara
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Richard Kiley, who was Broadway's original "Man of La Mancha" and had countless other roles on TV, in movies and on the stage, died Friday at 76.

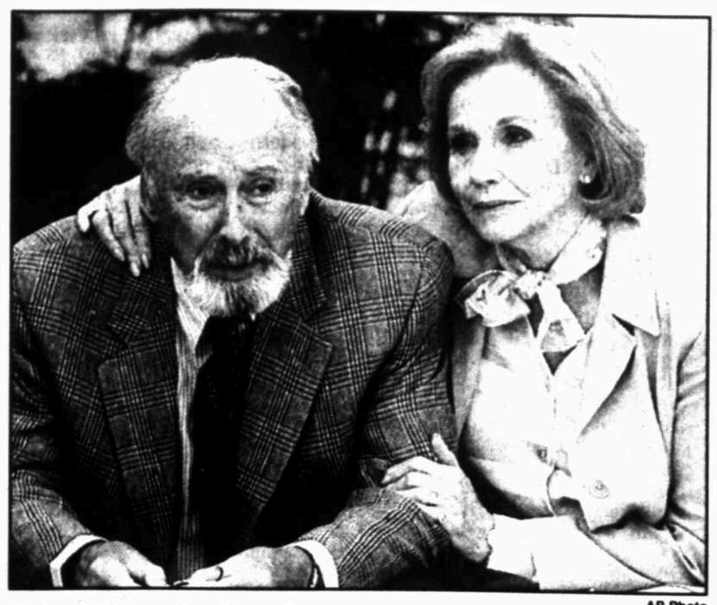

Kiley, who died in Warwick, N.Y., was a strong-voiced baritone who became of one of Broadway's stalwart leading men in musicals and dramas of the 1950s and '60s.

It was in "La Mancha," that Kiley, singing "The Impossible Dream," had his biggest success. He won a Tony Award for his role as Don Quixote in the musical, which opened in 1965 and ran for more than five years. He returned to Broadway in revivals of the show in 1972 and 1977.

The actor also won a Tony for his performance in "Redhead," a Victorian murder-mystery musical that starred Gwen Verdon and was directed by Bob Fosse.

On television, Kiley appeared in "The Thorn Birds," one of the most successful miniseries of all time, and won an Emmy Award for playing an Australian sheep farmer. He also won Emmys for the TV series "A Year in the Life," which lasted only a year on NBC, and for "Picket Fences."

Among the movies in which he appeared were "The Blackboard Jungle," "The Little Prince," "Looking for Mr. Goodbar," "Endless Love" and "Patch Adams."

Richard Kiley and Eva Marie Saint star in the Lifetime movie "Time to Say Goodbye," in this undated file photo. Kiley, an actor who performed in dozens of dramatic and musical roles on Broadway, in movies and television since the 1950s, died Friday. He was 76.

Kiley was born in Chicago and studied at Loyola University and Barnum Dramatic School. After serving in the Navy during World War II, he got his first big break touring in the national company of "A Streetcar Named Desire." He replaced Anthony Quinn in the role of Stanley Kowalski.

Kiley first gained notice in New York in 1953, appearing in a revival of George Bernard Shaw's "Misalliance" and winning a Theater World Award, given to promising newcomers. Later that year, he played the caliph in "Kismet" and sang the show's hit song, "Stranger in Paradise."

Kiley starred with Diahann Carroll in 1962 in "No Strings," the only Broadway musical for which Richard Rodgers wrote the music and lyrics. In this tale of an interracial romance, Carroll played a high-fashion model and Kiley, a jaded, prize-winning novelist.

Kiley also appeared on Broadway in an adaptation of Allen Drury's "Advise and Consent" in 1960 and Alan Ayckbourn's comedy "Absurd Person Singular" in 1974. He starred in a praised 1987 revival of Arthur Miller's "All My Sons."

Kiley's first marriage, to Mary Bell Wood, ended in divorce. They had six children. In 1968, he married Pat Ferrier, a dancer he had met in "Redhead."

Funeral services will be private.

Clinton hopes Lewinsky will get a chance to lead 'a good life'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton said Friday he hopes Monica Lewinsky "will be permitted to go on with her life" and that everyone hurt by the scandal of his relationship with her "will get the help they need."

"I don't wish anyone ill who was caught up in this, and she paid quite a high price for a long time," he said. "And I feel badly for that."

"You know, this was a pretty tough thing for everybody involved," Clinton added. "And I wish you well. I hope it works out all right for you."

Clinton was asked about Ms. Lewinsky at a news conference with Italian Prime Minister Massimo D'Alema, two days after her ABC interview and the day after her book was published.

The president said he had not watched the TV program. Asked for "any thoughts that might bring closure to this," he responded:

"What I hope is that she will be permitted to go on with her life, and I hope it'll be a good life."

Clinton went on: "I hope that the efforts that I have made and that I continue to make every day at home and at work will bear fruit. And I hope that all the people who have been hurt by this, including totally innocent people who have massive legal bills, will get the help they need. And I'm determined to do what I can to help them."

"The important thing is that the American people are virtually screaming at us to get on with ... their business," he said. "And I'm going to do my best to do that as well as I possibly can."

The first interview with Lewinsky aired Wednesday night to more than 70 million viewers.

Jobless rate up slightly; stocks surge to record highs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stock prices surged to record highs Friday as strong growth in new jobs combined with an easing of wage inflation to spark a second straight big rally on Wall Street. Unemployment edged up, but only slightly to 4.4 percent, as factories continued to miss out on the good times.

The Dow Jones industrial average soared 268 points, and combined with Thursday's 191 point advance, created the biggest two-day point increase in history, closing at a record high of 9,736. The bond market, which had been gripped by fears of imminent interest rate hikes by the Federal Reserve, posted big gains as well.

"The good economy just keeps getting better," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at Primark Decision Economics in New York. "We have tremendous job creation in the United States with a tight labor market but no inflation."

Overall, 275,000 jobs were created last month as mild winter weather in much of the nation spurred a hiring boost of 72,000 workers in the construction industry, the Labor Department said.

Retail establishments from restaurants to department stores also expanded employment by a strong 123,000, the biggest one-month gain in more than a decade.

But factories shed 50,000 jobs, bringing total manufacturing job losses over the past year to 337,000. Hardest hit last month were plants making clothing with a job loss of 15,000, the aircraft industry, which cut 6,000 jobs, and industrial machinery plants, which lost 7,000 jobs.

President Clinton hailed the strong overall job gains and said part of his discussions with visiting Italian Prime Minister Massimo D'Alema were devoted to exploring ways that wealthy industrial countries can help nations leveled by the global economic crisis.

"The United States cannot grow over the long run unless prosperity is increasing for our friends," Clinton said during a joint news conference.

While the widespread economic hard times have meant falling exports and increased import competition for many American manufacturers, strong job gains in service industries have kept the overall economy humming.

That has given the country 20 straight months with unemployment below 5 percent, a feat last accomplished in the late 1960s.

Since last April, the unemployment rate has remained in a narrow range between 4.3 percent, where it dipped in December and January, and 4.5 percent.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan worried anew last week about how long such low unemployment can last without increasing inflationary wage pressures.

But Friday's report showed those pressures actually decreased last month. Average hourly wages went up just a penny in February and, compared with 12 months earlier, were up only 3.6 percent, the smallest increase in nearly two years and down from a 4 percent year-over-year rise in wages in January.

The moderation in wages calmed inflation jitters on Wall Street.

In addition to the stock leap, a strong bond market rally helped push down yields on Treasury's benchmark 30-year bond to 5.59 percent compared to 5.69 percent on Thursday.

The investor euphoria — based on the belief that the Fed will not raise interest rates soon — occurred even though a separate report showed that consumer demand remained exceptionally strong at the start of the year.

The Federal Reserve reported that consumer credit swelled by $14.7 billion in January, the biggest monthly gain in more than three years, as consumers borrowed heavily to finance auto purchases and take on credit card debt.

The good economy is seen as a major reason that Clinton's approval ratings remained strong throughout his impeachment travails.

For February, unemployment among blacks was 8.3 percent and for Hispanics the rate was 6.7 percent, up only slightly from January's all-time lows of 7.8 percent and 6.6 percent, respectively.

Economists have speculated that one factor that has allowed unemployment to stay at such low levels without triggering higher inflation is that productivity gains — the output per hour of work — are much stronger than the government's statistics show.

"Productivity has got to be better than the official numbers. I don't see any other explanation for the combination of strong job growth and low inflation," said Sung Won Sohn, chief economist at Wells Fargo in Minneapolis.

Florida Senator Connie Mack says he won't seek re-election

By Larry Lipman
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Sen. Connie Mack of Florida, the third-ranking Republican in the Senate, will not seek re-election next year, sources close to the senator said Friday.

Mack, 58, chairman of the Republican Senate Conference, began calling friends and relatives Friday and is expected to make a formal announcement of his decision in Fort Myers, his home town, on March 13. Mack is beginning his 11th year in the Senate. "He simply feels it is time to move on," said one source, who asked not to be identified. "It was a personal decision not to run. It was a decision he and Priscilla have come to."

Mack will join Sens. Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York, Frank Lautenberg of New Jersey and Richard Bryan of Nevada — all Democrats — on the list of incumbents who won't seek re-election next year. So far, Mack is the only Republican who won't be running again, although Sen. William Roth of Delaware has hinted he will not seek another term.

Republicans hold a 55-45 majority in the Senate. Because 19 Republicans face re-election in 2000 compared to only 14 Democrats, observers see a chance that Democrats could regain control of the chamber in that election.

Sources said neither Mack nor his wife, Priscilla, is in ill health, and that their health was not a factor in the decision.

Mack and his wife have both suffered from cancer, which killed his brother and both his parents. Mack had a melanoma removed from his side shortly after coming to the Senate, and his wife underwent a mastectomy for breast cancer.

Both have led efforts to boost spending for medical research, and his wife has been an advocate of preventive screenings for breast cancer. Their daughter has survived cervical cancer.

Mack does not have any plans for what he will do after he retires, a source said.

Among those Mack spoke with Friday afternoon was Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., who has been Mack's closest friend in the capital since he was a newly elected congressman in 1982.

Jamie Wilson, executive director of the Republican Party of Florida, said "this was obviously a very difficult decision that the senator and Mrs. Mack came to. They decided it's time to do something different with their life. Senator Mack is an outstanding senator from Florida, and we look forward to working with him until his term is complete.

A banker whose full name is Cornelius MacGillicuddy III, Mack had virtually universal name recognition in Florida as the grandson of baseball Hall of Famer and former Philadelphia Athletics owner-manager Connie Mack. His maternal grandfather was Morris Sheppard, a Democratic senator from Texas from 1913 to 1941.

Some attribute Mack's political success to the decision of another popular Senate incumbent not to seek re-election.

In 1987, after three terms in the House, Mack announced his intention to challenge Sen. Lawton Chiles, then nearing the end of his third term. Shortly after Chiles began campaigning, he made a stunning withdrawal from the race.

While the Democrats waged a costly and bitter struggle that didn't end until mid-October, Mack was quietly stumping the state and raising money. When Rep. Buddy MacKay emerged as the Democratic nominee, Mack unleashed a barrage of television ads with the memorable slogan: "Hey, Buddy. You're a liberal."

Mack's slogan for himself was "less taxes, less government, more freedom." Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., stumping on MacKay's behalf, labeled Mack an "ideological wacko."

The election was a cliffhanger that wasn't decided until a recount. With a boost from absentee ballots, Mack won by less than 1 percent of the vote.

Six years later, after developing a reputation as one of the Senate's most conservative members — but with flashes of unpredictably, such as when he defended the rap group 2 Live Crew from charges of objectionable lyrics — Mack was re-elected with 71 percent of the vote. His nearly invisible Democratic opponent was Hugh Rodham, brother of first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Two years ago, Mack was on the short list of candidates being considered by GOP presidential nominee Bob Dole as his running mate. Mack had been frequently mentioned as a political ticket-balancer for the Republican candidate in 2000.

Bush helps Arkansas lawmaker at Dallas event

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. George W. Bush is lending some of his star power to U.S. Rep. Jay Dickey of Arkansas, headlining a private fund raiser Friday night for the four-term Republican whose district includes President Clinton's hometown.

Dickey, who voted for two of the four articles of impeachment considered by the House, was among several lawmakers targeted for defeat by Clinton, the New York Times reported last month. Clinton aides denied there was a political hit list.

Bush, who is exploring a presidential bid, offered to address Dickey's $1,000-a-couple dinner.

"He is from President Clinton's home state and had been threatened politically for making a tough decision, so I thought I'd try to help him as much as I can," the governor said.

Upon arrival for the dinner, Bush was asked about new polls that show him the leading GOP contender for the presidency.

"I don't worry about the polls," he told reporters. "Y'all need to worry about the polls. I'll worry about the vision."

The appearance came as Bush continued to cobble together a campaign team, turning to fellow elected officials for help.

Michigan Gov. John Engler and U.S. Rep. J.C. Watts of Oklahoma will be members of Bush's presidential exploratory committee, as will former Secretary of State George Schultz. The official roster, including about seven others, will be unveiled Sunday in Austin.

Bush wants to show a range of support that reflects the coalition he hopes to build. Watts is one of the nation's leading black elected officials. Engler is one of 16 Republican governors who have pledged their support to their fellow chief executive.

Bush announced Tuesday that he was forming the committee, the next step toward a full-fledged presidential race that his associates expect him to begin this summer.

In advance of Sunday's news conference, U.S. Sen. Paul Coverdell of Georgia announced Friday that he will serve as Bush's liaison to the Senate.

U.S. Rep. Roy Blunt of Missouri will serve a similar role on the House side, several GOP sources said. Blunt aides declined Friday to confirm his appointment, as did Bush representatives. But a source close to the Bush operation told The Associated Press that Blunt revealed his new assignment in a meeting Thursday night with lobbyists.

Coverdell said he intends to work on behalf of Bush "not only to encourage support in the Senate, but also in Georgia and throughout South."

Bush, who dominates the prospective GOP field in early polls, continues to reap endorsements from out-of-state politicians.

Nineteen of California's 26 Republican members of Congress urged him this week to launch a national campaign.

"We agree with your vision of a Republican Party, a party committed to fostering a 21st century America in which every individual is empowered to fulfill their God-given potential," they wrote the governor. "We believe your service on the national level would help each of us spread that inclusive vision of hope and opportunity throughout California and America."

And the Draft Bush 2000 Committee, comprised of current and former members of Congress, has gained new support since Bush's announcement that he would form an exploratory committee.

Twenty-five House members jumped on the Bush bandwagon this week, joining 55 who already had signed onto the Draft Bush 2000 effort.

Karen Silkwood's children break silence about their mom's death

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Karen Silkwood's children say it is still difficult to talk of their mother's death in a mysterious car crash 25 years ago near Crescent.

But they have broken their silence about their mother's Nov. 13, 1974, death in a story being released in People magazine Friday.

Michael Meadows, 29, of Tulsa, said he and his sisters — Dawn Lipsey, 28, of Tulsa and Kristi Meadows, 32, of Cleburne, Texas — made a pact years ago to not discuss their mother in the press unless all agreed. He said they agreed to speak to People if their privacy was respected.

"We talked about it and decided to speak out. We're still not seeking a lot of publicity," said Michael Meadows, who was 3 years old when his mother died. "It's not an easy thing to speak about."

Mrs. Silkwood, 28, was killed in a car accident while traveling from Crescent to Oklahoma City to speak with a New York Times reporter and a union organizer about alleged worker safety violations at Kerr-McGee's nuclear fuel facility near Crescent. A lab technician, she had been contaminated by plutonium.

Friends have said Silkwood was carrying a manila envelope containing documents that could prove that Kerr-McGee violated worker safety laws and falsified quality control reports involving the production of plutonium rods.

She was killed when her white Honda Civic swerved left of center on a straight section of Oklahoma 74, careening over a retaining wall head-on into a concrete culvert. The Oklahoma Highway Patrol ruled her death an accident caused by falling asleep at the wheel.

A Dallas accident reconstruction firm investigated the accident and drew the conclusion that her car had been bumped from behind and forced off the road. The manila envelope was not recovered.

Actress Meryl Streep starred in a 1984 movie about Mrs. Silkwood's life.

"We've always guarded our privacy with great care," said Michael Meadows. "To tell the truth, we were kind of glad that (publicity) died down after a while. It made it easier to move on."

Mrs. Lipsey was 18 months old when her mother died and Kristi Meadows was 5 years old.

In the People article, the siblings speak about their mother and her choices. Kristi Meadows said they felt left behind when Mrs. Silkwood decided to leave them with their father after their parents' divorce.

"I really, really appreciate what she did for the world," Kristi Meadows as saying. "I can't appreciate what she did for me, my brother and my sister."

People reports that Michael Meadows's clearest memory of his mother is a swat on the behind for using a soft drink rather than milk in a bowl of cereal.

Air Force's reorganization plan holds good, bad news for Texas

By Michelle Middlestadt
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An Air Force reorganization unveiled on Friday delivered mixed results to Texas, providing a vital new role and jobs for an Abilene base while stripping a San Antonio military research laboratory of manpower.

Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene will be home to one of the 10 expeditionary forces designated by the Air Force to rotate responsibility for deployments to trouble spots like Bosnia and Iraq.

The reorganization, to be put in place by next January, is the first major overhaul of the service's structure since the end of the Cold War. It is designed to ease the strain of increasing overseas missions and to improve morale at a time when military pilots are leaving in droves for higher-paying airline jobs.

"Some people are being run pretty ragged," acting Air Force Secretary Whitten Peters acknowledged.

Dyess' expeditionary force, like the nine others, will be on call for deployments during one 90-day period every 15 months.

As lead wing, Dyess' 7th Bomb Wing will oversee a force of about 175 aircraft, including fighter jets and heavy bombers as well as reconnaissance, electronic warfare, refueling and transport aircraft. The aircraft will be dispersed at different bases around the country, but the air crews will train together.

With its lead wing role, Dyess will gain 71 jobs. The base's 317th Airlift Group gains seven military positions. The announcement solidifies earlier announced gains. Last year, the Pentagon announced it would activate Dyess' 13th Bomb Squadron as a flying training unit with six B-1B aircraft, adding 282 military jobs.

"There are winners and losers in the Air Force announcement, and Dyess is clearly a winner," said Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas. "Being designated as an aerospace expeditionary wing demonstrates a longterm commitment to Dyess and Abilene."

Rep. Charles Stenholm, whose district includes Dyess, also applauded the news.

"The designation of the 7th Wing at Dyess as one of only 10 lead wings means increased responsibility and visibility and additional military personnel to help out with the workload," said Stenholm, D-Stamford.

With the Air Force shift in priorities, less funding will be given for non-space science and technology programs. That affects Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio, home to an Air Force research laboratory. The base will lose 145 military and civilian positions.

Mrs. Hutchison and Rep. Ciro Rodriguez, D-San Antonio, deplored the "harsh" cuts in research at Brooks and other Air Force research installations. They had urged the Pentagon not to make the $95 million in lab cuts.

"The Air Force must stop its hasty reduction-in-force schedule for Brooks Air Force Base and allow Congress time to do its constitutional duty of reviewing and approving the Department of Defense budget," Rodriguez said.

The Air Force hasn't made a "compelling" case for immediate cuts, Rodriguez said.

Brooks isn't the only San Antonio base taking a hit.

Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio will lose 105 jobs with transfer of the 820th Security Forces Group to a Georgia base and realignment of a 59-person training squadron to a neighboring installation, Camp Bullis.

In other moves:

■ Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, due to close by 2001, gains 99 jobs mainly from the conversion of the Air National Guard's 149th Fighter Wing from a general-purpose fighter unit to a training unit. When Kelly is closed, its missions will transfer to Lackland.

■ Ellington Field in Houston gains 19 jobs with the conversion of the Air National Guard's 147th Fighter Wing to a general purpose mission.

■ Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio gains a T-37 squadron and 12 jobs.

■ Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio gains 70 jobs and 2 T-1A aircraft from Corry Naval Air Station in Florida. But it loses 20 jobs with the reduction of the 100th Flying Training Squadron.

Passenger admits calling in bomb threat, officials say

HOUSTON (AP) — A 911 call warning of a bomb aboard a Continental Airlines flight from Houston to Ecuador was placed by a 32-year-old New York City woman who was frustrated because the plane left without her, U.S. Customs officials said Friday.

Flight 751 was preparing to take off on Feb. 11 when the bomb threat was relayed to the captain, who then returned the aircraft to the gate, officials said.

Passengers were disembarked and police searched the aircraft but did not find a bomb on board.

The flight was canceled, and Continental provided lodging, meals and telephone calls for passengers on the flight and rebooked their reservations for the following day.

A U.S. Customs special agent assigned to the anti-terrorist task force with the FBI determined that the 911 call was placed from a pay phone near the Continental Airlines service counter desk.

Suspicion focused on Zeneida Jacquel Mieles, a teacher's aide from Brooklyn, N.Y., who was scheduled to have been on the flight, but got to the gate after the plane had pulled away.

Airline officials said after her request that the plane return to the gate was refused, she and her family were sent to the Continental service counter, where her party was rebooked on the flight for the next day and they were provided with lodging, meals and free long distance telephone calls.

About the same time, the 911 call from a female was received, claiming that a bomb was aboard Continental Airlines flight 751.

Ms. Mieles' party was the only group that wasn't aboard the flight when it left the game on Feb. 11, airline officials said. Ms. Mieles and her family were late to the gate because they stopped for lunch instead of going directly to the departure gate, Continental said.

It's 1 vs. 2 for trip to Austin

Bulldogs slip by Martin, setting up 'Dream Game'

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The state's "Dream Game" is now officially set for 1 p.m. today at Chaparral Center.

Duncanville, ranked No. 1 in the state, will face No. 2 Midland High in the Region I-5A finals after both posted victories Friday night. The Panthers of Duncanville (32-3) defeated El Paso Montwood, 70-54, while Midland High survived Arlington Martin, 70-69.

The winner of this game will advance to the state tournament next weekend in Austin, meaning that one of the top two teams in the state will stay at home. Both MHS coach Jack Stephenson and Duncanville coach Phil McNeely see a good game ahead.

"We've got to play them (Duncanville)," Stephenson said. "I don't think there is any way around that. I hope we rise to the occasion. I think it could be a heck of a game before another packed house. I guess it doesn't get much better than this unless you have to coach in it."

MHS struggled to its win over Martin, a team that is in Duncanville's district and lost to the Panthers by 14 and 12 points in loop play.

Part of the problem was that post Jay Christian, who led all scorers with 24 points while hitting 10 of 13 shots from the field, got his fourth foul with 2:27 left to play in the third quarter. He didn't come back into the game until only 4:30 was left in the game.

"It didn't feel good sitting there on the bench because I thought I was having a good performance and helping the team," Christian said. "I was just hoping they could sustain the lead. It was like sitting in the corner when you were in elementary school."

"We need Jay Christian on the floor," Stephenson emphatically stated. "But we had someone step up and get the job done."

That someone was junior Blake Johnston, who did a Jekyll and Hyde imitation. Johnston looked like a brick layer in the first half, once even missing the backboard altogether on one shot.

Then the fourth quarter came with Christian on the bench and Johnston scored 11 of his 15 points, producing two coast-to-coast steals for points and two 3-point bombs. That held off the Warriors, who hit a 3-point shot at the buzzer to make it a one-point final.

"I was throwing up air balls in the first half. I didn't hit anything," Johnston said. "I figured, though, that it was a four quarter game. I had bad shot selection in the first half. I just had to keep my composure."

MHS assistant coach Craig Raughton said, "That's one thing about this team, if one guy can't get it done someone else steps up and does the job. Johnston hit some big time shots and had some big time steals. Somebody always comes through."

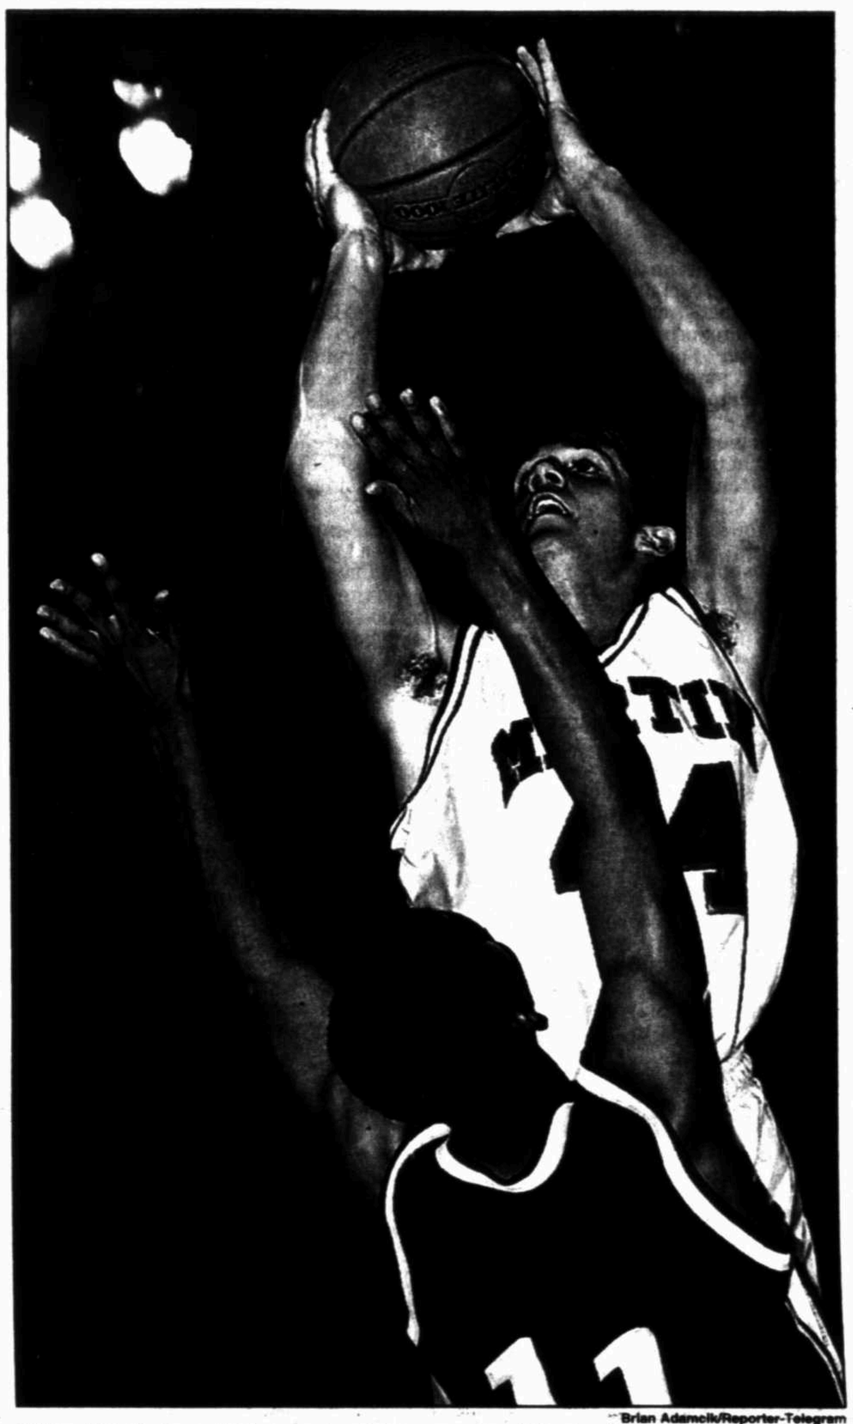

Brent Winter with 10 points and Charles Tatum with 15 rounded out the MHS attack while Martin had 22 from David Henry and 15 from Trey Williams. Henry, who averaged only 10 points a game in regular season, was over 20 in all his playoff games.

Duncanville started slowly against Montwood, trailing 14-13 after the first period. The Panthers took control with a 14-7 advantage in the second period and celebrated a lead a little too much for the

Winchell steals spotlight in Tall City Invitational

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

While Snyder and Andrews came into the Tall City Invitational girls golf tournament with their names atop the marquee, it was a Midlander that stole the spotlight.

Midland High's Shelly Winchell fired a 79 at Midland Country Club to steal the thunder away from a team battle from two of the top teams in West Texas at any classification.

In the team race, Snyder fired a team score of 353 to take a four-stroke lead over District 5-4A rival Andrews. Abilene High recorded the top District 4-5A score with a 358. Midland Lee is sixth at 375 and MHS is 11th at 402.

Winchell, a junior, was the lone player in the field to break 80 and will take a two-stroke lead on to her home course of Hogan Park for today's final round.

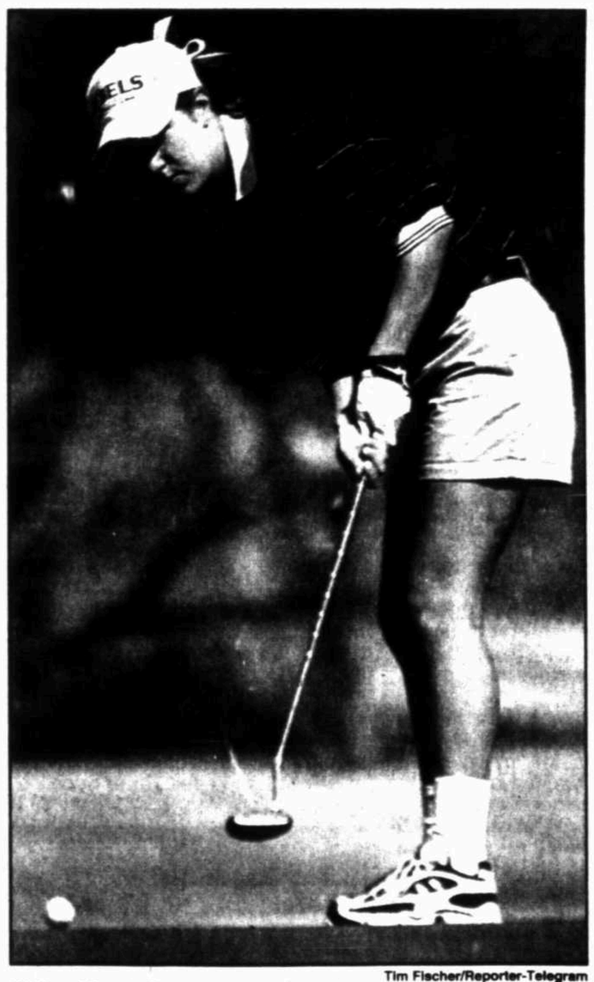

"I think it is neat (to have the lead)," Winchell said. "It is my home town. I wasn't happy with my round. I could have done a lot better. I still need to improve a lot."

This is the first time Winchell will take a lead into the final round. It should make for some intrigue. Winchell has a two-stroke lead over Lubbock Coronado's Lara Sowers. Also in the pack chasing Winchell are other 4-5A standouts, Odessa Permian's Jodie Duff (83), Abilene High's Devon Day (84) and San Angelo Central's Liz Wardlaw (87).

"Tomorrow will be hard. They are all good golfers," Winchell said. "I have been second and third but never first (after the first day). Last time, I played Hogan I shot 79. I should do good."

Winchell is searching for her first win in UIL (high school) competition. Getting that today could be a big boost

Lady Chaps make finals

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

ABILENE — For the third time in the program's short five-year history, the Midland College Lady Chaparrals will appear in the Region V championship game.

Friday's 83-62 win over South Plains in the Region V semis wasn't exactly pretty to witness thanks to 51 total fouls called, but it is a win that MC's fifth-year coach Ron Jones and the No. 4 Lady Chaparrals will take any day.

"It wasn't very pretty because I think both teams were playing very physical," said Jones, whose team will face Grayson County, a 68-58 winner over Howard College, in today's 3 p.m. championship game. "I was very, very happy with our defense. I thought we worked very hard defensively and I'm very happy with that."

The Lady Chaps' defense held South Plains to just a chilly 30 percent (20 of 65) from the field.

"Defense is the reason we won the game," said sophomore guard Natalie Goodall. "It's a great feeling to be in the championship game. We played great defense and we played with a lot of intensity and that's what coach wanted."

What wasn't exactly pretty for the Lady Chaps was their free throw shooting which was

Ramos pitches Rebels past MHS

By Andy Penney
MRT Correspondent

The baseball season is young and district play is still a few weeks away, but the Midland Lee baseball team sent a message to the rest of District 4-5A that the Rebels are for real.

Behind a strong pitching performance from Josh Ramos, Lee handed cross-town and district rival Midland High its first loss of the season with 8-2 victory in the winners' bracket finals Friday night at Christensen Stadium. The win propels the Rebels (7-3) into the championship game this afternoon.

Ramos pitched a complete game for Lee, scattering five hits through seven innings while striking out 12 and walking only one. Ramos struck out a least two Bulldog hitters in five of the seven innings.

"Josh came out ready to pitch tonight," said Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez. "He came up to me and told me he wanted to pitch against Midland High. I think playing them motivates him, and he showed that tonight."

While Ramos kept the Midland High offense in check, the Rebel bats came to life early and often. Lee pounded out 12 hits on the night with eight of the nine starters collecting at least one. They also put up at least one run in four of its six times to bat.

The Rebels jumped out to an early lead in the second inning when Nate Brignon slapped a single into left field bringing in two runs and extending the lead to 3-0. MHS finally found some offense in the fourth inning to cut into the deficit. After a Cotey-Joe Cswaykus single, John Schlaffer hit an RBI double and Jeff Brock followed with an RBI single to bring the Bulldogs within 3-2.

Lee responded to the Bulldogs' rally in its half of the inning with two runs of its own to extend the lead back to three, and Ramos shut down the Bulldogs the rest of the way. Ramos retired 10 of the last 11 batters he faced to pick up his third win of the season.

"I was just pumped," Ramos said. "I guess I just get that way when we play Midland High. I got down a little bit when they scored their runs, but I had to try to stay up for the team."

"Josh threw a good game," said MHS coach Barry Russell. "Our team is young and inexperienced, so this was actually good for us. That is why

Records fall at TAGS meet

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

Thanks to several young swimmers, two state records and one meet record fell by the wayside Friday evening at the Texas Age Group Swimming Short Course Championships at Mabee Aquatic Center.

Two swimmers in the 11-12 category both broke TAGS and state age group marks while one in the 13-14 division broke a meet record in the first day of extensive competition at the meet.

It was particularly telling that two of the swimmers involved in breaking marks were from the Houston area, as two suburban teams were atop the overall point standings after the first 38 events. The Woodlands was on top with a 182 points while Cypress Fairbanks Swim Club was in second place with 170.

Julie Galloway of Cypress was one of the day's biggest point scorers, opening the day by winning the 11-12 girls 100 yard individual medley in a time of 1 minnute and 1.20 seconds, less than half a second faster than Laura Holt's record in the even set in 1993. Galloway then went on to

Els moves within 2 shots of Doral lead

By Doug Ferguson
AP Golf Writer

MIAMI — Greg Kraft wants to prove he can win a tournament that counts. Greg Chalmers wants to prove he belongs on the PGA Tour. Both of them could have their hands full in the Doral-Ryder Open against one of the most proven players in the field.

Ernie Els, who decided to play this week only after losing in the first round of the Match Play Championship, cruised to a bogey-free 66 on Friday to get within two strokes of Kraft and give Doral the star quality it is used to on the weekend.

Five hours after Kraft sank an 18-foot birdie putt on the 18th for a 67 that put him at 9-under 135, the winds calmed and Els came charging from the middle of a pack with the kind of play that earned him the nickname "Big Easy."

"I've hit most of the greens in the last two days, so that's kind of nice," Els said. "If I keep hitting it like that, I think I'll be close."

Kraft, who won the Deposit Guaranty Golf Classic when it was an unofficial event but hasn't come close to winning in five years, was closer than anyone all day. Four of his six birdie putts were inside 5 feet.

Kraft will be paired Saturday with Chalmers, who also had a bogey-free 66 and was at 137 with Els.

Chalmers, 25, won the Australian Open in December just one month after surviving Q-school to get his PGA Tour card. He admits to getting intimidated playing along with the likes of Tiger Woods, David Duval and Greg Norman.

"You forget that maybe you can play a little bit yourself sometimes," he said. "It's hard to get used to seeing those guys around."

Woods and Duval are among six of the top seven players in the world who decided to take off a week after the Match Play, giving Doral it weakest field in years. The best news of all was that Els made an early exit from La Costa and didn't want to take another week off.

"It felt like I missed the cut last week," said Els, who had won the Nissan Open two weeks earlier. "I just felt that I was playing well, and if I take this week off and I had kind of last week off, I might lose out on that bit of magic."

Good news for Doral, bad news for the rest of the players near the lead who haven't cashed a first-place check in years, if at all.

Among those at 138 were Kent Jones, Tommy Armour III and Esteban Toledo, who is willing to give up a chance at his first victory if his wife goes into labor with their second child. Armour's only victory was nine years ago.

Another stroke and another decade behind Armour was Andy Bean, an 11-time winner but not since the Byron Nelson Classic in 1986, in which he earned a career-high $108,000. He can get that much for finishing sixth this week.

"I know what I need to do," said Bean, a three-time champion at Doral. "I need to practice, I need to play and I need to win again."

Els, a two-time U.S. Open champion, has no such memory shortage when it comes to winning. His victory in Los Angeles made him the first player since Jack Nicklaus to win at least once in each of his first six years on the PGA Tour.

Still, he figures he will have his work cut out for him this weekend, even if others around the lead don't carry the same credentials.

"They are good players," Els said. "I don't think anybody should take anything away from them. When they give themselves a chance, they're going to be on the leaderboard, and that's what they are doing.

"In a way, it's almost tougher to go out there and play this week because we're so used to seeing these superstars," he said. "Now, we've got new names. You don't know quite what to expect."

Kraft is one of those new names, although he's no stranger to being in the lead or feeling the pressure from being in contention on the weekend. He won the 1993 Deposit Guaranty with a birdie on the 72nd hole.

That came with a trophy and an asterisk — at the time, it wasn't an official tour event.

"It didn't matter to me if Tiger Woods, Curtis Strange or David Duval was the guy next on the leaderboard," Kraft said. "I was still trying to win. So even though it wasn't official, I have no complaints and I don't worry about it.

"I can still remember that day like it was yesterday, and the way I felt coming down the stretch."

Woods and Duval won't be there on the weekend, but Kraft will have a two-time U.S. Open champion right behind him.

And this time, it counts.

Cubs reward Wood with $690,000 deal

Associated Press

After bursting on the scene with a 20-strikeout game and winning the NL Rookie of the Year award, Chicago Cubs pitcher Kerry Wood was rewarded Friday with a $690,000, one-year contract.

The deal is by far the largest for a player with less than one year of major league service. Wood, who has 169 days in the major leagues and made the minimum $170,000 last year, will not be eligible for salary arbitration until after the 2000 season.

"I'm very pleased," Wood said in Mesa, Ariz. "The best part about it is that I don't have to worry about it anymore, not that I was worrying about it a lot anyway. I was just pretty much kept up to date on it."

The 21-year-old right-hander was 13-6 with a 3.40 ERA and 233 strikeouts in 1998. In addition to striking out 20 against Houston last May, which tied Roger Clemens' record for a nine-inning game, he set a major league record with 33 strikeouts in consecutive nine-inning games.

At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Baltimore Orioles second baseman Delino DeShields found out he won't need surgery to repair a fractured bone in his left thumb.

DeShields, injured during an intrasquad game Thursday, will wear the cast for about seven days before replacing it with a splint, but it will be 3-4 weeks before he can begin baseball-related activities and another 2-3 weeks before he can return to the lineup.

"They say 3-4 weeks before I can start banging on it, but hopefully it will be sooner," DeShields said. "I was looking forward to getting off to a good start. But hopefully I won't miss too many games."

On the field, Florida Marlins pitcher Alex Fernandez threw two scoreless innings and 29 pitches in an 8-1 win over Tampa Bay at Melbourne, Fla., his first outing since surgery to repair a torn rotator cuff. The game was his first since the National League championship series in October 1997.

"Awesome," he said. "I felt really good. I was able to locate my pitches, and it was good to be out there with different uniforms facing you. It's a step in the right direction."

At Kissimmee, Fla., Mark Wohlers' first appearance of 1999 was much like his outings in 1998.

■ Spring Training

The Atlanta Braves reliever faced eight batters in the third inning of a 7-4 loss to Houston, allowing four earned runs, three hits and two walks.

He fanned his first batter, Ken Caminiti, on a changeup and ended the inning by striking out Carl Everett with a low fastball. Craig Biggio and Ricky Gutierrez hit two-run singles.

"The results weren't there, but I'm not going to worry about the results," Wohlers said. "I think how I felt on the mound, the way I handled myself, and the pitches that I made, I feel good about. Obviously giving up four runs is kind of frustrating, but in the same token it's been a long time since I walked off the mound after finishing an inning. It's been quite some time since I've done that."

In other games:

Dodgers 5, Cardinals 4

At Vero Beach, Fla., while Davey Johnson won his debut as the Los Angeles manager, fans were disappointed Mark McGwire stayed behind in Jupiter.

The Dodgers opened their 52nd — and possibly last — exhibition season at Dodgertown with Johnson's favorite offensive weapon, a three-run homer, this one by Paul LoDuca. Rupert Murdoch's Fox Group is considering moving the team's spring site to Arizona.

"I'm very disappointed McGwire didn't at least make an appearance for the fans," said long-time Cardinals backer Charles Swisher, 72, who came from Pennsylvania to see the game.

Blue Jays 8, Yankees 6

At Dunedin, Fla., Hideki Irabu has a shaky spring debut for New York. While he allowed just two hits in three shutout innings, he struggled with his control, throwing just 26 of 48 pitches for strikes and falling behind 10 of 12 batters.

Royals 9, Indians (ss) 3

At Winter Haven, Fla., Cleveland's new infield combination of Omar Vizquel and Roberto Alomar executed its first double play. Jermaine Dye doubled and homered for Kansas City.

Phillies 7, Indians (ss) 6

At Clearwater, Fla., rookie Marlon Anderson had three hits and two of stolen bases. Bobby Abreu added two doubles and drove in three runs.

Reds (ss) 5, Rangers 4

At Sarasota, Fla, Mark Lewis singled home the winning run with the bases loaded in the 10th. Lewis also had an RBI single during a three-run fourth as the Reds overcame a 4-0 deficit.

Tigers 8, Pirates 6

At Bradenton, Fla., Karim Garcia hit a go-ahead homer in the eighth inning and Ben Candelaria also homered.

Reid enjoys watching his famous fight

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
AP Boxing Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — David Reid will fight for a world pro title in only his 11th bout since scoring arguably the most dramatic victory in U.S. Olympic boxing history.

■ Boxing

"Every morning when I'm home I like to watch that tape," the 25-year-old Philadelphian said.

What he watches is his one-punch knockout of Alfredo Duvergel that made him the Olympic 156-pound champion and the only American boxer to win a gold medal in 1996 at Atlanta.

On Saturday night, Reid gets a chance to add to his morning viewing pleasure when he challenges 33-year-old Laurent Boudouani of France for the WBA super welterweight title in a ballroom at the Boardwalk Convention Center.

Although Boudouani has had nearly four times as many fights as Reid, who is 10-0 with seven knockouts, the challenger was a 4-1 favorite.

Boudouani, 36-2-1 with 32 knockouts, will be making the fifth defense of his 154-pound title. He became WBA champion by knocking out Julio Vasquez in the fifth round of his 35th pro fight after his silver-medal performance in the 1988 Olympics at Seoul. There, he was knocked out by Robert Wangila in the second round of the 147-pound final.

The fight will be Boudouani's fifth in the United States and second in Atlantic City, where Reid has fought seven times.

"This will be sort of a graduation day for him," said Larry Hazzard, the New Jersey boxing commissioner who has watched Reid develop.

"It would be learning experience," Reid said when asked what a loss would mean.

Both Reid and trainer Al Mitchell, head coach of the 1996 Olympic boxing team, know he has the youth, speed and power to recoup a loss.

"I will win," Reid said Friday.

It certainly didn't look as if he would win his Olympic championship match. Duvergel was far ahead in the scoring when Reid nailed him with a right to the head.

"That punch changed my life," said Reid, who got a $1 million bonus for signing a contract with promoter America Presents.

Reid's title bid will be the second half of an HBO doubleheader. The telecast will begin at 10: 15 p.m. EST, and the opening match will be a 10-round heavyweight bout between veteran Lou Savarese, 38-2-1 with 32 knockouts, of New York and prospect Lance Whitaker, 18-0 with 16 knockouts, of Van Nuys, Calif. The 6-foot-8 Whitaker fights as Mount Whitaker.

Holyfield ready for third-round knockout

BURBANK, Calif. — Don't ask Evander Holyfield to be a weatherman because he hates predictions.

Instead, the WBA and IBF heavyweight champ would rather just say that he's going to knock out Lennox Lewis in the third round of their title fight on March 13 at Madison Square Garden in New York.

"It's not a prediction. Predictions are for weathermen," Holyfield said Friday. "I'm telling you I'm going to knock him out."

Asked if he was going to guarantee a victory he replied, "I'm just saying that I'm going to win, it's as simple as that."

Holyfield picked the third round because he said that it represented the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, a reference to the fighter's religious beliefs.

Tyson must serve another 60 days in jail

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana didn't want Mike Tyson back, so it struck a deal to keep the former heavyweight champion locked up in a Maryland jail for an extra 60 days.

Tyson will serve the additional time in Maryland for violating his Indiana probation for a 1992 rape conviction, according to court documents filed Friday.

When Tyson would actually be released from jail and resume his career is unclear.

His 60-day sentence begins at the end of the one year he is serving in Montgomery County, Md., for a misdemeanor assault. The Maryland sentence still could be reduced for good behavior.

Indiana authorities could have forced Tyson to serve up to four years in prison, but they wanted to resolve the issue at no further cost to taxpayers while still holding Tyson accountable, Marion County (Ind.) prosecutor Scott Newman said Friday.

Team's progress in past year pleases Martin

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Mark Martin is very pleased by the distance his team has come since the beginning of the 1998 season.

"I started last year with a brand new team, with the exception of my crew chief, Jimmy Fennig, and my truck driver," Martin said. "The tire changers, jackman, engine tuner and everyone else was new and learning how to work as a team."

Martin remained with Roush Racing, for whom he has driven since 1988, but moved with his reorganized team into a new shop near Charlotte, N.C., sharing space with teammate Jeff Burton.

"I was really worried when we finished 39th in the (1998) Daytona 500 because I thought that would really get the team down, but they came back strong and we finished third at Rockingham one week later."

A week after that, Martin won the inaugural Las Vegas 400 and went on to win six more races while finishing second in the Winston Cup points race.

"At first, I was afraid to tell people I had moved my shop and left behind a championship caliber team to start something new," Martin said. "But, after we won right away, I was proud to say this was all done by a new team."

With that year under his belt, the three-time series runner-up hopes to make a run for his first championship in 1999.

After another miserable Daytona 500 — he crashed out and finished 31st — Martin won in Rockingham. Now he is back defending his title at Las Vegas Motor Speedway, where practice and qualifying opened Friday.

"This track holds nothing but good memories for me," Martin said. "Last year, I flew home to Daytona Beach right, after the race and by the time I got to bed, all I had going through my head was the strong, 'Viva, Las Vegas.' I wouldn't mind hearing it again this year."

Midland High's Brent Winter (25) gets tangles up with an Arlington Martin player during the Bulldogs win Friday. The Bulldogs face Duncanville at 1 p.m. today with a spot in the state tournament on the line.

MHS: Duncanville takes care of El Paso Montwood liking of McNeely with some forced slam dunk attempts which went awry. At one point McNeely stomped on a chair and hurled a replacement toward the scorer's table.

(From 1B)

"I'm sure we scared Midland to death with the way we played tonight. I don't think anyone sent a message tonight," McNeely said. "I'm sure the kids were looking toward tomorrow for Midland High. After all, that's all they hear from parents and the newspapers. We do teach our kids to read in Duncanville.

"Still, the one against Midland High ought to be a good one. I don't see any weak spots on that team."

MHS' Johnston is looking forward to the game.

"Duncanville is a great team," Johnston said. "It's No. 1 versus No. 2 and that is what we have been looking forward to for the last 12 months and I'm sure they have too."

This is the third year in a row that Duncanville and MHS have played against each other in the Region I-5A tournament. And this is the rubber game since each owns a victory over each other.

"This will be the third time," said Duncanville senior David Sykes. "It's been fun and they have a good team. It's exciting. Both times we have played them, it's been tough."

Christian, who is also playing a third time against Duncanville, looks at it as a best two-of-three shootout.

"This is the matchup everyone wanted and it will bring out the best in us with another packed house," Christian said.

"It's time to get on the glass," noted Christian, who was referring to the Twin Towers of Duncanville, Brian Boddicker and Ryan Randle, both 6-9. "For the seniors, Tatum and I and (Duncanville's) Randle, (Roosevelt) Brown and Sykes, it's the third time. Now only one can go out on top. You have to look forward to that if you are a senior."

Winter was already figuring out a game plan.

"I think you throw out all that No. 1 and No. 2 records. This will be a world war," Winter said. "We've got to make all our easy shots because they can get a lot of rebounds with those big guys.

"Then we have to keep the game close. It's going to be a close game, like Jeff Gordon in the Daytona 500 holding off Dale Earnhardt at the wire."

The question that remains today is which team is Gordon and which is Earnhardt?

REGION I NOTES: Tickets for today's 1 p.m. game go on sale at 9 a.m. at Chaparral Center at doors 1 & 2. There is a limit of eight tickets per person and all tickets are $5... Friday's semifinals drew a sellout of 4,800... MHS has now won 17 games in a row... Tatum had one of his worst scoring nights (four of 18 from the field). He had not been under 29 points in his last five games... Duncanville's Boddicker went for a dunk that bounced off the rim into the air, and before coming down, Boddicker reached up with his other hand and slammed it home. He was rewarded with a technical foul. Everyone at the Chap was amazed — except Panther coach McNeely, who looked disgusted. McNeely likes things done in a sound manner and you can tell he has no use for any floor show boating... This will be the last game at Chaparral Center for MHS starters Christian, Tatum, Nicholson and Winter. Only Johnston returns next year... Duncanville, on the other hand, should be strong again with Boddicker, Tre Johnson and Terrance Johnson returning.

Longhorns dispatch Colorado

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Chris Mihm scored 24 points as top-seeded Texas overcame a record flurry of 3-pointers by Kenny Price and beat Colorado 82-76 Friday in the second round of the Big 12 tournament.

The Longhorns (19-11), who recovered from a 2-9 start to win the Big 12's regular-season title, got a combined 56 points and 28 rebounds from their dominant front line of Gabe Muoneke, Kris Clack and the 7-0 Mihm, who was runner-up to Nebraska's Venson Hamilton for Big 12 player of the year.

Price, a 6-foot-4 senior, was 6-for-6 from 3-point range in the first half, tying his own tournament record, and 9-for-11 from long range altogether, scoring 31 points. The eighth-seeded Buffaloes (17-14), who had won five in a row, were 14-for-24 from 3-point range, breaking the tournament record of 12 3-pointers shared by Oklahoma State and Texas Tech. But on shorter shots, they were just 10-for-38.

Texas led all the way and took its biggest lead at 61-47 on a free throw by DeJuan Vazquez. But Price hit his ninth 3-pointer and Jaquay Walls hit his first, then followed with a pair of free throws that suddenly made it a 6-point game with 9:16 left. At the 5:42 mark, Price drove in for a dunk that made it 65-60.

Walls' 3-pointer got the Buffs to 79-76, but then with 12 seconds left William Clay hit a free throw for the Longhorns. Muoneke muscled inside for a rebound and a thunderous dunk with two seconds left.

Muoneke had 18 points and Clack 14.

Walls, just 1-for-11 from the field at one point, wound up with 19 points.

With 2:29 left, Walls hit a free throw, then 20 seconds later drove in for a short jumper that made it 74-70.

Price, who set the tournament record with 6 3-pointers last year against Kansas State, tied his mark with 1:24 left in the first half with a long 3-pointer that sliced Texas' lead to 40-34.

■ Big 12 Men's Tournament

Oklahoma St. 60, Oklahoma 57

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Glendon Alexander had 22 points, including two key free throws in the final seconds, and Alex Webber pulled down some crucial defensive rebounds to help Oklahoma State beat Oklahoma in the second round of the Big 12 tournament.

In the 194th meeting between the old state rivals, Alexander's two free throws gave the Cowboys a 60-54 lead with 14.6 seconds left. But then Eric Martin drilled a quick 3-pointer for Oklahoma (20-10), and Webber missed a pair of free throws.

With about four seconds left, Michael Johnson was short with a 3-point try.

In the semifinals on Saturday, the Cowboys (21-9) will meet regular-season champion Texas, which held off Colorado 82-76 earlier Friday and split with Oklahoma State in the regular season.

Adrian Peterson, the Big 12's leading scorer, missed his first five shots before finally connecting with 5:26 left on a 3-pointer that boosted the Cowboys into a 48-45 lead. After Webber rebounded Eduardo Najera's miss, Alexander hit another 3-pointer for Oklahoma State and a 51-48 lead with 4:13 to go.

Oklahoma center Renzi Stone, who had replaced Ryan Humphrey when he fouled out, drew a fifth foul of his own with 1:37 to go and Webber went to the line and sank two free throws that put the Cowboys on top 53-52.

A moment later, Webber rebounded an Oklahoma miss and Desmond Mason followed with a short jumper that made it 55-52 with one minute to play.

After Mason made the front end of a one-and-one free throw with 40 seconds left, Michael Johnson drove in for a layup that made it 56-54, then Oklahoma called time with 29 seconds to go and fouled Webber, who made both shots for a 58-54 lead.

Webber had 13 points for the Cowboys and Mason 12 points and 12 rebounds. Peterson had only three points, 15 below his average. Martin had 14 for Oklahoma. Johnson and Najera each had 12.

The victory kept the Cowboys from losing three times to the Sooners in a season for the first time since 1985.

Kansas St. 84, No. 24 Missouri 74

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The inside-outside combination of Manny Dies and Ayome May helped Kansas State build and hold a big lead against No. 24 Missouri and the Wildcats upset the Tigers in the second round of the Big 12 tournament.

Dies, who had 19 points the night before against Texas A&M, and May, who had 15 against A&M, each finished with 18 points.

Dies killed the Tigers' last rally with a dunk with 32 seconds to play as the Wildcats broke Missouri's full-court pressure. John Woods had hit two 3-pointers to get the Tigers to 76-71 with 51 seconds left.

Woods and Albert White each scored 15 to lead Missouri.

Kansas State (20-11) advanced to the semifinals against either Kansas or Nebraska. Missouri (20-8), which beat Big 12 regular season champion Texas in its last game, awaits an NCAA tournament decision.

The Wildcats took advantage of 7-of-29 shooting (24 percent) by Missouri to take a 42-24 lead at the half and led 48-26 after a free throw by Dies with 16:16 left in the game.

Missouri went on a 12-0 run to fight back into game and was within 48-38 after Woods scored the second of his two baskets in the run with 13:02 left against a Kansas State team that twice had blown leads of 14 or more points this season.

May stopped the run with a 3-pointer and, after Monte Hardge scored for the Tigers, Josh Reid hit a 3-pointer to put Kansas State back in front 54-40 with 10:27 remaining.

Stanton overpowers West Texas High

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

ABILENE — The Stanton Buffaloes used some of their football muscle to pound their way into the Region I-2A championship game this afternoon.

Stanton's big boys of Chad Smith and Justin Cobb combined for 46 points and proved to be too much for the West Texas Stinnett Comanches in a 71-50 romp at Abilene Christian University's Moody Coliseum Friday night.

Smith, Stanton's 6-foot-6 senior post who had a team-high 25 points and 14 rebounds, said this was redemption for last year when the Buffs were the ones being ousted in the semifinal game.

"Last year when we got here I was hurt and we lost," Smith said. "That was a big motivating factor being here tonight. We have six seniors on varsity and this our last chance to play together. We want to go out on top. Other than that, this is just one step. We have another step to take to get to the 'Drum' (Austin's Frank Erwin Center). That's where we want to get to."

The Buffs broke open a fairly close game at the half with a 14-2 run to start the third quarter. The third period proved to be the Buffs' big quarter as they outscored the Comanches 23-10 in that frame.

"We just wanted to dominate everything," said senior 6-foot-6 forward Cobb, who finished with 21 points. "I had a real good day and I had fun too. It's exciting getting to the regional finals, but it'll even be better if we win tomorrow."

"We had way too many turnovers and missed free throws in the first half," said Stanton coach Doug Gordon on why the Camanches were able to stay within 37-27 at the half. "In the second half, our free throws got a little better but we also started cutting mistakes down and started playing smarter. Our intensity level was there in the first half but our decision making wasn't. We were ahead but we were still making poor decisions that was causing too many turnovers. If we make those kind of bad decisions tomorrow against Wellington, it'll be the other way around."

The Wellington Rockets zoomed past Wall 53-32 in the other semifinal blowout of the evening.

Gordon said that by this time in their high school careers, the Buffs know how to handle the pressures of a big game.

"Our kids have won the state championship in football. Every one of those kids was on that team," Gordon said. "They've played at Texas Stadium, they've played in the semifinals, and they were in this regional tournament last year. The kids have got to come off a high and be ready to perform again. And that's the challenge we've got tomorrow. It's a one o'clock game and we had the late game tonight. We've got to get our legs back under us to face that fast, pressing team from Wellington."

The Buffaloes also won convincingly despite senior point guard Kyle Herm scoring only scoring six points on the evening. Even though he didn't light up the scoreboard, Gordon said Herm is more valuable than just a scorer.

"Kyle just didn't shoot the ball very much tonight. I'm interested to see how many assists he got tonight," Gordon said. "He didn't necessarily score but he was the reason we got the score."

The Buffs might need more scoring production out of Herm today to beat a 27-5 Wellington team that likes to shoot from the outside.

"We're going to have our best game here to beat them," Smith said.

Grayson sets up showdown with MC

Staff Report

The No. 2 Lady Vikings used a late run and some clutch defense to oust the defending Region V champions in the Lady Hawks.

For the second straight game, Grayson fell behind by seven (44-37) in the second half but rallied back with a run of their own to land Grayson in the finals for the first time in three years, when the then No. 1 Lady Vikings defeated Midland 61-54 in just the Lady Chaps' second-year of existence.

"First of all, let's give Howard a lot of credit," said Grayson coach Bill Brock. "We missed a lot of shots in the first half but the reason we missed a lot of shots was because of Howard's defense.

"I thought the difference in the game was the play of our front-line people in Brooke McCormack, Michelle Neely and Kendra Smith. I thought they all stepped up and rebounded tough. And then we hit some free throws at the end. We didn't hit a great percentage but it was enough."

■ Region V Roundup

Another key was keeping All-American Karlita Washington in check. Washington had 15 points but was just 6 of 24 from the field.

"So much of that is credit to Candice Vaughn," said Brock, crediting the player who blanketed Washington throughout the game. "She really did a great job. Other than that, our kids never showed quit. They have a lot of heart. We have one player back from our team last year and they just play with a lot of emotion."

Caryn Ross contributed 13, while Jovanae St. Cyr added 12 for he Lady Hawks, who finished their season at 28-4.

For Grayson, Sheila Lambert led four players in double figures. McCormack had 15, Smith added 13 and Kristin Tramonte added 12 for the Lady Vikings.

Brock said his main concern about today's matchup is the Lady Chaps' size advantage, even though his team is not a bunch of midgets in a flea circus with several 6-2 players.

"It's like David versus Goliath. We'll probably be so scared we're probably not going to suit up," Brock said. "I think they're a great team. We'll be lucky to stay in the game."

Howard College 73,
South Plains College 68

The Howard men will play Weatherford in today's Region V men's final.

The Hawks defeated South Plains College 73-68, surviving a second half scare by the Texans in the process.

The final, which determines the region's entry to the national tournament, will be a match of the top seeds from the Western and North Texas conferences. Howard is 26-5 while Weatherford, which won its semifinal 93-82 Friday over Collin County, improved to 30-2.

The Hawks got 23 points on 8-of-15 shooting from Larry Allaway. Donald Ceasar added 14. South Plains, which ends its season at 20-13, had three players in double figures.

Terrence Watkins led SPC with 14 while Lamarque Ward and Steven Barber threw in 10 each. Reggie York pulled down 12 rebounds.

Weatherford, which defeated Midland College on Thursday, got 28 points from Mindaugas Burneika in its win over Collin County. Warren Busby scored 17 and Arunas Drasutis 15. Daniel Novak scored 14 and pulled down 11 rebounds for Weatherford, which out-rebounded Collin County 53-33.

just 17 of 34 from the not-so-charitable stripe. Jones said as long as his team is playing as good a defense as they did on Thursday, then the Lady Chaps can compensate for their troubles at the free-throw line.

"There's always going to be something you're not exactly happy with but if I can take that kind of intensity and that kind of effort on defense, I'll take that every night," Jones said. "We're not going to play perfect. I wish we hit our free throws and I wished we crashed the boards better, but I'm really happy with the win."

Both teams stayed close in the first half thanks to 25 fouls called by whistle-happy officials. Neither team, however, really took advantage of the charity. Midland was only 4 of 11 at the line, while South Plains was 9 of 16. The biggest margin — a 10-point lead at the half — came on a Shelley Alderman trey right before the buzzer to make it 37-27 in favor the Lady Chaps.

The biggest difference came from the field where the Lady Texans shot just 27 percent (8 of 29) in the first 20 minutes of play. MC was 15 of 27 from the field for a 55 percent clip.

Jody Avent pulled the Lady Texans to within four (42-38) with seven straight points early in the second half. That's when Goodall responded with back-to-back treys.

Goodall's shot started a 26-8 run which opened the gap to 68-46 in favor of Midland with 6:49 to go in the game.

"I was feeling it in the shoot-around," said Goodall, whose 12 points all came from beyond the arc. "I didn't rush though, I just waited for my game to come and it came. I'm just happy that it did finally."

Goodall was one of three Lady Chaps in double figures as Jhudy Gonzalez led the way with 16 and Fatimah Holiday added 12.

The Lady Texans could never really recover as three starters fouled out, including Avent, the team's leading scorer with 14. After the game, Jones and his Lady Chaps admired the Lady Texans tenacity.

"I think they play as hard as anybody in the country and with pure heart. I think (SPC coach) Lyndon Hardon does a great job with his team," Jones said about the Lady Texans, who's tallest player is former Permian standout Katrina Jordan at 6-feet-1. Jordan finished the game with 10 points and 15 rebounds.

Next up for the Lady Chaps, who have won 18 straight games, is the No. 2 Grayson Lady Vikings, an unbeaten team at 32-0. For Jones and his team, the opponent doesn't matter, they just wanted to get to the championship game in hopes of taking the next step to the NJCAA National Tournament in Salina, Kan. Jones, however, after watching Grayson beat the Lady Hawks, said that the Lady Vikings were a formidable opponent and as long as his team plays well then the Lady Chaps have a chance.

"We have to play our game and find a way to win," Jones said.

The only guarantee about today's game is that one of the top five teams in the nation will be sent home.

About Permian: The Lady Panthers have to win this one to make the post-season... Kent Rivas' team beat up MHS in the last matchup, using three goals by Kelly Wilson. In that game, Wilson used her speed to solve MHS' offsides trap... PHS has lost three straight district games...
About Midland High: The Lady Bulldogs defeated Abilene High Tuesday for their second win in seven games... A win today and a loss by Abilene High to Central or Tuesday to Permian will put MHS in the playoffs for the fourth straight season... MHS will be without Sarah Tinslar, the team's third-leading scorer. Tinslar picked up her third yellow card in the win over AHS... The key to this game is if MHS can contain Wilson and make someone win the game for PHS. About Lee: The on-again, off-again Rebels were on Tuesday, routing Cooper, 6-0. The six goals were the most they have scored all season... Glen Wardlaw is tied for the district lead in scoring with 21 points...
About MHS: Despite playing some of the best soccer in the district, Tony Pierce's team must play the role of spoiler in its last game of the season. The Bulldogs, which have been snake-bitten with five one-goal losses in district, lost to Permian 2-1 in the first half of district after a penalty kick was called in the last minute of the game... SWIMMING: Two COM girls win win the 100 butterfly in 59.44 seconds.

The prelims were a signal of what Galloway was capable of, since she swam a 1:01.84, just behind Holt's previous mark of 1:01.64. It also didn't hurt that she was pushed in the finals by Madeleine Stanton of Blue Tide Aquatics, another Houston area program. Had it not been for Galloway, in fact, Stanton would have broken the mark herself, posting a 1:01.50 in the 100 IM.

"I was 100 precent confident (about breaking the record)," said Galloway, who edged out Stanton and Stefanie Carver (1:01.95) of Houston Elite Aquatic Team for the victory. "I've swum with them all season. She (Stanton) beats me and I beat her and that's just the way it goes."

No one beat Galloway Friday, though, as she had plenty of breathing room in winning the 100 fly, beating Stanton by almost two seconds. Stanton did save face by winning the 50 backstroke in 28.46 seconds.

Galloway knows first hand how strong the Houston programs are since she has been competing since she was seven. She had been a member of the Woodlands team until her family moved to the Cypress area early in 1998.

Dominating in the 10 and under age group had become commonplace for Galloway, then she swam for Cypress and discovered the depth of talent in the 11-12 group. Galloway will turn 13 in April and age up a group, which will allow her to swim what she says is her favorite event, the 400 IM.

"Swimming in 11-12 is a lot harder than 10 and under," said Galloway. "If you can just do your strokes (in 10 and under) you can win. You've just got to get pumped up for each race."

The other Houston area swimmer to set a record Friday was Hayley McGregory, who won the girls 100 back in the 13-14 category with a time of 58.41, setting a TAGS meet record. Again, Holt was the unlucky one whose name was wiped from the TAGS record books, as her 1995 time of 58.87 was erased.

Not only did McGregory break a record, she also earned the right to swim in the Junior Nationals in Seattle with her time. It was her main goal all along to meet the junior cut of 59.09.

"I didn't think about a record, I just wanted to get my juniors time," said McGregory. "I've been pretty close all season."

Her performance in the preliminary was evidence of that. She swam a top seeded time of 59.30, which she says could have been even better had it not been for a near disaster which originated on dry land when she was swimming in an outside lane.

"Someone almost fell on me," recalled McGregory of her experience in the prelims. "The timer's stop watch fell in the water and went around my arm about 10 yards from the finish."

The other state record was set by Texas Gold's Greg Stahl in the boys 11-12 50 back, as he cruised to victory with a 27.25, barely nosing out the previous record of 27.27 set by another Gold swimmer, Bill Robbins, in 1995.

On paper, it was hardly a stretch that Stahl could set a record, since his qualifying time in the prelims was 27.66. He later went on to win the 500 freestyle in 5:06.89 and was one of four swimmers to claim two victories Friday.

"I thought I had a pretty good chance (to break the 50 back record)," Stahl said. "I wasn't really sure I had gotten it until I had seen my time."

Stahl was more expecting to win in the 500 free than in the 50 back, the latter of which is his only short distance event.

"I actually don't think of myself as a sprinter," Stahl said. "I guess I proved myself wrong."

Aside from the record setters, there were five swimmers who reached Junior National qualifying times. For the boys, Bart Fassino of Academy of Texas Aquatics swam a 1:53.20 in the 200 fly while the top two finishers in the 15-18 200 IM, Brian Stephens of the Dallas Mustangs and Kyle Nunez of Blue Tide, made juniors with times of 1:56.00 and 1:56.24 respectively. Shamus Crosby of the Bayou Elite Swim Team amde the cut in the 100 back with a 53.03.

The only girl who made it was Lubbock Swim Club's Abby Fogel, who after barely missing the cut in winning the 1,000 free on Thursday, made it with her victory in the 200 IM in 2:09.17.

GOLF: MHS' Winchell leads field for Winchell, especially with district rounds beginning soon.

(From 1B)

"It (a win) would help because my game is not where it should be," Winchell said. "I have probably been scared because I have been hitting the ball bad.

"You have to win," Winchell added. "You have to show them you can do it."

Friday, Winchell's No. 1 weapon probably wasn't a club but her head. She stuck to a game plan of playing conservative on an unforgiving MCC course, even after a double bogey on the first hole. After that, she birdied two holes and bogeyed just seven. That was with five 3-putts.

"I usually don't (score that well at MCC). It is a hard course," Winchell said. "I kept everything in the fairway and played really smart."

Winchell is a three-year player for the Lady Bulldogs. So far, her career has featured some quality finishes, but lacked a showing where she has put together consistent rounds. This season has been an example of that. At Snyder, she followed an 84 with a 89. At San Angelo, Winchell carded a 90 after a first round 83.

"It has been that type of deal," MHS golf coach Bernie Hagins said. "This could be a breakout tournament for her if she can put together a round like that (the 79) tomorrow and realize she is capable of doing that.

"She needs to realize that this is a two-day tournament."

The team race should be a battle of the top 3 (Snyder, Andrews and Abilene High). There is an outside chance of fourth place Fort Stockton contending, but they will have to make up 11 strokes on defending Region I-4A champion Snyder.

The Lady Tigers have four returners from the starting 5 that placed second at the state tournament last season, and Friday, they showed consistency as three were in the 80s at MCC. Keisha Gafford led the team with an 84. Also in the top 10 is Randi Reed with a 87.

It wasn't Snyder's best day, but the girls probably know that.

"I look for them to play a lot better tomorrow," Snyder coach Primo Gonzalez said. "This group has a lot of character, and they are not pleased with themselves. They did not play well.

"They know what it takes. Even though they are leading, they know they need to do a lot better. It is not a like a coach has to sit down and give them a lecture. They know what needs to be done."

Trying to stop Snyder from winning its third tournament this season and its second straight Tall City tournament will be Andrews. The Lady Mustangs, who finished fourth at the regional tournament last year, are looking for their first tournament win this season. In three starts, Andrews has two second-place finishes, including one behind the Lady Tigers at the Snyder Tournament.

"I think it is a good thing to play Snyder," said Andrews coach Mike Campbell of repeated matchups with the region power and district competitor. "The girls enjoy competing against them because we know we have to raise the level of play to be bale to compete with them. They were the state champs two years ago, the state runner up last year and they are a very strong team. When you play against teams like that, it can only help out."

DIVISION II BATTLE: The Pampa girls sprinted out to the Division II lead, firing a team score of 356 at Green Tree Country Club to claim a 12-stroke lead over Lubbock Monterey.

The Lady Harvesters had three players crack the top seven. Stefanie Harwood led the team with an 86. Alison Piersall and Cortine Allison each carded 89s.

Leading the medalist race is Frenship's Michelle Meadows, who leads the pack by five after shooting an 81.

Corpus Christi Carroll rains treys on Dulles; Mansfield goes to 37-0

Associated Press

■ Girls' State Tourney

AUSTIN — Corpus Christi Carroll unleashed a first-half shooting barrage — including a state tournament record-tying six 3-pointers by Nicole Dunson — to roll past Sugar Land Dulles 75-48 in the girls' Class 5A semifinals Friday night.

Carroll (34-6) advances to Saturday's final against Mansfield (37-0), which beat Dallas Adams 60-42 earlier Friday.

The fireworks started from the opening tipoff as Carroll made its first five shots, including two 3-pointers by Dunson, for a quick 13-4 lead. Another Dunson 3-pointer helped stretch the lead to 23-10 by the end of the first quarter.

Dulles (12-25) never recovered. As Dunson nailed three more 3-pointers in the second quarter, Dulles struggled to score just seven points as a team in as the Carroll lead ballooned to 40-17 by halftime.

Dunson scored 20 points in the first half on her way to a game-high 32. Her last 3-pointer, which gave Carroll a 36-15 lead, tied the girls' tournament record of six held by five other players and tied most recently by Jill Sutton of Gunter in 1996.

Although the crowd urged her to keep shooting from long range, Dunson didn't hit another 3-pointer as the Carroll lead bulged to 65-22 in the fourth quarter.

Dunson finished the night 13 of 21 shooting, 6 of 10 from 3-point range. Sabrina Mitchell added 17 points for Carroll and Kendall Brooks and Shaye Yoakum each had 10.

Jer'e Adams and Andrea Everline each scored 12 for Dulles, the only team in the state tournament with a losing record after forfeiting 15 regular season games due to an ineligible player.

Mansfield 60, Dallas Adams 42

Tori Wilson had 17 points and undefeated Mansfield outscored Dallas Adams 34-14 over the second and third quarters Friday to roll to a victory.

Erin Grant added 14 points — 10 from the foul line — and Kaira White had 11 for Mansfield (37-0), which advances to Saturday's final to play Corpus Christi Carroll (34-6), a 75-48 winner over Sugar Land Dulles in the other semifinal.

Tanisha Jackson scored 16 points and Amber Obaze had 11 for Dallas Adams (25-10).

Adams looked early like it could control the game, taking a 14-11 lead after the first quarter behind six points from Jackson.

But after falling behind 19-13 with 7:20 to play in the half, Mansfield used a 17-1 run to take a 30-20 lead into the locker room. Kyla Hill and White each hit 3-pointers in that stretch.

The run continued into the third quarter when Hill hit consecutive 3-pointers and Wilson added five of her points to give Mansfield a 45-26 lead with 1:35 left in the third.

Class 2A Semifinals
Hughes Springs 62, Celina 43

Kenneshia Henderson scored 23 points and Hughes Springs used its superior quickness to overcome Celina's bigger lineup in a 62-43 victory Friday in the Class 2A semifinals of the girls' basketball state tournament.

Hughes Springs (29-2) advances to the 2A final Saturday to play Salado (30-7), which beat Farwell 39-37 in Friday's other semifinal.

Henderson scored 19 in the first half as Hughes Springs turned 17 Celina turnovers into 23 points and a 33-25 halftime lead. Henderson had three of her eight steals in the quarter and turned them into easy layups for six points.

Celina (28-8), which committed 31 turnovers in the game, including nine by guard Natalie Payne, did a better job protecting the ball in the third quarter, pounding the ball inside to forward Lauren Martin and 6-foot center Dayna Boswell.

Martin had five points in a 9-3 Celina run that closed the gap to 36-34 in the third quarter.

Salado 39, Farwell 37

Senior Melissa Matthews hit two free throws with less than a second remaining to lift Salado to a 39-37 victory over Farwel.

Matthews got the chance to win the game after the officials waved off what had appeared to be the winning basket by Farwell's Ashley Crawford (27-9).

Farwell's Mari Lunsford missed a fastbreak layup in the closing seconds and Crawford put back the rebound as the buzzer sounded.

But Crawford was called for pushing Matthews to get the rebound with 0.8 seconds left and the basket was disallowed.

Matthews then hit both ends of a one-and-one to clinch the win.

Salado had to survive a furious Farwell rally in order for Matthews to win it.

Televangelist vs. Teletubby: Local pastor to give message on Tinky Winky scandal

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

Sin. Redemption. Faith. Hope. Belief in Christ and the Resurrection. Popular topics you're likely to hear about on any given Sunday morning in church.

Add to that list Tinky Winky, the formerly harmless children's television character turned purported gay symbol, following an editorial written by Jerry Falwell in his publication, "The National Liberty Journal."

Rev. Clare Petersberger, minister at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland will address the issue this Sunday at her 11 a.m. service.

"The reason I thought this news story is worthy of a sermon is because I believe that beneath the silliness of a magazine ascribing and then criticizing the sexual orientation of fictional, animated children's television characters — in the name of religion — is a much more serious issue about the purpose of religion," Petersberger

Y2K FROM THE PULPIT

Editor's Note: This is the first in a recurring series on what selected ministers in Midland are saying about issues pertaining to the Millennium. First up, Stockton Williams, rector at the Episcopal Curch of the Holy Trinity:

"Actually, we've already entered the third millenium from Christ's birth! Most scholars think Jesus was born around 3 or 4 B.C., (based on the census, Quirinius, etc.), meaning that we are already over 2000 years from his birth! So if something dramatic were going to happen 2000 years from Christ's birth, it would have already happened. The calendar that says that next year is 2000 is a human-made invention. Now, I do think there may be some glitches with computers, but not the mass chaos that some fear-mongers are predicting. It wouldn't hurt, however, to have a few days' supply of food and water (just do your regular week's worth of grocery shopping right before the end of '99), some extra candles or flashlights, and hold on to your December 1999 bank statements."

Stockton Williams, Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity

FROM THE GROUND UP

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram
Jason Hogue, left, and Jeremy Green hang a banner announcing the groundbreaking ceremonies for Bethel United Methodist Church.

'It is ironic that now, during a down economy, is the time they have started to build, but I dont think the congregation thinks there's a lot of connection between the economy and God's will. We serve an omnipotent God who rules even over the economy. If He directs the church, they're going to go ahead with it. I'm encouraged by a congregation like that.'

Almost five years after the sign was first planted, plans to begin construction of Bethel United Methodist Church are taking shape with a groundbreaking set for August 1.

Bethel, one of eight United Methodist churches in Midland, will be located at Preston and Loop 250, adjacent to Bush Elementary. Bethel will be the city's first UMC in the northwest side of town, an area where growth is most predominant.

Steve Cox, former pastor at Eula UMC, west of Abilene, assumed the pastoral duties at Bethel in mid-January. Cox said it is the congregation's goal to build a debt-free church, a difficult task in good times, much less in an economy suffering the effects of the reeling price of a barrel of oil.

"The fact that it is a debt free church in a down economy makes it a very viable church," Cox said. "We're not going to have to worry about paying a mortgage."

Bethel, which has been meeting in a storefront adjacent to Gili's Mexican Restaurant, 4411 W. Illinois, currently has a membership of 60. The new church building — expected to be 8,000 square feet — will accomodate a growth in membership with a seating capacity of 250 expected in the sanctuary.

Other local UMC congregations have helped insure Bethel's growth from words of encouragement to the donation of the parsonage that serves as Cox's residence.

But why now, in a time and in an economy that doesn't always lend itself to new ventures, be they church or business?

"I was curious why God wanted me to come from an area where the economy was doing good to an area where it was doing bad," Cox said. "I was praying, and He said, 'When do people need churches most? Where do people need churches most?' It is in situations like we're in today. In prosperous times in other

Easley pronounced cured

ODESSA — Dr. Ernest Easley, pastor of First Baptist Church in Odessa, who was stricken with a rare cancer in his throat last fall, was pronounced cancer free by Houston doctors this week, according to the Easley's wife, Julie.

Although the pastor faces continuing recovery and painful side effects from the intense radiation, he plans a return to the pulpit March 14.

"He's looking forward to returning to the pulpit," Mrs. Easley said. "He is working on a series entitled 'Victory Comes Through The Valleys.' He is slowly regaining his ability to concentrate and comprehend in his studies."

First Baptist Church services are broadcast Sundays on CBS (KOSA-Ch. 7) at 11 a.m.

Entertaining angels

Former skeptic now tells others to find their angels

By Diego Ribadeneira
N.Y. Times News Service

Sandra Adler thought she was going crazy. For years she had kept hearing voices. Her husband told her she needed help. So she started seeing a psychiatrist. But the voices wouldn't go away.

Until one day, at the suggestion of someone in her therapy group, Adler went to a lecture on angels. "I was at a point in my life where I was depressed and I was grasping for straws," she recalls.

That lecture more than 30 years ago was a turning point in her life. Adler became convinced that the voices in her head were her guardian angels trying to communicate with her.

Today, Adler travels the country and the world spreading her message that we all have guardian angels who are trying to reach us.

From the crowds she draws, it is clear that many people believe, or want to believe, in angels. Adler, who holds a master's degree in counseling from the University of Michigan, is one of many speakers who has successfully tapped into the spiritual marketplace.

Adler says the challenge is recognizing an angel's call.

Marriage not just a passing relationship

"My son, marriage is not a matatu business." These are the words of my grandfather in 1975.

Kituku

Matatus are minibuses or private cars converted to public transportation means. Natives started matatu business in rural areas during the Colonial Era. For any distance traveled, the charge was the same, matatu (30 cents in Kikuyu language). Thus the origin of the name of a business that claims more than 40% of annual deaths.

Matatu business is a major cause of death in Kenya, where I was raised. Nearly every other family has a member who was maimed or killed in a matatu-related accident.

Of course, the fares have increased, and so have the matatu vehicles. To make more money each day, the operators increase their number of trips with breakneck speed and always pack the vehicle with more passengers than are legally allowed. They will do anything to get a passenger into the vehicle. They persuade you. If you have luggage, they help you carry it into the vehicle. But, after a passenger is in and has paid the fare, the operators don't care about him or her. No more sweet words. Their main concern is to get the next passenger.

My grandfather used this analogy to teach me that once one is married, it is of paramount importance to take care of the marriage with the same love, concern and tenderness, if not more than that which initiated the relationship. My grandpa said to enjoy the "ride in marriage," unlike matata, the attention has to be given to those who are already inside the vihecle.

What is happening to the lifetime commitment oath taken in marriage? What happens after the ride on the marriage wagon commences? It is said that 70% of inmates are from

The Good Book: Amos (Part 29 of 66)

Overview:

During the reign of King Jereboam II (786-746), Israel experienced her most prosperous times. The military security and economic affluence which characterized this age were taken by many Israelites as signs of the Lord's special favor that they believed they supported because of their support of the temple and shrines. The prophet Amos was given the difficult task of preaching about justice during this time of prosperity. Amos denounced Israel and her neighbors for reliance on military might, and for grave injustices in social dealings. Amos was expelled from the royal sanctuary at Bethel and returned to Judah where he recorded his prophecies in written form.

Theme Passage:

Amos 5:11 & 21-24 "Therefore because you trample on the poor and take from them levies of grain, you have built houses of hewn stone, but you shall not live in them; you have planted pleasant vineyards, but you shall not drink their wine ... says the Lord. I hate, I despise your festivals, and I take no delight in your solemn assemblies. Even though you offer me your burnt offerings and grain offerings, I will not accept them; and the offerings of your fatted animals I will not look upon . Take away from me the noise of your songs; I will not listen to the melody of yourharps. But let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like and ever-flowing stream."

Church yearbook shows continuity

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1999 Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches, produced by the National Council of Churches, generally shows continuity in religious trends.

The largest U.S. denominations remain in the same order as last year: the Roman Catholic Church; Southern Baptist Convention; United Methodist Church; National Baptist Convention, USA, Inc.; and Church of God in Christ. The Catholic Church also is the largest group in Canada.

Several predominantly white and relatively liberal denominations affiliated with the National Council of Churches continue to lose members, while conservative groups outside the council continue to grow. But the yearbook said the rates of decline and increase have flattened in recent years.

The yearbook acquired financial reports from 58 U.S. denominations showing annual contributions totaling $24.9 billion. Those groups account for 28 percent of the 157.5 million members of organized religion in the United States.

Jesuit magazine names first lay editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The Jesuit order's weekly magazine, America, has appointed its first lay Catholic and first woman staff member in 90 years of publication. Patricia A. Kossmann will be literary editor, mainly responsible for book reviews.

Kossmann,a specialist in publishing Catholic books, succeeds the Rev. Patrick Samway. She was a senior editor at Doubleday and manager of its Image Books imprint, and executive editor of Triumph Books and Liguori Publications. She is a past president of the Catholic Book Publishers Association.

America's editor, the Rev. Thomas J. Reese, said the Kossmann's appointment "is in keeping with the Jesuit commitment to collaborative ministry with the laity, and solidarity with women."

Evangelical group names president

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Bishop Kevin W. Mannoia of the Free Methodist Church has been named president of the National Association of Evangelicals.

Mannoia, 43, of Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., was named by the board at the annual meeting of the NAE, a theologically conservative association claiming 43,000 local churches, 49 denominations and 250 independent ministries. The appointment is effective in July.

Before becoming a bishop in 1996, Mannoia was a district superintendent, pastor and college executive. He has a theology degree from Trinity Evangelical Divinity School in Illinois and a Ph.D. in higher education administration from the University of North Texas.

Mannoia succeeds the Rev. Don Argue, who has been named president of Northwest College in Kirkland, Wash.

Program to reform convicts focuses on Bible

John Mathes, warden at the Newton Correctional Facility, stands on the prison grounds in Newton, Iowa. In June, volunteers will begin teaching inmates at the prison in a Bible-based progam designed to instill new values and keep them from returning to crime.

NEWTON, Iowa — Prison officials hope Bible study and the Ten Commandments can instill better behavior in inmates, even murderers. But some worry that the effort erodes the wall between church and state.

"It doesn't fit everybody, but I think there's a portion of the population it will serve well," said John Mathes, warden at the Newton Correctional Facility, a medium-security prison in central Iowa with about 750 inmates. "This program can reach people who are willing to make a long-term commitment to changing things."

In June, the Newton prison will begin an intensive, Bible-based program designed to teach values and keep prisoners law-abiding after they are released.

The program, "InnerChange Freedom Initiative," was developed by Prison Fellowship Ministries, the Washington, D.C.-based group founded by Charles Colson, a Watergate figure who spent time in prison himself.

Prison Fellowship started InnerChange in 1997 at a Texas prison. The group recently won an Iowa contract to provide a values-based program to up to 200 volunteer inmates, including some serving life sentences.

The program goes beyond Sunday church services, common in many prisons.

For 18 months, church volunteers from across the state will visit prisons, teaching the Bible six days a week to groups of inmates. They will also help prisoners complete high school course work, fortify drug-abuse counseling, offer support groups and take a hand in family and marriage counseling and community service work.

Studying the Bible is the key, InnerChange leaders say, because it offers credos and commandments and, with those, secular guidance on how to live in society: "Turn the other cheek," for example, and "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

Still, some find it worrisome when churches and religious leaders take on values-shaping at the prisons.

Barry Lynn, national director of Virginia-based Americans United for Separation of Church and State, has said Christianity is evangelical in nature and that religious groups operating social services programs in prisons could be tempted to proselytize.

However, Mathes and other state officials say that in developing the program they carefully considered laws limiting religious involvement in government.

Mathes points out that the program is voluntary and is not funded by taxpayers. Christian Fellowship Ministries pays most of the bill, though some expenses will be covered by rebate money the prison receives under a deal with telephone companies that handle inmates' long-distance calls.

Mathes also notes that the state advertised competitive bids last fall for values-teaching. Prison Fellowship was the only group to respond.

Ministers in the program lead inmates in studying and reading the entire Old and New Testaments, teaching them to pray and helping them understand how to lead a spiritual life.

Upon release, inmates who complete the program can live in transitional, work-release housing around the state. All will continue meeting with a mentor for six months after leaving prison.

Dean Wright, a professor of sociology at Drake University, said the nation is beginning to realize it cannot afford the financial and social costs of simply throwing criminals in prison, with no rehabilitation.

Programs to reform prisoners through meditation and other spiritual methods are springing up around the country, he said, adding that InnerChange is the most intensive he has seen.

"We're just wasting so many lives the other way. If we can do something to reverse that, we want to try. And that's the big question: IF we can."

Jack Cowley oversees the InnerChange program at the prison in Richmond, Texas, and will lead the Iowa program. He said only five of 59 released Texas inmates who participated have again run into trouble with the law.

This compares with overall recidivism rates in the range of 50 percent.

Cowley, 51, a prison warden in Oklahoma for 25 years before joining the Prison Ministries effort, believes InnerChange will succeed.

"I believe God is opening that door," he said. "We're looking at all different types of things: What types of fathers they're going to be, what kind of community leaders they're going to be, what kind of taxpayers they're going to be."

Michael Potts is an InnerChange success story, said Cowley and other Prison Ministries officials.

Potts, 44, of Houston, has been in prison several times, most recently serving 2 1/2 years for theft and other charges.

Potts, released in October, said that his earlier releases ended in quick-money schemes that led him back into crime.

This time around, he is working for a company that services oil refineries. He has a girlfriend, is a member of the Berea Missionary Baptist Church in Houston and spends time with his children and grandson.

Potts spent 16 1/2 months in InnerChange before his release and continues to meet with his mentor.

"It's a great program not only for giving you time to be in fellowship with God, it's a renewing and accountability program that helps you focus on making decisions in life and on right and wrong," he said.

TINKY WINKY: Minister sees far more serious issue boiling under controversy said. "I believe religion calls us to look for what binds us together in the human condition, not what divides us. It's easy to point to our differences as human beings: to stereotype, to stigmatize, to reinforce prejudices and bigotry, to draw artificial lines between the saved and the damned and then to use these as a license for abuse and injustice. It's much more challenging to break through the fear and hatred of differences and become loving persons, responsive in ways that matter to those who suffer in a difficult and dangerous world."

The article written by Falwell said, in part, "The sexual preference of Tinky Winky, the largest of the four Teletubbies characters on the series that airs in American on PBS stations, has been the subject of debate since the series premiere in England in 1997.

"The character, whose voice is obviously that of a boy, has been found carrying a red purse in many episodes and has become a favorite character among gay groups worldwide. Now, further evidence that the creators of the series intend for Tinky Winky to be a gay role model have surfaced. He is purple — the gay pride color; and his antenna is shaped like a triangle — the gay pride symbol."

Falwell went on to call the "subtle depictions" intentional and issued a warning to parents to be aware of the program and "its intentions."

Petersberger is not the only minister in Midland to have feelings about Falwell's statements.

"It seems like (Falwell) has gone off the deep end on this one," said Stockton Williams, rector at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. "Those Teletubbies seem about as non-sexual as any toy could be."

Richard Edwards, Senior Pastor at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, said he couldn't see any homosexual undertones in the form of a stuffed alien on a children's program.

"My father once said you could make something good or bad out of just about anything," Edwards said. "I personally think Jerry Falwell has taken a perfectly harmless toy and corrupted it. I don't see it."

In a subsequent article that appeared in this month's Liberty Journal, Senior Editor J.M. Smith said Tinky Winky is only "the tip of the iceberg" and noted that the Teletubby creature was actually "outed" by the gay press months ago.

"Considering the dramatic influx of homosexual themes in modern television, it should come as no surprise that there might appear gay subtexts in a few TV shows — even shows designed for children," Smith wrote.

Conversely, Petersberger senses what she considers a dangerous subtext, not in gay undertones, but in anti-gay rhetoric.

"I see a clear connection between the vicious rhetoric of some religious leaders and politicians about homosexuality and the fate of Matthew Shephard, who was brutally beaten and left to hang on a cross of pain, a fence, alone in the emptiness of a Wyoming night," Petersberger said. "My religion teaches me that I must not remain silent in the midst of the suffering created by the hateful language of prejudice that inevitably escalates into the outright evil of crimes against humanity."

Petersberger said she sees clear connections between the language of anti-semitism and the Holocaust; the language of white supremacy and the dragging-decapitation death of James Byrd, and the language of homophobia and the murder of Matthew Shephard.

"I believe in the Constitutitonal right to Freedom of Speech, but that doesn't make all speech right," Petersberger said. "My goal is to get people to not be violent when confronted with human fear, and I see what Falwell is doing as fear mongering. My question is, 'What in the world is a gay lifestyle?' The gays and lesbians I know don't all lead the same life. What is a heterosexual lifestyle? As a minister who sees a skyrocketing divorce rate, what makes us think we have this union thing down?"

Petersberger said sexual orientation is not a matter of who a person sleeps with at night.

"Sexual orientation is about the freedom to be who you are 24 hours a day and feel safe about it," she said. "Job security, physical security, who you can be seen with in public ... most of us take those things for granted.

"I have heard so much over the last 10 years how unsafe it feels to be gay and lesbian in Midland. And it's not just from one person, but from eight or 10 people."

ANGELS: Guardians contact humans through vision, shadows, voices within

(From 2C)

Goose pimples or a sudden case of the chills, Adler says, are actually signs from angels.

"Angels come close to us to let us know that they are there to protect us or to let us know know that we are doing the right thing," said Adler, who is vice president of Inner Peace Movement, a nonprofit group in Washington, D.C. that offers workshops on angels. "Most people have had the experience of following a hunch or an intuition and having it work out. Well, that's one way that angels are helping us."

The Inner Peace Movement says it has trained more than 100,000 people in the United States to communicate with their guardian angels.

Adler readily admits that many people find her ideas difficult to grasp. That's part of the reason she spends so much time on the road.

At first, she says, she had her own doubts. "I was the biggest skeptic in the world," says Adler, who lives in Las Vegas. "I was a school teacher and we did not teach about this in school."

She became a believer after she started becoming involved with Inner Peace Movement, which was founded in 1964. "The Inner Peace Movement doesn't do anything for you, but it will show you how to do it for yourself," said Adler, speaking by telephone from Jackson, Miss., where she was lecturing last week.

These days angels are a hot commodity on film and in print. "Touched by an Angel," in which angels come to the aid of troubled souls, is a hit show for CBS. Dozens of volumes on angels fill the new age and spirituality sections of bookstores.

Angels are central to Roman Catholicism and Judaism, cited in the Bible as divine messengers. Some theologians argue that logic cannot prove the existence of angels. Other scholars argue that reason cannot disprove their existence either.

"You can't prove anything, but if you experience it for yourself then you know it's true," Adler says.

There are four ways guardian angels try to get in touch with us, Adler says. One is through intuition — hearing a voice within. Another is through vision — noticing a shadow out of the corner of your eye.

A third way angels communicate is through prophecy, having dreams come true or knowing who is calling before we pick up the phone. And finally, Adler said there is "gut feeling." Some people describe the sensation of "feeling someone tap them on their shoulder and when they turn around no one is there."

Adler recounts a story told by a woman who attended one of the lectures in Jackson.

The woman was in the hospital waiting for surgery to begin to remove a cancerous tumor from ner breast. As she was lying waiting for an X-ray she said she felt a hand touch the back of her neck.

"When they looked at the X-ray the cancer was gone," Adler said. "She asked the doctors who had touched her neck and they told her that no one had. At that moment she knew it was her angel."

Capital punishment denouncement

■ In a strongly worded pastoral letter, the Most Rev. Sean O'Malley, bishop of the Diocese of Fall River, Mass., Sunday denounced capital punishment as a violation of Jesus's teachings and a failed deterrent to violent crime.

"Nowhere does Jesus offer violence as a solution to set things straight," wrote O'Malley. "He does not will the death of the sinner, but rather that the sinner be converted."

O'Malley cited national surveys of police chiefs and criminologists showing that the death penalty is considered a poor way to deal with crime.

"We want our country to be characterized by justice, not revenge; by safety, not violence; by life, not death."

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll have: 5-Dymanic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Mar. 6, 1999:
Be willing to risk and to break established patterns. Travel, education and possibly a foreigner could play a significant role in your year. At times, you could feel tired and overwhelmed; this might be the result of all you are opening up to. You get to see what has worked for you. If you are single, be realistic about those you meet. You could end up idealizing someone for something he is not. If attached, share more of your feelings, even if you aren't quite sure of yourself. SCORPIO can and will open doors for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Dig in and get to the bottom of problems. Don't trust money calculations unless they are yours, and even then, double-check them. You might be energized to seek a partner's feedback. Be careful; realize you are inviting a different opinion. Tonight: With a favorite person.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Discussions are animated and not always easy. Clearly, another has a totally different point of view. Confusion sets in with a partner, as well as with someone you put on a pedestal. Stay reality-bound, yet refuse to be negative. Don't take on extra responsibilities. Tonight: Let another make the call.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ You could be overwhelmed and in no mood to sort through problems. You are tired and need some downtime. Stop pushing yourself so hard. Even you need a break. Listen to feedback; touch base with friends. Give yourself a present or do something just for you. Tonight: Ask for a massage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Creativity is needed to meet all the demands placed on you. A friend could disappoint you, dropping a problem in your lap. You might consider tossing it back. Be realistic about your limits. A child or loved one wants to pitch in. Help this person move past a restriction. Tonight: Dance stress, and the night, away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ You might feel you've had enough of others. Though you might want to stay home, there are changes going on there, too. Take the bull by the horns and implement your own game plan. Reorganize your office or desk. Get ready for spring by tidying or completing a project. Tonight: Don't wander far from home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You say what you think, as do others. Your current lack of direction might be OK, but realize that others will push you hard. Make a long-distance call. Worry less about what others think. Agreement isn't needed; authenticity is. Eventually, you will find a midpoint. Tonight: Visiting with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ You'll wish a partner wasn't so touchy and difficult. You two don't see eye to eye about money and emotional needs, but you won't make him change his mind. Realize that you might not be viewing a risk realistically. Be careful with spending. Tonight: Avoid extremes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Another challenges you, even if you feel in control. You might not be exactly sure what triggers it, but you will say what you think. Still, a partner remains withdrawn, and your words might not be enough to open him up. Think before you say something that you can't take back. Tonight: Your call.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★ Listen to feedback; remain sure of yourself. Make contact with what is causing you to feel out of sorts. Express yourself and be direct. Worry less about plans; rather, flow with what is going on. You have little control but if you are tired, do what you need. Tonight: Go for some time out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Aim for what you want, though be extraordinarily careful with finances. You could make an error when you least expect. Get together with friends and make the most of the moment. A child or loved one could be a little out of sorts. Give him some time to mellow out. Tonight: Where the gang is.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ You could be confused about your choices. Listen carefully before you make any important decisions. If you defer for now, you won't regret it. You are dragged out, yet someone important makes demands. Do what you must. Tonight: Make an appearance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Push hard, make decisions, break patterns. Allow more feedback from others. Seek information. Consider making or changing travel plans. Take off on a day trip. You might need a change of pace. Don't get hung up on details. Tonight: Do something different.

Amy Carter expecting her first child

ATLANTA — Former first daughter Amy Carter and her husband are expecting their first child in July, the 10th grandchild for former President Carter.

Carter, 74, let the news slip Thursday in Orlando, Fla., where he was addressing the American Society on Aging.

Ms. Carter, 31, lives in Atlanta and is a member of the board at the Carter Center, the human rights and diplomacy center established by her father. Her husband of three years, James Wentzel, is a computer consultant.

ASPEN, Colo. — Neil Simon says he was lucky to have made it on Broadway before big-budget action movies pushed up the price of making plays.

Neil Simon received an award at the U.S Comedy Arts Festival.

"Movies are so technological that the audience wants that on stage," said Simon, who received a writing award Thursday at the U.S. Comedy Arts Festival.

Now the 71-year-old New York City native's work is more likely to be seen off-Broadway, on the London stage or in regional theaters. He is also at work on an autobiography, "The Play Goes On," scheduled to be published this fall.

"What it really means is after my wife Joan died, I found a way for me to go on," he said.

Simon, who started as a television writer in the mid-1950s, has never learned to use a computer. Instead, he prefers to write longhand and then transfer the words to his typewriter after reading them out loud.

"A word here, a word there, sometimes paints a different picture for the audience," he said.

TOKYO — A ruckus over letting Arnold Schwarzenegger into Japan without a passport could be the final blow for Japan's controversial justice minister.

Shozaburo Nakamura has been in trouble since January over his criticism of Japan's pacifist constitution, comments condemning America's economic policy and his alleged involvement in a real estate scandal.

Now several parties are furious after Nakamura gave Schwarzenegger permission to enter the country last fall without his passport. The star said it was stolen just before he left the United States.

On Friday, two Parliamentary committee meetings were canceled because Democrats, Communists and Socialists all refused to show up if Nakamura didn't step down.

Nakamura had no comment.

CARLISLE, Iowa — Between raising eight children — seven of them born on the same day — Bobbi McCaughey also has become a two-time author.

Mrs. McCaughey's "Celebrating the Wonders of Motherhood" is due out in early April, in time for Mother's Day.

"We're not setting her up as an expert, but there's some very nice anecdotes and wonderful pictures," said Wes Yoder, the family's agent.

Mrs. McCaughey and her husband, Kenny, also wrote "Seven from Heaven," a book that was released last fall.

The McCaughey septuplets were born Nov. 19, 1997. The McCaugheys also have a 3-year-old daughter, Mikayla.

LOS ANGELES — On television, Emmy Award-winning actor Kelsey Grammer is known as a pompous but lovable shrink. On stage, he's about to become someone not only unlovable, but evil.

How evil is Kelsey Grammer going to be in his new play?

How evil? He's seeking revenge on society, so he piles up a lot of corpses. And let's say he makes good use of the bodies at his pie shop.

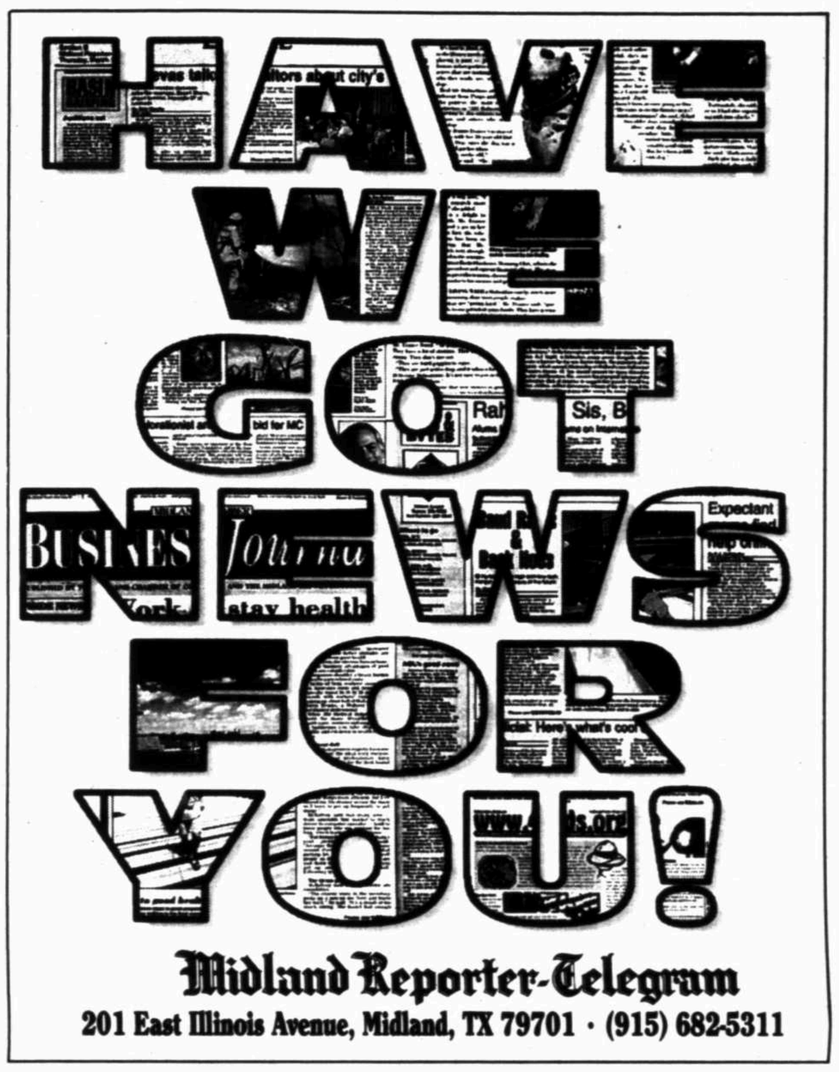

"There's a kind of lethal diabolical quality about the character that's very nice," Grammer said of his title role in a 20th anniversary production of the Stephen Sondheim musical "Sweeney Todd — The Demon Barber of Fleet Street."

"The place I've always felt most comfortable was on the stage," he said. "It's the place where I feel alive," he said.

"Sweeney Todd" is scheduled to play March 12-14 at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center.

Couple share faith with prayer candles

By Daniel Vargas
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — Despite her first name, Sister Reed doesn't wear a nun's habit. Nonetheless, she feels she plays a key part in God's plan.

Sister and her husband, Peter N. Reed, own Reed Candle Co., a San Antonio-based company that makes about 36 million candles a year, most of them Catholic-oriented prayer candles, and ships them worldwide.

"People always ask me if I'm a nun and which religious order I belong to. It happens constantly," says Mrs. Reed, president and CEO of the West Side company. "The prayer candles we produce are important to the Reed family because it mirrors our belief in the power of prayer. We feel that we are making a major contribution to the Christian community by helping to spread the word of God and his saints."

While the Reed company makes candles year-round, the biggest-selling time of the year is the Lenten season, which this year continues through April 3.

"It's a tremendous season for us," Mrs. Reed says.

Consumers are probably familiar with Reed wax candles. They're the ones lining supermarket shelves at H-E-B, Handy Andy and Albertson's. Reed Candle Co. also supplies many local Catholic churches, such as St. Jude's Catholic Church and Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, with small votive and clear glass candles for church services.

The business began 62 years ago when Peter's father, Peter D. Reed, bought two votive candle-making machines and began producing candles in the back of his neighborhood grocery store on Camaron Street at Euclid Avenue with the help of his family and one employee.

"He had to buy candles from St. Louis because he couldn't find a supplier here," Mrs. Reed says. "So, he started making his own."

In 1962, Peter Reed and his brother, Henry, purchased the company from their father and expanded to new markets. Twenty years later, Peter purchased Henry's interest in the company. Reed Candle now employs 175 people who work around the clock, making more than 150 types of candles.

It is one of the few companies in the country that specializes in prayer candles, Sister Reed says. Last year, it was ranked the 227th largest Hispanic-owned business in the country by Hispanic Business magazine, with sales between $10 million-$20 million. (Despite the name Reed, there is Mexican heritage on the matriarchal side of the family.)

The family has a long history of business and civic activities in San Antonio. Peter, for example, was one of two Reyes Feos in 1993 when there were dueling League of United Latin American Citizens factions. Before that,

Peter's father was Rey Feo in 1960.

The company's prayer candles, which can burn five to six days, are about 9 inches tall, come in a variety of colors and scents and are adorned with a large, silk-screen sticker of the particular saint, the Virgin Mary or Jesus Christ. On the back of the candle are printed prayers in both English and Spanish.

Most of the candles celebrate Catholic saints such as the Virgen de Guadalupe, the Virgen de San Juan, St. Jude Tadeo and San Martin Caballero.

But the company also caters to Polish Catholics, giving them a candle called Divine Mercy for the message of mercy that Sister Maria Faustina Kowalska, a Polish nun, received from the Lord.

There also is the Queen of Peace candle, which recognizes the Virgin Mary's appearance and message of peace to six children in the former Yugoslavia.

Father Robert Alvarado with Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, which dates back to 1912, says the candle company changed the way the church handled its business.

"About 25 years ago, we used to make candles at the church," he says. "Then, we started buying them from Reed (Candle Co.) We just call them and they ship us the amount we need. They're just a few blocks away. I can see the factory from here."

In Catholicism, candles are required at Mass and other church ceremonies. Catholics also use them to show honor and devotion to God, the Virgin Mary or saints. The act of prayer is the centerpiece of any faith, but candle-lighting allows the prayer to resonate.

"It's a continuation after the actual words of prayer," Mrs. Reed says. "The lighted candled silently speaks for us when words fail to express the full reality of our intention. It makes visible our petitions and thanksgiving for favors received or sought."

She says people burn the candles when praying for divine intervention in health, money, job and protection matters.

"People pray for all sorts of reasons," Mrs. Reed says. "Many people have statues of saints or the Blessed Mother. Everyone has a particular saint they pray to, like St. Jude. They pray to him when they are really desperate and have a need for something. The candle is a symbol of hope."

KITUKU: Experience good — but often painful — teacher homes where a father is absent. I recently heard a college football coach say that over 50% of his athletes have never lived in the same house with an adult male.

Where is this trend leading to? Is divorce still viewed as a social "thorn" that negatively impacts lives, families, and societies forever? Or have the skyrocketing rates made us insensitive to a point where each divorce is just another passing cloud?

Like almost everyone, this thorn has pierced my heart. I have witnessed marriages of my relatives and dear friends disintegrate. As an "outsider" in the issues culminating in divorce, I have felt powerless. I have wondered, is there something I could have done? My crying alone has not helped and neither has my silence.

What is the best environment or criteria for marital survival? What can minimize the problems that lead to divorce? Is it by marrying somebody with a common background? I am not sure. My wife and I are from the same tribe, culture and town. We use the same mother tongue and are of the same faith. With this similar background, I often wonder why we view life from such different angles. My wife said, "If we were to do things the same way, think the same way and have the same interests, then life wouldn't be fun. We wouldn't learn anything from one another, and more importantly one of us wouldn't be necessary!"

While experience is the best teacher, the tuition is often costly. The pain, time and material expenses resulting from broken relationships are enormous. This column in the following few weeks will address this crucial relationship, the crucible of family stability, spiritual integrity, cultures' and societies' prosperity.

In general terms, money, lack of proper communication, lack of time shared together, children, sex and in-laws are mentioned as the major contributors to marital problems. In most cases, these factors interact, and it's hard to pinpoint the one which contributed the most to marital breakdown. However, it is good that couples understand how to relate with each other in these matters to prevent the painful route of divorce.

BETHEL: Congregation hopes to move into new building by Christmas parts of the state, we feel like we're battling people to come to church."

Dr. Lyn Moore, District Superintendent of the United Methodist Church in West Texas, said once the church starts going up, it will grow even more.

"Once you start the bricks going up and seeing the actual building going together, it will attract more people," Moore said. "There's not much growth potential in a temporary facility."

Cox said with good weather, he hopes to have his congregation occupying the new building by Christmas.

Cox said he is confident the people of Midland will pull themselves up from the economic slump in quick time, saying, "We're going to leave the oil industry behind. People in Midland have had it with being totally dependent on the oil industry. They're going to reach out and diversify. We have the infrastructure, a good airport, good politics, good schools, we're conservative. All we have to do is advertise ourselves the same way Amarillo and Abilene have done."I'm new to Midland but already I can see Midland is on a course to change its future dramatically. The rest of the state has no unemployment ; we have a lot of people ready to go to work, and I think companies from other parts of the state are going to start moving their businesses here. A year from now, this economy is going to be turned around. A year from now, we're going to look back and say, 'Wow, big things have happened.' "

Moore said it is ironic the church decided to go ahead with the construction in rough times.

"I don't see that the congregation thinks there's a lot of connection between the economy and God's will," Moore said. "We serve an onmnipotent God who rules even over the economy. If He directs the church, they're going to go ahead with it. I'm encouraged by a congregation like that."

The property on which the church will be built was purchased by the Methodist Area Board of Missions, a group representing all UMC churches in town. The price tag was a mere $76,000 in the mid-'90s. That it fell into the hands of the Methodist group Cox attributed to a higher power.

"God was in on that when the church bought that land," he said. "The church's representatives went to a tax auction with $76,000. Their last bid was all the money they had, and the other person quit bidding. That land is worth 10 times that today."

Cox sees the facility one day being what he called a "mega church" because of its location.

Cox assumed pastorship at Bethel following the resignation of K.C. Blackketter, who left to form Shepherd Ministries, an effort to assist local churches and ministers.

"Steve has remarkable credentials," Moore said. "He's very much a builder. K.C. is a great pastor and Steve's a great builder. The church was kind of building on each other's gifts and strengths. The church tries to follow somebody with someone who has complimentary gifts and can continue efforts with a different kind of strength."

The August groundbreaking will be attended by Alfred L. Norris, the UMC bishop for New Mexico and West Texas.

Hertz offers special savings on web

One of the best times to rent a car is between now and May 31 on the Hertz web site. Hertz is now offering a 20 percent savings for car rentals booked through their Hertz web site. The savings are available on standard, leisure weekly and weekend rates and are available on economy through full-size, four-door car classes.

For more information on how to book this offer, go to the "Special Offers" section on Hertz' web site. Detailed information on other special offers are featured on the site along with full online booking instructions.

Ford sports new safety system

Ford has designed a vehicle safety system which enables their vehicles to analyze accident conditions in order to provide better passenger protection. The Advanced Restraint System analyzes the information it receives from several sensors and activates the proper safety devices to protect a range of occupants in a variety of frontal crash situations.

It takes into account such factors as occupants' seating positions, whether they are wearing their safety belts and the accident's severity when deploying the car's safety systems.

The system will debut on vehicles beginning this year on new and significantly freshened models until all Ford passenger cars, trucks and sport utility vehicles are equipped with this safety system.

GM offers new trunk escape hatch to help prevent child deaths

In an effort to protect children, GM has designed a new trunk escape release kit to prevent children from becoming trapped.

The kit consists of three features: a modified trunk latch, with a lever which must be manually reset before the trunk lid will close; an escape handle with lighting to make it more visible and facilitate an simple exit for a trapped child and a strap to prevent children from entering the trunk from the passenger compartment.

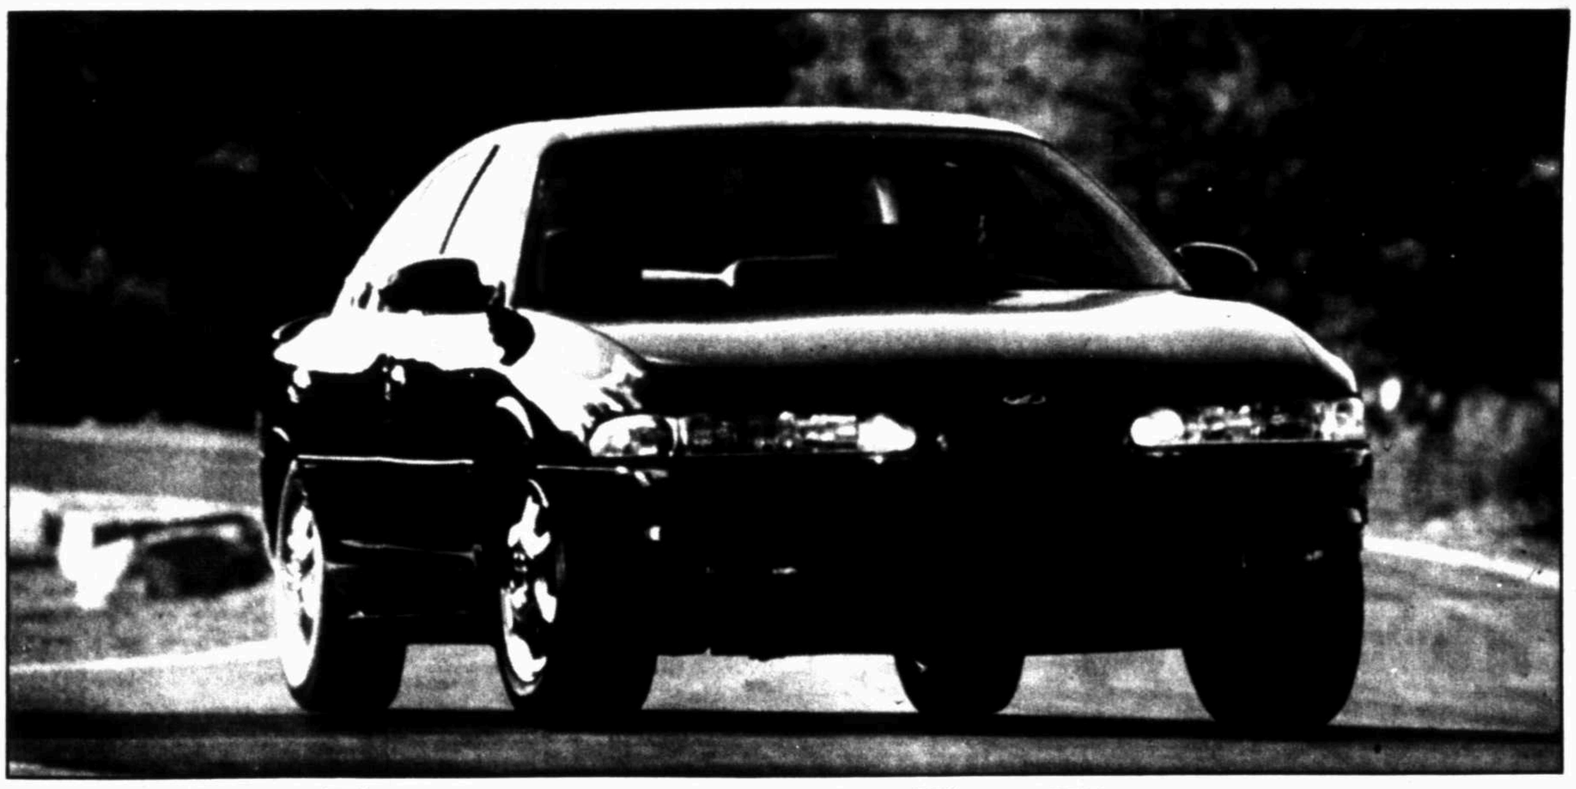

The dealer-installed kit costs $50 and GM plans to underwrite some of the cost to keep the kit affordable.

N.A.D.A. Used Car Guide goes online

Consumers can now enjoy the convenience of the National Automobile Dealers Association Official Used Car Guide without leaving the comfort of their PCs by accessing the NADA's web site.

The site offers 'low retail', 'average retail' and 'high retail' values for specific years, makes and models of domestic and import cars and light-duty trucks. The site also adjusts those values to reflect vehicle options and mileage and even provides side-by-side vehicle comparisons.

When buyers find cars they like, the NADA site can also link them directly to the NADA Dealer Locator which searches for member dealer locations and information by zip code.

'99 Oldsmobile Intrigue sedan

Introduced to the American motoring public during the 1998 model year, the mid-size Intrigue sedan seeks to woo consumers by infusing sophistication with sportiness. The Intrigue is built on GM's mid-size "W" platform which is the basis for several other popular GM sedans:

Buick Regal, Buick Century, and Pontiac Grand Prix.

Manufactured exclusively in Fairfax, Kan., alongside the Pontiac Grand Prix, the Oldsmobile Intrigue is a welcome breath of fresh air in almost every way. The sedan is available in three trim packages: GX, GL and top-of-the-line GLS.

An all-new 3.5L Twin Cam 24-valve V-6 cast aluminum engine is standard for GLS models and will become the sole powerplant for the Intrigue by the middle of the model year, replacing the highly-regarded cast iron 3800 Series II V-6. Both powerplants are bolted to the very smooth 4T65E electronically-controlled automatic transaxle.

According to Oldsmobile, 70 percent of the components of the gearbox have been upgraded to exploit the full potential of the new engine.

Underway the new engine delivers plenty of seamless power and great gas mileage. This sedan was born to be driven hard, with minimal body lean in tight corners at speed.

The Intrigue's sheet metal is very handsome, with a family resemblance to the larger Aurora sedan. A novel headlamp design allows for easy removal of the headlamp assembly from the car, in order to change front turn signals, headlights and daytime running lights, by removing two plastic clips.

Inside the cabin, displays and controls are thoughtfully laid out — everything falls easily to hand and eye. The driver has an excellent view of the road. Comfortable front bucket seats are complemented with a large, padded armrest that allows the driver to store plenty of stuff.

The rear seating area has decent room for two adults, with an armrest and cupholders. A 60/40 split folding rear seatback is a $150 option on the GX model, standard on GL, GLS. The engine hood is self-supported by hydraulic props, and engine fluids are clearly marked and easy to reach.

By the Numbers

Standard safety features for the Intrigue include: dual airbags, automatic door locks, PassLock Theft Deterrent system, enhanced traction control, four-wheel disc brakes with anti-lock, dual steel side impact beams and daytime running lights.

The performance numbers for the V-6 engines are as follows: 3800 Series II - 195 hp at 5,200 rpm and 220 lb/ft of torque at 4,400 rpm, fuel economy 19 city/30 highway; the 3.5L Twin Cam V-6 - 215 hp at 5,500 rpm and 234 lb/ft of torque at 4,400 rpm, fuel economy 19 city/27 highway.

Retail prices start at $21,175 for the GX up to $24,945 for the GLS. Destination charge adds $560. Although the Intrigue is being well received by the public, supplies of the sedan remain good. There are no rebates.
