HOUSTON, April 19 — A 14-year-old boy will be tried in the ax-slaying of his mother, Mrs. Paula Rodriguez, last Feb. 3, probation authorities revealed here today.

Probation Officer S. L. Bellamy said Amado Rodriguez had confessed "repeatedly" to killing the 32-year-old woman and inflicting critical injuries on his father and two young sisters.

Amado, eldest of six Rodriguez children, has told of "voices" directing him to steal into the house and commit the vicious attack.

Mrs. Rodriguez was found hacked to death in the family's modest home. She died, apparently as she slept, and without a chance to defend herself.

The boy's father, Manuel, 37-year-old laborer, and two children, Paula Yolanda, 4, and Mary, 1, were lying nearby, unconscious and near death.

Amado has told Bellamy and other officers he awoke in a downtown hotel the night of the slaying and "heard a voice" that told him to get dressed and go downstairs.

Still other "voices," he claimed, led him to his home.

"Somebody told me to go to the side of the house and pick up the ax," his confession read.

He was still being directed, Amado claimed, when he entered the bedroom through a window, hit his mother a single blow in the head, and then swung twice at his father when he roused.

Then the "voice" told him to hit the little girls with a piece of wood, which he burned in

Lavender, Hull Store Looted During Night

Narcotics Stolen For Second Night In Row In City

BY R. C. HANKINS
Journal Staff Writer

The second narcotics burglary in consecutive nights was reported to the police department this morning.

The Lavender and Hull drugstore, at 2211 College Ave., was entered by a burglar or burglars who smashed a padlock on a front door and took an estimated $400 to $500 in money and checks and all the narcotics in stock except the demoral."

Police questioned a man in connection with the case late this morning, then released him. Police detectives said he had not been under formal arrest at any time.

Robert P. Lavender, one of the owners of the store, said he would have to guess" that the monetary loss was "about equally divided between money and checks."

Lab Loss Listed

He said that narcotics prescriptions would have to be checked against inventories as of last June before it could be determined what the narcotics loss was.

Narcotics taken included dilaudid, codeine, morphine, cocaine, papine, pantapon and elixir morphine, Lavender said.

R. S. Miller of Prescription Laboratory, at 1629 College Ave., told officials in the meantime that the following narcotics had been taken there a day earlier: almost 1,000 quarter-grain codeine tablets; a full 100 eighth-grain tablets of morphine, in a bottle the seal of which had not been broken; one to two dozen quarter-grain morphine tablets; several sixth-grain morphine tablets; and pos-

Blockade Lift Hint Rebuffed

LONDON, April 19 (U.P.)—Diplomatic sources reported today that the western Big Three had rebuffed Russian feelers toward ending the Berlin blockade, but had left the way open for further negotiations.

Informed quarters said a Soviet representative had been told informally that the west would agree to:

1. The simultaneous ending of the Berlin blockade and the western counter-blockade of Soviet occupation areas in Germany.

2. A meeting of the Big Four council of foreign ministers on the entire German situation after the blockade is lifted.

West Plans Government

The west was said to have made it clear to the Soviets that plans to set up a western German government would go ahead despite Russian objections.

Despair Grips Nanking As Guns Of Vast Armies Are Trained For Combat

1,500,000 Men Face Death In Battle

(By The Associated Press)

NANKING, April 19—Vast Chinese armies trained their guns across the Yangtze river tonight awaiting word the civil war is on again.

Tomorrow a Communist ultimatum to the government to surrender expires. The shooting is expected immediately after its expiration.

North of the river 1,000,000 seasoned Red troops were ready to commence firing. South of the river, 500,000 impotently armed and trained Nationalist troops crouched before the impending blow.

Despair gripped Nanking. Government officials prepared to flee. All around the city there seemed to be an air of defeat. Clearly many believed Nanking was in its last hours as the Nationalist capital.

Defiant government officials, nevertheless, met to draft some sort of reply to the Communists. They pinned faint hope on a plea for more time. The expiration date of the ultimatum has been extended before by the Reds. But this time Red troops are staging areas, ready to jump off for the fray.

The government of acting President Li Tsung-Jen appeared ready to concede almost anything except that Communist armies be permitted to establish bridgeheads south of the Yangtze.

Nationalists no longer made any secret that the proposed Communist peace agreement calls for outright capitulation. Their privately expressed feeling was that the terms are unacceptable. However, the specific nature of the Communist terms still was a secret.

Three Kuomintang (government) party leaders who sounded out retired President Chiang Kai-Shek on the peace proposal reported to the acting president and his cabinet today. Chiang, who may come out of retirement now that war is at hand again, was believed to have opposed surrender.

Right wing elements led by Chiang are said to favor a final Nationalist resistance movement in the south.

Business Outlook Rosy Here

Employment In County Rising

BY BILL CLARK
Journal Staff Writer

Lubbock county's business outlook at mid-April is improving and employment is rising slowly but steadily, figures released by B. T. O'Connell, manager of the Lubbock district office of the Texas Employment commission, revealed this morning.

Non-agricultural employment for April was estimated at 26,020, as compared with total employment of 25,560 in March, figures compiled by O'Connell's office for Lubbock county indicated.

The figure represents an increase of 1.8 per cent in total employment since February.

Downward Trend Broken

O'Connell interpreted the figures as a "possible indication that the downward trend of the past two months has been broken and that the steady but moderate increase characteristic of the labor market of this locality during recent years has been resumed."

The estimates and predictions are based on information received from a selected group of employers who are contacted regularly by the Lubbock office of TEC.

Of the employers interviewed, 36 per cent report that their employment increased during a 30-day period, 12 per cent reported a decline, and the remainder showed no change.

Optimism Is Expressed

Although manufacturing industries showed some employment gain in the county, the volume of increase was mainly attributable to construction, and to a smaller degree, to wholesale and retail trade.

Lubbock county businessmen are optimistic about business conditions of the next few months, the report indicated.

"Although it might be expected that gains in wholesale and retail trade would be temporary at this season, our information shows that 18 per cent of the wholesale companies contacted expect net

Man Proposed With Gun, Woman Claims

BORGER, April 19. (U.P.)—Harold L. Clifton, 24, who allegedly used a rifle in his attempt to win the hand of a fair maiden, was charged today with assault with intent to murder.

The complaining witness, Miss Myrtle Killon, 21, charged that Clifton "kidnaped" her, drove to the hills overlooking the Canadian river and, at gunpoint, proposed marriage.

They scuffled for possession of the gun, Miss Killon said, and she then promised to marry him "so he wouldn't drive his car over a cliff on the way back to town."

An oil company worker, Clifton was arraigned before Justice of Peace C. C. McClelland, who fixed bond of $2,500.

NEGRO NATION IN SOUTH PLANNED

Plot For American Blood Bath Bared

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 19.—Soviet army specialists trained U. S. Reds in the science of civil war at a school in Moscow, a former Communist official testified yesterday.

The witness, William O'Dell Nowell, negro federal government employe, described Moscow plans for an American blood bath to set up a separate negro nation in the South.

Plans Are Detailed

According to the plans, Nowell testified at the trial of Communist leaders, "the revolution in the South would aid the northern industrial workers in bringing about revolution in the north and hence throughout the whole country."

Before he was stripped of his party posts, the witness said, the U. S. Communist high command sent him to the International Lenin Institute in Moscow in an effort to overcome his opposition to using negroes as tools for an American revolution.

Testifying for the government about training in Moscow, Nowell mentioned three of the eleven top Communist leaders on trial in federal court on charges of conspiracy to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the government.

Names Are Given

Those he named were Jack Stachel, Irving Potash and Gus Hall.

The 44-year-old witness said that when he argued in party powwows against the negro nation dream, Stachel told him he needed more training in revolutionary theory, and arranged for his education at the Lenin school.

Nowell testified he attended the school from September, 1931, to December, 1932, and traveled via London with a group of students including Potash and Hall.

The witness said Stachel and Potash gave travel instructions to the group. He said the students were told not to travel in groups,

Officials Study Fate Of LAAF

Air Force officials, members of the Lubbock City commission and members of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce Committee on Air Forces Affairs today are studying plans pointing toward reaction of the wartime Lubbock Army Air Field to a permanent station to be known as Lubbock Air Force Base.

Visiting Air Force men, led by Eugene M. Zuckert, assistant to the Secretary of the Air Forces, arrived here late Monday and will remain in the city until late today or early Wednesday. They came in three Air Force planes, one from Washington, one from Barksdale Air Force Base, Shreveport; and the other from Randolph Field, near San Antonio. Cong. George H. Mahon, member of the House Appropriations committee and chairman of that group's sub-committee on Armed Services appropriations, came with the group from Washington.

Gen. Harper Here

Maj. Gen. Robert Harper, who commands the training activities of the Air Force with headquarters at Barksdale, headed the group from Shreveport. It included Maj. William F. Shanklin, and G. W. Lenehan, civilian engineer.

In the Washington group, in addition to Messrs. Zuckert and Mahon, were Brig. Gen. James B. Newman, of the Air Forces Engineers; Col. Gabe Dissosway, of headquarters, USAF; Maj. A. J. Lanier, also from USAF; and Capt. R. S. Rivers, USAF, representing Lt. Gen. Edwin Rawlings, comptroller of the Air Forces who could not make the trip due to illness.

Theft Suspect Admits Murder

AMARILLO, April 19 (U.P.)—An Oklahoma sheriff was enroute here today to investigate a surprising murder "confession" by a Potter county (Amarillo) prisoner.

Sheriff J. M. Kirby of Okmulgee, Okla., will look into the avowal of J. C. Foster, 27, who told Amarillo Sheriff Paul Gaither Monday he had killed a man in Okmulgee three years ago.

Foster said he was moved to make the confession by a "hurting conscience."

Jailed here on a theft charge, Foster named as his victim Julius (Jake) Wells, 48. The slaying occurred, he said, early in 1946. Foster said he robbed Wells of a "forgotten" amount of money.

"Murder" Doubted

Gaither checked with Sheriff Kirby, who reported that Wells' body was found on Jan. 9, 1946, in a deep water hole. There appeared to be some doubt that Wells had been robbed, however, for Kirby told Gaither that there was $1,244 on the body.

Furthermore, Kirby said, there was never any suspicion of murder in Wells' death.

He added, however, that "the lungs contained very little water, indicating Wells might have been dead before falling or being

Solon Favors Ban On Paris "Peace" Meet

World Congress Is Claimed Red Plan To Gain Support

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 19 — Senator Mundt (R-SD) said today that U.S. citizens should be barred from going to such gatherings as the "World Peace congress" in Paris this week.

The Paris meeting was branded yesterday by the House un-American activities committee as a Communist - arranged affair, intended to line up intellectuals — especially atimic scientists—behind a world plan for civil disobedience.

State Department Silent

Mundt, a member of that committee until he left the House last year to run for the Senate, told reporters he is urging the commitee to propose such a ban to State department visa authorities. No committee members were available for comment.

The State department, following its custom of secrecy regarding passport applications, refused to say whether any had been granted to Americans destined for the Paris meeting. However, a department official said:

"Passports will be granted to all applicants wishing to attend the Paris congress, except to those who for legal reasons are prevented from receiving a passport."

The committee said in a special report made public yesterday that the "ideological confusion" of meetings like the one in Paris can easily "pass over into outright treason".

The report quoted Frederick Joliot-Curie — whom it identified as "the French Communist and

Oil Production Slash Ordered

HOUSTON, April 19 (AP) — The Railroad Commission today ordered that Texas crude oil production for the month of May be reduced by 54,079 barrels daily.

The commission signed an order designed to produce 1,982,492 barrels of crude oil daily in May compared with the April 16 allowable of 2,036,571.

No Change In Days

There was no change in producing days, with all fields except East Texas to operate on 19 days and East Texas on 17 days.

The reduction results from May being a 3-day month as compared with 30 days in April.

Natural gasoline and distillate production for May was estimated at 257,685 barrels daily, bringing to 2,240,177 the daily allowable for all liquid petroleum products.

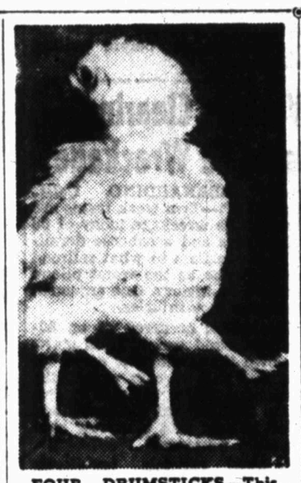

This is the fifth consecutive reduction in Texas crude production ordered by the commission since Jan. 1, 1949.

The cuts total approximately 810,000 barrels per day.

The May order was signed after only two industries spokesmen testified at the commission's statewide proration hearing.

H. P. Nichols, executive vice president of the East Texas Oil association at Tyler, said that in-

Six Jurors In Trial Selected

By EDWARD WELSH
Journal Staff Writer

The selection of jurymen for the trial of Richard W. McGee dragged out through the morning with 24 prospective jurors being examined. Only two of them were qualified and sworn, making a total of six who will sit in the box for the trial.

A. G. Richardson, Route 6 and M. P. Marchbanks, Route 1, Lubbock, were the two men selected this morning. The four chosen yesterday were Douglas A. Carlisle, 1516 Twenty-Seventh; Albert Ellis, Route 6; Wade W. Hash, Route 5 and A. Weir, Box 300, Route 2, Slaton.

Short Recess Ordered

Shortly after the court convened a power failure put the courtroom in darkness. Judge Dan Blair, presiding over the 72nd district court, ordered a short recess. When it was discovered the lights would be out for some time the session was reconvened in the dimly lit, third floor room. A steady rain and a heavily overcast sky precluded a sufficient amount of natural light.

Three jurors were stricken from the list because their names had been improperly spelled. Most of those excused were on the grounds of fixed opinions.

One juror, C. H. Crump, was examined by both sides and would have been approved except for the fact brought to light that he had been a member of Company 1, 142nd Infantry, 36th Division in World War I. This company was part of a battalion commanded by one of the defense attorneys, Col. E. A. Simpson, Amarillo. It was the first time the men had seen

Houses Ripped Apart; Woman Slightly Hurt

Rainfall In Area Heavy; 1.18 Inch Reported In City

BY OPAL DIXON
Journal Staff Writer

Wreckage was left on at least five farms in vicinities of Shallowater, Monroe and Slaton last night by small tornadoes which struck during a rain storm which had begun shortly after nightfall.

Despite damage to property on farms struck by twisting wind, no one was seriously injured. Mrs. Basel Agnew of Lubbock route 3 left Lubbock Memorial hospital this morning after remaining overnight for treatment of minor injuries.

A twister which struck about 9:30 o'clock Monday night lifted a seven-room frame house off its foundation and tore off the front of the house on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Utley, three miles east of Shallowater school. It tore a frame and sheet iron irrigation house apart and lifted the irrigation pump motor, throwing it into the field, on the Utley farm.

Roof Is Lifted Off

In the same area, the roof of a house occupied by the V. O. Carnes family on a farm belonging to L. T. Frizzell, was lifted off by the twister and scattered over a half-mile area east.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnes and their four children were in the house at the time but no one was injured.

Rain did damage to the furniture and household goods of Mr and Mrs. Carnes.

The twister made a snake-like path through the farm area east of Shallowater for a distance of approximately 4 miles.

House Is Demolished

The twister then demolished a two-room frame house on the nearby J. O. Bumpass farm. It also tore the roof off a barn on another farm in the Shallowater vicinity.

No one was injured when the seven-room frame house on the Utley farm was struck, said Mrs. Utley, who was in Lubbock this morning. The house was occupied by a negro couple, Charles Reed and his wife, who worked on the farm. Upon hearing the wind, the couple had risen from bed and the mattress of their bed was nowhere to be found this morning, apparently having been blown considerable distance. The front of the house was completely torn from remainder of the structure, said Mrs. Utley, who said the house was "a total loss" and the remainder would have to be torn down.

In the nearby home occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Utley, no damage was caused. Wind was so strong that they held the door in order to keep it closed.

Trailer Turned Upside Down

A large four-wheel trailer used for hauling cotton was turned upside down near the Utley home.

On the nearby Bumpass farm, Mr. and Mrs. Basel Agnew lived in the helper house which was demolished by the storm. Mrs. Agnew was in the house alone and her husband was in a field turning off irrigation wells when the twister struck. Neither had seen it approaching. The two-room frame structure was ripped apart.

Mrs. Agnew suffered bruises and was badly frightened. She entered Lubbock Memorial hospital Monday night and was released this morning in satisfactory condition. The house in which Mr. and Mrs. Agnew lived was described as being located seven miles north and one-half mile west of Lubbock, on Lubbock route 3.

Barn Is Damaged

A modern barn on the Ralph Hayes farm, sometimes called the Klattenhoff place, approximately three miles northwest of Slaton, was damaged. A small tornado apparently caused the damage about 9:30, approximately the same time that damage was caused near Shallowater. Hayes and his wife and son were in the house when the twister hit. The house was of concrete construction and was not damaged exten-

45-Year-Old Woman, Sons Confess Slayings Of Two Men Met By Lonely Hearts Letters

(By The Associated Press)

DOVER, Del., April 19 — A 45-year-old woman and her two sons have admitted the slayings of two elderly men she met through a lonely hearts correspondence.

Col. Herbert E. Barnes of the state police said Mrs. Inez Gertrude Brennan today admitted her part in the shotgun slaying of Wade N. Wooldridge 70, Bedford, Va., and Hugo Schultz, 66, Epson, N. H., after more than 26 hours of almost continuous questioning.

Earlier he announced the two sons — half-brothers — signed confessions.

Mrs. Brennan and one of her sons, Robert, 16, already have been charged with murder in the slaying of Wooldridge. Similar charges will be filed tomorrow in the Schultz killing, he said. The other son, Raymond, 23, is in custody as an accessory.

The Wooldridge slaying was disclosed last Saturday by Barnes.

At a press conference the state police officer described how the elderly southerner was shot with a 12 gauge shotgun. He said the victim was buried in a pigpen on the Brennan farm. Later the body was dug up and burned and his charred remains reburied on the Dover city dump.

Early last night Barnes told reporters his investigators had linked the Brennans with a second slaying which he said also resulted from a lonely hearts club correspondence.

Barnes said his men found "a bushel basket" of letters

Labor Panel To Guard Against Strikes In Atom Plants Urged

By FREDERIC TUTTLE
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 19 — A special White House commission called upon President Truman today to set up an Atomic Energy Labor relations panel to guard against strikes on vital nuclear installations.

The commission proposed a ban on all strikes or lockouts at atomic energy plants during periods covered by collective bargaining contracts.

Document Is Important

Mr. Truman promised "careful consideration" of the commission's recommendations. He pointed out that [illegible] be necessary to carry out the steps suggested by the report.

The President made the document public because of its "importance," and emphasized that the methods suggested "would not be a substitute for collective bargaining." The President said:

"The commission emphasizes that the panel would be effective only if its help is invoked infrequently and in the most difficult cases.

"It is up to labor and management to settle their own disputes through conscientious bargaining and use of existing conciliation services."

Must Maintain Secrecy

The commission said that the proposed Atomic Energy Labor panel would take jurisdiction only after collective bargaining and normal conciliation processes, including the federal conciliation service, have failed. The commission said:

"If the panel cannot bring about a settlement, it may make recommendations, but they are not compulsory."

The report pointed out that questions of security peculiar to the atomic program, such as secrecy, are the exclusive property of the Atomic Energy commission. The report said:

"Neither the security rules nor their administration are matters for collective bargaining between management and labor."

In addition to the no-strike provision while a collectively-bargained contract is in operation, the report proposed:

1. Provision be made for bringing into all critical disputes "those individuals at the very highest levels of management and labor whose wider experience and heightened responsibility are accompanied by relatively detatched judgment . . . "

2. The determination of bargaining units and representatives under the labor law be made by agreement and consent elections.

The report asserted that management and union should cooperate "to integrate the union into the plant organization as a two-way channel of communication and a medium of understanding between management and workers."

Chairman of the presidential commission was William H. Davis, the other members were Aaron Horvitz and Edwin H. White.

They consulted both with labor, management and the Atomic energy commission before writing their report.

Workers Clearing Santa Fe Wreckage

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., April 19 (AP)—Two work trains are clearing the wreckage today of 53 freight cars and a caboose derailed in Cajon Pass in what railroad men describe as the worst pileup in Santa Fe history. One crewman suffered minor injuries.

The wreck occurred as an 80-car westbound freight train started down the grade. The diesel locomotive and 27 cars passed the derailment point safely. The rest of the train leaped the curve and rolled 35 feet into a narrow canyon early yesterday.

Railroad officials tentatively placed the loss at $300,000. Cause of the derailment has not been determined.

The wreck ripped up 2,800 feet of track. A guard was placed over one upset boxcar said to contain oxygen tanks. Some tanks leaked and officials feared an explosion.

Other cars contained lumber, coal, salt, beer, steel, iron, railroad ties, barley, asphalt and assorted merchandise.

Tenants of a block of 59 offices in Ipswich, England, still pay $4 a year each "for use of air raid shelter."

Trial Set For Man Who Buried Aged Sister Alive In Hog Pen

WALTERBORO, S. C., April 19 (AP)—A farmer who told police he poisoned his aged sister and buried her—possibly alive—in a hog pen will be tried in June for murder.

Solicitor Randolph Murdaugh said Monday he would ask a grand jury to indict Wyman Hiott, 60, for killng 80-year-old Mrs. Carrie Hiott Carter "by starvation, poisoning or burying alive."

Murdaugh formally charged the farmer after he reported Hiott had admitted that he poisoned his sister "because she had messed up her bed so many times."

Poisoned Coffee

The solicitor quoted Hiott as saying he had placed poison in his sister's coffee April 5. The next day, Murdaugh said Hiott told him, he dug a grave for her near a stable.

"I then went back to her bedroom, picked her up and placed her in the grave, covering her with blankets, then paper, then dirt. At that time she was breathing a little," Murdaugh said Hiott reported.

Hiott was arrested April 8, the day his sister's body was found in the barnyard grave behind their rural home.

Republic Of Ireland, Free After Centuries Under Foreign Power, Confident Of Future

DUBLIN, April 19 (AP) — The Irish, fully free of British rule at last, face the future with a light heart, a world full of friends and money in the bank.

Many problems confront them, but they face these unafraid. They closed the books yesterday on 780 years of rule by a foreign power, and they feel the future will be what they make it. They intend to make it a good one. Individually the people are poor, but they have every hope they won't stay that way.

They still look darkly at six counties of Ulster which have chosen to stay in the British commonwealth. The Irish call this their No. 1 problem—to draw those counties into the free republic of Ireland. President Sean T. O'Kelly says he hopes to see that goal reached within a generation.

Ulster Not Eager

But in Ulster, the press and politicians called suggestions of federalization within the republic "unthinkable." W. B. Topping, chief government whip in the Northern Ireland parliament, said an "unbridgeable" gulf separates them.

Economically, free Ireland is sound. Her main business is agriculture, and with Britain shopping for far more beef and other produce than the Irish can produce, the farmer has an assured market.

Marshall plan dollars are available to this new republic along the way.

Ireland has an army, rich in military tradition, such as few nations of her size. The standing army numbers about 8,000 men, well-trained and disciplined. There is an officer for every four men in the ranks to give the basis for swift expansion if need arises.

It is a small but complete ground force, backed by an air arm of spitfires and hurricanes and a force of naval gunboats.

Irishmen have been trained to fight since the days of the Druids. Men who run the army are sons of those who fought with pikes, pitchforks and muzzle-loaders in the days of British rule. Maj. Gen. William Archer, chief of staff, got his military training by helping to beat the forces of the empire with a handful of sturdy farmers and store clerks.

The 2,500,000 Irish who danced and sang and shouted to celebrate their independence yesterday are intent on earning a living, and business is good again.

Prices are lower than in New York. A two-pound loaf of bread costs sixpense (10 cents). A five pound beef roast can be had for less than $3.

Cigarettes cost about the same as Americans pay for their popular brands. A bottle of Irish whisky costs $5 and a bottle of beer 15 cents.

Still there is much poverty. The average income of the Irish working man is about half the average paid in the United States, but about equal to the average in Britain.

Many people wear tattered clothes, because they can afford no better. But the average Irishman is not much worried about that now. He expects his leaders to solve the problem of raising living standards just as he expects them to get those six Ulster counties back from Britain and make all the Irish quit speaking the English language.

Irish youngsters learn gaelic in school—and promptly forget it. To Irish patriots it would be an empty victory if they won their freedom, but lost their ancient language.

In an independence day radio address to his people last night, President O'Kelly said "with God's help we shall not fail in this duty of saving our national language."

Ireland's currency still is linked to Britain's. Irish banknotes still bear the promise that they are payable on demand in London. A lot of Irishmen think that should be changed without much delay.

Mother Will Not Be Charged In Beverly Hills Kidnaping Hoax

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., April 19. (AP)—Police Chief C. H. Anderson said today no criminal charges are planned in a kidnap hoax involving a five-year-old boy and some $30,000 of his mother's race-track betting losses.

Anderson said the boy's pretty mother, Mrs. Joe Goodman, 32, admitted staging the kidnaping to hide the betting losses from her husband

Mrs. Goodman reported last week that her boy, Joey, had been abducted and was ransomed a few hours later for $33,000.

Anderson said police felt all along it was a hoax, chiefly because when the youngster was found he had an envelope containing $1,000 in his hand.

However, the chief said, it was believed at first that the husband and father, Goodman, 40, former Norfolk, Va., boxer, staged the hoax to avoid paying off gambling debts.

Goodman was booked on a grand theft charge during the investigation. The charge has been dismissed. Two friends of Mrs. Goodman, George Miller, 43, and Mrs. Ruth Lefkowitz, 30, were booked on suspicion of conspiracy to commit grand theft. Anderson said they admitted aiding Mrs. Goodman. They were released Monday.

'Thin Man' Says He Is Too Big A Ham To Retire From Movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, April 19.—William Powell, still a top star after nearly 30 years in the movies, says he's here to stay.

"I guess I've got too much ham in me to retire," he admitted on the "bandwagon" set. He said he tried it back in 1936, when he was flush with money and popularity. For four months he lolled around the Riviera.

"I couldn't take it any longer than that," he said. "I was bored to death. Maybe I just don't have enough blue blood to be a playboy."

Dennis Morgan indicates a death knell has been sounded for his "Two Guys" series with Jack Carson. "The public doesn't want that kind of stuff any more," he said. "They want plot."

Picture Retitled

The last of the series, "Two Guys and A Gal" (Doris Day), has been retitled "What A Wonderful Feeling."

Meanwhile, Carson goes to Columbia for "Good Humor Man" and is vocal about his unhappiness with Warners. He doesn't like this brush-off he has been given in recent pictures there.

Capsule review: "The Stratton Story" (MGM) is a warmly human account of the Texas baseball pitcher who lost a leg. The picture holds the interest by its fine, senimental story, rather than by brilliance in writing or action. The greatest asset is the performance of Jimmy Stewart, who plays the part of Monty Stratton. June Allyson glows with her usual charm.

Ship Grounded Off Nova Scotia Coast

HALIFAX, N. S., April 19. (AP)—Marine radio reported today the freighter Vinje, of Panamanian registry, is aground off the Nova Scotia mainland and calling for help.

The 7,176 ton vessel radioed her number three tank was leaking badly and she needed immediate assistance. The message said the ship ran aground three miles south of Port Hawkesbury in the ice-filled Canso straight, into which the St. Lawrence river empties. The spot is on the Cape Breton shore.

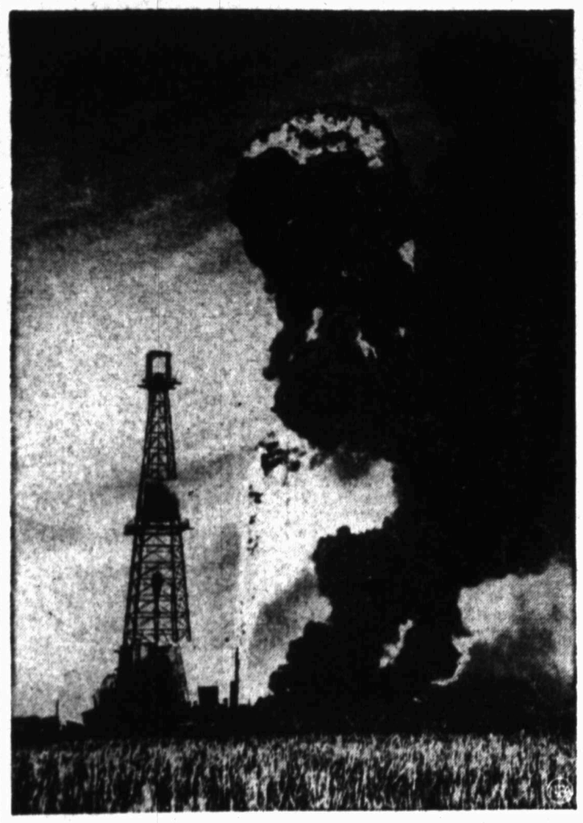

The message did not say how many persons were aboard. Ships of that size usually carry a crew of about 40.

The tug Grenadier, based at Louisburg, about 50 miles from Port Hawkesbury, undertook to go to the rescue.

France's Government has declared prices will not be allowed to advance beyond the level of December, 1948.

Donation For Jail Puzzle To Sheriff

REDWOOD CITY, Calif., April 19. (INS)—Sheriff James J. McGrath of San Mateo county had an unsolicited gift of $100 tonight but he didn't know what to do with it.

The money was sent by Elliott Nugent, Broadway and Hollywood actor, playwright and producer, who two weeks ago spent several hours in Sheriff McGrath's jail at Redwood City. Nugent was charged with taking a punch at a state highway patrolman and was lodged in the drunk tank until he made bail of $250. The bail was forfeited.

The 52-year-old celebrity, pleased with the treatment he received in the northern California calaboose, forwarded two $50 checks—one for the prisoners' milk fund, and the other for the prison baseball team.

The only trouble is that there's no milk fund at the jail and the inmates don't have a baseball team.

Says Man Has Strange Powers That Work While He Sleeps

A strange man in Los Angeles, known as "The Voice of Two Worlds," reveals the story of a remarkable system that often leads to improvement in power of mind, achievement of brilliant business and professional success and new happiness. Many report improvement in health. Others tell of increased bodily strength, magnetic personality, courage and poise.

The man, a well-known explorer and geographer, tells how he found these strange methods in far-off and mysterious Tibet, often called the land of miracles by the few travelers permitted to visit it. He discloses how he learned rare wisdom and long hidden practices, closely guarded for three thousand years by the sages, which enabled many to perform amazing feats. He maintains that these immense powers are latent in all of us and that methods for using them are now simplified so that they can be used by almost any person with ordinary intelligence of being limited by a one-man power-mind, has within him the mind-power of a thousand men or more as well as the energy-power of the universe which can be used in his daily affairs. He states that this sleeping giant of mind-power, when awakened, can make man capable of surprising accomplishments, from the prolonging of youth to success in many fields. Strangely, he says that this power works best while we sleep, when proper methods are used.

He maintains that man, instead

The author states the time has come for this long-hidden system to be disclosed to the Western world, and offers to send his amazing 9000-word treatise which reveals many startling results—to readers of this paper, free of cost or obligation. For your free copy, address the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. K-152, Los Angeles, 4, Calif. Readers are urged to write promptly as only a limited number of the free treatises have been printed.—Adv.

Cold Indifference For Woman Replaces Talk Of Love After Lengthy Courtship

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Last November our daughter Bette, 20, met Frank, 32, a former Army officer, who told her immediately that he loved her madly and asked for her steady company.

It seems he had seen her some weeks before in another man's company and made up his mind that he wanted to know her. Now he wants to marry her. However, his recent behavior worries Bette, and after some discussion we have agreed to ask your opinion, which Bette respects.

Frank is intelligent, a good conversationalist, can be courteous when in the humor, and he has many hobbies that interest Bette—who, incidentally, has a good position and may friends. Formerly he treated her tenderly, but now he shows no real affection, and we are an affectionate family.

MAN'S TANTRUMS DEMORALIZE GIRL

HE wants Bette to be affectionate with him, but he seems unresponsive and also suspicious. He comes to see Bette six nights a week and always telephones the seventh night to see if she is home; and she daren't mention other boy friends to him. Yet twice recently he has confessed dating two different girls when angry at Bette, and says she is to blame for it.

He gets angry over trifles, finds fault with things Bette says and does, and at times has left in a huff, which crushes her. She is very attached to him, but I don't know if it is love or infatuation. She says if they break up she will join the Waves.

Incidentally, Frank's parents were divorced and he never had much real home life. He seems to enjoy spending Sundays and holidays with us, and once he told me that Bette is all he has in the world and that he loves her madly. But would he make her a good husband? I've tried to persuade Bette nicely that he wouldn't; but what do you think? Signed—E. B.

MAN IS FIGHTING DISORDERLY PAST

DEAR E. B.: Obviously Frank is acutely neurotic, due to an unhappy disordered past personal history — as a result of which he feels chronically insecure in emotional relationships he forms; and invariably tends to blame the love-partner of his choice for his morbid distrustful reactions.

In this instance Bette has become the goat of his neurotic symptoms, through no fault of her own except in being his sweetheart. And the humiliation, heartache and accusations she endures from him in courtship are but a mild taste compared to the jealous moody vindictive abuse he would unleash on a wife who tried to behave normally with him and others — in wholesome, affectionate, friendly ways.

In all probability Frank brings considerable magnetism and a surface show of self confidence to his romantic excursions, but fundamentally he is a fear-sick child, anticipating rejection when his true self shall have been read by the love-object whose favor he sues.

GIRL'S VICTIMIZED BY MAN'S NEUROSIS

ESSENTIALLY he doesn't give himself credit for being loveworthy, because his childhood experience fomented a different conclusion. And now in relation to Bette, the more he craves her devotion and the security of her way-of-life, the more he fights himself and her natural serenity. Frank wants to love and be loved, yes; but in the face of opportunity to develop that relatedness, he feels threatened, unaccountably, and begins to tighten his defenses and "attack" the other party. Thus Bette has become a victim of neurotic commotion that is strictly Frank's problem — and that she can't solve. In common sense she should break with him, and regain composure right where she is.—M. H.

Woman's Editor In Vienna

Spring In Famous Old Town Offers Different Picture

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The first of a group of three articles on Vienna, written by Margaret Turner, Woman's Editor of Lubbock Avalanche and Journal publications, is published today. Miss Turner will be in Europe until mid-May.)

VIENNA — There was a time when the thought of "Vienna in the Spring" would have conjured pictures of the blue Danube, the Vienna woods, gay people, waltzes, the opera and wine gardens. Since we have been to Vienna in the spring we have a different picture and yet it embraces some of those ideas we gleaned from reading about a city that once was gay and carefree.

The Danube was blue the day we first viewed it from faraway Leopoldsberg, which is built on "the last Alp" (although we were surprised to discover that Vienna is not on the Danube actually). And the Vienna woods were as wonderful as we had pictured them. During our stay we saw and met people who either were gay or certainly were good actors at assuming a pleased appearance; we heard waltzes; we visited wine gardens and we heard two operas.

• • •

Our driver and guide in Vienna was Edmund Dubsky, who contributed a great deal to the enjoyment of our tours by his vast knowledge of his beloved city. He once was employed by the American Express company and now is employed by the U. S. Army as a driver. When we return home we'll write more about "Eddie."

• • •

ON THE way to Leopoldsberg, we passed through Kobenzel, once a beautiful estate owned by an aristocratic family and now run down; its sightly structures falling in ruins; its landscape marred by army barracks, now converted to use for displaced persons. There was a lookout spot near by and we got out of the car for a bird's eye view of the far stretching city and beyond that to the river, to the one bridge that remains and on beyond to the far away Alps and the border of Hungary.

• • •

The church at Leopoldsberg, which took a terrific bombardment, has already been restored and nearby stands a shrine and small chapel dedicated to the war dead of Vienna. We went up the steps in the bright sunshine and asked Eddie to translate the plaques. The first is Psalms 78,9. The others, translated freely are: "For coming generations an earnest warning" and "To victims of war be God's peace."

• • •

Driving back to town, we passed through the French and English zones and Eddie explained, with a chuckle, that the mansion which is occupied by General Keyes is called "water palace," because it formerly was occupied by a dairyman who watered the milk.

• • •

THE flower stalls were filled with bunches of violets, daffodils and pussy willow sprigs. Across from our hotel window residents of an apartment house placed pot plants on the window sills and the trees were leafing out in the parks. A beautiful tree, that resembled a magnolia, or so we thought, turned out to be a tulip tree.

• • •

We have said that Viennese people walk and so they do. But the streets are filled and the buses have been running again since two weeks ago. The stadtbahn, subway runs below ground and also as an elevated. We noticed a great contrast with our subways and our streetcars which are very noisy. There is no great clanging and groaning and shrill blasts, as one hears in America. Fifty street cars are to be sent from America, our driver proudly told us, and the tracks are to be enforced to permit them to travel "appropriately."

• • •

THERE are thousands of homes, apartment houses and buildings which were shattered or partly destroyed by bombs and fire set by the retreating Germans. Many of them still lie in shambles. A great building program is underway in the main city, but the constructive methods will take many months, even years. For instance, we saw a number of workmen and workwomen rebuilding a structure and buckets of material were being hauled up by ropes. Everything is done by the most antiquated methods.

In contrast to the destruction is the sight of Kaerntnerstrasse, the city's most famous shopping street, which has been called the "Fifth Avenue of Vienna." In the show windows we noticed lovely gowns, dresses, jewelry, furs, blouses and lingerie. We do not know who the buyers will be, because Austria is not yet open to tourists and the prices everywhere are too high for the Austrians who are hard put to buy enough food to keep from being hungry. Those who play the Black Market are the only ones who can afford the inflated cost of living here.

New Delay Threatens Action On Gilmer-Aiken Bill By House

AUSTIN, April 19. (AP)—House foes of the Gilmer-Aikin school bills won a point and lost two—none of them decisive—in the legislature today.

The Senate stormed in debate on the controversial oil unitization bill.

An effort to send Senator Jim Taylor's school reorganization bill back to committee was knocked down in the House on a ruling by Speaker Durwood Manford that the resolution calling for such action could not be taken up today.

A resolution seeking postponement of further action on the Taylor bill and two other Senate-passed school measures until a special session could be called, was referred to the committee on rules. Foes of the school bills wanted immediate action on the resolution.

Resolution Is Okayed

Another resolution, this one to permit the House to consider several anti-Communist measures on days set aside for Senate bills, was approved by the House, 86 to 36. Gilmer-Aikin backers said this was just another effort to delay the school bills which top the calendar on Senate bill days. Proponents of the resolution denied this. The resolution, to become effective, must be approved by the Senate and signed by the governor.

Rep. Deno Tufares of Wichita Falls was voted down twice by the House in a try to keep his natural gas tax bill alive.

Rep. Raymond Tatum served notice in the House that he would ask for recommendation of its vote yesterday by which a bill giving the game, fish and oyster commission wide regulatory powers was defeated on second reading, 47-55.

Statement Is Issued

Gov. Beauford H. Jester issued a statement today praising the legislature for trying to keep spending within bounds of expected revenue, but urging the need of eleemosynary institutions for more money.

The House yesterday passed a bill to set up a state board for licensing and regulating chiropractors. The Senate worked long and late trying to break its weeks-long log jam. After a 2:30 to 9:30 p. m. tussle it succeeded in breaking loose just one log—a proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the poll tax as a requirement for voting.

Senator George Moffett of Chillicothe, author of the bill to permit cooperative development of oil fields, told the Senate that the bill aims at "dispelling the fear" that such development agreements violate the antitrust laws.

The bill provides that such developments shall be permitted as long as they "are reasonable exceptions" to the antitrust laws, voluntary and approved by the railroad commission.

Moffett estimated that ultimate recovery of oil would increase 20 to 60 per cent under cooperative programs and that increased tax revenue to the state would be as much as $330,000,000.

Dr. Wise entered the hospital March 30 for an abdominal operation and has been critically ill since Saturday.

MEETING CHANGED

Strippers Georgia Sothern, left, and Joann Collier battle it out on the sidewalk in front of the New York night spot where they were featured. They started their scratch-and-screech scrap in the club, but the manager gave them the heave-ho.

Man Freed In Liquor Trial

A county court jury of which V. H. Whitworth was foreman returned a verdict of innocent at 12:10 p. m. in the case of Samuel D. Calloway, 32, charged with possession of whisky and beer for purpose of sale.

The state, represented by County Attorney Waggoner Carr and assistant County Attorney Dudley Brummett, sought to convince the jury that 52 cases of beer found in a cache in a farmhouse seven miles southeast of Lubbock, belonged to Calloway, who was represented by Attorney C. L. Harris.

Evidence in the case was presented Monday. The charge was read this morning by Judge Walter Davies, and the case argued.

New Trial Sought

Preparation was underway for trial of James Brown, a Lubbock negro this afternoon on a charge of sale of beer and gin.

Robert White, 43, a Slaton negro who Saturday was assessed a $500 fine, county court costs and a year in county jail after a plea of guilty of liquor law violation asked Monday afternoon that the judgment be set aside and that he be granted a new trial.

The motion was filed by Buck W. McNeil, of the law firm of Burks and McNeil, and set up charges that, among other things, the defendant had been denied a fair and impartial trial.

Rather, it was set out, White got a "supersonic, jet-propelled trial held so quickly as to deprive him of the rights under the law."

He was tried without any waiver of his right to a jury trial, was not advised of his rights to bail, and Judge Walter Davies took cognizance of inadmissable evidence, even before the trial, the motion went on to say.

No action on the motion had been announced.

Narcotics Seized By Police; Texans Held

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 19 (U.P.) Police today held three Dallas men and a local girl who were caught with marijuana estimated to be worth $5,000 to $10,000—the biggest narcotics haul here in recent years.

Federal narcotics agents said they would file charges against the men sometime today. The girl probably will be charged in police court.

Chief of Detectives Dwight Brown said the quartet has been operating in this area for some time and probably has been supplying most of the city's retailers of marijuana.

Officers who stopped the Texans' car Sunday night found 156 rolled marijuana cigarets, 16 pounds of raw marijuana and a device for pulverizing the weed. Two loaded automatics also were found in the car.

Brown said he was checking a report the men knew something about the death of an officer near Dallas several months ago.

SIX JEWS KILLED

TEL AVIV, April 19. (U.P.)—The government reported tonight that six Jews were killed and five were injured early today when a party of civilians was ambushed on a trip to the Edom area at the southern tip of the Dead sea.

Desertion Case Is Continued

Judge G. V. Pardue continued a child desertion case naming J. C. James, 40, of Lubbock, contingent upon James' payment of $35 a month toward support of two minor children, it was announced at noon.

The court dismissed his jury panel.

Fourteen years' probation and one instructed verdict for the defendant were handed down in three felony cases Monday afternoon in Judge Pardue's 99th district court.

That made a total of five years in the penitentiary, 24 years of probation and the one instructed verdict for a total of seven defendants tried in the morning and afternoon sessions of court.

Raymond Lee Tate, 21, of near Idalou was placed under nine-year probation after pleading guilty of burglary of Watson Coal and Grain company.

False Statement Admitted

Dean Andrews, 17, of Lubbock, was placed under five-year probation after pleading guilty of theft by bailee of an automobile.

The instructed verdict was for Charles J. Jefferson, 26, a negro, charged with burglary and already under five-year suspended sentence for burglary.

Floyd Brown, a negro who last week had been convicted of burglary and whose five-year suspended sentence in another burglary conviction was set aside at the same time, testified under oath that he had lied in his former trial and twice in the present case when he claimed that Jefferson had become a principal by keeping watch and agreeing to whistle in case anyone else approached while Brown broke and entered another negro's house.

He made that admission to Byron Chappell, his court-appointed counsel, and to A. W. Salyars, assistant district attorney who handled the state's cases in that court. Salyars said he would charge perjury to Brown as a result.

The other four defendants were convicted at the morning session of court.

Man Is Killed In Dallas Auto Wreck

DALLAS, April 19 (U.P.)—Tommy Sanford, 26, was killed last night when his autombile struck a concrete pillar after going out of control on a Dallas county road. Witnesses said Sanford's car had no headlights.

Jess Gutierrez, also 26, died at a hospital yesterday as the result of injuries suffered in a county traffic mishap Sunday. He was injured when two automobiles collided head-on.

Passengers Unhurt As Bus Hits Trees

A bus drier and four passengers escaped injury when a TNM&O bus went out of control Monday night and crashed into two trees in the yard of the Retha Martin residence, at 2701 Nineteenth.

The mishap occurred when brakes on the south-bound bus failed to function as the vehicle approached Nineteenth street from Texas Tech campus about 10 p. m.

Unable to make the sharp right turn at Nineteenth, bus driver A. L. Poe steered the vehicle across the Martin's yard.

The bus crashed through shrubs and flowers and hit two trees, a 30-foot spruce and a small ash before it stopped, Martin said.

The bus, which bogged deep in the soft earth of the yard, was removed early today.

W. Hurley Carpenter, assistant general manager of TNM&O lines here, said brakes apparently had become wet after the early evening rainstorm.

The bus was enroute from the Tech campus to Veterans village, 12 miles west of Lubbock.

KCBD Loses Permit For FM Transmitter

WASHINGTON, April 19 (Special)—Caprock Broadcasting company of Lubbock was told today by the Federal Communications commission that its permit for construction of an FM broadcasting station was forfeited as of April 13 for lack of prosecution.

The company's AM station, KCBD, was in no way affected by the announcement.

The company two years ago applied for an FM permit to operate a proposed station KCBD-FM. The permit was granted a year ago, but the station decided not to install the FM transmitter, said Joe Bryant, mnager.

Deaf Mute Questioned After Aunt Is Beaten With Hammer

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19 (U.P.) — A pretty, 24-year-old deaf mute was questioned in writing today after her elderly aunt was taken to the hospital with a fractured skull as the result of a near-fatal hammer beating.

The young woman was Nancy Hammack, an attractive brunette, who last night led a neighbor to the prostrate form of her aunt, Mrs John T. Payne, 62. Beside her was a claw hammer, a poker and a brown brass candlestick.

Woman Undergoes Surgery

Mrs. Payne was undergoing surgery at Mission emergency hospital. Attendants said she had been "practically scalped," apparently with the claw part of the hammer. Her condition was critical.

William E. Lynd, who commanded the Fourth Air Force during the war, said Miss Hammack rang his doorbell shortly after midnight. Wearing a bloodstained pair of pajamas, she handed him a note reading, "my aunt is stay in living room by man hits."

Body Is Found

He said he went to Mrs. Payne's house and found her half-conscious and bleeding from wounds on the head and body. He called police.

An inspection of the house showed evidences of a struggle, police said. The furniture was overturned in both the living room and Mrs. Payne's bedroom, where police believed the struggle began. A trail of blood led from the bedroom to the living room and then to the hall, where Mrs. Payne was found.

McGee Trial

each other since their war days in France.

At the noon recess a total of 43 veniremen had been examined. Sixty-two remain on the eligible list. While waiting to be called for examination the prospective jurors are quartered on the top floor of the courthouse in a room somewhat too small for their number. Judge Blair said he was aware of the discomfort caused by the cramped quarters but under the present conditions there was no way to alleviate the situation.

The nature of the questioning of the prospective jurors by the defense attorneys Burton S. Burks, Lubbock, and Col. Simpson, indicated that the defense would inject a surprise move into the case. Trial observers said that a plea of insanity would be entered in an effort to prevent a finding of guilty to the murder charge.

District Attorney Lloyd Croslin and special assistant, George Dupree, have already stated that they will seek to obtain the death penalty for the young former insurance salesman who is alleged to have killed his sweetheart's father.

Threats Recalled

The shooting occurred at the Allston apartment, 2020 Fifth. Allston died a few hours after on the afternoon of July 7, 1948, being struck in the neck by a bullet fired through his kitchen door. According to statements made by the widow and Betty Jane Allston, 18-year-old daughter of the slain man, the slaying followed several verbal battles in which Allston demanded that McGee cease calling on his daughter.

McGee is alleged to have threatened the life of the girl and her entire family if she refused to marry him. At one time, Mrs. Allston said, McGee broke into the girl's room while she was in bed and shook her while he demanded an answer to his proposal. McGee had to be forced from the apartment at that time.

Deposition Awaited

Since the time of the shooting McGee has been held without bail in Lubbock county jail. For this reason Judge Blair, as well as attorneys for both sides, are anxious for the trial to move along without undue delays. Yesterday in making the announcement of ready for trial, the defense qualified their announcement by saying it was conditional on receiving a deposition from a well-known psychiatrist who is now in New Jersey. The defense indicated that the testimony of this expert was a vital part of their argument.

Neither side has indicated who they will first call to the witness stand. Most of this information is being reserved until the trial actually gets underway. Selection of the jury should be completed sometime today.

atomic scientist who is in charge of arrangements for the Paris conference"—as saying American delegates would include Charles Chaplin, O. John Rogge, Rockwell Kent, Louis Untermeyer, Howard Fast, Johannes Steel, Artie Shaw, and Rabbi J. X. Cohen.

The conference is scheduled to open tomorrow and run through Saturday.

The House committee said this meeting is one of a series organized in recent months by the Communists "as part of a campaign against the North Atlantic defense pact."

It said another of these was the "Scientific and Cultural Conference for World peace" sponsored by the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and professions in New York in March.

The New York meeting "was actually a supermobilization of the inveterate wheelhorses and supporters of the Communist party and its auxiliary organizations" the committee declared, adding:

"It was in a sense a glorified pyramid club, pyramiding into one inflated front the names which had time and again been used by the Communists as decoys for the entrapment of innocents."

Daily Markets

Stock Market

STOCKS SLIGHTLY LOWER

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP) — The stock market closed a little lower today after a session of narrow and sometimes erratic price movements.

Changes were too small to indicate a decisive trend downward but fractional declines were in a clean majority.

A little pick-up in buying late in the session lifted many stocks from the low points of the day.

Volume tended to expand on price declines but overall activity was nothing to get excited about. Turnover was at the rate of around 900,000 shares for the full session.

Tending lower most of the day were Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Goodyear, Lockheed, Liggett & Myers, Consolidated Natural Gas, Phelps Dodge, General Electric, Standard Oil (NJ), and Warner Bros.

Steadier spots included Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Texas Pacific Land Trust, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, and Texas Co.

The market started out slightly lower in a dull trade. But then some mill buying entered wheat, presumably reflecting lifting of hedges against sales of flour to the United Kingdom. May wheat firmed and, when short-covering increased, the advance gathered speed.

In the closing minutes May wheat pushed up to $2.26, a new high since January.

Wheat closed 1⅝-2⅜ higher, May $2.24⅞-⅞, corn was 1⅜-2¾ higher, May $1.25½-⅝, oats were ¼-1¼ higher, May 70-70⅛, rye was 1½-2¾ higher, May $1.28¾, soybeans were 2½-3¾ higher, May $2.25¼-½, and lard was 20 to 25 cents a hundred pounds higher, May $11.42.

The east-west negotiations over Berlin were reported carried on through Jacob Malik, Soviet delegate to the United Nations security council.

Malik was understood to have suggested originally that the west drop its plans for a west German government in return for the lifting of the blockade. He hinted that would clear the way for a meeting of foreign ministers on Germany, which Russia long has sought.

U. S. Conducts Mock Warfare

NUERNBERG, Germany, April 19 (AP)—A mythical eastern European "aggressor" struck powerfully against 70,000 U. S. troops on maneuvers in Germany today.

American forces fell back slowly before the first make-believe attack from positions near the Czechoslovak border.

The mock enemy found the Americans holding a line from Hof through Weiden to Regensberg. The American plan was to withdraw behind the Ludwig canal. There they planned to regroup and counterattack.

Roads in the maneuver area were jammed with almost 10,000 American vehicles. They included approximately 1,000 "combat vehicles," tanks and armored cars among them.

Largest Since War

The maneuvers, largest held in Germany since the end of the war, have been designated "operations showers." They lived up to their name when a sudden thunderstorm drenched the maneuver area last night. The war games had opened in weather unusually warm for April.

Foreign military observers were on hand to watch the American forces. A Swedish military mission arrived yesterday and was followed by a Dutch observation team. Observers from Britain, France and Norway are expected today.

All visitors are being received and briefed by American officers in Ornate Stein castle, just outside Nuernberg, the forward U. S. headquarters.

Russian observers have been barred from the maneuvers because the United States was not invited to send observers to Russian maneuvers.

sively, but the roof of the barn was lifted off and pieces of metal were scattered around the vicinity. Damage was estimated at $2,500 for the barn. The twister also broke a limb off a tree and drove it through the roof of the house. No one was injured. Farmers of that area, northwest of Slaton, reported heavy rains estimated to range upward to four inches.

Damage was reported in Monroe vicinity. A small house used by cotton pickers on the Wilson Dickson farm, three miles south and three miles east of Monroe, was moved about five feet and dishes in the house were broken. A fence around Dickson's own home was broken.

Lesser Damage Here

Lesser damage was reported in Lubbock. A plate glass window was blown out at Hilton hotel coffee shop. Light wires and transformers were destroyed.

Moisture received Monday night and this morning measured 1.18, the U. S. Weather bureau station reported. The measurement for the year was increased to 6.27 inches.

The measurement for January, February, March and April last year, totaled 2.02, with only .33 inch falling during the entire month of April.

Rainfall Is General

Reports indicated rainfall was general over the South Plains and that many areas of Texas shared in precipitation. Wind caused some damage in this area.

The Associated Press reported the following measurements for Monday night and early today: San Angelo, 1.10; Del Rio, 1.10; Amarillo, 1.27; Big Spring, .62; Abilene, .97; Victoria, 1.39; Laredo, .03; Waco, .02; San Antonio, .29; Clarendon, .19; Childress, .25; Wichita Falls, .01; Wink, .03; Midland, .4, and Dalhart, .39. Conditions over the state generally were cloudy today. Drizzling rain was falling at Amarillo.

For the South Plains, the U. S. weather bureau station near Lubbock offered a forecast of scattered thundershowers until about 4 o'clock this afternoon, when clouds are expected to break up partially. Partly cloudy skies tonight and Wednesday were forecast.

Wind rose to 40 miles an hour Monday night. Highest sustained velocity this morning up to 9:15 a.m. was 27 miles per hour, with gusts from 28 to 34.

Light Hail Falls

Rain began falling in Lubbock about 7:45 p.m. Monday. At the weather station, .84 inch was recorded up to 11 p.m., but at least .70 inch of that fell within a 30-minute period from 9:30 p.m. until 10 p.m., the height of the storm. Light hail fell. Other towns reported from a trace to as high as three inches of moisture at Sudan from the storm, which moved diagnonally across West Texas to strike Dalhart, Amarillo, Roswell, N. M., Hobbs, N. M., Farwell, Canyon, Happy, Tulia, Plainview and almost all towns on the South Plains. Towns reporting more than an inch of precipitation before midnight were Shallowater, 2 inches; Littlefield, 1½ inches; Floydada, 1.05 inches, and Plainview, 1½ inches. Approximately 2 inches of rain and some hail fell in Buffalo Lake vicinity.

When the heavy plate glass window was blown out at Hilton hotel coffee shop, no one was injured, the coffee shop having closed 15 minutes earlier. Only a few persons remained in the shop and none was near the window.

Light Service Interrupted

Some damage to light wires and transformers in the city was caused. Many sections of Lubbock were placed in the dark for periods ranging from a few minutes to a quarter of an hour.

The city fire department, from which firemen answered three fire alarms during the brief storm, was without lights for several periods of a few minutes each. The police department, sheriff's office and Lubbock Memorial hospital were without lights also for brief periods, the hospital for about 10 minutes at one time. Other hospitals in the city reported lights "flickered and blinked" during the storm, but did not go out. The city light plant reported it had received between 50 and 60 calls from residents who reported trouble with lights going out, mainly in the south and southwestern parts of the city.

Hereford Man Killed

At Hereford, David Johnson, 23, was killed on a farm when struck by lightning. He was leading a calf into a barn when the bolt struck.

Heaviest downpour of rain was in Swisher county, in the region between Happy and Kafir. The rain was estimated to have measured four inches.

There was a liberal accompaniment of hailstones, and several farmers at Happy, surveying their wheat fields this morning, reported that nothing was left but the stems. It was not known immediately how widespread such field damage was.

Amarillo underwent a hail deluge in the midst of a violent thunderstorm last night. The hail was so heavy and thick that it drove virtually all traffic off the streets for awhile.

A severe hail struck Del Rio in the Texas Big Bend country early today, the Associated Press reported.

Hail stones bigger than teacups knocked out all street lights and outdoor lighting. Extensive damage was done to main street show-windows and to tourist courts made from converted barracks.

The Del Rio News-Herald said "all insurance men are swamped and no estimate of the damage is available."

At one time the hail completely covered the ground at Del Rio. Trees and gardens were stripped. Damage to telephone connections made it difficult to check the loss to ranchers in the surrounding country.

Who's Complaining About 'Em Anyway?

BOSTON, April 19 (U.P.) — The tendency of American women to get taller and heftier adds up to a prettier and more zestful female, a physical education expert said today.

"They are becoming athletic without being masculine about it," he said. "They are feminine but at the same time they are good sports. They are no longer clinging vines."

No Losses Expected

"No wholesale or retail firms indicated any sign of expected net losses during the next four months. In fact, no firms of any type reported expectation of losses during that period except two small construction companies whose jobs will be completed by June."

Total non-agricultural employment is expected to increase by more than 300 during the next two months and by approximately 500 during the next four. The gains are expected to be small except in the construction industry.

Although estimated unemployment showed a decrease of only 200, from 1,200 to 1,000 during the past month, there appeared to be no doubt that it has struck a downward trend.

In comparison with three preceding years, the current unemployment figure does not appear alarmingly high. In April, 1948, unemployment was estimated at 900; in April, 1947, at 800; and in April, 1946, at 1,500.

The unemployment figure is expected to drop to 800 within the next two months. Many of the unemployed being counted currently are transients who will move on to ther localities if they do not find work readily.

Old-Age Plan Is Supported

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP)—Expansion of social security coverage and boosting of old age and survivors insurance benefits was urged upon Congress today by Marion B. Folsom, treasurer of the Eastman Kodak Co.

But the Rochester, N. Y., businessman, who participated in drafting of the original social security expansion in some major particulars. He doesn't want the tax as high as Mr. Truman suggested.

Governor Called

By coincidence it was "Folsom day" before the House ways and means committee, now considering the administration's proposals for broadening the security program.

Governor James E. (Big Jim) Folsom of Alabama will follow the Kodak official before the committee The two are not related.

Folsom from Rochester, in his prepared statement, proposed:

1. That all gainful employed persons be brought into the old age and survivors insurance program as soon as feasible. The Truman administration has asked this. If Congress agrees, the number covered would be increased from about 30,000,000 to 50,000,000.

2 The benefits be increased to come in line with current wages and the cost of living. This the administration also has suggested, but Folsom did not agree in all respects on just how this should be accomplished.

Local Authority Urged

3 The tax rate should be increased from the present one per cent to 1½ per cent each against employes' pay and employers' payrolls "at the time the benefits are increased." The tax is due to jump automatically Jan. 1 to 1½ per cent. Folsom said the tax should be collected only on the first $3,000 of a person's income as at present, and should not be assessed against the first $4,800 as the administration has asked.

4. No action should be taken by the federal government, as the administration proposes, in setting up a temporary disability benefit plan but this problem should be left to the states. The cases of total and permanent disability also should be handled on a local basis rather than by the federal government.

Burglary

sibly a part bottle of atrophine.

Approximately $25 in money also was taken, Miller had reported Monday.

The burglary was the second since Lavender and Hull drug was opened, the other having been reported about the first of December in 1947.

It was the sixth time the Prescription laboratory has been burglarized or robbed, Miller said.

Moore's Bonded patrol telephoned the police at 3:10 a. m. to report the Lavender and Hull burglary. One of its drivers had found the padlock smashed, the police were informed.

Sgt. L. D. Blakney and Patrolmen H. B. Hayes and J. H. Schenk went to the store, where a preliminary investigation was commenced under assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Lavender, George Hall and Homer Harrison, other patrolmen, later assisted in the case.

Key Found

Lavender found that approximately $15 had been taken from a front cash register, the rest of the money from a hiding place elsewhere in the store. A key had been found in its hidden place, and apparently had been used in opening the narcotics drawer.

Nothing else in the store was disturbed, Lavender said.

Exit was through a rear door into the alley.

The man who was questioned lives only a few blocks from the drugstore, City Detectives Lee Rice, jr., and L. W. Forrest said.

They explained that their questioning was "routine", after the man had allowed them permission to enter his rented bedroom to ask him questions and later had told them they could examine his room if they liked.

Inspections On Today

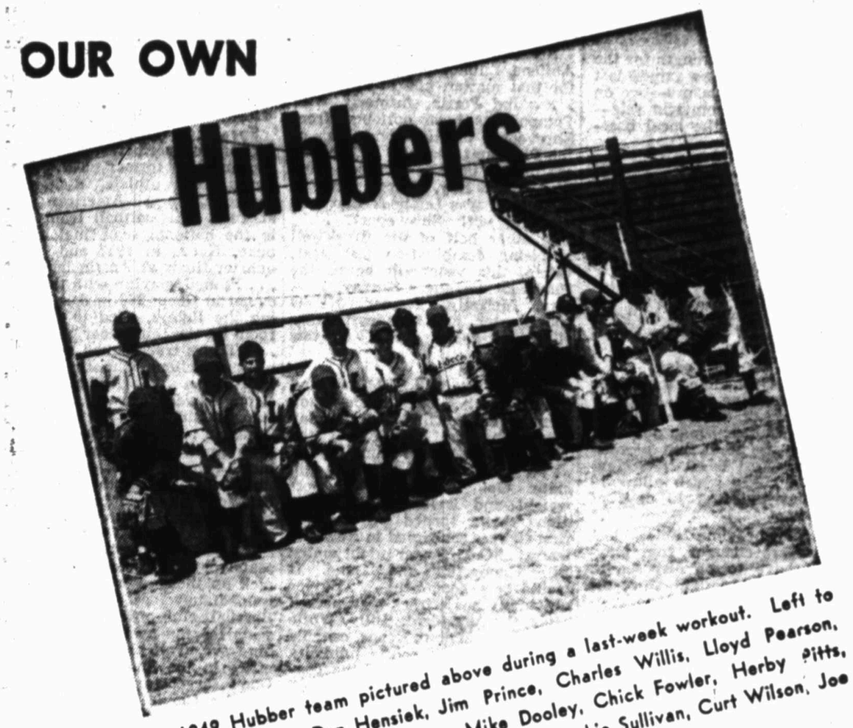

The party was entertained at an informal barbecue at the Buffalo Lakes cabin of A. B. Davis Monday night. This morning, members of the various Air Forces groups conferred with each other, inspected Lubbock Army Air Field and toured portions of the city.

At noon, at the Country club, the visitors had luncheon with the City commission and members of the Chamber of Commerce Air Forces Affairs committee, going over details in connection with setting up Lubbock Air Forces Base as a permanent installation. Discussion centered largely around housing and kindred problems attendant upon bringing into Lubbock a military population of around 3,500 men needed in the operation of a twin-engine bomber school.

Reactivation of the base will bring into Lubbock a new population, military and civilian, of about 7,000 to 7,500 persons.

Last year his Hubbers finished third in regular season WT-NM league play, but were defeated in the Shaughnessy playoff. As a player, Sullivan has compiled a hefty .359 composite batting average in his three seasons with Lubbock. Full Major Slate Is Carded

Nats And Phils Post Triumphs

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The major league baseball season opens with a full schedule today following surprising early victories by the Philadelphia Phils and Washington Senators.

Thanks to Ken Heintzelman, a 33-year-old graybread, and newcomer Clyde Vollmer, the Phils and Senators stole a lap on the field yesterday in the only two games played.

Braves Shut Out

Heintzelman shut out the favored Boston Braves, 4-0, spoiling the 1948 National league champions' pennant-raising ceremonies. Vollmer came through with a ninth-inning single that beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 3-2.

Both games on the first of the double opening programs were played under poor weather conditions. As a result the crowds suffered. Only 9,195 paid to watch Billy Southworth's Braves hoist their '48 flag. Some 26,000 joined President Truman at Griffith stadium.

Chill, damp weather threatens to slice today's crowds. Cincinnati, sold out, since Christmas as usual for its date with St. Louis Cardinals, won't be hurt. But the others fay.

Brooklyn hopes to crack its home opening record of 31,648 with the New York Giants as an attraction. The weather man is not optimistic.

New Mark Seen

Chicago may turn out 30,000 to see if Rip Sewell, winner of nine opening games, can pitch Pittsburgh to a victory over the Cubs. Sewell, better than ever at 40, is opposed by another "kid," 39-year-old Dutch Leonard.

The Phils and Braves, who beat the gun yesterday, may top their opening day mark in a Patriots' day doubleheader.

Detroit expects to draw 50,000 to see Hal Newhouser try to tame the feeble Chicago White Sox. The New York Yankees expect about 40,000 for their Yankee stadium opener against Washington.

The world champion Cleveland Indians are due to play in the comparative solitude of Sportsman's park against the St. Louis Browns with 15,000 or less in the stands. Connie Mack counts on 25,000 at Shibe park for the A's first home start against the powerful Boston Red Sox.

Three Players Out

It's a sad opening day for Joe DiMaggio, Whitey Kurowski and Ewell Blackwell, the three "big ifs" of the spring training season.

DiMaggio, missing his eighth of 11 openers, will be on the bench in street clothes while the Yanks tangle with the Senators—league-leading Senators, if you please.

Kurowski stays home in St. Louis for an examination by Dr. Robert Hyland while the Cards face Cincinnati. Blackwell, who hasn't pitched an inning after a kidney operation, won't see action for some time.

The Athletics' Dick Fowler apparently had victory No. 1 all sewed up with a 2-1 lead going to the last of the ninth at Washington. Successive pinch doubles by Sherry Robertson and Ed Stewart tied the score. After Fowler loaded the bases, Vollmer came through with his game-winning single to left.

The hit by Vollmer made President Truman look good as a baseball expert for he had predicted a Washington win by a 5-4 score. The score was off but he had the winner. Last year he was right on the Yankees to beat the Senators.

Heintzelman did a remarkable job on the Braves, mowing down the champs with five hits. Johnny Sain was wild in the first walking two men with the bases loaded to give Eddie Sawyer's alert Phils all the runs they needed.

Lamesa Loboes Drop Post Millers, 9-6

LAMESA, April 19 (Special) — It was only a question of time today before the Lamesa Loboes were ready to take the field to open the West Texas-New Mexico League season.

The Loboes tuned up for Wednesday night's opener against Albuquerque by trimming the Post Millers of the Oil Belt League, 9-6 last night. It was the sixth straight victory for the local ball club and it took an eighth inning rally to clinch the game.

Singles by Leo Rheingans, Glenn Coats and Tyler Pryor, the winning pitcher, along with a walk and an error, gave the Loboes the victory.

Rheingans, Coats, Shortstop Walter Buckel and Manager Jay Haney led the attack on Sid Faulkner, Miller hurler, who went the route. The four Lamesa players each had three hits to account for all but one of the Lobo safeties.

Coats turned out to be the individual hitting star with four runs driven in to give Pryor, a rookie, the victory.

Walter Holland, Cornell, Sheppard and Thomas each had two hits for the Millers, with Holland driving in a pair of runs.

The line score:

Post	202	110	000	6	9	3
Lamesa	400	102	02x	9	13	1

Faulkner and Holland; Cooke, Jones (4), Pryor (5,WP) and Finley, Angeley and Burleson.

EVERETT KAINE
Hubber Infield Prospect

★ ★ ★

Young Infielder May Get Regular Post

Rookie Everett Kaine Slated As Utility Player With Hubs

(This is the eighth in a series of articles describing the 1949 Lubbock Hubbers. Information was gathered during spring training).

BY JOE KELLY
Journal Sports Editor

You might call Everett "Bubba" Kaine a chip off the old block.

Fathers wield a tremendous amount of influence over their children and Bubba's father is no exception. But in this score an assist for George Schepps, general manager of the Hubbers, and Chick Fowler, who last year played leftfield for that team.

Bubba's father, T. W. Kaine, got him into baseball, Fowler recommended him and Schepps signed him. That's a pretty neat combination and one that promises to be a fortunate one for the Hubbers this year.

Born In Texas

Let's go back to the beginning—Bubba's. He was born in Buna, Texas, not the site of a famed battle in the early days of the New Guinea warfare. There he did about the usual amount of mischief that a healthy youngster does. Before he knew it, Bubba was in high school.

There was no football or baseball in Buna High school, so Bubba did the next best thing — he went out for basketball. He proved to be more than adequate in this sport. He lettered three consecutive years at a forward position. In addition, he was named to the all-district team for two years and to the all-regional team one year. He graduated in 1947.

All the time Budda was playing basketball, his father was ambitious for him to play baseball. He taught him virtually all he knows about the sport. He was his first coach and, judging from his present ability, a good one.

Played Sandlot Ball

Bubba's father never played in organized ball, but he had played a lot of the sandlot variety. It was his first love. As a result, he urged Bubbe to go into the game.

The younger Kaine took the advice. He went out for the town team and played second and third base during the 1943 and 1944 seasons. He laid out of baseball the following two years, although he saw no armed forces service.

Bubbe went into semi-pro ball in 1947 and 1948, playing shortstop for Silsbee. That's where Fowler enters the picture. He saw Bubba last year and was impressed with him. He told Schepps and the latter invited him to report to the Greenville-Lubbock-Corpus Christi tryout camp March 13.

Signed For Hubbers

As a result of his showing there, Bubba was signed for the Hubbers and probably will see only utility service this year. But unless the present veteran problem is cleared up, he might even get a starting role.

The Hubber rookie is 19 years old, stands six feet high and weighs 175 pounds. He's eager to make good and Lubbock fans should take a liking for the tall, dark-haired rookie. From what he's shown so far, he'll be a handy man to have around.

Lamesa Schoolboys Meet Odessa Today

LAMESA, April 19 (Special) — In first place in District 3-AA's baseball race with four victories and one defeat, Lamesa High school's Golden Tornado nine meets the only team to lick them, Odessa's Broncs, at Odessa this afternoon.

Odessa currently is tied with Abilene for second place in the conference race. They opened the Tornado season with a 10-7 victory.

Righthander Bill Hart, who has one win, will open for the Tornadoes, while Oscar Roth, who handed the Lamesa nine its defeat, will chuck for the Broncs.

Dallas Eagles Edge Cats, 6-4

(By The Associated Press)

There is little doubt left that the Dallas Eagles are the team to watch in the Texas league baseball race this year.

The Eagles proved their power last night against the second place Fort Worth Cats. Dallas took Fort Worth into camp with a 6-4 victory, its sixth straight league win. The Eagles have yet to lose a league game.

In other Monday night games Tulsa downed the downtrodden Oklahoma City Indians 3-2 at Tulsa; Shreveport nosed out San Antonio 2-1 at San Antonio and 10-9 in a 10 inning game.

Beaumont was trailing almost hopelessly until the ninth inning when they skippered six runs across the plate. Houston, the home team, came back in its half of the ninth and tied the score with two runs, sending the game into the extra innings.

Beaumont failed to score in the added frame. Houston pushed one across on a wild pitch and that was all.

Shreveport's winning margin was an inside-the park homer by Moe Santamauro.

Byerly Goes Route

Santamauro stretched a line drive into a four baser when Mission Fielder Bill Martin attempted a shoestring catch. The ball got away and rolled to the fence.

Bud Byerly, winning Tulsa Oiler pitcher, was the first to go the route for his team. Al Cleary of Shreveport pitched three-hit ball to San Antonio. Vern Kennedy, 40, right-hander for Dallas, had to have help from Floyd Speer in the ninth.

Eight pitchers were involved in the Beaumont-Houston game. Five hurled for losing Beaumont and Houston found it necessary to use three moundsmen.

FONSECA WINS BOUT

EL PASO, April 19. (U.P.)—Jessy Fonseca, El Paso, today strengthened his ambition to become Texas featherweight champion. He took a unanimous 10-round decision over former Texas feather champ Manny Ortega, also of El Paso, here last night. In doing so, Fonseca reversed a unanimous decision he lost to Ortega last year.

FAST GRIDDERS

NEW YORK (AP) — The recent IC4A 60-yard dash had seven T formation half-backs in the race, but it was won by a non-footballer. Horace Smith of Michigan State, Bob Tyler of Dartmouth, Jim Fuchs and Charley Keller of Yale, Bill Brooks of Wesleyan, Bill Powers of Navy and Jim Cain of Army were in the event. Andy Stanfield of Seton Hall won the race, with Smith second.

Broyles Meets Talbert Today

HOUSTON, April 19. (U.P.)—Top-seeded Richard (Pancho) Gonzales will fire his best service today at Leo La Borde of Baytown, Tex., in the second-round feature match at the 15th annual River Oaks tennis tournament.

Only one reversal resembling an upset featured yesterday's opening play. That came when veteran Ebbie Holden of Houston found national boys' champion Hamilton Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., was having trouble with his backhand. He defeated Richardson, 6-3, 6-1.

Favorites Notch Wins

Other favorites coasted through to easy victories.

Bitsy Grant of Atlanta, Ga., only three-times champion of the River Oaks event, breezed through Jack Turpin of Rice Institute, 6-3, 6-3. Fifth-seeded Earl Cochell of San Francisco had little trouble with George Pryor of Fort Worth, winning 6-2, 6-4.

Today's pairings include:

2 p. m.—Bill Halbert, seeded third, vs. Jake Broyles, Texas Tech; Bob Falkenburg, No. 4, vs. Howard Startzman, University of Texas; Gene Kinard, Beaumont, vs. Cochell.

BROYLES, SCHMIDT MOVE UP IN TENNIS TOURNEY

HOUSTON, April 19. (Special) —Two Texas Tech representatives survived opening day action in the 15th Annual River Oaks tennis tournament.

John "Jake" Broyles and Carl Schmidt advanced into the round of 32, while two other Tech netters—Ed Scudday and Glenn Ivy—fell by the wayside in first round play.

Broyles meets Billy Talbert, Wilmington, Del., nation's No. 5 amateur and fourth-ranked here, in today's action.

Schmidt takes on Houston's Bobby Kamrath.

Broyles battled through two opponents in the first day grind. He defeated Rod Coffin of Austin 6-1, 6-2 in his first test, then eliminated Houston's David Peden 6-2,6-2.

Schmidt ousted Ghent Graves of Houston 5-7, 6-1 and 6-1.

Scudday was eliminated by Rice's Bob Alexander, 6-3, 6-3, while Ivy bowed to Hugh Sweeney, University of Houston, 6-3, 7-9 and 6-3.

Hubbers Get Players

Rookie Hurler To Join Club

Additional team strength for the Lubbock Hubbers was gained last night when three players—two on option and one by outright sale—were obtained by the local baseball team.

Nelson Davis, an infielder, was bought unconditionally from the Austin Pioneers of the Big State league, while the other two players were obtained on option from Greenville.

Walter "Buddy" McCallum, an infielder and limited service class player, and Bob Covington, a pitcher and rookie, both will report today. They are expected in late this afternoon.

To Arrive Today

Davis was scheduled to arrive early this morning from Austin.

Acquisition of the three players brings the Hubber squad up to 19, three over the limit, but permissible under West Texas-New Mexico league rules, which allow 19 players for the first 15 days of the season.

At the same time, unless league rules are changed, four players will have to be disposed of before Wednesday night, since the Hubbers have 10 class men (veterans), four over the limit.

Veterans Are Listed

Veterans on the Hubber squad at present are Manager Jackie Sullivan, Mike Dooley, Al Duarte, Jim Prince, Royce Mills, Jackie Wilcox, Frank McAlexander, Chick Fowler, Lloyd Pearson and Oscar Kuver.

Davis has spent both of his years in o. b. with Austin, playing three of the infield positions. He appeared in 130 games last year and hit .284. Davis is six feet tall, weighs 170 pounds and throws and bats right.

McCallum, whose father was playing on George Schepps' Aces when Buddy McCallum was born, also has played all infield positions. He is five feet, 10 inches tall, weighs 160 pounds and throws and bats right.

McCallum broke in with Abbeyville of the Evangeline League in 1947, being retained on the roster as a utility man. He served well and was obtained by Dallas in the winter. Last year he was sent to Odessa, mainly as a utility man, but broke into the lineup and became the regular second baseman. He injured a knee July 1 and dropped out of baseball for the remainder of the season.

Covington, whose home is in Grand Prairie, played on the state semi-pro champions from Dallas, Rollin-Ellis, last year. He was outstanding with them and earned a berth in the Schepps chain as a result. He is six feet tall, weighs 170 and throws and bats right.

Former Tech Gridder To Officiate Clash

BEAUMONT, April 19. (U.P.)—L. W. (Bear) Curfman, the former Texas Tech star and veteran grid official, will serve in a dual role at the annual Texas High School Coaches association clinic here Aug. 2-5.

Curfman was named yesterday as referee for the annual all-star game which climaxes the coaching school. In addition, he will serve as leader in rules interpretation meetings at the clinic.

Curfman and the other officials who will work the North-South classic all are from the Beaumont district of the Southwest football officials association.

Bailey McElreath (Centenary) wil be the umpire, Cliff Domingue (Texas A. and M.- the field judge and Joe Thrash (S. F. Austin) the linesman.

Purchase Of Right Clubs Is Important Step, Hogan Says

CHAPTER II
CLUBS—SELECTION AND USE

ALL golfers are alike in one respect. They are always on the lookout for new clubs. That is why the average golfer never goes into a golf shop without feeling and testing almost every club he can put his hands on, even if he has no fault to find with the clubs he is using.

He just wants to be prepared for the day when his favorite clubs wear out or break. He won't feel so bad when that happens if he has the replacements in his locker.

In selecting clubs I always look for those which suit my swing. I've spent too long developing that swing to make any radical changes in it merely to fit a new club.

Maybe you'll get the idea of how important it is to get clubs which "feel" right if I recite a few of my own experiences looking for replacements. While playing in the Pro-Amateur Tournament which preceded the 1947 Phoenix, Arizona, Open, I broke my favorite driver. I had used it constantly since 1937 and during that time I won more than my share of prize money with it. Although I am now using another driver I wouldn't say that as yet I have found a club which has replaced the old one in my affections.

The only comparison I can make of the difference between golf clubs is to say that playing with a new club is something like breaking in a new pair of shoes. However, I have found it a lot easier to find a new pair of shoes that I like than I have to find a new driver.

Long before I broke that driver I was looking for one that felt as good to me. I knew that it wasn't going to last forever because of the hard and constant use I give my clubs, but I wasn't lucky enough to find a replacement.

• • •

Any time I discuss clubs I am always asked, "How much does your driver weigh?" and "How long is it?" That is because most golfing fans are interested in learning how to drive for distance. And for some reason they think that the secret of how tournament golfers get such tremendous distances off the tee must be wrapped up in their drivers.

Making any set rule on the length or weight of driver for you to use, without fitting it to your individual needs, would be an error. The old golf instructional theory used to be that a short man should use a short club and a tall man should use a long club, but students of the game have come to realize that the reverse is nearer to the correct theory.

For instance, Bobby Cruickshank, who is only slightly more than five feet in height and is always referred to as "The Wee Scot," used a driver with a 44-inch shaft.

Clubs Are Standardized

Manufacturers, however, have standardized the length and weight of clubs. The standard length of the driver is 43 inches. The weight of my wood clubs is 14 ounces, but 13¼ to 13½ ounces seems to be a good weight for the average player.

In selecting your driver it would be foolish for you to pick a club with a lot of whip if you have a short fast backswing because you would have trouble controlling it. If you are older and have a full, slow swing you should use a club with enough flex in the shaft so that you can feel the clubhead.

The weight of the clubhead should also be in relation to the flex of the shaft. If you have a stiff, heavy shaft your club has to have more weight in the clubhead in order for you to get the "feel" of the clubhead during the swing. The lighter and more flexible the shaft, the less weight needed in the clubhead.

In selecting and using your wood clubs it would be well for you to remember that sometimes a player can change clubheads without getting into difficulty, but generally speaking he is asking for trouble when he changes the shafts. The reason is that the flex and the weight of all shafts are different and they have a direct effect on the swing.

• • •

IN regard to the clubhead and its function, most golf fans don't realize that during the course of the ideal golf swing the clubhead is ahead of the shaft as you approach the ball. Until moving pictures showed exactly what was taking place most people imagined that the clubhead was behind the shaft.

If there is any difference in the flex of the shaft from what you are accustomed to, no matter how slight, it can throw your swing off. Most long hitters prefer stiff shafts to whippy ones. The fast swingers are not always the long hitters. Give a lot of consideration to the relationship of the flex of the shaft to your swing before you select your wood clubs.

While iron clubs are turned out on precision machinery it is not always easy to find an iron that "feels" right. During the 1946 National Open Championship at the Canterbury Country Club in Cleveland, Ohio, for instance, my nine iron was either lost or stolen. I've never been able to find a nine iron since which "feels" as good to me as my old one.

Putting is probably the least standardized phase of the game of golf and golfers are just as individual in the selection of their putters as they are in their styles of putting. More weird looking putters are sold at the average golf shop than any other type of club. Since putting is such an individual art, nobody has been able to prove that you can improve your efficiency by standardizing the instrument used.

As for my own preference in putters, I am always on the lookout for one that sets straight away. They're not as easy to find as you might imagine. In fact, I haven't seen more than five putters in my life that, when examined closely, weren't hooked.

Jones Had Trouble

Lest you begin to suspect that I am a bit of an old woman about my clubs let may say that club "feel" was even important to Bobby Jones. Upon his retirement the clubs that Jones had used in winning his many championships were tested scientifically for center of gravity, moments of inertia, etc. Bobby's clubs, which were hickory shafted and which he laboriously acquired one by one over the years, were actually a perfect match with the exception of his mashie niblick, which would be known as the eight iron today.

"I always had trouble with that club," was Jones' comment when informed of the result of the tests.

Now that you have some idea of what to look for in selecting your clubs, let's give some consideration to what club to use when faced with a shot. Naturally, this is governed to some extent by individual ability, but there are certain things which I can tell you here which will be of help to you.

Your club selection for a shot should be governed by the amount of loft required in the flight of the ball and the distance it is travel. The more loft to the clubface the the easier it is to hit a straight ball.

The amount of confidence you have in your ability to play a particular club should also be given some consideration when you are selecting a club to make a shot which appears to be difficult. You can substitute a club you favor for the correct club to be used on a particular shot only if your favorite is quite similar to the correct club in the loft of its clubface.

• • •

WHEN addressing the ball make sure that the clubhead is resting with its entire bottom surface on the ground. Also check to make sure that the bottom edge of the clubface is at right angles to the intended line of flight. In order to play any shot correctly the lie of the clubhead must be entirely on the ground and yet permit you to take up a comfortable position as you stand up to the ball. If it doesn't, your whole swing will be off or the clubface may be twisted out of its proper striking position at the moment of contact.

In selecting any club to make a shot it is well to have an idea of its relation to the distance confronting you. Of course, no matter whether you are using woods or irons, no two players will necessarily use precisely the same club for precisely the same distance.

That's because there is a matter of personal adjustment which comes into play. The particular range of any club should be adapted to suit the strength of the player. Then, again, some players have a tendency to loft the ball more easily than others. In which case they will use a longer iron to get the same distance as the player who doesn't get as much loft.

Another factor to be considered is the condition of the fairways. Hard fairways will give you more roll. Soft faifways will stop the ball from rolling.

If there is one club in the bag neglected by novices and duffers, it is the sand wedge. In fact, most novices don't even have a sand wedge in their bags.

That ignorance of the value of a sand wedge probably isn't as strange as it seems to me. Dai Rees and Charley Ward, the two English professionals who played in our tournaments during the winter of 1946-1947, marveled at the way American professionals have mastered the use of the sand wedge. They said that if they hadn't learned anything else during their tour, the trip was worthwhile just because of what they learned about using this club.

"Most English players don't even use the sand wedge," said Rees when I talked about it with him. "They don't know its value."

Too bad they don't, however, because a sand wedge, if anyone will take the trouble to learn how to use it, can be the most useful club in the kit.

• • •

EVEN when a duffer does buy a sand wedge he usually buys the wrong kind. He should select a sand wedge with a wide flange on the sole of the club. This flange on the underside of the clubhead prevents the blade from digging into the ground too deep.

When you set the club down on a flat surface the flange should be at an angle so that the back of the flange will hold the leading edge of the face of the club up off the surface approximately one quarter of an inch.

Most golfers don't realize that the use of the sand wedge is not restricted to sand traps or bunkers. It is ideal, for instance, to use on pitch shots.

In using the sand wedge to make a pitch shot all you have to do is to hit a little back of the ball. This club is ideal for pitch shots because the blade has plenty of loft and the flange prevents the club blade from digging into the ground. When this shot is gauged correctly and hit properly the ball should fly right up and give you the correct loft for a pitch shot to the green.

Experiment For Distance

Experiment with this club a little to find what your maximum distance with it is. After you have determined your maximum you can go ahead and start using it for all pitch shots from your maximum distance right on in to the green.

Furthermore, it is an ideal club to use when you want the ball to stop suddenly after it lands. In order to get the most efficient use out of this club, however, you must spend a little time practicing with it. But it's worth it as proficiency with the sand wedge will pay dividends.

While the United States Golf Association restricts the number of clubs to fourteen, most professionals use sixteen in all tournaments except USGA sponsored events and the Masters' Tournament, which is also a fourteen club affair. When I compete in a tournament in which the number of clubs is restricted I make my selection on the basis of the clubs which will be the most useful to me during that particular tournament.

For instance, during the 1947 Masters' Tournament at Augusta, Georgia, I left by double duty niblick in my locker. But before the tournament I spent a good deal of time practicing chipping with my sand wedge in order to make up for the absence of that particular club from my bag.

In conclusion let me say that you'll strengthen your game considerably if you become more familiar with all of the clubs in your bag. No matter what situation confronts you during the course of a round you will at least know what club to use if you know what each club is for, and how it should be played.

Odessa Sports Fans Pushing Plans For Women's AAU Meet

ODESSA, April 19 (AP) — This West Texas city is pretty hepped up over getting the women's national AAU track and field meet.

In the first place, it obtained the cinder path carnival by outbidding such places as Philadelphia and Chicago. In the second place, it looks like a good financial undertaking for the Odessa Shrine club, which will turn the proceeds to aid of underprivileged children in this area.

Funds Are Obtained

John Summers, who heads the sponsoring group, says enough funds to put over the meet already have been realized through advertisements sold for the programs.

The meet, to be held August 12 and 13, will be in the high school stadium which has a seating capacity of 18,000.

Responsible for bringing the meet here were Summers and Dr. Charles W. McCollum, a Shriner who also is president of the chamber of commerce. Erich Pohl, head of the South Texas AAU who put on the women's meet in San Antonio several years ago, mentioned the possibility of bringing the event here this year to Summers and McCollum and they did the rest.

Odessa has assured the AAU that there will be accommodations for everyone. The high school gymnasium will be used to house contestants who like to operate on a thin budget. Board and room will be provided for as little as $2.00 per day.

Bob Clark, a member of the Odessa High school coaching staff, is the meet director.

Summer plans to get a flock of notables. He has invited Governor Beauford Jester of Texas; Harold Lloyd, the motion picture celebrity who is imperial potentate-elect of the national Shriners, and others. The Odessa American, local newspaper, and the three Odessa radio stations are planning a three-day open house for writers, radio men and officials. The Shriners are arranging an Aug. 11 party for contestants that will include a chuck wage barbecue.

Tilt Is Re-Scheduled For Wednesday

District 1-AA Clash Between Westerners, Cubs Postponed

A south District 1-AA baseball tilt between the Lubbock High Westerners and the Brownfield Cubs, which was scheduled at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Chapman field diamond, will be postponed until Wednesday afternoon because of wet grounds, Westerner Coach Fred Taylor announced this morning.

A survey of the playing field this morning showed the ground too wet to make the game possible, Taylor said, so the 24-hour postponement was made. If the playing field is still wet Wednesday, the teams will play a double-bill Friday afternoon.

Brownfield has already played one game in south half competition, losing to Plainview by a 12-1 count. All of the Lubbock encounters this season have been non-conference tussles. Play is also underway in the north district bracket, with Amarillo holding a victory over Borger and Borger boasting a win over Pampa. Winners of the two brackets will meet in a title playoff series early in May.

Coach Fred Taylor has tentatively named Jimmy Richards as the starting pitcher today. Richards is the regular left fielder. He was shifted to mound duty when hurlers became scarce on the team and has shown up well, getting credit for the only victory in three tilts with Altus, Okla., last weekend with a three-hit performance.

The second district game will be played against Plainview on Thursday, and a return game will go on the records with Brownfield Friday. All three games are scheduled for Chapman field. Jimmy Hamilton will draw the tough Plainview assignment, and Bennie Day will start against Brownfield in the third game.

Plainview and Lubbock are currently given an even chance of winning the south half of the district, and Plainview has two good pitchers which gives the team an even break. Lubbock has three pitchers with Richards hurling, and the Westerners seem to have more power at the plate.

Commenting on the Altus games, Coach Taylor said that he felt the team benefitted by the trip and had finally found itself. In a period of slightly more than 24 hours, the Westerners played three games, collecting a total of 31 base hits.

Either of the first two games could have been won by the Westerners, but with men on base the hitting failed. The number of men left stranded was large, and usually the batters got on base with two outs which prohibited squeeze plays when runs were most needed.

Showing up especially well was Morris Turner, catcher, who hit safely six times in 13 trips to the plate. Bob Brown turned in a fine performance at shortstop, and Jessie Fullerton drew praise for his work at first. Although a little weak with the bat, Charles Galey played a good series at second base.

Outfielders were slowed by a sandy field, but all gave creditable performances. Garnet Reeves came through with several well-placed hits.

SOUTH HALF DISTRICT SCHEDULE

April 19: Brownfield at Lubbock.
April 21: Plainview at Lubbock.
April 22: Brownfield at Lubbock.
April 25: Plainview at Brownfield.
April 27: Lubbock at Brownfield.
April 30: Lubbock at Plainview.
May 3: Plainview at Lubbock.
May 6: Brownfield at Plainview.

Berlin Sports Fans In Three-Hour Riot

BERLIN, April 19 (AP) — Thousands of Berlin sports fans nursed bruises today after a stormy three-hour riot at a bicycle race in the Russian sector of the city yesterday. A large portion of a crowd of 25,000 was involved.

Cause of the tumult was failure of the management to provide a loud-speaker for the stadium. Fans complained they couldn't follow the race and demanded their money back. When there wasn't a quick enough decision about this a wave of booing developed into a mass of fist-fighting.

Forest Fires Rake Arkansas

Heavy Losses Being Caused

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 19 (AP)—Arkansas, already visited by two devastating tornadoes and a severe flood this year, now is experiencing its worst series of forest fires in 25 years.

Authority for the seriousness of the outbreak is State Forester Fred Lang.

He's also authority for the statement that unlike the tornadoes and the flood, the fires could have been prevented.

They're "all man-caused and more than 50 percent are of incendiary origin," Lang declared.

Raging For Week

Fires have been raging now for a week in sections of mountainous, heavily timbered north Arkansas. Across the state line, Arkansas' northern neighbor Missouri is having a similar though less severe outbreak.

Forest rangers and crews of volunteers — several hundred altogether — have been battling the fires which are centered in five north central Arkansas counties near the Missouri border.

Lang and his assistants say that before the fires are put out—a heavy rain is hoped for as the only certain method of extinguishing them altogether — thousands of acres will have been burned over and damage will run to the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The section is sparsely settled, an no towns have been threatened.

An aerial observer reported, however, that he saw groups of persons attempting to keep flames away from farm outbuildings.

Wild Animals Perish

Woodsmen say that many deer and other wild animals undoubtedly have perished.

Although the fires have centered in north Arkansas, other wooded sections of the state have not been spared. Lang's latest report said there were 64 fires in all sections and that 13 "smokes," or possible fires, were being investigated

Lang blames many of the fires on a custom of southern farmers of "spring burning" underbrush to clear the land, not only for planting or grazing but in some instances because they believe it kills ticks and other insects and even "chills." Other fires are caused by carelessness of campers and motorists. And a comparatively few are malicious—set by someone with a grudge against a landowner or a forest ranger, Lang says.

Reds Spend As Much On Arms As U. S. And British Combined

CHICAGO, April 19 (NEA) — The Soviet Union spent as much money on armaments last year as the United States and Great Britain combined.

This revelation is made in an article on "Armies of the World," written by Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert in the forthcoming 1949 Britannica Book of the Year. Sibert was commanding general of the U. S. Army forces in the Antilles, and is a veteran of governmental intelligence work.

The Soviet Union professed to spend only 17 per cent of its budget on its military forces, the article points out. However, an analysis of allocation, "including the expense of assisting the military forces of other eastern European powers," placed the outlay in the neighborhood of 20 billion dollars, at the existing rate of exchange.

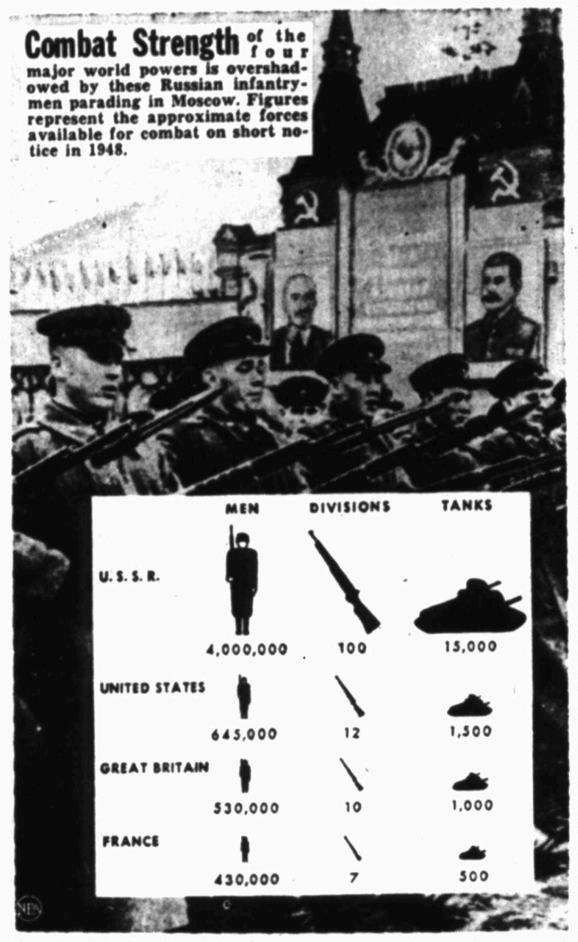

Thus, Gen Sibert's article declares, the Soviet expenditure on military preparations was "approximately the combined total of the U. S. and British outlays."

The Soviet Union maintained last year about 4,000,000 men under arms, of whom about 40 per cent were believed to be in Russia, 30 per cent in Germany and eastern Europe, 20 per cent in the Far East, and the remaining forces in the Caucasus, Gen. Sibert reports.

"The Russians maintained 100 divisions mobilized and in close to combat condition. Of these 26 were in Germany. More than half of the divisions in eastern Germany were armored, with a large proportion of the balance mechanized. Another nine Soviet divisions were in Poland.

"In addition to the Soviet divisions, reports continued to flow from the east concerning German units under Soviet command. A large proportion of the 246,000 police in the Soviet Zone of Germany were believed to come from those German units captured at Stalingrad."

The Red army held large-scale training exercises in Germany almost continually during good campaign weather of last year. "These exercises, conducted on corps and army bases, were undoubtedly directed as much toward the 'cold war' effect as toward actual training," the article comments.

Combat Strength of the four major world powers is overshadowed by these Russian infantrymen parading in Moscow. Figures represent the approximate forces available for combat on short notice in 1948.

Runaway Freight Car Wrecks Big Building

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 19—(AP)—A runaway freight car pushed a one-story brick office building into Center street Monday night, completely wrecking it. No one was injured.

Owner of the building estimated damage at $11,000. Authorities said air brakes on the car apparently failed. The car was on an inclined track and rolled into the rear of the building, which houses offices of the Girl Scouts.

Open Meeting On Courthouse Slated Tonight

A meeting to be attended jointly by members of the County Commissioners court and the Lubbock City Planning commission, will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the District courtroom on the second floor of the county courthouse.

The meeting will be open to all citizens who are interested in the location of Lubbock county's projected new courthouse. At the meeting, a discussion of plans for the new building will be conducted.

County Judge Walter Davies has said that he and his colleagues of the Commissioners court are anxious to obtain opinions of citizens regarding the placing of the courthouse, soon to be contracted for and expected to cost in the neighborhood of $1,500,000.

Judge Davies expressed the hope that a large group of citizens from all parts of the country would attend tonight's meeting. "We of the Commissioners court want to know what people are thinking and what they want in conection with the courthouse and its location, so that we can act accordingly."

Judge Davies last night said that he expects a fair-sized crowd at the meeting. He expressed optimism that those attending would be representative of the county as a whole and of the various groups in the county.

"We would appreciate it if a representative from any and all organizations both in Lubbock and throughout the county were present," Judge Davies said. He said that he had asked presidents and other representatives of civic clubs in Lubbock and in other towns in the county to be present, but stressed that members of any organization would be welcome to participate in the meeting.

As currently planned, the courthouse will be six stories in height and will be placed on the west side of the Courthouse square, its west line being approximately 65 feet from the Texas avenue sidewalk.

Large Charge Fails To Hurt Carolinian

KANNAPOLIS, N. C., April 13. (U.P.)—In case you wonder what it feels like to be struck by lightning: It doesn't.

That's the report from J. T. Barringer, who got a headful of the stuff while listening on the telephone. A big bolt struck the line outside the building.

"I didn't feel anything, I didn't hear anything, I didn't see anything," Barringer said. "I was standing there, then I wasn't."

A witness, Mrs. Mattie Mode, said a ball of flame seemed to flow out of the telephone and engulfed Barringer. Silently he staggered across the room. She caught him and placed him in a chair.

The Curious Reporter ?

OPAL DIXON

THE QUESTION

From your own experience in growing flowers, what is a helpful hint you would give?

THE ANSWERS

MRS. JOE ARRINGTON, 2812 Thirtieth, housewife: "We need to use plenty of sulphur. It's good for insects, it is good for growth and it neutralizes the soil. Lubbock really needs that. The Plains will grow any flower or shrub if you just give it water and a little attention."

MRS. ALEX MCDONALD, 2221 Eighteenth housewife: "I am often asked why I have such good luck with my wisteria. I prune very often during the summer and water deeply. I dig down back from the plant about three feet with a sharpshooter and cut the roots. The strength then goes into the plant instead of making roots so much."

MRS. J. E. WALLER, 1902 Twenty - second, homemaker: "I would say, first, that you must be interested in growing; then select plants or shrubs adapted to our climate, and then get proper information on growing. One good source of information is the book, 'Secret of the Green Thumb,' put out by Lubbock Garden club."

MRS. CLAUD KEETON, 1902 Twenty - ninth, housewife: "I'd say constant care is the only thing in this country. The opposition we have in soil here because of the elm trees is my trouble. You can overcome that by adding and taking away from the soil the substances needed or not needed."

MRS. R. C. BADGETT, 2429 Twentieth housewife: "I would say that it takes 90 per cent hard work and 10 per cent green thumb to grow flowers in West Texas, but it's well worth the effort. Anybody can do it if they're willing to do the work."

MRS. J. A. FORTENBERRY, Levelland Road house wife: "I certainly think you should study to know what will grow best here. I think that is the first thing we consider. Preparation of the soil is very important. Our virgin soil is quite rich but it soon deteriorates and we must fertilize. The kind of fertilizer you use depends on what you are growing. Certainly cultivation is very important. Where we irrigate so much we wouldn't get far if we didn't cultivate. Every time you wet the soil, it should be stirred to keep it from baking and making a hard crust."

Man Stages Pillbox Gun Duel, Is Killed

SAN PEDRO, Calif., April 19. (AP)—Boden Karbonik, 36, died of a head wound several hours after he shot it out with police from an abandoned concrete pillbox on a beach. Scores of bathers were periled by the gunfire.

Lifeguard Halleck Robb told police he ordered the merchant from the beach Monday when the latter started firing at tin cans with a target pistol. He said Karbonik left, saying he was going after another gun.

Officer Dominic Carr saw him return to the beach, armed with the pistol and an automatic. The officer started for the man. Whereupon, Carr said, Karbonik leaped from his auto and started shooting.

Carr radioed for help and 10 squad cars arrived. Karbonik took shelter in an army pillbox and shot it out for 15 minutes with officers.

Karbonik was shot in the head and died several hours later.

John Karbonik, his father, said he had been emotionally upset over a divorce suit.

Rabbit Show Will Open In City Friday

Hot on the heels of the Easter bunny comes the rabbit show, scheduled here April 22 through the 24th at the Fairgrounds.

Animals from all parts of the world will be shown, as well as exhibitions designed to acquaint the public with this little-known but fast growing industry.

Jointly sponsored by West Texas-New Mexico Show circuit and the South Plains Rabbit & Cavy Breeders Assn., the show is expected to draw large crowds of spectators as well as breeders of animals from all over the state.

Used In Experiments

"Supply is unable to keep up with demand," explained V. N. Burleson, superintendent of the show, saying that the South Plains one of the most favorable regions on the globe for the raising of rabbits and cavies.

Cavies are short-tailed, rough-haired rodents of South America, bearing such names as paca and agouti, but to the ordinary person, in spite of their outlandish names, they remain "guinea-pigs."

Rivaling the "guinea-pigs" in importance for medical and scientific uses are their close relatives, the hamsters, and trailing but coming up rapidly are rabbits. Recent tests, made in this area, involving wheat-poisoning of cattle, used large numbers of rabbits.

Various Uses Noted

The show will deal with all phases of the industry, including uses of the animals, for meat, wool and hides.

The rabbit is one of the mainstays of the fur industry. Recent improvements of technique enable furriers to produce furs so resembling natural pelts of rare animals that an expert may sometimes be fooled.

The grand champion New Zealand white, owned by Edward L. Donalson of 3318 Twenty-first will be on exhibit.

Judging the show will be nationally known judge L. A. "Boots" Shutze, of Houston, Guy Trow, president of the South Plains Rabbit & Cavy Breeders Assn., announced. L. E. Settle, of 2110 Twenty-ninth, is secretary of the organization.

Suspect Sought After Battered Body Of Soldier's Wife Found

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., April 19. (AP)—Police today sought a slayer who left the nude, battered body of a soldier's wife in a pine thicket near a lover's lane.

The body of Mrs. Martha Kennedy Hicks, 41, was found yesterday after she had been missing since April 9.

The partly decomposed body lay face down and the hands were tied behind her back with a brassiere. Her underclothing had been used to bind her feet and to gag her.

Identified By Scars

Sheriff's officers, called to the scene yesterday by Nathan Farmer, a negro, after he found the body off a country road. Immediately sought to determine who was last seen with her.

The woman made her home with her husband, Joe Hicks, a retired soldier, in the Bonnie Doone community. Hicks previously had reported her missing.

Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, a daughter, identified Mrs. Hicks through operation scars and shoes.

Officers who view the body in the wooded area, which was littered with beer cans, were unable to find footprints or automobile tire tracks which might have been left after the slaying. Rains have since erased all marks.

Alice Sportsmen Want Franchise If Bubblegum Tycoon Is Stuck

McAllen Homeowners Claim Nearby Baseball Park A 'Nuisance,' Ask Court To Stop Games

McALLEN, April 19. (U.P.)—First witnesses were summoned to testify today in a paradoxical trial wherein the game of baseball was the defendant.

The national pastime was described as a "nuisance" in a suit brought by four home owners who live near a newly-constructed ball park.

They sought a "gracious injunction" to prevent bubblegum tycoon Andrew J. Paris, owner of the brand-new McAllen Giants of the Class D Lower Rio Grande Valley league, from using the park for baseball—night baseball in particular.

Game "Nuisance"

Plaintiffs J. W. Martin, W. E. Bostelman, Paul Richardson and Birchard Newton said the game was a nuisance.

Paris said it was not.

Martin et al complained that baseball fans are noisy spectators who shout "as the fortunes of one side" become the fortunes of the other.

Paris contended in 93rd District Court that the plaintiffs lived "in strictly rural and farming areas," and not in a "suburban residential" section as described in their petition.

After buying the franchise, Paris contracted $18,500 for 15 acres of land, used bulldozers to knock down citrus trees, spent $16,500 for grandstands and $9,000 for lights and fences. That was before injunction action was taken.

Park Itself OK

The plaintiffs did not object to construction of the ball park. They only wanted to restrain Paris from using the park for baseball.

Ted Taylor, Paris' attorney, told jurors in opening proceedings Monday that the park was separated from the home of one plaintiff by a large citrus grove. Lights, he said, would be hooded and of a "non-glare" type.

And Taylor said he did not think the light would cause the unhappy residents to "suffer in semi-tropical heat as they alleged."

Selection of the jury was completed Monday after E. A. McDaniel, the plaintiffs' attorney, asked each prospective juror if he liked baseball and if he lived within an incorporated city. None of the 12 chosen was from McAllen.

May Take Franchise

Most interested bystanders were sportsmen from nearby Alice. They were waiting to snatch the McAllen franchise if the worst happened to Paris.

But McAllen business manager Earl Halstead won a last minute plea for more time to give the league an answer on whether the Giants will field a team. He was scheduled originally to give the answer today.

The umpires will yell "play ball" in the Lower Rio Grande Valley league April 27.

Airlines May Not Move Head Office

HOUSTON, April 19 (AP)—Maj. Gen. K. L. Berry, state adjutant general, suggests that Pioneer airlines may not have to vacate its quarters at Houston municipal airport.

Pioneer is scheduled to vacate its facilities at the municipal field May 31 to make room for the 63rd fighter wing of the Texas Air National guard.

Berry said yesterday the guard may remain at Ellington field provided money can be obtained to improve facilities there.

He said he had sent word to Pioneer officials suggesting they not be in too big a hurry to move.

Directors of Pioneer met here yesterday and took no action on the possibility of moving from the field and transferring their headquarters from Houston to some other city.

Berlin Communists Will Stage Parade

BERLIN, April 19. (AP)—Berlin anti-Communists chuckled today over an announcement in the Russian-controlled press stating that Comunist youth would stage a big torchlight parade tonight in the Soviet sector of the city.

This will be the first torchlight parade seen here since the Nazi era when it was a favorite Nazi spectacle. And it is scheduled on the eve of—guess whose birthday? Adolf Hitler's.

Volunteers To Push Bond Sales Sought

AMARILLO, April 19 (U.P.)—U. S. District Judge Joe B. Dooley sentenced 19-year-old Patricia Jean Summers Brewer to a year's imprisonment, but granted immediate probation, when she pleaded guilty yesterday to embezzlement of $211.80 from her one-time employer, the Panhandle State bank of Borger.

Candidates Up In New Jersey

NEWARK, N. J., April 19. (AP)—New Jersey today selects its major party candidates for the November gubernatorial election.

Little enthusiasm has been whipped up for the primary balloting and political leaders predict a light vote.

Main statewide interest is focused on Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll who is opposed in his bid for re-election under the Republican banner by Robert L. Adams, a Somerset county official.

Driscoll, first New Jersey governor permitted by a new state constitution to seek a second successive term, has conducted an informal campaign. The 46-year-old governor has accented his record.

Adams, 53, is virtually a political unknown so far as state politics is concerned. He has charged that Driscoll is attempting to dominate the legislature.

Hague Man Unopposed

State Sen. Elmer H. Wene is the unopposed Democratic candidate. A former U. S. representative, he has the backing of Frank Hague, state Democratic leader and national Democratic vice chairman.

No national political significance has been attached to the primary. The fall election, however, is expected to draw the nation's attention.

New Jersey and Virginia are the only states electing governors in 1949 and the Virginia contest usually is settled in the primary.

Driscoll polled 281,715 votes in the last gubernatorial primary in 1946, defeating Harold G. Hoffman, a former governor, by 77,409 ballots. Driscoll defeated the Democratic nominee, Lewis G. Hansen, in the general election.

Republicans have controlled the governor's chair since 1943.

Oil Well Doesn't Make Farmer Happy; He Files Suit For $7339

HOUSTON, April 19 (U.P.)—Harry Dryden claimed today an oil well within 500 feet of his land made him anything but happy.

In fact, the farmer said, he was unhappy about $7339 worth.

It was March 17, 1948, when the showers of "black gold" fell for 49 hours on Dryden's five-acre farm.

Casualties, Dryden said, included:

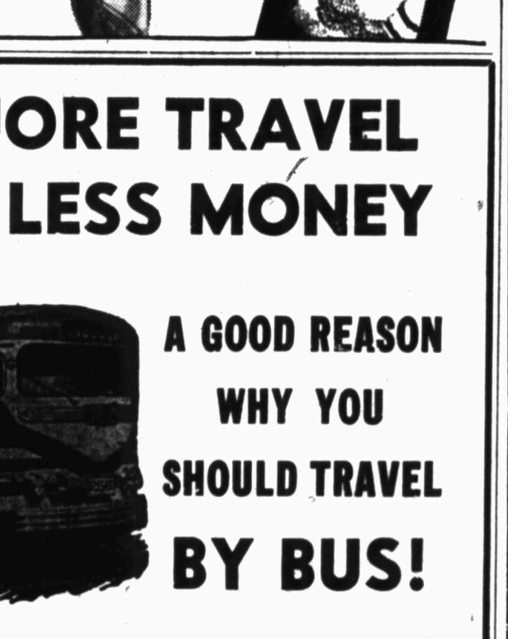

1. Seventy of his chickens and rabbits, beaten to death by the steady "oilfall."
2. Fifty-six trees, marred into "dead, black, naked and unsightly" appearance.
3. His cow, which became unnerved and suffered a miscarriage.
4. Some of his clothing ruined.
5. Dryden's pasturelands, home and farm buildings, which he said were "drenched with oil."
6. Sturdy fencing, some 600 feet of which was torn down by trucks rushing to the well.

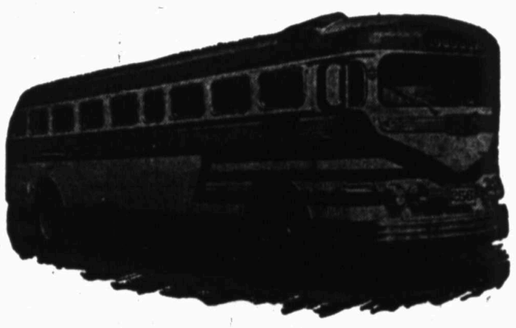

Named defendants in a district court damage suit were the well's owners—Nichols McCaleb, H. A. Potter, sr., H. A. Potter, jr., M. G. Hansbro and the Production Service Co.

Georgia Senator Gloomy Over High Congressional Spending

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP) — Senator George (D-Ga) said a bit despairingly today that "there is no evidence at this time that Congress is willing to cut down spending."

George, chairman of the Senate finance committee, has called for economy in government. He told reporters he still is hopeful there will be some "substantial economies" made this year even though "I can't have much hope based on the present evidence."

Later this year, George said, Congress will be able to add up the government's spending, take a better look at the economic trend, and know what steps to take to meet the situation.

"Must Face Situation"

"Very late this year or early next year we will have to face the tax situation," George said.

President Truman has asked for $4,000,000,000 in new taxes to avoid a deficit.

George is one of those opposed to any tax increase.

He said an increase in tax rates does not mean an automatic increase in government income. "It might mean less revenue," he said.

George added that lower taxes might in fact stimulate the nation's economy and reverse the levelling-off business trend to "set it off in the opposite direction."

Plains High School Head Is Re-Elected

PLAINS, April 19 (Special) — Travis Mason has been re-elected to his position as principal of the Plains Rural High school according to announcement by the office of Roy Elliott, superintendent of schools.

MASON

Prior to his coming to the Plains school, Mason served as coach and then as high school principal of Tahoka public schools for three years.

Construction is under way on a new high school building at Plains at an approximate cost of $304,000. The general contractor is BMFP Construction company of Lubbock.

The old high school building was destroyed by fire in November, 1948.

Portugal sold about 40 per cent less port wine abroad last year than in 1947.

Dallas Mother Who Gave Birth To Daughter After Shot In Head In Critical Condition

DALLAS, April 19 (AP)—A youthful Dallas woman who gave birth to a child after she had been shot in the head was in critical condition early today, hospital authorities said. The child, a daughter, was also reported in critical condition.

Earlier, Mrs. Addie Hudson's physician said she had a good chance to recover, although she would probably be blind.

Was Shot Friday

Mrs. Hudson, 19, gave birth to her daughter, a month prematurely, Sunday. She had been shot Friday.

City Policeman J. W. Gallaher said, "Mrs. Hudson and her husband lived in a room at the home of a relative. I was called there Friday. I found Mrs. Hudson on a bed, shot through the head. A .22 rifle was nearby."

Mrs. Hudson, who never lost consciousness, was rushed to the hospital.

The physician said the bullet entered the right eye, traveled through the brain and emerged in front of the left ear.

Birth Is Normal

Preparations were made for a Caesarean birth delivery, but the child was delivered normally.

Gallagher said Lester L. Hudson, 21, a stove repairman and husband of the woman, was at work when his wife was shot. Hudson has been at her bedside since the shooting.

Officers plan to question Mrs. Hudson regarding the shooting if her condition improves.

Officers Say Dead Hen Lays Good Egg

YUMA, Ariz., April 19. (U.P.) — Two Arizona highway patrol employes swear it really happened.

Wayne Porter and Fred Young saw a dead hen lying beside a highway near here.

They decided to bury the bird when they returned to the spot the next day.

On the return trip they found the hen—still very dead — had laid a perfect egg.

101 Years Of Life Credited To Work And Moderation

Man Who Survived As Spy For Abe Lincoln Dies After Rehearsal For Radio Program

BY LEO TURNER
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, April 19—Henry R. Roe, 101-year-old Missouri handyman, danced a jig to show how young he felt and died of a heart attack before he got to tell the nation about being Abe Lincoln's private spy.

Today was to have been a great day for Roe, who survived five wives and lived alone eight miles from De Soto, Mo., as caretaker for some summer homes.

The chipper old man wearing rimless spectacles, a hat with the brim turned up all around and a gay necktie in a large knot in a collar that hung loose around his gaunt neck, boarded a plane for New York last Sunday to tell his story on a nationwide radio program.

Had One Regret

"He was a great kidder," said Joan Devlin, the hostess on Henry Roe's first, and last, plane ride.

Roe said that he credited his long life to "work and moderation." His one regret, he said, was that he never got to fight in a war. He was too young for the Civil war, was rejected for the Spanish-American war and was declared too old for World Wars I and II.

"Imagine me, old," he said.

He besieged President Roosevelt with letters in the second war, asking to play some part. Finally, manpower director Paul McNutt intervened and the Laister-Kaufmann Glider company in St. Louis gave him a job as a plant messenger. He held it for a year and a half.

"My mother lived to be 100, he said.

The National Association of Manufacturers brought him to New York during the war and honored him with a dinner. He always wanted to come back.

Then he got his chance. Yesterday he went to the radio station to rehearse his story:

This is what he had planned to say tonight:

"Abe wanted to know why so many northern boys were joining the Johnny Rebs, and he asked me to find out for him. I was only 14, but I spied for old Abe for a couple of years and I was wounded five times.

"I stopped lots of them from joining the south. Abe told me, 'you have done your country a great service, my boy, now look to your own health.'

"I said, 'sir, I'm not afraid to die.'

"He said, 'I'd rather have you live for it.'"

Roe did a few steps of a jig and left the studio. He slumped in the hall on his way to an elevator and died.

Roe was survived by a stepson, Frank Beard of St. Louis, two stepdaughters, Vesta King of Poplar Blugg, Mo., and Mrs. Oscar Halley of St. Louis and an adopted daughter, Mrs Jennie Johnstone of St. Louis

Three of every four home telephones today are party lines.

Yes, party lines have "stretched" hard-to-get telephone equipment in a time of shortages and a big demand for service.

Our goal, of course, is service for everyone—the kind he wants, when and where he wants it. For the time being, though, in many neighborhoods we must continue to say:

"We can offer only party-line service to new customers. It's the fair way for everybody while we're still working to get telephones to hundreds of people who are waiting."

Noted Catholic Educator Is Silenced After Archbishop Enters Boston College Dispute

BOSTON, April 19 (AP)—The Rev. Leonard Feeney, S. J., 52, noted Catholic educator and author, involved in the Boston college heresy dispute, today was "silenced" by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston.

The archbishop said in a formal decree that the priest "has lost the right to perform any priestly functions, including preaching and teaching of religion."

The action was taken, the archbishop said, "because of grave offenses against the general laws of the Catholic church." The decree did not specify the "grave offenses."

Center Discredited

The move climaxed a week of controversy which began when three Boston college instructors were dismissed after accusing the Jesuit school of teaching heresy. The prelate supported their dismissal.

"With regard to the relations of these young men with Boston college" the archbishop said, ". . . the college acted on its own authority."

"I do not see what else the college officials could have done in face of the disciplinary problem with which they were confronted."

The archbishop also acted against the St. Benedict's center, a Cambridge intellectual group near Harvard college, headed by Fr. Feeney.

He said the center "is henceforth without ecclesiastical approbation and attendance at it is strictly forbidden to Catholics." under penalty of forgetting "the right to receive the sacraments of penance and holy eucharist."

Under the archbishop's edict, Fr. Feeney is forbidden to say mass, preach or administer sacraments of the Catholic church. The punishment is one of the most severe that can be imposed on a priest and is commonly referred to as being "silenced."

Spokesman for the archdiocese said Fr. Feeney must make total submission to his superiors before he can again perform his priestly functions. He remains a priest although without the authority to carry out his duties.

The priest was not available for comment. However, he said previously he supported the three instructors because he felt "very strongly' that their doctrine 'is the true doctrine of the Roman Catholic church.

The instructors are James R. Walsh, philosophy teacher, Fakhri Maluf, assistant professor of philosophy, and Charles Ewaskio, asisstant professor of physics.

Dispute Explained

The controversy revolves around the question whether persons outside the church can attain salvation. The instructors insist the church doctrine holds that non-Catholics cannot be saved, authoritative Catholic sources say they can.

Boston college was accused by the trio of teaching heresy by saying (1) there may be salvation outside the Catholic church; (2) a man may be saved without admitting the Roman Catholic church to be supreme among all churches, and (3) a man may be saved without submission to the pope.

The church stand is set forth in the Baltimore Catechism, a publication used in instructing all Roman Catholics.

"He who knows the church to be the true church and remains out of it cannot be saved," the catechism states. "This applies to men of bad faith who sin against the truth; it does not apply to men of good faith that belong to the soul of the church."

The "soul of the church" is defined as "all that possess God's grace even if they are not actual members."

Appeal Made To Pope

Archbishop Cushing criticized the instructors "for the serious scandal they have caused. Weighty points of dogma are not debated in headlines nor made the occasion of recrimination and immoderate attack on constituted authority."

He said the public controversy "obliged men to reveal the unhappy fact that Father Feeney has been defying the orders of his legitimate superiors for more than seven months."

Before the archbishop's decree was issued, Fr. Feeney said St. Benedict's center "has taken steps to place the documents of the controversy in the hands of every bishop, ever cardinal, patriarch and metropolitan bishop in the world."

Vatican City sources reported an earlier appeal to the pope had been referred to Archbishop Cushing for jurisdiction. The three instructors said they asked the archbishop to seek a meeting of the Vatican council for "an infallible pronouncement by Pope Pius XII on the issue involved."

SHOWS OFF FOR THE BIRDS—Ex-paratrooper Bob Niles, [illegible], shows off his homemade "eagleman" suit after completing a jump stunt in Walnut Creek, Calif. Niles bailed out of a plane at 6500 feet, dropped in a free dive to 500 feet, where he opened a retarding chute. At 200 feet he opened a second chute. His leap, for which he was paid $200, was successful except that he missed the stadium where he was supposed to land by two miles.

Disabled Veterans Dependable Workers

CHICAGO, April 19 (AP)—The Disabled American Veterans organization reports that veterans disabled during World War II are holding on to their jobs better than any other workers, despite a rise in unemployment.

Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Bataan and national DAV commander, said "the trend bears out the DAV contention that it's good business to hire disabled veterans from the standpoint of efficiency, attendance and loyalty."

Boy Seeking Mother's Return Receives Offers Of Adoption

LATROBE, Pa., April 19 (AP) — A wistful little boy who hoped his missing mother would come home for Easter has two offers for adoption.

Ten-year-old Andy Tompos, jr., wrote a letter to a newspaper last week asking that his mother who vanished five years ago come home. The newspaper published the letter on its front page.

And the letter found its way into the heart of a Norfolk, Va., man who said he, too, grew up without his parents.

Haywood Bundy and his wife offered to adopt Andy yesterday.

"I never thought I was softhearted, but when I read that child's pathetic letter, I just sat down and cried," Bundy said.

Father Disappeared

The letter also found its appeal with Mr. and Mrs. Thurston Saul of Bethesda, Md., a Washington suburb.

The Sauls said they would adopt Andy if it were all right with his grandparents.

The boy, whose father disappeared before he was born, lives with his ailing grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Oblywaniuk.

Said his grandmother of the offers:

"It would be nice for Andy if his mother doesn't come back and if he could visit us sometimes."

A "secondary" Sunday School for older boys who think it is "sissy" to go to church, has been started at St. Augustine's, London, where the vicar's wife, Mrs. Cyril Brundritt, sees to it that they learn that "no sisy can be a Christian and that they must be brave to be openly on the side of religion nowadays."

Truman Tells DAR Convention Key To Peace Is A Strong U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP) — President Truman Monday night told the 58th annual continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution that the key to peace is a strong U. S.

Mr. Truman, in a message read to 5,000 delegates in the opening session of the five-day meeting here, said "grave issues face our country at home and abroad."

Doesn't Mention Reds

He pointed to the North Atlantic defense pact as a warning that puts "any would be aggressor on solemn notice" that the 12 nations allied under the treaty would "zealously guard" against assault. He did not mention Russia by name, but spoke out against "the encroachment of alien ideologies."

"Our people are united in the conviction that a strong, secure United States is the key to peace now and in the days to come," he said.

The president's message was read by Mrs. Roscoe C. O. Byrne of Brookville, Ind., the DAR's president general, who also delivered the keynote address.

Mrs. O'Byrne came out for a strong air force and recommitted the DAR to its traditional opposition to Communism.

Referring to the "cold war," she said if "we have the fuel (a strong air force)" then "we can turn on a little heat if necessary."

Will Endorse Pact

The DAR is expected to endorse the Atlantic treaty, but may turn thumbs down on the administration's health program, which is opposed by the American Medical association.

Another speaker at the opening session was Senator Mundt (R-SD) who urged a "redefinition" of the American foreign policy. He criticized the state department for what he called "inaction" in the China crisis and said the country has made no progress in developing a world program for controlling the atom bomb.

Doc's Patient Gets In On Thief's Raid

HAMBURG, Germany, April 19. (AP)—"Lift your feet, please," said a polite thief as he rolled up the rug in a doctor's waiting room.

When the receptionist discovered the rug had been stolen she accepted the offer of a woman patient who said she would catch the thief if loaned a bicycle.

Net loss to the doctor: One rug and one bicycle.

TOO MUCH POWER

MEDFORD, Mass., April 19 (AP) There's too much power in those small legs of two-year-old Stephan Bandoian—so he's hemmed in his own yard today.

Steve took an all-day spin on his tricycle yesterday, winding up in Winchester—three miles from home.

Accidental Shot Causes 2 Deaths

SCRANTON, Pa., April 19 (AP)—A 10-year-old boy accidentally shot his younger brother and then fired one-shot into his own head, Dr. P. E. Kubasko, county coroner said.

The victims of the double tragedy Monday were Kenneth Kays, 10, and Stephen, 5, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kaye.

The two died in Scranton State Hospital shortly after they were found in their home, each with a bullet in the head.

A souvenir Belgim semi-automatic pistol owned by their father was found beside Kenneth.

New Seaport For Texas Will Be Dedicated In Name Of Former Member Of Congress

RAYMONDVILLE, April 19. (AP)—Port Mansfield, a new seaport for Texas on the intracoastal canal, will be dedicated Saturday.

Gov. Beauford Jester will head the list of dignitaries who plan to attend.

The new port is located 23 miles from Raymondville on the new and final leg of the intracoastal canal. It is named after Joseph Jefferson Mansfield who died July 12, 1947.

Mansfield was chairman of the congressional rivers and harbors committee at the time of his death.

He came to Texas in 1881 from Wayne, West Virginia. He studied nights while working as a railroad freight clerk until he passed the bar exam in 1886. Then he opened an office in Eagle Lake.

Connally Sends Letter

In succeeding years he was a prosecuting attorney, mayor, county judge and finally a member of the United States House of Representatives. Mansfield served in that body from March 4, 1817 until his death.

Sen. Tom Connally this week said:

"The completion of the port at Red Fish bay is the culmination of many years work . . . by civic leaders in your community and your congressional representatives.

"It is fitting . . . that his name should be identified with this project which meant so much to him (Mansfield).

Senator Connally made his statement in a letter to the Raymondville Chronicle.

Dewey Plans European Trip

ALBANY, N. Y., April 19 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will sail for Europe May 5 amid political speculation he has an eye on a U. S. Senate seat.

"This is not a political trip in any sense of the word," Dewey told reporters last night in announcing his six-week visit to most of the nations of western Europe.

He described the trip as "a holiday and much-needed rest." But it was understood he would confer with political leaders in most countries he visits.

The twice-defeated Republican presidential nominee said he did not know whether he would make any speeches abroad. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Dewey and his secretary, Paul E. Lockwood.

While in Germany, the governor will ride the U. S. airlift into Russian-blockaded Berlin for a brief visit.

Reunion Cited

Asked at a news conference if he planned the trip as a fact-finding junket for possible background use as a senator, the governor replied:

"Certainly not."

He disavowed all possible political implications.

There have been new rumors recently that Dewey was interested in the Senate seat of Robert F. Wagner, New York Democrat, whose fourth term expires Dec. 31, 1950. Dewey's second term as governor expires the same time.

There also has been recurring speculation that Wagner, who is in ill-health, would resign this year in time for a special election next fall to fill the vacancy.

The Deweys will said from New York City on the Queen Mary and return on the America June 16.

The governor said he will visit Great Britain, the Netherlands, Belgium, France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy. He declined to say whom he would see on the trip. It was believer he would confer with political leaders in most of the countries, except Switzerland.

CIO Groups To Back FDR, Jr.

NEW YORK, April 19. (AP)—Leaders of nine right-wing CIO unions, which normally back Democrats, have pledged manpower and money to Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., in his fight for a Congress seat.

The leaders—all members of the New York area Political Action committee (PAC) of the CIO-backed Roosevelt at a closed meeting yesterday.

Harold J. Garno, secretary of the state CIO council, said later that 20 or more PAC unions, with a local membership of 300,000 to 400,000 will back Roosevelt at a special election May 17.

Victory Predicted

Michael J. Quill, international president of the CIO transport workers union, said that "if labor ever had a chance to demonstrate its strength, it's in this test."

Quill predicted victory for Roosevelt, whom Tammany hall has refused the Democratic nomination in the normally strongly Democratic 20th district on Manhattan's west side.

Roosevelt has been nominated by the Liberal party, and also will run with the label of the fair deal Democrats and with the backing of a number of independent groups.

The late president's son faces Democratic, Republican and American Labor party opponents at the special election to fill the seat of the late Rep. Sol Bloom, veteran Democratic congressman.

Nylon Blouses More Costly To Make, Says Manufacturer, But The Profit Is Greater

By BARBARA BUNDSCHU
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, April 19.—It costs 125 percent more to make a nylon blouse than it does to make a cotton or rayon one, Irving Weber said today, but there's only about 33 percent difference in the retail price.

Weber, who makes all three kinds, is no philanthropist. He makes as much money on one as the other, he said.

Trick Is In Design

The trick is in the designing.

Even so, it takes an eye well trained to figure cutting costs to tell the difference between the filmy short-sleeved nylon blouse that sells for $8 and the sheer cotton one that sells for $6.

Roughly speaking, Weber's sheer woven nylon blouses, in a lovely range of misty spring pastels and complete with ruffles, sell for $6 if they have cap sleeves, $8 if they have short set-in sleeves, $9 if the sleeves are long. His cottons and rayons sell for $2 to $3 less for comparable designs.

The slippery nylon fabric takes longer to sew up because it must be handled more carefully, Weber said. That adds up to more labor cost. It even takes longer to cut out. The fast cutting machines used for other fabrics generated so much heat they melted the edges of the nylon material, Weber said. New, slower machines had to be installed to take care of that.

But the production-wise designers have taken the pretty nylon blouses that never need ironing out of the luxury class.

Usually a nylon blouse will have fewer seams. Its frills are just as prettily feminine as those in other materials, but most of them are simpler to sew on. There are few shoulder yoke treatments, for instance, more simple straight down the front ruffles. If the designer can avoid buttonholes, that saves more labor—and who's to complain if the neckline plunges fashionably while making way for the head to get into it.

Former North Texans Plan Picnic May 1

The annual picnic for former residents of Grayson, Fannin, Collin, Cooke and Denton counties who now live in this area is planned for Sunday, May 1, according to announcement by A. L. Scoggin, chairman of arrangements.

The gathering is to be held at the pavilion in the east part of Mackenzie State park. Scoggin said that prizes are to be awarded to the oldest grandmother attending, to the person travelling the longest distance to attend the picnic and to the parent with most children. Each person is to furnish his lunch, and soft drinks may be purchased at the picnic site. A program has been planned from 11 until 11:30 a. m.

A judge was lecturing a ne'er-do-well, up for sentencing.

"You've lived in this community 20 years," thundered His Honor, "and from the day you got here to this very moment you have been known as the most worthless man in town. Is there anything good, at all, that you can say for yourself?"

"Yes, sir, Judge," replied the prisoner. "Yes, sir, there is. Of all the men in this city, I set the very best bad example!"

FRANK BLAKE called up the other day with a good suggestion.

"We ought to do something here," he said, "to mark funeral processions. Lots of times people break through them, or fail to stop when processions are approaching, simply because they don't know what they are. Sometimes, too, people not in funeral processions, get between cars which are. That's embarrassing all around, and oughtn't to happen.

"I suggest that all cars in funeral processions turn on their lights. That will warn other people not to interfere, or break through."

Mr. Blake has a good idea and we pass it along to local funeral directors for whatever they might want to do about it.

It used to be that front and back cars of funeral processions carried small flags, but we've noticed several recently when flags were not used.

Anyhow, the flags AND the lights could be used without very much trouble.

A friend of ours was telling us this story the other day.

It seems he went home and found his wife as mad as hops over the behavior of a neighbor woman who'd just been over to call.

"I never saw such bad manners in all my life," the wife almost shouted. "Why if that woman yawned once, while I was talking with her, she yawned a dozen times!"

"Maybe she wasn't yawning, dear," the husband admonished. "Maybe she was just trying to say something!"

"Boy," asked one, "does you know wut's the slickest thing in de worl'?"

"Nope," said the first colored boy. "'Tain't ice."

LIKE many Americans, we always have considered the late Charles Evans Hughes as one of the greatest men of our times.

A governor of New York; Secretary of State, twice a chief justice of the Supreme court, the bearded lawyer typified, in his daily life, the best of citizenship and the best of character.

But we didn't know, until just the other day, that Mr. Hughes early in life drew up for himself a personal code—a code which he believed would lead to that most precious of human possessions, a balanced life. Perhaps his following of that code made him the man he was.

Mr. Hughes' code aimed at a balanced life directs the individual to seek:

Faith without Credulity.
Conviction without Bigotry.
Charity without Condescension.
Courage without Pugnacity.
Self-respect without Vanity.
Humility without Obsequiousness.
Love of humanity without Sentimentality.
Meekness with power.

Surely a man who masters such possessions—if, indeed, any mortal man ever did—must have a fruitful as well as a balanced life.

Simple Arithmetic:

Since the turn of the century, 800,000 Americans have been killed in automobile accidents.

If they had been permitted to live out their normal life spans, they would have contributed to our economy sufficient money to pay off nearly one-fifth of the current national debt.

THERE was quite a piece in the paper the other day about Milwaukee being terribly upset over its juvenile delinquency problem which recently has been spotlighted by a 'teen-age murder involving pregnancy and several marijuana orgies engaged in by a mixture of negro and white boys and girls.

The United Press sent one of its crack reporters to Milwaukee to write about conditions among youthful violators of laws and moral customs and he wrote at length about what Milwaukee thought it could do about the admittedly bad situation.

The United Press man quoted the archibishop of the Catholic diocese about how carefully staged and chaperoned parochial school dances were being used to fight the lure of undesirable juke joints and roadhouses. Then the reporter wrote a column or two about how Milwaukee has set up some sort of municipal bureau to straighten the kids out.

But what the United Press man apparently didn't find—if it is to be found in Milwaukee—is a realization on the part of parents of 'teen-agers that, in the final analysis, the responsibility of bringing up their children is their own.

Underlying the juvenile delinquency of Milwaukee, Lubbock and every other American community in which it raises its head are bad home conditions. By "bad home conditions" we don't mean poverty, or poor housing. We mean lazy, thoughtless, disinterested, selfish, weak-kneed, or otherwise deficient parents.

The juke joints, the roadhouses, the illicit liquor and dope parties wouldn't have any juvenile customers if parents were on the job, holding up their end of family life and living up to their duties to their young.

What we need to curb juvenile delinquency in this country are not more outside entertainments and gathering places for kids—like "teen canteens" and municipal bureaus. Instead, we need more family life; more home parties, more down-to-earth relaxation in which the whole family shares.

In short, we need parents actively interested in their children's affairs BEFORE, instead of after, the children get into trouble.

BY DREW PEARSON: DEMOCRATS AS LAX AS GOP IN SAVING FORESTS, PUBLIC LANDS

Sears, Roebuck Is "Best Seller" In Czech City

WASHINGTON. — One factor which contributes to disastrous floods in the far west is overgrazing of national forests and public lands by big cattle and sheep ranchers. Regarding this, the present 81st Congress has now proved itself just as bad as the much-maligned Republican 80th Congress.

PEARSON

Last year the U. S. Forest service was sharply criticized by a House public lands subcommittee, headed by G.O.P. Congressman Frank Barrett of Wyoming, for being too strict on the big cattle and sheepmen and their grazing privileges. The Forest service replied that 50 per cent of public range lands were faced with erosion, due to overgrazing and the range had to be policed carefully. Otherwise cattlemen grazed too many head per acre on land that belonged not to them but to all the taxpayers.

Barrett vigorously dissented. After a series of public hearings, he and nine public lands colleagues sent a protest to former agriculture secretary Clinton Anderson, demanding the limitation of grazing be banned for three years. Anderson wouldn't hear of it and the Forest service continued its farsighted policy of curtailing overgrazing.

This year the Forest service is under congressional fire from the Democrats for the opposite reason—not cracking down hard enough on overgrazing.

However, one essential in the prevention of overgrazing is enough rangers to police the national forests. Cattlemen can go for months with twice the allotted number of head per acre on the range, unless enough forest rangers are on hand to police them. And without bothering to question the Forest service on this phase of its work, the House appropriations committee arbitrarily clipped its funds for forest rangers by $1,518,500, charging:

"The Forest service has full authority to fix the number of grazing permits . . . but in many cases has not exercised it to the point necessary to prevent depredation."

NOTE—If this committee cut is approved by Congress, the $1,518,500 slash will cost the taxpayers tens of millions of erosion losses in future years.

Best Seller Behind Iron Curtain

The American embassies in Hungary, Roumania and Bulgaria have cabled the State department for large shipments of a book that may become a best seller behind the iron curtain — the Sears, Roebuck catalogue.

In Prague, Czechoslovakia, a crowd two blocks long formed outside the American informational library the other day to look at pictures of goods you could buy in America. Hundreds tried to place orders for these goods, before the Czech security police broke up the crowd.

American embassies in other iron curtain countries now want more mail-order house catalogues to show what capitalism means compared with Communism.

The incident is important for two reasons 1, it shows how eager the people of iron curtain countries are to do business with the United States; 2, it shows how the State department has neglected some of the simplest devices to sell American capitalism in countries where it counts most.

For instance, the idea of distributing Sears, Roebuck catalogues behind the iron curtain was first proposed by Morris Ernst, New York attorney, to President Roosevelt personally. That was in 1944. The idea has been repeated from time to time in this column.

However, nothing was done—even in such countries as Czechoslovakia where Communication is easy—until uast month.

Meanwhile, Congress is becoming more and more concerned about the huge cost of both financing and rearming western Europe against Russia. More and more congressmen are arguing that this will be an endless drain on the American pocketbook, and have come round to the idea that we must break through the iron curtain and undercut the Klemlin with people-to-people friendship.

Getting the Russian people acquainted with the American people is going to be the only long-term insurance against war.

EXHIBITS of the French "Merci train" gifts are still attracting tremendous crowds from coast-to-coast extending even to Honolulu, where the gifts went on display April 1. At Louisville, Ky., the J. B. Speed Art museum had to hire additional help to handle the throngs of people. In the capitol building at Madison, Wis., crowds moved three and four abreast past the gifts, and the waiting line was so long many people had to return the next day.

Wisconsin is sending its gifts by trailer to as many communities as request the exhibit and anticipate it will take a year to cover the state. Madison, Wis., schools, the University of Wisconson, and the Madison Business and Professional Women's club have taken on the mammoth task of acknowledging each French gift individually. Wisconsin has the reputation of being a German-American state but it believes in people-to-people friendship.

Other states are doing the same. In Arkansas Gov Sid McMath has already sent out more than 500 "thank-you" notes to every French mayor and individual contributiing to the Arkansas car of the "Merci Train". Idaho students of French will acknowledge the gifts for their state.

Washington state staged its main exhibit in Seattle, with thousands of people hearing special lectures explaining the gifts. Smaller exhibitions followed in Spokane and other Washington cities, and the University of Washington has been given a selection of the gifts which it will use as a traveling exhibit year after year.

The magnificent collection of forty-nine dollars depicting the progress of French dressmaking from 1706 to 1906 has found its way to the Brooklyn museum where it will augment a display of costumes from every period of history and every nation of the world. It was first hoped to send the exquisite little mannequins on tour, but their fragility made this difficult.

Playing The Big Ace

BY RUTH MILLETT: TO THE LADIES

The Feminine Viewpoint

FOR men who work a five-day week, Saturday morning ought to be a kind of National Father's Day—a day when father and children work and play together—says Dr. Margaret Mead, anthropologist and authority on family life.

How about it, fathers? Do you think you can spare your kids one half-day a week?

If you haven't tried it you might find out that it's very rewarding. You're sure to build a closer association with your children if they know they can count on your companionship each Saturday morning. Many a man who secretly feels that he isn't very important in his children's scheme of things, never has made an effort to give them any time or attention they can count on—but just plays or works with them when the whim moves him to be companionable, which may not be any too often.

MILLETT

There's no question but that a weekly "father's day" would benefit the children. Fathers can do so many things mothers generally aren't much good at—mending toys, pitching for the neighborhood ball team, teaching the small fry to be good sports instead of cry babies.

All that's in the line of play. But the children can also learn a lot about work if a father will let them help him when he works around the house and yard. They may slow him down a little with their help—but they are learning all the while, and getting a new respect for the man of the house from seeing how expert he is at doing jobs that are too difficult for their mothers. After all, few city children ever get to see their fathers at their main jobs.

They don't know how smart their dads are, unless they get a chance to work with them around home.

• • •

BURDEN FROM MOTHER

AND think what it would mean to the mother who has the children on her hands all week to have one morning to look forward to when Dad takes them over.

We hear a lot of criticism of mothers who don't give their children all the time and attention they should. But family for family there are undoubtedly fewer mothers who put outside interests ahead of their children than fathers who shirk all responsibility for being companions and teachers to their young sons and daughters.

No man has the right to criticize his wife for not giving the children enough of her time and attention if he never wants to be bothered with them when he is at home.

A SCHEDULED speech at the Royal Navy club in London by Vice Admiral Sir John Edgell had to be called off last month. The admiral arrived all right, strode to the podium, and confidently pulled his notes out of his pocket. At this point, however, he blanched and confessed to the audience, "My God, gentlemen, by mistake I have brought a shopping list my wife gave me."

The forgiving members played bridge instead, and reports have it that Admiral Edgell won ten pounds.

Unwary Males Warned About Plot To Alter Clothes Style

NEW YORK, April 19—I have noticed a heavy increase in pressure by the tailors and the haberdashers to woo the male away from his stern serge and neat white shirt. This has been project "X" for many years in the trade, which has wearied over the stubborn refusal of man to deliver himself into the rapacious hands of the stylists.

RUARK

Each year, the tailors and the haberdashers come out with the same old song: This year, father will wear pink pants and yaller shirts, with special customery for all occasions. And each year, except in Hollywood and Florida, father says my, my, and buys another batch of white shirts to go with his neat gray herringbone.

The male animal may be an awful schmoe in most respects, but for the last half-century or so he has stuck his fingers in his ears when the siren yodel of the stylists sounds in the springtime. He remembers, once, when the cockbird wore the brilliant plumage—when the gents of G. Washington's time got themselves up in high-heeled shoes, satin pants, pink coats, plumcolored weskits and powdered wigs. The stress and strain on the income was something fierce, because gentlemen were always growing runs in their silk stockings and ripping the alencon lace off their coat-sleeves.

Quick Changes Noted

No modern household, unless it be a den of millionaires, can afford two members who are trying to be pretty. The so-called head of the house has had a bitter experience with the cynics in the lady's apparel business. He has seen each season bring its vital change of mode, to where madame must throw out all of last year's finery or else be sneered at in the beauty salons. He has noticed, for instance, that this year's decree from Paris has the skirts nearly as short as they were before the thrice-accused new look was born two years ago, outmoding the entire wardrobe and flushing the last greenback from the old man's wallet.

Man's clothes, while stupidly constructed from a standpoint of comfort and utility, have at least one virtue. They are constant. He can buy a suit and a shirt with the assurance that both are fashion proof for their lifetime. He can walk in splendid anonymity amongst other men. Nobody sneers at the cut of his coat or the shape of his hat He is never placed in competition with his fellow.

• • •

THEY are plugging the pink and yellow shirt in all the shops, now, but I have yet to see one on the neck of a man who has not worn them habitually for years. Nor does one, in the average city, come upon the peagreen pantaloon with any degree of regularity.

Understand, I do not fault a man for playing the popinjay in a Joseph's coat or affecting explosive shirtings and ultra-violent neckties. He may wear purple plaid pants and a peacock feather in his cap if he so desires. But he is walking right smack into the arms of the schemers.

They won't tamper much with the cut of his suit for awhile — not until they drug him so with color, that he is unconsciously competing with the henbird for first place in the fashion parade. That's when they'll start working him over.

• • •

Men Are Warned

Christian diors will spring up, to exploit his foppish vanity. They will start raising and lowering the hemline on his pants. They will be tailoring his coat with a plunging neckline one year, and reversing it into a Russian pyjama choker effect the next. It will not be long before his closet is stacked with passe dry goods, at which even the old-clo' man sneers.

That, my neighbors all, is when you will hear: "But I haven't got anything to wear" delivered, for the first time in many years in a ringing basso profundo. That's when they'll have us all in the same silken shackles, slave to the perverse whime of the snickering stylists. Walk warily, men, and be chary of the rainbow hue. These boys are clever, and they are playing out a long and patient hand.

Today's Journal Editorial

FAMINE IS NO WORRY

Present prospects of bumper cotton, wheat and other crops inevitably cause some concern about surpluses. Most farmers aren't particularly worried as to this year, because of price supports.

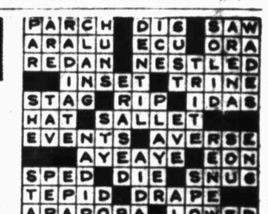

But many, along with business men generally, are wondering what surpluses carried over from this year might do to market prices further down the line when, perhaps, supports may be reduced or abolished. Few will pretend to have the wisdom and vision to answer with confidence the questions which arise from this sort of speculation in futures.

But there's one thing about the outlook: It will be infinitely better to have too much of the essential things than to discover too late that we do not have enough. Price-wrecking abundance, as bad as that would be, is preferable to famine. And, regardless of other fears we might have, famine—one of the most dread of all—is not one of them.

CONTRACTORS' NOTICE OF TEXAS HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

Sealed proposals for construction 9.402 miles of Gr., Strs., Flex. Base and Asphaltic Concrete Pavement from Lubbock to Shallowater on Highway No. U. S. 84, covered by F-302 (10), in Lubbock County, will be received at the Highway Department, Austin, until 9:00 a. m., April 27, 1949, and then publicly opened and read.

This is a "Public Works" Project, as defined in House Bill No. 54 of the 43rd Legislature of the State of Texas and House Bill No. 115 of the 44th Legislature of the State of Texas, and as such is subject to the provisions of said House Bills. No provisions herein are intended to be in conflict with the provisions of said Acts.

In accordance with provisions of said House Bills, the State Highway Commission has ascertained the wage rates prevailing in the locality in which this work is to be done. The Contractor shall pay not less than the prevailing wage rates shown in the proposal for Group 3 for each craft or type of "Laborer," "Workman," or "Mechanic" employed on this project.

Legal holiday work shall be paid for at the regular governing rates.

Plans and specifications available at the office of F. B. Ogle, resident engineer Lubbock, Texas, and Texas Highway Department, Austin. Usual rights reserved.

Area Farmers Using Radiant Heating To Speed Yam Growing

Two Lubbock county brothers have put the principle of radiant heating to new, and so far very effective, use on their farm.

As a result of an idea and $500 expenditure, they hope to hit the market with sweet potatoes as much as a month ahead of normal harvest time.

E. M. Gifford and his brother, Lynol S. Gifford, are conducting the experiment, which is simply heating a yam seedling bed with buried hot-water pipes supplied by a small boiler.

Sprouting Is Speeded

On the bed, which measures 12 by 150 feet, seedlings have sprouted unusually thickly. On two adjoining beds not heated but which were planted at approximately the same time, sprouting has just begun, and some seed potatoes have no sprouts at all yet.

It now appears that the heated bed will supply enough sprouts to plant the 30 acres which the brothers have planned for sweet potato production this year. The seed potatoes were placed in the ground during the first month of March. There is no glass or other protection.

If their calculations are correct, the brothers will be harvesting yams from the first to the middle of August this year instead of the normal harvest time, late August and September.

Water Piped Under Plants

Some careful thought went into their idea before they took action.

First they obtained a small boiler, fired by natural gas to which they have access. Then they got enough boiler tubing to lay five pipes the full length of the bed. Four of the pipes send hot water from the boiler to the far end of the bed. The fifth pipe is employed to pump the water back to the boiler for reheating.

The pipes are about four inches under the planted seedlings.

The Giffords had the benefit of expert advice. E. M. Gifford's father-in-law, C. D. Elliston, is a "sweet potato pioneer" on the South Plains and has grown them nearly every year since 1938.

Ground Remains Warm

The brothers also obtained technical assistance from G. W. Parkhill, consulting engineer, M. J. Aderton and O. L. Fredricks, heating experts.

In spite of severe weather during the first two weeks of March, the first sprouts were up within a two-weeks period, the Giffords said. Taking soil temperature, they found the ground was as warm as 100 degrees F. although the air temperature was nearly freezing.

E. M. Gifford has been growing sweet potatoes on the farm, just east of Mackenzie state park for four years.

His brother has recently moved here from Shreveport, La., to help him.

Elliston, E. M. Gifford's father-in-law, has great faith in the area's sweet potato possibilities. He explained that he has grown as many as 80 acres a year of sweet potatoes and has produced as much as 20,000 bushels.

The Giffords hope that their project will pay for itself this year. If it does, they have a radiant-heated bed for future crops and their expenses will be negligible.

Honduras may tax theatre tickets, using the funds exclusively for hospitals.

STUDIES ON FERTILITY AIDED

Sex Hormone Is Isolated In Pure Form, Biologists Told

BY ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

DETROIT, April 19 — A sex hormone vital for human fertility has been isolated in pure form, Dr. C. H. Li of the University of California announced today.

The hormone was obtained from sheep. It is one of the potent hormones or chemical regulators from the pituitary gland.

The hormone was obtained from for use on human beings, Dr. Li told the American Society of Biological chemists. It will permit new research on reproductivity. It might also aid in some cases of infertility — the inability of couples to have children.

Vision Affected

The chemical is the follicle stimulating hormone, called FSH for brevity. In the female it makes possible ovulation, the formation and release of the human egg from the ovary. In the male it may stimulate the tubules which produce sperm cells.

It is the fifth hormone from the pituitary gland which Dr. Li has isolated in the pure form. The others are a hormone that also plays a part in ovulation, one that stimulates production of milk in new motherms, another that regulates the function of the adrenal gland, and the growth hormone.

Dr. Li spoke at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental biology.

One of the B vitamins, niacin, plays an important role in vision, Dr. George Wald of Harvard university reported to the biological chemists. It helps to remake another vitamin, vitamin A, long known to be essential in vision.

Vitamin Sources Listed

A red substance, rhodopsin, in the retina of the eye, bleaches when exposed to light, he explained. This action excites the nervous process by which we see.

Rhodopsin breaks down into another substance and then into vitamin A. The vitamin is reconverted in another process to take more of the red substance, so that vision goes on indefinitely. The B vitamin helps in the process, Dr. Wald said.

Meats and eggs are the best sources in foods of the B vitamin niacin. Butter and green leafy vegetables supply vitamin A.

A finding that may have bearing sometime on leukemia was reported by Drs. Bernhard Steinberg and Ruth A. Martin of the Toledo Hospital Institute of Medical research, Toledo, Ohio. Leukemia is a blood disease in which too many white blood cells are produced.

Studying rabbits, the doctors said they found that intact white cells apparently secrete into the blood a substance that acts on the bone marrow to slow down the expulsion of the white cells made there. White cells that are degenerating or breaking down secrete something that speeds up the expulsion of more cells from the marrow. These chemicals seem to be like enzymes, the doctors said.
