Reagan Turns Aside Calls To Raise Taxes, Cut Spending

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — President Reagan today turned aside calls to raise taxes and cut defense spending, and promised that his economic program "will guide our country out of this dark tunnel of recession and decline."

Faced with a growing list of congressional proposals to revise his big-deficit budget, Reagan said Washington "seems paralyzed by handwringers," and he derided critics as "pessimists on the Potomac."

Reagan said he is open to suggestions to cut the deficit, particularly proposals to reduce federal spending.

"But as the volume of voices rises in debate, there is one thing I want to make very clear: my commitment to cutting taxes and rebuilding our defenses is every bit as strong today as it was the day I took office. There must be no retreat in these areas," Reagan declared.

Reagan spoke at a Republican fund-raising reception for Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., who is facing re-election this year. Reagan also planned to campaign in Albuquerque, N.M., for Sen. Harrison Schmidt, R-N.M., and fly on to his California ranch for a vacation.

Later, in Albuquerque, Reagan said the administration was willing to consider any comprehensive alternative proposed by Congress "as long as it does not compromise the fundamentals of our tax cut program."

Mocking congressional proposals to revise his budget plan, Reagan said, "Many of these are not budget alternatives at all, but political documents designed for saving certain legislators' political hides rather than saving the economy."

In Washington, Republicans looked for ways to shrink the politically damaging $91.5 billion deficit the administration is forecasting for fiscal 1983. Senate Republicans said the president probably would accept reductions in the Pentagon's budget and some tax changes. On the stump, Reagan pleaded for time to let his program work.

Reagan said increasing taxes is not the way to balance the budget.

Reagan said most of the money in his $221 billion defense budget for fiscal 1983 is for manpower maintenance and readiness. "If we eliminated all the major weapons programs that are scheduled," he said, "it would reduce next year's deficit by $6.5 billion in our $3 trillion economy."

In a meeting Monday with representatives of small business, Reagan declared he had compromised enough on his 3-year tax plan when he agreed last year to delay its start.

"I believe it's time for you and me and the American people to stand together and tell the Congress, 'No, you may not touch our tax cut,'" Reagan said.

The president, asked whether the recession wasn't growing deeper, replied: "Only to the extent it isn't getting deeper as fast. It has begun to level out. That always happens at the bottom. You've got to have a curve before you turn up."

Reagan also met 2½ hours Monday with economic advisers and GOP members of the Senate Finance Committee, who offered competing suggestions to trim the deficit and reduce interest rates.

Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., said there were nine senators in the session with Reagan. "I think the president got nine different versions about what to do about the economy, deficits, spending, revenue enhancements and everything else," Durenberger said.

Speakes said he expected "some consensus to develop on Capitol Hill over the next two weeks" for budget revisions.

"I think what we'll do is watch and waig and see if somebody comes up with a better idea, we'll take a look at it," Speakes said. "We are always willing to work with the Congress."

Recession's End Signal Not Clear

By The Associated Press

President Reagan says the recession "has begun to level out" despite a ninth month of declining economic indicators, while his Commerce secretary says it "has yet to run its course" and a deputy treasury secretary says unemployment could reach 10 percent.

Reagan's comment came Monday after reporters asked if the recession was deepening. When Reagan said the decline was slowing, a reporter suggested a metaphor — the Titanic sank despite a change in its rate of decline.

"The ship is afloat," Reagan responded. "It's just in the hollow of the wave and riding out for the next curve."

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, meanwhile, commenting on the fact that the index of leading economic indicators fell again in January, said, "the recession has yet to run its course."

He was not totally pessimistic, adding, "The fact that the indicators were on the minus side in January is not inconsistent with forecasts of a second-quarter recovery in the economy."

Deputy Treasury Secretary R.T. McNamar, speaking to an insurance industry group, said "the current downturn will be far worse than envisioned in our earlier scenarios." He said the unemployment rate, which stood at 8.5 percent in January, "may yet go to 10 percent before we get things turned around."

Reagan's comment came after a meeting with advisers and Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee, in which he called for support to tell Congress, "no, you may not touch our tax cut."

A program enacted in 1981 cut personal income tax rates 5 percent last Oct. 1 and is scheduled to provide a 10 percent cut in July and another 10 percent cut in July 1983. Pressure to delay, reduce or eliminate the pending cuts has grown in an attempt to reduce the federal budget deficit.

Williams Branded Mass Murderer In 21 Deaths

ATLANTA (AP) — Police have ended the investigation of what the world came to know as the Atlanta child killings by branding Wayne B. Williams a mass murderer, blaming him for 21 slayings beyond the two a jury convicted him of.

The announcement that police would "close the books" on the other cases came after law enforcement officials met for 80-minutes Monday, two days after Williams was convicted of murdering Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, and Nathaniel Cater, 27.

Payne and Cater were the 26th and 28th victims on a list of 28 young blacks — most of them children and teenagers — whose deaths over a 22-month period beginning in 1979 were investigated by a special police task force.

"I think we share the relief everybody feels in this community to put this behind us," said Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown. He said the task force, formed in July 1980, will be disbanded March 8, adding that it had become "symbolic" and had "served its purpose."

When asked if he believed the black freelance photographer and self-styled talent promoter had committed 23 murders, spanning the entire period, Brown replied, "Yes."

Brown met with top law enforcement officers from federal, state, city and county agencies and Fulton County prosecutors at the storefront headquarters of the task force.

After the decision was announced defense attorney Lynn Whatley said, "To accuse (Williams) or to close the files based on evidence in these cases is a denial of due process and equal protection of the law."

The SDN Column

Jerry Sadler, who died the other day at the age of 74, was running for state office again.

Jerry would not have wanted it any other way. His name became familiar to Texas voters back in the 30s and he still enjoyed a significant name identification at the time of his death.

That is because Jerry had run for state office so many times that several generations, including the current one, had an opportunity to at least hear about him.

He was running for Land Commissioner again, a post he held for a decade. He also had served on the Texas Railroad Commission, an office he won back in 1938 when he first entered state-wide politics, and in the legislature.

Jerry Sadler had one gift that always serves politicians well. He seldom, if ever, forgot names and had an uncanny knack of associating them with faces.

In one of his campaigns during the 60s, Jerry visited Snyder. Yours truly had brief contact with him in one of his early campaigns, and again about 20 years later. We were not surprised that he greeted us by name when he stopped by the SDN office. He could have made inquiries just before his arrival to prepare for the occasion.

But it was a surprise when he mentioned our earlier meetings and even more so when he recalled an incident or two that we had forgotten.

Jerry Sadler also was a great snuff booster, long before Walt Garrison came along. He served as a military officer during World War II, and while in uniform once caused quite a stir when he literally ran out of snuff and lodged appropriate protests.

The military seemed determined to see that its people got cigarettes wherever they were sent, and Sadler demanded equal attention to snuff dippers, including himself.

Some observers later claimed that Jerry originated the expression "out of snuff," meaning "fed up," or "teed off." Anyway, he got results.

When he first ran for office, there was no television and very little entertainment in smaller towns and villages. So, townspeople would turn out when a politician came to town, especially if he had some musicians. We had a couple of distant cousins who organized a group to travel with Jerry during his first campaign, and they reported good, enthusiastic crowds along the campaign trail.

Jerry got his name before the people, and he never let them forget. Thus, no matter what the odds might be, Jerry Sadler could always get a batch of votes when he ran for office. And if they don't get his name off the ballot, he will probably get some May 1, despite his death at the outset of the campaign.

Ask Us

Q.—Why were Girl Scout cookies $2 per box here, but only $1.75 per box in the Dallas area?

A.—Each council sets its own price. The 16-county West Texas Council went up 50 cents rather than 25 cents so change-making would be easier for the younger girls and to bring more money into the troops and Camp Boothe Oaks. Also, the price is set for two years and regardless of cookie prices to the Girl Scouts, the price will remain the same next year.

Furr's Building Site Has Council Approval

The Snyder City Council last night approved a site plan for a new store submitted by Furr's, Inc.

The proposed store site is located on property at College Ave. and 30th St., just north of Varsity Square. The site plan was presented for formal approval because some of the property Furr's proposes to purchase is in the Deep Creek flood plain. Furr's plans to bring in fill material to put its store and parking lot out of the flood plain.

Bob Green and Rick Meyers of Furr's, who presented the proposal to the council, said Furr's is planning a 34,000-square foot store on the property. The council discussed some potential problems, mostly involving traffic. However, during the discussion, it was determined that there is sufficient unused street right-of-way to permit some improvements.

Another request for council action involving property in the same general area came from Drilling Mud, Inc., of Midland. J. B. Lauderdale, representing the firm at the council meeting, said a mixing plant to produce liquid mud is under consideration adjacent to warehouses located at 30th St. and Ave. Q. The firm has requested a special building permit.

Traffic again was the chief concern as the council discussed the request. Although the council indicated that it was receptive to the proposal, final decision was delayed, pending further study.

The city's annual audit report was accepted as presented by Larry Anderson of Anderson and Anderson, CPAs, and the mayor was authorized to issue a proclamation designating March 27 as "Dog Vaccination and Registration Day."

An ordinance was approved on second and final reading changing the zone of some property in Grayum and Nelson Subdivision from a commercial to multi-family residential, as requested by Harvey Stevens.

The council agreed to offer the Snyder Independent School District a 10-year lease at $1 per year on the property occupied by the Humble-Smith Special School. The school, which has been using the property since shortly after it was given to the city by Humble Oil and Refining Co. (now Exxon) in 1965, had asked for a 50-year lease in anticipation of adding a building there.

Also approved was a request by Bill Warner, chamber of commerce manager, for $3,957 from motel tax funds to purchase 8,000 more white buffalo stickers. The first order, which was purchased by the Board of County Development, has less than 3,000 left, Warner said. The chamber and BCD hope to have a good supply on hand for the White Buffalo Days celebration next fall.

Action was postponed until the April meeting to fill a position on the builders' board of appeal.

Several bids were accepted by the council. They included a bid of $52.50 by Wilson Motors for a 1972 pickup body shell; $27,000 by Price Bros. for the purchase of street seal-coating gravel; $10,720.75 by American Petrofina for asphalt; $25,500 by Russ Chemical Co. of Odessaa for a year's supply of alum; $4,860 by Amerigas of Lubbock for chlorine.

In each case, the low bid was accepted.

Bids on vehicle supplies were shared by Bill Burns Oil Co. and McCormick and Sons, with low bids taken on various lubricants, gasolines, antifreeze, kerosene, naptha, etc. All bids on a filter rotary distributor for the sewer plant were rejected. City Engineer Mike Smith said the city plans to amend the specifications and ask for bids again.

Following action on the business agenda, the council discussed plans for a community survey concerning development of Line Park. City Manager John Gayle has prepared a narrative and list of cost estimates for use in informing the public about the new park. The council plans to seek public opinion on development of the park in an informal poll during the April 3 city election and also in a newspaper poll.

Mayor Milton Ham presided over the council session, and council members attending were Gale McPherson, Ed Thrift, Don Gressett and Rod Waller. Councilmen John Wilson and David Holt were both absent because of illness.

China Threatens U.S.

PEKING (AP) — China warned the United States today it is "preparing for the worst" in Sino-U.S. relations if the Reagan administration insists on long-term arms sales to Taiwan.

It was a strong hint that the Chinese government might reduce the level of diplomatic relations between the two countries, as it did last year with the Netherlands because the Dutch government agreed to the sale of two submarines to the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan.

"The matter has developed to such a point that China is forced into a corner without any options," said a commentary by the official news agency Xinhua, which reflects government policy.

Amnesty Granted

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chun Doo-hwan today granted amnesty to 2,863 people including dissident leader Kim Dae-jung, whose life sentence was reduced to 20 years in prison.

A government announcement said Chun had decided to grant the amnesty "out of the conviction that the moment has come for all Koreans to unite even more firmly in the endeavor to unify Korea in the 1980s."

The action was taken as part of the observance Wednesday of the first anniversary of Chun's inauguration to a seven-year term.

Mubarak Gets Ultimatum

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin says he will not go to Egypt unless Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak visits the disputed holy city of Jerusalem, Israel radio reported.

Begin insists that Mubarak include Jerusalem, which Israel declared its undivided capital in 1980, during the Egyptian leader's upcoming visit to Israel.

Egypt and all other Arab nations want Israel to return the Arab part of the city captured from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East War. Most countries, including the United States, do not recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

The Israeli Cabinet on Sunday issued a statement saying that if Mubarak "insists that Jerusalem will not be included in his visit, Israel should forego this important visit."

With AMC, GM...

UAW May Reopen Talks Again

DETROIT (AP) — After signing an unprecedented concessions pact with Ford Motor Co., the United Auto Workers' president said he will talk to the union's locals to see if they would support reopening similar discussions that failed at General Motors Corp.

And the union's American Motors Corp. council voted unanimously Monday in Chicago to seek more information about a proposal from AMC that in effect asks 15,000 workers to loan the company their wage and benefit increases.

Meanwhile, figures released Monday showed February production at its lowest level since 1948.

But AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland asserted in Washington that the wage concessions granted to Ford and signed Monday reflect only the auto industry's slump and "do not necessarily" mean the nation is entering an era of austerity for unionized workers.

"We will be talking with the local unions at (General Motors Corp.) within the next few days and will make a determination" on whether to respond to the No. 1 U.S. automaker's call for concessions talks, UAW President Douglas A. Fraser said.

He said union leaders would discuss new talks today with the union's 11-member GM national bargaining committee.

Fraser's comments Monday came after he and Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell signed the historic 31-month contract at the No. 2 automaker's headquarters in suburban Detroit.

The signing came a day after Ford autoworkers ratified the pact 43,683 to 15,933. It is expected to save Ford up to $1 billion.

The union's 70-member AMC council will meet with officials of the No. 4 automaker Monday in Milwaukee, said Ray Majerus, the union's secretary-treasurer. Canadian members decided at the five-hour meeting in Chicago to reject the idea of giving concessions and said it was the government's job to help out, not the workers'.

After the Monday meeting, "we will proceed and have a council meeting and decide whether to reopen contract talks," Majerus said.

The American Motors proposal asks the autoworkers to forgo $150 million worth of increases in wages and benefits in return for repayment, with interest, in later years.

Ford, GM and AMC have sought concessions in the midst of the worst domestic sales slump since the Depression. The union held concessions talks with GM, but the talks broke down Jan. 29.

Although UAW workers at Chrysler Corp. agreed to concessions, the Ford pact is historic because it affects workers nationwide. The Chrysler agreement affects mainly workers in the Midwest.

The auto industry's current slump continued last month, according to figures released Monday. February car production at the five major U.S. carmakers fell to its lowest level in 34 years, with just 323,661 autos turned out, the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association said. In February 1948, 275,056 cars were produced. February production was down 32 percent from the number of cars built in February 1981.

Workers Get Half Pay

DALLAS (AP) — Employees of financially troubled Braniff International will be paid only half of their normal pay this week because of a shortage of cash, company officials report.

Braniff vice president Sam Coats said employees will receive the balance of their normal paychecks next week. The 9,500 employees are normally paid every two weeks.

Coats said unions were notified in advance of the pay deferral, but he noted that the decision did not require union approval. Employees of the financially troubled airline have agreed in the past to every wage and schedule concession proposed by management since the financial problems surfaced.

"Our cash situation right now is very tight and this is a way to increase our cash flow by $8 million," Coats said.

The pay deferral includes everyone on the airline's payroll, Coasts said, including airline president Howard Putnam.

The airline's monthly payroll is about $25 million, he said.

Braniff reported last week that the airline lost $161.1 million in 1981, compared to losses of $131 million in 1980 and $44 million in 1979.

In addition, the airline reduced its work force from 15,000 employees in 1979 through periodical layoffs to 9,500 last week. The airline also closed 10 city ticket offices and laid off 825 employees, including four vice presidents, in January.

Watchdog Committee Is Formed In Border City

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A citizens' watchdog committee has been formed in this border city to keep an eye on local issues and politicians.

The El Paso Interreligious Sponsoring Organization (EPISO) claims 400 persons attended the group's first meeting last week, at which EPISO members decided to investigate a $60 million proposed electricity rate increase, a $25 million bond issue proposal, neighborhood services and schools.

Professional organizers from the Industrial Areas Foundation (IAF) in Los Angeles had been working here for a year before the first public meeting. But the formal kickoff was rushed because of local opposition, said the Rev. Larry McNeil, a Baptist minister originally from Lufkin.

The group came together six months ahead of schedule said McNeil, 34, now based in Los Angeles with IAF.

"The anti's and the kooks sped up the process," he said. "Every time we get attacked, the enemy does the organizing for us."

The group is similar to San Antonio's Citizens Organized for Public Service (COPS) and other groups in Fort Worth, Houston, Brownsville and nearly 20 other cities nationwide. All are based on the teachings of Saul Alinsky, a nationally-known community activist.

McNeil said opposition to the groups usually dies down, despite a flurry of complaints at the outset.

"The kooks will go away after awhile," he said. "We won't."

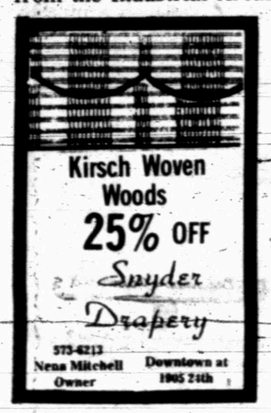

He added that one IAF organizer had received a phone call telling him to get out of town.

But McNeil, who said he has been called an "outside agitator" said El Paso needs the EPISO program.

"There is a tremendous reservoir of talent here, but the city has crap schools, it has Jonathan Rogers as mayor. It has a lot of problems," McNeil said.

Roman Catholics from some of the city's affluent have criticized EPISO and IAF, claiming Bishop Raymundo Pena railroaded the enlistment of 24 parishes, expected to contribute $100,000 to the organization.

"EPISO is one concrete way of implementing the church's teaching on social justice," Pena said.

"The price on these polo shirts is higher because they are VERY exclusive. Notice there is no little symbol on the chest?"

at wits end

by erma bombeck

A lot of professions enjoy limited lifespans.

Dancers retire when the energy goes. Athletes retire when the legs go and sex symbols retire when the chins fall in their soup.

When the time comes, no one wants to go.

As a prforming housewife of 30 years, I'm ready to go. I know, I thought I had 20 or 30 more good years ahead of me, but I'm lying to myself and am ready to hang it up.

It's been coming for some time now. Like a dancer, the energy just isn't there when I need it. There's no motivation. I no longer care that my dishtowels look like the seat of a mechanic's pants or that my cookie sheet was born the same year as Alan Alda.

No longer can I leap into the air in glorious exhilaration when my laundry smells fresh or glide my hands smoothly across a bathtub that doesn't feel gritty.

Like a ballplayer, I've lost my timing. There was a moment when I knew exactly when a child was going to split from the kitchen and lock himself in the bathroom to keep from doing dishes, but no more. They get away from me.

My average for creative meals used to be stunning.

A couple of years ago, I batted .355 I've been in a slump now for five years, reaching my all-time low the other night when I served a bowl of cottage cheese and leftover pizza.

Face it, the body is gone. Those legs that used to run trays up to the bedroom 18 times a day for a common cold have more ridges than corduroy. The form that used to drag out every morning and feed everyone now burrows under the covers like a lump and whimpers.

I told the family last week, "I'm finally retiring." My husband said, "You've retired every week since we've been married." I told him, "This is different. I want to move over and let a younger woman take my place. I want to retreat from life and take my place in history, leaving the house only for an occasional award or a tribute ceremony at Kennedy Center, where thay can dig up old home movies and testimonials of the housewife I used to be. This old soldier from the utility room is saying her last goodbye."

My husband said, "Before you go, could you drop off the dog at the vet's and my jacket at the cleaners?"

Somehow, I thought my leaving would be more poignant than that.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In 1939 Ted Lightner won the Spingold with Oswald Jacoby, Bob Macpherran, the late Howard Schenken and Jimmy Maier. He played throughout with Jacoby.

The Lightner slam double had been in use for a few years by this time. Today's hand shows it at its most effective use.

Ted sat East and doubled six hearts to ask Jacoby to lead one of the unbid suits. The double would have been disastrous if Ossie had led a club, but Ted knew that his partner would be trying to find Ted's void suit and would almost surely hold many more diamonds than clubs.

Sure enough, Ossie had no problem. He led a diamond. Ted ruffed and returned a spade for a one-trick set.

Schenken and Maier bid the heart slam at the other table, but East and West saved at six spades down two, so the Lightner double had gained only 500 points for its inventor.

It is worthy of note here that Lightner was sure that his side would collect a spade trick since North had used Blackwood on his way to the heart slam.

And Feels Good...

Spring Footwear Looks Good

NEW YORK (AP) — This spring, your feet can feel as beautiful as they look, reports The Footwear Council. Thanks to the wide variety of heel heights making fashion news, from ballet flats to vampy stiletto-heel sandals, there's no need to sacrifice style for comfort.

"The footwear industry is recognizing that today's active, hard-working woman can't afford to let her shoes slow her down," says Andrea Rosen, fashion director of the council.

"Today, there is no one correct heel height. Women can select shoes that combine fashion and function. In fact, a wardrobe of shoes in several heel heights can contribute to the long-term health of your feet."

Podiatrists agree that many foot problems caused by improper shoes could be avoided by changing shoes several times a day, and fitting the shoe to the purpose.

Sky-high heels may have their place — for a special night out once in a while — but according to Dr. Rob Roy McGregor, medical consultant to The Footwear Council, extended wearing of high heels can cause problems throughout the body.

"Shoes with high heels throw the back out of alignment," explains McGregor. "The results can include backache, tightness in the hip joints, and tension in the legs."

When high heels are worn every day, he explains, the calf muscles can actually become shortened, making it uncomfortable to wear low-heeled shoes. There may be a sensation of falling backward because of the pull on the muscles.

To correct this problem, it's necessary to gradually wean yourself away from high heels by switching to low shoes for a few hours every day, he notes.

The ideal heel height for work days ranges from 1 to 2 inches, say the experts. Low or mid-heel shoes distribute the body's weight more evenly; with very high heels, the weight must be borne by the balls of the feet, a burden that may lead to metatarsal problems, calluses and a burning sensation.

McGregor adds that shoes of moderate height hold the heel in a neutral position, essential to preserving the arch. The podiatrist says that broader heels offer more stability than slim ones, regardless of height — something to take into consideration if your job involves lots of walking or standing.

If long, brisk walks are part of your routine, the shoes that work best are not perfectly flat, as you might expect, but ones that have a little lift to them, McGregor says. A slightly raised heel, from ¾ to 1½ inches, encourages the heel-toe motion needed for a spring in your step. Completely flat shoes, such as sandals with no heels or tennis sneakers, don't offer the support and the slight angle that helps you maintain your momentum.

"Most of this spring's newest shoe shapes have heels somewhere in between perfectly flat and very high," says Ms. Rosen. "A pump with a sculptured Louis or court heel looks higher than it really is, because the heel is tapered inward. These new heels go comfortably from day into evening."

Wedges are also making a big comeback for spring, she says. The newest wedge heels, slightly tapered and more delicately sculptured than the ones of a few seasons ago, have enough height to give the leg a slim silhouette, yet are really quite walkable and provide good support to the entire foot, including the arch.

Some women will still favor high heels because they are so flattering to the legs, and have a festive look for dressy occasions, says Ms. Rosen. She recommends that if you must wear high heels to work, keep a pair of low-heel shoes in the office to give your feet a rest for a few hours in the middle of the day.

On those occasions when you find yourself standing for long periods in high heels (at a party, for instance), try to keep your weight centered in the middle of the heel. There's a tendency to let your ankles bend inward, a habit that can cause both aching feet and misshapen shoes.

"Good fit can prevent a lot of problems, regardless of heel height," Ms. Rosen points out. "Having enough toe room in a pair of high heels can make a big difference. And with flat shoes, buying half a size larger than usual may be a good idea; since the foot has a tendency to spread out.

"Visualize the situations in which you'll be wearing the shoes before you buy," advises Ms. Rosen. "It's important to choose shoes to match your lifestyle, as well as your clothing."

GS Winding Up 30th Cookie Sale

The Snyder Girl Scouts are in the process of completing their 30th Annual Cookie Sale. If you have not purchased cookies or would like to buy more call 573-3122 or 573-0395.

The 1982 cookie sale is helping support 17 Snyder Girl Scout and Brownie troops. Besides earning money for the troops the, sale helps the council give direct services to the girls, helps support Camp Boothe Oaks and enhances the programs in the West Texas Girl Scout Council.

The girls not only learn salesmanship but also earn awards for their efforts. Every girl who sells 2½ cases (30 boxes) will receive a 30th Anniversary Patch, and those selling five cases will also receive a bike bag. First and second grade Brownies who sell seven cases will receive a weekend campership with her dad at Camp Boothe Oaks. Third grade Brownies and Junior Scouts will earn one-half week campership for selling nine cases; one week campership for selling 16 cases and a two-week campership for selling 25 cases.

Cadette and Senior Scouts will receive $5 in cookie currency, along with the patch and bike bag, for each case of cookies sold. The cookie currency is to be used for council events such as resident camping, council-sponsored events or Wider Opportunities.

A council Cookie Pusher award will go to the Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior Scout who sells more cookies than any other girl on her level in the 16 county area.

Scout Executives Meet In El Paso

The Association of Girl Scout Executive Staff, Section VI, met in El Paso at the Roadway Inn Feb. 26-28. Section VI is composed of Girl Scout councils of Arkansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas.

"Communication Motivation," the Friday night program session, was presented by a representative of the Dale Carnegie Institute.

Program activities on Saturday offered a choice: Finance Management by Jackie Sanders or a Graphics Workshop and kindred groups on topics of membership, training, and program.

A chartered bus took the group on a sight-seeing excursion to Ciudad Juarez late Sataurday afternoon. The Saturday night dinner-theater was held at Carlos and Mickey's Mexico Food Restaurant where the Ballet Folklorica performed.

The AGSES convention business was concluded on Sunday.

Attending as members of AGSES, Section VI, were Mrs. Peggy Sturrock, executive director of the West Texas Girl Scout Council and four of the executive staff, Linda Walker, Dorrie Cook, Marianne Hooker, and Louise Ward.

West Texas Girl Scout Council, Inc. is a participating agency of the Scurry County United Way.

Dear Abby

Woman Wants More From Man with Everything

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am living with a man. He's 29 and I'm 27. He's almost a saint. He doesn't smoke, drink or curse. He opens doors for me and treats me with the greatest respect.

He would do anything in the world for me. He wants what most people want — home, family, love, etc. So do I. So what's the problem? I don't love him the way he loves me. He's very romantic, likes candlelight, soft music, long foreplay and the works. Me? I'm just a 1-2-3 lover. I do a lot for him (physically), but he doesn't really do that much for me. I'm honest. I don't play games. I try to explain that just because we have different needs doesn't make either one of us weird. We are just incompatible when it comes to love.

I have been in love and I know how it's supposed to be. I'm not really miserable with him, but I'm not completely happy either. Why do we both continue in this arrangement? Am I hurting both of us by staying?

He says he loves me and he's content. But is contentment enough? I don't want to hurt him. He's a wonderful man and most women would feel lucky to have him.

What do you make of this?

MISSING SOMETHING

DEAR MISSING: If he's content, knowing that you don't feel for him what he feels for you, you aren't being unfair to him. But whether you're being unfair to yourself is another question.

When people feel they're "missing something" (you provided the signature, I didn't), in time they usually go looking for it.

DEAR ABBY: I am 84, single, of sound mind, in fairly good health, and I have no heirs. I recently completed a will with a bequest to a particular friend, and I made the mistake of telling her what I had willed to her.

Since then she has been asking for additional items! I told her plainly that my will was written and I had no intention of altering it. I wonder if other elderly people have had a similar experience, and if so, how they handled it.

This friend now appears to be more interested in my early demise than in me.

APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED: Ignore her requests. Feeling as you do, I wonder why you would want to leave her anything.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder why the feminist groups haven't challenged the age-old tradition of the bride's parents paying for the wedding. That custom dates back to the days when the male reigned supreme and a female was made to feel fortunate if a man asked to marry her. Parents of daughters used bribes (dowries) to unload them. And parents were only too happy to pay for the wedding. Talk about sex discrimination!

If women want equality with men, isn't it time they abolished that ridiculous, demeaning custom? Today's women work as hard as men, and many of them earn more than their husbands.

I'm for splitting the cost of the wedding 50-50. Are you with me, Abby?

FOR EQUALITY

DEAR FOR: One hundred percent!

DEAR ABBY: Do you believe a person's handwriting reveals anything about his character?

CURIOUS IN KANSAS

DEAR CURIOUS: Yes. Especially if he signs a check that bounces.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Plead Guilty To Fake Scheme

CANYON, Texas (AP) — Two Amarillo men have been ordered to pay back almost $85,000 collected for non-existent oil wells after pleading guilty to selling securities without a license.

Prosecutors agreed to waive a multi-count indictment against Jim Anderson and Theodore Oliver McVade in return for Monday's guilty pleas, according to Randall County Criminal District Attorney Randy Sherrod.

Both men were ordered to pay back the money collected for the oil wells and were placed on 10 years deferred probation. Deferred probation means the incident will not appear on their criminal records unless the terms of probation are violated, Sherrod said.

McVade was president of an Amarillo company called Velsue Inc., and Anderson served as secretary-treasurer.

Three Federal Judges Race To Redraw Lines

DALLAS (AP) — Three federal judges, racing to redraw legislative district lines in time for counties to prepare for a May 1 primary, planned to wrap up testimony today from plaintiffs presenting a variety of maps.

The panel ordered Harris County representatives to meet with state officials and printers late Monday to find a way to hold the May 1 election. The representatives had said they could not be ready until May 12, even if the original map is approved and the candidates' filing deadlines moved from March 19 to March 12.

"What you're doing is asking this court to change every election in the state?" federal appeals court Judge Carolyn D. Randall asked.

"That's right, Your Honor," replied Rex van Middlesworth, an attorney representing Harris County.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders pointed out that the panel had jurisdiction only over legislative elections. But van Middlesworth submitted that the judges had jurisdiction "regardless of what any other court has done."

Election officials from Dallas, Bexar and El Paso counties testified they could prepare for a primary May 1 if they receive new maps by the end of this week.

But Harris County Clerk Anita Rodeheaver testified ballots could not be printed and loaded into voting machines in time. While other counties were sending out voter registrations based on lines drawn by the Legislative Redistricting Board, she said, Harris County was awaiting a final resolution of the issue.

U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer completes the panel, which agreed to revise the districts after the U.S. Justice Department rejected the LRB map, saying it violated the Voting Rights Act by diluting minority strength.

Those upset with the LRB's House or Senate maps — mostly Republicans and minorities — filed the suit in federal court.

The judges Monday heard testimony about several alternate plans, including a "compromise" proposal born at a last-minute meeting among some of the plaintiffs.

A weekend meeting among representatives of the secretary of state, the House speaker's office and the House and Senate plaintiffs resulted in a compromise plan that consolidates their original maps and makes district lines conform to precinct lines.

Judge Randall chastised the attorneys for not filing the plan before the deadline set by the panel — but indicated the judges would consider it.

"I don't mean to be unfriendly, but that was precisely the reason we allotted as much time as we did," she said.

Some of the other plaintiffs implied that only Republicans were invited to the weekend meeting, but John N. McCamish Jr., counsel for the House plaintiffs, claimed their only purpose was to save the judges time.

Clements 'Mad' Over Proposal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republican Gov. Bill Clements says three federal judges acted just like legislators by drawing a congressional redistricting plan to protect Democratic officeholders.

Clements told a news conference Monday he was "incensed" and "disgusted" over the plan, but he predicted it would backfire and result in the defeat of Democrats.

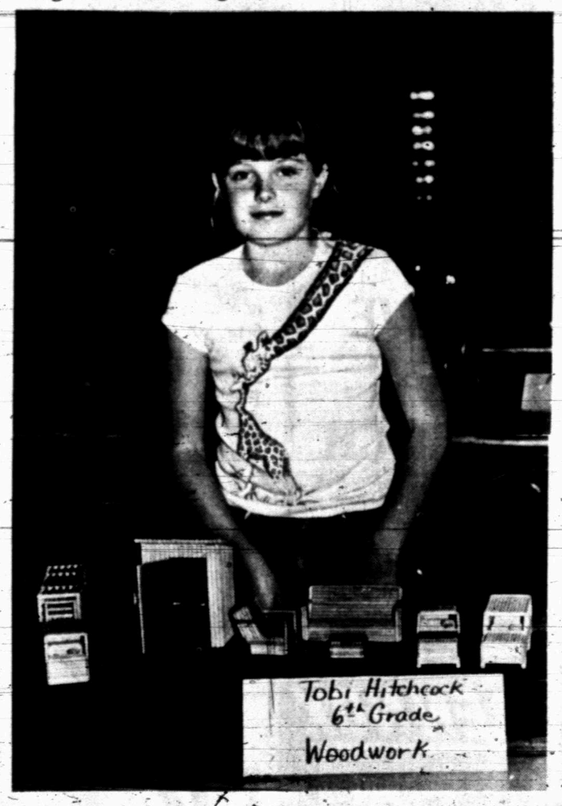

The Legislature passed a redistricting plan in August based on the 1980 census, which showed that Texas was entitled to three more congressional seats or a total of 27.

Minority groups challenged the plan in court, claiming it diluted their voting strength. On Jan. 29, the U.S. Justice Department rejected the plan and instructed the judges to redraw two new South Texas districts that have large Hispanic populations.

U.S. District Judges Sam Johnson of Austin, William Wayne Justice of Tyler and Robert Parker of Beaumont redrew the districts but also changed districts represented by Reps. Jim Mattox, D-Dallas; Martin Frost, D-Dallas; Jim Collins, R-Dallas; and a new "mid-cities" district between Dallas and Fort Worth.

"I had confidence and I was optimistic that those judges would look at it (redistricting) in what I would term a more objective manner than they obviously have," Clements said. "You know, they are in the same position as the syndrome of many legislators, and that is to protect the incumbent, and that seems to me to be the basis on which they made their decision — protect the incumbents. I don't think that's the purpose of redistricting at all."

"I feel incensed. I am terribly disappointed, and I think that the court was certainly not responsive" to the Justice Department's order nor the voters, Clements said. "It's a shame that the court was not more responsive ..."

Crew Picked For Last Shuttle Test Flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Navy Capt. Thomas J. Mattingly will command the fourth flight of the space shuttle Columbia, the last one which will be used to test computer subsystems, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has announced.

Henry W. Hartsfield will join Mattingly as pilot for the planned seven-day mission, which is scheduled for July, NASA spokesman Steve Nesbitt said.

The fifth shuttle mission, scheduled for mid-November, will deploy commercial payloads. It will be commanded by Vance D. Brand, with Marine Col. Robert F. Overmyer as pilot, Nesbitt said.

Soft-Drink Industry Is Fizzing...

Seven-Up Is Waging 'No Caffeine' Campaign

NEW YORK (AP) — The soft-drink industry is fizzing over a new advertising campaign by Seven-Up, which after two decades as the "un-cola" is trying to increase its share of the market by attacking a basic ingredient of its cola competitors — caffeine.

Les Zuke, a spokesman for the Seven-Up Co., said Monday that Seven-Up, which is owned by Philip Morris Inc., has been running two of its new television ads featuring the no-caffeine theme for several weeks in St. Louis and Los Angeles.

Zuke said ads proclaiming, "Seven-Up...Crisp and Clean...No Caffeine...Feelin' Seven-Up" would be introduced nationwide within several days.

One of the ads features Dallas Cowboys defensive lineman Randy White with two children. It's a typical Seven-Up commercial highlighting a well-known sports figure.

But it's the other commercial that has upset the rest of the industry, which is now dominated by Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola.

The ad features Tug McGraw, relief pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies, brushing aside cans of Dr. Pepper, Sunkist orange soda, Pepsi, Coke, Mountain Dew and Mello Yello and saying as he reaches for Seven-Up, "I'm taking no caffeine."

"Our commercial simply is informing the consumer that our product does not contain caffeine," Zuke said. "We are making this known to the consumer because for many people it is important whether a drink contains caffeine."

Other soft-drink companies claim the Seven-Up ad suggests that soda with caffeine is dangerous to health — an issue that has been debated since the mid 1970s.

Joe Block, PepsiCo Inc. vice president of consumer affairs and marketing, criticized the new Seven-Up campaign as a "disservice to the public since it perpetuates unsubstantiated health concerns by the use of scare tactics."

"Caffeine is one of the most thoroughly tested and researched substances in our food supply," he said. "PepsiCo Co. is firmly convinced that caffeine is perfectly safe, imposes no hazard to the public — a conviction that is fortified by extensive scientific research."

The Wall Street Journal said Monday that Pepsi sent mailgrams to its bottlers threatening them with violation of their exclusive franchise agreements if they go along with Seven-Up's ad campaign. Asked about the report, Block would say only that "communications with the bottler is privileged information and confidential."

The Federal Food and Drug Administration last year advised pregnant women to avoid consuming products with caffeine after heavy doses of caffeine caused birth defects in rats. Other studies have pinpointed caffeine as a stimulant for adults and indicated it might impair the development of children's nervous systems.

But recent studies, including one released by Harvard Medical School a month ago, concluded that coffee consumption has a minimal effect on the outcome of pregnancy.

The controversy has had its impact on sales of caffeine drinks. Studies prepared for the International Coffee Organization in London revealed that decaffeinated coffee accounted for 17.2 percent of all cups of coffee consumed during a month-long test period in early 1981 compared with 5.8 percent during a comparable period in 1970.

Cola-Cola Co. would say only that the company, which commands 37.5 percent of the soft-drink market to No. 2 Pepsi's 24.5 percent, would not comment on another company's "competitive activity."

Spokesman Carlton Curtis said Coke sent "informational" Mailgrams to its bottlers last week about the ad campaign.

Defense Says Another Man Mailed The Letters

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Defense attorneys contend that a Colorado man, and not their clients, is responsible for mailing letters attempting to extort millions of dollars from major corporations by threatening their officers and their products.

Two Texas men, Leon Cordell Horton, 53, of Dallas, and Ardis O'Dell Reed, 50, of Houston, are standing trial here in U.S. District Court on the extortion conspiracy charges.

Horton and Reed are accused of sending extortion letters from Jackson in 1975-76 under the name "B.A. Fox."

A nine-woman, three-man jury was seated Monday in the case, and prepared to hear the first testimony today.

The government accused them of mailing 180 threatening letters on Oct. 13, 1975, with demands that large sums of money be deposited in a Matamoros, Mexico, bank account.

"We're not saying it didn't happen," court-appointed defense attorney Sebastian Moore of Jackson told the jury in opening arguments on Monday. "We're saying they didn't do it."

Another defense attorney, Tom Royals, said it was the work of "a bunch of nuts." One, Royals said, was a man named Steven Grant Morton whom Royals said was indicted by a federal grand jury in Denver in 1977 for the same acts.

Royals said Morton now lives in a mental institution in Colorado, and said the case there had been dismissed for lack of evidence.

Conviction would carry a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

Among the 27 government witnesses are Patricia Foster, Reed's ex-wife, and Virgil Francis Fuller, a Colorado farmer who pleaded guilty last week to conspiracy charges.

Mrs. Foster told Texas investigators last year that Horton, after his release from a Texas prison on charges of passing false deeds on a millionaire's land, contacted Reed and ouutlined a plan to extort money from corporations.

She supplied a photograph, letters and a piece of paper with "Fox Company" printed on it.

The Mississippi indictment charged that one letter went to General Foods of White Plains, N.Y., and threatened to poison food products unless $10 million was paid, and another went to Merrill Lynch and Co. of New York threatening to have a sniper shoot an official unless $1 million was deposited.

Aid won't stop hearing loss

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently a representative of a well-known brand of hearing aids performed a hearing test, offered to local people as a free service. He advised me that one inner ear had trouble picking up a higher range and I had a 37 percent hearing loss. He prescribed his hearing aid (over $500) to pick up that range. He also claimed that it would prevent further deterioration of my hearing.

Actually my hearing does not appear to be a problem. My husband agrees. My husband's test was declared good. We are 70 years of age.

Will such an aid help to prevent further deterioration of my hearing? After all, prevention would make it worthwhile but otherwise it would not seem to be necessary.

DEAR READER — Most people in your age group will have some loss of hearing for high frequency sounds. The loss may not be great enough to interfere with normal hearing for conversation.

No hearing aid will prevent loss of hearing. I don't know what the salesman actually told you but if he told you that I would recommend not dealing with him. Hearing aids serve only one purpose, to improve your existing hearing. In fact if a poorly fitted hearing aid is used to amplify sound to a great degree it could cause noise-induced hearing loss.

I don't think anyone should buy a hearing aid who has not had an examination by a physician or an audiologist. An audiologist has a masters degree with five to six years of college. If he is certified by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association he will also have had supervised experience. He may provide hearing aids for you. But a straight hearing aid salesman may not have these qualifications. Some have only a few days or a few weeks training before getting their license. That is why many people end up with a drawer full of unused hearing aids.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 16-8, Your Vital Hearing, so you will know what can be done. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I was diagnosed as having thyroiditis and am currently taking Synthroid. I'm 26 and gave birth to my first child nine months ago. My doctor explained that my body is producing too many antibodies which are killing the thyroid cells. He said I would be able to have another child without any risk to it from the Synthroid. Do you agree with this and do you consider thyroiditis to be a serious condition? Right now we're working on adjusting my dosage because I still feel fatigued a lot of the time.

DEAR READER — Sounds like you have a fine doctor. One cause of low thyroid function is destruction of thyroid gland tissue from your own immune system (there are other causes, too). The Synthroid merely replaces the thyroid hormone your normal gland would produce.

If you don't get enough thyroid you are less likely to get pregnant. And if you are properly regulated to provide the optimal amount of thyroid hormone you certainly should be as likely as other mothers to have a normal pregnancy.

Low thyroid function can be and is one of many causes for fatigue but most fatigue is caused by other factors.

Cushing Urges Fan Support For Dusters

BIG SPRING -- Howard County College defeated Odessa 75-60 here last evening to complete the line up for tonight's semi-final pairings in the Women's Region V Basketball Tournament.

In earlier games, McLennan Community College edged Clarendon 71-67, Western Texas nipped Cisco 72-69 and Cooke County ousted Amarillo 82-75.

Tonight's parings pit two Northern conference teams, Cooke County College and McLennan, at 6, and two Western conference teams, Howard and Western Texas, at 8. That insures at Northern-Western matchup for Wednesday's 8 p.m. final.

The Howard College-Western Texas game is one a lot of women's juco basketball fans have been waiting for.

"It's no secret we'd like to play Howard College again," said Western Texas Coach Joe Cushing. "We didn't play well against them the last time (this season) or in the regional tournament a year ago. We feel we have something to prove," he added.

Playing here at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum could be an advantage for the Hawk Queens, who call the court their home. But Cushing feels it won't be a major factor.

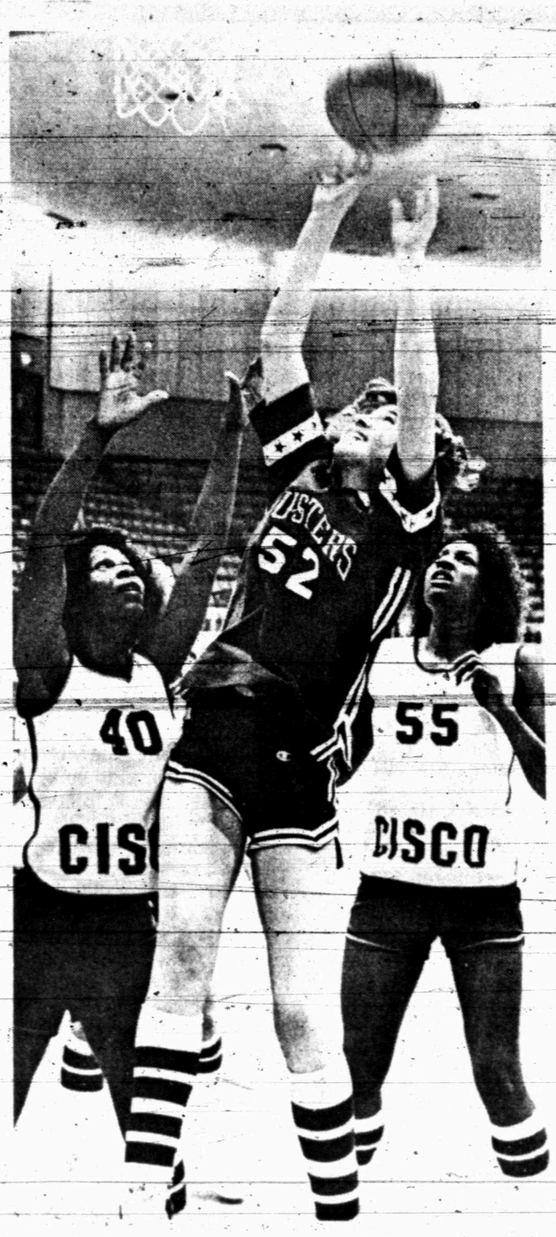

"We've usually played well at Big Spring. I don't think it (Howard's home court) will make that much difference. We've got a good following behind us. Hopefully we'll have a large crowd there tonight to back us. I know we have a lot of people wishing us well. These girls have worked hard to represent WTC and Snyder and we'd like to see our fans out there supporting us tonight."

Both the Hawk Queens and WTC's Dusters go into the game with 24-7 records. Howard won the Western Conference crown this year with a 10-2 record, while Western tied for second at 8-4.

Dusters Ride The Boards To Squeak Past Cisco, 72-69

By BILL McCLELLAN

BIG SPRING -- Western Texas College's Dusters came up with eight points in the late-going here Monday to edge Cisco Junior College 72-69 in quarterfinals play of the Region V Women's Basketbll Tournament.

The Dusters, now 24-7, advance to the semi-final level, where they will play Howard County College at 8 tonight. The tournament is being held at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Western overcame a first half shooting slump to win the game. Despite shooting only 28 of 80 unofficially for the contest - 27 percent in the first half - the Dusters banged the glass by a 57-42 margin, a key factor in the outcome.

"It was the only reason we won the game," said Coach Joe Cushing, who felt lucky to come away with the win. "We were hesitating on offense and we weren't moving on defense. About the only thing we did was hit the boards. I guess it's a tribute that we played so bad and still won."

Cisco gained a 35-32 halftime lead and maintained it until Valerie Wells scored a layup with 15:23 to go in the game. The lead changed ownership five times in the half, with neither team able to capitalize on the momentum.

Cisco's final spurt began at the 7:59 mark after WTC had worked to its greatest advantage of the game, 59-52. Peggy Taylor, a 5-11 sophomore, led the Lady Wrangler's rally by drilling in seven points for a 59-59 tie. Sherri Hill then picked off a Dusters pass and raced unmolested for a gimmie, and CJC was ahead, 61-59.

But Western was to make a comeback of its own. Trailing by four points, 65-61, the Dusters not only hit the boards - they began to rule them completely. Wells and 6-1 freshman Vickie Teal each took a pair of rebounds and stuck them back up as WTC re-tied the game at 65-65.

Cisco failed on an opportunity to regain the lead when Taylor missed both ends of a two-shot freethrow situation with 3:20 left and Western took advantage once more.

Cindy Maddox, who hadn't attempted a bucket since missing on four attempts in the first half, put the Dusters in front 69-65 with a pair of cannon shots from the top of the key.

Wrangler Candi Lott answered with a basket for CJC, but the Dusters weren't going to let this one slip away.

With 1:00 left, Teal cracked the front end of a two-shot stint at the stripe, giving WTC a three-point lead and taking the game out of an overtime opportunity for Cisco, 70-67. Dorcas Perkins then came away with a key rebound with 43 seconds left.

Western didn't come out of the game unscathed. In a desperation attempt to regain possesion of the ball, Hill crashed into Maddox and sent her reeling to the floor. The 5-7 sophomore was aided to the bench and freshman Patricia Beach came on to ice the game by shooting Maddox's freethrows.

Immediately after the game Cushing ordered Maddox back to Snyder and into the whirlpool. She was suffering from "a jammed neck" and was to see a doctor this morning.

Taylor's 24 points led all scorers, but WTC got five players in double figures. Teal led with 17, followed by Perkins and Cindy Goltl with 12 each and Wells and Norma Frazier with 10 apiece. Hill hit 18 for CJC, while Carolyn Cheeks had 10.

After a 2-2 start, Cisco led most of the first half, but never by more than five points. Goltl came off the bench to put WTC in front 25-23 with 5:54 left, but CJC took it back three minutes later and held it until halftime.

The game was tied on 14 different occassions.

Snyder Nails Bobcats; Hosts Cooper Today

SAN ANGELO -- Snyder's Tigers opened the 1982 baseball season with an 8-6 victory over San Angelo Central here yesterday. The Tigers return home today to host Cooper at 4.

Gerald Hicks got the win, hurling six and two-thirds innings before giving way to reliever John Wilson in the seventh.

Central opened the scoring, running across three batsmen in the first inning on two singles, a walk and a couple of errors.

Snyder pulled close in the third when Wilson led off with a single and Brent Roemisch followed suit. Casey Peterson then cracked a sacrifice bunt, and Jesse Hernandez brought Roemisch in with another single, 3-2.

The Tigers finally took the lead in the fifth. Wilson, Roemisch and Peterson all singled back-to-back, Hernandez walked and Barry Davis hit a sacrifice fly to right field. Designated hitter Trey Harlin was hit by a pitch and Curtis Gafford and Britt Vincent drew walks before San Angelo could get out of the inning.

The action produced a 5-3 advantage for the Tigers, who added one more run in the sixth as Wilson walked, stole second, got to third on an error and came home on a single by Hernandez.

Snyder got some much needed insurance in the seventh. Gafford reached on an error and Johnny Overton and Gary Don Edmiaston walked. Another error sent Gafford home and Roemisch's sacrifice shot to centerfield sent Overton in with Snyder's eighth run of the game.

San Angelo rallied for three scores in the final half of the inning, but wasn't able to overcome the Tiger lead.

Snyder collected seven hits in the game, led by two-for-three performances from Hernandez and Wilson. Roemisch was two-for-four.

Tarin took the loss. His Bobcats got six hits.

Rice, SMU, Texas Fall As SWC Tourney Begins

by The Associated Press

If there was a lesson to be learned from the first round of the Southwest Conference basketball tournament, maybe it was this: don't stop at 46 points.

Rice, Southern Methodist and Texas were all eliminated in Monday's first round and they all had 46s shining on the scoreboard when the buzzer sounded.

Texas Christian cruised by SMU 54-46, Baylor nudged Texas 48-46 on a field goal at the buzzer and Texas Tech's starters ended their Rice game on the bench, slapping each other on the back as reserves polished off a 60-46 win.

That puts TCU against Tech in the second of Thursday's quarterfinal games as the tournament moves to Reunion Arena in Dallas. In the opener, Texas A&M - recipient of a first-round bye after earning a third-place regular-season finish - goes against Baylor.

It seems ironic that Texas' downfall ended where it began this season - in Baylor's Heart O' Texas Coliseum. The Longhorns were ranked No. 5 nationally and cruising with a 14-0 record when they reported to Waco for a Jan. 26 match with the Bears.

During that game, Texas forward Mike Wacker went down with a knee injury that knocked him out for the season and, from that point, Texas won only two of its last 13 contests.

Monday's loss to Baylor was courtesy of Bear forward Jay Shakir, who made a steal and a layup to tie the score at 46, then canned a 25-foot jump shot at the buzzer for the winning points.

Baylor overcame a nine-point Texas lead and an off-night by SWC career scoring champion Terry Teagle to post the win.

Tech had a somewhat easier time against Rice, even though the Owls had beaten the Raiders twice during the regular season.

Tech forward Joe Washington was given the job of guarding Rice's Ricky Pierce, the nation's No. 2 scorer, and he held Pierce to 14 points, less than half his season average.

TCU coach Jim Killingsworth did not have much praise for his Killer Frogs, even though they won.

"We couldn't seem to get anything going," he said. "We didn't have any rhythm at all."

Appleton Setting Pace As All-Around Cowboy

Good news and bad news for Western Texas College came out of the Sul Ross State University Rodeo.

The good news was that Dave Appleton moved into the lead in the all-around cowboy standings. He placed in both bareback and saddlebronc riding and now has 280 points for the year. Wesley Williams of Tarleton State is second with 265 points.

Larry Williams of WTC moved into second place in the regional bull riding event.

WTC is holding a strong second place in the regional standing. Sul Ross leads the region with 1,260 points, while WTC has a total of 1,030 points. Eastern New Mexico is third with 737 and Tarleton fourth with 635. WTC will compete at Frank Phillips this weekend, hoping to move up on first place.

The bad news at the Sul Ross Rodeo was that WTC finished third overall, the worst showing of the year. WTC had finished second at the Sul Ross Rodeo held last fall, took first place in the Texas Tech Rodeo and tied for first at Eastern New Mexico.

"We just had a few bad breaks in the short go-round at Sul Ross," Bob Doty, WTC rodeo coach, said. "For example, James Garlick had to get on three re-ride bareback horses and James Zant broke the barrier in calf roping."

WTC will host an NIRA rodeo in the Scurry County Coliseum on April 15-18.

Former Snyderite Coaches Eastland Here Tonight

Hometown boy Richard Gorman will try to put his Eastland Mavericks past Reagan County here tonight in opening action of a double-header at Scurry County Coliseum.

Gorman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gorman of Snyder. His father is the assistant school superintendant. The 26-year old coach graduated from Snyder High School in 1974 and participated in football and basketball until suffering an injury in his senior year.

Eastland and Reagan County (Big Lake) are slated to meet at 6 here, followed by a Class A boy's playoff between Roscoe and Jayton. Both are bi-district games.

The Mavericks are 21-6 for the season while Reagan County comes in at 18-11. Eastland represents District 10-AA; Reagan County, 9-AA.

Roscoe's Plowboys are 21-6 for the season, under the direction of Coach Johnny Martin.

In Class A boy's regional playoff action here last night, Midland Greenwood raced away with the middle quarters to dump Robert Lee, 56-32.

Greenwood broke a 9-9 tie by outscoring the Steers 18-8 until intermission for a 27-17 lead. The Rangers then zapped their opponent 12-2 over the third period to take complete control of the game.

A 6-1 junior, Stuart Burleson, led the Rangers in scoring with 19 points, including nine from the charity stripe. Larry Dickerson, a 6-1 senior, added a dozen points and Homer Lopez scored 9.

For the Steers, only 6-0 senior Scot Long got into double figures. He scored 13 points.

Judge Accuses William Baxter

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge today accused William F. Baxter, head of the Justice Department's antitrust division, of failing to disclose that he did legal work for International Business Machines Corp. before the government dropped its antitrust suit against IBM.

The accusation was made by U.S. District Judge David N. Edelstein, who presided in the government's antitrust suit from the time it was filed in 1969 to the time the government dropped the action Jan. 8, saying the suit was without merit.

WTC Play To Be Staged

Western Texas College students will present "The Real Inspector Hound" at the Texas Junior College Theatre and Speech Association Play Festival in Houston on Friday, Jim Rambo, assistant professor of speech and drama and director of the play, said.

The play had a successful three-night run as WTC's annual dinner theatre attraction, and will be re-staged on March 19 for a state meeting of the Texas State Women of the Church of God.

Students making the trip to the play festival are Rebecca Pierce, Pam Trice, Robin Banks, Mickey Smith, Tod Fritz, Kelly Deavers, Jay Blakemore, Rob Clark, Tim Tatum, Victor Sawyer, James Meadows and David Coats.

Burglary Under Investigation

Snyder police officers are investigating a burglary reported early Monday morning.

Around 6:45 a.m. Monday a custodian at Northeast Elementary called police to report a burglary of the school. Someone apparently entered the school sometime over the weekend and took an undetermined amount of cash and a set of keys from one room.

The school office and several other rooms were also ransacked by the burglar.

Local officers also arrested one juvenile suspect Monday in connection with the vandalism of a car owned by George Byerly reported last Friday.

The first of March was also a good day for the recovery of stolen property in Snyder. Local police reported finding a bicycle reported stolen from Richard Burns several weeks ago.

The .22 caliber rifle reported stolen from a fruck owned by Bobby Seaton was also recovered Monday afternoon. This theft was reported Sunday morning. No suspects have been arrested in the case.

In more routine action, city police investigated one minor traffic mishap around 2:58 p.m. Monday. involved in the accident in the 2200 block of Avenue R were a 1978 Oldsmobile driven by Maurine Martin King of 3507 Houston and a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Susie Pena of 3008 Avenue E. only minor damages were reported to both vehicles.

Plush Hotel Is Canine Heaven

PAOLI, Pa. (AP) — The brochure for the luxurious inn is inviting.

"Relax and enjoy the pleasures of a carefree vacation at our year-round resort. You will find all of our rooms are spacious, heated and air-conditioned," the pamphlet reads. "Patios and family suites are available."

Yes, and all dogs are welcome.

The Main Line Animal Inn, run by a husband-and-wife team of avowed dog lovers, caters only to canines.

"People who bring their dogs here don't feel guilty," said owner Marcia Wolpert, "because they don't have to."

"When you think of kennels, you think of slop houses," she added.

Dog lovers who pay up to $9 a day to keep their pets here don't have to worry about slop. The pets, known as "clients," can have mood music, tapes of stories, and individual television.

This summer, the Wolperts plan to build a 3-foot-deep swimming pool, shaped like a dog biscuit.

Mrs. Wolpert, 38, said she had been involved with dogs for about 17 years. She and her husband, Fred, raise, train and show Yorkshire Terriers. They own 65 of them.

The inn is about a year old, and Mrs. Wolpert said she wanted it to be different from the average kennel.

At Christmas, a special holiday menu included a cheese appetizer, people crackers for dessert and rawhide treats. Each boarding dog received its own stocking hung on the door to its cage, officially known as a "suite."

Then there's the food. The brochure assures: "All our guests enjoy home-cooked meals. Finicky eaters are welcome ... You will find our fabulous doggie-deli of gourmet meals irresistible."

"They've got to have a homey feeling or they pine," said Mrs. Wolpert, who cooks seven days a week for her clients. Gourmet meals for dogs generally mean cooking up about 15 pounds of beef or chicken a day, mixed with rice, kibble and vitamins.

"I'll boil chickens. I'll do anything to get a dog to eat," said Mrs. Wolpert, who adds special treats like applesauce or cranberry sauce to meals on holidays.

The inn boards an average of 30 dogs a day, for owners who come from all over, Mrs. Wolpert said.

Confer With Representatives

Directors of the Scurry County Industrial Foundation conferred Monday with representatives of three firms that have expressed interest in the building occupied by Northern Electric Co.

One of the firms is interested in the entire facilitiy, while two others are interested in sharing space with others.

However, the building still is under lease to Northern, and the group was advised that local interest will not be in a position to negotiate until Northern Electric makes a decision on its future plans.

Don Wolfe, chairman of the foundation board presided over the session. Other board members attending were Don West, Mike Line, Ray Max Grimmett, Ernest Sears, Mike Reed, Joe Fowler and John Greene.

Lindy Clark Farm Services Say Now Is Time To Check Supplies

Propane prices are down and the folks at Lindy Clark Farm Service Center say that now is the time to check your supplies. Of course, wintertime places added demands on your gas supplier, but Lindy Clark is prepared to serve you with all your propane needs.

Lindy Clark, located at 1609 25th St., is a specialist when it comes to the metered delivery of propane. And, with their Mid:Com computer system on their truck, they have not only computerized metering, but also provide a detailed printout on your delivery ticket.

Do you worry about running out of gas or forgetting to call your supplier? Well, with Lindy Clark your worries are over. Once you are on their route list, you never have to worry about how low you're running. They will be responsible for keeping gas in your tank. And, as a premium service, they offer same day and after hour delivery in emergency situations.

The Center also sells tanks for your convenience. Hook-up is offered on tanks purchased from Lindy Clark.

Secretary Joy Keller will take your phone orders and stays in radio contact with the truck. Delivery is handled by Marvin Collier.

Lindy Clark Farm Service Center is located at 1609 25th St. and is open Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to noon, and 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Call them at 573-3516.

Don Adams Laundry Meets All Clothes Needs 24 Hours Daily

The folks at Don Adams Laundry are continually striving to make your laundry chores more pleasant. The laundry has a friendly atmosphere and several conveniences to serve you better.

Don is in the process of doing his spring cleaning. He started by having the laundry repainted. The painting is still in process.

Don Adams Laundry is open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. This enables you to do your laundry at your convenience, not at someone else's. An attendant is on duty from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and an attendant checks in at the laundry several times during the day on Sunday.

Also for your convenience, the laundry has other extras. A dollar bill changer, a soap dispenser with choice of detergent, soil remover, bleach or fabric softener, and a pay telephone are all provided.

After the wash is done, an adjoining room is provided for folding and hanging clothes. This room is complete with tables and rolling clothes hampers.

The laundry is now equipped with 72 washers; 60 commercial-duty, Maytag top-load washers and for larger loads, 12 front-load washers are available.

The firm also has 35 dryers (including 6 special dryers for delicate and permanent press fabric) for more efficient washdays.

Don also sells and services Electrolux Vacuum Cleaners. He keeps several models and parts on hand to cut down your waiting time.

Whether your needs are for clean clothes or clean rugs, Don Adams would be glad to help you. Go by 2400 26th Street (corner of 26th and Ave. X) and see for yourself.

Coppola Drops Few Employees

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Francis Ford Coppola, who has a reputation of risking everything to come up with a box office smash, is laying off employees because "One from the Heart" is not bringing in enough revenue, a newspaper says.

The Los Angeles Herald-Examiner said Monday the studio met its payroll Thursday, but laid off 20 employees.

Robert Spiotta, president of Coppola's Zoetrope studios, said the layoffs occurred because work was done on "Heart" and production has not started on "The Outsiders."

Mineral springs are generated deep underground, where, under intense heat and pressure, calcium, iron, potassium, sodium and other minerals are naturally drawn from the surrounding rock.
