FLAKE GEORGE
...Veteran Polio Worker

Oldest Shamrock Worker For Polio

By JOEL COMBS
Pampa News Staff Writer

SHAMROCK — The only man in Wheeler County eligible when they starting giving 15-year service pins for work in the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis last year was Shamrock's postmaster, Flake George.

George has been treasurer of the Wheeler County chapter of the foundation since its inception 16 years ago.

George has put a lot of time and energy into the March of Dimes, as well as dimes and dollars, these past years, but as treasurer he is pretty worried right now.

The Wheeler County chapter is about out of money and polio is not yet licked. George anticipates an intensive campaign this year to restock the chapter with funds to carry it through the year. At the present time, he is seeking an energetic citizen of Shamrock to head that community's drive.

Flake was born in Clay County in 1893 near a community called Vashti. He went to schools in Henrietta, but, before graduation, came to the Panhandle.

In October of 1911, his family moved to Miami, where he graduated from high school with the class of '13 and then went on to Kemper Military School in Booneville, Mo. After a semester or two at Kemper, he returned to work on the family ranch east of Miami.

On Jan. 5, 1918, after World War I had broken out, he entered the Army and went to Officer's Candidate School at Camp Funston, Kans., where he was commissioned second lieutenant. He served in the infantry in France and on July 4, 1919, after serving time with the occupation forces and being promoted to first lieutenant, he returned to the U. S.

He rturned to the ranch to work and in September of 1920, George, of Miami, Tex., married Rhoda Jane Rees, of Miami, Okla. The newly married pair went to Los Angeles, Calif., to make their home. While there, he worked in the Los Angeles Fire Department.

In December of 1926, however,

Nixon Calls Truman Farm Talk 'Politics'

WASHINGTON — UP — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Sunday "farmers are not going to be fooled" by former President Truman's call for a return to rigid 90 per cent of parity farm price supports.

In an unusual Sunday statement, Nixon said Mr. Truman and others "following his line" on farm policies "should start thinking about the farmer first and politics second."

Nixon blamed the farmer's economic plight largely on Truman administration policies.

Mr. Truman said in St. Paul, Minn., that "the mess in agriculture is clearly attributable to the Eisenhower administration." He added that the administration "is out of sympathy with the needs of agriculture" and should return to a 90 per cent parity program.

Nixon said "Mr. Truman's memory seems to be playing tricks with him. What he apparently fails to realize is that he in fact is criticizing his own program which was in effect during virtually the entire period when farm prices were going down."

He said "the farmers are not going to be fooled by his demand that the Eisenhower administration adopt the very program which was one of the major factors in causing the huge surpluses which have depressed farm prices."

Sen Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), a candidate for this year's Democratic presidential nomination, said in a television nterview Sunday that the admnistration farm program is "one of defeatism" and "scarcity." He said it does not give the farmer "any immediate relief."

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) replied on the same program that "most of the decline in the farmers' income occurred in the last year or so of the Truman administration." He said Mr. Eisenhower submitted "a very definite, particular, specific farm program."

Natural Gas Bill Debate Called For

The bill is the first big issue of the election - year Congress.

The main point of controversy over the bill is: "Will it cost the nation's 30 million gas consumers more money? Opponents contended it would lead to gas price increases. Suporters denied this.

A similar bill cleared the House last year by a close 209-203 vote.

Debate found Democrats particularly divided, with those from southern, gas-producing states for the bill, and those from gas-consuming areas — especially in the Midwest and Northeast — Generally opposed.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), floor leader for Senate supporters of the measure, said in advance of Monday's debate that members were leaning "slightly our way" although he admitted the Senate division was "razor edge." But Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) thought opponents had "a very good chance" to defeat the bill.

The measure would, in effect, nullify a 1954 decision of the Supreme Court in the Phillips Petroleum Co. case. The court held then that independent gas producers were subject to price regulation by the federal power commission if their gas was sold in interstate commerce.

Other action in Congress:

PRESIDENCY

Former President Herbert Hoover, in proposals to a Senate Government Operations subcommittee seeking ways to ease the President's work load, said an "administrative Vice President" could relieve the President of 25 specific duties. He said the officer also could settle conflicts between the 1,900 government agencies.

NICKEL

Rep. Jack B. Brooks who asked for and apparently expected to receive only an armful of papers about a government nickel plant, is in for a surprise when the General Services Administration plunks down 37 filing cabinets on the operation of a government - owned nickel plant at Nicaro, Cuba.

PAGES

Floods Strike Again

Thousands Homeless In California Area

SAN FRANCISCO —UP— Rampaging rivers, swollen by a weekend of steady tropical rains, forced thousands of persons to flee their homes throughout northern California and posed a serious new flood threat to beleaguered Yuba City.

Mercifully, the rains stopped just before sundown Sunday night and the weatherman forecast mostly clear skies Monday.

But they had done their damage. For more than 36 hours, water literally poured from the heavens without letup. The ground was already too wet to absorb any more moisture.

As a result, northern California suffered a repetition of the Christmas week floods, but to a much smaller degree. Those floods took a toll of 75 lives and caused at least $175 million damage.

Watch Weak Levee

So far, two deaths were reported from the current floods. Ray Stepp, 50, drowned in an irrigation ditch 25 miles south of Alturas. John Maurer, 32, Eureka contractor, was killed Saturday by a falling tree as he worked to break a log jam in a creek.

Two San Francisco duck hunters identified as Walter H. Riske, 58, and M. J. Miles, were missing and feared dead on Butte Slough, 15 miles northwest of Yuba City. Searchers found their overturned boat.

Early Monday, Army Engineers watched the swollen Feather River inch up along the weak Shanghai Bend levee just south of Yuba City. It was this levee that gave way on Dec. 24, forcing 10,000 persons

Court May Rule On Racial Bans

WASHINGTON —UP— The Supreme Court may rule Monday on the constitutionality of state laws requiring segregation of whites and Negroes traveling on public conveyances within a state.

Thirteen states now have laws compelling segregation in intrastate commerce. The validity of such laws is one of the last segregation issues still undecided.

The court also has on its docket four important national security cases.

Used Car Lot Vehicles Hit; Charges Filed

Two automobile accidents occurred within the city limits Saturday and another collision took place Sunday morning with one person receiving damages. One car caused damages to three parked cars in a used car lot.

Billy Franklin Beck, 25, of 608 E. Graven pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated this morning in County Court and was sentenced to five days in jail, fined $100, and ordered by the court to pay for the damages. He was arrested by city police at 2:30 a.m. Saturday after colliding with a parked '53 Mercury at Meads used car lot and causing damage to two other parked cars. While attempting a curve, coming off of Frederic into Brown, he ran down the side walk for 22 yards, hit the tarpaulin sign in front of Pampa Tent and Awning Store, and collided with the Mercury. The '53 Mercury rammed against a '52 Plymouth and a '50 Plymouth also encountered damages. Damages were estimated at $500 for the '54 Ford, while the '53 Mercury received damages estimated at $1,200, the '52 Plymouth encountered damages of about $300, and the '50 Plymouth was damaged approximately $35.

SIXTEEN TONS NUMBER ONE SNOW SWEEPS OVER IOWA

DES MOINES, Iowa —(UP)— The U. S. Weather Bureau in Des Moines borrowed from the song "Sixteen Tons" to describe a snow storm sweeping Iowa. The analysis went:

"It was born one morning when the sun didn't shine,
"It picked up snow and it moved just fine,
"Loaded two inches of number one snow,
"The snow plows said: 'Well, bless my soul.'
"You load more snow and what do you get,
"Another day colder and deeper in wet,
"We owe our snow to the tricky low."

From Insurance Mess

Strong Lobbyist Controls Seen

By LLOYD LARRABEE

AUSTIN —UP— Rep. Tom Joseph of Waco predicted Monday the next legislature, in the wake of the insurance scandals, will pass "strong" lobbyist control measures.

Meantime, members of the Senate General Investigating committee get together informally Monday night to lay plans for a hearing Tuesday into Texas' insurance scandals. Sen. William S. Fly of Victoria, the committee's new chairman, said the group had "an awful lot of things to talk about in order to get this thing rolling."

Other developments on the insurance front included:

Austin attorney Ralph Yarborough, twice unsuccessful candidate for governor, reiterated a demand for resignation of the three and said the commissioners "should quit before the sun goes down again on the mess in Austin."

Praises Assurance Offer

Gov. Allan Shivers praised the action of the Texas life convention, a group comprising 28 legal reserve stock insurance life companies, for their offer last week to assure that no policyholder will lose money on policies on any Texas life insurance Company.

Joseph, who unsuccessfully sponsored a bill last year which would have brought the since-collapsed U.S. Trust & Guaranty Co. under control of the State Banking Department, said "the people of Texas are demanding tighter lobbying laws."

The Waco legislator also said he planned to sponsor in the legislature next year a bill to bring under the State Banking Department "any private company that does banking business."

'That's A Bribe'

"The scandal has hurt the legislature — the people think they're a bunch of crooks," Joseph said.

Joseph said legislation should be enacted to require members of the

Ousted Pastor Holds Service Despite Rule

NEW YORK —UP— An Episcopal minister, ousted from his Brooklyn church for his left-wing activities, conducted competitive services with his successor Sunday in defiance of his bishop and said he would do the same thing next Sunday "unless restrained."

Supports of the Rev. William Howard Melish forced the locks on the Holy Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church before the 8:30 a.m. communion service and the temporary pastor, the Rev. Robert Thomas, arrived to find Melish and his followers in charge.

The two conducted separate but simultaneous communion services but the outnumbered followers of the Rev. Thomas gave up during the 11 a.m. main service and stalked angrily out of the church.

Was Some Scuffling

The main service began with Thomas in the pulpit leading one psalm and Melish kneeling at the altar, leading another.

There was some subdued scuffling on the part of the two divergent groups but 18 plainclothesmen helped keep order.

A spokesman for the bishop said the matter would be turned over to "the attorneys," but Melish said he

Administration Holds Fast Against Any Tax Reduction

By DAYTON MOORE

WASHINGTON —(UP)— President Eisenhower proudly presented to Congress Monday a balanced black-ink budget calling for $65.9 billion of federal spending.

For the first time since 1951, treasury deficits were turned into small projected surpluses. Despite this, the administration held out more firmly than ever against tax cuts in the foreseeable future.

The President said bigger spending in fiscal 1957—up $1.6 billion—is necessary to protect uncertain world peace with "the greatest military power in our peacetime history" and to promote wider sharing of "our unprecedented prosperity" at home.

Military Gets $35.5 Billion

Items of major interest: $35.5 billion for the military; $3.6 billion for farm relief; $4.3 billion for foreign aid; $4.9 billion for veterans; and lesser amounts to start new programs of federal aid for school construction and to help depressed areas of the country.

Fiscal 1957 is the government's bookkeeping year which begins this July. The proposed spending of $65.9 billion compares with $64.3 billion this year.

Most of the increase was earmarked for the titanic weapons of tomorrow — supersonic aircraft, new atomic weapons, guided missiles.

Taxes on boom-time profits and wages were estimated to rise even more than spending — from $64.5 billion this year to $66.3 billion in fiscal 1957.

That meant an indicated budget surplus — excess of receipts over spending — of $400 million for 1957. And Mr. Eisenhower said revised figures show there will be a surplus of $200 million when fiscal 1956 ends this June 30.

The President in a 40,000-word budget message to Congress said these indicated surpluses were too "slim" to permit tax relief. He said they should be used to reduce the debt.

Ike Requests More Flood Control Funds

WASHINGTON —UP— President Eisenhower asked Congress Monday for increased funds to build more flood control projects, provide better storm warnings and give more help to victims of floods and hurricanes.

The President, in his budget message, specifically asked for money to:

1. Start construction on 18 new local flood protection projects, 16 new flood control reservoirs and two new beach erosion projects.

2. Provide the weather bureau with more of the latest storm detection radar and equipment for hurricane and tornado studies.

3. Start a new $3 billion federal-state flood indemnity program.

For fiscal year 1957, which starts July 1, the President asked for $194.2 million for the Army Engineers for flood control, an increase of $42.6 million. That includes $56 million for the lower Mississippi river, an increase of $4 million.

The flood control projects for fiscal 1957 included:

Kansas — Tuttle Creek reservoir, $9,000,000; Wichita & Valley Center, $1,700,000.

Missouri —Canton (new) $275,000; Cape Girardeau (reach No. 2), $1,500,000; Kansas cities, Mo. & Kans. (see Kans.), Perry county D. & L. dist, Nos. 1, 2 & 3 $1,000,000.

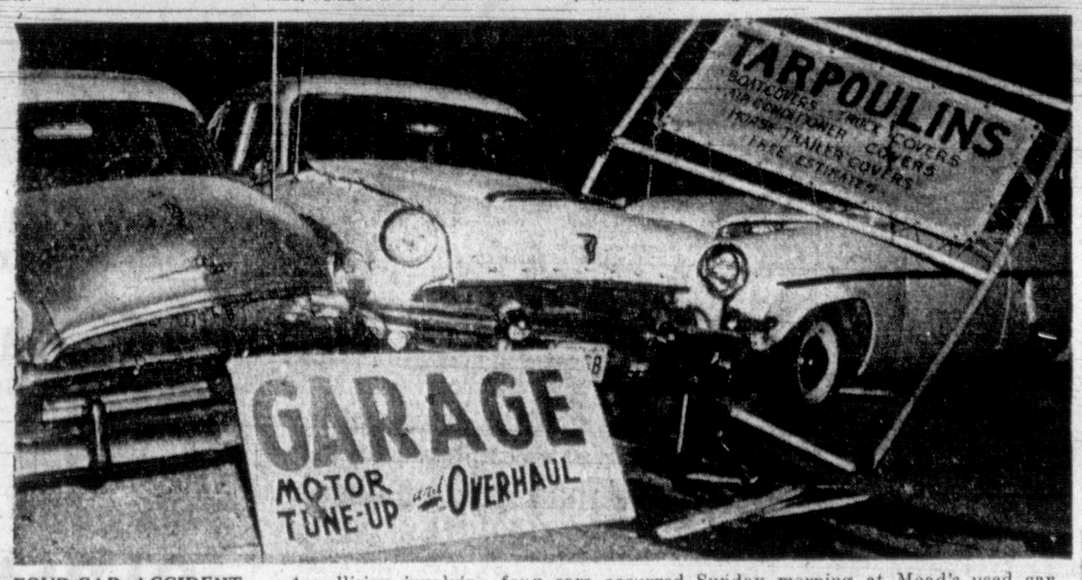
The President requested the following navigation projects:

Arkansas — Arkansas River & tribs., emergency bank stabilization, $3,000,000.

Texas — Brazos Island harbor (n32), $400,000; Houston ship channel, $730,000; Port Aransas - Corpus Christi waterway: 34-ft. Tule Lake channel extension, $810,000; 36-ft channel (new), $330,000.



FOUR-CAR ACCIDENT — A collision involving four cars occurred Sunday morning at Mead's used car lot at 313 E. Brown resulting in heavy automobile damages. The '53 Mercury, being driven by Billy Franklin Beck, 25, failed to complete the curve on E. Brown, skidded into the tarpaulin sign as pictured above, and rammed a '53 Mercury sitting on the car lot. The Mercury, in turn, rammed against the '53 Plymouth and a '50 Plymouth (not pictured) also encountering minor damages. Total damage was estimated at $1,560. (News photo)

THE ARTISTRY OF THE WHOLE WORLD contributes to drapery fabric design this season, say the fashion editors of Retailing Daily. And some of the most important design directions in newest print collections owe their inspiration to lands and cultures, past and present, in every corner of the globe.

The vigorous new color palette is a direct result of influences from lands such as India, Turkey, Persia, Spain and Egypt, lands famous for their rich and exotic colors. Subject matter for prints also derives from all over the world. There are themes from antiquity, such as classical columns, urns and bulidings; themes from primitive culture of South America, Asia and Africa; motifs, medallions and crests of every land, and florals from England, Scandinavia and France. This season's fresh and imaginative assortment of travel and gourmet novelties is also in step with the international outlook.

Design trends in all print categories point to contemporary elegance. Roller prints adopt handprint characteristics through the use of sweeping across-the-width placements, more abundant and richer colors, and subtle gold fitting. Hand prints are executed in bold stokes of pigment paint. Printed sheers are more elaborate in pjattern and bolder in color. Smooth sailcloth, chintz and polished cottons are treated with greater elegance, and textured cloths are subtle and subdued.

IT'S NO SURPRISE that upholstery fabrics are becoming much more ornamental this year, for in almost every branch of home furnishings the severity of architectural modern is giving way to a warm and highly decorative elegance.

Fabric designers have drawn upon rich cultures of the past, such as Oriental, Arabic, Persian and Turkish, for ornamental motifs, colors and weaves that are synonymous with elegance, yet can be applied to both contemporary and traditional furniture.

In many of the new designs, although the pattern itself may be quite simple, such as an over-all checkerboard or stripe, the decorative detailing — multicolored metallic threads, secondary motifs, multi-weave and color combinations — makes the difference.

POWER LOOMS produce handwoven effects today that are barely discernible from the originals they emulate. Reason is that the majority of these designs are first created on hand looms specifically for machine production.

Hand-woven effects have wide appeal today for many reasons. Not the least of these is the hit and miss irregularity of weaves and design that stamps those fabrics with a distinct flavor of individualityy and thus creates a fresh custom look.

The luxurious informality of the hand-woven look appears in an abundant selection of kinds and qualities from the simplest basket weave to the most intricate and ornate multi-texture.

COOK'S NOOK

Low-Cost Meals Offered By Pork Shoulder Chops

By GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Food and Markets Editor

Meaty pork shoulder chops provide hearty servings at low cost. Three-quarter-inch is a good thickness for the round bone shoulder chop. The blade bone chop should be about ½-inch thick. Braising and long, slow cooking is required to bring them to their most delectable state. They are ideal, also, for cooking covered in casserole and other combination dish favorites.

In cooking these economical shoulder chops, treat carefully. Brown well and then add a spoonful or so of water. Cover and cook slowly until tender. For 1-inch chops allow 45 minutes of unhurried cooking.

A tomato - and - onion Creole sauce is a favorite for the long, slow cooking of these chops, or slow-poaching in canned condensed cream soups.

For a hearty meal-in-one dish combine shoulder pork chops with cheese, mushrooms and rice. The chops bake on top of the rice mixture.

Pork Chops with Cheese, Mushrooms and Rice

(Yield: 4 servings)

Four shoulder pork chops, ¾-inch thick 1 tablespoon drippings or salad oil, 1-4 cups finely cut onion, ¼ cup finely cut celery, 1 10-ounce can consomme, ¾ cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup multipurpose cheese spread, 1 3-ounce can mushroom pieces and liquid, ¾ cup uncooked rice.

Brown chops well on both sides in skillet. Remove chops. Add drippings or oil. Brown onion and celery. Add consomme and water. Return chops to skillet. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Remove chops to one side. Add salt, cheese spread, mushrooms and rice. Lay chops on top. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes or until chops are fork tender.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

He was a nicely dressed child about five.

As I approached the market's fruit stand, he was standing with his back to me. So I noted him only vaguely. Then as I reached for a grapefruit, he made a sudden flicker of movement. After a moment, I realized that I'd seen the swift, expert transfer of a banana to his pocket.

What followed had a nightmare quality. For the store manager had seen the theft, too. But the little boy's mother wouldn't let him tell her about it. She was too intent on fighting his disapproval of the child's behavior to have any interest in the behavior.

Gradually, the manager lost his interest in it. She paid for the banana. He apologized. The fruit of the child's theft was re turnedto him — and he left the store, eating it, the fact of his dishonesty as obliterated as though it had never existed.

It was excellent training for crime.

A criminal expects profitable consequences from stealing. So did the little boy in my market. His experience had taught him it was profitable to gamble on the chance his mother would detour stealing's unpleasant consequences from him.

An adult criminal breaks the law out of the same fatuous expectancy. The only difference between him and the little boy is that he has outgrown his infantile hope in Mother — and transferred it to Luck, that indulgent lady of unpredictable whims who, like Mother, may suddenly decide to be nice to him and suspend the nasty old law of cause and effect in his behalf.

The cruelty of removing all natural roughage from a child's experience was once unforgettably illuminated for me by psychoanalyst Erich Fromm. He said, "Moral digestion is as vital to health as the kind the stomach performs."

The child in my market was a badly nourished one. He bit off a mouthful of experience that could have fed him, containing as it did his aggressive action and other people's resentment of it. But his most mistaken parent strained it of its harsher nutrients.

She refined his mouthful of experience for him as food is predigested for infants. So his moral digestion could not break it down into the elements he must have to grow strong in self - protection, awarness of others, responsibility.

His tragedy is that he imagines himself to be loved and well-fed.

Got a three-minute egg timer around the house? It just might come in handy for something besides cooking soft-boiled eggs. In Chicago at a recent breakfast meeting for women Democrats the lady speakers were told they had to limit their talks to three minutes and were warned that they were to be timed by an egg timer.

Why wouldn't it be a good idea for women to limit the "speeches" they make at home to three minutes?

Often husbands and children turn ears to the woman of the house when she is trying to put across an idea. The reason is that once she's started on a topic it's hard for a woman to know when to stop.

She starts to remind Junior to go hang up his clothes and before she is through she has make a long speech, calling up everything he has done wrong or neglected to do for the past month. Long before she is through, Junior has quit listening.

Or a woman gets upset because her husband is late to dinner. Before she gets through telling him off, she has brought up how he behaved at last Saturday night's party and what she thinks of her mother-in-law.

Setting out an egg timer and saying "I have something important to say and it will only take three minutes" ought to make the family perk up and listen.

And it ought to keep the lady "speechmaker" from going too far and saying things she never had any intention of saying when she started.

SAD COMPARISON—Dejected National Safety Council officials pose beside a poster comparing estimated 1955 traffic deaths and the number of Americans killed in the Korean War. The 1955 toll of 38,500 is 7 per cent and 2500 lives greater than 1954's total of 36,000. The 1955 record is the highest since 1941. Added to this are the 336 traffic deaths over the recent New Year's week-end. Shown above in Chicago, Ill., are David Baldwin, left, director of traffic for the council, and George Stewart, executive vice president.

legislature to make a declaration of any retainers they receive.

"If a man takes $10,000 a year that's a bribe as far as I'm concerned," Joseph said.

Joseph also said he felt legislators should have some kind of "outside income" and "shouldn't have to come down here dependent of this $25 a day every two years."

'Running Scared'

Rep. J. O. Gilham of Brownfield, a co-sponsor with Joseph of the bill seeking to bring U.S. Trust & Guaranty under state banking department controls, joined Joseph in urging lobbyist control laws.

"If we don't do something to restore confidence of the people in their government . . . there will be a house-cleaning from top to bottom," Gilham said.

"There'll be a lot of good men defeated this time . . . there'll be a lot running scared," Gilham predicted.

The bill aimed at U.S. Trust & Guaranty, and similar operations, passed the House last session but died in Senate committee.

Joseph expressed belief that if his bill had been passed, it would have saved $1.5 million in U.S. Trust & Guaranty's operations. The company folded in mid-December some $7 million in the red, with losses to some 5,600 depositors and 140,000 policyholders.

Allred to Testify

Renne Allred, former attorney for the s tateliquidato rwh ow for the state liquidator who was fired in September, 1954 in a dispute with the Insurance Commission, said he did not plan "voluntarily" to ask to appear before any grand juries, but would do so if called.

Allred last week said he was ready to present evidence of "fraud, graft, bribery and negligence" in connection with at least 10 insurance companies now in receivership. Insurance Commission Chairman J. Byron Saunders said Allred should present whatever evidence he has to a grand jury.

Allred told newsmen that in connection with two insurance companies now in receivership — Texas Mutual Insurance Co. and General American Casualty Co. — Saunders "would prefer that I go before a grand jury," because the statute of limitations has already expired on any cases of bribers Allred alleges occurred. Allred said that grand juries thus could take no action "and would make it appear I gave them no information."

Attendance Picked Up

When Thomas arrived to conduct the 8:30 a.m. service he found that the new lock on the vestry door had been broken and found Melish ministering to a small group of persons from a side altar. Thomas attempted to ignore and began leading a communion service from the main altar.

At times the two were leading different prayers in loud voices but neither minister addressed the other.

Thomas left after the communion service but Melish remained. When Thomas returned for the 11 a.m. service he found the church filled with about 400 persons, most of them Melish supporters. The number of worshippers appeared considerably greater than the usual Sunday turnout.

Optimist Governor To Visit Pampa

Doc Shaw, governor of District Seven of Optimist International, and Leo Miller, Lt. governor, Amarillo, and five representatives of the Amarillo Optifist Club will arrive in Pampa today about 5 p.m.

The purpose of the visit is a routine inspection of the clubs in the district.

Governor Shaw was in Borger during a planning session of the Optimist Clubs of the Panhandle and South Plains area some time ago and addressed the representatives of the area. He gave the men attending more zeal to carry on their work with boys.

He will address the local Optimists following dinner but he has not specified what his subject will be.

All members of the local club are asked at attend and hear what plans are in the making for the district the remainder of the year. He will probably give the local club a run-down on what's going on in some of the neighboring clubs.

Hoover Favors Administrative Vice President

WASHINGTON — UP — Former President Herbert Hoover said Monday an "Administrative Vice President" could relieve the President of 25 specific duties, plus settling conflicts between 1,900 government agencies.

The duties mentioned by Mr. Hoover ranged from approving the Navy band's concert tours to determining the quality of Army rations.

He made his proposals in testimony prepared for a Senate Government operations subcommittee, headed by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.). The subcommittee is seeking ways to ease the President's work load.

Hoover renewed his proposal that Congress create a new office of "Administrative Vice President" although the administration was not backing the idea.

Presidential assistan Sherman Adams wrote the subcommittee Sunday that the administration sees no need for the proposed office. But he did say the administration would have "no objection" if Congress decided to create the post.

Former President Truman voiced outright opposition to the proposal Sunday.

'Situation Critical'

The Feather River stood at 67.3 feet opposite Yuba City proper and 66.3 at the Shanghai Bend levee. Since Christmas, the levee had been built up to 70 or 71 feet but 67 feet is considered "dangerous."

"The situation is critical," said a spokesman for the engineers. "The top of the levee is so soaked up by rain that we moved out all our heavy equipment. We've spread tarpaulins over the top to keep it from soaking further and to keep the waves from eroding the bank.

"If the river goes to 69 feet, I'd flip a coin on whether she'd hold," he said.

BUDGET

M. Humphrey, the administration's top man on tax matters, made this more emphatic. He told newsmen there should be a surplus of $2.5 billion before tax relief will be in order. He tried hard to deflate a belief cherished by many that the surplus will grow mightily by late spring and permit a tax cut after all in this election year.

"The projected surpluses, small as they are, would be the first since fiscal 1951, President Truman then budgeted for a $3 billion deficit and wound up with a $5 billion surplus. New taxes were imposed because of the Korean war and they brought in more than had been expected. Not since 1948 has a President actually submitted a balanced budget to Congress.

Mr. Eisenhower and Humphrey said the achievement of a balanced budget is very important for everyone. They said it cements the foundations for continued prosperity, discourages inflation, protects the stability of wages and living costs.

Inflation is encouraged when the government consistently spends more than it takes in.

Sets Postal Rate Boost

The budget represented the administration's desires. Congress still has a lot of say about it. However, there is general agreement in Congress on the need for continued heavy spending for defense, veterans, farm relief and other big items. So material change in the spending budget is not likely.

On the basis of Mr. Eisenhower's figures, however, relatively small changes could affect the surplus. The President counted on a $350 million postal rate increase. Congress is not likely tp pass it. Failure to do so would nearly wipe out the estimated surplus, unless some corresponding cut were made in proposed spending or revenues exceeded estimates.

Humphrey was firm in declaring "there is no room for a tax cut in these figures."

Mr. Eisenhower said the 1957 budget, the largest of the three he has proposed, was designed to achieve three major objectives:

1. Securing "a just and durable peace" by "steadily strengthening the defense of the United States and its allies, so that the free world will remain strong enough to deter possible aggressors."

2. Fostering conditions in which present prosperity "can be sustained and can be more fully shared" by some groups now left out of it, such as farmers and communities with chronic unemployment.

3. Maintaining "financial strength and stability" through sound fiscal policies. The best way to maintain "fiscal integrity" is to forego a tax cut until such time as the surplus is big enough to cover both the cost of the tax relief and a "modest" payment on the national debt.

He also pledged his administration to continue its campaign for government economy, even though it has reached its goal of a balanced budget.

"We will continue to give the taxpayer greater and greater value for each dollar spent," he said.

Of the defense funds, the Air Force was alloted $16.5 billion; the Navy $9.5 billion and the Army $8.5 billion. These expenditures would support an Air Force of 137 wings, 26,736 planes and 936,000 men; a Navy of 411 warships, 12,576 planes, three Marine divisions with air wings, and 868,958 men, including Marines; and an Army of 19 divisions, 10 regimental combat teams, 143 anti-aircraft battalions and 1,034,500 men.

About $6.8 billion would be for purchase of military planes, including the B-52 intercontinental bomber and new supersonic fighters. $1.3 billion will go for guided missiles.

Mr. Eisenhower again asked for an atomic peace ship to dramatize civilian uses of atomic energy.

Mr. Eisenhower forecast that his new farm program, featuring a $1 billion-a-year "soil bank" plan designed to induce farmers to take croplands out of cultivation, can be financed with no net increase in federal farm outlays. He estimated these outlays at $3.6 billion, about the same as this year.

He expected lower spending for direct farm price supports, resulting from the decreased production, to offset the $450 million in cash he asked for "soil bank" payments. In addition, farmers would be paid in commodities out of the government's own surplus hoard — a cost that doesn't show in the budget.

Farmers also will get an estimated $60 million in gasoline tax refunds if Congress approves the necessary legislation, as appears probable.

Mr. Eisenhower again called for federal expenditures of $25 billion in 10 years on superhighways. But he didn't include anything in the budget for them on the ground that they should be financed by new taxes or the sale of special bonds.

He budgeted $150 million to launch the program of federal aid to schools which he outlined in a special message last week.

the Top o' Texas bug hit them and they returned to the Panhandle, moved to White Deer where he went to work for the Panhandle Lumber Company.

Then, the big move came. In August of 1927 he was transferred to Shamrock where in 1929 he was made manager of the yard.

In 1932, he worked for the Kuhlman Motor Company in Shamrock and the next year was water superintendent for the city. He was appointed postmaster on Aug. 1, 1934 and has served in the position since that time.

He and Rhoda were the parents of a boy and girl. The boy, a bomber pilot, was lost in World War II. American Legion Post 69 is a memorial to his son, being named the DeShazo-George Post.

Their daughter went to high school in Shamrock, at Tarleton State College and served for a time in the Marines. She is presently married and the mother of a year-old girl. Her husband, George W. Jordan, is attending Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge, La., working toward a degree in engineering.

George is an ardent civic worker, past Boss of the Shamrock Booster's Club, member of a barbershop quartet, past commander of the American Legion Post, past member of the school board, and vice president of the National Association of Postmasters, Texas chapter number 18.

He is a member of the First Baptist Church.

George is proud of the Shamrock Post Office's record of efficiency. Postal receipts have increased from approximately $18,000 when he first came, to approximately $33,000 now. There were seven employees when he took the position and 10 are employed in the post office now. Five of the 10 have worked for the post office in Shamrock over 20 years.

Lions Minstrel Set March 1, 2

The annual Pampa Lions Club Minstrel Show will be staged in the Junior High School auditorium in Pampa on Thursday and Friday nights, March 1 and 2, according to Henry Gruben, business manager for this year's production.

Bunny Shultz will again serve as director - general in producing the old-time minstrel revue, which was so popular during the years around the turn of the century. All committees have been set up to handle the many details connected with the show, and the first rehearsal is scheduled for next Thursday night, Jan. 19.

Shultz has issued a call for everyone in Pampa that would like to participate in the minstrel to be at the Palm Room in City Hall at 7:30 p.m. on the 19th, at which time the chorus will start working in preparation for the show.

The conventional "Mistah Interlocutor", six jovial endmen, a "Dixie-Land" jazz band, and a chorus of 60 to 75 voices will combine talents in producing the song and dance extravaganza.

Liquor Board Seizes Beverages

The State of Texas Saturday filed a suit in 31st District against 2,681 containers of alcoholic beverages.

The unusual-sounding case was filed by County Attorney Don Cain after G. C. Steele, Liquor Control Board inspector from Borger, confiscated the alcoholic beverages which were in the possession of L. E. Long.

The case is a forfeiture suit. The liquor was purchased while Long was delinquent in payment of a liquor account. This is in violation of the Texas Liquor Control Act.

Liquor handlers can not buy alcoholic beverages from distributors while delinquent in payment of a liquor account.

School Business Office Moves

After 18 years on the first floor of the City Hall, the Pampa Independent School District business office is being moved to the ground floor tomorrow.

The school office was originally located in the Smith Building, now known as the VFW Hall at the corner of Russell and Foster, in1928. Prior to that time the position of business manager was held by the secretary of the school board. C. P. Buckler was the last secretary to hold this position.

Later the office moved to the first floor of the Court House and was situated where the County Tax Collector's office is now located. In 1938 the office was moved to its present location.

The electrical work was being completed today and the move is expected to be accomplished by tomorrow, according to Roy McMillen, business manager. The new office will be 30 by 36 feet, affording about 60 percent more floor space.

The present hours will continue to be observed, from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. The office closes at noon on Saturday.

Ex Con Held For Houston Jewel Thefts

HOUSTON — UP — Houston officers were en route to Knoxville, Tenn., Monday to question a burly ex-convict suspect in jewel burglaries at swank Houston homes.

The suspect, a 200-pound, baby-faced gunman arrested with an arsenal of guns and ammunition in a Tennessee backwoods cabin, is Lonas Ray Caughorn, 29.

FBI agents who arrested Caughorn last week said he was an ex-convict with a record of prison escapes in three states.

The jewel thefts in Houston were at the homes of wealthy R. H. Abercrombie, Raymond I. Arsht and Lamar Fleming.

Another mysterious jewel theft, totaling about $35,000, was from a Shamrock Hilton hotel guest, Mrs. Adelon du Calis Reid, Miam Beach, Fla., socialite, last Oct. 29.

Local officers said a light-colored Cadillac auto with Tennessee license plates was seen near the scene of two of the burglaries.

Caughorn has been charged with a Nashville, Tenn., holdup 10 days ago and has admitted, police said, an $11,000 jewel burglary at Maryville, Tenn., last November.

Robbery Trial Begins

CANTON, Tex. —UP— A Tyler husband and wife were to go to trial Monday for the $9,200 holdup of the First State Bank of Van.

The state has accused Jesse William Mullins and Edith Elizabeth Mullins, his wife, of robbery by firearms in the bank holdup last Nov. 16. Both trials were scheduled Monday but the state was expected to call the case against the woman first.

A special venire of 100 was drawn to report for jury selection.

The indictments accused Mullins of entering the bank unmasked and armed with a .38 caliber pistol and taking the $9,200 from a teller. The state alleges Mullins then drove outside town in a pickup truck and transferred the money to his wife who was in a sedan.

They drove off in opposite directions. Mullins was arrested an hour and a half after the robbery on a highway patrolmen. Mrs. Mullins was picked up at their Tyler home that night.

Most of the loot has been recovered, the state said.

One of Texas' Five Most Consistent Newspapers

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Should we, at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

Hallmark Of Savage

Were we to attempt to sum up our problems of this 20th century into a single phrase, we would be inclined to say that more than any other thing we are endangered because of our old world dependence on and worship of Authority. As far back as history goes, men and women have groveled at the feet of conquerors, believing that in some way these bloody tyrants held magic power to eliminate the risks and terrors and pains of life.

And the tyrants were not slow to exploit this feeling of awe on the part of the populace. Many of them wove superstition into the ignorance of their subjects by insisting that they were divinely born, or even that they achieved godhood by virtue of their military prowess.

And the people believed this hooey to such a degree that dependence upon Authority has become almost a part of the mores of the human race itself. To augment the problem, persons who rebel against Authority, frequently are misfits, criminally inclined, who have not learned to govern themselves and who merely flaunt their own petty and malicious desires in the face of truth and justice.

It is small wonder that true progress on the part of humanity is slow. Not that we have failed to progress totally. Our ability to pierce the mysterious veil of science and penetrate to the innermost secrets of the physical world in which we live is unsurpassed. And by means of this intellectual achievement, we are now able to survive better and more surely than ever before. We are also able to have more and more time for our own personal, emotional, and mental accomplishments.

Yet in this regard, since we have carried over the barbaric dependence upon pomp and circumstance, we lack self discipline. Our leisure time becomes the devil's workshop. We expect the government to solve our problems and we resist the inclination to stand erect upon our own dependable extremities.

It is plain that the human race stands at the crossroads between heaven and hell. We will throw off our dependence upon authority, assume our own individual responsibility and reject the superstitions of our barbaric forebears. Or, we will not. If we do not, then our dependency will continue. We will refuse to bestir ourselves as individuals. We will be content to move en masse. The government will be the be-all and the end-all of our existence. But since government is, by nature, a consuming, not a producing entity, we will eat up our substance and devour our future through a lethargic willingness to barter our freedom and self-reliance for the crust of bread that poses as security.

This does not mean the end of the human race. Far from it. It merely means the continuance of superstition, barbarism, violence, coercion, deceit, dependency and ignominy instead of the broader, brighter way that might be ours.

It is time we learned that authority can do nothing for us that we cannot do for ourselves. And the willingness of our governmental officials to "help" us, is the apple of discord which baits us to forego the victory that might be ours as individuals.

Man does not live well when he seeks to live alone. His chances of survival and comfort are reduced when he moves outside the realm of the free market. But there is a world of difference between voluntary cooperation, as exemplified in the market place where both persons to every transaction expect to profit, and compulsory obedience, in which the will of the Authority is substituted for the individual desire of every person.

Where compulsory obedience rules, cooperation vanishes. True, men work together. But only to the extent of the rewards or punishments that will be theirs at the hands of the Authority.

Where voluntary cooperation occurs, men work together willingly. Their rewards and punishments are of their own making. And each man learns to live according to the best within him, since he is a self-responsible individual and the results of evil rebound swiftly upon the perpetrator.

Compulsive societies are the hallmark of savagery. Voluntary cooperation comes only with civilization. Dependence upon Authority breeds the compulsive society. Dependence upon one's self brings freedom and individual responsibility. Which way, America? Which way, world?

THE Cracker BARREL

Under existing law, almost any change of a physical or mental nature can be produced in any federal prisoner who can be deprived of normal life, liberty and property by three GOVERNMENT CHOSEN PSYCHIATRISTS. This offers an easy way for any government TO ELIMINATE OR DESTROY any political dissenters or individuals fighting the existing officials to PRESERVE THEIR CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS. It is a way that is being used today by many tyrannical governments. We need immediate safeguards to prevent its ever being used by any American government.

Consent Of The Governed

In the last issue I was quoting, with Rose Wilder Lane's consent, from her letter to me explaining the meaning of governments deriving their just power from the consent of the governed. I want to continue to quote from her letter.

"The most disregarded—forgotten, ignored—part of the American political structure is the 10th Art. of the Federal Bill of Rights, 'all powers not delegated are reserved to . . . the people.' The written Federal Constitution has the precise relation to the actual political institution (the action-pattern of persons in political office) that an engineer's blueprint has to the mechanism built according to the blueprint. Power comes from the individual (by his consent) and is transmitted, or 'delegated' by him to other persons acting in the established patterns-of-action ('organizations') of county, city, state, federation —the various parts of the political structure, or mechansim. According to the blueprint (the State and Federal constitutions) this power is so transmitted and so centered in various parts of the mechanism that in operation it 'checks' and 'balances' itself. The power of the various State legislatures, for example, acts within its State limits as a brake on the Federal power. Within the State nucleus of power, and within the Federal nucleus, legislators, executives, and judges, by the act of exercising their derived power, act as brakes upon each other's power in action. The most important feature of this whole complex mechanism (composed of living, acting persons) is the fact that ALL its power is derived. There is no source of power within it, not even a 'this world' source supposed to be mystically endowed with power from a supernatural 'spiritual world' source — as Popes and Kings are supposed to be endowed. The source of political power in this unique Republic is the individual person, endowed with life-energy and its control (liberty; self-government) by his Creator. And in the blueprint for his political structure, this source of the whole structure's power retains ALL power that he does NOT, explicitly, in detail, transmit, delegate, to persons in that structure. Now, if Americans outside that structure (as you and I are) actually used all these original and not delegated powers, their action would act as a brake upon the whole 'Government,' just as, for example, the Congressmen's exercise of their legislative power (if they use it) acts as a brake on the Executive's exercise of power. The farmer with a gun who defends his land from the intrusion of a Federal agent is using his political power correctly according to the 10th amendment of the Federal constitution. Our misfortune is that almost nobody knows that. Even the defending farmer usually doesn't.

"I wonder what will be the outcome of J. Bracken Lee's refusal to pay income tax. He's purely wonderful, of course. His legal ground seems rather uncertain to me, though. Surely he must have sound legal advice, but — while certainly the Founding Fathers never in any nightmare dreamed of Federal officials taxing Americans to be bountiful to foreign Governments — I don't know any explicit probibition of taxation for ANY purpose. What will occur, I suppose, is that the case will never be let into court.

"By the way, do you know whether there is any truth in what I've heard, that there is no legal penalty provided for simply not making an income - tax return at all? A deliberately false or an innocently mistaken income-tax statement and payment is drastically punished, at best by severe fine, at worst by fine and imprisonment; I know that. But I am told that the Acts of Congress do not forbid nor penalize the making of no statement and no payment.

"Dorothy Day, whom I've never met but have known of since 1919 —once a Communist, now a Catholic convert; active and influential in the 'lay apostolate' of Catholic anarchists —published a little sheet, The Catholic Worker, in a slum center of Christian love in New York. And in this I have read for years the experiences of one Ammon Hennessey, formerly a social-service worker and lecturer then a lone anarchist, now a Catholic convert, who—among many other activities—annually pickets the nearest Federal Collector's office during the final week of income-tax payment. Fasting and praying, and selling copies of The Catholic Worker, he walks up and down between sandwichboards proclaiming that he refuses to pay income taxes. He is quite a good writer, and reports his encounters with all kinds of persons, usually including the Tax Collector himself, during these days. It's fascinating reading because he does write vividly. The Collectors who speak to him usually seem amused and not at all unfriendly. Some passersby sympathize and applaud him; others furiously call him a Red. But nothing is done to him; he isn't arrested or pursued with demands for taxes or fines. The walking and fasting sort of get him down, but that's all. I don't know the explanation. When recently some 20 persons, including him and Dorothy Day, 'demonstrated' against war, by sitting in a New York park and just not moving when Civil Defense put on an air-raid warning drill, requiring all persons to get quickly off the streets and out of sight in (hypothetical) air-raid shelters, they were all arrested immediately, roughed up and beaten up a little, jailed all day and most of the night without food, finally taken into night court and arraigned for later trial, released on bail. Disobedience to an Air Raid Warden seems to be more criminal than not paying income taxes. What do you know about that!"

G.O.P. 'Regency' Is Certain Ike To Seek Second Term

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, — The eleven members of the so-called "White House regency" are so certain that President Eisenhower will run again that they are now debating when and how the jubilant announcement will be made. Another question on their political agenda is whether Vice President Richard M. Nixon should be kept on the ticket.

The "regency" group, which has held several secret sessions since Ike's Key West statement on his health, consists wholly of GOP liberals. Although Thomas E. Dewey has deliberately absented himself from their strategy meetings, the membership shows that he is the "take charge guy."

Moreover, Dewey has been in and out of Washington for the last few weeks, combining politics with his new role as lawyer for Eastern Airlines. In both capacities, he has seen a great deal of Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall and Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr.

For the first time the names of the Ike-will-run believers may now be published. They are:

Sherman Adams, White House chief of staff; James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, Secretaries John Foster Dulles and George M. Humphriy; National Chairman Hall and Attorney General Brownell; Thomas Stevens, former White House appointment secretary and campaign field manager; ex-Governor Howard Pyle of Arizona, White House aide; Henry Cabot Lodge, United Nations Ambassador; Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield; Milton Eisenhower, Penn State president and Ike's favorite brother.

There are several significant ofissions. Vice President Nixon has not been invited because discussion of his future might prove embarrassing to him. Adams and Hagerty think he should be replaced with somebody like Governor Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts.

No spokesman for the Pepublicans in House or Senate was asked to attend the group's secret conferences. The "regency" wants to retain full management of pre-convention and convention machinery, expecting that both the right and left wings on Capitol Hill will close ranks behind Ike upon his mere announcement that he will be the candidate.

To have invited Nixon or any Senator or Representative would have offended Senator William F. Knowland of California, an avowed entry if Ike had planned to step aside. Besides, fantastic as it may seem, there is some talk that Knowland might replace Nixon on the ticket. He may be needed to placate the Dirksen-Bridges-McCarthy faction, who are not entirely friendly to the "regency's" membership or liberal philosophy.

Dulles' presence is taken as confirmation that Ike will run, for he will be relied on to write the foreign policy platform and to carry the campaign on that sector. Secretary Humphrey will be the GOP's mainstay in the field of business, industry, finances, taxes, budget-balancing, etc., which accounts for his attendance.

In fact, should Nixon be sidetracked, he might succeed Dulles, according to highly tentative plans. Ike has sent the V. P. around the world to study conditions, and a trip through South America is now under consideration.

Miltin Eisenhower's participation is regarded as confirmation that Ike wants another term. Milton vacationed with the President at Key West, and they undoubtedly discussed Ike's plans. A former New Dealer, Milton's liberalish ideas were sprinkled through the State of the Union message, to the dismay of many GOP conservatives.

Thus, it seems clear that (1) Ike will run again, (2) that he will demand the most progressive platform in GOP annals, and (3) that Nixon may have to fight to stay on the ticket. As of the moment, and unless he can be persuaded to the contrary, Ike favors the 43-year-old Californian.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

I am somewhat atonished at the number of people who ask for information concerning the disorder known as Bell's palsy, because I had always thought this was not a particulary common condition.

Perhaps, however, more people who have it ask for information than those who have other diseases. At any rate, for the benefit of those who have written recently, I am happy to discuss this condition again.

PERHAPS THE BEST WAY to start is to explain what is involved in this nerve disorder. There are 12 nerves which come directly out of the brain, and each of these is numbered from one to 12 and has its own name which every medical student has to learn.

In the case of Bell's palsy, it is the facial, or seventh nerve which is involved. This nerve controls some of the skin and muscles of the face.

The most striking feature of Bell's palsy is a paralysis of the muscles of one side of the face which produces a drooping or sagging of the lip and an inability to close one eye.

As a result, the two sides of the face do not look alike even when at rest. The difference is more conspicuous when motions like wrinkling the forehead, smiling or laughing are attempted. Also, it may be difficult to close the mouth, and saliva or food may drip out of one corner.

BELL'S PALSY often comes on suddenly and is associated with a variable amount of pain. The pain may disappear rather abruptly and leave nothing but a mild tingling. A change in sensation to pressure from a prick of a pin is common. The sense of taste over the front portions of the tongue is often altered.

The disorder may be the result of injury, such as a cut or a gunshot wound. It may follow the extraction of a tooth, although why this should happen is not well understood.

New York Times Favored Itself In Red Investigation

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

My news - values are not the same as those of the New York Times, and that may be an honest difference. However, it has seemed to me that the Times flagrantly favored itself in covering the testimony of many witnesses before the subcommittee of the Senate Internal Security Committee who are now or in times past have been employed by the Times.

Specifically, the Times dealt itself a favor amounting almost to suppression of important news in its handling of the testimony of Allan James Aronson, of New York, a member of the staff of the Sunday Times in 1947 and 1948. The Sunday Times is, in a subtle way, a propaganda paper often using negative means, such as omission, to achieve its purpose, notably in its book section.

It also has consitiuted itself an unofficial but imperative "authority" on public "education," an activity badly infested with the most treacherous of all Communist revolutionary agents, the brain-washers who corrupt the patriotism and morals of youth. It would be hard for the Times to deny the efficiency of the Red apparatus in public "education." For if it should deny this, then it would pull the rug from under a culprit high in the hierarchy of the New York Times. This is Benjamin Fine, who is not a mere editor of a department or supplement. He is the "director" of "education."

Fine has been with the Times for 19 years, and it is his boast that he got a Pulitzer award, now a dubious professional honor, for a "series on the teaching of history in schools and colleges." He has many degrees and other "awards." But notwithstanding his "education", then represented by three earned degrees, BS, MS and MA, he was so gullible and stupid that in 1938 he joined the Communist party not suspecting the purposes of the anti-American conspiracy nor the implications of his act. He has a brother, one David Fine, who for 12 years has run a New York movie house specializing in Soviet films.

The Times took many columns of previous white paper to cry that it was being persecuted for opposing Senator Joe McCarthy and segregation in the south, and sneered that the subcommittee did not "explain" why it had called the brother of its own "director" of "education." (These committees never "explain" why they call anyone.)

The Times could spare space to disparage the committee but barely had room and only at the end of a long story consisting largely of pleading, to deal with the case of Aronson who told a shocking story absolutely new to the American public.

Aronson was one of 15 "press control" officers in Germany in 1945 and 46, with power to "license" or refuse to license" newspapers. As I reported from Germany in 1952 and again a few weeks ago, the so-called deNazification of German citizens was turned over to people who included American Communists and Communist refugees from Germany. The Hitler Revolution, like Mussolini's in Italy, had been the direct result of the menace of militant, bloody Communism. So American soldiers conquered the Nazi and now the fruit of their victory was turned over to an enemy of equal ferocity against the United States by General Eisenhower under Harry S. Truman.

During much of the carpet-bag regime in that portion of conquered Germany which was not surrendered to the Russian armies by Eisenhower (acting under mysterious and, historically non-existent orders) the second in command under the American High Commissioner, John T. McCloy, was Shepard Stone of the New York Sunday Times. Stone was on leave for this soft job attended by a scale of luxury which few other newspaper workers have ever enjoyed. He was a semi-regal satrap in a large, confiscated dwelling in Bonn, and certainly in a position to learn through our many detective agencies whether his colleague, Aronson, of the Sunday Times, had connections with the International Communist conspiracy. If he did learn, however, the Times never considered that to be news "fit to print." It printed nothing until the committee exposed the truth and very little then.

Aronson absolutely refused to answer any question concerning Communism and turned off many more only remotely dealing with the subject, pleading the Fifth Amendment.

"My duties," he said, "were to investigate candidates for licenses for German newspapers, screened by Army intelligence teams." He was picked for this job by the Office of War Information, the old Elmer Davis propaganda machine, and he said everyone from the top command down knew that papers edited by Communists were licensed.

The committee asked whether the regulations required that license and subsidy paid by American taxes be granted to papers under Communist editors. Aronson said "The Communists were not excluded," and added that the "regulations" were signed by General Eisenhower. They excluded, specifically, anyone who ever had had any part in the Nazi press. From this job licensing Communists he came back to Shepard Stone's beloved Sunday Times.

This fellow clammed up on many questions concerning the brainwashing of American prisoners in Red China and other questions of the most horrible implications. The Times gave the testimony only a light flick at the end of a long, dreary story and yet its executives in Washington and New York pulled wires to bulldoze the committee and persuade other papers to play down the expose.

THE NATION'S PRESS

WHAT TO REMEMBER ABOUT COMMUNISM

(Chicago Daily Tribune)

Foreign Secretary Macmillan of Britain made the sharpest reply at Geneva to Foreign Commissar Molotov's announcement that Russia would keep Germany divided until the time was opportune to sovietize the whole country. Russia has consistently rejected the western proposal that free elections be allowed to determine the character of a reunited Germany, now divided between the communist controlled east and the republican west.

Mr. Macmillan ticked off these soviet points: That Germany cannot be reunited until the North Atlantic Treaty organization and the Western European union are dissolved. That, even if these were disbanded, Russia still would not give the German people freedom or independence. Even then, said the British diplomat, Germany could exist only on terms laid down by Russia.

The German people, he said, "must accept the odious system which has been imposed on eastern Germany or else continue to remain divided. Because if the German people ever were allowed to express their feelings at free elections, the puppets who are held in power in eastern Germany by soviet arms would be swept away."

This statement highlights a fact which too many people are prone to forget, if, in fact, they even are aware of it. That is, simply, that communism nowhere exists with the consent of the governed. Communism in Russia was orignally the product of a small group of determined plotters who swept the Kerensky government from power. It is maintained by a relatively small and disciplined party minority which requires no permission from the people for anything that it does.

In East Germany and in the communist puppet states of eastern Europe the regime proceeds similarly in contempt of the helpless vassals, supported by the foreign Red army and by internal police organizations. In China communism has, from the beginning, rested on military power, and the Communists, in that respect, are very little different from the war lords of the past, except that their sphere is not regional or parochial, but nation-wide.

It is in this very fact that communism, nowhere and at no time, has been a representative popular movement, but always has established itself at the apex of the pyramid, weighting down those below, that the best promise for eventual liberation from this curse reposes. For it never has been an instrument of deliverance, or even a medium for consent. It has been, instead, a scourge to the victims within its clutch no less than to the remainder of a heartsick world.

...with JAMES C. INGEBRETSEN
President, Spiritual Mobilization

Said Fellow Columnist George E. Sokolsky recently:

"Ours is a country whose culture derives from the natural law in its moral manifestations in the Old and New Testaments. If we reject this, our history lacks meaning and becomes only a record of material achievements without a spiritual objective. Such a culture must die, as all material things die."

There is a great depty of wisdom, I think, in this statement. The Bible tells us that God "only hath immortality." Hence, only a culture that derives from and partakes of God can endure indefinitely. This spells the doom of all atheistic or materialistic cultures. Only that part of any culture that has the divine imprint upon it will ultimately survive. I wonder how much of our culture today possesses that vital qualification.

Summary Of President's Proposed Balanced Budget

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—UP—Topical summary of President Eisenhower's new budget:

GENERAL OUTLOOK

The budget will be balanced if Congress cooperates ... spending would total $65.9 billion... revenues $68.3 billion .. Prospective surplus: $400 million

Mr. Eisenhower said the surplus should be applied to the national debt, expected to total $274.3 billion at the start of the new 1957 fiscal year. He also revised his budget estimates for the fiscal year, predicting the government will have a $200 million surplus June 30 instead of the $1.7 billion deficit originally forecast. The President ruled out tax cuts for now. Tax relief must wait, he said, until there is a surplus big enough to permit both tax and debt reduction. He didn't guess when that will be.

SPENDING

Up about $1.6 billion over this fiscal year. Biggest increases: defense spending (up nearly $1 billion), atomic energy (up $230 million), and interest on national debt (up $200 million). Smaller boosts requested for such other programs as veterans benefits, school aid and medical research. Of the total, 65 per cent is earmarked for national security, including foreign aid and atomic energy.

REVENUES

Assuming present tax rates are continued as requested, government income is expected to jump about $1.8 billion "as the result of our present unprecedented prosperity."

TAXES

"Our present tax level is very burdensome and ... should be reduced when we prudently can." But "a tax cut can be deemed justifiable only when it will not unbalance the budget, a budget which makes provision for some reduction, even though modest, in our national debt." He said excise taxes and corporation income tax rates, scheduled to drop April 1, should be continued "at their present rates for another year."

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

"The course of government policy has helped to lay a sound basis for the greatest volume of business, the highest employment and the highest national income in the history of this country... Our objective is to foster and encourage conditions in which this prosperity can be sustained and can be more fully shared by agriculture and certain sectors of our industrial economy."

FOREIGN POLICY

We must not be "beguiled by a campaign of smiles without deeds." Soviet leaders have given no "tangible evidence" of a willingness to accept a workable disarmament plan. Hence we must follow a policy of "steadily strengthening the defense of the United States and its allies" to deter or defeat aggression.

DEFENSE

He proposed defense spending of $35.5 billion, an increase of nearly $1 billion over the current year, to give this country the "greatest military power in its peacetime history." The Air Force would get the lion's share—$16.5 billion — to complete its buildup to 137 wings and push development of an atomic-powered plane. The Navy would get $9.5 billion, with provision for more atomic submarines, cruiser and a sixth Forrestal-class supercarrier. The Army would get $8.6 billion.

ATOMIC ENERGY

"Pending a trustworthy agreement" to outlaw A-bombs and H-bombs, "we must continue to increase our stockpile" which is "the principal deterrent to armed aggression in the world." Atomic spending will total $1.9 billion, up $280 million.

FOREIGN AID

"Our future prosperity, perhaps our very survival, will be linked with the strength of our allies." He recommended foreign aid spending of $4.3 billion, an increase of about $100 million over this year. Total includes $2.5 billion in military aid, of which "about one-half... will be concentrated in Korea, Pakistan, Taiwan (Formosa) and Turkey."

VETERANS

Counting dependents and survivors, "nearly one-half of our population is potentially entitled to veterans' benefits." They will cost $4.9 billion in fiscal 1957 and the outlook is for steadily-rising outlays. This is a problem to which Congress should give "continuing and careful attention."

HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE

Asked $150 million to launch his school aid program, $20 million to help states provide free polio shots for children, and doubling of the National Science Foundation's budget for fostering basic research.

FARM

Savings on direct farm price supports, as farmers reduce their production of surplus crops, are expected to offset costs of his new "soil bank" program. Net federal outlays for farm programs estimated at $3.6 billion, about the same as this year. He asked $450 million in cash for the soil bank plan, plus $250 million to continue existing soil conservation payments at the fiscal 1956 level. Part of the estimated $1 billion-a-year cost of the soil bank program will be covered by using surplus commodities already owned by the government, and this cost does not show in the budget.

HIGHWAYS

The 10-year highway-building program he recommended last year is "even more urgently needed today." The budget earmarked $844 million for federal highway aid, a slight increase over this year. It included no special funds for the 10-year program, which Mr. Eisenhower wants Congress to finance, with bonds or user taxes, on a pay-as-we-go basis that won't affect the budget.

Other Programs

Mr. Eisenhower asked $18 million for the space satellite vehicle which is to be launched during fiscal 1957; funds for two new federal prisons; $1 billion for flood control, reclamation and other natural resources projects; a $350 million-a-year boost in postal rates; increased spending for slum clearance; authority to build 35,000 new public housing units, and provision for old folks to have a "limited preference" in assignment of such units; $100 million to start his program of government-backed flood insurance; $10 million for federal loans and grants to aid in the "redevelopment" of distressed communities with heavy unemployment; and $34 million to build the first new museum building the Smithsonian Institution has had in 40 years.

Scientist Would 'Lock Up' TB Victims For Protection

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK —UP— To achieve an ultimate good, a noted scientist is advocating "locking up" a certain number of sick Americans.

The ultimate good is making tuberculosis an extinct disease. The sick persons are those who know they have TB but won't submit to treatment and won't take themselves out of circulation.

"Personal liberty is a precious heritage, but liberty should be denied those who knowingly expose others," said Dr. H. Corwin Hinshaw, clinical professor of medicine at Stanford University School of Medicine.

He was answering the question, "can we wipe out TB?" His answer was, yes, if---. Such an answer to such a question, if it had been given 10 years ago, would have curled the hair of anyone who knew anything about it.

His principal "if" was preventing well people from getting the disease. That involves "case finding"—finding the people who have TB but don't know it. It also involves dealing with the people who know they have TB but won't do anything about it. Both kinds spread TB among well people.

Dr. Hinshaw who is a noted authority on TB and a former president of the American Trudeau Society, was himself greatly impressed by what has happened to TB in the last five to ten years. Formerly it was "essentially uncurable;" in most cases the future was bleak if not hopeless.

"Tuberculosis is now, as never before, a treatable disease—a curable disease," he said. "Modern treatment can relieve tuberculosis symptoms promptly, bring the disease to arrest, and can usually prevent—or at least minimize—the risk of recurrence. This has not been subjected to the full test of time but is based on a firm foundation of fact."

Grain Prices Irregular During Week

CHICAGO—UP—Grains were irregular last week on the board of trade as farmers and traiders waited to see what action congress will take on farm legislation.

The week closed on a steady to stronger tone, except for oats, which declined up to two cents during the five days of trading.

Soybeans rose Monday after President Eisenhower recommended in his farm message that price support levels be boosted for soybeans and flaxseed. Except for profit-taking Tuesday, beans, especially the early contracts, were strong throughout the sessions. Strength in cash markets for edible oils and pending export business also caused bean futures to move higher Friday.

The President's proposal to give farmers surplus grain under soil bank part of his farm program, if farmers agreed to reduce acreage below their allotments, caused selling in wheat and corn Monday.

Holders of wheat also seemed to be disturbed by Mr. Eisenhower's proposal to set dollar limits on price support loans. It was felt that big producers may have surplus wheat they could not put under the loan and would have to sell in the free market.

However, continued dry weather throughout the southwest growing belt, a stronger cash market and domestic flour purchases brought buying in wheat through the week. The bread grain closed the week fractionally to slightly more than one cent higher.

Several reports noted damage to the winter wheat crop in western Kansas and Oklahoma, and the weather forecast didn't promise any relief from the dry weather.

Demand for corn was stimulated early in the week by confirmation that farmers were replacing a large quantity of the 1955 crop in government loan. However, there were not any other helpful factors and the feed grain closed the week fractionally lower than the previous Friday.

Farmers also were reported to be placing a considerable amount of 1955 crop rye in government loan. Strength at Winnipeg also helped the Chicago market.

Strength in cash edible oil markets accounted for buying in lard futures near the end of the week. Also hog prices rose 25 cents on Friday.

There was a mixed trend in cash grains. Wheat and soybeans made moderate advances while corn and oats were easier. The cash tone was reflected in the oats futures, which were weak.

Compared to Friday a week ago, wheat ruled ⅛ to 1¼ cents a bushel higher; corn ¼ higher to ⅜ lower; oats ½ to 2 lower; rye ½ lower to ¾ higher; soybeans 2¼ to 3¾ higher; lard 10 points higher to 10 points lower a hundred pounds.

Editor Hits Proposed Press Probe

TUCSON, Ariz. —UP— Basil L. Walters, executive editor of the Knight Newspapers, Inc., says he is opposed to the proposed Sigma Delta Chi "one party press" investigation.

Walters, first chairman of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' freedom of information committee, said he is especially opposed to the journalism fraternity's plan to solicit funds for the survey from the Fund of the Republic "or any other foundation."

Walters apeared at the University of Arizona Sunday night to receive the Peter Zenger freedom of information award.

The executives editor said he did not fear "critical examination" of himself or his papers and said any other fund or individual which wished to investigate the charge against the press should do so.

"But an important newspaper organization would not associate itself with anything that might well be the first step toward regimentation and license through an attempt to discipline members," he said.

Walters also said he felt it was "morally wrong" for a newspaper group to commit its members to a foundation through acceptance of a grant.

Argentina's Basketball Game Would Upset Old Doc Naismith

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON — UP — Basketball is 65 years old, and old Doc Naismith who thought it up would whirl in his dust if he heard what has been going on in Argentina.

According to the best information the National Geographic Society can get, the young down that way are playing the game aboard a horse.

That wasn't what the good doctor had in mind when he nailed up a couple of peach baskets in the YMCA training school at Springfield, Mass., in the winter of 1891-2. Jim's only thought was to keep the boys in some kind of shape.

Basketball has come of age. It is played by thousands of kids and, athletically, has kept a lot of little schools alve.

But to get back to Argentina, a so-called "pato" league down there plays the game on horseback. Their version was dreamed up in the land of the gaucho by the hard-riding boys of the pampas.

In Spanish, "pato" means duck. The original "ball" was a dead duck stitched into a leather bag with its head sticking out.

This funny contraption, duck and all, had handles attached. Each player, straddled aboard a pony, had to offer the duck at arm's length so another player could grasp it. The idea was to pitch the duck into a basketlike net at each end of a field.

There are eight riders, four to a side. All of them circle like "pato" on the 230 by 90-yard playing field.

The dead duck is a dodo now. It has been replaced by an official ball with six leather handles. There also are new safety rules to prevent the cracking of skulls.

One Argentine sports writer once described the game as a "combination of lacrosse, ice hockey, polo, dueling and going over Niagara Falls with nothing but water wings."

SOMEWHERE OVER THE RAINBOW

Middlecoff Wins Crosby Tourney With "Best Game"

By HENRY RIEGER

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. —UP— Dr. Cary Middlecoff used a "floating putt" in shooting the best round of golf "in my life", in winning the Bing Crosby $15,000 clambake for the second consecutive year.

Middlecoff walked off with first prize of $2,500 and set a new tourney record Sunday with his three-round score of 202 as he used an old-fashioned hickory shaft putter in "floating" long putts across the rain flooded greens.

"I played the best round of golf in my life," said the slow-talking Southerner as he towled his rain-drenched face on the Pebble Beach course 18th green. "I did everything right at the right time."

Going into the last round in a first place deadlock with crewcut Bob Rosburg of San Francisco, Middlecoff started slow over the water-logged course and made the turn in only one under par.

Hits Stride

But then he began to hit his stride. On the 10th he dropped a 15-footer for a bird and followed it with a 12-footer for another bird on the 11th and a 14-footer for a third bird on the 14th.

"The ball just floated across the water, dunking in the cup," said one fan in explaining Middlecoff's putting success.

Middlecoff's total made up of rounds of 66-68-66 bested the old record of 204 set by Lloyd Mangrum in 1953.

While Middlecoff was winning medal play as he pleased, Ralph (Sleepyhead) Blomquist of Glendale, Calif., and his amateur partner George Gallos of Monterey, Calif., took the pro-am championship with a record best ball 188 in the other half of the double-pronged Crosby tourney. The victory meant $1,500 for Blomquist.

Some Still to Finish

A full breakdown of the money winners was held up until Monday because four pros—possible small money winners—must finish final rounds halted by darkness Sunday.

Mike Souchak, the Durham, N.C., ex-footballer who makes a practice of playing second best to Middlecoff, did it again by a runnerup finish in the medal play. He was five strokes off the Middlecoff pace, however, at 207.

Biggest disappointment was the falldown of the little master, Ben Hogan, who came out of retirement at the behest of host Der Bingle for this tourney alone.

He started strong, with a better-than-average 67 over rugged Cypress Point Friday but fell off to a 73 Saturday when he tired from the long layoff and still showed effects of his bus-auto accident of five years ago.

Sunday he limped home in the rain with a nine-over-par 81, but the bulk of the gallery of 6,000 remained faithful to their sentimental favorite to the last green as he made good a promise of Saturaday that, "I'll play out the final hole."

East Drops West 31-30 In Thriller; Argument Follows

By HAL WOOD

LOS ANGELES — UP — When there is talent on th football fild it means excitement.

That was what happened here Sunday when the East beat the West 31 to 30 in the annual Pro Bowl game that ended in a wrangle but which furnished the wildest day of football possible right from the opening kickoff.

That was when Jack Christiansn of th Dtroit Lions ran the opening kick back 103 yards for a touchdown—just to give a sample of excitement to come.

Actually, the West thought it won the game, as an argument broke out at the end. Rechichar attempted a fjeld goal from the 50 with three seconds to go. It was short and Joe Scudero of the Washington Redskins received the ball approxinately on the goal line.

The West claimed he stepped into the end zone and downed the ball, which would have given the West two points and the game. The officials ruled that he caught the ball in the end zone and therefore it was a touchback with no points.

There could have been a half dozen men who came out of this game as the hero, because they thrilled the 37,867 fans right to the core throughout the 60 minutes.

Actually, it was Ollie Matson, former University of San Francisco star from the Chicago Cardinals, who was voted the outstanding star of the game. Among the feats were the 91-yard return of a kick-off; a 15-yard, all - alone power play that scored another touchdown, and several other hipper - dipper performances that left both the fans and the other players goggle-eyed.

Mrs. Hagge Wins Sea Island Open In Extra Hole

SEA ISLAND, Ga. —UP— Mrs. Marlene Bauer Hagge, in a sudden-death playoff with Mary Lena Faulk and Joyce Ziske, knocked in a par-four on the first extra hole to win top money Sunday in the Sea Island women's invitational golf tournament.

Mrs. Hagge, a Texan playing out of Asheville, N.C., earned $630 top money in this $3,500 tournament, first on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour.

At the end of the regulation 36-hole play, Mrs. Hagge was deadlocked at 152 with Miss Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., and Miss Ziske of Waterford, Wis.

Marlene, now married to Bob Hagge, divorced husband of her sister, Alice, registered her par four on the first extra hole of the playoff while her opponents missed six-foot putts for bogey fives. Faulk and Ziske divided second and third money, collecting $427.50 each.

Mrs. Hagge had gone three over women's par 76 the first round Saturday but came back with a one-over men's par 73 in the final round when she deadlocked with her two closest opponents. Miss Faulk registered 76's both days and Miss Ziske got a 78 Saturday and a 74 in the final round. Miss Betsy Rawls, Spartanburg, S.C., picked up fourth-place money with 78-75—153.

Trabert Whittles At Gonzales' Tour Lead

LOUISVILLE, Ky. —UP— Tony Trabert of Cincinnati served notice Monday that Pancho Gonzales would have to hustle to keep ahead in their 100-city pro tennis tour.

The young pro staged a third-set rally here Sunday to score his second straight match victory over Gonzales, 6-4, 9-11, 6-3, narrowing Pancho's edge for the tour to 12-6.

American League Schedules 228 Games For 1956

CHICAGO —UP— The lights will go on again all over the American League this year with a record 228 night games listed on the 1956 schedule.

This represents an increase of 20 over last season, when the league played 208 after-dinner games. The AL's previous high was 224 night games in 1954.

The official scheduled, released Monday by League President William Harridge, lists 616 games. Thus, more than one-third of this season's games will be played under the lights.

here will be only 154 weekday games played during the daylight hours. Included are two morning and afternoon doubleheaders scheduled by the Kansas City Athletics for Memorial Day and Labor Day.

The 1956 schedule also lists 77 Saturday afternoon games, 133 Sunday contests and 25 holiday games. There will be 25 Saturday night games, with Washington and Kansas City listing eight each.

Washington once again leads the league in night games. The Senator "night owls" have listed 45 arc-lighters, one more than Kansas City. Baltimore has added eight night games for a record 42, while Chicago scheduled 23, an increase of two.

SMU, Arkansas Head S'west Conference BB

By ED FITE
United Press Sports Writer

The Arkansas Razorbacks, who changed complexions almost over night to forge up alongside defending champion Southern Methodist at the head of the Southwest Conference basketball race, can apply a bit more pressure on the champs Monday night.

While Coach E. O. (Doc) Hayes' Mustangs sit out for a couple of weeks for some book-grazing, the well-balanced Razorbacks take one more snort of title competition before taking their own mid-term lull.

Coach Glen Rose's about - face Hogs, who rooted out a 70 to 67 victory over Texas in the Longhorns' own ballwick and then hogtied Rice 84 to 70 at Fayetteville, play host to the oft-beaten but dangerous Texas Aggies in the Ozarks Monday night.

A victory, and one is certainly expected on the basis of the Hogs' more recent exploits, would give Arkansas a 4-0 loop record to 3-0 for SMU, the nation's seventh ranked outfitt.

Reurn in Two Weeks

Both returs to the wars in two weeks against the same opponent — Texas Christian, which plays SMU at Dallas Feb. 28 and Arkansas at Fort Worth Feb. 1.

The Arkansas-Aggie contest highlights a slim five-game schedule that also includes a non-conference fray Wednesday night between Texas A&M and Sam Houston State at College Station.

Rice, expected to push SMU for the crown and now owning a 2-2 loop record, can stay in contention this week with a date Monday night against Texas (0-4) at Houston and Baylor (1-2) at Waco on Saturday ight.

The Aggies, also at 2-2, entertain TCU (1-2) at College Station in another Saturday night game.

SMU Blasts Aggies

SMU, continuing to call on its outside sharpshooters as zone defenses hamper top - scoring Jim Krebs, blasted the Aggies 97 to 68 in the Mustangs' only outing last week, while in other games Rice turned back TCU 80 to 60, the Aggies nipped Texas 75 to 74 and Baylor tripped TCU 83 to 75.

The individual scoring races continue to be wide open with four players averaging 20 points or more in league play and three of them holding above that line over the full season.

In conference games, it's Temple Tucker of Rice at 22.2, Ray Downs of Texas at 21.0, Larry Showalter of SMU at 20.7 and Dick O'Neal of TCU at 20.0, while for the season Downs is on top at 24.4 to 22.2 for Tucker and 22.9 for O'Neal.

Krebs has continued to slip further away from the coveted 20-point average and his 17.2 figure for the season is now only two-tenths of a point ahead of Manuel Whitley, whose belated surge has helped Arkansas in its comeback role.

U. S. May Surprise Some At Olympics

By PETER UEBERSAX
United Press Sports Writer

The coach of the United States Olympic ski team reviewed his men's final warmouts for the winter games Monday and expressed renewed hope that "we may surprise a few people at Cortina."

Bob Sheehan of Middlebury, Vt., wasn't too dismayed when Sailin' Toni Sailer of Austria completed a clean sweep in the Hahnenkamm races Sunday at Kitzbuehel, Austria, by winning the slalom event.

"The Austrians are very hard to beat in the slalom," the American coach conceded "but I think we've got a chance in the downhill at Cortina."

Sheehan Optimistic

Sheehan's optimism was based on Bud Werner's second place finish in the Hahnenkamm downhill event Saturday. The 19-year-old Denver University student outclassed every member of Austria's "wonder team" with the exception of Sailer, the Olympic favorite.

In the final Alpine combined standings, Werner finished third and Ralph Miller of Hanover, N.H., another standout member of the U.S. team, wound up fifth. Both men showed surprising class against the Austrians, who were skiing in their own backyard and thus enjoyed a tremendous advantage.

The U.S. women's ski team also competed in the Hahnenkam meet but with disastrous results. Most of the Yank lassies showed little enthusiasm after Katy Rodolph of Reno, Nev., suffered a fractured vertebra in her neck in the downhill event Saturday.

Finishes Fifth

Olympic champion Andrea Mead Lawrence of Parshall Colo., finished fifth in Sunday's slalom but failed to place among the leaders in the combined standings, while Betsy Snite of Norwich Vt. and Gladys Werner of Steamboat Springs, Colo., trailed the field.

At Cortina, the U.S. bobsledders resumed training after a one-day "vacation" ordered by the Olympic committee.

Sweden's Ace Jumper To See Home Country

STOCKHOLM — UP — Bengt Nilsson of Sweeden, Europe's outstanding high jumper who defeated U.S. champion Ernie Shelton of Los Angeles several times last year when the American toured Europe, said Monday he has turned down an invitation to the U.S. in favor of a competing tour her.

"I have made up my mind to prepare for the Olympic games in Melbourne," Nilsson said, "so I have definitely given up my American plans."

Turbulent Cage Game Ends In 2-0 Forfeit

SCRANTON, Pa. —UP— A turbulent Sunday basketball game that ended in a forfeit will not disturb future athletic relations between Scranton University and St. Peter's College of Jersey City, N.J., officials of both schools indicated Monday.

Scranton won the game 2 to 0 on forfeit when St. Peter's Coach Don Kennedy took his team off the court with a minute and 40 seconds to play.

Kennedy said he took the action because his players on the court were attacked by Scranton substitutes and his players on the bench were "kicked" by fans.

Frisco Dons Rest For Exams; Give Rival A Golden Chance

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer

The streaking San Francisco Dons were finally stopped Monday by mid-year examinations — and that gives chief rivals Dayton and North Carolina State a golden opportunity to gain prestige.

The national champion Dons, who tied the major-college record by gaining their 39th straight win on Friday, will be answering campus quizzes until Jan. 28 when they shoot for an all-time record in a game against dangerous California.

But this week Dayton (12-0) and North Carolina State (13-1), ranked second and third nationally behind the champs, will be playing two games each with a chance to steal some of the Dons' thunder.

Dayton, which had to rally for an 82 to 73 win over Canisius on Saturday, wants to equal San Francisco's perfect 13-0 mark for this season by beating Villanova on Wednesday and then jump ahead of the Dons by downing Xavier of Ohio on Saturday.

State Meets North Carolina

N.C. State can push its mark to an awesome 15-1 by beating archrival North Carolina, the nation's No. 10 team, on Wednesday and then William and Mary on Saturday.

Dayton seemed headed for the biggest upset of the year, however, when it trailed Canisius by 14 points at halftime in Buffalo, N.Y., 45 to 31. Seven-foot Bill Uhl, who injured his left ankle in the opening minutes, scored only six points in this half. But Jim Palmer, who had a 28-point total, paced Dayton in a rally that tied the score with three minutes left and then pulled away. Joe Leone had 27 points for Canisius.

Dayton's narrow escape keynoted a formful Saturday night that contained losses for only two teams ranked among the nation's top 20 — seventh-ranked Indiana and 20th-ranked Michigan State.

And Indiana's 96 to 72 walloping by Illinois was no upset, for the Illini are ranked fifth nationally and now must definitely be rated the title choice in the Big Ten. Six-eight George Bonsalle poured in 28 points as the Illini made their overall record 9-1.

Purdue Tests Illini

Purdue, which tests Illinois further Monday night, upset Michigan State in the nationally - televised game of the day despite a 24-point performance by State's Julius McCoy.

Two other ranked teams had mighty close calls. North Carolina (No. 10) was forced into double overtime to beat Clemson 103 to 99 on the losers' court as Lennie Rosenbluth led the way with 45 points. And Ohio State also had to play two overtimes to nip Wisconsin 100 to 98 as Robin Freeman tallied 34 points, including the winning basket.

Kentucky, ranked fourth nationally, highlighted the easier victories with a 107 to 65 romp over Louisiana State in which six-seven Bob Burrow turned in one of the season's best performances—a 50-point show that fell just a point short of the Kentucky school record.

Heading into this week's program, somewhat shorter because of those examinations, here's the situation in some of the major conferences:

Big Ten—Illinois atop with 3-0, pressed by Purdue and Michigan at 3-1 and forced to meet Purdue Monday night.

UCLA Leads Pacific

Pacific Coast — UCLA leads with 4-0 and doesn't meet another league foe for three weeks.

Ivy — Columbia (2-0) can pass idle Princeton (3-0) by beating Yale twice this week.

Southern — West Virginia leads with 5-1 and doesn't play a league foe for two weeks.

Atlantic Coast — Duke (6-1) idle for two weeks; North Carolina (6-1) and N.C. State (4-1) play twice, including their Wednesday clash.

Southeastern — Vanderbilt (3-0) plays twice; Kentucky (3-0) plays once; and Alabama (3-0) doesn't play a league game this week.

Big Seven—Colorado (2-0) meets Nebraska Saturday, but Monday night's Kansas-Iowa State game figures as week's most important.

Missouri Valley—St. Louis (4-0) and Oklahoma A&M (2-0) both begin two week's idleness.

Southwest — Arkansas (3-0) can jump ahead by beating Texas A&M Monday night because SMU (also 3-0) is idle.

Skyline — Utah risks 4-0 mark against Montana Monday night, but Brigham Young (3-0) plays no league rival this week.

Border — Leaders are Arizona State (Tempe) and West Texas State (3-1).

Harvesters Meet Childress In Last Pre-District Contest

The Pampa Harvesters, who defeated the Childress Bobcats in Harvester fieldhouse Saturday night by a 70-60 score, and the Shockers, who won over the Childress Rams 62-50, will journey to Childress tonight for a make-up game with the Childress cagers.

The game, originally scheduled for last Tuesday, was called off because the Seymour five had a conference game set for the same time.

The Pampa squad, coached by Clifton McNeely, and the Shockers, drove down only to find the Bobcats already playing.

The Pampa Basketeers will open their season Friday night against the Lubbock Westerners in the local gym. All fans are urged to be on hand to help boost the Green and Golders.

The Harvesters, in previous seasons, have lost very few games at this time of year and possibly don't have their best chance to win state again, but they should give the tough Borger Bulldogs a run for the district title.

The Bulldogs have been given the odds to win the district honors this season with the Amarillo Sandies in a close race. The Lubbock Westerners and the Pampa Harvesters will also be in the running as most of the games in the northern half of the 1-AAAA district are expected to be very close with the difference in the scores being only a matter of a few points.

The Borger Bulldogs have defeated the top teams in the southern half as they entered several tournaments in which southern teams were entered.

The Amarillo Sandies and the Lubbock Westerners were weakened when the two cities divided into two schools but they will still be rough for the Harvesters and Bulldogs to stop.

WTS, Arizona Fight For Border Lead

By UNITED PRESS

The Border Conference basketball race will have an undisputed leader after Wednesday night, but whether it'll be Arizona State or West Texas entirely up to the Arizona Wildcats.

The Tempe Sun Devils and West Texas Buffs currently share the lead with 3-1 league records, a half game ahead of New Mexico A&M's 2-1.

State travels to Tuscon Wednesday night to meet Arizona (2-2) in the only conference game of the week as the mid-term exam lull all but erases competition among Border teams.

Arizona State will be favored slightly to trim its traditional rival, but the home court advantage may offset that edge as it did last week when the Wildcats turned back West Texas at Tucson 69 to 64.

West Texas, in turn, moved over to Tempe and nosed out the Devils 90 to 88 to hand them their first league setback.

Texas Tech had just the reverse luck on a similar western foray, losing at Tempe 84 to 77, but whipping Arizona 85 to 78, to wind up in a tie with Arizona for fourth place in the standings at 2-2.

Texas Western, which along with Tech and West Texas will be idle all this week, kept its hopes alive by trimming hapless Hardin-Simmons 78 to 53 after that club already had lost to West Texas 83 to 76 and New Mexico A&M 56 to 43. The Miners now own a 1-2 record and HSU is at 0-4.

Two non-conference games complete this week's schedule with the Aggies at Albuquerque against New Mexico Wednesday night and Hardin-Simmons at Denton against North Texas Saturday night.

British Speedster Sweeps Road Races

TORREY PINES, Calif. —UP— British speedster Ken Miles, now a resident of Hollywood, Sunday swept to a first and third places in the Torrey Pines road races feature events.

Miles won the small-car class and then took third with the "big cars." In the one-hour race for modified cars under 1,500 cubic centimeter, Miles averaged 70.1 miles an hour for 26 laps. He drove his Porsche Spyder into the next race for modified cars over 1,500 cubic centimeters and took third place.

Mastern Gregory of Kansas City won the over-1500 event in a Maserati Spyder with an average speed of 70.2 miles an hour.

"A Pleasure" To Pitch To Ted Williams

By ED FITE

SAN ANTONIO —UP— Bullet Bob Turley, the New York Yankees' fireballing mound ace, considers it "a pleasure" to pitch against thumping Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

Turley, rated one of the fastest pitchers in the majors along with Cleveland's Herb Score, hastened to explain that he didn't mean to infer that the Boston slugger was an easy-to-get-out "cousin."

"Ted's a great guy," Turley explained Monday between workouts over the winding paths through San Antonio's wooded Brackenridge Park.

"When he comes to the plate you know you've got to bear down," he added. "It's a pleasure in many ways to pitch to him, because you realize it's a big test. And, when you do get him out, then you have a great feeling of satisfaction."

Turley, who's building a home here for his San Antonio-reared wife, is getting in shape for another season with the American League champs, but he hasn't had a baseball in his hand since the Bronx Bombers' tour of Japan and the Far East.

He's doing daily roadwork jogs through the park and taking exercises at the YMCA.

"But I won't touch a baseball until spring training," he said. "All I want to do is get my legs in shape. If they are all right, I think my arm will be okay."

Despite a better showing last year as far as control is concerned, Turley still isn't satisfied with the degree of regularity that he puts the ball where he and the catcher want it.

"I've got to work on my control," he said. "I think it was better last year, but I'm not satisfied."

He said Yankee pitching coach Jim Turner had taught him a lot, "but I'm afraid you can't teach control; it just has to come."

Turley said he thought his fast ball last year was "just as good as ever," but that his curve "might have been a little better."

But, he said, "the curve never is any good without control. The same thing is true for a changeup pitch."

Marciano Holds Wide Edge Over His Challengers

CHICAGO —UP— Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano holds a wider edge over his challengers than any champion in history, Fred Saddy said Monday in announcing the quarterly National Boxing Association ratings in each division.

Only Marciano and featherweight champion Sandy Saddler were without a logical contender for their titles.

"The gap between the heavyweight champion and others in his division has never been as wide as it is now in history," Saddy, chairman of the ratings committee, said.

Bob Baker of Pennsylvania and Nino Valdes of Cuba were listed one-two as the outstanding boxers in the heavyweight class while eight heavyweights drew honorable mention. In order they were Tommy Jackson, New York; Johnny Holman, Illinois; Willie Pastrano, Louisiana; John Summerlin, Michigan; Bob Satterfield, Illinois; Franco Cavicchi, Italy; Jimmy Slade, New York, and Harold Carter, New Jersey.

Phil Reavis Steals Show At Knights Of Columbus Tilts

BOSTON —UP— Villanova sophomore Phil Reavis will be jumping almost to the roof of Boston Garden by the time he is a senior, according to the collective judgment of 11,589 who saw him scale 6 feet 9 3-4 inches at the Knights of Columbus games Saturday.

The youngster from nearby Somerville gave an unexpected jolt to the crowd that came to the meet thinking the O'Reilly mile would steal the show.

Tack writers voted Reavis tops and gave fourth place to Ron Delany, 19 year old sophomore from Villanova and Dublin, Ireland. He ran the mile in 4:11.02, too far away from the magic four-minute mark to get the crowd into a frenzy.

To Delany, however, must go the consideration that he had trained for the 1,000 and transferred to give the mile a smacking of glamor after Wes Santee took himself out of the running. Likewise, it was only Delany's second attempt at a mile in his career and the first one indoors.

Solon To Challenge Texas' Co.'s Stock Purchase Ban

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — UP— Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) is preparing to challenge the Texas Company's right to prohibit its employes from buying stock in any oil firm "which might come in conflict" with interests of Texaso.

The ban was posted as a new policy rule last month at a company plant at Port Arthur, Tex. For a time it raised threats of a strike.

O'Mahoney, the Senate's No. 1 trust-buster, advised President O. A. Knight of the Oil and Atomic Workers Union that the order "violated the economic independence" of Texas workers. Knight had asked him to investigate "this most un-American concept."

To Take Before Committee

The senator said he would place the matter before his Senate monopoly subcommittee. He also said he would demand from Texaco "a full list of oil and gas holdings of its officers and directors" to see whether conflict-of-interest, as applied to the workers, was a one-way street.

The company, one of the nation's biggest, is standing pat on the order. Pending developments it had no official comment but industry sources predicted it will defend vigorously its policy rights over its employes and probably will refuse to surrender the executive list.

Sources close to the senator said he had not yet requested the list, because of the burden of other Senate business, but that he fully intends to. They said he regards the issue "as serious enough to warrant an investigation."

Aimed At Small Company

The dispute originated with OAWU Local 4-23 at Port Arthur when Texaco issued the rule. The company specified that it was aimed particularly at "a small local company." It inferentially questioned whether workers owning an interest in this firm could give Texaco their undivided allegiance.

A strike threat was issued by union group Chairman Ray Andrus. With Knight's backing, he told Texaco he would by-pass grievance machinery and shut down the plant "if any man was fired." The local also authorized an immediate strike vote if any employe was discharged.

Andrus said that if order's general teams were enforced, more more than half the workers would be affected. Knight said the ban—which he called an infamous directive—"indicates an attitude totally incompatible with the American concept of free enterprise."

Wants Executives Affected Too

If it applies to the workers, he said, it applies equally to Texaco executives.

In addition to seeking O'Mahoney's intercession, Knight wrote to Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, and Winthrop Smith, managing partner of the investment brokerage firm of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, New York. He asked that they use their influence to persuade Texaco to withdraw the ban.

The order applied to workers, their families, relatives and anyone holding "such an interest" in trust for an employe. But "it does not apply if the (rival) company is large enough that such ownership could not reasonably be expected to influence an employe to act in conflict with the interest of the Texas Company."

You save when you have your tires made perfectly round (trued) and your wheels balanced because round tires wear longer, balanced wheels give more mileage. In addition the round tires and balanced wheels work together to cut down front end wear on shock absorbers, springs and older parts.

High Spot Bounce

Your tires stretch as the molecules of rubber align themselves with the stresses of the tires. This action causes high spots and dished out acres. Irregularities vary from 1-64th of an inch to 3-169ths of an inch on passenger tires. On truck tires the irregularities measure a half inch and often more.

As these irregularities hit the ground they cause bumps and slow the wheel is immediate excessive spot measuring a 32nd of an inch causes slaps, bumps and jumps that over tax bearings, bushings, pins, shock absorber ans springs.

There is mmediate excessive tire wear around the high spot, a condition that increases the vibration. Tire life and car life are shortened abnormally Driver fatigue is greater.

Wheel Balancing

The other half of this happy driving team is wheel balancing, a must under modern driving conditions. It cuts the wear, repair bills, provides longer car life and adds safety to your driving pleasure.

With the Alemite Electronic Wheel Balancer there is no guess work. The job is done right before your eyes with the most amazing machine you ever saw. You can watch the dial yourself!

Balance Advantages

Wheel balancing gives you these advantages:

Saves tires: guarantees longer life.

Smoother driving: removes shimmy and shake.

Nomore front end bounce: banished.

Easier steering.

Don't wait. Let Hall & Pinson check your wheels today, quickly, easily, right on your car before your eyes.

Hall supervises the installation of all seat covers at Hall & Pinson to make sure the job is done correctly.

Come in, talk over your tire and seat cover problems with Leymond, and discuss your other motoring problems with him. You will like his supggestions. Drive in Hall & Pinson, 700 W. Foster, 4-3521.

Dust Stoppers
Aluminum Storm Windows
(Pat. Pending)
- The First and only Proven Aluminum STORM WINDOWS to be manufactured in Texas.
- Over 11,000 units sold and installed in past 24 months which is proof of their success.
- Each DUST STOPPER is custom built to fit your windows, not a stock window fit with expanders as is the case with many storm windows on the market. The difference is as great as there is between dime store eye glasses and ones fitted by a specialist.
- Do not be fooled into buying storm windows that do not have weather stripping such as most Eastern types which you will recognize because of their half screens, as they will not keep out the dust and dirt. FHA requires weatherstripping in all double hung windows for new construction whether they be made of wood, aluminum or steel. So why do you think a storm window without weather stripping will keep out dirt?
- All DUST STOPPERS are 100% weather-stripped.
- Installed by Factory trained Installation Crews, working direct out of Factory with the latest type equipment, and the experience of how to use it. We have turned down several prospective dealers as they wanted to install the Dust Stopper themselves but did not have proper experience or equipment necessary to do the type of an installation that we require.
- The next time you think of storm windows, remember the above facts and let our trained engineers show you the difference. For free estimate call or write

Texan Faces More Trouble In Plane Crash

FRIONA, Tex. —UP— A small town Texan, whose smooth talk got him in trouble in half a dozen cities of two states, faced still more trouble Monday after cracking up a $9,000 borrowed airplane.

He was Leonard L. Hanna, who crash landed the plane as about half the town of Friona watched. Residents were attracted to the small airport after Hanna, who suffered a head injury in the crash, circled the field eight times before trying to land with his flaps down.

The plane went through two fences and nosed over before stopping. Hanna went to the hospital, where attendants said they expected he would be released later Monday. The law said it would be waiting.

Arrives Saturday

The husky Hanna turned up in the plane Saturday at the Friona airport, where he used to work. He and the plane, owned by Yingling Aircraft Co., of Wichita, Kan., had been missing since last Friday.

The company lent him the plane after he put up a $1,000 check on a new Cessna that wasn't immediately available. Hanna left a new Lincoln automobile at the Wichita airport when he took off. It was taken over by police.

He got the Lincoln in Pampa, Tex., where he traded in a new Buick, authorities said. The Buck was obtained in Muleshoe, Tex., where Deputy Sheriff Bill Boothe said Hanna was wanted for swindling. Hanna allegedly gave a $500 bad check for the car. He also was wanted in Plainview, Tex., for giving a $5,500 worthless check on a new Cadillac.

To Be Charged

Deputy Sheriff Jim Roberts of Friona said Hanna would be charged with passing an $8,000 bad check to Elva Jennings, the airport owner. He was to have received a commission for selling an airplane, and forged the name of a non-existent Farwell man on a check for the plane, Roberts said.

Roberts said Hanna also was wanted in Amarillo and at several places in Oklahoma.

The officer said Hanna, 25, told him at the hospital he didn't know himself why he did such things.

But Roberts had his own idea. "He likes to be a big shot," he said.

Egypt Starts New Chapter In Long History

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

Egypt started a new chapter in its long, long history Monday with the proclamation of a republican constitution.

King Farouk, the portly playboy who ruled it for 15 years, was forced off his throne by the army on July 26, 1952.

On Jan. 16, 1953, the army's revolutionary command council which took charge announced that it planned a three-year period of transition.

This period, the army promised, would be followed by the establishment of constitutional, democratic rule.

Monday, at the end of the three years, the army took the first step toward making good its promise.

Makes Proclamation

It fell to handsome, popular Gamal Abdel Nasser, president and prime minister, to proclaim the new Egyptian constitution.

It happens to be the day before Nasser's 38th birthday.

The government plans to hold a national referendum to seek popular approval of the constitution.

It also intends to organize a constituent assembly, for which Egyptians will vote.

This will be a semi-parliamentary institution, with largely consultative powers, leading to full parliamentary rule later.

Thus it may be a long time still before Egyptian rule will be put entirely in the hands of the voters.

But Egypt is still a backward country politically. The army may well argue that if it let loose its hold on the government, chaos might result. The prospect would be for the revival of the old political parties, most of them corrupt, and for unstable government.

Country is Ancient

In proclaiming the new constitution, Nasser is opening a new stage in the history of a country so old that nobody knows its origins. Only Mesopotamia has a recorded history as ancient.

It is known that Egypt was highly civilized nearly 7,000 years ago —Egypt adopted the calendar in 4241 B.C. It reached the height of its glory 3,000 years before Christ. It came under the rule of the Roman Empire and later of Turkey. It went under British rule at the turn of the last century.

Now Egypt has emerged as one of the world's new countries, along with its neighbors Libya and the Sudan at the northeast corner of Africa.

Let's Go Shopping

One of these days I must go shopping. I am completely out of self-respect. I want to exchange the self-righteousness I picked up the other day for some humiliation which they say is less expensive and wears longer. I want to look at some tolerance which is being used for wraps this season. Someone showed me some pretty samples of peace. We are a little low on that and one can never have too much of it. And by the way, I must try to match some patience that my neighbor wears. It is very becoming to her and I think it might look well on me. I might try on that little garment of long-suffering they are displaying. I never thought I wanted to wear it, but I feel myself coming to it. Also I must not forget to have my sense of appreciation mended and look around for some inexpensive everyday goodness. It is surprising how quickly one's stock of goodness is depleted.

$28.6 Million Asked For Flood Control

WASHINGTON — UP — President Eisenhower asked Congress Monday for $28.6 million for flood control, navigation and power projects in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

He also recommended against any further money for the Eufaula Reservoir in Oklahoma. He said the reservoir, along with the Dardanelle Dam in Arkansas, would commit the government to $1 billion for the development of the Arkansas River.

Congress appropriated $450,000 for each project last year.

Mr. Eisenhower called fo $18.1 million for prjects in Texas, including $400,000 for a new navigation project at Brazos Island Harbor and $800,000 for a new flood control project at the San Antonio channel.

Other Texas projects include $4 million for the McGee Bend Dam, an increase of $2,522,000.

For Oklahoma, the President requested $2 million for the Oklahoma City Floodway and $3 million for the Oologah Reservoir.

In New Mexico, he requested $3.5 million for the Middle Rio Grande Reclamation project, $1.5 million for the Chamita Reservoir and $500,000 for the Rio Grande Floodway.

Congratulations And Gags Follow Grace's Engagement

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD —UP— The surprise news of Grace Kelly's engagement to a dashing prince from Monte Carlo brought good-humored gags as well as congratulations from her colleagues around Hollywood.

The movie colony is a narrow, intimate world of its own. A noteworthy activity of a resident sends comedians rushing to their writers, columnists to their typewriters and everybody else to the telephone.

Grace's pending wedding to mustached Prince Rainier from the story-book land of Monaco inspired produced Jerry Wald and Oscar Levant, the witty pianist, to propose that Beverly Hills be made a tax-free principality, too.

"We will petition Los Angeles to let us secede and be like Monaco," declared Wald. "We have a city hall and postoffice that could be turned into casinos."

For the "prince" of Beverly Hills, Wald and Levant suggest handsome attorney Greg Bautzer or millionaire Howard Hughes. Marlon Brando says Levant, can lead "the revolt of the insurgents."

The local columnists have had a field day. Bill Kennedy wrote, "the Rainier Beer Co. in Seattle has a great chance to capitalize on the wedding of Prince Rainier and Grace Kelly by putting on an ad campaign, 'Rainier, the prince of beers'."

Columnist Mike Connolly reports, "Jolie Gabor is furious because her daughters let Prince Rainier slip through their fingers. Her strategy has shifted to the prince of Hanover. To arms, Eva, Magda and Zsa Zsa!"

Army Archerd writes, in daily Variety, "No, Grace won't team with Hope and Crosby for 'The Road to Monaco'." Also, "This a coupe de grace."

Independent movie producers are always quick to draw on the headlines. Clover productions registered two film titles, "Her Grace and the Prince" and "The Prince and her Grace." The King Brothers Productions registered a title, "The Man from Monaco."

Comedians got into the act, too. stuttering comie Joe Frisco wailed at a local nightclub, "If I'd been Grace Kelly's agent I'da p-packaged a deal that w-woulda netted me 10 per cent of the action at Monte Carlo."

DOG'S LIFE—Lassie, the famous dog star of movies, is now faring better in TV. He drew only $263,000 in seven years of movie stardom. His home-screen earnings last year, plus personal appearances, earned $100,000.
