Toasty Tuesday continues, Fall Sweep approaches

By AMANDA DUFORAT
Managing Editor

The residents of Big Spring and Howard County showed how much they love their lake, as more than 14 people and several businesses and local organizations showed up for the 2021 Love Our Lake Clean up. The clean up took place last Tuesday as part of the Toasty Tuesday clean up focus, and had volunteers throughout the Comanche Trail Park picking up trash.

“We had a great turnout. We had representatives from Delek, members of the disc golf group, and other local businesses on hand for about an hour,”

Liz Hafley, Vice President of Social Media for Keep Big Spring Beautiful, said.

A couple of years ago, the annual event partnered with the Comanche Warrior Triathlon. While the triathlon has not taken place the past couple of years, KBSB still focuses on cleaning up the waterways as part of the Keep Texas Beautiful campaign. Last Tuesday the volunteers could be found throughout the park, the hour leading up to sundown.

“Our clean up efforts are making a difference. We are finding that many of the areas are starting to stay cleaner and more people are starting to get involved with us,” she said.

This week’s Toasty Tuesday will focus on the FM 700 area headed toward Kentwood. There are only a few weeks left in Toasty Tuesday, due to the time change coming up the first week of November. Before wrapping up clean up efforts for the year, KBSB will be hosting the Fall Sweep.

“Each year we focus on the downtown area around Main Street and the Courthouse,” she said. “We are inviting community members to come out and join us, even if only for 30 minutes.”

To find out more about KBSB attend a meeting, held on the first Monday of the month, at Howard College in the Cactus Room.

“And a lot of the things that are going on now: The anxiety of having COVID around, ‘What’s going to happen to my loved ones?’ That has intensified the anxiety level in many people. That’s kind of happening to a lot of us.”

The screening is entirely confidential, she stressed.

“We do have a little questionnaire form to fill out, and then we have our staff that will kind of go over each of the questions with the individual,” Vidal said. “They have a screening tool, and they’ll let them know what level they’re at. A lot of times we’ve had people come in, and they just needed someone to talk to and once they kind of got that off their chest, they felt better. Or, sometimes we can refer them and send them to talk to a counselor. I’m not the clinician so I can’t really say what they tell them, but I do know they are there to offer some sort of assistance as far as resources and recommendations.”

Vidal encouraged people who have been diagnosed with COVID-19, or who are displaying actual COVID symptoms, especially fever, coughing, or shortness of breath; but also, chills, fatigue, muscle/body aches, headache, new loss of taste or smell, sore throat, congestion or runny nose, nausea or vomiting, or diarrhea, and who also have questions about or symptoms of depression, to call the West Texas Centers’ Crisis Hotline rather than attend the in-person screening.

“I’m sure we’re going to have a setup, a pre-screening there before they enter. Their temperature taken and a questionnaire to fill out prior to entering,” Vidal said. “We do encourage the community, if they have been sick, to please be considerate.”

The Hotline number is 1-800-375-4357, she said.

in a class. Used to, I could have 20 or 25 people in a class, and then with the pandemic and everything, we were cut down to where we could only have 10 people in a class. It also affected the amount of days we could have class, because we had to alternate with some of the other subjects. In the area where we taught, there was a lady that did English as a Second Language. We had a computer class, and we had a horticulture class. So we had to alternate days so that all four of the classes would not be there on the same day. So it really cut back on the instruction that we were able to give to our students.”

The need to slow the spread of the disease is creating a similar situation at Howard, he said.

“They’re limiting them. There’s not an official

COVID issue right now, but a lot of it is, they’re trying to possibly mitigate any potential breakouts,” he said. “So they’re limiting the amount of people and they’re limiting the amount of people that can be in a classroom. So if you have a larger class, some of those are having to possibly go from being in person to being online.”

Alexander said a good portion of his family is Howard County based.

“I have two sisters and a brother that live here,” he said. “My mother taught home economics at the high school, and my dad worked for Cosden Fina for years. Then I have a brother and two sisters that live here, and then a brother in Arlington and a brother in Decatur.”

Welcome to Howard College, Professor Alexander!

The combined score of both teams placed the Steers in third as well. This is just the beginning of an excellent season for the swim and dive team from Big Spring.

Annie's Mailbox

Were My Kids Singled Out?

Dear Annie: In the 12 years since my first child was born (and two more children followed), our military family has yet to actually celebrate Christmas in our own home because we are always traveling to our families' homes, lest we hear from hurt grandparents bemoaning our absence.

Thus, every December, we have to balance the competing desires of two sets of grandparents who currently live six hours away from us in opposite directions (we're in the middle) and who will pour on the guilt about not seeing their grandchildren. Additionally, the rest of the year, we also must drop everything and make regular pilgrimages to see them, always on our dime.

While we love our parents and our children love their grandparents, my spouse and I have jobs, lives and are limited on time and resources. It's particularly galling when our two sets of retired parents, who are quite financially secure with plenty of time, demand that we must always be the visiting team.

Grandparents need to understand that, unless there is some overriding health or mobility concern, the road between their children and grandchildren goes both ways and they can make the trip occasionally. -- Daughter on the Perpetually Visiting Team

Dear Perpetually Visiting Daughter:
Thank you for your letter and for your family's service in our military. Your letter addresses a very important point. Every relationship is a two-way street and must remain balanced.

If you feel like you are doing all the traveling to see your mom, then tell her that. Communicate to her what you said in this letter. And as for all the grandparents reading this, maybe they will pack their bags today and start visiting their busy children and grandchildren.

Dear Annie: I'm sitting at this wedding writing to you because I was asked to get child care for this event, but everyone here brought their kids. My nephews, over whom I have custody, have disabilities, but they are well-behaved at public events like this.

I feel that I was purposely told not to include them, and I feel terrible because there are family photos at the end of this, and they will not be included. This is embarrassing.

I care about my boys as if they were my own. I have no other children, and I feel so disappointed in my family for hiding them away. -- Hurt Feelings

Dear Hurt: How someone treats you and your children says more about them than it does about you. If you know that your children behave well in public, just feel proud of the job you are doing, and continue to build them up.

Don't write a narrative of the reasons why the bride and groom didn't invite your children to the wedding. Without having a conversation with the bride, you don't know what her thought process was in making the invitation list. Try to let it go, and do your best to forgive her for any hurt feelings. Congrats on doing such a great job with your nephews.

The bidding:
North East South West
Pass Pass 4 ♠ Dble

Opening lead — two of hearts.

The number 13 is regarded by many as an omen of bad luck. But in bridge, the player who refuses to have anything to do with this supposedly sinister number would be well-advised to give up the game.

This is because 13 is the key number in bridge: Each player is dealt 13 cards, each suit has 13 cards, and the number of possible tricks is 13. Thirteen is even the number of points needed for an opening bid.

Despite this, the fact remains that many bad results attributed to bad luck are actually traceable to a failure to take advantage of the number 13.

Tomorrow: The inevitable conclusion.

The ideas behind strength-based parenting

Many a parent is familiar with the notion that children do not come with instruction manuals. Since babies are not born with instruction manuals, the best way to raise children is open to interpretation, and interpretations often lead to theories on parenting.

One such theory is strength-based parenting, an approach that focuses on developing and nurturing a child's character.

Dr. Lea Waters, a Melbourne, Australia-based psychologist and author, has studied ways to improve interactions between parents and their children for decades. Dr. Waters emphasizes the value of identifying and nurturing children's character strengths, and the value that such efforts can have in regard to promoting children's long-term happiness and achievements.

In an article for Great-er Good Magazine,

Dr. Waters defined character strengths as those things that are personality-based and internal, including curiosity, courage, humor, and kindness. These character strengths work in conjunction with talents, which may include things like athletic ability, musical skills and problem-solving.

Strength-based parenting espouses the importance of cultivating kids' character strengths as much as their talents. Dr. Waters notes that it would be hard to find anyone who made the most of their talents without also relying on their character strengths.

For example, even the most gifted natural athletes need to draw on their work ethic in order to reach their full potential as athletes.

Dr. Waters' research has led her to conclude that children and teenagers whose parents help them to identify and use their character strengths benefit from that assistance in myriad ways.

Such children experience more positive emotions and flow, are more persistent, are more confident, and are more satisfied with their lives compared to children whose parents did not help them identify and use their character strengths.

Dr. Waters' research, published in 2018, also found that children whose parents took a strength-based approach to parenting earned better grades, were less stressed, more capable of coping with friendship issues, and more capable of coping with homework deadlines than children whose parents did not employ a strength-based approach to parenting.

Parenting is a big responsibility, and parents can explore various approaches to raising happy children to fulfill their responsibilities as parents.

One such approach is strength-based parenting, which parents can explore on their own to decide if it's an approach they want to pursue.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 5, the 278th day of 2021. There are 87 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 5, 1989, a jury in Charlotte, North Carolina, convicted former P-T-L evangelist Jim Bakker (BAY'-kur) of using his television show to defraud followers. (Although initially sentenced to 45 years in prison, Bakker was freed in December 1994 after serving 4 1/2 years.)

On this date:

In 1931, Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon completed the first non-stop flight across the Pacific Ocean, arriving in Washington state some 41 hours after leaving Japan.

In 1947, President Harry S. Truman delivered the first televised White House address as he spoke on the world food crisis.

In 1953, Earl Warren was sworn in as the 14th chief justice of the United States, succeeding Fred M. Vinson.

In 1955, a stage adaptation of "The Diary of Anne Frank" by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett opened at the Cort Theatre in New York.

In 1958, racially-desegregated Clinton High School in Clinton, Tennessee, was mostly leveled by an early morning bombing.

In 1969, the British TV comedy program "Monty Python's Flying Circus" made its debut on BBC 1.

In 1983, Solidarity founder Lech Walesa (lek vah-WEN'-sah) was named winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

In 2001, tabloid photo editor Robert Stevens died from inhaled anthrax, the first of a series of anthrax cases in Florida, New York, New Jersey and Washington.

In 2005, defying the White House, senators voted 90-9 to approve an amendment sponsored by Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., that would prohibit the use of "cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment" against anyone in U.S. government custody. (A reluctant President George W. Bush later signed off on the amendment.)

In 2015, the United States, Japan and 10 other nations in Asia and the Americas reached agreement on the landmark Trans-Pacific Partnership trade deal.

In 2017, California Gov. Jerry Brown signed legislation extending protections for immigrants living in the United States illegally; police in California would be barred from asking people about their immigration status or taking part in federal immigration enforcement activities.

In 2018, a jury in Chicago convicted white police officer Jason Van Dyke of second-degree murder in the 2014 shooting of Black teenager Laquan McDonald.

Ten years ago: Steve Jobs, 56, the Apple founder and former chief executive who'd invented and master-marketed ever sleeker gadgets that transformed everyday technology from the personal computer to the iPod and iPhone, died in Palo Alto, California. Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, 89, a civil rights activist who endured arrests, beatings and injuries from fire hoses while fighting for racial equality in the segregated South of the 1960s, died in Birmingham, Alabama.

Five years ago: Portugal's former prime minister Antonio Guterres won the Security Council's unanimous backing to become the next U.N. secretary-general, succeeding Ban Ki-moon.

One year ago: President

Donald Trump staged a dramatic return to the White House after leaving the military hospital where he was receiving an unprecedented level of care for COVID-19; Trump immediately ignited a new controversy by declaring that despite his illness, the nation should not fear the virus. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said the coronavirus could spread more than 6 feet through the air, especially in poorly ventilated and enclosed spaces, but that such spread was uncommon and that current social distancing guidelines still made sense. As the Supreme Court began its new term, a statement from conservative justices Clarence Thomas and Samuel Alito suggested that the court needed to revisit its decision to affirm the right to gay marriage.

Last Day of Plutonian Retrograde

For a downgraded planet in the outfield of our solar system, Pluto has larger psychic weight than his mass. Events of destruction and rebirth are covered in the Plutonian realm. The current exploration of Capricorn focuses Pluto on our power structures and how we work them. New insights and approaches are coming soon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Does it seem like your loved ones think of you as a genie in their service? They'll make requests; resist fulfilling these orders in a way that seems magic and immediate, or they'll just keep asking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). When you feel yourself competing, something may be off. This may not be the right group for you. Those who truly appreciate what you bring to the table won't ask you to compete for your spot.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll be in a position to plan a meeting, party, vacation or project. Make it easy on yourself. The two factors to get right are the location and the invite list. The fewer people involved, the better.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). To contrive for self-advantage is the folly of children. The individual is usually best served within a thriving group. You'll work toward making the group great and be lifted along with it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). All the birds in the flock will fly accordingly; not so in the human flock. Not everyone in the group feels like they belong there. When they begin an activity, it will take a minute to get in sync. Be patient.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You are not materialistic, though you like nice things. The reason you want to improve your environment is so people will feel more comfortable in it. People are always more important than things.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The most valuable books in the store are sometimes sealed in packages so only the buyer can look inside. Being the wondrous mystery you are, you'll apply the principle to good effect.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The unknown is scary, but once it is known, it won't be the least bit frightening. So hope for the best and step forward just like hundreds have done before you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Everything you build will start with a foundation and this takes time to get right. Positioning is everything. Test the soil. Consider the light. Try it a few different ways. Take your time and get this important decision right. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). When the action is rewarding in and of itself, you don't have to worry about making the commitment. Volunteering is safe now. You're not likely to obligate yourself into anything unexpected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You have the best kind of creativity right now. It doesn't have to do with singing, painting or dancing now; it's really just an attitude you bring to everything you do. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It's a theme that will come up at least three times today: There's more than meets the eye. People will surprise you, work will challenge you and ordinary errands will delight you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 5). You are not really trying to command respect and influence others, but it's what happens as you take care of your people and do what's necessary for the group to thrive. Your professional status rises. The end of the year brings much love and celebration. Something you made will have a life of its own -- a joy to watch. Aries and Gemini adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 19, 2, 22 and 16.

COSMIC QUESTION: "How long is a funk supposed to last? I'm a Virgo and I've been in the worst mood. I can't think of one thing I like in my life right now. I'm not depressed; I'm just wondering when my life is going to get started?"

Instead of waiting for a Saturn transit to be over or stalling until Venus enters your sign, I encourage you to take charge of this one, Virgo. In the psychometrics field of study, there is a type of data gathering system called the "experience sampling method" in which a person is signaled at various times a day to stop and write in a journal, answering questions such as where you are, what you are doing, who you are with, what you are thinking about, your mood, etc. These findings compile to show you trends and triggers and a broader view of what's going on. As the sign of analysis, you will find the data eye-opening. You will check your mental story against how things really are. You'll see objectively areas that may be easily adjusted, for instance, whom you hang out with or where you go. You'll be amazed at the lift you get from employing small changes.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: When she's not rescuing people from house fires or setting the big screen aflame with a performance, Kate Winslet is like most Libras cherishing the tranquility of a balanced and harmonized life. Such things get trickier with the full schedule Winslet has in the months to come, which includes the release of "Avatar 2" and three new films in production.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
