County pecan show set

The Crockett County Pecan Show has been set for December 7. The show is sponsored annually by the Crockett County Program Building Committee.

According to Billy Reagor, County Agent, there is an excellent pecan crop both in quality and quantity in the area.

Since nuts are maturing 3 to 4 weeks earlier than normal, people interested in entering the pecan show should select their nuts now. Generally, the best quality nuts mature early and are the first ones to fall.

Individuals should select 45 to 50 nuts of the same variety (off the same tree); sack them in a brown paper bag and store them in a cool dry place until the pecan show in December. Turn entries in to the Extension Office (top floor of courthouse annex) or take them to the Civic Center December 7.

Adair to speak at D&D event

Jimmy Adair will be the guest speaker for the 1st Annual Industry Appreciation Night honoring bosses. The Tri-Cities Desk & Derrick Club will hold its November 3 meeting at the Sonora Fire Station at 7 p.m. The theme of the evening will be "Oilfield Country" and the dress will be casual.

Firefighter, Danny Clayton will accompany Adair.

"Antelope Run", a fire-fighting film will be shown with time for questions following.

Hospitality hour will begin at 7 p.m. with the program following.

The meeting will be open to the public, but due to the popularity of the speaker and topic, we would like to ask those who wish to please make a reservation with any D&D member, or call 387-5393. Monday, November 2nd, will be the last day for reservations.

Industry appreciation night is held each year by all 114 clubs, to show appreciation to the industry, bosses and guest speakers who have been so helpful this year.

grapher Tuesday morning. Besides tricks and treats, Ozona youngsters will have the annual Halloween Carnival to attend Saturday night, beginning at 6 o'clock in the downtown park.

Proposed amendments, pro and con-

Special election for amendments is Tuesday

Ozonans will go to the polls Tuesday, Nov. 3, along with other Texas voters to vote "for" or "against" seven proposed amendments to the state constitution. Very little interest has been shown locally, with only five voters casting absentee ballots as of Monday afternoon.

Polling places in all precincts will be open at 7:00 a.m. and will close at 7:00 p.m. Polling places will be the courthouse for precinct 1; the junior high building for precinct 2; the auditorium-coliseum for precinct 3; WTU power plant for box 6, precinct 3, and the Ozona Primary School library for precinct 4.

Amendment number one is similar to one rejected by the voters in 1978. It would allow local governments to exempt properties in certain run-down areas of cities from property taxation to encourage redevelopment. It would also allow the issuance of tax increment bonds, the proceeds from which would be used to redevelop the area.

Proponents of the amendment think the authority to grant exemptions from property taxation would provide incentives for rebuilding economically distressed areas, and employment would increase. Also, tax increment financing would provide cities with flexible incentives for re-development and capital at lower interest rates plus exemption from taxation would be attractive to private business.

Opponents protest that cities would be able to remove from their tax rolls a substantial amount of the value of all taxable property, placing the burden on owners of the taxable property remaining on the rolls. Also tax increment financing would not be limited to use by small businesses and large national corporations would be subsidized.

Amendment number 2 provides a remedy for obtaining patent on certain public school land. It would allow Jessie Johnson, an 80-year-old farmer, and others like him who hold a deed to certain land and have occupied and paid taxes on it for over 50 years to clear title. There is no reason not to vote for this one.

Amendment number three is similar to one rejected by the voters in 1980. It would set up a state management committee to manage the appropriation of state funds. The committee would consist of the Governor, Lt. Governor, Speaker, two representatives and two senators. Those "for" the amendment think by giving a committee of elected officials the power to oversee expenditures, unnecessary spending could be cut and efficiency increased. Those "against" the amendment think the committee's power will be too important and too extensive and it would be easy to circumvent legislative intent and change state policy. Also, the potential for mutual back-scratching between some of the most powerful figures in each governmental branch would far outweigh the advantage of having a central budget management authority.

Amendment number four is Speaker Clayton's Water Fund Amendment. It is lengthy and complex, but basically would set up a water fund to finance water-related projects across the state, establish a bond program to help communities fund their own water projects, and finally raise the amount of interest that may be paid on state constitutional bonds, such as water, student loan, veterans' land, and park bonds from 6 to 12 percent.

Proponents of the amendment believe a dedication of the state's excess tax revenue is vital to assure that money will be available to state and local government to continue to provide an adequate water supply and thus protect the well-being of the state's people.

Opponents of the amendment do not believe the state should embark on a financing program as proposed by this amendment that will tie up funds for specific purposes and will not allow the state to maintain financial flexibility. They also believe the state has too many dedicated funds and that the proposal is so broad that it has the effect of making unknown amounts of money available for numerous unknown purposes.

Amendment number five would provide for the inclusion of livestock and poultry with farm products as exempt from taxation. As a result of Attorney General John Hill's ruling, "farm products" do not include livestock and poultry, so wheat, corn, peaches, etc. is not taxed in the state while sheep, pigs, chickens, etc. are. Those "for" the proposal say adoption would result in all agricultural producers being treated alike for purposes of taxation. Those "against" feel livestock is not a perishable farm product and adoption of the amendment should eliminate this property tax revenue and create a hardship on local governments where a large number of cattle feedlots are located.

Amendment number six would allow political subdivisions to exempt from property taxation a percentage of the market value of all residence homesteads and change notification procedures when taxes are raised. This amendment is apparently an attempt to soften the blow of reappraisal at full market value, which is creating havoc all over the state. Proponents of the amendment believe appraisal at full market value will shift the local property tax burden from business property to residential property and that adoption of the amendment would correct this. Homes are not a revenue-producing commodity and proponents of the proposal feel the tax burden should not fall on the home-owner. Opponents feel the amendment would extend unnecessary tax relief to owners of residences and shift more of the tax burden to owners of businesses. They also believe the present notice requirement is adequate.

Amendment number seven would authorize the Veterans' Land Board to sell an additional $250 million in bonds for the veterans' land fund and raise the interest rate from 6% to 10%. Proponents believe in order to continue the program and extend benefits to those veterans who were eligible, but

Lions stunned by Mason 36-3

The Ozona Puncheders stunned the Ozona Lions Friday night to the tune of 35-3, handing the Lions their second district defeat and dimming their chances of capturing the district crown.

The Puncheders, led by running back Jeff Dutton, completely dominated the game. Dutton ran all over the usually ferocious Lions as he scored four touchdowns and rushed for 214 yards, and the Lion defense could do nothing to stop him.

The Lion offense could only muster one score, a 29-yard field goal from the toe of Will Mason. The Lions really sealed their doom in the second half, losing three fumbles which the Mason team promptly turned into touchdowns.

The Lions have an open date Friday night, giving them time, perhaps to lick their wounds before they take on the Menard Yellow-jackets Nov. 6.

The Lions fared poorly in the statistic department as well against the Puncheders, only managing 5 first downs to 16 for Mason. The Lions had 88 yards rushing to 314 for the Puncheders. The passing game was fairly even with the Lions gaining 42 yards in the air to 45 for Mason. The Lions completed 4 out of 17 attempted passes and suffered an interception. The Puncheders attempted 8 passes and completed 3. The Lions lost the ball three times on fumbles while Mason lost one fumble.

Couple injured in auto crash

Mr. and Mrs. O.D. West were critically injured in a two-vehicle crash in front of the Methodist Church at 9:30 Sunday morning. They were taken to Shannon Hospital in San Angelo. Mr. West was removed from intensive care to a private room Monday.

Mrs. West, who was more seriously injured was still on the critical list Tuesday, but reported in slightly improved condition. The Wests were on their way to church when the accident occurred. Mr. West was driving a 1976 Oldsmobile east on Eleventh Street when he attempted a left turn. The car was hit broadside on the passenger side by a 1979 Chevy van, driven by Victor Munoz and traveling west on Eleventh street.

The van hit the door where

Mrs. West was riding and she was pinned in the wreckage until firemen arrived and used the Jaws of Life tool to free her. She was taken to Shannon by the Crockett County Ambulance Service, accompanied by Dr. Don Carlisle. Mrs. West was in "poor" condition with head injuries, internal injuries, facial cuts and bruises and broken bones.

Mr. West suffered chest injuries and was taken by automobile to the San Angelo facility.

Beth Boyd, daughter of the injured couple, reported "slight" improvement in her mother's condition Tuesday, but she was still in "critical" condition in the Intensive Care Unit.

Trooper Bob Bailey, DPS, investigated the accident.

Halloween carnival set for Saturday

The Ozona Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the annual Halloween Carnival again this year in the downtown park. Carnival time is 6:00 p.m. and booths will stay open until patrons call it a night.

Booths offered will be the popular fish pond, ring toss, grab bag, ball bingo, target shoot, pony ride, sponge throw, darts, bean bag toss, balloon darts, cake walk, concession stand, tamale stand, dessert booth, make-up booth, fortune telling, sand-sift, candle shoot, nickel toss, popcorn stand and bingo.

Organizations manning the booths include the Brownie troop, Girl Scout troops 128, 228, 51 and 261; 4-H adult leaders, Phi Sigma Omega, South Side Lions Club, OHS band boosters, Catholic Women's Society, senior Sunday School Class of the Methodist Church, Y.A.C., Ozona Community Center, Alpha Alpha Mu and Ozona Chamber of Commerce.

SERIOUS INJURIES were sustained by Mrs. O.D. West here Sunday morning when this car in which she was a passenger was struck broadside by a van. Mr. West, who was driving, was less seriously injured. Both were hospitalized in Shannon Hospital in San Angelo. Mr. West was removed from the ICU Monday, but Mrs. West was still in critical condition.

POLAND MARKED BY PATIENCE, PERSISTENCE

By Edwin Feulner

WARSAW, Poland — A joke making the rounds now is that a high Polish official, while visiting Moscow, looked out of his hotel window and said, "I am really happy I don't have to govern this mess."

Poland is a study in paradoxes — nominally Marxist yet deeply religious; disdainful of the Soviet Union, yet dependent on the Soviets for its economic viability; moving toward a quasi-democratic system more rapidly than any Western observer could predict, yet uncertain where this road will take her.

The Polish economy is in shambles. People form lines automatically when a meat truck pulls up at a butcher's shop.

The unofficial rate of exchange for the Polish zloty is ten times higher than the official rate. A government official confidently advised me that the official exchange rate will be halved, to "reflect current realities."

The barter economy has reappeared. One Pole I met needed two cans of motor oil for his small car — the price was one bottle of vodka!

Coffee is available only in hard currency stores, but the vegetables from Poland's potentially productive agricultural sector are in plentiful supply, now that the crops are being harvested.

The coal will run out this winter, because the production rate in Silesian mines is down substantially. If it is a cold winter, watch for more strikes and riots.

Yet there is a certain realism here. One outspoken professor (and, it seemed to me that all Poles are outspoken) said, "The Communist Party has ruined the Polish economy, not the Polish people." He continued, "We need to try the free enterprise system, so we can learn how initiative works to help the individual."

The problem in all this, a young journalist told me, is that the Polish people might lose faith in both the newly restructured Communist Party and in "Solidarity," the independent trade union. "The Poles are patient people," he said, "but if we become too busy with meeting our basic necessities of life, we will lose the advantages we already have gained and fall back into the old ways."

Poland is complex as well as contradictory. The Catholic Church looms over everything. The crypt in Warsaw's Cathedral where the late Primate of Poland, Cardinal Wyszyński, is buried, is always crowded with visitors — not just old women, but young people, families, teenagers. The Church is not only the mediator between Solidarity and the Polish Communist Party, it is also the center of Polish life and a bulwark of Polish liberty.

John L. Paluszek, in an interesting book published earlier this year, (An American Journey, American Ethnic Press, Box 1994, Grand Central Station, New York), notes that Polish history comes alive every hour when a bugle call, the Hejnał, is sounded from the tower of St. Mary's Church in Cracow. Tradition has it, Paluszek writes, that the bugle call was first played hundreds of years ago by a trumpeter-watchman to warn of an approaching enemy. "According to legend, an ancient trumpeter was in the middle of a warning when a Tartar arrow pierced his throat and killed him instantly. Today, the hourly bugle call ends abruptly in the middle of a note." Every Pole who hears it — and it is broadcast nationally every day at noon on all Polish radio stations — knows what it symbolizes.

The pace of change in this Communist society is dizzying. Elections for Communist Party leadership; an independent union movement; a vigorous church; talk of free enterprise; independently-run firms; and a disdain for the Soviets, lead to the conclusion that change in Poland will continue and that we may be witnessing the first step in the disintegration of the Soviet Communist empire.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Legislators flocked back to the State Capitol last week to put finishing touches on redistricting plans and send them with a good luck kiss toward this week's final vote.

The five-member Redistricting Board must complete work on new Texas House and Senate districts by midnight Wednesday, Oct. 28, or the task automatically goes to the courts.

One plan for the Senate has already been presented by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. Speaker Bill Clayton and Comptroller Bob Bullock were expected to present their maps earlier this week.

The Hobby plan does not pair any incumbent senators, since four senators have decided not to seek re-election: Walter Mengden, R-Houston; Dee Travis, R-Dallas; Bill Meier, R-Euless; and Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler.

Mengden is vacating his seat to run against incumbent U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a Democrat. The arch-conservative made his announcement last week, and in the media blitz he repeatedly criticized Bentsen for voting for the windfall profits tax.

The accusation was bit of a faux pas, since Bentsen has always been a staunch foe of the windfall tax.

Travis will also vacate his Senate seat to campaign for the Dallas congressional seat given up by fellow Republican Jim Collins.

Meier, a former Democrat who switched parties this year with an eye on Collins seat, has announced he will not seek election to any office, but will work for the re-election of Gov. Bill Clements.

McKnight Announces

One Democrat who wants to face Clements at the polls is McKnight, who for weeks has been rounding up grass roots support.

At an Austin meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee last week, McKnight officially threw his hat into the ring, saying he couldn't afford to wait any longer. He estimated it would take between $5 million to $6 million to beat Clements, who spent $7 million for a 1978 victory.

White, Armstrong

Also expected to be in the thick of the Democratic primary is outgoing Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, and, perhaps, Attorney General Mark White.

Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe and former Atty. Gen. John Hill, who bloodied the party with their 1978 primary warfare, are expected to act as power brokers for their factions, rather than be candidates.

Water Fund Opposed

Hobby surprised many people last week by publicly opposing the proposed water fund amendment which would dedicate half of the state's surplus tax dollars for undetermined water projects across the state.

The amendment is the brain-child of Speaker Clayton, who seeks imported water for drying-up areas of the Panhandle, and it is actively supported by Clements.

Hobby's tenacious opposition to dedicated fund programs is well known around the Capitol, and his stance did not startle observers as much as his outspokenness on this amendment.

The political ramifications are intriguing, particularly in light of how this amendment might affect Clayton's political career. The four-term Speaker long ago announced he will not return to the House, and would like to run for statewide office, probably Land Commissioner.

Brlab Cloud

But more than one statewide poll reveals a high negative public sentiment attached to Clayton, presumably because of last year's Brlab scandal. Clayton was acquitted of indictments for taking a bribe and peddling influence, but his backers and detractors are now wondering if the voters will also give Clayton a "not guilty" verdict.

Thus, whether rightly or not, Clayton's water fund amendment is regarded by many as a weather balloon for his continued political success.

William Wayne Justice

The controversial Tyler federal judge, William Wayne Justice, last week ordered the state to pay almost $1 million in fees and costs to three attorneys who fought for minority voting rights over the last decade.

Their litigation challenged at-large voting systems at the local level, and the cases went twice before the U.S. Supreme Court.

As a result of the lawsuits, legislators are elected from single-member districts, rather than at-large districts.

The attorneys and their staffs logged more than 12,000 hours combined.

My sweet mother passed away this October 17. She would have been 96 years old Nov. 18, 1981.

Both Dad and Mother were Christians and are now with our Blessed Lord. Enclosed is Mother's obituary from the Dallas Times Herald.

PRESENTED BY THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS

Q: A few years ago my husband was granted a Texas divorce. We did not know the law, and didn't wait thirty days before he and I married. Is our marriage legal? Will this affect our wills, leaving everything to each other and then to the children? And, can an outsider or a step-child contest these wills due to this technicality?

A: Your marriages are not void, but voidable, meaning they can be challenged. However, the usual result is that your new marriage is considered to have begun on the 31st day rather than on your wedding day.

And, no, your wills are not made invalid, married or single. You may make wills leaving property to anyone you wish. The most obvious question that may be raised, though, is when did you buy certain property you are leaving in your will—during the 30 days, or afterwards? If a step-child's inheritance is affected by these few days, he may very well challenge the fact of your marriage.

Q: My husband and I have three children. Two of them live nearby but the third has broken all family ties and we don't even know where he lives. Is there a way we can write our wills to assure all three children receive equal portions of the estate? We want our two other children to find their brother even if my husband and I have both died.

A: Your wills need simply say that you leave your estates to your children, and then list them by name. Under court supervision, the Executor of the estate will attempt to locate the missing son, and will not distribute his share until he or his descendants are found. Only if he is proved to have died leaving no descendants will the law distribute his share to your other children. By the way, it will be most helpful for your Executor if you prepare a notebook of your son's last known addresses, job, photographs, fingerprints, and such to help trace him when the time comes.

Q: I bought a pair of boots under a lay-away plan, but am unable to complete the payments. Can I demand a refund of my payments made so far?

A: No. There is no law requiring the merchant to refund your payments on layaway purchases. Before you begin making payments, you should ask the merchant whether he will make such a refund. If the merchant agrees that he does make refunds, this agreement should be in writing. My advice is that you should keep a copy of this agreement until you have made full payment.

Q: My wife and I are considering giving some stock this year to one or more of our grandchildren for Christmas. What procedures are involved?

A: Your stock may be transferred to your grandchildren by writing a letter to the transfer agent named on the face of the stock certificate. Enclose in the letter your stock certificate with your signature, which must be co-signed by a member of the New York Stock Exchange or the officer of a national bank. Also, enclose the name and address of the person to be given the stock and that person's social security number. Registered mail can be used to assure the transfer agent receives the stock.

Send your questions to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P.O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers not possible.

Tips For Gardeners

From The Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Since moving to Ozona I believe my last week trip to Haskell and Stanford was the most pleasant one because of the entire countryside being a lush green. The fall foliage was just beginning to turn, but was a beautiful fresh green after the rains. Maybe the sapping summer heat has gone and now we can welcome Autumn rains and admire the beauty of fall foliage.

Over our city there are many homes that have colorful mum displays, so make a note of the colors you may want for next year.

A few tips for planting nandinas this fall. The nandina can be grown with ease in our area. A sunny location is best for fast full growth and heavy fruiting. It will perform well in shady areas, just be sure to plant in a well-drained location to avoid root rot.

While attractive as an accent for an entrance, walk, or terrace, it can also be grown in planters, grouped in a foundation planting, or massed to form tall, loose screen.

Even with all these fine features, the beauty of nandina can be spoiled by incorrect pruning. Pruning is called for when the nandina is several years old and has become relatively dense. It should be done in late winter or very early spring, before new growth begins. The correct way to prune nandina is to cut back the canes at staggered heights. Since most of the leaves are at the top of the canes, this will encourage layers of foliage to develop at different levels, extending from top to bottom of the plant. Canes that are too tall can be removed at ground level. Never trim nandina flat topped as you do hedges. If left unpruned, nandina's mature into a leggy mass of foliage on bare stems.

From now on be sure to listen for weather reports of a frost or freeze if you haven't moved your potted plants inside, or a place of protection.

The most attractive landscape at the new Drive In Bank on Hwy. 163 is one for our city to be proud of and enjoyed by all passing by.

LET'S KEEP THE WATER RUNNING IN TEXAS!

In cities and towns all across Texas, local water problems are threatening to erupt into one enormous statewide crisis. Countless communities are facing growing water supply, water treatment, sewage treatment and flood control problems estimated to cost a staggering $50 billion over the next 25 years. To make matters worse, federal funds for water projects have recently been slashed.

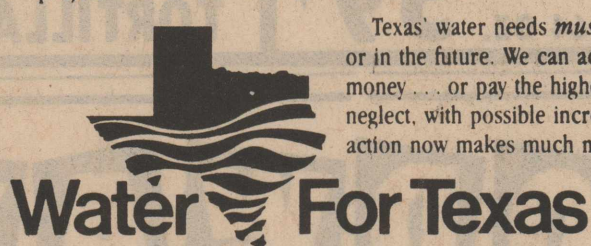

But on November 3, Texans have the opportunity to adopt a plan, already passed by two-thirds of the Legislature, which would harness a portion of our state's budget surplus to help shoulder that heavy local burden.

The plan is proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 4.

Passage of Amendment No. 4 would:

- Make possible the sale of more than $200 million in authorized and urgently needed state bonds to address a backlog of needed projects.
- Create a loan guaranty program to enable local communities to save millions of dollars in issuing future bonds.
- Begin to build a "nest egg" for the future from a part of the state's budget surplus to assist local governments in financing future water and sewage projects.

Texas' water needs must be met, either now or in the future. We can act now, and save money... or pay the higher price later for our neglect, with possible increased taxes. Sensible action now makes much more sense for Texas.

VOTE FOR CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 4 ON NOVEMBER 3!

The Crockett Heights Extension Club meets November 3, 9:30 for a program on "Low Cost Gifts". Happy Homemakers meet November 5, 9:30 at the Chamber of Commerce for a program on "Refinishing Furniture".

Most home sewers are now looking for time saving techniques that give quality looking garments. Before you purchase a pattern and fabric, analyze your wardrobe and start with a plan. Organize your sewing area so you know what supplies you have on hand.

Using patterns designed for quick and easy sewing can save time. Using the same pattern over and over is another way to make sewing easier. Remember to read the guidesheet on patterns you have not used. Sewing with fabrics that don't ravel, require matching lining, or special seam techniques give quick results.

Another time saving idea is "sew-as-much-as-you-can" before pressing, then press as much as you can at one time. Do as much machine work as possible. Try hemming garments on the machine.

Fusible interfacing and fusing hem tape can save time. Look for other new time saving sewing products in fabric stores. Companies are developing new aides for the home sewer.

Microwave Popcorn Balls
2 cups sugar
3/4 cup water
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
4 quarts warm popped corn

Combine sugar, water, salt, corn syrup and butter in 3-quart casserole. Cover with wax paper and Microwave on 100% power for 6-9 minutes, or until sugar is dissolved.

Stir occasionally during cooking time. Then microwave, covered for 9-12 minutes or until hard ball stage (260 degrees) is reached without stirring. Stir in vanilla. Pour over freshly popped corn, mixing well. Shape into balls 2 1/2" in diameter. Place on wax paper until dry and no longer sticky. When dry, wrap to retain freshness. Yield: about 30 balls.

Snack Pizzas

9 1/2 oz. package refrigerator biscuits, flaky
1/4 cup tomato paste
1 teaspoon oregano
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup canned, chopped mushrooms

1/2 cup natural sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease baking sheet. Pat each biscuit round into a 4" circle on baking sheet. Mix tomato paste and oregano. Brush on each biscuit round. Mix onion and mushrooms. Sprinkle over tomato paste mixture. Top with shredded cheese. Bake until crust is lightly browned (about 8 minutes).

Note: other ingredients such as cooked ground sausage or ground beef, thin strips of salami, chopped green pepper, or chopped anchovies may be used in place of onion and mushrooms. Calories for a pizza will vary according to ingredients used. About 105 calories each.

Are you a morning "jet-setter," complete with instant everything--and bitter coffee? Here's a prevent-bitter-coffee idea--for instant-coffee, microwave users only: Add the hot water to the coffee granules, instead of adding coffee to the hot water. When you add coffee granules to boiling water, the rapid flavor release from the granules can cause bitter coffee. Why doesn't bitter coffee result from adding the hot water to the coffee? We didn't ask Dr. Cass Ryan-Crowe, a food and nutrition specialist, that.

Once the goodies are brought home parents should check for loosely wrapped candy and for other signs of possible tampering.

Calling All Homemakers

Brought To You By Brown Furniture

Most women spend the greatest portion of their lives in their homes. Since this is true, do you ever wonder why people don't surround themselves with more beauty in their homes? After all, it doesn't have to cost any more to furnish attractively than it does to do so drably. Perhaps we are "too close to the woods to see the tree". It is somehow easier for most of us to recognize the shortcomings of the furniture and furnishings in someone else's home than in our own.

In many cases, the addition of one single item in a room can change it from something dull to a thing of beauty.

Take a good, long, objective look at your furnishings and ask yourself, "What can I do to add beauty to my every-day living?"

Make believe that you are a military officer inspecting his troops. Take a memo book and pencil, make a slow and careful inspection of the rooms you live in and write down all the possible improvements you could make to beautify your surroundings.

You may suddenly discover that a pretty new sofa or pair of lamps will transform your living room, or that some vivid color is needed to bring a sweep of new life to your rooms.

In any event, a visit to us can start you on your way to adding new beauty to your way of life. Come on in and browse.

While raising three children, I discovered that pumpkins can have character. Using the same tools and a minimum of skill, I turned out jack-o-lanterns smiling and lovable... and jack-o-lanterns leering and grotesque.

All parents know that children have character. But how that character develops is not simply a product of parental know-how.

In the religious education our churches provide, a child finds the faith that will mightily mold his character. In the worship and service activities of their church, parents express their own religious belief and make it part of family life.

Truly, God carves character.

Rumor turns into big garden from scratch

All spring long, the town of Sycamore, Illinois, buzzed with speculation. Those folks who moved in from California in the fall of '80 were building something big down on Main Street across from the telephone company.

Rumors had begun when the tree service cut down a huge old mulberry that was shading the side yard and dropping branches on adjacent structures. They had hauled off the truck for firewood but had left the world's largest pile of wood chips at the back of the lot. The ground thawed soon thereafter, and a landscaper stripped and hauled off the sod.

Dump trucks shuttled in with loads of sand from the gravel pit, and mushroom compost from the soup plant. And then a truck arrived with "S" railroad ties from where they tore up the tracks between DeKalb and Genoa, Illinois—big solid ties of dense water oak creosoted years ago.

A crew of students from the horticulture class at the nearby community college showed up in March. They wrestled the 300-lb. ties into place on beds of tamped sand, leveled them carefully and pinned them to the earth with long bolts saved from a dismantled railroad bridge.

"Oho! They're building a garage in the side yard," said a spectator. "That looks like a foundation."

"Nope, can't be a garage," he concluded as he watched the students double-dig the heavy black Illinois soil inside the railroad tie frames. Wood chips and ungraded sand were mixed in the soil to a depth of one foot. Then, mushroom compost, sand and native soil were blended in equal parts and dumped into the beds built up with railroad ties.

Four large raised beds were built in the 50-ft. x 80-ft. side yard: one for large vegetables, one for smaller vegetables, one up front for flowers and one to the side for herbs. Then, several more vegetable and flower beds were constructed around the foundation of the century old house that is the headquarters for two educational services of the North American garden seed industry. (They supply how-to-garden photographs and articles free to garden writers and broadcasters across the USA and Canada.)

Speculation quieted when planting started in April. Hundreds of started plants were brought from under fluorescent lights in the basement and placed under plastic tunnels to harden off. Seeds of peas and greens of various sorts were sown on a gray day when flecks of snow were spitting. Dozens of one-gallon plastic bottles, sans bottoms, were placed over frost-tender plants.

"Looks like they're growing plastic bottles," commented one neighbor. Once the townspeople caught on to what the garden was all about they began drifting in to watch and offer advice. A local tomato adopted the garden and was permitted to stay after pledging to chase away rabbits and ground squirrels. He did.

The native soil in Northern Illinois is fertile but heavy and slow draining. Weeks before other area gardens were workable, the National Garden Bureau "Idea Garden" was booming along. The sandy, fast-draining soil warmed up rapidly. Peas, spinach and mustard greens were harvested before the summer vegetables and flowers were planted.

No vacancies were permitted. As soon as one crop was harvested, another took its place. In the warm, non-crusting soil seeds came up like hair on a dog's back. Virtually no grass or weeds sprouted because most of the seeds were hauled off with the sod. This was a side benefit; the real reason for removing the sod was in the event that toxic lead had accumulated from paint chipped from the two very old houses bordering the garden.

Close spacing was the rule, with all sorts of frames, trellises, arbors and quadrupods used to train vines and sprawling plants upwards. "I've never seen so many plants grown in a given area," was a typical comment.

Flower plants were not crowded but were given plenty of room to spread out. Special selections of heat resistant flowers drew praise all summer long, especially a bed of fragrant carnations. Most folks in Sycamore had no idea that carnations could be grown outside of greenhouses.

The most popular flower bed was one on the north side, lightly shaded by a sugar maple. It was planted with mixed colors coleus and an edging of salmon-pink begonias. Neighbors were encouraged to take slips off any coleus plants they liked.

Not one instance of vandalism was noted. There is a beautiful white picket fence around part of the garden, and the gate is open all day long. Neighborhood children have been especially welcomed in the garden. A planting of sensitive plants, Mimosa pudica, was made just for them. They love to tap or stroke the leaves and stems and watch them collapse.

The remarkable first-year performance of the Idea Garden is due to a number of planned factors that can be copied by all gardeners:

An early start: slow growing varieties were started under lights from seeds beginning in late winter, and frost-hardy seeds were planted in the garden just as soon as the soil had thawed.

Raised beds were filled with fast draining soil, fortified with organic matter worked in deeply. Foot traffic through the garden was restricted to wood chip paths; rains caused virtually no delays.

Controlled release fertilizer was worked into the soil to feed plants all season long. Occasional applications of soluble nutrients overcame nitrogen deficiencies caused by the wood chips.

The use of plastic bottles and tunnels extended the growing season at both ends. Frost-hardy vegetables and root crops were mulched to extend the harvest into early winter.

Succession crops and interplanting of vegetables was carefully scheduled.

Prompt control of insects was attained by light applications of dusts or sprays. Natural products were used except for the most stubborn pests such as squash vine borers. Acceptance of a moderate level of damage greatly reduced the total amount of controls used. A heavy native population of ladybugs and garden spiders was encouraged. Next season, loads will be brought in; they disappeared with the sod.

A raised bed garden requires comparatively little maintenance time. Weeds pull out easily from the porous soil; watering goes rapidly. Virtually no plants are lost to root rot. Rain causes few delays in cultivation and harvesting.

Tax relief available for flood victims

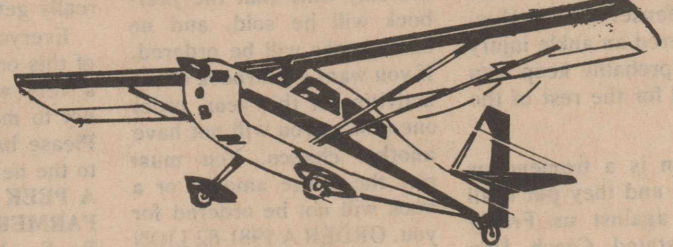

The Internal Revenue Service advises victims of flooding caused by the recent heavy rains that they may be eligible to claim casualty losses on their 1981 returns. Losses to business property are generally deductible in full. Personal property loss deductions are limited to the amount of loss exceeding $100 for each occurrence.

To claim a casualty loss a taxpayer must be able to substantiate the loss. Victims should compile a list of those items damaged or destroyed and determine their value immediately before and after the loss occurred. Before and after photographs of damaged property are important records to maintain, as are judgements of independent appraisers.

Of course, any portion of a loss covered by insurance and subsequently reimbursed is not deductible.

Further information for taxpayers is available by calling IRS toll free and asking for Publication 547, "Tax Information on Disasters, Casualty Losses, and Thefts," and Publication 584.

PUNCHERS ROUND-UP LIONS

By-Jana Harris

The Lions suffered a 35-3 defeat against the Mason Punchers Friday night.

Will Mason scored for Ozona with a 29 yd. field goal. The Lions had 130 yds. while the Punchers had 359 on offense. Harvey Hueca suffered an ankle injury that will probably keep him sidelined for the rest of the season.

"Mason is a tremendous ball team and they put it all together against us Friday night," stated Coach Don Sessom. "I have no doubt they will beat Junction for the district championship. They are by far the best football team."

"We gave it our best, now we will end the season with Menard and Big Lake. If we can win both of these we will finish with a 7-3 record and that's not bad!" said Sessom.

Variety is literally the spice of life in matters of nutrition, and dieters should be wary of special reducing diets that call for the elimination of too many foods for too long. A good low calorie meal should include a number of different kinds of food—meat, cheese, vegetable and fruit. Accompanied by a cup of hot, soothing tea, which has virtually no calories, this type of meal is nutritious as well.

The Youth Against Cancer (YAC) is underway again. The first meeting was held at Karen Childress' house, Wednesday afternoon. The officers elected were Gail Hunnicutt, president; Susan Scott, vice-president; Jo Anne Hearne, Secretary; Dennis Young, Treasurer; and Haley Anderson, reporter.

Meetings will be held every 1st and 3rd Sunday of the month from 2:30 to 3:30. November 1st will be the next meeting.

Some activities that have been held as fund raisers are a dance at the rodeo park and a movie, "Play Misty for Me" at the Civic Center. They also sponsored the Great American Smokeout, and the "Kiss Me I Don't Smoke Campaign". Last Halloween they had a fortune telling booth and are going to again this year at the carnival. The annual Christmas party held at Becky Childress' home is always a big event. Summer before last, Erika Lee and Gail Hunnicutt accompanied Becky Childress and Elizabeth Upham to San Antonio for the annual convention. Besides staying free of cost in the Hilton, they enjoyed a Commodores concert. This past summer, Dennis Young, Kristal Williams, and Jim Williams, counselor at OHS, would like to remind all OHS students who are planning to take the SAT test that they must have their application forms in by Friday, October 30. Please be sure that you have this application form in if you are planning on taking this test as several colleges and universities require this test for admission.

SAT DEADLINE NEARS

There was an engine systems clinic Tuesday, October 22, 1981, at the Auto Mechanics shop. This clinic was given by the mechanic class and the local NAPA dealer which is Crockett Automotive. This clinic was given for everyone in town.

A NAPA presenter, Tim Johnson, from San Antonio, the district sales manager, gave a two-part presentation. The first part was on engine systems and trouble shooting. The second part dealt with the new 350-diesel engines. Everyone took a test afterwards covering the information. They served refreshments and there was $20 repair manual given as a door prize. This prize was won by Kelly Buckner, a senior auto mechanics student.

Coach Maldonado said that they will be having these programs off and on throughout the year. These will be open for the public and will be free of charge.

BEFORE FALL LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE
By Henry Delgado

Pete Maldonado, Advisor, and officers of Chapter 1949 of Ozona High School, have attended the annual Vocational Industrial Clubs of America Leadership Conference was held in Big Spring, Texas, on October 16, 1981. Chapter officers that attended were Cater Villarreal, president, David Tijerina, vice-president, Randy DeHoyos, treasurer, Henry Delgado and Greg Fierro, reporters, David Periz, sergeant-at-arms, and Hector Leal, parliamentarian.

The purpose of the conference was to enable District Officers to conduct a training program for Chapter Officers to develop leadership qualities and to review the duties and responsibilities of individual officers in guiding their clubs. They were under the supervision of staff members from the Texas Education Agency.

THE TALL BLONDE STRANGER
By Stacy Chapman

Throughout the year new students are still enrolling into Ozona High School. Last week Robert Earles checked into school. Robert is the oldest son of O.C. and Ethyl Earles. He is 17 and a junior this year. Robert was born in Littlefield, Texas, and has lived all over the United States in such places as Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Colorado, and Oklahoma. The family moved here from Stanton because Mr. Earles wanted to live on a ranch. They now live and work on one of Pie Pierce's ranches. Robert has three younger brothers, James, Sherman and Buddy, and the boys have a little sister named Sissy. Robert never objected to moving to Ozona and likes it a lot so far. He has hobbies of building models and, of course, living on a ranch. Robert enjoys riding horses. Among his favorite things, he likes country-western music, tacos (but hates spinach) and likes the color blue.

Robert's favorite stars are John Wayne and Valerie Bertinelli. He loved the Movie "Smoky and the Bandit" and wouldn't mind driving a Trans-Am himself. After high school, Robert says he would like to get a ranch job somewhere in either Texas or Montana.

So if ya'll see a tall, blonde stranger in the halls, give him a hearty welcome!

Crockett County Care Center News

BY ANN McCARTNEY
DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

Time is a treasure. Each moment to use. For pleasure, for others. Whatever you choose. Remember that life is minute by minute. Use it with care; Put quality in it.
By Alice Leedy Mason

Third Sunday services brought us the Baptist church with Rev. Dr. Lanham and Rick Rice, pastor and Educational Director. Our afternoon church services are a fitting way to begin the week. The volunteers who come "put quality" in their time by sharing with others.

Ceramics was enjoyed by Maude Pettit, Gertrude Daniels, Tomasa Ramos, and Juana Hernandez. Volunteers were Grace Dorsey and Dorothy Doll. Our first finished products are now on display. Thanks goes to Ruth Hester for baking our green ware and Ann Shaw for the discount on the paints. Both get special thanks for giving "how to" instructions.

Bingo winners for the week were Gertrude Daniels, 1st with a gift certificate from Western Drug, and Nila Turnell, second. Welcome back greetings were due to Liz Mary Pipes who, along with other Auxiliary members previously mentioned, helps with bingo. In addition we were pleased to have Veronica Tebbetts and Connie Tijerina helping.

Dorothy Doll gave such a good program with reading Tuesday that the residents have asked for her back. As a result, she now has another full time commitment for Wednesday mornings.

Spanish hour continued on Tuesday night, beauty shop on Thursday morning. (Thanks, Dorothy Doll, for bringing your company, Patsy, Be Bee.) Thursday afternoon we had Bible study sponsored by the Lutheran church.

Our big special of the week was Wednesday morning when Debra Price brought us a style show. Models from all ages came and showed us the latest styles. Debra filled in with grooming hints. We really appreciated this program and all the effort that went into it!

Sue Arledge has sent us the "Texas Highways" magazine in memory of Evelyn Bryant and a dear friend sent us the "Sunshine Magazine"

Early freeze doubtful

Most areas of Texas will likely not get an early freeze this year.

Keith Hayes, agricultural meteorologist with the National Weather Service at Texas A&M University, says near normal temperatures likely will prevail at least through mid-November.

To help farmers and ranchers as well as homeowners gear up for the approaching winter season, Hayes has compiled probability levels for freezing temperatures for various regions of the state, based on historical data.

Based on the data, the first early freeze in far West Texas comes Oct. 26 and the first for Southwest Texas Nov. 5. Crockett County would be located between the two. The average first freeze comes Nov. 8 in far West Texas and Nov. 28 in Southwest Texas. Late first freezes have come Nov. 23 and Dec. 22, respectively in the two areas.

for whom money was unavailable additional bonds should be approved. They also believe if the interest rate is not increased the obligations will be unmarketable and the program will be unable to continue.

Opponents point out the federal government already provides generous benefits for veterans, and compensation of veterans is a federal rather than a state responsibility. They also believe the program is no longer necessary as there has been sufficient time since the Vietnam conflict for all those who desire land to make application and obtain loans.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By Jerry Lay

Can you imagine a college football team going through a whole season and not scoring any points all year? It's happened three times in this century. The three teams that failed to score any points throughout an entire season were Villanova in 1923, Carnegie Tech in 1946 and St. Paul's Poly in 1952.

How much of a factor is the home field advantage in football? According to research compiled over the last several years, home teams in college football win 60% of all games played, while in pro football, home teams win 58% of the time. So there is a home field advantage although slightly less so in pro ball.

Although traditionally there have been just 4 football bowl games on New Year's Day - the Rose, Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls - this season there will be another one. The Fiesta Bowl in Arizona will be played on New Year's Day for the first time. The Rose, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls will be on New Year's afternoon while the Orange and Sugar Bowls will be on New Year's night.

I bet you didn't know... L-B Motor has a wide selection of cars and pickups to choose from.
