Loeb Madman In Pen Ward, May Never Get Well

Franks Slayer Bound Down To Bedside As Attacks Seize Him

WANTS HIS GIRL

Cries Out for "Buddy" of Pre-Crime Days; Turns Back on Brother

JOLIET, Ill., June 6.—(AP)—Continued evidence of insanity is being manifested by Richard Loeb, slayer of little Bobby Franks, Warden John L. Whitman said this afternoon after he had received a report from physicians on the condition of the convict, but stated that insanity, real or feigned, would not result in his being sent to an insane asylum.

Loeb was transformed suddenly last Thursday from a tractable obedient prisoner into a raving madman by a sudden mental breakdown following two weeks illness with measles. He was in the prison hospital apparently completely recovered and was about to be discharged as cured and returned to work in the chair shop when his mental breakdown came.

Mutters Incoherently.

Most of the time Loeb mutters incoherently. His wrath is principally directed toward physicians and attendants. When his violence grows beyond ordinary restraint he is placed in what is known as "cold pack," a method of strapping insane patients to the bed in such a manner so they cannot move.

Warden Whitman said that he did not believe Loeb was shamming.

"There are even more pronounced signs of insanity today in Loeb's condition," the warden said. "His temperature has subsided but his mind remains unbalanced."

Two guards are constantly at Loeb's bedside. When the insane attacks wear away and he is quiet the bonds are removed. He has been placed in a round on the second floor of the old prison, remote from other patients.

Loeb's brother, Allan, with whom he has always been on the most friendly terms, came to the prison Thursday to visit him. Loeb refused to see his brother.

"I do not want to see him," Richard told his attendant.

Calls for Sweetheart.

Loeb, the "master mind" who plotted with Nathan Franks last year, has suffered a mental breakdown and is in a state that, according to his doctors, will improve or terminate fatally within 48 hours.

"Buddy! I want Buddy!" he cried repeatedly, also calling for his mother. "Buddy," was taken to mean "Patches" Reinhart, Leopold and Loeb's girl companion in the days before they killed young Franks and were sentenced to prison for life.

If Loeb does recover from the measles attack he may face a life of insanity, it was indicated by Dr. Herman Adler, state criminologist, who reported that the youth is in a "post infectious delirium."

Dr. Adler is convinced that Dick is not feigning his illness.

Leopold does not know of his accomplices' collapse. He is recovering after an operation for appendicitis and it was feared that the news of Loeb's condition would depress him.

A TWO-MAN jail delivery was narrowly averted at the city hall early Saturday night when two men locked up in a cell on the second floor wrenched an iron bed to pieces and with a bar thus obtained battered out a steel bar in their cell. They were subdued and removed to another cell without furnishings of any kind before any other damage was done.

Both were arrested here late in the afternoon, one on a theft charge and one on a charge of wife-desertion, police said.

REALTY BOARD HEARS DITCHED LAND IS COSTLY

Policy of Advertising Irrigated Tracts by Booklet Route is Debated

A discussion of irrigable land available for sale took up considerable time Saturday at the regular weekly meeting of the Wichita Falls real estate board after Otto Stehlik commented at some length on an advertising booklet now being prepared by the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Stehlik said his impression was that but little land under the irrigation ditch could be bought at prices the average farmer was able to pay and that accordingly he believed such advertising, assuming it brought results, would be a waste of money.

After more or less argument over the question President Curlee asked each realtor present to the next meeting a list of the irrigable land he had for sale.

Interior home decoration was discussed by W. R. Browning, an interior decorator, who cited one instance of how a residence that could not be sold for $6,500 was improved at a small cost for interior decorating and then readily brought $7,500.

The following new members were announced to the board: J. T. Harrell, vice president of the City National bank; Mytinger and Walker, real estate operators; Chauncey and Gambill, real estate operators; Ida Lee Corder, real estate operator; W. H. Allen, building contractor; Maples and Cooper, real estate operators; W. B. Hamilton, president Texhoma Oil and Refining company.

WALES GETS A SLANT AT REAL ZULU WARHOP

He Sets a Remarkable Spectacle in South African Port

ESHOWE, Zululand, Union of South Africa, June 6.—(AP)—Never in his varied experience has the Prince of Wales witnessed such an extraordinary reception as was presented here today. The warriors were accompanied by many of their women folks, to spur the dancers to excel themselves.

When the prince's party took their seats on the parade ground the great gathering of warriors and braves stretched as far as the eye could see while 5,000 picked warriors of the finest physical proportions, lithe and naked except for sporrans of leopard skins, were drawn up in the foreground for half a mile, six men deep, to perform the dance.

They were a striking picture with enormous spreading head dresses of black feathers measuring a yard across. With strange gyrations and contortions the dancers worked themselves into a complete frenzy, accompanied by terrifying yells and dirge-like singing of the women. The dance culminated in the advance of the whole line, with shields held aloft covering the faces of the warriors who in an apparently impenetrable mass, rushed to within a yard of where the party sat.

MOVIE WORLD GETS EARFUL FROM MASKAT

Wichita Falls Shriners Back With Tales of Western Conquest

'A WONDERFUL TRIP"

So Say They All of Big Ceremonial Session in Los Angeles

To an accompaniment of shrieks and howls from steam whistles and husky cheers from voices that have been sorely tried the past ten days, 90 Maskat Temple Shriners returned to Wichita Falls at 11:15 Saturday night after attending the imperial council sessions in Los Angeles.

"It was one wonderful trip from first to last," was the unanimous expression of all those who stepped off the 15-car speal train as it came in over the Denver. No one would undertake to point out the paramount feature of the sojourn in the west, but Al Ellis, recorder of the temple and who acted as spokesman for the crowd when reporters beseiged him, was unstinting in his praise of the reception given by all California in general and Los Angeles in particular. To the moving picture world, especially, he paid warm tribute and said the huge electrical pageant staged in the Hollywood stadium through the combined efforts and genius of all the movie concerns in Los Angeles was by far the most brilliant and gorgeous spectacle he ever expected to see.

They Greet the Stars.

The Wichita Falls men, it seemed, got on intimate terms with some of the screen celebrities. Monte Blue, Bill Hart, Mary Pickford, Doug Fairbanks, Constance Talmadge, Betty Compson and a few others of the elite were given a few pointers on Wichita Falls if you take Maskat's word for it.

To the Maskat band, patrol, chanters and uniformed bodies all honor is due, Mr. Ellis said. He declared their work was one of the outstanding features of the council. The chanters particularly scored a tremendous hit wherever they appeared.

Fort Worth and Abilene.

The local delegation, 90 strong, 28 Shriners from Abilene and 145 from Fort Worth left Los Angeles at 1 o'clock Thursday. They came straight through on the Santa Fe to Amarillo, making no stops of long duration, switched to the Denver at the Panhandle metropolis and came in the rest of the way on that line.

The Abilene men detrained here and waited until 12:30 when a Wichita Valley train pulled out for their home town. The special, after an extended half here, continued on to Fort Worth with Moslah Temple's men.

One hundred and forty-three Wichitans left on the special and the balance will dribble back in twos and threes within the next few days.

Coolidge Dares 100 Degree Sun On Western Trip

Los Angeles Gets Hot So Gas Is Let Out To Prevent an Explosion

LAKE HURST, N. J., June 6.—The heat caused such an expansion in the helium gas in the naval dirigible Los Angeles shortly before sunset tonight that the automatic safety valves near the mooring mast were released, allowing approximately 2,000 cubic feet of gas to escape.

Loss of this gas materially decreased the lifting power of the gas bag, officials say, even though the bag was 100 per cent full. The temperature was 92 at 8 p. m., eastern standard times, and officials were awaiting a decrease in temperature which would allow a reduction of air pressure in the box and accordingly permit injection of new gas to replace that lost through the safety valves.

J. PLUVIUS IN NO MOOD TO LET SOL WIN

Competition Among the Elements Gives Promise of Breaking Heat Wave

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP)—Old Sol, who for a week has done his best to convert territory from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic seaboard into a furnace, today found some active competition when Jupiter Pluvius took a hand in moderating temperatures in the middle west.

The east, however, continued to swelter in the grip of torrid temperatures and the death list from the heat from the country passed the 300 mark during the day.

While rains moderated temperatures slightly in some sections, there was little prospect tonight for any immediate relief from the hot weather.

While the eastern half of the country sweltered, snow, rain and temperatures down to freezing were reported from many sections of the Rocky mountain region, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana were all in the path of the cool weather with unseasonably low temperatures at many points.

Chicago's boiling mercury was cooled a little bit by a breeze from the east blowing over Lake Michigan and the thermometer could only climb to 85 today as compared with 96 yesterday.

Thousands of Chicagoians fled from the city tonight to spend the week end in cooler spots. In some cities a serious situation resulted from the increased use of water and steps were taken to conserve the water supply by prohibiting all sprinkling while the hot weather lasts.

President in a Tweed Suit and Cap Makes for the Observation

TO MINNEAPOLIS

Wife Spends Time Reading As Weather Caprices For the Chief

ABOARD PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S TRAIN, ENROUTE TO MINNESOTA, CUMBERLAND, Md., June 6.—(AP)—The special train on which President Coolidge is traveling to Minnesota passed through Cumberland on time tonight.

With the thermometer around 104 degrees, Mr. Coolidge made his get-away from Washington in mid-afternoon. Boarding a five-car train which was run as the first section of a limited between the capitol and Chicago, he immediately sought relief from the heat on the observation platform.

In Cap and Tweeds.

Wearing a cap and a light tweed suit with a blanket wrapped around his legs, the president responded to the hand waving of railroad workers and others as the train sped through the hills of Maryland and West Virginia. At intervals he chatted with Secretary Kellogg, Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin and Secretary Sanders.

Mrs. Coolidge spent the first hours of the journey in the observation car, reading a book. Her traveling dress was of gray printed crepe. She wore a dark blue crepe de chine coat and a blue and gray turban.

The cars occupied by the president had been cooled off before departure by ice. Further relief from the heat was afforded by a shower through which the train passed near Martinsburg, W. Va.

On Monday the president will motor from St. Paul to Minnenpolis to be the guest of honor at a luncheon. In the afternoon he will deliver an address at the centennial celebration at state fair ground, mid-way between the two cities.

Back on Wednesday.

After a reception, which will be tendered on the evening at the state house by the governor, the president and Mrs. Coolidge will leave for Washington, arriving here Wednesday morning.

The president's journey today is his first outside of Washington aside from short cruises on the Mayflower and a motor trip to Annapolis, since he traveled last December to Chicago. On that occasion he had contented himself with regular train accommodation, but at the request of railroad officials who insisted would be in the interest of operation efficiency and safety, he is making use of a special train on his Minnesota trip.

"The Old Timer" Comes n With Contribution To Milk and Ice Fund

"The Old Timer" came to the fore Saturday with his contribution to the Record News milk and ice fund which if Wichita Falls rallies to its support as it has in years past, may be the hot weather salvation of hundreds of needy youngsters in the city. A $1 donation signed "An Old Timer" came in Saturday to be adder to the fund.

"It's amazing the lack of comforts hundreds and hundreds of families in the poorer sections here have," Commandant Johnson of the Salvation Army declared Saturday. "We find scores of cases every day where milk and ice in the summer months are almost unknown, and this in homes where there are tiny babies to be nursed and cared for. If the more fortunate people here realized the stark poverty of their neighbors they would more easily appreciate the good such a fund could do."

All money turned over to the Record News Milk and Ice Fund is in turn passed on to the Salvation Army which spends it in supplying pure milk and cooling ice in those quarters where it is most needed.

The expression of anti-foreign feeling was confined to the wrecking of several foreign-owned rickshas and to shouting "fight for liberty! Boycott Japanese goods!" The parading students carried banners inscribed with the slogan and shouted it in unison under the direction of Chinese cheer leaders.

Law Suit Follows Alleged Leaking Of Oil Into a Cellar

Alleged seepage of a septic tank on property owned by the Texas company in Electra was made the basis of a law suit tried Saturday afternoon before Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court, in which the Texas company was defendant and S. J. Boardman of Electra plaintiff. After hearing evidence from both sides Judge Martin took the matter under advisement for ten day, at the expiration of which time, he said, he thought the trouble over which the difficulty arose would remedy itself.

The plaintiff complained that seepage from the tank was leaking into his cellar and asked for a court injunction restraining operation of the tank. The defendant, on the other hand, contended the trouble was not caused by his tank.

PLAINS ROAD TO GO DOWN MILE A DAY

Santa Fe Branch Line To Be Started at Once Is Statement

LUBBOCK, June 6.—Work of laying track on the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe branch line from Lubbock through Hockley and Cochran counties to Bledsoe on the Texas-New Mexico boundary line will begin Monday, it was announced today by the construction company in charge of the work. Completion of the line is expected by October 1.

First rails will be laid at Dead, seven miles southwest of Lubbock. One mile of track will be laid each day, according to N. G. Gannon, in charge of the work.

One-third of the right-of-way has been completed and work on the grade is in progress 40 miles away from Lubbock.

Four new towns are being surveyed by the Santa Fe and their development begun as a result of theextension. They are Smyer, 15 miles west of Lubbock; White Face, in Hockley county, and Lehman in the heart of Coheran county, and Bledsoe, on the western edge of Cochran county.

Marriage License Reach Twenty-Eight

Three more marriage licenses issued Saturday by the county clerk's office brought the total for the week up to 28. This is believed to be the largest number given out in a single week yet this year, and is ample refutation of the fallacy that June is not a popular month for brides.

The licenses issued Saturday went to Fred Cox, Holliday, and Miss Tessie Beatrice Williams, Burkburnett; J. C. Martin, Burkburnett, and Miss Thelma Rigney, Burkburnett; Hal Winn, Electra, and Zuma Hicks, Electra.

OTHERS DIE; WICHITA GRINS.

Old Sol Has Yet to Phase People, Though His Warmth Is Felt.

While the north, east and middle west buried its dead and packed its hospitals Saturday, Wichita Falls pulled out the seersuckers, oiled up the fans and grinned at the weather.

It may get hot and uncomfortable here, some times, but this section has yet to experience a temperature and humidity that endangers lives and health. Saturday was another warm day, made endurable by a stiff breeze that kept things fairly cool.

The weather man, unlike his contemporaries to the north, held out prospects for cooler weather Sunday. A partially cloudy sky was also forecast.

SENTENCE GIRL AND MAN

Fourteen Accomplices Are Also Sentenced in Russia.

KIEV, Russia, June 6.—(AP)—General Belavin, commander of the southern Russian army during the World war, and Nina Krazeczkovska, a beautiful 21-year-old girl, were sentenced to death today by a war tribunal, after having been found guilty of espionage.

Fourteen accomplices, including the girl's mother and two young women, were sentenced to imprisonment and hard labor for terms ranging from three to ten years.

It was believed the death sentence of the girl will be commuted by the general executive committee.

BROTHER KILLS; WIFE QUITS

Man Boasts Relative Kills President So Spouse Gets Divorce.

LOS ANGELES, June 6.—(AP)—Alexander Koness told all the neighbors his brother-in-law had "killed a president," Mrs. Koness testified in superior court today, seeking a divorce on grounds of cruelty. She said he did it just to spite her.

"Was what he said about your brother true?" asked the court.

"Yes," the plaintiff replied. "His name was Czolgoez, slayer of President McKinley." The divorce was granted.

LAW DEMANDS SALE PERMITS SAYS OILMAN

Lease Sale Without a Permit is Cause For Prison

AUSTIN, June 6.—Sale of oil leases, where part of the consideration is an undivided interest in the concern that is to drill wells on the leases, has been held to come under the Texas Blue Sky Law, it was announced by Lee Curtis, chief of the blue sky division, state department, Friday. Curtis pointed out that failure to comply with the requirement of obtaining a state permit to sell stock carried a prison term penalty. The number of oil stock companies to be organized is gas decreasing, Curtis said.

The attorney general's department is now working on a ruling, Curtis announced, to determine whether bonds, other than mortgage bonds which are exempt, are subject to the same state supervision as stocks.

The blue sky stock securities chief however expressed the opinion that a former ruling of an attorney general that where stock of a company is all subscribed by its organizers, then resold by them to the public, the state would have no supervision, would fail to be upheld by a court when passed on.

There is now a rush of organization of cotton mills in Texas, Curtis said. At least six mill propositions are now being organized.

HUGE RANCH IN WEST TEXAS TO BE CUT UP

Vast Area of Land Will Be Subdivided And Put On Sale

SAN ANTONIO, June 6.—The Catarina ranch, one of Southwest Texas' most extensive properties, comprising 225,000 acres, is soon to be subdivided and sold in tracts suitable for farm and ranch purposes. It is situated in Dimmit and Webb counties, in the Winter Garden section.

Announcement that the property would be cut up and offered to settlers was made today by C. H. Kearney, who, with J. E. Jarratt, both of San Antonio, has recently become a part owner of the tract. S. W. Forrester of Wichita, Kan., who bought it five years ago from Chas. P. Taft of Cincinnati, retains an interest in it. The recent deal whereby Kearney and Jarratt bought an interest involved a consideration of approximately $1,000,000, Kearney said.

The ranch lies 120 miles southwest of San Antonio, between the Nueces and Rio Grande rivers. Its north boundary lineextends to within two and one-half miles of Asherton, with Carisso Springs and Crystal City a little further to the northwest, while Cotulla and Dilley are to the northeast. The Asheron and Gulf railway extends east and west through the property, with a station, Catarina, on the ranch.

Highway Culverts Going Down Fast

Good progress is being made on installation of concrete culverts on the Fort Worth road between Henrietta and Jolly, but that is small consolation for those motorists who, these days, are compelled to bounce and rock over ten miles of what is about the worst highway in Texas. Between Jolly and Henrietta and main road and detour are both tortuous stretches on which a five-mile-an-hour average is good time.

Workmen are filling in that stretch in the Little Wichita river valley and are cutting down the steep, rocky hill just west of Henrietta.

Between Henrietta and Bowie the road is now in fair condition. Culverts have been put in, the road graded, and except for dust, good time can be made.

American Refinery Workers Guests Of Firm at Dinners

Cares of oil refining were forgotten for a brief time Friday night and again Saturday night when employes of the American Refining company were guests of the offices and directors of the company at dinners at the Wichita club. The officials tendered the dinners to their workme nas a means of promoting good fellowship between the investors and the workers, and also as a testimonial of appreciation for the layalty and steadfastness with which the workmen attended to business.

About 80 men were present at the Friday night dinner and the same number Saturday night. The division was made in order that the company's extensive properties here could continue work uninterruptedly. To bring all the workmen together at once time would mean shutting down of the refineries, with a consequent heavy loss.

The government of Chile has authorized the loan of $25,000,000 to aid in erection of modern dwellings and tenements.

Clears Complexion

"Oh! how clear and beautiful your complexion is today, my dear!"

THERE IS a certain joy—a certain pride—in knowing you are admired, whether it be by father, brother, husband or sweetheart! And back of that joy is the satisfaction of knowing all is well. Men are fascinated by the charms of beauty. Women gaze with envy, if not jealous, perhaps, wonder—hoping—praying for that attractiveness which is not theirs. But why be wondering—be hoping—be praying for that coveted color attractiveness—that clear skin—that beauty. A clear skin is the barometer of one's condition. A healthy skin radiates beauty. Pure, clean blood means a clear skin.

S.S.S. is waiting to help you. It will rid your blood of its impurities and give you that clear complexion. Since 1826 S.S.S. has been ridding people of blood impurities, from pimples, from blackheads, boils, eczema and from rheumatism, too. Because S.S.S. is made from fresh herbs and barks, it may be taken with perfect safety. Try it yourself. You will not only look better, but you will feel better, too.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

"Put Salt On Its Tail" Our Advice To Sheriff On An Aeroplane Chase

SAN ANTONIO, June 6.—For the first time in history Sheriff James Stevens was appealed to today to stop a man who is alleged to have flown away in an airplane.

Complaint against a man was drawn up in the office of County Attorney Tom J. Newton, charging rudely displaying a pistol in consequence of the affair.

According to the story told the officers, a deal for the plane was in progress. The machine was the property of the Southern Airways corperation and was kept at Stinson field. According to W. F. Long, custodian of the field, the pilot who was dickering for the plane attempted to take it away Friday and was prevented Long said while he was in San Antonio today the man rolled the plane from the hangar and cranked it up.

Wilford Winship, 15, attempted to stop the man and when the man paid no attention to him, called to employes of the field. The pilot is said to have then drawn a pistol and held the men off while he started the plane and flew away.

Long told the officers the man was not an experienced flier and he doubted if he would be able to land safely. The plane is valued at $700.

Bombastic Outburst In Ninth By Sports Wops Spuds, 10-3

Ed Hughes' Column

Where are the heroes of yesterday? I saw one of them the other night. A few days ago a newspaper, reporting his presence, referred to him as "Joe Bowker, a former professional." How the present does grudge the past the glory which it earned! Joe Boowker was "a former professional." He was once the world's bantam champion.

Bowker, the little Englishman who whipped our own Frankie Neil for the bantam title in London 21 years ago, is here as trainer of the British amateur boxers who are now appearing in this country. At 43 Bowker is a bright, jovial and exceedingly pleasant little chap. There is not a gray hair in his head. He tells me he can run five emiles and box 20 rounds without falling from exhaustion. "I come of tough stock, and I've always taken care of myself," Bowker explains.

Browker holds a favored place in Britain's boxing Hall of Fame. He was accounted one of the most skilful youngsters that ever feinted an opponent into an opening. He ranks with Pedlar Palmer, Billy Plimmer, Ben Jordan, Owen Moran, Jem Driscoll and Freddy Welsh. Naturally we were curious to obtain his impressions of the decay of British supremacy in the ring.

"What is the matter with British boxing!" said Joe. "Well, as I see it, sir, it's the decay of the fighting breed. Yes, sir, that's what it is—the decay of the breed. The breed has died out. They are not tough enough today."

"Why is that, Joe!" we continued.

"Well, they don't get the preliminary hardening that we oldtimers used to. By that I mean that booth fighting isn't the popular thing it used to be. In fact, it's about died out in England now. The circus booth turned out some wonderful fighting men, my boy," recollected the former champion.

"Driscoll and myself, along with Tom Thomas, later our middleweight champion, worked the booths together. It was a wonderful education for the ring, and a fine bit of toughening it gave us for our future battles. Sometimes we fought from 10 o'clock in the morning until late at night. One day I knocked out 16 all-comers. That was my record. Another time Driscoll, Thomas and myself made bets as to which would score the most knockouts on a certain day. Driscoll won. He sent eight to the Old Crock's Brigade.

NOT RUGGED ENOUGH.

"When I was taking hold of the game," went on Bowker, "no task was too heavy for me. I remember walking on one occasion 11 miles—from Manchester to Bolton—to get into some county championships. I arrived there with hardly more than a half-hour to spare before going into the ring for my first bout. I fought three times that evening and was knocked out in the final bout. Not many youngsters in Britain today are that enthusiastic about the game," philosphized Joe. "If they were, perhaps we'd have more champions. As things are now they can't stand the pounding. They're not rugged enough. The breed of the Briscolls and the Morans and the rest has died out."

"How about the British style of boxing" we prodded. "Don't you think it's a little out of date"

"It isn't so much the style that's out of date," reasoned Joey. "The boys haven't the stamina to keep up the fast boxing pace we used to set. But the American style is the thing right now," admitted Bowker. "Back home they're all using the method, developing knockout punches and perfecting their infighting. But I don't know that they'll get anywhere unless they harden themselves more."

HEAVY SITUATION BAD.

"What about the heavyweigh situation" we asked.

"Very bad," groaned Bowker. "I don't see any hope. It's all in the breed again. Now a few years back we had a pretty good 'un. Iron Hague was his name. Perhaps you remember him. He fought Langford, and that helped ruin him. Hague was a Yorkshire miner. If he hadn't had so many ale-drinking miner friends, Hague might have amounted to something. He used to dring gallons of it just to be friendly."

And here is something that is news to me. Hague knocked down the great Langford in the second round, according to Bowker:

"Yes, Hague did drop Langford. Iron took an awful beating in the first round, and then trudged right in and sent a terrific right and left to Langford's body. It dropped Langford for what would be a count of five over here. That was Tague's finish, though. Sam got up, stayed away from him a few minutes and then didn't he let poor Iron have it! He knocked him out in the fourth with one of the shortest punches I ever saw, Langford, in fact, was the greatest fighter it has ever been my privilege to see in action."

"Who was the cleverest fighter, in your opinion!" we solicited.

"A cove by the name of Harry Mansfield. Probably you never heard of him over here. Harry was wonderfully fast and scientific. He taught both Jem Driscoll and myself how to be useful in the ring. Yes, Mansfield was Driscoll's model as well as my own."

"Tell me something of your great fight with Frankie Neil," we petitioned. "Neil always claimed that he had been robbed."

"I don't see how he could ever say that," exclaimed Bowker. "Why I won every round. Old Man Neil and some American friends came to me before the fight and boasted that I was sure to be knocked out. 'Frankie hits too hard for you, Joey,' they said.

"Well, I figured Neil was a good hitter, but I wasn't scared. I knew that I was clever and useful in the ring. As it turned out, Neil himself was easy to hit. He came in with his guard lowered all the time, trying to get me with his left hook to the body. I simply chopped his features raw. The next day I called on him in his hotel, where he was laid up in bed. 'You won, all right, Joey,' he said, 'Now go over to America and get that money they wouldn't let me make.' Neil's face was so badly marked that he wore a mask on shipboard the day he sailed.

"But he was a great little fighter, and I'm glad he didn't hit me with that left hook. I'd never have been a champion if he had," concluded Joe.

TARLETON NINE SCORES SEVEN IN LAST ROUND

Winn And Thompson Hook In Box Due For 8 Rounds

By BLONDY CROSS.

Harry Thompson and Cecil Winn battled it out on even-Stephen basis through eight couplets of a high temperature southpaw chunking duel Saturday at the Harve emporium, but the Spudder left hander succumbed under a deluge of base wallops in the ninth.

Shreveport went into the final frame with the tabulation knotted at three-all while Spudder fandom settled back in its seats to witness what loomed as an extra inning affair. But Schick led away with a double to left center. Benton followed with an aviation to Fitzgerald in center, and then Burns swished the agate over the left field palings. The Sports after being turned back in every one of eight stanzas except one, broke out with a bombastic volley of lusty swats; poled eight safeties, two of which were homers, and checked in for eight golden scoring nuggets.

Tarleton's outfit grabbed the second straight from Buddy's-lads, 10 to 3.

'Twas an interesting argument until that gruesome ninth round outburst.

Bubber Hits Her Over.

The Texans took the lead in the second inning when Bubber Jonnard connected to port for non-stop passage. The runways were unpopulated.

The Louisianans rocked back in the fourth for a two-tally margin on three busts to virgin territory and an overthrow at the platter. With one away Ostergard, saffron-topped Shreveport right gardner, biffed a one-baser to starboard. McGaffigan, who entered the affray in the first when Tex McDonald went out under the weather, larruped one to the mid sector for another single. Ostergard drew up at third, and Mac went to second on the throw-in. Bonowitz came through with a long drive to right center. It seemed that Fitzgerald might snare the soaring pellet, but he stumbled and fell, the cantaloupe eluding his clutches and squirting away. McGaffigan held second momentarily and then scampered for the platter behind Ostergard. Bonowitz was drawing up at third when Mac was 15 feet from home. Bodie, who had raced over from right field on the play, snared the spheroid and hurled to Turgeon back of second. Turge threw a wee bit too high to Jonnard at the pan. The ball got away from the catcher, and both McGaffigan and Bonowitz checked at the paying counter.

Tied Up in Sixth.

Thompson turned the domestics back with alacrity in the fourth and fifth, six men facing him for the two chukkers, but the Spuds slipped in to tie the enumeration in the sixth on a pair of bingles and an outfield muff. After two had gone by the way, Bodie singled to center. Fitz punched a first base ticket between second and the initial cushion. Ping halted at the keystone. Turgeon hoisted a high one to port. Rabbitt got under the rocket with ease, but let her trickle through. Bodie and Fitz counted.

That ninth round base-hit orgy put on by the Sports is the worst chapter turned this season at the Spudder plant. For after Burns had poled his four-bagger, none other than Lefty Thompson himself bulleted one at Turgeon too torrid to take care of. Rabbitt then lofted one to the clouds, and when the ball was discovered again it was bounding gaily through the Johnson grass jungles back of the port barrier. Two more counters were chalked against our proud athletes. But the Shreveporters were not through. Wisterzil beat out a swat to short. Ostergard passed out at the plate. McGaffigan drew a four-ball donation. Bonowitz singled to left, scoring Wisterzil. Schick, swinging his second time for the inning, singled between short and third on a hit and run play, scoring McGaffigan from second. Bonowitz moved up a notch, and came in on single through the box by Benton. Burns walked. Thompson put a stop to the mistreatment of Winn by flying out to Fitzgerald.

Coleman Jumps Pinto While His Bears Win Tilt

Doak Sees Bob Throw Bat But Has Nothing to Say Yet

BEAUMONT, June 6.—San Antonio took the first game of the series here today, 8 to 6 after 11 innings, when McCarty's error permitted two runs. It was a looping fly after two were out and the ball dropped from his hands. A near riot was enacted in the sixth inning when Manager Coleman of the San Antonio team, threw his bat at Pinto after having been hit by a pitched ball. The bat struck Pinto across the hips as he attempted to duck the missile. Plyers ad umpires prevented passing of blows when Pinto charged in after recovering his balance after the blow. A number of fans charged to the field from the bleachers but were restained by police on duty. Both players concerned were ejected from the park. Coleman was hurried to his hotel. The score:

President J. Doak Roberts of the Texas league, witnessed the occurrence this afternoon. Prior to departure early tonight President Roberts declared:

"I am making a complete investigation of the affair but at the present have made no decision in the matter. That will come later."

President Roberts did not appear unduly excited over the affair and from the tenor of his conversation, it appeared that he may not exact a penalty from either of the engaged players.

HOW ABOUT THE UMPS?

Speaker and Klugman Punished for Sassing Arbiter.

The other day President Ban Johnson of the American league suspended Manager Speaker and Infielder Klugman of the Indians for three days for their run-in with Umpire (Pants) Rowland. The players, of course, committed a sin when they sassed back to the umps. But those present are unanimous in saying that Rowland gave the culprits some hot words too. Now, the question is: Does Rowland get some sort of punishment for breaking Johnson's rules that umpires should conduct themselves as gentlemen while discharging their duties?

SAND LOT SLANTS

By MACK TURNER

MISSES RARE TREAT

Skipper Hartt of the First Presbyterian nine is in Denver, Colo., attending a real estate convention and was not present when the Presbyterians beat the Floral Heights Methodist Friday. Jimmy Shipley is bossing the club now.

Shipley stopped one with his mouth Friday while warming up his heavers. The injured member bled a bit and then the pain was forgotten in the excitement of fanning fifteen batters in the seven innings that followed the injury. Wonder if the hurt mouth had any effect on his pitching?

Jimmy Strikes Out Fifteen.

Jimmy Parker continued his string of strikeouts by whiffing fifteen of the Presbyterians Friday afternoon. Jimmy has no competition in the Sunday school loop for strike out honors. The race is very onesided in that circuit.

Hoop Cannon has all the makings of a true sport scribe. The young outer gardner has had a bit of experience at that. He covered the Grace Methodist-Baptist game Friday afternoon. His story was short but his box score was O. K.

Ronie Glidewell is fast raising his string of hits. He collected a quartette of bingles in five times at the bat in the game Friday. This will place him nearer the top of the Sunday school batters.

NO GRAFT IN THIS.

Rabbit Gordon has fixed the bases at that the pegs will be there as long as the Twilight League park in such a way they are needed and the bases will be stationery. There has been some trouble with the bases in the past by not being stationery and the Texhoma skipper acclaims that this is now a thing of the past. The best part of the deal and the part that gives Gordon more credit is that it is not only his own idea, but was done at his own expense.

Hoop Cannon found himself lost in the midst of a bunch of Texhoma stars who were finding fault with Ronie Glidewell's system of throwing to first. There are a host of Texhoma players on the First Methodist nine as well as Hoop, who is an outfielder for the Americans. Hoop was taking the part of the American's ace.

All Mall the Stars.

With the first half of the race drawing to a close lots of the Twilight fans are picking all-star teams. How about this for a pick in the Twilight loop: Catchers, Horton, Security Bank, Hicks, Travelers, pitchers, Harris, Securities, Griffin, Ludlam and Riggs, Glidewell, Americans. Blue, Electric, Thompson, Texhoma, first base, Kellogg, Texhoma, second base, Johnson, Texhoma, third base, Taylor, Travelers, shortstop, Windham, Americans, outfielders, Rawls, Travelers, McMahon, Texhoma, Cannon, Americans, Utility, Gordon, Texhoma.

Picking an all-star club is no cinch. There are a lot of players in these sandies that are not picked that look mighty good. The job is one that will not please every one, some one will always think they know a man better for certain positions than one already picked, thus goes the job of picking all-star teams.

American to Newtown.

The American Refiners will journey once more to Newtown today to play the Newtown Terrors. Bill Andree will likely do the heaving for Skipper Medford.

Leo Haney, new Texhoma outergardner, breezed into town Saturday morning on the Katy and was parked outside of Landon-Hill sporting goods store in conversation with Preston Beck. Haney announced that he was in line for a try at the First Methodist club as well as the Texhoma squad.

Texhoma has anounced the fact that Leo Haney will be back and ready for action next week. Haney was with the club last year and played some nice baseball, but went to the state university this year where he was with a ball club down there. Haney didn't hit very high in the loop last year but his fielding was steady and his hitting in a pinch was good. The return of Haney may mean the passing of some of the present Texhoma stars.

With boys returning from out of town schools the Twilight league should be able to find some added strength in some that slowly drift back. Haney is greatly expected to strengthen the Texhoma club, so why shouldn't a few of the other managers seek new material from the newly returned in Wichita Falls?

* * *

The wind that has howled over the city for the last few days has had a big effect on fly balls in the amateur games. With this sort of a wind blowing the balls have been hit up in the air and carried along for such antics that the fielders have had a lot more work than usual.

Yank Infielder Is Hurt in Game, Sat.

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—Jumping Joe Dugan, Yankee's third baseman, hurt his left leg and collapsed in a faint after making a spectacular pick up of a short bounder in the ninth inning against the Browns today.

WALTER ADDS ANOTHER.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—Walter Johnson added another game to his 1925 string today, letting Chicago down with five hits while his teammates pounded out twice that number for a 4 to 1 victory. Score:

MICHIGAN WINS BIG TEN TRACK

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 6.—Athletes were in the maize and blue of the University of Michigan triumphed in the 1925 outdoor track and field championship of the estern conference today, conquering Wisconsin and sixteen other adversaries in spirited competition that resulted in a shattering of five records.

The Wolverines, scoring in eight of the sixteen events, piled up 45 1-2 points with Wisconsin second with 31; Ohio State third with 30 1-2; Iowa fourth with 29, and Illinois fifth with 24 1-2.

The brilliant performances of Dehart Hubbard, Michigan's noted negro athlete, and Phillip Northrup were chiefly responsible for the conquest of the Wolverines. Hubbard won victories in the rentury dash and the running broad jump and Northrup won the javelin and placed in the pole vault and broad jump.

Hubbard's leap of 25 feet 3 1-2 inches in the broad jump made in the trials yesterday, remained as a record today, along with Northrup's heave of 201 feet, 9 1-2 inches in the javelin throw.

Herbert Schwarz of Wisconsin, smashed the record in the shot putt that has withstood attacks for 21 years. He heaved the ball 48 feet 1 1-4 inches, beating the mark of 47 feet 1 1-4 inches.

Simmons Makes Mack Proud Of White Elephants

Sammy Hale Tops League In Hitting With Al Right Behind

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP) — Al Simmons, a one-time bush leaguer, for whom Connie Mack, wily manager of the Athletics is reported to have parted with $35,000, today has a value of at least $75,000 to Mack, if the elongated pilot of the Philadelphia club measures base hits in dollars and cents.

Simmons, breaking loose in the general batting commotion prevailing in the American league, garnered twenty hits in his last nine games, giving him the batting leadership with an average of .415. He not only ran rough shod over the leaders, going from .389 to .415 in a week, but passed Ty Cobb and McManus of the Browns for honors in scoring, and made Ken Williams of the Browns look up to him for the honors of total base hitting.

Hale Leads League.

The youthful Philadelphia outfielder has crossed the plate 44 times, and stretched his total base hitting to 123. His performance at bat during the week included five doubles, a triple and a brace of home runs. Sammy Hale of the Atehletics is topping Simmons with an average of .428, but he has participated in fewer games. The averages are based on games including those of Wednesday.

Harry Rice of St. Louis also has been a hitting sensation, but as he has only figured in twenty games his average of .412 does not compare in importance to several other figures. However, he gained just an even 100 points in his last four games.

Other leading batters: Heilmann, Detroit, .406; Veche, Boston, .400; Cobb, Detroit, .392; Sisler, St. Louis, .391; Paschal, New York, .382; S. Rice, Washington, .376; Combs, New York, .373; Boone, Boston, .370.

Tris Speaker of the Indians has kept pace with the more youthful stars and is hitting .410, the same as Red Wingo, of the Tigers.

Meusel Poles Homers.

Bob Meusel of the Yankees is taking care of the home runs until Babe Ruth begins making them again. Meusel, by cracking out a four-bagger Wednesday which won the game for the Yanks, passed Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs for the home run leadership of the majors. He now has 15.

Mostil of the White Sox continues to set the pace for the base stealers with 19. Nelson "Chicken" Hawks, former Nashville, Southern Association whirlwind, now holding down the first base for the Phillies, and Clyde Barnhart, outfielder with the Pirates, are the new pace-makers in the National league.

Hawks displaced Earl Smith of the Pirates as the leader with an average of .406, while Barnhart is trailing Hawks with .387 and Stock of the Dodgers, a newcomer among the leaders is next with .383.

Cuyler of the Pirates, who has averaged one run a game, is leading in scoring with 39 tallies. Rogers Hornsby, newly appointed manager of the Cardinals, is out in front in total base hitting with 106. He has made 54 hits, including 11 doubles, a triple and 13 home runs. Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs still leads the National leaguers in home runs with 14. Earl "Sparky" Adams of the Cubs, with 13 thefts is setting the pace among the base stealers. Other leading batters:

Bancroft, Boston, .381; Earl Smith, Pittsburgh, .380; Burrus, Boston, .372; Hornsby, St. Louis, .370; Harper, Philadelphia, .363; Wheat, Brooklyn, .356; Bottomley, St. Louis, .353; Wright, Pittsburgh, .351.

CLEVELAND BEATS BOSTON.

BOSTON, June 6.—(AP)—In a loosely played game today Cleveland won over Boston 8 to 4. Spurgeon, Indian shortstop, made four errors. In the second inning with two out, Wamby dropped a throw which allowed a run. With the bases still loaded, Speaker cleaned the sacks with a double. Score:

After Duke Again

KID RICH

Harmon (Kid) Rich, the clever welter who gave Duke Trammel the toughest set of battles here last summer in the career of the hard-hitting Fort Worth walloper, will hook with Dukum this coming Thursday over the 10-round route, announces Promoter Wofford.

Rich has returned to Wichita Falls following a six-month absence, looks, and declares himself to be in great condition.

Trammel is in Cowtown right now, but intends to come to Wichita Falls early this week to complete his training for the bout.

LATONIA, Ky., June 6.—(AP)—Mary Kinkend, owned by former United States Senator J. N. Camden, well ridden by Jockey Mergler, won the Clipsetta stakes $5,000 added for fillies two years old at five furlongs at Latonia today. Cupid's Curse finished second and Helen's Babe third. The time was 1:01 3-5.

LATONIA, Ky., June 6—The quick step handicap, $75,000 added over a distance of six furlongs, was won at Latonia today by Mose Goldblatt's Arcady. Certain finished second a length behind Arcady, and Reputation annexed the slow place. Time was 1:14 2-5.

FORMER MICHIGAN GRID STARS BACK AND FORTH.

Former University of Michigan grid stars are playing hide and seek there days in baseball. Jack Blott, former all-American center with Fielding Yost's aggregation, quit his spring coaching duties at the Ann Arbor school to rush to the aid of Jack Hendricks and his Reds when Catcher Hargraves was injured. Blott served until Frank Bruggy was signed. Then Blott returned to school.

Then Irwin Uteritz, all-Western quarterback, who had been coaching at the University of Wisconsin, left his campus duties to play ball with Bridgeport in the Eastern league. He'll be back on the job when the grid candidates report next fall, however.

The last week of the Twilight and Sunday school leagues' first half opens today with the Wichita Falls Electrics and the Ludlam and Riggs clubs in their final battle. It probably will be Kollman for the Electrics and Griffin or Skipper Smith on the mound.

Monday the Floral Heights Methodists and the First Methodists will hook up. The Booneites yet have a fighting chance for the first half but said chances are very slim.

Tuesday the Twilihters again swing into action. Red Belcher's Travelers will endeavor to stop the rush of the Texhoma club. The Travelers probably will depend on Pig Iron Murrell to hold the Texhomas in check as he did the American Refiners last Tuesday. A victory for the Texhomas over the Travelers would mean the cinching of the pennant.

Wednesday the Sunday Schoolers are again scheduled for action. The First Presbyterians and the First Baptists are the two slated. Should the First Methodists lose and the Presbyterians win the second place would end a tie between the two.

Thursday the American Refiners will make their last bid for the title by a fling at the Security Bank. If Murrell, the Texhoma castoff, can come back with the Travelers for a win, the American's win from the Bankers the two refineries will be forced into a playoff.

Friday the Grace Methodists will take the final cut at the first half championship with a scheduled game with the First Christians. If the race goes as it has the past three weeks with the Christians flopping by forfeitures the Gracians have the first half cinched.

Walker's Chance To Beat Greb Looks Good, Says Edgren

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

QUITE SO.

Everybody loves a winner, but abhors a loser. Rather brutal—but human.

That's why our noble Spudders have lost caste considerably the past several days, and the grandstand's most empty. 'Taint fair.

No use kicking the boys while they're down. They've not out yet.

Daily masacre starts this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Let's hope the butcher and the victim roles are reversed today.

Who's gonna pitch? You're just as good a guesser as the next. Maybe all of 'em.

Probably have an airtight hurling duel after that crack.

VERY FUNNY—NOT?

Some folks have a quaint sense of humor. Big roughneck edged into the ball park the other day on a pass, and then had the gall to bawl Morgan out because he couldn't stop the onslaught of the Shreveporters during a one-inning rampage.

Speaking of Dick, so are we. Placed a wager with the prima donna of the editorial force yesterday that Eules would win 20 games, barring sickness or an accident.

Who said it'ud be an accident if he did?

Anyhow, we don't lose unless Dick fails to win as many as 15. Tie bet anywhere between 15 and 20. Complications in high finance!

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH.

There's four things wrong with the Spudders. First, as Walter Robbins says, they're hitting hard when the pitchers are on the blink, but not quite hard enough. Second, as Walter Robbins says, when the pitchers are pitching they ain't hitting. Third, as we say, they're taking it too seriously, us again, they seem on the verge of losing their guts—very crude, but just as very expressive.

So is Your Old Man.

May get crowned over that last statement, but it's happened before—with ball players. And we're still able to navigate, and continue uttering "smart" remarks.

Gang'll get going again soon. It would help if razzberries from the grandstand region were eliminated, however.

Dave White and company have gone to El Reno for a horse croquet embroglio this afternoon.

"Sports Trim Spuds," headline on pink sheet. If they get trimmed much more like that they'll be trimmed done almost next to nothing, maybe not at all.

Trimmed worse than ever was a lamp wick. Only difference, the wick when trimmed fires all the better. More'n the gang's been doing lately. Not much fire at all.

Let 'er Split.

About time to start the annual split season propaganda. Why not? Who's going to head them Cats?

Split 'er wide open! Divide her up into thirds of quadruplets if necessary. Let somebody else win part of a pennant once.

Cats are going to bankrupt the Texas league if they don't stop winning so regularly. Think of the poor baseball magnate's pocket book. And think—there will be several days, at least, of revived fan interest in ... once it they started it all over again.

Only one alternative—either split the season or bar Fort Worth, mostly Jakie Atz, from the state.

Might do like they do in cow pasture pool: let the Cowtowners give the rest of the league a substantial handicap on games like the poolers do on strokes to the dub and near-dub players.

MICKEY PACKS STIFF WALLOP, IS TOUGH AS THEY MAKE 'EM BESIDES BEING CLEVER BOXER

But Middle Champion Has Made Some of World's Leading Battlers Look Mighty Foolish

The first middleweight match that promises a real battle in that class since Stanley Ketchal was a contender is on when Harry Greb, the champion, mingles with Mickey Walker. Mickey is welterweight title holder and ambitious to increase his territory.

Harry Greb can be depended upon to fight the way he always fights, with a fast, aggressive attack, carried on in a style that no other boxer ever used. Greb may be called awkwardly clever. There's no describing his awkwardness, and there's no discounting the fact that he makes the cleverest boxers feel foolish. It isn't that Greb just tears in and keeps up a fierce fighting pace that the other fellows can't follow. He hasn't any great punch. He isn't a Hercules in strength He isn't a glutton for punishment.

Jack Dempsey watched Greb the night Harry met Tom Gibbons for the American light-heavyweight championship, and won easily in 15 rounds.

"He's a busy bee," said Dempsey after the fight.

That describes Greb exactly. He's a busy bee—stinging all the time.

In a fight Greb dances around every second of the time. He never stands still, never stops to feint or draw an opponent out, just keeps moving and hitting. He doesn't "set" for a punch, but wings them over on the fly. He has been described as a "windmill fighter." His arms swing perpetually. His blows come so fast that some of them have to get through any guard.

"The aid was full of gloves," said Gibbons, trying to explain why he lost the decision to Greb back in 1922.

Greb isn't hit much in any fight. His aggressiveness and the whirling puzzle of his attack is his defence. He seems to be tireless. Like Battling Nelson when Bat was lightweight champion, he has arms that never grow heavy. Greb's endurance is one of the wonders of the ring. He has been fighting in the same whirlwind style for 12 years, and he hasn't grown stale or lost his speed yet. He has fought over 200 ring battles, and he has been knocked out once—by Joe Chip in Greb's first year of fighting. Chip was a hard puncher and Greb a novice.

Greb Holds Decisions Over Some Good Fighters.

Greb hasn't a big knockout percentage. His best performance in that line was knocking out Gunboat Smith in the first round, five years ago. He has knocked out very few good boxers. He has fought a couple of hundred nodecision bouts. He has won decisions over Jeff Smith, who is as clever as any fighter in the ring, over Bartley Madden, Bob Roper, Jack Renault, Joe Cox, and many other heavyweights. He has beaten Charlie Weinert, who is now about to fight Harry Wills in a bout that is supposed to have some bearing on the heavyweight championship. He has taken a decision over Gene Tunney, and lost to Hunney two or three times.

Greb fought as a light-heavyweight for a long time before he won the middleweight title by beating Johnny Wilson. He fought heavyweights when he weighed less than 160 pounds. In all Harry has been one of the busiest boxers in the country and always ready to fight anyone. After beating Tom Gibbons, he challenged Dempsey for months, and might have been matched against Dempsey if the boxing commissions hadn't refused to let a middleweight meet the harde hitting of all world's heavyweight champions. Dempsey often said that Greb could give him more trouble than some of the ring giants. He knew all about Greb. Harry once boxed with Dempsey in Jack's training camp, and claimed afterward that the champion couldn't lay a glove on him.

Walker, A Clever Fighter With a Punch.

Mickey Walker, is the interesting figure in this Walker-Greb fight for the middleweight title. Walker has what Greb lacks—a punch. He is a powerfully built fellow, not yet 24—which is seven years under Greb's age. Walker should have a great ring future, and may even become a heavyweight in three or four years more. Starting as a high school athlete and an amateur boxer, he went to the world's welter championship in two years, beating Jack Britton in 15 rounds fo rthe title. Since then he has developed wonderfully and has put on ten pounds of useful weight. He has a thick, stocky, musciar build, but plenty of speed. He is a master of boxing. He is a quick finisher. A couple of weeks ago he won a fight with a good tough youngster in a minute and a half.

Walker's class attracted Jack Kearns a year ago, but Kearns didn't try to become his manager as long as Dempsey was ready to fight whenever Kearns signed articles. When Dempsey began taking life easy Kearns made a deal with Walker. Kearns says that Walker will win the middleweight title from Greb in a short fight, and will become one of the best middleweight fighters since the days of Fitzsimmons. Usually Kearns has good judgment. He never wasted time on boxers who can't fight. Kearns is coaching Walker to finish his fights as quickly as possible, knowing that the public likes a sensational fighter.

Greb naturally weighs about 160 pounds. Walker will be less than 10 pounds lighter. That isn't much of a handicap to a clever boxer with a punch.

If Walker wins the middleweight title he'll be a fighting champion There won't be a long string of nodecision bouts on his record list. He'll be like Benny Leonard when Benny was full of ambition and taking them one after another. He has plenty of fighting time ahead.

Walker's chances look good.

WOMAN'S GOLF TITLE WON BY MISSISSIPPIAN

Mrs. Armstrong Wins in Final Match With Easy Victory

LITTLE KNOWN PLAYER

Steady Playing For Six Days Won Title For Champion

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 6.—Mrs. John W. Armstrong of Jackson today carried to Mississippi the southern woman's golf championship by an easy victory over Mrs. H. S Geismer of Birmingham, 10 up and 9 to go, in the finals of the annual tournament of the Southern Women's Golf association, held at Belle Meade.

Mrs. Armstrong's victory, won in a match with her next door neighbor and roommate in a leading hotel while in Nashville, was realized on a hazardous course, steaming under an overcast sky from the intense heat of the previous five days of the tournament.

In the afternoon when old Sol's beams again were playing across the greens, Mrs. Geismer didn't come back. She continued to drive in traps and encountered the creek, after featuring the morning with a birdie two on the tenth hole on a course that is considered very difficult for men, let alone women golfers.

The match ended on the 27th hole, after Mrs. Armstrong had won every hole of the afternoon except the first, which went to the defeated finalist, 6-5, for a par four, and the ninth which was halved on fives.

Mrs. Armstrong turned in 135 strokes for the 27 holes, while each had 91 strokes for the first 18. A comparatively small-sized gallery witnessed Mrs. Geismer pick up her ball on the fifth hole and on the sixth also in the last nine rounds of the tournament.

While both players recorded some beautiful drives, the putting and approaching of the Mississippian were remarkable. Mrs. Armstrong took the second hole of the morning in three with a 15-hole putt and halved the fourth and fifth hole with a 20-foot putt.

Makes a Birdie Two.

When Mrs. Geismer made her birdie she went direct to the green from the tee within four feet of the cup, on a 200-yard drive. Mrs. Armstrong took six strokes on this hole.

Coming to Nashville practically unnoticed as to her golfing qualifications, Mrs. Armstrong failed to attract undue attention until yesterday in the semi-finals she eliminated Mrs. David Gaut of Memphis, three times southern champion. Mrs. Armstrong won her laurels not by brilliant golf, but by persistent steady playing day after day. She was ever off the tee with a good long drive. She was accurate with her brassie shots, true to the greens with her approaches, and dead to the pin with her putts. Not one time did she break the six days of strenuous playing.

Six times Mississippi champion and now southern champion, the quiet sportsmanship of Mrs. Armstrong and her steady nerves are being talked of by many of the seventy other entrants in the tournament.

Qualifying Monday with a ninety, Mrs. Armstrong eliminated opponents unknown to her for the first five days and it was left for her to beat her roommate during the tournament in the finals.

Kenmere Four Plays El Reno

Dave White, Horace Robbins, Dr. Fletcher and Charley Featherston departed Witchita Falls Saturday afternoon for El Paso to play the El Reno poloists this afternoon. The Wichita Falls quartet will use El Reno team ponies which, of course, will prove a bit of handicap. But the Wichitans are in pretty good shape, and expect to give the El Reno four a tough battle.

Riding strange horses may spell defeat for the Kenmere team, but it would not be surprising if they win by a neat margin, say local followers of the game.

STING STUNG 'EM AGAIN.

NEW YORK, June 6.—James W Butler's Sting won the suburban handicap at Belmont park today. Cherry Pie was second and Mad Play third.

Lake Fight Card Tuesday Offers Two Fast Bouts

Shamrock Negro to Give Rattlesnake Plenty Of Argument

A well balanced card on which some capable scrappers will appear is to be presented at the Lake Wichita boxing arena next Tuesday night, according to announcements yesterday from the promoters.

A double wind-up is to be offered, with Lightfoot Keotah meeting Tuffie Robinson of Fort Worth in one event The other will bring together Rattlesnake Kid, king of the local negro maulers, and Schoolboy, a black from Shamrock, Texas, who is guaranteed to be able to give Rattlesnake all the argument he wants. This will be a 10-round affair.

Local promoters have had difficulty in finding a negro boxer able to stay in the ring with the Rattlesnake. They believe now, however, that Schoolboy, who has fought here before, can do it.

In one of the preliminaries, Billy Clark and Kid Granite are scheduled to clash. Clark has met George Story and Duke Trammel in a local ring before.

A fast wrestling preliminary will be staged. An admission price of $1 will be charged and a lady will be admitted free with each gentleman's admission ticket.

Mack a Wonder Worker, Says Ed

One of the wonder workers of the world is Connie Mack, who handles the playing affairs of the Philadelphia American League ball team, writes Ed Smith in the Chicago American. There may have been strange and wonderful managers in the past, but Mack stands out as the greatest of them all day in and day out, season after season. Let us cite you just a few figures.

This is Mack's twenty-fifth team and the old boy himself is 63 years of age. In 1914 he had one of the finest teams that ever was organized and then broke it up by selling the members of it to all corners of the earth. For the seven years following Mack was a mere tramp of baseball. He trailed and was the laughing stock. Gradually he came back. eH used the Mack system of getting a lot of young fellows under his wing. It took a long time for them to assimilate the Mack scheme of working.

TEXAS SCHOOLS SHOW GOOD IN CHICAGO MEET

Vernon Leads Lone Star School With Eight Points

FORT COLLINS WINNER

Colorado School Carries Off First Honors At Big Meet

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP)—Fort Collins, Colo., annexed the championship and Russell Walter of Kokomo, Ind. captured the individual honors at the national interscholastic track and field meet here today.

It was not until the last event, the hammer throw, was finished that Fort Collins boys managed to hit themselves in front for up to that time both Wenatchee, Washington and Kokomo, Ind., had tied for the lead and looked to be winners.

The points score of the high school division is as follows:

Fort Collins, Colo., 20; Wenatchee, Wash., 13; Kokomo, Ind., 13; Northwestern High, Detroit, Mich., 13; Danville, Ill., 11; Kaysville, Utah, 10; Argentine High, Kansas City, Kan. 10; Parkton, S. D., 10; Protection, Kan., 10.

One interscholastic record, the mile run, was smashed twice, and the 100-yard dash record was equalled during the afternoon.

The mile run, divided into two races, owing to the large entry list, was run in 4:28.1 when Kiser of Wenatchee, Wash., won it. This was almost two seconds lower than the former record, but Kiser's holding of the honor lasted only a few minutes. It was then that W. Cox, of Rochester, N. Y., stepped into the spotlight by reeling off the mile in 4:22.2. He received a tremendous ovation. His stride was so good that the crowd anticipated a broken record when he whirled past the finish line going strong.

An unfortunate affair marked the day's sport in the academy division when N. F. Frost, Lake Forest, who had rolled up two victories that placed his team in the lead was disqualified. This enabled Culver, Ind., to annex the academy championship. The academy score is as follows:

Culver, Ind., 53 1-4; Lake Forest, Ill., 46 1-2; Mooseheart, Ill., 35; St. Johns, Delafield, Wis., 31; Wentworth academy, Lexington, Mo., 12; Morgan Park, Ill., 6 1-4; Wayland academy, Beaver Dam, Wis. 3; St. Albans school, Sycamore, Ill., 2; Mercersburg academy, Mercersburg, Pa., 15.

Point winners included: S. Thomas, Northwestern High, Kansas City, Kan., fourth place in the shot put; S. Balliew, Beaumont, Texas, fourth in the 120-yard high hurdles; H. Rhoades, Northeastern High, Kansas City, fourth in the third 440-yard dash; E. Howard Florence, Kan., fourth in the second 440-yard dash; G. Hines, Heights Center High, Houston, Texas, third in the javeline (176 feet 7 inches); and G. Bailliew, Beaumont, Texas, fifth in the javelin (166 feet.)

Seventy schools were placed in the finals scores.

Among high schools were teams with less than 10 points: Vernon, Texas, 8; Central High, Houston, Texas, 5; Breckenridge, Texas, 5; Cleburne, Texas, 5; Central High, Fort Worth Texas, 4; Beaumont, Texas, 2.

Weldon Draper of Central High, Fort Worth, Texas, was a close second in the final 100-yard dash. A judge's decision was necessary to decide the winner of the event. He had previously won second place in his heat of the semi-finals.

GOLF

Has a player's grip anything to do with his pulling?

By BILL STRACHAN.
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

The grip does have an effect on pulling, but the stance has a greater effect. In order to correct pulling which results from a faulty grip, the right hand should be readjusted so that the finger tips are turned down (turn the hand in a counter-clockwise direction). However, as I have indicated, the stance is the greatest cause of pulling. I believe that using a more open stance will kill pulling for almost any one at any time. The method of teeing the ball has little or nothing to do with this fault, nor does shortening or lengthening the grip help to correct the fault.

Southeast Baylor County Well May Extend Cranfill Pool a Mile

RATED AT 200 BBLS.

South Vernon Shows Two Big New Completions In 2,300-Foot Sand

By A. HALLMAN.
Record News Oil Editor.

What looks like a definite extension of something more than a mile to an old area, the Cranfill pool, southwest of Mergargel, in Baylor county, proved the big feature of last week's oil activity in north Texas. The well, Richards No. 1, Mills, in the NW corner of the southeast quarter of the TE&LCO survey, block 2428, other than proving the existence of an oil pool in this hitherto regarded "small" area, is in itself a nice paying proposition, rated as a 200 barreler or better from about 15 inches of sand topped at 1,443 feet. There is a tendency to regard the well as an extension to the Cranfill area, although a topographical "low" between the two may mark a sub-surface "low" also.

Be that as it may the completion developed an unusual amount of trading in the southeast Baylor area, Shaw and Rathke paying possibly the highest price for a north offset eighty acres, $80,000, half oil and half cash. A swenty across an eighty to the south in the northeast of 2414 brought $300 oil and $300 cash from the same operators.

No. 2 Location Made.

Location for No. 2 has been made by Richards and Sheldon 150 feet west and south of the northwest corner of the Maer-Staniforth square thirty acres in the southeast corner of the southeast quarter of 2428, and the old Star rig that drilled the discovery will be moved down in a day or so to start up there. Gulf, Texas, and Shaw and Rathke have all made their offset locations and should be going in a day or so.

The well is a mile northwest of the Cranfill pool proper with one well the score out of five hits; Magnolia drilled two holes with good showings in this district and Cranfill one other, all being abandoned with the exception of the Cranfill No. 2, Mills, a small pumper from the sand below 1,400 feet. Cranfill No. 3, 600 feet west of No. 2 in 2413 is drilling at about 50 0or 600 feet.

Refiners found the week's markets just a little better, just as each of several preceding weeks has bettered its successor. Gasoline went up another penyy at the stations, selling in Wichita Falls at 22 cents now, tank wagon 19 cents.

North Montague County.

North Montague county was treated to the sight of its first oil well flowing over the top of the derrick during the week in Daniels and Rutis No. 2, Salmon, northwest portion of the Panhandle 77 acres, Chambliss survey, which filled up and dirtied up the landscape twice early in the week with 21 degree baume oil from sand at 930-38 feet. The well had previously been rated a 30-40 barrel well.

Throckmorton county was featureless during the week. Texhoma has a gas sand in its No. 1, Reynolds County School Lands, Comanche Indian Reserve, block 57, 8 south of Throckmorton and is underreaming to set casing and test.

Wichita county is showing a surprising amount of activity, most of it old inside stuff with an effort to keep up production. The new pool southwest of Iowa Park was defined again to the east by Roberts-Hill-Craig's No. 2, Mitchell, last reported drilling past 1,510 feet and no sand yet. Atlantic's Mitchell is temporarily shut down at 1,874 feet while Hester and Hawkins are preparing to abandon at a total of 1,870 feet.

North Archer City.

The new pool just north of Archer City shows its second completion either a duster or a very small well, in Burns and Maxson's No. 2, Wilson, just east of the No. 1 producer, in the east 40 acres of lot 1, section 75, ATNCL, north Archer county. This district shows about five other drilling operations, none of which are down yet.

A couple of miles north of this group Superior Oil Producing company is looking for the deep sand in its No. 1, Wilson, southeast corner of block 62, ATNCL, after passing up a show at 1,484 feet.

East Archer county shows a number of tests starting up and in the emgryo stage, and thorough testing can be looked for during the coming months. Marland and Gillespie have both taken over big blocks and will do some testing.

The Litchfield pool got a slight northwest extension in Simms No. 1, Cheeves, in the southeast corner of their 40 acres, H. B. Akles survey, abstract 5, a 100-barrel well from sand at 1,012-26 feet. An interesting test is seen in the Harris et al No. 1, Coleman, in the northwest corner of the south forty acres of the Coleman tract, block 233, southwest of the Litchfield pool, now starting up.

South Vernon.

South Vernon registered two more big completions in the 2,300-foot sand this past week when E. B. Lawson No. 7, Waggoner, near the southwest corner of his lease in section 99, showed for better than 700 barrels a day from the deep sand, and Winnipeg Oil company's No. 11 increased from 700 to between 1,100 and 1,200 barrels a day through deepening in the sand nine or ten feet. The two wells, and that completed by Lawson last week for between 1,500 and 1,800 barrels a day in the deep sand are the best three completions South Vernon has seen in some eight or nine months and should materially boost the steadily rising production there.

This has shown a steady increase over the last three months rising from 1,000 barrels a day by 200 and 300 barrel increases each week to 8,125 barrels this past week. With the new big completions in now and a new 1,-000-foot area opened on the west of the pool a 10,000 barrel a day figure for July is predicted by some familiar with the field.

Continental, Zipperle.

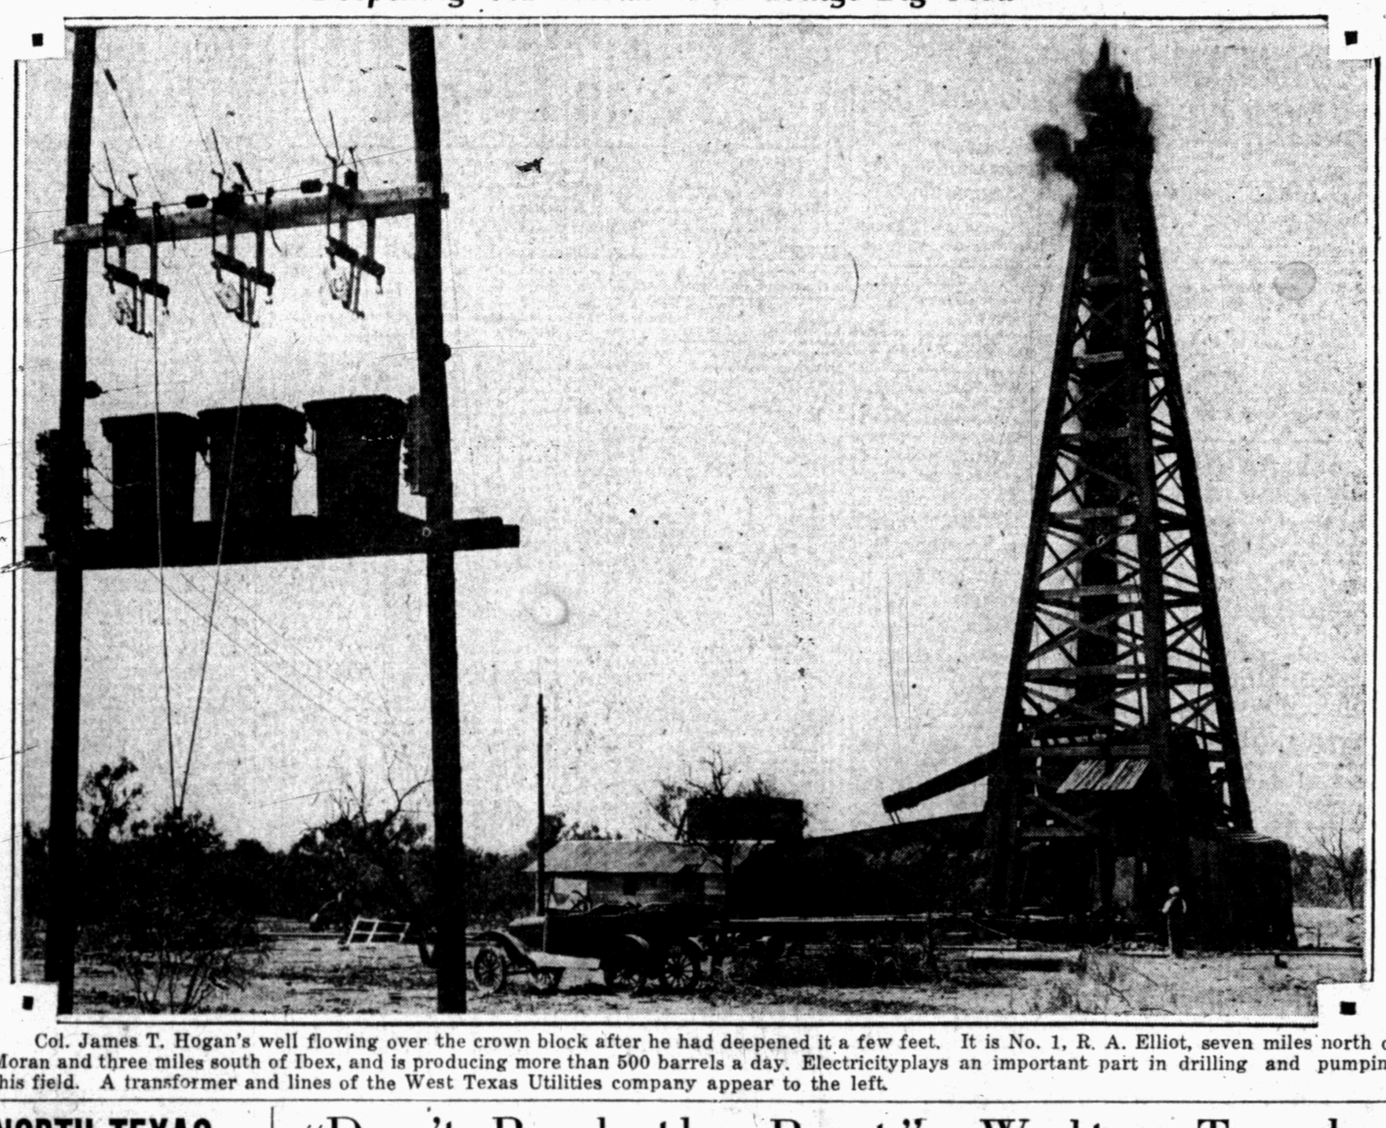

On the east side of South Vernon Continental is reported on some sort of a sand at 2,068 feet in their No. 4, Zipperle, second location north from the southwest corner of their lease, section 80, block 14, in the forty adjoining this to the south Atlantic was last reported coring sand at 1,318 feet in their 5, Zipperle, a location east and south of the southwest corner of the forty acres.

Three miles west of South Vernon on the Fluhman land, Wm. McKinney survey, abstract 1758, Atlantic is coring a sand at 2,067 feet in the old hole taken over from Keys and Eslick.

The Prairie created some excitement during the week when their No. 1, Waggoner in the section 45, block 4, near the old Noble well, showed several failers of oil at 1,937-39 feet. This was passed up in the hope of something deeper, however.

Magnolia is drilling past 2,260 feet in their hole in section 59, block 4, Wells et al are starting up again at 1,500 feet in their No. 1, Waggoner, in section 21, block 14.

Deepening Old Moran Well Brings Big Flow

Col. James T. Hogan's well flowing over the crown block after he had deepened it a few feet. It is No. 1, R. A. Elliot, seven miles north of Moran and three miles south of Ibex, and is producing more than 500 barrels a day. Electricityplays an important part in drilling and pumping this field. A transformer and lines of the West Texas Utilities company appear to the left.

NORTH TEXAS OUTPUT SHOWS LITTLE CHANGE

Increase of 496 Barrels Is Chalked up For Daily Average

North Texas production stood practically stationery during the past week a compiliation of pipeline runs, on which such figures are based, shows. The difference was an approximate 500 barrel incerase in favor the week just past, the daily average showing 94,-160 barrels against 93,664 barrels the week before.

Detailed figures follow:

District—	Last Week	Week Before
Electra	17,200	17,145

CRUDE ADVANCE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 6.—An increase of from 15 to 35 cents a barrel in the price of crude oil quoted on the market here was announced today by leading purchasing agencies.

SE Archer County

M. D. Cerf No. 1, Prideaux, just east of the Nicholson-Fraley No. 1, Prideaux, south John Dorsey survey, extreme corner of southeast Archer county, was down 935 feet yesterday and shut down for cable.

Dollman No. 1, Prideaux, west of the well was drilling at 500 feet after finishing up a fishing job and lowering the casing to 450 feet.

Slentx will move on for a north offset to the Nicholson well within a few days and get going there.

Texhoma, Howard

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company was down to 1,708 feet and drilling yesterday in their No. 5, Howard, north of the No. 1, Finis Robertson survey, north Montague county. The bottom of the hole at that depth was in slate and shale.

"Don't Rock the Boat,"—Walter Teagle

CAREFUL' MAXIM

Prophesies Good Price for Every Barrel of Crude Some Day

TULSA, Okla, June 6.—While an era of over-production again exists in the petraleum industry, the situation is not alarming, so Walter G. Teagle of New York, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, informed several groups of visitors Friday. To all, Mr. Teagle declared that he was "pessimistically optimistic," but urged oil men, producers as well as refiners to exercise caution in future operations so that nothing would occur that might upset the equilibrium of the oil industry.

Smackover's flood of low gravity crude, Mr. Teagle said, came at a time when the light oil output of the country was low, and now that the light oil output is increasing again, the peak of Smackover appears at hand.

Better Year Ahead

His statement follows:

"As I size up the situation, if none of us starts rocking the boat the oil industry ought to enjoy a better year than we have had for several years past. We have two controlling factors in production and consumption which are never in balance. It would be too much to expect in the way of good luck to have them ever in exact balance. It is to take care of the gap in between that we have field storage.

"We face the probability this year of another high record in the country's consumption of petroleum products. So far 1925 has run well ahead of last year.

Over Production Still.

"This should spell prosperity if the industry is able to realize the present price for its products through the balance of this year. The doubt on that score is due to the continuance with us of our old bugaboo of over-production. We are still bringing crude out of the ground in too great a volume for its economic use, and this in the face of government statistics showing that we have needlessly large stocks in storage. There is good reason to believe that in spite of the big gain in consumption of products we shall close this year with stocks as large, if not larger, than we had at the end of 1924. Earlier indications that a healthy draft would be made on these excessive stocks were upset by the remarkable increase in the production at Smackover, and by an increase above spectations in California's output.

"There is no ground for uneasiness in any quarter as to the sufficiency of gasoline supplies, even if consumption continues to gain. There is an ample supply in sight.

Make Haste Slowly.

"These considerations suggest the reservation in predicting a better year for the industry. The amount of oil in tanks should be a warning to make haste slowly. Too much activity in drilling, particularly in developing new fields, and an unnecessary increase in refinery runs, might easily mean materially lower prices, not only to the producing fraternity, but to all other branches of the industry.

"There will be at some time a demand at remunerative prices for every barrel of crude oil that can be produced. There is no justification for trying to bring to the surface this year all of the oil in sight. The country is amply protected by current production plus the abnormally large stocks in storage, and it seems to me that the wise producer will proceed with caution in drilling where competitive conditions do not make it necessary for his own protection to get the oil out as soon as possible. So too the wise refiner will limit his crude runs so as to produce the quantities of finished products for which there is a ready market."

100 WELLS DUE AT SMACKOVER FOR THIS WEEK

Avalanche of Completions Expected For Arkansas Pool

By D. H BANCROFT.

SHREVEPORT, La., June 6. — With approximately 100 wells on the sand waiting for cemented casings to set—and they use several varieties of quick set in Smackover—a decline of 18 in the number of new wells in Smackover registered during the week just closed is not to be taken as meaning anything but a pause for breath. Smackover is in the same situation described as "a natural corner" in certain stocks on the New York market Wednesday—there is plenty of stock but none in the market for the immediate present. Next week there will be another avalanche of completions. Smackover did, however, regain most of the 40,000-odd barrels it lost in daily average runs last week.

Make 46 New Wells.

Smackover's record for the week was 46 completions with 84,613 barrels initial, and five failures compared with 64 completions having 139,797 barrels initial and enght failures last week. Seven of Smackover's 51 completions were in the shallow sand and three of these were failures and of the 39 deep pay completions two were failures, nine made salt water with the oil varying from 98 per cent to 10 per cent with 75 to 90 per cent being the cut in most of the defective producers. Two of the deep wells made gas with the oil, one 20 million and one 25 million cubic feet. On the whole, it was an average week for the Wonder Pool as its average has come to be recognized—it would be a sensational week for any other pool.

Nearly 1,000 a Well.

The average initial production of all Smackover wells for the week was 1,839 barrels for 46 wells compared with 2,184 barrels for 64 wells last week. There were four light oil producers averaging 40 barrels compared with seven last week averaging 185 barrels. The deep sand heavy oil wells averaged 1,839 barrels for 43 producers compared with 1,430 barrels for 57 wells last week. Salt water in edge wells and some that can not be strictly classified as edge wells cut down the average two a degree, but taken altogether, the salt water situation has neither improved nor become worse during the last seven days. Production figures for the week by pools, and their daily average follows.

Caddo light, 61,096, last week 65,-800, lost 4,704, daily average 8,720; Caddo heavy 15,750 last week 16,-205, lost 455, daily average 2,250; Homer 46,900, last week 48,300, lost 1,400, daily average 6,700; Haynesville 92,540, last week 93,170, lost 630, daily average 13,220; DeSoto-Red River 33,705, last week 34,370, lost 665, daily average 4,815; Bellevue 25,340, last week 25,900, lost 560, daily average 3,620; Cotton Valley 78,540, last week 79,100, lost 560, daily average 11,220.

Arkansas.

El Dorado 57,870, last week 59,640, lost 770, daily average 8,410; Smackover light 222,600, last week 209,600, gained 23,000, daily average 31,800; Smackover heavy 2,772,805 barrels, last week 2,487,894, gained 274,911, daily avergae 396,115; Stephens 12,-950, no change, daily average 1,850; Nevada county 9,625, last week 10,-395, lost 770 barrels, daily average 1,375 barrels.

NEW BIG LAKE SEEN IN WEST TEXAS WILDCAT

West Texas Vies With Balcones For Week's Interest

FORT WORTH, Texas, June 6. — The discovery of oil off University of Texas lands in Crockett county, West Texas, and the speculation as to what Bazette, in East Central Texas, Navarro county, northeast of the Powell field, occupied much of the space in the oil limelights here last week.

The two Bazette tests that are in the Woodbine formations had failed to find anything at about 3,000 feet deep and the odds have been against a success there since the wells started.

There are two more wells starting there. Murchison and Fain of Wichita Falls No. 1, Warren, Doom survey, is building a derrick, while Bert Prince et al, No. 1, Huggins, northeast of Bazette, is rigging up and will be ready to go next week. Add Gilbert Johnson and Jack Greenwood's No. 1, Greer, Rushing survey, shut down at 1,800 feet for water, and there are five tests there.

Penn and Windsor No. 1, Vinson, Bailey survey, within a mile northeast of the town of Powell, bailed dry in sandy shale at 2,989 feet and was going deeper at last reports. Rowan, Edson and Peerless No. 1, Warren, Doom survey, bailed dry in sandy shale at 2,978 feet and was also going deeper. Eighteen dry holes limit this district to anything larger than a Richland or Currie, these being the two smallest Balconnes Fault zone pools.

West Texas

The Chester R. Bunker and associates (World well) No. 1, Powell, center of the north half of section 2, block BB, northern Crockett county, found a sand variously reported topped at 2,625-2,635 feet, and is standing with 2,000 feet of fluid in the hole, of which 300 feet is oil.

It is thirteen miles due north of the Big Lake field in Reagan county. Casing is being run and a packer set before drilling in, expected to take place today or Sunday.

Though not a producer yet, it has occasioned great excitement, and some trading has developed.

The Big Lake field itself is holding at about 32,000 barrels, with no new wells this week. Five are expected this month, possibly more.

Barney Carter Area.

The Barney Carter district in southern Stephens county, eight miles north of Ranger, reached 13,000 barrels daily production this week with the completion of two wells. Carter and E. M. Thomasson No. 3, Langford made 6,000 barrels at 3,548 to 3,553 feet. McLester Oil company No. 1, Pritchard made 120 barrels an hour at 3,-539 to 3,548 feet. These were the fourth and fifth wells in the pool. The next well will be Cozzelius Brothers No. 1, Spicer which has set casing on top of the pay.

Cross Cut Interesting.

The Cross Cut district continues in interest in northern Brown county, West Central Texas, south of Cisco. Humble Oil and Refining company has joined the Prairie Oil and Gas company as a lease owner there

Wichita Gains As Archer Loses In New Work Starts

TWO TOWN LOT POOLS ATTRACT SOONER DRILL

Collinsville and Braman Are Getting Intensive Play

By PAUL HEDRICK.

TULSA, June 6.—Interest right now in Oklahoma is activity centered somewhat in two town lot oil fields of the northern counties. At Braman the three mile extension to the south made by the Herbert Oil company in 5-28-1w, just north of the town of Braman, is the motive for the launching of some 19 tests. One of the large lease owners, the Comar, will be forced to drill around 10 tests to protect its holdings. In the meanwhile the idle lots of several unsettled additions to the town are bringing the owners in considerable income through bonuses, royalties and other considerations not generally permitted in official lease forms. The Herbert well is holding up around 475 barrels a day from 2,363 feet, in the Stalnaker sand.

The Braman field proper in 29-1w, is a properly regulated and spaced area and is doing better than 4,000 barrels a day from 20 wells, in the 1900 to 2,000 foot sand.

Collinsville Townsite.

At Collinsville, the most northeasterly town in Tulsa county, which has been an active natural gas center for years, is now enjoying the prosperity that oil brings. On a hill overlooking the zinc smelters oil has been found in the Burgess sand from 1,250 to 1,310 feet. H. I. Van Nostrand in 30-22-14e, had a well doing 500 initial and 1,000 the next 24 hours, but now due to caves it is swabbing less than 300 a day. Many of the owners of the town lots on Smelter Hill were Mexicans and foreigners who incurred the displeasure of the K. K. K. more than a year ago and were driven away by a mob. All of the leases being made are for 90 days time, plus a bonus and royalty.

It is predicted that both pools will be things of the past before long because of the close spacing of the wells and machines, which are wantonly and wastefully draining the main sands and leaving great quantities of oil in the sands.

Other Interest Spots.

The Bald Hill pool, one of the great Glenn sand developments of 1916-1917 and 1918, but which has had little drilling since that time, is coming back. J. A. Swindler in 24-15-14, Okmulgee county, carried a dead Glenn sand well down to the Wilcox sand at 2,215 feet for 1,000 barrels initial of 46 gravity oil. He controls most of the pool, but such adjacent stuff as is open is active and a new drilling campaign is predicted.

Okmulgee county itself, is being relayed from one end to the other. The Wilcox sand is a tricky formation. In few places, however, does it cover more than a small area. The Tonkawa and Stroud pools are the largest area so far in the Wilcox. Generally oil men assert that the Wilcox is on a little pimple, and all around that pimple or high spot the production must come from other sands.

Lots of Gas Found.

If wildcatters and operators in settled pools keep on increasing the volume of natural gas of the state the question of cheap gas should be settled once and for all. In 16-10-9, north of the Papoose pool of Wetumka, twelve gassers are in doing close to 300,000,000 feet day, and no purchasers. North of Tulsa in 11-20-12 the Gled Oil company has a 55,-000,000 foot gasser at 1,525 feet, and in a half dozen other pools the task of getting rid of so much new gas is becoming a problem.

Chickasha and Blackwell are still the natural gas centers of the state, but others could easily be made rivals.

High Gravity Districts.

Oklahoma's highest gravity oil is found at Davenport, in Lincoln county, where the Prairie Oil and Gas company found 500 barrels a day in No. 6, Stout, in 3-14-5, around 48 gravity wells of the Magnolia Petroleum company in the same pool. At Garber, in Garfield county, the new 4,300-foot sand opened by the Sinclair Oil and Gas company is wielding 42 gravity oil, while the 2,300-foot sand in the same pool produces 48 gravity oil.

Kansas High Points.

Another Kansas oil county has appeared after five years of trying. It is Chase, to the west and north of Greenwood. Selby Oil and Gas company in No. 1, Shambaugh, in 35-22-9e, had gas in large volume at 2,414 feet, and oil at 2,436 feet, and it is flowing 5 barrels an hour. While not a large production, it nevertheless breaks the jinks that has obsessed Chase for years.

Greenwood county, regained first place in Kansas from Cowley, when the older pools there fell off, and cleaning out operations kept the old Greenwood pools producing near maximum output. Butler county, first for many years, is now third.

The Rainbow Bend pool of Cowley continues to be the most interesting oil area in Kansas, although others are probably more profitable. It is 3,200 feet to the sand in the Rainbow Bend and three operators control the field.

Geologists are giving much attention now to Central Western Kansas beyond Russell and Barton for evidence of what the sands may reveal. There are some who believe that a great granite body exists there and that it is useless for further drilling in that section.

North Texas, Shows Continued Decline in Drilling

ARCHER LEADS

Total of 204 New Wells Started in 13 Counties In May

A big decrease in actual drilling in North Texas and an increase in operations scheduled for Wichita county against a similar decrease noted in Archer county are the salient factors of a report by T. L. Coplin on new work started in the counties under his jurisdiction during the month of May.

A total of 204 new wells ware started in 13 north Texas counties, the report shows, against 213 wells started in nine counties in April, and 303 wells started in 10 counties in March. The figure, 204, is lower than for any month thus far this year, with the exception of January, where cold weather slowed new work down to 194 operations.

Archer Decline Continues

Archer county continued its decrease, marking up only 88 new wells during the month, six less than in April and 63 less than in March. Conversely Wichita county showed a continued increase in activity, coming within one operation of reaching the March peak figure and showing an increase of 15 new wells over April mark. Young county slumped off from 32 to 11 over May; Wilbarger was stationery, with Throckmorton getting only one new operation in contrast with the five or six that has been its lot of late. The other counties were stationery at the old one or two per.

Foard county got its first test in more than a year in the Texas company's hole near Crowell. The report also shows a test for Garza county by the Gulf Production company.

AND THE TEAMSTER SAID:

As the tank rolled into the ditch. "I'm sure glad it ain't one of them old time tin tanks that jimmied up if you looked at it."

M & V Tanks are not the cheapest. But they are rugged and fool proof. Made of heavy copper bearing steel, welded construction, strongly reinforced.

And they are really tight, each one tested to five pounds before it leaves our factory.

Fact is they will last as long as any well in Wichita or Archer County is producing and we believe this means at least three or five years.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP) — Hot weather took many brokers and clerks away from Wall street today. The volume of trade was well above 66,000 shares.

Oils derived fresh stimulus from the announcement of an increase in Pennsylvania crude prices. Mid-Continent was lifted to a new 1925 high on buying influenced by rumors of an early resumption of dividends, while net gains of 1 to 2½ points were recorded by the Pan-American issues. Atlantic Refining, General Petroleum, Houston, Phillips, Producers and Refiners, Shell Union and Standard Oil of California. Texas Company also touched a new top. Brokers reported that public participation in the oils was increasing as a result of recent favorable consumption and earning statistics, showing the industry to be in a healthy condition.

New 1925 highs were recorded by U. S. Rubber first preferred, Kelly Springfield 6 per cent preferred, and Fisk Rubber common and first preferred.

The favorites in the motor group were Moon, Chandler, Pierce Arrow common and prior preferred, Mack Trucks first preferred and General Motors 7 per cent preferred.

Standard industrials turned reactionary. American Can slipped back about 2 points to 186½ and then rallied of the favorable while United States common and Baldwin each closed fractionally lower at 114 and 112, respectively.

Activity in the rail groups centered largely in the eastern coalers, with Lackawanna, and Lehigh Valley being pushed up to new maximum prices.

Moderate recovery of French francs, which advanced about 8 points to around 4.76 cents, featured the firm foreign exchange market. Italian and Belgian currencies also showed rallying tendencies with trading of the usual quiet half holiday character. Demand sterling held steady around $4.85⅝.

the second major concern operating there. There was but one completion in the field last week.

Seventeen drilling operations there, including a deep test or two, will place this district very prominently before the shallow ranks if many of these on the outer boundaries find anything. Western and northwestern deep tests and efforts at shallow extensions have sent the play radiating from Cross Cut proper.

Shackelford county yielded a fine well in what hitherto has been a graveyard of hopes. In section 40, L. A. lands, Armstrong and McCarte, Diller Brothers No. 1, southwest of Moran eight miles, made 240 barrels at 500 feet and the fourth day did 150 barrels.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 6.—The cotton market was fairly active for a Saturday's short session and prices were reactionary, showing a downward trend almost from the start. The market opened fairly steady but somewhat irregular with opening trades showing gains of 6 points on July, 2 points on December and a loss of 1 point on October. The market was a shade steadier during the call with July at 24.30, October at 22.94 and December at 23.03, or 1 to 6 points above the previous close. These were the high points of the day. The market soon eased off, owing to many private reports of rains in a number of localities in the eastern and central belts as well as in the Panhandle of Texas together with a shower at Galveston. These shower reports encouraged liquidation and some hammering of the market by traders working for a reaction and prices eased off with occasional slight rallies.

The close was near the low. Final results showed net losses of 12 points on July and 29 to 30 points on new crop months.

The July position was sustained by the strength of the spot situation and the growing scarcity of supplies in the interior as well as the steady decline in certificated stocks.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 6.—The cotton market was lower today as a result of weekend realizing. October selling off to 23.00, or 35 points net lower, and closnig at 23.06. The market closed irregular, a net decline of 22 to 31 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 point on July, but generally unchanged to 7 points lower. A disposition to take profits after an advance of about 150 points from the low level of last Tuesday was evident. It probably was increased by private reports of showers at one or two points in Texas and hope that they would spread over the state before Monday morning. Those who study the weather map, however, said they could see little prospect for relief from droughty conditions in the southern part of Texas, while the official forecast called for nothing more than thundershowers in the Panhandle. On the whole, consequently, the prospect for rains was not psitive enough to create selling power and after the bulk of the early realizing had been absorbed, prices showed a tendency to steady. July sold off from 23.92 to 23.60 in early trading and December declined to 23.16, net losses of about 31 to 37 points on active positions, but later fluctuations were irregular, last prices showing rallies of 6 to 9 points from the lowest. Very unfavorable private crop advices were received from the southwest, which had a tendency to restrict selling. Local brokers said the decline appeared to result largely from a readjustment of the technical position.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 39,347 bales against 52,569 last year.

Owing to the holiday there were no cables from Liverpool. Manchester cable advices said that owing to a slow trade some of the Lancashire cotton manufacturers had extended the usual Whitsuntide stoppages.

Battle Over Canton Is Expected by U. S. Official, Is Report

WASHINGTON, Jun 6.—(AP)—Official anxiety in Washington over the situation in China was increased today when Consul General Jenkins at Canton reported that a battle between factions for possession of the city was expeced within 36 hours. Foreign residents were leaving the city and its suburbs at 3 p. m. yesterday when the message was dispatched. The civil administration had retired behind protective barricades on Honan Island.

Consul Jenkins reported three days ago that a battle would occur within ten days and his message today indicated that the attacking force of Cantonese troops under General Hsu which was within 40 miles of Canton had made better progress than had been expected. Today's message added that the Yunnanese troops, entrenched in the eastern suburbs of Canton, were short of ammunition and artillery and probably would be defeated.

The civil government of Canton has been understood to support the bolshevist theory but Consul Jenkins said in his message today that it was "issuing a series of proclamations denying that it is communist."

The American consul general at Canton has served notice on both factions that American lives and property must be protected.

On his advice Americans living in the suburbs of Canton, where the fighting is likely to occur are retiring to safer points, many women and children having been removed at the time his latest message was sent. The gunboat Asheville, was at Canton yesterday and the Pampanga was expected there tonight.

A victory at Canton it is felt here might compel Chang, the Manchurian war lord, who is opposing Russian domination of China, to turn his attention in that directon and probably cause Feng, because of his reliance on Moscow for support, to reach an open break with Chang.

York Rakes Over Ashes Baseball's Past History

Veteran Recalls Days Pitchers Worked and Catchers Bled From March Through November

By ED HUGHES.

"Is modern baseball so very much different from the game I played some fifty years ago? No, not so I can notice it, and I saw many a ball game when I tended the press gate at the Polo Grounds three years back." We had directed the query at old Tom York, one of the eight survivors of the first season of the National League in 1876, and Tom had rushed to the defense of "the good old days" with an enthusiasm that bodied ill for the modern.

"We had some great players in our day—and playing baseball wasn't the soft snap it is now," continued old Tom. "A ball player had to be made of pretty rough stuff to stand the gaff when I was a young squirt of twenty-one. Riots on the field were quite common. You had to be handy with your fists, especially if you played in the outfield, where I was stationed. Players didn't take so much guff from fans as they do now. Neither did they take so much from each other and there was plenty of fancy conversation floating around the grounds."

"The players of my time, especially the pitchers and catchers, weren't pampered as the big leaguers are nowadays. If a pitcher works in twenty-five games a season now he is regarded as an iron man," York went on. "Years ago most of the clubs only had two pitchers and when one slinger wasn't in the box he was expected to play in the outfield. Teams had only ten or eleven players and there was no worry about cutting down to the twenty-five man limit on June 15.

"Sometimes a pitcher was so much better than the other hurler on his club that the star had to shoulder nearly all the burden. For example, there was "Hoss" Radbourne, who won eighteen straight within a space of only one month in 1884. At the end of that streak he pitched five days in succession. Boy, we had some pitchers years ago, not a lot of weaklings, who are afraid of work and are afraid to pitch to the good batters.

"The fans of the old days would not have put up with the kind of pitching you get nowadays. If the hurlers of long ago had given free passes to the Ruths and Hornsbys of my day the ball parks would soon have been looking for customers. The fans would have started a riot. They did start riots often, and for a lot less than that.

"Take the catchers of the 'good old days.' At first they went behind the ba twithout protection of any kind. Later they had badly made gloves without much padding. When a catcher finished his game his gloved had very often was swollen or bleeding. There was no masks, no shin guards. What a cinch the backstops now have compared to the task of the oldtime catchers."

The Titans of Long Ago.

"Did we have any wonderful hitters?" exclaimed York, repeating our query. "What are you trying to do, kid me? Did you ever hear of Cap Anson and Ross Barnes, of White and Dairymple, of Gorae, Dan Brouthers, O'Rourke, Roger Connor and King Kelly?

"I know all about your Ruths and your Hornsbys," York resumed, "but I will say this, we had great batters without the weaknesses which the great hitters have nowadays. I think that if the pitchers threw to Ruth all the time he would not hit so hard. He is a sucker for a good lef-handed pitcher. Yes, I mean that. Now you have so many great left-handed hitters who aren't worth a whoop against southpaw pitchers. We did not have so much of that long ago.

"There were no lenient scorers in those days and the scoring rules did not allow hits when balls bounced off the fielder's shins and chins. It seems to me that the liveliest of the old lively balls did not have the bounce which is in the present league ball.

"When the National League played its first season in 1876 the ball was as dead as they could make it. It had horsehide inside as well as outside and you had to sock it hard to get it anywhere. In 1877 they passed a rule making the ball a little livelier. The fans as well as the players wanted more action. History repeats itself in baseball.

"Say, did you ever hear of a newspaper driving a city out of a major league?" asked York. "I'll bet you never heard this one, the story of how the Hartford Times forced that city to quit the National League. I was with Hartford in 1876, and again in 1877. Mr. Bulkley, who was president of the National League and Governor of Connecticut, a fine man and a rich man and very democratic even if his politics was republican, owned the Hartford club. He was a native of that city.

"Well, the Hartford Times was a democratic paper and against Bulkley, no matter what he did. They took their politics more seriously then. The Times got up a scheme of posting the games by innings, all the details, on a big bulletin board in front of the newspaper office. The fans preferred to stand in front of the Times for nothing rather than pay their way into the ball park, even if it was right handy—only five minutes' walk from the heart of the city.

"Mr. Bulkley appealed to the Times to drop the bulletins, but the newspaper kept improving that service and the crowds kept growing smaller and smaller. Finally he kept the Times man out of the ball park. What did they do but put up two big telegraph poles just outside the park? They built a sort of observation tower up there and wired the details to the Times bulletin board. This killed Hartford in the National League.

"One morning as I arrived at the park for practice, I was surprised to see Mr. Bulkley at the players gate. 'Will you stick with me, Tommy, no matter where the club plays?' he asked and I promised to stand by him. He asked that question of every player as he came in. The next year saw us all transferred to Providence Hartford finished second in 1876 and third in 1877, yet the fans would not make it a paying proposition. The same thing happened in St. Louis, which sent its club to Indianapolis, and in Louisville, which was replaced by Milwaukee."

Old Salaries Recalled.

"Well, that's all gone now," wailed York. "The game has changed — for the better, no doubt. The fans nowadays don't like the brawls and riots which appealed to the boys in the old days. There is no rough language on the field or in the stands. The ball parks seat thousands where our parks seated hundreds.

"Managers dont' go around in whiskers and plug hats, as Jim Mutrie did in the old days. Player's don't wear mutton chops, Dundrearies and spiked mustaches. Salaries run into high double figures. A man like Ruth gets $52,000 a season. Frankie Frisch draws about $20,000.

"When I played ball a man had to be a hummer to get $1,500 a season. Remember that in the old days the season was opened on March 15 and ran all the way to November 15. We did not have to quit in October to make way for football.

"Do you know that the famous Red Stockings of Cincinnati of 1860 and 1870, who won fifty-six straight, got less as a club than an ordinary single player receives nowadays? The total salary of the Cincinnati club, for nine regulars and a substitute, was only $9,500—and that was considered high in those times. George Wright the shortstop, who still is alive, was the highest salaried player in the lot, with $1500. Most of the playerse signed for only $8,000.

"Yes, things were a lot different in those days. Gosh, what wouldn't I give to be getting ready to go down to Florida to train with the Giants for a season in right field!"

It was the old yearning of age for lost youth. "Turn backward, O time, in thy fight!" But Time flies heedlessly on; and fifty years from now the boys of 1925 will be telling an age of stadiums, seating 150,000 and players getting $50,000 and more about the era of the old Polo Grounds and the old Yankee Stadium which used to stand about where the Equitable's big skyscraper is now.

GERM JURY IS DISRUPTED BY STATE AGAIN

Box Full But Challenges of State Take Out Two Of Jurors

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP)—After the end of the long and tedious day process of obtaining a jury to try William Darling Shepherd for the murder of his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McClintock, was in sight today, the prosecution removed two veniremen by pre-emptory challenges and the work of selecting the final panel of four jurors had to be started again.

In addition to eight sworn jurors, chosen after three weeks of examination of nearly 400 veniremen, three men previously passed upon by the state and another acceptable to the defense occupied the jury box. The final panel was tendered to the prosecution and immediately it was wrecked when George E. Gorman, first assistant state's attorney, excused two of the veniremen by exercising the state's fourteenth and fifteen pre-emptory challenges.

The prosecution was left at a strategic disadvantage in having exhausted all but five of its score of pre-emptory challenges while the defense has sixteen of its original score left.

In that situation, court observers saw indications for a possible bitter battle of wits next week, with the defense maneuvering to force the prosecution to exhaust its challenges thereby permitting the defense to direct final composition of panel of four jurors.

Shot in Arm Needed To Quiet Talkative Drunk in City Jail

"Preachin'" services were staged at the city hall early Saturday night when a 250-pound oil field worker—all brawn and muscle, undertook to explain to the cops what a low-down set they were for locking him up.

The two or three bottles of jake he had consumed inspired him to talkativeness the like of which has not been seen here in many a day. It required the combined efforts of five policemen to shove him in and bolt the door. They made a mistake, too, for another drunk had inadvertently been left in the cell and the big boy whipped him to a frazzel before the cops could unlock the door again.

Theology, criminology, sociology, history, drama and business finance were a few of the topics he treated exhaustively.

A hypodermic shot in the arm was finally administered to quiet him down enough to allow firemen at the central station to go to sleep.

National Y. M. C. A. Workers View Tobacco Use With Alarm.

ESTES PARK, Colo., June 6.—(AP)—Increasing efforts of the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations engaged in work with boys, both here and abroad, for the betterment of the present day youth, were urged by speakers at today's sessions of the third assembly of the Y. M. C. A. international council here.

Two representatives of the Y. M. C. A. in England, Lord Radstock and Dr. Basil Mathews, advocated concentration on boys' work by the organization, due to the increasing recognition of the boys of tobacco.

Gordon Bennett Trophy Preparations Being Made at Brussels.

BRUSSELS, June 6.—(AP)—The balloons which competes in the first contest for the "second Gordon Bennett cup" tomorrow were being made ready tonight in an atmosphere that brought to mind the tragic storm of 1923, which was disastrous for the race. The weather prophets forecast light wind and generally fair weather with "local storms."

Diary of a Famless Man

Dear Folks:

Since my wife, Ethel and little daughter, Katherine, left for their six weeks vacation in Iola, Kan., I have had not one letter from them; not one word except the telegram that came to me from Fort Worth. Yet, I know no news is usually taken to mean good news, but surely a special delivery will reach me Sunday.

With all due respect to restaurants and hotels, I have now come to the point in my single existence to admonish that the wife's cooking is by far the best, especially as concerns the gastronomic portion of a husband's anatomy. I have not been feeling well for the last two days and hence I must let you into the secret that home cooking is better than all the other cookings combined.

A rather dull day, this Saturday, perspiring out an existence along with the rest of the ordinary people.

An interesting chat during the course of the day with my good friend Parson Atkinson, whom by chance I met on the street. I have noted in my short existence that ministers usually eye me with askance before plunging into repartee. Thus with Milo. He hesitated slightly, before approaching nearer than three steps from me, then warmed up.

It was a warm day, he admitted it. I asked him how religion fared as the thermometer climbed and he opined "very well, very well." Milo, it seems, is between the devil and the deep blue sea (if a minister could possibly find himself in such a predicament) inasmuch as a state-wide gathering is about to gather at his church at a time when he should be attending a church meeting in Abilene. I advised him to go to Abilene.

Our conversation brought out the mutual belief that the world was getting better and better. It ought to, too, with such good men in it as Milo Atkinson. I have often wondered to myself which is the gooder of the two, Milo or my other minister friend, Parson Datson. One would not make serious error in following the footsteps of either.

Much to Milo's disappointment I told him I, as a semi-heathen, could not accept his invitation to church Sunday, due to a fishing engagement at Lake Kemp.

And so it goes. I shall avoid a long and lonesome Sunday by joining hundreds of other sweltering humans at Lake Kemp tomorrow and with them, one and all, fail to get even so much as a nibble. Between you, dear readers, myself and the gatepost, the way the fish have been bitting up there recently it wouldn't make so much difference if Waggoner did enfence it.

And so a fond adieu.
Yours,
THE FAMELESS MAN.

EX-WAR LORD WILL NOT GO TO TROOP ZONE

Plans For German Chief's Trip to Dueseldorf Are Cancelled

BERLIN, June 6.—(AP)—President Von Hindenburg will not enter the area occupied by the allies to participate in the Dueseldorf 1000-year Rhineland celebration, it was announced today. Recent plans for the celebration had contemplated the attendance of the president.

The reason given for the decision of Von Hindenburg not to go to Dueseldorf was that he must remain in Berlin because of the weighty decision that is under way regarding the allied disarmament note. It was believed, however, that the government regarded this as a welcome excuse for not risking possible international complications and embarrassment by the president's presence in the occupied zone.

Struggle Certain In China, Is View

LONDON, June 6.—(AP)—Authorities here believe that war in China between rival native factions is inevitable, particularly because, according to reports here, the forces of Feng Yu Hsing, now are being heavily reinforced with munitions and money said to come from bolshevist sources.

Officials stated they are prepared for possible complications in China over the week-end. It was said the conditions in China are much more serious now than during the first part of the week.

Confidence was expressed, however, that the British government will be able adequately to protect British residents in China.

It was understood that reinforcements to the British bluejackets already patrolling Shanghai are within a few hours call.

U. S. WARSHIP IS ORDERED IN AT CHINKIANG

Situation Considered Serious; Houses Are Wrecked

LONDON, June 6.—(AP)—Reuters' Shanghai correspondents says that the British consul at Shinkiang, about 150 miles up the Yangtse-Kiang river from Shanghai, telegraphed today:

"Riots in the concessions. Can the navy send assistance."

To this the reply was sent:

"American admiral yesterday evening, wirelessed American warship passing up the river to put in at Chinkiang."

A later message stated that the situation was serious and that the rioting students had wrecked three homes in the concession. The Chinese police who tried to protect foreigners proved useless and the rioters had the upper hand until troops arrived at the concession.

Orders having been restored, the foreign women and children returned to the shore from boats in which they had taken refuge, but the situation again became alarming and the out come is not known.

The United States destroyer Paul Jones is now due at Shinkiang and Hms Woodlark will arrive Monday.

"The Rock" Ends Methodist Young Peoples' Program

Enjoyable Seven Days Come To End on Last Tuesday

CLOSING their week with the presentation of "The Rock," at the Wichita theatre last Tuesday evening, the Methodist Young People's association of the city have established a precedent that will be hard for them to uphold in the future as they presented a week of activity ending June 2 that brought into play the complete forces of the Methodist churches to the successful termination of a week that was of educational, recreational and inspirational value to the young life of the city.

Young People's week has been observed throughout the nation for several years and each year is assuming a more prominent position in the regular routine of public observances. The Methodist young people of the city attempted a week filled with a variety of activities such as a two-day circus, pageants, plays, picnics, concerts, public demonstrations all culminating in the consecration of the young life of the church on last Sunday to a higher and more religious life. The primary idea of the week is to bring into play every line of activity attempted by the young people of the church to show what has been accomplished and the needs to further the work of the young people.

"The Rock" Presented.

The Methodist young people in presenting "The Rock," a three-act Biblical play depicting the life of Simon Peter, offered one of the best religious dramas ever produced, one that required a very elaborate stage setting and the best dramatic talent to properly portray the story. It is the aim of the young people to present dramas of a religious nature from time to time, and an inter-church dramatic society among the young people of the various churches of the city will be formed in the near future, according to the announcement of those interested in that phase of work. The Methodist young people under the direction of Mrs. J. S. Pitman have started a complete new line of amateur dramatic endeavor in presenting plays of strictly religious nature. They will repeat the "The Rock" at the Wichita theatre on next Friday as a special compliment to the state convention of Christian Endeavor societies to be held here this week.

Prominent in the week's activities was the two-day circus held on the lot just south of the First Methodist church on Friday and Saturday, May 29 and 30. Under the direction of Herman Munden of this city, the young people put on a circus filled with clown stunts rarely ever seen outside of professional ranks. Mr. Munden, an old trouper himself, brought out the hidden talent as comic funmakers from the young people as only a capable director can. The Methodist young people's first annual circus proved to be one of the biggest successes of its kind ever produced in Wichita Falls.

Coronation of Queen.

The coronation of the Queen of the Circus on Friday night brought the young people from all the churches of the city and the Methodist churches of Wichita Falls district into cooperation as each church sent a duchess and a maid of honor to the court of the queen. The ceremony was carried out in pure regal style and was appreciated by all who witnessed it. Out of town duchesses came from Burkburnett, Electra, Iowa Park, Valley View, and Henrietta. The coronation was under the supervision of Mrs. R. A. Faver and Mrs. J. S. Pitman.

"Will o' Wisp", the story of a fairy who loved a mortal, with a cast of more than one hundred and fifty children, was given in connection with the circus on Saturday night. The pageant was written and directed by Mrs. R. A. Faver of this city. The costumes were beautiful and the technique of children showed much practice and training. Most of the best talent of the city was introduced into the pageant.

The week was opened with a picnic at Scotland park on Monday, May 25 at which more than three hundred young people registered and on Wednesday night, Rev. Bill Wallace, pastor of the Erray Street Methodist church of Dallas delivered a lecture to young people on their responsibilities to the church and the church's debt to young people.

At the regular Sunday service of the First Methodist church, Dr. A. H. Bouz, bishop from China, preached a sermon especially to the young people and at the evening service the young people took complete charge. Speakers from the young life of the church assisted the First Methodist church choir render one of the most appreciative concert programs given by the choir. Raybon W. Porter conducted his last concert on this occasion as he will be relieved of the responsibility of directing the choir at once. Mr. Porter's duties as religious educational director of the First Methodist church require all his time.

Much of Credit.

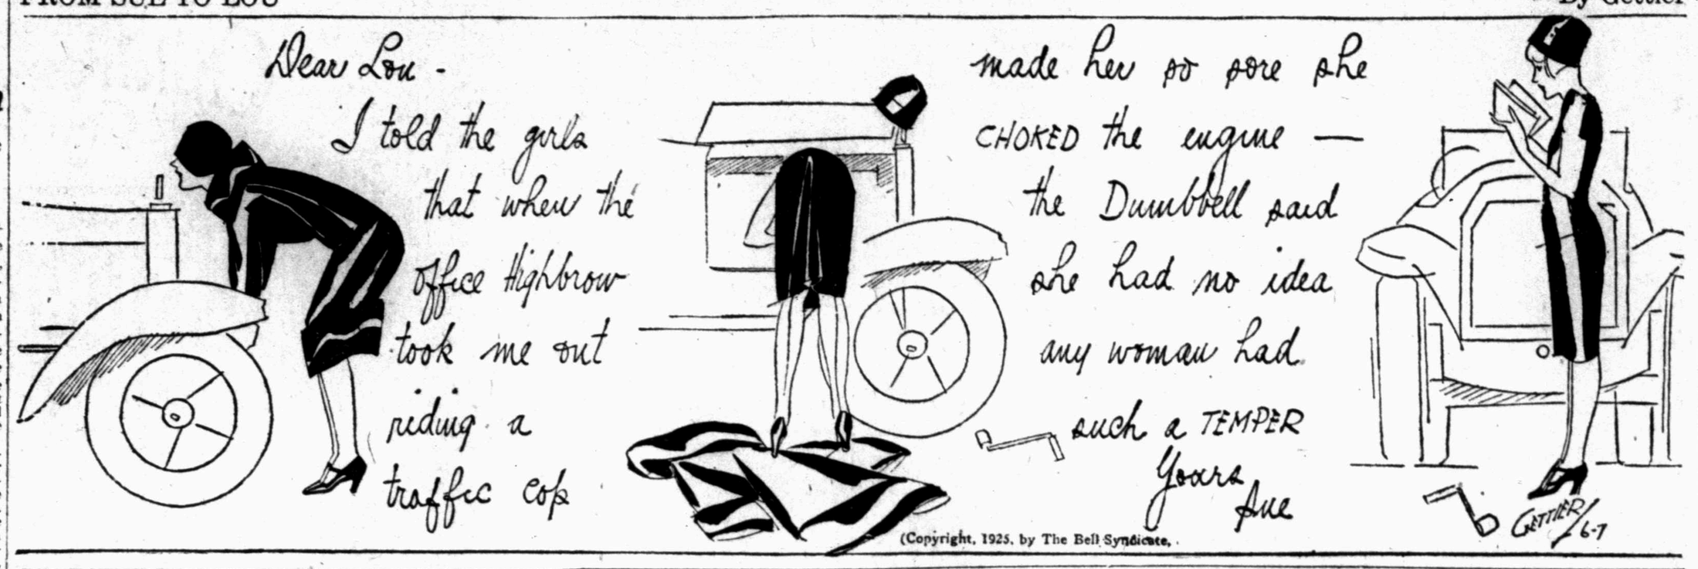

Much of the credit for the success of the young people's week goes to a few who labored hard but the wholehearted co-operation of the young people of the Methodist churches and the interested patronage of the citizens of the city really made young people's week one that will be long remembered as a noteworthy achievement in the annals of the Methodist churches of the city.

Those in charge of the various activities of the week included: Mrs. J. S. Pitman, who directed "The Rock" and assisted in the coronation; Mrs. R. A. Faver, director of the pageant "Will o' Wisp" and the coronation of the queen of the circus; C. C. Donaldson, director of the picnic; Herman Munden, who had charge of the circus acts; A. A. Oxford, supervisor of side shows; Roy Carter, supervisor of concessions; E. R. Highfall, general treasurer; Alfred Kass, supervisor of ticket sales; Murrell Hooper, judge of the queen of circus contest; Earl Baker, property man; J. W. Thorne, electrical supervisor; and Misses Glenore Fisk, executive for Camp Fire G. A. and Ivo Wilson, secretary of the Girl Reserves.

At a meeting of the young people's association this afternoon at the First Methodist church, reports from all those in charge of various activities for the week will be read, and plans for next young people's week will be discussed.

The profits derived from the week will be used to send delegates to the Sunday school training assembly at Mount Sequoyah, Ark. this summer for specialized training in Sunday school work. It is expected to have a number of young people from Wichita Falls attend this assembly this year.

Even Bridal Dresses of Today Are Short Skirted

By NME. LISBETH.

The June bride will not add an inch to her skirts when she dons her wedding veil and trips down the aisle to the strains of Lohengrin's. When Queen Mary of England graciously permitted the women presented at court the privilege of wearing their dresses short, the ban was certainly lifted from the bridal dress.

The new mode is well illustrated in this lace dress trimmed with orange blossoms. The fastening of the vail is always an interesting and important part of the bride's costuming, and this coronet would be becoming to most. A corsage of orange blossoms is worn with this dress. One very well known bride recently wore an entire girdle of the blossoms.

A costume that might well occupy a place in the bride's trouseau is worn by the other figures in the picture. It consists of a black taffeta skirt embroidered with every bud and blossom worked in a different soft shade—rose, pastel green, etc. The tunic is of peach colored taffeta and is made on molded lines. It is a handy little suit that may be worn on a variety of occasions but is appropriate for a dinner frock.

A trim little turban in brown straw and tan taffeta (lower right) would be appropriate to wear with the traveling costume. It is trimmed in tailored mode with looped bows of henna and brown grosgrain ribbon. It demonstrates that the small hat is still holding its own as the season advances. In fact, it cannot very well be dispensed with, as the woman who prefers a large hat for some occasions almost always needs a close fitting shape for equally important times.

White hats of medium and large size are quite popular just now. Some have handmade trimmings in folds of crepe couched down in large designs over crown and brim. Some have flesh crepe facings which is very effective. White hair hats are also worn and are trimmed with appliques of all sorts, and white and colored chenille embroideries.

C. E. 40 Years Old; Millions Are Enrolled

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR is one of the youngest organizations of the church and has grown in the short time of its existence to one of the greatest factors of the church program. The idea of Christian Endeavor originated in the mind of a minister who had the young people at heart. He had tried various forms of young people's unions, but none fulfilled the place that he wanted them to fill. The Sunday school had long been organized and made a part of the church program but it only covered one side of the program for young people, the impressional side. There was no place for the expressional side for boys and girls. On February 2, 1881, just forty-four years ago, Dr. Frances E. Clark then pastor of Williston Congregational church of Portland, Maine, called a meeting of the young people of his church to which fifty responded. There Dr. Clark outlined the plan of operation and twelve of them joined the new society. Thus was Christian Endeavor born.

Pledge Is Taken.

The organization of Christian Endeavor was different to anything that had been tried. The by laws called for business meetings and Sunday evening prayer meetings, social meetings were likewise a part of the program. The members took upon themselves a pledge binding themselves to the Master's work, to the work and support of the church and to the work of the society. The pledge was nothing more than any good Christian should take and yet it had a wonderful influence in causing the members to try and live up to its ideal. The pledge as outlined that night is the same pledge used in all Christian Endeavor societies today.

Dr. Clark has lived to see his one society grow to the huge sum of over one million societies, from twelve members to where today there are twenty million young people engolled under its banner, from one denomination to over one hundred demoinations embrace Christian Endeavor. From one little city until the entire world is covered with societies. Wherever Jesus Christ is taught, there Christian Endeavor is found. The largest society in the world is in Congo Africa There are Christian Endeavor societies in church, schools, army and navy camps, prisons and in district school houses. The ages for membership have expanded from the "teen ages" to where every member of the church can find a Christian Endeavor society for his or her age. Like the Sunday school, Christian Endeavor is now being graded according to ages and class of work to do and in some churches as many as ten societies may be found holding prayer-meeting simultaneously. It is true some denominations have branched and formed similar organizations but Christian Endeavor today is the greatest thing of its kind in existence and is doing more to influence young lives into full time service for the Master than any other organization of any description. Ninety-five per cent of those training for the ministery in our universities have come from the ranks of Christian Endeavor.

Boston Headquarters.

The main headquarters of Christian Endeavor are in Boston and from there the program and promotion of Christian Endeavor goes out. The world's union is known as the United Society of Christian Endeavor. The official organ through which the promotion is carried on is "The Christian Endeavor World," a weekly paper. Dr. Clark is president of the United Society and under him are a corps of workers one of which is Mr. C. C. Hamilton, who will attend the convention in Wichita Falls this week.

Each state have their unions which carry on the work of their respective territories. The Texas Christian Endeavor union has headquarters in Dallas. Mr. A. A. Hyde is president of this union while Mr. E. F. Hoppertz is general secretary. Miss Hallie Hutchinson is office secretary. All three of these will attend the convention and will make addresses. The Texas union has been organized some thirty-six years and there are about fifteen hundred societies in the state composed of twenty thousand young people. The convention here will bring together the leaders of a good many of the societies from all over the state.

Texas is divided into districts, each headed by a district president and a district council. This district, the Wichita district, has as its president, Miss Emma Lou Scott of this city. Miss Scott has in her charge thirteen counties. Cities then have city unions composed of all the Christian Endeavor societies of the city. William Spreen is city union president of Wichita Falls. The union has eleven societies belonging to it. The societies are in the First Presbyterian, Central Presbyterian, Christian and Yale Avenue Evangelical churches.

The bringing of this convention to Wichita Falls will be the greatest young peoples convention held in Texas and Wichita Falls feels proud to entertain the convention and hearty co-operation and attendance at the sessions is hoped for.

Clean-Up Drive Showing Results Over the City

"Cut Your Weeds" Is the Slogan of Campaign In Wichita

WHILE other women's clubs in the city have disbanded for the summer the Wichita Falls Civic league clubs are planning more extensive activities than at any time previously this year.

All the civic clubs were called together in a joint session Tuesday afternoon at the Kemp public library and there plans formulated for a general city clean-up campaign. "Cut your weeds," was the slogan adopted and from the activity of the members and vigilance committee, great results are expected.

Following assurance of the city council last Monday that the commissioners would be behind the move to the end, the club immediately settled down to work. Park and sanitary commissioner Patton lent his support to the project and residents were warned to fell all weeds on their premises and walks.

Two days were allowed in which to give property owners time in which to carry out the order. Since that time the women have been reporting unkept yards and vacant lots to Mr. Patton, who has been sending a warning card to the laggards.

The work will be carried on during the next week at the end of which time the hope is expressed by women leaders that all the weeds will have been removed, temporarily at least.

Mrs. A. R. Blakely, president of the central league, states that the organization will not adjourn the hot summer months but will continue to hold their regular meetings.

Texas Can Boast Only Five Living Ex-Governors From Her Long List

COLQUITT AND SAYER, HOBBY, NEFF AND JIM

Culberson And Campbell Are Last of List To Depart

Just once, within the history of the Texas executive mansion, have there been five of the men assembled who had held the highest political office of the commonwealth. During the administration of Pat M. Neff, and purely by chance, former Governor O. B. Colquitt, former Governor W. P. Hobby, the venerable Joseph D. Sayers, former governor, and T. M. Campbell of Palestine, former governor, were callers on Governor Neff at the same time, at the mansion.

THERE are five living ex-governors of Texas. Deaths of Charles A. Culberson and T. M. Campbell have recently removed two distinguished members from that company of those state.

Pat M. Neff

who have presided over the destinies of the government of the state.

All of the five living exes have returned to private life; yet James E. Ferguson, who is paying a return call to the executive mansion as the husband of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, wields a power in public affairs probably little less potent than when he held the executive pen in his hand. But he is nevertheless in private life so far as the holding of office is concerned, and is engaged in the earning of his livelihood as a publisher of the personal-political paper the Ferguson Forum, and, according to his announcement as counsel for the railroad interests of W. T. Eldridge.

Oscar B. Colquitt

James E. Ferguson

The romantic story of woman's political advancement unfolded within the brief span during which these men have held office as Texas executives:

Modified right to vote in primary elections.

Texas ratified nineteenth amendment.

First woman elected to state office, Miss Anna Webb Blanton.

First woman elected to legislative branch, Mrs. Edith Williams, Dallas.

Woman's highest political achievement in America, Miriam A. Ferguson, elected governor of the state, highest officer of the executive department of government.

Three Texas women, under special appointment of Pat M. Neff, formed first all-woman appellate court in America; and for the first time woman reached the highest rank in the judicial branch.

Joseph D. Sayers, oldest living ex-governor, still actively follows his profession of lawyer. He has an office in Austin, and though in his eighty-third year, still goes to the office every day. Recently he took part in the Gulf Coast Lines-I. G. N. merger contest, one of the longest legal battles before the Texas railroad commission.

Joseph D. Sayers

Colquitt Is Second.

After a long gap in the list is O. B. Colquitt, of Dallas, next after Sayers among the small band of living exes to have held the reins of state. Colquitt is actively engaged in the oil business at Dallas, with extensive interests.

James E. Ferguson, who is back again at the mansion, is next in line.

W. P. Hobby of Beaumont and Houston, has returned to his former occupation as a newspaper publisher. To the two newspapers at Beaumont he has within the past year returned to the Houston Post-Dispatch, on which as the old Post he began his career on the lower runs of the newspaper ladder—returned as president to the paper on which he started as a reporter.

The last in the list of former governors, the most recent to add the "ex" to his title, is Pat Morris Neff of Waco, governor 1921 to 1925.

Neff, too, has resumed his former profession, and again taken up the practice of law. His first case, that is, the first case of which newspapers carried dispatches, was in the defense of one of his old neighbors on a crime charge. Newspapers have more recently reported a second case in which the silvery orator has taken part, a suit of civil litigation. And since he has been out of office, Neff's name itself has gone on the police blotter for the first time. He was "tagged" for leaving his car parked more than the Waco limit; and he refused to be excused from the fine and the man who, for your years, could have stayed the death sentence of any prisoner, could have released any convict from prison, and could have remitted any fine, dug down in his pocket for the $1 or whatever the nominal fine was, rather than be "let off" just because of his prominence.

Woman Ex Soon.

It's a small select company, the five ex-governors of Texas. So far, the governor's office itself, and the little company of exes is soon to open its doors to the first woman ex.

A new "hall of fame" for the procession of Texas exes has just been created at the capitol. In the rotunda of the first floor are hung oil paintings of the presidents of the Republic of Texas and of early governors.

Later governors' pictures filled all the panels in the second floor rotunda.

New paintings of James E. Ferguson and W. P. Hobby have started the circle of the third floor rounda, and a painting of Pat M. Neff, most recent ex, has been executed and will take its place in the orderly ranks of the exes.

The Texas legislature always provides that the official picture of the governor which shall be added to the unbroken line in the capitol must be approved by the individual himself before it is accepted by the state.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

GEMINI.

During the early part of today, and until about noon, the planetary aspects are quite benign, and should exert a salutary influence for all exercises or recreations associated with the observance of Sunday. Thereafter, however, uncertainty prevails, and there will be experienced a feeling of depression, and a decided tendency towards irritation and disappointment. It is very easy, although by no means expedient, to give expression to such sentiments in the unrestrained atmosphere of the home circle. In order to avoid hurting the feelings of those who, by hometies, are so closely associated with you, it would be well to curb the impulse to be "nasty", and cultivate the desire to be "nice."

Although the child born today will have, during infancy its share of illness, it will overcome all its weaknesses, and develop vigorous strength as the years roll by. Its disposition will be very outspoken, and an underlying sense of truth and justice will form the fundamentals of its character. It will not be lacking in courage, either physical or mental, and will never be prepared to sacrifice conviction for expediency. It will be a careful thinker, and after arriving at a definite conclusion, will never hesitate to express an opinion, although it may run counter to popular or friendly currents. It will have a commanding personality, and is destined to become a leader—either in society, business, or politics.

Is June 7 your birthday? If so, your impulse more often guides you than deliberate judgment, although you flatter yourself with the idea that intuition is your chief asset. You are easily swayed in your resolutions by personal likes and dislikes, and find it almost impossible to judge an abstract matter by its actual merits. You have a very alert mind, and are quick to see a point, and have frequently demonstrated your ability as a debator. If things go well, you are an indefatigable and a tireless worker. You are, however, easily discouraged, and apt to lose heart.

Your hold on your friends is great, as your loyalty to them is never questioned, nor is your desire to help them, then they need it ever doubted. As a lover, you are exacting and constant; you give yourself with heart and soul, and become terribly discouraged if your love is not returned, with compound interest.

AUTO TAX NOT USED ON ROAD WORK, CHARGED

Auto Ass'n. Says Funds Misused in Many Of States Last Year

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—About $11,000,000 or one-seventh of the total paid by motorists in gasoline taxes in the last 12 months, the American Automobile association declared in a statement today, was diverted in seven states to channels other than road building. The states listed were Pennsylvania, Maryland, Texas, North Dakota, South Carolina, Montana and Georgia.

Ultimate destruction of the gas tax structure unless two tendencies are discontinued was forecast in the statement by A. M. Loomis, member of the advisory board of the district division of the A. A. A., who conducted the inquiry.

These tendencies, he declared, "are misappropriation of the tax for other than road purposes," and the "disposition to pyramid the tax by adding a cent or two at a time, revealing well-developed cases of the 'gimmies' in the legislatures."

A gasoline tax, Mr. Loomis said, "is a pretty easy way to get this money out of the users o fthe highways."

Womankind Engulfed By Bright Colors

The world of fashion appears to have gone color mad. Womankind not only has frocks, coats and hats of bright shades, but her negligees, lingerie and even her bathing suits are a riot of color. Even men are affected and blues, greys that are more blue than gray, and other marked shades are worn for suits, while all sorts of colors as gay as the proverbial peacock are used in ties and socks.

Printed satin is one of the most popular fabrics used to fashion milady's intimate garments. It is developed on the left of the picture into a strikingly handsome suit of pajamas. Pussy willow satin is used for this suit and it has, splashy roses and figures all over it and is bordered with red. Of course it should be accompanied by mules in a red that matches the border. What more alluring than this pajama suit worn by the bride as a negligee? These attractive pajama suits are being worn as negligees more and more.

A charming set of lingerie (center) also has a floral design, and the material is also printed satin. The set consists of step-in and costume slip, and the hems are finished in deep points, shell pink being the foundation shade.

The third figure (right) is wearing a vividly colored beach costume of the same material as the other two—namely, printed satin. This time flowers are not used as the decorative motif, but splashes of bright color are posed on a darker background. An attempt is made to tone down or temper this brightness with a lining of sober gray in the cape, but that quakerlike shade only enhances the brilliance of the other colors. The tunic of the suit is cut in a daring, slant from the right shoulder to under the left arm, leaving the left shoulder guiltless of any covering. The cap is a gypsy type apparently tied in a careless manner about the wearer's head.

Reversing the usual order of things, which decrees that we shall get our clothes from abroad, London dealers report that American bathing togs are in great demand over there.

Last Recitals of Spring Bring Successful Year of Music to A Colorful and Entertaining Close

Dancing, Expression And Musical Recitals End Work For Year

With the last of the season's dancing and musical recitals passed and teachers over the city preparing to go away for their summer study, Wichita Falls may glance back the last two weeks and see how thoroughly indeed did the instructors train the young people during the past nine months, as shown by the work in the closing recitals.

The beginning of the end was seen in the violin recital ten days ago of the Stanley M. Raub pupils. The program given in the Raub studio, 1801 Elizabeth, was the third and last of his group. The beginners all showed excellent work while the advanced pupils displayed rare technique in their work. A feature of this recital was the violin duet by Mrs. O. R. Eyssen and Mrs. T. B. Greenwood, with Mrs. O. J. Knight at the piano. Others showing exceptionally well in the recital were: Preston Lea, Edward Peterson, Sidney Covington, George Bays, Eugena Belle Stabe, James Guest, Homer Donahoo, and Rachel Brown and Viola Grace Doern of Henrietta, Lorraine Mathis, Dorothy Allison, Melba Peterson, Thelma Norvell, Reva Ray Brown, Melba Anderson, May Bartlett, Claudean McCarty, Cirginia Woodall and Emma Lou Scott.

Mrs. Ashmore's Pupils.

Mrs. Myrtle G. Ashmore, Dunning teacher in piano, offered her advanced puils in a closing recital. Here again was seen excellent ability advanced by good teaching.

Ernest Katz presented his pupils last Wednesday in the final offering of the season. This was one of the largest and most pretentious offering made during the entire spring, over forty pupils taking part in the recital. Several of the numbers to receive unusual applause were those by Miss Katherine Killander, Mrs. O. B. Keil, Mrs. Lester Jones, Miss Mildred Price and Mrs. R. D. Thorn.

Mrs. C. W. Raymond gave a pretty recital in the Y. W. C. A. parlors, in which she presented a number of her pupils in a piano recital. This final offering surpassed anything previously offered by Mrs. Raymond during the year and ranks among the best piano recitals of the entire season.

Miss Pearl Smithe, director of the Knickerbocker studios offered her pupils in a pre-vacation expression recital in which the unusual advancement of even the adult pupils was noticeable.

Miss Kinsey's Recital.

Miss Juanita Kinsey also presented her pupils in the closing recital of the year when she offered an excellent program last week. This recital was the culmination of a year of intensive training under Miss Kinsey and showed to advantage both the teachers and the pupils ability.

In one of the most beautiful settings ever seen in Wichita Falls Miss Anna Mae Cato presented her pupils last Thursday in a dancing recital at the Wichita theatre. The recial was only for the advanced pupils and the costumes were designed to carry out in effect the theme of the dances.

Mrs. H. A. Waller and Mrs. R. D. Thorn offered a joint recital last week to friends and relatives of the pupils and here once more was unusual advancement seen even in the more advanced pupils.

Mrs. Oran Staples offered the last of the last and wrote finis to the year's musical work Tuesday evening with her recital. Over thirty pupils took part in the program and the entire evening was a fitting climax to a season of music and study.

IN OLD MISSOURI.

Seldon P. Spencer is dead. He was a republican senator from old Missouri. Before he became a senator he was a powerful corporation lawyer. In a former democratic state he defeated Joseph Folk for the senate in one of the famous political contests of the age. He served six years and then Breckenridge Long, another democrat, was pitted against Spencer. Spencer defeated Long.

A divided democracy was responsible for the defeat of Folk and six years later the defeat of Long. Whenever the democrats divide in Missouri the republicans sweep the state and capture the plums of office. First came the split between Senator James A. Reed and Woodrow Wilson. They fought over the league of nations. Reed would have none of it. There are many prohibition democrats in Missouri. Reed fought the prohibition amendment and he fought the Volstead act.

Then came the klan in rural centers which were democratic strongholds. Reed fought the klan. Then came the McAdoo campaign. There are many McAdoo democrats in Missouri. Reed fought McAdoo to a finish. Then Reed came up for election in 1922. Wilson democrats, pro-democrats and klan democrats voted for the republican nominee, but in the city of St. Louis and adjoining territory which are republican strongholds, Reed received 40,000 majority, and went back to Washington a winner.

All the ancient feuds were rekindled in the presidential election of 1924 and Coolidge swept the state by a large majority. Missouri is democratic when the democrats are normal. They haven't been normal for some years. If they were normal they could capture a seat in the senate and send another democrat to Washington. All the surface signs indicate that the successor of Spencer will be a republican and a Coolidge republican at that.

Republicans usually follow the flag. They never permit themselves to be afflicted with political crazes of the racial or religious brand. They stand for well defined policies of government. Their leaders make the platforms and name the slates. Then big business gets in behind the party of the elephant and big business knows how to finance and to win a campaign.

In the old days in Mexico there were 48 officers and two privates to a company of soldiers. There are that many leaders in a company of 50 democrats wherever they are organized and kilkenny cat fighting is the order of the day. It has been that way in Missouri for a number of years. Now a toga is the prize offering and a republican will take it down.

Reed democrats hate the McAdoo democrats and the McAdoo democrats prefer a republican to a follower of the human wasp who is said to be the most venoumous fighter on the roster of the American senate.

A GOOD WORD FOR MOTOR TRANSPORT.

A timely good word for motor transport was spoke by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine at Chicago's midwest transportation conference. He defended the automobile truck and the auto "bus" from the double charge that they are taking away traffic from the railroads vital to the latter's growth and ruining modern highways. The secretary showed that the long haul business of the railroads, which is the profitable branch of their service, is left undisturbed by the automobile. The short haul, which has never been satisfactorily performed by the railroads and remains a subject of dispute with the public, is much better handled by motor trucks. Of the charge that the automobile was damaging the highways Secretary Jardine said:

"Are the roads getting better or worse? Have we ever before had such fine ones or so many of them? Have we ever before had fewer of them in a state of disrepair? Well, there are now as many motor trucks using these roads as there were of all kinds of motor vehicles 10 years ago, but the cost of the roads per ton mile of traffic is far less now than it was then. This has been accomplished by the really notable improvements that have been made in the design of highway surfaces."

In reality, the automobile is the main reason for the construction of modern highways. It demands hard surfaces and gives a new and greater importance to good roads. Without its stimulus to construction and repair we would probably still have the ill-kept and worse prepared roads so nearly universal 20 or 30 years ago. And it is improving rail as well as highway transportation. Railroad managements realize that they have to deal with a new factor, and are improving their service accordingly. If they must give up their short haul business to an unexpected rival, they are all the more certain to firmly hold their long haul business. The rivalry of the automobile has made them more efficient and more deferential to the public.

As Secretary Jardine insisted, the motor vehicle must find its place in the general scheme of transportation. It has come to stay and to fill a special sphere of usefulness. "We can help the motor vehicle find its place," the secretary said, "by wise restraint of its more enthusiastic proponents and by refraining from regulation which may have a crippling effect." Some of its enthusiastic proponents are joining its equally enthusiastic opponents in unwisely demanding more and more regulation. The former would penalize the automobile to aid the railroads and protect the highways; the latter seek, by the same means, to emphasize the importance of motor transportation. Both groups are mistaken and their efforts only serve to check the sort of development which should be desired.

BIG DEMAND FOR COTTON.

American and foreign spinners have taken 12,167,000 bales of the cotton crop of 1924 in the year which will close July 31, 1925. In other words for the first ten months of the cotton year compared with 9,698,000 bales at this time a year ago. Foreign spinners are either stocking up for a lean year in raw material or else the spindles have been very busy in the manufacturing nations which were ravaged during the world war.

"PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT."

On of the philosophers observes that no man is so formed that he can be left entirely to himself, to go his own ways; every one needs to be guided by some preconceived plan, and to follow certain general rules.

To understand a rule goverping conduct of others, even to discover it for one's self and to express it clearly, is easy enough; and still, very soon afterward, the rule may be broken in practice. But that is no reason for despair; and you need not suppose that as it is impossible to regulate your life in accordance with abstract ideas and maxims, it is better to live just as you please.

Here, as in all theoretical instruction that aims at a practical result, the first thing to do is understand the rule; the second thing is to learn the practice of it.

The theory may be understood at once by an effort of reason, and yet the practice of it acquired only in course of time.

If you go in for tennis, or golf, or any other game, you know how hard it is at first to play exactly as you know you should.

A pupil may learn the various notes on a musical instrument; and when he makes a mistake, as he is sure to do, however hard he tries, he is apt to think it will be impossible to observe the rules when he is set to read music at sight.

But gradual practice makes him perfect, through a long series of slips, blunders and fresh efforts.

It is just the same in other things.

But though self-discipline of this kind is the result of long habit, it always works by a sort of what Schopenhauer calls external compulsion, which Nature never ceases to resist and sometimes unexpectedly overcomes.

The difference between action in accordance with abstract principles, and action as the result of original inmate tendency, is the same between a work of art, say a watch—where form and movement are impressed upon shapeless and inert matter—and a living organism, where form and matter are one, and each is inseparable from the other.

There is a maxim attributed to Napoleon which expresses this relation between acquired and innate character: "Everything that is unnatural is imperfect."

Mineralogists will tell you there is an exception to this rule, however. Aventurine, a rare kind of quartz, in its natural states does not compare with the artificial preparation of it.

THE HOPE OF REST.

Worthy work carries with it the hope of pleasure in rest, the hope of the pleasure in our using what it makes, and the hope of pleasure in our daily creative skill.

So observed William Morris who, for one, believed that all other work but this is worthless; "it is slaves' work—mere toiling to live, that we may live to toil," he said.

Most people appear to assume that all work is useful, and many persons believe that work is desirable. It has become a part of popular thought that labor is good in itself.

But all of us should be able to see that there are two kinds of work—one good, the other bad; one not far removed from a blessing, a lightening of life, the other a mere curse, a burden to life.

What is the difference between them? This: One has hope in it, the other has not.

What is the nature of the hope which, when it is present in work, makes it worth doing? Morris answers:

"It is threefold, I think—hope of rest, hope of product, hope of pleasure in the work itself; and hope of these also in some abundance and of good quality; rest enough and good enough to be worth having; product worth having by one who is neither a fool nor an ascetic; pleasure enough for all of us to be conscious of it while we are at work; not a mere habit, the less of which he shall feel as a fidgety man feels the loss of the bit of string he fidgets with."

Note that he puts hope of rest first. He does so, he explains, "because it is the simplest and most natural part of our hope."

"What ever hope there is in some work," he continues, "there is certainly some pain in all work, the beast-like sting of stirring up our slumbering energies to action, the beast-like dread of change when things are well with us; the compensation for this animal pain is animal rest."

We must feel while we are working that the time will come when we shall not have to work.

The rest, when it comes, must be long enough to allow us to enjoy it; it must be longer than is merely necessary for us to recover the strength we have expended in working, and it must be animal rest also in this, that it must not be disturbed in anxiety, else we shal not be able to enjoy it.

Here is something employers should remember well.

A PERMANENT REDUCTION PROGRAM?

Decidedly significant are President Coolidge's inquiries among the federal departments as to the feasibility of a progressive budget reduction over a period of years. They follow closely intimations that the budget bureau is working out plans for a consolidated federal purchasing agency. If these two efforts are combined the budget savings of the government will be unified and put upon a permanent basis. A necessary corollary will be a permanent tax reduction program eliminating the uncertainty of large surpluses doing away with varying payments on the principal of the national debt. To balance "planned" budget savings, "planned" tax reduction must be had.

Maximum estimates for the fiscal year will be presented to the several directing heads of departments and government offices at the semi-annual budget meeting on June 22. In this conference the president will outline his policies for the year beginning July 1, and for a considerable period in the future. He will tell his agents how the government can be maintained upon a total revenue of $3,000,000,000. That sum will represent something like the minimum operating cost attainable by making great slashes in government expenses. After it has been reached, "progressive reduction," carefully planned, must apply.

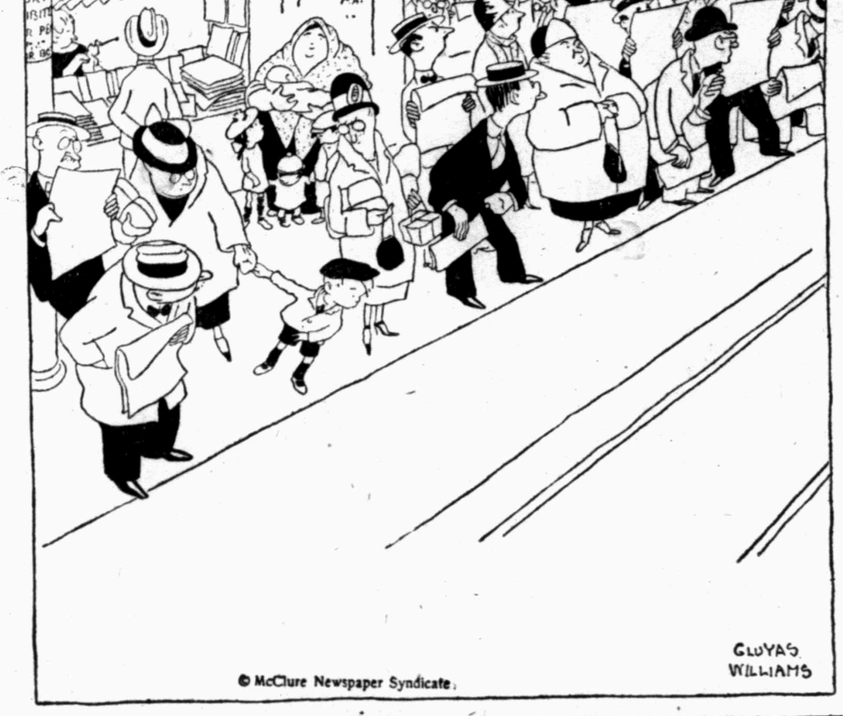

Congress will be but a little later than the president in taking up the matter of reduction. This winter it will be congress' task to pare down taxes so far as may appear practicable from the president's calculatio nof surpluses. But after this cut it is not probable that another of substantial size can be made. The process of reduction should then become a routine affair. Surpluses should be eliminated, since there can be no more large ones.

VICTORY FOR MAGNUS.

Magnus Johnson of Minnesota was not drunk. He was not fined for drunkenness. He is a total abstainer. He obeys the laws of the land. This is the reason why a Minnesota editor was found guilty of criminal libel by a jury and made to pay for his folly. It was another Magnus Johnson and the other Magnus was neither a former United States senator nor a pious man who obeys the laws of his country.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

Who's Who in the Story.

Rosilyn Ridgeway learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune has left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

Landis Ridgeway, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother. Rosilyn, loving her husband, knows he is still in love with

Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying

Stevie Van Vorst, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway.

Ruperi Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, has seen Rosilyn ——— but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and she and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby Rosilyn and Briscoe will see a great deal of each other, and Lydia will have a chance to exert her wiles upon Landis. The plan works, and Landis, finding himself often alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more.

Van Vorst, however hungering for her love, decides to use

Marietta Fernandez a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a scheme. These two come to New York where Marietta begins to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

In the country at the Ridgeway place, Rosylin, in a fever of jealousy and anxiety over the protracted disappearance of her husband seeks the solace of the countryside. After an exciting adventure she is rescued by Briscoe who tells a "fishy" store to account for his proximity to the scene. Landis disapproves heartily of the whole affair but conscious stricken at his neglect of Rosilyn invites her to attend a stage garden party with him. She joyfully accepts.

"That was nothing. I really love the old house, and I haven't been moping—though—" greatly daring—"I did miss you a wee bit."

The man said hurriedly—

"When I got mother's telegram yesterday, I caught the first train down, cursing myself for a thoughtless and selfish idiot. It was a horrible journey, because all the time I was afraid that something had happened to you. Those cliffs are dangerous in parts, if one goes too near the edge. You must take me with you on your rambles, Rosilyn. I love a long tramp by the sea, and I don't think you and I have ever had a walk together, have we?"

Her heart gave a great leap of joy. The new hope dazzled, in its beautiful intensity.

"If I shouldn't bore you," she began uncertainly.

He crossed the floor, seating himself beside her on the couch.

"My dear—" He made a movement with his arm, as though he would slip it shyly about her. "My dear—"

At that crucial moment, the door opened and Mrs. Ridgeway Senior walked into the room.

She looked startled, and then beamed when she saw the pair on the sofa.

"Ah! I'm intruding!"

Her son rose at once, with an embarrassed laugh.

"Caught, weren't we? Come in, mother. I was just going to persuade Rosilyn to take a little trip with me to town today. There's an amusing Stage Garden—party to be held somewhere, and the change would do her good—particularly after yesterday's adventure. You're feeling quite fit, aren't you Rosilyn? No after effects? No bad bruises?"

"Only a few teeny ones," laughed the girl, her face illuminated. Then, for fear he'd think she was not well enough, she added quickly—

"I'd love to go with you."

CHAPTER LV.
At the Garden Party

Landis and Rosilyn lunched at the Ritz-Carlton. It was a bright and cheerful meal, and both did excellent justice to it.

Afterwards, by taxi cab, they proceeded to the garden party.

Landis cast wondering glances at this little wife of his. A stranger to him, for the first time he sensed the elusive, delicate beauty of the girl.

"Such a becoming dress, my dear!" he commented, giving her that flashing smile of his. "I feel very greatly honored."

In Rosilyn's heart, a little bird sang a mad song of happiness.

So lover-like, those tones!

At the big gates leading to the leafy grounds where the garden party was being held, the taxi-cab deposited them.

A crowd waited to see the famous actresses go in.

A little sigh of admiration rose as Rosilyn passed through the gates with her husband.

"They are taking you for some celebrity!" whispered her escort in amused—yet pleased—tones.

"It's my frock. It cost a fearful lot of money." Then the girl blushed anew at what she feared was the "faux pas" she had perpetrated.

"Come along." He bought two tickets at the turnstile and led her into the really lovely grounds, where booths and stalls of every shape and size and decoration were in evidence.

Floating balloons soared up above the tents where famous actresses and stage folk of all kinds "ran" their little shows.

"Oh! Landis! Look!" Rosilyn came to a halt before a roulette wheel that was being "managed" by a picture postcard beauty.

The lovely actress bowed and smiled to Rosilyn's husband.

"You know her?"

"Certainly. Would you like to meet her?" And before Rosilyn could shyly move away, he had affected the introduction.

It was a wonderful afternoon for the girl. To be with Landis in a sort of fairyland like this—an attentive Landis—who despite the gamut of feminine charms that dotted the landscape—seemed to have his whole thoughts centered only on herself and on the intention of amusing her and making her happy—why, it was just like heaven!

They partook of a dollar tea in a crowded enclosure, while a band jangled out in a merry air nearby.

Chairs were at a premium, so they sat on the grass.

Rosilyn was thrilled by his proximity.

"Lean on me, dear! You must be tired, after all the walking we've already done!" he counselled her.

Tired? She had never felt so bouyant in her life before. "Treading on air"—that's what it had been!

"Isn't it lovely here?" she murmured.

A little pang of self-reproach went through him at her accent of enthusiasm. How unspoiled the child was! How fresh was her enjoyment! And how he had neglected her—

"Yes, isn't it?" He lit a cigarette. "We must have some more jaunts together, you and I."

Her heart thrilled anew.

"If you can spare the time," she said, humbly and shyly.

He shot a quick look at her. Her little face was half hidden by the drooping picture hat. There was something oddly elusive, subtly attractive, in that little face of hers. But certainly there was no irony, no sense of "grudge."

She had a kind and generous character, had Rosilyn—and he had treated a lonely child abominably.

Selfish beasts men were he thought, with a sudden access of self reproach.

And women like Lydia were detestably selfish, also. It was caddish to blame Lydia, even in his thoughts—but it was cruel of her, wasn't it, to have opened up the old "affair" when a girl-bride formed the third member of the triangle?

Of course Rosilyn herself had very sensibly confessed her own part in the marriage. A bargain. No demands to be made on either party.

But even if Rosilyn had adored him, Lydia would have had no mercy on the child's affections. Ruthless streak she had! Many's the time she had tortured Landis and seemed to take an almost diabolical pleasure in his writhings!

"Happy, Rosilyn?" He picked up a plate of little pink cakes from the grass and passed them to her. "You're not eating any thing? Come on!"

She turned her pretty face—yes, it is charmingly pretty today, beneath the droopy picture hat—up to him, and smilingly replied—

"I'm really too happy to eat, thanks. All this is such a—a novelty to me!"

(His vagrant attention, did she mean?)

She went on in the sweet, rather serious tone that had a softly musical sound about them—

"I never realized there were such beautiful, talented women in the world as the crowd here today. And of course it makes it all the more—more absorbing—to have you with me, pointing out to me who they are, and what plays they've been in, and which ones you know, and everything."

Then, recognizing a famous motion picture star, she gave a little cry of pleasure.

"Isn't she lovely?"

Landis said, on a sudden impulse, and quite earnestly—

"Not any prettier than you are, today my dear!"

Her breath caught in her throat.

CHAPTER LVI.
Things Clear Up

"Landis"—the hand that held the teacup rembled—"would you think me awfully silly if I asked you to tell what it is that makes men follow after a woman?"

The man beside her gave his careless laugh.

"Want to be a siren, do you, Rosilyn? Are you bent on fascinating Briscoe? Or are you merely bored with your humdrum husband, and want a little fling?"

"Don't tease me Landis. I'm in earnest. If you only knew how utterly ignorant I feel—"

"You're getting along splendidly—far better than I even imagined—and you never were a stupid girl, Rosilyn. You've been surprisingly adaptable, and every day will make things easier—socially."

She flushed with pleasure. Praise from this man was very rare and very sweet.

"Now about the 'charm' question," he went on, smilingly, "just be your simple self. That's unusual enough to be interesting these days. D'you know, Rosilyn, you've got a 'wild flower' sort of attraction that's utterly different from the jaded, blase, sophisticated girls one meets everywhere?"

"But—"—she hesitated, anxious to make herself clear, and to be fully enlightened— "these girls are popular, aren't they? Men do court them and run after them."

He laughed at that. It was a quizzical laugh, and he regarded his young wife rather keenly.

Had she heard about Lydia, and wanted to "cut her out?" Was that the reason d'etre of this probing?

"You're doing rather well, for a novice. Briscoe seems almost too "epris." And he rather fancies himself as a connoisseur."

"I like him—and I don't like him," said the girl.

"Go easy with him, Rosilyn."

She raised her eyes to the fine, dark orbs that were watching her intently.

"Anything you say Landis. Only—you know I've been a little bit lonely—I often wanted to explain about that night in town—when he and I missed you and you waited at Claridge's."

"Oh forget it," came the hurried comment.

But Rosilyn persisted.

"We saw you at that cabaret performance. You were dancing. I wanted—awfully—to hurry downstairs and join you—but Mr. Briscoe showed me that it wasn't just the correct thing—"

"The dickens he did!" Land's amazement was genuine. "But I hadn't an idea you were in the place!"

"I thought you saw me!" Rosilyn's sensitive heart fluttered with a new hope. It was the Harbrook woman who had dragged him off so quickly!

"Thought I saw you?" The young man repeated the query incredulously. "What kind of a creature do you take me for Rosilyn, if you imagine that I am capable of doing such an extraordinary thing? I most certainly did not see you, and I'm surprised that you and Briscoe did not come and join us. Mr. Briscoe was the host. Of what was he thinking?"

The girl hesitated, then she forced herself to say—

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"And you've sewed these snaps on wrong." Helen flushed and impatiet, was trying on the altered blue crepe. "No, you won't have time now—it's after five."

"It won't take me long," the seamstress was nervously apologetic. "I'll be glad to stay.'

"No, that isn't necessary. But I did think you'd get this finished today."

"I can take it home—and bring it to you tomorrow?"

"No, you're coming Tuesday, you can do it then. But do try to be more careful, Mrs. Miller. Lately you seem to get everything wrong."

A painful silence as the tremulous, bony hands picked up pins and the threads.

"And that tan skirt you fixed last week is still too large in the belt—and I gave you one to measure by," censured Helen, with unwonted severity. "And look the way you tacked this—it's coming loose already!"

"I—I thought I sewed that good—but I was hurrying to get it done."

"You've had all day—I don't see why you had to hurry. Have you forty cents?" taking a five dollar bill from the dressing table.

But the small shabby purse held only a key and three dimes.

"Never mind," giving her the bill. "We'll let it go on next time."

As Helen, before the mirror, still critically adjusted the blue crepe, Mrs. Miller folded her apron ad put on her rusty black coat.

"Good night, Mrs. Curtis."

"Good night," but without a relenting note.

How could she have been so slow? All day, and only the few alterations on this one dress!

Hanging it away, Helen glanced at the gray ensemble that should have been fixed today—but now must go until Tuesday.

Amazed, she stared. It HAD been done! The vest taken out, washed, and put back. Yes, the skirt shortened, too!

Out all afternoon, she had returned to find Mrs. Miller still working on the blue crepe—started in the morning. Naturally she thought nothing else had been done.

Always Helen tried to be just, but now she realized her rebukes had been unmerited. And no way of making amends until Tuesday.

A sensitive, refined woman of fifty left widowed without resources. And no money-making ability except "plain sewing at four-fifty-and-carfare" a day.

Helen pictured her now in the dreary, furnished room getting a lonely dinner on the one-burner gas stove. And brooding over her unkindness!

With deepening remorse she dressed for dinner. If she could make some excuse to have her before Tuesday! But tomorrow was Friday—and they were week ending with the Gardners.

The hall clock was just striking six-thirty when Warren breezed in, radiating the brisk energy that always proclaimed a good day.

"Hello, Kitten! Here's that steel! Now don't say I forget things."

"Oh, dear, such a big ugly one!" unwrapping the bone-handled carving steel.

"Wanted a good one. That's the kind the butchers use. You can chuck out your silver-handled trinket! Dinner ready?"

"It will be by the time you wash up. I'll tell her you're here."

At the table, the soup dispatched Warren with gusto tried the new steel.

Shiveringly Helen covered her ears. She could never bear the edgy sound.

"That's more like it," when he tested the carver on the roast. "They keep good hardware—the best."

"No, dear, that's too fat for me."

"How's this? Got you a penknife while I was there," taking it from his pocket, he tossed it across the table. "Now don't be always borrowing mine."

"Oh, I should've told you to get some scissors. I can't find those good ones I got in London—and the others won't cut a thing."

The scissors—Mrs. Miller! Again her remorse!

"What're you mulling over now?" always resenting her preoccupation.

"I was just thinking about Mrs. Miller. I had her today."

"Did she fix that lining in my coat?" spearing another potato.

"I'll do it—I forgot to tell her. Dear, some evening I'm going to have her stay to dinner. She's alone every night in that dreary rooming house. I feel so sorry for her. Think of having to live like that!"

"Pretty tough! Any more asparagus? Well, trot it out."

"Dear, just think of all we have," pressin gthe bell. "Our home—and each other! I don't realize how fortunate we are until I see some one like that. Mr. Curtis'll have some more asparagus. I wonder what she has to look forward to?"

"Not much. Tough on a woman her age."

Through the rest of the dinner Helen's thoughts revolved around some excuse for phoning Mrs. Miller. To merely say she was sorry might seem like pity. Some plausible pretext for calling her up—and then say something kindly to poultice the hurt of her criticisms.

After dinner, in the library, Warren drew out his wallet with an abrupt.

"Letter for you. Don't know why it came to the office."

"Just a circular—rug cleaners Oh, look, dear, you're so careless with money," picking up the ten dollar bill drawn out with the envelope. "Why d'you carry it that way? You never know how much you lose."

"Don't lose enough to worry about," thrusting it into his bulky roll.

But the dropped bill furnished Helen's inventiveness with the pretext she sought.

The next moment she was looking in her address book—under "M."

"Hello, is this Harlem 7963? . . . I'd like to speak to Mrs. Miller."

"Dunno if she's in," came a strident, querulous voice. "Hold the phone!"

As Mrs. Miller had a cheap, rear room on an oupper floor it was a long wait before her faint, "Who is it?"

"Mrs. Miller, this is Mrs. Curtis. Did you drop a ten dollar bill here? I just found one on the floor—and I wondered if it could be yours?"

A pulsing pause. The wire charged with agitation.

"Yes, I—I did lose ten dollars——"

"Oh, you did?" stammered Helen.

A faint stifled sound, but no words.

"Very well," with forced composure. "You can get it when you come Tuesday."

Dazed, Helen turned from the telephone. And she had always thought her honest!

"Dear, did you hear what I said? Oh, I did such a foolish thing!"

"Eh?" running his pencil down a column of figures.

"Did you hear me talking to Mrs. Miller?"

"——sixty-two and nine, seventy-one — seventy-seven —eight-four — ninety-three——" with a silencing scowl.

Her remorse now submerged in indignation, Helen got out his coat to mend and ripped sleeve lining.

After Tuesday she would never again have Mrs. Miller. Dishonest! Plain dishonest!

So her quixotic impulse to be kind had cost ten dollars! She would give it to her of course—and say nothing. Worth that to find out her real character.

"No, get down! I can't sew and nurse you, too."

Surprised and aggrieved, Pussy Purr-Mew retreated under the couch.

"There, that's O. K." Warren signed the bank statement.

"Dear, what d'you think? I just found out——"

"Got a rubber band?" rummaging through the desk.

"There—in that old snuff box."

No, she would not tell him. Mrs. Miller was poor and old. No need for him to know she was dishonest.

The coat lining mended, Helen tried to forget her disillusionment in a hectic story of fevered flappers.

It was after ten when the bell rang. A letter thrust under the door. Not a special delivery. No stamp. A plain, cheap envelope, delivered by hand.

Puzzled at the unfamiliar, penciled writing, Helen tore it open.

Dear Mrs. Curtis,

It is not my ten dollar bill. I did lose one last week—stolen from my bag in the subway. The money saved for my new glasses. Of course this is no excuse. My eyes have hurt all day—that is why I was tempted to say it was mine. I did not have time to think. After this you may not want me again.

MARY L. MILLER.

"Oh, I'm so glad! I'm so glad!" exultantly. "I knew she was honest!"

"Knew who was honest?" Warren scraped the ashes from his pipe.

"Mrs. Miller. Just read that! It's too late now," glancing at the clock. "I'll phone her the first thing in the morning."

"What's it all about?" scowling at the note. "Whose ten was it?"

"Nobody's. There wasn't any! But I felt I'd been unkind—so I wanted an excuse to call her up. And I——"

"Not so fast!" making a paper pipe cleaner. "What're you drivin' at?"

"Ithought she hadn't done some work—but she had—and I was really horrid! I wanted to phone her and say something nice. That ten dollars you dropped gave me the idea."

"Eh? What idea?" struggling with the feminine tinrticacy of her subterfuge.

"I pretended I'd found ten dollars—just to ask if she dropped it! An excuse to talk to her. Of course I thought she'd say she hadn't—but she said she had!"

"Huh, she ought've stuck to it," reaching for his tobacco pouch. "Serve you right for pullin' such a trick."

"Dear, it wasn't a trick. I told you I just wanted an excuse to phone her—to say something nice after being so critical."

"Well, that's a darn roundabout way of goin' at it! Of all the circuitous left-handed stunts—Putting the poor woman in a position like that!"

"I'll make it up to her," contritely. "I'll try to get her more work. Maybe Mrs. Stevens'll have her one day a week. She only charges four-fifty and carefare. But after this I'm going to pay her five—it's worth it."

"Yes, and cough up that ten spot for her glasses! Owe her somethin' after gettin' her in that trap. What's that? Only wanted to be kind? Huh, can't see much kindness in throwin' out a bait like that! Don't know how your bean works. Maybe you meant all right—but don't be forever cookin' up these far-fetched schemes!"

POEMS THAT LIVE

IN THE FIRELIGHT

The fire upon the haerth is low,
And there is stillness everywhere,
While the winged spirtis, here and there,
The firelight shadows fluttering go.
And as the shadows round me creep,
A childish treble breaks the gloom
And hoftly from a further room
Comes, "Now I lay me down to sleep."

And somehow, with that little prayer
And that sweet treble in my ears,
My thoughts go back to distant years
And linger with a loved one there;
And as I hear my child's amen,
My mother's faith comes back to me,—
Crouched at her side I seem to be,
And mother holds my hands again.

Oh, for an hour in that dear place!
Oh, for the peace of that dear time!
Oh, for that childish trust sublime!
Oh, for a glimpse of mother's face!
Yet, as the shadows round me creep,
I do not seem to be alone,—
Sweet magic of that treble tone,
And "Now I lay me down to sleep."

MAN SHOT IN HOTEL DEAD; SLAYER HELD

Ex-Convict Signs Two Confessions; Neither Are Believed

NEW YORK, June 6.—Shot late yesterday by an extortioner whom he at last defied after giving him huge sums of money, Thomas Lonsdale Leeming, manufacturer, banker and civic leader in Brooklyn, is dead. Charles Muller, who served a term in Sing Sing prison for robbery, is in jail and the police are investigating contradictory reasons he gave for the murder.

Leeming was shot when he entered the crowded lobby of a William street building in the financial district, in which he maintained offices. Muller fired without taking the gun from his coat pocket. Leeming lived long enough to point a trembling finger at his assailant and say "that man is an ex-convict. I befriended him and he shot me."

"I'm sorry my gun jammed," replied Muller, "or I'd have given you the rest of it."

Muller has signed two different confessions. In the first he said he was the illegitimate son of Leeming's brother, an architect and war veteran, who died in 1919. He shot Leeming, he said, because the manufacturer refused to pay $15,000 bequeathed to Muller by the brother.

The second time Muller described himself as a "blackmailer," preying upon a weakness. He said he had obtained $8,000 but had been refused more.

Police placed little credence in either statement.

They learned from Irving McQuaide, Leemin's secretary, that Muller was paid $7,500 last December at the Imperial hotel here. McQuaide asserted that Leeming told him he paid the money because Muller had threatened to shoot him. Asked why he did not complain to the police McQuaide said Leeming dreaded a scandal.

Two traveling bags left at a hotel by "Charles Leeming" contained pictures, two cartons that had held revolvers and a letter introducing "Charles Leeming," who the police say was in reality Muller, to the firm of Morgan & Sampson, San Francisco, and asking them to cash a $50 check.

Petitions Against Dallas Officials To Be Circulated Soon

DALLAS, June 6.—A petition prepared by L. M. Ballowe, local attorney asking for recall of Mayor Lewis Blaylock and the entire board of city committeemen will be put in circuit circulation early next week, it was said today by Mr. Ballows. The petitioners for whom Ballowe is acting as attorney, he said, object to certin demotions in the city fire department, alleged irregularities in contracts made by city officials, particularly in connection with the Garza dam water supply project.

Though the nambes of those sponsoring the petition were not made known, it was understood it includes many who opposed the present city administration on the issues involved in the recent city election campaign. Signatures of 6,200 voters will be necessary before the city commission will be compelled to call a recall election. This is more than were received by both candidates opposed to Mayor Blaylock, in city election, it was pointed out.

BLOOD POISONING FATAL TO YOUTH AT ABILENE

ABILENE, Texas, June 6.—A file stuck in the heel of little Dillard Banhead, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bankhead of Bronte, was fatal this morning. The boy stuck the file in his heel while playing mublepeg last Wednesday. Blood poisoning set in with fatal results.

Howe About Whirl Wind Gentlemen Devotion to Children—Sensational Denial. —By Ed Howe

A famous case is on trial in a federal court, and everyone knows what the verdict will be. A poor man has sued a rich man. The poor man actually has no case, but I know of no one not in sympathy with him. And of course this spirit will be reflected in the jury. This sort of thing not only exists among the people; it has found its way into the laws. I'm about through with the tourmoil; this mistaken public sentiment doesn't mean anything to me, but I warn those interested in the future that they are wrong. Anyway, this sort of "justice" has failed in Russia, where it has been tried a long time on a big scale.

When a large amount of money is raised by means of a Whirlwind Campaign, how much of it sticks to the fingers of the Whirlwind Gentlemen, and how much of it goes to the advertised object of the compaign? Theodore Roosevelt once charged that in many cases the collectors keep 93 per cent of collections for salaries and expenses. And if you say Theodore Roosevelt isn't an honest man, probably God will strike you dead.

Look at Chicago. Who made it great? Business men. Show me something really worth while, if you can, that the politicians or bishops have done for it. Look at the world's great improvement, making life more comfortable. Business men are responsible for every part of it.

You come to a conclusion you know a good many others will not accept. How much are you willing to concede to avoid a disagreeable useless row and argument? You are entitled to your opinion, but you are not entitled to demand that others give up their opinion and accept yours.

The public attitude of the citizen always indicates that he believes the poor man is poor because he has been robbed by the well-to-do. There is really no reason why the successful merchant, banker, manufacturer, lawyer, doctor, farmer or editor is not as respectable as a man who has not only done nothing for his community, but is so poor that he becomes a public charge.

A subscriber writes: "I attended the late affair. Being forty years old at that time, the draft did not touch me. But what makes me very weary at times is all this hero stuff from men who certainly would never have been present if they had not been drafted. To hear all the bunk one would almost believe that they fought to be first up the gang plank. If it had not been for the draft, how many would have gone? I was an officer. A lowly one. A lieutenant. I saw more concentrated meanness than ever before anywhere. I learned that not one man in a hundred can be trusted with the authority the army gives.

As my readers know, I am not much of a literary man; but I seem to have some strong points as a farmer. Connected with my home is a large aspargus patch, which I carefully looked after last year. This spring it is bearing well. How I enjoyed the fresh asparagus, cut one hour and served on the table the next. Asparagus is high priced, and scarce, but we have plenty. It is good for me; all the critics agree as to that, and I like it; usually I do not like anything good for me. But here is a funny thing: The season for asparagus is only fairly beginning, and I am tiring of it. Here is plenty of a good thing, good for me and cheap, but I find myself longing for something else.

In Ireland and Russia all the suggestions of the Good Gentlemen for human betterment have been collected and tried to the limit. With the result that in 1925 there is famine in both Ireland and Russia. Men have done all for justice and liberty it is possible for them to do, but there are still several evils in nature that can not be changed. The great things we have been demanding so many centuries cannot be accomplished; we must get along with what long experience has demonstrated we have.

I am one of the old fashioned who believe a preacher should dignify his doctrine by living it. It is such preachers who finally preach the world's useful sermons.

Men and women everywhere talk mean about their neighbors, but never mean half of it; they know most of it is untrue.

I know a smart man who won five thousand dollars at a racing meet. The women looked at me as though they were thinking: "Why aren't you smart, and able to make money like that." The next time I heard of the man he had lost seven thousand dollars on horse racing: his success in the first instance led him to the disaster in the second. Every week day a man may make money on the board of trade, if he has sufficient judgment. But men are notoriously lacking in judgment, and the board of trade ruins more men now than John Barleycorn did before he went to jail. A good deal may be said for conservatism.

Lies are such foolish, ineffective things I wonder men ever learned to tell them. If a traveler appears at your door on a dark, rainy night and inquires the way to a town you are familiar with, why deceive him? He is tired and hungry; so are the horses he drives. Why should you send him west when the direction he should travel is east. Telling a lie in a case does the liar no good, and another is harmed. Is there ever better excuse for telling a lie

Women abuse men as unfairly as communists abuse the rich. And the women and communists are right, in a way: they have grievances. And the men and the rich have a right to defend themselves; they, too have grievances, and problems that must be adjusted. There can be no end to the quarreling that goes on, so make the best of it.

So far as I am a critic of literature, it is in selecting my own reading. I read books from hearing them talked about by ordinary men like myself. Some abuse and some praise, the abuse always being greater than the praise; and finally I wish to have a look for myself. A man who knows literature well may recommend a volume highly, and I despise it.

In most things written about America and American things, you will find this: "Within a year," or within five years." This is the manner in which we exaggerate. We are not content with telling the modest truth about ourselves, but hasten to tell what we intend to do.

So many good men are lately being shot by bandits that I rather rejoice on hearing that a watchman killed two thieves who attempted to rob the concern in his care. The watchman was 68 years old. The old men are of some use, after all, it seems.

In twenty or thirty years some one will write a book entitled: "The Real Roosevelt." I am convinced that no natural, intelligent, worthy man can have had some of the notions Roosevelt is credited with.

We once traveled to Florida by automobile, and had as driver a gentleman of such dignity and talent that we didn't call him "Walter," but Mr. Bell. He had long been a country town hero in his line: old ladies felt safe when he was at the wheel, and all the men wanted his advice about automobiles. But he had always been accustomed to bad roads, and when we came to a perfect pavement of a kind he had never seen, he was cautious; he seemed to think that maybe it was a trop, drove very carefully, and was plaintly nervous. As soon as he struck the old bad road again, he was perfectly at home, and his old self. I am a little that way. When conditions are perfect, I am a little frightened, having been accustomed all my life to bad conditions. When I am with perfectly behaved people, I am a little nervous: I am used to rough ways.

One of the beautiful things is devotion of parents to children. Parents may scold, and whip and fuss around, but are really devoted to their children: really make great sacrifices for them: really desire that they be educated, well behaved and succeed in life. But often parents are devoted to children, and do them harm rather than good. Therefore a word to parents: Make your devotion to children effective. The manager of a family has as important job as the manager of a railroad; the job calls not only for devotion, but for effectiveness.

Nine-tenths of conversation, writing, is criticism, and most of it unreasonable; only indulged in for the pleasure of being abusive. In most cases criticism is meanness the critic should be ashamed of. A man better than the average is more heartable than the man below it.

"Denial," says Edgar Lee Masters.

"has as much sensation as indulgence." If a Good Gentleman is in a company where cocktails are served, he certainly finds sensation, even pleasure, in denial; he loves to throw the wet blanket. Note the Godly man who won't go to a ball game on Sunday, he is actually having a good time.

If you do not know your wife and children, and your more intimate acquaintances, are tired of your "stories." from having heard them so often, you are a slow observer. But I heard a husband tell a story the other day, and his wife said she had not heard it. Here is evidently an unusual man.

It is often said a man inherits his religion from his father. The observation doesn't appeal to me as intelligent: anyway, I didn't so inherit; neither did my brothers or sisters. My father was tremendously religious and his children are indifferent to it.

All leading bakers of Porto Alegre, Brazil, have consolidated to establish a bakery on the most modern lines.

National highways in Panama are being improved and an increase in the number of automobiles already is seen.

Bomb Not for King, Says Spanish Note

PARIS, June 6.—(AP)—Telling of the discovery of the powerful bomb on the railroad tracks in a tunnel near Barcelona, the Madrid correspondent of LeJournal says on the authority of a military personality that the bomb was not directed against the Spanish sovereign, but against General Primo de Rivera, head of the Spanish military directorate.

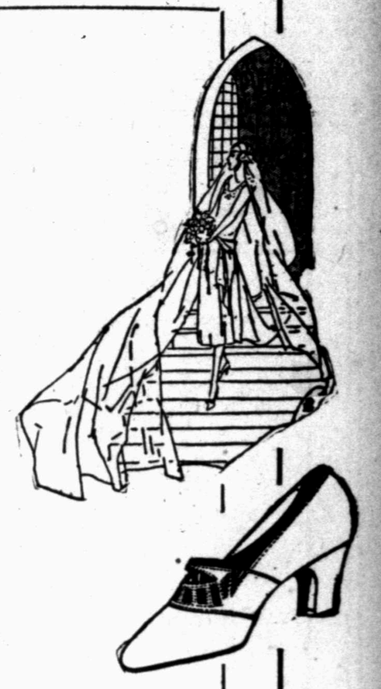

The correspondent says further on the authority of the military personality that the attempt was promoted by separatist students, a dozen of whom have been arrested.

WICHITA MEN DONATE $3,975 TO S. A. FUND

Money to Be Used For Aid to Orphans Of World War

Wichita Falls put $3,975 into the coffers of the American Legion rehabilitation and recreation endowment fund for children orphaned by the World war by popular subscription at a dinner at the Wichita club yesterday noon. More than a hundred of Wichita Falls' most prominent citizens were present at the invitation of Frank Kell, and among themselves all but completed the quota of $5,000 fixed by the state headquarters of the legion as the Wichita Falls quota.

The remainder is to be solicited among others not present at yesterday's luncheon, and is underwritten by Frank Kell.

The nature of the fund was explained first yesterday by O. T. Ailes, commander of the Pat Carrigan post, American Legion. The meeting was then turned over to Mr. Kell, who told how the quota for this city had been lowered from nearly $10,000 to $5,000. He stated that in his opinion the worthiness of the cause permitted the departure from the custom of subscribing to nothing other than the associated charities. He led off with a $250 contribution for himself, this closely followed by a like donation from the traction company. The American Legion itself added $500 out of its building fund to the amount and the $3,975 was raised in a few minutes.

GERMAN BANKS OFFER AID TO STINNES HEIRS

Great Industrial Machine On Verge of Collapse, Is Report

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—The great machine built up by the late Hugo Stinnes, German industrial and financial magnate, has shown signs of tottering. Carried on by his heirs through the famous "family council" which he organized to familiarize with all the angles of his wide spread interests, the Stinnes concern has nevertheless felt the lack of the master hand.

Fearing its collapse, Berlin dispatches say, a group of large German banks, headed by the great Richsbank, has decided to come to the concern's rescue to the extent of 40,000,000 marks. The bankers were impelled to set, through fear of the effect which collapse of the great machine would have on the general economic life of the country.

In addition to this measure of relief centralization of the various Stinnes enterprises has been decided upon by Frau Stinnes, the magnate's widow, and this will be carried, out under the the direction of Hugo Jr., who is said to have inherited much of the business acumen of his noted father.

The condition necessitating these measures are reported to have grown out of conflicting views of the various members of the family, but these, according to an "official family communique," have been removed by the withdrawal of the eldest son, Dr. Edmund Stinnes, to devote himself to separate interests.

The German financial writers are inclined to blame the Stinnes crisis upon overloading of the concern during the years of financial inflating and with few exceptions they concur in approving the decision to revert to a policy of rigid centralization.

Retention of Prison Farms Plea to Ma

AUSTIN, Texas, June 6.—Retention of the Texas prison system on farms in the Fort Bend section was urged by Rep. J. W. Stevenson of Victoria, here Friday. Stevenson was a member of the prison investigating committee last March, and author of the minority house report which advocated prison farming rather than moving the penitentiary to central Texas.

Farm Crops Will Be Free From Insects—Washington Report

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Farm crops this year will be comparatively free from major insect pests under present indications, entomologists of the department of agriculture declared today. Those pests which, they point out, occur in cycles, are not due in large numbers this season and the long spell of dry, hot weather over the country has served to curb the breeding of all insects.

Even the boll weevil, it was stated, is less plentiful and unless long periods of hot weather prevail indications are that the cotton crop will be damaged less this year than during the last few seasons.

Potash & Perlmutter Discuss Tetraethyl or Lead Poison As a Cure for Knocking. —By Montague Glass

"I see in the papers, Wawruss, where the government ain't allowing manufacturers to put this here lead poison in gasoline no longer," Abe Potash observed the other day.

"What do they want to put poison in gasoline for?" Morris Perlmutter asked. "Ain't gasoline poisonous enough already?"

"Well, this here lead poison stops knocking," Abe explained, "and the manufacturers claim that anything which eliminates knocking, y'understand, is all right even if it is poison."

"It's gotto be poison to eliminate knocking from most knockers I know," Morris declared. "Take for example Max Gittulberg and there's a feller which he ain't got a good word to say for anybody, y'understand, and why should the government be so tender of a feller like that. If a little of this here lead poison is going to eliminate knocking from his system, it's immaterial to me whether he takes it in gasoline or Staten Island Genwine Scotch, which is so much like gasoline in taste and smell that I doubt if John D. Rockefeller himself could tell the difference."

"But joking to one side, Mawruss, it's already getting to be quite important that something should ought to be invented to cut down the use of gasoline on account experts has got it all figured out that in the present rate of gasoline consumption," Abe said, "the supply would be exhausted so quick, y'understand, thata only rich people would be able to afford automobiles after the next twenty years."

Well, the time couldn't pass too quick to suit me, Abe, Morris said. "I've got nothing against the automobile industry, Abe, but at the same time I am in the garment business, y'understand, and the way it looks to me now is that the garment business ain't helped any when automobiles are so cheap that they are within the reach of everybody and anybody provided he practices the utmost economy in buying garments, shoes, groceries, and hats for himself and his family."

Knocks Hard to Distinguish in Some Cars.

"But be that as it may Abe," Morris continued, "since when was cheap car owners so sensitive to a little noise more or less, that they couldn't stand a few knocks in the gasoline? I have taken rides in cars priced as low as three hundred and eighty-five dollars and twenty-nine cents F. O. B. Detroit or even Toledo, Ohio, where if anybody could detect a knock in the gasoline among the squeaks, rattles, and bangs which was going on in the rest of the car, he should ought to consult an ear specialist and get his hearing cut down to normal."

"It ain't a question of the noise which the knocking makes, but the loss of power, Mawruss," Abe explained, "which when this here lead poison is added to gasoline, y'understand, it only requires half as much gasoline to run the car, or in other words with the same amount of gasoline, an automobile could get twice as far."

"What Do They Want to Put Perlmutter asked, "Ain't Gasoline Poison In Gasoline For?" Morris Poisonous Enough Already?"

"Automobiles go far enough already," Morris insisted. "Even without this here lead poison, y'understand, the exhaust from automobiles poisons the air in the mountains, the sea shore and lakes which before the automobile got cheap, was anyhow an overnight sleeper ride from a big city. So, therefore, Abe, if knocks in the gasoline are going to keep automobiles closer to home, y'understand, then I am in favor of knocking."

"You seem to be in favor of knocking anyway the way you talk about automobiles," Abe retorted.

No Knocking in Some Respects, Not So Good Either.

"I ain't so opposed to knocking at that," Morris observed. "Sometimes when people ain't knocking when they ought to be, y'understand, it's a pretty good sign that they got poisoned by something which prevents them from knocking. Only this morning I am knocking in the paper where Mr. Coolidge is asking Americans in France and Italy not to be such boosters when it comes to talking about why France and Italy don't pay us the money they owe us.

Prominent Americans have made after-dinner speeches in France and Italy, and the way they eliminated all knocking, y'understand, you would think it was already one of the finest qualities of the French and Italian people—similar to painting, grand opera and wonderful scenery—that they was trying to dodge paying their national debts, y'understand."

"Now if you will investigate such boosters, Abe," Morris continued, "you will find that they got decorated by the French and Italian governments with little pieces of red ribbons in their buttonholes and seemingly the color wasn't fast, so that it came off and got into their systems, and they become sorely enough poisoned by it to eliminate all knocking from their remarks when talking about the money France and Italy owes us."

"In the same way, Abe" Morris went on, "there is lots of conditions in this country which rich bankers and merchants could help by knocking, y'understand, but on account of gold poison, instead of lead poison, all the knocking has been eliminated from their conversation. Furthermore there as some millionaires which have got so much oil poison in their systems that they couldn't even knock when talking about Teapot Dome."

"But on the other hand, Mawruss, there is plenty of people which has got poison in their systems and they knock, too," Abe said. "I have been reading remarks printed in fifteen cent weeklies and fifty cent magazines, y'understand, which could only be explained by the fact that the feller which wrote them was poisoned by something."

"Only one state in the whole Union passes a law that teachers shouldn't teach Evolution, and from what these poisoned fellers write, you would think that the whole United States had passed laws making it a felony for public school teachers to learn their pupils otherwise than that twice times two made five and water was a combination of hydrogen, oxygen, peruna and orange phosphate."

Knocks In Modern Novels.

"There is also a lot of poison in the knocks which you find in American novels nowadays, Mawruss," Abe continued, "which I've been reading a whole lot of two dollars story books in the past five years where I somehow or another got the impression that the only decent, respectable thing for a middle western husband who had been married twenty years to do, y'understand, was to behave like a lowlife and crook, desert his wife and family, and elope with his stenographer."

"The same books also made it plain that a member of a Rotary, Kiwanis or Lions club, not to say nothing about anybody who belonged oo a Business Men's Association or Chamber of Commerce, y'understand, had symptoms of paraesis complicated with forgery in the first degree and bad grammar."

"Well, them knocks probably figure that for knocking to be of any use, Abe," Morris said, "it ought to be exaggerated."

"And I say it ought to be eliminated," Abe concluded, "and if nothing else will make them fellers quit knocking, Mawruss, then I am in favor of lead poison."

Optimist Clubs To Meet at Lexington For 1926 Convention

HOUSTON, June 6.— (AP) — Lexington, Ky., won the 1926 convention of Optimists International at its closing convention here today. St. Louis will remain as headquarters for the next three years and Leo F. Nohl of Milwaukee, was chosen president.

Almost the last act of the convention was adoption of a resolution reciting that a field secretary is unnecessary and that paid organizers are unprofitable. It decided to attempt to underwrite a fund of from $15,000 to $20,000 for expenses of that character and to select a man from the ranks of Optimists to prosecute it.

The seventh International Sample fair at Padua, Italy, this year attracted exhibits of commerce, industry, trades, agriculture, arts and science from all parts of the world.

Oaks and Angels In Baseball Feud

Harry Williams, president of the Pacific Coast league, has taken official cognizance of "bad blood" between players of the Oakland and Los Angeles baseball clubs, writes Harry B. Smith in the San Francisco Chronicle.

He has done so in his open statement to managers of the two clubs concerned, warning them against personal clashes. Hard feelings are bound to come in any baseball league where individuals are concerned. That cannot be entirely halted, for the personal equation is something not so easy to reckon with.

Yet for these same personal disturbances to spread to the entire baseball club is not only childish, but spells ruin for the sport. It is well for the league executive to take a determined stand in the matter and to put down his heel on this incipient warfare.

Let us have our baseball on the field and not in the shape of fistic encounters.

Fable of the Descrated Village —By George Ade

Once there was a Town about twice the size of a Poultry Ranch. It surrounded a Depot and the principal Recipe for killing Time was to sit on the Front Porch and Think, although very often the Natives merely sat on the Front Porch. A little Croquet, accompanied by bantering Conversation; some Horse-shoe Tossing back of the Smithers Garage and a Ball Team which mobilized once in a while for the Purpose of getting trimmed—these helped to differeniate the Residents of Comaville from Live Stock the Hamlet for so long probably would not have been busted up.

Mr. Eli Furbison accepted the Scoffs with apparent Good Nature but already he was nursing, in the back of the Trusty Bean, a set of Plans which would guarantee him a juicy Revenge for all of the low-comedy cracks.

His being President of the Bank and owning most of the Corners along Main Street made Eli the Sacred White Bullock of his Birthplace So when he laid out a 4-hole Golf but there is no getting away from the cruel Truth that this Settlement acted most of the Time, as if it had taken a heavy Doze of Hop.

Mr. Furbison Alighted from No. 7 One Day in Springtime.

Of course, the Weekly Paper often spoke of Comaville as a hustling and progressive little City. If it was a City then Herrin, Ill., is the Garden of Eden and Wayne B. Wheeler is Wet.

From all Reports it would seem that Comaville was not always cold in the Shell. They say that the whole Region was lively before the Early Settlers drove out the Indians. Nevertheless for some 90 years before Mr. and Mrs. Eli Furbison began to spend their Winters in Florida, accompanied by a Camera, there is no denying that Comaville was moribund, dopey and altogether flump.

Eli a Big Number.

Some Day there will be a Bronze Tablet down by the Depot, marking the exact Spot at which Mr. Furbison alighted from No. 7 one day in Springtime, with the leather-trim Bag over his Shoulder and as slick an assortment of Golf Tools as ever came out of a Department Store.

The Rubes had seen the Pictures in the Colored Part and when they got a Peek at the Shinny Set they let out a Guffaw which might have been heard as far away as the Hay Press. It is probable that Goliath cackled when he first spotted David and that Samson told his Buddies that he would call on Delilah merely to study her Character but there wasn't a Chinaman's Chance of his falling for any of that Vamp Stuff.

If the Citizenry of Comaville had burned the queer looking Implements and then suspended Eli by the Neck from the Hard Maple just across the Street, in front of Uz Burlig's Blacksmith Shop, then a great many Things which afterward came to pass might never have transpired and the Restful Calm which had brooded over Course in the Pasture near his palatial Shack at the Edge of Town, every Cyrus and Cynthia sat up and began to take notice and wonder if the somnolent Burg would have something to brag about at last.

Music With Meals.

The first to go out and experiment with the far-famed Diversion of the idiotic Rich were the Elite, meaning those Professional and Business men who wore White Collars all Week, and Blue Elastics. They began to order from a Catalogue and the Wives ran from House to House telling that Mrs. Furbison had met Glenna Collett in Florida and also she said that all the Girls, both Cuties and Grown Ups, down there were goofey about the Game and every one played it except Campers Cripples and Tin Canners.

Ere now you have guessed that a Meeting was called and every Car-Owner was present, and the Back Room at the Bank, trying to look like one of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence. Officers were elected. The By-Laws, as adopted, were about the Length of the Constitution of the U. S. A.

A rolling Tract of about 50 Acres was leased for 99 years and the Cows were moved out. When the Golf Architect submitted his Blue Prints for a 9-hole Course and Workmen began to build a Club House which was practically a Ball Room with a Porch in frant of it, then the Die was cast, the Doom of the Victims was sealed and all of the Socially Important got ready to communie with Nature and Profanity and Bridge Whist.

The Golf Course still looked like a Pasture but the would-be Whitemans began to tighten up the Rivets on their Saxophones and what used to be known as a Fish Fry became a Dinner Dance and all those who beloged to the Country Club made no attempt to keep their Names out of the Department headed Social Chat.

Many a staid Citizen who had two good Reasons for not advertising his Shape began to parade around in Knickers and use all of the Terms commonly found in an Article by Walter Hagen. Those who had not been off the Sidewalks for years began to tramp over the Hills regardless of Pods and fretful Pippies Girls of middle Age who hadn't swung anything heavier than a Palm Leaf Fan for many Moons might have been seen on any nice Day tearing up the Turf and whanging out Screamers that went 80 or 100 yards straight as Bee Line, into the Rough Reformers on the Jab.

Agriculturists driving by in their Henrys got many a Snicker and some who were quite original allowed that if the darn Numbskuls had to do that for a Living they wouldn't be so keen for it.

It was the same old Story. Many who came to Scoff remained to Play. The Outsiders continued to squat in Sunny Spots, protected from the Wind, and they were frankly of the opinion that ony one who fought a wee Pill for Hours at a time during Dog Days must be a little curdled in the Coco, and the Golfers were too busy to deny it.

Everything happened in Comaville, the same as in 1,000 other distracted communities. A local Preacher attacked Sunday Play and said right out that the Reprobates in White Clothes were headed straight forH—l and the Sinners, counting up their scores, often agreed with him.

When some of the Lady Addicts, including several who had Children in the Grammar School, stopped Traffic along Main Street by appearing in He-Attire, then the Pure and Unsullied began to clamor for a Law to prohibit Ziegfeld Costumes. They had everything else in the world restricted or prohibited by Legislative Enactment and they agreed that the World would be a great deal brighter and better if some Official would stand on a Corner and measure all Pants and any that were short would go to Jail.

Out at the Course some of the Boys who never forgot their Stroke Allowances often forgot some of their Strokes, but the other Members, wishing to be clubby, never called them anything worse than Liars.

Each Player wanted Some Greens changed and Traps moved but no two could agree and the Members of the Greens Committee could not hold a meeting as they were not speaking to one another.

The Chairman of the House Committee had been a Respected Citizens GEOREGE ADE —— Gal 2 ..... in Years agone, but now it was discovered that he had a one-track Mind and could think of nothing but Ham

Were the Entrants in the various Tournaments satisfied with their Handicaps? No, ma'am, they were not. If they had been, then the Comaville Country Club would not have been a regular Golfing Institution.

Mr. Furbison started out to make it the Real Thing with Factions Caddy Complaints, a Bonded Indebtedness and Everything. It is prolonging the Lives of many Old-Timers whose Heirs are beginning to doubt those Yarns about Elderly Gentlemen dropping dead on the Fairway.

THERE is a dim trail that leads up over the enormous shoulder of one of a pack of Rocky Mountains that marches through Colorado.

A dim trail that apparently leads to nowhere.

A dim trail that loses itself finally in a sparse, flat wilderness of rock and sage-brush. Near the end of this trail, surrounded by miles of sharp-cornered quarry rocks that sit on their haunches like chipmunks, there lived and had his solitary being one Andrus DeVol. There was nothing much about Andrus DeVol to distinguish him except his solitude.

Except for his monthly excursion to this or that supply store within a radius of thirty or forty miles, weeks could lengthen into months before Andrus heard any except the sound of his own voice, conversing, most probably, with the handful of sheep which nibbled for their little existence on the hillsides of the scanty DeVol Ranch.

DeVol, from the looks of him, might have been a school teacher. A thin, scholastic little man with eyes that watered readily, probably from too much reading, and a stoop to his shoulders and a scoop to his chest.

DeVol WAS a school-master and his eyes WERE weakened from too much reading, but the scoop to his chest was for a reason all its own. The occasional passer-by, and the few of his friends back East who kept in touch with him, wondered why any human being could seek out the solitary, sapless life DeVol had elected for himself.

DeVol knew. Grimly. Five years of secret fighting for health out there in the vastnesses of the Rocky Mountains had won him his battle. At the end of that period he had won it back, but no matter how secretly he may have yearned—and by nature Andrus DeVol was gregarious—he knew better than to risk the fruits of five years' struggle with the grim enemy within his chest, than to venture back to old climate conditions that were not friendly to him.

And so the years marched on and Andrus DeVol, who loved the haunts of men; who loved easy access to books, lived on in his solitude, and the rocky silences in their way came to have almost a terror for him; and the heroic bigness of mountains and the terrific silence of canyon to breed within him a bitterness and a loneliness and a burning nostalgia for human companionship.

There is a dim trail out over the Rocky Mountains — a dim trail that apparently leads to nowhere.

Yet it was over this trail that Andrus DeVol traveled, first to health, and then to happiness. And after him followed Mary Grayhart — first to health and then to such happiness as she had never dreamed to find.

Curious and beautiful destiny that sent these two so surely and so straightly into each other's ken.

There never ceased to be in their eyes, as they regarded one another down through the years, a certain wonder, a marveling that life had found them out.

By nature DeVol was not of the stuff the congenital recluse is made of, and so in the vastness and in the silence and in the terrific beauty of the grandeur of mountains, the man was spiritually starving.

There was not much element of coincidence in the fact that Mary Grayhart came one winter from Springfield, Massachusetts, to live with a family on the nearest ranch to DeVol's, some nineteen miles away.

No great element of coincidence, because the identical reason that had driven DeVol from his place on the faculty of a boys' preparatory school in Vermont to these fastnesses of Rockies, had sent Mary Grayhart, whose breath was short and staccato, into parts that were foreign and lonely and a little terrifying to her.

Mary Grayhart, because she had been reared in a countryside of not such heroic magnitude, loved greenness and the bridal finery of fruit trees in spring, and unpretentious hilly countryside and nature in intimate mood.

The pachyderm mountains, like fabled rhinoceroses standing in herds against the horizon, terrified her, swept her into a sense of loneliness and insignificance that sapped her vitality.

So that in the first year that Mary Grayhart dwelt in the ponderous shadows of the Rockies, even while her health improved, her heart grew fainter. Mary Grayhart was like some tiny traveler winding along a dim trail that led nowhere for her except into solitude and vastness and silence.

And it was on this dim trail that seemed to lead out from the hearts and haunts of men into the terrifying unknown of some infinitude, that Mary Grayhart and Andrus DeVol, frightened travelers that had somehow by force of circumstance had to wander outside the human fold, met one another; found one another; and caused for one another the wilderness to bloom, as it were, into the kind of garden that love can generate even out of the pachyderm aridity of mountainside and rocky scape.

Curious and beautiful destiny that sent these two so surely and so straightly into each other's ken.

Out of DeVol's isolation there was to spring for him, in its stead, the richness and the beauty and the vitality of his love for Mary Grayhart.

And here was this little school teacher, frightened by circumstance, beaten in health, laid low in spirit, sore in heart, who was to flee from all that was near and dear to her out into strange and alien places, only to find there all that was to be even nearer and dearer to her.

Curious and brooding destiny. Nothing much was to matter to these two; neither the aridity, nor the isolation, nor the desolation. There was within them a supernal power to transcend with the spirit even God's awful vastnesses.

When Andrus DeVol and Mary Grayhart found one another, these two little, puny little, travelers along the trail that led out to the horizon had the power within themselves to create out of barrenness a garden and out of aridity a beauty that passeth understanding.

In later years, when their children were to spring up about them and the handful of sheep on the hillside had grown into herds of thousands and the wistful little face of Mary Grayhart had matured into rotundity and the scoop in Andrus DeVol's chest had swelled itself out into hardy convexity, they used to regard each other, these two, from opposite ends of their well-laden table.

Children intervened between them—sturdy children who loved them—and for miles around out of the erstwhile barrenness there billowed fruitful acreage that was the result of their labor.

And yet, regarding one another, in all of their well-being, there never ceased to be in the eyes of Mary and Andrus a certain tender wonder. A marvelling that life had found them out, each for the other, a marvelling that out on the dim trail that might have led so easily into solitude, Mary and Andrus, by the glory of their love, had turned the barrenness into a garden.

THRILLS, ADVENTURE AND ROMANCE

Drama Also a Part of Week's Threatre Offerings

If you enjoy thrills, mixed in with a good romance, or laughter interspersed with good drama, or maybe fighting combined with good acting, you are certain to be pleased with this weeks' offerings of Wichita Falls theatres.

There will be bull fights and human fights, there will be romance in Spain, on the Mediterranean coast, in America and in England, there will be adventure on land and on sea, there will be drama everywhere, comedy too abounds.

"Playing With Souls"

The Olympic theatre starts the week off with "Playing With Souls," featuring Clive Brook, Buster Collier, Jacqueline Logan, Mary Astor and Belle Bennett. It is the old story with a new angle of the millionaire who pursue dollars for the pleasure of it while his wife pursues her own pleasures. Having little use for their child they send him away to school at the age of four.

The story really begins in the boy's efforts to hide his past in an orgy of spending, thinking that his parents wished to be rid of him. The girl he meets and the results of the meeting are told in the drama that starts Sunday and runs four days.

Thursday "The Spaniard" passes in review before Wichitans. Ricardo Cortez, Jetta Goudal and Noah Berry play the parts of Spanish natives in the play. There are two bull fights, with more romance than is usually found in one picture. It offers all the features offered in past Spanish play favorites and adds some more of its own.

"Hearts of Oak"

At the Strand "Hearts of Oak" occupies the center of the stage. The film is a reproduction of a dramatic epic that had a signal success on the stage.

It is a story of love and promises drama a plenty, with a setting on the New England coast. Hobart Bosworth heads the strong cast, with Pauline Starke and Theodore Von Eltz in the supporting roles. The sea plays a big part in the story and offers several thrills.

Tom Mix comes back into his own Wednesday in his screen version of "Dick Turpin." Supported by Jack Herrick he offers a laugh for every minute, pre-viewers report, and with it mixes a little romance that adds much to the story.

The plot deals with 1735, with prize fights at that time, and other things, among them a girl. The feature of the film is the ring battle between the two stars, that offers action beyond the fight fan's dream. The show will run for four days.

With a setting on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, "Eve's Secret," starting today at the Mission offers variety and color along with a good romance. Betty Compson and Jack Holt play the leading roles and offer a combination of acting that is seldom surpassed.

DAN FRENCH

Dan French takes one of the leading roles this week at the Palace in the play, "Charlie's Aunt." His clever acting and impersonation has already gained for him a good reputation in Wichita Falls.

"By Force and Arms"

The story takes from the lives of the old feudal days, and plays upon the motto of the duelist "By Force of Arms." The story is unusual with plenty of laughs and more romance.

Thursday comes the great "Air Mail." It is a Paramount picture featuring Warner Baxter, Billie Dove, Mary Brian and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. The setting is on the Nevada desert where by chance a bandit member of the U. S. air mail force becomes acquainted with a girl living far out on the sands. There a romance takes place that contains adventure and comedy as well as drama.

The Palace plays the Jolly Flapper Musical comedy for the last time this week and starts the final seven days off in great style with "Charlie's Aunt" featuring "Big Boy" McBride. Today there will be the second episode of Lightning Brice. Film offerings will be changed every other day.

At the Garden more thrills are guaranteed in "The Great Circus Mystery" which starts off the week. Here again is adventure combined with drama, and comedy.

Spaniard At Olympic Will Please You

It oftens happens that there are more thrills connected with the filming of a motion picture than are shown on the screen. This, at any rate, was the case with the Raoul Walsh-Paramount production, "The Spaniard," coming to the Olympic on Thursday. Ricardo Cortez, Jetta Goudal and Noah Beery are featured in the picture, which is based on the popular novel of the same title by Juanita Savage.

Two bull fights are features of this unusual dramatic production, written for the screen by J. T. O'Donohoe. As you never can tell what a real, live Spanish bull is going to do from one minute to the next, there was much unlooked for action during the course of production.

Cortez, in the title role, is a matador in the production. To take the player's own word for it, standing up before the onrushes of an enraged bull is no cinch. On several occasions things might have ended disastrously for several of the minor players in the picture when the animal went on a rampage, and broke through a protective stockade had not a cowboy with his lassoo been right on hand to throw Mr. Bull as neat as you please.

Emily Fitzroy and others play in the supporting cast of "The Spaniard."

Palace Offers A Variety Of Latest Shows

If you saw it on the screen and like it you will like it all the more on the stage. "Charley's Aunt" is the feature offering Monday at the Palace when "Big Boy" McBride, Dan Friendly and Irish Bottomer take the lead roles in the three-act roaring comedy. The supporting cast will be taken from members of the Jolly Flapper Musical troupe that starts its last week at the Palace Monday.

The play is full of laughs and offers as well some excellent acting McBride plays the lead role to perfection and carries out his part well.

From section hand to railroad president is no greater achievement than from sheepherder to cowboy, if one takes the somewhat restricted opinion of the cattle country as a measure of comparison.

In "The Saddle Hawk," Universal production coming to the Palace theatre today, Hoot Gibson, the star, undergoes that latter transition, and he said while the picture was in the making that he was glad he did, for his early experience as a real cowboy had innoculated him with a contempt for anything connected with sheep raising that has lasted him unto this day.

"I have heard a lot of talk about suffering for art's sake," remarked Hoot, but there is nothing in that line that can compare to the anguish endured by a real, honest-to-goodness cowboy being compelled to herd sheep! And that goes for me, even if it is only a picture sheepherder I'm impersonating!"

Another thing that made it tough for Hoot was the fact that the picture was filmed in eastern Oregon, where for a number of years he earned his living as a cowboy and won championships for range sports and skill in the annual round-up held in Pendleton.

"The Saddle Hawk" was written especially for Gibson by Raymond Schrock and Director Sedgwick.

Strand Theatre Offers "Hearts of Oak" First Three Days in Week

"Hearts of Oak," the William Fox special production, which opens at the Strand Theatre starting Sunday, is a screen version of the famous old melodrama by James A. Herne. As a play, this dramatic epic was one of the outstanding successes of the stage and, according to those who have seen a review of the picture, the film production is superior in a great many ways.

A Good Cast

Hobart Bosworth, well known for his portrayal of sea faring men, plays Terry Dunnican, the part originally created by the author, Mr. Herne. Pauline Starke is seen as Chrystal Herne, a role played later on the stage by the girl for whom it was named—Chrystal Herne, daughter of the playwright. Theodore Von Eltz, James Gordon, Francis Powers, Jennie Lee, Frances Teague and Francis Ford complete the cast.

The picture version was directed by John Ford, who is responsible for "The Iron Horse," the William Fox production which created a sensation when it made its premiere on Broadway this season.

"Hearts of Oak" is a story of the New England coast and the Arctic wastes, rich in dramatic moments and dealing with a situation filled with heart throbs. Terry Dunnivan, a rugged seaman, has adopted two children, a boy and a girl. They lived happily through the years and when the picture opens Terry realizes that his love for the girl has developed into the natural love of a man for a woman.

Two Are In Love

Unknown to Terry, the boy and the girl are enamored of each other. But, rather than cause their benefactor heart suffering, Chrystal marries Terry. It is not until later, when Ned, in his grief, has hit the downward path, that Terry learns of the sacrifice of his adopted children. The method by which he rights what he believes to be his own wrong, is dramatic in the extreme. To reveal it would be unfair, but suffice it to say that the picture rises to heights that will make your heart beat and your eyes wet.

Jack Holt and Betty Compson Will Sho wAt Mission Fore Part of Week

"The most romantic spot on the face of the globe" is the description that frequently has been given to the great coast of the Mediterranean sea. There life is found in perhaps the greatest variety and color, moving on a background built on ages and ages of tradition and custom. In such a setting romance must abound.

It is against such a background that the new Paramount picture, "Eve's Secret," co-starring Betty Compson and Jack Holt, which will be shown today at the Mission theatre, is laid.

Based on Stage Success.

"Eve's Secret," based on the Broadway stage success, "The Moon-Flower," adapted by Zoe Akins from the play by Lajos Biro, emphasizes the one feudal tradition still left in France—the tradition of the duelist. It plays upon the ancient motto, "Vi et armis" (by force of arms), and does it through the eccentric Duke of Poltava, played by Jack Holt.

In a jest the duke educates a peasant girl (Miss Compson) to become his duchess. He is more than successful in turning out a product worthy to bear the title. He educates her beyond gratitude to him, and she is soon the center of attraction at a fashionable resort on the Riviera. The duke, however, has quite a reputation as a swordsman, and Eve's ardent admirers scatter in seven different directions at his approach. His jealous nature and dictatorial manner cause the girl many moments of sound thinking as to just what her feelings are regarding him.

A Friend of Eve's.

William Collier Jr., playing Pierre in the supporting cast of the picture, arrives at the resort. He is an old friend of Eve's and has come to the Riviera to blow in a small fortune he has just inherited from an uncle. He meets the girl, but the two fail to recognize each other until later on during a little party in Pierre's suite at the hotel. The duke, who has sworn to kill the very next man he catches even looking at Eve, walks in on them, and there's a great scene.

But what is Eve's Secret? The picture brings it all to the screen during the next four days.

Others in the cast of the production, directed by Clarence Badger, who made "New Lives for Old," are Vera Lewis, Lionel Belmore and Mario Carillo. Adelaide Heilbron wrote the screen play.

"Air Mail" At Mission A Melodramatic Thriller

"The Air Mail," a Paramount picture featuring Warner Baxter, Bille Dove, Mary Brian and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., comes to the Mission theatre next Thursday. Irvin Willat, who made "Wanderer of the Wasteland," "North of 36" and others, directed the production from an original screen story by Byron Morgan, author of the Wally Reid auto successes.

Much of the action of the story, which was adapted for the screen by James Shelley Hamilton, takes place far out on the great Nevada desert.

Beside a rough weatherbeaten cabin Alice Rendon (Billie Dove) stands wistfully gazing up at one of the huge planes of the U. S. Air Mail service as it roars a thousand feet overhead.

Only Signs of Life.

The plane is the only sign of life for the girl alone on the desert with her invalid father. They are the victims of a poor realty investment for the home they have bought is in a deserted town with just one other inhabitant, a Chinaman.

In the plane overhead is Russ Kane, played by Warner Baxter, who has joined the air service solely to rob the mails and is in collusion with a gang of crooks in San Francisco, the starting point of the transcontinental sair mail service.

Kane has become acquainted with Sandy an orphaned boy who haunts the division station where the pilots change planes. Sandy has invented a parachute and works on it continuously despite the ridicule of the pilots.

On a trip over the desert Russ gets lost in the snow and has to come down to get his bearings. Alice gives him hot tea and directs him on his course.

The big day arrives when Baxter is tipped off that the valuables are on their way and the time has come to strike. But Kane is not scheduled to run and Scotty, his friend, is taking the mail through.

In an ice-clogged plane Scotty braves the cold and exposure buoyed up by the spirit of the Air Mail which says:

"Nor snow, nor wind, nor rain, nor night,
Can stay the Pilot in his flight."

He arrives at Reno almost dead from exposure but happy in the thought that he is only a half hour late. He asks Kane to "carry on," and the latter, seeing a real chance to hob the mails, agrees to do so.

Once in the plane, Russ experiences mingled feelings. He is thinking of the orphaned boy who idolizes him, of the noble self sacrifice of Scotty and of the friendship of Alice, and he decides not to be disloyal.

On his return he finds Scotty dying from double-pneumonia and it brings about his regeneration. The story builds to a tremendous climax with a strong love theme intermingling with the spectacular action.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is cast in the role of Sandy. George Irving plays Bessie Love's father and Richard Tucker is Cronin. Others in the cast are Guy Oliver, Lee Shumway, as Scotty, Jack Byron, John Webb Dillon and Lloyd Whitlock.

Nearly $2,000,000 worth of American-made perfumes and toilet preparations were sent to other countries in three months recently.

Thrills and Plenty of Them Guaranteed for the Garden

An avalanche which crashes through a house in which a desperate saruggle is under way, and a wild elephant, running rampant amng circus tents and wagons, smashing them down amid the screams of terrified spectators, are among the new thrills promised for the Garden theatre in "The Great Circus Mystery," cyclonic adventure picture, the episode of which opens Sunday.

The avalanche sends a huge boulder down a cliff, smashing the building it strikes to splinters, and enging a desperate hand-to-hand conflict between Joe Bonomo, world's champion strong man, and Robert J. Graves, the character actor.

The elephant stampede furnishes a sensational climax for the episode, in which Bonomo and Louise Lorraine, noted screen beauty and leading lady, are featured.

Jay Marchant is the director of the new thriller. Het is the man who made "The Ghost City," "The Fighting Ranger" and other notable Universal chapter plays. In the cast with Bonomo are Miss Lorraine and Slim Cole. An enteir real circus supplies the background for the story.

Announcement has been made that toy balloons will be given away to all the "kiddies" attending the opening episode of the "Great Circus Mystery."

Paris cafe scenes are favorite photoplay atmosphere. In "Playing With Souls" beginning at the Olympic Sunday, rousing action occurs in the setting, which is a triumphant touch of rich and accurate stagecraft.

No detail was spared by Director Ralph Ince in depicting the wild night life in these fascinating scenes. And three distinct and separate episodes occur in these pleasure palaces which have made the name of the Montmartre known around the world.

A Startling Fight

Besides the atmosphere allure, a startling fight scene of stark realism occurs in one of the cafes—an Apache dive.

Jacqueline Logan, as Bricotte, maddened by jealousy, makes a bitter fight to regain the favor of her lost lover, young Dale.

This battle of hearts is beyond question a directorial achievement. As to the acting, it was too nearly actual to be classed as pantomime.

Miss Logan's gown was ripped from her body in the fight. She was scratched and bruised so badly that a physician was summoned to her dressing room after the fracas.

Her adversary, a high-caste Spanish lady of romantic career who appears in the films as "Carmen De-Blasco," was likewise injured in the realistic fight. No fan who sees this great scene will ever ask: "Do they really fight in the pictures?"

Besides this realistic scene in the Apanche dive, there are two other wondrous settings portraying Paris night life. One is the Dead Duck Cafe, a very elegant cafe and dance hall, where lightly-clad dancing girls entertain while Parisians dine and dance.

Big Gambling Rooms

The third cafe scene shows huge gambling rooms, attached to a favorite resort of Paris. Here the night life is at its most hectic stage. Women in elaborate gowns and men in evening clothes are seen playing for high stakes, with great excitement everywhere. In his scene, and in the rooms adjoining, comes one of the big dramatic "punches" of the story, where the Boy and his divorced father and mother meet, the Boy in the midst of a flirtation with his own mother, and not knowing either his father or mother.

Such are the wild Paris cafes in "Playing With Souls."

American firms may lay some of the twenty miles of streets to be paved in Wellington, New Zealond.

As winter approaches in Australia, 10,000 hot water bottles made in this country were sent there recently.

U. S. WON'T HELP STATES WHO THROW UP HANDS

Prize Fights in 1735 Feature At Strand Last Four Week Days

Jack Dempsey clad in the superbly tailored raiment of the day, all fashioned by the nation's experts. Young Stribling, handsome and clean-cut, temporarily stepping from the ring to continue his education; Benny Leonard, dapper, good-looking, splendidly groomed and equipped with a splendid bank account.

Oh what a change! What a metamorphis hath overtaken the stars of Fistiania in a scant 175 years.

Consider Corbett; "Gentleman Jim" tailored and pressed, manicured and pedicured, barberized and trained to hold a teacup while exchanging gracious small talk with the social queen who sits behind the samovar and smilingly inquires: "One lump or two; do you take lemon or cream?"

Let us pull back the veil—after again giving Jim the admiring "once-over" again to emphasize comparison and look at Jack Smith, or "Old Buckhorse," who fought as Lord March's bully at Jack Broughton's Amphitheatre in Oxford Road, near Drury Lane in London in 1742 and who is impersonated by Jack Herrick in Tom Mix's great screen story "Dick Turpin," opening Wednesday at the Strand theatre.

To ensure fidelity in the production of the Turpin picture, reasearch and camera men went to England and spent 33 days photographing more than 400 pages of rare old volumes in the Royla Library. These recorded the famous rascalities of the bandit, depicted the great fights, gave histories of the leading bruisers and pictured the bewildering fashions of the period. It was made plain that Turpin was a friend and admirer of Jack Broughton, champion pugilist of England and he "frequently bet huge sums on Broughton's pupils."

"Buckhorse" who was selected for presentation in the picture was one! And the described was "Buckhorse" as Mix found him in the mass of material that was sent from London to California for he and Director John Blystone to study. Much of the material is from the writings of "Pancratia," and some from the chroniclings of Captain Godfrey.

"Such was Buckhorse; a fighter of the 'old school.'"

Yes Tom, after considering Corbett one admits that men, manners and times do change.

Ring Fears Laugh Boycott Will Have Grave Results—Suppression of Cal's Drolleries May Lead to Serious Consequences—Looks Like New Gag Rule—By Lardner

To the editor:

Mr. Abraham L. Scott of Denver recently wrote a vox populi letter to the paper in which he protested vs. a incidence that took place in Washington, D. C., involving the President of the U. S. namely the incidence in regards to the said President making a speech to the newspaper men which was so witty and full of humor that it was thought better not to make it public.

It seemed to Mr. Scott that a society ought to be formed entitled the Demand Society which would be devoted to the end that Mr. Coolidge's witty address and all other mirth provoking speeches and sallies should be reported verbatim wd. for wd. in the papers so that readers might derive the benefits which is generally believed to result from geniality and good spirits.

Mr. Scott said:

"To a large number of people the world seems to gloomy that the addition of a little fun into it in the broadcasting of his laught inspiring speech would probably lower the death rate by changing possible suicides into optimistic beings. By all means the text of President Coolidge's witty address should be demanded in the name of humanity."

Small Preparation.

In defense of the Washington correspondents or whoever it was that decided on the suppression of the speech in question it should be pointed out to Brother Scott and other critics that it was doubtless in the name of humanity that the suppression was decided on. I would guess that the boys thought the whole thing over carefully and made up their mind that less epople would will themself from despondency over not being able to read the address than would die laughing if they was permitted to read it. This guess is based on some of the things which the President has said and which has found their way into print, and when you read them you can see that if he made a little more effort he could spring gags that might easily prove fatal to all but the hardest boiled eggs.

Like for example a few wks. ago they was a convention of the textile industry or something in Washington or somewheres and Mr. Coolidge give them a talk and pointed out that where as 10 yds. of gingham would make a dress 20 yrs. ago, why now days one could be made out of 3 and a half yards and the report went on to say that "the President showed his keen sense of humor and moved his audience to merriment when he told the story of the manufacturer of cloth for women's apparel who went abroad and attended the races at a fashionable course in Paris, observed the shortness of the women's skirts and cabled to his firm to cut down the output of material."

Now friends the chances are that Mr. Coolidge spent very little time in the preparation of the gag quoted in the above report and if a man can turn out a wow like that without straining his self why it is easy to see where he might cause wholesale deaths from hysterics was he to take it into his head to cut loose. Laughter is said to be infectious and they's no telling how far the panic would extend once it got a fair start.

Laying all jokes to 1 or both sides, I suppose my readers has noticed that a president of the U. S. or any other big concern like the Standard Oil and etc. or a prince or a governor or a senator or even a comedian or humorist can say anything that comes into their head and it is pretty sure to be greeted with a deafening shout of laughter whereas if you are a 2d assistant time table folder for the Pennsylvania lines why you can spring nifty after nifty and the reward is a general yawn that makes the Grand Canyon look like a dimple.

What Might Happen.

I don't suppose President Coolidge has made 3 public utterances which was supposed to be funny since he took his present office and at first it was probably the biggest kind of a surprise tohim when he would ask some visitor how their baby was getting along and have everybody within hearing get the giggles, thinking he had pulled a quip. By this time he is used to it and ain't startled no more when he says he hopes it won't rain tomorrow and the gang standing around bursts into a tumult of titters.

More than once this handsome writer has been in a crowd where others present was Irvin S. Cobb, Bill Rogers, Bugs Baer and etc. and if any of these boys made some crack like saying they played golf yesterday or they had bumped their knee and it was hurting them, their friends and admirers would pretty near choke to death at such drollery.

However it does seem like it was going a little bit too far to withhold stuff because it is too good to print and it don't require much of a imagination to see where a precedent like this is bound to lead to unless steps is taken to prevent, namely the next thing we know we will pick up a magazine some day and find a couple of blank pages without nothing on them only this inscription at the top: "A article by George Ade was to of went in this space, but after reading it over carefully the editors decided that a epidemic of convulsions might follow its perusal.

Or we may go to an Ed Wynn show some night expecting to enjoy an hr. and a half of the perfect fool's foolishness only to have the manager step out in front of the curtain before the last named rises and announce that those parts of the program which calls for Mr. Wynn's personal appearance has been cancelled on acct. of a unanimous agreement by the producers that same was bound to cause a holocaust and in their place will be shown motion pictures of the christening of the giant bridge spanning the Delaware from Tufts College to Cascade, Iowa.

I had a whale of a paragraph to wind up this article with but honest I don't dast write it down.

If you are a 2nd asst. time table folder you can spring a nifty and the result is a general yawn.

Even a commedian or a humorist can say anything and it is pretty sure to be greeted with a deafening shout of laughter.

BIDS RECEIVED FOR OIL LANDS BENEATH GULF

Bids Totalling Several Thousand Dollars Is Received

AUSTIN, June 6.—(AP)—Bids totalling several thousand dollars for leases on submerged oil acreage on the Gulf coast has been received since Tuesday, the opening day for the bids, J. T. Robison, land commissioner said today. Several of the bids were on acreage on which no other bids were made, but were too late for consideration. The commissioner said that if enough prospective bidders signify their intention he would offer the remaining acreage for lease to the highest bidder.

Awards to bidders on submerged acreage will be announced Monday, it was indicated today.

Mr. Ferguson said he had been in negotiation with a large company for disposal of oil leases, but that he could not give out the details as the deals have not been consummated. Wright Morrow, assistant attorney general, who has been handling the legal side of the deals for the state, said deals were under way, but he also asserted it would be untimely to name the oil company which has made the offers.

The papers necessary must be approved b ythe prison commission as it has direct control of the land.

Former Governor Ferguson visited the prison lands in south Texas last week, and these negotiations are thought to be the result.

There are several wells on the Blue Ridge prison farm in Harris county and the Brazoria farms are in close proximity to the West Columbia field.

Preserves on Stove Cause Smoke; Alarm Brings Fire Truck

Smoke rolled out of the kitchen windows of a residence in the 1700 block Tenth street Saturday afternoon and a neighbor promptly called the fire department.

When firemen arrived and inquired for the trouble a lady pointed to the kitchen stove.

"My preserves boiled over a little while ago and made a lot of smoke That's all the trouble I know anything about."

That's all there was ,too.

Scream, Ladies, When You Want To - - - By Rupert Hughes

Self-control is a noble thing, but like everything else it may be carried to excess.

Women especially must beware of holding themselves in too carefully. Now that they have given up steel corsets for their waists, they should not shift them to their souls. For Nature, which is much older than any of us, has left us full of ancient conditions that we cannot overcome by will power without self-destruction.

Some years ago I ventured to prophesy what has already arrived: that women would weep no more than men. As with all my prophecies, I got the idea from looking backward, then prolonging the contour lines of history in their general diection.

Centuries ago the bravest men cried and sobbed like stormy children at every emotional crisis. As furious and ruthless a 'brute as Richard Coeur de Lion would go out and swing his bloody axe in battle until his skin came off where he let go of the handle; then he would come home and have hysterics, bawl and bellow like a baby at the least provocation.

In the good old times the bravest soldiers frankly swooned like women. Gradually it became the fashion to count tears unmanly and to teach male children not to cry and not to faint when they were hurt or scared.

The English seem to have led the way, and the French were a little slow at taking up the style. So the English laughed at them for a long while as an excitable race. More recently Frenchmen also have ceased to weep openly and almost boastfully.

Next, Englishmen and their American imitators gave up kissing each other on all occasions. The Germans and French have not yet abandoned the habit and one of the popular jokes of the World War was the sight of a French general decorating a hard boiled Yankee egg with a medal on the chest and a kiss on both cheeks.

Women have tagged along at the heels of the procession but they also have been surrendering the ancient habits of swooning and weeping. A century ago a woman was not considered respectable who took a shock standing. All well bred ladies went over backward promptly when anything surprised their ill nourished brains.

They were taught not to think or act, so they had nothing much to do except keel over prettily.

But eventually the art of fainting went into the discard along with crinolines, pantalettes and fancy stitching.

Hysterics and floods of eye water began to follow the vapors. Men began to speak of "the tyranny of tears," to call the bluff, to sneer at the moist eye and the heaving bosom.

Then women began to get a few of their rights; they began to play fair and prefer honesty o hypocrisy, decency to prudery and vigor to imbecility.

But it is dangerous to grow too fast, and women, having leapted over more ground and grown taller in the last 25 years than in the previous 25 centuries, are in peril of forgetting that they are female animals first and last and all the time.

The men who have also taken tremendous leaps into equality and independence, are coming back to the study of their physical mechanisms and learning that the body has its dynamic laws which punish ignorance and infraction.

One thing seems pretty certain; that every emotional crisis stimulates an immense output of extra energy which must find a discharge outward in muscular action. Otherwise it will do a vast amount of damage to the works.

Men have less occasion now for suppressing their emotional impulses than women, for there is always something noble about a man's exploitation of his power, however rude. But women are still under such duress of etiquette in spite of their new freedom, that any violence of theirs is considered reprehensible and unladylike.

In other words a gentleman may roar and let fly with his fists and be none the ess—perhaps all the more—respected. But even the humblest women and even the ladies, except when drunk, are afraid to be noisy or rowdy. Many of them do themselves a serious internal injury by their detemination to be ladies first and forever, however painful. Now there is nothing more lacerating than hugging a wildcat, and the woman-soul is very feline and very wild when disturbed.

I know one charming woman who well nigh destroyed herself by her virtuous and self-sacrificing determination never to let herself go. She was saved by a wise and ingenious doctor. There must be millions of such women ruining themselves with the best of motives, but I doubt that there are many doctors as sure as the one whose prescription was simply this: "Scream your head off, honey, and scream yourself out."

The meanest thing he did was to fall violently in love with his wreck of a life.

This woman—call her Mrs. Adam Legion for convenience—found herself in a plight into which the best of women are incessantly falling. She had a husband who was a terrific drain on her nerves, as all husbands are, no matter what their quality. Perhaps the better the husband, the more loving and beloved, the more he exhausts his wife—especially since he has all the world outside the home for the liberation of his nerve-lightnings, and the usual wife must stick at home and play the lady.

Further more Mrs. Legion had a child, and a child is a frightful leech upon a mother's soul. The more she loves it, the more she gives it, the more it demands. No mother wants a mollycoddle or a jellyfish for a child, but one that is growing and intensely alive is a parasite of fearfully wearing, nerve-sapping relentlessness. Even when the young animal is asleep, the mother's repose is fitful and she is rarely free from either nightmares or daymares.

It is a dreadful mistake to imagine that a mother's travail ends with the birth of the child. It only begins then.

Well, this Mrs. Legion was toiling harder than she realized at keeping her husband and her son healthy and happy, the home in order, the meals on time, the clothes mended and the bills down.

She was not so well as she supposed when she encountered one of those long runs of unbroken bad luck that strikes all gamblers whether they play poker or the ponies or simply play the game of life. It is pitiful to watch a family under such a cataclysm; it seems as if all nature combined and conspired to destroy the helpless group.

Mrs. Legion was called away from home by the illness of her mother and her sister. She had just helped them through a long ordeal when she was called home by the serious illness of her child. A long heart-breaking battle followed before the little life was saved and a racking convalescence begun.

Then one of those cyclonic epidemics of influenza swept the nation. Mrs. Legion went over with tens of thousands of others. She got up alive, which was more than thousands did, but as the Irishman said of the flu: "You are sick of it six months after you're well of it."

During her own convalescence her husband caught the plague. Just before he recovered from the influenza, he was invaded by about eleven million of those bugs who call themselves streptococci pneumoniae. He wore himself out recruiting and uniforming and feeding twelve billion of his own bugs to knock the streptococci. This left him so exhausted that a horde of immigrants from typhoid land slipped into his system.

By some miracle he won the battle with these after several defeats called relapses. On more than one occasion he was so near complete surrender that his worn-out wife endured all the agonies of his death.

But he won the three wars, and set about the task of reparation. His body was an abandoned slaughterhouse and he had to mop up the trenches, clear up the ruins and rebuild. This is entitled convalescence, and the convalescent from typhoid is notoriously the most unendurable of all known pests. The stronger the man and the more amiable his general disposition, the more infamous he is in convalescence. His poor family is usually worn to the point of regretting that he did not die beautifully before he became a Beelzebub in bed and turned the house into a small hell.

I myself have the sweetest of dispositions. There is no argument about it, for I admit it myself. Yet when I recovered from typhoid as a boy, I could only be kept from biting my mother and giving her the hydrophobia by having my younger brother dragged up to the bedside so that I could whip him for putting his head in at the door and trying to cheer me up a bit with light humor. Fortunaetly I was so weak that I could hardly lift the willow switch. But if I could grow so mean as that imagine what ordinary people are like.

Fortunately for the old lady another son of hers fell ill and she was called away in time to escape being murdered.

And now Mrs. Legion began to feel peculiar things going on inside her brain. She wanted to shriek, scream, run, stamp, strike, tear the world to pieces in a magnificent tantrum. She wanted to do these things with all the power of her wantonry.

But of course she did none of them. She was a lady, and a mother, and there were neighbors whose ears must not be fed with noises from next door.

Finally, the poor woman hugging her mad wildcat of a soul inside her scratched and bleeding heart, grew so desperate, so afraid of going insane and setting the house on fire, that she took her husband's doctor aside and implored him to give her something to quiet her nerves.

Women are always begging doctors and druggists and other women to tell them of something that will quiet them. It is perfectly appalling how many powders are made and sold to women to quiet them. I have no doubt that the women of the civilized world shoot more powder into their systems than all the soldiers fire from their guns at whatever targets they fire at.

And it is such a pity that people are forever throwing into their poor stomachs chemicals supposed to reach out and deaden certain faroff nerve-ends. Shakespeare cries out against liquor in Othello: "O God, that men should put an enemy in their mouths to steal away their brains!"

But the women—and men enough, too——put still more powder into their mouths to steal away their nerves.

So Mrs. Legion, unable to sleep, unable to rest in spite of crushing fatigue, unable to reason herself into a state of relaxation, asked her doctor fore something to quiet her and save her from the peril of emitting wild screams and ululations.

And this wise doctor instead of writing her a prescription said:

"Come with me, honey." He led her into the extra bedroom where she slept, and bade her stretch out face down. Then he covered her head with blankets and pillows and lifted them away just long enough to say:

"Now scream your head off until you've screamed yourself out! I'll keep the pillows over you so that nobody can hear."

And then like a benevolent Othello saving a Desdemona instead of destroying her, he aided her to un smother herself.

And she screamed! She shrieked! She howled! She yelled! She kicked and thrashed, and he restored the silencing pillows as fast as she flung them off.

She had a perfectly glorious time and nobody knew of it. The neighbors heard never a sound and the supersensitive invalid never suspected what an invalid he had made of his nurse or what cure she was taking.

Finally she grew so hoarse that the joy of her uproar became a pain. She reached the blissful relief of not wanting to scream and of wanting not to scream.

She had drained herself of the poison of suppressed emotion and self-inflicted paralysis.

She fell asleep like a child that has run and shouted, fought, squealed, leaped, and, as Wordsworth said: "felt its life in every limb."

The next day when the doctor called, he made her take another screaming lesson. He kept it up for days and days, and saved her reason, haved her health and saved her from her husband and her child.

How wise a doctor, how lucky a patient! Who can tell how many nervous wrecks are in their graves or drifting thither for lack of this very surrender to the demands of overcharged nature?

When you see a motorist running in broad daylight with his headlights glowing you know that he is sensibly relieving his overcharged batteries before they burn themselves out and ruin the car.

Human beings are more like automobiles than like any of the other countless things they have been likened to. An engine that is not permitted to run occasionally, and even to race at full speed, is a mistreated engine.

Long walks, games of golf, daily dozens, and all forms of physical exercise have their value and their reward. But there is a vital need also at times for violence, for explosions, for excesses of energetic expenditure.

Therein lies the inestimable value of dancing, of romping hilarity, of mob-action, of loud cheering, tumultuous laughter, frenzies and raptures and self-exploitation.

Therein lies the value of the theatre, the moving picture, the baseball and football games, the political meetings with their ferocious horseplay.

No doubt, the recent tendency of women to travel about the world and meet in conventions, to organize federations, and storm at one another as the men have always done, is a response to the need of spillways to take the strains from the dams that hold in their emotional floods. The conventions seem costly but perhaps they are cheap and wholesome medicine. Scream, ladies, scream!

Those moralists and preachers who denounce these outlets of dammed-up energy, and who call upon their victims to repress all enthusiasms except for remorse and self-denial are the enemies of society and should be put in their place.

All periods when the theatre and public recreations have been hceeked have been periods of worse evil, of persecutions, wars, morbid insanities. We think of the old Puritans as quiet and sober people, but they had the Indians to fight, the wilderness to conquer, and they made war upon themselves.

You should read what church service really was like in dear old Boston. The preachers wept and sobbed and shrieked. Men and women went into hysterics, fainted, frothed at the mouth, howled and ran about. The Puritan men outwept the women. You can find no end of documents to prove it. Cotton Mather describes how he wept all night on the floor till the carpet was drenched with his tears.

So let us beware of growing too circumspect. Let us gesticulate, yell with laughter, sob aloud if we want to, run and jump and open our escape valves, for thus we expel the waste and the gases that will otherwise poison us. We must beware of dying of our own venoms.

And so again I repeat the wise prescription of the good doctor who saved Mrs. Legion from self-destruction and from suicide by silence.

"Scream your head off, honey."

Joe Vila Tells Why Robinson Is Now Prexy

Supposed friction between the Ebbets and McKeever factions, each owning a half interest in the Brooklyn club, was forgotten when they got together and elected Wilbert Robinson to the presidency, which the late Charles H. Ebbets had filled for 25 years, writes Joe Vila in the New York Sun. Up to the eleventh hour, Stephen W. McKeever, the club's treasurer, stood pat in his determination to succeed Ebbets, but when he became convinced that his election was impossible he gracefully voted for Robinson. The stockholders then unianmously elected McKeever vice-president and treasurer.

Following the deaths of Charles H. Ebbets and Edward J. McKeever, efforts were made by several individuals to buy the Brooklyn franchise. The National league men, it was said, favored a change of ownership and indorsed James E. Gaffney as an acceptable bidder for the property. But the Ebbets and McKeever heirs refused point blank to sell the club at any price. They declared that they were satisfied to proceed along the usual lines.

When Robinson first was suggested as a compromise candidate for the club's presidency he was opposed vigorously by the McKeever faction on the ground that he had been appointed manager by the late President Ebbets, who also had signed him to a three years' contract in 1923 calling for $18,000 annually. For that reason, Robinson was believed to be in sympathy with the Ebbets heirs and wouldn't be a non-partisan executive.

A personal interview with Robinson, however, satisfied the McKeever faction that he was the only available candidate who could smooth the troubled waters and at the same time maintain the confidence and support of the Brooklyn baseball public. It was agreed that Robinson's great popularity with the fans, due to his successful management of the team, couldn't be overlooked and that as the new president he would safeguard the interests of all concerned.

As manager of the Brooklyns, Robinson is renowned for his square shooting and clean sportsmanship, so that he seems to be well qualified to assume the duties of president and team leader, supported by employers who have unbounded faith in his ability to perpetuate the prosperity of the club.

WICHITA TO BE HOSTS TO C. E. STATE MEETING

Christian Endeavor to Meet Here Wednesday For Convention

One of the biggest young people's gatherings ever held in Texas will convene next Wednesday at the First Christian church when the thirty-sixth state convention of Christian Endeavor goes into session. The convention lasts five days.

Everything is in readiness for the meet, according to Mayor R. E. Shepherd, chairman of the convention committee and no pains will be spared to make the conference a success. Other Wichita Falls churches have cooperated with the workers here and some of the sessions will be held in the First Methodist church. Other meetings will be held in the Presbyterian church which with the Evangelical churches here comprise the congregations directly interested in the convention.

Homes Are Arranged.

Homes for the visiting delegates have been arranged for in private homes over the city, though the announcement has been made that more homes are needed.

Special entertainment features have been provided for the visitors and every effort will be made to show the delegates a good time. One of the big features of the convention will be the parade through the business streets. Special awards will be made to those who offer the best decorated groups and the biggest delegations in the parade.

The afternoon sessions during the six days of the convention will be of a varied program. Wednesday afternoon will be given over to registration, getting acquainted, being assigned to homes, etc. A musical program under the leadership of Mrs. J. S. Pitman has been arranged also for the afternoon.

Thursday afternoon Miss Hazel Smith, missionary to Porta Rica will make an address on the work of a missionary. Rev. Haley, assistant pastor of the First Christian church of Abilene will address the convention in his unusual way. Rev. Haley is a good speaker and mixes with his addresses a little mistery and slight of hand feats, he formerly being a lyceum worker and performer. Mr. Haley is also an artist oftentimes he sings songs at the same time draws crayon pictures illustrating his song. A banquet for life work recruits those who have given their lives to full time Christian service, will be held on Thursday afternoon.

"Junior Day" Observance.

Friday afternoon "Junior Day" will be given over to Junior demonstration. This demonstration will be given largely by local juniors under the leadership of Mrs. E. S. Goodner. Mrs. Goodner will be assisted by Miss Mamie Gene Cole of Atlanta, Ga., who is Junior field secretary for Dixie Christian Endeavor. Miss Cole is a junior specialist giving all her time to the junior work. Each morning in the First Methodist church Miss Cole will hold a conference for junior leaders and it is hoped that many Wichita Falls junior workers will take advantage of Miss Cole's experiences and attend her conferences. These conferences will not deal altogether with Junior Christian Endeavor but junior work of the church in general. Wichita Falls is very fortunate in having the opportunity of having Miss Cole with them.

Saturday afternoon will be given over to recreation.

The entire convention will have the pleasure of being the host of Mrs. Culberson on her spacious lawn where games and other points of recreation will be enjoyed. The program there will be under the supervision of Scout Executive Creighton and Mrs. Louis Pankey of Sherman, who is state social superintendent.

Sunday afternoon program will be given over to extemporaneous talks by different delegates and by an address by Rev. Patrick Henry of San Antonio on the topic of "Texas Future Leadership." On Thursday and Friday afternoons the Intermediates will have seperate sessions in the First Presbyterian church under the leadership of Mrs. J. W. Bradley and Miss Berta Mae Looney, state Intermediate superintendent.

Monday will be outing day of the convention at which time the delegates will spend the day at Lake Wichita, swimming, boating and enjoying other amusements that the lake amusement park affords.

DALLAS HAS FIRST OF SUMMER HEAT VICTIMS

Lemons Bleach the Skin White

The nly harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, sofetener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Adv.

DALLAS BLACKS GET A RESPITE OF EXECUTION

Action Taken as Day is Set For Sunday; Set Back 5 Days

AUSTIN, June 6.—(AP)—Because their day of execution was set for Sunday, June 28, Frank and Lorenzo Noel, negro brothers, given death sentences for criminal assault on Mrs. Mary Steer, in Dallas April 12, Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson today granted the two men a respite of five days.

"The Sabbath is a day recognized by all civilized nations as a day of rest and worship, and mindful of the command to "Remember the Sabbath Day and Keep it Holy," and believing that it is in keeping with the sentiment of a people of a Christian nation that no criminal should be executed on the Sabbath and out of reverence for this day and respect for it sacredness, these two men are given this respite," the pardon said.

The two negroes plead guilty to the attack on Mrs. Steer and to killing her companion, Ryan Adkins, but they were tried only on the criminal offense charge. Their trials were disposed of in 81 minutes in criminal district court No. 2 in Dallas county, May 28, and their executions were set for earliest time permitted under the law.

AUTO DEMAND STILL STRONG FOR SUMMER

Chevrolet Head Believes Cars Will Still be In Great Demand

High automotive production will continue well through the second half of 1925 it is expected by R. H. Grant, sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, who has spent three months of the current year visiting in direct contact with Chevrolet dealers. His travels have taken him to most of the larger cities and more than half the states.

Demand Strong.

"Demand for cars, which even before this time last year was beginning to slacken, still remains strong," said Mr. Grant. "The sales peaks and depressions of former years are beginning to flatten out. The automobile has become a year 'round product, particularly since the closed car grew to such favor. Seasonable variations in demand are becoming less marked.

"No one section predominates as a present or prospective market for automobiles. Sales throughout the entire country reveal a gratifying steadiness and uniformity of demand. And improvement of the agricultural situation, particularly in the southwest where the drought has broken, indicates that thousands of farmer-purchasers will help sustain the demand during the latter part of the year.

"It is not improbable that demand will increase slightly in the near future and then remain unchanged for some time, still at a comparatively high level. This possibility, however, will have slight effect upon production, especially among the large companies.

Unequal to Demand.

"Production of the more popular cars during recent months has been unequal to demand with the result that manufacturers have been accumulating a reserve of unfilled orders which they can meet only by steadily building automobiles. This is a favorable and healthy condition for any business. It is a guarantee against abrupt production variations. Also, it benefits the dealers because immediate delivery of cars to waiting purchasers permits a rapid turnover of capital.

"The race of the Chevrolet unfilled order list against recent record production strides augurs well for future sales. Chevrolet went into May with 85,682 unfilled orders. In spite of a large production schedule the amount of reserve orders was diminished only slightly, due to the number of new orders received."

Another Pioneer In Automobile Industry Brought to Detroit

The appointment of Col. Rutgers S. Kasson as vice president and general manager of Cram's Service, Buhl building, automotive specialists, brings to Detroit another pioneer in the automobile industry.

Col. Kasson during his 14 years association in the trade has held very important production, sales and general executive positions both in this country and abroad.

Prior to his coming with Cram's, he was associated with the Mack Truck company. Col. Kasson came to this country to join the latter firm after seven years absence in the export field. During that time, he carried out a number of important missions for the Ford Motor company, Locomobile, and Mercer companies and his work extended in practically every country of the world.

As a result of his long experience and extensive travel, Col. Kasson has become known as an automotive authority and his analysis of happenings in the trade are widely read. He is also a much sought after speaker on automotive subjects and a number of organizations are scheduling him for fall talks.

Very Old Clock Runs.

In the tower of Wolvey (Nuneaton) in England, there is a clock that has done duty since the time of Charles II until recently. Originally it had but one hand. The second dial, made of wood, was put on in commemoration of the victory of Trafalgar. There is a record of its having been repaired in 1740 and recently, when the clock was being moved, a hive of dead bees and about 50 pounds of honey were discovered behind it.

Iron's Heat Controlled.

By means of a new invention, worked out from a very simple principle, an electric iron, percolator and similar equipment will automatically shut off the current whenever the instrument gets overheated. It is a thermostat arrangement, and before the iron gets too cool, it will again start heating. The invention will considerably lessen the number of fires resulting from overheated irons.

Crowds of merrymakers at recent race meets in Ireland have caused the prediction that Ireland has come back to her old life again.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckleface, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any drug or department store and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

AJAX AUTO IN DEBUT BEFORE A HUGE CROWD

New Motor Car Pleases In First Appearance Before Public

The first public showing of the new car built by the Ajax Motor company was made at the plant at Racine Wednesday when C. W. Nash, president of the Ajax Motors company made a formal presentation of the Ajax to the Racine public and to fifty Nash distributors who gathered for the inaugural ceremonies. The occasion marked the first time in automobile history when an entire city suspended business to celebrate the advent of a new automobile. A committee, headed by Mayor Armstrong of Racine and leading officials and citizens, representing the foremost civic associations and industrial institutions, met Mr. Nash upon his arrived from Kenosha and extended a formal welcome in behalf of the city.

The Racine Association of Commerce had taken over the complete decoration of the executive offices and lobby of the Ajax plant and of the company dining room where the dealer luncheon was held.

Open house was held at the great Ajax plant which was completely remodeled and equipped throughout solely for Ajax production with tools and precision equipment of the most modern character known to the motor car industry.

Events of the day began with a ball game between Racine and Kneosha teams at which the first Ajax to leave the production line was placed on exhibition before the largest crowd that ever attended a ball game in Racine, tickets for the ball game having been sold out a week in advance with prices at the last minute soaring as high as $50.00 each. Following the game the public reception at the Ajax plant was held in the evening and it is estimated that between 8,000 and 10,000 people assembled to greet the new car whose career is bound to have an important effecton the future of Racine, and to make the trip of inspection through the big plant.

Firestone BALLOONS WIN Battle of Tires

"Gum-Dipped Balloons Helped Me Break World Record" — Says Peter De Paolo

Without Firestone Balloons I couldn't have put it over. I felt safe on those big tires—and could maintain the higher speeds on the treacherous turns, enabling me to finish the race with the average of 101.13 miles per hour—breaking all track records from 10 to 500 miles. I finished without the usual physical exhaustion—it was the most comfortable race I ever drove on the Indianapolis track.

Set new speed records at Indianapolis Track

With the same type of car—same size motors and for the most part, the same drivers—and over the same race track—A new world's record was set on Firestone Balloons at Indianapolis May 30th, 1925, of 101.13 miles average per hour for the full five hundred miles — beating the 1924 Indianapolis world's record of 98.23 miles on Firestone Regular Cords.

Twenty-one cars started—ten finished "in the money" on Firestone Balloons. Never before have tires been subjected to such a gruelling test—one more convincing testimonial for Firestone's extra process of Gum-Dipping that eliminates internal friction and heat.

AMERICANS SHOULD PRODUCE THEIR OWN RUBBER . . . H. S. Firestone

Prosperous Utilities Give Good Service

Public utilities, among which the furnishing of natural gas is one of the most useful, have overhead expenses that comparatively few people ever think about. In order to function they must invest huge sums of money all the time; must prepare far in advance to meet their customers' needs.

Money must be set aside from their receipts to maintain their properties in condition to meet the demands, thus to provide the funds necessary to replace the equipment as it wears out or becomes obsolete through improvements.

Money must be set aside also to pay the rental for money used in installing the plant, and provision must be made for the eventual replacement of this sum, especially in the natural gas field, where there is no such thing as permanence.

Then money must be provided for operating expenses, including such charges as insurance, taxes, etc.

What may be left over, if any, after these are all properly provided for, may be said to go as profit to those who have invested their money, efforts and time in making the supply available. This may properly be said to be compensation for the risk they run—a not inconsiderable risk in so uncertain a field as gas production.

Only when a utility is fairly profitable can it give the right kind of service, for only then can it attract the capital it constantly needs.

THIEVES TAKE BIG CAR TOLL, SAYS BUILDER

Chrysler Head Believes Cars Should be Theft Proof

"American inventive genius can surely find some way to cut down the number of stolen automobiles," said Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Maxwell and Chrysler Motor corporations, recently. "The activities of automobile thieves were nearly 50 per cent greater in 1924 than they were in 1923 and more than 100 per cent greater than they were in 1918.

"In 28 cities there were stolen in 1924, 57,771 motor vehicles. Of this number 47,484 were recovered. Seventeen per cent of the total number stolen were not recovered.

"There should be a way to mark a car in such a manner that it can be identified easily. That mark should be counterfeit proof if inventive genius can make it so. It should be so placed on the car that it cannot be removed.

"The theft of automobiles is a crime vast in its proportions. The number of cars stolen increases from year to year. Now there probably will be no way to check the theft of cars entirely but surely there is some way to cut down the number of cars stolen.

"The cars stolen last year were valued between $100,000,000 and $125,000,000. That sum must be cut down."

American Ships Favored.

In the transporting of American mail to foreign countries the U. S. government has consistently favored ships carrying the American flag. The postal clerks favor the U. S. ships except where an obvious delaay would otherwise occur or in cases where the name of the ship by which the letter or parcel to go, is specified.

Girl Succeeds as Engineer.

Miss Annette Ashberry, a girl who worked in a munition factory during the war, and later took up the theory of engineering as a scientific study, has won success in her chosen profession. She is now recognized as one of the most clever engineers in England and has been elected to the Society of Engineers. She now operates her own firm.

James Anscombe, an Edenbridge, England, postman, who recently was given a long-service medal, was so punctual for years that people set their clocks by him.

YOUR TIRES

by T. S. LINDSEY General Sales Manager Kelly-Springfield Tire Co.

THE causes of automobile accidents and losses may be divided into a number of classes, principally carelessness, mechanical breakage, fire, theft and skidding. Probably half the accidents could be avoided and are practically unknown to the careful driver who informs himself about his car and tires.

It is best not to stop or slow down suddenly, or to skid around corners. The strain on the tires caused by these forms of misuse is terrific.

See that your brakes are properly set if you leave your car on an incline, and turn the front wheels towards the curb.

Whatever alcohol you use, put it in the radiator.

Don't drive fast with a soft tire or with one that is nearly worn out.

Have a good lock put on your car, and use it. Keep your spare tires locked on. Don't leave your car unattended without locking it.

If you drove a horse you would certainly see that it was fed and watered regularly. A car needs just as regular treatment. A little daily attention to your car will make it last much longer, and it will give you far better service.

Keep a record of your factory number, your motor number and the numberr on parts easily located. If your car is stolen the thief will in all probability remove some numbers, but not all.

Wash your car frequently. Failure to do this will spoil its appearance in a very short time. The varnish of a car is benefited and hardened by frequent washing in clear cool water, but is damaged if mud is allowed to freeze on the body of the machine.

OAKLAND SIGNS NEW ENGINEER FOR FACTORIES

Two Former Cadillac Men Now Associated With Company

The announcement by B. H. Anibal, chief engineer of the Oakland Motor Car company of the appointment of F. M. Holden as assistant chief engineer brings to the engineering council of this organization four former Cadillac engineering team-mates, a chief engineer, a research engineer, a body engineer, and an electrical engineer.

For ten years, three of these men, Mr. Anibal, Mr. Holden and Mr. Herman Schwarze, electrical engineer, and for three years four of them, including W. R. Milner, body engineer, gathered at the Cadillac engineering staff councils and participated in one of the most remarkable developments of the past decade. For three additional years the same group continued in their same capacities at the Peerless Motor Car company.

Mr. Holden was with Cadillac from 1908 until 1921, when he resigned as research engineer to take a like position with Peerless. He comes to Oakland from the General Motors proving grounds at Milford, Mich., where he has been in complete charge since its founding in January, 1924, and where he has had opportunity to observe the performance of nearly every motor car built today. His past experience will contribute much to Oakland.

ONE TON FORD TRUCK GAINING IN POPULARITY

Dealers Say That Demand Is Usually Big For Automobiles

Use of the one-ton truck in delivery and hauling system appears to be greater this year than ever before and buying, which reflects a healthy business condition generally, it likewise increasing.

This condition in the commercial car field is indicated by sales of Ford trucks which during the first four months of the present year have established a new record.

The preference shown all along for the one-ton truck is growing. Retail sales reports of the Ford Motor company for January, February, March and April this year show that 71,352 Ford trucks were delivered to customers in the United States during these four months, as compared with 65,111 for the same period a year ago, an increase of 6,421.

A large percentage of these sales included cabs and bodies, for the company is now supplying both open and closed cabs and a number of body combinations which bring a new high value into the truck market at low cost.

While the big majority of these trucks naturally went to business concerns, a marked increase in sales is reported in the agricultural districts, as the farmer is becoming more and more convinced of the economic advantages of handling his products with motor trucks.

Paris Says Little On Disarm Letter

PARIS, June 6.—(AP)—Although printing a considerable amount of German comment on the allied disarmament note, the Paris morning papers accounts have little to say themselves.

The note is generally described as drafted in most conciliatory terms and as allowing the German government to hasten the evacuation of the Cologne zone, "if only it is prepared to show good will."

The tone of the communication is described as extremely courteous and credit is taken for the mention made in it that the Dawes reparation plan is being faithfully executed by Germany.

It is also pointed out that the allies express their willingness to withdraw their control commission in order to encourage Germany to fulfill all conditions of the Versailles treaty.

Olds Sedan Is Becoming a Business Favorite

C. G. Gale and His Oldsmobile A. A. A. Scout Car Checking in at Washington, D. C., Headquarters

For the past nine months an Oldsmobile Six sedan has been the business office and only means of transportation of C. G. Gale, of the Motor Wheel Corporation, and during that period Mr. Gale has traveled over the greater portions of the United States, Canada and Mexico. In fact he is one of the record automobile travelers of the world.

Since September 1, 1924 when Mr. Gale started from Lansing, Mich., he has visited 32 states in this country as ewll as the populated sections of Canada and Mexico, rolling up a mileage in excess of 25,000.

Mr. Gale is engaged in installing service stations and distributing centers for Motor Wheel Corporation, makers of Tuare steel wheels used on Oldsmobile sport cars. His work has haken him over every type road and through all conceivable weather conditions. During this time he has carried 1,250 pounds of baggage and for the entire trip has averaged about 18 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

This constant driving at the rate of nearly 3,000 miles a month is considered pleasure by Mr. Gale. In fact he reports that his job has more play than work attached to it. In addition to his regular duties, he also represents the National Touring Bureau and his Oldsmobile is an official scout car for the American Automobile Association.

INSURANCE CO. PLANNING NEW FARMER LOANS

Six Per Cent Interest Is Plan of Dallas Company

Announcement likely to be of extreme interest to Texas farmers has just been made by The Southland Life Insurance company of Dallas through its vice president and treasurer, Clarance E. Linz.

Borrow for Six Per Cent

Mr. Linz announces that the Southland will immediately install a plan whereby Texas farmers will be able to borrow money at six per cent interest on their farms without amortization on long terms of five to thirty years and without any legal or brokerage fees.

"There has long been a cry in Texas that Texas farmers could not get cheap money," says Linz. "And, in the past, it has been the general opinion that many Texas farmers were shiftless lot and that their lack of proper cultivation of their ground and lack of care of their implements made it hard for them to get this money.

"I have just returned from an extensive trip through Texas and was greatly impressed by the increasing number of young energetic and ambitious young men who are taking the place of these shiftless ones. These young men need financial help and it is our aim to give it to them through the medium of our 'Texas earned money for Texas investment' policy.

To Rural Towns.

"We intend to send a representative of our farm loan department to practically every rural community in Texas. He will announce that he is ready to do business on the six per cent basis and will personally investigate requests for loans himself thus saving the farmer legal and brokerage fees.

"This service is the supplement federal farm loan bank loans which are on the gradual retirement plan, and, to our mind, should do a great deal towards giving impetus to better farming in Texas. The plan, of course, may be adopted by a member of other Texas insurance companies, and if so will become a widespread method of making Texas the greatest agricultural empire in America."

The kitchen garden at Hampton Court Palace, London, is to be converted into golf putting greens and tennis courts.

PIERCE ARROW BOASTS A NEW USABLE BRAKE

New Feature of Auto Is Practical, Claims Manufacturers

Many automobile owners do not realize that the ribbed brake drums, which are a feature of Pierce-Arrow four wheel brakes, serve a practical and not an ornamental purpose, according to Mr. L.E. Corcoran, general sales manager of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car company.

Heat causes brake lining to deteriorate prematurely. The ribs on Pierce-Arrow brakes dissipate so rapidly that the brakes remain cool. Because of this, brake linings last nearly twice as long. The ribs, likewise reinforce the drum, keeping it perfectly concentric.

In order to machine the ribs into the drums, the factory has to use a high carbon steel forging that is nearly three-quarters of an inch thick, weighing fifty-five pounds. After machining, the drum weighs only eighteen pounds.

Overland Sedan Grows In Favor and Orders Flood In After Big Reduction

Following closely on the heels of the announcement of price reduction of the Overland Six Standard Sedan, from $985 to $895 greatly increased sales and production of the new Overland standard four cylinder sedan at the new low price of $655, has brought a deluge of orders for this roomy five passenger closed car.

Only by the greatest concentration on production costs and detail has Willys-Overland been able to place on the market a two door, five passenger sedan at such an unheard of price—way below any other closed car with sliding gear transmission.

Greeted By Heavy Demand

Greeted on all sides by a heavy demand, the advent of the new standard sedan marked the first time in automobile history that a full size, five passenger sedan with sliding gear transmission has been offered to the public at the astoundingly low price of $655.

A beautiful body with long, sweeping lines, narrow front and sweeping panelled effect rear windows add greatly to the appearance of this popular model produced by Willys-Overland. Cimbined with the beauty of the two door, long-lined body effect is the accessibility to the rear seat of the standard sedan which has extra wide doors.

Easy riding qualities, so apparent in the other models of Willys-Overland's four cylinder line, are incorporated in the new standard sedan. The famous patented Triplex spring is used in the new model, being pinion hung to absorb all heavy road shocks and insure comfort to the passengers. Deep and heavy cushions, backed by speciall constructed coil springs, add greatly to the comfort of the car, and beautiful cloth upholstery and finely finished hardware make for beauty and simplicity of the interior fittings.

Same 4-Cylinder Motor

The power plant of the new standard sedan is the same four cylinder motor that has long created such a profound respect in the public's mind as being associated with the Overland Four line. Its motor develops 27 horse power with more than enough reserve grades, and with speed to burn. The success of the Overland Four motor known all over the world, is a guarantee of the performance of the new Overland standard sedan in the hands of its owners.

Heavy duty axles of molybdenum steel, greater rigidity and strength in the chassis parts, and a motor that has proven its worth in years of service, combine to make this new model one of the fastest selling cars of the Willys-Overland line. Already the new standard sedan is furthering the favorable impressions recorded by buyers at its announcement and its greater value and durability are setting the pace in the sale of the Overland Four line.

At the recent congress of the Gaelic Athletic association of Dublin it was voted to continue the rule that members could neither take part in or view any foreign game.

Why Bugs Have Best of It. —By James J. Montague

A German scientist has thrown an interesting light on the methods employed by bees in communicating with one another in order that the hive fore-women can tell the workers where she wants a new tier of cells built, and so that the honey-scouts can give information about newly found flower beds. Incidentally, he has discovered the origin or interpretive dancing, which to me is no more of a mystery than why interpretative dancing was ever originated at all.

By planting a number of the cunning little creatures different colors and turning them loose among their fellows in a glass hive this patient observer has been able to watch them at their work and to not exactly how it is done.

Following the course of a bee which had just come into the hive after spying out a new honey field, he saw her deliver the goods to the parter bees appointed to receive and allocate it. Immediately after she was eased of her burden she repaired to the center of the hive and began a dance.

During this dance she whirled about a number of times and executed various fancy steps, all of her actions being closely watched by her co-workers, who seemed to be greatly excited over the tidings she was conveying to them. When she sank exhausted from her labors the others immediately hastened forth, and all took one direction which led to the spat of which she had told them.

As yet the scientist has been unable accurately to interpret the code used in this salutatory conversation. He is not quite sure whether the number of gyrations or the manner of throwing out the feet conveyed the desired information. He is, however, satisfied that the dancing bee is able to give both compass course and geographical position, and cites the facts that the others fly unerringly to the designated spot as proof of this conclusion.

Of course if bees can speak to each other in this fashion concerning the location of flowers, it naturally follows that they can converse in the same manner about other matters, such as the campaign for the election of the next Queen Bee, the prospect of the harvest weather, and the manner of constructing a new cell block of rearing the larvae which are, in time, to populate the hive.

And this confirms a suspicion I have entertained ever since I have had a garden ,that not only bees but all insects are in continuous communication regarding the intentions and movements of the common enemy—man—and that this accounts for the extreme difficulty one has in fighting them.

You may not have a garden yourself, but even so something of this sort must have come under your observation. For example, you have doubtless been sitting quietly on your front porch in the cool of a summer evening, serene and composed until a single mosquito happened by, scented you out and sank his fangs into your neck. You did not notice this action at first, but presently the shrill song of victory which mosquitoes voice on such occasions called your attention to it, and looking up you saw him soar away toward the distant back yard.

In exactly the time he required to reach his destination in some tiny pool of stagnant water, plus the time consumed in telling his fellows that he had stumbled on a good thing, added to the time needed to fly to you, they have begun to 'arrive in clouds.

Now unless that mosquito, by some means of thought tranference had notifiew his tribe where a meal was to be had, they would never have returned in such numbers, but would have drifted in singly and casually as the first mosquito had done.

If you have a garden other evidence that this German investigator is on the right trail will occur to to you. For example you go out some afternoon to find the caterpillars have begun their destruction of your current bushes. You hastily send down town for five pounds of arsenate of lead, which you mix with water and apply to your vines.

If you are watchful you will observe while you are working that a number of moths, who are the fond mothers of these caterpillars are hovering about you, taking observations. And by the time you have your spray apparatus ready every caterpillar has left the current bushes and have moved on to some other region where they can apptake of their feed without suffering immediately afterward from the convulsions and death that result from combined lead and arsenical poisoning.

It seems probable to me that as soon as the moths have found out exactly what you are doing, they hurry to the current bushes, where by picture-dancing they inform the caterpillars exactly what you are. I have never seen them doing this, but it is easy to imagine how they fly hurriedly to and from to show that you are sending for the poison, whirl round and around to inform their kin of how it is mixed, and at last fall down on the grass to indicate what will happen if any of the stuff is eaten along with the leaves.

Much the same methods are employed by ants, whose industry consists chiefly in inventing ways and means of living without doing any useful work themselves.

Ants, as all gardners know, live mostly on the milk they extract from tiny insect—cows called aphis, which they pacture on any garden stuff you may have in orde rthat they may eat your plants and turn their substance into milk. The ants have some curious ways of giving orders to the aphis, which will follow them to the tops of fruit trees, and remain there quietly browsing till the ants send an aphis herde after them to bring them home for the evening milking.

Why the aphis do the bidding of the ants is a mystery. But that this bidding is communicated to them effectively is no mystery at all, for almost any time in the morning or evening you can see them filing out of the undergrowth where they live to the trees or vegetables designated by their masters, or coming home again to deliver up their sustenance.

I could go on and enumerate many instances of how army worms caintain a scouting system by which their whole body politic may be led to a particularly well cared for garden, and how as soon as this garden is destroyed they receive news of others waiting to be devoured.

I could tell you of billions of locusts brought to one field by a single adventurer who happened on it quite by accident ,and hurried back to the main body with the news of his find. But I think I have said enough to back up the theory of the German servant who has been studying bees. And if this article is of any benefit to him as corroboration when he applies for the Noble Price for Science, he is quite welcome to it, provided he will do the right thing in the way of dividing the forty thousand dollars.

THOROUGHBRED BREED PROVES ITSELF HERE.

The success or failure of famous thoroughbreds in breeding roles has always furnished much data for discussion. Those who stand for the idea that "breeding tells" will point to one of the races at Belmont Park recently. Four fillies sired by the great Man O'War started in a field of 20 horses in one race and three of the four finished first, second and third. The fourth daughter ran eighth.

Taps, Edith Cavell and Medal finished in the order named. Corvette finished eighth.
