Dying 'Tiger' Of France Plans His Own Funeral As End Slowly Nears

DEEP SLEEP CLOSES IN ON CLEMENCEAU

Wartime Premier's Iron Will Believed at Last Shaken

ASKS QUIET BURIAL

'I Abhor National Funerals,' He Whispers to Close Friend

PARIS, Nov. 23. (Saturday) (AP)—At 5:20 a. m. Clemenceau was still holding his own against death which had threatened for hours. No summons had been sent for his doctors up until that time.

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.

PARIS, Nov. 22. (US)—Georges Clemenceau, the dying "Tiger," tonight awoke from the sleep that is carrying him ever closer to death to issue instructions for his funeral.

The wartime premier of France made his wishes known to his intimate friend Emile Pons, the poet and composer, when the latter visited his bedside at 5 o'clock.

Whispers Instructions

Stirring from the sleep that has overtaken him, Clemenceau reached a trembling hand toward his friend and drawing Pons' head close to his lips whispered:

"I abhor national funerals. I won't have one and I depend on you to arrange for the immediate transportation of my body on the first train to St. Vincent. There I want to be buried with the utmost simplicity."

The old fighting spirit of "the father of victory" deserted him today and he remains but a sighing, weak old man with one desire—sleep, according to Doctor Degenhes, who visited Clemenceau at noon. Doctor Degenhes said:

"He is not the same man. He sleeps practically all the time, but his slumber is troubled by moaning and sighs. The iron will, which enabled him to work miracles in the past, is seriously shaken, and his jovial irony is gone. For me that is the worst sign. I cannot be optimistic."

Oxygen Administered

Oxygen was administered today in a desperate effort to prolong the patient's life. But, according to Doctor Gosset, urinaemia has set in and his condition is practically hopeless. Doctor Gosset visited Clemenceau this afternoon and the fact that he remained but five minutes started the false rumor that the "Tiger" had died.

Clemenceau fell into the sleep that has held him practically all day at midnight yesterday. It was the result of the morphine that was administered to relieve the violent abdominal pains accompanying this latest heart attack.

MERCURY HERE TAKES SLIDE

Temperature Below Freezing at 9 p. m.

The cold wave which held the Wichita area in its grip Thursday night and Friday morning failed to loosen its hold during the day Friday and the temperature rose only for a short while to the 39-degree mark, peak temperature for the day. The minimum was reached at 8 o'clock Friday morning when the thermometer registered 27 degrees.

By 3 o'clock Friday afternoon the mercury had fallen to 36 degrees and was steadily dropping. At 9 p. m. the recording thermometer at the Texas Electric Service company registered 31 degrees, giving promise of a hard freeze before morning.

During the 24-hour period ending at 5 p. m. Friday, the precipitation in Wichita Falls and vicinity had totaled .01 inch, the misty snow having had more the appearance of a heavy fog. The wind had died down considerably, averaging only three miles an hour for the day.

Conditions over this section of the state and in Southwestern Oklahoma were much the same as in Wichita Falls, according to reports of railroad dispatchers. Cloudy conditions with no high winds were reported along the M-K-T lines to the north. A temperature of 26 degrees was recorded during the evening at Woodward. The Fort Worth and Denver dispatcher reported clear and calm weather along the lines in the Panhandle. The temperatures west of this area were somewhat higher, the 40-degree mark reported at Abilene and the 41-degree mark at Stamford during the evening reported by the Wichita Valley dispatcher.

Bank Robbery Disturbs Calm at Stinnett

STINNETT, Texas, Nov. 22. (UP)—Unaccustomed peace and tranquillity had reigned in Stinnett and Borger for weeks, incidental to the ousting of all the city and county law enforcement officers in Borger and Hutchinson county, until this morning.

Piquant Oriental Miss May Not Be Kissed by Englishmen, Censors Rule

LONDON, Nov. 22. (US)—Anna May Wong, the almond eyed and piquant Chinese movie actress, may not be kissed publicly by an Englishman.

At least such an interpretation might be placed upon the latest decree of the British film censors. For the celluloid solons have just announced that John Longden, English actor playing opposite Ann May in her new talkie, "The Road to Dishonor," is forbidden to touch lips with the pretty young actress.

The censors do not cite Rudyard Kipling in their decision, but they do declare that Anna May is a Chinese and Longden an Englishman and that, therefore, a close-up of them kissing might prove offensive to some English sensitivities.

London in the film plays the part of a handsome Russian army officer madly infatuated with Anna May. He faces the ban somewhat philosophically.

"We have many love passages," he said, "but we are not allowed to kiss. I sit at her feet, sing to her, even stroke her hair and clasp her in my arms, but I may not kiss because I am English and she is Chinese.

"The ban on kissing Miss Anna May is stupid and inconsistent. It is a ridiculous anomaly."

Miss Wong had this to say:

"I think it far more romantic to lead up to the kiss and then to leave the climax to the imagination of the individual members of the audience. The kiss is much more beautiful as a vision than as a length of film.

"As for the ban itself, I see no reason why Chinese and English people should not kiss on the screen, even though I prefer not to. If two people are in love it does not matter what race they are."

GIRL'S PLEA WINS MERCY OF U. S. COURT

Cottle Farm Maiden to Go Free on Christmas Morning

MEYER SENTENCED

Former Postmaster of Archer City Given Year And Day

Tears filled the eyes of many men, and women's sobs were audible in all parts of the courtroom Friday afternoon while Judge William H. Atwell in U. S. district court listened to the quiet plea for clemency made by a 17-year-old girl who earlier in the week had pleaded guilty to a charge of altering money orders issued by the United States postoffice.

The dramatic effect of the incident was heightened considerably when Judge Atwell, himself noticeably affected by the case, passed sentence on the girl after a pause during which the room remained tensely silent. He sentenced the girl to 32 days in jail. Turning to her father, who had related to the court the struggle of a family of nine on a small farm in Cottle county, the judge said:

Brief Term

"You may come for your daughter on Christmas morning, the day on which her sentence will end."

In the remainder of the sentences passed Friday afternoon, Judge Atwell sentenced seven men and two women to terms in federal penal institutions and gave smaller penalties to two other men.

The most severe sentence was imposed upon Mrs. Lena Phillips who was given 18 months in the institution for women at Alverson, W. Va. Mrs. Phillips was convicted earlier in the week on a narcotic charge.

J. A. Meyer, former Archer City postmaster, who pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of embezzlement of about $1,080 in postoffice funds, was sentenced to a year and a day in Leavenworth penitentiary. The sentence was passed after a plea for clemency had been made by the pastor of the church of which Meyer is a member.

Wilbarger Man Sentenced

Ed Koenig, tenant farmer in Wilbarger county, was also sentenced to a year and a day in Leavenworth on a liquor charge. Petitions signed by a long list of friends and acquaintances testifying to the good record of Koenig and letters from other friends and the family doctor, in which it was pointed out that there was serious illness in the family, were read before the sentence was passed.

J. T. Alsup, indicted at the same time as Koenig, was fined $250 on a charge of possession of liquor and a still. Alsup had previously been found not guilty on a charge of manufacturing liquor and the fine was imposed with the explanation that although Alsup was not guilty in the same sense as Koenig, he had permitted the violations to take place without sufficient protest on his land.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (US)—An attempt to pin upon the senate part responsibility for the recent stock market break brought a head-on collision between Banker Fred J. Kent of New York, and members of the senate lobby committee today.

Armed Forces On Three Sides Menace Chinese Nationalists

Civil War Upsets Central Provinces as Soviets and Rebels Continue Merciless Attack

(By The Associated Press)

The Nationalist government of China, which grew out of the military movement of 1926, was contending today against three great challenges to its continuance. Armed forces were attacking it along the Manchurian-Siberian border in the far north; civil war raged in central provinces, and in Kwangtung province whence sprang the progenitors of the government, the city of Canton was threatened by a new combination of rebel forces.

Soviet Bombs Cities

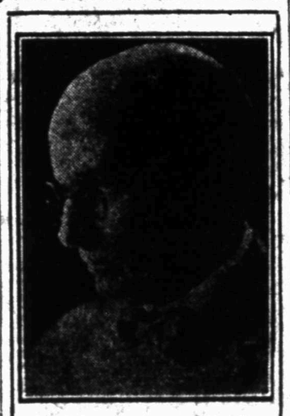

Within the past few days airplanes of the Soviet government have bombed cities along the Chinese Eastern railway at the border of Siberia, where Soviet artillery has destroyed stations of that railway for which Russia contends with China for possession and control. The governor of the great area of Manchuria, Chang Hsueh Liang, is reported seeking independent negotiations with the Soviet powers on the railway dispute, asserting the nationalist government is too occupied with civil war to aid Manchuria in conflict with Russia.

In Central China, the Kuominchun, translated "Peoples' Army," is at grips with the nationalist government troops in a civil war that threatens to spread from Hipeh and Honan provinces. In this area the forces engaged have been estimated from 150,000 to 250,000.

Far to the south, the Kwangsi province rebels are reported engaged in a concerted movement with the "Ironsides" regiment, which seceded from the government, and are advancing toward Canton in Kwangtun province.

Harassed by this new menace in South China, Chiang Kai Shek president of the nationalist government and general in chief of its forces, has withdrawn a portion of his troops which have been fighting the rebellious Kuominchun in Central China, in order to relieve the threatened Cantonese government.

Thus the Cantonese, who, led by Chiang Kai Shek, began a march northward more than three years ago and subjugated all China to create a nationalist government in which all elements should be unified, are back today fighting to maintain themselves in the province from which they sprang.

PROSPECTS FOR 1930 OUTLINED IN CONFERENCE

Construction Industry Heads Reveal Extent of 1930 Highway Work

RAILWAYS TO EXPAND

Leaders at Chicago Wire Hoover of Plans to Enlarge

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (UP)—Business has been given a running start for the winter and President Hoover prepared tonight to shift to the shoulders of industry itself the task of following through for a new wave of prosperity.

Reports of expanding operations in many lines reached the president today.

Road Building

Heads of the construction industry told him in conference that in 1930 there would be at least $1,100,000,000 in state and federal road building plus an estimated $1,100,000,000 by counties and municipalities. This total of $2,200,000,000 does not include public building construction and private operations which run the total well over the $3,000,000,000 maximum originally estimated.

Railroad heads meeting in Chicago telegraphed the president they would buy at least 2,500,000 tons of steel next year and that normal programs would be enlarged as much as possible.

"This program," the White House said, "will assure larger employment in the railway equipment industry next year and a very substantial addition to the railway demands for steel."

Supported by the more confident buying power released by industry's assurance of no wage cuts and Henry Ford's announcement he would increase pay for hundreds of workmen, these developments heightened anticipation in the business world of quick results.

Conference Called

Other developments of significance today:

The United States Chamber of Commerce called a general business conference here for Dec. 5 when business itself will shoulder the huge program of mobilizing industry, in furtherance of the president's program.

The federal reserve board approved a reduction to 4½ per cent of the rediscount rate of the Chicago federal reserve bank which will make money cheaper for Middle-Western industry.

Heads of public utilities announced they would meet in New York Tuesday to formulate development programs involving expenditure of millions in expansions of electric power plants, street railways and gas plants.

The president's law enforcement commission undertook a nation-wide survey of the effect of slums on crime which may lead to a big building program for congested city districts.

A jury decided in favor of the plaintiff.

The plaintiffs were represented by the law firm of George & Brannan and the government by Alex Mood, assistant United States district attorney, and Eric Eades, attorney for the veterans bureau. Industrial Development Urged In Address of Business School Head

Junior C. C. Told of Aid to Be Given New Companies; Large Towns Should Serve Area

"Balance in its economic conditions should be developed by the Southwest, and that process demands much more emphasis upon industrial development," declared Dr. William F. Hauhart, director of the school of commerce in Southern Methodist university, in an address before the weekly meeting of the Junior chamber of commerce at the Kemp hotel Friday noon.

"Some of the old guard will say that this is a farming country, but it must become an industrial country also. There is no such thing as farm relief. Prices are set by only one thing, and that is the law of supply and demand."

Commending the campaign waged by the Junior chamber of commerce this week for patronage of home establishments, Dr. Hauhart pointed out that permanent results from this effort will be justified only by local business houses continuing to keep what the people want, of desired quality, and at right prices.

Staging of trade trips into surrounding territory after conducting a buy-at-home campaign in the centrally located city does not contain the element of inconsistency which it first appears to have, the speaker said. Such solicitation from the larger city is justified by the absence of large department stores and distributing plants in smaller towns, he added.

Giving of free land to new industries, and providing assistance to such concerns in obtaining credit on a favorable basis, were pointed out as material ways in which the chamber of commerce can aid in increasing industrial development in the community.

Dr. Hauhart preceded his discussion of home patronage with an expression of greeting from the Dallas Chamber of Commerce to the local organization. It was announced that a special train will be run to Amarillo for the Coyote-Sandstorm football game on Thanksgiving day. R. O. Jonas, of the Wichita Falls Junior college, announced that Wayland college Jackrabbits will play the local Junior college team at Athletic park at 3 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 28, and asked attendance of all those present at the luncheon. Music for Friday's meeting was furnished by Frank Bird and the Bluebird orchestra of station KGKO.

considerable work to do on the tariff bill, one of the major issues of the special session, since two of the most controversial schedules, sugar and wool, remain. Five of the 14 schedules go over to the regular session.

The house adjourned shortly before 10 o'clock. The senate had to wait until the appointed hour of 10 o'clock tonight, assembling 15 minutes beforehand for the final tap of Vice President Curtis' gavel. The senate met today with the intention of working ahead on the tariff bill until time for adjournment, but quit after two hours and a half. Finding the wool schedule too controversial for easy solution, it recessed until tonight.

It was signiffcant that the final sessions in both houses brought forth debate upon extraneous subjects which have figured, prominently in the special sessions, the house listening to the definitions of "wild and tame jackasses" by Representative Howard, Democrat, Nebraska, while the senate heard a final attack on the capital's policy situation by Senator Cole Blease, Democrat, South Carolina.

J. Waddy Tate Sets Out To Take One to Hoover

DALLAS, Nov. 22. (UP)—Mayor J. Waddy Tate of Dallas, who avows he is the candidate and the officer of the plain people, left here today intent on carrying the "hot dog" into the White House.

More and better hot dogs in more places was Tate's principal platform plan when elected last spring. So today, he had a rubber hot dog in his pocket when he left for the capital which he says he will present to President Hoover.

Tate and a party of Dallas men are to confer with the president Monday morning with reference to placing Dallas on the new transcontinental air route, and Tate is counting on the hot dog to turn the trick.

Arkansas Man Tells of the Good He Gets From Taking Black-Draught

Mena, Ark.—"If there is a better laxative medicine made than Thedford's Black-Draught, I've never found it, and I tried a good many before I began taking Black-Draught about twenty years ago," writes Mr. H. F. Miller, who lives on Eleventh street, this city.

"I am satisfied with Black-Draught. When I feel all out of sorts, my feet seem to feel heavy, and I feel tired when I haven't worked; and I get a bad, slimy taste in my mouth, I just take two or three doses of Black-Draught and I feel better.

"I have found it good for indigestion, in fact for about everything it is recommended for. We just keep it in the house and use it for biliousness, headache and such complaints. I recommend Black-Draught to others."

This well-known medicine has been in use nearly 100 years, and its popularity is constantly increasing, as growing sales clearly prove.

Get the genuine—see that the yellow package bears the name "Thedford's." Price 25 cents.

JUDGE SWAYED BY FRIENDSHIP

Creager's Pal Won't Try Collier Libel Suits

HOUSTON, Nov. 22. (AP)—Because of friendship that has existed for years between himself and R. B. Creager of Brownsville, Republican national committeeman for Texas, Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson Jr. will not try two suits in which Creager is asking judgment for $1,000,000 damages against P. F. Collier and Son company, publishers of Colliers Weekly and Collier Distributing company of Texas.

The two suits, each asking $250,000 actual damages and $250,000 exemplary damages, resulting from articles published in the Collier magazine and written by Owen P. White, on alleged patronage conditions in Texas during the Creager administration as national committeeman, are scheduled tentatively to go to trial in the Brownsville division of the southern district of Texas in December.

The suits have been styled by attorneys in the case as the "high handed and hell bent" suit and the "job for jack" suit, the titles being taken from the headings of the articles on which the suits are based.

The suits made their debut in court here as result of a motion filed by V. W. Taylor of Brownsville, attorney for the defendant corporation to quash the writ of citation, which they contended was served on the wrong man. Taylor contended that F. E. Smalley of Dallas, upon whom citation was reported to have been made as representative of P. F. Collier and Son company, was not the representative and that the citation was made illegally by the marshal of the north district of Texas.

Leprosy Can Be Cured, University Dean Says

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22. (US)—Leprosy can be cured. It is not contagious, but comes from the soil.

These points were definitely declared in a paper published by Dean E. D. Merrill of the University of California college of agriculture.

"It is not to the credit of modern civilization," he declares, "that the unfortunate victims of this disease are treated as worse than social outcasts.

"Recent investigations clearly indicate that leprosy is really transmissable directly from one individual to another only to a limited degree, if at all. Segregation of lepers has not decreased the incidence of the disease which is caused by the contact of cuts or abrasions with contaminated soil."

Oklahoman Faces Embezzlement Trial

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 22 (UP)—W. H. Brown, assistant attorney general, will go to Tishomingo Monday to prosecute Dr. W. P. Cottrell on an embezzlement charge in connection with alleged embezzlement of school district funds at Milburn, Johnson county.

Cottrell was vice president of the First National bank of Milburn and Anna R. Campbell, daughter of the bank's president, J. C. Dodd, cashier of the bank, was treasurer of the school district.

When the bank got into financial difficulties in 1926 Dodd and Cottrell are alleged to have used $12,000 of the school district sinking fund to bolster up the bank.

Embezzlement charges were filed against all three and Dodd has been convicted and his punishment fixed at three years in the penitentiary and a $24,000 fine.

College Doesn't Expect More Student Suicides

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 22. (INS)—University of Missouri authorities do not look upon the death of Edwin A. Garrett, 20-year-old freshman student from Paragould, Ark., who committed suicide at his boarding house yesterday, with apprehension, they said today.

Garrett was the second student to commit suicide in less than a month. William Rogers shot himself to death Nov. 2 at a fraternity house here.

The proximity of the two tragedies was only a coincidence, Albert K. Heckel, dean of men, said today. "We have no apprehension that there will be further tragedies of this sort," Dean Heckel said.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 22. (UP)—Nick Damico, a war veteran, was not very strong. His physician had warned him to "take it easy," so Nick started a speakeasy, his attorney explained when Damico was arraigned here on a charge of sale and possession of liquor. Nick's place was raided, and Damico was forced to seek a job pending his hearing, it was stated.

"What are you doing now?" the court asked the defendant.

"Handling freight for a traction company," Damico said.

He was fined $100.

DRY VIOLATORS CROWD PRISONS

All Federal Pens Increase In Population

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (US)—Violators of the Volstead act and the anti-narcotic laws constituted nearly half of the federal prison population at the close of the past fiscal year, the department of justice announced today.

At that time there were 12,333 federal prisoners in federal prisons, reformatories and state institutions, not including from 6,000 to 9,000 part-time prisoners in city and county jails.

Of these, 3,389 were serving for violation of the prohibition laws and 2,234 for violation of the anti-narcotics law, while 3,641 had served prison sentences before. Nearly 7 per cent or 858, could neither read nor write.

The population of all the principal federal prisons increased during the year.

The population of the Atlanta penitentiary increased from 3,323 to 3773; Leavenworth, from 3,664 to 3,733; McNeil Island, from 923 to 951, and the Alderson prison for women, from 174 to 424.

EVERYBODY'S PARTNER

Daily Editorial

TRADE, industry and finance must share with agriculture in sustaining prosperity.

The most important job that America has on its hands, today, is to make agriculture play its significant part.

When the land does not maintain adequate yields at profitable prices, depression becomes epidemic.

First, the small town merchant curtails his orders. Whereupon, the firms that supply him restrict output. Then city stores sell less goods, because of diminished jobbing and factory payrolls. And immediately, bank deposits shrink and credits freeze.

All commerce contracts as money tightens. Building operations are halted. Transportation conserves revenues and delays improvement.

Equipment and rail orders are canceled. The panicky circle widens. Mining languishes. Fewer cars and tires are sold. There's default in installment payments.

The delinquent tax list grows—county, state and federal retrenchments follow.

Advertising budgets are revised. Suburban development is sidetracked. Road work ceases. Bonds drop; stocks fall off; directors pass the dividend. And presidents of mail order concerns dig down in their jeans to tide the corporation over the crisis.

When the farmer is up against it, all classes automatically join the Trouble club. As soon as hard times itch the rural districts, the whole body-economic scratches.

Before Oklahoma plains were cultivated and planted with lusher vegetation, vast stretches of buffalo grass there, stored up sun rays, which gradually fried the air until it went crazy with heat and raged in holocausting fury in the next neighbor's yard.

Just so, adverse seasons and bad crop-breaks generate forces that disrupt commerce, sweep from store aisle to blast furnace, to mill settlement, and drive capital to the cyclone cellar.

There isn't an income, a wage or a salary in these United States but what's in silent partnership with the grain field, the range and the barnyard.

And it won't be a steadily paying partnership until it's an active one.

NO civilization was ever so efficient as ours. Yet, it is an efficiency that can't possibly reach and hold peak levels while the originating units of wealth are loosely related.

Machinery, and specifically, the delicate machinery of production, won't run smoothly and meet schedules if its cogs are not intermeshed.

The farmer must be adjusted more closely to national transmission. He isn't functioning at par, and the keenest cost and marketing intelligence at command is needed to lead him from confusion to method.

Hazy legislation and the haphazard remedies in political chests shan't cure the surplus-ache or regulate high market pressure.

The doctors who so signally prescribed for industrial indigestion; the experts who trained steel barons and merchant princes and woolen kings not to bite off more than they can chew, are best qualified to diagnose the disordered system of agriculture and correct any fundamental weakness.

Self-protection urges Wall street to devise more stable and mobile plans for credits—to reduce loan risks and bring farm paper within the interest average of trade acceptances.

The shrewdness that eliminated so many handling costs and roundabouts of distribution through grocery and baking combines, can crack two chances with one stone, and effect still greater economies by rubbing brains with the raiser of merchandise.

The farmer is not a special ward of government, but of business.

He doesn't need legislative crutches so much as he requires access to information and reasonable cooperation.

China is a place where Moran and Mack would be generals in the army.

Mothers of New York debutantes insist that dances shall end at 3 a. m. But what's a girl to do between then and bedtime?

An author married a rich widow the other day. One good way to achieve success at the writing game.

The Law's Worst Enemy

A MIDDLE WESTERN NEWSPAPER discovered that the criminal courts of the province of Ontario are far more efficient than the criminal courts south of the border, and it sent a reporter over the boundary to find out why. The reporter came back with a long list of observations; but nothing that he said was much more significant than one little remark:

"You don't find men in Ontario bragging, 'I've gotta drag.'"

The "drag" is, in some ways, the curse of American life. To have somt sort of extra-legal influence with the powers that be, whereby one can get favors that less fortunate folk cannot have—well, isn't that what we all want?"

As far as most of us are concerned, of course, it isn't especially harmful. The most we want is a friend at police court who will fix our parking tickets for us, or a connection in the county treasurer's office who will get our new auto licenses for us each year in such a way that we won't have to stand in line with the rest. Being ordinarily law-abiding, that's about as far as our desires for a "drag" carry us.

But our wish for that sort of influence, and our readiness to use it when we get it, are only symptoms of one of the chief defects of our system of catching and prosecuting criminals.

We take it for granted that the friend of a policeman, the friend of an influential city clerk or the friend of a prosecutor can get minor favors. We take it for granted that any man in public office will extend such favors to his friends. A police sergeant who refused to cancel a parking ticket for an intimate friend would quickly become known as a grouch, a crab and a prig.

But this attitude of ours breeds an atmosphere that is fatal to efficient government and an even-handed administration of justice.

It works in little things—and it works in big things, too.

We get our parking tickets fixed—and some other man, who happens to have a friend in the right place, escapes punishment for a major crime.

We pull wires to save ourselves trouble in connection with getting our automobile licenses—and some other man, richf and powerful, uses the same kind of friendship with a more important official to cheat the government out of thousands of dollars.

During the administration of President Grant, Washington was the center of terrific scandals. The treasury was looted with a free hand. High government officials were involved. And the defenders of Grant, insisting that he was personally honest, explain that he could not refuse favors to his friends.

Too many people, in other words, "had a drag."

The thing holds good all along the line. It is the sort of thing that makes our governmental organizations inefficient and our courts helpless.

But, on the Other Hand—

GOVERNOR DAN MOODY'S sage observation Wednesday, with reference to the lynching of Marshall Ratliff at Eastland, that "it is unfortunate when people take the law into their own hands" cannot fail to conjure up in the minds of average readers rather grotesque visions of justice as meted out recently in this state through the properly constituted channels.

In addition to regretting "this added violation of the law," in which he will be joined by every sane citizen, the governor doubtless regrets the unfavorable publicity which nation-wide reports of the lynching may give this state. Sermons, editorials, orations and courtroom pleas probably will deplore the mutilation of Texas' civic escutcheon by reversion to so-called mob law.

Maintenance of "law and order" has for its object the preservation of individual safety and liberty, and correlatively, the punishment of any who endanger those supposedly inalienable rights. In its broadest interpretation, perversion of justice may be laid sometimes at the doors of our jury rooms quite as properly as upon the shoulders of self-appointed, unimpaneled jurymen who work outside the law. Citizens of the nation will not concentrate all their attention on the Ratliff case, in criticizing Texas, for it has competition in some of the cases heard before constituted authorities.

Welcome News

WICHITA FALLS hears with approval the Hoover administration's decision to speed up the public building program. The quicker Wichita Falls gets a new federal building the quicker will public inconveniences be obviated.

Not a session of the federal courts is held here that the state courts and the county are not discommoded and the federal court itself does not have the conveniences that such a court ought to have.

If the ordinary procedure is followed it is likely to be some years before Wichita Falls has a new federal building. It will be a tribute to efficiency if the Hoover administration is successful in working out a plan whereby needed federal buildings and improvements in all parts of the land are speeded to completion.

And there is hardly anything that could have better psychological effect on business than to see the government step out of the rut of routine in such a matter.

On Broadway

The Broker to His Love

You were once a sound investment,
Soothing to the passing view.
I, who never knew what rest meant,
Found it when I first met you.

You were very far from common;
Truth to tell, you were preferred—
Cutest kid that walked a Pom on Park or Riverside or Third.

But the years have left their traces,
Gone the rosy hue of youth.
You know what the Broadway pace is—
Fast as little Albie Booth.

When I met you, you were twenty,
Now when stocks have gone to hell,
You've reached forty—that is plenty—
Lady dear, I'm going to sell!
—DOHN WAHN.

Haw!

Heywood Broun, the essayist, was one of the better talkers of the Columbia Jester Alumni gathering the other evening. He discussed Senator Brookhart's dry activities, among other things.

"The senator," asserted Broun, "says that he never tasted liquor in his life, but that he knows liquor when he smells it. At her trial Texas Guinan contended that she never knew that they sold liquor in her place because she never touched it in her life, and that she couldn't tell it by smelling it.

"Personally, I don't believe that Senator Brookhart smells any better than Miss Guinan."

Gosh, Yes!

Percy Crosby's ambition in life, he says, is to visit Egypt some day just to talk to "one of those Wise Men—and trip him up."

Hehehah

During a rehearsal of "Christopher Rand" last week the cast was instructed to meet at Bloomingdale's for wardrobe fittings. "It is always so crowded at that store, we'll lose each other," said an actor; "let's meet at a spot where we can be certain there won't be many people.

"Very well," suggested Eden Gray, "let's all meet in the book department."

Fact

Some time ago Otto H. Kahn hurled a dinner at his handsome manse in honor of George Gershwin, who had just signed to do the score for Ziegfeld's "Show Girl." Mr. Kahn said of his honored guest: "We haven't come here tonight to toast a genius, because George Gershwin isn't a genius. To be a genius Mr. Gershwin first must suffer!"

"Hmmmmm," hmmmmmd a flip-cracker to his table-neighbor, "he's going to work for Ziegfeld—he'll suffer."

Via Enough Rope

In youth, it was a way I had
To do my best to please,
And change, with every passing lad,
To suit his theories.

But now I know the things I know,
And do the things I do;
And if you do not like me so,
To hell, my love, with you!
—DOROTHY PARKER.

Imagine

For three years Dorothy Parker wore out her heels trying to peddle a short story to the local publishers. One day, as a matter of fact, after being turned down by almost all of the book-builders, a friend said: "Why don't you go home and call it a day?"

"I must see another publisher first. I just want to hear one more 'No'," Miss Parker said.

However, the American Mercury also rejected it and The Bookman bought it for $75 (about five thousand words, too); but The Bookman let it collect a mess of dust before it was finally published.

Then Seward Collins, the editor, regretted its publication. "Six subscribers," he yelled one day to Dorothy, "have cancelled their subscriptions because of it!"

Dorothy went to Yurrup to forget it all.

The troublesome story which went begging for printer's ink for over three years and which eventually brought her $75 was "Big Blonde," which won the first O. Henry Memorial Prize last week!

Add Lucky Break

Her name is Doris Robbins. Her specialty is blues-shooing with torch chunes. She shelved her home town, Chicago, about six weeks ago to startle New York, and particularly the Main Stem. But Broadway, it appears, is most indifferent to little girls who want to click without youknowhat.

And so Doris Robbins pounded the pavements trying to get the local impresarios interested. A night club, however, decided she was capable and engaged her. Then Ruth Etting, the queen of all torch-warblers, quit Mr. Ziegfeld's "Whoopee" and the Ziegfeld scouts pounced on Miss Robbins to fill the vacated role in Eddie Cantor's starring vehicle.

In fewer words, Doris Robbins, who only a few weeks ago came to New York to show her Chicago friends (and probably her enemies) that she could succeed on Broadday, will shortly return to her home town as a principal in a Ziegfeld production!

Capsule Criticism

Added to our Crisp Cracks From Critical Cusses department is Barney Dougall's who summed up a new movie in this manner: "It is, frankly, the worst picture I've ever cinema life."

And They Hang Pictures

'EASY' The Love Story of a Modern Girl

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XLVI

At one minute before 3 o'clock that afternoon Ann Marie walked into the white marble coolness of Mr. Lawler's bank.

The first person she saw was Johnny.

He was standing in the middle of the floor, talking to old Mrs. Henderson who had the reputation of being the richest woman in town.

He did not see Ann Marie until she brushed against him. "I came to see you," she said in a half-whisper as she passed him.

She had barely reached his big mahogany desk in the corner before he was beside her.

"You came to see me? Well, I'll be jiggered!" he said, a broad bright smile lighting up his face.

He pulled up a chair for her and they both sad down . . . . This was the old Johnny of the pre-Alice days who sat before her, grinning at her in his friendly boyish way.

"Well, this is certainly fine! To have you come dropping in the way you used to!" he told her. "We were pretty good friends once upon a time, weren't we, Ann Marie. Well, what did you think of Alice and Neal eloping? That was one on us, wasn't it?"

He laughed as if it were a great joke.

Ann Marie smiled half-heartedly. "Yes, that was one on us, Johnny," she said. "It was one on me, at any rate . . . . I haven't had much time to think it over, though, or even to cry about it. I've been so woried about something else. Johnny, did you ever hear about 'a friend in need'?"

"Sure—sure," said Johnny. "'A friend in need is a friend indeed.' Isn't that it?"

"That's it," she answered. "And, Johnny, that's what I want you to be today to me, if you can."

The bank was almost empty now, and the door-man was locking the front door. Sam, the colored man who had worked there for years, was pulling down the green blinds across the big front windows.

"I want you to do me a favor," said Ann Marie. "I want to know if I can borrow a couple of thousand dollars from this bank . . . . Do you think you could arrange it with your father?"

Johnny seemed to be thinking this over for a long moment. Then he shook his head.

"Well, no, I honestly don't think I could get the Old Man to lend you anything," he said at last. "You see, your dad is up to his neck in debts here—and my Old Man is sore as a pup at your family. He has been ever since Howdy gave Florence the run-around—and then when Alice started fooling around with Neal and we split up! Well, that was the finish. No, I don't believe anybody named Macy could get a loan at this bank, Ann Marie!"

He took out his watch and began to play with it . . . . Ann Marie looked at it thoughtfully. It was a thin platinum watch, fastened to a slender platinum chain.

And on one of Johnny's fingers was a massive ring of smooth platinum set with a big diamond.

"He has more than $2,000 in his hands right this minute," thought Ann Marie, "enough to keep Stella from knowing all about Howdy and Leota Ingram—enough to keep us all from being disgraced—and robbed.

For that was what Leota's threatened suit really was. Robbery and blackmail . . . . And Ann Marie knew it.

"I'll tell you what!" Johnny said suddenly, struck by a thought that made him smile contentedly to himself. "Maybe I could fix you up with a loan—with some of my own money. What do you say about getting into my car and taking a drive somewhere to talk it over?"

Simonds' road house was deserted at this time of the afternoon.

There was not a soul in sight when Johnny drove his big roadster between the gates of the courtyard and stopped in front of the steps that led to the screened porch.

And in the dining room, where once upon a time Neal Forsythe had stolen a German silver coffee pot for the girl of his dreams, there was only one waiter on duty.

He was standing at the window with his back to the room when Ann Marie and Johnny came in. He turned, and Ann Marie recognized him. He was the same old white haired waiter from whom Neal had taken that little silver pot on that long-ago afternoon!

"I hope and pray he won't know me!" she thought as she sat down opposite Johnny at a little table near the door.

"Ice and ginger-ale," said Johnny, giving his order. "Lemonade for the lady."

He grinned at her cheerfully when the waiter had gone.

"I still remember that you don't drink, don't I?" he asked. "You were my girl a long time, weren't you, Ann Marie?"

He leaned across the table and touched her folded hands with one of his.

"Well, now, let's get down to business," he said. "You want me to lend you a couple of thousand dollars—and I think I can."

Ann Marie gave a long keen sigh. . . . She felt as if someone had lifted a lead weight from her heart. A weight that had been there ever since Leota sat down in the hammock couch on the porch last night.

"Johnny," she said, "I don't know how to say 'thanks' to you. I never would have dared to ask you to do this. . . . I'm borrowing it for the whole family, and I'll see that you are paid something every week—"

"Wait a minute! I want to talk to you first—before we settle all this." Johnny broke in with a laugh.

Then suddenly he sobered. The smile went out of his eyes and they were very grave as he held Ann Marie's eyes with them. Once more his hands went out and covered hers where they lay clasped at the edge of the table.

"You don't want this money for Neal and Alice, do you?" he asked. "You folks aren't trying to set them up in housekeeping or anything like that, are you? Because you know, you can't afford it. And they wouldn't appreciate it, anyway. At least, Neal wouldn't. His mother has been supporting him for years up there in New York—"

"Oh, no, no! Let's not even talk about Neal," said Ann Marie, and she began to tell him her story. The story of Leota and Howdy—of Leota herself—of Leota and Neal Forsythe.

"And she just can't start anything with Howdy now," she wound it up, "because of Stella. Stella isn't well—and the shock of all this might kill her. It wouldn't do her any good, at any rate. And that's why I've just got to have this money. See?"

He said he did see.

"And I think I see something else pretty clear, Ann Marie," she added. "You wouldn't have come to me at this time if you hadn't liked me pretty well, would you? You do like me, don't you, Ann Marie?"

"Of course I do!" She could say that with perfect honesty. She always had liked Johnny Lawler . . . But she never had loved him, and she didn't love him now.

"You care a lot more for me than you think you do," he said to her, pressing her hands as they lay under his on the table. "And I've always loved you, Ann Marie. I never would have looked at Alice if you'd treated me decently."

Ann Marie had nothing to say in answer. She was completely flabber-gasted. . . . All she could do was to sit and look at him.

"And that's why I'm willing to lend you the money," Johnny's voice swept on. The voice of the triumphant male. "If you're in trouble it's my trouble, too. . . . If your family is going to be kept out of disgrace, I'm glad it's my money that's keeping them out of it. Because your family is going to be my family some day! Ann Marie, you know you care for me. . . . You've proved it today."

Ann Marie went on looking at him, spell-bound.

"If I'd married Alice I never would have been happy with her," he said, "because I'd have wanted you every time I looked at you. And you'd never have been happy with Neal—"

"No. That's true!" she had found her voice at last. "Because I wasn't happy when I was in New York, living right next door to him! I was the most unhappy person in the world. But listen to me a minute, Johnny. You've misunderstood me."

She got up from the table and put her hands behind her back.

"I came to you today to borrow the bank's money, not yours," she said clearly. "You refused me the bank's money and you offered me yours. But I can't take it except as a business proposition. . . . Johnny, you know I'm not in love with you—I think you're fine and I like you but—that's all!"

He sat silent, taking that in, for a long time.

"Won't you lend me that money—just as you'd lend it to a man—and let me pay you back?" she asked.

He thought that over for two or three minutes.

"No," he said finally, "I won't. I'd do anything for my girl—but I'm not handing out any favors to the Macy family today or any other day, thanks!"

She couldn't believe that he had said that at first.

"You mean that you'd lend me the money if I were in love with you?" she asked. "And you won't lend it to me because I'm not in love with you? Is that it?"

"You said it," replied Johnny.

Ann Marie shook her head.

"I wouldn't have believed anyone could be so hard," she said.

She came back to town on a bus, alone.

"I'd rather walk than ride with you today, Johnny," she told him bluntly, when they came out of the inn. "I wouldn't get into your car if it were the chariot of the sun."

It was half past six when she turned into Pleasant street. And the first thing she saw as she rounded the corner was her own car standing in front of the house . . . the honeymoon car of Alice and Neal.

They had come back!

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SOCIETY NEWS

(As it may develop if the tendency to indorse nationally advertised products increases).

Colonel and Mrs. P. Stuyvesant Marleydew of Park avenue gave an opera party last evening to a party of 12. Mrs. Marleydew was the former Millicent Gwish, who will be remembered for her lovely facial cream indorsements.

PHILLIPS

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Van Martingale Jr., have opened their new Fifth avenue mansion and were hosts yesterday to four dozen photographers and a merry group of 80 advertising men. After tea, photographs were taken of the furnishings. Mr. and Mrs. Van Martingale cleared expenses last season allowing the use of their names in the furniture advertisements.

Mrs. T. Crevy Tottingham, the former Gladys Ocelot, daughter of General T. Withers Ocelot, copper magnate, indorsed a nationally famed bed Tuesday. She was photographed in it for a full-page rotogravure section advertisement in two tones.

Lady Mullet-Mullet, who was before her marriage in London last season, Bernice Waddingham of the De Witt Waddingham branch, announces that she has withdrawn her approval of the Zimmett box-mattress and springs, due to the fact the advertising company's check was late arriving. She is considering a handsome offer to say a word for a well known ice box.

Mrs. Emporia X. K. Abercrombie's four daughters, Luella, Zella, Dorothy and Yvonne, are home from Miss Geezle's school and will fill in the vacation singing the praises of an imported perfume. The Abercrombie girls are coming on famously as indorsers.

The H. Travis Skiffingtons have separated, according to gossip in the Smart Set. The trouble is said to be due to a difference in advertising policies. Mrs. Skiffingtotn, the former Minnie Henchy, favored coming out publicly for a well known brand of mineral water, while Mr. Skiffington believed more money could be made indorsing a depilatory, hair-oil or console radio.

Another Margin Account

It is now reported that the rich Long Island man who sold his dog to get food and fuel the other day has had to cancel the transaction. He had the dog only on margin.

This is Hoover Huddle Week.

The Prince of Wales, it develops, knits scarfs. Well, it is certainly to be hoped that word of this doesn't reach the lions and tigers before his next African hunt.

The Graphic Traffic Cop

It happened in New Haven Saturday. A raccoon-coated football fan, accompanied by a pretty girl, leaned out of his coupe and asked one of the extra policemen sworn in for the football rush. "How do I get to the bowl?"

The cop didn't appear any too clear about it himself. "Take the next left," he finally said, "and drive straight out to hell and gone!"

The latest novelty at three big football games, according to Bill Foran, is a white bottle made in the shape of a pint milk bottle and filled with rye or scotch. You'd never suspect the dear girls weren't quaffing baby food.

Elmer Twitchell's verdict on long skirts is in. He's against them. "In short skirts their legs looked pretty bad," he says, "but without legs they look just awful."

Federation Day Observed At Joint Club Luncheon

Federation day was observed by the members of Junior Travel and Travel clubs who met in a joint luncheon at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Friday at noon.

Yellow chrysanthemums were used as table decorations and the individual place cards were yellow chrysanthemums.

No program was observed as this date is set aside to hear the delegate's report from the state federation conference. Mrs. Guy Rogers, who represented the Travel club in the recent meeting at Mineral Wells, gave what is said to be one of the most outstanding reports ever brought back from such a conference.

Mrs. John T. Bonner was a member of the club in Waco that organized the Texas State Federation of clubs at Mother Rotan's home. Her mother and Mrs. Rotan were very intimate friends. Mrs. Bonner has in her possession, programs of the early federation conferences. These facts were brought out as of particular interest on federation day.

Covers were laid for Mesdames J. W. Akin, John T. Bonner, C. H. Clark, John Caldwell, W. W. Cook, E. T. Duff, Arch Dawson, W. W. Fraser, Henry C. Fulcher, T. A. PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Waiting on the corner of Eleventh and Brook for a bus that must have been frost bitten, we saw that in 17 of about 50 cars passing us, women were chewing gum. The chewing gum business must be good.

◆ ◆ ◆

An open Ford of ancient date went by hitting on about two cylinders. Three negro girls seemed not to mind the biting cold, but a miserable little pup, with his head hanging out, wailed with every jump of the car.

◆ ◆ ◆

Motorcycle delivery boys have put up their glass windshields—a definite sign of winter.

◆ ◆ ◆

Another definite sign is the drooping of chrysanthemums and periwinkle. They are supposed to brave the cold as long as anything in the way of flowers; yet on our back fence, one red rose has climbed from out the mass of tangled limbs and still holds its head high.

◆ ◆ ◆

It is hard to realize that it is almost Christmas—not just almost Thanksgiving.

◆ ◆ ◆

Almost time for men to begin wishing they could go to sleep and sleep through Christmas, that's generally the older men.

◆ ◆ ◆

Almost time for people to begin going in debt to exchange presents with other people because it is a custom.

◆ ◆ ◆

Every store in the city that caters to Christmas trade—and few do not—is beginning to advertise Christmas bargains.

So much of the Christmas spirit is lost in bargaining. So much is lost in feeling that one must return a gift that was given just for love.

We believe in celebrating the day; but not in going beyond one's strength and resources to do so.

The only measure for Christmas giving should be love.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. (US)—Probably the thing America has the very most of, is pretty women. The streets are full of them, they pour in and out of shops and factories, and everywhere you look you see them. In New York often you see a girl and a man standing in the corner of a building or doorway some place the man listening and the girl crying. And these weeping ones are beautiful to look at. And then you see a positively plain woman with her escorts having dinner, and all of them paying her devoted attention.

It has come to the point where women have to have something besides looks to win in a world where there are more women than men. There is a class of men who marry someone they can dress up and show off, but the majority of them have learned that for what seems at the outset, to be a lifelong contract, needs someone with charm and sense and sex appeal. Beautiful women are inclined to take off too much. Sex appeal is created by putting clothes on.

A woman wrote me the other day that too much attention is paid to sex appeal by the men. That "after the mating twenties" people should forget S. A. And then she tells me her husband is interested in other women. She is, she says, distinctly bored with him "and his bromides." He never says anything interesting. Don't you sort of wonder what attracted her in the first place? He must have been as much of a bromide then.

A wife who, when her husband wants to kiss her, and talk lovingly, corrects his English or his manners and tells him his actions belong to the "mating twenties" deserves what she gets when he walks out on her. Marriage isn't just a contract made by a man to pay a woman's bills the rest of her life. If he is of a loving nature, she ought to know that he will find somebody who will listen to him, too. They always do!

The woman with personality can fold up a beauty and drop her into a neaunt machine, and nobody will miss her. Personality invariably includes sex appeal, but many beauties haven't any of it. Yet that's what attracts husbands and suitors.

For some unknown reason (unknown to me) men don't take beauty as seriously as they might. They think it's something "for to admire and for to see," and then they skip off to the altar with somebody plain who has personality.

Perhaps the chief reason why beauties are left waiting at the church while the others hop over the altar rail, is that beautiful women are too often only interested in how they look, what they will wear and how many they can knock dead. A plain girl has to be a good listener, amuse her man, be alert, do something besides just sit, and they are never cocksure, like the beauties.

(If I'm wrong, write me.)

Friday Literary Club Studies Modern Drama

Members of the Friday Literary club answered roll call with "Modern Dramas" when Mrs. W. A. McCarty was hostess at her home on Monroe street Friday afternoon.

Tax statements have been mailed to about 16,000 resident and non-resident property owners in Wichita county and only about 4,500 of the statements remain to be posted, according to Guy C. Raley, county tax collector. Preparations for the mailing of the statements have required the better part of the last several weeks. Stamps for the envelopes cost approximately, $330, Mr. Raley said.

Engagement Ring Not Contract Of Iron, Says D. Dix

How Binding Is an Engagement Ring?—Should a Girl of 24 Let Her Parents Decide Her Career? Why No Woman Can Do Exactly As She Pleases.

Dear Miss Dix—Please explain what an engagement ring means and should mean in this modern age. If a boy is in love with a girl and she is in love with him, hasn't he the right to ask her not to go out with other men?—X.

Answer—An engagement ring is just the outward and visible sign that a man and woman are betrothed. And it is usually not given until the wedding day is in sight. However, this is a matter of individual taste and expediency, and a girl may flaunt her engagement ring in the faces of her friends for a few weeks before she marries, or she may find consolation in it for years while she waits for her lover to be able to marry her.

The ethics of an engagement have never been settled either by custom or law. Every now and then some woman sues a man for breach of promise when he refuses to fulfill his engagement to marry her, and sometimes she gets heart balm, but oftener she does not. Some nationalities consider a betrothal almost as binding as a marriage. Others consider it to be merely an option that a man and woman take out on each other, and that they can take up or let go at pleasure, if they happen to change their minds and decide that the investment doesn't look so good to them after further investigation and mature reflection.

It seems to me that the modern engagement should be a gentleman's agreement rather than an ironbound contract, owing to the fact that economic conditions generally make it a long-drawn-out affair in which much can happen to make a young couple regret the rash bargain they have entered into.

Of course, the lack of money does not keep a boy and girl from falling in love, nor from telling of their love, and it is natural, that they should desire to feel that they have some hold upon each other, but if they are wise they make this tie a silken bond that they can unloose at pleasure, instead of a steel fetter that they cannot break without causing pain to themselves and anguish to another.

In a word, a couple who cannot afford to marry for many years should merely have an understanding that when the time does come when they can marry that they will do so if they still love each other and want to marry, instead of being bound by an obligation to marry that they feel in honor bound to carry out, no matter how much they have lost of their taste for each other, nor how unalluring the prospect of spending their lives together seems to them.

A long engagement works a great hardship on both the man and woman, because it puts them in an unnatural position in which they are neither bound nor free, in which they have neither the privileges of the husband and wife, nor the liberty of the bachelor or spinster. They are supposed to be true to each other, yet have none of that community of interest that draws a man and woman together. It is a situation more full of boredom, of suspicion, of jealousy, of the hope deferred that maketh the heart sick, than any other on earth, and it is no wonder it gets on their nerves, and that the victims of a long-drawn-out engagement are always quarreling and always making up.

Worse still is their fate where the man goes off to seek his fortune and the woman stays at home to wait for him. Almost invariably the man changes in his new environment and finds his engagement a ball and chain about his feet, but he feels compelled to go back and marry the girl who has missed her chances of marrying some other man because she had bound herself to him.

So, if I were you, son, I wouldn't invest any money in an engagement ring until I was about ready to put a wedding ring on a girl's finger. And I wouldn't ask her to give up every other man for me. I wouldn't want to feel that I had done her out of all of her other chances, and that I had to make good by marrying her two—or three—or five years hence if I had outgrown her, and she wasn't at all the sort of a wife that I wanted then—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—What is the duty of an only daughter? Is it to stay with her parents, or should her future be her chief lookout? I am offered the chance of my life to gratify my ambition and do the work I have fitted myself to do, but if I embrace this opportunity I will have to leave home, and my parents object to my doing this. My father is a failure. He and mother have absolutely no desire to get ahead and they see no reason why I should not be satisfied with a small job. They insist that they know what is best for me in everything, but that is rather rubbing in the loving parent propaganda when you are 24. What shall I do?

—ONE OF YOUR READERS.

Answer—Go. Don't hesitate to get up and follow where fortune beckons you. Opportunity has a way of passing us by if we don't respond promptly when she knocks at our door the first time.

I believe in children doing their duty by their parents, and treating them with all due affection and consideration, but parents have no right to ask their children to sacrifice their lives for them, nor to give up their careers for their whims.

You are young. You have your life still before you. They are old. Their fates are sealed. You probably have years ahead in which to achieve things. Their day's work is over. Just looking at it from any standpoint, it isn't fair, or just, that you should give up all that you may do and have just for the sake of giving them the pleasure of your company.

I have known so many cases in which fathers and mothers have blighted the lives of their children by their selfishness. They didn't want to be separated from Mary or John. They didn't want to leave the old house in which they had lived so long. They were afraid of new things.

They had narrow and provincial views that they wanted to force on their children, and so they kept John and Mary tied down at home, or they prevented John and Mary from marrying the man and woman they loved, or kept them from following the career they wanted to, and John and Mary's lives were ruined by doing what they thought was their duty to their parents.

And, nine times out of 10, the parents would have been far better off themselves if John and Mary had refused to make the sacrifice, and had gone on and lived their own lives and been happy and prosperous and better able to take care of father and mother than they were with their own lives failures.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl 19 years old and I know a good deal of both moral and immoral life. Your articles shock me with some of your old-fashioned ideas. Why should not a woman do as she pleases? Tell me where there is a man with so spotless a past that he dare question any manner of life his wife or sweetheart may have lived? I believe that so long as a girl keeps herself from being common, untidy, boring, she has the right to her own mind and actions. One more question, please. Why does a woman have to consider whether a man will or will not marry her? Certainly the day is past when a girl's only thought is of marrying. Why, then, must she consider her every move in fear that no man will marry her? I would rather go through life alone than with a man who was narrow enough to see sin in those lights.

—WHY.

Answer—My dear young lady, I am sorry you consider my ideas old-fashioned, but the Ten Commandments are also old-fashioned. So is nature. So are the rules of conduct that civilization has built up through thousands of years of experimenting in the relationship of men and women.

There are about a million good reasons why a woman can't do as she pleases. Nature supplies about 999,999 of them, and there is no good in arguing with nature because it always has the last word and renders the decision from which there is no appeal. The other reason is that dissipation tells on a woman more than it does on a man, and that the woman who goes the pace goes to the dogs before he does. Look at any bleareyed, hard-faced old woman rounder and you have the answer to why women can't do as they please unless they please to be good.

Of course, a man may have no more right to demand a woman with a spotless past than she has to demand a Joseph as a husband. The only trouble is that they do, and if you marry I fear you will have to take a man who is "narrow" on that subject. Mighty few men are broad and liberal in their views when it comes to their own mates.

Of course, girls don't have to consider whether a man will marry them or not, only it just happens that practically every girl in the world wants to get married, and this is the one subject that she does spend her time considering.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Jury Made Wrong Reply, Prosecutor Will Claim

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Nov. 22. (AP)—The Corpus Christi city attorney is expected to claim a jury in a recent suit answered "yes" to a series of lengthy questions when the opposite answer was intended.

The suit resulted from an effort by property owners to keep the city from levying a tax to widen and pave Staples street. Property owners contended the assessment would be more than the increase in value. Several persons protested and in each case the jury was asked whether the amount assessed by the city was greater than the proper value would increase.

The question was so long and involved the jury answered "yes" although it believed "no." City Attorney J. M. Taylor contends. He said he would file a motion for a new trial and ask that the verdict be set aside.

SOUR STOMACHS MADE SWEET

Antiseptic Remedy Corrects Fermented Condition

If you cannot eat what you like, if you have to avoid certain foods because they disagree with you, your trouble is no doubt due to fermentation (souring of food)—a condition that can be quickly corrected if proper methods are used.

The use of soda, magnesia, dyspepsia tablets, laxatives and common patent medicines, require continual dosing and, at best, can furnish only temporary relief.

GORDON'S, a stomach and bowel antiseptic, gives lasting benefit. It stops fermentation promptly, sweetens the stomach, drives out the acids and poisons, soothes and heals the membrane lining. The very first dose will relieve sour stomach, indigestion, gas, bloating, heartburn, dissolve the excess acid.

If you have stomach trouble now, or when food disagrees, don't take chances with temporary measures. Get GORDON'S from druggist at once. It costs no more than ordinary remedies—a large 8-ounce bottle for $1.50—less than three cents a dose.—Adv.

The Round-Up

Harvard-Yale — At Boston. Any one who happens to be in a guessing mood is entitled to take a running jump and reach in the air for a winning selection in this next Harvard-Yale conclave. As far as past performances for the season go, Yale lays over Harvard after the manner of a circus tent hoisted above the center ring. Dartmouth beat Harvard 34 to 7 and Yale beat Dartmouth 16 to 12. Harvard had a desperate time tieing up the Army and Yale beat the Army 21 to 13. Harvard failed to win a game from Army, Dartmouth and Michigan—her three big contests. Yale beat Brown, Army, Dartmouth and Princeton. Harvard has no back as dangerous as Albie Booth. But for all that Harvard has a better football team than the season's count has shown. Few teams anywhere have such a collection of backs as Wood, Mays, Harper, Putnam, Deven, Potter, Gilligan and others. The Crimson can keep feeding in first class backs all the afternoon. Yale has played the better football to date. But for the greater part this only happened when Booth was in action. If Booth is in good condition and he isn't hurt, Yale ought to win. He has an extremely useful aid in Don McLennan, a fast, hard running, shifty back who knows his stuff. The Yale line has outplayed the Harvard line to date, but there is still power in that Harvard line when Ben Ticknor is around. Yale has no passer to match Barry Wood, but a dependable ball carrier is more useful than a brilliant passer, game in and game out. This should be one of the best of all the Harvard-Yale meetings, because the two teams are better matched and they have a better class of football talent meeting on the field. Yale must be given the shade through everything that has happened up to date, even conceding the possibilities of this Harvard team when and if it hits its top form. But the shade is nothing like as vivid as comparative scores would indicate.

Notre Dame - Northwestern — At Evanston. This game may worry Notre Dame as much as any game the South Bend delegation has yet faced. In spite of the quality and quantity of Notre Dame reserves the long season is about ready to collect its toll at any given moment. Notre Dame had a close call last Saturday, winning by only a point, and that Southern California argument must have taken something away. There are no supermen around and when any football team has won seven straight games there is always danger of the edge wearing away. The Northwestern team that faced Ohio State would have practically an even chance to win. Northwestern slipped badly last Saturday against Indiana, but that may even work as an aid in today's battle. Dick Hanley has a good line ready and some good backs—at least one or two. It is a better football team than many have credited it with being. Notre Dame ought to win through a faster line, through faster backs and especially through a far greater reserve power, which is often the telling factor. To say nothing of a young man by the name of Frank Carrideo. Twenty-five or thirty good football players can usually trim 12 or 15 good football players under modern conditions of continued pressure and continued speed. Notre Dame should be made favorite, but a Northwestern victory would be no astonishing upset. This game will decide whether or not Notre will come unbeaten to the Army game, which again will be no soft and mellow tea party. Notre Dame is picked today, despite the possibilities of a late season slump.

California - Stanford — At Palo Alto. This is the Far Western football classic that for color, crowds and action stands unsurpassed. It is the game that will decide California's place in the football sun for 1929. California has gone unbeaten with victories over Penn, Southern California and Washington. Her main achievement was the decisive defeat of Southern California in the latter's own gridiron bailiwick—one of the most impressive football jobs of the year. California has four of the best in the game this season with Lom, Eisan, Schwartz and Norton. Lom has been an outstanding back—a star who can kick, pass, run, hit the line and tackle with any one who happens to be around. On all the dope California ought to win. Pop Warner may get Stanford clicking and the margin either way will be extremely close. But Stanford has shown no back to compare with Lom—a big, rangy, hard running, side stepping star who can handle any job that comes his way.

Purdue-Indiana — At Bloomington. The moonlight should be fair tonight along the Wabash again. If it isn't they will be dragging the Wabash for George Ade's body. And John McCutcheon may be right with him. This is Purdue's last start after the greatest season in her history, a season that will bring the Western conference championship her way, unless something out of the ordinary happens. Purdue has a much better football team than Indiana can send to the field. But any team that has won every game up to its last stand is always liable to pay the penalty of nerve wear and tear and nerve depletion. Still, with such starts as Welch, Yunevitch, Harmison, Red Sleight and others, it would be a true upset if Indiana won, taking into consideration the fact that Indiana was good enough last Saturday to beat Northwestern, the team that beat Illinois.

Fordham - Bucknell — At New York. Maj. Frank Cavanaugh has brought his Fordham team unbeaten through a tough schedule, but today he is face to face with his main trouble of the year. Bucknell has been coming like a streak, while Fordham is due to show the result of a long, hard season that began with preparations to beat N. Y. U. early in October. Fordham has a high class football team, but the odds today are slightly in favor of Bucknell. But this will be a contest to the final play between two hard scrapping outfits. It will be largely a question as to whether Fordham has enough fire left after two months of hard play.

New York University - Rutgers — At New York. While New York university ought to get by in this meeting, the Violet will have to pop a close eye on Jack Grossman, a 200-pound ripping, shifty back. Rutgers has been coming at a fast clip lately and will be dangerous all the way. If Grossman plays his game he should be one of the big stars of the day. New York university has shown a decided improvement in the last two games, with victories over Georgia and Missouri, two first class teams. There is a good chance now that the Violet will finish the season unbeaten, although Rutgers and Carnegie Tech will not provide an easy afternoon.

CHRISTIANS TO BE FAVORITES

Only One Frog Not Yet Recovered

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 22.—Hoping to remove next to their last obstacle to an undefeated season and a Southwest conference title, the powerful Texas Christian university Horned Toads stacked arms at Waco Friday, preparatory to moving against the Baylor Bears today on the Cotton Palace gridiron.

The Frogs, almost recovered from an epidemic of influenza that thinned their ranks early in the week, will enter the day's feature combat favored to ring up their ninth consecutive victory and their fourth straight conference triumph. Their 15 to 12 defeat of Texas university last week established them foremost contenders for the sectional flag.

Barr Still Ill

Buck Barr, regular tackle, was the only Frog not sufficiently recovered from the "flu" to get in the lineup against the Golden Bears. Leland, Grubbs, Brumbelow, Atkins, Roberson and other bulwarks of Coach Francis Schmidt's puissant machine were in top condition.

A victory over Baylor would place the Frogs in the driver's seat for their crucial battle with Southern Methodist a week from tomorrow at Fort Worth. They would then need only a tie with the Mustangs to win their first conference title.

In the only other bout scheduled tomorrow, the Mustangs anticipate an easy win over the Rice institute Owls at Ownby stadium here. Coach Ray Morrison was expected to save his regulars insofar as possible for the T. C. U. fracas.

Having nothing else to do for the week, the Texas Longhorns and Texas Aggies will take off from their practice to witness the struggle at Waco. Their annual fray on Turkey day at College Station doubtless will tax the 34,000 seating capacity of Kyle field, however.

The Arkansas Razorbacks are engaged in strenuous practice for their bout with the Oklahoma Aggies Thanksgiving day at Stillwater. The game, by further special dispensation, will count in their conference standing.

Great Crowd to See Game

While the Baylor-Texas Christian tussle probably will not affect the championship race to any great extent, it is expected to draw the biggest crowd of the year in Waco. It brings together two powerful teams, studded with a number of outstanding individual stars. The section's critics, otherwise loose for the day, will be on hand to compare nominees for several all-conference berths. A brilliant duel is anticipated between Howard Grubbs, star Frog quarterback, and Jake Wilson, Baylor's welterweight field general.

Coach Jennings of Baylor has devoted almost the entire week to building up a defense against the passing attack T. C. U. is expected to launch.

The Rice Owls, smarting from three straight conference lickings, are certain to put up a hard scrap against the Mustangs here, but only a sensational improvement in form on their part and a let-down in the Pony ranks could give the Fowls a victory.

The standing:

	Won	Lost	Tied
T. C. U.	3	0	0
S. M. U.	2	0	1
Texas	3	1	2
Baylor	1	1	1
Arkansas	3	2	0
Aggies	1	3	0
Rice	0	3	0

Tie counts half game won and half game lost.

Pampa Harvesters Drop Memphis In Hard 33-13 Battle for Title Honors

Special to The Record News

MEMPHIS, Texas, Nov. 22.—The Memphis Cyclone fought a losing battle today and the Pampa Harvesters emerged as champions of sections C and D when fake plays and hard plunging by the visitors gave the title-threatening Cyclone the small end of a 33-13 score. Two thousand people saw the vital contest in which Pampa undoubtedly got a majority of the breaks. Memphis' numerous fumbles were costly. The Harvesters repeatedly intercepted atttempted passes by the Cyclone. The game was fought largely in Memphis territory.

Martindale was probably the outstanding star for Memphis. His 99-yard run in the second quarter gave the game a touch of college color seldom seen on the local gridiron. The Jackson brothers, Clarence and J. D., Kimmie Hammond, Walter Massey and Walker deserve credit for their brilliant playing. Phillips' game, despite his four fumbles, deserved mention. The Cyclone, in fact, with many of its members playing their last game, was functioning at its best, but Pampa's brand of football stiffer competition than Memphis could master.

This is Pampa's last year as a Class B football team. The high school now has a sufficient enrollment to be entered in Class A football, and the Harvesters will be matched against Amarillo, Vernon and similar teams next season. Salusbury was outstanding as the Pampa star. He was responsible for at least two of the Harvesters' touchdowns. Chastain, Monroe and Lard, who entered the game with an injured shoulder, were other valuable men in the game today. The entire team afforded the ball carriers unusually good interference.

With a team that was not considerd alarmingly strong at the start of the season, Memphis High school has made a commendable record in football this year. The Cyclone displayed insufficient team work at the beginning of the season, but gradually increased into a rather powerful Class B machine. The result of today's game eliminates Memphis from the conference race and gives Pampa the right to meet Hereford on Thanksgiving for the championship.

Seymour Panthers Draw Blood From Chillicothe 19-6

Special to The Record News

SEYMOUR, Texas, Nov. 22.—The Seymour high school Panthers conquered the Chillicothe high school Eagles, 19 to 6, here Friday afternoon in the fastest exhibition of high school football ever played on a local gridiron. The Panthers outplayed the Eagles in every department of the game except the overhead game. Here the Panthers were most ineffective. They attempted 16 passes and completed one and one was intercepted.

The first touchdown of the game was chalked up when Hooser of the Panthers got away with a 25-yard run. The ball was carried within the shadow of the opposing goal post and then on the next play Captain Morris plunged over for the marker. The extra point was missed. In the second quarter another long run by Hooser took the ball again within the danger zone and on the next play the Panther star took it over. The extra point was made by Cooper. Captain Morris made a beautiful 35-yard run but was downed before crossing the goal line and on the next play Cooper rammed the line to cross over the goal line.

Chillicothe's lone touchdown came in the closing minutes of the game. Creighton and Hughes were the individual stars for the Chillicothe Eagles.

Seymour still is leading the district race and bids fair to cop off the honors. They will meet the Olney Cubs at Olney on a Thanksgiving day program. The Panthers have tasted the blood of the powerful Eagles and are thirsty for the blood of the Olney Cubs. They avow that they will bring home Cub meat for their Thanksgiving day supper.

Lockney and Ralls High Battle to 6-6 Tie Game

Special to The Record News.

LOCKNEY, Texas, Nov. 22.—The Lockney High school football team battled for a solid hour and at the end of that time the score stood at a 6 to 6 tie. Ralls' touchdown came in the first quarter and Lockney's marker came late in the third quarter.

Colored Team Cops Game Off Ardmore Eleven by 12 to 7

The football team of Booker Washington school maintained its undefeated record Friday afternoon when it was officially credited with a victory, 12 to 7, over the negro high school team from Ardmore, Okla.

In the opinion of the spectators, the local team's title to the victory was much beclouded. The work of the officials was not exactly unbiased and the Washington team profitted handsomely by several very doubtful decisions. One of these took away from Ardmore a touchdown that team had scored, and another gave the local team its winning touchdown.

Washington scored first in the second quarter. Obtaining possession of the ball on a fumble on the Ardmore 35-yard line, the locals quickly carried the ball over the goal line on a series of spin plays, passes and line glunges.

In the third quarter a fumble punt gave Ardmore the ball on Washington's 40-yard line and a 40-yard run by a fleet Ardmore back carried the ball over. The extra point was scored on a line plunge. Ardmore again threatened after intercepting a forward pass and carried the ball close to the locals' goal. It looked to the spectators as if a forward pass across the goal line was fairly caught for a touchdown, btu the referee decided otherwise, and placed the ball on the three-yard line. From that point Ardmore was unable to plunge across. Washington took possession of the ball deep in their own territory and worked it steadily down the field in the fourth quarter. They were within a few yards of the Ardmore goal when the Ardmore timekeeper ruled that time was up. The local time-keeper did not agree with him and the Washington team was given one more down, on which the referee ruled that the ball was carried across. No effort to make the point was made.

Both teams played hard and showed signs of having been well coached.

The Washington team earlier in the season had defeated teams from Fort Worth, Gainesville and Chickasha.

It was supported in Friday's game by a uniformed pep squad which cheered it loyally, if not always discriminatingly.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Nov. 22.—The Megargel Bluebirds whipped across two touchdowns to humble the Iowa Park Hawks, 14 to 0, here Friday in chill, wintry weather. LUBBOCK TRIMS VERNON BY 12-0

Lions Play Stubborn Defense

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Nov. 22.—The Lubbock Westerners ran true to form today in defeating the Vernon Lions, 12 to 0, in the last home game the Lions play this season. The Lions played a stubbornly defensive game with the exception of the second quarter when Lubbock swept to the two touchdowns with a series of well executed passes.

Vernon threatened seriously, once within the 10-yard line, after three successful passes with only minutes to play. Three line plays failed to make the counter, although Manis reached the six-yard line. Vernon's pass on the fourth down was in the air when the gun ended the game and it was intercepted.

Lubbock threatened two other times, once in the first quarter and once in the third, but the Lions presented a stone wall defense within their own 10-yard line.

Both teams resorted to the air frequently. Both of the Westerners score were made on touchdowns. The first came on a pass from Lawson to Watson, good for 21 yards and the second on a heave from Lawson to Smith for a gain of 30 yards. The Westerners completed seven tosses and Vernon completed four. Ten Lubock tosses were incomplete and none was intercepted. Four Vernon attempts were incomplete and three were intercepted.

Field Narrows In T. I. A. A. Grid Race

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Nov. 22. (AP)—The battle for supremacy in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association has narrowed down to three undefeated teams, the North Texas Teachers of Denton, Southwest Texas Teachers of San Marcos, and the Sam Houston Teachers of Huntsville, with the finish only a week away.

There is a possibility the title will be decided when the Southwest Texas Bobcats and the North Texas Eagles clash here next Wednesday. The Bobcats, if victorious, will cinch the flag. The Eagles, by winning, could assure themselves a tie with the Sam Houston eleven at the top, providing Sam Houston disposes of Stephen F. Austin in their tilt Thursday.

Last week the North Texas Teachers and Sam Houston shoved each other out of the lead by playing a 6 to 6 tie.

Stamford Hi Team Wins Over Merkel Hi Team 39 to 0

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, Nov. 22.—By smashing the Merkle Badgers with a score of 39 to 0, this afternoon, Stamford High school's Blue Bull Dogs won first place in the eastern section of district 9, Class B, and the right to represent this area in the district finals with Roscoe, winner of the championship in the western half of the district. Today's game was played on a neutral gridiron, the Anson field being the location of the contest.

Earlier in the season the Merkel team defeated the locals 6 to 0 and since then the two teams went into a tie for first place, each having won three games, lost one and tied one, in conference competition. The Stamford team showed at least 100 per cent improvement today over their performance in the first game with the Badgers, who never threatened during the course of the entire conflict this afternoon.

Roy Rosene, Bull Dog center, intercepted a Badger pass and went 45 yards for another counter. The sixth marker came after a short series of thrusts at the Merkel line, near the end of the game when Sherman broke through for a long run. The extra point was made on three of the six touchdowns scored by the Bull Dogs. Even in an overwhelming defeat, "Sonny Boy," Boaz, Merkel halfback, showed himself to be one of the outstanding men in district 9. He broke through the Stamford defense several times in the first half for runs of 15 to 25 yards. His punting was exceptionally fine for a Class B player and in the final period he threw passes all over the field with uncanny accuracy, only to have the rushing Bull Dogs knock all but three of them out of the hands of his receivers. Ashby, Badgers' substitute end, was all over the field and his run down under punts were outstanding, but the individuals on the Badger aggregation were outshown and roundly outplayed by the well balanced machine put on the field by Coach Lee Walker, the Stamford gridiron director.

Courageous Performance on Gridiron

Heroes Carry on in Spite of Injuries

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. (UP)—Courageous deeds have been performed on many gridirons this season.

For symbols of physical courage take the cases of Willis Glassgow, Iowa captain, and Bronko Nagurski, Minnesota fullback and tackle.

Glasgow suffered a compound fracture of the left cheek bone in the Monmouth game and since has been forced to wear a steel aluminum mask across the upper half of his face. Without the mask Glasgow would be unable to play. With it he is tremendously handicapped, yet against Illinois he ran 78 yards for a touchdown on the first play of the game and kicked the goal enabling Iowa to tie Illinois, 7-7.

Nagurski, bulwark of the Minnesota eleven and one of the greatest all-round players in the Middle West, has been playing with a broken bone in his left hand. A player less courageous than Nagurski would have turned in his uniform long ago and called it a season.

Plays With Broken Ribs

Frosty Peters, Illinois quarterback, played the entire Iowa game with broken ribs without informing Coach Robert Zuppke of his injury for fear he wouldn't be allowed to play. When Zuppe found out after the game that Peters had played with the injury he was "plenty mad" and put the game Illinois quarterback on the shelf.

Russell Bergherm, Northwestern fullback, has been playing on a severely injured leg because of Coach Hanley's shortage of backs as a result of a broken leg received by Bruder, Wildcat star, in an early season game.

Pete Rousseau, Cornell end, broke his collar bone on the first play of the Dartmouth game last week, but remained in the game throughout the first half, recovering a fumble which led to Cornell's first touchdown.

Bob Stevens, Cornell halfback and triple-threat ace, had a bone fractured in his hand the week before the Dartmouth game and played the entire game. His punting, passing and running featured Cornell's attack.

Marsters Carries On

Al Marsters, Dartmouth star had his vertebrae chipped in the Yale game—an injury which would have prevented an ordinary player from walking off the field—yet he remained in the game for several minutes, gamely attempting to lead his team to victory. The injury closed Marsters' gridiron career.

An outstanding example of sportsmanship was manifested by Sargisson, New York university guard, in the Georgetown game. Jim Mooney, Georgetown captain and tackle, went into the game with a bad cut over his eye. Sargisson told Mooney on the first play that he would make every effort to refraim from aggravating the injury. Mooney came out of the game without having his eye touched on a play.

Hoot Ellis, little substitute Yale back whose gridiron career was thought to be over last year because of a trick knee which collapsed under stress, came back out for football this season and intercepted a pass and ran 80 yards for the touchdown which gave Yale a last minute victory over Dartmouth. The following week Ellis had to be carried off the field when his knee gave way against Maryland.

ON TO AMARILLO

Special Train May Carry Fans to Big Game

By W. G. CHAMBLESS

Because of the traditional rivalry between the Wichita Falls Coyotes and the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm and the great interest and patriotic sentiment attendant upon the annual Thanksgiving day battle whenever they meet, the Junior chamber of commerce launched a project Friday at their weekly meeting to make up a special train to carry fans from Wichita Falls to Amarillo for the big game of the season.

The project, to be successful, must have the assurance of at least 250 persons to buy tickets for the trip. If the required number is enlisted by Tuesday night, a special train will be arranged to leave Wichita Falls about 5 o'clock a. m. on Thanksgiving day and will arrive in the Panhandle city at around noon of the same day, thereby giving plenty of time to look about and get set for the big fracas at Butler field.

Low Rates Offered

The rates for a round trip on this Amarillo special on Thanksgiving day will be extraordinarily low, especially when the mileage is taken into consideration. A two-way ticket on the special can be bought for $4.45.

Though the Coyotes are definitely out of the district championship running, they still look forward to the coming game as being the biggest and best scrap of the year for them. The Pack has always considered the season a huge success when they beat the Golden Sandstorms. The Sandies beat the Pack last year and the year before and the Pack is especially eager to turn the tables on their old enemy of the gridiron. Harvard may have her Yale, Tulane her Louisiana State, California her Stanford, but Wichita Falls has her Amarillo.

On Traditional Games

One thing about these old, traditional battles: the winner is never certain until the closing report of the time keeper's gun rings out upon the field. Down through the years, unheralded upsets have strewn the pages of history when traditional rivals meet to do or die for old Eli. The last minute, winning touchdown and the valiant young hero have made the theme of many a thrilling school day novel. And it is from this same spirit that there have come some of the greatest and most spectacular games ever played on the chalked-off field.

Nearly 400 football enthusiasts of Wichita Falls followed the team to Lubbock and had the times of their lives. That another great day at Amarillo will be written in the team's history is warranted by the recorded past performances when the Coyotes and the Sandies have met.

So it is that those sponsoring the Amarillo special are urging the fans to get their tickets and be on hand to cheer the team to stupendous heights to lay low the mighty roar of the Golden Sandstorm.

Speed Cars Show Here on Big Race Card, December 1

The motors will roar and bark again at the Wichita Falls Speedway at the Texas-Oklahoma fairgrounds in the closing race of the 1929 season, on the racing card scheduled for Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Dec. 1. A 100-lie race with side car motorcycles will make up the entry list for one of the longest grinds ever attempted in cycle history. The 200-lap race is an experiment under direction of the Bowen's auto races of San Antonio, who have conducted the motor racing cards here during the past two years. This southern metropolis organization claims the credit of originating and staging the first 100-mile modified stock automobile classic which was run in 1928 as the maiden race on the Wichita Falls oval, repeated again this year, and the third annual event is scheduled for here in the early spring.

Since the success of the long race on the local course this event has become the most popular race on many prominent tracks of the country. Cycle fans are enthusiastic over the coming race, and, if the event proves successful the classic will become an annual affair on the track here the same as the already established 100-mile modified stock car race, and will also be introduced by the Bowen's organization on nearly every popular dirt speedway in America.

Twenty riders with a co-rider in the side car will be sent off with the starter's flag in the classic. This number will be qualified in time trials the morning of the race from an anticipated entry list of 75 to 100 entries. More than 5,000 entry blanks have been distributed to motorcycle enthusiasts and agencies throughout the country. Entry blanks may be secured from any motorcycle dealer or from W. W. Bowen at 1306 Eighth street, Wichita Falls.

As an added stunt of fun and thrilling to the motorcycle derby, a junk car race will be run. This race is open to all cars both obsolete and still in existence. The main requirement being that the owner of the car must agree to sell same to any one in the grandstand for $50.

Another feature being worked up is a head-on collision between two sedans turned loose at top speed. This should prove the big thrilling smash-up of the day if plans for the crash go through.

Special to The Record News

WAYLAND TRIMS CAMERON 41-20

Aggie Running Attack Is Powerful

Special to The Record News

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Nov. 22.—Wayland college Jackrabbits defeated the Cameron Aggies, 41 to 20, here this afternoon. A bitterly cold south wind cut the attendance down but a few faithful fans and the Wayland student body saw one of the best offensive games that the Jackrabbits have offered this season. The first half ended 14 to 13 in favor of the Jackrabbits but at the opening of the second half the Wayland eleven unleashed a clever attack that swept the visitors off their feet, with the Close brothers and Mitchell exhibiting a clever running offensive, and Setzler hitting the line for consistent gains. The Jackrabbits registered four touchdowns in the second period. With only a few minutes remaining to play, Coach Frank Kimbrough of the Wayland squad sent in practically a new team against which Cameron eleven scored a touchdown as the result of a beautiful run by Captain Ward. Until today the Lawton, Okla., representatives had a record of nine straight victories for this season. Captain Ward and Workman carried the burden of the Cameron attack and Headland at right end played a nice defensive game for Wayland. The Close brothers, Kirkpatrick and Lummus played brilliantly.

Post Grid Team Ruled Ineligible For the Honor

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, Nov. 22.—Coming just as the news had broken that Spur school officials had signed a statement that one of their players was ineligible and they had forfeited to Post, thereby slipping Post back into the running for class B title of district two after a protest had been offered by the executive committee, filed by Slaton, to rule Post ineligible, the committee ruled that Post was ineligible in all games in which the Post player had participated, should, according to the rules of the league, be ruled out. The executive committee in passing on the eligibility of the Post players Saturday, Nov. 16, at Lubbock, stated that unless earlier documentary evidence to the contrary be secured at a later date, Post is found eligible, but at the same time ordered V. Z. Rogers, chairman, to wire Henderson at Austin for any documentary evidence in the Luman case that would be available. This Rogers did Saturday, the 16th. He received the following telegram from Henderson this week, "Nineteen twenty-five and 1927 football eligibility blanks for Luman give his birth as Aug. 15, 1909. No blanks filed in 1926. Roy B. Henderson." Immediately after receiving the above telegraphic information, Rogers wired members of the committee for a telegraphic vote authorizing a disposition of this case. The votes of the committee ruled Post out on the grounds that Luman was too old and had participated in conference games during this season. With Post ruled out the schedule made by the committees Saturday, the 16th, will hold. The winner of the Ralls-Lockney game will play Lamesa for district championship.

Study the "Water Cure"

Water has been recognized as a valuable remedy for many centuries, and among the ancients who employed it were Hippocrates, Galen, Paracelsus and the Emperor Augustus, who had his personal hydropathic physician named Antonius Muse.

Soon after the introduction of printing in Europe, interest in the water treatments is said to have received a new impetus from the publication of several books on the subject, the editions of which have since been lost, although we still have a treatise published in 1723 by Niccolo Lanzani and a book published in the beginning of the 18th century by Sir John Floyer and Dr. Baynard called "A History of Cold Bathing, Both Ancient and Modern." In 1797 Dr. Currie published a book called "Medical Reports on the Effect of Water, Cold and Warm."

Water at this time was used principally for the reduction of fevers. However, no endeavor had been made to combine the various methods into a scientific system.

The first popularizing of the water cure was accomplished by Priesnitz, a farmer of Silesia, who achieved such remarkable results that the attention of Europe was turned to his home in Grafenburg. Thousands of people came for treatment and advice, including a number of members of royalty and other notables.

It is said that as many as 150 medical doctors were studying under Priesnitz at one time, observing the effects of water upon different diseases. He used the cold compress, the douche bath, partial baths, wet sheet packs, sweating baths, and had the patients drink large quantities of water. In addition to this he used a simple diet and fresh air baths and other hygienic measures.

When rightly used, water can exert a very beneficial effect upon the body, and every doctor should be familiar with its uses and effects. It is valuable for the purpose of washing out or diluting toxic materials, in softening hardened tissues, and in controlling the circulation and temperature of the body, the action depending entirely upon the ways it is applied.

There are a number of good books on hydrotherapy which can be obtained at any large public library, and everyone interested in the healing art should study this valuable adjunct. I have prepared a number of articles on water and water treatments and I will be glad to send them to anyone interested. Simply write to me in care of this newspaper and enclose a two-cent stamp for each article desired. A list of these articles is as follows:

Water, the Best Drink ——; Hot and Cold Sitz Baths ——; Water Is a Good Remedy ——; Man's Reliance on Water ——; Cures at Mineral Springs ——; Enemas, the Best Emergency Treatment ——; Hot and Cold Applications ——; Douche ——.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Improving Hearing

Question—E. L. writes: "For 20 years I have had a most embarrassing form of partial deafness. Not real deaf, but just hard of hearing. A peculiarity is that I can hear a pin drop on a bare floor, but cannot hear a grandfather clock tick unless close to it. Playing the piano seems to improve my hearing, which leads me to think emotional excitement in some way acts on this condition. This started with a head cold, but I very seldom have colds now, and no catarrh whatever."

Answer—I am sure your hearing would improve with a fasting and diet treatment designed to get rid of catarrh of the middle ear, as it may be only in the middle ear so that you do not notice it, as far as any discharge from the nose is concerned. Vibration, such as is produced through piano playing, is often found to stimulate the ears and improve hearing. There are certain machines which are now being used for producing stimulating vibrations to the ear drums. The treatment is applied both on the outside of the ear drum and through the nose and mouth, affecting the ear drum from the inner side. Try to find a physician who has such equipment for treating the ears.

Exostosis

Question—A. K. asks: "Would you be so kind as to tell me what an exostosis is, and what it is caused from, and if removed will it later cause more trouble?"

Answer—An exostosis means an abnormal growth of bone. It may form around a broken bone or on a bone which is subjected to constant irritation. It is impossible for me to give you any more information without knowing more about the particular case.

FIVE NEW TESTS NEAR DUNCAN

Surface Pipe Being Set in Locations

Special to The Record News

DUNCAN, Okla., Nov. 22.—Surface pipe should be set next week on five new locations staked in the Palacine field southeast of Duncan since the completion of the Thelma Green No. 1, in the northwest southwest northwest section of 9-2s-6w, by the Wirt Franklin Petroleum corporation Tuesday.

The Green, second oiler in the new territory, was flowing at the rate of 30 barrels an hour on the last gauge.

Three New Locations

The Franklin corporation Thursday staked three new locations in the field, bringing the total staked since the completion of the Green to six.

The Franklin corporation staked a location for their No. 2 Brooke, in the southeast southeast northeast of 9-2s-6w, a twin to the No. 1 Brooke gasser completed last month. The same company staked location for their No. 2 Spain, in the southwest southwest northwest of 9-2s-6w, a south offset to the No. 1 Green. The same company staked the No. 2 Green, in the northwest southeast northwest of 9-2s-6w, a north offset to the Palacine discovery well.

Work on all of these locations will be rushed and surface pipe will probably be set next week.

Clark and Cowden and the Ven-Mex are moving in on the No. 1 Andreae, in the southwest northeast southeast of 5-2s-6w, a half-mile northwest of the Green, and expect to set surface pipe Tuesday. The Magnolia Petroleum Co. is skidding derrick and tools for the Andreae No. 1-A, in the northeast southeast northeast of 8-2s-6w, a twin to the No. 1 Andreae gasser.

Well Abandoned

The Franklin corporation has abandoned the No. 1 Bonner, in the northwest northwest southeast of 9-2s-6w, southeast of the Palacine discovery well, as dry at 3939 feet. The same company is drilling at 2787 feet on the No. 1 Martin, in the northeast northwest southwest of 9-2s-6w, a diagonal offset to the discovery.

Oil men are discussing the similarity of the producing sand found in the No. 1 Green at 3156-90 feet with formations cored in the Pierce-Brown I. T. I. O. No. 1 Harley, in the northwest northwest northwest of 30-2s-6w, three miles southwest of the Palacine field.

The Harley is drilling below 3700 feet in green shale which geologists believe is the upper Simpson. The No. 1 Green had similar formations, and geologists believe the Green is producing from a broken Simpson, while the No. 1 Harley is coring the true Simpson.

Mudge Wildcat

Developments in the Palacine field have overshadowed other wildcat operations in the county this week. The Mudge Oil company is drilling at 1400 feet on the No. 1 Grose, in the southeast northwest southwest of 15-1s-5w, a wildcat north of the Santa Fe shallow pool.

Slick and Taylor are drilling at 1853 feet on the No. 1 Blake, in the southwest of 16-1s-8w, on the lease where Louis Sikes recently opened a new gas field four miles southwest of Duncan.

POULTRY AND COTTON DULL

Weather Puts Damper on Farm Activity

Completing 11 weeks of steady ginning, Wichita county cotton gins turned in another 68 bales Friday to bring the season's total up to 18,393 bales, no report being received from Kemp City.

For the first time in several weeks, Wichita Falls turned in the largest number of ginned bales for the day, with a modest total of 26. Only 10 bales remains between the season's totals for this city and Electra, in third and second places respectively in ginnings.

Activity in poultry and produce markets in the city was practically at a standstill Friday, recent unfavorable weather aiding the lull which followed the Thanksgiving turkey rush in producing quiet with local dealers.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. (AP)—An opening decline in cotton today was followed by a recovery on reports of unfavorable southern weather, but prices weakened again under renewed liquidation coupled with some southern and local selling. January contracts declined from 17.65 to 17.48 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 14 to 20 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 5 to 10 points under a resumption of yesterday's selling movement and liquidation or local selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables. These early offerings were readily absorbed by covering and trade buying, and some local buying on reports of unfavorable weather for saving late cotton in the South. December sold up from 17.37 to 17.52 while May advanced from 18.11 to 18.20 with active months generally selling back to about yesterday's closing quotations. The market eased later under renewed realizing or liquidation combined with more southern selling. December declined to 17.32 and May to 18.00 with the active month generally showing net losses of 14 to 21 points and closing prices were within a point or two of the lowest.

Much of the day's business was again connected with the evening-up of December contracts in anticipation of notices next Monday.

At the close December was 81 points under July compared with a difference of 7 points at the close of the previous day.

Reports of rather a reactionary tone in the grain and stock markets and the failure of the unfavorable weather news to stimulate a more general demand were probably factors on the afternoon decline. Liverpool cables said continental buying had been supplied by liquidation and American selling in that market. Exports for the day, 23,755, making 3,029,912 so far this season. Port receipts, 45,360. U. S. port stocks, 2,496,476.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 22. (AP)—Cotton prices worked about $1 a bale lower today in sluggish trading restricted mainly to liquidation of the December position in advance of Monday, first notice day for that month. Prices were on the downgrade despite bullish weekly statistics. January declined to 17.43 and closed at that figure for a net loss of 20 points. The general market closed steady at net declines of 19 to 24 points.

Liverpool cables were 6 points lower than due but initial transactions here showed declines of only 1 to 3 points. Offerings increased after the start, however, due to December liquidation and at noon that month traded at 17.43, January 17.55 and March 18.73, or 8 points down from yesterday's close.

Following a slight rally on the bullishly constructed weekly statistics the market weakened again under renewed liquidation and continued to ease off for the remainder of the session. The lows of the day were reached in final trading and last prices were a point or two above the lowest with December at 17.29 and March at 17.71, or 19 to 21 points net lower.

Pre-Holiday Profit Taking Causes Orderly Reaction on Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. (US)—Pre-holiday profit-taking influenced orderly reaction in a quieter, three-hour session on the stock exchange today. Offerings were well absorbed due to influence of further favorable advices from Washington, and the unexpectedly large reduction in brokers' loans shown in the reserve statement. Steel finished 2¾ lower at 167. Radio dropped 1¼, Anaconda 4⅛, Kennecott 3¾, Bethlehem Steel 2 and Johns Manville 3½. New York Central gained 4, National Cash Register 6 and Montgomery Ward closed 1¼ higher. Call money renewed at 4½ per cent the lowest since March, 1928, while some loans were reported outside at as low as 3 per cent. Turnover fell off to under 3,000,000 shares.

Reduction of $585,000,000 in loans for the week brought borrowings down to $3,587,000,000, a decline of $3,217,000,000 from the record high level reached Oct. 2. This represents a decline of close to 50 per cent, but still does not tell the entire story of how drastic the correction of speculative stock holdings has been. A canvass of leading commission houses showed their loans were down about 75 per cent. The reason there has not been similar percentage of decline in the reserve figures is that underwriting and distributing houses have made comparatively small reduction in their borrowings. The reduction of borrowings of such houses of issue, according to one estimate, is less than 10 per cent. One investment company took steps to correct this situation by using available funds to buy up a large block of its "undigested" shares which are to be retired. Others are expected to follow its example.

Reaction was not unexpected and did not disturb sentiment. While the banking powers are keeping close watch on dealings they have not found it necessary to take any active part in the last four sessions. Due to the stock exchange questionnaire there has been an almost total absence of short selling and where bear raiding has been attempted on a few occasions it has been frustrated without difficulty. With the exchange open only three days next week it is believed that all firms will be able to catch up with work by the time trading resumes after Thanksgiving. At that time the market will receive its real test as the nature of activities of business leaders toward reviving confidence will be known.

Cash Register was the feature of strength throughout. Buying was credited to a Broadway firm that is associated with Rockefeller interests. They have been in the Cash Register picture for the last two years and have never lost faith in the prospect for continued improvement in earnings. They point out that together with Singer and one or two other companies it is one of the best known international organizations. There was further quiet picking up of the oil shares also on belief that special developments would be taking place before long. Powerful Utility interests were reported resuming activity in American Power & Light.

Ford's economic views were the subject of considerable interest and varied comment. Of course, the street does not like Ford but then, it is quite evident that Ford doesn't like the street. Also the opinion of brokers is influenced by their indication that they are going to get much less commission over the next several months. There can be no doubt any longer, however, that the action of the stock market has a vital psychological influence on business and consumer sentiment throughout the country. This condition may be corrected by a quiet market period but while it exists it must be recognized and action taken accordingly.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 22. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Further price upturns were registered in hog prices around the 11-market circuit trade being moderately active and rates strong to 25c higher. Underweights generally showed the most gain. The day's extreme top of $9.50 was realized in Chicago. CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Nov. 22. (AP)—Wheat somersaulted backward in price today, reversing a lively upward jump earlier. It was surmised by some observers that heavy selling which broke out here and at Liverpool toward the last was due to letting go of large speculative holdings, advantage being taken of persistent unfavorable crop advices both from Argentina and Australia. North American wheat export business today was uninspiring, the purchases for transatlantic shipment totaling but 700,000 bushels.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 1c to 1⅛c a bushel under yesterday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to ¼c off, oats ¼c to ⅜@¼c down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 17c.

Corn gave evidence of weakness apart from the effect of wheat market downturns. The action of corn was largely ascribed to selling from western sources and to widespread cold clear weather favorable for shelling operations and to an increased movement of the corn crop. Oats weakened with corn.

Provisions tended upward, responsive to higher prices on hogs.

TEXAS PRISONS ARE DEPLORED

Needs Pointed Out by Board Member

BRADY, Texas, Nov. 22. (AP)—That approximately 82 per cent of the criminals sentenced to the state's penal institutions never serve their full term, and that there exists a need for the relocation and complete reformation of the Texas prison system were statements made by Dr. A. C. Scott of Temple, member of the state prison board, in a talk before a group of Brady business men.

The veteran surgeon and social worker criticized the present system with its widely scattered farms, some of them surrounded by thickets and brush so dense that a dog cannot trail an escaped convict.

He deplored the many escapes of prisoners, and said that the recent tour of investigation of eastern prisons by the relocation committee, of which he is a member, revealed that the best way to hold criminals safely within prison confines is by walls sufficiently high, deep and thick.

"Some legislators," Doctor Scott said, "advocate repairing the present walls at Huntsville, but an examination showed that they are in a positively bad and irreparable condition.

"There are at least one thousand men within the state prisons today who will never reform, who are a menace to society. The state, regardless of cost and whether they ever earn a cent for the state must protect society against their escape.

"The present Texas prison system, located in the Brazos bottoms, is 75 years old, antiquated, and a disgrace to civilization, since many prisoners are turned out worse criminals than they entered. Prisoners convicted of minor offenses are thrown together with criminals of the worse type. Sanitary conditions are terrible. Prisoners very often eat from the same plates, use the same cups not properly washed and sterilized, use the same bath tubs and towels, all of which contributes to the spread of diseases," he said.

Glasscock Well Has Signs of Pay Sand

BIG SPRING, Texas, Nov. 22. (AP)—Interest in northern Glasscock oil development, waning for three weeks, was focused on Glasscock Brothers' No. 1 Edwards, where operators reported a slight oil showing and presence of lime breaks.

No. 1 Edwards, 1650 feet from the east line and 320 feet from the south line of section 18, block 33, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, encountered a slight showing of oil in gray sand at 1982-185 feet. The first bigeable streak of lime was drilled from 2026-36 feet, but there the formation changed again to anhydrite, red rock and broken lime to the present total depth of 2054 feet.

The Glasscock Brothers' test is a semi-wildcat being drilled three miles west of producers and approximately one-half mile north and slightly west of Glasscock Brothers' No. 1 Turner in section 19, abandoned when operators were unable to shut off water from oil saturated lime.

Mr. H. C. Lyons, expert furrier, from Al Rosenthal's, Oklahoma City, will be at our store Saturday —one day only. Furs accepted for cleaning, glazing and repair work. Perkins-Timberlake Co.—Adv.

Sometimes There Is a Substitute For Swearing

"...!.x..!..x.!"

"What terrible language you are using, Jack! What in the world has gone wrong now?" she asked.

"You'd be sore, too, if you'd lose something that was as necessary to you as my bunch of keys is to me. Those keys are really gone, too—must have fallen out of my pocket on my way home."

"I'll bet they're not so thoroughly gone that an ad in the Daily Times-Record won't bring them back. Instead of swearing about your luck, you ought to be trying to make it better by calling 4391 and asking for Miss "Ad-taker."

CONVENTION OF BAPTISTS ENDS

White Elected Executive Secretary

By R. W. BARRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 22. (AP)—Climaxing its meeting with the unanimous election of Dr. W. R. White, pastor of the First Baptist church of Lubbock, to the executive secretaryship, the Baptist general convention of Texas, adjourned tonight.

Doctor White had been proffered the place by the executive committee several weeks ago, but he declined. The committee, after the new members had been elected yesterday, met and again voted to offer him the secretaryship. The hope that he would accept was expressed by the convention in a rising vote, and today he announced that he would give in to the will of his Baptist brethren and surrender the Lubbock pastorate in favor of the convention work.

He succeeds Dr. T. L. Holcomb, of Dallas, who resigned to go to Oklahoma City church as pastor.

The young people of the present day need "sympathy, not castigation" in the solution of the "unprecedented problems" that confront them, the committee on civic righteousness reported, through J. A. Hill, of Canyon, of the West Texas State Teachers' college, chairman.

The report advocated inclusion in school texts on physiology and hygiene a treatise of the ill effects of alcoholism on the human body "as it formerly was so treated." It was proposed that Baptists pledge themselves to uphold the prohibition law to their "very utmost." It suggested that the practice of relating jokes based on prohibition in a vein of ridicule be discouraged.

It declared that should the church people "cease to interest themselves in things political, the country's history from there on would be short and disgraceful."

The perpetuity of the government depends upon the intelligence and virtue of the average citizen, the report said, urging that there be encouraged a respect for law and constitutional authority. Violation of the prohibition law and gambling on football games were especially regretted.

Death Claims Father Of Former Wichitan

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Nov. 22. (AP)—Dr. Charles R. Johnson, 57, physician, died at his home today of heart disease. He served as the head of numerous civic organizations during his 30 years residence here. He is survived by his widow and one daughter of Gainesville, a daughter, Mrs. Reuben Leach of Dallas; two sons, Guy Johnson of McAllen, and Charles Johnson Jr., of Wichita Falls; and two brothers, Clifford Johnson of Dallas and Carl Johnson of Roswell, N. M.

RELATIVE ONCE RESIDED HERE

Charles Johnson Jr., son of Dr. Charles R. Johnson, 57, who died in Gainesville Friday, was formerly a resident of Wichita Falls but moved recently to Fort Worth, according to reports. He was district traffic superintendent of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company during his residence here and lived at 2113 Garfield street.

'Lie Detecting Device' Used to Get Confession

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 22. (AP)—The Times today quoted County Prosecutor Ewing D. Colvin as having announced Decasto Earl Mayer had confessed the slaying in 1928 of James E. Bassett of Annapolis, Md. The purported confession followed the use by the prosecutor of "lie detecting devices," against which Mayer yesterday obtained a temporary restraining order. Mayer charged Ewing D. Colvin, county prosecutor, and Sheriff Claude G. Bannick had tortured him with a "truth serum" and a "truth machine," the latter of which is said to register the heart beats of a person under questioning.

New Health Rules To Be Enforced in Cuba

HAVANA Nov. 22. (US)—Stringent new health laws for domestic servants, cooks, nurses and all employes who handle food are about to be enforced in Cuba.

The department of health is opening a clinic in Havana, where inoculation against typhoid and examination for tuberculosis, disease of the skin, and blood and intestinal parasites will be carried out.

The Charles Weeks Community of Little Farms offers ideal conditions for commuters holding positions in the city who would like to have their families live in beautiful garden homes in the country where the entire living can be made from poultry and gardening, thus enabling the head of the house to save all of his wages. In such a community four or five commuters can make the trip to and from the city easily, comfortably and cheaply in a modern Ford car. By thus saving the entire wages in time the intensive little farm could be made entirely self-supporting, and the nerve-wrecking job in the city could be given up. Visit the Model Farm in Weeks Community of Little Farms located near Westmoreland swimming pool and see what irrigating water and abundance of fertilizer will do when scientifically applied. It will be a revelation to you. If you cannot come write for free literature.

STRAND: "Four Feathers," with William Powell, Richard Arlen, Clive Brooks, and other stars. Lloyd Hamilton in "Toot Sweet." Paramount sound news.

MAJESTIC: Dick Barthelmess and Marian Nixon in "Young Nowheres." Young love with clipped wings. Talking Mack Sennett comedy, techni-color. Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: Gypsy Strollers in "Watch Your Husband." The Stroller quartet. Lois Wilson in "Ransom." Pathe news.

GEM: Bob Custer in "The Last Roundup," western. Chapter nine "Queen of the Northwoods." Comedy.

"Four Feathers." Then the king said to Alice (in Wonderland), "There's nothing like hay for a sandwich when one is hungry." To which Alice replied, "But I don't like hay. It isn't good." "I didn't say it was good," answered his highness, "I said there is nothing like it." They were discussing the fictional Hollywood diet and other personal things like that, of course, but with precisely the same conversation we may characterize "Four Feathers," now surprising patrons of the Strand.

There will be those, naturally, who won't share the distaste for "Four Feathers" which Alice expressed for hay as material for sandwiches. But in the field of motion pictures, we declare without equivocation that there has been nothing on land or on sea like unto the panoramic, panegyric pantomime projected against Africa's wastelands in "Four Feathers." There is a young matron in this city whose cakes are distinguished not for their lightness and flavor so much as for the speed with which they materialize. Finding a bit of batter left from this morning's waffles, a small dish of yesterday's applesauce beginning to look hopeless, a handful of rice pudding from last night, and the fragments produced a blind grab into the cabinet—a moment of frenzied whipping, and into the oven it goes. Then she waits expectantly, assured of a stimulating surprise regardless of the result when baking is done. The result is not always discouraging; not always. That recipe in some manner got into the hands of Hollywood's producers, and "Four Feathers" rushed into film as the first amazing result.

◇ ◇ ◇

It is a pantomime, its sound features being limited to synchronized music and the din of battle. As nearly as it permits analysis, the story may be presumed to adopt "Beau Geste" for its foundation. In order to suggest what is in store for the spectator, we list a few of the other sources from which super-structure material was drawn: "Foreign Legion," "Beau Sabreur," "Simba," "Chang," "The Leopard Woman," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "East Lynn," Macauley's "History of England," "The Lost World," "Diamond Dick and the Blackhorse Boys," "Wild Animals I Have Known," "Fuzzy-Wuzzy," "Gunga-din," "Jungle Book," "Annals of the British Army," and one or two swear words, comprising the first group; et cetera, et cetera, comprising other groups of source material.

It does produce a brief but stupendous pageant of natural life, when scores of hippopotami tumble over the river's bank ahead of a forest fire, monkeys of every genealogy swarm to trees, then to the bridge, which drops, and then to the water for escape. Mother took refuge on a protruding rock in midstream, the children immediately clinging to all parts of her body for safety until, one by one, she threw into the stream with excited but tern commands to sink or swim. All but one; that little fellow chanced to have a toehold in that part of her back which she couldn't reach; he finally made shore via the maternal ferry.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—President Hoover enjoys a new distinction. He is listed in the catalog of the collectors and distributors of rare books.

When engaged in London 20 years ago with a British mining and engineering firm, Herbert Clark Hoover and his wife, Lou Henry Hoover, devoted their spare hours to translating a Sixteenth century Latin work by Georgius Agricola, dealing with the history of practice of mining. The task required five years and the first edition, richly illustrated with wood cuts depicting development of the art from its earliest stages, sold for about $10. Today copies of the first edition are quoted at $250, with no sellers. A copy recently obtained by Wesiyan university at Miami, Ohio, and autographed by the president is valued at $500 but is not for sale.

The ornate title page of the translation describes "De Re Metallica" as an encyclopaedia "upon the development of mining methods, metallurgical processes, geology, mineralogy and mining law from the earliest times to the Sixteenth century."

"A Labor of Love"

"As this book could be but a labor of love," the translators explain in their preface, "it had to find the moments for its execution in night hours, week-ends and holidays, in all extending over a period of five years."

The motive which inspired the work is disclosed in another passage of the preface. "We do not offer De Re Metallica as a work of 'practical' value. The methods and processes have long since been superseded; yet surely such a milestone on the road of development of one of the two most basic of human industrial activities is more worthy of preservation than the thousand of volumes devoted to records of human destruction . . . If the work serves to strengthen the traditions of one of the most important and least recognized of the world's professions we shall be amply repaid."

Another passage of the preface suggest the difficulties encountered in translation.

"The task has been doubly difficult in this work because, in using Latin, the author availed himself of a medium which had ceased to expand a thousand years before his subject had in many respects come into being; in consequence he was in difficulties with a large number of ideas for which there were no corresponding words in the vocabulary at his command, and instead of adopting into the text his native German terms, he coined several hundred Latin expressions to answer his needs. It is upon this rock that most former attempts at translation have been wrecked. Except for a very small number, we believe we have been able to discover the intended meaning of such expressions from a study of the context, assisted by a very incomplete glossary prepared by the author himself, and by an exhaustive investigation into the literature of these subjects during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries."

Although the book comprises 640 pages, printed on sheets seven by 13 inches, the translators explain that "the entire work has been rewritten three times since the original, and some parts more often." Further, the "printer's proof has been thrice revised."

Agricola's work was first published the year after his death 1555. During 180 years it was not superseded as the text-book and guide to miners and metallurgists, for, as the Hoover preface explains, "until Schuiter's great work on metallurgy in 1738 it had no equal."

Dr. A. C. Emmons

the piano tuner, well known in this vicinity and who tuned for Galli-Curci here about two years ago, has just completed tuning twenty-five pianos for the schools of Wichita Falls. Mr. Emmons has tuned for some of the leading artists and piano manufacturers in this country, and his work is highly praised. He has also tuned for many of the members of the Wichita Falls Music Club. His slogan is: "Every Job a Reference."

Pianos should be tuned at least twice a year. Due to atmospheric conditions a piano will get out of tune whether used or not, and rust, moth and mice are disastrous to any piano. A piano is no better than the care it receives. If your piano is below pitch, or in need of a reliable repairman, phone 2-5603, or address P. O. Box 799. —Adv.

WICHITA SEEKS BANKERS MEET

A. R. Cline Given Post at San Antonio Meet

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 22. (AP)—A. R. Cline of Houston, was elected chairman of the administrative committee of the trust section of the Texas Bankers association at its autumn meeting here Friday. P. P. Butler of Beaumont also was elected to membership on the committee, which includes A. B. Culbertson, of Fort Worth, the retiring chairman of the section.

Selection of the place for the spring meeting to be held in April, 1930, was left to the administrative committee after bankers from Houston, Dallas, and Wichita Falls extended invitations. Adoption of an arrangement whereby trust department fees would be standardized in Texas and appointment of a committee to study trust service competition from eastern banks represented other outstanding features of the session.

It was brought out that several large financial institutions of New York city have started to compete with Texas institutions for trust business and some speakers voiced the opinion that suitable legislative action might be taken after a careful study of the situation.

A. A. Horne, vice president of the City National bank of Galveston and president of the Texas Bankers association, spoke briefly at the opening of the meeting Friday.

Chest Leaders Score Indifference Of Public to Charity Needs Here

Drastic Revision of Methods Suggested at Meeting of Directors; Collector to Secure Past Due Pledges Approved

Declaring that "Wichita Falls has reached the point where it needs an honest-to-goodness revival for the reawakening of its sense of responsibility to organized charity work," Harry A. Gray, president of the community chest, threw the question of completing the 1930 chest before the directors in their meeting Friday morning, and urged that steps more drastic than used heretofore by the organization be taken to accomplish its present goal.

Following animated discussion of the situation, in which practically every person participated, the meeting passed a resolution providing for the employment of a reliable collector for obtaining balances due on pledges to the chest.

Workers Revolt

Deploring the comparative difficulty of obtaining the quota set for 1930, J. D. Bright, first assistant to campaign director Albert E. Kelly, declared that at least half of the workers used in the recent drive could not be persuaded to assist in another under similar conditions.

Numerous speakers scored the citizenship of the city generally for indifference and a lack of generosity which they declared should be born of a consciousness of responsibility to the city's poor.

Mr. Gray remarked that one of the principal reasons for the 1930 fund being far short of completion was the lack of large contributions, and pointed out that the largest received was $600. Houston charity received gifts as high as $40,000, he said, and many gifts in Dallas range from $10,000 to $15,000 each.

"When you have to chase citizens down and smoke 'em out of a hole to get a little contribution for this cause, you just have not sold them on the chest program," Mr. Gray said. "There must be a revival of willing assistance which will make it unnecessary for our volunteer workers to spend excessive time and use the methods of high-pressure collectors to get their work done."

Three alternatives were suggested by the chest president as offering a solution of its problem. Abandonment of the plan to which 10 years of constructive thought and building have been devoted was the first; employment of some outside high-paid, high-pressure hijacking collector to get the pledges in; or to resell the city on the idea of taking care of its charities through the community chest.

Collections Poor

Both of the first two proposals were rejected immediately by the directors, and efforts were made to incorporate useful elements of the second suggestion in practical application of the third.

Miss Myrle Neely, secretary, reported that the 10 to 15 per cent allowed for shrinkage in pledges is about 10 times that considered as maximum in other cities. Following her stament, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"Whereas, the finance committee has made an examination of the pledge cards of the community chest fund and has found numerous individuals and companies who have made pledges from year to year and for some unexplained and unaccountable reason have apparently made no effort to pay same; and,

"Whereas, such practice is decidedly unfair to those persons who pay their pledges in full and at times at considerable personal sacrifice; and

"Furthermore, that the failure to meet such obligations by persons apparently able to pay same made it necessary for the finance committee to borrow over six hundred ($600) dollars from the year 1930 funds to meet obligations of the year 1929, thereby hampering the financing of the work of the coming year,

"Therefore, be it resolved by the board of directors of the community chest that the finance committee be instructed to place the collection of all unpaid pledges in the hands of a reliable collector."

Judge J. P. Marrs, Luther Hoffman and J. H. Allison were appointed as a committee to draw up a resolution of thangs to O. E. Kelly and Texas Electric Service company for his full-time service for two months as campaign director. Those present were Mesdames W. W. Cook, G. R. Ellis, G. E. Laskey and C. Joline; Miss Myrle Neely and Messrs. H. A. Gray, A. E. Kelly, W. E. Wilson, Harry J. Awker, Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, J. P. Marrs, Jacob B. Price, J. C. Hunt, E. A. Bebb, M. A. Ellis, J. H. Allison and Walter Robbins.

Mr. H. C. Lyons, expert furrier from Al Rosenthal's, Oklahoma City, will be at our store Saturday —one day only. Furs accepted for cleaning, glazing and repair work. Perkins-Timberlake Co.—Adv.

Early Sellers of Wheat Lost Money, Says Report

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. (INS)—Heavy early marketing of wheat in the United States, in the face of a large carry-over of old wheat, resulted in congestion at terminal markets that probably cost farmers who sold their wheat between July 15 and Oct. 1, on an average of 10 cents per bushel, the department of agriculture announced today.

The disparity between wheat prices in Canada and in the United States during that period was due primarily to a congestion of elevators at terminal markets in this country, the report said. Stocks of wheat in the channels of trade have have been so large that it has been a serious problem to find storage space for current receipts at the terminal markets.
