Former Klan Head Accuses Hiram Evans Of Murder In Deposition

ATTORNEY AT ATLANTA SLAIN AFTER PLOTS

D. C. Stephenson, Serving Life Term For Murder, Makes Statement

EVANS NOT FOUND

No Comment Made At Klan Headquarters In Washington

PITTSBURGH, April 2. (U. P.)—Hiram C. Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, and others were charged with the murder of "Captain Coburn," an Atlanta attorney, in a deposition taken from D. C. Stephenson, former head of the klan organization in Indiana, it became known today.

Stephenson's deposition, taken Saturday in the penitentiary at Michigan City, Ind., where Stephenson is serving a life term for murder, was made a part of the federal court record today.

The deposition says Evans endeavored to have Stephenson get men to "murder Coburn." Stephenson refused to comply with the demands of the imperial wizard. "Coburn" was subsequently murdered, however.

Club Women Ask Decision On Rental Price of Auditorium

$150 Basis Urged As Equitable By Forum And Others; City's Delay Opposed

Women of Wichita Falls, as individuals, and as representatives of the music club and of the Womans Forum, called for action on setting the rental of the Memorial auditorium and told councilmen that an outside figure on the rental should be not more than $150 including stage crew and all other expenses of the building, at the meeting of the city council Monday night.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd replied that questionnaires had been sent out by W. E. McBroom, city clerk, and a number of replies received from other cities having auditoriums.

Shepherd Gives Position.

"The base price we figured in the outline we have is $200," the mayor said. "That does not mean the cost to your organizations and to charity and other organizations will be that figure, however. The figures we have are merely a part of a working schedule so that the council will have a place at which to start in determining what will be a fair charge. This building was not built to make money, and we don't want to make money out of it. Whatever charge is made will be as low as is practical to break even."

Mrs. Ben G. Oneal spoke for the Woman's Forum of which she is president.

"Our bookings are being held up by the delay," she said.

"We have heavy expenses to face in bringing noted artists here, and we must be able to know our local costs before making any bookings.

"We are not bringing these artists here for selfish reasons, but for cultural and educational. We are not going to profit financially from them. We feel entitled to some consideration.

"In all fairness to the women, we feel that no greater charge than $150 be made. We hear that an additional charge may be made for stage hands. For many attractions, these are not needed as no special scenery is used on moved during the performance. We have information that some of the auditoriums furnish the stage hands with the auditoriums."

The Music club, which for 18 years has fought against odds to bring high-grade artists here, according to Mrs. Fred Barron, wanted to bring Paderewski here this year, but his cost, coupled with the probable local expenses which were not definitely known, has made this inadvisable.

Comparative Prices.

Questioning by the mayor brought out the fact that the rental charged to the Music club by the Junior college for the auditorium is $10 and that by the Woman's club $25. The seating capacity at Junior college was placed at 1500, while the auditorium is almost three times that figure.

Saying that they were taxpayers and citizens, Mrs. C. Joline declared she had discussed the proposition with a number of business men who held the cost of the auditorium should not be more than $125 or $150. "The money received for these performances at the auditorium is largely reinvested in Wichita Falls," Mrs. Joline declared.

"There should be no great cost to the auditorium."

Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin said she heard the rental of the auditorium was to have been brought up at the meeting and that the women were there to make an appeal that the rental would be as low as possible.

No action was taken by the council, but the mayor said that whatever was done, he felt sure it would come quite close to being what was demanded. "Our working schedule calls for a rental of only $200, and you set $150 as a figure," the mayor said. "This leaves us only $50 apart, and I am sure that difference would not prevent the bring-

THREE KILLED IN BOOZE PARTY

One Slightly Hurt in Carnegie Affray

CARNEGIE, Okla., April 2. (AP)—Three men were dead and a fourth slightly wounded as the aftermath of a drinking party near here Sunday, and James Johnson was being sought tonight in connection with their killing.

Bodies of the three men, William Dale, Walter Swigert and Noah Williams, were found in a railroad cut just west of Carnegie this morning. They were all shot through the head.

Walter Looney, who was stabbed in the leg, testified at the coroner's inquest that the shooting followed a drunken scuffle in which he received his wound. Six men, including the three victims, Johnson, "Shorty" Nelson and himself, had been drinking and eating in the railroad cut, Looney testified.

THREE NAMED BY FALL AS HIS ADVISORS

Former Secretary Gives Names of Trio Who Asked Letter

EX-SENATORS NAMED

Lenroot Prompt in Making Denial of Connection In McLean Note

EL PASO, Texas, April 2. (AP)—Three republican leaders—a former cabinet member, who is now in Europe, a senator and a former senator — have been named by Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, as having advised him to write the famous McLean letter to the senate Teapot Dome committee in 1923 in an effort to conceal a loan of $100,000 from Edward Doheny, oil magnate.

"Cover-Up" Urged.

Fall, his friends revealed today, declared the party leaders urged him to cover up the loan from Doheny in the fear public knowledge would result in charges the republican administration had favored the oil man.

Former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin issued a prompt denial in Washington today either he or Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, had advised Fall to conceal the Doheny loan. It was put into the record of the senate oil investigation some time ago that Smoot and Lenroot visited Fall while he was ill just prior to the time the former interior secretary wrote the McLean letter.

Criticism Feared.

Lenroot said no cabinet officer or former cabinet member was present when he and Smoot talked to Fall. He declared he had insisted Fall appear before the senate committee and disclose all the facts as to where he had obtained funds to enlarge his New Mexico ranch holdings. Fall then named Edward B. McLean, the Washington publisher, as the man from whom he had borrowed the $100,000, according to Lenroot.

Fall said it was felt the fact Doheny had just loaned $10,000,000 to the Mexican government with the consent of the administration might bring criticism of the administrations' Mexican policy if it became known a cabinet member had received $100,000 from Doheny.

Today her half-clad body was found hidden in the tall grass surrounding a deserted lot where school boys were playing baseball. A deep gash on her ankle at first led police to believe she had been struck by a mojor car and dragged there to be concealed.

Candidates For City Offices Give Manager Plan 50-50 Chance To Pass

The city manager plan has about an equal chance to "go over" in the city elections today, according to the candidates for the various offices who could be reached for statements Monday night. Whether the first six amendments will be adopted by the voters did not bring forth a statement from Mayor R. E. Shepherd, who stated he had no definite comments to make on the situation.

J. W. Akin, opponent of Mr. Shepherd in the race for mayor, declined to commit himself on the outcome of his personal candidacy, or the fate of the 12 amendments. He did, however, state that "we will try to have a good, clean election, satisfactory to all."

A total of about 3000 votes will be cast in the election, Mayor Shepherd predicted.

Whitelaw Gives Opinion.

In the rather "medium" vote which he predicts will be cast, the amendment providing for the adoption of the city manager plan of government "will be defeated." E. S. Whitelaw, candidate for street commissioner, stated. As to the race in which he is interested, Mr. Whitelaw said "it will be a close one, but I believe I'll win."

Politicians in Wichita Falls before the city election has already come along so quietly that "it's rather hard to tell what might happen at the last minute," W. L. Dalton, candidate for public utilities commissioner, said. He expressed himself as being out to win the post which he seeks, but admits that "it will be a close race with my competitor." Mr. Dalton would not definitely express himself on the fate of the various amendments.

All Confidence.

J. H. Patton, Mr. Dalton's opponent is "very confident" he will be elected, and is likewise confident that all twelve of the amendments to the city charter will be "snowed under."

J. W. Hunt, opposing E. S. Whitelaw for the office of street commissioner, said "I am confident that my friends will not go back on me, and that I will be elected." In regard to the other features of the election, however, Mr. Hunt declined to make a definite statement, asserting that he "would equally serve parties favoring and against that city manager plan."

VOTING BOXES OPEN EARLY FOR ELECTION

12 Proposed Amendments To City's Charter Up For Decision

MAYOR TO BE CALLED

Public Utilities and Street Commission Posts Also Offer Contests

The eyes of leading Texas cities will be cast in the direction of Wichita Falls early Tuesday night, when voters here will have decided whether Wichita Falls is to join the group of Texas municipalities now operating on the city manager plan of government. Returns from the election, which are expected to be virtually complete by 8:30 p. m., will also reveal the name of the city's mayor for the ensuing year, and will name officials for the office of public utilities commissioner and street commissioner.

Arrangements Made.

Arrangements for the election have been completed, all supplies, with the exception of the ballots, have been distributed, and the various polls will be opened Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock, according to William E. McBroom, city clerk. Election judges at each box, as provided by state law, may at their discretion announce preliminary results after 7:15 p. m.

R. E. Shepherd, incumbent, and J. W. Akin are candidates for the office of mayor; J. W. Hunt, incumbent, and E. S. Whitelaw are running for the office of street commissioner, and W. L. Dalton and J. H. Patton are seeking the office of public utilities commissioner. P. B. Curd, at present in the office, is not seeking re-election.

Activity Light.

Less political activity in the races than has characterized the city elections in several years is believed to be characteristic of the campaign this year, when the attention of the voter has been diverted to the proposed 12 amendments to the city charter. The "first six" amendments would provide for the operation of the city under the city manager plan, a system now in use in Fort Worth, Austin, Beaumont and several other Texas cities. The remaining six amendments may be stated briefly as follows:

Amendment No. 7 provides that the city tax rate should be fixed by the board of aldermen after the tax rolls have been completed instead of before.

Sewer Tax Vote.

Amendment No. 8 will abolish the sewer rental tax and substitute an ad valorem tax of 10 cents. It would also provide funds for the extension of the public library, and would enlarge the park and playground facilities, and would provide funds for street and alley maintenance when needed.

Amendment No. 9 would provide for the funding of the legally created debt of the city, as already authorized by state law, when it is found necessary. It would also provide for the issuance of bonds for improvement of public parks and playgrounds, and for construction of sewage disposal plants and incinerators.

Amendment No. 10 would create a park board of five members, to supervise park and playground maintenance and improvement.

Amendment No. 11 provides for the adoption of the street improvement law passed by the legislature which clears up conflicting statutes relating to paving assessments.

Boundary Lines.

Amendment No. 12 provides for the repeal of sections conflicting with any new amendments adopted at this election.

Attention of voters in the city districts with polls at the Jefferson street fire station and the South Side Baptist church has been called by Mr. McBroom, who points out that boundary lines for these voting districts coterminate with the boundaries of county precincts No. 13 and No. 17, respectively. This will prevent voters in the district from being confused as to the location of their respective polls, Mr. McBroom said.

New North Texas Federal Court Proposed In Bill By Mayfield

WASHINGTON, April 2. (U. P.) A bill creating a new division of the federal district court for northern Texas was introduced today by Senator Mayfield, democrat, Texas.

The bill introduced by Senator Mayfield, to create a new division of the federal court for northern Texas, probably is the result of inconveniences to the two judges of this district in covering such an extensive territory, Judge W. E. Fitzgerald, former president of the Wichita Falls Bar association, said Monday night. Judge William H. Atwell, Dallas, and Judge J. C. Wilson, Fort Worth, are at present holding court for a territory that extends from Dallas to San Angelo, Abilene, and further north to Amarillo. Although uncertain, Judge Fitzgerald ventured that the Mayfield bill probably aimed to place the Amarillo territory in a separate division, under Judge Wilson of Fort Worth, leaving Judge Atwell in charge of what he thinks probably might be styled the "federal district court for northwest Texas."

AIRMEN MAKE TRIAL FLIGHT

German Plane to Carry Large Crucifix

DUBLIN, April 2. (U.S.)—Capt. Hermann Koehl, German trans-Atlantic flier, with his new assistant pilot, Commandant Fitzmaurice, chief of the Irish Free State air force, made a trial flight over Dublin in the Bremen today.

Commandant Fitzmaurice has displaced Arthur Spindler, who arrived here in the cockpit of the Bremen with Captain Koehl, and who is said to consider the Baldonnel grass takeoff as unsafe owing to the small wheels of the German plane. Spindler wanted a wooden runway laid down and the position of the takeoff altered, and it is understood that he refuses to participate in the flight unless these changes are made.

A number of people were today allowed to inspect the cockpit of the Bremen, in which a big oak Galway cross with the figure of the Savior is prominently displayed. Baron Von Huenefeld, backer of the flight, and the third man to be aboard in the ocean hop, is extremely religious.

In Dublin tonight there is considerable heavy betting regarding the chances of the Bremen to negotiate the trip to New York successfully.

Harmony Meeting Unattractive To Constitutional Democrat Leaders

AUSTIN, April 2. (AP)—R. Harper Kirby, resigned chairman of the state "dry" and "constitutional democrats" faction; Highway Commissioner Cone Johnson, its mouthpiece and Former Attorney General W. A. Keeling, considered as a member of the organization's inner council, do not expect to attend the "harmony" meeting of party leaders called for April 7 in Dallas, it was learned Monday.

J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls; M. M. Crane, Dallas, and other prominent democrats, have issued a call for the conference in an attempt to bridge intra-party breaches. Governor Moody, announcements said, will be invited to make an address—perhaps the keynote speech.

After saying "no" to a question as to whether he would attend, Mr. Johnson added: "I know where I stand and I think most everybody else knows where I stand."

Mr. Johnson already has started a stump campaign against Al Smith, Reed, Ritchie or any other candidate believed "wet."

Blacklist Bars Many Speakers Known Nationally as Communistic

BOSTON, April 2.—(UP)—Blacklist containing the names of many national notables alleged to have been barred as speakers before the Daughters of the American Revolution because of supposed communistic and pacifistic leanings, has been made public here.

The names were given out by Mrs. Helen Tufts Baille of the Somerville chapter following a speech before the Boston Ethical society on "Patrioteers and Blacklists."

Bishop William Anderson and President Mary E. Woolley of Mount Holyoke college were among the most distinguished persons whose names appeared in the blacklist.

Several organizations, including the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. were listed. Mrs. T. Baile declared that any one known to be associated with any of the organizations named was not permitted to address D. A. R. gatherings on the ground that they had radical, socialistic, communistic, or pacifistic sympathies.

"Those who made up this list are thoroughly irresponsible, stifling everybody who is likely to be progressive or tending to free speech and thought," declared Mrs. Baile, who is a direct descendant of Anne Adams Tufts, revolutionary heroine.

Mrs. Baile said she became interested in the blacklist because two Unitarian theological schools, Meadville and Berkely Divinity schools, had been barred as socialistic and communistic organizations.

Among the individuals named in the blacklist made public by Mrs. Baile were Clarence Darrow, Rabbi Harry Levi, Miss Anna Louise Strong, writer; Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard law school, E. Talmadge Root, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches; William Allen White, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Dr. Davis Starr Jordan, Professor Felix Frankfurter of Harvard law school, W. E. Dubois, negro essayist; Alfred Baker Lewis, the Rev. Geo. Lyman Laine, Judge Geo. W. Anderson, Norman Angell, political writer; Norman Hapgood and Mrs. Florence Luscomb, member of the International Ladies' Garment Makers' Union.

We Wish Our Shoes Were Made of Glass

Sometimes we wish our shoes really were made of glass, like Cinderella's slipper of long ago, so that you could see the little differences of workmanship that spell the difference between a good shoe, and one that merely looks good.

You can judge the style and the luster of the leather, but we can't show you such things as honest inner soles, real leather counters to prevent stiffness, full cut vamps and waxed linen stitching thread.

If we sold only a few hundred thousand pair a year, we frankly admit that we could not give you such shoes for the prices we ask. Nobody could. But our shoe orders run into millions of pairs, and of course the manufacturer effects important economies in their production. This saving we pass on to you.

Our shoes, more than anything else perhaps, represent the Penney ideal of Quality; a Quality that goes farther than mere surface prettiness and is built deep down into the merchandise itself.

Sleepy Harry Lauder Says He'll Not Desert His Songs

"Retire?" he asked today. "Well, I might, if you'll find me a better job. Meanwhile, well—"'Oh, it's nice to get up in the morning, but it's nicer to lie in bed'."

Yes, Harry was in bed, during the interview.

"Sweetest Baby in Texas!"

For over fifty years, mothers, like this well-known Texas woman, have been telling each other about California Fig Syrup, and leading physicians have been endorsing it. Nothing else acts so gently and harmlessly to propel the souring waste from the delicate system of babies and children, which, when allowed to remain, keeps them cross, feverish, bilious, headachy, weak, with coated tongue, bad breath, broken-out skin, no appetite or energy. Its rich, fruity goodness helps to give tone and strength to their little stomach and bowels so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. It helps to build up and strengthen them—makes them active and happy.

"I have used California Fig Syrup with my little daughter since early babyhood," says Mrs. D. Smith, 109 S. Calaveras St., San Antonio. "Whenever she has a cold, is the least bit constipated or doesn't seem just right, I always give her a little, and it fixes her up quick. She's the picture of health, now, and friends say she's the sweetest baby in Texas. She has never had a serious illness, and I give California Fig Syrup full credit for it."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. See that the carton bears the word "California."

$5,000,000 Appropriation Asked For Reimbursing Farmers in Zones Of West Texas; Entomologist Testifies

WASHINGTON D. C., April 2.—An appropriation of $5,000,000 by the federal government to reimburse farmers of non cotton zones in the seven West Texas counties, where infestations of pink boll worms has been discovered, was urged on the house apropriations committee today. No final action was taken but Representative J. P. Buchanan, author of the joint resolution, calling for the appropriation, said he would cooperate with Dr. C. L. Mariatt of the Bureau of Entomology to prepare a statement showing how the money would be expended. This is to be prepared in answer to objections raised by Chairman Haugen of the committee, who insisted that if the government is to bear the entire cost of reimbusement it would be establishing a new policy.

Chief witness of the morning was Doctor Mariatt, who stated there will be 367,000 acres comprised in the non-cotton zones and that it had been estimated the actual loss to farmers denied privileges of planting cotton, the chief money crop of this area, would be $10 an acre.

State Pays Loss

He showed that for the previous infestation in southeastern Texas, where the pest was eradicated by establishment of such zone, that actual loss paid through the state of Texas to the farmers ranged from $30 to $35 an acre, but that in that case the federal government had borne but four per cent of the loss.

The chief difficulty before the committee today was to convince Chairman Haugen that the federal government should bear the entire cost. He sought to compare this activity with that of the government in controlling activities of the corn borer and in the proportionate shares borne by the government in eradicating foot and mouth diseases as well as tuberculosis in cattle.

Doctor Mariatt explained that former efforts of the department have shown that the pink boll worm can be stamped out through non-cotton zones, but that no such measure can be adopted for the corn borer, since this pest may feed on other plants besides corn, while the pink boll worm hibernates only in the cotton seed. Moreover, the department witness explained that in this instance it is proposed to entirely stamp out the pink boll worm while no such hope is entertained for the work against the corn borer or the Japanese beetle.

The best that can be hoped for is that their ravages may be controlled or minimized. In addition he explained, no attempt is being made to prevent planting of the crops on which those pests feed.

Now Is Time

In the pink boll worm work Marlatt explained it is proposed to pay only the difference between the revenue which the cotton farmer would derive had he planted his money crop with that he is to actually receive from the proceeds of some other crops. The witness also pointed out that unless this is done this year the opportunity to stamp out the pest may be gone, as the infested area is contiguous to the entire cotton growing section of the southwest and if allowed to spread there is no telling how much territory it will cover.

Further he pointed out that Texas cannot supply the money for reimbursement of these losses without a special session of its legislature and that for that reason this is called for as an emergency measure.

P.-T. A. Speaker Urges Wise Use Of Leisure Time

Mrs. Phebe K. Warner, club woman of Claude, addressed about 700 patrons and pupils at the Reagan Junior high school Monday afternoon on the subject "The Wise Use of Recreational Hours."

The speaker defined the eight hours spent in play as the most dangerous of the three divisions made of the 24, recreational, sleep and work.

"Our rise or fall in life depends on the manner in which we spend our leisure time," Mrs. Warner concluded her talk after urging that parents do the utmost in thir power to show the youth of the nation the way to amuse themselves constructively and not destructively.

The speaker quoted the amazing figures, that, while only one billion dollars is spent each year in this country for educational purposes, two billion are expended on cigarets, and that crime costs the country billions of dollars annually.

Rare Old Violin Owned By Wichitan

Story of Famous Bergonzi Violin Told

A WICHITA FALLS musician owns a rare old violin which has been made immortal through the pages of a modern historical novel "Alice of Vincennes" the story of the first French trading post to be established in America, written by Maurice Thomas.

When Eithel Allen Nelson, violinist, purchased a fine old violin in Vincennes, Ind., some years past, it meant to him merely an addition to his already growing family of rare violins. But a bit of research recently has disclosed the fact that he is in possession of a lost violin which has occasioned a great deal of speculation.

QUOTING from the historical novel "Alice of Vincennes" comes the following paragraphs which form the basis of Mr. Nelson's supposition that the Carlo Bergonzi violin of the novel is really in his possession:

"A side remark here may be of interest to those readers who enjoy the dream that on some fortunate day they will invade a lonely nook, where amid dust and cobwebs, neglected because unrecognized, reposes a masterpiece of Stradivarius or some other great fiddle maker.

"Oncle Jason knew nothing whatsoever about old violins. He was a natural musician, that was all, and flung himself upon his fiddle with the same passionate abandon that characterizes a healthy boy's assault when a plum pudding is at his mercy.

"But his fiddle was a Carlo Bergonzi; and now let the search be renewed, for the precious instrument was certainly still in Vincennes as late as 1819, and there is a vague tradition that Governor Whitcomb played on it not long before he died. The mark by which it may be identified is the single word, "Jason" cut in the back of its neck by Oncle Jason himself."

BY WAY OF explanation, it may be said that Oncle Jason was the fiddler of the old French colony who fiddled at the dances which enlivened and made tolerable life in those early pioneer days in the black lands of Indiana.

The Bergonzi owned by Mr. Nelson has marked on its handle in crude fashion the single word "Jason."

The local musician purchased the Bergonzi fro ma family in Vincennes named Bierhaus, who little suspected the identity and true worth of the instrument.

The violin was made in 1733 in Cremona Italy, by Carlo Bergonzi, one of the four great Cremonese violin makers, which group included Guarnerius, Amati and Stradivarius. Cremona is famous in history for its violin makers.

IN ADDITION to the prized Bergonzi, Mr. Nelson owns other instruments of value, chief among which is his Jacobs violin made by the great German violin maker in 1690 in the city Cremona. Hendrick Jacobs was the son-in-law of Amati and his favorite pupil. Mr. Nelson used this particular instrument in his work and considers it is prize violin.

Violin lovers and informed laymen find character in old violins and spend a great deal of time in interested study of the masterpieces manufactured by the recognized schools of the past.

THE VARNISHING of violins is a lost art, Mr. Nelson explains and for that reason, varnish once removed by accident or through ignorance, can never be replaced. It is because of this that lovers of violins place so much stress on the integrity of the varnish.

Superstitions are numerous everywhere. The Record News used to have a reporter who got mad and figured bad luck was his if anyone tossed a hat or cap on his bed. Richard Dix, Paramount film star, tells this one on himself and Mike Donlin, famous ex-ballplayer of the New York Giants. "We were walking under the portals of the ball park at Los Angeles where we were going to shoot a few scenes for a baseball picture when Donlin tipped his hat," said Dix. "Thinking he was speaking to a lady, I did the same. As I did I looked around and failed to see one anywhere. He saw my blank look and hastened to explain that tipping his hat there was just a little custom to keep the witches away."

Folks all over town seem to be talking about the talking motion pictures which are being presented at the Strand theater. Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer," is proving to be one of the biggest hits of the season.

Wallace Berry, who has been on the screen in Wichita Falls a number of times in the past few months in comedies, will return to dramatic characterizations in the near future, according to announcements by Paramount. Beery is to make "Beggars of Life" with Richard Arlen and Louise Brooks.

Doris Kenyon, one of the most popular women of the film world, is due to open Wednesday at the Olympic theater with Milton Sills in "The Valley of the Giants."

Failure to Make Will Puts Hoarded Fortune of Capitalists to Little Use

Strong Advice to Every Man on the Importance of Making a Will—Answering Four Questions Vital to an Engaged Girl—How Can a Middle-Aged Widow Make a Young Man Propose?

Dear Dorothy Dix—My husband is not in favor of making a will, for he says that all of his property will be mine if he should die before I do. But this is not the case, as we have a son. I wish my husband to make a will leaving our son whatever he wishes and then giving the balance to me for my lifetime. Do you think I am right in this matter? —READER.

Answer:

I certainly do. There is no duty more binding on a man who has property than to make a just and equitable will dividing it fairly between his wife and children. It is the only way by which he can stretch back his hand from the grave and protect his loved ones after he is gone; the only way by which he can prevent family squabbles that often alienate mothers and children, and turn brothers and sisters into enemies.

Not only do I believe that every man should make a will, but I believe that every man should leave whatever money he has to bequeath to his wife and daughters tied up good and tight and fast in a trust company, so that they can only get the income to spend and cannot touch the principal.

Nothing is stranger than the lack of intelligence that even shrewd business men show in dealing with this matter. A man will toil like a galley slave all of his life in order to lay up money so that mother and the girls may be comfortable when he is gone. He cannot endure the thought of their being deprived of the luxuries to which he has accustomed them.

He cannot bear to think of his wife being reduced from affluence to poverty and being one of those forlorn middle-aged women who, upon the death of their husbands, are thrown out upon the world to earn their livings and who are reduced to hawking magazines from door to door or trying to sell daubv pictures or bungling fancy work that nobody wants and that their old friends buy out of pity.

Yet this very man will take no trouble to secure in some fool-proof fashion the money he leaves his wife. He knows that she knows nothing in the world about business; that she doesn't know a government bond from wild cat preferred; that she is so credulous and ignorant that she could be talked into any sort of an investment by a glib salesman; that she is so easy she would lend money without security to any one telling her a hard-luck story that she has never had any experience in handling more than $50 at a time.

The man knows that a baby is just as capable of managing an estate as his wife is, and yet he will leave it so that when he dies all of his property is turned over to a grief-stricken woman whose mind is more than usually befuddled and incapable of deciding any important question. Is it any wonder that the statistics of the insurance companies show that the policies of $10,000 and less that they pay to widows rarely last as long as five years? Or that we all know dozens of widows whose husbands left them well off and who have lost their money and are penniless?

Many men who do not want the bother of thinking out a fair division of their money leave all of their property to their wives, saying that they can always trust the children's mother to look after them. But this is not true nor is it a fair thing to do.

Sometimes the children's mother gets married and a second husband makes away with the estate. And always the selfish and greedy children get the lion's share. Sometimes there is a black-sheep son or a daughter who will not work or who is always getting into trouble, and mother spends the money that belongs by right to the good children in paying the prodigal out of scrapes.

There can be no argument about a man's duty to make a will, and your duty as a good wife is to nag at him until you make him do it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Will you answer these questions:

One. Does it pay to take love too seriously? My fiancee doubts my sincerity at times, as he says that I treat love lightly; but I feel that it doesn't pay to put one's life and soul completely on the altar of love and place one's sweetheart on a pedestal and worship him.

Two. Is it true that after a girl is married she is less regardful of matters of delicacy and stops blushing at smutty jokes and things that seemed shocking to her before she was married?

Three. Do you think that long engagements are usually headed for the rocks? Don't you think that a boy and girl who can weather a long engagement will have a better chance of weathering marriage?

Four. Don't you think it is silly to be sure of love before a long period of happy marriage proves it, let alone a three months' courtship? AN ENGAGED GIRL.

Answer:

One. If by taking love too seriously you mean letting your affection for some one individual absorb your whole life and your every interest and thought, then I think it is a mistake. Idolatry of any human being ends in heartbreak and disappointment, because we are always bound to find out that our idol not only has feet of clay but is made of mud.

Also, we can never be all-in-all to any one, and when he or she fails us we have nothing left to fall back upon if we have made any one individual the whole of our lives. Keep something of yourself for yourself is always the part of wisdom.

Two. In the old days it was supposed that young girls were kept wrapped in cotton wool and that they never saw anything or heard anything that had not been strictly expurgated for their benefit. It was only after these innocents were married that there were certain books that they could read and plays that they could go to see.

But nowadays we have no such inhibitions, and even girls who are pre-flappers are like Lady Kews' daughter of whom her mother said "that she was 40 years old and has heard all there was to tell."

Therefore, the matron now differs not from the maid, and whether she blushes at vulgar stories or eats them up depends altogether upon her innate refinement.

Three. Long engagements do generally wear themselves out, but those who weather one are certainly prepared to negotiate the matrimonial seas.

Four. The proof of the pudding is in the eating and the only test of real love is its endurance. Those who marry after a brief acquaintance are simply taking a chance on their affection and congeniality.

DOROTHY DIX.

Quitaque Ginnings Lower At Season's Close

QUITTAQUE, April 2. (Spl.)—The two cotton gins of Quitaque have closed for the season. Ed Grundy, manager of the Quitaque gin, states that he ginned over 1300 bales. Roy Martin, manager of the Gilbert Gin company, states that he has ginned something over 900 bales, of which gives a total of over 2200 bales averaging over 500 pounds to the bale.

This is something like 25 per cent of the number of bales ginned last season.

Previously, they had expressed belief collections would fall under the total last year for the month.

MODISH MITZI — The Goofer Is Still Plotting — By Jay V. Jay

Mitzi wants it to be plainly understood that she is writing this novel. The Goofer volunteered to help the plot and provide the heart interest. When he suggests a far east atmosphere, Mitzi says it reminds her of astrology and that, in turn, reminds her of the new sports costumes with the zodiac signs.

A heroine simply must dress the part—and Mitzi's given her a big one. There's so much in having the characters fit into the background. If the Goofer insists upon astrologers then Mitzi is going to insist upon her heroine wearing this dress with the sunray effect in rainbow colorings.

Or would the goofer rather that she wear the new three piece jersey costume with the jumper appliqued in modernistic style with stars suggesting a view of some symbolic constellation. Mitzi advocates this style for two reasons, because zodiac signs are new and modernistic effects are popular.

The Goofer says he always sees the heroine dressed just like Mitzi. Why can's she wear a dress with revers down the front? If it's smart enough for anyone in or out of a book "What do you feel about the plot?" asks the Goofer. "I think," replies Mitzi, "it needs dressing up." Groans, yes, from the Goofer.

LINDA -:- A Love Mystery of Collegiate Life

By Virginia Swain.

THE VOLUNTARY STATEMENT

The bottle was half full of a pale green fluid. Linda lifted it to her nose, and met the unmistakable fragrance of eau de cologne.

She set it down and picked up the other. It was empty of perfume, and held not even the ghost of an old fragrance. A broken sorority pin and several beads had been dropped into it for safe keeping.

Linda was about to turn away when her eyes fell on a smal' red jar lying in a pin tray. It was no larger than a thimble. She knew at once what it was, for Dulcy had displayed it proudly at the breakfast table a few days before, as the last word in cosmetics.

The little jar was a purse container for perfume in paste form. Almost before she had screwed off the tiny cap, Linda knew that she had found what she had come to look for. The moment the cap was off, the jar emitted the spicy odor that she had smelled on the muslin.

She set the jar down again and left the room.

County Attorney Oscar Johnson had lost $65 at poker the night before, and drunk bootleg sour wine on top of home made beer.

He came stamping up the slushy steps of the courthouse a few minutes before 9, for the excellent reason that a splitting headache had waked him earlier than usual, and he hda quarreled with his wife, so that home did not lure him. Perhaps, he thought to himself while trying to crank his second-hand car, if a fellow got up at 6 every morning, followed all that early-bird-and-don't-watch-the-clock hooney for a while, he could cut loose from this damned job and go into private practise—cinch a few crack defense cases and begin to live like a gentleman.

Oscar, the son of a Swede who worked for years on the Mesabi iron range, had never lived like a gentleman. That may have been why the life seemed so desirable to him.

The Marbury courthouse corridors are not inviting at best. This th ehouse?"

morning, as yet unwarmed by the inadequat eheating system of the old building, and tracked with innumerable muddy footprints, they could only dampen good spirits and make bad spirits worse.

Oscar Johnson came into the anteroom to his little office and bit back an expletive common on the Mesabi range but out of place in Marbury. But he had to swear in some fashion.

"What the hell are you doing here?" He addressed the slim young person in the simple black dress who was bending over the magazine table. The young person had golden hair and an insouciant manner.

"I've been waiting for you," she answered him. "Began to think you weren't coming.

"Humph!" said Oscar Johnson. "It isn't nine yet."

The golden-haired girl followed him into his sanctum and sat down in the old wooden chair she had graced on her former visit.

"I came down to save you the trouble of sending for me," she explained, "and to ask you to be careful how you handle that violet dress. Chiffon won't stand much strain, you know."

Oscar Johnson stopped in the process of taking off his gloves and looked at her. "We'll take care of the dress, all right," he said, a trifle ominously.

Linda looked at him ingenuously. "I hope you will. It's awfully becoming."

The county attorney gave her a grim, sidelong smile. He hung up his fur-lined overcoat, rubbed his cold hands a moment and sat down at his desk facing her.

"And so you suddenly decided to be helpful," he mused. "Well, that's good. I wasn't entirely satisfied with our last interview, you know."

Linda's mouth drew tight, but she made no move to interrupt him.

"If you don't mind," he said, "I'll call in Miss Deal to take down your statement in short hand."

Linda nodded. A freckled girl with mousey brown hair answered his pompous signal. When she was seated, he leaned back in his swivel chair and clasped his hands on his stomach. "With your help," he said, smiling beneficently upon her, "we'll get through this troublesome business with the greatest speed and the least unpleasantness. You just answer my questions, taking your time to it, and Miss Deal will take down the whole business. First of all now, were you at the party at which Pete Damor was killed?"

Linda took a long breath and sat up straight. "I was," she said.

"With whom did you go?" His eyes peered sharply at her.

"With Doyle Hoskins," said Linda, "and others whose names I did no tknow. "here were six of us in Doyle's car."

The attorney smiled knowingly. "And two of those were Pete and Pearl?"

"Yes," said Linda.

The man nodded and smiled and went on smiling. "We thought so. What happened after you reached the house?"

"Nothing much. Music, dancing. A lot of people I had never seen before. Everybody half drunk. Doyle and I got separated and I went into the hall."

"And then?" The county attorney stopped swinging in his swivel chair and lurched forward to lean on the desk and stare at her.

Bizzell in the Limelight

IT IS TRUE that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country? It may be truth and then it may be bunk. Regardless of the viewpoint, Educator W. B. Bizzell is in the limelight again. When the Fergusons came in W. B. Bizzell resigned the presidency of the A. & M. college at Bryan. He thought he saw the handwriting on the wall. He had made a great record as the head of the A. & M. college. Before his call to A. & M. he had made a splendid record as president of the College of Industrial Arts—Texas state college for women.

Before he resigned the presidency of the A. & M., Bizzell knew where he was going. He had been tendered the presidency of the University of Oklahoma at Norman by the president of the board of regents of that institution. It was a unanimous call on the part of the regents. He accepted. He journeyed from Bryan to Norman. He has made a marvelous record as a university head in the state of his adoption.

Just the other day Dr. Bradford Knapp of Oklahoma A. & M. college at Stillwater resigned to become president of the Alabama Polytechnic institute. Friends of education in Oklahoma were given a great shock. They thought highly of Dr. Knapp. He had been a most admirable executive of their A. & M. institution of learning. Then what happened? Harry B. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture, which is ex officio board of regents for the Oklahoma agriculture college, tendered the presidency of the Oklahoma A. & M. to President Bizzell of the University of Oklahoma. President Bizzell declined. He said that while he considered it an honor to be offered the presidency of the agricultural college of Oklahoma at a salary of $12,000 a year, he was compelled to decline it as he did not believe his work at the university was completed and he had a program there still to be carried out.

Bizzell is a native Texan. He was prominent in the educational life of Texas for years and years. His departure from Texas to accept a great responsibility was looked upon as a great loss to Texas by friends of education the state over. It is real honor to be given the presidency of the Oklahoma university and after three short years to be tendered the presidency of the great agricultural college of that commonwealth at a commanding salary and given a free hand to work out the problems which face the chief executive of an important institution of learning.

Business Activities in Texas

TEXAS is in for a busy and a prosperous year. Sales in all lines showed a large increase as compared with the corresponding month of last year. Continuance of an active demand for merchandise in both wholesale and retail channels of distribution was an important feature of the business situation during the month of February.

All this is emphasized by the editor of the monthly business review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas. This is not all. Reports to the bank indicate that there is a growing spirit of optimism among both consumers and retailers and that the consumers' demand for merchandise is gradually expanding as the season advances.

Building permits during February increased from $8,067,741 to $8,405,500 or 4.2 per cent. Texas is the leading agricultural state, and the agricultural situation, the review states, was greatly improved during the month of February as the result of general rains and snow, which fell over practically all of the district. There is plenty of top moisture in most sections for plowing and planting, but sub-soil season is still lacking over a large area, due to the dry winter and considerably more moisture will be needed as the season progresses.

Financially speaking, according to the review, the conditions are very favorable and the outlook for a busy and prosperous year most encouraging. Texas is on the upgrade. Building activities tell the story of the growth of the commonwealth.

Democrats are Reminded

THAT THE contract for installation of an auditorium cooling system at a cost of $25,000 has been let to a New York concern in order that it will be cool for even the fattest delegate or visitor who might attend the sessions of the Houston convention.

That chief enforcement agent, A. R. Butler, has planned drives against big distilleries and well financed liquor rings in Texas. That he has seven men all highly trained and aditional agents will be attached to the flying squadron as the drive progresses.

And there you are. Delegates and visitors are to be kept cool and permitted to wet their whistles with bayou branch water carefully frigidaired.

There are wet pros and dry wets in this land of the free and think of it, George Washington owned a distillery. Andrew Jackson had a large interest in a distillery and before the coming of the 18th amendment Andrew W. Mellon controlled a big distillery and Warren G. Harding owned brewery stock.

In this a new civilization? Why ask?

Ford Alone in His Class

HENRY FORD employs a large number of miners in his coal field. He has a wage scale. Each digger receives $8 per day. His diggers never go on strike. His diggers are never evicted from their cottages. His diggers are never on the verge of starvation. His diggers send their children to school. They pay their debts. They are contented as well as prosperous. Now what is the answer?

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, April 2.—Variegated notes of a reporter covering the biggest beat in the world.

Homely girls who like to dance go to parties given by blind men at the Light house in East Fifty-ninth street. There usually are too few feminine partners to go around, and the girls never have to be wall flowers.

Ring Lardner put "Measles" signs on his house at Great Neck, on Sundays, to keep away uninvited visitors.

The best view of Broadway, day or night, is obtainable from the north end of the 22nd floor of the Times building, at Forty-second street. It costs nothing to see this "biggest show on earth."

A former Episcopalian minister now is a chorusman in a Broadway show.

George Olsen, the famous band leader, likes his mother-in-law and doesn't play any instrument.

Arturo Ramos, son-in-law of H. H. Rogers, Standard Oil millionaire, and husband of the former Countess Salm, and David K. Bruce, son-in-law of Andrew Mellon, are clerks in Wall street institutions. They're learning banking.

A men's custom-made shirt shop here has only women clerks.

One of New York's famous columinsts is moving because his house is between two speakeasies, and persons mistaking the address ring his bell at all hours.

The most popular speakeasies are those that have bars and radiate old-time saloon atmosphere. Seems that both men and women like to have their drinks standing up.

There now are female "sandwich men." The boards they carry advertise beauty parlors.

Blue-eyed babies are more in demand for adoption than brown-eyed ones, Children's Aid Society workers report.

All the things that the so-called intellectuals laugh at when "Babbitt" says them, were spouted seriously by high-doomed speakers at The Nation's dinner, in honor of Oswald Garrison Villard.

Trans-Atlantic liners now have automatic steering devices, marble swimming pools, airplane taxis, theaters and flower gardens, but when there's a fog down the bay they're as helpless as unattended scows. Not long ago one of the big ships stayed at quarantine, within sight of New York, unable to dock and discharge passengers, for 36 hours. Fog was the reason.

A woman carrying a baby came out of a bank in Forty-second street. She handed the child to a woman waiting outside.

"Thanks so much for letting me use him," she said, loud enough for passersby to hear. "I left my baby at home, and I always have trouble cashing a check if I go to a bank without a baby for identification."

Texas Tales

By C. D. WAIDE

Sinclair Lewis would feel at home in Houston. Its principal thoroughfare is Main Street. Its largest luncheon organization is the Rotary Club. Its chamber of commerce is a boosting organization. And it has a slogan.

Houston's slogan originated in the pre-airmail days when railroads were something to be proud of. History doesn't tell how many roads it started with, but finally it got up to 17.

Then Houston discovered that it needed a sea, so it went out and dug a channel and brought the Gulf of Mexico to its back dor. Then it's slogan became: "Where 17 railroads meet the sea."

A few years ago Will Rogers spent an idle Sunday in Houston as the guest of a friend. They drove across a group of freight tracks on Polk Avenue. This was in the pre-balloon tire days.

"I had been a little bit skeptical about Houston having 17 railroads," drawled Rogers, "but I'm convinced now. We just crossed all of them."

Houston is the only city in the country that ever built a special auditorium to house a political convention. Its citizens are proud of it, even if some of the republicans do call it "Jesse's jackass barn." The democratic donkey will find a nice, clean stall when he comes here on June 26, built especially for him and never contaminated by the presence of elephants, dead moose or even horned frogs.

All visitors to the democratic convention are advised to bring pocket compasses to use when about to be assigned to hotel rooms, unless they have an instinctive sense of orientation.

Houston people boast of the cool nights here in June "if you have a south or southeast room." And the boast is not exaggerated with that qualifying clause appended. During June and July there is a steady gulf breeze blowing from the southeast during virtually all the 24 hours of a day, and the visitors whose compasses show that they have landed in southeast rooms are certain of perfect sleeping conditions.

As a matter of fact, the Houston climate in June is not at all bad, especially in comparison with temperatures in mid-Western cities at the same season. During the day there is a constant sea breeze and it is a rare occasion when the thermometer goes to the nineties in June.

The breeze blows all night, until about dawn, when there is a calm for two or three hours. Consequently those who sleep in rooms with southern or eastern exposure are comfortable. Most homes have sleeping porches with exposure in one or both these directions.

The democratic national convention is going to cost Houston about $500,000, which is a pretty high price for a city to pay for the correct pronunciation of its name. But almost everybody in the country knows now that it is "Hewston" and not "Houseton" nor even "Hooston."

Texas-Okla. Press

"SCANDAL" IN THE PUBLIC PRINTS.

The best way for a sick person or a sick community is to recognize the situation and do promptly and courageously whatever has to be done to restore health. The way to get rid of scandal is to face the music, tell the truth, punish or eliminate the offenders and make a new start in the right direction. And honest newspapers, which often have to bear much criticism for printing the stern truth about a bad situation, probably make the biggest contribution of all to the ushering in of a new and better day.

DEMOS SHOULD ADOPT PROGRAM FOR FARMERS.

The democratic party would strengthen its cause if it should make a strong declaration for the emancipation of agriculture, and nominate a candidate who was in sympathy with a program that would bring this about. There are several candidates who could be depended on to do this and it would show that the democratic party really wants to do something for agriculture.

SO THIS IS STATE FIRE COMMISSION?

If the state fire insurance commission has no more reason for existence than the annual shuffling of municipal rates, then the thing ought to be abolished.

There is about as much justice, merit and intelligence in the annual "penalizing" and "awarding" methods of the commission as there is efficacy in eating bananas to grow hair on a wooden leg. The juggling of figures and annual changes would indicate that a system akin to the jury wheel was in use.

GOVERNOR ASKED TO AID PROSECUTION OF OIL MAN

TOPEKA, Kan., April 2—(INS)—Seth G. Wells, state oil inspector, today asked Gov. Ben S. Paulen to direct W. A. Smith, attorney general, to take a hand in the prosecution of R. G. Snell of Bird City. Snell is charged with having refused to pay $2500 in gasoline taxes assessed against the firm of Snell and Freeland. The attorney general's office had gone over the charges in the case and had indicated it would assist in the prosecution if directed by the governor.

100,000 COAL MINERS IDLE IN MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, April 2.—(UP)—More than 100,000 coal miners in the central competitive field were idle today, the first "work day" since expiration of the temporary agreement under which mines were operated since October, 1927, a check-up by United Press disclosed.

The temporary agreement expired Saturday midnight and caused a resumption of the suspension which began last April, when the Jacksonville wage scale expired.

Begin Dipping Cattle.

AUSTIN, April 2.(AP)—Travis county representatives of the state livestock commission began dipping cattle Monday in an effort to eliminate fever ticks and make possible the lifting of a quarantine imposed on this section of the state some weeks ago by Governor Moody.

READ THE FIRST:

Jill Justin, ultra-modern of 20, and adorably pretty, is kidnaped by auto bandits, but rescued by Jack Stuart, who takes her home and remains to win her hand in marriage.

Three years later Jack and Tony Justin are paid $100,000 for an interest in their tungsten mine by Pat Sweeney, father of Mary, whom he has nicknamed "Mike."

Nita Ravelle, a gay divorcee, and Professor Le Tarte, a dancing man, come to town, each with separate identities. They infringe on the domestic tranquility of Jack and Jill. Later reconciliation smooths relations, and for a time all is well.

Nita Ravelle intrigues Jack's presence with her at a notorious roadhouse. Jill hears of his going and follows with Mike Sweeney and Le Tarte, and sees Jack and Nita together.

Nita and Jack start back to town. They are kidnaped and taken to a house in the mountains. After dictating a letter Jack writes to Jill, directing how money should be paid to ransom him, the abductor's lock the doors and depart.

As soon as they are alone, Nita begins to play her game—that of stealing the heart of another woman's husband. When morning comes she has not won.

They are released. Jack hurries home, overhears the family talking, and learns he has been seen with Nita at the Casino. Jill greets him with loving faith and tenderness.

(Now Go On With the Story.)

CHAPTER XLVI

Was man ever faced, asked Jack Stuart of himself, in an agony of desperation, by a situation so diabolically arranged as this? What could he do? What turn could he make? He couldn't—and he wouldn't if he could—lie himself out of it. What explanation without lying could he make in relation to Nital Ravelle? How had he happened to be sitting with her? He could, at least, explain that. But he couldn't tel the whole truth. And yet he must tell some kind of a story. He couldn't just stand there like a precious fool, dumb, saying nothing!

And so he told it, the story he had fixed upon, the story with "the woman in the case" left out. And then, when he had told it, the crazy, impossible hold-up that wasn't a hold-up, but a kidnaping, and the incarceration in "the house somewhere over a hill," the writing of the note to Jill asking for a thousand dollars to ransom him—when he had told it all, and heard what Jill said, he felt his case to be hopeless, indeed!

"But there has been no one to see me with a note from you, Jack," was the sickening answer she made to tha tpart of his tale. And she said it in a tone that wailed of the last forlorn hope's death knell. "If they had wanted money," she said, "why should they take such a round-about way of getting it? They could have taken yuor check, payable to bearer. Oh, Jack, Jack, you must have been awful excited when you framed that story. It doesn't hold water anywhere.

He looked at the others in the room in the lingering hope that among the four he might find one litti espark of faith.

Alas, Jack! When the mother of your children, the wife who at that moment would have sacrificed her right arm for proof of your innocence—when she lost faith in you, then you had, by rights, but little chance of finding it elsewhere.

"And so I convicted by you all," h esaid finally, and there was bitterness in his voice, for, knowing himself inncent, he could not see the glaring inconsistencies of his story, as they did, and he felt, therefore, that he had been adjudged too harshly. "You accept the evidence—all circumstantial—as absolute proof. Because my story is unusual, you say it is impossible. All right. I've told the truth. That's th' best, and all that any man can do!"

Then up spoke Peter Justin again, the little man whom no person nhad ever heard speak unkindly of a fellow mortal. Peter said:

"It is true that things look dark for Jack. There's no getting around that fact, as he, himself, admits. But he says he was alone last night. And I want to say here and now, that in the five years and more that I've known Jack Stuart, I've never known him to tell a deliberate lie in any matter of consequence. Therefore, I am going to accept his word against any and all circumstantial evidence in this affair!"

With that Peter stepped over and arraigned himself at Jack's side plainly implying by his action his belief in the honor of his son-in-law. There was nothing theatrical nor studied in his manner. Trouble had come upon his family, and he, as the head, felt it incumbent upon himself to take the initiative in any possible adjustment.

And what of Jack Stuart? How did this demonstration of faith that he had only a moment before been seeking affect him now? Peter was accepting him in the face of all convicting evidence, because he had never been known to tell a lie.

But he had not said that he was alone throughout the night of his absence. Peter had assumed that—taken it all for granted. But it was on that very assumption that his father-in-law had taken sides with him. Could he accept Peter's faith on that mistaken inference? Obviously he could not. He had not lied as yet, despite the temptations, and he would not start now.

So he told th etruth again—not th ewhole truth even this time, but the truth—and down again c ame his house on the sands.

"Dad Peter has misunderstood," he said with forced calmness that gave to him an air, almost, of indifference. But no man ever told the truth and found it more difficult to pronounce. "I did not say," he proceeded, "that I spent last night alone. He has given me his fiath on the strength of his trust in my honor. And so I cannot accept it, as I cannot hide behind the inference he has taken.

"Why, Jack!" wailed Jill, as she saw the props of her father's faith knocked endways by this admission, and realized that she, too, had begun to take heart again. "Then you were—you were with that—that person last night, after all. You admit it?"

"I admit nothing—nothing of the kind, Jill!" denied Jack, fairly at his wits' end to find some loophole, some manner of escape from the net that enmeshed him. "I cannot tell th' person's name in whose company I was. I would be a despicable cur if I did!"

A laugh, hysterical and mocking, broke from Jill Stuart. She wanted to scream out the name of that "person" who had stolen the father of her children, the woman whose identity he could not reveal. He would be a "despicable cur" to tell it, despite the plain fact that every one in the room already knew. He could invalidate, could destroy the peace and happiness of his own family, but the "good name" of his "lady fair" must be protected at all hazards. It was to laugh—and Jill laughed!

"What would I be if I spoke the —er—person's name?" she asked, in a mocking tone. "Would I be —ah—what you said?"

"Forbear, my daughter," admonished the priest softly, as he laid his big hand on the quivering shoulders of the wife whose heartache and wounded pride might drive her to the utterance of words beyond recall.

"And listen to me, my son," he went on, turning to Jack. "You both know that I have nothing but your mutual welfare and best interests at heart. You know that your happiness is one of my dearest hopes."

He was silent for a moment, his heavy brows drawn together as he gazed around at the small assemblage. Then he spoke again.

"I would ask," he said slowly, "that you all give close attention to what I am going to say. It is, perhaps, unusual. But so are the circumstances.

"All of you here have heard Jack's recountal of his experience of last night. You will grant, I am sure, that even though it may be unusual, it is by no means impossible.

"This is essentially a family affair. I am going to ask that every one present consider it as such, and to hold inviolate anything that has been said here tonight. The happiness of a family probably depends upon tonight's issue. Jack, just as he says, is in honor bound not to reveal the name of his companion. None of us, save him, knows for a certainty that person's name, however much we may suspect. For that reason I am asking that you all simply forget that any name has been mentioned. What Jack chooses to tell his wife is no concern of ours—not one of us!"

Pat Sweeney and his daughter, Mike, and Peter Justin, each gave the promise asked by Father Ryan —not to mention the affair again, either between themselves or elsewhere. Shortly afterward the four, including the priest, took their departure. Jack and Jill were left to straighten out the tangle of their domestic affairs as best they could.

He looked at her and the look was laden with anxiety. What position—what stand was she going to take? Would she insist upon him telling her everything?

Not just then, he very soon learned. Instead, she told him something that made him curse himself for a fool—to curse his blind carelessness in driving Nita Ravelle so close to her apartments—and to curse, inwardly, the busy-mindedness of Mike Sweeney!

For the latter, it appeared, had been driving along the street with her father just as Nita emerged from the coupe. Mike had seen Jack at the wheel, and, as a friend of Jill, had driven straight to the Stuart apartments, taking her father with her, although not mentioning to him what she had seen.

She had found Father Pat and Peter Justin with Jill, but had taken the latter aside and told her of having just seen Jack, realizing, as she did, the wife's anxiety. She told, of course, of Nita's presence in the car with Jack. She did not, however, tell either the priest or Peter.

"So you see, my dear husband," said Jill, in conclusion, a fine sarcasm edging her tone, "the folly of trying to keep from me th' name of your interesting companion. You were seen together, both going and coming. Can you ask now why I am skeptical regarding your 'kidnaping' story? Would I be anything other than a fool if I accepted it as the truth?"

And pinned right down to cold, hard logic, Jack Stuart was compelled to admit that his alibi seemed impossible to believe.

"What sent Mike Sweeney and you with that Professor Le Tarte out to th' Casino last night?" he asked, with a view to working himself out from the direct rays of the spotlight.

She told him with a frank readiness.

"When I came home from shopping a little after four, and Clara gave me your message, that you had been called out of town and might not be back until morning, I wondered, naturally, where you had gone. Then at 5 o'clock Le Tarte called me up and informed me that Nita Ravelle was to meet you early in the evening at the Casino cabaret.

"What was I to do, Jack Stuart?" demanded Jill, her voice full of sobs. "Was I to wait for you to come back with some fairy story —like the one you did bring with you after more than 24 hours?

"No, my handsome husband—my too-handsome husband!" The sob-laden voice broke suddenly, the cry of the wronged wife who knows her husband is irresistible to all women. "No, I didn't propose to wait an dhave nothing to refute your story with!"

"And so I stand convicted by you all," he said finally.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

FLETCHERIZING

Many of you have practiced chewing your food at least thirty times before swallowing it. Health teachers all over the have been teaching people to masticate more thoroughly. Horace Fletcher taught the laymen through various books the necessity for masticating food well, and his name has gone down in history as the foremost exponent of the art of chewing. The word "Fletcherized" is now in all standard dictioaries.

The chemical action taking place in the mouth is this: The digestive fluid of the mouth contains a ferment of enzyme called "ptyalin" which has the chemical power to change starch into sugar or maltose. Only five per cent of the entire starch digestion takes place in the mouth, but this is the most important part of the digestion, and is equal in many ways to the other ninety-five per cent which takes place in the small intestines. If the starch is properly mixed with the saliva it is changed just enough so that when the starch passes through the stomach it is not harmed by the gastric juice.

Starch must be digested by an alkaline ferment, and the acid of the stomach only interferes with this digestion. Consequently, if the starch is somewhat changed before it reaches the stomach, the stomach acid will not have so pronounced an effect upon it.

There is no doubt but what if food is enjoyed it will digest more readily, and be assimilated more completely. When food is chewed properly a finer flavor will be noted, as the starch in the food is changed to maltose and consequently that food will be more relished.

One of the greatest objections to cooked foods is that they encourage hasty swallowing, whereas, with the raw foods it is necessary to masticate them thoroughly or they cannot be swallowed with comfort.

If you completely masticate your food you will find that you will eat much less. Many digestive troubles will be overcome by this simple practice of mastication, which will cut down the quantity of food.

Mastication should be practiced diligently if only to give the teeth exercise, as the blood will not circulate in the gums well unless they are properly used. Organic salts and vitamins will likewise be extracted from the food more readily, and furnish material for the building of good strong teeth.

Be sure and chew melons and fruit as well as you do any other kind of food, because these foods contain a good deal of sugar and require mixture with the saliva.

Milk must also be well masticated, and each swallow should be churned about in the mouth before it is swallowed. Then let it just trickle down the throat, a few drops at a time. Otherwise you will find that air is swallowed along with the milk.

To play safe, take plenty of time to eat a small amount of food each meal. It is folly to hurry through a meal in five minutes, and then spend hours complaining about the indigestion thus produced.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: J. H. H. asks: "Does persistent use of city chlorinated water which is also hard lead to hardening of the arteries, and is it injurious to the eyes?"

ANSWER: I do not believe there is any harm in the use of chlorinated water from the city water supply. I do not know of any kind of water which is fit for drinking purposes that will have any effect on producing hardening of the arteries, or which will injure the eyes.

QUESTION: M. J. C. writes: "You frequently state that starch and sugar are not necessities. Will you please explain more about this? Many doctors claim they are necessary."

ANSWER: I have written many articles on this subject and will be glad to send you some of these if you will send me your name and address. Space does not permit me to answer you at length on this subject.

QUESTION: "Thanks" asks: "Could you tell me what I could do for my voice? For the past two years it has been failing and is almost gone. I am very nervous."

ANSWER: Trouble may be entirely from lack of flexibility of the diaphragm which is a flat muscle separating the chest from the abdomen. This muscle controls breathing, so when it is paralyzed or its action interfered with, it is impossible to use the voice even to breathe. Of course, the trouble with your voice may be entirely caused from a disease of the throat or of the vocal cords, themselves. You should see a throat specialist and have him diagnose your case.

POSTMASTER KILLS CLERK AND THEN SHOOTS SELF

DOUGLAS, Ga., April 2. (UP)—Postmaster L. S. Peterson of Douglas shot and killed J. E. Kirkland, money order clerk within an hour after he had been relieved of his duties Sunday, and then committed suicide. Peterson had asked Kirkland to take a ride.

Growing Children

sometimes require a tonic as do their elders ★

GIVE your child the right chance to develop, and you will not regret it in later years.

Many children become under-nourished due to lack of appetite. Keep the appetite keen. Food nourishes the body and makes it grow.

Also watch Nature's warning for changes in the system. Skin troubles—pimples, boils and that sallow complexion—all foretell a body weakness.

In such cases, S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It improves the appetite; helps Nature build rich, red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red blood cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years, S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

Children like S.S.S. It is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

★ The physical welfare of the child is being given more attention by school authorities. Failure to keep up with class work and absence from school is probably due to a nervousness and run-down condition that may be largely attributed to a deficiency in red blood cells.

FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By ENRICO CARUSO.

Caruso was born at Naples on Feb. 28, 1872, and was in his forty-eighth year when he died—August 3, 1921. His parents, contradictory to general belief, were not of peasant stock.

The great tenor began singing at the age of 11 years, but it was not until 1894 that he made his debut. This was at the Teatro Nueve, Naples, in an opera called "L'Amico Francesco."

This first public appearance netted Caruso the magnificent sum of ¼ in cash.

Gradually his fame spread from one Italian city to another, then from Italy to Russia, to France, to Germany, to Brazil and Argentina. It did not attain its height, however, until he reached New York.

His American debut was made on Nov. 23, 1903, when he sang the Duke in "Rigoletto" at the Metropolitan Grand Opera house. His career that followed this debut led him from triumph to triumph.

Caruso was also a cartoonist and had a book of sketches published in 1906—but even the greatest of people have their faults.

Caruso's career was the product partly of his natural gifts, partly of unusually fortunate circumstances and partly of his own great industry. He established in the minds of many thousands of people a high standard of vocal performances, and though he himself is gone his glorious voice remains.

During his last tour of the United States it was my privilege to meet him backstage one night. Here follows the story he told to the gathering of friends there:

"A friend of mine, a concert singer," Caruso said, "recently accepted an offer to sing at an entertainment given by a New York woman, who was unsparingly using her husband's dollars (which had been amassed in the sale of household commodities) in effort to gain social recognition.

"The price we agreed upon for my song," the friend said, 'was $1000, and after the party, when the lady was about to hand me the check, she seemed rather hostile.

"'What's the matter?' I asked her. Didn't you like my song?"

"'I should say not!' she replied. 'Here I am paying you $1000 for one song and you didn't put in a single high note!'"

BEWHISKERED, LONG-HAIRE DHOUSE OF DAVID NINE HERE TODAY

CHAMPS PLAY UNIQUE TEAM

Cultists Formidable Club Despite Odd Apearance

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor.

That most unique club in all baseball, the House of David, will play the Spudders today at Athletic park. The long-haired, bewhiskered athletes of the Benton Harbor, Mich., cult have been playing Texas league teams this spring with success. Victories over the San Antonio Bears and Houston Buffs and well-played games with other clubs in the Texas loop attest to the diamond skill of the bewhiskered toseers.

In several years on tour the House of David nine has established an enviable reputation. With the exception of fast minor and major clubs the House of David team will defeat any ball nine. It has sent several players into organized baseball.

The House of David players look like prehistoric men, from the shoulders up. But there is nothing venerable about their ball playing, though they are the oddest, most laughable sight in baseball.

Make Two Triple Plays.

Two triple plays have been made this spring against Texas league clubs by the cultists. One was several weeks ago against Shreveport. Last Friday the House of David made a three-ply killing to help beat the San Antonio Bears. In Talley the left fielder, the leading slugger, and Tucker, first baseman, the Davids have two particular stars.

Joe Kiefer and Roland Roberts are slated to work on the hill for the Spudders. It is Cobb's turn to catch, but Joe wasn't feeling well yesterday and Lapan may wear the windpad.

Skipper Williams will start the lineup, for the first time this season, that probably will be the infielders and outfielders opening day with the Shreveport Sports, April 11 out at our lot.

It will be Benton, ss; Turgeon, 2b; H. Fitzgerald, cf; Lamb, rf; Jenkins, lf; Swenson, 3b; Stanton, 1b.

Tullos Here Today.

Les Tullos, manager of the Abilene West Texas league club, will take charge of his squad this morning in drills at Athletic park. Among the tossers whom the Spudder boss will turn over to Tullos are Kallina, 1b, McCarthy and Bob Turgeon, infielders; Ray Fitzgerald, outfielder; Hillin, Buvid, Jackson, Brower and Galeria, pitchers.

Tank Horton, the local youth and Guera, purchased last week from Corpus Christi, both catchers, also will join Tullos' aggregation today.

Play Under Way In Indian Tennis

Junior college Indians ended the first six matches of the tennis elimination tournament Monday afternoon. Thirty-one men are entered in the tournament, requiring 15 and one bye preliminary matches.

The winner is to represent Junior college in the State Junior college meet.

Last year, without a tennis coach, the Indians won the state championship in both singles and doubles. With the number of excellent tennis players that are out this year the Indians will again probably be serious bidders for the championship.

The high wind and blowing sand handicapped the racqueters considerably in their first day's play. Monday's results:

J. W. Atkins defeated Seldon Hale, 6-3, 7-5.

Bill Casey defeated Carl Cameron, 7-5, 6-3.

Pinky McConnell defeated Willis Clark, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Fred Couper defeated Douglas Smith, 6-1, 6-3.

Raymond McPhail defeated Mark Walker, 7-5, 6-4.

Jimmie Ford defeated Gaylord Giles, 8-6, 6-1.

City Ball League Adopts Schedule

City Baseball league completed its organization for the coming season at a meeting held at Landon-Hill Sporting Goods company Monday night.

Representatives for the Producers creamery, De Molays, Scotland Plumbers and Katy railroad adopted the schedule drawn up by Al Parker, vice president of the league, and ratified the by-laws of the loop.

The first game of the season will be played May 6, between Producers creamery and Katy railroad on Jalonie diamond No. 2

Freeport Has Holiday For Buffs' Game Today

HOUSTON, April 2. (AP)—The Houston Buffs will leave early Tuesday morning for Freeport, where Tuesday afternoon they will engage Manager "Red" Adams' Freeport Tarpons in a contest. Freeport has declared a half holiday.

Manager Snyder will send a first-string combination against the Tarpons. The Tarpons have been working hard in an effort to get in good shape for the start of the South Coast league season April 21.

Cincinnati Fine Industrial City But Also Has Second Division Ball Club

Style Unorthodox But He Can Hit

Al Simmons steps "in the bucket" when he hits. That, in the eyes of baseball players, is a crime. But the Philadelphia Athletic manages to struggle along under his handicap. Indeed, he's one of the greatest batters in baseball.

MAT VICTORY TO YAQUI JOE

Indian Beats Jack Gorman In Three-Fall Match

Yaqui Joe won another mat match last night. The Indian defeated Jack Gorman in a grueling, three-fall mill at The Gym. Joe won the first fall in 19 minutes with a flying scissors; Jack took the second fall in 18 minutes with a body slam and Yaqui Joe won the decisive fall in 16 minutes with a body slam.

It was an interesting bout.

Spike Stewart easily outpointed George Jerigan of Dallas to win the six-round boxing windup. It was a slow affair.

Dempse Moore, Wichita Falls light-heavy, who engages in the Olympic final trials late this month at Boston, boxed three exhibition rounds with Bob Raley.

Country Boy Owens gave Alvie Anderson another shellacing in four rounds. Alvie took two nine counts. Floyd Anderson and Billy Hollis boxed a six-round draw.

Johnny Owens, brother of Country Boy, outfought Kenneth Adams in four rounds.

Longhorn Errors Help San Antonio Win, 9-2

AUSTIN, April 2. (AP)—The Texas university baseball team, which has won 15 southwest conference championships in 16 years, fielded in such an amazingly slip-shod manner Monday that the San Antonio Bears of the Texas league had no trouble in making away with their exhibition contest, 9 to 2.

Nine errors were charged against the Longhorns.

Junior College Racqueteers In Six Matches

WACO, Texas, April 2. (AP)—The Detroit Tigers blanked the Waco Cubs, 7 to 0 here this afternoon in the first game of a two-game series. The Cubs didn't hit well nor did they field cleanly to support mediocre pitching.

REDS' OUTFIELD IS EXPERIMENT

Aging Pitching Staff And Vet Infield Mediocre

By JOSEPH GORDON
Universal Service

Cincinnati, a settlement in the southern part of Ohio, bordering on the Ohio river, one of the leading industrial cities in the middle western part of the United States of America, population 409,333 (estimated 1927)—unabridged dictionary.

On the face of it this is ample information. There is no disputing the fact that Cincinnati is a fine industrial city and that it is located on the Ohio river. But after careful study, contemplation and research it is quite safe to add that it is also a second-division ball club which finished fifth in the National league pennant race last season and which should finish no better than seventh during the impending campaign.

With the exception of a few experiments in the outfield, Manager Jack Hendricks of the Reds has done nothing to reorganize his team during the present training campaign. As far as can be seen, he will go through with the same honorable and ancient pitching staff that he had last year, and, as far as can be learned, with the same infield and hitting array.

Pitchers Aging

The pitching staff, great once upon a time, is beginning to feel the coming on of age. The melody lingers on, but the arms refuse to behave in the old-time manner. They went back just one year since the last season, and unless something resembling a fountain of youth is discovered by the manager of the crew they will have harder sledding than ever.

The combined ages of the Cincinnati pitching staff would add up to an imposing figure. There is Eppa Rixey and Jakey May and Carl Mays and Adolph Luque. Donohue, who is holding out, is getting along in years, and about the only enthusiasm and college spirit that will be seen on the staff during the coming season will be that of Jablanowski, who is coming to the Reds well recommended.

The Red infield will remain untouched. It will remain untouched, that is, academically speaking. Pipp and Kelly will continue to alternate at first base and Hughie Critz will play second base. Ford will play short, with Pittinger in a relief capacity. Dressen, of course, will play third base.

Infield Is Fair

Altogether this is a fair infield, with but only fair hitting powers. Kelly and Dressen, of course, are capable of dense busting at any given moment, and Wally Pipp may have one of his good years.

The outfield, so far, is a brand-new one. Hendricks is looking for boy wonders, and maybe he has found some. He will use Ethan Allen, formerly of the University of Cincinnati, and Pid Purdy and Marty Callahan, who came to the Reds from the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league, for better or worse.

So far these young men have served with great distinction, and according to reports from the Reds' training camp at Orlando they have been hitting with frequency, regularity and steam. But what they will do when the season opens is another story and the whole league may be surprised.

Daring Move by Jack

Incidentally, this is the most daring move Hendricks has made in his whole career, putting a brand-new outfield into the field. Curtis Walker will be on hand in the event of an emergency.

All in all, there is nothing fancy or solid or even hopeful about the Cincinnati ball club. They should be beaten out by both Boston and Brooklyn in the impending season, and for excellent reasons. Brooklyn's club is far better rounded out, what with their great pitchers and pretty good fielders and hitters. Boston, if its pitching staff comes through, may be even stronger than it looks right now.

But, no matter what happens to the Reds, Cincinnati will still remain one of the leading industrial cities in the middle west of the United States of America.

A god team is being whipped into form under the management of Joe Donley, who succeess W. A. Tisdale as manager. The material from which the team is being selected is better than ever before. In the pitching department, E. E. Bumgarner and Otto Manning and E. Burlson gave promise of a successful season. The team loses one of its star catchers by the death of Roscoe Braswell, who was accidentaly killed last week at Electra.

GENE DICTATES TOM SELECTION

Tex Reluctant But Tunney Insists Heeney Be Foe

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 2. (UP)—The dictates of Gene Tunney have been obeyed in the selection of Tom Heeney as the challenger in the only heavyweight title bout this year.

Six months ago Tunney from his retreat in the Maine woods advised the United Press that he regarded Heeney as the outstanding contender.

Later when Tex Rickard and Tunney were at odds over the story that the promoter was Jack Dempsey's manager, Tunney declared:

"When it comes to having Gene Tunney defend his title, Tunney will have something to say about the selection of an opponent."

Gene Favors Tom.

After Heeney fought a ten-round draw with Jack Sharkey January 13, Tunney announced he preferred to meet the New Zealander in his next title bout.

The champion again asserted his choice following Heeney's 15-round victory over Jack Delaney, March 1.

All the while, Rickard argued against Heeney as a possible opponent, regarding the New Zealander as too stolid to build up into a popular challenger. The promoter not only holds Heeney lightly as a box-office attraction, but is known to regard him as a poor fighter.

Rickard Reluctant.

Rickard held out to the last minute against naming Heeney as the challenger, hoping to bring Heenev and Johnny Risko together in a final elimination bout in hopes of adding prestige to Heeney's record, or better still, eliminating the New Zealander entirely in favor of Risko.

Following orders from Rickard at Miami Beach, Fla., Matchmaker Jess McMahon announced that Heeney must meet and defeat Risko before he would be matched with Tunney.

Balking at another Risko bout for Heeney, Charley Harvey, the walrus mustached manager of the New Zealander, journeyed to Florida last Friday to demand that his fighter be given the preference over Risko because Heeney won a 10-round decision from the baker boy at Detroit last October.

After a brief conference, Tex Rickard announced that Heeney would meet Tunney.

Tunney Makes Match.

Boxing circles here today believed that the match was made by Harvey and Tunney and that Rickard merely accepted their decision.

The New York athletic commission appears to have played into Tunney's hand in demanding that the champion name his opponent by next Tuesday.

Without the pressure of the boxing fathers who threatened to drive the contest away from New York unless the champion named his opponent immediately, Rickard might have held out for a Risko-Heeney match instead of acquiescing to Tunney's wish to have Heeney established at once as the challenger.

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

MILT STEENGRAFE probably will pitch opening day. Selection of the Californian to hurl the first game of the championship season April 11 against the Shreveport Sports seems assured after his glittering work Sunday against the Waco Cubs. The Californian is ready now to toil nine innings and he will be at his best a week from tomorrow when the bell rings. Steengrafe seems in for the greatest year of his career and he promises to be among the leading chuckers in the loop this campaign.

Another pitcher has been found who can hit. Lester White smacked the Waco flingers with such gusto Saturday and Sunday that it seems he should abandon throwing curves and play the outfield, a la Ruth. When a fellow bangs two home runs in one game as Lester did Sunday and a pair of blows in the clinch, like he smote Saturday, it seems he is too mighty a clouter to be in the lineup only every fourth day.

THE BATTING ORDER of the Spudders looks set except for leadoff man. Turgeon will hit second, to be followed by Howard Fitzgerald, Lamb, Jenkins, and probably Swenson. Whether Stanton or Benton will lead off and who will bat sixth or seventh looks undecided.

Stanton has shown excellent qualities as a leadoff man. The kid seldom hits at a bat ball and looks them over very carefully. The greater experience of Benton, however, may give him the preference.

Dempse Moore is to start hard training today for the finals in the Olympic boxing trials. Or rather, our Dempse is to pay more attention to actual ring work for the next few days. As for condition, he is a member of the champion Wichita Falls Junior college relay team and always is in superb form.

JACK MATLOCK, the veteran heavyweight who has fought numerous capable punchers will arrive today to work with Dempse. This will give the collegian a couple weeks' strenuous ring drill before he leaves April 17, to join the western boxing team at St. Louis to go to Boston, where the finals are to be held April 23 and 24. Dempse is representative of the west in the light heavyweight division.

WALT JOHNSON IS IN HOSPITAL

After-Effects of Influenza Send Barney to Seclusion

WASHINGTON, April 2. (U. P.) Walter Johnson, the famous grand old man of baseball, "should be out of emergency hospital and in good shape within a few weeks," Dr. Harry Kaufman, his physician, predicted today.

Johnson, who has been in Jacksonville with the Newark club of the International league, of which he is now manager, was brought here and removed to the hospital from a train in a wheel chair, suffering from the after effects of influenza.

"Johnson's condition has been very satisfactory during the past two days," Dr. Kaufman said, "and the outlook for him is splendid.

"He needs rest and building up and I have no doubt that, barring further sickness, he should be out of the hospital within a few weeks."

Johnson takes his confinement stoically.

The "Big Train's," friends—of whom there are thousands acquired during his 20 years as a pitcher with the Washington Senators—have been kept from visiting him until his condition improves.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, April 2. (AP)—The cotton market was higher today on moderate demand, influenced by complaints of dry weather in the Southwest and expectations of a bullish boll weevil report from Washington within the next few days. July contracts sold up to 19.33, or 25 points net higher, and closed at 19.31, the general market closing very steady at net advances of 22 to 29 points.

The opening was barely steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points, active months showing net losses of about 4 to 10 points in early trading under liquidation, together with local and Southern selling. This was probably promoted by a favorable view of over Sunday weather conditions in eastern and central sections of the belt, but the relatively steady cables brought in some buying at the decline and prices turned steadier.

After selling about 16 to 18 points net higher, the market reacted several points under realizing with a renewal of local and Southern selling, but offerings were light and prices firmed up again during the afternoon. The highest levels of the day were reached in late trading, when May sold at 19.45 and July at 19.03. Closing prices were within a point or two of the best.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 2. (AP)—An advance in Egyptian futures, fears of a return of unfavorable weather to the belt and an opinion by a prominent New York authority that the recent sharp advance in stocks would extend to commodities were responsible for a net advance of nearly $1 a bale in the cotton market today. Following an early decline of 8 to 10 points on the good weather over the week-end May contracts traded to 19.08, July 18.88 and October 18.56, or 25 to 27 points over the lows and 17 points above Saturday's close.

At midafternoon trading was quiet and prices had eased 4 to 5 points from the top. Exports 56,563 bales.

The market was steady in early trading today and after easing off to levels 8 to 10 points net down rallied and recovered the loss.

Despite slightly better Liverpool cables the opening was easy. Prices continued to decline after the start on selling induced by the favorable weather in the belt over Sunday and prospects of relief for the western drought section. May traded off to 18.81, July 18.62 and October 18.31, or 8 to 10 points under Saturday's close.

The lower prices attracted some trade buying and purchasing by ring traders on the belief that the recent advance in stocks must soon extend to commodities. The early loss was soon recovered and at the end of the first half hour the market was unchanged to two points up compared with the previous close.

The market strengthened later in the morning due partly to complaints of delay and damage to the crop from cold weather, but mainly to predictions by a well known New York authority that the speculative excitement in stocks which has now spread to Europe will eventually lead to inflation in the commodity markets and excite speculation in them. May traded to 19.08, July to 18.88 and October to 18.65, or 25 to 27 points up from the lows and 17 points above the previous close.

At noon the market was steady and within 1 to 3 points of the top.

Cotton futures closed steady at a net advance of 24 to 26 points.

Leading Issues on New York Market

NEW YORK, April 2. (AP)—The bond market was quiet but firm today. Some traders apparently induced to limit their commitments temporarily by the sudden spurt in new offerings, which approximated $80,000,000.

Bangor and Aroostook consolidated gold 4s which moved up nearly 3 points to a new high at 91, were the feature of the railroad group. St. Paul 5s of 1975 again made a good showing and some of the seaboard issues made up losses sustained Saturday on profit-taking. Seaboard 5s, however, continued to sag.

Moderate buying of Sinclair oil 6½s resulted in another new high for the year, but otherwise there was only nominal trading in the industrial and public utility groups.

French issues were slow in responding to news that a movement was under way to settle the republic's war obligations. Budapest 6s extended Saturday's gain, again selling at the year's high. Italian Municipal and Latin-American issues made a good showing.

Broilers Continue To Take Top Prices

Practically all spinach on local markets is being supplied by local producers. The demand, however, remains heavy and no decrease in price has been effected. Squash, with new areas in South Texas added to production daily, slumped 2½c on the pound Monday. A decrease also was registered in Idaho potatoes and crated lettuce. Fruits and nuts remained unchanged, with no additions.

On poultry markets broilers continue to command top prices and are coming in slowly. Eggs remained unchanged at $6.50. Cream and milk prices were not changed on Monday's market.

Prices prevailing on local markets yesterday were:

Profit Taking and Short Selling Cause Further Decline in Prices on Stock Market

NEW YORK, April 2.—Profit taking and short selling, in fairly large volume, by those recently active on the bull side caused further decline in stock prices today. Motor shares were the weakest as a group and presented a tired appearance as they all slipped lower.

Radio, however, was the outstanding feature of the day as it fluctuated in a crazy manner dropping 8 points in early weakness, skyrocketing over 18 points to a new high record above 196 and then slipping off to close a point higher for the session. General Electric lost 5 for the day. General Motors more than 4, steel over 2 and other recent favored industrials a corresponding amount.

Calling to $25,000,000 in loans and a jump in the call rate to 5½ from a renewal of 5 per cent., the highest rate since early in January, added to general uneasiness.

Sterling rallied in good manner but other exchanges ruled quiet and steady. Cotton recovered on better trade news while the grain market turned dull with wheat and corn holding fairly firm.

"Wise selling" was spoken of by several brokers. In other words they declared that some of the more important operators during recent excitement had passed along part of their holdings to the "involuntary investors." Naturally they voiced expectation of reaction. While mentioning the forthcoming loan reports and the approaching holidays as influences thereto, they mostly stressed belief that Washington news would be without bullish flavor for the next fortnight or so. In a presidential year there is no prophet so wise as to say with certainty just what may come out of Washington from hour to hour. In addition to the oil scandals which have reached a state unequalled in history, there are taxes, railroad legislation and other matters before congress which provide full ammunition for playing politics.

Radio's wild fluctuations did not help alleviate nervousness. There was considerable more professional selling of the stock and as a result it was estimated that it harbored a larger short interest than ever at the close. Pressure was evidenced in the market for General Motors and other automobile leaders and they showed less resistance than during the past fortnight. There was talk of price war in the six cylinder field but those in the trade pointed out that the larger companies would not engage therein for another two months or so. What will happen in the motor industry after the spring boom ends, however, none can say. First estimate of Hudson's earnings for the three months to March 31 forecast $5.60 a share so that favorable dividend action should be taken soon.

Curb

Leading Issues on New York Market

NEW YORK, April 2. (AP)—The curb market was irregular and prices inclined to heaviness today, many issues showing rather extensive declines after opening strong. As there was little in the way of news developments, the recession appeared to be the result of continued profit-taking.

Bancitaly resisted selling at noon showed a small net advance. Bohack rose 8 points to a new high at 312, but Safeway Stores lost 3 points and some other chain store issues were similarly weak. A few motors were strong, Ford of Canada advancing 3 points. Copeland Products A, Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator, Proctor & Gamble, Stroock & Co., and Western Auto Supply were at new high levels.

Canadian Marconi was under pressure. Casein was pounded down nearly 7 points and some other issues which made substantial gains last week showed losses, among them Carnation Milk, Deere & Co., Adolph Gobel and New Mont Mines. The Utilities were heavy, Electric Bond & Share losing ground after reaching a new high at 49.

The Utilities were heavy, Electric Bond & Share losing ground after reaching a new high at 49⅝.

Favorable developments failed to buoy the sagging oils. Vacuum, which plans to increase capitalization with the possibility of a 100 per cent. stock dividend, sold off slightly. Pipe lines also showed small recessions.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, April 2. (AP)—Unofficial wheat crop estimates today, construed at first as bullish, presented other aspects when examined closer, and price bulges failed to hold. An outstanding feature was that although reports indicated 20 per cent abandonment of United States winter wheat acreage this season, an extraordinary big share, the amount left would still be somewhat larger than was harvested last year.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to ⅛c decline, with corn 1⅜ to 1¼c down, oats ⅛c off to ⅛c up, and provisions varying from 5c decline to an equal advance.

P.-T. A. WORK WINS PRAISE

Franklin Tells Kiwanis Club of Program

The Parent-Teacher association is engaged in the greatest business of the world, declared W. A. Franklin, superintendent of the Reagan Junior high school, in an address before a luncheon of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon.

The P.-T. A., the speaker pointed out, is a co-operative association whereby the parents and the teachers may become better acquainted with each other and out of a mutual understanding be better able to handle the problems relating to the training of children.

True Association

There is a great deal that the parents alone know about children which the teachers should know, and there is much the teachers know of which the parents should be informed, Mr. Franklin told the Kiwanis club.

"The association," he said, "is what its name implies, an association of teachers and parents and includes men as well as women. Prime purpose of the organization is to learn better the boys and girls of the country.

"At times the teachers must call upon the doctors, lawyers and police to help them in this task of making men and women out of boys and girls. One of the purposes of the P.-T. A. is to eliminate as much as possible the necessity for as many of these calls upon professional men as possible.

"The P.-T. A. is a vital organization in every school in the country now and it deserves the help of every father and mother and every citizen, for it is the greatest aid of the schools."

District Meet

Meeting of the P.-T. A. of the 13th district here April 18-20, when some 300 delegates are expected, was announced by Mr. Franklin.

Musical numbers were given by Misses Dorothy Nolen and Mattilyn Wilson. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Felix Collard, president, who announced an entertainment by Kiwanis next week of the Wichita Falls Spudders.

Two Stolen Autos Recovered by Police

A coupe stolen from H. C. Spence, 2506 Kemp boulevard Sunday night, was recovered by Police Officer G. W. Wright Monday night at 10 o'clock. The automobile was found parked on Bluff street. Nothing had been taken from the car.

Police believe that joy riders had abandoned the car. A second automobile recovery was recorded Monday when the automobile belonging to J. B. Morris, 1306 11th street, stolen Jan. 10, was reported recovered in Oklahoma.

THE CROSS

Novel Effect Secured On Stage of Wichita Church

Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, pastor of the First Christian church, for the second time within the last few months has introduced elements of novelty into his church services.

In connection with the Easter services being held nightly at the church this week Dr. Bash is conducting special musical program on the church platform, which has been converted into a semblance of Golgotha. A large white cross has been erected on the stage, and decorations applied give the illusion that the cross is located on a barren hill. Lighting effects are also used. Several weeks ago Dr. Bash supervised the production of a series of pageants based on the parables of Jesus, church adjuncts that had not been presented here before.

Coleman County Test Disappoints When It Drills Through Sand

Special to the Record News.

COLEMAN, Texas, April 2.—Disappointment in the Breneke area in southeastern Coleman county was registered this week when the Levi Smith-Jim McMahnon No. 1 T. B. Hill, 150 feet from the north and east lines of the tract in the Samuel Sprague survey No. 664, drilled through dry sand from 1944-55 feet.

The well was a southeast offset to the same company's No. 1 Breneke producer and was the keynote to a number of other proposed tests in that area.

A direct eastern test being drilled by the Py-Tex and Rex-Tex company on the J. M. Byrd tract is drilling around the 1000-foot level and will be closely watched for a possible extension of the area in that direction, although the southeast well has been determined dry in that sand.

The Hill test will be continued intending to encounter the Gardner sand which is thought to be slightly under the Brenecke level. Seven well-defined sands are known to exist in Coleman county and all operators are starting to sink their wells to the last possible production level.

COMANCHE IN OIL REVIVAL

New Producers Big Help To Oklahoma Pool

The completion of several nice producers has become the factor in a revival of activities in the field a few miles northwest of Comanche, Stephens county, in southern Oklahoma. A number of deals for acreage was closed during the past week, and as a result new locations were made.

Among the wells brought in in the past few days was the American Pipeline company No. 1 I. T. Bond, located in northwest corner of the southwest quarter of 7-7w-2s; it came in making 300 barrels on swab and is good for 180 barrels daily from the sand at 1534-48 feet.

Petroleum Producers have a derrick up for a test in the north half of section 12-8w-2s, Pace and Keyquarter of 7-2s-7w.

ing of any artists to the city. We will study the matter and you may be sure the council will do the best it can."

A safety ordinance to keep children and others from roller skating on the streets and alleys of the city was proposed by Roy Carter and defeated on first reading.

The paving ordinance, adopted by the council late in 1927, calling for the paving of Wilson street from Marshall to Bridwell, and of Marshall from Bridwell to Keeler, was repealed when the council was notified by the city attorney that the paving is now in litigation.

The water department was ordered to install fire hydrants at Speedway and Shawnee, and at Speedway and Harrison on the recommendation of Fire Chief Frank McClure.

Suggestions were made that street lights be placed at Avenue H and Munroe street, at Avenue F and Munroe street, and at Avenue I and Taft.

Final estimates for the driveway at the rear of the Memorial auditorium and the sidewalk in front of the building, were approved for $483.14 to C. G. Benson and $96.48 to L. H. Lyon.

C. M. Goodwin was named assistant election judge for the Bashara street garage.

The release of an old judgment was voted to clear the title of the south 200 feet of lots C and D of the Bullington subdivision of the Kemp West End addition.

The petition for permit to erect a corrugated iron garage at North Third and Broadway was postponed to next Monday for final action after protests by several property owners, including Charles Thompson, J. A. Ozment, O. G. Rankin, James Kane and J. A. Thomas. The building was to be erected by Mrs. E. H. Breaux on lot 12, block 33 at a cost of $650 for material and $300 for labor.

The proposition to raise the spillway at Lake Kemp was discussed, but no definite action was taken.

Town Without Airport Like City Without Gas Station, Says Halliburton

Earl P. Halliburton of Duncan, Okla., who was in Wichita Falls on business Monday afternoon, declared that the proposed oil belt commercial aviation passenger route between Bartlesville, Okla., and San Angelo, Texas, should, with the proper organization and financial backing, be a financial success from the very start.

Mr. Halliburton made the trip to this city in his airplane and as a result of his interest in the proposed oil belt route and the fact that Duncan has a fine landing field, it is belived that Duncan will be made one of the stops on the new line.

A meeting of representatives from all the towns located on the proposed route will be held here on April 11, at which time definite plans for organization of the project will be made, according to Wm. M. Bonner, chairman of the committee from the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce.

Mr. Bonner stated that an average of one commercial plane per day is landing in Wichita Falls already and that the prospect of the proposed oil belt route's success is excellent. Mr. Bonner, Chas. I. Francis, president of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce; Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber and B. D. Donnell, made a short trip as the guests of Mr. Halliburton in his ship during his visit to this city.

In discussing the proposed oil belt line, Mr. Halliburton called attention to the fact that it is the policy of the United States postoffice department to favor an established line if operated over a definite course on a definite schedule, in considering bids for carrying mail. The various towns along the route could establish flag stations for passengers, therefore, eliminating all landings except profitable ones, it was pointed out.

The importance of good equipment and competent pilots was stressed and Mr. Halliburton stated it as his belief, that by the time the first large number of curiosity passengers had been handled, the business men on the proposed route, will have recognized the commercial advantage of air traffic, and as a result, steady traffic of business men, especially oil men, would go over the route.

"When air lines are once established, most long distance highway traffic will be diverted to air travel and the nation will save many millions of dollars per year in road maintenance," he said.

"A town or city that has no airport and ground facilities for airplanes today, I place in the same category as the town or city of 1915 that had no filling station or garage for automobiles."

Hhalia, equipped with a $40,000 structure two years ago, is also seeking more room for additional pupils. Crowell recently completed an $80,000 structure, which now houses over 650 pupils. Poultry Expert Gives Lecture

About 75 poultrymen from all over Wichita county were in attendance upon the poultry clinic at the Perkins-Snider building Monday night that was held by Dr. E. A. McCain of Omaha, Neb.

Dr. McCain prefaced the clinic by a lecture on the prevention of disease in poultry. It is much easier and cheaper to prevent than to cure. He gave it as his opinion, which was backed up by the work of practical experimenters all over the country, that the parasites of chickens caused 80 per cent of all the losses—intestinal worms, mites, lice and blue bugs. All of these can be controlled by preventive measures. In the case of intestinal worms, there is no agency so good as boiling water thoroughly applied.

The control of coccidiosis, the most insidious pest of the poultry family, was taken up at some length and discussed very fully. Dr. McCain recommends first of all the administration of doses of epsom salts followed by an internal antiseptic.

Dr. McCain spent the afternoon with G. C. McGown, county agent, in inspecting flocks of turkeys in which blackhead had appeared. The same treatment was recommended as for coccidiosis—the use of epsom salts followed by internal antiseptics.

TWO FACE LIQUOR CHARGE

Man Wounded by Officers Again Raided

Sherman Irwin was charged in state court with possession of intoxicating liquors and H. W. Hollars was charged with possession and transportation following seizure about 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon of 16 gallons of alleged whiskey in two raids conducted by W. W. Belcher and Charles Gant, deputy sheriffs, and S. O. Hamm, state highway officer.

An automobile was taken by the officers and three gallons of whisky seized. Hollars was arrested in connection with seizure of the automobile.

At that time, after calling upon him to halt and after a chase afoot of several blocks, Ellis Summers, city motorcycle officer, fired several shots in an effort to make Irwin halt. One of the shots took effect in the man's arm.

BERT KING GIVES ADDRESS

"The Law as a Profession" was the theme of an address by Bert King, local attorney, to the Junior college assembly Monday morning.

"I do not want to minimize the criminal lawyer's profession," said Mr. King, "but criminal practice is only a part and a very small part of the profession. The civil law deals with a field that covers every branch of human endeavor. The civil law is a field that really offers an opportunity. The reason that most people do not succeed in any line of endeavor is that they have not been willing to labor."

In closing Mr. King said, "Life is just as heroic now as it ever was on earth. As civilization becomes more and more complex, somebody has to have an analytical mind that can wade through a mass of details and find the best reason. Whatever you do, if you want something easy to do not choose the law."

SENIORS HEAR OF SOUTH AMERICA

The cochineal insect is found in South America on a number of varieties of cactus, especially the napolea coccinellifera, which is cultivated as food for the insects. The crop of insects is then gathered, killed by heat, and placed on the market as a coloring matter in rouge, lipsticks and some varieties of cake coloring.

Demo Candidates Solid For Smith

ALBANY, N. Y., April 2. (AP)—Every democratic candidate for election at tomorrow's presidential primary in New York state is irrevocably committed to the nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith for president by the democratic national convention, at Houston, Texas.

The plan of the republican leaders is for an unpledged state delegation to the national convention.

TRENTON, N. J., April 2. (AP)—The makeup of the republican and democratic tickets for delegates to the national conventions was complete when the election bureau closed tonight, so far as the state party organizations were concerned. Today was the last for candidates for delegate and alternate delegate to file their nominating papers.

Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, is the only candidate who has filed for the presidential preference in either party.

The democratic candidates are pledged to Governor Smith of New York.

School Returns Show Increase

Early school district returns from seven of the 21 school districts of Wichita county show a slight gain this year over last, according to figures released Monday by Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools. Mr. Bryant, however, is not optimistic as to the final census, and expressed his belief that the county will do well if it holds its own against last year's figures, when the tabulations are complete.

The following schools have reported with figures for this year and last.

School—	1928	1927
Cashion No. 21	375	238

Pleasant Valley No. 7	84	85
Prairie Cottage No. 17	28	35

WOMAN SICK THREE YEARS

Helped By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Little Rock, Ark.—"I was sick for three years after my last baby came. I could hardly walk and could not eat nor sleep as I should because I was so nervous. I took seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used that number of bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I am feeling just fine. I have a large family and do the work for all. Your Compound made me a well woman, and I have a happy home now. I always try to keep a bottle in the house and I tell everyone about it." Mrs. H. A. Adams, R. F. D. 5, Box 63, Little Rock, Arkansas.

PREP GRIDDERS MEET RANGER

Coyote Eleven to Play On Foreign Field Saturday

Wichita Falls high school Coyotes play their second spring football game with Ranger high school at Ranger Saturday.

Last week Coach Bud McCallum and Assistant Coach C. L. Brannan drove the Pack through hard drills in fundamentals and will continue doing so this week. In the game with Haskell the Coyotes proved themselves weak in fundamentals but with two weeks' drill behind them, Coach McCallum's youngsters should be fairly well organized Saturday.

Several new prospects have been uncovered, according to McCallum, that should prove valuable men next fall. Earl Fletcher and Patton have been doing exceptionally well as backs and either of them may hold a regular berth next season.

A two weeks' training camp is planned for next season's men in August, though no site has been decided upon.

Two Childress Papers Merge

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, April 2. The announcement has been made of the consolidation of the Childress Index and the Childress Post. Consolidation will take place this week, with the Daily Index and the weekly Post being issued from the Index plant. Some 10 days ago the Nunn and Warren interests announced the purchase of the plant and good will of the Index. Announcement was made today of the acquisition of the Childress Post. The Nunn and Warren company made the statement that Fred A. Story, publisher of the Post, will become managing editor of the consolidated papers. The new firm will be known as the Nunn-Warren-Story Publishing company. The personnel of the new company will be augmented by the addition of the several new men in the news and advertising fields. The Nunn and Warren company controls a large number of newspapers in this section of Texas and in part of New Mexico. Fred L. Haskett and his father, L. E. Haskett, relinquish management of the Daily Index after publishing that paper for some 39 years. Mr. Fred A. Story, who came to Childress four years ago, has made unusual success in the newspaper business and his appointment as business manager of the consolidated papers speaks well for his ability.

I'm not dancing-

It is only an unenlightened woman who still suffers painful periods. The old-fashioned girl who must "keep off her feet" has not learned of Midol.

Take a tiny tablet of Midol—and forget the time of month. Midol is not a narcotic. It does not interfere with the normal, necessary process of menstruation. But it stops the pain. It brings complete ease in five to seven minutes. And the woman who anticipates her time and takes Midol beforehand will have no pain at all.

Midol is the work of specialists. It is effective no matter how hard a time you've always had. Try it! All drugstores, in a slim aluminum case to tuck in purse, for fifty cents.—Adv.

HARD ARTERIES

Hardening arteries indicate high blood pressure, which means that the blood in the heart and blood vessels is under too great a tension—a condition which may end life suddenly.

High blood pressure, indicated by hard arteries, heart palpitation, dizziness and difficulty in breathing, is the penalty of our abnormal habits of living. We place too great a strain on the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming "limp" or sluggish, fails to cleanse the blood of the toxic poisons formed in food waste. The whole system then becomes toxic, with stomach, kidneys, heart and blood vessels affected.

It is generally recognized that the liver occasionally needs a little help. There is nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall has been found to be a great stimulant for the liver. The genuine, pure ox gall is to be had, dainty and tasteless, in the form of Dioxol tablets. Each tablet represents 10 drops of pure ox gall and costs less than 2c at good druggists. To be sure of getting the genuine, look for the name Dioxol and picture of ox's head on the package.

Free Test Take this ad to the druggist named below and he will give you a free sample of Dioxol tablets. Try them yourself. See the splendid, quick results. One trial of Dioxol and you will want a full package!

Auto Registrations Hit High Figure Monday

One of the heaviest days in several months was registered at the tax collector's office Monday, and Guy Raley was busy counting the money received from the registration of 28 new automobiles and a large number of trucks and used cars. The rush was acounted for by the fact the day was the beginning of the second quarter of the year, and cars not registered prior to Monday received a license tag at 25 per cent lower cost than those who purchased them Saturday.
