LONE STAR BAKERY CHANGES HANDS

A deal was closed last week whereby Arthur Allen became owner of the local bakery, purchasing the interest of J. R. Pettitt. Mr. and Mrs. Pettitt have been in business here for nearly two years and have given the people a first class bakery service. They expect to spend a few weeks in Kendall and Bexar Counties, resting, and may later go back into the bakery business in some other town in this section of the country.

Arthur is well known here, having come here from Eden some two or three years ago and has made his home, part of the time, with his sister, Mrs. G. R. Ragland. He says he is going to continue to give the same kind of satisfactory service as his predecessors and will, if possible, improve his facilities for handling the trade.

Another room is under construction at the rear of the building now occupied, and when this is completed the baking will be done in this room, which has a concrete floor and is otherwise especially arranged for a baking room.

REFUGE FOR THE HEAVY-TAXED.

The high surtax rate of the tax reduction bill are meant to catch the very rich, according to most of the gentlemen who insisted on making them high, but most of the gentlemen who insist on keeping them high looking to a closing of the avenue of escape which the very rich have in the tax-exemption privilege. They voted against the resolution to submit a constitutional amendment which, if ratified, would have subjected income from every source to taxation, and they voted against the amendment to the bill which if adopted, would have excluded income derived from tax-exempt bonds from the reduction which the bill allows.

When the vote which men cast renders impossible the purpose which they profess to wish to accomplish, there is an inconsistency which questions the sincerity either of their vote or their profession. And since the act is a more convincing evidence than the word of a rational man's purpose, it is not easy to avoid the conclusion that many of those Congressmen who voted for high surtaxes and tax exemption were not moved by the motive which they avowed.—Dallas Morning News.

Capt. H. W. Rieck and O. W. Cardwell from the Watson Divide, were business visitors in Junction Tuesday.

It is equipped with five 31x4 tires, is a six-cylinder car and sells for $1,025 delivered in Junction.

McKinney's store and the one in Junction is the one on which the county poor house was located before it was destroyed by fire a couple of years ago.

Merchant J. N. Hodges and daughter, Dorothy, left Wednesday for Richland Springs.

Gladys Baker
SHE WILL WRITE SHORT STORIES FOR THE EAGLE.

He took my arm and opened the door, we sat down on the back seat of his beautiful car. Instantly he produced a flask, and from the pocket of the car a bottle and two glasses.

"See what a thoughtful boy I am," said Ted; "Ginger Ale for the ladies."

"I propped my silver-slippered feet on the little seat of the car and sighed contentedly. 'That's some dress, Sallie,' said Ted, 'but I'd . . .'"

This is only a paragraph or two of one of the several stories we are going to give you, beginning next week, by Gladys Baker, shown above, under the title "The Ladies." The first installment, appearing next week. You will like these short, snappy, interesting installments, each one complete in itself. Reader interest and continuity are maintained from week to week through "Sallie" and the friends she meets. Every chapter deals with new traits of human character, new personalities and situations. It is pages from the life of young American womanhood. It is clean, it is wholesome. It lays bare both sides of everyday situations in life's eternal struggle.

Robertson of Dallas, for the gubernatorial nomination in the Democratic run-off primary, August 23rd.

The total votes counted was 698,778, out of an estimated total of 700,000 ballots.

COMMUNITY ROAD IS BEING OPENED UP.

Work started this week on a community road that will lead off from the Junction-Rock-springs road, just north of the 10-mile crossing, and will run through the Robert Hunger place, then through the Conde Hardeman, D. Blankinship and C. W. Henderson ranches. This road, when opened, will allow people living on the above named places and those living along Kyaek Creek to reach Junction without having to cross the river. As it is now, these people have a bad crossing near the Conde Hardeman ranch house, or have to come into the road just about the 12-mile crossing, and in case of rise in the river, cannot negotiate the twelve and ten-mile crossings in coming to Junction.

MORE ELECTION NEWS.

In tabulating the election returns last week the returns printed for Mason County in the Representative's race were not complete, as the Mason County News gave the complete returns showing about 50 votes more for Stewart and 150 more for Runge.

In the tabulation for county officers, an error was made in the vote for sheriff in the Junction box. The vote for Sheriff Gibbs read 367, which should have been 267, but the extended totals for the twocandidates were correct.

The count had not been canvassed by the Democratic Committee, and this paper overlooked the vote for County Chairman. A number of men received a few votes, but A. O. Lawler was elected, receiving about 60 votes, which was more than was cast for all other candidates placed in nomination by the voters writing the names on the ticket.

There were a few clerical errors in the returns made on forms filled out by election officers, but there were no changes in the results.

TEACH CHILDREN FIRE PREVENTION.

Almost every day we read in the newspaper reports of children burned to death in dwelling house fires. Not only one child, but three, four and five, are burned at a time in a single house. It seems almost impossible that such accidents can occur, but the sad fact remains that they do, and in most cases they would have been prevented through just ordinary carefulness.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters, in conjunction with the National Board of Education has prepared a booklet, entitled "Safeguarding the Home Against Fire." This is a fire prevention manual for the school children of America. Eight hundred and thirty thousand copies of this textbook have been printed and distributed. In picture and text, it places before a growing child the dangers that surround on every side as a result of carelessness with fire. This book should be in the hands of every school child in America, and should form the basis of a regular school course from the third to the eighth grades, at least in public schools.

The mere fact that the annual per capita fire loss in the United States for every man, woman and child is $2.10, compared with 49 cents in France, 35cts. in England, 28cts in Germany, 25cts. in Italy and Austria, 15 cents in Switzerland and 11cts in Holland, is sufficient evidence that the teaching of fire prevention should start with the child and become a recognized course of study in this nation.

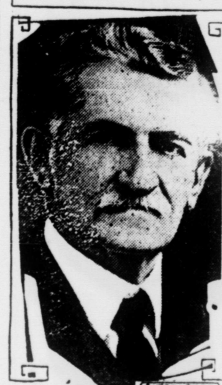

MACK ELLIOTT KILLED WALKER AT ABILENE.

A phone message Sunday to W. F. Edmiston told of the killing of J. Q. A. Walker at Abilene, Texas Saturday by Mack Elliott, formerly of this place.

The trouble was probably the outgrowth of an old feud. Walker having killed Elliott's father some 15 or 16 years ago in McCulloch County, he was given a 99 year term in the penitentiary and was pardoned out by Gov. Colquitt. Elliott used a shot gun loaded with buckshot and surrendered to the officers immediately after the shooting.

Walker was about 48 years of age and Elliott was about 28 years old.—Eldorado Success.

WHO PAYS FOR THE ADVERTISING?

(San Antonio Light)

Now and then some merchant complaining about the "dull times," professes to be puzzled because his competitor is advertising extensively, and wonders "who pays the bill." The first merchant can't "see enough business" to justify the expenditures of the second merchant for so much advertising space.

Who really does, in final analysis, pay the bills of the consistent advertiser? One might answer, "the consumer." But the consumer only makes it possible for the merchant to advertise; advertising consistently and intelligently increases the volume of sales, and so the merchant may give his customers the advantage of frequent turnovers. In other words, a large volume of sales makes for lower prices, and the public is aware that prices at the big advertising stores are as low or lower than at the non-advertising store.

But somebody must pay for the advertising. If the advertiser gets his money back in profits from increased sales, and his customers get the benefit or lower prices as a result of the merchant's increased volume of business, is it to be concluded that nobody pays for the advertising in the broad, economic sense?

No. Somebody must pay the bill: as a matter of fact, somebody does pay it. He is the merchant who does not advertise. He may or may not wonder where his competitor gets the money to pay for all the newspaper space he is using, but in either case the non-advertiser pays the advertiser's bill.

This interesting subject is discussed in simple terms in a recent issue of a national advertising magazine. "The non-advertiser," one reads, "pays just as surely as if he went to his cash drawer and took the money out. The only difference is that the customer's dollars, instead of getting into his cash drawer, pass right by him and enter the cash drawer of the advertiser. He is paying for the other fellow's advertising, but is not being benefitted by it."

Once upon a time—shortly after the post-war depression had set in—a certain man opened a store in a Texas city. He chose a location near a store of the same kind that was being conducted by one of his acquaintances. The latter was doing a lot of advertising; whether he was getting commensurate results, or any at all, is a question that may well remain unanswered for the moment. A friend of the newcomer wanted to know why he, too, didn't invest a little money in advertising, particularly as the new store didn't seem to be drawing much trade.

The newcomer assumed a wise look, smiled, jerked his thumb in the direction of his competitor's store, and said: "I'm letting him throw his money away; all my profits are net."

During the months that followed, the business of the newcomer remained almost at a standstill; even now his sales are little more than sufficient to enable him to pay his rent. On the other hand, the store of the man who was "throwing his money away" on advertising is doing the biggest business of the kind in town.

Who pays the bills of the merchant who advertises?

THE SAME CAN BE SAID OF JUNCTION.

Every person, no matter what his vocation might be is a salesman, and every person should be interested in making bigger sales. The farmer is a salesman, trying to sell his produce to the greatest advantage.

The clerk is a salesman, the laborer is a salesman, the painter is a salesman, the minister is a salesman, in fact we are all salesmen; the only difference being in what we have to sell.

The capable housewife sells her home to her husband by making it a place of joy and comfort and peace for his leisure hours. The church sells to the community high ideals of life and action. The doctor sells his services to the community by the works of healing he performs.

The successful salesman is a student, and is constantly trying to broaden himself, in order to make of himself a better salesman. He studies the people he comes in contact with daily that he may know how to interest them in what he has to sell. He associates with organizations that can be helpful to him in his work. Every person should strive to be a better salesman. When an organization exists that can be of help to him, he should immediately associate himself with that organization for the good that he can get out of it. To get all the good possible out of an organization, it will be necessary for him to help build that organization. To build an organization requires more than membership, it requires co-operation.

Now the Brady Chamber of Commerce is an organization that can assist every one in McCulloch County in becoming a better salesman whether he be a farmer, ranchman, laborer, tradesman, professional man or a business man, and he cannot be as great a success without this organization, as he can with it. The Chamber of Commerce is an organization that covers many lines of activities, and is only retarded by lack of membership and co-operation from the lines that it does not cover. The Chamber of Commerce is the force that is constantly trying to build up the community, and the success of the organization depends entirely upon the assistance given it and the encouragement shown towards its work.

If you have never considered that the Chamber of Commerce could be of any assistance to you, begin at once to study the organization. Consider what it has accomplished, and what it might accomplish if you and every other citizen in the county should support it. Then go to the office of the secretary and have a talk with him. Ask him questions. Perhaps you have the organization; enlighten your self. If the organization is for the purpose of building up the community, it is just what you want, as you are as much interested in building and developing the community as any citizen in the county. Sell yourself to your community, by helping your community grow; increase your selling efficiency through the Chamber of Commerce.—Brady Standard.

A CHARMING GROOM AND WHAT HE WORE.

"Mr. Phil Bert, son of Mr and Mrs. Brazil Nut, of Nottingham became the bridegroom of Equal Wrights at high noon today. The ceremony took place at the home of the groom's parents, and was largely attended."

"Mr. Nut was attended by Mr. Pecan as groomsman. As the groom approached the altar he was the cynosure of all eyes. Blushing prettily, he replied to the questions of the clergyman in low tones, but firm. He was charmingly clad in a three-piece suit, consisting of a coat, vest and pants. The coat, of some dark material, was draped about the shoulders and tastefully gathered under the arms. A pretty story was current among the wedding guests that the coat was the same worn by his father and grand-father on their wedding days. Mr. Nut neither denies nor confirms the truth of this sentimental touch. The vest was sleeveless and met in front. It was gracefully fashioned with pockets, and at the back held together with strap and buckle. Conspicuous in front of the vest was the groom's favorite piece of jewelry, an 'Odd Fellows' pin, and from the upper left pocket was suspended a large Ingersoll watch, the bride's gift to the groom, which flashed and gave the needed touch of brilliance to a costume in perfect taste and harmony."

"The groom's pants were of some dark worsted, and were suspended from the waist, falling in a straight line almost to the floor. The severe simplicity of the garment was relieved by the right pantalet, which was caught up about four inches by a Boston Brighton worn underneath, revealing just the artistic glimpse of brown hole-proof above the genuine leather shoes, laced with strings of the same color. The effect was rather plain. The vest, the groom wore blue galluses, attached fore and aft to the pants, and passing on a graceful curve over each shoulder. The pretty and useful part of the costume would have passed unnoticed had not the groom muffled the ring when the groomsman passed it to him. When he stooped to recover the errant circlet, the cerulean blue of the galluses was prettily revealed."

His neck was encircled with a collar characterized by a delicate saw-edge, and around the collar a cravat was closely knotted, so that it rode up his left ear with that studied carelessness which marks supreme artistry in dress.

"Mr. Pecan's costume was essentially like the groom's, and as the two stood at the altar a hush of admiration enveloped the audience at the complete and wonderful harmony of the raiment. Actually you could hardly have told one from the other had it not been for the patch of court plaster worn by the groom over the niche in his chin made by a safety razor. Neither Mr. Nut nor Mr. Pecan wore a hat at the ceremony."

"As Miss Wright led her groom from the nuptials, it was noted that she wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms."

BUSINESS IS CIVILIZATION.

Certain types of politicians and college professors speak of business both large and small in a sort of apologetic manner.

Napoleon Bonaparte was a sort of progressive and advocated many advanced ideas but spoke contemptuously of the English people as "a nation of shop-keepers."

Socialists, communists, European doctrinaires and Carl Marx theorists scattered all over our country and big cities express contempt for Big Business and business men.

Tillers of the soil, skilled mechanics and common laborers are all-important elements in a great nation of 110,000,000 people, but business men, organizers, managers, distributors, financiers, manufacturers are just as indispensable.

Without the business man the hand worker would supply his own needs only, and would live from hand to mouth in a very primitive form of civilization—one man bartering his work for another's.

Without security and stability or little business—no banking or transportation systems—no progress and no civilization.

In a leading editorial, "Liberty" calls all business one gigantic system of co-operation, national and international exchange and uniting of the world's energy and wealth to serve humanity.

The contempt of the radicals and doctrinaires for the business man is born of ignorance, no matter of what school of thought or political party.—Texas Commercial News.

WORDS OF APPRECIATION.

I desire to express my gratitude to the people of Kimble County, who so loyally stood by me in the recent campaign for district judge, and who are now ready, as in the past, to assist in that greater campaign for higher ideals and standards in social and political life.

In law enforcement lies the safety of the people; and, while the opposition is strong and well fortified, so long as I am your district judge, a relentless battle against crime and immorality will be waged, in order to create a wholesome environment for the rising generation.

For my friends and supporters, I have the deepest feeling of appreciation, and only charity for those who have misrepresented, or misunderstood me.

RESULTS OF THE PRIMARY.

Returns from Saturday's primary, now accounted for in sufficient number to make judgment as to the outcome reasonably accurate, indicate that the voters of Texas didn't want a business man for Governor.

Apparently, they still prefer the politician. The handshaker and the spellbinder has lost none of his power over Texas voters for his ability to gather in the votes. Appeals to passion and prejudice appear more potent than appeals to reason and common sense. Political lunk appears more effective in a campaign than sane, practical discussion of State issues. And all of this in a time when the cost of State government has reached an appalling figure, the State most of the time operating at a loss and tax payers wailing over high taxes.

Felix Robertson, whose qualifications for the office merely cover a term as police judge of Dallas and district judge of the same county, led the ticket. Jim Ferguson, impeached Governor and barred from State office by reason of that impeachment, ran second, using his wife's place on the ballot to accomplish that which the Legislature by its vote of impeachment denied him.

Lynch Davidson, the only business man in the race and the best qualified of the nine candidates, ran a close third. Lynch Davidson is not a politician but a business man, and a highly successful one. He didn't make a political speech; he didn't spill a lot of lunk or offer a lot of cure-alls to delude the voters and catch their votes. He made a plain, sensible, business talk. He urged business efficiency and business economy in the management of the State's affairs as the remedy for present conditions. And that is probably the cause of his defeat. The voters, accustomed to the old type of politician perhaps were not ready for the as represented by Lynch Davidson.

The Star-Telegram supported Lynch Davidson because it regarded him as the best qualified man in the race and because it felt that of all times, the people demanded a business man at the head of the State government. The Star-Telegram isn't dismayed by Lynch Davidson's apparent defeat. It has supported losing candidates before and may do so again. But it always will support the man it honestly and sincerely believes best qualified for the office of Governor.

As to the candidates in the run-off—if that race be between Felix Robertson and Jim Ferguson—The Star-Telegram will make no choice. Neither, in its view, is of gubernatorial timber. Therefore, The Star-Telegram will watch the race with much interest but lend its support to neither candidate.—Ft. Worth Star-Telegram.

G. J. Strong, who is keeping the D. Blankinship place while Mr. and Mrs. Blankinship are in El Paso with one of their sons who is in bad health, states that there are an abundance of fish in South Llano, notwithstanding the fact that some visiting tourists are not able to toll the fish out on the bank, and cites a recent case to prove his statements. A party of tourists had been camping and fishing for several days there without catching enough to feel sure there were any in the river. Mr. Strong set out a number of hooks near the tourist's camp and during the first night caught a 7½ pound bass and five or six channel cats that ranged from three to six pounds each. This is a fish story, but is only typical of what is being done most every day by people who know how to fish. A large per cent of the visitors are not acquainted with the ways of the Llano River fish, and when they are unable to make a show ing, they conclude that the river has been fished out. There are more fish in the Llanos than in any other streams in the country, so a number of experienced fishermen tell us, and we know there are plenty, for we can always catch all we need in a short time, and we are not considered a good fisherman either.

The Democrats of Texas should take note of the fact that those counties in this state that give big majorities to the Farmer-Labor organization candidates will in the November elections roll up a big majority for La Follette. It should also be noted that some counties and some precincts that voted in the Democratic primary, will vote Republican in the November election. These facts should be kept in mind because two years hence if developments are what they are expected to be, the State Democratic committee will refuse to recognize the votes of such counties in the State elections, and to those counties that violate the party pledge. Texas Democracy has reached the point where the party must be purged of some irregularities.—Lockhart Post-Register.

A newspaper man whom I met at Amarillo, in speaking of the business men of a certain town, said that they are dead from their shoulders up. Since then a physician told me that most persons begin to die in their heads and that if the head can be kept active the body will respond in most cases. If your business is not what it should be, if you are just marking time in whatever you are doing, if you find that you haven't the energy or the will to hustle like the younger people about you, or like the people of other places, then it might be well to have your head examined to see if it is either dead or dying. I have heard of people that are still walking around but that so far as progress is concerned, are really dead.—Will H. May, in The Evening Day.

An incident that happened at the Schneider Park Tuesday night excited quite a bit of discussion and criticism among the business people of the town, when a tourist from Houston stated that he had been driven out of the park by some local law that was camping in this park. He stated that this boy allowed him to make his camp and unload his car, then came along and represented that those camping across the park had it leased, and compelled him to pack his car and leave that night. While it is true that no camping is allowed in the park, this was a very unfair way to deal with a visitor, inasmuch as the camping party, of which this boy was a member, had no permission to camp in the park either. We withhold the local man's name, but steps will be taken by those interested to see that such an incident does not happen again.

HONOR IS PAID HARDING TOMB.

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Simplicity marked the first anniversary of the death of the late President Warren Gamaliel Harding in this, his home town.

Always avoiding ostentatious ceremonies while he lived, his wishes were being followed after death. No public ceremony had been arranged other than the laying of a wreath at his tomb in the cemetery here. The wreath, sent by President Calvin Coolidge, was placed without pomp.

During the day hundreds wound their way along the shadowy paths of the cemetery, and stood for a few moments with bowed heads at the tomb, and then passed on.

At 7 o'clock at night, the hour of his death at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco one year ago, the old bell in the Central Fire Station sounded for the departed executive. At the first stroke friends and neighbors of the Nation's former chief, bared their heads in reverent mien for five minutes.

Dr. George T. Harding, the former President's aged father, himself in failing health, with a few personal friends, visited the tomb.

TO THE VOTERS OF KIMBLE COUNTY

Out of the spirit of gratefulness, I take this opportunity to express my appreciation and sincere thanks to those of my friends who gave me their support, in the recent primary election, and at the same time wish to say to those who opposed me, that I have no feeling of enmity or ill will towards any one, but am broad enough to take no privilege that I do not grant my fellow man. If elected at the November election, I trust I may so perform the duties of my office as will meet the approval of the people of Kimble County, my object and purpose being to work for the best interests of all the people of Kimble County. Respectfully,
A. G. Farmer.

COST OF AN EDUCATION IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

One of the wisest provisions made by our forefathers of the Republic of Texas back in 1836, was the setting aside of public lands for the purpose of a liberal education. Only the interest from this money is ever to be used for our public schools. This, with other sources of revenue, constitute the public school fund.

The progressive and far seeing statesmen today are taxing their resources to have better facilities for training the rising generation than our forefathers did nearly a century ago.

By a survey made recently, it was found that states with limited resources, classed as poor states, are spending over double the amount for education that Texas is spending. They realize that about their only assets are technically trained men and women. These are the folks to whom we go for expert mechanics, expert bridge builders, expert accountants, well prepared men in state-craft who are today at the helm of the ship of state; high salaried people.

This year we will receive $14 per scholastic from the State to maintain our schools. Added to this, is the fifty-cent tax per $100 valuation that District No. 1 levies. This is all the money there is to maintain a school of the first class.

Compare these costs with ours, annual salary cost per pupil, based on average daily attendance for 1921-1923, at the following places:

Temple	$53.04
Orange	51.80
San Angelo	50.07
Tyler	42.59
Brownsville	41.12
Abilene	41.60
Palestine	41.05
Texarkana	39.57
Corsicana	38.45
Cleburne	37.42
Greenville	32.95

The cost per pupil in Junction is the minimum possible. In fact, a deficit of about two thousand dollars has been carried by the banks; this has been accruing for several years. This condition of affairs is unhealthy for a public school; illogical, and the School Board, after diligent and thorough consideration, have decided to start the coming year right. Therefore, the first two months will be pay school at the following rates: First to Sixth Grades, inclusive, $2.50 per month; Seventh to Eleventh Grades, inclusive, $3.00 per month.

Some institutions of learning have a charge of from $600.00 to $1,000.00 per year; and part of the same class of work is given as is given in any good high school. Therefore, a graduate of a good high school, well equipped with laboratories and doing a class of work recognized by the State Department of Education, will have saved several hundred dollars by finishing all but their college work in the home high school. The time has come to boost Junction's public school instead of the school in the other fellow's town.

Gone, but not forgotten.
A precious one of us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

The boon his love had given,
And tho the body slumber now,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

WHY BOOTLEGGING FLOUR- ISHES.

If there were no buyers of liquor the bootlegger would soon go out of business, and those who encourage the illicit traffic by their patronage are as morally guilty of breaking the law as the bootleggers themselves.

It has long been an axiom that in the case of theft the receiver of the stolen goods is held to be equally guilty with the thief himself, and frequently his punishment is just as severe, in some cases even more so.

It is therefore a cause of national humiliation to find that those who are considered "respectable citizens" aid and abet this pernicious and unlawful traffic in bootlegging whiskey, making regular purchases from underground sources.

How can these men free themselves from the charge of being instigators of crime? How can they square such conduct with the ethics of Christianity? Is it not high time that the citizen who violates the law of the land and outrages common decency in this fashion should examine his conscience; should ask himself if he is playing the game?

We are quite well aware that there are those who abide by the theory that if a law with which they do not agree is put on the statute book they are at liberty not only to ignore it, but to break it to their heart's content. Just imagine, however, what it would mean to this country, or any other country, were any very large section of the population to adopt this code. Nothing could follow but administrative chaos and lawlessness, and to this two-fold abyss those who in their folly willfully set the liquor laws at naught are driving the nation.

It is essential to the proper government of any country that the laws should be obeyed. If the people think that they are not good laws, they have the remedy at the polls, but while these laws are allowed to remain and are considered necessary by the majority for good government, it is the duty of every citizen to obey them.

Bootlegging flourishes upon what it feeds; it is fostered and nourished by the people who accord it support, not from any altruistic or generous motive, but merely for their own self-gratification.

This is selfishness, and selfishness is one of the characteristics that men most despise, for it lies at the root of much of the misery in the world. Let a more generous spirit prevail, and let the good of the whole be considered—not the indulgence of the few.—Dearborn Independent.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION.

THE STATE OF TEXAS.
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Kimble County, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Beulah Bell Wahrmond, by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four successive weeks, previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in the nearest District to said 3rd Judicial District, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Kimble County, to be held at the Court House thereof, in Junction, on the first Monday in September, A. D. 1924, the same being the first day of September, A. D. 1924, then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 31st day of July, A. D. 1924 in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 482, wherein Robert Wahrmond is plaintiff and Beulah Bell Wahrmond is defendant, and said petition alleging that plaintiff is a resident of Kimble County, Texas, and that the residence of defendant is unknown; that plaintiff has lived in Texas more than 12 months and in Kimble County more than 6 months before filing this suit; that plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married in Menard County, Texas, on September 2, 1903; that they continued to live together as husband and wife until July 10, 1920, when defendant permanently abandoned plaintiff, since which time they have not lived together as husband and wife, and that such abandonment has continued for a period of more than three years next preceding the filing of this petition, and that such abandonment was without just cause on the part of defendant and through no fault of plaintiff; and that defendant refuses to return to plaintiff and live with him as his wife.

That there are no property rights between plaintiff and defendant to be adjusted. Wherefore plaintiff prays the Court that defendant be cited to appear and answer this petition; and that on final hearing plaintiff have judgment, dividing the marital contract now existing between plaintiff and defendant, and for further relief as he may be justly entitled to.

Herein fail not but have before said Court at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and Seal of said Court, at office in Junction, this 31st day of July, A. D. 1924.

KU KLUX KLAN IS PROBLEM FOR PROTESTANTS.

(Kerrville Mountain Sun.)

Denouncing the Ku Klux Klan as a militant political organization and declaring that if the organization wished to continue to exist the members must purge it of all political activities and make it purely a fraternal and benevolent order, Rev. Walter L. Evans of San Antonio addressed a large crowd at the City Park in Kerrville last Friday night.

The speaker presented his claims in a straightforward and forceful manner and held the crowd until a few minutes before midnight. The only demonstrations of any kind were the frequent hand-clappings which his remarks brought forth and the occasional shouts from some enthusiastic listener of "Pour it On." And pour it on, he did.

Mr. Evans claimed that he joined the Klan at the beginning of its existence and found at first that its purposes were pure and holy, but declared that the leaders of this movement were not strong enough to withstand the lure of graft—and he based the downfall of the organization from the moment the leaders fell. When he realized what he was into, Mr. Evans states that he immediately began looking around for an honest way to get out, and the only honest and manly way he could find was to resign his membership and then go out and try to keep others from joining the organization by warning them of what they were getting into.

The speaker stated that the Klan had only three foundation stones: Religious prejudice, politics and graft; and that members of the organization were modern Pharisees, comparing them to the old-time Jesuit Fathers of the Catholic Church. He said that not a single official of the order was known by a Christian or an American name, but that all were names derived from unhalloved sources, citing "Cyclops," "Grand Dragon," "Wizard," etc., in support of his contentions.

Mr. Evans said he held nothing against members of the Klan personally, and that there were many good men in the mask and file of the organization, but he expressed in an emphatic manner his contempt for the leaders of the movement, stating that 99 per cent of them were grafters and crooks.

He declared the Klan to be the most intolerant of all religious menaces and that it was not a Catholic but a Protestant apostasy—a problem for the Protestant churches to settle, among which bodies the movement has created a hopeless division, and at the same time given stimulus to the Catholic religion by creating sympathy for them and uniting them more firmly than ever.

The speaker referred to the fiery cross as the "Cross of Hate," exactly opposite to the sentiment associated with the cross on which the Lowly Nazarene suffered for the cause of humanity. The greatest need of the members of the order, according to Mr. Evans, was more charity for others and less brag for themselves.

He concluded his address by quoting portions of the Klan oath and explaining them by reading sections of the constitution and by-laws of the order.

The confused old lady stood bewilderedly at the busy corner until a kingly cop went to her aid.

"Have you been stationed here some time?" she asked him.

"Three years, ma'am."

"Well, it looks so familiar here. Could you tell me if I've ever passed this corner before?"

THINGS AFAR OFF.

Men in all the ages have sighed for the things which were afar off. Familiarity lessens appreciation. The invisible and the unattainable is always better than are the things which are in easy reach about us.

The great men are all dead. The fields whereon the greatest battles were fought and spots on which the scenes of greatest heroism occurred are for us embalmed in ancient history.

Of course, all this is not true, but distance magnifies and all things grow greater when looked upon through a mist of antiquity.

"A prophet is not without honor save in his own house and among his own people," is a divine adage, and it has never met confirmation more frequently than in Texas.

The truth is that the men who, a little more than four score years ago, laid the foundation of the New Republic of Texas were in point of statesmanship and far-flung vision, as able statesmen as ever prescribed the policies or shaped the destinies of a new nation in any age of the world.

We are thrilled as we read of the heroism of Leonidas and his Spartan band at Thermopylae, but in truth the Alamo looms far above Thermopylae like Olympus above a mole-hill.

Creasy wrote a book entitled "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World," in which he did not include San Jacinto; yet it richly deserves a place on that historic roster of battles.

Thousands of Texans go far and spend largely every summer to find mountains and running water and shade and healthful temperature and an invigorating climate, when within a third of the distance and at a sixth of the expense, they could find in Texas all they find a thousand and two thousand miles away.

A Houstonian can eat breakfast at home, get into his auto and eat his supper in Kerrville, or even in Junction, and there is not a more beautiful 127 miles ride in the United States than that between San Antonio and Junction.

The blue line of the low ranges of mountains is to be seen from one to three miles on every side. The valleys are threaded by silvery streams; the corn is now in full silk and tassel; the cotton is fast hastening to harvest day; the wheat and oats are piled high waiting for the thrasher, and the air is delightfully cool and invigorating.

Thousands can bear witness that all that is said here is true, but it is all put behind, and thousands go where it is neither more healthful nor more beautiful, and where it costs more in a day than it does in a week in West Texas.

"See Texas First," should be the slogan of every paper. The lands afar off are no more attractive. Money made in Texas should be spent in Texas.—Houston Chronicle.

FT. MCKAVITT LAD KILLED BY WAGON LAST WEEK.

Menard August 1.—Henry Treadwell, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Treadwell, was killed yesterday on his father's ranch, near Ft. McKavitt. He and a cousin had gone to haul a load of wood and while driving back to the ranch house, one of the logs on which he was seated began slipping, and in moving to avoid falling with it, he became unbalanced and fell to the ground.

Both wheels of the wagon passed over his body, injuring him so severely that he died within half an hour.

His mother and father were in Menard at the time of the accident and did not reach home until after he was dead.

Henry is a grandson of Mrs. M. E. Holland and has visited in Junction with his parents on numerous occasions. Mrs. Treadwell is a daughter of Mrs. Holland.

Mrs. George S. Hunter, of Columbus, Ga., says she suffered severely with female troubles.

and she knew what a good medicine it was for this trouble, so she told me to get some and take it. I sent to the store after it and before I had taken the first bottle up I began to improve. My side hurt, less and I began to mend in health. I took four bottles in all during the last ten months. Cardui acted as a fine tonic. I am well now. I have gained ten pounds and am still gaining.
