Cash Reward Program Helps Crack Six Crimes

THE SCOREBOARD now reads: "Crime Line, Inc." 6, criminals 0.

Four armed robberies were erased from the police records last week with information supplied by Crime Line informants, bringing to six the number cleared thus far in the five-week-old program initiated by Mayor Dirk West.

Earlier, two other felony cases were cleared through the program.

"Cash rewards have either been paid or are in the process of being paid for information supplied in clearing the cases," the mayor said.

West stressed that the informant's identity is completely secret — even to police — since code numbers are used and the money is paid at a pre-arranged pick-up point later by the informant who identifies himself only with the code number assigned. No names are ever solicited.

West also noted that persons may call the hotline — 741-1000 — with information about any major crime even if it is not published in The Avalanche-Journal. If information on unpublished crimes leads to an indictment (or the equivalent in the case of juveniles), a reward will be set by the board of directors based on the magnitude of the case.

All rewards are paid in cash. Rewards totaling $13,200 now have been posted.

Persons interested in making a tax deductible contribution to the reward fund are urged to send donations to "Crime Line, Inc.," P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, Tex. 79408.

Each Monday the A-J publishes a series of unsolved cases, one earmarked as "Spotlight Crime of the Week." Information on the spotlight crime must be supplied within seven days of publication in order for the informant to be eligible for the reward.

Informants who choose to testify in court and a conviction results, rewards will be doubled.

Today's spotlight crime, with a reward of $500 being offered, occurred on May 24 in north central Lubbock.

A white woman left a restaurant, went home and changed into her night clothes. About 1:05 a.m. she decided to go to empty the trash.

After depositing the trash in a dumpster she was accosted by three Mexican-American men and a Mexican-American woman. The men ripped off her clothing and held her on the ground.

The woman attacker used a foreign object in sexually abusing the victim while commenting, "I have waited a long time for you."

The victim was knocked unconscious and later awoke in the dumpster.

The woman attacker was described as 18 to 25 years old, 5-7 to 5-9, with a large bust. She was wearing a green or dark-colored low-cut blouse and had long, black

Services To Honor War Dead; Gas Crunch May Curb Travel

LUBBOCKITES have a choice of observing today with traditional Memorial Day services honoring the nation's service men who died in service, or they may spend the holiday with family and friends.

Memorial services will be at 10:30 a.m. today at Resthaven Memorial Cemetery and at 11:15 a.m. at the Peaceful Gardens Cemetery near Woodrow.

The firing squad from Estacado High School's Junior ROTC unit and the Color Guard from Lubbock High School's Junior ROTC unit will be at both services, which are sponsored by the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, World War I Barracks and the groups' auxiliaries.

Some Stores Open

Banks, government offices and some businesses will be closed today, but some stores will be open to holiday shoppers.

Airlines reported a typical holiday crowd and said the "no-shows" on some flights probably were normal cancellations, not an after-effect of the Friday crash of an American Airlines jet in Chicago that killed 272 persons.

Although Southwest Airlines had eight to 14 empty seats per flight Sunday, an employee said, "Saturday was extremely busy and every flight was full." He attributed Sunday's no-shows to people making extra reservations and then catching an earlier flight.

Automobile travelers over the long weekend will find some service stations open, but probably not as many as were open on holidays before the gasoline crunch.

The Texaco station at Fourth Street and Avenue Q closed at 4 p.m. Sunday an employee said, because, "If we didn't close now we wouldn't have gas for Monday."

Station May Close Early

The station plans to be open 10 hours today, but may close sooner if nearby stations are closed and they are flooded with customers.

A sign at the Gulf station at Fourth Street and University Avenue, which was closed Sunday, said the station will open at 2 p.m. today.

Dodd's Phillips 66 station at 3802 50th St., which reported being "pretty busy" Sunday, will be open today from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Some travelers are staying closer to home this year, venturing out only as far as neighborhood parks for picnics and volleyball games.

Buffalo Springs Lake recreational area, which has fishing, boating, amusement rides and other activities, reported "heavier than normal" business Sunday.

City Parks Crowded

And city parks were crowded with sunbathers, ball players and picnickers.

The traditional day for Memorial Day will be Wednesday and will be observed by a formal monthly retreat and memorial service at Reese Air Force Base.

The ceremony will be at 4:42 p.m. Wednesday in front of the 64th Flying Training Wing headquarters building at Reese.

Lt. Col. Arnold G. Johnson, installation chaplain at Reese AFB, will speak at the ceremony in honor of those who served in the U.S. military during the Vietnam era. Today through Sunday is Vietnam Veterans Week throughout the nation.

The ceremony, which is open to the public, also will include a three-volley rifle salute by the Reese AFB honor guard, a fly-over of four T-38s and presentation of awards.

Storms Bring Wall Of Dust, Little Rain

WALLS OF BLOWING dust that reduced visibility in some areas to near zero dramatically heralded the arrival of black thunderstorms across the South Plains, Sunday afternoon.

Despite a tornado warning until 9 p.m. for most of the South Plains, however, the storms were more dramatic than they were severe. They produced winds gusting to 45 mph and occasional flurries of small hail but only sporadic heavy rains.

Mostly Sunny

The storm will not dampen plans of Memorial Day merrymakers, who will have most of the day to enjoy the sunny outdoors before clouds move into the area again late this afternoon.

Lubbock and vicinity has a 20 percent chance for rain today. Today's high will be 85, with the low tonight near 60. Southwesterly winds will blow to 15 mph.

Storms Sunday began churning in southeast New Mexico early in the afternoon and began marching steadily northeastward through the South Plains and into the Panhandle, as a low-pressure

LANDON HOSPITALIZED

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf M. Landon, unsuccessful 1936 Republican presidential candidate and former Kansas governor, was hospitalized Sunday for observation. The 91-year-old Landon was admitted to Stormont-Vail Hospital after he told his wife he did not feel well. Landon was governor from 1933 to 1937. In 1936, he carried only Maine and Vermont against Franklin D. Roosevelt, and never again ran for president.

A-J Publishing Single Edition

IN ORDER that as many employees as possible may enjoy the Memorial Day holiday with their families The Avalanche-Journal is publishing a single edition today.

Columns, comics and special features of the afternoon paper appear in this morning's edition and subscribers of the afternoon paper are receiving the morning edition.

The regular publication schedule will be resumed Tuesday.

Begin, Sadat Open Borders; Israelis To Free Prisoners

BEERSHEBA, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat agreed Sunday that the borders are open between their countries and Begin announced he will release an unspecified number of Palestinian prisoners to embellish the reality of peace with Egypt.

The announcements came as the leaders, joined by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, participated in a day of ceremonies and summitry, first in El Arish, then in Beersheba and later midair during a flight to symbolize opening of a new air route between the two countries. They had planned to fly over Cairo and Tel Aviv, but time ran short and their plane passed only over portions of Israel and the Sinai Peninsua.

Begin, Carter Confer

Begin's press office announced after the end of the summit that the prime minister had telephoned President Carter and informed him of his talks with Sadat.

Vance left immediately and flew to Italy, arriving at Rome's Ciampino military airport. He is to confer with government officials today and then meet on Tuesday with Premier Giulio Andreotti and have an audience with Pope John Paul II before leaving in the afternoon for the Netherlands.

Proclamation of open borders was a surprise since Butros Ghali, Egypt's minister of state for foreign affairs, last week insisted such a step would not be possible until next year.

On board the plane Sadat conceded Ghali had opposed opening the border.

"But I gave Prime Minister Begin the promise," Sadat said, recalling the open-border announcement made when Begin visited Cairo in April.

Ghali "Convinced"

Asked if Ghali now accpeted the open-border idea, Sadat told reorters on the plane, "Yes, we had a very long discussion in Egypt before we came. Either they (Ghali and others would) convince me, or I convince them. Fortunately, I convinced them."

Begin told reporters on the airplane that he and Sadat made a "great achievement" in opening the borders, but he had been unable to persuade Sadat to allow Jewish settlers to work a vegetable field on land that reverted to Egypt. "President Sadat said it would be difficult, and we must accept this announcement, to my regret," Begin said.

Begin chatted for 15 minutes Sunday with Sadat in El Arish, 60 miles west of here. Then, a short time later, alongside Sadat and Vance, Begin told a crowd at city hall:

"The president and I proclaim here from El Arish that the borders of Egypt and Israel are open. Citizens of Egypt will be able to visit Israel and citizens of Israel will be able to visit Egypt."

Begin, who received a red carpet welcome, added: "I will undertake steps to set free a number of prisoners whose release will not impair Israel's security," but did not elaborate.

The Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, signed March 26, calls for open borders beginning in January. Although the leaders agreed to speed up the process, the two countries were likely to limit travel at first to government-sponsored exchanges.

Ghali told a reporter after Begin's announcement that he did not know any details of the timing or how freely people could cross, then huddled with Isra-

Broken Bolt Caused Engine To Fall Off

CHICAGO (AP) — The fracture of a three-inch bolt caused an engine to fall from the American Airlines DC-10 jetliner that crashed and killed 273 people, the National Transportation Safety Board said Sunday.

But the loss of the engine alone should not have caused the crash, the safety board said, adding that their inquiry was continuing into the nation's worst aviation disaster.

Inspection Recommended

Elwood Driver, vice chairman of the NTSB, said the board voted unanimously to recommend that similar engine support systems on all DC-10 be inspected immediately.

Such an order would have to come from the Federal Aviation Administration. An FAA spokesman in Washington, John Leyden, said he did not know when the FAA might meet to consider the safety board recommendation.

Art Jackson, spokesman for American Airlines, said mechanics have inspected the engine support systems of 12 of American's fleet of 30 DC-10s since Saturday. He said all were found "in good shape." He said the rest of the planes will be inspected by Monday morning.

The bolt — one of those fixing the pylon bearing the engine to the wing of the jet — was found 8,000 feet down the runway from where Flight 191 took off Friday, Driver said.

Broken In Half

It was described as three-eighths to one-half inch in diameter and three inches long, and was broken in half.

Driver said at a news conference that the board wished to emphasize the urgency of the inspection of the DC-10 engine support systems.

Asked if he would be afraid to fly in a DC-10, he responded: "I will probably go back on one tomorrow night."

The crash of the Los Angeles-bound, wide-bodied jet occurred just after the engine fell from the left wing to the ground, and only seconds after the plane left O'Hare International Airport. The wreckage is just half a mile from where the engine landed in the grass beside the runway.

All 271 persons aboard the jet died in the fireball crash, and two persons on the ground were also killed.

Investigators flew over the wreckage Sunday, photographing it.

"We're looking at the way in which the wreckage lays," Bob Buckhorn, a safety board spokesman said Sunday. "We hope this will tell us when it started to come apart."

Three Attachments

On a DC-10, a pylon stretches down from the wing to each of the two wing engines, each encased in a metal housing or engine pod. The pylon is attached to the wing at three places: at each end and at the middle. The end supports carry the weight of the engine, the middle support bears the forward thrust.

Investigators say the fractured bolt was part of the mid-point support system between the wing and pylon. It is this support that probably bears the greatest load as the jet takes off, said W.W. Schaefer, senior director of quality assurance for American Airlines.

The bolt was found after investigators searched with metal detectors, sweeping the runway and surrounding area.

Driver said earlier that records were being flown to Chicago from Tulsa, Okla., where the plane underwent inspection in March. He said the frac-

Surviving Dionne Quints Leading Quiet Lives

ST. BRUNO, Quebec (AP) — "How could anyone still be interested in us?" sighed Cecile Dionne Langlois, one of the three surviving Dionne quintuplets.

Forty-five years ago, on May 28 — in the middle of the Great Depression — the birth of five identical sisters in a Northern Ontario farmhouse inspired awe in millions of people.

"Everything has changed now," Cecile said in a brief interview in a local shop where she works, breaking the silence she and her sisters, Yvonne and Annette, have held for years.

But Cecile and a few acquaintances were willing recently to shed a little light on the Dionnes' contemporary life.

Dressed in a trim white uniform, Cecile had just arrived at the bright, freshly painted shop where she is a cosmetician.

She looked 10 years younger than her 45 years. Her rich, dark hair was cut in a fashionable blow-dry style. Wet, red lipstick accentuated a serene smile and a touch of mascara highlighted the celebrated long eyelashes.

Yet she balked at having her picture taken.

Nevertheless, Cecile's easy, out-going manner during a short conversation suggested she had overcome the traumas of an upbringing in the public eye and the sorrows that plagued the quints in younger years.

Her sisters, too, appear to be living well-adjusted if unglamorous lives.

On the day Cecile talked to this reporter, Yvonne was seen chatting amiably with two colleagues sorting books in the library where she works.

Dressed in a blue pant-suit and identifiable by the same dark coloring and youthful air as her sister, she drove another librarian from work on their lunch hour.

The sisters live in comfortable homes within walking distance of each other. Annette seems to have the largest one, a spacious, 10-room bungalow on a generous, well-landscaped lot with a fenced garden in the back.

The remainder of a trust fund that once amounted to $1 million from products, the Dionne sisters endorsed as children is being turned over to the surviving quints' exclusive control on their 45th birthday.

The quints allowed the capital to dwindle over the years to between $50,000 and $100,000 each, according to Pierre Berton in his book, "The Dionne Years," which provides an account of the quintuplets' early lives.

Cecile loves her job, says Julie Laporte who works with her.

So do Yvonne and Annette, who both work at the library where a supervisor prevented direct access to them.

Annette's three sons, aged 16 to 20, still live at home. She has been legally separated for five years from Germain Allard, a Montreal finance company executive.

Cecile's teen-age children — three boys and a girl — also live with their mother. Her marriage to Philippe Langlois ended in divorce in 1964. Langlois has since died.

Yvonne, who tried unsuccessfully three times to become a nun, never married and still attends Mass every morning at 8:30, according to a secretary at the local Roman Catholic Church.

The family's doctor, Allan Roy Dafoe, gained control of the girls' lives until they were nearly 8 years old through a combination of circumstances difficult to comprehend now.

Five million people traveled to the remote Ontario village of Callander, 200 miles north of Toronto, to watch the five identically dressed girls play twice a day outside a nursery to which their parents had almost no access.

Under such circumstances, the family broke up.

Another, Marie, suffering mental depression after the breakup of her marriage to Florian Houle, died alone in her Montreal apartment in 1970, apprently of a blood clot in the brain. She was 36.

The quints' parents — Oliva and his wife Elzire — still live outside Callander in a modest bungalow near the farm where the girls were born.

Acccording to Mort Fellman, a former news reporter who covered the Dionne story in the 1930s, the couple still "hope against hope" that they will see their daughters again.

The father turned 76 earlier this month and Mrs. Dionne is 70, Fellman said in a telephone interview from nearby North Bay.

He said Mrs. Dionne has been in and out of the hospital for several years with leg ailments and gets around with difficulty.

Mrs. Dionne answered a recent telephone call to her home in a raspy voice, only to tell a reporter she had no comment to make on the occasion of the quints' birthday.

The last group photograph of the surviving quints and their parents was taken in Montreal at Marie's funeral in 1970.

EDITOR'S NOTE — In the height of the Depression, the news that came from a remote Canadian farmhouse on May 28, 1934, excited millions: quintuplet girls had been born to a French-Canadian couple named Dionne. A Canadian Press writer went in search of the three surviving quints and here is his report.

Discontent Blamed As Inflation Fuel

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — The increasingly discontented mood of the American people is as much a cause of inflation as it is a consequence, according to Alfred Kahn, presidential inflation fighter.

"The national mood has changed dramatically to one of pessimism and anger," Kahn told 4,400 graduates at commencement exercises Saturday at the University of Massachusetts.

Such a change, Kahn said, is leading to a breakdown in discipline and "conspiracy mongering" among U.S. citizens.

Kahn, who heads the Carter Administration's fight against inflation, said an affluent populous is blaming oil companies, nuclear power advocates and big labor for the inflationary spiral rather than accepting some of the responsibility for economic problems.

Kennedy Candidacy Urged In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy has been officially urged to run for president in 1980 by the Cuyahoga County Democratic Party organization, which ignored the Massachusetts senator's repeated claims that he does not intend to run.

County Democratic Chairman Timothy Hagan went ahead with the draft at a special convention Saturday despite opposition of several elder statesmen, including former Ohio Gov. Michael DiSalle. Reps. Louis Stokes and Mary Rose Oakar boycotted the convention, calling the draft "idiotic" and "immature." "I think what people are saying is that they want an alternative to President Carter's programs and policies and there is a deep widening concern within the party," Hagan said.

About 1,500 people were eligible to be delegates to the convention of precinct committee members but only about 400 showed up. When the resolution came up for a standing vote, a procedure that took only a few seconds, Hagan said about 60 percent of the delegates rose to support the draft.

A telegram was sent to Kennedy to notify him of the draft after the resolution was approved.

Town Of Friendly Lives Off Speed Trap Fines

But local folks smile about the Friendly Trap — it nets them about $800 a month to run the town, and that beats paying taxes.

Contrary to its name, this Ohio River town of 190 residents is decidedly unfriendly to the unwary. The town's two policemen are paid with the money they collect themselves, by radar.

Located on a long, open stretch of West Virginia 2, the Friendly Trap is a radar patrol that snags those who do not notice that the speed limit suddenly drops from 55 mph to 35 mph at the town line.

Mayor Geneva Cumbridge admits that makes a lot of folks mad.

"We've always had a reputation, I know that," said Mrs. Cumbridge, who works three days a week in the tiny office she shares with the local ambulance squad.

"People think we're doing a no-no, but they don't realize we're just trying to exist."

Mrs. Cumbridge said Friendly has little income except for the fines it reaps from speeding motorists, money needed to pay the city's bills.

"On a really good day," Mrs. Cumbridge said, police will ticket five speeders. Since she's been in office since last October, the town has averaged $800 a month from fines.

As it is, the mayor says, the city has only enough money to pay for police protection eight hours a day.

"Our people, especially our young people and our old people, are entitled to police protection," she said. "It's dangerous here for old people to try to get to the store or to the post office, because we have a speeding problem.

"All you have to do is come here for 15 minutes and sit by the highway — you'll see what I mean."

A speeding truck rattled the windows in her office and Mrs. Cumbridge shook her head.

"People just don't pay attention, they just don't slow down," she said. "Just last week, we had one man killed and a boy hurt real bad just up the road. Two weeks ago we had a girl hit here.

"And I don't like to talk about it very much, but my father was killed by a car here."

She says the town must fine speeding drivers, instead of merely warning them.

"People's lives are worth the 35-mile speed limit," she said. "A lot of people who come speeding through here do it all the time. What good would it do to warn them? As soon as they'd leave town, they'd just laugh at us."

A resident of nearby Paden City, Paul J. Clifton, angered by a ticket, erected signs at both ends of town warning of the speed trap.

But the signs don't always slow down the cars.

"Our policeman, David Byers, stopped a man last night who was speeding," she said. "He asked him why he didn't slow down, why he didn't obey the warning signs.

"He said he saw them ... but he didn't believe them."

Budget Bill Bounces Back To Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' proposal to give governors additional powers over state agency budgets bounced back into the Senate arena Sunday after it earlier appeared doomed.

The Senate State Affairs Committee sent the constitutional amendment (HJR86) to the Senate floor in a brief meeting.

House members passed the proposal without a vote to spare Saturday, 100-35. Two-thirds of each chamber must pass constitutional amendments before they go to the voters.

Budget execution will join the state budget and public school finance as major topics in each house on the session's closing day Monday.

Clements' proposal would establish a nine-member budget execution committee with the governor chairman. The committee would have authority between legislative sessions to:

— Transfer funds between state agencies.

— Force agenices to reduce spending.

— Order state offices to spend funds appropriated for certain items that the agency.

If passed by the Legislature, the constitutional amendment would be on the Nov. 4, 1980, ballot.

Don Cavness, one of the governor's legislataive liaison, told the Senate committee it would be at least 1982 before the proposed committee would start operations. He said a bill amending statutes on budget execution will not have time to pass this Legislature and would have to pass the 1981 session before the panel could function.

Clements originally requested the governor have sole authority to shuffle agency budgets. He has said such powers are needed to meet unforeseen needs, especially since the Legislature meets only every other year.

However, it became clear that legislators would not give the governor unlimited budget authority and the nine-member committee was proposed.

Other members of the budget execution committee would be the lieutenant governor, who would be vice chairman; two appointees named by the governor; chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; the House speaker; and the chairman and vice chairman of the House Appropriations committee.

The Senate committee action came after Sen. Gene Jones removed a parliamentary obstacle that would have held up committee action until 7 p.m. Monday. The legislative session ends at midnight Monday.

When Jones, D-Houston, placed a "tag notice" on the measure Saturday, he froze the measure for 48 hours. However, the lawmaker said he owed the governor a favor and Clements remembered it.

"I owed Governor Clements a silver bullet and he called it home," Jones said, refusing to elaborate.

Senators earlier turned down budget execution powers for the governor, but Clements' aides say the nine-member committee idea might win over earlier skeptics.

The original proposal also would have given governors power to veto riders in the general appropriations bill and reduce funding for single items within the budget as passed by the Legislature. Those sections were taken out by House members.

John Wayne Medal Bill Gets Signature

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Wayne has joined such figures as Charles Lindbergh, Jonas Salk, Robert Frost, Bob Hope and the Wright brothers as the winner of a special congressional medal.

The gold medal will read: "John Wayne — American."

Presidential action on the medal came late Saturday, the same day the actor observed his 72nd birthday with a small family gathering at UCLA Medical Center where he is undergoing treatment for cancer. There was a huge frosted cake in his room.

Wayne received best wishes and accolades from friends and fans around the world. Texas Gov. Bill Clements proclaimed a "John Wayne Day" in the Lone Star state.

President Carter signed a bill approved by Congress that authorized the striking of the special medal. Only 31 others have been authorized.

Carter said the actor's "conduct off the screen has been as exemplary as that of the characters he has portrayed."

"For nearly half a century, the 'Duke' has symbolized the American ideals of integrity, courage, patriotism and strength, and has represented to the world many of the deepest values that his nation respects," he said.

A View From Atop The Hill

Day is done, Gone the sun;
Goeth day, Cometh night;
And a star, Leadeth all, Speedeth all,
To their rest.

--"Taps"

THERE ARE towns which have been built in valleys with large hills towering over them. On warm, sunny days such heights are made for contemplation.

As the solitary viewer traces the town and its geographic features, a feeling of great peace descends.

From this distance, man's habitations and his works seem well-ordered.

The rectangles of the blocks of houses are like pigeonholes ready for storage of life's meanings.

THE RIVERS and the streets seem to fit the contours of the land. And if they do not fit, it would appear simple to make this slight rearrangement or that bit of alteration to gain complete symmetry.

On these heights it is hard to reconcile the existence of wars.

It is only when you are back in the narrower confines of the city's streets, marching with the masses of humanity, that wars become reality once again.

At times, history seems little more than a recital of wars past. There are, in fact, philosophers who argue that war is as "normal" as peace.

Memorial Day, of course, is a day set aside for us to bow a moment over the war dead of the past. It has grown to encompass all those who made the supreme sacrifice.

A rifle volley rips out. The lonely voice of a bugle sounds "Taps." We tell the war dead they are remembered.

We renew our promise once again that they will not have died in vain and that we will do our best, however inadequate, to prevent others from sharing their fate.

We look about us and see much of the world in turmoil, despite all the efforts of the past 3½ decades to replace international strife with a just world order.

DESPITE continuing challenges and occasional setbacks, world leadership remains in our hands. But leadership has its price, and we can be sure that, having surmounted present challenges, yet others await us over the horizon.

On that hilltop, conflict seemed remote. Down here, we know it is all too real and immediate.

The challenge is continuing. And our response must be strength—of spirit and moral fiber as well as in arms. In this fashion, must we keep faith with ourselves and those Americans we honor on this day of sadness.

AN EDITORIAL:

Right Is Right About The Left

A TURN toward conservatism as a political philosophy has now reached nationwide proportions. The San Diego Union put it this way editorially:

"In a nutshell, we have now reached the point where the policies of those who have preached more and bigger government as the solution to our national problems are publicly discredited."

In the intellectual community especially, said The Union, "we are seeing a realization that the 'liberal' philosophy is bankrupt. It has had its chance and failed."

THE SIGNS of this trend, sometimes called the "New Right," are multiplying.

A whole new generation of conservative public policy journals are taking their place alongside the long-established liberal journals.

"Campuses such as UCLA, and University of Miami's Law and Economics Center, once thought to be liberal-dominated," enthused The Schenectady Gazette, "are now turning out some of the brightest and most articulate free-market economists and position papers."

Several old line intellectual publications, such as Commentary and Harpers, have moved away from liberal orthodoxy of government intervention, and have assumed an important (though unspoken) role in the New Right.

THERE HAS been the emergence and coming-of-age of new conservative "think tanks" to disseminate conservative opinion and findings.

To name a few:

The prestigious Heritage Foundation, American Enterprise Institute, the Institute for Contemporary Studies, Hoover Institute, among others.

"What we are seeing here," said The Gazette, "is another demonstration of a free society at work, with competing ideas and competing philosophies in peaceful argument to let the people decide which they prefer."

Even the guys on the left are beginning to realize the guys on the right are right about that.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Artists Meant To Make World More Agreeable

AT SOTHEBY'S in London May 18, 1907, my dear father and mother bought a portrait of the young Duke of Devonshire by Sir Joshua Reynolds. They bought it because they liked it. Today, a Reynolds is a better buy than Fort Knox.

Joshua Reynolds was born July 16, 1723, at Plympton, Devonshire. He was educated at the Plympton school of which his father, a clergyman, was headmaster.

British portrait painter Jonathan Richardson greatly influenced Reynolds and he aspired to become an artist. In 1740 Richardson apprenticed him for four years and in 1743 Reynolds returned to Devon.

But Reynolds went to Rome, remaining two years. Then he devoted himself to studying art in Florence, Bologna and Venice.

In 1753, age 30, Reynolds settled in London, remaining there the rest of his life. In 1768 he helped found the Royal Academy and that year King George III knighted him Sir Joshua Reynolds.

YOU FIND hanging in London's Royal Academy of Arts an oil self-portrait of Reynolds; tall, in painter's robes, a large beret, a document in his hand.

Reynolds preferred the company of men of letters to that of his fellow artists. Lexicographer, essayist and political reporter Samuel Johnson was Reynolds' intimate friend.

Johnson was possibly the best known and most frequently quoted man, after Shakespeare, in English literature.

Johnson died in London Dec. 13, 1784, age 75. He was buried in Westminster Abbey with all the pomp the empire could muster. Reynolds led the large ranks of mourners laying Johnson to rest.

Reynolds died in London Feb. 23, 1792, age 69. He never married and his home was kept by his sister Frances.

Art was not meant to save the world, but to make [illegible] understandable, inspiring or agreeable. [illegible] art stagnates.

SAID 19TH-century poet Johann Wolfgang von Goethe: "Art is long, life brief." And internationally famous critic Bernard Berenson said: "It takes a lifetime to learn to see."

Art became a last refuge of a Europe unable to live up to its masterpieces like Reynolds; divided into two walls of museum culture on one side and reality on the other.

Moreover, there is no Alfred Hitchcock mystery in the incredible sky-high prices paid for authenticated masterpieces. The problem is not to sell the finest paintings, but to find them in the first place. Outside museums, only a few exist. There is simply not enough turnover among the masterpieces for dealers and auctioneers to make a living.

In addition, today's sky-high prices gain much poignancy when you recall that 19th-century Dutch painter Vincent van Gogh managed to sell in his lifetime only one painting for $80.

FINALLY THE market has been forced to include bad paintings by fine artists. For example, humble, emaciated Pierre Auguste Renoir painted some 6,000 pictures in his lifetime—some excellent, some very bad. Suddenly, Renoir changed his style and found greatness. Only then was Renoir's soul made manifest.

Or consider today's sky-high prices for anything by Claude Monet, a giant man who painted fragile waterlilies and scenes; recluse Paul Cezanne; or slight Edgar Degas. Their names on slabs of mud would be enough.

I urge you to read the revealing "The Art Game" by British expert Robert Wraight. He explains that there may be no short cuts to becoming an artist, but there are many to becoming known as an artist.

HE OBSERVES that there are more art critics than ever before, but criticism is at its ebb. Pablo Picasso defined the art critics' responsibility as "building a bridge that people can walk over to join the artist."

EVANS

WASHINGTON—A closed-door meeting April 25 of big labor's political arm, called COPE, decided to keep its financial contributions to pro-labor political candidates flowing despite a potentially devastating April 17 U.S. court decision.

That decision by U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey rules out what the court viewed as overlapping contributions by the national COPE, headed by Alexander Barkan, and separate political action committees (PACs) of individual AFL-CIO unions.

Under new campaign spending laws, the decision implied, the $5,000 limit by any PAC for a single candidate in a general election—and an equal amount during the primary election—should include the sum of all AFL-CIO contributions, national or local.

That means that if candidate Smith received $5,000 from the national COPE, no statewide COPE or individual AFL-CIO union could contribute more.

The court decision, in a case brought by the national Right-To-Work Committee, overruled two unanimous decisions by the federal election commission (FEC).

These held that PACs of AFL-CIO unions could make contributions to a candidate wholly independent of contributions by the national COPE.

Assembling COPE leaders from a score of AFL-CIO unions, Barkan instructed them to continue as before, without any change, pending COPE's appeal. If not reversed, the decision would cost labor-backed candidates millions of campaign dollars.

The loss to business-backed candidates of lumping contributions from national and local PACs together—for example, national and state American Medical Political Action Committees (AMPAC)—would be far less.

CHARLES SNIDER, the former chief political operative for George Wallace who recently signed on with George Bush's presidential campaign, had been vigorously sought by Ronald Reagan's camp—which now is blaming backstage corporate influence for their loss.

Snider and his partner, Alton Dauphin—Wallace's former brother-in-law—flatly deny any such pressure.

Snider told us he joined the Bush campaign after two long meetings with Bush and his campaign chairman, James Baker, after being introduced to Bush by Bill France, the impresario of stock-car racing, in February 1978.

Reagan's men are privately claiming they would have Snider today but were finessed by one of the biggest corporate clients of the Snider-Dauphin, Inc., consulting firm of Montgomery, Ala., which pushed Snider into the Bush camp.

Snider ran Wallace's presidential campaigns in 1972 and 1976 and remains an influential figure with the old Wallace constituency throughout the country, particularly in Alabama.

CONSEQUENTLY, Snider long had been sought for the Reagan campaign by both veteran Reagan political aide Lyn Nofziger and David Keene, Reagan's Southern director in 1976.

When Keene shifted allegiances to become Bush's national field operations director several weeks ago, he informed Snider of the change. Snider then revealed to Keene for the first time that he had been appproached by Bush himself and was seriously considering joining his campaign.

The oddity of a Wallaceite preferring the more moderate Bush over Reagan, long a favorite in the Deep South and especially admired by George Wallace, can be explained by the big corporate client, claimed the Reaganites.

"Charlie's heart is still with us, but his bank account is with Bush," one Reagan insider told us.

Nonsense, Snider told us. He acknowledged that France is a client, and that France, an original Bush backer, tried to interest him in Bush.

But the Snider-Dauphin, Inc. account with France is far too modest, Snider told us, to influence his political decisions.

REP. CHARLES VANIK of Ohio picked up no encouragement from Russian dissidents during his recent visit to the Soviet Union as he pressed his campaign to suspend the Jackson-Vanik amendment.

Meeting with the "refusniks" in Russia, Vanik made clear what we first revealed a few weeks ago: he no longer agrees with Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington about the wisdom of continued economic pressure on the Kremlin to liberalize Soviet emigration policies.

The Soviet government refuses to declare the freer emigration policy demanded by the Jackson-Vanik amendment as a pre-condition for full trade between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Nevertheless, Vanik believes that the flow of Soviet emigrants has increased so impressively that President Carter should back suspension of Jackson-Vanik.

This was the pitch made to the Soviet "refusniks" by Vanik. They refused to buy, telling the congressman that the pressure of Jackson-Vanik should not be relaxed now that the Kremlin is feeling its economic pressure.

That was precisely the position taken by Jackson in private meetings with Vanik before his trip to Russia.

DONALD F. GRAFF:

'First' Is Not Best

THERE ARE any number of ways of knowing a presidential election year is almost upon us without going to the bother of checking a calendar.

Harold Stassen announces his candidacy. Democratic hopefuls commence to cut each other up with glee and in public; Republicans wishing they could do it in a bit more privacy.

And complaints about the first presidential primary, New Hampshire's, begin to be heard in the land.

What's wrong with the New Hampshire primary? Plenty. It comes too soon. The campaigning drags on too long and turns serious politics into a media event.

It draws on too many publicity-seeking candidates and generates too much publicity for the wrong reason—simply because it is first.

AS THE august Washington Post mused editorially: "What if they gave a New Hampshire primary and nobody came?"

Fat chance. The closest New Hampshire has come in recent times to anything resembling such neglect was in 1964 when there were no candidates on the Democratic ballot. Even so, Lyndon Johnson edged Robert Kennedy in a thoroughly publicized write-in contest.

The popular conception of the New Hampshire primary as 1) a political tag match swarming with contenders and 2) a killer of giants is of fairly recent origin.

The first is a carryover from the 1972 and 1976 primaries, in each of which five major and less so Democratic names fought it out.

THE LATTER is a semi-myth dating from 1968 when Sen. Eugene McCarthy came close but did not defeat President Lyndon Johnson, himself not a declared candidate but a write-in.

That vote revealed nothing which succeeding primaries under any circumstances would have compelled.

New Hampshire attracts so much attention and criticism primarily because it is first, and the strenuous effort the state makes to maintain that distinction is about the only of the events's many excesses that can be laid to the blame of New Hampshire itself.

There is too much hype. The primaries are confusing, uncoordinated, dragged out and exhausting for the candidates. But they do perform a function.

The U.S. is a continental nation of widely diverse conditions and interests.

THE COUNTRY could not get to know the candidates nor the candidates the country in the type of tightly scheduled, limited duration campaign of which Britain has just provided an example.

The primaries are a means of providing popular input into party selection and of thinning the field before the finals.

If they had not developed naturally in the course of our political evolution, something very like them probably would have had to have been deliberately created.

So why not New Hampshire? After all, the presidential selection process has to start somewhere.

And the country could do much worse than place that responsibility on a state whose voters have given every indication that they take it and their politics seriously, whatever the antics of the hordes of outsiders who descend upon them quadrennially.

JAY HARRIS:

It Wasn't Cheap...

IN SOME WAYS, this Memorial Day is different.

The year is not half over. It's politics as usual in Austin and Washington. And the outlook on the energy, inflation and international fronts is still very cloudy.

Politics and the 1980 presidential campaign are already grabbing attention. School is out and summer vacations are just ahead.

Americans for the most part are enjoying the best and the worst of this world. And millions abroad still look to the U.S. for guidance, leadership and a degree of stability. So, what is so different?

FROM THE standpoint of "the basics," perhaps it is life as usual. The difference is more of a feeling for what is ahead than anything else.

As the nation heads down the stretch toward the 1980s, there is a growing awareness that the next 10 years will be the Decade of Decision and continued progress, or a Decade of Disaster and a new way of life.

If one is to believe much of what one reads and hears, tomorrow's world will be far different from the one we know.

On one hand, a world of technology will change all lives, the pundits say. On the other, we will find ourselves increasingly unable to cope with a world of machines and computers, the doubters argue.

Today, a small memory chip which most persons don't even understand stores information about most of us, how we spend our money and time, who we owe, if we are divorced or married, if we drink or have been arrested.

AND IN THE not distant future, home computers or the home programmer, as it is called, is supposed to do everything but the windows.

Already, one can push a button for an instant meal, flip a leaver and get perfect ice cubes, have a phone which does the dialing and interrupts to tell you someone else wants to talk.

Cars have widgets which can tell you how far the too costly gasoline will go and when it will get you there. And wrist watches not only tell the time of day, the week and month, but buzz you awake and when it's time to go to lunch.

Typewriters store letters and call them up on order, "personalize" them and correct your errors without ever missing a beat. "Banking by mail" has been replaced by "all night banking," instant cash and robot cashiers. One can go to a ball game or a movie and record a television program or another game at home and see it at leisure. One professor can speak to a dozen classrooms at the same time and be seen in each.

IN THE FIELD of medicine, science, aviation and publishing, the age of electronics and computers has arrived. Man has walked on the moon and sent machines to distant planets.

But, what of Man himself? How has he fared in his world of instant coffee, pre-programmed meals, sports worship and a "neutral" religion? Who really "runs the show" these days? The machines or the people who invented them?

As we approach the decade in which Big Brother is supposed to come of age, it is a legitimate question.

What of Man's system for governing himself and others? What of Democracy and an American way of life which has made it all possible? Will it, and we survive in a world of nuclear giants and mental midgets? Where do each of us fit into the jigsaw of Peace, SALT II, Great Decisions and Survival?

THERE IS A strong argument to be made that man can find ways and means to cope with the world which he has built.

The argument is that every generation has faced changes and new challenges. The coming of the steam engine, the car, plane, radio, television, the Space and Atomic Age, all man turned to his advantage.

There is also room for argument that with each of these steps toward a new world came more and more problems—a breaking of nature's barriers, a despoiling of the environment, rising accident tolls, mass pollution of the mind if not morals and the threat of instant destruction as well as instant coffee. Have we come too far, too fast, too soon?

It matters not. Even we could go back to "the good old days," there is no way. We turn to campers and backpacks, jogging and mountain climbing, quickie trips to the far corners of the globe, and tranquilizers to shut out the complicated world about us.

WHAT DOES ALL of this have to do with Memorial Day?

We recall a Sunday night long ago when a close friend looked at the stars and said: "Why do I want to join now? I don't know. It's something I've got to do..."

He and millions like him went off to war, fought it. Some survived and some didn't. Two more "wars" have been fought since. The first one was won, the other two were lost.

The friend, a cousin, a next-door neighbor...Each felt they were fighting for a way of life worth dying for. It wasn't the computers, or instant coffee or a favorite athletic team. It was for a nation, a thing called Freedom and the right to choose how one could spend one's life...

The world is a much more complicated place than it was then. Today, with all our progress, we seem to have lost our way and forgotten our past, how we got where we are and why. Maybe each of us should take a moment and reflect on what it cost to get here, progress, gusto and all. It wasn't cheap...

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q. WHAT COUNTRY has the most alcoholics in proportion to population?

A. France, according to the statisticians. Lot of wine is turned out there. Some scholars wonder if wine production is tied in with the alcoholism thing. Chile has the second highest incidence of that malady. And there's a lot of wine turned out there, too.

No vegetarian should forget that some of the most formidable beasts in the animal kingdom—elephant, hippo, moose and rhino—don't eat meat.

Q. The scientists say dogs are color blind. How do the scientists know?

A. They've run batches of tests wherein they associate foods with color and foods with scents. The dogs react predictably to the foods-with-scents tests. They don't react at all to the foods-with-colors tests.

Priest Celebrates Peking Mass

PEKING (AP) — The Rev. Albert Blatz, once a priest in Sleepy Eye, Minn., donned a vestment embroidered with red roses, reached back into his memory of Latin and celebrated Mass Sunday in Peking's only Catholic church, asking God to "bless the Chinese people."

The Rev. Michal Fu, a Chinese priest at the Southern Cathedral, said he believed it was the first time an American priest had said Mass in 30 years in the church, founded by Jesuits in 1650.

"It was a great thrill. I am very grateful, "said Blatz, now chaplain of St. Peter's State Hospital in Minneapolis. He is visiting here with the American Association of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Blatz said a guide put him in touch with church officials.

"We sat down on Friday and had tea and talked," said Blatz. "At first they wanted my credentials, but I didn't bring them since I came as a public employee.

"Then we talked in Latin and when I showed them a record that I had once been assistant pastor at St. Mary's Church in Sleepy Eye, Minn., they agreed to let me say Mass."

Fu, standing on the sunny steps of the gray stone church said, "Since normalization (of diplomatic relations), we are so happy to have an American pastor here. We hope many more Catholics come and many more fathers."

Blatz, 63, offered a special Mass for about 25 worshippers at the cathedral, the formal name of which is the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

He stood behind the cracked railing, before faded red kneeling cushions and said, "let us offer this Mass that God may bless the Chinese people in their efforts to improve the condition of the people of China.

"And that all nations of the world may live in peace.

"And, let us pray that I remember how to say this Mass in Latin. It has been many years," he added, referring to the fact that the Vatican ordered its churches in the early 1960s to abandon traditional Latin Masses in favor of the national languages.

Fu said the church is not affiliated with the Vatican and said, "We got rid of the control of Rome. Now we conduct matters independently and self-reliantly on our own."

Blatz said later, "I would have preferred it if I could have said Mass in English and if I could have been closer to the people."

An organist struck a few notes on an old Chinese pump organ and faint chords filled the rebuilt church of false marble panels, artificial flowers and tiny colored chandeliers.

"This was great. It took me back 20 years," said Wandell Young, president of the Retail Clerks union in Philadelphia. "It was just the way the priest said Mass when I was an altar boy."

Blatz was assisted by the Rev. Anthony Liu, one of 10 priests at the church where every week about 200 people come to pray at the traditional Latin Mass.

Liu said the Communist government appears to be easing restraints on religion.

"During the sabotage of Linbio (former Defense Minister Lin Piao) and the Gang of Four," he said, "no one dared to come to church and freedom of religion was not allowed. Now it is coming back."

Penny Barrage Asked For Moe

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two local radio stations have begun a drive to collect $3,000 — in pennies — to pay the fine levied against San Antonio Spurs coach Doug Moe for criticizing NBA referees.

NBA commissioner Lawrence O'Brien imposed the fine on Wednesday after Moe criticized the officiating in the sixth and seventh games of the Washington-San Antonio Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series.

The Spurs led the series 3-1, but lost the last three games. Moe was particularly critical of decisions made by referee John Vanak in the seventh game in Landover, Md.

Radio station KTSA has planned a "Dough for Moe" fund-raiser on Saturday and station KONO is also collecting money. Spokesmen for the stations claim they'll attempt to collect 300,000 pennies.

It is believed to be the largest fine levied against an NBA coach.

Moe, vacationing in Las Vegas, said about the fine, "Yes, the fine bothers me. I'm not concerned about the money, though. What gets to me is that coaches aren't allowed to speak out when officials do a lousy job. What recourse do we have?"

Angelo Drossos, president of the Spurs, said Thursday the team will not help Moe pay the fine.

Presidential Aide Asks For 'Moderation' From OPEC Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Further increases in international oil prices will hurt not only the United States, but also many other nations with whom oil producers "profess to have a great deal of sympathy," a top aide to President Carter said Sunday.

Stuart Eizenstat, the adviser, said both the United States and the world economy will have problems coping with further prices increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"We have to have some cooperation from OPEC," Eizenstat said, noting that the cartel's prices have increased 25 percent since December.

"At this point, frankly, they have not shown that they are terribly interested in moderaing," Eizenstat concedd in response to a question. "However, if they will look simply at the following facts:

"One, if they continue to increase prices at the level they have, they are going to badly damage the world economy. Secondly, they will badly damage the poorer nations, with whom they profess to have a great deal of sympathy. Thirdly, they will undermine their own investments, many of which are in dollars.

"Therefore, we think it is in their own self-interest as well as in the self-interest of the rest of the world for that moderation (in prices) to occur."

Eizenstat made the comments in an interview on the CBS program "Face the Nation."

Asked about apparent contradictions in the president's reports on gasoline availability, Eizenstat criticized the press, saying it did a poor job in explaining the president's energy policy to the public.

"The press has grossly misinterpreted what the president has said and has been saying for 2½ years," Eizenstat said.

The domestic affairs adviser said Carter's statements made four principal points which have not changed: that the energy problem is long-term and chronic; that imports during April and May likely were at their lowest level; that increasing imports are likely to help the gasoline situation in June, July and August; and finally that "even with that modest improvement, we cannot expect to get beyond that level of gasoline that we had in 1978, although demand for gas has gone up," leaving a shortfall.

When challenged by questioning reporters about alleged press misintepretations, Eizenstat insisted his comments were not meant to characterize reporters as harboring evil intent or of deliberately slanting the news.

"We have never picked on the press as a whipping boy," he said. "We are dealing with a very complex (energy) situation, and a very difficult situation. It is not a black and white situation."

He again recapped the preident's statements, then said:

"That is nt a simple thing to explain and frankly the press often, because of the press of deadlines and the need of giving the people a succinct judgment, can't put that rather complex statement into a single paragraph."

On other matters, Eizenstat:

—Indicated that a new contract between United Airlines and its mechanics exceeded the administration's voluntary wage ceiling of 7 percent. But he said the guidelines still are in effect, and "they have been helpful in bringing down what would have been even higher wage settlements."

—Conceded that the administration is asking workers to sacrifice by maintaining a 7 percent ceiling while inflation is running at 13 percent annually. But he added: "It is a sacrifice that has to be made, however, if we're to be successful in beating inflation."

—Declined to predict what the inflation rate will be for the year, saying a formal prediction will be issued in July under a provision in the federal budget law. However, he said the final figure "quite obviously" will be higher than the 7.4 percent target figure the administration had issued previously.

CANCER (JUNE 21-July 22) Fuzzy thinking could cause some problems for you today. Double-check everything so that a large error doesn't slip through.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Money and friends won't mix well today. Don't get involved with any financial dealings with pals, either as recipient or lender.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have to take extra pains not to be overly critical today. Your words will have a boomerang effect and come back and attack you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone may try to use you as a doormat today by wiping their nasty little comments all over you. Speak up for your rights. Don't let them get away with it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Teammates must be selected with extra care today. The wrong ones could make you look like a chump instead of a champ.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could easily get stuck in a rut with narrow thinking today and give your competition a few jumps on you. Try to look beyond the obvious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're good at making excuses but unfortunately they won't do your work for you. You'll reap exactly what you sow today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be especially careful who you tell what to today. There is a false friend who will use what you say in a manner that is harmful to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you don't have much faith in the abilities of others involved with you in your activities, you'd better not rely on them too heavily.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Tackle only what you're capable of doing alone today. Proper help will not be available for strenuous tasks, and you could hurt yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your budget will only stretch so far before it snaps. Don't kid yourself by thinking tomorrow will care for itself. Better spend wisely.

Paper Says Museums 'Advertising Showrooms'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public museums of science often serve as advertising showrooms for the nation's biggest corporations, a Washington-based consumer group charged Sunday.

In a "White Paper on Science Museums," the Center for Science in the Public Interest said: "With a few notable exceptions, there is general agreement that science museums should, and can, address controversial public policy issues. Yet. ..many science museums opt for the easier route of accepting, with little question, exhibits directly donated by industry."

The 56-page booklet examines a variety of exhibits sponsored by General Motors, Monsanto, Honeywell, STP (oil products) Corp. and other major companies that the center claims do more to advertise products or industry positions than inform the public.

In order to secure exhibits, many financially hard-pressed museums let corporations design, build and write the text on certain subjects, the center said.

It suggested the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, with its large infusions of federal dollars, is the exception, generally insisting on doing its own research and design work, accepting cooperation but not direction from industry.

Michael Templeton, director of the Association of Science-Technology Centers, said the public interest advocacy group unfairly "took a polar position and said everybody else should follow it."

Some museums, such as the Smithsonian, San Francisco's Exploratorium and Lawrence Hall of Science in Berkeley, Calif., "take an extremely fastidious position and normally don't accept an exhibit designed by a corporation," Templeton said.

But he defended the role of institutions that take on the job of displaying industrial life and their dependence on the cooperation of industry.

"If you want an example of 19th century farm machinery, you go to a company that made 19th century farm machinery," Templeton said. "And if you're looking for a demonstration of modern computer technology, you go to a company that manufactures the latest in computers."

He added there has been a shift in recent years from exhibits that simply displayed industrial products and showed how they worked toward those that seek to show "the impact of technology on people."

But as they get away from mere historical presentations and try to explain complex issues such as nuclear energy, museums enter a controversial area unfamiliar to their naturally conservative nature, Templeton said.

Michael Jacobson, director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, said it is in just such cases that corporations exercise their greatest influence by showing off their proudest achievements and paying scant attention to the health dangers and environmental problems caused by industrial development.

Alaska Lawyer Fills In As GOP Senate Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee is off running for president, his stand-in as Republican leader of the Senate will be an Alaska lawyer who has vowed to stay neutral in the party's presidential wars.

At 55, Sen. Ted Stevens is in his third year as assistant leader, which means he is acting leader when Baker is absent. That is happening more frequently these days and is expected to be still more frequent soon.

Baker has not formally announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, but has said he plans to run.

"Howard is traveling more and more," Stevens said in an interview.

"I anticipate that in the period probably after the July 4 recess until the July 4 recess next year that Howard could probably be absent in terms of time — not in terms of votes but in terms of time — more than he is here."

That means that Stevens will be taking on more of the leadership chores of lining up support for party positions, scheduling bills and arranging debate time for Republican colleagues.

It has also touched off a minor skirmish in GOP ranks because of Baker's decision to stay on as leader while campaigning, rather than resign and let the Republicans elect a new leader.

There are precedents for this, most recently in 1964, when Lyndon B. Johnson ran for the presidency from his post as majority leader.

But Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, an announced candidate for the GOP nomination, and Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, a leader of Ronald Reagan's 1976 campaign, raised objections to Baker's plan when it became known some weeks ago.

Aides to Dole and Laxalt say they have not changed their views.

"I think he feels the minority leadership is more or less a full-time job," said Dole spokesman Bill Kats.

Bob Ryan, press aide to Laxalt, said the Nevada senator believes Baker should step aside when he becomes an announced candidate.

Stevens said Dole and Laxalt have generated little support among other Republicans for their position.

"It was just a ripple, really, across our conference," Stevens said.

"If I were part of Howard's campaign organization, there might be a greater basis for an argument against what is going to happen, but I have agreed to stay impartial through this period."

Stevens, an Anchorage attorney and former state legislator, was appointed to the Senate in 1968 to succeed the late E.L. Bartlett, a Democrat. He was elected in 1972 and easily won re-election in 1978.

Like Baker, he is neither among the Senate's most staunch conservatives nor its most ardent liberals. Americans for Democratic Action gave him a 10 percent liberal voting record in 1978, compared with 25 percent for Baker. The American Conservative Union rated Stevens 61 and Baker 60 for the same period.

Should Baker win the presidency, Stevens is expected to run for the leadership post.

"Yes, I would say so," he said when asked if he would run for it.

But he added that with Republicans needing only a net gain of nine votes to overcome their 58-41 deficit in the Senate, he would not necessarily be content just to lead the minority.

"Some people have one ambition. Others have another," he said. "My ambition is to be majority leader of the Senate."

Rhodesian Chrome Finds U.S. Market

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union has been buying Rhodesian chrome in defiance of United Nations sanctions and reselling some of it to the United States at a handsome profit, the London Sunday Telegraph reported.

The paper said it was quoting from a report compiled from Western diplomatic sources for the U.N. Sanctions Committee. The report says that as long ago as 1970, Rhodesian chrome ore was being sold to the Soviet Union and then resold to the United States at a profit, the Sunday Telegraph said.

The Russians were buying ore at $32 a ton and reselling it at $58 a ton, the paper said.

The need for Rhodesian chrome is one reason why the U.S. Senate has asked President Carter to end America's participation in U.N.-economic sanctions against Rhodesia. The Senate acted after elections in Rhodesia last month that established the nation's first black-majority government after decades of white-minority domination. Carter has said he will announce a decision next month on lifting sanctions.

The Telegraph said Colt Industries of Pittsburgh, Pa., had carried out chemical tests for the State Department that proved that some "Russian" chrome bought by the United States originated in Rhodesia.

It said the chrome, along with Rhodesian tobacco and maize, reached the Soviet Union via South Africa.

COOLING OFF A KILLER WHALE — Dave Parsons, an animal trainer at Marine World-Africa USA in Redwood City, Calif., pours water on a young orca that washed ashore at Big Sur, Calif. Members of the Marine World staff picked up the unconscious whale and brought it back to the park where they helped to bring the killer whale out of a state of shock. The orca is estimated to be about 14 or 15-months old and is 8¼ feet long and weighs 800 pounds. (AP Laserphoto)

Police Investigating Aggravated Assaults

Police Sunday investigated the aggravated assault of two 20-year-old men that reportedly occurred outside of Uncle Nasty's about 1:15 a.m.

The two victims, Andrew Ashton Mays of Tulia and Larry Dewey Anderson of Kilgore, were treated at Methodist Hospital for bruises and lacerations and then released.

Police reports show that Mays and Anderson and another man had been fighting inside the Main Street nightspot and that the club manager escorted Mays and Anderson out of the club. The two men told police that when they got outside, they were beaten by ten or twelve men.

They said two of their assailants were white men, 18 to 25 and tall. The two reported one of the suspects was muscular and had black hair and the other was heavyset with blonde hair.

Shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday, two 18-year-old Lubbock men were taken to county jail — one for 10 traffic tickets and the other for public intoxication — after a police chase east of the Texas Tech campus.

Reports indicate the driver of a Ford Ranchero received 10 traffic tickets and his passenger was arrested for public intoxication after the chase ended at 13th Street and Avenue V.

According to police, the driver made a wide, fast turn across the double centerline and into the path of eastbound traffic from Avenue R to Broadway at a high rate of speed.

After police began pursuit, the driver ran redlights on Broadway at Avenue S, Avenue T and Avenue U and fishtailed the vehicle into 13th Street. Police finally stopped the vehicle at 13th Street and Avenue V, reports say.

In other activity, Johnny Lozano of 2801 Erskine St. told officers a short, thin Mexican-American man drove off in his $1,800 car from his residence about 9:15 p.m. Saturday. Lozano said the suspect was 18 to 25 years old.

Ruby Nell Holloman of 2709 E. 2nd Place reported that a black male in his late 20s or early 30s stole $430 worth of her property, including a stereo, revolver and clothes sometime between 8:30 p.m. Saturday and 7:15 a.m. Sunday.

No Way To Win

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — Residents of this tiny island town soon will have a choice.

They can obey a proposed ordinance requiring them to fill eroded shore land on their property.

Or they can obey federal law that prohibits them to fill the areas washed away by the natural erosion process.

Whichever they choose to obey, they will be violating the other one, unless they can obtain a federal permit allowing such fill operations, and those have proved difficult to get.

Failure to comply with the city ordinance could bring a $100-a-day fine. Failure to comply with the federal law could bring fines of up to $10,000.

"It puts them in a hard spot," said John Wong, chief of the compliance section of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Galveston.

The proposed ordinance, which has won approval on first reading, would require owners of eroded land to restore it by filling to an elevation equal to that of the surrounding property.

"The ebb and flow of our ecological system here causes people to lose land daily," said City Manager Kirby Lilljedahl.

The federal law amounts to improper seizure of personal property, Lilljedahl contends.

"As a wash occurs on the bay side, the people are not allowed to reclaim their property and get it back to the original level," he said.

Several of the aldermen said they realize they are bucking federal law and that lawsuits may follow.

"I'd say the town ought to support (a land owner) and assist him if he is sued," alderman Troy Dillow said.

The proposed ordinance would require the town to tell a land owner to fill eroded land. The land owner then would have 20 days to begin the work. After that, the land owner could be fined each day.

Land owners who fill without getting a federal permit will be breaking the law, Wong confirmed. There is little chance anyone could get the necessary permit in 20 days, he added.

"They're very difficult to get," he said.

"These areas have been determined to be environmentally productive areas and of certain beneficial use to fish and wildlife as well as to man," Wong said, citing flood protection as one use for natural washover areas.

Landowners who filled without a permit have occasionally been made to "bring the land back down to natural level," Wong said.

To get a permit to comply with the proposed ordinance, a land owner would have to show he has more at stake than just a homesite or investment, he said. Even if a land owner has a good case, it usually takes at least 90 days to secure the permit, he added.

That could mean $7,000 in city fines.

Former Ambassador Weds TV Personality

CINCINNATI (AP) — Former ambassador to Switzerland Marvin Warner has married Susan Goldwater, co-host of the "P.M. Magazine" nightly television show in Washington.

Saturday's wedding was the second trip to the altar for both.

Warner earlier this month resigned his post as ambassador, effective July 15. Mrs. Warner, the former wife of Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E.M. Gherman of Newport Beach, Calif.

Prior to his appointment as ambassador in 1977, Warner was chairman of Warner National Corp. and ComBanks Corp.

Warner is a former co-owner of the New York Yankees baseball team and the Tampa Bay football team. He also raises thoroughbreds at his Warnerton Farm in Clermont County and Walmac Warnerton Farms, in Lexington, Ky.

Confederate Memorabilia Set For Museum Show

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibition of portraits and memorabilia of the Confederacy has a textbook for young people of the period which poses this math question: "If one Confederate soldier can whip seven Yankees, how many soldiers can whip 49 Yankees?"

The exhibition relating to the establishment of the Confederate States of America opens Monday at the National Protrait Gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution.

There are portraits of some of the South's foremost leaders: Robert Barnwhell Rhett, the impetuous publisher of the radical Charleston Mercury known as the father of secession; Jefferson Davis, the compromise candidate for the presidency of the Confederacy who defended the South in the U.S. Senate and was elected chief executive; Alexander Hamilton Stephens, the new vice president who played an important role in forming the Confederate government.

There are Edmund Ruffin, who was permitted to fire the first shot that launched the Civil War; and Robert E. Lee, who expressed the ambivalence he and many others felt when he said: "With all my devotion to the Union and feeling of loyalty and duty as an American citizen, I have not been able to make up my mind to raise my hand against my relatives, my children, my home."

There is a letter that Lee wrote to a cousin, Roger Jones, on April 20, 1861, explaining his motives. There is a portrait of Lee painted about 1864 by Edward Caledon Bruce, owned by the gallery.

There is a portrait of Stephens painted in 1858 by George Peter Alexander Healy, on loan from the Georgia State Library.

There is a copy of an extra printed by Rhett's Charleston Mercury reporting the approval on Dec. 20, 1860, of a resolution of secession adopted in South Carolina, with the words: "The Union is Dissolved."

A recruiting handbill of early 1861 says: "Wanted: for the regular Army of the Confederate States of America, 2,500 intelligent, active young men." They were told they could enlist for two, three or four years, and would receive $11 to $21 a month, plus clothing, rations and medical attention. They were asked to "rendezvous in the Brick Row opposite the courthouse at Salisbury, N.C."

A label reminds viewers that by the end of the year, the South was accepting only men who came already armed.

The exhibition, which will continue through Oct. 7, includes a Confederate flag, the Great Seal, the working draft of the Constitution, inaugural mementos, drawings of uniforms, political cartoons, currency and sheet music.

Introducing the show is a quotation of Oct. 7, 1862, by William Gladstone, England's chancellor of the exchequer:

"There is no doubt that Jefferson Davis and other leaders of the South have made an army; they are making, it appears, a navy, and they have made what is more than either — they have made a nation."

Lest the Union be forgotten, the gallery has included a portrait of Abraham Lincoln and his life mask and casts of his hands.

Cavett Defends English Language At Vassar

NEW YORK (AP) — Television host Dick Cavett advised 554 Vassar graduates Sunday to try to save the English language, which he said was fast becoming "a fabulous invalid."

Cavett, a 43-year-old former Yale student, said there was ample proof the English language is in trouble.

"We can confirm it when we take an airplane, and the pilot doesn't tell us he expects a bumpy ride; he says he anticipates experiencing considerable turbulence.

"We hear a policeman who doesn't say the suspect got out of the car; he relates that the alleged perpetrator exited the vehicle."

Cavett also directed a barb at the woman's movement.

"We seem to be stuck with that barbarous abbreviation 'Ms.,' which doesn't abbreviate anything, except common sense."

Cavett said those expected to respect the English language most — teachers, linguists and "dictionary-makers" — were, in fact, "leading the onslaught" against the language.

AFRICAN TROUBLES CITED

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenyan Foreign Minister Munyua Waiyaki says Africa is plagued with internal squabbling and greed for power within many states to the extent that the continent's resources are being used to destroy the very persons they should protect. Waiyaki, in a statement released here Saturday to mark the 16th anniversary of the founding of the Organization of African Unity, said that if Africa is to achieve the goals it has set for itself the interests of the people in every nation must be put first.

Man Sets Record With Snakes, Calls It, '50 Days Of Hell'

HARTBEESPOORT, South Africa (AP) — Peter Snyman emerged from a snakepit Sunday after "50 days of hell" with 24 deadly snakes, drank champagne and vowed never to try to beat his world record.

"It's one thing to catch snakes and another to have them creeping all over you and sticking their tongues in your nose," said the new holder of the Guinness book of Records title for living with poisonous snakes.

"There were times that I closed my eyes and thought to myself, now there I go. This is it," recalled Snyman who could have died within minutes had he been bitten by any of his cellmates.

Black mambas, puff adders, Egyptian cobras and boomslangs slithered freely onto his bed and around his glass walled cage at Hartbeespoort Snake Park, about 40 miles northwest of Johannesburg.

The 25-year-old South African carpenter stayed motionless throughmost of his stay, despite snakes winding themselves around his body. The need to keep constant guard proved the most nerve-wracking part of the exercise, Snyman said.

When he finally stepped into freedom at 5 p.m., a large crowd stared with curiosity, wondering how anyone could remain inside 50 days.

"Thank God it's over, in the final countdown I was very nervous I'd get bitten," he said.

The crowd trooped across the park to witness Snyman drink a glass of champagne as the setting sun cast shadows on the dusty surrounding hills.

"People who say this sort of thing is crazy are people who lead too much of a sheltered life," he said. "I accepted a challenge and came out on top.

"There will be other challenges in the future but I'll never go back into the snake cage.

The bearded bachelor, who maintained a serious countenance throughout, could hardly control a wide, happy grin just seconds before he made his grand exit.

He sat completely still with his hands clasped firmly together, turning his head ever so slightly to watch the boomslangs curled around a tree stump behind him.

His eyes sparkled through his dark-rimmed glasses, despite an average four hours sleep throughout the vigil.

He won celebrity status while breaking the 36-day record set in 1975 by fellow South African, Trevor Kruger, who died two weeks later in an auto crash.

Once Snyman broke the record, he decided to remain inside another two weeks to protect his title.

HEARTLINE: I am age 63 and retired on Social Security. I am two years older than my husband. He intends to retire in about two years and draw his Social Security. We have two children drawing dependent children's benefits now on my account. When my husband retires, his retirement benefit will be higher than my benefit, but mine is higher than the percentage I would receive on his record as his wife. So, I plan to continue drawing my own benefits. However, the children would receive a higher benefit on his record. What I want to know is, if I keep my own benefits, will the children be able to switch and draw benefits from my husband's account when he retires? — W.F.

Yes, if drawing dependent children's benefits on his account would give them higher benefits, then they would be able to switch.

HEARTLINE: I recently retired and am drawing Social Security. I know my son, who is 19, will be able to draw benefits if he goes to college. The rule says he will, if he is a full-time student. Just what does this mean? — P.R.

A full-time student is one who is in attendance at a day or evening course (non-correspondence) at an educational institution and is carrying a course load considered full-time by the institution's standards and practices. The course of study must last at least 13 weeks and the beginning and ending weeks may be counted as full weeks.

HEARTLINE: I have never worked under Social Security. If I wanted to purchase Medicare coverage, how much would it cost me? — T.D.

From July 1978, to June 1979, you would have to pay $63 per month for Medicare Hospital Insurance (Part A) and $8.20 per month for Medicare Medical Insurance (Part B). These amounts will be changed in June.

HEARTLINE: I have been drawing Social Security retirement for almost a year, and I am still employed part-time. Due to the kind of job I have, there is opportunity for advancement over the years. I am trying to stay within the allowed income requirements so that I can continue to receive my full Social Security benefits. I would like to be able to make plans for my future income. Do you know, at this time, what the allowed income will be for the next several years? It would really help me to know. — R.E.

For Social Security beneficiaries over the age of 65, the allowed earnings for 1979 is $4,500. This will be increased in 1980 to $5,000; in 1981 to $5,500; and in 1982 to $6,000. After 1982, the $6,000 level would be increased automatically as wage levels rise. The annual exempt amount in those years for beneficiaries under age 65 would be increased automatically as wage levels rise. The allowed amount of earnings in 1979 for persons under age 65 is $3,480. This is expected to rise to $3,720 in 1980; $3,960 in 1981; and $4,200 in 1982.

Heartline has available a book that explains in easy-to-understand language the most common facts of the Social Security program. To order, send $2 to Heartline's Guide to Social Security, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, ILL. 60611.

HEARTLINE: I have heard that Social Security recipients can have their Social Security checks deposited directly into their bank accounts. I am a railroad retiree and wonder if I can do the same, and what is the procedure involved in doing this. — W.S.

Railroad retirees can have their annuity checks deposited directly in any bank or similar financial organization. To do this, take your next annuity check from the Board to where you do your banking and have them complete the direct deposit form. This should solve any future problems you might have in receiving your annuity checks on time.

Ex-Talmadge Aide Takes Witness Stand Against Former Boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I come before you to testify about a time of my life of which I am not proud," Daniel Minchew said of his four years as Sen. Herman E. Talmadge's closest aide.

In a few weeks, the Senate Ethics Committee must decide whether Minchew acted alone or under the direction of Talmadge, D-Ga., in devising a scheme for the conversion of thousands of dollars in campaign contributions to personal use.

The committee can recommend censure or expulsion or some lesser action against the 65-year-old Talmadge, who has been in the Senate far longer than any of the six members of the panel.

Or it can vote to do nothing at all against the chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, who has announced he will run for election to his fifth term next year.

Was the 39-year-old Minchew telling the truth when he testified, "My wrongdoing evolved out of misplaced loyalty?"

Or is Talmadge correct in angrily declaring that his former close aide is an embezzler who acted alone in stealing Senate funds and contributions intended to help pay for the senator's 1974 re-election campaign.

As Talmadge's former administrative assistant, Minchew is the most important witness to appear before the committee.

Ironically, his testimony began during the same week that CBS televised a dramatic re-enactment of the role of John Dean, former President Richard M. Nixon's White House counsel, in the Watergate scandals.

But unlike Minchew, Dean possessed a detailed, almost photographic memory which allowed him to recreate whole conversations which occurred three or four years previously.

Last week, Minchew said he was unable to recall specifically how much money was converted for Talmadge's own use from the secret account.

He also said he is not sure how much he used himself, but did not challenge an estimate of about $16,000 by committee investigators.

And more importantly, Dean's testimony was overshadowed by the White House tapes, which were used to prosecute some of Nixon's closest aides and in articles of impeachment approved by the House Judiciary Committee.

Minchew has no tapes, and in fact, has no documents demonstrating Talmadge's alleged role in the money-making scheme.

He has given the committee memos which indicate involvement by at least one present and still loyal member of Talmadge's staff. If the memos are authentic, they demonstrate that Minchew could not have acted alone, as Talmadge contends.

Minchew says he deliberately tailored the money conversion plan to allow Talmadge "deniability." That is why, Minchew says, he forged the senator's signature and handled all transactions himself, including deposits into the secret account in the Riggs National Bank.

Now, Minchew says, if Talmadge had requested it last summer, he would have "taken a fall" for his former boss. Instead, Minchew said, the senator betrayed him and secretly went to the Justice Department with a document indicating the aide's participation in the scheme.

Sakharov Appraises Atom Power

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — Soviet dissident Andrej Sakharov, a Nobel Prize-winning physicist, said Sunday the West cannot afford to abandon nuclear power if it hopes to remain politically independent.

In an interview with West German television, Sakharov said the mishap at the Three Mile Island plant, near Harrisburg, Pa., which has led to a worldwide re-evaluation of nuclear energy, was more of "a technical discomfort" than an accident and had been "greatly exaggerated" by critics.

"Were the West to reduce its program for building nuclear plants because of the accident in Harrisburg, it would result in a million times greater damage," Sakharov said.

Sakharov, a pioneer in the Soviet nuclear program, said the West would lose "very important advantages in economic competition with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries" if it curtailed its atomic development.

"I believe that the loss of the possibility of an equal, economic competition would have very great economic and political results and could lead to a danger for the political independence of the Western countries, to the loss of every value of which these countries are proud and which form the basis of their lives," Sakharov added.

Sakharov said critics of the Three Mile Island incident should make clear the mishap "claimed no victims among human beings."

U.S. officials have said there is a likelihood of a slightly increased cancer rate among persons living in the vicinity of the plant.

Sakharov claimed nuclear energy was in some ways safer than other sources, such as coal, because science better understood its effects.

He noted the uncertainty of the effects of coal-fired plants on the atmosphere's ozone layer, which protects life on Earth from harmful radiation from space.

"It sounds like a paradox, but we know more about atomic energy, a new energy source, than about the traditional forms of energy," he said.

hair. The men were in the middle or late 20s, of chunky build and wearing blue jeans.

A reward of $300 is being offered for information leading to the apprehension of a fugitive, Ira Skeeter Ainsworth. Ainsworth, who was born July 1, 1959, is 5-8, 130 pounds, blond hair and blue eyes. He is wanted for felony theft (warrant 9704) and application has been made to revoke his probation (warrant 17924).

Information also is needed concerning an exploson at the AA Club at 2819 Clovis Road on May 18, 1978. A reward of $300 has been posted.

Investitation revealed that the explosion occurred at or near the front portion of the building and there was a strong odor of sulphur and black gun powder. The frame of the door was destroyed. The glass in the front portion of the building was broken. Officers theorized a device was placed outside the front door. Damage was estimated at $2,500.

A reward of $300 has been posted in conneciton with the robbery of a woman May 9. The victim ran out of gasoline in the 2400 block of 6th Street and was walking to a service station. A Mexican-American man walking in the opposite direction grabbed her from the back and stole her purse. He was 14 to 17 years old, 5-7 to 5-9, medium build.

On Jan. 16, 1979, another explosion occurred at Third Street and Avenue Q. A bomb, possibly dynamite, had been placed on the rear bumper of a 1976 Oldsmobile Regency four-door at Eaton Motor Co., 304 Ave. Q. The bomb was placed at the nozzle of the gas tank. The Olds was destroyed and several other cars were damaged but the gasoline tank did not explode. A reward of $300 is being offered.

The Crime Line hotline is manned from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and at other times by an automatic answering device.

The program will be augmented in the near future with 25 "Crime Eye" cameras, which will be hidden in the areas of high crime incidence. The city council last week approved the purchase of the cameras at a cost of $14,000.

Israelis, Egyptians To Open Borders

Guerrilla Strongholds Shelled

In Lebanon, officials reported a fifth day of Israeli shelling of Palestinian guerrilla strongholds. They said one civilian was killed and another wounded in the port city of Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut. The Israeli military command said it knew nothing about the shelling.

From El Arish, turned over Friday to Egypt after 12 years of Israeli occupation, the three officials boarded a helicopter and flew to this Nege Desert city for brief alks on Palestinian sef-rule in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Later, they boarded Sadat's jet and flew over Cairo and Tel Aviv to symbolically open air service between the two nations, held talks in the air and returned to Beersheba for more meetings.

Sadat was greeted with a 21-gun salute and a military honor guard at Beersheba city hall, where he was given the keys to the city.

With the delicate autonomy talks ahead, both leaders clearly intended to avoid controversial issues in their public statements.

But Sadat departed from a brief prepared text after Israel's President Yitzhak Navon, in a welcoming speech, mentioned that the evacuation of Sinai was a military risk.

As your land is sacred to you, the land of others is sacred to them," Sadat said. "we are genuine for peace, but we are also genuine for our land.

"The land of others will not provide security. Only friendship, brotherhood, friendly relations will provide peace," Sadat said.

Israeli Interior Minister Yussef Burg told a reporter that he was unable to say how many Palestinians might be freed. Egypt has demanded release of political prisoners as well as more freedom of speech and political activity for Arabs living under Israeli rule.

Alexandria Talks Set

Begin said Sadat invited him to pay a visit to Alexandria in the first week of July "to discuss problems of common concern" and that other problems would be worked out by Dayan who would visit Cairo before the next summit to meet with Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil.

The Palestinian autonomy negotiations that began in Beersheba on Friday, will switch to Alexandria on June 6.

Sadat, who has faced unprecedented criticism from the Arab world for his go-it-alone peacemaking, said he and Begin agreed to give "every possible momentum to the peace process."

Sadat told Egyptian and Israeli war veterans who were flown into El Arish for the occasion that their "sacrifice was not in vain" and urged "every human bein in this region to look ahead with hope and optimism" to the outcome of the peace process.

Holiday Gas Woes Faced Across U.S.

By The Associated Press

"No Gas. Next No Gas 20 Miles," read the sign being gawked at by the motorist.

No, it was not for real — it was a cartoon in The New Yorker magazine — but it may be a good measure of the national consciousness Sunday as Americans began to think about what it would be like heading home from the three-day Memorial Day holiday weekend.

On the Florida Turnpike filling stations were refusing to give gas to cars with fuel gauges above half full, and attendants reported various ruses to get round the rule. One driver said his showed above half because the station driveway was tilted. Another — refused gas — drove around and around to get the needle down.

"But he left when he saw a state trooper drive in," the attendant recalled, laughing.

Despite the fears — and there seemed reason for them: lines, closed stations, limited hours and limited purchases, high prices — most states reported tight but adequate gasoline supplies.

A Nebraska Stater Police dispatcher said Sunday, though, that if trouble comes, it will be today. "Apparently people got to the places they were going Saturday and they'll stay there until Monday," he said.

Pennsylvania Travel Light

In Pennsylvania, State Police said traffic was "definitely light for a holiday" on the Pennsylvania turnpike. In Georgia, police also said traffic was nothing out of the ordinary. In states as disparate as Massachusetts, Michigan, Maryland, North Dakota, New York, West Virginia, Delaware, and Illinois, police also reported traffic off from previous years.

In Tennessee, which had cool weather late last week, a spokeswoman for Opryland USA said weekend attendance was off. "When the weekend is preceded by bad weather it sometimes hurts," she said. "I think the gas scare and the fact that it was cold all week hurt us."

Lake Quinault Lodge in Washington reported "almost unheard of vacancies" because of gas-related cancellations.

At California's Lake Tahoe, the news was the same. "So far, this weekend has been far below the business in this area on previous Memorial Day weekends," Carolyn Lee of the Alpen Lodge at South Lake Tahoe said Sunday.

In Virginia Beach, Virginia's major coastal resort, innkeepers and merchants also reported business off. Debbie Harrison of the Kona Kai East said the motel had about 40 vacancies though it was usually full at the start of the Memorial Day weekend.

"The weather and the gas shortage have kept a lot of people home," she said.

Traffic Deaths Less

Virginia State Police noted Sunday morning that there had been three traffic deaths in the state, compared with 17 at the same time last year.

Overall, the National Safety Council predicted 500 to 600 people would die in accidents over the holiday weekend. A spokesman noted, however, that the prediction was put together before the recent gas crunch and that the death toll could be less.

By late afternoon Sunday, more than 235 people had been killed on the nation's roadways.

But all of that — the innkeepers' complaints and expected lower death tolls — does not mean every motorist spent the weekend with the family buggy tucked away in its garage.

"We have a good crowd," said Marge Rotherham of Fort Robinson State Park in Nebraska. "Everybody seems to find gas and we have no panicky people."

Defiant Rally Held By Klan

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — Vowing they will defend themselves with arms, members of the Ku Klux Klan staged a City Hall rally Sunday in this Tennessee River town already shaken by the wounding of four people in a shootout between Klansmen and black demonstrators.

About 50 robed Klansmen — some armed with pick handles and wooden clubs — marched to the site of the shootout, about one-half mile north of City Hall, and burned a cross. At least one Klansman was armed with an automatic shotgun.

The Klansmen then marched back to City Hall chanting, "What do we want — white power! What will we get — white power!"

The only blacks near the rally were several reporters.

Riot Police Stand By

There were no incidents as about 30 city police equipped with riot gear stood nearby. State troopers also were waiting in their cars.

One Klansman, Kenneth Vernon Duncan, 34, of Selma, was arrested on a weapons charge. A city ordinance prohibiting possession of firearms within 1,000 feet of a public demonstration was passed earlier this year after armed Klansmen paraded through the city.

The rally ended soon after Duncan was released on bond.

"We will be watching," Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson of Denham Springs, La., said at the rally. "I will not ask any Klan member to attend any demonstration unarmed. We will defend ourselves."

Klansmen also vowed they would not allow another demonstration by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The SCL, the Atlanta-based civil rights organization funded by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., has led a number of marches here and in neighboring Cullman in support of Tommy Lee Hines, a 27-year-old retarded black man convicted in the rape of a white woman.

Weapons Vow Expressed

"If I have to stand by myself, they will not march again in Decatur, Alabama," vowed Klansman Ray Steele "And we'll never get caught without our weapons again."

But SCLC President Joseph Lowery of Atlanta, whose wife, Evelyn, barely escaped injury when a bullet hit the windshield of her car in the noontime shootout Saturday, said, "We'll not let them put fear in our hearts."

The Rev. R.B. Cottonreader, a Decatur organizer for the SCLC, said Sunday a mass rally will be held tonight at a Decatur church. The organization will stage another march, he said, but no date has been set.

"We started dealing with the injustice for Hines," said Cottonreader, promising to continue the protests. "We pulled the scab off the sore and found a cancer."

Thus another showdown seemed inevitable in Decatur, a town of 38,000 people in the red clay cotton country of north Alabama, not far from the Tennessee line.

Still hospitalized Sunday were two Klansmen and two blacks, all from Decatur, who were wounded in the gunfire that erupted when about 75 to 100 Klansmen, many robed and most carrying clubs, confronted about 70 black marchers near the Morgan County Courthouse.

Broken Bolt Caused Engine To Fall Off

No Evidence Of Error

Buckhorn has said the preliminary investigation indicated "no evidence of pilot error" or that the engine itself malfunctioned during takeoff.

Investigators have said it probably would be two months before investigators determine the exact cause of the crash.

Two flight recorders were recovered from the wreckage, but almost none of the cockpit conversation was recorded after takeoff because of a power failure.

The recording stopped with the word "damn," investigators said. This tape and the one from the flight data recorder were being studied in Washington.

A spokesman for the safety board in Washington said it would be at least the middle of this week before an analysis of the information on the flight data recorder was available.

The voice tape does have conversation before the engine broke off. Investigators could hear the crew complete the normal preflight checkoff as the plane taxied to the runway and instructions from the co-pilot as the craft gained speed for takeoff.

"V-1," the co-pilot said, indicating the plane had reached the point of no return, that it was going too fast to stop if something happened.

"V-R," was heard seconds later as the plane attained sufficient speed for takeoff.

Seconds later, when the craft was airborne, the engine ripped loose and flipped up and over the wing. Buckhorn said the assembly is designed to do that if it breaks away, to avoid damage to the wing.

The plane never got higher than 500 feet, investigators said.

Car Strikes, Kills Reese Airman, 20

A 20-year-old airman stationed at Reese Air Force Base was dead at 10:15 p.m. Sunday on arrival at Health Sciences Center Hospital after he was struck by a vehicle while he was walking on FM 179.

Authorities would not release the man's name pending notification of next of kin. The white male's hometown was Merritt, Fla.

A companion of the victim told Department of Public Safety officers the pair was walking on the right side of the road about one-half mile south of West Fourth Street about 9:05 p.m. after their vehicle ran out of gasoline.

They had walked less than a mile in the rain when the victim was hit in the back by the right front fender of a 1971 Oldsmobile driven by Vernon Gibson, the companion said.

Gibson, 27, of Lubbock told DPS officers he didn't see the victim, who was wearing dark clothes, until it was too late.

The other man was uninjured.

About 7 p.m., the front edged into Lubbock, marking its progress with a wall of pinkish, blinding dust and rapidly plummeting temperatures. Behind the gritty sand came dark, puffy clouds and high winds.

By 8:30 p.m., the worst of the storm had passed through the city, leaving behind a temperature of 71 degrees — 10 degrees cooler than the hour before — and lightning with light showers.

Ominous Approach

The ominous approach of the front to Lubbock County prompted one citizen's report of a possible tornado near Wolfforth about 6:40. However, sheriff's deputies searched in vain for the reported funnel cloud, and a spokesman at the National Weather Service said it probably was only swirling air currents in the wall of dust.

"It looked pretty dark against the sun," he explained.

No part of the South Plains escaped the haze or blinding sting of the dust, propelled by forceful winds.

The dust lowered visibility in Lubbock at 7:30 p.m. to almost zero, and the winds peaked at 44 mph. Visibility in most areas was no more than two miles, the NWS said.

Brownfield reported winds of 35 to 40 mph and dust ahead of the thunderstorms. Glenna Englund of Slaton reported, "We had a doozy (of a duststorm)."

Mrs. Raymond Wiese described the dust that hit Petersburg about 7:30 p.m. as "black." Visibility, she said, was reduced to a couple of car lengths, and she had to drive with her car lights on, even though the sun had not set.

Beverly Harrison of Floydada said, "My husband is out in the field now trying to save some cotton" that was barely above the ground. He was afraid the violent wind would uproot the young plants, she explained.

Little Rain

As the dust blew through the area, it left behind little rain. A NWS spokesman explained the storms were moving too quickly northeastward to have time to develop.

Meadow received only about .10 of an inch, while Brownfield reported about .03. At Seagraves, about .04 fell.

Sprinkles dotted the City of Lubbock, and the NWS measured .04 at the airport.

Martin, Borden, Howard, Dawson, Andrews and Gaines counties were part of the watch area, in which thunderstorms stalled and built in intensity.

The tornado watch posted early Sunday afternoon was for an area along and 70 miles on either side of a line from 20 miles west of Lubbock to 20 miles southeast of Sanderson.

Only one tornado was confirmed in this area Sunday, however. The NWS said a twister touched down for about nine minutes south-southwest of Vega, but caused no injuries or damage because it was in open country.

Five Killed In Iranian Executions

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Firing squads killed five more persons over the weekend, bringing to 228 the number of persons executed since Iran's strict Islamic government gained power in February, press reports said.

The Foreign Ministry issued a statement defending the May 9 execution of a Jewish businessman, saying he was a saboteur, but made no comment on the other deaths.

Two men convicted of raping another man, and a police lieutenant charged with torturing at least 60 people were among those executed Saturday and Sunday, according to local newspapers.

The official Pars news agency issued an account Sunday of a meeting Thursday between Foreign Minister Ibrahim Yazdi and French Jewish activist Serge Klarsfeld. It quoted Yazdi as saying Jewish businessman Habib Elghanian was executed not for his religious beliefs but "because he was part of the shah's criminal system and was involved in acts of espionage and brought corruption on the earth."

Klarsfeld, who has been in Iran since Tuesday to investigate Elghanian's death, said he hasn't accepted the foreign minister's explanation.

Pars reported Yazdi said that Iranian Jews who had traveled to Israel in the past for tourism, medical treatment, education or diplomatic work were safe from punishment, as were those who had worked for Israeli firms in Iran.

"The criteria for trial and prosecution are rather being a part of the criminal system of the past, whether the culprit is Moslem, Jewish or belongs to any other denomination," and defendants aren't asked their religion at trials, Yazdi was quoted as saying.

According to the agency, Yazdi said Israel and the United States had helped train the shah's Savak secret police.

Pars announced the execution Sunday of Abdollah Ghoreishi-Gul, head of a police station in the northeastern city of Neishabur, on charges including corruption, killing one man and injuring two others.

The newspaper Ayandegan reported the executions on morals charges of two men, Mooss Ashrafi and Ismail Nisari, in the northwestern town of Khoram-Dareh. It said they were charged with the rape of a man who committed suicide after the assault.

THE BOLT — Elwood Driver, vice chairman, National Transportation Safety Board, holds the fractured, three-inch, thrust link attach bolt that caused an engine to fall from the American Airlines DC-10 jetliner that crashed and killed 273 people while taking off from Chicago's O'Hare airport on Friday. The bolt was found 8,000 feet down the runway from where flight 191 took off, Driver said. (AP Laserphoto)

Iranian Embassy Pours Out Liquor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iranians poured hundreds of gallons of fine liquor down a fountain drain Sunday at their embassy, a place where the expensive spirits once flowed at lavish Washington parties.

The embassy had built up a huge store of high-quality liquor while Ardeshir Zahedi served as ambassador for the Shah of Iran. But the shah is now gone from Iran, his place taken by an Islamic leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

For religious reasons the liquor had to go, and it did — more than 4,000 bottles according to the Iranians.

They gave no estimate for the value of the bottles' contents, but the piled-up crates of liquor clearly were worth many thousands of dollars.

Asked why the Iranians didn't sell the liquor instead of throwing it away, an Embassy employee said that they were acting on Khomeini's instructions; that he had told them to have no dealings with hard liquor, not even to the point of selling it.

Visa Restrictions For Soviet Jews May Ease In Future Emigration

ROME (AP) — An Australian labor official confirmed Sunday that Soviet officials told him they will ease visa restrictions for Soviet Jews and release imprisoned dissidents, perhaps including Anatoly Shcharansky.

The official, Robert Hawke, told reporters he had forwarded to Jewish leaders in Moscow a statement based on his talks with Soviet officials, saying authorities had "decided to release long-term applicants for departure, to release 12 prisoners of Zion and to limit the maximum term of waiting for exit visas to five years."

Hawke said there might be some delay in implementing the new policy, but added he was confident Soviet authorities "will do it."

A Jewish activist spokesman read the statement to reporters in Moscow on Saturday. It was widely viewed in the Jewish community as a Kremlin move to help sweeten the overall atmosphere of U.S.-Soviet relations and enhance the chances for Senate ratification of the new strategic arms pact.

Hawke, president of Australia's Council of Trade Unions and an outspoken champion of Soviet Jews, arrived here Saturday after a week-long stay in Moscow and talks with high-ranking Soviet labor officials.

Hawke said Shcharansky was mentioned in the talks "but I was not specifically concerned with Shcharansky. It seemed to me not to be helpful to anyone to be arguing about any specific case."

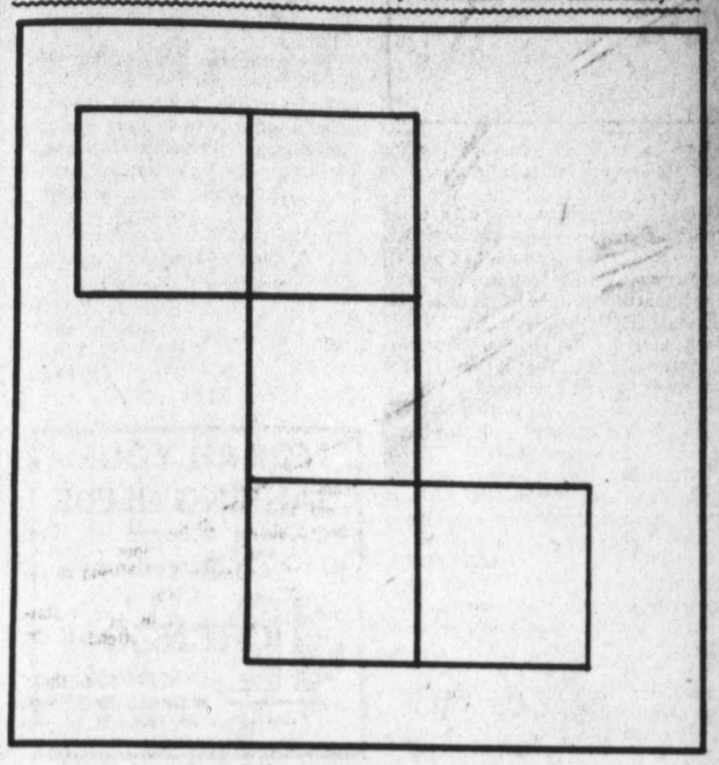
Shcharansky is serving a 13-year sentence in a Soviet prison following his conviction last year on treason charges.

"I'm sure it will have some relationship to the SALT II talks, but I think it is wider than that," Hawke said of the new policy. He said he has had no contact with U.S. officials. President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev are to sign the SALT II treaty in Vienna next month.

Hawke said the decisions "have been taken in principle but I think it will take some time before they are carried out. But once it has been done in principle it seems to me it is a case of mechanics now," Hawke told reporters in his Rome hotel.

As a reason for the delay, he said the Soviets cited the possibility that prospective visa applicants might carry abroad state secrets based on knowledge acquired in their jobs.

Hawke said he had prepared Saturday's statement before his departure from Moscow, and gave a copy to the Jewish leaders and another to Piotr Pimenev, one of the Soviet labor officials he met in Moscow.



KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Worm Hunter Gets Both Fun, Profit

By SHARI LEWIS

Catching worms and selling them is only for you kids who live in places where there's lots of dirt, 'cause you'll really have to dig in to get 'em. (Of course in rainy weather, the worms are likely to be coming up for a breath of fresh air and are easier to catch.0

If there's an empty lot near you or if you have a yard of your own, go out after dark. Take a box with tiny holes punched for air and a flashlight. Look under rocks, too.

Put your catch in the box, tie it shut and store your worms in the refrigerator. Try to sell them within a day or two, or else you'd better store the box in the freezer.

Take the night crawlers to your customers in a can or jar with waxed paper over the top (rubber bands will keep your paper "lid" secure.)

In most places, you can charge about two cents apiece for night crawlers, because folks who fish are seldom the same folks who like digging for their own worms!

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: How can you cut this diagram into three pieces with only two cuts so that you can rearrange it into a square? (Look for the answer in tomorrow'S Kids-Only Club column.)

New Buildings Incorporate Energy Saving Ideas

NEW YORK (AP) — In a state office building planned in San Jose, Calif., a room full of rocks will keep things cool and save precious energy resources.

That is just one novel solution architects have come up with to meet changing energy realities for the latest generation of urban office buildings.

The energy crunch has not resulted in drastic changes in the appearance of most city architecture, and is not likely to in the foreseeable future, architects say.

But buildings on drawing boards around the country are much more likely than ever to include all "state of the art" energy saving strategies, such as reflecting pane glass that provides insulation, or positioning the building to let in sun rays or create shading.

"In large buildings, there haven't yet been that many big changes. A lot of what's happening is just very careful integration of existing technology," says Joe Demkin, an architect with the American Institute of Architects.

Beyond that, however, a number of structures on the drawing boards or under construction are showing some striking innovations.

In Atlanta, an office building under construction for Georgia Power Co. will use high-pressure sodium lighting similar to street lights, which is far more energy efficient than fluorescent lighting.

It also will be built in two-levels: the lower level will contain a television station, a data processing center and other big energy users.

A 24-story tower would house office employees. During non-work hours, electricity in the tower would shut down automatically, resulting in a huge energy saving.

In Calgary, Canada, where winter temperatures reach 40 degress below zero, an office building under construction for Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. will have no conventional heating plant at all. Heating for the building will be provided by a sophisticated heat recovery system that will circulate the heat created by lights, machinery, and even people.

The name of the game, according to several architects trying to build more energy-efficient downtown office space around the country, is "Btu," and how to use fewer of them.

A Btu — British thermal unit — is the standard measure of how much energy it takes to heat a given amount of space. Technically, it is the amount of heat required to increase the temperature of a pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.

The federal General Services Administration has set a hoped-for energy goal of 55,000 Btu per square foot a year for office space.

Federal studies find at present it takes between 65,000 and 223,000 Btu a year to heat or cool a single square foot in conventional office buildings in New York City.

One of the most novel energy savers on the drawing boards is a three-story state office building planned for completion in 1981 in sunny, hot San Jose, Calif. When completed, its designers claim it will use only 25,000 Btu a year per square foot, less than half the federal target for office space.

David Baker who works for Sol-Arc, the Berkeley-based firm that did the energy design for the building, explains that there will be a room in the building filled with 1,500 square feet of rocks.

At night, outdoor air will be blown through the rocks to cool them. During the day, building air will be circulated through the rocks, and this should take care of 25 percent of the building's air conditioning load.

Solar power will be used to make hot water, as required in all California government buildings.

And lighting fixtures will automatically shut off when the building can be illuminated by natural sunlight.

By using its new energy-saving techniques, the Georgia Power building will need no more than 35,000 Btu per square foot, says Larry Lord, the project's architect.

"Based on the averages we found in 30 high-rise buildings in Atlanta, our building should be at least 50 percent more energy efficient than other buildings in Atlanta," says Lord.

The Georgia Power building also will use solar power for hot water, which may cut annual energy use another 5,000 Btu per square foot.

The Gulf Canada building in Calgary will use only 35,000 Btu per square foot a year, or about one-quarter the energy that other commercial buildings use in comparable frigid climates.

The federal Tennessee Valley Authority, meanwhile, is drawing up plans for a highly energy-efficient office building-computer center in downtown Chattanooga, Tenn., scheduled for completion in 1982.

TVA spokesman Jerre Wilson says that while final plans will not be made public for another month or so, the hope is that it will serve as an energy demonstration project "that other office buildings can emulate. We're certainly hoping for some dramatic design changes." Among the energy technology to be incorporated would be solar collectors and heat recapturing equipment, possibly similar to that planned in Calgary.

Energy-saving architecture has even reached the Bronx, in New York City. A Ronzoni spaghetti factory there is recycling the heat generated from making pasta to heat the plant.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Q. On July 30, 1970, I bought 30 $1,000 units of a municipal bond unit investment trust for $31,147.20. Recently, I received a $9,277.20 check, with an explanation that this was a "distribution of certain prerefunded bonds." I called my broker for an explanation. He said he didn't know anything about it.

Why weren't these bonds redeemed at par, if the check represents 10 units? Why didn't I get a statement indicating I still own 20 units, or whatever? Is the $9,277.20 all I get for $31,147.20?

A. That check did not represent payment for 10 units. You still own 30 units. Eventually, you'll get at least $30,000 for your 30 units. It's clear you don't understand the investment you made back in 1970.

A municipal bond unit investment trust is a type of investment company which assembles a portfolio of different municipal bonds — anywhere from $5 million on up. "Units" — in effect, "shares" — are sold to the investing public.

When you bought units in that trust, you became the indirect owner of a portion of all the bonds held by the trust. Because the interest paid on municipal bonds is not subject to federal income tax, the trust has been passing that interest on to you in the form of dividends — also federal income tax free.

All bonds have maturity dates, when they are paid off at "par" — face — value. Most bonds have provisions allowing them to be paid off before their stated maturities — usually at prices higher than par value. That's called "prerefunding."

As the bonds held by a unit investment trust are paid off, the trust collects that money and distributes it to investors who own the trust's units. The $9,277.50 check you received represented your share of bonds held by that trust and which were paid off.

As more bonds held by the trust reach maturity or are prerefunded, you'll get more of that type of check — each of which will represent your oapital being returned to you. By the time all the bonds held by the trust are paid off, you will have received at least $30,000. There will then be nothing left in the trust. It will be liquidated.

And, as the size of the trust shrinks — because bonds it holds are being paid off — the dollar amount of your dividend checks will also decrease. With the trust holding a diminishing amount of bonds, it will collect less and less interest to pass on to you and other owners of trust units.

Q. With all the talk about the declining dollar, I am concerned about the $10,000, 4.4 percent mortgage on my home. I am a senior citizen, living on a modest pension and Social Security. Could I lose my home, if the dollar keeps losing value?

I have enough money to pay off the mortgage and still have $10,000 left for emergencies. Should I pay off the mortgage?

A. No! Don't even think about such a move. That 4.4 percent mortgage is "Cheap borrowing." Hang on to it and keep your money working at higher interest rates. Even with a 5 or 5¼ percent savings account, you'll come out ahead. And there are many other places you can put that money to work at much higher yields — with little or no risk.

Inflation — this nation's biggest problem — reduces the buying power of the dollar. But it doesn't change the number of dollars you use to pay off that mortgage. Based on the information you supply, your home ownership is safe. Relax and enjoy your retirement.

Q. We are newlyweds and have life insurance policies where we work. Our insurance agent is trying to talk us into buying a $50,000 life insurance policy, at $84 a month, which could be cashed in at retirement. Is this a good idea?

A. It is for the insurance company and that salesman. The "Whole" life insurance policy that peddler is trying to sell you is expensive. It is also very profitable to the company and pays high commissions to the salesman.

Whole insurance is a combination of protection and low-interest savings. Don't confuse it with an investment. "Term" insurance — the kind you no doubt have at work — is straight protection and less expensive. If you need more life insurance, buy more term insurance and do your investing elsewhere.

428-Foot Sandwich Sets World Record

SEATTLE (AP) — It took an estimated 1,000 hungry people to consume a 428-foot-long sandwich at Alki Beach in an attempt to set a world record for sandwiches.

Dan Waters, proprietor of Driftwood Dan's Sandwich Shop, organized 30 volunteers to slather 20 gallons of mayonnaise on 214 loaves of end-to-end French bread and pile on cheese, salami, bologna, ham, lettuce and tomatoes.

"We just wanted to show people that Alki is a nice place ... lotta fun, lotta good people," Waters said Saturday.

The sandwich, longer than some of the Washington State ferries crossing Puget Sound in the background, was planned to beat a 400-foot 6¾-inch sandwich constructed four years ago in Boise, Idaho, Waters said.

Philippine Reinforcements Sent To Oppose Terrorists

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Three battalions of troopers have been sent to Samar Island in the central Philippines to counter what the military described as stepped-up terrorism by the Communist New People's Army, the Defense Ministry said Saturday.

Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Romeo Espino sent the troopers following a report that Communists killed four soldiers in a gun battle Thursday.

Some died in conflict with great courage and valor...some died simply because they were there. Many were barely more than frightened children with very little understanding of the complexities of nations and war. But, they were there, giving the most precious gift anyone could give to their country... to us. We cannot...we must not forget.

Greece Newest Member Of Common Market

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — On the eve of Greece's entry into the Common Market as its 10th member Monday, the "Europe Craze" is intensifying here but so is the great public debate: are Greeks really European?

The cynics and the romantics are at odds over just what is the nature of the mixed national character, and their conflicting views have been gaining more attention as Greece moved toward its official membership in the Market, also known as the European Economic Community.

"At last Europe is returning to Greece," declared President Constantine Tsatsos recently, expressing the view that Greece is really the heart of Europe because in ancient times it provided the basis of Western civilization.

Lorenzo Natali, joint vice-president of the European Commission of the EEC declared this week: "With Greece's entry the community becomes much more authentically European. Greece is the mother of European civilization from which the community is inspired."

But, protests Greek television commentator Zachos Hajifotiou: "What? Greeks European? Never." Hajifotiou, who lived for years in America and Europe and has his own weekly television program which concentrates exclusively on criticizing the Greek character and national faults, adds:

"Greeks have made tremendous material progress in the last years to push their way into Europe. But they will never be genuine Europeans unless they correct their oriental manners. A Greek will wear his French-made suit while driving his luxury limousine, push the button that automatically lowers the car window, put his head out in a busy city center street, and throw out his cigar and litter while spitting on the ground."

The EEC has released a report on Greece's economy, on the occasion of the accession treaty to be signed here Monday in the presence of six Eurpean leaders and all EEC foreign ministers.

Although it says the once-poor country achieved "remarkable economic growth" in the last 20 years, it pointed out Greece's inflationary tendencies, a worsening trade imbalance and weakness in the agricultural sector.

Aid for Greece's less-developed economy will cost the Community about $2.5 billion over the 1981-86 transition period, compared to the nation's $400 million in contributions to the community in hat period.

The Greek per capita income of $3,400 a year is more than that of EEC member Ireland and close to Italy's, but far behind Germany's nearly $8,000.

Greece's economic growth averaged 6.1 percent in 1965-75, compared to the Community's 3.5 percent. But the strain of the recent oil crisis reduced the rate to 3.6 percent in 1978. The government predicts a return to a 6 percent average by 1982.

Greece's biggest boost is its merchant fleet which, including Greek-owned foreign flag vessels, is the biggest in the world, surpassing 50 million tons. That is 13.4 percent of the entire world fleet and 68 percent of the community's the report said.

French President Valery Giscard-d'Estaing, who will attend the signing, has faced strong criticism at home from the Communist Party, which claims cheap Greek products will harm French interests and boost unemployment in France. France now holds the rotating EEC chairmanship.

Greek press and television are carrying an increasing number of self-searching debates trying to determine the identity of the Greeks, who live on the crossroads of East and West, North and South. Greece will be the most southeastern EEC member country "until Turkey eventually joins" but is also a Balkan country and on the borders of the Middle East.

The debates include talk of assets and drawbacks of the Greek character, roughly being generosity, warm-heartedness, hospitality, ingenuity and hard work, versus deviousness, dishonesty, unreliability, bad public manners, and the Mediterranean afternoon siesta which breaks the working day in the middle.

SAN DIEGO, (AP) — Actor George Brent, a veteran of more than 100 films and 300 plays, was found dead in his nearby Solana Beach home Saturday night.

Brent, 75, apparently died of natural causes, the San Diego County coroner's office said. He had suffered from emphysema.

Brent lived alone. His wife of 25 years, Janet, died four years ago.

The coroner's office said Brent's body was found by a friend and that the actor had apparently collapsed while preparing for bed.

On his 74th birthday, an Associated Press story brought telephone calls from around the country.

"People drove me nuts," he said. "I loved it."

Brent, who had starred with Greta Garbo, Bette Davis, Claudette Colbert and other top actresses, appeared in such films as "Dark Victory," "Jezebel," "The Spiral Staircase" and "The Man Who Talked Too Much."

He had made 11 films with Miss Davis, who won an Oscar for "Dark Victory."

A native of Dublin, Ireland, Brent was sent to live with an aunt in New York City after his parents died when he was 11. Five years later, he returned to Ireland. He attended the University of Dublin and began his career with the famed Abbey Theater.

He became a courier for the Irish revolutionary forces and was forced to flee to England where he caught a boat to Canada. Making his way to New York, Brent, then 19, played in stock companies and Broadway productions.

His career got a lift when stage star Ruth Chatterton chose him as her leading man in "The Rich Are Always With Us."

In 1978, after having been retired for about 25 years, Brent made a cameo appearance as a judge in "Born Again," a film about the religious conversion of Watergate figure Charles Colson.

His survivors include a daughter, Suzanne, an interior designer and a son, Barry.

DR. LAMB

Hose Aid Varicose Veins

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'd like some informaton on varicose veins. I'm 27 and I'm not overweight. My left leg seems to keep getting worse even though I wear support hose most of the time. My legs ache a lot. My question is this. Is it possible that the hose could be harming my legs? My right leg is O.K. I have two children and I tried to wear support hose through most of my pregnancy. I've become afraid to wear them now. My legs ache so bad. I'd appreciate any information you might have.

DEAR READER — Varicose veins are overstretched veins. Your veins have elastic fibers in them and when they become overstretched to the point that the elastic fibers don't work properly, they're permanently dilated. It's somewhat analogous to a balloon that's been blown up too many times until it won't snap back to its original form.

The veins in your leg contain tiny valves. These little flaps all open as the blood moves upward flowing toward your heart. If the blood starts to flow backward the flaps drop against each other and close the vein. These valves are important in maintaining the circulation in the veins in your leg.

Those overstretched veins sometimes are stretched so much that these little valve flaps don't quite meet. As a result, they don't work well and so blood accumulates in the veins when you're standing upright. Blood runs downhill and downhill is from your heart level down. If you're lying on your back so that your legs are relatively at the same level as your heart, then this doesn't happen and the swelling associated with varicose veins disappears.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins, to give you more details about the causes of varicose veins and what can be done about them. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Support hose or pressure bandages such as the elastic bandages that athletes use wrapped around the ankles help to prevent swelling. They do this by creating external pressure outside the veins and compressing them. This helps prevent the dilaton and accumulation of blood in the veins themselves.

Support hose should not increase the problem with your varicose veins in any way. The only trouble people get into is by using some kind of constricting garment. To illustrate this point, if you have an elastic garter around the top of a nylon, the garter may act as a light venous tourniquet and impede the flow of blood out of the veins toward your heart. You should never wear anything constricting from the heart down if you have varicose veins.

As The Health Letter I'm sending you explains, there is a family tendency toward having varicose veins. You were absolutely correct to wear support hose during your pregnancy. I wish all women would, particularly those who have a family history of varicose veins. It's also important for women who come from a family with such a history to wear support hose if their occupation requires prolonged sitting or prolonged standing.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

A group of gifted children in Ft. Lauderdale vowed they would not be "defeeted" by the problem.

A priest in Stanford wrote, "We must assume God has a mission for my single green sock."

These are only a few of the thousands of replies received by this column from readers all over the country who offered an answer as to why socks disappear in the washer.

Some observations are signifioant.

Disappearing Socks make no distinction in sex, class, religion, politics, geographic location, smokers-vs.-non-smokers. (There were more reported theories from Minneapolis than anywhere else, but it's been a long winter which can cause sitting around staring at your washer and other strangeness.)

Age was not a factor. The youngest theorist was 8½ years old and the oldest was 82. (A man who said quite scientifically, "You lose socks because you're a woman!")

All of the writers had one thing in common. Their socks had entered the Wash and Spin Bermuda Triangle and thev had been lost. No one was amused.

Another significant factor of the letters was that the disappearance of socks was generally described in mystical terms — as a phenomenon that defied reason or explanation. ("They're in constant oontact with great cosmic forces who demand a sock be sacrificed like a maiden.") Another popular theory was that another planet was dropping weird pairs of socks to spy on us and the missing one was returning with the information. Sailors wrote saying the problem was universal and was quite prevalent in Japan.

Poets wrote by the hundreds and ranged from simple hysteria — "I have arrived at this conclusion/They're forming an Argyle revolution!" to a Gone-with-the-Wind meter — "So next time your husband asks where I am/Tell him, 'Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn.'"

Three socks wrote. One signed his (?) first name and said he defected during the wash cycle because of the "pressures of living in Boston" and he warned me to "stop prying or you'll be sorry."

I am devoting the next two columns to this myth. The first will deal with the theories behind the disappearance; the next one, the solution. Pray we do not become resigned like the man in Phoenix who gathers up two dozen pairs of new socks each year, tears them apart and throws out one of each pair...to save his wife the trouble.

ERMA BOMBECK TELLS WHY SOCKS GO AWOL — How many times have you put three pairs of brown socks into the washer — and only got two-and-a-half pairs back? If Erma Bombeck's mailbag is any indication, it's more commonplace than the common cold. In a recent "At Wit's End" column, Erma described one of her losing battles of the socks. Thousands of readers wrote in, sharing their experiences. Now, in a special three-part series starting today, Erma tells some of the ways the washing machine socks it to us. It's a delightful romp through the "futility room". It's Erma Bombeck's special "At Wit's End" columns.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: How does a mother thank her 23-year-old son for a most inappropriate Mother's Day gift? He sent me a T-shirt with a very vulgar message printed across the front. (It did have the word "Mother" in it, but it's so obscene I can't write it and, if I could, you couldn't print it.) I can't understand a gift like this. I've never worn a T-shirt in my life.

My son is married and lives in another state. At first I thought maybe his wife picked it out because she has a coarse and somewhat twisted sense of humor. However, my son's signature was on the card that came with it, so apparently he knew what was being sent.

What should I do?

Wondering N.J.

Dear Wondering: Thank your son for remembering you on Mother's Day. And the next time you see him, ask him who selected that gift.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: During our company's recent sales conference, a number of wives sat in on some of the workshops. While the speakers were delivering their talks I noticed several women doing needlepoint as though they were comfortably sitting in their sewing rooms.

This certainly must be a distraction (if not an insult) to the speaker.

I commented those wives for showing an interest in their husbands' work by attending the sessions, but shouldn't they have shown more respect for the speakers by leaving their needlework at home?

Annoyed In Va.

Dear Annoyed: For many, needlework is therapy. It calms the nerves and provides an occupation for restless fingers that otherwise might be holding a cigarette, for example.

Of course, most speakers prefer the undivided attention of everyone in the audience but, given a choice, I'd rather be nettled by needles than smokers.

(P.S. People who bring needlework to lectures must need to for some reason. So try a little tenderness.)

DEAR ABBY: I would appreciate your help about a matter that has puzzled me for years.

When ordering flowers for a funeral, what kind of message should be written on the card? Most important of all, to whom should the message be addressed? For example, "Rest in Peace, Mary," or "Sweet Dreams, John?"

Or should the flowers be sent to the nearest of kin? If that's the proper way, have you any ideas about what to put on the card?

For years I have kept my ignorance about this to myself, but recently I learned that there are many among my acquaintances who are as ignorant as I, so you'd be helping a lot of people by printing your answer. Thank you.

Wants To Know

Dear Wants: Flowers should be addressed to the family of the deceased. An appropriate message would be, "With loving thoughts." Or, "My heartfelt condolences." Or simply, "With love," followed by the signature of the sender.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "Here is the sort of hand that looks humdrum. South is in the sort of game contract that winds up in the soup most of the time, but a simple workmanlike job by declarer brings it home."

Alan: "South must start by letting West hold the first trick. West can do no better than to lead a second spade. South wins and must play his two top trumps."

Oswald: "Simple enough. The point to his play is that he wants to ruff his last spade under his own terms and conditions. He isn't ready yet."

Alan: "He cashes dummy's top diamonds and discards one club. Then he ruffs a fourth diamond to set up dummy's last one."

Oswald: "Now he ruffs his little spade and leads dummy's last diamond. It doesn't matter what East does. South gets rid of another club and loses just one club, one spade and one trump."

Alan: "Easy when you see it, but the sort of result that would be worth about nine or ten points out of twelve in duplicate play."

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10752 ♡KJ75 ◇6 ♣KJ98
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—A difficult hand, for it's a whit too much for two spades, not enough for three spades and too much defense for a leap to four spades. It is a close decision between a slight underbid of two spades, and a temporizing bid of two clubs with the intention of supporting spades on the next round. We have a slight preference for the immediate raise, since that will allow partner to revalue his hand in light of your support.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q754 ♡K6 ◇Q95 ♣AK95
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♠	Pass	3◇	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the fact that you limited your hand with your rebid, partner has shown a desire to get to game. You are near maximum for your simple raise—your hand revalues to 16 points in support of spades—so you should accept this invitation. Bid four spades.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠1043 ♡976 ◇J6532 ♣AK
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

Q.—Your diamond suit is not good enough and your hand not quite strong enough for two diamonds, and you don't want to bid no trump with virtually all your strength concentrated in one suit. The solution is to raise to two spades, even though your trump support is not as good as you might like. If partner passes, you can relax. If he bids on, your hand won't be a disappointment to him.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ976 ♡K2 ◇AK104 ♣J5
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—If partner has a good raise or the right values, you could easily have a game. We suggest you make a try by bidding three diamonds, and see what response that gets from partner. Alternatively, you could take your chances and simply bid four spades—there ought to be play for that contract.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♡A2 ◇AK9632 ♣AJ1052
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1◇	Pass
1♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Even though partner's response does not please you greatly, you must take strong action. You could make game opposite no more than four low clubs in partner's hand. To get this message across to him, jump shift to three clubs.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ4 ♡AQ73 ◇762 ♣K95
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	2♠	Pass
2♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's reverse puts you in the slam zone, for your double fit in his suits has enhanced the value of your hand. To simply give preference to three hearts would not do your hand justice. Jump to four hearts.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♡KJ43 ◇Q10953 ♣A1042
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What do you bid now?

A.—The auction thus far has improved your hand dramatically. It has definite slam possibilities. In view of your pass, you must take the strongest possible action now to convince partner that matters are looking up. The surest way to accomplish this is to cue-bid two spades.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K1076 ◇AJ106 ♣QJ763
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—It is a common error to respond one spade in the belief that you are using space economically by doing so. Actually, just the opposite may be true. Partner is quite likely to rebid two hearts, and then what? If you make the natural response of two clubs at your first turn and partner then rebids two hearts, you can now bid two spades conveniently to tell partner that you have at least nine cards in the black suits and that your clubs are longer than your spades.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: My elderly mother is in good health, but she has a sleep problem. She's in a vicious circle — can't sleep at night, naps too much during the day, and so on. Sleeping pills don't help anymore than over-the-counter medicines. If we could break the circle we could help her, but how? Any suggestions for this problem which, I guess, many older people have? — F.C.

There are more than 20 million Americans with sleep problems. Most are in the older age group. Sleeping pills don't help, and can defeat their purpose by leaving the user drowsy during the day. Older people react more to such medicines and if they have little else to do during the day they nap. Over-the-counter products may contain antihistamines and can produce the same daytime drowsiness.

Two suggestions might help break the circle. Select a pleasant day for a fairly long drive, a picnic lunch or a similar activity. Plan to arrive home at a reasonable bedtime when your mother should be pleasantly primed for an evening of sleep. Don't stop there, but plan to keep her busy the next day — out of her bedroom.

That brings me to the second suggestion. Many elderly people become, for want of a better phrase, "bedroom zombies," spending entirely too many daytime hours there. The bedroom becomes only a place for uneasy inactivity. See if you can't persuade your mother to spend more time in other parts of the house. This can provide a good psychological edge.

Since sleep problems can be related to specific ailments (kidneys, heart) have her examined thoroughly before you try your new psychology.

One way or another you should be able to get this lady off of her insomnia merry-go-round.

Dear Dr. Ruble: A year ago I noticed a lump on top of my arm near the wrist. My family doctor said it was a fatty tumor and to leave it alone. It's the size of a small egg. Another doctor said I should have it removed. Both took x-rays that showed it wasn't attached to bone. I saw a third doctor. He said it might be malignant and wanted to remove it. I didn't like him, so I don't know what to do. I'm worried because my husband died of cancer two years ago. — Mrs. H.H.

You must feel confused at this point. Two doctors suggest the growth is malignant. Your own doctor says it isn't.

Fatty tumors are fairly easily recognized. They are not attached to nearby bone or tissue and can be rather freely moved about under the skin. They grow slowly, then stop. The malignant type might appear suddenly and continue to grow. The forearm is a common place for fatty tumors, but the location wouldn't rule out malignancy.

Since it bothers you and since it is "egg-sized," the sensible way out of your dilemma is to have it removed, if only because of the nuisance factor. That would also settle the troubling question of just what it is. The surgery is quite safe. Have it done by the doctor you like best.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am to have a thyroid gland operation. I am concerned because I have heard it can leave you without a voice afterwards. Is this true? Will I be able to smoke afterward? — Mrs. V.M.

You can expect some hoarseness and soreness for a week after surgery. There are risks in any surgery of this kind, depending on just what the surgeon is confronted with when he approaches the gland. Permanent voice change is one, but with modern surgical techniques that risk is quite small. The nerve that controls the vocal cords lies dangerously close to the gland. Certain thyroid problems actually involve this nerve, which is why hoarseness can be a sign of thyroid disturbance.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Should a person drink more or less water while taking antibiotics? — H.C.

Your thyroid plays a critical health role — in everything from eyesight to fertility. The booklet "Your Thyroid: How It Works for You" explains this important, and misunderstood, gland. To get a copy, enclose 50 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A month ago I went to a local doctor. I had a fever and was pretty sick. I thought I had a bladder infection. This doctor wanted some lab work done before he could tell me what was wrong. The next afternoon he called and said I should come back in as soon as possible, that I had VD. To say I was shocked is putting it mildly. I'm a 34-year-old mother of two, married for 14 years and have never had intercourse with anyone but my husband.

When my husband came home I told him what the doctor had said. He hit the ceiling — insisted the doctor didn't know what he was talking about.

That night I became seriously ill. The next day my husband took me to another doctor and we told him of the first doctor's diagnosis. He took a test, told me I had a severe kidney infection, and put me in the hospital where I stayed for a week. (He also tested me for VD and those tests were negative.)

My question is — what can we do about the first doctor? We live in a small community and I'm sure his records show that I had VD. If we make a big thing of it everybody will know and some people may believe the worst. What are our options? Can we request that he give us those medical files? My husband has said he'd like to go punch him out, but that's no solution. Please answer in your column. — Hopping Mad

Dear Hop: Lab tests are not infallible. Kidney infection symptoms are similar to, and may be confused with, symptoms of VD. Moreover, some diseases, such as measles, mumps, leprosy, and certain types of pneumonia will produce a positive Wasserman test.

You should inform the first doctor of the sequence of events and he will adjust his records. He does not want his records to be faulty any more than you do.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing to you on behalf of the "'loved, wanted, and tenderly nurtured" children who turn out bad "for no reason." Where do you get off printing such garbage as that? Have you any idea what these disoriented kids go through? Well, I do, because I'm a so-called maladjusted, messed-up girl.

I've been in and out of a dozen foster homes and shelters since I was 13. My mother is a mentally disturbed person and my father drinks. I was separated from all my friends and a guy I really loved because my parents couldn't handle their lives. Now, after two years of living with some OK relatives, I have to move again and start all over.

So how about giving some credit to those of us who have been kicked around, hurt and handed grown-up size problems when we were really little kids?

We aren't crying out, "You damaged me!" We are saying: "Take a look at me. I made it!" We demand credit because we deserve it. Don't knock us till you know us. — Exhibit A In Jamaica, N.Y.

Dear A.: I know you — and I'm not knocking you. Please go back and read your own letter.

I would hardly call a girl who has been in and out of a dozen homes and shelters since she was 13 "loved, wanted, and tenderly nurtured." You've had a rough time and I hope you make it. If and when you do, I'll be the first one to give you credit.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
As a newlywed, I would like to know if you have any hints for storing and preserving my wedding dress and veil.

They have been dry cleaned but I'm uncertain as to how to store them to prevent deterioration and yellowing. Any suggestions?

Thanks so much for your informative column. It's a great help to me as a new homemaker. — A New Bride

Congratulations!!!

We checked with The Guild of Professional Drycleaners and this is what they had to say:

The first thing to do is have your wedding dress and veil professionally cleaned (which you have done already).

Business & Industrial Review

INTERIOR DESIGN SPECIALIST — Lynda Hall has joined the staff of Cowling's Furniture, enabling the firm to offer even greater services in home decor correlation. Special sale prices also are outlined in the story below.

Cowling's Furniture Tells Sale Items, Addition To Services

Two situations come in for immediate attention at Cowling's Furniture, 1210 Ave. Q, both thoroughly in keeping with Cowling's record of customer consideration:

(1) Lynda Hall, Lubbock interior designer of note, has been added to the staff, affording added customer service in the correlation of furniture, fabrics, colors and all.

(2) Sale prices are posted at this time on all clocks and lamps in the impressive selection at Cowling's, and a large Barcalounger stock has been received to enable selection for Father's Day, with some of these chairs at extra special prices.

Ken Cowling, head of this 3½-year-old family-owned and operated business that has enjoyed a very steady growth based on quality, fair pricing, selection, quantity and customer service, has this to say:

"We are really enthused in announcing the addition of Lynda Hall to our staff. A longtime area resident, Texas Tech grad of '74 with a B.S. degree in interior design, Lynda is well known in design circles and has a wide following here. Her experience and her genuine interest in customer service fit in with our traditional efforts to serve in every transaction. We invite reliance upon Lynda in all your design questions."

Cowling's Furniture, at 1210 Ave. Q, prides in "what is right and what is quality" for every furniture need.

Opened in late 1975, Cowling's has become recognized as a good firm, with good merchandise, with integrity and a quality-savings combo to be appreciated.

Ease In Selection

Selection there is most impressive, enabling comparison and purchase of likely the exact item for which one has been searching. There are sofas, groupings for every room, Rattan furniture, credenzas, consoles, investment art and "just plain pretty art work," Hamilton and Gazo clocks, recliners, lamps by the scores, Beautyrest bedding, and more.

Everything seems to say that "we at Cowling's want you to have the best without strain on the budget; we like you and want to serve accordingly.

Individual pieces and groupings for every room of the house are stocked.

Modest on the outside, the big store is most impressive within; and entry at Cowling's actually is into a whole new world of quality furniture at prices to please.

Financing is available.

Remember the location, south off Broadway on Avenue Q in Lubbock. Both an east and north entry is provided, with convenient off-street parking at the north.

Children's Learning Center Begins Comprehensive Summer-Long Program

Children's Learning Center of Lubbock, with its every operation dedicated to the development of the whole child, can likely be of exceptional service "to you, too" this summer.

Opening in January in its all-new, modern, spacious facilities at 3514 22nd Place, the center is entering its first summer program, and if success of this season is comparable to the successes already marked by the organization since its founding, then one can readily see why Children's Learning Center is so well received.

Added summer activities will include swimming, field trips and outdoor sports in the afternoons, with usual educational attention in the mornings.

Day care, night care and drop-ins can be accommodated in the three shifts for the convenience of working parents or guardians. (First morning shift from 6:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m., second morning shift from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., and the afternoon shift from 2:30 p.m. until 11:30 p.m.)

The Center is state licensed to handle 100 children per shift, reports Richard Ybarra who with his wife, Elaine, are founders, owners and operators.

Not only are all facilities the most modern and attractive, as well as functional, but the prices are reasonable, and the public is invited to visit and compare.

Qualified Direction

Only certified workers and instructors are on the staff, with all having a related college degree or soon to receive one.

To fully appreciate the new facilities, individualized activities and nutritious menus provided for the children (ages 2-10) one should visit the facility. The imposing 4,200 sq.ft. building is situated on a spacious tract enabling off-street parking. Visitors are welcome.

A Lubbock resident of some 10 years, Ybarra is principal of the A.C. Jackson Elementary School.

Mrs. Ybarra is director of the Center and she holds a bachelors degree from Eastern New Mexico University at Portales, and a masters degree from Texas Tech; she also can count qualifications including instruction in a day care center for four years while pursuing her studies at Portales.

Mr. and Mrs. Ybarra have three children of their own, and they express deep interest in children and attention to their pleasure and development.

A Full Program

Each child attending the Center is respected as an individual and given attention and activities particular to their needs and age. The Center is pledged to the development of the whole child through activities to enhance the physical, emotional, social, and mental growth of each individual child.

And the charges are most moderate.

Flexible

Participation can be on a hourly, day or weekly basis, with no contracts involved.

Each child is provided with a nutrition program to include a hot meal during the time in the center. Morning and afternoon snacks are provided, as is a breakfast for the day shift group. The kitchen is spotless and all-new, of commercial type and inspected and passed by the city, Ybarra emphasizes.

"Call 793-0565, or better yet, visit the big, new Children's Learning Center, for a revelation in child care and development. It likely is just what you have been seeking!"

AT FULLY-STAFFED CENTER — Children from ages two to 10 are finding Children's Learning Center a great place to enjoy, while the parents recognize this modern Center for its concept, personal attention and convenience. Shown with a typical group there are adult leaders (from left) Tori Gilmour, Paula Perry, Richard Ybarra, Sofia Roa, Beatriz Luera and Elaine Ybarra. Mr. and Mrs. Ybarra are owners.

Hamilton Gymnastics Reveals Extensive Summer Programs

The summer program at Hamilton Gymnastics offers exciting courses of interest to every age and every level of achievement.

Continuous enrollment is provided.

Hamilton Gymnastics, at 4811 W. Loop 289 (at corner of 50th Street and the Loop) is making quite a name for itself with its comprehensive curriculum and top-grade instructors, and the summer program certainly does not detract from this reputation.

Added Feature

New "mom and tot" gymnastics classes will be offered this summer, with mom assisting the instructor. Inquire for details of these classes conducted Mondays through Thursdays, between hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Karate classes will be on Wednesday evenings.

A flexible dance program is offered, together with baton, and instructors in these fields include Sharon Storey and Elizabeth Gillas. Both have records of outstanding achievement.

Vacation Aid

Johnny Hamilton, director of Hamilton Gymnastics, points out that classmembers during the summer will not be charged for classes missed due to vacations.

Hamilton instructs in many classes, together with Wayne Downing, assistant coach. Downing has had four years training under Hamilton and has directed gym camps in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

It all adds to this:

"If in a quandary about summer activities, fun and achievement, then Hamilton Gym is recommended, with one of its several classes likely fitting in to one's interests and schedule.

"Surely Hamilton Gymnastics has something for you! We think so, and we'll be happy to give full details of our prrogram and facilities. Phone the gym offices at 793-1013, or best yet, come out and see this great asset to Lubbock and area, the big Hamilton Gymnastics School at 50th Street and Loop 289."

Hamilton is a former NCAA All-American, Big 10 champion and in 1967 ranked fourth in the world professional champions (gymnastics). He has lived in Lubbock for six years and has earned quite a following in his gym program. He is an Amarillo native.

'New World Of Comfort, Savings' Seen Among Insulating Windows Advantages

"Did you realize that aluminum replacement windows, storm windows and storm doors can be custom made for your own comfort and beauty, made right here in Lubbock at Insulating Windows, Inc.?

"And have you recognized how insulation-related installations can qualify for income tax credit?

"Let Jim Haynes and his efficient staff at Insulating Windows, Inc., 1616 Ave. F. give full details about any aspect of their products and services . . . including the tax credit benefits especially appreciated at this time of year?

Many have depended upon Haynes at Arcadia Stone, 1922 Ave. E. He now not only still provides the products and services of that business, but also operates the added Insulating Windows facility.

Simplifies the Job

Imagine, for example, rubber seals on the custom-made windows, with this self-sealing innovation making caulking unnecessary!

These products and services by Haynes are made possible with his purchase in mid-1978 of the window department of House Clinic.

Thoroughly Experienced

Haynes not only has the background and knowledge for superior window and door manufacture and installation, but he has constructed beautiful homes throughout the area, together with construction of fireplaces and other units with use of Arcadia Stone.

Insulating Windows, Inc., can open a whole new world in one's enjoyment of the home every day of the year . . . with the finest in storm windows and doors, with insulating windows enhancing the beauty, comfort and hospitality of the home.

SETS JUNE INSTRUCTION — Anne Harris, Houston, returns to conduct workshops at Village Craft Corner in mid-June. An outstanding instructor list and class schedule is outlined in the accompanying story, with some classes 'just a week away'.

Village Craft Corner Tells Summer Class Opportunities

A truly outstanding class and workshop schedule, involving former and new instructors, ushers in a summer of fun and achievement at Village Craft Corner in South Plains Mall.

Even for a shop traditionally offering highly-recommended instruction and products, the forthcoming program is outstanding, with really exceptional opportunities provided in the instruction program beginning immediately.

(To be assured of a place in one of the classes or workshops, immediate inquiry and reservation is urged. Don't delay! Have fun this summer! And achieve!

Classes, Workshops

The summer schedule begins June 4 with both classes and workshops. (See displays of the instructors' work now at the Village Craft Corner.)

Anne Harris

The very talented and popular Anne Harris of Houston returns to instruct June 18 through June 22. Three complete pieces of artwork will be completed by the students. See these (landscape, seascape and animal) at Village Craft.

Anne previously has conducted most successful oil painting workshops at Village Craft Corner, also exhibiting in Mall shows, and her return has been eagerly anticipated. She has studied under such authorities as Dick Turner, Fernie Parker and Robert Schuhsler.

Mac Carow

Mac Carow will conduct a portrait workshop one day weekly for three weeks, beginning Monday, June 4, with the others on June 11 and 25. Mac will instruct students at all levels: beginners, intermediate or advanced. Live models will be utilized, with emphasis on technique and individual features. The student can work in choice of oils, pastels or charcoal.

Mac Carow has a most auspicious record of study and achievement, studying under Ben Konis, Glenna Goodacre, Thelma Clark Griggs, Connie Martin, Lonnie Mason, Richard Goetz, Paul Milosevich, Tony Arnett and others. She has exhibited extensively in Lubbock and elsewhere in the area, from Snyder to Santa Fe, N.M., and has an impressive list of "wins" in prominent area shows. She specializes in oil and pastel portraits.

Georgia Bartlett

Georgia Bartlett will be on hand for a three-day workshop, June 12, 13, 14, involving poppy florals, with 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. hours. Georgia is a veritable master of floral landscapes, poppies, etc., and is one of the really qualified instructors in her field. Her classes are heartily recommended.

Bill Huffaker

Bill Huffaker, popular local artist, has been scheduled for a Saturday workshop especially convenient for working people, on June 16. A lovely mixed bouquet will be the subject. Bill's work speaks for itself, and reflects his expertise and his study with such as Anne Harris, Jeannie Lewis and Danny Gamble. The Saturday workshop will be from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Jane Hodgkins

Regular weekly tole painting classes, under direction of Jane Hodgkins, will be held for eight weeks, beginning Wednesday, June 20. Times will be 10 a.m. until noon, and 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. Jane also will do special one-day workshops including the cornhusker stool, tole 'n gold technique, zennias and monarch butterfly, and others.

Jane is well respected in the field and has studied under Sherry Nelson and Mary Stewart. She has taught extensively, and a number of her tole paintings are displayed and sold at Village Craft Corner.

Danny Gamble

Registrations are now being taken, due to popular demand, for a special Danny Gamble watercolor workshop slated August 27 through Aug. 31. Danny conducts demonstrations and workshops throughout the Southwest, and his paintings are found in discriminating galleries and private collections throughout the country.

Aside from instruction, Village Craft has a tremendous stock of supplies . . . such as silk flowers, brooms, fans., etc. for nature projects, and a full stock of all artists' supplies.

Special Low Price

Picture frames are a very vital department, and at this time all ready-made frames in stock are marked at 25 per cent off.

For "how-to" books, art supplies, craft needs and instruction, Village Craft Corner in South Plains Mall is most, most popular.

"So don't delay; discover for yourself the reason for this acceptance and appreciation of such a shop . . . Village Craft Corner!"

Arctic Circle Coolers, Accessories Among Season Helps At Lellem Welch

Evaportative coolers offer the ideal solution to a variety of residential, commercial and industrial cooling needs, anywhere that affordable cooling will increase in comfort and improve work efficiency.

"Evaporative coolers from Lellem Welch Inc. keep you cool . . . without keeping you broke!"

This means that there is a complete stock, not only of these new units but also of accessories at the big home-owned and home-operated Lellem Welch firm at 1401 Ave. J in Lubbock.

Actually Welch is one of the largest Arctic Circle dealers in this part of the state and consequently stands ready to help one enter the warmer season — now — in a manner to save money and to conserve energy.

"Let Lellem Welch, Inc. give you the facts regarding economical, effective evaporative cooling, supplying complete units or parts as desired."

Stocked are pumps, padding, belts, motors, dollies, shafts, blowers, grills, and sides for evaporative cooler repair or update.

Stocked are evaporative conditioner from the 2,000 cfm of 12,500 cfm, including roof, window and gable type coolers, even mobile home coolers are available.

Parts play a very important part, so Welch tries to shock as many different parts as possible for the many different types of coolers on the market.

As for maintenance and repairs on evaporative coolers: the home handyperson can easily handle an evaporative cooler's simple maintenance — and pocket the savings on costly service calls. An occasional cleaning and a simple pad change once or twice a year are usually all that is required. When "old faithful" requires repairs, a full line of parts is available at Lellem Welch Inc. right here in Lubbock, 1401 Ave. J.

Help is available from Welch for the do-it-yourselfer" who wishes to do the installation.

Of course Welch stocks much more than evaporative air conditioning . . . such as Eljer plumbing fixtures, Payne heating, Bradley faucets, Aprilair humidifiers, Space Guard air cleaners, and more. But with the balmy days fast approaching, emphasis is rightly focused on serving today's needs of the public that has learned to appreciate and desire the advantages of evaporative cooling, the Arctic Circle way.

And remember . . . evaporative cooling offers significant environmental advantages, as well as cost savings.

"Isn't now the time to install Arctic Circle evaporative cooling or to repair your present evaporative cooler for summer efficiency, savings and enjoyment?"

"Lellem Welch Inc. is on the job to help you; may we have the opportunity."

Beck's Warp 'n Weave Sets June-July Schedule Featuring Multiple Classes

A really exciting schedule of June and July classes has been announced by Beck's Warp 'n Weave.

In brief, for anyone interested in tatting, weaving, crochet work, knitting, and numerous other fiber projects, Beck's Warp 'n Weave at 3021 34th St., phone 799-0151, has a most intriguing presentation of goods and services.

Tatting classes, under direction of the highly-regarded Betty Bradford will begin in just a few days (June 7, 12, 14) from 1:30 p.m. until 3:30 p.m. on these days; and again on July 12, 17, and 19 from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. A modest $15 fee is involved.

Loom

Then there are harness loom classes, taught by Warp 'n Weave owner Tom Beck, on Tuesday and Thursdays, July 10-26, from 6:30 p.m. until 9 p.m. at a $36 charge.

Beginning frame loom will come in for attention June 25, 26, 27 and 28, from 9:30 a.m. until noon, and again on July 10-31 in an evening session, these to be taught by Nancy Beck. A $24 fee is set on these.

Basketry

Nancy Beck will instruct in natural coiled basketry on Saturday, June 9 and 16, in both morning and afternoon sessions. Registration is $24.

Cardweaving, at $15, comes in for attention June 16 and 23, in the afternoons, taught by Virginia Riggs.

(Some classes can be arranged, so please check with Warp 'n Weave if the announced times do not fit your schedule.)

Early registration is urged to be sure of a place in one of these in-demand classes.

Anniversary Special

Beck's Warp 'n Weave celebrates its second anniversary June 1, and in recognition of this milestone is conducting a sale to continue until June 15, with markdowns in all departments. This provides a very real opportunity for selection from unique and even hard-to-find merchandise at a cost saving. It is Tom and Nancy Beck's way of saying "thank you so very much" for the patronage and confidence the shop has experienced since its founding.

The sale affords a great opportunity to come in and discover just how very much the firm has expanded, with new lines and even greater selection noted.

New Arrivals

An enlarged line of tatting thread stocked, as example, with lots of cotton yards for weaving and other needlecrafts. Select from 100 per cent cotton yarn Queen Anne lace.

The anticipate shipment of new Leclerc looms has arrived, too.

One must come in to the attractive and "different" 3021 34th Street store to fully comprehend the incredible supply provided in weaving and related fields. Customers from throughout the Southwest have expressed amazement at the shop's large but selective offering.

Discover how Warp 'n Weave is really "something special," with distinct appeal to beginner, advanced weaving enthusiast, or for just anyone who appreciates beautiful yarns and the other products brought to the areas by Warp 'n Weave. Don't forget the sale . . . and the classes.

Harold Harvey Agency Assures Up-to-Date Insurance Services

Wouldn't this be a very opportune time to check your insurance program to determine if it is up to date, meeting the needs of today and tomorrow?

"Does your homeowners policy have inflation-guard endorsement to assure funds for replacement, regardless of inflation?

"Does your insurance fully serve the purpose of your personal preference?

"And does it need review by a knowledgeable expert in the field?

Then, turn to Harold Harvey, whether the need is for complete planning, for review, for mortgage cancellation life insurance or whatnot.

Harold Harvey's continuing efforts and subsequent successes in insurance service are matter of record.

For a fact, the Harold Harvey Agency (No. 5, Briercroft Office Park, phone 747-6673) can materially assist, professionally and correctly, in the insurance picture.

Harvey takes pride in representing companies with good records, and prompt payments can be (and should be) a big factor in choosing one's insurance agent. Harvey prides in promptness.

The Harold Harvey Agency calls to attention some other situations in which they can be of prime benefit:

"Re-evaluation of one's insurance makes good sense what with property values going up every day."

Harvey points out the value of an "inflation-guard endorsement" that annually increases the insurance coverage of the home. This endorsement can be put on an annual basis on current home-owners' policies at a cost far from prohibitive. It provides a realistic protection of values.

"Specializing in fire and casualty insurance, the Harold Harvey Agency can render services that can be rewarding for every client.

Among the key areas in which Harvey can render a special service is that of home owners mortgage cancellation life insurance, paying off the mortgage in full should the breadwinner die.

HAROLD HARVEY KNOWS INSURANCE

The complete homeowners and mortgage cancellation package can be placed through Harvey with one company for maximum convenience and efficiency — the Floyd West Co. organization with which Harvey has had close contact since back in 1959.

Harvey also is a specialist in bonds, whether the need is administrator, guardianship, various types of court bonds, etc.

Whatever the insurance or bond need, Harold Harvey can simplify the problem. It is as elemental and easy as that.

"A package policy" that affords a substantial decrease in premiums in one of the services made available at the Harold Harvey Insurance Agency!

Applicable to commercial interests including hotel-motel and office, institutional, apartment, mercantile, processing and industrial, the Multi-Peril "package plan" is now available in Texas, and Harold Harvey at No. 5 Briercroft Office Park, is eager to assist with this program in improving one's insurance situation.

In the complex world of insurance, it makes good sense to rely on Harold Harvey, a veteran in the field.

Christmas Shoppe, Benefit In Every Season, Open All Week

The Christmas Shoppe in Cactus Alley, specializing in gifts and decor items for every holiday season throughout the year, is receiving gorgeous new items — for Father's Day right at hand, and for early Christmas selection, too!

SHOP OPEN TODAY — Jan Lynch, owner-operator of The Christmas Shoppe in Cactus Alley, displays new arrivals in Bucilla needlework kits, together with Christmas decor and gift items already arriving. Unique Father's Day gifts also are stocked as are items for remembrances throughout the year.

Because of the public's growing dependence upon The Christmas Shoppe for "extraordinary" items all year long, the shop is now remaining open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays. Yes, The Christmas Shoppe is open every weekday.

Open Memorial Day

The shop is open regular hours today, Memorial Day, too, as a convenience to shoppers who appreciate utilizing the holiday for shopping.

For Father

It would be a very good time to select a Father's Day gift . . . such as the decanter and mugs from Czechoslovakia, engraved with beautiful stag figures.

Music boxes, too, make great special-occasion gifts, and The Christmas Shoppe has a wide selection.

Just received, aiding Christmas planning and purchasing, are Bucilla needlework kits, stockings, Christmas tree ornaments, mobiles and mail bags, indicative of the wide but selective stock at th popular 2610 Salem Ave. shop.

"There are the Hummels and Redheads, etc., from Goebel, and orders for these should be placed at earliest convenience. One is invited to call to get your name on the list for your next collectible. We also have the information you need to join the Hummel Collectible Club."

Gift wrapping, for every occasion, is an acclaimed service at The Christmas Shoppe, whether the items were purchased there or elsewhere.

"Owner and operator Jan Lynch not only stocks in a discriminating and customer-considering manner at the unique shop but she is happy to personally shop for you in the world's markets for particular items of your desire. She is glad to aid in securing unusual items, related or not to the stock of The Christmas Shoppe, on a special order basis. What a service!"

The entire staff, including Jan, Ellen Snyder and Diane Snyder, is most adept in rendering the customer services one appreciates . . . in every season.

Whether the search is for collectors' thimbles, Christmas decor items, gifts for any occasion, or for just the pretty and unusual, The Christmas Shoppe can be the happy solution.

"Wouldn't today be a great time to utilize the advantages of this Cactus Alley shop (occupying both upstairs and downstairs quarters at its location just off Brownfield Highway in Lubbock) for Father's Day, for holiday planning, etc.?"

GREAT EATING IS REALITY AT CAPTAIN D'S

"Thanks, Lubbock!"

This is the sincere expression from Captain D's Seafood, the unique establishment at 50th Street and Wayne Avenue that opened Jan. 1 and has enjoyed a tremendous reception and a repeat business that is thoroughly appreciated.

"As much as we are encouraged," the management emphasizes, "we are not resting on our laurels, but we are striving, every day, to prove our gratitude by serving only the finest food, affording the best service we know, and keeping prices right.

Holding Price Line

(No recent price increases have been made, despite steadily rising costs. Captain D's is doing its very best to favor the customer and will continue to do so.)

Located just across from Best's on west 50th Street, Captain D's is a franchise operation, with the Lubbock facility owned by the father-son team of Sam and Dale Ezelle, with Dale (the son) actively on the job as director of operations. Donnie Warren is manager.

The Nashville-based Captain D's franchise operation involves some 250 units, and both Dale and Donny mark over five years experience with the Nashville locations before moving to Lubbock.

"We love the south Plains and really consider it home. In fact, eight more units in this area are planned under the Ezell ownership in the near future."

Luncheon specials are posted every day at Captain D's, such as the current $1.19 special on Mondays through Thursdays including two pieces of fish, french fries and a hush puppy.

On Sunday and Monday "all the fish you can eat" is priced at a modes $2.79.

Children's plates are also available, involving fish, shrimp and hamburger.

Batter-dipped fish is the specialty at Captain D's, with the catfish, shrimp, oysters, clams, chicken and hamburgers unexcelled in goodnesss.

Long Hours, Every Day

Captain D's is open from 10:45 a.m. until 10 p.m., Sundays through Thursdays, with a later 11 p.m. closing on Fridays and Saturdays.

Dale Ezelle and Donnie Warren personally supervise operations seven days a week, and the speedy service, deliciously prepared food and sensible prices attest to this attention.

"You'll like Captain D's. Your pocket book will like us, too! We're a real friend to the budget and to hungry folks!"

Hard-to-Find Season Items Included In A-1 Nursery Special Low Pricing

"Hard-to-find" items are a specialty at A-1 Nursery, as are prices that invite comparison anywhere!

The selection is exceptionally good at this time at A-1 Nursery, 7500 82nd St., phone 792-6070, presenting opportunity for good buys in every department of the big and time-honored nursery just a few minutes drive southwest of South Plains Mall.

A huge selection of bedding plants is included in an offer of 2 1/4-in. pots at 25 cents or $2.50 per dozen.

A new shipment of fruit trees in containers enables savings of 35 per cent this week (with most 1 and 5-gal. shrubs also at 35 per cent off list).

Six-pack tomato plants, regular $1.29, are sale marked at 59 cents per package!

And red, white and pink caladiums in 3-in. pots, at 79 cents or; 10 for $7.50.

A large selection of cushion mums, in numerous colors, enable special pricing at $5.88 per dozen rather than the regular $7.50 price.

Yaupon holly, 5-gal., regular $22.80, is marked at $12.88 each or two for $25!

Extra nice roses are in stock, and are priced as low as $1.99!

Ground Covers

Grass seeds are stocked for every preference and include Kentucky fescue 31, at sale price of $1.25 lb., dicondra seed at $7.89 lb.; shady lawn mix, regular $3.99 lb., on sale at $3.38, and Arizona hulled bermuda grass seed, regular $4.19, at $3.49 per pound.

Also select from Zipp fertilizers at really super sale prices.

Pottery Markdowns

All clay pottery is 35 per cent off list.

Spring bulbs, hanging baskets, geraniums, and so very many other desired items are stocked and placed on sale!

Where is all this:

At A-1 Nursery, 7500 82nd St., phone 792-6070, open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. daily on weekdays, and 1:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays.

A-1 has a tremendous selection in every department, well worth the drive to view and select . . . and save.

Area residents have long benefitted from the landscape design, installation and maintenance services of A-1, plus such benefits as the new shipments and low early-season prices.

For more than two decades, area residents have been assisted by Winfred Self, owner and operator of A-1 Nursery, since 1973 at its present expanded quarters.

Everything in the modern nursery is coordinated for the best in products and services. A complete line is stocked including trees, shrubs, vines, fertilizers, insecticides and numerous other nursery supplies.

The knowledge of Self and his experienced crew possibly is the biggest asset of A-1, however, as hundreds of customers can attest to the superior help there through the years.

"Come on out and see for yourself how A-1 Nursery can meet your individual preferences and needs, at a price you'll appreciate."

Woolco's Line Of Fisher Hi-Fi Stereos Affords Fullest Value

"Woolco provides you the chance to get a super hi-fi stereo system at modest expense . . . without spending $1,000 to $3,000!

It has been announced that Woolco in Lubbock has expanded its component stereo line.

Attractive stereo cabinets also are available.

"Come in and let us show all this to you . . . it is just another way of letting you know in a very practical way that we want to be your favorite store!"

Evaporative Coolers, Refrigerated Units Among In-Stock Season Aids

"Again . . . with summertime upon us . . . Woolco comes through as your evaporative cooler headquarters."

A wide selection and sensible price, with a unit for every need, is the situation at Woolco where window models range from 4,000 cfm single-speed up to 4,800 cfm three-speed.

Downdraft and sidedraft coolers are stocked in a range from 4,500 cfm two-speed to 6,500 cfm two-speed.

Refrigerated, Also

"Woolco wants you to have a cool summer, and it has done something about it. . . with a huge selection and a choice of your preference in evaporative coolers and refrigerated air conditioners. Shop and select now to be ready for those really scorching days sure to come."

Sweetwater Author's Book, 'The Wind' Republished

By KATHLEEN CARROLL
Associated Press Writer

West Texans occasionally complain about the periodic sandstorms that fill the air with blinding, choking dust, clogging the eyes and throat and leaving behind a fine grit coating.

But for many, the wind is a source of both pride and despair. After all, it takes a stout heart to live on the flat prairielands where gusts are clocked at up to 45 miles per hour. Not to mention sturdy legs.

And if they weren't a bit proud, why name football teams like the Floydada Whirlwinds, the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes, the Amarillo Golden Sandies, the Texline Tornadoes or Winters' Blizzard.

Still it's THEIR wind, and if they want to gripe, well, they've got to live with it.

But back in 1925, folks didn't take so kindly to a novel entitled, "The Wind." Written by a Texan transplanted to Chicago, Dorothy Scarborough, the book was first published anonymously. That was Miss Scarborough's idea. Growing up in Sweetwater, she must have known how her tale of a young girl driven to madness by the howling, incessant winds would be accepted.

"I have been accused of disliking West Texas, but that's a mistake. It's a great section and I love it," she wrote of her former home.

"The Wind" is the story of Letty, a young Virginia woman who moves to barren West Texas and marries a good-hearted, but definitly unromantic cowboy. In the poverty of her splintery shack there is no escape from the screaming, swirling winds. She begins to lose first her beauty, then her mind.

The novel was republished this spring by the University of Texas Press. Aside from a small waiting list at public libraries, the novel has caused hardly (you'll forgive the pun) a stir.

My, how times have changed. And, so, add West Texans, have weather conditions.

"It can drive you bananas," declared Ray Christopher, a Brownfield cowboy and land dealer. "We went through the Dust Bowl days. They were something. They planted trees for windbreaks but they just caught the sand and piled it as high as the courthouses.

"The wind would blow and you'd put an old bandana handkerchief over your face like an old highway robber. At night, you'd wet a sheet and hang it over the head of the bed to make a wet tent, the air would be so thick with sand.

"The livestock would choke to death, smother to death. It would be where absolutely you could not see in front of you. You'd get out in it and you'd just keep going.

"You didn't (leave). You just survived. You survived because it was the way of life. But we don't have it like we used to. I'm pushing 70 years old and we just don't have it like we used to."

"Of course," Miss Scarborough penned in a profile of her 1929 life in Texas Monthly, "I realize as well as anybody else that West Texas is vastly improved now over what it was then, but it was of then that I elected to write."

The basic premise of the novel — the constant assault from the wind and sand and the realization there is no escape, not one moment of peace from it — is a valid one. Or so says a West Texas professor of psychology.

"It's called sensory isolation," said Dr. Robert Bell of Texas Tech University. "I can certainly identify with the nature of the book. At that time, there was a lack of foundation features to break the wind. You are very isolated socially with all that dirt and wind. Add to that the sameness and the winds and the extreme monotony of the landscape.

"You'd begin to get hallucinations.

"This is the most maligned and most benevolent climate in the country. There are many of us from Yankeeland who appreciate three to four days of dirt to three to four months of snow.

"If you're asking if people are going to be upset by the re-release of this book ... you're (blankety-blank) right they are!"

Texas writer A.C. Greene remembers his grandmother, Maude E. Cole, a librarian and friend of Miss Scarborough, got into considerable hot water over the book in 1925.

"My grandmother almost lost her job for even having purchased a copy for the library. "The civic leaders of Sweetwater openly blamed the book for the decline of their town. Among certain socal levels, it was not a safe topic, even to the time of World War II.

"Most readers, however, were sophisticated enough so as not to take the book as devil's work, so by my day (early 30s) it was a fairly easily obtained piece of reading."

Greene says his grandmother was convinced the book's reception broke Miss Scarborough's heart.

The El Paso Times review dated Oct. 18, 1925, said "Loyal West Texans won't know whether to like the story or hate it."

"I grew up on 'The Wind,'" said Abilene Reporter-News writer Katherine Duff. "It was the first book I ever slipped off and read. My mother thoroughly enjoyed it. She HATED West Texas. It was a book she had and I heard her talk about it."

Duff recently reviewed "The Wind" for the Reporter-News.

"(This time) everybody sort of enjoyed it. People have gone back and reread it and they still agree with it," she said.

"It was the first novel to debunk today's myth of the West. You know, the glamorous cowboy types."

Democratic Primary Heated In Kentucky

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's Democratic primary election for governor is an unpredictable scramble featuring a fried chicken millionaire, a woman supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment, a former Louisville mayor who survived that city's busing controversy and a congressman opposed to Gov. Julian Carroll.

Carroll, who took office in 1975 when Wendell Ford went to the U.S. Senate, can not be elected to an additional term.

The issues in Tuesday's election — the need for educational improvements, better secondary roads and limits on state spending — have been taking a back seat to the cast of characters.

By far the most publicity has been generated by John Y. Brown Jr., the fast-food and sports promoter who, after entering the contest only two months ago, has been saturating the media as though he were selling fried chicken to the electorate.

"It's time for a businessman to run Kentucky," says Brown, 45, who with his new wife, former Miss America Phyllis George, has given the gubernatorial race a touch of glamour.

Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall, 60, is unimpressed, however. Mrs. Stovall, who is trying to become the state's first woman governor, claims that optimistic polls by Brown and other candidates prove nothing except that all four of her major rivals are going to be first or second, an obviously impossible situation.

Mrs. Stovall, endorsed by some major labor organizations, is something of a national heroine for feminists.

When Carroll left the state briefly after the 1978 legislative session, she surprised everyone by using her position as acting governor to veto the Legislature's resolution rescinding Kentucky's ERA ratification.

A third candidate, former Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane, 43, a millionaire physician, sought voter recognition with a 1,000-mile walk through Kentucky. He has far more newspaper endorsements than any other gubernatorial contender.

As mayor, Sloane took the brunt of criticism from anti-busing advocates during the disorders which accompanied the court-ordered process in Louisville. Rep. Carroll Hubbard, D-Ky., a fourth major candidate, has stressed what he contends is the corruption in the Carroll administration. He has cited a year-long FBI investigation of state government, which so far has failed to result in convening of a federal grand jury, as Hubbard had hoped.

Hubbard, 41, usually is an underdog in his races and is proud of being a stretch runner. But this time he acknowledges that between Carroll's political clout and Brown's millions, it's uphill all the way.

The administration-endorsed contestant is 41-year-old Terry McBrayer, a former state commerce commissioner and former legislator who is trying to accept Carroll's support while showing he is his own man.

Man Is Lucky Second Time With Flights

By The Associated Press

Through a twist of fate, Doug Wyckoff of Sacramento, Calif., has avoided death twice in the two worst aviation disasters in U.S. history.

And another Californian, Warren Lollich, has been busy on the telephone, telling friends he is still alive, even though his name was on a list of persons killed Friday when an American Airlines DC-10 crashed at Chicago.

Wyckoff would have been on the ill-fated flight, but for a last-minute cancellation.

Wyckoff, formerly a regional sales manager for I.C. System Inc., had a confirmed first-class reservation, but last-minute business plans forced him to cancel.

"The incredible thing that I am not over yet," said Wyckoff, "is that I have a ticket in my hand this very moment for that flight.

"I plan to burn the ticket," he said.

It was the second such experience for Wyckoff. Another last-minute change of business plans forced him to cancel his reservation on a Pacific Southwest Airlines flight that crashed after a collision with a private plane over San Diego last September.

"I thank God that I'm alive, but I'm wondering who, who wound up with my seat?" he said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make whatever arrangements appeal to you that are connected with improving conditions at home. Get into matters involving your property and possessions, and work them out in a more satisfactory manner.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Extend invitations to those you want to entertain at home and learn a good deal through conversation. Make repairs to property that increases its value and adds to its beauty.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Get in touch with one you admire and want to be part of your life in the future. Convincing him or her to go along with an idea you have in mind is relatively easy now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your financial status well and do those things that will make your money grow. Listen to what a successful person has to suggest. Follow the best of such advice.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do what you can to improve your appearance so that you become more magnetic, charming. Come to a better understanding with allies and add to present success.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Analyze your present course better and know where you are going, and gain more prestige. Greater accord is possible with your closest partner. Beware of con artist.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are able to find persons who can be of help to you in the future. Attend social gatherings that appeal to you. Be charming and be happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day to improve your standing in your community by right activity. Bring your capabilities to the attention of bigwigs who can be of help to you. Be clever.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have not been to new sites for some time and this is a good time to seek new pastures. Your hunches are good for advancement, so follow them. Be careful of new-found friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find a better system for handling responsibilities and don't speak before you have thought. Show more cooperation for loved ones and gain the assistance you want.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show more understanding for those of a highly emotional nature and be of help to them. A situation comes up which concerns another and should be settled quickly and well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of chores early in the day and get a good deal done. Contact associates and make new and better plans for the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) A smile and pleasant manner can make your duties easier and more pleasant, especially when dealing with others. Any special talent you want to put across can be well expressed now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will have much understanding of whatever is basic in nature, so give a final general course that stresses business, property investments for best results. An emotional nature here that requires an early marriage, a home, children for stability and happiness. Teach figures early in life at home.

Lightning Activity Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the time it takes you to read this sentence, lightning has struck at least 1,000 times.

Summer is thunderstorm season, the time of most lightning activity, and experts at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration caution that no place is absolutely safe from nature's electrical violence.

But meteorologist H. Michael Mogil reports that being in an automobile, unless it's a convertible, may be one of your best bets.

Mogil says that when lightning strikes a car, it usually travels along the metal outer skin of the vehicle and then jumps to the ground.

Last June, he pointed out, a Florida man was killed and his brother injured when they were struck by lightning while working on their disabled auto during a thunderstorm. The son of one of the men and a friend, who remained inside the car, were not hurt.

Mogil emphasized that the safety of autos has nothing to do with their rubber tires, which some people think provide insulation.

Not so, he said. A person in a car is not protected by insulation, but by the vehicle's shell, which diverts the lightning's killing amperage.

Last October, he said, lightning struck the CB antenna on a car being driven by an Indianapolis man.

The antenna was melted, one of the steel-belted tires blew out and the auto's electrical system was damaged, but the driver was not hurt.

Annually, according to NOAA, more than 100 Americans are killed by lightning and more than 7,000 have died this way since 1940. The hazard gets little attention, however, because the deaths come mostly in small numbers.

Annual property loss due to lightning is estimated at $100 million, much of it the result of lightning-caused fires.

Lightning occurs when electrical charges build up beyond the insulating capacity of the air between the two charged objects. These objects can be a pair of clouds, a cloud and the ground, a cloud and a tree or a cloud and a person.

Usually the discharge occurs between a negatively charged cloud and the positively charged ground beneath it, but it doesn't have to. And lightning can travel miles from the cloud where it originated.

Thunderstorms are underway continually around the world, generating thousands of lightning strokes every hour. If one develops near you, NOAA experts have some safety suggestions.

Japanese Gas Stations Not Complying

TOKYO (AP) — Only a half of Japan's filling stations complied Sunday with a government request that they shut down on Sundays and national holidays to conserve fuel, a government official said.

The response "was much more low-key than expected, because our request has not been circulated widely enough," said the official of the Resource and Energy Agency of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry.

The ministry, backed by the Japanese Association of Gasoline Distributors and the National Association of Agricultural Cooperatives, asked last week that the owners of the nation's 56,880 gas stations voluntarily lock their pumps on Sundays and holidays.

Officials estimated the plan would save up to 158 million gallons of oil a year, or 1.8 percent of Japan's total annual consumption.

The plan excluded stations in resort areas, whose sales on Sundays and holidays are usually twice that of ordinary days.

The ministry official, who asked not to be identified, said stations in only eight of Japan's 47 prefectures, or states, closed this Sunday in a coordinated action.

"We hope more stations will participate in the campaign more positively next sunday and afterwards," the official said.

Mears Captures First Indy 500 Victory

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Dazzling newcomer Rick Mears patiently bided his time while Bobby Unser and Al Unser took turns trying to run away with the race, then inherited the lead with 50 miles to go and held on for his first victory in the Indianapolis 500 Sunday.

His break came when Bobby Unser slowed down.

"I didn't know at first what happened to Bobby. I later found out he lost a gear in the transmission. I hated to see it for Bobby's sake but I liked it for mine," said the cool, unruffled 27-year-old from Bakersfield, Calif., who was officially posted 48.91 seconds ahead of four-time champion A.J. Foyt's lame mount.

Mears, who is actually just in his first full season of Indianapolis car competition, continued, "I don't know what would have happened if Bobby had run to the finish, but I believe it would have been very close.

"I had my hands full a couple of times. I got out in the gray stuff a couple of times trying to pass Bobby in the corners.

"We had a little trouble with our tires, a slow leak at one point almost forced us to make an unscheduled pit stop. But the crew did a heckuva job."

Mears made his Indianapolis debut last year in spectacular fashion by becoming the first and only rookie to qualify at over 200 mph. He left himself with a hard act to follow.

"The only goal I've ever set for myself," he commented, "is to try to do equal or better than I did the last time. It looks like I'm going to have to come back and try to win it again next year."

Mears, who made the unheard of jump from dune buggy racing straight to Indianapolis cars, was the youngest winner here since Troy Ruttman won in 1951 at age 22.

Mears, driving a Penske PC6-Cosworth that he said he preferred over a newer model, led the final 19 of 200 laps, and a total of 25 circuits.

Danny Ongais, fighting with handling problems after damaging a right rear wheel in a brush with the wall, rallied for third. Mears' teammate Bobby Unser, leader most of the second half of the $1 million classic, was a distant fourth after losing fourth gear. Unser, at 45 years of age, had sought to become the oldest winner here.

Al Unser was in the lead from the outside of the front row by the time the field reached the entrance to the first turn after a clean, safe start. He quickly put a comfortable cuhion between him and Mears and Sneva, the only drivers who qualified faster than Unser.

At 50 miles, he had built a seven-second lead over Mears with a record-breaking pace of 185.767 mph. That's when the first caution light came out, bunching up the field behind the caution car — according to a new rule this year. The yellow flag came during the middle of the first round of pit stops. A tow-in for Cliff Hucul, who had stopped on the course, was the reason.

Some drivers, Mears and Foyt, benefited greatly because they hadn't yet stopped for service. Others like Gordon Johncock and Ongais had, and found themselves a lap down when the green flag came back out. Only six cars were on the leader's lap after the first caution.

The second caution came just after 100 miles, to bring Sheldon Kinser's broken machine back to the garage. That erased a 15-second lead for Unser, but came at a welcome time for most teams who were nearing their next regular pit stops for tires and fuel.

At 100 miles it was Al Unser, Mears, Sneva, Bobby Unser, Johnny Rutherford and Foyt, all on the same lap.

By 200 miles, Bobby Unser had moved up to provide the closest challenge to his younger brother. Rutherford took third, and Foyt, after a slight engine adjustment during a pit stop, found the punch to go into fourth. Mears and Sneva fell to fifth and sixth. Unser's pace of 164.131 mph was another record.

When the green flag came back out, more smoke showed, followed by a small oil fire from a broken seal. Unser, the leader of most of the laps run under green to that point, was blackflagged on the 102nd lap. He retired after the next circuit.

The early retirement ended Unser's streak of four straight 500-mile race wins, dating back to the 1977 California 500.

About the same time Al Unser parked, Rutherford, up to third, brought his car in for lengthy repairs on the gear box. That put him in the rapidly growing list of cars out of contention, and served to further pare down the competition for the No. 1 spot.

By halfway, there were a dozen cars out of the race, including early contenders Johnny Parsons, Lee Kunzman and Sheldon Kinser. One of the two extra starters added in an unprecedented fifth round of time trials Saturday, George Snider, was among the earliest retirees.

Janet Guthrie, the only woman in the race — and the reason for the delayed "Lady and gentlemen start your engines" from speedway owner Mary Hulman — was the first to retire to Gasoline Alley. Her car's engine gave out less than seven minutes into the event.

However, the 35th position went to Jim McElreath, at 51 the oldest driver ever to qualify here. His crew noticed engine problems while it was still on the starting grid. Lengthy repairs did not correct the trouble.

Heavy rain Saturday night turned the famed infield into a quagmire, and race-eve temperatures in the upper 30s apparently kept the crowd down somewhat. However, all the 260,000 seats appeared to be filled, insuring a crowd of over 300,000.

Crowds all month for practice and qualifications have been down. Tight gasoline supplies, relatively high prices for that fuel, and poor weather on the most important days have been blamed.

NO. 1 — Rick Mears holds up one finger to indicate his finish in the Indianapolis 500 Sunday. Of course Mears was standing in the winner's circle at the time and his signal was hardly necessary. The win also marks the first racing victory of his young career. (AP Laserphoto)

Williams Keys Sonic Boom As Seattle Wins

SEATTLE (AP) — Guard Gus Williams scored 31 points and center Jack Sikma added 21 for Seattle and the SuperSonics capitalized on Washington's poor shooting to beat the Bullets 105-95 Sunday and take a 2-1 lead in the National Basketball Association championship series.

It was the 14th victory for Seattle in its last 15 home games and came before an enthusiastic Kingdome crowd of 35,928, the third largest in playoff history.

The fourth game of the best-of-seven playoff finals will be played Tuesday night at the Coliseum, where the Sonics have won 24 of their last 25 games. The lone exception was the seventh game of last year's finals, when Wasshington eat Seattle 105-99 to capture the NBA title.

The Bullets, who managed just 3' points in the second half of their 92-82 loss to Seattle in the second game of their series, were just as cold at the start of Sunday's game. Forward Elvin Hayes missed nine of his first 10 field goal attempts and the Bullets shot just 30 percent in the opening period, digging a hole from which they never escaped.

The huge crowd roared its approval as the Sonics outscored Washington 19-6 to take a 23-10 lead with 4:13 to go in the first quarter. Williams scored seven points and Dennis Johnson, John Johnson and Sikma had four each in that burst.

The Sonics led 31-25 after one quarter and 55-44 at the half as Washington could make just 14 of 55 field goal attempts, a woeful .255 percentage. The only thing keeping the Bullets reasonably close was the play of Bobby Dandridge, who had 16 points in the half, and Wes Unseld, who had 12 points and nine rebounds.

Washington started the second half in the same hapless way, missing 13 of its 17 shots as Seattle stretched the lead to 69-52 with 4:52 remaining in the third quarter.

The Bullets tried all sorts of manpower combinations, but none did the job. Reserves Greg Ballard and Larry Wright were given extensive playing time, forward Dandridge was used at guard and even Phil Chenier made his first appearance of the finals.

Nothing worked. It was not so much Seattle's tight defense as it was Washington's inept offense that determined the outcome.

Watson Takes Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson, whose only real challenge came from the weather, composed a front-running, 1-under-par 71 and cruised to a 3-stroke victory Sunday in the Memorial Golf Tournament.

Watson, the game's outstanding performer over the last 2½ years, claimed his fourth title of the season with a 285 total, 3 strokes under par on the rain-soaked, 7,101 yard Muirfield Village Golf Club course.

It came with relative ease. Watson, who first took the lead with a magnificent, no-bogey 69 in the dreadful weather of the second round, started this cloudy, gloomy, threatening day with a 4 stroke lead, built it to 7 shots at one point never was in great danger.

The closest thing to a threat came late in the round from veteran Miller Barber. Barber birdied the par-5 15th and Watson bogeyed it, missing the green with his third shot.

That cut the lead 3 strokes with 3 holes to play. And Watson was bunkered on the 16th. But he saved par with a 15-footer and Barber bogeyed the 17th from a bunker. That was it.

Watson, who had scored previous victories this year in the Heritage, Tournament of Champions and Byron Nelson Classics, collected $54,000 from the total purse of $330,000 and virtually assured himself of a third consecutive money-winning title.

With the season only slightly more than half over, Watson now has won $353,874. That total has been exceeded only by the $362,429 he won last year.

No one else is within $160,000 of Watson in winnings this season. With about 8-10 more tournaments on his schedule for the year — and most of them big-money events — Watson now has a decided chance at becoming the first man to win $500,000 in a single year.

Since the start of the 1977 season, he has won $1,026,956. It represents the fastest any player has won $1 million.

Aside from the money, the triumph put him in great shape for two more seasonal titles, the coveted Vardon Trophy for the low stroke average on the tour, and the Player of the Year award. He's won both the last two seasons.

Air Force Duo Leads Tourney

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Consider this for your basic human interest story: Jack Kearney and Jim McIntyre are both from small towns in upstate New York, both went to the Air Force Academy and both served as captains of the Air Force golf team in their senior year.

Two of a kind? Pea's in a pod, well sort of— the only problem is that they are 13 years apart in age. But the real clincher is that the duo has teamed up to take control of the Reese Memorial Day Partnership golf tournament.

The duo turned in a 65 on Sunday to post a two-day total of 128 going into today's final round. But close behind the two Reese officers is the father and son team of Dick Alexander and Rick Alexander. They fired a 64 on Sunday to come within three shots (131) of the leaders.

Today's action begins with the second and third flight's teeing off at 8:30 in the morning while the championship and first flight golfers start at 1:30.

It would appear though that the cards are stacked in favor of Kearney and McIntyre though. Kearney was part of the team that won the tournament last year and McIntyre, who graduated from the Academy in 1964, was part of a winning duo in '66— during an earlier tour at Reese.

"I don't know if we can afford to let-up any though," said Kearney. "There are some people out here capable of shooting some low numbers."

Earlier in the day it appeared that Kearney, who graduated from the Academy in '77, was going to make the tournament a runaway for him and his partner. He turned the corner after nine holes with a six-under par score of 30.

But he cooled off on the back nine and wound up with a round of 67.

However plenty of other area golfers were just warming up on Sunday. The Alexander team moved even closer to the leaders with a 64 on Sunday and the team of Bucky Sheffield and John Shepperson also carded a 64 to put them four strokes back at 132. Also at 132 was the team of Mollett and Tanner who posted the day's other 64.

Ron Hughes and Tom Miller who had a 66 on Saturday faded a bit with a 73 on Sunday and slipped to 139. But the duo took the day's round in stride.

"We just shot our basic round," explained Miller. "We can't complain."

Hughes and Miller were paired with Kearney and McIntyre during Sunday's action and according to Hughes, that could have been to Kearney's disadvantage on the back nine.

"He (Kearney) started off like a ball of fire," explained Hughes. "But I touched his ball once and after that it was all over. I have that kind of an effect on a golf ball."

But the leaders seemed ready for today's final round.

"I shot a good round today (Sunday)," said McIntyre. "So I feel good about the tournament. We know what we have to do on Monday."

In the first flight the team of Jones and McKinney fired a 70 on Sunday to take a one-shot lead going into today's finals. Two other teams are at 143 in that flight.

The Negri-Walsmith duo turned in a 73 to take the lead with a 150 in the second flight and the father and son combo of Lewis and Lewis lead the last flight with a 156.

The biggest improvement of the day came from the team of Henninberger and Abernathy who carded a 74 Sunday after shooting a 83 on the first day. But that nine-stroke improvement bumped the duo out of the third flight and into the second with a 157 total.

Although mother nature has threatened to break loose on both days of the tourney the golfers have been blessed so far. However if rain forces cancellation of the action today then Sunday's results, according to tourney director Dick Davis, would be final.

Angels Sweep Pair; Roar Into First

By The Associated Press

Don Baylor smashed a pair of homers and a triple and drove in four runs to lead California to a 9-1 victory and a doubleheader sweep over the Chicago White Sox that vaulted the Angels into first place in the American League West.

Brian Downing's two-run triple capped a three-run sixth inning and backed the six-hit pitching of Dave Frost as the Angels took the opener 4-2.

The second game was interrupted in the sixth inning when California's Rod Carew started after a taunting fan in the first base boxes but was restrained by Manager Jim Fregosi and teammates Joe Rudi and Willie Davis.

Baylor struck his two-run homer in the third inning and hit his eighth to trigger a three-run sixth to clinch the decision for Don Aase, 4-4, who hurled a four-hitter.

By winning, the Angels moved one game ahead of the Minnesota Twins, who had been in first place since May 1.

PIRATES 2, METS 1

Bill Robinson's leadoff homer in the ninth inning, and clutch relief pitching by Grant Jackson carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 2-1 victory over the New York Mets.

A's 2, BREWERS 1

Jeff Newman slammed a game-tying homer and newcomer Milt Ramirez singled home the go-ahead run in a two-run seventh inning, lifting the Oakland A's to a 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers behind the six-hit pitching of Steve McCatty and Dave Heaverlo.

McCatty, 3-0, whose two other major league starts came in 1977, allowed six hits in 8 2-3 innings but needed last-out help from Heaverlo as the A's snapped the Brewers' five-game winning streak.

EXPOS 8-3, CARDS 3-11

Right-hander Bob Forsch scattered eight hits, and Tony Scott smacked a two-run triple in St. Louis's five-run ninth inning as the Cards defeated the Montreal Expos 11-3 for a split of their doubleheader.

Ellis Valentine drove in six runs with a three-run homer and a bases-loaded double to provide the offense while Scott Sanderson scattered eight hits in Montreal's 8-3 victory in the first game.

The Cards trailed 2-1 but scored a pair of runs in the fifth on a leadoff double by Garry Templeton, a single by Keith Hernandez, who went to third on right fielder Valentine's throwing error, and a sacrifice fly by Ted Simmons.

INDIANS 5-4, YANKS 0-5

Pinch hitter Lou Piniella cracked a tie-breaking home un in the eighth inning and Ray Burris hurled strong relief for his first American League victory as the New York Yankees edged the Cleveland Indian 5-4 for a doubleheader split.

The Indians took the opener 5-0 as Rick Wise checked the Yankees on five hits and Paul Dade drove in three runs with a homer, single and sacrifice fly.

In the first game Paul Dade drove in three runs with a homer, a single and a sacrifice fly and Rick Wise scattered five hits for a 5-0 Cleveland victory. It was the Indians' fourth consecutive triumph and the Yankees' third loss in a row.

TIGERS 5-10, O's 1-3

Steve Kemp slammed a home run in each game Sunday and Alan Trammel drove in five runs in the nightcap as the Detroit Tigers cooled off the Baltimore Orioles by sweeping a doubleheader 5-1 and 10-3.

The Orioles had won 26 of their previous 32 games and the twin defeats sliced their lead over the Boston Red Sox in the American League East to two games.

BRAVES 10, GIANTS 8

Darrel Chaney, who took a .063 batting average to the plate, lined a two-run, pinch-hit single to center in the seventh inning to give the Atlanta Braves a 10-8 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Atlanta took an 8-6 lead in the sixth when Charlie Spikes hit a three-run pinch homer, his fifth hit in six pinch-hitting appearances against the Giants. The Giants tied the score with two runs in the bottom of the inning.

PHILS 6, CUBS 4

Steve Carlton tossed a four-hitter for his third straight complete-game victory, and Pete Rose had his ninth three-hit game of the season to power Philadelphia past the Chicago Cubs 6-4.

Carlton, 6-5, struck out five and walked two as the Phils broke a three-game losing streak.

EXPOS 8, CARDS 3

Ellis Valentine drove in six runs with a three-run homer and a bases-loaded double as the Montreal Expos downed the St. Louis Cardinals 8-3 in the first game of their double-header.

Valentine slammed his fourth homer of the season in the third inning off John Denny, 3-4, to give the Expos a 4-0 lead. An RBI single by Tony Perez produced the first run of the inning.

DODGERS 8, REDS 7

Dusty Baker slugged a two-run homer in the seventh inning to rally the Los Angeles Dodgers to an 8-7 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds took a 7-5 lead with four runs in the seventh, but Bill Russell and Reggie Smith led off the Dodgers' half of the inning with singles. Steve Garvey followed with a sacrifice fly, and Baker hit his fifth homer of the year into the left field stands.

Lerrin LaGrow, the third Los Angeles pitcher, got the victory, his first in the National League, and Bob Welch pitched the final two innings for his fourth save. Pedro Borbon, 2-1, was the loser.

BOSOX 1, BLUE JAYS 0

Rookie Chuck Rainey scattered six hits for his first major league shutout and Stan Papi, playing in his first game of the season, cracked a run-scoring double in the third inning, giving the Boston Red Sox a 1-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Rainey, 3-2, did not allow more than one hit in any inning. He struck out four and walked three.

ASTROS 4, PADRES 2

J.R. Richard picked up his fifth victory, and Houston took advantage of two errors by Padres pitchers and a run-scoring double by Terry Puhl for a 4-2 victory over San Diego.

It was the third complete game of the year for Richard, 5-4, who scattered 10 hits and struck out six to run his major league leading total to 81.

Padres starter Eric Rasmussen, 1-5, held the Astros to four hits and one run through the first six innings, but his seventh-inning error helped fuel a three-run Astros rally.

Jose Cruz and Enos Cabell singled in the seventh. Dennis Walling then hit a ball in front of the plate, and Rasmussen threw wildly trying to get Cruz at home. Cabell went to third and Walling to second on the play.

Padres Manager Roger Craig replaced Rasmussen with Dennis Kinney, who threw the ball into the Padres dugout attempting to pick off Puhl, letting the fourth Astros run across the plate.

Puhl gave Houston a 1-0 lead in the third with an RBI double.

ROYALS 2, TWINS 1

Todd Cruz slammed his first major league homer with a man aboard in the eighth inning and Steve Busby allowed six hits as the Kansas City Royals defeated the Minnesota Twins 2-1.

Cruz, the ninth batter in the Royals' batting order, hit a hanging curve from Jerry Koosman, 7-2, into the left field bleachers. Joe Zdeb opened the inning with a double but was thrown out at third on U.L. Washington's bunt before Cruz connected.

RANGERS 7, MARINERS 3

Buddy Bell drilled three straight singles and knocked in what proved to be the winning run and reliever Jim Kern earned his seventh save, pacing the Texas Rangers to a 7-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Steve Comer, 4-4, stung hard in the first inning, was backed by three double plays and scattered eight hits in 7 1/3 innings.

Kern, who has the lowest earned run average in the American League, came on in the eighth inning after Larry Cox doubled with one out. Loser Paul Mitchell, 0-4, lasted only two-thirds of an inning.

Knight, Stewart Sizzle At Clovis

CLOVIS (Special) — Larry Chapman, from Clovis and Ed Barnes of Midland teamed up for a 36-hole total of 131 to tie the Clovis twosome of Delvin Schutz and Brooks Jennings for the lead in the Clovis Memorial Weekend Partnership.

But the most surprising score of the day came in the first flight where the Clovis team of Andy Knight and Bill Stewart carded a 36-hole 129 for the lowestscore in the tourney.

Scheckter Captures Thrilling Grand Prix Race

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — South African Jody Scheckter won the Monaco Grand Prix Sunday in a pulsating finish with the Willams of Swiss racer Clay Regazzoni only a half-second behind.

It was a race of heroic driving and miraculous escape from injury, ending with only eight of the 20 starters running and the twisting track around the streets of Monte Carlo littered with wrecked and abandoned cars.

Scheckter led from pole position to the finish, and his second straight victory gave him a clear lead in the 1979 World Driver's Championship, with 30 points to 24 for Jacques Laffite of France.

But it was far from easy. "I did my best to go easy on the car early in the race," Scheckter said.

For the first 54 laps of the 76-lap event, he had teammate Gilles Villeneuve of Canada in second spot to help stave off attacking rivals, but Villeneuve abandoned with broken transmission.

Scheckter said, "Then Clay moved up and I saw my lead dropping from eight seconds to seven, six ... I knew I would be safe with a one-second lead, but my tires started getting slippery and at the end, I was driving really hard."

Regazzoni had fought his way up from 15th at the start to within half a second of the Ferrari across the finish line in a brilliant drive by the 39-year-old, the oldest active Grand Prix driver.

"I didn't have second gear for the last 20 laps, but I think I could have won if the race had gone two more laps," he said. "It was one of the hardest, but one of the happiest races of my life."

Carlos Reutemann of Argentina placed his Lotus third while world champion Mario Andretti of the United States dropped out on lap 22 when ninth, with a broken rear suspension.

John Watson, Britain, in a Brabham, was fourth; Patrick Depailler, France, in a Ligier, was fifth; and Jochen Mass, West Germany, in an Arrows, was sixth.

LACROSSE TITLE

TRIPLE WRITTEN LIMITED WARRANTY
1. LIMITED FREE REPLACEMENT WARRANTY
Whites tires will be replaced free within 30 days, excluding repairable punctures when used under normal conditions. This free replacement limited warranty covers tire failures due to BLOW OUTS, CUTS, BRUISES, TREAD WEAR, or separations resulting from usual wear and tear in road use under normal conditions providing the tire is not repairable.
2. LIMITED MILEAGE SERVICE WARRANTY
Whites tires are warranted for the number of miles (or months) indicated against BLOW OUTS, CUTS, BRUISES, TREADWEAR, RUT WEAR, and all other road hazards except running flat or use on misaligned wheels. Any tire failing from any of these causes will be replaced on the basis of service rendered or repaired free of charge if repairable, providing failure resulted from usual wear and tear in road use under normal conditions.
3. LIMITED LIFETIME WARRANTY
We further warrant all White tires for the life of the tire against defects in workmanship and materials during and after the above warranties have expired, without limit as to time or mileage prorated on tread wear.

WHITES HOME & AUTO ADVERTISING POLICY
Our every intention is to have all advertised items in stock and on our shelves. If, for any unforeseen reason, an advertised item is not available, Whites will cheerfully issue a RAIN CHECK on request, for the merchandise at the sale price when it becomes available, or Whites will offer a comparable item at a similar reduction in price. This does not apply to special purchase, clearance and closeout sales where quantities are limited.
If a stock item is not advertised as reduced or as a special purchase, it is at its regular White's low price. A special purchase item, though not at a reduced price, represents an exceptional value.

Bears Sign Cager

WACO (AP) — Kenneth Perkins, an all-state basketball player from Beaumount Charlton-Pollard, has signed a letter-of-intent with Baylor University, officials announced.

The 6-7, 215-pound forward averaged 20 points and 16.5 rebounds a game during the 1978-79 season, said Baylor head coach Jim Haller.

Snyder Wins Coin Toss

MIDLAND (Special)—The Snyder Tigers won the coin flip and will get the home field advantage in the regional playoff baseball series against the Pecos Eagles.

The first game of the series will be played in Pecos at 5 p.m. Tuesday. The action will move to Snyder on Thursday. The second game in the best two-out-of-three series will start at 5 p.m., and if a third game is necessary, it will be played following a 20-minute break.

Sid Everton, who was selected to play in the Texas High School Coaches Association High School All-Star game July 21, will pitch for the Tigers in the opener. Everton (10-2) has been almost untouchable. He will bring to the mound a .089 earned run average.

Pecos is expected to either throw Genaro Rodriquez (4-0) or Danny Garcia (6-3).

Snyder and Pecos qualified for the regional competition by beating Burkburnett and Borger respectively in bidistrict series. The Tigers won their bidistrict action in two games, while it took Pecos three contests to advance in the playoffs.

Also, Snyder qualified for the regionals a week ahead of Pecos, because the Eagles were involved in a district playoff series.

"I think it could be a little bit of a disadvantage to us," said Snyder coach Albert Lewis. "But, it may have helped us in a way. We had some sore arms that got some extra rest, which will be a lot stronger for this series."

Waltrip Earns Tough World 600 Victory

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, capitalizing on a chassis adjustment late in the race, pushed his Chevrolet 5.6-seconds ahead of a duel for second place to win the World 600 stock car race Sunday at Charlotter Motor Spleedway.

Rookie Dale Earnhardt, who turned in a sparkling front-running performance for much of the race, and Richard Petty battled for the second spot in a flatout drag race over the last 100 miles ove the 600-mile maraathon.

Earnhardt, racing only a few miles from his home in nearby Indianapolis, slipped past Petty going into the third turn on the fnal lap but Petty shoot low in the fourth turn and eased ahead of the 28-year-old Earnhrdt to put his Chevrolet across the line in second.

Waltrip had planned a strategy of running the final 100 miles on one tank of gas, a risky proposition at best. But a spinout by Bruce Hill seven laaps after Waltrip made what could have been his final plit stop gave Waltrip the chance to top off his gas tank and ease his worries about possibly running out of fuel on the final laps.

When Waltrip took the lead the final time, it marked the 59th lead change during a race which saw bumper-to-bumper and side-by-side jostling for more than 4 1/2 hours.

BALLET ? — Washington's Elvin Hayes, 11, goes up with Seattle's Lonnie Shelton during first half action of Sunday's NBA championship series game and both men ended up looking like characters in a ballet. Going into the third game Sunday the series was tied at 1-1. Related story on Page 1, Sec. D. (AP Laserphoto)

Games Please Coaches

The city's three AAAA high schools played their spring football games over the weekend, bringing an official end to spring training.

In the Lubbock High game, the Black defeated the White 20-8. The Coronado White beat the Red 19-8, and the Monterey Red beat the White 8-0.

Coach Rusty Talbot of Lubbock High praised White quarterback Larry White for his passing and rolling out in the game. He also mentioned Thomas Romero, Tino Chapa, and David Garza of the Black team for outstanding play. Talbot said the offensive line needs improvement and more depth is needed in the secondary and at linebacker.

New Westerner coach Army Salinas attended the game and met with the players afterwards.

Coach Jack Quarles of Coronado says the Mustangs had a much better spring than last year. "We have more size and depth than we have had before," he said.

Quarles was pleased with the performances of his quarterbacks, Alan Harp of the White team, and Brian Brock of the Red team. He also mentioned John Lord, an offensive end, and offensive linemen Rodney Staggs, Joe Barnes, Devon Lemon for exceptional play. Defensively, the stickouts were Tim McGee, Kirk Rohrer, and Eric Johnson.

"We need to get better on our blocking and improve in the secondary," Quarles said.

In the Monterey game, Jim Cooper hit Clay Powell with a 45-yard touchdown pass with one minute and 11 seconds left in the game to give the Red team the victory. Willie Johnson ran over the two-point conversion to make the final 8-0.

Coach James Odom said he was impressed with the hitting and the attitude of his players.

"The teams were divided just about evenly," he said. "But all the kids got after it."

Pulz Captures Event

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Australian Penny Pulz came up with a 2-under-par 68 Sunday to overtake rookie Lynn Adams and hold off a late charge from veteran Judy Rankin to win the $100,000 LPGA Corning Classic golf tournament.

The victory was the first for Pulz in her six years on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Miss Pulz needed only 21 putts over the 6,203-yard Corning Golf Club course (Tourney Scores, Page 4, Sec. D) Sunday to put together the best round of the four-day, 72-hole tournament and take home the $15,000 first-place money.

Miss Pulz had entered the final round one stroke behind Miss Adams but took the lead to stay when Miss Adams bogeyed the 12th hole.

"It was unbelieveable. I've been putting so bad the last month."

Proposed TV News Show Designed For Classroom

NEW YORK (AP) — "Headline service" is a term used frequently by television's critics — as well as its practitioners — to describe the evening news.

Lack of air time, Richard S. Salant, NBC's vice chairman and a former CBS News president, said the other day, is one big reason TV News is "superficial and shallow."

In fact, the networks are trying to meet that criticism head-on. "Segment Three" on NBC's "Nightly News" and "Special Assignment" on ABC's "World News Tonight" deal regularly and in-depth with current topics.

In addition, public TV's "MacNeil-Lehrer Report" has been giving beyond-the-headline consideration to major news stories on a nightly basis since 1976.

Now, on the drawing board for premiere in January, is "In Our Times," a continuing current events program designed primarily for classroom use.

"In Our Time," the program's developers say, will use clips from the previous evening's newscasts as the takeoff point for current events lessons aimed at junior and senior high school students. Like "MacNeil-Lehrer," programs will be aired by stations in the Public Broadcasting Service network — though during school hours.

"In Our Times" is the brainchild of Walter Cronkite, says the project's coordinator, Bob Klein, and Sig Mickelson, who preceded Salant as president of CBS News, will be managing editor.

Klein says the program will work this way:

"The opening two minutes or so will be a repeat of the lead story from the previous night's news, as reported by a network or an independent station.

"We'll feed the story by satellite from our production center near Los Angeles, then the 'master teacher' chosen for that story will come on live from Chicago or Boston or New York or Atlanta with background and maybe film, tape and graphics to support the lesson.

"The format will be flexible. We might have a teacher in Atlanta, who'll call on an expert in Boston."

Klein says the networks have not been approached about their participation in the program, "but we're not concerned. They've always been cooperative with these kinds of things. ABC, as you know, provides its evening news for captioning on PBS."

The programs will be broadcast live in all 50 states, Klein says, with the project expected to be in full gear by mid-1980. Klein and his associates have secured at least partial funding for the series.

The key to the project is PBS' access to Western Union's Westar satellite. Well-positioned transmission stations will allow "In Our Times" to locate teachers in all parts of the country.

The series is being developed by the National Media Education Center at the University of California at San Diego, and Klein says his immediate objective is a search for the "master teachers."

"The emphasis," says Klein, "will be on selecting exciting communicators, people who can really turn the kids on, who can inspire not only the students to go beyond the news report, but their teachers as wellm

"We'll go to colleges and universities to search out the best 'master teachers.' We're interested in people everyone will recognize, like Carl Sagan, Kenneth Galbraith, Leonard Bernstein, but we'll also look for people who might be well-known locally but have little reputation nationally."

The university will prepare supplementary reading materials and teachers guides for "In Our Times," and will set up an editorial board to select topics for coverage Klein says.

An indepedent production unit will be set up to handle day-to-day operations, with Cronkite as senior adviser, Klein says. The production unit will arrange teachers' appearances as well as provide materials to support each day's lesson.

President Of College Resigns In Uproar Over School Closing

Martha Walker, the board's chairwoman, said Dr. Waggoner submitted her resignation to the board at an April 28 meeting, and that it was effective Saturday.

The announcement was withheld at the request of the board because the college was in the midst of a legal suit stemming from a decision to close the 213-student Presbyterian college for women because of shrinking enrollment.

On Friday, Franklin County Judge John Keller told the board to keep the school open and ordered Dr. Waggoner and trustee Dr. Mary Patterson McPherson, president of Bryn Mawr College, removed from their seats on the board.

Dr. Waggoner was unavailable for comment Saturday.

COMPUTER BOSS

LONDON (AP) — A union leader has warned secretaries not to annoy the office computer or it might decide to give them the sack. Roy Grantham, commenting on a report by his union on the effects of new technology, says some offices are now using computers which measure a typist's performance and issue disciplinary warnings if the work is not up to scratch.

Elton John Thrills Soviets On First Tour

MOSCOW (AP) — The Moscow press hailed Elton John Sunday as a singer of "gay originality" as the black market ticket price to see his sold-out first concert here soared to more than $225.

The 32-year-old singer-composer said he was hoping to repeat the huge success of his Leningrad performances, which sent young Russians dancing into the aisles and forced officials to beef up security.

"We hope that Muscovites will like our performances, too, though we know that music fans are very demanding," John told a correspondent for the youth newspaper, Moskovsky Komsomolets.

Sunday's articles in the Moscow press were the first detailed account that readers here received bout Elton John, who before his Leningrad shows was a veritable unknown in Russia.

"The singer has traveled over almost the whole world and his concerts have had great success among enthusiasts of popular music," said a prominent piece in the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

Woman Makes Good Singing For Others

SEATTLE (AP) — Marni Nixon is a musical second banana who hit the right notes for the stars. The name may not be familiar, but the voices are, from some of the key roles in Oscar winning films.

She was the song on the lips of Deborah Kerr in "The King and I," of Audrey Hepburn in "My Fair Lady," and of Natalie Wood in "West Side Story."

"West Side Story" won the Academy Award for best picture in 1961; "My Fair Lady" was best picture in 1964 and Yul Brynner won the Oscar for best actor in 1956 for his role in "The King and I."

Since the 1960s, Miss Nixon has appeared in a welter of stage shows, operas and recitals and has a stack of recordings to her credit.

But stardom eluded the gamine soprano. Her only personal appearance in a movie was as Sister Sophia in "The Sound of Music," winner of the best picture Oscar in 1965.

"Sure, I would have liked to have a starring role," she said in a recent interview. "Not that I resented what I was doing, but everybody has his dreams of becoming a movie star."

She was honored last fall by the National Association of Composers for "important contributions to musical life in the United States and the Los Angeles area."

In a study hangs a framed gold record, marking more than one million sales for a Walt Disney "Mary Poppins" record she cut. She has won five local Emmys for a Seattle TV show, "Boomerang," in which she co-stars with a handful of puppets. She was nominated for a Grammy for her album of cabaret songs by Schoenberg.

She has a good sense of comedy timing and played the straight sidekick to pianist-entertainers Victor Borge and Liberace on tours.

"A career has satisfactions and dissatisfactions," she said. "When you lay it alongside what you think you could have been or done, you could kill yourself with dissatisfaction. But when you say, 'I've done this and this,' you can be very happy," she said.

She was raised in Southern California by music-loving parents and by age 10, she had appeared in dramatic stock. At 14, she was in her first musical at the Pasadena Playhouse. She was principal soloist in oratorios with the Los Angeles Philharmonic when she was 17.

She will sing 19th Century songs in a show at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. Then she has plans for a possible public television special, another New York concert and an album of great music.

"I'd say I'm insecure, but I think I'm getting a sense of self-esteem, self-regard that I didn't have before," she said.

"My problem is that nobody can cubbyhole me. I guess I'm kind of a unique American representative of culture because I stand on so many grounds. I do a lot of teaching and stage directing. I've had so much experience from clubs, TV shows and acting, plus classical work."

FONDAS ON TODAY — Actress Jane Fonda and her father, Henry Fonda, are shown together during a taping of NBC's Today Show in Los Angelos which will be aired May 30 and 31. In the interview, host Tom Brokaw asked Henry if he could have married and lived happily with a woman like Jane Fonda. Henry replied, "I think so, yes–you mean an activist?–I think so." At that time, Jane quipped, "I don't know about living happily, we could have had a good affair."

Italian Fighter Pilot Dies In Precision Flight Drill

MILDENHALL, England (AP) — A member of the Frecce Trocolori, the Italian Air Force demonstration team, died Sunday when his Fiat jet fighter crashed during an air show at this air base, the U.S. Air Force reported.

U.S. Air Force spokeswoman Susan Cox said the Fiat G-91 was one of eight Frecce Tricolori planes giving a display of tight-formation flying when the plane went down in a field near the village of Eriswell, about three miles from this base shared by the U.S. Air Force and the Royal Air Force.

The spokeswoman said the Frecce Tricolori team was performing at Air Fete '79, an annual RAF air show and open day which this year attracted a crowd of 80,000 to 100,000 in bright sunny weather. She said the single-engine Fiat fighter plane crashed out of view of the crowd.

There was no immediate indication on the cause of the crash, the spokeswoman said. She added that the Red Arrows, the RAF display team, and a team from the Canadian Air Force also took part in the show.

Daily Patron Leaves $80,000 To Crew Down At His Pub

DEMAREST, N.J. (AP) — A daily patron of James Neary's pub in New York City for 12 years has willed $80,000 to be split among the restaurant's two owners, the bartender and the waitress.

The benefactor, George Coleman, died last month of a heart attack in his apartment near Neary's Pub, a coat-and-tie restaurant and bar near Sutton Place, a high-rent neighborhood.

When Neary, a resident of this Bergen County community, opened the business on Saint Patrick's Day 1967, Coleman walked in and ordered a Dewar's and soda.

The retired real estate man, a bachelor, was a daily customer for the next 12 years until his death, Neary said.

"He had a ritual," said Neary, 40. "He ordered three or four Dewar's and soda and then had dinner. He stood at the same corner of the bar when he was drinking for 12 years and he never missed a day until he died."

Coleman had only one living relative, a distant cousin who is a nun in Rome. Most of his estate went to charity.

In addition to Neary, the beneficiaries are Neary's partner, Brian Mulligan, bartender Aiden Cahill and waitress Liz Farrelly.
