The College orchestra, under the direction of Harry F. Taylor, who has charge of the music studio at the college, gave several fine selections.

Dean Golden introduced C. M. Compton, Jr., president of the Board of Regents, who introduced Governor A. W. Hockenbuhl.

Governor Hockenbuhl made a very impressive talk in delivering the Junior College to President MacKay, stating that the college had made a most promising start in spite of the depression and drought.

He called the attention of the people of Portales to their obligation to the college.

The governor had to leave early on account of a previous engagement elsewhere.

President MacKay spoke: "THE CHALLENGE OF THE JUNIOR COLLEGE IN ITS SERVICE TO NEW MEXICO."

"One purpose in a state's educational program is to develop in its citizens a competency for carrying on the social relationships involved in an individual's membership in a community, a family, a state, a nation or a world.

"A second and equally important function is to develop in those citizens, who have particular fitness and aptitude for a certain type of service, those skills which will help them render a peculiar occupational service to the other members of society. In other

Cavemen Defeat Rams

Carlsbad Held Locals To Scoreless Game

Cavemen by a score of 6-0 in a hard fought football game on the high school gridiron last Friday afternoon.

The Cavemen made the only score of the contest early in the game and remained on the defense for the remainder of the afternoon. The Rams were in scoring distance several times and took the ball down to the Cavemen's 10-yard line during the last few minutes of play where they were held for downs. The Cavemen kicked out of danger as the final whistle was blown.

The Rams will play the Tucumcari Rattlers here tomorrow. They have gone through the last week in hard practice and will endeavor to break the losing streak that has followed them this season.

Tucumcari has a strong team this year. They defeated the Dawson eleven by a score of 14-0 recently. They are reported to have a heavy line-up.

Officials for last Friday's game were Reed and Schwartzbach.

ATTEMPT AT ROBBERY IS HALTED BY OFFICER

Universay Motor Co. And Kemp Lumber Co. Robbed.

ISL COAL MAN

Dalton Smith Alleged To Have Robbed Both Places.

On Monday night between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock, burglars entered the offices of the Kemp Lumber Company and the Universal Motor Company, knocking the knobs off of the safes.

The first burglary was the Kemp Lumber Company, and entrance was made by breaking a window of the office and releasing the latch.

The combination was knocked out of the safe and the cash drawer was filled of between $12.00 and $15.00 in one dollar bills and small change.

Entrance to the Universal Motor Company was made by breaking in through a side window.

Between 10:30 and 11:00 o'clock, Night Watchman Walter Franse was making his rounds and noticed some one working on the safe in the Universal Motor Company office.

He stood and watched a few seconds, when the burglar became alarmed and made his escape from the building.

Franse gave chase and caught him in the alley, and identified him as a local man, Dalton Smith.

He had on gloves when captured, evidence that he was guarding against finger prints.

The knob of the Universal safe was knocked off, but the safe was not opened before the burglar became alarmed.

The work indicated that both burglaries were committed by the same party.

Smith is being held in the Roosevelt county jail, and officers are making an investigation to see if the Piggy-Wiggy burglary was not committed by the same party.

The work of Franse in capturing the burglar was exceptionally well done.

FARMERS OF VALLEY TAKE MANY PRIZES

Many prizes were won by Portales Valley Farmers at the Eastern New Mexico Fair at Roswell last week, but Carl Turner being out of town on a fishing trip the News was unable to get the names of all the winners, which will be given upon the return of Mr. Turner.

However, Lewis A. Little won second prize on peaches and crooked neck squash, and H. O. Minick's winnings were scattered all through the list.

Mrs. Doug Wallace has resigned her position with the Gas Company and will join Mr. Wallace in Tucumcari where he has been transferred.

Hold Meeting of Wage Committee

On Friday evening, October 5, a wage committee met in the relief office at Portales with Miss Hoffman. This committee was composed of Ed Homra, H. R. Sadler, S. J. Davis, and S. J. Jaques of the Unemployed Council and Mr. Lewis Little, J. H. Breshears, J. A. Bradley and Carl Mueller of the Chamber of Commerce.

The purpose of the meeting was to decide upon a wage that could be considered fair for work on which the relief office send out laborers from its rolls. Farmers are co-operating more and more each week with the relief office by asking there for harvest hands and thus serving themselves in two ways, as they not only secure their men easily but reduce their burden as taxpayers by helping take off of the rolls families who are thus enabled to become self-supporting.

The relief office is not only able to reduce the number of families that have to be assisted but is also able to test the willingness of men to help themselves. The worker, on his part, is put in touch with employers and is assured cash payments for his labor.

A committee agreed on the following wages as being fair and it happened that these are the prevailing wages in this district: $1.50 a day for any farm labor, with a proportionate amount per hour for the part day; cotton picking, 75c per hundred; hole pulling, 50c per hundred pounds; potatoes, $1.50 a day, or .04c a crate if graded; peanuts by the day.

All prospective employers in the county are urged to make their needs known during the harvest months; also housewives are urged to get in touch with the relief office if they want girls and women for housework as a number of people are available and eager to be self-supporting.

Schwarzenbach Made First Touchdown in First Quarter

The Greyhounds defeated the Freshmen from the A. & M. College by a score of 27-0 in a fast gridiron contest at the High School football field last Saturday afternoon. The Greyhounds scored in the first two minutes of play after a sensational run by Schwarzenbach.

The game was one of many thrills for the fans, featuring many long runs by the fleet Junior College backs and many passes completed by the Aggies.

The first touchdown was made almost immediately after the beginning of the game, when Schwarzenbach received a long punt and ran for 50 yards before he was tackled. On the next play, Russell went through the Aggies line for twenty yards and the first touchdown was scored on the next play with a pass from Best to Schwarzenbach. The Greyhounds again counted near the end of the first half on a safety. The first half ended 8-0 in favor of the Greyhounds.

The Greyhounds again scored in the third quarter when Schwarzenbach carried the ball through the line for the second touchdown (Continued on Page 8)

E. T. Hensley, Jr., Presided Over Meeting at High School.

Portales people were fortunate on last Saturday night in being able to hear some of the most distinguished citizens at the speaking at the High School Auditorium.

While the banquet was in progress at the Woman's Club, Senator Carl Hatch addressed the audience at the high school, and the News reporter failed to get there in time to hear him, but knowing the Senator Hatch as he does, is confident that the audience received a very inspirational talk.

County Chairman E. T. Hensley, Jr., presided at this meeting, introducing the first speaker, Clyde Tingley, mayor of Albuquerque, and now democratic nominee for governor of New Mexico.

Mayor Tingley started his discourse by saying that, if elected governor of New Mexico, that he realized that it was a bigger job than administering the affairs of the city of Albuquerque.

"But that if you elect me governor, I will be your governor and the governor of the entire people of New Mexico."

He expressed a desire and pledged himself to do all in his power to keep the schools open nine months and see that every teacher received their pay the first of each month.

He stated that he would do all in his power to keep the public schools open, the Junior College, the University and other state schools open.

words, a state's obligation to the education of its citizens involves two kinds of educational service: The one, will include in the general education program development in all general, common-denominator, socializing similar habits, skills and attitudes common or found in or needed by all members of society so that these citizens will learn how to work together and live together happily, to cooperate without emotional conflicts for common ends, to get the greatest satisfaction in living and to assume those responsibilities found in social, political or other groups. The other will give a definite training so that each individual can earn his own living and can contribute a professional or non-professional service to the other members of his group.

Common school education must be challenged to educate men and women so that they can live together in a complex civilization happily, effectively and successfully. This involves a use of the institutions now a part of American civilization but it must be clearly understood it implies the ability to adapt by cooperative efforts these same institutions if they fail to meet the needs of the group.

Common school education has changed in its function with changing society. It has changed in its material, its extent and its purpose. There is yet great difference of opinion even in the profession of teaching concerning the scope and function of common school education. Leaders in the past decade point definitely however that common school education now means that period of formal education starting with kindergarten and extending through two years of college work.

Our own institution, labeled the Eastern New Mexico Junior College to describe its hopes, is officially the Eastern New Mexico Normal School.

The first challenge of the junior college, if it serve New Mexico, then is to get its "place in the sun", recognized by the profession, by leaders, and by the citizens of the state. The junior college is fundamentally a part of the general education or common school educational program of the state. It is a continuation of secondary or junior-senior high school education. It is the last stage of the state's responsibility for that program of education which starts at kindergarten and gives to the citizen those understandings, those backgrounds, those interpretations and those abilities needed in social and living together relationships. The two years of college is the last stage of formal schooling provided for all by the state for training in trades, occupations or vocations so that the individual member of society can earn a living.

This basic understanding of the junior college means two changes of importance. The program must change within the college to conform with the total state's educational program and the jurisdiction must change to become a part of the total responsibility of the State Department of Education. The junior college in the future is to be guided, controlled and financed, with modifications in the same way as high schools, elementary schools and junior high schools. I am very conscious of attendant difficulties, problems and disadvantages. The state must first amend its school laws to include this level of education. The organization of the total common school education structure would be inevitable. Such would be aided under the leadership of a state superintendent professionally trained, well paid and selected on the basis of qualifications by the State Board of Education instead of the present system so definitely regretted by the profession, as expressed in the platform of our own New Mexico Educational Association and many other state and professional groups.

The financial support for education up to the college level is now inadequate—so inadequate that an impoverished, ineffective and therefore wasteful program is represented as meeting the state's responsibility for the governmental function of education. The college program would cost no more to the state, it must be remembered if financed as part of the common school education program than if it were financed by special legislative enactment; a financial program involving state aid on a permanent basis with some revenues from the areas served directly would be an improved method of financing the last level of the educational program. Before that can be done more careful social planning must be done so that adequate resources are available and a greater consciousness in the state must be developed toward the principle of state aid to all sections or units of the state who are unable to maintain through local sources of revenue a minimum program of education. Eventually in this financial procedure, tuition for junior college would be eliminated and students would find the same relative availability in a college program as now is found in secondary or high school education.

The college level must be brought closer to the people. There has been much prejudice against this very principle when this institution was begun. At the same time the principle is well exemplified for other sections of the state. Unofficial figures at the time this institution received legislative permission to use its own accumulated money for maintenance indicated that over half the student body in each and every institution of higher learning in the state was from the county in which the institution was located. In our own institution this fall 42 per cent of the enrollment is from Roosevelt county.

If we group Curry and Roosevelt that per cent of our enrollment is local. If we group as our territory Lea, Chavez, Curry, De Baca and Roosevelt counties that per cent of our enrollment is local. These figures instead of being proof of lack of need of another state institution prove that the college has been brought to the section of the state where it has been needed. Enrollments in other schools of the state have not been affected by this program. The second great challenge of the junior college in its service to New Mexico comes in formulating its curriculum so that the largest individual, personal development will come to each and every student. It is well understood that no two people are alike in any total personality make-up, in abilities, attitudes, aptitudes or capacity for growth. The college program of two years must be concerned with the curriculum or course of study within itself which will finish the general social program and the program previously characterized. For many it will rightfully finish the formal program; for others the two years of college must give them the beginning work which later will be needed as a foundation, which in our own institution will include agriculture, carpentry, auto mechanics, electricity, and they as need is indicated.

The curricula then becomes more social and more adaptive. Survey courses will take the place of scholarly minute detail in a field. The student becomes acquainted with himself, with his social and physical world. Health, mental, physical, spiritual, emotional, is fundamental instead of athletics. Attention will be focused on the present instead of the past except as the past helps interpret the present. The library becomes the center of activity. The non-traditional subjects of music, art, woodwork, and appreciation courses take their place in building a reserve for the student in time of stress and in helping him to live with fullness and satisfaction. The college curricula then change in important aspects which serve the many varied interests of the individuals who attend this two-year college.

It can readily be seen that guidance—personal, individual, constructive, is an integral part of such a conception of the program. All activities, all guidance, all decisions will tend to aid in the development of the student for self-realization and completion and for service to his group in non-occupational and occupational activities.

Before proceeding to the third challenge, a word ought to be said about the functions and need of university or higher education. This is sometimes called the university level and includes the last two years of a four-year college program, graduate work, professional and technical studies. Their job is to educate for the highly specialized service needed in society. These include teaching, ministry, law, engineering, social services, governmental service and medicine. Scholarly study begins on this level. There is a definite responsibility of the state to these divisions of its state program and it must not be understood that the emphasis necessary through the first two years of college for general education limits any responsibility for these other divisions. Leadership necessary in a state where the able educated citizenry has completed two years will be even more necessary than before. The first two years of college probably cannot be divorced from these upper divisions until such a time as general control of all higher education is in control of one governing board of commission with reciprocal representation on the government Board for Common Education and for Higher Education. Such a representation would make possible integration between the several units of the total education system.

It may well be asked if a junior college has a legitimate function in the training of rural teachers. The Eastern New Mexico Junior College is dedicated to rural service and has attempted to set up a specific program for the training of rural teachers. This is fundamentally wrong and should be discontinued until legislation and public opinion in the state demand more training for the profession of teaching than nine, twenty one, or forty-five hours of college work beyond the high school. Until the state demands a higher type of professional service prefaced by higher standards of training before entrance into the profession, teaching is classified as a job.

It is in the trade or vocation level; we dignify it—we save our hurt pride by calling it a profession but in reality it is an occupation and the junior college is consistent with its philosophy of giving occupational training if it offers specific rural education training. The great need in New Mexico for better rural service will come with state support and better trained teachers. Until that time and as long as people will be going into the rural school with little or no work beyond the two years, there is an obligation for this school and other schools in the state to serve in the improvement of "the product which goes into the rural areas to teach."

The training given prospective rural teachers must differ from that given other elementary teachers because of the problems created by the rural environment because of lack of supervisory assistance in rural schools and because of community relationship peculiar to the rural situation. Specific training for meeting these problems is now being offered in the state. Until that is affected and until the changes as a result of public opinion and legislation take place, the junior college level must do something very definite about the problem.

The third great challenge is in serving the needs of the state as we find them, know them and interpret them and in giving particularly to the section of the state in which are integrated a type of service peculiar to their needs.

The first of these needs as has been expressed is the training of teachers for rural service.

The second of these needs lies in the dearth of cultural influences in the sparsely settled, now drought-stricken areas. Books are few, music is confined to singing, conventions and other public gatherings. Radios from which music could influence the lives of the people are rare. Centers of art, drama and music are many miles from this part of the state. Pioneer living conditions exist. With these evidences the colleges challenge must over-emphasize those tangible phases of culture in its college activities and in its contacts with the many communities which it hopes to serve. The college must become the cultural center for its students and Eastern New Mexico. It must stand for the finer things of life and contribute more than its share normally of the cultural influences needed for complete living.

The third of these needs is to assist with the recreation needs of the communities. Planned wholesome recreation is a felt need already in several of the larger communities. Community choruses, bands, orchestras, forum, soft ball leagues, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, dramatics and numbers of other forms of worthy recreational activity require leaders. The college must send back to these communities leaders who will know what and how to do. It must assist also with leadership from the college which can direct, advise and serve the communities as they need help.

A fourth need is closely related to the development of the college. It means work for students. It doesn't mean charity. It means some form of industry, some way of giving a boy and girl a chance to go to college. Even the reasonable expense of living here is a hardship on most of the 229 boys and girls who are here. A cooperative farm and cooperative living quarters are suggested means of assisting in the problem but they are entirely inadequate to the needs even in normal times. Federal aid assists now but the projects will soon be completed and the situation at best is an artificial and temporary one. The best thought on this most important need is none too little because of its vital importance.

The fourth great challenge of the junior college is in to these needs because of the peculiarly local nature of a junior college whether we think of community, county or section of the state it can serve outside the school as well as inside. School is only an impetus to learning. Education is no longer considered by the individual as something to be stopped when he leaves school. He is eager for help, inspiration, guidance in his work.

in his recreation, in his activities and in his thinking and understanding of current problems. The college must go out from its four walls. It is challenged to assist with adult learning. Extension classes, parent education, trade education, school surveys, improvement of the job, cultural offerings, library facilities to isolated rural people, recreational centers under the guidance of college leaders, forum, program speakers, church leadership, discussion groups, radio programs are just a few of the many forms of adult education, with which the college must assist when there is a felt need.

These challenges are before us. Pioneering still thrills us. We are faced with a pioneering job of building a two year college program, the foundation for a sound future educational expansion in New Mexico. If we build well, service to New Mexico has been given. If we build well, citizens after two full years of happy complete satisfying living here at the college, will go to their communities and serve and build. If we build well the future of the college is secured for in the thought of Emerson, "If one builds better church organs or mouse traps the world will make a path to his door."

With Dean Floyd D. Golding presiding, the program of the day was closed with a banquet at the Woman's Club Building at which the largest gathering of distinguished men were present, that was ever held here.

SALES TAX IS SWEEPING OVER COUNTRY, SAID

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Sales tax talk—pro and con—is sweeping the country.

A survey showed today that the sales tax wave has rolled over the nation until 23 states now have such levies in one form or another.

Under the domes of many a state capitol this winter, the controversial subject of inaugurating or extending such taxes will arise again. For states, like their Uncle Sam, are wrestling with deficits.

The movement toward sales and other newer forms of taxation has gained momentum as real estate taxes in many cases have reached a point of diminishing returns. Real property owners have been crying for relief.

Gasoline taxes, seized upon since the war as a lucrative source of revenue, also have been boosted in some states to the point where it is difficult to raise them higher.

Income levies, whose use by states has been growing, have risen in many instances until, combined with the federal tax they have been a stable burden.

States that have sales taxes include Arizona and New Mexico. In some cases such taxes are applied to all retail sales, in others to selected products and services. In still others the tax is collected only for manufacturers. The costs of collection range from comparatively low to high figures. In West Virginia the average cost over six years was 1.31 per cent, whereas recent figures from Mississippi show a cost of 1.67 per cent. The variations are described as due, to some extent, to differences in the laws.

Friends of the sales tax argue that the yield is high and the payment fairly painless.

Opponents declare that if the tax is passed on to the consumer it bears most heavily on those least able to pay.

Brunk's Show to Open on Monday; to Stay One Week

Actors, vaudeville artists, musicians, stage men, and tent men of the Fred G. Brunk's Comedians will move into Portales Sunday.

The big tent theater of the comedians will go up Monday and the opening play of the week, "Little Orphan Annie" will be given.

According to Charles Brunk, advance man of the show, the comedians have been playing to 50 per cent bigger houses this year than in the summer season of 1933.

"To us that would indicate that people are feeling easier about conditions and are putting more money into circulation," Mr. Brunk said today.

"On the other hand, we are featuring new and popular plays and have a better vaudeville line than ever before. This, too, probably results in a pick-up in the crowds."

Brunk's Comedians need no introduction to Portales. They have been here several times. They have always made an effort to feature only first class plays, and their plays and vaudeville are always clean and free from suggestive scenes and lines.

Miss Tennie Alexander and Audrey Parlin, both of Richland, were united in marriage Saturday morning at the Christian parsonage. They were accompanied by Miss Geneva Morgan and L. J. Parlin.

DIRE NEED FOR ECONOMIC RECOVERY - ZIMMERMAN

Must Have Faith in Intellectual, Moral and Spiritual Life

Declaring that while economic recovery is important for the United States and the World, President James F. Zimmerman of the University of New Mexico, in an address Saturday morning at the inauguration program of the Eastern New Mexico Junior College at Portales, said that humanity in general, and the people of this country in particular, need desperately to recover their faith in intellectual, moral and spiritual life.

"Freedom of thought," said President Zimmerman, "is one of the great moral and spiritual realities which underlie all human relations. It is far more important to preserve freedom of thought than to achieve economic recovery. I hope we shall not see in this nation the passing of individualism as it relates to man's relative powers."

"Dictators have destroyed the faith of thousands in democratic forms of government, but bear in mind that they first destroyed freedom of thought. At whatever sacrifice, we must in America retain freedom of thought. The freedom of young men and young women to think is their most precious heritage."

President Zimmerman congratulated Donald MacKay on his inauguration as president of the Portales Junior College and said he trusted the institution would make a significant contribution to the state and nation by seeking to promote the larger and more vital elements in the future program of education and government.

President Zimmerman said that education must be integrated more closely with functions of government and that both education and government must be purged of incompetent and unethical leadership.

"The government," said Dr. Zimmerman, "must look to education for a better trained personnel for public service, which must become a skilled profession. The complicated processes of industry, commerce, trade, banking and public works, in which fields government is entering on an ever enlarging scale, will require trained personnel of the highest competence. If we expect to maintain confidence in government, it can be done only by means of an adequately trained personnel that will give competent and disinterested public service of the highest order. Educational institutions will have to train people for these government duties and will also have to assist in building up a public sentiment favorable to qualified workers in all public positions."

"It will be demanded of education, and more particularly of higher education, that it give greater attention to its curricula to a host of subjects about which young and old must obtain greater information. Such subjects as currency, debts, budgets, foreign exchange, banking and tariffs must be taught not only to a few majors in economics and business administration, but must be made available to the general run of students in all departments."

"The obligation of education to train competent workers for the public service must be a paramount consideration in our efforts to modify our curricula to meet the needs of the future. Likewise, the obligations of the government to use competent workers in place of untrained partisan appointees must be more clearly recognized. There are thousands of professors in our colleges and universities who are absorbed in some scientific specialty that they have no time to give to a civic leadership as desperately needed. This condition of affairs must be changed radically in the near future."

"The responsibilities of education in the future will not be confined to youth, but will extend to millions of adults who in the future will not be bound down by long hours of labor. The vast increase of leisure time for adults must be filled with social, cultural and civic programs, which education alone can provide."

Funds Available To Purchase Feed

Further efforts to assist farmers in drought-stricken areas to procure livestock feed are being made by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration through a plan, tentatively arranged with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to lend $50,000,000 to the Federal Livestock Feed Agency to purchase and conserve feed for areas where it will be most needed.

The Adjustment Administration has already arranged to underwrite the harvest of a million tons of corn fodder, corn stover, and soybean hay which will be available for purchase by farmers who lack sufficient feed to carry their livestock through the winter. Farmers who have surpluses of these feeds will harvest them under individual contract with the Government.

The Federal Livestock Feed Agency will establish a feed information clearing house which will gather information on the location of feed supplies in areas where there is a surplus and information on needs in areas where there is a deficit of feeds. The clearing house, through its lists of supply sources and lists of distributing agencies, will be able to supply information on location, price, quality and shipping costs.

According to the preliminary outlines of the feed-purchase plan, the feeds purchased will be made available through regular commercial channels to livestock producers.

DEMOCRATIC HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT THROWS AWAY $1,250,000 FEDERAL FUNDS AVAILABLE TO NEW MEXICO

The people of New Mexico were told when the Democratic state administration sought to saddle further debt upon them and mortgage their income through the issuance of $2,000,000 additional highway debentures, that the money was to be derived from these debentures was to be utilized only for the purpose of construction of highways.

What has happened in regard to that promise?

It has been disregarded and broken. Despite a referendum signed by nearly 50,000 citizens the Democratic state administration pursued a course of political dishonesty, sought justification for its action in an indirect court ruling, and issued the entire $2,000,000 in debentures.

The records show that a goodly portion of the proceeds from the sale of those debentures was utilized by the State Highway Commission to pay off current indebtedness.

Despite continuous protests from the citizens of the state the Democratic state administration recently issued the last block of $625,000 of these debentures, and by that action lost for the people of the state of New Mexico the sum of $1,250,000 in Federal Aid road funds.

Had that debenture money been retained or the debentures left unsold until next year the federal government would have matched that money two dollars for one. Then the highways of New Mexico would have had the sum of $1,875,000 for new construction projects instead of the meager sum of $625,000 made available by the poor business acumen of the present state Democratic administration.

Does anyone familiar with the present terrible conditions of many state roads believe the state is justified in throwing away over a million dollars of available road funds at this time?

The average voter has a very good idea of just why the Democratic administration was in so great a hurry to get its hands on this $625,000 just before election. Some state administrations have been so foolish as to believe a big road building program just prior to election is a vote-getting stunt.

But it will be most intriguing to hear the Democrats explain their action which has cost the state a cool $1,250,000 in Federal highway funds.

NEW MEXICO WENT FORMAL IN 1876

CIMARRON, N. M., July 15, (1876)—The printer's devil of the Cimarron News and Press wore the editor's best suit to the Centennial ball as a fashion reporter. He was rigged up in broadcloth pants, considerably worn; boot heels run over; right pant-leg in boot; plug hat style of 1865; ruffled shirt, front stained with tobacco juice. Bowie knife in boot-leg, belt of cartridges and a .45 calibre Colts revolver. His belt was adorned with a string of scalps. There was a bottle of 'sudden death' in his hip pocket. The devil danced the war dance like an Apache. He whooped like a Comanche and said he was a wolf and wanted to howl. The boys laid him away on a bench in the back yard by 10 o'clock for fear he might hurt someone.

PORTALES GOES FORMAL

That Portales is going formal there is no doubt. At the banquet last Saturday night the College faculty were all bloomed out in formal dress. The News editor tried to go formal, and Tux his every day suit to the cleaner and requested that a Tux be taken out of the waste line to make room for the banquet. C. M. Compton was asked if he was going to wear a Tux, and his reply was, "Tux, H—". Now that Portales is going formal, it will be an interesting sight to see some of the old time 'cow punchers' in Tux. Doubtless they will forget and wear their cowboy boots with one trouser leg tucked into the top. Would not that be Tux? Soup and Fish dress is fine for the young bloods, but where do the old codgers of the past generation come in? It would be an interesting sight to see Ike Hughes, C. V. Harris, Dr. Hensley, Dr. Wollard, Ed J. Neer and the News editor in Tux. If their wives try to dress them up formal, they will doubtless tux across the prairie. But formal will doubtless prove of advantage to Portales, and the younger generation will learn what the old codgers will shy at. The ladies take more to formal than the men folks. They like to bloom out like a spring bouquet. The editor would have been able to wear a Tux to the banquet but due to falling to recognize Mrs. C. M. Compton, who was going to offer to make him one, he mistook her for one of the young lady students of the college. Result, no Tux.

Jane Anne had her first birthday party last Friday afternoon, and all the little Jimmies and little Bobbies were present. It was a very formal affair, and all the little misses and little misters were dressed suitable for the occasion in sun suits and party dresses.

Little Miss MacKay was reported to be the perfect little lady of the day. A birthday cake with one candle was the feature of the refreshments and Jimmie Turner got a piece of the cake, which his mother was afraid for him to eat. So—Gabbing Jimmie by the heels, his mother proceeded to shake the cake out of him. Jane Anne demonstrated how to drink from the yard hydrant to the detriment of her party dress. All the youngsters had a good time and the play was continuous, except for time off to change pants. It was evident that there was no indication of a drought.

The Juniors in charge of Mrs. Clay Jones will have the program for next Sunday night. It promises to be a very interesting one. We hope to have a large crowd present. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Adams were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard and family Sunday. Mrs. D. Maness and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Traugher and family Sunday. We hope there will be a large crowd present to cheer the Floyd boys to victory. The sophomore class of Floyd entertained with a party at H-Bar ranch last Friday evening. Everyone had a splendid time. (Continued from Page 1) of the game. The third score was made in the third quarter when McCasland blocked an Aggie punt and J. Smith, left end, captured the ball behind the goal line.

The fourth and last touchdown was made in the fourth quarter when Hilliard, halfback, intercepted a pass and carried it for fifty yards before he was downed, the next play the Greyhounds completing a pass, Garner to J. Smith who carried the ball to the three yard line. Russell carried it over the goal line on the next play. The game ended 27-0.

The Greyhounds not only displayed a fast effective offense, but a stonewall defense against everything except passes. The Freshmen were in scoring distance several times during the game, and one time during the last quarter the Greyhounds held the Freshmen four downs after being penalized within one yard of the goal line. McCasland, right end, Jordan, left guard, and Conklin, center, received praise for their playing in the line. Schwartzbach and Russell were stars in the backfield. The entire team played an exceptional brand of football and are, with their coaches Reed and Green, to be commended upon the game.

Substitutions: Growdon, Campbell, Casey, Knox, Crow, Coughran, Ogle, D. H. Smith, Sheltiesworth, Matthews, Garner, Robinson and Ruyle.

Officials: Steiner, Brown and Hinger.

The Greyhounds reserve squad were defeated by the Clovis high school Wildcats by a score of 60-0 in a game on the Clovis football field last Friday afternoon.

The Wildcats displayed a fast offense and a strong defense through which the reserves could not make yardage, and the Wildcats were able to score at random.

Democrats . . .

At the close of his speech, he was presented with a large bouquet of beautiful flowers from his young friend, J. G. Handcock.

Mayor Tingley has been a close friend to J. G. for many years and never fails to pay him a visit when he comes to Portales if it is at all possible.

Floyd T. Kennedy introduced Congressman Dennis Chavez, democratic nominee for the United States Senate for the long term.

Congressman Chavez opened with the statement that he was going to be elected on November 6th, because he had kept faith with the greatest president the nation has ever had, and stated, "I am going to be elected because I have kept faith with you."

"As long as the American people have faith in Franklin D. Roosevelt the Stars and Stripes will fly. He is going to succeed in his great program.

"If the opposition ticket in the State of New Mexico are sincere in supporting the national administration, why are they running on the Republican ticket?"

Farmers Urged to Make Debt Study

New Mexico farmers are urged to make careful study of all proposed debt settlements if they contemplate protection under the Frasier-Lemke moratorium act.

The Frasier-Lemke amendment says: "The provision of this act shall apply only to debts existing at the time this act becomes effective."

The act was signed by President Roosevelt on June 23, 1934. Therefore, all debts coming under the jurisdiction of the Frasier-Lemke amendment must have been in existence on or before that date.

It is reported that some creditors, posing as friends of farmer-debtors, are urging them to enter into settlement, executing new notes and new mortgages. Obviously, if the new debt was entered into after June 23, 1934, the farmer could not come under the provisions of the Frasier-Lemke amendment. Once the creditor has recorded the new deed of trust and taken the farmer's new note, the old debt is extinguished and the farmer has no recourse under the Frasier-Lemke amendment.

We are amazed at the number of foreclosures that are published in the papers in Eastern New Mexico. Several farmers have already been forced, through the threat of legal action, to deed away their homes and thereby lose their savings of a life time. You have relief under the Frasier-Lemke amendment. This measure was passed with the support of the Farmers Holiday Association and the Farmers Union, and is the only relief given to those who are in immediate danger of losing their homes, by the last Congress.

greas, made a short talk, stating that this is the most important campaign this country ever considered. It is your vote that gives your endorsement of President Roosevelt's policy.

Other speakers of the evening were Robert Valden, H. R. Rogers, and Vesley, state land commissioner.

Resigns as C of C. Secretary Here

At the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Tuesday the resignation of Miss Lorella McCarty as secretary was announced.

Miss McCarty resigned after three years' service to accept a position with the Gas Company at Portales.

A vote of thanks was extended to her for her three years of faithful service.

The headquarters was also moved from the law office of Turner Hensley to the Bert Rawlins place of business, and Mr. Rawlins was chosen as secretary-manager.

Mr. Hensley has been serving as manager for over a year, and has left behind him a record of excellent service. He found that it was no longer practical for him to act in this capacity on account of his private business.

Floyd D. Golden reported on the Fair trip to Roswell and stated that on Wednesday of last week that the Junior College sent a well decorated float to take part in the parade, and that much favorable comment was occasioned by this float.

The report from Portales Day on last Thursday was a creditable one, and the band gave several concerts in various business sections.

At 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon Dean Golden and the band gave a radio broadcast.

The Portales exhibit was pronounced as one of the best at the Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Butts, Misses Velma Hoffman, Gusava Easley, Edna Munroe, Fannie Sue Leatherwood, Mrs. E. T. Moody, Mrs. Leatherwood, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Smith and Loren Allen visited the fair at Roswell Saturday. They went on to Carlsbad and visited the Caverns returning to their homes Sunday.
