U. S. carriers to Libyan coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. aircraft carriers steamed southward today toward Libya with their jet fighters prepared to demonstrate American resolve to operate in the area.

The Navy confirmed Thursday it had notified civilian air-traffic control officials in the Libyan capital of Tripoli that "carrier flight operations" would be conducted periodically off the coast in "international air space" through Jan. 31.

White House officials denied the United States was trying to provoke a military confrontation with Libya and its leader, Col. Moammar Khadafy, whom President Reagan has accused of supporting Palestinian terrorist groups.

Pentagon sources agreed the moves in no way presaged plans for a retaliatory strike against Libya for last month's terrorist attacks in Rome and Vienna.

But another source within the Pentagon, when asked about the U.S. plans, said: "You could look at it as thumbing our nose at Khadafy and telling him that we consider this international airspace and if he wants to make something of it, come on out and try."

The exercise, added another source, is intended to demonstrate the United States will not be intimidated by an increased Soviet naval presence in the region, nor by Khadafy's decision to place his own military forces on alert and to pledge continuing support for Palestinian terrorists.

White to run

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Mark White officially announced today that he is a candidate for re-election.

"Three years ago we set out to restore faith that government could make a difference for the betterment of all people. The administration we succeeded was flawed," the governor said.

"We have kept the vision, courage and commitment we began with but we still have more to do. And so I will seek another term as governor firm in my belief that this election offers one of the clearest choicest in many years. That choice is simply this: Whether Texas will continue to challenge the future and lead the way for economic growth and individual opportunity or whether this state will return to the past and be cast adrift again."

A. — As with all criminal case fines, it is included as part of the fines and fees the county prosecuting the case receives during the year.

In Brief

Crew robbed

DALLAS (AP) — A masked gunman robbed seven construction workers of about $700 in cash and credit cards as the men were working to install water pipes in southwest Dallas, police say.

"I looked up and there was this dude pointing a pistol at me," said Ronnie Kirby, one of seven Dallas Water Utilities workers who were robbed about noon Thursday.

"At first I thought it was a joke," Kirby said. "One guy trying to hold up seven others, that something you only see in the movies."

"But then he started cussing and waving his gun, and I knew it wasn't no movie," Kirby added. "It was the real thing."

Police said the gunman, who wore panty hose over his head, forced the men to give him their wallets.

Test flack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army intentionally avoided doing any serious damage to the Bradley fighting vehicle in the latest round of tests of the controversial weapon, according to a Pentagon report.

Instead, the service conducted the tests in such a way that damage to the 25-ton vehicle would be minimized, said the report prepared by Air Force Col. James G. Burton.

Cogdell oaths accepted

Three board members were sworn in and 1986 officers were elected during the regular January meeting of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital board Thursday.

County Judge Preston Wilson administered the oath of office to Rex Robinson, Dan Cotton and Leon Autry. County commissioners reappointed the men to another two-year term Jan. 13.

Following the swearing in, members re-elected Autry to another term as board chairman. Robinson was again named vice chairman with Cotton re-elected secretary-treasurer.

During the administrator's report, Cy Miller noted that the accounting firm of Anderson and West, P.C. — which completed the hospital's outside audit this summer — made adjustments in the hospital's accounting records.

Those adjustments transferred 1986 tax funds from the institution's depreciation fund into a deferred account. Some $462,560 was placed in the hospital's money market account with some $521,039 transferred to the county's investment fund.

In other action, the board heard an update from public relations staffer Kathy Minemier. She reported programs slated for the next few months include the opening of the hospital's birthing program on Feb. 14.

In addition, hospital personnel plan to begin a health assessment program March 1. A symposium on Medicare is set for March 6 in the Senior Citizens Center, and a health and safety fair is slated for May 10 in the coliseum.

Those attending the session included Jack Denman, John Jarrell, Ralph Price, Robinson, Autry, Cotton, Wilson, Miller and Dr. James Howell, medical representative.

County commissioners Ted Billingsley, Duaine Davis and C.D. Gray Jr. were also present.

HOW TO HOLD — Scurry County 4-H Club member Niki Claborn works with her Finewool lamb Thursday afternoon as she practices for the evening's county lamb show at the Scurry County Coliseum ag annex. By evening's end, the animals entered by Rodney Foster of the Hermleigh FFA and Cotton Merritt of the county 4-H would win the grand champion and reserve champion honors respectively. Required choice for equal access said years away

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

As Snyder gains more independent companies offering reduced rate long distance service, a term beginning to be heard is "equal access."

Just "what" it means and "when" local customers might expect it were addressed this week by officials with the company which owns and maintains the telephone lines serving Snyder and Scurry County — Southwestern Bell Telephone.

Regarding "when" equal access might be available, the immediate answer is likely not until 1990 or beyond.

As to "what" equal access entails, the explanation requires a brief history.

Snyder is currently served by at least four companies offering a reduced long distance rate for their customers.

To use these companies, their customers are required to dial a seven-digit number to reach an outside line, then to dial the seven-digit number they are calling (10 digits if in a different area code).

A customer is then often required to add to this a personal identification code — totaling as many as 24 digits pressed on a touchtone dial to place a long distance telephone call.

In compensation for the extra dialing, these customers are offered a discounted rate, estimated for most residential customers at some 20 percent.

Equal access would mean the local telephone customer could reach the outside line for their reduced rate company by simply dialing "1" then the desired number.

Called "1-plus" dialing, this method is currently available through only one long distance company, AT&T — which must now compete in the marketplace due to its divestiture two years ago.

Regarding "when," equal access might be implemented, Jim West, community relations director for Southwestern Bell, said that due to the type of phone equipment serving Snyder, "not for several years."

Southwestern now faces an order as part of the divestiture of AT&T that they must offer equal access to other competing phone companies by October of 1986.

Because it is not economically feasible, however, waivers are

Sheep spotlighted at Thursday show

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

Show judge Barrie Ward of Kerrville showed a strong preference for the Mediumwool animals in Thursday's Scurry County Junior Livestock Show lamb judging, choosing the type for both grand and reserve champions of the show.

Ward tagged a heavyweight animal entered by Rodney Foster of Hermleigh as grand champion for the year.

He followed that selection by picking a Mediumwool animal entered by Cotton Merritt in the medium lightweight class for reserve champion.

Merritt shows for the Scurry County 4-H Club and that group finished the evening claiming two of the top three awards as his fellow 4-H member Shondra Robinson won the 1986 showmanship trophy for her work in the arena.

In all, however, Thursday was a big night for the Hermleigh sheep exhibitors as they claimed five of the six breed championships in addition to the grand championship.

Foster took home the reserve championship of the Finewool division and the Crossbred division in addition to the breed championship for Mediumwool and the grand championship of the show.

Fellow Hermleigh FFA member Ben Smith won the breed champion's titles in both the Finewool and Crossbred categories.

Merritt — whose Mediumwool lamb won the reserve breed title in that division and the reserve championship of the show — was the only non-Hermleigh exhibitor to claim a top award for the night.

The judging competition for the 1986 edition of the Scurry County Junior Livestock Show will end Friday in the coliseum ag annex with steer and heifer judging to begin at 6:30 p.m.

More than 30 animals have been entered for that show.

The annual show sale will be in the annex beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday with the top placing animals in the swine, lamb and cattle divisions offered to the highest bidder.

Complete results of the 1986 lamb show were as follows:

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's hard to be nostalgic when you can't remember anything."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Jimmy Carr, in the Vernon Daily Record, picked up on an item by Paul Harvey that reflects a sign of the times.

The incident occurred over in Lamesa. A high school teacher received the latest in student excuses for not turning in homework.

When it came time to hand in the assignment, the student seriously told the teacher, "I left my homework in my other car."

It has long been a standing joke that students drive better vehicles than their teachers. Now it's quantity as well as quality.

George Dolan, in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, told about a fellow named Tiny whose job it was each December to separate Exchange Club members from their savings.

"He acquired the nickname, Tiny, the way a corpulent fellow winds up being called Skinny. But, physically intimidating though he can be, he collected larger contributions with another tactic. What's a nice word for blackmail?

"At one of those Christmas season luncheons, a victim of his said Tiny made an announcement along these lines:

"One of you is an unfaithful husband and I know who it is. You had better put $2,000 in the hat when it's passed.

"He collected $16,000 and a note which read, 'I don't have the money on me, but I'll get it to you by Monday.'"

Walter Buckel, in the Lamesa Press-Reporter, had some holiday leftovers:

"A weeping wife said to her husband, 'For weeks I've been telling you not to buy me anything for my birthday—and still you forgot to get me something.'"

"Education is the art of teaching a child how to talk—and when to keep quiet."

"Don't put off 'til tomorrow what you can do today, because if you enjoy it today, you can enjoy it again tomorrow."

Probation term lost in assault

A Snyder man now faces 10 years in the Texas Department of Corrections following the revocation Thursday of a previously granted term of probation in 132nd District Court.

David Mata Herrera — originally placed on probation in August of 1985 after pleading guilty to possession of LSD — had that probation revoked in light of an assault last December involving a Snyder police officer.

Herrera was indicted for one count of aggravated assault by the January Scurry County

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Now I've seen everything. "Still Shaking," the retired parents of a 35-year-old "lovely, unmarried, highly respected, professional woman," were called by their daughter to inform them that she is pregnant and thrilled. It seems that she has always wanted a child, and since her biological clock was running out and she had no man in her life, she had herself artificially inseminated!

The parents were stunned and asked you what they should tell people. Your advice, "Tell them the truth," was correct. But what does the unmarried daughter tell her child when confronted with the question: "Who is my father?"

Couples and/or singles who are having children by artificial insemination, surrogate parenting and the like give little consideration to the psychological effect of these procedures on the offspring so produced.

"Yes, dear, you were conceived when I was impregnated with a turkey baster with the sperm of some unknown guy whom I never met."

Reassuring, isn't it?

JOSEPH H. DAVIS, M.D.,
PEDIATRICIAN,
MENLO PARK, CALIF.

DEAR DR. DAVIS: Reassuring or not, children conceived by sperm bank fathers, surrogate mothers and any way other than the conventional method should be told the truth about how they came into the world. Embarrassing and complicated as it may seem to adults concerned only with morals, ethics and what-will-the-neighbors-think, the simple truth told with patience, love and caring will be sufficient for the moment, and eventually understood and accepted.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, am shaking after reading that letter about the single woman having artificial insemination because she wanted a baby and didn't have a man in her life.

You seemed to think it was perfectly all right. Why didn't you speak out against that stupid, selfish woman's bringing a child into a one-parent home? That woman has no more right to have a baby than an unmarried 14-year-old!

Every child deserves a mother and a father. Thanks to all these hot-pants teen-agers, we already have enough one-parent families without your approving artificial insemination for unmarried women whose biological clocks are running out.

If a single woman wants something to love and thinks motherhood would be fun, tell her to get a pet!

DISGUSTED IN HORNELL, N.Y.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Two-parent homes are, of course, ideal when both parents are ideal parents, but many well-adjusted children have been reared in one-parent homes. So, who am I to say that an unmarried woman (or an unmarried man, for that matter) has no right to be a parent? And by the way, who are you to make that judgment?

DEAR ABBY: I've been thinking about the letter signed "Still Shaking"—the parents of a 35-year-old unmarried, professional woman who wanted a baby, so she had herself artificially inseminated.

If I were the parents, I wouldn't buy that story unless I saw the doctor's records or had some kind of proof that artificial insemination actually took place.

Voyager 2 zeroes in on 7th planet

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 2 raced toward "the crescendo of discovery" today as its 8½-year journey to the outer reaches of the solar system carried it ever closer to the stormy cloud tops of Uranus, the farthest planet ever visited by a spacecraft.

Voyager's sweep about 50,600 miles from the seventh planet, with the closest approach scheduled at nine seconds before 9:59 a.m. today, was being hailed as the latest milestone since the probe was launched Aug. 20, 1977.

It explored Jupiter in 1979 and Saturn in 1981. If all goes according to plans, its next planetary encounter will be with Neptune in 1989.

"We've been waiting 4½ years for this," said Ed Stone, Voyager project scientist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which runs America's unmanned space exploration program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "We're quite excited. It's the crescendo of discovery."

The itinerary for Voyager's grand tour of the solar system's third-largest planet included:

—More than 80 snapshots, including a picture of moon 1985U1, the first of nine tiny moons discovered by Voyager.

—A 20,000-mile flyby of Miranda, the smallest and innermost of Uranus' five dark, larger moons, all discovered through Earth telescopes.

—More distant encounters with the other four large moons — Ariel, Umbriel, Titania and Oberon.

—A passage through the flat plane in which nine, skinny, charcoal-black rings orbit the planet.

—Studies of the structure of the charcoal-black rings as they come between Voyager and light from a distant star.

Prison inmate stabbed

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Texas prison inmate was recovering today from stab wounds suffered as he was being escorted by guards back to his cell, authorities said.

Jose R. Medina, 35, was stabbed in the abdomen Thursday afternoon by another inmate in the administrative segregation area at the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis 1 Unit, said prison spokesman Charles Brown.

The 38-year-old suspect reached through a food slot and stabbed Medina with a file sharpened to a 4½-inch point, Brown said.

Medina, serving 80 years for four counts of burglary of habitation in Dallas County, was treated at the unit infirmary and later flown by helicopter to the TDC hospital in Galveston. He was in stable condition, Brown said.

The suspect, serving 30 years for attempted burglary, attempted murder and aggravated perjury in Ector and Walker counties, surrendered without incident, the spokesman said.

Walker County sheriff's officials are investigating the incident, Brown said.

Thursday's stabbing is the fifth this year. Last year, there were 216 non-fatal stabbing incidents and 27 deaths in the Texas prison system, the nation's second largest.

Founders Day celebration for Musical Coterie Club

Snyder Musical Coterie met at Martha Ann Woman's Club on Jan. 11 to celebrate Founders Day. President Lynn Bethel presided over the meeting.

Chamber of Commerce Manager Mort Ewing began the program discussing the meaning and necessity of founders. He shared a quote from Harry S. Truman that stated "Beauty is uplifting."

Those attending joined in singing the hymn of the month, "The Answer Is In Jesus." June Brock directed and Donna Smith accompanied. The National Federation of Music Clubs prayer was led by Vera Holsinger.

A brief history of the National Federation of Music Clubs and the Texas Federation of Music Clubs was shared by Virginia Clark.

Piano selections, ragtime, was played by Ophelia Blackard and Helen Clark. Mrs. Clark's brother, Brud Boren, shared the background of one piece played by Mrs. Clark. This is a piece she has composed with the collaboration of J.D. Boren and a local band director in the 1920's.

Mrs. Virginia Clark then gave a short history of the Snyder Musical Coterie.

Emily Hataway entertained those present on the guitar singing "Red Wing." June Brock directed the group in singing the Federated Music Clubs musical arrangement of "Collect."

Special guests were past presidents, past members, Vivace Junior Music Club members, and family and friends.

Also included in special guest are Mrs. Margaret Birdwell, grandmother of Carrie West, a member of the junior music club. West is the great-granddaughter of former Coterie member, Mrs. R.L. Gray.

Refreshments were served from a table centered with a fresh flower arrangement and a decorated cake celebrating Founders Day.

Proper trump management can call for unusual plays, particularly when trumps are breaking badly. When South opened the bidding and then jumped in his second suit, North rightly felt that his queens in his partner's suits, plus his A-K of spades, were worth a strong slam invitation. He jumped to five hearts, which simply said, "Partner, if you can control diamonds, we have a slam." Having the singleton diamond ace, South was happy to accept.

Of course, the queen of diamonds was led. Declarer won the ace and played the heart ace. With the bad trump split, declarer had work to do. He immediately played to the club queen and led dummy's remaining club. West won and continued diamonds. South ruffed and began leading out high clubs. If West ruffed, declarer could overruff with the heart queen in dummy and then draw the remaining trumps. However, instead of ruffing, West discarded all three of his spades on South's club run. Eventually, when declarer was forced to play a spade, West ruffed in with the setting trick.

Was there a solution? As a matter of fact, yes. After winning the queen of clubs, declarer should cash dummy's ace of spades. Now play can proceed as before. The only difference is that at the finish, declarer will be able to throw all of dummy's spades on the good clubs if West fails to ruff in. Then his last spade can be trumped with the heart queen in dummy. Declarer could even have cashed both high spades before continuing with clubs, but that would be risking a ruff if West started with only one spade.

Stylish luggage is big investment

Good luggage is a substantial investment. This would seem to rule out luggage design flip-flopping every year, responding to the changeable aspects of fashion. But occasionally a trend comes along that is classic enough to bring a new look to travel pieces.

One such trend is the tapestry look widely seen in 18th century styled jackets all fall. Ever since 19th century carpetbag days, tapestry has been used for luggage, so why not now?

At Venutra, a Renaissance floral tapestry on a beige background is used for a handsome new set of varied pieces. These you should never get confused with others when the luggage comes around the airport carrousel.

That's the practical value of distinctive luggage.

The Pierre Cardin Tweed luggage set has a clean-lined designer look, but it comes in black or tweed — and it would be hard to pick out quickly from all the other dark or tweedy bags. Ventura's Cellini Tapestry, with its bold trim in harness-belting leather, can't be missed.

There's a new construction idea in their hang-pack piece. Instead of a drop-down front, the front opens like a door, entirely to one side, making it easier to pack clothers so they won't wrinkle.

Aching feet need an exam

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR GOTT — My husband has burning and aching on the bottom of his feet and above this knees. The doctor says it's arthritis. Do you have any other ideas?"

DEAR READER — I think your husband should be evaluated for circulation problems. Although arthritis can affect the feet, the pain is usually in the joints, not on the soles. A good internist can probably separate out the vascular pain from the arthritic discomfort. I am also concerned that the type of burning pain your husband is experiencing may represent early nerve damage of the type seen in diabetics. Therefore, in addition to a complete examination, blood tests are probably appropriate, too.

DEAR DR GOTT — Could chewing gum cause my mouth to dry out?

DEAR READER — Your dry mouth is probably due to the flavoring in chewing gum. Stop using the gum for while and see if your mouth improves.

DEAR DR GOTT — Can a woman strengthen her vaginal muscles by doing exercises?

DEAR READER — There are exercises that you can be taught by an obstetrician, nurse-midwife, obstetrical nurse or physical therapist. Check with one of these professionals to determine the most appropriate exercises for you to tone up the pelvic muscles.

DEAR DR GOTT — The letter in your column from the woman whose husband had undergone a personality change reminded me of a similar problem I read about elsewhere. The man finally went to a neurologist, who discovered a brain abnormality. A drug called Dilantin changed his life, and the wife's as well. I hope you can pass this suggestion on.

DEAR READER — Personality changes can sometimes result from an abnormal discharge of electricity in the brain. Although this disorder is technically a mild form of epilepsy, the patient may not lose consciousness or have seizures. The illness can be difficult to diagnose but, as you point out, neurologists are trained to identify the source of this abnormality. Dilantin is usually an effective treatment and works by inhibiting excess electrical activity in the cerebral cortex.

Dilantin has also been shown to be useful in treating disorders of heart rhythm due to digitalis overdose. Further, the drug can sometimes help the painful foot nerves (neuropathy) that diabetics may develop in the course of their illness. Finally, Dilantin is being used to control certain behavioral abnormalities that are not due specifically to abnormalities in brain electricity. It is a useful medicine, but should be administered under the guidance of a trained professional, preferably a neurologist.

What is hypoglycemia and how is it treated? You can find out in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on HYPOGLYCEMIA.

VIRGIL MOTT

V. Mott named Ave. D. interim minister of music

Rev. Virgil Mott will serve as interim minister of music for Avenue D Baptist Church.

Calvin Brown, the congregation's pastor, noted that Rev. Mott will fill the position until a permanent director is named.

A minister for over 50 years, Rev. Mott served as pastor of Bethel Baptist Church for approximately 15 years. He also served as minister to senior adults at Colonial Hill Baptist Church from 1981 through 1984. Throughout his ministry he has pastored churches in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

In addition to his church duties, Rev. Mott hosts a radio broadcast each Sunday morning on KSNY — a program that has run continuously for over 20 years.

Also a voice instructor at times throughout his career, he has reestablished the church's choral program.

Avenue D Baptist is located at the corner of Avenue D and 30th Streets.

Holy Land slide show set Sunday

The Rev. Bill Strickland, pastor of Morningside Baptist Church, invites the public to view a slide presentation of his recent trip to the Holy Land. The presentation will be included in the church's evening service beginning at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The slides will contain the focal points of Strickland's journey to Amman, Jordan, Nazareth, Bethlehem, Jerusalem and Israel.

Other points of interest include the Dead Sea, Masada, Sea of Galilee, Mount of Olives, Garden of Gethsemane, Golgatha and the Garden Tomb.

A nursery will be provided.

Patients are loyal to clinic in the Bahamas

NEW YORK (AP) — A new report suggests that an unorthodox Bahamian cancer clinic closed for dispensing AIDS-contaminated drugs provides a treatment of no medical value, but a spokesman for the clinic's patients says they remain convinced that the treatment has controlled their cancer.

The report, published today in the Journal of the American Medical Association, found not only that the drugs prepared at the clinic do not contain any of the purported anti-cancer agents that the clinic claims, they also are contaminated with bacteria and hepatitis virus.

A patient acting as a representative for others treated at the clinic said such an analysis was worthless.

"No one is making any claims based on the biochemical content of these things," said Curry Hutchinson, who lives near the clinic in Freeport, Grand Bahamas. "The point is does it work or doesn't it work."

Hutchinson, who was treated for malignant melanoma at the Immunology Researching Center, Ltd., from March 1983 until it was closed last July, believes strongly that it does work.

So do many other patients, some of whom testified to their confidence in the clinic and its director, Lawrence Burton, at hearings held in New York last week by Rep. Guy Molinari.

Burton, a zoologist by training, defended his treatment at the hearings. He was unavailable for comment Thursday on the new report because he was en route to Cuernevaca, Mexico, where a second clinic could open in four to six weeks, Hutchinson said.

"We've never had so much information before that a treatment is bogus," said the report's principal author, Dr. Gregory Curt of the National Cancer Institute. "We've looked at the emperor's new clothes," he said in a telephone interview. "They're not there."

Marcos says he will ignore data challenging his record

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos, whose war record has been a major asset in his long political career, says he will ignore a news report that a U.S. Army investigator found his anti-Japanese guerrilla group to be "fraudulent."

"My opponents now say that Marcos is not a genuine guerrilla, that he did not really fight," Marcos said in a campaign speech Thursday.

"I don't know where they get such foolishness. You who ... fought under me, you be the ones to answer these crazy individuals, especially the foreign press," he told the crowd, which included many World War II veterans.

Marcos talks about his war record in nearly every interview and speech, and tells war stories in his campaign speeches for the Feb. 7 election.

The New York Times on Thursday quoted U.S. Army documents on a post-war military investigation that concluded Ang Mag Maharlika, the guerrilla group Marcos says he led, "never existed" as a fighting organization and was not controlled adequately "because of the desertion of its commanding officer" — Marcos, who eventually joined an American military unit.

The Times, citing 400 pages of Army reports on Marcos' military career, said one investigator, U.S. Army Capt. Elbert R. Curtis, found the "Ang Mag Maharlika Unit under the alleged command of Ferdinand Marcos is fraudulent."

The newspaper said the documents were found in the National Archives in Washington by a historian doing research.

Marcos said he will ignore his detractors because "they are all going crazy."

Information Minister Gregorio Cendana said in a statement issued in Manilla and made available by the Philippines Embassy in Washington that the reports were "reeking with malice and the most vicious form of black propaganda."

He called the reports "a clear case of character assassination and a fabrication of the worst kind."

Various Philippine government reports say Marcos won 27, 28, 32 or 33 medals.

Ask The Preacher

...about the "water and the blood" of 1st John 5

By Randall Gray

The reader who brought in this question (I get them by card, phone and in person) wanted to know what was meant, specifically, by verses 6-8 which discuss the water and the blood.

Understanding the context of a book and its background is essential to the understanding of any passage in that book. The context of 1st John is an assault by the apostle John on the heresy and the false doctrine of Gnosticism. This doctrine, among other things, taught that Jesus was just a man who was "infused" or "possessed" by God at his baptism. Further, they taught that God's Spirit abandoned Jesus at his death--thus they taught that Jesus was a mere man, used by God and rejected.

John attacks this view by showing that the same Jesus who came "by water" (at his baptism) came also "by blood" (at his death). He goes on to say that the Holy Spirit testified to this fact (verse 8).

The doctrine John is teaching here is the diety, the "godness" of Jesus--that he was more than a mere man, that he was, in fact, God in the flesh. (1st John 4:2)

Super Bowl hoopla centers around Chicago quarterback

Sunday, Jan. 26
At New Orleans
Chicago vs. New England, 4 p.m. (CST)

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - It was as if the controversy Jim McMahon had been looking for finally found him.

The anti-hero quarterback of the Chicago Bears, who already had stamped his own bizarre imprint on this Super Bowl with his clothes, his comments and one very sore behind, got caught up Thursday in turbulence partly not of his own doing.

A local television sportscaster, passing along an unfounded, third-hand rumor as fact, said McMahon had cast some disparaging remarks about the ladies and gentlemen of the Crescent City.

By the time the rumor was shot down, death threats and bomb threats had been fielded by the Hilton Hotel where the Bears are staying - and a handful of women, unaware that McMahon had denied saying those nasty things, had staged a little protest.

Each Super Bowl has found its own niche in history one way or another.

Usually it has come from the game itself - Garo Yepremian's laughable pass for Miami, Lynn Swann's acrobatics, Jim O'Brien's game-winning field goal.

Sometimes it has come from one character or another - brash Joe Namath and his "guaranteed" prediction, boisterous John Matuszak and his predawn prowling of the French Quarter, outspoken John Riggins and his costumes.

McMahon is this year's Riggins. In his outrageous adidas ensembles, his sunglasses, his headband episodes and his to-hell-with-everything attitude, he was the focal point even before the notorious Bears and the anonymous New England Patriots arrived here.

At first it seemed he would have to share center stage with William "Refrigerator" Perry, Walter "Sweetness" Payton, Dan "Danimal" Hampton, Otis "Mad Dog" Wilson and the rest of the Bears.

But McMahon will never be mistaken for Roger Staubach, for Bob Griese, for any of the clean-cut quarterbacks adored by American motherhood as role models for their children. He is more in the mold of Ken Stabler, Bobby Layne or Sonny Jurgensen, a player about whom almost anything will be believed, true or not. It is called having a reputation.

Within hours of his arrival, McMahon grabbed the Super Bowl by the throat with his comments that his rump was sore and his complaints that the Bears' management wouldn't allow his acupuncturist to accompany him on the team plane.

The saga continued Tuesday and Wednesday with updates on his highness' soreness, th arrival of Hiroshi Shiraishi, acupuncture treatments, McMahon's rapid improvement - and his mooning a helicopter during a workout.

"That's no big deal," he said by way of admission. "Just letting 'em know where it hurts."

Where it hurts, he's been receiving three acupuncture treatments a day. "I'm 100 percent better than I was yesterday (Wednesday)," he said. "If it keeps healing the way it's been healing, I won't have to have treatments on Saturday or Sunday."

McMahon also said he will be wearing a protective pad on his sore spot during the game.

He went through a full practice Thursday, taking most of the snaps from center as the Bears worked out for two hours. Two helicopters passed by during the session.

"I'm very happy," Coach Mike Ditka said. "We need him. He'll be OK if they don't shoot him down by helicopter."

The hottest news - having nothing to do with football or McMahon's anatomy - hit the fans Wednesday night.

At 10 p.m., Buddy Diliberto, a local TV sportscaster, told viewers that McMahon "really ripped New Orleans" on an interview on a Chicago radio station. "He ripped the people. He ripped the ladies. He ripped a lot of things," Diliberto said. "Basically, I understand he said most of the ladies he ran into were sluts. He said most of the people he ran into were stupid."

Diliberto understood wrong.

Chris O'Kelly, manager of a New Orleans radio station, said one of the station's disc jockeys received calls that McMahon had made such a statement, that the deejay called Diliberto "and Buddy went with it." By midafternoon, Diliberto had been indefinitely suspended by his station.

"I had a message this morning from some lady (snapping) at me for calling them all names," McMahon said. "I had no idea what she was talking about. I've been getting phone calls from different women and men around New Orleans. I'll be lucky to be alive, I guess, after today."

"What makes me mad is the guy went on the air with that and he had no proof. He just had this guy's word. I've enjoyed the people of New Orleans. I was down on Bourbon Street last night, had dinner and cocktails, and they've treated me nicely. I signed a lot of autographs and I don't think I've been abrasive to anybody."

At noon Thursday, Diliberto and his station apologized on the air. Diliberto said he heard the denials by McMahon and the Bears' management and said, "I have no reason to doubt their denials."

"I sincerely apologize ... for the problems caused by these unverified statements," he said, adding that he wished McMahon and the Bears well. "I hope the remainder of the week is devoted to preparations for the game without distractions caused by my comments."

The remaining distractions were minor and seemingly misguided. About two dozen women - and four times as many sports writers and two TV crews - materialized at the Hilton for a protest. One woman carried a sign proclaiming, "Only a true Patriot would recognize a New Orleans lady."

Patriots hope to wear down Chicago with running game

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The problem, Tony Collins said, is that teams abandon their running game too soon after the Chicago Bears shut it down.

Although banging your head into a stone wall isn't the wisest activity, Collins thinks the wall will crack before the head does in Sunday's Super Bowl.

"We believe we're going to be successful on the run," said Collins, the New England Patriots' starting halfback. "We think a lot of teams stopped too early against them on the running game.

"We're going to keep pounding them. We've been a second-half team and we wear teams down in the fourth quarter."

The Patriots had the sixth-best rushing attack in the National Football League, averaging 145.7 yards a game. They have done even better in the playoffs with 170 yards a game, including 255 in the American Football Conference championship contest at Miami.

In the Patriots' second playoff game, against Los Angeles, fullback Craig James became the first rusher to gain more than 100 yards - he had 104 - against the Raiders this season.

"They've built a soapbox they can stand on," said Chicago defensive end Dan Hampton. "The run is something they're going to go to and stay with throughout the game.

"James makes the offense go. He's their bread and butter. If we can stop him, we'll be in good shape."

Against 13 of their 16 regular-season opponents, the Patriots ran for more yards in the second half than the first half. One of those opponents was the Bears, who allowed the Patriots 20 rushing yards in the second half after giving up a grand total of seven in the first two periods. Chicago won 20-7 in the season's second game.

The Bears gave up an average of only 82.4 rushing yards on the ground, fewest in the NFL, and 59 yards per playoff game.

One reason teams didn't run well against the Bears is because they didn't run often. Opponents, frequently behind, decided to pass. The 359 regular-season rushing plays against Chicago were 60 fewer than against any other team.

"The key is for us to be patient and not lose what other teams have lost," Collins said. "That's the confidence in the running game."

Bears defensive tackle Steve McMichael said he hoped the Patriots would do exactly what Collins said.

"We've got eight men on the line of scrimmage. Come on at us," he said.

Collins' running mates weren't as eager to pound their skulls into Chicago's solid wall and said the Patriots' offensive strategy would depend on th game's circumstances.

"When they put eight men on the line of scrimmage, they're basically saying, 'We're going to stop your running game,'" said James, the AFC's third-leading rusher with 1,227 yards. "If we see that, we'll have to recognize that and change."

"You just don't keep running into a stone wall," Robert Weathers, Collins' backup, said. "You've got to find some other mode of travel."

Fast break mires WTC men...

Chaparrals run past Western, 99-81

Midland College cranked up its fast break late in the first half here Thursday night and carried it through the early minutes of the second.

That was all it took as the nation's second-ranked team planted a 99-81 loss on Western Texas College.

The defeat, Western's third in four home conference games this season, leaves Coach Phil Spradling's Westerners at 4-3 overall in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play. WTC is 13-7 for the season as it prepares now to host South Plains College on Monday.

For Midland, the win kept them undefeated on the season at 21-0 and atop the WJCAC standings with a 7-0 mark.

"They deserve to be 21-0 because of their effort," said Coach Spradling after the game. "The teamwork they give out shows the caliber of team they are."

The contest rocked back and forth for most of the first half. Midland led early, but Western came back and eventually led 24-19 on a three-point play from George Moore with 8:50 to play. Both teams traded the advantage again, with Western last holding the edge, 36-35, on a pair of Cliff Langford free throws with just over three minutes left.

The bottom fell out moments later, however. Midland put on the afterburners and scored three straight baskets to lead by seven points, 45-38.

Halftime score was 47-42.

The key to the ballgame came in the final 20-minute period, though Midland came out sprinting. The Chaps used their quickness to create turnovers and blocked out inside to get the rebounds. Three-quarter length passes got the ball out on the press, and Midland put up eight baskets to Western's one, to go in front 55-44. Guards Ricky Grace and Daron Blaylock paced the track meet, and when they scored the bulk of another eight-point Midland rally moments later, the score read 65-46.

"That's what got us," said Spradling. "We played pretty well in the first half but we weren't getting back on the press in the second half and we just laid down. They have some super guards. They have great poise. They shoot extremely well and they go hard to the hole."

Western attempted a comeback late in the contest. Midland had never led by more than 19 points, and found its lead dwindling when Alvin Lee scored back-to-back field goals to put Western within 13. A pair of free throws from sophomore Ed Teal gave the sparse crowd new hope with 4:04 left when the margin diminished to 86-75.

But Western was unable to take advantage. Langford stole the ball and had a chance to cut the lead to nine points, but his shot rolled off the rim. Grace made the Westerners pay as he got Midland's fast break going once again and scored on a short jumper.

With 3:34 left, James Dawn couldn't connect on a bonus free throw situation that would have brought Western back within 11.

The only mystery left in the game was to see whether Midland could break the 100 mark. The Chaps tried, but in that they were denied.

Dawn, a 6-5 sophomore, led all scorers with 24 points. Langford battled inside for 19 while Lee popped 15 from the outer regions. The Westerners also got 7 from Alvin Hicks and 6 from Teal.

Midland placed six players in double figures, led by 6-1 guards Grace and Blaylock, with 19 and 18 respectively. Tony Wright, Eddie Frazier and Lincoln Minor pitched in 13 apiece, and Todd Duncan came off the bench to score 10.

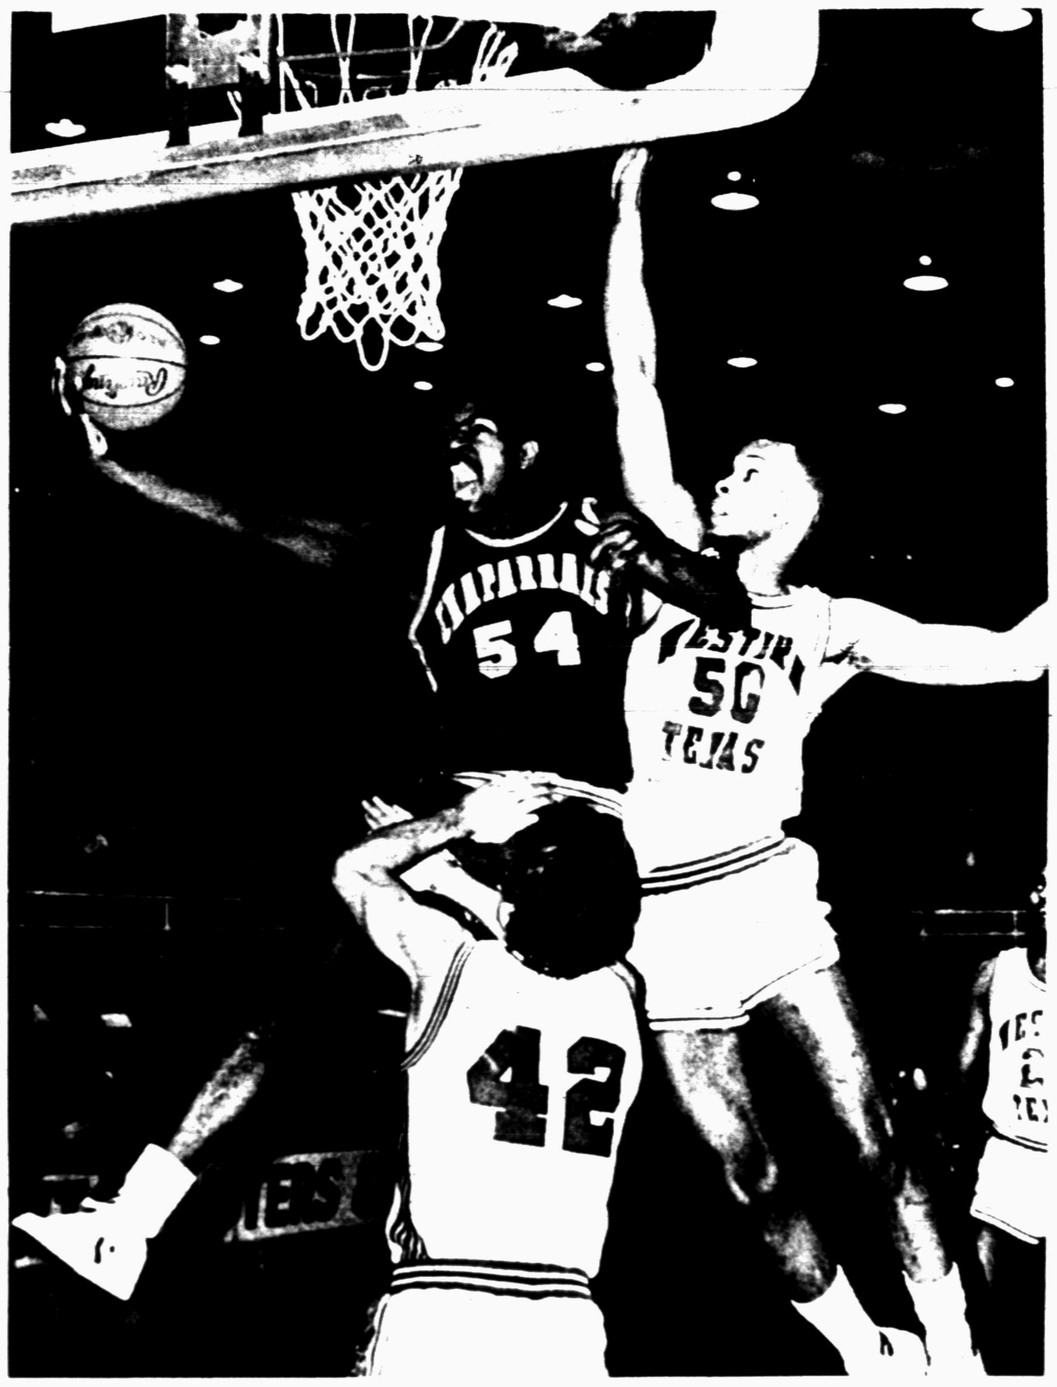

Monday's game with South Plains looms as a key one for the Westerners, who are in fourth place in the WJCAC and need to retain at least a share of that spot. South Plains will come in with a 17-5 season record, 6-1 and in second place in the conference.

A&M cagers arrested; still playing, though

DALLAS (AP) - Two Texas A&M University basketball players have been arrested on misdemeanor charges of possession of marijuana, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The charges were filed on Jan. 16 after police at Calvert in Central Texas stopped an automobile occupied by guards Don Marbury and Todd Holloway for a traffic violation, the newspaper reported.

Marbury, a senior is the leading scorer in the Southwest Conference with a 22.7 average for the Aggies, who lead the SWC with a 5-1 record. Holloway, a junior, is averaging 10.4 points per game and is the team's leading playmaker.

Justice of the Peace John C. Woods said he released the two after they posted personal recognizance bonds. He had set bond at $1,000 each.

Woods said the marijuana amounted to less than two ounces each, making the offense a Class B misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000 and/or a jail term of not more than 180 days.

Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf first told the newspaper Thursday that he knew nothing about the incident.

Metcalf later told the Times Herald he met with Marbury and Holloway after practice and then met with A&M Campus Police Chief Elmer Schneider.

"Whatever they told me will have to be confidential," Metcalf told the newspaper. "I have to look into it. I have a lot of questions. I just can't say anymore about it right now."

The coach said he has not disciplined the players and both are still active members of the team. The two have played in two games since the their arrest.

Texas player leaves team

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas basketball forward Myron Lilley, who hurt his knee and has not played this season, has transferred to Northeast Louisiana University in Monroe.

Lilley, a 6-foot-4 sophomore from Los Angeles, said, "I felt there wasn't a player relationship with Coach (Bob) Weltlich. Personally, I couldn't go in and talk about something that was bothering you."

In games with Andrews...

SHS Tigers put future on line tonight

Snyder basketball teams' destiny still in their own hands; make a stand tonight that could determine whether they'll still be playing in late February or not.

It's third place against second place, and in this league, only first and second place teams advance.

Snyder's boys have the unenviable task of playing the eighth-ranked Mustangs in Andrews. The girls haven't got a cake walk either. They face the formerly-ranked Mustangs here in Snyder.

Both games are scheduled for 8 o'clock starts and will be preceded by junior varsity contests at 6:30. Tickets at either site are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Snyder boys are 5-2 in District 2-4A action while Andrews is 6-1 - their only loss of the season a 65-64 setback on a buzzer shot in Lamesa.

Andrews was viewed as the third place team in early pre-season talk but the addition of a couple of transfer students - including 4-5A's sophomore of the year last season, Bernard Williams - gives the Mustangs extra punch.

"They are quicker than we are. We'll have a little advantage in height, but we'll have to contend with their quickness," said Snyder Coach Larry Scott, whose Tigers are 14-5 overall this season. "They've got two all-district players back. Well, really, three because Williams was all-district at Big Spring last year."

The others are Doodle Woods and Danny Neighbors. Andrews also gets punch from Lewis Clay, who sat out last season with an injury.

The Ponies are 23-1 for the season.

At home, Snyder's girls are in a bind. They were shocked by Lamesa earlier in the week - a loss that puts extra pressure on the squad and makes tonight's contest even more important.

The Lady Tigers are 6-3 in district play and tied for third place with Lamesa. Andrews is 7-2 and in second place.

Snyder needs to outlast the Mustangs tonight, then still must win the rest of their games - barring an unforseen and unlikely upset - to force a district playoff for second place. The Tigers still have to play undefeated Sweetwater in Sweetwater, but Andrews has already tangled with that team twice this season.

Elsewhere around the loop this evening, the matchups should prove to be meaningless to the standings. In boy's play, league leader Lamesa (19-4, 7-0) entertains Monahans (11-11, 1-6) while Sweetwater (3-4, 3-4) is at Pecos (10-8, 4-3) and Fort Stockton (9-14, 2-5) goes to Lake View (9-13, 0-7).

In girl's action, leader Sweetwater (23-1, 9-0) welcomes cellar-dweller Pecos (4-15, 0-9) while Lamesa (11-11, 6-3) is at Monahans (6-12, 3-6) and Lake View (10-13, 3-6) heads for Fort Stockton (10-13, 2-7).

Killer may be freed

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Clifford Henry Bowen remains behind bars for now, but a federal judge says the Texas man convicted of a 1980 triple murder can go free on bond if an appeals court agrees the conviction should be tossed out.

Bowen, of Tyler, Texas, was returned to Death Row at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary in McAlester, where he has been since 1981, after the Thursday afternoon hearing before U.S. District Judge Thomas Brett.

Brett threw out Bowen's 1981 conviction Wednesday on the grounds that prosecutors withheld evidence about another suspect.

Bowen, 54, shook hands with attorney Jack Zimmermann of Houston and changed from a dark suit to prison clothes before being escorted out of the federal courthouse in handcuffs Thursday.

At the hearing, Brett refused a state request that he delay the effect of his Wednesday order. But he gave Assistant Attorney General Bob Nance until Tuesday to request a stay from the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

If the Denver court refuses to stay his order, Brett said Bowen may post a $100,000 bond and go free while the state pursues its appeal of his original order.

If federal appeals fail, Oklahoma County District Attorney Bob Macy said he will retry Bowen in the shooting deaths of three men at an Oklahoma City motel swimming pool.

If the appeals court upholds Brett, Nance said the state is ready to arrest Bowen immediately and try him again. But Brett left no doubt that he expected Bowen to be allowed to remain free if he posts a federal appearance bond.

"Four years and 10 months on Death Row ... is too long," Brett said. He indicated an immediate re-arrest by Oklahoma County authorities would "frustrate the spirit and intent of this court's order."

After the hearing, Nance indicated he was reluctant to see Bowen leave custody and did not know how state officials might proceed if the appeals court won't issue a stay.

"He may be able to make $100,000 (bond) and just walk away and just leave it and never come back," Nance said.

Zimmermann said Bowen, who was freed on $225,000 bond for two months before his trial, would not try to flee if he is allowed to post bond.

Raymond Peters, Marvin Nowlin and Lawrence Evans were slain July 6, 1980, as they sat near the pool at the Guest House Motel in north Oklahoma City.

Prosecutors at Bowen's trial argued he was a hit man hired by former Oklahoma City Police officer Harold Behrens to kill Peters because Peters had threatened to reveal that Behrens was a drug dealer.

Behrens also was convicted for his role in the triple murders in a separate trial, and was sentenced to life in prison in February 1981.

Brett said Wednesday the prosecution failed to tell Bowen's original defense attorney that police suspected former South Carolina police officer Leonard Lee Crowe in the slayings. Crowe was not charged in the case.

Nance said Oklahoma City police dropped the investigation of Crowe when two witnesses identified photographs of Bowen as the man they had seen near the pool at the motel shortly before the shootings. They did not recognize photos of Crowe, he said.

"We think we were justified in throwing Crowe out as a suspect," Nance said after the hearing Thursday.

But Brett gave little credence to the photograph identifications, saying during the hearing: "The rather bald-headed Mr. Crowe did not have a hat on in that photograph, and he did have a very heavy, dark moustache."

Nance said that should not affect witnesses' identification of Bowen.

"It in no way detracts from his identification. It in no way detracts from his guilt and in no way mitigates his punishment," Nance told the judge.

Oil price drop not hurting food exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The oil-rich countries of the Middle East and North Africa are not reducing their food imports because of the sharp drop in oil prices, but they are ordering fewer limousines and other luxury items, says an Agriculture Department economist.

John B. Parker Jr. of the department's Economic Research Service said that the 19 countries from Morocco to Iraq will probably continue food imports at around $31 billion this year.

"It means things other than food are being cut back very severely," Parker said Thursday. "Because of the subsidies and the bargains they're getting, they're not cutting back on food."

But the drop in crude oil prices — from a world average of about $28 a barrel last year to $20 or lower this week — is forcing oil-rich countries like Saudia Arabia and its neighbors to take economy measures.

"Saudia Arabia had (been spending) $5 billion a year with South Korea just to build roads. A lot of the infrastructure things that they were splurging on have been brought to a halt," Parker said.

The United States exported about $3.4 billion worth of commodities to the region in 1983-84, dropping to about $2.7 billion in the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30.

But Parker thinks that U.S. credit deals and the new export subsidy program will help recoup part of the decline, with total shipments rising to around $3 billion in 1985-86. Much of the gain will be for Egypt and Iraq.

Five years ago, Parker and some other USDA trade experts thought U.S. farm exports had a bright future in the Mideast and North Africa.

It is still considered a lucrative market, but one threatened by war and political strife.

"There's been tremendous competition," Parker said. "The European Community's more than double what we are in the region, and competitors like Australia and Argentina, some of the southern hemisphere suppliers, have had a feast in the Middle East."

grand jury. It was in connection with leg injuries suffered by Policeman Kevin Fritz during an arrest involving the suspect.

District Attorney Ernie Armstrong dismissed the January indictment aganist Herrera in light of the prison term he will serve due to the probation revocation.

In other court action, Raymond Ortiz Lopez of Snyder was placed on felony probation for three years after entering a guilty plea Thursday.

He was indicted by the January session of the grand jury for driving while intoxicated.

Equal access rule reported

given when the telephone switching office serving a particular area has in place the older-style "electro-mechanical" equipment — the type now serving the Snyder office.

"This type equipment cannot offer equal access without undergoing extensive modification," West noted.

He estimated about 20 percent of all Southwestern Bell telephone lines are served by the electro-mechanical switching offices.

The five-year plan for Southwestern in this area has the implementation of electronic switching equipment — the type which makes equal access possible — scheduled sometime arount 1990.

Once such equipment is in place — and again West caution this was likely many years off in Snyder's case — equal access will have to be made available upon the request of one of the alternative long distance companies.

When a request is submitted, Southwestern Bell will take steps to poll its customers — a "choice" referred to in an ad campaign now being run by AT&T.

The poll will list all of the long distance companies now offering service in the county — including AT&T. As of last October, others offering a reduced rate for such calls included STS Star Tel of Abilene; ClayDesta Communications of Midland; Action Telcom of Abilene and NTS of Lubbock.

The electronic equipment which would replace the older system now used has the ability to route an individual customer's line to the company they choose for 1-plus dialing.

The individual will still be allowed to subscribe to as many long distance companies as they choose, but only one will have the benefits of 1-plus dialing.

In addition, when the poll is taken, the switch to a new long distance service will be at no charge to the customer. Southwesern Bell officials note there will also be no charge if the selection is made within six months of when equal access is initiated.

After that time, however, a fee would be required to help defray the cost of changing the service.

Assuming the customer's 1-plus long distance company went out of operation, the fee would be charged also to add a new company.

"When a location converts to equal access, Southwestern Bell customers will receive a notification letter explaining the program and providing instruction on how to select a long-distance company.

"Until that time," West added, "selecting a prime long-distance carrier is one less decision Snyder residents have to make."

2 minor wrecks noted Thursday

Two minor traffic mishaps were reported in Snyder Thursday.

The first was logged at 9:38 a.m. in the 500 Block of 14th St.

Involved in it was a 1979 Ford driven by Carlos M. Humberto of 3001 Ave. C which struck a 1983 Ford owned by Pedro Vasquez of 307 24th St.

The second accident occurred at 6:29 p.m. in the 2500 Block of 37th St.

Involved in it were a 1985 Pontiac driven by Donald Osborn of 3006 El Paso Ave. and a 1984 Ford driven by Clyde Hall Jr. of Snyder.

No injuries resulted from either mishap.

One arrest occurs

Police logged a single misdemeanor arrest Thursday as a local man was jailed for driving while intoxicated during the evening.

Generalisimo Francisco Franco's Nationalist air force bombed the Spanish cities of Barcelona and Valencia Jan. 19, 1938, killing 700 persons.

In 1918, the Bolsheviks dissolved the Russian Constitutional Assembly in Petrograd.

'Preserving history' is commission's goal

The 29 members of the Scurry County Historical Commission see their primary purpose as "searching out and preserving the county's history and recording current events for posterity."

The interest surrounding the state's Sesquicentennial celebration has focused more attention on the need to understand the forces and the people that shaped the county's past, they note.

Members of the historical commission and Historic Scurry County serve voluntarily to preserve the past and the present for future generations.

The local commission is responsible for placing historical markers at various landmark sites. Its members conduct tours of historic buildings and provide demonstrations featuring aspects of early lifestyles, such as bread baking and candle making.

The commission is currently updating its book about the county's historical markers. In addition to publishing its own books, the commission also helps sponsor the works of local historians.

Commission members serve two-year terms. Those whose terms expire at the end of 1986 include Mary Keith, Sue Lloyd, Donna Fowler, Barbara Bills, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bob McMullen, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Courtney, Jean Duke, Cindy Banta, Shirley Leftwich, Marcie Mattson and Randall Gray.

Death linked to damage settlement

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Investigators say they believe the shooting death of an 18-year-old man, found buried in a shallow grave officers had watched for days, may be linked to a multi-million dollar damage settlement the victim's family has received.

Bexar County sheriff's deputies staked out the gravesite for more than two days before abandoning their vigil early Wednesday.

They returned about 12 hours later and found the body of John Cruz buried in the hole. Officers said he had been shot in the head at close range.

Sheriff's Sgt. Dalton Baker said authorities are convinced Cruz was killed at the gravesite. He said officers also believe the grave was prepared for Cruz.

"We all feel pretty comfortable that he did know who this person was," Baker said.

The investigator said officers think at least two people were involved in the killing.

Cruz apparently was kidnapped early Wednesday after he left his job at a convenience store, officers said.

His family received two calls demanding ransoms of $26,000 and $30,000, said Lt. Albert Ortiz.

They were told to wait for a third call to arrange a money drop. The call never came. Sheriff's officers said they did not learn of the kidnapping until after they found the body.

Attorney Pat Maloney Jr. said Cruz and his family had begun receiving payments on a $2.4 million damage settlement from a lawsuit.

The suit was filed against a tire manufacturing company after an allegedly defective tire blew on the Cruz family van in Zacatecas, Mexico in 1983.

The van flipped over, killing Cruz's sister Dora and his father Ruben, Maloney said.
