Wheat Harvest Is Getting Under Way

Ochiltree County Golden Jubilee Celebration August 22

HAIL STORMS DESTROY THOUSANDS OF ACRES OF WHEAT ALMOST READY FOR HARVESTING

H. B. Urban Marketed First Load of Wheat in Perryton Last Friday; Big Rush Expected to Get Underway In About a Week

WOLF CREEK LAKE OVER SPILLWAY

To H. B. Urban goes the honor of marketing the first load of 1939 wheat in Perryton. Mr. Urban brought in a load of wheat to the Ellis Grain Co. last Friday. It tested 58 and sold for 60c. The Conner Grain Co. received the first load of new wheat brought into Farnsworth on Wednesday. It was raised by Dean Conner, tested 60 and sold for 60c. Mr. Conner stated that the wheat was averaging 18 bushels to the acre.

Considerable wheat is being marketed each day, all of it coming from fields to the east, south and southwest. No wheat from the north and west, the areas where the wheat is best, has come in to the local elevators. It will be the middle of next week before harvest gets under full headway.

Destructive hail storms Sunday and Tuesday damaged at least 25,000 acres of wheat for losses ranging from thirty to one hundred per cent.

The Sunday storm came in from the north shortly before sundown. It was preceded by the blackest dust of the year, followed by rain and hail. The rainfall was light here in Perryton but heavier to the east. The hail belt started at the T. W. Johnson farm north of Perryton across the state line, traveled in a southeasterly direction, going about two miles east of Perryton and then turning back to Highway 83, four miles south of town. The loss from this storm was estimated to be 15,000 acres.

The storm early Tuesday morning hailed out at least 7,500 acres, most of the damage being northwest of Perryton. This was an area of the best wheat in the Southwest. Several farm homes, barns and sheds were badly damaged by hail also. There was some scattering hail losses to the southwest of Perryton at the same time. Rainfall was general over the territory, 75 inch falling here. Over two inches fell along Wolf Creek, filling the Wolf Creek Lake and running water over the spillway. The outlet conduit was closed a few days before this rain and the water will remain in the lake this time. This was the third time the lake has filled this spring. It was drained out before in order to complete construction.

What the Perryton area needs and the entire Southwest needs is more people and the only way this is ever going to be possible is to have more "12-months in the year" farmers and fewer town farmers and one-crop wheat farmers.

R. B. Orrill of the Men's Wear and John Sammons of the Perryton Coca Cola Bottling Co. have already started doing their bit toward stocking the Wolf Creek Lake. Before the water ceased going over the spillway following the Tuesday morning rain, they were busy with a minnow seine below the dam, seining fish and carrying them up to the lake. This is what we call real sportsmen.

While in Lubbock last week attending the convention of the Texas Press Association we were told about the first mechanical fan in the old Texas city of Nacogdoches. This fan was installed by R. C. Shindler, father of R. T. and Herbert Shindler of this city, in his drug store. The fan was propelled by a mule on a treadmill, with a nigger as chief engineer. This was before the days of electricity in Texas.

HIGHER LOAN RATE VOGUE

NEW WHEAT LOAN PROGRAM FOR 1939 CALLS FOR HIGHER LENDING RATE IN NEW REVISION

College Station, June 14—Pleased with success of last year's wheat commodity loans in sustaining income of many Texas producers through a period of dwarfed grain prices, the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee of the AAA here this week announced terms of a new wheat loan program for 1939 at a higher lending rate.

The basic terminal rate of 85 cents at Galveston and 77 cents at Kansas City for No. 2 Hard Winter wheat for 1939 compares with 77 and 72 cents respectively in 1938.

Other revisions in the program: Rates on wheat stored on the farm or in country elevators will be the terminal rate less freight and 3 cents, instead of the terminal rate less freight and 4 cents as in 1938. The rates will be on a county basis this year rather than for each shipping point in the county.

The loan rate on Hard Red Spring, Hard Red Winter and Hard White Wheat is increased to include an allowance for a protein premium where farmers can obtain protein tests or certificates of protein content of their wheat.

In most other details the program is the same as last year. Loans will be made at 4 per cent interest, and county AAA committees will certify producers who are eligible for loans and be responsible for grading and inspecting farm-stored wheat under See No. 1, Back Page

PIRATES TAKE LIBERAL SUN.

LA MASTER'S BOYS SHOW LIBERAL HOW IT'S DONE WITH SCORE OF 11 TO 3 ON ENEMY GROUND

Wayne Gygger pitching for the Perryton Pirates led them to a 11 to 3 victory over the Liberal Pirates in enemy territory Sunday, June 11, with the Liberal Pirates outdoing themselves in chalking up 11 errors for the afternoon's play, while the Perryton lads were content to make only three.

The high wind that blew throughout the game contributed to Liberal's downfall. They seemed unable to take it in their stride, while Perryton's big nine turned in a sparkling performance throughout the game.

The Perryton Pirates are a newly organized team under the management of Cyrus LaMaster.

Jess Brazzel, Waka, was in the hospital Tuesday and Wednesday with an infected hand.

POLOISTS WIN OVER BEAVER

PERRYTON POLO TEAM DEFEATS BEAVER BOYS AT BEAVER TWO GALS SUNDAY, JUNE 11

In the third chucker, Perryton scored two goals on several fast plays leaving the game 4 to 2.

The fourth and fifth chuckers were scoreless with both teams threatening.

Beaver opened the sixth chucker by scoring two goals in rapid succession. Scores were made as follows: Beaver, Walter Schelle, two; Ralph and Otto Barby, one each; Perryton—Galen and Hamilton Murphy, two each; H. D. Hearn and William Stark, one each.

PROPER STORAGE FOR LOAN

FARM-STORED WHEAT MUST BE PROPERLY PROTECTED FOR GOVERNMENT LOAN REQUIREMENT

College Station—Texas farmers who intend to take advantage of the AAA wheat loan for 1939 and who plan to store wheat on the farm should make certain now that their bins will meet requirements of the program.

That is the advice of Charles Thomas, Pampa wheat farmer and member of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee which makes headquarters at Texas A. and M. College.

Farmers who store 1939 wheat on their farms become eligible for a farm-storage rental allowance of 7 cents a bushel if the wheat they deliver to the Commodity Credit Corporation, when the loan matures is of the same grade and quality as when the loan was made.

Countries in which the farm-storage feature of the loan applies are Armstrong, Bailey, Briscoe, Carson, Castro, Dallam, Deaf Smith, Donley, Floyd, Gray, Hale, Hansford, Hartley, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Lamb, Moore, Ochiltree, Oklahoma, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Roberts, Sherman, Swisher and Wheeler.

Good wheat, properly stored, is the only security a farmer will be required to put up for a loan. Thomas advised. He said farmers will need bins that will hold the wheat without loss of quality; protect it against weather conditions that may cause deterioration; provide protection from thieves, rodents, birds, poultry and insects; permit effective fumigation, provide reasonable safety from fire and wind; and require forcible breaking before entering, after it is sealed.

Generally speaking, farm storage of wheat has proven successful. Thomas said. A recent reinspection showed that only 24 out of 19,000 bins used to store 1938 loan wheat in 19 states, including Texas and Oklahoma, were in such condition that discontinuance of the loans was recommended.

There were 89 loans in Texas last year on 230,000 bushels of farm-stored wheat. The government will have paid these farmers around $16,000 rent for having stored this wheat through fall, winter and spring, Thomas said.

Save a Life

Prompt Application of Artificial Respiration Most Important For Drowning Person

Austin, Texas—“No elaborate equipment is needed to save a life from drowning,” is the opinion of State Health Department officials. “In fact, actual harm has been done by the misuse of so-called lung pumps. Modern resuscitation apparatus has been perfected so that oxygen and carbon dioxide can be used without inflicting more damage to cases of asphyxiation and drowning. It is tragic enough to have a drowning accident, but it is far more tragic if no one present at the time knows how to save a life by artificial respiration.

“The prompt application of artificial respiration is of primary importance, and for this purpose the prone pressure method is the easiest, simplest and most effective. This should begin at once and continue rhythmically until natural breathing is established—this may take four or more hours: Procedure:

First: Kneel, and straddle the patient below the hips placing hands on small of the back with fingers over the lowest ribs, tips of fingers just out of sight.

Second: With arms straight, while counting one, two, swing forward bearing weight on body firmly but not violently.

Third: Swing backward while counting one, straightening up and thus relieving pressure—this allows air to be drawn into the lungs.

Fourth: Rest in this position for two counts.

Fifth: Repeat these movements rhythmically, forward and backward, without interruption, about twelve to fifteen a minute, until natural breathing is restored.

Sixth: Meanwhile, if assistance is at hand, a physician should be sent for, the patient's tight clothing should be loosened at neck, chest and waist and he should be kept warm.

The patient should not be moved until he is breathing normally and then should not be allowed to get up but should be carried in a lying position to a place where he can be kept warm and receive medical attention.

Printing

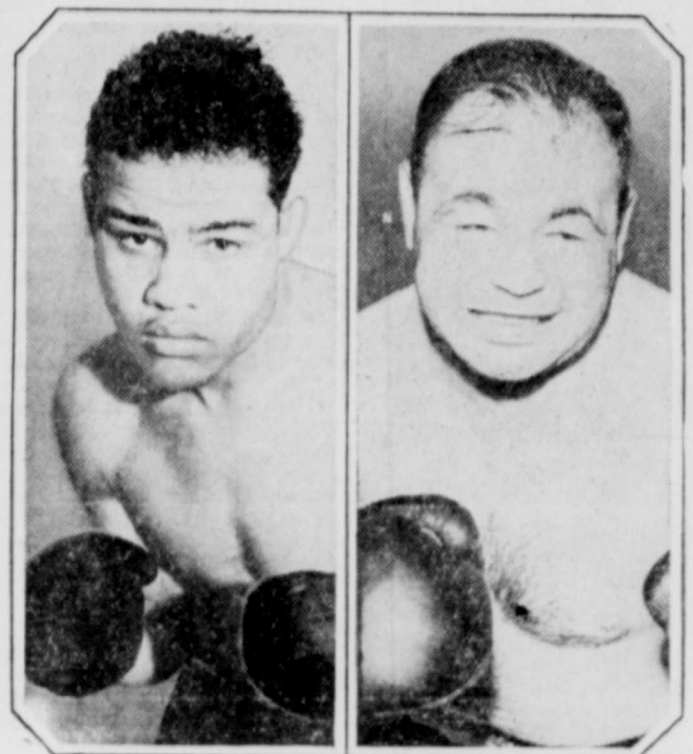

Is But a Small Part of the Cost

IN getting out a circular, circular letter or other piece of printed matter... the paper, the addressing, the mailing easily total more than the printing. Yet, in a large measure, the Results Depend Upon the Printing.

Louis Just About 100-1 Shot to Turn Back Galento's Bid

Joe Louis

Tony Galento

LY IRVING DIX
TWO-TON Tony Galento, the Orange, N. J., barkeep who shapes up very much like one of his own beer barrels, will climb through the ropes at a ring pitched in Yankee Stadium the night of June 28 and try to dislodge the heavyweight crown from the curly head of Joe Louis.

Strangest thing about the whole affair is that Signor Antonio is serious. Signor Galento might as well tackle Gargantua the Great as wade into Joe Louis.

True, the experts predicted the Brown Bomber would annihilate Max Schmeling when they met for the first time, but this—well, this would be too far a flight of fancy not to make Joe at least a 100-to-1 choice over the challenger.

GALENTO'S appearance in the same ring with the champion may be attributed to a great job of maneuvering on the part of Joe Jacobs, his manager. The fact that Galento had been licked about 28 times in his career and isn't much better now than he was a few years ago, didn't prevent Jacobs from getting his man named as Number 1 challenger.

This was accomplished by such means as allowing the little fat man to train on beer and stogies and getting his name in print by calling Louis a bum at every opportunity.

Joe repeatedly has indicated he didn't like the name-calling and Tony very likely will come to regret every utterance.

BASED on actualities Galento earned what little right he has to meet Louis by belting out people like Natie Brown, Jorge Iruela and Abe Feldman—which is absolutely no trick at all.

Tony's best equipment is a roundhouse left hook which leaves him wide open when he turns it loose. Putting Joe Louis to work on a man who leaves himself wide open is unmerciful. Tony's only hope is to land one of his roundhouse punches on Joe's chin. Not only that, but he must connect some time within the first three minutes of the fight.

He probably won't be remaining upright after that.

New Duck Stamp

Migratory Bird Hunters Must Have New Federal Stamp Attached To Hunting License

The new duck stamp to be issued on July 1 for the year 1939-1940, sixth in a series chosen each year from the board of a well known artist, will be from a drawing by Lynn Bogue Hunt, the U. S. Biological Survey has announced. The subject chosen for the Federal stamp is a male and female green-winged teal standing at a marsh edge. In the background five teal are descending for a landing. The Federal duck stamp will be available at all first and second class post offices. Every migratory bird hunter must have one of these attached to his hunting license. The duck stamp series was inaugurated in 1934 and has become familiar to all migratory bird hunters, philatelists and conservationists.

throughout the country. Nearly twice the size of a special delivery stamp, it costs $1 and must be purchased by all hunters over the age of sixteen.

The money realized from duck stamps is used by the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey to supplement other funds for the purchase and maintenance of waterfowl refuges throughout the country. According to word received by the Texas Game Department, it is likely that three new refuges will be established on the Gulf coast within the next few months. In 1934-1935, the first year of issuance, 635,000 stamps were sold. Last year the total was 783,000 and already in the current year more than 900,000 stamps have been purchased by hunters, bird lovers and stamp collectors throughout the country. Since 1935 more than $3,000,000 has been obtained through the sale of these stamps.

Continental Oil Company
The "Hard Way"

The story of Continental Oil Company and its rise to prominence in the oil industry, is told in the current issue of Fortune Magazine. A striking feature of the article is a thumb-nail sketch of Conoco's President, Dan Moran.

"Born at Cuyahoga, Ohio, he had picked up cash as an office boy and as a telegraph operator, earned his way through the University of Dayton, and then had gone south, to Tulsa, where he saw the oil spot from the Glenn Pool strike, then to Port Arthur, where he signed up as an engineer for the Texas Co. From there he was sent down to Panama and to South America, and from South America he had trekked north again into Mexico and to the States. He had spent seventeen days in a hurricane on an oil barge. He had helped repair the ravages of another hurricane, which, ripping through Port Arthur, had floated away the oil tanks of a refinery there like so many toy ships. He had built refineries, drilled for oil and had put up ocean terminals at Charleston, at Savannah, Pensacola, Mobile, Key West, and in Cuba. And in the process he had learned something of men and something of the sweet-smelling stuff called crude.

When Is a Worker a Farm Hand? That's Question Before Congress

BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON.—When is a worker a farm hand and when is he a city wage earner? One of the bitterest fights of the congressional session is being waged over that question. It centers right now about the wage-hour law, amendments to which are pending in the House. When that law was drawn up, it exempted farmers and their employees from its provisions. It also took in a number of non-farm workers whom it was never intended to cover; telephone company employees in small villages, for instance, and well-paid white-collar workers who have no need for its protection. So this spring a series of amendments to get these non-farm workers out from under the law were drawn up. Along with these amendments, there came proposals that peonage working in agricultural product processing plants be exempted also. And it is over this point that the fight is now being waged.

AS it stands now, the wage-hour law exempts agricultural workers employed in the "area of production" of any given commodity. Now, the act does not define what an "area of production" includes; so Wage-hour Administrator Andrews has ruled that it includes all processors who work within 10 miles of the place where the crop is grown, or who work in towns of less than 2500 inhabitants. But efforts are now being made to apply the exemption to all workers who are employed in any sort of agricultural processing plants whatever. This would include fruit and vegetable canners and packers, tobacco strippers, and even—under one amendment which has been offered—workers in meat-packing houses. Most of the big farm organizations, including the Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange, are supporting these amendments. The wage-hour administration is vigorously opposing them, as are labor unions. And, as was stated in the beginning, the real question involved is—when is a man a farm laborer and when is he not?

The farm organizations maintain that, even though the bulk of these processing workers do not actually work on farms, to increase their pay and limit their hours would directly affect the farmer by raising the cost of processing the things he has to sell. The wage-hour people counter by saying that the price rise involved would be extremely small, and that it is rather ridiculous to say that a man who has anything to do with a farm product anywhere along the line is an agricultural employee.

AMENDMENTS based on the same line of reasoning are in line for the social security act. As now drafted, these amendments would remove agricultural processing plant employees from old age insurance and unemployment insurance coverage.

And the lineup for and against is about the same here as in the case of the wage-hour amendments.

The social security amendments will probably pass. With the wage-hour law, the issue is more doubtful. The best guess right now is that the amendments will pass the House but will fail in the Senate.

Membership Record

Auxiliary Membership For Year Nears Half Million
First of June

A new all-time high membership record will be reached by the American Legion Auxiliary during June, B. Carter, president of the Perryton Auxiliary Unit, stated after giving June figures from national headquarters. On June 1, the Auxiliary had 460,260 members enrolled in 1939 and needed less than 5,000 additional enrollments to exceed the high record established last year.

Texas was among the twenty-five states that had exceeded their 1938 quota by June 1. Many other states were expected to pass quota figures during the month. The Perryton unit exceeded its quota of 50 members before the first of the year. The national total on June 1, was 18,791 and of the same date last year. Texas has the largest membership enrollment.

C. W. Callaway Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Callaway, Canadian, accepted a position as bookkeeper in the Perryton yard of the White House Lumber Co. C. W. is a native of Perryton. He attended Phillips University at Enid, Okla., last year.

Woodward Race Meet

American Legion Sponsors Three Day Races at Woodward
On July 2-3-4

Woodward, Okla.—(Special)—Entries in the American Legion three-day race meet, to be staged here July 2-3-4, continue to pour in but J. Park Siple, of the local post, has announced that all places in the harness race division have been filled. Entries for the running races are still being accepted, Siple said. Nearly 200 of the nation's outstanding trotters and runners are already on the lists for the state's biggest race meet. The large purses offered have attracted many horses from both coasts, with the finest from the middle-west also entered. Believing that thousands of persons are interested in seeing the cream of trotters, pacers and runners, the Woodward Legion Post has adopted a policy of low admission price. Adult prices (top) will only be 50 cents for general admission. Business men of the community have underwritten the event.

The three-day meet will be climaxed the night of July 4th with a free entertainment. A bathing beauty contest will be one of the features with girls from more than a score of surrounding towns entering.

Free fire-works and stage acts will be presented free to close a thrilling, spectacular three-day celebration.

INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

Paul's Letters

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 18
Text: II Timothy 1:1-6; Philimon 1:7, 21, 22.

OUTSTANDING among Paul's letters are the two to Timothy, whom Paul called his son in the faith and his "beloved child."

Timothy was the son of a Greek father and a Jewish mother, whom Paul had met on his second visit to Lystra. His father's influence must have been favorable, but Paul speaks particularly of his grandmother, Lois, and his mother, Eunice, in whom with Timothy himself he says there was "unfeigned faith" in Christ. Paul evidently had no son of his own, and Timothy seems to have stood almost as near to him as if there had been blood relationship. Paul and Silas took Timothy with them when they left Lystra during their second missionary journey. The companionship then formed, with its background of the high esteem in which Timothy was held in spite of his youth in the Christian community, continued to the end of Paul's life.

A young man of great abilities and high promise does not always fulfill his destiny. Hence it was that Paul urged Timothy very strongly to "stir up the gift of God" that was in him. The brief section of Paul's letters to Timothy found in the lesson ought to be read in connection with the entire two epistles to get the full atmosphere and effect of Paul's exhortation to his young fellow disciple.

In the letter to Philimon, Paul associates Timothy with himself as a brother, and they address Philimon as "our beloved brother and fellow worker."

Philimon lived at Colossae, and he was probably a man of some wealth, for he owned slaves. The occasion of Paul's letter was a plea on behalf of a slave named Onesimus, who had run away from his master, Philimon, and had come under Paul's influence in Rome.

The letter reveals the strange and powerful influences of Christianity in contact with a society where slavery was in existence. Under the influence of his conversion Onesimus was evidently ready to return to Philimon, accepting voluntarily a servitude against which he had formerly rebelled. Would Philimon receive him as a Christian brother, or would he treat him according to the standards of the world as a runaway slave? The situation called for all of Paul's tact and strategy, and he wisely appealed to Philimon by emphasizing first of all the spirit of love and brotherhood which Christianity enjoined, and assuming that Philimon accepted such teaching and would act in accordance with it.

We do not know what was the result, but we may assume that Paul's letter had its proper effect and that Onesimus was restored to the house of Philimon, still perhaps as a slave—for the two men could not in themselves effect a change in the institution of slavery—but with a very different interrelationship and mutual attitude because of their common faith in a Master whose whole purpose was to free men from all the bonds of sin and slavery.

A. E. D. Brooks left Wednesday for Missouri, where he will spend several weeks visiting with relatives.

Sheriff J. S. Talley, W. B. Allen and G. M. Rowe were in Shattuck and Higgins Wednesday.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 18.

The Golden Text is: "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him" (I Corinthians 8:6).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all" (I Chronicles 29:11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "For right reasoning there should be but one fact before the thought, namely, spiritual existence. In reality there is no other existence, since Life cannot be united to its unlikeness, mortality" (page 492).

Total world shipments of wheat averaged 751 million bushels for the 5 years, 1923-27, increased to a peak of 913 million bushels in 1928, then declined sharply, largely as a result of measures taken by importing countries to reduce the use of foreign wheat. For the year beginning July 1, 1937, shipments totaled 494 million bushels, and for the current season they are forecast at 563 million bushels.

Colorful Story of Sam Houston's Life Is Told In "Man of Conquest" At The Ellis

A sweeping spectacle is Republic's "Man of Conquest"—a vivid epic highlight in the progress of the cinema, and of the company which produced it. The film the unwinding of the colorful life of Sam Houston will be presented at the Ellis Theatre, Sunday and Monday, June 18-19. A special midnight preview will be shown of the film Saturday night at 11:30.

A cast of Hollywood's most distinguished performers enacts every scene with perfection. Richard Dix is Houston, re-incarnated, colorful, aggressive man of destiny. Lovely are Joan Fontaine and Gail Patrick as his first and second wives.

In addition there are splendid characterizations by Edward Ellis as Andrew Jackson, C. Henry Gordon as Santa Ana, Robert Armstrong as Jim Bowie, Victor Jory as William B. Travis, Robert Barrat as Davy Crockett and Max Terhune as Deaf Smith; portrayals that again bring to vivid life the famous heroes of the Alamo and the Texas-Mexico War of 1836.

"Man of Conquest" takes into careful consideration Sam Houston's life from the time he dwelt with the Cherokee tribes for a year, through his career in politics, to his glorious campaign that resulted in an independent Texas. Interwoven prominently, too, is Houston's friendship for Andrew Jackson; friendship born on a battlefield in the War of 1812.

Republic has evidently spared no expense in making "Man of Conquest" an unforgettable document of Houston's life. Production is lavish; great care having been taken to insure historical and technical accuracy.

Action scenes in "Man of Conquest" are gripping especially at the Battle of the Alamo and the Battle of Jacinto where Houston's army routed Santa Ana's.

George Nicholls, Jr. has directed masterfully. He has given the public an enthralling picture, swift-moving and exciting throughout. His dramatic moments are handled deftly.

"Man of Conquest" is definitely an outstanding production. It ranks with Hollywood's best of this year, or any other year. It is a credit to the industry, as well as to Republic Studios.

Acting honors in the production cannot go to one performer. Every speaking part is in worthy hands. George "Windy" Hayes supplies ample comedy as a pal of Dix. Down the line—Dix, Patrick, Fontaine, Ellis, Armstrong, Gordon, Jory, Barrat, Terhune, William Benedict, the film boy, Lane Chandler, Jason Roberts—all contribute to a portrait that is excellently etched.

Your reviewer predicts that fans will be thrilled the first time they see "Man of Conquest," and that they will come again and again to view it. It is the kind of picture that can be seen more than once, and still rank as top entertainment.

"Young Mr. Lincoln"

Story of Abe Lincoln as a Young Man is Told in 20th Century-Fox Hit at Ellis

The thrilling, romantic, eventful youth of Abe Lincoln makes Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln" a complete screen surprise and excellent entertainment according to advance reports based on "sneak screenings" of the unusual film showing at the Ellis

Springfield Gets A New Lawyer

Henry Fonda, in the title role of Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln," riding into Springfield to "take a fling at law." In a scene from the film, The Cosmopolitan production for 20th Century-Fox is showing at the Ellis Theatre, Thursday and Friday, June 15-16.

Theatre, Thursday and Friday, June 15-16.

Ignoring the great Lincoln with whom everyone is familiar, this Cosmopolitan production for 20th Century-Fox is a photoplay stirring with its drama, action and emotion; it depicts young Abe wrestling, fighting, telling funny stories, falling in love. The highlight of the original screen play by Lamar Trotti shows the young lawyer defying a frenzied lynch mob and defending two innocent boys in the famous "moonlight murder" trial—young Lincoln's first challenge.

This is a Lincoln few people are familiar with. At the age of 28 he was a gangling, brawny-armed youth, a shy young lover and a "regular fellow." Covering approximately seven years of his youth, the film culminates in the frontier trial.

Re-enacting the best of the famous Lincoln anecdotes, the film is highlighted by such lines as:

To the lynch mob: "I'm not going to make any speeches. All I've got to say is: I can lick any man here hands down!"

To Mary Todd, on the dance floor: "I'd like to dance with you in the worst way, Miss Todd; but any dancing I'd do would be the worst way!"

And during the famous "moonlight murder" trial: "How can a mother choose which son shall live, which shall die?"

Directed by John Ford, the film features Henry Fonda in the title role, Alice Brady as the mother of the accused boys, Marjorie Weaver as Mary Todd, and Arleen Whelan. Included in the cast are Eddie Collins, Pauline Moore as Ann Rutledge, Richard Cromwell, Donald Meek, Dorris Bowdon and Eddie Quillan. Kenneth Macgowan served as associate producer.

FSA LOANS ARE BEING REPAYED

SURVEY REVEALS FSA BORROWERS REPAYING LOANS AND HAVE BETTER LIVING AND SECURITY

Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture announced this week that a nation-wide survey of Farm Security Administration borrowers, many of whom were once on relief, showed they not only were rapidly repaying their loans, but also were making long strides toward better living and security.

The survey, covering 232,947 typical families in the FSA rehabilitation program, showed they had increased their aggregate net worth—over and above all debts—by $61,817, 903 since obtaining loans. This was an average increase of $263.37 per family, or 37.4 per cent.

By March 1, the FSA had collected $77,317,579 out of the total of $261,809,647 it had loaned to 444,782 individual borrowers, although much of the money will not be due for four or five years. It is estimated that between 70 and 80 per cent of the funds loaned will be repaid eventually with interest. Losses are largely concentrated in areas of the Great Plains which have suffered several years of severe drought.

In submitting their reports for the survey, field workers estimated that at least 68 per cent of the borrowers covered would repay in full, in addition to those who are repaying only part of their obligations.

In commenting on the results of the survey, the Secretary said that they demonstrated conclusively the economic as well as the social wisdom of the government's investments in loans to low-income farmers. Virtually all of the loans, he added, were made to farmers who were either on relief rolls or threatened with the need for relief.

"Now, instead of being burdens on the country, they are becoming self-supporting assets to their communities," he said. "They are gathering strength to pull themselves higher up the economic ladder, instead of continuously slipping further down."

"The repayment figures, themselves, are remarkable, when it is considered that all of these families, judged by normal standards were the worst possible credit risks. They were so far down on the economic ladder that they could not obtain adequate credit anywhere else."

The report indicated, however, that despite the help given, 22 per cent of the families still lacked adequate beds; 16 per cent had inadequate stoves; 34 per cent did not receive adequate medical attention; 42 per cent did not have sanitary protected water supplies; 38 per cent lived in unscreened houses; and 58 per cent of the families were still without sanitary toilets.

The rehabilitation loan program, major activity of the Farm Security Administration, is designed to help needy and low-income farm families get a new start through loans, accompanied by guidance in sound farming methods. Each loan is based on a farm and home management plan, which in most sections of the country provides for borrowers to raise their own food supplies and livestock feed, rather than to depend entirely upon cash crops.

In many cases, previous failure had been due to inadequate acreage to support the family. The survey showed the families had increased their acres operated from an average of 70 to 113, or 87 per cent.

Most borrowing families formerly had inadequate equipment, which became even more of a handicap with the increased acreage. The average farmer when he got his loan had only 1.2 work animals or 8.4 per cent.

In connection with its rehabilitation program, the FSA administers a debt adjustment service through voluntary state and county committees. By the end of February these committees had negotiated voluntary debt adjustments with creditors for 100,309 families. Their obligations had been scaled down, $84,873,343 from $314,930,232 or 26.9 per cent. As a result of these adjustments, $4,477,854 in back taxes had been paid to local government agencies.

The worst wind and dirt storm of the season struck here Friday night. Some damage was done to wheat fields and gardens. Sunday evening, another severe wind storm, followed by rain and hail. A partial loss was reported on many wheat fields. Everyone is busy preparing for harvest.

Justice Skips Royal Affair

Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Gidley and family and Mrs. Ernest Allen and son Ralph visited in Gate, Okla., with relatives last Sunday and Sunday night, returning home Monday morning.

For every three bushels of wheat the world is using this year, nearly a bushel will go begging for a market. This is the conclusion drawn by Jess Watson of Newcastle, wheat farmer-member of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee which meets monthly at Texas A. and M. College, after a study of records on world wheat production and utilization.

COUNTRIES TO CONTROL WHEAT

EVERY EXPORTING COUNTRY GIVING GOVERNMENT HELP TO INCREASE PRICE OF ITS WHEAT

College Station, Texas—American wheat producers are caught in a situation which finds virtually every exporting country using some form of government assistance to increase the price received by domestic producers.

Mr. Watson, wheat farmer and member of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee with headquarters here, finds this to be true after a study of world wheat production and trade reports.

Despite shrinking outlets for world wheat, the world's major exporting countries have increased acreages and brought the stiffened competition by maintaining production levels.

Under net exporting regions include the United States, Canada, Argentina, Australia and the Lower Danube region.

In the middle '20's, the average wheat acreage in exporting countries, not counting Russia, was around 130 million acres. In the middle '30's, this figure had been increased to 145 million acres, and for the 1937-38 crop year the acreage was 155 million acres greater, or 160 million acres. This increase of the acreage over that of the '20's is about the size of the entire wheat acreage of both Australia and Argentina for the 1937 crop.

While acreage and production levels showed no sign of material decrease, net exports from the exporting countries (excluding Russia) in 1937 dropped 75 million bushels below the average of the middle '20's.

Forms of government assistance being used in the struggle for export markets are as follows:

ARGENTINA: Grain-regulation board purchases wheat at fixed price whenever world prices fall below minimum established by the government. The government has complete control of foreign exchange.

AUSTRALIA: In most years government pays bounties and makes grants to wheat producers.

CANADA: Canadian wheat board from producers at guaranteed minimum price and sells at the best price it can obtain, sharing an export, if any, with participating producers, but charging loss, if any, to the national treasury. Government subsidizes on acreage as well as on price.

DANUBE BASIN COUNTRIES: Complete government control of wheat exports. In these countries the most effective means of moving wheat into export has proved to be a series of treaties of agreements with wheat-exporting countries in Europe.

RUSSIA: All trade in wheat is government controlled.

There Is No Room for "THE OTHER FELLOW" in this Picture!

You can't depend on "The Other Fellow" to harvest your crop. "The Other Fellow" is going to harvest his own crop first.

"The Other Fellow" will "promise" many to harvest their crop.

"The Other Fellow" cannot harvest everybody's crop when it is ready to harvest.

"The Other Fellow" will have a tendency to hurry—so he can get to someone else he has "promised."

"The Other Fellow" is usually after "acres" and not "bushels."

"The Other Fellow" may have a badly worn and inefficient thrasher—even though he may have it painted and looking nice on the outside.

"The Other Fellow" may WASTE enough grain per acre to TAKE ALL THE PROFIT out of a wheat crop.

Strangers moving around the country are undesirable—they have difficulty making their operations pay—they will probably be more scarce this year, and other years in the future, than they have been in the past.

Not considering the Waste and Unprofitability of "The Other Fellow"—Every Dollar paid to him is simply buying a machine and giving it to him instead of keeping what you buy.

FIRESTONE WINS 20th Consecutive Victory In Indianapolis 500-Mile Race

WILBUR SHAW, the 1939 winner

On May 30th, Wilbur Shaw drove to his second victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis Race on Firestone Champion Tires at an average speed of 115.03 miles an hour. Champion race drivers, whose very lives and chances of victory depend on tire safety, know tire construction. That is why they select and buy Firestone Tires for their racing cars.

A merciless sun beat down upon the speedway as Wilbur Shaw drove to victory on Firestone Champion Tires. The blistering brick of the main stretch and the granite-hard surface of the turns and the back stretch put tire safety to the test supreme! Record after record was shattered. Speeds reached as high as 160 miles an hour on the straightaways, as 33 of the fastest drivers in the world waged a breathtaking battle for gold and glory.

Never before in all the history of the motor car have tires been put to such a torturous test. And never before has any tire so firmly established itself as a Champion in construction and performance, as well as in name. Here is dramatic proof of the extra strength which the revolutionary new Safety-Lock cord body provides in Firestone Champion Tires—of the extra protection against blowouts assured by the new and advanced Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process—of the extra mileage resulting from the tougher, wear-resisting rubber compounds in the sensational new Gear-Grip tread.

No longer can there be any question of which tire is safest. One tire—and only one—provides these exclusive safety construction features. One tire—and only one—has been on the winning cars at Indianapolis for 20 consecutive years. Motor car manufacturers enthusiastically adopted the Firestone Champion Tire for their 1939 models. AGE CONTEST ENDING
ON SAT. JUNE 17

The Perryton Motor Company, Chevrolet dealers, through a Metered Mileage Economy Test, is demonstrating the outstanding economy as well as the lively performance of Chevrolet cars. This contest started Saturday June 10 and will close on Saturday, June 17.

The public is invited to enter the contest without charge and without obligation. A. J. Kelly, manager of the Perryton Motor Company, announces that the prizes will include choice of genuine Chevrolet accessories, and will be given each day to the person obtaining the highest mileage. The person, who makes the highest mileage during the 7-day contest, will receive $5.00 worth of accessories of their choice.

The test is open to everyone 18 years old and older, according to Mr. Kelly. A simple scientific device consisting mainly of a glass container holding just one pin, has been devised to enable the driver to watch the gasoline consumed as he drives.

"The test has shown some amazing results," said Mr. Kelly. "It has proved to hundreds of people that in the new Chevrolet they can enjoy fast getaway, peak power on hills and marked economy as well."

Mr. Kelly said that his company would welcome the opportunity to put one of its cars in the hands of any qualified driver desiring to make the Metered Mileage Test. No obligation is involved, he added.

Equalization Board

County Equalization Board Will Convene at the Courthouse
Saturday, July 1

The County Commissioners' Court composed of A. E. Devers, Ben H. Peckpaugh, Fred Tarbox, R. L. Flowers, commissioners, Davy Shanks, judge, and Irvin R. Buchanan, clerk, will sit as a Board of Equalization on Saturday, July 1, at the courthouse. Taxpayers are being notified of the meeting.

According to the records of J. S. Talley, Tax Assessor, the total assessed valuation of the county for last year was $4,847,440. Fred Huston, deputy assessor, states that there will probably be an increase this year of $1,000.

The total assessed valuation for State taxes last year was $4,307,290, and Mr. Huston says that the assessed State valuation for this year will be approximately the same. He added that there might be a slight decrease in state valuation as a few more persons have claimed homestead exemption, as allowed under the Texas Law.

The exact amount of assessed valuation for state and county will not be available until after the meeting of the Equalization Board on July 1. The rate of taxation will not be announced until after the August meeting of the Board. Last year's rate was 90 mills and it is probable the 1939 rate will remain the same.

NO. 2—Continued From Front Page

One would think that from all the "boat angle" bally-hoo that is going with the opening of the Panhandle lake projects that these lakes are being built primarily for speed boats.

Surely it couldn't be possible that the boat manufacturers and dealers are putting a fast bit of publicity over on the good folks of the Panhandle.

Speed boats are all right for those that like them and can afford them but as we look at the matter the lakes will be recreation spots for hundreds of people of the Southwest and but a very small part of them will ever be able to afford or have inclination to own a motor boat.

The greatest function of the Panhandle lakes will be fishing, picnicing, and swimming. From what we have heard of speed boats, they're very harmful to fishing, especially on small bodies of water like our Panhandle lakes.

Senator James A. Mead of New York has sponsored a bill to abolish age limits for civil service employees. He declares it is outrageous to deny employment to men in middle life and feels that Uncle Sam should set a good example by abolishing the age limits.

Commissioner A. E. Devers of Precinct No. 1 is urging all farmers to back furrow along the bar pits as they move their plows and farm equipment from one field to another along the highways. Mr. Devers says that this will kill the weeds and thus remove potential breeding places for grasshoppers. The county does not have funds available for this purpose.

Rhode Island with a total area of 1,248 square miles, less than forty percent larger than Ochiltree County, is the smallest state in the union. This compares with 265,836 square miles, the regal domain of Texas.

During the past few days, we have heard numerous comments on the article in the Amarillo News concerning a 40-bushel wheat crop in Ochiltree county. While this estimate is badly exaggerated, yet there is no reason for some of the severest criticism that some have voiced that such newspaper reports have a definite downward effect on the wheat market.

Personally, we cannot see where there is any serious danger to such report. It certainly does not influence the wheat market, either up or down. Grain dealers base their crop estimates on investigations of scientific crop forecasters who arrive at their estimates after visiting fields in every part of the country. There is no guess work to their system and they certainly do not take into consideration any report from newspapers. Chambers of Commerce, or other untrained estimators.

So just keep your shirt on! You're getting "het" up unnecessarily. The reporter who made the rounds of the fine wheat fields in this county with Judge Dave Shanks didn't hurt the wheat prices one iota with his optimistic view of our prospects. It might cause a few people to come in looking for work, for hauling or cutting and then it might cause a few more peddlers and salesmen to descend upon us, but we consider the good advertising from this report far offsets any ill effect that we might receive.

"General" Jacob S. Coxe, who led an army of unemployed to Washington during the second administration of Grover Cleveland, about 45 years ago, was a conspicuous figure at the recent convention of the Worker's Alliance, held in the auditorium of the Department of Labor at the Nation's Capitol.

Coxe's formula for restoring prosperity is to suspend all taxes for a period of two years; to pay workers at the minimum rate of $200 per month in advance, and to issue $7,000,000,000 in treasury notes to foot the bill. Under this arrangement it would be possible, to balance the budget, he says. Coxe is now past 80 years of age, but is still hale and hearty.

"DUST BOWL" HAS LARGEST MAN-MADE IRRIGATION LAKE IN OKLA.

City, Okla. — (Special)—It may seem, Oklahoma's privately-owned man-made lake is in its Panhandle, called "dust bowl." The lake, being constructed from a lake built on O. W. Tucker's acre farm in 1932, will be 100 feet deep and will furnish water to irrigate the largest tract in the state. The dam is 100 feet high.

The farm is located in the north-tips of Cimarron county, a little more than any other of Oklahoma. It is a land of mesas, hills and buttes, covered with grass and shrubs, which hide many of the ancient civilization in pits, Indian arrow heads, and petrified forests.

In this perfect setting for lakes came Farmer Tucker in May, 1905, to build up a ranching program to be envied by any great plains farmer. About 450 of his 3,200 acres were in cultivation.

Until 10 years ago, his main farming enterprise was livestock, with some alfalfa for pasture and feed.

He learned that to grow good alfalfa a farmer must have moisture and that there wasn't much chance on the average to get enough rainfall there during the year to grow a good crop.

It was then that he decided to use his natural setting for construction of a lake for irrigation purposes. His first irrigation system consisted of a sand earthen dam across North Carizzo Creek. This was unsuccessful, since the loose sand dam had to be rebuilt after every rain.

It was then that "Uncle Bill" Baker, Cimarron county extension agent, came to the assistance of Tucker. "Uncle Bill" and Extension Service engineers of Oklahoma A. and M. College helped construct a dam which was used for two years.

Extension workers then recommended that a break which had occurred in this dam be repaired, that the slopes of the old break be leveled off to solid footing, that new construction be installed and the new unit of dirt be puddled. The dam held water successfully for two years, but Tucker decided it didn't impound enough to irrigate the flat, fertile land lying below his lake.

Again engineers were summoned. Preliminary surveys were made for a new lake and it was found the best place on the ranch was the same location as the small dam then being used.

The shore line was raised 10 feet, so the lake could impound 900 acre-feet of water, covering 100 acres, 35 feet deep in places. It was necessary to move 90,000 cubic yards of dirt.

Tucker purchased a 35 horsepower crawler type of tractor and moved about 25,000 yards of dirt before receiving assistance from outside agencies. Through the cooperation of "Uncle" Bill Baker, Tucker obtained the assistance of the federal water facilities program.

A few minor changes are being made in the conduits, and the upstream side of the dam will be ripped.

The original conduits were designed for reinforced concrete with the intention of installing large pipes to carry the water through the conduits in the future. However, these pipes are going to be installed and the old stone and concrete conduits will be used. The water will flow through the steel pipes out into the head ditches that will carry water to the numerous fields and orchards on the ranch.

Today, Tucker is producing everything from good prime beef white-faced cattle to luscious mushrooms, peaches and other fruits. Alfalfa hay and alfalfa seed and beans are his major crops.

Tucker hopes to continue to plant more of his fertile acres to alfalfa. He is arranging to landscape his farm, using abundant shrubbery, trees and flowers, all of which are wind breaks.

He is stocking his lake with fish. This farmer is convinced that enough rain falls in the Panhandle each year to furnish sufficient moisture for the average farm, if it is harnessed.

At least, Farmer Tucker, who has spent one-third of a century on one ranch in the same county, which each year averages the lowest rainfall of any county in the state has been successful in harnessing enough moisture for the largest alfalfa field in Oklahoma, and, believe it or not, it's in the "dust bowl."

A String of Pearl Beads

MISS MATILDA GREENOW, for the past 25 years treasurer of the Dorcas society, had resigned her position. The news came like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. When the president inquired in her most parliamentary manner, "Is there any discussion?" for a moment there was a stunned silence.

Then Mrs. Almira Tash recovered speech. "My lands!" she exclaimed, "my lands! I never expected Matilda'd give up that job until she died!"

"Me neither," echoed Mrs. Ellen Law, "although she'd oughter resigned years ago. She's always thought she owned the job and she's squeezed the eagle on every dollar we've earned 'fore she spent it, like she does her own. Remember the time she wouldn't let us buy a fonygraph for the parsonage? Said that needed a new hard-wood floor in the kitchen, most?"

The president rapped sharply on the table. "Order," she commanded. "Will somebody please make a motion?"

The motion was made and unanimously seconded that the resignation be accepted at once.

"Should we not add, 'with regret?'" a quiet voice asked. It was Mrs. Richmond suggesting. Mrs. Richmond was a new member, and had never entered into discussion before. "I think," she went on, still quietly, "that after 25 years of service it would be only courteous to add 'with regret.'"

"We don't regret—we're glad, so why lie about it?" demanded Mrs. Tash, with disconcerting bluntness.

"Why," Mrs. Richmond hesitated, "would you call it lying? Courtesy does come mighty near falsehood sometimes, but the fact that it makes people happier separates it from deceit, I think. I believe we should add 'with regret,' and I also believe we should present Miss Matilda a little gift. So strongly do I feel that I am right that I make it a motion, Madame President, that we all contribute 50 cents towards a gift for her."

"My lands!" ejaculated Mrs. Tash.

There was considerable discussion before the matter really came to a vote. At first, it was mostly against the plan but gradually Mrs. Richmond talked it over. When the vote was cast there was but one dissenting voice. Mrs. Tash stuck valiantly to her guns and refused to surrender.

"Now, what'll we give her?" demanded somebody.

"I suggest that Mrs. Richmond select the gift. She seems to know just how to do it," spoke up Mrs. Law, sarcastically.

"I'd be glad to do so," Mrs. Richmond laughed to herself. It was just what she had counted on doing from the first. "And I'll tell you what it will be—a string of pearl beads!"

"A string of pearl beads! On Matilda Greenow! My lands!"

"Once," continued Mrs. Richmond, gently, "Miss Matilda came to my house on an errand and my beads lay on the table. She picked them up and said, 'Aren't they sweet? I love pearl beads. All my life I've wanted a string and couldn't have them. So I just keep on loving and admiring other people's.' If you could have seen how she looked at them—so—so—hungrily! Now it happens my beads are handsome, but inexpensive. I can easily duplicate them with the money we will have to spend."

The society voted for the beads and adjourned. On the way home it suddenly occurred to the president that they had neglected to nominate a new treasurer.

If it hadn't been that Miss Matilda was called out of town to nurse shiftless Ira through the grippe, it is doubtful if the presentation of the gift would have been the surprise it was.

It was Mrs. Richmond who drew the necklace out of the box and slipped it around Miss Matilda's wrinkled neck. "We hope you'll like them," she said simply, and kissed the faded old cheek, tenderly.

"Pearl beads!" Miss Matilda began to sob. "Pearl beads! How lovely! All my life I've wanted some—all my life!" She sat quite still for a minute, pressing her handkerchief to her eyes. "It's worth all the trouble of 25 years, and what's worth more is to know that you appreciate me. Sometimes I've sorter wondered if you didn't want to get rid of me. But you're sorry. I'm going—awful sorry! Who," she looked up quickly, with a little bird-like motion, "who is going to take my place?"

"We haven't selected anybody yet," said the president.

"Then you won't have to. After what you've said and done for me, I'd be the most ungrateful critter alive if I resigned now. I'll be treasurer of the Dorcas society until the Lord Himself sees fit to remove me, to prove how I appreciate your kindness."

For a moment there was silence. Then Mrs. Richmond began to clap. She was laughing a little and crying a little, but she clapped insistently and one by one the other members joined her—even Mrs. Tash herself, although her approbation was feeble.

So Miss Matilda stayed!

ACT BENEFITS HOME BUYERS

AMENDED FHA AFFORDS AMERICAN FAMILIES A CHANCE TO CONTINUE HOME CONSTRUCTION

Dallas, Texas—The amended National Housing Act, signed by the President on June 3, is designed to continue, with modifications, the liberalized home financing program begun in February last year under the National Housing Act amendment of 1938, states Wm. H. Clark, Jr., State Director, today.

He said, "Its enactment should give renewed assurance to the residential construction industry, and to individual home buyers and builders who may have been holding up plans because of uncertainty regarding the future of the FHA. In other words, they may go forward with confidence that virtually all the financing facilities available to them in the past year will still be at their disposal."

As the Senate Banking and Currency Committee pointed out in its report recommending passage of the amended Act, "Such continuance directly concerns the orderly progress of recovery and employment and the opportunity of American families to obtain better living standards."

Principal features of the amended Act are:

1. Authorization for the President to increase to $4,000,000,000 the amount of outstanding mortgage insurance obligations the FHA may have at one time. The present limitation is $3,000,000,000, and the outstanding principal obligation at this time is approximately $1,400,000,000, not including approximately $400,000,000 in outstanding commitments to insure.

2. Continuation of the FHA's authority to insure mortgages on existing construction until July 1, 1941. Homes financed with FHA-insured mortgages will continue to be eligible for FHA financing indefinitely.

3. Requirement that in the refinancing of mortgages the applicant for insurance must file a certificate that the mortgage holder has refused to grant him equally favorable terms.

4. Extension indefinitely of the authority of the FHA to insure mortgages on small homes involving mortgages of not more than $5,400 for terms up to 25 years. Under the old bill the maximum maturity of 25 years reverted to 20 years, as of July 1st.

5. Authorization to continue insurance of lending institutions against loss of property improvements loans up to $2,500 each with a new provision empowering the Administrator to charge an insurance premium not in excess of three-fourths of one per cent to off-set a portion of operation expenses and losses.

6. Establishment of a prevailing wage scale to be determined by the Secretary of Labor on large-scale projects (Section 207).

7. Revision of the conditions under which insurance may be granted on mortgages covering large-scale projects.

8. Repeal of Section 210 under which the Administrator was authorized to insure mortgages under special conditions in the price range up to $200,000.

Water and Salt Control Grazing

Proper location of stock water ponds and salt licks is doing much to improve grass land in the Southern Great Plains. Livestock will travel as far to reach a salt supply as they will for water. Distribution of water holes over the range and location of salting places in remote spots, as shown in lower picture, result in better utilization of grass and guard against overgrazing. In carrying out the program of better range management in the plains region the Soil Conservation Service has aided ranchers and farmers in constructing more than 1,200 ponds similar to that shown at top.

GRASS, WATER IS IMPORTANT

GOOD RANGE MANAGEMENT IS ESSENTIAL TO RANCHING INDUSTRY IN PANHANDLE OF TEXAS

Amarillo, Texas, June 15—Good range management whereby the best utilization of grass is made and soil and water are conserved is essential to the permanence of the ranching industry in the Texas Panhandle, declares H. H. Pinnell, regional conservator of the Soil Conservation Service.

"Once overgrazing has depleted the grass, the normal carrying capacity of the range is decreased," Pinnell points out. "When grass is killed because of drought or continued misuse, the land owner faces a reversion problem which is a slow and costly process," he continues.

One of the best methods for obtaining even distribution of grazing and to guard against overgrazing in spots is through the proper location of stock water ponds and salting places. It is pointed out. Where there are too few water holes, livestock are inclined to graze intensively near the pond or tank and neglect good grass on other parts of the range.

Constant grazing near a pond results in the soil being pulverized by the hoofs of the livestock with the result that silt soon reduces the storage capacity of the reservoir. Often such spots may become serious blow hazards where wind erosion is a problem, Pinnell says.

Stock will go as far to reach a salt supply as they will go for water, it is pointed out, so by locating salt licks in spots far removed from water, stock can be encouraged to graze evenly over the entire range.

In addition to serving an important purpose in preservation of the range, stock ponds can contribute to flood control by retaining water that otherwise would go downstream. Fencing of stock pond dams protects the structures from damage by trampling of livestock and often aids in the establishment of wildlife habitats. In cooperation with ranchers and farmers of the Southern Great Plains, the Soil Conservation Service has aided in construction of more than 1,200 dams within recent years, Pinnell reports.

State Park Fishing

Texas State Parks Board Gives Information on Fishing in State Parks

Many inquiries have been received by the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission concerning fishing in the State Parks of Texas, which are under the jurisdiction of the Texas State Parks Board. The opening of the season in these parks varies according to the conditions of the weather each spring. This year the parks were opened to fishing May 1 but the closing date has not been determined. A charge of 50 cents per day for each person fishing in the State Park lakes is made.

WATER PLANTS ONCE A WEEK

AUTHORITY STATES FLOWERS DO BETTER IF WATERED THOROUGHLY ONCE EACH WEEK

College Station, Texas—Watering flowers a little every night may be fun, says J. F. Rosborough, horticulturist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, but the flowers will do better if they are watered thoroughly once a week and allowed to dry out somewhat in between times.

A summer mulch of peat moss or a similar mulch will prove more than worthwhile in holding back weeds, keeping the soil cooler, and reducing surface evaporation. A more robust plant and larger, brighter flowers will result.

Some plants will do better if they are pinched back when they are six to eight inches high. Such plants as the minnia will develop into a much bushier plant if this method is used.

Another pointer listed by Rosborough is the removing of blooms. As blooms reach their prime they should be removed before they have a chance to go to seed. This will not only result in more blooms, but a longer blooming period.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McDonald and sons, E. D. and Stanley, of Oklahoma City were guests over the week-end with Mrs. McDonald's sister, Mrs. L. T. Tucker and family.

Guymon Votes

Voters Approve $20,000 New School Building Of Three to One

The election held in Guymon, Thursday, June 8, turned out an overwhelming victory favoring the construction of a junior high school building to place the ancient and dilapidated structure now being used as a common definitely took a forward in the interest of progress.

An even larger majority placed the ten-mill excess levy to provide additional funds for maintenance of a full term of school.

The $20,000 which the voters will provide will be used for material, skilled labor and engineering the completed building. $20,000 which the government will largely go for labor, while an estimated worth of material will be from the wreckage of the structure which is now well over 50 years old.—The Panhandle Guymon, Okla.

County Council

Delegates Elected to Shortcourse
Saturday When Club Women
For Regular Session

"Miss Ruby Mashburn, District 1 home demonstration agent, highly complimented the club reporters on their reports for the first months of the year," stated Mrs. Hazel Martin, county home demonstration agent, at the County Council meeting on Saturday, June 10 at the courthouse.

"The reports from Ochiltree County were outstanding in District 1. The second meetings where the women themselves plan and carry out the program were particularly well written, interesting and informational. Some reports written by Julia Hamilton, Mrs. Jack Dodson, and Mrs. Curtis Roach were marked 'especially good,'" continued Mrs. Martin.

A training school on "Control of Flies" will be held Tuesday, June 27, at 2:00 o'clock at the courthouse. The reporter's association will meet Friday, June 30, 2:30 o'clock at the courthouse.

Ochiltree County club women will be heard over KGNC, Amarillo, at 1:30 o'clock, June 17. "Yard improvement" will be discussed by a yard demonstrator from each of the clubs as the theme of the thirty minute program.

Mrs. J. R. Stump, Council Chairman, and Mrs. Jack Dodson, county girls 4-H sponsor were elected delegates to attend the annual A. & M. Shortcourse in July. Mrs. Wayne Lovett and Mrs. Jim Dodson were named alternates. The 4-H boys and girls meeting is July 5-6-7 and the adult July 12-13-14.

Those present were: Mrs. G. W. Holton, Joplin, Missouri, guest; Mesdames Blain Carter, James Hardy, McMillen; A. W. Henry, C. O. Roach, Missouri Avenue; Alvin Koehn, Al Ackley, New Hope; Kirt Williams, Claude Crouch, Jack Dodson, Jim Dodson, Ochiltree; J. R. Stump, Van E. Steed, Fred Butler, Waka; Wm. Boston, B. B. Mrs. Groves, one of the kitchen demonstrators, has added many new conveniences during the past month including kitchen sink with basket type drain, knife holder, shelves, curtains and other kitchen accessories which add color and convenience to her kitchen.

Present for the meeting were Mrs. Fred Butler, Mrs. J. R. Stump, Mrs. V. E. Steed, Mrs. D. E. Teeters, Mrs. Howard Brillhart, Mrs. H. N. Elledge, Mrs. C. B. Barber, Mrs. Jim Dodson, Mrs. Hazel Martin, Mrs. Ray G. Burger, Miss Bonnie Elledge, Miss Nadine Barber, and the hostess Mrs. Groves.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley D. Key and sons were guests Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Whippo.

PERRYTON CLUB

Mrs. B. B. Lee, Reporter
"The fathers duty in the home is to provide for the family so as mothers let us be careful not to burden him with other responsibilities that we should take care of," remarked Mrs. W. M. Boston, club president, at the meeting of the Perryton Home Demonstration club in the home of Mrs. M. P. Hethcock on Friday, June 9.

"Let us as homemakers try to assume the responsibilities of the home and children. Men like to be met with a smile and have the children play around him and enjoy his company the few hours he is home instead of having to punish them for mistakes they have made during the day. The parents should discuss with the children the problems of the home and let them help overcome the obstacles," further stated Mrs. Boston.

Other program numbers were: reading, "I Love My Daddy," Nelda Ruth Patton; reading, "A Package of Seeds," Ruby Ann Patton; scripture Luke 15:11-32, Mrs. Baumann; round table discussion of "Father's Responsibility in the Home" led by Mrs. Jeffroy; "Some Famous Fathers," Mrs. Patton. "The ventilated pantry should be a part of the storage and preparation center," stated Mrs. Hazel Martin, county home demonstration agent, at the meeting of the McMillen Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. R. A. Flowers, June 12.

"The bottom vent should be beneath the house and top vent extended into the attic. Adjustable slat or screened shelves make a nice place for potatoes and fruits that need the air to circulate about them," further stated Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Martin stated that the yard demonstrators of the Ochiltree County Home Demonstration clubs will present a radio program from KGNC, Amarillo, at 1:30 p. m., Saturday, June 17.

Those present were: visitors, Misses Patty Martin, Ruby Hardy, Faye Hardy, and Lois Flowers, and members, Mesdames Samuel McLain, A. C. Dial, Fred Tarbox, B. E. Plummer, James Hardy, Harvey Urban, J. L. Flowers, Willis Hardy, R. A. Flowers and Mesdames Elda Hardy and Julia Hamilton.

NEW HOPE CLUB HAS AN

ALL DAY MEET JUNE 21

Mrs. Ivan Lovett will be hostess of the New Hope Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. W. L. Lovett, Wednesday, June 21, for an all day meeting. Visitors are always welcome.

NEW HOPE CLUB

Mrs. Albert Ackley, Reporter

"The modern kitchen should have a convenient place for everything and everything in its place," stated Mrs. Hazel Martin, Home Demonstration Agent, at the meeting of the New Hope Home Demonstration Club, held in the home of Mrs. Lorena Kutch, June 7.

Your food storage space should be near and convenient to your preparation center. All utensils necessary in food preparation should be stored at hand. The cooking and serving centers should be near each other, so that no extra steps are necessary. It is wise to have a moisture-proof container for everything that is bought in paper sacks.

There was a short business meeting, during which Mrs. W. L. Lovett was elected the New Hope nominee for a trip to Short Course at A. & M. College. After the meeting was dismissed the club sponsored a stork shower for Mrs. Carl Carter.

The visitors present were Mrs. W. T. Lackey, Mrs. E. V. Lackey, Mrs. Fendorf Schubert, Mrs. Paul Corbin, and Mrs. M. P. Hethcock. The members present were Mesdames Carl Carter, Alvin Koehn, Gus Koehn, C. R. Cudd, C. J. Prantz, R. E. Taylor, W. L. Lovett, Ivan L. Lovett, M. M. Cudd, Albert Ackley Hazel Martin and the hostess.

PERRYTON CLUB

Mrs. B. B. Lee, Reporter

"The fathers duty in the home is to provide for the family so as mothers let us be careful not to burden him with other responsibilities that we should take care of," remarked Mrs. W. M. Boston, club president, at the meeting of the Perryton Home Demonstration club in the home of Mrs. M. P. Hethcock on Friday, June 9.

"Let us as homemakers try to assume the responsibilities of the home and children. Men like to be met with a smile and have the children play around him and enjoy his company the few hours he is home instead of having to punish them for mistakes they have made during the day. The parents should discuss with the children the problems of the home and let them help overcome the obstacles," further stated Mrs. Boston.

Other program numbers were: reading, "I Love My Daddy," Nelda Ruth Patton; reading, "A Package of Seeds," Ruby Ann Patton; scripture Luke 15:11-32, Mrs. Baumann; round table discussion of "Father's Responsibility in the Home" led by Mrs. Jeffroy; "Some Famous Fathers," Mrs. Patton. Roll call was answered by "My Father's Hobby."

Delicious refreshments were served to Mrs. D. K. Baumann, Mrs. Lake Patton, Mrs. Roy Jeffroy, Mrs. W. M. Boston, Mrs. Walter Keim, Mrs. J. L. Dodson, Mrs. B. B. Lee, and the hostess, Mrs. Hethcock.

PERRYTON H. D. CLUB

U. S. Fights Deforestation With Big Planting Program

Top photo shows one-operation seeder at work on a tree farm. Lower, what a man-made forest looks like a few years after planting.

UNCLE SAM'S planting problem makes the ordinary man-size job of putting one or two trees in the ground look like a tiny task in comparison.

The United States is engaged in planting 170 million trees this year—a program which is on a coast-to-coast basis, is the greatest single planting project in the nation's history. It's in answer to depletion of timber resources—through forest fires, erosion, ruthless cutting. Because the lake states have been hardest hit proportionately, Michigan will lead the parade with nearly 50 million pine—white, Norway, red, and jack varieties.

Wisconsin will get 30 million of the same species; Minnesota is to get 10 million pine and spruce. Louisiana and Mississippi will split a 50-million quota of longleaf and loblolly pine, black walnut, and locust. On the Pacific coast, California and Washington are to receive many million seedlings of various commercially valuable pines. The Rocky mountains are slated for reforestation of the beautiful giant pine.

Taking pine as a good example, here's how the job is accomplished.

In autumn, CCC crews collect pine cones. At a nursery, the cones are placed in a kiln, kept at a temperature between 120 and 150 degrees. In less than eight hours, the cones open and are transferred to a shaker, which rattles out the seed. Unfertilized seed is weeded out, and a sound stock is placed in airtight

Marcia's Boys

By FLORENCE MELLISH
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Service.

"IT'S from Marcia," said Mrs. Lawton, scanning the letter. "She says Jerry drops a little. The doctor says he needs country air. She wants to send him here for a month, and, as the two boys are inseparable, Waldo will have to come with him."

Her husband laid down his pipe. "Inseparable from mischief! I used to be allowed to read a little green book Sunday afternoons. It was about some children, and wherever those children went in-bred sin went with them."

His wife laughed. "Marcia's boys are older than they were two years ago, and they'll know more."

"More mischief," he assented. "How soon are they coming?" he asked with gloomy resignation.

"Tomorrow, Henry. Marcia's brother-in-law will be driving through Chilton, and he can leave them here."

"Oh, yes. Let 'em come." Henry had risen from his chair. "Well, I'll go out and begin to look up things."

"Do, Henry—all the paint, and everything they can cut themselves, or each other, with. I only hope they won't upset our new boarder. He seems a bit nervous and sensitive-like."

The boys arrived just before dinner. Jerry did look large-eyed and thin, Waldo smug and fat, as usual. During the meal they were silently ravenous. Chops and vegetables, doughnuts and berry pie, vanished before them. Dr. Frye, hurrying in a moment late, presumably from a round of scaring up patients, was hungry too.

"My middle name is Doughnut," he smiled apologetically as he accepted one of the crisp, plump brown rings for the third time.

"I mustn't let these little fellows get homesick," thought Aunt Rachel. "I'll make some fudge for them after dinner."

Just as she was pouring the boiling syrup into the pans, Katy rushed in from the back yard.

"Those boys have broken up the setting hen and broken down the wire clothes-line."

"Mercy! You see to this and I'll see to the boys."

Speckle was persuaded to resume her duties, the wire line was righted and Mrs. Lawton gave each of the boys three cakes of fudge, taking the precaution to put the rest on a high shelf in the pantry.

"Now you play with your things on this nice table your uncle has fixed for you. Stay right there in the shade. There's a new boy in the next house coming over to play with you and by and by we'll all go for a nice ride."

She dropped on the couch in the living room for half an hour's sleep. She seemed scarcely to have closed her eyes when Waldo appeared at the window.

"Aunt Rachel."

"What is it, Waldo?"

"I guess you'll have to make some more fudge. Jerry has eaten it all up."

Aunt Rachel sat up. "But it was on the top shelf."

"He climbed up. Jerry can get anywhere. He's got a slumstick ache and he's crying."

She rose and ministered to Jerry with peppermint and hot ginger tea.

"Now you stay here and keep out of mischief. You can cut the pictures out of these magazines. There comes the new boy. I hope he's a good boy."

"What's his name?" from Waldo.

"Percy Lamb."

She left the three boys happy in the destruction of the magazines, thinking she might venture a little more sleep. Katy had gone to the dentist. Waldo's head appeared at the window.

"Aunt Rachel, may we have some doughnuts out under the tree?"

"Yes," she answered drowsily. "But Jerry mustn't eat more than one."

She heard the new boy asking the others: "What's the worst thing you can have?"

"Chubbins," said Waldo.

"Croup," said Jerry.

"Grandpa has lumbago," Waldo suggested.

Then Aunt Rachel dropped asleep. Percy Lamb was printing large letters on a sheet of brown paper.

"What's the doctor's first name?"

"He won't tell," from Waldo.

"His middle name is Doughnut," from Jerry.

"That's all right," said Percy, printing vigorously.

"I've got a pocketful of licks," said Waldo. "I brought 'em from home."

"Good. Got a hammer?"

"No, but a stone's almost as good."

Mrs. Lawton had slept a little longer than she had intended. She sat up and looked out.

"I wonder why everybody who goes by looks at the elm tree and laughs. And what a procession of children, all eating doughnuts. Those boys must have emptied the jar."

She sprang up and hastened out by the veranda door. The new boy had left the others and was half way to the sidewalk.

"Must you go, Percy?" she called.

He turned. "I guess my mother'll be wanting me."

"Good-by, then."

Cold Meat Platter for Summer

For the hostess who wishes to entertain a larger group of friends than her dining room can comfortably accommodate, the fashion of serving buffet meals solves a problem. The food can be attractively arranged on a long table, then carried to small tables set up where most convenient, possibly in the living room, in summer time upon the porch. The food can be prepared well ahead of time, and the guests do part of the serving themselves. Both of these features are an aid to the homemaker who does most of the work herself.

A buffet service can be very pretty. Linens, silver, china, flowers, candles, all contribute their beauty to the picture. And the food itself of course should be well worth its lovely setting. Remember that the appetites of the guests must be satisfied, says Inez S. Wilson, home economist, and that the food must be as tasty as it is decorative. See to it that the menu is well balanced. Have all the little "extras" you desire, but also serve food that will really satisfy as well as tempt. This is especially desirable if there are men in your party.

A platter of assorted cold meats and one hot dish, such as a creamed vegetable, will serve as a good basis for your buffet meal. See that this hot dish does not contain too much lipid. Escalloped potatoes or corn are good selections. Or perhaps you will want to serve a tempting potato salad. A gelatin salad of vegetables or fruits fits in well, also, and is easy to serve. Dessert and a beverage will complete the feast. With the cold meat, you may serve slices of buttered bread so that the guests can make sandwiches if they wish. Slices of cold roast meat and meat loaf, cooked at home, may be used.

along with an assortment of ready-cooked meats and various sausage slices. This you will give your guests a wide choice and also you will have a very attractive looking platter. By alternating light and dark meats, and arranging the slices in a neat design, emphasized by crisp, colorful garnishes of radish roses, celery curls, olives, sprigs of parsley, or any other tempting and decorative tidbits of your choice, you can make this the real high light of your buffet "spread."

The Girl Who Was Plain

By ETHEL HEWEY
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Service.

NORMAN HARDY opened the door to B. N.'s office, stuck his head in, and remarked: "I saw that girl."

B. N. looked up over his spectacles. "How is she? Do you think she is all right?"

"No," Norman was extremely indifferent. "No, she's a dumb-bell. I didn't hire her. She's as homely as a rail fence."

"I don't care what she looks like, if she can do the work," B. N. mumbled.

Norman closed the door and went upstairs to his office, where his own girls were anxiously awaiting his return with the verdict.

For Bessie—their beloved Bessie—had just married and gone away to live, and her place had not yet been filled. It had come to the point, however, where they must have a girl for Bessie's chair.

Norman had interviewed a dozen or more applicants who came in answer to his "ad" in a morning paper. All of these applicants had been sent away.

Then came a letter from Julia, neatly penned, carefully worded, brief, concise.

Norman had taken it to B. N. immediately and B. N. suggested that Norman call on Julia on his way back from lunch. "There's your girl, I guess," he had prophesied. "That letter sounds like business."

But one look at Julia had convinced Norman that she was not the girl.

Back in his office, all eyes were focused on him. Lenora's questioning eyes followed him till he felt compelled to answer.

"Absolutely nothing doing," he told her in an undertone, but Jessie's straining ears had caught the words.

"Didn't you hire her? What's the matter? What does she look like?" she asked, all in one breath.

"She is the ugliest creature I ever saw," Norman said. "Her face is a mess, and her clothes don't hang together; she's fat and sloppy, and—oh, well, I didn't hire her, anyway."

"I'm glad you didn't," Lenora said, sympathetically. "We'd all hate the sight of her, I'm sure. We don't want anybody in here, who isn't good-looking, do we, girls?"

Meantime, B. N., who, as office manager, claimed the privilege of hiring or firing as he saw fit or felt the urge, took it upon himself to call upon Julia Foster.

Julia had said in her letter that she was a graduate comptometer operator, and that was just what the cost department needed to keep up their extensive records which required so much computation.

He found Julia. He hired her. What did it matter if Norman didn't like to look at her? Perhaps he'd put more time on his job if he didn't have so many good-looking girls around him.

For Norman was young, and Norman was fond of good-looking girls. He couldn't, or, at least, he didn't, conceal the fact.

So Monday morning Julia was there. The girls of the whole office force each took one look and disappeared, to gather, as if by some silent call, in the dressing room, where they discussed Julia in excited voices. She was all that Norman said, and more.

Julia did look dumb! There's no question about it.

Norman was a little overcome when he was informed that she was coming, but by the time she arrived he had recovered his aplomb and had arranged for her to have desk room at a long table in the nearly empty room at the head of the stairs.

Julia made no comment at this, but began her work quietly and efficiently. At the comptometer, she was a clipper. Neither Norman nor the girls was willing to admit her efficiency, and all with one accord piled the work on to her. All computations of over two figures were given her to do, and the poor girl pounded that machine almost unceasingly from morning till night.

At night, her shoulders sagged and her eyelids drooped. She was unmistakably tired. But she was plain, homely, born to work. That's all she could do, so why shouldn't she do all she could of that? Not one of the girls would have confessed to jealousy, yet any one of them would have given half her kingdom to possess the ability that Julia had.

Day after day, for nearly three weeks, they continued to persecute her. Not once during this time did she utter a word of complaint. No matter what they brought her she did it and said nothing.

One day, however, Lenora's sense of justice came to the surface. She informed Norman that Julia wasn't so bad looking when one got used to her.

"She is really not so bad, you know. She seems pleasant, in spite of her plainness."

"And you know as well as I do," she added, "that she is doing all the hard work of this department. It would be more fair of us to give her a chance at something else."

"You win," sighed Norman. "I ain't fair to Julia, I know, and I am getting used to her plainness. She has brains, anyway."

The next morning Julia occupied Bessie's chair.

Weekend Travel Shoots Accident Rate Skyward

On the highways, Sunday is the most dangerous day of the week and the hours from 6 until midnight are the most perilous hours of each day. These conclusions are drawn from an analysis of America's highway accident record for 1938, published in "Least We Regret," the ninth annual booklet issued in the interests of street and highway safety by the Travelers Insurance Company.

Next to Sunday, Saturday is the most hazardous day of the week to venture out on the highways. Fewest accidents happen on Tuesday and Wednesday. An unexplainable fact revealed by the figures is that although there are more persons killed on Sundays, there are more injuries on Saturdays.

More persons are killed in traffic accidents between the hours of seven and eight o'clock in the evening than at any other hour of the day. The high point for injuries is between four and six o'clock in the afternoon, indicating that dusk, darkness and fatigue are strong contributing factors in bringing the accident curve to its peak toward the close of the day.

Texas State Highway Commission Asks The Public's Help In Protecting Flowers

Austin, Texas — HARRY HINES, member of the Texas Highway Commission, in addressing the Wild Flower Show at Stephenville recently stated that Texas is known to be very rich in natural resources, but the fact is not so well known that Texas is also the leading state in the production of native wild flowers, having over 5,000 native species of plants.

This state also having wider areas of pasture and meadow lands, offers a wonderful background for the growth and display of its native flowers; these flowers literally march in battalions across miles of our prairies, undulating over hills and valleys, covering the entire landscape as far as the eye can see. Visitors to Texas in the springtime are enthusiastic over its far-flung carpets of radiant hued flowers.

The Texas Highway Department was perhaps the first organization to enter on a large scale into a concerted plan for the preservation of the native flora. To this end, the Department has instructed its maintenance men to refrain from mowing the roadsides until after the wild flowers have finished their blooming and the seeds have matured. This permits the seeds to distribute themselves over the landscape, or enables the workmen to harvest whatever seeds they desire for distribution over areas where no flowers are now growing, and of recent years we have sown many tons of these seeds. These flowers along our rights-of-way not only charm the eye and add variety to an otherwise perhaps monotonous road, but they serve a very utilitarian purpose—that of erosion control.

There has been some slight criticism at times by folk who thought that we took money for beautification that should go into road building, they not knowing that the money spent in beautification or landscaping was furnished by the Federal Government for that purpose alone and could not be used for road building.

All employees of the State Highway Department, said Mr. Hines, have received training in the preservation of the wild life of the state until the entire personnel has become flower, tree and shrub conscious, which has resulted in greater beauty along the highways and over the landscapes. It is highly important that the general public also become conscious of our wild flower beauty along the roadsides and assist in its preservation.

As Jas. Gubbels, Landscape Architect of State Highway Department, we also said: Texas has the climate, scenery, and wild flowers as a sufficient justification for a heavy tourist travel, particularly during the spring months when our native flowers—spring's hieroglyphics—are at the height of their blooming period. Florally speaking, Texas is at its best during the months of April and May, for it is then that our State Flower, the lovely Bluebonnet, flings its cloak of purple and blue to the breezes, intriguing the artist and poet alike who vie with each other to sing its praises on canvas and rhyme; the layman likewise, with possibly less tangible expression, appreciates it breath taking beauty.

It is interesting to know that thousands of people travel long distances to other states than their own to see beautiful flowers. The pilgrimages to Texas wild flowers, its Rose Festival, the Dogwood Season, that of the Red Buds of Texas, our Oleander Festival, and many others, have attracted thousands each year from outside Texas. Mr. McDonald, the bachelor of Paris, Texas, who will over $800,000.00 to Texas for the Davis Mountain Observatory, was known to travel clear to Canada just to see one species of flower concerning which he had read but not seen.

Besides the bluebonnets, there are fields of Indian paint brush, yellow blankets of coreopsis, lavender and purple prairies of phlox and verbena, marsh lands filled with water hyacinths, blue iris and spider lily, roadsides lined with Mexican poppies, huiets and sweet williams. These are also fragrant pink primroses bloom throughout the summer, which violet, rain lilies, and a host of other various colored wild flowers to gladden the heart of those who go afield to seek their fragrance and charm.

Among the native shrubs, there are gold flowered parkinsonia, violet-headed desert willow, orchid-toned leucophyllum, the ever popular dogwood, the red bud, the first to greet the springtime, salt cedar, and a long list of other colorful shrubs that gladden our landscapes.

Mr. Hines stressed the fact that: If every citizen of this state should become conscious of this native beauty, and takes care to preserve it, refraining from tearing up plants by their roots, or stripping blossoms from the wild beauty of the woodlands, soon the fame of the native flora of this state will become known throughout the nation, encouraging even more visitors to come to view them.

One of the ways in which the average citizen may acquaint himself with the wealth of native plant life in Texas is to take up the study of it as a hobby; this can become a most fascinating experience as well as an educational one. For instance, it is interesting to know that there are four different species of bluebonnets in this state—two species in central Texas, one in east Texas, and one in west Texas. There are eleven species of Indian paint brush in this state; it is enlightening too to know that the so-called pink buttercups which bloom practically all through the summer in Texas, are not true buttercups at all, but are evening primroses. The red wine-cups on our western prairies belong to the cotton plant family, and few people know that the showy red hibiscus flower is a relative of the humble okra family. Thus you see that there is much interest, entertain and instruct in the study of our native plant life.

The public can do in the way of cooperation with the Wild Life Flower Show, the State Highway Department and other nature-loving groups, to protect the natural beauty of our roadsides. Last year 75,000 people visited the thirty wild flower shows sponsored by the State Highway Department over the state, and I feel very sure that these people went away with a different regard for the importance and utility ty of our native plant life in practical highway maintenance and roadside enjoyment.

The out-of-doors is everybody's playground let us, therefore, help to preserve it and retain its natural charm. On our excursions through the woodlands, or motoring along the highways, let us leave the blossoms as we find them, remembering that we are privileged to enjoy them because of the consideration of those who have passed along ahead of us, who did not destroy or carry them away. So let us also be considerate of those who are to follow after us; let us leave the flowers there for others to enjoy, instead of ruthlessly tearing them up to fade away even before we can get them to our homes.

Fall rains, of course, are the most important factor to produce a wealth of spring flowers, and this is therefore left for nature to supply. However, man can lend his support in realizing the importance of himself and the public becoming flower-conscious; without an appreciation on the part of the public, and the public's protection of our wild flowers, all the rains in the world cannot prevent the extermination of certain wild flowers, (as is almost true of the blue bell), if the public fails to conserve such wild life. Mr. Hines paid tribute to the Women's Organizations of Texas and other interested citizens when he said that: There is a heartening note when we learn of the activities of the various garden clubs throughout the state, the photography clubs, school and civic organizations, and private citizens who are becoming flower-conscious and seeking information regarding our native plant life. Let us unitedly plan for a full cooperation to make Texas the bright beauty spot of the nation.

LET'S DO THIS "IT'S UP TO US TO LOOK OUT FOR EACH OTHER"

Courtesy Hudson Motor Car Company

The approach of school vacation days—bicycle time—roller skating time—once again places the accent on safety for the nation's youth in the minds of the motoring public. W. A. James, Advertising and Merchandising Manager of the Hudson Motor Car Company, declared today.

In urging the adoption of an "It's up to us to look out for each other" frame of mind in the prevention of accidents involving children playing in the streets, James cited a simple formula:

"Let's make a deal, Bud," says the man in the car. "I'll drive carefully—and keep my eyes open for boys and girls in the street."

"O. K.—I'll be watching out for you," says the boy on the bike. "I'm giving cars plenty of room, and not taking any chances."

ADVICE GIVEN TO MOTORISTS

VACATIONERS TRAVELING OUT OF TEXAS SHOULD OBTAIN LETTER ON EXTENSION DRIVERS' LICENSE

Austin, June 13—State police were ready today to give vacationers "diplomatic immunity" when they travel through other states with Texas out-dated driver's licenses.

If motorists planning out-of-state trips will contact their district highway patrol headquarters, they will receive letters declaring their driver's licenses are still good even though they bear an April expiration date. Licenses were indefinitely extended pending action by the Texas legislature in writing a new license law.

Police in most large cities have been notified of the license extensions, but Texans have encountered trouble with officers in smaller communities, according to reports to state police. The explanatory letters will not take the place of driver's licenses, state police warned.

The highway patrol has district headquarters at Austin, Dallas, Abilene, Wichita Falls, Amarillo, Lubbock, Pecos, San Angelo, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Houston, Tyler, Harlingen, Fort Worth, Waco and Beaumont.

Mrs. J. M. North was in Amarillo Sunday and Monday visiting in the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Claybrook.

PLENTY OF EGGS FOR COOKING NEED IN DIET FOR ALL AGES

In early days, according to legend, man worshipped the egg and regarded it as a symbol of good fortune. Later on, with the domestication of the fowl, he began to value the egg less for its symbolism—more for the pleasure and nourishment he got from eating it.

Today, the egg is rated by nutrition experts as one of the "protective foods." Research has shown that its fragile shell covers a combination of many of the nutrients necessary to safeguard the health of human beings.

Egg yolk is one of the first foods added to the infant's diet. Four to five eggs a week are a desirable inclusion in the food of young children. And adults find it to their advantage to eat two or three a week besides those used in the family cooking. Specifically the food value of an egg lies in its protein, its minerals and its vitamins. Eggs are very rich in iron, a mineral we often lack in our diets. Egg protein is of high quality—the efficient kind necessary in the structure of body tissues.

Eggs are also an excellent source of vitamin A and they contain vitamins B, G, and D. The vitamin D content varies considerably, from high to low, depending upon the food the hen eats. Eggs are a good source of calcium and are very rich in phosphorus.

In cooking eggs and egg dishes temperature is most important. When the protein in egg is heated it coagulates or becomes firm. If this heating takes place slowly, evenly, at a moderate temperature, the protein in them shrinks and makes the eggs tough.

Good cooks have various ways of controlling the temperature. If they are making an omelet for instance, they may use a smooth, heavy pan over low heat.

A double boiler is necessary for other mixtures cooked on top of the stove. If the mixture in the boiler is a soft custard the water in the lower part must be below rather than at the boiling point.

To keep a baked custard or a soufflé at this constant temperature, put it on a rack in a pan of hot water. The oven temperature is moderate.

Eggs cooked in the shell may be started in cold water and then brought to a temperature just below the boiling point. It takes about thirty minutes to hard-cook eggs at this temperature. But when the eggs are done their texture is uniform and the egg white next to the shell does not toughen.

If hard-cooked eggs are cooled immediately in water they may be removed from the shell more easily. And this also helps to prevent the formation of a dark green substance where the yolk and white of the egg come together.

One of the more unusual ways to serve hard cooked eggs is a curry sauce. For this dish make a bed of hot, flaky cooked rice on a hot platter. Arrange quartered, hard-cooked eggs over this. Then over eggs and rice pour a thick white sauce that has been seasoned with chopped green pepper, chopped onion, chopped celery, Tabasco sauce, and powdered curry.

Eggs Benedict are glorified poached eggs. For these, toast slices of bread or split English muffins. On each piece of toast put a thin slice of cooked ham or crisp bacon. On top of this place a poached egg. Cover with Hot Hollandaise sauce and serve at once.

Following is a recipe for Hollandaise sauce that may be kept over and reheated. It is also good served over asparagus, broccoli, green cabbage, or other green spring vegetables.

Hollandaise Sauce: 4 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, ¼ cup boiling water. Divide the butter into three portions. Beat the egg yolks and lemon juice together. Add one piece of butter and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until the mixture begins to thicken. Remove from the stove, add a second piece of butter, and stir rapidly. Then all the remaining butter, and continue to stir until the mixture is completely blended. Add the salt, cayenne, and boiling water. Return to the double boiler, and stir until the sauce thickens.—Contributed.

MARKETING

A Prime Factor in Every Industry

Relies on Banks to Lubricate the Process of Distribution

AGRICULTURE depends, in the end, upon the economy and expediency of harvesting and marketing of its products. Banks play a leading role in this process; their banking services facilitate orderly procedure from the time of soil preparation on through the seeding, harvesting and to the final sale. As we have served the farmers and grain dealers of this area for the past thirty-two years, we are again prepared to give you that same neighborly harvest service this year.
