Oil prices poll

Almost 70 percent of respondents in the Reporter-Telegram's unscientific Community Pulse poll believe the posted price of oil will return to the $15 level sometime this year.

A variety of views was given in regard to the question, including one man who said, "I believe it can be maintained at $15. It's also an opportunity for the U.S. to impose an import tax on all these OPEC countries that are importing."

The posted price on Monday climbed $1 to $14.25 a barrel, a level not seen since early February when record cold weather caused a short-lived spurt in the posted price to $14.50 a barrel. Tuesday, the posted price remained unchanged at $14.25.

Another caller, said, "In light of the extremely low posted oil prices, I'm very curious why Midland retail gas distributors maintain such a high consistent price across the board at any . . . station you go to.

"I'm just curious why we're paying 10 cents more for gas out here when we produce the gas. . . . " he said. "I'm just curious why we're getting ripped off."

Wacky weather buffets West Texas; basin farmers cross fingers for rains

Staff and wire reports

LUBBOCK — Winter's fury made a comeback Tuesday in the second week of spring — two days after Easter and the first pitch of the 1994 major league season.

The springtime cold snap buffeted Texans with light snow and northerly gusts that plunged wind-chill temperatures down to zero.

Agriculture experts predicted some freeze damage for Panhandle crops.

Glen Clugy awoke to the patter of sleet early Tuesday in Hartley County, south of Dalhart.

■ Complete weather/4A

"It's been like a roller coaster ride," said Clugy, county executive director of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service. "It would get warm and then get cold."

Clugy expects that wheat in the Panhandle — already stunted by lack of rain — now will sustain some freeze damage, too.

Market surge snaps string of down days

■ Dow Jones average leaps 82.06 points, largest one-day rise in more than two years.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market staged a dramatic rebound Tuesday as investors went bargain shopping, snapping a series of stunning declines that had depressed Wall Street to its weakest level in six months.

The rebound was sparked by a government economic report Tuesday morning that considerably eased the financial markets' fears about inflation.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 big-name stocks leaped 82.06 points to 3,675.41, more than erasing a 43-point drop Monday. It was the biggest single-day point rise in more than two years.

Much of the rebound was attributed to a powerful rally in the bond market, heartened by eased fears of inflation.

Nonetheless, the gain didn't necessarily signal an end to the sudden and unexpected selling that has been afflicting stocks and bonds, sending shudders through millions of ordinary investors worried about the value of their holdings.

Many professional stock strategists said the market is still volatile and investors are quite skittish. They didn't rule out a resumption of the slide on Wednesday.

"There were more bears visible in Wall Street last week than in Yellowstone National Park," said Alan Ackerman, executive vice president at Reich & Co., a New York investment firm.

"This may not yet be a decisive turn but a bounce from an oversold condition, and it's lowered the anxiety levels."

Peter Canelo, an analyst at NatWest Securities, said he believes many investors will sell stocks once they get reports from their brokers that show significant losses for the first three months of the year.

Seltzer, Norwood lead in fund raising

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland County candidates for two judgeships in the April 12 Republican Party primary elections are spending about as much money as they are raising to get the voters' attention.

County-judge candidate Jeff Norwood and county court-at-law candidate Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer each have taken in about $35,000 in campaign contributions.

According to records in the Midland County Elections Administrator's Office, those campaign funds more than double the reported contributions of their opponents — Teresa Clingman, who is seeking the county-judge post, and Marvin Moore, who is challenging Seltzer for the county court-at-law

Hance to discuss oil cartel's moves, politics, market forces, price gyrations

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil Editor

Kent Hance, a former member of Congress and the Texas Railroad Commission, will try to shed light on recent oil price gyrations when he delivers his annual OPEC update to members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association (PBPA) at a breakfast Thursday at the Petroleum Club.

Hance — who attended the recent OPEC meetings in which members agreed to freeze rather than cut oil production — will give his observations on the events, strategy, politics and market forces that shape oil prices.

He is the first member of the railroad commission invited to attend OPEC meetings as an observer. Hance said he has established many friendships and contacts among oil ministers that give him a vantage point from which to report on the cartel's

In November 1944, Hungarian-born freedom fighter Hannah Szenes was convicted of treason by a secret court in Hungary and executed. She was 23. In November 1993, she was exonerated by another Hungarian court.

Beginning at noon Thursday at the Midland County Courthouse, local leaders — including members from the Jewish and Christian communities — will honor the memory of Hannah Szenes.

Miss Szenes, a member of the Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, parachuted into Nazi-occupied Europe in 1944 in an effort to organize Jewish resistance. She was arrested when she tried to enter Hungary in June 1944.

Serb forces breach defense lines; civilians flee burning villages

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Hundreds of civilians fled burning villages Tuesday ahead of Bosnian Serb troops who breached defense lines around the Muslim enclave of Gorazde. U.S. officials said there were no plans to come to the aid of the besieged area.

Serb forces were two miles from the city center and attacks were continuing, U.N. sources in Belgrade and Sarajevo said.

Kris Janowski, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in Sarajevo, estimated that 1,500 to 2,000 refugees had fled into Gorazde from a dozen surrounding villages south and southeast of the city. The refugees said their villages were burned and destroyed by Serbian soldiers, he said.

Officials in the Muslim-dominated Bosnian government called the situation critical for the besieged eastern area, which was declared a U.N. "safe zone" last May but has been unprotected by U.N. troops who are stretched thin.

U.N. aid workers said 52 civilians had been killed and 249 wounded in a week of heavy fighting.

There was no sign Western nations would intervene to help Gorazde's 65,000 residents, as NATO did with threats of air strikes to force the withdrawal of Serb artillery around Sarajevo.

Gen. John Shalikashvili, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, told reporters in Washington that air power would be ineffective against the primarily small-arms fighting around Gorazde.

But he said that should not be seen as a "green light" for Serb attacks, and he did not flatly rule out intervention. "Tomorrow, the circumstances in Gorazde could very well change and the use of air power could be very appropriate," he said.

Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose, the U.N. commander in Bosnia, planned to go to Gorazde to assess the situation today. An official at the U.N. headquarters in New York said 10 military observers would accompany Rose, and would stay to augment the four observers already there.

Yasushi Akashi, the United Nation's special envoy to former Yugoslavia, was expected to meet Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic today to discuss Gorazde.

About 200 refugees blocked the entrance to Rose's Sarajevo headquarters Tuesday and demanded immediate action to save Gorazde, which is about 30 miles southeast of the capital.

"Please inform Gen. Rose now ... tomorrow is too late," said protester Ibro Marsala.

In New York, Bosnia's ambassador to the United Nations, Muhamed Sacirbey, accused U.N. officials in Sarajevo of misleading the Security Council about the severity of the Serb offensive.

"The situation is a lot more serious, a lot more alarming, than it has been projected," he told reporters.

The enclave has been under Serb siege during much of the 2-year war that began when Bosnia's government declared independence from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

Despite its declaration as a "safe area" last May, a shortage of peacekeepers has kept the United Nations from extending Gorazde any special protection. The United Nations, however, is expected to post up to 1,000 Ukrainian peacekeepers in the city by late April.

Goradze's capture would give Serbs a more direct route linking their holdings in southwest and eastern Bosnia.

About 200 refugees blocked the entrance to Rose's Sarajevo headquarters Tuesday and demanded immediate action to save Gorazde, which is about 30 miles southeast of the capital.

A government army officer, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Serb troops broke through defense lines at three locations late Monday or early Tuesday and government soldiers had to retreat.

Dr. Renaud Tockert of the international humanitarian group Doctors Without Borders said the group's two doctors in Gorazde said 11 villages had been destroyed and four others abandoned as of Tuesday afternoon.

Ron Redmond, a U.N. spokesman, said refugees told U.N. workers in Gorazde eight villages had been destroyed and four abandoned. He said U.N. workers reported they could hear heavy fighting to the north and northeast of the town.

In other developments:

—A tank in the Nordic battalion of the U.N. peacekeeping force destroyed a bunker manned by Serb soldiers after coming under fire near Gradacac in northern Bosnia, said Maj. Rob Annink, a U.N. spokesman in Sarajevo. He said a 40mm anti-aircraft gun in the bunker fired at two U.N. tanks.

—In neighboring Croatia, U.N. peacekeepers said the Croatian army and Serb rebels did not meet a Tuesday morning deadline for withdrawing heavy weapons from front lines as part of a cease-fire fomrally ending their 1991 war. But U.N. officers said the pullback was proceeding and expressed optimism the accord would be observed.

—Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic made a rare state visit to Romania, Serbia's traditional ally, and denounced the U.N. sanctions imposed on Yugoslavia.

List of suspects grows in Mexico's political murder

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A factory worker, a one-time nightclub security guard and three former police officers sit in jail — while authorities scramble to uncover the motive behind Mexico's boldest political murder in decades.

What reason would the unlikely quintet have for conspiring to murder presidential candidate Luis Donaldo Colosio?

The theories abound after the announcement Monday that at least seven men are linked to Mexico's first political assassination since 1928.

Five men are in custody. Two others, identified in photos of the murder, are on the run. Colosio was killed by confessed assassin Mario Aburto Martinez on March 23 while campaigning in Tijuana.

If investigators are to be believed, the killing involved an elaborate plot to infiltrate Colosio's security detail, distract the candidate's own security guards and help the trigger man get close enough for the fatal shot.

The man who hired the guards, Jose Rodolfo Rivapalacio, and two of those he hired, Vicente Mayoral Valenzuela and Rodolfo Mayoral Esquer, were to appear this week before a judge, who would decide if there is reason to hold them.

Another guard, Tranquilino Sanchez Venegas, already has been indicted on conspiracy charges, which carry a possible prison sentence of 37½ years.

The men were beind held at the high-security Almoloya de Juarez prison west of Mexico City.

Ernesto Ruffo Appel, the governor of Baja California state, whose office is helping in the probe, insists the seven men named Monday worked together.

"But up to now nothing has appeared that indicates drug traffickers or political groups," he said.

"There is a list of 46 that formed the security group," Ruffo was quoted as saying in the government newspaper El Nacional. "There are peculiar situations that draw attention, such as the fact that the name of Tranquilino Sanchez had been written in by hand below the list made by typewriter."

Some theories point toward the governing Institutional Revolutionary Party.

"The PRI is its own worst enemy as it was the worst enemy of Colosio," wrote Maria Teresa Jardi, a human rights advocate who has worked for the federal attorney general's office.

She noted that when a tree was planted in Colosio's honor after the murder, top PRI officials were conspicuously absent.

There are emerging reports of two shadowy organizations, "Group X" and "TUCAN," the Spanish acronym for Everyone United Against National Action, which is made up of current and former police officers, to which some of those in custody are said to belong.

Zulus defy state of emergency, march into Natal province

EMPANGENI, South Africa (AP) — Nationalist Zulus brandishing spears, clubs and sticks marched in this Natal province city Tuesday, defying a state of emergency.

Zulu tribal chiefs called for the show of force to protest the deaths of Zulus in political violence and to commemorate those killed following a Zulu march last week in Johannesburg.

Police said 85 people have been killed in political violence in the Zulu-dominated province since Thursday, when the state of emergency was declared. The death toll could climb as casualty reports from far-flung rural settlements reach police.

Despite earlier vows to disarm marchers, police and troops did nothing as the Zulus arrived in buses Tuesday to support their king's demand for a sovereign Zulu state.

The emergency regulations, declared last week in an effort to quell violence before South Africa's first all-race elections April 26-28, give troops broad powers to detain troublemakers and keep weapons off the streets. The area has been hard-hit by the war between Zulu members of the African National Congress and the Zulu-dominated Inkatha Freedom Party.

"You couldn't disarm them . . . without a lot of bloodshed," police Maj. Margaret Kruger said after 10,000 people swarmed through Empangeni, about 90 miles north of Durban. "They would go for the police . . . and the police would open fire."

But she said the province-wide state of emergency had "clearly been contravened" by the weapon-wielding marchers, and police planned to press charges.

President F.W. de Klerk sent in the army Thursday to take over security in Natal and KwaZulu. On paper, the emergency declaration amounts to a security takeover, but military officials said only 500 extra troops were sent into the vast province to bolster the 700 normally on patrol there.

An ANC official in Natal complained Monday that troops were securing industrial areas but ignoring the rural black areas where most violence occurs.

"People are calling for the deployment of the security forces," said ANC spokesman Siyabonga Cwele in Port Shepstone, where nine members of an ANC-supporting family were hacked to death in a political attack Saturday night.

African National Congress president Nelson Mandela said the state of emergency, given time, could ensure free and fair elections in Natal. The ANC had demanded the security crackdown.

"It's premature to regard the declaration of the state of emergency as a failure," Mandela said Tuesday night, responding to callers on a Johannesburg radio program.

At a smaller commemoration near Wembenzi, a black township 100 miles southwest of Empangeni, an all-Zulu battalion of the South African army set up a roadblock to search 400 Zulus entering the rally site. The soldiers confiscated spears and clubs, as well as a few firearms.

Report blames crew for crash that left 75 dead

MOSCOW (AP) — Negligence by the crew caused an Aeroflot passenger jet to crash in Siberia, killing all 75 people aboard, investigators concluded in an official report released Tuesday.

It was the first official confirmation of press reports citing gross safety violations by the crew. The Russian Airbus A-310 crashed in Siberia on March 22.

One of the pilots brought his two children to the cockpit and was "demonstrating and showing them the principles of controlling the plane in violation of the rules," the report said, according to the ITAR-Tass news agency.

"There were no signals testifying to failures of the plane, its engines or equipment."

Newspapers reported Saturday that the pilot's teen-age son was at the controls at the time of the fatal dive. They said conversations preserved by the cockpit flight recorder show he accidentally disengaged the automatic pilot, sending the jetliner plunging.

The ITAR-Tass dispatch on the report did not specifically mention the son.

The plane crashed in a forest near the Mongolian border, 2,000 miles east of Moscow, on a flight from Moscow to Hong Kong.

Its passengers included 23 foreigners.

The crash drew more attention to Russia's declining air safety record. There were 11 crashes in Russia last year, in which 221 people were killed.

Basin faces windy mid-60s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high in the mid-60s and winds becoming southwest at 5-15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the upper 30s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Thursday is expected to be sunny with a high in the upper 70s.

After an overnight low of 44, Tuesday's high reached 68, compared to a record high of 92 set in 1959. The record low was 25 set in 1936.

NATION

A storm system spread heavy snow through the central Rockies and onto the Plains on Tuesday and touched off thunderstorms in the Mississippi Valley.

Tornado watches were posted for parts of Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana.

The storm combined with a cold front pushing across the central part of the nation to produce varying amounts of snow from New Mexico across the Plains to the Great Lakes.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

and burial of 900 Jews in a mass grave on the outskirts of Radin. For most, the village had been their home since birth. For others, Radin was the location of their rabbinical school, although many had dropped out in 1938 when the head rabbi died.

For all Jews living there in early 1942 when German storm troopers entered the town, it became their grave. The only exception was a handful of Jewish youth who escaped and spent the rest of World War II living "like animals" in the forest and fighting the Nazis when they could, Kasman said.

Leon Young, now a U.S. citizen, was among those youth.

"He lived in a hole in the ground for four years," said Kasman, who spent two years convincing Young to speak with him about his experiences. "He was hunted by the Nazis. He was also like a rogue in the sense that he really couldn't trust anybody. He could trust his fellow partisans, the 12 to 15 people with whom he was fighting and hiding. The Poles would turn him in for money, and the Lithuanians would turn him in for the bounty."

When he was growing up, Kasman said he — like many other American children — knew nothing of the mass murder of 6 million Jews during the war.

"My parents and grandparents didn't talk about the Holocaust," said Kasman, a Midland dentist. "Why they didn't, I don't know."

He does not recall that anybody in his family died at the hands of the Nazis. But he does remember his family sending money and care packages to refugees following the war. Then, when he was in junior high, he saw the Life pictorial history of World War II, which included the liberation of one of the death camps.

"That was the first epic reminder that there were concentration camps. People were cremated. They were the typical pictures you see now.

"That's the only glimpse I can remember historically. It wasn't talked about in any of the classes I had in high school or college. It was as if it didn't exist."

Years later, in 1983, Kasman discovered about 40 photographs of Radin in his great-aunt's attic. The pictures were taken before the war. This discovery made him ask questions.

"I realized the photographs represented a part of history of the Jewish people in this part of the world, and I needed to study them and find out who they were and why they were taken and what happened to them," Kasman said.

"In my story about this village, I really don't paint this dismal, black picture," Kasman said.

"It's more like a travelogue of the village. This great-aunt was apparently the secretary of this Radiner Society, which was like a friends' group, and they collected clothes and money and sent stuff back to this village."

The pictures Kasman found were taken in the 1930s, and he theorizes their purpose was to help the society in its fund-raising endeavors in the United States.

"The amazing thing about this village is, it was really two villages. One had 900 Jews. The other had about another 1,000 Lithuanians. Part of the 900 Jews was a rabbinical school attended by young men from all over Europe and some from the United States."

During his search for information, Kasman discovered that the "head rabbi" — the Chofetz Hayyim — was famous.

"When I first started getting names and identifications off some of the pictures, they were meaningless," Kasman said.

The material he was receiving was in response to advertisements he ran in Jewish newspapers across the United States requesting information on the village.

"I got information from complete strangers who had lived there," Kasman said. "Then, this rabbi and that rabbi would call and say they had studied in that village.

"It was strange to have so many religious leaders pick this one little village to study in.

"Then, one of my sources, said, 'You need to go to New York and talk with the founders of Agudat Yisroael,' an international organization for orthodox Judaism."

Kasman made the trip, taking 20 of the 40 pictures with him.

"I walked into their office in New York not really knowing what to expect. I had a picture of this rabbi and his house and I find his picture on the wall in this office. There are three pictures on the wall and, lo and behold, he's one of the founders of this movement.

"Rabbis and students and people started pouring out of the woodwork and into this little room where I was showing my pictures to one of the archivists. We ended up with about 40 people all wanting to see the pictures. It was at that point I realized I had quite a collection."

Since his journey began in 1983, Kasman has visited Israel, Europe and Russia to talk with people who provided information about Radin.

"I started with 40 pictures, and now I have enough material in the form of documents, papers, letters, lists, names and other pictures to fill two filing cabinets," Kasman said.

He friends helped him translate the tapes that are in Yiddish, German or Lithuanian.

The experience of speaking with groups throughout the United States about Radin and doing the actual research has enriched his life.

"It's made me probably more keenly aware of what's happened after the war and during the war.

"Mine is just one little sliver of one little part of that big story. Six million died, 900 of whom were in this village. My responsibility is to tell their story. There have got to be thousands of little villages done the same way. There are hundreds of thousands of people who have no one to tell their story because no one knows."

SHEDS: Leaders to honor Holocaust victims

(From 1A)

They also will honor the memories of the 564,500 other Hungarian Jews — 434,350 of whom were moved to Auschwitz concentration camp in 1944 — who lost their lives in World War II.

"Because the Nazis went into countries one at a time and rounded up the Jews and other undesirables, 1944 is when the large destruction of Hungarian Jews occurred," said David Rosen, coordinator of the Midland ceremonies.

Taking part in the Midland ceremony will be members from Bridges for Peace, a Christian organization, Midland County Judge Bro Seltzer and members of B'nai B'rith and Temple Beth El.

The organizers of the International Holocaust Memorial Program have selected this year — the 50th anniversary of that destruction — to honor the Hungarian Jews.

Initiated by the Yad Vashem Holocaust Memorial Center in Jerusalem, the memorial program consists of reading names of Holocaust victims.

Communities throughout the United States will light memorial candles and erect banners at courthouses, city halls and houses of worship and read aloud millions of names between Thursday and Sunday in memory of the 6 million Jews who died at the hands of the Nazis during World War II.

The ceremony, called "Unto Every Person There is a Name," involves more than reading a list of names. The information that is available with the names will be included.

"The numbers of millions of people being killed is really hard to fathom," Rosen said. "The reading of names is an attempt to remember those who died and put the name to the victim. It personalizes it. We have the person's name, their father's name, their age, what city they lived in and what country and their place of death in many instances."

This marks the first year the International Holocaust Memorial Program ceremonies officially have been remembered in Midland and Odessa.

"We have been aware of the program for several years," Rosen said. "It was a matter of getting organized, calling the national office and saying 'Yes. We want to participate.' We have talked about it in the past, and this year we are motivated enough to do it."

The goals of the program are to perpetuate the memories of victims of the Holocaust as individuals, to ensure that future generations will always remember the Holocaust and to combat denials of the Holocaust.

"I've read a lot about that," said Rosen, referring to denial that the Holocaust occurred. "A lot of Jewish publications bring these people out of the shadows and discuss who they are. Many of them are Neo-Nazis, and their past associations show that."

There is some debate in the Jewish community, Rosen said, as to "whether these people should be ignored or brought to light and exposed. There's some feeling that even discussing them gives them some credibility."

Rosen — who remembers knowing Holocaust survivors when he was growing up in New York — has an opinion about the revisionists and whether the subject needs to be broached or not.

"If you get a cockroach out of the shadows, you can kill it. But if it remains in the shadows, in the dark, you can't step on it."

WACKY: Winter's fury makes a comeback

(From 1A)

"With the wheat and some other grains being planted now, this weather could definitely hurt," said Brent Bean, soil and crop specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension service in Amarillo.

He said the timing of the cold front couldn't be worse.

"This is a crucial time for the grain farmers because the plants are in the strongest and most crucial growth stage."

None of the flurries were accumulating.

But the arctic front postponed Tuesday's baseball game in Canyon between West Texas A&M and Wayland Baptist.

"Twenty-eight degrees — I mean, that's below anything you want to do outside, let alone try to pitch a baseball," said WT coach Mike Marshall. "It's just injurious."

Other areas of Texas weren't spared from the wacky weather.

Thunderstorms brewed in North Texas and East Texas, where the National Weather Service issued a tornado watch for 24 counties and warned of large hail and damaging winds.

Permian Basin residents saw blowing dust.

In the dry, dust-laden Midland area where farmers and ranchers are hoping rain is imminent, "Everything is going good," said Midland County rancher-farmer Alvey Bryant, who bemoaned the dryness amid his hope for moisture.

"We just need a good rain now and a good rain three weeks from now and good rain in August, and we'd say, 'Praise the Lord,'" Bryant said. "Everything would be lovely."

Bryant, who farms and ranches in the Greenwood community, said that "in about a month, we will need a planting rain" to start the 1994 cotton crop. "I always like to plant the first of May."

Farmers need a planting rain and subsequent rains "to carry us through next August, when it (the cotton) is maturing," Bryant said.

A generous August rain "is about what doubles our cotton production."

While the rangeland is beginning to "green up," Bryant said "if we get a good rain, I can stop feeding (grain cubes)," since the grass would grow greener, taller, and thicker. "Get a good rain now, I can stop feeding the cattle 'til November. They'll do good on the native grass."

The biggest threat right now for West Texas farmers seems to be drought.

"Midland and Odessa, I know for a fact, are so dry this cold front is going to do them neither harm nor good," said Juli Rhoden, a communications technician for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station.

But, she said the cold snap likely will kill off some pesky insects.

Meanwhile, temperatures in South Texas climbed above 80 degrees by noon.

Scott Plischke, an NWS meteorologist, said the cold front first hit Dalhart late Monday and blasted to the southeast at 45 mph.

Plischke described a dramatic lamb-to-lion change: At 11:56 p.m. Monday in Amarillo, winds were blowing at 13 mph from the southwest and the temperature was 54 degrees. Seventeen minutes later, winds gusted from the north at 46 mph and the mercury had plunged 20 notches.

"It doesn't happen every year, (but) it's not rare," Plischke said.

At mid-afternoon Tuesday, the cold front was along the mountains of West Texas and near the Big Bend, stretching across the Hill Country and into Southeast Texas.

The arctic front had moved through most of North Texas by mid-afternoon, with all but the eastern portions feeling the bite of the cooler air.

Temperatures ahead of the front were in the middle to upper 70s and dropped quickly into the mid 50s after the front passed.

Mostly cloudy skies and temperatures from the middle 70s to near 90 were occurring in the tropical air ahead of the front.

At McAllen, the temperature at 3 p.m. was 90.

Winds were northerly at 20 to 30 mph in the South Plains and Panhandle and 25 to 30 mph from the west in the mountains of far West Texas. Late-afternoon temperatures were in the 30s and 40s in the Panhandle, 50s and 60s in the South Plains and Permian Basin, and 70s in the Concho Valley and Edwards Plateau.

South Texas and portions of North Texas were under a tornado watch most of Tuesday. Showers and thunderstorms were falling across the Hill Country. Temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s. Skies should be clear across South Texas on Wednesday with highs in the 70s.

Seltzer, current county judge, has outspent all other runoff candidates. His expenditures total $40,842, according to information from the Texas Ethics Commission. His resources include almost $4,600 in loans and contributions totaling $35,460.

Moore, a prosecutor in the county attorney's office, lists $16,098 in contributions and $16,724 in expenditures.

Whoever wins the Moore-Seltzer court-at-law race will face Democrat George Patterson, a district attorney's prosecutor, in the Nov. 8 general election.

In the four-way race in the March 8 primary election, Seltzer received 34 percent of the vote and Moore 31 percent to set up the runoff election. Trailing them were John Roosa with 23 percent of the vote and Jack Chappell with 12 percent.

Norwood, whose resources include a $10,000 loan, spent $31,890 on his campaign, records indicate. His contributions total $35,159.

Ms. Clingman, a prosecutor in the district attorney's office, lists $16,333.49 in contributions and $15,934 in expenditures.

The winner in the Clingman-Norwood election duel will be Seltzer's successor as county judge.

In the four-way March 8 primary, Norwood garnered 46 percent of the vote; Ms. Clingman, 34 percent; Jim Prince, 13 percent; and Ray Moudy, 7 percent.

In the runoff election for commissioner of Midland County Precinct 4, Bruce Blake reports $3,859 in contributions, a $500 loan, and $3,983.61 in expenditures.

His opponent, James Brezina, reports $730 in contributions and $3,584.58 in expenditures, including $2,652 in expenditures from personal loans.

In the four-way race for the Republican Party nomination for commissioner in the March 8 primary, Blake drew 27 percent of the vote; Brezina, 26 percent; Herb Wales, 24 percent; and Charlie Goss, 23 percent.

Winner of the Blake-Brezina runoff will be unopposed in the Nov. 8 general election.

The county judge is presiding officer of the five-member Commissioners' Court and is the county's chief administrative and budget officer.

The campaign contributions and expenditures reflect all previous reporting periods.

SURGE: Stock market rebounds

(From 1A)

These people are not necessarily aware of the risks that they have assumed," Canelo said.

If Tuesday's recovery was short-lived, it was broad-based. The number of advancing issues swamped declining ones on the New York Stock Exchange, and broad market indexes also rose.

The rebound was sparked by a 0.1 percent dip in February's leading indicators, the government's chief forecasting gauge of future economic activity. The monthly report, the first negative reading in seven months, eased the markets' fears about inflation.

Although much of the economic decline was blamed on severe winter weather, bond and stock analysts said the data indicated that inflation, which had dogged both bond and stock markets in the past, was not a serious problem.

Fear of inflation has been a major reason for the weakness in stocks and bonds since the beginning of the year.

The report soothed anxiety in the bond market, where the 30-year bond's price rose sharply. Its yield, which moves in the opposite direction and is a good barometer of long-term interest rates, eased to 7.23 percent from 7.40 percent late Monday.

"The recent pressure that had been on the bond market was lifted to some extent, and it likewise eased pressure on the equity market," said James Schroeder, a market analyst at MMS International.

Just as they were responsible for the big drops over the past week, big-volume institutional investors fueled Tuesday's rally. They concentrated their purchases on economically sensitive stocks that could be expected to rise the most during an economic recovery.

The Dow Jones average's drop on Monday extended the 139-point drop of the week before.

Hance, who resigned from the railroad commission in 1989 to run for governor, said his presence at the meetings serves to help Texans understand what is going on because the slightest shift in pricing brought about by OPEC's actions could cost the state millions in revenue.

Hance, a member of the law firm of Hance & Gamble, has presented an update on OPEC strategy to PBPA members for the past four years.

Chinese dissident faces unspecified new criminal charges

BEIJING (AP) — In a clear effort to squelch the revived outspokenness of Chinese dissidents, police threatened Tuesday to press new criminal charges against former political prisoner Wei Jingsheng.

Police, who took Wei into custody four days ago, said they were questioning him on suspicion of unspecified "new criminal offenses." They did not say where Wei was being held.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Mike McCurry said the United States regrets Wei's detention.

"Our embassy has communicated to the Chinese government our concern over Wei's treatment," McCurry said. "To the best of our knowledge, Wei has only exercised his universally recognized right to freedom of opinion and expression."

Since his release six months ago after 14½ years in prison, Wei has encouraged dissidents to get in touch with ordinary workers and peasants and speak out on their problems.

Meanwhile, police hustled away a young man who tried to lay a wreath in central Beijing's Tiananmen Square. He may have been trying to commemorate people killed when the army crushed the democracy movement in 1989.

Tuesday was Qing Ming, a day when Chinese honor their dead. There have been occasional attempts to lay flowers on Qing Ming in honor of the 1989 victims.

Police ordered at least one dissident to stay at home Tuesday, apparently because of the holiday, and kept close watch on others.

The U.S. Embassy asked the Chinese government for more information about Wei.

"If the report is true, we regret that the Chinese have taken this step," embassy spokeswoman Lorraine Toly said. "To the best of our knowledge, Mr. Wei has only made use of his universal right to freedom of opinion and expression."

The move against Wei will make even more difficult the U.S. government's task of finding enough signs of improvement.

Palestinians cheer as their bus drives past an Israeli military convoy moving out of Gaza City Tuesday. Israel continues to vacate it's military bases in the Gaza Strip in anticipation of a successful conclusion to Israeli-Palestinian negotiations on Palestinian self rule in Jericho and the Gaza Strip.

Deportees return to hero's welcome

JERICHO, Occupied West Bank (AP) — The first exiled leaders of the Palestinian uprising allowed to return home got a tumultuous hero's welcome Tuesday in the occupied territories.

The returning exiles will help build an autonomy government in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and try to dispel perceptions among Palestinians that the historic Israel-PLO peace accord has failed to bring change.

"People are seeing some changes with their own eyes now. This has had more impact on the people than months of negotiations," said Saeb Erekat, a senior PLO figure in the occupied territories.

At the crossing from Egypt to the Gaza Strip at Rafah, hundreds of youths waving the black, red, white and green Palestinian flag carried 23 returnees on their shoulders to waiting cars. Gunmen from the PLO's Fatah Hawks fired into the air.

Crowds lined the road to Gaza, waving black and white checked kafiyyahs, the Palestinians' trademark headdress.

Palestinian officials said 26 other exiles crossed into the West Bank over the Allenby Bridge from Jordan.

PLO chairman Yasser Arafat, in Amman, Jordan, to hold talks with King Hussein, described Israel's decision to let the deportees return as "another positive signal."

In Jerusalem, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said the returnees were "pioneers in the implementation of this new rapprochement between the Palestinians and ourselves."

The returnees face a local PLO leadership fractured by infighting, and will have to deal with attempts by the armed underground to continue attacks on Israel, demands for jobs, and general disillusionment with the peace accords.

Most of the deportees were university students and professors expelled by Israel for organizing the Palestinian uprising, or intefadah, which started in December 1987. They are the first of those exiles allowed to return. Others were village elders deported by Israel in the 1970s.

The deportees are famous inside the occupied territories, but also worked in Arafat's Tunis headquarters, and are expected to help smooth public acceptance of a PLO leadership that has not lived under occupation.

"One of our first responsibilities is to put an end to the infighting within our ranks," said Rashid Abu Shbak.

Shbak's resume is typical: he spent 18 years in jail for fighting the Israeli occupation. When he was released in 1990 he formed an armed group known as the Black Panthers, then fled to Egypt.

Some of the exiled leaders helped negotiate the plan for Palestinian autonomy in the Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho.

New cleanup effort should help city

Spring is in the air and, appropriately, a new cleanup project that brings into play the efforts of the Midland Police Department, the City of Midland and Keep Midland Beautiful will be announced Friday. The object is to get abandoned and junked vehicles off vacant lots, city streets and private property — and to make Midland a better looking, healthier community.

Beginning with a citywide cleanup Saturday, the project will target vehicles throughout the city that are considered junked and public nuisances. The vehicles will be tagged and if not removed within a particular period of time, they will be removed.

The project, which was the brainchild of Officer Bruce Williams, is highly commendable because it targets one of the biggest eyesores in any city — junk vehicles that are typically encircled by tall weeds and can harbor varmints or wild cats and dogs. In that regard the junked vehicles truly are more than eyesores and can constitute a health hazard.

This effort should help make Midland a better looking city as well as a healthier community. We encourage all Midlanders to get involved in reporting junked or abandoned vehicles to the city or the police department.

Midland police officials, city officials and Keep Midland Beautiful officials are to be commended for this effort to clean up Midland's image even more, and to help ensure that this community has a healthy environment. We particularly commend Officer Williams for this cleanup suggestion that is in the best interests of all Midland's residents.

U.S. prepares for worst-case scenario

WASHINGTON — As Pentagon officials quietly prepare for a possible showdown with North Korea, the likelihood grows that the United States will reintroduce tactical nuclear weapons on South Korean soil — with South Korean permission.

Anderson

Despite strong warnings from Defense Secretary William Perry against stonewalling international nuclear inspectors, North Korea's Kim Il Sung continues to retreat from earlier promises to allow limited inspections of his country's nuclear facilities. The most recent stonewall came during negotiations with the Clinton administration, when U.S. officials agreed to call off joint U.S.-South Korean military exercises, along with other concessions.

While the United States and its allies try to reach a diplomatic solution, the Pentagon is actively preparing for the worst-case scenario: Another war on the Korean peninsula.

Pentagon reports we have reviewed indicate that the United States would be poorly prepared for such a confrontation. The size of the North Korean military, its ability to mobilize quickly and the fact that South Korea's capital of Seoul lies only 30 miles from the Demilitarized Zone suggest a war with North Korea would be costly for all sides.

"U.S. Forces Korea and its subordinate commands have not adequately planned for the reception, staging, and onward movement of forces scheduled to deploy for Korea in the event of an outbreak of hostilities," reads a classified report from the Pentagon Inspector General issued last September. "As a result, the ability to provide forces as needed to execute the warfighting plan to defend Korea was substantially weakened."

Highly classified Pentagon scenarios of a second Korean war frequently include the initial loss of Seoul to the North Korean forces, because it is so difficult to defend without adequate preparation.

The newest scenarios include a planned U.S.-South Korean counteroffensive to capture the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, possibly even in a leapfrog manner. Some of these scenarios suggest the use of smaller, tactical nuclear weapons to slow down any North Korean attack.

Little known to anyone outside military circles, U.S.-South Korean defense plans from the early 1980s included use of tactical nuclear weapons. At one point, according to a Pentagon report classified "Top Secret," the U.S. had positioned on or near South Korean soil the following list of non-strategic nuclear weapons: 133 bombs deliverable by plane, 63 eight-inch howitzer shells, 31 155-mm howitzer rounds and 21 "atomic demolition munitions."

Since these were nuclear weapons, and the South Koreans didn't want to be seen as instigators of a nuclear buildup, South Korean officials eventually requested that they be removed, and the United States complied several years ago.

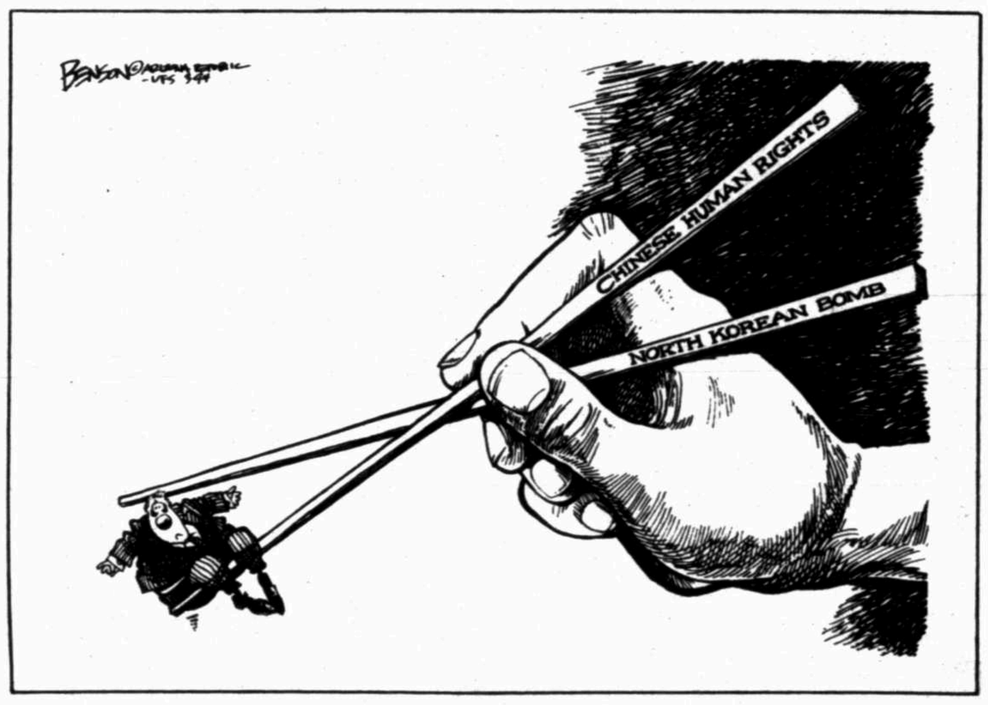

If the North Koreans are proven to have nuclear weapons, however, some Pentagon officials — and their South Korean counterparts — now favor the re-introduction of some of these non-strategic nuclear weapons to South Korea, particularly the ADMs.

The little-known ADMs are the land mines and satchel charges of the nuclear age. Dug into the ground for maximum demolition effect, they could blow up the bridges or dams and block the three invasion routes the North Koreans would have to use in any assault on South Korea. The ADMs are intended primarily for destruction of real estate, not tanks or personnel. In fact, they are deliberately designed to minimize fallout, since they would be used mainly in friendly territory to stop an enemy advance.

The growing acceptance in the Pentagon that it might be necessary to reintroduce ADMs, or other nuclear weapons, to South Korea, has already spilled over to Congress. In recent statements, two of the most influential senators in foreign and military affairs have said the United States should consider sending tactical nuclear weapons back to South Korea. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., the second-ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, agree that it's something the United States should consider soon.

With the Clinton administration embroiled in the Whitewater affair and trying to concentrate on domestic initiatives, the escalating tensions with North Korea has not grabbed the attention of previous foreign crises. But behind closed doors at the Pentagon, strategists are alarmed that the North Korea's conventional military strength, not to mention their nuclear possibilities, could soon lead the United States into a war that nobody wants. We share that alarm.

Outrage over Stephens cites need for probe

An "Orval Faubus Republican," the longtime Democratic governor of Arkansas used to say, "is a Republican who's for Orval Faubus."

That philosophy must have stuck with President Clinton and the young politicos who surround him. Otherwise, why would they be so outraged about the appointment of Jay B. Stephens as a Whitewater investigator?

The Resolution Trust Corp. hired Stephens to examine the Arkansas land deal and savings and loan scandal for possible civil action. The supposedly independent agency didn't clear it with the White House, and that infuriated George Stephanopoulos, Clinton's 33-year-old senior adviser.

Although the aide denies it, RTC sources say he asked about getting rid of Stephens, a partisan Republican. Here's one more reason for a full airing of the Whitewater affair. Meanwhile, at least one tough investigator is on the job.

Limits on lobbyists needed to reclaim founders' intent

The attack on lobbyists is getting more heated with each passing day. . . .

In the midst of an angry public, increased media attention and several scandals, 35 states have enacted some sort of restrictions on the receipt of gifts by public officials.

And now Congress is rushing to slap limits on the wide variety of perks lobbyists lavish on them. Gifts range from meals to trips and golf outings. Members of the House and Senate are expected to get together after the Spring recess to hammer out a compromise between lobbyist-gift regulations passed by both governing bodies.

The legislation approved by both bodies broadens the definition of what constitutes a lobbyist, and requires more folks to register and disclose their activities. The bills also tighten the reins on the perks congressmen often receive from lobbyists.

Congressmen can tell the American public all day long that these perks don't influence their decision-making capabilities, but the public just isn't going to buy it. If nothing else it reflects that nasty appearance of evil that pervades government these days and chips away at the public's trust. . . .

This country was founded on the premise of a government "by the people, for the people," not "by lobbyist, for special interest groups." The legislation under consideration by Congress is a good first step in reclaiming that right for the people.

CHARLEY REESE

We should control guns small-town way

If big-city intellectuals keep at it, some of them may get to be as smart as country deputies and small-town cops were 40 years ago.

Reese

A case in point is an article in a recent issue of the New York Times Sunday Magazine by James Q. Wilson. Now, Wilson is the real thing — an intellectual who actually makes sense, as opposed to the many who have diarrhea of the mouth and constipation of the brain. Wilson proposes as one solution to the crime problem that police should just take guns away from people who don't have a carrying license.

Well, that's exactly what country deputies and small-town cops were doing 40 years ago until lawyers and judges made them stop. I know, because in my reckless youth I used to be a reserve deputy in west Florida and would ride as an unpaid partner with my best friend when he had the midnight shift.

Every now and then, several deputies would get together and arrive en masse in front of some juke joint or tavern. They followed a standard ritual. All the customers would be ordered to stand against the far wall, and the deputy in charge would begin to make a deliberately long speech in which he explained that every patron would pass between two deputies, be frisked and then proceed out the door.

The whole time he was talking, there was a steady sound of clumps and bumps as the customers ditched their hardware. They would all be frisked and asked to wait outside. They were all clean. Then we would ask the owner to fill up a croaker sack with the guns, linoleum knives, switchblades, blackjacks and other assorted weapons littering the floor.

Since everyone was given a chance to get rid of his weapon, no one resisted, no one got hurt and no one was arrested. But, at least for that night, nobody in that crowd was going to get more than socked or slapped, because we had their hardware.

During one of these raids, just as we pulled up to a large joint out in the country, a man, hearing the sirens, dived through a glass window, landed on his feet and took off running up a hill. A deputy, just for the sake of form, ran a few steps, shouted, "Halt!" and fired his pistol in the air.

The words had no effect on this fellow, but the sound of the gunshot turned on his afterburner. We watched amazed and amused as he increased his speed, cleared a 5-foot fence as easily as a deer and vanished over the hill. We never did figure out who he was or what he was wanted for, or at least what he thought we wanted him for.

Running stories are a favorite of cops'. One recalled a man who was fleeing through the woods and made the mistake of looking back to see if the officer was shooting at him or into the air. He smacked right into a tree.

I knew another officer who fell into an open septic tank while chasing a man at night through a neighborhood. It was fortunate for the fleeing man that he got away.

But I wouldn't want to be a cop today. Policing, like newspapering, is not much fun anymore. There are too many pompous, serious people these days, and I don't doubt a minute that we have a lower class of criminals, too. Why not? We have a lower class of practically everything, including politicians and intellectuals.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, April 6, the 96th day of 1994. There are 269 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 6, 1909, explorers Robert Peary and Matthew Henson became the first men to reach the North Pole. (The claim, disputed by skeptics, was upheld in 1989 by the Navigation Foundation.)

On this date:

In 1830, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints was organized by Joseph Smith in Fayette, N.Y.

In 1862, the Civil War Battle of Shiloh began when the Confederates attacked Union forces in Tennessee.

In 1892, author, journalist and world traveler Lowell Thomas was born in Woodington, Ohio.

In 1896, the first modern Olympic games formally opened in Athens, Greece.

In 1917, Congress approved a declaration of war against Germany.

In 1963, the United States and Britain signed an agreement under which the Americans would sell Polaris A-3 missiles to the British.

In 1965, the United States launched the Early Bird communications satellite.

White House dabbles in commodities market

I was walking past the White House last week when a giant tractor-trailer drove up.

Buchwald

The driver yelled to the guard at the gate, "Where do you want the pork bellies?"

The guard checked his clipboard. "I don't see anything about pork bellies on my list. Are you sure you're not looking for the Department of Agriculture?"

"Yup. It says 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. right here on the manifest. Someone bought them in the commodities market with the delivery date of today."

"Maybe," I suggested, "the new White House chef ordered them for tonight's state dinner."

"You stay out of this, buster," the guard said. He then turned to the driver, "You can't dump them on the lawn because we're having an Easter egg hunt, and it wouldn't do to have the kids walking around with pork bellies in their baskets."

"Well, I have to get rid of them. What about the tennis court?"

The guard was about to go to his telephone when another truck, almost the same size, pulled up to the gate. It was packed with live cattle. The driver said, "These animals have to have water right away, or we'll be violating the health regulations concerning their treatment."

"Are you delivering them here?"

"That's what I was told. Somebody at this address is dabbling in the commodities market and has to take delivery today."

The guard looked really confused. Then a dump truck pulled into the driveway, and two men started shoveling soybeans over the fence.

"What do you think you're doing?" the guard shouted.

"Two much rain in the Midwest — whoever bought these got stuck with a bundle."

"I like tofu," I told the guard.

"Will you butt out?" he screamed.

"I was only trying to be helpful. I am sure that if the White House is stuck with the soybeans the chef can come up with a soybean souffle to accompany the pork bellies."

By this time the cattle were getting restless and started to bellow at the Secret Service men. If this wasn't enough, two truckloads of winter corn from Canada arrived and blocked Pennsylvania Avenue. The guard finally managed to get a White House staff member to come outside.

I told the aide, "There's always a chance when you buy corn husk contracts that no one will buy them after you."

He had been dealing with North Korea, Bosnia, South Africa and Ross Perot, but this was the first time he had had to deal with commodity futures.

He called George Stephanopoulos and gave him the entire story. George said he was on his way. By the time he got there the truck driver had released the cattle, and they were wandering all over the White House lawn.

I know George and I said, "I have a slogan for the next Democratic campaign, 'Pork bellies, Stupid!' "

George, who has a great sense of humor, didn't laugh.

Clinton opens intensive push for health-care program

TROY, N.C. (NYT) — President Clinton on Tuesday opened one of his most intensive campaigns yet for his plan to overhaul the health care system, resurrecting a back-to-basics appeal intended to underscore what he regards as its current state of crisis.

With Congress still on recess, Clinton is scheduled to take his message to at least five states by the end of the week as part of a strategy intended to recapture dominance in what he called "the great debate" on Capitol Hill about what changes in health care insurance are necessary.

Tuesday morning, as he began the drive in this rural North Carolina town, Clinton toted charts and a teacherly demeanor to present a revised primer on a plan he first unveiled nearly seven months ago.

But a congressional calendar calling for the matter to be taken up in earnest in the next few weeks also meant that the president's exhortations carried a rare note of urgency.

"What's really going on here in the heartland of America gets lost in a cloud of hot air," Clinton complained this morning about Washington's wrangling over health care reform. He urged local residents who filled a small elementary school auditorium to tell members of Congress that it was time "to deal with this issue and not fool with it anymore."

Apart from homey new metaphors and simple charts labeled with phrases like "the crisis," there was little in Clinton's appeal that differed from those he has delivered each time the White House has sought to give new momentum to its health care campaign.

But the president said Tuesday that he believed "these things come in waves" and that it was time to renew his health care message now that "the American people are thinking about it again."

And the White House advisers who trooped here en masse argued separately that the latest kickoff stood a better chance of making converts if only by default.

"In real estate, it's location, location, location," said Paul Begala, a former campaign aide and now adviser-under-contract who made a rare appearance today in rejoining the Presidential roadshow. "In communications, it's repetition, repetition, repetition."

With his visit Tuesday, Clinton became the first sitting president ever to set foot in Troy, a town of 3,500 people in a rolling forest nearly 100 miles northeast of Charlotte.

In a county where there is only one primary-care doctor for every 7,782 residents — among the lowest in the state — its hospital until recently lacked any doctors of its own.

As he toured that hospital Tuesday, Clinton called attention to elements of his plan that would provide incentives for more doctors to work in rural areas.

Thursday and Friday, when he is to travel to Kansas, Missouri and Minnesota, his focus is expected to turn to the virtues of his proposal for small businesses.

But in contrast to the last six weeks, in which he devoted much of his time to reaching out to older Americans, Clinton on Tuesday employed the kind of broad-based appeal he introduced last fall when he began to sell his health care plan to the public.

In the first of three such appearances he has scheduled in the next four days, Clinton also arranged to take part in a televised town meeting Tuesday night from Charlotte, with questions coming from studio audiences there and in Roanoke, Va.; Austin, Texas, and Bristol, Tenn.

The 90-minute appearance was also set on NBC stations in North Carolina, South Carolina and in a half-dozen major cities, including Minneapolis, Dallas and Pittsburgh.

And Tuesday afternoon, in advance of Thursday's trip to the region, Clinton gave television interviews to stations in Topeka, Kan.; Kansas City, Mo.; Tulsa, Okla., and Omaha.

In each interview and appearance, Clinton seemed clearly to be battling Republican efforts to minimize the extent of troubles afflicting the health care system and to portray as sinister the mandatory "purchasing alliances" that are a central part of his proposal.

To open his presentation Tuesday morning, the president chose a stark chart listing what he called the prime symptoms of the health care crisis.

Prosecutor sees police drawing, turns in brother

NEW YORK (AP) — The wanted poster showed a face that Michele Monagas grew up with. So the prosecutor did what she had to do: She turned in her brother for a series of rapes.

Anthony Monagas, 36, was arrested Friday in Miami based on tips provided by his younger sister, authorities said.

He waived extradition and was returned to New York on Tuesday to face charges stemming from a series of rapes in a private, predominantly middle-class housing project in lower Manhattan.

His downfall: A police sketch that captured his likeness all too well, and a sister in a position to see it.

The assistant district attorney in the Bronx borough saw the drawing last week — a balding man with close-cropped hair, a mustache and a 5 o'clock shadow. His eyebrows arched toward the sky, and he wore a dour expression.

She recognized the face of her brother, a convicted sexual offender less than a year out of jail. She made the identification to her boyfriend, a New York City policeman, and told him her brother was living in Florida.

"Michele Monagas deserves the respect and admiration of all New Yorkers for the courage and integrity that she showed in making what must have been a most difficult decision," said her boss, Bronx District Attorney Robert Johnson.

The 28-year-old prosecutor was not in her office Tuesday to discuss the case. But a neighbor of the mother told the Daily News of New York that Anthony and Michele were once two of a kind: well-mannered, very close, walking the straight and narrow. The mother declined to speak to the paper.

"They're a close-knit family, and always kept to themselves," neighbor Bianca Perez said. "From talking to their mother, I know she tried to have them grow up in the proper way."

Michele did. She joined the prosecutor's office last year — just as her brother was hitting the home stretch of a lengthy prison stay.

In 1984, Anthony was sentenced to 22 years in prison after three incidents in Florida, all involving sexual battery, said spokeswoman Debbie Buchanan of the Florida Department of Correction. He was released July 6, and prison records show his destination was New York.

He arrived here in August, and the first rape was reported in early October at the sprawling Stuyvesant Town project off the East River, said Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau. By Feb. 1, there had been five attacks in and around the apartment houses.

In all the attacks, a man approached his victims in the early evening, threatened them with a knife and raped them in secluded sections of the complex, police said.

Authorities recovered physical evidence — including a New York Yankees cap and a New York Jets jacket allegedly worn during the assaults.

The former hardware store clerk is now a suspect in five rapes; so far, he has been charged only with the Feb. 1 rape. A conviction for rape carries a prison term of 8 1-3 to 25 years.

When word of Monagas' arrest first came out, police credited confidential informants with leading them to the suspect. It wasn't until Tuesday morning, when the story was splashed across Page One of the Daily News, that the story of the siblings emerged.

Records managers join forces

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

During these information-age times, record keeping is a vital part of private industries and public entities.

"The key issue is providing the information in a timely manner when needed," said Emma DeLaGarza, supervisor of records management for Mobil Exploration and Producing U.S. Inc.

Ms. DeLaGarza is in charge of keeping track of "easily 500,000 files."

To help stay in tune with the latest advances in records technology, Ms. DeLaGarza and about 34 others have formed a Midland/Permian Basin chapter of the Association of Records Managers and Administrators (ARMA), an international organization with more than 11,000 members.

Charter and officer installation ceremonies are scheduled for Tuesday evening. Ms. DeLaGarza will be named president-elect. Other positions will include: Sharon Hoelscher, vice president; Rochelle McMillen, secretary; and Brenda Corn, treasurer.

The local chapter, with most of its members from Midland, is primarily petroleum-industry related.

ARMA offers continued education courses, access to a library of technical publications, networking opportunities, guidance to become a certified records manager and legislative awareness.

Among local members are City Secretary Bill Clanton and Deputy City Secretary Lyn Miller. The City Secretary's Office is in charge of maintenance of city records.

Ms. Miller said belonging to ARMA will help her office in that maintenance, as well as following regulations from the state. The state has mandated record-keeping procedures, specifically retention and destruction schedules.

Following state regulations is rather straightforward, she said.

"What's complicated is going through all those files over there (the records center)," Ms. Miller said. "There's rooms of boxes over there stacked on top of each other."

Ms. Miller anticipates that ARMA will help her with the methodical sorting and organization of records.

"That's such a big job and if someone's already done it, it helps to learn from their mistakes then go in and make them yourself," she said.

Worker opens fire

LONGVIEW — An off-duty employee walked into a Longview pizza restaurant, said he was sick and needed help. Then he fired two shots from a handgun, fellow employees say.

No one was injured, and the gunman surrendered to police about 9 p.m. Monday after a tense 90 minutes, officials say. The man went to a back room to fire the shots, and did not shoot at anyone, witnesses said.

Frightened employees and customers ran from the building when the shots rang out, and someone called 911.

Group blasts damages

AUSTIN — Punitive damages are hurting the Texas economy and may not be punishing the companies they are aimed at, according to a foundation that has pushed for restrictions on jury awards.

"Rather than a surgical strike, the punitive damage impact is similar to carpet bombing which impacts the entire surrounding countryside rather than the target," the Texas Public Policy Foundation said Tuesday.

Punitive damages are sometimes awarded by juries in addition to actual damages to punish a party in a lawsuit for gross negligence.

In Dallas County, the average punitive award increased from $59,252 to $1.1 million during the same time periods, the group said.

Hotline for potholes

DALLAS — Tire-swallowing potholes may not be an emergency, but motorists and city workers still want them found and fixed — and fast.

Now, with a proposed three-digit number, callers could summon street repair crews and other nonemergency city services.

The proposed 511 hotline would eliminate long waits for repairs and other red tape, City Manager John Ware said Monday.

But the nonemergency cousin of the city's 911 crime line must still be approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

"It will eliminate the frustration level of the average citizen if nothing else and should eliminate the City Hall shuffle," Ware said.

He said it now takes the city up to six days to respond to some service requests, but that time could be cut in half with the new phone number.

The proposal, which could be in operation by October, is one of several recommendations that also include consolidating some city services, including billing.

A group of 38 European car-club members loaded up their vintage Ford Mustangs to travel to El Paso. The members are driving their mustangs across the country to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the Mustang. The group has 16 Mustangs that were built between 1964 and 1979.

ODESSA — Ask the average American boy what kind of car he'd like to drive and many will say a classic Ford Mustang. Convertible. Preferably, something around a 1965 model.

While this might be the American dream, there is a group of Europeans that collects the vintage vehicles.

These car collectors have even gone to the trouble of flying their Mustangs around the globe to the United States to make a cross-country trek commemorating the 30th anniversary of the Ford Mustang.

The group is called the International Mustang Roundup and is made up of 38 members — most of them are from Switzerland; a few are from England.

"Mustangs are very popular in Europe and our club meetings in Switzerland and England are well attended," said Madeleine Koch, a member of the Swiss congregation who is also the tour organizer and leader.

The group is being assisted stateside during the tour by retired Ford employee Jim Maxwell. Maxwell said the international group called Ford to notify the company of its plans and Ford asked him if he would like to accompany the members on their trip.

Maxwell said the 16 classic Mustangs, ranging from 1964 to 1979, were shipped by freighter to Jacksonville, Fla., from Antwerp, Belgium.

After shipping their vehicles, the group members flew across the ocean for their American adventure. Maxwell said the Europeans are a mixture of everyday people. He said Ms. Koch is a waitress for a restaurant in Lucerne, Switzerland.

Anderson campaigns for school-board seat

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Dianne Anderson is the third candidate who has filed to run for Place 6 on the Midland Independent School District's board of trustees.

Ms. Anderson is running against incumbent Gary Willis and retired principal and educator Leonard Monroe. This is the only contested race on the school board.

Anderson

Others running for the school board include Robin M. Hightower (not related to incumbent Jack Hightower). Mrs. Hightower is running for the position held by Place 5 representative George Staley. Staley has decided not to run for re-election after serving two terms on the board.

Board President Jack Hightower is running for re-election as Place 3 representative.

Although born in San Antonio, Ms. Anderson has lived in Midland since 1964 and graduated from Lee High School. She and her husband, Edmund T. "Ed" Anderson IV, have three children in the MISD system.

"I am truly committed to improving the quality of education, improving the educational environment and improving the support teachers receive," she said.

Speaking about the issues facing the district, she said, "I believe MISD should request unitary status. I believe MISD should oppose inclusion (of the mentally handicapped) to the extent it affects academics. I believe MISD should oppose outcome based education. I believe schools should be made more challenging and exciting for the average student.

"I believe teachers should be allowed to teach, not have to babysit or worry about their safety. I believe parents should be held accountable for students' behavior at school," she said.

She served on the MISD Long Range Planning Committee six years ago and is again serving on that committee, she said. She has served as PTA president and on the executive board of the City Council PTA.

She also has served on site-based and district-based decision-making committees for MISD.

Ms. Anderson is working on her degree in international marketing with a minor in Spanish.

"I am willing to work hard, do research and be an advocate for teachers as well as parents and students," she said.

Early voting for the May 7 election begins April 18 and continues through May 3. The deadline to file for the election was March 23.

Humes seeks re-election as college trustee

Staff Report

Parker M. Humes has announced his candidacy for Place 4 on the Midland College Board of Trustees in the May 7 election.

Humes, a resident of Midland for 33 years, is seeking re-election to his second full term on the board.

"I am dedicated to Midland College's commitment to be one of the best community colleges in the nation," Humes said. "Midland College has many success stories. I will strive to be sensitive and responsive to the needs of Midland and its citizens.

"I will continue to be a conscientious steward of the public's tax dollar and work to assure Midlanders that their tax dollars are well spent," he said.

Humes

Humes served on the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees for six years and is a past president of the Texas Broadcast Education Foundation.

He has been a member of the Baylor University Development Council for the past 15 years.

He is a former chairman of Leadership Midland and the Midland Rotary Club and a past president of the Midland Alliance. He is a former officer and director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Junior Achievement and a former Midland Jaycees Boss of the Year.

He received a PTA Life Member award for service to Midland's public schools and has served as a director of the Permian Basin Girl Scout Council and High Sky Children's Ranch.

He and his wife, Pat, have three daughters: Paige, Pam and Trish.

FBI agents seek Odessa man after child disappears

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel

FBI agents are seaching for an Odessa man who has been charged with interfering with a child custody order and kidnapping his child, according to a complaint filed in federal court in Midland.

The FBI is looking for William Duane Jackson on federal charges stemming for a state charge of interfering with child custody. Jackson allegedly kidnapped his son and was planning to take him to Georgia.

A complaint filed by the FBI alleges that Jackson was traveling out of state with the intent to avoid prosecution of state law. The federal charge is parental kidnapping.

According to the FBI, the kidnapping occurred Feb. 12 in Ector County. According to the investigating agent, Jackson took his son from his mother's custody by forcing the child into a vehicle and driving away.

Jackson was charged in Ector County on March 4 on the child custody charge, which is a felony.

The boy's mother told the FBI agent that before the kidnapping, Jackson told her he was returning to his hometown in Georgia.

On the day of the alleged abduction, Jackson's mother was with him, the complaint said.

Workshop to help parents deal with tough teen years

Staff Report

Josue V. Arrambide of the Midland County Juvenile Probation Department will be guest speaker at a parenting workshop at 7 p.m. Monday.

The workshop — presented by Centers for Children & Families — is to be held at Alamo Junior High School.

Free session to focus on problems that could land teens in Culver Youth Home.

Monday's session — part of a pilot program for a series of workshops on parenting skills — will focus on dealing with problems that could land teen-agers in Culver Youth Home.

"It's important that parents learn to invest time with each child and to be aware of how a child sees things in relationship to how he behaves," Arrambide said.

"Teen-agers must learn that with freedom comes accountability and responsibility."

Oscar Bejil, assistant with Effective Parenting Information for Children (EPIC), said, "We have been conducting the parenting information workshops in English and Spanish at Alamo since February.

"We have included a variety of speakers to address issues that children face at the secondary school-age level. These issues are vital for parents to understand in order to help their teens develop into healthy, productive adults and ensure that they take full advantage of their education.

"It's critical for parents to understand these issues and remain very involved with their children during junior high and high school," Bejil said. "Parents and educators have to combine forces to guide our youth down a more positive path. A good education is the key to a strong future."

All parents of junior high school students are encouraged to attend these free workshops, which are offered every other Monday through the end of April.

For more information on the workshops, call 689-1700.

Two students get shot in first aid class

ROUND ROCK (AP) — Three teen-age students were being held in a juvenile detention center Tuesday after a gun they allegedly stole and smuggled into an Austin area high school accidentally fired, injuring two students taking a first aid class, authorities said.

Travis County sheriff's department chief of staff Andy Saenz said charges were filed against two teen-age students and more likely would be filed against a third student in connection with a Tuesday morning shooting at McNeil High School in Round Rock, an Austin suburb.

The two shooting victims, an 18-year-old girl and a 17-year-old girl, were in good condition at Brackenridge Hospital in Austin, officials said.

Saenz said one of the suspects, who is 16, took a pistol into the school in a knapsack.

"It looks like he was showing the gun to somebody and in the process of putting back into his backpack, it discharged accidentally," Saenz said.

"Students in the classroom were watching a film and luckily several of them were sitting on the floor because the bullet literally flew over their heads," Saenz said.

The bullet traveled through a wall into an adjoining classroom, struck one student in the shoulder and then lodged in the right leg of another student, Saenz said.

"The class where the bullet went into, the students were being taught first aid," Saenz said. "It became a real-life scenario very quickly until the EMS team could arrive on the scene."

Larry BeSaw, spokesman for Brackenridge Hospital in Austin, said the shooting victims, Rashonda Sparkman, 18, and a 17-year-old girl, whose name wasn't released because she is a juvenile, were both in good condition.

BeSaw, who said he couldn't comment on the girls' injuries, expected both to be released from the hospital in the next two days.

Officials said they believe the suspect planned to try to sell the gun on campus.

"We believe all three of them broke into a home and stole the gun (Tuesday) morning," Saenz said. "Our understanding is that they had broken into the same home before."

Two of the students have been charged with burglary of a habitation and with violating a law that bars weapons on school grounds, which is punishable by a sentence of up to 10 years.

Saenz said a third student would be charged with burglary of a habitation on Wednesday. All three — two of whom are 16 and one who is 15 — were being detained at the Gardner House, a juvenile detention center in Austin.

Saenz said about 40 students in the two classrooms where the shooting and injuries occurred were questioned by police and counseled to reduce any shock they may have been suffering.

"The students were emotionally shaken," said Nick Boltz, community relations director for the Round Rock Independent School District. "School counselors and sheriff's department counselors were with the students this afternoon."

"We are very concerned for the safety of our students," said Boltz, adding that this was the first gun-related incident on record at a Round Rock school. "A lot of people have moved to this district because they perceive we have excellent and safe schools.

Austin OKs smokeless breakfast, lunch

AUSTIN (AP) — Restaurant goers can enjoy a smokeless breakfast and lunch under a new city ordinance.

"We're recognizing a national trend in Austin," said Council Member Brigid Shea. "People can make adjustments."

Under the ordinance, no smoking is allowed in any restaurant or bar dining room between 6 a.m. and 2 p.m.

After 2 p.m., smoking is allowed in enclosed areas with separate ventilation systems in new buildings. Older buildings have until March 1996 to comply with the rule or become non-smoking.

After 10 p.m., smoking is allowed in restaurants and bars in certain areas.

A violation is punishable by a fine of up to $500.

The ordinance represented a compromise between restaurateurs, club owners, and tavern keepers who objected to a total smoking ban that was proposed by Mayor Bruce Todd and Council Member Gus Garcia.

The first business day of the ordinance received mixed reviews.

"Non-smoking sections haven't really worked in the past," Greg Tingle, a computer programmer who ate at a downtown restaurant, said Monday. "One little no smoking sign doesn't keep smoke from drifting over and bothering those of us who don't smoke."

But a customer in a South Austin restaurant said the new ordinance was idiotic.

"A private business has a right to decide what they will allow in their business," said Barry Stambaugh. "This is just another example of government intrusion."

CLASSIC: Buffs to travel old Route 66

(From 1B)

She said the group will visit 30 cities in 14 states during its eight-week trip. Maxwell said the group travels approximately 200-250 miles daily.

The group plans to trek approximately 8,000 miles across the United States. The members started their trip in Jacksonville and were in Fort Worth last weekend.

They left Odessa Tuesday morning en route to El Paso, Maxwell said.

Ms. Koch said the International Mustang Roundup will participate in vintage Mustang shows and club functions in several of the cities on their itinerary. On its way to El Paso, the group was to be joined in Van Horn by a group of Mustang enthusiasts from El Paso.

"We really enjoyed meeting with our American counterparts and sharing our love of this unique car with them," she said.

Maxwell said the Europeans love Texas and have been pleased with Texans' reception of them.

Following their arrival in El Paso, the group plans to travel through Arizona on to California and then head back across the country via the historic Route 66, Maxwell said.

The former Ford employee said the group plans to travel out of the way to Dearborn, Mich., to see the Mustang assembly plant. They'll make their way back to Jacksonville before heading back overseas.

Hearst, others to get larger interest in Lifetime

NEW YORK — The Hearst Corporation, Capital Cities/ABC, Inc., and Viacom Inc., the owners of Lifetime Television, the cable network for women, have entered into a definitive agreement under which Viacom will sell its one-third partnership interest in Lifetime to its partners.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Frank A. Bennack, Jr., president and chief executive officer of The Hearst Corporation, Total consideration for Viacom's partnership interest will be approximately $317.6 million.

Thomas S. Murphy, board chairman and chief executive officer of Capital Cities/ABC Inc., Sumner M. Redstone, board chairman of Viacom, and Frank J. Biondi, Jr., president and chief executive officer of Viacom.

Total consideration for Viacom's partnership interest will be approximately $317.6 million in cash.

Under the new arrangement, The Hearst Corporation and Capital Cities/ABC each will own a partnership interest of 50 percent of Lifetime. Previously, each company held a one-third interest in the network.

Argentine parakeets find life easy in Fort Worth neighborhood

By Gracie Bonds Staples
Associated Press

FORT WORTH — As far as Betty Simmons knows, Charlie could be dead by now, gone from her life as mysteriously as the little green parakeet appeared five years ago.

Yet Simmons' sorrow is not without some solace: at least 30 of Charlie's offspring remain in the trees near her home in south Fort Worth.

Recently, she talked about how Charlie joined her family and the noise that forced her husband to finally set Charlie and her mate free, only to have them breed more noise.

Charlie is a breed of parakeet called quaker or monk. It is a native of Argentina, where the climate is similar to that of Texas, said Chris Brown, curator of birds for the Fort Worth Zoo.

The birds, which usually sell for less than $100, started showing up in the Metroplex about four years ago, when one was sighted in Arlington, he said.

"They're pretty common as pet birds," Brown said. "The main reason that there are probably so many of them is that people found out that they are so noisy and obnoxious and were purposely released."

The way Simmons tells the story, Charlie, a female, literally stumbled upon Simmons' husband while he was working at Rosemont Middle School. When no one else at the school wanted the sick, starving bird, Simmons said, her husband put Charlie in a box and took her home.

"I didn't have anything to feed her that night but crackers and water," Simmons said. "I crumbled them up and by morning she had eaten every bit of it."

For the next two years, Simmons said, Charlie was a welcome companion, a kind of child-pet, to a house long empty of children.

Then one summer, heeding the shrill calls that are common to the small birds, Pete showed up.

Simmons said the two birds became constant companions, but the noise they made became so overwhelming, "I told my husband either they go or I go."

Much to her surprise, Simmons said, her husband released the birds. Two days later, they were back.

Before long, Simmons said, the parakeets took up residence in some nearby trees and began multiplying.

Houston church opens its doors to Farrakhan

HOUSTON (AP) — A Baptist Church has offered sanctuary to Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan and his men-only speech. Both the controversial speaker and his agenda were driven off Texas Southern University a week ago.

Farrakhan will speak at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Pleasant Grove Missionary Baptist Church, in northeast Houston.

In a surprise announcement on Monday, Robert Muhammed, leader of the Nation of Islam Mosque No. 45 in Houston, said Farrakhan also plans to give an all-women address in Houston in the "near future."

No date or location for Farrakhan's all-women address has been set.

Last week, Farrakhan canceled a speech at TSU after school officials expressed concern that women would be excluded.

Farrakhan decided on the all-male format to address problems facing black males in America, a Nation of Islam spokesman said.

"We (blacks) make up 12 percent of the population of Texas but 48 percent of TDC (Texas Department of Corrections)," Muhammed said.

Muhammed said a disproportionate number of black youths are in trouble with the law, become victims of homicide and generally have lower life expectancies than their white counterparts.

Cleo Glenn-Johnson, the female president of the Texas chapter of the National Black United Fund, defended the all-male meeting, calling it "long overdue."

"Whether talking about attitudes, community, women, sex, children, fathering, parenting . . . they need an opportunity for once to come together and talk about the conflicts."

Red hot cancer?

Hot chili peppers are good for you, say many experts. The peppers help open breathing passages, thwart blood clot formation, combat pain and may even help heal ulcers.

But how does eating chili peppers affect cancer? Two new studies come to opposite conclusions: A new study of about 1,000 Mexico City residents by Yale Medical School researchers found "heavy" consumers of hot chili peppers 17 times more likely to have stomach cancer than non-pepper eaters. In fact, chili pepper-eaters in general had a 5 times greater risk. Mexicans average age about a pepper a day — far more than Americans.

In direct disagreement, a new study at Loma Linda University found that capsaicin — the hot substance in chili peppers — actually blocked the formation of potent cancer-causing chemicals in cigarette smoke. Previous animal studies at the University of Nebraska showed that high doses of capsaicin (about 1 percent of the diet) promoted cancer but lower doses actually prevented it.

Vitamin heresy?

So you think you can get all the vitamins you need from food? Think again.

That outdated belief is hazardous to your health, says a group of experts on antioxidant vitamins and aging. If you are 18 or older, you should take vitamin pills to help fend off cancer, heart disease and other age-related degenerative diseases, the group advised after reviewing more than 200 recent studies.

All adults need 250-1,000 mg of vitamin C, 100-400 IU (international units) of vitamin E and 17,000-50,000 IU of beta carotene daily, said the non-profit Alliance for Aging Research, in a radical departure from common medical and governmental thinking. Those doses are up to 16 times the government's recommended dietary allowances (RDA) and much higher than you can ordinarily get from food.

Especially critical is a vitamin E capsule, found to deter heart disease in several studies. It's virtually impossible to get heart-protective doses of vitamin E from food, studies show.

Heart cocktails

There's more evidence that red wine has special powers to thin the blood, thus thwarting clotting that can lead to heart attacks. So finds John D. Folts, Ph.D., of the University of Wisconsin-Madison Medical School.

He and other subjects drank two and a half glasses of Chateauneuf du Pape, a French red wine. Forty-five minutes later, tests showed their platelet-clumping activity, a first step to forming clots, had slowed down about 40 percent. White wine had no such effect. Dr. Folts credits chemicals in grape skins, such as quercetin (also in yellow and red onions), for the effect.

Recent studies also show that alcoholic beverages raise good-type HDL cholesterol.

Caution: This does not mean anyone should take up drinking to prevent heart disease. Nor is there any benefit from more than one or two drinks daily, studies show. One drink means 12 ounces of beer, 5 ounces of wine or 1.5 ounces of 80 proof spirits.

Also, red wine may be good for the heart only when drunk with meals, as the French do, suggests Michael H. Criqui, at the University of California-San Diego School of Medicine. Throwing down drinks without food is unhealthy, he warns.

Bony Fun?

NEW YORK (AP) — When is a bone not a bone? When it is a funny bone — that sensitive place at the bend of the elbow. In this area, the ulnar nerve passes close to the surface between skin and bone.

Because the nerve is relatively unprotected, any sharp impact stimulates it and causes a sudden, painful, tingling sensation in the arm and fingers. The funny bone got its name, according to some sources, from its location near the humerus, which connects shoulder and elbow.

Friends write book on Down syndrome

By Marlene Aig

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. (AP) — When Mitchell Levitz and Jason Kingsley were born, their parents were advised to institutionalize them. After all, their parents were told, little could be expected of their sons.

Both had Down syndrome, a genetic disorder which carries with it a degree of mental retardation and the stigma of being unable to learn. Emily Kingsley says she was even encouraged to tell people her baby had died in childbirth.

Both sets of parents rejected such counsel and raised their sons at home. Kingsley, now 19, and his best friend, Levitz, 22, are examples of how wrong old medical myths can be.

With the aid of their families they have written a book, "Count Us In. Growing Up with Down Syndrome." They tell how they learned to achieve when there were once no expectations for them at all.

"I'm glad my parents made the tough decisions when I was young," says Levitz. "People didn't think that we were capable. ... We can learn. We can make (the same) choices as everyone else."

"We have the same hopes, feelings, goals and dreams as everyone else," says Kingsley. "We want people to know what it means to be us. We are not just people with Down syndrome. We are individuals."

DOWN SYNDROME is a genetic disorder; a person is born with 47 chromosomes instead of 46. The disorder affects approximately 5,000 births a year in the United States, according to the National Down Syndrome Society. It estimates there are 250,000 affected people in the United States.

Most people with Down syndrome have IQs that fall in the mild to moderate range of retardation, according to the society. Children with the disorder are educable to varying degrees.

The days of institutionalizing such children are long over, says Daniel Crimmins, acting program director for developmental disabilities at the Graduate School of Health Sciences of New York Medical College in Valhalla.

"Society has changed to say an institution is not the best place for any child," says Crimmins.

When Kingsley and Levitz were born, there was already a movement among educators and social workers to work with Down syndrome children.

The medical profession lagged behind, Crimmins says, and it's only within the past 15 years that it recognized that these children can learn and can do a great deal independently.

Mitchell Levitz, left, with his mother Barbara behind him, with Jason Kingsley, with his mother Emily pose in the Kingsley home in Chappaqua, N.Y. Levitz, 22 and Kingsley, 19, both born with Down syndrome, are co-authors of the book "Count Us In: Growing up with Downs Syndrome." Down syndrome is a genetic disorder which carries a stigma of mental retardation and an inability to learn.

Some of the life-limiting aspects of Down syndrome, including certain congenital heart problems, can now be corrected through surgery, giving hope for a normal life span, according to Crimmins.

Kingsley and Levitz were lucky. Levitz's mother, Barbara, was a teacher of special needs children. Kingsley's mother was a writer for "Sesame Street."

Barbara Levitz and her husband, Jack, started the Parent Assistance Committee on Down Syndrome in their hometown of Peekskill. After Jason was born, Emily and Charles Kingsley learned of the Levitzes and reached out to them.

THE RESULT was a bond of friendship between the families and especially between Jason and Mitchell.

Both mothers say the key to success was early intervention. "The idea was to try everything," says Emily Kingsley, even if it meant sitting Jason in a tub full of Jell-O when he was 6 months old to enhance his senses.

Jason made his television debut at age 15 months on "Sesame Street," and Mitchell appeared regularly as well.

Joan Ganz Cooney, the co-founder of the Children's Television Workshop which started "Sesame Street," says in a forward to the book that the show had been looking for ways to include children with disabilities.

The boys' education wasn't without hardships. Both were placed in mainstream classes in school. Levitz admits he was often teased and made fun of because he speaks slower and takes a little longer to learn.

But his two younger sisters along with the rest of his family offered sufficient support to get him through the rough spots and then he helped Kingsley.

The book reproduces the often idiosyncratic syntax of the young men's speech. In their introduction, the mothers explain that they did not edit the quotes because they didn't want to camouflage their sons' disabilities.

The cumulation of three years of dialogue between the two young men and their families, the book is often brutally honest.

Levitz asks his father how he reacted when he learned of his disability. Jack Levitz replies, "Well, I cried. Big time. I was very upset."

He says he worried his son wouldn't be able to master Hebrew to have a bar mitzvah. Levitz says one of his proudest moments was undergoing that Jewish religious ritual at age 13 "because it was my father's dream."

THEIR EFFORTS to enhance the rights of the disabled comes at a time when public awareness of the problem is increasing, they say. Federal and state laws now help protect such rights.

Levitz recently moved into an apartment of his own and works for the Westchester Association for Retarded Citizens. He's a member of a citizens advisory panel for the county Department of Mental Health.

Kingsley is still in high school and talks glowingly of his girlfriend, Tami, who lives in Pittsburgh.

"We want to tell people to erase their negative attitudes. Get to know people," says Levitz.

"With our abilities, we should change it to Up syndrome," says Kingsley.

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Count Us In. Growing Up with Down Syndrome" is published by Harcourt Brace. It costs $19.95 in hardcover, $9.95 in paperback.

Communication skills important

By Dr. Hap LeCrone
N.Y. Times News Service

One of the most common complaints from couples who find their marriage stale, unhappy, and in conflict is, "We don't communicate." Research has shown that four of the most destructive behaviors in a bad marriage are criticism, contempt, defensiveness and withdrawal.

In the work place, breakdowns in communication often lead to problems. A mutual feeling of misunderstanding often exists between employer and employee and when asked why the problem exists, each will often say, "We don't communicate."

Breakdowns in communication often occur because of poor listening skills. Effective listening involves more than simply hearing the words. It requires the involvement between those attempting to communicate, sensing the feelings and emotions associated with the words, and being active in the process of listening.

Here are some techniques that are often helpful in improving listening skills.

- Try to understand how the other individual in a conversation feels by putting yourself in their shoes. Focus on what he or she is saying and the feelings that are associated with the words. Resist the urge to shift your thinking away from the other individual and on to your own planned response to them.
- Try to maintain eye contact when possible. Telephone conversations are obviously an exception. But perhaps technology will change that in the not-too-distant future.
- Be sensitive to the possibility that

Students not taught dangers of inhalant abuse in schools

By Laura Wisniewski
N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — One sniff can kill you, yet teenagers are huffing household products at a numbing rate.

And while inhalant use is on the rise, particularly among middle-schoolers, Georgia schools aren't required to teach about its dangers.

One in five eighth-graders — 20 percent — has done some sniffing in their life, making inhalants the drug of choice for that age group, according to Patrick O'Malley, a University of Michigan researcher who surveyed teenagers on inhalant use.

That figure rose from 17 percent in 1992, he said. No information is available for that age group before the 1990s because researchers weren't tracking it then. But Georgia drug counselors say they've seen an increase.

"We're seeing inhalants becoming more commonly used, mostly with the early adolescent kids," said Bryan Hughes, an addiction counselor at Charter Peachford Hospital in Dunwoody. "They don't think anything can happen to them."

Separate myths, facts on insomnia

Associated Press

Sooner or later practically everyone suffers from insomnia — but it isn't anything to lose sleep over. What you can do, Florence Isaacs wrote in an article in the current issue of Good Housekeeping, is to separate the myths from the facts about sleep so that you don't worry needlessly and can act in the most sensible manner if sleeplessness strikes.

For instance, a lot of people operate under the theory that if you go to bed late during the week, you can catch up by getting some extra sleep on Saturday and Sunday.

That's myth. It is true that you can make up for some lost sleep, but not all

Sandy Tucker, left, and daughter Carrie, pose in Abilene Texas with boxes of Betaseron, a new drug for treatment of multiple sclerosis. Betaseron is in such short supply that patients names are drawn lottery-style to receive it. Betaseron is also expensive, at $9,000 to $10,000 a year.

Abilene woman among first to try new MS drug

By Pamela Percival
Associated Press

ABILENE — Sandy Tucker is taking a new medicine that makes her feel "pretty rotten" — but she couldn't be happier.

The Abilene computer operator is excited because she's among the first group of people in the nation to get a scarce new drug which can help slow the progress of multiple sclerosis.

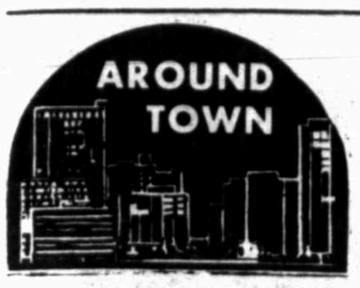

The drug, called Betaseron, "is the first real drug that's come along that has any long-term ramification for treatment of MS," said Caroll Pilcher, chapter services director for the Tri-Cities chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society, which is headquarterd in Fort Worth and serves a 33-county area.

MS is an inflammatory disease of the central nervous system. Until now, doctors could only treat its symptoms with such drugs as steroids and cytoxans.

"Basically, what people have been experiencing is coping with medications that are for symptom management only," Pilcher said. "The difference in this drug is its purpose is to alter the course of the disease. The goal of the drug is to keep the MS from progressing, which is a major, major impact."

Betaseron received FDA approval last year and became available to consumers in October. However, it has several drawbacks — it's in limited supply; it's very expensive ($9,000-$10,000 annually and Medicare and many insurance compa-

DEAR ABBY

Answer to tallest-building query is questioned

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your response to "What is the world's tallest building?" needs some clarification:

Van Buren

There is a free-standing concrete structure in Toronto, Canada, as your reader suggests. It is called the CN Tower. It is 1,821 feet tall — 367 feet taller than the Sears Tower in Chicago, which is only 1,454 feet tall.

There are other communication towers in the world that are even taller, but to the best of my knowledge, the CN Tower is the tallest self-supporting one (no guy wires), and it is the only one in which there is an elevator to a public restaurant and viewing platform near the top.

Although it is not an office building, it is a building, albeit a very narrow one. — DREW VACTOR, TUCSON, ARIZ.

DEAR DREW: Many readers have written to point out my "error," and inform me about the CN Tower — which stands 1,821 feet tall, according to The World Almanac, or 1,815 feet, 5 inches tall, according to the Guinness Book of Records.

However, my reader asked for the tallest BUILDING. Towers are in a class by themselves. But read on for a view like your own:

DEAR ABBY: "A Daily Reader in Downey, Calif." inquired about the world's tallest building.

Toronto may not be in the United States, but it is part of the world, and certainly qualifies.

The Sears Tower may be the tallest "office building" in the U.S.A., but it is 361 feet, 5 inches short of being the tallest "building" in the world — ARTHUR SEIDENSCHWARTZ, ARCHITECT, WAUWATOSA, WIS.

DEAR ABBY: My husband started working for his father recently, which has taken a lot of his time away from me and our three kids. He usually works six days (sometimes seven) a week, eight to 10 hours a day.

He also thinks he shouldn't have to call me when he decides to stay at his mom's for the night, and if I call him, he thinks I'm checking up on him. (Not true. I trust him.)

He has canceled plans with me and taken his mother in my place. Once, he asked his mom to go to a concert with him. He said he didn't ask me because he knew I wouldn't like it.

I would like your opinion about a husband who treats his wife this way. — SECOND CHOICE

DEAR SECOND CHOICE: It is thoughtful and generous for a man to be so considerate of his mother, but she should not replace his wife. (Where's Papa?)

Family counseling (here we go again!) is essential in your marriage. Your husband needs to realize that he is being unfair to you.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is going to have twins in June. Her girlfriends are giving her a shower and they were talking about gifts for the babies. Some of them are wondering whether they should bring one gift or two.

They asked me for my opinion, and I said, "She's having two babies, so I think two gifts are required — a gift for each child."

Was I right or not? — SOUTH PHILLY FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: You were right.

Substance Abuse.
Often It's Not The Only Problem.

Quite often substance abuse is a symptom of depression. And depression is a serious illness. Unfortunately, many people choose to 'treat' their depression themselves, often leading to:

- Excessive drinking
- Use of illegal substances, such as cocaine or marijuana
- Abuse of prescription drugs
- Overeating

If you or someone you know is experiencing any of these problems, call us 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Our experienced staff and innovative treatment programs can help over-come the obvious and not so obvious problems - the right way.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Some sobering choices strengthen your resolve and make you a more valuable employer or employee. In June, a family member will hold the key to greater career success. Minor differences could complicate your plans for romance or marriage. Sit down with partner and talk things out. Your cash reserves should increase once 1995 gets under way. A happy era dawns for family life.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Billy Dee Williams, baseball player Bert Blyleven, country singer Merle Haggard, "Evening Shade" actress Marilu Henner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Interruptions from friends can keep you from completing an important work project or household task. The answers you have been seeking about an investment are forthcoming.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your concerns over a relationship are needless. However, get things off your chest; other people are willing to meet you halfway. Listen to an elder's words of wisdom tonight; they could strike home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A domestic matter must be resolved before you leave on a business trip. Delight in a teen-ager's good news about college acceptance. New financial developments will work to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Working hard now will lead to huge dividends in the near future. Talks with bankers about a loan or mortgage are favored. A heart-to-heart discussion at home eliminates misunderstandings with loved ones.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Financial problems will mount unless you act now. Save on groceries by using coupons. Set up a bill payment schedule before you get another reminder. Romance is in bloom.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Closer scrutiny of your spending habits could be helpful in getting things back on track. Your loyalty to a friend who is in over her head is commendable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A new plan can make your business more profitable. Respond to an inquiry promptly and success will follow. A happy surprise could be just around the corner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Today offers you a taste of what you face in the weeks ahead. Issuing ultimatums will work against you. Stay calm and rely on like-minded individuals to support you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You could be sitting on a powder keg at home. Defuse a ticklish situation before it explodes. Trouble in paradise can be avoided. Stop being so sensitive about criticism.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lay back and postpone taking action. The passage of time will work in your interest. Although whistleblowers run risks, someone has to stand up for what is right.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Switching to high-tech services puts your company and career on the fast track. Welcome change! Cost-cutting moves made now could create big savings for you later.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A new plan could offer you extraordinary versatility in the financial area. An expert's on-target answers serve you well. Costs will go down. Make yourself comfortable at home this evening.

Dear Tannah:

I felt I had recovered well enough from my recent surgery to play in the Macallan Invitational in London at the end of January. Considering my long absence from competitive bridge and the strength of the field, I was quite happy with our ninth-place finish. I found this hand fascinating.

The winners were the Poles Balicki and Zmudzinski and the auction shown occurred at their table. A light opening bid in third seat by Balicki propelled North-South into game after North had shown a singleton spade with the jump cue-bid.

When one side is known to be distributional and have reached a light game, a trump opening salvo is not a bad idea—trump leads whenever East gains the lead would surely defeat the contract. However, West chose a spade, taken by East's ace and the trump return was won in the closed hand, so declarer could lead a club. West, Herve Mouiel of Paris, found the brilliant defense of inserting the queen. The king won, but East was able to win the club return and play another trump and declarer could come to only nine tricks.

South missed a brilliant counterstroke which would have permitted the game to come home. West's queen of clubs must be permitted to win the trick! Later, declarer will be able to take the diamond finesse, discard a diamond on the king of clubs after again leading toward the monarch, then crossruff the hand for 10 tricks!

As ever,
Omar

Supermodel Brinkley comes out of copter crash bruised, but OK

TELLURIDE, Colo. — Christie Brinkley is bruised in body but not in spirit as she recuperates from a helicopter crash.

The supermodel and five other people were stranded for six hours Friday after the helicopter crashed while ferrying them up a mountain for skiing.

"I'm bruised from my shoulders to my knees but my spirits are anything but blue," Brinkley said in a statement. "I'm extremely thankful to be alive and greatful to all the brave men and women who helped in our rescue."

Brinkley's husband, singer Billy Joel, postponed a concert in Kansas City on Saturday night to fly to Telluride and accompany her back to New York.

Los Angeles real estate developer Richard Taubman was the most seriously injured. He was in serious condition Tuesday at a Grand Junction hospital with broken ribs, a broken clavicle and a puncture lung.

Sandra Carradine, ex-wife of actor Keith Carradine, received several stitches on her face. Her 11-year-old son, Cade, had bruises.

DETROIT — There she is . . . state Sen. Kaye Lani Rae Rafko?

The state's top two Republicans are trying to persuade Rafko, the 1987 Miss America, to run for the Michigan Legislature.

Lawmakers try to persuade 1987 Miss America to run.

"I'm flattered in their confidence," Rafko, 30, told The Detroit News in a story published Tuesday. But, she added, "I'm not really sure what I'm going to do."

Rafko, a registered nurse at a hospice, plans to meet this weekend with Gov. John Engler and Michigan GOP Chairman David Doyle.

If she were elected, Rafko said, "I'm positive I would do a good job in representing the people."

TORONTO — The lecture series is called "Unique Lives and Experiences," so it was only natural — or, perhaps, supernatural — for Shirley MacLaine to participate.

"I love being part of a series called 'Unique Lives' because I've had so many of them," MacLaine joked to a packed concert hall Monday. "This is perhaps the most acoustically perfect place I have spoken in in 6,000 years."

MacLaine, 59, the star of such movies as "Terms of Endearment" and "Guarding Tess," often has been teased about her beliefs in the paranormal, particularly reincarnation.

That hasn't discouraged her, though. She spoke Monday about self-enlightenment, and said it all comes down to a simple formula — what you give is what you get.

"People are beginning to recognize the law of cause and effect . . . that what we put out comes back," she said. "If you want to transform the world, you have to tranform yourself."

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Fans of Ol' Blue Eyes are seeing red after Frank Sinatra played a game of musical chairs with an upcoming concert.

Sinatra changes seating arrangement at his concert.

Sinatra changed the seating arrangement at his April 16 concert from in-the-round to the more conventional "end-stage" configuration, which puts the band behind him.

That means that ticket holders, some of whom stood in line for hours, must go back and exchange their seats. They'll be placed as close to their original seats as possible, but there will be only three front-row sections now, instead of six or seven.

"That's ridiculous, it really is," said Lisa Pasho, who bought 22 tickets. But she said she'd do it anyway.

"He's a legend. I'd hate to miss this opportunity."

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. — Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt wants to see less parking in the park.

In a speech to about 250 park employees Monday, Babbitt reiterated longtime National Park policy to reduce the number of cars allowed in Yosemite Valley.

"I can tell you with confidence that the day will come when there will be no automobiles in the upper part of this valley," Babbitt said. "I would be willing to wager that when our kids are discussing these issues 20 or 30 years from now, we will be a lot closer to that day."

Babbitt's visit was his first to Yosemite.

LOS ANGELES — Tony Curtis was reported in excellent condition Tuesday after undergoing a three-hour heart bypass surgery.

Curtis, 68, underwent the operation Monday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

MS: Medication holds promise for patients nies refuse to pay for it); and it can initially cause uncomfortable side effects that include headaches and flu-like symptoms.

TUCKER SAYS she has had fever, aches and chills since she began taking Betaseron in January. However, those symptoms should subside within a few months, and she hopes the long-term benefits will outweigh the initial discomfort.

She was diagnosed with MS about six years ago, but believes she'd had the disease for awhile before that. She's lost the use of her left leg and now walks with a cane. She also has intermittent problems with her vision. Major flare-ups of her MS can be brought on by stress or fatigue, and the effects are often irreversible. She had held out little hope for stopping the progress of her MS until the advent of Betaseron.

"I really am hopeful — because you can see things happening to you all the time and it seems they continue to get a little worse," Tucker says. "If this can stop that, it would be wonderful."

But as Tucker continues to give herself Betaseron injections every other day, her excitement is tempered by the knowledge that her 30-year-old daughter Carrie, who also has MS, still waits for the drug. Carrie and thousands of other Americans have been assigned "lottery" numbers, waiting for Betaseron's production to catch up with demand. Sandy was assigned number 7,000, and her number came up in December.

The drug's manufacturer, Berlex Laboratories, was not prepared for Betaseron's quick approval by the FDA last year. The process of making Betaseron is relatively involved, compared to traditional pharmaceuticals, and Berlex did not have equipment and facilities ready to make enough of the drug to meet patient demand.

THE COMPANY was prepared to make enough Betaseron for about only about 20,000 MS patients during its first year of production, but more than 60,000 people registered to get the drug, Pilcher said.

To accommodate patients as fairly as possible, Berlex instituted a sort of lottery system. The company doesn't expect to catch up with demand until 1995, but more patients are getting the drug every day. For example, Carrie Tucker's number is 47,000, and she hopes to get the drug this fall.

Abilene neurologist Paul Harris says he now has eight to 10 patients on Betaseron, with about 30 to 40 still waiting. He says one patient who has been taking the drug almost three months "seems to be responding somewhat" to the treatment.

"She was requiring regular doses of steroids just to be able to function," Dr. Harris said. "She's now to the point where she can go without the steroids."

However, Harris points out that Betaseron is still not a cure for MS and cannot be expected to give people back functions they lost to prior MS flare-ups.

"But it's a little closer, I think to having a more specific treatment for a disease that, up until the last couple of years, we've had very little understanding of. Over a period of time, while patients are using it, they'll have fewer flare-ups and hopefully have fewer disabilities."

THIS REDUCTION in flare-ups should help keep MS patients of the hospital, Harris surmises. Therefore, it should be cost-effective for insurance companies to cover Betaseron.

"If you can keep an MS patient out of the hospital even one time a year, the drug will pay for itself," Harris said, adding that such hospital stays typically last a week and may include physical therapy.

"They (insurance companies) will pay less for the drug than what they'd pay for the hospital stay, if it does what we think it's going to do," Harris said.

Sandy Tucker counts herself fortunate that her company's insurance, through the West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association, covered her Betaseron treatment with no problems. She's crossing her fingers that her daughter's insurance will cover the drug.

Pilcher says the MS society gets calls all the time from people saying their lottery number is up, but they can't afford to pay $9,000 to $10,000 a year for the drug. Insurance companies have all kinds of excuses.

"They try to say its experimental — I've heard all kinds of things," Pilcher said.

Medicare doesn't cover Betaseron because it doesn't cover any prescription drugs, Pilcher said. Dr. Harris said patients also have been rejected by the military's Champus plan. However, most of his patients have had good success with their insurance companies, and he's had no trouble getting Medicaid to cover indigent patients.

BERLEX DOES claim to offer discounts and even free Betaseron to certain financially qualified patients.

For more information on Betaseron, call Berlex's toll-free information line at 1-800-580-3837 or the Tri-Cities Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society at 1-800-833-6178.

INHALE: Dangers not taught

(From 4B)

The popularity of inhalants tends to decrease slightly as the students get older and move on to hard drugs, such as marijuana and LSD, the study says.

"For the younger kids, like 13 and 14, it's a handy little household drug," said Cynthia Steele, an addiction counselor and nurse at Ridgeview Institute in Smyrna. "A lot of the parents are totally oblivious; a lot of the kids just go down to the basement."

In Georgia last year, two teenagers died of intentional inhalant exposure, said Gaylord Lopez, director of the Georgia Poison Center. A 14-year-old boy from Chattooga County inhaled butane fuel, and 16-year-old Leland Franz of Cherokee County died when he inhaled VCR tape-head cleaner. Both died immediately.

There are probably more deaths that don't get reported as such because doctors classify them as heart failure or drug abuse, Lopez said.

Nationally, estimates on inhalant deaths per year range from 100 to 1,000, experts say.

Researchers rely on surveys because it's difficult to determine how many kids use inhalants. It's not a crime, the products aren't illegal and no central agency keeps statistics.

"It seldom becomes an arrest situation unless the child has destroyed something or attacked someone," said Cobb County Police Chief Culver Johnson. The police are more likely to make referrals to rehabilitation centers or doctors.

There are no numbers on inhalant use in Georgia, but metro Atlanta teenagers say inhaling is abundant.

"Once I figured it out, I started looking for things that said 'Do not inhale,'" said a 14-year-old eighth-grader from northeast Cobb who is now in a recovery program at Ridgeview. "I mostly looked around the house for ones with warning labels."

Georgia schools aren't required to teach about the dangers of inhalants, although the topic may come up in drug-awareness lessons.

Rendel Stalvey, director of health for the state Department of Education, recently realized the word "inhalants" is omitted from the required curriculum and said, "We need to be more specific on that one."

But some school systems, including Clayton County, already teach about the dangers of inhalants. Others, including Cobb and Gwinnett, encourage teachers to discuss the dangers of inhalants.

The American Council for Drug Education says sniffing products — even just one time — can lead to brain damage, kidney failure, loss of concentration and death.

INSOMNIA: Sleeplessness common

(From 4B)

of it, according to Dr. Michael J. Thorpy, director of Sleep-Wake Disorders Center, Montefiore Medical Center, New York City.

The extra weekend rest may even make it harder to fall asleep on Sunday night, possibly leaning to a chronic problem. "The best idea is regular hours," Thorpy said. "Go to sleep and get up at the same time seven days a week."

Another common belief is that insomnia is unavoidable as you get older — and that unfortunately is a fact. Older persons frequently suffer from insomnia since sleep patterns tend to change with age.

As people enter their 60s and 70s, they tend to go to bed earlier, wake up earlier and spend more time awake in bed, according to Dr. Charles R. Cantor, co-director of the Sleep Laboratory at Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia.

"But if you realize these changes are normal, rather than worry about them — and if you avoid daytime napping — you can increase your chances of sleeping well at night," Cantor said.

No matter how old you are, don't stay in bed if you can't sleep. The best thing to do is get up and watch television or read a book until you are tired.

One popular remedy for sleeplessness is alcohol, but it's a myth that it will help your sleep problems. A nightcap does make you drowsy, but it disrupts and fragments sleep, according to the American Sleep Disorders Association. You fall asleep, only to wake later, after the alcohol has been metabolized by the body.

SKILLS: Listening is important communication tool

the listener has not heard you. If you suspect that this is possible, ask them to tell you what they thought they heard. Explore with them, if necessary, the meaning of what you are trying to convey to them.

- If you are not completely sure that you understand the other person's meaning in a conversation, stop and explore this with them, rather than letting the conversation grow and develop on inaccurate assumptions.
- Analyze your goals in conversation and see if instead of listening you are instead often attempting to change the other person and control the outcome of the conversation. This may be appropriate in the courtroom or a formal debate but it is often unproductive in personal situations such as at home or at work.
- Refrain from blaming-type statements such as, "You should have known better," or "You always foul things up." These types of corrosive criticisms can end a conversation in a hurry.
- Refrain from letting your own sense of inadequacy or insecurity interfere with your ability to hear what the other person is saying. Individuals with poor self-esteem often misinterpret what is being said to them because of their own negative self-talk. While listening to the individual communicating with them they may be making false assumptions such as, "Their lack of attentiveness to me in this conversation means they don't care or don't like me." Other false assumptions can be made on the basis of such false assumptions regarding non-verbal cues.

Peanut butter has reduced fat version

By Linda Anderson

My youngest got on a peanut butter kick recently, so I was really pleased when the Skippy people sent us a jar of their new Skippy Reduced Fat peanut butter in the mail.

Anderson

Of course we also got a lot of information telling us how wonderful this new product is, and it went something like this:

"Peanut butter has been an American palate pleaser for over 100 years. Now Best Foods, the makers of Skippy peanut butter, have something new on the shelf for lovers of the classic, nutty spread.

"New Skippy (I don't know why they keep putting the word Skippy in italics, but it's beginning to get annoying.) Reduced Fat peanut butter features 30 percent less fat (Skippy Reduced Fat Super Chunk has 25 percent less fat than regular peanut butter.) with the great fresh roasted taste and creamy texture expected of a premium brand peanut butter."

Then it goes on to say "The product is nutritionally equivalent to peanut butter, featuring the same amount of protein, vitamins and minerals. Additionally, Skippy Reduced Fat peanut butter can be used the same way as regular peanut butter, including as a baking ingredient."

The company's fact sheet reveals that the reduced fat peanut butter "was introduced nationally in January 1994. Created to offer consumers a reduced fat alternative to regular peanut butter." The approximate retail price listed is $2.15 for an 18-ounce plastic jar.

I have to wonder about the reduced fat-ness of this product, since a look at the nutrients label shows that about half of the calories per serving come from fat. But I guess any reduction in fat is good.

The young taste-tester said she couldn't taste any difference in Skippy Reduced Fat peanut butter and ordinary peanut butter. Neither could I. It does seem to be a little harder to spread than regular peanut butter, but I guess that's to be expected.

So the peanut butter has less fat than most other peanut butters but still delivers "great fresh roasted taste and creamy texture." Now all we need is the jelly.

Rebels outlast Bulldogs

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Lee's Mike Carrasco steals second base as Midland High's T. Stewart attempts to apply the tag during the second inning of the Rebels 7-5 win over MHS at Ernie Johnson Field Tuesday.

■ Midland Lee survives a scare from Midland High 7-5 to remain unbeaten in league play.

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

Both Midland Lee coach Jesse Benavidez and Midland High coach Rick Wood cracked smiles after Tuesday's District 4-5A game that pitted the two hottest teams in the league battling one another.

Benavidez had to breath a sigh of relief after escaping with a 7-5 victory at Ernie Johnson Field. The Rebels were coming off an emotional 21-3 win over Abilene Cooper Saturday for the district lead. That coupled with a earlier rout of MHS in the first meeting of the season and Benavidez was hoping that his Rebels would not overlook the Bulldogs.

For Wood, he was hoping that his team would not blasted by a team that was averaging 14.5 runs per game in league play. His team had built some momentum and confidence after winning three straight district games to

Tailgate party crashed

MILWAUKEE — A hydraulic lift platform toppled onto a tent where a radio station was holding a tailgate party for Tuesday's Milwaukee Brewers opening game, injuring four people, sheriff's officials said.

Investigators suspected that wind gusts or revelers caused the platform to fall over. The incident occurred in the parking lot of Milwaukee County Stadium about an hour before the Brewers played the Oakland Athletics in an afternoon game.

One woman was hospitalized in satisfactory condition and three others were treated at the scene, authorities said.

The injured were among about 50 people attending a tailgate party in the tent sponsored by Milwaukee radio station WQFM, Sgt. David Iushewitz said.

The hydraulic lift platform was set up behind the tent and was holding a WQFM banner with balloons attached to it, he said. The lift raises the 3-foot-by-5-foot platform 30 feet. The platform weighed between 1,000 and 1,500 pounds, Iushewitz said.

Tech to add women's soccer

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech will field a women's soccer team this fall, officials announced Tuesday.

The addition equalizes to eight the number of intercollegiate sports for men and women at Tech.

Federal officials last year investigated a complaint that the Red Raider athletic department violates the 1972 Title IX policy requiring equal opportunity for men and women at public schools.

Carlson might start for Oilers if deal works

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers and Cody Carlson's agent Tuesday were negotiating a new contract that would cut the quarterback's 1994 pay by $1 million but put him in the starting lineup and extend his stay with the team.

When the deal is completed, veteran quarterback Warren Moon is expected to be sent packing for Minnesota.

The Oilers and Vikings have been discussing a deal that would give Houston a fourth-round draft choice this year and a third-round pick in 1995 in exchange for Moon, the Houston Chronicle reported in Tuesday's editions.

Vikings vice president Jeff Diamond wouldn't comment on the negotiations.

"All I can really say is that he remains one of many options that we're looking at," Diamond said Tuesday. "We do have many, many options."

Minnesota are interested in Moon as well as San Francisco backup Steve Bono. They also still might re-sign Sean Salisbury, a part-time starter each of the last two seasons.

The Vikings would like to get a deal done soon, because any QB signings would greatly affect their salary cap and any future moves they could make.

Moon, 37, wants to play two more years and the Vikings have an opening after electing not to exercise their 1994 option on Jim McMahon's contract.

Carlson's agent, Vic Vines, resumed negotiations last week for a three-year deal with general manager Floyd Reese and general counsel Steve Underwood. Carlson is on a three-week vacation in Africa.

The new deal involves a $1 million

1993 champ Langer says game not sharp

■ Bernhard Langer points to Nick Price and Greg Norman as favorites to win the first of the year's Big Four Tournaments.

By Bob Green
AP Golf Writer

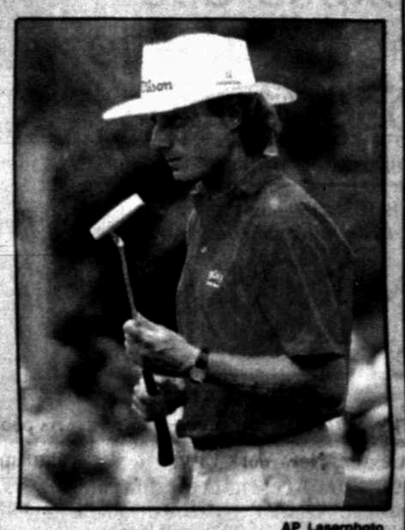

AUGUSTA, Ga. — As defending champion, Bernhard Langer finds himself in a Catch-22 situation going into the Masters.

As a result, he points to Greg Norman and Nick Price as the men to beat in the first of the year's Big Four tournaments that begins Thursday at the Augusta National Golf Club.

"The golf course should favor both of them," Langer said Tuesday. "They're both very long, both good putters.

"One, or both of them, should win. If not this year, then sometime in the future. The only surprising thing is that neither one has won it before."

Price improved after quitting beta blockers

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — It's supposed to smooth out your backswing and cure the putting yips. Players were talking about beta blockers Tuesday at Augusta National Golf Club instead of the dogwoods, azaleas and slick greens.

The topic surfaced at the Masters because of recent reports that many golfers use nerve-calming medicine before they tackle the rigors of championship courses.

It's supposed to take the fear out of 210-yard tee shots over water or a downhill 10-footer with a double break.

Nick Price, the hottest player on the PGA Tour, admitted he took beta blockers for a seven-year period until five years ago because of blood pressure problems. He said his game suffered.

Switzer master recruiter at Oklahoma

By Barry Horn
Associated Press

IRVING — If you know the story of Billy Sims, you'll understand why Barry Switzer's teams won three national championships and 157 of the 190 games he coached in his 16 seasons at the University of Oklahoma.

You may also understand why Switzer's program ran into trouble with the NCAA, which led to his resignation after the 1988 season.

Sims was among the most highly recruited running backs in Texas in 1974. He was raised by his grandmother, Miss Sadie, in the East Texas town of Hooks and worked Saturdays at the Conoco station along Interstate 30.

"I'd be working, and he'd call me at the gas station at halftime of Oklahoma games just to talk," Sims says. "He wouldn't be talking to the team, he'd be talking to me."

Oklahoma went 11-0 in 1974 and won its first national championship under Switzer. There really wasn't much to talk about at halftime of games that season. Oklahoma averaged 30 points per game while giving up eight.

At halftime of the Colorado game, with Oklahoma leading 28-0, Switzer called Sims and the two began a friendly chat. While Joe Washington ran for 200 yards

■ Coach Nolan Richardson brings respect to program with his first NCAA Division I national championship.

Associated Press

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — As the weary coach left the airport Tuesday, the chant rose from the crowd: "No-LAN, No-LAN, No-LAN."

About 3,000 fans welcomed the Arkansas Razorbacks home the day after Nolan Richardson's team won the NCAA basketball championship by beating Duke 76-72.

"It's a great feeling to finally win it, but I go back to work tomorrow," Richardson said on the tarmac at Drake Field. "I've not been to sleep yet. I can hardly wait to get home."

Scotty Thurman, whose arching 3-pointer with 50 seconds left put Arkansas ahead for good, also was ready for bed after making the rounds of the Tuesday morning news shows.

Teammate Clinton McDaniel beamed and waved his arms at the crowd.

"This is what Arkansas basketball is all about," he said of the fans.

Added Corey Beck: "I haven't had much time to think about it. But the fans were great, and this is real great to see them here today."

Warriors steal game from Spurs, snap win streak

Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

SAN ANTONIO — Latrell Sprewell scored 26 points and had two key steals in the final two minutes Tuesday night, carrying Golden State to a 106-101 victory that snapped San Antonio's six-game winning streak.

Sprewell tied the game at 100 after a steal with 1:53 left and later scored again to give the Warriors the lead for good.

After Willie Anderson's foul shot with 1:32 left made it 102-101, Sprewell's steal set up a layup by Avery Johnson that iced the victory, which knocked San Antonio out of first place in the Midwest Division.

The Spurs, who lost for just the seventh time in 37 home games, committed five turnovers in their final seven possessions.

Chris Webber had 21 points, Billy Owens 20 and Chris Gatling 16 for the Warriors.

Pacers 105, Pistons 89

INDIANAPOLIS — Antonio Davis, starting in place of ailing Rik Smits, scored 15 points in the first half to start Indiana on the way to a victory over Detroit.

Dale Davis contributed 19 points and 14 rebounds for Indiana. Antonio Davis and Kenny Williams finished with 18 points apiece.

Bulls 114, Bullets 88

CHICAGO — Scottie Pippen had 22 points, 10 assists and nine rebounds, and Chicago used a 21-8 run at the outset of the second half to win its fifth consecutive game, over Washington.

The victory was the Bulls' 11th in 13th games and it was their 15th straight over the Bullets, whose last win in Chicago was exactly six years ago.

Calbert Chaney scored 19 points and Rex Chapman 18 for the Bullets. B.J. Armstrong scored 17 points and Horace Grant 16 for Chicago.

Nets 120, Celtics 94

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Boston's 14-year playoff run came to the end as New Jersey reserves used a 23-6 second-quarter spurt to rout the Celtics.

The last time the Celtics didn't make the playoffs was in 1978-79, when they posted a 29-53 mark the year before Larry Bird arrived made Boston a perennial playoff power.

Kenny Anderson added 17 assists and 12 points for New Jersey, while Kevin Edwards and Benoit Benjamin had 18 points apiece. Kevin Gamble had 17 for Boston, which shot 51 percent from the field (39-for-77) in getting blown out.

Heat 100, Knicks 86

MIAMI — The shots finally stopped falling for the New York Knicks.

Miami limited New York to 36 percent shooting and snapped the Knicks' 15-game winning streak.

Harold Miner scored 22 points and Steve Smith 20 for the Heat, who lost seven of their previous eight games, including a 110-87 blowout at New York on Saturday.

Miami earned its 39th victory of the season, breaking the franchise record set in 1992, the Heat's only playoff year.

Grant Long had 17 rebounds for Miami, which outrebounded New York 52-43. During the winning streak, the Knicks averaged 10 more rebounds per game than their opponents.

Patrick Ewing led New York with 18 points and 11 rebounds.

Cavaliers 105, Hornets 99

RICHFIELD, Ohio — John Williams scored 23 points and Cleveland overcame horrendous early shooting to beat Charlotte.

The loss kept Charlotte winless in 13 trips to Richfield and further damaged the Hornets' sinking hopes of making the playoffs. Cleveland closed the game with an 18-9 run, starting with Gerald Wilkins' tying 3-pointer with 4:51 left, and won for the fifth time in six games.

The Cavs need one more win to clinch a playoff berth. Charlotte dropped 5½ games behind New Jersey in the battle for the last playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

Rod Higgins scored a season-high 20 points for Cleveland, which needed the extra scoring because Mark Price went 2-for-12 and scored seven points. Wilkins had 18.

Dell Curry scored 22 for the Hornets, including five 3-pointers. Alonzo Mourning scored 19 but got into foul trouble midway through the third quarter and wasn't a factor down the stretch. He fouled out in the closing seconds. Larry Johnson had 18 points and 10 rebounds.

Magic 104, Bucks 97

ORLANDO, Fla. — Orlando, playing without ailing center Shaquille O'Neal, got 22 points and 10 rebounds from Jeff Turner to defeat Milwaukee.

O'Neal sat out the game with a stomach virus, the first time in his two-year career that he missed a game because of injury or illness.

Turner took up the slack, scoring 14 points in the first half when the Magic opened a 20-point lead. Rookie Penny Hardaway scored 21 points and Nick Anderson 14 for the Magic.

Brewers defrost bats, club A's 11-7

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

MILWAUKEE — Milwaukee warmed up with a two-out, five-run rally in the sixth inning Tuesday and the Brewers, behind Billy Spiers and Alex Diaz, won their coldest-ever home opener, beating Oakland 11-7.

Rock salt was scattered on the stadium ramps and snow was on the ground behind the right field bleachers with game-time temperature at 31 degrees, a northerly wind at 29 mph and a wind chill of zero.

Spiers and Diaz, the eighth and ninth hitters, were in the starting lineup because of injuries. They combined to drive in five runs and helped the Brewers break a six-game losing streak in openers at Milwaukee County Stadium before a crowd of 52,012.

Blue Jays 5, White Sox 3

TORONTO — Rookie Carlos Delgado homered off a restaurant window inside the SkyDome for the second straight day, and Toronto beat the Chicago White Sox.

Dave Stewart (1-0) outpitched Alex Fernandez (0-1) for the victory. Last October, Stewart twice beat Fernandez in the AL playoffs, won by the Blue Jays in six games.

Angels 8, Twins 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Chili Davis drove in three runs and Damion Easley scored three times as California roughed up Kevin Tapani and opened the season with a victory over Minnesota.

California's second through sixth batters — Easley, Tim Salmon, Davis, Jackson and Eduardo Perez — were a combined 9-for-12 with seven RBIs, five runs and three walks during Tapani's 3 2-3 innings.

Mark Langston allowed eight hits, including home runs by Dave Winfield and Pedro Munoz, in 7 2-3 innings, walking four and striking out seven for the rejuvenated Angels.

Expos use homer to slip past Astros

Associated Press

■ NL Roundup

HOUSTON — Larry Walker hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning, leading Montreal past Doug Drabek and Houston 5-1 Tuesday night.

Ken Hill (1-0) gave up six hits in six innings. Three Montreal pitchers finished with shutout relief.

Drabek, who led the NL in losses with a 9-18 record last season, walked Marquis Grissom and Mike Lansing in the sixth. After an RBI grounder by Rondell White put the Expos ahead 2-1, Walker homered over the center-field fence.

White had an RBI double in the fourth after a single by Lansing. Grissom had a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Mets 6, Cubs 2

CHICAGO — Pete Smith pitched seven strong innings in his Mets debut and New York won its second straight game, beating the Chicago Cubs.

A 25 mph wind blowing toward right field dropped the 35-degree temperature down to a wind-chill of 6 degrees. The cold weather kept the ball in the park, a day after six home runs were hit in the Mets' 12-8 win.

Kelly Stinnett, with his first major league hit, and Jeff Kent each had two-run doubles during a five-run third inning.

Karl Rhodes, who hit three home runs and went 4-for-4 with a walk for the Cubs in the opener, was 2-for-4 with a walk.

The Cubs are off to their first 0-2 start since 1987.

Smith (1-0), traded from Atlanta in November for outfielder Dave Gallagher, gave up two runs on nine hits. He struck out three and walked two.

Jose Guzman (0-1) lasted only 2 1-3 innings, giving up six runs on three hits and five walks.

Giants 2, Pirates 0

SAN FRANCISCO — Bill Swift limited Pittsburgh to three hits in seven innings in San Francisco's, keeping the Pirates scoreless this season.

Swift, who won 21 games last year, struck out three and didn't walk a batter. Mike Jackson pitched the eighth and Rod Beck closed the ninth for a save, finishing off a team that was shut out 8-0 Monday.

Pittsburgh left-hander Steve Cooke was alsmost as sharp as Swift. He allowed only three hits until the sixth, when Willie McGee led off with a single, went to third on Barry Bonds' single and scored on Todd Benzinger's sacrifice fly.

San Francisco added a run in the seventh when Darren Lewis led off with a double off reliever Joel Johnston, stole third and scored on Johnston's errant pickoff throw to first base.

Dodgers 4, Marlins 3

LOS ANGELES — If the best way for the Los Angeles Dodgers to put Darryl Strawberry's latest problem behind them is simply winning, they took a step in that direction.

Baseball Millionaires

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1994 salaries for the 265 major league baseball players making $1 million or more. Figures were obtained by The Associated Press from management and player sources. Figures include salaries and pro-rated shares of signing bonuses. For some players, parts of salaries deferred without interest are discounted to reflect present day values. For Gary Gaetti, Mike LaValliere and Dave Righetti, salaries are from guaranteed contracts they were released from:

Lewis to highlight 100-meter field

■ Texas Relays

AUSTIN (AP) — World-record holder Carl Lewis will highlight the field competing in the 67th annual Texas Relays.

The meet begins today at Austin's Memorial Stadium with heptathlon and decathlon events. Event finals are on Friday and Saturday.

Lewis will highlight a blazing field in the invitational division of the men's 100-meter dash, an event in which he holds the world record (9.86).

Lewis, a member of the Santa Monica Track Club, will be joined in the 100 meters by Central Arizona's Daniel Effiong, who ranked third in the world in the event last year, posting a time of 9.98. Effiong is the defending national junior college champion in the 100 and 200 meters.

Mark Weatherspoon, also a member of the Santa Monica team, adds to the field, having posted a 10.03 in the 100 meters this year.

Santa Monica Track Club star Leroy Burrell, who has posted a 9.88 in the 100 meters, was scheduled to compete in the Texas Relays before an injury last weekend forced him to withdraw.

Lewis likely will team with Floyd Heard, Mike Marsh and Weatherspoon in the invitational division of the 400-meter relay as Santa Monica attempts to defend the Texas Relays title it won in 38.94 last year, a meet record.

Cheryl Taplin, a member of Louisiana State's reigning NCAA outdoor championship team, is back to try and defend her 100-meter Texas Relays title.

REBELS: Defenses shine for Lee, Midland

move back into the thick of the playoff picture, one game behind third place Odessa Permian. A big loss to Lee could have been disastrous for the young Bulldogs' morale and playoff hopes.

Both coaches walked away with their momentum and playoff hopes intact.

"We'll take a win, whether its by one run or by the way we won last week. It's still a win," said Benavidez. "I've seen Midland improve. Rick has done an excellent job with them. They are going to win some ballgames before the end of district play.

"I think we did some good things defensively. Raymond Martinez made a big play in the seventh inning. That is the kind of play that keeps you in ballgames."

For Lee (16-3 overall and 7-0 in District 4-5A play) it was business as usual as its offense racked 11 hits and scored seven runs against the Bulldogs' sophomore thrower Keith Lant.

Lant, however, held the potent Rebel offense to its fewest runs in district play.

"I think this was the best outing that Keith's had all year," said Wood. "I know it's tough to say, when they are hitting the ball all over the place and scoring seven runs, but to do what he did against this kind of ballclub, it was his best outing."

The Rebels rallied from a 2-0 deficit to take a 3-2 lead in the second inning. Chris Connally, who went 3-for-3 with two runs and two RBI, led off with a triple and later scored on a Brian Henderson sacrifice fly. The Rebels took the lead when David Romero hit an opposite field single to score Britt Harper and Ray Martinez.

"I've been a little bit anxious early in the year," said Connally, who raised his team-leading batting average to .667 in district games, "but I'm trying to hold back and get good pitches."

More Sports/ 8C

Midland High rallied to tie the game twice. The Bulldogs came up with a run in the third to tie the game at three and at 5-5 with two runs in the fourth inning when second baseman T. Stewart hit a two-out double and later scored on a Scott Riley single. Then Abel Sanchez stole home on a passed ball by David Romero.

But the Rebels scored two runs in the bottom of the inning to take a lead they would not surrender. With the bases loaded and one out, Connally hit an opposite field single to score David Galvan and Eric Benavidez to give the Rebels a 7-5 lead.

Midland High went down 1-2-3 in the seventh, but Lee infielders Martinez and Benavidez made good defensive plays to throw runners out at first.

Despite the loss, Midland High remained a game out of third after Odessa High upset Odessa Permian 5-3 Tuesday afternoon. The Bulldogs meet Permian April 11 in Odessa with a playoff berth in the balance.

CARLSON: Moon could move to Minnesota

(From 1C)

pay cut for Carlson, who is under a two-year, $8.85 million contract he signed last year.

"They are still working on it," Oilers spokesman Chip Namias said Tuesday. "We're definitely getting closer."

Houston needs to figure out something because it will have trouble fitting both quarterbacks' salaries under the $34.2 million cap. Each has contracts of at least $3 million for 1994.

Moon is scheduled to make $3.25 million this year and $3 million next year.

Moon's agent, Leigh Steinberg, told The Associated Press on Tuesday neither he nor his client has been approached by the Oilers regarding a trade.

"Warren has been very happy as a Houston Oiler," Steinberg said. "No one from the Houston Oiler organization has ever mentioned any trade involving Warren."

Steinberg said a restructured contract for Moon was discussed at last month's NFL owners' meeting in Orlando, Fla., but nothing was agreed upon.

He declined to discuss the details of those discussions.

"The Oilers had a proposal and we had a proposal," Steinberg said. "And there's no final resolution yet."

Owner Bud Adams turned down an offer from the Los Angeles Rams for Moon last month. Detroit was interested in Moon, but they ended up signing free agent Scott Mitchell. The Vikings also tried hard to get Mitchell but lost out to the Lions.

The Oilers' third quarterback, Bucky Richardson, is being pursued by Hamilton of the Canadian Football League.

No matter what happens with Richardson, the Oilers say they'll try signing a veteran quarterback for about $500,000 a year if Moon is gone.

Moon, who joined the Oilers in 1984 after a successful career in the CFL, has led the Oilers to the playoffs the last seven years, although they've never even reached the AFC Championship game.

Carlson has been his understudy since 1987. He filled in well every time Moon was injured and Carlson briefly replaced Moon as the starter last season until getting injured himself.

PRICE: Mac O'Grady experimented with beta blockers

(From 1C)

"It hurt me," Price said. "It didn't let me be myself."

Price's career has improved dramatically since he got off the medicine. He won the PGA championship two years ago and was the 1993 PGA Player of the Year.

"It's a bad drug," Price said. "It keeps you at a constant level. It's kind of like you are depressed. You have no energy. Still, I could never get tired enough to go to sleep. I'd go to bed but I could only get five hours sleep. I'd wake up tired. It was just a terrible time in my life."

Price still has to take medicine for his blood pressure but it doesn't sap his energy or put him in some sort of a goofy out-of-it zone.

"I'd like to put a cap on it," he said. "I hate to be on it. I wish I could just get rid of it. But I either take the medicine or I die of a heart attack."

Price said he doesn't believe that any of the top players take the beta blockers.

"You have to stay alert and have energy to play championship golf," Price said. "I don't believe it. It just doesn't have a place in our sport."

Price said Mac O'Grady had tried beta blockers as an experiment.

"That's what doesn't make any sense," Price said. "Here you take the healthiest guy in the world and he's trying that stuff."

O'Grady claimed that seven of the top 30 players in the world take some form of calm-influencing drug before they hit the first tee.

Beta blockers are supposed to affect the limbic system in the brain which controls fear and anxiety. Past negative traumas are history.

The drugs are not illegal or against PGA Tour policy, but they are banned by the International Olympic Committee, the NCAA and various international sports governing bodies.

Bernhard Langer, the defending Masters champion, said O'Grady had told him several years ago that beta blockers might help his putting.

"He's the only guy I heard who was experimenting with beta blockers, he was researching it," Langer said. "He said they might cure the putting yips. I just laughed it off. I don't believe players use that."

Two-time Masters champion Nick Faldo said he didn't know any players who used beta blockers.

Then he ended his interview by saying jokingly, "I've got to go out and find me some drugs."

HOGS: Fans show support

back of his head, where the barber had spelled out "hogs."

"I'm just showing support for my Hogs," Carter said. "I couldn't go to Charlotte, so I thought it was the best thing I could do."

Fans waved signs that said "Razorback Hogs Are Tough, Talented and Intelligent" and "Duke Who?"

A special ceremony was planned for today at 6 p.m. in Bud Walton Arena, when the team will receive the CNN-USA Today championship trophy.

"We don't have to talk about respect anymore," said Arkansas athletic Director Frank Broyles. Winning the tournament "gives you a different level of acceptance, and the respect will be there," he said.

Broyles, who is being treated for an irregular heartbeat, did not watch the game on the advice of doctors.

"Last night at 10 o'clock, Nolan called and said, "Go to bed and get some sleep. I'm going to bring the national championship back to you.'"

Prices ease

Crude oil futures weakened slightly on the New York Merc.

May light sweet crude fell 5 cents to $15.74 a barrel.

Contracts for May deliveryof natural gas sank 7.5 cents to $2.069 per 1,000 cubic feet.

New EOR project

Amoco, Enron and Union Royalty Inc. have joined in partnership to launch a CO_2 tertiary project in the El Mar field of Loving County, in what may be the first ever project in which an independent will trade oil for CO_2.

A feature on the unique arrangement will be detailed in the Sunday Oil Report.

Dollar surges

NEW YORK — The dollar soared against most major currencies Tuesday, powered by an enormous rebound in the depressed American stock and bond markets that helped refocus attention on the strengths of the U.S. economy.

Gold prices fell. On the New York Commodity Exchanges, gold for current delivery lost $1.90 a troy ounce to $384.40.

In New York the dollar closed at 104.30 yen, up from 103.20 yen Monday.

The dollar also strengthened against the British pound. In New York the pound was quoted at $1.4650, cheaper than its $1.4660 close Monday.

Other late dollar rates in New York vs. late Monday: 1.7146 German marks, up from 1.6975; 1.4475 Swiss francs, up from 1.4255; 5.8580 French francs, up from 5.7983; 1,659.00 Italian lire, up from 1,638.00; and 1.3833 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3960.

On New York's Comex, silver for current delivery fetched $5.542, off 3.6 cents from Monday.

Novell CEO

SAN FRANCISCO — Novell Inc. Tuesday named Robert J. Frankenberg to succeed Raymond J. Noorda as chief executive.

Frankenberg, 46, has spent his entire 25-year career at the Hewlett-Packard Co., most recently as the head of its personal computer business. He takes command of Novell at the most challenging time since Noorda turned the struggling startup company around a decade ago.

Frankenberg was named president and chief executive, not chief operating officer, as previously reported; Noorda, who will turn 70 in June, continues as chairman.

The company is dissolving its office of the president, whose former members, Mary M. Burnside, chief operating officer, and James R. Tolonen, chief financial officer, will continue their responsibilities and report to Frankenberg.

Shares of Novell rose $1.50, to $18.375, in Nasdaq trading Tuesday in anticipation of the announcement. Although Novell released its announcement after the close of the market, it had been broadly leaked.

Southwestern Bell drops cable deal

■ Phone company blames increased industry regulation by FCC.

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Southwestern Bell Corp. abandoned plans Tuesday for a $4.9 billion U.S. cable television partnership with Cox Cable Communications, blaming increased industry regulation.

A federal cable TV law passed in 1992 and a rate decrease ordered by the Federal Communications Commission in February were key reasons the deal fell through, said Jim Kahan, a senior vice president with Southwestern Bell.

"After careful analysis of the FCC's more than 700 pages of detailed rules, we concluded that it's unlikely the cable industry can generate the cash flow we expected," Kahan said in a statement.

It was the second proposed partnership between a phone company and cable operator to fall apart this year.

In February, Tele-Communications Inc., the largest cable TV company, and Bell Atlantic Corp., which provides phone service to the mid-Atlantic region, called off a merger. They also blamed more cable regulation and lower rates.

San Antonio-based Southwestern Bell provides local phone service in the Southwest. Atlanta-based Cox Cable is part of the privately held Cox Enterprises Inc. and one of the nation's largest cable systems.

The partnership would have combined Cox's cable system with financial backing from Southwestern in order to expand and exploit new two-way cable TV technologies, such as movies on demand and home shopping.

Southwestern was to commit $1.6 billion to the partnership and take 40 percent ownership, with an option to increase to 50 percent.

Cox was to bring $3.3 billion in assets to the deal, including 21 of its 24 cable systems.

The companies announced their agreement to form the partnership Dec. 7.

Southwestern Bell's decision Tuesday was understandable, said Cox Cable President James O. Robbins.

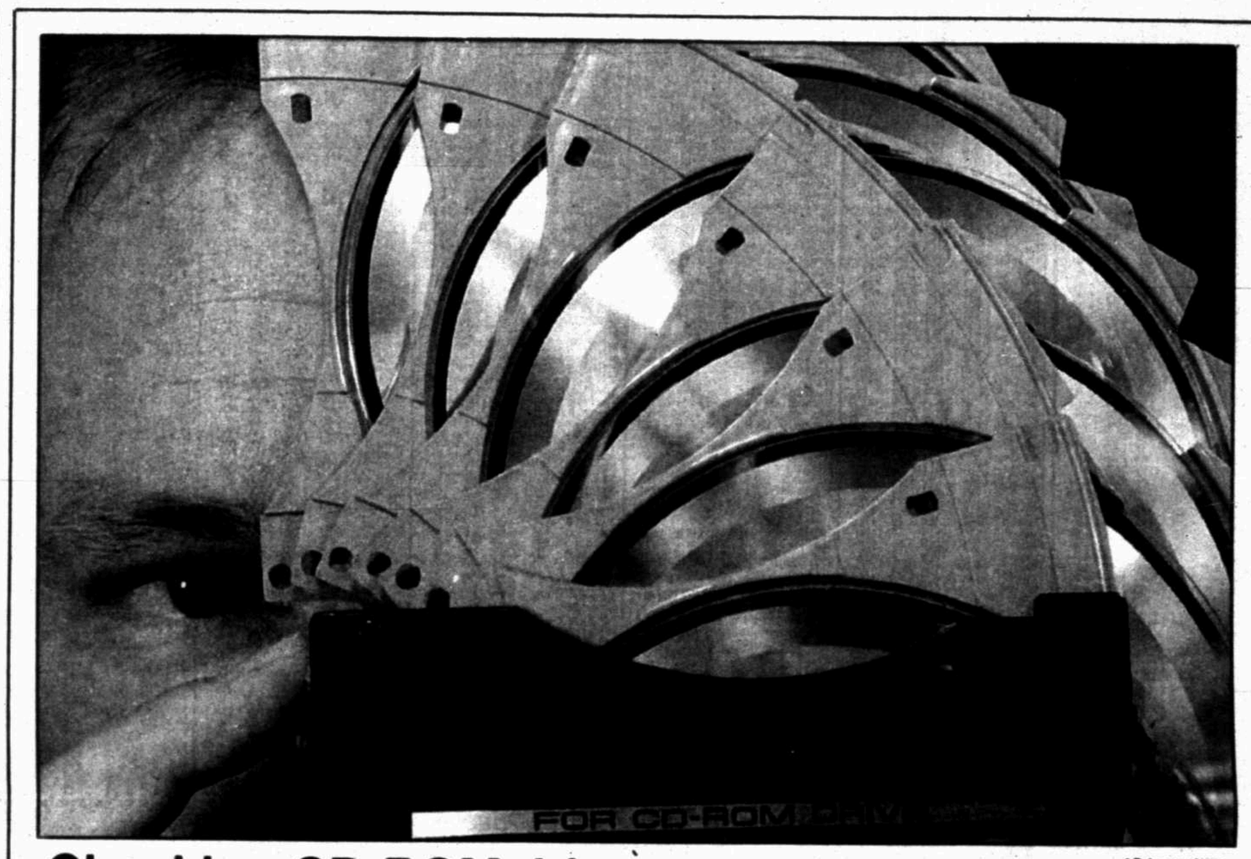

"But Cox will continue to vigorously pursue its growth objectives, its commitment to quality and customer service," he said.

Cox and Southwestern Bell also will continue to pursue a cable partnership in Britain, Robbins and Kahan said.

Cable and phone companies have sought mergers or partnerships in order to take advantage of each other's strengths as communications technologies advance.

Phone companies are seeking access to the larger carrying capacity of cable as cable companies push to expand through the interaction and switching capabilities of phone systems.

In one of the remaining cable-phone deals, U S West, in an alliance with Time Warner, is investing $1 billion to convert Time Warner cable systems into advanced communications networks.

Halliburton says it plans to lay off 500-700 workers

Associated Press

DALLAS — Halliburton Co. has announced it is cutting 500 to 700 salaried positions this spring as part of a restructuring in its Houston-based Energy Services business unit.

Brandon Lackey, a Halliburton spokesman, said the Midland area should see minimal effect from the cutbacks because Midland is an operational area whereas the layoffs are targeting primarily salaried indirect support people.

"The layoffs are focused on major support areas like Dallas, Houston and Duncan, Oklahoma," he said.

A large number of the jobs will be eliminated in the Houston area, Guy Marcus, vice president for investor relations for the Dallas-based oil-field services company, said.

"There will be some impact in the Dallas-Fort Worth area," Marcus said, although precise numbers were unavailable.

Among those terminated will be 15 senior management jobs. Marcus declined to identify them because some of those targeted have yet to be notified, he said.

Marcus blamed the cutbacks on low oil prices and a desire to improve operating efficiencies.

He said some Halliburton employees will be given the chance to take early retirement. Others will be reassigned to new responsibilities. A severance package will be offered to those who lose their jobs, the company said.

DOT nixes Lorenzo's yearlong effort to start airline

NEW YORK (AP) — The Department of Transportation turned down Frank Lorenzo's yearlong effort to start a new airline on Tuesday, but the company plans to appeal in federal court on Wednesday.

The government said Eastern and Continental airlines had some of the most serious operational, maintenance and labor problems in the history of U.S. aviation while Lorenzo was in charge.

"The record fails to demonstrate that Lorenzo . . . has sufficient commitment to safety or to comply with legal requirements," the department said in a written statement.

Lorenzo and his family control 77 percent of the company, tentatively called ATX Inc. Lorenzo has signed on new investors who would dilute the Lorenzo family stake to about 30 percent if the airline gets government certification. Lorenzo would remain the largest single shareholder.

ATX has contended that its application was poisoned by union-led political pressure to keep Lorenzo out of the airline business.

"The decision to turn down ATX was made by the department as a political payoff to organized labor with total disregard for the law, consumers' interest, or the rights of private investors to start their own businesses," ATX president and chief executive Steve Kolski said.

'The record fails to demonstrate that Lorenzo . . . has sufficient commitment to safety or to comply with legal requirements.'

— Department of Transportation written statement

ATX, which would adopt a snappier name if it is allowed to fly, plans to serve cities on the East Coast offering inexpensive unrestricted one-way fares such as $55 between New York and Washington and $50 or $60 between Baltimore and Boston, Kolski said.

Eastern markets are already seeing new price competition as Continental Airlines expands its lower-cost operation and Southwest Airlines enters the region. USAir has been forced to respond with lower fares.

In rejecting the application, the government said Tuesday that Lorenzo-led Eastern had violated maintenance standards repeatedly. Pilots were pressured to fly planes that needed maintenance and mechanics were pressured to rush out inadequately fixed planes to meet schedules, the department said.

The government had to spend more time watching Lorenzo airlines to ensure public safety, the department said.

"That commentary is just total bunk," Lorenzo said, citing 18 years with only one fatal jet crash as testament to his devotion to safety.

More than a year after Lorenzo was removed as Eastern chairman by a bankruptcy judge, the airline pleaded guilty to trying to block a probe into its maintenance practices and other safety related crimes, many of which occurred during Lorenzo's tenure. The airline paid a $3.5 million fine.

Lorenzo has said that had he still been in charge the airline would have challenged the charges.

Cereal maker bucks trend, cuts its prices

NEW YORK (NYT) — General Mills Inc. said Monday that it would buck a trend in the breakfast cereal industry by cutting promotional costs by $175 million a year and passing the saving through to consumers in the form of prices 30 cents to 70 cents lower than they were now.

Officials of the Minneapolis company said consumers should see the lower prices soon after they go into effect on May 2. For example, the price of a 15-ounce box of Cheerios, the biggest-selling brand of cereal in the country, should drop to about $2.90, from about $3.30 Monday.

The price reductions, the company said, will take in about 40 percent of its cereal volume and include such brands as Cheerios, Wheaties, Whole Grain Total, Golden Grahams, Lucky Charms and Trix. The average reduction should be 11 percent, it said.

Rosa's eyes June opening for third location

By Mella McEwen

Midland's third ROSA'S CAFE AND TORTILLA FACTORY is expected to open around June 1 on Midland Drive just south of Loop 250.

McEwen

Bob Barnes of Bob Barnes Co., a partner in the restaurant chain, said the new location will be the latest prototype as seen on the Rosa's Cafe in Odessa next to Permian Mall, featuring what has been called an "Alamo" look.

He said the new restaurant will be larger and more upscale, with a much larger patio and larger inside dining room that will seat between 130 and 140.

Currently Barnes is hiring a management team for the restaurant now, and he said he should start hiring a crew around May 10.

The other two Rosa's locations in Midland are at 3100 N. Big Spring St. and 903 Andrews Highway.

SONIC DRIVE-IN, with three locations in Midland, recently has completed the celebration of both its 40th anniversary and the opening of the 1,300th store in the chain, which has locations in 25 states.

Sonic was founded in 1953 in Shawnee, Okla., as the Top Hat Drive-In by World War II veteran Troy Smith, who had acquired a steak house and root beer stand, the Top Hat.

In 1958, Smith and his partner, Charles Pappe, wanted to call their growing drive-in chain Top Hat, but the name was copyrighted, so the two men chose the name Sonic.

SWITZER: Cowboys leader called a players' coach and Oklahoma ran the score to 49-14, Switzer kept talking. He had to be called out of the locker room with five minutes left in the game.

(From 1C)

Sims picked Oklahoma.

Switzer was quickly earning a reputation as a master recruiter of black athletes and putting them in leadership positions, including quarterback. For some reason, most schools reserved their quarterback positions for whites.

In truth, Switzer was simply a master recruiter of high school stars. In 1974, Dean Blevins, the son of a Norman, Okla., Baptist minister, was among the most sought-after football and basketball recruits in the country.

Dean Smith wanted him to play basketball at North Carolina. Bear Bryant wanted him to play quarterback at Alabama. Blevins was impressed by Bryant.

But Switzer knew that Blevins loved to play golf. Switzer would show up while Blevins played and carry his clubs.

"My dad loves Barry, and Barry's image hardly fits what you'd expect a minister to love," Blevins said. "What my dad loves most is the size of his heart."

Blevins picked Oklahoma.

Meanwhile, Sims was hardly an overnight sensation. He gained 95 yards in 1975 and didn't play in 1976 because of an injured shoulder. It was that season that Miss Sadie died.

"I didn't have the money to get home," Sims recalled. "Coach Switzer helped me get home and back." That, of course, was in violation of NCAA rules that prohibit extra benefits for athletes not available to all students.

It was about the same time that Sims, disappointed with his performance, thought about quitting football.

"I thought it was time to do something else," he says. "I talked to some of the assistant coaches, and they didn't sound like they would try to stop me."

Switzer did. He talked to Sims about overcoming adversity. He talked about his own life. "He told me he wouldn't let me leave."

The next season, Billy Sims rushed for 1,762 yards, scored 20 touchdowns and won the Heisman Trophy.

"The man believed in me and made me believe in myself," Sims says. "We talk all the time. We've gone way beyond player-coach. He is as close to a father figure as I've ever had."

Switzer likes to say he ran a "loose ship" at Oklahoma. He earned the reputation as "a player's coach." Players acted as they pleased, dressed as they pleased, and talked as they pleased.

Friends say he allowed too many players too many second and third and fourth chances.

"I just wanted my kids to be themselves," Switzer says. "I wasn't in business to turn 90 kids into the same one kid. Everyone has to develop to be their own person."

And now, 20 minutes into a conversation, when it is suggested that Switzer's style led to less than flattering reputations for his players, the former college coach rises from his chair and assumes the posture of a defense lawyer making a closing argument.

"Every player I recruited, Notre Dame recruited and Michigan recruited and Southern Cal recruited," he says, his voice rising. "Where did my kids come from, Devil High School? I beat them. I got them. The thing that infuriates me is I have to defend great kids.

"All of this because of a handful of dopin', rapin' shootin' kids."

The NCAA hit Switzer's Oklahoma program with a three-year probation after the 1988 season ended. In the next 30 days, four of Switzer's players were involved in a shooting and a rape in the football dormitory while the Sooners' quarterback was arrested for selling cocaine.

In June 1989, Switzer submitted his resignation and walked away from the Oklahoma football program.

"It was unfair," says Spencer Tillman, who played running back at Oklahoma in the mid-1980s. "But we live in a world of images and perceptions, and a very small percentage was responsible for the negativism."

LANGER: Says Price, Norman should battle

(From 1C)

The reasoning, he said, is simple:

"Nick is an excellent player. He has improved enormously in the last two years," Langer said of the man who has won 12 times around the world in the last 18 months.

As for Norman, "Greg has everything," Langer said, and pointed to a record-breaking victory in the Players Championship as an example.

"Off the results of the last few years" in the Masters, Langer said, "the odds look pretty good for a foreigner to win."

While he is not counting himself out of the group that will attempt to extend a string of five foreign victories in the last six Masters, Langer admits his game is not quite so sharp as it was at this stage a year ago.

"But it's not far away," he said. "I'm working things out. I'm playing a lot better than I was two days ago, and I have another two days to work on it.

"I'm working on every aspect of my game."

At least part of the problem comes from his position as the defending title-holder.

That's where Catch-22 comes in. On one hand, it is the position he covets. On the other, it interferes with his preparations.

"As defending champion, there are so many demands on your time. So many people wanting to get you aside for a moment. So many requests for interviews. It is a little hectic," Langer said. "But you want to be in the spotlight, not out of it. If you're in it, you know you're doing something well; you are a success in your profession. We all have our egos. We like to be recognized for our successes."

Government: Millions of imported crayons contain lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents, check your childrens' crayon boxes. Millions of crayons imported from China contain enough lead to be harmful to children and should be thrown away or returned for refunds, the government said Tuesday.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said three brands, including one sold by the chain Toys R Us, present "a lead poisoning hazard to young children who might eat or chew on these crayons."

Eight other brands, it said, have lead, but not at levels to produce lead poisoning, "assuming a typical scenario of a child chewing on small pieces of lead-containing crayons over a span of time."

"No children's product, especially crayons, should contain lead," said CPSC Chairman Ann Brown. "Throw these crayons in the trash or take them to the store for a refund."

Carol Fuller, spokeswoman for Toys R Us in Paramus, N.J., said the company was notified of the recall by the commission on March 29 and removed them from the shelves of its 249 stores that day. She said only 100 packages of the crayons, which come in a can, had been sold this year and were stock left over from 1990 when the company last bought crayons from China.

Ken Giles, a commission spokesman, said the recalled brands represent "a relatively small percentage of the market." The largest selling brand in the United States, the American-made Crayola, he said, contained no detectable lead.

Crayola's manufacturer, Binney & Smith Inc., makes two billion crayons a year and is the world's leader in crayons. It holds more than half of the $130 million-a-year market.

Crayons consist of paraffin, a tasteless, colorless substance obtained from petroleum, and pigment. Pigment, which comes from earth, can contain trace elements of lead.

"We go to extreme effort to ensure our products are safe for kids to use," said Brad Drexler, a Binney & Smith spokesman. He said that imported crayons hold only three to five percent of the market share.

Lead has long been recognized as a hazardous substance, especially to young children, infants and fetuses, because it can cause irreversible brain damage and can impair mental functioning. The most common source of lead ingested by children is paint.

Under federal law, all art materials must be reviewed by a toxicologist for chronic hazards and products that pass are labeled "Conforms to ASTM D-4236."

"Parents should not buy old non-ASTM-labeled art materials still on store shelves," the commission said.

The three Chinese-import crayons deemed most hazardous are "12 Jumbo Crayons," distributed by Concord Enterprises of Los Angeles, with 430 cases sold; "Safe 48 Non-Toxic I'm a Toys R Us Kid! Crayons," with 100,000 packages distributed by that firm in 1990-91 and 2,000 last year; and "12 Crayons, glory" and "18 Crayons That Paint," distributed by Glory Stationery Manufacturing Co, Ltd., Los Angeles, but none sold at the retail level.

The commission said it was concerned about the other eight brands because they add to the overall 'lead load' to children who may eat them.

Those brands are:

—"64 Crayons, School Quality No. 8064," A.J. Cohen Distributors, Hauppauge, N.Y., 226,000 units sold in the Eastern United States.

—"64 Crayons, CR 64-64 CT," Baum Imports, New York, sold 80,400 boxes in metropolitan New York.

—"12 Super Jumbo Crayons," Dynamic Division of Agora International, St. Albans, N.Y., sold 36,000 boxes nationwide.

—"8 Crayons, No. 5 CL 850," Dynamic Division of Agora International, St. Albans, N.Y., sold 120,000 boxes nationwide.

—"Fun Time 72 Crayons, No. B541," Overseas United, New York, sold 16,949 boxes in metropolitan New York area.

—"64 Crayons, Kidz Biz," Bargin Wholesale, Los Angeles, sold 101,184 boxes nationwide.

Homeless hero receives offers of job, place to stay

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Rewards as big as $10,000 and as simple as an offer of a new pair of shoes poured in Tuesday for a homeless man who plunged into flames to rescue two elderly people trapped in a burning car.

Among the callers was a Baton Rouge company that offered the New Orleans man a full-time job as a maintenance worker and a place to stay. They also arranged for transportation to bring him the 90 miles from New Orleans on Tuesday.

"I'm thankful and grateful for what I have now," Michael Dennis, 30, said as he feasted on crawfish provided by his new employer, Medical Management Options.

"But I'm not a hero," Dennis added. "I'm just a person who was there for someone in need. Heroes are people in wars. I did it because it was two old people crying out for help."

Dennis was panhandling at a New Orleans intersection Saturday when a car collided with a truck and burst into flames. He plunged into the flames twice to save Margaret Waltzer, 67, and her husband, Elmo, 79, whose foot was caught under a seat. The Waltzers were in stable condition and expected to recover.

Reports of his heroism brought a flood of calls to New Orleans police and The Associated Press. Police collected offers of help.

Dennis said he received $10,000 from General Motors Corp., and Hibernia National Bank in New Orleans has begun a fund drive for him.

He said he wants to use the money to open a homeless shelter in New Orleans. "I want to help the people I slept next to each night," he said. "Then I might buy a car."

Most of the callers wanted to know where to send money. Some wanted his shoe, pants and shirt sizes. Several had offers of jobs in other states.

Dennis took a job with a private, for-profit medical company that operates halfway houses and outpatient clinics in Louisiana for mental health and substance abuse treatment.

Dennis said he became homeless two years ago after losing his job as a forklift operator at the aerospace contractor Martin Marietta.

His home was a dusty stretch of concrete under an overpass and he ate what he could salvage from restaurant garbage bins.

He kept himself clean in public restrooms and said he kept up a search for jobs. But with no address and a limited wardrobe that wore out over time, employment prospects were bleak.

Survey: Americans like their lives but worry about state of country

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are in the doldrums despite the economic recovery, a poll released Tuesday suggests. Most are unhappy with the course of the country and more than half say they've been personally touched by crime.

The Times Mirror poll of 2,001 people found an overwhelming majority satisfied with their own lives and the way things are going in their communities. But only 24 percent said they were satisfied with the way things are going in the country.

"Whitewater is putting a damper on the gross national spirit," said poll director Andrew Kohut. In addition, he said, "people don't quite believe in the recovery" and many are having trouble making ends meet.

Nearly half cited financial pressures when asked their family's biggest problem. More than half said they or a relative had lost a job, taken a cut in pay or benefits, or seen layoffs at their workplace.

Crime overtook economic concerns when people were asked to name the most important problem facing the country. Fully 32 percent cited it as the top problem, up from 25 percent last December.

By contrast, economic and health-care worries hovered around 14 percent. Deficit reduction was cited by only 5 percent — down from 17 percent a year ago.

Furthermore, half the people in the survey said they are very concerned about becoming a victim of crime, up from 36 percent in 1988. And 53 percent said a friend, a neighbor, a relative or they themselves had been personally touched by crime in the past year.

"These findings belie the notion that crime is a media-made issue," the poll analysts said.

Asked what President Clinton should make his highest priority, about a quarter said improving the job situation and another quarter said reducing crime. Twenty percent said reducing the budget deficit; health care reform was in fourth place at 16 percent.

Pregnant wife, baby survive murder plot

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — John David Martin and JoAnn Trethewey met at a combat fantasy game and dreamed of traveling and spending a life together. But they had no money, and Martin was married to someone else.

So, police say, the couple devised a bizarre murder plot in which Trethewey, wearing oversized boots and ankle weights to throw off investigators, would kill Martin's pregnant wife so they could collect $500,000 in insurance money.

Rebecca Martin, eight months pregnant, was hit by four bullets last week as she sat in the family car in a mall parking lot. She gave birth to a healthy, 7-pound boy by Caesarean section a few hours later, and was listed in fair condition Tuesday at a hospital.

The pair rehearsed the plot at the scene of the March 30 shooting and practiced disposing of the gun, Pittsburg police Sgt. Nick Baker said.

Police were initially puzzled over the shooting because there was no sign of a robbery. They say they quickly became suspicious when Martin gave conflicting statements about the life insurance policy and other things. He was arrested.

On Sunday, believing the plot unraveling, Trethewey confessed to firing the shots and implicated Martin, police said. Martin has denied involvement.

"She said it was John who came up with the plan, but she went along with it," Baker told reporters.

In her apartment, police found books on terrorism and murder, how to flee the country, and how to convert a semiautomatic weapon to automatic fire, said Christine Carter, who manages Trethewey's 33-unit apartment building.

Investigators said Mrs. Martin was alone in the couple's Nissan Pathfinder in an isolated area of the theater parking lot while Martin and her son went to purchase tickets to "D2: The Mighty Ducks."

Martin says he parked the car in an isolated area near an ivy-covered fence so he and his 11-year-old stepson could race to the movie theater. Trethewey told police the race was part of the plan.

Trethewey told police she was hiding behind the fence, armed with a handgun and a 9mm assault rifle, which is banned in California. Police said she fired 20 shots at Mrs. Martin.

The day after the shooting, two fishermen at the Pittsburg marina found an assault weapon that matched shell casings found at the movie theater parking lot.

Roe vs. Wade author to retire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun, author of the landmark Roe vs. Wade decision that in 1973 legalized abortion nationwide, will announce his retirement today, according to government officials.

Blackmun, 85, has served 24 years on the nation's highest court after being appointed in 1970 by President Richard M. Nixon.

A government source told the AP that Blackmun would announce his retirement this morning.

Senior administration officials traveling with President Clinton said Blackmun was to issue a statement today.

As he left Charlotte, N.C., Clinton said he had not talked to Blackmun.

"As I understand it, he has an announcement to make tomorrow so I think we should let him make it," he said.

Asked if Blackmun was a great jurist, Clinton said: "Oh, absolutely. You know, I think he's a great man."

Joel Klein of the White House counsel's office traveled to Charlotte to hook up with Clinton and was traveling back to White House with him tonight. Among Klein's duties has been to help with judicial selections.

Another White House official said White House scheduling officials have talked about the possibility of a major announcement by Clinton on Thursday before he goes to the Midwest for health care events. They did not know the substance of the announcement.

The government source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Blackmun's retirement would take effect at the end of the courts 1993-94 term, expected in late June.

MCHS rallies to beat Tahoka

Midland Christian rallied from a 9-0 deficit to defeat Tahoka 10-9 at Angel Stadium Tuesday.

Chad Bayley (4-4) was the winning pitcher. He struck out 11 and allowed just one hit after the third inning.

Tahoka led 9-0 after three inning.

MCHS (8-9) rallied to tie the game at nine in the sixth inning. In the top of the seventh, Tahoka had runners on second and third with no outs when Bayley picked off a runner at second and then struck out consecutive batters to get out of the inning.

In the bottom of the seventh, with runners at first and third, Alex Awtry, who went 2-for-3 on the day, hit a single for the winning RBI. Alen Awtry was 2-for-3 with four RBIs, Bayley was 2-for-4 and Neil Truex was 2-for-3 for the Mustangs.

Angry Irvin walks out of Cowboys meeting

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys receiver Michael Irvin kept up his not-so-silent protest of the team's recent coaching change Tuesday by cleaning out his locker at the team's training facility.

Irvin stayed at Valley Ranch only enough to pack up his shoes and workout gear. He did not meet with team owner Jerry Jones as he said he wanted.

"You guys don't even know what I'm mad about," Irvin said. "You're just speculating."

Speculation has been that Irvin is irate over the departure of coach Jimmy Johnson, who coached Irvin for five years in Dallas and four at the University of Miami.

Irvin also laughed off the idea of Barry Switzer becoming coach when it was only a rumor, possibly embarrassing the All-Pro receiver once it became fact.

Since Switzer was hired last week, Irvin playfully threw a trash can at reporters then walked out of the coach's first team meeting Monday.

"I haven't had a chance to visit with Michael," Jones said. "Michael is a professional. We all know how he plays and what he means to our team, so I'm just not concerned from the standpoint of him being a part of the Cowboys."

Switzer has said he's impressed with Irvin and appreciates his loyalty to Johnson.

Irvin has said he'd like to rework his 1994 salary, which will pay him $1.25 million. His agent Steve Endicott said the Cowboys have not discussed renegotiating the contract.

Tolbert has surgery

Tolbert, a role player on the last two Super Bowl champions, underwent surgery Tuesday at Baylor Medical Center. He is expected to be fine by the start of training camp.

310 General Help Wanted

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:

- ★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
- ★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
- ★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- ★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?
