Jury Considers Bribery And Conspiracy Charges Against Former Dry Agents

TYSON GIVEN $500 CHECK, SAYS WITNESS

Federal Judge Wilson Denies Issuing Release For P. R. Hill

LOGSDON ON STAND

Jury's Verdict on Charges Expected Today In U. S. Court

Trial of William R. Logsdon and Jont G. Tyson, former United States States prohibition, agents, before Judge William H. Atwell in federal court here on charges of bribery and conspiracy was completed about 9:50 o'clock Monday night, when the jury received the court's charge and began its deliberations on the case. After 30 minutes' study of the evidence, the jury recessed to resume its work Wednesday morning.

Indictments returned by the government against the two men charge that in December, 1927, while stationed here, they accepted $500 from Pleasant R. Hill in exchange for their alleged promise to keep him from serving a 30-day jail sentence imposed by Judge James Wilson in federal court at Abilene on a liquor charge, and that they also supplied Hill with a spurious release order bearing the name of James Wilson.

The indictment charging bribery was returned by a federal grand jury in Amarillo several weeks ago, while the second indictment, charging conspiracy to frustrate the due administration of justice was returned by a federal grand jury here last week.

Separate Defenses

According to evidence introduced by the government, the jail term imposed upon Hill by the court at Abilene was to be started by Jan. 2, 1928, the sentence having been pronounced in September, 1927.

Much of the evidence given during Tuesday afternoon was designed to impeach statements made by both of the co-defendants, each of whom was represented by his own counsel, and conducted a sep-

Harold knocked on the door of the hoodlum's mother, Mrs. Theresa Capone, yesterday, and said he wanted to see the gang chieftain to borrow money to get to California. Mrs. Capone notified police and called the boy's parents in Cleveland. In the meantime Harold had lunch with the family and then went to a movie with Al's younger brother, Matthew.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25. (AP)—Daisy Devoe, former secretary of Clara Bow, screen star, was indicted by the county grand jury late today on 37 counts of grand theft involving approximately $16,000 of Miss Bow's money.

The indictment was returned immediately after the erstwhile secretary had spent an hour before the jury trying to explain accusations made against her by the actress.

Miss Devoe was accused of having written thousands of dollars of unauthorized checks on Miss Bow's bank account, to which she had access.

The grand jury fixed bond at $1,000, and Attorney Nathan Freedman, representing Miss Devoe said he would surrender his client tomorrow.

DO-X Builder Sure Of Craft's Seaworthiness

BERLIN, Nov. 25. (AP)—Dr. Claude Dornier, builder of the seaplane DO-X, is more than ever convinced that his ship can fly across the Atlantic, he informed his Berlin office by telephone today.

The ship has performed splendidly in the air and on the water during the recent bad weather, he said, and the American motors have performed brilliantly.

It appeared that the only doubt in Dr. Dornier's mind now is whether he will take the DO-X over the northerly route to New York by way of Bermuda, or across the south Atlantic to Brazil by way of the Canary Island.

BORDER PATROL AGENTS HELD

Score of Customs Men Held In Detroit Inquiry

DETROIT, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Free Press says "approximately a score" of United States customs border patrolmen were taken into custody this afternoon by special treasury agents for questioning about Detroit river rum graft.

The paper says warrants for several of the patrolmen are held by the investigating agents and will be used if the patrolmen can not explain actions the agents claim to have uncovered.

The investigation is in charge of Elmer J. Lewis, customs department investigator, the Free Press says, the same man who directed the investigation two years ago which resulted in indictment of 23 customs border patrolmen and 19 liquor smugglers, many of whom now are serving prison sentences.

The paper says the present investigation is expected to result in a greater expose than that of 1928.

MOODY TOSSES STONE IN TRIB'S GLASS HOUSE

Texas Governor Defends State Against 'Oh, Yeah' Editorial

CITES CRIME APLENTY

Chicago Daily Reminded Of Unending Series Of Ghastly Events

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. (UP)—Calling Al Capone "Chicago's most prominent citizen," Gov. Dan Moody tonight replied to the Chicago Tribune's editorial "Oh Yeah," assailing him, and renewed the charge that martial law should be declared in Chicago.

"Oh Yeah," retorted Governor Moody, "Mr. Chicago Tribune, as a center of crime you have greater fame than as a cattle and wheat market, though Western states at which you thumb your nose have sent their cattle by the millions and their grain by the millions of carloads to your marts. As a place for gang rule and a failure to enforce the law against the criminals you are a world beater.

"You say Texas would look well on the map of Mexico. Texas would look well on any map. If we had Chicago in Texas or if Mexico had Chicago in Mexico, the crime wave would be broken and the gangsters would be prosecuted for more serious offenses than vagrancy and the filing of false returns on the incomes made from criminal racketeering.

Refers to Killing

"If however, sir, you consign us to Mexico, which by the way, is a splendid country in which newspaper reporters are not members of warring gangs, and therefore are not killed in gang wars, I bid you adios."

For each instance of disrespect for law which the Tribune cited in what it called the "fundamentalist belt," Moody said that 20 or more as ghastly, could be cited in Chicago.

"Texas had its Alamo where patriotism reached its highest mark,"

Brady Plea to Be Argued Wednesday In Appeals Court

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. (UP)—A plea for a new trial for John W. Brady, former judge of the appellate court, convicted of killing Miss Lehlia Highsmith, court stenographer, will be argued here tomorrow.

Brady was given a three-year sentence in Dallas at a second trial after a previous trial at Austin resulted in a hung jury. He has been free on bond for several months and recently returned from California where he went to recuperate from the strain of his trials. He is not expected to be present when the case is argued before the court of criminal appeals.

The former judge was found guilty of stabbing the girl to death as she returned from an engagement with an escort. Brady was alleged to have been infatuated with the girl.

Proration Order Aims At Keeping Production Down To Bare Demand

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. (AP)—The Texas oil industry was embarked upon its second proration period today by an order of the state railroad commission fixing the allowable production at approximately 680,000 barrels per day. The order was made effective Nov. 27.

This amount was estimated to be the market demand for oil. It was compared to 750,000 barrels allowed under the last 90-day period and 780,000 barrels, the estimated actual production for that period.

The order differed principally from the first statewide order, in a tieup of the conservation laws upon which the theory of proration rests, with the common purchaser act, regulating pipe line companies, and the market demand for oil.

Taking cognizance of recent court rulings, especially one in an Oklahoma proration suit, the order made it clear that while the allowable production equalled the market demand, any oil produced in excess of that demand likely would cause waste. The Oklahoma decision, as interpreted here, frowned upon making the market demand the basis for fixing the allowable production.

Stating that the commission intended to enforce the common purchaser act, the order authorized pipe line companies to make agreements between themselves, as exchange of connections or of crude, so as to equalize the takings from all operators in a given district.

Failure to take ratably had caused discrimination, during the last proration period, especially in the Panhandle, North Central and North Texas fields, and had resulted in those operators with no pipe line market throwing crude on the

SCORES DIE IN TOKYO QUAKE

Terrific Shocks Wreck Widespread Area

TOKYO, Nov. 26. (AP)—(Wednesday)—The governor of Shizukoa perfecture announced 187 persons were known to have perished in an earthquake which struck the Izu peninsula early today.

TOKYO, Nov. 26.—(Wednesday) (UP)—The home ministry announced shortly before 2 p. m., today that compilations to 11 a. m., showed 141 persons killed, 43 injured and three missing in an earthquake which shook the Tokyo area today.

TOKYO, Nov. 26. (Wednesday) (UP)—It was officially announced shortly after 10 a. m. today that there were 900 casualties in the Shidzuoka prefecture, in the earthquake which shook the Tokyo vicinity.

Twenty bodies already had been recovered from the wreckage of collapsed houses in the earthquake district.

Many more persons, it is feared, may have been killed in the affected towns.

In the town of Atami alone, five school teachers are listed as victims of landslides which followed the first shock, and buried them within their own homes.

The earthquake is reported at this hour as the most severe since the terrific shock of 1924.

Izu and the Spa district were shaken first at 4 a. m. today (Wednesday).

Some oficial buildings caught fire and collapsed and other business and residential buildings crumbled as the tremors continued.

Severest damage is reported in the towns of Ito and Mishima, with great wreckage at Atami.

Foreigners at the Fujiya hotel, in Miyanoshita, were frightened.

The whole Hakone district was shaken. Railway communication was suspended in this vicinity because of damage to tracks.

Full reports of damage were not available at this time, because of the disruption of communications. It was indicated, however, on the basis of early reports, that the total of dead might reach 100.

Fifty houses were burned in the village of Ito.

Water pipes were broken at Tokyo and Yokohama, but otherwise there seemed no material damage. The population left their beds and ran to the open.

Some houses collapsed at Shidzuoka.

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Nov. 25. (UP)—Jess J. Maple, doomed bandit-killer, who asked the court "to give him the cap" for murdering two policemen, saw two of his last chances to escape the electric chair in the state prison here at midnight, Thanksgiving day, fade today.

The trial court at Houston refused to grant a sanity hearing and Gov. Dan Moody announced that he would not grant Maple another stay.

The slayer's only chance of escaping the death penalty Thursday night rested with the court of criminal appeals.

Small Boys 'Pan' Reno River For Discarded Rings

RENO, Nev., Nov. 25. (UP)—Miners in the old days panned or sluiced for gold deposited in the old Truckee river by Mother Nature, but now small boys fish along its banks or wade in it searching for gold wedding rings—discarded there by divorcees.

It's a Reno custom to stand on the "bridge of past regrets" here and throw one's wedding ring into the Truckee river beneath as a final gesture of contempt for old ties and former husbands.

MOODY FRIENDS ARE APPOINTED

State Posts Awarded Adrian Pool and John Wallace

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. (AP)—Two friends of Gov. Dan Moody, both formerly members of the Texas house of representatives, were rewarded today with appointive positions in the state government.

Judge Adrian Pool of El Paso was named to a three-year term on the board of control, and John Wallace of Teague was made secretary of the state highway commission, with the understanding he would be appointed to the board of control later.

Still another friend of the governor benefited by the shift which accompanied the appointments. Claude Teer, chairman of the board of control, who had three years to serve, was appointed to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of R. B. Walthall. Walthall, whose term expired a year ago, had held office pending appointment of his successor. Teer, by the appointment, will have five more years on the board.

Wallace, for many years a member of the legislature, and who held the important post of appropriations committee chairman, probably will succeed R. I. Tennant, whose term on the board expires in 1932.

The new board member served 12 years as a legislator, following service on the city and county bench in El Paso.

Judge Pool said he hoped to have Judge Lee Hawkins of the state court of criminal appeals administer the oath of office. Judge Hawkins, a life long friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Pool, is now in a Galveston hospital and Pool planned to telephone and ascertain whether he was sufficiently recovered from an operation to administer the oath.

Pool also said he hoped the present membership of the board would act upon the special audit of the confederates' home before he started work on the board.

U. S. FARM LOAN IN PROSPECT

Drouth Relief Proposal Wins Support

STAMFORD, Texas, Nov. 25. (AP)—Possibilities of congress authorizing at the December session a special appropriation to provide production loans to farmers in drouth areas are favorable, according to a report received today by the West Texas chamber of commerce from Will P. Jones, Childress banker, who represented the regional organization at a nation-wide drouth relief conference in Washington on Nov. 20 and 21.

At the Washington conference, he reported that widespread support was pledged to a resolution drafted for presentation to both houses in congress, providing for a $60,000,000 fund to be disbursed by the secretary of agriculture in advances or loans to farmers in drouth areas where emergencies for such assistance exists.

Vote Unanimous

Representatives of drouth relief agencies from 22 states attended the sessions, which were under the direction of Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture and chairman of the National Drouth Relief committee.

Jones reported that those attending the meeting unanimously approved of efforts to obtain federal assistance for all drouth sufferers in the United States.

The West Texas chamber of commerce delegation attending the meeting was headed by Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth publisher.

Approval Predicted

Congressman Marvin Jones of Amarillo, another member of the West Texas chamber's delegation and also a member of the House agricultural committee, indicated that he expected the resolution to be introduced in the House by Congressman J. B. Aswell of Louisiana, and providing for the production loan appropriation, would be given the unanimous approval of the 21 members of the House committee and would be passed without serious opposition. Senator McNary of Oregon was expected to introduce the same measure in the Senate, with the support of Secretary Hyde, Jones reported.

The Aswell-McNary resolution, as now drawn, provides that the federal appropriation, if allowed by congress, shall be disbursed in the form of loans to farmers in drouth areas for the purchase of food, feed, seed and other things necessary to maintain crop production. Such loans would be secured by liens on crops planted and grown during 1931.

HEARING BROADCAST

Defendants Make Pathetic Picture Before 15,000 Spectators

By CHARMION VON WIEGAND
Universal Service Special Cable

MOSCOW, Nov. 25.—Red Russia today heard eight men, accused of treason and counter-revolution, plead guilty to charges that mean the death penalty.

The eight, called to the stand singly after the court clerk had for four hours read the sensational indictment accusing a third of Europe in a plot to overthrow the Soviet, presented pathetic figures to the courtroom crowded with 15,000 spectators.

Old Alexander Fedotov—He is 66—formerly a high Soviet official and director of the Textile Research Institute, wept profusely as he told his part in the conspiracy, and stated that Great Britain and French circles had used $500,000 to undermine the Soviet in the "giant plot."

Leader Unshaken

Prof. Leonid C. Ramzin, who is called the leader of the group, pleaded guilty without a quiver, and then began reading his testimony almost as he might have read a paper to scientists attending the fuel power institute or the Moscow Institute of Technology, of which he was formerly the director. He began:

"I am guilty. I do not know what to say in my defense."

Professor Ramzin went on to tell the details of the conspiracy; how sabotage and intervention was financed by Russian emigres and French and British corporations. The other six did not alter the plea.

MOODY REPLIES TO TRIB'S JAB

Governor Defends Texas' Crime Record

wrote Governor Moody, "and Chicago its Hay Market riot; Texas has sent a long line of distinguished statesmen to the hall of the national congress and Chicago has given them, as an associate, Oscar DePriest to represent a white electorate.

Chicago's History

"Mayor Thompson picking a quarrel with the king of England and making a bonfire of school books on the shore of Lake Michigan: the St. Valentine's day massacre; a prosecutor bullet-riddled, and the Dan O'Banion florist shop slaying are cited in Moody's arraignment of Chicago.

"The author of the Tribune's editorial must be a newcomer to Chicago and therefore not know how much glass there is in his house. Has he read of the Chicago race riot a few years ago? What can he offer in the records of criminality as a counterpart to the crime of Leopold and Loeb? Can he find election scandals that will equal those of Chicago or can any other city furnish a like number of instances in which seats in the United States senate have been placed on the auction block to be knocked off to the highest bidder?

Graft Cases

"What other community can offer a governor whose name was cleared of the charge of misappropriating public funds at the cost of his personal check for hundreds of thousands of dollars? Can any other city of the United States, either in the 'fundamentalist belt' or out of it give the newspaper readers of the world a story to equal the grafts in the Chicago sanitary district where public funds were admittedly spent for 'wine, women and song.'

"Until Chicago can pay the weekly salaries of her policemen and make them independent of graft from the gangsters, martial law should be requested to reestablish the supremacy of law over lawlessness.

"Down in Texas," Moody continued, "we would not be concerned about Chicago's lawlessness or the career of its most prominent citizen, Al Capone, or its fusillades of machine gun bullets in its populous centers, except for the fact that newspaper accounts of these crimes inspire men here and there in this (fundamentalist) belt to attempt the perpetration of crime such as the robbing of a chicken roost or the stealing of a spare casing off an automobile, and these are annoying.

"You speak of the Ku Klux Klan in the South and say that Texas would look well in Mexico, but did it ever occur to you that neither Mexico nor Texas in the wildest and wooliest of their times could ever find an equal to the 1927 major crimes of the Ku Klux Klan white cappers and nightriders in bloody Williamson?

"In Texas we respect the law and constituted authority and it has never been necessary to erect monuments to officers of the law, who, in the performance of their duties, lost their lives at the hands of mobs, but I think you will find such a monument in a prominent place in the city of Chicago."

Eskimo Girls to Compete In Beauty Contest This Winter

WINNIPEG, Nov. 25. (AP)—Away up in the frozen north a shiny-faced black-haired Eskimo beauty is going to be crowned "Miss Northwest Territories" some time during the winter.

Andrew Brown of Baker lake, an isolated Chesterfield Inlet trading post, plans to stage a beauty contest among the ladies of the neighboring tribes. A mirror—rarity in the Arctic—will be the prize.

Brown says Eskimo girls pay more attention to personal adornment since white men entered the territory. Many have taken to wearing skirts.

YOUTH HELD IN TWO ROBBERIES

Bralley Sends Deputy For Alleged Bandit

Only one day was required by a youth released from jail here Nov. 20 to renew his defiance of the law, according to charges under which Edmond Owens is being returned from Maybank, in Kaufman county, in connection with the holdup of two local drug stores last Friday night, Nov. 21.

Sheriff W. G. Bralley dispatched a deputy sheriff Tuesday morning to Maybank to bring back Owens, charged with having robbed with firearms the drug stores at Eighth and Brook avenue, and Truly's pharmacy at Eleventh and Grace, only a few minutes intervening between the two robberies.

Convicted in the county court at law on a charge of carrying concealed weapons on Sept. 29, Owens was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail, according to Judge Irvin J. Vogel. Released last Thursday, he received his pistol from Assistant County Attorney Louis V. Abernathy, but was refused the cartridges it had contained.

The two robberies Friday night were estimated to have netted about $175.

one whit, and all testified to their roles in the subversive scheme.

The other six defendants are Prof. Ivan A. Kalinnikov, Prof. Nikolai F. Charnovsky, Victor A. Larichev, Serge V. Kupriyanov, Vladimir I. Ochkin and Xenophont V. Sitnin.

Proceedings Broadcast

The counts against the defendants include treason, counter-revolt, sabotage and conspiracy. Three high Soviet justices are presiding as a special tribunal in the great hall of the house of trade unions, formerly the Noblemen's club, in the heart of Moscow. The proceedings are being broadcast as a warning to all Russians that the Soviet is not to be tampered with.

The eight men, selected out of 2,000 as those who "made the best confessions," are virtually foreordained to suffer the death penalty, since conspiracy and its attendant, espionage, are capital offenses. Because of the nature of their offenses and the fact that all of Soviet Russia is howling for their conviction, six of the defendants waived the privilege of counsel.

The house of trade unions, which was profusely decorated with Communist emblems, was crowded to the doors with 15,000 spectators. Outside through the streets paraded 100,000 shouting Reds, calling on Attorney General Nicolai V. Krylenko, state prosecutor, for a quick conviction, and protesting against the "anti-Soviet war of the capitalist nations."

Sensational Indictment

The defendants, who were named in the sensational indictment of a fortnight ago which implicated Former President Raymond Poincare and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France and other important world figures in a plot to overthrow the Soviet government, were brought into court by special Ogpu (political police) guards at 3 o'clock.

It is expected that the trial will consume another two weeks, although evidence against the men is said to be so strong that a conviction could be secured in 48 hours.

While the people were active outside the trial chamber, gathering in groups and parading to the strains of the internationale, the Soviet Press appeared with three-inch headlines shouting defiance to capitalistic nations who are plotting "war" against the Soviet.

M. Poincare was cartooned as a "war monster" in the guise of a hippopotamus with claws and dragon's teeth.

Chief of Staff General Kamenev made a speech to a crowd of cheering peasants in which he declared:

"When war comes, we shall make a plan to crush our enemies within a definite time, like the five-year plan of industrialization. We will fight fully confident of the victory of Socialism throughout the world."

ELECTRA OPENS JOBS CAMPAIGN

Residents Urged to Improve Homes and Buildings

ELECTRA, Nov. 25.—Electra's drive for jobs for the jobless is now under way and the committee members plan to rush the campaign with all their might.

At a joint luncheon meeting of chamber of commerce, Lions and Rotary clubs Tuesday noon, Earl Haltom, general chairman of the better business committee stated that results were already attained in the short period of time that had been spent in the campaign but with united effort now he felt that success would be far greater than anticipated.

Shepherd Is Speaker

R. E. Shepherd, public relations manager of the Panhandle Refining company, was the principal speaker for the luncheon. Mr. Shepherd stated that the campaign would be a success because Electra has as wide-awake business and professional men as can be found in any city in the state.

"The depression is wide-spread," Mr. Shepherd said. "We have no monopoly on it here in Wichita county. We can get out from under poor business conditions when the effort is made, not creating a boom condition, or what we once considered normal, but we can improve conditions if we will only work and think different.

"One of the best things that can be done now is to improve homes and property. Materials are being sold at lower prices, and labor will give more effort than ever before. What the city leaders must do is to get jobs for the jobless. Every property owner has some plans for improvements. If these be made now the work will be done at a real saving and a good deed done in aiding employment.

Want Jobs Not Alms

"Most men who labor do not want or seek charity. They seek honest labor and are willing to give their best. I don't think we ought to talk or give beggars wages. We should pay as much as possible to pay. I think most men needing jobs are willing to work at any kind of work that is honest and honorable. Carpenters and other craftsmen are willing to do common labor, and are not demanding craftsmen pay.

"I suggest that business firms and industry in Electra that are employing men to give them assurance that their jobs will be steady. That will give these men confidence and they will spend their money for the things they need, thus helping to make work or jobs for others.

"Now is the time to get something for the money that you might be called upon to give and receive nothing. Fix up the homes, prepare the yards for beautiful flowers shrubs and lawns. If we make our cities more beautiful and more inviting then we have accomplished much and can point back in the future what the crisis of 1930 caused us to do.

"Wichita Falls and its citizenship is ever ready to assist in the upbuilding of every city and town in Northwest Texas and Southwest Oklahoma. Our chamber of commerce seeks invitations for our business and professional men to attend meetings which we might be able to render a service."

Believe Upgrade Reached

Fred L. Haskett, member of the Record News staff, spoke briefly upon the present situation and what has happened in the past. He stated that America in the past 130 years had experienced 13 crises, and many thought this the worst. But it was not because in others there was either a lack of money, lack of food or high prices for food products.

"Apparently the bottom has been reached and we are now on the upgrade," said Mr. Haskett. "Indications are that prices are being strengthened in many industrial lines and better demand for products is evidenced. Two years ago we possessed too much confidence and were too optimistic. We though hard times would never come again. Today we are under confident and too pessimistic. When we begin to become normal we will leap out of the depression in almost a day's time. In fact we will be out before many realize it.

"The present depression has taught us that business crises may come faster than they did in the past. A study of figures shows that our last four depressions have come on a cycle of seven years—1907, 1914, 1921 and 1930. From the first crises in 1818 up to 1893 the periods of depression averaged from 10 to 14 years apart.

Speed May Be Responsible

"It is quite probable that our rapid means of transportation and communication are responsible for the more frequent occurrence of hard times. If that be true then the nation's leaders must work out some kind of a scheme to off-set the fast modes of travel and communication. The nation must not suffer business reverses every seven years. It is uncalled for and unnatural."

General Chairman Halton stated that he hoped every committeeman would get busy Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday securing pledges for home and property improvements. He stated that this work would enable a number of men to be given immediate employment.

"Our effort to better retail trade has been successful," said Chairman Haltom. "We have helped the retail merchant and now we must get the jobs ready for the men and women who need to work.

"During the past few weeks labor conditions have improved in the Electra oil fields. Both the Texas company and Magnolia Oil company have placed several men at work. The latter company has added 75 men to its pay roll in oil field work.

"If we do not do much more from now on our work has been of value in building a better community spirit, which we needed in Electra. All that the committee asks of the citizenship is to be normal and act normal."

Burglars Raid Gas Station

$50 Taken From American Refining Company

Burglars who entered the American Refining company service station at 2300 Brook street Sunday night or early Monday morning by prying loose a screen and breaking a rear window, secured more than $50, it was learned Tuesday.

The money was taken from a hiding place in the building which had been used instead of a safe.

Police at first stated that nothing was known of the robbery but later admitted that no arrests had been made.

arate defense against the government's charges.

Witnesses called by the government during the afternoon testified that Tyson deposited a $500 check signed by Hill in a Fort Worth bank about Dec. 27 to his personal account, presumably for collection. The check was drawn on a bank at Swenson, Texas, and was paid about one day later, testimony showed. It was further brought out that Tyson withdrew $1,000 on Dec. 30, 1927, the $500 deposit having resulted in a balance of about $1,100. An official of the Swenson bank testified that Hill had reported to them that he had issued a $500 check, in December, 1927, which was not to be honored without his approval. Hill, the witness continued, shortly after that time instructed the bank to pay the check upon presentation, since "every thing is going to be all right."

Testifying in his own behalf, Tyson admitted having received the $500 check from Hill on or about Dec. 10, 1927, in Wichita Falls, but declared that it was to provide money for hiring legal talent to serve Hill in his effort to obtain cancellation of the jail sentence. The cash proceeds of the check, Tyson said, were handed by him personally to Logsdon with the understanding that the money was to be used for employing lawyers for Hill.

Judge Denies Order

Placed on the stand by his own counsel, Logsdon admitted conferring with Hill relative to making an effort to have the jail sentence "cut down." Hill promised, Logsdon said, to furnish him information relative to several large stills in operation near Abilene if he, Logsdon, would effect cancellation or reduction of the jail sentence. The witness testified that he asked Forest McCutchen, former assistant federal district attorney who prosecuted the earlier case against Hill, to arrange such a compromise if possible, and that so far as he knew, Hill's failure to begin the jail term by Jan. 2, 1928, was the result of an order given by Judge Wilson.

Judge Wilson, testifying Tuesday morning, denied having issued any kind of an order for Hill's release. Upon learning that the jail sentence had not been served, he continued, he questioned Hill relative to the circumstances, the latter telling the jurist that he had been assured that the sentence had been set aside.

Hill declared on the witness stand that after the sentence was imposed upon him at Abilene, he opened negotiations with Tyson and Logsdon with reference to obtaining a release, and finally met them in Wichita Falls, where he gave Tyson a check for $500. He said that in return he received what appeared to be a release from the jail sentence, signed "James Wilson."

The prosecution was handled by Assistant Federal District Attorney Alex Mood of Amarillo.

market at distress prices. This had led to a sharp drop in the price of gasoline.

The pipe line companies, it was said at the hearing here, had refused to make agreements regarding interchanges for fear they would be charged with violations of the anti-combination law.

Another departure from the last proration order was the elasticity of the allotments for the individual fields. Special provisions were made for increasing the allowable of the three northern districts, where the distress oil came from and which were hard hit by withdrawal of Prairie Oil and Gas as a purchaser, in event operators could find other markets. The East Texas district was also tentatively fixed so that plans for the Pure Oil company to increase its Van field takings might be carried out; and the order stated that the West Texas allotment might be increased after the controversy regarding the deep wells in Reagan county had been adjusted.

Allotments for the various fields, based on the estimated market, follow: Panhandle, 64,616; North Central, 52,395; North Young county subdistrict, 4,850; West Central, 24,142; West Texas 251,377; East Texas, 28,355; Southwest, 84,503; and gulf coast, 160,000.

The order did not include recommendations of the central advisory committee of operators, for a limitation of 50 barrels on new wells and of 500 barrels on all wells outside proration districts. These recommendations will be considered separately because of serious doubt as to whether that could be legally done.

SPECIAL RULES FOR PANHANDLE AREA

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. (AP)—Special rules governing the Panhandle oil producing district were outlined today in an order by the state railroad commission, supplementing a statewide order issued earlier in the day.

The principal change, in addition to the decrease in allowable production, was in cutting the marginal well definition from a well production 24 barrels daily to a 12-barrel well. Marginal wells are exempt from curtailment. The rule recommended by operators in this district that all new wells, except offsets, be limited to 50 barrels a day for the duration of the order also was made a part of the mandate. Allowable production of the district, under a flexible rule by which further market demand may increase the output was fixed at 64,616 barrels daily. H. J. Corcoran was re-appointed umpire.

Slain Gangster Leaves $413,000

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 25. (AP)—Frankie Dunn, who was reputed to be worth millions when he retired as overlord of North Jersey beer-runners, left an estate of $413,558. He was shot down with sub-machine guns last summer.

An inventory of his personal property on file today in surrogate's court showed that he had only $3,391 in cash at the time of his death. Stocks and bonds represented $228,907 of the estate, loans $151,259, while a loan of $83,714 to the Verdi Cooperage company was listed at a value of $30,000 in the appraisal.

There was no mention of an estate he was supposed to own at Pompton Lakes, N. J., nor was there anything concerning two yachts with which he was accredited. It was suggested that some of his property might have been held in the names of others.

Dunn was slain in the lobby of an office building he bought in Hoboken after retiring from the beer business. Two men knocked him down as he emerged from an elevator and two others turned sub-machine guns on him.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Special to The Record News.

Tornado Nature's Biggest Near-Vacuum Tube; Suction In Wind Causes Buildings To 'Explode'

These pictures strikingly depict a tornado development—the sky turns black, a funnel forms as the wind's speed increases with violent rain, then it strikes earth and hurls debris high into the air, as shown at extreme right. This was a Nebraska tornado.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (AP)—It looks like a mile-long writhing snake—but it is really nature's biggest earthly near-vacuum tube.

This epitomizes briefly what man knows of the destructive forces of a tornado.

It accounts for the freaks of the Oklahoma tornadoes, which have just taken another score of lives.

"We noticed a heavy cloud in the west," says Mrs. Roy Homer of Gothenburg, Neb., describing a tornado which preceded the Oklahoma storms a few weeks.

"It seemed to be moving rather slowly, when a funnel formed and seemed to dart down to earth and strike like a snake and then return to the sky.

"Whenever this column would hit the earth even at the distance of 12 or more miles, dirt and whirling material would seem to be rising like smoke in the air.

"— the funnel seemed to leap through the air over our heads, coming down on our neighbor's ranch and striking a small pond of water.

"Practically all the water was sucked from this pond.

"It gave another leap and struck our neighbor's house. The house and buildings acted as though they were exploding."

Explode they did, in the belief of meteorologists. This is because the tornado tongue is a partial vacuum, and when it envelops a building, the normal weight of air inside, at 16 pounds to the square inch, no longer is equally resisted by the air outside.

The stripping of feathers from chickens is thus accounted for in theories advanced by some meterologists. The normal pressure inside the chickens' bodies, set against 16 pounds, suddenly faces less outside resistance, and helps to force out feathers while the outside terrific velocity of wind pulls them.

The air surrounding the tornado tongue, being of normal weight, rushed into the partial vacuum and upward, this rising motion accounting for sucking the pond dry. It accounts for lifting men, animals and buildings often high in the air.

Its gradual dying down might even account for stories of safe, almost soft, landing on earth after a wild ride through the air.

SCHOOL ATTACK CASE PROBED

Oklahoma Freshman Beaten By Club Members

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 25. (UP)—An investigation will be made into the attack made upon Sam Kaplan, University of Oklahoma freshman by the Deep Dark Mystery club, secret organization, W. B. Bizzell, university president, said today.

Bizzell, who left early today for Oklahoma City to attend the university budget hearing at the capital, said he would call witnesses as soon as he returned.

Kaplan told about the alleged attack yesterday saying it had occurred last Wednesday but fear of reprisal kept him from reporting it to officials.

He declared the club, composed of several members, took him from his room at night and escorted him to an alley where he was beaten with a strap.

Kaplan said the members of the party declared they were "punishing him" for revealing names of violators of the university anti-auto rule.

Both Kaplan and W. W. Kraft, superintendent of the university utilities, to whom he reported the attack denied he had done this.

POULTRY HOUSE YIELDS LIQUOR

Chicken Raising Former Solon Held on Bond

CHICKASHA, Okla., Nov. 25. (AP)—Dave C. Hybarger, former Oklahoma legislator whose poultry producing propensities provoked mirth during the stormy reign of Henry S. Johnston, ousted governor, waived preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Howard Carbeen today and was released under $1,500 bail on a liquor charge.

The hen house four miles from here which produced Hybarger's gift of a dozen eggs, refused by the governor because they were fertile, was raided yesterday by federal officers. They found a 75-gallon still, whisky and mash. Hybarger owns the hen house.

C. C. Chapman, who officers said was the other man at the still when the raid was made, was released on similar bail. Neither made a statement. Officers said their cases would be presented to a grand jury in January.

Governor Johnston's refusal to eat meat was a high spot of the "ewe lamb rebellion" which preceded his impeachment early last year.

SEYMOUR COX BILLED AGAIN

Oil Promoter Faces Trial For Mail Fraud

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25. (UP)—The wells that belch liquid wealth have Seymour E. J. Cox in trouble again.

That phrase which he used so much in letters and circulars which he is alleged to have sent out from Fort Worth soon after he was paroled from Leavenworth where he went with Dr. Frederick A. Cook in 1924, has struck home.

Charles Riley, assistant United States attorney general, here from Washington to aid in the prosecution of 14 mail fraud cases within the next two weeks, announced today that Cox would be tried in January on an indictment returned Monday for using the mails to defraud.

In the indictment, which also names Roger D. Mooney and L. E. Aven. It is alleged that these men promoted what was known as the Original Developers pool early in 1928.

It was organized by selling stock in the company for $1 a share until $50,000 was obtained, the indictment reads. That money was to be used as a development fund. Thereafter shares were sold to the public for $10 each.

The indictment was a re-indictment of one returned in 1928 which, in addition to Cox, names Clay Wilson.

Soon after the first was returned, Wilson signified his intention of entering a plea of guilty to the charge.

Wilson pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve 18 months in the Leavenworth penitentiary.

Recently, Cox broke into public print in May, 1930, at Oklahoma City where he was lodged in jail for failure to make $25,000 bond in connection with the promotion of the Universal Oil and Gas company of that city.

FIVE-DAY WEEK MOVE STARTS

Rail Brotherhoods Push Employment Plan

CHICAGO, Nov. 25. (AP)—The five-day week for railway shopcrafts was added to the six-hour program of the brotherhoods today in the movement to relieve unemployment in rail transportation through shortening hours of labor.

The six shopcrafts unions, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, in adopting a program for the five-day week with no reduction in pay announced they had no agreement, however, with the five brotherhoods, embracing operating personnel, who last week took initial steps toward a six-hour day for their members without pay reductions.

The two organizations represent a majority of the 21 railroad workers' unions of the country. Railroads have dropped 210,000 of their members since 1923, a shopcrafts official said.

B. M. Jewel, president of the shopcrafts, in a statement last night, said that the five-day week proposal would be submitted directly to the railroad executives. If no action was obtained, Jewel added, the proposal would go through arbitration prescribed by federal statute.

At Thanksgiving... more than ever... our minds turn to Pies, Puddings, Candies... and don't forget CRANBERRY SAUCE

Beyond a doubt the most popular relish served with the Thanksgiving turkey is cranberry sauce

WHAT would Thanksgiving be without desserts, jellies, preserves and cranberry sauce? And how could these delicacies be made if it were not for refined sugar?

Americans are truly fortunate to have a feast day like Thanksgiving — also to be able to enjoy the goodness of refined sugar at such an unusually low price as it is today.

Winter diets demand fuel food and a zestful variety of dishes. There is no single food product that can fill these needs better than refined sugar. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Business Girls Have Annual Banquet At Woman's Forum

Observing an annual custom of having a Thanksgiving dinner, members of the Business and Professional Women's club met at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Tuesday evening for the affair.

The table was centered with a large vase of wine and red chrysanthemums with colored leaves arranged artistically at intervals along the table. Fall flowers were also used to decorate the foyer and dining room.

Mrs. Joella Terrill Butler, president of the club, acted as toastmistress and presented Mrs. T. H. Myers who gave the invocation. The program was arranged under the direction of Miss Cleo Bowers who presented the numbers in order.

Henry Barton and Roberta Shaw entertained with a short skit after which Miss Madeline McCarty gave "The Kiss Waltz" and "Sweet Mystery of Life" as vocal solos. Edna Rundell Kirby read "Gwine to Marry Jim" after which Charlene Kinder sang "April Morn" by Batten. Miss Thelma Adams accompanied all the artists who are students at the Greathouse Conservatory of Music.

Covers were laid for Misses Cleo Bowers, Fern Kolb, Dorothy Greathouse, Mayme Kuhfuss, Glenna Miller, Minnie Bedford, Eldora Bunnenberg, Pearl Rorabaugh, Catherine Walker, Arnie Smith, Anna Seiplemeyer, Lilian Pardue, Elizabeth Hall, Ethel Glasgow, Susie Downing, Lucille Campbell, Lenore Shaw, Winnie Mae Giddings, Lena Derzaph, Mesdames Mary Lyon, Joella Terrill Butler, Edna Vogt, Legrave, T. Study Circle Has Bi-Monthly Meet At Austin School

Members of the Austin School Study circle, organized recently in connection with the P.-T. A. for the purpose of promoting parent education, met in the auditorium of the school building Tuesday morning for their regular bi-monthly lesson.

Interesting papers were read by Mrs. O. E. Joiner, who had as her topic, "The Morning Grouch"; Mrs. O. D. Scott who had as her subject, "The Dwadler," and Mrs. H. R. Cloughley who discussed "Repeated Commands."

An enthusiastic round table discussion followed, laying special emphasis on parents' responsibility for their children's habits. In giving commands to children or in correcting the common habit of inattention among children, four points were brought out as follows: give the child time to turn his attention from what he is doing; then request him to repeat the order; make commands clear and simple; say what is meant and mean what is said and give only such commands as can be enforced and then enforce them.

The thought was brought out that parents may do much toward making children succeed in school by helping them form good habits at home.

Those present were Mesdames Felicie Downs, W. W. Griffiths, J. D. King, R. D. Heaslip, H. H. Hagenbaum, O. F. Bagwell, O. E. Joiner, O. D. Scott, Reese Carter and H. R. Cloughley.

Wichitan to Increase Production Of 'Home Smoked Meats' Made Here

Further growth and a more established market for a product which has been under manufacture in Wichita Falls for a decade is evidenced in the changes announced by John A. Hays of the Sanitary Meat Market, maker of "Hays' Home Smoked Meats."

Classification of the product which has become well known throughout this district since it was inaugurated in 1921 under two designations, and the doubling of his force of employes to provide an increased supply, were announced Tuesday by Mr. Hays.

The most select smoked meats, representing the highest grade animals available for slaughter, will be known hereafter as "Texas Pride" it was announced, while the standard line of products will be wrapped and labeled under the name of "Faith Brand."

Home curing of the various products featured by Mr. Hays has been carried on at his present address, 616 Seventh street, for more than nine years, and has developed a large community-wide clientele, according to reasons given for the increased working force and new classification.

Medical Leader Tells Wichitans How to Avoid Monoxide Gas Poison

City Ordinances Generally Violated, Says Price; 'Noiseless Soup Spoon' Presented to A. E. Kelly

Members of the Ad club heard a program at their weekly meeting Tuesday noon devoted entirely to the interests of better health, with Dr. Austin F. Lach, president of the Wichita County Medical society, declaring rules for the prevention of monoxide poisoning, and Jacob B. Price of the Municipal Gas company endorsing the speaker's recommendations.

Many serious illnesses have resulted in the past year in this city, Dr. Leach said, some resulting in death. Even a slight poisoning is injurious to one's health, he said, in urging strict compliance with the rules of safety in using gas. He pronounced the following rules for guidance:

"Never close a garage while warming up an automobile, or let the automobile run at any time except when the doors are open.

"Never have a fire in a tightly closed room.

"Always have a vent pipe to gas-burning appliances.

"Keep exhaust pipes in proper repair.

"Always have one window lowered from the top.

"Do not have a hot fire in a locked bathroom without some ventilation.

"Use rigid gas connection rather than a rubber hose."

Mr. Price deplored the wholesale violation of city ordinances relative to vents, rubber hose connections, etc.

The program was arranged by Lester Jones, who also presented to A. E. Kelly a "noiseless soup spoon" as a feature event of the luncheon.

Vanity Peculiar To Neither Sex, Miss Dix Avers

Which are the vainer, men or women? Each shouts at the other: "You are," which is about as convincing an argument as it is for the pot to reproach the kettle with its blackness. Both sexes are filled with self-admiration, which is a merciful dispensation of Providence. For if the best of us could see ourselves as others see us, and as we really are, we would die of chagrin.

Vanity is God's consolation gift to imperfect humanity, and the more we need it the more lavishly is it bestowed upon us. No sage esteems himself so wise as does the fool. No wit laughs at his own jokes so loudly as does the dullard. The president of the United States is not so uplifted by his office as the justice of the peace. Many a homely, dumpy little woman wonders what would have happened to Dolores Costello and Billy Dove if she had gone into the movies, and, generally speaking, the less people know, the more absolutely sure they are of their judgment.

This is well. It enables us to live in contentment and happiness, for if we are perfectly satisfied with ourselves we are just as well off as if we were what we think we are. If we give ourselves the glad hand we fail to notice that a captious and critical world fails to join in the round of applause.

So far from deprecating vanity I consider it a highly desirable adjunct of life, and this is the case whether you consider it an alibi, an emollient or just as a dispenser of joy. Furthermore, I am always thankful to know that men have not been able to monopolize this blessing as they have so many other privileges and prerogatives, but that women share equally in it.

So, taking it by and large, it would be hard to say whether men or women are the vainer, but it is interesting to observe the different ways in which vanity manifests itself in the two sexes.

Men have a curious sex vanity which women have not. No woman has the swell head over the mere fact of belonging to the female contingent, but the thing that a man is prouder of than he is of anything he ever achieves by his brains or brawn is having been born of the masculine persuasion.

Every man thinks that just being a man makes him a superior being, no matter how dull and weak and sickly he may be. The most ignorant, down-at-the-heels hobo who begs for food at a kitchen door looks down with contempt upon the most brilliant and highly cultivated and famous woman, and he wouldn't change places with her if he could. I have known many a man who couldn't make a living and whose wife supported him, give her advice about what she should do with the money she earned, and expect her to look up to him as an oracle just because he wore breeches instead of skirts.

Men are vainer about their powers of personal attraction than women are. Practically every man secretly believes himself a sheik, and that he could get any woman to whom he throws the handkerchief. Moreover, men believe that they never lose the power of fascination, and that age cannot wither nor custom stale their charms. Every day we see this illustrated by rich old men who marry girls young enough to be their granddaughters and who have never a suspicion that the are being married for their money and that flappers do not prefer them to boys of their own age.

Women have no such vanity as this. They don't befool themselves into thinking that they are sirens who can put a spell on every man and make him pop the question. On the contrary, they know good and well that it is an even break nowadays whether a girl gets a husband or a spinster's ticket. Very few old millionairesses marry boy husbands, but when they do they are not besotted enough in conceit to think that they are being married for love alone. They know it is their pocketbooks.

Men are also vainer about their ability to hold love than women are. Every man believes that once he wins a woman's heart he can't lose it, and that having once loved him she is bound to go on loving him to the end of the chapter. He may degenerate into a disgusting drunkard. He may flaunt his infidelities in her face. He may get fat and bald and bay-windowed and go around slouchy and dirty. He may be cross and surly and gloomy and grouchy, and about as pleasant in the house as a sore-headed bear. No matter, he is perfectly certain that his wife still adores him, and looks upon him as an answer to a maiden's prayer.

You never hear of men when they meet together discussing how to keep their wives in love with them, yet how to retain a husband's affection is a burning topic of conversation where two or three women meet for a heart-to-heart talkfest. You never see a man doing without the things he likes to eat and counting his calories in order to keep the boyish figure his wife fell in love with, yet half the married women of the country are starving themselves into anemia trying to look flapperish for their husbands.

You never see men reading up on the topics that women are interested in so that they can keep their wives interested and willing to stay at home at nights, yet millions of wives wade through the stock market and the sports page that bore them stiff so that they can hand out an entertaining line to husband.

And, finally, men's vanity makes them believe that every women is dying to hear them talk about themselves, and that she listens, with bated breath, to all the details about how they sold a bill of goods, or their make of car, or their golf score, but no woman on earth is vain enough to think that any man man will stand for her talking about herself.

Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher, all is vanity. And a good thing, too, for when we have plenty of vanity we have everything.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Jury Acquits Youth On Charge of Theft

Jim Carter, 17, of Iowa Park, was acquitted Monday afternoon by a jury in the county court at law on charges of theft of oil and gasoline from a grader-tractor belonging to the county, according to Judge Irvin J. Vogel.

Charges against the youth were based largely upon circumstantial evidence, it was said. Gasoline and oil valued at less than $5 was said to have been stolen from a county tractor on the highway near Iowa Park, and part of the stolen goods allegedly were found in an old car in which Carter had been riding with two companions on the night of the reported theft. The car had been abandoned on a country road near the grader, it was said.

The jury was out more than two hours on the case.

THIS IS THE TWENTIETH PUZZLE IN TIMES-RECORD NEWS "SCRAMBLED LETTER CONTEST"

This Is The Letter

W

The Times-Record News is conducting one of the most absorbing contests ever designed for the entertainment of its readers. To stimulate interest in it, and to make it a profitable as well as an enjoyable pastime for the next few weeks, a grand total of 39 prizes aggregating $100 will be awarded for the winning solutions.

Every other day there will be printed a letter of the alphabet in scrambled form, similar to the "W" above. These scrambled sections, when cut apart and properly assembled, will form the accompanying letter indicated. Each letter will be printed once in The Times and Record News.

This new game is extremely fascinating. It requires a high degree of skill to arrange these apparently simple sections in such forms as to make a perfect capital letter. "Scrambled Letters" has swept the country like a storm. Big business executives have taken it up as a genuine test of their ingenuity. Parties are formed in hundreds of communities to work out the puzzle in interested groups.

Each letter will appear in both papers. Full details about entering the contest are published herewith. Remember, 39 prizes make it well worth your time in matching your wits against this brand new intelligence test.

PRIZES ARE AS FOLLOWS

First prize	$25.00
Second prize	15.00
Third prize	10.00
Fourth prize	5.00
Ten prizes at $2 each	20.00
Twenty-five prizes at $1 each	25.00
Grand total	$100.00

Read These Rules

The Times-Record News Nu-Way alphabet puzzles include the 26 letters of the alphabet. The publication of the various letters of the alphabet will cover a period of several weeks. These letters appearing in the paper are cut into pieces of varying shapes, the object being to place these parts together so they will form the respective letters as illustrated in outline accompanying the pieces.

An outline and its entire parts will be published in the Times and Record News every other day, a different letter of the alphabet being presented. The publication of all letters of the alphabet will cover a period of several weeks.

Anyone who is a resident of Wichita Falls or this section may participate in this profitable fun, except employes of the Times and Record News or their families. You pay nothing to enter. Each letter, as it appears in the Times and Record News may be traced or copied free of charge from the files at the office of this newspaper.

The Times and Record News will pay $100 in cash prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved complete set of puzzles in accordance with the rules. This does not necessarily mean that you have to solve all the puzzles to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank the highest. Neatness, accuracy and simplicity are the prime requisites. Accurate cutting and correct assembling of the pieces to form each respective letter. Entries that are elaborate will receive no more consideration than the simplest ones. Young and old thus have an equal chance to win.

Take the page of the Times or Record News wherein the puzzles are published. Cut the pieces along the outside of the black border and paste the pieces neatly on cardboard or a piece of paper to form the letter indicated. Repeat this operation every week with the new letters in the Nu-Way alphabet puzzles published in the Times and Record News until you complete the full alphabet. Letters previously worked by pasting on the large letters we formerly published may be submitted in that way.

Puzzle solutions are to be submitted only in complete sets five days after all letters of the alphabet have been published in the Times and Record News. Do not send in each puzzle separately. When you have the complete set of 26 puzzles, or parts thereof, mail first class, postage prepaid, or bring them to the Times and Record News alphabet puzzle department. All entries must be in by midnight five days after the last puzzle has been published in the Times and Record News. The winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. Be sure that mailed entries have name and address of sender and sufficient postage is used.

In addition to your entry, you must send an advertisement of one of the advertisers shown on any of the letters clipped from the Times or Record News during this contest period, and a letter not exceeding 50 words in length telling why you can profitably deal with this concern.

The Times and Record News will appoint judges, and their decision will be final. In the event of a tie for any of the prizes offered, the full amount of the prize tied for will be awarded each tying contestant.

When Baby's Skin is Irritated

When there is any irritation of the skin such as eczema, chafing or prickly heat, omit soap from baby's bath and instead use oatmeal bags or bran. Make a cotton bag of cheesecloth, or other thin material, and fill loosely with bran. Soak the bag in the bath water, squeezing it until it becomes milky.

After bathing baby in this water dry him thoroughly by gentle patting, not rubbing, with a soft towel. Then dust a good baby powder into the creases and folds of the skin and around the buttocks. This absorbs any excessive moisture, prevents friction, chafing, "urine-burn" and redness. Probably the best powder for the purpose is McKesson's Baby Powder. It contains a premium grade talc, consisting of very fine, soft flakes rather than pointed particles, with other ingredients, soothing and refreshing to baby's tender skin. In addition, it has a deodorizing effect that preserves that "fresh baby smell" which Mother loves so much and does not want to vulgarize with a palpable perfume. It is a real medicinal powder—entirely different from any other. Daily bathing of baby with daily use of McKesson's Baby Powder will keep baby's skin smooth, white and comfortable, which, probably will do more than anything else to keep him a happy and contented baby. All McKesson Service Druggists and other independent drug stores sell and guarantee McKesson's Baby Powder. Get a can today and see how baby will gurgle his thanks. VAST HIGHWAY CONTRACT LET

Louisiana Orders $5,000,000 Road Project

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 25. (AP)—The largest highway construction letting in the history of Louisiana and one of the largest ever held in the South got under way today when the Louisiana highway commission opened bids on projects estimated to cost $5,000,000.

The work includes the first units of a proposed system of 3,000 miles of hard surfaced highways in the state to be built during the next four years with the $75,000,000 road bond issue recently ratified at the Nov. 4 election. The system was started last year under an original bond issue of $21,000,000.

Today's letting also represents the formal inauguration of the $100,000,000 public improvement program sponsored by Gov. Huey P. Long and ratified by the electorate as an aid to unemployment. A still larger highway letting has been announced for Jan. 6, 1931.

The Louisiana highway commission and the citizens' highway advisory board created to sup... the new road program are to meet in New Orleans Thursday, to advertise the sale of the first $15,000,000 block of the $75,000,000 road bond issue for financing the new proposed highways.

Nearly 200 contractors from Louisiana and other states were here today to bid on the work advertised. The contracts will be awarded as soon as the low bids can be tabulated.

The Reader's Opinion

ASKS FOR PROPER ARMISTICE OBSERVANCE

Editor, The Record News:

I should like to ask you a question: Why doesn't Wichita Falls celebrate Armistice day?

When one of our beloved fellow men passed away a few days ago all business houses were closed for the services and a large portion of our town turned out en masse to pay respect to the man who had done so much for our city.

Just a short 12 years ago peace was declared and we called it Armistice day. How happy we all were that war was over and our boys and loved ones who had fought for us could return home. But so many that went away never returned. What is wrong? Have we had a lapse of memory? We never forget the Fourth of July.

This year on Armistice day, while other towns closed their doors and paid respect, Wichita Falls with the exception of the banks and American Legion continued to rush through business with not even five minutes pause of reverent thought and thankfulness. Can't something be done about this "Lest We Forget"?

HONESTY MOST IMPORTANT, SAYS ACME MAN

Editor, The Record News:

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of "Hoover Prosperity"—a myth, not so secret, duly formed and organized in 1928, now composed of a host of disillusionment and embittered members. The word "Prosperity," spelled g-l-o-o-m, was the password used to gain admittance into this mythical circle, and the recognization sign today is a tightening of the belt, answered by a gnawing sp... at the stomach, followed by a distinct growl. Three sledge hammer knocks of the heart upon the fifth rib as your employer enters is due notice that you're a paid up charter member in good and lasting standing, and expect to receive last degree by being passed over the C. A. N. route.

Aid is now to be given by "good" men. If you're a good business man or woman, "aid." If you're a good politician, help. If you're a good bootlegger, boost. If you're a good racketeer, assist. If you're a good church-goer, pray. If you're good-for-nothing, just go to hell. Last named is the only "good" man "aid" is not expected from.

"Buy a Bale" movements will put a drop of "aid" into the ocean of hard times. "Build now" movements will spoon it in, while "buy now" addicts will fairly pour it in—but all three will amount to just "aid" after all, and only serve to muddy the waters for a time after which they will settle to the bottom as "grounds" do in grandma's coffee pot.

Let us untangle the scram. Aid is as aid does—and nothing more. Instead of asking for "good men" to come to our aid we should have asked for "honest men." Now I've let the secret out. Faith and its "honest" men we're needing. An honest politician, an honest preacher, an honest merchant, an honest bootlegger, an honest racketeer, and others honest, and above all an honest people. I don't care what you may be engaged in as an occupation, if honest and square, you are sitting in the right pew at the right church.

How will it work? Honesty will work like yeast in a jar with other stuff—that is it will not be still and it will produce the goods. As an example refer you to recent press dispatches wherein it is stated that a movement is on foot in this state sponsored by railway employes seeking to adjust a matter of taxation as between the busses and truck owners on the one hand and railroads on the other. That is honesty in the right direction—may they win. If all laborers, farmers, and home merchants would organize in like manner and seek to adjust through proper channels the "wrongs" found in their firms, farms, and occupations, distress would take wings and fly away.

'MAC' GIVES 'EM ZOO LECTURE

Premier Tells Commons Of Kangaroo and Sloth

LONDON, Nov. 25. (AP)—The kangaroo, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald informed the house of commons today, is distinguished by the speed with which it covers the ground, by the length and accuracy of its leaps, and by the care of its young.

The sloth, on the other hand, is merely a lazy fellow who spends his life hanging on by his feet. This bit of information was provided by David Lloyd George, the Liberal leader.

The lesson in natural history developed during a debate on adoption of what is known as the "kangaroo closure," a method of restricting discussion in committee by permitting the chairman to jump from one amendment to another.

'Home Town' Bandit Shot After Robbery

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25. (AP)—A new search was started today by Baltimore and New York police for Harry Milham, alias Hal Gibson, when he failed to appear for a hearing on extradition to New York for questioning in the investigation of an alleged vice ring there. His bail of $7,500 was declared forfeited.

CHAPLAIN AIRS PRISON HORROR

Probe Reveals 'Black Hole' Torture Methods

WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Nov. 25. (INS)—The "black hole" beneath the old state prison here today received the attention of the commission appointed by Governor Trumbull to investigate the prison. Rev. W. H. Smith, rector of Christ church, Schenectady, N. Y., who until Oct. 1, last, was chaplain at the prison, revealed the "black hole."

Rev. Mr. Smith described the "black hole" as consisting of seven solitary confinement cells where the only ventilation is by means of small holes in the doors, where there is no light, no sanitary facilities, no bed and mattress, and only one blanket, and where the heat is so intense prisoners placed there have their clothing removed.

Prisoners are kept there for days at a time, Rev. Mr. Smith declared. He stated that he never could see why men so confined did not go insane. Col. Norris G. Osborn, New Haven, head of the prison board, asked why the former chaplain had not told the board of such brutality before.

"I had a vivid opinion that you did not want the chaplain's opinion," the minister replied.

Rev. Mr. Smith described how Moulthrope, Landay, and Lalone, known as the "ice box" bandits who escaped last winter from the prison and were re-captured, were put in the "black hole" for "seven or eight days," and then placed in screened cells on the floor above for several months.

The clergyman cited the case of one prisoner who was shackled to the cell bars with his hands fastened high above his head. His outer clothes were removed.

Down in the "black hole" a prisoner's only food is two slices of bread a day. He gets no water with which to wash, the pastor said.

The clergyman also told the tale of a prisoner named O'Mahoney, who escaped from prison some seven years ago and was recaptured. "He was patched up by a doctor and put into the hole. Later he was sent to the hospital where he died in two days."

Mysterious Malady Hits Bellevue Boy

BELLEVUE, Texas, Nov. 25.—Appearing first in the form of severe pains at the back of the neck, a mysterious malady suffered by Weldon Maggard, Bellevue High school student, is puzzling physicians all over the county. The boy is under observation in the Bowie clinic but his attendants have been unable to diagnose his trouble. His condition is serious.

The boy's condition grew rapidly worse after the first pains appeared, the suffering extending into his legs. He lost consciousness at times. In an effort to save his life, Arthur Greer his instructor at school, sacrificed a pint of blood for a transfusion, but the benefits of the measure were only temporary.

Business-Agricultural Co-Operation Brings Results to Sunset Farmers

By W. J. STEPHENS
Record News Correspondent

SUNSET, Texas, Nov. 25.—The spirit of cooperation and friendship seem to be constantly growing in this country among farmers, merchants and business people generally. This makes the future outlook much brighter for all branches of agriculture here.

This cooperative move has already been the means of bringing about schools in which interested people have the opportunity of getting the advice of expert teachers who have made a special study of the best economic methods of producing and marketing farm products. These schools are mostly one-day schools, held at different times and places, but they are worth a great deal to people who desire to learn more about the best methods of farming.

By experience, many truck farmers and gardeners here have acquired a great deal of knowledge by which they are already profiting, and every year something useful is added to their knowledge of producing, classing and marketing products, but an increasing interest in cooperation is also increasing their chance of greater success in future years.

Products Varied

Many of these people have sold from $100 to more than $200 worth of products per acre this year. Watermelons, cantaloupes, tomatoes and sweet potatoes are the most profitable products grown here this year. There will be quite an increase in the acreage of these products here next year, and also of other products, too.

Two outstanding examples of marketing developments in this country are those of Bowie and Alvord. Bowie has recently become a leading turkey market, from which 23,000 turkeys were shipped to help supply the Thanksgiving demand, bringing the growers $60,000. Alvord is a well-established leading watermelon market, from which $50,000 worth of melons were shipped this year.

Bowie and Alvord people are constantly working to improve their markets for all kinds of agricultural products. And Sunset, about half way between these fast-growing markets, has a good market for poultry, eggs, cotton and other products.

With the prospect of larger and more profitable markets for the proper disposal of farm produce, the cooperation of expert teachers and leaders, many farmers are expecting a profitable development of all the agricultural resources of this country.

OXFORD PAYS MORGAN HONOR

High Degree Conferred On American Financier

OXFORD, England, Nov. 25. (AP)—J. P. Morgan, in a flowing scarlet gown and "beefeater" hat, walked through narrow, cobbled ways far more ancient than Wall street today to receive the highest honor of England's oldest university, the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws conferred by Oxford.

The little procession, headed by four mace-bearers, marched through the streets without attracting a second glance from shopkeepers and square-capped undergraduates to whom mediaeval pageants are everyday affairs.

But it was the sort of scene which would have stopped traffic in New York's financial district.

Intelligence Tests Good Way to Waste Time Too Fat to Love And Too Thin, as Well

By EMILE GAUVREAU

The much-lauded intelligence test which, some years ago, was supposed to be an infallible, scientific guide to the mental capacity or equipment of students, is declared a failure. At Horace Mann school, teachers' college, Columbia university, the test is to be discontinued, according to an announcement by Dr. Rollo G. Reynolds, principal, who confesses that the classification of children into bright, normal and backward groups on the basis of their marks in mental tests has not only proved unsatisfactory, but has created much snobbery and jealousy among students and parents.

An intelligence test is necessarily conditional. Mental alertness is as variable in a person as temperature in weather. Challenged, a mind may outride the stars, or be paralyzed into apathy. Under duress, the stupid person may outwit the clever one. But a "flash in the pan" is no criticism to the caliber of a mind. The only true test is experience under a variety of conditions, and the aggregate sum of that experience.

A new ground for divorce has been added to the ever-growing list. In Reno, Nev., Bartley F. Maywood, former hotel man, wins marital freedom from his 240-pound wife by contending, to the satisfaction of the court, that a gain in 115 pounds disqualifies her as a fit mate. When Maywood married his heavier half in 1887, she was only 125.

Wives will have to watch their diet. Divorce may hinge hereafter on a beefsteak or a filet de sole. Nor is the spindle-shanked wife any safer. If avoirdupois is a fault sufficient to abrogate a "tie made in heaven," skinniness may well be considered by the courts as a valid reason for divorce.

The movies have claimed Martin Johnson, Admiral Byrd, Max Reinhardt, Bernard Shaw, grand dukes and princes without number. Now Robert Tyre Jones Jr., world golf champion, abdicates in favor of the films. In the end, it seems, the temptations of great gains for small efforts is too great to be resisted.

There is no obloquy attached to doing work for the movies, if one does not cheapen himself and his art or profession when doing it. The danger, of course, is that Hollywood's idea of presentation of a great man or a great art or a great event might distort history to the point of falsifying it. That is what Byrd chanced, and had cause to regret afterwards.

To keep the curious from congesting Lindbergh road, in Lawenceville, N. J., is a problem that confronts the local police there. The township committee announces it will place a special traffic policeman in front of the Lindbergh home to keep the traffic moving as the first step in overcoming what now amounts to a public nuisance. No longer the country's greatest flier, he is still practically barricaded in his home.

Some people fight all their lives for publicity. Lindbergh will have to fight for years against it. One hardly knows what of the two is the less to be envied. Pope said that people are "damned to fame." He was right.

CLOVERDALE, B. C.—Just as S. Cunningham turned over a new leaf, he found a lot of money. He was looking over old books bequeathed to him by a friend. Between the leaves of one he found 43 shares in a prosperous mining company. The shares are valued at more than $10,000.

The Price of Lost Love

THERE ARE a good many things in this imperfect world that can make a man ill. Nothing, however, does it much more quickly or thoroughly than that strange legal phenomenon known in newspaper headlines as "heart balm," and more formally called a damage suit for breach of promise to marry.

These things pop up every so often, flash for a darksome moment on the newspaper front pages and then vanish—leaving, usually, some clever young woman several thousands of dollars richer and some unwise man a great deal wiser. Of all the lawsuits that find their way into our courts, these are the hardest to comprehend.

An Ohio city recently furnished a typical example. A young stenographer brought a wealthy citizen into court and demanded $100,000 of him. They had been engaged to be marriied, she said, until his eyes and his thoughts wandered to the daughter of a wealthy manufacturer. He jilted the stenographer and married the manufacturer's daughter; so the stenographer wanted justice, paid in coin of the realm.

The trial followed the usual pattern. The girl told her heart-rending tale, and assured the jury that her heart had been broken. Then the man had his day in court, and he announced to the world that the girl had just been a playmate and not a fiancee. Each side slung a great deal of mud. Their lawyers, by turns, waxed tearful and eloquent. And then the jury, having deliberated, awarded the girl $40,000 and everybody went home.

It may be that exact justice was done in this case. We know nothing whatever about it. But there is one fact in connection with lawsuits of this kind that is always overlooked, although anyone who has ever loved—even a high school sophomore gripped by puppy love—is perfectly familiar with it; the simple, indisputable fact that a real heartbreak is not to be assuaged with money.

Indeed, it is hardly going too far to say that when genuine love has been spurned the person who has been hurt would not dream of going to court to collect for it. The person who has really loved does not talk that kind of language. There are things in this world for which money is no remedy, and a broken heart is one of them.

So much for the broken heart. And what of the girl who files such a suit? She generally gets her money, for juries are notoriously tender hearted; but can it be worth it? The defense almost invariably tries to prove that she is lacking in character, and some of the mud it throws is bound to stick. How many girls would consider even a pile of gold worth that?

Human nature being what it is, we shall probably continue to have lawsuits of this kind from time to time. But they are rather unpleasant things to read about.

Why Don't We Get Mad?

ONE OF the chief troubles with us these days seems to be that we don't get mad easily enough. We get irritated, of course; we're a touchy people. But it takes a lot to make us really angry.

Consider, for example, the following news dispatch which recently appeared on the front page of a big middle western newspaper, under a Sandusky (Ohio) dateline:

"Prosecution will follow future lunch hijacking among school children, Hal Delamathe, Erie county prohibition officer, warned today.

"The warning was called for, Delamathe said, as a result of complaint that boys of the Oakland school near the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors home, whose dinner pails were light because their dads were out of work, had from time to time compelled more fortunate schoolmates to divide with them."

Now if we were the sort of people we ought to be, a news item like that would make us downright furious. Not, we hasten to say, because the thought of a schoolboy robbing another boy of his lunch is anything to get all steamed up about; but because the mere thought that some youngsters have to go hungry these days, and are driven by their hunger to make raids on the lunch boxes of better fed children, is the sort of thought that a decent human being ought not to be able to endure for a minute.

Note, too, the way our civilization is organized to deal with a thing of this kind. The county probation officer seems to have been the only official obliged to take notice of it; and all that he could do was announce that any child who ate the wrong lunch would be punished. That, of course, wasn't his fault. It was the fault of the whole social organization.

Nor is the incident itself any particular reflection on the city of Sandusky; for the same thing, beyond a doubt, is happening in pretty nearly every city in the land. Indeed, the chief reason for our getting angry about it is the fact that this tragic little story is so typically American. That story could have been printed anywhere in the country.

A thing like that ought to be more than we would be willing to stand. It ought to make us so angry that we would get busy and do something about it. But it doesn't. We take it in our stride, and we forget it a few hours later.

If someone should produce an affidavit to prove that the last world series had been crooked the country would flame with indignation. But we don't seem to have much indignation for a defective social and economic system that inflicts hunger on a bunch of school kids and drives them to robbing their playmates' lunch boxes.

A Little Explanation

MONEY TALKS, according to an old saying, and in a great many cases it talks with a very loud voice indeed. Which is a large part of the explanation for the power and insolence of the Chicago gangs.

Jack Guzik, an ally of Al Capone, was in the federal court in Chicago recently, taken there by federal prosecutors who accused him of cheating Uncle Sam of income taxes. Sworn testimony, buttressed by actual records, showed that this precious alley rat had enjoyed a net income of no less than $1,044,000 during the three years 1927, 1928 and 1929!

When a gangster can make money like that, is it any wonder that the underworld is defiant and cocky? Is it any wonder that we hear tall stories of bribery and corruption? Is it any wonder that there are reports that the power of the underworld reaches high in police departments, politics and the courts?

Broadwaycasting

Good evening, ladies and gentlemen and those who simply cannot wait for the guestar to sing. Well, we'll put Miss Ada Ward right on for you. She is the contribution of Connie's Inn, one of the better places in the Brownskin Belt. You probably have been enchanted by her song deliveries up there or in the "Blackbirds Revue" last season. The critics crowned her with the late Florence Mills' mantle because of her delightful second-chorus waddle-dee-do-dee-doing and I am certain you will concur with the defenders of the dray-mer. (Song here.) Thanks, Miss Ward, for embellishing our brief bill. . . . The current chit-chatting includes the whisper that Dorothy Mackaill and her heart have phffft! . . . Lora Sonderson, one of the "Follies" is having a time of it in Oklahoma trying to get her husband out of the jailhouse for mail fraud. . . . That Mrs. Percy K. Hudson of the upper classes (as they are called between titters) and Larry Benson eloped during the week-end. Well, they certainly had pediculous weather for it.

I said on Monday that Vincent Lopez's newest heart-thumper was Betty Raymond when I meant to call her Betty Randolph, who has more diamonds than all the pawnshops. . . . Betty has been front-paged frequently since she was wooed by a minister. . . . The marital adventures of the A. B. Conkwrights are interesting. This is the 12-year welded couple who recently decided to let each other do as they pleased. . . . It is called "a perfect understanding" . . . Well, it wasn't so perfect, I hear. . . . Marie Conkwright, who didn't mind it in the least if Conky went out with other baby dolls, revolted when she observed one of her husband's companions wearing her duckiest frocks. . . . Then the explosion came, so a judge will decide matters. . . . I fear, too, that Mrs. Conkwright's next mate has a mess of what a lot of us haven't.

Speaking of husbands and their headaches, the following scene left some of us in hysterics at Perona's the other night. . . . Three Wall St., better knowns frequented the place with their honeys to get away from busybodies. . . . Everything ran smoothly until they walked into the place and there found their respective wives with other men! . . . For some reason or other all appetites went bleh. . . . The Leo Friedes of the Wall street sector, who are judge-telling it, also have selected their next problems already. . . . Leo's arm decoration is Velma Lewis, one of the prettier models and Mrs. F. is going places with Edward O'Dowd, one of our nicer rowdy O'Dowdies.

Kathryn Ray, one of the first to pose in the raw for Earl Carroll, "The Merchant of Venus," sailed secretly Fridee for the Argentine, where her Big Idea is making millions. His name is Macoco. . . . Dorothy ("Girl Crazy") Gordon is having the seal shattered. . . . Marion Herson, of the same Sweet (Joe) Cookie show, will middle-aisle it with Cole Porter's secretary. . . . The RKO people are plotting a flicker in which Lowell Sherman and Pauline Garon will play the hubby and squaw roles. . . . This is all the more interesting because they were divorced last year, Lowell's new bride, you know, being Helene Costello. . . . Mr. Wilstach's book of Best Similes is recommended to the Pathfinder's: "As useless as 'Stop!' on the road to ruin."

Among other things that burned me up and knocked me colder than a New York first night audience was the arrest of Charles Frey, who was slugged and mercilessly beaten up by detectives who wanted to make an impression on their superior officers. . . . It appears an old sea captain's life savings of $16,000 were clipped by a band of racketeers who operated in a Lexington Ave. hotel, where Frey also dwelled. . . . It is an old racket, this "Pay-Off" racket, and they got away with it. . . . The captain was deceived into believing that if he put his 16 Gs he would collect $32,000 because a certain horse would win. . . . Well, the gee-gee didn't win, and the old man is as broke as you.

Frey was arrested on a trumped-up charge so that someone could be held for the gyping. . . . The sea captain said he never saw Frey before and Charlie was released. . . . He is going to sue the city for false arrest. . . . The Chester Rupurtes of Washington are melting. She was Patricia Hill. . . . She will name June Borden.

Colonel Bill Donovan's nevview, Eddie, is suing one of the better known hotels for $100,000 because he was ejected by the hotel for being plastered and Eddie says he wished he were. . . . The Wickersham Committee, which will not encourage the repeal of the 18th amendment, will, however, offer suggestions on how to get "around it" . . . The same committee will also expose six other "rackets" which together are as profitable to the racketeers as prohibition. . . . Col. Dean Ivan Lamb, personal pilot for the missing Charles V. Bob, arrived here secretly yesterday.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, whose wealthy husband just passed away, is taking a studio in Havana for the winter season. . . . Maggie Belmont, you plump listeners probably will enjoy learning, is down to 104, which is plenty down. . . . Gretchen Messer, formerly Mrs. Sidney Gulick, will middle-aisle it with Richard Fegete, the Paramount art director.

The Chanin Brothers, who control several buildings, theaters and hotels, have also set the pace to bring back prosperity. . . . The Chanins just sent memos to all their employes assuring them that their jobs are safe and that their wages would not be shaved. . . . Bravo, I say, and I know you are saying so, too.

I must now hasten to the premiere of Ziegfeld's "Smiles" where I hope the actors on the stage will be as funny as those in the audience.

HEARTBREAK GIRL

By ROB EDEN

Gail Stuart, befriended by Nick Walther after hiking to Hollywood, fails in pictures. She becomes secretary to Carla Cross, the star, and gets Ross Hardy, her fiance, a job as Carla's leading man. He "goes Hollywood," failing for Carla and living far beyond his means, and Gail ends their engagement. Gail is discharged for dining with Walther, on whom Carla has designs. He stages a house party to throw Gail with Hardy, knowing she still loves him. The party ends in tragedy with the suicide of Norman Frame, one of Carla's discarded sweethearts. His death note accuses the actress, and she is ruined, losing her contract. Ross disappears during his first starring picture. Gail learns his car has been found in San Diego and takes a train there, determined to find him and save his job.

CHAPTER XLIII

Mason, the manager of the Elite Garage, San Diego, was very ingratiating to the girl who came to ask questions about the big, black roadster which had been on the floor since early Monday morning.

"You're the second person who's been here, Miss, to ask about the car. The other was a man." Gail nodded impatiently. Max's detective, she assumed.

"Well, I told him all I knew about the car. I don't know nothing more than I told him. You want me to tell you again?"

They were standing beside the big car. Gail noticed that one front fender was crumpled. It hadn't been last Saturday when she had ridden out with Ross to Nick's beach house. An accident? Ross was so proud of it, too. He must have hit something with terrific force . . .

"Kind of Coo-Coo"

She begged Mason to proceed.

"A guy drove the car in about 3 or 4 o'clock Monday morning. I'm always on duty Sunday night —so I happened to be here. I went up to him and showed him where to park it, but he didn't pay any attention, just got out of the car and left it there, as if he didn't care what happened to it. To be friendly I mentioned the smashed fender, but he didn't seem to hear me. Acted kinda coo coo. 'Course I don't know him. Maybe he's that way all the time. He wasn't even going to take his ticket, but I stuck it into his pocket, just as he was going out the door. Never said a word, when he'd want the boat or anything. He wasn't in the garage any more than a minute. Just time to drive the car in, get out and beat it. When he'd gone—he kinda staggered out like he was drunk, but I didn't smell any liquor on him, so maybe he wasn't—well, when he'd gone I looked for the driver's card on the wheel. It wasn't there. That's what made me think it was a stolen car. Always have to have a driver's card.

"I didn't do nothing that day. But Tuesday came, and he didn't come to get the car. Wednesday, neither. Thursday I got in touch with Sacramento, and found out the car belonged to Ross Hardy—traced the license number, so I called his home number. Friday a guy came to ask about Hardy. I told him what I'm telling you. Nothing more has happened since."

"No, I ain't heard nothing from him. It was Hardy all right who brought the car in. The guy who came yesterday had a picture and I identified it. Only Hardy didn't look so good as he looked in his picture. He looked as if he'd been through the mill."

"Which way did he walk when he left here?"

"North, I think, but I ain't sure. I was busy right after he left."

Gail left her hotel address, and asked Mason to notify her if Mr. Hardy came in to claim his car. He promised to do anything he could. He already had another message to give him from the studio.

Next, she phoned all the hotels to see if Ross was registered at any of them. This was a long job, an unsuccessful one. At 10 o'clock she had to admit that Ross, if he was in San Diego, was not at any of the hotels listed in the directory.

"It was Hardy all right who brought the car in. The guy who came yesterday had a picture and I identified it."

It seemed a hopeless job trying to find him. Had he money when he came? He must have had some with him, enough. No, he wouldn't worry about money now. But supposing he didn't have much money. What would he do?

Gail Gets Lead

The girl thought of the watch he had pawned so many times in Hollywood. A good lead. If he didn't have money, he would pawn something. Silly, to think of that now. He had money. His checkbook was probably in his pocket . . .

Besides there was the chance that he wasn't in San Diego at all . . .

No, the best thing to do was to visit some clothing stores and find out if he had bought anything. He had nothing with him but the things he was wearing. He would need clean linen. She visited some of the largest stores, only to discover by noon that Ross had not been in any of them. Smaller stores? Her heart sank. Too many of them. It would take her too long to ask at every clothing store in San Diego.

She was panicky when she saw what time it was. She wasn't getting any place. She must hurry.

Supposing she should work from the idea that Ross had little or no money with him . . .

No, that was wrong. No good. Yet the idea persisted, and soon she found herself walking up the street, almost persuaded that, if Ross didn't have much money with him, he would pawn something. As he had done in the days when he had no money at all. When she first knew him. A slender, almost too slender thread, but a possible one.

Ross wasn't at any of the good hotels, not even at any of the second class ones. If he had had money, and if he was in San Diego, surely he would stay at a decent place. Then, he couldn't have any money . . .

Fading Hope

The circle of her reasoning didn't seem very sound to her. She was starting on the theory that Ross didn't have any money with him. When all he had to do was to wire the studio for identification to cash a check. He hadn't though. That was the point. He hadn't.

She turned into a pawn shop, and nervously asked the proprietor if a watch had been pawned recently with the initials R. H. on the face, describing a new watch Ross carried. The proprietor was very polite, but discouraging. He had no watch in the place, with the initials R. H. on it. However, he willingly gave her a list of other pawn shops. She took it gratefully, although in her heart, she felt she was wasting valuable time.

The second pawn shop gave her no hope. The man in charge brought out two watches, both initialed R. H. Neither of them was Ross,' and both of them had been unredeemed for months.

The third was just as bad. There was no reason to believe that Ross had pawned his watch. She was a fool to think he had. Impatiently she consulted the list again. The fourth shop was blocks away on the same street. Should she go there or change her search to the cheaper clothing stores?

It wouldn't hurt to go to a few more pawn shops. Turning into the fourth shop, she had to wait a while until the proprietor was free. Finally, when his customer left, she explained what she wanted. She knew the rigmarole by heart now.

"What kind of a watch did you say it was?" he asked.

"A thin Platinum case, with the initials R. H. on the front."

"I think one like that came in yesterday, but I'm not sure of the initials. I remember I thought it was a fine watch, finer than I usually get in here." He walked over to a big safe in the corner and jerked open the door. Gail was holding her breath in her anxiety. If it was Ross' . . . if . . . then she would be right . . .

He was a long time at the safe. She began to think he had been mistaken, that he couldn't find the watch, that it had been redeemed since he had put it there. When he

ITALIO – SOVIET TRADE AGREED

Peninsula Nation to Buy Russian Oils

ROME, Italy, Nov. 25. (AP)—Observers were confident today that yesterday's conference between Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet envoy, was a step in framing the second part of the important Italian-Russian trade treaty signed last August.

That treaty did not specify what Italy was to buy from the Soviets. Under its terms Russia agrees to buy $10,000,000 of Italian manufactured goods during 1930 and 1931. A 75 per cent government credit over five years is assured to the sellers, leaving as a gamble a 25 per cent margin of profit.

When the treaty was under discussion last year, it became known that an American oil field was dickering to supply oil and gasoline to Italy. These negotiations were broken off by the Italian government, which informed the Americans that Italy would buy her oil from Russia.

At the same time permission was given "Petrolia," the Russian oil concessionaires here, to build two refining plants. Well informed opinion holds that the Russian organization was formed as a distributing organization to flood this part of Europe with cheap Soviet oils.

Another phase of the situation is that Italy needs supplies of cheap lumber, coal and ore, all of which Russia has in plenty, and there is a pressing need for building up Italian industry to offset the country's tremendous military expenses.

Italians find themselves in such a position as to be unafraid of Russian "dumping," because all Russia's products are badly needed in Italy and the American tariff wall cuts off Italy's most important market.

Since the present treaty has an extension clause provided for its renewal over two one-year periods on an increasing scale of fifteen million dollars and twenty-five million dollars in Russian purchases here, it is regarded as likely that Italy is now ready to specify just what Russian products and how much of them she will need during the first one-year period.

Oklahoma C.-C. Calls Regional Drouth Conference at Mangum

Heartbreak Girl

returned to the counter he had a wafer thin watch in his grimy, stubby fingers. Gail caught at it eagerly. Ross! She would recognize it in a million. The initials—everything. She remembered she had scrutinized it carefully that night at the beach restaurant when she had been with Ross.

At Last!

"That's it!" she exclaimed.

"You have the ticket to redeem it?"

"No, I just wanted to see it. It belongs—to a friend of mine, who has disappeared, and I'm trying to find out where he is. Do you have an address with every article?"

"Yes. You'll find it on the tag attached to the watch." For the first time Gail noticed the tag on the stem. She couldn't make out the writing, however, and handed it back to the man to decipher.

"Micky Bard, 1116½ K street," he read slowly.

"Micky Bard?"

"Yes, that's the name he gave me."

Then Ross was not using his own name! That was why she couldn't find him. She carefully wrote down the address so that she would remember it, and thanking the man, left the shop. She couldn't possibly redeem the watch. She had seen the figures twenty dollars on the slip. Ross would have to redeem it himself.

But why was Ross using this other name? Because he didn't want anyone to find him? Micky Bard. A strange name for Ross to use . . .

Asking directions to the address on her slip of paper, she was surprised when she finally came to the number. Was it right? Such a queer place for Ross to be . . .

The street was in the poorer section of the city, a narrow badly paved street, bordered by tall, weather beaten houses. Most of them had "room for rent" signs either on the porch or in the front windows. Number 1116½ was none too prepossessing. Gail opened the rickety gate which was not needed at all, because the fence around the weedy yard was half down, and felt reluctant about going up the worn broken board walk. How had Ross ever found the place? He must have very little money indeed to stay here . . .

Poor Quarters

The curtains in the windows were ragged and soiled. A slatternly old woman answered her knock, for there was no bell.

I want to talk to—" she was about to say Ross Hardy, when she remembered that the woman wouldn't know him by that name—"Micky Bard."

"Micky." The woman screamed loudly. Gail shivered at the scream. It was so shrill, like the call of an eery bird at night. Again the woman cried for Micky. "He ain't here now, miss, but he ought to be in any minute. Will you come back?"

"No, I'd rather wait if I can—"

"Come in, then." She held open the door, but Gail backed away. She had no intention of going in the house. She didn't like the looks of it. "Can I wait on the porch?"

"Sure." The door slammed and Gail gingerly sat down on the steps to wait for Ross. The surroundings he had chosen puzzled her the longer she sat there. Ross who had learned to be so fastidious in the short time of his fame in Hollywood. Living here . . .

But what would he say when he came, and saw her?

Tomorrow—Gail Plays Good Fairy.

ALTUS, Okla., Nov. 25.—Latest developments in the drouth relief situation will be brought to business men and farmers of southwestern Oklahoma next Friday evening in Mangum by the state chamber of commerce in a regional meeting. Announcement of this meeting came to Altus from W. B. Estes, managing director of the state body.

Counties from which representatives are expected to be in attendance when the situation is explained will be Beckham, Greer, Harmon, Jackson, Kiowa, Comanche, Tillman, Cotton, Stephens, Caddo and Washita.

J. G. Puterbaugh, director of the state chamber of commerce and chairman of the Oklahoma state drouth relief committee, is in Washington at the present time in conference with the president and other federal officials in an effort to secure a congressional appropriation for approximately $3 per acre to loan to bona-fide farmers to enable them to make a 1931 crop.

Never Too Late

LONDON.—It's never too late to mend—or marry. That's what Miss Grace Rowlands and Charles Blanchford thought recently. They were married at Horsell, near Woking, after a friendship which sprang up 65 years ago. Both the bride and groom are 85 years old.

Comanche County Road Injunction Is Upheld

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 25. (UP)—Action of the Comanche county district court in granting R. B. Morford and Mabel Lemaster an injunction enjoining the city of Lawton from paving Gore boulevard was upheld today by the state supreme court.

Morford protested levying the assessment taxes against a privately-owned property and the issuance of paving bonds by the city to pay the cost of paving.

Thirteen potatoes planted in Bedfordshire, England, were found when dug up recently to have joined themselves into one, which looked strikingly like a statue of a woman and child.

Convulsions of Children

It is not unusual for children to undergo severe convulsions which cause the mother the greatest alarm. The child's head may be drawn sharply back, the eyes rolled up, the body stiffened, the hands twitching and the teeth grinding. This group of symptoms makes a terrible picture but, fortunately, these fits or convulsions are not generally as serious as they appear and usually leave so permanent after effects.

One of the most common causes of convulsions in an infant or a child is overeating or indigestion, especially if the stomach is filled with gas. Other causes are colic, teething, rickets, tonsil trouble, anemia, epilepsy and a rundown condition due to food not agreeing with the child. Measles, scarlet fever, pneumonia and smallpox may begin with a convulsion and fever in a child, when the same disease in a grown person would begin with a chill.

Any accident which brings on a severe nervous shock may produce one of these temporary convulsions. The convulsions greatly resemble epilepsy but these ordinary fits do not come back at regular intervals as do those of epileptic seizures.

One of the first things you should do when your child has a convulsion is to immerse the child in hot water, but be careful that it is not hot enough to burn the child. Put him in as soon as possible and keep him in till he begins to perspire. If he is feverish, you should keep the head cool by applying towels wrung out in cold water. Watch the child carefully to see that he does not draw his head under the water. When the sweating begins, remove the child from the tub and wrap in a sheet and place him in bed with a flannel blanket over him so that sweating will continue. Usually the child will fall into a deep sleep and perspire profusely, in this way discharging the toxins responsible for the convulsion. Allow the child to awaken himself, and give him a quick, cold shower and dry vigorously, wrap well and finish the treatment with one or two enemas of warm water to cleanse out the bowels.

The following day give no food but fruit juice, but give him plenty of water to drink. After this the mother must be careful about the child's food, especially in using the right combinations.

The enema is very useful if taken every day for at least a week after a convulsion. The spasms do not usually occur when the bowels are kept open.

It is a good plan to have the doctor examine the child to find out the cause of the trouble. If some disease condition has produced a convulsion, then it must be overcome. If the convulsion is caused by errors in the feeding which is often the case, the mother should find the mistakes and correct them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tuberculosis of Spine

Question: R. J. writes—"About a month ago I noticed a small lump between the shoulders on the spine of my little 4-year-old boy, and after an X-ray the doctors declared it tubercular. As I have much faith in you and your work, I am writing to ask if there is anything to be done in this case in the way of diet and treatments. Is there a possibility that the lump could be only a growth of some kind, as there is no tuberculosis in the family on either side?"

Answer—There is some similarity between tuberculosis of the spine and arthritis of the spine but, of course, your doctors should be able to make a better diagnosis with their personal examination than I can guess as through correspondence. The treatment in either disorder should be principally through diet and certain physiotherapy treatments.

Chili Con Carne

Question: J. L. asks—"What is your opinion of chili con carne? I am very fond of this and other Mexican dishes. I am in good health except that I have quite a large amount of gas.

Answer—Chili con carne is a Mexican dish composed chiefly of ground-up meat, dried pink beans, dried chili peppers, garlic and various spices cooked together. I am unable to recommend it as an article of food because of the irritating spices which it contains and because dried beans are rather difficult to digest and produce a large amount of gas with most people.

Locomotor Ataxia

Question: H. G. F. asks—"Is there any chance for a person with locomotor ataxia to be cured through diet?"

Answer—A great deal of good can be accomplished in the cure of locomotor ataxia through fasting and dieting. Various physiotherapy treatments are also helpful, including the re-education of the muscles through the use of what is known as the Frenkel movement cure.

Talkie Patents Suit Due Today

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 25. (AP)—Trial of the Alcograph company's suit against the Electrical Research Products company in which the plaintiffs allege that the Electrical Research Products company infringed on a patent owned by the plaintiffs in development and sale of talking movie apparatus and by which the plaintiffs seek to recover all profits made from such apparatus, estimated at more than $50,000,000, is expected to end in federal court Wednesday.

The patent over which the suit originated was obtained in 1924 by Allen Stowers and Leo de Hymel of San Antonio and later sold to the Alcograph company. Most of the testimony is technical.

15 DEPARTING COYOTES TO BE HONORED AT RALLY TODAY

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

C. P. Mosley, veteran of many wars in the sport world, is full of interesting baseball and football stories, gleaned from a life rich with experiences. For seven years Mosley was director of athletics at Baylor university (which might be the reason he's so happy these days), and in addition to coaching in several other schools he was a professional baseball player in his day, serving as first sacker with Dallas and Shreveport.

One story he tells comes close to home, for it involves Barry Holton.

Mosley was coach at Rusk college, in East Texas. His football team looked good, and Mosley was pointing for the annual battle with Alexander college, nearby. But the Alexander coach thought he'd put it over on Rusk, so he fared forth and imported an amazing bunch of good players. How he got 'em no one knows, but he succeeded in grouping around him some of the best material of its kind in the state.

But Mosley didn't fear him even then, because the Alexander coach was not, in Mosley's opinion, a very high-powered mentor. In fact, several weeks before the annual battle between Rusk and Alexander, Mosley knew the Alexander signals, knew all their plays, and had his team drilled in breaking them up.

The head of the college came around to Mosley.

"Can you beat 'em," he queried, "with Alexander having all that good material?"

"I can beat anything at Alexander as long as they have that coach," said Mosley.

But Alexander decided to pull another one. Three days before the annual battle with Rusk, the college sent for a quite famous player and coach by the name of Barry Holton, graduate of Notre Dame, and offered him a handsome sum if he would teach the Alexander team the Notre Dame shift and others plays—in three days!

Mosley heard of this, but paid scant attention to it. He didn't figure any coach on earth could teach a team the Notre Dame shift in three days, and he didn't believe any team could learn it in that time.

Well, Holton accepted the job and started to work. From dawn 'til dusk he drilled those Alexander boys. Three days of it, teaching them new signals, and a wholly foreign attack.

Mosley's knowledge of the old Alexander signals was, of course, of no use to him now. He would have to trust to luck.

Game time arrived. Using that deceptive Notre Dame shift, which completely baffled the Rusk college gridders, the Alexander outfit reeled off a touchdown in the first few minutes of play and kicked the goal. Score Alexander 7, Rusk 0.

Alexander never made another touchdown. The Rusk boys finally got used to the shift. But its effectiveness had already been demonstrated. True the Alexander bunch looked ragged with those new plays. They had not mastered them, in the three days. Far from it. But they baffled the Rusk boys with them in the first few moments, and that, apparently, was all they wanted.

The game ended 7 to 0 in favor of Alexander.

Holton went his way and Mosley went his. A few years later Mosley landed in Wichita Falls, and so did Holton. The two met one day. They recognized each other, but neither could call the other's name, nor remember where they had met.

"Say, don't I know you," quoth Mosley, and Holton quoth the same thing.

"Well, let's see," said Mosley, and he went over the high points of his career, telling what schools he had coached at. And Holton did the same thing.

Mosley finally reached the point where he coached at Rusk college. Their faces lighted. Mosley remembered, now, where he had seen Holton, the boy who whipped him with three days of coaching.

The Baseball "Programme"

Yesterday, via the Canadian and U. S. mail, I received the "programme" of the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues, to be held in Montreal, Canada, Dec. 3-5, and which Prexy Bill Huff, Secretary Guy Airey, and President Gardner will attend.

Well, in addition to misspelling program, the "programme" is not a program. There is no mention anywhere in the folder of a program of meetings to be followed, or anything like that. I glance through the folder, and lo, what strikes mine eyes!

Well, here is what strikes mine eyes:

"Our visitors from the states will enjoy Golden Wedding, pure rye whisky, an American Pure Rye Whisky, rich in body and mellow in flavor—distilled from the finest grains and matured for years in charred oak casks—Bottled in Bond in its natural purity straight from the wood under government supervision. Strength 100 American proof."

And then I am informed that Old Log Cabin is a straight Bourbon whisky, and that Walker's Canadian Club is "sold the world over."

Oh sing to me, sweet Montreal
Of whiskys fine you sell;
But say they sold all o'er the world?
Likell, likell, likell.

So the "programme" of the association apparently, then, is this:

10 a. m.—Golden Wedding.
10:01 a. m.—Old Log Cabin.
10:02 a. m.—Canadian Club.

And so on, as one spirit leads to another, and finally puts the gay spirits to slumber.

SENIORS FACE FINAL GAME

Squad Takes Last Grind And Awaits Sandies

As a tribute to 15 members of the Coyote squad who will graduate at the end of this school year, many of whom will play high school football for the last time Thursday in the Amarillo game here, the Wichita Falls High school today will hold what is expected to be the biggest pep rally of the year.

The rally will be dedicated to the outgoing members of the squad, and will mark the last opportunity the student body will have to give its team a resounding slap on the back before the Thanksgiving day clash with the champion-bound Sandies.

The rally has been arranged by Miss Davida Olinger and Howard Bunch, sponsors of the cheer squad, and Clarence Ashton and Dorothy Hoffman, cheer leaders. It will be held in the school auditorium beginning promptly at 9:30 o'clock.

Guests on Program

Several speakers will be heard, including two from the following business men who have been sent special invitations to attend the rally: William E. Huff, president of the Spudders, Carter McGregor, J. Wilkie Talbert, Wiley Robertson, Luther Hoffman, Paul Scott, Frank Haley, Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of schools, P. B. Cox and W. W. Brown, secretary of the school board.

Other brief talks will be made by Coach Barry Holton, two Coyote players who will be named at the rally, and two students who will be chosen as spokesmen of the student body.

Music will be furnished by the high school band under the direction of Leo Underwood.

Of the 15 Coyotes to leave the high school gridiron for good after Thursday's game, only one, Chick Holden, guard, is a letter man from last year, and only six are on the regular team. These six are Holden, Danny Cox, quarterback; Lester Daniels, tackle; C. L. King, center; Harlan Ray, halfback; and John White, fullback.

Other members of the squad to graduate are Wesley Ferguson, Elvis Goodman, Allan Gough, Earl Harbes, Merwin Hudgins, Ogden Kelly, Cleis Keyes, R. W. Parrish and Hamlin Rugeley.

It is regarded as almost a certainty that most of the above will see action in Thursday's game.

Managers Graduate

In addition to losing the Coyotes named, the school next year will have to look around for new managers, as Billy Jenkins and Dick Morrison, this year's managers, will follow the 15 Coyotes up the graduation trail.

The Coyotes Tuesday bruised their muscles for the last time on the hard training field behind the school. Coach Holton sent his charges through a hard scrimmage, and at the end put the fate of his team in the hands of the football gods. He will send a comparatively weak outfit against the Sandies Thursday, and a victory is beyond the dreams of the most credulous campus poet, but the mentor announced his Pack would fight to the last ditch and try to give the Sandies some real entertainment.

The Coyote B team took another lacing, this time from the Iowa Park Hawks, as the first string team worked out. The score was 13 to 0.

Dartmouth Gridders Arrive at Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25. (AP)—The Dartmouth college football team arrived here today from Hanover, N. H., to play Stanford university at Stanford Saturday.

The party numbers 65, including the players.

Georgia Fullback Leads Nation as Scorer

By GEORGE DILLON
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 25.—They call him "Jack the Ripper" and he's the nation's leading scorer.

Built along the lines of a halfback, with the speed of a deer and the strength of a bull, young Jack Roberts, of Georgia university, pounds through tackle or sweeps an end with equal ability and result.

This alert fullback from Albany, Ga., who weighs 180 pounds and stands five feet nine inches from the ground, has stamped his cleats in opponents' touchdown turf 11 times in four games.

His 66 points rank him as America's collegiate touchdown king—at least for October.

As a sophomore last year, Roberts understudied Benny Rothstein, but as a junior he comes into his own. His only weakness has been his defensive play and his habit of fumbling in his eagerness to be off.

He has the knack of spinning and whirling about just as a would-be tackler dives at him. Roberts finds that this system works better for him than the stop-go tactics employed by other successful backs.

He's the siege gun of a mighty Georgia offensive which has bowled over Yale and North Carolina on successive Saturdays. Just as Albie Booth peps up the Yale attack, so does the Georgia offense sparkle as Roberts enters a game.

He is Harry Mehre's ace card and rarely does he miss touchdown bids.

"Jack the Ripper" ripped through Mercer for four touchdowns, counted three against Oglethorpe and North Carolina and bucked over Georgia's winning score against Yale.

In 64 rushes this year he has gained 280 yards for an average of 5.9 yards a try.

BUCKS PLAY RANGER FRIDAY

Breckenridge Doesn't Want Title on 'Silver Platter'

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Nov. 25.—The Breckenridge Buckaroos are not "in" out here in the oil belt district race yet.

The Buckaroos must yet defeat Ranger on Friday of this week to claim the Oil Belt title.

The championship has already been handed to the Buckaroos on the theory that Cisco has played one game less than Breckenridge. As a matter of fact, Cisco has played one game less than the Buckaroos but the Loboes are due to make up this lost game by eventually playing Mineral Wells, the game which was never scheduled on the Lobo card, providing the final outcome of the race depends upon this one tilt.

Breckenridge school officials have taken the attitude that the Buckaroos do not desire the district title unless all games have been played and every team given a chance to grab the title. It is pointed out that Cisco did not intentionally fail to schedule a game with Mineral Wells and it is the opinion of local school heads that Cisco should be given the right to play their full nine-game schedule if the Mineral Wells game is needed by Cisco to throw them into a tie with the Breckenridge Buckaroos.

If Abilene defeats Cisco Thursday there will be no need for the Loboes to seek a game with Mineral Wells. And if the Breckenridge Buckaroos defeat Ranger Friday, Cisco could not gain anything by playing the Mountaineers.

But there is one thing certain in the minds of the local school officials, the Buckaroos do not want the district title handed to them on a silver platter and if it came to a show down, Breckenridge would give Cisco a fair chance at the district crown.

Wedding of Former Kansas Star Planned

CONCORDIA, Kan., Nov. 25. (AP)—E. R. (Monk) Edwards, high school coach here, professional baseball player and former all-around athlete at the Kansas State Agricultural college, will be married Friday at Glen Elder to Miss Josephine Keef, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Keef. Miss Keef also is a graduate of the Kansas State Agricultural college.

Edwards is under contract to play with San Antonio of the Texas league next year.

Aggies May Be Fighting for Their Coach's Job on Thanksgiving Day

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 25.—The Southwest conference has set some kind of a record by going through the last two football seasons with the same set of coaches, but those of the tutoring fraternity may be assured the situation is too good to last. There already are active rumors of one change, and there might be more.

It is no state secret that Matty Bell is occupying an uneasy seat at Texas A. & M. In the two years since Matty quit Texas Christian and took over the more lucrative post at College Station, he has succeeded in winning just two conference games while losing seven. The average Aggies alumnus can work up little enthusiasm over that kind of a record, even though it is patent to the unbiased observer that this year, at least, Bell has been very short of football material.

Of course, if the Aggies should do a comeback Thursday and trim the Texas Longhorns in their traditional battle, at Austin, that might be different. The 1930 season would then have been fairly successful, despite four previous conference losses.

Among those most prominently mentioned as possible heirs to the College Station job is Biff Jones, former Army coach. Bell's contract at Aggieland still has another year to run, but it is reported that the alumni hope to make some sort of cash settlement in the event it is decided to switch coaches before the next grid season.

The fact that Bell's eleven might be fighting for the mentor's job Thursday recalls that the Texas Longhorns, whom they will oppose, have done their coach a lot of good lately. A month ago the wolves were hot on Clyde Littlefield's heels and gaining every minute. When the Steers lost to Rice it looked like it was all over. Then the Longhorns suddenly got right and whipped Southern Methodist, Baylor and Texas Christian—Bang, bang, bang—like that. And now they couldn't pry Littlefield loose with a 10-foot pole. It's a merry whirl if the coach doesn't weaken.

A patent dress shirt has been brought out in London with sides of the stiff front unattached to the body of the shirt so that the wearer may put his hands underneath to insert the studs.

COLLEGE TEAMS MEET OLD FOES

Traditional Battles on Turkey Day Program

By L. S. CAMERON
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. — Intersectional competition and traditional rivalries will mark this week's college football outburst, which occurs on two days, Thanksgiving and Saturday.

The venerable Penn-Cornell battle will be resumed at Philadelphia on the holiday. This may be an even contest as each of the teams has a creditable record for the season.

Another old eastern rivalry will be renewed in the Columbia-Syracuse game here in which the Lions, after a nearly disastrous season, will be rated on nearly-even terms against the theoretically stronger up-state eleven.

The southland is studded with contests of interesting possibilities. The best of these are Tennessee-Kentucky, V. M. I.-V. P. I., Alabama-Georgia, Duke-W. & J., Georgia Tech-Florida.

West Virginia and Oregon State will move from East and West respectively to play at Soldier field, Chicago, in a charity intersectional game.

Three intersectionals of real consequence are billed for Saturday. Dartmouth is traveling West to play Stanford at Palo Alto. Dartmouth is unbeaten but was tied by Yale. Stanford lost to U. S. C., and was tied by Minnesota, but enjoyed healthy victories elsewhere.

Army is also traveling West, but will stop at Chicago to play Notre Dame. Like Dartmouth, Army has been tied only by Yale. Of Notre Dame nothing need be written.

Washington State's husky eleven is coming to Philadelphia to play Villanova. The coast team has a record of no defeats or ties after meeting many a worthy opponent. Villanova, with several defeats already sustained, would seem to have little chance against the Westerners.

Two other intersectionals for Saturday are Drake vs. Temple at Philadelphia, and Detroit vs. Georgetown at Detroit.

FEW GAMES REMAIN ON BIG TEN SLATE

CHICAGO, Nov. 25. (UP)—Football in the Big Ten conference has been written into the record books and only a handful of games remain to be decided during the closing week of the middle western season.

The charity games scheduled at Soldier field for the benefit of Shriner hospitals for crippled children head the Thanksgiving day program. Oregon State and West Virginia will meet in the collegiate feature with all-star teams of former Notre Dame and Northwestern players clashing in a preliminary contest.

Two intersectional games furnish Saturday's only competition. Notre Dame's unbeaten eleven will meet Army before an expected crowd of more than 100,000 spectators at Soldier field with Detroit entertaining Georgetown at Detroit.

Notre Dame will be a decided favorite, largely because of its great record and the success habit which Rockne has instilled in his teams, but Army has an excellent chance to break the Irish winning streak which now has extended to 17 games.

The Soldier field Thanksgiving day program, which is expected to raise more than $100,000 for charity, promises two great games. Both West Virginia and Oregon State have rallied after weak starts and are rated on even terms.

Vote Names Terry And Cronin Most Valuable Players

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25. (AP)—William H. Terry, first baseman of the New York Giants, and Joseph Cronin, shortstop of the Washington Senators, were the most valuable players in the National and American leagues, respectively, for the 1930 season, according to vote of a committee of sport writers in all the major league cities in an annual poll by the Sporting News, of St. Louis. Results of the poll were announced today.

Cronin received 52 points out of a possible 64 and Terry was accorded 47. Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis Cardinals was a close second behind Terry in the National with 43 points and Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs ranked third with 41. Al Simmons of the Philadelphia Athletics, who won the Sporting News' award in 1929, was second to Cronin in the American league with 46 points. Charley Gehringer, Detroit second baseman, finished third with 31 points.

Football Autographed By Hoover to Be Auctioned

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 25. (AP)—Between the halves of the Army-Navy football game in New York Dec. 13, a football autographed by President Hoover and all the members of the Naval academy at West Point football squads will be auctioned, the proceeds to go to charity.

The announcement was made today by Lieutenant Commander Frederick G. Reinicke, graduate manager of athletics at the naval academy, who in company with Capt. Henry D. Cooke, director of athletics, and Roland R. Thomas, treasurer of the Navy Athletic association, returned today from New York with the ball.

With a choice spot saved for the signature of President Hoover, the West Pointers have already signed their names. The regular Navy players were to sign the ball today before it is taken to Washington for the president's signature.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (AP)—A somewhat irregular opening in cotton, due to circulation of a few additional December notices, was followed by rallies on covering and trade buying today, but demand tapered off later and the market reached the lowest level of the day in late trading under Southern selling and realizing. March sold off from 11.19 to 11.09 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at a net decline of 2 to 7 points.

The renewed weakness of the wheat market may have been a contributing factor on the afternoon decline in cotton.

Liverpool cables said that local and continental buying in the market there had been supplied by realizing at the advance and reported moderate sales of cotton cloths to the British home trade and the continent.

Exports today 45,284, making 3,058,778 so far this season. Port receipts 66,776. U. S. port stocks 4,071,870.

Futures closed barely steady, 2 to 7 points lower; spots quiet; middling 10.80.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25. (AP)—After ruling quiet nearly all day, cotton experienced a little spurt of activity near the end, and prices which had at one time been 9 to 10 points above the previous close eased off 12 to 15 points from the highs and closed at the day's lowest the general market showing net losses of 4 to 6 points.

The early advance was attributed to firmer stocks as well as favorable cables and the prompt stoppage of additional December notices issued during the early morning.

The market ruled steady during the early afternoon, keeping near the highs, but trading was narrow owing to the impending holiday and the approach of the time for the government's final official estimate of the crop.

In the late trading the market turned easy on pre-holiday liquidation and in sympathy with easier stocks and wheat and all the active months made new lows with December at 10.72 or 15 points below the highs and the other active months down 13 to 14 points from the highs. The close was at the bottom with December showing a net loss for the day of 6 points, January 4 and March 6.

Early Gains Dissolved in Reaction After Opening Show of Strength

NEW YORK, Nov. 25, (US)—The movement of prices on the stock exchange today was, in a general way, the reverse of the previous day. Commencing with a display of strength which carried various leaders into new high ground on the recovery, the list reacted from the highs in rather vigorous fashion and closed with net losses on the day. The selling pressure came from profit-taking in those issues which permitted such liquidation and also from renewal of active bearish operations. The latter were encouraged to some extent by the failure of such leaders as Steel common, American Can and others to maintain their new high levels. External developments were of mixed influence. Announcement of the New York bank merger, whose significance is not yet fully appreciated, was offset to some extent by additional domestic bank failures and several in Europe. Wheat prices were under pressure and closed lower, while the revived reports of Steel price advances failed to have much influence on the stock market.

In a general sense, the market seemed to lack that powerful and intelligent guidance which had been its most prominent friend-winner for the past fortnight. Whether the cessation of aggressive constructive sponsorship coincided with expiration of the emergency created by the banking situation remains to be witnessed. However, certain powerful bear cliques resumed activities and their pressure was evident in various parts of the list. Montgomery Ward was sold by a Boston group which believes its nearby prospects have been fully discounted in its rise from the low. Canada was also sold by a bear group.

Steel common failed to get above 150—although it attained 149¾—and this, too, was utilized as an excuse for selling. Considerable covering took place in Westinghouse Electric, particularly for the account of one very large operator. Buying of this stock, however, continued for the account of a leading interest who had been one of the largest individual factors in the bull market.

Some of the rail shares moved off rather easily, New York Central reacting to a level where its yield again is over 6 per cent, a yield which on the last decline in the stock to current levels brought in substantial investment demand. The motion picture issues sold off on persistent pressure of offerings induced by the government victory in the "trust" action, although the industry for many months has not been engaged in practices against which the government protested. Some of the selling of the motion picture stocks resulted from forecasts that theater attendance next year will be lower than at present, although upon what basis such estimates are made is difficult to ascertain. Loew's met considerable profit-taking and sold off over three points despite declaration of the $1 extra dividend. The stock's yield is close to 7 per cent.

Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck both had substantial setbacks from their highest prices, but the buying of these stocks is for the account of well-informed interests, who are not concerned with immediate prospects, but rather are impressed by the longer-term outlook. Despite attempts to conceal the negotiations, there is reason for believing that the oft-reported talk between the two companies, seeking a consolidation, has been resumed.

A director of Sears-Roebuck disclaimed any knowledge of the merger talk, but a director close to the banking sponsors of Montgomery Ward, declined to make any comment. It is known that Samuel Rosenwald, chairman of Sears-Roebuck, has been in New York for several days. The other mercantile stocks sold off in sympathy with the mail order issue, with persistent demand on reactions in Woolworth, Macy and the other leading merchandise issues.

Some selling of oil shares was induced by knowledge that a downward adjustment in California oil prices is pending, to bring them closer in line with Mid-Continent quotations. Railway equipment issues, long dormant, were helped by placing of substantial new orders, particularly for locomotives. The New York Central asked for bids for 50 locomotives, involving expenditure of $5,000,000, the largest order of its kind this year. Additional railroad reports for October served only to emphasize the sharp decline in revenues suffered by the carriers.

Consummation of the New York banking merger was considered as of paramount importance, especially in those quarters familiar with the true state of affairs which had existed. The powerful sponsorship which the market had enjoyed during the latest stages of the negotiations, if based entirely on this situation, no longer is needed, so that the market for the time being must drift for itself, with the free swing of speculative forces.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25. (AP)—Fair demand at advancing values was reported on the cash grain market here today, but all other classes were slow and prices continued largely nominal and a matter of agreement between seller and buyer. Light offerings helped the tone of the market. No. 1 hard wheat of any protein was probably worth around 83@84c, basis delivered Texas common points.

Bids and offers of the trade ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Corn—No. 2 mixed 85@86c; No. 2 white 90@91c; No. 2 yellow 89@90c.

Oats—No. 2 red 47½@49½c; No. 3 white delivered Texas group one 46¾@47¼c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per 100 pounds $1.30@1.33; No. 2 kaffir $1.24@1.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 25. (AP)—Fading of buying power helped make grain values average lower today. Transient rallies ran against enlarged selling pressure in all the pits, and the day's bottom was reached just before the close.

Wheat advances scored heretofore this week appeared to have checked demand for the time being at least, especially in view of a late announcement of 7,873,000 bushels increase of the world's visible supply.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled ⅝@1⅛c a bushels lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1⅛@1⅝c off, oats unchanged to ⅛c down, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

Enlargement of the world's visible stock of wheat by nearly 8,000,000 bushels for the week came in rather striking contrast with 3,883,000 bushels decrease a year ago, and the final setback followed receipts of the figures.

Advices subsequently that steamers were unable to obtain wheat cargoes at Russian Black Sea ports failed as much of a stimulus for friends of higher prices. An erroneous report of a sharp rise in wheat values at Buenos Aires, however, induced a temporary upturn in connection with drouth news from South Argentina.

Corn traders took their cue mostly from the action of wheat. Oats displayed considerable firmness at times on account of reports of liberal sales having been made for shipment into districts which suffered from drouth.

For the most part, provisions went lower with hogs.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Nov. 25. (US)—A definite settlement of the Canadian problem for a short time at least, it is felt by wheat traders would do the market a great deal of good. Even the assurance that loans would be guaranteed until Premier Bennett's return, when the Dominion government will take up the question, appears to have stimulated export demand on the theory that prices will not suffer from any severe declines for the present.

Similarly, a more definite understanding of the Russian situation, either favorable or unfavorable, would probably be a tonic to the market. The present run of contradictory reports serve to unsettle the market, whereas definite news is quickly discounted one way or the other, leaving the market free to reflect new influences.

Recent rain and snow have supplied Nebraska with plenty of moisture for present needs, the weekly report of that state says. Winter wheat, which had been in need of additional moisture, is now said to be well supplied.

In addition to the strong cash markets and prospects for smaller receipts, coarse grains have the stimulus of an improved Eastern demand to encourage buying.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25 (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit was featured by a fairly broad demand for better grades of fed steers and yearlings at strong to 25c higher rates. Finished steers with weight sold to an especially good advantage. Choice yearlings at seven points scored $13.50, and in Chicago 1456-pound beeves realized $12.25. Well conditioned 1431-pound fed Texas steers at Kansas City brought $10.50. Stocker and feeder classes were comparatively scarce with prices mostly steady. Aggregate receipts estimated at 39,000 were 2,500 more than a week ago and 3,000 short of the corresponding day last year.

Fat lambs were firm to unevenly higher with several points showing upturns of 25c or more. Matured killing classes of sheep were little changed. Shippers and city butchers in Chicago purchased a few choice lambs at $8.50@8.75, while at Omaha fed Western lambs topped at $8.00. Supply approximately 51,200, against 28,511 last Tuesday and 50,284 a year ago.

Hogs found a slow outlet at weak to 25c lower rates with most markets showing losses of 15@25c. The extreme top of $8.40 was realized on early rounds at St. Louis. Total offerings of around 91,000 were 32,000 less than a week ago and 35,000 under a year ago.

Kerr County Oil Strike Reported

Reports here indicate that the Evans & Gant discovery, No. 1 Jeff Love, in southwestern Kerr county, southwest Texas, was one of the outstanding strikes of the Mid-Continent field.

Fire followed the finding of gas and oil pay at 3374 feet, total depth, but was extinguished after two days time, and a new derrick is now going up to permit the further testing of the sand, believed to be the Edwards. The well is situated on the Edwards plateau.

Peerless Oil Producing company of Tulsa, has a big block that penetrates the Evans & Gant area on three sides, being in Kimball, Edwards, Bandera, Real and Sutton counties.

Geologists say that the structure there, according to surface calculations, is larger than the Yates area of Pecos county, but it remains for the drill to tell the rest of the story.

The late Thomas B. Slick also had a big block in the same sector, as do many other Oklahoma and Texas oil concerns.

Foy Reports On Traffic Meeting

The corporation commission of Oklahoma entered a proposal to the Interstate Commerce commission in the reopened hearings on the consolidated Southwestern cases and the Texas differential case at Tulsa Monday that the entire state be placed in zone No. 2, which would result in a considerably higher scale of freight rates than now in effect in Texas, according to Dudley B. Foy, traffic manager of the chamber of commerce here, who returned Tuesday from the hearing.

The hearing in Tulsa opened Monday and will probably last through Wednesday, it was said, and is the third session of the reopened hearings before the commission. The first hearing was held in St. Louis a short time ago, followed by the second hearing in Dallas last week. About 60 traffic men, including both railroad and industrial, were in attendance at the Tulsa meet. Other hearings of the commission will be held in New Orleans, opening Dec. 1, and at Galveston Jan. 7.

The proposal of the Oklahoma commission requests a considerably lower freight level than that requested by the Texas Industrial Traffic league during the Dallas hearing, when it was suggested that the entire Southwest be placed in zone No. 3 of the Western trunk line territory to conform freight rates in this section with those territories having practically the same economic situation as the Southwest.

Mr. Foy was accompanied to and from the Tulsa hearing by D. H. Berry, manager of the city board of development of San Angelo.

Home-Grown Produce Meets Ready Sale

Many citizens of this community took advantage of an alluring display of home-grown produce in the old J. C. Penney building on Eighth street Tuesday to lay in store choice supplies for the Thanksgiving dinner.

Huge dressed turkeys, heavy fruit cakes, dark puddings, country eggs, butter and other home-made foods comprised the stock placed on sale by farm women of the county under the direction of Miss Ethel Louise Webb, county home demonstration agent. Aside from sales made Tuesday, orders were taken for the delivery of many turkeys and other items on Thursday, it was said.

Clubs participating in the cooperative market represent the Barwise, Beaver Creek, Bowie, Hardin, Pleasant Valley, Valley View, City View and Allendale communities.

The percentage of white school teachers with college educations in North Carolina has tripled in eight years.

CLUES FAIL IN VALISE MURDER

Dismembered Victim Still Unidentified

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (INS)—Twenty-four hours of intensive police work today had failed to bring about a solution of New York's "suitcase murder mystery"—one of the most gruesome crimes in the city's history.

Detectives have been unable to establish the identity of the man whose dismembered arms and legs were found in an abandoned suitcase in the doorway of a store in the lower east side, a short distance from the river. The torso was later found, wedged in a trunk, floating on the river. The head was missing.

The police today dragged the river in search of a bundle after they had taken a man into custody who admitted he had thrown, at the suggestion of another, a weighted valise into the river on Sunday night. The man apprehended by the police is Levi Bacon, a negro janitor. Bacon said that Sunday night he was walking the river front when an automobile stopped, a man leaned out and said: "Here, mister, throw this (the valise) into the river." Bacon said he did.

The man in the automobile pressed a coin into his hands, according to Bacon. The automobile disappeared in the darkness as Bacon hurled the suitcase into the river.

Bacon was taken to the morgue by the police today to see the severed parts of the victim of the murder. Bacon could tell nothing that would help establish identification of the victim.

Whatta Man!

LONDON—A will filed here recently revealed that one Irishman named Doherty was a glutton for punishment during his life. He settled years ago in Lagos, West Africa, and his will, disposing of $3,000,000, was divided up between his 16 wives and 50 children which he acquired there. Each wife received a handsome home in Lagos.

REALTORS TO AID CAMPAIGN

Members Pledge Help For Better Business

Renewed pledges of cooperation in the better business campaign here were declared Tuesday noon by members of the Wichita Falls Real Estate board in its weekly meeting at the Kemp hotel.

Resolutions promising the endeavor of local realtors both as individuals and as an organization toward accomplishing the objects of the current drive were adopted unanimously on the motion of J. M. Bland.

Aided Drive

Following statements by Roscoe Staton, president of the board, and J. C. Mytinger, chairman of the better-business campaign, that real estate men here were considered generally not to have been active enough in the drive, Mr. Bland expressed his belief that they have given a much fuller cooperation than has been recognized. Many local realtors have urged their clients to make alterations and repairs on property, but have not reported all such cases to the campaign committee, he said.

A. L. Huey, Fred Cone and R. S. Tucker reported having persuaded various of their clients to have work done recently on their properties.

Discussion of the unemployment problem by W. S. Curlee featured the hour's discussion. He stressed the fact that most of those who are out of work want jobs rather than charity, and that some of them are being driven to desperation by the needs of their families.

"These fellows don't make any bones about it," Mr. Curlee said, "they say frankly that if they can not get work, they will procure food for their families in some way, even if they have to go to jail for it." Provision of employment through completion of residence improvement now, Mr. Mytinger added, is a far better program than hiring a policeman to put unemployed persons in jail.

Theaters Criticized

Criticism of the Publix theaters also entered into Tuesday's discussion, following closely upon reports from Washington that major motion picture companies were held by the supreme court of the United States Monday to be in violation of the anti-trust laws in their present practices.

Speaking of the entertainment now provided here, and of the admission prices charged, A. L. Huey said, "we pay the same price here as other cities for half the entertainment, and for entertainment of inferior quality."

Mr. Huey proposed that a movement be inaugurated to utilize the Memorial auditorium for the presentation of "worthwhile entertainment for an admission charge of 50 cents." He urged organization of a 30-piece orchestra as part of the plan.

School and College Notes

By MARGARET FLEMING

Thanksgiving holidays begin at the high school and college Wednesday afternoon at 3:20 o'clock and will continue throughout the week-end, according to information given Tuesday by S. H. Rider, principal.

Thanksgiving Program

High school and college students were admitted to the regular assembly Tuesday morning for a special Thanksgiving program for small change, or some bit of staple groceries. Girl Reserve members were in charge of the entertainment, with Sadie Shain, chairman of the service committee, presiding. A short skit, "What have I to be Thankful for," was given by Aaron Kruger and Joe Witherspoon, and Katherine Ashford gave a Thanksgiving reading. The program was under the direction of Miss Juanita Kinsey, head of the dramatic department.

Senate Meeting

Herman Porterfield, newly-elected president of the Junior college senate, led the group in a round table discussion of "Thanksgiving and Its Meaning Today" at the regular meeting of the club Tuesday evening. Numerous topics, including the original Thanksgiving, and its contrast with that of today were discussed during the hour.

Several tryout talks will be made at the next meeting, it was announced Tuesday.

Here's Your Chance to Win $5 and Theater Tickets if You Know George

How well do you know George Bancroft's screen characterizations?

The popular portrayer of he-man characters has appeared in four outstanding pictures in the past, with the particular grimace he wore for each one appearing above. The Strand theater is offering readers of The Record News an opportunity to win $5 in cash and guest tickets by naming the title of the four productions represented above, and writing in not more than 150 words their own idea of the best picture Bancroft has ever made. The first best will receive $5 in cash, the next five best two guest tickets each, the next ten best one guest ticket each.

Picture number one, from left to right, shows Bancroft as a laughing giant who ruled lawless men. Number two shows him in the role of a rough and rousing seaman. Number three as the master of money, slave of love—ruthless in both. The fourth picture brought him prominence when he appeared in a modern gangster picture.

The contest, sponsored by the Strand theater, is in celebration of George Bancroft's newest picture, "Derelict," which opens at the Strand theater Friday. Answers to the contest should be left or mailed to the Strand manager not later than Friday noon, Nov. 28. Correct answer and best letter will determine the winners.

The first prize in each will be $125, it was announced, second prize $75, and third $50. It was decided also to offer $100 in prizes for the best bale of alfalfa exhibited at the Wichita county fair next fall.

AIR MAIL LINE BELIEVED NEAR

Boswell Hopes for Early Start of Service

Wichita Falls will have the advantages of a combined air mail and passenger service by the summer of 1931, according to the prediction made at the Southwestern conference on traffic and aviation held in Dallas Monday which John Boswell, manager of the chamber of commerce here, attended.

The conference was sponsored by the United States chamber of commerce and a large representation of chamber of commerce officials were present from seven states of the Southwest. The United States department of commerce, the United States chamber of commerce, aviation companies of the nation and the United States Aeronautics chamber of commerce were also represented.

The keynote of the meet, it was said, was the possibility and probability of securing feeder air mail and passenger lines over the entire Southwest for a tie-up with the transcontinental and trunk lines. The consensus of opinion indicated that the inauguration of these feeder lines would start not later than the middle of 1931. It was agreed that the first necessity to bring about such a service would be to strengthen the main lines now existing.

Traffic matters brought up included the problem of uniform traffic regulations throughout the entire United States. It was pointed out that no two cities in the country had traffic regulations which conformed entirely with those of any other city.

LUNCHEON POSTPONED

The business council luncheon scheduled for Friday, Nov. 28, has been postponed for one week, according to an announcement Tuesday from the chamber of commerce office.

The postponement is made necessary, it was said, due to the nearness of the date to Thanksgiving.
