Ask Us

Q.-In Snyder, will trick or treating be observed on Saturday, Oct. 30, or Sunday, Oct. 31?

A.-No one can control when gobblins go from house to house other than parents. Snyder Police Chief Lannie Lee, however, recommends that traditional Halloween event be observed on Saturday. The police department will once again give out their treats on Saturday night.

In Brief

'Grapes'

The film, "The Grapes of Wrath," will be shown from 1-4 p.m. Sunday in Scurry County Museum.

The film is being shown in conjunction with the "Official Images: New Deal Photography" exhibit on display through Oct. 31.

Reception

Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary will host a community reception from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Sunday welcoming Dr. Mark L. Weaver, general surgeon, and Kathleen M. Weaver, orthopedic surgeon.

The reception will be at their office, Snyder Surgical Center, 5305 Trinity Blvd.

Challenge

Snyder High School's academic challenge team will compete against Munday High School in first-round action at 5:30 p.m. Sunday on Channel 12.

Early release

Snyder ISD teachers will participate in an early release day Monday. Students will be dismissed at 2 p.m. and buses will run their regular routes.

Teachers will meet on their respective campuses to continue work on the campus improvement plan for the 1993-94 school year.

Genealogical

Scurry County Genealogical Society will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the county library. Following the business meeting, members will help newcomers and visitors who wish to begin research on their families.

New business in Snyder will employ 25 persons

By Casey Westenrieder
SDN Staff Writer

A growing business and a keen eye for its need is bringing to Snyder a much needed commodity during a declining oil economy — jobs.

Gaylon Boyd and Mike Kerley, both Snyder natives and brothers-in-law, said they realized a need for a centralized distribution center for medical supplies and are opening a warehouse in Snyder on Monday.

Boyd and Kerley together have been selling medical supplies to nursing homes for about one year, and they recently talked to their Florida supplier who agreed that a regional warehouse for medical supplies would be beneficial.

Boyd said the warehouse planning has only been in the works for about two weeks, but the company plans to have 25 people hired by Monday to start production.

The warehouse will serve a broad area, covering "everything west of the Mississippi," Boyd said.

"We already have 20 sales people in four states selling for us," he said.

He also said the company, General Medical, anticipates selling about 10,000 boxes of supplies per month at first, and hopefully will increase.

The boxes will include customized kits of medical supplies, which General Medical will package and distribute.

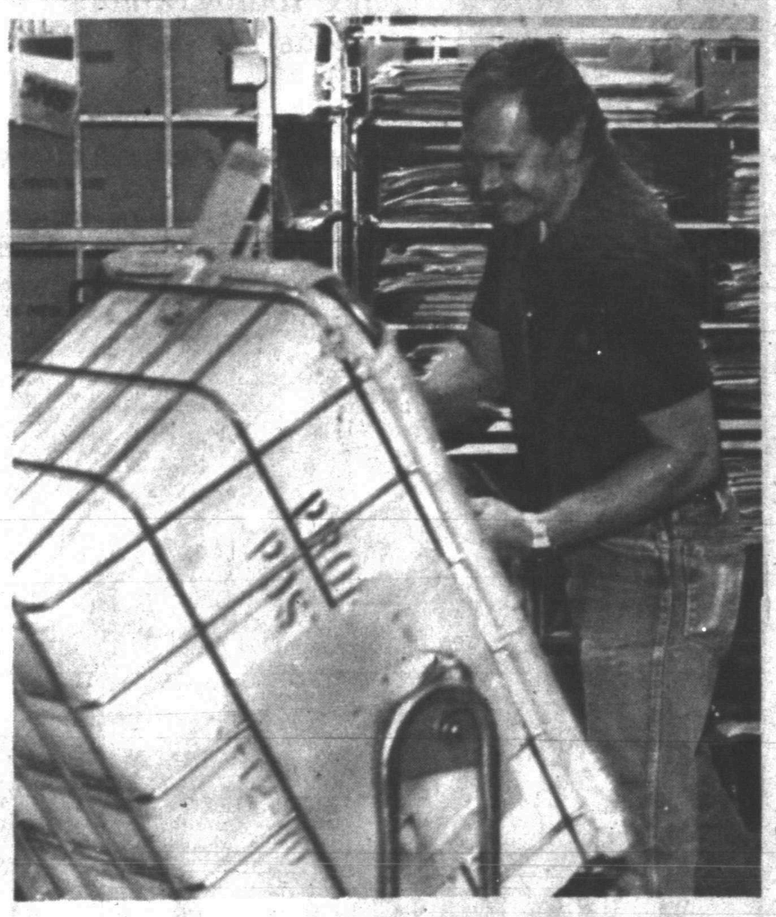
As far as expansion, Kerley said the medical business is the "field to be in," and as business picks up, General Medical will expand.

The two Snyder businessmen said besides living here, they chose Snyder as the spot for the warehouse because it is centrally located, it has a ready workforce and it is non-union.

Snyder Chamber of Commerce president-elect Pearlene Stewart said Boyd and Kerley asked for help finding a place to open the warehouse, and they chose the former Munden's Discount Center building in the Snyder Shopping Center as the site.

"The chamber is being really, really helpful," said Boyd in getting the warehouse started. "Pearlene Stewart and Ricky Fritz have helped a lot."

Prior to getting into the medical supply field, Kerley was an employee of Halliburton in Snyder and Boyd was an insurance company representative.



MAIL TOUR STOP — Terry Kubena, a postal clerk at Snyder's post office, sorts the mail into bins ready for different destinations. Kubena's job is just one facet of the post office ready for inspection at Friday's open house, the culmination of a week-long observance. The open house will last from 9 a.m. until 11 a.m. so visitors can become familiar with postal services. (SDN Staff Photo)

Crop walk is Sunday

The sixth annual CROP Walk, sponsored by Scurry County Ministerial Alliance, will be held Sunday.

Walkers will meet at the courthouse at 1:30 p.m. The walk, five kilometers to Tiger Stadium, will begin at 2 o'clock.

Over the years, the walk has raised thousands of dollars to aid victims of natural disasters around the world, including the United States.

Monies also go to help develop the economies of third world countries.

Twenty-five percent of the funds stay in Scurry County to help the hungry through the Gentle Dove food ministries.

Walkers take pledges for each kilometer walked and turn in the money after the walk is completed.

Groups, churches or individuals interested in participating should contact Dr. Tim Griffin at the First Christian Church, 573-6115 or 573-6647.

Churches participating are St. Elizabeth Catholic Church, Church of the Nazarene, Apostolic Faith Church, First Baptist Church, First United Methodist Church, Trinity United Methodist Church, First Christian Church, Gentle Dove Ministries, Christian Fellowship, First Presbyterian Church, New Hope Baptist Church and Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Red ribbons target drugs

Texas' War on Drugs 1993 Red Ribbon Campaign comes to Snyder Monday to begin a week-long observance.

During the week students, faculty and staff in the Snyder public schools will wear red ribbons furnished by the Snyder Lions Club to present a unified and visible commitment to promote a drug-free community and life style.

Snyder's Council for Alcohol and Drug Abuse will be furnishing posters and instructional material to Snyder school students during the week.

The theme for this year's Texas Campaign goes beyond the symbolism of the red ribbons, organizers say. It asks families, friends and neighbors to pledge to be drug free.

Last year, more than 12 million people in Texas were involved in the campaign.

Airport zones county topic

An outside county audit, appointments to a new airport zoning board and disbursement of funds to county schools are items on Scurry County commissioners court agenda beginning at 10 a.m. Monday.

Commissioners will consider a contract for services with Mason, Warner & Company for the 1993 audit.

The Lubbock company has done the Scurry County audit since 1991, when the firm offered commissioners a three-year contract.

The contract between commissioners and Mason, Warner & Company allows the court to negotiate the fee for services. Commissioners had tabled the item last week.

Commissioners are expected to nominate two members to a new airport zoning board.

Last week, County Judge Bob Doolittle asked for nominations to the new board which has been recommended by the Texas Department of Transportation.

The zoning board will be made up of two members appointed by the county and two by the city. The four members will then select a fifth member.

The board will regulate size and height of buildings around the airport.

Commissioners are expected to approve the disbursement of the County Available School Fund to three county school districts.

County Treasurer Charlie Bell said the amount in the fund is $124,000. Snyder ISD is expected to receive 90 percent of the money, while Hermleigh and Ira will get five 5 percent each.

In other business, Bell is expected to present the county quarterly financial report.

Post office plans behind scene tour

Mailing a letter is a lot more than putting a stamp on an envelope and dropping it in the nearest mailbox, and Snyder's Post Office is taking time to show the general public what's behind the postal services.

On Friday, employees of the Snyder office invites residents to attend a Customers Appreciation Day open house from 9 a.m. until 11 a.m. to show people what "goes on behind the lobby counters," said Snyder Postmaster Steve Justice.

The open house will conclude a weeklong observance of National Consumers Week, which begins Monday.

The open house includes a tour, starting at the front windows. From there, people can go into the workroom area, where carriers prepare the mail for their routes.

Visitors will also get to see the "urgency displayed in getting mail ready by 9:30 (a.m.)," said Justice, explaining the deadline for having mail in postal boxes at the post office.

The tour also includes the dock area, which is where transports deliver incoming mail.

Justice said the tour will allow people to better familiarize themselves with what the post office does, and bring better customer relations after people see how much work goes into postal service.

Normally, tours are given to grade school children, Justice said, but people are welcome at the post office and shouldn't be afraid of the visit.

"The post office is a threatening place for people," Justice said. "But it's not that stringent a place. We're here to serve."

The post office is also in the midst of converting rural-route addresses to 911 addresses for approximately 1,700 households in Scurry County.

The move is to aid in 911 emergency calls so homes can be more easily identified.

Justice said families should have their new addresses and may begin using them, effective immediately. A one-year grace period will be allowed for those not converting to the new address, but

Pair sustain minor injuries in house fire

A husband and wife suffered minor injuries Friday afternoon when propane ignited in the bedroom of their home.

Treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital were Charlie W. Sumruld and his wife, Evelyn. Sumruld was treated for burns to his hands and fingers and Mrs. Sumruld was treated for smoke inhalation.

Snyder fire department responded to the 911 call at 2:20 p.m. at 1609 15th St.

Fire Chief Terry McDowell said Sumruld was changing out a space heater. Either a valve left on or a leaking rubber hose allowed propane to escape into the room. The propane drifted into an adjacent utility room and was ignited by a hot water heater.

McDowell said the bedroom and utility room received extensive fire damage. The remainder of the house was damaged by smoke and heat.

Early ballot count at 75

With just one week left in the early voting period, some 75 in-person ballots have been cast in Scurry County.

County Clerk Frances Billingsley said Friday afternoon that 12 mail ballots are out.

Statewide, voters will decide on 16 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution.

Early voting takes place in the county clerk's office of the courthouse from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. The early voting period ends at 5 p.m. next Friday.

Any registered voter may cast a ballot in person during the early period. Those who wish to vote by mail must have a qualifying reason, such as a disability. The final day to receive an application for a mail ballot is Tuesday.

Election day is Nov. 2

The SDN Column

The feller on Deep Creek says, "You don't always have to have the lead if you have the determination to come from behind."

In the past several days, much has been said and written about "accountability." We agree that elected officials should be held accountable for their actions.

State and local law provides for a system of accountability. While one may argue the perfection of the system, we believe it is broadly applicable to all taxing entities and officials in Scurry County.

The first is the ballot box. Officials are elected in a Democratic process, just like in all 254 counties in the state. Candidates must meet certain legal requirements and they must be elected by a majority for a specific term. Terms of office are generally staggered so that experienced people will not leave the boards all at once.

Open meetings laws, including prior notices of meetings, are detailed in requirements. During the past 18 years, we can truthfully say that local boards have complied with both the intent and letter of the law. On rare occasions, we have privately pointed out to them technical posting errors, and all have quickly corrected the practice.

Executive or closed sessions are allowed by law for personnel discussion, real estate discussion and for discussion with attorney concerning pending litigation. No action may be taken in any closed session. The governing board must, at all times, vote in open session.

The Open Records Act provides anyone access to records, budgets and other information relating to the operation of an entity. We have never had to use the Open Records Act to obtain requested information.

Hiring practices are subject to both state and federal laws. Purchasing must adhere to state law and local policy. In most cases, competitive bidding is a requirement.

Annual outside audits are required and are standard practice by entities in Scurry County. Publication of balance sheets are required in most instances. All auditors make open evaluations to the various boards and the audit reports are available for anyone to review.

Local elected officials don't have to be made accountable — they already are.

Collider decision smashes physicists' dreams

NEW YORK (AP) — Physicists are lamenting the congressional big bang that is forcing them to abandon a yawning, 15-mile tunnel in Texas that would have given them a look at what one physicist has called "the God particle."

The $11 billion Superconducting Super Collider would have been the most powerful atom smasher in history. Protons would have been rammed into one another with energies that haven't existed since the first trillionth of a second after the "big bang" that spawned the universe.

Congress smashed that dream Thursday, approving $640 million to shut the collider down. Some $2 billion already had been spent on it, and it is about one-fifth complete.

"I really sort of still can't believe it that the country won't fund it," said Roy Schwitters, the physicist who directs the project.

Several large, mostly windowless buildings 35 miles south of Dallas and the first 14.7 miles of what would have been a 54-mile circular tunnel are all that remain.

"My grandchildren will be poorer for this act," said a dejected Leon Lederman, a Nobel Prize-winning physicist at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Illinois.

"It's a major tragedy. ... Maybe we need a science requirement for Congress, in addition to a reading and writing requirement."

He added: "You have a group of intelligent people. But they are obsessed with the short term."

The super collider was designed to allow discovery of a theoretical particle called the Higgs boson, which Lederman in a recent book called "the God particle."

Higgs bosons were plentiful in the universe only during the first trillionth of a second of its existence. That was a critical point, however, when the elementary building blocks called quarks and [illegible] said.

The super collider would have for sure settled some fundamental questions of physics, like the origin of mass," said Steven Weinberg, a Nobel Prize-winning astrophysicist at the University of Texas. Weinberg served as an adviser on the collider, but said he was never an employee.

"This is the time at which the universe changed in a fundamental way," he said.

It's also the point at which physicists' equations to describe the universe break down, said Lederman, who had no formal connection with the project.

"The equations go sour on you, which is telling you that something is left out of the equation. There's something in nature we don't know about." Lederman said. [illegible] particle physics is such a complex stew of so many quarks and different forces, he said. "If you could see behind the Higgs, you would see the pristine simplicity of the theory."

Lederman thinks pulling the plug on the atom smasher has postponed that discovery for at least a generation.

A planned European particle accelerator might answer some of the same questions, but its success is not assured because it won't be as powerful, Lederman said.

What's worse, Weinberg said, is that the cancellation of the super collider may persuade the Europeans to drop their plans. "The European governments will say, 'If they're not doing it, why should we?' "

The super collider was criticized in part because of questions about whether it would offer any practical benefits. Lederman said that he was sure, ultimately, that it would, no matter how exotic it seems today.

"Each frontier was as exotic, in its time, as this one is. How much electricity was their in Farady's time, when he discovered it, in 1820? It was lightning, that stuff up there. It was as exotic as quarks."

"Faraday's wisecrack was, 'I don't know what good this will do, but someday, you'll tax it.' "

Questions about the collider were raised in its early days by [illegible] it would drain money from other physics research. Lederman said that the collider was funded with new money, not money taken from somewhere else.

"I've been through four generations of accelerator building, and people always say if I had that money I could do terrific research," Lederman said.

"I'll tell you a secret — physicists are almost like people."

The expression "weasel words," meaning remarks that are deliberately ambiguous or misleading, refers to the weasel's practice of sucking the contents of an egg without destroying the shell. It is a reference that has a venerable literary history; in Shakespeare's "As You Like It," the character of Jacques says, "I can suck melancholy out of a song, as a weasel sucks eggs."

RED RIBBON CAMPAIGN — Cigarettes, alcohol and drugs kill more than 500,000 Americans a year from street crime and homelessness to gang violence, according to a new study. The week of Oct. 23-31 has been declared Drug Awarness Week in Snyder by Mayor Paul Zeck, seated. The Lions Club has furnished red ribbons to Ira, Hermleigh and Snyder schools to be worn in support of this all-out attack on substance abuse. From left are Tom Scannicchio, red ribbon chairman; Terry Luecke, police department; Gale E. DC mayor wants National Guard to help fight crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Sharon Pratt Kelly's plea for National Guard troops to patrol the capital's violence-drenched streets drew sympathy Friday from President Clinton. Local officials wondered aloud why the city doesn't first fill 300 vacancies on the police force.

"I think it should be re- [illegible] of Kelly's request to temporarily deploy up to 3,000 Guard troops as part of anti-drug efforts.

"I've given a lot of thought to it and I've asked our legal counsel to get with the Justice Department and look into the legality of it and what the legal hurdles and also what the practical problems are," said the president.

Kelly said she did not want a guardsman on every street corner, but, "We want to take advantage of that resource to battle crime in the District of Columbia." The soldiers would be available for up to four months to free police for anti-drug work by helping with traffic control, car patrol and crowd control.

"It is my obligation and responsibility to pursue all avenues to stem the tide of violent crime in the District of Columbia," Kelly said in a letter to Clinton.

Police have tallied 376 homicides in the city since the beginning of the year — up from 365 for the same period in 1992 — many of them related to gangs and a drug trade that runs rampant in some neighborhoods. Unlike governors of the 50 states, the Washington, D.C., mayor does not have authority to mobilize the National Guard.

The city has been stunned in recent months by several particularly grim events, including [illegible] to the nation's capital shooting incidents that injured six kids at a city swimming pool and killed a 4-year-old girl at a school yard.

Kelly dismissed concerns that mobilizing the Guard would have an adverse effect on the tourism trade that brings 19 million visi-

Wilson's attackers receive life in prison; appeals likely

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two white men who doused a black tourist with gasoline and set him on fire as they taunted him with racial epithets got the maximum sentence Friday: life in prison.

The judge, who called the attack among the "most senseless and atrocious crimes" he had ever seen, also ordered that the sentences for attempted murder be followed by 40 years for Charles Rourk and 27 years for Mark Kohut for kidnapping and robbery.

Kohut, 27, and Rourk, 33, were convicted last month in the New Year's Day attack on Christopher Wilson, a 32-year-old stock brokerage clerk from New York City.

"Thank God, it's over," Wilson said. "Justice was done."

Circuit Judge Donald C. Evans agreed that the defendants would be isolated from other prisoners because of the nature of their crimes. Attorneys for both defendants said they would appeal the sentences.

Wilson had asked that the two day laborers from Lakeland get the maximum.

"I would like them to get counseling in prison," Wilson wrote in court papers filed this week. "I hope that they will learn never to hurt someone because of their color."

During the trial Wilson described how he heard his attackers warn, "Now you're going to die, nigger!" before he was set on fire.

A group of white men abducted Wilson outside a suburban Tampa shopping plaza and forced him to drive to a remote field.

He suffered burns over nearly 40 percent of his body.

"Doctors say one day I will get back to normal. I just have to keep trying and forget what happened to me," Wilson said.

Wilson, who was in court Friday, wrote he suffers constant pain, is unable to work and can't go out in the sun. He estimated his medical bills at $250,000 and requested $10 million in restitution.

A third suspect originally charged, 18-year-old Jeffery Pellett of Plant City, struck a plea deal to testify against his friends.

He testified that he followed behind in another vehicle and did not participate in the burning, but he admitted under cross-examination changing his story several times and said he would lie to protect himself.

Pellett was sentenced in federal court Wednesday to 61/2 years for aiding in an armed carjacking. He awaits sentencing on his plea to a state charge of accessory after the fact. He was to receive no more than 22 months on the charge.

PROGRESS REPORT

from

Roy Idom - Scurry County Commissioner Precinct 2

Since you elected me your commissioner in November, 1990 I have worked hard for better and more efficient County Government. For those of you who have not been able to attend some of the meetings held in Precinct 2, the following progress report reflects achievements we have accomplished in Precinct 2.

1. Plans to have all paved roads in Precinct 2 seal-coated in six years are going well. This is being accomplished with fewer employees (4 men) than previously employed. Through hard work we have been able to IMPROVE and maintain our roads in good working condition and at the same time come in UNDER the total Precinct 2 budget by:
   - A. $2,437.00 under budget for Precinct 2's 1991 budget
   - B. $29,684.00 under budget for Precinct 2's 1992 budget
   - C. $19,000.00 (estimate) under budget for the end of 1993

2. The community centers in Union and Fluvanna have received a much needed paint job by using prisoners from the county jail.

3. The new hiring policy and base pay structure reflect:
   - A. base salary pay structure that does not allow new employees to be hired at the same level of pay of existing employees
   - B. signed time sheets verifying actual hours worked are now required by county employees. This way we can be certain that each employee works a full 40 hour week
   - C. before a new employee can be hired to replace a worker who has quit or retired in any department, the new hiring must be justified to the commissioner's court

4. Precinct 2 uses a purchase order system that gives us accountability and itemization of expenditures in our precinct. Documented fuel, oil and grease records, plus not allowing county vehicles to leave the yard after working hours has resulted in savings. Expenditures for fuel, oil and grease in Precinct 2 for the years 1981 to 1990 was $227,617.95 (average per year for 10 year period = $21,812.00).

1991 fuel cost (first year in office)	$14,841.00
1992 fuel cost	$13,231.00
1993 fuel cost will be similar to previous 2 years

5. Initiation of paying the majority of county bills once a month versus weekly as previously done allows the county to draw extra interest on our tax money.

6. Standing by a campaign pledge to cut down on county equipment expense, Precinct 2 gave a seldom used motor-grader to Precinct 3. This resulted in the approximate savings to the county of $112,000.00 (the cost of a new motor-grader).

7. The new Airport Management Contract and 1994 airport budget of $57,100.00 should make the airport self-sufficient and still provide:
   - A. a full time airport mechanic
   - B. provide 70 hours of service per week to the flying public

The following figures reflect tax savings at the airport:

Budget expenditures at the airport for 1983-1992 were $965,299.07. Averaged over 10 years this equals $96,529.91 per year (some years were lower, some higher).

1990	$114,148.00
1991	$78,926.00
1992	$77,373.00
1993 (first 9 mos.)	$59,668.47

The airport revenue on sales and rent is projected to be approximately $60,000.00 for 1994. Therefore, the 1994 airport budget of $57,100.00 should make it self-sufficient.

8. We are presently studying and investigating ways to reduce the county's health insurance cost. The self-insured program the county implemented prior to my election has made it difficult for us to find an insurance company willing to accept our present claims liability.

I appreciate all the encouraging letters and phone calls I have received and will continue to be conservative with taxpayer's money.

Pick 3 announces new star

AUSTIN (AP) — Oscar Rodriguez has already practiced for hours to get ready for the seconds he'll spend on camera beginning next week in drawings for the state's new numbers game.

Rodriguez, 22, becomes the new star of late-night lottery TV with Monday's debut of the "Pick 3" game, in which gamblers play three numbers from zero to nine.

The game includes televised drawings Monday through Saturday night in which numbered white balls pop up from three machines.

Rodriguez will turn the balls so they face the camera. He also will appear on the twice-weekly, televised pick-six grand prize lotto drawings.

"I was a little nervous at first," said Rodriguez, who previously validated and cashed winning lottery tickets at the state's Austin claims center. He said Friday was the third day he'd practiced for his new role.

But now he says, "I think I'll be here for a while."

The first lotto hostess, Venessa Grandjean, lasted only one broadcast last year following news stories about her $575 weekly salary. Officials said she was a pleasure to work with, but they didn't want to spend the money.

Lottery officials said Rodriguez, as a security drawing specialist, will do a full 40 hours of work a week for his $27,500 yearly salary. Besides the 45 to 90 seconds a night on camera, he'll handle drawing security duties at the studio and related work at lottery headquarters, they said.

"I guess the easy part of the job is ... actually standing in front of the camera," Rodriguez said.

After Ms. Grandjean left, various lottery security personnel had faced the camera for the Wednesday and Saturday lotto drawings. One of them, investigator Ernest Rivera, said, "I'm glad somebody else is doing it ... Being on camera is a little bit different than what we're used to."

Officials also have hired Mitch Jones as the English-language announcer for the game at $32,000 per year, said lottery spokesman Steve Levine. He said Jones also will coordinate the nightly drawing procedures and will put in a 40-hour week.

The lottery will continue to hire its Spanish language announcer on a contract basis, said lottery director Nora Linares.

Levine said of 75 to 90 stations that show the twice-weekly lotto drawings, about a third have said they also will show "Pick 3" and the others are unsure. The drawings are transmitted via satellite and televisions can pick them up as they choose without charge.

Movie slated

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Three of writer Ernest Gaines' works became TV movies. Soon, the number will be four.

His latest novel, "A Lesson Before Dyig," is set to be filmed by Walt Disney Television, telling the tale of people in small Louisiana town faced with the pending execution of a young man.

WTC sets Depression Era program

Movies of the Depression era hold a special fascination for Tom Rigsby and Janet Halbert, who will be guest speakers Sunday at a Western Texas College program to begin at 1:15 p.m.

Also on the agenda will be the movie, Grapes of Wrath, starring Henry Fonda, a favorite movie of Halbert who teaches English at the college.

The program and the movie will take place in building 2C on the WTC campus.

This program is being held in conjuncrion with the traveling exhibit, Official Images: New Deal Photography, produced by the Smithsonian Institute and the National Museum of American History.

This exhibit is now on display at the Scurry County Museum.

There will be no charge and cookies and a beverage will be served at the museum following the program. For more information call the museum at 573-6107.

Rigsby teaches commercial art at Hardin Simmons University and has his own advertising business in Abilene. His father, Roswell Rigsby, lives in Snyder.

Rigsby lived in Los Angeles for several years and has many interesting stories to share about movie personalities. He also has a large collection of movie memorabilia including some movie posters from the 1930s which he will display.

Cogdell Hospital to offer 3td health fair on Nov. 13

The third annual Healthfest, sponsored by Cogdell Memorial Hospital, will be held Saturday, Nov. 13.

Billed as a "gift to all our good neighbors," Healthfest '93 will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The health fair will offer a variety of health information, and a number of free health screenings plus discounted laboratory tests designed to check the health of the entire family.

"Goodie" bags and balloons with the CMH logo will be given to everyone who registers at Healthfest '93. There will also be a good selection of giveaway products from suppliers and friends of the hospital.

Information about many health related services will be available and visitors will have the opportunity to win valuable prizes. To add to the festivities, the CMH Auxiliary will provide free popcorn, lemonade and cookies to visitors. The Senior Center Kitchen Band will also be featured.

Hospital officials said the fair is being offered again because health education and physical examinations are important to maintaining good health.

Fall Festival planned Saturday at coliseum

Lots of activities await children of all ages at the annual Fall Festival slated Saturday, Oct. 30, at Scurry County Coliseum.

Sponsored by Snyder's five elementary schools, festivities will get underway at 6 p.m. and continue until 9 o'clock. Activities include the perennial spook house, 36 game booths, two concession stands and four ticket booths.

All events will be staged inside the coliseum, not the annex as in years past.

Tickets at game booths will sell for 25 cents each on the night of the event. However, tickets may be purchased in advance at any elementary school for five for $1.

Prizes and candy will be given to game booth winners.

Highlights of the annual event will include a Jack-o-Lantern [illegible]

Western Texas College will also sponsor a roping booth for children and the Canyon Gun Club will sponsor a target shoot.

Some of the booths will include face painting by Snyder Junior High School cheerleaders; free finger printing courtesy of the local Boy Scouts; basketball toss; a "soap the principal" booth; Nintendo; pie throwing; bean toss; putt putt golf; tattooing, and more.

Glow-in-the-dark necklaces will also be for sale.

Food booths will sell chili cheese and hot dogs, Frito pies, nachos and drinks.

Proceeds will benefit Stanfield, Northeast, Central, East and West elementary schools.

The bowler with the most 300 games, as sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress, is Bob Learn Jr., with 42.

The state of Maryland was named for Queen Henrietta Maria, the wife of England's King Charles I.

Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a question concerning a practice in our local physical education department in school. Students are required to run a certain number of days per week, increasing to a goal of 20 minutes per day. A portion of their grades is determined by their running ability. The heart rate is monitored before and after, and the grade is determined by how much the heart rate increases (the higher the rate, the higher the grade). Is this program safe for all students who must participate?

DEAR READER: Regular strenuous physical activity is potentially dangerous for any youngster. For this reason, most authorities urge students to have appropriate cardiovascular examinations before embarking on such programs. This is to identify children with heart or valvular conditions that could cause major problems.

While I don't relish placing myself in any controversy with school administrators, I must confess that I am surprised at your local school's requirement. This seems excessive to me. I'd prefer to see a system in which those students who wish to exercise strenuously may do so, and those who don't can choose alternatives, such as calisthenics.

Although it's true that a high proportion of American school children are out of shape, I feel uncomfortable about forcing youngsters to train by keying their grades to the activity. Encouraging young people to participate in daily running is appropriate; making them do it is, in my opinion, arbitrary and counterproductive. It is also dangerous, as I mentioned. If I were a parent at your school, I'd complain vociferously about this policy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I [illegible] months ago of a weight reduction diet, and lost 25 pounds. The concept was a formula that included height, weight, etc. plus some numbers — with the result being the grams of fat needed to sustain an existing weight. For me this was easy, as all I had to do was eat less fat than was required. I'd like to pass this success on to my friends, but I've lost the formula. Help.

DEAR READER: There are many such formulas for lowering fat in the diet; I don't know which one you used. But it probably doesn't matter. Lowering dietary fat is an excellent way to lose weight: The more fat you eliminate, the better.

To give you more information, I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "Calorie Wise Cooking," "Winning the Battle of the Bulge," and "Eating Right for a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like copies should send $1.25 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

Supporters back Price as he receives 75-day sentence

DALLAS (AP) — The flames of hundreds of candles flickered outside the Lew Sterrett Justice Center as supporters of Dallas County Commissioner John Wiley Price held a vigil in protest of his 75-day jail sentence for criminal mischief.

More than 100 of Price's supporters, calling themselves "warriors," demonstrated peacefully outside the jail Friday night, just hours after the commissioner was booked into the facility on the misdemeanor charge.

Earlier, State District Judge Cas Dunlap rejected Price's request to serve out his sentence in a work release program and instead ordered him to jail.

Price's attorneys had requested the work release program after Price ran out of state appeals on a 1991 conviction for breaking a motorist's windshield wiper during a protest.

Price, who is black, is known for his outspoken nature and frequent pickets against what he calls unjust minority hiring practices within the city.

During Friday's hearing, prosecutors attempted to show that Price lacked respect for the law and shouldn't be allowed to leave jail during the day to carry out county business.

They noted that Price was on probation for defacing a billboard when he broke the windshield wiper during a 1990 protest at the Dallas office of KXAS-TV. Price contends he broke the wiper off in self-defense as the van headed toward him.

Supporters at Friday night's vigil blasted the jail sentence, calling it racist and unbefitting of the charge.

"This is a slap in the face, not only to the African-American community, but to the entire community," said broadcast commentator Bob Ray Sanders.

New dad Williams set to start Sunday

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers tackle David Williams stayed home last Sunday and got national attention while the rest of the Oilers' patched up offensive line played its best game of the season.

Williams expected to take a financial hit for deciding to skip the game and be with his wife and [illegible] instead of taking a late flight to Boston to play in the Oilers' 20-16 victory that snapped a three-game losing streak.

What he didn't anticipate was becoming a national hero for wanting to fulfill his responsibilities as a first-time father.

In a whirlwind week, Williams was docked his $111,111 game day check, received support from Vice President Al Gore and was invited to appear on numerous network news programs.

He became a role model for modern fatherhood.

But now it's time to play football again and Williams is ready to resume his role as the starting right tackle for Sunday's game in the Astrodome against Cincinnati, winless in six games.

"The sooner we can forget about it, the better it will be for my family and the team," Williams said. "I hope they've forgiven me because I've forgiven them."

The furor created by Williams' absence and loss of pay took attention away from the outstanding performance by the offensive line, a problem all season for the Oilers (2-4).

Rookie first-round draft pick Brad Hopkins made his first start of the season at left tackle despite suffering from pneumonia. Kevin Donnalley, playing with a broken thumb, started in Williams' right tackle spot for the first time.

Pro Bowl guard Mike Munchak put on a new knee brace that allowed him to play until victory was assured and lent valuable support to Hopkins.

Bulldogs' defense dominates in 35-7 grid win over Snyder

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

It's Plainview's offense that gets the headlines, but it was the Bulldogs defense that did the damage at Tiger Stadium Friday.

The 'Dogs limited Snyder to 25 total yards and returned a pair of interceptions for touchdowns on their way to a 35-7 District 2-4A football victory.

"I knew they were tough coming in," said Snyder head coach David Baugh, "but their defense really impressed me.

"They have a great football team.

"On the positive side, we played hard, we gave it all we had. We've just got to get this game behind us, regroup, and get ready for Lamesa next week."

Game statistics bear out Plainview's dominance Friday night.

The Bulldogs limited Snyder to -21 yards rushing. They sacked SHS quarterback Matthew Cave four times for 23 yards in losses. They hurried Cave on a dozen more occasions. And, most importantly, stole five passes from the record-setting Tiger QB.

Cave, just a week removed from a team-record 249 yards passing against Estacado, completed just eight of 23 tosses against Plainview for 46 yards, including a 9-yard TD toss to Larry Thompson in the second quarter.

Jira Sansom returned one of the stolen aerials 31 yards for a second-quarter TD that put the 'Dogs on top, 21-0, and Chris Cannon swiped a fourth-quarter pass and sailed 34 yards for the final score of the night.

Almost lost in the defensive dominance of the game was Plainview fullback Damian Nails, who gained 155 yards and scored on a 20-yard scamper in the first quarter.

Following Nails' opening score, PHS quarterback Scott Parr dove the last yard of a 65-yard drive to lift Plainview to a 14-0 advantage.

Snyder finally got on the scoreboard with under a minute to go in the first half.

Linebacker Nathan Zalman rumbled to the Bulldogs' nine with a fumble from Plainview RB Brian Watts.

Two plays later, Cave hit Thompson on a fade route deep in the end zone for the Tigers' lone score.

Parr, who finished with 93 yards and a pair of TDs on 13 carries, scooted 12 yards for a touchdown in the third period, and Cannon capped the scoring with his return of a fourth-quarter interception.

Parr completed just one pass, a 4-yarder to Steven Riddley that was fumbled on a hook-and-lateral pitchout and recovered by Snyder.

In all, the two teams combined for 10 turnovers. The Tigers lost five interceptions and a fumbled snap, while Plainview gave up a second quarter oskie to SHS DB John Clinkinbeard, and lost three fumbles.

The loss drops Snyder to 4-4 on the season and 1-2 in district games. Plainview, ranked No. 5 in the state among Class 4A teams, moves to 8-0 on the year, including a 3-0 run through the loop.

TOUGH YARDS — Snyder running back Chris Mitchell (35) finds out first hand how hard it is to pick up yardage against the Plainview defense. Plainview limited Snyder to 25 yards of total offense in Friday's 35-7 District 2-4A win over the Tigers. (SDN Staff Photo)

Ira thumps Hermleigh, 55-8 in Scurry County showdown

By Casey Westenrieder
SDN Staff Writer

HERMLEIGH — A strong running game and a stingy defense rallied Ira to their first win of the season as the Bulldogs overpowered Hermleigh 55-8 Friday in a District 6 six-man football game lasting just one half.

The Bulldogs kicked off to Hermleigh to start the game, but after losing eight yards on four plays, the Cardinals had to punt.

A two-yard kick by Hermleigh gave Ira good enough field postion to push the ball to the Cardinals' three yard line, where Bulldog quarterback Scott Strong dumped a play-action pass to Cole Sterling for the touchdown, giving Ira a 6-0 lead with 7:10 left in the first period.

With 3:15 to go in the opening quarter, Ira struck again with a 44-yard run from Tom Sanchez, upping the score to 12-0.

Hermleigh, struggling for yardage against the Bulldog defense, had to punt the ball away, again after only four plays. Ira took the ball on its own 16, and after losing two yards, launched Sterling on a sweep good for 67 yards and another TD.

With the PAT good, the Bulldogs held a 20-0 lead with 47 seconds left in the first quarter.

Ira received one more chance in the first period after another Hermleigh punt, but waited until 11 seconds ticked off of the second quarter clock before Strong connected with senior Coy Henderson for a 32-yard pass and another eight points, after the extra point attempt cut the uprights.

The Cardinals, in an effort to get back into the game, went for it on a fourth-and-three on the Bulldog 35 yard marker, and fumbled, losing the ball to Ira on its own 32-yard line.

With just under seven minutes left in the half, Sterling broke loose from eight yards out to score again.

Hermleigh committed its second turnover with an interception, which set up an Ira one-yard run making the score 42-0 with 3:46 left in the half.

The Cardinals finally posted numbers on the board after burning the Bulldog defense for a 25-yard pass and converting a fourth down situation, to set up an eight yard TD pass to Brendon Blair. With a good PAT, Hermleigh gained some momentum.

Any momentum the Cardinals mustered was wiped out completely as Sanchez received the kickoff on the 19-yard line and took it all the way back for another Bulldog score. Ira converted the one-point PAT, making the score 49-8.

Only 4 seconds remained in the first half when Hermleigh fumbled the ball for the second time, setting up a 22-yard Kyle Lomax TD to finish the game at 55-8 on the 45-point rule.

"It just feels great for the boys to have a victory," Ira coach Darren Janssen said after the game. "They've played their hearts out in several games, and come up on the short end of it. As far as the victory goes, it just feels good for the boys to win."

Ira moves to 1-7 on the year and 1-2 in District 6 encounters. Hermleigh slips to 1-7 overall and is winless in three loop games.

Cox, Coyotes trip Gorillas

GAIL — Borden County's Cody Cox rolled for 243 yards rushing and five touchdowns as the Coyotes tripped the Trent Gorillas, 52-35, in a District 6 six-man grid battle Friday.

The Coyotes are unbeaten in three district outings and hold a 4-4 overall mark.

Cox started a 20-8 first-quarter scoring blitz with a 16-yard run for a TD. He added a 28-yard run and the PAT kick before James Cooley scooted in from five yards out to end the opening stanza.

Cox chipped in TD scampers of 1, 23 and 3 yards, Cooley scored his second touchdown of the game on a 34-yard ramble, and Doug Flanigan recovered a Trent fumble in the end zone for a Borden County TD.

Trent slips to 1-7 on the year and 1-3 against district competition.

Borden County and unbeaten Loraine, a 52-35 winner over Highland Friday, will meet with the loop lead at stake Friday, Oct. 29 on the Bulldogs' home field.

Trent's next outing will be a road game against Ira Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Western Texas golfers to compete in Midland

The Western Texas College golf team continues its fall campaign Sunday through Tuesday at the Midland College Invitational at Green Tree Country Club in Midland.

The Westerners, fresh from a fifth-place finish at the UT Invitational in Pflugerville, will shoot a practice round Sunday, then will play two rounds on Monday and a single 18-hole round on Tuesday.

Clovis, N.M. freshman Bryan Watt led the WTC squad in Pflugerville with a 36-hole 147. Coach Milton Ham's WTC squad wound up with a team-total 305-301--606 last weekend.

[illegible] Flores, both with 2-round 151s, Cory Stone, who fired a 153, and Will Gray, who carded a 154.

Midland College posted rounds of 287 and 282 for a 569 first-place tally. Odessa College, also expected as part of the Midland Invitational field, was second a week ago with a 588.

The fall campaign will wind up for WTC Nov. 7-9 when the Westerners compete in the 54-hole New Mexico Junior College Invitational at Hobbs Country Club.

Jays, Phillies set for Game 6

TORONTO (AP) — Baseball took a much-needed day off to catch its breath Friday, following one of the most topsy-turvy twists in World Series history.

One night, Phillies Hall of Famer Steve Carlton begins the evening by bouncing the ceremonial first ball. That's about the only pitch that does not get hit as the Toronto Blue Jays slug past [illegible] scoring postseason game ever.

The next night, Phillies Hall of Famer Robin Roberts starts it with a strike on the first ball. Curt Schilling and Juan Guzman throw strikes all game and Philadelphia squeezes past Toronto 2-0 to trim its deficit to 3-2.

"Being a pitcher, I prefer the 1-0 or 2-1 type of game," said Dave Stewart, who will start Game 6 Saturday night against Terry Mulholland of the Phillies.

"A 15-14 game is great for the fans. It's entertaining," he said Friday. "But when it's low-scoring, there are situations and things going on. The pitcher is out there thinking, and I like to watch that."

The idea of seeing runners scampering around the bases for nine innings is not offensive to all pitchers. Just ask Jack Morris, who pitched one of the greatest games ever, a 1-0 victory in 10 innings for the Minnesota Twins over the Atlanta Braves in Game 7 of the 1991 Series.

"I've been in the lowest-scoring [illegible] games in World Series history," said Morris, injured and unable to pitch for Toronto. "I'd have loved to have won that game 15-14, go nine and get a complete game."

How high-scoring was that game Wednesday night? There were more runs that night than in the whole Series the last time the Phillies were in it (Philadelphia and the Baltimore Orioles combined for 27 in five games in 1983). 'The message board kept flashing, 'World Series record,'" Toronto's Paul Molitor said. "Every time you'd go out in the field, you hoped you'd find a way to get three outs before they put another number up."

Another number went up before Thursday's game. An official scoring change was made that credited Molitor with a hit, rather than an error on Phillies third baseman Dave Hollins, and that made it 32 hits on Wednesday night, tying the Series record.

On Thursday night, the Phillies took the lead in the opening inning on John Kruk's run-scoring grounder, and that was enough for Schilling.

"I'm tired. I didn't even bring my glove," said Schilling.

"You know, I heard some people say last night that they hope the [illegible] way, I'm ready to go home, to [illegible] But in a way, I feel the other way, too."

SWC postseason bowl bids in jeopardy

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference is having a dismal football year but the worst insult could be just around the corner.

The league is guaranteed three bowl invitations but there is something written in the fine print.

Under NCAA regulations, a school can't accept a bowl bid unless it has six victories against Division I-A competition.

The way it looks right now with six weeks left in the season only two SWC schools may make it. In a worst case scenario, there could be only one.

Too many non-conference losses have concocted a possible recipe for disaster.

Texas A&M with five victories appears on the way to either the Cotton Bowl or John Hancock Bowl. The Cotton Bowl takes the SWC champion and the Hancock in El Paso will take the second-place team. The Hancock Bowl pays out $1 million.

SOUTHWEST SWC CONFERENCE

Also waiting out there for the SWC is an invitation from the Alamo Bowl, which has reserved a spot for the league's third-place team, and a $700,000 payday. Since all SWC teams share in the bowl profits, the league could ill afford to blow the bucks in this day of gender equity and increased women's scholarships in the athletic programs.

The Alamo Bowl, which pits the SWC against the fourth-place Pac-10 team, is making contingency plans. Officials have been scouting the surprising Louisville Cardinals. The pass-happy Cardinals would make an exciting team for San Antonio fans to watch. The Cardinals have a game at Texas A&M on Nov. 13.

Baylor appears to have the inside track to one of the bowls with four victories and games left against Texas Christian, Georgia Tech, Rice, and Texas.

Rice has four wins but only three count in the bowl formula. The Owls have to throw out their 14-13 victory over Division I-AA Sam Houston.

Rice has games left against Texas A&M, SMU, Baylor and Houston and must win three of them.

Texas Tech's 45-16 victory over Rice did severe damage to the Owls, who haven't been to a bowl since the 1960s.

"We raised a lot of expectations but that loss really hurt," said coach Fred Goldsmith.

Texas has only one win and must play road games at Texas A&M and Houston after a game on a neutral field Saturday in the Alamo Dome against Southern Methodist. The Longhorns also get Texas Tech, Baylor and TCU at home. If the Longhorns win five games, they will qualify for the NCAA standard.

Texas Tech and TCU have two victories each while SMU and Houston have won only one game. Bowl fever won't be gripping those campuses.

The league has been taking its lumps nationally for its 9-16-2 non-conference record which is one of the three worst all-time marks in league history. The league hasn't had a losing non-conference mark since it was 17-18 in 1988.

Filling a spot in the Alamo Bowl certainly didn't cross new commissioner Steve Hatchell's mind when he announced the affiliations this May at The Associated Press Sports Editors meeting in Austin.

"It's not something we worried about," Hatchell said. "But our down year in non-conference wins has hurt."

Nobody said Hatchell was going to have an easy job getting things going again in the SWC.

In this case, he's absolutely powerless.

HJHS claims district football championship

The Hermleigh Cardinals posted a 6-0 win over Trent a week ago to cap off a 5-1 season and claim the 1993 District 6 junior high football championship.

The Cardinals, coached by David Rogers and Wayne Poehls, fell to Southland, 12-6, in their season opener, and have since beaten Borden County, 12-6, Loraine, 40-12, Highland, 42-2, and Ira, 36-6, before downing Trent.

"This is a hard-working bunch, I'll tell you for sure," said Rogers. "They lost that one in Southland, but since then they've really come together. I'm real proud for them."

Astros searching for new manager

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros owner Drayton McLane confirmed Friday night that he has started the interviewing process for a new field manager with the help of former Astros general manager Tal Smith.

McLane declined to identify the candidates.

GHOULISH CAST — Snyder Junior High School's Monsters, The Beast Things In Life Are Free will feature five of horror film's most ghoulish characters. Shown in front is Joey Steakley as Dracula. In the center are, Reid Johnson as the werewolf, and Isaac Spoor as Frankenstein. In back are, Starla Davis as the mummy and Sarah Pierce as the bride of Dracula. This scary five-some can be seen Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. on the junior high patio. In the event of inclement weather, the production will be moved to the auditorium. (SDN Staff Photo)

Astrograph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Sunday, Oct. 24, 1993

Hopes and aspirations have excellent chances of being fulfilled for you in the year ahead. If you play your cards right, this may turn out to be one of the best years you've ever had.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your ways of doing things could be superior to the ideas of your peers and associates today. Don't let them relegate you to the rear ranks, but do so diplomatically. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If there is something you can't do for yourself, but you know of someone who could do it for you, ask this person to help you, especially if you previously helped him/her.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be prepared for pleasant surprises today in your involvements and dealings with clubs, groups or large organizations. Developments could prove lucky for you in some unique manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your best assets of character and personality will be stimulated today when confronted by challenging situations where there is something of value at stake.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a possibility you might get involved in a second meaningful endeavor today that complements and enlarges a venture you already have under way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Situations you manage for others today could prove to be more rewarding than usual. The arrangements could work out in ways where you'll gain for yourself what you gain for others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The secret to your success today is your ability to deal with persons who all have different axes to grind. Somehow you'll balance things out to please all concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) For best results today it might be wise not to broadcast your objectives prematurely. The last thing you'll want to do is to alert your competition or opposition.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't do anything foolish today, but, by the same token, if you see a way to improve your lot in life through a thoughtful, calculated risk, fire your best shot.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have admirable staying powers today. You could get luckier as time ticks on, especially if you're attempting to conclude something that might provide you with unique personal benefits.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Partnership arrangements should work out rather well for you today, especially one that is a bit complex and not totally understood by your associates.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are in a cycle that could produce outstanding returns in material ways from time to time. This is one of your better days, so make the most of it.

Your Birthday

Monday, Oct. 25, 1993

Exciting things could be in the offing for you in the year ahead where your work or career is concerned. For the first time in a long while you'll sense your destiny is in your own hands.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could be extremely adroit at balancing your day between work and play. You'll know how to do what needs doing and also allocate time to enjoy yourself. Major changes are ahead for Scorpio in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph. c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163 Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Successfully finishing what you start out to do will provide you the greatest gratification today. It will be important to both your ego and your image to cross the finish line intact.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your perceptions regarding people and things could be extremely accurate today, so try to utilize this gift to your advantage. Make your judgments for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The probabilities for turning some type of profit today look extremely encouraging. It could come through something you do independently of others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll have a strong sense of self-awareness today and this could be good. The only drawback, however, is to be sure you look out for the interests of others, as well as your own.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might be extremely impressionable today and this isn't all bad, provided those with whom you associate can be taken at their word. A little skepticism in serious situations wouldn't hurt.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your success and power today aren't likely to come from things. It's people who will help you fulfill your hopes and expectations. Fortunately, this is your strong area.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Success is likely today if your objectives are clearly defined. If you try to feel and probe your way around, it could be another story.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone who has your best interests at heart might make a critical decision for you today without getting your permission. Fortunately, it could turn out to be smarter than yours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might be a trifle too loose for your own good today in the management of your commercial and financial affairs. Be especially careful in handling the resources of another.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When dealing with others on a one-to-one basis today, be very explicit and deliberate. Things won't work out if you leave them confused about your intentions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons in your charge are likely to be more productive than usual today. This is because you'll go out of your way to be kind and helpful if they're in need of extra consideration.

Pic-A-State adds lottery in Texas

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A New Jersey company that recently won the right to buy out-of-state lottery tickets on behalf of Pennsylvania residents will add the Texas Lottery to its menu beginning Saturday.

Under the arrangement, Pic-A-State Pa. Inc. would sell receipts for the Texas lottery through 190 agents in Pennsylvania. Federal law prohibits the transportation of the actual tickets across state lines.

A federal judge in July struck down a new Pennsylvania law banning sales of those receipts, saying it was an unconstitutional restraint of interstate commerce.

Pic-A-State, of Lakewood, N.J., sells receipts for lotteries from New York, New Jersey, Ohio, California, Illinois, Florida, plus the multi-state Powerball lottery.

The company said Friday it may soon begin to accept orders for a major European lottery. The company, which only operates in Pennsylvania, also was exploring sales in other states.

Scott S. McLean, president of Pic-A-State, said the Texas lottery was chosen because it typically generates extremely high jackpot payouts.

England's Queen Anne, who reigned from 1702-1714, gave birth to 17 children, not one of whom survived her. In fact, only one of them survived infancy; he died at the age of 11.

'Fergie' enjoys nine day snowy wilderness event

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The Duchess of York scaled a Himalayan mountain with a mentally disabled man this week, returning Friday after nine days in the snowy wilderness.

Fergie, the estranged wife of Britain's Prince Andrew, climbed 19,159-foot Mount Pokhalde on Wednesday with Paul Sillito, who was helped to the top by a professional mountaineer.

The expedition was sponsored by MacIntyre Care, a British charity that helps disabled people live as independently as possible. The duchess, the former Sarah Ferguson, is a patron of the charity.

"She led from the front," Gordon Owen, chairman of the charity, told reporters at Katmandu airport.

The 34-year-old duchess refused to talk to reporters, except to said the expedition was "very good."

PETER ROTH

Peter Roth

1917-1993

Services are set for 10 a.m. Monday at Resthaven Funeral Home in Lubbock for Peter Roth, 76, who died at 8:30 a.m. Friday in Snyder Nursing Center.

Mr. Roth moved from Hermleigh to Lubbock in 1952. He had been a resident of Snyder since December, 1992.

Born in Bonestell, S.D., he married Beulah Frances Evans on July 21, 1943 in Hermleigh.

Mr. Roth worked for Singer Sewing Machine Company as a repairman for 26 years. He served in the U.S. Army Air Force from April 1942 through November, 1945, and he was a member of the Lubbock Primitive Baptist Church.

He was prededed in death by a son, Carrol Doyce Roth; two brothers, William Roth and Jake Roth; and a sister, Ida Holmberg.

Survivors include his wife, Beula Frances Roth of Lubbock; a son and daughter-in-law, Mark Stephen and Julia Kay Roth of Snyder; three sisters, Emma Bender of Scotland, S.D., Ann Watson of Scotsbluff, Neb., and Eva Burke of Decatur; and a granddaughter, Virginia Michelle Roth of Snyder.

postal patrols are urged to begin notifying mailers of their new 911 addresses so there will be no delay in delivery.

Scurry County 911 Coordinator Judy Hobbs said the address changes will give the fire and law enforcement agencies an "exact spot" to pinpoint on a map.

Those who have rural route or HCR addresses should contact Hobbs at the courthouse, or Jerry Beard at the Texas Highway Department for information on how to change their address.

Madonna gives hometown show

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Homecoming was only a bit humbling for Madonna. She dedicated a song to her girlhood dance teacher and others who have died of AIDS.

"It's good to be home," she told 18,000 fans Thursday night at The Palace of Auburn Hills, a few miles from her Rochester Hills hometown.

IRA attack claims 7

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The outlawed Irish Republican Army bombed the headquarters of Northern Ireland's largest Protestant paramilitary Saturday, killing at least seven people and injuring 48, rescuers and witnesses said.

Six bodies were pulled from the rubble of the building on Shankill Road, a spokesman [illegible] in a hospital, said Alan Murray, chief officer of the Belfast Ambulance Service. At least 48 people were injured, he said.

Within minutes of the explosion, the IRA said in a statement to a local radio station that it aimed the attack at a "UFF leadership meeting."

Ulster Freedom Fighters is a cover name used by the outlawed Ulster Defense Association, a Protestant paramilitary, for its violent attacks. The IRA frequently targets such groups in its bid to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

The bomb heavily damaged the UDA office and two shops, police and witnesses said. Crowds of people, many of them weeping, helped search for victims in the wreckage.

"It is too early to give a proper picture, but it appears there are a lot of casualties," a spokesman for the Royal Ulster Constabulary said.

The spokesman said the bomb was hidden in a box that two men left in a shop shortly before the blast at 1 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) when the street was crowded with shoppers.

The bombing followed a sustained Protestant paramilitary offensive on Catholics. Protestant groups have killed three Catholics in the last two weeks and badly injured a number of others.

In the latest incident, the UDA said it was responsible for shooting a Catholic taxi driver in north Belfast Friday night. The driver was in critical condition with head wounds.

Astronaut, daughter talk briefly

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — The space shuttle commander's daughter says that even though she grew up with her family in the shadow of Houston's Johnson Space Center, every mission is still exciting.

"Even being a small part of that is wonderful," Carolyn Blaha said. "Every time I hear his voice over the communication lines it's like 'Wow, that's Dad.'"

Blaha heard her father's voice briefly Friday when an amateur radio operator at Purdue linked her with Col. John Blaha, who is aboard the Columbia for its 14-day mission.

Blaha was scheduled to talk to his 20-year-old daughter during a 12-minute link conducted by David Filmer, a Purdue professor of biology. Filmer used ham radio equipment in the basement of his West Lafayette home. Telephone lines connected his radio equipment with the Purdue campus.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is he the wise ascetic depicted by his supporters? Or is he a deeply disturbed man with a penchant for violence who is unfit for public office?

The debate over ousted Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide is heating up as the countdown continues toward the Oct. 30 deadline by which he is due to return to Haiti under a July agreement.

Aristide struck back at his critics Friday, saying he has never suffered from mental problems and he challenged anyone to prove otherwise.

"It's all that garbage," the exiled leader said on PBS' "MacNeil-Lehrer NewsHour." "They said worse about Martin Luther King. As a psychologist, I know about character assassination."

The allegations are based on a dated CIA report that includes a contention — Aristide denies it — that he was treated at a mental hospital in Canada in 1980 after being diagnosed as suffering from a manic depressive disorder.

The Clinton administration, which has been pushing hard for Aristide's reinstatement, issued a statement Friday supporting him.

"He's fully capable of serving as president of Haiti," said White House spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers.

Aristide's counsel, former Maryland congressman Michael D. Barnes, said in a statement, "President Aristide has been hospitalized once in his life — as a boy he was treated for hepatitis. President Aristide has not suffered from nor been treated for any mental problems."

The CIA updated its profile of Aristide in April, said an intelligence source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

It now says Aristide suffers from depression and from religious complexes, such as a belief that he is the Messiah, but "the bottom line conclusion is that he is competent to lead his country," said the official.

Aristide, a Roman Catholic priest, has told reporters at various times that in keeping with Catholic tradition he views himself as a representative of Jesus and an embodiment of his qualities. He was expelled from his religious order for allegedly fomenting class warfare.

Sen. Jesse Helms, the conservative North Carolina Republican, branded Aristide "a psychopath" on the Senate floor Wednesday, and said Thursday that the CIA, in a closed briefing for lawmakers, confirmed his claims.

The debate over Aristide has been fueled by controversy over just how far the administration should back him in his quest to return. The Clinton administration, citing Aristide's legitimacy as Haiti's elected president, has publicly backed restoring him to power. Prior to his landslide election victory in December 1990, however, the leftist priest was viewed warily by U.S. officials because of his fiery anti-imperialist rhetoric.

The administration has not ruled out the use of U.S. troops but many in Congress believe that option could lead to numerous American casualties. The military chieftains who deposed him two years ago are still in control and seem intent on reneging on their promise to step aside.

Barnes also rebutted charges that Aristide promoted the practice of "necklacing" in dealing with his political opponents — placing a gasoline-soaked tire on one's shoulders and setting it afire. Barnes described the allegation as "totally false."

A Aristide aide recently acknowledged that the deposed president had indirectly recommended that practice but did so in self-defense to protect himself against the coup that he knew was coming. Aristide's allusion to necklacing occurred in a speech a few days before the military seized power from him in September 1991.

Halloween party slated Thursday at Senior Center

A Halloween party for senior citizens is planned in the Senior Citizens Center Thursday morning. The games and activities will begin at 10 a.m. and there will be prizes for the best costume.

Benny Benitez and his band will play for country/western dancing in the center starting at 7 p.m. Tuesday. Other music in the center during the week will include a performance by the Browning Band at 11 a.m. Tuesday and the Sing Along at 11:30 Friday morning. The Sunshine Choir will entertain residents of Snyder Oaks Care Center at 10 a.m. Friday.

Senior citizens who have birthdays in October are invited to celebrate at the McDonald's birthday party Wednesday. The party will begin at 10 a.m. in the dining room. The Kitchen Band will be playing there at 10:30 a.m.

Dominoes will be the feature of Game Day Monday in the center. Play will begin at 9:30 a.m.

All senior citizens are invited to join a modified exercise class which meets at 11 a.m. Monday through Friday in the center. An aerobics class for women meets at 2 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays.

A swimnastics class for men and women meets in Western Texas College swimming pool from 9:45-10:45 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. A beginning clogging class meets in the center's dining room at 2 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Identification cards for senior citizens will be issued in the center on Nov. 3-5. These cards carry important information about the card carrier which would be especially valuable in the event of an emergency. Senior citizens who would like to help with the project are asked to contact Pamela Fenton, activities director, for details.

Kennedy's nephew arrested

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Dr. William Kennedy Smith, nephew of Massachusetts Democratic Sen. Ted Kennedy, was arrested on charges of assault and battery early Saturday morning after a confrontation at a bar.

Arlington County police said in a statement that Smith, 33, was standing outside Bardo Bar and Restaurant with blood on his face when they arrived about 1:45 a.m.

An unidentified bouncer told police he was trying to break up a fight between Smith and another man, who left the scene before police arrived.

Andrew Stewart, the tavern's manager, said Smith was "totally apologetic" when police arrived. "He acted as if it was a big mistake," Stewart told WRC-TV.

Both Smith and the bouncer appeared before Magistrate Ed Williams, who ordered Smith to appear in Arlington County Criminal Court on Dec. 3. He was released in his own recognizance.

Smith was acquitted of rape in a highly publicized case in Florida in December 1991.

He has a medical degree from Georgetown University Medical School. Earlier this year, he began a three-year residency at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago, which is affiliated with Northwestern University Medical School.

Two arrests made for PI

Snyder police experienced a quiet 24-hour period that ended at 7 a.m. Saturday. Only two arrests were made.

At 5:06 a.m. Saturday, officers answered a family disturbance call in the 1000 Block of 26th St. Two subjects fled the residence and 10 minutes later officers arrested two males, ages 29 and 26, for public intoxication.

At 2:23 p.m. Friday, police were called by Charles Thomas of Lease Equipment who filed an offense report for Class B theft.

Officers also responded to a reported fight behind Allsup's on College Ave. at 11:19 a.m. Friday. The fight was over when officers arrived.

At 3:30 p.m. Friday, officers were advised of a disturbance at West-T-Go on College Ave. An offense report for disorderly conduct-language was filed.

At 4:33 p.m. Saturday, officers noted that a stop sign at U.S. 84 and 16th St. had been removed.

Thefts reported to Scurry SO

The sheriff's office had three reports concerning thefts and noted three arrests on unrelated charges.

At 10 a.m. Friday, Kathryn Green of 2801 Moncrief reported a stolen engine from 2900 Moncrief.

The Chevrolet engine had been rebuilt and painted Ford blue, and is valued at about $900. Green said the theft occurred between Oct. 9 and Oct. 17. The sheriff's office is investigating.

At 11:10 p.m. Friday, the clerk at Allsup's store in Hermleigh reported theft of gasoline.

A subject paid for $5 worth of fuel and pumped $15 worth into a red Chevrolet extended cab pickup, and drove off without paying the difference of the transaction.

The sheriff's office is investigating.

Buck Kimmell, owner of Midwestern Vacuum on the Clairemont Highway, called the sheriff's office at 8:55 a.m. Saturday to report a burglary.

Kimmell said someone had broken in the front door and stolen the cash box.

The amount taken had not been determined. Deputy Delwyn Davis is investigating the burglary.

Department of Public Safety officers reported the arrest of a 33-year-old female for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated. Sheriff's deputies arrested a 44-year-old female and a 29-year-old male, both for public intoxication.

Chapter I

Cynthia Savage, Computer Curriculum Corp. consultant, will speak to Parents of Chapter I students in a meeting set for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the junior high auditorium.

She will help those attending become familiar with students' gains reports. Lois Boles, director of state and federal programs for SISD, and Dale Byrd, coordinator of the computer assisted instruction program, will host the meeting.

Ira boosters

The Ira Bulldog Backers will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the school cafeteria to view the football game film and discuss the carnival.

Boosters

The Snyder All-sports Booster Club will not meet Monday. The next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 1.

Band boosters

SHS band boosters will meet at 7 pm. Monday in the band hall for a work session. Members are asked to bring small paint brushes, tempra paint and markers.

Retakes

Retakes at Snyder High School will be taken by Olan Mills Studio on Tuesday, Oct. 26, at 8:30 a.m. Senior retakes and portraits will be taken from 3-7 p.m. Seniors who had pictures taken in July must have their yearbook pose taken again.

Students must see Diane Arnold in Room 229 to be approved for retakes.

Tiger's Lair

Orders for the 1993-94 Tiger's Lair yearbook will be taken Nov. 1 through Nov. 12. Those who order a yearbook during this two-week period will pay $30, which will include a name stamp and plastic protective cover. After two weeks, the price will be $35.

Arrangements may be made to pay $15 down and the balance in January. Yearbook staffers will be taking orders before and after school and during lunch by the front doors.

Ira FHA sets Red Ribbon Campaign

Ira Future Homemakers are working hard to get ready to participate in the national Red Ribbon Week campaign, slated Monday through Friday.

This special week began in 1985 and is one of the most successful endeavors to help fight substance abuse in communities.

The red ribbon and other activities throughout the week symbolize the commitment of citizens to help in the prevention of substance abuse in this area.

In Texas, the Red Ribbon Campaign is sponsored by the Texans' War on Drugs. The Ira Future Homemakers of America (FHA) chapter has participated in the project for the last three years.

FHA members will be working on many projects during the week. Texas Red Ribbon Week will highlight and bring to public attention the need to prevent illegal use of tobacco, alcohol and other drugs across the state.

Students will be exposed to many educational activities throughout the week including special assemblies, special days such as red on Wednesday and special treats to encourage a drug free lifestyle.

Many persons in the area help with this week in schools across the state. FHA members offer a "thank you" in advance of the special week to anyone who helps with the 1993 campaign.

No apology for 'Friars' jokes

NEW YORK (AP) — Whoopi Goldberg and Ted Danson have no apologies in the blackface flap.

Eighteen months of epithets and insults over their interracial romance convinced them that Danson's blackface appearance at a Friars Club roast for Goldberg would be their answer to racist critics.

"I get mail that says, 'I hope if you and Ted Danson ha... hope they die.' That kind of stuff. OK?," she said in an interview on cable's Black Entertainment Television.

"So, in talking about this, in three months, this was not something he did off the cuff. This was done over a long period of time," she said.

It was the interracial couple's first substantial interview since the flap over Danson's Oct. 8 bit at the Manhattan roast.

Hutchison lied, says ex-staffer

AUSTIN (AP) — A co-defendant of Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison said Hutchison lied to investigators about his political work at the state Treasury, the Houston Chronicle reported Saturday.

Hutchison's attorney, Dick DeGuerin, disputed the assertion.

David Criss, Hutchison's former planning director when she was the state treasurer, told the newspaper he's ready to cooperate in the case and regrets not coming forward sooner.

But DeGuerin said Criss is "dead wrong" and that Hutchison has maintained all along that she knew he was doing political work related to her successful run for the U.S. Senate.

"But he was supposed to be doing on his own time,", said DeGuerin, adding that Criss may be bitter about losing his job.

Meanwhile, a prosecutor said Friday that ethics charges against Hutchison will be dropped, and a new grand jury will be asked to indict her again.

Hutchison's case and about 300 others were called into question because a member of the grand jury that indicted her was facing an outstanding theft charge.

Ronald Earle, the Travis County district attorney, said he will file motions to dismiss all of the grand jury's pending indictments.

Moore visits kids

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — As James Bond, Roger Moore had a license to kill. As Roger Moore, firearms are nerve-racking.

"The only acting I ever did was trying not to blink because as soon as I pick up a gun I start blinking," Moore told children on Thursday during a UNICEF fund-raising appearance.

Moore made his breakthrough in the 1960s television series, "The Saint," before acting in seven James Bond movies during the 1970s and 1980s.

WHAT IS THE GODHEAD?
By Homer Anderson

The doctrine of three Divine Persons in the Godhead is definitely taught in the Scriptures. Used many times throughout the Old Testament is a plural Hebrew noun, Elohim, implying a plurality of Persons in the Godhead. "In the beginning God (Elohim) created the heavens and the earth" (Genesis 1:1). We can know of a certainty that Elohim in this passage includes not only the Father, but also the Son and the Holy Spirit, for the latter two Persons shared in the work of creation (See Col. 1:16; Heb. 1:2; Gen. 1:2, 26; Psa. 104:30; John 1:1-3, 14).

All three persons in the Godhead are set forth in the account of Christ's baptism (Matt. 3:16-17) and also in connection with the baptism given in the great commission (Matt. 28:19). Also, all three Persons in the Godhead are mentioned in Eph. 2:18, 1 Pet. 1:2, and 2 Cor. 13:14.

Just as certainly as the Bible presents three Persons Who have the essence of Deity, it also clearly proclaims that God is one (Deut. 6:4). The word implies a unity with a plurality of Persons.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

When the going gets tough, the tough get going.

That oft quoted phrase from the world of sports is an apt description of Tim Key, amateur triathlete who has been training intensely for his next triathlon.

Following seven months of rigorous training, the former Snyder High School graduate, will test his mettle in the Gatorade Triathlon World Championship Saturday, Oct. 30, on the Big Island of Hawaii.

The Ironman consists of a 2.4-mile ocean swim, 112-mile bike race and a 26.2-mile run, to be completed within 17 hours. Competitors vye for some $160,000 in prize money.

Nearly 20,000 triathletes from more than 50 countries annually attempt to qualify for this triathlon.

To qualify for this event, Tim recently finished 79th overall and 22nd in his age group (25-29) in Ironman Canada. He finished the three event race in 10 hours, 14 minutes and 23 seconds.

The triathlon season usually runs from May through October, but a few triathlons are held throughout the year. He competes mainly in Texas.

Tim "does his best thinking" before a race. Weeks before it begins, he said people start asking him, "Are you excited?" His answer is always "no." He said he would "rather be by himself" when the day of the race comes because he doesn't want to let "all my energy out" before the race begins.

Tim's strong suit is that he's a good bike rider. He rides an Allsop Softride, designed and made especially for time trials, but that effort and "going against the clock. more because that's where I have to finish the race."

"I can rest after the race, but I can't afford to rest during the race," he added.

Triathlons are a series of "highs and lows," but Tim said he has "learned to push through the lows to get to the next high, which can be people cheering on the side of the road as I race by. People yelling their support helps me forget

During triathlons, Tim said aid mile, offering water, carbohydrates, drinks, cookies, candy, sugar, caffeine and Coke without the fizz.

Tim has "to balance" whatever he takes in at an aid station. Since water can be absorbed easier, he tries to drink every 15 minutes. Power bars are also helpful because of the sugar content.

The hardest part of a race can be the start of the swim which usually [illegible] sionally gotten an elbow in the eye, but no serious injury.

Triathletes do have a code of rules to observe, though. For instance, they are not allowed to "draft" or use another "rider to break their wind."

During the bike ride, Tim explained that each rider has to pass the person in front or else he/she must go back and go around.

For shorter races, Tim said he has "to be more strategic. Fighting through people can slow me down."

Officials are positioned in all the transitional areas as triathletes [illegible] triathlon competition.

Though triathlons are co-ed, men still dominate the sport. Competitors of all ages take part, with the youngest usually around 17 years old. However, Tim said he has participated in races where the youngest was 14 years old.

He has been training "solid" since March, taking off two weeks to rest after Ironman Canada. After the Ironman in Hawaii, Tim will return to his base fitness program.

His training coach is Clark Campbell, former triathlete who now coaches college swimming. Tim and his coach set up his training schedule and plot strategies through correspondence usually.

Last year he said he trained in Colorado because "the higher altitude is better for workouts."

Tim follows a specific training schedule, starting out slow and easy, and increasing 10 percent every week until he has worked up to a more rigorous level of exercise.

He began working on "base fitness" first, starting with shorter distances but a more intense workout. He spends four days each week working on each phase of the triathalon competition, combining — for instance — a "hard swim" with an "easier bike ride," or a "harder ride" with an "easier run."

Tim takes Fridays off and practices LSD, an acronym for "long, slow distance," on weekends. He also trains with weights twice a week. This helps to add tone but not bulk to his muscles.

He often engages in "brick" workouts which means that two events are completed "back to back."

While triathlons are demanding, Tim said that proper training ensures that he will have the stamina to go from one event to the other. It also helps the race to go pretty fast and cuts down on injuries.

"My body can take a lot, but I have to do it right. I can't do too much too quick."

He occasionally suffers "road rash" which occurs during spills or falls.

Most races are run in two hours but "sprints" or shorter distance races can be completed in under two hours, he added. The Ironmen competitions usually take much longer.

Tim said he is "driven" to compete because "I want to test myself. My ultimate goal in testing my limits is to strive for that one perfect performance when I know that I have done my very best. Hopefully, one day soon all my training and hard work will pay off and I will be able to say I've accomplished everything I set out to do and more."

Tim uses a heart monitor for the longer workouts so he can gauge how hard his heart is working. For the longer and slower workouts he said he aims for a lower heart rate.

One of Tim's goals is to become a professional triathlete. Since triathlons are becoming a fulltime committment, he has not yet graduated from college.

Tim needs sponsors in order to pursue his triathlon dreams. They will enable him to train and compete year round. The most significant obstacle so far, he said, "is to gain the recognition and sponsorship I need." He said it takes five [illegible] is not easy to do in Texas "where the sport of triathlon competition is not very well known or understood," he said.

To further his goals, Tim said he moved to Lubbock in January and now lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Key, former residents of Fluvanna.

Eating the correct food and getting enough rest are essential for triathletes. Tim often rests in the afternoon because unless he is "calm and relaxed" he said he is more fatigued the next day.

He also eats 4-5 small meals a day rather than three large meals. With his rigorous schedule he said he doesn't have to count calories but instead tries to eat what he wants of the "right things."

His diet consists of low fat, high carbohydrate, high protein foods which help him to build his muscles back up. Living at home, he said it helps that his mother prepares his meals.

He tries to eat within 15 minutes of completing a workout because "that's when my body is best ready to accept food."

He also eats chicken and fish rather than red meat. He eats more [illegible] protein earlier in the week because that's when he does his longer [illegible] workouts.

Carbohydrates also help to replenish his muscles. His body stores carbohydrates which he needs for the day of the race.

During training and competition, Tim said he also consumes Leppin which is pure carbohydrate because it can be absorbed directly into his bloodstream. It's not appetizing, but it works and that's what is important he said.

To relax, Tim said he likes to go to a movie.

Even though triathlon training and competition is strenuous, Tim can't think of anything he would rather do. He had been a motocross contender but switched to triathlons in 1988. He explained the transition this way:

"I came from a motocross career that was cut short by injuries. My training for motocross transferred directly to triathlons. I competed for the first time in Houston in 1988 with moderate succcess.

"My second attempt was one month later in Phoenix, Ariz., where I learned the sport of triathlon is not only a test of physical endurance, but one of mental toughness.

"After suffering from an early season injury in 1991, I returned in [illegible] first overall win at the Harder Memorial Biathlon in Abilene. In December, 1992, I set a personal record of 3:00:47 at the Dallas White Rock Marathon."

After suffering an on-the-job injury in June of 1992, Tim said his doctors took him off of all training and competition for two months, until his body had a chance to heal. During those eight weeks he could only swim.

Tim has always liked sports and has tried several before deciding to concentrate on triathlons. In fact, he said this is the most effort he has ever made for any of the sports he has tried.

He was 13 when he entered motocross competition, something he pursued for about 10 years. He is now 26 years old. He had achieved a certain level of recognition in motocross before he switched to triathlons.

Besides motocross, Tim also played baseball.

Reared in Fluvanna, Tim attended Snyder High School, graduating in 1985. He attended Western Texas College parttime. At Texas Tech University he is considering switching his major from international trade economics to the field of sports medicine.

Tim's long range goal is to become a trainer and a coach. He also likes to coach children and worked as a ski instructor in Colorado.

McKinney church ceremony...

Parrish, Travis unite

McKINNEY — Nicole Suzette Parrish of Denton and Ethan Clay Travis of Lake Dallas were married in a double-ring ceremony at 7 p.m. on July 24 in the North Baptist Church in McKinney.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parrish of McKinney and the groom'e parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Travis of Snyder.

Bob Gosling of Plano officiated the formal ceremony in a sanctuary of the church set with large bouquets of white gladioli and delphenium. These were flanked by fan-shaped arrangements of blue delphenium, lavender gladioli, purple statice, gold alstroemeria lilies, and fuchsia dendrobium orchids.

Brass candelabra, holding votive cups and tapers completed the background for the wedding party, and white satin bows and ivy marked the aisles.

Lighting candles were Landon Bowers and Chas Stroud, nephews of the groom.

Erin Rambo of Waco, soloist, performed "How Beautiful" and Carlos Aguilar, classical guitarist accompanied by a flute, performed a special arrangement by Juliana.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Victorian satin gown, accented on bodice with iridescent sequins and pearls. She carried a waterfall, cascading bouquet of white Japhett orchids, roses, pixie carnations and dendrobium orchids. It was accented with jewel-tone flowers including blue delpheniums, fuchsia dendrobiums orchid, gold alstroemeria lilies cardinal red roses, purple statice and misty-blue lace.

Maid of honor was Beth Mills of Plano. Bridesmaids were Angela Parrish of McKinney, Lisa Whitney of Denton and Cathy Vestal of Carrollton. Attendants wore dresses featuring white chiffon skirts and black shoulder wraps over taffeta bodices. They were made by Bettie Gourley, aunt of the groom. The attendants carried short, cascading jewel-tone flowers, matching the bride's bouquet.

Flower girl was Ashley Anne Stroud of Snyder, niece of the groom.

Josh Parrish of McKinney, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Best man was Brandon Weaver of Lake Dallas. Groomsmen were Drew Travis of Snyder, brother of the groom; Chuck Parrish of McKinney, brother of the bride; and Chad Garlington of Lubbock.

The male attendants and the groom wore black tuxedos.

Susan O'Neill of Dallas was the wedding director and also made the flower girl's dress.

A reception followed the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. Tables were arranged and serviced by a local establishment, Reta's Cake Shop.

The three-tiered bride's cake, adorned with gumpaste flowers, made by the groom's family, highlighted the surpentine table. The punch bowl belonged to Bertie and Melvin Travis, grandparents of the groom. Brass candelabra and tulle draping backed the table.

Reception music was provided by Carlos Aguilar. Shelly Stroud and Kelly Bowers, both sisters of the groom, served.

The groom's table held a red-red cake topped with marzipan fruits. Malli Galloway of Snyder served.

Mr. and Mrs. Travis have made their home in Lake Dallas where the groom is attending North Texas State University as an advertising art major. He works at the Olive Garden in Lewisville. The groom is a 1989 Snyder High School graduate and attended WTC two years.

The bride is a 1989 graduate of Plano's high school and is attending NTSU, majoring in speech therapy. She is employed in the jewelry department in Denton's Wal-Mart.

Fat-free cookie

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (AP) — The Nabisco Biscuit Co. says it has opened a fourth production line for its popular SnackWell's Fat Free Devil's Food Cookie Cakes.

The new production line at One Devil's Food Lane in North Sioux City, S.D., will allow Nabisco to make 1 million of the fat-free, chocolate-coated cookies a day, the company says. Nabisco says it hopes this will allievate shortages that have occurred since the cookie was introduced in August 1992.

October, November events set

Christy Thompson presided at the Martha Ann Woman's Club's board meeting where upcoming events were planned and committe reports were heard.

The first scheduled event is Game Day which incudes a luncheon and a bake sale. The luncheon will begin at 11:30 Wednesday, Oct. 27, and will be followed by games of choice. A bake sale will be open to members and nonmembers during the day at the clubhouse. All members are [illegible] baked goods.

A [illegible] will be held at Towle Park Barn on Nov. 13 and club members are asked to bring their items on Friday from 1 to 5 p.m. The sale will begin on Saturday at 8 a.m. and end at 1 p.m.

A Christmas Fantasy style show will be held at 11:30 a.m., Nov. 20, at MAWC and tickets are $9 per adult and $5 per child. Fashions will be shown by local merchants and Margaret Drum of Margaret's Dress Shop, will coordinate the affair.

All MAWC members are asked to help decorate the clubhouse for the Christmas season on Nov. 29 beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Nov. 30, the board has planned a Holiday Festival and White Elephant Show.

Treasurer Frances Denman reported that $174.48 was made at the previous game day. She said several club dues of $162 have not been paid. These dues are used for club expenses.

Mrs. Thompson introduced new members Francine Noah, Doris Spikes and ElWanda Nall.

Ask Anne & Nan

By Anne B. Adams & Nancy Nash-Cummings

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Does anyone have recipes for sugarless cookies, cakes and fruit cakes? I sure hope you can help me, as there are three diabetic persons who would like some homemade ones. —E. LOBINSKY, McHenry, Ill.

DEAR E.: "The American Diabetes Association Holiday Cookbook" by Betty Wedman (Prentice-Hall Press, $19.95) has all the holiday recipes you will ever need. You can order it directly from the association by calling 1-800-232-3472, Ext. 363.

As there will be an added charge of $4.50 for shipping and handling, you might prefer to order the book from your local bookstore, which surely has additional cookbooks for diabetics in their cooking section.

We hasten to add, however, that purchasing a book (or books) is not your only option. We'll bet that your local library has cookbooks that have been written especially for diabetics, and if they don't, they can get them for you through inter-library Loan.

Henley family gathers at Union

The Henley family and friends held their annual reunion on Oct. 10 in the Union Community Center.

Wayne Pitner was pianist for a quartet, Harold Henley, Glenn Minnick, Louise Poston and Katherine Minnick, who sang a special hymn. Pitner also played for a group singing which was led by Katherine Minnick.

Receiving special prizes were Nell Blacksher, Edith Lankford, Gelana Minnick, Bobbie Rodgers, Mary Pitner and Donna Nehring.

Attending were Edith Lankford of Roby; Nell and Bennett Blacksher of Burleson; Harold and Joan Henley of Stanton; Louise, Virgil and Willie Poston of Alba; Niki Harris of Sweetwater. Coming from Lubbock were Wayne and Mary Pitner, Andrew, Katherine, Glenn, Gelana and Mike Minnick and Misty and Chelsey Bryant.

Snyder residents were David and Tittle Lunsford; Doug and Donna Nehring; Bobbie and A.C. Rodgers; Katie Barnes; Kerry, Adam and Matt Rodgers; J.P. and Frances Pitner and Jackie Adams.

Special honor went to Curtis Corbell and Lenard Lankford who were ill and unable to attend.

The group made plans to meet again on Oct. 9, 1994, for its next reunion.

See it first, not last

By Phillip Alder

Hindsight is the ability to see what you claim you saw with foresight.

At the bridge table, many people are great at seeing the right play when they know the layout of all 52 cards. The expert, though, finds the right play during the deal, not afterward in the post-mortem.

Kit Woolsey, one of America's most successful tournament players, wrote an excellent book entitled "Partnership Defense in Bridge." But in today's deal he found a great defensive play unaided.

North's double was negative, promising hearts. You might not like it with such weak hearts and such great diamonds, but note that five diamonds must lose three heart tricks, whereas four hearts can be made.

West led the spade queen. Declarer won with dummy's ace and called for a trump. Immediately Woolsey went up with his king and switched to the diamond eight.

To South, this looked for all the world like a singleton. If so and if declarer finessed in diamonds now, there was a grave risk that a diamond ruff would defeat the contract. The defenders might win one diamond and three heart tricks; whereas, if East had three trumps including the ace-king, rising with the diamond ace and playing another heart through East would be successful.

So declarer won with his diamond ace and went down in his contract, losing three trump tricks and a fourth trick to East's diamond king.

Who would claim that South misplayed? Woolsey found a great play and deserved his success.

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

Pets Abandoned in Country Are Often Condemned to Death

DEAR ABBY: I have lived on a farm for 27 years. Within that period of time, I have seen hundreds of animals (mostly dogs) dropped off and abandoned by owners who think they are doing their animals a service by giving them a chance to find another home rather than putting them to sleep.

I realize that some of these owners don't care what happens. Most of these animals slowly starve to death. Some of them don't get that far because they get hit along the road waiting for their owners to come back for them.

The dogs that do make it to a house either get run off by the dogs that already live there or the homeowner shoots the dog in the head because it's more humane than letting the animal starve to death.

We own five dogs. Each dog costs us about $100 a year to feed. That doesn't include licensing, shots, worming, spaying, flea collars, vet bills, etc.

Abby, I ask you, do these people think country homeowners take in an unlimited number of animals and everyone lives happily ever after?

DIANE SMITH, DUNDEE, OHIO

DEAR DIANE: No, they are irresponsible people who are unwilling to bear the expense of disposing of their pet in a more humane and responsible manner, so they just dump the pet like a discarded toy. Everybody who can read or watch television knows what the options are.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: About six years ago, I attended the wedding of a college friend. I did not, however, bring or send a wedding gift. We lost touch with each other and I still feel very guilty about this. How can I make up for my lack of judgment?

I really had no reason for not bringing a gift to the wedding, and I did not know that I had the option of sending one to the bride's home. In any event, I would like to redeem myself.

I recently bumped into the bride's sister and I do know where the couple is living. Please, let me know how I can remedy the embarrassing situation. Is it too late to send a gift?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: No. (A gift received out of the blue may be more appreciated today than it would have been six years ago, when the couple received many!)

Just enclose a short note saying that you have always been bothered by the fact that you didn't give them something at the time of their marriage.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Although I've read your column for many years, I never thought I would have reason to write to you. But after reading about cheap husbands, I had to write.

Several years ago, shortly before Mother's Day, a local store was giving away White Sox T-shirts with every $5 purchase.

Well, guess what my husband gave me for Mother's Day — one of those T-shirts.

I was furious until I had an idea. I took the T-shirt, rewrapped it and gave it to him for Father's Day. (He's still wearing it.)

DEAR ABBY: I am writing concerning wives who know nothing about their financial situation, where important documents are kept, etc. Abby, you failed to realize that there are families where the wife handles all finances, and the husband would be hard-pressed to know all vital information should his wife become seriously ill or die.

I review with my husband twice a year the important items, but he has no idea where our savings are invested, the balance in our IRAs, how much our life insurance policies cost, etc.

I made a list of all these items, safe-deposit box number, location, where the keys are; insurance carrier and policy numbers with telephone numbers; all bank accounts, addresses and telephone numbers; mortgage company name, account, phone; auto loan account, name and phone; where and who has copies of our wills; our primary doctor's name and phone number; also the names, addresses and phone numbers of immediate family members and close friends.

Due to my sister's suicide last year, I realize the importance of this information being available. I gave copies to our parents, our children's guardian and two close friends.

TRACY LEE ELMORE, EDMONDS, WASH.

DEAR TRACY LEE: You exemplify the ultimate in consideration. Others could learn from you.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am an Asian American who was born and raised in the United States. In my line of work I meet a lot of people, and frankly, I am tired of people asking me where I am from — then reacting with disbelief when I tell them I'm from Montgomery, Ala.

Some people have asked me how I like it here in the United States, or whether or not I will be staying long. Others have complimented me on my "excellent English."

Abby, would you please suggest a polite way of telling these people that my genealogy is none of their business, and that the only authentic Americans in the United States are the native American Indians?

ASIAN AMERICAN IN ALABAMA

DEAR ASIAN AMERICAN: Strangers don't mean to be unkind; they are simply trying to establish a point of contact with you. You could be rude and tell them that your genealogy is none of their business — or simply smile and proudly say, "I am an Asian American."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My older sister is planning to celebrate her 50th wedding anniversary. Her husband has been dead for three years.

Is it customary to celebrate an occasion of this sort when only one of the partners is alive? I feel strange acknowledging this celebration. Should I attend if I am invited?

HAVING DOUBTS

DEAR HAVING DOUBTS: Although it is most unusual to celebrate a wedding anniversary when one of the couple is no longer living, since the hostess is your sister, do attend.

Your sister appears to be living in the past, but don't risk hurting her feelings by declining her invitation.

Clinton plan to boost grazing fees in jeopardy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's plan to boost grazing fees on thousands of ranchers using federal lands is in jeopardy following the Senate's refusal to choke off a filibuster by opponents.

The Senate voted 53-41 Thursday to halt the filibuster, falling short of the 60 votes needed to bring the procedural delays to an end. The vote came despite arguments from supporters that the higher charges were fair and would forestall even steeper rates threatened by Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt.

"It's time for senators to end the gridlock and give the American people a vote on this issue," Babbitt said after the vote. "It's time they put aside their partisan and regional divisions and consider the national interest."

But foes, mainly from the West, said the plan to nearly double the fees and tighten land-use restrictions would be a staggering blow to ranchers who use the government's vast holdings for their herds. And they predicted that Babbitt would not use his administrative powers to impose the higher fees on his own.

"Bona fide interests in the West will make their voices known all the way to the presidency" that the administration plan is unacceptable, said Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., the leader of the dissidents.

Though work on that measure ground to a crawl, lawmakers sprinted through a collection of other spending bills, 21 days after fiscal 1994 had begun and all the measures were supposed to be finished.

By Thursday night, eight of the 13 annual appropriations bills had been sent to Clinton. To keep agencies going whose budgets were incomplete, Congress by voice votes sent Clinton a temporary measure keeping them running another week. It was the second stopgap spending bill since Oct. 1.

Also Thursday:

—The Senate shipped Clinton a $23.4 billion measure for the departments of State, Justice and Commerce by a 90-10 vote. The bill continues broadcasts by Radio Marti and TV Marti into Fidel Castro's Cuba, and provides $402 million for United Nations peacekeeping missions — less than half what the president sought.

—On voice votes, the House and Senate sent Clinton a $38.6 billion bill financing transportation programs. The measure includes $257 million for bus projects that senators and House members doled out to specific communities in their home states.

—The Senate used a voice vote to give final approval to an $87.7 billion measure financing veterans, housing and space programs. The bill would provide $2.1 billion for the proposed space station, kill a NASA rocket motor project in Mississippi and supply $15.6 billion for medical care for veterans.

The grazing fee language was included in a bill providing $13.4 billion for the Interior Department and federal cultural programs.

The legislation also included $163.5 million for a survey of American plants and animals that conservatives complain could cut property values where endangered species are found. It also has $302 million for expenses of the Smithsonian Institution.

Kosher food shops spring up in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — An Orthodox rabbi in a traditional black coat and hat admonished the customers crowding to get kosher meat at Moscow's first Jewish food shop.

"You have been waiting for two hours. I waited 70 years for this," Rabbi Yitzhak Kogan told them as a saleswoman put the finishing touches on rows of neatly packed chickens bearing kosher labels.

The opening Thursday involved only one counter inside an ordinary Russian food store. Despite its small size, it was another sign of a revival of Jewish religion and culture in Russia since the collapse of Communist rule.

The Soviet Union, which was officially atheist, allowed a handful of synagogues to function. But it discriminated against Jews and conducted anti-Zionist campaigns that were often anti-Semitic as well.

About 500,000 Jews emigrated from the Soviet Union to Israel and the United States before democratic changes brought greater freedom at home.

Emigration rules were relaxed, and about 500,000 more Jews left for Israel after 1989. But many Jews were put off by reports of unemployment and lack of housing in the Jewish state, deciding to take their chances in a new Russia. Emigration fell to 64,000 in 1992 and has continued to decline.

Most of Russia's estimated 1.5 million Jews are not religious and have little knowledge of Jewish traditions, but they view the Jewish revival as a litmus test of Russian society's openness.

Moscow alone, with about 500,000 Jews, now has a Jewish theater and restaurant, a second synagogue and most recently, a kosher fast-food restaurant, Gamburger.

There are also several Jewish newspapers, a Jewish school, Jewish summer camps, Hebrew classes, professional training courses for prospective emigrants and a bakery that make matzo, the unleavened bread eaten during the Passover holiday.

Lecturers and teachers often arrive from Israel, whose Moscow embassy runs a cultural center, complete with computers and a library.

Much of this revival can also be credited to American Jewish groups such as the New York-based Orthodox Chabad Lubavitch movement. It backed the new kosher food department, in a store on the busy Garden Ring road in central Moscow.

The counter offers kosher chicken and beef, a small selection of biscuits, American-baked matzo and instant food imported from Israel.

"Two other stores want us to open kosher departments," said Kogan, an Israeli who left Russia seven years ago after a 14-year wait.

Kosher meat was the biggest problem, said Kogan, now vice president of the Lubavitch movement in Moscow.

"There is a large private demand. In addition, many religious schools, kindergartens and youth centers consume kosher food," Kogan said. However, "we could not find a supplier of healthy cattle. Ninety percent of cattle around Moscow is sick with pneumonia."

So the beef is brought from Saratov on the Volga River, and chickens come from a plant in Zvenigorod, near Moscow.

About a dozen customers besieged the counter minutes after the opening, and the first load of meat, more than half a ton, was running out fast.

"We always observed Jewish traditions and kept a kosher home," said David Shalolashvili, who was born in the former Soviet republic of Georgia. "We used to get meat at the synagogue, or take live chickens to a ritual slaughterer."

"Sometimes, we would get along with no meat at all," he said.

Austin votes to quiet car stereos

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin City Council has a word for cacophonous car stereo owners: Shush!

Council members, who call Austin the "Live Music Capital of the World" and open their meetings with a musical act, have decided it's time to turn down the volume on city streets.

A measure approved Thursday makes it illegal to play a car radio, stereo receiver, compact disc player or cassette tape so loud that it's audible 30 feet away or "causes a person to be aware of the vibration accompanying the sound" at that distance.

Violators could be charged with a Class C misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $500.

The measure exempts loudspeakers used in political campaigns and emergency sirens.

Chris Lewis, who competes in and judges car stereo competitions, said the new law "sounds pretty clumsy. It will probably be challenged as unfair and discriminatory."

Federal troops were ordered out of New Orleans in 1877, ending the North's post-Civil War rule in the South.

Composition of FEC ruled unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-judge federal appeals court ruled Friday that the composition of the Federal Election Commission is unconstitutional because it includes two non-voting members employed by Congress.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, acting in a suit by the National Rifle Association, said the Constitution's separation of powers doctrine bars the secretary of the Senate and the House clerk from serving on the FEC.

The ruling, if upheld or left undisturbed by the Supreme Court, presumably will force a change in the makeup of the commission that regulates campaign financing.

The ruling apparently does not mean the FEC will be forced to disband. The three-judge appeals court panel said the problem could be remedied by eliminating the two congressional officers.

PS investors might get money back

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investors who think they were hoodwinked into buying risky limited partnerships from Prudential Securities Inc. stand a chance to get some or all of their money back.

To settle charges brought by securities regulators, Prudential is creating a $330 million fund to compensate investors who were defrauded in limited partnership deals between 1980 and 1990.

The settlement, announced Thursday, is the largest ever reached between regulators and a brokerage firm accused of retail sales abuses.

It is exceeded only by the $650 million that now-defunct junk-bond firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. agreed to pay in 1989. Most of Drexel's business was with corporations and savings and loans, while Prudential sold the limited partnerships to retirees and other individuals.

Without admitting or denying wrongdoing, Prudential also agreed to pay:

— A $10 million fine to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

— A $5 million fine to the National Association of Securities Dealers, the brokerage industry's watchdog group.

— $26 million that will eventually go to the 50 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia. Texas, which is still investigating Prudential's activities within its borders, is the only state that hasn't approved the agreement.

"We are pleased to bring this matter to a close in a manner that fully recognizes the valid claims of investors who may have been sold limited partnerships in the 1980s that were improperly marketed or unsuitable for their investment needs," said Hardwick Simmons, president of Prudential.

The North American Securities Administrators Association, a state-level stock regulator group, has set up a 24-hour, toll-free telephone hotline for the next month to inform investors about the settlement and how to [illegible] on the fund.

State regulators want the settlement to be "investor friendly" and put "as much money back into the hands of as many defrauded investors as possible," said Craig Goettsch, Iowa's superintendent of securities and head of the state group.

An estimated $8 billion was raised by Prudential-Bache Securities, as the firm was formerly known, in more than 700 separate limited partnership offerings [illegible] during the 1980s.

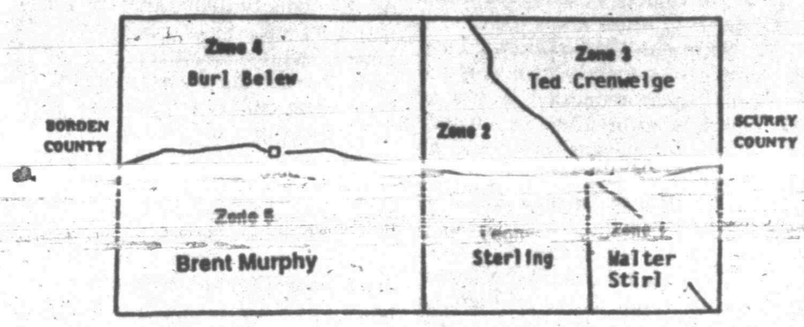
UPPER COLORADO SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT 1993 ANNUAL REPORT

In April, 1993, Jimmy Apel, RC&D coordinator at Sweetwater, received a plaque designating him as Outstanding State RC&D Coordinator for 1993. Jimmy received the award because of his outstanding assistance provided the Big Country RC&D Council. In 1993, Apel was responsible for developing grants that generated 1.8 million dollars into the 12 Big Country RC&D counties. The Borden and Scurry County RC&D Councils and the Upper Colorado SWCD would like to congratulate Apel on his award and thank him for his invaluable assistance. Marlin Breaux, State RC&D president, is shown presenting Apel the plaque.

Report Sponsored by the Directors of the Upper Colorado SWCD



Connie Robbins, District Clerk/Technician

Regular monthly meetings are held on the third (3rd) Thursday at noon at the Snyder Country Club, Snyder, TX. Phone (915) 573-6317 for additional information or reservations.

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District is a legal subdivision of the State of Texas, governed by five elected directors. Our self-governed district has a working agreement with the Soil Conservation Service to provide Technical assistance for planning, application and management of conservation practices.

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District wishes everyone a happy and prosperous year in 1994. Our sincere thanks go out to each person, business, organization and unit of government who helped us in our effort to make the district a more satisfying place in which to live and work. A special thanks to the Snyder Field Office Staff of the Soil Conservation Service for providing technical assistance necessary for us to carry out our objectives. District Conservationist, Terry Hefner and Range Conservationist, Mike Squires have helped make our accomplishments in conservation possible.

A SPECIAL THANK YOU

To all of you who made individual contributions to the District, we cannot express enough our most sincere appreciation. Your individual contributions made possible many of the programs and information we offered. The State Legislators decide how much money is allocated for "Matching Funds" and "Technical Assistance Funds". Although costs have risen, we have received the same amount in allocation for the past several years which no longer covers our entire budget and needs. Thank you again for your contributions; they are needed. Your support is appreciated!!!

FARMER AWARD — Tim Collier and his wife, Connie, accepted the Conservation Farmer Award from Upper Colorado SWCD Director Burl Below. Collier accepted on behalf of himself and Keith Collier, owners of T&K Farms. (SDN Staff Photo)

Our Awards Banquet in April, 1993, was a hugh success. Special thanks to Billie Jean Sterling for the floral arrangements on each table. Also special thanks to Cowboy Poet, Jackie Greene, who furnished the Delightful entertainment. A VERY SPECIAL THANKS to our four (4) sponsors. Without their support, the banquet could not have been the success it was.

Letters to the Editor

Keep promises

Dear Editor:

The working class of people in Snyder have something in common, whether they belong to United We Stand, America or not. We are concerned when property taxes, utility bills and health insurance continue to go up. We care that we have so many unemployed in the United States, yet we buy so many products from overseas. It is hard for products made in the United States to compete with items imported and which sell for a cheaper price. We care that jobs go to foreigners when we have unemployed people in the United States. We care that our state economy is hurt by oil imports.

The latter has been a problem for a long time, regardless of what presidential party is in office it doesn't improve a lot. Every adult in Snyder wants our politicians to keep the promises they made when running for office.

I believe that most people in Snyder would not care for an organization checking into city government if it is done in a business-like manner. They are concerned when UWSA members discuss things that sound like a threat, such as rolling back sales tax, recalling city council members and disincorporating the city.

A lot of people just want to know why UWSA feels that it is necessary to discuss these things without letting the remainder of people in Snyder know why they are even thinking about it. We do not know of any wrong our city officials have done. The UWSA needs to tell us why they want them recalled. They need to tell us why a sales tax rollback of only ½ cent would help and why disincorporating the city would help. The majority of people will not be at your meetings so just tell us in the paper, where everyone can read it.

The problem in Snyder is not going to be easily solved, we had a good oil economy for about 40 years, oil companies paid taxes and we lived the good life with good schools, our college, coliseum, and other things that money buys. The oil economy is no longer what it was and many oil companies have moved, but no one wants to give up anything they have become accustomed to.

So to maintain our way of living we have to pay more taxes to keep things going, but there is going to have to be a limit on taxes and utilities because many people are already paying all they can afford to. It is something we need to think about. We no longer have an oil boom and royalty owners no longer receive the size checks they once did.

Every adult in Snyder wants our politicians to keep the promises they made when running for office, if the promises they made were to make things better for us.

Sincerely,
Betty Boyd
Snyder, TX

Enough!

Dear Editor:

Enough is enough! It is time for an attempt by everyone for a fresh start.

First of all, let me begin by stating that I am not currently a member of United We Stand America, which qualifies me to give the following viewpoint:

In order to understand the decision of the mayor and city councilmen not to attend the UWSA meeting, one needs to be on the outside looking in — from this perspective, here is the way some people may have viewed this conflict.

A meeting was held by UWSA in which the Scurry County Commissioners were invited to attend. Many UWSA members viewed this as a good meeting — well handled and respectfully executed. Regardless of what the facts may be, word spread rapidly that the commissioners were treated with disrespect and rudeness. I know for a fact that at least one member of UWSA personally apologized to all four commissioners. I heard that some of the other members — a small number of them — also apologized.

In light of this, again whether fact or rumor, word spread that a "Bar-B-Q" had taken place.

So in order to be informed and prepared, evidently the mayor and councilmen requested a list of questions to be given in advance so the correct answers could be provided. I believe the mayor had already declined to attend, but offered to provide any information the group requested.

UWSA then compiled a list of questions and delivered them to the mayor. I personally have read the list of questions, most of which were direct questions, intelligently stated and deserving of an answer. However, a few of the questions, perhaps offered with good intentions, were nonetheless, either insulting, accusatory or unnecessary.

As an example:

Question No. 5: Why is the City of Lubbock able to install a landfill which meets state environmental standards at $100,000 per acre when the City of Snyder is paying $1.4 million an acre. Is anyone getting a kickback?

This question goes beyond subtle implication. This question directly accuses city officials of illegal activity that would have been a felony, if it were true. Charges of this magnitude should never be stated publicly, unless proof of the crime can be rendered. This question simply goes beyond insult.

Question No. 23: What was the cost of the trip to Austin in September for the mayor and his entourage?

This question in its wording implies that there was personal use of taxpayer funds spent by an officer of the city who behaves in a manner one might term "big-shot" — to transport his many personal assistants where'er he may go. This is insulting. Although it is the privilege and responsibility of taxpayers to inquire of the spending of tax dollars and to ensure that those dollars are both legally and properly spent, insults, whether direct or implied, are not necessary.

Understanding the rumors concerning the meeting with the commissioners and having seen these two questions that were to be asked, a proper assumption would be that a "Bar-B-Q" of city officials was planned for the next UWSA meeting.

I also understand that the leadership of UWSA had laid down ground rules for future meetings to be sure that guests would be treated with courtesy and respect. In view of past meetings, this was a necessary action.

It is easy to understand, after the past UWSA meetings, why city officials or other voluntary board members would decline to attend a UWSA meeting. The word "voluntary" is the key here. In the case of the commissioners, they are salaried employees of the taxpayers of this county. All other board members are unpaid, elected volunteers who generously give of their time and energy to ensure the betterment of our community. Their meetings are, by law, open to the public, and anyone desiring financial or any other information pertaining to the taxpayers, is welcome to attend. Also by law, the time and date of these meetings are posted 72 hours before being held.

I, for one, find it easy to understand the reluctance of the mayor and city council members to attend any UWSA meeting.

I learned years ago that it is easy to take a good reputation and turn it bad, and it is very difficult to take a bad reputation — whether justified or not — and turn it into a good reputation. But, with time and diligence, a damaged reputation can be repaired.

United We Stand America has the potential to be one of the finest organizations of taxpayers the county has ever seen. Many of the people involved are inelligent, talented and respected. Whether or not the reputation of "holding a Bar-B-Q" is deserved, it can, with time and positive action, be forgotten. We must remember that our system of government offers many avenues in which one can invoke change. Working together, any needed changes can be accomplished. I have no doubt that UWSA is capable of playing an important role in the future of our community.

Let us all work diligently to improve our lines of communication, for when we are all understood, we will be both respected and appreciated.

Let's let it all go, and start fresh.

Respectfully,
Michael B. Dennis

No memories

Dear Editor:

I moved to Hobbs, N.M. from Snyder last Christmas. I am 16 years old and a junior. My sister brought me my annual and I almost died. I could not believe what I saw. (Almost nothing).

There were 31 seniors missing, 23 juniors, 25 sophomores, (neither my name nor picture was in there), also 22 freshman.

The annual is supposed to be a keep-sake and also for memories. But, for all the seniors and the people who have moved; we have nothing to look back on. Everyone is practically gone. I think instead of all the "pet" stories they could have worked on "other" stories or the mug shots. At least that has something to do with SHS.

I understand that Mr. Nickell left, but the school should have hired a person to help the students make the yearbook.

Well... if you ask me, it wasn't worth $10, much less $25.

Oh, one more thing, my sister, Melanie Duncan, had the honor to make Homecoming Queen. In the yearbook, everyone had their dads' in the picture except my sister. My dad should have gotten recognized, too. That's a bit sorry! She was very hurt and upset over that. The way I see it is:

No picture, no yearbook, no memories!

Thanks a lot SHS!!!

Misinterpreted

Dear Editor:

Unfortunately, some of the comments I have written in recent public letters have been received in a spirit entirely the opposite from my intentions. Therefore, I would like to respond to the letter, printed in the Oct. 17 issue of the Snyder Daily News, from Ms. Lynda McCormack regarding my support for the North American Free Trade Agreement.

I am sorry that Ms. McCormack felt that I have taken the concerns that have been raised about NAFTA lightly. Nothing could be further from the truth. I take the concerns that have been raised about NAFTA very seriously and welcome the input of individuals on both sides of this issue. As I have said and written repeatedly, many reasonable questions have been asked, and they deserve answers. I have looked into every

Disappointed

Dear Editor:

There were a lot of girls disappointed about not being contacted for the fall softball teams. This is supposed to be a sport for all girls that are interested to get involved in.

Why was it not run in the paper where all girls would have a chance to play. Some may not play as well as others but they can't learn unless they are given the chance to play.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Well, I'm sitting here trying to write this column, and there is so much junk piled up on my desk I could hardly find the keyboard. The rest of the room looks pretty much the same way. I just got unpacked from a four-day trip to Beaumont, where I was privileged to be one of the keynote speakers at the Golden Triangle Writers Conference there. They flew me out there and put me up in style in one of those hotels where all the rooms open up to the inside and overlook a waterfall and atrium and the elevator is glass.

I tried real hard to miss my teenage kids while I was eating Gulf oysters on the half-shell with my agent and editor and drinking Margaritas with authors like Ridley Pearson and Andrew Neiderman (you may not have ever heard of him, but he writes under a name you may recognize: V.C. Andrews); but let's face it: how many times does a mom get to go out all dressed up in black velvet and be a grown-up?

And it is so much more fun when somebody else is picking up the tab!

This conference was beautifully done: over 60 published authors from all over the country were there to mingle with the conference attendees, (all 400 of them), along with agents from both coasts, editors from top publishers, and representatives of the film industry.

But I was much more impressed by the caliber of law enforcement agents who'd been invited to present seminars to the crime writers among us. During the conference, I got to meet, visit with, and exchange business cards with a secret service agent who'd just completed 17 years in Washington D.C., protecting presidents from Nixon to Clinton; a veteran FBI agent who had personally arrested the infamous Naval officer who sold thousands of documents to the Soviets — John Walker; and a 33-year veteran of the New Orleans homicide squad. (It was funny, he presented this truly gruesome slide show late one night for all us homicide buffs who like accuracy in our stories. My agent, Meg, tagged along with me. After about 20 minutes, she whispered, "It's not that I'm squeamish, it's just that I'm, uh, real tired," and bolted from the room.)

Ridley Pearson, author of such bestselling forensic-science thrillers as "Probable Cause," "Undercurrents," and "Angel Makers," lives on a ranch in the wilds of Wyoming, so he and I could relate. In his seminar, he said, "It's so nice for us to come to these things and get to see real human beings again." (Most of us who spend nine or ten months out of a year working on a novel live like hermits during that time, emerging, blinking and stiff, during the last couple of months to publicize the book we wrote the year before and check to see if the world still exists.) Ridley, by the way, plays in a rock band, "The Rock Bottom Remainders," with a bunch of writers whose names may strike a familiar bell: Stephen King, Dave Barry, Amy Tan, Robert Fulgham, and Barbara Kingsolver.

And it was great fun to hang out with my agent, who, if she weren't my agent, would be one of my best-test friends anyway. We'd sneak out whenever possible with a gaggle of publishing types and sample some of the scrumptious restaurants of the area. During one long and boring awards banquet, we sat at the back of the room whispering catty remarks to each other and giggling.

I must admit, it was somewhat intimidating to get up in front of almost 500 of these esteemed individuals and give a luncheon address. I started out by dumping over 200 rejection slips all over the head table and saying, "If you've ever wondered what it takes to get to be a speaker at one of these things; this is it." After that, the talk was a smash hit and the rest of the trip was icing on the cake.

This week, my agent sends over the (final) 62-page book proposal to my editor, who was thrilled to learn that my new contact with the FBI is going to enable me to do the kind of in-depth research that truly fleshes out a novel of this kind. Needless to say, my heart is in my throat.

Meanwhile, I'm back in my hermit mode, plowing through trip junk and dirty clothes and mediating arguments between the kids and facing a sink full of dishes and shoving everything aside so that I may sit down and click out the words, "Chapter One."

And those rejection slips? They're all packed away, safe and sound, in a compartment of my life entitled, "The Dark and Desperate Days." Meanwhile, the light's so bright around here these days, I gotta wear shades.

Lawsuit against UT law school stands

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal judge has refused to end a reverse-discrimination lawsuit against the University of Texas School of Law.

U.S. District Judge Sam Sparks indicated Thursday that the case would likely go to trial next summer.

At issue is whether UT violated four white applicants' right to equal protection by denying them entrance to the school while admitting minority students who had lower academic credentials.

"The injury is not that they didn't get into law school," said Terral Smith, a lawyer for the applicants. "The injury is that they didn't get to compete equally for positions in the law school."

The school "has a target" for minority admissions, Smith said. Minority enrollment has hovered at 14 to 16 percent of the total enrollment over the past four years, he said.

Sam Issacharoff, an assistant professor of law who represented the university, said UT does not use a quota system to determine who will be admitted. He said minority enrollment varied widely over a 10-year period.

The university uses a three-part approach to screen the approximately 4,000 applications it receives each year. More than half of the approximately 500 members of each entering class are automatically admitted on the basis of a high Texas Index, which is the combination of their college grade point averages and their Law School Admission Test scores.

Thigh cream developers besieged by callers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Developers of a cream that appeared to shrink women's thighs say they have been besieged by callers wanting to know where they can buy it.

"It's been horrible," Dr. Frank Greenway, a clinical professor at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center in Torrance, Calif. said Thursday. "I figured I was presenting to a bunch of scientists. I can't deal with this. I'm back here trying to sort out patients."

Greenway presented the research on the cream this week in Milwaukee at the annual meeting of the North American Association for the Study of Obesity.

Texans again asked to vote on more prison construction

AUSTIN (AP) — For the fourth time in six years and in the middle of possibly the largest prison buildup in the world, Texans will vote on whether to take out a loan to add more lockups to one of the nation's largest prison systems.

The proposed constitutional amendment would allow the issuance of $1 billion in state-backed bonds for the construction of prisons and mental health and mental retardation facilities.

The measure is No. 14 of 16 proposals on the Nov. 2 ballot. Early voting runs from Oct. 13 through Oct. 29.

The proposal is backed by state leaders, and a coalition of law enforcement, mayors, prosecutors and victim's rights groups.

Opposition to the measure comes from a number of groups, including Citizens United for the Rehabilitation of Errants, the Texas Alliance for Human Needs, and the New Alliance Party.

None of those groups say the state should invest its money in education and social services to try and stop the root causes of crime.

Wally Ellinger of CURE said prisons built with the proposed bonds would be for people who now are in elementary school. That money would be more efficiently spent on those children now, he said.

But Sen. John Whitmire, D-Houston, and coauthor of the amendment, said more prisons are needed to help protect Texans from crime.

"People rightfully believe the criminal justice system is broken," he said.

And, he said, the new bonds will pay for an important change in how the state treats criminals.

Much of the bond revenue would go toward construction of a new type of prison called "state jails." In theory, these would be used to incarcerate non-violent offenders long enough for them to benefit from rehabilitation. That would also free up maximum security prisons for violent offenders, making those inmates serve longer portions of their sentence.

Currently, because of overcrowded prison conditions, inmates often serve only one month for every year of their sentence.

"We are working for a safer, saner Texas," Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said recently in discussing the new approach.

The number of inmates and the cost of keeping them locked up has grown dramatically.

There are currently about 60,228 inmates in the prison system, and more than 24,000 inmates backed up in county jails.

By comparison, there are about 64,000 inmates in New York prisons, and 119,000 in California.

But Texas is gearing up to surpass those states.

Financed by a total of $2 billion in bonds approved from 1987 to 1991, the prison system will more than double by 1997 to 128,000 capacity. This includes 12,000 beds for substance abuse programs.

Contingent on voter approval of the $1 billion in bonds, the Legislature has appropriated $320 million for construction of state jails and other corrections facilities through the next fiscal year. Combined with other bond monies, the state is waiting to break ground on 22,000 state jail beds, and possibly 42,000 more after that.

The remainder of the bond money can be used by future Legislatures for prison and mental health facilities.

By the end of the century, state officials have estimated that if current trends continue one of every 21 adult Texans — about 700,000 people — will be incarcerated, on probation, or on parole.

Ellinger says the building boom can never catch up to demand, and must stop.

Paying off the bonds with interest over the next 20 years, and running the new prisons makes the question before voters worth more than $10 billion, he said.

"The public is again being sold a bill of goods — based on the urgent need to reduce crime — by building more schools of crime," he said.

But Whitmire says Texas is finally getting "smart" on crime. The 'lock-em up and throw away the key' mentality is a thing of the past, except when it comes to incarcerating violent criminals, he said.

Proposition 14:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of up to $1 billion in general obligation bonds payable from the general revenues of the state for projects relating to facilities of corrections and mental health and mental retardation institutions."

End Adv for Oct. 9-10 and thereafter

WIPP licensing stirs debate

The governor of Idaho and a New Mexico congressman have expressed reservations about an Energy Department decision to scrap plans for on-site testing of radioactive refuse at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant.

However, Gov. Cecil Andrus said he would grudgingly accept the decision announced Wednesday to do the tests above ground in laboratories.

"Bureaucratic inertia has delayed licensing of WIPP so I have concluded that the surest way to move the test phase forward is to accept the Energy Department decision to study the storage in its laboratories," Andrus said Thursday.

But Andrus said he still believes testing 2,150 feet underground in the 19 bins and one alcove of WIPP's salt caverns southeast of Carlsbad was the best and safest method.

Rep. Joe Skeen, R-N.M., said: "DOE claims this is a decision based on scientific facts. However, they have shown me no scientific justification whatsoever for their decision."

question and concern that has been raised about NAFTA with an open mind. Over the last several months, I have read a great deal of information about NAFTA. I have attended numerous briefings and gatherings in which the issues that have been raised by NAFTA have been discussed at great length. Just today, I spent three hours in a hearing on NAFTA in which the Agriculture Committee heard from several witnesses on both sides of the issue.

Through town hall meetings, letters and phone conversations with citizens of the district, I have tried to answer every question that has been raised about NAFTA in great detail. I have sent information explaining my support for NAFTA and responding to concerns raised by all constituents who have requested this information or response.

I have never claimed that there was unanimous support for NAFTA in the town hall meetings I conducted. What I have said is that when I polled the audience at the town hall meetings, those who opposed NAFTA were in the minority. Often they are a very vocal minority but at every meeting in which I took a poll, more hands went up in support of NAFTA than opposed to NAFTA, with the largest segment responding that they needed more information before they could form an opinion.

NAFTA has been subject to the most extensive public debate of any trade agreement in the history of the United States. I believe that it is very important that we continue this open and thorough debate on NAFTA. The debate comes down to a debate on legitimate differences of opinion about what we should do to create good jobs in the United States. There are many individuals who sincerely believe that NAFTA will result in a net loss of American jobs. I respectfully disagree with this opinion. I believe that levelling the playing field in U.S./Mexican trade, which NAFTA would do, is clearly in America's best interest and would create jobs.

Virtually every one of more than two dozen studies found that NAFTA will produce job growth and increases in real wages in the U.S. These studies are based on actual experience as U.S./Mexico trade has increased, not on undocumented speculation. I am personally aware of several businesses in the Seventeenth District of Texas that would directly benefit from opening up the Mexican market, creating good jobs in the district. The jobs that will be created by NAFTA will be high-paying jobs in industries such as energy-related industries, automobile production, agriculture, chemical production, and several service industries such as telecommunications and financial services.

I treasure the open debate and honest disagreement which can thrive in our political system. I sincerely regret any misunderstanding there could have been about the degree of respect I hold for all of the constituents of the Seventeenth District, regardless of whether or not we agree on every public policy issue. Perhaps the most disturbing element of Ms. McCormack's recent letter is the impression that I would belittle anyone's opinions. I believe that a re-reading of my previous letter will reveal an honest debate on the substance of NAFTA with no point levelled at a personal level. However, should there be any doubt in anyone's mind that a lack of respect was written between the lines, let me say unequivocally that such was not the case. My hope is that we can continue a public debate about the substantive merits of NAFTA, or any other public policy issue for that matter, with respect and without personal attack.

Sincerely yours,
Charles W. Stenholm
Member of Congress
