LIBBY HOLMAN GAINS FREEDOM ON $25,000 BAIL

Cotton Jumps $5 Per Bale As Stock And Other Markets Climb To New Peaks

UPSWING MOST VIOLENT SINCE OCTOBER 1930

Stocks Meet Two Waves Of Profit Taking But Hold Good Gains

IMMENSE TURNOVER

Bonds and All Commodities Feel Strength as Trade Reaches High Mark

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—The most violent upswing in cotton in more than two years, the swiftest trading in stocks in nearly two years and the sharpest advance in bonds in two months marked the big bull push in the nation's leading financial market today.

Cotton surged up more than $5 a bale as the government estimated this year's crop far below the average of recent years and Wall street quickly recalled a short crop in that staple in 1921 was an important factor in boosting the markets out of the post war depression.

Closed Higher

Stocks met three successive waves of profit taking and the last one was sufficient to reduce the day's extreme advance substantially but many leading issues closed $1 to $6 a share higher. The turnover of 5,544,380 was the largest since October of 1930. At the best prices, when many stocks were up $2 to $8 a share, it was a market which would have gladdened the hearts of the bulls even in the prosperity mad days of 1929.

The bond market forged ahead in the last hour, when stocks were slipping off from the crest, and the turnover in this market, at $14,698,000 par value, reached the largest proportions since April, in fact the largest since the leading New York banks formed their $100,000,000 bond investing pool early in June. Advances in many issues, particularly rails and utilities, ranged from $10 to $40 per $1,000 bond. Price averages showed the sharpest gain in this market in two months.

Wheat Jumps

A wide range of staples participated in the advance. Wheat futures at Chicago advanced 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents a bushel, getting up roughly 10 cents from the year's low. Hides were a bull feature of the New York futures market, advancing three-tenths to five-tenths of a cent a pound in the largest

East Texas Oil Fire Kills One, Burns Another

LONGVIEW, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—Ted Morris, 22, of Blackwell, Okla., was killed and Eugene Fitzwater, 19, of Gladewater, was burned seriously yesterday in an oil fire at the M. C. Sells Petroleum company's test well in the Sabine river bottoms. Investigators were told the well caught fire while oil was being withdrawn illegally.

Two men for whom Morris and Fitzwater were purported to have been working were held in jail at Gladewater for investigation. Fitzwater was quoted as saying he and Morris had been sent to the test by their employers to fill a tank truck.

The oil was being run from the test into steel drums and then picked up with a pump. The truck's engine provided power. The exhaust from the engine was believed to have set fire to the oil in the drums. The blaze spread to the test.

Triangle Witness

Story Of Lancaster's Love For Aviatrix Told By Wartime Hero

British Flier Takes Stand in Own Defense in Trial For Murder of Young Haden Clarke

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 8. (US)—A romance that began in the clouds, followed a path of adventure around the world and lasted through five years of ups and down was recounted this afternoon by Capt. William N. Lancaster as he took the stand in his own defense on a charge of murder.

The British flier and wartime hero was called as the first witness for the defense, in a surprise move by Chief Defense Counsel James M. Carson, opening his fight to save Lancaster from the electric chair. He is charged with killing Haden Clarke, young writer and fiance of Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, the Australian aviatrix who testified today she "would die for Bill."

Captain Lancaster, 34 and a British citizen, said he met Mrs. Keith-Miller at a dinner in London in 1927, and told her of his plans for a flight to Australia. She became interested and suggested that she accompany him, putting up half the money for the flight.

Never in Plane Before

The diminutive "Chubbie," now one of the foremost women pilots of the world, had never been in an airplane before the test flight, a half hour before she and Captain Lancaster took off on their flight to Australia, he testified.

And it was during this record-setting long distance flight, when the two braved the dangers of the clouds together, that the mutual love was born which drew the paths of the flying couple together for the next five years, the tall Englishman testified.

He was asked:

"What were your relations when you left London?"

"Friendly and businesslike."

"Did they become intimate any time between London and Singapore on the flight?"

"On one occasion."

Tells of Her Devotion

Early in the day Mrs. Keith-Miller, recalled to the witness stand, reiterated her devotion to the British aviator whose diary was an odyssey of love for her, written between flights in many corners of the world.

Trying to discredit Mrs. Keith-Miller's contention that Captain Lancaster did not shoot young Clarke, State's Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne asked her:

"You would defend and protect

RAIN BREAKS HEAT WAVE

Precipitation of 1.07 Inches Recorded Here

Wichita Falls was the center of a thunderstorm shortly after 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. Precipitation totaled 1.07 inches and was preceded by a brief electrical display accompanied by thunder. The thunderstorm broke a heat wave that has extended over two weeks with the mercury at 100 degrees or above. The downpour was the heaviest in the city since July 6, when 1.50 inches was recorded.

In addition to offering Wichitans a brief respite from excessive temperatures, the downpour aided dry land farm crops of Wichita county materially, County Agent G. C. McGown said. Cotton and feed crops in Wichita county had reached a critical condition for lack of moisture.

Fields Need Rain

The hot dry winds of the last several days were wilting the growing plants, retarding their development and threatening their existence, he declared.

Some fields could not have survived more than a few days without rain, Mr. McGown added.

The farm agent has received numerous reports of web worm infestation at scattered points over the county. The pest attacks alfalfa fields principally but invades cotton patches adjacent to alfalfa or where the row croy is weedy. Some farmers have reported serious damage to alfalfa fields, he said.

Cities northeast and west of Wichita Falls shared in the precipitation while Graham reported a shower in that area. The downpour lasted only 30 minutes at Graham but served to cool the atmosphere and flood the streets with a rain of .75 of an inch reported.

A light sand storm preceded a

Tom Coley, negro, who has been in prison since April 1, 1916, serving a life sentence for a Comanche county murder, was given a year's leave of absence.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 8. (INS)—Arkansas' bitter primary election campaign was in its concluding stages today as voters prepared for the final test at the polls tomorrow.

The battle centered chiefly around the selection of a United States senator and a governor. Nomination on the Democratic ticket in Arkansas is considered equivalent to election.

Ferguson Backer And Sterling Man Engage In Fight

ABILENE, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—Harry Tom King, attorney of Abilene and chairman in this area for the Fergusons in the gubernatorial campaign, appeared at the police station this morning, announcing he desired to enter a plea of guilty to an affray. The case was docketed for attention Tuesday morning in corporation court.

King's appearance was the aftermath of an encounter between himself and W. R. Ely earlier in the morning on the sidewalk in front of a downtown office building, in which the lie was given and blows exchanged. Ely is chairman of the state highway commission and a prominent supporter of Gov. Ross Sterling.

Onlookers said the difficulty started as the two men met on the sidewalk. Ely challenged the truth of assertions he said King had been making in political speeches, hurling the lie at King, who swung out sharply with his opened right hand. The blow landed on Ely's cheek. The highway chairman swung back vigorously. Missed, lost his footing, and fell. As he came up fighting a group of onlookers jumped in between the combatants.

BANDIT ROBS CHICO BANK

Wichita Police Seek Lone Man Who Took $2,500

CHICO, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—Tonight a posse headed by Sheriff Workman had found no trace of a robber who fled with approximately $2,500 this afternoon after locking the cashier and a customer of the Chico bank in a vault.

V. E. Baldridge, the cashier, gave the alarm after removing part of lock inside the vault.

BANDIT HEADED TOWARD WICHITA

Wichita Falls officers were asked to join in the search for a lone bandit who looted the Chico, Texas, bank of $2,500 at 1:15 o'clock Monday afternoon. Sheriff W. M. Workman of Wise county and a party of four deputies and Chico citizens conferred with city and county officers Monday night on the case.

The bandit walked confidently into the bank, vaulting a high counter, and forced Cashier Vic Baldridge to open the money containers. Mr. Baldridge and Judge Roberts, a Chico citizen, were locked in the vault as the bandit left.

A description of the man and the car he was driving was given to officers here. A report that the machine was seen in Bowie going west was received by Sheriff Workman after arriving in Wichita Falls.

The bandit's loot included $500 in gold, $600 in silver and the remainder in currency.

Buyers Optimistic And Ready to Place Orders

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (INS)—Highly optimistic over the apparent improvement in business conditions, buyers and merchandise men from 32 states arrived here today to attend the annual convention of the inter-state merchants' council, which opens tonight with a fashion show.

Paul W. Kunning, officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, in charge of the council, said:

Dr. Williams was found by J. Bradford, who reported to police he heard two motorists arguing on the viaduct shortly before he discovered Dr. Williams.

Surrenders

Libby Holman Reynolds, exotic favorite of Broadway a few months ago, Monday surrendered to Forsythe county, North Carolina authorities on charges of the murder of her youthful husband, Z. Smith Reynolds, heir to the Reynolds tobacco fortune. She had been in hiding several days. Within an hour after giving up Libby was free under $25,000 bond. Above is a striking photo of the glamorous "torch singer."

Girl's Attorney Wins Plea That Jail Would Prove Too Much For Her

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WENTWORTH COURTHOUSE, N. C., Aug. 1.—Libby Holman came back to North Carolina today, a sepulchral figure in black, submitted to arrest and an hour and a half later rolled back down the ribbon-like road to Reidsville, free under $25,000 bond.

She was bound to some secret spot, there to live in deep seclusion until the sovereign state of North Carolina calls for her to come and defend herself against the charge that she and Albert Walker did her husband, Smith Reynolds, to death.

Signed Bond

Her bond was furnished by a bonding organization. Libby sat at the judge's bench and signed it. Then and only then did she give the crowd which thronged the courtroom until it was packed tighter than any theater in which she ever played, just one, wee, peep at her left eye.

With a tiny, half-gloved hand, she raised the thick black veil which covered her face like some strange sort of diving helmet, that she might see to sign the paper which was thrust before her.

Except for that brief glimpse at one eye, the crowd saw only a moving bit of black which passed through the courtroom, sat at the bar, said nothing, but yet harbored within it the girl who had brought Broadway to her feet, not long ago with her exotic appeal.

Dressed in Black

Her dress was a long, loose garb of black. Her slippers were black. Her stockings were black. Over her black hair was a close fitting black hat, and drawn over that and covering her entire face was a thick, black veil that hung to her shoulders.

"As long as these charges stand against her," said her father, Alfred Holman, "even though it should mean to the end of her life, Libby will never talk to any one about it; her picture will never be taken."

The state interposed no objection to her release on bond.

"I would say at this time," announced Carlisle Higgins, the solicitor when the defense brought Libby into court on a technical habeas corpus proceedings, "that the state has not sufficient evidence of premeditation and deliberation in this case to warrant holding this defendant for an unbailable offense.

Libby Shudders

"I want to specify that the state reserves the right, at any time, should evidence justify, however, to press a first degree murder charge."

Libby shuddered at the words and dabbed at her veiled face with a tiny, white handkerchief.

But the words should have brought some satisfaction to the heart of Libby for it meant that the state could not prove that she had planned to do away with her husband and that it could not demand that she pay with her life for his.

The proceedings gave Wentworth perhaps its greatest day and it made the best of it. Years ago the American Tobacco company was born here. But when it grew up it moved away and there is nothing left but the white highway which twists between the county jail, the general store, the postoffice and what was once a hotel on one side of the road and the courthouse on the other. It nestles in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains. The hills were green with low forest growth. The sun shone hot and brilliant. Only a sign of a breeze gave relief.

Sheriff on Hand

About 10 a. m. Libby's attorneys in Winston-Salem had announced that she would be in Wentworth at 2 p. m. to surrender and ask release on bail. The word spread with rapidity. By 1 p. m. there were 100 cars parked around Rock-

Bullington Looms As G. O. P. Nominee For Governor As Party Meets Today

DALLAS, Aug. 8. (UP)—Texas Republicans gathered here tonight to choose carefully a nominee for governor, feeling that the November general election will offer the best opportunity in history to elect one of their party.

The convention will open tomorrow morning with Harvey H. Haines, Port Arthur, as temporary chairman. There was a well defined belief among the delegates tonight that Orville Bullington, Wichita Falls, will be nominated for governor, though he has not been a candidate.

John F. Grant, Houston lumber millionaire, has been the only contender for the nomination. He has been endorsed by Bullington as well as other party leaders, but conditions have changed since July 23.

Many Republicans feel that if Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson should win the Democratic nomination, numbers of Democrats will feel inclined to bolt in November. It was against Mrs. Ferguson, in 1924, that Republican Dr. George C. Butte ran so well.

If there is a bolt, the Republicans want the strongest candidate possible representing their party. Bullington is widely known, a native Texan, and formerly was a Democrat.

Though National Committeeman R. B. Creager and other leaders are committed to Grant, a switch to Bullington to take advantage of the Ferguson-Sterling strife would not be unprecedented.

Grand Jury Hears Impassioned Poems Of Accused Pastor

Young Bride Of 51-Year-Old Minister Released From Jail

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 8. (UP)—Impassioned poems of a 51-year-old minister to a 19-year-old Sunday school teacher were read today to a grand jury, asked to indict the Rev. S. A. Berrie on a murder charge in the death of his first wife.

The first Mrs. Berrie died suddenly April 21 after being stricken at a church gathering. Less than two months later, the Reverend Berrie married 19-year-old Ida Bess Bright, to whom the poems were penned in the minister's flowing hand.

The Reverend Berrie, whose career in the Presbyterian church the past few months has been stormy, was held in the city jail pending the investigation. His wife detained several hours, was released by Couty Attorney Philip K. Oldham who said she was "a victim of circumstances."

Their arrest was ordered when a state chemist reported traces of a deadly poison in the viscera of the first Mrs. Berrie. The investigation was asked by the woman's sister, Mrs. Clem Trotter.

Mrs. Berrie, bewildered by the sudden turn of events, staunchly defended her husband whom she considers innocent of any wrong doing.

Mrs. Berrie was taken before the grand jury late this afternoon. She testified for half an hour and left the jury room to go to her mother's home. She appeared composed.

Both the pastor and his wife admitted a love affair before the death of the former wife whom Berrie described to Oldham as "irritable and jealous."

The grand jury, convened principally to study evidence in an election case, pushed the more prosaic task aside to read some of the 15 poems found in the minister's bookcase.

Oldham, however, said he was interested more in the admission of the pastor and his wife that "exceptional violent passages had been clipped and burned when the bride recently reported to her husband ugly rumors concerning the death of the first wife."

turnover in nine months, aggregating 4,600,000 pounds. Butter and eggs reached new highs for the season. Good gains also were registered by rubber, silk, copper, silver, raw sugar, coffee and cocoa.

Leading Wall street bankers discouraged rumors of the formation of pools to boost commodities but indicated they would participate in the plan suggested by Eugene Meyer to form a large fund, possibly as much as $100,000,000, from which loans would be made to finance the movement of raw materials to fabricators. Mr. Meyer was in New York during the day and, after further informal discussions, left for Washington. A committee representing the New York clearing house banks met to consider the project and it was intimated a statement might be made later in week.

Finance Plan

There was considerable difference of opinion among leading bankers as to the feasibility of the plan but officials of some of the leading banks felt reasonably certain definite action would be taken, probably first in cotton. The plan contemplates financing of the movement of 3,300,000 bales of cotton held by the farm board and the cooperatives to the mills. Wall street has regarded the farm board holdings as a sort of sword of Damocles hanging over the markets and a number of bankers have been anxious to get the board out of markets, expressing the hope it would be once and for all.

Rumors persisted that a powerful speculative group was interesting itself in wheat but a number of leading bankers asserted their institution were distinctly not interested in any speculative maneuvers but purely in extending sound commercial credit. They were somewhat vague as to what staples other than cotton might receive special credit to aid in a movement to fabricators but wool and copper were mentioned in some quarters.

COTTON PRODUCTION ESTIMATED LOWER THAN 1931

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—The department of agriculture today forecast an 11,306,000 bale cotton crop for this year, 5,790,000 less than last season's production, and thereby sent the principal markets in that commodity surging upward.

The prediction was nearly 1,000,000 less than any private estimate had been and the market's reaction to the bullish news was to send prices up $5 a bale in both New York and New Orleans.

The department gave two main reasons for the startling drop in production; first, the boll weevil; second, the lack of the use of fertilizer and consequent smallness of plants.

Other Factors

Another factor in the price increase was a report that banking interests were looking with favor on the organization of a syndicate of mills to purchase cotton at present prices for future use.

Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, has discussed such a plan with officials of the farm board, which, with some of its agencies, holds approximately 3,000,000 bales.

That old familiar pest of Dixie, the boll weevil, has had nature on his side throughout the present cotton growing season. The department said infestation was general throughout the belt but particularly in the delta lands along the Mississippi river where the heaviest planting has taken place.

Rain Responsible

The aid of nature came in the form of a wet season which encouraged the multiplication of weevils in many places. A continuation of such weather, the department said, would cause a loss from weevils even more than seems probable at this time.

The difference in this year's crop and last year's on the basis of today's forecast would more than absorb the holdings of the farm board and its agencies but Chairman Stone warned that in addition to that 3,000,000 bales there were approximately 10,000,000 bales being held in storage and in compresses throughout the country.

He added that a pickup in textile production, which he said seemed probable, would cause rapid inroads into this surplus as much of it is held by professional traders or mills.

Stone said production costs per bale this year would be the lowest in recent farm history.

65.5 Per Cent Normal

The department, in commenting on its forecast, said the lack of the use of fertilizer was explained by the farmer's efforts to lower cost of production within the price received for the raw product.

The forecast showed the condition of the crop on Aug. 1 was 65.6 per cent of normal compared with 74.9 a year ago and 66.4 the 10-year average.

The indicated yield of lint coton was placed at 149.6 pounds per acre compared with 201.2 pounds last year and 151.4 pounds the 10-year average.

The first ginning report made public today by the census bureau showed 70,978 running bales, counting round bales as half bales, had already found its way to the gins this season. This compares with the abnormally low figure of 7,307 for 1931 and the approximately normal figure of 78,188 bales for 1930.

Carryover Increased

The census bureau report on this year's supply and carryover of cotton will be made next week. Secretary Hester, of the New Orleans Cotton exchange, has estimated the carryover in this country on July 31 at 12,911,000 bales as compared with 8,710,000 bales a year ago.

World consumption of United States cotton for the year ending July 31 was estimated by Hester at 12,580,000 as compared with 11,045,000 the previous year.

Exports for this crop year have been nearly 2,000,000 bales more than last year, totaling 8,258,072 for the eleven months ending with June, as against 6,500,868 for the same period a year ago.

PILES

Ended Without Cutting or Salves

If you think a surgical operation is the only way to get rid of itching, bleeding or protruding Piles, it's because you haven't heard of the harmless internal medicine discovered by a prominent western physician.

After years of study, Dr. J. E. Leonhardt found the cause of Piles to be internal—congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal veins flabby; the bowel walls weak; the parts almost dead. Right away the doctor set to work to find a real internal remedy. He succeeded, and after prescribing it for 1000 patients, with success in over 900 cases, he named his prescription HEM-ROID.

The doctor wants every Pile sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so there will be no doubting or delay, Allison Drug store and druggists everywhere are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end Piles in any form.

So why waste time on external treatments or think of an operation when HEM-ROID tablets are guaranteed.—Adv.

Rain Breaks Heat Wave Here

one-inch rain at Iowa Park, welcomed as beneficial to dry land farms. The precipitation dropped off at Electra to .25 of an inch with some wind reported but no damage. Reports from Childress indicated the rain continued to Quanah on the northwest, and through Vernon and Chillicothe.

Burkburnett reported a heavy dust storm with litle change in the high temperature of the last few days. At Henrietta a light shower followed a heavy dust storm out of the east, but the main precipitation apparently circled to the north. Good showers ranging from an inch to .25 of an inch were reported along the M-K-T railway lines to Ringgold on the northeast and showers to Frederick, Okla., north and west of Wichita Falls.

Showers Scattered

The downpour in Wichita Falls was accompanied by a strong wind that whipped the rain through the streets. The rain was accompanied by a light hail in the western portion of residential Wichita Falls, but no damage was reported.

The wind uprooted a tree at Tenth and Van Buren, the only report of storm wreckage to police headquarters.

Wiring in the automobile of J. J. Smith, fireman at No. 5 station, was burned out at Ninth and Taylor at the height of the storm while Mrs. Smith was returning home from town.

The temperature reached a maximum of 99 degrees Monday afternoon but the mercury dropped to 93 degrees at 5 o'clock when a barometer reading of 28.80 was recorded. An east wind with a maximum velocity of 10 miles per hour and cloudy skies preceeded the thunderstorm.

clined to the statutory minimum under another order passed by the court. The daily food allowance for each prisoner was reduced from 45 to 40 cents. There was some sentiment among the commissioners for reducing the daily rations to 25 cents per prisoner until it was pointed out that 40 cents is the minimum provided by law.

The jail's board bill has been running from $825 to $1,000 per month since the 45-cent allowance was instituted a year ago. The order passed Monday will effect a saving of approximately $100 per month.

At one time the county paid 75 cents a day to feed each prisoner and this was reduced to 65 cents before the 45-cent order of a year ago.

Precincts Changed

The change in voting precincts will not take effect until 1933. The changes, which affect precincts 22, 35, 39 and 45 were voted in order to secure voting stations more economically. The order will not bear on voting places in the August primary or the general election in November.

The commissioners accepted the resignation of Fred M. Gates as drainage commissioner of water district No. 1 and appointed S. H. Rider to the place. Fred Greer was appointed a director of water district No. 2. This made him unavailable for drainage commissioner and G. B. Campbell was named to succeed Greer in that capacity.

The commissioners discussed possible economies on electric light bills at the courthouse but took no action. The court will resume hearing on tax protests Tuesday, sitting as a board of equalization.

Condition of Injured Youth Is Unchanged

Little change in the condition of Kenneth Elrod, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Elrod, 1211 North Fifth, was reported at the Wichita General hospital Monday. The youth suffered a broken back and serious internal injuries in an automobile accident east of the city about noon Sunday. His two companions escaped unhurt. Physicians described his condition as critical. The youths were driving on a dirt road when the machine overturned.

Man Slightly Hurt In Affray; Neighbor Held

Jim Rutledge, 37, 210 Scott, suffered minor lacerations about his head at 10:30 o'clock Monday night in an affray on the front porch of his home. He was released from the Wichita General hospital after emergency treatment and taken to police headquarters for questioning. A neighbor was arrested for investigation in the case. A Hines ambulance took the injured man to the hospital.

LIBBY HOLMAN WINS FREEDOM

Torch Singer Surrenders And Makes Bond

Libby, it became known, in the meantime had come to Reidsville, about 10 miles away, a thriving town of eight to ten thousand persons—the place to which the American Tobacco company moved from Wentworth. Where she came from none would say.

About 2 p. m. here lawyers left by automobiles from Wentworth courthouse but they did not go until they had made arrangements which assured Libby every consideration. A deputy sheriff went with them. Sheriff Sheffield of Rockingham county was on hand. Mrs. Numa Reid, a pleasant lady who lives in the vine covered frame house next to the postoffice, was pressed into service as a matron to attend Libby upon arrival. A cool room, tidy and clean, was set aside for her in the home of Mrs. Reid.

Crowds Gather

More and more people heard the news and came to see the great lady who for a few brief months had been the wife of Smith Reynolds and now was accused of killing him. A truck drew up opposite the courthouse and sold soft drinks.

A group of negroes took possession of the hewn log shelter with stake roof which covered the town pump and there offered cantaloupes for sale. The Wentworth Mercantile company—B. C. Wilson, proprietor—soon had to send to Reidsville for a new supply of soda pop.

The kind lady who lives near to Mrs. Reid, ran out of water, so many people asked her for a drink.

Negro girls in bright clothes, some chewing tobacco and one smoking a long, white cigaret, milled on the edge of the crowd.

Older men chewed tobacco on the porch of the general store. Cars were parked for more than a quarter of a mile on both sides of the road.

Libby Arrives

Finally a long cavalcade of automobiles was seen far down the road. It sped up to the front of Mrs. Reid's house. From a none too clean, and not very expensive sedan, with curtains drawn, stepped Libby, a deputy sheriff and William Graves, of her defense counsel. Graves took one of her arms. The deputy took the other. The crowd parted. Libby walked with quick step to Mrs. Reid's front door.

From the cool interior of the house Mrs. Reid greeted her and escorted her to the room which she had prepared. Sheriff Sheffield of Rockingham county formally took Libby into custody and formally turned her over to a representative of the sheriff of Forsythe county, the county in which she is accused. Officials asked the crowd to keep away from the house. It obeyed better than most crowds do.

In the courthouse Judge A. M. Stack was busy trying a robbery case. The voice of attorneys harranguing the jury could be heard as far away as the Reid home. Finally the case was concluded, Word was sent to Libby to come in to court.

Slipped by Back Way

Suddenly she emerged from Mrs. Reid's front door. The crowd started running for the courthouse. Libby slipped around a back way with her escort and came into the court room while the crowd, trying to get in, was making such a disturbance that she was in her seat before she was noticed. Every seat was filled. People crowded the aisles and around the back of the room. Negroes lounging in the gallery which is reserved for them were crowded in a tiny corner by the white folks pouring in.

At that there were scores who failed to get within the courtroom.

Benett Polikoff, of Miss Holman's counsel, arose. He read the petition for a writ of habeas corpus which the judge granted. He asked that his client be released on bail. Carliale Higgins, the solicitor, addressed the court to say the state did not object and to explain that there was no evidence of premeditation against Miss Holman.

Asks Small Bail

"I take it," said Polikoff, "that the only point then remaining to be settled is the question of the amount of bail."

He pleaded that it be made low. "This girl," he told the court, "has no intention of evading trial. She has shown that by her willingness to come here voluntarily. She is a woman of good breeding, from a respected family. She has a brilliant college record. By her own ability she has lifted herself to the highest pinnacle of her profession.

"Where could Mrs. Reynolds go that she would not be known? Her voice has been heard in every home that has a radio. Countless thousands have seen her on the stage. Her picture has been published and republished in every newspaper in the land. There is no place on earth that she could go where she would not be recognized.

Family Not Wealthy

"Her family is not wealthy. To furnish any large amount of cash bail, her father would have to hypothecate his property and then money would have to come from relatives to make up the bail.

"And, your honor, there is something else. This woman is approaching motherhood. On the morning of July 6 her husband was shot and fell dying across her bed. At that moment she had within her body a child by that husband."

He described how she was suffering from the shock of the tragedy which had befallen her and the ordeal through which she had gone.

Judge Stack wiped his forehead with his handkerchief.

"I believe," he said, "that we should make the bond in this case the same as it was in the case of the other defendant, Albert Walker. I will set the bond at $25,000."

Father Looks Tired

Libby's father, looking more gaunt, drawn and tired than ever, representatives of bondsmen and attorneys, gathered around the counsel table. The bond they offered was satisfactory to the state.

Attorney Graves escorted Holman to the judge's bench. A slight smile broke over Holman's face. Libby stroked her forehead through her veil nervously with her small, gloved hand.

Judge Stack shook hands with Holman. Libby came forward. The judge with the chivalry of the South, arose and offered her also his hand. She shook it and bowed to him. He offered her his chair behind the bench. He stood beside her. The clerk thrust a paper—the bond—before her and handed her a pen, the crowd standing, staring intently at the strange black figure, with no features showing, which was moving about this oddly set stage.

Attended by Nurse

Libby took the pen. With her left hand she raised ever, ever so little, a corner of her veil, exposing her left eye, that she might see to sign her name. The judge indicated the place for her to sign. With a rapid hand she wrote "Libby Holman Reynolds."

The paper was inspected by the court. It was all in order.

Libby dropped the corner of her veil, arose, and moved quickly out through a rear door; walked to a waiting car in front of the courthouse and in a twinkling was settled back into its cushion, shielded by the closely drawn curtains. A nurse was at her side. Her father was in attendance.

The crowd of about 300 which was in the road, made a way. The car turned, pointed toward Reidsville and with a burst of speed, rolled off again down the long, white road.

FOUR INVOLVED IN KIDNAPING

Banker Tells Story From Hospital Cot

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 8. (INS)—Four men had a part in the slugging and kidnaping of John B. Colegrove, 65, former Taylorville banker Friday night, the banker stated today as he lay in a hospital recuperating from his injuries. Colegrove also revealed that the kidnaping was a part of a plot to extort $30,000 from him.

These disclosures were made today to T. P. Sullivan, chief of the state bureau of criminal identification.

Two men, James Gammaitoni, Springfield and Emilio Puzzuloi, Detroit, were arraigned at Taylorville this afternoon on charges of assault to kill, kidnaping and robbery. They were arrested Saturday at Springfield a few hours after Colegrove was taken from his home.

The banker stated today that one man guarded him for several hours as he lay bound and blindfolded in the field north of Springfield. This man was the one who revealed the extortion plot. Colegrove stated that he told the man he could not give him any money as he had none. The guard gradually reduced his demands, and finally stated that they must have kidnaped the wrong man.

The guard left him about noon Saturday and did not come back. The former banker stated that he believed he freed himself about 9 o'clock Saturday night and made his way to Springfield where he was discovered early Sunday morning.

Tamale Vendor Struck By Auto

A Mexican hot tamale vendor suffered several broken ribs and his cart was smashed, scattering tamales over a wide area, at Eleventh and Broad at 8:15 o'clock Monday night when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver. A negro suspect was arrested by Night Police Captain Ed McDonald shortly afterward in an alley of the 1600 block on Twelfth.

The Mexican was booked at the Wichita General hospital as Sloranco Leans. He suffered painful bruises in addition to internal injuries and an x-ray will be made Tuesday morning. The car figuring in the crash hit another automobile at Eleventh and Grace leaving the scene of the wreck.

The negro was taken from his bed at home. Police located the car in the alley nearby.

STORY OF LOVE TOLD IN TRIAL

Lancaster Takes Stand In Own Defense

Captain Lancaster at all costs, wouldn't you?"

Mrs. Keith-Miller, near tears, replied:

"Yes."

"Would you die for him?"

"Yes."

"Would you lie for him?"

The slim, white-faced aviatrix, who broke down on the witness stand for the first time today, hesitated for the briefest instant. Then she said firmly:

"No!"

She was asked:

"Did you love Haden Clarke?"

"I did."

Denies Love for Clarke

"Do you still love him?"

"No."

She explained:

"My love for Haden Clarke has been killed. I've been disillusioned. He lied to me about his age, about having a university degree, and about never previously having the malady from which he was suffering."

"Do you love Captain Lancaster?"

"No."

"Did you ever?"

"Yes."

"Up to what time?"

"Until two years ago. I am still intensely fond of him."

As the state's attorney insisted that Mrs. Keith-Miller define in detail the difference between her feeling for Haden Clarke and Captain Lancaster, the aviatrix burst into tears, and cried:

"I don't believe you understand my attitude toward Captain Lancaster.

Trusted Each Other

"We've been through a lot together. We were pals, companions. What I've had was his and what he had was mine. We trusted each other. We've been friends."

Questioned as to the scene when Captain Lancaster was released after his initial questioning, Mrs. Keith-Miller said to State's Attorney Hawthorne:

"I can tell you what you said. You looked me straight in the eye and said:

"'Mrs. Keith-Miller, it has been my privilege to look into the soul of a man through his personal diaries, and I want to tell you that I have never known a more honorable man than Captain Lancaster. For the last reason, I am releasing him from custody.'"

Released from the stand, after a total of seven and a half hours' grilling during the three times she has testified, the aviatrix fled to an adjoining room, weeping violently.

State Rests Case

Hawthorne rested the state's case shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon, after five days of testimony.

Judge H. F. Atkinson overruled a motion by Defense Attorney Carson that all testimony except proof of Clarke's death be stricken out, contending that the state had not proved Clarke was murdered, but merely that he was dead.

During Captain Lancaster's testimony, Carson questioned him as to his personal history, bringing out the fact that, serving as a fighting pilot for Great Britain during the world war, he rose to the rank of captain as a boy of 20.

Carson's introduction of a commendatory letter from Field Marshal Sir William Birdwood, under whom Lancaster served during the war, occasioned a legal tiff between state and defense. Lancaster testified the letter had been received since the trial started.

Aviators to Testify

The defense will present tomorrow an impressive array of famous aviators, who volunteered to make the flight from New York to Miami to testify in behalf of their flying comrade, Captain Lancaster. They are:

Clarence Chamberlain, noted transatlantic flier; Clyde Pangborn, transpacific flier; Rex Gilmartin, past commander of the aviation post of the American Legion, and Bing Boyer.

He said Mrs. Berrie was a constant user of headache powders and he attributed her death to overdose of the sedatives.

Shortly after his second marriage he was ousted as pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church here on charges of teaching doctrines contrary to the "confessions of Presbyterian faith."

He then organized Bethel tabernacle and his future wife went with him as a teacher.

Passages from the poems, found in the preacher's bookcase included:

"I do not care what the world may say

"If your love for me is true.

"I do not mind the toils of the day

"If I know at the dusk I'll see you.

"Will you wait these days to welcome me

"As I come to you to rest and whisper low,

"Dear heart, I know

"That I love you best."

And in another verse:

"My darling, O my darling, how I love you,

"No human longing can tell.

"You are my joy and sunshine to cheer me on the way.

"That's why I love you, dearest, I know it very well."

"And then in the hush of the morning

"I heard the song of the lark.

"He sang to his mate at the early daybreak

"The song that would woo and win.

"And my heart reached out in its yearning

"To open and let you in.

"Into my raving heart, my darling,

"Only your love can pacify

"There's naught that the world can offer

"For you all else I pass by.

"Darling I love you more dearly each moment.

"'Tis you I truly adore

WICHITA FALLS SOCIETY AND CHURCH NEWS

MRS. L. N. CASON

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

An ex-grand duchess of Russia, who has been conducting a page of sorts—(all the sorts interesting)—in the weekly Liberty, speaks in one column of the thousands of dollars lost by merchants from lip stick stains. In spite of the fact that several of the more expensive lip sticks are advertised as "permanent," they come off; we have seen the red marks on dresses in Wichita Falls shops.

With the grand duchess, we wonder why girls and women are not considerate enough to remove makeup that will soil merchandise before they go on buying fests; "buying" is probably not the correct word; we had better say "shopping fests." For approximately one-third of the women who spend time trying on clothing, do so with no thought of purchase.

That and the "delivery on approval" custom are two of the habits that make merchants really servants of the public, instead of partners with them for good merchandising. Every person should do his part particularly in these times of stringency, and women and girls would do little enough if they would protect the filmy garments they are given the privilege of trying.

Shoe men, it seems to us, have the edge ('scuse slang), on the ready-to-wear or general merchandise men. Not quite so many shoes go out on approval and the recipients do not wear them quite so far. We have really known of a woman having a dress sent on approval and returning it after having used it for a special evening occasion. And taking them altogether, there's no class of men quite so courteous to their customers as these very men so imposed upon.

As to shoes, they cannot at least be lipsticked. And much lipstick, whether it is permanent on the lips or not, is absolutely permanent when applied to clothing. We overheard a boy wondering what his mother would say, when the girl with whom he was dancing left the print of her lips on various portions of his white shirt. A shirt is no more precious to the female of the species than a merchant's goods.

Going back to shoes; more shoemen have irked us to the point of being downright rude than any other class of salesmen (except those who come to the door when we are in the bathtub and keep ringing until we dress and trail out to tell them we do not want their wares).

We know numbers of most charming gentlemen in the shoe business, but we know numbers of very young men who take a clerkship in a shoe department as the first step on the ladder to fame and fortune, when they believe they should be at the top. If they only knew it, they are never destined to reach the top, unless it is by some misstep of fortune.

This is no case of sour grapes, but from observation we believe that to win the favor of these very suave and very worldly young gentlemen, a client must be dressed in the height of style, wear a number four shoe and have a "taking" face.

We began this column with "being reminded" by a Liberty page. Today we read Alexander Woolcott's "Shouts and Murmers" in the last New Yorker. The story of Anne Parrish's finding on a Paris book stall the very book that had entranced her girlhood, and Woolcott's closing wish that he might in such manner recover the "Chatterbox," that had been taken from him at some thrilling point was charming. It reminded us of our youthful "Chatterbox" days; there was an entrancing story called "Six Girls." What ever became of it? It was far more enthralling than "Little Women." Did you ever read Chatterbox? And some years later did you ever read the works of "The Duchess?" Far and away more interesting than obstreperous young shoe clerks.

While no definite date has been given out for the wedding, it is understood it will take place directly after the election in November.

The bride-elect is a niece of Mrs. T. H. McGregor and toured Europe in 1931 with Mrs. McGregor. She is a former student of the University of Texas.

Bob Long, who is a graduate of the Junior college of Wichita Falls, where he was a state winner on the debating team and popular in school activities, attended the law school in the University of Texas for three years and passed the examination for law in the autumn of 1931.

The outstanding work he has done for his district had its reward when he was elected to the house of representatives for the third term in the primary, July 23, at that time winning by a large majority over three opponents.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Long of Wichita Falls.

Girl May Give Ring To Boy, Says E. Post

By EMILY POST

Author of "Etiquette, the Blue Book of Social Usage"

Dear Mrs. Post: I am to be married in September and am having an evening church wedding, with three attendants. My parents do not live here and do not expect to be able to attend the wedding. Also, my fiance's parents will not be able to be here. Is it necessary for me to give a reception after the wedding? Of course, I know the bride does not give the reception, but what shall I do in this case? Some of the girls seem to think I should. I am entertaining the party the night before the wedding.

Answer—If you would like to give your friends a chance to offer their good wishes to you on your wedding day, why not receive in the church vestibule after the ceremony—or in the parish, or community house? In either case it would not be necessary to send out invitations. If you just wait in the vestibule, no refreshments are necessary. But if you go into the parish house, you should have a fruit cup and wedding cake. (Also have the ushers tell the congregation, as it files out, where you are "receiving.")

Dear Mrs. Post: I have had one best boy friend for several years. We have exchanged birthday and Christmas gifts for three years. This year, I would like to give him a seal ring for his birthday. I realize it is a lot for a girl to give a man but I intend entering the training school for nurses this fall and of course then I won't be earning any money. My mother thinks a ring should be given only for engagements but I disagree with her. I would like to have your opinion on this before I give him the ring. By the way, he once said he would like to have such a ring so I know he will like it.

Answer—A ring from a man to a girl is suggestive of an engagement, but there is no significance in the gift of a ring to a man by a girl—except as a display of more than ordinary affection. In your case, as you describe it, I see no impropriety in such a gift.

Mrs. M. R. Peeples was in charge of the program, "What Our Schools Have Done for China." Mrs. F. K. Brown gave the topic, "The College Meeting the Demands of China's New Day." "Giving College Students Sharing the Abundant Life" was discussed by Mrs. J. M. Klem and Mrs. Ernest Owens talked on "Meet Brother Yeh of Chang Chow." The closing topic was "From a Letter to Friends" by Mrs. H. H. Vining and Mrs. Ben Bell gave the closing prayer dismissing 21 members and one visitor.

Bozeman was selected to choose a chairman to take the place of Mrs. V. M. Tillerson, who has moved out of the district. Mrs. Walker was named as Bible study chairman.

Mrs. V. M. Tillerson taught the mission study lesson from the book, "Healing and Missions," and Mrs. W. R. Harper gave the closing prayer, dismissing the group of members and Mrs. S. F. Martin, who was a visitor.

Circle Seven

Members of circle seven met with Mrs. M. V. Horton and the devotional was favorite verses of Scripture from each member. Mrs. S. F. Martin gave the opening prayer.

Mrs. Horton, chairman of the circle, presided in the business session when Mesdames A. J. Catlin, S. F. Martin and E. L. Kemmerly were appointed a committee to name new officers for the coming year.

Mrs. Catlin taught the mission lesson from the textbook "Signal Fires on the Mountain," and Mrs. Fred L. Cone gave the closing prayer, dismissing seven members.

Baits talked on "The Crisis and How It Was Met" and "The Opportunity for Christianity" was discussed by Mrs. Howard Denny. "The Need for a Hopeful Spirit" was the theme of Mrs. Albert Taylor and "The Joy of Sacrifice" of Mrs. G. J. Towles. Mrs. J. G. Scarbrough talked on "What Can I Do?" and Rev. B. L. Baits spoke of the goal for the year.

A beautiful special hymn was given by Mrs. G. J. Towles, who accompanied herself and the closing prayer was said by Mrs. B. L. Baits.

MAN DENIES DEATH CHARGE

Clay Brown Held in Murder Of Postmaster

LAWRENCEBURG, Ky., Aug. 8. (INS)—Booked on a charge of murder, Clay Brown today denied any knowledge of the killing of J. Bert Searcy, 47, postmaster here for the past 10 years.

Brown was locked up in the Anderson county jail when he surrendered to police a few hours after the postmaster's cruelly mutilated body was found on a lonely roadside near here late Sunday night.

Searcy's throat had been slashed and he had been stabbed twice in the abdomen. Authorities said it was apparent he had been murdered in an automobile and his body tossed out.

No motive for the murder could be conjectured by investigators.

Police declared they discovered blood smears on Brown's clothing and shoes which were being held as evidence. Brown admitted he had been riding in an automobile with the postmaster yesterday afternoon, but said he had no idea of how Searcy could have met his violent end.

Editors Report Business Gains

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (INS)—Improvement in 20 industries was reported by editors of a number of trade and industrial publications to the Associated Business Papers, Inc., which today made public the results of a survey.

Textiles, meat packing, construction, oils, foods, and shoe and leather trades as well as others showed an upward trend.

Building trades report stated construction contracts let in 37 states in July totaled $128,673,000, or $15,000,000 more than in the previous month. However, it was pointed out work to be financed by public funds formed a large percentage of the total.

Other bright spots noted were an upward trend in the meat packing business for the past two months, increased milk prices in New England, which add $1,000,000 a month to the dairy farmers there, better butter prices and apparent stability in electric power consumption.

Tulsa Commissioners Protest Valuation Cut

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 8. (UP)—The plight of Tulsa's destitute will be checked to the state equalization board tomorrow as the Tulsa county commissioners protest the 20 per cent cut in realty valuations.

Assistant County Attorney Hugh Webster today prepared a protest on the grounds the commissioners cannot care for charity cases if revenue is cut. At a meeting today the commissioners failed to make an emergency appropriation for the indigent left without aid when the community fund, without funds, closed its doors, leaving a serious situation.

PREDICTS HEAVY VOTE

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (INS)—Predicting the Socialist party would poll the heaviest vote in its history next November, Norman Thomas, the party's candidate for president, today announced a tour of 40 states during the campaign.

IT SAVED HER DAUGHTER

IT IS the daughter herself—Miss Rose Lane—who willingly gives the facts in a letter.

She says, "My mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was younger. But I wouldn't. If I had, I might have been a well girl now. I suffered terribly every month."

Finally the girls in her office convinced her. She tried it at last. Now she is on the way to greater health and happiness. Mothers—tell your daughters. And daughters—take your mother's advice. Suffering is unnecessary.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—When President Hoover picked his own successor as commerce secretary, it is to be assumed he gave that cabinet selection very special consideration.

ROBERT P. LAMONT

The department had been so completely "Hooverized" during his long tenure under Presidents Harding and Coolidge that despite the brief interval between Mr. Hoover's resignation as commerce secretary and his inauguration as president, it was essentially still a Hoover model when Robert P. Lamont took it over.

No personal political ambitions or even a desire to see his own name frequently in print troubled Lamont's administration as commerce secretary.

He was the shrinking violet of the cabinet, the one man, it was said, of the president's official family who devoted a lot of time to thinking up reasons why he should not make speeches.

No Oratory Lost

Lamont has now retired from the cabinet in favor of Roy D. Chapin, of the automotive industry.

While Mr. Hoover expressed his regret at the loss of Lamont's services, clearly his resignation will leave no gap in the cabinet battery of campaign orators upon whom the president will lean heavily in his drive for re-election. From the stump-speech aspect of his cabinet, Lamont figured not at all.

The retiring secretary may have made a speech or two in his cabinet years. The news file records of his personal activities, however, do not show that he ever did. They emphasize only his reluctance to speak and form a unique chapter among the files.

Astonishingly few stories of any kind about him, aside from his official acts, came to the surface during his Washington residence.

Compare the Lamont file with that on "Uncle Andy" Mellon or Secretary Mills; with the records of the doings of Secretary Pat Hurley, Secretary Arthur Hyde or Postmaster General Walter Brown and it develops that Lamont, for all his personal popularity, left Washington almost as unknown to political news readers as he was when he came.

Chapin More Vocal

Secretary Chapin is apt to prove a different type, by all accounts. He has been an active unit of the motor car industry and in related fields like good roads agitation so long that campaign speech making should come easy to him.

He is a valuable recruit in that respect and no doubt will be heard from "on the stump"—which Mr. Lamont would never have been if he could avoid it.

The campaigning cabineteers probably welcome any addition to that circle to spread the burden of the job.

Through elevation of Charles Evans Hughes to the chief justiceship and due to the 1932 attitude of Senator Borah on the Republican candidate and ticket, the biggest oratorical guns of the Hoover campaign of 1928 are unlikely to be heard from this year.

Jobless Members Of White Collar Class Form Organization

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 8. (AP)—The "white-collared" man is coming in for help.

Some 50,000 of them have been organized under a vast creative self-help plan in which barter money is to replace United States currency as a medium of exchange.

Seeking to aid those unemployed who have not yet asked for direct relief and who are trying to avoid charity if possible, Dr. George Mecklenburg, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Episcopal church here, has launched an enterprise known as the Organized Unemployed, to be operated and directed by the idle themselves for their own benefit.

"This is the first effort to reach this particular class of unemployed," said Dr. Mecklenburg today. "While there are some 40 agencies operating here, none has given any attention to the middle class unemployed 'white collar worker' and professional man to whom direct relief would be a most undesirable last resort."

Working to help jobless within his own church, Dr. Mecklenburg found farmers willing to exchange produce for work, home owners who would exchange wearing apparel and household goods for minor repairs and odd jobs.

Oklahoma C-C Proposes Consolidation of Counties

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8. (UP)—A special committee of five, headed by L. C. Hudson, Chickasha, president, today was named at the state chamber of commerce to draft tentative bills to be presented before the next legislature.

Ford C. Harper, managing director, said the bills probably will include proposals to consolidate 77 counties in Oklahoma into 20, reducing the gasoline tax and abolishing township government.

Harper said the bills will be presented for approval to each of the 325 member organizations before final drafting.

A town in Tennessee made a bonfire of all the bathing suits owned by its inhabitants. We understand the blaze was visible for several feet.

Hotel clerk robbed by guest, says a headline. Another case of the man biting the dog.

A New Tank and a Monument

TWO entirely unrelated little news stories got into the papers the other day, and if you happened to read them together they may have set you thinking.

One told of the new army tank that was being tested at Linden, N. J. This tank proved itself able to travel 110 miles an hour along the highway and to do 60 miles an hour over rough ground. It can jump over ditches and it is light enough to be carried by an airplane.

All in all, it seems to be a delightfully efficient bit of fighting machinery.

The other story came from Thiepval, France. It told how the Prince of Wales, President Lebrun of France and other dignitaries met to dedicate Great Britain's memorial to the 73,000 English soldiers who died in the battle of the Somme.

Not much connection between these two stories—but reading them together does start one pondering.

We are at present devoting ourselves—like all other great nations—to the job of getting ready for the next war. We are spending huge sums and enlisting the cleverest inventors and designers we can find so that our army and navy can kill expeditiously and surely the next time they are called into action.

Given the present state of international relations, we can hardly do anything else. And yet—

That memorial on the Somme rises like a grim signpost. Seventy-three thousand Englishmen died in one battle there. Thousands more were maimed for life. Almost an equal number of Germans fell in the same fight. That memorial ought, somehow, to be more than just a tribute to gallantry.

It ought to stir us anew to bend every effort to make a repetition of that ghastly battle forever impossible.

So far, we haven't done much along that line. And, meanwhile, we have devised a fine new tank that can go 110 miles an hour and jump ditches.

The Fall Chest Campaigns

THE fact that $300,000,000 in federal money is going to be available for unemployment relief this fall and winter is no reason why the ordinary citizen's contributions to private charity should be any smaller than they were last year.

Newton D. Baker, heading a national committee for welfare activities, does a public service in warning every one that the established community funds will need just as much support this year as they ever did, if not more.

"The people must be fed," he remarks. "Tax funds, federal and state, will have to bear a large part of that. But even for relief, tax funds will have to have important assistance from the community funds."

The warning is timely. Each city must prepare for the job of raising money in the old-fashioned way to supplement funds drawn from taxes.

An Excellent Scheme

ONE of the best ways of promoting more confidence among the rank and file of the citizens seems to be the plan adopted by the Delaware and Hudson railroad in conjunction with the "big four" brotherhoods recently, by which every regular employe is guaranteed 240 hours of work a month for the next year.

Countless thousands of consumers have cut down on their purchases of goods during the last few years, not because their earning power has seriously diminished but because they have been afraid that it was going to. The man who believes he is going to lose his job or go on part-time work week after next cannot be expected to maintain his normal rate of purchasing.

A scheme like this one, which assures workmen that their earning power will not be reduced for an entire year, should be an excellent stimulus to buying activity.

Hitler's Setback

MOST of the world, probably, will give vent to a sigh of relief over Adolf Hitler's failure to gain control of the German reichstag. He may head the strongest delegation in the German parliament, but he is not in the driver's seat. Once again what looked like a serious threat to world stability has been averted.

At the same time, however, it would be foolish to minimize the significance of the tremendous vote polled by Hitler and his followers. That vote—37 per cent of the entire vote cast—was an almost frantically determined protest vote. It means that a constantly growing section of the German nation demands a change, and does not care how radical or far-reaching the change may be.

The "Hitler peril" has received a slight check. But the danger is not by any means over.

We Still Have Money

DEPRESSION or no depression, the American public still seems able to pay its way to sports events in record-breaking numbers whenever it gets an attraction that looks good to it.

The Olympic games drew around 100,000 people for the opening events, and followed it with a crowd of 50,000 for the second day's doings. And on that second day, far across the country, 80,000 people went to see the Cleveland Indians play the Philadelphia Athletics in a fight for second place in the league standing.

All of this, of course, doesn't prove that the nation has suddenly regained its prosperity. But it does show that the sports lover is not yet completely broke. Offer him a real spectacle and he'll set the turnstiles clicking as of yore.

SO THEY SAY!

It (the emergency relief bill) is a strong step toward recovery.—President Herbert Hoover.

Little Things About Big People

James D. Quirk, the publisher and editor of Photoplay, who passed away the other day, was the sort of fellow who handed you the entire contents of his next issue—weeks before it was released, and let you print any amount of it—so you might have an easier time of it.

Virginia Bruce, J. Gilbert's next wife, is Virginia Briggs.

George Brent, listed as Ruth Chatterton's next legal mate, detests people who call him a second Gable, which he is.

Hope Hampton, the wife of Jules Brulatour, once saleslgirl'd for a Philly store. That's where he met her—and fell madly in love with her. He rates a third of a cent on each kodak film sold.

Pola Negri's real first name is Appolinia.

Edgar Selwyn was on the gangplank of the ill-fated Titanic when a telegram called him back to Paris. He is the only producer on Broadway who ever apologized to critics for offering a poor show.

Helen Wills, whose middle name is Newington, is a miserable speller, and her right hand is larger than her left.

Ring W. Lardner's middle initial stands for Wilmer—and Anita Loos was born April 26 but she doesn't know what year.

Lady Cavendish, who was Adele Astaire, buys her hats in the children's department. She still wears petticoats.

George Gershwin is the type who is easily shocked, and his conversation with women borders on the puritanical.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. is an expert fortune teller.

Robert Chandler painted the sky in the grand central station and had such fun. He ignored the design, however, and put the dipper here and the north star there, instead of there and here.

Gus Edwards is always mentioned as being the one who started this celebrity on the road to fame, but never has any one discovered who gave Edwards his first juicy break.

Joe Weber of Weber & Fields.

One of the few millionaires (or he was, that is), is Thayer, a former magician who quit the stage and went in for the manufacturing of practical joker outfits. He is responsible for the invention of most of those knick-knacks you see in the Broadway shops.

Francien Larrimore, the actress, and Frances Olda, the Metropolitan canary, have identical real names—Frances Adler.

Toscanini never conducts a score because he is so near-sighted he couldn't see it. Knows every opera from memory.

Garbo, who is being observed by a girl reporter on the liner taking her home, thought she was protected when the captain ordered the wireless operator to hold up any news about her. But the scribe keeps the wireless buzzing by dispatching her news in code!

Helen Morgan was once discharged by Lew Leslie, the producer, during a rehearsal "because she couldn't walk gracefully."

Chick Sale, who wrote "The Specialist," the best-selling smoking car booklet, was worried about it before he had it published. He tried it out on the chorines of the show in which he starred.

Harry K. Thaw, who once was the life of the party, has cut out his heavy spending in the late places and gives the money he used to spend going gay—to needy friends, who stuck when he was in trouble.

Mrs. Paul Whiteman is the one responsible for her husband's 100 pound shave in weight, but she can't make the trick work on herself.

Jerome Kern, the "Show Boat" composer, made $1,500,000 profit on his collection of rare books, which he bought for $250,000. And no matter what you've heard, he is America's ace composer.

Barclay Warburton Jr.'s bathroom is papered with headlines to remind him of the bust he was when he tried editing a paper.

Mayor Walker savvies and speaks Yiddish fluently.

Although Clara Bow has been absent from the screen for a long spell, she still entices the heaviest fan mail.

Peggy Joyce's apartment never contains photos of males.

Lenore Ulric is said to be the only leading lady (beg pardon, star) who never had an understudy.

Ursula Parrott, author of "Ex Wife," one of the saltier books, has relatives on a Boston society which suppresses such things.

Gilbert Gabriel, a New York dramatic critic, was once decorated by Venezuela. He was given the "Order of Bolivar" after reading proof on their Presidential propaganda.

Jetta Goudal, the movie star, is Julia Goudaket. And Mae Clark, who also clicked on the coast, was born Mae Klotz.

Calvin Coolidge never lost a race for public office in his career, but his boy, John, lost every time he ran for office at Amherst.

Before Bobbe Arnst married Johnny Weissmuller, she always celebrated her birthday by inviting her boy friends to the party, usually held at a swanky hotel—and she paid the check.

George Bernard Shaw and Rudyard Kipling never sign their names to anything. They sign their initials, to fool autograph peddlers.

Arthur Brisbane shudders when he is called a journalist and always refers to himself as a reporter. Probably because a journalist was once defined as a guy who always wears a silk hat and no socks—who is always borrowing money from a newspaper man!

COMPETITIVE KISSING—The Olympic era was the Golden Age of ancient Grecian sport. The athletic contests included competition in music, poetry, dramatic recitations, masculine beauty contests, drinking, staying awake, etc. But the strangest of all athletic competitions was the Diocleia originated by the natives of Megara, Greece. It was a competition in kissing and he who gave the sweetest kiss obtained the prize of a garland of flowers

Synopsis for preceding instalments:

Gypsy O'Malley, 22, and small, dark and lovely, lived with her frivolous-minded, hard-drinking family in a house on her wealthy grandmother's estate on Long Island. She was a thoughtful girl, the exact opposite of her 18-year-old half-sister Angel, golden-haired, tall and stunning, who went about with men old enough to be her father. Gypsy's half-brother, Jiggs, about 20, just out of college, spent most of his time drinking and gambling, and dodging creditors. Gypsy's step-mother, Peg O'Malley, not yet 40 and still good looking, was vain, luxury-loving, and craved the admiration of men. Gypsy's father, Jim O'Malley, in his early forties, lived far beyond the allowance made to him by his mother, Nancy O'Malley. Gypsy, thoroughly disgusted, decided to get a job. After a fruitless day of job hunting, she returned home to find a noisy drinking party in full blast. She heard a disabled airplane circling in darkness and storm. Gypsy lighted a pail of gasoline as a flare and Brent Jamison, famous transatlantic flyer, landed safely. Brent offered to teach her to fly. When he was absent, she was instructed by Ted Colman former air mail pilot and dare-devil. Angel appeared at the airport one day with a party of men and Follies girls and announced she had just gotten a job in the Follies. All the party had been drinking. Colman ordered the men away, put the girls in another car to go to the station, and took Angel and Gypsy in his car, telling Angel he was taking her to his plane for a flight. She fell asleep.

CHAPTER V

"Oh, I'm so grateful to you," Gypsy said to Ted, and flushed unhappily. "I don't know what I would have done if you hadn't helped me."

"That's nothing to be ashamed of," Ted laughed it off. "You didn't do anything."

"No, but people may not realize I don't do those things. If one of the officials of the airport had seen Angel and that crowd they might have blamed me."

"They'd have more sense than that," Ted assured her. "They won't blame you for something some one else does. Forget it."

They knew Angel was sound asleep. She was snoring softly, her lovely face flushed and hot against Gypsy's shoulder.

"It's a crime," Gypsy said sadly. "I don't know how Angel gets in with all those terrible people. She's only 18."

"Is that all?" Ted looked at her more closely. "She looks older."

"That's because she's been drinking. Isn't she beautiful?"

"Yes, in a blond, weak way. I don't like the type. You're what I call a beautiful girl because you have personality in your face. I prefer dark girls."

"Oh," Gypsy smiled faintly at that. "Nobody has ever accused me of being beautiful when Angel is around. I look like a moth beside a butterfly."

Ted scoffed. "Don't be absurd! Ten years from now Angel will look like your mother. Girls like that fade like flowers. You'll always be lovely. You have a clean soul, Gypsy."

She looked it him in amazement. It was the first serious thing she had ever heard him say. Or was he being serious? Ted was such a clown. But he was looking ahead and his face was more sober than she had ever seen it before. She reached over and patted him on the shoulder.

"You'd make a wonderful brother, Ted."

He smiled crookedly. "I could never be just a brother to you. I'm afraid honey."

Gypsy hoped he wasn't going to get serious. For she was sure she would never care to have any one but Brent Jamison say those things to her.

They were home. Silently Ted picked Angel up as though she were a baby and carried her into the house to the couch in the living room. Gypsy was glad no one was in.

Angel slept off her drunk and had no recollection of having gone to the airport. When Gypsy attempted to lecture her for making such a scene she laughed.

It was the oh-you-poor-little-pill laugh that told much more clearly than words what Angel thought of Gypsy and her old-fashioned ideals. Gypsy knew it was no use when Angel laughed like that. She might as well talk to a stone. There was nothing to do but wait—and hope it didn't happen again.

She was in a desperate frame of mind, after a worried almost sleepless night, when she took the subway out to the airport. She hoped she could get past the group of pilots she saw huddled in front of the hangar without being seen. Her humiliation was as keen as though she herself had gone to Jamison field intoxicated and made a fool of herself. Her ears burned and her throat felt dry and hot.

When she saw Brent Jamison break away from the group of pilots and walk toward her, her heart sank. Desperately she fought for control. Her first impulse was to burst out crying and throw her arms around his neck. But of course that would never do. So she stopped and waited.

Brent came up smiling. As suddenly as her heart had sunk, it gave a bound of happiness when she saw the welcome look on his face. He was not going to scold her. It was such a relief that she gave him a gay little grin.

"Good morning, buttercup," Brent's bronzed face broke into the wide smile that always brightened her day.

"Good morning yourself," she responded airily, her unhappiness forgotten.

He put an arm around her as he might have embraced a fellow pilot and walked along looking down at her.

"Oh—" Gypsy's heart leaped at his praise, "you don't mean it."

"I never trifle with ladies! Anything I say you can bet your last powder puff I mean."

Her little tanned face lifted to his worshipfully.

"Oh, Mr. Jamison—how can I ever thank you for making me so happy?"

He grinned again. "Brent to you, black-eyed Susan."

"Brent, then."

"You don't owe me anything, my dear girl. After all, you did save my life. What I'm doing for you is small potatoes beside that."

Gypsy looked at him gravely. "Perhaps I'm the best judge of that."

"You're adorable when you look serious, "Brent laughed down at her then. "It doesn't go with the devilish look in your eye—and that naughty looking little mouth."

She flushed and wanted to beg him to please not judge her by appearances, but while she was thinking of a retort he took her breath away with a surprise.

"What are you doing tonight?"

He said it nonchalantly and Gypsy gulped before she could reply.

"Nothing."

She waited, tingling in every nerve, for his next question.

"How would you like to go somewhere to dance with me?"

Somehow she answered. And the rest of the day was lost in a haze of thrills. Brent Jamison had asked her to dance. For days she had waited for just this—feeling certain it would never come. How happy she was that she hadn't made a date with any of the boys at the port—ever.

Gypsy learned very little about piloting that day. Ted laughed and chided her about bungling when he was giving her her ground work. Of course she couldn't tell him why she was so excited and why her mind was far from airplanes and airports. How grateful she was to him for not mentioning the evening before! It might never have happened—that disgraceful, humiliating scene with Angel. Ted was a darling—there was no doubt of that. But he wasn't her hero. She could not see him for the air castles she built around Brent.

Gypsy ate her dinner hurriedly and seemed so thrilled about something that the family all noticed her distraction. Usually her appetite was very good. That night her heart was not in it. It was Angel who finally, her curiosity getting the better of her, laughed sweetly, "Honey—what's up tonight? You look like a kid waiting for Santa Claus."

Gypsy decided they'd find it out anyway. So she tried to say nonchalantly, "Nothing terrible. I'm in a hurry, that's all. I'm going dancing with Brent Jamison and I want to get dressed."

Jiggs whistled. Peg raised her eyebrows. Her father grinned. It was Angel who spoke first—excitedly.

"Oh—you lucky girl! What time is he coming?"

"About 9:30 or 10." Gypsy grudged the information.

"I'd love to meet him," Angel's blue eyes were guileless as Gypsy glanced at her hurriedly. "But," Angel added, "I have a date. Darn it!"

"I'm sure that's sad," Jiggs said bitingly as he saw the relief in Gypsy's face. "It's darn nasty of Gypsy to hold a man out on you—you catty little chiseler."

Every one looked surprised. It wasn't often that Jiggs defended Gypsy against his sister. But he had seen her slip things over so often that he had begun to hate the innocent face masking the cunning, selfish brain.

No one had a chance to scold him for his rudeness before Angel got up from the table and turned an imperturbed face to Jiggs.

"There, there now. You've had too many hangovers this week sweetheart."

She sailed out of the room majestically, with the show girl walk she had acquired rehearsing in the Follies. No one knew that she had gone upstairs to call the boy friend and in a sugary voice, melting with regret, tell him she had such a headache from rehearsing all day she couldn't possibly see him.

It was with a wise little smile that Angel looked over her wardrobe. She selected the simple little white organdie that always got 'em, wound her hair in a soft golden knot at the base of her perfect neck, and let it fall in soft full waves over her ears.

Gypsy was in her room, wrinkling her forehead over her depleted wardrobe, when Angel slipped downstairs to the side porch where she could see any one who came up the drive. An hour later her lips curled in amusement when she saw Brent Jamison's car nearing the house.

She got up and started down the steps so that the light from the car would fall on her. With a [illegible] little smile, innocent as a child she called as the car slowed up, "Oh—Jack. You're terribly late. What kept you?"

As Brent got out of the car, Angel stepped back and put her hand over her mouth in a gesture of alarm.

"Oh—pardon me, I thought there were some one—else."

Brent drew in his breath—STORES— beauty of the angelic Abroadway stood looking up at him [illegible] eyes.

"That's—all right," Seventh could say for a moment.

Among the western tribes tobacco was ordinarily used by mixing with it gum, sumac and barberry, the bark, leaves and roots of two kinds of willow, manzanita leaves; Jamestown weed, touchwood, dogwood bark, arrowwood and a variety of other woods, barks, leaves, twigs and even insects.

When in response these front legs are held in the position a person assumes when kneeling to pray. When full grown the insect is about three inches long and a pale green color.

Q.—Please give the early history of the Olympic games.—E. E. J.

A.—The origin of Olympic games dates back to remote antiquity, prior to the commencement of the historical era in Greece and by the Greeks themselves was attributed in various traditions to a divine source. They were generally held in mid-summer. For the first 13 Olympiads there was only one contest, a foot race. In course of time the number was increased to 24, including shorter and longer foot races, wrestling, boxing, chariot racing, horse racing, foot racing in heavy armor, etc. The prize awarded to the victors was a garland of wild olive. None but Greeks of pure descent were allowed at any time to take part in the games, until the conquest of Greece by the Romans, when the latter were admitted. The ancient Olympic games died out in the 4th century A. D. and were not revived until 1896 when the first of a new series were held in Athens.

HELENE MADISON BEATS DUTCH SENSATION IN SWIM FINAL

SIX FINALISTS BETTER RECORD

Willy Den Ouden Loses Race by Foot and Half

By STUART CAMERON
United Press Sports Editor

OLYMPIC SWIMMING STADium, Los Angeles, Aug. 8.—Miss Helene Madison of Seattle, champion of them all, today won the 100-meter women's free style swimming title of the Olympic games in a field of six finalists.

Willy Den Ouden of Holland, 14-year-old girl, was second, close behind the winner. Mrs. Eleanor Saville of San Francisco was third and Josephine McKim of Los Angeles finished fourth.

Close Race

The race was close all the way, with the new champion first to swim the length of the pool, first to start back on the home length, and winner by approximately one and one-half feet.

All six swimmers bettered the former Olympic record of 1:11. Miss Madison, so blond she is almost a towhead, failed to equal her own world record of 1:06.6.

The swimming became the central Olympic feature today with the track and field competition completed.

The U. S. finished one-two-three in the men's springboard diving this morning. Michael Riley Galliten of Los Angeles won the title with Harold (Dutch) Smith of Los Angeles second, and Richard Degener of Detroit third.

Riley made 161.38 points in winning the championship.

Jap Sets Record

A new Olympic record was established by Takashi Yokoyama of Japan, in winning the first heat of the men's 400-meter free style trials. The wiry Japanese was caught at 4:53.2. James Gilhula of the U. S., was second, and George Burroughs of Canada, was third. It was a close race between the first two men, almost ending in a dead heat. There was just one-tenth of a second difference between the men, Gilhula finishing in 4:53.3.

Albert Zmrrilla of Argentina, the defending champion, and former Olympic record holder, mysteriously failed to appear for the race.

U. S. in Lead

With two men's events completed, the United States held a total of 27 points in the unofficial reckonings. Japan was in second place with 18. Canada had three points, and Germany, two.

"I've been working for this championship for years," smiling Mickey, the diver, told the United Press. "I was never so nervous in all my life. I'll bet I worried away three pounds."

He executed each of his 10 dives with the utmost grace, many of them leaving not more than a ripple in the blue-green pool. He improved his showing in the five required dives by choosing difficult ones in the five optional exhibitions.

U. S. TAKES LEAD IN SWIMMING EVENTS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8. (UP)—United States took the lead in the men's and women's swimming events of the 10th Olympiad today, according to unofficial tabulations made by the United Press.

Strength in men's springboard diving and the women's 100-meter free style swim gave America its lead in scoring. The men's point score follows:

United States, 27; Japan, 18; Canada, 3; Germany, 2.

The women's point scores follow: United States, 17; Holland, 5; Australia, 2; South Africa, 1.

BRAZIL PLAYERS ATTACK REFEREE

OLYMPIC SWIMMING STADIUM Los Angeles, Aug. 8. (UP)—Brazilian water polo players, becoming suddenly incensed at what they believed was unfair refereeing in today's game against Germany, attacked Referee B. Komjadi and attempted to beat him.

Ten policemen were needed to separate the milling swimmers. Crowds of spectators forming around the scene of battle added to the confusion.

Led by De Silva, Brazilian goalkeeper, the players came out of the pool en masse and started for Komjadi, who cried for help. De Silva aimed several blows at the referee before stadium guards pulled him back.

Brazil started the trouble after the game ended.

Germany won 7 to 3.

As a result of the squabble, Brazil may be removed from the tournament.

U. S. WINS FIRST YACHTING TITLE

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Aug. 8. (UP)—Owen Churchill, veteran Pacific coast skipper, won America's first Olympic yachting championship today when he sent the eight-meter sloop Angelita across the line a winner over Sir Roland Maitland's Canadian hope, Santa Maria.

It was Angelita's fourth straight victory, and with only seven races scheduled the American boat was assured of the title. She sailed the 12-mile course today in 2:25:46, with the Santa Maria close behind in 2:26:29.

Phillies' Pennant Hopes Jolted Again As Cards Win Twin Bill

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8. (AP)—The Phillies' pennant hopes were given another jolt today when they dropped two games to the St. Louis Cardinals for their fourth successive defeat. The world champions won the opener 7-6 and then took the nightcap 6-4 in 11 innings. Jimmy Collins' 18th home run with Jim Bottomley on base in the 11th provided the winning margin in the second encounter. Dizzy Dean replaced Derringer in the box for the Cards in the sixth and allowed the Phillies only two hits in the last six innings, striking out seven men. Scores:

TYLER, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—Charlie Biggs of Tyler shut out the Longview Cannibals here tonight, 9-0. He allowed eight hits, no two coming in the same inning. Byram of Longview allowed 11 hits and went the route. He made a balk in the first inning by which Washington was allowed to score from third.

Tyler's nine runs came largely as a result of doubles by Biggs, Phelps, Washington, and Cashion and a homer by Ater in the sixth with one man on base. Score:

FORT WORTH, Aug. 8. (AP)—Fifty-five hundred fans turned out to officially welcome Clarence Kraft as president of the Fort Worth club tonight but the "home town" party meant nothing to the Dallas Steers who spoiled the festivities by defeating the Cats, 7-2.

Hal McKain's slow curve was just too much for them, while the Steers hopped on Dick Whitworth and Preacher Thurman, his successor, for the seven runs. Score:

SENATORS BEAT INDIANS, 7 TO 6

Monte Weaver Gets Credit For His 18th Win

CLEVELAND, Aug. 8. (AP)—Slipshod work afield cost the Indians their first defeat in their last seven starts today, Wishington scoring a 7-6 victory on only five hits.

The defeat sent Cleveland back to third place, a half a game behind the idle Philadelphia Athletics.

Monte Weaver, who quit teaching mathematics to seek baseball fame, got credit for his 18th victory of the season against five defeats although the tribe batted him out of the box in an eighth-inning rally that fell just one run short of tying the score. Sam Rice executed one of the rarity's of modern baseball, a clean steal of home. Score:

LONGVIEW, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—Outfielder Debs Garms of the Longview Cannibals, one of the leading hitters of the Texas league, left tonight to join the St. Louis Browns. Garms' batting average has been near .350 all season.

The Browns will send two players here. One is Outfielder Russell from Dayton of the Central league. The other's name was not announced.

DOORS CLOSE ON HORNSBY

Neither Major League Offers Managerial Opening

By PAUL MICKELSON

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (AP)—Unless a managerial storm blows unexpectedly from peaceful regions, Rogers Hornsby is almost certain to remain out of the big major league show in 1933, perhaps forever.

Within less than a week of his sudden release as pilot of the Chicago Cubs all doors appear to have been shut against him.

When the "Rajah" was booted from his baseball throne last Tuesday, the wise men of the game figured he was headed for the managership of the St. Louis Browns because of his popularity in the Mound city and his friendship with Owner Phil Ball, but no sooner had he returned to his home there than Bill Killefer was signed to a 1933 contract.

Phillies Follow Suit

Philadelphia, another remote chance to stay in the National league, followed suit. The Phillies signed Burt Shotton to a three-year contract.

A survey of the managerial situation in both majors today revealed but two chances for a Hornsby landing, Cincinnati and the New York Giants. Both were in the midst of unsatisfactory seasons but those who knew Hornsby wouldn't even consider them as possibilities. It was known Bill Terry had an inside track on a two-year contract to manage the Giants while the Cincinnati management was kindly disposed toward Dan Howley, who lost a great chance to create trouble in the National league race by injuries and the illness of his star hitter, "Chick" Hafey. All the other managers in the national seemed to be "sitting pretty" although the Pittsburgh fans were sick at heart because of the great Pirate slump.

Others Sewed Up

At least three managers were definitely "in" around the American league—Connie Mack with the Philadelphia Athletics, Lew Fonseca with another year's contract with the White Sox, and Killefer at St. Louis. Joe McCarthy was in a good spot with the New York Yankees far ahead in first place and so was Roger Peckinpaugh, who has done some good construction work with the Cleveland Indians. Walter Johnson appeared to be a managerial fixture at Washington. If there were two probable openings, they were at Detroit and Boston although Frank J. Navin of the Tigers said last winter he never considered any one better qualified as a manager than "Bucky" Harris. Boston, too, was quite pleased with the work thus far of its new manager, Marty McManus.

Hornsby's playing days may not be over just yet but even he admits that he can't go much farther because of his aging legs. He's one baseball player, however, who won't play for nothing and it is questionable whether he would even care to leave the peace of his farm, where he makes money growing grass for golf greens, for the amount some club would offer him as a utility man or pinch hitter.

MONTGOMERY ON WRESTLING BILL

Grunt and Groaner to Meet Don Juan Humberto

By MACK TURNER

Juan Humberto, the Mexican grunt and groan artist, takes on Bob Montgomery this week in the headline event of Whitey Govro's wrestling card. Since Humberto's rough treatment of George Sauer a couple of weeks ago, and the "unethical" show made last week by Montgomery against Doc Muller, the local matchmaker announced that he was putting the two men in the ring together to battle it out in any way they chose.

Neither is any too well liked in Wichita Falls for his system of wrestling, but Friday night should find the fans getting just about the biggest night of thrills ever displayed here. If the headliners live up to their past records the bout should settle down to a case of the survival of the fittest.

To carry out the general scheme of the card, the semifinal will find the Wild Irish Rose, Pat O'Brien, tangling with Russian George Ligosky, the big boy with the black beard and the blacker disposition.

Swanson Gives Views On Arms Reduction

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Some "plain talk" and improved political conditions in Europe will be necessary, Senator Swanson said today, to bring fulfillment of the promises of arms reduction made at the recent Geneva conference.

Swanson, a member of the American delegation and ranking Democrat of the senate foreign relations committee, is hopeful about the outlook. He believes the recent Lausanne agreement virtually abolishing German reparations will go a long way in helping the European political situation.

Cap's Corner Cinches Second Place Berth

Special to The Record News.

SAINT JO, Texas, Aug. 8.—Cap's Corner cinched second place in the Red River Valley league at Bulcher Sunday afternoon when they beat the Oilers, 9 to 7, in a loosely-played game. The score was tied twice during the game but in the eighth two errors followed by a single by O. Davenport gave the Corner boys the lead. Bulcher got five runs in the fourth on four hits and two errors and tied the score in the sixth when Mangel hit a home run with Glidewell on base. Davenport's strikeout record suffered some as he got only six and walked one, but he was stingy with his hits after the fourth. Knabe started for the Bulcher Oilers but was removed in the fourth to make way for Glidewell. Knabe allowed six hits and two runs while Glidewell was the losing pitcher, giving up seven hits and seven runs. Bulcher was guilty of nine errors while Cap's boys made four.

Saint Jo won their game against Spanish Fort 11-9. After gaining a 11-3 lead on the Fort boys, Phillips was pounded for six runs but his big lead was never overcome. This game gives Saint Jo first place in the league with Cap's Corner in second place. The play-off arranged to be a five-game series between the first and second teams will begin Aug. 21 as Bulcher and Cap's Corner have one game each to be played with Spanish Fort and Montague respectively. Saint Jo has completed its schedule.

Rasberry Loses First In 10 Starts as Burk Wins

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, Texas, Aug. 8.—The Crowell baseball club lost its first game Sunday since July 3, losing to Burkburnett by the score of 5 to 3.

It was a heartbreaker for Rasberry, as he allowed only three scattered hits and no earned runs. It was a thriller all the way with both pitchers pitching a beautiful game. Crowell touched Alexander for six hits but could not score until the eighth, when two bases on balls, a balk and a hit batsman followed by a double by Ashford brought in three runs. Rasberry pitched the best game of his career but his infield kicked the game away to give him his first defeat in 10 starts. Score:

DEMOS DEFER NEGRO CASE

Right of Negro Vote to Be Discussed at Lubbock

FORT WORTH, Aug. 8. (AP)—Action toward repeal of measures enacted by the legislature "that attempt to handicap and regulate party organization" was deferred today by the state Democratic executive committee in session here. The resolution was a move to establish the party's authority to bar negroes from the primary.

T. W. Davidson of Dallas, former lieutenant governor, presented the resolution. W. O. Huggins, chairman, asked that action be delayed but gave assurance that a vigorous resolution on the subject would be offered at the state convention at Lubbock.

Reports of irregularities in the first primary evoked the comment that laxity of election officials and not wilful intent was responsible. Huggins was empowered to name a committee to investigate and prosecute any violations in the run-off. County chairmen were directed to call the election judges together and instruct them to see that the laws were strictly observed.

SUPREME COURT STUDIES LEGALITY OF NEGRO VOTE

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—The Texas supreme court today took submission of the question of whether negroes legally were entitled to vote in primary elections held by the state Democratic party.

Before the court can pass on the merits of the case, it indicated it would be forced to settle in its own mind whether it had jurisdiction and whether a decision before the Aug. 27 primaries would settle the question.

The case was brought to the supreme court on certified question from the fourth court of civil appeals at San Antonio where C. A. Booker, San Antonio negro, sought to compel the Bexar county Democratic executive committee to allow Booker and other negroes to vote.

The civil appeals court held against Booker in a decision after the first primary, negroes being allowed to vote in the first primary under a district court injunction restraining party officials from interfering with them. Rehearing of the appeals court decision was asked and the question certified to obtain the high court's opinion.

Greta Garbo Lifts 'Mask Of Mystery' With Arrival Home

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, Aug. 8. (INS)—For the first time since she left obscurity in Stockholm to become one of the most famous motion picture actresses in the world, Greta Garbo tore the mask of mystery from her life today.

Arriving for a holiday in her native Sweden aboard the liner Gripsholm, she revealed that it was shyness and modesty which caused her to surround her movements in secrecy and to throw about herself a wall of silence and mystery.

"People really don't want to see me in real life," she said. "They go to cinemas to forget their ordinary, every day existence.

"What I do in the studios may be important, but surely the world doesn't care what soap I use to wash myself."

Speaking freely and without reserve, Miss Garbo greeted a score of Swedish and foreign newspaper men in the smoking room of the liner in Gothenburg harbor.

"I'm not afraid of reporters," she said with a smile, "but sometimes I am scared of things the newspapers print about me.

"I am tired of picking up English, French, German and other newspapers sent to me in Hollywood and of reading my alleged views on love, cosmetics and health.

"I have never written a word in my life.

"I used to be amused over reading these alleged memoirs.

"But now it has become tiresome."

CONOCO EXECUTIVE PRAISES OFFICERS

Letters of congratulation on the successful solution of the slaying of Ted Nodurft were received by Police Chief Dick Morris and Sheriff Perry Browning Monday from Division Manager T. H. Lawson of the Continental Oil company at Fort Worth. The letter received by Chief Morris follows:

"The rapidly approaching date for the execution of the negroes who murdered Ted Nodurft about a year ago has just dawned upon me. I am sure you know that all of us in this organization (Continental Oil company) are pleased that the law has taken its course and that they will be executed for the crime that they so brutally committed.

"We in this organization with whom he worked during a short period of his lifetime want to congratulate both you and Perry Browning for the excellent work that you did in locating these negroes and securing from them their confession of guilt. You have a right to be justly proud of that accomplishment and I feel that every citizen of Wichita Falls and Wichita county is also proud of what you did, and the promptness with which it was accomplished. I am speaking for myself and the others of this organization who formerly lived in Wichita Falls, and, therefore, feel that we can join people now living there and want to add our thanks for the work that you did and best wishes for your future success in efforts of this kind if you are again faced with the same situation in the future."

WICHITA OFFICERS TO VIEW EXECUTION

Sheriff Perry Browning, Police Chief Dick Morris, A. D. Woodward and Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, will leave Wichita Falls Tuesday morning for Huntsville to witness the execution of two negroes who were given the death penalty for slaying Ted Nodurft, Fort Worth oil company employe, and attacking his fiancee on a Wichita Falls street last December.

The double execution will take place immediately after midnight Tuesday. The negroes, Richard Brown and Richard Johnson, have been in the death row at the state penitentiary several weeks. The court of criminal appeals affirmed the death sentences given them.

BONUS FORCES PLAN CAMPS

Waters Has Land Promised In Nearly All States

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (US)—The bonus army, scattered to every section of the country, was marching on today over separate ways to the same goal—the cash bonus when congress meets in December.

Commander Walter W. Waters, before leaving for New York tonight, to begin a nation-wide tour in behalf of the B. E. F., said:

"The B. E. F. has been broken up into state sections, but I can't emphasize too strongly that the bonus army has not gone to pieces. We have just begun to fight. We have learned by experience and we expect to win the next round."

Property Offered

Waters' present objective is to establish state cantonments to care for the veterans and their families, pending the reconvening of congress. He has had property offered for this purpose in virtually every state in the union, he said.

The bonus leader refused to reveal the location of these sites until after he has inspected them and received the approval of the state authorities to establish the camps. He wishes to avoid another turndown such as he met in Maryland.

Texans to Pitch Camp

There are now 1,000 veterans quartered temporarily in Chicago, awaiting word to proceed to the camps selected for them, B. E. F. headquarters announced. The Texas unit, 700 strong, is en route to the Lone Star state where they expect to pitch a permanent camp.

Waters will open his speaking tour with an engagement later this week in Brooklyn where he will tell the story of what he termed the "outrageous treatment" of the bonus army in Washington by federal troops.

The grand jury continued its inquiry into the rioting on Pennsylvania avenue, preceding the eviction of the bonus army, with Brig. Gen. Perry L. Miles, who commanded the troops, on the stand.

WATCH STOLEN

City police were given a description of a negro suspect Monday afternoon after the theft of a 15-jewel watch from a display window of the Gift Shop, 909 Van Buren, was reported. The loss of two electric fans from the home of Mrs. H. F. Robertson, 1310 Thirteenth, was reported to officers Monday.

Pretty Divorcee Gets Venue Change In Trial For Slaying Of Matador Rancher

MATADOR, Texas, Aug. 8. (UP)—A pretty 31-year-old divorcee, Mrs. Ruth McComas, called to trial here today with her young daughter Edith for the ax slaying of J. A. Cunningham, 68, pioneer rancher was granted a change of venue.

District Attorney A. J. Folley asked that the case against the 13-year-old girl be dismissed. Judge Kenneth Bain sent Mrs. McComas' trial to Floyd county, where it probably will be called again Oct. 18.

Defend Girl's Honor

Mrs. McComas, who was housekeeper for Cunningham, contended the rancher was slain in defense of the girl's honor. She pleaded not guilty to the indictment of murder after it had been amended to drop Edith's name.

Judge Bain overruled defense motions to quash the bill and also for continuance of the case. The defense then entered a motion for a change of venue. A special venire was being examined late today for evidence to support the motion.

The rancher's will provided Mrs. McComas should receive his property if he did not die at her hands. At first, the daughter asserted she herself wielded the ax that took the elderly Cunningham's life. Later she admitted she told this story, knowing of the will, so her mother could receive the property and bring up two younger children.

Mrs. McComas had been housekeeper for Cunningham just three weeks when he was slain. She took the place after answering a newspaper advertisement.

Mrs. McComas' counsel was expected to offer evidence as to why other women who preceded her at the Cunningham residence left the ranch, although they also had been beneficiaries in his will.

Cunningham had been twice divorced. The first divorce was about 35 years ago before he came to West Texas. The second was in September, 1931, and his second wife lived in Matador for some time after the decree was entered.

Mrs. McComas has been at liberty under bail of $10,000 since she was indicted in the spring. The daughter had been at liberty under $1,000 bond.

Wife Gets Divorce From Buster Keaton

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8. (UP)—Natalie Talmadge Keaton today was awarded an interlocutory decree of divorce from Buster Keaton, "frozen face" comedian, by Superior Judge Joseph P. Sproul, on her testimony that Buster was quite a "rounder."

Blond Constance Talmadge, sister of Natalie, corroborated the testimony regarding Keaton's night life.

Buster, Constance said, had formed a habit of remaining away from home until late hours, sometimes being away all night, and refusing to explain his whereabouts.

The much publicized airplane trip in which Keaton attempted to take his two sons to Mexico several months ago also was used as a basis for Mrs. Keaton's plea of cruelty.

"I didn't know what he was doing until the nurse called me and told me that Mr. Keaton had gotten the children, saying he was going to take them on an airplane trip to Mexico," Natalie said.

"I was frantic. I called mutual friends and then managed to stop Mr. Keaton at San Diego.

"When he returned, he said the children were as much his as mine, and that he would take them whenever he wanted."

Hoover Notification Committee Invited To Buffet Luncheon

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—All members of the Hoover notification committee, including Charles Isaacs of Natchez, Miss., a negro, have been invited to a buffet luncheon at the White House next Thursday.

The luncheon has been planned as a prelude to ceremonies Thursday night at which President Hoover formally will be notified of his renomination by the Republican national convention.

Invitations have been sent to all members of the notification committee, officers and members of the Republican national committee and members of the District of Columbia reception committee.

Isaacs has been designated as the Mississippi member of the notification committee. He also was a delegate to the Republican convention.

It was explained informally at the White House that the invitation was purely routine, Isaacs having been included along with other members of the notification committee.

The last time a negro has been a White House guest was June 13, 1929. At that time Mrs. Hoover entertained the wife of Oscar DePriest, the Illinois negro representative, at a tea given to women of the congressional sex. About 40 women were present.

Young Explorer Kills Self Before Eyes Of Actress After Plea Rejected

PARIS, Aug. 8. (INS)—A love tragedy involving Alice Cocea, one of France's stage and screen favorites, and a young explorer who committed suicide before her eyes in a canoe in full view of fashionable crowds on the beach, shocked the Cote d'Azur today.

The victim was Lieut. Victor Point, 30, an officer of the French navy and second in command of Georges Marie Haardt's recent expedition into the Gobi desert.

Mlle. Cocea, daughter of a Rumanian colonel, who was recently divorced from the Duke de la Rochefoucault, was aboard her small yacht a short distance off shore.

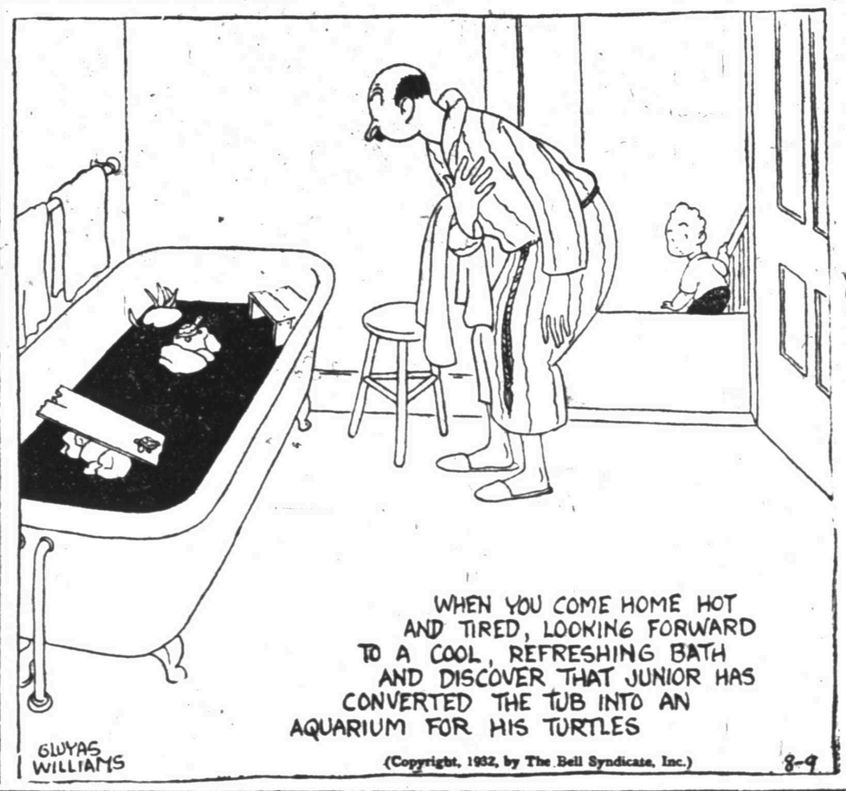

Point set off from the beach in a canoe. He headed toward the yacht, and when he had pulled along side. He stood up and began an earnest conversation with Mlle. Cocea, who was standing at the rail with a group of friends.

Persons on the beach watching the tableau saw Lieutenant Point make what appeared to be an impassioned plea to the actress. Mlle Cocea remained unmoved.

Lieutenant Point started to paddle back to shore. Half way to the beach, he stood up, turning about to face the actress, placed a pistol to his head and fired.

The body was not recovered for several hours. When at last it was dragged up on the beach, the actress threw herself upon it, moaning and kissing the white face desperately.

Manchester cabled that the demand for cloth was well sustained. First trades here showed gains of 7 to 8 points due to good cables and the report that a syndicate was being formed to take over all of the farm board cotton for mill use. The market continued to advance after the start owing to early strength of stocks and prices advanced to 6.34 for October and 6.53 for December, up 18 to 21 points above the close of Saturday. Later in the first hour prices eased off on prebureau liquidation, October dropping to 6.22 and December to 6.39, or 12 to 14 points below the early highs.

Stock Tunrover Reaches Million Per Hour In Fastest Trading In Months

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (US)—Turnover in stocks mounted today to 5,500,000 shares, more than a million an hour. It was the largest volume since October, 1930.

Towards the end of the session stocks were declining, but managed to retain moderate net gains on the day. Averages, therefore, were in new high ground, although the closing prices represented fair sized setbacks from the day's peak quotations.

It was noticeable and perhaps significant that the railroad stocks enjoyed a net advance more than double the actual average gain among leading industrials; generally in a strong market the industrials have the largest average gain.

The colossal trading while reflecting of course the accentuation of the bullish enthusiasm over the week-end nevertheless witnessed very substantial profit taking, judging by the sluggishness of various issues.

This was apparent even though plus signs were overwhelming at the close. The market was still under tremendous pressure of reviving sentiment, but the enormous turnover was indicative of a vast speculation.

Impetus to the speculative bullish sentiment was furnished by an enthusiastically bullish government cotton crop report. The estimated 11,306,000 bales was 5,790,080 bales below last year's crop and a million bales below anticipations. The result was a violent advance in cotton amounting at the peak to $5 a bale.

Cotton apparently has come in for the latest phase of the revival campaign. Just as widespread talk was heard concerning what was to be done with wheat, so the cotton market is full of similar rumors.

Any one who doubts that the stock market is responding to a well-planned campaign is blind to the actualities. However, speculators seem quite willing to be led into wild bullishness and the market is responding to this sentiment.

Only a stubborn bear crowd actively fights the advance and their efforts serve mainly to strengthen the technical position. Every forecast of bullish nature is time-limited "by election."

Aside from the government's cotton report, the news of the day was mainly indicative of the continued sluggishness in trade. General Motors' sales to dealers in July were 36,872 units against 52,561 in June and 87,449 in July, 1931. After the market closed Canadian Pacific omitted its dividend.

However, the market still was looking forward with hope. Almost every one admits that a tremendous momentum has been gained by the bulls and the outcome can only be guessed.

The speculators generally once again are alligned on the bullish side, taking advantage not only of the great enthusiasm but also of the precarious position of the still-remaining bears.

It was reported that some of the biggest short operators are in difficulties by reason of the sudden and staggering rise.

Here and there the market showed signs of weariness, but the amazing volume made it difficult to ascertain the significance of these laggards. The public has come into the market on an increasing scale; this is apparent despite the continued selling-on-balance in a few large commission houses.

The bull plans seem to be focused on American Telephone and this has been sensed by a few more discerning speculators who watch the issue closely for a cue.

New stocks were subjected to bull pool activity, but some of the leaders were inclined toward heaviness. Steel common closed up ⅛, while General Electric closed down as much. Case Threshing, a prime speculative favorite, closed up a point, American Can 2⅜, Dupont 2¼ and New York Central 1¼.

The market apparently is just reaching the stage of discrimination; that is, where buying will tend to favor more and more issues of recognized merit and prospects, rather than involve any and all stocks, such as has been the case to date.

While conservatives are literally frightened to death, the bulls proclaim fantastic prices are in store for the market. Softness in the dollar might have suggested some profit-taking by the fortunate Europeans who had caught the turn of our markets.

But the bulls counter that all has not yet become known regarding the revival campaign. Wednesday, according to the schedule, the commodity-stimulating plans are to be released. The whole bull campaign, of course, is predicated on hope that an inflationary movement can be inaugurated which will gradually spread into the regular business and trade channels.

The most genuinely encouraging development of the day was the accentuated strength in the bond list. In other words, the investor is buying bonds, the speculator is buying stocks.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Aug. 8. (AP)—All offerings on the Fort Worth cash grain market Monday met a good demand with the lone exception of corn which was slow sale. Estimated receipts included: Wheat 172 cars; corn 6; oats 23; barley 4, and sorghums 4.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis car loads on track at Fort Worth, freight paid, delivered Texas gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points, wheat No. 1 hard, according to protein and billing, 59@63c. Barley No. 2 nominally 31@31½c. Sorghums No. 2 milo per 100 lbs. nominally 64@67c; No. 2 kaffir nominally 63@65c. Delivered Texas common points or group three: Corn, No. 2 mixed 41½@42½c. Corn No. 2 mixed 41½@42½c; No. 2 white 42@43c; No. 2 yellow 43½@45½c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (AP)—Wheat values went skyward today in the largest speculative purchase movement in months in spite of mammoth selling to realize profits. Special impetus came from announcements that breadstuff supplies on ocean passage had been reduced to less than one month's necessities for Europe and that the United States wheat visible supply was 50,000,000 bushels below the total a year ago.

Wheat closed strong at the day's zenith, 1⅝@1⅞c above Saturday's finish; corn, ⅝@1⅛c up; Oats, ⅛@½c advanced and provisions showing a rise of 12 to 25 cents.

Public participation in the wheat market made grain trade developments a subordinate influence, the fact being very apparent that general speculative demand was broadening to a surprising degree.

Meanwhile, drought persisted in Canada and Liverpool wheat quotations kept pace with Chicago. A wet harvest in many sections of Germany and elsewhere abroad was indicated with apprehension expressed over scantiness of world shipments.

Corn and oats reflected wheat strength. Provisions responded to hog market upturns.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (US)—Following conspicuous examples of inability to support prices through huge "pool" operations, wheat traders are reluctant to take the buy side on rumors that private organizations may enter the market for the purpose of boosting prices. However, the plans of the Young committee to stabilize commodity markets through the stimulation of actual buying of supplies is receiving widespread attention.

Broomhall says: "The Young committee plan to ease credit for actual commodity buying, but not to advance prices artificially, is undoubtedly influencing markets in general, manufacturers are known to be carrying very light stocks of raw materials and this plan of finance should persuade industries to increase their holdings and so relieve growers of some of their burden."

Confirmation of damage to the Jugoslavia wheat crop from heat and rust has been received in Europe. The crop is now expected to be 19,000,000 bushels smaller than a year ago, which will just about fill home requirements.

Rumania is expected to ship very little wheat, so that Black Sea clearances will be very small this season unless Russia offers more wheat for shipment. At present this is doubtful as collections are poor and offerings are being made only on a firm basis.

AIR EXPRESS STARTED HERE

Speedy Services Given On Merchandise

Air express service in Wichita Falls became a reality Monday when the first package received in the city arrived over American Airways from Fort Worth at 11:51 o'clock Monday morning. The package was delivered to the Wichita Falls Battery company at 12:10 p. m., 19 minutes after the plane halted at the municipal airport.

The Postal Telegraph company made the delivery and will handle all pick-up and deliveries of air express in this city. This is a new fast service inaugurated Monday by seven air lines to cover the entire nation when fully developed.

The service is designed to extend trade area limits by air commerce sponsored by the General Air express—the Interline system—with store-to-door handling. The service is provided without additional charge through arrangements between the seven air lines and the Postal Telegraph company, which is using uniformed messengers and motorized equipment for pick-up and delivery.

The seven companies operate 17,600 miles of air routes with American Airways, Transcontinental and Western Air the transcontinental companies in the group. In some instances the "overnight" reach of air express is as much as 1,500 miles and the carrying charge including the pick-up and delivery feature is about four cents per pound for each 100 miles of flight.

Perishables and shipments of value demanding continuous and speedy handling are expected to eventually require special air carriers as shippers learn of ways in which air express with its higher carrying charges make possible a saving through lower overhead and other economies. In this connection it is pointed out that large companies now maintaining mail order supply houses throughout the nation may eliminate the space used in those houses by adopting air express handling for articles weighing under 200 pounds.

Wichitans Enrolled At Aviation School

Five young men, four of whom reside in this city, have successfully passed physical examinations required for enrollment in aviation schools, it was announced by Drs. J. A. Little and R. E. Hillburn Monday. One of the youths, Tex W. Logan of Burkburnett, already has received his private license. The others enrolling in the air school of the Wichita Falls Air transport are James D. Dale, James M. Williams, Ules W. Hagmann and Loran L. Taylor.

ABSENTEE VOTE

Ballots Distributed To Wichita Voters For Second Primary

Absentee voting for the run-off primaries started in Wichita Falls Monday when the office of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, mailed out about 75 ballots to Wichita county voters who will be away from home on Aug. 27. Six persons came to the county clerk's office Monday and cast their votes, expecting to be away from home on election day.

The absentee votes may be cast up to the Tuesday preceding the election. Members of Miss Hall's staff reminded voters Monday that it is not necessary this year to cast the vote in the presence of a notary public before mailing it to Wichita Falls.

Youngsters Prepare Stock For Annual Show

Twenty-six members of the Wichita county 4-H feeding club have begun fattening calves for exhibition at the livestock show here next March, County Agent G. C. McGown announced Monday. About six other boys will enter the contest, according to Mr. McGown, who will supervise the feeding.

Placing of the calves with the farm boys was financed by the City National bank through Oral Jones, who has been designated the key banker for Wichita county by the state extension department.

The following boys bought calves Saturday: Carl Goetze, Berrie Everett, Parker McBride, John Miley, Will Miley, Roger Glenn Hale, Eldon Kemp, A. D. Kemp, Sylvester Kemp, J. B. Roosevelt Hears Marketing Experts

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 8. —A dozen experts in cooperative marketing of farm products today told Governor Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, what they believed could be done to improve the condition of the farmer.

The cooperative group included men who have managed and directed cooperative buying and selling organizations in cotton, dairy products and produce.

Roosevelt discussed the farm question last week with the president and the Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation. In one or more speeches in the Middle West, during a swing through the grain states to the Pacific coast in late September Roosevelt will make his bid for the farm vote with an outline of how he believes the farm problem should be handled.

United States Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio told Rosevelt today at a breakfast conference he believed the Democrats would easily win the state famous for the number of Republican sons it has sent to the presidency. Bulkley, who was a classmate of Roosevelt at Harvard, outlined plans for receiving the governor at Columbus on Aug. 20.

U. S. Court Refuses To Intervene In Coal Mine Strife

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 8. (INS)—The federal courts will maintain a hands-off policy in the Indiana coal fields strife as long as the state of Indiana and local officials protect life and property.

That was the ruling of Federal Judge Louis Fitzhenry of Bloomington, Ill., here today.

Judge Fitzhenry declined to make permanent a temporary injunction issued against members of the United Mine Workers of America with respect to picketing and violence at the Dixie Bee coal mine in Vigo county where one person was killed and eight injured last week.

Instead, Judge Fitzhenry continued the case "until the further order of the court."

However, Judge Fitzhenry set Sept. 19 as the date for arraignment of 171 union men and sympathizers, who were charged with contempt of court in connection with alleged disregard of injunctions protecting the Hoosier and Ebbvale mines.

Baptists Of Wichita Area Sponsor Camp For Boys And Young Men

The first annual boys and young men's camp sponsored by Baptist churches of district No. 11 will open with registrations at the Prescott farm near Burkburnett at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The camp will continue through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday under direction of the Woman's Missionary union of the district, according to Mrs. J. M. Tanner of Wichita Falls, who is in charge.

More than 100 youths between the ages of 9 and 17 years and young men from 17 to 24 years old are expected at the camp. A complete educational program based on mission study books has been outlined for each morning of the camp. The afternoons will be given over to recreation and rest periods with missionary talks scheduled for each evening. Army regulations will be observed and each youth will furnish individual equipment for camping.

The Rev. M. O. Cheek, missionary to China on leave, will speak each evening on his work in the foreign missionary fields. Instructors and camp leaders include the Rev. M. B. Hayes of Burkburnett, the Rev. S. F. Martin of Wichita Falls, the Rev. E. M. Agee, district missionary, the Rev. J. B. Thorne of Graham, Mrs. W. B. Howell of McKinney, Mrs. Gladys Land of Childress, Mrs. C. F. Birkhead of Electra, the Rev. and Mrs. N. B. Moon of Archer City, the Rev. A. C. Turner of Wichita Falls, Mrs. John Brownlee of Electra, and others.

COTTON TRUCK HEARING ASKED

Firm Seeks Injunction To Stop Interference

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Aug. 8. (AP)—The Anderson Clayton company, cotton dealer and exporter, today filed application in district court here for an injunction to restrain state officers from interfering with the operation of 25 trucks the company has leased to haul cotton.

The injunction petition asked that the following persons be restrained: Mark Marshall, director of the motor transportation division of the state railroad commission; C. V. Terrell, Lon Smith and E. O. Thompson, members of the commission; L. G. Phares, chief of the state highway patrol; R. E. Scott, employe of the state railroad commission; T. H. Wright, Nueces county traffic officer; and Earl Jones, traffic officer, precinct one.

The application asked that these officials be restrained from compelling drivers of the company's trucks to give sworn statements, from subjecting drivers to inquisitions, from threatening drivers with arrest, from delaying operation of trucks and from attempting to enjoin the Anderson-Clayton company from operation of trucks.

Hearing of the petition was set for Aug. 18. The petition alleges the trucks do not require permits to operate as they are hauling Anderson-Clayton's own cotton. It asked that interference be restrained in Harris, Nueces and other counties of the state.

Oil Field Worker Files $15,000 Suit

C. E. Millard, oil field laborer, filed suit in the 78th district court Monday seeking $15,000 damages from the Sinclair Prairie Pipe Line company for injuries he alleged he received in an accident 14 miles south of Wichita Falls.

Mr. Millard's petition blamed the pipe line company, then operating in Wichita county as the Pure Oil Pipe Line company, with responsibility for an obstruction in the road which his motorcycle struck as he rode along a public road.

He declared he has been wholly disabled since the accident and will be partially disabled for the rest of his life.

ROD DETECTS DISEASE

PARIS, (INS)—The whole theory of medical diagnosis was upset here when Dr. Abel Martin, speaking before the faculty of medicine, related that he had been able to detect disease by means of a diving rod. The disease reacted on the rod in the form of body vibrations.

Explorer Tells of Friend's Death in Ecuador

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (UP)—A story of adventure and hardship unparalleled since the days when European adventurers starved and died in the American wilderness, was unfolded today against the prosaic background of New York skyscrapers and subways.

Harold Foard, 29, of Bramwell, W. Va., came home on the Grace liner, Santa Clara. He was thin and bronzed. But there was a glint in his eye, a nervousness in his manner.

"I can't begin to tell you. You would never realize or understand until you are on the verge of starvation. No, no. Let's don't talk about it."

In an unexplored Ecuadorian jungle, Foard came within an inch of dying of starvation and exposure and, in a shallow grave dug with a hunting knife, he buried his best friend and companion, Thomas Walsh Jr., of Chicago, who, less hardy, died from hardships.

Foard and Walsh, both chemists, were employed at a mine in Oroya, Peru, and when they were laid off in October, 1931, they decided to prospect for gold in the Paute region of Ecuador.

They set out through the jungle to reach Monson, their base. For many days they traveled up the Huallaga river only to discover their maps were inaccurate and were leading them deeper into wilderness. Finally the canoe was smashed against a rock. They took to the jungle with such equipment as they could carry.
