

Build New Plant Or Rennovate City Faces Decision With Sewage Disposal

City officials, already seriously studying corrective measures, face a multi-problem task improving Colorado City's sewage treatment plant.

The question is not whether improvements must be made. That is already decided by the fact that the plant (now upgraded by engineers to Waste Water Reclamation Facilities) right now is not doing good enough job and anti-pollution requirements are increasing all the time.

Where the rub comes in for City Council and City Manager J. A. Sadler Jr. is deciding:

1. Whether to renovate present disposal facilities at the city's plant south of the business district or to build completely new facilities.

2. Whether to follow the recommendations of the city's consulting engineers -- Parkhill, Smith & Cooper Inc. of Lubbock -- or go along with initial suggestions resulting from a West Central Texas Council of Governments survey.

3. Just how far must the improvements go either way -- new plant or renovation -- to meet the increasing pressure for anti-pollution.

Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen have a stake in all of the decisions, because money requirements will be tied to each. The final action will determine whether the city can pay for the necessary improvements without a bond issue.

Colorado City's sewage treatment plant (or waste disposal or the new Waste Water Reclamation Facilities), which went into service in 1946, was designed originally for a 15,000 population.

At least that is what the city's then consulting engineers, Freese & Nichols of Fort Worth, told city fathers.

There have been complaints about the plant for years and years -- as far back as 1952, at least -- that the plant was not always doing its job.

State and city engineering studies now say definitely the plant is not meeting the requirements. Not only are its contents, a fact, chemically speaking, but the requirements for all waste plants are being made stiffer by the Texas Water Quality Board, a new state agency.

The city can't say what it thinks is good enough. The Water Quality Board decides that level, which the city is required to meet.

City Manager Sadler and City Council went to work on the problem months ago. They hired Parkhill, Smith and Cooper -- the engineers who are working on Colorado City's master plan -- to study the plant and recommend what improvements are needed.

They also called in the West Central Texas Council of Governments for a survey, too.

They got two answers, which doesn't lessen the complications already facing in their decision-making.

Parkhill, Smith and Cooper recommended a completely new plant, with a capacity capable of serving 10,000 people, at an estimated cost of $347,800 figuring current prices.

The WTCG Survey, which of the Water Quality Survey Board knew about, suggested a complete renovation of the present plant to meet Colorado City's needs until about 1980 -- at least 10 years down the road.

Estimates for the renovation go as low as $45,000 under current prices.

When the WTCG Survey suggested renovation, the consulting engineers concluded and recommended:

"Present flow of waste water meets or exceeds the capacity of the existing waste water reclamation plant. The need for additional treating facilities at an early date is evident."

"Due to the expenses involved, the low capacity and the quality of effluent expected, it is not considered practical to make any improvements to the existing facilities. It is recommended that this plant be abandoned as soon as a new reclamation plant can be completed."

"It is recommended that a new waste water reclamation plant be constructed. The plant should have a capacity capable of serving 10,000 people. A possible site for the plant is on the city owned property immediately north of the existing plant. A contact stabilization plant is recommended."

All of this boils down to the fact that City Hall knows a job must be accomplished and paid for.

What they don't know, for sure, is which of the two -- completely new plant for 10,000 persons or a renovation to get buy for 10 years or more -- will do the job.

And, in this case, doing the job means performance that will satisfy the requirements of the State Water Quality Board, not only immediately but also for future as regulations become more stringent as anti-pollution control tightens.

Moneywise, of course, it is See CITY Page 5

Deer And Truck Collide

A four-point buck deer, middle left, is the victim of a collision with an oil exploration truck beside State Highway 163. The truck shows plenty of wear and tear, too, after turning completely over and sending two persons to the hospital with injuries.

Baskets Need Food, Toys

Christmas Basket Office Saturday reported their list had more than 50 needy families still without basket sponsors.

At the same time all organizations and individuals intending to contribute Christmas baskets to check-in with the office so there will be no duplications or omissions.

"We are urgently in need of more canned foods and good toys," said Mrs. B. A. Jackson, who is operating the office for Ministerial Alliance.

Nine organizations had accepted basket names at the office Saturday. These include Volunteer Firemen, Veterans of Foreign Wars, St. Luke United Methodist, Calvary Baptist, First Baptist, First United Methodist, Lions, Root Hospital Employees and B&PW. Kiwanis had not checked-in Saturday.

The office, located in 100 block of East First in Civic House building, will be open Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 to 1 p.m. to accept basket contributions and to assign families.

Mrs. Carlock was born in Hays County March 5, 1894, and was married to James H. Carlock in Bell County Feb. 18, 1918. Mr. Carlock was a farmer east of Colorado City before his death in October, 1955.

Mr. Carlock was an elder of First Christian Church. He was instrumental in organizing Lone Wolf Electric Cooperative and served several years as chairman of board of directors.

She was a member of First Christian Church and had taught youth and young adult Sunday school classes until ill health curtailed her community activities.

Mrs. Carlock was a charter member of the church. See FUNERAL Page 7

Carlock Funeral Friday

Mrs. J. H. Carlock, a resident of Mitchell County since 1922, died Wednesday at 8:40 p.m. in the local hospital following a brief illness.

Final rites were conducted Friday morning at 11 o'clock in First Christian Church.

Burial was in Colorado City Cemetery under direction of Kiker and Son.

Rev. Weems S. Dykes, church minister, officiated. He was assisted by Rev. Billy Wilkinson, pastor of First United Methodist Church. Special music was by Mrs. O. B. Trulock Jr.

City's Sales Tax Up

$12,686 More Cash

Colorado City's new check from city sales tax amounts to $12,686.33.

City Manager J. A. Sadler Jr. said the check for collections in the third quarter of this year, arrived this week from State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert's office in Austin.

It is slightly more than for the same period -- July, August and September -- of 1968, first year the sales tax was ineffect.

Third quarter collections for last year's third quarter totaled $12,598.09 -- almost $100 less than 1969's July, August and September.

This represents an increase in retail sales for Colorado City for the same period of last year with the biggest sales period -- October, November and December -- yet to be tabulated.

So far this year, from Jan. 1 through Sept. 30, Colorado

City has gained $38,128.39 for its budget from the sales tax.

The tax was in force for only nine months in 1968, beginning with April. Total collection for those months amounted to $39,749.42.

All total in the 18 months the tax has been collected, the city has gained $77,877.61 in new cash revenue. Most City Hall observers concede that if the money had not come from the sales tax, then the city would by necessity have raised its property tax rate.

2 Vehicles Wreck Warnings For Holiday Traffic

One highway accident Saturday morning and another Thursday which injured two men brought new warnings Saturday for traffic safety during the holidays.

State highway patrols in Mitchell County will be increased during the Christmas and New Year's holiday periods. George Lee, whose usual job is checking weights and measurements, will join patrolmen Buddy Hertenberger and Jim Mauldin during the peak periods.

And all three, along with Police Chief Jesse Browning and Sheriff Lewis Claxton, have called for motorists to be especially alert, careful of all conditions and considerate of other drivers.

"Operation Motorcade" during the holidays is expected to claim 87 lives -- 54 deaths expected in the Christmas period beginning at 6 p.m. Christmas Eve to midnight Sunday, Dec. 28.

"We are urging each individual driver to accept the challenge of proving these Department of Public Safety estimates are too high," said Hertenberger.

Fortunately no serious injuries were reported in the two highway wrecks here Saturday and Thursday.

Billy Lindsey, Texas Tech University student in Lubbock, walked away unhurt from his 1958 Volkswagen after the vehicle went out of control and overturned Saturday at 7:45 a.m., according to Hertenberger.

The accident happened 4-mile south of Colorado City on State Highway 208 (to Robert Lee) as Lindsey was traveling south alone.

His car flipped over in a ditch.

Two employees of Geophysical See WRECK Page 5

A quick rule of thumb for Colorado City's full 12-month sales tax cash this year (1969) can be found from last year's $15,161.13 collection during the final third (October, November and December).

From that measurement, you can expect the city's budget to be enriched about $53,000 or more for the full 12 months of 1969.

No Royal Path For 'King Of Hobos'

He Pauses Here Before Traveling West

His type is vanishing.

Even the cartoons, those of yesteryear which pictured 'em so jolly carefree with a cigar stub in their mouth and a knapsack over their shoulder, are difficult to find.

But a few of 'em, his breed, are still around and Richard Wilson, the Pennsylvania Kid, is one of 'em.

In fact, he is king of them all -- "King of Hobos."

But erase those impressions you might have of a life of going along merrily when you please and where you please with none of the responsibilities of life... and sharing the fun with a gang of happy-go-lucky pals.

For, if the "king" is any indication, that isn't the story.

Richard Wilson is 61 years old and toothless.

He is lonely, for rarely does he come across a hobo friend anymore. Their population is too meager.

He moves along from one town to another, usually checking in with police first, then staying where he can with cheapest outlay of money.

His transportation now is a chilly ride "hitched" on a cross-country train.

He doesn't have a job and his best source of income is trading interviews with a television station or a magazine for a bit of cash.

His meals are okay, but nothing like mom's cooking even on hamburger days.

His possessions are mainly the nondescript garb of overalls and straw hat piled into a clumsy pyramid-like clump of do-dads and keepsakes.

He has no family that he knows of and he talks whimsically about wanting a home.

Then he wanders off with a line of words about "seek ye first the Kingdom of God."

Yet, he has no church and talks not of any particular discipleships though he keeps his Bible rolled safely in his pack.

Richard Wilson was in town Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. He paid his own way, like he does everything.

Then he headed on west as a damp winter kept hanging around this West Texas area.

For statistics sake, he was born and reared in Franklin, Pa. His family broke up before he was 10 and that's all he knows about relatives.

Doesn't even know if he has brothers or sisters.

He hit the road when he was about 16 and has been with it ever since. His profession, he says,

His title of "King of Hobos" was declared in Britt, Ia., in competition with other members of the declining clan.

"It isn't easy now days," Wilson said. That's mainly because the cutback in train service has hurt the hobos as much as other travelers.

"Supply," the hobo term for money, is no problem. His main expenditure is for food and he has no savings.

His travel schedule depends more on weather conditions than any other factor.

"You might travel around a year or two," he spoke, "before you see anyone you know."

"But eventually you run into them... other hobos."

"I've thought recently about settling down in Utah or Mexico," he said, "but I don't know if I could do it."

"Traveling gets to be a way of life."

Somehow, as you walk away and the few passersby turn and take a second look at his unique garb... you get the idea that maybe that's the real payoff for the "King."

The inquiring looks... and those string of newspaper interviews like this.

We won't mention his majesty's body odor. After all, bathtubs just aren't on his schedule.

King And His Crown

"Hobo King" Richard Wilson checks into Colorado City with his own special "crown" of hobo keepsakes in his usual attire of basic overalls and layers of jackets.

Christmas Cantata Tonight At First Baptist Church

Four soloists will be featured in a Christmas cantata Sunday evening at First Baptist Church.

They will be Mrs. Glenn Roenfeldt, Mrs. Frank Prewitt, David Crymes and C. L. (Sonny) Pawkett Jr.

"A Song Unending" will be presented at 7:15 by the church choir in First Baptist Auditorium.

Frank Prewitt, minister of music, will direct the Yule program which is to be narrated by church pastor Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt.

rated by church pastor Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt.

Mrs. Curtis Baker will be organist. Glenn Crosthwait will be pianist.

"A Song Unending" is the fifth cantata written by John W. Peterson.

His first, published in 1957, was "Hallelujah, What A Savior!" and was followed by "Love Transcending," "No Greater Love" and "Night of Miracles."

The newest cantata tells the story of Christmas in a fresh and inspiring way proclaiming the "song unending began that Holy Night... peace, good will ringing still and will till the end of time."

Members of the cantata choir are Mrs. Truman Bodine, Miss Patty Bodine, Mrs. Glenn Dunn, Mrs. Baker Hallford, Miss Patty Pattillo, Mrs. Prewitt, Mrs. Roenfeldt, Mrs. Earline Sellier, Mrs. Willis Taylor, sopranos.

Truman Bodine, Bill Carter, an easy decision choosing between $45,000 and $347,800.

If the $45,000 expenditure has to be chased by more and more improvements costs, though, because the original renovation doesn't do the control job adequately -- then what might first appear to be economy can become the opposite.

Reclaimed water (and the studies show the water isn't always "reclaimed" enough) from the city plant goes into Colorado River.

Completion of the huge new reservoir by Colorado River Municipal Water District on Colorado River at Robert Lee, no doubt, will add pressure for the city's upgrading of its facilities.

City officials have faith -- or they are earnestly hoping -- that State Water Quality Board will not lower the boom as long as Colorado City is making a serious effort toward proper solution of its waste problem. However, you can be sure, this effort must include progress, not just study.

For the time being, City Manager Sadler and City Council are earnestly studying the recommendations and estimated costs in the study conducted by Parkhill, Smith & Cooper.

They have indicated to the consulting engineers their decision on those recommendations probably won't be forthcoming until the same firm completes its Colorado City Master Plan.

During the same time, you can bet city officials are scurrying to determine if they can obtain adequate assurance if the Council of Governments Survey suggestions for renovation will meet quality requirements when it comes to actual plant performance compared to State Quality Board levels.

Get Set... Here Comes Christmas!

Ruth COFFEY's

CONVERSATION CORNER

NO MATTER how you feel about the high-pitched singer who calls himself Tiny Tim—and how I feel is a crying shame not to be expressed in print—you have to admire him for what he said to an Associated Press syndicated columnist.

The columnist, Hal Boyle, was making a survey of celebrities asking them how they felt when they first found out Santa Claus was not "real."

Tiny Tim ignored the question, "I learned of Jesus Christ when I read His scriptures," the ukelele player said instead.

"There's only one reason for Christmas and that's Christ's birthday," he said in that wavering way he has.

THERE are many, many people who never heard of this new kind of Tiny Tim. Say "Tiny Tim" to the average middle-aged reader and that reader will immediately think of Tiny Tim in Dickens' Christmas Carol.

They'll say, "Oh, yes, the little lame boy who said the famous 'God bless us every one' bit."

This new Tiny Tim is what everybody's calling "something else." Sometimes he makes you certain that he can not be "for real," either, any more than Santa Claus.

As people used to say, "his face would stop a clock" or maybe is as "ugly as a mud fence."

People who should know say Tiny Tim is "for real." And that he's as gentle and good and pure-minded as he sounds. Which is a switch for a pop singer these days, you've got to admit.

THERE are many, many people who, whether they ever heard of either Charles Dickens' Tiny Tim or of Johnny Carson's Tiny Tim or not, would agree that "There's only one reason for Christmas and that's Christ's birthday."

But here in America we have a way of getting our holiday symbols all scrambled up. It may be due to the generation gap which has existed since right after the Garden of Eden.

We observe our holidays (originally holy days) with a happy, sorta haphazard mixture of our own particular faith and our children's love of fantasy.

LIKE TO THINK that people of the Christian beliefs have endowed Santa Claus with a few of the qualities of Jesus—love, the giving of self, joy to the world!

There is really no discrepancy so long as we all remember to celebrate first and foremost Christmas as Christ's birthday. He was One Who loved the companionship of family and friends, going to the wedding feast.

Remember that He recognized the human hunger of men, He blessed and fed, by one of His own miracles, the hungry multitudes who followed after Him. He was a lover of life... so much that His promises tell of life eternal.

So before Santa Claus comes, let us remember to keep Christmas in its eternal significance. The birth of Christ first, the rest of the added attractions and man-made traditions after.

Just so first things are first.

SWEETEST story come across this season was in a small paragraph published in December Reader's Digest.

Did you read about the celebration where there was group singing of every Christmas carol everybody there knew?

And when the singing was over, a little boy on his mother's lap sang without prompting a soft little solo.

"Happy Birthday to You... Happy Birthday dear Jesus... Happy Birthday to You!"

Read it and say thinking again "Except as ye become as a little child..." Maybe it's us grownups who have got it all wrong?

THE CHESNEYS, Gus and Frances, have "weather permitting" plans for celebrating Christmas.

The two hope to leave here Christmas Day for Paris, Texas, and the home of their only daughter, Linda, Linda and her husband Tim Bennett still live in Paris where Tim is one of the Campbell Soup employees.

Frances' sister Mable (Majors) Merritt and her husband John T. Merritt are looking forward to having their son Johnny and his wife Barbara here from Corsicana. Johnny's an ESASCO man with Dallas Power & Light projects.

PEGGY JENKINS was all set to fly Thursday, Dec. 18, to Houston for Christmas with her daughter Margaret Aiden and with her granddaughter Peggy Don (Teel) Osgood.

Guess what? When Mrs. Jenkins flies anywhere her little dog named Dinky flies with her! And visits the family with her.

The H. C. Blassingames will be in Houston for Christmas as guests of their daughter Jewell, her husband Don Reynolds, and their children. While in that part of Texas they will also visit their only son, H. C. Blassingame II, his wife, and year-old son H. C. Blassingame III who live in Bay City.

THE MCLOUDS, Judge Austin, his pretty wife Mary Anne, daughters Melinda and Sharon, will be hosts in their home to Austin's parents Mr. and Mrs. H. G. McCloud of Plainview. And to Mary Anne's mother, Mabel (Mrs. Frank) Kelley of C-City.

Thelma and A. L. McSpadden will be entertaining their son Sandy, his wife Kay of Austin, and also Thelma's sister for the family feast.

E. M. and Zelma Owen hope to be in Oklahoma City with their daughter Mary Louise and her family.

Bilberys, Henry and Luna, will have both daughters, Carolyn and Judy, and their spouses Charles Black of Winters and Lt. Arthur Barnes of Biloxi, Mississippi, plus the grandchildren Chuck and Bill, sons of the Blacks.

SEEN LATELYS included Myrtle Womack of the LTNS (long time no see) department, Christmas shopping... Ditto Nadine (Mrs. Gerald) Gordon and Mayme Lou New, together at the Corner... and Peggy Ratliff.

Caught a glimpse of Dorothy Forbes... Martha Earnest wearing a "Snazzy" winter hat... Marie Benson, wife of A. C. and mother of Don, Pearl (Mrs. Wayland) Webb was saying she was "just looking" familiar theme song of most of us.

Encountered two local gentlemen named Bill Holbert and Jack Smith.

Met for the first time S. R. Wilkinson of TESCO Village and his beautiful wife Bobbie who grew up in Loraine as Bobbie Mote. S. R. had the kindest of kind words for the Record and for the local column!

Had greetings from Mayme Dozier... Bobbie Steakley (Mrs. H. Jene) who is wearing that Christmas glow... Mrs. Bill Helm, talented mother of an outstanding family... Mrs. Troy Lankford... Mozelle Callender... Robert Ramage... Isla Watson... The Harold Boneys... Jackie Hickman... Vera Simpson (Mrs. Erse)... Don DeLaney... Shep Compton... G. F. Foster... Mrs. Marvin Miller... and Mrs. W. R. Motley, Sr.

AMONG most recent holiday cards was a glad little note from our Arla Jo (Payne) and her husband Norman Anderton of Austin.

"We're doing just fine. Norman is doing extremely well in school (pharmacy) and keeping up with three part time jobs," Arla Jo writes.

"I'm struggling at being student and wife. Don't know what kinda marks I'm earning either!" she adds waggishly.

Being Arla Jo and in her gayest mood she concludes "We live in married students' housing... and are one up on the Joneses. So far, we're the only ones on our block with outdoor Christmas lights."

Now that rates the LGMG (local girl makes good) award so far, for the month of December, betcha!

Teen-Agers To Present Yule Play

Teen-age members of First Assembly of God Church at 17th and Watson Streets will present a Christmas play Sunday evening.

Time for the play, "Follow the Star," has been set for 7 p.m., according to Rev. Larry Lakey, church pastor.

Mrs. Faye Marcom will direct the program.

Rev. Lakey and the church congregation Saturday extended an invitation to the public to attend the Yule program.

CHS Graduate at Angelo State

Miss Peggy Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Robertson of 2028 Chestnut Street, is attending Angelo State University on an academic scholarship.

The 1969 Colorado High graduate was awarded the scholarship in recognition of her outstanding scholastic record in high school.

She was a member of the National Honor Society in CHS and was active in Future Teachers of America. She is a psychology major at ASU.
