Connally Introduces Salary Cut Bill in Senate Today

WOULD AFFECT SALARIES OF $2,000 ON UP

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Sen. Connally of Texas, introduced in the senate today a bill for graduated reduction of federal salaries from $2,000 up.

"The staggering deficits of $3,000,000,000," he said, "incurred during the past two years of the Hoover administration must be met not alone by new taxes but by rigid and radical reduction of expenses."

MEASURE PREPARED IN THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—A bill expected to cut more than $50,000,000 from the pay of government workers is being prepared by the special house economy committee.

The bipartisan group set up by the democratic house has not yet agreed on details, but two methods of bringing about the reductions are under consideration.

One calls for a flat 10 per cent reduction. The other is for a gradual reduction beginning with 20 per cent slashes on the $10,000 salaries of members of congress and all others receiving more than that, including cabinet officers.

Chairman Byrnes of the committee said he expected the bill would be ready probably at the end of next week.

Hoover Opposes. Although the White House has not officially expressed its attitude, it is known President Hoover is opposed to any general slashes in the pay of federal workers.

He has said nothing save to intimate if the pay of certain classes were proved too high he would not object to a reduction in them. As for a general cut, however, he holds the position privately that even a sizeable reduction would save but little federal spending.

It was said authoritatively that figures have been prepared for the chief executive to show that if all government salaries above $2,100 were reduced by 10 per cent—excluding the army and navy—the saving would be less than half the $50,000,000 figure mentioned on capitol hill today.

BOY SCOUTS START DRIVE TO GET $7,000

The Boy Scouts of the Comanche Trail council have set out to raise $7,000 to carry on the work through the coming year and to pay off some accumulated debts. The new council is made up of the following counties: Stephens, Erath, Brown, Eastland, Comanche, Mills, San Saba, and Lampasas.

It is believed probable that the Boy Scouts will raise the money. "There is no question as to the fact that it is about the best investment the citizen and business man can make," Scout Executive Guy N. Quirk declared. "You may invest in land, in stocks, in bonds. Yet, none of these investments can be compared to the investment in the growing boy. Here, truly you have investing in good citizenship, in improved community morals, in character. And this is what you are investing in when you contribute to the Boy Scouts."

"The Boy Scouts with its well planned program of useful activities and under the leadership of men of character is a great power for good. It reaches the boy in a way that will be difficult to reach him otherwise. And through the boy, it reaches the whole family."

"The Boy Scouts here have something to sell to the people of Cisco, something of vital importance good citizenship," he said.

DAILY NEWS COOKING SCHOOL TO BEGIN TUESDAY, MARCH 29

Cooking schools conducted in the past by the Daily News proved so popular not only with housewives but with husbands—who, perhaps welcomed the prospect of variety in the family menu—that the News has made arrangements to repeat the program this year.

Negotiations just completed, and entailing considerable expense, will bring Miss Zeila Allen one of the most capable and successful dietitians and culinary experts now engaged in this work, to Cisco for a four-day series of demonstrative lectures beginning Tuesday, March 29. The site for the school will be announced later, but ample accommodation for those who wish to profit from the lectures will be provided.

Miss Allen has been trained for her work under the best authorities in the United States. She is a student of the American School of Home Economics and has several years of experience as a lecturer and demonstrator to her credit.

Her instruction will cover meal planning, economical ways of providing nourishing food, and she will have numerous new and interesting recipes to demonstrate.

Her programs will include meats, vegetables cooked in new ways. Bread, salads, salad dressings, frozen desserts, cakes and pies. Economy will be stressed throughout the school. "Dishes need not be expensive to be good," she said.

Other schools conducted by the Daily News have drawn between 400 and 500 women for the lectures and it is quite probable that the forthcoming school will draw even larger attendances.

The cost of providing this school is considerable, however, and the News must receive the cooperation of the merchants through sufficient advertising if it is to be a success. There is hardly any better method to advertise food products than through the medium of a cooking school.

Merchants who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity are urged to consult with the News at once so that arrangements can be made without delay.

KITTENS WIN BUT LOSE ONE STAR PLAYER

The Randolph Kittens won their last home game here last night when they defeated the Lucas Funnal home squad, out of Ft. Worth, 41 to 37 at the high school gym. They held the lead all the way.

Simultaneously Old Man Luck played a mischievous prank that threatens the chances of the Kittens in the national tournament at Shreveport when he removed Marie Russell, star center and forward from the lineup with a wrenched knee before the game started. Russell, attempting a crisp shot, crumpled to the floor with the knee cap out of joint.

Coach Garrett hastily rearranged his lineup, substituting an entirely new forward combination of Greenlee, D. Fulford and McGeehee. In view of the hasty rearrangement the Kittens' victory was considered particularly gratifying. In the guard court, which Greenlee had shifted Garrett played I. Fulford, Fayma Johnson and Bess Farleigh. Gladys Johnson later went in for Fayma who took Irene's place. Swindle, in the forward court, substituted for D. Fulford.

The Kittens leave Saturday afternoon for the national tournament at Shreveport, La., stopping over at Fort Worth for a game with the Bowden Ice company team, champions of Fort Worth. The tournament opens at Shreveport Monday.

LAGUNA HOTEL CLOSES DOORS AT 2 O'CLOCK

Financial difficulties which were responsible for the filing of a bankruptcy petition by the Cisco Hotel company, owners, in federal court at Abilene recently, reached a new climax this afternoon at 2 o'clock when keys were turned in the locks at the Laguna hotel and Cisco's largest and newest hostelry ceased temporarily to operate.

The act was the result of a heated interchange between creditors and owners at a meeting called in Abilene Wednesday to set a date for sale under bankruptcy proceedings, the Daily News was informed. According to this information representatives of the American National Insurance company, which claims to hold obligations totalling $177,000 against the hotel, demanded that the hotel be turned over immediately to their control. W. A. Myrick, representing the owners, refused and a demand was reported to have been made that transfer of control take place at once or else that the institution be closed.

Date of sale was set for March 30, when the big Settles hotel, at Big Spring, will also be sold. John Porter, of Abilene, was named trustee under the bankrupt proceedings.

Speculation as to when and how the hotel will be opened was rife this morning as announcement that the institution would be closed was made.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE POWER OF THOUGHT:—As he thinketh in his heart, so is he.—Proverbs 23: 7.
WAIT PATIENTLY:—Wait on the Lord: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the Lord.—Psalm 27: 14.

"MY WORK IS DONE—WHY WAIT?"

George Eastman, the kodak king and one of the industrial and financial leaders of America if not the world, finished his career at 77. His closest friend, Lewis B. Jones, vice president of the Eastman Kodak company, furnished the epitaph for his chief after the end had come when he said, "George Eastman played the game to the last. By his own hand he lived his life and by his own hand he ended it." His life had been a romance and his career had been startling in its achievements. He found the camera a crude and raw thing. He made it one of the great industries of civilization. He achieved vast wealth. He was not money mad, he was not miserly. After success had come to him he gave more than $75,000,000 to the city where he had amassed his fortune, to schools and colleges, to dental dispensaries in foreign lands, to the cause of education where young men could be trained along practical lines, and in the dark hours of the World War his remaining millions were at the command of the government.

More than three years ago he was stricken. His physical power had broken. He was face to face with the messenger of death. His brain was as clear as ever. He put his household in order, he divested himself of his vast holdings, he had been the very soul of generosity with his dealings with his employees and business associates. He had been charitable to a fault. Men said of him that he had been just to all his fellows, rich or poor high or low. There was no chance for recovery. He was on the brink. This was the note he pinned before he stepped out into the unknown: "To my friends—my work is done. Why wait?"

American financiers say that his business affairs were most satisfactory. He had no worries of a financial nature. There were no blowholes in the structure of the great Eastman Kodak corporation. He had wisely planned everything. Then he stepped aside and the men whom he had named to conduct his colossal business will carry on as George Eastman carried on ever since he began active life in his boyhood as a messenger boy at a salary of $3 per week. His biographer declared when all was over it was the ambition of the life of this masterful industrial leader and financier to die as poor in purse as he was when he started out a little wage earner more than 65 years ago. Did he make the grade?

THRILLING EVENTS THE WORLD OVER.

Germany cast 33,000,000 votes in the most exciting election in its history and President Von Hindenburg lacked a majority of only 168,000 over all. This was an historical event. It let the world know that Germany is determined to walk in the path that is sane and safe. In the wake of the election came the suicide of Ivar Krueger, the Swedish match king. He was widely known in financial circles the world over. His financial concern had loaned $250,000,000 to 12 nations. He owed $80,000,000 in short time notes to Americans. American bankers refused to carry. French bankers offered to carry and make the necessary advances but the demands of the bankers the match king considered very exacting and he calmly snuffed out the candle of life. Then the third day after Von Hindenburg astounded the world by the largeness of his vote and his nearness to one of the greatest personal victories in modern times. George Eastman, a king of industry and a king of finance, feeling that his work has been done and that disease was wrecking his frame, ended it all, leaving this interrogatory behind him in a short note, "Why wait?" Ivar Krueger in his youth won his start in America—a construction hand in Chicago, a contractor for great buildings the republic over. Later the organization of independent match companies in Sweden, and then loans to the rest of the world secured from grants on monopolies on the match business. His interests reached from the workman's match pocket to the treasuries of the nations of the world, from pulp paper to light and power, from iron ore to railroads, and then back to the savings accounts of wage workers.

Kings and paupers come and go. A few daring souls accumulate great fortunes and the many struggle from the cradle to the grave. In the last analysis man is as impotent as the beggar at the gate. He comes and goes like a flea in the sand.

FRANK SPARKS SEEKING 88TH COURT BENCH

The Daily News today was authorized to confirm a report that Frank Sparks, of Eastland, is a candidate for judge of the 88th district court. Mr. Sparks, a former state representative and county attorney of Eastland county, is 38 years of age and has been a resident of this county since his discharge from the United States army in February 1919.

His supporters point to a record of achievement and a character that ably fits him for the post to which he aspires. A high conception of official duty, a fearless disposition to rely on his own judgment and to stand by his convictions are claimed for him. As attorney, they point out, he demonstrated an ability to compete successfully with the best legal talent of the county while making a record as prosecuting attorney in the history of the county. Records disclose that as county attorney he was able to turn into the county treasury excess fees amounting to approximately $3,000, which is the only instance of such an incident.

Court of Traditions
In authorizing the above, Mr. Sparks said: "The 88th District Court, formerly the old 42nd district, has been presided over by such men of talent and outstanding characteristics as Judge Truman Conner, Calhoun, Lindsey, Thos. L. Blanton, Joe Burkett, E. A. Hill, and its present incumbent Judge Elzo Been. This court, as an institution of long standing and many interesting traditions, has spread upon its minutes the history of Eastland county, with its alternating periods of progress and retrogression, political turmoil and tranquility, prosperity and depression, and I have long entertained an ambition to serve as its presiding officer."

"I have a deep conviction that our county and state offices can and must function on a basis of strictest economy and efficiency. I know the district judge can do much to promote such a program of economy without impairing the efficiency of the courts and without jeopardizing

I regard it as such an honor to serve our country in time of peace as in time of war, and I covet the active support of all who hold me worthy and competent to serve as their district judge."

The dime-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAUTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ellen Rossiter, beautiful 20-year-old, falls in love with Larry Harrowgate, an artist whom she met at Dreamland where Ellen works as a dance hall hostess. Larry is engaged to Elizabeth Bowes, a debutante, but she shows attention to Ellen until his fiancée returns from Europe.

Believing Larry is lost to her, Ellen agrees to marry Steven Barclay 37 years old and wealthy, who has paid hospital expenses for her brother, Mike injured in a street accident. Ellen knows such a marriage will provide for her mother, Molly Rossiter, and make it possible for her sister, Myra, to marry Bert Armad.

Barclay has been married and divorced. Scandal accompanied his divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer and, fearing this talk may be revived he and Ellen agree to keep their marriage secret until they sail for Europe. Barclay wants to settle a fortune on Ellen but she persuades him to wait until after the ceremony.

Barclay's lawyer, Symes, regards Ellen as a gold-digger. In a double marriage in a small Connecticut town Barclay and Ellen and Myra and Armad are married. They depart and almost immediately Symes arrives, demanding to see Barclay. No one knows where the couple have gone.

Barclay and Ellen drive to Barclay's Long Island home. The girl reads in a newspaper that Larry's engagement to Elizabeth Bowes is broken. She is terrified to be alone with Barclay, suggests they go to a supper club to dance. They return late and Barclay leaves his bride, saying he will return.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

Ellen walked through the bedroom and out on the balcony. She looked down toward the ground, pale in the twilight, and thought that if she jumped she would be dead.

Then, because he was afraid she ran inside. She did not want to die. She wanted to live and knew that in spite of everything she hoped Larry would come to her tonight instead of Steven.

She got up and took of her dancing frock. It fell to the floor and she left it there, shining in a pool of light. She dropped off her chemise and stood naked in the splendid room. Her body was hard and beautiful and glowed with sunny lights and with strange undertones of green like the green sometimes seen on anvils.

She stood silent a moment and thought how strange a thing and how terrible a thing was desire. No matter how much she might long to be its master she must remain its servant. She still wanted Larry and felt in her knowledge a kind of cold despair.

In a passion of fear she ran to the bed seized her pajamas and jerked them on. She heard a knock at the door. "Just a minute," she called out. Ellen slipped her feet into mules, wrapped the flowing negligee about her so that her throat was hidden and her arms and even her bare feet only her enormous terrified eyes seemed visible.

"It's Steven," she heard through the door. The knob turned slowly and the door opened. Steven stepped into the room. As he entered he was thinking that Ellen was a child that she must be frightened and that he must treat her gently. When he saw her wrapped in the rose robe, her hair a golden aureole, all his preconceived plans went down before her beauty.

It seemed to him that he saw her for the first time and that he was not an old man with a heart that was an old crock, but, instead, that this beautiful woman who was his wife had by some magic made him young. All that he could remember was that she was his wife and that he had come to claim her love.

She raised her arms almost as if to fend him off but the rose robe fell away at the shoulders so that he saw the flesh beneath and was filled with desire. She was in his arms. Her body arched back in a spasm of terror and the robe slid away and to the floor as his kisses fell upon her throat and shoulders.

She was thinking that this would kill her and that if she screamed no one would hear. This man was not Steven Barclay at all! He swung her to his arms and carried her across the room to the golden bed. She felt his body pressed against hers and knew that she was fainting. She thought she heard a scream and then a soft bump just dark fog seemed to fill the room, blotting out the rosy lights.

She came to consciousness crying hysterically. Then she realized that Steven had fallen to the floor and that was the sound she had heard. She saw him lying, white and quiet, beside the bed. Ellen frightened and sick with horror, flung herself to the floor beside him, calling out his name again and again.

He did not answer. She thought, "He is my husband and I've killed him." She knelt shivering by his side and tried to feel his pulse and did not know whether or not she felt a flutter. But when she laid her hand upon his heart she was sure she discerned a muffled beat.

Ellen ran to the telephone and gasped out to the operator that she wanted a physician. She was back at Steven's side again. She remembered that it must be his heart but she did not know what to do. She remembered that when drowning people were being resuscitated they must be kept warm, and tore the coverlet from the bed and wrapped it around his cold, rigid body. She tried to get Steven into the bed, but his weight resisted all her efforts.

All the time she was thinking, "He is my husband and he's dying. He'll never know that I'd rather die instead."

She was weeping, pleading that he should hear her when the telephone rang. Like a phone rang near her. She answered. It was Symes calling Steven. She told him Steven was dying. She heard him say he would send doctors and come at once. For the first time she saw that her pajamas were torn. She remembered too that she must locate Ferguson and get him to help her.

She could find no bell. Ellen wrapped the rose negligee around her and started across the cold waxed floor in her bare feet. Hardly out of the door she felt a great fear that she would return to find Steven dead and ran back to his side. She cried out again, begging him to forgive her. She told him that if he died she, too, would die.

But he did not answer. She thought she heard someone moving in the hall and was filled with cold horror. Someone knocked. Ellen opened the door and Ferguson entered. He had heard the telephone. He helped her get Steven on the bed. All the time he was staring at her as if to wrest some news from her. His taccato voice expressed sympathy but when she felt those cold eyes on her she knew he lied. There was malice about the man.

"Would madame like to rest until the doctor comes?" he asked. "How can I rest?" she cried and seated herself in the chair beside the bed. She was trembling. Just then he heard an automobile horn. Ellen ran to the window and saw the flash of headlights. After a wait that seemed endless the doctor came into the room. In the grip of nightmare Ellen answered his questions and saw him pour something down Steven's throat. Vertigo swept over her but she sat quietly lest the brisk, efficient man at her bedside should send her away. He had said here was a chance Steven would regain consciousness so she sat watching, watching the closed eyelids. They did not flicker and Steven's breathing barely stirred the sheet that covered him.

Presently Ellen was sent to wait in the living room beyond. Dr. Westcott told her with professional kindness to lie down but she could not lie down. She could only wait. Another doctor arrived. Symes arrived. She heard cars sweeping up the driveway and heard the frantic, persistent ringing of the telephone. She heard doors open and shut but she was cut away from the activity and barred from Steven's side. She could only wait.

After a while a nurse rustled into the living room, snapped on the lights and told Ellen to be in readiness for a call. She urged Ellen to drink an ammonia solution but the girl would not nor would she lie down. She sat, pale and still, her hands clasped, her eyes filled with useless, burning tears. She prayed over and over that she might once again speak to Steven and look into his kind, brown eyes.

The slow hours dragged on toward morning. Symes, haggard and unshaven, came to tell her what they were doing in the room beyond. came to tell her something else as well but she pleaded so frantically to be allowed to return to Steven that he kept silent, wondering, as he looked into her white, still face if he had not been wrong after all. Presently he went away.

Ellen walked up and down the room and tried to think of Steven dead. The whispers, the alarmed eyes, the quick movements in the room beyond, even her own heart told her that Steven was dying.

The nurse entered again. "What time is it?" Ellen asked dully. "Half past five."

Ellen saw that dawn was breaking. She thought that soon it would be noon and then night and then noon again. Time would not stop even if Steven died while she waited outside his room. Why wouldn't they let her go to him? She was his wife. She had a right to be at his side. But had she? Ellen covered her face with her hands.

The nurse went away again. The room was very quiet. The scents of the dawn drifted in from the garden scents of flowers and grasses. Ellen heard the chirp of awakening birds and somewhere a dog barked. She thought of home and felt a desperate nostalgia. She wanted to be with those who loved her, to be again in the shabby apartment on Pine street. Everyone was making it plain that she had no place here with her husband.

Ellen knelt by the window and rested her head on the sill. She sobbed out her grief and misery and Symes found her there when he came to tell her that Steven was regaining consciousness. Very gently he told her that she was to go to him.

Wales Is Losing Bachelor Title

PARIS, March 18. — The title of the world's most popular bachelor is fast slipping from the royal shoulders of the Prince of Wales, as many of the most eligible European princesses begin to show a marked preference for Prince Asturias.

The quiet charm and amiability of Asturias have found their mark in the hearts of Princesses Kyra Cincilova, of Russia, and the two Princesses of Greece, who recently came here and made a special trip to Fontainebleau to visit the indisposed Prince before he went to Switzerland.

It is understood that the young Prince is rapidly recovering from the bad attack of hemophilia, which he has been suffering from ever since the hurried exit of the royal family from Spain.

Princess Kyra is said to be one of the most beautiful girls since the days of Catherine the Great, and her attentions to Prince Asturias have shown a consistent devotion since their meeting three years ago in Madrid.

The Prince himself, however, seems in no hurry to hear the chiming of his own wedding bells, but is willing to let his two sisters, Beatrice and Marie Christine, precede him to the altar.

HIS HEALTH IMPROVED 40%

After Use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

If you are constipated, read this letter which Mr. Murray had attested by Notary Public:

"Two months ago I commenced using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to relieve constipation. I am in better health today than I have been in years, due to the use of your wonderful bran. My bowels move regularly, and my general health has improved 40%." — George A. Murray, 288 K Street, South Boston, Mass.

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN brings two things needed to correct common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes. How much better to use ALL-BRAN than to abuse your system with pills and drugs—often harmful.

Two tablespoons daily will overcome most types of constipation—in serious cases, with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. All grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

WHY YOU NEED INSURANCE

It takes years to build up a savings account—only a few seconds to lose it in an automobile wreck with no insurance. Breakage of plate glass, crossed wires, leaking gasoline, back firing, cause automobile fires. Thieves and windstorms, catch you without insurance—it's your loss then.

Abilene Wizard Takes Up Financial Pencil and Makes Some Big Red Marks

By PREXY ANDERSON in Abilene News.

The university professors down at Austin have promised to get together again March 30, peer knowingly over the tops of their nose glasses and decide if they will let the Oil Belt tarow away eight thousand seven hundred thirty four dollars and sixteen cents. When we inform you that the rulers of our district propose to make this sacrifice for the sake of a principle, you will gasp at the existence of such righteousness in a wicked age.

The sum we have named is that which will get away just like money slipping through a hole in your pocket if the committee decide to throw Cisco out of the synagogue and slam the door in its face.

If the district does not need the money, it could go ahead and play Cisco, anyhow. That many dollars put into the fund for the relief of unemployed would enable a lot more of us to quit work and give all our time to contract bridge.

Eight thousand seven hundred thirty four dollars and sixteen cents would enable a Fort Worth sports editor to see ten thousand nine hundred seventeen and seven tenths football games between Breckenridge and Abilene. It would buy eighty seven thousand three hundred forty one 10-cent programs carrying the incorrect number and the coach's estimated weight of at least two thirds of the players, and leave six cents for peanuts and popcorn. It would foot the bill for eight hundred, seventy three footballs, and a new pipe and four cans of smoking tobacco for the coach. It would make a down payment on the telegram and telephone tolls and the secretarial work used in proving Fred Hightower eligible and ineligible.

We know nothing about high finance, but would make a rough guess that you could hire an average good coach for a couple of weeks with $8,734.16. The aforesaid Hightower boy would probably find that sum sufficient for bus fare from Cisco to Tyler and vice versa, until he made up his mind.

The subscribers should be informed that the figure which we have mentioned as the total of Cisco receipts for district play is not official. In as much as the department prides itself on its estimates, however, the figure which we have given is probably more accurate than the official figure.

When the Cisco team went to Breckenridge last October for that victory that wasn't a victory, there were 4,300 paying spectators present. At 25 and 75 rates, they put about $2,300 into the treasury. When Cisco and Ranger played their 13-13 tie on Armistice Day there were 4,713 individuals on hand at two and six bits per. They parted with about $2,500 for the exhibition. Then, when the Lobos called at Abilene, the turnstile clicked 5,318 times, grossing $2,934. Brownwood and Eastland are not proud of their attendance figures, and do not make them public, but we calculate about a thousand and people were out for their jousts with Cisco, the two games, bringing in possibly a thousand bucks. Add all these figures up and you get $8,734 for the answer, and tack on sixteen cents to leave the impression that the whole thing had just been run through the bookkeeping department.

So, you see, the Abilene athletic treasury is on the point of losing a potential $1,467; Breckenridge will be out $1,150; Ranger will have $1,250 less with which to look after the Bulldogs; and Brownwood and Eastland will come out $250 short, although we doubt that a $250 shortage, more or less, means little to either.
