Defense Fund Is Boosted to Five Billions

One Representative Votes Against Bill, 401 Ballot for It

WASHINGTON, June 13. (AP).—By a vote of 401 to 1, the House stamped quick approval Wednesday on an extraordinary $1,706,053,908 bill providing funds for 3,000 new planes, 68 warships, 35,000 additional men for the army, a far-flung system of naval air bases and other defense measures.

Last of a series of big defense appropriations to start through Congress, the measure passed the House and went to the Senate with only Rep. Marcantonio (AL-NY) dissenting. It raises the session's total defense program to $5,021,619,622.

Among other items are funds for training 87,000 civilian air pilots under the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and to include primary, secondary and "refresher" training, the last for old pilots who may need brushing up on combat flying. The bill also provides funds for an unspecified number of tanks and other mechanized equipment.

The Senate approved the training of CCC boys in non-combatant army activities, such as cookery, photography and mechanics. The chamber rejected 47 to 35, a proposal by Senator George (D-Ga.) to give military training to those who enroll who volunteer for it. The latter met the opposition of such administration spokesmen as Senator Barkley (D-Ky), the majority leader, and Senator Byrnes (D-SC).

Top men of the army and navy held a meeting with Secretary Morhenbath. He then conferred with Allied purchasing agents who announced that the government had promised them an opportunity to "buy more surplus war materials," in line with the administration policy of all possible material aid to the Allies.

In the Senate, a group of legislators angrily assailed what they termed steps in the direction of war. "Every move is being made to take us down the road to war," Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) thundered.

"We have seen this country led away from neutrality to non-belligerency," said Senator Holt (D-WVa) "and if certain individuals in the government have their way we will strike out the 'non' and be belligerent before the snow flies."

Wheeler also asserted that if the Democratic party should become a "war party," he would unhesitatingly "break with it." He would not, he said, "support any candidate for President who's trying to get us into this war."

Senator Clark (D-Mo) called attention to an article in the London Daily Express saying that Senator Nye (R-ND) and Senator Johnson (R-Calif) appeared to be the only remaining bulwarks against American participation in the war.

"I think that as time goes along it will find many another bulwark," Clark shouted, "despite the London Daily Express."

Pushing forward with all possible speed with the task of building up the nation's defenses, the navy announced during the day that it ordered work started on two new battleships and 20 lesser craft last night within an hour after President Roosevelt had signed legislation providing the funds.

At the same time, the White House disclosed that the government was turning reserve manufacturing equipment over to private industry to make possible the "immediate" manufacture of sizable quantities of smokeless powder, ammunition and small arms ammunition.

It said, too, that "excellent progress" had been made in surveying army-navy stocks for the determination of what may be declared surplus and be made available to the Allies.

Former Resident Is Accident Victim
ODESSA, June 13. (Special).—Warner L. Neese, operator of the Sunbeam grocery and market here, was killed almost instantly about two o'clock this morning when he was struck by a car near Brownfield.

Neese was enroute to Lubbock when he ran out of gas just east of Brownfield and started walking back to town when a car driven by O. C. Speed of Brownfield struck him. He was rushed to a hospital by Speed but died before his arrival.

Funeral arrangements were pending the arrival of his parents from Oklahoma City. Only other survivor is his wife, who is employed in a Midland store.

Neese formerly lived in Midland and was employed at the Piggly-Wiggly store here.

IS ADMITTED.
Jack Watts was admitted to a Midland hospital today.

Code for Future Pilots

Randolph Field flying cadets, soon to take their places as full-fledged army air corps pilots, learn radio code at practice tables such as shown above. Ability to both send and receive 17 words per minute is one of the graduation requirements for these student birdmen of the United States.

Today's War Map

The Allies carry the war to Italy as Nazis pound at the stubborn Paris defenses. The British naval base on the island of Malta, important because of its strategic position along the English trade-routes to the East, has been bombed repeatedly by Italian planes but Allied bombers struck deep in the industrial section of northern Italy in retaliation.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, June 13 (AP).—Representative Thomason, Texas, said today that war department officials had promised careful consideration of the possibility of establishing an army air training school at Midland, Texas.

An offer by local interests in Midland and Odessa to furnish housing facilities for the personnel was received favorably by officials, Thomason said.

Thomason conferred with Colonel A. W. Robins of Randolph Field, San Antonio, who came here to discuss selection of two sites for two new training schools in Texas. Col. Robins said no recommendations or commitments had yet been made.

He indicated the Midland field proposal would not be implemented immediately, Thomason said, but left the impression an army air school might be established there later.

The WPA announced last week that the Midland airport project had been placed on its priority list of national defense works. The WPA gave no details.

Troops Quit Capital to Save City

Capture of Another French City Reported By Nazi Officials

BERLIN, June 13. (AP).—Reliable although unofficial sources said tonight that the French, through United States Ambassador Bullitt, had advised Germany all troops had been removed from Paris.

The German have emphasized Paris might meet the fate of Warsaw if the French insisted on defending the city.

Meanwhile, the high command reported the capture of Charolais Sur Marne in a move apparently threatening directly the Maginot line from the rear.

This point is about 125 miles east of Paris and almost directly at the southwestern end of the Maginot fortifications.

A communique said operations along the entire front are progressing rapidly.

Hughes Tool Company Operations Described

Operations of the Hughes Tool Company, which operates its West Texas and New Mexico plant at Midland, were described in a talk at the Rotary club today by Stanley Moore, member of the engineering staff. He told of the development in 1909 of the first rotary rock bit by Howard Hughes, and the subsequent aid to the oil industry through the penetration of hard substances.

The home offices are at Houston, as is the headquarters manufacturing plant, with branches in territories where there is considerable oil development. Products made are rotary rock bits, tool joints and core bits. Each product was described by the speaker, the rock bit being a rotary tool used to penetrate the extremely hard structures for oil well drilling, the tool joint being equipment to prevent breaking of threads on drill pipe and the core bit being a "rock bit with a hole through it" to enable the collection of samples of structures for study by geologists. Other products made by the company include valves, various kinds of chokes and equipment to be used in oil fields.

The shop at Midland takes off and repairs tool joints, makes drill collars and services rock bits. The Midland branch has 48 employees, with 30 living here. Branch warehouses are maintained at Eunice, N. M., and Denver City, Texas. The company sells wholesale only except in foreign countries, where retail sales are made.

The speaker was introduced by M. W. Crawford, program chairman. Carl Covington, with classification of cafe operator, was elected to membership in the Rotary club today.

President S. A. Debnam appointed W. I. Pratt, Clinton Lackey and Tom Sealy to represent the club on the local committee on national defense. Visitors included Floyd Boles of Littlefield, Roland Royalty and E. B. Ribble of Odessa, Randy Rander-son and Jimmy Bateman of Abilene, Henry Baldwin of El Paso, Joe Pyron of Odessa, Judge C. R. Sutton of Fort Stockton, Dr. Leslie Hall of Stanton and Guy Stokes of Dallas.

Display the American Flag Friday And Honor the National Emblem

Business institutions, public buildings and offices, homes and all premises probably will be bedecked Friday with American flags, commemorating "Flag Day," the 163rd anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the national emblem.

Although America is in a non-belligerent stage, forces which may be affecting the welfare of democracy from without and within bring home the necessity for observance by every patriot of the anniversary of this emblem of freedom.

Never was there greater need for a national consciousness and for a rededication of allegiance to the flag of the United States of America. It is not worship of the flag that is the obligation of every citizen. It is allegiance, respect and the homage of those whom it protects.

Let Flag Day in 1940 be a personal matter. Give it your ardent support and help promote by the American citizens the highest respect to the National Emblem. Display the flag Friday in every possible manner, in business institutions, at homes, on coat lapels. Flag Day in 1940 is an important event.

Italian Mine Belt Blocks Malta, British Naval Base, Completely Off

ROME, June 13 (AP).—Italy moved to cut the Mediterranean in half last night with a wide new mine belt intended to box in completely the British fortified island of Malta—Italy's first announced objective of the war.

Her other activity against the Allies in this third day of her participation on the side of Germany was largely an unknown quantity, however.

It is less than 100 miles from Sicily across the Mediterranean to French African Tunisia. Roughly half way lies the Italian island of Pantelleria. Apparently the mines are intended to keep Allied naval forces and sea-borne supplies from reaching the Allies land and sea forces now in the middle east.

Non-enemy ships passing from one end of the Mediterranean to the other now must go through the narrow Straits of Messina, between Corsica and the toe of Italy proper.

It was stated that "measures have been taken to hurry their passage."

The new mined zone, as described in a government communique, boxes Malta—the fortified British island—completely.

The mine zone extends on the western side from the French Tunisian coast north to a point off the Sardinian coast, thence southeast to the Sicilian coast.

On the other side, the mines were laid from the Sicilian coast to a point southeast of Malta, Britain's island fortress, thence to Anglo-Southwest of Rasagadir.

Control stations were set up at Rasoccolo and Capo Delle Armi, on either side of Messina, to expedite passage of neutral ships through the straits.

The Allies brought the war to Italy earlier in the day with bombing raids on the great industrial cities of Milan and Turin and other points in the north.

Other enemy action of unspecified nature burst along the Ligurian coast, on which Genoa is located.

Italian Industrial Center Bombed, 14 Persons Known Dead

ROME, June 13. (AP).—Fourteen persons were killed and 39 wounded in an allied air raid on Turin, Italian industrial center today.

A high command communique said Italian warplanes bombed the French Mediterranean naval base at Toulon and Bizerta last night. An Italian submarine "torpedoed a cruiser and a 10,000-ton tanker," the communique added. The vessels were believed to be British.

Turkey Reaffirms Pact With Allies

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 13. (AP).—Turkey today reaffirmed her mutual assistance pact with Britain and France and dismissed Italy's offer to respect her neutrality as worthless.

The government, however, awaited developments before making any definite move toward entering the war.

Dr. D. M. Wiggins, president of the College of Mines and Metallurgy at El Paso, stopped briefly in Midland this morning, conferring with Rep. Jas. H. Goodman. He was on his way to attend an appropriations meeting.

OTHER LINES ARE SAID HOLDING

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Supported by American-made bombers, French troops hurled Germans back five miles north of Paris today, a French spokesman said, and the Allied line was reported holding elsewhere under the onslaught of 120 Nazi divisions.

With Paris now declared an "open city"—technically inviolate against bombing—a French spokesman said the French have no intention of fighting in the streets of their capital.

Weary French fighters were holding stubbornly along the 200-mile front, the spokesman said, despite the fact many of them have not been relieved since Hitler launched his massive offensive June 5.

Americas Agree on New Trade Pacts To Protect Selves

MEXICO CITY, June 13. (AP).—A series of bilateral treaties to stimulate Pan-American commercial development has been agreed upon in principle, it was learned last night, by Argentina, Mexico, Brazil, Peru and the United States.

The basic outlines of the projected agreements have been drafted here by delegates from these countries to the conference of the international fiscal sub-committee of the League of Nations.

Proponents of the treaties asserted that they would release a flood of United States and Latin American capital for investment in industrial and business enterprises throughout the Americas, accelerating the nations' economic development.

They argued that the world situation, with European capital absorbed in the World War, presented a tremendous opportunity for United States and Latin American capital to co-operate in consolidating the hemisphere's industrial expansion.

Fundamentally, the treaties would modify existing taxation laws which restrict the establishment of new enterprises in the Americas.

The five countries' delegates have advised the sub-committee that these draft treaties, which represent the basic work of the sub-committee, will be submitted with urgent recommendations for adoption to their respective governments.

Chile has given tentative approval to the proposed agreements through her delegate, but the representatives from Venezuela and Cuba have thus far taken no position.

The conference convened here June 3 for a two-week session to study various tax and tariff policies affecting inter-American trade and commerce between this continent and Europe and the Orient.

Out of their deliberations have come the projected bilateral treaties whose principal provisions would be:

- 1—Eliminate double taxation; at present if a company in the United States, for example, decides to establish a subsidiary factory in Brazil the parent company must pay taxes through the subsidiary to Brazil and again in the United States on the profits the subsidiary makes for the parent company. This is double taxation.
- Under the proposed clause the taxes paid in Brazil would be deducted from the tax bill paid in the United States. This would eliminate what is described, by one delegate, as one of the gravest obstacles to the expansion of United States business into Latin America. The same situation would prevail with regard to a Brazilian company expanding into the United States.
- 2—Eliminate or reduce taxes on dividends leaving a country for foreign stockholders; at present dividends from United States capital invested in most of the American republics must pay a heavy export tax. This discourages new capital investments. The delegates asserted that elimination of this tax would be a strong inducement to the entrance of fresh capital throughout Latin America.
- Because of the variations in the tax structures of the various American nations, a general treaty was said to be almost impossible.
- For this reason, the countries which have approved the principle of the treaties will sign bi-lateral agreements—United States with Brazil, United States with Argentina, Peru with Mexico, Brazil with Peru, etc.
- The delegate from Canada, which has a similar treaty with the United States, has not indicated what position the dominion would take toward such treaties with Latin-American republics.

Assistance of Egypt To Fullest Extent To Allies Promised
ALEXANDRIA, June 13. (AP).—Egypt closed her communication systems and placed military bases at the disposal of Britain today and pledged the "greatest assistance possible" in the war against Italy.

Premier Pasha declared the nation would fulfill its obligations under the Anglo-Egyptian treaty, but intended to refrain from any offensive action against Italy although diplomatic relations have been severed.

AN EYE FOR A GAL

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

YESTERDAY: A big league scout is coming to Lincoln to look at Rossy's pitching. Coach Hurd warns Rossy to learn to control his temper. Rossy seeks an answer to his problem, finally talks to Dr. Tollivar. The president decides to go up into the hills with Rossy.

CHAPTER X.

COACH HURD'S ball team worked like horses getting into shape those bright spring days. They played an exhibition game with one of the strong high school teams in the territory, and got a taste of real competition.

Rossy, pitching, held the high school boys to four scattered hits and one run, but he hurt his arm in the last of the fifth and had to retire, after which the high school lads had good grazing. The final score was a close 7 to 6 for the collegiates. The time now was going toward the first real contest between Lincoln and Southern.

"I'm pitching you, remember," Hurd told McAfee. "You nurse that arm like it was one of the quintuplets, huh!"

"I've got it laid up in the incubator, Coach," Rossy said.

ROSSY would meet Hannah now and then between classes, or strolling across the campus in the lovely sunsets.

"Hi, hillbilly!" she would call to him. Or it would be some other epithet. Since the boys were giving her such a rush, she no longer pursued him, keeping the home fires of a farmer marriage engagement burning. Yet they had never formally broken off that engagement.

"Hi, you educated hick!" he would retort.

She paused to prop her hands on her slim hips. "I'm a mind, Rossy McAfee, to smack your long nose through the back of your head and watch it stick out like a rusty nail, and laugh and laugh and laugh!"

"Yah, and maybe the laugh would change to a howl."

"You wouldn't hit a lady!"

"You're no lady."

"Then I reckon Judy Tollivar is a lady?"

"We-well, in a way—"

"Listen, squirt-gun. You may not know it, but you're being taken for a sweet sucker. Not an all-day sucker but an all-year-life sucker. Just wait and see! Going to the big league! Like the devil! That's a corn-cob they got dangling from a stick over your head, and you're tearing the foot out of yourself to get it, but you won't—or if you do it'll have no corn on it, mind my words!"

"I hear tell," she added sarcastically. "Coach Hurd's pitching you against Southern. You with a game arm. Well, right there's where you drop your little gump in the sand, sweetheart!"

"Is that so!"

"Yah. For you're going to stand up there and get to thinking about them heads you want to beat. It'll grow on you, and grow and grow. And you'll get wild and walk a mes of men, and Southern will bag that game. And you'll go crawl in a hole and then shrink up and leave nothing but some gristle and soup bones.

"It'll be your conscience," she added, with a hushed portent, and turning suddenly she fled, leaving Rossy standing there in the last flare of a weird and prophetic sunset.

THE day of the game was as clear and lovely a time in the mountain spring as anybody could ask for. The campus was vastly excited for the rumor had got out that a big league scout would be in the crowd watching the contest; and Southern and Lincoln were what sports story writers love to allude to as a "traditional rivals."

The gray, potty man in easy tweeds, with narrow blue eyes with southern sandy light still in them, was, Rossy knew, Ike Hill, the famous scout. Hurd put him in a good seat on the weathered grandstand.

The band was out in gala dress. Hannah Shrider, with the hill music in her bones, had made the band, and now she was a lean, slim, pretty girl out there in her orange-and-white regalia.

Judy Tollivar was one of the cheerleaders. All in white with bits of orange about her—the college colors—she was giving the cheer section all the personality she had.

Rossy warmed up with old man Leacock. With the hour going toward the noise of warming up sank to a sudden calm. Rossy and the old coach came and sat on the bench. For the first time Rossy McAfee knew a curious sense of fear, of impending calamity. It was clairvoyant and indefinable.

CATTON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

WASHINGTON, June 13. — Under the surface of the drive for a stronger air force, there is developing new sentiment for getting the service flyers out from under the direction of non-flying general and admirals.

So far there is not much talk about setting up the air force as a completely separate arm on the British style, with its own department headed by its own cabinet member. But the possibility of giving both the army and navy flying corps virtual independence within the existing departments is being explored.

Two congressmen who are starting to work in that direction are Vincent Harrington of Iowa and Melvin Maas of Minnesota. Harrington is interested in the army, Maas in the navy; general idea is to make the air arm of each service independent corps, like the marine corps, under the orders of the head of the department but carrying its own general staff and top command.

SHY AWAY FROM SEPARATE FORCE.

MEN close to the military picture here are still inclined to shy away from the idea of a wholly separate air force. This includes some of the most outspoken critics of the head of the department and high commands to realize the full value of the airplane as a military weapon.

Chief reason for this is a feeling that flying a fighting plane for the army is an entirely different thing than flying one for the navy, and that each branch of the service should have an air corps whose personnel is especially trained for its own problems. The alleged recent experience of the British in Norway is cited as a case in point.

According to a story which is accepted as true by men qualified to judge, there was lamentable lack of co-ordination between Britain's sea fleet and her air arm in the Norwegian fighting. Flyers are said to have gone to the Norwegian coast to drive off German surface ships without adequate information about the numbers or types of British vessels operating in the same waters. Being landmen, they could not readily distinguish British vessels from German. Result, it is said, is that British flyers bombed British warships, with disastrous consequences.

ACTION MAY BE NEAR ON ALASKAN HIGHWAY.

IF the President should decide hemisphere defense made it necessary to speed construction of the proposed highway to Alaska, the way is just about open for immediate action.

Congress recently passed a law extending the life of the International Highway Commission for four years. This group, headed by energetic Congressman Warren Magnuson of Washington, has almost finished the preliminary work. By July, all of the surveys will have been completed and the U. S. and Canadian governments can talk turkey if they wish.

Original plans were for a 24-crack of the ball in the catcher's mitt, saw the swirl of the bat that would have blurred in a candid camera at a five-hundredth part of a second's exposure.

"You're out!" ump's squall.

Up went a roar that revived all the despairing manhood in Rossy McAfee. He fanned the next two batters in one-two-three order and had the curious feeling in getting himself out of a hole that he had saved his soul and his reputation at once. But he didn't know.

Mineral Deposits of Nazis Insufficient

AUSTIN, Texas. — Assaying mineral deposits taken over by Germany in her seven-nation conquest, Dr. V. E. Barnes, University of Texas geologist, pronounced them still insufficient, both in quality and output, to Germany's needs.

He predicted that Hitler must turn to Asia or the Western Hemisphere to establish a Nazi war-time self-sufficiency.

For example, said Dr. Barnes, who is on the staff of the University's Bureau of Economic Geology, Poland yielded little in minerals. Czechoslovakia and Austria contributed only slightly more, although there are Austrian deposits of magnetite, a mineral used in steel production. Norway supplies some deposits of nickel, pyrite and molybdenum, also vital to steel industries.

However, Norway's most valuable mineral—fine magnetite iron ore—is still tied up along the Narvik front, and German-controlled iron ore is inferior for armaments.

Listing high-grade iron ore, copper, nickel, oil, mercury and sulphur as essential war needs, Dr. Barnes catalogued major supply sources as follows:

Iron ore: U. S. (Lake Superior mines) and Brazil. Copper: Canada, Rhodesia, Belgian Congo, United States. German prospects are best in the more limited supplies of Yugoslavia and Russia.

Nickel: Canada produces the world's major supply. Sulphur: United States has by far the greatest supply although Germany can look to the minor deposits in Italian-controlled Sicily.

Mercury: Like sulphur, supplies in Italy and Spain are accessible to Hitler.

Oil: Barnes labels as the Nazis' greatest problem. Greatest producing areas are the United States, Netherlands East Indies, Russia and Mexico. Rumanian fields can be stepped up in output but are now far short of Hitler's needs, and Russia, for example, produces less than a fifth as much as the United States.

According to the 1940 Mexican census, the population of Nuevo Laredo increased more than 100 per cent in a decade. Completed figures show a population of 31,000 in the Mexican town opposite Laredo, Texas, compared with 14,800 in 1930.

foot roadway, running from the state of Washington up through British Columbia and Yukon Territory to tie in with the Alaskan highways somewhere around Fairbanks. It will cost something like $20,000,000 with the U. S. putting up the bulk of the money.

It's conceivable now, that FDR might dip into the special emergency fund Congress is giving him for defense purposes and have the road built pronto.

Alaska's air defense system is being built up rapidly; but experts say it won't really be complete until there is some overland connection between the territory and the homeland.

Boy, did one of our readers let one of our staff members have it! And did this reader get his message through subtly. He read in one of our columnists' columns where the United States is not at war. He clipped it, wrote a note asking "Shouldn't this have been in your fifth column instead of your fourth" and mailed it back.

But we bear the reader no ill will. In the first place we can't deny the fact that we are merely non-belligerent, and in the second place he ought to be entitled to freedom of speech if we are. Neither do we blame this columnist for wanting to keep America out of war and for trying to keep down hysteria.

In fact we are in fine good humor this morning. The plasterers are scraping up the dusty refuse from the floor of our enlarged office. The painters will soon be at work, and we are going to be showing furniture in there tomorrow or next day. But the best news of all is that we will have our leased wire installation made Friday and Saturday, hooking up at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon with the Associated Press teletypes direct from Dallas, giving to our readers the top-notch service of this section. Sunday's paper will have benefit of this service, with reports from just as late Saturday night as we want to stay on the job.

The dog poisoners have been at work some more, and this time we hear that the owner of one of the victims has been getting his court evidence together. If he completes his case, it will be the first we know of here, although many such cases probably could have been followed up.

It is reported that a complete motor car costs today's owner only about 26 cents a pound for the low-priced models.

SO THEY SAY

Friday Is Flag Day

Friday is Flag Day—a day when the national flag is to be honored by being displayed and saluted physically as well as mentally. Will West Texas honor that day as it should be honored? At this time particularly, when there is war on the other side of the world, when Trojan Horses and Fifth Columns are being looked for everywhere, outside the warring countries as well as within their borders, this nation should take special notice of the flag, of what it means to us, and show our respect for and appreciation of the Stars and Stripes under which we have had protection and will continue to have protection from enemies without and within.

We have come to consider the flag so much a matter of course that we do not give it the attention and the honor it should have as a symbol of our freedom. The mere mechanical salute is easy to perform, but now there should be a heart-searching session of each citizen with himself or herself, and if it should appear that honor to the flag is superficial instead of innate and continuous, there should be resolution to rededicate ourselves to the flag and its place in our daily lives.

There should be, and in many cities will be, special observance of Flag Day, with parades and speeches and music. The flag will go by and we will stand at attention and salute it. And with that salute should go the determination to stand by that flag and all it represents, through good or ill times, through adversity and prosperity, to whatever extent may be demanded by the rapidly changing scroll of events in this world.

The flag itself is a history of this nation, from the 13 stripes, representing original colonies which attained freedom from misrule, to the 48 stars that represent the states forming this Union. Flag Day is a time to give thought to what the flag stands for and to do it honor.

Fortune Fickle, It's Ghost Town

MOBRIDGE, S. D. (U.P.) — Born as a frontier trading town, fostered by a booming cattle trade, and killed chiefly by the railroads that built elsewhere, the community that was LeBeau offers the typical case of history of a ghost town.

Once faro wheels clicked in saloons where gamblers, gun-toting speculators "named their pizen" and drank it, such to his own health. Now, LeBeau remains a victim of the evolution of commerce.

In 1875 Antoine LeBeau, a French fur trader, pushed up the muddy Missouri from St. Louis to Swan creek and established a trading post. In 1883, a Captain Strong and a pioneer merchant named Pudor bought land from LeBeau, plotted it into a town-site and christened it LeBeau.

The location, they believed, made the site ideal as the "future commercial, agricultural, railroad and mining metropolis of central Dakota." (Dakota was not divided and the halves admitted to the union until 1889).

Boomers Spread Word
LeBeau was believed the logical gateway to the Black Hills. Two hundred pioneer residents boasted to others of the surrounding "millions of acres of finest wheatland and rich timber stock," lauded its importance as a port of river traffic and prophesied railroads would converge upon it to transport gold — from mines, from grain fields, and on the hoof — to markets.

Stage coaches rattled to Pierre, Aberdeen and Bismark. Stores mushroomed and three hotels flourished. Three lumberyards, a newspaper and a bank swelled the building until it reached a total of 80 structures.

Great cattle outfits—the Turkey rack, Diamond A and Matador—had headquarters within a comfortable radius of LeBeau.

Railroad Skipped Town
Then civilization caught up with and passed LeBeau. The government opened the range to homesteaders and they fenced the rangeland. The Milwaukee railroad, which ran through nearby towns, but not LeBeau, beat the Minneapolis & St. Louis line into western territory and the latter decided not to fight an established road.

"You know how deep a burn you get from a bit of the head of a match that flies onto your hand?" he explained. "You can't flick it, or push it off you in any way. It just stays there and flames until it is burned out."

"Its fumes are not poisonous, but those burns—in the second battle of the Marne we used it with terrible damage. Now we have rifled our mortars and instead of shooting these materials only for short ranges we now can send them accurately for 2,500 yards."

Steel Laborer Makes Violins of Matchsticks

BRACKENRIDGE, Pa. (U.P.) — James Work has found a good use for used matches.

Work, a steel mill laborer, makes a hobby of using the second-hand match sticks to construct musical instruments.

Although he has never taken a music lesson, Work, during the two years since he started his hobby, has completed two violins of wooden matchsticks, one violin made of paper matches and another of old newspapers, and a guitar constructed of wooden matches.

He once played a matchstick fiddle concert before a crowd of 35,000 in Pittsburgh.

Chemical Warfare Seen Improved By New Weapons, Not by Gases

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (U.P.) — New methods of spreading gas and liquid fire will increase the destructiveness of chemical warfare if it should come to that in the present struggle, according to Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, former chief of the U.S. chemical warfare service.

Gen. Fries, who opposed United States moves to outlaw gas by treaty, discussed some of the effects of chemical warfare while attending the National Sojourners convention here.

Explaining his successful fight to keep this country from signing a League of Nations concord banning the use of gas, Gen. Fries asserted:

"I'd like it better if chemicals were not used in war, but no method of warfare has ever been abandoned in all history so long as it is highly effective."

Treaties Not Protection.

"To depend entirely upon a treaty to protect a nation against a deadly peril is not common sense. Every treaty," he continued, "is a 'permanent' treaty but there is no guarantee that treaties will not be broken."

"Nations will continue to use any deadly weapon that they feel will help them win."

In light of this, he said, every nation, including the United States, is prepared both to use and defend itself against chemical warfare.

The general contended that there are no new gases or other chemicals that would be any more effective than the old ones used in the World War. However, he added, the means of sowing them, through the use of airplanes and new mortars rifled to increase accuracy, have added to their horror.

Gas Not Fatal.

Gen. Fries debunked the popular idea that gas is an instrument of wholesale death whenever it is used. Rather, he said, its value lies in the element of surprise and in making soldiers helpless so that forces can destroy them.

"The surprise value of such materials was demonstrated at Ypres, Belgium, on April 2, 1915, when the British were caught unprepared and every man in the path of the gas was made so helpless that he was wounded or killed," the general said.

"As for the civilian population," he declared, "gas is easier on them than explosive bombs. If you can get to a gas shelter that has no openings for the gas to get in, as many as six persons may remain there for 48 hours without fresh air and not be gassed. By that time the gas will have disappeared."

The belief that large bodies of men were killed in the last war by gas is not true, Gen. Fries insisted.

Scarred Lungs Heal.

"There were very few," he said. "And except in the severest cases short of death, gassed men have fully recovered. Even when gas scored the lungs, the scar tissue that formed with healing has been insurance against tuberculosis."

"Blindness, too, was not experienced, though stories had it so. Out of 40,000 of our men who were victims of eye irritating gases, only four became blind in both eyes and only six in one eye."

The general described mustard gas as still the worst of the gases in warfare. Scattered easily by airplanes, the heavy fumes burn exposed flesh, close the eyes for as long as two weeks afterward and cause extreme nausea, making the victim unable to defend himself, he said.

Phosphorous has the most horrible effect of all the chemicals, according to the general, who said the United States used it effectively to annihilate machine gun nests in the last war by firing it out of smoke screen with mortars.

No Escape Possible.

"You know how deep a burn you get from a bit of the head of a match that flies onto your hand?" he explained. "You can't flick it, or push it off you in any way. It just stays there and flames until it is burned out."

"Its fumes are not poisonous, but those burns—in the second battle of the Marne we used it with terrible damage. Now we have rifled our mortars and instead of shooting these materials only for short ranges we now can send them accurately for 2,500 yards."

However, Gen. Fries scoffed at flame throwers which are reputed to melt guns and fortifications. He said the U. S. army does not use them because they are good only for a range of 40 feet.

"Sure," he declared, "if you could catch the enemy and hold him in that distance you could burn him. Flames were valuable as a surprise at first, but the soldier who had to carry the bundle of equipment on his back was too good a target."

Farm Families Slump in Size Like in Cities

CHICAGO, (U.P.) — Decrease in the size of rural families as reflected by enrollment in country schools is following a pattern similar to that noted in urban communities.

A recent survey of Illinois county school superintendents showed that county schools now have 100,000 fewer pupils between the ages of 5 and 12 than a decade ago, and one superintendent noted that the country as a whole has had a decline of 1,200,000 enrollees in the same period.

"The abbreviated family is as popular on the farm as in the city," one official said, "and the enrollment in rural schools is only a little more than half that of 30 years ago."

He traced the drop to smaller families, larger farms and fewer families, and graduation of pupils at an earlier age (14 instead of 18).

Another superintendent said: "Population in the open country is decreasing principally due to the consolidation of small farms. Population in the villages and small towns is increasing because of migration from the cities and from the open country."

One official said that many one-room schools in his county will close for lack of pupils, explaining that eight already are closed because "they had only from two to five pupils."

Another superintendent traced the decrease to the advances in labor saving machinery, asserting that:

"It has made the hired man a pretty scarce article. I believe too many prefer a weekly or monthly wage for labor performed instead of having to plan ahead, budget time and money and risk crop losses and low prices."

He said that "expensive machinery often sits in the weather because the owner can't afford machine sheds."

"Too many are wanting to pick the fruit without doing the cultivating."

MOVABLE THOUGH BROKEN.

You can move your fingers if your arm is broken, since a break need not affect the muscles. Broken arms sometimes are neglected with disastrous results because the victim still could move his fingers and thus convinced himself there was no fracture.

WHO'S WHO in "ORPHAN NELL"

By GLADYS SIRDEVAN

Jack Noble
Jack Harrison, who takes the part of Jack Noble, hero of the play, "Orphan Nell," was graduated from San Antonio high school in 1932. While in school Jack was a member of the dramatic club. After graduation, Jack came to Midland where he secured a position with the Humble Oil Company.

Jack will be remembered for his part of Jimmy Devereaux in "Stage Door," the first of the series of plays presented by the Midland Civic Theater. Jack is vice president of this dramatic organization and has been called "faithful Jack" by those who work with him.

In the play, "Orphan Nell," Jack Harrison leaves city life and his position as an oil company employee and becomes a character, Jack Noble, a poor but honest country boy with a heart for only one girl, "Orphan Nell." When encouraged by the wiles of the world to look at some other belle of the Village, Jack replies, "but don't you think that such deception would be inconsistent with the sense of honor?"

After all of the entangling circumstances of this dramatic play have been smoothed out by the hand of Fate, Nellie speaks of Jack as the "one stalwart rock to which I cling when billows of Fate toss me about on the ruthless sea of circumstance."

Closing the climactic scene, Jack says in song those words of that ballad of the nineties, "With all her faults, I love her still."

FEMININE FANCIES

By Kathleen Eiland

The old-time what-not has grown up. Instead of being only one small shelf, or at most two, fitted into the corner of the room and tacked securely to the wall, it has lengthened into a shoulder-high, triangular set of five shelves, growing successively smaller from bottom to top—a piece of furniture which rates consideration as such in room planning. Very pretty, the new what-not is, too.

A Hollywood designed suite that is certainly luxurious enough to accompany our ideas of the beauty and luxury of the film capital is now on display in a Midland store. It consists of a big divan and a chair. The latter is our pet, built on a circular base, its semi-circular back and arms are veritably a "lap of luxury" with foot-deep (more or less) upholstery in pale tan mohair.

The divan has seat and back of seat upholstered in British tan mohair with the pale tan of the chair reflected in back and sides. The slight curve in front edge of the divan provides for greater comfort in drawing up a coffee table or smoking tray.

All in all, it's the kind of suite to dream about putting in one's dream house.

Now that the summer months are here and now that dieticians insist that some hot goods be eaten even on sweltering days, the housewife will welcome the electric warmer, with its three glass utensils fitted into a circular warming contrivance. This should keep the noonday or supper-time dishes warm, after they are cooked in the cool of the morning. It is not for cooking, but may be pressed into service for steaming cereals, we are told.

Two-in-One Suit Ace of 1940 Styles

It takes two models to display this dashing outfit, which consists of the one-piece suit, right, and the long flowing skirt seen at left. The bathing suit is of elastic grozgrain, with an attached bandeau of striped cotton—a real swim suit. When the boldly striped skirt is worn over it, you have a smart outfit for moonlight beach parties, tea on a terrace or lounging on the deck of a weekend cruiser.

WILSON'S

How Do You Rate as a House Guest?

BY ALICIA HART NEA Service Staff Writer.

If you want to be invited to the same lake or beach cottage, farm or place in the country for more than one weekend during the summer you had better:

Remember that hostesses like the guest who brings an extra bag filled with clothes and cosmetics. The "I can travel with one small bag" story has been over - done. It's better to take too much than too little. The hostess who hadn't intended to give or take you to any formal parties, may shudder to see you unpack an evening gown. But she will shudder twice as much if her plans do include a formal party and you turn up with nothing but sports clothes.

Not forget a jar or bottle of sunburn preventive. (No hostess wants to have to nurse a bad case of sunburn. Or have to say to the man she has invited to meet you, "Mary is really nice looking when her nose isn't peeling.")

HOSTESS MAY NOT CARRY A STOCK.

TAKE an extra swim suit. It's a mistake to assume that your hostess can easily supply an extra one to wear when your own is damp. She certainly cannot be expected to supply one which will fit and be flattering.

Plan to get plenty of sleep the night before arrival. If you are worn out and need a rest, stay at home and get it. If you are going to accept hospitality, the least you can do is to arrive fresh-faced and in reasonably good spirits.

Not mention the fact that you are trying to eat less and lose weight. Meals have been planned in advance and your hostess, however sweet, won't enjoy feeling that she ought to do the job over again just because one guest is on an extremely low-calory diet.

Have your hair washed before you arrive. No member of the family you are visiting or any other guest will really want to bother taking you to the nearest village for a shampoo and waiting around to bring you back.

NON-SKID RUGS.

To prevent dangerous falls from skidding rugs, there is a new spongy rubber material available. When placed beneath the carpet, it acts as a firm anchor, its lower surface gripping the floor, the upper clinging to the rug. Also, it is said actually to prolong the life of the floor covering since it acts as a cushion as well as anchor.

Coming Events

FRIDAY.

Belmont Bible class will meet with Mrs. Gladys Hostler, 600 North A street, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The lesson will be taken from the first seven chapters of Leviticus.

Women's Golf Association will meet at the Country Club Friday morning at the usual hour for golf. A business meeting will be held at 12 o'clock and at one o'clock luncheon will be served. Hostesses will be Mrs. R. T. Mobley, Mrs. Stanley Moore, Mrs. Frank Johnson, and Mrs. J. M. Kenderdine.

Junior G.A.'s will meet Friday with Mrs. R. O. Walker for a covered dish luncheon.

SATURDAY.

Story Hour will be held in the children's library at the courthouse Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

We, the Women

BY RUTH MILETT.

THE average young man goes into marriage with a "Now you've got me, try to keep me" attitude. And then in a year or two finds himself wondering why his wife is such a discontented woman, when she was such a happy, good-natured girl.

This year's June grooms could insure the success of their marriages by switching that attitude to "Now I have you, I'll try to keep you."

Tips For Prize Husbands. THE young husband who felt that way about it would welcome a few tips. And in case there are any such prizes about, here are the tips: Listen when your wife talks. What if her chatter does bore you when you're tired? She needs an audience as badly as you do.

Don't expect her to be as intelligent about your business and then dismiss all feminine doings as so much amusing child's play. And don't think she will be any less annoyed (even if she doesn't show it) by your utter ignorance of everything connected with a house than you will be if she insists on thinking it's adorably feminine to mix up a check-book.

"Mirror, Mirror On The Wall . . ." DON'T suggest that she copy another woman—in anything—from the kind of clothes she wears to the way she makes apple pie.

Don't expect her to be a knockout for looks and then resent the fact that other men approve. When you notice—with a start—that there are better looking women in the world than your own dear wife, don't do anything rash until you look in the mirror and convince yourself you are the handsomest man she could find anywhere in the world.

COWBOYS LOSE TO PAMPA; MEET BORGER GASSERS HERE TONIGHT

Red Hay Will Open on Mound For Home Team

The Midland Cowboys dropped the lone game played against the Pampa Oilers when Pitcher Hall-bour set them down with five hits last night and copped a 5-2 victory.

The Cowboys will tangle with the Borger Gassers here for the next three nights. The Borger club is just back of the Cowboys and fourth place in the league standings will depend upon the outcome of the series. The veteran "Red" Hay will probably start the game for the Cowboys tonight.

Pitcher Monty Engle made his debut for the Cowboys last night and looked a lot better than 11 hits in the Pampa box score would indicate. Pampa players "fell into" several of the hits and an error by Engle provided two of the runs. He showed a curve ball that will compare with any in the league and a fast ball that was more than a little bit swifter.

Hallbour simply had too much on the ball for the Cowboys. Of the five hits they got, Manager Sammy Hale got three of them, two doubles and a single. Sam Sealing got a single and the other hit went to outfielder Johnny DeGomez.

Joe Phillips, who played with the Cowboys a part of last year, was placed on the roster last night in place of Kirby Jordan, who was released yesterday. He was unable to get any hits and also had trouble in the outfield at various times.

Engle pulled out of a hole in the first inning, thanks to some luck. Knobles opened with a triple to left field and when Engle unleashed a wild pitch to the next batter he headed for home. Engle hurriedly covered some plate and took a perfect toss from Wilson, who had retrieved the ball, and tagged Knobles out.

The Cowboys got one run in the second on Hale's first hit and errors by Malvica and Clutter.

The lead failed to last long, however, because the Oilers got two in the third on a walk, error by Engle and a single. Engle's error came when he threw the ball away at first trying to catch a runner off and set up both tallies.

The game went scoreless until the seventh when the Oilers got a couple of more tallies on three singles and an infield out. Another Oiler run came in the eighth on another single, felder's choice, stolen base and another single.

With two away in the ninth the Cowboys got started again and managed to push one run across. Hale started it with a double, Phillips walked and DeGomez came through with a single to score the skipper again. Wilson ended the game with a pop fly to shortstop.

FIFTH COLUMN MEXICAN REVOLT CONSIDERED REMOTE

First of three stories analyzing Mexico's chances for revolution.

BY ROBERT P. DORMAN
(Written for NEA Service)

EL PASO, Tex.—A well-veiled and almost indefinable fifth column exists in Mexico. But the chances of this fifth column bringing on a revolution in the republic on our southwestern border, following the presidential election next month, appear remote.

I have just completed a 3000-mile trip through Mexico, seeking to run down rumors of an active fifth column and a fourth coming revolution—rumors that have been circulating in the United States for some time.

Dorman

It would appear that fifth column objectives are not immediate but that both Communist and Nazi influences may have to be reckoned with in the future.

There is definite Mexican Communist movement under the virtual, though not the nominal leadership of Vicente Lombardo Toledano, head of the C. T. M. (Mexican Confederation of Workers.) Presumably the Mexican Communists are now working with the Nazis as they are elsewhere.

The C. T. M. publishes a labor daily newspaper, El Popular, similar to the Daily Worker published in New York by the Communist Party. Aides of the presidential candidate, Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, charge El Popular is backed by Russian money.

The same sources claim the Mexico City magazine, El Timon, whose editor is Jose Vasconcelos, is backed by German money.

GERMAN, RUSSIAN "TOURISTS" ARRIVING

OTHER German activities are directed toward propaganda in the Mexican army. Just recently a new magazine, El Ejercito (The Army), was published, 75,000 copies being distributed free to the officers and men of the Mexican army.

One of its pages bore a full-page ad of the German legation which extolled and was dedicated to the heroes of the Mexican army.

Money for this publication came, according to reliable sources, from the German propaganda agent in the German consulate in Mexico City.

Records of the transportation lines show there has been a considerable influx of German and Russian elements into Mexico this year. While some of these travelers carry passports of the native countries, many of them travel with passports of various Central American republics.

The recent attempt on the life of the exiled former head of the Red army, Leon Trotsky, was, according to him, engineered by newly arrived members of the Soviet G. P. U. (secret police), with the aid of Toledano's followers. Trotsky definitely charged that Toledano took his orders from the Kremlin.

Included in the Soviet influx are many Soviet agents who were in Spain on the Loyalist side during the recent civil war, and who have been recognized in Mexico by men who were in Spain at that time.

ULTRIOR MOTIVES HARD TO PROVE

ALSO causing concern to the Mexican authorities are the large German centers of population, es-

Two important elements in the Mexican situation—the military and the peasants. The great mass of Mexican peasants is considered a fertile field for seeds of revolution. The army is a favorite target for Nazi infiltration.

FIFTH COLUMN MEXICAN REVOLT CONSIDERED REMOTE

Vicente Lombardo Toledano... enemies charge he salutes the Communism of Russia while heading the powerful Mexican Confederation of Workers.

pecially in the states of Chiapas and Vera Cruz on the plantations; and in the commercial life of Mexico City and Monterrey, the two most important business centers of Mexico.

These Germans are mostly ardent pro-Nazi and rumors regarding their activities run from the maintenance of powerful short wave radio stations daily furnishing Berlin with reports and information, to the laying out and leveling off of huge airfields planted to scrubby and worthless cotton as camouflage.

These activities are almost impossible of detection and when found, it is almost impossible to prove motives are ulterior.

For example, at Chihuahua City, one of the finest Mexican airports, only 225 miles from the American border at El Paso, Texas, the largest and best hangar belongs to a German mining company whose mine is located in the Sierra Madre on the border of the states of Chihuahua and Sonora.

To transport supplies in and bring gold out requires 10 days each way by muleback, but only a few hours by plane. Hence this hangar is a perfectly legitimate affair, yet the well-equipped hangar in the Chihuahua airport and the landing field in the mountains would afford perfect bases for a hostile airforce directed against the United States.

CAMPAIGN QUIET SO FAR

BOTH Reds and Nazis are undoubtedly working to stir up trouble among the Mexicans with a view of causing enough disturbance to distract the United States from any moves in the direction of Europe.

To date their efforts would seem to have had little effect. The presidential campaigns of Camacho and Almazan have proceeded with what, for Mexico, has been a minimum of violence.

NEXT: The truth about the post-election revolution.

During the year ending March 26, 1940, domestic airlines in the United States carried more than 2,000,000 passengers some 805,000,000 passenger miles without a single fatality to passengers or crew.

Joe Medwick and Curt Davis Are Traded to Brooklyn by Cardinals

ST. LOUIS, June 13. (AP)—Sale of Outfielder Joe Medwick and right-handed pitcher Curt Davis to the Brooklyn Dodgers for four players and an unannounced cash payment was announced last night by President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis National league club.

The Brooklyn players involved were Outfielder Ernie Koy, Pitcher Carl Doyle, a righthander; Sam Nahem, pitcher, now on option to Louisville of the American association, and Infielder Berthold Haas, now with Montreal of the International league on option.

Jack Ryan Wins Scout's Award Of Semi-Pros

ST. LOUIS, (UP)—Sandlot baseball officials have named as the No. 1 ivory-hunter of semi-pro talent, Jack Ryan, veteran scout of the St. Louis Cardinals.

For his services to backyard ball, Ryan has been presented a plaque by the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress, the first of a series to be awarded annually.

The congress cited him for never having missed a game of the five national championship tournaments held annually at Wichita, Kas., and for having attended scores of state tournaments, signing a number of youngsters to contracts.

"Sound" Art Title Given Collection

AUSTIN.—"Sound" art is accredited by Boyer Gonzales, University of Texas artist, whose exhibit of paintings was recently shown in New Orleans.

A New Orleans art critic wrote of the former Woodstock, N. Y., colony artist:

"The Texas painter's 'Bitter Aloe,' large still-life featuring a plant of cactus-like prickliness is a sound piece of brushing which owes auxiliary interest to its play upon appropriate angularities, worked out through arrangement of such properties as a table, books, and curtains."

WEARY HITCH-HIKERS Find Haven by Side of Road

ALBION, Mich. (U.P.)—Weary hitch-hikers have found such comfort in the "dope" set up by Thomas J. Bromfield that they stop at the rate of 300 a week.
 Bromfield, a filling station operator, built the resting place a year ago. While hitch-hikers sit on a bench under the trees, a large painted thumb tells passing motorists they are willing to ride awhile. The thumb is adjustable and may be turned to point down either way of the road.

Fence Will Encircle Old Smugglers' Isle

EL PASO, Texas (U.P.)—Bloody Cordova Island, a little bit of Mexico jutting into the United States where once federal agents and smugglers waged a deadly game of hide-and-seek—is being fenced in.
 This little boot-shaped patch of land which belongs to Mexico but was left stranded three decades ago when the Rio Grande suddenly changed its course, once was the scene of many bloody battles between customs officers and men seeking to bring in illegal liquor, narcotics and aliens.
 Recently the International Boundary Commission ordered the island—four miles in circumference—fenced in. The fence will be 6 feet high, of wire mesh on concrete posts.

Toad Study Deflated By Oklahoma Auditor

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (U.P.)—Frank C. Carter, 76-year-old state auditor, believes that a toad frog in eastern Oklahoma is much the same as a toad frog in western Oklahoma.

And to show his disdain of toad frogs in the aggregate, he refused to approve a travel claim of A. N. Brage, University of Oklahoma professor, who traveled 4,318 miles in the interest of "ecological studies of toads in Oklahoma." He submitted a travel claim of $86.32. "That's too much money for studying toad frogs," said Carter. "I won't pay it."

Women Urged to Keep Home Budgets

COLLEGE STATION. — Rural housewives who contemplate beginning work on their farm and home food budgets within the next few weeks had better get ready right away if they haven't already. Adequate preparation in advance will greatly improve the quality of the canned products, reduce the actual time of the canning operation, and help insure against spoilage, according to Grace I. Neely, specialist in food preservation for the A. and M. College Extension Service.

First of all, the family's pressure cooker should be checked over to be sure that it is in good condition and safe for use. Frequently county home demonstration agents train local home demonstration club leaders to conduct "pressure cooker clinics" back in their own communities. In some cases it may be necessary to return the cooker to the factory in the event there are major adjustments to be made.

Where glass jars are used, it is a good policy to inspect them for cracks and chips before the canning season. New supplies of lids and rubber rings are means of insuring against canning failures, the specialist points out. Successful use of glass depends upon the quality of the rubber rings or composition tops and upon the rims being free from nicks and chips. The tops should fit and the balls be tight.

If cans are to be used, it is better to secure new ones each year rather than re-flange the old ones. Miss Neely says sanitary or R enamel-lined cans preserve the color of such highly colored foods as berries, prunes, and beets and prevent corrosion in pumpkin and squash. C enamel-lined cans will help to prevent discoloration of products such as corn, peas, hominy, chicken or fish products, but these should not be used for acid products or fat meats.
