TRIO TELLS THE WORLD "FIGHT IS NOW WON"

Political Writer Goes Rounds Senatorial Haunts

By H. N. F.

DALLAS, Texas, June 6.—Tyler for two decades was the political headquarters of Texas and the Tyler gang ruled the state. James Stephen Hogg and Horace Chilton, not overlooking Cone Johnson, were the intellectual leaders of the Tyler gang. Austin was the original political headquarters of Texas but with the election of Richard Coke as governor in 1872 Waco was placed on the map and held the place for a number of years. Then Tyler took it away from Waco and ruled supreme until Charles A. Culberson became governor of Texas. Dallas was his home. Dallas in time became the political headquarters of the state.

James Stephen Hogg moved to Houston. Horace Chilton moved to Dallas. Chas. A. Culberson moved on to Washington. He had won a senatorship and he has held it ever since. Dallas for years has been the mecca of politicians. Dallas for years has been the home of retired statesmen as well as the home of ambitious statesmen. Oscar B. Colquitt moved from Austin to Dallas. Culten F. Thomas moved from Waco to Dallas. Gen. M. M. Crane moved from Cleburne to Dallas.

COURT DECISION RILES GOMPERS

Mine Case Is Unfair, He Says

By Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., June 6.—The decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Coronado mine case yesterday was denounced today by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, as setting a precedent under which capital can "impose any condition on the working people of the country and they would dare not resist."

The veteran labor leader declared however, that he believed there was "some latent power over and above the supreme court—the congress and the people of the United States."

Steady Progress In Vernon Fields

VERNON, Texas, June 6.—Developments in important Wilbarger county wells during the past week, while revealing nothing of a startling nature, nevertheless show steady progress of work. West of town about three miles the bit in the West Vernon well continues to seek its rich quarry, but officials decline to comment on any showing anticipated. The well is 2,800 feet deep, the second deepest test in the county.

Casing in the Sigler offset south of town will probably be set by the end of the week. The well is directly offsetting Sigler No. 1, the discovery well in the Vernon field, and the chances are considered excellent for another producer. Progress is necessarily slow at the present depth, and a test for oil is being made every five feet.

Triangle drillers are reaming down to reach the depth of their smaller hole, about 2,900 feet. Further drilling is expected within the next day or two.

Quiet Along Irish Front

By Associated Press.

BELFAST, June 6.—The Fermanagh front is quiet tonight, but stirring events are expected. Enniskillen reports that seven lorries loaded with republican forces from Sligo passed along the seashore route toward republican headquarters. The occupation of Magheramena castle by the British is looked for.

until it has been advertised for at least three days in a Wichita Falls newspaper, because the "finder" is almost sure to see if the "loss" is advertised.

It is also true that most "finders" are honest—but they must be given a chance to prove it. And they quite naturally feel that it is up to "loser" to advertise, rather than the "finder"—and they are probably correct. Don't expect others to show more interest in your affairs than you yourself show.

Mainly About People

Smith Brookhart—Iowa Radical—Leads For Senate—

By H. N. F.

IOWA IS A ROCKRIBBED republican state. Iowa is one of the great agricultural states of the West. Iowa produces more agricultural wealth than any of its neighbors. It's not often that the democrats get a look in in the hawkeye state. They are ever in the minority although Woodrow Wilson made surprising gains in his two campaigns for the presidency and the democrats elected several congressmen.

There came a landslide in 1920 and the democrats were buried in the districts where they were the most numerous. They were buried so deep that the victims did not squawk. Iowa republicans for the most part are progressive. There are two factions of republicans in the hawkeye state.

SENATORS A. B. CUMMINS and W. S. Kenyon for years represented the republican progressives. The faction known as the stand-patters were licked every two years by the progressives with painful regularity. Cummins has been a progressive for years. He launched the progressive movement in Iowa years and years ago. William Squire Kenyon followed in his footsteps. He was elected to the senate. He became a power. He backed progressive measure. He was close to Theodore Roosevelt. He was the author of the Kenyon law. He made the fight on the packers for governmental control of stock yards and regulation of the packing business. He was the head of the farm bloc in the senate. He backed all farm bloc measures.

ONE FINE MORNING, THE press carried a news item from Washington that Senator Kenyon had been appointed to a federal judgeship by President Harding and that the hawkeye progressive would resign from the senate and accept the place on the federal bench. All the farm blockers were staggered. All the reactionary senators and politicians were glad. Kenyon disappeared from the legislative life of the nation. Senator Arther Capper of Kansas succeeded Kenyon as the head of the farm bloc. Capper is much more radical than Kenyon. He knows what he wants and goes after it. He owns a big daily newspaper at Topeka and a chain of influential farm weeklies. There was a senatorial vacancy and

MEXICAN PLANS GIVEN BANKERS

Finance Minister Before Committee

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The methods by which the Mexican government proposes to meet current interest on its obligations and arrears accumulated through default in payment of interest on its bonds were understood to have been placed today before the international committee of bankers on Mexico by Minister of Finance De La Huerta. The nature of the proposals was not disclosed.

It also was learned that proposals for rehabilitation of the railroad lines in Mexico and the payment of interest of their obligations were laid before the bankers.

The matter of Mexico's recognition by the United States government plays no part in the consideration of these financial problems, it was reliably reported. The state department has not been kept in touch with the progress of negotiations since the bankers began their task with Mr. De La Huerta last week.

Granting of a new loan to Mexico probably would hinge however, on the recognition question, it was said. But De La Huerta announced when the conference began that Mexico was not seeking a loan here and that this program did not contemplate a visit to Washington.

In the matter of adjusting railroad matters, De La Huerta, it was said, has been in frequent conference with Leon Salinas, head of the national railways of Mexico, but Salinas has not yet been called to conference with the bankers who are considering whether to recommend the Mexico proposals to bond holders, gain modification, reject them or offer counter proposals.

Thieves Get $220 From Three Safes

By Associated Press.

VERNON, Texas, June 6.—Two hundred and twenty dollars rewarded the efforts of thieves Sunday night when they entered the local Frisco depot, the Farrell Oil Co. office, and the office of the Vernon Marble and Granite Co. All of the money, however, was obtained from the railroad company's safe. Officers have as yet made no arrests. Safes in all three establishments were thoroughly rifled.

Pinchot's Enormous Campaign Expenses Astound Washington

NEW WAGE CUT MADE BY BOARD OVER PROTESTS

Reduction Means 60 Million Saved Yearly

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 6—Over a strong protest of the three labor representatives on the United States railroad labor board, a new wage cut of seven cents an hour for railway shop mechanics and nine cents for freight car men, cutting 400,000 shop men approximately $60,000,000 a year, was ordered by the board today.

The new wage reduction brought an estimated added saving of $59,669,347 annually to the railroads, following on the heels of a $50,000,000 cut in the wages of maintenance of way laborers last week. The shop crafts decision becomes effective July 1, the same date as last week's order.

The minority report of the labor members pointedly stated that the majority decision was made "with no consideration of human needs," and charges that it failed to carry out the function of the board to set up a "just and reasonable wage."

Mechanics Reduced 8 Per Cent.

Supervisory forces of the railway shops were not decreased. After due consideration, the decision said it was felt that the duties and responsibilities of such forces warranted maintenance of the present rates.

The reduction for the mechanics averaged a little more than 8 per cent, all machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, electrical workers, car men (except freight car men), moulders, cupola tenders and car makers and the regular helper apprentices receiving a cut of 7 cents an hour. Freight men, commonly known as "car knockers," and the object of some of the heaviest assaults by the roads in their battle for lower wages, were cut 9 cents.

The larger cut was ordered for the "car knockers" because, the board said it believed that their work did not require the same skill in the service as other branches of car men's work. This heavier reduction for the freight car men came under especially severe criticism in the minority report, the labor members declaring there was no justification for discrimination in car work.

Indian Women After Suffrage

By Associated Press.

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 6.—Women of the Osage nation, the richest tribe of Indians in the world, have gone on the war path for equal suffrage.

More than a hundred copper-skin maidens and squaws came to the tribal voting place here yesterday to cast their ballots in the annual tribal election but the old bucks refused to allow them to vote. The women then caucused and announced that they would urge the tribal council to amend the tribal laws so that women may vote at the 1923 election.

Ni-Kah-Wah-Shi-Ton-kah, a full blood, running on the mixed blood white ticket, was elected principal chief for the next year. Paul Red Eagle, who ran on the combined ticket with the newly elected high chief, tied with Fred Lookout, a full blood, for assistant chief.

Court Martial Finds Officer Guilty

By Associated Press.

WRIGHTSTON, N. J., June 5.—Major Malcolm Wheeler Nicholson tonight was found guilty by a court martial at Camp Dix of a charge of having violated the 96th article of war in having written and sent to President Harding a letter charging that Prussianism existed in the army.

Newberryism As Fall Election Issue Stirs Republican Solons

By B. M. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Gifford Pinchot's enormous expenditure in the Pennsylvania gubernatorial primary, as disclosed by his own declaration, has caused a sensation in Washington which has created consternation among republicans who see Newberryism a certain issue in elections this fall. It was the subject of discussion in the senate this week and also formed the basis for an editorial in the Washington Post, commonly regarded as the organ of the Harding administration, under the caption of "High Cost of Politics," which declares "even the reformer appreciates the power of the dollar in politics when strongly fortified by its kind and without qualms adapts it to practical use in the furtherance of his ambition to serve the public for the greater public weal."

The Philadelphia Record's editorial, "Pinchot's Cash Victory," calling attention to the issue raised by this great outlay of money, was read into the Congressional Record by Senator Harrison of Mississippi, who used it as basis for seathing indictment of Pinchot's "progressivism" and his changed viewpoint under the stimulus of ambition for public office. The senator pointed out that it raises precisely the same issue that was raised in Michigan by the Newberry case, with the distinction that Newberry swore he knew nothing of the expenditures in his behalf, while Candidate Pinchot takes full responsibility.

"The senator from Michigan said that the expenditure was made without his knowledge," said Senator Harrison. "Pinchot, the progressive, says under his oath that he contributed $93,000 and his wife $20,500, so the only difference is in the amount that was expended by these two gentlemen."

BELIEVE DEMOS REJECT WARNER

No Word Yet From Committee

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, June 6.—Opinion that the name of Harry T. Warner, Paris editor, would be rejected by the state democratic executive committee as a candidate for governor on the coming election ballot strengthened here today with passing of another day's mail and no receipt from the candidate by Secretary Joseph W. Hale, of the proper constitutional form of application to be filed by candidates.

Warner telegraphed his application to the secretary last Sunday and on Monday Hale received a letter confirming the telegram. Hale immediately wired Warner to fill out the proper application. Hale did not hear from Warner today.

The application of Lee Kirgan, Fairfield ,candidate for state treasures, was received by Secretary Hale today.

In the same mail came an application from E. W. Cole, Austin, demanding his name be placed on the ballot as candidate for "congressman at large" from Texas. Cole insists Texas, on basis of its recent census, is entitled to another congressman, and that the national house cannot deny the state the privilege.

WARNER APPLICATION MAILED MONDAY.

PARIS, Texas, June 6.—The formal affidavit and application of Harry T. Warner for a place on the democratic ticket as a candidate for governor was mailed Monday afternoon in Paris to State Chairman Davis at San Antonio. It was sent as a registered letter and presumably Mr. Davis has received it. Mr. Warner announced at the last moment, practically for the reason that he had anticipated that Judge E. W. Napier of Wichita Falls would be a candidate and did not desire to throw any obstacle his way, hence the application could not be gotten away sooner than Monday for the reason that Judge Napier's withdrawal was not made known until Saturday evening.

MOVIE VAMPIRE GONE FROM SCREEN

Producers Find Public Has Wearied

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The movie "Vamp" with her face white, her penciled eyebrows, green eyes and her jade earrings, is gone and will flaunt her fascinations on the silver screen no longer, motion picture theater owners were told at a meeting today.

What the public wants now, according to speakers, are good little girls, heroines of the little Eva type, with golden hair, blue eyes, sincerity and innocence.

"The modern picture heroine" said Wm. J. Sweeney, "must be young and inexperienced in appearance, guileless and appealing in her actions. The public has wearied of the vampire type."

The public itself, he declared, is voicing the demand for cleaner films and the producers are filling the demand.

JUDGE SCATHES REPORTERS FOR COX CASE STORY

Advance Dope Must Stop Or Grand Jury Called

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 6.—Excusing the jury unexpectedly at 5:40 this afternoon and holding every one else in the court room, Federal Judge Hutcheson scathingly arraigned newspaper reporters and threatened them with grand jury action if they did not cease predicting who the witnesses were to be in the trial of S. E. J. Cox, oil promoter.

Some local papers have been predicting that Mrs. Cox, known as the "little partner," would go on the stand and prove an aid toward freeing her husband of charges of using the mails to defraud. This specific instance was referred to by Judge Hutcheson.

"This is no mock trial," severely remarked the judge. "I shall take grand jury action against reporters continuing their practices of predicting who is going to appear as witnesses.

"This thing is going to be absolutely prohibited.'

"I am going to devote my entire life in trying to ruin S. E. J. Cox." Such was the statement M. T. Wolwerton, 76, storekeeper at Shannon, Texas, said was told him by W. P. Johnson, former manager for the General Oil company.

This and other assertions was brought out at the trial of Cox by Wolwerton, a defense witness, Tuesday afternoon.

"Johnson told me right in the offices of the General Oil company while Mr. Cox was away that he would do everything in his power to ruin Cox," said Mr. Wolwerton.

This declaration by Wolwerton was indirect contradiction to the statements of Johnson, a government witness, Tuesday morning who stated that he made no threats against Cox.

The state rested its case late this afternoon and defense witnesses were placed on the stand.

Bank Commissioner Sued In Eastland

By Associated Press.

EASTLAND, Texas, June 6.—Eastland county today filed suit against Ed Hall, state commissioner of banking and insurance, to collect from the state bank here $620,847, which amount the county contends was on deposit to its credit when the Security State bank here closed its doors Aug. 3, 1921.

The plaintiff alleges that this money was unsecured and non-interest bearing and was therefore protected by the guaranty fund and asks the court to order the deposit classified as payable one of this fund.

RECEIVER MAY RELEASE KATY

Merger With C. and A. Is Rumored

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 6.—Definite steps toward dissolution of the receivership of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad have been taken according to information obtained here today by the Associated Press from a high official. The dissolution of the receivership, he said, was regarded in railroad circles as a forerunner to a merger of the road with the Chicago & Alton within the next 30 days. Persistent rumors regarding such a merger have been denied by railroad officials.

A recent report issued by the receiver showed net earnings of 5.01 per cent in 1921, compared to 1.73 per cent in 1920.

C. E. Schaff was appointed receiver of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, September 27, 1915.

By Associated Press.

Assistant Postmaster General Glover stated that this increase was the greatest within the past seven years.

Woman Reenacts Scene Leading To Slaying Col. Beck

BARES STORY

MRS JEAN P. DAY

Character Of Dead Officer Attacked In Letters Presented

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 6—Mrs. Jean P. Day, local society woman, related today to a special army board her story of an alleged attack upon her by Lieutenant Colonel Paul Ward Beck, commanding officer at Post Field, Oklahoma, which resulted in Beck's death at the hands of her husband here early in April. The army officers composing the board went to the Day home this afternoon to hear Mrs. Day.

At a morning session of the board in federal building Jean P. Day appeared with his attorney and submitted to the questioning. Both hearings were strictly private and neither Mr. Day nor the board members would make any comment. Day answered all inquiries with "I have been pledged to secrecy."

One surprise developed at the morning session, it was understood, when Moman Pruitt, Day's attorney, introduced several letters concerning alleged relations of Beck with women at other army posts at which he had been stationed.

MONSTER CROWD EXPECTED FOR VET REUNION

Over 40,000 Will Visit Richmond

By Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., June 6.—Between 40,000 and 50,000 visitors from Maryland to Texas, it is estimated, will be here for the thirty-second annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, which will take place on June 20-22. Of this number, it is figured, there will be present about 5,000 of the 45,000 surviving Confederate soldiers.

Practically all of the old graycoats coming for their annual roll call will be accompanied by one or more members of their families. Reduced railroad rates of 1 cent a mile have been granted them by all the transportation systems throughout the southeast. In addition, there will be sponsors named by the three departments—The Department of Northern Virginia, the Department of Tennessee and the Department of Transmississippi—And each state division. Some camps are expected to name sponsors. There will also be hundreds of maids and matrons of honor.

This year Richmond will provide comfortable quarters for the veterans. At the last reunion here they slept on cots in tents or barracks, but that was seven years ago. The age of the old soldiers now forbids them from this privation which they formerly looked upon as a lark.

Upon reaching the city, every veteran will be met and required to register, after which an official reunion badge will be issued. Those who have not made reservations in advance, will be assigned quarters in private homes or boarding houses. A large mess hall will be opened, and here dinner and supper will be served those veterans who wish them.

This is undoubtedly the last of the big confederate reunions which can be held in the former capital of the confederate states and for that reason Richmond is sparing no expense in providing a royal welcome and elaborate entertainment for the visitors.

One of the most interesting features of the reunion will be the laying of the cornerstone of a monument to Matthew Fontaine Maury, "Pathfinder of the Seas" and hero of the confederate navy. Richmond has done much for the confederate soldier and now wants to pay the same tribute to the confederate sailor.

CIVIL WAR FLAGS MAY GO BACK TO OWNERS

By Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—A proposal that confederate battle flags held by Minnesota veterans of the civil war be returned to their original owners will be presented to the state encampment of the G. A. R., which opened a two day session here today.

RICH SECTION HEARS MESSAGE OF PROSPERITY

New Appreciation Of Trade Advantage Is Created

Special to the Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., June 6.—"Hello prosperity."

This is the song 140 business men from Wichita Falls today sang to the merchants and people of Burkburnett, Devol, Grandfield, Loveland, Hollister, Frederick, Tipton, Altus and Quanah.

The song was selected to the Wichita Falls of today.

"We've had enough of blues and troubles.

"Happy smiles we want to see;
"So roll up your sleeves today,
"Step on the gas and say:
"Hello prosperity"

These words, other than personifying the actual condition that exists in Wichita Falls, were sung to a snappy tune as the opening number on the visitors' program.

Business men as a rule seldom qualify for vocal honors, but members of this expedition are just that different. Every man on the five-car special seems to have literally rolled up his and gone into this thing to sell Wichita Falls.

Many charms hath music, but still another was added today. Business men wied with each other five towns visited told the Record News representative that the truth about Wichita Falls as the wholesaling and retailing terminus of the Northwestern had just come home to them.

Its been quite a long time since Wichitans visited these parts, the Frederick Leader pointed out in a front page article in this afternoon's edition. Meanwhile other towns have sought to invade the territory.

"There's every reason why Oklahomans and Wichitans should co-operate and stick together," Judge C. C. McDonald explained to several hundred people at Frederick. The same tornados which swept down upon us cross over into your country, the same flood which visits us every ten years also damages this country and the same drouth that we fear in Wichita Falls are felt just as much here."

In other words, McDonald pointed out, Wichita Falls is in sympathy with Frederick and all other towns in the trade radius whereas the larger cities have nothing in common with this territory.

Wife Gets Divorce With Hubby On Jury

By Associated Press.

ATLATA, Ga., June 6.—The novel experience of a husband serving on a jury that granted his wife a divorce has just been brought to light here in the case of Mrs. Sara Myrtice Almand, who was granted a decree from Albert Irvin Almand several months ago. Mrs. Almand did not attend the hearing, the divorce being granted on depositions taken in Newark, N. J., where she now resides. The decree is valid, according to lawyers.

H. W. McLarty, counsel who represented Mrs. Almand, declared that he did not know her husband was on the jury until a week after the verdict had been granted.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR RUSSELL FUNERAL MADE

Many Notables Send Messages Of Condolence

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 6.—Arrangements for the funeral of Mrs. Lillian Russell Moore, who died at her home here early today were announced tonight. During the day more than one thousand telegrams and messages of condolence were received from persons who numbered the former Lillian Russell as one of their valued friends.

Among these was one from President and Mrs. Harding.

A body guard of the United States marines will accompany the body from Trinity Protestant Episcopal church to the cemetery. At the cemetery entrance they will be met by the 107th field artillery, the organization which Mrs. Moore helped to equip during the world war, and which will escort the procession to the grave. A detachment from the American Legion Post of which the deceased was a member will form the firing squad at the last resting place.

Davis to Attend Funeral.

Among those who will attend the funeral Thursday will be Secretary of Labor Davis, Florence Reed, representing the actors equity association; F. S. Albee and James Murdoch, representing the national vaudeville association and the Keith enterprise; R. H. Burnside, representing the Producing managers association; Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy.

Mrs. Moore had expressed the wish that no flowers be sent at the time of her death, believing, she said, that persons in moderate circumstances should not feel the necessity of contributing. Thus the employes of the Pittsburgh post office today decided to contribute one flower each toward a boquet to be sent in token of their friendship for the dead woman.

President Sends Message.

President and Mrs. Harding's telegram read:

"Mrs. Harding and I are distressingly shocked to learn of the untimely death of Mrs. Moore. We feel the loss of a very dear friend. Please know our sympathy which is emphasized by our knowledge of your worship of Mrs. Moore."

From Secretary of Labor James J. Davis came this:

"A woman's soul has passed on and she was truly a sympathetic soul. Will be at funeral Thursday."

Other messages were received from Governor Wm. C. Sproul, of Pennsylvania, Arthur Brisbane, Senator Harry S. New, Frank A. Munsey, Raymond Robbins, Theodore Roosevelt, Lillian Gish, Melville E. Stone, counsellor of the Associated Press; George B. Christian, Jr., secretary to President Harding; Elsie Ferguson, Louis F. Swift, J. Ogden Armour, Miss Jane, Mary Garden, Mrs. Edith Roosevelt, widow of the former president, and the Chicago Tribune.

WANT WEED LAW TO BE ENFORCED

Civic League Hears Monthly Reports

"If there is a weed cutting law, we want it enforced," was the sentiment expressed by members of the Civic league at the regular monthly meeting held at the library Tuesday afternoon. A discussion of many vacant lots covered with unsightly weeds occupied much of the session. The women expressed themselves as being squarely back of the law to make property owners cut the weeds, if there was one.

Splendid reports were given by Mrs. H. S. Crawford, chairman of the community market, held Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays on the corner of Scott and Eleventh, and by the president, Mrs. J. E. Sharp, concerning the work being done by the branch civic organizations. Mrs. Crawford reported 22 truck growers at the market place Tuesday morning with large quantities of fresh fruits, vegetables and produce. She stated that the patronage was also exceptionally good, considering the many gardens in the city.

It was decided to discontinue the league meetings for the summer and the social which was discussed at the meeting last month was postponed until in September when the plans will be considered further.

A few "last minute" suggestions for the naming of the storage and diversion lakes arrived Monday, the day set for the closing of the name contest.

Mrs. D. S. Perry, 2144 Avenue E, makes the following suggestion: "Take Kemp, Wichita and Baylor, use "Ke," "Wi," and "Bay." Makes "Kewibey."

Mrs. F. A. Richardson, 1113 Monroe, suggests for the storage lake, "Flora Falls," and for the diversion lake, "Wichita Kell."

James H. Groseclose Jr., 2210 Tenth, adds to thelist with the following: "Lake Kemps-Kella," and "Lake Noble."

Sentences Passed In Police Court As Result Cleanup Drive Being Sustained On Hearing In County Court-at-Law

With the conviction of Johnny Jones in the county court at law Tuesday, the record that shows that the county court is upholding the city court in its clean-up campaign.

Jones was given the limit—fined $200 like three defendants who had gone before him—for vagrancy. He was tried before Judge Guy Rogers.

Working hand in hand, the county officers and city officers have appeared against the accused vagrants who have appealed their cases from the city to the count ycourt. Three vagrants were disposed of in rapid succession Monday in the county court at law, and a fine of $200 was imposed on Jones in short order Tuesday morning.

None of the juries in any of the vagrant cases have remained out of the courtroom over five minutes, showing that the city and county have prepared strong cases against their defendants.

City officials pointed to the success of the appealed cases yesterday and declared they are getting strong cooperation from county authorities in the prosecution of men and women charged with vagrancy.

The case of Sam Devall, begun late yesterday afternoon, will possibly be in the hands of the jury this morning before 10 o'clock, the state having rested and the defense having been in the midst of its testimony when Judge Rogers recessed court until this morning at 9 o'clock.

Several witnesses and a defendant in one vagrant case, docketed for trial the first thing yesterday, became suddenly ill, and notified the court that none of them would be able to attend court. It was not indicated when they would be sufficiently well to have the case called.

City Prosecutor E. H. Gipson, who is appearing in the prosecution in conjunction with County Attorney E. L. Fulton and Assistat County Attorney Wayne Sommerville, remarked during court that "it is very peculiar that all the witnesses and the defendant in the same case should take ill the same day."

TELLS RECORD OF CULBERSON

Senator's Influence Is Pointed Out

"There is no member of the United States senate today who has more influence than Senator Charles A. Culberson, and there is no man who can do more for Texas," declared Judge Barry Miller, speaking before the University club Tuesday, in behalf of the candidacy of the present senator.

"His platform is not one of promises, but of past performances, and assurance that he will continue working for Texas in the future. His influence in the senate is unsurpassed. It's influence that counts. Senator Culberson is a member of practically every importane committee. He is the senior senator of the democratic party, and is outranked by only two republicans."

Judge Miller referred in passing to the objections to Senator Culberson's age and physical condition, urged by opponents as against him.

"Back in '96," he said, "I remember when Governor James S. Hogg said that the only thing against Charley Culberson was his youth and good looks.

"Now after 32 years of service they are saying he is not as young as he once was. One of his opponents even said to me that if it were not for Senator Culbersons' physical condition, he would not be in the race against him. That is the only objection they can find to him.

"Certainly the senator is not as young as he once was, but what the people of Texas need is a brain, at this time, not a pugilist. There have been no attacks on his record of service.

"And I can tell you today that Senator Culberson's physical condition permits him to be regular in attendance on his post as senator. If he were physically unable he would not be asking you now for another term to serve you."

Judge Miller stated that he was paying such attention to the physical condition of the senator because that was the one objection that had been stressed against him by his opponents. He stated that the story of Senator Culberson being forced to go around in a wheel chair was "the rankest kind of lie."

Senator Culberson's staunch support of the policies of Woodrow Wilson and the substantiation of the promises made by the democratic party, were recalled by the speaker. Judge Miller also went into detail as to some of the senator's achievements for the benefit of the state of Texas, and the Texas people.

Charles Angle, singer, supplied the musical program for the luncheon. Prof. F. F. Loew played the accompaniment.

The June entertainment committee was appointed by President Norris Ewing, composed of Luther Hoffman, J. B. Hatchitt and B. D. Sartin.

Next week's meeting will be held in the Episcopal parish house, it was announced, the guild of the church to serve the luncheon.

FOX OUT FOR COUNTY CLERK

L. A. Fox Jr., service manager for McFall Brothers for the past three years, announced Tuesday for the position of county clerk, subject to the democratic primary, July 22.

In making his announcement Mr. Fox issued the following:

"To the voters of Wichita County:

"After due consideration I have decided to enter the race for county clerk, subject to action of the democratic primary, July 22, 1922. I have lived in Wichita county seventeen years, two years at Iowa Park, Texas and fifteen years in Wichita Falls, Texas. Employed at Wichita Falls by the F. W. & D. Ry. In clerical positions twelve years, employed by McFall Brothers in Wichita Falls for the past three years as cashier and service manager, which experience, I believe, places me in a position to know what the public will expect of a man in the office of county clerk, and if elected I will endeavor to handle same in an efficient manner.

"Thanking you for your vote and influence, I am,

"Yours truly,

CITY LOAN MAY BE KNOCKED OUT

Borrower's Attorneys Not Satisfied

Certain sections of the city charter may have blocked the plan of Wichita Falls from borrowing $250,000, it became known Tuesday.

An opinion from the Cleveland (Ohio) firm of Squire, Saunders & Dempsey, submitted to City Attorney Mann and received Tuesday, asserts that the city charter prohibits Wichita Falls from obtaining the loan.

City Attorney Mann, however, is of the opinion that the charter can be circled, and that the ruling of the Cleveland firm, which represents the loan company where the $250,000 bonds would have been obtained, can be set aside.

The opinion of the Cleveland attorneys follows:

"Section 101 of the charter provides that no money shall be borrowed by city except by bond issue or by issue of temporary loans as authorized by section 100.

"Section 100 authorizes temporary loans only in anticipation of current revenue, but provides that such loan be paid out of current taxes as recurred.

"Section 60 of charter prohibits the incurring of liabilities in accordance with the provision of the annual appropriation ordinance and section 72 of the charter likewise prohibits the incuring of any obligation except by appropriation properly made.

"In addition to foregoing, section 5 of article XI of the constitution prohibits any municipality from incurring any debt unless a sinking fund and interest tax is levied at the time such indebtedness is incurred.

"We gather from your letter that part of this indebtedness is for capital expenditures for which a vote of the electors should have been had and other parts are for current operation expenses and such indebtedness would seem to have been illegally incurred in the first instance."

Staff Special.

ALTUS, June 6.—The people of Altus won the heart of Wichitans when the entire party was entertained with a banquet by the chamber of commerce at the city auditorium, the city band taking an important part in the program.

C. C. McDonald, the speaker of the evening for the Wichitans, declared the gathering to be one of the most notable that could be arranged anywhere and likened to the famous grid iron dinners. George C. Wright, president of the Altus chamber, spoke on behalf of the Altus people as did other prominent citizens.

Ben Neal, Kiwanis president, and Eddie Perdue of the Record News were performers of the evening, offering some of their favorate light lines. Moving photos of the irrigation project, scenes taken of the city from the skies, and of the baseball fire last Saturday, topped off the program. Movie Man Mapes was grinding the camera and has been shooting action stuff all day.

MILLER SPEAKS FOR CULBERSON

Says Loss Would Be Misfortune

"There's not a time when it would be more unfortunate for Texas to lose Senator Charles A. Culberson than now," declared Judge Barry Miller of Dallas, speaking to an audience at the Wichita theater Tuesday evening in the interest of Mr. Culberson's candidacy for the senate.

"Twenty-four years he has served you there, faithfully and as no other man could have served you," he said, "and now all that his opponents can say against him is that he is old and sick.

"Years ago, when he ran for governor of this state, James Hogg spoke for him, and all they could say against him then was that he was young and handsome; and all they can say against him now is that he is old and sick."

The speaker was introduced by Judge W. E. Fitzgerald, who, in an interesting manner, called to attention the service of Senator Culbertson during his 24 years as senator from Texas.

"If Culberson was not keenly alert and able to fill the office he wouldn't ask for it, for he's no beggar," Judge Miller declared during his address.

The speaker dealt at length with Senator Culberson's illness, and recalled how his opponents had said five years ago that he would not last the term if elected then. He read excerpts from editorial comment appearing in the Washington Star, Post and Times, all of which pointed out Senator Culberson's activity in the senate.

"A new man in Washington would have as much influence as a fly on a cow's horns," Judge Miller said, concluding with a tribute to the senator's service to his country.

Judge Miller speaks today in Vernon.

GENSOM RIVER BILL DISCUSSED

Oklahoma Delegates Meet at Capitol

By B. N. TIMMONS.
Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Members of the Oklahoma delegation remaining in Washington met in the office of Representative Gensam today to discuss a bill Gensam has drawn up, conferring jurisdiction on the secretary of the interior to determine the rights of various claimants of titles to lands in the southern half of the bed of Red river.

While the delegation was not entirely in accord with the provisions of the measure, Gensam said he expected to introduce it in a few days.

There are a number of claimants to the land in the south half of the river bed, he said, from the 98th meridian to the north fork. Several claimants are holding title under Texas grants, the so called "Sam Sparks" titles, and a good many conflicting claims are laid to the land of placer filings, he said.

Sam Sparks and associates, as well as other Texans, including Wichitans who have been interested in the operations of what was known as "excess land" along the river, have been endeavoring to get a ruling from the court, or authority in what ever way necessary, to give the secretary of the interior the right to fix titles to the oil lands in controversy. Their activities were begun when it appeared that the land in question would be designated as United States property, according to information received locally. They seek to have the right of prior choice give them, because of the fact that it was their enterprise that developed the land into an oil pool.

Consequently the action of the Oklahoma delegation to frame a bill, passing the authority on titles to the secretary of the interior, will meet with approval from Texans interested. it was indicated Tuesday, when the information was received.

The real discovery well of the Red River pool, the General Oil company's No. 1 Sam Sparks, was drilled on land leased by the General Oil company from Sparks, at that time operating in Wichita Falls. Sparks has secured a grant from the state of Texas, giving him a quit claim to the land in question, several thousand acres lying between the north property line of owners of Red River valley farms, and the river, as its course ran in normal times.

The Lone Star Refining company of this city held leases, and began operations under the Sparks lease. This company also secured placer mining claims, hoping to play safe, which ever way the controversy was settled. Both companies brought in large wells before the federal receivership was declared.

These claimants, it is understood, are seeking to have the federal government give them the option of purchase of the properties, which were developed as paying oil lands by them.

TENDLER WHIPS BARRETT IN 6TH

Twenty Thousand Watch Fight

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 6.—Lew Tendler, of Philadelphia, tonight knocked out Bobby Barrett of Clifton Heights, Pennsylvania, in the sixth round of their scheduled eight round bout at the national league baseball park in the presence of more than 20,000 spectators, one of the biggest crowds that ever saw a boxing match in Philadelphia.

The knockout was a ripping left hand swing that caught Barrett full on the solar plexus. He dropped to the mat, writhing with pain and at the count of ten when the bell rang, his second jumped into the ring to revive him. Many persons in the crowd believed the blow was low, but the referee, Herman Taylor, declared it was not.

From the beginning until the finishing blow Tendler showed that he was the master.

TRIO TELLS—

litical habitat. That is candidates establish headquarters there, but the politicians and the candidates crowd the lobbies of the Adolphus. Charles A. Culberson and Earle B. Mayfield have headquarters at the Oriental. Cullen F. Thomas has headquarters in the Praetorian building. Oscar B. Touchstone is the law partner and campaign director of Mr. Thomas. Judge Barry Miller is the state campaign director of the Culberson forces and W. H. Ward runs the headquarters. Ben Richards and Gossett Greer are in charge of the Mayfield offices but the main headquarters are in the city of Austin, where D. A. Lyday is the man behind the gun.

June is passing and July is coming. On Saturday, July 18, the big things will happen. Then the people will know who are the runners off. There is going to be a run off. All the campaign managers and all the politicians admit as much. Manager Ward said to the writer:

Ward Is Confident.

"Senator Culberson will be in the run off. This is conceded by all well informed men. This is admitted privately by democrats who are opposed to the candidacy of the senator. Our reports are not only flattering but encouraging. They come to us from all sections of Texas. There are Culberson men, active and outspoken in all the 248 counties. Senator Culberson has always voted on the side of the people. He voted for the 19th amendment. He voted against the Esch-Cummins act. He favors its repeal.

"During his long career in the senate he has voted for every measure which would give relief to the farmers and livestock men of the country as well as the wage earners. His record is an open book. He is ever at his post. He daily answers roll call. He is active in support of all legislation which would be beneficial to the people of his state. Judge Miller is campaigning in northwest Texas and he will touch the principal cities and towns in the Panhandle and plains country. There is not a broken fence anywhere. Culberson will be in the runoff and he will defeat the man who gets into the runoff with him in the first primary."

Manager Touchstone is as optimistic as the June bride. He is a rosy cheeked chap, a native son, and people close to him said to the writer that Touchstone never put in less than 20 hours a day. Other members of the firm attend to the law business. Touchstone is doing his level best to make the senior partner a United States senator. This is what he said without stuttering or stammering:

Touchstone Claims All

"Cullen F. Thomas is just as certain to be the successor of Charles A. Culberson in the senate of the United States as day follows night. He has an active organization in every county. They are real workers. He is strong with the women of Texas. He is strong with all those who are glad that the saloon has been outlawed. For years and years he championed the cause of prohibition and the cause of equal suffrage. He is the champion of the farmer and the wage earner. He does not believe that the swollen fortunes should dictate the legislation of this republic. He does not believe that the non-producers should fatten on the producers. He is a Jeffersonian democrat, and for the policies of Woodrow Wilson he battles unashamed and unafraid. Within a radius of 150 miles of Dallas there is a vast number of democratic men and women voters. Indeed more than half of the voting population of Texas is centered in this territory. Thomas will carry Collin, Denton, Wise and many other blackland counties. He will run first in a very large number of counties the state over. These are our advices from democrats who know the sentiment of their respective localities. He is strong in the panhandle and the plains country. He will run like a deer everywhere in the west. He is not weakening and has never weakened. He is stronger today than any day since the campaign began. He has made more speeches than all the candidates in the field and he has visited the smaller towns. During the month of July he will visit the county seats and there will be a whirlwind close. He will be in the runoff and he will be the victor."

Mayfield a Derby Winner.

A visit to the Mayfield headquarters was faithful of results. Ben C. Richards, the active manager, was out in the field somewhere. Gossett Greer, who is a young lawyer and native Texan, was on deck. Greer's other name is optimism. This is his first political campaign. He is brim full of enthusiasm and has his man elected. This is what he said:

"It is all over. We entered a race horse and he won the derby. Why waste time talking about it after the race has been won. Here in Dallas county, the home of Culberson and Thomas, more than five thousand voters have signed the Mayfield pledge cards and taken away with them Mayfield buttons. Mayfield is out on the road campaigning. Everywhere he goes large crowds greet him. Why they are giving barbecues and chicken dinners in his honor. This is out of the ordinary. You don't hear of barbecues or chicken dinners given in honor of the other candidates. All our advices justify the prediction that Mayfield will be in the run off and this should make it easy for him to win the senatorship. He is a splendid campaigner, a native Texan, has served the people as state senator and railroad commissioner. He is widely known throughout the state and everywhere he goes he makes votes. It is Mayfield in a walk."

In "The Good Old Days."

Incidently when Mr. Mayfield was elected to the state senate he was a farmer in Bosque county, a member of the farmers' union and one of its prize talkers. He had the backing of the farmers' union in his race for the state senate and he had the backing of the farmers' union in his race for railroad commissioner. His chief manager is a former president of the farmers' union of Texas. In these good old days James A. Arnold was the secretary of an organization which affiliated with the farmers' union and many of the leaders of the union were the backers of James E. Ferguson in his races for governor.

Now James A. Arnold furnishes the brains for the southern tariff congress and is the political mold of that organization. Not far from the Mayfield headquarters is the headquarters of Major Fred Rodgers, the farm labor candidate for governor. J. M. Neill, in days of old a member of the farmers' union, is in charge and is pushing the cause of Rodgers. D. J. Neill is on guard for Rodgers in the city of Austin.

Organizers of the farm labor party claim a membership of 200,000 in Texas. In the earlier stages of the campaign the claim was made that Ferguson was the choice of the farm labor union for United States senator. This may be so in some sections of the state, but in Hunt and Collin and adjoining counties the leaders say that no candidate for senator has been picked to date.

average of $3.18 a day were cut five five cents an hour, or 40 cents a day.

The mechanics, whose daily rate now averages from $6.11 for electric workers to $6.28 for blacksmiths, will lose 56 cents a day under the new decision, bringing their daily wage to appropriate $5.70.

The board's latest decision which is to be followed shortly by reductions for railway clerks, telegraphers and all other classes of railway employes except the train service men, was brief and offered no explanation as to how the new rates were arrived at. This omission brought more fire from the dissenters who declared the majority decision did not consider "human needs," ignored the pleas of the employes for a "living wage" and made "no attempt to show that mechanics are not entitled to such a standard."

The decision, however, contained numerous tables prepared by the board's statistical department, designed to show that although wages were reduced, they had not been reduced more than the reduction in the cost of living and that the purchasing power of the present pay was higher than the purchasing power of the present pay was higher than the purchasing power of the higher wages paid during the years since 1917.

PINCHOT'S—

lution which seated Newberry and at the same time condemned the lavish use of money in elections, Senator Harrison asked:

"If it is dangerous to spend such excessive sums to elect men to the United States senate, why is it not dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government to expend such enormous sums to nominate men to state offices?"

The discussion of campaign expenditures in connection with the Newberry affair has made the whole subject of political expenditures so unpleasant to many republican senators that nearly all of those on hand when Harrison began his speech today on the Pennsylvania disclosures immediately left the chamber.

Conceding that there is no jurisdiction lodged with the federal government to meet the state situation, Senator Harrison said that "something should be done to prevent wealth polluting elections and controlling the nomination at election of public servants to office." He incorporated editorials and news items from several Pennsylvania newspapers in his remarks.

Referring to the acknowledged expenditure of $121,042 in the Pinchot campaign, and the estimated expenditure of $500,000 by the republican state and county organizations in behalf of George E. Alter, Senator Harrison declared:

"The Newberry case sinks into insignificance when we analyze this campaign for the nomination of a governor in Pennsylvania."

"Those large expenditures must stop," he said. "If a man, because he is enormously wealthy, runs in a primary for the nomination, and expends an eighth of a million dollars, how much will he spend when it comes down to making the real fight for the election? The gentleman who was nominated for governor on the democratic ticket in Pennsylvania is a poor man. He is a farmer. He is the head of the Grange, as I understand, in that state. He never will be able to get around the first heat if Pinchot is to continue to pour out lavishly these large expenditures as he did for his nomination.

"We have, of course, no jurisdiction in the situation in the state of Pennsylvania, but something should be done to prevent wealth polluting elections and controlling the nomination and election of public servants to office."

Senator Harrison's attack was the forerunner of others understood to be planned by democratic leaders on the republican nominee in Pennsylvania. The reported expenditures in the republican primaries in the state exceed those of the Newberry contest several times over, and in the minds of democrats here furnish a fresh example of the power of money in politics. They propose to hold it up as a "horrible example" during the campaign.

There was no defense of Pinchot or the republican state organization from republican senators. There were only three on the senate floor when Senator Harrison spoke. He prefaced his comment on Pinchot's expenditures by reading excerpts from editorial and news dispatches on the same subject.

"Some weeks ago the senate took up a long time in consideration of the corruption that was alleged and which the jury in Michigan said was proven in the so-called Newberry case," Senator Harrison said. "The majority of senators voted not to unseat the sitting member. Some of us thought when this action was taken that seeds were being sown that might grow into bad fruit in adjoining states, and that that action would be accepted as a license for certain candidates for office in the future to expend money without respect for law."

a republican governor appointed the chairman of the republican state committee. There is a law in Iowa that unless a candidate receives 35 percent of the vote cast, the nomination goes to the state convention.

THIS LAW WAS PUT OVER while Senators Cummins and Kenyon were asleep at the switch. They were busy at the national capital and the reactionary republicans at home stole a legislative march on them. Monday was primary election day in Iowa. There were many candidates for the senatorial vacancy created by the resignation of Kenyon. Two years ago Smith Brookhart, a radical progressive made the race against Senator Cummins and came within a few thousand votes of defeating the veteran progressive leader of the senate. Brookhart announced again this year. All the conservatives and reactionaries of his party planned his defeat. They thought they had him. What is known as the republican organization in Iowa was against him. This organization did not believe that Brookhart could get 35 per cent of the vote cast.

THEY RAN A FORMER CONgressman to garner thte standpat vote. They ran the author of the war risk insurance bill and the veteran bureau bill to divide the soldier vote. They ran a war veteran to capture all the soldier votes possible. They ran a popular state senator who was neither fish nor flesh nor fowl to take away from Brookhart all the slow thinking voters and lastly Clifford Thorne, an attorney who has represented shippers and farm organizations on rail rate cases for years, announced his candidacy and was counted on to split the farm and labor vote with Brookhart.

ACCORDING TO THE RETURNS from the primary election, Brookhart the radical progressive, ran like a deer pursued by hounds and the latest from Des Moines indicates that having received more than 35 per cent of the vote cast, he has won the republican senatorial nomination and will take his seat in the senate next winter as the successor of William Squire Kenyon.

Iowa farmers for the most part, are not easily lured away from their ancient moorings. They have been steadfast in their faith for years and years. They call themselves progressive but not radical. If Smith Brookhart has captured a republican senatorial nomination, then the republican reactionaries of the hawkeye state have been given the blackest of black eyes. He is more of a radical than Capper of Kansas, a man of great ability, a hard hitter in debate and as a member of the farm bloc in the senate he will be a thorn in the side of the Lodges of New England, the Falls of New Mexico and what is left of the old guard of the republican party.

RICH SECTION—

expedition, R. E. Shepherd, train captain, Hubert Harrison, general manager of the Chamber of Commerce, car captain and each individual member of the party expressed to the Record News representative tonight their gratification over the first day's results.

"I've been on many similar trips," Shepherd said, "but never have I seen such enthusiasm."

"It's 100 per cent to the man. Never has Wichita Falls sent out so large a number of its representative citizens into such a wealthy territory. There is more organization on this excursion than ever before and consequently a better showing was made today at all the towns."

Other members of the trip expressed themselves similarly, but possibly with more fervor and enthusiasm.

It is really difficult to picture the potential value of this glad handing and commercial journey through such a wonderful territory with one handicapped by a miniature typewriter squeezed between one's knees and rocking back and forth in one's seat, to be interrupted by a score of enthusiastic passers in the car aisle with "whatever you are telling them, Buddy?"

Many who have lived in Fort Worth and Dallas, declared with vigor that never had either of these towns sent out such a bunch of genuine town boosters and agreeable fellows.

As to the value of the territory, 140 men who are on the trip will report on their return that this section is just as rich as the area immediately adjacent to Wichita Falls. The wheat crop in Oklahoma will yield 25 bushels to the acre, some of the towns which first greeted the visitors are supported by oil, but there is always wheat, and the wheat crop is in good condition throughout this section.

Frederick is favored also with cotton. A banker said that Frederick looked to cotton quite as much as it did to wheat. Business is reported to be good everywhere.

Arriving at Altus at 6 o'clock the Wichitans were greeted by one of the most representative crowds of the day comparing favorably with that at Frederick. The people here were just as hospitable.

One of the striking features of the Frederick visit was the auto tour of the city given the visitors by the people. Pretty girls drove many of the cars. Tom Roberts greeted the tradetrippers in a stump speech at Altus and W. J. Townsend replied in behalf of the Wichitans, declaring that there is no jealousy between the neighbor, Wichita Falls and Altus.

Burkburnett turned out in mass on the first stop of the excursionists, with the mayor speaking and Wichitans replying.

IS PAT FUNNY

THEY had a debate in the senate the other day. It was a real debate. A good debate. Those who took part in it were in earnest. Sometimes debating senators merely go through the motions, like blind oxen on a treadmill, but this time their hearts and souls were in it. The topic for the moment was:

Resolved, That Senator Pat Harrison isn't funny.

Pat of Mississippi—he calls himself Pat in his biography—is tall, has been angular, but is improving, likes to lean over his desk and rest on a knuckle, uses a long, thin, high-arched nose, and is a thorn in the republican side. Down in Mississippi he probably wears a Prince Albert and a soft black hat. He combines the florid old school southern oratory with a snappy left. Thus he referred to:

"The classic countenance of my good friend from Iowa" (Mr. Cummins) and "the bewitching and smiling face of my friend from North Dakota" (Mr. McCumber)—

And proceeded to bring the flush of anger to both the classic and the bewitching. Mr. McCumber has been having too much trouble with his tariff bill to be suave or humorous. One might almost call him irritable at times. So he squelched P. Harrison by calling him "the funny man of the senate." But it was a tactical error. If there is one thing that Mr. McCumber wants to do it is to shove the tariff bill through at high speed, and if there is one thing he does not want to do it is to lose time.

But Senator Spencer of Missouri, who was calcified by P. Harrison not long ago over the Nat Goldstein matter, rose to allege that Mr. Harrison is not funny. He spoke with an almost tearful conviction. Whereupon Mr. Williams of Mississippi defended his colleague. He, too, said that Pat Harrison is not funny. Neither is McCumber, he continued. He said that no human being could find McCumber even amusing. As for Senator Spencer—"who comes to the front with the appearance of a Presbyterian elder, so serious is his countenance"—Mr. Williams thought he was the very opposite of funny. And so on, for three pages of the Record. While Mr. McCumber looked bitterly at his watch.

One may doubt if Pat enjoyed it. One suspects that Mr. Harrison is at bottom diffident and shy. He gets a better in genial malice. He gets a better chuckle out of his jokes than his auditors. He delights to see a harpooned antagonist splashing in a welter of oratorical foam. But he does not like to have his funniness exposed and dissected. It took the humor out of his humor. He drew his long self under the desk and on the visible portion wore a fixed and wooden smile.

Nevertheless, he is funny, and it was a good debate. But it might have been made so much better if any senator had only thought to use that grand old line:

"This is the greatest deliberative body in the world."

GANFIELD VS. LAFOLLETTE

WISCONSIN republicans who call themselves conservatives have nominated Dr. W. A. Ganfield, president of Carroll college, to oppose Senator Robert M. LaFollette for re-election in the September primary. These conservative republicans denounced LaFollette as a socialist and read him out of the republican party. He is the stormy petrel of Wisconsin politics and has never met with defeat.

They may get him sometime, but they cannot get him with a college president. LaFollette is of and for the farm bloc and he has ever supported farm bloc measures. Wisconsin is a republican state and a large majority of its voters are successful farmers. Farmers elected LaFollette governor three times running and they have elected him senator three times. He always keeps close to the people and the people keep close to LaFollette.

Non-partisians are numerous in Wisconsin. President Harding has placed the federal patronage in the hands of enemies of LaFollette and Senator Lenroot is hostile to the senior senator. There may be a LaFollette funeral this year but the surface signs do not indicate that the undertaker will be called in to put away the man known to his political friends as "Fighting Bob."

The more one listens to the conversation in the smoker, the more he questions the wisdom of free speech.

DR. CRANE'S EDITORIAL

LLOYD GEORGE

PERHAPS the most encouraging, the most heartening figure in the world at present is David Lloyd George.

To read his speech of May 25 in the house of commons is to feel a fresh reassurance that somebody who knows his business is standing at the helm of civilization.

The most interesting phenomenon in the world is that of mastery, the most curious question is why some one man has in himself that strange combination of the two abilities: one, to know how to do things, and the other, to make people believe he knows how to do things.

Every young man who aspires to mastery ought to paste Lloyd George's speech in his scrap-book and read, mark, learn and inwardly digest it.

First of all, there is poise in it. The man stands square on his feet. Amidst all the confusion, terror and darkness, here is one who knows what he is about.

There is no fear nor hesitancy in him.

There is the coolness of clear vision. He sees the great thing that Genoa has accomplished, that which overshadows all other things: to wit, that there assembled the largest gathering of nations ever met in the history of the world—thirty-four nations coming together to sit down and talk—to deal with arguments and reasons and not with ultimatums; nations which had been in deadly conflict with each other.

He knows that the way of peace and construction is a long, hard way, that the task of building up calls for more guts than the business of smashing down.

The destroyers in the world have been glorious; the upbuilders have worked under tremendous disadvantage; they have been barked at by all the watch-dogs of tradition, torn by all the wolves of party, and slandered brilliancy by every sensation monger.

But we get some sense of the grim progress of this master of practicalities when we read his words, "We have been working on the battlefield and on the morrow we can advance. Already we have captured positions from which a further advance may be made. If we can go further and make an arrangement by goodwill and co-operation between the nations of Europe, the psychological effect will be incalculable and will bring the breath of spring to the continent which has been suffering from a long and cold winter."

I have little patience with the critics of Lloyd George. To say that he has his faults is to express an obvious platitude. The outstanding fact is that he is doing, and always has done, the best he can and that this is better than any other living man can do.

TEXAS LEADS IN ROADS

TEXAS is leading all the states of the south and west in its mileage of good roads under construction or contemplated. Texans who are for modern highways are reminded that the federal congress has made it possible for fifty million dollars to be available during the next fiscal year for continuing federal and state co-operation in road development. Texas should put over a state bond issue of fifty million dollars for road building purposes.

This would call for federal aid of fifty million dollars as the federal government matches dollar for dollar the appropriation made by any one of the forty-eight states. These bonds would find a ready market. They would cover a period of twenty-five to forty years. Take Clay county for instance. There are hundreds of the citizens of Clay county who are champions of modern highways. They vote for bonds whenever they are called upon to vote. Clay has six hundred thousand acres within its border lines. Sixteen men own one-third of Clay county or two hundred thousand acres.

Twelve of the sixteen always fight bond issues for road building purposes. A state bond issue would get them and thousands like them the state over who are ever opposed to voting bonds for the building of modern highways, or modern schoolhouses or anything else that is modern. Governor Neff should submit the proposition to the legislature in the winter of 1923. This legislature will be elected this fall and now is the time for the people to pick candidates for the lower and upper house who are modern and who believe in moving forward. Texas should lead all the states of the union in development of natural resources and in road building. Take the convicts from the prison farms and utilize their labor. Make road builders of the 4,000 wards of society, make them self sustaining and in a few short years the state highways would rival those of Colorado and California.

Owners of motor vehicles in Maryland on June 1, began payment of tax of one cent per gallon on gasoline used in motor vehicles. The revenue will be used to reduce a long standing deficit of one million dollars in the maintenance fund of the state road commission. Next year another tax of two cents a gallon becomes effective. They get the money in Maryland.

EXTRA! PASSENGERS REBEL AT IMPROVED SUBWAY SERVICE!

If you plan a visit to New York don't let the fear of subway congestion deter you. The transit commission, after a long investigation, has forced the subway companies to put on so many extra trains that—believe it or not—the visiting patrons are complaining they find the subway cars too lonely.

o o o

Travellers are being greatly annoyed by finding themselves with an entire car to themselves and no fellow-passengers to keep them company.

o o o

Last night during the evening rush hour two girls got out of a local and went up to the street and boarded a surface car. They said the subway was too deserted and quiet.

o o o

Dardanella Dummer, daughter of our old friend Representative Dummer, reported this morning that the trip to work during the rush hour gave her the loneliest feeling she ever had.

"There wasn't a solitary soul in the car I got into," she said, "and I felt awfully frightened. I hate being all alone in a subway train."

o o o

"I hoped somebody might get aboard at Pennsylvania Station," she continued, "but nobody did. Oh, it was just like being in a deserted house, and I got awfully creepy. Finally, at Fourteenth street, another girl came in from the car ahead. She'd been the only person in that car so we could keep each other company."

o o o

"I think it's terrible to make people travel in the subway in solitude like that," declared Dardanella with much peevishness. "The transit commission should do something about it."

o o o

Which is how a great many subway travellers feel about it. When they travel in a Bronx express they like to know somebody else is around.

o o o

If the subway service keeps on improving this way it may be a good idea for the company to instruct the guards to step inside the trains to keep passengers company.

o o o

Or employ subway social secretaries to go through the trains and, whenever they find a passenger alone in a car introduce him to somebody in the next car and arrange a game of parcheesi or checkers. Sumpin's gotta be done.

o o o

The subway guards are very indignant over the improved service. They miss the old-time scrimmages and accidents.

o o o

"It's killed this job," declared the chief guard at Times Square last evening just after the 5:30 rush. "Nobody's been rushed here in twenty-four hours! I ain't hadda yank a single guy offa car all day for trying to squeeze in after the doors had started to close! Not a lady has fainted in a jam today, and there hasn't been a single case in twelve hours of a fat man punching a dyspeptic-looking old gent for stepping on his corns. It's turrible!"

o o o

"I'm gunter quit," he concluded. "I don't miss the things I've mentioned so much, but what takes the joy out of life for me is that I ain't had a chance to yell 'Let 'em off, please!' once today."

PAYING UP

When I have paid my monthly bills, I feel some pleasant, grateful thrills. emotions safe and sane; glad smiles among my whiskers play, and to myself I softly say, "I have not lived in vain!" Downtown I journey in my coach; I see the tailor, Jinks, approach, and do not fear his glance; for I have paid him every groat I owed him for my picnic coat and my highwater pance. I meet the tinsmith face to face; he bows to me with princely grace, he's glad to get my trade; he overhauled my handsome bus, and didn't have fret and cuss o'er payment long delayed. And all the merchant princes smile as I proceed, in pompous style, along Commercial street; I've paid the grocer for his cheese, the farmer for his humble bees, the butcher for his meat. Oh, friends, it is a goodly thing to walk, as proudly as a king, although you have no crown, to prance along with stately tread, and know you do not owe a red to any skate in town. So when it's time for paying bills a peace serene my bosom fills, my spirit sings and hums; and I can't understand the gent who will not pony up a cent until a bailiff comes.

TEXAS UNDERTAKERS CONVENE FT. WORTH

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, June 6.—Efforts of the Texas association in helping defeat the adoption of an objectionable constitution and by-laws at the national convention at San Antonio last year were praised by R. B. Leatherwood, president of the Texas Funeral Directors and Embalmers association at this afternoon's session of their convention here. By reason of this work and by reason of the high standard of embalming required, the Texas association stands high among the various state organizations of embalmers, he declared.

The Mucker

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Beyond she saw the forest, not a hundred yards away; but when she attempted to crawl through the opening she discovered to her chagrin that it was too small to permit the passage of her body. And then there came a knocking on the door she had just quitted, and a woman's voice calling her lord and master to his morning meal.

Barbara ran quickly across the chamber to the door, the long sword raised above her head in both hands. Again the woman knocked, this time much louder, and raised her voice as she called again upon Oda Yorimoto to come out.

The girl within was panic-stricken. What should she do? With but a little respite she might enlarge the window sufficiently to permit her to escape into the forest, but the woman at the door evidently would not be denied. Suddenly an inspiration came to her. It was a forlorn hope, but well worth putting to the test.

"Hush!" she hissed through the closed door. "Oda Yorimoto sleeps. It is his wish that he be not disturbed."

For a moment there was silence beyond the door, and then the woman grunted, and Barbara heard her turn back, muttering to herself. The girl breathed a deep sigh of relief—she had received a brief reprieve from death.

Again she turned to the window, where, with the short sword, she commenced her labor of enlarging it to permit the passage of her body. The work was necessarily slow because of the fact that it must proceed with utter noiselessness.

For an hour she worked, and then again came an interruption at the door. This time it was a man.

"Oda Yorimoto still sleeps," whispered the girl. "Go away and do not disturb him. He will be very angry if you awaken him."

But the man would not be put off so easily as had the woman. He still insisted.

"The daimio has ordered that there shall be a great hunt today for the heads of the sei-yo-jin who have landed upon Yoka," persisted the man. "He will be angry indeed if we do not call him in time to accomplish the task today. Let me speak with him, woman. I do not believe that Oda Yorimoto still sleeps. Why should I believe one of the sei-yo-jin? It may be that you have bewitched the daimio," and with that he pushed against the door.

The corpse gave a little, and the man glued his eyes to the aperture. Barbara held the sword behind her, and with her shoulder against the door attempted to reclose it.

"Go away!" she cried. "I shall be killed if you awaken Oda Yorimoto, and, if you enter, you, too, shall be killed."

The man stepped back from the door, and Barbara could hear him in low converse with some of the women of the household. A moment later he returned, and without a word of warning threw his whole weight against the portal. The corpse slipped back enough to permit the entrance of the man's body, and as he stumbled into the room the long sword of the Lord of Yoka fell full and keen across the back of his brown neck.

Without a sound he lunged to the floor, dead; but the women without had caught a fleeting glimpse of what had taken place within the little chamber, even before Barbara Harding could slam to the door again, and with shrieks of rage and fright they rushed into the main street of the village shouting at the tops of their voices that Oda Yorimoto and Hawa Nisho had been slain by the woman of the sei-yo-jin.

Instantly the village swarmed with samurai, women, children and dogs. They rushed toward the hut of Oda Yorimoto, filling the outer chamber where they jabbered excitedly for several minutes, the warriors attempting to obtain a coherent story from the moaning women of he daimio's household.

Barbara Harding crouched close to the door, listening. She knew that the crucial moment was at hand; that there were at best but a few moments for her to live. A silent prayer rose from her parted lips. She placed the sharp point of Oda Yorimoto's short sword against her breast, and waited—waited for the coming of the men from the room beyond, snatching a few brief seconds from eternity ere she drove the weapon into her heart.

Theriere plunged through the jungle at a run for several minutes before he caught sight of the mucker.

"Are you still on the trail?" he called to the man before him.

"Sure," replied Byrne. "It's dead easy. They must o' been at least a dozen of 'em. Even a mut like me couldn't miss it."

"We want to go carefully, Byrne," cautioned Theriere. "I've had experience with these fellows before, and I can tell you that you never know when one of 'em is near you till you feel a spear in your back, unless you're almighty watchful. We've got to make all the haste we can, of course, but it won't help Miss Harding any if we rush into an ambush and get our heads lopped off."

Byrne saw the wisdom of his companion's advice and tried to profit by it; but something which seemed to dominate him today carried him ahead at reckless, breakneck speed—the fight of an eagle would have been all too slow to meet the requirements of his unaccountable haste.

Once he found himself wondering why he was risking his life to avenge or rescue this girl whom he hated so. He tried to think that it was for the ransom—yes, that was it, the ransom. If he found her alive, and rescued her he should claim the lion's share of the booty.

Theriere too wondered why Byrne, of all the other men upon the Half-moon the last that he should have expected to risk a thing for the sake of Miss Harding, should be the foremost in pursuit of her captors.

"I wonder how far behind Sanders and Wison are," he remarked to Byrne after they had been on the trail for the better part of an hour. "Hadn't we better wait for them to catch up with us? Four can do a whole lot more than two."

"Not wen Billy Byrne's one of de two," replied the mucker, and continued doggedly along the trail.

Another half-hour brought them suddenly in sight of a native village, and Billy Byrne was for dashing straight into the center of it and "cleaning it up," as he put it, but Theriere put his foot down firmly on that proposition, and finally Byrne saw that the other was right.

"The trail leads straight toward that place," said Theriere, "so I suppose here is where they brought her, but which of the huts she's in now we ought to try to determine before we make any attempt to rescue her. Well, by George! Now what do you think of that?"

"Think o' wot?" asked the mucker. "Wot's eatin' yeh?"

"See those three men down there in the village, Byrne?" asked the Frenchman. "They're no more all original headhunters than I am—they're Japs, man. There must be something wrong with our trailing, for it's as certain as fate itself that Japs are not head-hunters."

"There ain't been nothin' fony about our trailin', bo," insisted Byrne, "an' whether Japs are bean collectors or not here's where de ginks dat copped de doll hiked fer, an' if dey ain't dere now it's because dey went t'rough an' out de odder side, see."

"Hush, Byrne," whispered Theriere. "Drop down behind this bush. Someone is coming along this other trail to the right of us," and as he spoke he dragged the mucker down beside him.

For a moment they crouched, breathless and expectant, and then the slim figure of an almost nude boy emerged from the foliage close beside and entered the trail toward the village. Upon his head he bore a bundle of firewood.

When he was directly opposite the watchers Theriere sprang suddenly upon him, clapping a silencing hand over the boy's mouth. In Japanese he whispered a command for silence.

"We shall not harm you if you keep still," he said, "and answer our questions truthfully. What village is that?"

"It is the chief city of Oda Yorimoto, Lord of Yoka," replied the youth. 'I am Oda Iseka, his son."

"And the large hut in the center of the village street is the palace of Oda Yorimoto?" guessed Theriere shrewdly.

"It is."

The Frenchman was not unversed in the ways of orientals, and he guessed also that if the white girl were still alive in the village she would be in no other hut than that of the most powerful chief; but he wished to verify his deductions if possible. He knew that a direct question as to the whereabouts of the girl would call forth either a clever oriental evasion or an equally clever oriental lie.

"Does Oda Yorimoto intend slaying the white woman that was brought to his house last night?" asked Theriere.

"How should the son know the intentions of his father?" replied the boy.

"Is she still alive?" continued Theriere.

"How should I know, who was asleep when she was brought, and only heard the womenfolk this morning whispering that Oda Yorimoto had brought home a new woman the night before."

"Could you not see her with your own eyes?" asked Theriere.

"My eyes cannot pass through the door of the little room behind, in which they still were when I left to gather firewood in a half hour since," retorted the youth.

"Wot's de Chink sayin'?" asked Billy Byrne, impatient of the conversation, no word of which was intelligible to him.

"He says, in substance," replied Theriere, with a grin, "that Miss Harding is still alive, and in the back room of the largest hut in the center of the village street; but," and his face clouded, "Oda Yorimoto, the chief of the tribe, is with her."

The mucker sprang to his feet with an oath, and would have bolted for the village had not Theriere laid a detaining hand upon his shoulder.

"It is too late, my friend," he said sadly, "to make haste now. We may, if we are cautious, be able to save her life and later, possibly, avenge her wrong. Let us act coolly, and after some manner of plan, so that we may work together, and not throw our lives away uselessly. The chance is that neither of us will come out of that village, but we must minimize that chance to the utmost if we are to serve Miss Harding."

"Well, wot's de word?" asked the mucker, for he saw that Theriere was right.

"The jungle approaches the village most closely on the opposite side—the side in rear of the chief's hut," pointed out Theriere. "We must circle about until we can reach that point undetected, then we may formulate further plans from what our observations there develop."

"An' dis?" Byrne shoved a thumb at Oda Iseka.

"We'll take him with us—it wouldn't be safe to let him go now."

"Why not croak him?" suggested Byrne.

"Not unless we have to," replied Theriere; "he's just a boy—we'll doubtless have all the killing we want among the men before we get out of this."

"I never did have no use for Chinks," said the mucker, as though in extenuation of his suggestion that they murder the youth. For some unaccountable reason he had felt a sudden compunction because of his thoughtless remark. What in the world was coming over him, he wondered. He'd be wearing white pants and playing lawn tennis presently if he continued to grow much softer and more unmanly.

So the three set out through the jungle following a trail which led around to the north of the village. Theriere walked ahead with the boy's arm in his grasp, Byrne followed closely behind. They reached their destination in the rear of Oda Yorimoto's "palace" without interruption or detection. Here they reconnoitered through the thick foliage.

"Dere's a little winder in de back of de house," said Byrne. "Dat must be where dem guys cooped up de litt broiler."

"Yes," said Theriere, "it would be in the back room which the boy described. First let's tie and gag this young heathen, and then we can proceed to business without fear of alarm from him," and the Frenchman stripped a long, grass rope from about the waist of his prisoner, with which he was securely trussed up, a piece of his loin cloth being forced into his mouth as a gag, and secured there by another strip, torn from the same garment, which was passed around the back of the boy's head.

"Rather uncomfortable, I imagine," commented Theriere; "but not particularly painful or dangerous—and now to business!"

Officers Are Elected In Final Session of Mission Workers Here

The final business meeting of the year was held by the C. W. B. M. of the First Christian church Monday afternoon and officers for the coming year elected as follows: Mrs. W. R. Ferguson, president; Mrs. F. B. Mashburn, vice president, and superintendent of junior work; Mrs. A. D. Patillo, secretary; Mrs. R. E. Shepherd, truesurer, and Mrs. A. B. Eichelberger, press reporter.

Mrs. T. W. Casky, the retiring president was tendered a vote of thanks for her zealous work the past year with the Mission, after which Mrs. Ferguson outlined, in a brief talk some of her plans for the coming year. Splendid reports were given by chairmen of standing committees.

In a program given in charge of Mrs. G. D. Rigsby's division, Mrs. J. Lem Keevil led the devotionals and interesting talks were given by Mrs. W. P. Danforth on "The Call of Heroism," Mrs. King Davis on "Miss Kelly's Work," Mrs. R. L. Miller on "Tarrying to the Utmost" and a closing talk by Mrs. C. Isle. Mrs. Lee Clark gave a solo accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. E. Strange.

In the talks, the condition of the people in Latin America was brought out and much information given concerning the mission work being done in that part of the world. The society decided that it would not be satisfied with anything less than the best they could do in behalf of these people.

After the program, refreshments were served with for-get-me-nots as plate favors. The table arranged for the occasion in the basement, was attractively decorated in nasturtium and the newly elected officers occupied honor seats around the table and in the center of the room, with the out going officers, and Mesdames R. L. Hamlin, Beulah Boggess and Miss Dora Coons. Mrs. Hamlin gave a sincere tribute to the Misses Coons who are leaving soon for Kentucky for their work done while the society, and Mrs. Casky presented both with gifts.

The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Rigsby's division including: Mesdames J. Lem Keevil, Dan Oster, W. P. Danforth, King Davis, Campbell, R. L. Miller, C. H. Verschoyle, S. M. Griswold, C. Isle, W. L. Younger, W. L. Smith, Lee Clark, J. F. Leggett, Beulah Boggess and L. W. Woodruff.

FATE.

Today a child was born,
An atom with a soul;
A waif come early on a morn,
Stranger to earth, a child was born
And started toward its goal.

And he shall find his road,
Straight, or with tortuous wind;
And he shall bear his earthly load
Over the road, over the road,
Leaving his days behind.

Little Stories for Bedtime

WHO SAW MR. BLACKSNAKE CHANGE CLOTHTS?

From Mother Nature's point of view All things are useful, old or new.

Mr. Blacksnake had thought himself very smart and clever when he changed his old suit for a new one. He had been absolutely sure that no one had seen him. He had taken the very greatest pains, to be sure. In the first place, he had chosen a very lonely spot where the brush was thick. He had looked this way and that way to be sure that no one was about, and he had seen and heard no one. You see, he feels very helpless when he begins to change his clothes, does Mr. Blacksnake, and he is very nervous and irritable until he has gotten out of that old suit. He can not bear to have any one about, and so he takes the greatest pains to find a secret place.

But smart is he is there are others quite as smart. All the time Mr. Blacksnake was struggling out of his old suit a pair of bright eyes watched him, and a certain little person in a very smart looking suit of his own had all he could do to keep from chuckling aloud. But he didn't. No sir, he didn't. You see he had a very good reason for not letting Mr. Blacksnake know that he was anywhere about. He had a use for that old suit Mr. Blacksnake was getting rid of. So he kept out of sight up in a tree where he could look down and see all that was going on, and there he sat and chuckled to himself right down inside so that he couldn't be heard and watched Mr. Blacksnake struggle out of his old clothes.

He had the very hardest kind of work to keep still, for he is a very uneasy fellow, and likes to keep moving, but he wanted that old suit, and so, somehow, he managed to keep perfectly still. It seemed to him that Mr. Blacksnake never would get out of that old suit.

"I'd like to fly down there and help him," thought he. But he knew better than to try anything so foolish, as he knew that that would be the end of him, so he sighed and tried to be patient. It tickled him immensely to see how uncomfortable Mr. Blacksnake was and he wished that all of Mr. Blacksnake's enemies could see him. At last Mr. Blacksnake wriggled out of the old suit and very smart and handsome he looked in his new suit of shining black. He didn't waste any time once he was clear of his old suit, but started off at a great rate to see what mischief he could get into. The watcher in the tree-top waited just long enough to make sure that he really had gone and then down he flew to the old log beside which lay the old suit. His eyes glistened, for here was a prize indeed. Mr. Blacksnake might have no more use for his old suit, but he had. Yes, indeed, he had! He gave a clear whistle of joy as he seized the old suit. It was just what he needed and had been hoping to find to complete his nest.

Who was he? Why Cresty the Flycatcher, to be sure! And as he flew through the Green Forest to the tree in which was a hollow that only he and Mrs. Cresty knew of, his heart was light and he would have tried to whistle and sing but for the burden he carried. You see that old suit would catch in the branches as he flew and made him no end of trouble.

FASHIONS

Tub Silk Fashions This Frock for a Woman of Developed Figure.

Tub silk is used to fashion the very smart and graceful frock shown in the sketch. It is designed for a woman of developed figure. The panels, arranged to form an uneven hem line, and the trimming, which consists of narrow bands of the material cut so that the stripes run crosswise, are features of the frock.

These tub silks, in reality silk shirtings, make charming warm weather dresses, and they are so reasonably priced this year that a home dressmaker may have a silk frock at a cost very little greater than that of a gingham one. If a good quality is selected, the material launders well and easily, requiring, of course, no starch or other finish. It is always wise to choose a simple style design in planning one of these frocks, because if it is elaborately trimmed or cut on other than simple lines it will be difficult to launder, and many trips to the cleaners will make the dress a rather expensive investment in the long run.

The normal waist line is featured on the frock illustrated. Early fall style waist line, and a more clearly defined one than has been seen for several years. Just how the idea will "take" is as yet a matter of speculation, because women have so vigorously approved the straight-line frocks. The early fall dresses shown so far may be regarded as somewhat experimental, but the normal and defined waist line is the high note in the majority of those that have appeared.

Fear Waurika Victim Local Boy

Fear that the youth killed at Waurika Monday afternoon at 1:30, when his body was mangled by a freight train, is his son, was expressed by F. M. Medlin, 202 Lamar, Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Medlin told newspaper men Tuesday that the description of the boy carried in the Record News Tuesday morning tallies almost exactly with that of his son, who has been away from home for some time. Examinations of photographs sent Tuesday by the sheriff at Waurika to Police Chief J. W. McCormick, strengthened the father's fears.

The boy who lost his life when he fell between two cars of a moving freight train had told companions that he was enroute to Wichita Falls. He had been in Oklahoma, the companions told officers at Waurika.

The Waurika authorities informed Mr. Medlin Tuesday that the body would be buried there during the day.

MANY BUNDLES FOR ARMENIANS

Workers Want More Wednesday

Shipment of Wichita Falls' donation to the clothing collection for the Armenian sufferers will be deferred until Thursday or Friday, and bundles may be sent up to this time, to the Chamber of Commerce, according to announcement Tuesday evening. Inquiries as to whether bundles could be received after Tuesday, from those who had been unable to get their clothing collected, coupled with the fact that the car load that had been hoped for from Wichita Falls was far from being secured, is responsible for this extension of time. A reminder is given those who did not get their bundles to the churches, nor to the Chamber of Commerce to send them in today or tomorrow.

Co-operation from the city police Tuesday relieved the volunteer workers of Bundle Day of the work of carrying the bundles from the automobiles to the Chamber of Commerce office, which Tuesday afternoon resembled a second hand clothing store. An officer, stationed to assist in keeping the space clear in front of the Chamber of Commerce, became a volunteer worker, carrying the bundles from the automobiles, as they were driven up.

Tuesday afternoon the workers in charge, Mrs. Reece S. Allen, Mrs. A. D. Anderson and Mrs. Harry Gray alternating in assisting Mrs. B. F. Armstrong, here from state headquarters, reported a fair response, though the car load of clothing which had been hoped for was not yet in sight.

The quality of the contributions has been exceptionally high, it is stated. Many practically new garments were received. More shoes, however, are hoped for.

If the friends residing in the vicinity of the Factory Methodist church will send their bundles of clothing and offerings in money for the Armenian sufferers to the Factory Lumber company. The manager there will forward the packages to the downtown locality and receipt for any sums of money.

McKINNEY, Texas, June 6.—Albert Christman, T. L. Foster and C. J. Gee entered pleas of guilty to burglary here today in connection with the robbery of the Guaranty State bank at Weston, Februarry 23, and were sentenced to penitentiary terms of three, four and five years respectively. Three other persons held in connection with the robbery will be released, County Attorney Wolford said.

Gee, Foster and Christman previously had been convicted in both Fannin and Grayson counties and sentenced to prison terms for alleged robbery of the Ravenna bank and theft of automobiles.

SPECTACULAR CASE CLOSED IN McKINNEY.

DENISON, Texas, June 6.—One of the most spectacular criminal episodes in the history of Grayson county came to a close when Albert Christman, T. L. Foster and C. J. Gee entered pleas of guilty of burglary in McKinney today.

The three in company with a fourth man and two women, were arrested here February 25, just two days after the Weston Guaranty bank had been robbed. The sheriff and his deputies in search of a stolen automobile located the gang which had established headquarters in Denison and working from here had robbed several stores and two banks. Loot from the "jobs" was found buried in the yard. One of the men and one of the women turned state's evidence securing the conviction of the other members of the gang.

WILD REPORTS AFTER LITTLE INCIDENT ARE DECLARED AT TEAGUE

By Associated Press.

TEAGUE, Texas, June 6.—A meeting of citizens presided over by R. M. TARIFF CAUSES NEW SQUABBLE

Arizona Senator Flays Manufacturer

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—An attack on former Senator Henry F. Lippitt, of Rhode Island, a cotton goods manufacturer, for alleged activities in the interest of high tariff protection for his products and additional recessions by the finance committee majority from rates originally proposed, marked senate consideration today of the tariff bill.

There also was renewal of general debate, Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, replying to the address delivered yesterday by Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, in defense of the tariff measure. Senator Harrison charged that the republicans had determined on a policy of replying to attacks on the bill so that senate action might be delayed and the measure finally killed in conference between the house and senate after the November elections.

The attack on former Senator Lippitt was made by Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, who expressed doubt of the "propriety and the ethics" of a man who had once been a senator and thus had access to the senate chamber interviewing his former colleagues here with a view to increasing the tariff duties from which he would profit financially.

LAWTON PASTOR BEATEN AGAIN

Irwin Under Medical Care

By Associated Press.

LAWTON, Okla., June 6.—An attempt to force the Rev. Thomas J. Irwin, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, to sign a confession admitting responsibility for alleged incendiary fires at the church and "framing" his own recent abduction lay behind a reported assault upon the minister near here last night, according to the story Irwin is said to have told friends.

Irwin refused himself to all visitors today and would make no statement. The former pastor was in bed all day under the care of a physician. Dr. W. B. Mead, who attended Mr. Irwin, said the minister's back was covered with large welts and that he had a large bruise on the head.

A court inquiry which county attorney Riley announced today he would call to investigate last night's alleged assault upon Mr. Irwin was not convened tonight, but it was indicated that it would get under way tomorrow.

MODERNIZING BULL FIGHT

Mechanical equipment for bull fights fits well into the Mexican's notion of the fitness of things and the proper direction for development of efficiency, says The Nation's Business. After an animal has met defeat, it has been the custom to have a team of horses or mules drag him away. At Chihuahua recently, however, an American tractor was substituted.

All the traditions were smashed, but everyone was highly pleased because of the time which was saved before the next "inning" of the Mexican national sport could be staged.

ON HUGE DECREASE COLORADO COAL NOW

(By International News Service.)

DENVER, June 6.—A decrease of approximately 30 per cent in the production of coal in Colorado in 1921 over the previous year is shown in the annual report of James Dalrymple, state mine inspector, made public here this week. Production last year was 9,141,947, as compared with 12,514,600 tons in 1920. The decrease was attributed to "general depression, wage disputes and strikes."

The report shows that 58 fatalities occurred in the 249 mines operated in the state during the year, and 1,539 miners sustained injuries.

NO. 15 OF SERIES.

A green court surounded by roses of various shades, including brilliant reds, pinks and pure white, in which white lawn furniture is arranged furnishes an inviting spot for members of the G. L. Shapard household to spend the cool summer evenings, and for the small member of the house to give delightful parties. Tea is often served here in the afternoons, and the beautiful bower is the scene of much hospitality. The garden is arranged in the rear of the house and besides roses yellow California poppies and shrubbery add color to the attractiveness of the yard.

An effective background is the fence of white lattice completely covered with a trailing vine on which Mrs. Dorothy Perkins's roses have been in bloom for the past two weeks. This "beauty sopt" is one of the many on the popular residence street of Tilden.

A well kept lawn and shade trees surround the comfortable bungalow making the place one of the ideal homes of Wichita Falls.

PINE TREE'S REAL NAME

Pseudotsuga Taxifolia are words which are not in the vocabulary of most of us, and we should show great resentment if anyone suggested we had pseudotsuga taxifolia anywhere about us.

The federal trade commission, however, has just described a number of companies as manufacturing and shipping a product known as pseudotsuga taxifolia. Luckily, the commission adds a string of "aliases," including Oregon pine, yellow fir, and several others, and ends up with the description "hereinafter referred to in this complaint as lumber."

All this goes to show how very much more enlightening an "alias" may be than a baptismal name.—The Nation's Business.

AUSTIN MAN OUT FOR CONGRESSMAN

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, June 6.—E. W. Cole of Austin, has filed his application with the state democratic executive committee for a place on the ticket for the July primaries, for congressman-at-large. He declares that Texas, based on the 1920 census, is entitled to one more representative in congress, regardless of the fact that the new apportionment has not been made by congress, and "that such neglect of duty by congress should not and could not work to deprive Texas or any other state from having numerical representation in congress guaranteed under the constitution." So far the applicantion of Harry Warner, editor of the Paris News, as a candidate for governor, has not yet been received here by Secretary J. W. Hale of the democratic executive committee. A telegram and letter received from him by Secretary Hale asks that his name be enrolled a candidate. Yesterday afternoon Secretary Hale wired Mr. Warner, advising him to mail his formal application by midnight of June 5, the last date for applying for place on the ticket.

Exporters Torpedoed by Fincher as Jacobus Routed

BECK BEANED BY FAST ONE FROM JACOBUS

Rader and Miller In Duel For Honors At Plate

By "Spike" Cooper

Bill Fincher turned in his fourth win of the season over the Exporters, the Spudders got rid of Jacobus for the first time this season, and crept nearer the top by copping the opening game of the series, 6-3, all this and all at the same time.

'Twas a grand and glorious day for the homelings, yet almost disastrous. Fred Beck, slugging first sacker, was caught behind the ear with one of Jacobus' fast ones and went down for the count.

Players rushed to him as he lay at the plate, and two physicians hurried from the stands. Dr. Jones and Dr. Barker made a hasty examination and were of the opinion that other than a severe jolt, Fred has not suffered serious damage.

Then Joe Mathes, skipper of the Beaumont crew, again demonstrated his fine sportsmanship, and established himself as an exponent of clean baseball by allowing Kitchens to run for Beck, with the understanding that it was the close of the inning game of the series, 6-3, all this and all at the same time.

"Twas a grand and glorious day for the homelings, yet almost disastrous, Fred Beck, slugging first sacker, was caught behind the ear with one of Jacobus' fast ones and went down for the count.

Players rushed to him as he lay at the plate, and two physicians hurried from the stands. Dr. Jones and Dr. Barker made a hasty examination and were of the opinion that other than a severe jolt, Fred has not suffered serious damage.

Then Joe Mathes, skipper of the Beaumont crew, again demonstrated his fine sportsmanship, and established himself as an exponent of clean baseball by allowing Kitchens to run for Beck, with the understanding that it was the close of the inning that he would return to the game if he showed himself perfectly recovered. It would be perfectly natural for Beck, the latter finishing up with a nice stop of Adams' low throw. Again in the sixth, a grounder by Brennan hopped over Ruth's shoulder but White was right behind him and threw to Fincher who hustled over to the bag.

Rader worked in a nice game. He had the batters completely baffled in the pinches, only allowing seven scratched hits in nine innings, which consisted of four singles and the pentagon.

Bill Fincher demonstrated his ability over the Beaumonters again. Although he was in trouble on several occasions, he kept the hits well scattered until the ninth when Jack Stansbury drove a wild pitch into right for three counts, counting Manager Joe Rader who had singled in succession before him. Jack counted when Rader gave Brennan time to circle the victory by retiring the second batter of the inning at first which left the bags clear.

Rader Has Big Day

Don Rader had a magnificent day with his wonderful slow ball. Fincher's shoots into left and center in as many times at the plate. He was closely pursued by Jake Miller who also had a percentage of 1.000 for the day with three out of three.

It was a lean day for Jacobus. Just as predicted, he failed to halt the charge of the Spudders By the time he had finished the sixth round he had enough and turned the job over to "Bugs" Morris, a recent acquisition to the Exporters' staff.

Loyal Spudder fans filled the stands and more than 1,100 planked down their kopecks at the dual entrances provided for the day. And they were loyal, too. Fighting just as hard as the team, they have an eye on first place before the present series closes. With Jacobus out of the way, there is little to fear unless Mathes springs something from under his bushel.

Bill's Fast Play.

Fincher offered the fans something in fielding in the third. He cut off a fast one into Anderson, who promptly started it toward center via the box. Fincher had no chance to reach the ball with his hands, and gracefully, yet accurately, pawed down the drive with his left pedal and recovered in time to stop the runner at first.

In addition to pitching a wonderful game, Bill fielded the middle of the diamond in fine style all the while. He executed a double killing in the fourth, with the assistance of Adams and Beck, the latter finishing up with a nice stop of Adams' low throw. Again in the sixth, a grounder by Brennan hopped over Ruth's shoulder but White was right behind him and threw to Fincher who hustled over to the bag.

Rader worked in a nice game. He had the batters completely baffled in the pinches, only allowing seven scratched hits in nine innings, which consisted of four singles and the pentagon.

Jake Miller and Buddy Tanner shared largely in the stick honors each ringing the bell twice.

The Spudders started right off in first and hung up a brace of tallies. Adams drew a pass before Jacobs could locate the plate. Then Tanner singled and both moved up when Beecher sacrificed. Summa to center accounted for one and Miller's single to left, the other.

The second marker came in the fourth. Summa doubled against the center fence and came home when Bischoff took as many on one to the left wall.

Two More in Fifth

The count went up to five in the sixth. Bischoff singled to left, stole second and registered as Adams walloped a drive safely into center. Tanner fouled off five after the count was two against him, then fired a knock into center and Adams tramped his second time at home.

The last come in the seventh. Miller singled into right and scored off Ruth's single to left, after he had stolen second.

The Exporters dug up their horseshoes for their last chance. Mathes led off with a blow which fell safe in left and Rader walked, finishing his perfect average for the day, and both came in when Stansbury whaled a triple into the far corner of Summa's pasture. Anderson grounded to Ruth who permitted the runner to score from third as he tagged first and again put Fincher on the ground and Wetzel sent a long foul to Beecher for the last of it all.

Spuds Climbing

By virtue of the win, the Spudders moved up within one game of the top. Rain halted two other league games, Galveston and Shreveport finishing before the downpour there.

Slim Love will probably be sent against the Spudders today and Sain will likely dominate Ruth or Mokan. It is no little job to beat the hard hitting Exporters, but their nine is with the Spudders.

The Spuds scored in an errorless game, while the visitors' all of which paved the way for victory.

Fans saw a familiar face on the Beaumont team in Nick Carter, formerly of the Record News, who caught high spots on the Spud defeat for the Beaumont Journal. 'Twas a long way to travel to see the things in store for the Exporters, but since he is here he will just have to like it.

The second setback of the series is billed for Wednesday.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—President Harding's views on the subject of a constitutional amendment dealing with child labor legislation are expected to be submitted shortly to congress. That was indicated today by the president in a letter to Representative Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, who had taken up with him a proposal under which congress would have authority to regulate employment of women and persons under the age of 21. Mr. Harding said however, that he did not think he "should choose quite this form for the proposed amendment."

FOUR GAMES ON SCHEDULE

Twilight League Active Tonight

Twilight League Standing.

Methodist	4	3	.571
Baptists	3	4	.429
Shriners	3	5	.375
Mill & Elev.	2	5	.286
Christian	1	6	.143

When the sun sinks into the west today, it will find the eight members of the Twilight loop out on their diamonds fighting their best to add a few integers to their standing for the season. As was the case with the City Leaguers, this series may spill much dope about the teams, and the percentage column may be shattered.

The leading Pond Laundrymen are chalked for a go with the Christian church team. The Christians have some new players on their string that may spring another surprise on the leaders. Their first win was made last Wednesday against the Shriners with Wilson on the hill. "Snipe" Connally has been doing some fast pitching of late and if he displays his usual stuff, the Churchmen may be repulsed.

The Legionnaires are to play the Mill and Elevator bunch. The Legion have won their way out of a slump that they were in up to last week. If they win and Ponds nine lose, the Legion will be the possessors of the top rung. The Legion has trounced the Millers once this season.

The University club is tied with the Legion. Their game of today with the Baptist sluggers will tend to keep the two tied or break the deadlock. The Maskat Shriners will be in form after the Alzafar losses and if they play up to their old tune, the Methodists will have to fight harder than they have for the past three weeks, or may be harpooned by the Nobles.

The umpiring staff for the games today as announced by Manager Raley will be: Stanfield at the Pond game; MacClain at the Legion and Millers affair; Shay at the Varsity-Baptist contest; Shamberger at the Shrine-Methodist fracas.

The loan is to be issued in two slices, the first amounting to $30,000,000, to be available three weeks after ratification of the loan by the national assembly and the remainder as it is needed by the government within three years thereafter.

Chicago Mayor Criticizes Wilson

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Mayor William Hale Thompson was on the witness stand again today in his $500,000 libel suit against the Chicago Tribune, brought because of its criticism of his war attitude and during spirited cross-examination by Attorney Weymouth Kirkland of the Tribune, he criticised former President Wilson, opposed the draft and said he had not attempted to improve the morale of the soldiers in training by visiting the camps.

Defining sedition, the mayor said a seditious man was one who acted against the best interests of his country, and in reply to a query as to what he thought of a man who was "traitor at heart but not in deed," he said every man should be guided by his own conscience.

American Protest Cabled to Lenine

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The Episcopal church of the United States today cabled a protest to Premier Lenine of the Russian soviet government against the imprisonment of Patriarch Tikhon, head of the Russian church.

The message signed by Right Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, presiding bishop; Right Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, president of the National council, and Right Rev. William T. Manning, bishop of New York, read:

"Episcops l church of United States of America most vigorously protests against attack on whole Russian church in person of Patriarch Tikhon. The Christian conscience of America cannot tolerate such wrong."

Patriarch Tikhon, formerly head of the Russian church in the United States, was arrested on a charge of resisting requisitioning of church treasure, and shortly after his abdication as patriarch was announced.

RAIL UNION MEN CONFAB AT HOUSTON

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, June 6.—A. J. Lovell of Logansport, Ind., was elected legislative representative at Washington at the meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen today.

Six vice-presidents elected today are C. V. McLaughlin, Omaha; S. A. Boone, Boone, Iowa; C. J. Goff, Birmingham; O. D. Hopkins, Syracuse; H. H. Lynch, Winnipeg; O. W. Karn, San Francisco. All were re-elected except Lynch and Karn, Lynch being a new man from Canada and Karn being elevated from the board of directors.

TWO-WAY TAXES.

Refunds of taxes are mounting to pretty large figures, for the federal government. Five months ago it was estimated that refunds of amounts improperly collected both in import duties and internal taxes would aggregate $40,000,000 by June 30, 1922. The treasury now puts the probable figures at $98,000,000. Perhaps we shall some time attain a situation such that the amount of taxes will be determined before they are paid, and thus both make the government's revenue certain and avoid requiring taxpayers to herd cash money in excess of their proper taxes.—The Nation's Business.

HOUSE PASSES REPORT ON INDEPENDENT BILL

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The house today finally adopted the conference report on the independent offices appropriation bill with its contested provision for payment of salaries to officers of the shipping board. Rejected four times, it came back in slightly modified form and was adopted by a vote of 140 to 121. The bill now goes to the president.

The salary section over which the long fight was made provided that no officer of the board shall be paid more than $11,000 a year except six permitted to receive not to exceed $25,000 each and two not to exceed $20,000 annually.

COTTON.

Consumption of cotton around the world in the year ending with June, 1922, will probably come within a million bales of the record year, 1913-1914, according to the department of commerce. That would mean an increase of one-fourth over the consumption in the year ended with June, 1921. If the expectations of the department are fulfilled, the bogy of the excess production of cotton in recent years will be largely eliminated and something like the pre-war balance of production and consumption will be achieved.—The Nation's Business.

SOUTHERN RAIN BOOSTS COTTON

New York Market Shows Advance

NEW YORK, June 6. Reports of renewed rains in the southwest led to covering by recent sellers in the cotton market at the opening today. Liverpool was several points over than due but first prices here were firm at an advance of 9 to 13 points with active months selling 8 points above yesterday's close. Quotations at 20.26 for October and 20.13 after the call. Liverpool and New Orleans both sold here however, and the demand was not general and prices eased off five or six points from the best during the early trading. Reports that only a few strikers had returned to work in the New Hampshire mills where reopening operations probably tended to check business on the Texas boom news and the early market was moderately active. The wet weather reports of the first hour were accompanied by private crop complaints.

Trade advance on the less favorable weather news and apprehension of continued showers in the south were followed by reactions after scattering July liquidation in preparation for possible notices late in the month. There were renewed rumors that reports were to be made from the local stock but they were no more definite than recently and the relatively easy ruling of July prices realizing or liquidation in the mixed realizing or liquidation in the new crop deliveries late sold off to 20.22 and October to 20.15 later, or about three points net lower.

The market remained quiet but with a shade steadier during the middle of the afternoon on Texas rain reports strength of New Orleans cotton by near sellers and reports of a firm spot basis in the south. July sold around 20.10 and October 20.21 or 20.22 or about 13 to 15 points higher. The close was steady.

STOCK MARKET SALES DECLINE

Oils and Steels In Moderate Loss

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Divergent speculative operations as indicated by buying and selling orders in the same issues, created further confusion of prices in the stock market today. Dealings slackened visibly from recent active periods, sales barely exceeding one million shares.

Independent steels sustained additional losses in consequence of the federal trade commission in the Bethlehem-Lackawanna steel merger. Lackawanna fell four points and gross declines of 1 to 2 points were made by kindered shares.

United States steel, which has shown especial strength since Chairman Gary's recent appearance before the Lockwood committee, rose to within a fraction of its high record made yesterday, but closed at a nominal reaction.

Favorites of the oil, motor, equipment and other metal groups were under steady pressure, final prices in a majority of instances showing moderate losses. Among the exceptions were Phillips Petroleum and Cosden both finishing strong.

Investment rails repeated their languid movements of the past few weeks but minor or speculative transportations developed sudden activity and strength on heavy buying of Toledo, St. Louis and Western common and preferred, Peoria and Eastern, Lake Erie and Western common and preferred, Western Maryland, New England preferred, New York and Southern, Texas and Pacific, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and New Haven. Final prices in these varied issues showed net gains of 1 to 6 1-4 points.

Declaration of full dividends for the year on "Nickel Plate" second preferred evoked favorable criticism indicating that the road had already earned sufficient returns to warrant such action. Utilities rose on the strength of consolidated gas, Brooklyn Union Gas and People's gas and miscellaneous shares averaged better quotations under lead of Chemicals and New York dock common and preferred.

Better business conditions were reflected in the higher schedules posted for structural steel, textiles, refined copper and raw refined sugars, coupled with further gains in earnings reported by mail order and chain store companies.

The opening rate of four percent for call loans soon gave way to 3 1-2 percent, most of the day's money being placed at the lower quotation. Time funds remained firm however, offerings again being confined largely to short dates.

In foreign exchanges the British rate established a new high record at 4.51 for demand bills, though easing a large fraction before the market closed. Allied bills against showed little alteration and German marks were reactionary, but neutrals showed decided improvement.

LIBERTY BONDS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 6.—A new high price of 100.10 for the liberty 3 1-2s was among the few striking features of today's moderately active but irregular bond market, most other issues of that group showing trifling reactions at the close.

United Kingdoms of 1922 rose at the new high record for British exchange but most of the other European loans were lower. Cuban government 4 1-2s hardened but changes among other Latin-American offerings were slight.

Heavy buying of secondary railway shares was reflected in the bond list where Peoria and eastern incomes made substantial gains with underlying issues of other western and southwestern roads. Total sales, par value, aggregated $14,873,000.

The day's new offerings for which a market was easily found, embraced Crane and company $5,000,000 seven per cent bonds.

Prospective underwritings include a Jugo-Slovakian $25,000,000 loan on terms yet to be determined and a city of Montevideo six million seven per cent loan.

NEW ORLEANS, June 6.—It was a weather market in cotton today and the weather in the belt was regarded as highly unfavorable, especially in the western portions where, according to telegrams to local brokerage concerns, heavy rains fell overnight in sections that are badly in need of dry weather. In the first hour, prices advanced 12 to 16 points, July rising to 20.23.

COTTON MARKET OPENS STEADY

Eight to Twenty Point Sales Increase

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The cotton market was irregular today but there was considerable buying on the declines and after selling off to 20.14, October contracts rallied to 20.43. They closed at 20.28 with the general market closing steady at a net advance of 6 to 24 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 9 to 13 points on reports of renewed rains in the southwest. Active months sold about eight to twenty points net higher right after the call but Liverpool cables were disappointing while Liverpool and New Orleans sold some cotton here and the market soon eased off under a renewal of scattered local pressure. July, being relatively easy under liquidation presumably in preparation for possible notices toward the end of this month. The easing of the near position promoted scattered selling of late deliveries but there was a better demand from the trade as prices approached the 20 cent level for December and the market firmed up during the afternoon.

Texas Rains Reported.

The detailed weather reports showing considerable rainfall in Texas contributed to the advance which was also promoted by reports of a firmer spot basis in the south and renewed rumors that cotton was to be shipped out of the local stock for export. July sold up to 20.48 and December to 20.34. Reports that it was raining at eastern Texas points helped this late advance but the close was off from the best under realizing.

Private cables reported a quiet trade in Manchester owing partly to the holidays with a decline in Liverpool under liquidation on expectations of improving crop reports. July sold within six points of October at one time during the day but was ten points over at the close. Port receipts 10,681. United States port stocks 845,491. Exports today 81,877, making 5,350,878 so far this season.

CHICAGO WHEAT MARKET FIRM

Millers Waiting For New Crops

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Although the wheat market here showed firmness the greater part of the time today, prices gave way at the last owing largely to reports of British offers to resell wheat at 2 cents less than Chicago was asking. The close here was heavy, 1⅝ to 3c net lower with July and September both at $1.12 to $1.12⅛. Corn finished unchanged to ⅜c lower, oats ⅜c off to ¼c advance, and provisions up to 12 to 62c.

In connection with the downturns of values in the wheat market near the end of the day, talk of British reselling was emphasized by word that good rains had fallen in India and Australia, and by estimates that India would have an exportable surplus of 50,000,000 bushels, besides, domestic crops were being favored by good weather, and the hot wave over Canada was broken.

Furthermore, mills appeared to be taking as little old wheat as possible, and to be waiting for new.

An advancing tendency which the wheat market displayed up to the final hour of the session resulted to a large extent from the fact that a post-holiday decline in Liverpool quotations turned out to be smaller than was looked for, and was further discounted by an advance in sterling exchange. Another bullish factor was big shipments from Chicago, 800,000 bushels clearing yesterday, whereas arrivals here today were only a dozen car loads.

Corn and oats prices were dominated by the action of the wheat market. Higher quotations on hogs gave a lift to provisions.

REDISTRICTING SUIT GOES UP

Question Passed to Higher Courts

Judge P. A. Martin sustained a general remurrer in the 89th district court Tuesday morning in the suit testing the senatorial redistricting bill. The suit is styled J. D. Parnell vs. P. B. Cox, chairman of the local democratic executive committee.

Judge Martin said, in upholding the general demurrer that had been filed in the suit, that it is not the purpose of the lower courts to rule on questions which involve constitutional issues; that power is vested in the higher courts, he stated.

The west Texas chamber of commerce and the Wichita Falls chamber are both intersted in the litigation.

Watching Meet Of Texas Rate Bureau

Special meeting of the Texas tariff bureau will be held at Austin June 12, according to announcements made in local railroad circles Tuesday, for the purpose of disposing of general rate reductions ordered by the interstate commerce commission.

The special meeting of the tariff bureau has been called to follow immediately after the Louisiana and Texas tariff meetings which will be held at Dallas, the tariff heads convening at Austin at 9:30 o'clock the morning of the 12th.

Railroad officials stated Tuesday that Texas lines are now operating on rates based on 135 per cent, this basis having been established by an order of the interstate commerce commission of August 26, 1920, which increased the rail rates 35 per cent.

It is the order of the commerce commission that these rates be reduced 10 per cent of the present rate, which means that the railroads will cut rates down to a basis of 21.5 per cent increase over the rates in effect August 25, 1920.

The order of the interstate commerce commission, it was pointed out, does not affect Texas intrastate traffic, however, the Texas lines, it was said, have asked the Texas railroad commission for permission to reduce intrastate rates on the same basis ordered by the interstate commerce commission for interstate rates.

The railroad commission has set this latter question for hearing at Austin June 13.

Swiss Butler Sent From Country

NEW YORK, June 6.—August Probst, young Swiss butler, whose heart affairs with Pittsburgh society girls at the exclusive Rolling Rock Country club were alleged by his friends to have moved others to railroad him out of the country, was deported today on the Mauretania.

The government engaged an attendant to accompany Probst who attempted suicide by slashing his wrist at Ellis Island yesterday.

HOLDS DECREE GOOD IN TEXAS

Ruling Favors Wife In Oklahoma

Suit instituted Tuesday in the 89th district court by Dora Reeves vs. William Reeves, her former husband, for payment of a judgment of an Oklahoma court resulted in Judge P. A. Martin holding yesterday morning that the ruling of the Oklahoma court was valid and that the defendant must pay the plaintiff a total of $15,000 plus $250 per month alimony.

Mrs. Reeves sued her husband for divorce in the Oklahoma courts not long ago and was granted the decree, the court holding that Reeves should pay her damages to the amount of $15,000 and $250 a month alimony for the remainder of her life to support the woman and her 6-year old son.

In the hearing yesterday it was brought out that Reeves and his wife had lived together after they had been married in Eldorado, Okla., in 1904 until 1919 when Reeves came to Texas. His wife, testimony showed, traveled about over the country, going to California, after William Reeves had come to this state to work.

She testified that she had heard Reeves was living in Texas with another woman, and the testimony showed an investigation revealed that such was the case. A suit instituted by Mrs. Reeves on the ground of desertion and infidelity was shown to have followed, with the result of the ruling of the Oklahoma court.

The case tried before Judge Martin yesterday was brought by Mrs. Reeves on the ground that Reeves had failed to comply with the decree of the Oklahoma court. Reeves contended that his former wife had not lived in the state of Oklahoma for one year at the time her divorce had been granted her and that therefore, the divorce decree was invalid and he was not forced to comply with the ruling.

Judge Martin held that Mrs. Reeves was a continual resident of Oklahoma for more than a year.

Court Is Hearing Fritz Damage Suit

Suit for damages in the sum of $25,000 was begun in the 78th district court before Judge Ed Napier Tuesday afternoon. The suit is styled F. O. Fritz vs. the Wichita Falls Traction company.

The plaintiff alleges that at 5 o'clock, Nov. 25, 1921, a street car running at the rate of 30 miles an hour struck a Dodge sedan automobile in which the plaintiff and his daughter were riding, hurled the car 40 feet and permanently incapacitated Mr. Fritz.

The defendant company contends that the plaintiff is guilty of contributory negligence to the accident, that the driver of the vehicle, who was Mr. Fritz's daughter, didn't heed the approach of the street car, that if she had she could easily have turned to either the right or left and have avoided the accident, that the driver and plaintiff were talking and not noticing where they were driving, that the driver stepped on the gas and tried to beat the street car, and that the plaintiff should have taken heed of the street car's approach before he was on the side tracks.

HERE'S REMINDERS OF HOW BALL PARK LOOKED

Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock all that remained of Spudder Park was as shown in the above pictures. A smoldering cigarette, and a few minutes later transformed the big grand stand into a seething furnace with hosts from a thousand people fleeing for their lives.

The time was too short for more than a few of the numerous cars parked inside, and along the fence to be rescued to a place of safety, and 75 automobiles were destroyed.

Today, however, practically the only reminders of the costly fire are contained in the pictures, snapped by enterprising photographers while the fire was raging.

The above pictures, of the burning stand, and of some of the many ruined automobiles were taken by Arthur Nash.

The upper view shows a row of charred automobiles partially enshrouded in smoke from the smouldering ruins.

The center picture was taken barely 20 minutes after the fire was discovered. The view is looking into the sea of flames after the stand had collapsed, to the right is seen the back row of cars, with a portion of the crowd in the background, many of whom are owners of the destroyed autos.

The lower view shows how completely many of the cars were wrecked some of which stood more than 100 feet from the stand.

Ed Smith Asks For Writ Habeus Corpus

Petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case against Ed Smith has been filed in his behalf in the 30th district court. Hearing on the petition will be held before Judge P. A. Martin Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

The petition alleges that the evidence brought against Smith in his preliminary hearing before Judge R. V. Guinn is insufficient to warrant a death penalty.

Smith was remanded to prison without bail following the hearing on a charge of having assaulted a 14 year old girl. The girl and her brother were the principal witnesses against the defendant at the preliminary hearing.

Transporting Gas Hundreds of Miles

You burn natural gas that travels hundreds of miles to reach you. There are 875 miles of pipe line in the LONE STAR GAS COMPANY system, as shown in this map. Ever think what it is delivers this gas to your doors?

When wells are new, frequently the rock pressure is sufficient to force the gas to you, but when this pressure decreases, as it does, artificial aid must be brought to help in transporting this gas.

This is accomplished through the use of compressors. Twenty-nine gigantic machines, costing $475,181.05 for the machines and $748,655.06 installed, are in use now, and thirty more have been ordered for delivery this summer.

Increasing Pressure

These machines pick up the gas from the supply mains at low pressure, compress it until it has a pressure of 200 to 300 lbs. to the inch, then discharge it into the mains. This pressure carries it forward to your homes. The use of these machines is the only practical way to transport gas, and as the supply diminishes from the nearer wells, the necessity of going further and further calls for more compressors.

For Better Service

Of course, the operation of these great engines costs real money. For one thing, the gas is heated by the process, and must all be cooled before entering the mains. This requires an extensive cooling plant.

The sole purpose and the only use of these compressors is to transport the gas. They cannot make gas, nor can they increase its quantity or bulk.

Installation of thirty more compressors will enable this company to maintain evener pressure, and thereby afford better service.
