Beirut bomb kills four, injures 17

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A suicide bomber crashed his pickup truck into a monastery where top Christian leaders were meeting today. Police said four people died and 17 others were hurt, including former President Camille Chamoun and the head of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party.

Police said among those killed in the blast were the truck driver, one woman and two Lebanese army soldiers who chased the truck in a jeep in an attempt to stop it.

Five politicians and 12 other people also were wounded by the blast at 10:10 a.m. (3:10 a.m. EST), they said.

The bomb wrecked the southern wing of the St. George monastery in suburban Aukar, near the U.S. Embassy annex. The leadership of the Lebanese Front had was discussing a Syrian-brokered peace plan to end Lebanon's 10-year-old civil war.

Police said the truck, which they estimated contained more than 600 pounds of explosives, ran an army checkpoint about 200 yards from the monastery. The monastery has been the Lebanese Front headquarters since 1976.

The driver crashed into the southeast wall of the one-story stone monastery, police reported.

The 2½-foot thick wall shielded the politicians from the main force of the blast, and most of the wounds were caused by flying glass, police said.

An anonymous caller claiming to speak for a hitherto unknown group calling itself the Vanguard of Arab Christians told a Western news agency in Beirut by telephone: "We have staged this bombing and we shall carry out more sacrifices."

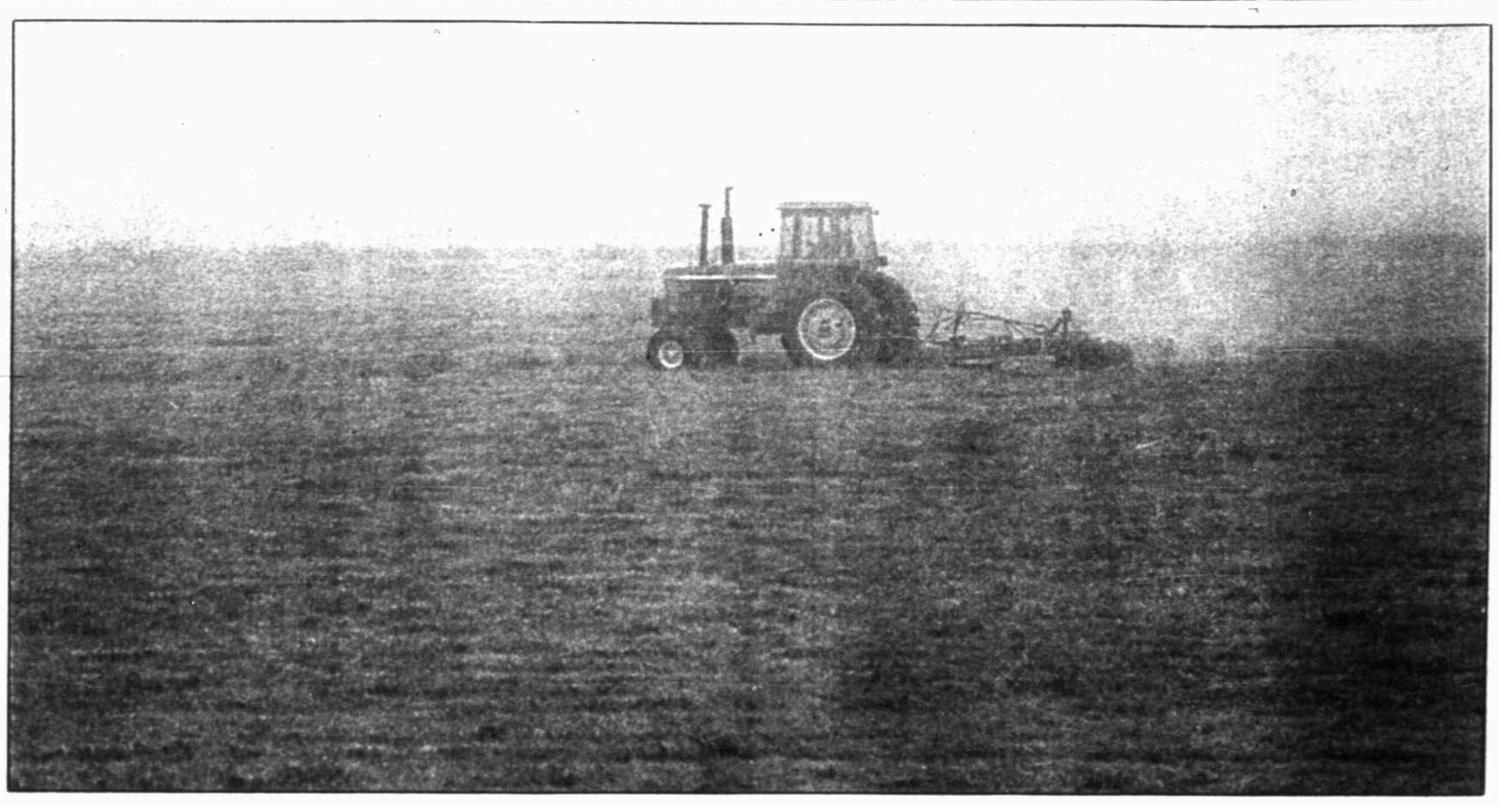

The caller, speaking in Arabic, accused Christian leaders meeting at the monastery of seeking to align Lebanon's Christian community with Israel. He said of the bombing: "This is the end of everyone who is in Israel's lap." He hung up after reading the statement.

In addition to 85-year-old Chamoun, his son Dany, 51, leader of the National Liberal Party, and Elie Karameh, leader of Gemayel's Phalange Party, were wounded, police said.

The Chamouns were taken to the nearby home of Joseph Abboud, a senior member of their party. A woman who answered the telephone at the Abbouds said she had seen both men and they were "well and conscious."

"President Chamoun has suffered several superficial cuts in his face. Dany's wounds are in his arms. They don't need hospitalization," she said, refusing to give her name.

Cold front shrouds Basin in dense fog

From Staff and Wire Reports

The National Weather Service issued a travelers advisory early this morning for the Permian Basin as dense fog covered much of West Texas dropping visibility to one-eighth of a mile at Midland-Odessa and about one-quarter of a mile at San Angelo.

Forecasters said the fog was triggered by a cold front that moved into the region during the past weekend and became trapped by warm, moist air from the Gulf Coast. The fog was expected to lift by midmorning, with skies becoming partly cloudy this afternoon.

Another cold front, moving across the Southwestern United States, is expected to reach the Permian Basin by Wednesday morning, bringing with it dry air and windy conditions, forecasters at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Tonight will be partly cloudy sith a 20 percent chance of thundershowers. The low will be near 50. Winds will be from the southwest at 10 to 15 mph.

Wednesday will be partly cloudy with the high in the mid 60s. Winds will shift to the west at 10 to 20 mph.

Law enforcement agencies reported no serious injuries following a few weather-related traffic accidents.

School children arrived to classes on schedule, according to representatives of the Midland and Greenwood Independent School Districts.

Midland Regional Air Terminal remained open this morning with commercial and private flights landing and taking off with little difficulty, a spokeswoman reported.

Liberian leader's radio report refutes overthrow

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — A former armed forces commander said in radio broadcasts today he had overthrown head of state Samuel K. Doe and seized control of the West African country. But Doe, on state-run radio LINA, said the coup had failed.

The report from the Liberian news agency said Doe spoke to local reporters this morning at the presidential palace and planned to make a national radio address shortly. Nor further details were immediately available.

The report was monitored in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, by the French news service Agence France-Presse.

The LINA account contradicted an earlier report by Radio Elwa, a privately owned religious station in Monrovia, the Liberian capital, in which Gen. Thomas Quiwonkpa claimed he seized control of the country.

"The patriotic forces have seized power. Our forces have completely surrounded the city. Samuel Doe is in hiding," Radio Elwa quoted Quiwonka as saying.

Quiwonkpa charged Doe with abusing his power and promised free and fair elections.

He imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew and ordered security forces to close the borders and the airport, which is located 35 miles outside of Monrovia.

He also ordered his supporters to arrest "all ministers, deputy ministers ... the former chief of staff of the armed forces of Liberia, Lt. Gen. Henry Dubar, all other officials of the deposed government of Samuel Doe and bring them to the executive mansion immediately."

The state radio reported that several top officials had been arrested, including Minister of Finance Alvin Jones, the minister of state for presidential affairs, J. Bernard Blamo, and the speaker of the National Assembly, Brig. Gen. Jeffred Gbatu.

Shooting broke out at about 5 a.m. (midnight EST) at the presidential mansion, where Doe was believed to have been sleeping, and continued for up to two hours. Soldiers loyal to Quiwonkpa, backed by tanks, surrounded the mansion.

There was no other immediate evidence of resistance in the capital, and no reports of casualties.

Doe, 35, seized power in 1980 in a bloody coup. He promised a return to civilian rule in January and held elections Oct. 15 in which he was elected to a six-year term as president.

Quiwonkpa reportedly fled to the United States after being charged in an alleged coup attempt in 1983.

Quiwonkpa said in the radio broadcasts that he and his supporters had taken the "ultimate gamble" to free Liberia.

"I call on the men and women of the armed forces, the police force, and the security agencies to join the force in the liberation of our people from fear (and) brutality," Quiwonkpa said.

He called on students, workers and all "patriotic citizens" to join with those organizing the coup "as we do battle against the forces of injustice and corruption."

Schools, stores and offices in Monrovia were closed today and most people were staying in their homes.

However, an AP reporter said dozens of civilians were dancing and shouting slogans in the streets, and that some soldiers also were roaming the streets, shooting in the air to celebrate.

A telex inquiry to the Liberian Information Ministry in Monrovia aboiut whether Doe was still in control elicited the response: "No. Thomas Quiwonkpa." The person on the other end of the line did not identify himself.

The reporter said Quiwonkpa's statement was being broadcast repeatedly on the official radio, which sent too weak a signal to be picked up outside the country. Radio Elwa was monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp. in London and The Associated Press in neighboring Sierra Leone.

Sales tax figures improving

From Staff Reports

With a gain of $200,000 each over 1984, Midland and Odessa saw improvements in their sales tax rebate checks mailed this month from the State Comptroller's Office.

Midland's check was written for $1,056,106.14 while Odessa's was for $967,175.78. For November 1984, Midland received $854,777.54; Odessa, $763,925.18.

The sales tax is collected by the State Comptroller's Office and the cities' 1 percent share is rebated later. The November checks reflect sales made in September.

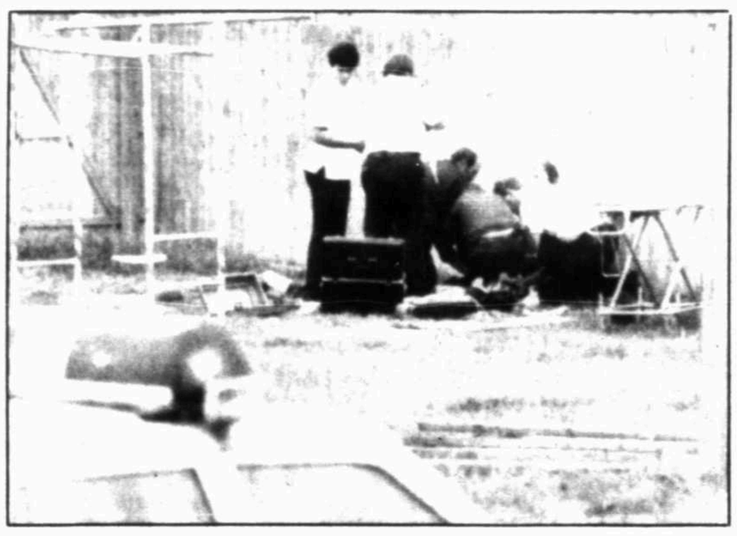

"It's very close to what I had anticipated," said Midland Finance Director Troy Gifford. "I figured it would be around $1 million.

"It's a better realization of having picked up additional items in the tax base and a little growth, too."

In October 1984 more items were added to the list of goods that could be taxed.

For the calendar year to date, Midland has received $8,383,269.69, which is 14 percent above last year's figure to date of $7,320,368.04. Odessa also has seen an increase in its sales tax rebates with a total of $7,238,241.71, a 6.38 percent hike over last year's $6,803,843.33.

Paramedics and emergency personnel work to revive an Amarillo police officer who was shot while pursuing three suspcets. He later died at an emergency center.

Suspects taken in officer's death

AMARILLO (AP) — The fatal shooting of an Amarillo police officer quickly turned into a large-scale manhunt for three suspects who were captured within four hours, authorities said.

Sgt. James Mitchell Jr., 43, was shot several times in the chest and once in the head Monday afternoon while approaching a car that sped off an expressway into the back yard of a home 100 yards away, authorities said.

Mitchell had just gotten off duty at 3 p.m. and was still in uniform when he was shot, said police spokeswoman Helen Cruz.

Within 45 minutes, two helicopters were in the air and hundreds of area off-duty officers were activated for the manhunt, said Ralph Fletcher, a spokesman for the police department.

Teams of police and sheriff's deputies from Potter and Randall counties made a grid search of the neighborhood.

Police arrested two men on top of an elementary school about six blocks from the shooting and a man in Clovis, N.M., where the FBI apprehended him as he tried to board a freight train after he abducted a woman, officials said.

The train was headed west to Belen, N.M., south of Albuquerque, said Curry County Jail Supervisor Jerry Harris.

The man captured in New Mexico had kidnapped an elderly Amarillo woman several blocks from the home and forced her to drive him to Clovis, said Amarillo Police Lt. Keith Ferguson.

"His intention was to catch a train out of Clovis," Ferguson said.

The man let the woman go when he arrived in Clovis, Harris said.

Police confiscated a handgun when the first two suspects were arrested and another weapon from the man arrested in Clovis.

Police ended a search for evidence at about 10 p.m. Monday, but were to resume a search for more evidence today.

The car involved in the accident bore Florida license plates and had been speeding on Canyon Drive when it left the highway and ran through a back yard fence of a south Amarillo home, said Ferguson. Ferguson described south Amarillo as a "nice" neighborhood.

"When the officer approached the three suspects they shot him," Ferguson said. "The officer saw (the accident) happen and approached them and they shot him. The reason why is not known."

Fletcher said no one was in the home when the shooting occurred.

Mitchell was married and had three children, Porter said. He was a 16-year veteran and served as a police officer in Borger, Spearman and Guymon, Okla. He had received 14 commendations as an Amarillo police sergeant, he said.

"He was a good policeman and a good friend," Ferguson said.

Gibson to challenge supreme court justice

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Former state Rep. Jay Gibson of Odessa Tuesday morning announced he would challenge Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez in the 1986 Democratic primary.

Gibson distributed a memo at a Capitol press conference indicating that a coalition of defense lawyers, insurance companies and big businesses intended to contribute $1 million to Gonzalez campaign. That coalition, the Texas Supreme Court Justice Committee, has stated publicly that it wants to reverse a high court trend toward siding with plaintiff's lawyers in major cases.

"If the candidate they interview adheres to their brand of justice, then that candidate receives $1 million," Gibson said. "I think that is wrong. I think our courts are set up and our justice systems are established so that a person can be a shoe clerk or the president of a giant corporation, but in the eyes of the law the two are the same."

Judges who accept $1 million from "one small select group of elitist lawyers and a few of their large corporate clients" cannot be fair in their decisions, Gibson said. He pledged to accept no campaign contributions "if the basis for that contribution is that I will adhere to any particular philosophy of jurisprudence."

The memo says, "We will almost surely want to lend substantial monetary support to Raul Gonzalez." Gibson said he did not know whether Gonazelez plans to accept donations from the coalition.

Gibson, 35, is an Odessa attorney. He served in the House from 1979 to 1984.

Entourage moves on to Florida

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prince Charles and Princess Diana, the toast of the nation's capital for three days, were off to Florida today with memories Charles said would be "ringing in our ears" for a long time.

A reception at the National Gallery of Art on Monday night served as the royal sendoff, affording a last occasion for the heir to the British throne and his glamorous young wife to mingle with selected invitees from Washington social and political circles. The black-tie dinner and reception followed a busy day that included visits to a suburban J.C. Penney department store and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

"We will leave tomorrow with every kind memory and sound ringing in our ears," Charles told about 400 people who had received much-coveted invitations to the National Gallery Monday night.

As his 24-year-old princess, in a sleek, spangled white gown, looked on, Charles, 36, glowingly praised the National Gallery's "Treasure Houses of Britain" exhibit that was the focal point of the couple's visit.

He said it emphasized the "common sense of history and shared heritage" of the United States and Great Britain.

In Palm Beach, Fla., where the couple planned a one-day stay, yet another gala dinner awaited them, following similar formal affairs in Washington at the White House and British Embassy.

Diana, who earlier Monday had joined Nancy Reagan attending a "rap session" at a drug treatment center for children, told reporters waiting outside the National Gallery that she had enjoyed her visit to Washington "very much."

As reporters called questions to the princess, Prince Charles added, "Speaking as her spokesman, she thinks it's wonderful." Charles had visited the United States several times but it was Diana's first trip.

Among the guests at Monday night's gala was actress Brooke Shields, who said, "I feel tonight my prayers have been answered. It's a dream come true."

Olympic Gold Medal gymnast Mary Lou Retton pronounced Diana a "classy lady," saying, "I really look up to her a lot."

The royal couple received a 21-gun salute earlier in the day when they arrived at Arlington National Cemetery to lay a Veterans Day wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The prince wore his ceremonial Royal Navy uniform and saluted the tomb as the band played the British and U.S. anthems.

Charles placed the wreath on the tomb where the unknown of four wars are buried while the princess, in a royal blue dress cinched in black and a wide-brimmed hat, stood behind.

Afterward, the prince also placed a wreath at a memorial for Field Marshal Sir John Dill, who was head of the British Joint Staff Commission in World War II.

Then Diana and Mrs. Reagan, taking in a therapeutic session at the Straight Drug Rehabilitation Center in suburban Springfield, Va., heard teen-agers tell of experiences with drug abuse.

"I guess when I think about it, I was scared," one girl said, speaking to other youths in the group. "I had gone to such extents to do drugs and to get friendships. The things that I think about was how much I hated myself ... I think I wanted everybody to accept me. I've really learned to like the person that I am."

Princess Diana said nothing, but Mrs. Reagan later told the group: "There's a big wide world out there waiting for you, and we need you, clear-eyed and clear-minded."

Meanwhile, Charles went to the Library of Congress and participated in a discussion of the Constitution with legal scholars and jurists, including Chief Justice Warren Burger. He also signed "The Old Man of Lochnagar," a children's book he wrote.

They arrived at Monday's farewell gala to the cheers of about 150 onlookers. They joined about 100 guests for dinner and then attended a reception for another 300 guests.

Diana, who has made headlines for her elegant fashions as well as for wearing the same clothes more than once, emerged from a silver Rolls Royce in a one-shoulder Hachi gown that she had also worn during the couple's recent trip to Australia.

After mingling and chatting with eager guests, Charles told the gathering the collection of works from British country homes was "one of the most remarkable exhibitions we've ever seen." He said the exhibit of paintings, sculpture, and furnishings would be remembered by the royal couple for years to come "as will the warmth of our reception and welcome here."

Charles got a laugh when he joked that, "My wife is rather sorry to find there isn't anything from her family home in the exhibition." Diana's family home is Althorp, owned by her father, the Earl Spencer.

Few Texans among guests at events for Charles, Diana

By KATHRYN BAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — What do author Larry McMurtry, oilman Edwin Cox Sr. and congressmen Kika de la Garza and Jim Wright all have in common?

They are all Texans, but more importantly on this weekend, they were among the few invited to meet Charles and Diana, the Prince and Princess of Wales, during the royal couple's celebrated visit to the nation's capital.

"It was a thrill, always," said de la Garza, who, with his wife, was invited to a British Embassy reception Monday. "We were honored beyond what one can imagine to be on this short list."

The creme de la creme of Washington society have been vying for months to get on the coveted guest lists for events attended by the royal couple during their visit here. Very few Texans made it.

Cox, from Dallas, and McMurtry, who lives in Washington, attended the White House dinner Saturday night, according to the guest lists. Wright, D-Fort Worth, who is House Majority Leader, and his wife attended the Sunday night dinner at the British Embassy.

De la Garza, D-Mission, said he suspected he was put on the list because he chairs the House Agriculture Committee. He said his wife flew in especially for the occasion. Much of the city was closed down because of the federal holiday for Veterans Day.

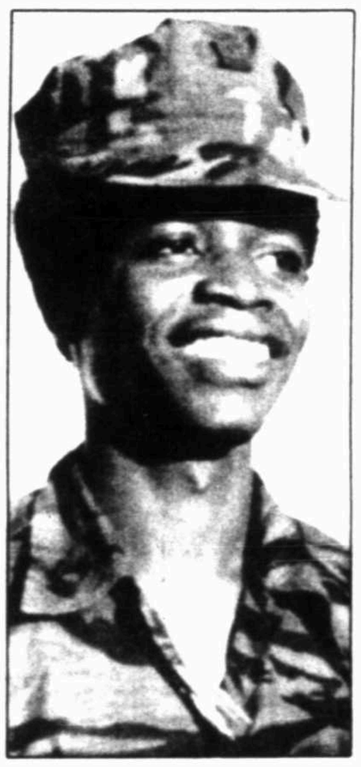

"We stood around in little groups in this ballroom," he said. "She (Diana) came and started visiting from group to group," then Charles followed suit from the other side of the room.

He said the relaxed pair seemed "genuinely interested in what people were saying" and mingled for over an hour.

"They are really a fantastic couple," de la Garza said.

Charles, said de la Garza, "seemed to be very apologetic for getting us out on a holiday to meet them. We said, 'Oh, we don't mind.'"

De la Garza said he reminded Prince Charles that they had met when Charles visited Texas a few years ago.

Samuel K. Doe

COUP

State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman in Washington said, "A dusk to dawn curfew has been announced. His (Quiwonkpa's) people surrounded the executive mansion and shooting continues.... The whereabouts of Doe are unknown."

Ms. Stockman said there were no reports of injury to Americans.

The Liberian ambassador to the United States, G. Toe Washington, said in Washington, "Up to the moment I do not know. I cannot tell you the true story. I've been receiving calls from Liberian citizens in Washington, but I have received no reports from Liberia.... The telphone lines have been engaged."

Liberia was founded in 1847 by freed American slaves.

Doe, an indigenous Liberian, was an army master sergeant when he seized power from entrenched descendants of the slaves. He had the former government's leaders shot publicly on a Monrovia beach.

He promised to restore civilian government in January and called the first multi-party elections in Liberia's history in October.

The Elections Commission declared Doe won the presidency with 50.9 percent of the vote and gave his National Democratic Party 72 of the 90 seats in the House of Representatives.

Three opposition parties that won the remaining seats refused to take them, accusing the government of intimidating their candidates and packing the vote-counting committees with its supporters.

Doe said Monday that the claims were provoking confusion and violence, and said his government would not tolerate attempts by any political group to incite unrest.

Doe charged Quiwonkpa with attempting a coup in November 1983, one month after he had dismissed him as commanding general of the armed forces and expelled him from the ruling People's Redemption Council.

There were reports in April 1984 that he had fled to the United States.

Doe has made many accusations of plots against him. Last April, he claimed an attempt was made on his life when the deputy chief of his personal guard allegedly poured machine-gun fire into his jeep. Doe escaped injury.

Wintry storm spreads snow through West, rain from Gulf to Midwest

Associated Press

A wintry Western storm blamed for at least 15 deaths dumped more snow on the Sierra Nevada today after clogging California highways with more than four feet, trapping hundreds of hunters in the Cascade Mountains of Washington and cracking temperature records like icicles.

The massive storm stretching from the Pacific to the Gulf Coast and into the Upper Midwest dumped more than 7 inches of rain on one Texas town and has piled more than 5 feet of snow around Lake Tahoe since Sunday.

As much as 14 inches of snow fell in Utah's mountains Monday, while its northern valleys received about 4 inches, and a winter storm warning was posted for today.

About 500 elk hunters remained stranded today by up to 4 feet of snow in the Cascade Mountains of Washington state, after National Guard rescue helicopters airlifted 31 to safety on Monday.

"It's probably going to take all week to get everybody out," said Jack Bartley, Yakima County search and rescue coordinator, who said from 50 to 75 hunters had walked to safety by early today.

"It has been snowing all day and hasn't stopped," sheriff's dispatcher John Villani said Monday in California's Mono County, along the Nevada line. "The wind has really been blowing too, causing whiteout conditions."

Jack Hales of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said early today that snow was falling in Yosemite National Park in California and would spread through the southern Sierras and the San Francisco peaks, and extending into the mountains of southern Utah and southwestern Colorado's San Juan Mountains.

"We're projecting significant winter weather across the mountains at fairly low elevations for this early in the season, and significant snow should remain over the mountains for the next 24 hours," Hales said.

Monday's low of 8 degrees at Reno, Nev., was a full 5 degrees off the old record set 10 years ago. Seattle hit a record 18 degrees for the date, as did Olympia, Wash., and the 31 at Eureka, Calif., erased a record that had stood since 1911. Burns, Ore., hit 10 below zero, shattering the 7-year-old record of zero degrees. And as the cold air advanced eastward, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., chilled to a record low of 10.

Since Saturday, nine traffic deaths in Wisconsin, two in Iowa and one in South Dakota were blamed on the storms, as was the death of a pilot of a small plane that crashed in Colorado.

Leslie O'Neil, 27, one of 10 hunters lost in the mountains of southwestern Montana, died Monday after surgery in a Butte hospital, officials said. She suffered injuries when she slid down an embankment.

In the stormy seas off the California coast, the Coast Guard on Monday rescued one man and recovered a body from the wreckage of a fishing boat that apparently sank about 2 miles off San Diego's Point Loma.

Interstate 80 between Sacramento and Reno, Nev., closed for more than 42 hours, was reopened Monday night on the 25th anniversary of the trans-Sierra freeway, where opening ceremonies in 1960 were delayed by two feet of snow.

By late Monday, the storm stacked up to five feet of snow around Lake Tahoe, east of the Sierra divide. Up to two inches of snow fell Monday morning in the suburbs of Sacramento — the first there since 1976.

The storm dumped 0.87 of an inch of rain on downtown Los Angeles between its start Sunday evening and 7 p.m. Monday, about half the rainfall in the area since July 1, the National Weather Service said.

Scattered power outages were reported from Los Angeles to San Diego counties as thundershowers swept through the region and caused low-level flooding.

In California's mountain counties, deputy Sgt. Dan Price said late Monday as many as three or four dozen people still could be missing in El Dorado County alone, and his office was inundated with calls from friends or relatives of missing people.

The other two wounded members of the Lebanese Front command were historian Fuad Boustani and Parliament member Edward Honein. Police said they were only slightly wounded.

The Lebanese Front is the overall political leadership of a coalition of Christian militias known as the Lebanese Forces, whose representatives negotiated a draft peace accord with its two strongest opponents, the Shiite Moslem Amal and the Druse Progressive Socialist Party.

Christian politicians, including Chamoun and Karameh, have criticized the militias' accord, charging it gives too many concessions to the Moslem community. Chamoun has said the militias' negotiations and agreements should be confined to security, leaving poltical bargaining to Lebanon's politicians.

Chamoun and Karameh, who have no powerful militia, had been kept out of the Syrian-sponsored negotiations. The draft treaty called for trimming the powers of the president, traditionally a Christian, and ending the Christians' traditional domination of government, the judiciary and the army.

Pillars of smoke billowed up from the 100-year-old Maronite Christian monastery. Police said no monks had lived there for almost 10 years.

Troops cordoned off streets after the explosion as ambulances wailed in to pick up the casualties. The blast was heard five miles away in Moslem west Beirut.

Chamoun escaped two consecutive bomb assassination attempts on March 12 and 13, 1980.

The Aukar explosion followed three smaller overnight blasts in Moslem west Beirut in which police said four civilians were killed and eight wounded.

One bomb wrecked a private car, another destroyed a bingo parlor and a third caused damage to a Druse militia office. Police said all casualties resulted from the car blast.

Blind black-belt surprises mugger

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Todd Alan Carter may have looked like easy prey for a mugger, but the blind martial arts expert threw a few karate chops and escaped from a surprised attacker who tried to rob him of $1.

"It was pretty scary," said Carter, 18. "It would have been better just to give him the money and not chance getting hurt. I just reacted on instinct because of my martial arts training."

Carter was blinded from a gunshot wound last November and uses a red-tipped white cane.

"He might have thought a blind person was an easy target, but I wasn't an easy target," said Carter.

He said he rarely used his karate expertise until the incident Sunday when he was walking from the Daytona Mall to the Florida Rehabilitation Center for the Blind, where he lives.

"I wasn't really paying attention to where I was going. I must have been daydreaming, and took a couple of wrong turns ... and was lost," said Carter.

As he was trying to find his way back to the center, he was approached by a man on a bicycle who demanded $1 from him.

"He asked me if I had any money to borrow and I said no. Then he nudged me from behind and wanted to know if I had any money he could take," said Carter, who was carrying $15 in cash and wearing a gold chain at the time of the attempted mugging.

Last month, Midland's check took a downward turn from the previous year — $529,730.92 compared to 1984's payment of $558,804.84.

Overall, however, Gifford said the average has gone up by $30,000 over "my pessimistic forecast of three months ago. We're very close on track to the budget."

Midland's growth, calculated by the sales tax figures, is in the 2 to 4 percent range, according to Gifford. "It's a slight positive trend."

The people are still at the (Midland Park) mall spending money, he added.

Vietnam veterans join hands in a show of solidarity at a flag-raising ceremony at the Alamo Monday. A black and white POW/MIA flag was raised and Mayor Henry Cisneros read a list of American servicemen still missing in action.

Veterans Day service ends vets' Alamo vigil

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — About 250 Vietnam veterans wrapped up a four-day vigil at the Alamo with an emotional Veterans Day ceremony aimed at remembering the 2,500 American soldiers unaccounted for in Southeast Asia.

The names of 19 San Antonio soldiers listed as missing in action were read by Mayor Henry Cisneros.

Cisneros asked the crowd for a moment of silence and prayer "in hopes that they are well and that sometime in the future on Veterans Day they will be in our midst."

The veterans, most wearing camouflage fatigues, stood arm-in-arm, sang and wept during the ceremony.

They also hoisted a black and white POW MIA flag in front of the Alamo and chanted "Bring 'em all home."

"I don't know of any other ceremony that will have more heartfelt emotion in the country than this one," Cisneros said.

The four-day vigil began last Friday after a group of about 14 veterans concluded a 300-mile walk from Dallas to San Antonio.

Michael Martin, 36, of Dallas, said he organized the march to honor Vietnam veterans and to focus attention on the missing soldiers.

"Keep the fires burning, there's a patrol still out," he told his fellow veterans Monday.

During the ceremony Cisneros was presented with an MIA bracelet with the name of Julian Escobedo, a San Antonio soldier missing in action since Sept. 1, 1969.

Ofelia Sandoval, Escobedo's sister, said she and her mother presented the bracelet to Cisneros "just to bring awareness of all the men that are still missing. So the people won't forget."

Ms. Sandoval said her brother, then 20, was among seven people aboard a helicopter that crashed in Vietnam. The bodies of the six others were recovered but there was no trace of her brother, she said.

Also during the ceremony, Marine Capt. Ronny Yowell used a Mameluke sword to draw a line across the courtyard in front of the Alamo.

Researchers work on Star Wars rail gun

AUSTIN (AP) — A magnetic gun being prepared for Star Wars can also be used to hurl large commercial cargoes into space, according to researchers at the University of Texas.

A 3-foot-long black steel rectangle is the latest test model produced at the UT Center for Electromechanics in these efforts.

Military scientists say that huge versions of the electro-magnetic rail gun would be mounted on satellite battle stations as part of the Strategic Defense Initiative program commonly known as Star Wars.

However, the National Aeronautics Space Administration says the same technology can be used in building a rail gun 1.2 miles long that would hurl one-ton commercial cargoes into orbit around the Earth.

"To do anything serious in space — military, scientific or commercial — you need a railroad into space. This thing could make a one-ton shot every five minutes."
— William Weldon, director, UT Electromechanics Center

"To do anything serious in space — military, scientific or commercial — you need a railroad into space," William Weldon said Monday. "This thing could make a one-ton shot every five minutes."

Weldon is director of the UT center and supervises development of the weapon version of the rail run for the Department of Defense in a new facility at the Balcones Research Center in North Austin.

Weldon also took part in the 1981 NASA study of the rail gun's potential as a space launcher.

Both the weapon and the cargo launcher would be powered by a unique high energy "compacat homopolar" electrical generator developed by Weldon and other UT engineers.

In the current weapon test model, the black steel casing surrounds two copper rails about half an inch apart. Brief bursts of 2,500 megawatts of electricity have accelerated plastic cubes between the rails to velocities of 2.79 miles per second.

That velocity is more than twice as fast as the fastest bullet from a conventional gun.

The challenge, Weldon says, is to achieve velocities of more than 5 miles per second without disintegration of the cubes, which weigh less than a penny.

In the vacuum of space, where dynamically efficient shapes are not necessary, a plastic cube thrown with sufficient force could penetrate the quarter-inch steel plates commonly used to shield the components of intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The Star Wars program envisions putting rail runs as long as 25 feet into low Earth orbit. They would be capable of 60 accurate shots a minute at ranges of about 600 miles.

In the cargo-launching study, the UT researchers have recommended building copper rails 1.2 miles long up the side of a dormant 15,000 foot volcano in Hawaii.

Man shoots ex-wife, then himself

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 47-year-old sixth-grade science teacher remained in critical condition after her ex-husband gunned her down near a middle school playground and then turned the weapon on himself, police said.

John Diaz, 53, died in surgery less than an hour after the 8:15 a.m. shooting at Mark Twain Middle School on Monday, a spokeswoman at Medical Center Hospital said.

His ex-wife — Dahlia Rivas, 47, a science teacher — was in critical condition late Monday with multiple gunshot wounds to the head and stomach, authorities said.

Classes had already begun and apparently there were no student witnesses to the shooting in the school's parking lot, San Antonio Independent School District spokeswoman Mary Martha Arana said.

"It was a domestic quarrel that unfortunately carried itself over to the place of employment," she said.

Ms. Rivas, who had taught at the school for 11 years, had just driven into the parking lot and gotten out of her car when she was met by her ex-husband, Ms. Arana said.

"They became involved in an argument" and shots were fired, she said. Some students inside the building heard the gunfire and reported it to school officials, she said.

Heart implant patient suffers third stroke

Schroeder

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William Schroeder, the only artificial heart patient to live outside the hospital, has suffered his third stroke and was back in the hospital today, less than two weeks before the first aniversary of his implant, a spokeswoman said.

Two CAT scans, or computer enhanced X-rays, indicated on Monday a hemorrhagic stroke on the right side of Schroeder's brain in an area unaffected by previous strokes, said spokeswoman Donna Hazle, director of public affairs for Humana Hospital Audubon.

Schroeder, 53, became lethargic over the weekend and doctors decided to conduct tests, she said.

Schroeder, who had been living in an apartment near the hospital, was admitted Monday afternoon and was listed in serious condition, she said. He was resting comfortably late Monday night, she said.

Schroeder's two previous strokes, in December and May, affected the left side of his brain, weakening his right side. He also suffered memory loss and has had trouble speaking.

Schroeder's doctors, including neurologist Gary Fox, hadn't determined the cause of the stroke, nor had they been able to pinpoint when it occurred, Hazle said.

Dr. William C. DeVries implanted the Jarvik-7 mechanical pump in Schroeder on Nov. 25, making him the world's second recipient of a permanent implant. DeVries was not available Monday for comment, Hazle said.

Schroeder's fellow Jarvik-7 recipient, Murray Haydon, 59, has shaken a slight fever and continues to recuperate in his coronary-care room, Hazle said in a tape-recorded update on his condition.

The retired Louisville autoworker received the artificial heart Feb. 17 and has been confined to the coronary care unit for all but two weeks since then.

Congress returns to two tough topics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, returning today from a long Veterans Day holiday, is staring into the twin-barreled dangers of a government shutdown and a default by the Treasury.

Lawmakers have created the problems themselves, mainly because they've been unable to agree on a compromise between competing plans to balance the budget. A House-Senate conference committee is scheduled to convene again today in hope of ending the deadlock.

Both chambers favor setting statutory limits on annual deficits, which would gradually get smaller until the budget is balanced in 1991.

However, the House Democrats' version would protect poverty programs and limit President Reagan's role in choosing spending cuts needed to meet the deficit targets — elements that leaders in the Republican-led Senate say would make the measure unconstitutional and unworkable.

The dispute has been blocking an urgently-needed hike in the government's borrowing authority, with has reached its limit of $1.824 trillion. The Reagan administration has asked for a $2.078 trillion limit — double the red ink of when Reagan took office in 1981.

Without more credit, Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said government coffers would be empty Friday and he would be forced to notify the Federal Reserve Board and the nation's banks that federal checks can no longer be honored.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., one of the House negotiators on the balanced-budget plan, called Monday for President Reagan to get directly involved in the negotiations to avoid an embarrassing default.

"Let me plead with you, Mr. President, to take the lead in ending a political charade and starting a search for substantive solutions," he said in a letter to Reagan.

Jones suggested that after Reagan returns from his summit next week in Geneva with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, there could be a domestic summit with the president and House and Senate leaders.

Jones, in a separate letter, asked his colleagues to temporarily raise the debt limit to push the default deadline past the Geneva summit.

NATION in brief

Medvid still a concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — Miroslav Medvid, now miles at sea en route back to the Soviet Union, still is causing a stir here, where two investigations are under way into how U.S. officials handled his apparent defection attempt.

Two days after the grain freighter Marshal Koniev left port near New Orleans with the 22-year-old seaman aboard, the Reagan administration still was trying to learn why Medvid twice was returned to the ship in the hours immediately after he leaped into the Mississippi River on Oct. 24.

Medvid eventually told State Department officials he wished to return to his homeland, but critics have contended he should have been offered asylum earlier.

An internal INS report of its handling of the matter has been received at the Justice Department, its parent agency, and is being reviewed by high-ranking aides to Attorney General Edwin Meese, an administration source said Monday.

Meanwhile, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was to begin hearings today on the incident before his Agriculture Committee.

Farm subsidy explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1984, a federal farm subsidy program aimed at keeping U.S. farmers in business paid out $203,000 to five "farmers" with a California rice operation — four of whom lived in Pakistan.

Despite a supposed limit of $50,000 per farmer on the subsidy payments, the same program could wind up paying a single cotton producer in Bailey County, Texas, $125,000 this year.

And the rules allow federal subsidies of nearly $1.5 million to flow out to 56 tenants who grow rice on a 16,000-acre farm in Colusa, Calif., eight of whom are relatives of the farm's owner.

Those examples, pulled together by congressional investigators, are being used as ammunition by Republicans aiming to trim subsidies in the Senate's emerging 1985 farm bill.

Bishops' agenda tough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops, one day into their annual meeting, already are plunged into such controversial issues as abortion, women's rights in the church and the merits of capitalism.

In comparison with the past several years' meetings, which featured approval or introduction of major policy statements on nuclear weapons, the U.S. economy and other matters, this year's gathering had been expected to be a bit more tame.

However, in just a few hours Monday, after about 300 members of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops gathered at a downtown hotel:

— Archbishop Rembert Weakland of Milwaukee, main author of the bishops' proposed pastoral letter on the economy, took public aim at the ideas of an "unfettered free market" and "rugged individualism" — two ideals much praised by President Reagan and other politicians.

— Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago, head of the bishops' "pro-life" committee, recommended a revised "pro-life pastoral plan" that strongly opposes abortion, as always, but now links that opposition more directly to such other issues as capital punishment, nuclear deterrence and spending for the poor.

— About 50 Catholic women conducted an emotional demonstration outside the hotel, complaining that "whatever illusions to the contrary are created, the fact remains that the processes of hierarchical decision-making are closed to women."

The "pro-life" document will come to a vote on Thursday, but the bishops aren't scheduled to formally approve their major economic letter until next November.

Benson named prophet

Benson

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Newly elevated Mormon prophet Ezra Taft Benson is unlikely to enforce his ardent anti-communist and archconservative political views on the 5.8 million-member church, say colleagues, family members and political opponents.

Benson, 86, a former U.S. secretary of agriculture who has spoken on political issues more than any other Mormon leader, on Sunday became the 13th president of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The senior member of the Council of the Twelve succeeds Spencer W. Kimball, who led the church for 12 years before his death a week ago today at age 90.

Benson's political views had led Mormon liberals to fear the direction the church might take under him. But he said Monday that he planned no changes.

High turnout expected

MIAMI (AP) — Heavy voter turnout was expected today in a runoff election between two immigrants to pick the city's first Cuban-born mayor, while a city commission race tested whether the Cuban community still considers hatred of communism a local issue.

The election of Miami's first Cuban-born mayor was assured in last week's non-partisan primary when banker Raul Masvidal and lawyer Xavier Suarez defeated six-term, Puerto-Rican born incumbent Maurice Ferre and eight other challengers for spots in the runoff.

Bus driver could face charges

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police said they plan to seek manslaughter charges today against the driver of a school bus that crashed on Interstate 70 Monday, killing one student and critically injuring a second.

Detective Sgt. Fred Fone said warrants would be sought against Mark Trice, 26, the driver of a bus that investigators say was racing with a car, went out of control, hit a guard rail and smashed into a steel pole, ripping the passenger compartment from the frame.

Witnesses said the dead girl, Kimberly L. Bogan, 18, had to be pried from the wreckage of the bus, which was carrying about 30 students from Parkway North Senior High School to their homes in north St. Louis.

"People were lying all over the side of the highway," said John Otte, chief of the Normandy Fire Protection District. "I have seen school buses in other accidents, school buses on fire, but nothing like this."

Trice and 14 other students were injured in the crash. Cynthia Alexander, 15, was reported in critical condition early today. Most of the other injuries were minor, authorities said.

Fone said several students who were sitting in the front of the bus told them that Trice acted as though he was racing with a small car when he apparently swerved toward it to scare its driver and lost control of the bus.

Fone said Trice, who was reported in stable condition, had refused to take a breath test for alcohol, but that police had obtained a warrant for a blood test for alcohol and drugs.

Results of the test would be known today, Fone said.

"But no matter what that result is, we will seek a warrant (for vehicular manslaughter)," Fone said.

Officials said Trice, Miss Bogan and five other students were taken to Normandy Osteopathic North Hospital. Seven other students, none of whom was seriously injured, were taken to another hospital for treatment.

Fone said witnesses told them the bus had been traveling at high speed and had been weaving through traffic for some time before the crash.

A spokesman for the bus company, R.W. Harmon & Sons, which has a state contract to transport students under the desegregation program, declined to comment on the crash, saying it was under investigation. He said Trice appeared to have a clean reco

Royal welcome

From the historical fact that two centuries ago Americans rejected royal rule via the Revolutionary War, one might get the mistaken impression that visiting royalty would not be welcome here. Nothing could be further from the truth, as attested from the current trip of Britain's Prince Charles and Princess Diana to the "states." Americans treat visiting royalty downright regally.

Observers of the social scene and historians have brought out their magnifying glasses and sharpened their pencils to project pompous analyses of the excitement surrounding the visit.

The spectacle is being discussed as if it were the first of its kind in the American experience when, as a matter of fact, such visits are almost commonplace in American history.

The United States had been in existence only 70 some years when Edward VII, as a young Prince of Wales, made a triumphal tour of his country's former colony, touching off in the major cities the gaudiest social seasons ever witnessed up to that time. It seems Americans use visits by British royalty as an excuse to pull out all the stops as far as entertaining is concerned.

In fact, that was precisely the situation a few years before World War II, when the occasion was the American visit of King George VI and his Queen Elizabeth (now the "Queen Mum").

Prince Charles and Princess Di, as she is known, are an attractive and articulate couple and their proximity to Britain's ancient throne endows them with a special mystique. But it is more than a fascination with the royalty Americans cast aside two centuries ago that gets Americans excited over the regal visits. It is the historic affinity between Great Britain and the U.S. that survived the American Revolution, the War of 1812, and a near-collision in the 1860s that was averted by the cool heads of Britain's Victoria and Albert.

That affinity was never so emphatically affirmed as during the recent, little-heralded visit of Prince Charles' mother, the reigning Elizabeth II, to Grenada. In one sense, the Queen upstaged her son by venturing into still another former British colony which has been a cause of some discord between her realm and the U.S.

The British government had been harshly critical of the rescue mission mounted to Grenada by President Reagan two years ago and the Grenadians were clearly displeased by the British attitude at that point. The visit by the Queen went a long way toward assuaging the Grenadians and redefining the cordiality that endures between Britain and America.

No, Americans are not an uncouth lot that does not know how to respectfully greet visiting royalty. We simply prefer to choose the times when we'll put on airs.

Another View:
Democracy's choice

Whatever his physical health, Ferdinand Marcos's political instincts are unimpaired. You can bet he wouldn't have proposed an election for Jan. 17 unless he were sure that he could win it. What he wants is not an expression of democracy but a managed plebiscite to confound his enemies at home and deflect reform pressure from the United States. What he offers is not an election but a snare and a delusion.

In 20 years as President, Mr. Marcos has excelled at manipulating democratic forms on behalf of authoritarian rule. He has allowed just enough freedom to let off steam and placate Americans. His power is sustained by the sale of favors and by rigged votes and increasing violence. The web of corruption extends from the poorest villages to the courts and the presidential palace.

It is a system that protects the well-placed servants who do its dirty work. After the 1983 murder of Benigno Aquino, Mr. Marcos vowed that he would expose and punish those who killed his most formidable rival. But when an outcry finally forced a real inquiry, judges found ways to exclude evidence implicating the former chief of staff, Gen. Fabian Ver. Conveniently, the prosecutor undercut his own case by discovering reasons to exclude American testimony unfavorable to General Ver.

Small wonder that the opposition has been radicalized and enlarged. Most ominous is the spread of a home-grown Communist insurgency, the New People's Army. According to American estimates, the guerrilla force has quadrupled in five years to 15,000. Mr. Marcos rejects American worries as alarmist. After all, he asserts, he is in telephone contact with field commanders, warning them to tell their President the truth! And scorning American advice, he says he will reappoint General Ver at least briefly, once his friend and former chauffeur wins his expected acquittal.

This is not a leader likely to conduct the "credible and fair" elections that the State Department calls for. Yet there is an urgent American interest in promoting a democratic succession. The United States is bound to the Philippines by history, trade and shared concern for the security of two vital military installations, Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base. The question is how to promote credible elections without succumbing to Mr. Marcos's deceptive scheme.

If he means to be taken seriously, let him now give way to an interim President, as his own Constitution requires. Let him agree to genuine international supervision and delay the vote until March to give his rivals time to organize. And let him counter doubts about his health with a worthy vice-presidential candidate who is neither stooge nor spouse.

These are scarcely unreasonable conditions. Mr. Marcos rejects as "childish" assertions that he has lost touch with his people. If he really believes that he retains it, why not give them a real choice?

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 12, the 316th day of 1985. There are 49 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 12, 1920, baseball got its first "czar" as Judge Kennesaw Mountain Landis was elected commissioner of the American and National leagues.

On this date:

In 1815, American suffragist Elizabeth Cady Stanton was born.

In 1921, representatives of nine nations gathered in the nation's capital for the start of the Washington Conference for Limitation of Armaments.

In 1927, Josef Stalin became the undisputed ruler of the Soviet Union as Leon Trotsky was expelled from the Communist Party.

In 1929, Grace Kelly, the future Hollywood star and princess of Monaco, was born.

In 1944, during World War II, the German battleship Tirpitz was sunk off Norway.

In 1948, former Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo and several other World War II Japanese leaders were sentenced to death by a war crimes tribunal.

In 1954, Ellis Island, an immigration station in New York Harbor, was closed after processing more than 20 million immigrants since it opened in 1892.

In 1982, Yuri V. Andropov was elected to succeed the late Leonid I. Brezhnev as general secretary of the Communist Party's Central Committee.

JACK ANDERSON
For vet Pentagon is 'heartless'

WASHINGTON — Sam Sortland isn't bitter; that's not his style. But the blind World War II veteran would like one thing from his country: a Purple Heart for the wartime injuries that robbed him of his sight.

Jack Anderson

To anyone outside a Pentagon swivel chair, his request would seem reasonable. Sortland, 71, who lives in Ambrose, N.D., a small town near the Canadian border, emerged unscratched from the five-month siege of Corregidor, the island fortress in Manila Bay. But during nearly three years as a prisoner-of-war, he was systematically tortured, beaten and starved by his Japanese captors.

On Feb. 4, 1945, Sortland and a handful of his surviving buddies were rescued by U.S. Rangers from their Manila prison. He weighed 70 pounds and had lost all his teeth. And he was permanently blinded from the effects of starvation.

But when Rep. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., tried to get a Purple Heart for Sortland recently, he got this replay from Air Force Lt. Col. John J. Weaver:

"An analysis of these cases showed that many prisoners of war had been awarded Purple Hearts on what would have been insufficient evidence to support the award to a soldier who was engaged in actual combat on the field of battle. It would be extremely difficult to define brutality, starvation or malnutrition for the purposes of award of the Purple Heart."

The Pentagon explained that Sortland would have rated a Purple Heart if he had been wounded while being captured, when trying to escape or during bombardment of the prison.

The distinction is understandably lost on Sortland. "Whether you got blind fighting or blind in prison camp doesn't matter," he said. "You're just as blind either way."

As a sort of consolation prize, thanks to Dorgan's efforts, Sortland will be awarded a Bronze Star in a ceremony at a North Dakota air base next month. "People like Sam haven't asked for much," Dorgan told our reporter Jenny Cunningham. "The little things are important. They demonstrate that this country doesn't forget."

This cheery view might be disputed by some veterans. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., asked for a General Accounting Office investigation when she learned that a constituent had been waiting 40 years to receive the 14 medals he had earned in World War II.

The GAO reported that a surge of requests following publication of two magazine articles had resulted in a backlog of 114,000 applications for medals in 1983.

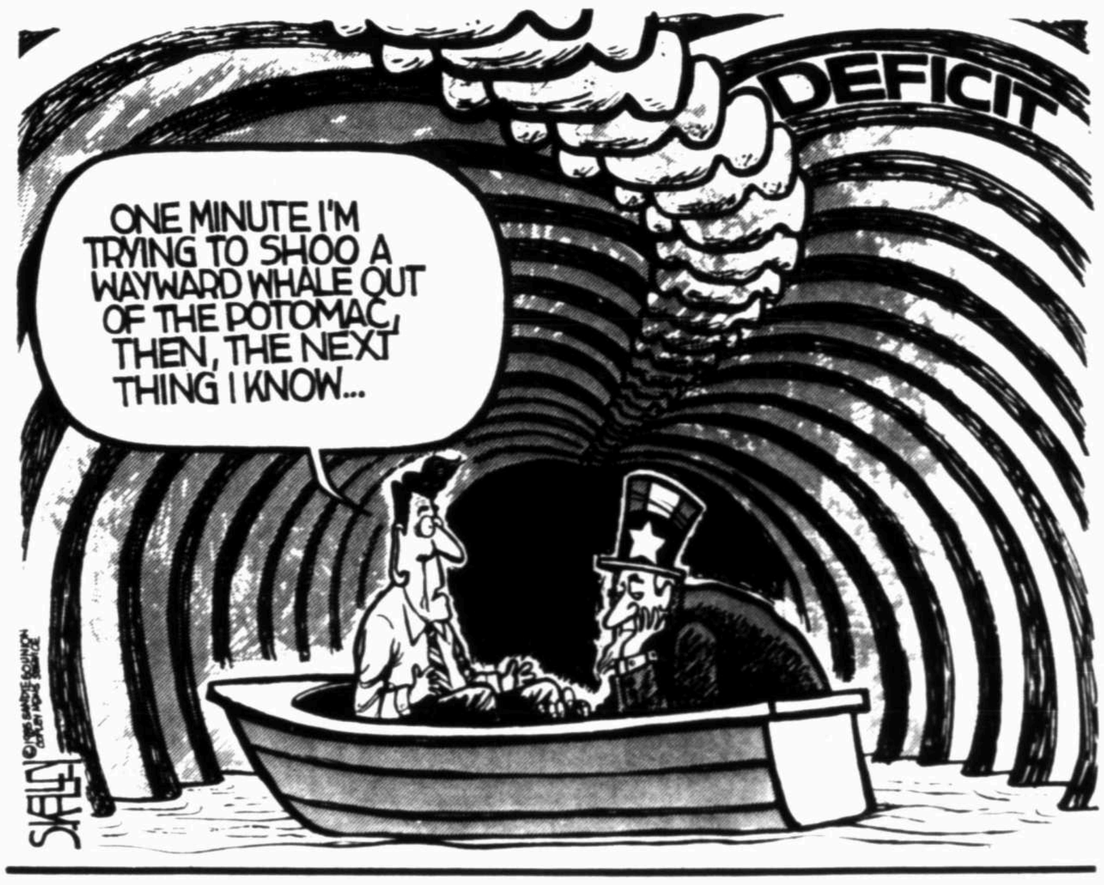

Although the GAO found that the distribution program has improved significantly since then, it warned that a change recently proposed could create another big backlog.

As things stand now, the Army processes requests from its own veterans, while those who served in the Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard are handled by the records center of the National Archives. Acting archivist Frank Burke said the records center wants to hand the responsibility back to the military services.

"We were wondering, as archivists, what we are doing in medals, anyway," Burke said. He added that Archives has taken a lot of heat from veterans and their families because of delays that he said aren't the records center's fault.

The Navy has agreed to begin processing medal requests for itself, the Marine Corps and Coast Guard by Dec. 1. The Air Force is thinking it over.

EVANS & NOVAK
Reagan 'carrots' may not attract

WASHINGTON — Tucked into Secretary of State George Shultz's briefcase as he flew off Nov. 2 to see Mikhail Gorbachev in Moscow was the blueprint of a $3.5-billion U.S.-Soviet fusion research program that typifies the division and confusion with which the U.S. government faces the Geneva summit.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

President Reagan had personally OKed the proposed 35-year program, a brainchild of mid-level bureaucrats in the State and Energy Departments, without normal clearances. Reagan was not told the scheme had not been seen by the Pentagon nor even the State Department's under secretaries directly concerned (W. Allen Wallis for economics and William Schneider for science and technology).

One critical administration official told us the fusion deal was "done in the dark of the night," with Shultz asking Reagan to initial as he left for Moscow. Unaware of economic and technological implications of the research program avidly sought by the Russians, the secretary was doing what comes naturally to the president's diplomats. He was picking summit carrots for Reagan to offer Gorbachev.

That widens the administration's ideological gap and deepens pre-summit confusion in Washington that can only help the Kremlin. Quiet warnings have gone to the White House from Sen. Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming and other conservatives that State's detente offensive could undermine the president in Geneva.

The president is not easy to read. His public posture of compromise and smiles contrasts with his lifelong ferocity against Soviet communism. But has he really changed? When a waggish visitor to the Oval Office last week told him he was giving him a Mikhail Gorbachev model and then handed him a Darth Vader doll, the president laughed and said, "Yes, they really are an evil empire." He did not regret, Reagan added, having said that before.

With Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger kept out of Geneva, conservatives have won their battle for two Pentagon policymakers — Under Secretary Fred Ikle and Assistant Secretary Richard Perle — to accompany Reagan to the summit. But their influence there will be much less than Weinberger's would have been.

Pushed forward by his resourceful Foreign Service bureaucracy, Shultz is on top with the summit a week away and his pocket crammed with goodies (such as fusion research) for Gorbachev. That proposal would unlock high tech that is now barred from the Soviet Union under Coordinating Committee ("Co-Com") regulations that ban NATO exports of militarily-significant technology to the communist bloc.

That fact was pointed out last Thursday morning to Shultz upon his return from Moscow. Not enamored with detail, Shultz expressed surprise but did not change his mind about the joint research. In fact, the proposal seems even more adverse to U.S. interests than the somewhat similar joint U.S.-Soviet space-exploration deal approved at the 1972 Nixon-Brezhnev summit in Moscow. A careful U.S. government study showed the final benefit ratio from the space program to be 90 percent for the Soviets against 10 percent for the U.S.

But with Reagan's demand for "deep cuts" in land-based ICBMs apparently still-born, Shultz is angling to give the president the widest range of lesser agreements to bring home. The quest for such agreements overrides adverse benefit ratios or even the absence of real Soviet compromise on anything from Afghanistan to the SS-18 missile.

In Shultz's Moscow-bound briefcase along with the fusion research proposal was a seven-page, single-spaced post-summit "communique." Pentagon officials were outraged that the Soviet Embassy was handed the document before it had been seen, much less cleared, by the Defense Department.

Shultz

It was bathed in the spirit of detente, seeking a multiplicity of U.S.-Soviet deals surpassing even 1972. Its proposed exchange programs include a software microcomputer course in Soviet schools. But nothing is said about human rights or most regional problems, in spite of the emphasis on them by the president in his United Nations speech.

Its fate in Moscow is unknown. One administration official told us it was "utterly impossible to learn what might happen to the proposed communique or a hundred other plans floating around because of total confusion within the administration."

That is an exaggeration, but the evidence does show at least some confusion. After Reagan delicately referred to a few "seeds" in the Soviet arms control plan worth exploring, an unidentified "high official" on Shultz's plane to Moscow told reporters it contained "nuggets" to be "nurtured." Conservatives deride this as the State Department turning "withered seeds into golden nuggets" in an effort to dress up the Soviet plan.

Such signs of disorder within the administration have to be attractive to Mikhail Gorbachev. He is a tough customer sure to react to pre-summit carrots with demands for them by the bunch.

CHARLEY REESE
Revolutions battles of the 'Haves'

Some Americans, of both the left and the right, love their myths the way some people love their baseball teams and beer. They would sooner abandon their children than divorce their myths.

Charley Reese

A myth of the right is that the State Department knew all along that Fidel Castro was a communist and would impose Stalinism with a Spanish accent on the Cuban people. I have talked with many Cuban refugees, some of whom supported Castro and some of whom had known him most of their lives. If these Cubans did not know that Castro would sell out the revolution it is unlikely that the State Department did.

Conspiracy theories naturally offer more comfort than reality. It is a lot less unsettling to imagine that knowledgeable, competent villains are causing the problems than to face the fact that people in positions of power and responsibility are as prone to confusion, ignorance, and horrible mistakes as any of the rest of us.

There is something of the child in all of us — more in some than in others — and it is the child in us which wants a father figure who knows everything and exactly how to fix anything.

The most terrifying thing a president could do would be to go on the tube and say, "My fellow Americans, I'm not sure I understand all of these problems we face, but I am sure I don't know the answers." Jimmy Carter came close to doing that, inadvertently, and people hated him for it.

Another myth of the right is that a group of big shots get together once a year and plan how to run the world. These people, called Bilderbergers because they met first in Bilderberg, include industrialists, bankers, some politicians, and a few journalists. They take great pains to keep the public from finding out what they say.

This secrecy is the only evidence conspiracy buffs have for their theory that these guys are plotting and scheming. I think there is a much more reasonable explanation for the privacy.

If you or I say, "I don't have the foggiest notion how to cure that debt mess in Latin America," our friends will just yawn and change the subject. If the president of one of the world's largest banks says it, however, not only would there be an epidemic or heart attacks among the stockholders but there would be repercussions in the financial markets of the world.

The disadvantage of being in a position of great power and responsibility is that you can no longer be in public the ordinary human being you are. The people won't stand for it. That's why the rich and powerful have to get together in private once in awhile to sweat, fret, puzzle, and commiserate with each other and probably play a little poker.

A myth of the left is that monopolies will always gouge the consumers. The facts don't support that. Monopolies could gouge the consumers but most people smart enough to construct a monopoly are smart enough not to shoot themselves in the foot. When the big oil companies exercised virtually monopolistic control over Middle East oil, we were paying about 25 cents a gallon for gasoline including state and federal taxes. When the old Standard Oil Trust was at its peak of power, it lowered prices for consumers.

Another myth of the left is that poverty causes revolutions. Again, the facts don't support this. Revolutions are the product of upper and middle class people and most often occur in times of relative prosperity. The American, Iranian, Russian, and Cuban revolutions are examples. Those revolutions were fomented and led by upper class folks at times when the countries, relative to their pasts, were prosperous.

There are no campesinos leading the guerrillas in El Salvador nor are there great numbers supporting them. Revolutions are carried off by minorities. They are not an uprising of the Have Nots against the Haves; they are quarrels among the Haves. It takes a full belly, money, and leisure in order to become discontent enough to fight and poor people don't have any of the three.

Wardrobe wizards promise to organize your closet, your life

Copley News Service

It's time for work, and your designer blouse is more wrinkled than an 80-year-old man's face. Meantime, the matching sweater is packed in one of several old suitcases under your bed. And your shoes ... obviously they must be buried under one of the trailing gowns at the back of your closet.

If this scenario sounds familiar, you might be in desperate need of one of several things: a bigger house, spring cleaning, a maid, a fairy godmother or, alas, a closet organizing system.

Enter a handful of self-appointed fairy godmothers, independent entrepreneurs and franchisees who have been making a tidy profit for the past few years uncluttering lives by spiffing up clothes cupboards.

What these businessmen and women are selling is efficiency, and the promise that you can stuff more clothes into an organized, space-efficient closet and still find them afterward. Let's face it, standard one-shelf, one-pole closets simply don't cut it anymore in Yuppiedom. With today's scaled-down houses and scaled-up wardrobes, old-fashioned closets are impractical and inefficient.

Closet companies promise to organize your wardrobe (and consequently your life) by designing and building a system of double-tier poles, cubbyholes, shelves, drawers, and belt and tie racks that fit virtually every kind of existing closet, from the small bungalow kind to full-blown walk-ins.

According to manufacturers, it's not just the custom home owners who are springing for these systems. Owners of tract homes also are discovering that closet space is at a real premium.

With a few flicks of their wands (and a little sawing and hammering), as well as a lesson in grouping similar items together and keeping each in its own niche, the closet organizers say they can add anywhere from 60 percent to 300 percent to existing closet space. They claim that such systems force people to be organized. You can't put things back in the wrong place, because they won't fit.

Prices for custom systems that keep you and your wardrobe on track range from about $150 to as much as $1,000, depending on size, types of material and number of accessories. Some companies will precut systems for individual closets, allowing you to do the installation work yourself.

For those who can't afford the custom jobs, local hardware and department stores sell assemble-it-yourself kits for as little as $35. For even less you can buy individual shelves or hanging units.

In addition to making life easier, entrepreneurs claim that the biggest incentive to cubbyholing your closet is its investment potential. All things being equal, a house with built-in closet organizers may sell faster than one without. In any case, the entrepreneurs point out that the organization systems will at least triple the value of the closet itself. And if you're not interested in leaving your investment to future home owners, you can take many of the units with you when you leave. Most are portable and can be disassembled and reconstructed elsewhere.

To decide whether you might profit from this kind of organization, one entrepreneur suggests, you don't need to look any farther than your closet walls. If you can see them, you're wasting space. If you can't see the floor, you're being inefficient.

Here's how the systems work on even the smallest closet:

Take a 4-foot hall closet, for example. Move up the shelf to about 1 foot from the ceiling. Drop the pole to within 42 inches of the floor. Now, divide the rest of the closet in half, with one side for more hanging room and the other for six shelves. The result is 6 feet of hanging space instead of 4 feet, and 16 feet of shelving as opposed to 4 feet.

Similarly, by adding more poles and additional shelves for shoes and sweaters, a 6-foot closet is easily expanded to include 8 feet (instead of the traditional 6) of hanging space and 23 feet (compared to the traditional 6) of shelves.

Although the organizing systems have gained popularity in the last three years, "half the people I talk with still don't even know that they're available except for the ready-made kind in the hardware stores," says Jim Chism, of Chism's Clever Closet. Chism, a San Diego cabinetmaker, is one of the newcomers to the industry, having jumped aboard the closet bandwagon in earnest only about seven months ago.

So, if you have not yet heard about these closet systems from your friends or neighbors, consider checking out what's available in your area. Help may be closer than you think.

DEAR ABBY

Wedding invitation joke considered tasteless

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: For several years a young woman (she's now 29) has been coming to my home to trim my three poodles. She would drive to our place in the country after work, so I paid her very well, adding a generous tip. I always had a lovely dinner for her and she enjoyed being with my husband and me. I'm 68, but the age difference didn't matter — we became good friends.

I was invited to her bridal shower. At first I hesitated, knowing all her friends were younger women, but I finally accepted, took an expensive gift and had a wonderful time.

Then came her wedding invitation. Written across the top — in her own handwriting — was "Fifty dollars minimum for the gift, please." Abby, I nearly had a stroke. I could not believe it. I studied it for a week, then wrote her a note saying that her suggestion of a $50 minimum for a gift was the maximum in poor taste, and I would not be attending her wedding.

When she received my note, she called crying. "It was supposed to be a joke. I thought you had a better sense of humor." Then she hung up on me.

A few days later she returned my shower gift by U.P.S., so I phoned her and told her I had given her that gift in good faith and was sending it back to her. I also said I had discussed her invitation with several friends who all agreed it was in terrible taste. Again she said she thought I had a better sense of humor, and perhaps because I was in a different age group I took it wrong.

Abby, am I old-fashioned, behind the times and lacking in a sense of humor? Or have good taste and manners gone out of style? — POODLE LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Good manners and good taste have not gone out of style. You cannot be faulted for reacting as you did. The poodle groomer's so-called "joke" was tasteless and devoid of humor for any age group.

DEAR ABBY: The principal of our school is going to remove the doors from the girls' rest room compartments because he says some girls smoke in them.

We understand that this is a problem, but can't something else be done without depriving us girls of our privacy?

The principal has already removed the doors from the boys' rest room compartments.

Please help us, Abby. — UPSET IN ELK RIVER, MINN.

DEAR UPSET: State your objections in the form of a petition and have it signed by as many people as possible (including your parents), then present it to the principal. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I applaud "Katherine from Georgetown, Texas" for wanting to donate her organs after death. I find it hard to believe that no family member or friend was willing to sign her donor form as a witness.

I was legally blind for several years until somebody unselfishly donated his corneas to an eye bank.

I am now 25 years old and can see. The gift of sight was the greatest gift I could have received from anyone, but it happened only because someone gave a part of himself to improve the life of a stranger.

Whatever excuses Katherine was given by family and friends for refusing to sign her donor form, I'm sure they would have felt differently if they had a loved one in need of an organ.

If Katherine still hasn't been able to find a witness to sign for her, I volunteer. I'm signing my name, but if this is printed, sign me ... SEEING CLEARLY IN MICHIGAN

DEAR SEEING: Thank you. Many others wrote offering to sign for Katherine. One woman wrote: "Tell Katherine to go to the grocery store and ask a couple of the checkout clerks to be witnesses. That's what I did."

Princess Diana sets fashion pace

Los Angeles Times
Washington Post News Service

She was first noticed in her steeply traditional Sloane Ranger outfits: the blue engagement suit, the ruffled blouses, the single strand of pearls. But in four years Diana, the princess of Wales, has become a soignee, stylish, independent working princess.

She's been credited with making fashion more "glam," for refocusing attention on London designers and, some even say, for having the single greatest influence on fashion today.

That's more than a slight exaggeration. However, Diana is this generation's answer to Audrey Hepburn, Jackie Kennedy and Princess Grace. And while the beautiful wife of the future king of England is more independent and less demure than those with whom she can fairly be compared, in many ways her personal style has affected the way some young people dress today.

In fact, how could she miss? She is a handsome woman with a well-scrubbed look, like many of her contemporaries, and wears clothes that nudge the current styles, rather than conflict or try to change them. Her short hair style, ruffled blouses, choker necklaces, bare shoulders and big hats have prompted young women to say frequently, "This is my Lady Di hat," or refer to the "Lady Di dress" or "Lady Di suit" they just acquired.

Just how many women would wear their necklaces as a headband, as the princess did in Australia recently (when it was reported she suffered from sunburned shoulders), is questionable. But then, how many women have such a necklace?

Says Hardy Amies, who has designed for the queen for years and now has many styles in the princess of Wales' current wardrobe, "she can't fail to be marvelous. She's so good-looking and elegant and today."

The British press has been a harsh critic, not only sometimes dubbing her styles "frumpy," but taking her to task for her clothing expenditures, which have been reported as up to $250,000 in one year. After one such bout of criticism, the princess, on a trip to Italy, obviously annoyed by it all, kept appearing in clothes she had worn before. That criticism was even more fierce, but it seemed to make little difference to the Italians, who loved the way she stopped and chatted and touched people that she met along the street.

Major airlines reported only a few delayed flights to and from Midland-Odessa as the result of the foggy conditions.

Both Texas Electric Service Company and Engergas reported no difficulties in providing service to their customers.

Tuesday's high of 47 was 36 degrees below the record set in 1964. The morning low of 44 was 25 degrees above the record set in 1932.

STATE

Dense fog covered much of Texas early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a travelers advisory for the South Plains and Concho Valley.

Visibility dropped to about one-fourth of a mile at San Angelo and about three-fourths of a mile at Lubbock.

Dense fog also covered much of North Texas, but a travelers advisory was cancelled by forecasters who said the fog would burn off shortly after dawn.

The fog was being triggered by the cold front that moved into South Texas during the past weekend and began moving northward as a warm front.

Forecasts called for partly cloudy to cloudy skies statewide tonight and Wednesday. Temperatures were to be slightly warmer through wednesday except in West Texas where cooler readings were forecast for tonight.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 50s and 60s. Highs Wednesday will be mostly in the 70s and 80s except in West Texas where readings will be in the 60s.

Early morning temperatures were in the 60s and 70s south of the front and in the 40s and 50s over the rest of the state. Extremes ranged from 42 at Lubbock to 78 at McAllen.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 43 at Amarillo, 47 at Wichita Falls, 56 at Fort Worth, 58 at Waco, 70 at Austin, 71 at San Antonio, 76 at Brownsville, 53 at San Angelo, 49 at Midland and 45 at El Paso.

NATION

Snowstorms barreled through the Southwest today, with winter storm warnings and travelers' advisories stretching from California's Tehachapi Mountains eastward to the Rockies.

Snow was piling up over much of Utah, eastern Idaho and Wyoming early today, with accumulations of more than a foot in some areas after two days of snowfall.

Winter storm warnings were in effect for the mountains of southern Nevada, northern Arizona, southwest Colorado, most of Utah and southwest Wyoming. Advisories for light snow and slippery roads were issued for northern and central Nevada, eastern Idaho and northwest and central Wyoming.

Sandies enter Bi-District looking for subs

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Amarillo High won the District 3-5A championship with a big 10-7 win over previously unbeaten Amarillo Palo Duro two weeks ago, but the Sandies will enter Saturday's 2 p.m. Bi-district contest with Midland Lee seeking replacements for two key players because of that game.

The main loss is senior halfback Timmy Smith, who suffered a knee injury against Palo Duro and required surgery. Smith rushed for over 900 yards, averaging 112 yards per game with a 9-yard per carry average.

Smith was so dominant in the Amarillo High offense that he had accounted for one-third of the Sandies' offensive output before his injury.

AHS ALSO lost middle linebacker Guy Bobbora to injury during the Palo Duro game.

Amarillo High coach Larry Dippel said following the victory over Palo Duro, "It looks like we won the battle and lost the war. It's going to be tough on us from here on out with losses like that."

Lee-Amarillo High

The Sandies came back after the Palo Duro victory to post a narrow 14-6 win over a weak Lubbock High team. Still, the AHS defense has been a stubborn force in 3-5A this year.

Amarillo High is 9-1 on the season, losing only to District 4-5A's Odessa High by a 27-7 margin in the season opener. OHS, which finished at 6-4 on the season, was the only team this year to score more than one touchdown against the Sandies.

AHS is giving up a meager nine points per game this year while averaging 22.2 points per game. The defensive standout is nose guard Chris Jackson, who is averaging 12 tackles per outing, while tackle Carl Jackson, no relation to Chris, is averaging 11 tackles per game. Add in tackle Jason Dippel, the coach's son, and you probably have the best defensive line in 3-5A without question.

Offensively, the major burden of the Sandies' attack will fall on the shoulders of halfback Matt Coburn and quarterback Scotty Brown, and that could be enough if AHS' defense can turn in another sound performance.

COBURN IS no Smith, but the senior has 805 yards on 119 carries for a 6.7 per carry average. He has also scored nine touchdowns this year. Brown has 210 yards rushing on 51 carries and has thrown for an additional 869 yards by completing 50 of 110 pass attempts.

Quarterback Brown may be looking more to receivers Steve Howard and Hayden Flowers than usual to make up for the loss of Smith. Split end Howard, who has 16 catches for 279 yards (17.4 per reception), and Flowers, who has 429 yards on 14 catches (30.6 per catch), could help keep Lee's experienced secondary entertained.

Amarillo High's lone shutout of the year has come against Amarillo Caprock, 21-0. The Sandies have played two of Lee's 1985 opponents and those are the only two comparisions that can be made for Saturday's playoff matchup.

AHS defeated Lubbock Coronado by a 21-6 margin, a team Lee opened the season with in a 42-0 victory. Of course, both played Odessa High with the Sandies losing 27-7 and Lee winning 7-6.

SATURDAY'S Bi-district game is a 1983 rematch between these two teams, a game Lee won by a 30-3 margin. However, Lee coach Jack Tayrien says that shouldn't be used as any kind of gauge for this matchup.

"The 1983 game has no bearing this year because none of our kids even played in that game. If we were playing in back-to-back seasons, you might make some kind of comparison, but even then high school teams change a lot from year-to-year."

Tickets for this matchup went on sale today at the Memorial Stadium ticket office. Prices are $5 for adults and $3 for students. Tickets will be sold at Jones Stadium in Lubbock, but all tickets will be $5 at the gate.

Elway scrambles 49er blitz; Karlis fries world champions

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER — In a game of many big plays — both offensively and defensively — none was bigger than the completion pulled off by Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway, after a scintillating scramble with San Francisco cornerback Ronnie Lott in hot pursuit.

Trailing 16-14 and with time running out, the Broncos faced a third-and-10 situation at the San Francisco 31-yard line, not really close enough for Rich Karlis to kick a field goal in frigid, foggy Mile High Stadium.

Lott came roaring up the middle untouched into Elway's face, but the nimble quarterback managed to sprint outside, racing to his right and, on the run, rifling a 22-yard pass to Steve Watson.

Elway's clutch pass set up a 24-yard field goal by Karlis with 1:27 remaining that lifted the Broncos to a 17-16 National Football League victory Monday night.

The triumph raised Denver's record to 7-3 and gave them a one-game lead over the Los Angeles Raiders and Seattle Seahawks in the AFC West. Defending Super Bowl champion San Francisco, its hopes for another title fading, fell to 5-5 and remained three games behind the NFC West-leading Los Angeles Rams.

Monday Night

DENVER COACH Dan Reeves credited Elway's "tremendous athletic ability" for evading Lott and getting the ball to Watson.

"I had to get rid of the football," said Elway. "I knew he (Lott) was right there. I saw him come through unblocked. I knew we were out of field-goal range, and I saw Blade (Watson) out there and he made a good catch."

Watson said the velocity with which Elway threw the ball was the key to the completion.

"I moved outside my man and it was just that quick — the ball was there," he said. "I didn't have time to react."

"Elway made a miraculous play on that final completion," said 49er Coach Bill Walsh.

Lott said he "thought I had John on that final completion, but I was just one step away. Not too many quarterbacks in the league could complete that pass on the run."

Elway, who had failed to throw a touchdown pass his previous four games, provided Denver's other points on a pair of first-half touchdown passes to Gene Lang and Watson.

"GOING AGAINST the world champions and with the whole nation seeing us, I really wanted to play well," said Elway. "I think it was the most ready I've ever been in a game."

"This is a great victory, especially after playing so poorly last week (a 30-10 loss to San Diego)," said Reeves. "We were very aggressive and played extremely hard. There were a lot of big, big plays out there. Our defense really kept us in the game when we were struggling a little on offense."

The 49ers, trailing 14-3 at the half, rallied behind the arm of Joe Montana, the legs of Roger Craig and the foot of Ray Wersching to take a 16-14 lead with 3:46 remaining. Wersching kicked a 45-yard field goal to put San Francisco ahead for the first time.

But Denver countered with a 63-yard drive, highlighted by a pass-interference penalty on 49er safety Dwight Hicks that covered 42 yards and Elway's game-saving pass to Watson.

Denver reached the 49er 7-yard-line, and Karlis connected on his second game-winning kick of the season.

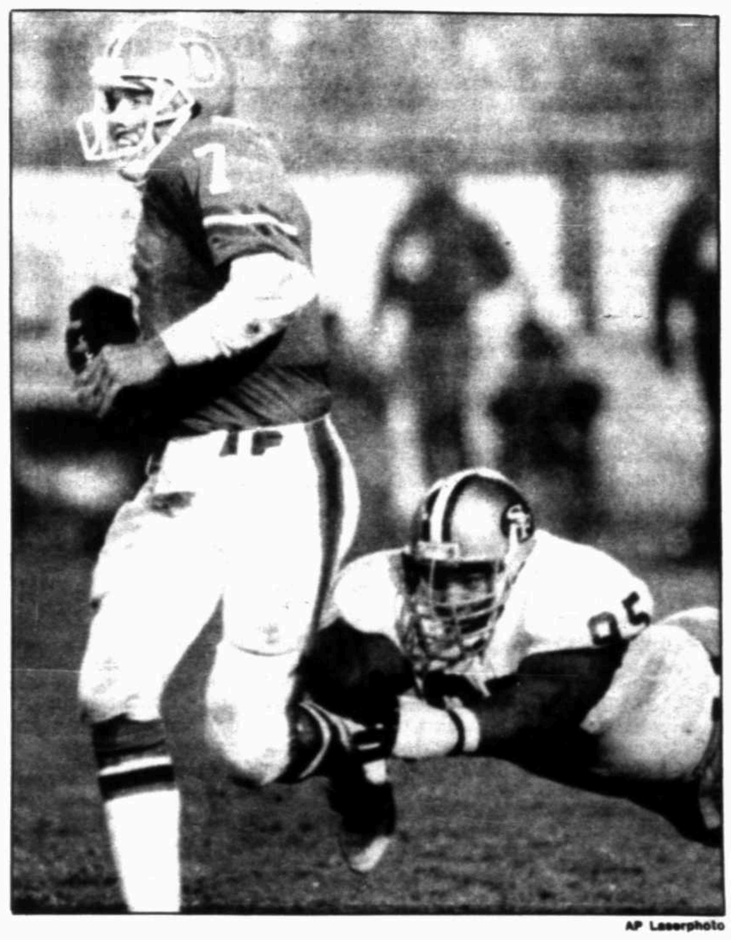

"I FELT very relaxed," said Karlis. "Keith (Bishop) made a great snap, and Gary (Kubiak) made a classic hold. I had lined up very carefully, and when the ball left my foot I knew it was good."

In a first half characterized by kicking-game errors on both sides, Denver moved to a 14-3 lead behind Elway touchdown passes of 3 yards to Lang and 6 yards to Watson. The first Denver score was set up by a shanked, 1-yard punt by San Francisco's Max Runager. The second followed a 50-yard pass from Elway to rookie speedster Vance Johnson on a flea flicker.

The 49ers drove inside the Denver 10-yard line on three occasions in the first half but scored only a field goal. Safety Steve Foley upended Craig short of the goal line on fourth down to end one threat. On another, holder Matt Cavanaugh mishandled a snap from center on a short field-goal attempt and threw incomplete into the end zone.

A split second before the ball was snapped, a snowball thrown from the stands landed in front of Cavanaugh, possibly distracting him.

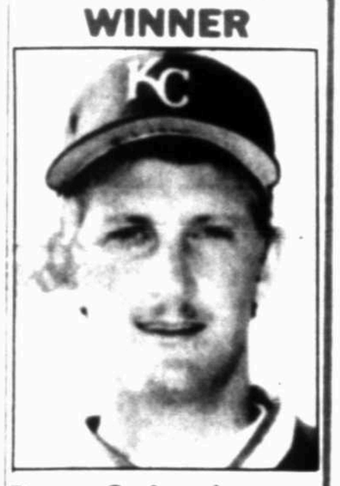

The 49ers stormed back in the second half. Montana got them in the end zone early in the third quarter with a 13-yard pass to Mike Wilson. Following a Lott interception, Wersching kicked a 22-yarder to draw the 49ers within 14-13 midway through the quarter.

1985 CY YOUNG WINNER

1984 Winner:
Willie Hernandez

KC's Saberhagen now AL's 'Cy Youngest'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Honors and awards keep coming in, but Bret Saberhagen says nothing can beat the birth of a son.

A spindly right-hander who went 20-6 for Kansas City and won two World Series games, Saberhagen was named Monday the youngest winner of the Cy Young Award in American League history. Saberhagen, 21, was earlier voted the Most Valuable Player in the World Series.

Asked to list his biggest thrill, Saberhagen gestured across the room to his wife and son, Drew William, who was born the day before he pitched the Royals to an 11-0 victory over St. Louis in the deciding seventh game of the World Series.

"Drew William is definitely No. 1 with me," he said. "You can't beat that."

New York Yankees ace Ron Guidry, 35, who went 22-6 with a 3.27 earned run average, was runner-up to Saberhagen. Bert Blyleven of Minnesota finished third in balloting by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

SABERHAGEN, IN just his second year in the major leagues and third year out of high school, had an earned run average of 2.87 for the season and 0.50 in World Series games 3 and 7.

"This is great for me and great for Kansas City," he said at a news conference. With remarkable control and poise and sharp command of several pitches, Saberhagen had 158 strikeouts and issued only 38 walks.

"An award like this is definitely a team award," he said. "If you don't have 25 guys fighting for you every time you go out there, then you don't have a chance."

Saberhagen surpassed Vida Blue, who was 22 years old with Oakland in 1971, as the youngest Cy Young winner in AL history. The youngest ever to win a Cy Young was Fernando Valenzuela, who was a 20-year-old pitcher with Los Angeles in 1981.

Saberhagen admitted with a laugh that he may trouble topping his storybook season next year.

"I GUESS all I can do is try to win 21 games, win three World Series games and have twins," he said with a laugh. Nodding toward his wife, Janeane, he added, "But Janeane says 'No.' She wants to be able to get out and see the World Series games in person next year."

Saberhagen said he was surprised at his big margin of victory in voting by two baseball writers in every American League city. He was named on 27 of 28 ballots and received 23 first-place votes, garnering 127 points to 88 for Guidry.

Guidry, who won the Cy Young Award after a 25-3 season in 1978, was the only pitcher named on all 28 ballots. Saberhagen was left off the ballot of Ray Sons of The Chicago Sun-Times, who voted for Blyleven first, Dan Quisenberry of Kansas City second and Guidry third.

"I was definitely surprised. I thought it would be a lot closer than that," Saberhagen said of the voting.

Guidry, in a statement released by the Yankees, said: "I'm glad for Bret Saberhagen. He had a good year. We were both instrumental in helping our teams compete for the championship, although they finished first and we were just close."

"My main concern at the beginning of the year was just to have a good year," Guidry said. "I wasn't thinking of winning any awards. It's certainly no shame to lose out on this award to a pitcher who had the kind of year that Saberhagen did and I congratulate him."

JOHN SCHUERHOLZ, Royals general manager, appeared with Saberhagen at the news conference and admitted, "The success we've had this year is almost hard to comprehend."

"None of it would have been possible without a lot of hard-working and dedicated players like Bret Saberhagen. We're very proud of him," Schuerholz said.

Saberhagen said his goals for the season were much more modest than the achievements he finally realized.

"I was hoping for 14 or 15 victories and an ERA around 3.20," he said. "At the beginning of the year Mark Gubicza (another Royals pitcher) and I were joking about the fact that we had a Cy Young incentive clause in our contract — that we would get bonus money for winning the Cy Young. Who would have imagined it would have come true for me?"

"That's what we said," said Schuerholz with a laugh.

Saberhagen said he knew around the All-Star break that might be en route to a special season.

"But I didn't want to get ahead of myself," he said. "I just took it one batter at a time, one inning at a time, one game at a time."

THE YOUTHFUL right-hander said he planned to work hard in the off-season to come back a better pitcher.

"My curveball and my slider aren't where I want them to be," he said. "There's always room for improvement. Maybe I can put on a few pounds and throw the ball a little harder next year."

Saberhagen is the first Kansas City pitcher to win the award and only the fifth from the American League West. He was the fifth-youngest pitcher in major-league history to win 20 games.

Mustangs' resurgence too late for 2-4A playoffs

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

To their credit, the Andrews Mustangs did their part in completing the playoff puzzle in District 2-4A in their favor last Friday. The problem is the rest of the district didn't comply.

The Mustangs, despite the joy of a 16-13 upset of Lake View, faced the reality of playoff elimination when Monahans defeated Snyder, 22-19. It gave Andrews a 2-0-1 record in its last three games, a record more similar to the one it had hoped to post in 1985. On the season, the Mustangs are 4-4-1, 3-2-1 in district play.

Much of the credit for the Andrews turnaround goes to the rejuvenation of the Mustangs' offense, thanks to quarterback Danny Neighbors. Neighbors has thrown off the pressure that seemed to limit his performance in the early part of the district season. In non-district play, Neighbors was hitting 52 per cent of his passes. Neighbors was expected to move the ball in the air, both by the Mustang coaches and by opposing defenses.

THE OPPOSITION began to key on the senior quarterback and his effectiveness fell dramatically. In the first three district games, Neighbors struggled, falling to 29 percent, including a dismal two of 15 against Sweetwater.

To counter, Andrews has found moving the ball on the ground the way to a successful passing attack.

Fullback David Criswell has sparked a running game that has helped the Mustangs control the ball in the past three games, giving the defense more of a chance to rest. Criswell has gone over the 100-yard mark in four of six district games while taack Ruben Salcido has added some quality yardage.

The return to the running game has rendered Neighbors more effective when he has gone to the air. While his completion percentage is not high (41 per cent), his passes have begun to go for more yardage in the past three games — 17.5 per completion compared to 13.2 earlier. In effect, Neighbors has become the big play threat Andrews has hoped he would.

It just came a little too late for the Mustangs.

Penn State next to walk the plank

Associated Press

The college football season is far from over and, like it or not, Penn State is the fifth team this season to hold the No. 1 ranking.

Following Saturday's 31-10 victory over Cincinnati, Coach Joe Paterno said: "As I've always said, nobody's anything until the season's over. That's exactly the way I feel about it."

Nevertheless, the Nittany Lions, 9-0 with regular-season games remaining against Notre Dame and Pitt, replaced Florida, which had been No. 1 for the first time in the 50-year history of the Associated Press poll and held it for just one week.

Penn State, second a week ago, received 44 of 59 first-place votes and 1,143 of a possible 1,180 points Monday from the AP's nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Meanwhile, Florida lost to No. 17 Georgia 24-3 and plummeted from first place to 11th.

The rise to the top capped a season-long climb for Penn State, which was 18th in the preseason poll, 19th in the first regular-season poll and has since been 11th, 10th, ninth, eighth, sixth, third and second. Oklahoma, Auburn, Iowa and Florida had previously been ranked No. 1 this season.

NEBRASKA, WHICH crushed Iowa State 49-0, moved up from third place to second with nine first-place votes and 1,083 points. Ohio State trounced Northwestern 35-17 and went from fourth to third with two first-place votes and 1,021 points.

Air Force, the nation's only 10-0 team, rose from fifth to fourth with two first-place votes and 941 points by routing Army 45-7 and Iowa went from sixth to fifth with 905 points by walloping Illinois 59-0.

Miami of Florida, a 29-22 winner over Maryland, vaulted from eighth place to sixth with 891 points. The remaining two first-place votes went to Oklahoma, which held onto seventh place with 883 points with a 51-6 romp over Missouri.

Michigan moved up from ninth to eighth with 744 points by drubbing Purdue 47-0, Arkansas leaped from 12th to ninth with 662 points by downing No. 11 Baylor 20-14 and Oklahoma State, which turned back Kansas State 35-3, remained in 10th place with 646 points.

THE 20 teams in this week's poll are the same as last week, with some shuffling.

The Second Ten consists of Florida, Georgia, UCLA, Auburn, Florida State, Brigham Young, Baylor, Tennessee, LSU and Alabama.

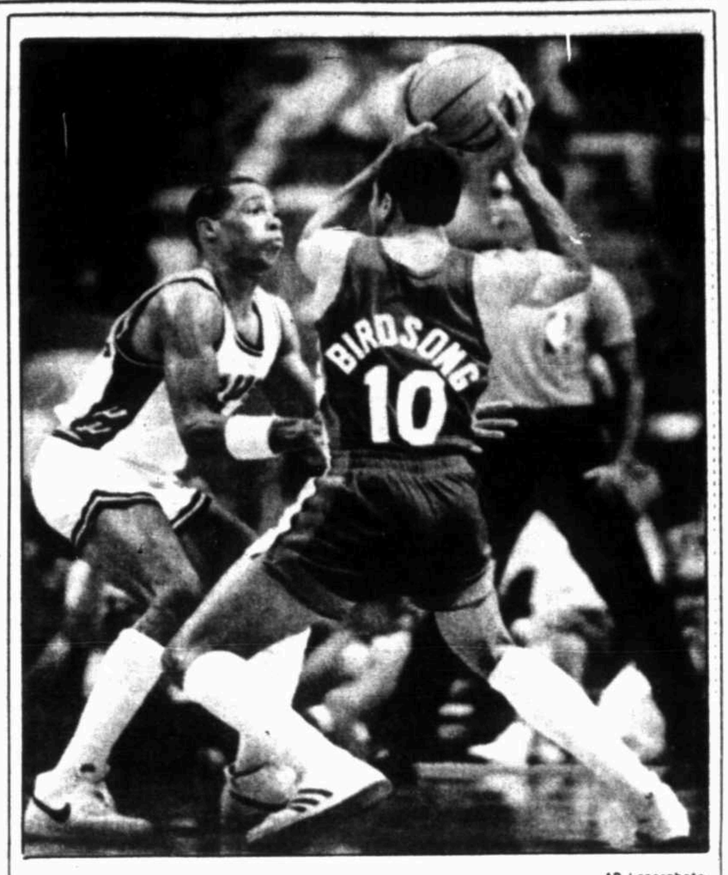

Last week, it was Baylor, Arkansas, Auburn, UCLA, LSU, Florida State, Georgia, BYU, Tennessee and Alabama.

'Rambling Wreck' from Georgia Tech edge Tar Heels in preseason cage poll

Associated Press

Georgia Tech, which fell in a regional final last season, was chosen as the No. 1 team in The Associated Press preseason college basketball poll released today, one of five Atlantic Coast Conference teams in the Top Twenty.

The Yellow Jackets received 28 first-place votes and 1,192 points from the nationwide panel of writers and broadcasters, edging North Carolina, the team Tech beat 57-54 in the ACC tournament championship game last season.

The Tar Heels, who received 13 first-place votes and 1,148 points, were followed by Michigan, one of two Big Ten teams in the Top Ten. Michigan had 13 first-place votes and 1,141 points.

Syracuse, one of two Big East teams in the Top Ten, was next with 936 points, followed by Kansas, four first-place votes and 921 points; Duke, the third ACC team, two first-place votes and 911 points; Illinois of the Big Ten, one first-place vote and 847 points; last year's national runner-up, Georgetown of the Big East, one first-place vote and 824; Louisville of the Metro Conference, 687; and Auburn of the Southeastern Conference, 670.

Georgetown, which has been in the NCAA championship game three of the last four years, was the top team in last year's preseason poll and held that spot for all but five weeks of the season.

Top 20 Basketball

THE SEC was the only other conference to have more than two representatives in the Top Twenty as Kentucky, which finished 11th, and No. 14 Louisiana State were also selected by the 63-member board of voters.

Kentucky, now coached by Eddie Sutton, was ranked 18th in last year's preseason poll. But the Wildcats lost four of their first five games and weren't ranked again the rest of the season, despite advancing to the West Regional semifinals of the NCAA Tournament.

Notre Dame, the only independent in the Top Twenty and one of seven teams to receive first-place votes, finished 12th and received the other first-place vote. Oklahoma was next, followed by Louisiana State, Memphis State, a Final Four team last year; Alabama-Birmingham; North Carolina State of the ACC; Nevada-Las Vegas; and, tied for 19th, Maryland of the ACC and Navy, schools 25 miles apart.

Seven teams in the preseason poll — Louisville, Auburn, Kentucky, Notre Dame, Alabama-Birmingham, Maryland and Navy — were unranked in the final poll last season.

IN ADDITION to the Big East and Big Ten, two other conferences have two representatives in the poll, the Big Eight with Kansas and Oklahoma, and the Metro with Louisville and Memphis State.

Last year's national champion, Villanova, is unranked, as is St. John's, a fellow Big East school and Final Four participant. Both teams lost several key players to graduation.

Villanova was also unranked going into the NCAA tournament last season.

Mitchell lifts Spurs

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — All San Antonio Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons wanted from a hurting Mike Mitchell was "a try."

Mitchell gave it a try and also presented Fitzsimmons with a victory.

The 6-foot-7 forward, who had fluid removed from his knee for the second time in eight days last Saturday, scored 30 points — eight in the fourth quarter — Monday night to lead the Spurs to a 111-104 National Basketball Association victory over the New Jersey Nets.

"Mitchell gave us a great effort. He amazes me with those knees hurting but he never misses a game," Fitzsimmons said.

Mitchell keyed a fourth quarter rally that iced the game for the Spurs. He scored four of the nine points in the key streak, giving San Antonio a 13-point lead, 96-83, its largest of the game with six minutes remaining.

SPURS FORWARD Steve Johnson credited Mitchell's play with helping the Spurs take the victory.

"The big key tonight was Mitch coming out hen promoters' fears of a mob scene cut short the visit of the character made famous by the cartoon series, "He-Man and Masters of the Universe." The appearance of a big, blond, scantily clad man posing as the cartoon hero was sponsored by local television station, K.T.X.S-TV, and the Mattel Company. Sheila Washington, the mother of a disappointed five-year-old, said the crowd was so large, her daughter couldn't even see He-Man when she perched on the shoulders of her six-foot-five father's mate 0-4 on the road. "We gave them a lot of easy baskets," Wohl added.

The Spurs' defense held Nets fowards Mike O'Koren and Mike Gminski to a combined two points in the first half, as the Spurs jumped to a 54-47 halftime lead. Mitchell, averaging near 20 points a game, had 18 points at halftime, 10 in the second quarter.

FROM THAT point on, the Nets never came closer than four points — at the start of the fourth quarter — as the Spurs boosted their record to 5-4.

Flyers try to catch breath after mishap

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Just for a moment stark realism crept into the grief surrounding the tragic automobile accident that left Philadelphia Flyers' All-Star goaltender Pelle Lindbergh "brain dead."

"I know it sounds morose but we need a goalie," General Manager Bobby Clarke said Sunday, shortly after arriving at John F. Kennedy Memorial Hospital in Stratford, N.J.

Clarke and other Flyers' executives met Monday to consider the impact on the team of the loss of Lindbergh, the National Hockey League's top goalie last season and the heart of the Flyers. Meanwhile, his parents, who flew in from his native Sweden, were asked to decide whether or not to cut life support systems that are keeping Lindbergh alive.

The 26-year-old Lindbergh, who came to the United States in 1980 after playing on the Swedish bronze medal-winning Olympic team, crashed his $117,300 Porsche sports car into a cement wall in Somerdale, N.J. Sunday morning.

THIS YOUNG team, which lost to the Edmonton Oilers last season in the Stanley Cup final, skated freely because of its confidence in Lindbergh. His consistency and amazing saves covered many mistakes by teammates.

A hockey team can recover quickly from the loss of a defenseman, a wing or center, but standout goaltenders are as hard to come as invaluable antiques.

How do the Flyers replace an NHL All-Star player who led the league last season with 40 victories?

At a news conference Monday, Clarke said, "We know what we have to do. We're going to have to bring in another goalie. Obviously it's going to be tough on whoever we bring in. There's going to be scars left on a lot of players. As bad as we all feel, we can't use this as an excuse not to contiunue."

FLYERS' PRESIDENT Jay Snyder said, "As for the impact on the team, in a week or two we'll sit down and decide what's right for the team. It's such a shock that we haven't thought about anything else."

But Gary Darling, assistant general manager, said backup goalie Bob Froese would be Lindbergh's replacement.

Darling said of Froese, who in his third year with the Flyers has a 64-19-9 record, "He has the best record of any active goalie in the NHL. The players have a lot of confidence in him. We feel he can do the job."

Darling said Froese was comparable with Lindbergh when both were on their game.

Saints switch QB to turn the tide

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans Saints Coach Bum Phillips says he'll bench quarterback Dave Wilson this Sunday at Green Bay and start with Bobby Hebert in an effort to snap the Saints's five-game losing streak.

"I'm not saying (the switch) is because we're not unhappy with what Dave's been doing," Phillips said, "because Dave's certainly not responsible for an offensive lineman not picking up a stunt or a defensive back not covering the right guy."

Phillips said Monday that if the struggling 3-7 National Football League team doesn't make a dramatic turnaround, he thinks owner Tom Benson should find a new coach.

"If we don't win five out of these next six ball games, then he has got to make a change," Phillips said.

The Saints, who have lost their last five games, have three road games (against Green Bay, Minnesota and St. Louis) and three home games (against Los Angeles, San Francisco and Atlanta) remaining.

When asked if he would really step down, Phillips replied, "Yep, I think you'd have to."

"Obviously if the year continues like it is, I would be the first one to go to him and say, 'Tom you've got to make a change,'" Phillips said.

A change is already in the offing for the Saints. Former U.S. Football League star quarterback Bobby Hebert draws his first NFL starting assignment Sunday at Green Bay, Phillips said.

Hebert played out his contract with the Michigan Panthers of the USFL and signed a $3.5 million contract with the Saints in August. He has been working with the scout squad, behind starter Dave Wilson and last year's starter Richard Todd, since the regular season began.

Sunday, after the Saints' 27-3 loss to Seattle, Phillips said he would start Todd or Hebert against the Packers. On Monday, he said it would be Hebert.

Hawks cash in on extra man for 5-4 win

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Murray cashed in on a controversial power-play chance 53 seconds in the overtime period to snap the Chicago Black Hawks winless streak at four games in a 5-4 win over the New york Rangers in National Hockey League action Monday night.

"It was a questionable call," said Rangers Coach Ted Sator, alluding to a holding call on Ranger center Ron Greshcner late in the third period at Madison Square Garden.

"We needed this one," said Chicago Coach Bob Pulford. "Until tonight, the breaks haven't been going our way."

Bob Murray's goal 53 seconds into overtime cashed in the power-play opportunity for the Black Hawks. But even the winners had to agree that the situation was questionable at best.

As it turned out, it was only the seventh power-play opportunity for any NHL team in overtime this season and the first that was converted.

After the Rangers went ahead 4-2 early in the third period on Kelly Miller's second goal of the game, Chicago came back to tie it on goals by Behn Wilson and Sutter.

Canucks 5, Red Wings 0

Goaltender Richard Brodeur notched his second straight shutout against Detroit and defenseman Rick Lanz connected on two power-play goals as the Canucks beat the Red Wings and ended Detroit's unbeaten streak at five games.

Brodeur stopped 20 shots as the Canucks controlled play with their skating and scored four times with the man advantage. Brodeur was in goal Oct. 31 in Detroit when the Canucks also won 5-0.

Dow Jones soars

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial average, bolstered by surging stock prices, climbed to a record high as the stock market extended its bullish rally of recent weeks.

The Dow Jones average, best known of the stock market indicators, soared 27.52 points Monday from its record close of Friday to finish the day at 1,431.88, its biggest gain since a 34.01-point jump on Jan. 21.

Stocks gaining in price outnumbered those declining by more than 3-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

The gains came despite the absence of traders at many banks and other businesses closed in observance of Veterans Day. The New York and American stock exchanges also interrupted trading at 11 a.m. EST for two minutes of silence in observance of the holiday.

—2.1555 Swiss francs, up from 2.15475

Businessmen urge Mexico to limit debt payments

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A prominent business group is urging the Mexico government to renegotiate the nation's $96.4 billion foreign debt to limit payments to the amount of money it earns on non-petroleum goods sold abroad.

Such an approach could cut sharply into the amount of money Mexico pays annually on its debt.

Mexico is expected to pay about $10 billion in interest costs on the debt this year. During the first half of the year, it earned $3.5 billion on sales of its non-oil exports to other countries.

The proposal by the National Chamber of Manufacturing Industry reflects the growing impatience of developing countries with the stiff debt payments that officials say hinder growth of their economies. Peru's President Alan Garcia, for instance, has proposed limiting that country's debt payments to 10 percent of its export earnings.

Carlos Mireles Garcia, director of the National Chamber of Manufacturing Industry, told local reporters Sunday that restricting the payments to earnings on non-oil exports would let Mexico put more money into developing its troubled economy.

Mireles said he discussed the plan during a just-completed trip to Washington, D.C., where he said the proposal was met with "much interest."

"We industrialists made the proposal to the president (Miguel de la Madrid) to renegotiate the foreign debt; the proposition was accepted with much interest and is going to be studied by the United States," he was quoted as saying in the newspaper Excelsior.

"We have proposed the fundamental renegotiation with the promise of giving only the earnings of exportations of non-petroleum products," he said.

"This would give Mexico the chance to increase the foreign commercial accounts and to generate, as a consequence, increased quantities of foreign exchange," he said.

It was unclear whether the government has made the group's proposal part of talks it is currently holding with the International Monetary Fund on a new aid program to help with its financial woes.

Calls to the Treasury Department were not returned. Mireles could not be reached for further details.

Mexico is heavily dependent on sales of its oil to bring in needed revenues to pay the debt but weak prices on the world market have reduced those earnings. Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog said in a message to bankers last month that Mexico now expected oil revenues of $14 billion this year, about $2 billion less than originally projected.

In addition to the debt, Mexico's economy is strapped with high inflation and a large budget deficit.

Dawson suffers revenue loss in fourth quarter

From Staff Reports

Dawson Geophysical Co., the Midland-based seismograph exploration firm, has released operating results for the fourth quarter and 12 months of fiscal 1985, ended September 30.

The company suffered a loss of $206,000 or $.07 per share on revenues of $2,361,000 during the fourth quarter of fiscal 1985. This compares to revenues of $4,011,000, and an income loss of $52,000 or $.02 per share during the same quarter in 1984.

For the year, the company lost $504,000 on revenues of $10,381,000, equalling a loss per share of $.17. For fiscal 1984, the company reported net income of $649,000 on revenues of $13,340,000, for earnings of $.22 per share.

L. Decker Dawson, president of the company, attributed the company's losses to a very competitive seismic industry. "We've had a fair amount of business, but we're bidding against each other, and the job seems to be going to the lowest bidder," he commented.

"Our volume," he noted, "is not much different from 1984. Our losses reflect pricing in the seismic industry. There's a lot of competitive forces, and prices are getting lower."

"I think we did well to only lose a half-million dollars," he commented.

He stated that he doesn't see much change in the situation in the near future, but he feels the company is in a strong enough financial position to weather the downturn, he said.

"We will try to operate profitably by reducing operating costs, and we're planning to improve the quality of our services, and to stay abreast of developments in seismic technology," Dawson said, adding that there are no plans to lay off employees at the moment.

Dawson founded the company in 1952, and currently employs 160 people, with offices in Midland and Denver, Colorado.

The speaker will be Dr. Daniel Womochel, professor of geology at UTPB, whose presentation is entitled "Early Man in East Africa."

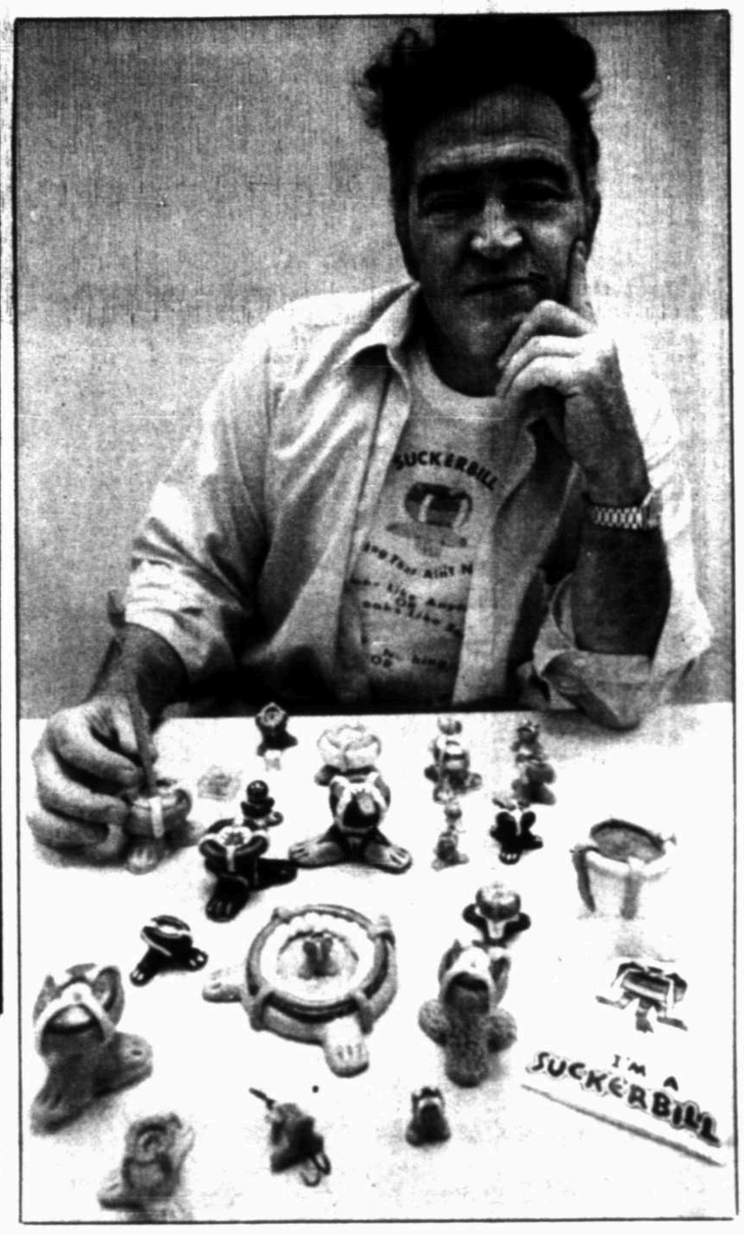

The lecture will include a discussion of the geology and paleoecology of East Africa from the Miocene to the present and a summary of how the geological events that occurred in the area may have influenced the development of hominids and the preservation and dating of their fossil record.

Dr. Womochel worked with Dr. Richard Leahy in Northern Kenya during 1976, and holds a Ph.D from Texas Tech University.

The meeting begins with cocktails at 6:30 pm. followed by dinner at 7:30 pm., at a cost of $12.50 per person. Reservations may be made by calling the West Texas Geological Society at 683-1573.

Entrepreneur Harold McLean creates his Suckerbills at his Odessa home. The three-legged, four-armed, all-lips creation was inspired by a driller he knew. McLean hopes to sell the creations in the Permian Basin and enjoy the same success as the pet rock had several years ago.

Odessa entrepreneur creates next 'pet rock'

Super-fast driller inspires original 'Suckerbills'

By DEANNA NEAL
Business/Oil Writer

ENTREPRENEURS

What is blue, pink, yellow and green, has three legs, four arms, and the potential to make Odessan, Harold McLean a millionaire? The answer is a "Suckerbill".

So you ask, what is a Suckerbill? According to the originator, Harold McLean, a former roughneck and contract welder, a Suckerbill is: "Something that ain't nothing but looks like anything. Or anything that looks like something but ain't nothing. Or nothing that anything might think is something. Now that is a Suckerbill."

McLean, 49, who once shot pool with Burt Reynolds in a movie and has an inclination for the offbeat, says the original suckerbill idea came from a driller he once knew. "He was all lips and legs," said McLean, "and I called him a suckerbill."

The name "suckerbill" caught on with all the roughnecks in his crew so he took the unconventional appoach of creating a character to go with the word. He was assisted in developing the concept by Odessa cartoonist Gordon Bankston, who encouraged him to market the Suckerbill. McLean says the first outlandish Suckerbill was formed from play dough, with his super-fast driller — the one with four arms, three legs and all lips — serving as the inspiration.

He has applied for and received his trademark as well as copyright protection on the word and his phrase and has a patent pending on his Suckerbill design.

He also wrote a song about his product that begins with a rooster crowing. The song has been playing on two area radio stations and it is his hope that the song and the word become so well-known that everybody will want to own one. "Anytime some one hears a rooster crowing, maybe they'll think of my song and my word and that could be the cheapest form of free advertising there is," McLean joked. He said the disc jockey who first played the record called him "brain damaged."

After getting the word and the song some publicity, McLean's strategy is to start marketing miniature Suckerbills that he has hand-molded out of play dough.

He explained that the Suckerbill would be an ideal gift for anyone who has everything or for anyone who might have a disagreement. Right now all his products are handmade and painted, but eventually, if things begin to move the way he expects, he will design molds where the items can be mass-produced. Coming in almost any color and varying in size, the finished product is treated with a special solotion that keeps it from cracking or breaking.

McLean, who will put his plan into action with the placing of a greeting card stand in an Odessa mall in the near future, says the ideas for marketing his Suckerbill are endless. He has Suckerbill tee shirts, ash trays, pencil sharpeners, cologne decanters, greeting cards, fishing lures and flower pots. And these are just a few of his ideas. Long term plans even include the building of a plant to manufacture suckerbills. And when things are going well and the Suckerbill Corp. is a booming success? You guessed it: the Suckerbill Building, in the shape of a Suckerbill.

Why is McLean so sure his idea will work? "Anytime you can get something to catch the public's eye you can go to town! I just know this will work. People are curious and they want to know what this thing is."

"My wife thinks I'm crazy and my son wants to disown me," he jokes, "but when I start bringing in all that money they'll be singing a different tune!"

McLean hopes to see the day soon when he can give up his welding business and go into the business of selling Suckerbills full time.

For those who think him crazy, McLean has a word of warning: "Remember the pet rock!"

If the idea doesn't work, it won't be because its inventor does not have faith in it. McLean feels almost 100 percent certain that if someone can sell a pet rock he can sell a Suckerbill. And the idea is just crazy enough that it might work. And if it doesn't, it won't be said that Harold McLean did not have fun trying.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Muse Air to become TransStar Airlines in February

DALLAS (AP) — Muse Air, recently acquired by Southwest Airlines, will become TransStar Airlines Corp. on Feb. 17, airline officials say.

Ron Thornton, vice president of sales and marketing for Muse, said Monday the first planes with a new paint scheme and logo will be unveiled Jan. 13 and the rest of the fleet will be repainted by April 1.

"We are changing our name because we are introducing a new airline emphasizing low coach fares coupled with high quality passenger service," Thornton said. "The new name reflects the geographical swee of 'Trans' plus the shinging 'Star' quality."

Southwest purchased financially troubled Muse Air for about $65 million in June and operates it as a separate, wholly owned subsidiary.

Tipperary to sell half interest in six plants

Tipperary Corporation announced that it had entered into a contract to sell a 50 percent interest in the company's six gas processing plants to a private company for a cash consideration of $7,150,000 effective November 1, 1985. At the same time, the company announced that it had entered into a contract to sell its 100 acre refinery site near Ingleside, Texas, for $3,500,000 with a close prior to December 31, 1985. The refinery plant and equipment will be relocated and mothballed for future sale.

The sale of the assets is part of the company's financial restructuring plan and the proceeds from the sales will be used to further reduce the principal balance of the company's bank debt.

Bass group ups shares of Taft Broadcasting

CINCINNATI (AP) — A group led by Texas investor Robert M. Bass says it has increased its investment in Taft Broadcasting Co. and now owns 11 percent of the Cincinnati-based company's outstanding shares.

"That's correct," Taft spokeswoman Jenny Young said today when asked about the Bass group's investment. "We're taking them at their word that it's for investment purposes."

The Bass group said in a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission that it now holds 992,725 Taft shares. Between Sept. 13 and last Thursday, the group purchased 171,800 shares at prices ranging from $75.87 to $81.87 per share, according to the SEC filing.

IRS gets budget boost to improve operations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thanks to a last-minute change of heart by the Reagan administration, the Internal Revenue Service is getting a budget increase to help avoid a repetition of this year's snafu on processing returns.

Congress has completed action on a bill appropriating $3.69 billion to the IRS for the budget year that began Oct. 1. That is $112.7 million above the level originally recommended by the administration when it sought to force the IRS — like other federal agencies — to take a cut as part of the deficit-reduction effort.

Lawmakers disputed the logic of cutting the IRS, which raises more than 90 percent of the government's money and which is trying to narrow the $100-billion-a-year gap between what people owe in taxes and what they pay.

Clearinghouse releases gas spot market prices

HOUSTON — The U.S. Natural Gas Clearinghouse released its survey of domestic spot market prices for natural gas for November. Prices for the current month range from a low of $2.00 per MMBtu on several pipeline systems to a high of $2.15 per MMBtu on the Columbia Gulf system and the Northern Louisiana portion of the Texas Gas Transmission system.

November prices declined from 5 to 10 cents per MMBtu across the board from those survey prices reported for the previous month. The decline in prices is primarily attributable to the seasonal drop in demand for the month of November.

Location still not set for proposed farmers market

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

The concept of a farmers market in Midland to bring added income to cotton-poor farmers and to offer consumers produce fresh from the farm may turn into a reality.

But Midland County Commissioners on Monday were hesitant to offer county facilities to house the venture.

Commissioner Durward Wright said during a regular meeting of the Midland County Commissioners Court, that he feared the less visible facilities, such as the Midland County Exhibit Building, would "not be a good long-term location."

Midland County rancher Timber Floyd and horticulturist Guy Richards proposed the concept of a farmers market in Midland to County Commissioners last July. The duo speculated that the idea, if it turned into reality, would bring added income to cotton-poor farmers and would offer consumers "quality" produce fresh from the farm.

The proposal arose after about 40 Midland County farmers gathered at the Midland County Texas Agricultural Extension Service Building to discuss crops. About 15 farmers indicated an interest in growing produce to supply a farmers market. Farmers markets operate successfully in such cities as Dallas, Houston, Lubbock and San Antonio.

"It could become the hub of the agricultural community," said Richards, who already has developed a market for his produce at a restaurant and grocery store.

Floyd, who ranches southeast of Midland in the Spraberry area and has considered hydroponic farming by growing vegetables in nutrient-rich water, said, "It can be a good market for the community. It can produce some good income for the farmers."

Midland County Extension Agent Earnest Kiker, who is promoting the idea, told commissioners, "We're hoping to begin in the spring" and operate four days per week — two days in Midland, and two days in Odessa.

Kiker said farmers ideally would stagger their growing of winter, summer and fall vegetable crops to extend the market season. Then the farmers would develop a site or sites for the shaded or open-air market for their farm products.

Farmers have considered setting up a sales market somewhere along the heavily traveled Loop 250 or in one of the city's shopping centers, Kiker said.

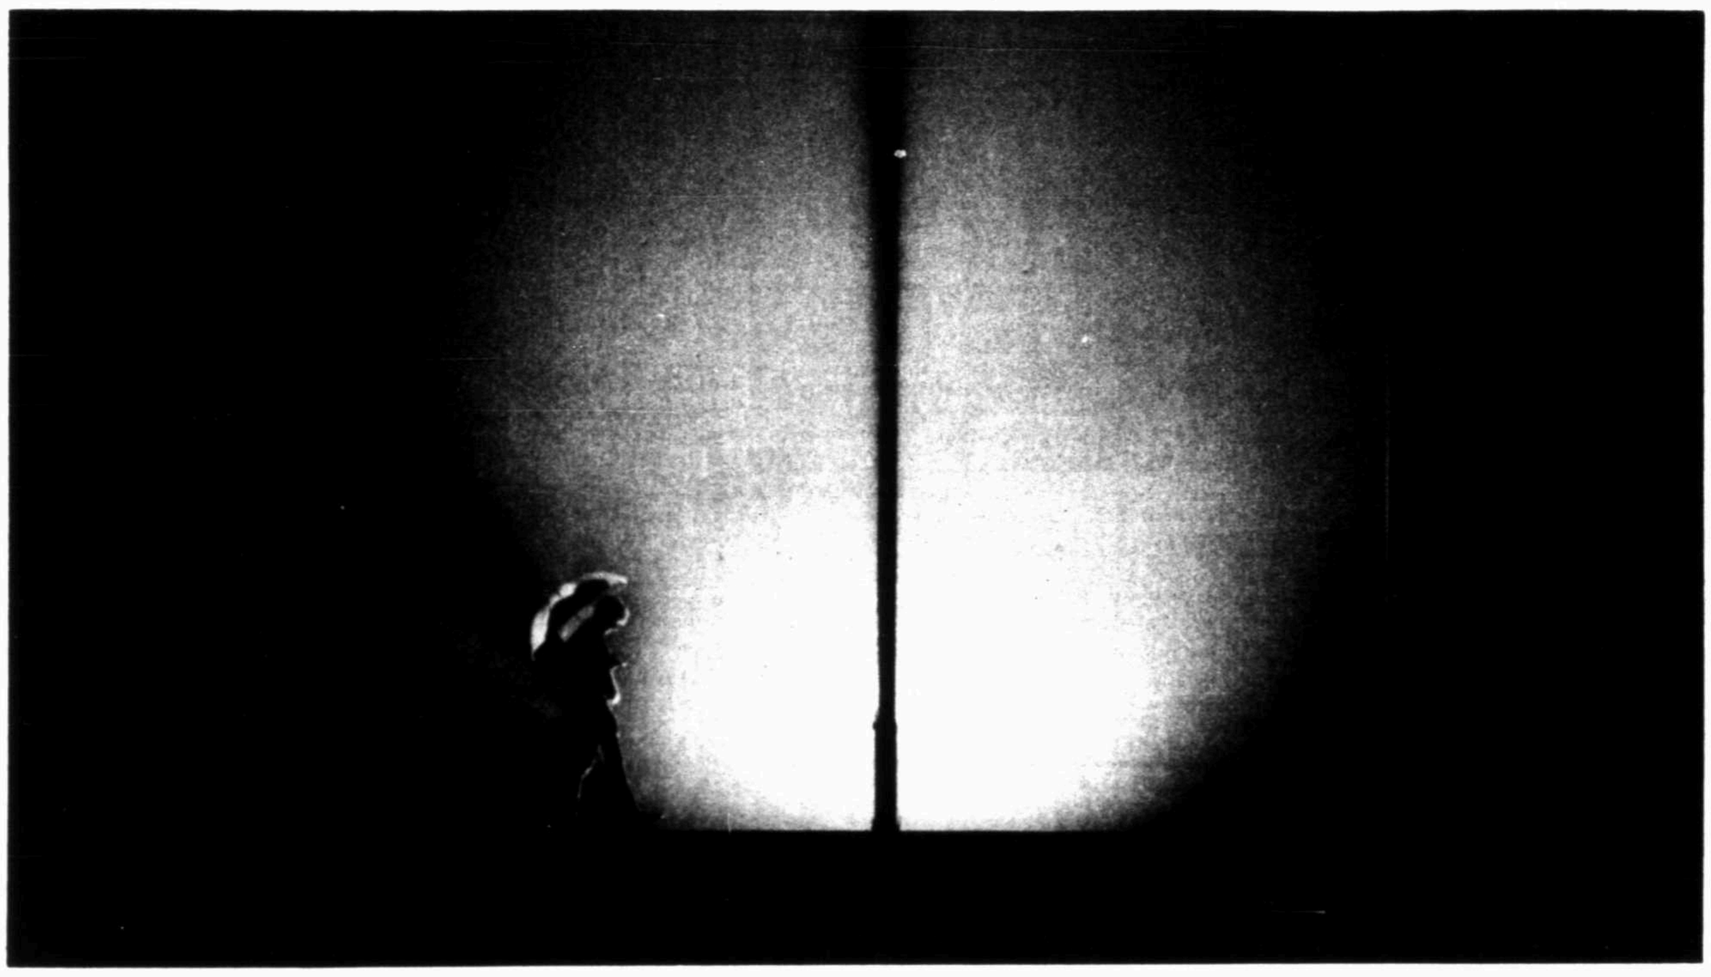

But Wright warned that some city council members may veto more favorable sites along the loop because the city's zoning laws provide for enclosed retail sites and not for open-air or partially closed buildings.

He suggested that the Midland County Exhibit Building "might be a good place to start."

"I see no reason not to begin it out there," said Wright, "but, I don't think it would be a good long-term location."

Commissioner Wally Craig agreed as he expressed his desire to establish the market in a "more highly visible location."

Said Wright: "The only thing we can give you is the Exhibit Building and, beyond that, our hands are tied."

Ex-Midlander to conduct seminar on heart disease

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Shyaam Menes Shabaka went all over the world lecturing on the prevention of heart disease. But it wasn't until he attended the funeral of his mother in Midland that he realized that there was trouble on the home front.

Shabaka, born Willie E. Ellis, came home in February after his mother had died of a heart attack and discovered that other relatives and friends were having heart problems as well and didn't have a good understanding of cardiovascular disease prevention.

"That's when I decided to do something about it," said Shabaka from his Berkeley, Calif., home where he is director of the Chronic Disease Health Promotion and Prevention Program.

"Heart to Heart," a two-day session of three prevention workshops, was the result. It will be held Friday from 10 a.m. to noon, Saturday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and is sponsored by Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., Black Advisory Council, Delta Sigma Theta, Inc., Midland Y.M.C.A., Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church, Mt. Carmel Baptist Church and others.

Shabaka, who was further encouraged to speak out in his home community after yet another recent family illness, stated that the workshops are "open to the public, but aimed primarily at black individuals."

"My father was out visiting me about two weeks ago and his blood pressure was so high that I had to put him in the hospital," he said. "Blacks are at more of a risk of having high blood pressure and cardiovascular diseases stemming from the high blood pressure than are whites."

The workshops will be the first time Shabaka has come back to Midland on official business.

"Midland's my home," said the doctoral candidate who has been in numerous health-related positions including extensive travel in Africa where he acquired his new name. "I always came back to relax. But I knew that something had to be done."

According to Rommie Ellis, Shabaka's sister, high blood pressure runs in their family, "which is common for black families," she said.

Shabaka and the American Heart Association agrees that high blood pressure is a problem for blacks.

"One out of four black adults has high blood pressure," said Shabaka. "The average for whites is about one out of seven."

According to the AHA, black Americans are almost 45 percent more likely to have high blood pressure than whites and suffer strokes at an earlier age with more severe results.

"Statistics also show that black Americans have higher death rates from strokes than white Americans," said the AHA. "This may be a result of the greater prevalence of high blood pressure among blacks."

Shabaka stated that many of the same factors affect both blacks and whites.

"Smoking is, of course, the leading cause of high blood pressure in any group of people," he said. "Poor dietary habits, obesity, lack of exercise and mental stress are others."

He added that excessive fat in the diet and obesity (especially in black women) were particularly heavy problems.

Several factors, however, appeared to have more serious affects on blacks, said Shabaka.

"The mental stress from social conditions are extremely important," he said. "Unemployment, low wages, not being able to meet the bills — all these can cause stress."

Still another kind of stress affects blacks exclusively.

"The racism that blacks have historically encountered in this country from slave days on just adds to the problem," said Shabaka.

Another problem for blacks stems from their African heritage.

"Most blacks back in the slave days came from Africa where salt was very scarce," he said. "Consequently, over the years their bodies were able to retain high amounts of sodium since they weren't able to get it that often."

"Today, with poor dietary habits, blacks continue to retain far more salt than they should," he said.

The AHA included another heart disease-related problem for blacks.

"Sickle cell anemia, a disease that is prevalent among black Americans can also increase the chance for a stroke," said an AHA report.

Shabaka added that not only is high blood pressure more prevalent among blacks, but the death rates as a result of heart attacks are higher, as well.

"It's about two to one," said Shabaka. "The survival rate for blacks is definately less than for whites."

Shabaka attributed the difference to lack of education — not recognizing a heart attack."

"When my mother had her heart attack the family thought it was just indigestion or something," he said. "It's just a lack of understanding. You need to know what's happening before you think to call an ambulance."

Standard of living may keep many from getting the proper care quickly enough, said Shabaka.

"Although state law provides health care for all regardless of the ability to pay, many blacks may not realize that they don't necessarily have to be able to afford the ambulance service or hospital care," he said. "Of course they will still get billed and should pay if they are able but this should not stop them from getting proper care."

Ector commissioners deal with marquee, drainage problems

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A contract that apparently fails to establish ownership of the electronic marquee and drainage problems in the newly constructed Exhibit Building G occupied much of the time of Ector County Commissioners Monday.

Commissioners decided to let a district judge determine whether the county or Home Savings Association, which has had advertising rights since 1975, own the marquee.

The marquee has been inoperative for several months since water damaged the control panel.

Commissioners Monday had been expected to approve an agreement under which marquee advertising rights would be purchased from Home Savings for $14,900, then the county would be free to replace the marquee and seek a new advertiser.

The decision to go to court came after it was learned a $12,000 damage payment would be paid to the owner of the sign and Judge Jan Fisher noted the contract fails to clarify ownership of the marquee, which sits in front of the coliseum on Andrews Highway.

Fisher suggested resolution of the ownership be left to a district judge.

The responsibility for an error in construction of the $500,000 Exhibit Building G, that has resulted in drainage problems that cause the new bulding to flood, prompted commissioners to withhold final payment from HBF Corp. until a study can determine responsibility.

The drainage problem apparently occurred because of differences between the building's finished floor levels and the asphalt surrounding the exhibit building.

Architect Bob Covington claimed he gave the contract a "benchmark" grade level to work from. But, a one inch difference between the building's finished floor and outside asphalt allows flooding during heavy downpours.

Court members tabled final approval of the project until a study can determine who will bear the cost of resolving the problem.

In other action Monday, Commissioners approved a State Department of Highways & Public Transportation order calling for construction of a mile of Yukon Road between FM 1882 (West County Road) and West Loop 338. The one-mile section of Yukon Road will be widened to accommodate four-lane traffic. The project involves expenditure of some $233,000 in federal funds. Completion of the project will make Yukon Road multi-lane between East Loop 338 and West Loop 338.

November 12ths are not just more ho-hum days

And you thought it was just another ho-hum day.

True, Tuesdays and Nov. 12ths are no highlight in anyone's calendar, but there is action out there if you know where to look.

For example, did you know that at this very moment, millions of people are in the dark.?

That's right. Blackness.

Today, unbeknownst to most Midlanders, the sun has been blotted out for four hours and four minutes due to a natural phenomenon known as the total eclipse of the sun.

Of course, you will have to high-tail it to Perth, Australia; Montevideo, Uraguay, or some other southern hemisphere location to see it since the eclipse is only visible in that part of the world.

Speaking of celestial events, today marks the beginning of the new luner phase. At 9:20 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time), we got a brand new moon. See, things are already getting more exciting.

And because of that new moon, people all over the world are awash in yet another event — the Perigean Spring Tides.

Now, don't ask me why the Spring Tides come in November. Rather, ask the editors of Contemporary Books Inc. who put out Chase's Annual Events — the supplier of all this dramatic trivia.

"The highest possible tides occur when New Moon or Full Moon takes place within 24 hours of the moment the moon is nearest Earth (perigee) in its monthly orbit Nov. 12 at 8 a.m., E.S.T.," say those folks.

See, there's waves of exciting things happening that you weren't even aware of. So don't be hasty to dismiss this Tuesday as just another dull day.

An entire country over in Europe is well aware that today is special.

On this date in 1929, their beloved late princess of the House of Grimaldi was born in Philidelphia, Pa. Better known as Grace Kelly to millions the world over, she died from injuries suffered in a car accident on Sept. 14, 1982.

The day that Princess Grace was born, Mirza Husayn Ali would have been 112 years old if he had lived that long.

Don't ask any member of the Baha'i faith who Ali is. He's their founder — the prophet known as Baha'u'llah — who was born in Nur, Persia in 1817. The Bahai's, based in Wilmette, Ill. these days, haven't forgotten him.

Neither is Tuesday, Nov. 12 an ordinary day for serious students of sculpture.

Auguste Rodin (pronounced ro-dan), the famous French sculptor was unveiled on this date in 1840. He died Nov. 17, 1917. (If you've ever seen a re-run of "Dobie Gillis", then you are familiar with Rodin. Dobie always meditates in front of a rude imitation of "The Thinker" — Rodin's most famous work.)

While Rodin was in his prime, a humble Chinese woman in the Kwangtung Province of China gave birth to what she thought would be an ordinary, humble (and honorable) Chinese son. Wrong.

Honorable, perhaps; humble, never.

On this date in 1866, Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, the "Father of the Revolution" was born. Sun's revolutionary movement against the Manchu dynasty and his "Three People's Principles" led to the eventual establishment of the Chinese Republic, of which Sun served as president until his death in 1925. Twenty-four years later, a disciple, Chiang Kai-Shek, embracing Sun's philosophy, left China in the hands of another dynasty — the Communists — and established the Republic of China on Formosa (Taiwan).

Still think today's nothing to dress up for?

Neither did Elizabeth Cady Stanton, the suffragist who was born on this date back in 1815. Not content with letting the men wear the pants, Ms. Stanton fought for womens' rights until her death on this date in 1902.

Perhaps this day would be more of a red-letter date to most of us if it were Nancy Reagan's birthday, but to folks back in the 1840's, it was similarly important.

Letitia Christian Tyler, wife of President John Tyler, was born on this date in 1790.

There. All sorts of exciting things have happened and are happening on Tuesday, Nov. 12. Kind of makes you wonder what's in store for tomorrow, doesn't it?

Education committee to study skills tests for college students

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Combining mandatory basic skills tests for college students with strong remedial programs for those who fail reduces dropout rates, members of a committee studying mandatory testing in Texas learned Monday.

Florida and Georgia now require college sophomores to pass basic skills tests before advancing to their junior years. New Jersey requires its students to take a basic skills exam upon entrance.

A special Texas College and University System Coordinating Board committee is studying different types of mandatory tests and will make a recommendation to the 1987 Legislature.

Although college students in New Jersey do not have to pass a test to graduate, all students must take a basic skills exam upon entrance. Institutions then use the test results to place students in the appropriate levels of study. A 1977 New Jersey law requires colleges to offer remedial programs to students who do not meet the basic skills requirements and to report on the effectiveness of the programs.

Test results indicate that of the freshmen who entered New Jersey's institutions of higher learning, 33 percent lacked proficiency in verbal skills, 47 percent lacked proficiency in computation skills and 60 percent had failed to master elementary algebra. "I suspect that any state which went into a testing program with the same standards would show the same results," said Anthony Lutkus, director of New Jersey's testing program.

But students who lacked proficiency and completed remedial programs experienced lower dropout rates than students who did not complete remediation or even students who did not need it.

For example, 70 percent of the students entering college in 1982 who did not need help in the basic skills areas were still attending in fall 1984. Seventy-five percent of the students who needed and received remedial help stayed in school. By contrast only 39 percent of the students who needed but did not complete remedial programs remained by fall 1984.

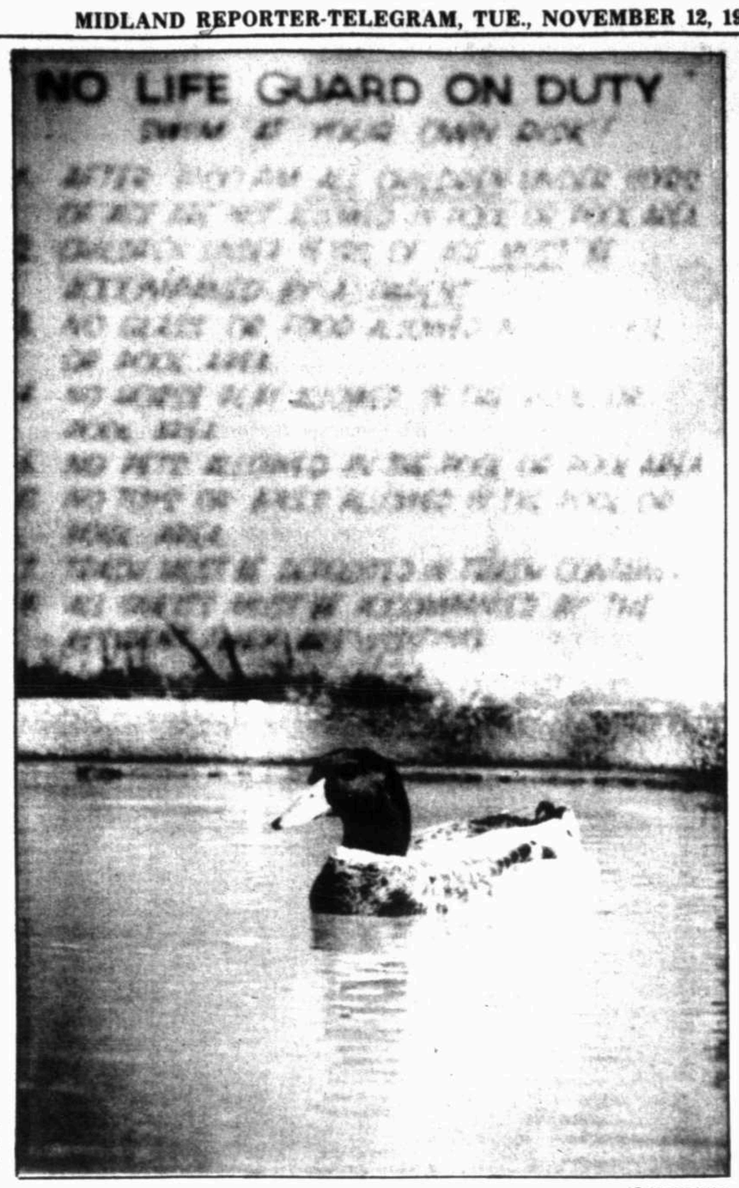

"This data says to us that you better have a student complete remediation in a given time if they're to have a good chance of getting a college degree," Lutkus said.

Myron Blee, director of Florida's College Level Academic Skills Test Project, told committee members that teachers are more aware of what their students should be learning because of the test.

In Florida, students who fail the test must take community-college-level courses to learn the basic skills necessary for upper-division work. "They take other courses, get ready, and take the test again," he said.

Under the Florida requirement, students who fail the test and do not participate in remedial programs are ineligible for financial aid.

In Georgia, which in 1972 became the first state to require mandatory tests, 70 percent of the students who took the reading test for the first time passed, while 60 percent passed the writing test.

Fran Nobles of the Stop Smoking Clinic points out that you can successfully quit smoking in just FIVE DAYS. The key to this FIVE DAY program is the focus on breaking the psychological need as well as the physical. Call 682-7333 to find out more.

Stop Smoking Clinic helps smokers quit in just five days

Just FIVE DAYS is all it takes to quit smoking with the Stop Smoking Clinic's program, and it's guaranteed. So, call 682-7333 to find out more.

The Great American Smoke Out on November 21 is not far off. Fran Nobles of the Stop Smoking Clinic says if you are serious enough to quit for one day it's okay to ask for help to make it permanent.

The Stop Smoking Clinic, located in Mission Square, can give you the help that will make quitting so much easier and permanent. And if you call 682-7333 and tell them you read this article you will get a discount, even you if wait until after the holidays to go through the program.

The program's success is due to the dual focus on a smoker's physical and psychological needs. Though the physical addiction can be broken in a matter of days, many smokers forget about dealing with the psychological dependency. That's why some people report that they gain weight, stutter or become very nervous after quitting.

Ms. Nobles, a former smoker, points out that the Stop Smoking Association's program is different in that it deals with the psychological needs of clients along with the individuals' physical needs. The program centers around a guaranteed, aversion-type therapy which does not use drugs or hypnosis.

Because the habit is established by association of pleasure or reward, the habit must be broken in the subconscious. The Stop Smoking Clinic deals with this association so that their clients don't experience the severe withdrawal often caused by quitting "cold turkey." People that go through this program report that they are able to quit without gaining weight.

Experts say the first step to quitting is to stop ignoring the health dangers and accept smoking as a personal problem that must be conquered.

For example, studies have shown that just exposure to a "smoking environment" makes a tremendous difference in the body. Thus, smokers' children generally have more respiratory disease illnesses than other children.

Not only do smokers' children suffer with respiratory problems, they are also more likely to begin smoking early in life because of a desire to imitate their parents and obtain adult status.

Fran Nobles, a former smoker who started the Midland Stop Smoking Association franchise, went through the program in January of 1984. She says one of the most surprising benefits of quitting was the change in skin texture. The improved oxygen flow makes the skin look better.

This increased circulations also makes the ex-smoker less tired and more alert. The pulse rate slows, blood pressure drops and heart efficiency is increased. Even long-time respiratory problems like "smoker's cough," chronic bronchitis and "hacking" cease.

Once you have decided that you want to quit, the FIVE DAY program at the Stop Smoking Clinic can help.

Adventure Travel expert says Mexico still great place to go

Whether you have always loved Mexico for its charming rural life or the sophistication of the capital city, now is no time to stop going. Patsy Welmaker, owner of Adventure Travel in Oak Ridge Square, assures travelers that Mexico, even Mexico City, is still ready for tourists despite the tragic earthquake in September.

Though Mexico City suffered drastic damage, it was limited to a small area. In fact over 67 percent of all the hotel rooms in the city sustained no damage and an additional 17-plus percent suffered only minor damage.

Likewise, in Ixtapa 66.7 percent of the hotel rooms are back to normal. And, Acapulco experienced no damage despite a few small tremors.

Ms. Welmaker also sites the fact that all 53 jet airports in Mexico are continuing normal operations, as are the vast majority of restaurants in Mexico City, keeping Mexico as one of the top vacation spots in the world.

Moreover, only three out of 102 movie theaters were destroyed. All the sports arenas, aquariums, forests, gardens, sports clubs, zoos, amusement parks and spas in the Mexico City area are intact.

For those who like an active night life, all the restaurants, discos, nightclubs and beaches are open in Ixtapa.

In case you have been concerned about contaminated water or food, you will be glad to hear that the Panamerican Health Organization has issued a clean bill of health for Mexico.

So with the temperate year-around climate, the time is right to let Adventure Travel help you plan a vacation in Mexico.

The experts at Adventure Travel offer a number of hints. Mexico offers such a wide variety of experiences and sights to see that the first thing you need to do is decide the type trip you want. Do you want to relax or do you prefer a swinging resort scene? Perhaps, you'll vote to tour all the unusual sights. Even if you want a combination of all these, the travel experts say don't try too much too quickly.

To make your trip as smooth as possible, let Adventure Travel make your hotel and transportation arrangements well in advance. Also obtain your Tourist Card in advance and have a sufficient amount of travel checks and $1 bills before you depart for your fun vacation in Mexico.

If you want to experience Mexico outside of the big tourist cities, Adventure Travel can help you plan a trip to a relatively undeveloped beach.

So, don't let the earthquake discourage you from enjoying Mexico on your next trip. Call 683-4211 and Adventure Travel will plan a trip for you to one of the untouched, beautiful places in Old Mexico.

The professionals at Adventure Travel are ready to make reservations for your next trip to Mexico or anywhere in the world. Call one of these experts: Polly Welmaker (left to right, front to back), Charmaine Hackney, Amy Leach, Patsy Welmaker, Roberta Timinskas and Dana McKay.

Cheapy Car Lease... Lease to own easy way to buy inexpensive car

LEASE TO OWN is the easiest and simplest way to buy an inexpensive car. If you have a permanent address, CHEAPY CAR LEASE will lease you a car TO OWN.

For a small down payment and low weekly or bi-weekly payments, you can be driving a CHEAPY CAR in just a matter of minutes.

Bill Buttry, owner, states that their problem is not putting their cars out, but finding enough nice cars to buy. Cheapy Car Lease is continuously looking for nice clean cars to buy ('79 and older) so they can provide inexpensive transportation to more people.

Who are the people that use Cheapy's lease to own? Families that need a second car. Students returning from or going away to college; nurses, secretaries, waitresses and first-time car buyers.

Cheapy doesn't want anyone to be without transportation. It is their objective to provide you with the car of your choice. Go by 4400 W. Highway 80 at the corner of Midland Drive and Highway 80 West service road and let them show you how simple it is to drive off in a CHEAPY CAR LEASE CAR.

Joy Employment is Midland's top-notch full service agency

Joy Employment, 1408 W. Wall, is a COMPLETE employment service agency, supplying all your personnel needs including temporaries, payrolling services and permanent staff.

With combined personnel industry experience of 18 years, the Joy professionals have become well known for permanent placement of top-notch professional candidates. This year they have expanded their services to better serve their clients. Now these professionals with proven abilities offer Joy Temporaries and a payrolling plan.

Joy Employment takes your company's needs seriously. That's why they will soon have a 24-hour call service. You won't have to wait until they open at 8 a.m. to get a temporary on the way to your office.

This individually-owned company has the flexibility it takes to specialize in supplying unique services tailored to the individual needs of a company, explains Betty Shelly, owner of Joy Employment.

Ms. Shelly explains one aspect of this. "We're not locked into a rate schedule." Joy temporary placement experts will find out exactly what skills are required by a company and charge only for those skills. They don't try to fit your company and its needs into a little box. They realize your needs are unique and they are ready to fill those needs with a qualified temporary.

All of Joy's temporaries are screened through a validated testing program. References are checked on each temporary and interviews are an important part of the Joy Temporary screening process. These placement experts know their temporaries and can custom tailor their services to meet your needs.

Joy Temporaries feature experienced support staff for the medical and oil and gas professions.

The payroll plan is ideal for companies that prefer to spend their own money to generate the candidate and desire to retain control of the employee. Yet, for a very small mark up Joy Employment will take care of all the payrolling.

Whether your need is for payrolling, temporaries or top-notch permanent staff, call the FULL SERVICE Employment Agency - Joy Temporaries at 687-0793.

The professionals at Joy Employment, 1408 W. Wall, now offer temporaries and payrolling services along with permanent placement. Call Paula Bledsoe (seated), Kolleen Becker (left) or Jean Jones at 687-0793 for all your personnel needs.

Midland Minor Emergency Center offers convenience, quality care

Midland Minor Emergency Center, with two convenient locations, is equipped to meet your minor medical and surgical emergencies. Located at 2310 W. Ohio (across from the Midland Memorial Hospital Emergency Room) and in Westwood at 4334 W. Illinois, these facilities offer quality medical care that fits your schedule.

Charles Chalfant, M.D., of the 2310 W. Ohio location, points out that minor emergency centers are a relatively new concept. Designed to handle minor emergencies and illnesses, this type of center was first introduced in the mid 1970's.

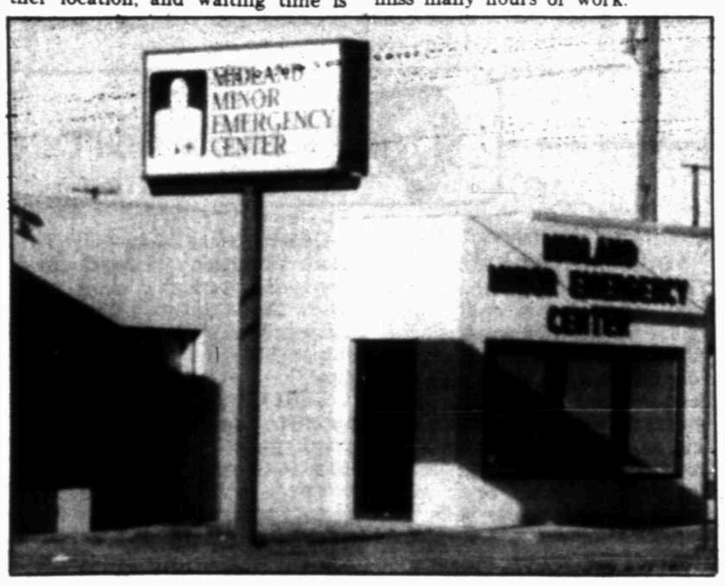

"We fill a gap because conventional doctors are not in their office all the time," says Chalfant. While conventional doctors must make rounds at the hospital, physicians at the Midland Minor Emergency Center can be totally dedicated to the patients at their office.

Moreover, "we don't feel like we're really in competition with the hospital emergency room. We fill a need for the minor problems and they fill a need for the major problems," Chalfant continues.

Thus, Midland Minor Emergency Center helps you keep the cost of minor emergency care down and the waiting time as short as possible.

The center across from the hospital emergency room has plenty parking space on the east side and is open seven days a week, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. The hours at the Westwood location are Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

No appointment is required at either location, and waiting time is usually 20 minutes or less according to Chalfant. This helps individuals get the medical care they and their children need, without having to miss many hours of work.

Midland Minor Emergency Center (pictured here), located just North of the Midland Memorial Hospital Emergency Room, is open seven days a week to meet your minor emergency and illness needs. Their second location is in Westwood Plaza.

Pre-employment and insurance physicals can be easily taken care of at either location. The friendly office professionals at both locations will gladly handle your workman's compensation claims and medical insurance claims (once your deductible has been met). MasterCard and Visa are acceptable forms of payment.

Most importantly, you can depend on quality medical care. Chalfant, who has been practicing medicine for 26 years, says Bob Gross, M.D. will be joining the center in December.

"We spend as much time as we need to with each patient... We try to emphasize the quality and do practice good medicine," Chalfant says.

Laboratory and X-Ray facilites are on the premises.

The entire staff at Midland Minor Emergency Center goes the extra mile. "We try to be friendly and open and receptive to their (patients) problems. We want them to be happy with the service we provide," Chalfant continues.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, November 13, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: You can make something good truly great if you really apply yourself. Get better organized. Engineer situations that will work to your financial advantage. Say only positive things in public. Loved ones make the best confidants. You find an innovative solution to an unusual problem. A May-December romance could bring great happiness. Follow your heart. If a tax question arises, immediately seek expert advice. A plea of "ignorance" will not gain any sympathy. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: actor and Players Club founder Edwin Booth, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis, Scottish author Robert Louis Stevenson, actress Jean Seberg, actor Dack Rambo.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Curb cash outlays or you could be caught short if an emergency arises. Socializing with prominent people is good for your business or career. A compromise draws you and a partner closer together.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Others respond favorably to your ideas now. Reveal your true feelings to a business or romantic partner. Do not try to hold loved one too tightly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pay more attention to loved ones' needs. Shoppers find many bargains. Avoid taking sides in an office or family dispute and you will not be blamed if a split becomes final.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An excellent time for collective enterprises and teamwork. Look for new ways to conserve time, energy and money. A family member's interference could slow you down later today. Curb your temper!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not let a stubborn streak hamper progress. Someone who has annoyed you in the past makes a conciliatory gesture. Accept this person's overtures with good grace.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A career or financial matter could cause frustration. Work on your own whenever possible. A child will provide some of the day's best moments. Keep your emotions under tighter control.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Careful budgeting offers you the best chance of straightening out a financial mess. Isolate yourself when you need to concentrate on complex tasks. Member of opposite sex means well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your needs will be fulfilled if you exercise greater patience. Careful attention to detail is the key to success. Dig for the real facts. Member of opposite sex's presence could prove distracting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money matters capture your attention. Mate wants to help but needs to know all the facts. Avoid acting on impulse. A romantic interlude is a source of happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keeping abreast of the times helps you beat some stiff competition. Modernize as well as economize. Following a well-intentioned friend's advice could cause embarrassment. Trust your own instincts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Defer to mate or partner's wishes where a financial matter is concerned. A temporary personal sacrifice will prove very worthwhile. Give more thought to real estate opportunities. Seek a professional's opinion.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone could impose on you today. Be polite but firm. Romance occupies your thoughts. Exercise self-discipline and you will pass a test with flying colors. Travel is best postponed.

Opening lead: King of ◇.

The bridge expert seems to do the impossible as if it were commonplace. He has to think a bit before he can accomplish a miracle.

East's weak two spade opening bid did not sway North-South from their heart slam. As a passed hand, North could afford to show his strength with a cue-bid of the enemy suit, and thereafter nothing could stop South from driving to slam once the heart fit was confirmed.

Had West led a spade, the hand would have been over quickly. Declarer would win, discover the 3-0 heart break, then lead twice toward his king-queen of clubs. In the process declarer would draw trumps, discard a diamond on a high spade and ruff his losing club in dummy.

After the lead of the king of diamonds, the hand required more careful play. Declarer must resist the temptation of taking an immediate discard on the high spade because of the danger of a ruff. Since East almost surely has the ace of clubs for his vulnerable opening bid, a better line is to play East for having the ace guarded no more than twice.

Declarer must win the ace of diamonds and draw all the trumps, in this case taking three rounds of the suit. Now he cashes dummy's two high spades, sluffing his diamond loser, and leads a club from the table.

East must duck the club, and the queen wins. Declarer counters by leading a low club from hand. The defenders can win cheaply, but declarer ruffs the diamond return and ruffs a club on the table. When this fetches the ace from East, the slam is home.

'Passport to Music' auctions trips to benefit Carnegie Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress-comedian Lily Tomlin, who starred in the movie "Nashville," bid $5,500 for a Grand Ole Opry vacation during "Passport to Music," an auction to benefit Carnegie Hall.

Ms. Tomlin kicked off the auction Monday night with remarks from "Mrs. Beasley," one of her comic characters, before bidding on the package, which will include tickets to the Country Music Awards next October.

Game-show host Chuck Barris spent $15,000 on a trip to Jerusalem in June that will include an evening with the Israeli Philharmonic and lunch with Ambassador and Mrs. Yehuda Zvi Blum.

Proceeds from the benefit — with ticket prices up to $1,000 — will help finance the renovation of the 94-year-old music hall.

NEW YORK (AP) — William Perry has run for a touchdown, caught another and blocked for two in the past two weeks, but the man they call "The Refrigerator" really romped through the lines fed by late-night host David Letterman.

"Are you tired?" Letterman asked during Monday's taping for the show that aired this morning.

"Not really," replied Perry, the Chicago Bears superstar who had his best defensive game of the season with five tackles and two sacks in a 24-3 win over the Lions Sunday. "Detroit didn't give us much of a struggle."

The major question for the 302-pounder was about food.

"I eat one meal a day," said Perry, who has spent a lot of his time dieting since he becoming Chicago's first draft choice last May. "A salad and steak."

Letterman nearly fell off his chair. What about the 48 beers Perry was said to have ingested in one sitting?

"You know how it is. You were a freshman in college once."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. will be offstage for at least four to six weeks while he recovers from reconstructive hip surgery, his publicist says.

Sammy Davis Jr.

Davis, 59, was reported in excellent condition after surgery Monday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, said hospital spokeswoman Paula Correia. "He's doing great," said Ms. Correia, associate director of public relations.

Eugene Harris, an orthopedic surgeon, repaired damage typically found in athletes and dancers, said publicist Arnold Lipsman. The entertainer was hospitalized Nov. 1.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Princess Caroline of Monaco says she's attended Gian Carlo Menotti's Italian Spoleto festival to showcase young artists, and would be thrilled to attend the twin festival here.

Princess Caroline

The princess, eldest daughter of Prince Rainier and the late Princess Grace, on Monday compared Menotti's festivals with work of the Princess Grace Foundation, which sponsors a "Bal de la Rose" (Ball of the Rose) benefit for its work with artists.

The ball each spring honors a rose and its city of origin. Charleston and the Charleston Rose will be honored next March, she said, calling it "one of our most beautiful social events. It announces spring. It's our first big spring ball."

The princess was here to set up a committee of prominent residents "who will try to get people interested in coming over to Monaco" for the ball.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Singer Barry Manilow says that in the wake of devastating floods he "just can't take any money from West Virginia," so he will donate to the Red Cross his $10,000 fee for a concert here tonight.

Barry Manilow

Manilow made the decision Monday after viewing damage and reading news accounts of the flooding — West Virginia's worst ever — that left more than a dozen people dead or missing, said publicist Michael Ameen in Los Angeles.

Ameen quoted Manilow as saying, "I've been thinking about what to do since we booked the show in West Virginia and the tragedy happened. I just can't take any money from West Virginia, so instead I'm going to give it back."

Ortega wants treaty to halt U.S. 'aggression'

WORLD

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The leftist Sandinista government has rejected the latest Contadora peace plan for Central America, saying its failure to prohibit U.S. military maneuvers in the region would pose a threat to Nicaragua.

President Daniel Ortega's announcement Monday was the first official reaction to the new plan from any Central American government.

Ortega said any regional peace treaty should include "a new protocol directed solely at the government of the United States" requiring Washington to "cease its aggression in all forms against Nicaragua and promise not to initiate similar actions in the future."

He described U.S. manuevers in neighboring countries as "preparatory steps for real and concrete future actions of aggression against Nicaragua."

"In the judgment of the government of Nicaragua, the absolute, immediate and categorical proscription of international military maneuvers...is a position of irrenouncable principles," Ortega said.

The Contadora nations — Mexico, Panama, Venezuela and Colombia — have been trying since January 1983 to negotiate a treaty among Nicaragua, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica.

The Contadora group's first peace plan fell apart one year ago when U.S. allies in the region objected to several provisions, including one calling for the immediate removal of foreign advisers.

The latest plan was presented Sept. 12 to the Central American nations with a Nov. 21 deadline to sign or reject it. The Contadora nations had been optimistic having a treaty signed by the end of November.

Colombia's Foreign Minister Augusto Ramirez Ocampo has said that the review period was "nothing more or less than a countdown for peace in Central America."

The new plan would require the closing of foreign bases in Central American countries and removal of all foreign military forces, freeze the purchase of new weapons, prohibit further military buildups and ban support by governments of guerrillas fighting other regimes in the region.

Each country would be limited to one joint military maneuver or training exercise annually, involving a maximum of 3,000 soldiers. The provisions commit each country to respect press freedom, permit political pluralism and hold free elections.

Ortega claimed that some parts of the new plan favor the United States, which reportedly had pressured its allies to reject last year's proposal. Nicaragua endorsed the first proposal.

He said earlier drafts would have halted all foreign military maneuvers in Central America while the new version merely limits their size and frequency.

Ortega also complained about a provision he said would freeze armaments and troop strengths of regular armies at the moment of signing, leaving irregular forces untouched.

An immediate freeze would be to the disadvantage of Nicaragua, which has been fighting the U.S.-backed anti-Sandinista guerrillas known as Contras since 1981, he said.

Ortega suggested resurrecting a provision from last year's proposal, which would have imposed the freeze 30 days after the treaty was signed.

Negotiators from the Contadora group conceded in September that the plan left several touchy issues open to debate, but said the proposal was the best hope to date for peace in Central America.

Walesa predicts Polish violence

OXFORD, England (AP) — A message purported to be from Solidarity founder Lech Walesa predicted an "escalation of hatred" and widespread violent protests if Poland's communist authorities continue policies of repression.

The message, which British sources said was smuggled out of Poland within the past few days, was read Monday to the Oxford Union, the Oxford University student debating society, by Lord Chapple, former general secretary of the electricians' union. Walesa is an electrician at the Lenin Shipyards in Gdansk.

The sources spoke on condition they not be identified.

"Protests in the streets of Polish cities show that we are neither short of courage nor of determination," read the message. "There are many people in Poland who are not afraid of a confrontation with the brutal units of the Ministry for Internal Affairs."

The message also called on Western leaders to speak out on the issue of Polish repression. "An impression must not be created that the world does not care about human rights in Poland," it read.

Solidarity, founded in August 1980 during nationwide strikes, was the first free union movement in the Soviet bloc. It was suspended in December 1981 when martial law was imposed, and was outlawed the following year. Many Solidarity leaders since have been imprisoned.

Walesa, 42, was awarded the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize. He recently was charged with slandering the government for contesting official voter turnout figures in last month's Parliamentary elections, but has not yet been tried.

The message attributed to Walesa read: "We try to keep our struggle nonviolent. But the scale of the repressions and the arrogance of the authorities in the face of society's authentic aspirations may one day provoke an outbreak on a gigantic scale."

It added, "Usually there are protests which break out spontaneously and this illustrates there exists a permanent danger of a violent, massive outbreak of workers' protests, an outbreak into which all the aggression and hostility would be channeled."

"There are no guarantees that such a protest could be brought under control and given a relatively safe form. Rather, I would anticipate the escalation of hatred," it said.

The message called on Poland's government to begin negotiating with genuine representatives of the people.

"We know that the truth of the matter is that the government has no other solution, that in the long run the dialogue has to be taken up," it said.

In a section addressed to Western leaders, the message said it would be a mistake to try to build a lasting peace in Europe while ignoring the aspirations of 37 million Poles.

It said the imposition of martial law in Poland was a factor in the demise of detente and increased East-West tension.

Series of eighteen earthquakes rocking Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — An earthquake measuring 5.0 on the Richter Scale, the 18th to rock Indonesia in three days, hit the Jayapura area of the Irian Jaya province Monday, the meteorology agency reported. No casualties or damage were reported.

On Sunday, 16 temblors had hit the same region, and the strongest of them also registered 5.0, the Jayapura Meteorological Office said.

The epicenter of Monday's quake had not yet been located, but was estimated to be around Jayapura.

Another quake, the second in the eastern Nusatenggara capital of Kupang in West Timor in a month, shook that area Saturday night, the agency said Monday. It registered 5.9 on the Richter scale, and its epicenter was placed at 20 miles deep in the Timor Sea, about 93 miles southeast of Kupang, which is 1200 miles east of Jakarta.

An Oct. 23 quake was recorded 6.7 on the Richter scale with an epicenter in the sea, 160 miles southeast of the Kapung. It caused no casualties.

The Richter scale measures ground motion as recorded on seismographs. An earthquake of 5.0 can cause considerable damage in the local area. A 6.0 can cause severe damage.

Jewish outcry cancels play in West Germany

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — The city theater canceled after weeks of bitter debate a Rainer Werner Fassbinder play about a Jewish land speculator that was denounced as anti-Semitic.

Theater manager Guenther Ruehle said in a statement Monday that the play was being withdrawn two days before its rescheduled premiere "to preserve the inner peace of the city and to maintain the possibility of work of the theater."

West Germany's Jewish community strongly protested plans to stage the play "Der Muell, Die Stadt und der Tod" ("Garbage, The City and Death"), arguing that it would revive German anti-Semitism.

About 6 million Jews were killed before and during World War II by the Nazi regime of Adolf Hitler.

Twenty-five Jews climbed onto the stage and blocked the play's premiere in Frankfurt's Kammerspiele theater Oct. 31. The premiere was rescheduled for Wednesday, but Jewish groups said they would attempt to block all future performances.

There was no immediate response to Ruehle's announcement from groups that opposed showing the play.

"The conflicts surrounding the play have led to such a hardening of views that a critical perception is no longer guaranteed," Ruehle said.

"The debate is marked by an irrationalism, which results from crimes committed by Germans against the Jews and the fears of Jews arising from (these crimes)," he said.

The play is about a Jew who buys old residential housing in Frankfurt, tears it down and sells the property at a profit to developers who build high-rise buildings.

Argentines sentenced for role in 1982 Falklands War

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A prosecutor has asked the nation's highest military tribunal to sentence three former junta members to up to 12 years in prison for their role in the 1982 Falklands War that ended in Argentina's defeat by Britain.

Air Force Gen. Hector Canale, prosecutor for the Armed Forces Supreme Council, made the recommendations Monday during final arguments in what Defense Minister Roque Carranza has called the "most important military trial in Argentine history."

Canale recommended that ex-president and former army commander Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri and former navy chief Adm. Jorge Anaya receive 12-year terms.

He also called for an eight-year sentence for former air force chief Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo.

Italian bank robbers escape

ROME (AP) — Thieves emptied 280 safe deposit boxes at a branch of Italy's second largest bank before setting off an alarm and fleeing, police reported.

Officials of the Banca Commerciale said they could not estimate the losses from the Monday robbery until they received an inventory of the stolen items from depositors.

The gang apparently entered the bank by forcing a connecting door in an adjacent building, then used two sets of keys to get into the room housing the safe deposit boxes, officials said.

Mexico City factories to receive credit

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Home clothing factories and other small industries will receive easy credit to help restore jobs lost as a result of the Sept. 19 earthquake, the government newspaper El Nacional said Monday.

The program, approved by the National Reconstruction Committee, will provide working capital, funds for two months of salaries, credit for purchases of new equipment and postponement of payments due on previous loans.

An additional program will assist seamstresses who worked in garment factories destroyed by the earthquake and who have established cooperatives since the earthquake.
