

Hance vs. Doggett: A clear choice for Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — After finishing just 9 votes apart in the primary, the top two Texas Democratic U.S. Senate candidates are engaged in a tough runoff campaign marked by charges of mudslinging, distortion, hypocrisy and racism.

Conservative U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, whose opposition to amnesty for illegal aliens helped propel him to victory in the May 5 primary, faces state Sen. Lloyd Doggett in the June 2 runoff.

Doggett prefers the "progressive" label and says Hance is a one-issue candidate, but Hance contends Doggett is too liberal for Texas.

Doggett says Hance is too much like the Republican nominee, one-time "boll weevil" congressman Phil Gramm, a Democrat turned Republican. The winner in November will succeed Republican Sen. John Tower, who is retiring after 23 years.

The primary was one of the closest elections in Texas history. Out of 1.46 million votes cast, fewer than 1,600 separated Hance from the third-place finisher, former congressman Bob Krueger. Now, Hance and Doggett are scrapping for support from Krueger backers.

Hance, 41, is a West Texas lawyer from Lubbock who has served in the House since 1979 and co-authored of President Reagan's 1981 tax cut bill. He says his fiscal conservatism will have a broader appeal in the fall than would Doggett's liberal philosophy.

Most opinion polls, including his own, showed Hance running third in the primary race behind Doggett and moderate Krueger.

But in the final weeks, Hance launched an extensive, expensive television blitz focusing on his opposition to amnesty. He spent $300,000 in one week on ads that said Doggett and Krueger favored amnesty.

Doggett, 37, of Austin, is a former president of the Texas Consumer Association. He spent 10 years in the Texas Senate, championing bills

Some polling places combined

Some of the polling places open in the primary election will be combined for the next week's runoff, County Clerk Wanda Carter said.

Gray County voting places for the runoff election will be as follows:

Precinct 1, Lefors Community Center; Precinct 3, Grandview School; Precincts 4 and 5 (Alanreed and McLean), Lovett Library; McLean; Precinct 7, Horace Mann School; Precincts 8 and 9, Woodrow Wilson School; Precincts 2, 10 and 13, Gray County Courthouse (first floor); Precinct 12, Lamar School; and Precincts 1, 11 and 14, Pampa High School music room.

Besides the U.S. Senate race, Gray County will have a runoff between Precinct 3 Commissioner Jimmy McCracken and challenger Onis H. Price. The winner of the Democratic nomination for commissioner will face Republican Gerald Wright in November.

McCracken, facing his first opponents since taking office in 1984, fell 31 votes short of the total needed to win the party contest without a runoff. The incumbent received 214 votes in the primary. Price finished second with 142 votes. Challenger Ott Shewmaker helped force the Precinct 3 runoff by taking 102 primary votes.

dealing with consumer protection, labor issues, utility regulation and civil rights.

Doggett says he favors limited amnesty for aliens in this country for a long period of time, but that immigration is a bigger problem requiring a much broader solution.

He calls Hance a one-issue candidate who seized the issue only after a pollster told him it "would play" among voters. He has accused Hance of favoring the rich at the expense of Social Security recipients and others.

Both campaigns have spared the niceties.

"Quite simply, Kent Hance has chosen to run a single-issue campaign as a single-issue candidate on an issue that he's never done a single thing about. He's not even so much as given a speech during the five years he's been in Congress... much less authored a bill or an amendment to do anything about immigration," Doggett said.

"Lloyd Doggett says he could support (pending legislation) that would grant amnesty to illegal aliens who have been here no longer than two years. I think he is out of touch with the people of Texas on this issue," Hance said.

With Texas' sizable Hispanic population, others have gotten involved. Several Mexican-American groups criticized Hance for his statements.

"His inflammatory rhetoric about the 'flood of illegal aliens' borders on an outright racist appeal," said Willie Velasquez, director of the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project.

"No, I don't think Hance is a racist," Velasquez said. But he said Hance "has shamefully distorted the facts in this case and has achieved his intended goal. He has polarized the Texas electorate and has gotten the citizens of Texas to go at each other's throats over the issues."

Hance takes strong exception when accused of having a racial motive.

"The issue is jobs," he says, adding that minority youths often are the first to suffer when undocumented workers take American jobs.

"These jobs are taken from the people that are the least fortunate. See SENATE, Page two

Murder suspect indicted

The 31st Judicial District Grand Jury for Gray County indicted 14 Pampa residents Friday, including a suspect in the murder of a co-worker, a rape suspect and a suspect in the sexual abuse of a child.

Richard Lee Schreckhise, 20, of 916 S. Nelson, was indicted on a charge of murder in connection with the April 15 shooting death of Aaron Wade Lewis, 22, of 124 N. Nelson District Judge Grainger McIlhany set Schreckhise's bond at $100,000.

Also indicted by the grand jury was Sang Ho Cho, the operator of a Pampa restaurant-lounge. Cho was indicted on a charge of aggravated sexual assault in connection with the alleged rape of a girlfriend on May 12. Cho's bond was set at $10,000.

Randy Freudenrich was indicted on a charge of indecency with a child. A sexual assault by sexual contact with a little girl allegedly occurred on Aug. 20, 1983. Bond was set at $5,000.

Others indicted by the grand jury Friday and the charges and bonds include:

Billy Finley, burglary of a habitation on May 13, $10,000.

Harold Eugene McPherson, burglary of a habitation on May 13, $5,000.

Douglas Kent Beagley, burglary (enhanced) on April 9, $10,000.

Kenneth Bruce Lee, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle on April 13, $5,000.

Steven Jinks, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle on May 10, $5,000.

Michael Dan Boyd, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle on April 18, $5,000, escape on May 15, $2,500.

Freddie Romines, felony possession of marijuana on Feb. 2, $1,500.

Gordon Jack Addington, felony driving while intoxicated on April 28, $25,000.

Stan Knight Organ, failure to stop and render aid on May 3, $2,500.

Terry Dennis Harlan, burglary on May 9, $2,500.

Michael Hulin Helton, failure to stop and render aid on May 3, $2,500.

After hearing protest

State Board accepts Gray appraisal

Gray County property has been appraised much closer to actual market value than the state originally thought, according to Charles Buzzard, chief appraiser for the Gray County Appraisal District.

In response to a protest made by the county in April, the State Property Tax Board has agreed that the average county property is appraised at 87 percent of market value, rather than an earlier state estimate of 82 percent.

Buzzard received the state's revised estimate last week.

"It was one or two percent higher than we thought it would be," Buzzard said.

The county's original goal was to have the property appraised at 80 to 85 percent of market value by this year.

Earlier this year, the state tax board notified the appraisal district that Gray County property had not been appraised high enough to meet state standards and the valuations had to be increased.

But in a 51-page protest, Buzzard told the board that the state's property evaluation guidelines do not reflect the Panhandle's economic condition. His protest challenged state estimates of the value of property in the Grandview-Hopkins, Allanreed and Lefors school districts. He appeared before a review board April 16 to dispute state valuations in McLean and Pampa.

"They gave us a chance to clarify things," Buzzard said. "We know our county better than what the outside appraisers found. We wish they would do things differently."

Although Buzzard did not have a breakdown on the different districts, he did note the changes in the taxing entities.

The biggest changes came with appraisals of farm and ranch properties and commercial and industrial properties.

"But they improved on every category I protested on," Buzzard said.

The state estimate of Gray County's appraisal of single family property was raised to 77 percent of market value.

The state increased its estimate of the county's valuation of vacant lots to 61 percent of the market value.

Iran will stop attacks in gulf if Iraq agrees

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Syria on Saturday accused Iraq of trying to draw other Persian Gulf nations into its 3½-year-old war with Iran. Iran has promised it would not attack commercial ships in gulf waters if Iraq would also refrain.

Iraq said Friday that it destroyed eight more ships near Iran's main Kharg Island oil terminal but more than 24 hours later there was no confirmation of the reported strikes.

The Syrian government of President Hafez Assad issued a statement Saturday accusing Iraq of hitting commercial vessels in hopes of drawing other gulf nations into the conflict. It also said Iraq was "sabotaging Syrian efforts to ensure free navigation for all countries" in the gulf.

Iran's U.N. ambassador, Said Rajaie Khorassani, said Friday his country's air force would not hit gulf ships if Iraq abides by an expected Security Council resolution calling for a halt to attacks.

"If they abide, we will abide," said Rajaie Khorassani. He boycotted Friday's opening of a Security Council debate. The session resumes Tuesday. It was requested by six Arab gulf nations after earlier strikes hit Saudi and Kuwaiti tankers.

"Either there is security for all, or there is no security for anyone," Rajaie Khorassani told reporters at the United Nations. He refused to participate in the Security Council debate because the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council was seeking condemnation of Iran while making no mention of Iraqi attacks on shipping.

In Bahrain, Foreign Minister Sheikh Mohamed Bin Mubarak al-Khalifa said Saturday "What we want from the U.N. is (to note) that we are not in a state of war and we do not want to be part of it."

Iran is attacking our ships and affecting our imports and exports. We want the U.N. to produce a resolution to stop any aggression (and) try to accommodate parties for an agreement for peace."

Iranian Ambassador Khorassani says attacks could stop

Syria and Libya are the only Arab nations that support non-Arab Iran in its war with Iraq, which is a member of the Arab League.

Syrian Vice President Abdul-Halim Khaddam and Foreign Minister Farouk al-Shara went to Tehran last week to try to persuade Iran to negotiate an end to the gulf conflict. The Syrian officials met with Saudi King Fahd Saturday to give the results of their talks in Iran.

News office to close

The Pampa News office will be closed Monday in observance of Memorial Day.

While many other local businesses will be closed for the holiday, others will be open and hold special sales. See their advertisements in today's Pampa News for details.

Financial institutions and most government agencies will also be closed. However, the Gray County Clerk's office will be open all day for persons wishing to cast absentee ballots in the upcoming runoff election.

'Bonnie and Clyde' ride again

Couple charged with robbing a number of small-town banks

HALTOM CITY, Texas (AP) — An investigation into a 13-year spree of small-town bank robberies led to the arrests of a couple that fit the description of a modern-day "Bonnie and Clyde" team of bandits, authorities said.

Lawrence Edward Byrom, 55, and his wife, Alice Hart Byrom, 36, were arrested about 6 p.m. Friday on sealed indictments charging them on a federal count of conspiracy to commit armed robbery and on state counts of auto theft. Senior FBI agent Jim Adams said.

The pair appeared at a bond hearing Saturday afternoon. U.S. Magistrate Alex McGlinchy set bond on Byron at $250,000 and at $50,000 for his wife. Byron asked the court to appoint them attorneys and McGlinchy said that would be arranged on Monday. The couple is being held at the Tarrant County Jail. An arraignment hearing was set for June 4.

U.S. Attorney R.H. Wallace had requested bond be set at $100,000 on Mrs. Byrom, but her husband asked it to be lowered, saying "$100,000 for my wife is a little harsh. I was the ramrod of the whole show."

Byrom told the court he had $20 in his wallet and $200 in savings.

Officers who executed search warrants at the man's home and a rural Wise County residence found vehicles that had been reported being stolen and confiscated guns and clothing believed used in bank robberies, Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman David Wells said.

Documents used to obtain the warrants from a magistrate implicated the pair in bank robberies beginning in March 1970 and extending through November 1983, he said.

Wells said the arrests culminated a lengthy investigation by the FBI, DPS troopers, Texas Rangers and three other state law enforcement agencies.

"The estimated take in the robberies altogether will be about $500,000, with most of this taken in small towns," Wells said.

The man and woman were both armed when arrested, but they did not resist and no shots were fired, Wells said.

Federal authorities have said the so-called "Bonnie and Clyde" team is suspected of committing at least 14 bank robberies in North Central Texas.

Authorities have said the same man robbed four banks in Justin, Milford, Tom Bean and Prosper by himself between 1970 and 1974. The woman made her first appearance as a visible partner in a second robbery of the Justin State Bank in 1975. But it was not until 1980 that law enforcement authorities linked the string of robberies to the pair.

The pair is believed responsible for two robberies each of banks in Justin, Tom Bean, Milford and Rhome, authorities said recently.

FBI agents said the robbers followed the same method in each heist. All of the robberies occurred in towns with fewer than 1,000 residents and unlikely to have a local police officer.

The robbers stole a car several days before each robbery, usually from a new car dealership in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, and took plates for the vehicle, authorities said.

Entering a bank, the man did all the talking, witnesses said. He was armed with a Ruger 14 automatic rifle and the woman carried a shotgun, police said.

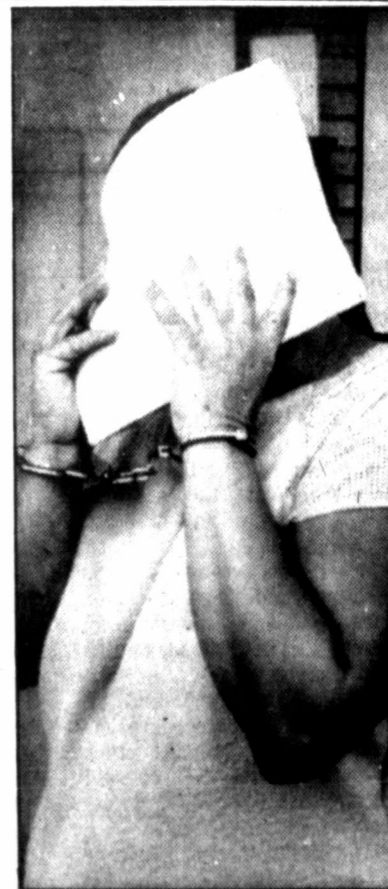

Both were outfitted with ski masks, cowboy hats, gloves and bulletproof vests, authorities said. The woman often dressed in baggy clothes in an attempt to disguise herself, authorities said.

During the latest robbery, which occurred Nov. 4 at the Fannin Bank in Windom, the robbers dressed in camouflaged hunting attire, witnesses told police. The robbery occurred during the dove hunting season.

After each robbery, the getaway cars were dumped between two and 10 miles from the bank, authorities said. Police suspect the robbers then drove away in their own car.

Senate race hot

among us," he said. "We're not talking about bankers and doctors and lawyers. We're talking about people trying to get a foothold on the lowest rung of the economic ladders."

Seeking to widen the debate, Doggett accused Hance of advertising his whole-hearted support for Social Security while voting in the House to cut benefits.

"Although Kent Hance's TV commercials claim a commitment to Social Security, the record shows that Kent voted against Social Security on three separate occasions. While he voted for cuts in favor of Social Security cuts, totalling $40 billion, he was giving away $30 billion to his friends in the giant utilities in the form of special unfair tax breaks," Doggett charged.

"His record does not bear out the claims that are made in his television commercials," Doggett said. "In an election year, it is better to look at the record than the rhetoric."

Hance said the votes criticized by Doggett were either procedural or votes on bills that included other needed federal spending cuts. He said he repeatedly has backed the Social Security system.

"This is just another example of Lloyd Doggett's mudslinging campaign tactics," Hance said. "I have always fought to protect the Social Security system."

"It is obvious to me that Lloyd Doggett will say anything to get elected. He is so determined to get elected that he will say anything to win, even try to scare our senior citizens."

Hance also says he will continue to oppose tax increases as he has in the House, while contending that Doggett wants "to return to the old days of tax and tax, and spend and spend."

"The only thing worse than a $200 billion (federal budget) deficit would be a $200 billion tax increase that would destroy the economic recovery," Hance says.

Gramm and other Republicans have watched the runoff with glee.

Gramm voices no preference about an opponent, but said Krueger would have been the toughest and that his campaign's polls show him running ahead of Hance or Doggett.

Doggett and Hance, meanwhile, have picked up numerous endorsements.

U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright backed Doggett, saying Doggett offers mainstream Democrats a clear choice between their party and the GOP.

Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis backed Hance, saying Doggett is just too liberal to appeal to Texas Democrats.

Besides the Senate race, Texas also will be deciding several other runoff contests June 2.

Elections will be held in four congressional districts, including the 19th where Democrat Tom Richards is seeking the nomination against Democrat Don Richards, no relation, for the seat now held by Hance.

Runoffs are scheduled for two Court of Criminal Appeals seats.

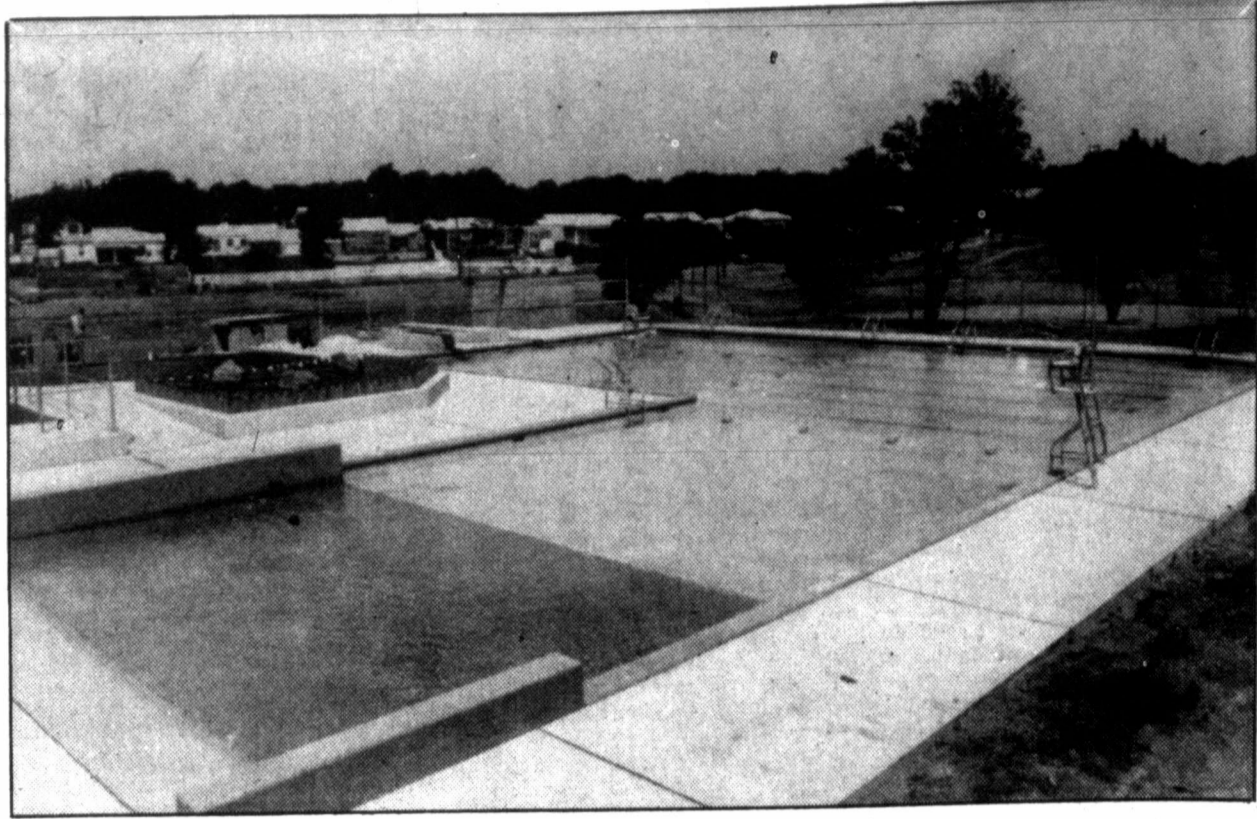

In the Place 2 race, Democratic incumbent W.C. "Bill" Davis, 61, is seeking a second six-year term. He is opposed by Roy E. Greenwood, 39, a former administrator for the court.

The members also will have a work session to discuss policy manuals for staff, faculty and students.

M.K. Brown Memorial Pool set to open June 9

City putting finishing touches on M.K. Brown swimming pool

City workers are putting finishing touches on the city's new M.K. Brown Memorial swimming pool near Kentucky and Sloan Streets.

Pampa parks and recreation department superintendent John Uland said the new pool and the Marcus Sanders Municipal pool, 438 S. Crawford, will open June 9. The Brown pool will open for lap swimming, senior citizens and lessons at 10 a.m., with general swimming hours from 1 to 9 p.m. The Sanders pool will open at 1 p.m.

"We're finishing up the landscaping this week," Uland said. "We still have some deck work to do."

He said that he expects to get some of the plants and lawn sod next week.

In 1983, the M.K. Brown foundation donated $350,000 for the pool, which was built on the same site as the old Pampa municipal pool. Uland said that an additional $160,000 in work has been done on it.

The pool is an L-shaped junior olympic sized pool "with emphasis on junior" Uland said. The dimensions are 15 meters by 25 meters at the widest parts of the pool.

The outstanding feature of the new pool is its "zero entry level" shallow end which runs from 3 1/2 feet to deck level. This makes the pool more accessible to handicapped people, according to Uland. The slanting shallow end is coated with a brown no-skid surface to allow easy entry into the pool.

The shallow end will feature a raised area to "allow mothers to sit and dangle their feet in the water."

The intermediate swimming area runs 3 1/2 to 5 1/2 feet while the deep end dips to 12 feet. A one-meter and three-meter diving board are located at the deep end.

Uland said that the pool's dressing and concession area is also different.

"There will be a limited dressing area," he said, adding that many newer pools are phasing out dressing areas because many of the users come ready to swim.

There will also be no baskets for clothes.

"We'll have lockers, but no locks," he said.

The dressing area will have no roof, only some light lattice work. Uland explained that the open rooms will keep the mold and mildew out.

The cold showers will be located on an outside wall and will be operated by a push-button.

The pool concession area will feature two vending machines, one with 37 varieties of snacks and another dispensing soft drinks in paper cups.

Uland said the pool will also feature a two-level cedar deck area for sitting and sunning. The lower level will have umbrella tables near the shallow end of the pool. The decks should be completed within three weeks, Uland said.

The pool will have an automatic chlorination and filtration system which will keep tabs on the Ph (alkaline level) and chlorine content of the pool.

The M.K. Brown pool will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 1-5 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $1 for people six years or older and free for children five or younger. The Sanders pool will be open from 1 - 6 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays. Admission is 50 cents for those six or older and free for people five or younger.

Uland stressed that the pool lifeguards and employees cannot run a baby-sitting service for absent parents.

"If you have children 12 or under, and you cannot stay, you need to come in, personally with the children to leave your name and number so that we can contact you," he tells pool users. "This is not for our convenience but for the kids' safety."

A grand opening for the new pool is expected about the first week in July, he said.

Solar eclipse dangerous to eyes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dragon the ancient Chinese believed ate the sun during an eclipse won't finish his meal on Wednesday, but he'll take a whopping bite.

The partial, or annular, eclipse of the sun at noon will be visible across most of the nation, with more than 99 percent of the solar surface covered for viewers in the Southeastern states.

Residents of every state except Alaska will be able to see at least part of the sun eclipsed, according to astronomers at the Naval Observatory in Washington. But the experts warn against looking directly at the eclipse.

Observatory officials said that at no time will it be safe to look directly at the sun. The sun will never completely disappear and the intensity of the light from even the small visible area can severely damage the eyes.

Because of their positions in the sky, the moon appears to be a bit smaller than the sun when it moves in front. If the moon's surface were smooth, a ring of light would form at the height of the eclipse.

But instead, the moon has mountains and valleys. And in the seconds just before the maximum eclipse, light shining between the peaks gives the appearance of bright beads around the moon, a "diamond necklace in the sky," as some have described it.

The display is known as Bailey's Beads, named for their discoverer, 19th century astronomer Francis Bailey.

The best place to view the eclipse is in the Southeast, along a path from just north of New Orleans to just south of Richmond, Va.

The eclipse isn't total because the path of the moon around Earth is not a perfect circle. The closer the moon is to Earth, the bigger it appears; the farther away, the smaller. Thus, sometimes the moon blocks out the whole sun and sometimes, as this time, it doesn't.

Weather focus

Texas water researchers look for a better way

AUSTIN (AP) — With wind-whipped heat baking Texas in a drought reminiscent of the Dust Bowl days, state researchers are looking at how water is used in farming and asking, "Is there a better way?"

The Texas Water Resources Institute at College Station says rice farmers, for example, face an "immediate crisis" because growing rice requires so much water and energy, which is expensive.

Virtually all rice grown in Texas for the past 90 years has matured standing in flooded fields, but researchers say rice actually needs no more water than wheat or grain sorghum and should flourish under a sprinkler system.

"Texas rice farmers now spend more to produce rice than farmers in any other rice growing area in the world," according to Water Currents, a publication of the Water Resources Institute. "They know that energy is their No. 1 production cost and that two-thirds of their energy cost is used to irrigate their crops."

"They also know that their production costs have doubled in less than 10 years primarily because of high water and energy costs," the publication said.

Another problem confronting researchers is how to make better use of salt water, which limits production on at least one-half million acres of irrigated land in Texas, including 250,000 acres in the Trans Pecos region and 150,000 acres in the Rio Grande Valley.

North Central Texas, El Paso and along the Gulf Coast.

Jaroy Moore, superintendent of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station near Pecos, studies traditional irrigation methods to find ways to reduce the impact of salt water on soil. Moore, according to a report in Water Currents, has found that sprinkler irrigation using salt water is less harmful at night because water does not evaporate as fast and leaves less salt concentration.

Researcher Bill Lyle designed a sprinkler system that applies water below cotton leaves so salt damage to the leaves is not the problem it is with other sprinkler systems.

"By using good salt management techniques, cotton can be grown under sprinkler irrigation with saline water," says Moore.

Researcher Leonard Pike and two assistants have screened over 600 types of cucumbers to find strains that are more resistant to salt than varieties now available in grocery stores.

Another researcher, Stephen Kresovich of Weslaco, screens varieties of sugarcane and sorghum for salt tolerance.

Research also has been done on the effect of salt water on pecan trees and sweet corn.

"Farmers in the Wichita Valley have irrigated their crops with highly saline water — 2,000 to 4,000 parts salt per million parts water — for over 50 years," according to Water Currents.

Soil physicist Cleveland Gerard of the Chillicothe-Vernon research center concluded in irrigating sweet corn with salt water that fresh water must be used periodically to flush salt from the soil.

FURTHER RESEARCH ON IRRIGATION practices and other management techniques to reduce salt effects "could mean that Texas producers could again grow crops on now fallow fields or on land considered marginal for crop production," Water Currents reports.

In a report on rice farming, the publication said one-fifth of all rice grown in the United States comes from the Texas Rice Belt of 18 counties — Austin, Brazoria, Calhoun, Chambers, Colorado, Fort Bend, Galveston, Hardin, Harris, Jackson, Jefferson, Lavaca, Liberty, Matagorda, Orange, Victoria, Waller and Wharton.

Although rice ranks as Texas' No. 5 cash crop among agricultural products, Water Currents says rice farmers "have balanced precariously at a break-even point in recent years." Texas rice production reached a high yield of 5,000 pounds per acre in 1967 but leveled off in the 1970s, and both acreage and yield have declined in recent years.

"Water is probably the major limiting factor in rice production today even though by Texas standards the Rice Belt receives an exorbitant amount of fresh water," the publication said. "Not only does the area have an average annual rainfall ranging from 55 inches at Beaumont to 34 inches at Victoria, but it also has nine of the state's 14 major rivers flowing through it."

Nevertheless, because the Rice Belt slopes toward the Gulf of Mexico and is close to salt water, reservoirs cannot be built to store fresh water for irrigation, Water Currents says.

James Stansel, director of the state experiment station at Beaumont, says there are technological breakthroughs "on the immediate horizon which should allow producers to grow more rice with less water and help maintain rice as a viable Texas crop."

STATE AND FEDERAL plant breeders already have released a new rice variety that has the potential to increase state average yields by 20 percent by 1985 without increasing water or energy requirements, he said.

Also, Stansel said, a new chemical coating of calcium peroxide should supply enough oxygen that rice seeds could germinate under water. This would eliminate the need to drain and re-flood fields.

Other research work that could save water in rice fields includes:

- Semi-dwarf varieties of rice that require less water and less growing time.
- Longer-lasting herbicides and new fungicides.
- Better irrigation methods.

Using sprinklers could cut water use by 2.5 acre-feet to 6.5 acre-feet per acre, according to researchers. An acre-foot is 325,851 gallons, and the potential for saving water would be enormous.

Researchers also suggest that fertilizer, herbicides, insecticides and fungicides could be applied through a sprinkler system, which would require only a fraction of the energy now used by land machinery or aerial application.

Their conclusion is, indeed, there is a better way.

Legislators have doubts on tax hike

AUSTIN (AP) — Several lawmakers who will gather for a special session of the Legislature say they would like to see Gov. Mark White's signature on a school reform bill before they vote to raise taxes.

On Friday, White called the 30-day session to convene June 4 to consider his plan to raise $4.8 billion in taxes over three years to fund public school reform and highway improvements.

White said the Legislature should act now because "we face a clear and present danger in our society. In part, it has been created by a rising tide of mediocrity in our public schools."

Lawmakers said they would like to know exactly what reforms they will be buying before they vote for those tax hikes.

"The (House) members are willing to come and address the issue," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, head of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

"But whether or not they're willing to — 76 of them — to stand up and say 'We'll support any tax bill, I don't think we are there yet. I think they are saying 'We'll vote for a tax bill but only if there's reform,'" Schlueter said.

"Any tax bill will have a difficult time in the Senate unless we show that we have improvements," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. "Very definitely, we will have to have the improvements first."

White has proposed several tax hikes: raising the state sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent; raising the gasoline tax from 5 cents per gallon to 10 cents; raising beer, wine and liquor taxes; raising the motor vehicle sales and rental tax from 4 percent to 5 percent, and a 5-cent per pack boost in the cigarette tax.

White said that after weeks of talking to lawmakers, he believes he has sufficient support for his plans.

"I believe we have the votes to pass meaningful and substantial changes. I am persuaded the Legislature will fund the reform package," White said.

White also said he and some legislative leaders — including Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis and Schlueter — will appear in television commercials urging support for the education reforms.

White said the advertising blitz would begin soon in the state's larger cities. The cost will be about $300,000, he said, adding that he has asked private individuals to put up the money.

Discussing White's proposals, House Education Committee Chairman Bill Haley, D-Center, said it is important to realize that "we are not talking about an education or a highway session but we are talking about a tax session."

Haley said he wants to have a revised draft of his education reform bill, co-sponsored by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, ready by the latter part of next week.

"We've really got to look at equalization," Haley said. "That is really the major issue of this session, what we are going to do about financing the tax-poor schools."

"We've got to make decisions that will withstand tests in courts."

Ex-Texan suspect in 40 killings

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Authorities in Louisiana, Texas and six other states say they are sitting through evidence that they think may link a former Fort Worth, Texas man to at least 40 slayings of young women.

One investigator in Louisiana said Friday that the suspect, James M. Debardeleben, 44, may be a "serial" killer in the Henry Lee Lucas mold.

"It's similar in that it's a serial-type murder, but he's not a Henry Lee Lucas. His crimes are a lot more planned and calculated than Lucas," Lt. Scotty Henderson, chief of detectives of the Bossier City Police Department, told The Dallas Morning News.

The Shreveport Journal reported many of the same findings in a copyright story.

Henderson said Debardeleben is under investigation in Louisiana, Texas, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Arkansas, Maryland, Virginia and Missouri.

Lucas, 47, a drifter born in West Virginia, claims to have killed at least 360 women since 1970. He recently was sentenced to die for the 1979 murder of an unidentified woman hitchhiker near Georgetown, Texas.

Debardeleben is in jail in Charlotte, N.C., where he faces counterfeiting charges. Mike Tarr, a Secret Service spokesman in Washington, told the News.

Authorities said that when Secret Service agents searched Debardeleben's home in Alexandria, Va., they found a "treasure trove" of diaries, pornographic photographs, and tape recordings that made Debardeleben a suspect in rapes, abductions and murders of young women throughout the South and up the Eastern Seaboard.

Authorities said they found tape-recorded screams of terrified women and a detailed travel log that placed him in cities where dozens of unsolved murders are still on the books.

Tarr said Debardeleben has been convicted of counterfeiting in Tennessee and has been sentenced to 35 years in prison, but hasn't started serving the sentence.

Henderson said Debardeleben is the primary suspect in the 1982 strangulation and stabbing death of real estate agent Jean McPhaul.

Arkansas authorities say they plan to talk to Debardeleben about the 1978 disappearance and presumed slaying of part-time real estate agent Mary Jimmy "Bo Bo" Shinn, 25.

Both women went to meet a man who called and identified himself as a prospective buyer.

Henderson said Ms. McPhaul got a call from someone who identified himself as "Dr. Zack" and said he had just moved from Midland, Texas.

Official says red tape would slow flow of oil

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve stored in underground salt caverns along the Gulf Coast could be ready for transport in two days if the nation's supply be cut because of the Persian Gulf conflict, an official says.

But the paper work needed to start the flow would take three weeks, another official has said.

"If we were ordered to begin movement of crude, we could have the oil at the docks ready to go in 48 hours," said Guy King of the Petroleum Operations and Support Services Inc., a subsidiary of Houston-based Kaneb Energy Services Inc.

About 400 million barrels of crude has been stored in five underground salt caverns in Louisiana and Texas for use in the event U.S. oil imports are interrupted.

King told the Houston Chronicle in a story published Saturday that the reserve crude could be quickly pumped from the caverns in case of an emergency.

During an exercise in February at the West Hackberry in Cameron Parish, La., King said, more than 1 million barrels of crude was pumped in 24 hours.

Two other tests have been made recently at Bayou Choctaw in Iberville Parish, La., and at Bryanound in Brazoria County, Texas, he said. About 295 million barrels of oil are stored at the three caverns.

White said the Legislature should act now because "we face a clear and present danger in our society. In part, it has been created by a rising tide of mediocrity in our public schools."

Lawmakers said they would like to know exactly what reforms they will be buying before they vote for those tax hikes.

"The (House) members are willing to come and address the issue," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, head of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

"But whether or not they're willing to — 76 of them — to stand up and say 'We'll support any tax bill, I don't think we are there yet. I think they are saying 'We'll vote for a tax bill but only if there's reform,'" Schlueter said.

"Any tax bill will have a difficult time in the Senate unless we show that we have improvements," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. "Very definitely, we will have to have the improvements first."

White's proposed list of reforms includes raising starting teacher pay to $15,200 a year from the current $11,100, returning the bulk of the school day to classroom work and requiring some form of competency testing for teachers and students.

The reforms also will include a method for trying to make certain that poor local school districts get additional state aid to make their programs more equal to districts which are rich in property tax revenue.

EXAMPLES OF CONVERSION

"And as he journeyed, it came to pass that he drew nigh unto Damascus: and suddenly there shone round about him a light out of heaven: and he fell upon the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: but rise, and enter into the city and it shall be told thee what thou must do." (Acts 9:3-6)

Saul of Tarsus was the ringleader in the persecution against the disciples of Christ (Acts 8:3). He was present when Stephen was stoned to death and held the garments of those who killed him. At the time of this confrontation with the Lord Jesus, he was on his way to Damascus with authority to bring any followers of Jesus he might find back to Jerusalem to be persecuted and punished.

Saul, who later became known as Paul, was honest and sincere in his persecution of Christ and His church, but he was wrong (1 Timothy 1:12-13). His honesty and sincerity did not make him right. Paul was an educated man, having been schooled at the feet of the renowned Gamaliel (Acts 22:3). But his education did not make him right. The fact that he had the endorsement of the predominant religion of the land did not make him right. He was wrong because he was fighting against God and His Christ.

There are many noteworthy things about Paul's conversion. First, Jesus did not tell him what to do to be saved. Our Lord had commissioned His apostles to tell people what to do to be saved (Mark 16:15, 16). Second, Paul was not saved on the road to Damascus because he was still in his sins three days later when Ananias came to him (Acts 22:12-16). Third, after his conversion, Paul was just as zealous for the Lord as he had been in his persecution of Jesus. Paul labored long and hard as an apostle of Christ and suffered a great deal for the name of Jesus. Yet, he never complained nor thought that the Lord asked too much of him. He was always grateful for his salvation as he expressed in his own words: "But by the grace of God I am what I am—" (1 Corinthians 15:10). His would be a good example for us to follow today.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Our opinion

Boxing ban not proper proposal

The editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association has made the somewhat less-than-startling discovery that the sport of boxing is dangerous. His proposed solution is one that we hear too often these days: pass laws abolishing the sport or force the participants to change the rules.

That editor, Dr. George Lundberg, advanced his proposal because of a recent study that indicated most boxers suffer some extent of brain damage from blows to the head. He had previously attacked the sport as "an obscenity" that should be outlawed in civilized countries.

While the American Medical Association should be commended for conducting the study and alerting potential boxers to the dangers of the sport, that is as far as the association should go. And the suggestion that government act to abolish the sport or dictate its rules should be swiftly and finally rejected.

We doubt that the announcement that boxing is a dangerous sport will come as a great revelation to any participant. They know it is dangerous, even as football players know their sport is dangerous, and they know they could suffer crippling injury at any time.

But the point is, boxers and football players participate in their sports voluntarily. To them at least, the benefits outweigh the risks and they have made a conscious, voluntary decision to continue in their chosen sport. Does a medical association or government have a legitimate right to stop them? We think not.

There are a lot of dangerous things in this world. Smoking cigarettes, of course, is one of them. Eating too much chocolate cake and becoming overweight is another. Would we ban either cigarettes or chocolate cake? While there are probably some citizens who would abolish the former, we doubt that any would suggest outlawing the latter.

Those who understand the dangers of certain activities have, perhaps, a moral obligation to share the knowledge with their fellow man, as the American Medical Association has done in spotlighting the dangers of boxing. But they do not have a moral right to forcibly restrain anyone from participating in those activities.

While many of us might agree with Dr. Lundberg that the sport of boxing is "an obscenity," we have a simple way to overcome our revulsion. We don't have to attend boxing matches or watch fights on television.

Government does not have a right to force us to avoid danger and neither does the American Medical Association. They shouldn't even want to.

Let's tie government's hands

Now that there's a groundswell of public sentiment for a constitutional mandated balanced budget, we're going to hear more things like: "We shouldn't tie the hands of government." "The budget should be decided through a democratic process." Or, "We should trust our government."

Nonsense! The purpose of the Constitution is to do just that - tie the hands of government. Russia has no restraints on what government can do. If you read the first sentence of our Bill of Rights you'll see, "Congress shall make no law..." The Founding Fathers didn't trust the political process to protect such precious freedoms as: freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, or freedom of religion.

The Bill of Rights is a brilliant document, but it has one glaring flaw. It contains no explicit guarantee for economic freedom and protection of private property. Unfortunately, economic freedom and private property rights are left up to Congress. For example, your freedom to work, enter a business, or even buy a Honda is decided by Congress. Similarly, your freedom to spend your own weekly earnings are decided by Congress and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). Each day you work at least two-and-a-half hours to pay taxes.

There is NOTHING in the Constitution to prevent government from taking four, six, or eight hours of your labor.

Our Founding Fathers did not anticipate the kind of government we have today. If they had, the Bill of Rights would have contained just one sentence, "Congress shall make no law." A constitutional amendment restricting government spending would go a long way toward preventing further erosion of our freedoms. Thirty-two states have already called for a constitutional convention specifically for that purpose. We need two more.

With Congress making laws we have all sorts of problems. The Supreme Court has issued sixty-eight opinions this year so far, and it has ninety more to go. It has to decide Hishon vs. King & Spalding, a sex discrimination suit where a law firm denied a woman a partnership. Then there's Selective service vs. Minnesota Public Interest Group which has the government arguing the constitutionality of barring federal scholarship money to men who haven't registered for the draft. And, in Regan vs. Wald, the Reagan Administration defends bans on travel to Cuba.

These cases result from illegitimate government activity. People should not be able to use the law to get them membership in a corporate partnership. Government should not take other people's earnings to send another to college. The government should not interfere with American's travel choices. The Supreme Court could clear its messy calendar if it adopts the rule: Any government or citizen activity which interferes with life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness is unconstitutional. Case closed.

You can bet some people will say, "Williams, that's too simple." That's right. Freedom is simple; totalitarianism is complex. What partnerships should be forced to admit what person is complex. What American should be denied travel to what country is complex. Far simpler is: I let whomever I please into my partnership, and you do the same with yours. I go to whatever country I wish, and you go to whatever country you wish.

For our own sake, and for those that follow us, we need to tie the hands of government - at least the hands that steal our freedom.

Today in History

Today is Sunday, May 27, the 148th day of 1984. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On May 27, 1937, the Golden Gate Bridge spanning San Francisco Bay was opened.

On this date: In 1941, the German battleship Bismarck was sunk by the British navy off France, with a loss of 2,300 lives.

In 1949, Robert Ripley died. Ten years ago: British soldiers guarded strategic gas stations and oil depots in Northern Ireland in the wake of a general strike called by Protestant extremists.

Five years ago: Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin announced a policy of open borders between his country and Egypt.

One year ago: A West German prosecutor said a dealer in Nazi memorabilia had admitted forging the "Hitler diaries" that were bought and published by a West German magazine.

Today's birthdays: Actor Vincent Price is 73. Novelist Herman Wouk is 69. Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is 61. Actor Louis Gossett Jr. is 48.

Thought for today: "All women become like their mothers. That is their tragedy. No man does. That is his." - From the play "A Woman of No Importance" by Oscar Wilde (1854-1900).

Cards, letters, powerful tools

You don't have to wait for the next election. You can vote now and as many times as you like.

In your hands is one of the world's most decisive weapons - the megaballot.

You can vote as many times as you like for 20 cents a crack.

All you need do is keep those cards and letters coming.

Most Americans are utterly unaware of the significance which elected officials attach to even one letter.

You don't know your own strength. It was YOU who extricated us from Vietnam and Beirut.

It was YOU who over-ruled the president on dividend withholding, on troops for El Salvador

It was YOU who outvoted the Congress on the Chrysler loan, the death penalty and on its own pay hike.

And scores of lesser decisions are regularly influenced if not determined by you.

And not just in legislative decisions. I have seen great television networks hinge major program policy decisions on a handful of letters.

And you don't need an organized campaign to deluge your lawmakers and policy makers with an avalanche of mail. Those orchestrated protests can influence the White House and the Congress this year; more than ever.

THIS YEAR! WE WILL ALLOW NO BOOZE IN YOUR BON - BON

A favorite chocolate for many years is trade-named "Godiva."

For 16 years Godiva chocolates included cordial creams, flavored with brandy and other liqueurs.

Then in 1982 somebody at the FDA remembered a government regulation prohibiting the marketing of any food containing "in excess of 1/2 of 1 - percentum of alcohol."

So the Food and Drug people wanted to know, "How about so - and - so?" Other chocolatiers were still marketing this forbidden fruit.

Dutifully, the FDA's agents went after the others.

Including Bissingers in St. Louis, where the feds swooped down and confiscated the lucious bon - bons which contained a dash of Grand Marnier Brandy.

And not once, but twice. Bissingers was raided, bon - bons confiscated, and, we are told, destroyed by fire!

The bureaucrats have to know - or should - that other flavorings contain more alcohol than most liqueurs. Vanilla is 35 percent alcohol. Legal "brandy alcohol flavoring" is 71 percent alcohol.

The genuine liqueurs are only 25 to 30 percent alcohol.

Raiding candy makers - in perspective - just does not compute.

Laws and lawmen are most vulnerable when they're being laughed at.

Values must be freely chosen

There is little doubt that this country is in the midst of a major shift of priorities. Some call it a moral revival. Some say it is a return to traditional conservative values.

While I greet the statistical outpouring from various and sundry surveys with a jaundiced eye, it seems true that the institution of marriage is staging a revival; casual sex is on the decline; the crime rate is momentarily at ebb; the newest crop of college hopefuls appear to be getting ready to accommodate the work ethic rather than prepping for a revolution.

Before seeking a housetop from which to shout hosannas, however, it is important to note that these same priorities we now seek to regain were not so long ago the apparent cause of revulsion and rebellion.

Why did large segments of society reject the cultural practices now deemed desirable? Mankind's shifting value judgments have often caused us to behave like a pendulum.

We lean in the direction of tradition until it becomes stifling, then we lean in the direction of discovery and smashing barriers. We go so far that we become frightened and seek the familiar. Presently, we repeat the process.

Perhaps we are really seeking what has been called the "Golden Mean": the safety of the familiar and the excitement of the unknown on the same platter.

We wish our spouses to be true, but are enchanted by the hope for a return of the sweetness of first love. We want a job, in part so we can afford a splendid vacation.

We want the security of predictability, yet we hate boredom.

But the objectives we seek are not so important as the freedom we must have to take command of our own resources and become responsible for ourselves.

I favor the sanctity of marriage. I well understand the problems faced by any couple. Marriage is difficult under the most favorable circumstances. Let us make the sanctity of such a union one we create for ourselves, not one that arises out of fear of the law.

I am unalterably opposed to crime. The way to reduce criminal conduct, however is by motivating people to refrain from criminal conduct, not by catching and punishing them after the fact. We should seek non-criminal behavior because it is desirable and rewarding.

Traditional values are important and valid when we arrive at them voluntarily. If they are shoved down our throats, we are simply laying the groundwork for further disruptions.

I can rejoice at some of the evidence of a shift in values, but feel a growing apprehension at another characteristic of our immediate past that seems to be in the ascendancy. This is a loss of patience and a desire to inflict harm (including death) on those who disagree. This was the flaw in the ferocity of the 1060s.

The mores of any society are enormously influenced by government. The current administration keeps brandishing the big stick, the bludgeon, the sword or the atom bomb.

President Reagan's trip to China established that it was possible for a staunch anti-communist to offer peaceful inducements to communists in the interest of enlarged business and better cultural relations.

I profoundly doubt that Reagan assuaged the deepest doubt of the Chinese governing clique. The Chinese will continue to view the American government with both hope and suspicion.

The difficulty of the Reagan emphasis on old, traditional values is that he seems to be offering a warm hand of friendship with howitzers in the background.

I am heartily out of sympathy with communism, whether Chinese or Russian. I most certainly do not trust the government of China, or Russia. Nor am I willing to trust the people who tax me and regulate me and threaten me daily.

But at this juncture, I don't know of anyone pleading for trust. The Chinese government doesn't trust the Russian or the American governments. The Russian government doesn't trust the Chinese or the American. And surely the American doesn't trust either of them.

We live in a world where most have learned the folly of trusting anyone with the power to launch a modern war.

So if traditional values are making a comeback, I cannot object—provided the parade is headed by a float rather than a flotilla. Let our mood be one of accomodation, with the best business and cultural developments human ingenuity and love of beauty can devise.

Communism has already been found wanting. Its alternative is found in freedom, voluntarily accepted and never imposed.

Shirley Nickols not looking back

BY CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

After 33½ years with the Gray County Sheriff's office, retiring deputy sheriff Shirley Nickols is not looking back and is taking nothing with him.

Nickols will leave his post Thursday for a month-long vacation. His retirement becomes effective at the end of June.

The no-nonsense peace officer has no plans for his vacation and no plans for his retirement other than it will not be idle time.

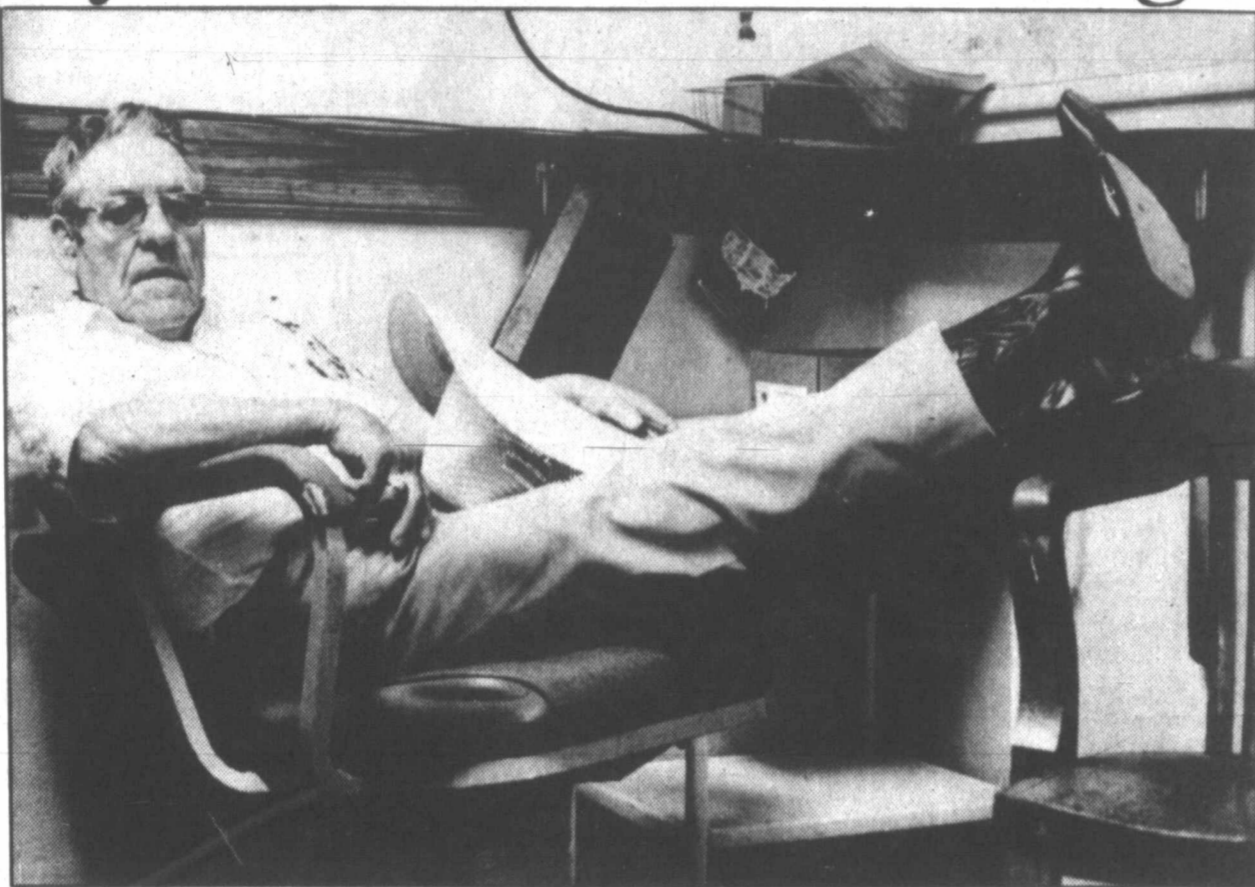

"I'll find something to do," he said. "I'm not looking. But, I'll get out so I can look. I might look for a job."

"I'll miss not coming here Monday mornings," he said. "I've been coming down here every Monday morning for 33 years."

Nickols joined the sheriff's office in 1951 after three years with the Pampa police department. Rufe Jordan was sheriff then and he still is. Nickols said working in the sheriff's office was a better job than and "it's still a better job."

Having worked in law enforcement "better than half my life," Nickols has seen a number of changes in his job and in the county. However, he could not explain what changes have been made. The more things change, the more they are the same.

He observed that while the faces and the names of the criminals are different, they're no different than the ones of the 1950s. The crimes — oil field theft, cattle theft, murder and assault — are still the same.

"It's not different. Crime is crime. It just happens more often," he observed. "I can't say that it's any harder now. I just know there's a lot of work to be done."

One change Nickols regrets is the apparent ease in which county prisoners can get out on probation.

"You can't do anything now," he said. "You get out there and work your tail off. And the court comes up and lets them loose."

The independent-minded peace officer also has seen much growth in the area.

"When I started here, it was me and the sheriff and two more workers. Me, the sheriff and the boy down in McLean (Constable Jim McDonald) are the only ones that stayed," he said.

"Now there are five on the night shift and five on the day shift."

Nickols has served his time on both the night and day shift and in a number of other capacities. It made no difference to him.

"The only difference is that one is at night and one is day," he mused. "It doesn't make a difference. I just try to do my part."

While other sheriff candidates and officers boast of classes in forensic pathology, fingerprinting and procedure, Nickols has had none of that. His training came on the job.

"Hell, if it's in you, it's in you," he barked.

He has no regrets or second thoughts of leaving the "job I've had for 'better than half my life'."

"I'll be glad to get out of here and do as I please," he said. "I've been answering to somebody for more than 33½ years."

Nickols' independent spirit and rough disposition comes from his youth on a farm in central Texas.

Born in the small town of Goldthwaite, Nickols said he was "raised on a farm and worked on a farm since I was 4 years old."

That was during a time when the Depression and the Dust Bowl cast a dark cloud over farm life.

"I guess that's what turned me against it," he remembered.

His farming behind him, he turned his attention to stateside work in an aircraft plant during World War II.

"I started out as a riveter and worked up as a flight inspector," he said. "I worked about six months after the war at a naval base in Grand Prairie."

But the end of the war moved that inland base to Corpus Cristi.

In 1948, Nickols moved to the Panhandle and worked for Skelly Oil for six weeks.

"I didn't work at that job long enough for them to make me an offer."

With the exception of his Coca-Cola thermometer and white straw cowboy hat, Nickols keeps very little of his own things at his office. And he's collected very little curios from his career.

"I don't even want to remember it," he said. "I'm leaving it all here. You never take anything home with you. You just leave it at the office."

Letters to editor

Why sports in schools?

Dear Editor,
Why could we take the UIL sports out of our public schools? I have heard that this program, here in Pampa, costs in excess of $300,000 a year, and includes some 30 or more coaches.

The same educational objectives could be taught in an intramural program through the physical education classes. Almost all students that are participating in UIL athletics are also enrolled in a physical education class. This, I think, is an unnecessary duplication.

A P.E. intramural program would encompass more students, particularly in the Middle School where all students are required to take P.E.

I would not propose that we do away with our sports competition with other towns. Instead, take it out of our schools and have the program sponsored by an athletic club, organization or sports club outside our schools.

I believe we would save the taxpayers money and we could still have our athletics. And, perhaps the sporting events could be scheduled at more opportune times so the students would not miss out on so much school.

John A. Johnson.

Health Fair big success

Dee Dee Laramore,
Lifestyles Editor.

Thank you so much for working closely with us on the Gray County Health Fair publicity. It was great.

I'm sure much of the success of the Fair was due to your publicity. In fact, in the returned evaluations, 81 percent of the respondents indicated learning about the Health Fair through the newspaper.

You are always so please to work with and are much appreciated by our staff. Thank you again.

Lefors Post Office planning open house

LEFORS - The Lefors U. S. Post Office is making plans for an open house for its customers on June 17, including refreshments and a tour of the postal facilities.

Postmaster Norma McBee said the open house will be an opportunity for the customers to get to know the post office workers better and to see the behind-the-scenes facilities and operations.

Mayor Ben White will issue a proclamation at the next Lefors City Council meeting on June 11 declaring Postal Customer Appreciation Day, she said.

In the coming weeks postal employees will decorate the office with plants and macrame hangings and clean the grounds in preparation for the customers.

Recently the Lefors

Volunteer Fire Department hosed down the driveway, walks and other cemented areas during one of their regular fire drills in a spirit of good will for the post office. McBee said.

During the open house from 2-4 p.m., postal employees will serve cookies and punch and set up a registration table for all visitors.

All families serviced by the Lefors Post Office are invited to attend. McBee said.

"We want to make them welcome," she said.

The current building was opened in 1978 after the previous building had been destroyed by a tornado in 1975. The office operated out of a mobile facility for three years until the new structure was completed.

Perryton Exposition Center is heavily utilized

By SHERRILL
MCLEAREN

PERRYTON - It has been three months since the doors of the Ochiltree County Exposition Center opened and, according to extension agent Layton Barton, activity has been steady.

Barton, who also serves as manager of the center, has totals on the number of people who have utilized the center. According to his estimates, more than 5,000 people have attended various functions at the center during the past three months, a figure which does not include attendance for regular 4-H and extension homemakers meetings.

The heaviest month for attendance was February, with the Junior Livestock Show and the Equity Expo 80 drawing more than 3,000 people. Dedication of the center also attracted a large crowd. Attendance at various other events brought February's total attendance up to approximately 3,850.

Attendance in March dropped off drastically to an estimated 700 people. Sperry New Holland held a farm implement show, bringing in an estimated 480 people, while various Boy and Cub Scout activities accounted for much of the final total for March.

April saw another 600 people utilizing the center, with the largest crowd attending the Great Plains Angus Show and Sale. A tool auction from an Oklahoma company brought in some 200 people, while livestock seminars and project meetings accounted for much of the rest of the attendance.

"No longer than the center has been open, it has been utilized considerably," Barton said, adding that he foresees even greater utilization from a wider variety of people and events in the future.

For the most part, the Exposition Center has been used for 4-H and extension homemaking projects and meetings in addition to livestock and agricultural events.

Several wedding receptions are on the calendar, however, and Barton feels once the public becomes more aware of the benefits the center has to offer at an economical rate, a wider variety of community-oriented events will be scheduled.

Whether to concrete the floor in the arena portion of the center remains a controversial issue.

Commissioner Richard Haley says he knows of four large events that could have been held in the arena had a concrete floor been installed.

The arena has not been used by individual horsepersons primarily because of the rental fees. Barton said Fee for use of the arena by a non-profit organization runs $100 for a scheduled time period or $250 for a full day.

British Isles Adventure

What's an investment broker doing offering a travel program, you ask? Well, through the years we've offered our customers innovative financial products designed to expand their capital, but we've always felt it's as important for our customers to enjoy their money as it is to invest it.

So, it shouldn't come as a surprise that we've teamed up with the country's largest group-travel company to offer glamorous holidays to the world's most popular destinations. Last year, we offered an unforgettable tour through Germany and Switzerland that many participants rated the best travel experience of their lives.

In October of this year we'll offer our Full-Service Account Holders an even more exciting program: a luxurious, 11-night holiday to Scotland, London and the English countryside. We've put together a full-color brochure which describes this once-in-a-lifetime holiday.

To receive a free copy, call the toll-free number below or drop by our office. We think you'll agree our British Isles Adventure is a sound investment in pleasure.

Old vets recall D-Day

OMAHA BEACH, France (AP) — At the American cemetery on the bluffs overlooking the beach where they came ashore on D-Day 40 years ago, machine gunner Jack Hathaway, a coal miner from Carmichaels, Pa., and three of his buddies laid a wreath on the 1st Division monument. All about them stood the crosses of comrades who didn't make it back.

Hathaway, who couldn't swim then "and still can't," remembers getting off the landing barge with water over his head and making shore with a 60-pound pack and the gun tripod on his back with the help of a rope a Navy boatman had secured to a rock.

"Even with all that stuff coming in, I felt better as soon as we hit the beach. I was sick as a dog in that LCI I was even sick all the way over on the Queen Mary," he said.

Ex-Sgt. Harold Geary of Copiague, Long Island, gathered handfuls of the yellow sands of Omaha Beach into a plastic bag in remembrance of the place the U.S. 1st Division came ashore in the first wave of the Allied invasion of Nazi-occupied France. "Memories that bless and burn," he said.

IT WAS AN UNFORGETTABLE Memorial Day weekend for returning veterans of the Big Red One.

The goateed mayor of St. Laurent-sur-Mer, Georges Mahieu, dedicated "Dog 3 Draw," that first murderous road off the beach which engineers like Harry Geary had helped clear, as "Rue de la Premiere Division" — 1st Division Street. His Honor raised a glass of calvados, Normandy's potent applejack, to the plane-load of old soldiers who had come back.

Bob Gould, another machine gunner from Riverside, Calif., thought sure he had located the exact stretch of curving beach where he stepped ashore "in ankle deep water, waved farewell to the young kid at the helm of the landing barge and saw it suddenly blown apart by a direct hit from the 88 in the pillbox on the cliff."

Seven hours later, E Company was still pinned down at the edge of the sand, where French children from the nearby holiday hotel now fly kites. Gould felt "a warm sensation at my back." A piece of shrapnel "about a half an inch in diameter burned through my knapsack and wiped out my shaving gear without touching me. I grew up in a hurry that day."

DR. TREADWELL IRELAND of Pompano Beach, Fla. found a pillbox above the beach where on D-Day his 3rd Auxiliary Surgical Group treated the first casualties of the Big Red One. Treadwell remembers coming in on the same landing barge as Ernest Hemingway. "He was the only guy in a trench coat. He was also wearing binoculars, which everyone else got rid of so the German snipers wouldn't think you were important."

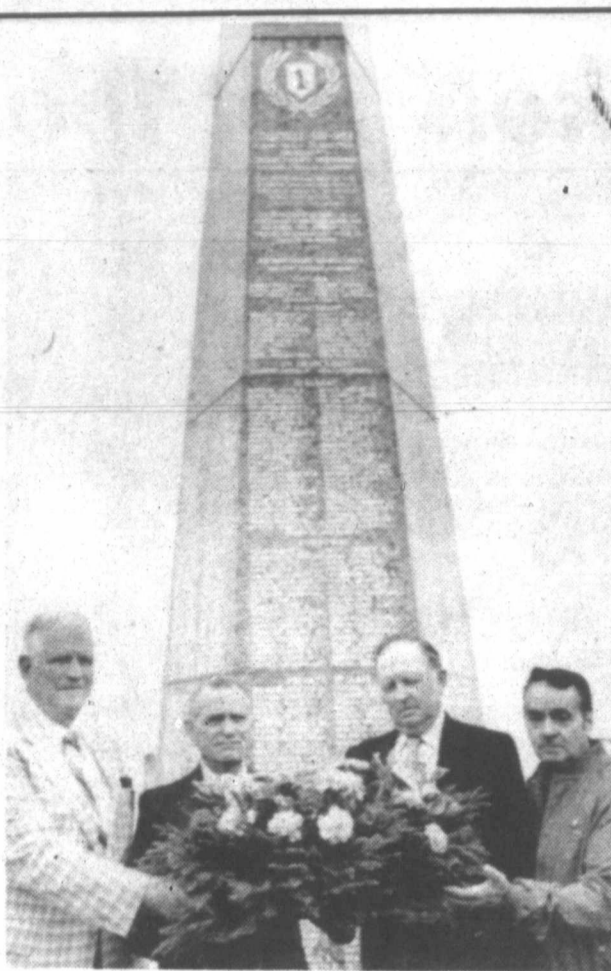

Sam Caboti, from Philadelphia, couldn't find the spot on Omaha where he crouched behind a burned out tank and burrowed into the pebbly beach with his hands "because you wouldn't even dare get on your hands and knees with that little shovel in the crossfire of machine guns and mortars falling all around."

Picking up some of those pebbles from the beach, Jack Brooks, a retired colonel from Leawood, Kan., recognized the break in the seawall where his company cut through the barbed wire and saw the sign "Achtung minen" with a skull and crossbones. He remembered stepping in the footprints and around some of the bodies of those who hadn't heeded the warning against land mines.

IN THE LITTLE CHURCH at Colleville-sur-Mer, the first village liberated by the division, the Abbe Marcel Deckland celebrated a Mass for their dead, attended by numerous elderly villagers who had hid in their cellars or in apple orchards on the morning of the invasion.

Capt. Everett "Albie" Booth of Highland, Ind., who was wounded on the beach 40 years before, went to the pulpit and read the lesson about "turning swords into plowshares." The second lesson was read by Rocky Moretto, a private first class and rifleman from Long Island City, N.Y., who like most of his buddies still pronounced the town Colleville in his GI French as if it had been named after a breed of dog.

Cost of care for older Americans to skyrocket

NEW YORK (AP) — Caring for the oldest old — those in their 80s, 90s and beyond — will cost the United States at least $85 billion in federal benefits by the turn of the century, more than veterans, the poor or any other group, a federal economist said Saturday.

The ranks of the very old, most of them women, are growing so fast that the cost of their care will increase 67 percent in the next 15 years alone, according to this estimate.

"That's a lot of money. Their benefits are very expensive," said Barbara B. Torrey of the U.S. Census Bureau. "I'm not sure what we'll be spending on veterans in the year 2000, but it won't be this much."

Ms. Torrey presented her study at a symposium at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The session was intended to sort out some of the differences between the oldest old, generally those over 85, and the so-called "young old," the healthier and more independent people in their 60s and 70s.

Most of the costs of those over 80 computed by Ms. Torrey were for Medicare and Social Security. Her figures were based on 1984 dollars and did not take into account an expected rapid increase in the cost of medical care.

Few studies have been conducted on these aged people, she said. "They are statistical ghosts leaving only a trail of costs and a few clues to their economic resources."

The nation now spends $51.2 billion on federal benefits for the 6 million Americans over 80, she said. By the year 2000, there will be 10.1 million of these, and their benefits will total $85.5 billion.

"By the year 2000," she said, "more benefits will be provided to octogenarians than any other subgroup of the aged or, for that matter, the general population."

In the decades between 1960 and 1980, the number of people over 85 increased by 141 percent, and they are the fastest growing age group in the United States.

Joyful, cheerful child in fight against cancer

By KATHERYN BARLOW
The Henderson Daily News
HENDERSON, Texas
(AP) Gently slapping the ground, the raindrops dampen any hope of outdoor play. The wet afternoon promises nothing but homework, chores and television for most youngsters.

At 313 Gray St., 8-year-old Jennifer McFerrin practices the piano. Delicate fingers strike the notes ringing a simple, but perfected tune. Intricately woven within this melody is the persistent hope of a learning child.

Unlike most children her age, Jennifer is interested in learning all she can not only about her hobbies, but her school work as well. She particularly is interested in mathematics and reading classes.

Spontaneously, Jennifer touches the lives around her with courage and determination.

Her zest for living teaches others to overcome those little hurdles that unnecessarily steal the joys of life. A daily dose of humor, love and determination help Jennifer battle against a rare form of cancer, scientifically named choriocarcinoma.

Because of Jennifer, many Henderson school children understand what cancer is. They understand that chemotherapy makes a person's hair fall out. They understand that childhood does not guarantee health. And perhaps most importantly, they understand that illness does not free a person from everyday responsibilities and everyday joys.

In October 1983, Pat McFerrin, a single parent, took her daughter to a Henderson doctor. The doctor confidently explained that Jennifer suffered migraine headaches, a pain that would pass in a matter of days. A week and four doctor visits later, Mrs. McFerrin took Jennifer to a neurologist in Tyler.

By that time, Jennifer was in such bad pain she would sit in the room with her head in her hands and scream," Mrs. McFerrin recalls.

The minute the doctor in Tyler saw Jennifer, he knew something was seriously wrong, Mrs. McFerrin says.

"He put Jennifer in the hospital that day," she said. "It hurt so bad I couldn't stand for people to talk to me. It was just horrible banging in my temples," says Jennifer as she points to her forehead where the pain hit.

Being in so much pain, Jennifer did not feel scared. She remembers thinking over and over before the surgery, "Just do anything to make it stop banging. I don't care what you do, just make me well again."

A yoke-cell tumor — which means the tumor held more than one type of cancer — was lodged between Jennifer's brain and spinal cord. Consequently, fluids from the brain, which normally flush to the abdomen, were blocked. As a life-saving measure, a shunt was inserted in Jennifer's head to allow the fluids to pass to the abdomen via the spinal cord.

The same week when Jennifer was out of immediate danger, the tumor was removed.

"After the second operation, we thought Jennifer was home free. We were so happy because she was out of pain and the doctor had come back with the lab reports saying the tumor was benign.

"But the next day, the doctor came back after more lab reports and said that Jennifer had a rare form of cancer," her mother says.

A million decisions were to be made. The doctors and Jennifer agreed to radiation and chemotherapy treatment. Chemotherapy could be administered in Tyler. Radiation treatment required a trip to Houston's M.D. Anderson Hospital.

Sitting on a floral printed couch, Jennifer now finishes the history of her illness.

"At first I had to have radiation to stop the cancer from spreading. But you can't keep taking that because it is bad for you," she says thoughtfully.

"Jennifer has had all the radiation that she can have in her life," Mrs. McFerrin explains. "Anything more would damage normal growth," she says.

"A nurse at M.D. Anderson wanted to use me as an example so the adults would behave better," Jennifer giggles.

To keep her spirits lifted, Jennifer says she tries to keep her mind on pleasant thoughts. Staying calm is the important thing to remember, the child says.

"I try not to think about the medicine. I make jokes and when it gets real bad I hold mom's hand real tight. I don't get scared much anymore. I am only afraid when mom doesn't tell me, or when she doesn't know what they are going to do next."

When Jennifer knows a shot or pain is imminent, she jokingly tells her doctor she has a dinner engagement.

Even though Jennifer has suffered, she still has faith in the medical profession. She recalls her first trip to Houston, when a resident doctor futilely attempted to perform a spinal tap. It is a test where fluid is taken from the spinal cord for clinical study. "He just kept poking the needle in my back over and over again. The first two times I didn't scream or cry. But by the fourth time I was hysterical. Mom finally said, 'Get someone who knows how to do this for my daughter.'" Another doctor successfully completed the spinal tap with minimal pain.

"You have to believe that the doctors know how to make you feel better," Jennifer advises. "Not all of them are bad."

The pleasant antithesis to the inexperienced resident is a radiologist at M.D. Anderson. Excitedly, Jennifer chatters about the doctor who gave her a pair of earrings and a T-shirt.

"He invited mom and me over for dinner at his house. We had spaghetti and meatballs for dinner," she vividly remembers. "I got to meet his daughter and ride in his sports car, too."

Mrs. McFerrin advises parents of critically ill children to take an active part in the child's treatment.

"The parents need to become totally involved and understand the medication and diagnosis. Hospitals, no matter how good, make mistakes. The doctors have done some wonderful things for Jennifer, but we have caught some mistakes, too. Never rely on one person for an answer. Be aware of all possible alternatives and read everything you can get your hands on.

Testifying to her mother's involvement, Jennifer says her mom can remove a needle better than the nurses. Colin, her 9-year-old brother, awarded their mother, who is by profession an assistant principal at Henderson High School, a "homemade nurse certificate."

Six weeks after radiation treatment at M.D. Anderson, Jennifer began chemotherapy. It is a five-day process, which Jennifer has since learned to dreadfully fear.

"The only time I really get scared anymore is when I have to go for chemo. It makes me so sick," the child says.

Severe nausea, lack of appetite and dehydration are caused by the chemotherapy, which is administered through an I.V.

Showing off ribbons which she recently won at school, it is evident that the little girl is stealing back the joys which cancer could have taken.

"I got a first-place ribbon in the tug-of-war contest," she boasts as she shifts to the next ribbon explaining each game in which she was a member.

Dr. Jo Velvin, Central Elementary principal, and teachers Mrs. Judy Mayo and Mrs. Dot Bryan, have helped Jennifer continue with normal classwork.

"She has kept up with the second grade because the teachers have been so helpful about preparing lessons. Before Jennifer came back to school the principal got on the loud speaker and prepared the students for Jennifer's bald head" Mrs. McFerrin says.

With her special "show and tell" of a brain x-ray and a facial mask used during radiation, Jennifer explained in detail to her class the nature of her illness and treatment.

It bothers Jennifer when people can't tell she is a girl because her hair has fallen out, but earrings usually solve that dilemma. Often she will joke with her mother about the hair loss.

One time Jennifer and I were standing in line at Wal-Mart. When we got to the register, she said, "Oh, wait Mom, I need to get my hair spray."

The help of concerned citizens has encouraged Jennifer and her family during the particularly rough spots. Through their church, The First Christian Church of Henderson, they made a new friend in Houston. When necessary, they stay with Mrs. Ethel Morris during their overnight visits to Houston.

Jennifer is scheduled for another battery of tests in the M.D. Anderson Hospital in June. Future testing and treatment will depend on those results.

HORSE HEALTH—Texas A&M University researcher Dr. Gary D. Potter checks the heart rate of Joker, one of the horses used by Potter to study physical fitness in horses. Potter hopes to improve

Professor says fitness is important in horses

By DANIEL PUCKETT
Bryan-College Station Eagle
COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Many of today's horses are in terrible condition, lacking the stamina to make it to the winner's circle.

Often, cutting horses and race horses perform well at the beginning of their events, but fade at the end. Devil's Bag, favored to win this year's Triple Crown, instead retired from racing because of a bone fracture, an injury that can be caused by fatigue.

A Texas A&M researcher is looking into horses' physical fitness, and thinks research on human athletes may help the equine variety find more stamina.

Dr. Gary D. Potter, a professor of animal science, says a procedure human athletes use to boost their energy levels may improve horses' performance, too.

High levels of glycogen, a carbohydrate stored in the muscles and liver, improve stamina by providing an extra burst of energy when the athlete begins to tire. Runners have learned to raise those levels by working out and eating few carbohydrates, and then stocking up on carbohydrates in the days before a race.

Potter, funded by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, is now working on a way to apply that procedure — muscle-glycogen loading — to horses. The results, he said, are encouraging.

"We know for a fact that the muscle-glycogen level in the muscle is significant in determining whether a horse performs up to par," he said. "But we need to research into the relation between the level stored and performance."

Potter and a graduate student, Don Topliff, didn't know at first whether they could load horses' muscles at all.

"The horse's digestive system is tricky and hard to manage," Potter said. "We didn't know if we could do it, because you have to put the horses on a low-carbohydrate diet ... and then work the snot out of them."

But they managed to reduce the glycogen levels and then to feed the horses enough carbohydrates to get a rebound effect. The horses' muscles stored as much as 1½ times the normal amount of glycogen.

Tests of the horses' fitness, however, were inconclusive.

"Once they were depleted, we put them on a treadmill and they couldn't go," he said. "But then we overloaded their muscles and found that overloading was important in some, but not all, of the horses. But we did find that we could return them to normal performance."

Potter said the research into improving performance grew out of a concentrated study of horses' overall fitness.

"We started in 1975, asking what we know about horses' physical fitness," he said. "We found that we didn't know much. There had been little research into athletic performance, and the evaluations were mostly subjective."

So A&M researchers began developing techniques to measure a horse's fitness, including a treadmill that allows scientists to capture a horse's exhaled breath and to take blood samples during exercise. They didn't like what they found, Potter said.

Undamaged counties qualify for federal disaster relief under new law provisions

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Before a new law went into effect on April 10, the Farmers Home Administration listed 1,587 counties in which farmers could apply to the agency for emergency loans to help them with losses due to drought and other disasters.

Now, according to the Agriculture Department agency, 502 additional counties are eligible simply because each borders on at least one county that was officially designated for the emergency loans.

Under the Emergency Agricultural Credit Act of 1984, all "counties contiguous to counties designated as eligible for the loans" are also eligible — even if no disaster occurred.

But drought and floods are somewhat like a fire in a housing complex, which may destroy one town house and do some damage to those on each side. Drought and other disasters do not necessarily stop at county lines.

In any case, according to the latest tabulations as of Thursday, the new law has added 502 counties to the eligibility list, including some in three states where no emergency designations had been made at all. Those included: Arizona, four counties; Colorado, five; and Nevada, three.

Most of the 2,089 designated and contiguous counties are in the Eastern half of the country, said FmHA spokesman Marilyn Aycock.

In fact, the Western states account for only a smattering of the counties now eligible for FmHA emergency farm loans, including: Arizona, 4; California, 6; Colorado, 5; Idaho, 13; Montana, 17; Nevada, 3; Oregon, 6; and Utah, 3.

Prior to the new law, only five states were completely blanketed by FmHA county designations — Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland and Missouri, Aycock said.

Now, there are 13 states in which all counties are designated, with the addition of Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Kentucky, New Mexico, South Carolina, South Dakota and Virginia.

Iowa is an example of how the new law worked. Before it took effect, nine counties remained undesignated. Now, those counties adjoin at least one other county — state lines make no difference — and thus are eligible.

The agency's listing of eligible counties under the new law can be cumbersome. Consider the situation in Texas, for example.

According to FmHA announcements, 99 counties in Texas had been designated for the disaster loans. After the new law took effect, 67 more counties in Texas became eligible.

"These 67 contiguous counties are named as natural disaster areas due to Texas disasters," the FmHA reported.

"The provisions of the act also apply to three counties in Texas that are contiguous to one or more Oklahoma counties declared or designated" for loans.

"Additionally, the provisions of the act apply to two Texas counties that are contiguous to one or more Arkansas counties."

GOLDASTER WEEDS

I have a personal goal of trying to acquaint every rangeland owner in the sandy rolling country with the goldaster weed. Ranchers need to know for sure what this weed looks like and its growth habits. It is an insidious weed that slowly, but surely is taking over a lot of good grazing country below the caprock. It invades despite good grazing management when soil conditions favor goldaster development. This condition appears on old go-back cropland or sandier, lighter type of native rangeland.

Goldaster weeds are fairly noticeable this year because dry conditions have limited other weed and grass growth and the goldaster weeds are about six inches high currently. I have a few specimens in my office. Anyone wanting to see for sure what goldaster looks like — come by.

Reliable economical control we do not have currently, but we are working on this problem. More research is needed and this will require funds. Answers are not easily obtained — we have been working for nine years on this problem through inexpensive research and result demonstrations. We have learned a few things, but the unknown factors are still too many for us to have developed good control recommendations.

Several Extension Agents in the Eastern Panhandle area have noticed the continued invasion of goldaster weeds on rangeland and the resulting decrease in grass production. I have had a few folks that think they may know what this weed is, but when we get to looking, they had the wrong weed. That is one reason for the samples in my office so that people can know for sure what the weed looks like.

EMABRYO TRANSFER

The Bailey County Livestock Committee is going to sponsor an embryo transfer program on Thursday night, June 14, at 7:30 p.m. at the Bailey County Coliseum on Highway 84 in Muleshoe. This program will consist of two speakers: Dr. John Beverlay, Extension reproduction specialist, who will speak on embryo transfer, frozen eggs and synchronization and Dr. John McNeil, Extension beef cattle specialist, who will talk on general herd health, nutrition and overall beef cow management for A.I. programs.

This is a long way for producers to travel, but this education program will be beneficial to anyone who is considering embryo transfer.

VACCINATE HORSES FOR SLEEPING SICKNESS, TETANUS

Though sleeping sickness is no longer a major problem in the horse industry, it still exists and all equines should receive a protective vaccine each year.

A highly effective combination vaccine is available for horses. It protects against Eastern, Western, Venezuelan types of sleeping sickness as well as tetanus.

Losing horses to sleeping sickness is unnecessary.

In recent years, cases of the disease have been reported in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama, probably due to high mosquito populations during summer months.

Equine encephalitis (sleeping sickness) is carried naturally by several species of birds. When mosquitoes bite an infected bird, the disease can then be transmitted by the mosquitoes to other animals.

Early signs of the disease include fever, loss of appetite and depression. The animal is usually restless, may walk aimlessly in circles and be sensitive to sound and touch.

One common symptom is a horse that stands with his head hung low like he's sleeping. He doesn't fully chew hay or forage, and as the disease progresses, the tongue may actually hang out of the mouth.

Once the horse is infected, treatment is generally unsuccessful. That's why proper immunization each year is so important.

The disease can also be transmitted to humans and some other animals. The virus has been found in dogs, goats, pigs and domestic birds.

All equines should be vaccinated each spring before mosquitoes become prevalent. This should give them the protection needed for another year.

Consult your veterinarian regarding available vaccines to combat sleeping sickness.

DEVELOPE LANDSCAPE TO CONSERVE WATER

With water supplies declining in Texas, homeowners and others should be interested in reducing water use for turf and garden areas.

Water conservation can be practiced in all areas of landscape development and maintenance, including plant selection, irrigation practices and equipment and soil preparations. These practices can be aesthetic as well as practical.

Homeowners can lower their landscape water usage in several ways:

—Using native and adapted plants. Native plants often thrive on existing growth conditions and reduce the need for extra irrigation. Many plants have been introduced that show adaptability to soil, rainfall and temperature conditions.

—Taking advantage of innovations in irrigation practices and equipment. The landscape irrigation business is experiencing a revolution, with new timing devices, low pressure systems, drip irrigation and other highly specialized water devices focusing on more efficient water usage. Irrigation systems and small ponds and fountains also can effectively use water as an aesthetic addition to a landscape.

—Using mulches for insulation. By providing an insulating layer between the sun and soil, mulches prevent rapid drying and lower soil temperature in hot weather, which keeps the top soil from crusting or hardening. Low-cost materials such as hay and grass clippings are excellent for mulching and can add appeal with texture and color.

—Properly preparing the soil. When soil has been loosened and improved with plenty of organic material, such as peat or compost, it will hold significantly more moisture and release it over a longer period of time. However, organic materials break down over time and need to be supplemented. A compost pile can be a good source of these materials, allowing the homeowner to recycle leaves, grass clippings and other waste to improve the soil.

CHAPPED HANDS

I have heard excuses from ladies about how hard it is on their hands to work in the garden. Now men, make sure you give this information to your wife so she will not have a good excuse to avoid working in the garden.

If gardening makes your hands dry and cracked, let straight cider vinegar dry on clean hands, then apply your favorite lotion. The vinegar makes your hands soft and supple, even after hours of gardening without gloves.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

ambitions can be fulfilled this coming year if you qualify your targets. Don't waste time and effort on things you might not want once you get them.

CEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may have additional difficulties with which to contend today that are not of your own doing. These problems will result from the ineptness of others. Want to find out to whom you're best suited romantically? Send for your Matchmaker set by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It reveals compatibilities for all signs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) One of your pals has a chip on his shoulder today, and his bite is as bad as his bark. Don't do anything to antagonize him further.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to be too assertive today either at home or at work. If you start bossing others around, you'll create unnecessary problems for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Subdue tendencies to overreact today if others express viewpoints contrary to yours. Everyone is entitled to his or her opinion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not let others make financial commitments on your behalf today without your consent. If you do, you'll end up paying for their mistakes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Frustrations are likely today if you get too involved with someone who doesn't appreciate the values of teamwork. It's best to go it alone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A poor mental attitude where your work is concerned will make distasteful chores even harder. Don't get your thumb in the way of the hammer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Instead of making life a game today, you're apt to take everything too seriously. If you start looking for problems, you're sure to find them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not permit outsiders or in-laws to become too involved in your family's personal affairs today. Their input could really muddy the water.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even though you'll feel strong inclinations to level some choice comments at a person who bugs you today, it's best to leave your ire unexpressed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your sales resistance could be lower than usual today. Take care you're not pressured into buying something you really don't need or want.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone with whom you're closely associated will be in a temperamental mood today. Don't let him or her put a rift in your relationship.

Partners give update on South Texas Nuclear Power project

AUSTIN (AP) — The South Texas Nuclear Project is ahead of schedule and under budget, but that's only if a new timetable is used as the measuring stick, according to the managing partner of the project.

Don Jordan, chairman and chief executive officer of Houston Lighting & Power, admitted that he was only talking about the schedule established in 1982 after Brown & Root Inc. was fired as chief engineer and resigned as chief contractor.

The plant, originally estimated to cost $900 million with partial start-up in 1980, is now projected to cost $5.495 billion with commercial operation to begin in 1987.

HL&P and the other partners, Central Power & Light, San Antonio and Austin have paid in $2.6 billion, according to information released at a news conference Thursday.

The partners have sued Brown & Root, contending the former builder was at fault for cost overruns, engineering problems and lengthy delays at the project near Bay City.

Jordan said for the first time since Bechtel Power Corp. and Ebasco Services, Inc., took over construction of the project in 1982, "we are, in fact, a little ahead" of schedule.

"Every day that we continue to see the progress on this project we become more and more convinced that it is, in fact, going to be completed on schedule and on budget and will provide for each of our companies, as well as the state, some very economical electrical power when it is finished," Jordan said.

"So, it is accurate to say the project is today a little ahead of schedule and a little under budget," he added.

Jordan was asked, however, if the figures were not misleading because the project actually is billions of dollars over budget and years behind schedule.

"Well, you're absolutely right in that it is well above the original budget and well behind the original schedule — nobody denies that," Jordan said.

He blamed part of the overrun on additional regulations and other factors that will come out in the lawsuit.

Jordan said the project is now 51.3 percent complete, and total construction progress in April was 1.7 percent against 1.6 percent scheduled. He said expenditures in April totaled $62.9 million, reflecting a decrease of $1 million compared with the forecast of $63.9 million.

Total year-to-date expenses totaled $216.1 million, Jordan said, which is $7.4 million under the 1984 year-to-date budget.

He said the Thursday report measured progress compared with the new schedule and budget of almost two years ago.

Russ Christesen, president and chief executive officer of Ebasco, said not a single day is being lost on the project because 3,100 employees are working four 10-hour days, and then they are off four days, and another crew of 3,100 works four 10-hour days.

Authority to sell new bonds

AUSTIN (AP) — Officials of the Lower Colorado River Authority say their sound financial condition is enabling them to sell $265 million in revenue bonds despite a tough market created by the billion-dollar default of a public power system in Washington state.

"The sale of these bonds proves that LCRA can raise the necessary capital for such major construction projects in an extremely difficult market," John Heaton, the authority's executive director for finance, said Thursday after the bond sale was announced.

The money will be used to fund part of the third lignite-fired generating unit at the Fayette Power Project near La Grange.

Total cost of the Fayette 3 unit and related mine facilities is estimated at about $800 million, the authority said.

The authority's directors said the bond issue is the first of what probably will be five annual issues which will pay for power plant construction, mine facilities at nearby Cummins Creek and related projects such as transmission lines and substations.

Green flag ready for fastest Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Thirty-three of the fastest vehicles built to stay on the ground will take the green flag Sunday for the start of the 68th Indianapolis 500.

It's the fastest field in the history of car racing, a group of missiles capable of straightaway speeds in excess of 215 mph. It is probably the most competitive field ever at Indy, with 33 cars.

Raw speed and competitive balance add up to danger.

"It's up to us how safe this race is," said defending champion Tom Sneva, who helped break all the qualifying records for this year's race by winning the pole with an average speed of 210.029 mph.

"There are more guys in this field with a chance to win than I can ever remember. It's going to take more concentration and more good driving to win this year, and it's going to take concentration and a little luck to stay out of trouble."

Practice and qualifying for the race were marked by a handful of spectacular crashes, the most serious involving Michael Chandler.

The son of Times-Mirror editor-in-chief Otis Chandler was in a coma for 2½ days after a piece of his car's suspension broke in the wreck and shattered his face shield. He was released Friday night from Methodist Hospital and returned to his home in Dana Point, Calif.

Many of the drivers in the field — including 32 cars qualifying at more than 200 mph — say they'll have to be able to run laps averaging as much as 204-205 on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 2½-mile oval.

The single fastest race lap in the 67 previous Indy 500s was 200.525 by Rick Mears in 1982. The all-time race record is 162.962 by the late Mark Donohue in 1972.

"If you don't have the ability to run laps that high comfortably, then you're probably not going to have a chance to win," said Mears, the 1979 winner who will start from the outside of the front row. "We may not have to do that quick, depending on track conditions and the weather, but if we do it's going to tell the story."

"Sometime during the race, I'm not sure when, we're going to have to be able to go that fast," said Mario Andretti, who will be starting right behind Mears in the second row.

Andretti was slowed in qualifications by an electrical malfunction on his Lola-Cosworth, one of only four non-Marches in this field sped with foreign flavor and seven former winners. But Andretti actually was the fastest in practice this month, the 1969 Indy winner hitting several laps over 212.

The 44-year-old Andretti heads into the race as the co-favorite with Sneva, 35, and Mears, 32.

Sneva, whose victory last May was his first here after three second-place finishes, has the opportunity to become the first winner of consecutive Indys since Al Unser won the 1970 and 1971 races.

Sixteen drivers have won this race from the pole. Bobby Unser doing it last in 1981. But three of them have been since 1979, indicating the importance of front-running speed.

"Right now, the way I look at it, the main guys I'm going to have to beat are Sneva and Mears," Andretti said. "It's their consistency and performance, though I wouldn't be at all shocked if another surprise came along.

"When it comes to oval racing, Tom's as aggressive as they come," Andretti said. "If his equipment is up to snuff, you've got a job on your hands because he knows how to get everything out of a car. Today, he's as tough a competitor as you're going to have on an oval."

"And Mears is the same way. He's very calculated and he's very consistent and strong. Both of them are capable of getting ten-tenths out of the car for 500 miles. You know you're not gonna break 'em physically or mentally. That's what you're up against. And they're not the only two capable of getting ten-tenths out of their car and not breaking down in competition."

Andretti said the race is "going to a barnburner."

"I don't think it's going to be any tougher to win. I think it's going to be tougher than hell to finish fifth. I think as far as winning, it's always been tough. I've come through the pack here from the back many times, and zipped right to the front. But I'll tell you what: As soon as you get close, come to the top three, you come to a screeching halt. Then you start working."

"The way it's going to be (Sunday), you're going to have to start working hard right from 20th on. Looking at the speeds and quality of cars, you're not going to whiz by anybody. It's going to be tough even lapping cars."

The 33 fastest qualifiers averaged a mind-boggling 203.692 mph.

The only other rookies in the race are sports car road racing champion Al Holbert and veteran road racer Tom Gloy.

Cougars win NCAA golf title

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston charged from three shots off the pace to give Coach Dave Williams his 15th national championship and North Carolina's John Inman won the individual title with a record 17-under par 271 Saturday in the 87th NCAA Division I Golf Championships.

Houston's Steve Elkington sank a two-foot putt on the final hole and then threw his ball into the air, signifying the victory. Oklahoma State's Tommy Moore missed a birdie putt that would have tied the tournament, giving the Cougars a one-stroke victory.

The Cougars, mired in 19th place after the first round, charged to a tie for fifth after 36 holes and started Saturday finale three shots behind defending champion Oklahoma State, which had led for two rounds.

But the Cougars, pulled into a tie on No. 1 when Steve Russell birdied and Oklahoma State's Kevin Whipple shot par.

Houston continued to surge and took a three-stroke lead into the final hole but Cowboy golfers Scott Verplank and Andy Dillard each birdied the hole to cut Houston's margin to one shot.

Elkington keyed the Cougar charge with a 5-under par 67 for a 13-under par 275 total and runnerup to Inman.

Houston, which last won the national title in 1982, finished the tournament with a 7-under 1,145. Oklahoma State was a stroke back at 1,146, and Oklahoma was third at 1,149.

Inman's 271 total broke the championship record of 15-under 273 set in 1971 by former Texas golfer Ben Crenshaw, a recent winner of the Masters Tournament.

Inman, who had eagles in two of his first three rounds, jumped off to another quick start in the final round with an eagle and birdie on the first two holes to go 3-under for the round and 15-under for the tournament.

"I chipped up a sand wedge from 45 feet and when I saw it disappear, I couldn't believe it," Inman said. "I figure after the first hole that it might be a pretty good round."

Inman followed with a 20-foot birdie putt on No. 2 and he was off to capping the best tournament of his career.

Pampa Striders Club now accepting entries

Persons interested in joining the Pampa Striders track club can sign up now at the high school football fieldhouse. Registration fee is $6.

Youngsters 7 years of age and up are invited to join the club, but membership is also open to college and senior athletes.

Gary Cornelsen, Pampa High track coach, stressed that attendance isn't required at every meet or workout.

"This isn't like in high school where you have to come to every practice," Cornelsen said. "They can come to workouts whenever possible and attend the meets of their choice. There is no required attendance."

Meets begin June 9 for the younger ages and June 17 for older ages.

For more information, call Phil George at 665-7989 or Terry Moore at 665-2030.

Summer vacations and weekend out-of-town trips won't interfere.

Workouts will be held Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9 to 11, and Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 9. Workouts start June 4.

"Morning sessions are for the younger ages, but any workouts can be attended by anyone," Cornelsen said.

Cornelsen said basic knowledge of track and field, plus running skills, will be taught.

Meets begin June 9 for the younger ages and June 17 for older ages.

For more information, call Phil George at 665-7989 or Terry Moore at 665-2030.

Lakers edge Suns on Magic's layup

LAKERS EDGE
By WALTER BERRY
AP Sports Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley says the Phoenix Suns "were perfect practice" for his Lakers, who now face the Boston Celtics for the National Basketball Association's world championship.

Los Angeles claimed its third consecutive Western Conference title here Friday night as Earvin "Magic" Johnson's layup with 1:05 remaining resulted in a 99-97 victory.

The Lakers, taking this best-of-seven playoff series 4-2, start the final best-of-seven set Sunday in Boston Garden against the well-rested Eastern Conference champion Celtics.

"This series was good for us," Riley said. "The Suns' front line is very similar to Boston's. I think we're ready for them now. We don't have much time off to prepare. But hey, I'm just happy to have this one over and Phoenix out of the way. We made the last play and that was the key."

Trying to become only the fifth team in NBA history to overcome a 3-1 deficit and win a playoff series, the Suns tied the score for the seventh time in the fourth period at 97-97 on Walter Davis' jumper with 1:19 left.

Johnson then sank his game-winning shot under the basket off a perfect hook pass by center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Phoenix watched its chance to force an overtime fade as James Edwards' desperation eight-foot jumper went wide with three seconds left. Abdul-Jabbar pulled down the rebound and held on until the buzzer sounded.

"The whole time we had confidence that we were going to win it. I was just waiting for our run," said Johnson, who finished with 16 points, 13 assists and 11 rebounds. "We were just patient and that patience paid off."

"Our defense was awesome the last eight minutes," Riley said. "It was hand-to-hand karate at both ends of the floor, and I think our experience played to our advantage. We were the aggressor down the stretch and Magic did what he had to do to win the game. He made the big plays, the big layup and got three or four offensive rebounds."

"It was an exceptional game. Phoenix proved that they belonged here," Riley added. "But I think the pressure might have got to them at the end."

"We were beaten by a very good ballclub. That's all there is to it," said Suns Coach John MacLeod. "We seemed to tire a little in the second half and we just couldn't put them away. We had the shot opportunities, but the ball just wouldn't drop."

James Worthy led the Lakers with 22 points while Abdul-Jabbar and rookie Byron Scott 13 each and Michael Cooper 10.

Davis had a game-high 26 points. Maurice Lucas added 21 for Phoenix and Larry Nance and Edwards 11 apiece.

Abdul-Jabbar, who had led all scorers in the series by averaging 26 points through the first five games, was held to just two points in the first half — hitting one of six shots from the field.

Southwest Conference votes to use shot clock fulltime

AUSTIN (AP) — The 45-second shot clock will tick throughout the entirety of Southwest Conference basketball games next season, conference officials have ruled.

The change was made Friday during the meeting of faculty representatives who set the conference rules.

The shot clock was turned off during the final five minutes of SWC games this past season.

Also Friday, the conference re-arranged its postseason basketball tournament, opting for three-day, one-site event that will include eight of the league's nine teams. That system replaces a tournament that included all teams, with early-round games played at different sites.

The eight-team tournament will be held at Dallas' Reunion Arena on March 8-10.

The conference also set a spring sports schedule aimed at avoiding conflicts with final exams. This year's conference track and baseball championships were played during finals at some member schools.

Here is the 1985 championships schedule set Friday:

- Men's and women's cross-country, Nov. 5, Fort Worth.
- Men's and women's indoor track, Feb. 15, site not set.
- Women's swimming, Feb. 21-23, Austin.

HOW MUCH HAVE YOU GOT RIDING ON YOUR TIRES?

Chances are the cargo is valuable. It includes you, your family, your friends, and a car that's worth a ransom in replacement value. So you want a tire that won't let you down. That delivers low cost per mile. And ride. And stopping traction. And maybe you want snow capability too.

Whitewalls might be nice. And the belts could be steel, or maybe fiberglass. Or for an older car, maybe no belts at all.

Now if you could use a little help in figuring which tire to buy, come see us. We know how to help. And we have lots of choices.

Maybe we can match you up with one of the tires now on sale. But if we can't, we'll lay it on the line. And the final choice will be up to you. What could be fairer than that?

Pfzinger wins men's marathon trial

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Pete Pfzinger, given little chance to earn a spot on the U.S. Olympic team, dramatically spurted past Alberto Salazar in the final 100 yards and won the Men's Marathon Trials Saturday.

The lightly regarded, 26-year-old Pfzinger, of West Newton, Mass., finished his career-best time of 2:11:50, 11 minutes, 43 seconds, beating Salazar, owner of the fastest marathon time in history, by one second.

It was a gutsy, surprising performance by Pfzinger, whose previous best time was 2:12:34 in last year's Montreal International Marathon.

Pfzinger, along with Salazar, runner-up in 2:11:44, and John Tuttle, third in 2:11:50, will compete in the Olympic Marathon Aug. 12 at Los Angeles.

The alternates for the U.S. team will be Dave Gordon, fourth in 2:11:59; Deam Matthews, fifth in 2:12:26, and Tony Sandoval, sixth in 2:12:42. Sandoval had won the 1980 Trials.

His two teammates on the 1980 squad that did not compete in the Moscow Olympics because of the U.S. boycott — Benji Durden and Kyle Heffner — were not factors in Saturday's race.

Greg Meyer, the 1983 Boston Marathon winner and one of the favorites Saturday, wound up seventh in 2:13:30, edging 36-year-old Bill Rodgers, a 1976 Olympian and a four-time winner of the Boston Marathon and New York City Marathon Rodgers was eighth.

While some of the big-name runners failed to live up to expectations, the unheralded Pfzinger far exceeded his.

"Who expected Pfzinger to win?" said the surprised Salazar, whose time was 3 1/2 minutes slower than his world-best of 2:08:13 set in the 1981 New York City Marathon.

"But this is a race where some people can come out of the woodwork, because there's not as much pressure on them," added Salazar, who ran a courageous race after having suffered emotional and physical problems, most recently a metatarsal injury on the top of his left foot less than four weeks ago.

Pfzinger's effort not only was surprising in view of the fact that he won, but the way in which he won with his closing charge past Salazar and Tuttle, after the two had passed him with less than a mile remaining in that situation, and with third place and a berth on the team virtually assured, a runner often does not come back

But Pfzinger, the American record holder at 20 miles and winner of the 1983 Athletics Congress Marathon at San Francisco and the 1980 Skyron Marathon (over the same scenic course used Saturday), summoned up a final burst of energy and swept past Tuttle, then the stunned Salazar.

"I felt good right from the start," the smiling Pfzinger said after becoming the first American ever to beat Salazar in a marathon.

"My coach, Kevin Ryan, had sent me to New Zealand to train," continued Pfzinger. "This way I was able to avoid the bad Boston weather."

Of his late sprint past Salazar, the elated Pfzinger said, "I don't know where I got the strength to go past Al."

Referring to the Olympics, he added, "I hope it still will be there in two months."

Brewers edge Twins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Shortstop Robin Yount's throwing error in the ninth allowed Tim Lincecum to score from second base and give the Minnesota Twins a 7-6 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Pete Filson, 4-1, pitched 5 1/3 innings of three-hit relief for the victory.

Teufel led off the ninth with a walk against losing pitcher Rick Waits, 0-1. Kent Hrbek sacrificed Teufel to second and Rolie Fingers came in to face Dave Engle. Engle hit a ground ball to Yount, who threw wildly to first to allow Teufel to score with the winning run.

The Twins took a 2-0 lead off Brewer starter Don Sutton in the first on a single by Kirby Puckett and Teufel's home run.

Milwaukee tied the game in the second when Ted Simmons singled and Ben Oglivie followed with a homer.

The Brewers chased Minnesota starter Ed Hodge in the fourth, scoring two runs on triples by Yount and Simmons and a single by Randy Ready.

Minnesota cut the Milwaukee lead to 4-3 in the fifth on a sacrifice fly by Kent Hrbek.

But the Twins made it 6-3 in the sixth. Simmons tripled home one run, then scored on Hrbek's wild relay throw.

Minnesota tied the game 6-6 in the bottom of the sixth on consecutive homers by Gaetti and Mickey Hatcher. Gaetti's shot scored Randy Bush, who had doubled.

Braves belt Cardinals

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Horner keyed a four-run fifth with a two-run single and also singled in another run in the seventh to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 7-3 win over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

Jerry Royster pinch-hitting for starter Rich Mahler, 2-1, led off the fifth with a single. Royster advanced to second on a Cardinal error. Dale Murphy doubled in a run and Chris Chambliss walked to load the bases prior to Horner's two-run single.

Gerald Perry, who had doubled in the Braves' first run in the second inning, then singled home Chambliss and chased Neil Allen, 2-1. Allen had relieved Cardinal starter

John Stuper after a rain delay of two hours and one minute in the second inning.

In the first, Tommy Herr doubled and scored on a Braves error that let Willie McGee get to third. He scored on Lonnie Smith's single. Smith scored on a double play grounder by George Hendrick.

The Braves scored two more in the seventh off Cardinal reliever Dave Rucker. Murphy singled and Chambliss was hit by a pitch. Horner singled in Murphy and a grounder by Perry scored Chambliss.

Atlanta's Jeff Dedmon pitched four shutout innings of relief for his third save.

Mets slip past Dodgers

NEW YORK (AP) — Hubie Brooks extended major league baseball's longest hitting streak of the season to 20 games with a home run and Wally Backman singled in the game-winning run as the New York Mets defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 Saturday.

Tim Leary, 2-2, pitched three innings of scoreless relief for the victory, while Jesse Orosco recorded his eighth save.

Leary relieved starter Ed Lynch, who was forced to leave the game after breaking a blood vessel in his right thumb in the third inning.

Tom Niedenfuer, 1-4, who relieved Orel Hershiser in the seventh, absorbed the loss. Hershiser, a late replacement at starter over injured Jerry Reuss, had allowed only three hits until Brooks tied the score with his homer.

Reds win squeaker

CHICAGO (AP) — Tony Perez's two-run single in the ninth led the Cincinnati Reds 7-6 over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Errors by second baseman Ryne Sandberg and shortstop Larry Bowa on consecutive ground balls by Eric Davis and Cesar Cedeno opened the door for the Reds' rally. A ground ball by Dave Parker moved the runners to second and third to set the stage for Perez' hit off Steve Trout, 5-3.

Bill Scherrer, 1-0, was the winner, with relief help from Ted Power.

The Cubs had battled back to tie it 5-5 with three runs in the sixth and then took the lead 6-5 on Roy Cey's double in the seventh.

Cincinnati scored twice in the second on successive singles by Dave Concepcion, Ron Oester, Tom Foley and Frank Pastore.

They added two more runs in the third off rookie starter Don Schulze on singles by John Milner and Dan Driessen, a run-scoring double by Parker and a sacrifice fly by Brad Guiden.

The Cubs picked up a run in the third when Jody Davis doubled, went to third on a wild pitch and scored as Bob Dernier grounded out.

Driessen's RBI single in the fifth gave the Reds a 5-1 lead before the Cubs came back in their half on an RBI single by Gary Woods.

Speculators putting pressure on peso

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Financial analysts here say that speculators, prompted by rumors of a new devaluation, are putting heavy pressure on Mexico's battered peso. But the experts say they doubt the government will devalue the currency at this time.

"Another devaluation would make investors lose even more confidence in the peso," said Roberto Figueroa, an economist formerly with Banco de Mexico, the central bank.

Figueroa, now a partner in a private firm, and other analysts agreed that if the government does decide to devalue the peso, it will not be a sharp devaluation. Instead, they said, the government might try to ease pressure by increasing the sliding rate for the peso now in effect.

The peso suffered three sharp devaluations three times in 1982. In September 1983, the government established a slide rate for the pesos of 13 centavos daily. There are 100 centavos to a peso.

Because the current slide rate is not in step with the inflation rate, running at nearly 70 percent this year, speculators apparently believe the government will either have to devalue the peso or increase its slide.

The speculation, which began in early May, is causing a shortage of dollars needed by businessmen to pay for imports. For a time last week the shortage also affected Mexican tourists, preventing them from receiving the full quota of $500 normally available to individuals traveling outside the country.

For the past week there have been long lines in banks of people trying to buy dollars. But banks are restricting the amount of each sale because of the shortage of dollars.

"We have not been taking in dollars," said a Mexican bank official. "We can't sell what we don't have."

The exchange rate reached 205 pesos to the dollar in exchange houses and banks in U.S. border cities on Thursday, bank officials reported. The official exchange rate offered by the country's nationalized banks was 180 pesos to the dollar.

Bankers and private economists said the rumors of a new devaluation were ignited by an increase in U.S. interest rates and President Miguel de la Madrid's recent trip to Washington.

According to the rumors, U.S. officials pressured de la Madrid to agree to a new devaluation, analysts here and in U.S. border cities said.

"It is mostly speculation," said a Mexican banker, who spoke on condition he not be identified. "The market is very, very nervous this week because of all the rumors going around."

Jorge Bustamante, director of the Tijuana-based Border Studies Center of Northern Mexico, said exchange houses have caused panics in the past and can "provoke conditions for a devaluation if the (dollar) flow is too high."

He said there has been a high flow of dollars out Mexico during the last three weeks for unclear reasons and exchange houses have interpreted it to mean that people with inside information are trying to get their money out of the country because of an impending devaluation.

4-H Corner

and TANYA MORRIS County Extension Agents

DATES
May 28-30 — Horsemanship Clinic, Danny Beebe Arena.
May 29 — 7 p.m., Dog Obedience Project meeting, Courthouse Annex.
May 29 — 7:30 p.m., 4-H Council meeting and election of officers, Big Cheese Pizza.
May 31 — 5 p.m., reservations for Electric Camp due in Extension office.
June 1 — 6 p.m., Top O' Texas and Grandview 4-H Clubs hayride, Courthouse Annex.
HAYRIDE REMINDER
The Top O' Texas and Grandview 4-H Clubs will be meeting at 6 p.m. June 1 at the Courthouse Annex to go on a hayride. All members of these clubs are asked to call and make reservations for themselves, their families and a guest by May 29. Please call one of these leaders, Elizabeth Alexander 665-4390, Yvonne Ingram 665-3950 or Roselle Collingsworth 665-5021. Cost of the hayride is $1 per person to cover the cost of the cookout following the hayride.

4-H ELECTRIC CAMP
If you are a 4-H'er who will be at least 13 years old by June 18, you are eligible for Electric Camp. This camp is conducted at Camp Scott Able near Cloudercroft, N.M., June 25-29. Southwestern Public Service Company pays for food and lodging during the week long camp.

Gray County 4-H will pay half of the bus fare to the camp. This leaves approximately a $25 fee per 4-H'er for a week of camping fun. Activities include organized recreation, refreshments, flag ceremonies, vespers and many new friends from the Panhandle and South Plains areas.

If you are interested in attending Electric Camp, deadline for getting your name on the list is May 31. "LEARN TO EARN"

Start making plans now to attend the 1984 "Learn to Earn" seminar for all Gray County Youth on Thursday, June 14. This seminar is sponsored by the Gray County 4-H and Youth Committee and will be held at the Courthouse Annex and Clyde Carruth Livestock Pavilion. Purpose of this seminar is to pass along accurate information to youth about how to develop good skills in the areas of lawn care and babysitting so that they may earn some money on their own. Lawn care and babysitting will be covered this year for people ages 12 and up, as well as a session on "101 job ideas for ages 9-11." These will be some simple but profitable ideas for this age group to try.

It should be a great experience for young people who want to earn some money and accept the responsibility of a job.

HORSEMANSHIP CLINIC
All 4-H'ers interested in horses should try to attend the Horsemanship Clinic to be held May 28-30 at the Danny Beebe Arena, east of Pampa off Loop 171.

This clinic will be conducted by the Texas A&M Horsemanship Team and will cost $25 for all three days.

Registration will be 8:30 on Monday, May 28 at the arena.

For more information contact the county Extension office at 669-7429

Round and round the floor they go. . .

ED CAMPBELL of Dallas, left, cues dance steps to Jack and Margie Smith of Wichita Falls as they head around the floor.

Tired of sitting around watching television every night? Want to find something you can do as a couple for fun, relaxation and enjoyment? Looking for some good dancing but not interested in square dancing or disco?

A number of area couples have become involved in round dancing as an answer to these questions.

Round dancing basically is choreographed ballroom dancing in which couples swirl and step and swing around the dance floor to music, following dance cues given them by a cuer or instructor with a microphone.

Growing out of coordinated square dancing but with a return to the ballroom dance forms, round dancing clubs have grown in numbers over the past couple of decades until they now can be found in many places in the United States and even throughout the world. Worldwide associations are organized under the auspices of the Universal Round Dance Council.

Locally, about 25 couples have formed the Funtastics to practice such dances as the waltz, two-step, rumba, cha cha, foxtrot and swing as they circle the floor counterclockwise in choreographed, synchronized movements.

The Funtastics meet regularly Monday, Tuesday and Friday nights at 7:30 at the gymnasium of the Pampa Center of Clarendon College, 900 N. Frost. Tuesday nights are reserved for basic instruction when classes are offered for couples wanting to get into round dance activities.

Monday and Friday nights are for "just dancing," but instruction is on-going as couples practice new steps and arrangements. Instructors for the local round dance club are J. D. and Betty Brown of Pampa.

Music ranges in variety from slower, easy listening styles to up-tempo swing and Latin American rhythms.

In addition to dancing locally, members often attend round dance festivals throughout the area and even in other parts of the nation. Local dancers have attended festivals in such places as Amarillo, Lubbock, Oklahoma City, Dallas, San Antonio, New Mexico and Colorado.

Recently the club held its own festival at the Clarendon College center, attracting couples from Borger, Stratford, Amarillo, Wichita Falls, Dallas and parts of New Mexico and Oklahoma over the Easter weekend. Guest instructors were Ed and Frankie Campbell of Dallas.

At the festivals couples have the opportunity to swirl around the floor to cued steps, meet new people and visit during breaks in the music. The larger festivals can attract several hundred couples over several days dancing together.

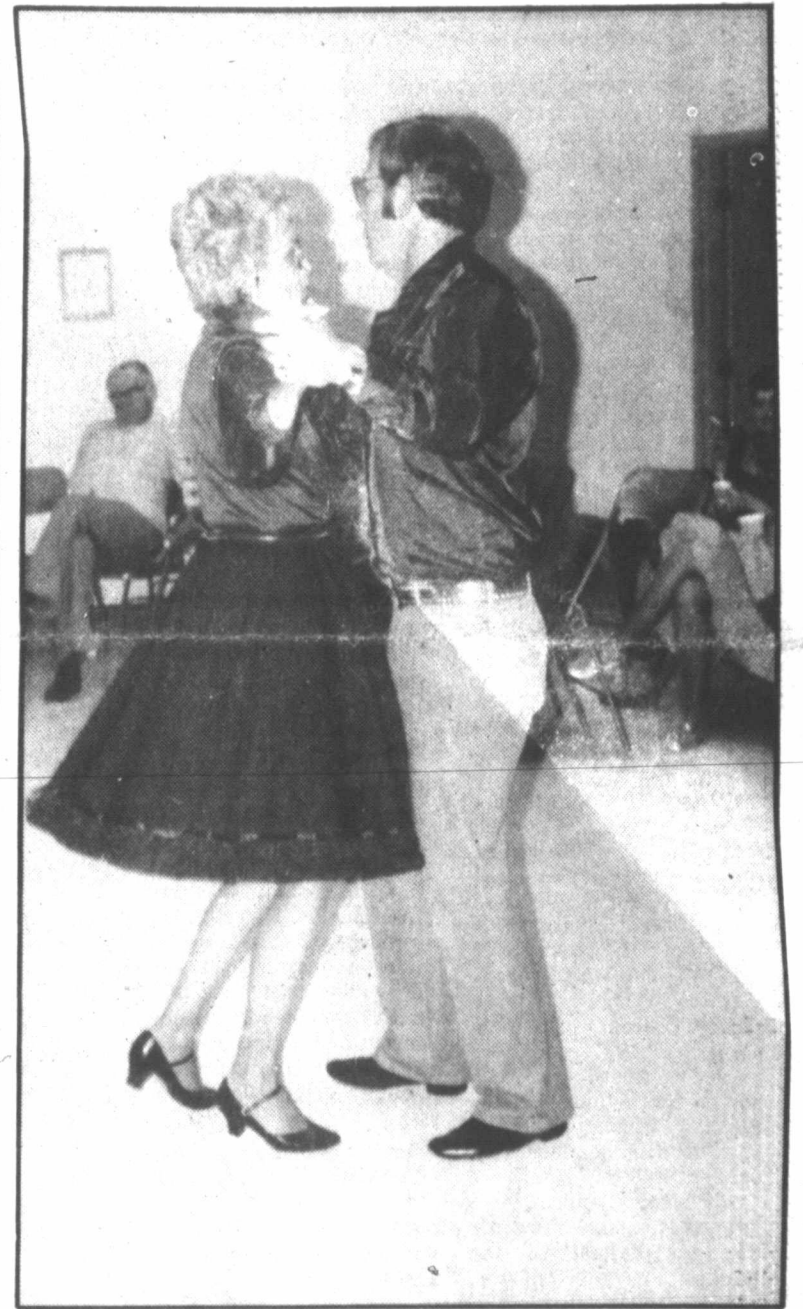

Couples who already have had practice in round dancing are invited to attend the Funtastics dances. Persons interested in learning round dancing may contact J. D. and Betty Brown at 665-3834, Russell and Linda Hollis at 665-1083 or any Funtastics member.

JIM AND TWILA Hall of Pampa, Mayfield of Amarillo, left, and Merray and Rebecca Stroud of Pampa and her partner. Below, Ken Osborne and Kathryn Hood of Pampa.

FRANKIE CAMPBELL of Dallas and Russell Hollis of Pampa await the cue of the dance instructor as the music begins for another round dance.

J. D. AND BETTY Brown of Pampa, above, swirl to the music as they practice their steps. Below, John and Lois Harvey of Borger, left, and Ed and Frankie Campbell of Dallas, guest instructors, sway to the beat as they circle the floor at the Pampa Center of Clarendon College during a recent festival.

Douglass-Brown

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Douglass of Pampa announce the engagement of their daughter, Stacy Ann, to Joe Bert Brown of Dallas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brown of Levelland.

An Aug. 4 wedding is planned in Dallas.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Pampa High School and of Texas A&M University, College Station with a bachelor of arts degree. She is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She is currently employed with Celanese Chemical Company in Dallas as coordinator of the Information Center.

Brown holds a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from Texas Tech University in Lubbock. He is currently employed with Celanese Chemical Company in Dallas as a strategic planning consultant.

Haines-Carruth

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haines of Pampa announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Deanna Jodell, to Michael Wayne Carruth, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Carruth of Pampa.

A June 30 wedding is planned in the First Christian Church here.

Miss Haines is a 1984 graduate of Pampa High School. She is employed by Meers Oil Company. Carruth also graduated from Pampa High School in 1984. He is employed by Sims Electric Company.

Doctor-patient decisions urged

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Until the 1960s, doctor-patient relationships were based on patients' trust that doctors knew, and acted in, patients' best interests, a University of Rochester notes.

Recent medical breakthroughs and increasing treatment choices, however, have led medical critics into proposing that patients — the "consumers" — play the decisive role in their own medical care, according to Colleen Clements, assistant professor of psychiatry.

Doctors should plan an active role — and at times the key role — in treatment decisions, Clements argues, because their training and experience best enable them to act in patients' real self-interest. "Unfortunately," she says, "doctor-patient relationships are too often portrayed as power struggles, rather than as cooperation with experts in basic health values."

Peeking at Pampa

TOP TALENT — Kambra Winningham, 15, of Pampa won the 13-17 Talent category in the recent Darry Modeling of Dallas Kids of America Contest here. Winningham's winning performance was

The chatter and patter about town at the end of May centers around activities, entertainment, trips, anniversaries, food, honors — and Pampa High School graduation.

For the past two years, the Rev. Royce Womach has served St. Paul's United Methodist Church and the community, as well, wherever he could be of help. Early in June, Royce and his wife, Mildren, will move to Follett where he will serve as the Methodist pastor. With them go the best wishes of their many friends in the community on their new assignment. They will be missed.

The Rev. James Putman has been assigned to St. Paul's. He, his wife, Jewell, and two daughters, a high school junior and senior will move here from Abilene. Days after their arrival members will celebrate the church's 50th anniversary with a day full of activities. The Rev. Olan Butler, former pastor, will return to be the morning speaker. Congratulations, St. Paul's, and welcome aboard, Putman family!

Amy (Mrs. Rick) Parnell received a plaque and corsage when she was named Central Baptist Mother of the Year. Wife of the minister of education, Amy is church pianist and an all-around popular, well-loved lady.

A group from Central Baptist Church and some members of the Heritage Club senior citizens group took a four-day tour that included Austin, San Marcos, a tour of the General Motors plant and a Texas Rangers baseball game. Attending and enjoying the fun were Susan and Randy Lind, Evelyn Tingle, Naomi White, Alice Little and Mary (Mrs. Frank) Conner.

At least 75 parents participated in the all-night round of fun times for Pampa High School seniors on graduation night. Activities included dancing and bingo at different intervals from 10 p.m. to 3 a.m., dance contests, assorted videos and breakfast at 3 a.m. One video of seniors taken throughout the year was placed in a time capsule to be removed at the 20th class reunion. Juanita (Mrs. Bob) Brower, mother of the class president, Janice Brower, served as general chairman. Other chairmen included Sue (Mrs. Coyle) Winborne and Lilit (Mrs. Ed) Brainard, decorations; Sammie (Mrs. Bob) Morris, finance; Vickie (Mrs. Gary) Epperson and Doris (Mrs. Lynn) Odom, donations; Ruth and Bob Steger, bingo; Cynthia (Mrs. Bill) West, Ann (Mrs. Benny) Kirksey and Barbara (Mrs. Jim) Clark, refreshments; Geri (Mrs. Jerry) Norrod, video; Linda and Corky Godfrey, dance; Joyzelle (Mrs. John) Potts, sponsor; Jean (Mrs. Bob) Muns, breakfast. Other class officers are Eddy Morris, vice president and Cindy Muns, secretary. Pampa parents cared enough to make it an extravagant night, one to be remembered.

College-bound senior girls and their moms attended the annual Panhellenic tea last Sunday afternoon. With Joy (Mrs. Ronnie) Rice as vice president and tea chairman, duties were divided among Sara (Mrs. Doug) Carmichael, Melinda (Mrs. Keith) Stowers (She's president), Janyth (Mrs. Charles) Bowers, Cynthia (Mrs. Bill) West, Adelaide (Mrs. Walter) Colwell, Dorothy (Mrs. Fred) Neslage, Susan (Mrs. Bob) Finney and Carol (Mrs. Ken) Fields, Leslie Eddins, Kerá Richerson and Missey Laney, collegiates, presented a dress revue on what to wear where. Even though the tea had a serious purpose, it was a fun time, too.

About 60 high school students are to present the musical "Celebrate Life" at First Baptist Church on June 3 under the direction of John Glover. Later in June about 50 of the group will participate in a mission trip to Steamboat Baptist Church in Reno, Nev., via two chartered buses.

Adult church members help through the "Adopt a Kid" plan to help defray expenses. In turn, adoptees share experiences by letters. At least nine adults will accompany the group — Virginia and John Glover, Gloria and Roy Don Stephens, Peggy and Doug Cunningham, Marilyn Kidwell, Kathy McCurley and Charles Johnson.

Jim and Pernie Davis recently entertained the Beta Chi Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota at their ranch home on McClellan Creek. In addition to a tour of the house and grounds, they served a "tailgate picnic" of pate of duck, cold cuts, French bread and wines were served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Ben D. Fallon, Pernie's parents; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Davis, Jim's parents; Mr. and Mrs. James Ray and Michael, Beta Chi guests; Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, Mary Crutcher, May Wyatt, and club members, Geneva Lisenbee, Pat Pitmon, Ardelle Briggs, Pauline Phillips, Daphne Sullivan, and Lucile and Norma Lantz.

Heard of three non-denominational Bible study groups in town. About 150 women and children have attended the five-week pilot program of the Bible Study Fellowship, usually limited to larger cities, each Thursday morning at the First Christian Church. Pat (Mrs. Carl) Kennedy and Carol (Mrs. John) Fruge lead the two recap groups. The five-year study will begin in September. Watch for details.

About 17 women meet each Thursday afternoon with Sandy (Mrs. Freddie) Vanderburg and Sandye Killebrew as co-teachers last week in the Vanderburg home. Bob Killebrew is teaching a newly formed couples group composed of Joan and Tom Miller, Shari and Charles Langen, Sherry and Jim Olsen and his wife, Sandye.

People glimpses ... Building new homes are Gladys Bowers, Gail and Jo Curtis, Cynthia and Billy Hawkins, Shari and Charles Langen are already remodeling their one-year old house ... Pat and the Rev. Joe Turner vacationed last week ... Little Jennifer Parker, daughter of Helen and Chris, was the pretty little flower girl in the wedding of a close, lifelong friend of Chris in Amarillo last weekend ... "Happy Birthday" last week to Shirley (Mrs. Gene) Lunsford and to Betty (Mrs. Jim) Brown ... And next week to Jackie Dunigan and Bob Gregory.

Opal and Willard, Mae and Orville, Ruth and Perry Franklin celebrated the wives' May birthdays with an outing followed by dinner ... Cute little redheaded Lee Carmichael was the center of attention when all her Pampa relatives celebrated her second birthday with "dinner out." Attending were her big sister Ann, (always a perfect lady!), Sara and Doug, Virginia and Bob, Merle and Paul ... It's good to see April (Mrs. Bob) Hudson looking chipper after recent surgery ...

Barbecue beef sandwiches, baked beans, chips, soft drinks and homemade ice cream made up the menu for the cookout given Pampa High School seniors in the parking lot of St. Vincent de Paul's Catholic Church. Parents involved in the preparations were Juanita (Mrs. Bob) Brower, Barbara and Wendell Palmer, Robert Willis, Dave Warva, Betty Marak, Barbara Clark, Christi Hoganson, Gary Hokit, Rosemary and Jim Eakin, Lynn and Paul Eakin and Mary Ann Boehmisch. And don't forget the contributions by Father Joseph Stable.

The Make America Better committee of the Pampa Board of Realtors with Mike (Mrs. Bob) Keagy as chairman, in cooperation with Pampa downtown merchants and the help of Boy Scout Troop No. 404, planted flowers in existing and new planters on Cuyler Street last Sunday.

Sunday afternoon workers included Mike and Bob, Jan (Mrs. Bob) Crippen, Norma and Albert Shackelford, Mike Ward, Rue (Mrs. John) Park, Liz and Mike Conner, Janie and Walter Shed, Becky (Mrs. Gene) Baeten, Cheryl (Mrs. Pete) Berzanskis, Ruby and Carl Allen, Boy Scouts lending a hand were Patrick Wheeler, Matt Jolly, Matt Smith, Kelly Hendrick, Greg Logan, Brad Chambers and group leader, Larry Hendrick.

Proceeds from the Flea Market project one recent Saturday, chaired by Cheryl Berzanskis, went to the Community Day Care Center.

Many congratulations to Moore "Cowboy" Jones on his 80th birthday. Hear more than 60 Masons from Pampa and the area joined in a surprise birthday celebration for him last week, leaving him totally speechless for a moment. Gifts included a beautiful white Stetson hat and a plaque for the many years of service he's given to the No. 966 Masonic lodge here. Birthday cake sported a decoration of a bow-legged cowboy. Have to mention, too, Cowboy's lovely wife, Leona. Always with a sweet smile and a kind word to everyone she meets.

After more than a dozen operations during the past 3½ years she spent in the hospital, Janet Caswell is back home with family and friends. She has every intention of leading a normal life with her sweet family, her husband Jimmy and three beautiful young children, Matthew, Carrie and Peter. Friends share their happiness! Welcome home, Janet!

A group of First United Methodist Church friends purchased several dozen bushes in memory of Lois Boynton, who for many years had shared the fruits of her green thumb with friends and neighbors across town and who had given much of herself to the progress of her church. In no time at all fellow churchmen planted the hedge along the north ramp for all of Pampa to enjoy for years to come — truly a living memorial to the memory of a dear lady whose "green thumb" definitely made Pampa a more beautiful place to live.

See you next week, KATIE

Green Thumb salutes our older Americans

Local workers in Green Thumb, Inc., an organization formed to find limited work for elderly Americans, have joined with other groups in saluting older Americans — their achievements, wisdom, courage and strength.

Bobbie Morris of Borger, area leader for the organization in seven counties of the upper Panhandle region, said there are often problems in determining what really makes a person "old" in this era of increasing longevity. "Time" magazine quotes comedian George Burns, now 88, as saying, "A lot of people practice getting old. They start practicing when they're 70, and when they're 75, they're a hit. They've made it. They are now old."

Burns then added, "Who wants that?" More than 1,000 Texans aged 55 and over who work for the Texas Farmers Union Green Thumb program certainly don't want that, Morris said.

One of the myths accompanying the "65 is old" view is that older persons are simply not productive. Yet these Green Thumbers, who work with non-profit organizations in 111 counties, prove daily that their dependability is very good relative to other age groups, she said.

Morris also said their capacity to be productive is high. "The Green Thumb program seeks to hire elderly persons on limited income jobs to offset their Social Security checks or other retirement income. The association finds jobs for the elderly in such non-profit businesses as libraries, museums and various state and county operations," Morris said.

"Green Thumb workers have decided not to practice being old," said Green Thumb state director Diane Parrish. "They've decided to practice staying active instead. Medical and social advances have given us longer lives. Why waste those extra years when there are so many contributions to be made?"

According to Robert Butler of the National Institute of Aging, there has been a 26-year gain in life expectancy in just the last 80 years.

American Cancer Society seeks memorial gifts

Memorial Day is a time for remembering someone held dear. The American Cancer Society (ACS) wants to also make the day a time for turning losses into victories.

Memorial Day is an appropriate time to make memorial contributions in memory of a loved one lost to cancer, says Johnnie Thompson, chairman of the Memorial Program for the Gray-Roberts unit of the ACS.

"We call them 'Living Memorials,'" said Mrs. Thompson. "A gift today may spare others tomorrow."

Contributions to the American Cancer Society are used to sponsor the organization's attack on cancer through balanced programs of research, education, patient services and rehabilitation.

The ACS is the largest source of non-government cancer research funds in the country. The current ACS research investment in Texas alone is more than $4.2 million in grants to hospitals, universities and medical institutions throughout the state.

"The ACS is also very much a community-based organization, however," added Mrs. Thompson. "Our program and materials are managed by local volunteers ... and I think that's important for the people of Pampa to realize when they contribute to this cause."

Anyone wishing to contribute to the ACS through its memorial program may do so by sending their contribution to 100 West Nicki in care of Mrs. Thompson.

Contributors should include the name of the deceased in whose name the memorial is being made, along with the name and address of the individual who should receive acknowledgement of the contribution.

Club News

Step Savers Extension Homemakers Club toured the Community Day Care Center during their May 16 meeting. The club also donated $30 to the day care center.

Next meeting is to be a picnic in the park with members and their children bringing their lunches. The picnic is to be June 13 at 11 a.m. at Highland Park.

Preceptor Chi The area Beta Sigma Phi chapters are to conduct a convention in Pampa next October. Members met to begin delegating duties to local chapters. Margaret Edmonson, "Girl of the Year" received the Preceptor Chi yearbook and officers were installed. Secret sisters were revealed at the May 21 meeting.

New president Alberta Jeffries assigned committees for the coming year and by-laws were reviewed and updated by chapter members. Nancy Thomas was welcomed as a rushee for the sorority. Retha Jordan, Pauline Vaughn and Mildred Bond were honored as 25-year members of Beta Sigma Phi and presented with the Silver Circle. Margaret Edmonson was honored for her 15 years of membership in Beta Sigma Phi by being presented with the Order of the Rose. Next meeting is to be Sept. 10.

Worthwhile The Worthwhile Home Extension Club met May 18 with Janice Carter and Maggie Smith as co-hostesses. Gladys Stone, Janice Carter and Myrtle Smith were appointed to redo the club's bylaws.

Janice Carter was nominated as delegate to the state meeting. Gay Cambell of Dumas and Geneva Gaben of Pampa presented a program and slide presentation on Home Health Care. Next meeting is a luncheon at 11 a.m. June 1, with Lottie Reynolds.

Progressive Members voted to donate to the Pampa Emergency Warning Fund at their May 17 meeting hosted by Gretchen Templin.

Polly Benton presented a program on "Preserving Grandma's Treasures." Next meeting is to be with Mrs. Don Butler, June 28 at 2 p.m. at 1237 N. Russell.

Beta Chi

Final meeting of the Beta Chi Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota assembled at the ranch home of Jim and Pernie Davis for a tour of the house and grounds. Norma Lantz, president of the organization, gave a short presentation of the "Legacy of the Davis Ranch" which was symbolized on a tote bag presented to Mrs. Davis. Members also brought housewarming gifts. A "tailgate picnic" followed the meeting.

Pampa Garden Club Officers were installed at the final meeting of Pampa Garden Club on May 21. Hostesses were Glenda Reeves and Jane Gattis.

Darlene Birkes installed the following officers using beautiful flowers for each officer. 1984-85 officers are Clara Quary, president; Glenda Reeves, vice president; Ila Ketchum, recording secretary; Lena Mohan, corresponding secretary; Ophelia Cross, treasurer; Martha Matheny, historian and Irene Harrah, parliamentarian.

Phi Epsilon Beta Members agreed to donate to the Office of Emergency Management for the new emergency system at the May 15 meeting of Phi Epsilon Beta.

A $500 donation from the proceeds of the children's pageant was to be presented to the Crimestoppers of Pampa. Tammy Shimon and Jana Whaley were selected as best hostesses for the year and Beverly Alexander and Marsha Shuman were recognized for giving the best program of the year. Perfect attendance awards were presented to Beverly Alexander, Roxanne Jennings, Shonda Meadows and Leanne McPherson.

At the End of the Year Party members opened presents from secret sisters who revealed who they were. The social committee hosted a scavenger hunt and wheelbarrow race. Next meeting is to be in August.

Lutheran Women's Missionary League Officers for the Lutheran Women's Missionary League were installed at the May 9 meeting in the home of Betty Beyer. New officers are Kathy Hammer, president; Ruth Riehart, vice president; Linda Anderson, secretary; Jean Snell, treasurer; Betty Beyer, historian.

Plans were made for a bazaar to be held in October called "Serendipity in October." Activities sponsored by the LWML during the past year include sending sweaters to the Lutheran World Relief, sending Sunday School material to missions, furnishing large print "Portals of Prayer" to the nursing homes, sponsoring a church tee shirt project, purchasing puppets for the youth program and raising funds to furnish the kitchen in the church.

The program was a filmstrip on the Lutheran World Relief. The league planned, also, to sponsor a health kit project during Vacation Bible School this summer. Ann Lytton and Wilma Kitterman hosted the end of the year salad supper. Next meeting is to be in September.

Rho Eta

The last meeting of Rho Eta was called to order by new president Brenda Lyles in the home of Joyzelle Potts. A committee list was passed around and the chapter voted on the new budget for 1984-85. Members also discussed concessions and voted to bid on a concession at the Top O' Texas Rodeo.

Secret pal gifts were exchanged and new ones drawn for the coming year. After dinner, members went swimming and hot tubbing. Best program for the year was voted on by secret ballot and the winner was "Is Your Husband a Modern Man" given by Jan Parks and Brenda Lyles. New committees need to meet and have all their information to Connie Carpenter by June 15 for the yearbook. Next meeting is to be Sept. 10.

Altrusa Club

Altrusa Club of Pampa approved the slate of district officers at their meeting May 21 in the Coronado Inn.

Brenda Bell of Coronado Community Hospital explained and show slides on the prospective payment system now in effect on Medicare payments. She spoke from the medical records point of view. Renee Rossi from the hospital business office explained the payment system. Next meeting is to be a program planning session for the coming year and covered dish dinner at the Senior Citizens Center on June 4 at 7 p.m.

Smitherman named scholarship winner.

Bryan Smitherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Smitherman of McLean, is the recipient of the $500 1984 Gray County Extension Homemakers Association 4-H scholarship. ## Search for talented kids goes on

The search for beautiful and talented young people continues as Darryl Modeling of Dallas presents Kids of America Youth Development Program, Saturday, June 9, at the Borger Middle School in Borger.

The program is open to any youngster between the ages of 0-17 living within Texas. The pageant offers participation for boys and girls between the ages of 3 and 17 in a special three minute talent presentation. Judging is to be based on skill and entertainment. Special trophies are to be given in the top five of each age category.

A Kids of America crown is to be presented to the girl winners and a medal of honor to the boy winners. Each winner will also receive an official Kids of America talent banner along with payment of their entry fee for national competition. The beauty pageant, featuring runway modeling is to be presented in the evening. This phase of competition is separate from the talent. Participants may enter either or both. Trophies, crowns and banners is to be given to each winner along with a bouquet of flowers. Trophies are to be awarded to the top five finalists in each age division.

Contestants will have a personal interview, present themselves in casual wear and formal wear. (Street length dress for ages 3-12, evening gown for 13-17). Age divisions are 3-6; 7-9; 10-12; 13-17. A special beautiful baby division has been arranged in conjunction with this pageant. Infants will be judged on grooming, alertness and personality. Young boys and girls will be in divisions of 0-6 months, 6-12 months, 12-24 months and 24-36 months. Photogenic awards will be presented to those in the photogenic category to be judged by judges from major agencies specializing in the print and media field for children. Each winner receives entry fees to participate in the national competition in July where they will compete in an all-expense paid trip to Disneyland, a $500 savings bond, a complete wardrobe, and luggage. For more information call Sherry Duncan at (214) 821-2077.

Points to consider when preserving vegetables, fruit

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Late spring and early summer always bring to mind fresh fruit and vegetables. As the summer nears, many of you may decide to freeze, can, dry or make into a jellied product some of the available produce. If this is your place — here are some points to consider.

Good quality food is of utmost importance. Remember that the end product is no better than the food you use. Select fruit and vegetables that are in top condition. Produce that is not ripe should be set aside to ripen.

Three common ways are used to preserve food at home — canning, freezing and drying. Freezing is quick and easy, but you have to pay to keep the freezer running all year. Canning costs little but involves a lot of hot, heavy work. Drying is relatively inexpensive, but is time-consuming and not suited to every kind of food.

Before selecting a preservation method, consider the amount of time and money you are willing to invest. Taste is another major factor to consider. Plan to preserve food in a form that you and your family will eat. In recent studies, canning is the most economical form of food preservation. Drying runs about two to four cents higher per pound than canning. Freezing is the most expensive method, usually requiring about 25 cents to freeze and preserve a pound of food for a year.

Frozen food tastes the closest to fresh. It can be steamed or stir-fried to retain a crisp texture. Canning lends itself to foods that you would normally cook thoroughly, like stewed tomatoes. Dehydrated foods have limited acceptability. Dried diced vegetables and dried fruits and leathers are the most appealing dried foods.

USDA recommended instructions for home canning, freezing, drying, jelly making and pickling may be obtained from the Gray County Extension Office free of charge. Also available upon request is help with food problems. A "hands-on" workshop on canning and - or freezing is to be offered if enough interested is indicated. If you are interested, contact the Gray County Extension Office, 669-7429.

If home canning is in your plans, now is the time to check equipment. Pressure canners are necessary for processing all non-acid vegetables and other non-acid foods. Pressure canners are equipped with a dial or weighted gauge.

Dial gauges should be tested at least once a year. These gauges can be tested in the County Extension Office free of charge on May 24, June 4, June 6, June 8 or by appointment. Just bring in your canner lid and it will take 10 to 15 minutes or less.

Pressure canners are an expensive piece of equipment to purchase new. However, they do last a lifetime (or longer) and just need proper storage and maintenance and occasional replacement of gaskets, gauges, handles or other parts. Many times pressure canners can be purchased at good prices at garage sales, flea markets, or auctions. Be sure to check these for excessive rust and cracks. Even very old canners can be very serviceable — so don't pass them up. Do be sure and have gauges tested on old or new canners.

If you plan to can fruits, fruit juice, tomatoes, tomato juice, rhubarb, pickled vegetables, and process jams and preserves — you need a water bath canner. Any large kettle with straight sides, a tight-fitting lid and a rack to keep the jars off the bottom of the kettle can be used for a water bath canner. It should be deep enough to hold the jars upright and permit the water to boil gently one to two inches over the top of them.

DO NOT USE the following canning methods: open kettle; oven canning; microwave canning; some acidification methods of low-acid vegetables; and canning powders, compounds or antibiotics. Always use reliable canning instructions based on USDA recommendations. For answers to any of your food preservation questions, contact the County Extension Office.

STUDENTS OF THE MONTH — Ramona Armendarez, left, was named Student of the Month for March at the Pampa College of Hairdressing. Patricia White, right, is April Student of the Month for the college. Armendarez graduated from the college in April and White is to graduate in May.

Judge offers welfare cheats a choice

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Judge Dale Crawford has a simple choice for welfare cheats: Get a job or go to jail.

The Franklin County Common Pleas Court judge makes staying off welfare a condition of probation for people convicted of welfare fraud. He says such people typically repay their illegal gain with welfare funds they continue to draw after being convicted.

"What they're doing is slapping the hand that feeds them, and that burns me," Crawford said in an interview. "I say, 'Hey, you've got two choices: Jail, or get off welfare and (get) probation.'"

Assistant County Prosecutor Robert Smith handles welfare fraud cases and estimates that 50-60 percent of those convicted of the offense continue to draw welfare support while on probation.

"The Catch-22 is, when these persons get convicted, they will then lose their jobs," Smith said. But Crawford says if they have the right incentive — such as staying out of jail — they find work.

"If they don't want probation, then obviously I have the power to put them in jail," he said, "and if I'm not going to exercise that I tell them the conditions they must meet."

Crawford said conviction for taking less than $5,000 carried up to 18 months in prison and a $2,500 fine, and for fraud above $5,000, the penalty was up to two years and a $5,000 fine. Both are felonies, he said.

"All I know is that the three or four people who are on probation with me for welfare fraud are no longer on welfare. Whether they would have stayed on or not I don't know, but I suspect they would have," he said.

One problem is benefits for minors or other dependents which now go through a person convicted of taking illegal benefits. He wants a law clarifying his position but said children and other dependents must be protected.

The state Public Welfare Department has no statistics on how many welfare fraud cases are reported or how many result in convictions.

Smith said in Franklin County alone about 100 people were indicted for welfare fraud each year, roughly 25 percent of the cases referred to his department because they involved large sums of money or repeat offenders. Most cases of overpayment are settled out of court.

Smith believes many judges may follow Crawford's lead, but Crawford found more skepticism than support when he began his program several months ago.

"The major argument against it was, 'You can't do it. My response is I'm going to do it until I find out I can't.' He has asked Ohio legislators to write his idea more firmly into law.

Pool safety rules are important

CHICAGO (AP) — If you own one of the 4 million residential swimming pools in the United States, it's time for a refresher course on swimming pool safety, says Tod Turriff, manager of the public safety department of the National Safety Council.

"Each year between 600 and 700 people drown and another 65,000 are injured in all types of swimming pool accidents," he said. "About one half of these accidents happen in residential swimming pools. Most could have been prevented with proper knowledge and training in swimming pool safety."

He has these safety tips: —Pool security: swimming pools must be enclosed by a fence or wall at least 4 feet high to prevent small children or unwanted users from getting into the pool. The fence or wall should have a self-latching gate mechanism; latches should be high enough that small children can't reach them. Gates should be locked when the pool is not in use.

Ideally, the fence or barrier should completely surround the perimeter of the swimming pool. When the house is used as a part of the barrier, extra care must be taken to prevent access to the pool area (through doors and windows) by young children.

Although security latches are often used to prevent this type of unauthorized entry, remember that they may also prevent escape in the event of an emergency.

—Deck area and pool: Keep a ring buoy with a line attached and a strong, lightweight pole 10 to 12 feet long in the pool area at all times. A telephone should be accessible and emergency phone numbers placed right next to it: police, fire, hospital, rescue squad, paramedics, doctor, etc. In case someone falls in or is injured you will be prepared to act fast.

Water depth should be clearly marked on the pool deck and, if possible, above the water line of the pool wall. Markings should be displayed in feet and inches and in a contrasting color to the deck and pool finish.

"Diving into shallow water can result in cervical spine injuries causing permanent paralysis," Turriff said. "Prohibit diving into above-ground pools. Strictly supervise the use of diving boards and water slides — and make sure this equipment is designed for use in your type of pool."

Deep and shallow water areas of a pool should be separated by a semi-permanent float line, he said. This serves as a visual reference for non-swimmers and can be used to support a swimmer in an emergency.

—Supervision: competent supervision is essential whenever the pool is in use or the pool area occupied. "This individual must enforce basic safety rules and be prepared to handle emergency situations," Turriff said.

—Pool rules: the list of rules might include: No running on the pool deck; no pushing or shoving; no swimming alone; only one person on the diving board or pool slide at a time, etc.

Monitor carefully the use of inflatable toys and mattresses, particularly when these are used by children and non-swimmers. The only reliable flotation aid is a properly fitted and adjusted U.S. Coast Guard-approved personal flotation device.

The safety expert had one last piece of advice: "To enhance their safety and enjoyment, pool owners and their families are strongly encouraged to seek training in swimming and diving, lifesaving, first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR)," Turriff said.

Meatloaf does triple duty

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

An acquaintance of mine makes an interesting meat loaf using ground beef and bulk pork sausage, embellished with pistachio nuts, that does triple duty.

She serves it cold, as you would a French pate, as a main dish for lunch or as a first course for dinner. Or she offers it as a sandwich filling for a light meal or an afternoon or evening snack.

When the loaf appears at lunch or dinner she accompanies it with lettuce, cherry tomatoes and cornichons. Cornichons, imported from France, are available at specialty food shops. They are midget gherkins pickled with vinegar, salt and such seasonings as small white onions, tarragon, thyme and bay leaf. If cornichons are not at hand, the small sour pickles processed and packed in the United States and widely available in supermarkets may be used.

When we made sandwiches of the meat loaf, we varied the bread and spread it generously with homemade mayonnaise. As an accompaniment to the sandwiches, we offered small lettuce cups filled with cornichons.

PISTACHIO MEAT LOAF

- 1 large egg
  - 1/2 pound ground lean beef
  - 1/2 pound bulk pork sausage
  - 1 cup finely chopped peeled apple
  - 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
  - 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
  - 1/4 cup coarsely chopped natural pistachios
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon dried crushed oregano
  - 1/4 teaspoon coarsely ground pepper
- Lettuce, cherry tomatoes and Cornichons

In a medium bowl beat the egg enough to combine the yolk and white. Add the beef, sausage, apple, crumbs, onion, pistachios, salt, oregano and pepper. Pack into a glass or metal loaf pan (about 7 by 4 by 2 inches and holding 3 cups). Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until well-done — 50 to 60 minutes. Let stand about 20 minutes to reabsorb some of the juices; drain off remaining juices; cool; turn out. Cover tightly and chill.

At serving time, cut into 1/4-inch thick slices. Serve on lettuce garnished with the tomatoes and cornichons as a main dish for lunch or as a first course for dinner. Or use as a filling for sandwiches for a light meal.

NOTE: Cornichons are sour pickled midget gherkins imported from France.

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

For the sake of this story, we'll call the high school Central. We'll place it somewhere in the Midwest, say Minneapolis. Central has a football team, a band, a Latin club and until this moment, it had a senior class of about 200.

To make a point, we're going to let Central High School assume the burden of all the teenagers who will die IN ONE YEAR in drunk-driving-related deaths.

There will be no senior class at Central this year. There will be no senior class for the next 45 years! By that time, 9,000 young people will never live to see their diploma.

Half of them may never have taken a drink or have driven a car. They will be the victims of drunk drivers.

Amanda will be one of them. She always believed you had to come home with the same boy who took you to a dance. She didn't stop to think that the young boy who showed up at her door sober was not the same boy five hours later who couldn't get the car key in the ignition by himself.

The junior class prophecy said Pam was going to be the next woman Supreme Court Justice. She didn't like her image. She was tired of being considered "out of it," so she accepted a ride home from a picnic with a boy who fell asleep at the wheel of a car with a beer can in his hand. Pam's head went through the windshield.

Had Andy been born, he would have been in the class of 2017, but his mother, who died in the 1994 class, never had the chance to marry or give birth to him. She was riding a bicycle at dusk when a motorist who drank too much at his retirement party ran her down.

Central High School closed its doors in 2029 as its enrollment steadily decreased.

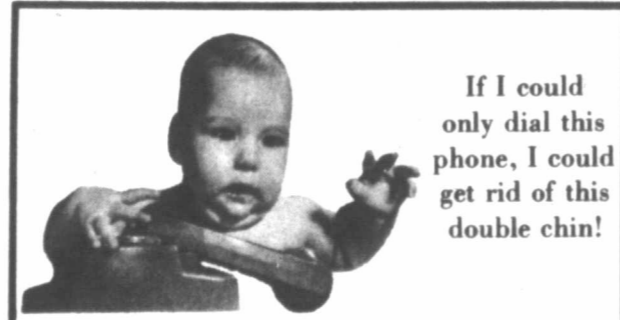

The halls echoed with school songs that were never sung, vaudeville acts who never spoke and cheers that were never heard. But more than that were the promises of 9,000 destinies that were never to be fulfilled.

The people of this country champion the lives of helpless seals, unborn babies, abandoned dogs and cats, abused children, alcoholics, the elderly and the disease-ridden. When will we weep for the phantom classes at Central High? The would-have-beens, the should-have-beens who thought death was a companion to old age.

To be factual I would have to point out that in 45 years that the senior classes of Central were wiped out, 405,000 young people between the ages of 15 and 24 would also have died, eliminating the need for 44 more Central High Schools.

When you add to that the number of parents, brothers, sisters, grandparents, friends and lovers who died with them, the toll of human misery is staggering.

That's not a pun. It's a reminder.

If I could only dial this phone, I could get rid of this double chin!

Dear Abby

Bridesmaid's broken arm casts shadow on wedding

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm in college, and one of my closest friends here has asked me to be a bridesmaid in her upcoming wedding in June. It will be held in a distant state, and I've already purchased my plane tickets, which cost $700. The bridesmaid's gown set me back $300. Abby, this is all my own money I'm spending.

Two weeks ago I fell down the dorm stairs and fractured my right arm. Right now my entire arm is in a plaster cast, which I will have to wear for four months!

Yesterday I heard through the grapevine that my friend is hoping I will drop out as a bridesmaid because she's afraid I'll spoil the looks of her wedding! I think that's not only petty and mean, it's outrageous considering the money I've spent.

I'm upset enough at the prospect of having my arm in a cast all summer without being made to feel unwanted. What do you think?

CAST ASIDE (NO JOKE)

DEAR CAST: Does this "grapevine" through which you've been getting your messages happen to bear sour grapes?

Have a talk with the bride. Tell her what you've heard and how you feel about it. You've already had one break; maybe she'll give you another.

DEAR ABBY: I met a girl while in school two years ago and we've become close friends. We usually meet for dinner twice a month. We live in different counties, so when we do get together it's special. It gives me a chance to get out of the house, away from my husband and children.

Lately, every time we get together she brings her husband along. It wouldn't be so bad if he weren't so insulting to me. He belittles me, and his put-downs are becoming too much to bear. Our meetings before had always been just the two of us, and we used to sit and talk, but since her husband has been joining us, it seems she would rather talk to him. I don't see why she doesn't just stay home and save me the time and gasoline it takes to drive there.

Our friendship is wearing thin. Is there a tactful way to tell her I wish her husband wouldn't join us? How can I do this without hurting her feelings?

THREE'S A CROWD

DEAR THREE'S: Be honest. Tell her you don't particularly enjoy the threesome because her husband belittles you and puts you down. And if it means the end of your friendship, what have you lost? A "friend" who permits her husband to insult you.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter regarding human artificial insemination, how could Pope Pius XII, or anyone, condemn such an act? I, for one, know what artificial insemination has done for my life. And I'm not speaking of your usual form of the procedure—husband and wife.

After 10 years of marriage and eight long and unsuccessful years of trying to conceive, I am now the proud mother of a beautiful, healthy 2-year-old son.

I was fortunate enough to have a sensitive and caring sister who understood the pain I felt from wanting a child and being unable to conceive. My sister consented to be artificially inseminated with my husband's sperm, and after one attempt, I was on my way to motherhood.

I participated as much as possible throughout her pregnancy, and I was the coach at her delivery. Three days later, she left the hospital and my husband and I had a son.

As you can imagine, my story could go on for pages, but the point is this: How could anyone deny me the happiness that this child has brought to my husband and me? He was baptized by our minister, and in the eyes of God he is therefore accepted.

And, oh yes, our son looks exactly like me!

Wu's vermicelli chicken hails from China

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Adapted from "Cooking with Madame Wu," by Madame Sylvia Wu (McGraw-Hill).

MADAME WU'S
VERMICELLI CHICKEN
½ pound vermicelli
Marinade (recipe follows)
½ pound (about) boneless skinless chicken, cut in ¼-inch strips (1 cup)

½ cup dried black mushrooms
3 tablespoons corn oil
1 clove garlic
1 cup thinly sliced Chinese white cabbage
½ cup sliced bamboo shoots
3 cups chicken bouillon or broth
½ cup thinly sliced snow peas
¼ cup thinly sliced scallion

With a kitchen scissors, cut the vermicelli into 4-inch lengths. In a large shallow dish, cover with warm (not hot) tap water and soak 30 minutes.

Prepare Marinade. Add chicken strips; toss to coat well. Marinate 30 minutes.

In a small bowl cover the mushrooms with hot tap water and soak about 15 minutes. Drain; clean mushrooms and discard the stems and water. Cut the mushrooms into ¼-inch strips.

In a wok, deep skillet or a Dutch oven heat corn oil over medium-high heat. Add garlic; stir-fry 1 minute; remove and discard. Add marinated chicken; stir-fry 1 minute. Add mushrooms, cabbage and bamboo shoots; stir-fry 1 minute. Stir in broth. Cover; bring to a boil. Drain vermicelli; stir into broth mixture. Cover; cook 1 minute. Add snow peas; cook 1 minute longer. Turn into a serving dish. Garnish with scallion. Serve at once.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.
Marinade: In a small bowl stir together 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 4 teaspoons soy sauce and 1 tablespoon corn oil until smooth.

Recap: 5/21 - 5/25
Preview: 5/28 - 6/1

AS THE WORLD TURNS -- Karen convinces John Lucinda has manipulated him and he's furious. With Frank, Diana does some soul-searching about her selfish actions. She feels she must make up for what she's done. Steve finds out his father's name is Michael Christopher. Diana tells Whit she's pregnant and when he blows up about Frank she says it's Steve baby. Whit leaves in a towering rage. Maggie asks Sara to help her become a licensed foster parent as the first step toward adopting Jill.

THIS WEEK: Steve gets closer to the truth. Whit is after Steve.
RYAN'S HOPE -- Roger pushes a scaffold on a terrified Frank and Maggie. Max gathers that Stobhan's baby was fathered by Joe. Jack and Laslo decide to work together to find Joe's killer. Jacqueline covers up her lie by faking a miscarriage. Jill is upset when Delia runs up her phone bill with reverse charges. Delia tells Frank she is coming back home to get married and obtain custody of their son.

THIS WEEK: Jill and Frank take up with a game plan. Roger continues his obsession.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE -- Jenny decides to marry David no matter what. Dorian gets Laurel to agree to testify that David pushed her down the stairs. Dorian will have David arrested if Jenny marries him. Bo finds some hidden ledger books at the factory. Rate wants to let Sam know he is working as a double agent for Ed, but Ed will not let him. Cassie prepares for her graduation.

THIS WEEK: Bo is upset with Brad. Delilah causes trouble.
ALL MY CHILDREN -- Linda goes out with someone new but Chris says she belongs to him. Adam hires a hood to pose as an agent to get Jesse to sign over his half interest in the Steamship. Jesse can't pay the loan shark and considers the agent's offer. Palmer exposes Adam's gambling plan which embarrasses Erica.

THIS WEEK: Phoebe worries about her investment. Jesse is faced with a decision.
TEXAS -- Elena finds Chris's body. Ryan helps in the search for Ginny. Paige has been out in a rain-storm, but she tells Alfredo to tell anyone who should ask that she's been in the suite the whole evening. Dennis believes he killed Chris. Ryan finds Ginny in the storm cellar. Billy Joe is afraid the police suspect he killed Chris.

LOVING -- Johnathan meets Douglas and introduces himself as Edy's brother. Mike has a dramatic experience when he visits the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington D.C. Ann finds out that Cabot revised his will to include Shana. She confronts her saying that she is his mistress and forced him to change the will. She fires Shana. Jack meets a sexy girl named Ava Rescot.

THE GUIDING LIGHT -- Tony and Annabelle marry. Nola has a baby boy. Mindy storms off after seeing Claire and Rick in an embrace. Bert may have a blood clot in her leg. Alexandra tells Philip that now that Mindy has mis-carried there is no reason for him to stay married to her. Alexandra is attracted to Warren but slaps his face. Lujack is annoyed that Beth wants to be with Philip. Mindy tells Philip she won't let him go.
THIS WEEK: Bert faces a terrible choice. Claire avoids Rick.

ANOTHER LIFE -- Miriam plans to move to Canada and marry Jeremy. Ben considers more job offers. Russ asks Stacey to dinner to discuss some decisions he's made. Peter rejects Courtney's advances. Courtney tells Vaughn that Peter attacked her.

THIS WEEK: Vaughn goes after Peter. Ben and Lori discuss the future.
SEARCH FOR TOMORROW -- Warren is flattered by Cagney when he tries to confront Suzi at the hospital. Later, the doctor tells Cagney that Suzi's baby needs a blood transfusion from the baby's real father. Travis prepares to deliver the ransom as Ringo plants a bomb to kill T.R. A battered Wendy realizes her mother was right about Warren. Hogan gets upset and decides to go back to Henderson.

THIS WEEK: Liza keeps a stiff upper lip. Cagney breaks a promise.

GENERAL HOSPITAL -- Putnam saves Celia's life by getting her off the boat before it explodes. Celia assumes Andrews planted the bomb. Holly decides to do a little detective work. Andrews has a fight with Jimmy Lee. Brock gets Bobbie to agree to start dating him for now. Tiffany and Jake celebrate the sale of the TV station but when Tiffany wants to get amorous, Jake talks asleep. Andrews is brought in for questioning and Tania blames herself. Rick is willing to give Brock a second chance when he plans a housing project.

THIS WEEK: Rick reasons with Ginny. Frisco comforts Tania.

CAPITOL -- Clarissa tells a shocked group that Julie was pregnant but has miscarried. A stunned Tyle realizes the danger she was in carrying the baby and feels guilty because she was too frightened to come to him about her condition. A saddened Kelly witnesses Trey and Sloane embrace. Julie confesses to Tyler that she was trying to get money from Zed in case she had to leave town to have the baby. Tyler is crushed. A disguised Kelly visits Hal at the hospital and his case seems to be more serious than they thought.

THIS WEEK: Wally is confused. Tyler supports Julie.

Understatements are her trademarks

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer

GOLDINGEN, Switzerland (AP) -- She's made more than 50 movies and she thinks many were "awful." Her paintings are in great demand but she thinks they're much too expensive. And her books became best sellers because she says she was lucky.

Irony and understatement are trademarks of Lilli Palmer, the German-born international film and stage actress, painter, author and elegant beauty who celebrated her 70th birthday May 24.

"These numbers with a zero at the end do not mean anything -- at least not to me," she said earlier this month, curled up comfortably in a green armchair in her home. "My son said the other day, on his 40th birthday, that it has hit him hard. I told him: 'Relax. I am going to be 70 and it does not worry me at all.'"

Plans for marking the day with a quiet dinner with her Argentine-born husband of 27 years, writer-actor Carlos Thompson, had to be canceled because she was in California to film her part in an upcoming "Loveboat" episode. She played a best-selling writer.

She was facing cameras for the first time since she co-starred with the late William Holden in "The Counterfeit Trailor" in 1962, one of the few films she remembers with pleasure.

Hollywood marked a breakthrough in a colorful career for Miss Palmer. It had started at the age of 18 in pre-Nazi Germany, then took the Jewish refugee to Paris nonky-tonks and later to Britain where she made her movie debut and married fellow actor Rex Harrison.

The amorous affairs of "Sexy Rex" put that first marriage on the rocks, an episode the celebrated beauty treats with remarkable discretion in her tart autobiography, "Change Lobsters and Dance." More than 2 million copies of the book have been sold in 18 languages.

"These memories were not happy," she said, referring to her first years in Hollywood. "Arriving from London and after six years of war, we were totally bowled over by the bright lights, the nylons, the orange juice, a party every day and seeing all those faces one had adored since childhood. But then I realized it is very, very difficult to keep your marriage going there."

After spectacular appearances on Broadway, including a part in John van Druten's "Bell, Brook and Candle," the biggest hit of the 1950 season, Miss Palmer reluctantly accepted an offer to film in post-war Germany where she soon became very popular.

Public school interpreter says goodbye to her deaf graduates

By BETSEY BOLIN
The Sherman Democrat

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — With today's commencement ceremonies will come the end of a remarkable teacher-student relationship that has spanned 11 years in the Sherman public schools.

Sammie Mailes, an interpreter for the deaf, has inspired, coaxed, scolded and mothered three deaf students through the intricacies of Sherman High School. She brought them through elementary school, translated the teachers' assignments, sometimes took notes and even tutored a bit.

With no experience in dealing with deaf students, Mrs. Mailes was hired in 1973 as a special education aide here and her supervisor originated the idea for a new program.

"There were five or six children who went to elementary school together. They had a deaf education teacher but for various reasons all but two of the children left," she said. The two remaining children lived in the Crutchfield school area.

"The special education director came up with this idea that these kids could function in a regular classroom if they had someone to interpret for them," she said. The idea was to find someone with a school background who could take notes and tutor. Mrs. Mailes fit that description, even though she knew little about sign language. She and the children learned it together. "I felt like I was at a period in my life when I needed to do something interesting," she said.

Mrs. Mailes said public schools today routinely "mainstream" deaf students into regular classrooms, but in 1973, it was considered novel. "It was really strange at first to be sitting in a classroom and to look up and see people standing all around the room observing," she said.

As the children advanced, the challenge grew for Mrs. Mailes. "When there were five of the children in middle school, it was okay because they all took the same classes, but in high school their interests changed and they started to specialize. That's when I needed help," she said.

Part of that help comes from another interpreter at the high school, Mrs. Jean Shellenberger. Mrs. Mailes also said the deaf students attend a special class for English and government, which is taught by Mrs. Pat Maddox.

Because the students are all seniors, they are taking vocational classes that don't require as much interpreting.

Reflecting on their 11 years together, Mrs. Mailes said students and faculty have shown remarkable understanding and concern for deaf students. "It's a little different for teachers to have another adult in their classroom repeating everything they say," Mrs. Mailes said she and her student usually sit at the front of a classroom where the deaf student can see both the teacher and the interpreter. "They really read body language and facial expressions," she said. However, if the lecture is very intense or if the student needs notes for a test, Mrs. Mailes said she takes notes. But most of the time she just interprets for the student by using sign language.

Sometimes it gets interesting. "One day one of my students was running down the hall and the tardy bell was about to ring," Mrs. Mailes recalled. "I was right behind him and this teacher said, 'Stop! Come back here,' but the student continued to run. He got to class, flopped down in his chair — he had made it on time — and this teacher came in behind him and said, 'I told you to stop and I know you heard me.' I walked in about that time and smiled and said, 'No he didn't. He's deaf.'"

Mrs. Mailes said the teacher turned red and apologized, but she told him not to apologize. She told the teacher, "If he needs scolding, go ahead. You tell him and I'll interpret." She said deaf students must follow the same rules as everyone else.

Mrs. Mailes said deaf students don't really see themselves as handicapped. "I guess if you never had something, you really don't miss it," she said.

All three of her deaf students at Sherman High School and one from Tom Bean are graduating.

Bishop's business savvy needed by Diocese of Corpus Christi

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The spiritual center for 315,000 South Texas Roman Catholics is also a multimillion-dollar business, and its bishop compares his role to that of a corporate director.

Rene Gracida tends to the spiritual needs of the Diocese of Corpus Christi, but is also concerned with the bottom line on a ledger.

"At times I do feel like the chairman of the board of some large corporation like AT&T," Gracida said. "Especially when I have to make decisions pertaining to budget operations."

Gracida oversees a complex organization of 130 branches, 200 employees, assets of $25 million and a $3 million annual operating budget.

"My biggest challenge is to keep in my mind almost constantly that the temporalities — money, property, material possessions — must serve the spiritual purposes and aims of the organization and not vice versa," said Gracida, 60, who moved to the Texas Gulf Coast from Miami last year.

The diocese, headquartered in Corpus Christi, has more than 130 branch operations including 77 parishes or main churches and 57 missions or rural churches spread across 17,300 square miles between the coastal city and Laredo.

With assets of $25.4 million, the diocese ranks sixth out of 13 dioceses in Texas. Only Galveston-Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Austin and Fort Worth have greater assets.

The Galveston-Houston diocese claims a net worth of $342 million while the assets of the Brownsville diocese total just $18 million.

Gracida supervises 104 full-time and 20 part-time staffers in addition to 78 priests. The annual payroll including medical and retirement benefits runs $966,000.

The diocese owns but pays no taxes on 1,600 acres of property spread through 22 counties. Each parish is surrounded by about 10 acres and mission grounds average 1.5 acres. Sanctuaries, school houses, a rectory, meeting halls and vehicle and storage buildings are also part of church assets.

Diocese headquarters resemble other sophisticated business offices with a data processing center, construction and property manager's offices, archives, central files, print shop, accounting and offices for a chancellor and two assistants adjacent to the bishop's office on prime downtown real estate.

His work experience has prepared him well for managing the affairs of his business.

A graduate of the University of Houston where he majored in architecture, Gracida practiced privately in Houston before entering the priesthood 25 years ago.

"I know something about business law and I had actual experience in the real business world in finance and construction," he said.

From 1969 to 1972, he served as treasurer and chief fiscal officer of the Archdiocese of Miami, an area of 800,000 Catholics.

An associate called Gracida a no-frills business operator.

realistic and conservative. He can look at a set of books and immediately pick out the financial strengths and weaknesses.

It didn't take much savvy to spot the weakness in the books Gracida inherited in Corpus Christi in 1983. The diocese had overspent by $400,000 and the 1984 deficit was projected to be $700,000.

"Obviously I had to take some drastic actions," he said. Rather than cut programs or employees, Gracida asked individual Catholics to dig deeper into their pockets and contribute to a new program he called the Catholic Sharing Appeal.

The parish appeal raised $1 million, more than three times what a similar appeal the year before had produced.

Gracida placed half the money in the diocesan coffers to cover the deficit and operate charitable programs and will return the rest to parishes to be used for programs.

The bishop wants to raise another $1 million next year and return $600,000 to the parishes.

Gracida denies the Catholic Church is rich.

"Everything is relative. The Church has a lot of money, yes. But it also has a lot of people with a lot of very basic needs," he said.

Although he controls all financial operations, Gracida compared his job to the operator of a nuclear reactor.

"I cannot let the thing run away. Everyone wants to expand their program, add personnel and activities. If you don't keep a close watch on the programs, they can double each year like government spending."

Unlike other corporation or government heads, however, Gracida can't be voted out of office. And his boss, Pope John Paul II, rarely fires employees.

The bishop does have a board of seven priests to guide and monitor his financial decisions, but Gracida retains veto powers.

"The Catholic Church is not a democracy," he said. "This is repugnant to some Americans and also to some Catholics."

But it is the way things are. There are a lot of things not to be decided by majority vote — including spiritual and financial matters.

Gracida has long hours but receives fringe benefits. He works seven days a week for $1,200 a month. But the church pays for his food, household expenses, hospitalization and life insurance and church-related travel.

The church also paid for his car, a 1984 Thunderbird, and his home, a mansion overlooking the bay on Ocean Drive.

The bishop said his time is divided between three responsibilities. One-third is devoted to personnel management, principally among clergy.

Another third is spent in church ceremonial and liturgical affairs.

And the final part of his time involves meeting people and conducting business.

TV stations reject Dogget ad

AUSTIN (AP) — Two Houston television stations have rejected Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett's advertisement in which an elderly man says Doggett's opponent, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, lies about voting against cuts in Social Security.

Stations KHOU and KTRK are the only two of 30 stations to reject the ads, Doggett's campaign manager James Carville said in Austin.

Doggett, a state senator from Austin, and Hance, a Lubbock congressman, face each other in the June 2 Democratic runoff for the right to face Republican nominee Phil Gramm in the November general election.

Doggett's commercial attacks Hance on his congressional record.

The ad begins with a group of elderly people watching one of Hance's primary campaign commercials on television. The shot cuts to Hance's face while he says, "I'll fight against cuts in Social Security in the Senate."

An elderly man, an actor, springs forward from the group and says, "Now, that's a darn lie."

Doggett's voice in the background says Hance voted twice to cut Social Security.
