Nixon Invites World To US

The SDN Column

The Declaration of Independence, the document that is honored on this holiday, paved the way for all of the freedoms that American citizens claim for themselves today.

And it was considered an inflamatory document in those days. It precipitated a war, which in turn cleared the way for the Constitution of the United States, the document which spells out all of those freedoms.

Since that time, Americans have worked to improve their country, although not always agreeing on the best methods, but always working, nevertheless.

Like everything else involving mankind, some of the progress has been empered by unwanted and sometimes ugly side effects. But so far, nobody has been able to wave a magic wand and suddenly provide an all-purpose, instant solution to all of the nation's problems.

It has been the freedom itself that has provided the climate for any progress made in the past 196 years. Critics who would put down this country because of failures, or because of some of the unattractive side effects should remember that all are products of this freedom, and that the ability to continue to draw upon this freedom offers the only hope of ultimate solutions to the problems of today. Indeed, many of today's problems would have been regarded as progress in earlier years, and it may be presumed that some of today's most pressing goals may not seem nearly so important tomorrow.

So we must take advantage of the lessons learned over the past 196 years. This does not mean that efforts of the past which now appear ill-advised should necessarily be subject to ridicule. Some of the things taking place today may appear even more frivolous in the years to come.

Peace is a basic objective that is interwoven through the avowed aspirations of all generations to inhabit this country. Yet, those who demonstrate against war and burn their draft cards show no inclination to renounce the freedoms which permit them to engage in such activities merely because these freedoms were earned on a battlefield. And so it is in other areas of our development. And long may it continue. But it cannot unless the freedoms which stemmed from the Declaration of Indepdenence remain intact.

The national political conventions have put Miami Beach in the spotlight again, or rather forced it there, according to reports. San Diego, which was named an All-America City the same year that Snyder received similar honors, may be the luckiest of the lot, and its taxpayers undoubtedly were relieved when it wiggled out of its designation as site for the Republican National Convention. There is something out of kilter when a convention of this size must be regarded as a liability rather than an asset to a city.

Miami Beach, usually hungry for conventions during the summer months, is rather skeptical of the two major political assemblies. There is not much space on that narrow sand bar, and most of that available is covered by plush hotels. The Fontainebleau, which will have a prominent role during the conventions, is possibly one of the most exclusive hosteiries in the country. It has long boasted that it has no sign over its doors—or anywhere else on the huge building—identifying it as a hotel. "If you don't know the name of it and where it is, you have no business there," says the management.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, July 4, the 186th day of 1972. This is Independence Day. There are 180 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1776, the American Declaration of Independence was adopted by the Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

On this date:

In 1802, the U.S. Military Academy opened at West Point, N.Y.

In 1826, the second and third American presidents, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died.

In 1831, death came to another American president, James Monroe.

In 1946, the Philippines became independent after 47 years of American rule.

In 1959, a 49th star was added to the American flag after Hawaii's admission to the Union.

Ten years ago: France and West Germany agreed to seek a meeting of European heads of government to revive negotiations for a European political confederation.

Five years ago: Alabama's Gov. Lurleen Wallace was flown to Houston, Tex., for cancer treatment.

One year ago: City officials in Newport, R.I., cut short an unruly jazz festival being attended by thousands of young people.

Holiday Death Toll Climbs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas' toll of deaths from violent causes since the start of the long holiday weekend kept creeping higher today.

By this morning the tragic count stood at 70 fatalities, including 44 in traffic, 14 shootings and 10 drownings.

The tabulation by The Associated Press started at 6 p.m. Friday and will continue until the holiday period ends at midnight Tuesday.

These were among the latest victims:

Bodies of brothers Elmer Pruitt, 62, and Delma Pruitt 60, of Hobbs, N.M., both cut down by shotgun blasts, were found Monday at the farm home of the elder man near Mineral Wells. Sheriff Bill Harris said officers were looking for a youth, 17, believed to have fled in the car of Delma Pruitt.

Jimmy Chavez, 18, of Seguin drowned about 3:30 a.m. today while swimming under the Guadalupe River bridge over FM 466 south of Seguin.

Eugene Selman, 29, of Arlington, Tex., died about three hours after his motorcycle hit a guard rail in Fort Worth's downtown traffic mixmaster.

John Gonzales, 19, Rt. 1, Luling, was killed shortly after midnight Monday when his car ran off a country road eight miles west of Luling.

Crop-dusting pilot Keith Rowe, 32, of Crosby, Tex., died in an ambulance taking him to a Dallas hospital Monday night of injuries suffered late in the day when his airplane crashed near Caldwell.

Airman Roger L. Jackson, 19, stationed at Sheppard Air Force Base, was killed Monday night in a collision of his motorcycle and a car in Wichita Falls. His wife Donna, also 19, was injured seriously.

Longshoreman Thomas C. Smith, 58, was killed Monday night at the Port of Houston as cargo being unloaded from a ship swung free on a crane and struck his head.

Holiday Traffic Deaths Hit 530

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The number of traffic fatalities reached 530 early today with the return trip home still ahead of many Fourth of July holiday weekend travelers.

The count of traffic deaths began at 6 p.m. Friday and will end at midnight Tuesday. The 102-hour period is generally considered four days.

4th Turns Damp In Snyder Area

Snyder area residents were greeted by a steady gentle rain as they prepared to celebrate Independence Day today.

The rainfall altered plans for some events in Towle Memorial Park this morning, but soome of them were rescheduled for afternoon hours.

The cool, damp morning was in sharp contrast to a heat wave that persisted in late June. Rains apparently were general over most of the area, although amounts varied.

The official gauge at the Snyder water plant measured .20 inch in Monday showers, and more than that much had collected in the gauge by 9:30 a.m. today and it was still raining.

Bicycle races got off to a damp start in Towle Park, but the Independence Day Tennis Tournament was a morning casualty, as were the Little League baseball games which had been scheduled this morning.

The parade and flag raising ceremony, a traditional part of the community Independence Day celebration in the park, were delayed. They had been scheduled for this morning, but were re-set for 1:30 p.m. when the rains began.

About the only activity that was not affected by the rainfall was the Independence Day Art Show. It was being held in the Towle Park Barn and there was a record number of entries.

Some of the heavier rainfall this morning was reported in the Lake J.B. Thomas area, where an inch and a half had fallen by 9:30 a.m. at the dam. However, only a sprinkle was measured at the lake yesterday. There were reports of showers above the lake, but prospects for any substantial runoff had not been determined.

Conferees Agree On Money Items

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Senate and House negotiators put the final polish today on a compromise $4.1 billion state budget for the next year.

The 10-man conference committee reached agreement on all money items shortly before midnight but put off a final vote until its two days and nights of steady work was rechecked.

"The bill for all practical purposes is finished," said Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, who with Speaker Rayford Price, sat in on a closing compromise session that reached the shouting and fingershaking stage several times.

Barnes said hopefully the bill would be on members' desks sometime Wednesday, indicating debate could begin Friday or Saturday.

Final approval of the compromise by both houses apparently will end the special session that began June 14, unless Gov. Preston Smith decides at the last minute to submit other proposed legislation.

The final differences between the Senate and House versions were made quickly after the 10 negotiators decided on a pay raise for state college teachers and employes. They agreed earlier to a 6.8 per cent raise for state employes.

The original House bill had a 3.4 per cent salary increase for both non-faculty and faculty salaries in state colleges but the Senate held out for a 6.8 per cent increase for non-faculty employes, saying they had not received a raise in four years. The House negotiators recessed and talked among themselves, then agreed to a 6.8 per cent raise for non-faculty and $2 million, or about 1.5 per cent, for faculty.

Then, in quick order, the conferees agreed to:

—Adopting the Senate plan to continue state meat inspections at a cost of $4.3 million for the next year. The House allowed no funds for state inspections, leaving the job to federal inspectors.

—Agreed to a House plan to block construction of a 11-story Texas Highway Department headquarters building in downtown Austin by directing the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to buy the land for $1.5 million and turn it into a park. The building was authorized by the 1971 Legislature but protests later arose that it would dwarf the adjoining governor's mansion and spoil the view of the Capitol.

—Appropriated $296,000 to start a Drug Dependent Youth project at the Vernon State School, a compromise from the $1.03 million authorized in the House bill.

Army Prevents Barricades

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST (AP) — The British army prevented Protestant militants from barricading one of their Belfast strongholds Monday night, but the Protestants claimed a "great victory."

After a four-hour confrontation between 8,000 masked men of the Ulster Defense Association and 600 armed troops, the UDA—the Protestants' answer to the Roman Catholics' Irish Republican Army—abandoned their plans to throw a steel barricade across Ainsworth Avenue in West Belfast.

But the army agreed to set up checkpoints on the avenue and search anyone entering the district for weapons. And it said the army—not the police—would maintain law and order in the area, assisted by unarmed UDA patrols.

"No members of the police will be allowed in," said a UDA leader. "We feel that if the Queen's Writ does not run in the Creggan and Bogside, then it will not run here."

He was referring to the IRA's strongholds in Londonderry, the barricaded "no-go" districts which in effect are autonomous IRA-Catholic areas from which the army and the police are barred.

It was to protest this area known as Free Derry that the UDA began throwing up barricades during the weekend to create no-go districts of their own.

Appeal Move Made

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parallel efforts to upset the California and Illinois decisions of the Democratic Credentials Committee moved toward a federal appeals court today.

Attorneys fighting the committee decisions said they would appeal U.S. Dist. Court Judge George L. Hart's ruling Monday that the judiciary should not get involved in the debate.

Anticipating the appeals, Hart told the lawyers that the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia had agreed to hear arguments today, despite the holiday.

Hart's decision came in these cases:

—The move by Sen. George McGovern's camp to overturn the Credentials Committee vote stripping him of more than 150 California delegates.

—Attempts by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and 58 of his allies to upset a committee vote depriving them of seats as convention delegates.

The Illinois vote gave McGovern at least 41 supporters among those seated in place of the Daley contingent. McGovern forces first sought a compromise in the Illinois dispute, but after the California upset, they stood firmly against Daley.

Supporters of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey initiated the challenge to the winner-take-all aspect of California's primary, and Humphrey picked up most of the delegates taken from McGovern and apportioned among all who ran in that state.

Mrs. Lewallen Dies Monday

Mrs. Jewell Mae Lewallen, 57, a life-long resident of Snyder, was pronounced dead on arrival at Cogdell Memorial Hospital at 11:50 p.m. Monday after whe was stricken ill at her home at 2707 Avenue J.

Funeral arrangements were pending this morning at Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Surviving are her husband, L.L. Lewallen, whom she married on July 4, 1937, in Snyder; three daughters, Mrs. Trevlyn Kelly of Colorado City, Mrs. Barry Wilkins, of Lubbock and Mrs. Bennie Hodges of Lake Jackson; two sisters, Mrs. Jim Wood of Big Spring and Mrs. Warren Bihn of Cleburne; three brothers, Aubrey Krop of Colorado City, Earl and Harvey Krop, both of Snyder; and nine grandchildren.

Mrs. Lewallen was a member of the Avenue D Baptist Church.

In Holiday Address

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon issued a broadcast invitation to the world today to visit the United States on its 200th birthday in 1976.

"Let America be known throughout the world as the 'land of the open door,'" Nixon said, in a live holiday radio broadcast from the Western White House.

He spoke from a prepared text.

Nixon expressed hope that "millions upon millions of visitors" would help celebrate the U.S. bicentennial.

Nixon said he would send formal invitations to foreign governments "extending a welcome to the people of those nations to visit the United States, as laws and circumstances permit, during the bicentennial era—and especially during the year 1976."

Noting that America has been peopled by immigrants from many lands, the President said it is time to say to the world's nations:

"You helped to make us what we are. Come and see what wonders your countrymen have worked in this new country of ours. Come and let us say thank you. Come and join in our celebration of a proud past. Come and share our dreams of a brighter future."

He struck much the same theme in a formal holiday message that said in part:

"Great trials and greater triumphs still lie ahead for us as a people. There are still wrongs to be righted, and new goals of peace, propserity, justice and a better environment to be met."

The President spent much of Monday at his office, near his oceanside home here. Among those he conferred with were Henry A. Kissinger, assistant for national security affairs, and John D. Ehrlichman, domestic policy aide.

Nixon signed a batch of minor private bills and declared parts of Arizona and West Virginia to be disaster areas eligible for federal relief funds.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler ruled out appointment of a special investigator to conduct a blue ribbon probe of the recent attempted bugging of Democratic National Headquarters in Washington—a move urged upon Nixon by Democratic party Chairman Lawrence O'Brien.

In Washington, O'Brien issued a statement saying: "I find Mr. Nixon's attitude toward the blatant act of political espionage against the Democratic party to be cavalier and cynical."

Ziegler also discounted reports that former Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally might be named to head the U.S. negotiating team at the Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

He said there were "no plans at all for Secretary Connally to be involved in the Paris negotiations or any other aspect of negotiations regarding the situation in Southeast Asia."

Connally is expected here next week to report to Nixon on his current globe-circling mission as a presidential representative—travels that already have taken him to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

S-Viets Drive To Quang Tri City

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese paratroopers drove to the southwestern edge of Quang Tri city, but there are signs of stiffening enemy resistance in the provincial capital Saigon lost May 1. An American adviser says attacking forces are encountering resistance "from nearly every treeline, every village."

Several hundred troops with U.S. advisers made the attack, killing at least 20 North Vietnamese and recapturing 12 artillery pieces lost in earlier fighting. At nightfall, the South Vietnamese were reported occupying positions about half a mile from the center of the provincial capital which the North Vietnamese captured May 1.

Government spokesmen in Saigon claimed the recapture of two district headquarters: Mai Linh, 1.2 miles southeast of Quang Tri, and Hai Lang, six miles southeast of the capital. It was the first recapture of any of the 14 district towns lost to the North Vietnamese in their three-month-old offensive.

The marines on the eastern flank of the Saigon drive to recapture Quang Tri were reported within four miles of the city, and marine officers said their men could be in Quang Tri tomorrow if ordered to go.

However, there were signs of stiffening North Vietnamese resistance around the town. Field commanders reported encountering the first bunkers of what was believed to be a heavy line of fortifications.

"The enemy appears to be pulling back, but we're encountering resistance from nearly every treeline, every village," said an American adviser, Capt. Gail Furrow, 32, of Urbana, Ohio.

U.S. jets knocked out two 130mm artillery pieces and five trucks on the western flank of the advance.

Behind the front lines, officers said government troops had finished mopping up small groups of North Vietnamese soldiers who had been "overlooked" in the rapid South Vietnamese advance.

Hundreds of refugees from areas liberated by the South Vietnamese made their way south on Highway 1. They gathered at Phong Bien, 20 miles north of Hue, where buses and trucks picked them up and brought them to Hue.

Honesty best policy in applying for jobs

By Abigail Van Buren

(c) 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I wish I could have answered "DISCOURAGED" who couldn't get a job because nobody wanted to hire a person who had no experience.

I'd have told him that sometimes we have to lie to get what we want.

When I was 17, I was bright, capable and eager to work. I could accurately type 60 words per minute. But I couldn't get a job because I was inexperienced. I pounded the pavement without success for three weeks, then I gave the employers what they wanted, a whopping lie about my "previous positions." I was hired immediately.

I was very upset about lying, but if I hadn't lied I never would have landed a job.

I know you don't encourage lying, but honesty doesn't always pay off in a dishonest world. NO REGRETS

DEAR NO: Sorry, I don't buy your philosophy. Most employers check out applicants, and had yours done so, you'd have wound up with egg on your face, which could have hatched into plenty of trouble.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for saying if a teen-ager is old enough to work, he's old enough to ask for his own job.

I once operated a placement service, and you wouldn't believe the number of pushy mothers who did all the talking, punched and nudged their embarrassed children who weren't allowed to open their mouths during the job interview.

Also papa and mama should not get into the act at all. They shouldn't call the employment agencies to find out if junior got the job, and if not, why not.

The best teen-aged employes are the ones whose parents are never heard from. MARIETTA, GA.

DEAR MARIETTA: Thanks for a timely reminder to well-meaning parents.

DEAR ABBY: When I was fresh out of high school, I also couldn't get a job because they wanted only experienced people, so I finally told one employer, "If I were experienced, how much would this job pay?"

He told me. Then I said, "Let me work for nothing for one week. If you decide to keep me, pay me for the week. If you don't want to keep me, you owe me nothing."

It worked. AMBITIOUS

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't afford to go to college, so I applied for a selling job with a large company I had always admired.

The personnel manager said, "Sorry, we're hiring only men who have had some sales experience."

I looked him straight in the eye and replied, "How can you expect a man [I was all of 16] to have experience if no one will hire him?"

The manager said, "You're right. I'll give you a chance, but you have to start at the bottom as a trainee." I did.

That was 16 years ago and I'm still with the company. Last year they had a sales contest and first prize was a trip to Hawaii for the winner and his wife. Guess who won! Yours truly. STILL SELLING

DEAR ABBY: Re lack of experience—no chance of being hired: An excellent source of experience is volunteer work. Hospitals, churches, and any number of charitable organizations need volunteers. No money, of course, but they pay off in self-esteem, a sense of accomplishment, and experience.

Even if the paying job requires skills other than the volunteer job, one can still get a recommendation for cooperation, diligence, punctuality and ambition, which most employers consider equally as important as skills.

Milky Way Probe Hoped

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Scientists from the University of Arizona, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory and the Harvard College Observatory say they hope to probe the mysterious ways of the Milky Way when they send aloft the largest telescope ever to leave the earth's surface.

The 40-inch telescope will be propelled to its vantage point 15 miles above the earth by a 250-foot silver balloon filled with nearly 5 million cubic feet of helium.

A specially designed gondola will house the telescope, which will be controlled from the ground.

Hijacker Wanted Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I am resolved to struggle by all means against any foreign aggressors who invade Vietnam, that is now American imperialists."

In such words did Nguyen Thai Binh explain why he planned to hijack a Pan American 747 jet to Hanoi, according to letters released here. Before the attempt, he reportedly wrote two letters, to President Nixon and to "the Peace and Justice Loving People of the World."

The letters were dated July 1. On July 2, Thai Binh 24, was shot and killed aboard the Pan Am jet after he was tricked by the pilot, and the plane landed at Saigon.

The hijacker, a South Vietnamese, was graduated with honors last month from the University of Washington, at Seattle, where he studied fishery science on a scholarship from the Agency for International Development.

He said in the letter to the President that he was returning to Vietnam to "stand in the line of the Vietnamese people in the struggle for national liberation."

An acquaintance described Thai Binh as very slight and "a gentle and kind person."

The hijacker wrote that he didn't want to hurt anyone. He wanted, he said:

"... To stand in the line of the Vietnamese people in the struggle of national salvation, to take part in the resistance against U.S. aggression, to confirm the justness of our cause, to dedicate to the freedom fighters of Vietnam, living and dead, to strengthen the confidence in the 'eluctable' inevitable victory of our people, I direct Pan Am 841 to Hanoi. I promise myself I shall not hurt any innocent person."

The letter also said, "I know my voice cannot be heard, cannot defeat the roared sound of B-52, of the U.S. bombings unless I take this dramatic action." Thai Binh had spoken out against the war previously and had expressed fear of reprisals if he had to return to South Vietnam.

Copies of the letters were received in the mail Monday by the Indochina Resource Center, an antiwar organization here, which released them.

Dollar Weakens

LONDON (AP) — The dollar neared its lowest permitted level on European money markets today, triggering intervention by the West German central bank. The pound sterling continued its downward slide.

The pound was close to the $2.40 base that was predicted after sterling was floated 10 days ago.

The dollar, weakened by the sterling crisis, continued to trail the pound downward and opened in Frankfurt at 3.15 marks. This was a slight rally over Monday night's close of 3.1497, but only intervention by the central bank shored it up then.

The bank began buying up dollars again today to maintain it at the lower mandatory intervention level and head off panic selling. But reports of the market situation in Frankfurt touched off a flurry of last-minute selling in Tokyo, and the Bank of Japan had to buy $70-$80 million during the last 10 minutes of trading.

In Paris, the dollar was near floor level at 5.0005 francs, down from Monday's 5.0015 close. But there was no sign the Bank of France was planning to step in to support the currency.

The dollar weakened in Zurich to 3.75 Swiss francs, down from 3.7530. The Swiss national bank intervened Monday to keep the currency hovering above floor level, but there was no immediate sign it planned to step in again today.

The dollar also weakened in Brussels, falling from Monday's close of 43.81 francs to 43.80 despite a brief rally when the market opened.

Bremer Taken To Hospital

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — Arthur H. Bremer, charged with the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, has been transferred from the Baltimore County Jail to Clifron T. Perkins State Hospital for a court-ordered mental examination.

Bremer has entered pleas of innocent by reason of insanity to assault and gun law violations in connection with the wounding of Wallace last May 15 at a shopping center in Laurel, Md.

Bremer's federal trial is set to begin July 17.

Spassky Puts Match In Doubt

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Hours after Bobby Fischer ended his holdout and gave the world chess championship new life, Russian Boris Spassky put the match in doubt again today.

Spassky, the world's champion, lodged a formal protest objecting that Fischer, the American challenger, "has violated the rules of the match" by failing to appear for its scheduled start on Sunday.

Spassky told Max Euwe, president of the World Chess Federation, that his decision to allow a postponement in Fischer's favor was unacceptable.

Then Spassky and his aides, who were expected to draw lots for tonight's match, staged a glum-faced walkout.

Spassky was asked if there was a chance for a game today. He said, "It is not known."

Speaking to newsmen after the Russian walkout, Euwe was much more forthright. Asked whether he considered the Russian move threatened to wreck the whole match, he replied, "Certainly."

Fischer arrived in Reykjavik about 10 hours before his first scheduled match with Spassky.

Nixon Favored

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)— President Nixon continues to be favored by voters over his possible Democratic rivals, according to a recent Gallup Poll.

The results of the survey released Sunday indicate Nixon would gain 53 per cent of the popular vote if his opponent in the presidential election were South Dakota Sen. George McGovern. The survey showed McGovern receiving 37 per cent of the ballots with 10 per cent of the voters undecided.

Against Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the poll showed the President with 55 per cent of the vote, compared with 33 per cent for Humphrey and 12 per cent undecided.

Vegas Recalled

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has announced its third major recall in three months for its subcompact Vega, notifying owners of about 500,000 Vegas to return them to dealers for replacement of possibly defective rear axles which could separate from the car.

The recall announced by GM's Chevrolet Division Monday said 59 complaints had been received from owners of 1971 and 1972 models and 15 of these concerned incidents in which an axle and one rear wheel had dropped off.

"Two of these cases involved minor body damages to the vehicles," a GM spokesman said. However, he added, "No injuries have been reported."

The 500,000 Vegas represent virtually the entire production of the Chevrolet subcompact.

Dealers will inspect and replace without charge the rear axle shafts that may be defective, GM said.

The first Vega recall, announced in April, involved 130,000 of the 1972 models which were called back over a carburetor defect that GM said could cause the cars to catch fire.

In May, GM recalled 350,000 Vegas, both 1971 and 1972 models, because of a faulty carburetor bracket that GM said might cause the throttle to stick open.

Castro Praises Cooperation

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba spoke glowingly of Soviet-Cuban cooperation at the midpoint of a two-week visit to the Soviet Union.

Castro said Monday that "fraternal friendship between the peoples of Cuba and the Soviet Union will grow and strengthen," according to Tass, the Soviet news agency.

Texas Democrat Group Seated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Texas Democratic party won a landslide victory Monday night before the national party's Credentials Committee.

The committee voted overwhelmingly to seat the 130 members of the Texas group without any change from selections made at the state convention.

Supporters of Sen. George McGovern split their ballots to give the Texas delegation an easy 76-40 victory.

Fourteen of the McGovern allies voted to seat the challenged Texans and another 11 abstained.

Janet Jones of Dallas, a McGovern supporter, said she asked district and state party officials for a "fairness resolution guaranteeing the senator his due representation on the convention slate "and I was told that I was naive and that the deals had already been made."

Helen Cassidy of Houston of the Texas Women's Political Caucus, said that 14 of the record 16 challenges claimed women were underrepresented.

The caucus asked election of 14 women to replace men of similar candidate affiliation to bring the ratio of women up from 30 per cent to 42 per cent.

The caucus also would add two black women who support McGovern in place of two uncommitted white men. Eddie Bernice Johnson, newly elected black state legislator from Dallas and member of the Credentials Committee, spoke out on behalf of a minority challenge and asked that blacks be named to replace five white delegates, including three men over 50 years old and one woman over 40.

Charles G. Purnell, representing Dolph Briscoe, nominee for governor, and the state party leadership, said strong efforts had been made to get more women and minority group members on the list, but the delegates elected were the preferences of the people. He asked the Credentials Committee not to upset these elected delegates.

"We had to balance the delegate list the same way you did in New York City," said Matthew Troy of New York City, "and from the at-large category we had to add 18 women and 15 men — and we did it. And I'll be damned if I'm going to allow Texas to do anything different than we had to do in New York City."

Purnell said Credentials Committee hearing Officer Burke Marshall concluded that the state party had tried to involve women and minorities.

"Now when the women of Texas decide to take over the government they won't have to ask the Texas Women's Political Caucus how to do it," Purnell said, "because the women of Texas are just as smart as those in any other state. But for some reason the people of Texas decided to vote for two thirds more male delegates than women delegates."

The Texas challengers agreed Sunday night to present a single petition for relief.

Hours before the challenge was to be presented, the compromise plan broke apart and considerable bitterness developed between Ms. Johnson and the women's caucus spokesman.

In addition, Ms. Johnson was accused by Ms. Jones, of posing as a McGovern supporter on the district and state levels, winning McGovern support and McGovern money to be sent to the Credentials Committee, where she supported the stop-McGovern movement. Both women asked to be identified as "Ms."

Ms. Johnson, when asked if she had switched affiliations, said that she never had supported McGovern and that her money came mostly from small donations aside from a $300 gift from Calvin Guest, Briscoe's campaign manager. She said she has been a Humphrey stalwart in the past and will be in the future.

More Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security recipients may gain more new benefits, in addition to the 20 per cent payments increase that goes into effect in September.

Dr. Arthur Flemming, a special White House consultant on aging, said President Nixon wants legislation to give widows and widowers of Social Security beneficiaries full pension payment.

At present, they receive payments of 82½ per cent of the amount due the deceased spouse.

Minor, Trammell Exchange Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Roaal Minor announce the marriage of their daughter, Teresa Ann, to Ricky Paul Trammell, son of Mrs. Jo Trammell.

The couple was married June 18 in the home of the bride's aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Myron Fenton. The Rev. Lee R. Jones performed the ceremony.

The bride's chosen colors of blue and white were used in decorations throughout the house.

Mr. and Mrs. David Sims served as best man and matron of honor.

A reception followed the ceremony. Miss Barbara Spence and Miss Lisa Minor, sister of the bride served at the bride's table and Miss Susan Minor, sister of the bride, registered guests.

The bride is a student at Snyder High and the groom is employed by Reneau Casing Crew.

Look into Mexican cookbooks and the chances are you'll come upon recipes for Chile con Queso (Green Chile with Cheese). This is a savory dip that the Mexican cookbooks suggest you serve with corn chips or tostaditas (fried quartered corn tortillas) at cocktail time or with refried beans and tortillas at brunch. Offered this way, Chile con Queso is extremely popular in the American Southwest and in California. New York cooks sometimes serve the dip with vegetables, raw or parboiled.

When the weather is warm Chile con Questo tastes good with iced tea. To make the tea add 8 to 10 teabags (tags removed) to a quart of cold tap water. Cover container and let stand at room temperature or in the refrigerator for at least 6 hours or overnight. Squeeze teabags as you remove them and stir the tea. Pour into ice-filled glasses. Makes 5 to 6 servings. Amounts may be doubled. Cold water prevents the tea from clouding.

CHILE CON QUESO

2 medium tomatoes (peeled, seeded and chopped)
1 can (4 ounces) whole roasted green chilies (drained, seeds removed and chopped)
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, cubed
¼ cup milk
Drained canned cut-up pimiento

In a 1-quart saucepan simmer tomatoes, chilies, onion and seasoned salt, stirring often, for 10 minutes.

Add cream cheese and milk; over very low heat stir until cream cheese has melted and mixture is warm.

Serve warm in a chafing dish over hot water as a dip; garnish with pimiento.

Any leftover dip may be refrigerated in a covered container and used as a cracker spread:

Makes 1¾ cups.

Accompaniments for Chile Con Queso:

Cauliflower flowerets, green pepper squares, carrot sticks, celery sticks and asparagus tips may be used for dunking in the dip. Or the vegetable combination might be broccoli flowerets with part of the stalk left on, pared zucchini sticks, carrot sticks and celery sticks. The vegetables may be served raw or parboiled; to parboil cover vegetables with boiling water and boil about 2 minutes; drain and chill.

Other accompaniments for the dip could be corn chips, potato chips or corn tortillas cut into quarters and fried until crisp.

Good Samaritan Flees With Cash

LONDON (AP) — Dress shop owner Ken Price thought he was dying when he was pulled from the wreckage of his car two days ago. He gave one of his rescuers his wallet with 400 pounds—nearly $1,000—and said, "Please see that my wife gets this."

The Samaritan agreed and comforted Price until an ambulance arrived. Price didn't die, but his wife didn't get the money either. The Samaritan disappeared with it.

Prisoner Rehabilitation Interests Outstanding Coed

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The age of women being beautiful and nothing else is gone forever because a lot of the barriers are being lifted and women are speaking up—yelling so loud men have to listen."

So says Theon Wilson, who as a black woman, plans to vault a couple of barriers herself to become a lawyer. Though she is primarily interested in prisoner rehabilitation work rather than in practicing law, she thinks legal training will enable her to "get a foot in the door."

"I'm going to get as much training as I can so I can say 'Look, I have it all and you can't say I'm not qualified.' If they do discriminate against me I will at least have put up a hard fight," she explains.

In pursuit of her goal the 20-year-old Miss Wilson will enter law school after graduating next year from Newcomb College of Tulane University, where she has been a dormitory adviser, among numerous other jobs and activities.

"The silly little girls don't exist anymore," she notes. "The freshmen are not content to sit around and brag about what their fathers do. They're not content to major in languages and English. They're coming in with ideas and a commitment."

Miss Wilson's own commitment to doing something about her world has led to her selection as one of the Ten Top College Girls in the United States by Glamour Magazine. She and the other nine were awarded a trip to England, Scotland and Wales and will be featured in the August issue of the magazine.

"It was very exciting for my parents and my whole neighborhood," she said in New York before leaving on the trip. "It gave me a lot of self-confidence. Attending a white university, I often get quite a bit of negative reinforcement, realizing my background is not on a par with others.

"I'm really motivated by wanting to do something not just for myself but for thousands of black kids who have to pursue an image. It gives them someone they can identify with and helps them realize they can go on and finish school and go to college."

Miss Wilson, who is attending college on scholarship and loans, is a volunteer worker at New Orleans Parish Prison, where she interviews male prisoners after they are sentenced, going over their background and discussing their problems.

"My interest was sparked because a lot of people in the Desire community in New Orleans where I live have been in prison and I have been overwhelmed by the change in them," she says. "Once they commit a crime it's a steady road down. They come out filled with hatred and they can't find a job.

"I don't want to excuse crime and say it's only because of all the social forces acting, but I realize this does have a bearing. I don't think it's so much the person—I think it's the system and I want to work to change this."

Miss Wilson, the first of her immediate family to aim at a professional career, suggests that teaching prisoners skills, and counseling to help them learn more about themselves and why they committed the crime, will help them find a place when they leave prison so they will not feel the world is against them.

"We need a system of reinforcing the positive," she says. "Poor blacks and poor whites have been knocked on the head and never really get a chance to think they are capable of doing something good."

The tall, slim coed is a member of the Community Action Council of Tulane University Students, which takes children from predominantly black areas on education field trips. She has also been a psychological tester in a program to study the development of underprivileged children and has been a counseling aid at a narcotics rehabilitation unit.

"I plan to be a lawyer because I see the need for black lawyers, but essentially I want to use my legal training to help me in the prison system," she says. "It's sort of something I owe to my people because so few are able to go to college that the few who do must think of other people, not only of themselves."

Murder Mystery Draws Attention

DEAD AS THEY COME. By Kin Platt. Random House. 206 Pages. $4.95.

This is a murder mystery and we read it because it's by a man who has written children's books that we actually enjoyed reading aloud to nieces. A man who can write like that probably can write a mystery we'd enjoy reading to ourselves. Right? Right.

The best thing about this mystery is the juicy gaggle of suspects. Here we have no "every finger points to one person" and then the killer, hitherto in the shadows, being brilliantly exposed.

Here fingers point to lots of folks. The murdered person is a writer of murder mysteries. The amateur detective is his editor at his publishing company, Molly Melinger. She and a New York City cop named Detective Boos, who get quite chummy, usually get the same idea for following up clues at about the same time.

Among those who might have done the writer in are his upstairs neighbor, a cartoonist; his downstairs neighbor, a doctor, who might be his son; his former wife, really only a secondary suspect; either member of a comedy team who work at a bar; Miss Melinger's assistant, and the assistant's boyfriend. The doctor's secretary is wide-eyed with fright, too, and well she might be because she becomes one of the two additional corpses who follow the writer. As it turns out, two corpses also have preceded him.

This book rather lilts along—murder mysteries are not gory or unsettling to their devotees; they're little islands of unreality for brief, happy escape from a rough world.

Platt is better in the getting there—most of the book after all—than in his denouement. There are so many clues, pointing in so many directions, that he hasn't quite gathered them all in, to show how they could all point to the guilty one. The book is set in New York City, but doesn't have much sense of setting. Its big sense is character, all those people wonderfully milling about with all that possible motivation and evil in their hearts.

Book Deals With History Of Russia

A CONCISE HISTORY OF RUSSIA. By Ronald Hingley. Viking Press. $10.

With American-Soviet relations poised for a new stage since President Nixon's summit visit to Moscow, the time is apt for an informative but compact history of Russia and the Soviet Union for the ordinary reader.

Hingley, a university lecturer in Russian at Oxford University and a fellow at St. Anthony's College there, goes a long way to meeting this need. While he frankly acknowledges that the very compactness he strives for lays him open to challenge on every page by authorities in this or that field, he tells a convincing, consecutive story from the dawn of Old Russian history around Kiev in the 9th century A.D. to today's U.S.S.R. of Leonid Brezhnev and Alexis Kosygin.

For some years the criterion of such a work has been "A History Of Russia" by the late British authority, Sir Bernard Pares. While Pares' book affords more explanation and detail of earlier Russian history, it devotes a smaller proportion to the revolutionary and post-revolutionary period, coming down only to Stalin. By contrast, nearly a third of Hingley's history deals with the Communist era.

And it has one feature which Pares lacks: numerous fascinating line drawings, painting reproductions and photographs, all in black and white, illustrating his story, from pre-Christian times to today's cosmonauts.

Hingley's brief characterizations and comparisons generally carry conviction. For instance, he finds no ruler in the long tragedy that is Russia so much like the insanely brutal Czar Ivan the Terrible as Stalin. Those two, he argues persuasively, ended with slaughter for its own sake. Others, for instance Peter the Great and Catherine the Great, Hingley believes, were driven to excessive cruelty only for what they believed to be overwhelming considerations of state.

Today, looking toward the future from the perspective of Hingley's presentation, it is difficult to imagine a really free and democratic Soviet government able to hold together the widely diverse peoples—ethnically, culturally, religiously—who have been absorbed into the Russian and Soviet empire over the centuries. As Hingley sums it up, the Russian character seems unadapted to any median point between anarchy and totalitarianism.

Chinese Language Is Most Spoken

NEW YORK (AP)—Chinese is spoken by more people than any other language in the world.

According to Warren Preece, editor of Encyclopaedia Britannica, there are some 3,000 languages being spoken today, with English and Chinese claiming the most widespread use.

Approximately three-fourths of the 800 million people on the China mainland speak Chinese. Mandarin, the most popular dialect, is spoken by 500 million people. Another 55 million speak Wu, 50 million speak Cantonese and 31 million Amoy. The rest of the country, some 64 million, reflect their ethnic origins and speak a number of exotic tongues: Thai, Miao-Yao, Turkish, etc.

In the Encyclopaedia Britannica, Chinese is described as the national languate of one country as contrasted with English which is an international language of several countries. Chinese is one of the five official languages of the United Nations.

The other major languages of the world include English, spoken by some 270 million people; Spanish, 160 million; Russian, 130 million; Hindustani, 120 million; Japanese, 100 million; and Bengali, 100 million.

Chinese is one of the oldest languages in the world, going back to around 1700 BC. The earliest Chinese writing was done on bones and shells, later on stones and on bronze. The Chinese were probably the first to have dictionaries.

The structure of written Chinese has changed less since antiquity than that of the spoken language.

Each Chinese character corresponds to a word in English and not to whole ideas, as some people think. These characters are, therefore, logographs, symbols of words, rather than ideographs, symbols of ideas.

CUTE AS PIE—Western as all "get up" is the young girl's sleep or play gown from Isaacson-Carrico. Reminiscent of the wagon days patches of bandana color a navy denim look and are combined with a perky puff sleeve blouse-all in one fasion of cool comfortable cotton. Style 3163 about $6.

Oxford Produces Reference Work

OXFORD ECONOMIC ATLAS OF THE WORLD. Fourth Edition. Oxford University Press. $25.

When Oxford University and Press set out to produce a reference work, they manage to make it both instructive and interesting.

This latest economic survey should be useful, not just to professional economists, but also to businessmen, journalists and readers generally who want a quick rundown on the climate, resources, geology, population distribution and principal production of the major areas of the world.

The maps use bright colors whose contrast makes clear without too much resort to figures the comparisons desired. The map dealing with demography—that study of peoples, their ethnology and population expansion in the frame of their geographic distribution and resources—is rather sobering. For instance, the estimated population of Asia by 1970 was over two billion, a jump of nearly 700 million in only 20 years. The question is, what will happen to food and space if this rate continues?

There also are maps on relative nutrition in the various continents and countries, the main agricultural and mineral products, energy production, hydro-electric power, manufacturing, railway and motor-vehicle distribution, computer usage, migrations, fatal accidents, diseases, communications, etc.

At the end is a compact but surprisingly complete gazeteer, and finally a statistical resume on the world's countries, large and small, alphabetically arranged.

In brief, it would be hard not to find something of real importance on the growth and development of any main area.

Richburg Reunion Held At Hermleigh

Descendents of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Richburg gathered at the Hermleigh Community Center Saturday night and Sunday, June10-11, for their annual reunion.

Sixty-six persons enjoyed visiting and a sandwich supper Saturday night.

On Sunday, the group gathered for an all day meeting. The fourteen surviving children attending with their families included Mrs. Eldie Bryant, Mrs. Lillie Faulkenberry of Monahans, Mrs. Blanche Pendergrass of Temple City, Calif., Mrs. Opie Wilson of Alpine, Mrs. Marie Adrian of Petersburg, Mrs. Oma Herm of Ackerly, Mrs. Nola Taylor and Mrs. Effie Watkins, both of Loraine, O.W. Richburg of Hermleigh, Lester of Hart, H.D. of Roscoe, Virgil of Sweetwater, J.C. of Abilene and F.F. of Apache Junction, Ariz.

Mrs. Bud Richburg of Colorado City and Mrs. Allen Richburg of Plainview also attended.

Grandchildren and great-grandchildren attending were from Big Spring, Abilene, Hart, Roscoe, Ackerly, Petersburg, Wichita Falls, Dallas, Irving, Burleson, Lubbock, Sweetwater, Wilcox, Ariz., Shawnee Mission, Kansas, and San Jose, Calif.

Visitors attending were Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Blalock of Snyder, Larry Butler of Lubbock and Mrs. Vanda Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Forbus, all of Loraine.

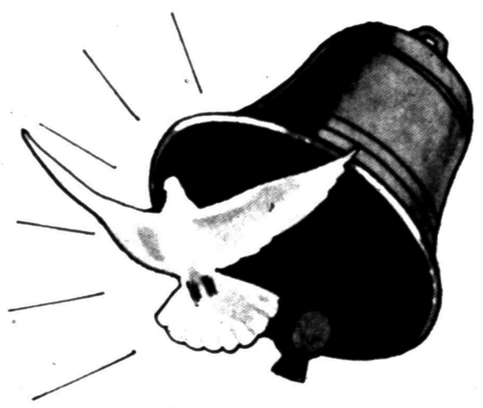

A total of 108 persons attended the gathering.

Don't use an excess amount of soap or detergent when you are washing clothes in an automatic washer. Excess soap or detergent is hard to rinse out, leaves clothes gray and may cause mechanical difficulties in the washer.

Nice for a garnish for salmon or some other dish—cucumber twists. To make them, slice a cucumber thin; cut each slice from one outside edge to the center. Twist the cut pieces in opposite directions to form S-shape twists.

Efforts Launched To Convert Coal To Gas

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Major efforts are under way to perfect the technology required for conversion of coal into pipe line quality gas.

A hydrogasification project already is in operation at Chicago's Institute of Gas Technology.

A lignite gasification pilot plant at Rapid City, S.D., is nearing operational status and will be dedicated this month.

Ground has just been broken at Homer City, Pa., for a bituminous pilot plant that will require from 18 to 24 months for construction.

Plans were announced in April for the first commercial scale test of the feasibility of converting coal to methane, a gas interchangeable with and equivalent to natural gas. The year-long test will be made at the Scottish Gas Board's Westfield coal gasification plant.

The three U.S. projects are joint efforts by government and industry.

The chief executive officer of Continental Oil Co. says it will be largely up to the coal industry and the petroleum industry to find the solutions required for meeting the nation's spiraling energy requirements.

John G. McLean of Stamford, Conn., says the long range outlook for energy materials is adequate but that for the medium term through 1985 the situation is quite different.

"In this time span, we will be confronted with a major energy gap: our indigenous energy supplies will fall far short of our domestic energy requirements," McLean says.

McLean says coal has a special role to play in bridging the impending energy gap and adds that coal provides a vital balance wheel for keeping oil imports within tolerable limits.

Continental's Conoco Methanation Co. is to design and construct the Westfield methanation facilities in cooperation with the British Gas Council and the Scottish Gas Board.

Continental's Consolidation Coal Co. is to operate the Rapid City pilot plant.

The Chicago, Rapid City, and Homer City projects are being jointly funded by the Interior Department's Office of Coal Research and the American Gas Association.

The U.S. Bureau of Mines has estimated measured and indicated domestic coal reserves at almost 400 billion short tons.

"Present mining methods giving us commercial access to at least 150 billion tons, equivalent to 300 years' supply at current consumption rates," McLean says.

Increased output from the abundant domestic coal resources, he adds, should be given first priority in all industrial and national policies and programs.

In calling for accelerated research and technological improvements, McLean said there is need to sort out priorities.

"On the matter of safeguards for the health and safety of miners, no compromises are acceptable," he said. "But with respect to pollution controls, we need pragmatic compromises, compatible with our society's economic necessities."

McLean says he views with considerable dismay the new round of investigations by the Federal Trade Commission and a half dozen congressional committees regarding concentrations of power in the energy industries.

"To meet our future energy requirements, a massive industrial effort will be necessary," he said.

"Many types and sizes of companies will be required, and industry should be given as much freedom as possible—consistent with existing anti-trust laws—to develop the particular corporate forms best suited to the job at hand."

Junior Editors' Quiz on FIREWORKS

QUESTION: What is the history of fireworks?

* * *

ANSWER: Fireworks were manufactured in Italy in 1540 and by the 1600s were widely used in England and France. For centuries, the Chinese set off fireworks to celebrate their holidays and when trade between the Orient and the West expanded, China became the world leader in the manufacture of fireworks. Not until the middle of the 19th century did the custom of shooting off fireworks to celebrate Independence Day become general in the United States. Today, the U.S. is the leading producer of fireworks, but shooting them without permits is forbidden in many places.

About 1833, potassium chlorate began to be used in fireworks, particularly in colored flame compositions; strontium salts for red, calcium for orange, barium for green and sodium for yellow. Since then, the history of fireworks has been largely the story of the introduction of new chemicals. About 1853, sugar and stearin were used in place of sulfur to make more stable chlorate color compositions.

Some types of modern fireworks seen on the Fourth of July are so-called Roman Candles which shoot out separate groups of sparks and colored flames with series of booming noises, pinwheels which have a gunpowder charge packed in a long, flexible tube and give off a brilliant circle of fire and "Chinese fountains" which spray sparks of bright colors in the air.

Texas Building Lagging

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas construction industry reached the halfway point of the year in June with its total in contracts still lagging $53.5 million behind the record-setting pace of 1971, according to the weekly Texas Contractor.

June contracts for $110,665,108 were below those for June of 1970 and 1971, but they still brought the half-year total up to $787,770,200, the trade periodical said.

The biggest June contract was for $21,095,000 awarded to Hensel Phelps of Greeley, Colo., for expansion of the Richardson campus of the University of Texas at Dallas.

Other big contracts: $4,486,900 to Lyda Inc. of San Antonio, for logistical materials process facilities at Kelly Air Force Base; $4,134,660 to T. L. James & Co. Inc. of Kenner, La., for dredging the Corpus Christi ship channel, the La Quinta Channel, and the turning basin; $3,339,800 to Warrior Constructors Inc. for the University of Texas System administration building at Austin; and $3,318,330 to Mid-County Asphalt Co. of Euless for remote parking and a second road system at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

New Exhibit At LBJ Library

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A new exhibit opens July 5 in the Lyndon B. Johnson Library on the papers and other items collected from the careers of the past six U.S. Presidents, library officials said Saturday.

A half hour concert by the University of Texas band will precede the formal opening of the exhibit.

The exhibit will include doodles made by President John F. Kennedy during the Cuban missile crisis, a handwritten message addressed "For Former Naval Person" from President Franklin D. Roosevelt to Winston Churchill, a statement signed by President Harry Truman telling of the formation of the state of Israel, a handwritten page of President Herbert Hoover's memoirs, a portrait of Sid W. Richardson painted by President Dwight D. Eisenhower and an engraved whale's tooth that sat on President Kennedy's desk.

There also will be special presidential collection items from the National Archives including a document signed by Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe ceding Virginia's claim to the Northwest Territory, the original bill of sale to the United States for the papers of George Washington and Mathew Brady photographs of Robert E. Lee and Ulysses S. Grant.

Pheasants Mowed Down

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Probably the biggest hazard that pheasants in New York face is the mowing machine.

During the peak of the state's pheasant populations in the late 1930s, mowing was not started until about the Fourth of July. By this time about 80 per cent of the pheasant nests had hatched.

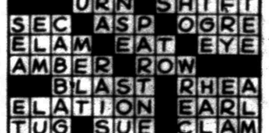

It has since been found that June hay is better for cattle. Mowing now usually starts during the first week in June, when fewer than 20 per cent of the nests have hatched.

About the only solution is to leave unmowed land along fences, farm lanes and in odd corners around the farm, to decoy the pheasant hens away from hayfields.

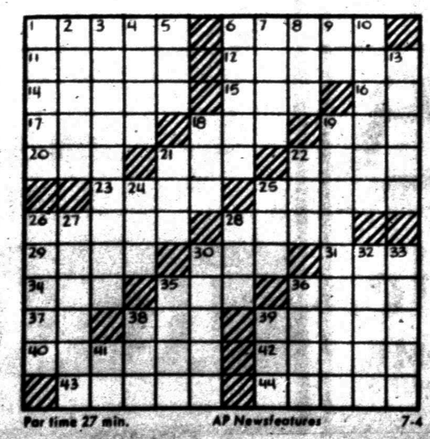

Festival Underway Is Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The 4th Lithuanian Folk Dance Festival got underway here with First Lady Pat Nixon urging an audience of some 13,000 to keep their culture alive "so others could enjoy it."

Buffs Bust Rebs As Dodgers Win

The league race in the Junior Teenage League is beginning to look like a Southwest Conference basketball race, everybody beats everybody, and the title is up for grabs. The Buffs made things interesting last night by busting the league leading Rebels 6-2, and the Dodgers moved one step closer to overtaking the Rebs by downing the Bullets 10-9.

The Rebels and Buffs were even in the hit department with three apiece, but the Buffs put all of their's together in the fourth inning to push four runs across and take the win.

The Rebs did not score until the third inning when Dennis Young singled and scored on an error in right field. Kelly Ragland doubled in the fourth, but never found his way home. The other Rebel run came in the fifth after a series of walks.

The Buffs seemed in control almost all the way, scoring a run in the first inning to take a lead that they never relinquished. They scored a second run in the next inning and led 2-0 before they even had a hit. The fourth inning was the story. Tim Flynn opened with a walk and Littlepage followed with a single, and Robert Waller sent Flynn in with the winning run on a single. Three more walks sent in a run and put the ducks on the pond for David Mays who doubled to send in the insurance runs. The fourth inning uprising saw Dennis Young, starting Reb pitcher, look to Greg Gafford for help, but Gafford could do no better and Sid Perry was called on to cool the fire.

Mays went the full game for the Buffs allowing three hits to Steve Green, Ragland, and Young.

The Dodgers had to scrap for their win over the Bullets, coming from one run back in the bottom of the seventh to nose out the victory.

The Dodgers took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Barry Blalock opened with a double and Roy Villanueva reached base on an error. Blalock was picked off before reaching home, but Villanueva scored on a sacrifice to right field.

Both teams scored once in the second and the Dodgers scored twice in the third before the Bullets opened up for eight runs in a big third inning blitz. The Bullets were sparked by Charles McCartney's single with two outs. It took a long time for the Dodgers to pin the Bullets for the third out. They used the arms of first Clay Bishop, Villanueva, and finally Gary Greenlee, but came out of the inning four runs behind.

After McCartney's single Charles Hammond singled to drive six in runners that had reached base on walks, and six more walks and Paul Villanueva's single sent over the rest of the runs.

The Dodgers started their long road back in the fifth inning, scoring three runs on one hit, a single by Mike Clifton. They couldn't score in the sixth and entered that final inning looking at a one point deficit. Jerry Hardin walked, Greenlee reached base on an error and Ernie Simons was the final batter of the night, picking up his only hit in four appearances, but it was the hit that won it for the Dodgers. He singled to send in both Hardin and Greenlee.

Greenlee, who pitched three and a third innings, picked up the win, and Hammond, who went all the way for the Bullets took the disappointment. McCartney was the leading hitter for the Bullets with a two-for-three night, and Blalock had a similar showing for the Dodgers.

Cardinals, Cubs WinInLLGames

The Rotary Club Cardinals got back on the winning track last night by downing the American Legion Yankeees 9-3, but the West Texas Bank Athletics have yet to find that path, once again falling, this time to the Lions Club Cubs 21-4.

Yankees had a 2-1 lead after the first inning, but that's the only time they led for the Cardinals sent in three runs on four walks and singles by Sid Everton and Randy Browning to stay ahead for keeps. The Yanks managed one last run in the fifth inning when Randy Tate singled and was sent around on walks, but the Cards had scored too many runs in the meantime.

In the third inning Randy Courtney, the winning pitcher, singled to send in Ron Ille, and in the fourth the Cards scored four runs on two hits, a double by Everton and a single by William Robinson.

David Lee started the pitching duties for the Yankees, but was relieved by Jerry Horsley. Courtney was also aided in his duties by Everton. Between the two of them the Yankees could only salvage three hits. The Cardinals doubled that effort, and Everton collected three hits in three trips to the plate, and Robinson had a fine showing with a two-for-three performance.

The Athletics may have had a ray of hope in the second inning of the nightcap, for they led 4-3. The A's picked up their runs on four walks and a single by Gerald Snyder, the only Athletic hit of the night.

The Cubs moved ahead in the third and kept moving to build their winning margin. All 18 of their remaining runs in that long, long third. They built their lead on four hits and 13 free passes. Tim Burnett, who was the leading hitter with a two-for-four night, got both of his hits in the third inning.

The Athletics started with Snyder from the mound, but Tony Pearson was called on in the third inning. Jeff Reed was the winning pitcher and threw for all four innings.

Orioles, Tigers Are Tied For 1st

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who's in first?

Well, the Orioles are in Baltimore and the Tigers are in Detroit.

Monday night they were both in Detroit, and that was too bad for the Tigers, who suffered an embarrassing 15-3 drubbing before 50,835 spectators and a national television audience. The two rivals are in a dead tie for first place in baseball's American League East.

Elsewhere, Oakland blanked California 5-0, Boston trounced Minnsota 8-2 and Texas edged Kansas City 2-1. Chicago, New York, Cleveland and Milwaukee were not scheduled.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 3, Chicago Cubs 2; St. Louis 4, Cincinnati 2; Atlanta 13, Houston 9; Philadelphia 4, San Francisco 2. New York and Montreal were rained out while Los Angeles and San Diego were idle.

Blanked for five innings by Tom Timmerman and trailing 2-0, the Orioles erupted for six runs in the sixth inning, seven in the eighth and two in the ninth. It was the most devastating setback for the Tigers since Cleveland beat them 15-2 with 21 hits—the same number accumulated by the Orioles—on July 17, 1966.

And, believe it or not, Weaver refused to rub it in, even though the Orioles took three of the four weekend games.

"We won, that's all," he said. "We be tied for first tonight, and if we both win tomorrow we'll still be tied."

Johnny Oates, Bobby Grich and Boog Powell all homered for Baltimore and Grich, Powell and Brooks Robinson each drove in three runs. Jim Palmer went the route for his 11th victory, scattering nine hits, including home runs by Jim Northrup and Gates Brown.

Detroit Manager Billy Martin trotted out six pitchers and the Orioles scored on five of them.

"It was," he said, "just one of those days."

Oakland's Catfish Hunter, who pitched a perfect game in 1968, retired the first 15 California batters before John Stephenson, who made the final out in Philadelphia's Jim Bunning's perfecto against the New York Mets in 1964, singled. The Angels' only other hit was Andy Kosco's seventh-inning triple.

Boston's scheduled starter, Sonny Siebert, showed up at the park with tendonitis in his pitching arm so the Red Sox switched to Luis Tiant and he held the Twins to eight hits, including a Bobby Darwin homer.

For the Sox, Carlton Fisk homered in the fifth and doubled another run across in the seventh and Tiant followed with a two-run single.

Texas reliever Jim Shellenback stymied Kansas City rallies in the seventh and ninth by retiring hot-hitting John Mayberry for the third out both times.

In the last of the seventh, the Royals put together three singles for their run before Shellenback fanned Mayberry with runners on first and second. Kansas City posed the same threat in the ninth on two-out singles by Lou Piniella and Richie Scheinblum but this time Mayberry flied out.

U. S. Favorite Feels Inspired

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Stan Smith, favorite to win the men's crown in the Wimbledon Tennis Championships, confessed to feeling "kind of inspired" today as he shaped up for a vital match against a star from the Soviet Union.

The 25-year-old U.S. Army corporal faced Russia's Alexander Metreveli for a place in the semifinals of the 86th All-England Tournament.

Teenager Jim Connors was the only other American left with a chance for the most coveted title in world tennis. And his opponent was also a man from behind the Iron Curtain, second-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania.

Smith, who lost to Australia's John Newcombe in the Wimbledon final last year, said he regretted that Newcombe and other stars of World Championship Tennis were barred from the 1972 championships.

"I know a lot of the best men are not here this time," Smith said. "But I got to the final last year when they were. And I still rate being Wimbledon champion the greatest honor a player can have.

Smith's progress to the last eight was not without its moments of anxiety. He dropped a set against both Sandy Mayer of Woodmere, N.Y., and Ian Fletcher of Australia.

Summing up his feelings about what could happen over the next four days, the U.S. No. 1 from Pasadena, Calif., said, "Winning Forest Hills last year was my greatest achievement in tennis. But if I now win Wimbledon, that will top it."

Connors, the unseeded 19-year-old from Belleville, Ill., has a difficult task against Nastase. The Romanian is favored by many veteran tennis watchers to take the title to a Communist country for the first time.

The other quarter-final matches pit Onny Parun of New Zealand against Jan Kodes, the fifth-seeded Czech, and Australia's powerful Colin Dibley against Manuel Orantes of Spain, the third seed.

In the women's division 17-year-old Chris Evert was through to a long-awaited semifinal against defending champion Evonne Googlagong of Australia.

In the other women's semifinal to be played Wednesday, Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., the No. 2 seed, takes on her old friend and rival, Rosie Casals of San Francisco.

Webb Shines For Memphis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Memphis Blues pitcher Hank Webb, who floundered in his 1971 introduction to Class AA baseball, is thriving this season with the Texas League club.

The quick righthander threw a sparkling three-hitter against Midland in the first game of a doubleheader at Memphis Monday night. The Blues won the opener 3-0, but the Cubs followed Tom Badcock to a 6-1 victory in the nightcap.

Dave Schneck and Ron Diggle walloped home runs in the opener and that was all Webb needed as he ran his season record to 4-0. He has started four games and completed all of them.

The Memphis-Midland twin bill was all the league action for the evening. The El Paso at Arkansas, Amarillo at Alexandria and San Antonio at Shreveport games were rained out.

Memphis recently called Webb from the Class A California League's Visalia club, where he was an early sensation.

Schneck's 20th homer was a solo job in the fourth inning. Diggle hit his first of the season in the sixth.

Badcock evened his record to 3-3 in the second game on a four-hitter, outdueling Ken Esposito, who lost a five-hitter.

Randy Bobb's bases-loaded single in the first inning gave the Cubs a 1-0 lead. The eventual winning run scored on an infield single by Badcock in the second inning.

Alexandria continues to hold a two-game lead in the East Division over Memphis, while Amarillo and El Paso are in a virtual tie in the West.

Midland will be at Memphis again tonight, and there will be doubleheaders for El Paso at Arkansas, Amarillo at Alexandria and San Antonio at Shreveport to make up for Monday's postponements.

Burton Leads Bowling Pros

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Nelson Burton Jr., leading money winner on the Professional Bowlers Association tour this year, took seven of his eight match games Monday night to take over first place in the $40,000 Tucson Open Bowling Tournament.

The 29-year-old St. Louis right-hander shot games of 226, 245, 233, 233, 201, 217, 256, and 227, a total of 1,862, as he moved from fourth place.

His average for the session was 232 as he picked up 210 bonus pins, 30 for each victory.

Don Johnson of Akron, Ohio, was in second place with 5,987 after winning five of his eight match games.

Rookie-of-the-year Tye Critchlow of Los Angeles, was third with a 5,986 after holding down the lead in Monday afternoon's games.

Yesterday Is Gone--McLain

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — In 1968 Denny McLain pitched as if there was no tomorrow. Tomorrow is here now and McLain would like to pitch like yesterday.

The former 31-game winner and two-time Cy Young Award winner gets that chance tonight when he takes the mound for the Braves in Atlanta against the Chicago Cubs in his first major league appearance after a five-week stint in the minor leagues.

"Yesterday is gone," said McLain, who was the Cy Young winner in 1968-69 and the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1969. "If you could live in yesterday that would be great but yesterday is over and I intend to live with today."

McLain will be wearing his third different uniform of the 1972 season with the Braves.

"I'm looking forward to it, there's no doubt about that," said McLain, who was traded last Thursday by the Oakland Athletics in a deal that sent Orlando Cepeda to the A's. "I'm anxious to get the first one over with.

"I'm ready but you can still only give 100 per cent and that's what I'll give them."

McLain was the darling of baseball in 1968 when he won 31 games for Detroit. He came back with another big year in 1969 but his world fell apart in 1970 when he was suspended for half the season by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for allegedly carrying a gun. He also filed for bankruptcy.

McLain sepnt five weeks in the minors and was bombed his first two outings but worked himself back into shape and was 3-3 when the trade came last week.

Stargell's Blast Sinks Cubs, 3-2

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

"The game," a baseball philosopher once decided, "isn't over till the last man is out."

Don't the Pittsburgh Pirates know it.

The Pirates rode Willie Stargell's ninth inning homer to a 3-2 victory over Chicago Monday night, opening their lead in baseball's National League East Division to 1½ games over the idle New York Mets, who were rained out of a doubleheader at Montreal.

In other National League games Monday, streaking St. Louis tripped Cincinnati 4-2, but the Reds maintained their half-game lead in the West when Atlanta outslugged pursuing Houston 13-9. Philadelphia knocked off San Francisco 4-2 in the only other game.

In the American League, Baltimore moved into a first place tie with Detroit in the East Division, walloping the Tigers 15-3, Boston whipped Minnesota 8-2, Texas edged Kansas City 2-1 and Oakland blanked California 5-0.

Burt Hooton was leading 2-1 and working on a three-hitter when Vic Davalillo opened the Pittsburgh ninth with a bunt single. Hooton got Roberto Clemente, whose ninth inning homer had turned a game around for the Pirates Saturday. But Stargell slugged his 15th of the year to give Pittsburgh another victory.

"It was just another typical Pirate finish," said Stargell.

It was the eighth victory in 10 meetings for the Pirates against Chicago and left the Cubs 6½ games back of Pittsburgh.

Long after Stargell's homer ended it, Hooton sat in the Cub dressing room, staring blankly into space.

A's Cardinals Take Victories In FL Action

The West Texas State Bank Athletics bested the Quarterback Club Giants 13-6 and the Rotary Club Cardinals shelled the Von Roeder Indians 24-7 in two important Farm League tilts here last night.

The A's Kenneth Tate and Joe Lopez divided the twirling chores and put the Giants down without a single base hit. Lopez aided his own cause with a home run. Dennis Wright stroked a single for the A's. Randy Chambers, the losing pitcher, yielded just two hits.

That Card-Tribe clash was a real slugfest with the Cardinals collecting 21 hits and the Injuns getting eight.

For the Cards, Walt Williams rapped two doubles, Randy Wolf stroked a double and three singles, Bill Stephens clouted a double and two singles while Lance McMillan and Mike Wolf each cracked a double. Other Cards who hit safely include Don Bennett, John Prindle, Robert Potts and Steve Nall. Prindle got four singles, Potts hit three, Nall hit two; and Bennett collected one single.

The Tribe received a double and a single each from Jamie Lopez and Mark Holdren while single base hits were credited to Jeff Murphree, Scott Key, Keith McClain and Steve Key.

Randy Wolf handled the pitching for the Cards while Jamie Lopez worked on the hill for the Tribe.

Cyclists Defy The Weather

The wet weather may have caused some havoc in regard to some of the July 4th events, but it did not dampen the spirits of a few hardy souls who pedalled their way through the elements in The Great Race, Snyder's first annual bicycle race.

In Division I, ages 10-13, Joe Longbotham of 2784 Highland took the first place trophy. Randy Stone finished second and Martha Womack came in third.

In the Boys' division of the 13-17 year olds, Doug Morrell pumped his way to first place. David Campbell was second, Gary Wilson third, Charles Greenfield, fourth, and Wade Sands was fifth.

The Womack family was out in full force for the races and Jane Ann Womack took first place in the Girls' division of the 13-17 year olds. She was followed by Margaret Womack, and third place went to Allana Patterson.

There were not enough entries in the Professional Division to merit a contest.

Rabbi Beds Protestors

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A rabbi allowed protesters to sleep in his synagogue's social hall Monday night, averting what could have been a confrontation with city officials.

Yippie leaders' announced plans for an outdoor sleep-in at a city golf course would have violated a statute forbidding lodging in the open.

But at nightfall, two Yippie leaders showed up to announce that Temple Menorah would let demonstrators unroll their sleeping bags in its carpeted, air-conditioned social hall until Wednesday.

The City Council meets Wednesday to reconsider a decision not to provide campsites for nondelegates arriving for next week's Democratic National Convention.

Later Monday night, some 15 Zippies, another faction in the protest coalition, arrived at the Par 3 golf course, erected a small tent and said they planned to stay for the night.

Police cruisers occasionally drove by the scene, but the officers did not approach the youths.

Rabbi Meyer Abramowitz said:

"If there is to be any hope of avoiding another Chicago, we must avoid hostility at this initial stage. If there is hostility now, it will be impossible to avoid hostility next week during the big show."

About 25 young people had gathered in the synagogue's social hall by midnight, playing guitars and talking. A message written on a blackboard read: "No dope, please. This house was loaned to us by friends."

Yippie leader Jeff Nightbyrd, arriving at the Par 3 golf course to announce the move to Temple Menorah, said, "Many individuals wanted to sleep in at the golf course tonight to prove that campers were no threat to the citizenry and ecology of the city. But the actions of city officials today demonstrate serious concern with the developing nondelegate problem. We will now wait until the City Council meeting Wednesday for further action."

Identity Of Passenger Mystery

SAIGON (AP) — The identity of the passenger who pumped five bullets into the young Vietnamese hijacker of a Pan American jumbo jet at the Saigon airport remained a mystery today.

Conflicting reports spoke of a small, slim young man; a leather-faced older man in a checked shirt; a sky marshal; a retired policeman; and a new employe of a Saigon civilian contractor.

A spokesman for Pan American World Airways in Saigon said the passenger had asked that his identity be kept secret. But a spokesman for the airline in Hong Kong said he was a "passenger listed as W. Mills," and the airline had been told he was employed as a security officer for a foreign company in Saigon.

A passenger on the flight Sunday named Mills checked out of his Saigon hotel Tuesday and didn't leave a forwarding address. He was employed by the Federal Electric Co., an American contracting company, but it disclaimed knowledge that any of its employes did the shooting.

The U.S. Embassy claimed it had no knowledge of the man's identity.

South Vietnamese police were silent. They arrested the father of the hijacker, an office worker in Saigon, and there were unconfirmed reports that the young man's mother and sister also were taken into custody.

In Washington, an antiwar group released letters it said were written by the hijacker, Nguyen Thai Binh, who was graduated with honors from the University of Washington last month. In them he said he was going back to Vietnam to "take part in the resistance against the U.S. aggression ..."

The letters were signed "Vietnam Thai-Binh," which in Vietnamese means "peace to the South Vietnamese people." They were mailed from Hawaii, where Binh boarded the 747 for Saigon on Saturday.

Binh's attempt to divert the plane to Hanoi was foiled when the pilot tricked him into thinking he was landing at Da Nang, landed in Saigon and then jumped Binh and strangled him.

The pilot, Capt. Gene Vaugh of Scottsdale, Ariz., said the mystery passenger had checked his pistol with him when he boarded the plane. When Vaughn went back to talk with Binh after they landed, he returned the pistol and asked the man to accompany him. The man shot Binh after he had been strangled.

Vaughn said in Hong Kong Sunday he was thankful Binh had been killed because "if he had been turned over to the United States for trial, he would have been given a free ride through our court system. We have not dealt harshly with any hijackers."

Another American passenger who helped to subdue Binh said the killing was "completely unnecessary."

"The hijacker was on the floor and subdued when the pilot told the passenger to shoot him. He shot him once and the pilot yelled, 'Shoot him again! Shoot him again!', said the man, who declined to be identified by name.

Bus Hijacked On Way To Races

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I wasn't afraid ... I was just afraid of losing my money," said Osto S. Valdiva.

"But you lose that anyway at the race track, don't you?" the 75-year-old retired machinist added.

The Baltimore resident was one of 46 passengers aboard a chartered bus hijacked Monday on its way from here to Delaware Park Race Track at Stanton, Del.

As the robbers worked their way through the bus ordering passengers to surrender their money, Valdiva slipped $4 into his left pocket nearest the aisle.

"I kept my wallet with $70 in it in my right pocket and laid a newspaper on my right leg," Valdiva said.

"The man with the sawed off shotgun didn't order everybody to empty his pockets ... They were too busy for that."

The robbers commandeered the bus and forced its driver to circle the city for about 30 minutes while they methodically robbed the driver and 43 of the passengers.

Two other passengers beside Valdiva were not robbed, police said.

One had pleaded, "I've only got $18," and the robber let him keep it.

Thomas Manning, manager of the Baltimore Coach Co., said the gunmen boarded the bus at the downtown civic center about 11 a.m. and pulled guns on the driver as the bus neared the Baltimore Beltway, north of the city.

He said the robbers forced the driver George M. Dotson to circle the city while they went from passenger to passenger. They also took Dotson's watch.

No one was injured.

Dotson said the men, one of whom was armed with a derringer-type pistol, ordered him to stop the bus when it reached the intersection with U.S. 95 at Halethorpe, Md., 10 miles south of here.

The robbers disembarked and scurried up an embankment, the driver said.

Trooper George N. Zumbrun of the Maryland State police described the 41 men and 5 women as "calm but angry." The victims reported losing amounts ranging from $2 to $620, Zumbrun said.

The robbers made off with a total of $3,413, the victims said.

Authorities said they assumed the pair had a getaway car waiting.

Splinter Group Invited

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — In a rare display of public recognition, Mormon leaders have invited the head of a major splinter group to attend the funeral of church President Joseph Fielding Smith.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Later-day Saints, which has shunned ecumenism with its offspring sects or other religions, asked Wallace Smith, president of Reorganized Latter-day Saints, and his wife to be honored guests at the funeral Thursday.

Wallace Smith is a direct descendant of Prophet Joseph Smith, whom both religions claim as founder. Joseph Fielding Smith, who died Sunday of a heart attack at the age of 95, was a grandnephew of the first Mormon prophet.

The balloon flight distance record of 1,719.21 miles is held by the Soviet Union.

Extradition Decision Delayed

NEW YORK (AP)—Edith Irving's extradition hearing has ended in federal court. But a decision on whether she must return to Switzerland to stand trial in the Howard Hughes autobiography hoax was delayed Friday until August.

At the end of the hearing, Mrs. Irving returned to the Nassau County jail, where she began a two-month federal sentence June 16. Her husband, Clifford Irving, will begin a 2½-year sentence after his wife's release.

Truman Takes Walk

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry S. Truman ventured out of his hospital room and told a nurse accompanying him on a stroll along the corridors that a newsman needed a shave and a haircut.

The walk at the Research Medical Center Monday night capped Truman's first full day at the hospital, where he was admitted Sunday for tests described by his personal physician as routine.

Robert W. Butler, a Kansas City Times reporter, was at the nurses' station and heard a voice say something relating to "a shave and a haircut." Butler, the only man in the hallway sporting muttonchop whiskers and a mustache, turned to see the former president moving along with a nurse and three chuckling Secret Service agents.

Truman appeared moments later on the return trip.

"You know, Mr. President, when I was 11 years old I saw you at the Truman Library on the Fourth of July, the day Hawaii became the 50th state," Butler said. "You officiated at ceremonies held on the front steps of the library. Remember?"

"Oh sure," the 88-year-old Truman replied, not stopping.

As Truman turned the corner of the corridor he said something which caused one of the nurses to break out laughing.

After asking what Truman had said, Butler received the message relayed by one of the nurses:

"He said you still need a shave and a haircut."

Dismissal Of Charges Denied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defense efforts to prevent the trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo in the Puntagon Papers case have failed and the way is clear for proceedings to begin next Monday.

U.S. District Court Judge William M. Byrne Jr. denied on Monday the defendants' request to dismiss espionage, conspiracy and theft charges on grounds that the government singled out Ellsberg and Russo because of their antiwar views.

But Byrne ordered the government to give him any records, letters or memos of telephone calls concerning the reasons for prosecuting the former Rand Corp. researchers.

"This matter will be reopened on my own motion," he cautioned, if that material shows evidence of selective prosecution.

The defense had argued that the FBI began investigating Ellsberg at least nine months before he leaked the classified, Pentagon-commissioned documents on the Vietnam war to newsmen. The lawyers did not contend that the FBI discovered what Ellsberg was doing. But they said selective, discriminatory prosecution was proved by the fact that the government did not move against Ellsberg until after he espoused his antiwar views on national television.

SAYS ARCHBISHOP

Greek Orthodox Must Organize

HOUSTON (AP) — The Greek Orthodox Church in the Western Hemisphere must organize educationally, socially and politically so "we could dispel the fear of even the remotest threat of assimilation by the non-Greek environment in which we live," its primate said here Monday.

Archbishop Takovos made the statement during the opening address of the 21st Biennial Clergy-Laity Congress here. The meeting continues through Saturday.

The American Greek Orthodox Church, which organized a half century ago, can accomplish this goal, he said, with the development of "a soul, a conscience, a pure heart and a vigorous spirit, possessed of an inherent power to overcome all perils."

The archbishop accused segments of the church in previous years of degenerating into "form-worship, bigotry and isolation," when it forgot truth and love were its essence.

Trying to dispel rumors that began two years ago at the congress in New York, the primate told 293 clergy and lay delegates that Greek will remain the principal langugage of the church, "as long as I serve you as your archbishop."

In New York, a dissenting group had fought the use of non-Greek langugages in the liturgies and led demonstrations on the floor of the congress.

"What really happened two years ago in New York was that certain persons did violence to trust and love as expressions of Greek Orthodoxy at the very time when its influence was on the rise," the archbishop said.

"It was not the langugage of the Greeks that was threatened in that congress, but the language of God."

The primate received threatening telephone calls during the height of the New York controversy, a spokesman for him said. The spokesman said he is accompanied by two body guards during the Houston congress.

Archbishop Iakovos urged progress in the church while retaining its heritage during its second half century of existence.

Referring to social issues, he called the legalization of abortions and the legislation of birth control "the ugliest flotsam upon the shore ... of a human sea."

James House For Sale

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — For sale: The house wherein Jesse James was shot to death 90 years ago.

Perhaps America's most legendary criminal, Jesse W. James was 34 and living under an assumed name with his family and a few friends in the green-shuttered house where Bob Ford, an old comrade, shot him from behind for $10,000 reward.

The simple one-story frame structure has been owned the past 20 years by Ray Miller, a St. Joseph land developer, who says failing health prompted him to put it on the market. The asking price is $365,000 but Miller concedes he'll "do well to get $200,000 out of the place."

Miller's only stated stipulation is that the house, which James was renting for $14 a month, not be moved from St. Joseph.

Ever since the day Ford shot James and news of the murder electrified the country, tourists have been flocking to the house. Miller figures that in a good week he collects $400 in admittance charges, at $1 a person.

A visitor enters through a screenless door into the very room in which James was murdered.

"Now, folks," says the guide, "this is where the man was standing in the chair when he was shot, and this is where the bullet wnet in."

He points to a glass-covered hole in the wall directly above the chair.

"You can see where the bullet busted the lath. People've been picking' souvenirs till it looks more like a hammer hole than one made by a bullet."

Indeed. The hole in the wall looks as though a .37-millimeter cannon shell pierced it.

Festival Natural Place For Kids To Get Lost

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — So many and varied are the sights and sounds on the National Mall these days that it is a natural place for kids to get lost.

When the public address system blares, "Will Tommy Smith please go to the Maryland tent," it is no surprise.

Aside from lost children, some rainstorms and mud, nothing has gone wrong so far at the Smithsonian Institution's sixth annual festival of American Folklife. By the time it ends its five-day stand tonight, an estimated three-quarters of a million people will have visited it.

At the main music stage, devoted primarily to the blues, Carl Martin sings, "Nobody know you when you're down and out." He gives way to Sam Chatmon, 73, of Hollandale, Miss., introduced as "one of the original Mississippi Shieks."

A couple hundred feet away members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners are showing their skills, as part of a demonstration by five AFL-CIO unions.

The Lithographers and Photoengravers union has another tent, with high speed presses turning out schoolbook covers.

In the section set aside for the Indians of the Southwest, young men and women keep adding decorations to the Apache wickyup erected last week.

Sarah Begay and Evelyn Becenti, to save themselves the trouble of answering the same question time after time, have posted on their work table their recipe for "fryed bread": 4 cups flour, 2 tsp. baking soda, 2 tsp. salt, ½ cup powdered milk. They are Navajos.

Josephine Reyna of the Taos Pueblo at Taos, N.M., weaves blankets out of rabbit fur. A 5 by 3 foot blanket takes only about eight hours, she says, but the whole process from rabbit skin to finished product requires about a month.

With all this—not to mention the Maryland horsemen and Greek musicians and dancers on the other side of the Mall along with such volunteer entertainers as the San Francisco Musical Fun Band and Travelling Rock Festival—it isn't at all odd that kids wander off.

So there are frequent announcements: "Will the parents of Scovil Kane please go to the Maryland tent ... Will William Kelly go to information booth No. 1? ...Will Thomas Hughes please go to the dinosaur?"

Mexico is bounded by the Pacific Ocean on the west and south; on the southeast by Guatemala, British Honduras, and the Caribbean Sea, and on the east by the Gulf of Mexico.

Economic Stabilization Questions and Answers — Internal Revenue Service

This column of questions and answers on the President's Economic Stabilization Program is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service. The column answers questions most frequently asked about wages and prices.

***

Q. Is is true that the Pay Board's exception for catch-up increases is scheduled to expire?

A. The catch-up exception expired June 30, 1972. However, for those appropriate employee units where average straight-time pay rates, including benefits such as vacation and overtime, is $3.00 per hour or less, the catch-up exception will expire on November 13, 1972.

Q. I understand that my landlord must determine the base rent for my apartment before increasing rent. How can I figure out the base rent on my own?

A. The base rent for a unit subject to a month-to-month (or less) lease before the freeze is the last rent paid for that unit before the freeze. For example, if you pay your rent on the first of each month, your base rent is your August 1971 rent.

If you were on a lease for more than month-to-month on Aug. 14, 1971, your base rent is determined by one of the following ways:

If you signed the lease between May 16 and Aug. 14, 1971 your base rent is the monthly rent called for in that lease;

If you signed the lease on or before May 15, 1971, your base rent is the rent stated in the lease plus the average percentage increase charged by the landlord for other units having leases signed between July 16, 1971 and August 14, 1971. If no leases were signed during this period, the landlord must use the leases signed during the preceding 30-day period, and if necessary leases signed in the 30-days prior to that.

If no leases were signed in the 90 days before the freeze, your base rent is the rent for your unit on May 25, 1970, plus 5 percent, or the rent immediately before August 14, 1971 whichever is higher.

In most cases, if you are on a lease your rent may not be increased until the current lease expires.

Q. My landlord charges a fee for automobile parking spaces. Is this considered rent under stabilization regulations?

A. It is considered rent if the parking space is used in connection with your residence. If not so used, however, it is not considered rent. In the latter instance, this kind of activity would be considered a service and your landlord would be subject to the price controls on service industries, unless exempt from controls because of the small business exemption.

Q. Do service organizations have to post their base prices?

A. No. Service organizations do not have to post base prices or base price information. The requirement to post base prices applies to retailers. Though many types of service organizations, such as dry cleaners or TV-repair shops are located in street-level stores, they are not retailers as that term is used in the price regulations. To be considered a retailer, a business must purchase a product and, without substantially changing its form, resell it to the ultimate consumer.

Service organizations, if they are not exempt from controls because of the small business exemption, must maintain base price records for inspection by the Internal Revenue Service.

For more information on the price controls on service organizations, see IRS Publication S-3017. It's available free by dropping a postcard to your IRS district office.

Q. Do all forms that have to be filed with the Price Commission have to be signed by the chief executive officer of the firm?

A. The Price Commission has determined it to be permissible for forms submitted to be signed by any corporate officer if an accompanying certificate is filed (signed by the chief esecutive officer) certifying the signer of the form to be an officer of the corporation with responsibility for signing such forms.

Harper Says Conspiracy Charges Are Ridiculous

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Texas banker-rancher and a commercial airline pilot from Baton Rouge, La., say they are innocent of charges of conspiring to transmit munitions to Mexico.

Richmond Harper of Eagle Pass, Tex., a well known South Texan, said in Texas Monday, "It's the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of."

Adler H. Seal, who has been a pilot with Trans World Airlines, said in New Orleans where he was released under a $50,000 personal recognizance bond, "I haven't done a thing. That's what you're going to find out."

They were among nine persons arrested Saturday night in Louisiana and Texas on the conspiracy charges. The federal government alleged that they were in a $465,000 scheme to smuggle plastic explosives and other accessories to Mexico for use to transship to another country.

Federal officials alleged the munitions were to be used in a plot to overthrow a foreign government, presumably in Cuba.

The only one who remained in jail today was Murray Kessler of Brooklyn, N.Y., identified in the complaint as the man who made the arrangements for the sale to a person identified only as "Carlos Diaz." Kessler was held in New Orleans in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Diaz was identified by the federal government only as claiming to be a citizen of Mexico. Officials said they were looking for him.

Federal authorities Monday said there were links between Kessler and a Mannie Gambine, a member of an alleged New York organized crime family.

Michael Pollack of a Justice Department organized crime strike force in Brooklyn said in New Orleans that Kessler was a partner with Gambine in Neptune Nuggest, a Long Island, N.Y., frozen food packaging firm.

Gambine, 29, has not been reported seen since late May. His bloodstained car was found June 2 at Newark Airport in New Jersey. Gambine is the nephew of Carole Gambine, identified by the Justice Department as leader of a New York organized crime family.

Harper said in Eagle Pass, "I really don't know anything about all this except what I read in the newspaper. I do know Murray Kessler. He is a friend of mine.

"And I have loaned him my airplane occasionally when he is down in this part of the world.

"They came and arrested me and haven't said anything about what I am supposed to have done except that I'm charged with conspiracy.

"Presumably, that's because I know Kessler and loaned him my plane.

Harper said Kessler borrowed the plane for short trips from Eagle Pass to San Antonio "to catch a plane or something like that."

When told about the wide news coverage, Seal joked, "All I need is a number of Cubans looking for me."

Seal declined to discuss the case in depth.

Gilly Living On Farm

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Annette Gilly, who confessed her role in the Yablonski murders and turned state's evidence in the case, is reported to be living on a rented farm that is costing the state $1,000 a month.

"She understands that we can't promise her anything, no matter how much she cooperates," a source said. "But obviously we are going to make certain she is safe and well taken care of. What else would you expect?"

Mrs. Gilly's confession three months ago in connection with the murder of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph A. Yablonski, his wife and daughter, resulted in the indictment of a low-level UMW official and is said to have prompted her father, Silous Huddleston, to also confess in the case.

Thus far, seven persons have been arrested in the killings. They include Mrs. Gilly's husband, Paul, who has been convicted and sentenced to death.

Hunt Youth In Double Killing

MINERAL WELLS, Tex. (AP) — Two brothers were found killed by shotgun blasts Monday afternoon on a farm southwest of here.

Palo Pinto County Sheriff Bill Harris said Elmer Pruitt, 62, clad only in his undershorts, was found in the bedroom of his farm house.

The body of his brother, Delma Pruitt, 60, of Hobbs, N.M., was found in the backyard about 20 yards from the house.

Harris said law enforcement officials are searching for a 17-year-old Mineral Wells youth and a missing car which had belonged to Delma Pruitt.

An autopsy was performed by a private pathologist Monday night in Fort Worth.

The elder Pruitt was shot at close range in the right eye and at long range in the left side of the chest and abdomin, officials said.

Delma Pruitt, who apparently dragged himself outside to the place where he was found, was shot at close range in the back.

All of the injuries were said to have been inflicted by shotgun blasts. The head and back wounds were described as "contact wounds," meaning the muzzle of the gun was on the bodies when it was fired.

Sheriff's officers removed two shotguns from the house. A .22-caliber rifle was reported missing.

The bodies were discovered by their nephew, Doyle Pruitt of Mineral Wells.

He said he had encountered a 17-year-old youth at the house.

Doyle Pruitt said he walked into the house, got a drink of water and asked the youth if the Pruitt brothers were "still sleeping."

"He said yes. That's all he said," Pruitt related.

He said he later noticed blood on the porch and found the family's dead dog in the backyard.

About 20 yards away, he discovered the body of Delma Pruitt.

Harris said he arrived and kicked in the door of the house and found Elmer Pruitt's body on a bed.

He said Delma Pruitt was known to carry large sums of money and his wallet was missing.

Delma Pruitt had been in Mineral Wells about a week. He was here to assist in placing the brothers' 94-year-old mother in a hospital.

Lutherans Open Door To Ex-Cons

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The nation's largest Lutheran denomination says it stands ready to admit ex-convicts to its corps of clergymen. After all, the church observes, Jesus himself was considered a "political-religious criminal."

So were "countless witnesses to him," adds the Lutheran Church in America.

In a 2,600-word policy statement adopted Monday night, the church urged an end to the confinement of most lawbreakers in prison, saying such treatment only increases their alienation from society, further undermining it.

"For society to seek increased security and order by means of a larger and more efficient prison system is for it to sow the seeds of its own destruction," said the denomination's governing convention.

As part of its own efforts in changing the system, the 3.2 million-member church declared itself "open to the employment of ex-offenders," adding:

"Such persons should be encouraged to apply for both nonprofessional and professional positions, including the ordained ministry."

Church colleges and seminaries also were asked to explore setting up educational programs for offenders while they still are serving sentences, "possibly leading to careers within the church."

Terming present handling of criminals "counter-productive," the church urged a shift to "rehabilitation, not punishment," with emphasis on "treatment in the community" for life in it, not imprisonment removed from it.

Confinement should be limited to offenders "judged dangerous or violent," the church said, adding:

"Whether confined or not ... offenders should remain in touch with their home community where the mutal adjustment of community and offender must take place."

The document says the public has yet to wake up to the fact that most prisoners return to the community and as a result of their imprisonment come back more bitter and hostile than before.

"The popular assumption that confinement is normally the most appropriate penalty for criminal behavior has proven itself fallacious. Jails and prisons have too often become schools of alienation and violence."

"Those persons who survive them constitute a growing pool of disaffected men and women," the church said, thus increasing the spread of lawlessness in America.

Wallace Goes On Outing

SILVER SPRING, Md., (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has recovered sufficiently from an assassination attempt on May 15 to take short trips away from Holy Cross Hospital here.

Smiling and with a light tan, Wallace flashed a victory sign when he returned Monday from a four-hour outing that included an early dinner at the nearby home of a physician, Dr. Joseph Schanno, at Bethesda, Md.

The governor travelled on Sunday night to his wife's hotel room, also nearby, where the couple had dinner. Neither trip was announced.

Still partially paralyzed from a bullet wound in the spine, Wallace was lifted by a security officer from the car to a wheelchair. He then was wheeled to a point in front of the hospital where he posed for pictures.

A spokesman for the governor's campaign staff, Roy Smith, told newsmen that Wallace is "feeling very good."

The governor is scheduled to leave the hospital Friday morning for the Democratic National Convention at Miami Beach. He will stop over in Alabama on the way.

Fireworks Stands Fizzle On Fourth

HOUSTON (AP) — Operators of fireworks stands located just outside the city limits agree—the Fourth of July is a fizzle.

Most say this is their last year to sell Roman candles, little giants and sky rockets. The Houston Fire Department has put a damper on the business.

Houston, like most Texas cities, forbids fireworks within its corporate limits. But there is no state law against sales and before every Fourth temporary stands sprout just outside the city limits.

Fire Chief J. R. Cook said in 1968 fireworks brought into Houston caused 50 fires and did about $300,000 in damages. So he started stationing firemen in cars near the fireworks stands next to big signs which tell customers not to bring the explosive devices back into the city.

In 1971, said Cook, his men confiscated "something like $200,000 worth" of fireworks and there were no Houston fires blamed on them.

This year, he has 50 men working the assignment.

Mrs. Edith Mann of San Antonio, who operates one of the stands, said the firemen have ruined her business. "To me it's a gross indignity."

W. C. Cooper agrees. The firemen and their signs have caused his business to take a nose dive.

Mrs. Mann said her stand was supposed to gross $4,000 during the holiday period, but in three days she has barely sold $300 worth of fireworks.

Cooper said selling fireworks used to be fun but the firemen have taken the fun out of it.

"If they wanted to be fair about it," he said, "They'd set up inside the city limits and just stop people as they enter. But they follow my customers around to see if they enter the city anywhere else."

The problem with fireworks, Mrs. Mann said, is that adults don't supervise their children. "All our fireworks have a warning, 'Use only adult supervision,' but when parents don't look after their children we get blamed."

"The Fourth of July is supposed to be brought in with a bang," she said wistfully.

Battery Stolen

Someone stole a battery valued at $25 from Harold Denson's Used Car Lot, 300 East Highway, between Saturday and Monday, according to a City Police report.

Engineer Is Female

McNARY, Ariz. (AP) — Casey Jones would do a quick double take if he saw one of the engineers climb down from the locomotive of the White Mountain Scenic Railroad.

Overalls, peaked cap and grease-stained face not withstanding, the engineer undoubtedly is female ... and a young, pretty one at that.

She's Pam Wingo, a 24-year-old dental hygienist by profession and a railroad buff by avocation.

She helps at the throttle of the train on weekends and holidays for the 40-mile round trip through eastern Arizona's mountains.

It all started when she and her parents struck up a a friendship with conductor Bob Echols shortly before taking the sight-seeing trip.

When the Wingo family rode the train, Echols said to Pam: "The fireman needs help filling the engine with water. Wanna help?"

She did—and rode the rest of the trip on the engine, asking questions of the fireman and engineer.

Two weeks later she was an unpaid crew member and a short time later she was acting as the train's engineer.

She said the most difficult maneuver to learn is getting the train moving from a stop, particularly on an uphill grade where the old, Western-style steam engine has its problems.

She compared it with learning to drive a car with a clutch, releasing the clutch pedal and applying gas—without jerking the car. "Only magnify the problem many times over for the engine," she said.

Pearl Buck Is Hospitalized

RUTLAND, Vt. (AP) — Pearl S. Buck, winner of the Nobel and Pulitzer prizes for her novels about life in China, has been hospitalized with an attack of pleurisy.

Miss Buck, who celebrated her 80th birthday June 26, was admitted to Rutland Hospital. She lives in nearby Danby.

A hospital bulletin issued Monday did not list Miss Buck and a spokesman declined to give any further details about her condition.

Miss Buck won the Pulitzer Prize in 1932 for her book "The Good Earth." Subsequently, in 1938 she became the first American woman to win the Nobel Prize, winning it for literature.

Bank Purchase Is Approved

HOUSTON (AP) — Southwest Bancshares Inc., of Houston received approval from the Federal Reserve Board Monday to acquire the majority interest in Denton County National Bank of Denton, president A. J. McNeese Jr. said.

The billion-dollar bank holding company will acquire 90 per cent of the Denton back's stock, he said.

The Denton bank would become the sixth member of the organization in about a month, McNeese said, and will cost $5.7 million.

Denton County National had $37,878, 263 in assets and $34,-109,350 deposits as of March 31, he said.

The Bancshares organization now includes Bank of the Southwest, Village National Bank and Long Point National Bank, all of Houston; the First National Bank of Longview and the Continental National Bank of Fort Worth.

Gov. Ford Poses For Photographers

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky posed for news photographers Monday as he continues to recover from a June 28 operation to repair a weakened section of an artery in his abdominal cavity.

Deny Welfare Advance For Fare

HONOLULU (AP) — A Los Angeles man who asked the state of Hawaii to pay his way to the islands so he could go on welfare has received an emphatic "no," Gov. John A. Burns says.

Burns said Friday the man, who was not identified, wrote, "I have been told that one may receive aid immediately. If this be the case, please forward an advance on my first welfare check for air fare."

The man also expressed interest in moving into public housing on the beach.

The state cannot advance welfare funds for air fare, Burns replied. He told the man the state already has 4,000 applicants waiting for public housing, which is all far from the beach. Hawaii also has a high cost of living, Burns added.

"Frankly, I cannot recommend that you move to Hawaii at this time," Burns said.

Inmates' Switch Denied

RAIFORD, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Defense Department has turned down a request by 10 Florida State Prison inmates to change places with American prisoners of war in Southeast Asia.

"I am sorry this reply cannot be more favorable," wrote Maj. Gen. Leo E. Benade in a letter to inmate Michael E. Stoudt, 31, of Atlanta. "Your readiness to serve our nation in the Armed Forces is gratifying."

The general said the convicts, most of them serving lengthy sentences for crimes ranging from forgery to murder, could not be accepted for enlistment or induction because they were "persons who have been convicted of certain crimes."

Oscar Jefferson, 45, of Waycross, Ga., said the prisoners hoped to do something for their country in exchange for an assurance they would be released from their sentence at the end of the war.
