Tax opponents

AUSTIN — The Legislature has voted to send 10 state lawmakers to Washington to oppose President Clinton's proposed energy tax, which has won U.S. House approval. Opponents of the tax, which would be based on the heat content of fuels, have said it would have a devastating effect on Texas. The state comptroller has estimated it would cost the state $3.9 billion and 49,000 jobs over the next five years. The White House has said the energy tax may be subject to compromise in the U.S. Senate.

Lions' hall of fame

Leonard Hanson of Midland has been inducted into the Texas Lions Hall of Fame and recognized at the group's recent state convention in Lubbock. Hanson joined the Southwest Lions Club in 1958 and has had perfect attendance through those years. He served in every office of the club and was voted "Lion of the Year" six times. He received the Extension Award for helping to organize the Midland Suburban Lions Club. He served as Guiding Lion for the club and has been a member since 1985, and has received the Grand Master key for sponsoring 50 new members. In 1972, Hanson helped organize District 2-A1 Lions Eye Bank, and he has served as its executive director since that time. He holds a life membership in the Eye Bank, as well as in the Texas Lions Camp and is a Century Club Key member. Hanson has held many district offices, having served as Governor of District 2-A1 in 1986-'87.

City honors spelling champ

■ Jeremy Gengler heads for national bee.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

Friday was proclaimed Jerry Gengler (that's G-E-N-G-L-E-R) Day, in honor of the Tall City's most consummate speller.

The 14-year-old spelling bee champion will board a plane today bound for Washington, D.C., and the 66th Annual Scripps-Howard National Spelling Bee. Not only that, he will be competing in the capital city for the second time.

Jeremy won top honors in the regional spelling bee (after surviving 37 rounds). Last year he represented Midland in Washington, D.C., where he completed four of 14 rounds designed for experts only.

He was honored in style Friday as Midland Mayor J.D. Faircloth and Midland public school Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. hosted a news conference to tout his laurels.

"Jeremy, who has been in MISD since kindergarten, is a four-year school speller (a finalist two years and champion the past two years)," Baressi said.

Faircloth, reading a lengthy proclamation, noted that "There are about 200 words here, and not a single one misspelled. I know — because I ran a (computer) spell-check," he said.

All grins, Jeremy, pooh-poohed any thought of nerves and said he expected his highlight of the trip to be a visit to the Ford's Theatre. "It's where Lincoln was shot," he informed some adults who had puzzled expressions.

The Goddard Junior High School eighth-grader oozed self confidence, under the watchful gaze of his parents, also championship spellers.

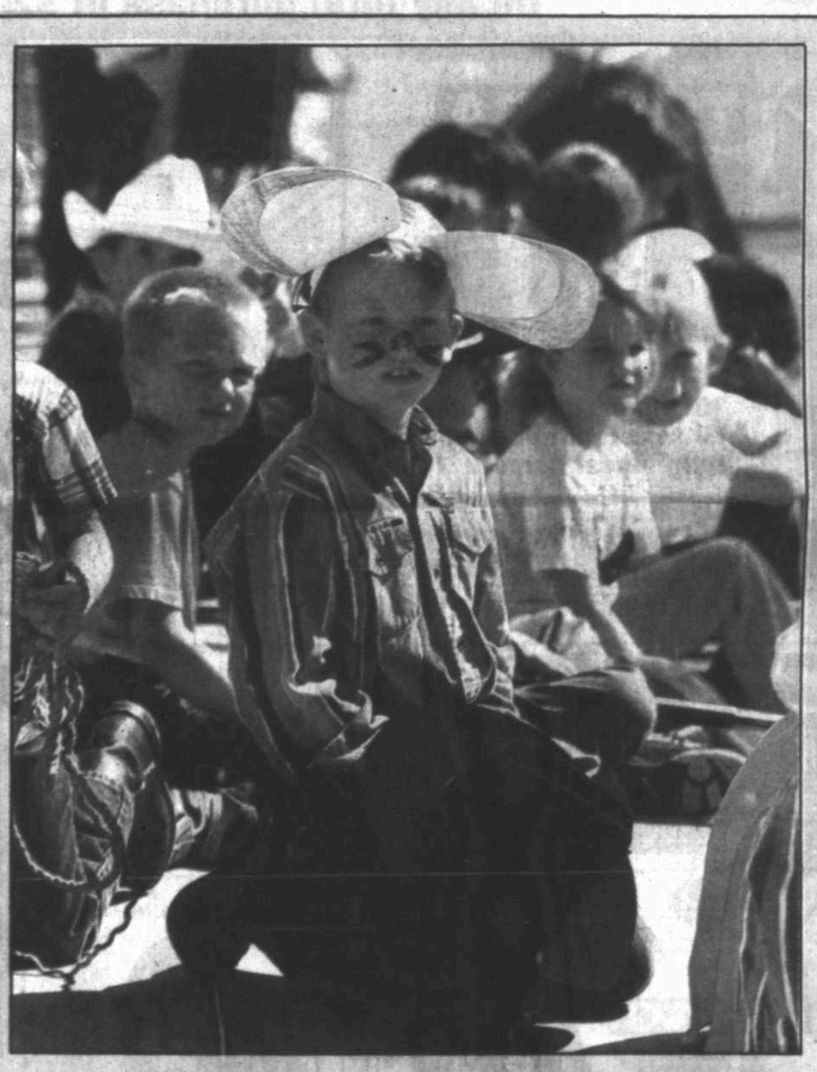

"This is actually Jeremy's last

House OKs finance plan for schools

■ Lawmakers pass measure 103-41, send bill to Richards.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Just days before a court deadline for school finance reform, the Texas House sent Gov. Ann Richards a plan Friday to give property-rich school districts several options for sharing some wealth with poorer ones.

Lawmakers broke into applause after voting 103-41 vote for the measure. It is meant to meet a Texas Supreme Court order to even out funding available to school districts with differing property wealth.

Missing Tuesday's deadline for passing a plan would have meant a court-ordered cutoff of state education aid. School districts rely on state funds and local property taxes.

"I feel real relieved," said House Public Education Committee Chairwoman Libby Linebarger, D-Manchaca. "I'm confident that it (the plan) is going to pass court muster."

State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Austin, who oversees the long-running school funding case originated by poor school districts, has scheduled a Tuesday hearing.

McCown has said he would presume a bill passed by the Legislature is constitutional, but the measure will be open to legal challenge. Leaders say they expect such a challenge, but they believe their plan will prevail.

"I can't provide anyone a 100 percent guarantee, but this is the most equalizing bill this Legislature has passed since this issue has been before us for 25 years," Ms. Linebarger said.

Richards also lauded the measure: "It's very difficult for me to see any

Craddick may lose GOP caucus post

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin bureau

AUSTIN — A former dissident member of the House Republican Caucus said recently "it would be almost a foregone conclusion" that Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland will be replaced as chairman of the group for the 1995 legislative session.

"I think that term limits being one of our party's perspectives, it would be almost a foregone conclusion that there will be a new chairman of the caucus next session," Rep. Jerry Yost of Youngview said in an interview.

Yost said that was something that "just evolved" during negotiations on changing the way the caucus elects its leaders.

"This is not in any way, shape or form an incrimination of Tom Craddick," Yost said in an interview.

He said any person elected chairman of the 58 House Republicans sometimes

Rusk's Field Day is new experience for blind girl

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

Winning was not the most important thing to one little girl at Rusk Elementary's Field Day Friday morning.

She was happy just to participate.

Claudia Rodriguez looked like any other 10-year-old taking part in the activities with one notable exception — she is blind.

Overcoming the obstacle has apparently been an easy task for this enthusiastic little girl who exudes happiness and energy.

Competing in four events, Claudia anticipated the competition for days ahead before she actually made her way to the playground.

Sharon Morgan, Rusk physical education teacher, said she was proud of Claudia and noted the wonderful attitude she displays.

Miami officer's retrial for shooting ends in acquittal

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A Miami policeman was acquitted Friday in a retrial for a black motorcyclist's 1989 shooting death, and scattered violence broke out in inner-city Miami neighborhoods. Police tried to keep it from turning into a repeat of the racial rioting that followed the slaying.

The jury also acquitted suspended officer William Lozano of manslaughter in the death of a motorcycle passenger killed when the cycle crashed. The 33-year-old Colombian-born officer had faced up to seven years in prison if convicted of both counts.

Police sealed off most of inner-city Miami amid scattered but persistent rock- and bottle-throwing, gunfire and other unrest in two predominantly black neighborhoods. No widespread violence was reported, however.

Lozano

In the Overtown neighborhood, hit by three days of rioting four years ago, a crowd attacked a police substation but was dispersed by 150 officers. Police fired tear gas on a group of youths throwing debris. Two television reporters said a mob attacked them in their car.

There were reports of sporadic looting in neighboring Liberty City, said Metro-Dade police spokesman Juan Del Castillo, and minor fires also were reported in the area. A rescue squad was pinned down briefly by sniper fire, but no one was hurt.

By early Saturday, Miami and Metro-Dade police reported at least 44 arrests on charges of disorderly conduct, inciting to riot or looting. Ten of those were accused of looting a Miami furniture store.

In Orlando, 230 miles north, the jury of three whites, two Hispanics and a black reached its verdicts after more than six hours of deliberations since Thursday evening. Circuit Judge W. Thomas Spencer had ordered the verdict sealed for four hours so police could deploy to possible trouble spots.

After the verdict was read in court shortly after 4:45 p.m., Lozano embraced two of his lawyers in a big bear hug and shed a tear. Many members of his family were in the courtroom, and they also cried.

Outside court, Lozano told reporters, "We do believe in the justice system and I'm very happy that I got my life back."

But Lozano's legal problems may not be over. U.S. Attorney Roberto Martinez immediately announced his office and prosecutors in Washington were reviewing the case for possible federal civil rights violations.

President Clinton's press secretary, Dee Dee Myers, said Clinton hasn't reviewed the issue yet.

In Miami, hundreds of police fanned out, moving squad cars to strategic intersections, and Humvees rolled on reconnaissance for riot-trained National Guardsmen standing by in an armory. Callers swamped rumor-control hot lines set up by police and community activists.

In Overtown, shouts of "Die Whitey!" could be heard on the streets after the verdicts, and some people warned white reporters to leave the area. Earlier, some warned reporters: "Leave, white man!"

Police helicopters hovered overhead in rainy weather.

Police sealed off two large sections of inner-city neighborhoods and blocked ramps off Interstate 95 and a state highway to prevent motorists from driving into troubled areas. Only residents were allowed in.

Officials canceled the Tampa Bay-Miami professional indoor football game at the Miami Arena, on the edge of Overtown. But a Florida Marlins home baseball game was being played in Miami.

"There's no justice here for us," said James Johnson, 44, chef of the Eddie's Fast Food restaurant on the street where the 1989 fatal shooting occurred.

"They should have held the trial right out here where he was shot," said Anthony Thomas, 34. "Everybody saw it."

Gov. Lawton Chiles said in a televised statement: "We don't have to agree with the verdict. But we have to accept it. This is the time for peace to prevail in our community."

"We don't want you out there violently protesting," said the Rev. Willie Sims, a civic activist. "We want you to protest peacefully.

"We want you to know the system has not worked for us," Sims said, turning toward television cameras. "We're not satisifed with that system."

Lozano's single gunshot killed Clement Anthony Lloyd, 23, who was driving a motorcycle. The resultant crash fatally injured Lloyd's passenger, Allan Blanchard, 24.

Lozano said the speeding motorcycle swerved to hit him and he fired to save his life.

Within an hour of the shooting, Overtown residents began pelting police officers and emergency workers with rocks and bottles.

Lozano was convicted of two counts of manslaughter in December 1989 and sentenced to seven years in prison. An appeals court ordered a new trial in 1991, ruling that the Miami jury was pressured by the possibility of more violence.

Soldiers place flags on graves at Arlington

By Cassandra Burrell
Associated Press writer

ARLINGTON, Va. — In the solitude of a graveyard row, Army Pfc. Sean McCarthy pressed his boot heel crisply against the white headstone, plucked a tiny flag from his backpack and pressed it into the ground exactly at the point of his toe.

Along with comrades in green fatigue uniforms, moving quietly amid the long lines of white grave markers, he trudged a few steps and started again with the same deliberate precision.

Two hundred thousand times over two hours the exercise was repeated at Arlington National Cemetery until a crisp, new American flag stood atop every grave.

"You've got to put the flags in in a particular way, and it's got to be right," Sgt. First Class Charles Abbington said as he supervised 38 of the 1,000 soldiers who participated on a summery Thursday evening.

It's a Memorial Day ritual that dates back to 1868, four years after the cemetery was established on Robert E. Lee's family property.

Between dawn and dusk of each of the next five days, the soldiers will recheck the cemetery every three hours to ensure that every flag remains standing. They will begin removing the flags at 4:45 a.m. Tuesday.

The Memorial Day weekend is the only time the cemetery's spotless graves of America's fallen servicemen and women, from the Revolutionary War to the Gulf War, can be decorated.

And the Army takes the task — dubbed "flags in" — seriously.

Each soldier is assigned a row, so his or her boot size can be used as the exact measure by which to place flags.

"That way the flags stay in line," Staff Sgt. Michael Childress

CareTeam Health celebrates 10th anniversary

Staff report

An open house reception — along with a ribbon cutting ceremoney — were held this week to help celebrate the 10-year anniversary for the CareTeam Health Care Services.

The reception honored the staff, patients and health care professionals.

The original founders of the organization, then called We Care Home Health, joined the celebration. The original founders were Jeanne Gilles, R.N., Mary Truex, R.N., Billie Ruppe, R.N., June Conway, R.N., Ruthe Owens, R.N., Jean Cooper, L.P.T., and Penny Sawyer, L.P.T.

In 1988, We Care was purchased by CareTeam Health Care Services, a nationally recognized company that provides a full spectrum of home health services, including nursing, home infusion services and medical equipment.

"CareTeam has developed specialty nursing programs, including pediatrics and AIDS," CareTeam Administrator Jan Rippee, R.N., said.

To commemorate the 10th anniversary, all future CareTeam patients, upon admission, will be presented a yellow rose bud vase, Ms. Rippee said.

CareTeam serves patients from Midland and Odessa, as well from other communities in the Permian Basin.

"CareTeam nurses and caregivers can provide personal grooming care, including help with meals, light housekeeping, transporting the client to see a doctor, all the way to providing specialized nursing for expectant mothers and cancer patients," Ms. Rippee said.

"Also, in the case of the orthopedic patient, someone recovering from back or neck surgery can benefit from not only having a little extra assistance mobilizing, but can actually receive post-operative pgysical therapy in the home."

Lotto players can use 'quick pick'

AUSTIN (AP) — To help mark today's first anniversary of the Texas Lottery, Comptroller John Sharp said lotto players now will be able to have a computer choose the six numbers for them.

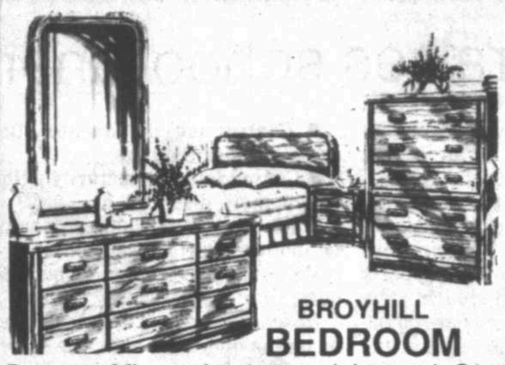

The so-called "quick pick" system will be available at more than 9,100 lotto retailers for today's $3 million drawing, Sharp said Friday.

"The long lines of players waiting to buy tickets for the recent $50 million jackpot convinced us that the time for quick pick had arrived," Sharp said.

Instead of marking six numbered squares on a playboard, a lotto player may ask the clerk for quick pick and a machine will choose the numbers, or the player can mark a playboard square designated "QP" for quick pick.

"Of course, those players who want to select their own six numbers can continue," Sharp said.

Today's high to reach 90

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for partly sunny skies with a high between 85 and 90, southeast winds 10 to 20 mph, and a 20 percent chance of afternoon showers, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low near 60 and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Sunday is expected to be mostly sunny with a high near 90.

Memorial Day should be mostly fair with a low in the lower 60s and a high in the upper 80s.

After an overnight low of 57, Friday's high was 8[illegible] compared with the record high for that date of 102 in 1974. The record low for today's date was 49 in 1992.

STATE

Swirls of spring weather were visible throughout the state Friday, with scattered showers in the north, calm in the west and even a funnel cloud in the south.

Clouds and rain, however, are expected to settle in over most of the state this holiday weekend.

Scattered thunderstorms dotted North Texas on Friday, with the most rainfall — about a half-inch — hitting Stephenville. Dry spots reported mostly overcast skies.

The clouds and chances for showers or thunderstorms were forecast for the area throughout the weekend, with lows in the upper 60s and highs possibly reaching the middle 80s.

Victoria police reported the funnel cloud near their city early Friday afternoon. It never landed, but showers and thunderstorms powered by an upper-level low-pressure system sprayed much of South Texas.

Gentle winds blew across the region, keeping conditions in the upper 70s and 80s.

Similar conditions are being predicted for the weekend, with clouds, scattered showers and thunderstorms likely today. Lows will be in the 60s and highs will be in the 80s.

A chance for thunderstorms in West Texas appeared headed eastward today and tonight as an upper-level disturbance approaches the region.

Temperatures, meanwhile, will be as low as the 50s and 60s with highs in the 80s and 90s.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Police arrest 3 on burglary charges

Staff report

BIG SPRING — Three people were arrested Thursday in connection with a series of home burglaries, police reported.

Tonya Wesley, 25, was denied bond for violation of probation but had a $100,000 bond set for burglary charges. Jerry Wayne Todd, 28, had bond set at $100,000 on burglary charges. Both remained jailed late Friday. A third person, Jamie Preston Turner, 23, posted a $2,000 bond, also on burlgary.

Police recovered an estimated $35,000 worth of stolen property at two residences and a storage area, according to reports. Items recovered included handguns, jewelry, video cameras and video cassette recorders.

Some property has also been located in Midland, Odessa, Lamesa, Lubbock, and Tulsa, Okla., police said. The arrest suspects may have been involved in burglaries in those cities as well, police said.

Police believe about 22 residential burglaries were planned and carried out by those arrested.

A Crimestoppers tip helped lead to the arrests along with the assistance of the Howard County Adult Probation Office and Southwestern Bell.

GOP: Craddick likely will be replaced as chairman has to do things out of necessity that will upset a few members.

Waiting to get 58 people who have different views on issues to all agree would take more time than allowed to get anything done, he said.

"Any chairman under those circumstances would have come under question," Yost said.

Craddick, one of the more conservative House members, founded the Republican Caucus and is the only one ever to serve as chairman.

Earlier this session, dissention threatened to spit the caucus, with from one-third to one-half of the members talking about a walkout.

Dissidents charged the conservative leadership was concentrated in too few hands, and the views of moderate and rural Republicans were not taken into consideration on policy decisions.

Yost said the unhappy members got most of the changes they wanted.

The major change is in how the caucus will select members of the policy board, which decides how Republicans will respond to legislative issues.

To achieve more diversity, the caucus will divide the state into nine regions, with each region electing a member to the policy board. The nine members then will elect a policy board chairman.

Craddick said he had told dissident members from the beginning that he favored that approach.

The caucus also will change executive committee membership to include the policy board chairman, along with the caucus chairman and vice chairman. Currently, the chairman appoints the caucus "whip" and communications director, and those officers also serve on the executive committee.

Yost said members agreed to revisit that issue in the future to decide if the whip and communications director, as appointed by the chairman, would be voting members of the top committee.

Yost said the changes should satisify "all but a handful of members, and therefore the caucus is somewhat whole again."

HOUSE: Richards praises school finance proposal

way in which this bill could not be viewed as constitutional," she said.

Others, however, criticized the plan and said lawmakers are risking another adverse court ruling. Three previous school funding plans have been ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

"You are running the risk of having a bill that's unconstitutional," said Rep. Dalton Smith, R-Houston, arguing against it. He called the measure a "pick-your-poison plan, with a hatchet at the end."

Friday's vote marked the end of legislative deliberations that went into overdrive following voter rejection on May 1 of an earlier school funding proposal.

The bill headed to the governor's desk is meant to ensure that none of Texas' 1,048 school districts has more than $280,000 in property wealth per weighted student. Students with special needs are counted as more than one pupil in the weighted system, to make up for the extra cost of educating them.

The 109 that exceed that level could choose among several options for giving away some wealth, including:

- Merging tax bases with one or more poorer districts;
- Sending money to the state;
- Contracting to educate students in other districts;
- Consolidating voluntarily with one or more districts; or
- Moving some taxable property to another district's tax rolls.

Voter approval would be required for the first three options.

If school districts don't choose an option under the plan, the state education commissioner would order commercial taxable property to be moved. If that wasn't enough, there would be forced consolidation.

The two-thirds margin of approval in the House, and earlier in the Senate, allows the bill to take effect immediately. That will permit school districts to have elections this summer on wealth-sharing options that require voter approval, Ms. Linebarger said.

Besides the new finance structure, the bill also includes other provisions, including regulatory-relief measures that are estimated to save school districts $300 million.

Rep. Steve Ogden, R-Bryan-College Station, credited Ms. Linebarger with building a consensus for the bill.

"It meets the Supreme Court requirement, but it has many elements in it that are important to conservatives," he said.

SPELL: Gengler to participate in national competition

(From 1A)

day of school," his mother Richelle Gengler said Friday. "He will have a couple of finals when he comes back."

The Genglers will accompany their son to Washington, D.C., today through June 5.

Ms. Gengler, a spelling whiz herself, was a speller on the three-member OXY-USA Inc., team that won Midland's Corporate Bee for Literacy in February.

Jeremy's maternal grandmother, Midlander Charlotte Popp, was also a county spelling champion in Kansas.

The eighth-grader also credits Goddard teacher Betty Nunley with "working a lot with me on language patterns and accents."

His diligence helped him to spell words including "intuitable, acclimatization, tensible, efficacy, nougat, aspartame, poltergeist, unhygienic, sanguinary, chiclero, zaibatsu and mostaccioli" in the regional spelling bee.

The honor student was also named to the National Junior Honor Society, the West Texas Honor Choir and he participated in the Duke University Talent Search.

Now, the teen-ager, carrying on the torch of several generations of spelling champs, will face off against 234 spellers from the United States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands and Mexico.

Goddard Principal Karen Wentworth presented her student with an travel diary and travel guide on Washington, D.C.

"We're very, very proud of him, for the second year in a row," she said.

"We know he will be great," Faircloth said.

"It's pretty cool," Jeremy said, admitting that he is even looking forward to "practicing spelling words on the plane."

The Reporter-Telegram, spelling bee sponsor, is paying for Jeremy's trip to the nation's capital.

Richards says she plans to hit campaign trail for Krueger

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards, who appointed Democratic Sen. Bob Krueger only to see him trailing Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison in the latest poll, Friday said she will hit the campaign trial next week.

After casting an early ballot for Krueger, the governor also said she believes he is the best choice for those concerned about abortion rights.

"I voted for Bob Krueger today, and I voted for him because I'm pro-choice," Richards said.

"We've got to have somebody in that Senate who is going to stand by us, who is going to stick with us come hell or high water on the issue of the right to choose," she said. "Bob Krueger's been solid on this issue all of his career."

Mrs. Hutchison, the state treasurer, has said she supports abortion rights before viability but that states should be able to enact some restrictions, such as notification of a minor's parents.

Her spokesman, David Beckwith, called Richards' comments "less than overwhelming" and said that "neither end of the abortion debate is happy with Kay's position, but her views are compatible with the vast majority of Texans."

Richards said she plans to start campaigning for Krueger as soon as the Legislature adjourns its current session on Monday. She said she plans trips to the Rio Grande Valley, Corpus Christi and San Antonio.

Krueger trailed Mrs. Hutchison, the state treasurer, by 19 percentage points, 54 percent to 35 percent, in a Dallas Morning News poll published this week. The two topped the May 1 special election balloting to advance to the June 5 runoff.

Richards said she's not worried about the polls.

"I am not feeling depressed or anything about this election yet," she said.

FLAGS: Graves are decorated for holiday said. "If you had two different guys doing the same row, one guy wearing a size 10 shoe and the other wearing size 9, then you'd have some flags sticking out an inch in front or behind the rest of them."

(From 2A)

If any flag falls, the soldier who placed it must return to raise it.

Flags also are placed in niches in front of the remains of soldiers who were cremated.

Across the Potomac River in Washington, the Army's 3rd U.S. Infantry, known as The Old Guard, also has been placing flags at the 14,300 graves at the Soldier's and Airmen's National Cemetery since 1948, the year the unit was declared the Army's official ceremonial unit.

"This is really our most important day of the year," said John C. Metzler Jr., the cemetery's superintendent.

Maj. Gen. John A. Logan, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, began the flag tradition 125 years ago.

Back then it was called Decoration Day, and soldiers scattered flowers and other items on the graves of dead comrades, Metzler said. Over the years, Army officials substituted flags.

About 230,000 servicemen and women and their relatives are buried in Arlington's 612 acres, but not every person gets a flag, Metzler said.

"We have a lot of graves where there's more than one person in it — husband, wife, dependent children and sometimes extended family members," he said. "So if there are four or five people buried in one grave, we only put one flag on it."

RUSK: Blind student 'inspiration' to others, teacher says

(From 1A)

Ms. Morgan said in order for Claudia to compete, some of the Field Day events were adapted to allow her to participate. The girl was active in "partner" events with two partners instead of just one. This allowed her to run, catch and play just like everyone else.

"The really neat thing is that these are all new experiences for her ... she gets to feel different things likes bats, tennis racquets and balls," Ms. Morgan said.

"It has been so much fun for her and she has been an inspiration to me and the other kids ... she laughs, she runs and she is just a ray of sunshine," Ms. Morgan said of her pupil.

She said the students have learned compassion through looking out for Claudia and being considerate of her.

But this student is making achievements in the classroom as well as on the playground.

She attends mainstream fifth-grade classes for mainly Spanish-speaking students. Yet another obstacle for Claudia to battle is the fact that she doesn't speak English. Plus, the youngster has only been enrolled in Midland schools for about four weeks and lives with her older sister.

As a pupil in Tina Leon's class, Claudia does all the same work as the other students as well as having one hour a day in special studies with an instructor for the blind.

In class she uses a Brailler, which works like a typewriter, in addition to a slate and stylus to complete her assignments.

Claudia has made a number of friends including Daisy Cano, who has assisted her in getting accustomed to her new surroundings, as well as being her partner in a number of the Field Day activities.

Daisy also interprets for Claudia and their P.E. instructor.

"I like to do it," Daisy said about why she helps Claudia.

She also explained why she and Claudia became such good friends.

"She's a happy person ... and she tells good jokes."

Claudia's teacher, Ms. Leon, said she was a little nervous and a little unsure about how having a blind student in her class would affect things. But, Claudia has blended in well working with the rest of the class.

Teaching Assistant Ann Perez said she too was a little scared of having a blind student, but she has changed her mind ... with Claudia's help.

Claudia has taught both the teachers and the students that impairments can be overcome with a good attitude.

"She is eager to learn ... she sets goals and works to accomplish them," Ms. Leon said. "I haven't seen her unhappy or upset since she has come here."

Ms. Leon added that Claudia has fit in well with the students and "the kids all love her and want to help her. She just makes us feel good."

"She has made all of use love her. She is always cheerful and is never in a bad mood," Ms. Perez said. "She touches your heart."

Business group offers program

Staff report

For the second year in a row, Junior Achievement is offering its "Economics of Staying in School" program to the English as a Second Language (ESL) students at Midland's Alamo Junior High School.

Junior Achievement brings volunteer business leaders into the classroom to share their business experience, to encourage children to stay in school and to help them understand America's economic system. Programs are offered at the second-, sixth-, ninth- and 12th-grade levels, reaching a culturally diverse group of 4,900 Midland students.

Alamo ESL students in Virginia Conner's classes have been involved in hands-on activities that stress the long-term benefits of a high school diploma and education beyond. One activity requires the students to determine what wages they might earn without a high school education, and prepare a personal budget.

Junior Achievement volunteers Elma Westphal and Joe Perales teach the classes in two languages. They counsel the students not to let their language barriers lead them to drop out.

Upcoming lessons for the Alamo classes include exploring careers, devising anti-drug advertising and acting out the roles of peer counselors and potential dropouts.

Police find rare metal at bank

VILNIUS, Lithuania (AP) — Police accidentally discovered that safety deposit boxes in a Lithuanian bank were stuffed with four tons of radioactive material, possibly waste from a Russian nuclear plant, officials say.

The 27 boxes were taken to a physics institute for testing Friday.

Bank officials insisted that employees and customers were in no danger.

Some boxes held up to 440 pounds of beryllium, a rare metal used as a moderator in atomic reactors. Authorities estimated it could be worth up to $12 million.

Police said they found the material by Monday, when the Innovation Bank in downtown Vilnius received a bomb threat.

During a security check, the bomb squad detected unusual radiation in a first-floor storage area, opened a box and found the silver-white metal.

Parker & Parsley, Union Pacific reach agreement

Staff report

Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co. announced Friday it has entered into a settlement agreement with Union Pacific Resources that is expected to settle all outstanding litigation between them.

Pursuant to the agreement, Parker & Parsley has agreed to sell to Union Pacific all of its interest in a natural gas plant located in Carthage and in certain related gas distribution and pipeline facilities for a net amount of approximately $43 million.

The purchase price is to be $15 million in cash and a $28 million unsecured note amortizing over seven years. The note is subject to a conversion agreement whereby Parker & Parsley may designate assets to be purchased for Parker & Parsley by Union Pacific Resources and the purchase price applied to the reduction of the note amount and any unpaid accrued interest.

The effectiveness of the settlement agreement is conditioned upon the other minority working interest owners joining in the settlement agreement. Parker & Parsley anticipates that such condition will be fulfilled shortly and the closing of the sale is expected to occur on or about June 30.

Parker & Parsley expects that, during the quarter ending June 30, for financial accounting purposes the transaction will result in income of approximately $15.4 million, a portion of which will constitute gain from the disposition of assets and the remainder of which will constitute net revenues attributable to the gas plant that were deferred since the beginning of 1992 pending the outcome of the litigation.

The gain on the sale of the plant combined with the recognition of deferred net revenues will increase net income per share during the second quarter by approximately 37 cents.

UTPB honors Employee of the Year

Staff report

ODESSA — Mary Yarbrough, computer systems analyst at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, was selected at the school's Employee of the Year during the recent Annual Classified Employee and Service Awards Program.

Ms. Yarbrough, who has been employed at the university since 1983, received a $500 cash prize, gift certificates from local restaurants and items from the University Bookstore.

A committee composed of faculty and staff members made the final selections from the list of 24 nominees submitted by university personnel.

Other finalists for the award were Cynthia Cruz, Tony Ruiz, Anita Voorhies and Patsy Williams. They each received $125 and gift certificates from local restaurants.

Also, 10 employees were honored for years of service. They were: Five years — John Gomez, Kelly McMahan, Monica Parrish, Gerald Redman, Tony Stringer and Keith Yarbrough; 10 years — Mike Chavez, Bobby Moore and Medardo Rodriguez; and 20 years — Hope Barton.

Department of geology receives grant

Staff report

ODESSA — The department of geology at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin has received a $10,000 grant from Burlington Resources Foundation, representing Meridian Oil Inc. of Midland.

Burlington Resources Foundation awarded a similar grant to the department in 1991.

Paul Shukis, manager of geosciences at Meridian, presented the check to Emilio Mutis-Duplat, professor and chairman of geology at the university. Also on hand for the presentation were geology faculty members James Reeves and Daniel Womochel.

Funds from the grant will be invested in the support, maintenance and improvement of the facilities for geological field work in the Llano region (Mason County) of Texas.

The department of geology at UTPB granted its first bachelor of science degree in 1974. The first master's degree in geology was granted in 1984.

House approves resolutions for victims of AIDS

AUSTIN (AP) — A glimpse of the toll that AIDS is taking on Texas was offered Friday when the House approved more than two dozen resolutions honoring people who have fallen to the disease.

The resolutions were offered by Rep. Glen Maxey, D-Austin, the state's only openly gay lawmaker.

Some were for people who served on the board of directors of AIDS Services of Austin. At least dozen were good friends, Maxey said, "including three of my closest, best friends.".

All died of complications related to acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

"This is not a political message," Maxey said. "I did it . . . to commemorate the lives of people who were very special to me."

School graduates last senior class

LUBBOCK (AP) — Final exams and locker cleanouts proved dismal tasks Friday at Dunbar-Struggs High School.

Dunbar, a historically black school that has anchored its neighborhood for 70 years, is being made a junior high as part of a final step to desegregate the Lubbock Independent School District.

Students who attended Dunbar must transfer in the fall to three of the LISD's four remaining high schools.

"It's been emotional," said Lori Nava, 18. "One of my friends said, 'Let's not discuss this. Let's change the subject.'"

"You have to get on with life. But I won't let go of what I've learned here," Barry Buckaloo, 16, said. "I've learned self-worth, how to be a winner."

The last day of school brought hope that Dunbar reborn as a junior high will foster the pride and tradition East Lubbockites fear they're losing.

In 1991, when the desegregation plan was up for federal approval, some residents blasted it as educationally unsound and racially insensitive. Dunbar supporters held candlelight vigils, signed petitions and filed reams of court papers emphasizing Dunbar's role as a community cornerstone.

"The wounds have not healed," acknowledged Principal Virgil Johnson, himself a Dunbar graduate.

"People are still upset and still disappointed because it's a viable high school," said school board trustee Kathyl Anderson.

LISD officials remained convinced, though, that Dunbar's dwindling enrollment and high cost-per-student made some kind of change unavoidable. A citizens' committee endorsed the junior high proposal.

"I'm proud of Dunbar . . . and the work that's gone on there," said Superintendent Mike Moses.

Minority leaders to closely watch second selection

FORT WORTH (AP) — Jury selection in the second trial of an avowed white supremacist will be closely watched by minority leaders who protested the defendant's first sentence in the slaying of a black man.

But a professor said Thursday there's no guarantee "that a jury has to look like America."

Robert Dawson, a law professor at The University of Texas, and other legal experts said U.S. Supreme Court decisions will make it difficult for Christopher William Brosky's defense attorneys to exclude black jurors.

But the experts said State District Judge Bill Burdock will control the jury selection process and decide resolution of the issue they called one of the most troubling in American criminal law.

In March, an all-white jury that convicted Brosky of murder in Donald Thomas' shotgun slaying assessed 10 years' probation, sparing him from a prison term. More than 10,000 people marched in protest on the Tarrant County Courthouse.

Brosky, 18, of Dallas faces a second trial on state conspiracy and organized crime charges stemming from Thomas' 1991 slaying.

Minority leaders said the next jury must reflect Tarrant County's racial makeup, which is about 12 percent black and 11 percent Hispanic.

"There's no way in the world we would have had that sentence if there were African-Americans on the jury," the Rev. Michael Bell told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram this week. "It wouldn't have happened."

He and Harry Gudger, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's Arlington chapter, said blacks' opinion of the second trial will hinge on jury composition.

Defense attorneys Ward Casey and Ernie "Earl" Bates struck the only two potential black jurors from the panel in Brosky's first trial.

"It isn't us objecting to minority jurors," Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry said.

State District Judge Everett Young, who presided over Brosky's first trial, let the strikes stand because he said the only other solution would have been to dismiss the entire panel and select another jury.

Federal and state laws are still evolving on how judges should deal with such situations, said Assistant District Attorney Alan Levy, chief of the criminal section.

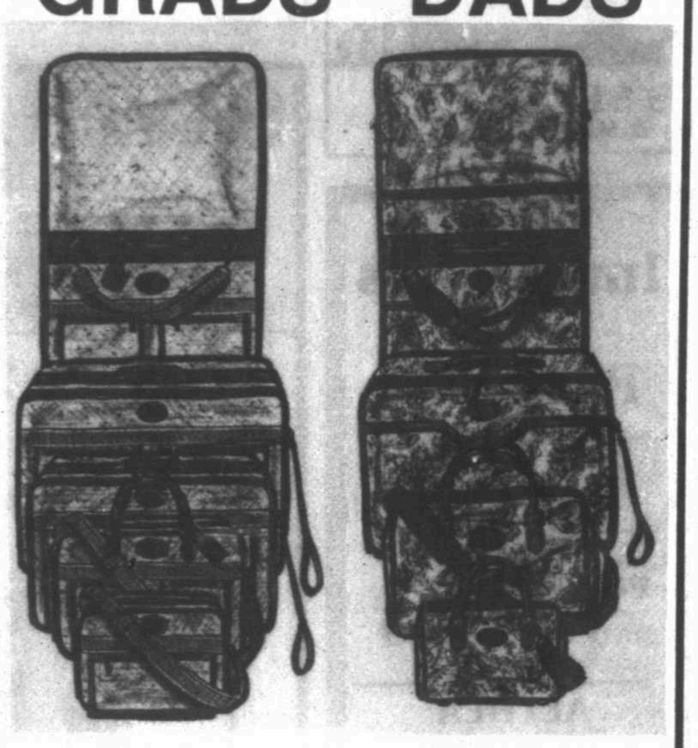

Minority leaders, following the first trial, criticized prosecutors and the jurors, some of whom said they intended to give Brosky a five-year prison term but were confused by court forms.

Prosecutors who agreed to plea bargains for two other white supremacists in the case said the three assailants picked Thomas as a random victim because he was a black man socializing with white friends.

Legal experts say disputes over racial makeup of juries have repeatedly faced state and federal appeals courts in the past several decades.

The Florida retrial of suspended Miami police officer William Lozano on manslaughter charges in the deaths of two young black men was moved five times.

Three toy store hostage-takers face charges in two other robberies

EL PASO (AP) — Three men accused of taking hostages following a bungled toy store holdup are facing charges in two other robberies, including one that netted the bandits a large cache of firearms, police said Friday.

The three, who have been in custody on aggravated robbery charges since Wednesday's hostage situation at a Toys R Us, have been rebooked on robbery charges stemming from holdups at a Furr's supermarket and an Oshman's Sporting Goods earlier this year, said police Capt. George DeAngelis.

Bond has been set at $220,000 each for Fabian Gutierrez, Jorge Rivas and Giovanni Novella, DeAngelis said.

The men also remain under investigation in a series of robberies, including more in El Paso and about eight in Arizona and New Mexico. El Paso police met Friday with a Las Cruces, N.M., police detective to discuss the case.

"I'm sure this investigation is still in its infancy, so to speak," said DeAngelis. "And I think the more we dig and the more communication we have with more jurisdictions we might uncover even some more robberies."

DeAngelis said most of the roughly 69 weapons seized at Rivas' home hours after the standoff at the toy store had come from the Oshman's robbery last month.

"We're working with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms trying to trace the others," he said.

During the Oshman's robbery, armed bandits, who were described as "polite and articulate," entered the store, ordered employees into the basement and handcuffed them. The bandits used walkie-talkies to communicate.

They took an undisclosed amount of cash and at least 50 firearms.

The Oshman's holdup was similar to others committed during a robbery spree in Phoenix, Tucson and Albuquerque and elsewhere in New Mexico.

The robbery was interrupted by police, beginning a more than 3-hour standoff.

Tape: Cult leader defends actions

Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — In a conversation recorded a month into the 51-day standoff near Waco, Branch Davidian leader David Koresh defended his actions during the Feb. 28 shootout with agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

In a telephone interview taped by Houston attorney Dick DeGuerin on March 28 and made available exclusively to the Houston Chronicle, Koresh said federal ATF agents came "cocked and locked" out of the cattle trailers in the moments before the raid on the compound near Waco, Texas.

"I don't care who they are," Koresh said. "Nobody is going to come to my home, with my babies around, shaking guns around, without a gun back in their face.

"That's just the American way."

Koresh, who said he suffered two gunshot wounds in the battle with more than 100 ATF agents, also told DeGuerin he planned to surrender after his health improved and after he was satisfied that federal agents would not plant evidence inside the compound.

"Once I do go out of here, I want to go out walking," Koresh said. "Once we leave the premises here and they come in, I'm just so concerned they are going to twist everything up so much. They're just going to — nothing being illegal here — they're going to put something illegal here."

The Houston office of the ATF did not return several phone calls on Thursday requesting reaction to the tape.

During the hourlong interview, DeGuerin repeatedly encouraged Koresh to surrender before more bloodshed occurred.

"Let's get this into court and get this in court safely, let's get you to survive this," DeGuerin said. "The bottom line is, we will be able to get a jury of people that don't have any preconceptions."

DeGuerin also offered his help in ending the standoff.

"I'll be happy to come in there and walk out with you," he said.

The telephone interview was the first conversation between Koresh and DeGuerin, who was hired to represent the Branch Davidian leader by Koresh's mother, Bonnie Haldeman. DeGuerin later spent several hours inside the Mount Carmel compound talking with his client.

In contrast to other interviews and public statements made by Koresh, in this recorded conversation he did not discuss his religious beliefs, concentrating instead on surviving the standoff. Koresh also expressed irritation with the suggestion by some government officials that he and his followers were considering suicide.

"That's not even sane, it irks me," he said.

In all, four ATF agents and six Branch Davidian members were killed in the Feb. 28 raid. On April 19, after a 51-day standoff, agents used tear gas in an attempt to force the Branch Davidians to surrender. Instead, the compound erupted in flames, killing Koresh and more than 70 other people inside. Nine people survived.

DeGuerin said the interview has not been turned over to federal authorities.

The Houston attorney said he decided to make Koresh's comments public because he believes the government is conducting "a massive cover-up, a whitewash" of its actions and Koresh wanted his story to be told.

"The attorney-client privilege survives death, but you judge the privilege by what the client wants done," DeGuerin said.

Although Koresh sounds tired and weak during most of the interview, he often appears agitated by comments federal officials made to the news media.

His anger becomes most apparent when discussing the initial raid.

"They said we were throwing grenades at them. I mean, for crying out loud, what is this stuff?

Comal County hopes to calm river riders

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — With its foul-mouthed inner-tube drunks, marijuana smokers and occasional nude exhibitionists, the Guadalupe River got a solid X rating last summer.

But Comal County officials promise the popular river will be suitable for general audiences this year. The first test comes this Memorial Day weekend, the start of the summer season.

"We want people to be gentlemen and ladies. If they do that, they'll have no problems," Sheriff Jack Bremer said. "And when it gets to the point where a family feels comfortable bringing their children and grandchildren to the river, we'll be happy."

The New Braunfels Chamber of Commerce expects more than 100,000 tourists in town this weekend. Recreationists converge on a stretch of the rolling Guadalupe River for tubing, rafting and canoeing.

For law officers, the Memorial Day weekend traditionally is busy and sometimes fatal.

Europeans contemplate trade war with U.S.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Community is considering returning fire in a possible trade war with the United States.

The EC may retaliate against the U.S. for its decision to bar the awarding of $19 million in government contracts to European companies, officials said Friday.

The 12-nation trading bloc was considering slapping its own sanctions, worth roughly $15 million, on American firms doing business in Europe, they said.

The community's executive agency was expected to draw up a list of measures, possibly early next week, and submit it to foreign ministers for approval at a meeting June 8 in Luxembourg.

Leon Brittan, the community's trade chief, said late Thursday: "The United States cannot expect us to ignore wholly unjustified action of this kind."

Although the dispute brought strong threats, it covers relatively minor slice of the $200 billion worth of trade each yea between the U.S. and European Community.

The dispute stems fron new EC rules that discriminate against American companies in the award of government contracts.

The two sides in early April reached a partial settlement in the fight when EC negotiators agreed to waive regulations favoring European companies in government contracts for heavy electrical equipment. The United States said the move would open a $20 billion European market to U.S. firms.

The Clinton administration, in turn, agreed to lift "Buy American" restrictions on purchases by the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Department of Energy's five federal power marketing administrations.

The negotiators, however, failed to settle a similar fight over EC rules that favor European firms in purchases of telecommunications equipment.

Croatia's Goran Ivanisevic slumps to the Paris clay surface before falling in his third-round match against Carlos Costa.

■ Second-seeded Jim Courier survives a brief scare, but No. 5 seed Goran Ivanisevic does not in Friday action at the French Open.

By David Crary
Associated Press Writer

PARIS — Two-time defending champion Jim Courier overcame inspired underdog Jeff Tarango Friday to reach the fourth round of the French Open, while fifth-seeded Goran Ivanisevic became the latest victim of upset wave.

Courier lost a set for the first time in three matches — he won the title last year while losing one set in seven matches — and had his hands full with Tarango, a fellow American ranked 75th in the world, before winning 6-1, 6-7 (7-2), 6-3, 7-5.

"I don't think Jeff can play any better on clay than he did today," Courier said.

No. 1 seed Pete Sampras won his suspended second-round match with ease. He'd taken the first set 7-5 late Thursday, and swept through next two sets 6-0, 6-3 today against South African Marcos Ondruska.

Ivanisevic, rattled by repeated errors, dropped his third-round match to Carlos Costa 2-6, 6-2, 7-5, 6-3, leaving

Tighter corners mean trouble

INDIANAPOLIS — The start could be the finish for some of the 33 drivers in Sunday's Indianapolis 500.

"This is going to be the most difficult start in years, I'm sure," said Arie Luyendyk, the 1990 race winner who will start from the pole.

■ Indianapolis 500

John Andretti, who will start on the outside of the eighth row, said the elimination of the 15-foot aprons in the four turns of the 2½-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway have made circling the track "like driving down an interstate and turning into an alley."

Squeezing through that alley, perhaps 1½ lanes wide, will be 11 rows of speeding cars, three abreast.

"This year," said 20-time Indy starter Gary Bettenhausen, "we have a very narrow groove and everybody has to get in line single file or they aren't going to fit. It's going to be like a funnel."

The pole-winner controls the pace of the start and Luyendyk, starting from the inside of the front row for the first time in his Indy-car career, has been giving his role a lot of thought.

"It was important to start up front anyway," the Dutchman said. "You know I have to dictate the pace and I'll do my best to dictate it in a fashion that I'll get into turn one first. I don't really want to win the race on the first lap, but I'm going to try to take advantage of the situation. And if I don't go into turn one as the first one, it's no big deal. We've got another 199 laps to get there."

Luyendyk, who owns the race record of 185.981 mph, likes to get into the lead and set a fast pace. So does Mario Andretti, the 1969 winner and longtime Indy star who will start

Closing the door on a career

■ After 41 years in coaching, Alamo Junior High's Leonard Boyd says 'watching kids develop into great athletes' has been one of his greatest joys.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

After 41 years, Alamo Junior High athletic chairman Leonard Boyd has coached his last team, but he's leaving in style.

Boyd is hanging up his coaching trademark Panama hat for retirement, but he leaves with the Midland-Odessa eighth grade conference football championship with an undefeated 8-0 team. And you can also mix in the Midland-Odessa eighth grade track championship to boot. All in his final year, closing a career that has served West Texas and Midland well.

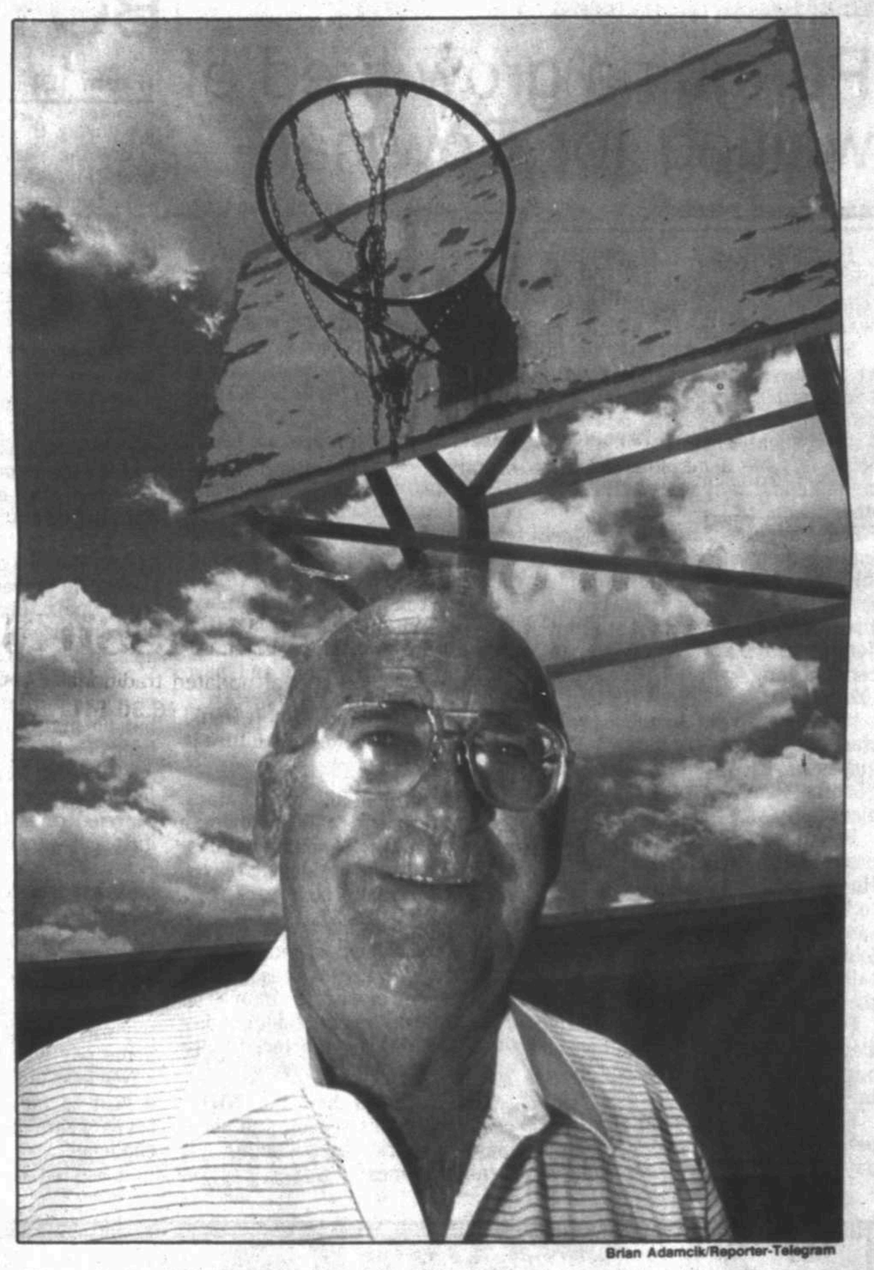

"Well, it's a nice way to leave," Boyd said. "I'm going out the only way there is to go out — on top. We've had some great success here at Alamo the past 12 years."

He leaves behind a football legacy to follow, recording a 170-29-6 record over the 205 junior high games he has coached while feeding players to both Midland Lee and Midland High.

"One of the great joys I've had over the years has been watching these kids develop into great athletes," Boyd said. "I love to watch both of our local high schools play and see the kids that we coached grow up on the field. In fact, I plan to stay on as the press box host for both schools this next season."

And Boyd has coached a few great athletes over the years, including 10 state champions in track, one of which was Midland High discus star David Simmons, who won one of the two state championships recorded by District 4-

Aggies eliminate No. 24 Lamar

Big first inning propels UT over McNeese State, 7-4

COLLEGE STATION — Eric Gonzalez and Scott Smith each knocked in two runs in Texas A&M's six-run fifth inning Friday as the Aggies rallied for a 10-5 victory over Lamar in an NCAA Central I Regional game.

The Aggies trailed 5-3 before getting seven straight singles in the deciding inning.

No. 2 A&M (50-9) will play the winner of the UCLA-Hawaii contest at 11 a.m. Saturday. The 24th-ranked Cardinals (44-18) were ousted from the double-elimination tournament.

Sophomore lefthander Trey Moore (12-0) gave up nine hits and five runs for A&M while striking out nine and walking two. It was only the second time Moore has pitched nine innings.

Moore struggled in only two innings, giving up two runs in the third and three in the fourth before a 22-minute rain delay.

Robert Lewis was 3-for-5 for the Aggies.

The Aggies opened the tournament with a 13-1 bouncing of Yale that extended into the wee morning hours Friday.

Texas 7, McNeese St. 4

AUSTIN — Marcus Hendry hit a three-run homer as Texas scored all its runs in the first inning of a 7-4 victory over McNeese State in an NCAA Central II Regional game Friday.

The homer was the first this season for Hendry, who added a single and a walk after getting only 14 at-bats in 60 regular season games for top-seeded Texas (47-14).

The Longhorns will face the winner of Friday night's Southern California-Kentucky game on Saturday afternoon. Sixth-seeded McNeese State (37-22) will play Maine at noon Saturday.

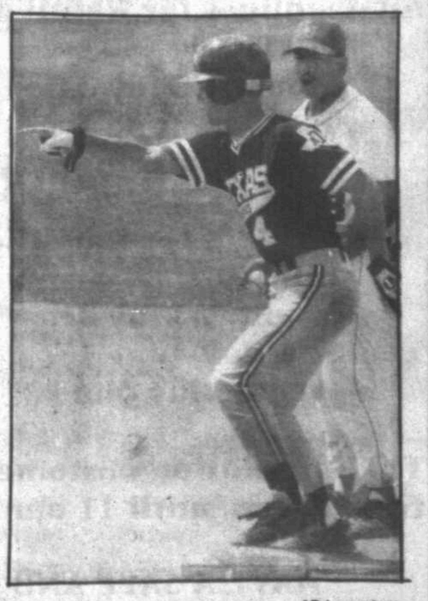

Scott Hiers led an eighth-inning Cowboys rally with a two-run double off Texas reliever Chad Smith that trimmed the Longhorns' lead to 7-4.

But J.D. Smart replaced Smith and shut down McNeese. He earned his second save.

Texas' Jay Vaught (7-3) pitched seven innings, allowing nine hits and two earned runs, for the victory.

Jason Gunter (7-4) lasted only two outs before being removed in the first. He was tagged for all seven Texas runs.

Cooper takes 6-0 victory

ABILENE — Abilene Cooper earned a 6-0 victory over Grapevine here at Cooper Field Friday, taking a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three regional semifinal baseball playoff.

Cougar pitcher Jimmy Frush (11-3) pitched a complete-game shutout, allowing three hits.

The victory sends Cooper, the last remaining District 4-5A team in the playoffs, to 24-9 for the season. Grapevine dropped to 20-10-2. Game 2 of the series is set for noon today at Grapevine's field. Game 3, if necessary, will follow 30 minutes later.

The Mustangs are now 23-8 for the season, while Arlington Heights is now 19-11. Games 2 and 3, if necessary, are set for today here. The day's opener will see a noon first pitch, and then Game 3 will follow if Arlington Heights wins that affair.

FRENCH: Only 3 of top 8 men's seeds remain only three of the top eight men still in the field.

The Croatian opened strongly, but by the third set was slamming his racket on the clay in disgust as Costa, an unseeded Spaniard, capitalized on his mistakes.

Only Sampras, No. 2 seed Courier and No. 3 Stefan Edberg have survived out of the top eight seeds.

In women's play, Iva Majoli, a 15-year-old Croatian competing in only her second Grand Slam, upset No. 15 seed Sabine Hack to move into a fourth-round clash with top-seeded Steffi Graf.

Majoli, the youngest player in the tournament, breezed through the first set against Hack, then held off a comeback bid by the German to triumph 6-0, 7-6

Graf, the favorite in the absence of defending champion Monica Seles, beat Laura Gildemeister of Peru 6-2, 6-2. Graf beat Majoli earlier this year in their only previous match.

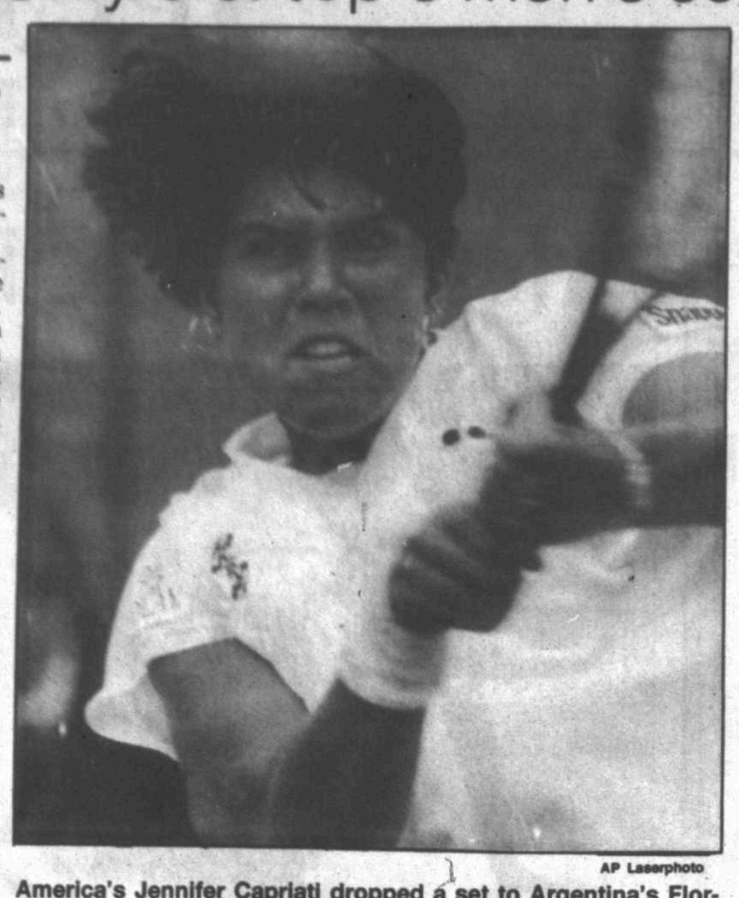

"I look forward to playing against Steffi," said Majoli, who trains in Florida with Nick Bollettieri. "I don't think I'm going to be nervous. ... We'll see who's going to play better."

Tarango, clearly enjoying his impressive play against Courier, even stopped by the railing during a game to sign an autograph for a youngster.

"I was having a great time out there. I thought I was playing great," he said. "I play best when I'm having fun."

Tarango said Courier would be difficult to beat on clay, but was enthusiastic about the prospect of a Sampras-Courier final.

"You'll probably see the best tennis match ever," Tarango said. "They don't have any holes. There are going to be a lot of great shots."

America's Jennifer Capriati dropped a set to Argentina's Florencia Labat before advancing to the fourth round.

Courier said he was not troubled by playing a second straight match on Court Two, only the fourth-largest arena at the Roland Garros complex.

But Tarango said the court assignment "took a little bit of the luster" away from the match.

"I wanted to play on the biggest court in the whole world," he said.

Also winning third-round matches were fourth-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain, 6-0, 7-5 over Italy's Natalia Baudone; sixth-seeded Jennifer Capriati, 6-0, 3-6, 6-4, over Argentina's Florencia Labat; No. 8 seed Anke Huber of Germany, a 6-1, 6-2 victor winner over Patricia Hy of Canada, and 12th seeded Mary Pierce, a Canadian who lives in Florida and plays out of France, who had a 6-7 (7-4), 6-3, 6-3 victory over Kimberly Po.

Pierce, who will play Capriati in the fourth round, won after her father was ejected by security guards early in her match for disturbing play with his yelling. Jim Pierce is his daughter's coach and has a reputation for pressuring her intensely.

France's 13-seeded Nathalie Tauziat disappointed the center-court crowd, losing 6-3, 7-6 (7-5) to Austrian Judith Wiesner, who had never before reached the fourth round here.

In men's third-round matches, ninth-seeded Michael Stich of Germany and 15th-seeded Thomas Muster of Austria recorded straight-set victories.

Stich beat Richard Fromberg of Australia 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 and Muster beat Brad Gilbert 7-5, 6-2, 6-4.

Unseeded Goran Prpic of Croatia won 6-3, 6-4, 7-5 over Bernd Kalbacher, the German on who ousted 1989 champion Michael Chang on Thursdar. Along with Chang and Ivanisevic, the high-seeded losers include Ivan Lendl, Boris Becker and Petr Korda.

Penguins grow tired of waiting for Bowman

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Scotty Bowman wanted to weigh his options. The Pittsburgh Penguins didn't want to wait.

So the Penguins will have another coach — their eighth since 1983.

Bowman's two-season stint as Penguins coach ended abruptly Friday when the NHL's winningest coach left an offer on the bargaining table and said he would talk to other teams.

The Penguins immediately rescinded their offer and said the only way Bowman would return is as the team's player development director or as a consultant, positions he held before replacing cancer-stricken coach Bob Johnson in 1991.

"We have to get somebody who wants to coach this team," Penguins owner Howard Baldwin said. "Scotty was clearly looking elsewhere."

Bowman left Pittsburgh and could not immediately be located. He was believed to be driving back to his home in Buffalo, N.Y.

A day earlier, Bowman said at least two other teams wanted to talk to him about coaching, although he would not name them.

One of them is believed to be the Detroit Red Wings, who said previously they would consider Bowman, if available.

Red Wings owner Mike Ilitch asked Bryan Murray on Wednesday to relinquish his coaching job and remain as general manager. Ilitch said the team needed "a coach who isn't afraid to lay down the hammer," a description that fits Bowman.

Bowman reportedly wanted a raise from his $350,000 salary with the Penguins and more of a say in running the team. General manager Craig Patrick would not disclose the package the Penguins offered.

Bowman was strictly a bench coach last season, coaching the team during games, but leaving the practices to his assistant coaches.

His 969 regular-season and playoff coaching victories are an NHL record. He has said he wants to remain behind the bench and pass the 1,000 victory mark.

Bowman said Thursday it would be a few weeks before his future is settled.

"I haven't had any real contact, except a phone call," Bowman said of his other coaching options. He said he was considering traveling for interviews next week.

Bowman won his latest Stanley Cup as the Penguins' interim coach during the 1991-92 season after Johnson died of a brain tumor. The Penguins waited until opening day of the 1992-93 season before finally naming Bowman as coach.

The Penguins had the NHL's best record this season and set a league mark by winning 17 straight games.

BOYD: Storied career comes to a close

(From 1B)

5A during the 1980s.

But the very best, Boyd says, was University of Texas All-American Scott Appleton.

"When I was at Brady in the '50s, we had a junior high record of 88-8-3 with Appleton, Dan Gandy, who is now head coach at San Angelo; and Ken Bode, who is the defensive coordinator under Gandy. But Scott was the best I ever saw.

"Appleton played on my eighth grade team for three years, starting when he was in the sixth grade and we went 30-0. By the time he signed a pro contract with the Houston Oilers, Scott had played football 11 years and had only 11 losses, and two of those were bowl losses. He played for Brady in the state finals three times, winning one, and also made it to the semifinals in his other year."

Boyd has been at all levels of coaching during the past 41 years, but no matter what level he has been, he has tackled the job.

"I'll never forget my first coaching job at New Castle in 1952. I got married (to wife Mary Jo) in August and went to work on September 1. I was a line coach in football, head basketball coach, girls volleyball coach, the junior high football coach and head coach of the junior high and varsity track," Boyd said. "I did that for the grand sum of $500. My teaching pay was $2,405 a year and my take home pay was $198 a month."

Needless to say it took Boyd only a year to move on to Brady for seven years before taking on a challenge.

"I wanted a challenge and (San Angelo) Lakeview seemed like a good one," Boyd said. "They had a 17-game losing streak in football when I went there in 1960 as offensive and defensive coordinator. I brought the Brady offense and defense with me and we were 5-5 in 1961 and won the first football district championship in the history of the school in 1962. That was one of the greatest thrills in my career. But we also scored more points that year in the district track meet than they had previously scored in the entire history of the school."

Boyd also served as an assistant football and head track coach at both Fort Stockton and Seminole.

While at Seminole, he was elected to serve on the first Texas High School Coaches Association track advisory committee, a position he held for two years. Former Midland High track coaches Ed Nixon and Johnny Williams later served on that committee.

Boyd came to Midland High under Dennie Hays as an assistant football coach in 1978 and was also an assistant track coach where he guided Simmons to the state discus championship in the early '80s. He joined Alamo in 1980 and became the athletic chairman in his second year.

Boyd also played three sports in college, playing football, basketball and track at both Ranger Junior College and Daniel Baker College, which is now Howard Payne.

"I played on the last two sets of teams at Daniel Baker before it became Howard Payne," Boyd said. "I tried to do a little of everything."

Things didn't change much down the path of the next 41 years. He's retiring, but not leaving.

"We'll still be in Midland," Boyd said. "I'm laying off one year, at least, but I may go back and teach a few classes after that. The thing is I have to find something to do. I'll drive Mary Jo crazy at home if I don't."

Seattle's Ricky Pierce (22) drives by Phoenix's Dan Majerle during the first quarter of Friday's NBA game in Seattle.

Suns bench comes alive

By Jim Cour
AP Sports Writer

■ NBA Playoffs

SEATTLE — The Phoenix Suns once again have the homecourt advantage in the Western Conference finals, although whether or not they need it is debatable.

Despite a sub-par performance from Charles Barkley, the Suns got a dominant performance from their bench and a key 3-pointer from Dan Majerle in a 104-97 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics on Friday night.

Phoenix leads the best-of-7 series 2-1, with Game 4 set for Sunday in Seattle.

"This stuff about difficult buildings is all hype," Danny Ainge of the Suns said. "We played our best game of the series. That's why we won against a great team on their homecourt."

"We read all about this 'not-in-our-house' stuff that the Sonics have been saying," Cedric Ceballos added. "But we're the best road team in the NBA."

The Suns, who had the best road record in the NBA this season, are now 4-2 on the road during the playoffs and 5-3 at home. The Suns earned the homecourt advantage throughout the postseason by posting the best regular-season record in the NBA.

"The homecourt advantage doesn't mean anything unless we win on Sunday," protested Suns coach Paul Westphal.

Majerle's 3-pointer with 37 seconds left gave the Suns an insurmountable 103-96 lead after Seattle had mounted a comeback from a 12-point fourth-quarter deficit.

Kevin Johnson scored 20 points and Barkley had 16 points and 16 rebounds, but the most critical scoring statistic was bench production. Phoenix's reserves, led by Ceballos' 14 points, outscored Seattle's bench 45-11.

"I think we took Seattle's depth as a challenge and, obviously, we got very good play from our bench," Kevin Johnson said.

Eddie Johnson, Seattle's top scorer off the bench during the regular season, continued to play horribly in the playoffs. In 14 minutes, he was 0-for-6 shooting and committed four turnovers.

"Eddie is very capable of going 6-for-6," Sonics coach George Karl said. "I'll go down with Eddie."

The Suns opened the fourth quarter with a 12-0 run for a 92-80 lead as Frank Johnson hit a 3-pointer, a 20-footer and a 17-footer for seven of the points.

But the Sonics came back with a 9-0 run that included a 3-pointer by Sam Perkins to cut the lead to 94-91 with 5:22 left.

Pierce got Seattle within 97-95 with two free throws with 2:46 to go, but after Barkley missed a 15-footer with 2:25 left, Gary Payton missed badly on an 18-foot attempt.

Kevin Johnson made a free throw with 1:50 to go after being fouled by Payton and Barkley scored on a put-back of Johnson's miss on his second free-throw for a 100-95 Phoenix lead with 1:48 left. Those were Barkley's only points of the second half.

"It's great when I don't have to play spectacular for us to win," Barkley said after his 7-for-20 shooting performance.

Seattle outrebounded Phoenix 55-38 but the Suns outrebounded the Sonics 10-9 in the fourth quarter. Barkley had seven rebounds in the last quarter.

When Majerle swished his 3-pointer 71 seconds later, the fans at Seattle Coliseum started heading for the exits.

"We could have won without Dan's shot but it gave us the cushion," Westphal said.

Majerle finished the game with only 10 points but he had six of them in the fourth quarter.

"My game is rebounding and defense," Majerle said. "So I don't get frustrated by my offense."

Trailing all the way in the first half, the Sonics took the lead at 61-59 1:16 into the second half on a dunk by Kemp after he stole a pass by Kevin Johnson and dribbled the length of the floor.

The Sonics led 78-74 with 2:11 left in the quarter, but the Suns scored six straight for an 80-78 lead before Derrick McKey scored on an offensive rebound as time expired in the third quarter to make it 80-80.

Game 5 of the series is Tuesday night at Phoenix with Game 6, if necessary, to be played next Thursday night at Seattle.

Bulls should put up or shut up

Tired of media questions, team imposes gag rule

By John P. Lopez
N.Y. Times News Service

CHICAGO — If the Chicago Bulls jump out to a quick lead tonight (Saturday) against the New York Knicks — say, 16-10 — will Michael Jordan hit, or stand?

At the same time, will the Knicks hit, or punch? Or mug?

And just when can we expect results from the local telephone poll asking the pressing question, "Should Michael Jordan have gone to Atlantic City the night before Game 2 of this Eastern Conference final"?

Questions, questions, questions.

They are abounding in this incredibly scrutinized, immensely intense series between the two-time defending NBA champions and the aspiring hopefuls from New York.

Some of the questions even have had something to do with basketball, which may or may not take center stage at Chicago Stadium at 2:30 today when the Bulls, trailing 2-0 in the best-of-seven series, try to finally ... e out the Knicks.

"It's been crazy," Bulls forward Scottie Pippen said, referring to the media frenzy surrounding Jordan's trip to the blackjack tables in Atlantic City Monday night.

So crazy has the media flood been that after Friday's practice, the Bulls boycotted the media for a day in protest of ... well, everything.

"The main thing was Michael being treated unfairly," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said, "but it's been an accumulation of a lot of things."

All of the Bulls players will be fined by the NBA, but Jackson said they believe it will be worth it if the Bulls can do their talking on the court.

Still, in the three days since losing Game 2 and in the aftermath of Jordan's trip to a casino, the Bulls have made their feelings clear to the world.

Said Jordan: "You can't take it another step and make me look like I'm totally not responsible to my team and to the situation we're in. I know exactly what we're in, but I have to do what I have to do to get my mind away from the game."

Last Monday, that meant hiring a limousine and heading to Atlantic City with his father and a few friends.

Jordan tried to clear up the issue Thursday afternoon by explaining that he did not roam Bally's Grand casino until 2:30 a.m., as was reported, and he did indeed get a full eight hours sleep before the 96-91 loss in Game 2 Tuesday night at Madison Square Garden.

Elsewhere, Jordan's trip was the subject matter for five local columnists, was the lead story on the local television news and the brunt of countless jokes.

Jordan's favorite defense? Doubling down. Where does Jordan shop? 7-11.

"It's aggravating," Jordan said. "I'm anxious to drop all this and play."

But maybe a few more of the Bulls could stand to go out and roll the dice for a while before today's game.

After all, Jordan did score 36 Tuesday night after the trip to Atlantic City.

And as usual, he kept the Bulls close until the fourth quarter, while big men Horace Grant, Scott Williams and Bill Cartwright struggled and Pippen was ejected after throwing the ball at an official.

In fact, the biggest problem for the Bulls has not been Jordan at all — although he obviously hopes to improve on 37 percent shooting.

The problem has been the Knicks' apparent intimidation, particularly inside, which is the other hot topic of the series.

With practically every Bulls possession through the first two games, someone has walked away with a bruise or two.

Patrick Ewing, Charles Oakley, Anthony Mason, Charles Smith and John Starks of the Knicks have adopted an aggressive style and doubled it, tripled it, against the world champs. Finesse be damned.

Chicago has yet to respond, at least not on the floor.

New York has built a 93-62 rebounding edge through two games and has shot 53 percent from the field, while limiting the Bulls to 43 percent.

Knicks guard Greg Anthony has been fined $5,000 for a flagrant foul on Jordan, Oakley has shoved Cartwright to the ground — a no call — and Anthony has planted a hard elbow into Cartwright's chest.

"We don't ever talk about (aggressiveness) as a team," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "That's our game. If our opponents are looking for it, they're actually conditioning their own minds."

Knicks try winning without big names

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Los Angeles Lakers won back-to-back NBA titles with Magic Johnson, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and James Worthy as All-Stars. The Boston Celtics hung 16 championship banners, all with at least two All-Stars leading the way.

In fact, only four of the last 30 winners in the NBA Finals have had less than two All-Stars.

This year, the New York Knicks are trying to buck that trend, with just Patrick Ewing, fourth in the Most Valuable Player balloting, selected as an All-Star this season.

"Patrick is the hub of the wheel," coach Pat Riley says. "He is quote-unquote 'The Great One' on this team."

Riley, however, had several hubs when he coached the Lakers to four titles in 1980s, including 1987 and 1988 with Abdul-Jabbar, Johnson and Worthy. He said those two teams were well established after dominating the decade, while the Knicks have just started developing around Ewing.

"The younger contributors, guys like John Starks or Anthony Mason, are probably a year or two away from developing into stars," Riley said. "Role players usually aren't selected as All-Stars. Guys like that establish their territory through winning. Recognition follows that."

Riley's point is confirmed by history.

Of the four championship teams that had just one All-Star, all four had two or three the following season. Rick Barry of Golden State, the 1975 winner, was joined by Jamal Wilkes the next year; Elvin Hayes of Washington (1978) was joined by Bob Dandridge in 1979; Isiah Thomas (1989) was joined by Detroit teammates Joe Dumars and Dennis Rodman in 1990; and Michael Jordan (1991) had Scottie Pippen as a fellow All-Star in 1992.

But if the Knicks beat the Bulls in the Eastern Conference finals and go on to win the NBA title, their chances of having two All-Stars next season are slim.

The most likely future All-Star, Starks, has attracted attention during the playoffs, especially for his defensive work on Jordan. But while often spectacular offensively, Starks lacks the consistency needed for All-Star attention, and he would have to jump over several guards — Reggie Miller, Drazen Petrovic, Jeff Hornacek — who just missed making it this year.

The reason the Knicks are serious championship contenders without a roster of All-Stars is simple.

All-Stars — Rodman is a rare exception — usually make their reputations with offense, and the Knicks are making their reputations with defense.

"Playing the way they do is the only way they can win," former Knick Gerald Wilkins of Cleveland said. "And they know it. Take away their physical play, all the junk they do, and they can't win.

"When I was there last year, we knew we were outmanned. We'd do whatever it took to win. The bottom line in the whole thing is that no one gets a layup. Period. No one gets a layup."

"You look at their lineup and wonder how they won 60 games," Charlotte point guard Muggsy Bogues said. "They don't have too many offensive sparks besides Patrick and Starks. But on defense, they don't allow you to take it to the hole for easy shots."

That warrior mentality is epitomized by Ewing, whose impressive offensive statistics are matched by his toughness.

"This is a tough team led by a tough, tough man in Patrick Ewing," veteran guard Doc Rivers said. "Pat is the toughest man I ever met. He has an intensity on the court that gets to you. You feed off it or get out of the way."

Rivers and Riley also speak up for Ewing's leadership qualities, which they say are overlooked because of his quiet nature.

"People think he's quiet, but he speaks up when we need it," Rivers said. "He's the first guy who speaks up when we're having a bad practice."

Houston's Eddie Taubensee (6) hits a two-run home run against the Florida Marlins Friday night.

Young loses 19th straight

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Anthony Young tied a Mets record with his 19th straight loss, and the Cincinnati Reds made manager Davey Johnson's return to Shea Stadium a successful one with a 5-2 victory over New York in 10 innings.

Young (0-5) relieved Dwight Gooden to start the 10th, and an error by third baseman Howard Johnson set up three runs.

Young's losing streak is the longest in the majors since Craig Anderson set the Mets record by dropping the last 19 decisions of his career from 1962-64. The major league record for consecutive losses is 23 by Cliff Curtis of the Boston Braves from 1910-11.

Cecil Espy's RBI double off Young and pinch-hitter Juan Samuel's two-run single off Paul Gibson gave Johnson another victory in New York.

Johnson is the winningest manager in Mets history, having gone 595-417 in 6¼ seasons. He was fired by the Mets in May 1990, and named Reds manager on Monday.

Johnson had been back at Shea Stadium for only one official visit since his dismissal, returning two years ago for an old-timer's game. He got polite applause from the crowd, signed some autographs and shook hands with familiar fans and security guards.

Dodgers 7, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Los Angeles won its 10th straight game as Pedro Astacio pitched seven shutout innings to help the Dodgers beat the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The winning streak is the longest in the majors this season, and the Dodgers' longest since a 10-game run from April 20-30, 1980. They won 11 straight in 1976. At 24-22, LA is two games over .500, a season high.

Pirates starter Randy Tomlin (2-5) left his second consecutive start with inflammation in his left elbow. Tomlin was pitching for the first time since May 17, when he was forced from a win against the New York Mets after facing one batter in the sixth. He left Friday's game while pitching to his second batter in the sixth.

Astacio (3-3) allowed five hits in seven innings. He walked two, hit a batter and struck out six.

After getting four hits and one run in the second, the Dodgers turned four hits into four runs in the sixth. Brett Butler led off with a double and stole third.

Jose Offerman, who's 19-for-38 with runners in scoring position, singled off Mark Petkovsek to drive him in. Eric Davis hit an infield single and Tim Wallach chopped a double to left. Cory Snyder's infield grounder scored the fourth run. Offerman and Davis also stole second in the inning.

Braves 7, Giants 4

ATLANTA — Ron Gant drove in five runs with a three-run homer and two-run double as the Atlanta Braves beat the San Francisco Giants.

Gant hit a three-run homer in the third inning, his 11th of the season, and added his two-run double in the fifth. Gant had a four-hit game for the sixth time in his career.

David Justice hit his 12th homer in the first with one man on base.

■ NL Roundup

Both homers came off John Burkett (7-1), who had his career-high seven-game winning streak snapped. Burkett had given up only three homers in 71 2-3 innings going into the game.

Despite getting 16 hits, it was the third loss in a row for the Giants, whose NL West lead over the Braves fell to three games. Atlanta had nine hits.

Steve Avery (5-2) won his fourth consecutive decision. He gave up 10 hits, walked one and fanned two in five innings. Mike Stanton, the fifth Atlanta pitcher, got the final three outs for his major league-leading 18th save in 19 opportunities.

Gant's homer came after Deion Sanders opened the third with a double and Terry Pendleton walked with one out.

Cardinals 3, Padres 2

ST. LOUIS — Pinch-hitter Mark Whiten's two-run single capped a three-run, eighth-inning rally as the St. Louis Cardinals busted out of a batting slump to beat the San Diego Padres.

Andy Benes had a shutout going and was within five outs of becoming the National League's first eight-game winner before the Cardinals scored for the first time in 20 innings.

Ozzie Smith and Gregg Jefferies started the eighth with singles and Smith went to third on Todd Zeile's flyout to deep right to chase Benes. Rich Rodriguez (2-3) walked Ray Lankford to load the bases and Luis Alicea singled up the middle for a run before Whiten, in his first pinch-hit appearance of the season, singled on a 1-2 pitch to put the Cardinals ahead.

Whiten had started all of St. Louis' previous 45 games before getting a day off.

The loss was the Padres' eighth straight on the road and their fifth in a row overall. Phil Clark hit his second home run and had two doubles for San Diego.

Phillies 15, Rockies 9

DENVER — Darren Daulton and Wes Chamberlain each hit home runs and the Philadelphia Phillies held on to beat the Colorado Rockies 15-9 Friday night with 20 hits.

The Phillies, with the best record in the majors, set a season-high in hits and runs en route to beating the Rockies, who, at 14-34 have the worst record in the majors. Daulton had two hits and drove in four runs.

Ben Rivera (3-2) pitched six-plus innings and struggled for the Phillies. He gave up nine hits and six runs. Tim Mauser, in his major-league debut, entered in the seventh.

The Phillies scored four runs on three hits in the first inning off Butch Henry (2-6), including a two-run homer by Daulton, his 12th. Philadelphia added a run in the third on Chamberlain's RBI single.

Rivera opened Philadelphia's six-run fourth inning with a single and scored on John Kruk's double. The Phillies scored two more on a double by Daulton and the Rockies replaced Henry with two outs and one on. Henry gave up 10 hits and nine runs in 3 2-3 innings.

Reliever Andy Ashby then gave up a run-scoring double to Pete Incaviglia and a two-run homer to Chamberlain.

The Rockies scored two runs each in the seventh and eighth innings to get close.

Clemens breaks slump, 2-hits Texas

Yankees Key holds White Sox to three hits in 4-0 NY win

Associated Press

BOSTON — Roger Clemens allowed two hits and struck out 11 in eight innings Friday night to break out of his Fenway Park slump and lead the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Clemens (6-4), who had lost seven of his previous eight decisions at home, allowed only a single by Rafael Palmeiro in the second and an RBI triple by Ivan Rodriguez in the seventh.

Jeff Russell pitched the ninth for his 12th save.

Andre Dawson singled in two runs for Boston in the first and Billy Hatcher hit a two-run homer in the fourth. All the Red Sox runs came off Roger Pavlik (1-1).

The only Texas run came when Palmeiro reached base with two outs in the seventh on an error by first baseman Mo Vaughn, and Rodriguez followed with a shot off the center-field wall. Billy Hatcher slammed into the wall trying to make the catch and was removed from the field on a cart.

Hatcher had a mild concussion and was listed as day-to-day after being examined by team physician Arthur Pappas.

Clemens allowed the Rangers to hit only six balls out of the infield. It was the 54th time he has struck out 10 or more.

Clemens had been in what he described as a "mini-slump," having lost three of his previous four games and failing to reach the seventh inning in his last two starts — both losses at home. He had allowed 13 runs on 15 hits in 10 2-3 innings in those losses, with eight walks and seven strikeouts.

That led to questions about the strength of his right elbow, in which he had a pulled muscle earlier in the season. But he answered those questions emphatically against Texas.

Clemens twice struck out the side, the 79th and 80th times he has accomplished that in his career. He struck out Rodriguez, Dean Palmer and Gary Redus in order in the fifth, and got Doug Dascenzo, Jose Canseco and Palmer in the seventh.

Palmer struck out three times. Redus and Canseco fanned twice.

Yankees 4, White Sox 0

NEW YORK — Jimmy Key pitched a three-hitter for his second shutout of the season as the New York Yankees defeated the Chicago White Sox.

Key (5-2) gave up three singles and allowed only one runner beyond second base. He struck out nine and walked one.

The Yankees scored all their runs in the first inning off Kirk McCaskill (2-5).

Dion James led off with his first homer of the season, and Jim Leyritz added a two-run shot with one out. Kevin Maas and Matt Nokes walked with two outs before Spike Owen singled home Maas to finish McCaskill.

Don Pall worked 5 1-3 innings in relief for the White Sox and allowed only four hits.

Chicago's most serious threat came in the fifth when Lance Johnson and Carlton Fisk singled with two outs. But Key struck out Ozzie Guillen to end the inning.

Twins 7, Indians 6

MINNEAPOLIS — Chuck Knoblauch scored from third base on a passed ball by Cleveland catcher Lance Parrish in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving Minnesota a victory over the Indians.

With runners on second and third and no outs, reliever Eric Plunk attempted to intentionally walk Kirby Puckett. His first pitch sailed high and to the right of Parrish, who got his glove on it but couldn't prevent it from going back to the screen. Knoblauch, who had started the rally with a single off Ted Power (0-2), scored easily.

Trailing 6-4, the Indians tied it in the ninth when Rick Aguilera gave up RBI singles to pinch-hitter Thomas Howard and Kenny Lofton.

Aguilera (1-0), who got the victory despite blowing his second straight save opportunity, gave up a one-out double to Jeff Treadway. Felix Fermin then reached on an infield hit, and Howard's high popup fell in front of second baseman Chuck Knoblauch, who lost the ball in the Metrodome roof.

Terry Jorgensen led off the sixth inning with Minnesota's first hit off Matt Young, igniting a five-run rally that gave the Twins a 5-4 lead.

Young, who had allowed only a walk through five innings, failed to retire any of the four batters he faced in the sixth, when the Twins sent 11 hitters to the plate against four Indians pitchers.

Brewers 5, Royals 1

MILWAUKEE — Cal Eldred pitched a four-hitter as Milwaukee beat Kansas City for its third straight victory — the Brewers' longest winning streak of the season.

Eldred (6-5) allowed one run on four hits, struck out eight and walked one for his first complete game of the season.

Kevin Appier (5-4), who had a personal three-game winning streak snapped, allowed four runs on eight hits in 6 1-3 innings.

The Brewers took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on Kevin Reimer's bases-loaded single.

Darryl Hamilton and Bill Spiers opened the inning with consecutive singles and Greg Vaughn drew a one-out walk to load the bases. Reimer then snapped an 0-for-13 slump with a two-run single to left.

Kansas City, which had won three straight, cut the lead to 2-1 in the fourth. Felix Jose extended his hitting streak to eight games with a leadoff single. Jose stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on George Brett's one-out RBI groundout to short.

Spiers' bases-loaded single in the seventh put Milwaukee in front 4-1. John Jaha and Bill Lampkin singled, and Hamilton walked with one out to load the bases. Spiers followed with a two-run single to left.

Reimer led off the eighth inning with his seventh homer to make it 5-1.

Athletics 3, Blue Jays 2

OAKLAND, Calif. — Ed Sprague's wild throw in the eighth inning, Toronto's fifth error of the game, allowed Oakland to score the go-ahead run in a victory over the Blue Jays.

The five errors tied a season high for Toronto, which dropped its third in a row.

With the score tied 2-2 in the bottom of the eighth, Kevin Seitzer singled off Danny Cox (4-1) with two outs and went to second when catcher Pat Borders misplayed Mike Bordick's bunt. Seitzer scored when Lance Blankenship hit a grounder to third baseman Sprague, who threw wildly to first.

Toronto tied it 2-2 in the top of the eighth on an RBI single by Darnell Coles. The hit scored Paul Molitor, who had singled and stolen second.

Oakland starter Bobby Witt (5-2) gave up seven hits and two runs in eight innings. Rick Honeycutt got the final three outs for his first save.

Toronto starter Pat Hentgen, a converted reliever who joined the starting rotation April 17, gave up two unearned runs on six hits in 6 1-3 innings. He also had a career-high six strikeouts.

The Athletics took advantage of a defensive collapse by the Blue Jays to take a 2-1 lead in the fifth. With two outs, shortstop Alfredo Griffin booted Blankenship's grounder for an error, and Blankenship went to third on an error by first baseman John Olerud.

Toronto scored a run in the third when Roberto Alomar hit a two-out triple, Molitor walked and Olerud singled.

Owners give formal approval to TV deal

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baseball owners overwhelmingly approved their new contract with NBC and ABC on Friday, a deal that cuts national broadcast revenue in half and shifts the league championship series to regional television.

The vote, taken during a 50-minute conference call, was 13-1 in the National League and 12-1 in the American League, well above the majority necessary in each league. The New York Mets and Boston Red Sox opposed the deal, and the New York Yankees abstained.

The six-year contract, which creates a joint venture to replace a $1.057 billion, four-year deal with CBS, calls for an expansion of the playoffs to eight teams in 1994 if approved by the Major League Baseball Players Association.

"While we acknowledge the existence of public concerns over parts of this package ... we are confident that in the long run, with better promotion, these innovations will increase our fan base and add to the strength of our game," said Milwaukee Brewers president Bud Selig, chairman of the ruling executive council.

Philadelphia Phillies president Bill Giles, a member of the owners' television committee, estimated national broadcast revenue would drop from $401 million this year to about $200 million in 1994, a decrease from $15.4 million per team to about $7.1 million. The expansion Colorado Rockies and Florida Marlins begin sharing national broadcast revenue next season.

"In the short term, we will be taking a tremendous hit in central fund distribution," said San Diego Padres chairman Tom Werner, chairman of the owners' television committee.

The contract, agreed to May 7, calls for 12 regular season games to be broadcast regionally with no local broadcasts allowed to compete. ABC will show a Saturday night game following the All-Star break next season, followed by two Monday night games and three Saturday night games. NBC then will show six Friday night games. The two networks will alternate the All-Star game, playoffs and World Series, showing the playoffs regionally.

"Regionalization is designed to create a better telecast," ABC Sports president Dennis Swanson said. "We'll be able to show action out of both games. If we get a blowout in one game, we've got the other game there."

Networks didn't want to televise afternoon playoff games following a 37 percent ratings decline from 1985 to 1992. Baseball officials didn't want to shift those games to cable, which currently reaches about 60 percent of the nation. They also ruled out the possibility of pay-per-view during this deal.

"There will always be fans of baseball who will have a desire to see every game," NBC Sports president Dick Ebersol said. "But it's our hope that regionalization will put such strength back into the TV package that some years down the road, all kinds of possibilities will open up."

Owners will discuss playoff formats June 16-17 when they meet at Denver. Donald Fehr, executive director of the players' association, said the union has been approached informally about the new television deal, but hasn't been given anything definitive to examine. The deal will take effect without the added playoffs if the union doesn't agree.

"I don't consider today's vote to have any great significance at all," Fehr said. "I think it was a given from the start."

Some large-market clubs who televise nearly all games objected to the deal because they will have fewer games to sell to local broadcasters. They preferred a CBS counteroffer worth about $120 million a year for two seasons.

"We had some concerns about the overall package from both a fan standpoint and equitability standpoint from our club," Mets general manager Al Harazin said. "It will mean less broadcasts in our market for our fans."

Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said in a statement that he was upset the deal was agreed to "without sufficient study."

Instead of paying a rights fee, the ABC-NBC deal will create a joint venture in which baseball and the two networks will contribute $10 million each in startup costs. Baseball will receive 87.5 percent of the net advertising revenue up to $160 million, with each network getting 6.25 percent. Between $160 million and $190 million, baseball and each network get 33 percent each. Baseball gets 80 percent of the money above $190 million and each network gets 10 percent.

Clearwater scorches course, trails

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Fulton Allem turned back a record-setting performance by Keith Clearwater and established a one-stroke lead Friday in the storm-delayed second round of the Colonial Invitational.

Allem birdied the final hole from 25 feet to cap off a 63 and set a tournament record of 11-under-par 129 over the first 36 holes.

■ PGA Colonial

"Conditions were absolutely perfect. They couldn't have been better," the South African said.

And Clearwater took even greater advantage of the course robbed of its natural defenses by gentle breezes and greens slowed and softened by a day-long series of showers.

He birdied the last seven holes — a string stopped only because he had reached the end of the round and just one short of the PGA Tour record — for a 61.

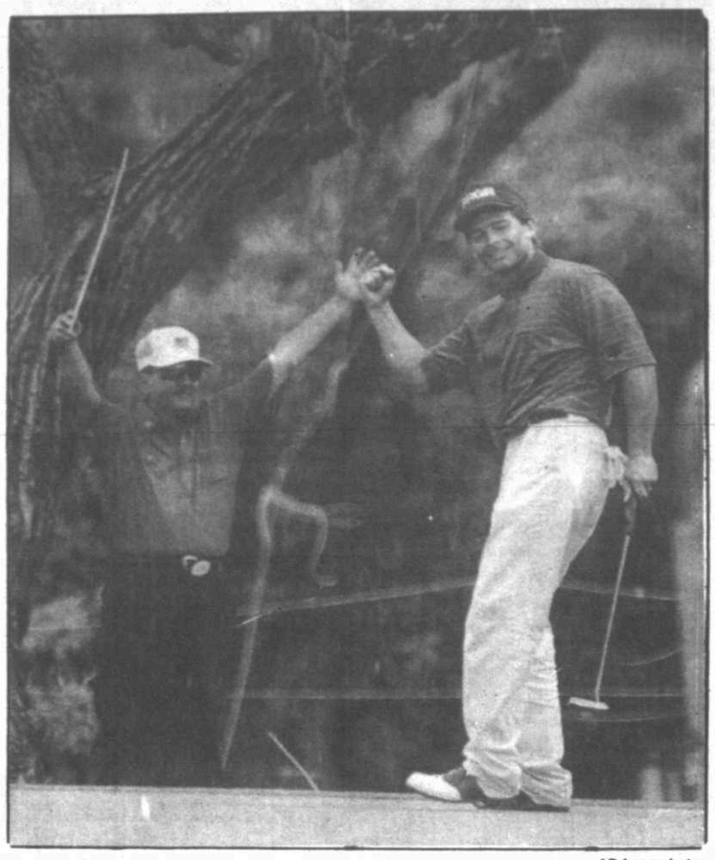

That's a course and tournament record and a score that has been bettered only 10 times in the history of the American tour, a pair of 59's by Al Geiberger and Chip Beck, and eight scores of 60.

"Anytime you shoot a very low score, it's attributable to the putter," Clearwater said.

His effort was no exception.

He made made putts totaling 144 feet on the last seven holes — an average of more than 20 feet a putt.

And his memory was at least as good as his putter, which, beginning on the 12th hole, produced birdies from 20, 25, 45, 12 and 4 feet, a tap-in from inches after a wedge on 17, and then closed the round with a 40-footer.

Keith Clearwater fired seven straight birdies Friday.

There was not the slightest hesitation when he was asked the last time he had putted so well.

"Six years and two days," came the immediate response. That was in 1987 when he won this tournament with a pair of 64's in the double-round wind-up.

With a 132 total, however, he trailed both Allem and first-round leader Dick Mast, who eagled the first hole for the second consecutive day, shot 66 and was a stroke off the pace.

The group at 133, one behind Clearwater, included U.S. Ryder Cup captain Tom Watson, Australian Greg Norman, lefty Russ Cochran, Mark Calcavecchia and Jeff Maggert.

Watson, Norman and Calcavecchia each shot 64, Cochran had a 67 and Maggert 68.

Allem, whose only U.S. victory came in Houston in 1991, has finished fifth, seventh and 11th in his last three starts and said he has regained focus, feel and intensity he had in 1986.

He won 14 tournaments around the world — including eight on a secondary circuit in South Africa — that year and brought his game to the United States the following season. He now lives in Florida.

"I knew I'd come back," Allem said. "I'm mentally back into the focus mode, letting golf take over my life as it should."

Allem birdied three of the par-3 holes, dropped a 20-foot sand shot for another one, played the front side in 31 and took the lead alone with a long, downhill putt on the final hole.

Play was held up for 1 hour, 45 minutes by a late afternoon thunderstorm that kept the late finishers on the course until early evening.

Pair of eagles gives Robbins LPGA lead

Associated Press

■ LPGA Corning

CORNING, N.Y. — Kelly Robbins had two eagles in a 4-under-par 68 Friday to take sole possession of the lead after two rounds of the LPGA Corning Classic.

Robbins, who started the round in a three-way tie for the lead, has a 36-hole total of 138, one stroke in front of Hiromi Kobayashi of Japan, who also shot a 68.

Alison Nicholas had a 71 and was next at 141.

Robbins, 23, is in her second year on the LPGA Tour, while Kobayashi, 30, is in her fourth. Neither has won a tournament.

Robbins began the round on the 10th hole of the Corning Country Club course and had a good back nine, despite missing the green on three of her first four holes.

"I was a little concerned I was going to have a very long day," she said.

Robbins collected birdies on Nos. 15 and 16 and added eagles on 2 and 5, both par-5s, on the front nine. Her tee shot headed out of bounds on 4, but hit a tree and bounced back into play. Her next shot went into the sand and she made bogey.

Robbins eagled 2 with a 15-foot putt and made a 4-footer on 5. On 9, her tee shot did go out of bounds, but she made a 12-foot putt to save bogey.

"After going out of bounds, you're always happy to get bogey," she said.

Kobayashi had six birdies and two bogeys.

With gusting winds making play difficult, Kobayashi said she was only trying to make par.

"It feels like this week I have luck," she said.

Robbins' career-best finish was at last year's Corning Classic, where she tied for sixth. Kobayashi tied for fourth at this year's Sara Lee Classic.

Tina Barrett and Maggie Wills each shot 67 Friday, the best round so far in the 72-hole, $500,000 tournament.

Veteran Lynn Adams had a hole-in-one on No. 3, the first of her career and the second of the tournament. Kobayashi had a hole-in-one on 11 on Thursday.

Cathy Johnston-Forbes, who began the day tied for the lead with Robbins and Allison Finney, shot a 73 to fall five shots off the lead, one shot better than Finney.

Defending champion Colleen Walker, who started the day two shots off the lead at even par, shot a 74.

Trevino's 67 good for five-shot lead

■ Senior NFL Classic

CLIFTON, N.J. — Lee Trevino, looking for his first victory in more than a year, shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday for a share of the first-round lead in the $850,000 NFL Golf Classic.

Rocky Thompson and Don Bies, who has won six times on the PGA Senior Tour, were tied for the lead as a calm day yielded 28 sub-par rounds on the 6,816-yard Upper Montclair Country Club course.

"I think this is as easy as we're going to see this course," said Trevino, whose game is finally starting to round into form after surgery in December to repair torn ligaments in his left thumb.

Trevino, whose last victory came on May 20, 1992, said he isn't feeling any extra pressure to break the lead.

"When I came on the Senior Tour three years ago I said I was going to give my heart and soul here," Trevino said. "I wanted to win the money title, and I wanted to be player of the year."

Trevino has done all that in three years and now he says he is enjoying golf.

"I'm just smelling the flowers a little," said Trevino, who had seven birdies and two bogeys. "I want to win as much as anybody else. I have no pressure. I'm not after any more awards. I'm just trying to play as best as I possibly can."

Trevino had a chance to win last weekend in the Bell Atlantic Classic in Malvern, Pa. He had the lead with six holes to play and finished third.

Trevino played the front nine four under par and then gave shots back with consecutive bogeys on 12 and 13, where he missed the green. A 12-foot birdie putt at 14 got him to three under. He then finished his round with a 20-foot birdie on the par-3 17th and a 6-footer on the par-5 finishing hole.

Bies, who finished second earlier this year in the GTE Suncoast event in February, played the back nine in 32, rolling in consecutive birdies from 11 through 14. He bogeyed 16 after a bad chip but chipped in for a birdie on the next hole.

Thompson was six under heading to 17. However, his tee shot went into the left bunker, he chipped up and missed his par-saver.

At least one Houston Oiler shows he can hold a lead

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Al Del Greco, doing his best to prove a Houston Oiler can hold a big lead, shot an 8-over-par 80 Friday and held on for a 3-shot victory over Peter Tom Willis in the players portion of the NFL Golf Classic.

Del Greco, the Oilers' placekicker, entered the final round of the 54-hole tournament with a seven-shot lead over Willis, the Chicago Bears' backup quarterback, and an eight-shot advantage over New York Giants quarterback Phil Simms.

Willis put some heat on Del Greco by shooting a 76 and that made the 31-year-old Del Greco work to avoid another Oilers' fold in the stretch.

In case you've forgotten, Houston built a 35-3 lead over Buffalo in a first-round AFC playoff game, only to see the Bills stage the greatest comeback in NFL history en route to 41-38 overtime victory.

Del Greco did his best to imitate the giveaway.

Coke title inspires Wallace to return

By Tom Foreman Jr.
AP Sports Writer

■ NASCAR

CONCORD, N.C. — The money is motivation enough, but Rusty Wallace has better reasons to get back into his Pontiac for the Coca-Cola 600.

"The main deal is I want to win this title bad," Wallace said, "and this is what I do for a living."

Wallace was a runner-up to Bill Elliott in 1988, then won the Winston Cup driving championship the next year. He had been a top 10 finisher every year since 1986, then slumped to 13th last year.

This season, he's posted four victories, including three in a row. However, Wallace has slipped to second in the point standings, 20 behind Dale Earnhardt in the chase for $1.25 million.

"I know how crushing it feels not to be back up there," he said. "So when you have a problem like I did on the track, it's really not too hard to get up there."

That Wallace is still driving at all seems remarkable after the spectacular crash at the end of the Winston 500 earlier this month.

"The key is to just brush it off, forget it, it was just a bad wreck," he said. "Yeah, I was the one who took one of the two worst wrecks of the year ... but I've got to learn from them, and hopefully it will never happen again."

Earnhardt's Chevrolet tapped Wallace's Ford, sending the car airborne and into nine flips. The car was destroyed, but Wallace was safely pulled out of the wreckage. He thought he had escaped unscathed, then refused to accept the diagnosis.

"I heard everybody perfect, but when they rolled me into the infield care center at Talladega, the lady said 'He's got some abrasions to his faces and he's bruised here and there' and she said 'His left wrist is broken.

"I remember I woke up and asked her if she wasn't sure I didn't just bruise it?" Wallace said. "She said 'No, it's disformed.'"

Wallace still didn't believe it when another nurse told him the same thing as he was being transported by helicopter to a Birmingham hospital. When he was being admitted to the hospital, he heard it a third time.

"Then I knew for real it was broken, and then all of a sudden ... my wheels were just turning."

Wallace went to Dr. Terry Trammell, the Indianapolis doctor with a history of putting bruised and battered race car drivers back together. His hand was set before team owner Roger Penske flew Wallace to Indiana.

"We said we needed to turn an eight-week healing thing into a two-week deal," he said. "I'm telling you, they basically did that."

Wallace decided against finding a replacement driver to allow his wrist additional time to heal. The driving championship affected his decision.

"If I wasn't leading the points race at that particular point and knowing that my wrist was screwed up, I would have probably hunted for a backup driver and let it heal up perfectly," he said. "I couldn't think of a backup driver that I felt could 100 percent stand on the gas.

"And, as many new owners as there are wanting to start a team, if there was a driver that good, they would already have him. So, there was just nobody I was comfortable with."

He wears a brace and a pin that keeps the bone in place. Wallace says he's 60 percent back to normal and that's because he saw an X-ray which showed the crack was still there.

Wallace went back to work at Sears Point, but while his wrist was fine, the car's transmission failed him and he faded from contention.

A race driver is a race driver

By JOE SIANO
N.Y. Times News Service

■ Commentary

INDIANAPOLIS — Eddie Cheever, who will start 33rd and last in Sunday's Indianapolis 500, has heard all the questions from reporters this month about the invasion of foreign drivers and Formula One drivers here at Indy.

And frankly, he thinks the issue is silly.

Cheever is a walking contradiction when it comes to foreign vs. domestic drivers. He was educated in Rome, but he and his parents are Americans and he now lives in Aspen, Colo. He drove in 131 Formula One races, but since 1990, he has been driving Indy cars exclusively.

"A race driver is a race driver," Cheever said Friday. And no matter where they come from, he said, they ultimately should be aiming for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"It doesn't say 'Capital of Motor Racing' out here for nothing," he said.

Last year, Cheever sat on the front row with the same team that now has Arie Luyendyk, this year's pole winner. Cheever came to the speedway this year with a much smaller team, and it wasn't until the final 16 minutes of qualifying last Sunday that Cheever made the race. To do it, he had to borrow a car from another team.

His late run bumped Bobby Rahal, the 1986 race winner, from the lineup. Earlier in the day, Rahal had refused the same car Cheever drove into the lineup. "I know that I didn't have anything left when I got out of the car," Cheever said of his qualifying effort.

"I'm a lot prouder of being last on the grid than I was when I was on the front row last year," he said.

If you are looking for a career with plenty of job openings, try being an Indy-car mechanic. At least that's what Chip Ganassi, the owner of the fastest car in the race, indicated Friday.

Ganassi, the owner of Luyendyk's car, entered two cars in this race last year, but only one this year.

"Anyone around here who will tell you the decision isn't financial is kidding you," said Ganassi, talking about whether to enter one, two or even five drivers (as one owner, Dick Simon, has done).

Even with enough money, he said, personnel presents a problem. "My feeling is the biggest shortage around Indy car racing today is the shortage of people who want to work on these cars," Ganassi said.

Although the average Indy car mechanic does better than the mechanic at a local car dealer (despite those hourly labor rates), the job requires long hours, extensive travel and hazardous duty if you're also a member of the race-day pit crew.

Everyone has been talking about how dicey the traffic will be on the track on race day. One can only hope it will not be as treacherous as it has been on the streets just outside the track.

Nigel Mansell, the British driver who will start in the middle of row three Sunday, had to overcome back surgery to make this year's race, his first ever. And he almost suffered a case of whiplash leaving the speedway Thursday evening.

While stopped at a traffic light outside the track, he heard a roar and a crash. He looked over at the lane next to him to see the accordion effect (or "concertina effect" as some of the foreign drivers say here) that had been set off when a speeding car had hit a stopped car in the rear bumper.

"I was thinking: 'I'm glad I'm in this lane.'"

Another world champion who will start Sunday's race, Nelson Piquet of Brazil, had a tougher time earlier this week. The BMW he was driving collided with another car when someone misdirected traffic. Piquet was unhurt and the occupants of the other car suffered minor injuries.

Even though Mansell set a record with nine Formula One victories last year on the way to winning the world championship, he is still considered a rookie here. That means he had to pass a rookie test, which he did fairly easily on May 12.

About the same time, he took his road test in his new home state of Florida.

"I've never been so nervous," he said. "Could you imagine not passing either one?"

Mansell attended the annual pre-race rookies' meeting Friday, where veterans warned the first-timers of the hazards they could expect.

Afterward, Mansell said the best advice he ever got about the speedway was given to him a while ago by A.J. Foyt.

"He said: 'Don't turn right, boy. You'll eat concrete.'"

"And I've tasted concrete," Mansell said, referring to his hard crash into a wall at Phoenix on April 3. "I don't like it."

INDY: Four veterans missing from this year's race alongside Luyendyk in the middle of the front row.

The 53-year-old Andretti, the oldest in the lineup except for four-time winner Al Unser Sr., who turns 54 Saturday, said it will be important to be first into the turn at the start.

"Whoever gets the hole shot is going to be the one going through there," said Andretti, who is racing at Indy for the 28th time. "The track is the narrowest I can remember and it could be a little nervous out there. If you don't get there first, you're going to have to back off or there is going to be trouble."

Another problem could be the level of experience in this year's field.

There are only five rookies among the 33 starters, and three are veterans from Formula One — 1992 champion Nigel Mansell of England, three-time Formula One champ Nelson Piquet of Brazil and Stefan Johansson of Sweden.

Missing from last year's field are four-time Indy winners A.J. Foyt and Rick Mears, both retired; Michael Andretti, Mario's son, who has moved to the Formula One series, and 1986 race winner Bobby Rahal, who failed to make the lineup. Among them, they have 70 years of Indy 500s, led by Foyt's 35 in a row.

"We're going to miss all of those guys in the race," 1985 winner Danny Sullivan said. "All of them are great drivers and potential winners and, more important, all of them know how to get around this place.

"But I think everybody is sufficiently aware of what we're facing out there and will be as cautious as possible. You race where you can and try not to put yourself or anybody else in jeopardy.

"The first thing we have to do, though, is just get through the first couple of turns. After that, it should be a normal race."

NCAA: South Alabama shuts down Baylor, 9-3

(From 1B)

South Alabama 9, Baylor 3

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Scott Southard hit a three-run homer and Mark Thompson pitched a complete game seven-hitter Friday night as South Alabama cruised to a 9-3 NCAA South Regional victory over Baylor.

South Alabama is the only undefeated team remaining in the double-elimination tournament. The Jaguars beat Miami in the first round.

Thompson (3-5), who missed eight weeks this season with a broken bone in his right hand, walked three and struck ot six for the victory.

"He wasn't overpowering but he kept us off balance," said Baylor designated hitter Joe Wharton.

Aaron Lineweaver (9-5) suffered the loss for Baylor (41-18), which plays LSU at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Saturday night, South Alabama (36-19-1) plays the winner of the LSU-Baylor game.

South Alabama scored two runs in the first inning. In the fourth, Baylor intentionally walked Tyrone Dixon to load the bases with two out. Pat Murphy then drove in three runs with a double.

Baylor made five errors in the game, the most they've made this season.

High school batter hits three HRs in one inning

Associated Press

MODOC, Ind. — Mike Pierce of Shenandoah High School hit three home runs in the same inning to break a record held by Ted Williams and 33 others.

Pierce's set the record Thursday in Shenandoah's 18-run first inning in its 23-2 victory at Union High School.

"I told him when he went up to bat the third time, 'I dare you,'" Shenandoah coach Todd Salkoski said, "and he hit the first pitch for a homer."

The 1993 edition of the National High School Sports Record Book lists the record for home runs in an inning as two. Williams did it when he played at San Diego Hoover High School.

Shenandoah is located in Middletown, about 30 miles northeast of Indianapolis.

Coach, wife plead guilty to sex counts

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A high school football coach and his wife who pleaded guilty to a sex-with-players scandal that cost the coach his job were placed on five years' probation.

Randy Brown, 39, and his wife, Kelly, 31, pleaded guilty Friday to two charges related to lewd sex. Brown has been suspended by Hemet High School.

Mrs. Brown's lawyer acknowledged she had a sexual affair with a 17-year-old player on her husband's team without her husband's knowledge, but continued the affair for 18 months after the coach found out.

Riverside County Superior Court Judge H. Dennis Myers sentenced the Browns to 16-month suspended sentences in state prison and $5,000 fines, also suspended.

They must register as sex offenders with law enforcement agencies.

Although prosecutors alleged the couple tried to entice a second team member into having sex with the wife, defense lawyers said no sex act ever occurred.

"There was never any sexual contact between the second boy and Mrs. Brown, never any discussion of it between Mr. Brown and Mrs. Brown," said Mrs. Brown's attorney, Steve Harmon.

Harmon called Mrs. Brown's affair with the 17-year-old the result of "human frailty," and denied the couple purposely procured the young man to have sex with her.

Bedrock browsing

AGUA DULCE, Calif. — Although the house has rock instead of hardwood floors and no air conditioning or plumbing, Arline Sigsbury said she would love to buy one of the fake boulder homes being used as a movie set at Vasquez Rocks County Park.

"I'd like to know who's selling real estate," joked Sigsbury.

The resident of nearby Newhall, Calif., didn't have to look far in the newest Hollywood version of the prehistoric town of Bedrock at the Los Angeles County park, which is being used as a film location for Steven Spielberg's live-action movie "The Flintstones."

Carloads of curious tourists descended Saturday on Vasquez Rocks — about 30 miles north of downtown Los Angeles — to get a peek at how the county park has been magically transformed into the boulder bungalow hometown of Fred, Barney, Wilma, Betty and, of course, Dino.

Although the movie version of Bedrock brought back memories of the 1960s era cartoon television series, a few notable differences are also apparent. One house, for example, sports a stone satellite dish.

CLIFFHANGER

Stallone pours on high-altitude thrills

By Janet Maslin
N.Y. Times News Service

■ Review

"Cliffhanger," the new high-altitude thriller starring Sylvester Stallone, wastes no time in establishing its first priority, that of sending its audience into a cold sweat. This effect is achieved spectacularly well with a long, death-defying credit sequence set somewhere near the ozone layer.

Stallone, playing a pumped-up Rocky Mountain rescue worker with an incongruously presidential haircut, does his best to save a young woman who hangs precariously from a rope across a terrifyingly deep abyss. You will be in no hurry to mountain-climb after watching this scene.

At such moments, and "Cliffhanger" has many of them, thoughts about life insurance come to mind. Was Sylvester Stallone really filmed atop the dizzyingly high, needle-shaped peak that figures prominently in the film's opening?

Did he really scale the kinds of cliffs and mountainsides that are seen here? Did he hang in midair from a fraying rope, cross great chasms via rickety bridges or battle over a helicopter about to plunge into oblivion?

Obviously, a great deal of credit goes to stunt doubles and optical tricks, but the illusion is still astonishingly effective. "Cliffhanger" really seems to be set somewhere up in the sky.

Featuring beautiful Alpine vistas (much of "Cliffhanger" was shot in Italy, in the Dolomite mountains), this film treats Stallone as a smaller, more mobile and no less impressive piece of scenery. His muscles bulging, the veins of his neck etched in sharp relief, his jaw set determinedly, Stallone is every bit as physically impressive as the material requires him to be.

As with Steven Seagal, who finally had a big, entertaining film built around him by the makers of "Under Siege," Stallone has been surrounded by better actors but is unrivaled as his film's main attraction.

Main animate attraction, that is. All of the performers are upstaged by the film's breathtaking backdrop, and by the fast and furious way Renny Harlin, the director, approaches action sequences.

Just as he did in "Die Hard 2," Harlin concentrates on generating non-stop excitement at the expense of small talk. In fact, his pacing can be so fast that the occasional transition is missing, though the film's staging remains perfectly clear.

Quickly and efficiently, Harlin leads the film from one perilous escapade to another, following a visceral plot that somehow manages to avoid repetition. Even though "Cliffhanger" leads off with a couple of its biggest scenes, a can-you-top-this momentum sustains it all the way through.

Sylvester Stallone, Janine Turner and the Italian Alps combine to make 'Cliffhanger' a visually stunning experience.

Dialogue is the only real drawback, since the screenplay by Michael France and Stallone tends to be as drab as the mountains are beautiful. Stallone plays Gabe Walker, whose morale is badly injured during that opening rescue attempt and who spends the rest of the film getting it back.

In the process, he also loses and rewins Jessie Deighan (Janine Turner), the plucky mountaineer who is part of his rescue team, and proves his grit to Hal Tucker (Michael Rooker), who still bears a grudge against Gabe for the debacle that haunts them both.

"If you don't do this now," Jessie tells Gabe, prodding him into action by recalling the trauma, "you're going to be stuck on that ledge for the rest of your life."

Gabe is forced back into action by a harrowing air crash, which Harlin stages in typical high-octane style. A plane carrying Treasury Department officials and $100 million in new bills is hijacked in mid-air, and later goes down in the mountains.

When Gabe goes to the rescue, he be-

Turner survives mountain of woes

By Bob Strauss
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Janine Turner has been spending much too much time in high places.

High, cold places, like the Washington state locations of her popular, Alaska-set television series, "Northern Exposure." Or the tallest peaks in Italy's Dolomite Alps, where she filmed her first major movie role for "Cliffhanger" last spring.

"I am appreciating hot Texas summers now," said the 30-year-old actress who, having just wrapped "Exposure's" fourth season, is looking forward to spending the next two months in and around Fort Worth, her hometown. "I'm ready to thaw out, try to get a little tan."

Hard to believe that "Cliffhanger," which opened Friday, was anything but a hot time from start to finish. The $70 million super-production starring Sylvester Stallone, John Lithgow and Turner, and directed by "Die Hard 2's" Renny Harlin is packed with wall-to-wall explosions, firefights, chases and precipitous drops. Everyone sure looks like they're working up a sweat.

Turner plays Jessie Deighan, a Rocky Mountain helicopter pilot who aids her mountain rescuer boyfriend, Stallone's Gabe Walker, in foiling ruthless criminal Qualen's (Lithgow) attempts to retrieve hijacked money from remote heights.

And we do mean remote. Though set in Colorado, much of "Cliffhanger's" spectacular outdoor footage was filmed in northern Italy against some of the most rugged mountains on Earth. Working as high as 13,000 feet above sea level, Turner often found herself longing for the warm, flat expanses of central Texas — or, for that matter, Washington's snowy valleys, where she can at least wear cold-weather gear instead of her "Cliffhanger" costume — tights and a windbreaker.

"The first thing that comes to mind (about the film production) is not so much the heights — though the heights were unbelievable — but the cold," she said. "The last shot in the movie, we were at 12,000 feet and it was 20 below up there. Even though it was spring, there was ice and snow.

"See, I was thinking hiking, I was thinking mountain climbing. I wasn't thinking ice on the rocks. In some locations, we had to hike two miles to go to the bathroom — and you had to hold onto little ropes all the way, just to not slide off the cliff."

EDITOR'S NOTE: The rating system for the film list: 4 stars — Don't miss it; 3 stars — worth your while; 2 stars — Has it moments; 1 star — if you must.

N.Y. Times News Service

DAVE: Pleasantly polished comedy starring Kevin Kline as a venal president and the likable Everyguy recruited to stand in for him when he suffers a stroke. The trouble starts when he actually starts making the world a better place to live. Director Ivan Reitman has crafted a smart and breezy entertainment with a terrific cast — Sigourney Weaver, Frank Langella and Charles Grodin co-star. PG. Rating: 3 stars

DRAGON: THE BRUCE LEE STORY: Sometimes silly, overridingly creepy tribute to the evidently cursed, martial arts superstar. Jason Scott Lee (no relation) is astonishing as the late kung fu master — he has Bruce's mesmerizing energy, facial contortions and slide-whistle caterwaul down pat. There's drippy romance, triumphal melodrama and some nonsense with a Chinese demon warrior, too — but, as with Lee's life, the main attraction here is the fighting. PG-13 Rating: 2½ stars

FIRE IN THE SKY: "Based on a true story," so they say, of aliens abducting a logger in Arizona in the '70s. The nifty flashback finale of the abduction — sort of "Close Encounters" meets "Alien" — doesn't compensate for the 90 minutes of boring exposition that precede it. PG-13. Rating: 2 stars

GROUNDHOG DAY: Bill Murray's ever-funny unpolished glibness carries this comedy about a jerk weatherman who is forced to live one day — Groundhog Day — over and over, and the hilarious ways in which he deals with his bizarre situation. Andie MacDowell and Chris Elliott co-star. PG. Rating: 3 stars

HOMEWARD BOUND: THE INCREDIBLE JOURNEY: A remake of the Disney nature adventure, in which two dogs and a cat travel through the wilderness to get back to their owners. This time, the animals sound like Michael J. Fox, Sally Field and Don Ameche. More comic than the original, but with the same, kid-pleasing blend of action and maudlin sentimentality. G. Rating: 3 stars

HOT SHOTS! PART DEUX: A pumped-up Charlie Sheen, a now-presidential Lloyd Bridges and Saddam Hussein are back in this latest action-movie parody. Instead of "Top Gun," they're mostly sending up "Rambo" this time, and the results are arguably funnier than the pretty witty first flight. It's also a good-looking movie — better than most of the allegedly serious "Rambo" knockoffs — if limited, as all these things are, by its barrage of jokes' variable humor. PG-13. Rating: 3 stars

INDECENT PROPOSAL: The latest date-night debate movie from the "Fatal Attraction" people runs out of steam halfway through, but it's pretty provocative up to then. Robert Redford's amoral financier offers Demi Moore and Woody Harrelson's financially stressed married couple $1 million for a night with her. So far, so sleazy, but after the dirty deal is consummated, the drama collapses into a cowardly, conventional romantic triangle. R. Rating: 2½ stars

LOST IN YONKERS: The screen version of the Tony- and Pulitzer-winning play about a dysfunctional World War II-era family has plenty of pathos and laughter, but feels a bit stagey for the screen. Still, director Martha Coolidge has fashioned a handsome period production, and strong performances (sometimes too strong) by Mercedes Ruehl in her Tony-winning role, Irene Worth and newcomer kid actors Brad Stoll and Mike Damus make for an enjoyable if uneven outing. PG. Rating: 3 stars.

LOVE FIELD: Michelle Pfeiffer's decent performance as a bored, garrulous Dallas housewife who heads off to attend John Kennedy's funeral in Washington, D.C. and along the way becomes involved with an African-American who has illegally removed his

TURNER: Actress sees character emotionally full

(From 1C)

Other bodily functions were just as difficult. Turner did aerobic workouts before heading to "Cliffhanger's" base camp in the resort village of Cortina. But even with strengthened lungs, she sometimes found it difficult to work — or even walk — in the high Alps' thin atmosphere.

"They had to give me oxygen at one point," Turner said. "We'd been up there three or four hours, hooked to the edge of a mountain rim. We were pulling Sly up a rope ladder. I've never fainted before in my life, but all of a sudden I started feeling very dizzy. That's frightening, especially when you know you could fall off if you fainted."

Luckily, she didn't. Truth to tell, it was more dangerous filming the more strenuous shots in the supposedly less hostile surroundings of Rome's sprawling Cinecitta Studios — where armed robbers stole the production's payroll one day.

"It was really rough," said Turner, who did a lot of her climbing and rappelling against soundstage walls. "I had a lot of bruises and I almost got a concussion. Got an eye infection, bloody lips, I had to go to the emergency room once. Rome was where most of that happened."

The actress's toughest challenge, though, had nothing to do with injuries or exhaustion. "The magnitude of the elements both added to and detracted from the movie," Turner said. "On the one hand, the elements brought such a reality to it. But in a lot of scenes, you only had one line, then you run or you slide down somewhere. That can be very difficult from an acting point of view; more difficult than a whole dialogue scene, because there's no build or anywhere to go."

Despite such dramatic limitations, Turner worked out a full emotional life for Jessie — one that she feels is fuller than Maggie O'Connell's, her "Northern Exposure" character.

"Jessie is really a more well-rounded person," Turner said. "Because she's stronger, she feels OK about letting herself be emotional, whereas Maggie is a little more neurotic. She plays things more defensively, so you don't see vulnerability or that emotional level from her all that often.

"Maggie's also got to prove something," Turner said of the TV character, who's also an intrepid, big-country pilot but comes from a background of wealth and comfort. "Whereas this Jessie doesn't have to prove anything."

Lately, Maggie's been having to prove that she's not "Exposure's" angel of death — five of her lovers on the show have been killed accidentally.

Lately, though, Maggie's been more of a nurturing force in her boyfriends' lives. She even consummated her thorny relationship with Dr. Joel Fleischman (Rob Morrow) during last February's sweeps — although an emotional trauma caused her to promptly forget the encounter.

Overall, Turner welcomes these small steps toward a more sensitive Maggie. She also feels that she has gotten an effective handle on playing the character after a frustrating period of trying to figure out — as most fans of the show have — whether to view "Exposure" as comedy or drama.

Turner has big plans for her own development. She wants to act in more movies and produce programs — especially intelligent children's shows — for television. Eventually, she would also like to raise horses, longhorns and kids of her own.

But right now, she just wants to rest. "It was a hard decision to take summer off," Turner said. "I was offered a film, and it was very hard to say no because you always want to work. But I just felt that I've worked two years straight, and if I don't take time to live and rest and renew my spirit, then I can't bring 100 percent to the next project."

'Happily' catching up with Snow White

By Stephen Holden
N.Y. Times News Service

If movie blockbusters from "The Godfather" to "Batman" can beget successful sequels, why not "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" 56 years after the original? That must have been the reasoning behind "Happily Ever After," a clever but hardly memorable follow-up to the Disney animated film classic.

"Happily Ever After," which opened Friday, is by no means an official Disney-approved sequel. Presented by the First National Film Corp. with animation by Filmation, its Snow White bears a strong family resemblance to the Disney character without actually looking like her. Its prince has red hair, and the Seven Dwarfs are nowhere to be found.

The film, which strikes a steady balance between the dreamy romantic tone of the original and a Saturday morning cartoon, imagines that the Evil Queen had an equally evil brother, Lord Maliss. On returning to the castle he shared with his sister, he intimidates her magic mirror into revealing she is dead. Vowing revenge on Snow White and her prince, he turns himself into a flying red dragon and plucks Snow White from the side of the prince, whom he imprisons in his castle.

Snow White succeeds in escaping his clutches long enough to flee into a forest, where she finds herself at the cottage of the Seven Dwarfs. To her surprise, the premises have been taken over by their female cousins the Dwarfelles — Sunburn, Muddy, Thunderella, Blossom, Moonbeam, Critterina and Marina — each of whom controls a different aspect of life on earth.

They take Snow White to visit Mother Nature, their pointy-headed, sharp-tongued boss, who warns that if they don't do a better job they'll all be fired. Following her directions, they leave her garden and make their way through the cavernous Realm of Doom toward Lord Maliss's territory, which is patrolled by a pack of wolves.

The most original thing about "Happily Ever After," which was directed by John Howley from a screenplay by Martha Moran and Robby London, are the Dwarfelles, several of whom are played by stars. The most insecure of the group is Thunderella, (Tracey Ullman), a perky red-headed little girl who is supposed to control the weather but can't always deliver what she promises. The giddiest is Blossom (Zsa Zsa Gabor), who can create flowers with the wave of her hand and is a big flirt. Sally Kellerman is a gruff, husky-voiced Sunburn, Carol Channing a loquacious Muddy and Phyllis Diller a warmhearted but moody Mother Nature.

Lord Maliss (Malcolm McDowell), with his thin handlebar mustache and sinister glare, suggests Captain Hook in the age of "Star Trek." His bumbling assistant Scowl (Ed Asner), is a cigar-smoking owl who delivers one of the film's several mediocre songs, a feeble rap number called "The Baddest." Irene Cara plays Snow White and sings the movie's trite, clangy theme song, "Love Is the Reason Why."

Visually, "Happily Ever After" is mundane. The animation is jumpy, the settings flat, the colors pretty but less than enchanting. The movie's strongest element is its storytelling, which is not only imaginative but also clear and smoothly paced. The trip from Mother Nature's garden to Lord Maliss' castle of stone and chains is a journey that most young children should find diverting and not very scary.

'Mario Bros.' concept far from a winner

By Bob Strauss

LOS ANGELES — There's never a plumber around when you need one. Like in the case of "Super Mario Bros.," the movie version of the popular video game; this mess should've been flushed down the development pipeline a long time ago. Instead, it's oozed over into a theater near you.

Frenetic, incoherent and poorly made to boot — you can't hear half the dialogue and shadows invariably obscure a shot's key event — "Mario" is a nonstop flood of bad jokes and witless action. A movie based on "Pong" would probably have more entertainment value.

Hollywood scuttlebutt credits at least six writers and a half-dozen more directors with perpetrating this slime; Rocky Morton and Annabel Jankel, the creators of TV's "Max Headroom," evidently lost the Guild arbitration and got official directing blame.

Those who've played the video game or produced children who are addicted to it know that Brooklyn's own Mario and Luigi Mario (Bob Hoskins and John Leguizamo in the movie) are the world's greatest plumber heroes, able to unclog the most reluctant steam pipe as easily as they dispatch reptilian monsters.

Clearly embarrassed, Dennis Hopper plays the cold-blooded villain like a thunder lizard, all broad gestures and hissing menace. It's not a good performance, but at least it's something; no one else in the movie, from Samantha Mathis' distressed heroine to Fiona Shaw's evil henchmistress, registers a distinctive personality trait.

"Super Mario Bros.," the movie, flushes everything cinema is about right down the drain in pursuit of imitating the lesser, flatter medium. And, it hardly needs to be noted, the game's more fun anyway.

daughter from a foster home. The interracial romance, like much of the story, seems convoluted, and as the convoluted story settles into road picture mode, it becomes "Driving Miss Ditzy." R. Rating: 1 star

SIDEKICKS: Predictable kid stuff, but good-natured and well-intentioned. And given the usual crassness of the kid-flick market, that counts for a lot. Chuck Norris is less the star than a guest star in this agreeable family film about an asthmatic kid named Barry (Jonathan Brandis) who idolizes Norris. Picked on at school and ignored by his distracted widower-dad (Beau Bridges), Barry escapes into eleborate day-dreams in which he teams up with his hero. He gets the chance to learn to kick for himself when a sympathetic teacher (Julia Nickson-Soul) introduces him to her uncle (Mako), a martial-arts expert. Ultimately everyone ends up at the Big Kick-Off, a karate competition that pads out the last half hour. Norris may have snared his 15 minutes of mid-'80s fame playing macho men, but he's a singularly nice guy and "Sidekicks," is a nice-guy's movie. Send the kids. PG. No Rating.

SLIVER: Another ridiculous sex thriller, though this one is sporadically done up in intelligent, psychologically queasy visuals. Sharon Stone is the repressed book editor who has just moved into a thin, New York high-rise where people are getting killed. And watched, by a voyeur who has hooked up surveillance cameras in every room. William Baldwin is the cute younger man; Tom Berenger is the cute, older mystery writer; and the bank of 50 eavesdropping monitor screens is the film's real star. Phillip Noyce ("Patriot Games") directed Joe Eszterhas' ("Basic Instinct") adaptation of Ira Levin's ("Rosemary's Baby") novel. R. Rating: 2½ stars

UNFORGIVEN: Clint Eastwood's finest achievement is an unflinching examination of the price paid for violence and other dysfunctions of the American character. Finally giving a soul and a fate to his Man With No Name, the director plays a decrepit ex-gunslinger out to earn one last bounty. R. Rating: 4 stars

Love 'America' style

LOS ANGELES — Don't call Ted Danson and Whoopi Goldberg an odd couple.

Or any kind of couple, for that matter, except a couple of actors who really, really admire each other.

"We will tell you anything you want to know about this movie because we had a really good time," said Goldberg, the Oscar-winning actress and comedian who co-stars with Danson, star of the just-deceased sitcom "Cheers," in the romantic comedy "Made in America," which opened Friday.

"We'll tell you how much we like working with each other. And that's all anybody, any of your readers, have a right to demand."

Danson, who recently separated from his wife of 16 years, and Goldberg have been romantically linked in numerous media reports. Asked if that's true, Danson politely but tersely replied, "No comment. You know, I understand your curiosity. But I've matured, finally, enough in life to have a private life, so I will guard it jealously, thank you."

The co-stars also are touchy about discussing "Made in America's" basic premise. In the film, Goldberg's proud, African-American bookstore owner Sarah Mathews learns that the sperm bank she patronized 17 years ago mixed up her order. Rather than the contribution from an intelligent African-American that she requested, Sarah got one from yahoo truck dealer Hal Jackson (Danson).

When her college-bound daughter, Zora (Nia Long), discovers her real father's identity, the mismatched parents are brought together and, to both of their surprise, love blooms.

Originally written for an all-white cast, Holly Goldberg Sloan's script was adapted to accommodate Goldberg after the actress, who had read it as a writing sample, expressed interest.

"It was a nice script, sweet and funny," director Richard Benjamin ("My Favorite Year") said of Sloan's original draft. "I liked it, but I thought it needed one more dynamic. I didn't know what that was, but when Michael Douglas (one of the film's producers) called and said, 'Whoopi wants to do it,' I said, 'Well, there it is.'"

Goldberg and Danson, however, took pains to play down the comedy's interracial element.

"The movie's not about that," Goldberg said. "It's about family. It's about love and friendship and need and growth. I don't think we even got that deep (into racial issues). This is strictly an entertainment movie about a love story. If Meryl Streep was in this movie, do you think we would be talking about any of this?"

"All of a sudden, race seems like this burden," Danson added. "I do think that we're at the point where we realize this country is racist, we're up to seeing it. Boy, it doesn't mean you're colorblind, but it's so bizarre. I'm sitting here feeling white for the first time in a long time."

Other participants were more easygoing about "Made in America's" racial elements.

"Just in general with the film, no one really wanted to do the regular thing," explained Will Smith, TV's "Fresh Prince of Bel Air" star who plays Zora's reluctantly platonic best friend, Tea Cake Walters. "No one would ever really think to cast Whoopi Goldberg opposite Ted Danson — it was things like that, just to throw the curve ball.

"The film was really blatant with people's emotions, along the lines of race. Everyone said exactly what they wanted to say, but it wasn't abrasive. Everyone just wanted to be totally honest with it."

Benjamin hopes his film — like "The Bodyguard," "Unforgiven," "The Crying Game" and many others of recent vintage — will help render questions about interracial romances moot.

"Clearly, the movie's moral is that it's the inside that counts and not the outside," the director said. "And why not? Someone's got to push the envelope so that actually occurs. We address these things because we're living in a real world, but also pushing. I like it when the envelope gets pushed a bit, and this (film) pushes the envelope."

"Made in America" also addresses such issues as single parenthood, individual identity and self-esteem. Pretty heavy subjects for a movie that also features a guy who makes car commercials with chimps and runaway elephants.

"Sarah has a right to be a single mother, absolutely," Benjamin said, "and she's done a great job with this kid. But something inside Zora says, 'Hey, I can find out something.' And the girl has a point. If that father is around, maybe she'll find out that there's music in her. Maybe she can be a fabulous this or that. She has a right to know, too. 'Who is that? There's another half of me somewhere.' It opens up a lot of things."

For Long, who was raised by a single mother not far from the South Central Los Angeles location where she filmed "Boyz N the Hood," playing Zora had a definite sense of deja vu.

"My mother sacrificed everything for me," said the 22-year-old actress, a regular on the soap opera "The Guiding Light." "I know my father, and growing up I always knew who he was, but he didn't have it in him to be a father to me. That experience helped as far as this role was concerned. I could totally relate to that longing to find out who my other half was."

Goldberg drew on her own years of raising a child on her own.

"Oh yes. I abused Nia the way I abuse my own daughter," Goldberg said with a laugh. "'They making you wear that skimpy thing for the movie? I don't think so!'"

Goldberg was just as happy to discuss working with Danson.

"As you may or may not know, this was kind of rare in my career," she said, referring to romantic comedy — or romantic anything.

"My first screen kiss was with another woman, and I haven't been kissed since!"

Indeed, since the lesbian liaison in her 1985 film debut "The Color Purple," Goldberg has had precious few love scenes. Her Oscar-winning supporting part in the otherwise deliriously romantic "Ghost" was purely comedy relief. And in her most successful starring vehicle, "Sister Act," she was a celibate, pseudo-nun on the run from a criminal boyfriend who wanted to kill her, not kiss her.

When she heard Danson was interested in "Made in America," Goldberg grew confident about her first big movie romance.

"You watch his work and you know there's gonna be some chemistry," she said. "The man went from Shelley Long to Kirstie Alley (on "Cheers") without a blink. That says, if you want a great leading man for light comedy, this is only one of two men you can go to."

The other, in Goldberg's estimation, being Kevin Kline. As for Danson, working with Goldberg just felt right.

"Something I think I instinctively knew — to be talking about us is kind of weird — but I think we're really interesting together," Danson said. "It looks like we are very different. It looks like it doesn't make sense. And yet, we are very similar. In upbringing, to say that I am as educated as Whoopi is lifting myself up a little bit to her level. But we share many interests and views of the world."

Benjamin said the Goldberg-Danson pair-up indeed looked good — even if he may have missed everything that might have been going on.

"I'm so completely selfish, all I knew was that what was happening in front of my camera was good," the director said. "When you're making a movie, you're in a kind of tunnel. I knew these two people were really getting along and there was energy between them.

"They seemed to be close and good friends, but I wasn't cognizant of any romance," Benjamin admitted, then added with a sly grin, "I like a set to be a happy place. And I guess it was."

Ted Danson and Whoopi Goldberg play mis-matched parents in 'Made in America.'

■ Review

Richard Benjamin has developed a mixed bag of hits and misses as a director these past 11 years, careening from a glorious bow on "My Favorite Year," through the jinxed cop melodrama "City Heat" and the indifferent "Little Nikita" and "Mermaids," to such underappreciated gems as "My Stepmother Is an Alien" and "Downtown."

Benjamin brings it all back home to a state of triumphant accomplishment in "Made in America," a spirited comedy of the heart built around a radiant natural chemistry between star players Whoopi Goldberg and Ted Danson.

Arriving Friday from Warner Bros., "Made in America" should be as great a career-builder for Goldberg as "Sister Act" has proved; as is typical with her star vehicles since the middle 1980s, Goldberg is so confident in her top-billed status that she yields generously to the players in her orbit.

Although Holly Goldberg Sloan's screenplay necessarily makes an issue of Goldberg's being black and Danson's being white, the ultimate stance of the piece is a benevolent colorblindness.

This promises a major advancement for Hollywood's corps of black leading women, far beyond the tentative romance that Goldberg was allowed to nurture (from a vast distance) with white-guy actor Jonathan Pryce only seven years ago in "Jumpin' Jack Flash." Much more recently, "Sister Act" was allowed to pivot on a hard-luck relationship between Goldberg and Harvey Keitel — a condition from which the target middle-class audience was safely distanced by making Keitel a gangster and Goldberg a lounge entertainer.

The late-but-welcome courage of "Made in America" is twofold: The emotional intimacy is of the in-your-face variety, and the characters are identifiably ordinary folks. Where Goldberg walked away with 1990's "Ghost" (and an Oscar, to boot) by taking on a more or less traditional humorous-minority role, she proves with "Made in America" that she is one of our ablest romantic leads — and does so without sacrificing a shred of comic brilliance.

Goldberg is Sarah Mathews, an Afro-centric intellectual whose husband had died before they could have children. Eighteen years ago, Mathews consulted a sperm bank, specified her requirements — "smart, black, not too tall" — and got bamboozled in the deal.

Not that she is disappointed with her offspring. Daughter Zora ("Boyz N the Hood's" Nia Long) is a confident, college-bound young woman who believes her father to be the late Mr. Mathews.

An unexpected disclosure, however, sets the daughter on an investigative mission to determine the truth of the matter. A clandestine computer-research mission reveals that Zora's father is a notorious media-ham automobile dealer named Hal Jackson. It comes as more of a surprise to mother and daughter than to the audience that this motormouthed gladhander is a white guy. Enter Ted Danson.

Benjamin shifts the dramatic emphasis with pleasing tension between Goldberg and Nia Long from this point onward: Goldberg's Sarah tries to deny the truth of the revelation — a bit of black-on-white discrimination with which Danson's Hal Jackson is only too happy to comply — even as Long's Zora decides that she must develop a bond with her father, no matter who he is.

Danson becomes the third leg of a triangle of inexorably shifting dimensions as Goldberg begins to find him intriguing, then fascinating, and at length — but don't let's give away too much. Danson in turn begins to understand the emptiness of his devil-may-care lifestyle as he observes the stable home life of Goldberg and Long.

These three supply the heart and soul of the picture, overcoming occasional lags of tempo with wit across the board, poignance where appropriate and general immersion in character. Winning support comes from Will Smith, as the pal who helps Long in her search for an origin.

"Made in America" originated during the '80s with former Los Angeles journalists Marcia Brandywynne and Nadine Schiff, who concocted the yarn in light of a news story about a young woman who had learned she had been conceived via artificial insemination. The characters were all white until Whoopi Goldberg voiced an interest in playing Sarah.

Good thing, too. With an all-white ensemble cast, "Made in America" would have been a standard-issue Hollywood farce. As things have turned out, the film is not only a worthy entertainment but also a modest breakthrough that punctures bigotry with sustained bursts of ridicule.

"Made in America" is rated PG-13 (Parents strongly cautioned). It includes mild profanity and sexual situations.

CLIFF: Sophisticated effects, camera work move film along comes the captive of a gang led by Eric Qualen (John Lithgow), an urbane Englishman who oozes sarcasm from every pore.

(From 1C)

Until it takes a turn toward nasty sadism in its later stages — one character is impaled on an icicle, for instance — "Cliffhanger" remains relatively bloodless and crisp, preferring to concentrate on sheer gamesmanship and clever effects.

The sophistication of the latter is one of the film's most enjoyable aspects. Whenever the actors seem to be doing the impossible, it's time to draw back and wonder what was used to help them, but the film works very credibly on its own terms.

The special effects seen here are as perfect and hard-won as Stallone's musculature, and that's saying a lot.

Ms. Turner and Rooker contribute as much spark and variety as is humanly possible, which turns out to be a great deal. The film is also helped by John Vallone's rustic production design on those few occasions when it moves indoors.

The rest of the time, Alex Thomson's bright, hard- edged cinematography contributes to the film's rugged atmosphere.

"Cliffhanger" is rated R (Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian). It includes violence and profanity.

THE BIBLICAL CHARIOT!

THE CHARIOT, IN BIBLICAL TIMES, WAS THE CC INTERPART OF OUR MODERN AUTOMOBILE...EXCEPT IT WAS USED MAINLY FOR WAR! THE FIRST BIBLICAL MENTION OF THE CHARIOT OCCURS IN GENESIS (GEN. 41:43) WHERE JOSEPH, AS A MARK OF DISTINCTION, WAS PLACED IN PHARAOH'S SECOND CHARIOT. THE ISRAELITES DID NOT USE CHARIOTS UNTIL AFTER THE REIGNS OF DAVID AND SOLOMON WHO NOT ONLY GOT THE IDEA FROM THE EGYPTIANS BUT ALSO THE NECESSARY EQUIPMENT: HORSES AND CHARIOTS! EVEN SO, ONLY KINGS, PRINCES, AND NOBLEMEN, AMONG THE ISRAELITES, RODE IN CHARIOTS AND KINGS QUITE OFTEN HAD A SECOND CHARIOT FOLLOW THEM WHEN IN BATTLE IN CASE THE FIRST ONE WAS DESTROYED. ODDLY ENOUGH THE NEW TESTAMENT MENTIONS A CHARIOT ONLY ONCE (ACTS 8:28) IN CONNECTION WITH THE ABYSSINIAN EUNUCH OF QUEEN CANDACE.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your exuberance will inspire other people to work harder. Seize the brass ring when it comes your way. A career change gives you a chance to start over with a clean slate. Hidden talents you possess will display themselves at exactly the right moment. Your good luck carries over into areas of health, romance and long-term investments. A financial success in late fall could lead to a change of environment in December. Make romance a top priority early in 1994.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Bob Hope, auto racer Al Unser Sr., actress Annette Bening, actor Stacy Keach Sr.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An aura of good will promotes friendship and brings clever ideas to the fore. As you reach out to people, new opportunities arise. Write to friends and family members living at a distance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A lucky weekend lies ahead. Travel and long-range planning enjoy favorable influences. Go ahead and combine business with pleasure by entertaining at home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The pressure of work or domestic responsibilities could take its toll on you now. More time relaxing alone would do you a world of good. Figure out ways to cut expenses.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It is better that you not allow others to lean on you so heavily. Declare your independence for a loved one's sake if not for your own. Reconcile with a friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not squander recent financial gains by spending impulsively. Think before acting in anger or you could permanently damage a fragile relationship. Entertaining at home is more fun than anticipated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A more realistic attitude will lead to swifter progress. Bear down on detail work. Retirement should not be viewed as a dead end. Use the phone instead of travel to drum up new business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Someone has a problem. Provide a solution and a bond will be struck. Today it might be unusual events or relations that reward you. One-on-one encounters are especially satisfying tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The tide turns in your favor. You get something you have long wanted. Do not take a passive stance with a sibling or child. A new relationship helps you open up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Discuss a serious problem immediately. You will lose important ground if you postpone things. Romantic partner will be supportive no matter what.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Careful shoppers can find real bargains now. Check newspaper ads and sales catalogs to get the best price. A legal or political matter will be resolved in your favor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Creative ventures hold great promise. Your patience will be royally rewarded. A full financial recovery is on the way. Keep in touch with old friends.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A mixed bag of feelings could boil to the surface today. Talking things out with a sensitive friend leads to wonderful rapport. Welcome a pal's offer of assistance.

Milwaukee audience can buy veggie hot dogs during McCartney concert

MILWAUKEE — Concessionaires have conceded to Paul McCartney: They'll offer vegetarian hot dogs when he performs Wednesday at Milwaukee County Stadium.

But they don't expect long lines.

McCartney

"I don't want to discourage anyone from buying it, but let's just say it's a good thing we're not getting rid of all of our meat products, because I don't think this will be too popular," said George Van Valkenburgh, general manager of Milwaukee Sportservice.

Van Valkenburgh tried a veggie dog during a scouting mission to the McCartney concert in St. Louis. He wasn't impressed.

Fewer than 100 were sold to the 42,000 concertgoers in St. Louis, Van Valkenburgh said.

NEW YORK — Jackie Mason could have borrowed a line from Rodney Dangerfield. Since his bid for public advocate just wasn't getting any respect, he decided Friday to drop out of the race.

He said he will give back the $190,000 he raised from contributors for the position, formerly known as city council president.

The stand-up comic said he had spent about $160,000 to hire managers and a staff, but couldn't get his message into print.

"They consider an independent person an irrelevancy and they don't want to disturb the candidacy of the major parties. The press is almost in a conspiracy with them," Mason said.

"If I'm not a candidate and I buy a pastrami sandwich, it makes a headline. If I walk fast up a building, I'm attacking stairs — anything I do is a headline. But as soon as I went into this race, I was blacked out."

His announcement came the same day City Council President Andrew Stein dropped out of the mayoral race and said he would seek re-election.

SAN FRANCISCO — Ethel Kennedy awarded a teen-age community activist a statue of her slain husband as part of ceremonies honoring work on a health clinic for poor teens.

Mrs. Kennedy and her son Michael appeared Thursday while in town to help open a conference on Robert Kennedy's legacy.

The clinic, scheduled to open in September, is being renovated with help from the Kennedy Memorial San Francisco Youth Health Project.

Located in the seedy Mission District, it will serve teens lacking health insurance who are at risk for drug abuse and HIV infection.

"My father focused on youth because he had a compelling logic and a perseverance in going at the root causes," Michael Kennedy said. "You have to address the youth because they represent the future hopefulness or hopelessness."

Kennedy and his mother attended an American Indian religious ceremony at the clinic site and presented the award to Nadia Brezeda, 15, who represented a group involved in the project.

The conference, "A Vision For America," commemorates the 25th anniversary of Kennedy's Democratic presidential bid. While campaigning, Kennedy was assassinated June 5, 1968.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — A fan of country singer Tanya Tucker was charged with stalking her after allegedly making repeated visits and telephone calls to her recording studio.

Tucker

Winston P. Wies, 41, of Hamilton, Texas, remained in jail Friday, with bail set at $5,000. He was charged May 14 under Tennessee's anti-stalking law.

According to the arrest warrant, Wies tried to visit Tucker several times, wrote her notes and left telephone messages, including one about her child.

The contact made Tucker too distressed to work, the warrant said.

NEW YORK — Something for those who need their fix of Tina Brown news this week: The editor of The New Yorker watched her caricature go up on the walls of Sardi's this week.

"I think this is the most improbable thing that ever happened to me, but I will try to put on as good a show as all those other people on the wall," she said. "This is a wonderful little club that I never expected, as an editor, to be able to join. This gives me a guest pass."

The hanging took place at a luncheon at Sardi's to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the first theatrical opening on Broadway, a production of "The Prodigal Daughter" in the American Theater on May 22, 1893. The May 31 issue of The New Yorker is devoted almost entirely to the centennial. Ms. Brown gave the restaurant a caricature of some of the New Yorker's most celebrated writers, including Dorothy Parker, Robert Benchley and Wolcott Gibbs. It was drawn by Robert Risko, who also did the picture of Ms. Brown.

Among the 250 guests at the luncheon were Arthur Miller, John Guare, Lynn Redgrave, Carol Channing, Isabella Rossellini, Richard Avedon and Robert Whitehead.

Graham's greatest legacy is in training other evangelists

By David Briggs
Associated Press Writer

The Rev. Billy Graham will not be remembered in bricks and mortar.

Although he runs a $100 million-a-year evangelistic empire, the most recognizable figure in American Protestantism boasts nothing comparable in bricks and mortar to the City of Faith complex of Oral Roberts or Jerry Falwell's Liberty University.

But as he has aged to the point where mortal frailties weigh more heavily on his mind, the evangelist has increasingly turned his attention to the task of equipping others to carry on the work of evangelism.

This week, the 74-year-old evangelist dedicated The Billy Graham Training Center at the Cove, a Bible study center for laypeople and clergy in Asheville, N.C.

"It'll be a continuation after I'm in heaven in the field of Bible study and evangelism," Graham said in an interview.

The Billy Graham Evangelistic Association and affiliated organizations took in more than $102 million in 1991. Most of the revenue goes back into crusades, television and radio shows and publications such as Decision magazine.

Where Graham has shown the most interest in preparing for the future is in developing other evangelists.

His 1983 and 1986 conferences in Amsterdam drew more than 12,000 evangelists from around the world. During a 1991 visit to Moscow, he helped lead a training school for evangelists.

"I think Billy Graham's greatest legacy will not be a university or any institutions, but it will be the tens of thousands of little Billy Grahams, itinerant evangelists, not well-educated, but who will do the simple door-to-door sales work of the evangelist," William Martin, author of "A Prophet with Honor: The Billy Graham Story," said in a 1991 interview.

His latest venture is the Cove, nestled on 1,500 acres in the rolling foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. It is designed to equip those who answer the call to commitment at the end of his crusades to become evangelists themselves.

The training center was started in 1987, and has grown since to include an inn and a Cove Camp for youths ages 9 to 15. The center offers training sessions for about 200 people a week with leading evangelical Bible scholars and preachers. More than 4,000 people attended seminars at the Cove last year, and about 6,000 clergy and laypeople are expected to attend this year, said Jerry Miller, the center's executive director.

Miller said the idea was to offer a place — free of grades, degrees or other pressures — where people could study the Bible and be trained to teach others.

Reflecting the basic philosophy that Graham has held on to through five decades as an evangelist, Miller said, "The Bible says there are only two things that last forever, a man's soul, a woman's soul, and God's word."

Future plans for the Cove also include offering support for young evangelists, Miller said. He expects Graham to spend more time sharing his faith at the Cove as the physical restraints of age become more pressing.

Graham said he is not sure if the founder's vision in any institution can be carried on for more than one or two generations.

But today in a society that at times mocks religion, the evangelist said, he hopes the Cove will be a place where laypeople and clergy can learn.

"I think, when the Lord said to go and preach the Gospel to all the people, I don't think he was just talking to paid professionals," Graham said.

■ Carter finds home

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Former President Carter says he has "found a home" in the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship, organized by Southern Baptist moderates after that denomination came under control of biblical fundamentalists.

He told the group's annual assembly that he got his first hint of his differences with the currently ruling wing when a key figure in it, the Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis, Tenn., visited Carter in the White house in 1979.

After a pleasant conversation and photo session in the Oval Office, Carter recalled, Rogers said as he was leaving, "'Mr. President, I hope that you will give up your secular humanism and return back to Christianity.'"

The Associated Baptist Press says Carter related, "it shocked me," for his own denomination's top officer to claim "I'm not a Christian." He said he had kept track of denominational developments and saw "that my own deep beliefs ... differed from those that were mandated" by the changed leadership.

"When we enforce uniformity on other people, it saps their freedom," Carter said.

■ Membership grows

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) reports that membership as of Jan. 1 was 8.4 million worldwide, an increase of 317,000, or 3.9l percent during 1992.

United States membership is 4.4 million.

■ Media tour to start

NEW YORK (AP) — As part of a worldwide tour, a multimedia production, "Jesus Was His Name," starts a two-week run June 2 at Radio City Music Hall.

Combining 70 mm film on an 80-foot screen, interactive with a live 58-member cast, the unusual production was crafted by noted French producer Robert Hossein.

"I have always had a taste for things larger-than-life and I wanted to proclaim my faith in this world and my faith in man," Hossein said. "And I wanted to do it through the words of Christ, for he remains the conscience of humanity."

■ Candidates nominated

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Three candidates have been nominated for moderator at the assembly in June of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

They are Margaret Wentz, 57, wife of a Newton, Kan.; pastor; Wilton Vincenty, 64, retired corporate executive of Mayaguez, Puerto, Rico, and the Rev. David Lee Dobler, an Anchorage, Alaska pastor.

■ Religious groups visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of Roman Catholic, Jewish, Muslim and Serbian Orthodox religious groups in former Yugoslavia, on a visit to this country, jointly pledged they would work "to heal the wounds of our people" when the fighting stops and the bloodshed ends in their warring homeland.

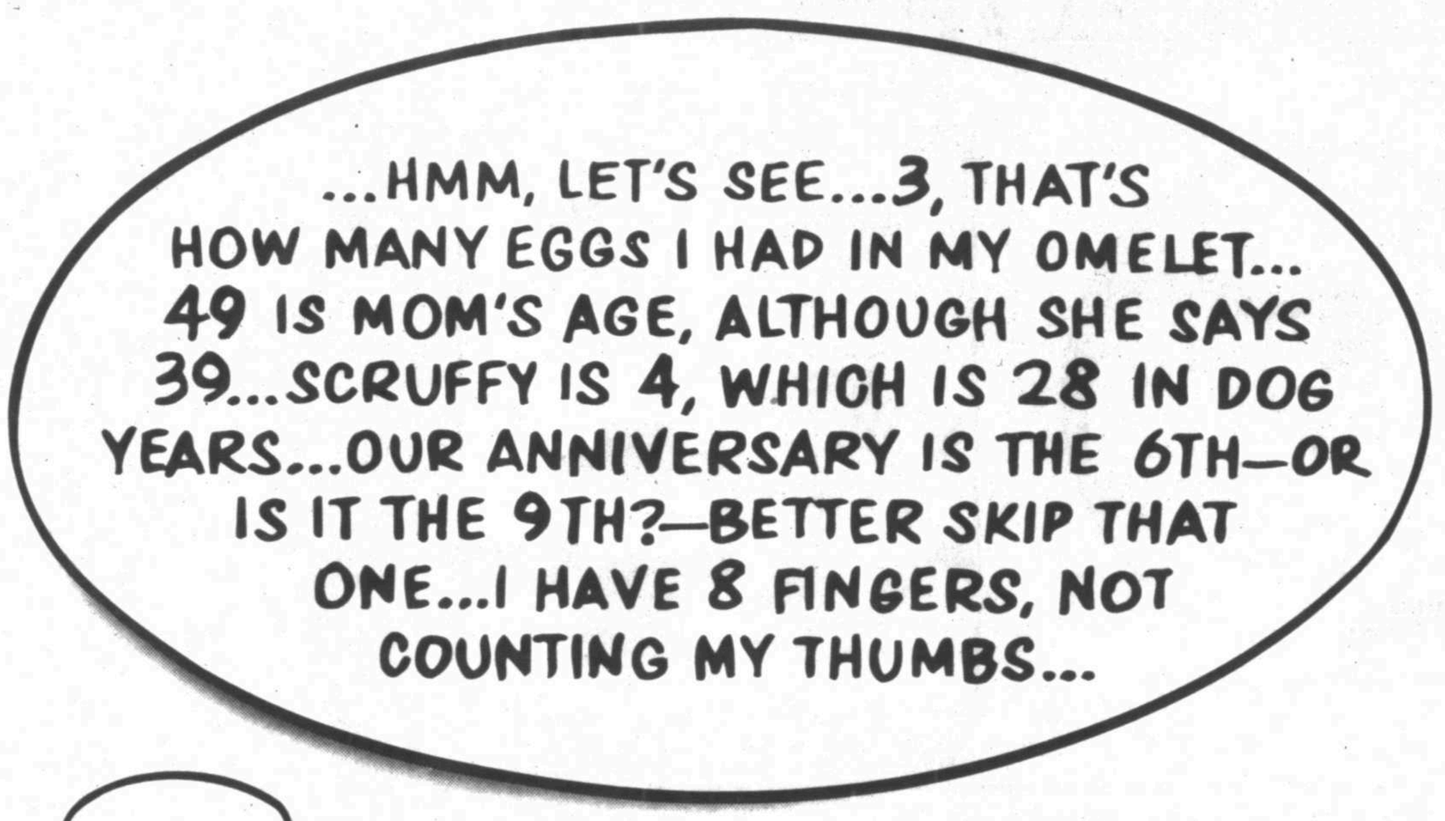

The trip was sponsored by the Appeal of Conscience Foundation, an ecumenical human rights organization.

■ Council faces deficit

NEW YORK (AP) — Faced with a growing budget deficit, the National Council of Churches is considering dismantling much of its administrative structure in order to save its program ministries.

The Rev. Joan Brown Campbell, the NCC general secretary, says denominational executives have tentatively affirmed plans to dissolve the NCC's Unity and Relations unit and eliminate all unit committees, leaving the work in hands of staff.

Lani Havens, director of Church World Service, the NCC's relief agency, has offered her resignation, saying the proposed changes represented a shift toward "centralized bureaucracies."

■ Local teens honored

Permian Basin teenagers were honored recently for completing Seminary, a four-year Christian gospel study course sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The course is designed to help youth learn how to cope with today's pressures, said a release from the church.

The youth were recognized with a dinner and commencement program held in Odessa this weekend. The program was hosted by Jerry Zant, Seminary supervisor; and included youth speaker Sarah Martin, Seminary president; a song by Afton Hales, who was accompanied by Kelli Hales; an adult speaker, Midlander Brent Jones; presentation of the graduates by Odessan Steven Vore; and presentation of diplomas by Stake President Lloyd Hales of Midland, who also spoke.

The program was based on the theme for the year, "Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God," from Matthew 6:33.

Graduates included Julie Bushman, Debbie Rowland, Julie Grandy, Kelli Hales, Chad Rigtrup, Shane Snow, Nathaniel Tague, Christopher Bauer, Michael Bauer, Cory Hassman, Scott Hoose, Cossette Lewis, Julie Lindsay and Isaac Lord, all of Midland; Shawn Bonifay, Rebecca Fletcher, Sarah Martin, Daniel McKown, Larisa Robinson, Jayson Huber and Amaryllis McElwee, all of Odessa; Ralae Horn and Malissa McKay, both of Big Spring; Maebeth Riley of Monahans; and Kara Walter of Jal, N.M.

Also receiving a three-year certificate of achievement was Odessan Thomas Dickenson.

Seminary involves high school age students who study gospel principles and values contained in the Old and New Testaments, The Book of Mormon, and other LDS scriptures. The 1992-93 course of study was the New testament. Classes meet every weekday from 6:10 to 7 a.m. Home study classes are offered once a week for students involved in extracurricular activities.

In all, 121 students, 26 from the Permian Basin, received credit for completing the New testament course this year. Many of this year's Seminary students also received awards for perfect attendance and for reading the scriptures 365 consecutive days. The underclassmen have begun reading for next year's award.

The Seminary classes are part of a world-wide church educational system offering secular and religious educational opportunities to member and non-member students.

No-confidence vote plunges Poland into political chaos

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — President Lech Walesa weighed whether to dissolve Poland's first democratically elected parliament after a no-confidence vote brought down the government Friday.

Prime Minister Hanna Suchocka's year-old centerist government fell victim to the political jousting that has plagued parliament's 20-odd parties. The vote plunged Poland into political chaos that appeared likely to delay economic reforms and damage its international prestige.

Walesa could call new elections during the next three to four months, two years before schedule. Or he could accept the government's resignation and name a new prime minister, possibly giving Ms. Suchocka the chance to form another government.

Walesa, who stands to gain political power either way, was noncommittal. "I have a solution for every situation," he said. Asked what it was, he answered: "Always a better one."

Walesa was reported to be leaning toward dissolving parliament, and he sent a formal inquiry on the subject to parliament leaders. His decision was expected by Monday.

Crucial reforms have bogged down in the bickering parliament, where there are too many small parties to create a sturdy coalition government. However, Ms. Suchocka's shaky coalition was able to score some victories, notably a plan to privatize many state-owned industries and a tight 1993 budget that won approval from Poland's international creditors.

Seemingly anticipating its demise, parliament turned from ousting the government to drafting a new electoral law. Lawmakers sent Walesa revisions intended to reducing the number of parties represented.

Ms. Suchocka looked stunned as the no-confidence vote was tallied — 223 votes in favor, the minimum needed for it to pass. One government backer who overslept and dashed in too late for the vote made the difference.

Ms. Suchocka was removed on the motion of deputies from the Solidarity trade union, which helped bring the government to power but now contends the economic reforms have hurt too much.

Intelligence experts fear terrorist attacks that destabilize Italy

PARIS (HNS) — The car bomb that ravaged the heart of renaissance Florence Thursday has shaken Western European intelligence services. They fear the attack could signal the start of a campaign of indiscriminate violence to destabilize Italy and even a resurgence of the political terrorism that gripped the continent in the 1970s and 1980s.

An intelligence source at NATO headquarters in Brussels noted that the Florence bombing, the second such attack in Italy in two weeks, came at a time when German authorities were treating seriously reports of the reorganization of the so-called Red Army Faction, a left-wing extremist band responsible for scores of assassinations and bombings in the last decade..

"It wouldn't take more than a couple of sensational terrorist operations of the magnitude of the Florence bombing to reinvigorate terrorism Europe-wide," said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Although the Cold War is over, other conditions favorable to terrorism — growing political extremism, the spread of organized crime on an unprecedented scale, severe economic problems and rising unemployment — are "ripening" in several parts of Europe, he insisted.

Two months ago, Germany's Office for the Protection of the Constitution, that nation's FBI, warned that groups modeling themselves on the Red Army Faction and its predecessor, the Baader-Meinhof gang, were forming amid the widespread unrest caused by extremist violence against foreigners.

Meanwhile, some European anti-terrorist experts expressed reservations at pinning on the Mafia the Florence attack that destroyed priceless art treasures.

Court sentences nurse for numerous atrocities against helpless babies

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — A nurse who killed or injured 13 babies and children on her ward was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday, and the judge said she should never be released.

Beverley Allitt, 24, flanked by seven guards, paid little notice as several enraged parents moved toward the dock shouting "Bastard!" and "You ought to hang."

She has been diagnosed as having Munchausen's Syndrome by Proxy, a personality disorder in which people injure others to attract attention.

Allitt, her hands clasped in front of her, stared ahead as Judge David Latham described her as severely disturbed, cunning, manipulative and without remorse.

"You are, and remain, a very serious danger to others," the judge said. "There is no real prospect that a time will come when you can safely be released."

Allitt killed or injured the children, aged 7 weeks to 11 years old, in 1991 at the Grantham and Kesteven General Hospital in central England. Some victims were killed by lethal injections or suffocation.

She was convicted on May 17 of four murders, three counts of attempted murder and six counts of grievous bodily harm — ranking her among the worst women serial killers in Britain.

The once-plump Allitt, who now suffers from anorexia nervosa, appeared pale and gaunt. She missed most of the trial because of the illness.

Allitt has denied carrying out the attacks.

A psychiatrist, Dr. James Higgins, who spoke to her earlier Friday, said she again maintained she could remember nothing about harming the children.

Staff at the Rampton secure hospital, where Allitt was being held, said she has injured herself to get attention.

Apart from refusing to eat and drink at times, she has scalded herself with custard and put glass her in mouth, they said.

Fuel gauge on Clinton's energy tax drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators jittery about President Clinton's energy tax gave him little time Friday to savor his big House victory for the unpopular levy and other parts of his economic program.

With a tougher fight looming in the Senate, Clinton himself seemed to place less priority on the energy tax than he has for the past three months. Twice he mentioned "fundamental principles" that any compromise must include and he did not list an energy tax among them.

While the president and others in his administration dropped hints they might accept a major compromise on the energy tax, several Democratic senators seemed in a mood to make him an offer.

Sen. Charles Robb, D-Va., urged the Senate to substitute a dime-a-year increase in the 14.1-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax over the next five years. He cited a new Library of Congress report contending a gas tax would offer less risk to the economy, have fewer regional disparities, do more to reduce pollution and hurt the poor less than Clinton's broad energy tax.

"The gasoline tax is a better option," Robb said.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., who is leading an effort to overhaul Clinton's plan, agreed the broad tax should be dropped, saying it would destroy 300,000 jobs and make it more difficult for American products to compete overseas. But he doubted he could go for a 50-cent gas-tax increase.

Several other Democratic senators have expressed deep reservations about the energy tax, which would apply to most fuels. It is the only part of Clinton's program that would be felt directly by most middle-income people, raising taxes on gasoline by about 8 cents and the average home electricity bill by about $2.25 a month, for example.

Clinton's plan, which the House approved on a 219-213 vote Thursday night, relies on the broad energy tax to raise $72 billion over the next five years. More than half the revenue would be used to increase federal programs aimed at shielding low-income families from most of the tax.

Despite opposition to the energy tax, it is far from certain that Congress would raise the gas tax by anything like the 50 cents Robb proposed. In 1990, Congress barely agreed to a 5-cent boost after leaders tried to push through a 12-cent increase.

The administration made several concessions on the energy tax to win House approval and is resigned to making several more. Farmers were given a partial exemption but want none of the tax. The aluminum industry won a big concession. Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen assured Texas lawmakers the tax will be changed to protect petrochemicals and other manufacturing industries in foreign markets.

State Department draws noose around worker's voices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, which disavowed foreign policy remarks by its No. 3 official, has told top officials they must clear all future public statements through the assistant secretary for public affairs.

Earlier this week, the White House and Secretary of State Warren Christopher quickly distanced the Clinton administration from statements by Peter Tarnoff, the undersecretary of state for political affairs. A White House spokeswoman referred to Tarnoff as "Brand X."

At a luncheon Tuesday, Tarnoff told reporters this country's need to focus on economic problems will require a diminished U.S. international role. He described U.S. foreign policy as calling at times for sharing power with allies, especially when American security is not at risk.

The next day, the State Department's executive secretary, Marc Grossman, sent a memo to all top officials entitled "Clearance of Public Remarks." A copy of the memo was obtained Friday by The Associated Press.

"In order to best coordinate administration and (State) Department public diplomacy, (Christopher) has asked that all public remarks by assistant secretaries and above be cleared by the assistant secretary for public affairs, Tom Donilon," the memo said.

"Public remarks include speeches, testimony, press statements and remarks prepared for photo opportunities. Drafts of public remarks should be submitted to (Public Affairs) as early as possible."

The memo said remarks prepared for Christopher's use were covered, just like any others.

Asked about the memo, department spokesman Richard Boucher called it "just a bureaucratic thing" with no connection to Tarnoff's statements or Christopher's repudiation of them. "It's not something that has to do with any of the events of this week," Boucher said.

The spokesman added that "all kinds of memos like that" are sent out by State Department officials, related to matters such as circulation of cables from U.S. embassies. Boucher said he could not recall the last time a memo about clearance of public statements went out.

Grossman and Tarnoff did not immediately return telephone calls seeking comment.

Gay congressman accuses Sen. Sam Nunn of sexual obsession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee chairman rejected suggestions Friday that his criticism of a compromise on lifting the ban on homosexuals serving in the military is a roadblock for President Clinton.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said in a speech late Thursday that he opposes a plan that would allow gay service members to be open about their lifestyle off duty but would prohibit open declarations of sexuality on base.

Nunn said the plan proposed by Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., one of two acknowledged gays in the House, would create a "safe haven" for homosexual acts that occur off base.

But violators of the Uniformed Code of Military Justice, such as drug users or those guilty of sexual assault at the Tailhook Convention, would continue to be punished.

Nunn's remarks came on the same day that Clinton said he was very close to a compromise with critics of his vow to end the ban — one of whom is the Georgia senator.

Clinton, in an interview with Georgia radio stations, said he thinks he is "close to a compromise based on the suggestions Senator Nunn has made" on gays serving in the military.

Frank, who was criticized by various gay groups for his compromise, said in an interview that he was disappointed in Nunn's speech, especially since various sides were moving toward an agreement.

'I hate to say it but I think Sam is obsessed with sex.'

— Rep. Barney Frank

"It sounds like he's having fun with this issue and doesn't want to have it peacefully resolved," the congressman said.

Frank noted that Nunn has spent more time on hearings on gays in the military than other military issues. "I hate to say it but I think Sam is obsessed with sex," he said.

"He's not willing to move to the table and help the president," Tim McFeeley, executive director of the Human Rights Campaign Fund, said Friday. "He's throwing up roadblocks."

Nunn, in an interview, denied the claim.

"I completely dispute that what I said in the speech last night was a roadblock," said the senator, who contends that those who see it that way are misinterpreting Clinton's remarks Thursday.

"Anyone who believes that what I said in the speech prevents the president from moving is wrong," he said.

Nunn said he had been working on a response to the proposal from Frank for four or five days. The senator also said he spoke to Clinton within the past week and briefly discussed the Frank proposal.

Frank proposed a compromise on May 18 that would allow homosexuals to serve and do as they please off base as long as they keep their sexual orientation secret while on duty.

"It's a policy that says 'don't ask, don't tell, and don't listen, and don't investigate,'" Frank said at the time.

In a television interview Thursday morning, Clinton said the nation might end up with a policy of "don't ask, don't tell, don't investigate" and emphasized that people should be judged on their conduct.

Nunn said he interpreted the president's comments as close to his plan and "substantially different" from Frank.

The senator, who wields considerable influence in Congress on military issues, also expressed concern that "creeping into news reports" were suggestions that Frank's plan and his were similar and the two were working on a compromise. Nunn said that was not the case.

Gay rights groups reacted angrily to Nunn's speech.

New Orleans bridge collapses just before afternoon rush hour

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A 200-foot long, four-lane chunk of a New Orleans bridge was hit by a barge and collapsed just before afternoon rush hour Friday. At least two cars fell into a canal.

There was an unconfirmed report that at least one person was killed, but no immediate word on the number of injuries.

Two crumpled cars sat on top of the broken slabs of concrete, which landed in the Industrial Canal and on the batture between the canal and the levee.

Ambulances became stranded in the muddy ground along the canal, but rescue workers and bystanders pushed them free.

Three Coast Guard cutters tied up nearby sent boats to help any people in the water, and a Coast Guard helicopter hovered over the canal.

The bridge is a major route from New Orleans to suburban St. Bernard Parish. The Industrial Canal links the Mississippi River, the Intracoastal Waterway and Lake Pontchartrain.

Jude Patin, head of the state Department of Highways and Transportation, said a barge under tow apparently hit the Claiborne Avenue bridge.

First quarter figures show U.S. economy in stagnant doldrum

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer caution and deteriorating foreign trade held economic growth to an anemic 0.9 percent annual rate during the first three months of this year, the government said Friday.

The Clinton administration tried to use the report to boost its deficit-reduction bill, but economists said tax increases in the legislation would moderate any rebound from the first-quarter slump.

Growth, as measured by the gross domestic product, the sum of goods and services produced within U.S. borders, was less than one-fifth the robust 4.7 percent rate of the fourth quarter, the Commerce Department said. And it was just half the preliminary estimate of 1.8 percent.

Stock prices and the value of the dollar fell after the report's release. Commerce Secretary Ronald H. Brown said it "confirms our view that the economy is not growing fast enough to create new jobs and economic opportunities for the American people."

He said the administration's deficit-reduction bill would "create a new economic environment in which investment and productivity supplant deficits and debt as the driving forces in the economy."

National food stamp rolls indicate record numbers last March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans on food stamps jumped sharply in March to a record 27.38 million recipients, according to the Agriculture Department.

The February-to-March increase of 474,000 was more than twice the average monthly rise of about 200,000 people since last October.

It was the fourth straight month that the number set a record. The previous record, set in February, was 26.9 million.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee said the latest figures show that the economy is still faltering.

"Those who say the economy is recovering and that America is coming out of the recession should memorize this statistic," the Vermont Democrat said in a statement Friday.

Rodney E. Leonard, executive director of the Community Nutrition Institute, a liberal advocacy group which tracks the food-stamp program, called the March monthly increase "an astonishing number" that portends an expansion of the program to 28 million recipients by the fall.

REMEMBER THE LIVES THAT WERE GIVEN FOR OUR FREEDOM

When you think of your freedom, remember the way
It was given to you to enjoy every day.
It has never been free, but exacted the price
Of our heroes who made the supreme sacrifice.
As our history shows us, it's just common sense
To be always alert and maintain our defense,
Against any aggressor who seeks our defeat,
So the concept of war will become obsolete.
But until we abolish the horror of war,
Let's remember the deeds of the ones gone before,
And then pray that our freedom will always remain,
So the lives they have given will not be in vain.
-- Gloria Nowak

KENT OIL, INC. KENT KWIK CONVENIENCE STORES

DO YOU WONDER WHAT COMPANY NAME WILL BE ON YOUR PAYCHECK NEXT WEEK?

Kent Oil (operating Kent Kwik convenience stores) is a stable West Texas-based company, thirty six years old and still growing. We offer many benefits to our employees. These benefits include:

- Company-assisted medical, dental and life insurance
- Paid vacations
- Sick pay program
- Tuition reimbursement program
- Special incentive programs for all employees
- Profit-sharing and retirement plan
- Intensive new hire training
- Structured continual management training

We attempt whenever possible to promote from within. Most of our current store managers, middle and upper managment started with the company at the entry level. It is possible to move up quickly based on your experience and level of education.

Working in a convenience store is both exciting and challenging. You have to be outgoing and enjoy serving the public, while at the same time be a self-starter, as you receive very little on the job supervision.

If you are considering a career in the retail industry, give Kent Oil your consideration. Please apply at the Kent Oil office Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. 3314 N. Loop 250 in Midland. Pre-employment drug test required.

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:
- ★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet waqnt to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
- ★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you do not need daycare!
- ★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- ★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases, even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?

An initial $100 deposit is required.
