Victims Being Sought Today By Searchers

None Of Nine Bodies Found; All Believed To Have Been Tossed Over Lofty Cliff

(By The Associated Press)

ALPINE, Utah, June 7.—Encircled by guards with orders to "shoot on sight," crews scraped together today pitifully strewn wreckage of a huge sky liner and then dug into glaciated snow for the bodies of its nine occupants, three of them women, killed six months ago.

Four men who attempted to carry away "souvenirs" said they were shot at three times.

Ordered To Shoot

M. G. Wenger, postal inspector, grimly met their complaint with the announcement the half mile area over which the wreckage is scattered is "closed to unapproved visitors." He said guards have orders to shoot on sight at skulkers.

"A large shipment of jewelry lay exposed to the gaze of the first searchers," Wenger told a reporter, adding "I could give you a real story about that shipment — but I won't." Wenger did not say whether this explained the guard.

Discovered On Sunday

Four men almost simultaneously came upon the scattered airplane Sunday as they scrambled over a ridge on bleak, cliff-cluttered Lone Peak five miles northeast of Alpine and only 25 miles southeast of Salt Lake City, goal of the ill-fated transport when it crashed last Dec. 15.

No trace of bodies was visible, said the plane-finders, who hope to claim a $1,000 reward offered by the airline, Western Air Express.

The finders were Rex Moyle, Emery Andrews and Melvin Devey, farmers, and Reed Carter, 18, Civilian Conservation corps enrollee.

Plan For Removal

Stunned by the extent of the plane's demolition — it literally had showered into fragments — Western Air authorities set about to determine methods of its removal from the mountain.

Some sort of a massive derrick, they said, may be required to haul the bodies and fuselage up the terrifically sheer cliff, which is perpendicular for from 50 to 100 feet and almost sheer for 200 feet more.

Parts of the instrument panel were found but there was small hope enough of the instruments could be assembled to reconstruct the accident or determine its cause.

Most bitterly ironic note of the tragedy was the location of the wreckage itself, only 20 feet from the ridge-top over which the plane would have had clear sailing down to Utah's capital. Lost in fog and rain, the transport was 35 miles east of the regular Los Angeles-Salt Lake course.

Tossed Over Cliff

Indications are, search leaders said, that the torn bodies were tossed over the cliff with the plane's tail to their burial in ice-encrusted snow beds from 20 to 30 feet thick.

The 10-passenger, twin-motored Boeing transport departed Los Angeles for the north Dec. 14 at 11:15 p. m. Pacific time. It carried:

Pilot S. J. Samson, Co-Pilot William Bogen and Stewardess Gladys Witt, all of Glendale, Calif. Miss Witt was a native of Texas. Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wolfe, Chicago newlyweds; Henry W. Edwards, Minneapolis; Carl Christopher, Dwight, Ill.; Mrs. F. Johnson and B. G. Mitchell of Los Angeles.

Drastic Laws Being Asked By Governor

Special Message Is Delivered To Legislature; Praise For Race Repeal Is Sounded

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, June 7. — Governor James V. Allred opened up the entire subject of gambling in a message today to the special session of the legislature.

He urged more effective statutes against bookmaking and slot and marble machines and that dog track betting be prohibited.

Congratulations Extended

"I congratulate the legislature," the governor said, "upon the passage of the bill repealing the so-called pari-mutuel betting law and outlawing all forms of gaming at race tracks. In my opinion, this is a stronger bill than the one Texas had before passage of the racing commission act of 1933. A great forward step has been taken. . . .

"So far as I have been able to learn there have not been many efforts to carry on dog racing in this state. A few tracks have opened up here and there, however. Unquestionably this form of gaming is just as much to be condemned as the one outlawed last week by the legislature. . . .

Urges Ban On Bookies

"It has been stated repeatedly that most wagering on horse races is through so-called bookie shops. This probably is true, and in various messages to the legislature I have heretofore urged passage of an effective bookie statute."

Allred advised the legislature to take action intended to require local officers to enforce the anti-gambling laws.

"Among other things," he said, "I recommend that authority be given for the filing of injunction suits against gambling houses and condemnation suits for gambling paraphernalia in the district court of Travis county (Austin) where it is alleged by the attorney general that the local officers in any given county have failed or refused to discharge their duties."

The governor announced he probably would sign later today the bill outlawing betting at horse race tracks, effective 90 days after adjournment of the session. He said he would invite 17 of the 31 senators to stand with him for a picture of the signing. The invitation would not include Senator Clint C. Small of Amarillo, who voted for the final passage but later moved to reconsider.

Settlement Of Steel Strike Requested

Twelve-Day Strike In Ford Plant In California Ends; Showdowns Thought Near

(By The Associated Press)

At least 70,000 idle workers looked to presidential intervention today in the seven-state steel strike affecting plants of three major independent producers.

In a telegram to President Roosevelt, the grievance committee of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, a John L. Lewis CIO affiliate, appealed for a peaceful settlement of the strike at the Republic Steel corporation, Inland Steel company and Youngstown Sheet and Tube company "by having joint wage agreements written and signed by the steel corporations and the SWOC."

To Accept Proposal

At Richmond, Calif., striking CIO union members votel 5 to 1 to accept a proposal of their leaders to end the 12-day tieup at the Ford Motor company assembly plant.

Frank Slaby, union president, said it had won "recognition in fact," but at Detroit Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford company, asserted "nobody has any authority to recognize the United Automobile Workers as sole collective bargaining agency for the Richmond plant.

Meanwhile, the UAW drafted demands for a new labor contract with the General Motors corporation. Details were not announced.

Determined To Organize

Walter Reuther, one of a group of union officials who were beaten and ejected from the main Ford plant May 26, told a mass meeting at Flint yesterday that "we are going to organize Ford's plants no matter how many beatings we have to take."

In Chicago, a showdown was near on Mayor Edward J. Kelly's order for evacuation of approximately 1,000 non-striking workers from the strike-bound plant of the Republic Steel corporation. The deadline was set for 1:30 p. m. The mayor said that by holding the workers in the

Treasury Reports That Many Still Are Hoarding Money As In Depression Days

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Federal banking authorities said today some persons who hoarded money during the depression still are holding onto it.

They based this assertion on a treasury statement showing that money in circulation totaled $6,426,352,614 on April 30. If equally distributed, this sum would provide $49.74 for every person in the country.

The total of money in circulation includes all the currency and coin in the nation, exclusive of that held in the treasury or federal reserve banks.

Circulation during the last few months has topped all previous periods except in 1919-20 when more money was needed to operate business and industry accelerated to a wartime pace.

Federal reserve board officials said recent business expansion has increased circulation but added that a substantial sum of money still rested in private hoards.

They said the total outstanding is far in excess of the normal needs of business.

The government has called in gold and gold notes, but there is no prohibition against keeping other money.

Officials said currency of large denominations forms the bulk of hoarded money, and cited there has been no reduction of big bills in circulation since 1933.

White, 32, was killed when struck by an automobile at Fort Worth. Eugene Lopal Maum, 21, of Houston, was fatally injured in an automobile crash near Galveston.

Jim Stevens, 23, drowned near Vega. Marjorie Williams and Eugenia Neider, 15-yearold Topeka, Kansas, high school students, drowned in the Lavaca river near Vanderbilt.

Stabbed To Death

DeLois Thursby, 20, and Hicks McKinney, 45, were stabbed to death at Dallas.

Funeral services for Parker were scheduled this afternoon. He was 51.

Two Men And Sixty Horses Are Claimed In Fire At Stables

(By The Associated Press)

OMAHA, Neb., June 7—Racing went on as usual today at the Ak-Sar-Ben track where two men and at least 60 race and show horses lied in a fire.

Ak-Sar-Ben officials estimated the loss at between $220,000 and $230,000.

The two men who died when flames swept out of the main barns yesterday were Ed Kelly, about 25, a race horse "rubber," and W. T. Lochlear, 60, trainer, of San Saba, Tex.

Firemen found their bodies in the ruins of the barn and expressed belief they died trying to lead race horses to safety.

In a hospital, burned seriously, were J. E. Duffy of Bangor, Me., and Clyde Bailey of Big Spring, Tex., both employed by racing stables. The men ran from the barn, their clothes in flames.

Firemen said they could not determine immediately the origin of the fire.

Witnesses said the barn, filled with hay and equipment, burned rapidly and was half destroyed before firemen could make the long run to the field.

J. Isaacson, Ak-Sar-Ben secretary, said the barn was valued at $135,000. Horsement estimated the loss of horses at $50,000 and loss of equipment at between $35,000 and $45,000.

Trackmen said better known racers lost included "Jack Murphy," owned by R. C. Graff of Chicago; "Queen O'Gold," owned by J. C. Elfer of Chicago; "Trans Pecos," and "Square Dance" of the Reynolds stable at Fort Worth, Tex., and "Lady Peenzie" and "Hustle Away," of the D. Christian stable, Big Spring, Tex.

Courts Are Halted To Help Farmers

Judicial cognizance of an "emergency" which requires farmers to replan after recent heavy rains or face general economic losses, this morning resulted in passing of the dockets in both district courts at Lubbock.

In some instances, missing defense witnesses and late employment of defense counsel caused passing of criminal actions in 99th district court. Judge Alton B. Chapman of the 110th judicial district called the docket for Judge E. L. Pitts, who had exchanged benches for the day with Judge Chapman. Judge Chapman, recently appointed to replace Judge A. J. Folley, who had been named to the court of appeals of the seventh district at Amarillo, was disqualified to preside because of the origin of some of the 110th district cases when Judge Chapman was district attorney.

Farmers Need Time

Judge Daniel A. Blair of 72nd district court asked attorneys to agree on no jury case settings unless they believed the cases would go to trial beyond any doubt.

"Farmers will need five days and nights steady work to get in cotton," he said. "Many of them will have to use lights on their tractors —and some of them may not finish even then in less than a week. They have been to me, saying they are needed on the farm."

Other court attaches said sadi farmers have seed cotton ready, but are in a quandry because weather had not let them into their fields.

One caes had been set especially for 9 o'clock Wednesday, and two cases will be heard Friday. Neither are jury actions.

In 99th court, no case was set for this week. Upon motion of defendant, two cases against W. E. (Bill) Ernest, charged with murder while driving an automobile when intoxicated, which case had been set for Wednesday, and failure to stop and render aid, were continued. A defense witness for whom process had been issued had not been served, said counsel. State was prepared to go to trial Wednesday, announced Burton S. Burks, district attorney. State will have to send to Oklahoma City for a prosecution witness when the rial is called.

Other cases passed were: State against H. H. Roberts, disposing of mortgaged property, missing defense witness; State against W. L. Bonham,ham, removing of mortgaged property, missing defense witnesses; State against O. M. Iles, forgery, state failed to get service on a subpoena issued for an out-of-state witness; State against W. T. Nichols, forgery and passing, defendant under bond; State against W. H. Ballard, swindling over $50, defendant had paid off the asserted indebtedness and the prosecuting witness requested that the case be passed; State against R. B. Bell, disposing of mortgaged property, no torney employed.

Logan specialized in oil litigation while in Wichita Falls. For many years prior to that he resided in Hamilton, Texas, and was active in state politics, especially during the administration of Governor James Stephen Hogg. Poor health had kept him in virtual retirement during the last two years.

Extension For PWA Debated

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The house considered today a proposal to extend for two years the Public Works administration.

PWA, due to expire June 30 unless the bill passes, now has available for loans about $124,000,000. Applications are pending against this fund from communities which have voted bonds to pay their share of the cost of projects.

The bill would make $135,000,000 available for grants by extending PWA's power to use a $95,000,000 balance in its revolving fund and by authorizing it to sell $40,000,000 of securities.

Must Be Approved

Only projects already approved by PWA's examining division would be eligible for loans or grants under the extension proposal.

PPresident Roosevelt agreed last week to revoke a recent order which limited PWA grants almost entirely to relief labor payrolls.

That order had caused communities to show little interest in PWA grants. Refusal was based on the reported difficulty of finding competent relief workers.

Salary Legislation Is Backed By CIO

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 7.—John L. Lewis threw the general support of his Committee for Industrial Organization behind the administration's wage and hour legislation today. He opposed, however, what he called "wage-fixing" contrary to "American precedent and practice."

The burly, square-jawed labor leader told a joint congressional committee that a nation-wide minimum standard of wages and hours was necessary to increase purchasing power and spread employment, but quickly added:

Opposes Wage-Fixing

"We should adhere, I am convinced, to the minimum basic wage as a fundamental right of employes, and not confuse or impede progress by experiments in wage-fixing as such."

He said the part of the measure to which he objected would authorize a labor standards board to establish "a fair wage" commensurate with "the value of the service or class of service rendered" in industries where collective bargaining is ineffective.

"It may be that the intent is the laudable one, based on British and Canadian experience, to require all workers in an occupation or industry to conform to the wage standards established by a substantial majority of the workers in an in-

Attendance At Camp Boosted

Far surpassing expectations, 77 Boy Scouts from Lubbock, Lamesa and Ralls registered at Camp Post Sunday for the second of summer council encampments, according to report today to Earl M. McClure, executive.

Scout officials had expected that registrations would not exceed 60. Only about 66 were in the camp last week, but attendance was reduced because of rains during the previous week. The final summer camp, which will start Sunday, is expected to be the largest, as troops which have not already attended from practically every community of the nine counties of the council area will participate.

Troop 23 Leads

In the present camp are troops 2, 4, 7, 8, 9, 10, 12 and 13, from Lubbock; 22 and 23 from Lamesa, and 3 from Ralls. Troop 23 led all others with 15 boys registered. Lesie Pratt is scoutmaster and Lowey Loveless, assistant, is in charge of boys at the camp.

Two added features will be included in Tuesday's camp program.

"Naturally," said the marquis, "we hope it is true. It would be a help. But we were not expecting anything. Mr. Rockefeller gave us a nice wedding present when we were married (in 1927). Since then we had understood that all his money would be given to charity."

Amelia Soars Across Ocean

(By The Associated Press)

NATAL, Brazil, June 7.—Amelia Earhart headed over the South Atlantic in a light rain today for Dakar, Senegal, her goal on the African continent in her intended flight around the world.

She left here on the 1,900-mile flight at 2:16 a. m., Eastern standard time and radioed more than four hours later that "everything is going fine."

Makes Perfect Takeoff

The plane made a perfect takeoff at Paramiribio airport while officials of the field, operated by the French Trans-Atlantic Flying company, Air France, looked on.

With the American flyer was her navigator, Capt. Fred Noonan.

Miss Earhart, who arrived here yesterday morning from Fortaleza, Brazil, rose at her hotel a little after midnight and was at the field at 1 a. m.

In Happy Mood

She laughed and shrugged her shoulders when a newspaper photographer's old-fashioned flash pan failed to work because it had been drenched in the rain.

Noonan jumped into the cockpit first. Then Miss Earhart lifted herself in and waved to the small crowd as the motor started and the plane roared into the air.

Delicate Instruments Are All Ready For Tuesday's Eclipse

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 7—Naval observers and National Geographic society astronomers stood vigil today over delicate instruments installed on a tiny island in the mid-Pacific for tomorrow's total eclipse of the sun, the longest in 12 centuries.

From barren, hitherto uninhabited Canton island, one of the few dots of land in the path of the complete shadow, came wireless reports that the scientists expected unexcelled visibility at the moment the moon obscures the sun at 2:06 p. m., Eastern standard time.

The American encampment, completing its three weeks' installation work yesterday, was ready to photograph and study the eclipse for 213 seconds in an effort to solve the mysteries of the sun's strange outer light fringe, the corona.

A partial phase of the eclipse, the National Geographic society announced, will be visible southwest of a line drawn from Eureka, in northern California, through Amarillo, Tex., Shreve-

June Starts Off Right As Month Of Brides

Personnel of the county clerk's office held the records to prove Saturday that June and brides go together.

At office closing time an aggregate of 12 licenses had been issued for the month of June, a figure which assumes significance when compared with other months of the year. During the first five days of no previous month of 1937 have more than seven licenses been issued.

Those facts, however, do not mean that June will lead all other months when the year has ended. Tracing back for the past five years, the so-called month of brides has never ranked first among months of its year in total of licenses issued. That distinction usually has gone to December.

Medford Allred, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Allred, 2419 Texas avenue, has gone to Albuquerque, N. M., for a vacation. Before returning to Lubbock in about a month, young Allred will visit in Flagstaff, Ariz.

John Rogers of Tulia was a weekend guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Allred. He is a former student at Draughon's Business college.

George Roach and daughter, Mrs. Marcus Halsey, jr., are in Amarillo today to attend the marriage of their niece and cousin, Miss Marjorie Roach, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. Roach, and Louis Seewald, which will take place at Central Presbyterian church at 8 p. m., with Dr. R. Thomsen officiating.

James A. McKnight served as usher at the marriage of his sister, Miss Eula Lee McKnight of Amarillo, to William Pelton Wright, jr., of Boston, which took place in Amarillo Saturday morning at the First Christian church.

"Time" don't mince words either!

Always alert for instances of social injustice suitable for screening, Warner Brothers, which recently investigated a Detroit scandal in BLACK LEGION, examines a New York one in this picture. Based on the recent trial of Vice-Racketeer Lucky Luciano, MARKED WOMAN reveals the occupational troubles of the trollop (prostitute). It is a powerful and grimy melodrama, complete with courtrooms, district attorneys, killings, beating, clip joints and dialog like, "I'll get you if I have to crawl back from my grave to do it."

Mary Dwight (Bette Davis), working as hostess in a cabaret, shares an apartment with four of her colleagues. Except for a charge of murder, when the nightclub owner, Johnny Vanning (Eduardo Ciannelli), has a customer killed for not paying his check, her existence rolls along smoothly enough until her little sister, down from school for a weekend, comes to pay a visit. At a Vanning party, Mary's little sister is murdered for resisting rape. From this point on, MARKED WOMAN is concerned with the rebellion of the hostesses against their boss; the efforts of a young district attorney (Humphrey Bogart) to make them testify; and the trial in which Vanning gets his approximate deserts.

Bette Davis has been the screen's ablest specialist in unhealthy roles. To her portrayal of its neurotic heroine and to Eduardo Ciannelli's of its hard-boiled Latin villain is due most of MARKED WOMAN'S affectiveness. Good shot; The last — Bary saying good-bye to the district attorney after the trial, then going off with friends.

Hubbers Take 10-1 Victory Sunday To Sweep Big Spring Series

Two Hurlers Are Battered For 16 Bingles While Blanchard Yields Five To Visitors

BY COLLIER PARRIS

Pecking steadily at Horace Wallin's "nuthin'" ball and dough-popping Chuck Morgan's righthanded slants for a total of sixteen bingles, the Lubbock Hubbers once more turned back the Cosden Oilers of Big Spring and swept the two-game weekend series with a Sabbath day 10 to 1 victory.

Lefty Jerry Blanchard limited the potent but outclassed visitors to five hits, the fifth coming in the ninth inning to inaugurate a rally and ultimately result in Big Spring's lone tally. Lubbock won Saturday's game, 5 to 1, behind the five-hit hurling of Slim Spradlin, a righthander, and yesterday's triumph, the club's sixth victory of the season, was additional redemption for the double defeat suffered a week earlier by Amarillo's Oilers.

Blanchard deserved a shutout yesterday, and had it on his hip until a couple of infield errors let in the Big Spring run. Rat Ramsey, industrious and fire-eating Cosden backstopper, singled sharply to start the ninth. It was his second hit of the afternoon and he was the only visiting hitter to touch Blanchard for more than one blow. Carmon Brandon, former Rice institute star athlete, was safe when Lubbock's first baseman, Lefty Bettes, left his post and was not there to take the throw. Blanchard fanned Pat Stacey, the Saturday pitcher who played the outfield for Big Spring Sunday. Manager "Pepper" Martin's grounder to Breedlove was relayed to Blue Graham at short forcing Brandon. Ramsey went to third safely, and in the mixup, Martin stole second. Bill Holland, former Tahoka player doing second base duty for Big Spring yesterday, grounded to Ed Hambright at third. Ed fielded the ball, but threw wildly to first, letting Ramsey score.

Outside of that inning of mental lapses, the Hubbers played fine ball, defensively as well as offensively.

Double Play Helps

A well executed double play saved Blanchard considerable embarrassment in the sixth inning, after he had pitched five innings of one-hit ball, that a harmless single by Ramsey in the fourth.

Skeets West opened the sixth with a single to right. He went to third on Jake Morgan's single to the same spot, Jake taking second on the throw. Pitcher Wallin beat out a scratchy infield hit, and the bases were loaded, three straight singles and nobody out. Blanchard was in a spot.

The Cosdens, four runs behind at the time, elected to gamble for big stakes or play for nothing. Tommy Hutto, former Aggie star, strode up proudly, jumped on the first ball and it bounded to Blanchard, who threw West out at the plate. Catcher Del Coppage shot a fine heave to Bettes at first, doubling Hutto, and Jake Morgan was held at third. Ramsey grounded out. Hambright to Bettes, and Big Spring's most dangerous threat of the two-day series was ended without damage. It required headwork and fancy playing, but the Hubmen were capable of it.

Dozen Struck Out

Blanchard struck out a dozen batsmen with his high, hard one and his curve ball which was working almost perfectly. He walked a couple in succession in the eighth, but two were out and the next man grounded out to him.

It was an unusual series in that the Hubber defense functioned beautifully to make five putouts at the plate, saving as many runs during the two games.

Lubbock did its heavy scoring in the seventh inning yesterday, after collecting five scattered runs off Wallin, ex-T. C. U. player. The giant southpaw had been touched for ten hits during the six innings, and the Hubmen had scored once in the first, again in the second, twice in the fourth and once in the sixth. He was pitching fair baseball, but Manager Martin elected to remove him in favor of Chuck Morgan, who played in the outfield Saturday.

The Hubbers greeted Chuck with five consecutive hits. Bettes led off with a single, and Blue Graham blasted a long hot two-bagger to left. Bettes scored on Thompson's single, and Graham came in on Harold Crites' single. Toby Pair got another, scoring Thompson. The runners advanced and Crites scored on an overthrow from Brandon in right. Breedlove hoisted a high fly to center, scoring Pair. Coppage, who had hit safely the first three times at bat to lead the Lubbock batters, including a sixth inning double, lifted another long fly to center. Lefty Blanchard, who still remembered that pitchers CAN hit, got his first bingle of the day after being "robbed" of three others, long, hard hit fly balls that went nearly to the boards. Blanchard was forced at second, retiring the side, on Hambright's roller to second.

Graham's fence-busting double in the first inning scored the first Lubbock run, Bettes, who had singled, coming from first. Graham headed for home on Thompson's single, but was nabbed at the plate in a close play from Jake Morgan at short. Morgan's two-base error and Coppage's single scored Toby Pair in the second. Consecutive singles by Breedlove and Coppage, a long fly by Blanchard and Hambright's single brought in two runs in the fourth. Pair's single, followed by Coppage's double and Blanchard's long fly to right which Brandon took off the fence, brought in Pair in the sixth.

At least one ball game, possibly two, will be played this week at the local park before the Hubbers make their first road trip, going to Sudan Sunday for a return game. The Hubbers will meet Muleshoe here either Friday or Saturday. The Black Hubbers, local negro team which has been working out all season, are to make their first public appearance here Sunday, when the Hubbers go visiting.

Exhibition Is Slated Today

Climaxing a five-day visit with fishermen and friends in Lubbock in the course of a three thousand-mile tour of the South, Jack Lamb, noted fisherman and magazine writer, is to appear in a public exhibition of artificial bait casting at the local baseball park this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Lamb, whose home is at Fort Worth, will demonstrate his skill with both the fly rod and the casting rod this afternoon, showing and explaining the difference in manipulation of the two, and exhibiting his skill as a bait caster for accuracy and distance. He has heaved a light plug more than 250 feet, and can make a "fly" do many strange tricks with almost effortless handling of the long willowy "pole" and light line.

Exhibition Is Free

While his favorite fishing is directed against the black bass, king of fresh water game fish, Lamb does not limit his piscatorial adventures to this type, nor does he catch all of these with the heavier casting rod tackle. He likes to catch big fish with light fly rod tackle.

The exhibition is free, and is open to the public. The purpose is to create home interest in what Lamb considers the greatest of all sports, and to cause more fishermen to turn to the more sportsmanlike use of artificial bait. He will endeavour to teach something of the science and strategy of bait casting, thus encouraging wider use of tackle, which in turn encourages more fishing which leads to more interest in conservation and propagation of game fish — which is Lamb's ultimate purpose.

Giants Stagger Into League Lead

San Antonio Moves Up In Standings

(By The Associated Press)

Rain and Oklahoma City's inability to stand prosperity placed the fast-moving San Antonio Missions within three games of the Texas league lead today.

The Indians lost their third game in four starts last night but San Antonio, riding the crest of a dangerous winning streak, swept over the lowly Dallas Steers in a doubleheader, 5-1 and 9-7.

Missions Are Close

The Missions are in third place but only two games behind the runner-up Beaumont Exporters, who were idle because of rain, Jupe Pluvius halting a double bill with the Fort Worth Cats.

The Padres clouted Vic Frasier for three runs in the first inning to ice away the first game early while Bill Miller kept the Steer hits well-scattered. The nightcap was a see-saw battle. It was three straights over Dallas for the hustling Missions.

Oklahoma City downed Galveston 3-0 in the opener but the Bucs swash-buckled their way to a 9-2 decision in the final. Ralph Buxton decisioned Eddie Cole in a mound duel which saw but four hits on each side and in the nightcap Frank Anderson limited the Indians to three blows. Jim Keesey clouted a homer to prevent a shutout for Anderson.

Houston advanced with a double victory over Tulsa, taking the first game 4-3 and the second 1-0. Johnny Stevenson was tight in the clinches in the nightcap. He limited the Oilers to two hits. In the first game Houston pounded Max Thomas for eight hits and Tulsa got ten off Allyn Stout and John Grodzicki but the Buffs were more timely.

Local Golfers Cop Matches

Playing host to golfers of at least three towns, Meadowbrook shotmakers Sunday afternoon won a composite match, 17 to 13.

J. D. Hinson, Lubbock player, was medalist with 62, one stroke over the course record. "Red" Doherty, who shares the course mark, fired a 65 and until Hinson's score was announced, appeared to have posted the day's low mark.

Prizes Are Awarded

H. Hare of Slaton took his man, J. Goodgion of Lubbock, out with the greatest margin, 8 and 7. Both Hare and Hinson were awarded golf balls as prizes.

To a string of seven birdies, Hinson put together an eagle and three pars. He was down in bogie strokes only twice. He carded 30 for the front, 32 for the back nine.

Results Announced

Phillips Oilers Victors In Littlefield Game Sunday

LITTLEFIELD, June 7 (Special)—Manager Dick Ratliff's Littlefield baseball club almost went to town in a big way Sunday, all but outplaying and outscoring the powerful Phillips Oilers of Amarillo, 4 to 3.

Tommy Hall, new pitching sensation for Littlefield, drew fine support and engaged the veteran Luke Coburn of Amarillo in a nifty mound duel.

The Littlefield club showed wonderful improvement over earlier exhibitions, and in the opinion of close critics as well as fandom at large is on the way to a successful season.

Chicago Cubs Also Moving Nearer Top

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Their pitching is in a sorry state; their hitting is nothing to write home about — but still those New York Giants are leading the National league today.

Some say they're lucky; others contend it's Bill Terry's strategy of run making when it counts, and the newly found fight the Giants have uncovered.

Others Offer Help

To a large extent, the Giants' sudden rise to the loop lead, which they took with a 9-5 victory over Pittsburgh yesterday, may not be due so much to themselves alone as to the help supplied at the right moment by the Pirates and Cardinals.

However, the success of the Giants is shaky at best, largely because of the Chicago Cubs. For, while the Giants have been chasing the Pirates, the Cubs have been right after both of them, and at the moment, are only a game away from the Giants and a slim percentage margin back of the Bucs, through their record of winning eight of their last ten games.

Split Twin Bill

Yesterday they split a twin bill with the Boston Bees, winning the nightcap 7-2 after losing 7-1 in the first game.

In the American league, the big time's current "hottest" outfit, the Chicago White Sox, boosted their winning streak to eight in a row by belting over Connie Mack's pathetic Athletics twice, winning 6-1 behind Ted Lyons' four hit first game pitching and 6-5 in the nightcap.

That double left the Sox only a few percentage points off second place Cleveland, since the Indians dropped a ten inning 8-7 contest to the Washington Senators. A scheduled second game was rained out. The New York Yankees, leading the loop, also lost ground, finishing on the short end of a 5-4 count to the Tigers.

Cards Take Two

The Cardinals took both games from the Phillies, the opener 7-2 and the nightcap 9-0, the latter on a forfeit in 4 1-3 innings. Umpire Ziggy Sears handed the second game to the gas house gang because it seemed the Phils, hopelessly behind stalled in the hope the 6 p. m., Sunday curfew would halt the battle before the final five innings.

Alex Kampouris contributed a homer with the bases loaded as the Cincinnati Reds walloped the Dodgers 9-2. The Red Sox split with the St. Louis Browns, winning 6-5 and losing 3-2.

YEP, THEM HUBBERS can play ball for our forty cents. They looked plenty good out there the last two days, for two reasons: They're capable ball players—and they hustle. And when a team hustles, even if it's not so capable, it can play for our money.

It's a shame that the local park is not equipped with lights so they could play more often, and so we could see them more often. Some good opposition could be brought here if we played night ball.

Even with lights, however, we won't be entirely satisfied with the Hub crew until it wallops the daylights out of Amarillo. On paper, Amarillo is supposed to be considerably stronger. On the field, we'll take the Hubbers. But the old Amarillo jinx prevails in baseball, to all appearances, just as it does in football.

Outside of Amarillo, the Hubbers have a perfect standing for the season. There are three marks on the debit side of the Hubber ledger, and the Oilers of Amarillo are responsible for all of them.

Speaking of Amarillo, the Oilers almost took a licking yesterday, and by a team at present held in rather low esteem by most of the fans of the vicinity.

This isn't an "I told you so" story, but that Littlefield outfit, as you were warned, is coming to the front. It has added pitching strength now, and Tommy Hall, the new ace of the Littlefield mound staff, almost won out over old Luke Coburn, veteran Amarillo chunker yesterday. The score was 4 to 3, favoring Amarillo. A club that can hold that bunch that close must be pretty good.

Littlefield is getting so good, in fact, that the Hubbers are steering clear of an offer to play them Wednesday of this week, at Littlefield. Some of the local boys can't leave their jobs, and the rest aren't willing to stick their necks out at Littlefield, unless they're at full strength. The club will be at full strength when it goes to Littlefield Sunday, June 27, for an official return game.

BALL PARK OFFERS FREE PARTY TODAY

When is a baseball park not a baseball park? When it's a fishing grounds, of course.

It looked almost that way, the local park did, for a day or two last week, and today it'll be that.

One of the country's most distinguished catcher of fishes will be out there this afternoon from 5 o'clock on, casting his flies and his plugs all over the lot, for the education and edification of not only the fishing folk but sports fans in general.

It's really a show to see Jack Lamb cast that artificial bait. Even if you never fished a lick, if you don't know the difference between a gray hackle and a royal coachman, a black bass from a goggle-eye or a shimmy wiggler from a four hook plug, you'll enjoy seeing Lamb manipulate the rod and reel.

In a little private exhibition for the benefit of KFYO Landis and your humble servant, Lamb showed just a bit of his ability Friday. At Buffalo Springs

The three children let out a pitiful shriek, the car streaked to the left. Mr. Folkerth couldn't steer—he couldn't stop! A speeding sedan blocked the way. But by some stroke of fortune the oncoming car took a wide swerve, missed their uncontrollable car by inches.

Men who travel about a lot tell The Plainsman that whenever discussions of "coming cities" are the order of conversation, the names of Lubbock and Corpus Christi always head the list.

As a matter of fact, it's usually "Corpus and Lubbock" in the order named, since the metropolis of Nueces county has really expanded more than has Lubbock over the past 10 years.

UNLESS something comes up to cause the administration to veer off on another track, the American public is soon to be treated to a three-ring circus with some of the nation's leading men as principal—if unwilling—actors.

According to President Roosevelt, about 100 to 150 of our richest citizens have been using all sorts of ruses to avoid paying their just share of income and corporation taxes.

As a result, a congressional investigation is being planned to put them on the spot, with all the country on the sidelines to enjoy the pillory.

It should be some show.

Like all the rest of the "have-nots", The Plainsman is in favor of giving the tax-dodgers—if that they be—the well known "works".

THERE is a disquieting, and, in fact, quite an ugly story going around Washington in connection with the forthcoming investigation.

There are those who believe, or at least profess to believe, that New Dealers from the President on down have planned the investigation—and are at present working up the window dressing—for two reasons not nearly so altruistic as one might think.

We learn from Washington correspondents that many Washingtonians believe the President and his aides have planned the field day at the expense of "economic royalists" to attract public attention from the walloping his court and executive reorganization plans have received at the hands of the public and Congress. And it is further charged that through the congressional investigation Mr. Roosevelt is planning to pay off some political scores; that he will use it to spank some of those who fought his re-election and who have disapproved of his methods throughout the time he has been in office.

If either of these charges is true—and we sincerely hope they are not—the machinery of government will be misused in a most contemptible way.

It will behoove both press and public to watch carefully the forthcoming investigation, so that no man—regardless of his wealth or political beliefs—may be unjustly treated.

For the President's own good, it is to be hoped that not all those investigated and held up to public scorn are his political enemies, for anyone with any sense knows that New Dealers and Old Dealers, Republicans and Democrats are all pretty much alike, especially when it comes to their pocketbooks. If it is shown that many Roosevelt foes are tax-dodgers, it only naturally follows that a lot of his friends must be in the same category, human nature being what it is, unaltered by political views.

In short, if the investigation is "on the up and up", let her go, Gallagher!

If it's a political move, that's something else.

A lonely cowboy entered a Lubbock restaurant the other day and the waitress came to his table.

"May I take your order, sir?" she politely inquired.

"Yeah," he said, "Ham and eggs, over easy, and a kind word."

A few minutes later she put the order before him.

"What about that kind word?" he asked.

The waitress thought a moment and then whispered in his ear:

"Don't eat them eggs!"

ABOUT this time every year, when love wells in so many youthful breasts, it is quite a pastime for young people—mostly girls—to try to pull an uproarious joke on a friend by calling The Journal on the phone, claim to be the friend in question and announce her "marriage".

Usually the "marriage" is supposed to have taken place in Clovis, Roswell, or some other seaport, and the groom is either the young lady's "crush", or some boy she despises. The idea, of course, is to get that sort of thing in the paper to cause the friend to become the butt of a practical "joke".

For the information of these "humorists," neither The Journal nor The Avalanche prints telephoned "wedding" stories. Neither do they print them when they are sent through the mails.

These humorists can save themselves trouble by forgetting their little jokes. All wedding stories are verified fully before they are published.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Failing, with the help of GERRY NEAL, to locate her companion, BETTY HAYNES, abducted by JACK SPEDDON, MARTHA BRITTAIN starts north from San Francisco up the west coast. She faces a critical problem since she is torn between love of Neal and her better judgment.

Suddenly at a small California town she casts love aside and has Neal arrested, charged with complicity in Betty's disappearance. Then Martha speeds on to Portland where she learns a JOHNNY CIZNIK, underworld character of Seattle, seems to be involved in Betty's case. Police hint that Betty may have been murdered.

Arriving in Seattle, still searching for Betty, Martha gets a letter at the Yukon parking block from ARNOLD SLOSS, head of the Airspeed Trailer Company, ordering her to turn over her equipment to a designated agent who would meet her there. The agent is Speddon and he slugs Martha, binds and gags her and leaves her in an abandoned dock warehouse to recover.

Later Speddon arrives, tells Martha that she is to see Betty. Then she is loaded into a new boat and chloroformed. Her last thought as she lapses into unconsciousness is that she has become involved in some gigantic crime ring.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

Her head splitting with pain that came in fierce rhythmic strokes, like the force of a metal piston, Martha opened her eyes.

She lay on a blanketed berth, and at first she believed that she was regaining consciousness in a hotel room. The slight rolling of the berth she attributed to her nauseating illness—and then gradually, she realized that she was aboard a ship.

She remembered now the speedboat bouncing over the moonlit waters of the Sound, remembered the lights of Seattle crowning its seven hills. She remembered, too, that huge hulk coming toward her with the white cloth in his hand. Speddon had remonstrated. What was it he had said? "There's no need for that . . . she's not going to jump overboard." Nevertheless the damp rag of chloroform had been clamped over her mouth and nose. Her assailant had said "I'm working for Johnny Ciznik."

Painfully she rolled her eyes to take in the stateroom. The walls were white steel, painted over many times, yet the rivits stood out plainly. She saw no portholes anywhere, and guessed that the ship must be of good size, that probably her stateroom was below the waterline. The single door was of steel, and the lock looked heavy. She knew instinctively that it was bolted, that there was no need of her getting up to try it.

From somewhere beyond the wall came the sound of throbbing engines. They were under way! But where to, Martha wondered—and was Betty really aboard? Had she been chloroformed only so that she would not recognize the vessel, or simply to make it easier for them to get her aboard and below without her asking to see Betty Haynes, as Speddon had promised her?

These and a hundred other questions flooded Martha's splitting head. So great was the pain that she tried not to think, tried to relax enough to sleep. Her throat was raw from the anaesthetic and her eyes burned frightfully. With a hopeless groan she turned on her side, buried her face in the berth's blanket, and tried to lose consciousness again. She knew that if she left that berth, tried to get her feet beneath her, she would crash to the floor.

Suddenly she heard the sound of the heavy knob on the steel door. Breathless, she sat up on the berth, watched the door open slowly. To her amazement, her visitor was Chinese — yellow and wrinkled with age, dressed in a long black coat and trousers. In his parchment-like hand he held a cup from which steam rose in slow spirals.

"You drink," the Oriental said, coming toward the berth and holding out the cup. "This make you feel better. Make head wise."

Afraid to refuse, Martha took the cup from his hands. He nodded encouragingly as she raised the cup to her lips. Then as she drank slowly, he backed toward a corner of the stateroom, sat there on a stool, still watching her with a smile.

"You — you don't need to stay," Martha said.

The Chinaman nodded. "I stay. You drink. Make head wise."

She did feel better for having accepted the cup of hot liquid. Finishing it, she put it down on the battered table beside the berth. "Is Miss Haynes aboard this boat?"

"Miss Haynes?" The Chinaman's eyes widened. "Lady with corn-colored hair your friend?"

"Yes . . . yes, she is. Is she really here?"

The Chinaman nodded. "Yes. She all right. You sleep now."

"I don't want to sleep. I want to see that girl. Take me to her now."

The man's face slipped once more into impassivity. "You sleep. Girl all right. You see her when time comes."

"What—what is this ship?"

He grinned. "Mista Ciznik, he own this ship."

"Do you — do you know Gerry Neal?"

"Mista Neal? Yes . . . I know. Good friend."

Dismally Martha sank back on the pillow, stared at the painted steel above her. "When will I get out of here?" she asked listlessly.

"When Mista Ciznik say . . . Unless revenue boats come."

He smiled again. "If revenue boats catch up, then you must die." He pointed to a roll of heavy chain in the corner of the room. "That keep you down at bottom of water. So you not talk when revenue men come aboard ship."

Martha paled. "Has — has that happened . . . before?"

"Yes . . ." The Oriental nodded. "Yes. Let us hope it will not happen this time."

"Why won't you take me to see Betty Haynes? Why can't you bring her here?"

"Because Mista Ciznik say not to." He looked at her oddly. "You ask many questions. That is bad. You will know what you need to know, when the time comes."

He lapsed into silence, appeared at times to be dozing. But Martha saw that periodically the slant-like eyes were directed toward her, that she was being watched as if he were a cat and she a cornered mouse.

Thus they sat, facing each other, while the engines of the vessel throbbed. At last the knob of the steel door turned again slowly. Martha's frightened eyes watched it.

The newcomer was Speddon. "Okay, Ling . . . you can get going." Obediently the Chinaman shuffled through the open doorway. Speddon turned to Martha. "Feeling better now?"

"Let's not pretend." Martha answered angrily. "What are you going to do with me?"

Speddon smiled. "That sounds like you're feeling better, all right. Ciznik wants to see you in a little while. I came down to take you to his cabin. You'll like it better there."

Martha set her feet onto the floor, stood up uncertainly. "As long as I have to be on this boat I'd rather stay here. But you promised me I'd see Betty Haynes. Where is she?"

"You can't rush things around here." Speddon said. "They go just as fast as the chief wants 'em to, see? Whatever he says, goes. You found that out in the speedboat. Now come on with me and save yourself some grief."

Wordless, Martha walked unsteadily toward the door, faced a row of steel steps rising almost perpendicularly. Steadied by Speddon's hand on her arm, she began to climb them.

THE CHILD LOSES IN WAR, TOO

Most discussions on the fearfulness of war center around the cost in adult life and limb and in dollars and cents.

In fact, The Journal cannot remember ever hearing the horrors of war discussed with the juvenile population of a war-tossed nation in mind.

A recent dispatch in the New York Times, however, treats with what war does to the little folks. This particular dispatch, telling of the arrival in England of some 3,800 children from bomb-raked Bilbao, Spain, contains some terribly tragic paragraphs. As, for instance, this one:

"It was not the children's physical condition, however, that caused most concern. . . . The saddest by-product of the Spanish civil war is their overwrought mental condition, brought about by the terror of the air raids. The war has left many of them abnormally nervous, perhaps for the rest of their lives. They have spent hour after hour huddled in 'refugios' with their frightened mothers while Rebel airplanes droned overhead, dropping bombs. . . . Scores have seen brothers, sisters or little friends killed or maimed near their homes."

Most human beings, regardless of nationality and place of residence, think they would do anything in the world for the good of their children and to protect them from harm and misery. But when adults permit war, whether civil or international, they forget about the awful toll taken among their young.

Americans and all other nationals would do well to think not only of adult death and injury and economic loss in connection with conflict, but to consider, also, what it does to children.

Perhaps such thinking might help to forestall future wars.

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—All over the lot: Virginia Bruce and Franchot Tone are about to do a love scene for "General Hospital." The lights are adjusted, the set swept and the flowers straightened, and Director George Seitz calls for a rehearsal.

Both Tone and Miss Bruce have been chewing gum. They're still chewing it as they sit on a couch and go into a clinch. She seems a little giggly; he's frankly bored. One man on the set who isn't bored is a chief petty officer of the navy who has been detached from duty and sent to the studio to study photography. Instead of watching the cameraman, he watches Miss Bruce.

Soon Seitz is ready for a take. He tells the players that they must continue their lovemaking a little longer and that he'll cut them out of it when he wants them to break. "Don't wait too long," says Miss Bruce. "I won't know what to do."

She and Tone throw away their gum and resume their clinch. He doesn't seem bored now, and she doesn't giggle. The director allows the scene to run for what seems like a long time. After he calls "Cut!" the navy man continues to sit and stare in a sort of ecstatic trance. "Man—oh man!" exclaims the sailor, and the set whoops.

Facing The Music

Tone has a tougher task in the next scene. He has to slap Maureen O'Sullivan. They try it a time or two, but the sound of the slap isn't recording as well as it should.

"Sock her harder," says Seitz. Tone socks her harder.

"Try cupping your hand a little, Franchot," suggests Seitz. The actor cups his hand. After a few more blows, Miss O'Sullivan's left cheek is scarlet and she begins to flinch before she's hit. "After all," she asks testily, "how long is this going to go on?"

The sound men decide to fake the sound of the slap. After experimenting, they find that smacking the seat of a leather chair sounds just right. So a man stands by and smacks it just as Tone slaps the actress again. "Okay for sound," says the sound man. "Print it," says Seitz.

What Will People Think?

Shirley Temple has just started to work in "Heidi" and seems more excited about this picture than anything she has done. For one thing, she read the Johanna Spyri book a few weeks ago. A good deal of it, anyway. Also, thousands of people have written in asking that the story be filmed with Shirley.

For the first time, she has much of the eager interest of a star in a dramatic vehicle; she had her mother read aloud each revision of the script, and the Marvel Moppet pointed out things she didn't like.

Although Shirley can read pretty well, she still learns lines most readily by having them read to her. Mrs. Temple does that. Each evening they go over the next day's scenes, but mostly for sense and continuity. Like most movie players, Shirley learns her lines right on the set.

She won't dance in "Heidi" and her only singing will be a hymn, not yet selected, along with the other people in a church.

One of the things she does want to do in this picture is milk a goat. Mrs. Temple and Director Allan Dwan are having an awful time trying to explain that maybe it would be better not to milk a goat. Shirley says the little girl in the book milked a goat, and what will people think if her picture isn't like the book?

Rude Awakening

Robert Young went to sleep in his portable dressing room on the "You'll Be Married by Noon" set.

An hour later, bright and brisk, he emerged holding his script in the manner of an earnest young actor who hadn't been napping at all, but had been studying his lines.

He got a loud hee-haw for that—and from a strange company. His own crew had trundled the dressing room a couple of blocks and parked it beside Jean Harlow's on the set of "Saratoga."

Breathless Realism

For a scene in "The Firefly," Jeanette MacDonald was supposed to be flushed and breathless, having just finished a Spanish dance. Fact was, though, that she had done her dancing three days before.

So the director assigned a couple of actors to run her around the stage. Each grabbed an arm and galloped. They ran her until she was too breathless to protest, then plopped her in front of the camera.

Made a very realistic shot, and they got it the first time.

All Is Quiet Humor On The Potomac, Dutche Says, Producing Some Official Wise Cracks

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 7—If this were England and the king said what President Roosevelt was overheard telling Jack Garner the other evening, there would be a sartorial revolution overnight.

Dutcher

The First Gent and First Lady were having their annual party for the newspaper folk of Washington. The high spot of it was a Virginia Reel in which Mrs. Roosevelt outromped her son Jimmy, her daughter-in-law Betsy, Secretary Morgenthau and several correspondents and wives. The male reelers wore beautiful colonial satin costumes featuring green, scarlet, yellow and blue.

"How did you like those grand colors on the men, Jack?" the President asked. "I'm telling you, in another year we'll all be wearing colored dinner coats. Better do your shopping early."

They Should Know

James and Betsy were the only Roosevelt children at the party. James, who functions as a liaison secretary (lobbyist is a better word) between the White House, government departments and Capitol Hill, is in his early thirties.

A dancing partner remarked to his mother that the orchestra was a fine one.

"Yes," replied the First Lady, "that's what my kids tell me."

A Horse On Joison

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Stephen B. Gibbons recently was in Hollywood.

At one party of movie people he caused temporary consternation by remarking to Al Jolson:

"Every time I hear you sing, it reminds me of a horse."

Hostilities were averted when Gibbons explained. Many years ago he had had a date with his wife-to-be at the Winter Garden in New York, where Jolson was appearing. He made the mistake of going to the Hippodrome, where the chief attraction was a handsome white horse which dove into a tank.

Deep Welles

The new undersecretary of state, Sumner Welles, stands stiff as a ramrod and without making any apparent effort has always managed to create the impression that he is a bit on the high-hat side. He is about the last man in the world from whom a stranger would think of trying to borrow a match.

On the ship which carried the American delegation to Buenos Aires Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull mixed daily with fellow passengers, played games and had no end of informal democratic fun.

Mr. and Mrs. Welles remained aloof. That was why someone gave them a nickname lifted from the title of an English novel which caused some fuss a few years ago. Nickname: "The Welles of Loneliness."

Influencing People

Congressman Wright Patman of Texas, who favors anything just so it's inflationary, is out with a boat trip invitation to "all members of the group sponsoring the bill for government ownership of the 12 federal reserve banks."

The trip will be made down the Potomac river "on the Coast Guard Cutter Apache, generously furnished by the Coast Guard" and (printed in big capital letters) "ALL NECESSARY ARRANGEMENTS TO MAKE THE TRIP PLEASANT WILL BE MADE."

The object is "a good-will meeting of our group and to permit the members of our group to associate with and become acquainted with distinguished and outstanding American citizens who believe as we believe on monetary problems."

And then, just as if that were not enough bait, Patman proclaims:

"Mr. Dale Carnegie, author of the best book seller, 'How to Win Friends and Influence People,' has already accepted and will be there without fail."

How many votes Mr. Carnegie will wangle for the bill is anybody's guess.

Scout Camp

One will be a visit and inspection of the camp by the camp committee from Buffalo Trails council at Sweetwater, of which Al J. Styles is executive. Each year, McClure explained, the camp of a council is inspected minutely by a committee from another council and their report determines the national rating of the camp for that year. Showing of Plains council camp was comparatively low last year, but development work of the last year is expected to improve the showing.

McClure also announced that the meeting of the council finance committee will be held at the camp after supper Tuesday afternoon. An attendance of 12 or 15 members is expected.

"But be this as it may, such a procedure to say the least is very confusing and extremely difficult of application.

"Moreover, what is of fundamental importance is that it is not in accord with American precedent or practice, for it amounts to a wage-fixing by a governmental agency."

He urged congress to "hold to American tradition and precedent" by establishing the "fundamental principle . . . that every worker should be protected by a minimum wage" determined without reference to collective bargaining conditions in the industry.

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—Cotton futures opened quiet, 2 higher to 2 lower. Influence of steady Liverpool cables was offset by favorable weather, July 12.73; Oct. 12.70; Dec. 12.69; Jan. 12.70; March 12.74; May 12.76b.

B.—Bid.

Price changes were narrow and irregular in the absence of outstanding developments to influence the market over the week-end.

The opening demand came from trade and foreign sources while selling included further July liquidation and offerings by locals and wire houses.

Further rains in gulf states over the week-end were regarded favorably although some sections were believed to have been getting too much moisture.

Prices tended to sag after the opening and selling in July continued.

Oct. sold from 12.70 to 12.66 and the more active positions shortly after the first half hour showed net losses of 3 to 6 points.

The Egyptian cotton crop was estimated by the Egyptian government at 9,107,189 cantars, a record total.

Liverpool was steadier in quiet trading, influenced by an advance in the London gold price.

Liquidation spread into forward deliveries as favorable private crop advices continued to be received and the market turned heavier by midday. Offerings increased carrying prices off to net losses of 12 to 16 points. By midday the market was at or within, a few points of the lows with the undertone barely steady.

Foreign interests had supported the market during the first hour but this demand tapered off when the markets abroad closed.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, June 7 (AP)—The cotton market opened quiet but steady today and first trades were 1 to 3 points net lower because of a little commission house selling and liquidation.

Liverpool cables were about as expected and there was nothing in the news over the week-end to affect the market either way. The recent uneasiness over the gold situation appeared to have lifted and most traders preferred to hold the sidelines pending some dominating incentive.

The cotton region weather summary was awaited with interest for information on the extent of rains in the central belt.

July opened at 12.62; Oct. 12.66; Dec. 12.73; Jan. 12.76, March 12.80 and May 12.82. Toward the end of the first half hour the market was quiet and at or near the opening figures.

Prices receded gradually during the morning on desultory selling orders and near mid-session the price level was 8 to 10 points below the previous close.

The weather map showed light to heavy scattered showers over the belt and predicted additional moisture would fall today and tonight.

Pegging of the gold price in London steadied the Liverpool market and had a like tendency on local prices but persistent liquidation kept the market on the downgrade.

A private service estimated world consumption of all cotton at 30,250,000 bales.

Worth street said there was a somewhat firmer tone in goods prices but sales continued small.

Bill Jaggers Is Discharged From Sanitarium In City

Bill Jaggers, 48, farmer of Morton, who was shot and seriously wounded on Morton town square last May 25, has been discharged from Lubbock sanitarium and returned to his home, according to information given at the hospital this morning.

W. S. Walt Jones, also a resident of Morton, is at liberty under $2,500 bond to answer a charge of assault with intent to murder in connection with the case. One of three bullets which hit Jaggers penetrated his left lung.

RAVENOUS FOR LEARNING

The first Ohio river ship to reach Louisville, Ky., came on June 16, 1800.

Replanting Is Under Way

Many farmers Sunday took advantage of the sunshine to start replanting of crops and fighting of weeds. Scores of machines and teams were at work most of the day in fields.

Waterlogged fields, in which farmers may not be able to work for several days, continue to predominate in many sections. Low places in fields this morning still had water standing, while even on higher ground effects of previous water prevailed.

Weeds Are High

Threat of weeds was apparent; the rainfall of the last week in May and the first in June has started an unusual crop of weeds that threatens to overrun crops unless checked. Weeds in many fields were a foot high.

Replanting got under way Monday in a big rush as farmers prepared to turn under washed out or sand covered cotton and replant a new lot. Sand was washed into the rows from ridges to a depth of several inches in places.

Lakes are full from the rains as farmers report the heavy fall rushed off non-terraced land into barrow-pits.

Pastures Are Green

Pastures are luxuriant and green. From a distance many of the pastures, without mesquite or cactus, appear almost as heavy with grass as lawns. Rapid growth of grass and weeds has put pastures in splendid shape for grazing.

Feed crops that were not covered up, are off to a good start. Fields replanted since the rains also are showing up.

Reports indicate the moisture during the rainy period ranged as much as 10 and 11 inches in some sections. General consensus was that the fall exceeded five to six inches over a greater portion of the South Plains area.

Leases On Lubbock County Land Filed

Leases conveying rights for exploration of oil and gas on approximately 1,600 acres of Lubbock county land were filed in the office of the county clerk late Saturday.

Four of the five filed involved rights on land in the southern part of the county, the land described as being in blocks 20, A-K, and E-2. The other lease conveyed mineral rights on a quarter of a section northeast of the City of Lubbock.

Rights were obtained by the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company, one of the leases having been obtained by W. R. Chancellor and assigned to the company. The company has offices at Fort Worth.

Persons from whom leases were obtained and descriptions of the land were: R. W. Harrist and wife of route 4, Lubbock, the northwest quarter of section 36, block 20, HE & WT railway company survey, containing 155 acres; J. T. Hutchinson and wife of Lubbock, west one-half section 15, EL & RR railway company survey, all of the west one-half of section 20, HE & WT railway company survey, and 313 acres of the west one-half of section 30, Georgetown railroad company survey, all being in block A-K and containing 953 acres; H. J. Jackson and wife of West, southwest quarter of section 10, block E-2, B & B certificate No. 59, patented to J. K. Carraway; Lenore B. Tunnell, administrator of estate of Hansford Tennell, deceased, of Tahoka, northwest quarter of section 24, block 20, HE & WT railway company survey; and W. B. Croslin and wife of route 1, Lubbock, 165 acres in south part of section 4, block A.

Several other leases involving mineral rights on other Lubbock county lands of that section previously had been filed by the company.

Senate Court Bill Foes Are Ready To Submit Report

A last conference by the judiciary committee majority remained before submission of the report to the senate.

When Italy Celebrated Founding Of An Empire

Drawn up in a great phalanxes in magnificent Venice Square at Rome, thousands of soldiers are pictured here as they took part in the recent celebration of the first anniversary of the founding of the "Italian Empire." Massed on the steps of the great memorial were more uniformed soldiers and black-shirted guards of Il Duce. The celebration marked the passing of one year since the conquest of Ethiopia.

later, he demonstrated before a few of the local fishing nobility his artfulness with the modernized hook and line.

Incidentally, Lamb has fine praise for the improved Buffalo Springs place. "It's got everything you need for bass," he exclaims. "All it needs is good stocking. Put 'em in there, and it'll be a fishing paradise. Lubbock shouldn't gripe about not having a nearby fishing hole."

In larger and smaller cities, Lamb attracts huge crowds to his exhibitions, which are absolutely free. As a rule, they're put on in the centers of town, on courthouse squares or similar spots. But there is insufficient room at the local square, and too many trees, to boot. So Jack selected the ball park. He can be close to the grandstand there, and he invites all of you out at 5 bells today.

Quite a character, this Lamb. He's fished every day, nearly, for the past 27 years, and has caught probably more fish than any one man in Texas. He learned to make money out of fishing, so now it's a business, but still a pleasure. He throws back more than half of the fish he catches, not counting the undersize fish—and he hasn't tasted of fish in seven years!

A case of salmon consists of 48 one-pound cans.

Betty Jameson

rived" yesterday with her smashing triumph over Miss Berg.

High winds bothered Miss Jameson but little in her match with Miss Berg. Wobbly at the start when she dropped two of the first three holes, the hometown gallery favorite slowly steadied and squared the match with birdies at the eighth and ninth holes.

Nurses Her Lead

On the thirteenth hole Miss Jameson got down in par and from then on nursed a lead that ran out the match on the thirty-third hole. She played daringly in the wind on the second nine of the morning round for a 39, one under women's par and went to luncheon holding a two-hole lead.

Exhausted from two rounds played in the blistering heat Saturday, Miss Berg received treatment from a physician between rounds and came back in the afternoon ready to close the gap. She whittled Miss Jameson's lead to a single hole at the twenty-first green but slowly slipped behind thereafter.

"One of the best of all women golfers," grinned the popular Patty of Betty as the match ended. "She has courage—real courage—and a good head and natural ability. Best of all, that girl is a real competitor."
