Attempt Being Made To Show the Correspondence With Ship Company Concerning Orders

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—From an 18-year-old wireless operator who testified in the witness chair like a seasoned child, United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle today wrung an acknowledgment that "maybe" the captain of the steamer Vestris had announced by wireless that he was in difficulties more than 18 hours before the ship sank and 14 hours before the formal SOS.

Charles Veschere, young Scot, assistant radio man of the Vestris, was the first witness at today's session of the investigation into the disaster before United States Commissioner O'Malley. The phrases "I don't know," "I don't remember," and "I forget," ran thickly through all his testimony.

Youth Shouts Back
"Who told you to forget?" Tuttle shouted at him at last, and the youth shouted his answer back, "No one."

At the very opening of the session Tuttle told the commissioner that he had reports from confidential sources which made it necessary for him to announce that anyone who attempted to prevent any witnesses from telling the whole truth in the investigation would be severely dealt with.

Try Probing Messages
Tuttle's efforts today were all directed toward an attempt to find out what wireless announcements of distress were sent out prior to the SOS and to whom they were directed and whether any instructions were sent to the Vestris in response which might explain why the SOS was not sent until the middle of Monday morning, four hours before the ship sank with no rescue vessels within many miles.

While Tuttle's hearing was in session, the Vestris quiz page 2

Peanut Pusher Is Day Ahead

HARLINGEN, Nov. 16.—(P)—Blistered knees, a degree of fever and general stiffness today reminded Bill Williams, election bet loser, that he was a day ahead of his schedule, by which he must roll a peanut eleven miles with his nose.

Williams agreed, if Governor Alfred E. Smith lost, to roll a peanut with his nose from Rio Hondo to Harlingen, 11 miles, in 11 days or better. At the end of his second day he had gone 3.3 miles.

Highway Plans Of County Discussed In Meeting Here

Proponents of Bond Issue, In General Session, Lay Campaign to Put Across Proposed Paving

Continuing their efforts on behalf of the passage of bonds for the proposed county-wide hard surface highways, 65 Lubbock citizens, many of them veterans of past civic campaigns, gathered in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce in this City Hall last night when additional plans to carry the election set for December 1, were laid.

A half dozen speakers were called upon for explanation of facts and figures bearing upon the campaign and J. J. Clements, local contractor, acted as chairman. Mr. Clements has been appointed to head the city campaign for the passage of the bonds by the Lubbock County Good Roads association, the organization which is sponsoring the plan.

Previous Figures Requested
Retracting previous statements that Lubbock county's expenditure of $2,004,000 will, through state and federal highway aid give the county an adequate system of hard surface highways costing approximately $4,000,000, the speakers pointed out that an increased tax rate of 53 cents per hundred dollars valuation will more than care for the retirement of the bonds. Their 53 cent figure, they said, is based upon the present county valuation of $23,000,000 and does not take into consideration the fact that the county's valuation "has and will likely continue to increase at a rate of more

Borger Mayor Is Charged In Fraud

BORGER, Nov. 16.—(P)—Alleged violations in the obtaining of poll tax receipts today led to the indictment of Glen A. Pace, Borger mayor, the fourth city officer to be charged in the grand jury's attempt to "clean-up" Hutchinson county," as ordered.

Two weeks ago the police chief and two officers were indicted for malfeasance in office.

Pay Taxes Unlawfully
The indictments today charged that Pace had unlawfully gotten Jack Barnett to pay for the poll taxes of Rush McQueen, Sam R. Gray, S. B. Hinkle, and C. H. Kaufman. In 1927, one indictment was returned for each poll tax.

Pace is at liberty under $4,000 bond, $1,000 in each case.

Ralph Spears, Former Assistant Cashier of Paris Bank, Tells of McDonald Making Eight Will Over 14-Year Period, All Giving Bequest

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Eight wills prepared by William J. McDonald over a period of 14 years each contained a provision for an astronomical observatory for the University of Texas. It was testified by two defense witnesses in the contested trial of the late Paris millionaire today.

Ralph Spears, former assistant cashier of a Paris bank, asserted he had typed six wills for McDonald containing the provision between 1910 and 1924. W. F. Moore, attorney, who counseled the financier in the preparation of two instruments, one in 1924 and another in 1925, gave details of the preparation of the last will which is the MINERAL WELLS, Nov. 16.—(P)—Rushing the business of the assembly to completion at a night session, the Texas Baptists general convention adjourned a full day ahead of schedule.

(By Associated Press)
MINERAL WELLS, Nov. 16.—Hurling an eloquent challenge at Texas Baptists to meet this "heart-breaking emergency with unflinching courage," Dr. George W. Truett, Dallas, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, appealed today to the state general convention here to take the "blow" arising from the alleged defalcation of T. C. Carnes, $953,000 defalcation.

"Let us face this crisis and put it behind us," the Southern Baptist leader said in an address detailing events leading up to and including the alleged defalcation of T. C. Carnes, $953,000 defalcation.

So eager were ministers and laymen in the convention to obtain additional information regarding the asserted defalcation that Dr. Truett's address was climaxed with a discussion that attained round-table proportions.

The Dallas pastor urged that local churches and county boards be directed through proper administrative channels and that the signature of three board members be required in any financial transactions involving Baptist institutions.

Direct reference to Carnes also was made in the Home Missions report read by Dr. F. S. Groner, Marshall, which termed Carnes' affair

Fury of Norther Fails to Strike

The threatened very cold norther, which Friday morning promised to go to or below the freezing point for that night, after about a third of an inch in rainfall, brisk winds, and a final clearing of the heavens, settled down to a moderate norther, the thermometer registering only 38 at 11 o'clock last night.

At 7 o'clock Friday morning the temperature was 39 degrees, while at noon it had dropped to 47 degrees.

It showed a tendency to drop as the night wore on last night, however, and this morning will likely find it hovering near the freezing point.

Lubbock's rainfall was slightly more than a trace while surrounding points reported precipitations from one-third to one inch. Station reported five-eighths while Plainview has a good shower, also. Floydada had two-tenths inch fall.

Co-operative Marketing Emphasized By Coolidge

Says Price-Fixing Attempt Would Prove Fatal

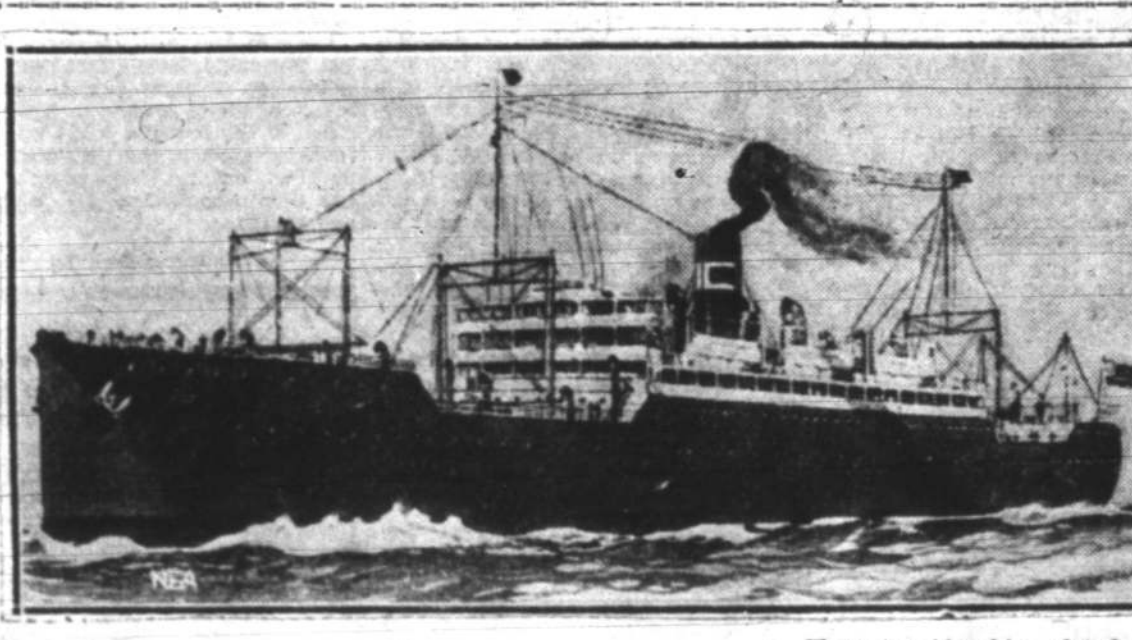

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Co-operative marketing was emphasized tonight by President Coolidge in an address delivered before the National Grange in which he reviewed problems of the farmer and described as "hazardous" proposals of a subsidy which he said the American people would not pay for any length of time.

At the same time, Mr. Coolidge told the farm representatives that any attempt at price fixing on farm products or the entry of the government into business would prove fatal to agriculture. Assistance necessary to render the cooperative effort more effective through a board supplied with funds to demonstrate its soundness in its experimental stage might well be provided by the national government, he said.

Democratic Party Faces Big Deficit

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(P)—The democratic party faces a deficit of approximately $1,600,000 in meeting expenses in the recent campaign totaling about $5,200,000, James W. Gerard, treasurer of the democratic national committee, announced today.

The bulk of the recent contributions have been in amounts from $1 to $25. Mr. Gerard considered the inflow of contributions as "testimonials to the popularity of Governor Smith and Senator Robinson, among the masses."

South Plains Has Increase of 25 Percent In Turkeys; Hold Big Trot Here

Lubbock Poultry and Egg Company Holds Trot Of 2,800 Birds Here Yesterday; Another One Set For Today; Plan Shipments Totalling 15 Carloads

Lubbock had an impromptu, unannounced, but spectacular Turkey Trot Friday afternoon, when 2,800 turkeys were driven from the canyon, about 2 1/2 miles north of town, to the Lubbock Poultry & Egg company, 912 Sixth street.

Reason for the Turkey Trot is that no great number of the Thanksgiving-Christmas bill-of-fare fowls have recently been purchased by the company from the farmers of the South Plains that room other than their regular pens was necessary and they have been kept at the place north of town until wanted for shipment.

Another Trot Today
Today a similar number of the fowls made famous by the Puritans will be trotted into town again from the same place, at the concern had been about 4,000 of them feeding there.

A total of about 15 carloads of turkeys have already been purchased by this company to supply the seasonal demand. By the time the season will have passed, 75 more cars will be handled, making a grand total of about 90 carloads.

The money represented by this big volume runs between $75,000 and $80,000 paid to the farmers of this section cash money, too, and surplus.

According to Richard White, manager of the company, this year's increase of turkeys over that of last year is about 25 per cent.

Rafael Benevides Claimed By Noose Near Farmington, New Mexico; Was Attired In Nightshirt

(By Associated Press)
FARMINGTON, N. M., Nov. 16.—Three masked men took the law into their own hands today and lynched Rafael Benevides, believed by police to be the Mexican who early Wednesday attacked Mrs. Charles Lewis, wife of a prominent sheepman of Aztec, N. M.

Benevides was taken from the Farmington hospital where he lay with a bullet wound in his abdomen, and was hanged from a locust tree in a grove on an abandoned ranch two miles from the hospital.

Woman Is Attacked
Mrs. Lewis was beaten unconscious by a Mexican who entered her home Tuesday night while her husband was on a hunting trip. The man carried her on horseback into a canyon and left her there unattended. She wandered back to the ranchhouse and Sheriff Blount organized a posse to search for the abductor.

Yesterday afternoon Benevides was encountered by a posse at the Murphy ranch near the Colorado line and was shot when he resisted arrest.

Men Are Masked
Shortly after noon today, three masked men entered the hospital and told the nurses in charge that they wanted the Mexican. The men did not molest the nurses but told them to stand aside and they would not be harmed.

With the Mexican attired only in his bedclothing, the men took him from his bed and out of the hospital. The nurses notified Dr. A. M. Smith who called Sheriff Blount at Aztec.

Sheriff Blount and his deputies for a search in the vicinity of Farmington found the body of Benevides.

Coolidge Speech

ever gave an industry more aid than agriculture has received in this country, the president said, further improvement in the farmer's condition would come from more scientific production and above all from a wider application of the cooperative principle.

Thanks to the "most impressive" of government efforts in behalf of agriculture he added, "The great agricultural depression has been gradually relieved. In 1921, the purchasing power of farm products had dropped to 50. In October of this year it has risen to 80. The livestock industry is especially prosperous, but grain prices are not so encouraging. Yields per acre for this season were about 3 percent above average for the last 10 years while the acreage of crops harvested was the largest of record. This gives a very definite assurance of an increased income for agriculture as a whole."

Schooled In Production

"It is apparent the farmer has become very well schooled in the art of production. But further advance will be made through the use of improved machinery and of improved breeds of stock, more scientific cultivation and the elimination of all wasteful methods which will reduce the cost and increase the quality of production. The farmer who can proceed in these directions is on a solid foundation with every assurance of success."

"The lesson which has not yet been so well learned is that of marketing. One of the greatest handicaps of agriculture is temporary overproduction. The world is hungry to consume all that the farmer ever raises. His difficulty arises from attempting to sell at the wrong time or the wrong place. The most successful method of meeting this difficulty has been through cooperative associations. They have enabled agriculture in a large way to take better advantage of all the agencies of distribution, the bankers, the carriers, the commission merchants, the packers, and the millers. This is a movement to unify all the agencies of production, distribution, and consumption, so that they can function as a coordinated whole which will sell at the right place and at the right time. A fine example of this is the grape exchange recently established in California."

Movement In Infancy

"This movement toward cooperative marketing is still in its infancy. It has sometimes failed through lack of management, but it is sound in theory, and when conducted in a business like way offers the most promising solution to the great marketing problem."

"It avoids any attempt at price fixing or putting the government into business, which would be fatal to the independence of the farmer and in the end would bring disaster. It likewise avoids the hazardous proposal of a subsidy, which the American people would never be willing to pay for any length of time."

"It rests on the sound merchandising principle of taking the product and disposing of it in the most advantageous way that shrewd and orderly marketing affords. Such further assistance as is necessary to render this effort more effective through setting up a board for its administration, supplied with sufficient funds to demonstrate its soundness in its experimental stage, may well be provided by the national government."

"The president discounted the theory that agriculture would be benefited if duties on manufacture imports were removed."

"The government's contribution to the farmer, through the federal farm loan system, he said, constituted "a benefit the like of which no government anywhere on earth ever before bestowed upon an industry."

The report set out that the money must be restored speedily and called upon members of the Texas Baptist convention to make up for the loss. The report also called for the future of the Home Mission Board would be purely speculative and of doubtful propriety," Dr. Gruber's report, accepted by the assembly, said.

The first conference to politics during the convention was made in a report by J. M. Combs, Beaumont. The resume of laymen's duties did not point out any specific instance where politics had invaded the ranks of the Baptist church, but asked that "every loyal Baptist breathe fervent prayer that never again in excess of zeal for or against any candidate, shall a cause about which honest men entertain different opinions, be permitted to intrude itself in the sacred precincts of our churches."

Asks For Tolerance

"Men of every political faith or opinion ought ever to be free to meet in fellowship, forgetting their differences," the report concluded.

Road Meeting

than a million dollars every year. Speakers included Chairman Clements, George A. Field, division highway engineer who was called upon for statistics concerning types of hard surface roads; W. E. Dickinson, pioneer citizen and long time exponent of good roads; J. A. Hodges, merchant; B. Sherrod, president of the Chamber of Commerce; and Jed A. Rix, chairman of the Lubbock County Good Roads association, which is composed of citizens representing practically every community in the county.

Optimism Marks Meeting

Throughout the evening, which was given over entirely to discussion of plans to insure victory for the bonds, there was a note of optimism, marked especially by the statement that opponents of the proposal had the inherent right of citizenship to vote as their consciences dictate.

"We want to do everything we can to put this proposition over," Chairman Clements counseled, "but we also want to remember that there should be no hard feelings over it. Go out to your friends and acquaintances with the facts and the figures. See that they get nothing but the truth but that they get the whole truth. If they do we shall be perfectly willing to abide by the vote on December 1."

Campaign History Sketched

The history of the campaign, which began four years ago and was produced in its present form four months ago as the result of a county-wide survey made by a committee from the Chamber of Commerce, was given. It was again pointed out by speakers, as in past sessions of proponents of the bond issue, that the idea had evolved from months of work and study and was not derived from the wishes of any particular group or clique.

Types of hard surface construction, saving to motorists driving over paved roads as compared to dirt roads, cost to taxpayers, the issue is carried, and the fact that maintenance "will be no more costly if as costly as the present maintenance on the dirt roads" were all brought out by speakers. Mr. Field, when asked his opinion concerning the cost of maintenance of the hard surface roads if constructed, said that it would not be as great as the maintenance expenditure which governs the state and federal designated highways of the present.

Rix Praises Attendees

The men who attended the meeting represented a variety of businesses and callings and were characterized by Mr. Rix as being "the same courageous group of civic workers and city builders who carried to successful finishes the hotel, Denver railroad, Texas Tech and other campaigns of progress."

Figures were quoted to show that travel on hard surface highways averages three and six-tenths cents less per mile than upon dirt highways. Figures quoted were compiled by Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, the speakers said. The local saving however, to be conservative, is being based upon a computation of two cents per mile, Chairman Clements said.

Fairness Is Stressed

Fairness of the proposed hard surface system in caring for the needs of Slaton, Shallowater, Monro, Idalou, Becton, Union, McClung, Canyon, Acuff, Woodrow and other important centers of population over the county was stressed and it was pointed out that while all communities were being taken into consideration that Lubbock, as the county capital and "Hub of the Plains" was being maintained as the hub of the system.

A meeting scheduled by the Lubbock County Good Roads association at Idalou last night was postponed due to the heavy condition of the roads following yesterday's rains.

Progress in the federal building Captain Frederick Sorenson, a ship's master who was a passenger on the Vestris, was telling, at a steamship inspection service hearing in the custom's building, a story that differed sharply from that he was reported in the newspapers as telling when he landed Wednesday.

Captain Sorenson denied today that the lifeboats were "rotten" and improperly equipped.

Boats in Good Condition

He said at his hearing that, so far as he knew, the Vestris' lifeboats were in first class condition, and that they contained the prescribed equipment. He said he thought the Vestris crew probably

He said he was in a boat that sank immediately after striking the water, but the sinking, he asserted, resulted from damage done to the life boat when it struck the side of the Vestris while being lowered.

MacDonald, another radio assistant. In Tuttle's investigation, James followed young Vaschere to the stand, MacDonald said he joined the Vestris November 10, the day she left New York, after having been a radio operator since 1913. Vaschere had been an operator for three months only and his experience consisted of one round trip to South America on the Vestris.

Noticed Listing Saturday

MacDonald testified he first noticed the ship listing at midnight Saturday, but said he spoke of it to nobody and he did not hear it mentioned among the officers until the morning of the day the ship sank.

Hansen said the ship rolled Sunday night, that one of the ports was unfastened, and that water went in to the coal bunkers. He had a set of photographs he made of the Vestris and the launching of the lifeboats, and these were placed in evidence.

The final witness was Arthur B. Costigan of the radio Marine Corporation, connected with the R. C. A. He said that, at Tuttle's request, he had been searching for radio messages from and to the Vestris, and that his search was not yet completed.

The first radiogram put in evidence and read to the court was from Captain Carey to the Lamport and Holt line. The time received, stamped on it, was 11 a. m. Monday, November 12. It read as follows: "Have to turn from noon yesterday. During night developed 32 degree list. Starboard decks under water. Ship lying on beam ends. Impossible to proceed anywhere. Sea moderately rough."

"Signed," Carey.

Tuttle here remarked on testimony of previous witnesses that they did not know of the engines being stopped at all.

"And this shows the ship was hoisted to for almost 24 hours when this message was sent," he said.

Subpoena Vulture Officer

After court adjourned, Tuttle said he would subpoena the commanding officer of the Vulture, flagship of the Lamport and Holt line, and radio operators of the American shipper, steamship which brought the rescued Vestris radio men to New York. He said he also would submit to the court the official report of the commander of the Battleship Wyoming.

The Vulture was en route to New York from South America Sunday and Monday, and Vaschere testified that the Vestris had called her several times on Sunday, but denied that the calls had anything to do with her difficulties.

It had been hoped to have as the principal witness today Chief Officer Frank M. Johnson of the Vestris, senior surviving officer, but shortly before time for the hearing to begin, Tuttle announced that Johnson had disappeared. He was located later at the Hotel Holly where he had gone with other officers of the ship Wednesday after their arrival aboard the rescue vessel.

Johnson was served with a subpoena and it is expected he will be asked by the Federal attorney to answer questions regarding the charges of inefficiency of officers and the crew and explain why the SOS was not sent out early enough so that rescue ships could have been sent to abandon ship.

at the scene when it became necessary to request the Lamport and Holt line to produce Johnson.

LONDON, Nov. 16. (AP)—British thought on the Vestris disaster, as reflected in shipping circles and newspaper comment, today was to the effect that judgment as to blame should be suspended until findings have resulted from the investigations started or projected in this country and in the United States.

The temper of the friends of Capt. William Carey was shown by the action of the Imperial Merchants Service Guild in cabling New York attorneys to protect the good name of the commander who went down with his ship.

The daily papers continued to print columns of details of the wreck and stories of the survivors which have been cabled from New York.

Lamport and Holt, owners of the lost steamship, have started an investigation of their own but it is being conducted privately. The decision of the board of trade to conduct an inquiry independently of the board of inquiry has been commended by several newspapers.

Hansen said the ship rolled Sunday night, that one of the ports was unfastened, and that water went in to the coal bunkers. He had a set of photographs he made of the Vestris and the launching of the lifeboats, and these were placed in evidence.

The final witness was Arthur B. Costigan of the radio Marine Corporation, connected with the R. C. A. He said that, at Tuttle's request, he had been searching for radio messages from and to the Vestris, and that his search was not yet completed.

The first radiogram put in evidence and read to the court was from Captain Carey to the Lamport and Holt line. The time received, stamped on it, was 11 a. m. Monday, November 12. It read as follows: "Have to turn from noon yesterday. During night developed 32 degree list. Starboard decks under water. Ship lying on beam ends. Impossible to proceed anywhere. Sea moderately rough."

"Signed," Carey.

Tuttle here remarked on testimony of previous witnesses that they did not know of the engines being stopped at all.

"And this shows the ship was hoisted to for almost 24 hours when this message was sent," he said.

Subpoena Vulture Officer

After court adjourned, Tuttle said he would subpoena the commanding officer of the Vulture, flagship of the Lamport and Holt line, and radio operators of the American shipper, steamship which brought the rescued Vestris radio men to New York. He said he also would submit to the court the official report of the commander of the Battleship Wyoming.

The Vulture was en route to New York from South America Sunday and Monday, and Vaschere testified that the Vestris had called her several times on Sunday, but denied that the calls had anything to do with her difficulties.

It had been hoped to have as the principal witness today Chief Officer Frank M. Johnson of the Vestris, senior surviving officer, but shortly before time for the hearing to begin, Tuttle announced that Johnson had disappeared. He was located later at the Hotel Holly where he had gone with other officers of the ship Wednesday after their arrival aboard the rescue vessel.

Johnson was served with a subpoena and it is expected he will be asked by the Federal attorney to answer questions regarding the charges of inefficiency of officers and the crew and explain why the SOS was not sent out early enough so that rescue ships could have been sent to abandon ship.

LONDON, Nov. 16. The temper of the friends of Capt. William Carey was shown by the action of the Imperial Merchants Service Guild in cabling New York attorneys to protect the good name of the commander who went down with his ship.

The daily papers continued to print columns of details of the wreck and stories of the survivors which have been cabled from New York.

Lamport and Holt, owners of the lost steamship, have started an investigation of their own but it is being conducted privately. The decision of the board of trade to conduct an inquiry independently of the board of inquiry has been commended by several newspapers.

Journalism Class Visits Newspaper

Headed by Miss Dorothy Lomax

Headed by Miss Dorothy Lomax, instructor, approximately 30 students of journalism of Lubbock high school, made a tour of inspection of the Avalanche-Journal plant last night. The students were conducted through the various departments by employees of the plant and explained the inner workings of a daily newspaper.

An extensive study of general journalism is being made by the students of the class.

He said he was in a boat that sank immediately after striking the water, but the sinking, he asserted, resulted from damage done to the life boat when it struck the side of the Vestris while being lowered.

MacDonald, another radio assistant. In Tuttle's investigation, James followed young Vaschere to the stand, MacDonald said he joined the Vestris November 10, the day she left New York, after having been a radio operator since 1913. Vaschere had been an operator for three months only and his experience consisted of one round trip to South America on the Vestris.

Judgment Is Given Hartman Widow In Suit for Damages

Judgment for $1,000, of which amount of money $25 is to be paid to each of three minor children and the balance, $975, to Mrs. Ola B. Hartman, was given Friday in the suit for damages of $22,000 asked by her against F. J. Kolodzie, in the death of J. B. Hartman, in the Ninety-Ninth district court.

The damage suit grew out of the death of Hartman, from injuries received while working on Kolodzie's building at Slaton, two years ago.

Error Is Made

Through a typographical error, in the Avalanche of Friday morning the name of Abe Kessel, of Slaton, was listed as one of the attorneys representing the plaintiff, in the suit of Ola B. Hartman versus F. J. Kolodzie, tried in the Ninety-Ninth district court.

Mr. Kessel was one of the defendants in the case, and should have been thus stated in the Avalanche article referred to.

Hoover Trip to Latin-America Is Climax to U. S. Good Will Efforts

This country's cumulative efforts to foster good will between itself and South America will be climaxed with President-elect Hoover's visit there. The general route to be followed by Mr. Hoover (inset) is shown on the map. He will leave California within a few days on the U. S. S. Maryland (below).

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Herbert Hoover's projected journey through Latin-American countries comes as a climax to cumulative efforts of the United States to foster and maintain good will between the great country on the north and its neighbors of South America.

In the last quarter of a century, many high American officials traveled through South America as virtual ambassadors of good will but no mission attracted the attention which has been drawn to the one mapped out for the American president-elect.

Has Friendly Plan

Mr. Hoover's announcement is regarded as making known in rapid fire fashion one policy he will follow as president—a studied effort to bring about a better rapprochement with Latin-America.

The possibilities of a stimulation of American trade as a result of the Hoover tour are admittedly great.

As secretary of commerce, the president-elect made known a belief that the countries to the south should be cultivated to a greater degree as a market for America's manufactured goods. American production, increasing tremendously year by year, needs the South American field as a constant and growing market, it was pointed out.

Takes On Significance

The journey takes on an added diplomatic significance in view of the Pan-American conference on conciliation and arbitration in Washington in December. Charles Evans Hughes will be one of the American delegates and it was Mr. Hughes who went to the sixth Pan-American conference at Havana.

Many of the issues and problems not settled by that gathering will be up for adjudication at the Washington meeting.

Ellihu Root, as American secretary of state, went to South America in 1906 as the personal representative of President Roosevelt. His journey was regarded as launching a new era of amity between the United States and Latin-America.

Local Men Aid In New Snyder Plant

(Special to Avalanche)
SNYDER, Nov. 16.—At the opening of bids here tonight by the Snyder city council on the purchase of a new sewer disposal plant two concerns were represented, the Panhandle Construction company, of Lubbock whose bid was $10,558.20, and the Irick Construction company of Plainview whose bid was $16,294. Both bids were laid on the table for final decision Friday, Nov. 23rd.

The disposal plant now in operation, that was put in service in 1910 has been condemned by the State Board of Health and it is necessary for the city to prepare against the large influx of new residents that are arriving daily here.

H. N. Roberts, consulting engineer of Lubbock, is assisting the council in the purchase of the new plant.

The body of Lopez was exhibited in the public square.

Select Winter Ensemble Fabrics With Care

By LUCIEN LELONG

Special Cable to Central Press and
The Avalanche

To attempt the assembling of a smart ensemble without giving careful consideration to the fabric from which it is to be made is to court failure. It is very much the same as starting on a voyage without a ticket—the result is rarely successful.

Materials are the first principle of chic, and the selection of fabrics—their combination, their contrast—requires both knowledge and taste. In my winter collection I offer a notable variety in fabrics. Much of this charm of the new mode depends upon their arrangement and design, for the new materials are distinguished by fantastic weaves, surfaces and, in many cases, patterns. They are of unusual beauty, these fabrics, but they must be nicely balanced and contrasted to arrive at a distinction which is demanded of dress this season.

For the sports ensemble, I am favoring the use of small, irregular patterned and striped tweeds and jerseys, all of which have very soft surfaces. These are distinctly handled and prettily contrasted, naturally. For instance, I combine frocks and scarfs made of small, wavy, patterned jersey, with coats of plain, diagonal or other smart-weave wools. For the simple daytime ensemble I approve of the coat made of a small pattern woolen, rich and deep in pile, worn with a one-toned frock of some smooth-surfaced material. Or, such an ensemble may be all in one tone, with a coat made of a fabric having a distinctive weave such as one of the new diagonals. These are merely two examples, but the idea behind all ensembles is an artistic whole, one which avoids both monotony and obvious.

The afternoon ensemble this winter will express richness and elegance through its fabrics as through every other detail. I strongly approve the afternoon coat made of velvet or of broadcloth, as means to this end. Naturally, these coats will be fur-trimmed, and three excellent furs are fox, beaver and astrakhan. I remind you that there are others, for I am able to give you only the briefest outlines.

Ensemble Frocks Vary.

Frocks to wear with such coats are greatly varied. There are afternoon dresses in my collection made of crepe de chine and crepe satin, and semi-transparent printed artificial velvet is a material which makes the most delightful of frocks for the afternoon ensemble. Velvet-broadcloth georgette is another smart fabric for such address. Printed materials for such usage have small patterns, usually in two inter-tone. The afternoon gown of lace, worn with a velvet coat, forms of winter afternoon ensemble of true distinction, from the material point of view. I shall speak in detail about coats later. It will suffice at the moment to caution you against violent colors and contrasts, and to say that the new winter tones are subtle and dispassionate.

Evening fabrics play an extremely significant role in giving to fashions a delicacy which is essential to the aristocracy of the new mode. I am making many evening frocks of tulle, a material that lends itself well to the subtle and dainty lines of the evening silhouette. Lace, also, in small and delicate patterns, is a favorite fabric. And I have introduced a number of new satins with surfaces which are highly brilliant. The fulga satin and lunaeol plain and brocade, are materials that I use for subtly-draped evening frocks and wraps. Chiffon, naturally, has a place in these new fashions which are so fluid and ephemeral in effect. Artificial velvet is a fabric which retains its importance, and particularly in its new semi-transparent guise, in studied tones that increase its rich quality.

The evening wrap of finest quality fur, such as ermine, I approve, and where the evening wrap is made of fabric it should be balanced with the frock it accompanies, so that the ensemble feeling is never lost.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Perfect Cleansing Important to Youth and Loveliness

When I talk to you about cleanliness your skin, M. J. B., I suppose you think immediately in terms of soap and water. You're quite right, too. A bland soap and water is all right—as far as it goes. But that's just exactly the trouble—it doesn't go nearly far enough! At its very best, that I do most sincerely hope that you'd never use anything but the very best for your skin, it only cleanses the surface tissues. When you stop to consider that the epidermis—just the outer skin, has seven layers, and that under that we have the dermis with more, you can readily see that soap and water isn't going to be nearly enough for real, hygienic cleanliness.

I approve of proper washing for face. Approve of it so much, that I have gone to great labor to perfect a ready-made, penetrating, washing preparation. Nevertheless, no washing, however well it is done, or with what penetration preparations, is all-sufficient for perfect cleanliness. Most women have found this out. However, should you doubt it, go right into your bathroom now. Wash your face as thoroughly as you know how. Then spread a little cleansing cream on your skin, rubbing it very gently into the corners of your nose and around your chin. Leave it on for a few minutes. Then, with a soft old cloth or a couple of cleansing tissues, remove the cream. Examine the skin. It will be quite evident to the most skeptical, that warm water and soap is not a perfect cleansing agent.

To go even further in the matter, I am going to tell you here that I do not consider cleansing cream wholly adequate either. Hardly any woman I know gives herself sufficient time to really remove every bit of the cream she puts on her face. As a consequence, a little surplus may remain deep in the pores. Naturally, that's very bad. Pores must be kept scrupulously free of all foreign matter if they are to function correctly. To be on the safe side and to prevent future pore complications, such as blackheads and whiteheads, I always advise the practice of exfoliating your cleansing cream with a washing preparation that will get deep enough into the pores to cleanse them thoroughly.

Now that I have suggested two practices of the professional beauty treatment, let me suggest this routine to you, M. J. B.

First of all, relax. Try and loosen up those tense muscles of yours. If they persist in being unrelenting, draw yourself a warm bath. Sprinkle a handful of coarse sea salt into it. You can obtain this in the drug store, and it is most inexpensive. Soak long enough to let the ache come out of your muscles and the hopelessness from your head. It will happen. I've often said that there's hardly a physical or mental woe that a warm, scented bath won't soften!

Now go into your room and leave commands that you're not to be disturbed except for a dire necessity. Tie your hair up in a towel and get on a loose robe that can slip off your shoulders. Take just

YOUR CHILDREN

You can't get mileage out of an automobile that isn't kept fit. A furnace isn't going to send out heat to all parts of the house if it is out of order.

Moreover, neither the automobile nor the furnace will be of the slightest use if they are not fueled regularly. And so it is with parents. They need re-fueling every little while. Perhaps there never has been an age as hard on parents as this one. Not only do the elevated standards of child care and child training put a tax on energy and nerves but the years demanded are longer. A boy of 18 in the old days was ready to help with the burden at home.

He helped with the farm work if he lived in the country, or he got a job and gave half of his earnings to his mother if he lived in the city.

A girl stepped out of school and immediately relieved her mother of a good share of the housework. Now if education does not actually extend on into the twenties, thus putting an extra burden on parents, young people at least step out for themselves. They may cease to be an expense, but that is the most that can be expected.

It is an economic change that has not worked to the advantage of the parents. And so, anticipating a middle and old age where parents must be absolutely self-dependent, it is necessary for them now to do the things that will fit them for an endurance race.

They must keep themselves fit as they go along. It is the parent who has no fun who will give way to fits of anger with the children.

No Burden at 18
Don't pay any attention to carpers who criticize you, busy mothers, for going out to a card club once a week. Go on and go.

And go to movies, or concerts or evening parties, fathers and mothers. Have some fun.

Any and all of these things can be carried to extreme. But I am not going to preach. It is understood that I'm talking to the parents who arrange for the children first and their own pleasure afterwards. But arrange I should. You need to laugh. You need to be happy. You need to mix with other people once in awhile.

Out of every week I should budget enough time for myself to keep me on an emotional level.

The children will benefit as well as yourselves.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hutchinson will be hosts to the Nifty Night club this evening at their home.

Clinging Lines

BY MME. LISBETH

Slim, clinging lines are decidedly "in," in spite of the trend toward more fullness. The bouffant period frock may have been a bit overdone or it may be that it was not as generally becoming as the slimmer silhouette, at any rate for the women of fuller figure. Fullness combined with slenderness is the vogue today, although the eddying fullness that marks the bouffant is by no means passe.

Blanche Le Claire is pictured in a dress of clinging lines, fashioned on a net foundation, with elaborately embroidered fabric surmounting it, with decorations of beads, brilliants and sequins. A circular drouce on the skirt is scalloped at the edge, reaches the knees in front and is longer in the back.

Tech And Simmons Clash Today In Colorful Contest

Gridiron Menagerie To Furnish Spectacular Battles For Football Fans

Record Crowd Expected At Final Game of Season As Matadors Meet Powerful Cowboy Eleven at 3 p. m.

Bridges Crew To Arrive With Special Train At Noon Today; Simmons Band On Board

With prospects for the largest crowd that has witnessed a game on the local gridiron this season and cool football weather prevailing, the Tech Matadors and Simmons Cowboys clash on the Tech field this afternoon in what promises to be the most thrilling gridiron spectacle of the 1928 season. It will be a battle between the crimson Matadors, fighting to regain the prestige recently lost, and the confident Simmons aggression, fresh from brilliant victories over two powerful Texas conference eleven. The game starts at 3 o'clock.

Aside from the fact that the Matadors will be playing their last home game of the season with a number of veterans in their final appearance on the Tech arena, additional color is added to the contest because of the fact that both teams are candidates for a berth in the Southwest conference. One of the two will undoubtedly be admitted, and the outcome of today's fracas will likely have a bearing on the choice.

Final Drill Yesterday
Kept off the field Friday afternoon in what was to be their final practice session, the Bull Fighters were forced to be content with a blackboard drill. Outlining the plays which will be used against the Cowboys today, Coach Freeman put the finishing touches on the offensive plan of attack upon which Tech is pinning its hopes today.

The departure of the Cowboys from Abilene was delayed yesterday because of the heavy rains which fell throughout West Texas. Coach Bridges and his entire squad will ride the special train which leaves Abilene at 7 o'clock this morning and arrives here at 12:30.

Considerably heavier than the Tech eleven, the Cowboys have words of reserve strength with the second string probably as effective as the regulars. In their last two games, the Cowhands have displayed a driving attack that completely swept the Southwest conference and Trinity Tigers off their feet.

Battered from three conference games played since November 2, the Cowboys will nevertheless have all but one regular ready for service. George Golightly, center, will make the trip but it is not to start the game. Although it has not been officially announced, the Tech band and pep squad will likely meet the special when it arrives here today at noon. In that event a parade will be staged through the downtown section of the city, with the Tech and Simmons bands leading the demonstration.

The probable starting lineups follow:

Tech	Pos.	Simmons
Hempel (39)	Left End	Sims (7)
Carpenter (69)	Left Tackle
Dewitt (74)	Left Guard	Jennings (21)
Durham (61)	Center	Allen (23)
Reed (63)	Right Guard	Ribble (37)
Knowles (78)	Right Tackle	Culpepper (26)
Vincent (76)	Right End	Moore (1)
Waller (8)	Quarterback	Kuhen (16)
L. Walker (44)	Left Halfback	Sanders (12)
R. Walker (86)	Right Halfback	Clark (15)
Hodges (15)	Fullback	Houghton (24)

Expect 300 Here On Special Train
ABILENE, Nov. 16.—Trek of Simmons football team to Lubbock for the game with Texas Tech Saturday has been delayed until the morning before the game.

Due to threatening weather, which might make travel by bus impracticable, and need of the players to attend classes, Coach Frank Bridges has announced that his team will wait and ride in a separate car on the special train leaving Abilene at 7 o'clock Saturday morning, and due to arrive at Lubbock about 12:30 noon.

About three hundred passengers are expected to be aboard the special including the Cowboy band of 60 pieces, and the Cowgirl pep squad of 50 members. Considerably battered from three conference games since November 2, the Cowhands will nevertheless have all but one regular ready for service.

Crosbyton Whips Hale Center, 12-0

CROSBYTON, Nov. 16. (Special)—Crosbyton high school defeated the Hale Center eleven by the score of 12 to 0 here today. The Crosbyton gridgers kept the ball in the visitors' territory throughout the game, scoring 10 first downs to 3 for Hale Center.

MARSHALL SWAMPS WEST-MINSTER
MARSHALL, Nov. 16. (Special)—Despite the absence of its coach, Joel Hunt, a scheduled yesterday for alleged infraction of eligibility rules, the College of Marshall eleven swamped Westminster College, 36 to 6, here today.

Strolling Down Sports Lane

With Allan Carney
Avalanche Sports Editor

Southwestern Conference games last week were all close. Teams which were hoped to win by large scores were met by determined underdogs which displayed a fighting spirit which makes the major loop of the Southwest the great attraction that it is. The great S. M. U. eleven, topping the teams in the circuit, found a revamped Aggie machine on Kyle Field which tied the galloping Mustangs and came near ousting them from the leadership of the conference. Today's encounters may be even closer.

Down at Houston the Rice Owls got their feathers ruffled up to a fighting spirit and held the powerful T. C. U. Horned Frogs scoreless for three quarters and were nipped out by a last minute drive of the Belmen to lose 7 to 6.

The battle will be continued today on the Southwest Conference war front with the T. C. U.-Texas game in Port Worth holding the spotlight. The Longhorns will be followed to Fort Worth with a special train load of 1,500 rooters and the Longhorn band. Last year on a rain soaked field in Austin, the Frogs held the Steers to a scoreless tie. The Belmen will have something besides a possible conference title to shoot at when they take on the Longhorns today. Never in the history of T. C. U. has a team from that institution gained a victory over the Longhorn team.

Down at Waco the Golden Bears of Baylor will entertain their rivals, the S. M. U. Ponies, in what looks like another victory for the Bears. Baylor's Redman Hume is back in the lineup and going at his usual speed. The Bears have several backfield luminaries almost as elusive as the Mustang are, but not quite. Gilliland has showed his heels to every team Baylor has met this season. West Waco is another gentleman the Bears will have to keep an eye on.

Dana X. Bibb's Texas Aggies play their last home game of the season today as they clash with the Owls of Rice Institute. The Owls have looked their best against conference teams this season, and may manage to win a game from the district for the bi-district championship. It is undoubtedly their best chance of the season, and exciting past games as a precedent, one can easily imagine such an outcome.

Three Lubbock football teams

Southwest Games Today To Decide Loop Contenders

Fortunes of Both Leaders And Runners-up Will Be Determined In Trio Of Clashes

DALLAS, Nov. 16. (AP)—Six Southwest Conference football teams meet tomorrow and from the trio of clashes in which the Corsicana Tigers defeated the Temple Wildcats, 18 to 7, here today.

The victory put the Tigers in undisputed possession of first place in the district chase, as the Cleburne Yellow Jackets were held to a scoreless tie by Waco.

Corsicana took an early lead. After a pass from Graves to Megarity for 19 yards had placed the ball on Temple's five-yard line, two backs took it over. Both teams scored a touchdown in the second quarter enabling the Tigers to maintain their stranglehold at the half.

The third period belonged to the visiting Wildcats, although they failed to score. Time and again they carried the ball inside the Tigers' 20-yard line but couldn't take it over.

With the wind at their backs in the last quarter the Tigers came back to score one touchdown and threaten continually. The final score resulted from a pretty 25-yard run by Jack McNutt, hero of last week's victory over Waco.

Bullock and Koch bore the brunt of Temple's attack. McNutt, Miller and Wells divided honors for Corsicana.

Cleburne and Waco Play Scoreless Tie

CLEBURNE, Nov. 16. (AP)—The mighty Waco High Tigers and the Cleburne Yellow Jackets played to a scoreless deadlock in a hard fought rainy battle here this afternoon. The tie score practically eliminates Waco from the district race. The Tigers were credited with high first downs to three for Cleburne, but Seymour star Cleburne fullback kept the Tigers from the Cleburne goal line with his long punts.

The two final quarters were played in a pouring rain and the field, which already was wet, became a quagmire in which both teams found it difficult to carry on. Approximately 7,000 spectators saw the game.

Russia's first radio-photo service is being established between Leningrad and Moscow.

Leaving Lubbock at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, the high school gridgers encountered muddy roads which slowed up their progress so they did not arrive at Ralls until 12:30. Riding in a heavy chartered bus, the football squad spent most of the day pushing the huge vehicle up the steep hills and out of the ditches on the Lee highway.

The squad arrived in Seymour last night exhausted from their hard day's travel and spent the night there. Reports of a heavy downpour between Seymour and Wichita Falls indicate that the gridgers will face another half day of hard travel before they reach their final destination. The remaining distance to be covered is between fifty and sixty miles.

effort to inject a spark that has been lacking since the Simmons contest. The young team showed remarkable development early in the year, then suddenly struck a snag and has failed to reveal the smoothness and drive that constitutes the margin between the victor and the vanquished.

Frogs Facing Veterans
Whether Coach Matty Bell has attained that objective or not will be determined in the Texas contest. For one of the few times this year the Frogs will be outgunned and, more than that, will be facing a veteran aggregation that likely will take advantage of every break.

Because of the great fight it displayed last week in holding S. M. U. to a 19-19 tie, the Aggie varsity seems likely to down the Owls. The latter team exhibited a defense against T. C. U. however, that belies its lowly standing and anything may happen in the Aggie contest. Its conference season already completed, Arkansas University meets Missouri School of Mines at Fayetteville.

While the college freshmen gridgers are engaged in conflict with the Rowell Cadets, Lubbock's high school entry will be seen in action on the gridiron in Wichita Falls, home of Bud McCallum's Coyotes. Both are facing tough games and will have to give them everything if they bring home a victory.

Brother Act

Brother acts on the major football teams are not as common this year as they were last year, but Harvard has one and it is a pretty smooth one. The regular center of the Cambridge eleven is B. H. Ticknor, shown above, and alongside him at a regular guard post is stationed W. D. Ticknor, a brother, below. Both of these fellows are hefty and shifty and make the center of the Harvard line a hard place to pass.

Westerners Get Web-footed On Way to Wichita

After traveling over almost impassable roads since 9 o'clock this morning, the Lubbock Westerners enroute to Wichita Falls, where they meet the Coyotes today, reached Seymour at 9 o'clock last night, a telephone conversation with Coach Frka revealed.

Leaving Lubbock at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, the high school gridgers encountered muddy roads which slowed up their progress so they did not arrive at Ralls until 12:30. Corsicana Takes Lead In District Four Grid Chase

Tigers Maintain Perfect Standing By Defeating Temple Wildcats 18 to 7 At Corsicana

CORSICANA, Nov. 16. (AP)—Maintaining their perfect record in the title race in District 4 of the state interscholastic league, the Corsicana Tigers defeated the Temple Wildcats, 18 to 7, here today.

The victory put the Tigers in undisputed possession of first place in the district chase, as the Cleburne Yellow Jackets were held to a scoreless tie by Waco.

Three Aggies To Be Out Of Game

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 16. (AP)—With three men nursing minor injuries which will keep them from playing here tomorrow against Rice Institute, Coach Bible of the Texas Aggies nevertheless was cheered today by the discovery that R. L. Van Zandt, 186-pound guard, will be eligible.

Van Zandt was declared ineligible shortly before last week's game against Southern Methodist University at Dallas.

The discommoded Aggies, all suffering from minor leg injuries, are Zaratomella, half, Delery, tackle, and Sovell, guard.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16. (AP)—Whether the crowds are watching the Badgers pouncing on Hawkeye, the Bull Dog barking at the Tiger or the Panther stalking the Cornhusker in his native habitat, they are quite likely to see a real fight if not several of them, when the gridiron menagerie is turned loose again tomorrow.

So far as can be seen out along the far flung horizon, it's a free for all, with no single contest standing out above the rest in general interest or countrywide importance.

There's the Yale-Princeton game, 55 years old and carrying a wealth of ancient color, but of infinitely less importance to the championship situation than the heavy battle between unbeaten Corns and Notre Dame at South Bend. There's

Frogs Make Shift In Today's Game

FORT WORTH, Nov. 16. (AP)—A last minute shift in the T. C. U. lineup for its game Saturday with Texas University will be necessary if Merlin Toler, back who does the punting for the Frogs, is unable to play.

Now it looks as if Toler will be able to play little, if any, of this crucial game. He has a "Charlie Horse."

With Toler out, punting duties will fall on Red Moore, tackle, and Buster Walker, end. Moore isn't due to start. Back Marx, having outgassed him in the Rice game to get the call, Robertson instead of Walker, being a better passer, was elected to start at end, but with Toler out, Walker is due to play one of the wings for T. C. U. when the teams line up Saturday.

Outside Toler, T. C. U. goes into the game in good shape. The Longhorns, 25 strong, arrived in Fort Worth tonight, after taking a brief workout in Dallas. The Frogs went through a light drill this afternoon.

Chicago Golfer Upsets Tourney

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Abe Espinosa, Chicago pro, upset early expectations in the second round of the $5,000 Oregon open golf tournament here today. After Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, appeared to hold the lead for the two-day play, Espinosa stroled in with a 75, which gave him a total of 145 for the first 36 holes, one less than Dr. Willing scored. Espinosa was low yesterday.

McL Smith, Columbia Country Club, Portland, chalked up a 74, bringing him up alongside Willing's 146 total score, and giving Portland a tie with itself for second place.

Johney Farrell, of New York, finished with 77 today. Mortie Dutra of Tacoma and Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., evened his 147 a core for the two days.

Walter Hagen finished the second round with a total score of 148, which puts him within easy striking distance of the leaders.

There will be 64 in the final round which starts tomorrow.

McMURRY WINS, 3-0

Safety Gives Indians Win Over Denton

DENTON, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Although outplayed to the extent of 15 first downs to 4, the McMurry College Indians from Abilene noosed out the Denton Teachers, 2 to 0, here today.

The game was played in a driving rain. In the last minutes of play a wet ball got away from Freeman, Denton safety man, and he was tackled back of his goal line to give the visitors their winning points.

Jackrabbits Beat Montezuma, 7 to 0

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 16. (Special)—The Wayland College Jackrabbits defeated the Montezuma College of Las Vegas, New Mexico, here today by the score of 7 to 0. A hard rain turned the field into a sea of mud and slowed up the game greatly. Both teams were evenly matched and despite unfavorable conditions, the game provided one of the best exhibitions seen on the local gridiron this season.

Grid Battles

The Wisconsin-Iowa struggle at Iowa City, involving the Big Ten title, but sharing the middle western spotlight, with Nebraska's defense against the powerful Panthers of Pittsburgh.

And in the South
The South and Southwest have their own citizenship affairs to focus attention, such as those involving Georgia Tech-Alabama, Vanderbilt-Tennessee and Baylor-Southern Methodist. You find most of the Rocky Mountain fans debating the Colorado University-Colorado College rivalry while farther west the Stanford-Washington and Southern California-Washington State contests occupy the spot light.

As to the business of picking winners, so far as the top-flight games this week are involved they might as well be drawn out of a hat, but here's about how they figure, any way:

How to Bet
Princeton to beat Yale with a harder hitting attack and more aggressive line play.

Iowa to beat Wisconsin on sheer power if the Hawkeyes stop the Badger aerial attack.

Notre Dame, with more versatile resources, to check the unbeaten rush of Carnegie but not by any substantial margin in a game that likely is an either way.

Nebraska to turn back the Pittsburgh Panther, in another nip and tuck affair.

Georgia Tech to break the Alabama tide and keep the pancake position in the south.

Tennessee to bowl along unbeaten at the expense of Vanderbilt but not by any one sided margin.

Georgia to stop Louisiana State.

Army and Navy to win.

West Virginia to keep up its winning streak at the expense of Georgetown in another close affair, where two of the nation's best kickers, Bartus and Mooney, should have a great duel. Army and Navy to coast along easily, at the expense of Carleton and Baltimore Loyola, in preparation for bigger games next week.

Colgate to beat Syracuse and Cornell to turn the tables on Dartmouth in two eastern classics that promise to be unusually hard fought.

Harvard to maintain its custom of looking good on alternate weeks by beating Holy Cross.

Stanford to battle Washington with its tricky "B" formation and Southern California to check the threat of Washington State in two Pacific Coast features.

Colorado College and its All-American fullback candidate, Earl (Dutch) Clark, to nose out Colorado University in another close rivalry.

New York University's steam roller to flatten Missouri, but Detroit to even the score for the middle west at the expense of Fordham.

London is taking to the talkies, many theatres having sound production devices; 15 are now being equipped, and many more are planning to do so.

No. 756 Does Good Mexia Hen Lays 325 Eggs In Year

(Special To Amalanche)

MEXIA, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Hen No. 756 of the Radley Leghorn farm of Mexia laid 325 eggs in the 12-month period ending November 1 for what was claimed to be a new Texas record for egg production. The total weight of the eggs laid by the hen was figured to be 676 ounces, which mark the owner claimed was a new world's record. A life insurance policy is being taken on the White Leghorn bird, which is valued at $2,000.

PECAN CROP IS GOOD

San Angelo to Ship Out 20 Carloads to Markets

(Special To Amalanche)
SAN ANGELO, Nov. 16.—Pecan shipments from San Angelo this season will aggregate around 20 car loads, it is indicated by early shipments. Four car loads have gone to other markets by rail and nearly that many more by truck.

The crop this year is declared by prominent growers to be slightly under that of a normal season. However, there has been more interest manifested in the industry and more systematic planting and budding this year than before.

Cuba exported $1,885,422 of fresh fruits during the first six months of this fiscal year.

THE APPROACH OF THANKSGIVING

The approach of Thanksgiving of course has a different significance to different people, and different nations. To many it means nothing, because they have not allowed their minds to think of it as signifying anything except a day in which to celebrate a football game, or celebrate some even of local nature, a feast time or something of that sort. Thanksgiving, however, has a real significance when the first one was celebrated. The harvest time had come, and the little group of people who were in this country at that time, were indeed happy that their lives had been spared, and were free from the bondage of tyranny, and were harvesting a crop of peace which would be the basis for the coming months, and indeed, it was a real occasion for them.

This date too might renew our memories of the time of year when we were made happy by the return of our soldier boys to this country after having taken part in the struggle of the world which should be a time when a special appeal should go out for peace and brotherly love, and get our hearts atuned for a real Thanksgiving time. "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you live peaceably with all men"—Romans 13:18. The terrible World War would never have occurred if the nations responsible for its beginning had been guided by the spirit of kindness and tolerance which is emphasized by the Apostle Paul in this well known chapter of the Bible. But instead of this spirit there was the greedy desire of conquest, the selfish determination to rule or the deliberate denial of the rights of neighbor nations and the ruthless destruction of non-combatants and their properties. Our own nation, unwilling to enter the war, was finally drawn into it when our own rights were violated and the lives and properties of our people were menaced. All the events of the tragic year and a half during which our American forces were actively engaged in the conflict are now a thing of the past. We have just celebrated Armistice Day, and our hearts are lifted up in gratitude to God because He was gracious enough to bring victory to our arms and end the slaughter on European battle fields.

World peace will never be achieved as a lasting institution, until the nations learn how to suspect each other of evil purposes. There must be built up among the peoples of the earth a spirit of good will and understanding and sympathy that will unite all of them in the common purpose of helping each other and of preventing war, or anything else, that might disturb the orderly routine of life.

The text, however, has another application that is timely. The people of this state and nation have just emerged from a national political campaign that was unprecedented in its bitterness. When Paul wrote, "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men," he did not mean merely that we should be at peace with those who agree with us, but that we should maintain the peace even with those who violently oppose us. Many of us have descended to very low estates as we have struggled to gain the ascendancy over our fellow men. If political activity must be accompanied by hate for our fellow man and suspicion of his motives as he discharges what he conceives to be his duty as a citizen, then we had better refrain from political activity.

Getting along with people is not difficult if one is guided by the principles laid down by the Apostle Paul. There is no need for wars between nations, or controversies between individuals, if the principles of brotherly love and sympathy is permitted to control the relations of men. And as we approach the annual Thanksgiving event, let us be thankful indeed that our nation is at peace. That our political battles are over, and that peace with peace with our neighbors, and that our great nation is not bending under the load of any contagious disease, or calamities. That there is abundance in the land, food and raiment for those who have made an honest effort to make it, and that the great God that has watched over us and kept us from the beginning to the present in this nation, that the people have said that they want Christianity, and believe in the unseen and all-wise God, who is above any human intelligence and power, and the nation should be thankful that this is the will of the majority of the people of this nation. Let's celebrate the coming Thanksgiving occasion in an appropriate way.

OLD LANDMARKS

Old land marks are gradually being moved away. This is not only true of the buildings and trees, but it is likewise true of the human land marks. The old timers in this town as well as others are gradually passing out, and leaving room for others, more vigorous, and sometimes more capable, but none will withstand the hardships possibly that these old fellows have undergone to make this country the safe abiding place for the rising generations. In this issue of the Avalanche will be found the announcement of the death of George Morrow, one of the old land marks in business in Lubbock. He was a quiet unassuming character, peculiar to most people, but liked best by those who knew him better. He endured the inconveniences of pioneer days, made some money we understand, and the most of it, we are told is to go to an orphan home, where it will continue to please thousands of suffering little ones. Mr. Morrow was not generally known among the people who came to Lubbock later than he was, and his kind deeds will bear fruit, and his reward will be with One who is All-wise and just.

Some flow has made the startling announcement that airplanes will be made fool proof within five years. That just proves to us that all of the fools are not dead, and as low as anything does not have the fact on the ground there is a chance for it to fail, whether it be a short distance or a mile.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

BY CHARLES F. STEWART
Washington Correspondent for Central Press and The Morning Avalanche

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Congressman Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee is the democrat who, republicans and politicians feel, has something pretty nice due to him from their party before the present administration ends next March.

Finis probably would welcome some token of regard from G. O. P. sources just now, too.

His fellow democrats down in the hog-and-hominy state, at last summer's pre-election primaries, proved very unappreciative of his long services in Washington. It doubtless would gratify him to show them that somebody loves him, anyway.

Besides, in order to remain in public life, Finis needs a political job to last him through the next two years at least.

It is not beyond a republican administration's power to fix this.

Washington is fairly cluttered—Herbert Hoover has been admitting it and Al Smith has been admitting it for weeks—with government boards, bureaus and commissions, largely made up of republican and democratic members mixed.

They all are odd-numbered memberships and the party in power sees to it that it has the odd vote every time. Otherwise, when a democratic vacancy exists, a democrat is chosen to fill it, even though it is a republican president who makes the appointment.

Nevertheless, a G. O. P. president can have his preferences among democrats as well as among republicans. When he has the plan to hand out to one of the party it is natural for him to slip his gift to one of them whom he likes.

There is reason to believe that President Coolidge likes Finis Garrett as much as it is possible for a president of the former's politics to like a congressman of the latter's.

To enable the president to take care of Finis with a nice appointment, the only thing necessary is for one of the democratic members of some good board, bureau or commission accommodatingly to die or resign soon. Fortunately several of them are in bad health or very old.

Finis won the republican brethren's good will as democratic leader in the house of representatives—a leadership which has covered almost exactly the term of President Coolidge's administration.

It has been a period of much-scrambled party lines on Capitol Hill.

Republican insurgency has bothered the administration half to death. The senate has been worse than the representatives. Yet even in the latter body there have been times when Congressman John Q. Tilson, the republican leader, might have been voted down if he had not had democratic help.

On such occasions Finis has been a great comfort to John Q.

John Q. is a republican. Finis is a democrat. But they are two stout old conservative war horses who think a lot alike, just the same.

In fact, he has been a popular saying in Washington that there were two republican leaders in the house of representatives—Congressman Tilson of Connecticut and Congressman Garrett of Tennessee.

Is it any wonder that the G. O. P.-ites approve of Finis?

Unluckily the democrats did not like it so well. Last spring Finis decided to come to the senate from Tennessee. Senator Kenneth McKellar was up for re-nomination. Finis tried to take it away from him. McKellar won hands down. Finis lost his representative's seat, too.

Thus we see why Finis Garrett needs a job on a commission, a bureau or a board.

PUPILS REVEAL VALUE OF HEALTH TRAINING

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor Journal of The American Medical Association And of Hygiene, The Health Magazine

In the current program of the National Educational association, health is selected as one of the fundamental subjects for study in the schools. In order to provide scientific evidence to support this decision, Dr. C. E. Turner made a controlled study of the value of health education of its relationships to the formation of habits, and as to the best methods to be used.

School Children.

Children studied were in the fourth, fifth and sixth grade in school, and they were compared with children in the same grades in three other schools. Children were weighed each day and food habits and diets recorded, heights were studied, and their general growth given careful consideration.

The experiment was continued for 20 months and involved 273 children who were being given regular attention so far as related to diet and growth as compared with 202 children who merely followed the usual school program without any special training in health.

Improvement.

A definite improvement was found in health habits in the trained group. The rate of gain in both height and weight for the children receiving health education was measurably and significantly greater than for the children in the group that did not receive health education. Children who were underweight gained a normal weight. It is thus definitely established that most healthful habits of living do result from the health education program and that they produce an improved rate of growth in children who have such opportunities.

Beware Of Substitutes

A man, sitting in a restaurant, was looking steadily at a young girl facing him, at an opposite table.

"She reminds me of you," he finally remarked to his wife.

"To which his spouse replied:

"If that's the case, you can look at me just as well."

Dated

"How did the Smith wedding come off?"

"Fine until the preacher asked the bride if she'd obey her husband."

"What happened then?"

"She replied, 'Do you think I'm crazy?' and the groom, who was in a sort of a daze, replied 'I do.'"

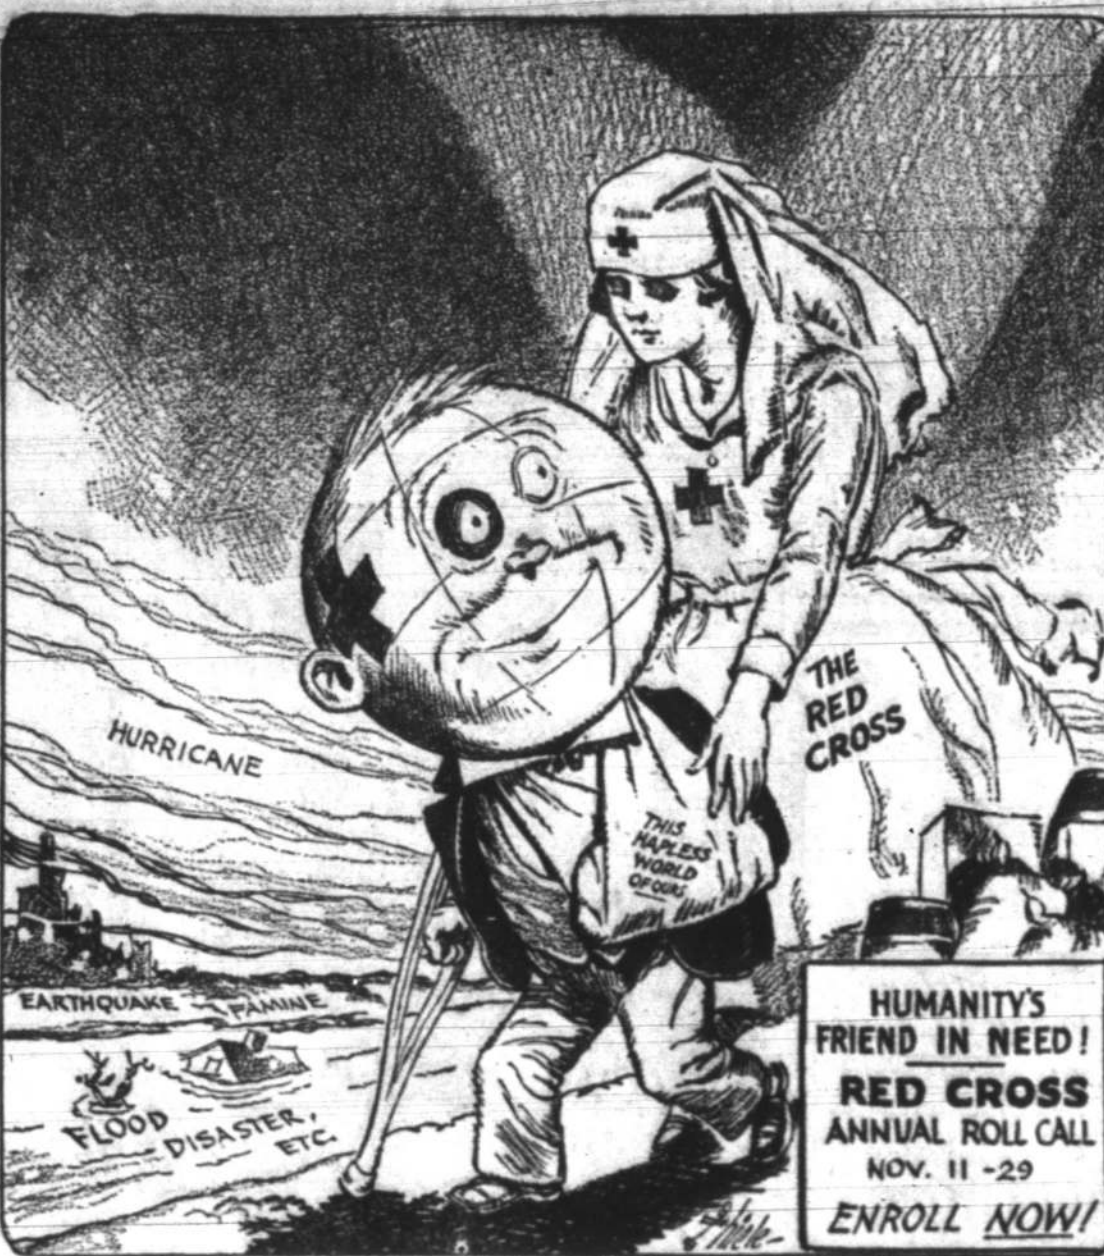

Got 'Em Himself

They had just become engaged.

"Oh, Will," she said, moving a trifle closer to him, "I'm so glad you are not rich! They say that some of those millionaire movie threatening letters saying that something dreadful will happen to them if they don't pay the writers sums of money."

"Oh, is that all?" replied Will. "Why, I get plenty of such letters."

His Guardian Angel

SO THINK WE

It may be correct that the horse hide will supply about 15 pounds of leather but we are just wondering how many pounds of kangaroo it takes to get by hopping over into the Hoover Column.

We think that Governor Al Smith is a pretty solid thinking fellow after all. He waited till after the election to pick a place to recuperate and we notice that he has selected Mississippi. We can readily see what Texas or Florida failed to get by hopping over into the Hoover Column.

We think now since Sousa has been here and his band, that Lubbock will have something else to look forward to with a good deal of interest. The first thing is the Simmonds foot ball game in which Texas Tech expects to win and then come the big frolic between the fathers and sons at the Texas Tech Tuesday and then the coming of the Port Worth and Denver celebration at which many thousands of people will be present, and then the Annual Conference of the Methodist church, and then the several dates of the artists course at the Tech. Indeed Lubbock people always have something to devote their time to.

We think a lot of fellows will be looking toward Hoover now for a job, and that is probably one reason that he is going to South America until near the time when he is to be inaugurated. But what if some of those office seekers should get him over radio. Wouldn't that be disappointing.

We think that President Coolidge can talk when he wants to. He put on a bold front on Armistice Day, and said some things both to America and to Europe. He gave the European nations to understand that America was for peace-world peace or any other kind as long as it is honorable, but that America was no sucker, and would not be over persuaded to go into a peace pact, unless all of them acted in good faith, and all of the secret implications of war are destroyed.

We think some men will just naturally complain. We hear recently that a husband filed complaint against his wife because she threw a custard pie at him. Seems to us that he should have been thankful that it was not something more destructive than that.

We think there is one advantage that the modern campaign gives over those of other years. The big politician who radios his message is seen and not heard, and that means quite a lot.

We think that since it is a known fact that children learn rapidly from the picture shows that there should be a united effort to have the highest class of pictures shown in all picture shows, eliminating as much of the rough stuff as possible. Some very strong pictures have been offered by local theatres recently that any child would learn a great lesson from, from the favorable comment heart, they make lasting impressions on those who were fortunate enough to see them.

We think those boys who loaded and fired an old cannon on Armistice Day over in an Illinois town probably thought they found out what it would do, had they been able to express themselves after they touched it off.

We think that after the road bond election your old poll tax receipt will be practically worthless, and we would suggest that you begin saving up enough money to buy another one of a later model, as you will very likely need it in 1929, and then, too, they say that the auto-

The Way Of The World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

GOING ON

When Axel Gulbransen, a yellow haired Norwegian boy in the city of Oslo, went to work at the age of 13 sandpapering pieces of wood in an organ factory, he probably had not thought far enough to imagine that he would some day be at the head of the largest piano factory in the world—a business worth $3,000,000. Although he did not think that far his boyhood did more thinking than the ordinary lad. He evidently made up his mind early that he was going to be somebody and get somewhere. He started in to do the best sandpapering he knew how. And so he went on up—always putting his full capacity into every job.

The difference between the few who get ahead and the great number who do not is just this: One thinks of a job as a stepping stone to something bigger. He begins by making his own job as big as he can. The other thinks with half his mind on the job. With the other half of his mind he thinks of what he will do as soon as the whistle blows.

THE NEXT AIR STEP

Today a city with a well-equipped airport is said to be in an advanced stage of development. The fact is, however, that so much time is lost in getting to and from the landing fields the advantage of air travel is partly lost. The next step in American cities is the development of fields nearer the center of population with the mechanics of flying now vastly improved. Cities and air travel concerns must turn their attention to the mechanics of accessibility. The problem is to make more practical the astounding results of scientific experiment.

REAL DISCOVERY

Less conspicuous than finding the North Pole or a new continent or a new race of people are the discoveries in another line. But the less spectacular discoveries may effect more people for good or evil than all the adventures of explorers from now on. We learn, for example, from the late Lord Haldane, that the total amount of phosphene gas required to put the city of London "out of business" could be carried by enemy aircraft. In case of another war defense preparations heretofore unknown would have to be provided.

We learn that the radium industry is in the hands of a Belgian monopoly, but that specimens from a mine in South Australia have been examined and found excellent. This may put Great Britain in the radium business.

All the time discoveries of which we hear little are going on, and the future of mankind is being profoundly affected.

PRESS COMMENTS

Perhaps no single person can look back upon the World War with more perspective than Sir Philip Gibbs. Certainly no journalist saw more of its horrors. And perhaps no correspondent who followed the hope of world peace through all its vicissitudes has preserved as much faith in human nature as the great English reporter.

He looks back upon the years immediately after the war and reluctantly sets down the truth about them in an article in the New York Times Magazine.

"Something went wrong . . . Looking back now on those ten years that have followed the first Armistice Day we see that the whole world went wrong in a kind of madness for a time. It failed to make use of all that spiritual emotion among the common people of the stricken nations which for a little while would have followed any call of noble leadership to a new ideal of civilization based upon a more decent code of justice and all classes. There was just that chance, perhaps, after the horrors of the war, but no leadership of that kind. Idealistic promises were forgotten or ignored. Intellectual leadership was destroyed. There was a time when there might have been a generous repatriation of the war, a renunciation of war all around, the turning over to a new page of history which would record a more spiritual advance of the human mind, out of darkness. But that time passed.

The peace was on old-fashioned lines of the victor—won to the conquered. The map of Europe was redrawn in a way that inflamed racial animosities and strewed the dragon's teeth in new fields. New nations barricaded themselves behind tariff walls, passport relations and frontiers of jealousy with a disease of nationalism which had been one of the causes of war. Europe, outside the defeated nations, remained armed to the teeth—and the new nations raised new armies—as though those bugles had not sounded the cease of fire on Armistice Day. While the League of Nations tried timidly and cautiously to prepare for peace by pacts and propositions of arbitration and international justice. France, supremely victorious, did not feel secure when America withdrew from all guarantees of future assistance, and she prepared for the next war by new alliances and a considerable increase of submarine. Italy, after stamping out anarchy in her own state, prepared for the next war by flaming propaganda and red-hot patriotism. Turkey, began and won her next war by smashing Greece and dictating her own terms to the Great Powers. Britain spent a lot of money in extending her empire over new mandates, whether they liked it or whether they did not. The United States returned to home politics and left Europe to clear up the mess. . . . Something went wrong."

"During those ten years since the Armistice this breaking down of barriers, this shrinking of distance has been happening in many ways. We are all going on as if our frontiers and defenses were still unscalable. Military and naval experts are mostly talking the old stuff of 1913. But I honestly believe that the minds of ordinary people are moving ahead of them just a little toward a new conception of life, which does not include poison gas, shellfire and aerial bombs of large explosive power. They know such things would make a nasty mess in their cities. They think it rather silly—that old stuff. If that is true—and perhaps I am over optimistic, though I do not think so—the last ten years, despite those things that went wrong for a time, may count in history as the great move forward of the human mind out of the jungle. Who can prophesy ten years hence?"—Denison Herald.

He was elected to the house of representatives in 1911 and has served continuously, his last term expiring in 1929. He is chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs and is a republican. His home is in Pittsburgh.

The growth of population, industry, and trade in the United States and the increase in the number of Americans interested in foreign trade, together with improved means of international transportation and communication have brought large additional duties and responsibilities on the secretary of state, his assistants and their subordinates constituting the service, the assistants to the secretary and the service officers in the department.

Washington prepared and issue instructions dealing with the foreign policy of the country, to be received and carried on by the foreign-service officers abroad. The compensation of these foreign-service officers is grossly inadequate in comparison with compensation paid to officers of the foreign service who receive and carry out instructions from the department, as witness the recent preparation and delivery of the international peace documents exchanged between the United States and France in the past year.

It is not consistent with good administrative practice to pay smaller salaries to officials of the department who prepare and issue instructions to officials in its foreign service who receive the instructions. In view of the greatly increased duties at the seat of government, there should be one additional undersecretary of state and two additional assistant secretaries of state.

It has been the custom of presidents to choose the heads of the executive department and their assistants from citizens who have distinguished themselves in civil life, rather than from persons holding offices in those departments, thus avoiding the creation of an officialdom. To prevent dissatisfaction and promote confidence, appointments and other personnel changes in the foreign and home services should be entirely removed from control of officials who can obtain personal advancement through such control.

More power to her sanitary and health department!—Abilene News.

TURKEY MONDAY

The San Angelo Standard remarks that with turkeys bringing 28 to 30 cents a pound and peans netting from 7 to 80 cents a pound, the farmers of West Texas are not exactly in hard circumstances.

If they have turkeys and peans they aren't at any rate.

Our Merkel correspondent cites two instances of turkey profits. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lewis of the celebrated Mulberry Canyon section marketed 25 turkeys at 30 cents, or a total of $107. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buff of the same community sold 53 turkeys at 21 cents, or a total of $210. That's somewhere around 94 a head, if our figures are straight.

There will always be a good market for turkeys from Texas. West Texas is an ideal turkey country. It can lick the whole United States in that respect. Turkeys at 30 cents a pound—well, that's a lot better than cotton at 20 cents. No need to plow or pluck the turkeys.

MORTUARY IS BURNED

Ft. Worth Firm Loses Fifty Thousand; Clothes Burn

FORT WORTH, Nov. 12. (P)—Fire that caused a loss of approximately $50,000 today wrecked the mortuary of the Fort Worth Undertaking company and 40 members of the fraternal organization who had put on uniforms to join an Armistice parade lost their civilian clothes. No bodies were in the building.

PRESS COMMENT

CITY OF CISCO
Cisco, where dams and football players grow large and efficient, has another claim to distinction which we doubt not will be more important to Cisco in the long run than either lakes or halfbacks.

Today's Poem

SONG

Let my voice ring out and over the earth,
Of bliss: Thank God for love!
Through all the grief and strife,
With a golden joy in a silver mirth;
Thank God for life!
Let my voice swell out through the great abyss
To the aure dome above,
With a chord of faith in the harp

of bliss: Thank God for love!
Let my voice thrill out beneath and above,
The whole world through: O me Love and Life, O my Life and Love,
Thank God for you!

SUMMARY

Market dull and quiet today. The opening was steady with an advance of nine to ten points from last night's high, but after the first call trading was slack. Only listless business was done during the session and the close was three to five points under Thursday's close. In spite of the dullness and the evident lack of speculative strength the market shows a strong undertone. Attention is now being focused on the next ginning report to be issued November 21. The general expectation is that this report will show a large decrease in the amount of cotton ginned from November 1 to the 14th, due to unfavorable weather and the fact that cotton picking and ginning is pretty well completed in many portions of the belt.

DAILY STATISTICS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16. (AP)—The stock market, a market of superlatives all this week, completely surpassed itself today in the most amazing orgy of speculation the world has even known, rolling up total sales of 6,714,400 shares, an increase of more than 1,000,000 shares over the record of 5,670,000 made Monday. Little fellows and big fellows seemed to follow each other to plunge into the surging market.

More than two dozen issues from all sections of the list were widely bid up from 5 to 22 points, and about 70 stocks chalked up record prices for the year, many for all time. The Associated Press average price of 20 industrials jumped 7.37 points to 247.75, another new record, and the average of 20 rails was carried up 1.35 points to 183.33.

The pitifully inadequate ticker worked 2 hours and 3 minutes after the closing gong, and if today's market is any indication of what may be expected in the future, the plans for a 7,000,000 share day ticker have been conservative.

The public appetite for stocks was whetted to ravenousness by the negligible increase in federal reserve brokers loans announced yesterday on top of the greatest four days of trading ever experienced.

A gain of more than $100,000,000 had been anticipated, and a number of traders had been nervously lightening their commitments. Speculative joy was boundless when the increase turned out to be less than $20,000,000.

The accumulation of overnight buying orders threw the exchange into a frenzy at the opening gong.

Liverpool cabled, "Local traders bought cotton and Bombay sold."

Manchester cabled, "Cloth and yarns quieter."

Johnson, S. C.: Cotton 2 1/2 picked and 90 per cent ginned. Farmers selling freely.

Stet was reported at Lamesa at noon.

and some 600,000 shares changed hands in the first 15 minutes.

The failure of the brokers to compilation last night to reflect the orgy of buying earlier in the week was widely interpreted as indicating the enormous buying has been in investment buying, that stocks have been passing from weak to strong hands. In less optimistic quarters, however, it was pointed out that there may have been enormous borrowing from non-federal reserve sources. Whether this was true will not be known until the stock exchange totals are announced early next month.

Call money renewed at 6 1/2 percent, and was held at that figure by the calling of $25,000,000 by banks to adjust their position with the federal reserve. A drop of about $100,000,000 in the indebtedness of New York banks at the reserve institution was an encouraging development in the credit situation. The frantic market paid no attention to the day's news, although the weekly trade reviews were highly favorable, indicating less than the seasonal lag in major industries and a general picking up in the back slides.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 16. (AP)—U. S. D. A.—Killing classes of cattle around the 11-market circuit found a slow outlet at steady to unevenly lower prices with packers exceedingly bearish on fat she stock at several points. Eastern dressed beef markets reported a sluggish demand and price concessions made to effect a clearance; light receipts of killing cattle next week will be necessary if present values are to be maintained. Stocker and feeder trade was drabgy but indications point to a fairly broad week-end clearance; aggregate receipts were estimated at 12,650 as compared with 12,222 a week ago and 20,848 the same day last year.

Hogs were on a steady to 25 cent higher basis with a broad shipping demand and light moderate receipts the strengthening factors, packers were bearish at some centers and failed to follow the pact set by order buyers; the days extreme top of 9.25 was paid at Chicago, total offerings were around 64,500 a decrease of 3,000 from last Friday and 32,000 short of a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 16. (AP)—Grain trade activity centered to a large extent today on corn with nervousness prevailing about unseasonable delay to the main movement of the corn crop. Rains were in progress all over the corn belt states, and the outlook was for continued downpours that threatened to retard husking and hauling, even after the weather conditions improved.

Closing quotations on corn future deliveries were as follows: Dec. 1-1-4 to 1-4 cents a bushel net advance. Wheat unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-4 cent up, oats a shade to 1-4 to 3-8 cent higher, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 16. (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: Despite irregularities in weather due to a return to higher temperatures in most areas and a seasonal slowing down in some important industries the general situation of trade and industry seems fully equal to the best reports of early fall, and, naturally, suffers nothing in comparison with this date a year ago, when industrial employment was decreasing and trade was reflecting this in rather unsatisfactory advices, as a whole. Prominent in complaints of the weather being too warm for best fall trade are the cities along the great lakes and in the old spring-wheat north-west, where sales of heavy clothing furs and shoes are restricted, whereas quite a few southern cities note the beneficial effects of cooler weather upon distribution.

ago, will do the parties interested a service by informing Mrs. Flora Green Atchison, district clerk, of their addresses.

In January, 1922, Mrs. Brazier and the two grand-children named, were awarded some money in a damage suit tried in the Seventy-Second district court against the G. C. & S. P. Railway. The portion awarded to Mrs. Brazier was paid, but that given Oscar and Hubert Brazier is still in charge of the court and remains unpaid.

Grain Plants At Slaton Operating

City Gets New Elevator and Grain Threshing Unit; Thresher Has Capacity of 350 Tons Daily

(Special To The Avalanche)
SLATON, Nov. 16.—A new grain elevator, the first this city has ever had, and which has just been finished, began operating Wednesday. Along with it, a grain sorghum head threshing plant has been built and is also in operation. Both plants cost nearly $25,000, and were built by a company of local men, R. C. Ayers, formerly engaged in the grain business in Plainview and Lockney, is manager. The elevator has storage capacity of 10,000 bushels, and the head threshing plant has average daily capacity of 350 tons of grain heads.

Rises As Grain Center
Essentially a cotton, fruit, vegetable and grain sorghum agricultural section, with only a small wheat acreage, the Slaton section of the South Plains will benefit greatly from the building of the two plants. Especially will production and marketing of grain sorghum be helped, farmers and business men agree. The threshing plant is the second of its kind in Texas, the other being located at Lockney. Especially designed machinery is used to thresh the grain heads.

A fine crop of grain sorghums is now being harvested over the entire South Plains territory, reports show, and much of the surplus crop will be bought by the Slaton plant, for threshing in transit at this point after which it will be shipped on to other markets, officers of the company have stated.

Funeral of Local Pioneer Attended By Many Citizens

Students of College Also Pay Respect to George T. Morrow In Funeral Services In Tech Gym

Scores of Lubbock citizens, old friends and virtually the entire student body and faculty of the Texas Technological college, paid their last respects to George T. Morrow, 73 year old Lubbock pioneer, who died here Tuesday afternoon, and who left in a provision of his will a student loan fund of $20,000 for Tech boys and girls, in attending funeral services for him held at the Tech gym Friday afternoon at three o'clock.

Rev. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. Walter P. Jennings, pastor of the First Christian church, officiated at the funeral ceremony.

In addition to his bequest of $20,000 to the college, Mr. Morrow bequeathed the greater portion of his estate of more than $50,000 to various orphan homes, relatives and friends.

Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the college delivered short talk in behalf of that institution.

Burial was in Lubbock cemetery, the pallbearers being, France Baker, George M. Boles, J. A. Barton, J. F. Perry, A. G. Hunt, and W. E. Ballew.

Honor War Vets

Two Texas Men Get Verdun Medals

PARIS, Tex., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Ten years after the armistice, which ended the World War, two Texas men received decorations for services in the defense of Verdun in 1918, when American troops were attached to French forces.

Granville Farmer, postoffice dispatching clerk, and Edgar George, department store employee, received medals from the city of Verdun for their part in the defense of the city when they were with the 28th or keystone division.

An appropriate inscription of gratitude is engraved on the medals. Each of the Paris veterans has five citations, one per medal, three company and one regimental. Farmer was wounded in foreign service.

"Married Life" Not Worth While

Blames Wives' "Nerves"

"Weak nerves," said a New York doctor recently, "in my estimation wreck more happily married lives than any other cause."

Besides making the sweetest disposition sour and irritable, nervousness is a terrible drain on your vital forces—it saps your youth and your strength and dulls your beauty. What a difference from the bright-eyed, vibrant girl she married. No wonder married life seems unbearable!

But you can get rid of your nervousness—speedily too—and become the steady, nerveless, radiant woman you once were. Take a teaspoonful of Tanlac after meals and before going to bed and if it doesn't soon make a new woman of you—doesn't rid you of that tired, strained feeling—go back and get your money.

Abundance of Fun and Entertainment Promised Fathers and Sons of City In Gigantic Father-Son Feed Tuesday

Lubbock High School Band To Headline Entertainment; Tickets Going Good

Plenty of fun and entertainment is assured for the frolicsome Fathers and Sons Jamboree at the Tech gym next Tuesday evening, November 20, beginning at 6:30 o'clock according to K. N. Clapp, James Crowley and W. W. Rix, the program committee for the event.

Chief of the entertainment features will be music by Lubbock's prize-winning high school band, which Mr. Crowley, himself, directs.

Many other rib-tickling stunts are being planned, and only one speech by one of the fathers, with a response by perhaps a local Boy Scout will be had.

Tickets Going Good
Tickets to the Jamboree are being taken by fathers of the city in rapidly increasing numbers, yet there are many more to be sold before the 1,500 attendance mark will be assured. These tickets are 25 cents each for either father or son, and are merely for the purpose of paying for the eats, that are to be had. Of course, it is not a banquet. But there will be plenty to eat for the occasion, with perhaps some fruit a hot drink, et cetera, if you can eat that.

Fathers who have no sons, yet who want to attend this gala event are asked to get in touch with Rev.

L. G. H. Williams, general chairman, who will take your name and see that the acquaintance committee provides you with a son who has no father, in order that you both may go. Already a number of fathers have been given the names of fatherless boys and engagements for the night already have been made.

Fathers To Be Furnished
Sons who have no fathers are requested to send their names and addresses to Rev. Mr. Williams, The Avalanche-Journal, or Warren P. Knox, boy scout executive. Fathers will be furnished them for the occasion, who will act both as father for the night and as hosts for the Jamboree.
