

Rambles Over the County

J. W. L. COOK
The Leader's Rambling Editor

Out to Quail Again

Our first ramble since the snow was made to the little city of Quail. We always enjoy going to Quail as it is the place we lived for several years and we have many friends in that community. We never fail to do good business when we make a visit to Quail. We were dreading to get out on the roads since the snow and rain but we found the road from Wellington to Quail in the best condition that we have found it since we have been in this county, which is seven years since the rains the road bed has settled and the road drag has been over it which left the road in fine shape.

We went direct to Quail as we wished to spend a whole day at that place.

Leaving Mrs. Cook with her old friend and neighbor, Mrs. John W. Robinson, yours truly proceeded to work the town. We called on Dr. F. V. Walker who is the practicing physician of that town and community.

Dr. Walker

Dr. Walker came to Quail last fall from New Mexico. He has built up a good practice and has made many friends in the country. About the first opportunity the doctor subscribed for the Leader and likes it so well that he gave us an order for a continuation of his paper.

H. W. Holbert

We also visited the Quail druggist, H. W. Holbert. Dr. Holbert formerly was a resident of Wellington. He lived here several years and is considered one of the old timers of Wellington. He has a fine business in Quail and is a subscriber to the Leader.

Self and Reeves

Self and Reeves, general merchandise, are old timers in Quail. Mr. Self has been in business in Quail almost from the first.

Dr. Ed Beck

Dr. Ed Beck is one of the old standbys of the town and needs no introduction to the people of Collingsworth County. Dr. Beck was a practicing physician in this county for many years but is now a merchant in Quail and runs a good store and handles most anything you need. He is an old time subscriber to the Leader and is a firm believer in letting the people know what he has to sell through the medium of the newspapers.

Depauw Grocery

The Depauw Grocery store was another place we visited. Mr. Depauw started a little business in Quail about six years ago. He has, through fair dealing and close selling, built up a nice business and has many friends in this county.

Frank Haynie

Frank Haynie of the Quail Garage is another solid business man of Quail. The Quail Garage was the first place in Quail that you could get the where with to make your flivver go. The first attempt at this business, it is said you had to wait to get your tank filled from a can. We heard a story told on Frank's place (but we will not vouch for this). A big Hudson super-six stopped for gas and left his motor running. After drawing and pouring in several gallon cans of gas and not seeming to make any headway toward filling the tank he made the driver of the car stop the engine as he said it burned up the gas faster than he could draw it. Mr. Haynie now has an auto to date filling station and garage. He is an old time subscriber to the Leader with his expiration date away in 1927.

T. P. Willingham

T. P. Willingham, the restaurant man of the Quail boosters. Mr. Willingham is an old resident of this county and of Quail. He was post master of Quail for several years but now is in business filling the hungry public. He always has a good word for Quail. He once told a little town, "Yes, it was praising the town. It is one and a is a long, keen one and forty feet, quarter miles long and fun to be had, wide." If there is any Willingham T. P. will have it. Mr. Willingham is a paid up subscriber to the Leader and a county booster.

Shields and Davidson

There are three garages in Quail. Shields and Davidson have a nice little place. This firm is composed of two young men that are natives of Collingsworth County and are strong believers in the little city of Quail, and believe it will eventually make a

VOLUME XVII

WELLINGTON, Collingsworth County, Texas, Sunday, April 18, 1926

NUMBER 76

Judge Myers Will Be Candidate for Justice of Peace

Judge Myers Has Served as Public Official in County For Great Many Years

Judge P. W. Myers has authorized the Leader to publish his announcement for candidate for re-election to the office of Justice of the Peace of Precinct 1. Judge Myers says: "My past record is my only platform. If the voters like it, I will be glad to serve again, if they don't they can get another man. I have tried to do my best in enforcing the laws impartially and that is what I will try to do if re-elected."

Judge Myers has been serving in his present capacity since 1918. He has served as county judge but his longest term as an official of the county was as deputy sheriff.

Judge Myers has earned the reputation of being fair in all his public duties and it is probable that he will have no opposition in his coming race.

Barjenbruch Will Go to District Meet

A contest was held in the private office of the Superintendent L. T. Green at the Wellington High School Thursday morning, April 15. The contestants were: Miss Texana Kesler and Boyd Barjenbruch. The contest was an extemporaneous speaking. Each contestant was furnished with a list of topics to study one hour before the contest began and from this list they chose the topics on which they spoke. Each speaker was judged solely on merits as to the way the subject was handled.

During the one hour of study neither of the contestants received assistance from anyone, in the planning and organizing of their speech. When the time for the contest arrived Superintendent Green wrote the numbers one and two on slips of paper and the contestants drew for the numbers. Mr. Barjenbruch was the first to draw. He also drew number one which entitled him to the first speech. His subject was "What My Town Needs Most."

He talked for three minutes, beginning at 9:30.

Miss Texana Kesler was second to speak, her subject was "The Laws of the Country That are Violated Most." She spoke for five minutes.

The decision was rendered in favor of contestant number one, Boyd Barjenbruch which entitled him to a free trip to Vernon to attend the district meet held April 16 and 17, where he will represent Wellington High School. If he should win at Vernon he will then be entitled to a trip to Austin where he will represent this district.

VAUGHN IS DISTRICT AGENT FOR SOUTHLAND INS. CO.

DALLAS, April 17—J. A. Vaughn of Wellington has been made district agent for the Southland Life Insurance Co., at Wellington, succeeding J. M. Stowell, who moved to Plainview. Mr. Vaughn's territory will include Collingsworth and Wheeler counties.

big town.

Will Pate is the other garage owner. He has a nice place and seems to be doing a good business. The Orange Filling Station is an other new business, situated at the fork of the Memphis and Hedley highways near the big ginning plant of the Quail Gin Co. You can also get something to eat and a good cold soft drink at this place.

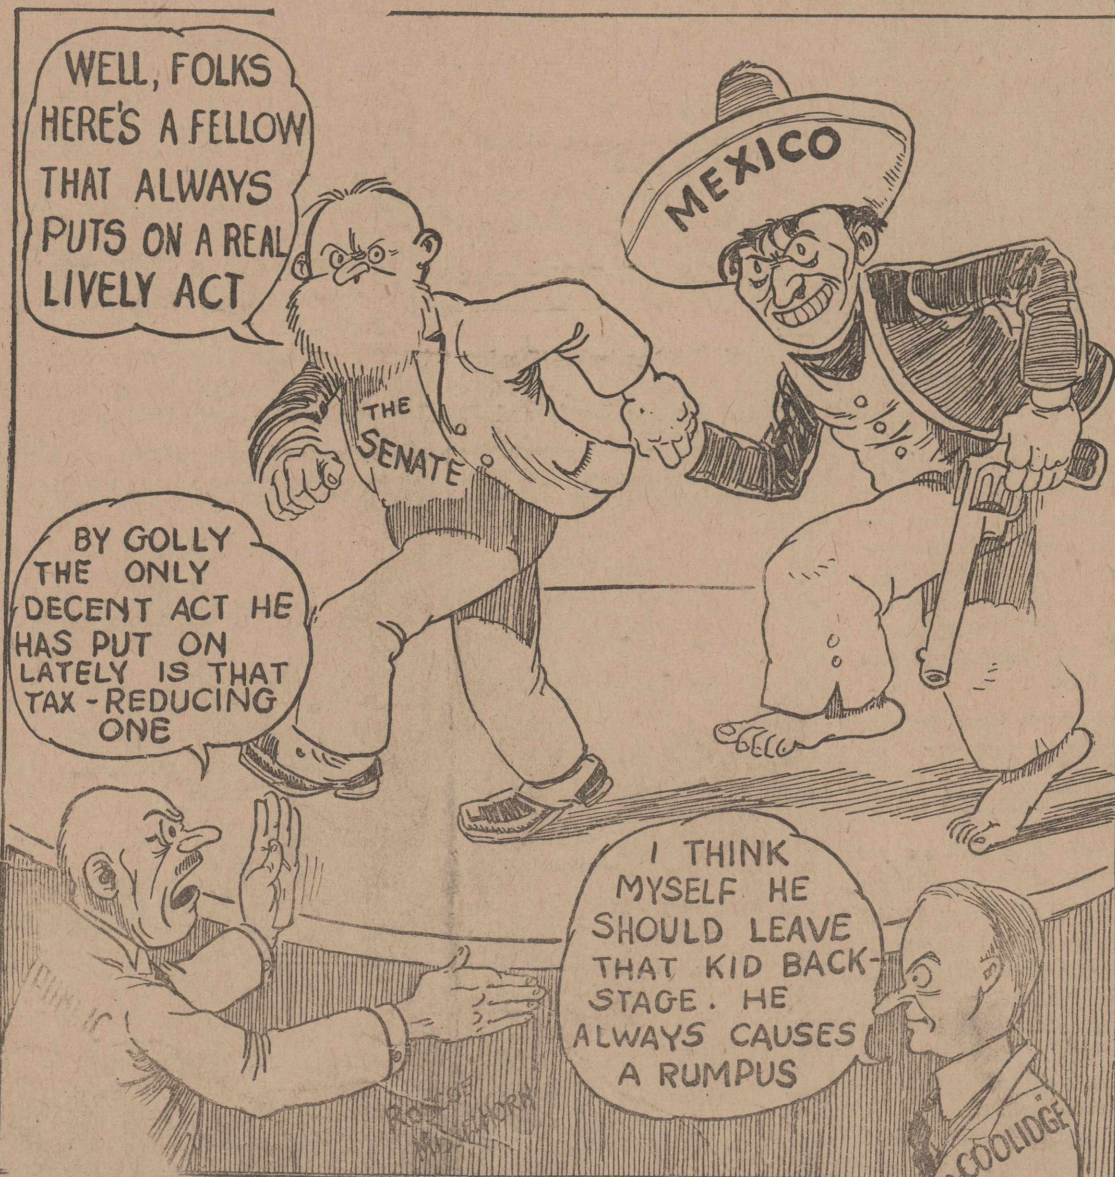

Quail Mercantile Company

Last but not least by any means is the Quail Mercantile Company with Tom Crabtree at the helm. This company was organized and commenced business about six or seven years ago and has done a good business from its organization.

It was only a small affair at first but has built up into one of the best business concerns in the county. You can buy anything you want at this place, from a fine sewing needle to a steam engine.

We always depend on Tom for a little business any time we visit Quail. The Leader goes regular to the Quail Mercantile Company.

Credit Association To Be Organized Here by C. of C.

Committee on Finance Says Sufficient Money Raised To Employ Secretary

The finance committee of the Chamber of Commerce reports a very successful drive for the fund to obtain money to employ a full time secretary. The exact amount has not been given out as some firms have not seen by the committee, but it will be enough to hire a live wire secretary and possibly a stenographer.

It is also planned to organize a retail men's credit association at the same time the secretary is employed. A stenographer may be hired to assist him in his duties. All hot checks will be looked after by this association and credit reference will be furnished on all persons who want credit from a local firm.

The Chamber of Commerce has at last started in full swing, according to A. L. Cochran, one of the directors. Great things can be accomplished with all of the merchants working together.

Wellington Ball Club Needs Name

The Wellington ball club needs a name. It is going to have a name. The fans of the county are asked to send in suggestions to the Leader office. A season pass to all home games will be given the person sending in the best name. George McCullough and Henry Cocke have made arrangements to have three judges pick out the best name from among those submitted.

Each person sending in a name is requested to write their own name on the suggestion so that the free pass may be awarded the winner. Mail the suggestions to the Leader or hand them in at the office in a sealed envelope. These will be turned over to Manager Cocke and he will give them to the judges.

McCullough suggests that a short name will be better than a long one, and that the name should have something in it suggestive of Wellington as well as baseball.

The club has been practicing every afternoon this week. Thursday most of the players were rather stiff and sore. The batteries look especially strong. Two veteran pitchers and one experienced catcher and an excellent substitute will give Wellington as good a battery as any team in the league if not the best. The only way any of the other towns can get pitchers like Morgan and Cocke will be to import them and they will have to do their importing right away or they can't play them.

Wellington may be a little weak on hitting. O'Neil, Dean and Hill are the only strong hitters although Fletcher Curry and some of the young players may be developed into strong batters.

The infield is going to be good. There are two candidates for both first and second and three for third.

Catcher Hill from Houston played for Houston in Oil Belt League. Jeff Harrison, home boy, is going to make a valuable understudy for Hill. Slick Margon, Wichita Falls pitcher of last season and Coon Cocke, the hero of many local games, and Fred Woods will do the mound work for the Wellington Club. Hooks Bryan of Shamrock and Sam Dick Cocke are both looking mighty good on first.

Bill Leach and Polly O'Neil are available for second base although Polly may do duty in the outfield as the club is lacking in experienced outfielders. Doc Dean is the only candidate so far trying out for short stop. Fletcher Curry and H. L. Todd and George McCullough are trying out for the hot corner.

In the outfield, Lloyd Powell, Richard Cocke, Bill Leggett and other are competing for a place. The outfield will be made up of young players, but Wellington has some young players of exceptional ability. Cecil Brown may be induced to try for the outfield and will provide one seasoned gardner.

Miss Marjorie Berry of Hollis was the guest of Miss Irene Moore Thursday night. Miss Moore spent Wednesday in Hollis with Miss Berry.

Baker of Quanah To Manage Store

Tot Baker of Quanah arrived in this city this week to take charge of the Wide Awake Variety Store which is owned by A. B. Gosselin. Mr. Baker comes to Wellington highly recommended as a business man and a citizen.

He says the store will be continued as it is for a few weeks and then it will be remodeled. The front end of the store will be torn out and a new front put in. New fixtures will replace the old fixtures which will be sold, according to Mr. Baker.

Mr. Baker says the Wide Awake will be associated with six other similar stores and that he is expecting a fine business in Wellington. It will be about sixty days before the remodeling starts he declared.

NEGRO FOUND DEAD IN CABIN ON TRUE FARM THURSDAY

Garfield (Shorty) Thompson, colored was found dead in his cabin on the True farm southwest of Wellington last Thursday evening. Thompson had been working for Mr. True and had been complaining of feeling bad that day. That afternoon Mr. True gave Thompson a dose of Chamberlain's Colic Cure and the negro went to his cabin and later said he felt better.

Some little time after Mr. True went to see how the negro was doing and found him dead. Thompson came here from Wichita Falls. He was about 45 years old. He was buried in the cemetery on the north side. Judge P. W. Myers made an investigation and found he had died from natural causes.

LILLIE SCHOOL PUPILS AND PRINCIPAL VISIT LEADER THURSDAY

S. J. Lovell principal of the Lillie school was in Wellington on business recently. He was accompanied by his pupils of the Lillie school and they came into the Leader office to see how newspapers are made. They were shown through the office from the paper punching machine to the waste basket. The children were very attentive to the information they received while going through the plant. Most of the visitors said they were getting the Leader and those that were not said they would encourage their parents to subscribe.

The Leader welcomes visitors at all times and will be glad to show anyone the workings of the plant.

Candidate

MRS. LAURA CAMPBELL

Mrs. Laura Campbell, who is seeking re-election to the office of treasurer of Collingsworth County, says she will not be able to make a vigorous campaign but that she will endeavor to see as many as her duties will permit. Mrs. Campbell has worked faithfully at her work and has gained the esteem of many people during the time she has been in office. She is using this office to support herself and her invalid husband.

PRIZES IN WHOS WHO CONTEST AWARDED SATURDAY APRIL 17

In the last issue of the Leader a number of advertisements were run by local merchants with questions to be answered. The idea of the advertising was to acquaint the buying public with the different progressive merchants of Wellington. The merchants should be glad to know just how well the people are keeping up with their advertising and the quality of merchandise they sell.

The merchants and the Leader offered three prizes, one of $5 and two of $3 and $2 respectively for the nearest correct answers to all the questions asked in these ads. At three o'clock Saturday, when the Leader went to press the contest closed and the following persons were awarded the prizes:

Mrs. A. B. Garvin, first, $5.

Mrs. R. C. Dryden, second, $3.

Miss Norma Wildman, third, $2.

There were many solutions besides these and all were excellent, and showed an surprising familiarity with the many progressive firms of this city.

Milner Will Erect Club House Soon

Goldwin Milner will start work on a club house for Wellington and the young people of surrounding towns some time soon. The club will be called the Alamo Club and will be located in the Cocke addition of Wellington.

The house will cost about 5,000 Milner says. It will be fifty by sixty feet and will have a front patterned after the Alamo. It will be made from face brick made in Polly O'Neil's brick plant. The house will have a dance floor, a kitchen, a fifty foot row of tables, a modern soda fountain and a dressing room for ladies and one for men.

The club will be privately owned, but it will take in 150 members who will own no interest in the property. About half of these members will be from Wellington and the rest will be from Shamrock, Memphis, Childress, Hollis and Clarendon.

WHITE HOUSE MEAT MARKET REMODELING INTERIOR OF STORE

The White House market has remodeled their interior and made a complete rearrangement of the fixtures. They have painted the fixtures white until it looks very sanitary and nice. Mr. Chitwood calculates that he will be in a position to serve the public better in the future than he has in the past. He invites the public to pay his market a visit and see for yourself.

WHITFIELD RAISES OWN MEAT AND SOME TO SELL ALSO

Claude Whitfield, a progressive farmer of Plymouth community was in the city Thursday on business. Mr. Whitfield brought to town two large hams of meat and sold them to a local grocery store. He states that he raised more meat than he would take to run his family until time to butcher again which speaks well for any farmer. He picked 17 bales of cotton and 15 tons of maize also plenty of bundle feed.

Mr. Whitfield says his crop for the year 1926 will be about half and half, cotton and feed. He will plant long staple cotton. He thinks each farmer should guard against planting too much cotton as it is very necessary that plenty of feed should be raised. He calculates that this country never had a better prospect for a bumper crop than it has at this time of the year.

PLYMOUTH

BY MRS. S. G. GLAZNER

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bradley returned last week from Mineral Wells where they have been for Mr. Bradley's health. Everyone is glad to see them and to know that he is much better.

Claude Tennison and wife visited his parents Mr. and Mrs. Tennison Saturday night.

Mrs. Buster Denton visited relatives in Oklahoma a few days.

We have been having lots of rain the past week.

W. H. Montgomery returned home Saturday night from east Texas.

Billy Ruth, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Storms has been real sick with the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Conway, Mr. and Mrs. Har- graves, and Mrs. Hicks and sons visited at the home of Paul Neely Monday night.

We are glad to report A. J. Shields improved at this writing.

We were sorry to hear of the death of A. P. Montgomery.

Edna Rudy visited Jewel Bradley Monday night.

COTTON GRADING SCHOOL

We will open a first class cotton and continue every day for six successive weeks.

This school will be in charge of M. C. Cope, a man who has been grading cotton for the larger firms for the past seven years. Every man who grows cotton should be able to grade his own crop. If you are interested, you should make reservation now as our room is limited.

We are also giving a discount of 40 per cent off our regular price to those who enroll on or before June 1, 1926, for bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting and all courses for the summer months.

TO VOTERS OF COLLINGSWORTH

In order to let the people of my district know my position about running again for Representative especially those who have asked me to announce, tendering me their support, I will say that I will be a candidate for that office again. I did not intend to make this race inasmuch as people from all parts of the county have urged me to run, I am making this announcement I will in due time lay before the people what I have done while in office and discuss the present race with them.

Yours sincerely,

The above photo shows General John J. Pershing (retired) as he looked the first day he left the Walter Reed Army Hospital in the Capital. He was forced to return from his duties in Peru on the Tacna Arica question because of ill-health which at the time looked serious. The famous world war general looked fit in every detail as he posed for his first picture since his illness.

LOCAL BOYS WITH MARINES IN CUBA

For the second time within a year, Corporal Granville Corzine, of Dozier, near Wellington is stationed with the U. S. Marines in Cuba. He completed a seven months tour of duty in that country last September and returned to his regular station at Quantico. Early this month he embarked on the U. S. S. Henderson which recently arrived at Guantanamo Bay.

This time Corporal Corzine is in the 17th Co., first battalion of the famous Fifth Regiment of Marines which won distinction in France, where it was cited several times by the French. The battalion will be encamped on the shores of Guantanamo Bay, where it will probably remain about six months.

Corporal Corzine, who is a son of Mrs. Nora Corzine of Dozier joined the Marine Corps at Oklahoma City in August, 1924. He was promoted as corporal at Quantico last month. His usual station is Quantico but he occasionally leaves that post for duty elsewhere.

C. J. BakerMining the Mother Lode of Human Interest*Great Personages of the Bible

BY REV. LEONARD A. BARRET

Literary men, even those unswayed by religious convictions, have not hesitated to pronounce the Bible as being the greatest single collection of human-interest stories in the world. Many of these stories are epical in their scope and have provided themes for great poems great dramas and great spectacles. There is hardly an adjective in the language that conveys the mighty and stirring qualities of the story of Moses. The story of Job is almost equally wonderful. Search as you will, you cannot find a short story that contains more elements of intense interest than that of Joseph. The narrative of the Prodigal Son would be classic in any language or in any book. And the Great Work contains hundreds of others, each based upon a remarkable human being—a great personage.

Eptomes of Great Lives and Great Deeds

In this series Doctor Barrett has taken something more than a score of outstanding personages of the Bible, condensed the main facts concerning each, drawn brief pictures of their careers and presented the lessons that are to be derived from the circumstances, events and qualities which shaped them and made them great. No story is more than one column in length. The series embraces the Bible personages Gideon, Jesus Christ, Peter, Jonathan and David, Moses, Enoch, Nebuchadnezzar, Vashti, Esther, Naboth, Miriam, John the Baptist, Bartimaeus, Paul, Zaccheus, Mary the Virgin, Job, Ruth, Nicodemus, Deborah, The Prodigal Son, Zacharias, Mary and Simon, and Mary the sister of Lazarus.

A Warning Note! S. E. IS UNAFRAID Two Bit Charge

A notice written in a suspicion looking typewriter type has been received by the ball players of the East and South Side. It is signed by a west sider. It reads: "We have arranged with all the doctors to be on the ground as First Aid to you fellows at the Big Game."

We knew it. The Northwesters know they can't play ball, so they want to fight. Not content with letting the matter develop as it will they want to force the issue and are preparing to have the doctors on hand instead of leaving them to be summoned when needed. However, the big bruiser who wrote that note is going to be frustrated.

At first the Southeasters wanted to call the ball game off after reading the insulting note and substituting a free for all fist fight. That would be weakening, some thought, for the original intention was to beat the northwesters at baseball. The majority have been persuaded that this is the course of real victors—not to be sidetracked from an original purpose—and now nothing can induce any of them to fight. But since some of the west siders have minds that run in such low channels, it has been decided to outwit them before the game ever starts and in this way prevent a fight.

An admission charge of twenty-five cents will be charged players and spectators alike. This charge is expected to cut down the number of Northwesters to such an extent that their fighting strength will not be formidable. The only draw back is that there may not be enough players on the Northwest team to make a nine, since it is doubtful if there are nine men on these sides that have two bits. This has been arranged also. If they can get five players who have two bits the southeasters will pay the admission charges of the other four.

Now then in regard to personal fights: If the writer of that anonymous note is who the writer of this article thinks he is, he will take him on for anything from a foot race to a ten round bout. Especially will the latter be relished by the present writer for the man in question failed to do some business with this firm that the writer of this article thought he had already sold.

Now in case the writer of the afore-said sneaking note is not the man the writer of this article is thinking about this offer is off. If a six footer or a

JOSIE BELLE LANCASTER

On April 6, 1926 Josie Belle, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Lancaster, breathed her last.

Sweet little Josie Belle, dainty, fair, and pure as the Easter Lillies she was just budding into womanhood.

The first time I saw her, a tiny tot it was at school. She told me then she was going to study hard for she wished to be a teacher when she grew up. Toward this noble ambition all her efforts were bent. Walking miles to school, she earnestly pursued her studies always with this cherished goal in view until disease laid hold of her frail little form. Even then she did not give up. When the pain was not so bad she could always be found with her beloved books.

She leaves her parents, brothers and sisters, grand parents and other relatives and a host of friends to mourn her loss.

We shall see her no more for a while but unlike the Easter Lillies she has not perished but has gone up higher into a purer sunlight to blossom in the everlasting garden of Gods.

LITTLE LEVETTA MORGAN

To the friends who came to us in our hour of trouble and sorrow and contributed all that human kindness could suggest to help and comfort, we return most heartfelt thanks and although such devoted friendship cannot remove the sad memories that linger around our home it brings into view the brightest side of humanity and throws the pure light of an unselfish friendship into a darkened home. May the day be far distant when these good friends who gathered around us will need similar attention but when the time comes may they receive the same full measure of generous aid and tender sympathy they brought to this home when death was an inmate there and claimed our darling baby and left a place vacant in their hearts and home that time can never fill but grieve not, fond parents and grandparents. Your little darling is waiting at the pearly gates of that beautiful Home of Love to bid you a fond welcome when your work on Earth is done and our Lord bids you come Home.

Growing Right Along

The Memphis Democrat, edited by J. Claude Wells changed from a six column paper to a seven column paper this week. Increased advertising limited the amount of news space to such an extent that many interesting stories were left out each week. The necessary change will enable the Democrat to give better service to the readers and advertisers alike.

Since taking charge of the Democrat, J. C. Wells has developed the paper that carries an exceptional amount of local news in each issue. The high reader interest and the large circulation the paper enjoys is producing liberal support from the merchants of Memphis. It takes a genuine newspaper man to build a paper as J. C. Wells has built the Democrat. He is a classical example of the fact that it doesn't take a college graduate to edit a newspaper, although he is a firm believer in and a strong contender for higher education.

Going to the Country

They are doing an interesting thing over at Hereford. A group of Hereford citizens are now at work says the Hereford Brand, on a series of programs for the communities lying within the social radius of Hereford. A series of programs consisting of music, and speeches on community life, agriculture, poultry, etc., will be given at each of the communities around Hereford.

Two aims are in the minds of the individuals who are promoting these programs. The first of these is the strengthening of the community spirit without reference to any special form of organization which may be suggested, just in order that each community's structural life may be purely expressive of the community's will. The second is the laying at each community door of all resources of the larger community of which each neighborhood is a part.

Such a program would be splendid for Wellington and Collingsworth County. There is talk of making Wellington a more pleasant and profitable place in which to live. Wellington can become such a town only as Collingsworth County becomes such a community. Such programs as conducted in Deaf Smith County will not bring about radical changes but it is by such gentle incentives that gradual changes of wide sweeping import are effected. When the merchants of Wellington and the farmers of this county live closer together both the town and the county will be more prosperous. But the greatest good will come from the increased human relationship—an expression for increased individual and community happiness.

More Paving

Wellington needs more paving. East Avenue should be paved from the Wellington State Bank to the depot. West Avenue should be paved from the square to the High School Building. Other streets may need it, but it is doubtful if the finances of the city can afford it at present. There is more paving in line however, and if you are a tax payer you might as well start grunting now.

A Growing Town

Wellington has a splendid future. An excellent water supply, an adequate sewerage system and the assurance of gas from the industrial basis for the development of a splendid business and residential city. The population of Wellington will undoubtedly exceed 5,000 in two years. In that time the population of Collingsworth County will increase to over 15,000. It will not stretch it much to reach 20,000. This growth is assured from the present agricultural development. If there is oil activity in the county, the growth will be much faster. If you have any spare money, Wellington is a good place to invest it. The value of city property has doubled in the past five years and the value of farming land is increasing constantly. This town and the country around it offer many opportunities.

The Chamber of Commerce of Wellington will soon have things humming. More people will come here. More industries will be developed. This is going to be a town in which it will be pleasant and profitable to live.

Mrs. Charles Goodnight

Mrs. Charles Goodnight, the first white woman to make her home in the Panhandle died last Sunday at Goodnight at the age of 77. Mrs. Goodnight came to the Panhandle with her husband in 1877. She saw the vast barren regions change to a country of thriving towns and cities—a country with vast development ahead of it than it had behind. It is to women like Mrs. Goodnight—women of good birth and gentle blood—that the present Panhandle owes its being. No territory becomes settled until women live there. The fact that she was the first of the great women entitled Mrs. Goodnight to a place in the Panhandle Hall of Fame, but Mrs. Goodnight has many other claims to distinction besides being the one of a courageous pioneer. To acquaint the people of Collingsworth County with the life of this great woman, a complete story of her life by Mrs. Phebe K. Warner will be published in a later issue of this paper.

Petticoat Politics

The political situation in Texas is a disgrace to American womanhood, says Collier's magazine in a full page editorial, illustrated to show Jim as a ventriloquist with "Ma" as his dummy.

Whether Texans are fully aware of the significance of the Ferguson regime, affairs in the Lone Star state are receiving national recognition and criticism as the editorial in Collier's will show.

Women in politics are defended by the magazine which contrasts the Ferguson administration with that of Mrs. Nellie Ross, governor of Wyoming in her own right. The record of Mrs. Ross affords an inspiring example of the valiant public service which women in office may render when they act in their own behalf and not merely as the puppets of men, declares Colliers.

And such is the sense of the many article on the Texas situation. They, in the majority of cases, are not reflections on the ability of women, but an attack on the embezzlement of power by Jim Ferguson, the man, who performs the functions of an office that has been denied him.

The issue in Texas is Jim Ferguson and not the experiment of a woman in office.

Collier's Says: "The political situation in Texas has become an offense to the county at large and to decent intelligent women in particular. Once more a soiled male politician is making a fight for state domination behind the protection of a woman's skirts."—Amarillo news.

Cotton Is King

An American chemist has made a rare discovery. He has made it possible to take humble cottonseed and turn it into beefsteak, or roast or sausage or hash. Texas is a banner cotton producing state. This discovery will enable the cotton growers to furnish this world with meat stuffs. Great is Texas; great is chemistry, great should be the man who has invented cottonseed beefsteak. Now why should the spirit of mortal be proud?—Wichita Falls Record News.

Sunday Work

Houston's mayor has ordered all construction work on Sunday in that city stopped instantly. In giving his orders to the chief of police, His Honor made this statement—"If Houston can't exceed last year's building record without Sunday work, then let the record go." This sentiment is worthy of attention and consideration. Work on Sunday, from a few hours to a full day's schedule is not confined altogether to the large cities and the nation is in peril from the increasing use of Sunday as a day of profit making. There is a wide difference of opinion as to how far we may go in the matter of recreation and there are lots of people who want to set themselves up as judge over the sort of recreation their neighbors may take, while holding to their own with all the selfishness that usually characterizes people of that ilk, but what the News would like to bring to your attention is the fact that even if a person should go to extremes in the matter of recreational activities on the Sabbath, he is far and away above the person who will appropriate the hours of Sunday for the low ends of profit. The Mayor of Houston is right.—The Clarendon News.

Why Take a Risk?

A few days ago an advertising salesman worked the merchants of Childress for business. In the deal two cards were printed and placed in a cigar lighter. The machine cost perhaps five dollars and the printing job was eight dollars. The salesman complained of the price asked for the printing, saying he could get it in other towns for $5. He wanted a two-color job and in showing samples of the work done in other shops, not one was printed in two colors. He was caught there, for two-color printing required double the time and in this instance the stock was not more than 20 cents.

Printing and machine cost $13. The salesmen sold six spaces at $12.50 each and the advertising is to run for a year. For a day's work he netted himself $62 and say traveling expenses amounted to $6 that would leave a net profit of $56 for the day's work. The printer worked three hours to turn out the job.

The Index wonders how many merchants in Childress have a business that will net $50 a day profit. Not many, if any. The merchant who can take $10,000 profit out of an investment of $60,000 is doing fine. This advertising salesman netted $17,528 yearly out of an expenditure of a little more than $5,000.

If business men would stop to think how easy money can be made by merely using one's wits we believe it would be only a short time until there would not be a retail store. Why invest $60,000 and risk fire, poor crops and many other things to make an honest living and a just return upon the investment.—Childress Index

Yes, and lots of fellows will spend 50 cents a week for cigarettes, burn up 87 cents worth of gasoline every day, attend a picture show three nights a week, drop a dime in the collection basket at church at least once a month and buck like a broncho when asked to dig up a nickel a day with which to build a public school building in our town for the benefit of our children, our neighbors children and our children's children. Its a funny world.—Lynn County News.

A man with long experience in dealing with boys in the school room said the other day that "boys are better now in school than they were when I was a boy." There is no doubt about our boys averaging higher in qualities of character than they did then. He went on to say that much of this is due to the helpful direction of boyish energy into athletic pursuits. An idle mind is truly the devil's workshop and the boy who is keenly interested in various forms of competitive athletics rarely has time for petty meannesses that used to be attributed to "animal spirits." We have the same kind of boy today that our grandfather had—but he is not left to the mercy of his animal spirits as he one time was. It is true enough that he is no angel today, but he is a pretty clean chap on the whole and has had opportunity for inspiration that his predecessor lacked.—Childress Post.

Great Personages of The Bible

By Rev. Leonard A. Barrett
ENOCH

SOME special trait of character stands out unique in every life. Washington is remembered for his generalship in directing affairs in the formative period of our national life. Lincoln is characterized as a man of unconventional sincerity, a man who would have died for the truth. In the field of literature, Emerson will always be spoken of as an idealist, Robert Browning as a theist, and Tennyson as a deist. In the biography of the Bible, Peter is known as the rock apostle, Paul as a missionary, and John as the meditative disciple. In the Old Testament, Moses will be thought of primarily as the law giver, and Joshua the leader at whose command the sun was reported to have stood still. David was the poet, and Solomon the wise man. The character of Enoch is interesting, for the reason that we know very little about him. Large portions of history are associated with the names of other Biblical characters, but not so of Enoch. Where he was born, who his parents were, what profession or calling he pursued are unknown to us. All we know of this interesting character is told in two sentences: "Enoch walked with God; and he was not for God took him," is the Old Testament statement, and the following is the New Testament valuation of his life: "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death, and was not found, because God had translated him; for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God." These two sentences, even though a very brief biography, give us a good deal of information. It was no easy matter for Enoch to walk with God. The nation was surrounded with the pagan practices of those who worshipped idolatrous gods. With an environment of this nature it took a strong conviction of mind and determination of heart to stand firm in his belief. In spite of all the allurements of the surrounding paganism of his day, Enoch walked with God. He was, therefore, a strong man with firm and unalterable convictions. He must also have possessed a character sufficiently strong and virile to compel him to act true to those convictions and not pretend to believe one thing and act as though he secretly believed another. The story is told of one who while worshipping in a beautiful temple saw a vision of the Savior. The worshiper desired to remain in the temple and continue indefinitely in his expression of praise and worship. He remembered, however, that not very far away from the temple beautiful there was a large number of people who were very poor and sorely in need of both food and shelter. While hesitating whether to go and minister to those poor people or remain at his worship in the temple he seemed to have heard a voice saying to him: "Minister to those in need, feed the hungry, clothe the naked, visit those in prison." He feared to go away from the temple lest when he returned the vision of the Savior would be no longer there. At last he obeyed the voice which bade him go. He went like a good Samaritan and did all he could to alleviate the suffering of those in need. When he returned to the temple he was very confident the vision he had seen would be gone. To his great astonishment he saw the vision of the Savior even more beautiful than before. As he looked at the vision he remarked: "And you are still here." "Yes," was the reply. "Hast thou remained I must have gone, because thou didst go I have remained."

Enoch was a man who possessed a deep faith and also a large capacity for service. Otherwise it could never have been said of him that "He pleased God."

We are also told that he was translated. While we do not know exactly how this occurred, it certainly was a direct evidence of Divine favor and indicative of how much God thought of him.

Did you ever study the epitaphs upon tombstones? Some of them are very ridiculous and some are very serious. One of these very ridiculous epitaphs can be seen in a very old cemetery. Upon a tombstone is recorded the name of the deceased, the date of his birth and death, and, according to the custom of many years ago, the cause of his death was also engraved upon the stone, so that the entire inscription read like this: John Smith born — died — met his death by having been kicked by a mule. Under this inscription was engraved the words: "Well done thou good and faithful servant." While some are unintentionally very ridiculous, others are very serious and beautiful. But where can we find the story of an entire life told in so short and simple a statement. "Enoch walked with God." Guizot needed eight volumes of 400 pages each to write the history of France. Irving found that he needed two volumes of 450 pages each to write the biography of Washington. The biographies of Napoleon and Lincoln are so numerous we cannot even count them. The shortest biography of which we have any record is the one about Enoch. The record of our lives will not likely be written in books of many thousand pages, but upon the stone which shall mark a last resting place could there be engraved a more simple, sublime and victorious epitaph than that by which Enoch will always be known: "He walked with God."

The TALE of KIDDIE KATYDD

By Arthur Scott Bailey

KATYDD IS SHY

"NOW—" said Mr. Frog, to Kiddie Katydd—"now tell me, how do you like the overcoat I made for you?"

And Kiddie Katydd, safe in his tree once more, and snugly buttoned in Mr. Frog's gift, replied that it was the finest garment he had ever owned in all his life.

"Good!" said Mr. Frog. "And I dare say you've had many overcoats in your time, too."

Kiddie Katydd did not correct Mr. Frog's mistake. To tell the truth, he

Then Mr. Frog Leaped Into the Air Three Times had never before had an overcoat on his back.

"I've come here tonight to deliver an important message to you," Mr. Frog went on. "And thinking the weather might be cooler than you liked, I made you that fine coat so you could stay out here in your tree and listen to what I have to tell you."

"I hear—" he said—"I hear that you're a musician."

"Yes," said Kiddie Katydd—for he knew well enough that Freddie Firefly could not have kept the secret.

"I hear that you're a fiddler," Mr. Frog added.

"Why, no! I've never played the fiddle!" Kiddie Katydd exclaimed. "I don't know how to do that."

"Well, how do you know that you can't, if you've never tried?" Mr. Frog retorted. "If you can play 'Katy did, Katy did,' she did, she did," by rubbing your wing covers together, there's no knowing what you could do with a real fiddle and bow."

"That's true," Kiddie admitted. "I never thought of that."

"Well," said Mr. Frog, who appeared greatly pleased with himself, "anyhow, I want you to join our singing society. Perhaps you've heard me and my friends over in the swamp. Almost every night we have a singing party there. And if you'll only agree to fiddle for us, while we sing, I venture to say that we'll have Farmer Green getting out of his bed to listen to us."

Naturally the invitation pleased Kiddie Katydd. But for all that, he shook his head slowly.

"I'm afraid I'm too shy," he told Mr. Frog. "I like to stay hidden among the leaves, where people can't see me."

"That'll be all right," Mr. Frog assured him. "You can hide in some bush near-by, where we can't look at you."

But still Kiddie Katydd wouldn't accept the invitation. Although Mr. Frog teased and teased, all he would say was that he would think the matter over.

"Promise me this, at least—" Mr. Frog finally said—"promise me that you won't agree to make music for anybody else! Now that people know you're musical, they'll be asking you to play in an orchestra, or a band, or a fife-and-drum corps, or something. But I've invited you first, and if you oblige anybody it ought to be me—especially after I've given you that beautiful warm overcoat." The tailor looked up into the tree so beseechingly that Kiddie Katydd hadn't the heart to refuse his request.

"I'll promise that," he said.

"Hurrah!" cried Mr. Frog, opening his mouth so widely that Kiddie Katydd couldn't help shuddering at the sight.

And then Mr. Frog leaped into the air three times. And each time that he leaped he struck his heels together three times, just to show how happy he was.

Then, with a hearty "Good night!" he turned away and went skipping off.

And Kiddie Katydd, making his curious music in the top of the maple tree, kept thinking that the tailor was one of the oddest chaps he had ever seen.

He did wish, too, that Mr. Frog had a smaller mouth.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
By F. A. WALKER

THE CAPABLE MIND

MEN and women with penetrating judgment go about the filling of their minds with cool deliberation, separating the grain from the chaff, and using only the precious kernel.

If students of art or literature, sincere in their desire to advance and achieve, they use good sense without vanity in packing their memory with things of use which can be turned to profitable account when they sit at their desks, to begin their life-work.

If in the trades, prompted by a wish to succeed, they are none the less cautious in the appropriation of ideas and methods which will prove helpful and speed them on the way of accomplishment.

The capable mind, controlled by calm judgment, is ever the master in the manifold vocations in which humans are engaged in the stern conquest for competence and comfortable existence.

On the other hand, those persons deficient of judgment and mind, inclined to "catch as catch can," store their brains with veritable trash, and keep laboriously at their wearisome and futile task until they realize to their dismay that there is no longer room in their thoughts for things of real worth.

Instead of burning the midnight oil sitting at the feet of Wisdom, they have wasted their time and vigor in pursuit of frivolity and ignorance.

Their brains are as empty of sap as an autumn leaf.

A little while ago they were fellow parts of the world, humorous, strong, supple and living a life of thoughtfulness, given to flashy dress, moving with a rakish abandon among their chosen associates, forgetting in their vanity the emptiness of their foolish minds and the futility of making a tawdry show.

And there is another side to this, for now and then a sudden jolt wakes them up, and they become their own best critics!

But repentance comes too late.

Uneducated, frayed out in nerve and body and incapable of making another effort to redeem themselves, they gradually lose their remaining self-respect, turn their backs on Hope and drift till the end of their days among the failures.

Her Father's Specialty

In a public school in New York city, attended almost exclusively by foreign-born children, a teacher of one of the lower grades was endeavoring to compile facts pertaining to the family histories of her young charges for the official records.

To each child she gave a blank to be filled in with the proper answers. One ragged little girl gave lengthy consideration to this sentence:

"State your father's business."

Then in the space provided she wrote the one word:

"Outa."

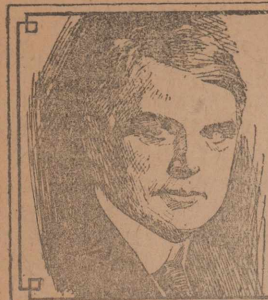

The teacher, collecting the forms, struck this particular word and puzzled long to make out its meaning.

"Rachel," she asked at length, "what does 'outa' mean?"

"It means my papa is outa business," explained the child, "so I writes it down 'Outa.'"

"But doesn't he ever work?" inquired the teacher.

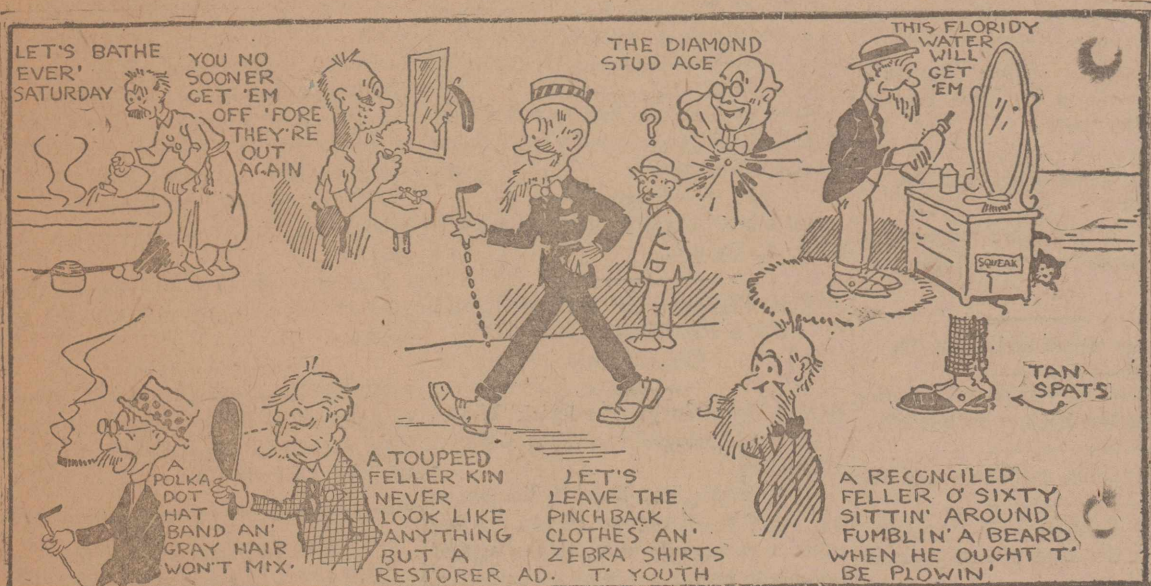

"No, ma'am," said the child sadly; "he don't never work—he strikes!"

SHORT FURROWS

On Age Camouflagin'

On o' th' first things a feller notices after he reaches fifty is how swiftly Saturday night rolls around. He no sooner takes a bath till he begins to lay out his underwear fer another one. He no sooner shaves the snow from his chin till its white agin.

The weeks an' months an' years dart by like a one reel comedy. He no sooner gets used to a straw hat with a polka dot band till its time t' look around fer a rakish green hat. Th' days gone ferever when he could git by with a youthful face an' sparklin' eyes an' th' time to camouflage has come. Th' never endin' battle agin relentless ole age is on. Th' barber, th' masseur th' tailor, th' presser, th' cleaner, th' shoe maker, th' osteopath an' th' toupee maker must all be drafted into his service an' he starts forth t' conquer an unseen foe. But why should a feller try t' hide th' fact that he's fifty? Surely th' room enough on this ole earth fer people o' fifty! Who's he tryin' to fool? What's he tryin' t' put over? He has started over th' top and a talumend face an' tan spats won't hold him back. A polka dot hat ban an' gray hair won't mix! A peeled gray head an' a green hat only excite comment! I don't mean t' unravel an' wither at fifty. If th' anything I hate t' see worse'n a peeled gray badger in a pinch back suit its a reconciled feller o' sixty sittin' around fumbly in a two column beard when he ought t' be plowin'. A feller ought t' be tickled t' death t' reach fifty! He ought t' be proud of it! What I'm drivin' at is that a feller ought to stay in his class. A toupee feller kin never look like anything but a resorer ad! Bright colors only emphasize ole age. If you're spared till fifty, take advantage o' ever' moment from then on, but do it leisurely an' gracefully.

Don't try t' look like you've been born agin. You kin be youthful in spirit without shaving all th' time an' smellin' like Floridy water! Talk about th' golden days o' youth! What's th' matter with th' diamond studded years beyond fifty? At fifty we should be quietly applying the brakes an' leisurely descend th' slope with seasoned muscles, ripe judgement, shorn o' illusions, rich in experience, filled with sweet memories, grateful fer havin' successfully weathered th' adventurous years o' youth, with a keen appreciation o' ever' precious hour an' with th' knowledge that th' no new sensations. Let's stop camouflagin' an' leave th' pinch back clothes and zebra shirts t' youth. Let's bathe ever' Saturday night as usual, but let's not worry about our chins bein' white. We've had our fling at lady killin' so let's sober down an' resolve not t' drain our reserve tanks chasin' after a procession that's only headed fer the place we already are.

You are hereby commanded to summon Dave Gifford by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Collingsworth County, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Wellington, on the fourth Monday in April, A. D., 1926, the same being the 26th day of April A. D., 1926, then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 13th day of November, A. D., 1925 in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court as No. 1060, wherein Nola Gifford is Plaintiff and Dave Gifford is Defendant and said petition alleging that plaintiff and defendant were legally married May 16, 1914 and lived together as husband and wife until about October 1, 1922 when defendant abandoned plaintiff, since which time they have not lived together that soon after the marriage defendant began a course of cruel treatment toward plaintiff, often cursing and abusing her, often assaulting her and striking her and on one occasion violently assaulted her with a knife, inflicting upon her serious and painful injuries and wounds, and finally left her about October 1, 1922 with the intention of permanently abandoning her, which abandonment has continued for more than three years prior to the filing of this suit. Plaintiff sues for divorce for custody of their child of this marriage, costs of suit and general and special relief, all as more fully alleged and shown by her petition on file in said cause.

Herein fail not and have you before said Court at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Wellington, this the 26th day of March, A. D., 1926.

SPANISH PROGRAM

Week before last the Spanish club gave a very interesting program in chapel.

They have been working on this program for a good time and believe me it was put on in style.

A latin play was the first thing on the program. The characters were Vernon Stafford and Zeddie Edgar. Next was singing by Senoritas and Senors. They were dressed in the costume of the Spanish which made the scene very attractive. They were received well and encored. The characters were Alex Haywood, Mildred Scruggs, Thelma Masten, Mildred Henard and J. R. Braboy.

The next thing on the program was Spanish dancing. This was exceedingly good. They danced the tango by La Ploma. Those who took part in the dance were Robert Estes, Ward Hicks, Antney Alford, Howell Grey. The senoritas were Allyn Barnett, Mildred Scruggs, Marion Sewall and Kathleen Boston.

Some say this was the best one yet but the best is yet to come.

ANOTHER GOOD POET

Miss Winnie Dickerson of the second year English class wrote some poetry that Miss Vera Colthrop considered very good. Winnie always makes a high average in all her subjects and takes part in all the school activities. We have asked for her best poem to publish in the school news. We are always glad to show off the work of the students when it is above the average as this is.

SENIORS GIVE PROGRAM, ASSISTED BY MISS HARLE

Thursday morning the Seniors gave their program in chapel, assisted by Miss Harle's spanish class.

First was a spanish program which was very interesting to those who can talk spanish and funny to the rest. The characters were Dorette Beggs, Ben Boston and Rama Camp.

The girls of the Senior Class next sang some songs of various description, mostly popular.

Then Vernonsky Stafford of Russia, who had spent most of his life in the community of Buck Creek and Loco was the feature on the Senior part. He was the strongest man on the stage (there was only one) He then read us some good poetry of his own composition. This concluded the program for the week. But wait for the Junior program.

BOYS GO TO VERNON

The boys who are to enter the scholastic at Vernon left Thursday and Friday. They will enter in the running, shot put, tennis and jumping and pole vaulting.

Those who went are: Lloyd Powell, Raymond Powell, John D. Glenn, James Gillentine, Leon Keithley and Bill Leggett. We are hoping that the boys win and show the spirit of W. H. S.

CHEMISTRY STUDENTS VISIT ICE PLANT

Thursday afternoon the Chemistry class visited the Williams & Rainer ice plant.

When the class arrived at the plant they were met by Mr. Dick Richards who showed them a good deal about the plant. The temperature and thickness of the walls. Later Mr. Wilber Stockton showed the class the ammonia tanks and how the brine was circulated. They were explained to about the ice quattering machine.

The next trip they will take will be to the photographers office. This is in connection with chemistry.

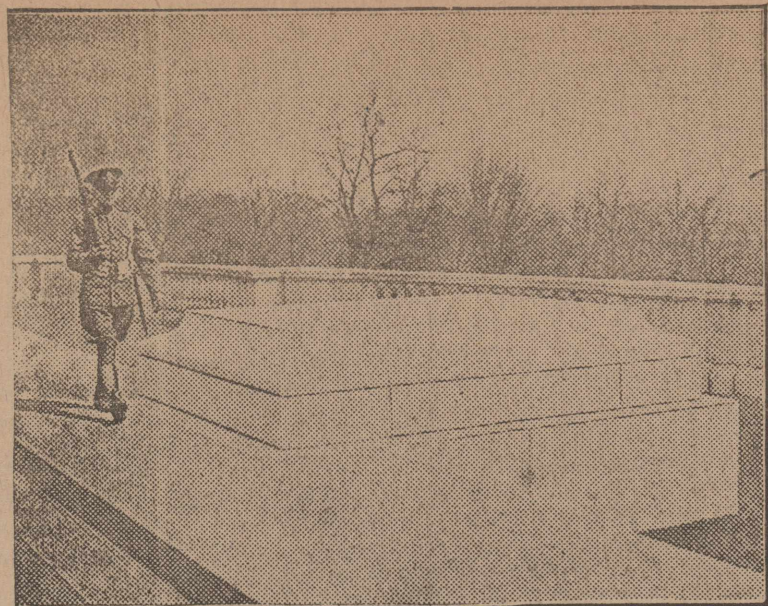

JUNIOR CLASS MEETING

Thursday afternoon the Junior class had a business meeting. The Junior-Senior banquet was planned for next Thursday night for sure. It was put off last week but it will be put on for certain this time.

They also decided to help the Library fund a little bit. The library is in debt and the Junior Class is going to help the good cause. The Junior mothers are going to put the Junior-Senior banquet over. We all know they can because they are just like the Juniors—they never start anything they don't finish.

The Battle of the Raindrops

By Winnie Dickerson '28

Of I had heard of fairies gay,
And when I heard their horn
I saw beneath the new-mown hay,
A crowd in early morn.

Each sang a tiny elfin song,
To cheer the drooping flowers.
To rain old Sol had said "Begon!"
"I never welcome showers."

The raindrops dried their falling tears,
And scampered to their mother,
Who roused her very greatest fears,
By calling to another.

She called to Father Lightning,
Who roused his sister, Dew.
Who all at once began to sing,
"I know just what to do."

At once she summoned all the stars,
Unto the Milky Way.
To judge she chose the great god Mars
They'd do what he might say.

The rainbow was the judges bench,
The fabled pot of gold,
A person who would never flinch,
Was the rain's attorney bold.

A greatest wrong was done to them,
The tiny raindrops said,
For all the flowers would grow dim,
And on the earth lie dead.

What would they do, of what, oh what
Revenge on Grandpa Sun
To grin for making earth so hot,
And burning all the fun?

Then Mars spoke up in wisdom bright,
"Old Mister Sun we'll drown,
And put the sunbeams all to flight,
With raindrops falling down."

The raindrops scampered home in twain
Together with the clouds.
Who dressed themselves with greatest pain,
In mist that looked like shrouds.

They fell in fury to the earth,
And sent the Sun away,
And then they played with joy and mirth,
Until the end of day.

They made each tiny rivulet,
To sparkle neath the sky,
And every flower did they put
And told it not to die.

But ah! Who were the fairies gay,
Dressed in a silv'ry sheen,
I saw beneath the new-mown hay
In such a lovely scene?

They were the tiny dew drops fair,
Who loved each flower dear,
Who placed their longest sil'ry hair,
Upon the grassy pier.

MOORE GOING GOOD FOR PANTHER CLUB IN FORT WORTH

Eddie Moore is cutting them loose on the Panther club at Fort Worth. Although he did not have an exceptionally good day Thursday, he still has plenty of margin from the game Wednesday. In that game he got four hits at five times at the bat and ran in two of the scores. The last of these gave Fort Worth the winning tally. Thursday his sensational fielding more than made up for the lack of hits.

CROP CONDITIONS IN COUNTY VERY GOOD FOR TIME OF YEAR

Crop conditions are exceptionally good for this section after the rains during the past month. The recent heavy rain fall was an additional assurance that the outlook for the crops this year will be better than for several years. Cotton acreage will be cut thirty per cent this year, some say, and much attention is being paid to diversification. Nothing short of a bumper crop in cotton, feed and small grain is expected in this part of the Panhandle.

CITIZENS OF COUNTY OUT OF COAL DURING RECENT COLD SPELL

Wellington is like many other towns in the Panhandle. The citizens of Wellington and Collingsworth County have been shivering during the past ten days, due to the shortage of coal. A KNOWLEDGE OF THE HISTORY OF A PICTURE ADDS TO ITS CHARM

HOPE, By George Frederick Watss, Original Painting in Tate Gallery, London.

G. F. Watts was born in London in the year 1818 and at fifteen he became a painter in oils. At the age of seventeen he made his own portrait.

He will not admit to any other master than the Elgin Marbles of Phidias Greek. "I received no teaching. I visited no painter's studio." These are his words.

Tate Gallery in London, the home of Nineteenth Century British art is lined with the works of George Frederic Watts.

What is that blindfolded figure sitting on the top of the world against the blue sky? At first it seems almost like despair and desperation of spirits. Look again. Off there in the azure depths twinkles a tiny star. The figure is bent to catch any faint tone of music that may come from the last string of her almost shattered lyre which she holds in her hand and which she is playing.

Yes, the lyre is broken but look closely, one string is giving forth soulful music. The whole coloring of the picture is blue, the color of truth and constancy. All at once the meaning flashes through the soul. Hope—is very strongly allied to despair. When the world is darkest however there is surely one start still shining, one string yet unbroken. Truth prevails and HOPE surmounts the greatest difficulties and survives the deepest despair.
