They are displaying bumper stickers for the party's candidates. Shown (l-r) John Wrinkle, Scott and Connie Sheppard, Angelo, Cathy Cowan and Randall Jones.

Midland mayor raps Demos

Urging the Republicans "to hold your head high and be proud," Ernie Angelo, Midland mayor and state Republican national committeeman, told the local GOP delegates at their county convention Saturday, "The Democrat administrations have a lot more to be ashamed of than we do—in spite of Watergate."

As keynote speaker, Angelo told the group of the mistakes of President Carter and his staff "with whom he has surrounded himself."

He pointed to Carter's campaign promise that he would, "under no circumstances give up the United States total control of the Panama Canal zone." "Well," Angelo stated, "We know how good that promise was."

Then he added, "However bad Watergate was, nobody died or drowned there."

He urged local Republicans to work hard in support of GOP candidates. He stressed that "John Tower is still the conservative candidate. The Democrat candidate is a 50-50 moderate, according to his voting record."

HE ALSO CITED the two times that the Republicans came close in the governor's race and added, "For Texans who are concerned about the possibility of big spending by John Hill, the candidate for governor is Bill Clements."

Angelo added, "The Democrats keep saying Clements is a millionaire like that is something evil. So is Hill."

A telegram to local Republicans from Clements thanking them for their support in the primary was read. The chairman presiding, Ben Bancroft, also heard a report that Bill Fisher, candidate for Congress, had visited in Big Spring in the past week and would be back.

The Young Republicans headed by Randall Jones, had decorated the district courtroom in bunting and flags and played patriotic music. The Rev. Bill Henning, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation. Jones led the pledge and Cathy Cowan led the national anthem.

Story of Torres' death isn't over yet

Turmoil scars Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Late on a May night in 1977 on the banks of a muddy, trash-filled bayou, an incident occurred, hidden from the eyes of thousands of Houstonians by darkness and isolation, that has brought turmoil to the nation's fifth largest city.

Six policeman and one young, drunk Mexican-American laborer were the characters in this first act of a drama that later brought convictions against three officers; charges against several others; a riot in a city park, and the city council granting emergency powers to the mayor.

The story that began that night at Buffalo Bayou near the Houston police station has not ended.

The leading roles were to be played by unlikely persons—a rookie policeman, an officer with a file filled with citations for his exceptional service, a state court jury, a U.S. District Court judge and a former Army Ranger, known by only a few persons until he died.

It was the rookie officer — Carless Elliott, 20, son of a veteran policeman — who wrote the first pages of the story when he told his superiors that a Mexican-American had been taken screaming, cursing, kicking and drunk from a bar in a tough section of Houston by officers following a call from the tavern owner.

Elliott said he and five other officers took the man to a deserted area, beat him, and then the prisoner either fell, jumped or was pushed into the bayou from a 16-foot high embankment. Elliott, who said he had no part in the beating, was never accused of any wrongdoing and is still on the force.

Three days later the body of Joe Campos Torres was found floating in the murky bayou, which flows through a section of downtown Houston.

Then the name of Joe Campos Torres, a self-styled karate expert, occasionally known for having a few beers and a few fights in his part of the city, became a symbol of police brutality against the minorities, especially the Hispanics.

The death of Campos Torres, 23, resulted in state murder charges against two officers and later civil rights violations against four policemen.

It resulted in the creation of the first internal affairs division in Houston police department history — a unit to investigate citizen complaints against officers.

It resulted in several rallies calling for justice for Mexican-Americans, who comprise 13 percent of the city's some 1.7 million residents.

Campos Torres' death on that May night — a night when Mexican-Americans celebrated a Mexican holiday called Cinco de Mayo, began to spread and flow like lava through the city.

Two officers, Terry Denson, 27, with several citations for his work in the past, and Stephen Orlando, 22, were convicted in state court of negligent homicide and given one-year probated sentences.

Later they, along with Joseph Janish, 22, were convicted of civil rights violation charges and sentenced to one year in prison and 10-year suspended terms. A fourth officer is to be tried later and a fifth pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor in exchange for his testimony.

The light sentences brought cries of anger from the Mexican-American community and there were more rallies and protest marches.

How strong was protocol?

with Tommy Hart

Etiquette in the royal courts of Europe was so strict and fatuous through the ages that people of royal blood have died because of it.

A Spanish monarch, Phillip III, actually burned to death because court demeanor was observed. While lingering near a fireplace, Phillip's royal trappings caught fire but his courtiers, so steeped in court rules, did not rush in to help.

On another occasion, a Spanish queen was thrown from her horse but her foot caught in the stirrup. Two officers freed her foot but then fled the country in fear of their own lives — for they had laid hands on the queen's body.

Even in death, strict protocol was observed. When Louis XIV of France exited through the gates of Valhalla, his wax effigy was given the proper ceremonial honors for 40 days. Court officials carried in dishes of food for dinner, tasted the wine and proffered perfumed napkins to the royal dummy.

The privileged ladies lived by rules, too. Only a queen could wear a dress with a train as long as 11 ells (about 11 yards). Her daughter could order dresses with trains no longer than nine ells, princesses even less.

Five injured in car wreck

A major accident just south of Ackery at the intersection of FM 2230 and Howard County Road 53 at 7:17 p.m. Friday left three persons with serious injuries, and two others with bruises and lacerations.

Jesus Lara, a 25-year-old passenger in a vehicle driven by Ernestino Gonzales, is in guarded condition in the intensive care unit of Malone-Hogan Hospital. Gonzales, who lives on Gail Rd., was treated and released for minor injuries.

Sammy Calvino, of Knott, driver of the other vehicle, is reported in fair condition, as is his wife, Marlene Calvino, 24. Their five-year-old son, Sammy Calvino, Jr. only received minor injuries and was treated and released.

Both Gonzales and Calvino were farm workers, living outside Big Spring. The accident occurred when, according to Department of Public Safety reports, Gonzales, failed to yield the right of way to the Calvino vehicle. Both vehicles were traveling at around 60 mph.

The accident occurred just inside the Howard County line, and Lemasa DPS patrolman Allen Plumlee responded to the accident to aid Howard County Patrolman Dene Richardson, who investigated the accident.

Action/reaction: Why no buses?

Q. Why does Big Spring not have inter-city buses?

A. This would have to be a private business venture and two bus companies contacted reported that cities of the size of Big Spring do not usually have sufficient business for inter-city buses unless they have a sizeable college population. Abilene and Lubbock are the closest cities with bus systems that are profitable and both have a large number of college students. Perhaps in the future smaller cities will have more bus service.

Offbeat: No place like jail

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — When Des Plaines tore down its 40-year-old jail last year, nobody suspected there'd be a booming market for its cells.

Buyers have included a law firm whose clients might remember the bars, and some citizens bent on converting cells to novel recreation rooms.

"We do a lot of criminal law work and our purchase of a cell was a somewhat nostalgic act," said lawyer Larry Gabriele. "We represented a lot of people who spent time in there."

Barbara Meudt and her husband, Jake, paid $200 for each of two cells now in their backyard. Sons Jacob, 7, and Jason, 5, like climbing on the bars and the cells may eventually become an underground wine cellar and recreation room, she said.

Tops on TV: Ritter, Wayne

Two competing movies, both at 8 p.m., show some promise, and neither is a television rerun. On Channel four, John Ritter (of "Three's Company" fame) co-stars in a serious role with Carrie Fisher in the premiere of "Leave Yesterday Behind." On channel seven, the 1975 box office success "Brannigan" airs with John Wayne starring as a tough Chicago cop who pursues a racketeer to London.

More violence at airport

TOKYO (AP) — Seven persons entered a radio beacon facility for Tokyo's new violence-beset Narita International Airport Saturday and damaged 20 of 50 antennae inside, police reported.

Transport Ministry officials said the intruders knocked out gear that was being used for flights to and from Tokyo's Haneda International Airport, but Haneda flights were not affected because another beacon system also is used there.

Police said the intruders, who were believed to be militant radicals opposed to the opening of the Narita airport, broke through a fence around the compound and began breaking the antennae with hammers before a guard discovered them.

They fled, hurling fire bombs that destroyed a guard station, police said. There were no reports of injuries. The guidance facility is about six miles west of the Narita airport, which is to be opened May 21.

The Narita airport, 41 miles north of Tokyo, is to replace Haneda which will handle domestic flights. Left-wing radicals have been fighting the Narita airport for years and have succeeded in delaying its opening 12 times. The last time was March 26 when control tower equipment was damaged during riots and demonstrations.

Protests against the seven-year-old airport began with farmers in the area who wanted to preserve their land. They were joined by the leftists who have used the protests to mount anti-government demonstrations.

54,000 hear Stapleton

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Christians should break down the barriers between all races and denominations and unite, Ruth Carter Stapleton told a grassroots ecumenical rally of 54,000 persons Saturday.

President Carter's evangelist sister told the "born again" Christians at Giants Stadium here, "Love your neighbor as you love yourself. This is a truth that I'm still working on."

The participants, from as far south as North Carolina and as far west as California, celebrated "Jesus 78," an interfaith day on the eve of the Pentecost, considered by many to be the anniversary of the birth of Christianity.

Queen stops horses

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Shouting "Whoa! Whoa!" Queen Elizabeth II grabbed the reins of four frightened horses dragging an overturned coach Saturday and with her husband, Prince Philip, brought them to a halt.

The incident occurred during a horse show in Windsor Great Park that the queen and Philip were watching from a parked jeep.

The carriage overturned while maneuvering around obstacle No. 3 of the course and all four troopers from the Royal Household Cavalry Regiment who were aboard were thrown out.

Capt. Nicholas d'Ambrunell, who was in charge of the carriage, said the horses dragged it for several hundred yards and "I saw the queen step forward to shout 'Whoa' and take hold of the reins."

"Then Prince Philip came up and they both quieted the animals while the carriage was put back," he said.

She's special mom to her 28 children

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) — Only a few of them can say the word "Mom," but that's enough for Estelle Sprague. She sees something special in each of her children — 28 of them in all.

Carole is 17 but has the body of a 2-year-old. She weighs 38 pounds. Sean, an epileptic, must be strapped in his chair. Other children, their legs and arms deformed, stare at the television set, trying to lift oversized heads.

"Most people call them retarded, but to me, they're something special because there is something special about each one of them," says Mrs. Sprague, a frail, 60-year-old, gray-haired grandmother.

For her, there are no holidays — not even Mother's Day.

Ten years ago, after rearing three children of their own, she and her husband, Darius, opened a home for the mentally retarded on 11-acre farm in rural southwest Ohio.

Sixteen children live in their home now, and 12 others live in a home the couple bought in 1975, a home that has been used to house the mentally retarded since the 1920s.

"I can still remember one little boy," Mrs. Sprague recalled about the purchase of the second home. "He frothed at the mouth, but he had the most beautiful brown eyes. Regardless, there's something pretty about each and every one of them."

The children come from state institutions and private homes. Costs are defrayed by state funds of $16.70 per day per child and private charges to families. In addition, all of the Sprague's family savings have gone into caring for the children.

Thirteen paid employees help Mrs. Sprague in both homes during the day. But after 8 p.m., the Spragues are alone in one of the homes and their daughter, Donna, and a grandson watch over the other.

Jays are measured in faltering steps or slurred words. But there have been heartaches.

Six times in 10 years, the Spragues have watched children die.

"If we lose a child, we still keep in touch with their own families," Mrs. Sprague says. "And I still see them when they go back to the state institutions. If a child dies, no matter how far away, we go to the funeral."

Someone threw a flammable substance on a car belonging to Rayfield Turner, 801 Anna, while the car was at his home, and ignited it around 6:10 a.m. Friday. The fire was put out quickly, but not before some $450 damage had been done to the windshield and the paint job.

The incident was just one of many in a busy weekend for city police.

THE REPUBLICANS publicly commended Senator John Tower for his constant efforts to get this study published.

The fourth resolution expressed concern in connection with Carter's cutback of military spending in favor of social programs, and resolved that "The United States should remain No. 1 in military strength for the safety of the nation."

The resolutions chairman was Billy

Mack Sheppard with members including H. W. Wright, Ray Echols and John Swindell.

Resolutions were presented to the committee by Maxwell W. Green, the West Texas Republican Women and Winston Winkle.

State delegates to the convention Sept. 8 and 9 in Dallas were elected including Sam Hunnicutt, Mrs. Frances Wheat, Billy Mack Sheppard, the Rev. Bill Henning and Winston Winkle.

Alternates are Mrs. Joyce Green, E. A. Fiveash, John Swindell, Mrs. Leola Edwards and Aiken Simpson.

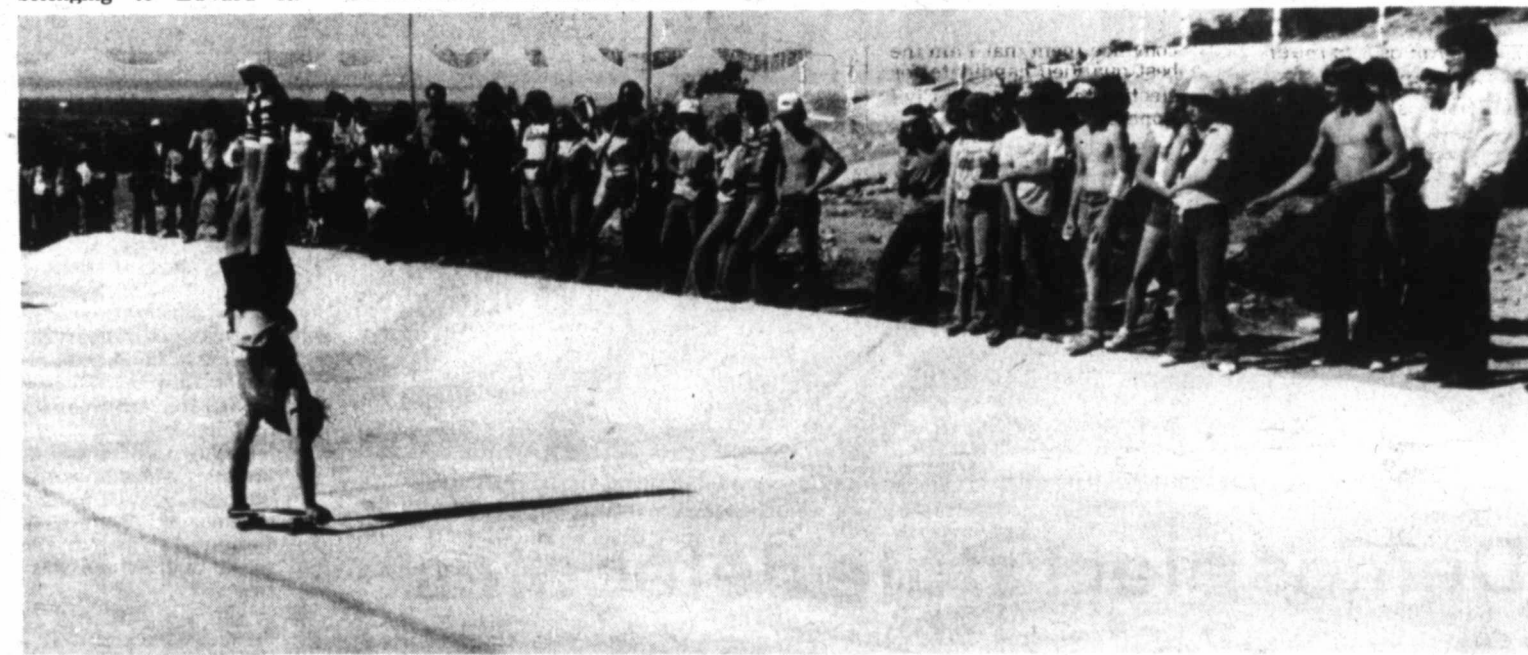

Credentials committee at the convention included E. A. Fiveash, Mrs. Gladys Fiveash, Ralph Gossett and Mrs. Wheat. The committee on convention rules included Simpson, Mrs. Thelma Blackwell, Mrs. Betty Pitts, and Mrs. Sandra Jones.

Committee on the permanent organization included Winkle, Mrs. Edwards and Cathy Cowan. The nominating committee included Polly Mays, Dene Sheppard and E. B. McCormick.

Angelo told the group, "Midland now had more Republicans vote in their primary than the Democrats. We had as many vote absentee as voted in this county in the GOP primary."

"Don't be discouraged," he added, "We were the first county in Texas two years ago to vote more Republicans than Democrats. This year we were joined by Kerry County. There are other counties not far behind. Keep working for conservatism, Free Enterprises and a two-party system in Texas."

Convention officers included Bancroft, Mary Randall, and Jones.

Mary O'Hara, a picture of embellishing grace on the stage, once left the outside world for 12 years of religious contemplation.

The first time Mary appeared on TV, the British Broadcasting Company gave her a series. She appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show. Decca waxed her songs. There were girls all over the world.

She married her husband, Richard, after she discovered he had Hodgkins Disease, the kind that could not be cured. His death only deepened her faith. After she buried him, she entered a convent. She says had she not given herself to God, she would have committed suicide.

She renounced all her possessions, even her music, and took the name Sister Miriam. She took to working in vegetable gardens, making clothes and doing household chores. Her days, except for one hour at noon-time, were spent in total silence.

She says she was not unhappy because hard work made time pass more quickly, thus speeding up the time when she could rejoin Richard.

The monastic life chafed in time, however, and she eventually returned to the outside world. She now lives in a small house near London. She has let her hair grow and fingers that once traveled up and down rosary beads are back coaxing music from the strings of her harp.

Those who have heard Mary sing compare her to Judy Collins which, to an Englishman, is the ultimate in praise. She's been known to work for six months polishing a single phrase of a lyric. She sings nothing she does not adorn, to which she does not add a delicate charm.

Her repertoire ranges from modern songs like "Bridge Over Troubled Waters" to Irish folk songs like "Una Bahn" and "Bring Me a Shawl From Galway."

When she sings, even the cynical stagehands have been known to lay down their cables and lights to cheer.

You can look for her to get the full treatment in the American theater.

An accomplished gentleman of letters insists that an ugly man becomes a more successful lover than an adonis because, like Avis, he tries harder.
He studies the prey (or the prize, if you will) with the detached and scientific curiosity of an anthropologist, never letting his attention wander.

Bob Dickenson extends thanks

After winning 15 of 23 counties, and pulling over 26,000 votes, Bob Dickenson, candidate for the 11th Court of Civil Appeals, expressed gratitude to the voters of the 23 counties which make up the area of the 11th Court.

"I am pleased at the fact that over 26,000 voters in 15 of the 23 counties expressed their confidence in me on May 6," said Dickenson.

"Since the first of March I have made many new friends and renewed many old friendships. Between now and June 3 (date of the runoff), I will continue my efforts to meet as many people as possible and to convince them that I am the best qualified candidate for election to the Court of Civil Appeals."

Dickenson faces Judge J. Neil Daniel, of Abilene, in the June 3 runoff. The overall vote totals from the May 6th primary election showed Daniel with 28,556 to Dickenson's 26,022. The slim margin for Daniel was a result of his carrying of Taylor County.

Hill named recipient

LUBBOCK — A Texas Tech University student from Big Spring, Shauna T. Hill, was named as a 1978 Mass Communications scholarship recipient.

Hill, daughter of Harlan J. Hill, 1706 Runnels, received $200 from Charles A. Guy. The Texas Tech Department of Mass Communications honored 36 recipients with scholarships totaling $9,250.

Merrill Lynch and Co., which professes in its advertising to being bullish on America is, in reality, predicting a slowdown in the economic recovery.

Donald T. Regan, the firm's chairman, said recently he did not expect the current U.S. economic surge to last much longer. The downturn, he added, likely will occur early in 1979. That relapse, he will be mild and short-lived, however, according to Regan.

The story being circulated among some Republicans is that John Connally will shed no tears if Bob Krueger retires John Tower in the U.S. Senatorial race in Texas this year.

Such a turn in fortunes would elevate Connally to the head of the party in Texas and enhance his chances to become the party's presidential nominee in 1980.

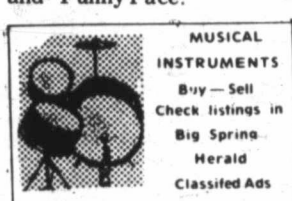

DONNA FARGO

'Funny Face' syndicated

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Donna Fargo will have a syndicated half-hour television show next season, "The Donna Fargo Show," officials have announced.

The musical-variety series will be produced by Metromedia Producers Corp. and be taped the first two weeks of June in Provo, Utah.

Miss Fargo is best known for her hits "The Happiest Girl in the Whole U.S.A." and "Funny Face."

Motherhood is profession

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Is motherhood a legitimate profession?

Absolutely yes, says 48-year-old Kay Willis, a mother of 10. And to instill pride and promote motherhood as a profession she has founded Mothers Matter in this New York City suburb.

"It bothers me to no end that we are the oldest unpaid profession in the world," Mrs. Willis said.

Many women who chose motherhood feel guilty because they did not select a career in business, Mrs. Willis said, and "we want to show them that motherhood is a legitimate profession." She began conducting sessions at her home two years ago to convince mothers of the important role they play in society.

Antibiotic can only help tourism

It's comforting to know that science thinks its on the verge of conquering Montezuma's Revenge.

Some call it La Turista, others Dehli Belly — it all depends on what part of the world you catch it in — south of the border, in Europe or in Asia.

WHEREVER, IT'S ENOUGH to put the strongest man on the flat of his back — moaning, sweating, anticipating. Researchers reveal that tests of an antibiotic called Doxycycline on Peace Corps volunteers in Kenya indicate it can protect most people from the ravages of a traveler's simple diarrhea.

That diarrhea, the medical profession says, is caused by a microscopic organism called Escherichia coli and it's a persistent little devil, capable of tracking a potential victim long after he drops his guard and think he has escaped it.

The germ is especially active among tourists who venture into Mexico and, up to now, now remedy has worked. Furthermore, it can hang on as long as one month.

There are, no course, many more pressing challenges facing mankind. The cure for cancer is yet to be found. Diseases which attack the nervous system are still running rampant. Heart trouble is still a leading killer of Americans.

THIS DEVELOPMENT, however, comes as welcome news especially to those Americans who like to travel. If the antibiotic lives up to expectations, it may open up travel to all parts of Latin and South America to many Americans who, having been told never to drink the water, now will feel they can go anywhere. And the tourist dollar helps countries like Mexico, Colombia and Brazil in their fight to attain a balance in international payments.

If Doxycycline lives up to expectations, there is still hope someone will come up with a cure for the common cold — but that may be asking too much.

Medium subverted

Around the rim

Walt Finley

I'm a TV fan which is why I hate to see the way it has been subverted the past nine months.

Viewers won't stand for so much violence anymore so now the networks have turned to bathroom humor at best, and pornography at worst.

It's bad enough at any time but when it's carried into Christmas and Mother's Day programs, it borders on sacrilege. (No, I'm not writing this just because my mother is visiting me or because the Chamber of Commerce personnel lost "my Santa Claus" suit.

I ENJOY LOOKING at pretty girls, but I think it's revolting to see bare chorus girls gyrating to a hopped up version of "O Tannenbaum". And I wasn't in the mood to watch the likes of Bette Midler, whose sole line of dialogue seems to be "God, you're hip!!!"

I also am neither entertained nor entertained by an interview with the Fonzy and his silly little live-in girl friend that he finally got around to marrying this week.

Network executives reportedly are worried because TV viewing declined since last September. They're searching for all sorts of reasons, such as women working outside the home and faulty measuring methods.

It apparently hasn't occurred to them that a lot of us are just plain fed up with the trash.

TV GUIDE quotes, in part, a column Bing Crosby wrote for a California newspaper shortly before he died. He said he had been in the hospital for weeks after a fall from a stage and he watched a lot of TV. He wrote:

"It became apparent to me that very slowly and very subtly writers and producers are working nudity, permissiveness, irresponsibility, profanity, scenes of semi-explicit sex, provocative dialogue, smutty innuendoes and situations into their shows. Moral responsibility is almost indiscernible.

"I don't believe the First Amendment should apply here. A citizen can say or do anything he wants out on the street unless he breaks the law, but he should be allowed to come into a man's house and fill the TV set with prurient material. It certainly is not the type of thing that you want your children to see daily.

I would like to extend a special thanks to Mr. Jerry Foresyth for his work in helping us prepare the field and keep them in top playing condition. I have been at the ball park every night that the girls have played and have had no trouble with the fields or equipment. If the people only knew the work that has been put into the field by the City of Big Spring, they would not be complaining today.

I am sure that there are many softball leagues that would be more than glad to play on these fields and have the girls go back to the school grounds. I hope that the park will always remain a softball park for the girls.

I wish to thank the City Council for allowing us to use the ball park for the girls.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am troubled with an illness that has been diagnosed as polymyalgia rheumatica. I have never heard of anyone with this, nor can I find any printed material on it. Can you be of help? — J.M.

Your doctor was on the ball to have recognized this sometimes overlooked disorder. It is not a greatly publicized problem, but it has been receiving increased attention of late.

Polymyalgia rheumatica, which we can call "PR" for short, is a disease that can be mistaken for rheumatoid arthritis. However, there are few specific symptoms. It does not, for example, cause the deformities of arthritis. As with many "mystery" diseases the cause is unclear. The patient is usually an older woman, often in the 60s or over.

Polymyalgia rheumatica can be helped

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

There is not the muscle weakness found in similar disorders, but it does limit activity because of the pain and stiffness that occurs with movement. These symptoms are not present when at rest. The areas affected are the back, neck, and shoulder and pelvic regions chiefly.

The brighter side of the picture is that it can be treated effectively, even cured. But it is important to begin early. Steroid drugs (prednisone) administered over a long period can help. The symptoms may disappear without return.

One important allied symptom is arteritis (inflammation of arteries), particularly those in the temporal (head) area. In fact, if not treated soon enough blindness can occur. Blood sedimentation tests are important in detecting this complication.

"KIDS ARE INDELIBLY impressed by anything they see in a film done by attractive, famous people. I voiced my sentiments to a TV executive and he said, 'We're only depicting life as it is.'

"I fear that they are depicting life as it is going to be if they are not diverted."

End of sermon.

Now back to something funny — like politics:

Did you know that candidates aren't photogenic anymore?

They're mediagenic.

Just so they aren't media-ocre.

Ex-Herald ad expert, Lola Knowles, who celebrated her birthday Wednesday in Gainesville, says the voters pick the candidates and the rest of the time hope that the candidates won't pick up.

PHYLLIS HART, Tommy's energetic daughter, who celebrated her birthday Wednesday, knows a fool and his money are soon parted but what she wonders is:

"How did they get together in the first place?"

Ex-Beatle Paul McCartney says he doesn't think television is such a bad influence.

In fact, he says, he gets a lot of education from it. His favorite programs are "To Tell The Truth" and re-runs of "The Munsters."

"When he's graduated, he gets to watch the Bugs Bunny cartoons," remarked Yvonne "Bonnie" DeLeon, Herald word maker, who worked on her birthday Wednesday.

My bashful aunt, Marie Chastain, writes:

"The so-called ERA would make men and women the same — not equal."

I don't think even the ERA could do that, Aunt Rea.

FRANK GONZALES, known far and wide as the "Coahoma Kid," is convinced that making out your income tax is like making out your laundry list.

Either way you lose your shirt.

Football games, singing in the choir, and the magic of — boyfriends!

Years of carefree moments, and serious thoughts of You, The Lord she'd learned to love by now, and learned to lean on, too.

But Lord, You already knew that!

Young womanhood was here so soon, I'd hardly turned around When illness came in the prime of life and cruelly bowed her down.

But as her body weakened, and her spirits sank so low She turned to You for comfort, Lord, as tears on her hymn-book pages show.

But Lord, You already knew that!

And then You called her from me, Lord, one cold, clear, winter day, On January thirtieth, just prior to noon, they say.

Her life on earth had ended — and a great new life began, For Jesus, in His gentle way, reached down and took her hand And led her to a paradise, where she will ever be In joy and peace unchanged by time —

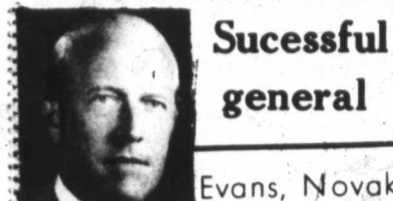

She's waiting there, for me!

But Lord, You already knew that!

My Lord, once more this very day while she is there with You Would you take the time to tell her, as only You can do How much You really love her, and Oh! that her mom does, too!

But Lord, You already knew that!

WASHINGTON — The State Department's Office of Human Rights has now reached such policymaking eminence that a protest from its boss, Pat Derian, raised the possibility of postponing Vice President Walter Mondale's visit to Manila last week.

Actually, Assistant Secretary of State Derian fought hard not just to postpone Mondale's trip, because it came so close to the much-criticized presidential election there, but to cancel it altogether.

"We wanted to postpone it to July," a top aide in Miss Derian's office told us. "Pat kept asking, why in God's name does he have to go to the Philippines anyway?"

In the end, Mondale went as scheduled but first received a one-hour briefing from Miss Derian on how to handle the delicate human rights question raised by allegations of massive electoral fraud by President Ferdinand Marcos.

THE EXPANDING policymaking eminence of Miss Derian's Human Rights Office is raising some prominent eyebrows on grounds that human rights activists are jeopardizing other U.S. foreign policy objectives, particularly among conservative and right-wing governments with intimate ties to the U.S.

Linked to this concern about ever wider ramifications of President Carter's justly praised human rights initiative is the switch from loud to quiet administration handling of non-human rights in the Soviet Union and other Communist states.

A case in point was Secretary of State Vance's recent mission to Moscow on strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks. Vance spokesman Hodding Carter was permitted to inform the press that Vance privately complained about Russia's African adventures in his talks with Soviet leaders. But Carter was not authorized to tell the press that Vance also privately brought up human rights with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

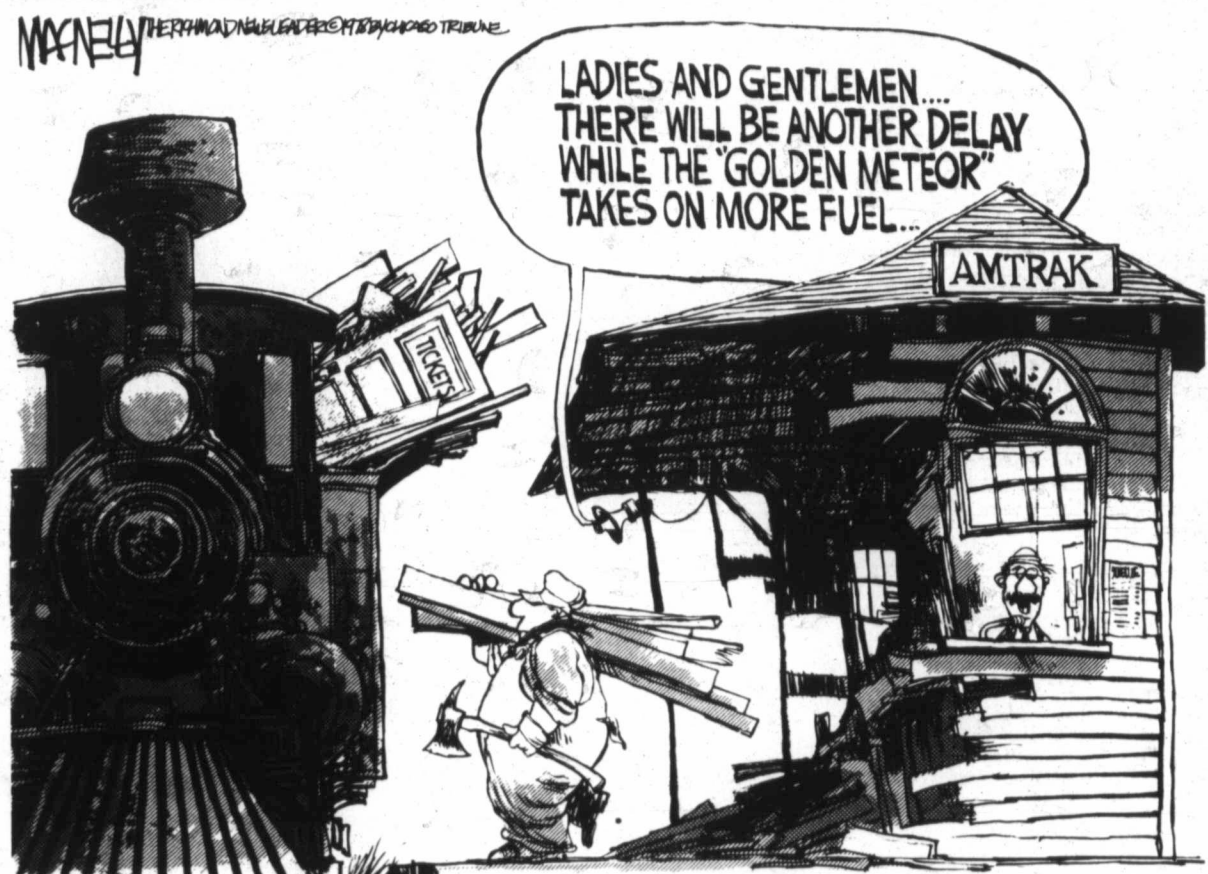

President Carter's human rights operatives are embarrassed by this dramatic change to an iceberg policy on Soviet non-human rights after the gaudy publicity Mr. Carter deliberately invoked early in his administration by inviting Soviet dissidents into the White House. They are claiming now that they can achieve more by concealed pressure, a claim that so far defies objective testing.

BUT IN the non-Communist world, the unceasing emphasis on human rights is making troubling noises across Latin America and South Asia, using the clout of presidential directive No. 30, secretly issued to government agencies by the National Security Council on Feb. 17, State's Human Rights Office has systematically rejected almost every single request from U.S. allies for such routine civil law enforcement equipment as tear gas, .38 caliber pistols for police forces and handcuffs.

What makes this secret presidential directive so virulent, in the view of career diplomats privately fighting the entangling web of human rights restrictions, is this: Miss Derian's office is using it to reject requests, no matter how routine, even from countries such as Singapore never remotely charged with a "consistent pattern of gross violations" of human rights.

The presidential directive officially inserts human rights into every policy decision. It orders American representatives on all international lending institutions, such as the Asian Development Bank, to vote against most loans for countries with a single human rights blemish. The dire implications of this new presidential directive are now being quietly tested throughout the government.

For example, an appeal is in the works to reverse a human rights veto of routine police equipment for Singapore (officially described by the State Department as "free from corruption").

Dear Editor:

People complain about their newspapers, but I find that they are working to do something, do print the truth, and are much more concerned than most citizens.

People are always saying "get involved," but are they even interested? What are you people doing up there Memorial Day weekend to remember the Vietnam war, learn from it, learn what caused it, and how to prevent another one. In San Angelo, I am showing "Hearts and Minds," just a token to all those that suffered because of the Vietnam War.

Let's work to bring about a couple of things during the next year: Let's come to the farmers. Us non-farmers support them. If you enjoy eating as I do, then you as I should praise them much more than we praise our football heroes, because they are willing to do something that helps others. God Bless the American Farmer. By the way, I am a Registered Nurse, but I know where to give praise. Next, let's work to make sure that the politicians we elect follow our wishes by us being more informed and demanding more from them. And last, let's all contribute to a "Hall of Infamy" to be built here in Texas, to show the rest of the world and the U.S. that we are not all the same. There are all types of Halls of Fame, but no Halls of Infamy.

Let's build it, and I nominate the first six members: (1) Richard Nixon for never telling the truth; (2) Lloyd Bentsen for impersonating a Texan; (3) Henry Kissinger for disarming the U.S.; (4) James Carter-traitor; (5) Edward Kennedy-trying to legalize murder; (6) And last but not least, Howard Cosell, for talking the most, and saying the least of any man in history, and for being the exact opposite of the type of person we value in Texas.

May the Texas Flag fly high this Memorial Day, and the American Flag fly upside down in shame for what our government just did with the Panama Canal, since so many good Americans have given their lives in protection of American property, for Carter and his Communist gang to turn our territory over to a Communist Narcotic gangster.

Dear Editor:

Pardon me sir for writing to you this letter because I need your help at this time.

I introduce myself that my name is Tung, Luong. I was a member of the new pilot training class 75-08 at Webb Air Force Base in 1974. I'm Vietnamese and I have just escaped from Communist Vietnam. I didn't bring any money or private property, just my wife went along with me and without children. So I and my wife are alone in this island of Malaysia.

Sir, please do me a favor that I would like to get in touch with my friends who were under pilot training with me, class 75-08. I just know Mr. Thang, Nguyen. He's my closest friend when I went to Webb Air Force Base, he went to Sheppard Air Force Base in Texas and now he has been in USA since 1975 but I don't know which states he has been in. I'll report to you the details.

Name: Thang, Nguyen
Date of Birth: 1954
Serial number: 14-604477
Training number in USA: 41029 VS
Class: 75-08 UPT-T41-UPT-T37
And my wife has a sister who has been in USA but she doesn't know address or which states her sister has been. She just knows her sister left Vietnam on April 1975 and every detail is below.

Name: Hanh, Phung Thi Phuong
Date of birth: Jan. 1, 1950
Father's name: Ngoc, Phung Van
Mother's name: Ty, Nguyen Thi
I and my wife don't know how to contact with them in your country so we need your help to find their address. If everything is all right with you, please do help us and we appreciate you too much.

Anyway, we hope that we'll communicate with them very soon and if it isn't trouble to you, please do write and help us as soon as possible. We are hearing from you. Thanks a lot.

Dear Editor:

I would like to take just a moment of your time and answer some of the questions written about the girls' softball park.

It seems as though now days there are many complaints about everything and anything. I wish the people from the girls' softball league that have complained would just stop and think for a moment of how far the girls' softball league has come. We started playing on school grounds with no fence, no seats, no restrooms and no concession stand.

We now have one of the finest softball parks to play in that is in West Texas. I am on the National Board of United Girls Softball and most members of the National Board feel Big Spring has about the finest ball park to play on that there is.

I, as President of United Girls Softball of Big Spring, wish everyone would just be thankful that the good Lord has allowed us to live in a country that will allow us to be free and play softball when and where we desire.

I would like to extend a special thanks to Mr. Jerry Foresyth for his work in helping us prepare the field and keep them in top playing condition. I have been at the ball park every night that the girls have played and have had no trouble with the fields or equipment. Dear Editor:

I would like to reply to the person who wrote the editor last week complaining about a street being closed off for a musical program.

My wife and I are new residents of Big Spring having moved here from Georgia last Dec. 24. One of the things that attracted us to Big Spring was the small town atmosphere. The life here has a slower pace. One of the pleasant memories of my childhood as I grew up in New Mexico are the times an entire street was closed off at the courthouse and we had dances and musical programs in the street.

It seems everyone in town turned out and it was wonderful. Of course, as I look back I know everyone in town was not there because even in Carlsbad we had people who could be considered soreheads or killjoys. As Mr. Carpenter said the other day we didn't know times were tough and in our ignorance we had fun in spite of it.

The fact that a street was closed last week was published several times in the Herald and it was unnecessary for anyone to be inconvenienced in any way. Therefore, I would like to suggest that in order to keep up with what's going on in Big Spring, read the Herald. You can't buy a better newspaper or spend $3.25 per month any better.

ball parks to play in that is in West Texas. I am on the National Board of United Girls Softball and most members of the National Board feel Big Spring has about the finest ball park to play on that there is.

I, as President of United Girls Softball of Big Spring, wish everyone would just be thankful that the good Lord has allowed us to live in a country that will allow us to be free and play softball when and where we desire.

I would like to extend a special thanks to Mr. Jerry Foresyth for his work in helping us prepare the field and keep them in top playing condition. I have been at the ball park every night that the girls have played and have had no trouble with the fields or equipment. If the people only knew the work that has been put into the field by the City of Big Spring, they would not be complaining today.

I am sure that there are many softball leagues that would be more than glad to play on these fields and have the girls go back to the school grounds. I hope that the park will always remain a softball park for the girls.

I wish to thank the City Council for allowing us to use the ball park for the girls.

Dear Editor:

I would like to reply to the person who wrote the editor last week complaining about a street being closed off for a musical program.

My wife and I are new residents of Big Spring having moved here from Georgia last Dec. 24. One of the things that attracted us to Big Spring was the small town atmosphere. The life here has a slower pace. One of the pleasant memories of my childhood as I grew up in New Mexico are the times an entire street was closed off at the courthouse and we had dances and musical programs in the street.

It seems everyone in town turned out and it was wonderful. Of course, as I look back I know everyone in town was not there because even in Carlsbad we had people who could be considered soreheads or killjoys. As Mr. Carpenter said the other day we didn't know times were tough and in our ignorance we had fun in spite of it.

The fact that a street was closed last week was published several times in the Herald and it was unnecessary for anyone to be inconvenienced in any way. Therefore, I would like to suggest that in order to keep up with what's going on in Big Spring, read the Herald. You can't buy a better newspaper or spend $3.25 per month any better.

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a young Christian, and I have become active in my church. Some of the people there criticize me and say I need to calm down some. I admit I get excited about Christ, but is that such a bad thing? — L.R.

DEAR L.R.: Often, when a young person becomes a Christian, it is natural to be excited about his new faith. The important thing is to channel that excitement in the right direction. Sometimes a young believer can be insensitive to others in his zeal to tell them about Christ, and instead of helping others find Christ (as he wishes to do), he actually does more harm than good. Let me suggest three things.

First, be thankful for your newfound faith, and be thankful for the zeal and enthusiasm God has given you. You will not necessarily always have the same emotions you have now, but pray that your love for Christ will never fade, but instead will grow. As Paul said, "It is fine to be zealous, provided the purpose is good" (Galatians 4:18, New International Version).

Second, pray for greater sensitivity and love for those in your church. People have different temperaments, and people come to Christ in different ways. Just because they may not have had as dramatic a conversion as you, does not mean they are not Christians. Don't assume that everyone should be like you, and be very careful of being judgmental about others.

Third, pray for greater sensitivity and love for those in your church. People have different temperaments, and people come to Christ in different ways. Just because they may not have had as dramatic a conversion as you, does not mean they are not Christians. Don't assume that everyone should be like you, and be very careful of being judgmental about others.

Scott Tucker will present a special art show in the Heritage Museum May 20 and 21.

He is sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. D.O. Gray in the art showing here. His art works will be on display from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, May 20 and from 1-5 p.m. Sunday, May 21.

Tucker is a 22-year-old artist whose studio is located at 903 Greenhill Road in Duncanville.

He graduated in 1976 from Nederland High in the top ten percent of his class. He studied under Bud Biggs, a renowned Dallas artist, for water colors. He recently shifted his talents to oils and bronzes, but is still known for his exceptional water colors.

He supplies galleries in Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico with his art and was the court artist of the Cullen Davis trial for the Dallas Morning News and Ft. Worth Star Telegram.

Scott's art was named best of show at the Gold Post Parkdale Show and his first place awards are many.

His one-man show will be on display here next weekend. He also recently furnished the cover for the Dallas Chapter of Ducks, Unlimited.

Another of his popular paintings features hunting dogs. He also paints such things as a deer and polar bears, and other wildlife.

Ex-Ector constable enters guilty plea to making false report to cop

MIDLAND — Former Ector County constable Leonard Garcia pleaded guilty Friday in Midland County Court at Law to making a false report to a police officer.

Judge Willie DuBose gave Garcia a 30-day jail sentence, probated to six months, and fined him $250, including court costs.

Garcia was charged Feb.

Art Festival in 1976, he won outstanding portfolio, which included nine different paintings with four different media.

The public is invited to view the one-man art show.

Garcia claimed the attack was designed to keep him from reporting what he knew about the Jan. 22 Ector County jail death of inmate Larry Lozano.

Attorney General John Hill beat Briscoe in the Democratic primary and takes on Republican Bill Clements of Dallas in November.

All gubernatorial appointments listed must be confirmed by the Senate when the Texas Legislature convenes in January.

Appointments by Briscoe will continue

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe will leave office Jan. 17, but his power of appointment will last as much as six years later.

The terms of 202 state appointees either are pending or expire before Briscoe's successor takes over, including some which lapse Jan. 16.

Briscoe was asked at a news conference Thursday if he planned to appoint members of the University of Texas and Texas A&M boards. Three terms on each board expire Jan. 8, 1979.

"I plan to make the appointments for Texas and A&M and I plan to make the appointments that are due to be made," he said.

Chip, Caron cuddle koala

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Chip Carter, the president's son, and his wife, Caron, left Sydney for home on Saturday, with wide smiles and lots of praise for Australia.

They said one of their happiest memories of their week-long friendship visit for Australia-America week was to "cuddle a real live koala bear."

Mrs. Carter said her only regret was that she couldn't stay longer.

Advertising, speeches

Briscoe hurt himself by mentioning Hill?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe hurt himself at the polls by mentioning his opponent, Attorney General John Hill, in advertising and speeches, Hill's campaign manager said Sunday.

"He probably never should have used John Hill's name in his campaign or advertising, probably not even in his speeches," Rodgers said on State Capitol grounds, a radio program.

"That was probably one of the most serious mistakes they made."

Hill won the Democratic primary without a runoff and faces Republican Bill Clements of Dallas in November.

Rodgers said the Hill campaign had polls indicating Hill would win without a runoff but decided not to release those figures.

"We didn't release any polls that showed him winning without a runoff for fear of disappointing our supporters, the key supporters, if he were in a runoff," he said.

Briscoe's campaign probably had similar figures, but kept them from the governor, Rodgers said.

"I think Briscoe's campaign people had poll figures showing Briscoe not only in a runoff but even losing the election without a runoff," he said.

"Instead of telling him, 'You've got this situation,' they went and told him, 'You can win without a runoff if you spend another $1 million.'"

Briscoe's media blitz in the campaign stretch turned against him, and the last $1 million he spent probably didn't draw many voters, Rodgers said.

The biggest campaign turning point was when

Carter says he'd love summit

Influenced by Arab oil?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he'd love to see an Israeli-Egyptian summit at the White House and he rejects any claim that his Middle East policies are influenced by a U.S. need for Arab oil.

The president also suggests that public positions taken by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin may be "much more hard and intransigent than is their private position."

Carter made the statements in a wide-ranging interview with Trude B. Feldman, a White House reporter who specializes in Middle East affairs and who writes for a variety of publications.

The interview took place in the Oval Office late last month and was previously distributed on a free lance basis and then the contents were released by Ms. Feldman for general circulation on Sunday to coincide with Israel's 30th anniversary.

Carter said that he did not want to inspire false hopes by insinuating "I can issue an order or even an invitation" that the two Middle Eastern leaders would accept.

"They are quite independent," he said of Begin and Sadat. "And apparently each of them overestimates my influence on the other."

Asked if fear of a second Arab oil embargo was a determining factor in U.S. policy in the Middle East, the president responded: "No, of course not. The pre-eminent consideration in our Middle East policy is now, and will continue to be, the security of Israel above everything." Declaring that "our supplies of oil from non-Arab states are very secure," he cited such sources as Britain, Venezuela, Mexico, Nigeria and Alaska's North Slope.

After a fragment of the interview appeared in a Cairo newspaper on April 30, Egypt's foreign minister summoned American Ambassador Herman Eilts, who offered assurances that none of Carter's statements reflected a change in administration policy.

GARY WALKER

Walker earns Ph.D. at Tech

Gary Walker, son of Mrs. Freda Walker of the late Clyde Walker received his Doctor of Philosophy degree in physics in ceremonies at Texas Tech May 12.

Walker was raised in Big Spring, attended Big Spring High and attended Howard College on a track scholarship. He went to Northeast Louisiana University where he received his B.S. degree in physics and math in 1965.

In 1969, he received an M.S. in physics from Texas Tech. After working for Texas Instruments, he returned to Tech in 1974 to continue doctoral studies. He has served as a research assistant and part-time instructor while doing graduate work in the physics department.

Walker's major studies have been in physics with a minor in math. His M.S. research was in the field of Theoretical Molecular Dynamics. His doctoral work in the fields of atomic and solid state physics has been directed by Prof. Raymond Mires.

Dr. Walker is now a quality control engineer at Texas Instruments in Lubbock. He is married to the former Mary Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.W. Walker, Big Spring. They have a daughter, Wendy.

He has a sister, Mrs. Tommy Tompkins and an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wegman in Big Spring.

On 'big government' Dusty Rhodes draws bead

By MARJ CARPENTER
"Twenty-two years of hard work have brought me to this point, where I am ready to serve as your Congressman," Dusty Rhodes of Abilene said here Friday as he opened his local headquarters.

When he cut the ribbon out front, he joked, "I hope I get as many votes around here as the former occupant." He was opening his headquarters at the former Jim Baum headquarters. Baum, a local candidate, collected 75 per cent of the Howard County vote.

"If we are smart enough to go to the moon, we have to be smart enough in this country to save people from big government," Rhodes pointed out.

He cited our number one enemy as bureaucrat control of the people. Rhodes again stressed that uncontrolled government spending feeds the fires of inflation and stressed bringing sanity back to government.

He also stressed the importance of family life and commended his wife for standing by his side and helping him in the campaign.

Rhodes again stressed that if he wins the election, he plans to place an office in Big Spring to serve counties in the southern portion of the sprawling 17th Congressional District.

He pointed out that Big Spring is the second largest city in the district and that each Congressman is allowed to have three offices in his district if he desires. Rhodes said one of his would be in Abilene, which is the largest city in the district and his home.

Rhodes pointed out that he knows first-hand how government interference can sky-rocket your costs and as a lawyer, he has the knowledge, the experience and ability to defend your interests in Congress. He pointed out that he is also a farmer, has served in the service and has a broad base of experience.

Did PE teacher whip 42 pupils with belt?

ODESSA — A hearing on the dismissal of an Odessa elementary school P.E. teacher Thursday night has been recessed until May 22.

Part of the four hours of testimony given in the case was contradictory.

Jean Hamilton was dismissed April 22 by Travis Elementary Principal Celia A. Hisey for reportedly whipping 42 children with a belt in violation of school policy relating to corporal punishment.

Ms. Hamilton reportedly took such action after they did not line up on the playground to enter the building.

Fred really did graduate

Fred Hendrickson Jr. was a graduate at Howard College Thursday night, with an Associate in Arts degree.

He had a rather difficult time of it. First, his name was misspelled on the degree and they sent it back for replacement. Then he was inadvertently omitted from the list of graduates in the Big Spring Herald.

Fred did graduate and the Herald apologizes for any embarrassment caused by being left off the list.

Newspaper dedication

TEMPLE, Texas (AP) — The Temple Daily Telegram will dedicate its new $3.5 million downtown building in a brief ceremony today and then open the facility, which covers an entire city block, for public tours.

Frank W. Mayborn, editor and publisher, said the new building "is the first home for the Telegram that was designed and built to specifications and size which meet today's requirements and new technology of publishing."

Speakers who will make brief remarks at the 2 p.m. ceremony include Dr. Abner McCall, president of Baylor University; U.S. Rep. W.R. Poage of Waco; and Temple Mayor William Courtney.

Other dignitaries who will take part in the dedication are Bill Barnard, western general executive for The Associated Press; Lt. Gen. Marvin Fuller, III Corps and Fort Hood commander; and Richard J.V. Johnson, president of the Houston Chronicle and the Texas

Daily Newspaper Association. The new building will be open to the public until 5 p.m. Sunday.

OIL WELL FIRE EXPERT ON JOB — Red Adair, right, world famed petroleum fire fire-fighter, is show in concentration near Athens, Tex., Friday as he and crew prepare to start work on capping a well that is leaking poisonous gas.

400 evacuated Texans flee leaking gas well

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — Toxic chemicals from a leaking gas well drifted over the east Texas countryside today while some 400 people evacuated from the area awaited the signal to return home.

A battery of automatic sensors monitored the well site through the night while a small contingent from the oil company kept watch.

Other workers planned to continue efforts to cap the well today.

Oil well fire-fighter Red Adair of Houston and his globe-circling crew reduced pressure in the well Friday by drilling a relief line into it and then set fire to the escaping hydrogen sulfide gas to keep it from spreading to populated areas.

The burning gave off sulphur dioxide, also a toxic substance, but not as deadly as hydrogen sulfide.

In 1974, nine people in a farm house near Denver City in west Texas were killed in their sleep by hydrogen sulfide from a leaking well. A similar occurrence near Abilene in 1973 killed six.

Besides evacuating families within a 10-mile radius of the well, authorities blocked highways leading to the Van Zandt County site. Schools in several towns in Van Zandt and neighboring Henderson County were closed early Friday.

The gas began escaping Thursday night after a drilling pipe broke when it encountered high pressure at a depth of about 15,000 feet. Edward Bejan, spokesman for NFC Petroleum Corp. of Oklahoma City, owner of the well, said the underground leak was complicated by gas at the surface.

Shifting winds caused official command posts to be moved several times Friday as authorities tried to stay out of the way of the gas and smoke. There were no injuries.

Most evacuees went the 12 miles to Athens, where all available buses were assembled in preparation for a possible evacuation of the town of about 11,000.

Sheriff's deputies suggested that those evacuated plan to spend several days away from their homes.

Hydrogen sulfide, a heavy, low-hanging gas that smells like rotten eggs, is found frequently in petroleum deposits and must be removed from oil and natural gas.

Bankruptcy for Corco

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The first meeting of creditors of the financially-troubled Commonwealth Oil Refining Co. is to be held here Monday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

Bankruptcy Judge Joseph Elliott said no business will be conducted at the meeting except to receive the preliminary statement of the court-appointed fiscal agent, Robert A. Baker.

In its voluntary petition for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal Bankruptcy Act, Corco in March listed debts in excess of $500 million.

The company has its executive headquarters in San Antonio, but its manufacturing and refining operations are all in Puerto Rico.

After the hearing and after the court has decided on the venue change motions, Elliott said he will notify creditors and other parties as to the site, date and time for reconvening the creditors' meeting.

Drill Bit magazine also presented awards for essays on the petroleum industry.

Confirmer Speaker thinks Carter 'one-term president'

A confirmer was finalized in Martin County this week and a completion attempt was slated at a Sterling prospect.

The Breedlove multipay field of Martin County gained its current tenth Spraberry producer with completion of Amoco Production Co. No. 4-B Mary Ann Flynt, 1 1/2 mile north-east of a long southwest extension to that pay and 12 miles northwest of Tarzan, to pump 40 barrels of 39.9 gravity oil, plus 65 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 750-1.

Production was through perforations at 8,164-9,595 feet, which had been fractured with 269,010 gallons.

Drilled as a wildcat to 12,610 feet, with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 10,015 feet, it is plugged back to 9,878.

Location is 467 feet from the south and west lines of 21-249-Hartley CSL.

W.C. Blanks, Midland, was preparing to run 4 1/2-inch casing to an unreported depth at the No. 1-17 Terry, in 17-T-T&P, prospective Fusselman gas opener 3/4 mile north of gas production in the Conger (Penn oil and gas) field and 1/2 mile north-east of Fusselman oil production in the WAM (Fusselman and Montoya oil) field, six miles southwest of Sterling City.

He brought loud applause at one point as he told the group of oil men, "I think Carter is a well meaning man, but he seems to have told a lot of untruths and made enemies out of everybody. I believe he is a one-term president."

During a question and answer session, Rudd told the group, "I have learned a lot about the oil industry that I didn't know on this trip. I think you need to work harder at getting good public relations through advertising or whatever means are necessary."

"I'm originally from Central Texas and not heavily oil oriented but understand it a little. But I didn't realize many of the companies are actually owned by the employees and not by some big Rockefeller or somebody."

"Many of today's young reporters upset me too. They think anything big is bad, and this simply is not true. We have to have big business to survive in this country."

The luncheon speaker was 88-year-old Teddy Hayes, a close friend of Jack Dempsey who was involved for years in boxing and other promotions. Charles D. Fraser, outgoing president of the association, pleaded with the membership to get involved and said, "We in the Permian Basin are as well qualified as anybody in the United States to advise our government about oil — whether it be Austin, Santa Fe, Midland County or Washington, D.C. We need to have heavy influence who represents us and try to help solve the energy problems."

Al Dillard of Midland was elected incoming president with area vice presidents to include Ben Alexander of Hobbs, Delmar Hodges, Fort Stockton, Clyde Hamill, Midland; Wayne Jones, Odessa, Art Dremmer, Midland and Arden Grover, Midland treasurer. Ed Thompson will continue as vice president.

Board members were also named. Scholarships were presented to Kevin Clark of Permian High in Odessa and Phillip Mills of Monahans. Clark plans to study at Rice and Mills at Texas Tech.

Special guests at the banquet include 19th Congressional District candidates George Bush Jr. and Jim Reese, who are in a runoff for the Republican nomination and Kent Hance, the Democratic nominee as well as State Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland. A telegram from outgoing and veteran Cong. George Mahon.

Drill Bit magazine also presented awards for essays on the petroleum industry.

GIVEN WEEK TO PREPARE CASE — Black Panther Party leader Huey Newton, right, arrives at court in Oakland on Friday. Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich gave Newton a week to prepare a case opposing the request by Alameda County officials for a boost in bail. Newton is free on $50,000 bail in the recent Santa Cruz County arrest, and $80,000 bail in connection with 1974 murder and assault charges.

Spring weather, drought rocket demands for water

Spring weather and drought rocketed municipal demands for the Colorado River Municipal Water District during April, more than offsetting losses in deliveries to oil companies and industries. This also wiped out a deficit in consumption for the year.

Through April deliveries amounted to 5,666,424,850 gallons, a gain of .16 per cent. Through March the district was running 3.68 per cent behind the comparable period in 1977.

Municipal deliveries for April stood at 1,360,593,700 gallons, up 35.81 per cent over April last year and brought to 4,057,522,900 gallons the total municipal deliveries through April, a gain of 17.62 per cent.

On the other hand, deliveries to oil companies stood at only 380,996,934 gallons for April, a decline of 34.39 per cent for the month, or down nearly 100,000,000 gallons. For the first four months of the year, oil company deliveries aggregated 1,608,901,950 gallons, down 598,450,000 gallons, or 27.12 per cent. Of the April decline, 154,000,000 gallons were in surface water which had been reduced by one half. On May 1, surface water deliveries to oil companies ceased altogether as a conservation measure for Lake J. B. Thomas.

April deliveries to cities included Odessa 610,908,000, up 55.08 per cent; Big Spring 260,450,000 gallons, up 13.80 per cent; Snyder 102,021,000 gallons, up 53.36 per cent; Stanton 12,503,000, up 119.51 per cent; Midland 357,377,000 gallons, up 16.51 per cent; Robert Lee 17,209,000 gallons. A year ago there were no deliveries to Robert Lee.

Four perish in Athens fire

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — A fire of undetermined origin swept through a unit of an Athens boarding house early Saturday, and authorities said four persons died in the flames.

Only three of the victims were identified at once. They were Victor Loupot, Lois Brown and Martha Stone. Firemen said the fourth victim was a female.

Investigators probed the rubble for clues about what started the fire.

Crews McCulloch endorses Rhodes

City offered bigger bird

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Chicago Bridge and Iron has agreed to give this Rio Grande Valley city a bigger bird.

The controversy started when the construction company completed the new water tower here and painted a 12-foot cardinal on the side. What looked like a huge bird to the crew that painted it looked like a cockroach from the ground.

City officials here said the construction company made its new offer after seeing a photograph of the tower and bird from the Valley Morning Star.

Former Democratic congressional candidate Crews McCulloch, Weatherford, officially threw his support behind the campaign efforts of A. L. (Dusty) Rhodes, Abilene.

The announcement took place Friday morning at Rhodes' Parker County headquarters in Weatherford.

In making the announcement, McCulloch stated "I am of the concerted opinion that Dusty Rhodes is far and away the better qualified of the two run-off opponents. He has studied and is far better informed on the issue."

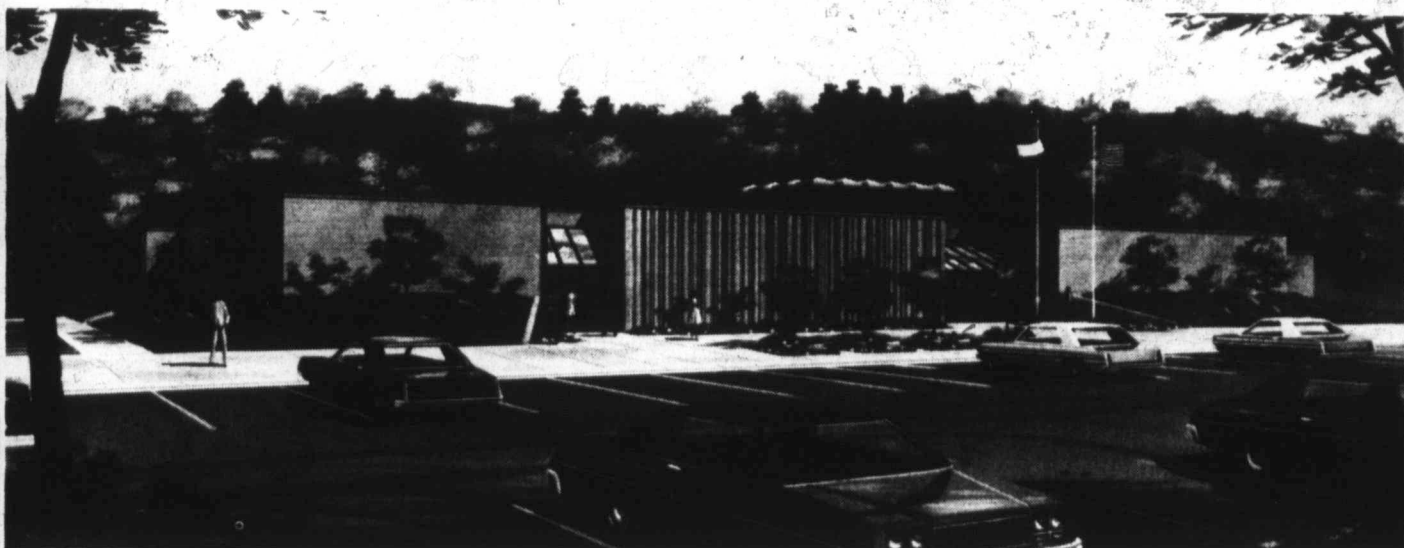

"He has never changed on any of his positions, even though there were times when it would have been politically expedient to do so. I personally believe that he has the ability to get something done in a bureaucratically controlled Congress. Dusty has convinced me that when he gets to Washington he will be responsive to the needs of the 17th District."

"Before I could in good conscience endorse a candidate in this very important runoff election, I had to be sure that he would keep an open door. I have that assurance from Dusty."

McCulloch went on to urge all of his supporters to rally around the Rhodes campaign and add their efforts in that behalf in the form of both votes and volunteer work.

JOHNNIE LEE WILLS (IN WHITE SHIRT AND HAT) WITH BAND IN 1951
...Don Tolle (far right) had just joined the band playing lead guitar

Tolle records with Wills' band

Long time between sessions

By CARLA WALKER

"Take Me Back To Tulsa" probably wasn't what Big Spring Don Tolle was thinking in March, but that is how things ended up April 1.

Tolle, one of the members of the old Johnnie Lee Wills and Bob Wills western swing band, got to spend his 54th birthday doing what he had done for 10 years of his professional career — working in a recording studio as lead guitar player for one of the Wills brothers.

Johnnie Lee went back to the recording studio after some 16 years without making a record, and he called Don Tolle and 14 other ex-band members to cut a new page in western swing history.

"Johnnie Lee and I have stayed close friends since I quit the band in 1962, and he just called me up to ask if I could go to Tulsa, Okla., to play for the album," Tolle said. "I felt excited, honored, and scared all at the same time."

"That was the first time in about 17 years that I have played with musicians of that caliber," Tolle continued, "and I was especially scared on Saturday night (April 1) when we played live at the Caravan Ballroom in Tulsa. It was really something to see all those people listening, tapping their feet, and then asking for the autographs of a bunch of grey-haired old pickers."

The musicians rehearsed all day Sunday, then recorded Monday and Tuesday. The Monday session was cut short by a lightning storm that doused the lights around 2:30 a.m. Tuesday morning.

"We memorized all the music — didn't use scores or anything during the recording sessions," Tolle said. "By the time we finished up the Tuesday session — which started at 6 p.m. and didn't even stop for a break until 4 a.m. — we had recorded some 19 songs without using the scores."

Johnnie Lee Wills, Joe Holly, Curly Lewis, and Johnny Gimble did most of the fiddle-playing and singing, while Tolle played lead guitar and Eldon Shamblin played rhythm guitar. Alex Brashear, Glen Rhee, and Wayne Johnson played horns, with Clarence Cagle on piano, Ted Adams playing bass, and Gene Crownover on steel guitar. Tommy Montgomery and Claude Clemmons each played drums for one session, and John Thomas Wills, Johnnie Lee's son, sang two songs on the album.

The session was written up twice in the "Tulsa Tribune," and even made the "Music City" vs. "British photographer David Montgomery came to do the album cover.

Tolle, during his career, has played back-up to such famous musicians as Hank Thompson, Red Foley, Hank Williams, the Wilburn Brothers, Ray Price, Ernest Tubbs, Roy Acuff, Cowboy Copas, Chill Wills, Jim Reeves, Chet Atkins, Jeannie Sheppard, Hank Snow, and more.

"Anita Bryant made her first television appearance on the television show Johnnie Lee and Bob had," Tolle remembers, "and we played back-up for her on 'Oh Wheel of Fortune,' and 'Man in the Rainbow.'"

Now a guitar and violin instructor in Big Spring, Tolle grew up in Seminole, Okla., and began his music career at the age of six, playing drums for the school band.

"Everyone who could pat their foot or play an instrument was auditioned, and we got to wear uniforms when we played," Tolle remembered. "I was impressed with the glamour of it, and loved to perform in front of people."

"In 1936 or '37, my dad let me take private violin lessons from Julian Choate, and I had hopes — for two or three years — of becoming a classical musician until I started listening to the Bob Wills Show on an Oklahoma radio station."

"I would tune up my fiddle while the first song was starting on the radio, and for about three years, I played every show Bob did without him ever knowing."

Seminole was a boom oil town, and it was Nix who got Tolle to come to Big Spring, because "I could still play professionally without having to live, eat and sleep in the rough environment that went along with being in a traveling band."

"If you wanted to be in the big leagues with entertainers like Bob, Hank Thompson, Hank Williams, Jim Reeves, and the rest, you had to live in a way that would shorten anybody's life," Tolle said. "I don't encourage my students to go into

He had met Hoyle Nix in 1959, and it was Nix who got Tolle to come to Big Spring, because "I could still play professionally without having to live, eat and sleep in the rough environment that went along with being in a traveling band."

"I couldn't stand for long periods of time, so I knew if I wanted to stay in professional music, I was going to have to switch to an instrument that I could play sitting down on a stage," Tolle said.

Between 1947 and 1951, Tolle played with the Merle Lindsay Band and the Paul Howard Nashville Touring Band.

In 1951, exactly 10 years from the time when Tolle had asked to be auditioned, Johnnie Lee Wills called and said that Tolle could "move to Tulsa, and we'll see if we like you and you like us."

"I told him I needed something more solid than that, so he agreed to pay my moving expenses and one month's salary and that is when things started happening for me," Tolle related.

They contracted for 100 radio shows for General Mills, and with records, travel bookings, and his salary, Tolle made some $12,000 the first year. "That was more cash than I had ever seen, much less earned, and work was more like a seven-day party because we all enjoyed what we were doing," Tolle said. "You can guess what I did with the money — like the rest, I blew it just about as fast as I made it. We played with Bob Wills, and almost all of the big stars of that period."

"Johnnie Lee disbanded his group in 1958 to rejoin Bob, but he reorganized it again in 1959, and I went back to work with him along doing one-nighters from Canada to Florida," Tolle said.

"But, in 1961, I was ready to quit because that is a rough life. I was getting married to Clara Lee in February and I wanted to be able to be home every night, not have to be somewhere on the road with the band," Tolle said.

He had met Hoyle Nix in 1959, and it was Nix who got Tolle to come to Big Spring, because "I could still play professionally without having to live, eat and sleep in the rough environment that went along with being in a traveling band."

"If you wanted to be in the big leagues with entertainers like Bob, Hank Thompson, Hank Williams, Jim Reeves, and the rest, you had to live in a way that would shorten anybody's life," Tolle said. "I don't encourage my students to go into professional entertaining because there is too much exposure to drunks, brawls, and undesirable in an environment that would turn anyone against a good profession.

"Many famous entertainers are dead now because of the long hours and constant exposure to temptation to use drugs or alcohol to make it through just one more performance. With only a few exceptions, most of the big league bands just wrote their moral standards as they lived. It just isn't the glamorous way of life that people make it out to be, so I teach my students to play for their own enjoyment, and don't encourage them to play in bands."

Hustler exec shuns police

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Police have been short on clues in the wounding of Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt, and investigators say the paralyzed Flynt isn't helping their investigation.

Flynt has said he will offer a $100,000 reward for information on why he was shot if police have no suspects by the time he is released from a Columbus, Ohio, hospital. Flynt is soon to begin lengthy physical rehabilitation treatments in the hospital.

"It's funny a reporter can get in to talk to him and we can't," said Gwinnett County Police Chief John Crunkleton in Lawrenceville, where Flynt was wounded March 6.

Flynt, of Columbus, and attorney Gene Reeves of Lawrenceville, were shot during a recess at Flynt's trial here on a charge of distributing obscene material.

Racial isolation tied to tuition credit okay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Proposed federal tax credits for private school tuition would foster racial and socio-economic group isolation, the State Board of Education said Saturday in a resolution.

"Passage of such legislation could be detrimental to the public educational system by encouraging private schools through parent tax credits at double the per capita rate of federal aid provided to public schools," the resolution states.

Other state groups, including teachers and administrators, have urged Congress to defeat the legislation.

"Expansion of private schools from such tuition tax credits would likely foster racial and socio-economic group isolation as well as increase resistance to support public education through taxation by those with children attending non-public schools," the resolution continued.

In other action at its regular monthly meeting, the board postponed consideration of new bilingual education guidelines.

BSSH Awards Banquet held McClintock Aide of Year

Katherine McClintock was named Psychiatric Aide of the Year while Ann Trawick was declared winner of the Charles McCall Jr. Award at the 11th annual Big Spring State Hospital Employees Awards program held in the Allred Building Friday night.

The Adult Basic Education Teacher of the Year Award went to Pat Evans.

Friends of the Hospitals certificates were awarded Gary and Ann Cunningham, Malinda Blackburn and Charles McCall Jr.

Coveted Commendation Awards were presented to Kathy Higgins, A. L. Gatewood, Fernanda Morales, Norville Hoggard and Trudy Carter.

REX KYKER

The program was dedicated to Woody Mann and the staff of the Multiple Disabilities Unit for their untiring devotion to the patients committed to your care.

Service awards, given for service ranging from five to 30 years to the hospital, were presented by Priscilla Diffie and Cliff Stovall. Dr. Lee Butler, hospital chaplain, recited a memorial in honor of Vera Tranham, a devoted hospital worker who died within the past year.

Adolph Supak, acting superintendent of the hospital, offered the welcoming address to the 250 persons present. Master of ceremonies was Ray Tatum.

Entertainment, provided by members of the Big Spring High School Choral Department, was coordinated through Kim Kirchoff.

Rex Payton Kyker, Abilene Christian University professor and head of the school's Department of Communication, delivered a highly humorous talk on the importance of capitalizing on failure.

"Don't let it (failure) be fatal, don't let it be final," Kyker said.

Kyker, a native of Texico, N.M., and a graduate of ACU, Iowa State University and the University of Florida, cited Babe Ruth as a person who could be regarded as a failure if baseball fans considered only his career strikeouts. (Ruth established a record for strikeouts that has never been broken).

Ruth, however, set standards in long-ball hitting and for pitching that served him well when it came time for the baseball writers to determine who the greatest baseball player in history was. Ruth earned that distinction by a comfortable margin.

Kyker said "extraordinary people go the extra mile."

Named Teacher of the Year at ACU in 1975, Kyker has won a multitude of honors for civic and church work during his career.

Red River water pact signed after 22 years

DENISON, Texas (AP) — It was a long time coming, but officials adopted an agreement Friday for dividing the waters of the Red River and its tributaries between Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

It took 22 years and 60 meetings to hammer out the terms of the compact that members of the Red River Commission said assures an equitable distribution of the water between the four states.

Legislatures in the four states now must ratify the measure before it becomes effective.

Commission members said a bill already introduced in the Louisiana Senate could speed up passage of similar legislation in the remaining states when their legislatures convene.

However, final approval by the president of the United States is not expected before 1980.

"The signing of this compact gives assurance that downstream folks will not be denied an equitable amount of good quality water," said Maj. Gen. Robert C. Marshall, chairman of the commission and president of the Mississippi River Commission.

ON TO SEMINARY — Mrs. Robby Shewmake, above, participated in the Howard Payne University commencement exercises Saturday in Brownwood. Mrs. Shewmake, an elementary education major, plans to enroll with her husband, Randy, in the fall at Mid-Western Baptist Seminary in Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Shewmake, a graduate of Stanton High School, is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Shewmake.

Space shuttle, anyone?

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A beer distributor in El Paso, Texas, has one. So does a Tokyo newspaper.

Colleges, scientists, high schools and individuals rich and not-so-rich have bought Getaway Specials aboard the nation's newest extraterrestrial vehicle, the Space Shuttle.

A Getaway Special — GAS in the special jargon of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration — is a reservation to ship something of your own choosing to space and back aboard the Shuttle.

But, the average citizen has to come up with about $3,000 to buy the minimum storage space — a 1½-cubic-foot "payload" container weighing no more than 60 pounds — aboard the reusable space craft.

"The little people — you and me — couldn't fly aboard the moon vehicle or utilize the satellites, but we are now making space available to everyone on a first-come-first-served basis," said Ernest J. Ott, manager for science operations in the Sounding Rocket Division of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

So far, 113 potential users have reserved 228 spaces in what NASA calls its "small, self-contained payload program" on the Shuttle.

By late 1980 or early 1981, the Shuttle will have completed its half-dozen test flights and will be into routine operations — a mission into low-earth orbit and back every 14 days. On each flight the orbiter vehicle will carry in its large open bay one or more "primary payloads" — such as Spacelab, Defense Department satellites, communications equipment and so on.

But these will not always occupy the total space aboard.

To fill up the nooks and crannies, NASA developed the Getaway Specials to fly small experiments that will take advantage of extra space and weight opportunities as they arise.

As long as the experiment can be conducted in the container, with little or no attention from the Shuttle crew, the "degree of complexity or sophistication is up to the user," Ott said.

NASA will have safety and security requirements plus other criteria.

Major corporations in many fields have signed up for the program, along with non-sophisticates.

Dick Azar, a Coors Beer distributor in El Paso, has reserved three spaces and handed them out as donations — one for the University of Texas-El Paso, another for the Ysleta and El Paso school districts and the third for the combined use of the neighboring border cities of El Paso and Juarez, Mexico.

Rich alumni have made reservations in the name of their universities. Philanthropists have given some spots to schools and research institutions.

And the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Shinbun is conducting a contest among its 7½ million readers to determine how to use its Getaway Special, Ott said.

TV station sale okayed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Evening News Association, publisher of the Detroit News, has agreed to purchase television station KVUE Channel 24 subject to approval of the Federal Communications Commission, the station said in a release Friday.

Unofficial reports say the acquisition totals $14 million.

The sale was negotiated by Tolbert Foster, president of Channel 24 Corp., and V. Leonard Hanna, vice president of finance and control of the Evening News Association.

Wait until Sunday

Right up front, I'll tell you, don't expect Skateboard lingo from this column about Brian Abel, the 14-year-old National Amateur Freestyle Champion from Dallas.

I'm "dark" in that area, man, and some top "hot-dogging" without my board would give me "pizzas" and I'd probably "bust it" anyway.

Brian was at the grand opening of Big Spring's newest teeny-bopper attraction Saturday morning, "Bent Cement", a skateboard park that supposedly beats the one in San Angelo by a wide margin.

Surprisingly enough, all that cement is not unpleasing to the eye, especially when enhanced by a few graceful skateboarders defying the laws of nature and scraped appendages. Before attempting to bend a little cement myself (probably with my head), I talked briefly with Brian.

His favorite pastime on his wheels (or board, I told you I don't know the jargon), of course is free style. That's flat ground work, consisting of a lot of fancy tricks and board walking...real amazing stuff. That is opposed to "banks," blurring work on the steep cement walls that is also pretty amazing but looks like a sure way to crack something.

Brian, who started skating two years ago, is sponsored by "Hobie Skateboards," a national manufacturer who sends Brian to different places, including Florida, California "and all over Texas."

His advice to beginners: "Just skate safe. Wear your equipment (pads and helmet), and don't try anything stupid that you know you can't make."

Brian practices on the Dallas park "pretty much every day, but I don't get down and 'practice,' I do it more for fun."

Does he have any problem with "groupies?"

"What do you mean?" said the young board-star.

"You know...girls hanging around, like with rock stars," said the aged Sports Editor, barely remembering when he saw 14, and fearing that he wasn't relating at all to this new athlete of the late 70's.

"Oh yeah," said Brian, with a smile and expression of comprehension. "There's a lot of girls, pretty many at Dallas, but there's no 'problem.'"

(P.S. My new board and helmet with the lightning bolt insignia will be in sometime next week.)

ONE LAST WORD ABOUT...

Think I know what started this whole mess about Teenage baseball and spring football training, and any conflict between the two.

A few weeks ago, an article appeared in the paper that said new players, who weren't in the league last year, had to make two out of the three tryouts held on a Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Evidently, some of them, thinking that that was inflexible, said they'd have to make a choice. Some did. Fine. That gave a few people a chance to fire a few shots, and once again, guess who was caught in the middle? Me. Thanks a lot. That topic is now permanently 10-7...and no listenin' in. (I hope).

AND THEN THERE'S BECKY...

When the petty bickering, close-minded gumflapping and calls from prejudicial mothers threatened to completely "cynic-ize" this job, along comes an athlete like Becky Reagan.

Becky signed a letter of intent Saturday with Lamar University in Beaumont (her Coach Nancy Deason's hometown), and will be in the same zone of play as her former teammate Rose Magers, who recently signed with Houston.

Becky was a two-year unanimous selection to all-district in volleyball, and All-State for one year in that sport. She was also all-district in basketball, won the "Wanda Ferguson Award" for top female athlete in her school, was salutatorian of her graduating class, captured the American Legion Award, the DAR Award, and the hearts of local sports fans.

And she deserved everything she received. Saturday morning, her parents and coach were at the football scrimmage. See page 2B for Danny Valdes' visual image of that.

SPEAKING OF FOOTBALL

With the "Black and Gold" game only a week away, and the players already getting the fever and pride for their respective teams, Saturday's head-knocking was fierce. Ricky Chuck and Dennis Morrison looked very good busting through the big guys on the line.

If the progress continues, the Steers, to whom offense has meant "passing" in recent years, may gain a little respect on the ground from opponents next season.

The defensive secondary, the most inexperienced bastion of the Longhorn forces, has been bolstered by the play of Kevin McLaughlin, Mike Domino, Ricky Myers, Billy Johnson, Cesar Espinoza, Corbett Newton, Joe Willie Jones and speedy Eddie Puga.

From talking to Don Robbins and secondary coach Garland Braun, that part of the squad may not be as weak in 1978 as first thought.

REMARKABILITIES

"Tom Seaver was making one of those TV commercials for baseball, the instructional type. He was explaining how to compute earned-run averaged and when he got to the part 'you multiply by nine innings,' Joe Morgan interrupted with, 'Not you. You multiply by four. You haven't been going nine lately.' " — DICK YOUNG.

Trevino birdies his way into Colonial lead

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Lee Trevino, a runner-up in two of his last four starts, shouldered his way past Steve Melnyk with a solid, two-underpar 68 and took the third-round lead Saturday in the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

Trevino, who birdied two of his last four holes on the tough, unforgiving old Colonial Country Club course, had a 54-hole total of 202.

That was eight shots under par on the rose-bordered layout on the Trinity River and a single shot in front of Melnyk, who bogeyed the final hole to drop out of the lead for the first time in the tournament.

"I got just what I deserved, a five," said Melnyk, who pulled back his drive on the 18th and finished with a round of par 70. "It doesn't make me happy and it kind of gives me a bad taste in the mouth, but that's exactly what I deserved."

He had a 203 total in the quest of his first title in eight long years of tour activity.

Jerry Heard, who started the hot, humid, sunny day in a tie for the lead with Melnyk, dropped back to 204, two shots off Trevino's pace, with a 71.

"I didn't putt well, but I played well enough not to take myself completely out of it," he said. "I'm still confident. I don't feel like it's a mistake for me to be in this position. I can still win."

Tom Watson, who claimed his third title of the year and the leading money-winning spot with his victory over Trevino last week, got in position with a 68 and a 205 total.

"I'm still in the hunt," said the gritty redhead, who won 1977 Player of the Year honors. "I like my position if I can shoot a good round tomorrow."

Tom Purtzer was next at 68-206.

Tied at 207 were Fuzzy Zoeller, Jerry Pate, Tom Kite and Danny Edwards. Zoeller, who has three eagles in as many days, made double-bogey 6 on the last hole for a 72. Edwards holed an approach shot for eagle 2 on the ninth and had 72. Kite shot 70 and Pate 71.

U.S. Open champ Hubert Green, a two-time winner this year, managed a 69-211. South African Gary Player, winner of three consecutive events earlier in the year, 4-putted the fourth green and had a 74-216.

Sonics seek clincher

SEATTLE (AP) — Three straight defeats have pushed the Denver Nuggets to the edge of the cliff in the National Basketball Association playoffs. But it's the winning coach, Seattle's Lenny Wilkens, who thinks he has to explain himself.

"We don't have over-confidence. I'm tired of that suggestion," Wilkens said after the SuperSonics dispatched the Nuggets 100-94 Friday night to take a commanding 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven Western Conference championship series.

A victory Sunday in Game No. 5 in Denver would propel the Sonics into the NBA finals for the first time in their 11-year history.

Friday night, the Sonics played some of their best defensive basketball of the season in the second half in a comeback triumph.

"I don't think we've ever played a better two quarters," said Sonics center Marvin Webster. "To hold a team to 18 points in each quarter and 36 points in a half is tenacious defense."

"You know when you're down and the offense isn't going well, the coach says you can always play good defense and rebound. If you do that, eventually you can catch up."

That's exactly what Seattle did, winning its 19th straight game at home, which includes seven in the playoffs.

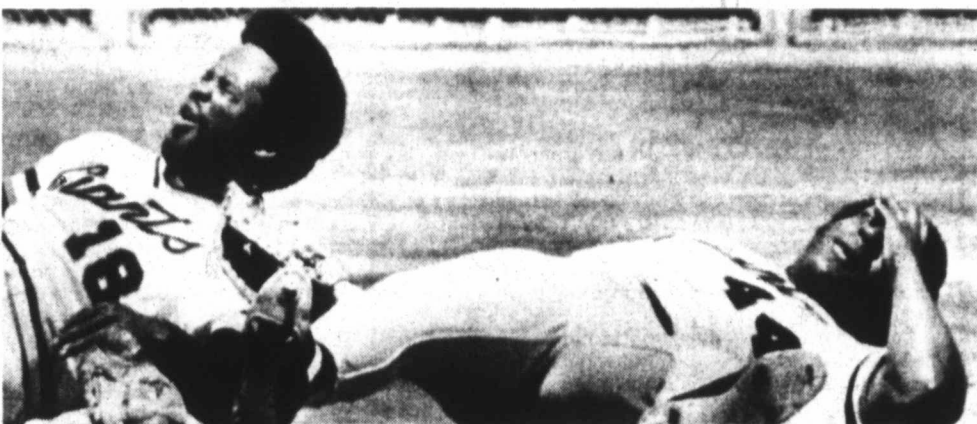

Denver Coach Larry Brown said: "They keep coming at you, hustling and rebounding all the time. And they are getting good bench support. You look down at our bench and we don't have some players that can give us offense."

"It's tough being down 3-1. If we play well on Sunday, I'll hope we'll be back here in Seattle (for a sixth game Wednesday night) ... The only thing I ask of this team is to work hard and try a little harder. You can't hope and wish shots in."

Seattle guard Dennis Johnson pumped in a career-high 31 points Friday night.

And by game's end, David Thompson, who faced Johnson's tough defense, had 21 points. Thompson, Denver's leading scorer during the regular season, scored only 8 points in the second half.

TWO DOWN IN THE THIRD — San Francisco Giants Bill Madlock (left) and Willie McCovey await aid after colliding on a third inning pop-up at Candlestick Park in a game with the St. Louis Cardinals. McCovey was forced to leave the game and preliminary reports said he will require several stitches on the inside of his lip. Madlock was charged with an error on the play. (AP Wirephoto)

Prep track records fall

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Michael Carter of Dallas Jefferson, reviving the shot put excitement that Randy Matson created in the early 1960's, set a state schoolboy record of 71-1 1/4 inches in the shot Saturday.

A final throw of 73 feet that would have broken the national schoolboy record sailed out of bounds as several hundred spectators groaned with disappointment.

Sam Walker, a former Dallas Samuel Star who has tutored Carter, set the state record of 68-5 1/2 and the national record of 72-3 3/4 in 1968.

That same year Matson won an Olympic gold medal in the shot after a record breaking career at Pampa High School and Texas A&M University.

Carter's winning throw in class 4A was the showpiece of the second day of the state schoolboy track meet at which Wortham in Class B, Martin in class A and Kileen in 4A won team championships. Carter will get another shot at the record next year because he is just a junior.

On Friday night Bonham won the 3A team title and Columbus took 2A.

Wortham won the doublepoint 400 and 1600-meter relays and placed in four individual events for 62 points. Meridian was second with 42.

Mart, without a single runner in the meet, piled up 38 points in the long jump, discus, shot put and the high jump to shade Hardin, which had 30.

Kileen won the 400-meter relay. William Owens was second in the 100-yard dash and third in the 200-meter, and Spencer Hill got a sixth place in the high jump for 35 points and its first state title. Fort Worth Eastern Hills was second with 30 points.

Red Sox launder Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Mike Torrez and Tom Burgmeier stopped Minnesota on seven hits and Fred Lynn drilled his fifth home run of the year Saturday to pace the Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 victory over the Twins.

Torrez, 5-1, was touched for a run in the first inning when Willie Norwood singled, stole second, took third on an infield out and scored on Rod Carew's double. The 31-year-old right-hander allowed just two hits over the next five innings before giving up a home run to Mike Cuddeback in the seventh.

Torrez, who won his third straight game, struck out five batters and walked only one. He was relieved by Burgmeier after giving up a leadoff single to Carew in the ninth.

Indians' streak still alive

CLEVELAND (AP) — Andre Thornton's two-run single in the sixth inning carried the Cleveland Indians to their fourth straight victory, a 2-1 decision over the California Angels Saturday.

Rick Waits, 3-2, gave up seven hits and was helped out of three different jams by Cleveland double plays. The loser was Chris Knapp, 4-3, who gave up just five hits. Four of them in the sixth.

Astros bomb Mets, 7-4

NEW YORK (AP) — Enos Cabell drove in three runs with a single and a double as the Houston Astros jumped on rookie Mike Bruhert for seven runs in the first three innings and held on for a 7-4 victory Saturday over the New York Mets.

Bruhert, 1-3, entered the game with the second-best earned run average in the National League, 1.80, but allowed 10 hits and committed two base errors in three innings.

After the Astros made it 2-0 in the first with Cabell's single and Cesar Cedeño's double driving home runs, they erupted for four runs in the second. Joe Ferguson singled, Roger Metzger doubled, pitcher Joe Niekro and Terry Puhl each delivered RBI singles before Cabell drove home two more to make two a double.

Houston made it 7-0 in the third on Ferguson's double after Art Howe reached second when Bruhert threw away his grounder.

A's rally to beat Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — The Oakland A's, held hitless by Dave Rozema for seven innings, broke loose for three runs in the eighth and edged the Detroit Tigers 3-2 Saturday.

Mario Guerrero led off the Oakland eighth with a bad-hop single off the body of third baseman Phil Mankowski, breaking up the no-hit bid. Then Dave Revering erased Detroit's 2-0 lead with a home run into the upper deck in right field.

Hoggies out of SWC tourney

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Mark Ross scattered six hits and Mike Hurdle knocked in three runs for Texas A&M Saturday as the Aggies blanked Arkansas 5-0 to push the Razorbacks out of the double-elimination Southwest Conference baseball tournament.

The victory moves the Aggies into Sunday's first game against the loser of Saturday night's contest between Baylor and Houston in the winners' bracket.

The Aggies have suffered one loss in the tournament. Arkansas never really pressured Ross, who whipped the Razorbacks for the fourth time in his collegiate career. Arkansas, shut out in both tournament outings this year, never managed more than one hit in an inning.

Counting last year's tournament action, the Razorbacks have gone 22 consecutive innings in tournament play without scoring a run.

The Aggies opened scoring with two runs in the fourth inning and then added three insurance runs in the sixth inning, two of them coming on a triple by Hurdle.

Dibbs? In WCT finals!

DALLAS (AP) — They lost Eddie Dibbs in the hubbub of Corrado Barazzutti's upset Thursday of second-seeded Brian Gottfried. And he was forgotten Friday in the excitement of top-seeded Bjorn Borg's default because of a painfully inflamed thumb.

But somewhere in there, Dibbs waltzed into Sunday's World Championship of Tennis Finals without losing a set. He meets Vitas Gerulaitis at noon Sunday for the WCT title.

The diminutive, 5-foot-7 Dibbs easily crushed lethargic Ilie Nastase 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 in Thursday night's late match while everyone was buzzing about the surprising Italian's five-set, come-from-behind upset of Gottfried.

The focus Friday was on Borg's swollen, bandaged right thumb that resulted in his semifinals default to Gerulaitis. Dibbs, meanwhile, out-baselined Barazzutti 6-2, 7-6, 6-4, Friday night in a mesmerizing, three-hour battle of baseline shots before a crowd thinned by the loss of Borg.

"This is the best I've consistently played," said Dibbs, who has a shot at $100,000 and his first major title. He gets $40,000 even if he loses, the most he said he has ever earned in a week.

Dibbs has played both of his matches here since Gerulaitis eliminated

Raul Ramirez in four sets Wednesday night. Gerulaitis spent about an hour Friday night clowning his way through a hastily-arranged doubles match to replace the Borg-Gerulaitis showdown.

"I don't think there is any advantage or disadvantage in not playing a match," Gerulaitis, 23, said Saturday. "Eddie won his in only three sets. It might have helped me to play a match, but then I'm rested. Of course, I was assured a spot in the finals. That took some pressure off."

But Dibbs, 27, thinks the slower Supreme Court surface and the best-of-five sets format benefits the rested Gerulaitis.

"I think that in a tournament like this, the rest would be the most important thing," said Dibbs. "Playing three-out-of-five on this court takes a lot out of you. I think he got a good break when Borg pulled out."

Gerulaitis has never beaten Dibbs, losing all four of his matches. The two Brooklyn natives last played in the finals of the WCT's 1977 London tournament, won by Dibbs 7-6, 6-7, 6-4.

Borg's withdrawal put another dent in the polished gilt of the WCT Finals. Defending champion Jimmy Connors and Sandy Mayer both qualified, but refused to appear.

Borg left Friday for his home in Monte Carlo, saying, "I can't do anything with it (the thumb) now. I'm very disappointed. I thought I had a very good chance to win the tournament. I was playing well."

Borg had easily eliminated Dick Stockton in four sets Tuesday night, but aggravated a blister under a callous on his right thumb.

The thumb became badly swollen Thursday night and Borg was given two injections of penicillin. "He was totally unable to hold a racquet, especially to hit a backhand," said Dr. Phil Berry, the tournament physician.

Expos blank Braves, 3-0

MONTREAL (AP) — Steve Rogers tossed a three-hitter and Gary Carter homered Saturday as the Montreal Expos beat the Atlanta Braves 3-0.

Rogers, 4-3, struck out five and walked two on the way to his third complete game of the season.

Phil Niekro, 2-6, who fanned Ellis Valentine in the fifth inning for the 2,000th strikeout of his career, was tagged for two runs in the third.

Giants nip Cardinals

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mike Ivie, a replacement for the injured Willie McCovey, drove in three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 7-6 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

Jack Clark drove in two runs with a triple and a single as the Giants maintained their lead in the National League West by winning for the 11th time in 14 games.

St. Louis reached winning pitcher John Montefusco, 2-2, for three runs in the first on singles by Lou Brock and Tony Scott, an RBI double by Keith Hernandez and a two-run single by Ken Reitz.

Mariners pluck Blue Jays

TORONTO (AP) — Leon Roberts homered and Ruppert Jones hit a two-run double as the Seattle Mariners defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 9-6 Saturday, handing Toronto starter Dave Lemanczyk his seventh loss in as many decisions.

The Mariners collected 11 hits and eight walks off four Toronto pitchers in the game which was delayed three hours, 18 minutes in starting because of rain.

BAM! CRUNCH! OOF! — Spring training for the future 1978 Big Spring gridiron contingent got down to the nitty-gritty Saturday morning at Blankenship Field as the local athletes divided into two groups and ran a series of controlled plays against one another in an intra-squad scrimmage. The May workouts conclude next Saturday (May 20) at Memorial Stadium in the annual "Black and Gold" game. A complete list of 1978 football schedules for area teams can be found on p. 3B today.

Swede wins WCT juniors

DALLAS (AP) — Sweden's Per Hjertquist edged 16-year-old Ben Testerman of Knoxville, Tenn., 7-6, 6-4 Saturday to win the Future Stars juniors tournament held in conjunction with the WCT finals.

Hjertquist took an early 5-1 lead in the first set, but the Tennessee high school sophomore reeled off five consecutive games to go ahead 6-5. The 18-year-old Swede rebounded to win the set on a tiebreaker, 7-3.

Hjertquist then broke Testerman's strong serve in the 10th game of the second set to clinch the match.

Four top junior players from around the world are invited for the tournament each year during the WCT finals.

TOMMY'S REPLAY

By Tommy Hart

Q. Does Pete Maravich hold the record for most points scored in one season of high school play or is it "Wilt the Stilt" Chamberlain?

A. Does the name Greg Procell strike a cord? There are no official records for high school saluted away in one place in the nation, but most sportswriters and athletic historians agree that Procell of Noble Eshbar in Louisiana holds the "record" you mentioned.

He scored 3,173 points in 68 games during the 1969-70 season, a more than respectable average of 46.7 points a game. "Pistol" and "Wilt the Stilt" trail those numbers by a considerable margin.

If you have a question about a personality or event in the history of the world of sports, please send your inquiries to "Tommy's Replay", Big Spring Herald P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas, 79720

Sugar Ray named best

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, now 58 years old, remembers the moment that a possible third world championship slipped through his gloves. Or, perhaps better stated, he remembers what he does not remember.

It was June 25, 1952, a sweltering New York summer evening, and Robinson, with welterweight and middleweight titles already to his credit, had battered light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim through 13 rounds at Yankee Stadium.

"I felt I was ahead in the fight, I felt I was leading on the judges' cards," said Robinson. Most observers would bear him out.

"But I started feeling heat prostration in the 10th round and at the end of the 10th," said Robinson, "because I don't even remember when they carried Ruby Goldstein out of the ring."

When Robinson was unable to continue in the 14th round, Maxim, bedraggled and exhausted himself, held onto his title. Robinson had failed in his bid for that mythical triple, but in the minds of many, he was still the best boxer, pound for pound, that had ever lived.

The cliché "pound for pound" describes Robinson. Heavyweight champion Joe Louis was the idol of a nation, yet the boxing world looked to Sugar Ray.

On Tuesday, that old title was reaffirmed when the Boxing Writers of America announced that their membership had voted Robinson the greatest fighter of all time.

The vote, held in conjunction with Home Box Office network's "Boxing's Greatest Champions" series, had Robinson a 4-1 winner over Muhammad Ali. Louis was third. The exact tabulation was not revealed.

"I was blessed by God above with the talent that has allowed me to be considered for this honor," Robinson said in a telephone hookup from his Los Angeles home to the New York offices of HBO, where a special screening of the final episode of the six-part series was held for newsmen.

"I can't be more grateful. It is one of the greatest boosts from you fellas," said Robinson, who now works with school children through the LA parks and recreation department.

Balloting also was held in individual weight classes. The winners in their divisions were:

Heavyweight — Joe Louis, Muhammad Ali, Rocky Marciano.

Light heavyweight — Archie Moore, Billy Conn, Bob Fitzsimmons.

Middleweight — Robinson, Carlos Monzon, Mickey Walker.

Welterweight — Robinson, Henry Armstrong, Barney Ross.

Lightweight — Roberto Duran, Benny Leonard, Henry Armstrong.

Musial pokes fun

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Stan Musial ranks as one of the greatest performers in National League history, a seven-time batting champion and a Baseball Hall of Fame selection among other things.

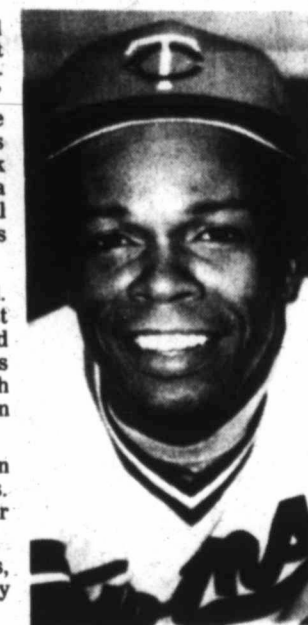

Musial, now 57, pokes fun at himself today.

"One record of mine few people know about," said Musial at a speaking engagement. "I had 3,630 hits and batted 11,000 times, but I hold the record for making the most outs, 7,000. If anybody can make 7,000 outs and get into the Hall of Fame, everybody's got a chance."

Musial, who retired in 1963, credits fellow Hall of Famer Ty Cobb with giving him unusual advice on extending his career.

"Cobb told me he'd seen me play that day and said my legs looked pretty good. He asked me if I smoked or drank. I didn't smoke. But occasionally I enjoyed a couple of drinks before and after dinner."

"He told me to try wine. I learning that lesson firsthand. Whenever he goes in his first year of retirement, Pele is hailed by those who remember the lightning speed and triggerquick reflexes that made him the world's most renowned soccer player. Occasionally he even is hailed by those who don't remember but who only have heard of his marvelous skills.

A soccer team from Rio de Janeiro was touring Africa last month, playing exhibition games against local clubs. It seemed a perfect time for the Brazilian company he represents to send Pele on a goodwill tour of the continent. "We were in Nigeria," Pele said. "I was promoting some appliances when I heard from the government."

The message was that Pele was expected to play with the Brazilian team in the local exhibition.

"I tried to explain," he said. "I am retired. I didn't come there to play soccer. I don't play anymore."

"They said I must play," Pele said. "What could I do? I don't want to fight with them."

So Pele played once more, satisfying another audience, making more friends for the game that has been his life. The encore never seem to stop for the man who, at 36, after 21 years as a player, decided to leave the game to younger men.

"I miss it," he said. "I played since I was 15 years old. You can't shut off a thing like that."

"When I am in Brazil, I practice with Santos. In New York, I practice with the (North American Soccer League) Cosmos. Sometimes, during the games, I will sit on the bench. Then it is hard. The heart pumps."

For soccer players around the world, the pumping is hardest during the World Cup tournament which begins June 1 in Argentina. Pele has played in the last four and will be at this one as a television commentator for the closed circuit broadcasts that will beam the event throughout the United States and Canada.

There were 1,281 goals in his career but few were as difficult as the one Pele set for himself when he came to the United States to play with the Cosmos in 1975. The job was to sell soccer to Americans, whose preoccupation with other sports like baseball, football, basketball, tennis and golf had always puzzled Pele. When he arrived, the NASL was struggling. Three years later, the league and the sport are established.

"My mission is complete," said Pele.

If he isn't careful, though, he's liable to have a new assignment. The Africans liked what they saw in that brief appearance. He could wind up doing encores.

His hornswoogling of Pittsburgh is the best example of how Finley has built Oakland from the ashes of a free agency exodus that drove stars like Joe Rudi, Rolie Fingers, Bert Campaneris and Gene Tenace away from the club.

It's been said that Finley pulls a string and his manager's mouth flaps wide open. He's also had eight managers since 1968. "All managers are hired to be fired," he says. So when Pittsburgh wanted his 1976 field boss, Finley gladly made Tanner available for a price — Sanguillen.

Sanguillen played for the A's in 1977, but the Pirates wanted him back for 1978. Sure, said Finley, but for a price. This time, the ante was reliever Elias Sosa, second baseman Mike Edwards and outfielder Miguel Dilone.

stay in hot water. He argued with teammates and glared at them when they made errors, refused to talk to the press, and was occasionally booed by the local fans.

After Palmer gave up nine home runs in two starts against the Boston Red Sox in June, catcher Rick Dempsey claimed he had "lost his competitiveness."

Several times during the year, despite his remarkable record, Palmer apparently had to be reassured by Manager Earl Weaver and the coaches that he should stay in a particular game because he was the best pitcher available.

Then, after winning his last seven decisions to reach the 20-game victory level for the seventh time in eight years, Palmer's problems reached the front office.

YOUNG IDEAS

Clubhouse Confidential

LOUISVILLE — Next to "Who do you like?" the most-asked question here throughout Derby week has been "What's wrong with Seaver?" ... I'd say it's part mental, part physical. Physical part is he'll be 34 his next birthday, and that's getting old for a power pitcher. Mental part is his pressing, thus over-throwing, a loss of confidence, the horrifying thought he might no longer be No. 1, a devastating prospect for a man of his haughtier. ... Once in a great while a quality pitcher loses it, just like that, without rhyme or reason. Remember Steve Blass?

Frank Taveras being offered around NL by Bucs. His shortstopping has been erratic, and Pitt wants to move up Yogi's kid, Dale Berra, who is ready for bigs. ... With Tim Lincecum on shelf, Mets could use Taveras, a base-stealing asset. ... Any ex-con who doesn't attend heavyweight card at Garden May 15 has no soul. Two of the fighters have done total of 23 years. A guy could win a round for good behavior.

Fran Healy has made motivational film featuring his pal Reggie Jackson. Several major corporations are using it at sales meetings. It seems also to have motivated the star, who is hustling like crazy this spring. ... Joe Lonnett, Pitt coach who knows Gossage from last season, says Gossage can't throw effective slider till weather warms up, which accounts for early failures. "They sit on his fast ball in the early games, but once he gets that slider heated up, watch out," warns Joe.

Wanted Fine Doubled

Herman Franks says Helty Cruz "has animal strength" ... Joe Torre gives this example of Steve Henderson's wholesome attitude: The kid messed up a sign, so Mets' manager fined him scale. "Make it double," suggested Stevie, "so I don't make the same mistake again." ... Torre is a pretzel freak. He takes a bag of them on road with him. There's one commercial Joe could do with heart and stomach in it. ... How would you like to have $2.7 million free-agent money tied up in Wayne Garland, get one 13-and-19 season out of him, and have him come down with torn rotatory cup. That's same arm-trouble that kayoted Stottlemyre and Busby. Few come back from it.

Gold star for pride goes to Franz Beckenbauer. Big soccer star. Big money maker. But not too proud to take English lessons at Berlitz because he feels uneasy when press and public ask him questions he can't handle fluently. Should be lesson to those who come here and think native Americans must learn their language.

Robinson Would Erase Blot

Jim Rooker's explanation for Catfish's disappointing season in '77: "Yankees pitched him too much last year. I mean they tried to get him to finish too often. In Oakland, he'd go seven, then the bullpen took over." ... Billy Martin getting back at his old buddy for needing Detroit manager had done: "If Houk doesn't win with that club, he never will!" ... Bobby Cox has told Braves' baserunners to take walking lead off first to draw throw. Chances are strong they'll provoke balks, which NL ump's are calling to excess right now. League seems determined to open up stealing game.

Ernie Holmes shipped off to Tampa by Steelers, who tired of his scrapes. It's an application of an old Vince Lombardi theory. He once told troublesome player: "I'll put up with your crap only until I find somebody good enough to take your place." Holmes' defensive talents made Chuck Noll tolerate him long time. ... I'm surprised Frank Robinson agreed to manage Baltimore's farm club at Rochester rather than coach Orioles. Earl Weaver wants to hang around for another World Series, so managing another club would seem to be Robby's best bet for future—and coaching in bigs makes man more visible than managing in minors. Only thing I can figure is Frank wants to erase Cleveland blot with some minor league successes.

Interesting that Roone Arledge, in shaking up ABC's news policy, says he is interested primarily in reportorial ability rather than star-images of reporters. When he was sports chief for ABC, Roone specialized in gimmicks and individual cultism, minimizing performance of athletes. I mean, of course, the giggling in booth for Monday night football. ... Plaintiff of George (Boomer) Scott: "I'm tired of hearing people ask me, for 13 years, how much I weigh. What's the difference? I never ride that pine. I play 158 games a year. The guys with the beautiful bodies are always hurt. Nobody ever says, you can pole it; you can pick it. All they say is, what you weigh?"

With no blitz allowed in tennis, Craig Morton figures to do better against Roger Staubach this time. Supe XII rivals meet in D-war's Cup tourney at Vegas, June 19-22, Riviera Hotel.

Duane Bobick, who weds Denise Di-Rose today, flies to South Africa May 13, not on delayed honeymoon, not for heavyweight bout, but to star in flick called "Billy Boy." It's about guy who wants to be a fighter, a father who wants him to go to college, and a ring match between them to prove who's right. If there's a happy ending, the kid ought to get his head punched in.

'SWC wants rid of us!'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "I think the Southwest Conference would be glad to get rid of us," University of Arkansas athletic director Frank Broyles has told the Austin American-Statesman.

Earlier, an Arkansas Gazette newspaper article suggested that Arkansas alumni and supporters consider membership in another conference as an alternative to staying in the SWC.

Speaking of the possibility of changing conferences, Broyles told the Austin newspaper: "It has been the topic of conversation in many quarters around the state, I've been told. I think the Southwest Conference would be glad to get rid of us." "The Southwest Conference is a very strange wedlock of contradictory opposites with unparalleled goals and we negotiate to help the weak. Everything is to help the weak," Broyles said.

One example of helping the weak, Broyles said, is the new football broadcast plan which has been sold to the Mutual Network for five years. Arkansas will have to give up its lucrative independent network when its contract runs out after three more seasons. The Arkansas athletic director said he is "very bitter" about this.

Another source of unhappiness for Broyles is the conference 50-50 split of gate receipts. The longtime former Arkansas head football coach said he believes the visiting teams should receive a substantial guarantee instead of what he considers to be a "token" share.

Broyles added, "We're drawing at Austin and the Aggies draw, but we're getting checks for $40,000 and $50,000 from most of the people down there."

"It's hard for any school that wants to have a complete program for sports to survive with that amount of money," Broyles said.

He also said he believes that the conference puts too much emphasis on football. "They (the conference) make an effort, but they just don't know how to promote basketball," Broyles said.

State UIL Tennis

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — David Dowlen of Houston Lee defeated his friend, Paul Crozier, of Corpus Christi King, 4-6, 3-6 Saturday for the Class A tennis singles championship at the state schoolboy meet.

Dowlen reportedly will accept a scholarship to University of Houston. He and Crozier teamed up when they were 12 to finish second in a national tournament in North Carolina.

"I haven't beaten him in four years," Crozier said of Dowlen. "He can play just any kind of game."

In the 3A singles, Joe Langer of West Columbia defeated Doug Snyder of Austin Westlake, son of the Longhorn tennis coach, 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 for the title.

Here are the results of the other singles championships matches in tennis:

Class 2A—Mike Claiborne of Bastrop defeated David Pettit of Pearland, 1-6, 7-5, 7-6.

Class A—Tim Lehmberg of Mason defeated Gary Gardner of Junction, 6-4, 6-7, 5.

Class B—Jeffrey Moffett of Comstock defeated Norris Hodgins of Tilden McMullen, 6-1, 6-3.

Okie alligators? You gotta be kidding!

TISHOMINGO, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma's alligator population may be on the rise.

There are indications the toothy reptiles are breeding and reproducing in southern Oklahoma, according to Murray State College's Dr. William Hayes.

Many Oklahomans are shocked to learn Alligator Mississippiensis can be found scattered along the Red River Valley in the southeasternmost portion of the state.

A six-foot, 60-pound brute was captured last week by two Love County deputies near Thackerville, where it was discovered trudging across a country road.

Bill Hawkins, Love and Marshall County game ranger, took custody of the Saurian reptile and transported it to Murray State for study.

The alligator — several miles out of known gator habitat — may have been "on the move looking for a mate," Hawkins suggested.

For its own protection, the medium-sized male was relocated last Friday in an area near Marietta where a number of the creatures live.

It is not known how many of the reptiles are in the state. Nor is it positively understood how they came to be in Oklahoma.

Hayes, a biological science professor, said it is possible some have migrated up the Red River drainage system from the Mississippi and Louisiana bayous.

Hawkins, on the other hand, attributes the presence to releases in the area — some dating back to the 1940s and 1950s.

He said a significant number of those could be baby alligators — so abundant on the market a few years ago — that were freed when they outgrew their desirability as pets.

Historically, the alligator is considered native to southeastern Oklahoma, Hayes said. But throughout recent history "they have been very, very rare," he added.

Their numbers apparently are on the increase, however, he said.

Alligators can be found in marshy areas of Lake Texoma and Lake Murray as well as in scattered ponds and small lakes along the Red River Valley west to Marietta.

Hawkins said he knows where quite a few of the reptiles live — some attaining lengths of 8-9 feet.

Both Hayes and Hawkins said the gators, despite their size, present no foreseeable danger to people. Hawkins said he has never heard of the creatures causing any kind of problem.

Alligators prefer wet, marshy, nasty, snakey areas. "The snaker and nastier, the better," Hayes said.

They eat fish, snakes, frogs, waterfowl — "anything they can muck up," he added.

Hayes said the reptiles are seldom seen because of their tendency to live in isolated areas and the fact they are basically nocturnal.

Alligators are considered an endangered species in some states and are protected by federal law.

Hayes noted Oklahoma has not adopted a state-level endangered species law despite the fact there has been a bill before the Legislature for the last five years.

As a member of the endangered species committee of the Oklahoma Academy of Science, he said passage of the law could provide an estimated $125,000 in federal funds for the study of endangered animals.

Hayes said he supports such legislation because of the benefits of protecting and studying threatened wildlife.

inches in length from public waters in regulatory counties.

These new regulations will go into effect 15 days following the April 25 meeting in all regulatory counties. The new regulations will also appear in the New 1978-79 Texas Hunting and Sport Fishing Guide scheduled for appearance in August.

— Established a mule deer season in the Panhandle from the Saturday before Thanksgiving for 16 days; bag limit, two mule deer, not more than one buck, antlerless by permit. This regulation is designed to treat mule and white-tailed deer separately and allow the department to manage both species more closely. The counties affected include Dallam, Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Roberts, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Swisher, Briscoe, Hall, Childress, Floyd, Motley, Cottle, Ochiltree, Crosby, Kent, Knox, Garza, Stonewall, Haskell, Borden, Scurry, Fisher, and Jones. (archery season Oct. 1-16, one buck only).

— Increased the turkey bag limit in Glasscock and Howard counties to two turkeys, either sex instead of one turkey either sex.

— Prohibited possession of catfish less than nine (9) higher harvest, since harvest is controlled by issuance of permits.

— Closed the white-tailed deer season in 25 counties which have no harvestable populations (estimated at less than 25 animals). These counties are Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Farmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Gaines, Dawson, Andrews and Martin.

CAUGHT — Bill Hawkins, Love and Marshall County game ranger, restrains a six-foot alligator captured last week near Marietta. Some experts say alligators are reappearing in numbers in Oklahoma.

Trolling along

By Danny Reagan

—Fishing buddy Dean Holland remembers reading about a catfish bait that is supposed to be deadly stuff. Getcha a pound of hamburger meat and a jar of limburger cheese and mix it up. Add some cotton to it so it'll stay on your hook.

If they don't bite that stinky stuff, forget it.

—Darleen Lynch, down at Lake Corpus Christi, (Mathis, Tex.) says that there is an added attraction to the big fishing contest going on down there. A gigantic Fish Fry May 28 on the lot next to the Chamber's office at 310 E. San Patricio Avenue.

Many local and area anglers have tried their luck at the big money available in that contest, and now there'll be three more drawings for $100 at the Fish Fry. Also, 50 area businesses are offering discounts to those who enter the contest.

The latest news from down there concerning local fishing luck includes Bob Covington and H. C. Wallin's 71 catfish, mixture of yellows, channels and blues.

The Big Spring duo's largest weighed 32 and 28 pounds, plus eight gars to boot. Also, Johnny Walker took in 94 pounds of blues, his largest weighing 8½ pounds.

—ATTENTION! Don't forget Big Spring's own fishing contest, sponsored by KBST. Registration is still going on. $2,000 worth of prizes will be awarded at the tournament to be held on the Twin Buttes Reservoir at San Angelo next Saturday (May 20).

Tournament Director is Jimmy Lockhart, president of the Big Spring Bass Club. For more information on the tourney, contact him or KBST at 267-6391.

FOR YOUNG ANGLERS ONLY! Your first rod and reel is very important. It should be simple, even though it is the heart of any fishing outfit.

Spincast rigs have their advantages. The main drawback, for the beginner, is that you can't see what the line is doing. Not so with open-face reels. You can see problems with the line as they start.

Your first rod should be about seven-feet long and fitted with large spinning guides. The more guides the better, and the more expensive you can afford the better. If you must cut back on the cost of the equipment, do so on the rod. Almost any rod will do a good job of casting with a good spincast.

Six-pound test line is good for the first spool. It's a bit heavy for some jobs, and a bit tight for others, but it'll give the beginner an edge in most situations. Be sure to fill the spools within an eighth of an inch of the lip of the spool.

Hooks, sinkers, lures and the countless other items you need? Unless you get help from an experienced angler, wait until you get where you're going and buy those things as they are needed.

The clerk in a rural tackle shop close to the lake you will be fishing is more likely to know what is needed to be successful in that area. The main idea is to come up with equipment that will give you a fighting change of catching some fish.

MOSS CREEK Jim Byers says that some nice bass, a few walleye and some big crappie are being caught on minnows, spinners and crank baits. The wind is keeping a lot of anglers away, but a few are still bringing in the 20-25 pound carp on rod and reel. Also a few channel cat.

"I don't think most of the fish are through spawning yet," said Byers. "The carp are, but not the other ones."

The latest thing in bait-casting and jig fishing has come along. The inner tube is now outdated. The fishing chair has arrived. A trolling motor can even be attached to it. Ask Jim about it.

LAKE SPENCE There was a good mixture in fishing reports from Lake E.V. Spence during the past week. Together with the usual run of striped bass were reports of yellow cat fish, channel catfish, a few black bass and crappie.

The largest striper of the week was a 16-lb. 3-oz. specimen landed by Gene Barry and T. J. Brown of Big Spring. The best yellow cat was a 24½-pounder reported by Bill Meredith of Denver City. One party brought in a string of 90 channel catfish. Reports included:

Triangle Grocery and Bait — Kenneth Bruns, Odessa, 13¼-lb. striper, and a 7-lb. yellow catfish; Rodney Kubena, Kermit, and Frankie Kubena, Odessa, 5¼-lb. black bass and five strippers to 4½ lbs. David Weinkauff and party of Vernal, Utah, eight strippers to 6½ lbs.

Hillside Grocery and Bait — Dale River, Jay Service, John Page of Robert Lee, eight channel cat to 7 lbs.; V. R. O'Rear, Robert Lee, 5¼-lb. black bass and two yellow catfish to 18 lbs.; J. R. Luttrell, Snyder, 12-lb. yellow cat.

Paint Creek Marina — Gene Barry and T. J. Brown, 16-lb. 3-oz. striper; Bill Meredith, Denver City, 24½-lb. yellow catfish; Roger McCray and party, Denver City, 18 blue catfish, two strippers and a crappie; Dutch Lumsford and Jerry Cook, Midland, 90 channel catfish and a 4½-lb. striper; Dr. Fench, Odessa, six strippers to 10½-lbs., Charles Travis, Robert Lee, three strippers to 8½ lbs.

Wildcat Fish A Rama — Harold Morton, Levelland, three strippers to 3 lbs., six channel to 3½ lbs.; Dr. Bob Hampton and Dr. Clark, Sweetwater, four strippers to 7¼ lbs.; Ronald Rayburn, Hereford, 12½-lb. striper.

Texas fly fishing

AUSTIN — "It's a fly rod, Martha, not a buggy whip!" Texas, in truth, is not known as a fly fisherman's paradise.

There are no golden-sized native browns, no feisty brookies or sea-run salmon to rise to a well-placed streamer.

But Texas fishermen who fail to include fly rodding in their spring and summer fishing itinerary may be missing some real action, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The relative scarcity of fly fishermen in Texas is more than just a lack of native trout. The tremendous dominance of largemouth bass on the fishing scene has probably kept flyrodding in the background, since an able fisherman with the latest casting and spinning paraphernalia can surpass a fly fisherman in a bass-catching contest year in and year out.

But the other side of the coin is that during the warm-weather months a skillful flyrodder can probably catch more species of fish consistently and have more fun as it, pound for pound, than can the spin or bait caster.

When you cast a small popping bug or deer-hair frog up next to a log, anything can happen. Bass, large bream and even channel catfish can be caught this way, and if you try streamers and wet flies your catch could include the likes of crappie and white bass.

"A lot more people probably would try fly rodding if they knew how easy it is," said Bob Bounds, inland fisheries management chief for the department. "With the right equipment, anyone can learn to cast with a fly rod with just a little practice."

If you don't have a fly outfit, go to a reputable tackle shop and ask them to help you select a good all-around rod. For most fly fishing, with occasional bass bugging thrown in, an eight-foot medium-action rod might be a good choice.

Be sure to get a line matched in weight to the rod. The recommended weights are labeled on the rod and line packages.

BIG UN — J.D. Hyden of Big Spring is shown here with a 50-pound yellow cat that he and Ben Friable of San Angelo caught on the Humble Recreation side of Lake Spence last Saturday. The big cat was brought in on a trot line baited with carp minnows.

Channel catfish are all the same

AUSTIN — A fisherman, it is said, will sometimes stretch the truth.

Not intentionally, mind you, but just enough to add an extra inch or two or pound or so to that whopper he almost caught last week.

Sometimes a fisherman also will pass along misinformation about a particular fish species. Recently, in certain sectors of the state, catfishermen have circulated theories that there are two varieties of channel catfish — the pure, "native" channel cats which come from running streams and "government" catfish which live only in lakes.

The implication is that the native fish are inherently superior to the government variety whose ancestors found their way into lakes via fish hatcheries.

Brownfield man guilty of aggravated battery

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — Juan Martin Sanchez pleaded guilty to aggravated battery in the beating of a Lea County man during a spree that started in Brownfield, Texas, last Nov. 24.

Sanchez, 21, of Brownfield, faced a battery of charges in connection with the spree.

He was sentenced to serve 2-10 years in the state penitentiary by District Judge C. Fincher Neal.

Sanchez is wanted by Texas authorities in connection with the fatal shooting of Alfred Sixto, 30, in Brownfield Nov. 24.

Assistant District Attorney Ernest Carroll said the aggravated battery incident was the last in a series that began with a barroom brawl in Brownfield.

According to testimony during a preliminary hearing Jan. 25, Billy Ray Battles of Brownfield said Sanchez asked him for a ride then took him prisoner at gunpoint. Officers said Sanchez commandeered Battles and the vehicle after the fatal shooting of Sixto.

Police said Sanchez later took a second car near Seminole, Texas, after shooting the driver of that vehicle in the leg. He retained Battles as a prisoner.

Battles said he was released near Arkansas Junction while Sanchez was heading toward New Mexico in the second vehicle.

Warren Allen of Carlsbad testified Sanchez flagged down the pick up truck he was driving between Hobbs and Carlsbad. Allen said he took the pistol away from Sanchez but said Sanchez grabbed his (Allen's) shotgun from the cab of his truck.

Allen testified he was severely beaten as he fought Sanchez for possession of the weapon. Sanchez was apprehended later while sleeping near a Carlsbad mine.

Sanchez entered a guilty plea to aggravated battery charges as part of a plea bargaining agreement in which a false imprisonment charge was dropped.

Traffic deaths up 10 percent

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Traffic fatalities are up 10 percent over the same time last year, the Department of Public Safety reports.

The department said 1,107 persons have died in 953 accidents, compared to 1,003 traffic deaths in 886 accidents at this time last year.

The number of fatal accidents is up 8 percent.

'It's bucking the establishment'

Pine box funeral

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The frontier tradition of burial in a pine box was a good one, says James Reveley. It was dignified for the deceased and inexpensive for the survivors.

Incensed at the cost of modern-day funerals, which a federal study found average from $1,300 to $1,600, Reveley decided recently to offer a $300 alternative.

The charge includes pickup by Reveley's Memorial Service of the body of a deceased, cold storage, legal paperwork, a handmade pine coffin, and delivery of the box to a cemetery or crematory.

Reveley also will help relatives arrange religious memorial services and to find a cemetery plot or crematorium for disposal of the body.

"It's bucking the establishment," he said in an interview, "but I think I'm doing something really worthwhile. I think it's a real public service."

Reveley began working at a funeral home on weekends while in high school 17 years ago. He went to mortician's school, served an apprenticeship and became a mortician.

But, he said, "I was turned off by the commercial practices and ethics of the business and I quit in a couple of years."

He continued to work at mortuaries to pay his way through college and dental school and, at age 34, has a fulltime dental practice today.

Last December, he opened Reveley Memorial Service. An Alternative, a side business to his dental practice.

The alternative is a no-frills funeral.

There's no embalming of the body, no cosmetic treatment, no fancy casket, no display room, no chapel, no funeral procession and — most importantly — Reveley believes Reveley — no fat bill to take care of after the living have departed.

Reveley said he believes millions of people are victimized annually by funeral home operators who take advantage of their customers.

He supports this view with a study of funeral home practices by the Federal Trade Commission in August 1975 which stated:

"Each year, millions of families are forced by the death of a relative to make one of the largest consumer purchases under severe handicaps of time pressure, emotional distress and lack of information or experience."

"As an FTC hearing examiner noted long ago, there are few, if any, industries where the ultimate consumer is so disadvantaged or where his normal bargaining power is so diluted in a situation of such immediate need."

Reveley keeps a copy of the FTC report on the desk at his funeral home.

"We just take the body, put it in the pine box, and deliver it to the cemetery. Then nature does its job. I would never embalm a body," said Reveley.

"How many times have you heard somebody say, 'When I die, I just want to be buried in a pine box? Well, that's what I'm offering.'"

The cost of a cemetery plot or cremation is additional and is worked out between survivors and the cemetery. Reveley might offer suggestions if asked.

Reveley's had only four customers since opening five months ago.

"But we've had a lot of inquiries. The word... is spreading," he said.

The biggest problem for his business, Reveley said, is that relatives of the deceased are concerned about what others will say about them if they bury the deceased in a pine box without an elaborate funeral.

"Most people agree it's a waste of money. Funerals are for the living — the living of the funeral home owners," he added.

Strauss predicts Inflationary spiral to slow

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — Presidential troubleshooter Robert Strauss predicts his campaign urging voluntary economic restraint by business and labor will slow the nation's inflationary spiral by the year's end.

But Strauss, the man named by President Carter to tackle the inflation problem, said the administration doesn't have a definite contingency plan formulated in the event this effort fails.

"We're not saying if this doesn't work we'll go to wage and price controls," Strauss told a news conference in Hobbs Thursday night. "There are some other things we can look at."

Strauss was in Hobbs for a $100-per-couple Democratic Party fundraiser. An estimated 500 party members and candidates attended the "Bob Strauss Day" function.

Strauss is a former Democratic Party national chairman who now serves as Carter's special representative for trade negotiations in addition to his inflation fighting chores.

He said he believes Americans can curb inflation without government intervention.

"There are cynics, probably some in this room, who will say a voluntary program just won't work," he said. "I say baloney."

Strauss said he refused to "accept the principle we've reached the stage where we need more government controls. They're going to have to prove it to me, and that's why I'm going to teach it all across the country."

He said business must show restraint before labor does, and said the response to his appeals by the business community "has been tremendous."

Strauss said the working man must have some assurance before he signs a multi-year contract with a slight pay increase that the cost of living won't take a huge jump while his income is fixed.

"It's a little bit more difficult for labor, but they too have their share to do," he said.

Strauss said Americans should expect to see some definite gains in the effort to slow inflation by the end of the year, and said once the country sees the administration has a fair program that works, voluntary compliance will increase.

Strauss also said a tax cut would not fuel inflation, though it would give consumers more money to spend.

He said the inflation facing the country now is different than in the past because it isn't caused by an "overheated economy."

The current problem is a wage-price spiral where everybody wants to "get what they can and get out," he said.

"If we can just cool it down a bit, we can begin to get out of it," he said.

Strauss said his goal is to hold wage and price increases at the same average they have been during the past two years.

He said there is no "magic figure" for what he considers an acceptable inflation rate.

"I suppose you could say that any inflation will be unacceptable," he said.

While he declined to set a limit, he said inflation of seven percent would be too high.

Strauss declined again to say what the Carter administration would do if his request for voluntary restraints is unsuccessful.

Strauss said the public should be able to expect some concrete results by the end of the year.

"If we show them a program that's fair and equitable, they'll respond," he said.

Strauss arrived late Thursday and was leaving for Texas after the dinner.

Goliad Cheerleaders are elected

By KRISTY MATHEWS
DIANE JOHNSON

Last Friday Goliad elected cheerleaders to serve in the eighth grade at Runnels next year. They will be Terri Dominguez, Stacey Hodnett, Tracy Claxton, Kristy Mathews, Julie Dudley and Amy Burleson. Michelle Curry and Teresa Alexander will be alternates. Goliad is proud of the many girls who wanted to represent their school in this way and participated in the tryouts.

Tryouts for seventh grade cheerleaders will be held on May 19. The sixth grade girls are working hard on their yell this week.

The Goliad choir will have a pop concert on Tuesday, May 16, at 7:00 in the high school auditorium. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited.

The sixth and seventh grade bands will present a concert Tuesday, May 16, in the Goliad gymnasium. Then on Thursday, May 18, they will give a concert for the public at the high school auditorium.

Forsan High Students attend state meet

By STEVE COWLEY

Forsan High had several students do very well in the State U.L.L. meet held in Austin last weekend. Forsan took a sweep of the Class B debate category, winning first and second place. Ron Roberson and Steve Cowley successfully defended their state title by winning first.

Don Roberson and Carrie Poyner also smashed three other teams to take the second place title. Ernie Morgan barely missed in qualifying in hide rule, placing fourth. Other U.L.L. participants included Lucy Thixton in news writing and Marka Higley in headline writing.

Lucy Thixton raced to another first place finish in the 220-yard dash this year, leaving the field behind. This is Lucy's second year to take the honors at state, and she will be back next year.

The annual All-Awards Barbecue supper, held to recognize all students winning an award in any phase of school activity, will be held May 16 at 7:00 in the high school gymnasium. The tickets, which are on sale at the high school and Elbow, cost $3 for adults and $1 for students.

The 1978 Commencement and Graduation exercises will be held at the high school auditorium on May 25. Class valedictorian is Ernie Morgan, and class salutatorian is Steve Cowley. Special music will be presented by Dennis Baggett, Gary Martin, Julie Underwood, and Ronda Ford.

The morning after graduation, the senior class will take off for sunny Galveston for two nights and a day, and then on to Houston for the remainder of the trip.

On June 2, the students who qualified for the State Solo and Ensemble contest will travel to Austin to compete in their events. Band members going are Stella Holguin, Rhonda Shoults, Melissa Frank, Dayton Robertson, Steve Cowley, Ernie Morgan, Ron Roberson, and Don Roberson.

The exam schedule for the other students is: Wednesday, May 24, from 8:30-10:30 the first period exam from 10:35-12:30 the third period exam and from 12:30-3:30 the seventh period exam. Posters filled the hallowed halls of Runnels Junior High School as students campaigned for spots on the High School Student Council.

There are 6 places that's filled by Freshmen students. The election of these students to fill Freshmen Council places will be held Monday the fifteenth.

The students campaigning for student council were not the only ones with posters in the halls, though. The girls trying for 9th grade cheerleader also were campaigning. These girls will try out in front of the student body, Thursday, May 18th. We wish the best of luck to all students trying for these honors.

There will be several assemblies next week. The Runnels Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Judy Bowers, will present an assembly program, May 16th for Runnels students. On Thursday, May 18th, the Runnels Band directed by Mr. Bradley Young, will present a concert of music they have been working on. Then on Friday, the Awards Assembly will be held. This will be conducted by Mr. Henry and other members of the faculty.

The National Jr. Honor Society escaped the daily grind of school Friday, and instead travelled to Christoval, Texas, to have a day of sun and fun in Christoval Park. They were accompanied by NJHS sponsor, James McFarland and several parents of Honor Society students. But don't think members got out of Friday's work. Friday's assignments were given out on Monday and were due on Thursday.

This is the last edition of the Megaphone, column and Kelli and I would like to say how much we have enjoyed working for the Herald. It's a great way to meet people, even if the work is hard. We hope the people who write this column, next year have as much enjoyment bringing the column to you each Sunday as we have.

Presiding over the banquet was Randy Phillips. Rodeo Club President, Paul Gibbs, Vice-President, and Jim Bob Coates, FFA President. The awards were presented by George Byrd, sponsor for both FFA and the Rodeo Club.

Becci Rowden is this year's Recipient of the 1941 Study Club Scholarship Award. This award is based on a letter entered by the applicant. The letter is judged on form and the information contained in the letter.

WTSU club elects officers

WTSU — Two West Texas State University students from Big Spring have been elected 1978-79 officers in the Recreation Club.

Members of the WTSU Recreation Club met recently to elect 1978-79 officers, present outstanding member awards and name the first recipient of their club scholarship.

The WTSU Recreation Club is a merit club, according to the club's sponsor Mrs. Mary Hill. The students host and work in tournaments in such sports as racquetball and volleyball, where they earn money they later use to finance fun activities for themselves such as snow and water skiing trips, backpacking and camping.

Deborah Martin, junior recreation major, is the new secretary while Bill Banks, sophomore recreation major, will serve as reporter.

Miss Martin is the daughter of Vaughn Martin, while Banks is the son of W.R. Banks of 2109 Carl, Big Spring.

Interest rates hike sparks rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's recent rally has put Wall Street in the unusual position of welcoming a rising trend in interest rates.

Normally, an increase in the discount rate like the one announced last Thursday by the Federal Reserve is considered a severe market depressant.

But this time it helped ignite a sharp rally that carried the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials up more than 18 points in two days.

For the past week the average gained 11.61 to 840.70, more than offsetting the previous week's 8.29-point setback.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index picked up .88 to 54.85, and the American Stock Exchange market value index, setting new 4½-year highs daily, climbed 2.68 to 142.57.

Big Board volume came to 181.80 million shares. The past four weeks have been the first, second, third and fourth busiest, in that order, in NYSE history.

Under the traditional Wall Street scheme of things, rising interest rates are bad news for stock prices for several reasons.

First of all, they increase companies' borrowing costs, thus squeezing profits and exerting upward pressure on the ultimate price of goods being produced.

In addition, they increase the attractiveness of bonds and other interest-bearing investments which compete with stocks for investors' favor.

And right now interest rates are clearly on the rise. Twice in recent weeks the Federal Reserve has moved to push open-market money rates higher. Then, on Thursday, it raised the discount rate — the charge it sets on loans to its member commercial banks — from 6½ to 7 per cent.

"This is the year the rules changed," said Robert Stovall at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

"In the past stock prices and interest rates were like buckets in a well. It was almost a mechanical relationship. When one went up the other went down."

Stovall and other analysts say a couple of factors seem to have scrambled the usual equation this time: inflation and the dollar's problems in foreign exchange.

A rise in interest rates tends to help the dollar against foreign currencies by making U.S. interest-bearing investments more attractive to overseas investors.

In addition, brokers say, the FED's tightening of credit has helped give foreign investors more confidence that the U.S. government is making a meaningful bid to control inflation.

ROSE PAULING

Rose Pauling gains degree

Rose Pearl McCraw Pauling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald P. McCraw of Coahoma, received her B.S. degree in mathematics from Texas A&M this month.

A 1975 graduate of Coahoma High, she was salutatorian of her high school class. In college, she was involved with the symphonic band, student government radio where she was a disc jockey and day manager, vice president and treasurer of the Math Club, a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, secretary of Pi Mu Epsilon, a distinguished student, won third place in the sophomore math contest and was awarded the Ben Johnson Estate Memorial Scholarship.

She was also a member of the Bryan Chamber Orchestra and graduated magna cum laude at Texas A&M.

She has accepted a position with Texas Instruments in Dallas in the Geophysical Operations of the Service Group.

Deaf suit socks UT

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Graduate student Walter Camenish will spend $1,000 more than most students at the University of Texas to get a masters degree, and he wants that changed.

Camenish is deaf and pays for an interpreter. He has sued the university for not providing such services.

U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts conducted a hearing on the suit this week and expected to decide within a week whether to issue a preliminary injunction against the university.

At least five deaf students and many more partially deaf persons attend UT classes.

Camenish's attorneys, including two from the National Center for the Law and the Deaf in Washington, argued that the lack of interpreters violates the 1973 Vocational Rehabilitation Act.

The act states that no handicapped person will be denied "benefits... or subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

The university receives more than $31 million in federal funds.

Camenish graduated from Gallaudet College in Washington, the only liberal arts college for deaf persons in the country. He is acting dean of student life at the Texas School for the Deaf, but says his continued employment depends on getting a graduate degree.

Bent Cement Park offers thrills

By DUSTY RICHARD

If Keith Bristow and David Terry have their way, Big Spring, in say a year or less, may become known as the "Skateboard Capitol of Texas" or even the world, as these two "skateboard magnates" have built in our midst a park of staggering dimensions and have the ambition of equally vast quantity to promote their enterprise.

To this end, they brought in Brian Abell, the National Freestyle Champion from Dallas, along with the Hobie Team, Saturday and Sunday to display talents that Bristow and Terry hope young people of Big Spring and the surrounding areas will get the urge to emulate.

Plans are, on this second day of "The Bent Cement Skateboard Park's" grand opening, to formulate a team which they hope to sponsor from local competitions right on into the nationals.

"We've got some damn good kids here — I think we can bring home Big Spring's first national champ," said the articulate Bristow.

Terry and Bristow were first possessed of the idea of building a skateboard park when they read an article in the Herald's Leisure Magazine about how local enthusiasts of the sport were riding their boards along the interstate and in culverts.

"They had pictures of the kids, and at the end of the article, one of the kids stated that he wished someone here in Big Spring would build a park like the ones they have in San Angelo and Lubbock, the closest places these kids could go," Bristow said.

Taking off with this suggestion, Bristow and Terry flew to Southern California and traveled around looking at parks there in June of last year.

"We saw the first park in the world, which was built at Carlsbad, and looked at the most successful park in the world, located at Anaheim, which takes in about $10,000 a week."

They talked to the owners and managers of these businesses and took pictures of the various features that each offered.

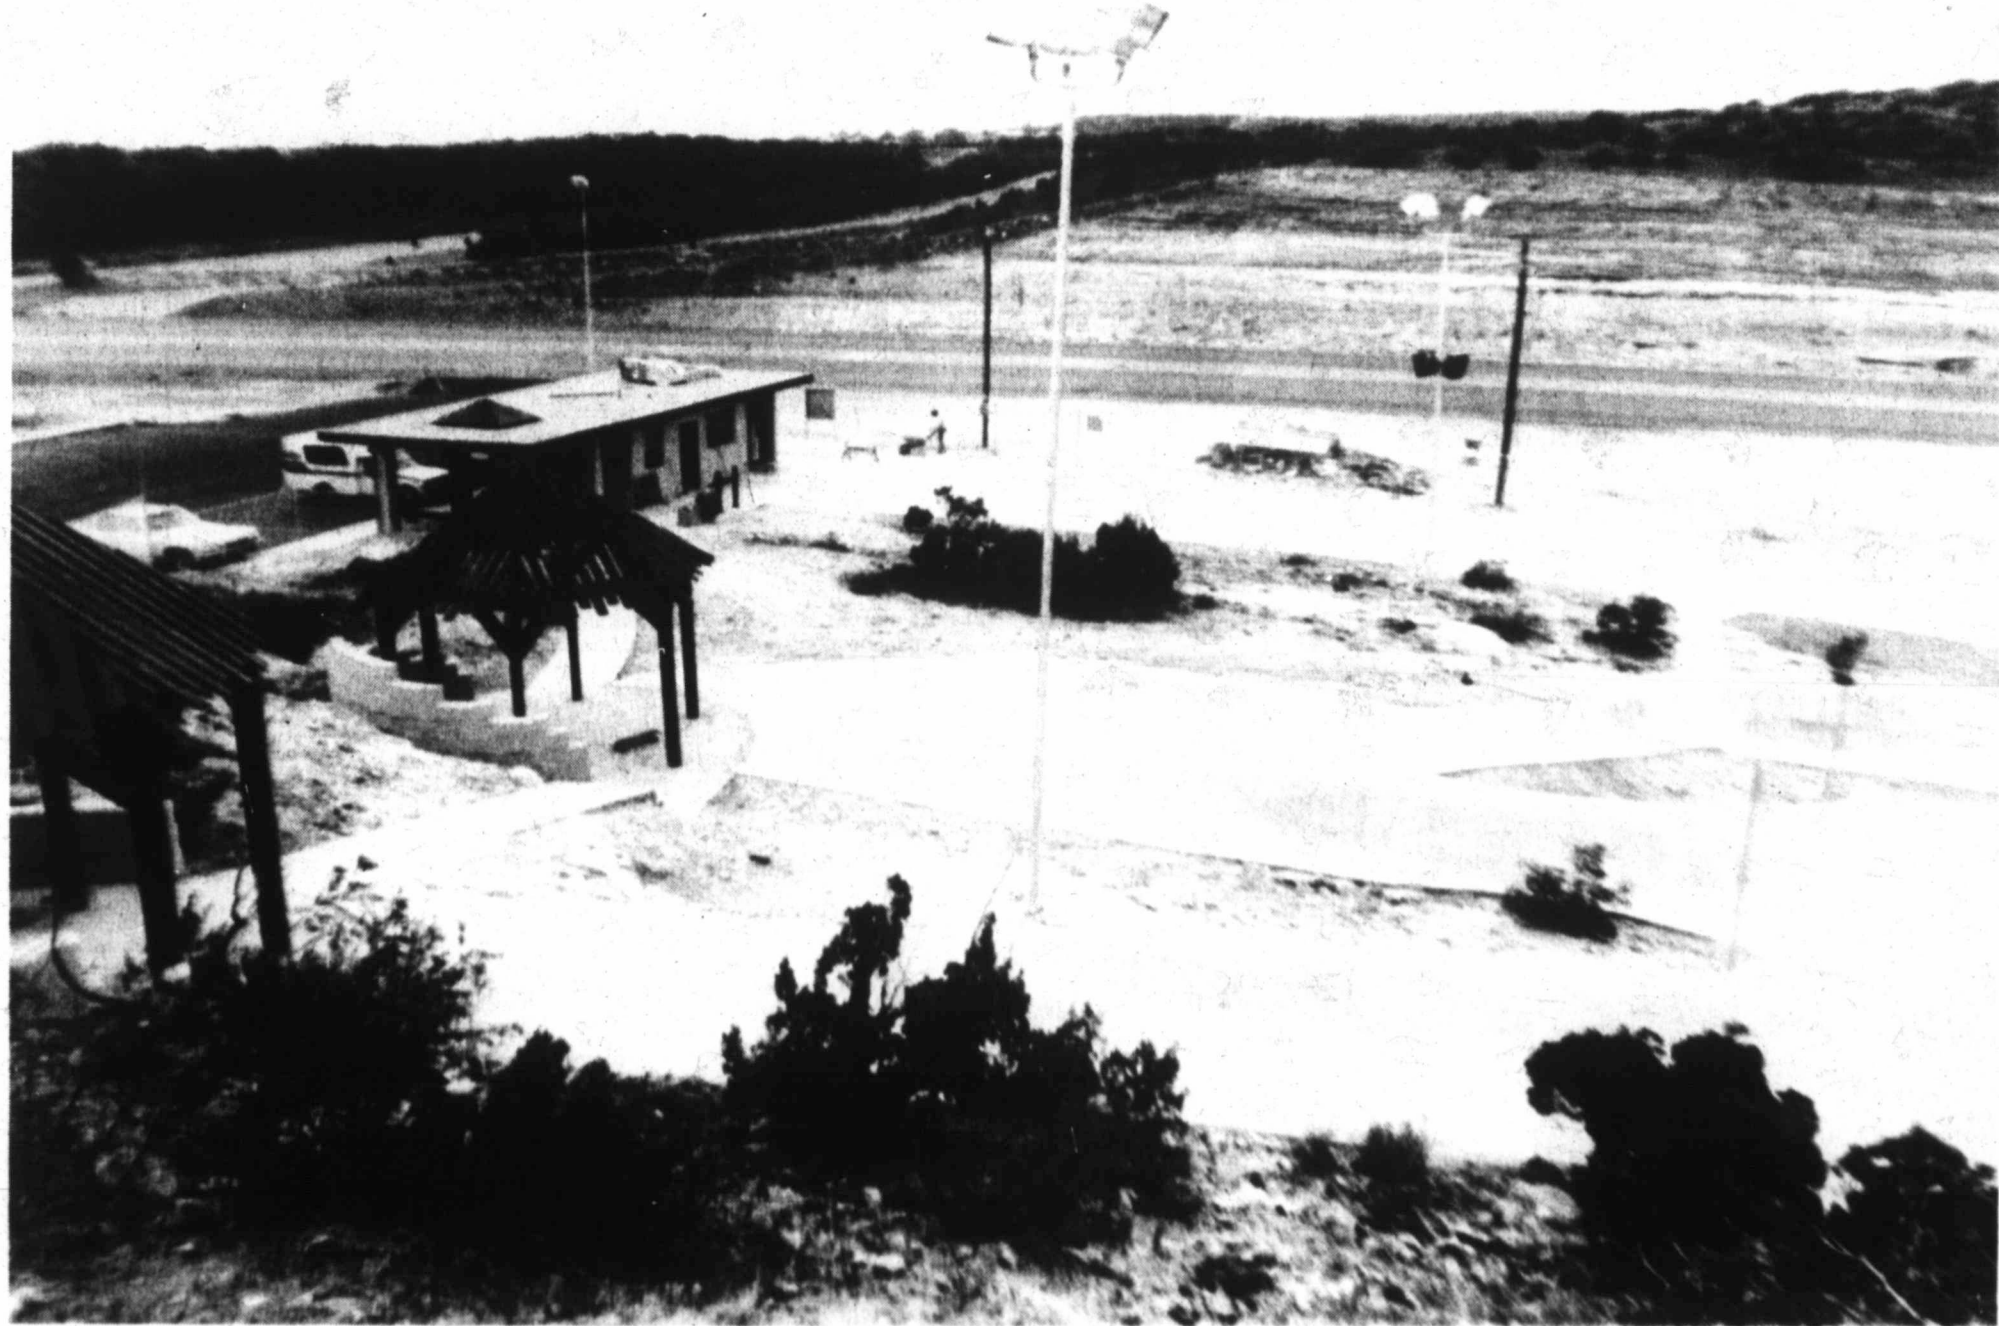

After toying with the idea of building such a park, Bristow and Terry decided that the concept was feasible and started off and running.

Soon, however, they hit a snag. Residents of the land they chose on which to build the park got up a legal injunction against them doing so.

"The kids came to our rescue. They circulated petitions around and I just wish we could publish every name on those petitions because they really helped us out."

After rezoning the land in order to construct the park upon it, the next problem was faced. The land was rock, so the skateboarder's paradise had to be literally carved out of it.

"Then we discovered a high pressure gas line with no easement

BENT CEMENT IS A REALITY — The park is finished on schedule, May 10. This photo shows the park from a high vantage point so one can see the pro shop and the parking lot to the left, which was paved by Jones Contractors of Coahoma. Grand opening of the park was Saturday and today, with hours being 10-10. It will be open seven days a week.

that wasn't on any of the surveys or deeds. But we overcame that and broke ground Feb. 28, 1978," said Bristow.

A total of about 50 men worked full time on the construction from the 28th to May 10.

Construction crews at the park included Rhodes and Assoc., Boulder, Colo., general contractors; Pleasure Pools, San Angelo, shotcrete, Sherrod Construction, Big Spring, excavation; Gilliland Electric Co., Big Spring, electrical; Whitefield Plumbing Co., Big Spring, plumbing; Marquez Fence Co., Big Spring, flat concrete work and fencing; John Pitts, Big Spring, masonry; and Jones Contractors, Coahoma, paving.

Others to whom Bristow wished to give credit were Randy Johnson, who did the carpentry work on the benches around the Pro Shop and the roofs of the huts; Mike Thomas of Tape Town, who installed indoor and outdoor speakers along with a reel-to-reel stereo system and amplifier; Stefany Walsh of Boulder, Colo., who thought up the name "Bent Cement;" and his wife, Jeanne, who helped with much of the paperwork, and lent a helping hand when needed.

Bristow estimated that the total cost of the park would run in the neighborhood of $125,000, but could not estimate when the money would be put back into his and Terry's pockets and profits would start to be seen.

"That's an unknown, we don't know the market around here so we can't tell."

Features at Bent Cement that excite both novice and pro skateboarders are the freestyle area with its humps, which is designed primarily for beginners, although pros also have a lot of fun in this section; the half-pipe with much vertical, which Bristow says "turns the kids on"; the "largest bowl I've ever seen," according to Bristow; a fast kidney-shaped pool which also contains a lot of vertical; an intermediate run with humps; and a downhill run for experts.

Rhodes, Terry and Bristow decided on these specific features after observing the parks in Southern California, along with parks in San Antonio, Dallas, Austin, El Paso, Lubbock and San Angelo, and talking with the two boys whom they've hired as pros, Allen White and Kenneth Owens.

"Allen and Kenneth told us what the kids like to do and what features they look for. They've already ridden the park and think that it's better than the ones in San Angelo and Lubbock," said Bristow.

The size of the park is devastating, although it cannot be appreciated unless one views it from the very top of the hill on which it is located. The bowl itself measures 40 by 15 feet, which conjures up visions of broken bones, but as Bristow says, "these kids know just the techniques to use to get the most pleasure out of the features without killing themselves."

The main thrill of skateboarding, according to Bristow and Rhodes, the general contractor, is that it is composed of the same classic motions used in sky-diving, skiing and roller-skating, among other sports of this kind.

"It's like a feeling of free-flight; the sensation is that of defying gravity," said Rhodes.

As to some skeptics' claims that because skateboarding was a fad ten years ago and died out, this new skateboarding craze is destined for the same fate, Bristow retorts, "Let me put it this way — Brian Abell, the boy I'm bringing in for the grand opening — he won't take any money for appearances because he wants to retain his amateur status, in the belief that skateboarding may be a legitimate event in the '82 Olympics."

To be eligible to skate in the park, a person must fill out an application form, which has to be signed by the parents of applicants under 18, stating that the park is not responsible for any injuries incurred while skating there. "To make sure that the kids are well-protected, we are requiring that they wear the safety equipment of helmets, knee pads and shoulder pads, which they can rent from us if they do not own them."

There will also be persons trained in first aid on the premises at all times and Bristow pointed out ironically that the park is within seeing distance of Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Membership fee will be a minimal $2 per year, and rates will be $1.25 for the first hour and a dollar for each hour after that, or a $4 pass that will allow the boarders to skate all day. The park will be open from 10 to 10 seven days a week.

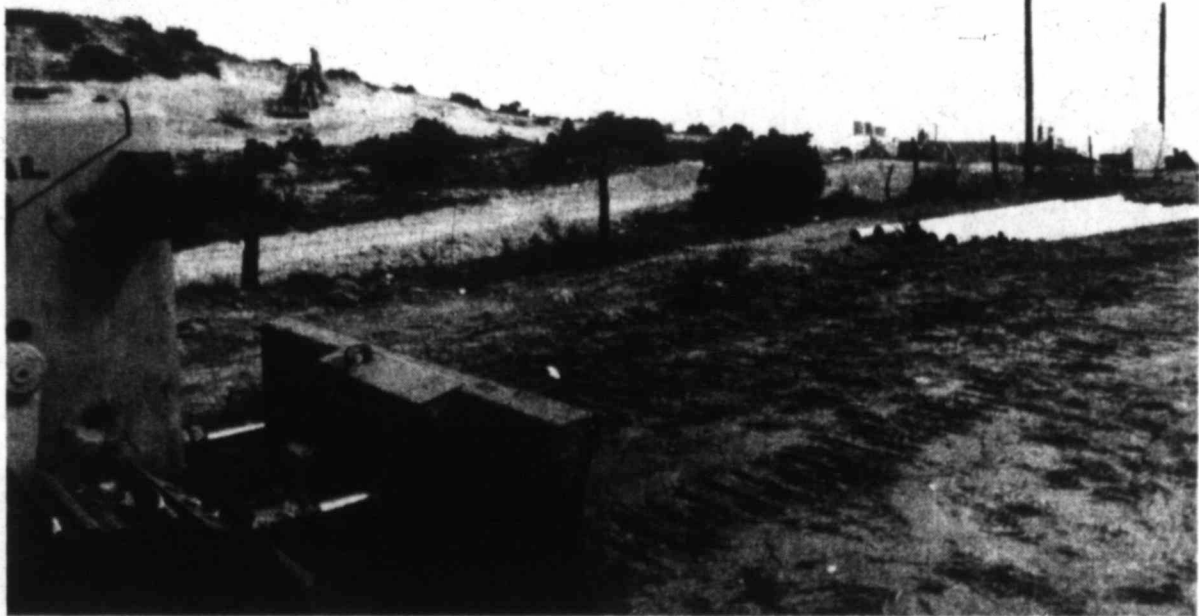

Bent Cement will be managed by Larry Bob Conway and the park pros will be White and Owens.

Rental fees for equipment will be 50 cents for the helmet, 25 cents for knee pads and 25 cents for elbow pads.

These fees will allow the use of the safety equipment all day.

One sale at the pro shop will be first-rate skateboards, the most expensive of which runs $86, but Bristow said that they have less expensive models on hand.

So, all you skateboard-lovers out there, if you haven't already made a beeline to the park, the time to do so is now — and remind your parents that this safety-designed park is a lot better than those culverts, streets, parking lots and gullies you've been riding in!

GNAWING AT THE ROCK — Taken just after the ground was broken, this picture shows how Sherrod Construction Co. of Big Spring had to literally carve the Bent Cement Skateboard Park out of rock. Working the backhoe to the left is Doug Graham. The park had some 50 men working on it for an average of eight hours a day for 43 days.

IT'S STILL WET — At right, Benny Marquez, owner of Marquez Fence Co., Big Spring, finishes laying cement around the Pro Shop, which was built by John Pitts.

Marquez also did about half the cement finishing in the park itself. This picture was taken Apr. 14.

PRIDE AND SATISFACTION — shows on the faces of David Terry, left, and Keith Bristow, owners of the park. They said that the idea came to them after reading an article in the Herald telling how local kids were riding their skateboards in streets and culverts. Bristow added that they traveled around Southern California and Texas observing other parks so that they could make the best and safest park for local skateboard enthusiasts.

FROM THE TOP — Taken Apr. 14, this picture, taken from the top hut of the park, shows Randy Johnson and his men working on the carpentry of the lower hut to the left. The brickwork of the huts was done by John Fitts. Excavation by Marquez is still going on at this time, and the men are working around a high-pressure gas line that was not shown on any surveys of the land.

READY TO POUR — Finally carved out of the mountain, the park is ready for concrete to be poured into the forms around the runs. Pleasure Pools of San Angelo did the shotcrete, beginning Apr. 21, when this picture was taken.

SKATEBOARDERS' DELIGHT — The concrete has been poured at the top of the highest run in this picture taken May 1. The wire in the middle of the photo was used to form and anchor the concrete to the ground. Concrete at the park covers 22,000 square feet at an average thickness of five inches. Lights are up by now, erected by Gilliland Electric Co. of Big Spring.

ALMOST DONE — The park concrete is all poured in this picture, taken May 9. The ladder by the lightpost was used to point the lights onto the park itself so they wouldn't be a nuisance to neighbors. The Bristows had to stand guard at the park til dark every night to make sure kids did not ride without supervision.

Crafts worked on

The Pioneer Sewing Club met May 2 in the home of Lucille Overman with 13 members and one guest, Lanell Evans, present. Several handicrafts were worked on by members. Refreshments were served before the meeting adjourned until May 16, with the future meeting site to be announced at a later date.

MR. AND MRS. JOE BRASHER and children, Warren and Jody, were in Fort Worth recently where they visited Brasher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Brasher. They took their camper with them and on the way home they stopped by Graham to see the renovation of "Old Graham." A cafe has been opened there where hot-water cornbread and buttermilk pie are served.

RECENT GUESTS OF MR. AND MRS. A.J. McCall were their daughter-in-law, Mrs. J.W. Archer, Seminole, and her daughter, Marsha; their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Parker, O'Donnel; and Mr. and Mrs. A.O. Jones of Sand Springs. Mr. and Mrs. McCall visited in Abilene recently with a cousin and his family, Mr. and Mrs. A.V. Stewart.

THE DORCAS CLASS of the Forsan Baptist Church had a salad luncheon Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Bob Cowley with 11 members and one guest, Nola Story, present. After the luncheon, NOLA STORY SPENT the weekend in Midland with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Jeffery. She also visited her sister, Mrs. Aubrey Fulcher, who is living in a retirement home there.

Dorothy Hassel, president, took charge of the meeting. Anita Shoultz gave the opening prayer, and then the teacher, Lola Painter, led a group sharing and testimonial service.

RECENTLY MR. AND MRS. Bob Wash and daughter-in-law, Teresa, drove their motorhome to Albuquerque, N.M., and left it for repairs. They flew to El Paso where their son, Billy, was a competitor in drag races. Last weekend, Wash, his son Billy, a mechanic, Dwayne Severance, and Ray Lee were in Tulsa, Okla., where Billy competed in a drag race. He set a new record for F.F. Gas.

MRS. L.B. McELRATH has just returned from a trip to Austin and Irving. She visited in Austin with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Al White, and then the group drove to Irving where they visited in the home of her son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Tyler and son Bryce. Saturday the group attended the Byron Nelson Golf Tournament, and Monday the Whites and Mrs. McElrath returned to Austin. She took the Kerrville bus home Wednesday.

Mrs. Bob Simpson presents pianists

Mrs. Bob Simpson will present her piano students in a recital today at 2 p.m., at the First Christian Church. Assisting with the program will be Terri Dean and Karen Riley and refreshments will be served in the church parlor by Mrs. Charles Boland and Mrs. Joe Evans.

The musical line-up is as follows:

WILL VISIT U.N. — Seated is Robin von Rosenberg and the youth to her right is Greg Henry, local winners of the nation-wide Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges' 29th annual youth pilgrimage to the United Nations. Members of Rebekah Lodge No. 284 and Mullins Odd Fellows Lodge No. 372 who helped select the two through an essay contest are, from left, Melinda Blackburn, James Norwood, Eric Lansperry, Sheri Wilson and Robert Wilson. Wilson is the tour director for the 40 Texas students who will go on the pilgrimage.

Local Odd Fellows, Rebekahs send two BSHS youths to U.N.

By EILEEN MCGUIRE

Good reasons for wanting to go have won Greg Henry and Robin von Rosenberg, juniors at Big Spring High School, an opportunity to sit in on United Nations meetings and an expense-paid historical tour of the country.

The two won the trip through an essay contest conducted by Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 and Mullins Odd Fellows Lodge No. 372. They will go as guests of the local lodges on the annual "United Nations pilgrimage for Youth" which Odd Fellows and Rebekahs throughout the United States have sponsored for the past 29 years.

According to Robert Wilson, past Noble Grand of the local Odd Fellows and tour director for the 40 Texas high school students who will take the pilgrimage, the group will leave by bus from Ennis on June 25.

The 16-day trip will include four days in Washington D.C. where the students will visit the Smithsonian Institute, the White House and historical monuments. After visiting Gettysburg and Monticello, they will spend six days at the United Nations after which they will cross the Peace Bridge to Canada. A stop at the Indianapolis Speedway is planned on the way back.

Sheri Wilson, member of Rebekah Lodge No. 284 and Deputy President of District 11, said that arrangements have already been made for the students to be housed and fed along the way by Rebekahs and Oddfellows across the country.

"All Greg and Robin have to do is pack their clothes and some spending money. Everything else has been taken care of," she said.

Usually, Mrs. Wilson said, the local lodges send only one student. This is the first year they've sponsored two.

"I think we should all be involved in America and our government and know what's going on," Miss von Rosenberg gave as her reason for wanting to go. "Also, I'd like to work at the U.N. after I graduate from school so this trip will give me some preliminary experience."

Having taken French, Spanish and a lot of speech in high school, Miss von Rosenberg said she's interested in a career as either an interpreter or a diplomat.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert von Rosenberg, 2617 Ann, she serves as Worthy Advisor for the Order of the Rainbow for Girls and supports the Steers as a Goldigger. She's Home Run Hon for the Steers Baseball team and a photographer for the Annual Staff.

Gregg Henry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Henry, 1707 Purdue, said he wanted to be a part of the pilgrimage because, "It's a good opportunity to see part of this beautiful country that God made."

As a member of the Hi-Y Teens, Gregg was one of the students who recently went to Austin to participate in the Y-Teen Government program. He plays football and baseball with the Steers and works nights as a busboy at the Brandin Iron where he says he gets to meet a lot of people.

The essay contest, conducted at the high school by assistant principal Craig Fischer, was judged by a committee made up of local Rebekah and Odd Fellow Lodge members.

All 50 states will be represented by students at the U.N. with about eight states of students attending at one time.

While there, the students will compete in a speech contest from which two overall winners, a boy and a girl, will be selected to attend the Sovereign Grand Lodge in San Antonio when it meets in the fall. The contest winner will also receive a four-year college education, paid for by Oddfellows and Rebekahs.

The Odd Fellows are the only fraternal order permitted to conduct an educational program at the United Nations. Since the pilgrimages first began in 1950, over 22,000 students have participated. Last year, 770 students from every corner of the United States took the tour.

Helping others and benefiting youth are two causes that Odd Fellows and their sister Rebekahs work hand in hand on. In addition to the annual youth pilgrimage, the benevolent organizations help students further their education through student loans, encouragement and motivate young

Three oven choices given to consumer

By JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent
Today's consumer has three oven-cleaning options to choose from.

These options include the standard porcelain-enamel oven, the self-cleaning oven and the continuous-cleaning oven.

Actually, each type is a porcelain-enamel oven but differences involve performance as well as required use and care.

STANDARD OVEN

The standard oven uses a conventional porcelain-enamel finish. There is only one way to clean this type oven — manually, using a homemade or commercial oven cleaner.

SELF-CLEANING OVEN

With the self-cleaning oven, a separate cleaning cycle is used. The door is locked and controls set to permit the oven to heat to temperatures around 900 degrees F.

In the two-to-three-hour cleaning cycle, food splatters and spills are oxidized or burned off with only a small amount of white or gray ash remaining.

After the one-to-two-hour cool-down period, unlock the door and wipe up the ash residue leaving a spotless clean oven.

CONTINUOUS-CLEANING OVEN

With the continuous-cleaning oven system, oven soil is gradually reduced to a "presentably clean" condition through the specially treated surfaces activated during normal baking or roasting procedures.

This clean-while-you bake system works most efficiently at high temperatures (475 degrees F. and above) and for longer periods of time.

Heavy spillovers usually need additional attention after the oven cools — usually soaking and/or light scrubbing according to the manufacturer's instructions.

The purchase cost of the self-cleaning oven is higher than the standard porcelain-enamel or continuous-cleaning oven, however, with more insulation, the self-cleaning oven is more energy efficient during normal baking and roasting.

These ovens use three to four kilowatt-hours of electricity per cleaning, so the oven cleaning cost averages about 15 cents depending on local rates.

By comparison, cleaning the conventional oven requires 75 cents worth of commercial oven cleaner for each manual cleaning.

If the consumer selects the standard porcelain-enamel oven, she can only expect to clean it manually.

If she selects the next costlier continuous-cleaning model, she can expect it to maintain a "presentably clean" appearance with occasional supplementary "light" manual cleaning.

If she selects the self-cleaning system, the consumer can expect a higher initial purchase cost — offset over the life of the range by higher operating efficiency and lower cleaning costs for fully automated cleaning.

Do instead of dreaming

COLLEGE STATION — By using daydreams as springboards, individuals can look at the pros and cons of the dream, choose a course of action and enjoy the present.

Daydreams are beneficial if they motivate, says Jenny Reinhardt, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

All too often, individuals allow daydreams to fill a large portion of their thoughts, she cautions.

The irrational idea, "I'll be happy when..." becomes their master.

Individuals often dream of possible future occurrences. For example, "If I get that new job..." By evaluating this dream, it can be decided if the new job is desired and what course of action could bring preferred results, Ms. Reinhardt says.

If the job is not important, then this dream can end, thus, freeing energy and time for other activities.

Instead of daydreaming, use time and energy for creative and constructive activities in the present.

Realize that it is not possible to change the past or do something about the future until it becomes the present, the specialist suggests.

Cleaning out your garage easier than you think.

WISHING YOU A HAPPY MOHER'S DAY

I want to send a warm "congratulations" to all Mother's on this day — to your Mother and mine. After all — there is no one more dear than our Mothers.

Karen Ann Woodley and Mark Ray McCraney were united in marriage at 7:30 p.m. Apr. 28 in the home of the groom, 1605 E. 6th, by Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotrena.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Woodley, Forsan, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Cooper McCraney, 2514 Broadway, and the late Cooper McCraney.

The bride wore a street-length dress of yellow Qiana knit accented with a deep ruffle at the hemline and ties at the sleeves.

Her hair was adorned with yellow and white daisies, and she wore a corsage of daisies.

Estel Meeks, Big Spring, sister-in-law of the groom,

A reception in the home followed the ceremony. Cake and champagne were served.

The bride is a graduate of Forsan High School and is presently employed at First Federal Savings and Loan Association as a loan processor.

The groom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and recently received a degree from the University of Texas at the Permian Basin. He is currently managing the Gregg Street Texaco.

The couple will make their home at 1605 E. 6th, and will leave June 3 for a delayed wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico.

MRS. JAMES ANTHONY HAYES

Betty Looney, James Hayes wed

Betty Anne Looney became the bride of James Anthony Hayes at 10 a.m. Apr. 8 in the sanctuary of Epworth United Methodist Church, Arlington, with the Rev. Richard Beatty, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Looney, 611 Colgate, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Hayes, Fort Worth.

The ceremony was performed before an arch of greenery and spring flowers with daisies and yellow rosebuds predominant. Baskets of spring flowers and greenery adorned each side of the altar, and lighting was with candelabums of votive candles. Candeligher was James Kelsey Jr., nephew of the groom.

The music, especially taped for the wedding by a chamber music group in which the groom performs, consisted of "The Wedding March," followed by "We've Only Just Begun," "Close to You," "Moonlight Sonata," and other selections.

The bride's ensemble of palazzo pants, fashioned by her mother, was made of white satin and imported lace. The bodice had a belted tunic with deep cuffs and lace inset in a rounded neckline. She wore matching combs of yellow daisies and baby's breath in her hair. For the traditional something old, she wore a solid gold pocketwatch that was presented to her great-grandmother, Matilda J. Wilson, as a bride 100 years ago.

Matron of honor, Mrs. James Looney of Greensboro, N.C., sister-in-law of the bride, was attired in a yellow crepe slacks-suit, and carried a spring bouquet of blue and yellow daisies.

Mark De Hay of Arlington served as best man. James Looney, brother of the bride, John Hayes, brother of the groom, and James Kelsey, brother-in-law of the groom, were ushers.

groom, was ring bearer.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

Mrs. John Talmadge, Conroe, presided over the bride's table, assisted by Mrs. Larry Brown, Lubbock, and Charla Wash, Big Spring. The groom's table was attended by Laura and Holly Ohlen, nieces of the groom.

Guests were registered by Ester Ohlen, niece of the groom, at a table draped with white satin and adorned with a bud vase with two yellow rosebuds and baby's breath.

Notable in attendance were out-of-town guests James Brian and Phillip Murray Looney, Greensboro, N.C., nephews of the bride.

Out-of-town guests also in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Steve Burdick, Mart; Mr. and Mrs. S.D. Powell, Guyton, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Looney, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Looney, Wellston, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Looney and Anita of Denison; Mr. and Mrs. Pat McLaughlin, Copperas Cove; Mr. and Mrs. Don Minor and Elaine, Temple; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Domer and Michael, Oklahoma City; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Morgan and Melody of Oklahoma City formerly of Big Spring; Mr. and Mrs. Phil Treese and Rod, Waco; and S. Sgt. and Mrs. John Hayes, Jennifer Dawn and John Jr., of Hanau, Germany.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and is presently attending the University of Texas, Arlington. The groom is a graduate of Paschal High School, Fort Worth, Tarrant County Junior College and the University of Texas at Arlington, where he is presently employed as Coordinator of Educational Support Services.

The couple is residing in Arlington after a wedding trip to the Houston area.

Twenty-nine 4-H'ers Newcomers compete at Sul Ross

District 6 4-H Elimination Contests were held in Alpine May 6 on the campus of Sul Ross University. 29 4-H'ers from Howard County participated in the competition.

Van Gaskins, a member of the Knott 4-H Club, placed first in the public speaking event and Kelly Hunter, Coahoma 4-H Club, placed second in safety.

Placing third in the senior entomology contest were Scott Robinson, Faron Phinney, Austin Hale, and Bart Griffith. The junior entomology team consisting of Jana Griffin, David Wyrick, Troyce Renfro and James Sanders placed second in competition.

Pam Riddle and LaRhonda Buchanan placed third in clothing education activities and Gary Vaughn placed first in electricity demonstration. Scott and Dawn Underwood placed first in family resource management, and also placing first was Lisa Brooks in pork demonstration.

Paula Allen and Robin Ethridge placed fourth in horse demonstration and Sharon Tindol and Lou Ann Bristo placed second in the junior division of safety demonstration.

In Share-the-Fun activities, Howard County placed second. Members of this team were Christy Wyrick, Stephanie Dobbs, Valerie Kellar, Angie Clanton, Mary June Salazar, Jana Hunter, Leslie Brockman, Jeannie Robertson and Shellie Dorn.

Shower fetes bride-elect

Sandra McChristian, bride-elect of Jay Boyd Allen III, was honored with a bridal shower held at 7:30 p.m., May 11, at the home of Mrs. J.C. McWhorter.

Cohosting the shower with Mrs. McWhorter were Mrs. J.B. Anderson, Mrs. O.B. Kirby, Mrs. Avery Falkner, Mrs. Cecil Peurifoy, Mrs. Carl Coleman, Mrs. Charlie Shanks, Mrs. Leonard West, Mrs. Hervey Perry, Mrs. James R. Cave, Mrs. David Elrod, Mrs. Johnny Johansen, Mrs. George Weeks and Mrs. John Weeks. Special guests were Miss McChristian's mother, Mrs. Benny McChristian, and grandmother, Mrs. Billy Redman. They and the honoree were presented beige corsages with apricot carnations by the hostesses.

The refreshment table was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of beige and apricot.

Centered on the crocheted ecru tablecloth were silk flowers of apricot, yellow and beige. Crystal appointments were used to serve the cake, decorated in apricot and beige. Punch, nuts and mints were also served.

Miss McChristian and Allen will wed June 10.

Wheat, Smith exchange Engagements vows by candlelight

Garden City Baptist Church was the setting for the wedding of Debra Jane Wheat to Steven Don Smith at 8 o'clock Friday night. The Rev. Ross Payne of Cotton Flat Baptist Church, Midland, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arley R. Wheat, Garden City, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas D. Smith, Garden City Route.

The couple stood before an altar adorned with a pair of candelabrum containing pink tapers. Arrangements of hot pink gladiolus, pink carnations and white pompon mums accented the setting.

Mrs. Steve Livingston, Linda Batla, Jacque Frerich and Nancy Batla sang wedding selections accompanied by Mrs. Marck Schafer at the piano.

The bride chose a white formal gown of chiffon over white bridal satin. The dress featured a princess neckline with applied Venice lace and pearls. The full skirt was ruffled in an apron effect and a ruffle encircled the cathedral-length train, which was also trimmed in Venice lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion was outlined in lace and caught from a Juliet headpiece encrusted with matching lace and pearls.

She carried a cascade of pink roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Larry Wheat, Garden City, sister-in-law of the bride, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Eddie Wington, Midland, cousin of the bride; Sharon Smith, Garden City, sister of the groom; and Mrs. David Smith, Knott, sister-in-law of the groom.

Amado de La Pena, Garden City, served as best man, and groomsmen were Larry Wheat, Garden City, brother of the bride; Bryan Briley, Midland, cousin of the bride; and David Smith, Knott, brother of the groom.

Ushering were Wesley Overton and Rex Foster.

A reception in Garden City School cafeteria followed the ceremony. A four-tier cake enhanced with a fountain was served by Mrs. Mark Frysak, Mrs. Tommy Hoelscher and Debra Hoelscher. The bride's table was centered with a wrought-iron candelabrum and crystal appointments were used. The groom's table was decorated with a cake adorned with a tretolite truck and wells. Coffee and punch were served.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Garden City High School and presently works for Texas Electric Service Company as a PBX operator; the groom is also a 1977 graduate of Garden City High School and is employed with Tretolite Chemical Company.

Three taters to a pound

To know how many potatoes to buy: expect four half-cup servings of potato from one pound, and about three medium-sized potatoes in each pound, says Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

NUPTIALS REVEALED — Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Smith, Coahoma, announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Shirley Elaine, to Dennis Lee Day, son of Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Day, For-san. The couple plan to marry at 7 p.m. May 20 in the home of the groom's parents.

DATE SET — Mr. and Mrs. Marion G. Carter, Garden City, announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Toni Jo Tidwell, San Angelo, to Eddy Glynn Moore, San Angelo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benny L. Moore, San Angelo. The couple, who met while students at Angelo State University, which they are still attending, will be married in the Cedar Ridge Church of Christ, Big Spring, by Paul Keele Jr., elder of the church, June 2.

AUGUST PLANS — Mr. and Mrs. Jerry G. Jenkins, Wilmington, N.C., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sharon Kay, to James Y. Robb III, son of J.Y. Robb, 4 Highland Cove. The couple will be wed Aug. 12 in First United Methodist Church, Big Spring, by the Rev. Dr. Weldon Butler.

JUNE BRIDE — Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Weatherby, Rt. 2 Box 185, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ruby Faye, to Terry Moseley, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Moseley, 509 Owens. The couple will be wed at 8 p.m. June 2 in the home of the bridegroom's grandparents, and the Rev. O.D. Robertson, of College Park Church of God, will perform the ceremony.

Cope with conflicts

COLLEGE STATION — One key to keeping the "newlywed feeling" is the ability to recognize and handle conflict, bad feelings, or guilt, says Dorothy Taylor, a family life education specialist.

"Even when there are differences, open conflict does not have to result, if couples try to really listen, try to reason and then give each other the benefit of a doubt when deciding messages they think they heard," she says.

"Couples must realize that each partner brings to the marriage a different set of complicated communication codes, hopes and two individual personalities," she explains.

Exchanges between new couples carry both information and feelings, she continues.

Mom-to-be feted at Monday shower

Mrs. Randy Key, the former Becky Snell, was honored with a baby shower at the home of Joy Fortenberry, 1207 Lloyd, May 8. Helping Mrs. Fortenberry host the 7:30 p.m. event were Doris Griffice, Linda Tranham and Elva Biffar. The honoree was presented with a corsage that featured a squeeze toy for her baby. The hostesses' gift was a crib mattress. Special guests were Mrs. Key's mother, Peggy Snell, her mother-in-law, Lou Key, and grandmother, Dorothy Key.

A cake decorated with booties and topped with a baby carriage was served with coffee and lemonade. A beige tablecloth was used and the centerpiece was an orange vase containing orange roses.

Mrs. Key is expecting her baby in July.

Adoptive Mother Says 'Thank You'

DEAR ABBY: It is very late but something is compelling me to write this letter. After several years of marriage, and nearly as many miscarriages, my husband and I heard of an unwed mother-to-be who was willing to give up her unborn baby. We were thrilled, but didn't dare to get our hopes up, in case something went wrong. Well, everything went fine. We now feel that we lost our babies because God in His infinite wisdom was preparing us for the most precious gift of all—having a chosen child. He is now 8 months old, and we have never known such happiness!

When our son is old enough to understand, we will tell him of his real mother's love for him. I doubt if I could have been as unselfish as she was. Although I don't know her personally, I pray for her daily. I hope that this letter eases the aching in just one unwed mother's heart, for it expresses the gratitude all adoptive parents feel.

NEW MOTHER IN NEW YORK

DEAR NEW MOTHER: I agree. To give up a child for its own good is the ultimate in unselfishness. God bless those mothers who did.

Thanks for a most appropriate item for Mother's Day.

DEAR ABBY: National Poison Prevention Week (March 19-25) deserved more attention than it received. Everyone thinks it can't happen to them, yet last year over 600,000 loved ones (mostly children) were poisoned.

The following are a few suggestions that might save a life. I hope you will think they are worth printing:

1. Never place poisons, paints, solvents, bug sprays, etc. in pop bottles, cups or other containers customarily used for food or drink.
2. Destroy outdated medicine, chemicals or other products by flushing them down the toilet. Don't simply place them in a wastebasket where they can be retrieved by children.
3. Never refer to medicine as "candy." Children may decide later to get more "candy" on their own.
4. Avoid taking medicine in front of children. Children like to imitate adults and might decide to help themselves to some medicine. (P.S. Always turn on a light when taking medicine at night to avoid making a mistake.)
5. Keep all cleaning fluid, soap powders and medicine including aspirin and vitamins, out of the children's reach, and preferably locked up.

Other valuable information can be obtained free by writing to National Poison Prevention Group, P.O. Box 1543, Washington, D.C. 20013. Also ask your local pharmacist what to do if your child is poisoned.

PAUL IN K.C.

DEAR ABBY: Our cat is about to have kittens. My wife and I disagree on whether our boy, 5 years old, should witness this event.

We consider the child to be above average in intelligence and reasonably well-adjusted. He has already asked where babies come from. We would appreciate your opinion.

ON THE FENCE.

DEAR ON: I see no reason why the boy should not witness this event. One picture is worth 10,000 words.

Westbrook news

Hales announce engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hale of Westbrook announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Pansy, to Paul Fernandez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Lopez of Westbrook.

The wedding will take place at 7 p.m. June 16 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Ginkinger.

The bride-elect will graduate in May from Westbrook High School, and the prospective groom is employed by American Petrofina Co. of Texas.

FOURTH-GRADE STUDENTS in Mrs. Roger Moore's class at Westbrook School have produced their own colorful filmstrip on traffic safety using materials provided free of charge by the Texas Office of Traffic Safety.

In "The Safest Show on Earth," class members create their own illustrations for a full-color, sound filmstrip exploring key aspects of passenger, bicycle and pedestrian safety.

After the students finish their illustrations, the drawings are processed into a filmstrip by Media Intensive Learning Corp., designers of the program.

The strip is returned to the class that made the drawings, along with a lively soundtrack cassette narrated by children. Both the filmstrip and the cassette become the property of the school.

More than half a million children across the nation have participated in the program to date. Initial evidence from evaluation efforts in Texas indicate that the program is contributing to a reduction in traffic accidents among school children.

BETTY OGLESBY attended the wedding of her son, the Rev. Frank Oglesby Jr., Spearman, to Helen Collins of Lubbock, at 5 p.m. Apr. 30 in the First Methodist Church, Spearman.

The Rev. Oglesby is pastor of the church there.

Mrs. Oglesby returned home Sunday night accompanied by her two granddaughters Sandy of Mississippi and Sherrie of Lubbock.

MR. AND MRS. W. A. Bell visited in Odessa Sunday with the Larry Bells and the Charles Walkers.

Ruby Sweatt and Mr. and Mrs. George Sweatt of Colorado City visited with Doris Hardin and son Brandon in Snyder Wednesday night.

D.J. Barber attended the graduation exercises of his son, the Rev. Frank Oglesby Jr., Spearman.

DEBRA JEAN HUTCHINS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hutchins, Albuquerque, N.M., and formerly of Westbrook, has been named a George E. Mylonas Scholar at Washington University.

Miss Hutchins, who will graduate this spring from El Dorado High School, was one of three Mylonas Scholars selected by the university through a national merit competition. The scholarships are granted solely on the basis of academic potential and achievement and carry a $500 stipend plus full tuition for four years of undergraduate study at Washington University.

The scholarships, awarded annually to outstanding students in the humanities, are named for George E. Mylonas, one of the world's leading archaeologists, who is director of archaeological excavations in Mycenae, Greece. He was a member of the Washington University faculty from 1933-68, and headed the university's department of art and archaeology for many years.

Miss Hutchins was born in Colorado City and lived in Westbrook until she was 5 years old. Her parents were teachers in the Westbrook School where Hutchins served as principal for many years.

Miss Hutchins flew to St. Louis, Mo., where she was interviewed by the university for the scholarship.

UTA offers four sessions

AUSTIN — Male-female communication, creative writing, public speaking and personal finance are the topics of four workshops offered to women this summer by the Division of Continuing Education at The University of Texas.

The four workshops are collected under the general title "In Transition," a series of continuing education programs for women provided by the division each semester. Coordinator of the "Women in Transition" series is Frances Plotsky, training specialist.

"Male-female Communication in Business-Social Settings" is co-sponsored by the UT School of Communication and is scheduled for June 6, 13, 20 and 27. Director of the workshop is Dr. Norma Selvidge, communication evaluator.

All four sessions will take place in the morning. The fee is $30. The second workshop will deal with creative writing and will be taught by Dr. Shirley Crook, instructor in the UT Department of English. The workshop will offer skill building in writing for publication or for personal self-fulfillment.

Set for June 1, 8, 22 and 29, the workshop also will be given in the morning and will cost $30. Co-sponsor is the UT College of Humanities.

"Women, Speak Up!" will deal with public speaking, leadership skills, persuasion and dealing with stress.

Neal Hartman, instructor in speech communication, will lead the workshop, which will meet on the evenings of June 7, 14, 21 and 28. The fee is $30. Co-sponsor is the UT School of Communication.

The fourth workshop topic, "Personal Finance," was offered for the first time by the division this spring. It is co-sponsored by the UT College of Business Administration and taught by Dr. Harold Wolf, professor of finance.

Sessions will meet in the evenings June 8, 15 and 22. Again, the fee will be $30.

All workshops will be held at the Joe C. Thompson Conference Center on the UT campus. Fees include instruction, refreshment breaks and materials.

Further details about individual workshops are available through the Division of Continuing Education, The University of Texas, Main Building 2500, Austin, 78712. The telephone number is (512) 471-3123.

TWEEN 12 and 20 Stick to 'G' or 'GP' for your movie fare

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 and would like to see a few "R" rated movies, especially "Saturday Night Fever," but my parents say that I must wait until I'm 18.

I don't want to ever ask Mother for a favor again, but I know this is wrong. What can I do? — Kathy, Gastonia, N.C.

My friends all laugh at me because I can't go, and I hate to be laughed at. Please tell me who is right, my parents or me. — Carol, Fort Smith, Ark.

Dear Carol: Your parents. "R" means restricted and that teens under 17 (18 in California) without accompanying parent or adult guardian are not to be admitted. It's very plain and simple.

Dr. Wallace: Whenever I ask my mother for a favor or for an extra privilege, she usually says no, and then I ask my dad when he comes home and he usually says yes. Then they get into a fight and I feel guilty.

Yesterday I asked my mother if I could have a school club party at our house and she said no because our house was small.

After supper I asked my dad and after a few questions by him, he said yes.

When I told my mother that Daddy said I could have the party, she immediately started yelling at him and I just went into my room and cried.

Dear Kathy: The next time you have an important favor, ask both parents at the same time.

When one parent is played against the other, the end result is usually predictable — trouble.

Dr. Wallace: I received a small kitten for my birthday eight months ago. She now has developed into a beautiful cat. Last week Mother and I took her to the veterinarian for her shots. The doctor told us that the cat should also be "fixed," so she wouldn't have a litter of kittens.

That evening at supper, our family discussed the cat fixing. Mother and Dad agreed with the veterinarian.

I strongly disagreed. What right do humans have to sterilize animals, and if they do, who gave us that divine right?

It's fine that humans are sterilized; it's their choice, but for animals, it's a different story.

Women's exercise class offered new

YMCA Women's exercise classes will begin a new session on Monday, May 15.

What better gift could a woman give herself and her family than her own good health? The women who exercise at the "Y" are enthusiastic in their support of the fitness program offered for women.

On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings there are two classes — one at 9 and one at 10. On Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday mornings the women meet at 9.

In the evening, the women meet from 6 to 7 on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday for Aerobic Dancing.

The morning classes meet with Hannah Coleman, who is conducting jump rope routines, aerobic dancing, floor exercises, interval training, and folk dancing.

Linda Ward teaches the aerobic dancing in the evening classes.

For further information and registration, call 267-8234, the number for YMCA Women's Fitness.

Fashion by Lorch

A CHIC, DRESSY SUMMER look in 100% polyester loomed on silk looms in Japan. The fabric has the hand of fine silk broadcloth and is styled by Lorch in a most feminine way. The "big shirt" ties at the waist or tucks into the easy, pocketed skirt. Jewel colors of opal, amethyst, turquoise in sizes 4-16.

PRETTY BLOSSOM colors in a poly/cotton blend look like hand-painted flowers in this "Patio" grouping. Shown are the ruffled, lace-trimmed tube top with the lace-trimmed "bag" pant. A truly feminine look with a comfortable fit for summer. Sizes 4-16.

Menopause is new beginning

Although menopause is "without question a time of enormous physical and emotional strain, for many women it is also an opportunity to end outmoded role patterns and grow into a new social and psychological life."

Addressing a meeting of the Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine, Bernice C. Sachs, MD, also said that doctors can aid in this growth process by allaying the patient's fears and misconceptions. Recognizing that it is normal to experience an unsettled period at this time of life may help deal with the transition productively and creatively.

Dr. Sachs added that menopause can trigger severe psychiatric reactions in women who have had prior emotional problems.

Dear Vivian: Some pets, cats included, suffer from the same human dilemma, overpopulation. It is far more humane to have a cat fixed than to have unwanted kittens who often run wild or are put to sleep.

by Thomasville.

The Renaissance in Italy was an age of never ending display of great splendor and magnificence. Furnishings were created which were appropriate in scale and richness. Now Thomasville recreates these timeless traditional designs in a bedroom and dining room grouping. A particularly elegant traditional detail is the breakfront feature of the case pieces. The center section breaks forward from the very beautiful top to the handsome base. The key-stone motif, another pleasing traditional detail, is seen on doors and the flowing arch pediment of the china and the mirror. Each piece illustrates quality craftsmanship and meticulous attention to design detail. The woods are pecky pecan veneers and pecan solids. For added visual interest, rare ash burl veneers from the graceful hedgerows of France are artfully featured as overlays on doors and end posts as well as accents on the drawers and as a banding on the magnificent table top. These choice veneer treatments offer an exciting beauty seldom seen in furnishings. The finish, a lighter fruitwood tone, is hand-rubbed to a medium sheen more in keeping with today's traditional taste. Special hardware treatments include elegant brass finished rings and fashionable ball pulls. Here is a grouping which will answer the needs of the most discriminating homeowner.

Patriotism program accorded ovation

The Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary met March 25 for their Annual Americanism Program at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall in Silver Heels.

Katie Spivey, commander, greeted the crowd filling the hall and told them how proud she was of the turnout, and announced that Gold Star Mothers were special guests.

She introduced Mrs. Truett Thomas, president of Gold Star Mothers, who in turn introduced eight of the mothers and three fathers.

Mrs. A.E. True was introduced then by Mrs. Spivey, who turned the program over to her daughter, Mamie Lee Dodds, who is a teacher at Marcy Elementary School.

Mrs. Dodds read a letter from George Washington to his wife, Martha, telling her that he was no longer president and that he was on his way to a hotel to welcome John Adams, the new president. Thoughts on leaving office and on patriotism ran throughout the letter.

She said that the program, "What is Patriotism?" would be staged by students from the school who belonged to the honor society.

Students participating in the program were Jimmy Cowan, Tonya Stevenson, Greg Blythe, Robyn Mires, Mark Walker, Mesa Rhodes, Michele Warner, Michele Basham, Leric Wagner, Lisa Subia, Debbie Holguin, Annette Rodriguez, Theresa Martinez, Barbara Holmes, Chris Daniels, Rosa Garcia, Chris Hicks, Mark Carmichael, Clark Dunnam and Stacy Basham.

One group of students argued about the definition of patriotism and others explained what they thought patriotism was.

As the students began to leave, they were stopped by Mrs. Spivey, who presented Mrs. Dodds with a white carnation corsage and each student with a jeweled flag pin.

As she pinned the flags on the students, she asked if they would sing a song while she was doing this, and after thinking a moment, the students, completely unrehearsed, sang four songs, ending with "God Bless America." The group in the hall came to a standing ovation and sang along with them.

The hall was decorated with red, white and blue, and fresh flowers were furnished by the Donald Trupps, who have furnished flowers for the past three years.

The crowd was served punch, coffee and cake, which was made in the shape of an American flag.

This event was recorded in pictures which will be sent into the Texas State Department of History and will be kept there in hopes of winning a national award this year.

Club works on projects

The Sew and Chatter Club met Wednesday in the home of Toni Rossion for an afternoon of handiwork on projects including latchhook rug-making, crochet and quilt work.

A donation was made to the Salvation Army to help send an underprivileged child to summer camp.

Plans were made for a family picnic which will take place June 14 in the Shadow Pavilion at Comanche Trail Park.

Mrs. Bill McIlvain's birthday was celebrated with the group singing "Happy Birthday." Cake and coffee were served to the 15 members present.

The next meeting will be at the home of Ruby Billings, 1603 Runnels, May 24.

HD council holds tea

County Home Demonstration Clubs banded together Monday for a membership tea in the north fellowship hall of the First Methodist Church.

The tea was organized by the Howard County Home Demonstration Council in an attempt to interest area women in home demonstration club work. Forty-eight women attended the event.

The highlight of the membership tea was a book review by Mrs. Clyde Thomas Jr. of "Fifty Plus" by Jeanette Lockerbie. Mrs. Thomas emphasized many ideas for creative living which apply to all age groups as well as those directed at the fifty-plus group.

Following the book review, everyone browsed through an educational and crafts exhibit prepared by home demonstration club members throughout the county.

The tea was hosted by the Cultural Arts and Recreational Committee consisting of Mrs. Merle Hodnett, chairman; Mrs. B.A. Bunn and Mrs. Vernon Kent, and by presidents of the seven home demonstration clubs in the county.

Representing their clubs were Mrs. B.L. Mason of Coahoma H.D.; Mrs. C.K. Orr, Centerpoint H.D.; Mrs. Raymond Key, Airport H.D.; Mrs. Jowill Etchison, City H.D.; Mrs. LeRoy Dolan, Elbow H.D.; Mrs. C.A. Smauley, Fairview H.D.; and Mrs. James Johnston, Creative Homemaker.

Mrs. Johnston also represented the Home Demonstration Council as council chairman.

Frankie Boyd new president

The Business and Professional Women's Club met in the TESCO Reddy Room for a regular meeting and covered dish dinner at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Edith Gay, president, conducted the business meeting, in which an invitation from Cruz Salazar, a Howard College nursing student and the club's scholarship recipient, to the nursing convocation May 11 was read. Some members planned to attend.

Lois Eitzen, chairman of the nominating committee, made the report on nominations for 1978-79 officers, which were accepted by acclamation.

New officers will be Frankie Boyd, president; Kip Bracy, first vice president; Mamie Roberts, second vice president; Ola Mae Robertson, recording secretary; Bernice Gallaway, corresponding secretary; Delphia Gordon, treasurer; and Miss Gay, parliamentarian.

The world affairs committee, composed of Mary Newell, Ruby Billings and Ms. Robertson, was in charge of arrangements for the meal, and will be hostesses for the next meeting at Coker's Restaurant May 23, at which Mrs. Leroy Hollingshead will show slides of her recent trip to the Holy Land.

AAUW will meet Monday

The American Association of University Women will have a salad supper at 7 o'clock Monday night at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

At the supper, the four recipients of A.A.U.W. Scholarships will be honored.

Rainbow girls plan banquet

Big Spring Assembly No. 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, held their regular business meeting Tuesday evening in the Masonic Temple.

Prior to the meeting, the assembly had a party honoring members who were graduating from high school. Kenda Born and Leilani Thomas were presented with gifts.

Worthy Advisor Robin von Rosenberg presided over the activities and meeting, at which officers were elected for the term beginning in June.

To be installed at 8:30 p.m. June 9 are Cindy Roberts, Worthy Advisor; Debby Thompson, Worthy Associate Advisor; Dana Hodnett, charity; Jean Alice, hope; and Ronda Beene, faith.

May 23 will be a special date for the assembly, as they are having a Spring Round-up Banquet. All "Majority Rainbow Girls" will be special guests, and the Grand Worthy Advisor, Bobby Yearout, will be the honored guest. The banquet will begin at 5:45 p.m.

Officers and choir will have a practice at 10 a.m. May 20, and they will also assist the board members in decorating the banquet room.

All girls going to the Grand Assembly in San Antonio June 12-14 will practice their grand chorus June 3.

Kee Rebekahs

Members of John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge No. 153 met at the I.O.O.F. Hall, 3203 W. Hwy. 80, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday with 18 members present. Frances Loftis, Noble Grand, was the presiding officer.

Reports of the sick were given and other business attended to.

The history of Mother's Day was given by Alma Pye, LaVerne Rogers and Lavelle Hill, which members found interesting.

Mother's Day was organized by Anna Jarvis, a Sunday school teacher. It was held May 10, 1908 in Grafton, W.Va., and in 1914 Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas introduced into the Senate a resolution designating the second Sunday in May for "a public expression of our love and reverence for the mothers of our country." The resolution quickly passed both houses, and Mother's Day has been observed on the second Sunday of May ever since.

Winnie Ralph, mother of the lodge, was escorted to the altar by Mrs. Luther Bonner and Mrs. Loftis pinned a corsage on her.

Refreshments were furnished by Grace Martin, Mary Cole and Mary Leek, and were served by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leek and Elizabeth.

A school of instruction will take place at the next meeting, May 16. All members are urged to attend.

Centerpoints elect leader

The Center Point Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Ireba Griffith, 1619 E. 17th, at 2 p.m. Tuesday with Jen Davidson as co-hostess.

Roll call was answered by the 18 members present with showing and explaining a flower arrangement that each had made, and the devotional was given by Mrs. Griffith.

Refreshments of homemade ice cream, miniature muffins and salted nuts were served from a table draped with a lace-trimmed white cloth; decorations used the spring colors of yellow, green and white.

Five dollars was given to the K.O.A.C. for utility expenses, and a card was sent to Mrs. Homer Haygood signed by each member expressing sympathy for recent family illness.

It was noted that 173 women belong to the seven home demonstration clubs in Howard County.

Plans are being made for the State H.D.C. Convention to take place in Dallas Oct. 3-5 at the Baker Hotel. There will be a fare of $38 for a chartered bus which will leave Big Spring at 7 a.m. Oct. 3. Members should have their money into the extension office by June 6, although hotel costs will not need to be paid until arrival in Dallas.

Each H.D. club appoints a nominee for T.H.D.A. and they will vote for three, plus a chairman, to represent Howard County. Center Point's nominee is Mrs. Vernon Kent.

Officers elected for the upcoming club year to take office in September are Lucille Petty, president; Maudie Jones, vice president; Mrs. N.R. Garrett, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Kent, reporter.

Members participated in a guided tour of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center at 11 a.m. Thursday followed by a luncheon at Sizzler Steak House at noon. A May Day Tea at the fellowship hall of the First Methodist Church was attended by 50 members and guests Monday; 11 members from Center Point Club. The program was a book review on "50 Plus" by Jane Thomas.

Program at Tuesday's meeting was given by Joyce Orr, president, on "Death and Dying," a book by Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross. It is about what the dying have to teach doctors, nurses, clergy and their families, and lists the five stages of death: denial, anger, bargaining, depression and acceptance.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Davidson, and the next meeting will take place at 2 p.m. May 23 at K.O.A.C. A program by Sandra Killough on "Wild Flowers of Glenrose, Texas" will be presented. Hostesses will be Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Kent.

Reception honors Lottiemae Chapman

A reception honoring Lottiemae Chapman was held in the First United Methodist Church parlor Apr. 30.

Mrs. Chapman, Special Education Diagnostician with Big Spring Independent School District, is retiring after 34 years in various areas of public education, including teaching stints in Oklahoma, New Mexico, Pennsylvania and Texas.

In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Chapman were Gene Adkins, Director of Special Education, and Macy Newell, retired director.

Mrs. Chapman was presented a peach carnation corsage which complimented her dress of soft floral hues. Hostesses gave Mrs. Chapman porcelain art object as a token of esteem.

Background music was provided by Kathy Tedesco and Sharon Stephens.

A silver urn held a fresh spring flower bouquet, and silver and crystal appointments were used to serve floating punch, coffee and tea.

Assorted teacakes and pastry were offered from the large yellow-draped table and other smaller tables in the room.

Ninety friends and acquaintances registered in the guest book, and out-of-town guests attending the reception included Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lewis and Mrs. Mary Innis, Artesia, N.M.; Mrs. J.R. Avent and Mr. and Mrs. S.F. Flores, Midland; Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Moseley, Monahans; and Mr. and Mrs. Winston Wilson, Alpine.

Members of the houseparty were John Talmadge, Margaret Lloyd, Inez Dickinson, Nedelene Speegle, Sandra Hicks, Marisue Bowers, Ann Bott, Barbara Miller, Betty Dean, Mary Jane Brown, Carol Stephens and Adkins.

It's Mother's Day

with Marj Carpenter

Yes it is, it's Mother's Day. And Bobbie Thompson of Coahoma sent in a story on her mother and a poem to remind us not to wait too late to honor our own mothers.

She said simply, "This poem is a reminder to those who can still go and hold their mother's hands and tell her they love her on her day, and other days. "Their love will mean more to her than gifts or flowers. I know. I'm a widow and live alone and it means a lot to me when my kids come by."

She related this history of her mother: "Mother was born Georgia Fay Cheairs, May 31, 1895 at Gatesville in Carroll County. She was raised on a farm near Ackerly and Knott, one of 11 children born to George Francis and Nana Cheairs.

"She married Albert Daylong (now of Midland) in 1917. They were married in Big Spring. Their first home was in the 500 block of Goliah.

"We, their eight children, were raised on a farm at Ireland (Texas) near Gatesville. There was never a job too hard for my mother to do for her children. To me, she was beautiful and wonderful.

"She died in Midland May 21, 1977, ten days before her 82nd birthday. We got to keep her a long time, but she

To me, the prettiest hair I've ever seen.
Mother didn't know a lot of music.
Didn't go far in the music world.
Her songs were softened by love
And brightened by laughter
The voice of an angel to her little girl.
Mother's hands didn't look like hand lotion ads.
Her hands worked hard, in the sun and the cold,
But when she touched my fevered brow,
Her hands were tenderness
Even now, the hands I long to hold.

But she could always smile to hide the pain.

Bald eagle dies in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — A bald eagle born at the Cincinnati Zoo earlier this week, has died, zoo officials said.

The bird died Thursday. Zoo spokeswoman Janet Ross said the cause of death would be investigated.

It was the first bald eagle born at the Cincinnati Zoo and was one of only a few bald eagle births recorded in captivity.

HC classes this summer

As a result of increased student interest and enrollment, the Howard College Adult Basic Education Evening Classes will be extended throughout the summer.

However, there will be a change in class time. Beginning on Tuesday, May 16, classes will be held from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The regularly scheduled evening classes will end Thursday, May 11, with an End of the Year Party. All participants are urged to attend.

The Second Annual Graduation Ceremonies will be held as planned on June 4, 7:30 p.m., in the Howard College Auditorium. All friends and relatives of the graduates are cordially invited to attend.

The day-time Adult Learning Center classes will continue operation from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Adults interested in registering for either the day-time or evening classes may obtain further information by either inquiring at the Adult Education Office in the Administration Building at Howard College or by calling 267-6311 ext. 66.

Baubles, bangles going up in price, survey shows

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Baubles, bangles and assorted other jewelry items are going up in price because of higher costs for everything from the boxes the products come in to the diamonds that lend them sparkle.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said recently that a sharp and unusual boost in the price of jewelry was a major reason for the increase in the Wholesale Price Index during April. The bureau blamed higher gold prices for the rise, but that's only part of the story.

Bob Dixon, president of Eisenstadt Co., a wholesale jewelry firm in St. Louis, said soaring prices for diamonds and January's increase in the minimum wage were equally important factors in boosting costs.

He said the rise in the minimum wage affected not only the jewelry manufacturers, but also the packaging industry. That means higher prices for the fancy boxes, as well as for their contents, he said.

Dixon said gold and silver prices in the first quarter of 1978 were 9 percent higher than in the last quarter of 1977. Diamond prices have soared 50 percent in the last year, he added.

The average retail price of a woman's 14-karat gold wedding band without any complicated design or jewels is $55 today compared to $45 a year ago, Dixon said. A similar man's ring has gone from $60 to $75.

The increase in the prices of precious metals and stones are tied, in part, to U.S. economic problems. As inflation erodes the value of the dollar, people invest in other commodities.

"The most precipitous rise was probably in the diamond area," said Morton R. Saret, president of the Jewelry Industry Council. He said there has been "a spiraling of demand...stimulated by economic uncertainties."

Dixon said the cost of the materials accounts for 50 percent of the price of the average piece of jewelry — without any precious stones. The proportion decreases or increases depending on the complexity of the item.

Buying jewelry can be complicated, even if you stay away from the confusing array of precious stones. Here is a definition of some of the terms involved:

Karat — used to indicate the proportion of gold in an alloy. Pure gold is 24 karat. The word should not be confused with carat, a measurement of weight for precious stones.

Gold jewelry — by law, must be at least 10 karat, meaning it has 10 parts of pure gold and 14 parts of some other metal. Most gold jewelry is 14 or 18 karat.

Gold-filled jewelry — made by bonding a layer or layers of gold to a base metal, usually copper. The outer layer must be at least 10 karat in fineness and must equal at least one-twentieth of the article's total metal weight.

Rolled gold plate — made by the same method as gold-filled, but with less gold by weight.

Gold electroplate — Electrolytically coated with at least seven millionths of an inch of gold. Heavy gold electroplate has a coating of at least 100 millionths of an inch thick.

Conspirator doesn't know

PARIS (AP) — Watergate coverup conspirator John D. Ehrlichman, who just finished 18 months in prison for his role in the scandal, says he still doesn't know whether the CIA has any role in the Democratic headquarters burglary.

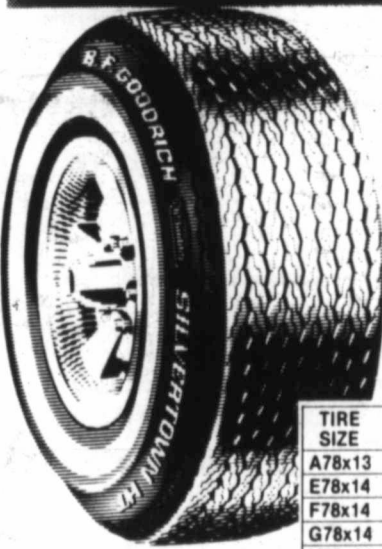

"It's an unresolved question, and I just don't know the answer," Ehrlichman said in a show to be broadcast Sunday on French television. Taped on Thursday, it was viewed in advance by reporters.

Ehrlichman appears on the program with Robert Woodward, a Washington Post reporter who helped expose the coverup.

The reporting on Watergate of Woodward and fellow Post reporter Carl Bernstein won the Pulitzer Prize for the Post.

Woodward said he worked hard to find CIA links to the break-in but never found such evidence to be indisputable.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY MAY 14, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Let your thoughts and activities be guided by the Golden Rule in doing unto others as you would have them do unto you. Study ways and means by which you can be successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to gain much satisfaction in your favorite activities today. Allow time to make long-range plans for the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take time to study a new venture that appeals to you and could mean added income in the days ahead. Relax at home tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Visit places where you can elevate your consciousness and enjoy life. Concentrate on the pleasant side of life.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day to reflect your philosophy by attending the services of your choice. Express true happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go after those personal longings that are strong within you and get excellent results. Take time to visit good friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A time when you can benefit from philosophical teachings. Have a long talk with mate and come to a true understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day to seek the company of friends you truly like and express happiness together. Make this an ideal day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Engage in activities that will improve your standing in the community where you live. Express happiness with family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Allow time to plan a new course through which you can advance faster than you have in the past.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find an improved way of handling your obligations in the future. View the future with increased hope and confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new ways to make your life richer and more satisfying. Do something thoughtful for those who have been good to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Think of new ways that could help you have greater abundance in the days ahead. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be able to gain much success provided you live as in an education as you can afford. Give praise for any good work done. Teach to be more objective since there is much sensitivity in this nature. Give good ethical training.

THE SCENE above is one bit from the upcoming Colorado City Playhouse production of "Accommodations", a three-act comedy. Shown are Fred McWhorter as Bob and Karen Gilliland as Pat. The comedy will be presented May 18-20 and the 25-27 in the Colorado City Playhouse. Tickets are $3 per person, and go on sale Monday. Phone (915) 728-3491 for reservations.

Playhouse sets date

"Accommodations," a three-act comedy, will be presented by the Colorado City Playhouse May 18, 19, 20, 25, 26 and 27. Curtain time is 8 p.m. each evening.

Tickets, $3 per person, will go on sale at the Colorado City Playhouse box office at 1 p.m., Monday. The box office will be open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday of both weeks during the presentation and from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. on each day of performance. Phone 915-728-3491 for reservations.

"Accommodations" was written by Nick Hall for the dinner theatre and has not yet appeared on Broadway. It can be compared to the popular television series "Three's Company," and Neil Simon's "Goodbye Girl."

In "Accommodations," three people with the first names of men are leased an apartment. However, two of the persons are women, one an aspiring actress and the other an older woman who has just left her husband.

The third person is a young male student. A fourth person in the play is the husband of the older woman and he doesn't like the idea of his wife living in the same apartment with a strange man.

The result is a lot of laughs.

Starring in the Colorado City Playhouse production of "Accommodations" which is directed by Larry DeBusk, are Karen Gilliland, Ken Sanderson, Marian Craddock and Fred McWhorter. All have appeared in previous Colorado City Playhouse productions.

This is the second production for Colorado City Playhouse this year and the 43rd major production for the community theatre group since it was started in the 1960's.

IT HAPPENS AFTER DARK — Eartha Kitt, star of the Broadway play, "Timbuktu," arrives Thursday night at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on the shoulders of Tony Carroll, Mr. Universe 1977. They were attending the "Ruby" awards presentation by After Dark magazine.

Promoting Texas Film Commission lures producers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Hollywood producers aren't hard to please, Pat Wolfe has learned.

Just furnish them a 1950s cafe, next to a motel on a highway with one gas station, mountains in the background and a town down the road.

Ms. Wolfe helped one crew find such a scene just outside El Paso in the town of Fabens.

"They had to redecorate the cafe to get it just like they wanted it, but didn't have to change much else," said the executive director of the Texas Film Commission.

Since its beginning in 1971, the commission has changed from an agency begging for publicity to one fielding constant requests from Hollywood and New York producers for help in locating film sites in Texas.

In its first two years, the agency brought in $10 million in productions. Last year alone, film crews spent $32 million in Texas.

The Fabens location is being used for filming, "When Are You Coming Home, Red Rider?," a play adaptation. Marjoe Gortner, Peter Firth of "Equus" fame, Hal Linden and Lee Grant are among those signed for the production.

"It's a heavy storyline," says Ms. Wolfe. "It's the kind of thing they give Academy Awards for." The movie involves a Vietnam veteran who holds several persons hostage in an old cafe.

In addition to films, the commission tries to convince television and commercial producers to try Texas instead of Los Angeles and New York.

"We claim to be the third coast," said the 32-year-old director with an "I Love Texas" necklace around her neck.

Producers usually contact the film commission, either by phone or by sending scripts and asking Ms. Wolfe if Texas can provide the right location.

The commission has tried to play down "typical" Texas sites of prickly pear cactus, longhorns and oil wells, she said. Still, several productions listed on her office chalkboard include such names as "Gusher" and "Oil."

Among the current productions is one directed by Ron Howard of "Happy Day." The television-film, "Cotton Candy" is being filmed at Lake Highlands High School in Dallas and the surrounding area.

Filming also is scheduled this summer in Houston for the $10 million television production of "Blood and Money," an adaptation of Tommy Thompson's book concerning the murder of a Houston physician accused of killing his socialite wife.

The film commission, with three fulltime employees and a $146,000 budget, has room for expansion if the Legislature sees fit, she said. Ms. Wolfe stays in contact with films in production and often visits the site to check on progress.

Concerns include making sure restaurants and motels don't hike up prices when film crews arrive and seeing that producers pay their bills. Both situations have occurred in the past.

"A parking garage in Houston wanted to charge $2,000 to let 'The Bad News Bears in Breaking Training' park their trucks there," she said, adding a phone call straightened that out.

Producers who fail to pay their bills can be traced through the Motion Picture Producers Association in Hollywood or by contacting film commissions in the other 39 states with such agencies.

Local communities, from the police chief to chamber of commerce, have welcomed film crews with few exceptions, she said.

"Sometimes we get ladies who say, 'I don't want my chicken coop filmed.' But I don't think we've saturated any one place so much to turn off the population," she said.

Summer reading club prepared for season

By ANNE SMART, CHILDREN'S LIBRARIAN

Every year, the Howard County Library conducts a Summer Reading Club for young readers between the ages of six and 12. The objective of this club is to read as many books as possible. The members are permitted to choose the books they want to read. The only requirement for membership is a current Howard County Library card. To obtain one, simply come to the library and ask. Children under 14 must have their parent's signature.

There is a wide variety of books for the members to choose from, among them picture books, mysteries, including the ever-popular Hardy Boys, fiction, non-fiction and biographies. We are bringing back our children's paperbacks that were so popular last summer and adding a similar set suitable for teenage readers. The titles in the teenage collection are especially chosen with the reader's interests in mind. There are books by Judy Blume, books from well-known television shows, including "Star Trek" and "Welcome Back, Kotter," books of "Snoopy" and "B.C." comic strips, books about sports, including the Dallas Cowboys, Agatha Christie and Alfred Hitchcock mysteries, Tarzan stories, science fiction, craft books, the "Guinness Book of World Records" and high-quality non-fiction.

There will be a program every Wednesday morning between June 14 and Aug. 2 for the members from 10:30 until 11:30 a.m. We will have interesting speakers, films, arts, and crafts projects and field trips. Registration will be from June 1 through 7. We will accept latecomers, however. The reading program will last from June 8 through Aug. 5 and the reading certificates will be presented on Aug. 9 to those who read a minimum of 12 books. We will continue to have our weekly Saturday film series from 1:30 until 2:30 p.m. and our Friday morning pre-school story hour from 10:00 until 11:00 a.m.

For any other information, please contact the Howard County Library.

Extended classroom 'idea' celebrates anniversary

HOUSTON (AP) — When KUHT-TV was literally kicked on the air 25 years ago, many thought "educational television" would be an extended classroom — a revolutionary way to teach, perhaps, but one doomed to financial insecurity.

As the nation's first non-commercial television station celebrates its silver anniversary, public television — although still plagued by funding problems — has moved far beyond the confines of the classroom. "Educational programming still plays a large part in our schedule, but since the late 1960s, the station has been heavily dedicated to the whole community," said station manager James Bauer.

The University of Houston, together with the Houston school district, applied for and received the first license to broadcast over one of 242 channels set aside by the Federal Communications Commission for non-commercial television.

CRACKER JACK - M&M's

We are seeking qualified people in your and surrounding cities to become a part of a new NATIONAL DISTRIBUTOR NETWORK. This exciting program features CRACKER JACK and M&M's, America's favorites for many years. This is a ground floor opportunity since this is the FIRST TIME OFFERED in vendors. Television and Radio do the selling; all you have to do is restock and collect money from the latest in automatic vending equipment. All EXCLUSIVE ACCOUNTS are furnished and set up by us. You have NO COMPETITION. Makes a fine family business since you can START PART TIME, no need to stop your present work. Work three to ten hours of your choice each week. EXPAND TO FULL TIME when ready through our COMPANY PARTICIPATING EXPANSION PROGRAM.

NO OVERHEAD - NO SELLING - NO EXPERIENCE

If you are a $400 to $1,000 per week caliber person, or know you can become one, you may be the person we seek. This is not employment but a highly profitable business you can call your own. All you need is a burning desire to be successfully independent plus $1,195, $2,250, or $5,660 in immediately available funds to INVEST IN YOUR FUTURE NOW! You must be of good character, have references and a serviceable car. INVESTMENT SECURED BY EQUIPMENT & INVENTORY. For personal interview, WRITE ME TODAY; be sure to include your phone number and when you can be reached. I'll see that you get the facts. THE PRESIDENT

CARD OF THANKS
Perhaps you sang a lovely song.
Or sat quietly in a chair,
Perhaps you sent beautiful flowers.
If so, we saw them there.
Perhaps you sent or spoke kind words.
As any friend could say:
Perhaps you prepared some tasty food.
Or maybe furnished a car;
Perhaps you rendered a service unseen.
Near at hand or from afar,
Whatever you did to console the heart
We thank you so much,
Whatever the part.

CARD OF THANKS
The family of Pascal (Pat)
Moore wishes to thank all of our kind friends, neighbors and relatives for their many kind expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement.
